Railways Forced To New Cotton Freight Slash

LINES DECLARE TRUCK HAULING RUINS MARKET

Cut of 30 to 50 per Cent Is Planned to Meet Competition

GALVESTON OPPOSES

Port Declares Houston Shown Favoritism By Carriers

AUSTIN, Sept. 22. (AP)—Reductions in cotton freight rates ranging from 30 to 50 per cent under prevailing charges were submitted to the state railroad commission today by railroad carriers in an effort to meet truck competition and stabilize what was termed "a deplorable situation" in the marketing of cotton.

Several speakers declared that under present conditions it was nearly impossible to know whether a profit would be made when a buyer purchased cotton, since there was no means of determining transportation costs. While class "A" truck operators, regulated by the state, were not openly accused of cutting prices, class "B" operators and contract haulers were said to offer rates far below the rail rates and in many instances below the rates proposed in the reductions.

Few Protests

There were few protests to the decrease. Truck operators were apparently of the opinion they could get the cotton business regardless of what the railroads charged. Among the principal opponents were official representatives of Galveston, who declared present and proposed rail rates gave Houston a marked advantage over Galveston and Texas City. Speaking in favor of the reduction were representatives or chambers of commerce at Waco, Kennedy, Taylor, Hill county; Navasota, Lockhart, the Texas Farm Bureau federation, the Dallas Cotton exchange, the Houston Cotton exchange, and the Temple Chamber of Commerce. The Beaumont chamber endorsed it with the reservation that the reductions also

2.75 Beer Predicted By Dyer

Solon Says Commission To Recommend Brew As 'Dry' Remedy

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (US)—President Hoover's law enforcement commission will recommend beer of 2.75 per cent alcoholic content, Representative Leonidas C. Dyer, Republican, of Missouri, predicted today.

Beer of this alcoholic content will be proposed as a remedy for the conditions brought about by prohibition, in Dyer's opinion.

Pursuant to a motion adopted at a meeting of the commission, an investigation of the beer proposal is now being made by investigators for the commission, Dyer said he had been informed.

People in all walks of life are being questioned as to the wisdom of legalizing 2.75 beer. Investigators have visited mining areas and industrial centers, with a view to gauging what effect such beer would have upon law enforcement, Dyer said.

Dyer personally appeared before the commission in secret session during the last session of congress and urged an investigation of his beer proposal.

Largely because of Dyer's efforts in that direction, the house judiciary committee of which he is a member, refrained to hear testimony on beer proposals during the hearings held by the committee last spring. Dyer is ranking Republican on the committee.

The hearings were devoted entirely to testimony for and against repeal of the 18th amendment or amendments to the 18th amendment.

TRADE BOARD'S SOVIET PROBE AWAITS FACTS

Committee Opens Inquiry But Halts to Secure New Information

RUSSIA UNDERSELLS

American Export Business Halted by Offerings In European Marts

CHICAGO, Sept. 22. (AP)—Formal investigation of alleged abuse of wheat hedging facilities by Soviet Russia was opened by the Chicago board of trade today and then halted to await specific information from Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde.

The business conduct committee of the board held a brief session following the close of the market—which left some grain prices the lowest in 24 years—and issued a statement indicating it could not proceed until the information it has requested is received. Meanwhile, the statement said, the committee plans a thorough investigation of the transactions alleged by Secretary Hyde.

Russia Cuts Price

What effect the impending investigation might have had on the market, if any, was eclipsed by more portentious developments. Russia offered large quantities of wheat aboard at 10 cents lower than similar wheat from North America. North American wheat export business was virtually at a standstill. The United States visible supply of wheat reached 202,620,000 bushels, a total never before equalled. And still another factor to contribute to the general weakness was the report of good rains in Argentina.

Other than the statement of the business conduct committee, board of trade officials were reluctant to comment on any of the dispatches, from various parts of the country, relating to the stir caused by the Hyde charges. Among these was an

Herbert Hoover Jr. Fights Tubercular Infection At President's Mountain Camp

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (UP)—Herbert Hoover, Jr., 27-year-old son of the president, is ill with tuberculosis, which is expected by his physicians to respond to rest treatment.

Dr. Joel T. Boone, White House physician, disclosing the presence of a limited and "very early" tubercular infection in young Hoover's chest, announced he would have to give up all business activities and take a complete rest for several months.

Hoover, consulting radio specialist for the Western Air Express, a Pacific coast aviation concern, has obtained an indefinite leave of absence and will remain bed at the president's Rapidan mountain camp. A marine doctor is in daily attendance, and the patient's wife arrived here today from their home at Pasadena, Calif., to be with him.

The president plans to visit his son in company with Doctor Boone every week-end until the weather gets cold, when he will be brought to Washington for another examination.

Doctor Boone and other White House attaches emphasized that although the youth's tubercular infection has been clearly established, it was discovered early enough to offer hopes of a complete cure. Boone said he personally was very optimistic over the prospect of eliminating the disease.

Young Hoover has been here and at Rapidan for nearly a month. His illness was first disclosed two weeks ago, when it was announced that a slight stomach ailment and general worn-down condition was the cause of his incapacitation. Only a week ago, the patient participated in the ceremonies of wel-

TRAIN STRIKES AUTO CARRYING SCHOOL TOTS

Woman and Two Sons And Small Girl Crushed In Collision

CAR IS DEMOLISHED

Bodies of Four Victims Strewn Along Tracks By Locomotive

EASTLAND, Texas, Sept. 22. (AP)—A woman and three children were killed and a fourth child was hurt when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by an eastbound Texas and Pacific passenger train near here today.

The dead:
Mrs. E. W. Halbert, 30.
Elbert Halbert, 9.
Clifton Halbert, 11.
Mary Louise Mitchell, 6.
Injured:
L. W. Mitchell Jr., 9.

The Halberts lived about two miles from town and the children had entered a grade school here. Mrs. Halbert was driving her two little sons and the Mitchell children home after their classes when the accident happened.

The Mitchell girl was a daughter of L. W. Mitchell, a mechanic. Mrs. Halbert's husband is a pumper with the Transcontinental Oil company.

The automobile, a light sedan, was demolished and the bodies of the four victims strewn along the right of way for a distance of 70 feet.

It was said the vision at the crossing, about one mile from town, was partially blocked by some oil tank cars standing on a side track.

Hospital attendants said the Mitchell boy likely would recover.

An ambulance brought the victims to Eastland. Three who were killed instantly were taken to an undertaking establishment, but one, the little Mitchell girl, was alive and was rushed to a hospital.

Mrs. Halbert and her two sons were dead when the ambulance reached them. The woman suffered a broken neck and, according to undertakers literally was cut to pieces. One of the boy's head was fractured and both legs broken. The other was cut in many places and apparently had been injured internally.

The girl lived about 30 minutes after the accident, dying at the hospital. The undertaker said she was horribly mangled.

A woman, whose name was not obtained but who witnessed the collision, said Mrs. Halbert drove slowly on the tracks, apparently not seeing the approaching train, which was a local. When squarely in the path of the train, the woman said, Mrs. Halbert apparently killed her engine. She worked frantically to start it again and then backed a foot or two before being struck.

BANDITS LEAD ZIG-ZAG RACE

Oklahoma-Kansas Line Center of Hot Pursuit

ARKANSAS CITY, Kan., Sept. 22. (UP)—Three Mexican bandits, carrying an undetermined amount of money stolen from a bank at Uncas, Okla., today, led Kansas and Oklahoma posses a zig-zag chase through the Arkansas river bottoms of two states tonight.

The bandit trio, after escaping from Uncas to the South, doubled in their tracks and drove across the Oklahoma border to Arkansas City, eluding officers who attempted to blockade highways. Arriving here, the three Mexicans abandoned their car, rented from a local garage, and fled on foot into the tangled underbrush along the Arkansas river. The sheriff's posse deployed through the woods but failed to apprehend the fugitives.

The robbers than stole another car and crossed the border back into Oklahoma where they were met by a posse from Newkirk, Okla. Driving over by-roads, the Mexicans again went into Kansas and eluded their searchers near Wellington.

Officers, stationed in a huge circle around the Wellington district, gradually closed in on the town, attempting to drive the bandits out of their place of hiding. Authorities admitted nightfall almost precluded possibility of locating the fugitives until tomorrow.

No shots were fired during the whole chase. Officers never were close enough to the fleeing trio to make revolver fire effective and

More Trade Good Times Forerunner

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—A silver lining in the clouds of business depression that have hovered over the United States in recent months was discerned today by Secretary Lamont.

"It is perfectly clear," the commerce secretary said in a statement, "that business on the whole has ceased a marked decline which was characteristic of a number of earlier months and there are some distinctly encouraging features."

Lamont added that the most encouraging signs were the growth of export trade as revealed by August statistics and the distinct increase in retail trade in this country.

"The increase of exports during August," he said, "was more than is customary at this season. The gain already manifested in retail trade is more than usually occurs at this season. Moreover the stocks of retail stores are exceptionally low and there is good reason to believe that their purchases from manufacturers and wholesalers will increase materially."

Lamont added that business men already are buying raw materials far ahead of the current consumption and this was a natural reaction to the present low level of commodity prices.

The government, the secretary said, is not responsible for the extra buying.

"Every good executive," he explained, "knows more about his business than anyone else possibly can know and sound business men do not have to be told that a low peak in commodity prices represents a signal for intelligent buying."

Other vacancies on the ticket, including a candidate for lieutenant governor and attorney general, probably will be filled at the meeting.

The names of Col. William E. Talbot of Dallas, Orville Bullington, of Wichita Falls and Henry Exum, of Amarillo, Butte's opponent in the Republican primary, are mentioned as possible candidates to the gubernatorial role vacancy.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 22. (UP)—Bennett Griffin, attempting to break the world's record for a non-stop endurance flight with Roy Hunt, celebrated his 25th birthday late today with a special dinner 2,000 feet above the municipal airport.

CHILEANS HOLD U. S. AVIATORS

Commercial Fliers Nabbed At Concepcion

BUENOS AIRES, Sept. 22. (AP)—Telegraph and telephone communications were reported today to have been interrupted in Chile between Santiago and Valparaiso and the Southern City of Conception, where an insurgent movement against the Chilean government was attempted yesterday. All railway traffic south of Santiago was suspended.

Well informed circles tonight expressed the belief that unexpected events may happen across the Andes. They gave little credit to official dispatches from Santiago stating that everything was calm after failure of revolutionary attempt at Conception.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Sept. 22. (AP)—Two American airmen were held in Conception today pending word from the minister of the interior following an unsuccessful attempt by five Chileans to start an insurgent movement against the government.

The names of the Americans were given as Pilot Michelsen and Mechanic Morrison. They formed the crew of an airplane which landed at Conception yesterday carrying two exiled Chilean army officers and three civilians who later were arrested and charged with plotting a subversive movement which the government announced this morning had been put down.

The full names of the two Americans held were not made public and aside from a formal government communique describing the failure of the revolutionary movement, no details were available.

It was understood the Americans claimed they were making a commercial trip to Santiago and were returning to Argentina by way of Conception. They said they had expected to continue on to Santiago today.

Rebels Driven From Peiping Without Fight

TOKYO, Sept. 22. (AP)—Chang Hsueh-Liang, dictator of Manchuria, ruled tonight in Peiping. His troops have driven out without fighting the rebels of the northern China war lords alliance.

Suspicion was strong that Chang, 30 years old, would attempt to set up his own government, in China's ancient capital, formerly known as Peking, as his father, Chang Tso-Lin, often did in descents from his capital at Mukden.

Armistice Remote In Dallas Oil War

DALLAS, Sept. 22. (UP)—An armistice in Dallas' oil war, which has pitted the royal Dutch Shell of England and Standard Oil company subsidiaries against each other, appeared to be as remote as ever tonight.

A committee representing 142 Dallas independent dealers, who distribute 500,000 gallons of gasoline a month, met in secret session late today. The independents have been "forced to the wall" by competing major oil companies who cut the retail price of gasoline to 15 cents and held the wholesale price at 14 cents, allowing the independents, who purchased from them, only 1 cent margin with which to operate.

BUCHAREST, Sept. 22 (US)—The newspaper Lupta reports that General Mirescu, former war minister and long time friend of the Rumanian royal family, shot himself and is dying in a hospital. The suicide attempt, Lupta said, followed investigation into widespread reports of foreign espionage in Rumania, his name being connected with the reports.

Three other Rumanian generals are under suspicion and their acts are being investigated. A number of important army officials are said to have resigned after the discovery that documents relating to Russian spies had disappeared.

All of the prisoners were Mexicans. Several faced charges of murder and the others were held for violation of the Dean prohibition law.

The five recaptured today offered no resistance when apprehended.

Federal Reserve Governor Endorses Texans' Drouth Relief Credit Plan

Moody Appointees Win Approval in Washington for Move to Aid Farmers Through Loan Organizations

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—Senator Tom Connally said after a conference today with Eugene Meyer, governor of the federal reserve board, that Meyer had endorsed a proposal by a delegation of Texans to facilitate loans to farmers of approved credit stability as a drouth relief measure.

"Governor Meyer found the plan sound," Connally said, "and commended the Texas leaders for organizing it."

Moody Appointees

Connally and Senator Morris Shepherd accompanied the delegation, an executive committee from a state drouth relief committee appointed by Gov. Dan Moody. The delegation was headed by Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth.

The committee will propose added assistance to Texas farmers through federal farm board loans in conferences tomorrow with Chairman Alexander Legge and Commissioner Williams of the board.

Connally said the plan embraced formation of from eight to 12 credit organizations which would take farmers' loans to intermediate credit banks for rediscounting without additional securities. "We will urge the farm board to go in for production loans," Connally said, "to help the farmers with next year's crops."

Fire Sweeping Honey Grove Does Damage Estimated at $125,000

HONEY GROVE, Texas, Sept. 22. (AP)—A fire that for a time threatened a large part of this city destroyed the hull and seed houses of the Honey Grove Cotton Oil company with thousands of tons of seed and hulls, several negro dwellings and a number of other small residences and structures here today. Loss was estimated at $125,000.

Starting in the seed house, the fire quickly jumped the trees to the gin hull house, destroying both buildings quickly, it then attacked the oil mill office and several small negro dwellings in the vicinity.

All fire fighting apparatus in the city was sent to the scene. The firemen were handicapped by a strong wind from the southeast which carried sparks and small pieces of burning wood for great distances. A call for help brought pumpers from Paris and Bonham within 30 minutes.

The residence of B. Neal, several blocks to the northwest, was burned to the ground after being ignited by sparks, as was a large barn owned by J. H. Donaldson and filled with hay several blocks still farther north.

The Honey Grove Cotton Oil company mill was owned principally by P. A. Norris of Ada, Okla. It was one of the largest in this section. Manager W. J. Erwin estimated the loss to the mill at $100,000.

Wichita Pilot Carries Bedridden Woman to Seek 'Prayer Treatment'

HOUSTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—In an improvised airplane ambulance Miss Intha Bird, 53-year-old trained nurse bedridden three years by cancer, arrived at Main street airport here today and tonight placed herself under the "prayer treatment" of the Rev. Raymond T. Richey, an evangelist.

Fulcher Armstrong of Wichita Falls was at the controls of the ship, a five place cabin monoplane. A cot was built into one side of the cabin for Miss Bird. She was accompanied by her sister, Mrs. Laura J. Lindsay.

The party was met by Dr. H. L. Houghton, secretary to the Reverend Richey.

"My sister has been bedridden for the past three years," said Mrs. Lindsay. "Several months ago we heard Doctor Houghton preach in Abilene on the gospel of healing and finally decided to place my sister in the Reverend Richey's hands for treatment by prayer.

"We have accepted the Reverend Richey's full gospel, as it is called, coupling the healing of sickness by spiritual means as part of the great commission given by the Savior to His disciples when He sent them forth to preach the gospel, heal the sick and cast out sin. We were helped in our convictions by the Bible itself, and read with new hope of the many healings that followed the application of Jesus' gospel and His promise that 'these signs shall them that believe—they shall lay hands on the sick and they shall recover.'"

Pilot Armstrong said he passed through several rainstorms and buckled a headwind constantly answer to Hyde's latest statement from E. Y. Belitzky, vice president of the all-Aussian Textile syndicate.

Soviet Trading Inquiry Delayed

Operations No Secret

Belitzky denied the syndicate sold short 10,000,000 bushels of wheat in operations extending over several months, as Hyde had charged, and said the selling took place on three days and totaled 77,765,000 bushels. He said no effort was made to keep secret the hedging operations.

To other statements, in which it was suggested the government should go beyond the Russian charges and investigate "grain gambling" officials referred their inquisitors to a book called "The Wheat Pit," by Edward Jerome Dies of the board of trade. In it Dies explains the necessity for hedging as a means of insurance and declares the speculator balances the market.

LEGGE REITERATES CHARGES BY HYDE

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—The charge of Secretary Hyde that short selling of wheat in the Chicago pit by the Russian government contributed at least in part to the recent decline in prices was reiterated today by Chairman Legge of the farm board.

At the same time, he advised farmers to purchase wheat now at a low price and use it as a livestock feed.

"Then there would be an end to all this excitement," Legge asserted. "There would be no wheat for sale."

The department of agriculture joined in advising the purchase of feedstuffs at this time.

While the chairman said the full effect on the market price of the short selling by the Russian government was uncertain, an official of the agency which placed the selling orders announced the total of their operations had been 7,765,000 bushels.

E. Y. Belitzky, vice president of the all-Russian Textile syndicate, said the operations were carried on only on the ninth, 10th and 11th of this month. He denied they extended over several months, as the secretary understood.

One thousand four hundred and fifty-nine boys and men attended educational classes, and 3,188 girls and women were served by the character building agencies.

It was announced at campaign headquarters that an instruction meeting for all officers and workers of the chest campaign "sales army" will be held at headquarters 815 Scott avenue Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

At this meeting the workers will be instructed in the task which they will assume beginning Thursday, of raising the money that will finance Wichita Falls' nine charitable and welfare agencies during the coming year.

Wife Whips Dusky Juliet as Romeo Flees From Tryst

Distinction which falls to the lot of only a few men of any race or creed befell one member of Wichita Falls' colored gentry Monday morning in that two admiring females of his own kind fought over him.

Geographically, they did not fight over him, for when hostilities began he was well on his way in anything but a prone position. But they did fight, with the discreetly flying negro as the prize, and to the best of their intentions, fought to the death.

All of which involves a colorful triangle. Rumors had come to the ears of the faithful wife that her sugar failed of late to represent complete marital fidelity. Having surveyed the reported circumstances she chose Monday morning as the zero hour. Having been dropped at the accustomed corner by friend husband on her way to her work, she quietly back-tracked instead of taking up her expected forward trek. One block away she espied the dusky Juliet awaiting her chosen Romeo; but Romeo, keeping a weather eye out by means of the mirror in his car, suddenly decided that the usual meeting would prove unpleasant, and surged ahead at full speed.

That is when the most important two-thirds of the triangle inaugurated their program of mutual destruction. Smaller in stature, but mightier through her conviction of a righteous cause, the wife followed her first disastrous charge by capturing her opponent's gun, it was reported. Hurling the weapon away, she renewed the combat on more direct terms, and was credited by onlookers with achieving a technical knockout.

A warrant for the arrest of the siren was issued Monday evening on a complaint preferred by the belligerent wife.

OCEAN ROUTE

DUBLIN—German engineers have been surveying Cork airport for a site suitable for a contemplated base for a regular transatlantic aerial service. The plan of the engineers is to institute weekly dirigible service between Cork and Lakehurst, N. Y., with zeppelins, capable of carrying 120 passengers and 10 tons of mail, in addition to the crew of 46. The cost of such a dirigible is estimated at about $1,900,000.

Railroads Ask Lower Rates

should apply on cotton moving into Beaumont. Nearly all of these speakers, however, doubted that the railroads would gain any cotton by the decrease, declaring the decrease was a "step in the right direction" but was insufficient to meet truck competition.

Decision Tomorrow

The meeting was adjourned until tomorrow without a decision being reached, with a question to be decided over night by the carriers. This question was how far north the decrease should be extended.

Under the carriers' proposal the arbitrary limit of the reduced rates was a point some 30 miles south of Dallas, and embracing all territory within a radius of approximately 225 to 250 miles from the ports. It was pointed out that cotton towns just outside this arbitrary line, but still in the cotton belt, would be at an unjust disadvantage of as much as 75 cents a bale as compared to a rail station slightly south and east.

Representatives of Galveston, vigorously protesting an alleged favoritism of the carriers to Houston, declared that unless remedial steps were taken to place the cities on a parity, the port of Galveston was doomed.

To Send Out Trucks

The city itself, it was said, planned to put on a fleet of trucks in an effort to go out into the 200-mile radius and bring cotton into the port. George Sealy of Galveston, president of the Galveston Wharf company and of many other companies, said he was prepared to invest $100,000 in trucks, and representatives of the chamber of commerce said a meeting was to be held in Galveston Wednesday at which it would be determined whether the city would match that amount. It was said 150 trucks would be operating before the first day of next month. The city already maintains one truck line.

F. M. Clifford, secretary of the Texas Truck Owners Service bureau, brought out by questioning railroad witnesses that previous reductions had been brought about by truck competition, and that the trucks were still making money. The railroads claimed their loss of revenue so far this season was at least one million dollars.

C.-C. to Join Washington Tree Planting Campaign

With Feb. 22, 1932, marking the bi-centennial anniversary of the birth of George Washington, the Wichita Falls Chamber of Commerce has pledged its cooperation to a plan to plant 10 million trees in the United States between now and 1932, in commemoration of the father of his country, according to J. S. Bridwell, president of the chamber of commerce here.

President Hoover has appointed a "George Washington Bi-Centennial" commission to make arrangements for the proper celebration of this anniversary. President Bridwell will bring the matter of Wichita Falls' participation in the celebration to the attention of the directors of the chamber of commerce here at its next meeting, it was announced.

come at Bolling field on the arrival of the French transatlantic aviators Costes and Bellonte.

Doctor Boone, who is a captain in the navy and the president's personal physician, attached to the White House staff, issued the following statement of explanation:

"A result of a complete overhaul of Herbert Hoover Jr., upon his arrival here in Washington from California, suspicious evidence was elicited of a very early tubercular infection of a small area in the chest.

"Subsequent clinical and laboratory investigations have confirmed earlier suspicions, also that it can be definitely stated that the diagnosis is established. As the lesion (or diseased area) is small and the disease discovered early, the prognosis is properly viewed optimistically.

"The intestinal condition is a result of his general run-down state of health. He has responded to the treatment instituted and has gained strength and weight during the past week at Rapidan camp.

"The modern conception of tuberculosis, when diagnosed early and properly treated, is not viewed with alarm. It is believed that in a case of this sort a complete cure results when such course is pursued."

The three children of the Hoovers were left in California.

The other son of the President, Allan, left here last night to resume his studies at the Harvard school of business administration, after a visit with his brother and their parents at the camp. The president has devoted both of the last two week-ends to family affairs, apparently giving personal care to young Herbert's case. Mrs. Hoover, who herself has just recovered from a long illness, accompanied her husband on the 100-mile trips to the camp.

Young Hoover's illness recalls the more serious illness of Calvin Coolidge Jr., who died in Walter Reed army hospital here from a blood infection started in a blister from a tennis game on the White House courts, shortly after his father became president.

C.-C. Aids Farmers In Securing Cotton Pickers

The chamber of commerce office here Monday was being used as a clearing house to place cotton pickers in contact with farmers, according to John Boswell, manager, who stated that a large number of pickers were placed. Mr. Boswell requested that persons and families desiring cotton picking call at the chamber of commerce offices in the Perkins-Snider building. Many farmers are paying 60 cents per hundred pounds, he said.

Circus Finally Admits Ownership of Horse Found Here

A fine horse with handsome trappings was shipped by city police to Fort Worth Monday, charges C. O. D., as a result of a flaw in an almost perfect accounting system of the Ringling Bros-Barnum & Bailey circus.

The horse was found late Saturday night roaming about at Park and Barwise streets by George Hawkins, watchman for the Boardman Oil company, who caught the animal and turned it over to police. City officers notified circus officials that one of their horses had escaped. The charge was denied. The circus system of accounting for its animals was infallible, the industrious cops were told, and the horse couldn't be the property of the organization.

Sunday night came a frantic telephone call from the circus management. Would the police department kindly ship the horse to Fort Worth? The police department complied with the request, express charges C. O. D.

"That's a horse on the circus' perfect accounting system," said the sergeant as the train pulled out.

Family Barely Escapes When Fire Wrecks Home

Awakening to find the entire house in flames, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Frensley were painfully burned when their home, 2312 Yale avenue, was destroyed shortly before 1 o'clock Monday morning.

Narrowly escaping death and almost suffocated by heat and smoke, Mr. Frensley picked up a baby which was in the same room with him and made his escape through a window. The baby and two other children in an adjoining room were unhurt. Burns about the arms and neck on both Mr. and Mrs. Frensley were attended at the Wichita General hospital early Monday morning.

Damage of more than $2,500 was estimated by officials of the fire department.

Wichita to Seek Two Conventions

With the intention of putting in a strong bid for its May, 1931 meeting, Dudley B. Foy, assistant manager of the chamber of commerce, will attend the meeting of the Southern Shippers Advisory board, to be held in Fort Worth Thursday, Sept. 25, it was announced Monday.

The meeting of the board in May is known as the "grain" meeting and it is desired that this meeting be held in conjunction with the Texas Grain Dealers association, whose convention is also being sought by Wichita Falls.

A joint meet of these two organizations in May would bring more than 1,000 visitors to the city, Mr. Foy said.

AMERICA BIG LEAGUE DONOR

U. S. Next to Britain In Supporting Conference

GENEVA, Sept. 22. (US)—Counting private contributions, the United States is exceeded only by Great Britain in the amount of money paid to operate the League of Nations.

Under the 1930 budget, Great Britain's official net share of expenses to the league totals $559,712.84.

Money from American sources, chiefly from John D. Rockefeller Jr., amounts to more than $430,000.

Next comes Germany, $429,728.32, and France $419,554.59.

Farther down the financial scale are Italy, $317,789.59; Japan, $317,211.12; China, $250,221.55, and Spain, $211,538.24.

Haiti pays the least, $4,929.57.

The aggregate net contributions total $5,228,377.33.

If the United States belonged to the league, it would have to pay, under the present financial allocation plan, the largest share of the expenses.

Even when not a member, approximately $5,000,000 of American cash has been poured into the league coffers, largely from private contributions.

The American government, in addition, pays its share of expenses when official representatives attend league meetings.

This does not include the cost of maintaining in Geneva the most elaborate American consulate for any city of the size in the world.

Prentiss B. Gilbert, the American consul with diplomatic rank, devotes his chief attention to establishing contacts between the United States and the league. Others on the consulate staff perform such ardent duties as gathering up handouts from the league press room.

Among the Americans who act in an intermediary capacity in obtaining funds in the United States for the league is Arthur Sweetser, who is on the payroll at $10,000 a year. He is in the league's propaganda office.

Office Bargain Charges Denied

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP)—Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, and Thomas T. Tommaney pleaded not guilty to an indictment charging them with offering to procure an appointment to public office for a consideration, and were held for trial in $2,500 bail each.

The two were indicted Friday by a special grand jury which also returned indictments against Mr. and Mrs. George F. Ewald, after inquiry into charges that Mrs. Ewald paid to Healy, through Tommaney, $10,000 in connection with the appointment of Ewald to the city magistrate's bench in 1927.

The indictment against the Ewalds charged them with office buying. They have pleaded not guilty and are held in similar bail.

Cannon Advised by Dubose to Make 'Sacrifice' to Satisfy Resentment

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 22. (AP)—Bishop Horace M. Dubose of the Methodist Episcopal church, south, said today that he suggested to Bishop James Cannon Jr. that it would be advisable for him to "take steps involving supreme official sacrifice in order to satisfy strong and bitter resentment aroused against him in the church because of his reported dealings in the stock market and the unanswered questions put to him in the United States senate concerning the use of political funds in Virginia during the two campaigns in 1928 and 1930."

CHURCH TO GUIDE ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 22. (AP)—The News-Leader today quotes Supt. David Hepburn of the Virginia Anti-Saloon league, as saying Bishop James Cannon's continued connection with the league as an executive committeeman depends upon his status with the church.

In an interview with the paper today, the Anti-Saloon League superintendent said he knew nothing of Bishop Cannon's stock market transactions.

"As long as Bishop Cannon is a churchman and a bishop in good standing with his church, he will remain in his present position as a member of the executive committee of the league," Mr. Hepburn said. "He is a member of the Anti-Saloon League of Virginia as a churchman and as a bishop, and his future status in the league depends of course, upon his future status in the church."

Tires Now Purchased For Service, Says Agent

"Motorists are beginning to realize that they can simply go into a place and purchase a tire, or, they can buy tire service," says Vic Wisely, manager of Rio Tire company, local Goodyear dealer.

"When purchasing an automobile, motorists have learned that it is good business to buy from a company that can give them good repair and upkeep service. Now they also are learning that it is just as important to purchase tires manufactured by a company that can back up their sales with good service.

"The Goodyear company with its dealers in all parts of America, is in an excellent position to supply service to its tire users and makes a specialty of this important factor of the industry.

"The employes of my organization are taught to analyze the tire needs of our patrons and supply them with the tires best adapted for the conditions in which they will be required to serve. There is a Goodyear tire for every tire need.

"We will mount and inflate our patron's tire; in removing old tires, will clean the rims and will be concerned to see that maximum service is given. We also will be glad at any time to inspect tires and change them from one wheel to another to give the user the most wear possible.

"This service can be depended upon at Goodyear stations everywhere. The Goodyear company also maintains up-to-date repair schools where dealers and their employes are taught the most modern and efficient methods of repairing all manner of injuries that tires can suffer. The user of Goodyear tires is never far from a convenient service station," Mr. Wisely concluded.

Capone Hides Out While Lieutenants Manage Affairs

CHICAGO, Sept. 22. (INS)—Alphonse "Scarface Al" Capone, whose meteoric rise from poverty to riches is chronicled in a biography just placed on the news stands, is in hiding not far from Chicago while his capable lieutenants administer his assorted rackets.

This was reported today as police armed with vagrancy warrants continued to hunt for the gang baron and other "public enemies" listed by the Chicago crime commission.

One of the "enemies," "Dago Lawrence" Mangano, was arrested today. He was the first to fall into the hands of the police since the warrants were issued a week ago. Another, Danny Stanton, Capone gang member, was in a police cell when the warrants were issued.

The squad which arrested Mangano was working directly under orders from Commissioner John H. Alcock, who last week admonished his captains to cooperate with the "vagrancy bureau" in the apprehension of hoodlums.

Edward "Spike" O'Donnell, another "enemy," was taken into custody a short time after Mangano was arrested. O'Donnell heads his own booze ring on the south side, according to authorities.

LUBBOCK, Texas Sept. 22.—Funds to employ an attorney to represent 11 towns on the proposed Texas and Pacific Northern railway were raised here today. Thirty-five representatives of 14 towns likewise voted to ask the Interstate Commerce commission to hold the hearing at Lubbock on the application of the railway to build 332 miles from Big Spring into the Plains section.

Towns contributing to the fund for the common counsel included: Lubbock, Big Spring, Ackerly, Lamesa, Brownfield, Levelland, Littlefield, Dimmitt, Vega, Hereford and Morton. Members of the group expect the hearing to be held as early as Dec. 1, and all were optimistic over the chances for the railway to secure the desired permit.

Indianan Held In Death of Father

HAMMOND, Ind., Sept. 22. (AP)—John T. Prott Jr., 27, was held today in connection with the death of his father, whose body was found yesterday at his home in Merrillville.

A shotgun lay beside the body and suicide was at first suspected by Sheriff Joseph B. Kyle.

Sheriff Kyle said the younger Prott told him he was in the living room when he heard a shot. He hurried to the next room, where he found his father, with a shotgun in his hand. Later, Sheriff Kyle said, Prott couldn't remember the story.

According to the sheriff, Prott attempted to kill his father with a shotgun last March, but at that time the fight was not brought to the attention of officers.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

A writer in last June's Atlantic Monthly had rather an interesting article on "Keeping Young." "What is it," he asked, "that keeps one young when one is growing old?"

It's a question that is keenly interesting to every person as he or she reaches the peak of life; the aforesaid peak differing always with the person. We have known women who were in the prime of life in their 30's and we have known them in their prime in their 60's.

Time is a varlet, anyway. He creeps along when it makes no difference. Ask 16 how time goes and there's hardly a 16-year-old who is not all impatience with the slow months. They crave maturity to do as they please. Maturity comes in all its splendor, and responsibility takes the hours. Then with gray hairs and hoped for leisure to enjoy life, a person is eternally rushing to hold time back by his swiftly moving garments.

Time is a gypsy, taking delight in all things of nature. No one knows where he will tarry and to remain young, one must be something of a gypsy with him.

Frances Peabody quotes Dr. Johnson, who remarked oratorically, (as it seems to us he always spoke), "a man, sir, should keep his friendships in constant repair." Well, there are true and synthetic friendships. Synthetic gin is a much less comforting drink than that one imported from England in squat square bottles, (we hear), and so with synthetic friendships; what are they worth when they are bolstered up with turn and turn about entertainment and gifts? Friendship that really counts hardly needs bolstering, save with a word of remembrance now and then. We knew a person who said once she was our friend who proposed that on Christmas, to save trouble, we choose what we wished and she choose what she wished at the same monetary value. Friendship!

No person can discount the beauty of real friendship. It's truest loveliness is that it does not so much keep one young as it holds one's hands down that last steep hill. A journey traveled in beloved company is not a lonely one.

But we wish to give our own idea of what keeps one young as he grows old—setting aside the taken for granted item of observing the laws of health. Youth, after maturity, is a state of mind. We find those young old whom every one loves in people who have an interest in life.

Not just in what happened in the days of their youth—though one who can speak with a loving remembrance and no grudgery of those days is blessed—but an interest in books, in people, in politics, in religion—and in none of these things to the point of becoming fanatical. Wehave them right in Wichita Falls. We know one dear lady who was 82 just a short time ago and everyone who knows her recognizes the alert, vivid mind functioning back of the sweet unlined face. We do not think that Mrs. John Prewett, whom everyone knows and loves as "Miss Becky" will mind our taking her as the ideal answer to the question asked in the first paragraph of our column.

BAD SPELLS OF BACKACHE

This Lady's Husband Urged Her To Take Cardui—Soon Benefited

Troy, Ala.—"Cardui has done me good, and it has done my 16-year-old daughter so much good," says Mrs. J. W. Jinright, of this place, "that I felt I wanted other women to know the facts about it, so I wrote to the Chattanooga Medicine Co., telling them about my helpful experience with this medicine, Cardui.

"I have used it at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me.

"Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of way, and once I got down in bed.

"My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was.

"When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui."

Cardui helps women to health.

What the automobile has taught women about household lubrication

Experience with motor cars has taught women that moving parts must be protected against wear by a film of oil. Many of them haven't learned, however, that moving parts of sewing machines, vacuum cleaners, lawn mowers, washers, and other mechanical devices must also be protected against dirt and rust.

3-in-One Oil not only lubricates; it also cleans and protects. It is different from all others, because it is a scientific blend of three high grade oils—animal, mineral and vegetable. 3-in-One is the oil you should use on mechanical equipment if you want best results.

Don't risk your expensive household devices by using oil that does only half the job. Insist on the old reliable 3-in-One. It costs little more to buy and much less to use. At good stores everywhere, in 15c and 30c sizes. For your protection, look for the trade mark "3-in-One" printed in Red on every package.—Adv.

REPORTS ON CUBA DIFFER

U. S. Department Fails to Substantiate Walsh

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—Predictions by Senator Walsh of Massachusetts of early disturbances in Cuba brought the comment today from Joseph P. Cottop, acting secretary, that the state department had no information which would substantiate a feeling of alarm over conditions in that republic.

Harry F. Guggenheim, ambassador to Havana, discussed the situation in Cuba in detail with Secretary Stimson and Mr. Cotton last week. The acting secretary said today the ambassador shares the views of officials here that conditions did not call for action by this government.

In his statement, Walsh called for exertion of American governmental influence to guard against conditions which he said he found "feeding the flames of revolt" on his recent visit to Cuba.

"Poverty and unemployment are feeding the flames of revolt," the senator, who has just returned from a visit to the island republic said. "Charges of extreme tyranny, disregard of human life, trial without jury, dishonesty in office, no free ballot—are rampant. These charges are staggering because of their universality with respect to usurpation of power and disregard of fundamental political rights.

"If the Cuban question reaches the political crisis that is threatened, the American people may prepare themselves for revelations of most startling character."

Walsh maintained the United States could not avoid the responsibility of assuring the Cuban people an honest election while the present treaty relationship exist between the two countries.

'HELLO WORLD' PRESENTS PLEA

W. K. Henderson Asks More Power for KWKH

WASHINGTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—William K. Henderson, owner of the Hello World Broadcasting company and station KWKH at Shreveport, La., today urged the federal radio commission to grant his application for increased power and full time operation so he might extend his attack on chain stores.

His present 10,000-watt station operates on half time, sharing the 850 kilocycle wave length with station WWL, New Orleans, Loyola university station. He is asking for 30,000 watts power.

In his appearance before Elmer Pratt, radio commission examiner, Henderson said he had asked for increased power, "so I might further expose the dishonest method of chain stores to a greater number of listeners and other important matters of which chain stores is only one."

"Our whispers," Henderson said, "would become loud speakers if we were permitted to use the power asked for."

He promised to introduce evidence to show other stations were trying to keep KWKH from being heard. It also had been proven, he added, that the chain stores were trying to get smaller stations to operate near his wave length to interfere with reception.

The Sex Bogy
It Comes in Cycles
Labor Wants a Drink
Our Saratoga Spa
Not Fashionable Enough

By EMILE GAUVREAU

"The greatest contribution of this age to civilization," says Dr. Joseph Collins, famous author, just back from Europe, "is the destruction of the sex bogy."

Dr. Collins believes in birth control, in free discussion among the young of their physical needs, desires and passions, and the teaching of sex in the schools.

The 17th century had a plethora of this, as a reaction against the conservatism of the church. The 18th century mended its ways, and the 19th became Victorian. Now we are back again, the pendulum having swung left.

Civilization is not progress forward; it is progress in ever-widening circles. The same ethics and morals are alternately commended and ridiculed, depending on the era, the prosperity and the good humor of the people. Today, in many families, sex discussion among children is considered not only right, but smart. Fifty years hence it may be taboo. Today Dr. Joseph Collins is called an enlightened educator. Tomorrow he may be stigmatized as a decadent and pornographist.

The American Federation of Labor has thrown its hat into the ring. The 18th amendment has a new and powerful antagonist.

Martin F. Ryan, of Kansas City, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, declares that "the time has come for the federation to make an aggressive fight to clean up the mess created by prohibition." The executive council of the federation assented to this proposal.

Legalized beer would give employment to 2,000,000, it is estimated. Perhaps that is the best argument against a dry existence. With bootlegging what it is, any argument, in fact, would be a good one. A bottle of pre-war beer might avert a lot of trouble in this country. Let Mr. Gerard's 64 dictators think it over.

Mr. Joseph H. Freedlander, New York architect, returning from a visit to the leading spas in Germany, declares that the waters at Saratoga are as good as those at the fashionable Bad Nauheim. People with well-lined purses, suffering from heart trouble and kidney trouble, need not cross the ocean for their cure. A train trip of two or three hours from New York City will serve their purpose just as well.

But it is fashionable to go to Bad Nauheim or Bad Kissingen, or to Baden Baden. People are more intent on being fashionable than sane when they have more money than they need. The thing to do, then, is to make it fashionable to go to Saratoga.

Mr. Freedlander promises to help by building a $1,000,000 state-owned spa there in the near future. That may help to keep American money in America instead of circulating through all the cities of Europe. It will also provide thousands with work, which is very important at this time.

On both scores, the project should be encouraged. The least that our society leaders can do for America is to make America fashionable. If two or three of our dowagers can be induced to try the Saratoga baths, not necessarily for sanitary reasons, the project undoubtedly would be assured.

Car Fare Raised to Dime at Kansas City

KANSAS CITY, Sept. 22. (AP)—Greater Kansas City street car riders today paid a 10-cent fare, recently authorized by the state public service commission. The basic fare formerly was 7½ cents. Smaller fares may be obtainable by regular patrons through weekly permit cards, costing 35 cents, which entitle the consumer to ride for 5 cents additional for each trip.

Abe Martin

(Copyright, John F. Dille Co.)

"Oh, boy, this'll be great fer-late p'taters an' President Hoover," said Lafe Bud, when he looked out on a steady downpour. Fairy golf has reduced roadside neckin' almost one-half down our way.

There is no feeling of satisfaction which can quite compare with that shown by the young author as he tossed in the wastebasket the subscription blank of the magazine which had just rejected a manuscript.

James W. Gerard, who made a list of 64 rulers of America, can't be accused of evading work. He might have made a list for Italy, you know.

The first of the month in Chicago is the time when many gangsters pay their bulls.

Finishing Our Growth

WHENEVER the American eagle, feeling boastful, sits up to scream, one of his favorite brags is the amazing rapidity with which the population of the nation has grown.

This has been so from the beginning. The nation measures its increase from the scattered two or three millions of revolutionary days to the 120,000,000 of today, and gives thanks. Individual states do likewise; so, with the greatest fervor of all, do cities. Our growth in population has always been one of our proudest boasts.

Now, however, it is beginning to appear that this boast will not be available to us much longer. The rate of growth is slowing down, due to the decline in the birth rate and immigration restrictions. Within a generation, according to competent students, our population probably will become stationary at one level—probably at 140 or 150 millions.

In an interesting article in a recent issue of the New Republic, Mr. J. J. Spengler looks into the situation to see what this stabilizing of population will mean to us. He makes numerous thought provoking prophecies, some of which are encouraging and some of which are very much otherwise.

The position of the worker, for example, will be better. The unskilled worker will be the first to profit by this cessation of growth. Older workers will not be laid off with the carefree abandon now exercised by employers. There will, in fact, be something of a shortage of labor, and labor will reap the benefit customary in such a case.

On the other hand, a larger proportion of the population than at present will be composed of old men. The control of industry will lie in the hands of graybeards with "a smug, conservative form of leadership." The social and economic stratification of society will tend to become fixed. It will be more difficult for a young man to rise rapidly from nothing to high position.

Furthermore, competion in business and industry will be keener. No longer will a constantly increasing population provide an evergrowing market for all kinds of production and thus counteract waste and inefficiency in industry. An increasingly high bankruptcy rate will see to it that only the efficient industrialist remains in business.

Nor is this all. Mr. Spengler points out that rural and urban rents, in the past, have risen because of the steady gain in population. When the gain in population ends, the increase in rents will end. Farmers, in particular, will be hard hit, and their market for food products will cease to expand.

Because of the larger percentage of aged, the writer predicts an increase in the enrollment of churches and cults, with effete sports, such as golf, increasingly popular.

All in all, Mr. Spengler emphasizes the fact that the nation is bound to bump into some highly knotty problems during the next few decades. We are, in fact, turning a corner in our development. We are about at the end of an era. It is not too soon for us to start thinking about how the change is to be met.

If Prices Go on Down

THE past few months have seen an unpleasant business depression settling on the United States—severe, although far from calamitous. In the near future, according to our most trusted economic experts, conditions will pick up. However, there remains one question, not ordinarily covered in the prospectuses of the forecasters:

Will commodity prices stabilize at their present levels, or will they continue to slip on down the scale toward the pre-war level?

On the answer to that question depends a great deal; more, probably, than we generally realize. It may be hard to work up much interest in an abstract discussion of commodity price trends, but the discussion is important just the same.

Writing in the current issue of The Magazine of Wall Street, John C. Cresswill points out that prices have been declining steadily for about eight months. Right now they are about halfway between the high level of 1928 and the low of 1913.

If this proves to be merely a temporary slump, with a rebound following soon after, no harm is done. But if prices stabilize where they are, or continue on down to the 1913 level or thereabouts we shall have trouble. Mr. Cresswill points out that there is grave danger that the latter is what will happen, and the thought does not excite his optimism.

To begin with, the psychological effect would be bad. For years we have breathed an atmosphere of rising prices. To go into reverse would make us a nation of pessimists just as surely as the post-war spurt made us a nation of optimists.

Secondly, just as the cerditor class is hit by a tide of rising prices, the debtor class suffers when prices go down. Industrial firms floating bond issues would be hard hit. The luckless farmer, needing annual mortgage to move his crops, would sweat even more than he is sweating now.

Furthermore, international debts would be seriously affected. Many economists, Mr. Cresswill points out, insist that both German reparations and allied war debts to the United States will be repudiated if commodity prices generally slip below a level at least 25 per cent above the 1913 level. No one needs to ponder that outlook long to find plenty of clouds on the horizon.

To be sure, none of these dire things has happened yet. The present slump may be followed by a strong rebound. Prices may start rising again. The controllers of international credit, Mr. Cresswill asserts, are even now planning to expand credit and thereby send prices upward.

But the situation, at all events, is serious enough to call for real study. The next few years, obviously, will place a premium on cool business judgment, efficiency and brains. The day of the opportunist and the bluffer is about over.

Night Club

You're here—I'm here—and here's some potent rye (Hey, waiter! How about some ginger ale?)
Well, kid, I've found this stuff will get you by;
I've tried forgetting, but you're bound to fail.
It's funny that we two should meet
like this,
Two waifs that Broadway left out in the cold;
Well, down the hatch! We're pretty young to miss
The fun in life—and heartbreak makes you old.

You say I look a little bit like him.
That's funny—'cause there's just a bit of her
In you. You're cute and sort of blonde and slim;
But, hell, you know—there's only one can stir
Your heart's blood up—and when
that's done you're thru,
Well, bottoms up—and here's my best to you!

The Morning Mail

"Dear Mr. Winchell," affectionately writes Frank Mason, the president of International News Service, "in the language of your column, I may be a sap for trying to crowd in on the thousands of letters you receive as fan mail, but I do want to thank you personally for the nice way in which you told the story of Montee's telephone call with Forster at Buenos Aires.

"It may interest you to know that your recommendation for a bonus for our South American correspondent was accepted seriously at our office, and within 10 minutes after reading your column we sent him a cable informing him that we are mailing him a bonus check.

"Forster will surely admit that your column is a powerful influence in the world of journalism."

You see, Mr. Vallee, the pen is mightier than the song, after all.

Haw!

The lustiest laugh of the day was registered upon receipt of the following advertisement in Friday's Long Island Sun: "Come and see 'Rudy Vallee' the sensational dahlia of the season, in full bloom. Originated and grown exclusively by Welcome Dahlia Gardens, Bayshore."

Oop!

The editors of the Tatler and American Sketch defend their Mr. D. Brinkley, who charged Life with swiping his "Imaginary Interviews" idea. We had countered with the note that Claude Binyon, of Variety, had been writing them for years. The Tatler lads point out that Binyon's stuff is titled "Imaginary Biographies."

But what we started out to reprint was Arthur Silverblatt's letter from Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Considering that Brinkley says he has been writing them for five months and that Life only recently took them up, Silverblatt's rebuttal is that Life published them on Jan. 8, which is more than five months ago.

"Although it may seem a trifle damaging to mention it," adds Arthur, "Robert Cutie Benchley used to do the same thing for Life many years ago. I should not be at all surprised if the Bible had a couple of them, too."

Wisey

Harold Stern, the Ambassador Hotel maestro, was gabbing with a city official about the traffic laws in New York. The official said: "If caught by traffic, the best thing to do is to stand still."

To which Harold niftied: "Yeah, and if you have time, scribble a farewell message on the back of a visiting card."

Gag

Russ Brown, a "Flying High" feature, met an actor friend who had not had a booking in months. "How's the wife and kids?" asked Brown.

"Great!" was the reply. "Why, we had one of the children over to dinner last Sunday!"

Ma-Ma!

"One of these days," telegraphs Willard Robison, "a certain peaky columnist who always asks for gags is going to get one with chloroform on it!"

A Fast One

The locals still titter over this one, which concerns a well known Broadway con man. He had a conterfeit $100 bill a few years ago, they say and wondered how he would cash it. One day, while motoring, he was arrested for violating a traffic rule. The fine was ten dollars.

Which he paid in court with the Spurious money and receiving ninety good dollars in change.

Edward Pola's: A fellow in his baby Austin car got stuck on Broadway. After many futile attempts to start it, some gent in the tittering crowd yelled: "Hey, mister, maybe you need a new flint!"

And a cop rushed into a speakeasy and cried: "The feller who owns that Austin outside better hurry up out there. The mice are pulling it down a sewer!"

The AGE of YOUTH

A New Serial by ARTHUR SOMERS ROCHE

THE STORY THUS FAR

Hopeless because of her failure to make a decent living in New York City, pretty Donna Raynor writes to Randolph Granby, a wealthy bachelor: "I could get a rich husband if I had the proper setting. It would cost a thousand a month and I'd need two years to get the proper man. Will you give it to me?"

Intrigued by the girl's personality and her unconventional ideas, Granby accepts her proposal. Through his brokers Donna receives $25,000; Granby prepares to sail for France, and Donna leaves her shabby hotel for a more fash-ifities.

Shortly after she retires, a handsome young man, intoxicated, enters Donna's apartment. "Believe I'll marry you," says the youthful visitor, who, Donna learns, is none other than Frank Gardner, wealthiest and most sought-after bachelor in America.

Next morning Gardner sends orchids. Donna refuses to speak with him. She arranges to take singing lessons from Mademoiselle Galere, whose pupils include most of the Junior League.

In a few weeks she is in the midst of the social swim. At the Fairleigh home she meets Granby again, also Frank Gardner, who asks: "How would you like another proposal from me?"

Gardner displays jealousy, Granby, quietly is evidently more than ever in love with Donna. The situation is tense.

Now Continue the Story

In the Society Column

Granby surrendered her to Mr. Fairleigh.

"This," said Fairleigh, "is the highest compliment I've paid a girl in years."

"You don't dance often?" she asked.

"Only when something irresistibly lovely comes along and I feel an overwhelming desire to try my hand at flirtation."

"Are you good at it?" she inquired.

"Superb—but slightly out of practice. But you must pretend that I'm excellent at it. June will be annoyed otherwise.

"June?"

"The woman who was lucky enough to draw me as a matrimonial prize. Mrs. Fairleigh herself. Jealous, you know."

"Not really," said Donna.

"Frightfully. Of other men's success with girls. Many a time she says to me, 'Fred, old thing, you must buck up. Other men with a tenth of your charm are besieged by girls. None of them look at you. It makes it seem as if I didn't get a man worth very much if no other woman wants him."

He reversed and pivoted, skillfully.

"Now," he went on, "June likes you. But unless you seem to get hot and bothered over me, she'll not think much of your good taste—you get it?"

"Shall I begin by squeezing your hand?" laughed Donna.

"Well, that's a beginning," he conceded. "But if you should kiss me, right here as we're dancing, and then run crying to my wife and tell her that I'm just too irresistible——"

"She might think it presumptuous of me—the first time I met you. Shall we postpone it a while?"

Fairleigh grinned.

"You're distinctly good news, Miss Raynor. Quite. And you play bridge, June tells me."

"Oh, you have confidences with each other?" chaffed Donna.

"Absolutely. The woman can't keep anything from me. Told me you played contract. If you should confide in her—now, never say I haven't warned you—if you should shyly confess to her that your love for me was too big a thing for you to cope with—she'd tell me instantly."

"And happily," added Donna.

"That, of course," he agreed.

"And if I told you, you'd tell her?"

"Boastfully," he chuckled.

He relinquished her reluctantly at the end of the dance. Young Blaisdell, who was making himself unpopular with his hostess by endeavoring to evade every dance that he couldn't have with Donna, was instantly beside her.

But too much had happened tonight. Donna wanted to be alone, to think. So, despite the misery on Don Blaisdell's face, she insisted on being taken home. She went to say good-by to Mrs. Fairleigh.

"Who is putting up the money for the unknown young woman who last spring rented the apartment of a well known society girl? . . ." And she had thought her position impregnable!

"These tired business men," said Mrs. Fred. "My husband—too worn out for relaxation—you're his interest in life now, Miss Raynor. He's been telling me all about it."

"He told me the way to your heart was through his," smiled Donna. "He seemed to know the road."

Mrs. Fairleigh laughed, murmured something seeing Donna soon, and Donna turned away with the consciousness of having made good with the Fairleighs. If there wasn't the complication of Ran Granby's return . . .

Don Blaisdell left her decorously at the door of her apartment. She permitted him to hold her hand a trifle longer than was necessary, and the happiness on his face almost frightened her.

Jennie brought in breakfast at 8:30, to find her mistress was bathed and dressed and beautified against the day.

"I thought, you being on a party last night, you'd sleep late," the maid apologized. "So I'm half an hour behind time with breakfast. You didn't ring."

"I didn't feel hungry," said Donna. "A bit of a headache. All gone now, though," she added hastily. Jennie was one who not merely believed in old-fashioned home remedies, but was never so happy as when administering them. She could do so many things for a headache that one completely forgot the occasion for the treatment before the cure was really begun. Which perhaps was a tribute to the cure.

Jennie lingered, prepared to debate the matter, but the ringing of the telephone fortunately took her mind as well as her body away from the prospective patient.

It was Ran Granby, and Donna felt quick irritation as she recognized his voice. After all, they'd made an agreement. Even if it were one-sided, why couldn't he be sportsman enough to abide by it? To call her before 9 on the very next morning after he'd encountered her . . . But he had a legitimate excuse.

"Talked with Mrs. Freddie last night. Found she had an open date tonight and so did I. How about dining with them and playing bridge?"

"I told you," she said sternly, "that I didn't want you to ask her—"

"I didn't. Didn't mention your name. She brought it up. Said you were charming and all that. I agreed. You can't object to my agreeing with her?"

"Go on," said Donna. She felt a

Q.—Didn't Spain sink another American vessel long before the Maine was sunk?—L. L. J.

A.—You probably refer to the Virginius affair in 1873, which almost caused war between the United States and Spain. The Virginius, a ship of American registry as the property of an American citizen, was captured by a Spanish war vessel on the high seas and taken to Santiago. Cuba was then engaged in the 10 years war against Spain and the Spanish officials contended that the Virginius was about to land arms and men for the rebels. Spain was at that time a republic under President Castelar, and while the president was having an investigation made, pending his reply to the demand of this country that the Virginius be released, Spanish authorities in Cuba took matters into their own hands. On Nov. 7, 1873, Capt. Joseph Fry of the Virginius and 36 members of his crew were shot, and the following day 12 of the passengers were similarly executed. Numerous indignation meetings were held in the United States, with loud demands for war if Spain did not make amends. It developed, however, that the Virginius really had no right to fly the American flag at the time of her capture. The vessel was turned over to the U. S. navy on Dec. 16, and the surviving passengers and crew released. Spain was not required to salute the American flag and the incident was closed.

KIWANIS CLUB HEARS JAYNES

Social Service Declared Cure Of Economic Ills

Social service in its broadest sense is the only permanent cure for the economic distress now prevalent in this country, according to an address given by Frank E. Jaynes, educational director of the 1930 community chest campaign, before members of the Kiwanis club Monday noon.

Need for social service on the part of the more fortunate of the country's citizenship arises continuously from the inherent inequalities of different individuals, the speaker pointed out. Heredity and environment, he said, destine a large percentage of any average group to be relatively dependent upon the minority not only for ideas, but for material requisities to life.

"Despite the awakening of the United States to the problem of increasing dependence," Mr. Jaynes said, "we are producing an increasingly large number of children who have not the ability to master a high school education, and who will drop out and become hewers of wood and drawers of water. To face this fact is not pessimism; it is a sign of morning when we are willing to admit the truth and then find out why such conditions exist, and do our best to remedy them."

Rehabilitation of dependents so that they may place themselves outside the need for charity is the principal objective of organized social service, Mr. Jaynes said.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. R. H. Peterson, president. Walter Caldwell welcomed W. R. Creamer as a new member. Vocal solos by Mrs. Paul Hines, Ed Reeder and Henry Barton were accompanied by Miss Thelma Adams.

Testimony Opens Today In $52,000 Damage Suit

Taking of testimony in the suit of Seaton A. Barnes Jr., against the Southwetsern Bell Telephone compahy and L. W. Kelly, construction foreman for that concern, for damages approximating $52,000 will begin at 9 o'clock Tuesday morning before Judge W. W. Cook of the 78th district court, it was announced Monday.

Selection of the jury, reading of all pleadings, and statements of the plaintiff's attorney consumed the entire afternoon Monday.

The suit grew out of an automobile crash on the Henrietta highway near Jolly on Jan. 26, 1930. Claiming a crushed face, permanently shocked brain and spinal column, and a damaged nervous system to have resulted from the accident, Barnes charges the collision to a construction car of the defendant company having been parked on the highway without lights burning.

Items in the list of alleged damages include $50,000 for personal injuries, $820.25 for medical treatment, $100 for operations which he expects to undergo on his eye and nose, and $450 for damages to his automobile.

Wichita Girl, Disguised as Boy, Holds Laborer's Job

Officers Agree to Masquerade After 'Youth' Tells Story

Aunt Polly may have penetrated Tom Sawyer's masquerade of feminism by the simple process of suddenly tossing a spool of thread at him and watching his knees, but that was in a story. In real life here Monday, two county officers whose minds entertained suspicions toward a local "youth" similar to those of Aunt Polly toward Tom were required to use a better brand of diplomacy to settle the question.

It happened like this: a local woman called a courthouse office and reported that a certain young man who had been employed regularly by a local concern as a laborer for several years was in reality not a young man at all, but a courageous, stalwart girl. A sense of fitness, it seemed, finally prompted the request of an investigation. As it happened, the officer knew the "boy" in question quite well.

Putting the case before a member of the county's legal department, the first officer finally obtained a visit of the subject to his office by phoning that "he" possibly could supply some helpful information to the county on an accident case. Clad in rough working clothes, including a slouch hat drooped at the properly masculine angle over one ear, this hard-working lass put in a prompt appearance. The battle of wits began, and the courtroom type of questioning failed to produce any show of nerves whatever on the part of the "witness."

Then a proffered handshake—but instead, close scrutiny of the small palm and tapering fingers. Then a reference to an unusually close shave—and the confession came promptly. But there was no confusion. Only thanks for the care taken not to make an exposure, and a declaration that "a girl must make a living, and I can't promise to take off these clothes—we need my job."

And after all, what is there to do about it?

Sam Hoard Heads Organization Of Ohio-Indiana Avenue Business Men

An organization of business men representing North Indiana and Ohio avenues, purposed to promote the civic and business interests of that area, was added Monday to the city's list of commercial agencies when 14 representatives of the area held their first meeting and selected officers for the coming year.

Sam Hoard was chosen president, Dr. Fred Gross, vice president, and John T. Wilson, secretary-treasurer of the new organization. By unanimous action of those present, Dr. Gross acted as temporary chairman pending the election of officers, and continued to preside at the meeting in the absence of Mr. Hoard.

According to open discussion of the movement Monday, there are more than 30 business concerns located on Indiana and Ohio avenues between Sixth street and the Wichita river. The district is one of the oldest business sections in the city, and is traversed by two of the most heavily traveled arteries for motor traffic in this vicinity. Most of the concerns located along those two thoroughfares are engaged in industrial enterprises. The purpose of the organization, it was pointed out, will be to coordinate the efforts of all business houses in that section to the improvement of civic and business conditions in that part of the city. The next meeting of the group is to be held next Monday noon, when a name for the organization will be adopted, and regular time of meeting selected.

Those present Monday were Dr. Gross of the Gross Veterinary hospital; W. R. Gay of the Wichita Falls Oxygen Co.; Will and Pat Hopkins, Auto Paint & Body Co.; Lee Cooper, Cooper's Filling station; J. T. Coplin, West Texas Pipe Metal Co.; E. P. Hughes, Hughes Battery service; A. Breeden, B. & H. Furniture Co.; James B. Hager, Hager Sheet Metal Co.; E. F. Riley, E. F. Riley Furniture Co.; E. B. Richardson surrendered to county officers.

He expects to reach his New Jersey home about Oct. 1, and his resignation as ambassador to Mexico is expected to be accepted shortly thereafter.

"They're beauties!" said Mrs. Brewster to herself as she paused—hands on hips—to view her afternoon's achievement—a score of glistening jars of preserves, standing in soldierly rows on the kitchen table.

"Sweetened to a T", she added as she tasted the final batch, now almost ready to be removed from the stove.

Just then—in the hall upstairs—the telephone rang!

When Jim Brewster came home a little later he found his wife still tearfully scraping the stains from her new stove.

"I can't," she faltered, "I just can't watch preserves and answer the telephone at the same time. I might have known they'd boil over!"

Jim slipped his arm about her consolingly. "Never you mind," he comforted. "Tomorrow, I'll order an 'extension' telephone right in the kitchen."

Postoffice Department Hopes to Please Majority

A location which will contact and conform to the desires of the greatest numbers of citizens and which will meet the economic requirements of the government, will be sought in the selection of the site for the new Wichita Falls postoffice and federal building, according to Irving D. Porter of Dallas, government architect for the Southwest, who with A. S. Page of Fort Worth, postoffice inspector, was in Wichita Falls Monday making a survey of proposed sites.

Another important factor in the selection of the site will be the suitability of environment from the aesthetic and architectural standpoints, Mr. Porter said.

In line with these requirements Mr. Porter and Mr. Page were busy Monday making a postal and technical analysis of the 11 proposed locations for the new building.

As a whole, the proposals received have been very satisfactory, Mr. Porter said, although revisions in several of these proposals have been asked.

The two government men will be in the city Tuesday continuing the survey, after which recommendations will be made to the treasury department in Washington. The final selection will not be made public until final approval has been granted at Washington.

The proposed locations range in price from $80,000 to more than $200,000.

Deportation Puzzle To Jack Diamond

MARCUS HOOK, Pa., Sept. 22. (INS)—"I still don't know why I was deported from Germany!"

Thus asserted Jack "Legs" Diamond, reputed to hold a high place in racketeering circles, when the North German Lloyd freighter "Hanover" stopped at quarantine at noon today.

The ship was bearing Diamond from Germany where he had been deported as an unwelcome visitor following a brief but much publicized tour of the continent.

Upon arrival of the vessel at Philadelphia, Diamond was expected to catch an express train for Baltimore or continue aboard the Hanover down the Delaware river to the Maryland city. The freighter's next stop, after Philadelphia, is Baltimore, where Mrs. Diamond is said to be awaiting her husband.

The Most Nourishing Fruit

In past years the fruit of the avocado has been so scarce that the price was high and the fruit was not obtainable in many markets. The demand has always exceeded the supply. This year, however, it is estimated that the crop will exceed any previous year by eight or 10 times.

The avocado crop begins about Oct 1 and lasts all winter through, the avocado tree being one of the few which bears fruit during the winter months. Fortunately, this seems to be a wise provision of nature, for it is precisely at this season that the avocado is of the greatest value because it contains so much fat that is valuable for supplying heating energy to the body.

Thin people often find that by adding one or two avocados to their meals they can gain a moderate amount of fat without overtaxing their digestive organs. This is because the avocado contains from 10 per cent to 30 per cent of fat, so combined with other elements that it is very easily digested. From this you can see that the avocado contains more fat and oil than any other fruit except the olive, which can scarcely be called a fresh fruit because it must be processed before being eaten.

The flavor of the avocado (sometimes called the alligator pear or calavo) is unlike any other fruit. It is neither sweet nor sour. The flavor is creamy and nut-like. The fruit is best when the flesh resembles butter in consistency. If you buy the fruit and find that the flesh is hard, do not cut into it, but store it aside a few days and serve when the flesh is soft enough to be indented with a moderate pressing of the finger.

Besides the large amount of vegetable oil, the avocado contains a considerable amount of protein and a larger amount of mineral matter than any other fruit.

The University of Southern California has performed some experiments in their nutritional laboratory to determine the vitamin content of the calavo or avocado, and from this it was established that the vitamin A content is approximately 500 units per pound as compared with apples, 250; orange juice 350; and lemon juice, 50. The vitamin B content is likewise superior, being approximately 450 units per pound as compared with apples, peaches, oranges, yeast and lemon juice which contain approximately 150 units each. The vitamin B content of one avocado has been found to be equivalent to six cakes of compressed yeast. Both vitamins A and B are necessary for proper growth and development and these experiments would indicate that the avocado makes a very valuable food for growing children as well as adults.

The avocado is also estimated to have about four times the mineral content of other fresh fruits, and is preponderously alkaline forming.

The different varieties of avocados vary greatly in size. Some weigh as much as four pounds each, while the smaller ones will weigh from three to four ounces. The skin is usually either green or purple. The skins of the Mexican varieties are generally thin, while the skins of the Guatemalan varieties are thick. There are about 180 varieties of this fruit being cultivated at the present time.

Even though the avocado may be slightly higher in price than other fruits because of the delicate handling which it requires, the price need not be seriously considered when you realize that it has been estimated that a pound of avocado equals in caloric value six eggs, a pound of bread, or five pounds of oranges.

Tomorrow, some avocada recipes.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Albuminuria

Question: W. A. G. writes—"I am 63 years old and troubled with albumen in the urine. Would cultured buttermilk or sweet milk be good for me and how much should I use? I used to be a heavy meat and egg eater, and coffee and beer drinker, but I have not touched these things for over five years."

Answer—The buttermilk and milk diets are often good for kidney trouble, but you should precede these diets by taking a short fast on some kind of fruit, then follow the fast with a regular milk regimen, taking the buttermilk or sweet milk every hour during the day. If you will take eight ounces every hour you will be able to use three quarts or more during the day. This will keep up your strength and you can continue doing any ordinary kind of work. Have your urine tested frequently, or learn how to make the tests yourself, so you can watch to see if the albumen returns. If it does do so on this diet, go back on your fast again until it disappears, and then return to the milk or buttermilk diet. When you are cured and want to go back onto a regular diet do not be afraid of using meat, providing you use it once a day and only one-fourth of a pound at a time, being sure to use plenty of leafy green vegetables and salads at the same meal, and no starches of any kind.

Acidosis a Cause of Rash

Question: Mrs. B. writes—"I am troubled with a rash under my arms occasionally. My skin feels all prickly as if my blood were overheated. Is this a form of eczema?"

Answer—I cannot tell you whether you are suffering from eczema or psoriasis, or simply from a rash caused by hyperacidity of the stomach. In the case of any of these troubles, you will find that the cause lies in using the wrong food combinations which produces acidosis of the body.

PANTHERS' FOURTH VICTORY BRINGS THEM SIXTH DIXIE TITLE

The Rambler's Corner

By FRED D. THOMPSON

From Peggy, Queen of the Ranch

"Dear Rambler:

"In the Rambler's corner last Wednesday you said the Spudders would have won easily with a little better pitching. Perhaps you believe that and it may be true, but I'll bet five dollars and my old black hat Ziggy Sears is the only reason in the world. I don't want anyone to get offhand but Ziggy can see too well to be an umpire. Take Euller's home run ball for instance.

"We admit the Fort Worth Cats are wonderful baseball players, and we hope they win the Dixie series, but there's not a team this side of Jericho as good as the Wichita Falls Spudders. You know, I found myself wishing Spider Levey would let his bat fly in the direction of Ziggy Sears and that Stormy Vincent would let him be backstop for one of his fast, hard balls.

"Mr. Rambler, if you will get Ziggy Sear's job as umpire, when you and that sweetest girl that ever drew a powder puff across her face are married, I'll dance at the wedding.

"Next time you see Ziggy invite him out to my ranch. I would like to have a talk with him. I bet he'd never call another ball a strike for Spider Levey or any other Spudder player. Really, I'm civilized, but such work is preparing a person for satan and his angels.

"Please print some more about 'our boys,' because I want to keep up with them, and we (the ranch boys and I) depend on you for the praise of them in the paper.

"We believe Sears is the only reason that Wichita Falls has for being 'beat out of the pennant,' because there's none greater than the Spudders.

"A Spudder fan, Peggy, queen of the ranch."

Now Peg, try to cool off a bit. Old Ziggy is a pretty good scout, even if he did pull a rich one on Euller. But at that, it was the only decision Ziggy gave during the whole series that caused a rukus in Spudderland, and when an umpire can go through a whole championship series and get the razzberry only once, he's pretty darned good, I think. And anyhow, fielding errors helped the Spudders lose that second play-off game just as much as Sear's peer through the planks.

And Ziggy umpired an excellent game in Fort Worth the following Saturday when Vincent pitched. There was not a single howl from either side.

And I still maintain that with a little more pitching of the Wiltse calibre we would today be Dixie champions.

And why not invite me out to your ranch, instead of Ziggy?

Klein's Home Runs

"Dear Rambler: The question has arisen here of how many home runs Klein of the Phillies hit last season. I say he set a new record of 46 or 47 while some of the boys here say he hit 44. Please straighten us out on this question in your Rambler's corner.

"In a game I saw recently with a batter up and no one on, the fourth ball was thrown to the batter. The ball went wild and the umpire permitted the batter to take second base, claiming he had a right to take it if he could make it. Please advise if the umpire rendered the correct decision on this play."

"J. N. Cantwell, Jean, Texas."

In 1929, Klein, of the Phillies, hit 43 home runs for a new national league record, Klein's total beating the previous record made by Hornsby in 1922 when he hit 42 homers.

In regard to the batter taking second on a wild fourth ball, the umpire made the correct decision.

Incidentally, Spider Levey made third base in such a manner at Shreveport this past season.

Another interesting event of this kind occurred some time ago at Waco, when Prexy Gardner was the Spudder owner. A Spudder was at bat and the Waco picther hurled a wild fourth ball. The Waco catcher didn't even jump up and run for it, but stayed in his crouched position and held out his hand for a new ball from the umpire. Meanwhile, however, the Spudder ran. He got to first and started for second. By that time the catcher had his new ball and plugged for second. The Spudder was tagged out, but he knew Waco was playing with the wrong ball, and headed for third. There he was thrown out, too, but you couldn't stop him. He came on home. There was a great row over it, and it was finally agreed that the Spudder should take two bases on the wild pitch.

The Tulsa Series

"Dear Rambler: After the Cat and Bear series of 1922 Mobile sent its club, which included Dutch Henry, to Tulsa to play them. Tulsa beat them. Then Tulsa played Breckenridge, the latter winning. But what I want to know is was the flag at stake when Tulsa and Mobile played?

"W. C. Rushing, Electra, Texas."

No, it was not. That year was the only time Western league clubs joined in post season intersectional war, and it proved such a flop it was never tried again.

Now, if it had been tried in 1929, when Levey, Storti, Euller and Burns were with Tulsa, it might have been another story.

During the past season, the Spudders had little to worry about in its base running. Few boners were committed. Jack Crouch tried to make third base on an easy fly out to right during one of the play-off games here, but there is much consolation when we read about the Brooklyn Dodgers and their habits of running bases.

Brooklyn is out of the National league running, but Brian Bell, Associated Press sports writer, says it would be interesting to watch their running in a world series. He writes as follows:

"A close observer of baseball has remarked that a world's series between the Athletics and Brooklyn would be worth while if for no other reason than it would give Connie Mack the rare privilege of seeing the Robins run the bases.

"A powerful team on attack, blessed with good pitching and fair fielding, the Robins lose their sense of proportion when they get on the base paths.

"Only two players in the National league this season have lost home runs by running past a team mate on the bases and both wear Brooklyn uniforms. Bissonette and Wright have hit balls out of the park, and were not credited with home runs. Babe Herman was the player in each instance who failed to get going to make way for the sluggers.

"But the season nears its end and Brooklyn's base running record of last year seems safe. Not once this year have Uncle Robbie's nephews managed to place three runners on one base. That was the high spot of their base running achievement last year."

CATS POUND CHICKS, 13 TO 6

Six Bingles in Seventh Clinch Pennant

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

FORT WORTH, Sept. 22.—For the sixth time in 11 years, the Fort Worth Cats of the Texas league tonight were baseball champions of all the Southland.

Slugging three Memphis twirlers all over the La Grave field as Dick Whitworth limited the Southern association champions to nine hits, the Panthers won the fifth and final game of the 1930 Dixie series, 13 to 6, before an estimated crowd of 3,000 fans today. The Chicks won only one of the five games.

Big Seventh Inning

With the score tied at six all going into the seventh inning, the Cats suddenly laid down a barrage of six hits, including three doubles, a triple and home run to score six times and bring the title to Texas.

Dick Whitworth, pitching his second victory of the series, grew better as the contest progressed and held the Chicks scoreless after the third inning when Joe Hutcheson pounded a homer into the right field bleachers with the bases loaded to score four runs and send the visitors into the lead. The Chicks threatened a belated rally in the ninth when they got to Whitworth for three singles but died aborning.

In addition to pitching masterful ball, the Fort Worth hurler helped to win his own game with a pair of doubles that drove in two runs and scored twice himself. His battery mate, Frank Meyers, had a field day with four knocks, including a double in the big seventh inning.

Kelly Knocked Out

Harry Kelly started for the Chicks but went out in the second after the Cats had scored twice. His successor, Walker, was charged with the loss, retiring under heavy fire in the seventh. Shepherd, gangling richt-hander who finished, was pounded with gusto. Between them they gave up 16 solid raps, including seven of the extra base variety.

Eddie Moore was the only Cat to go hitless. Incidentally, the brilliant little center-fielder did not register a safety throughout the five-game series. Les Mallon, Fort Worth's rookie second baseman committed his first error of the series in the eighth, when he let Hutcheson's roller trickle through him.

The Chicks got away to a two-run lead in the first, when Benton walked, Jeanes and Brazill singled and Prothro hit a long sacrifice to Bonowitz, but the Cats came right back to tie it up in their half, when Mallon homered after Moore had drawn a pass.

Bases on Balls

Kelly lost control in the second and issued three passes, the Cats scoring three runs after two were out. Bonowitz' double that scored Whitworth and Moore, was the blow that sent Kelly to the showers. An infield rap by Brown put another across before Walker could retire the side.

Four Memphis runs in the third were unearned. Tavener started it by messing up Benton's grounder. The next two batters were retired without difficulty but Brazill singled and Prothro was walked to fill the sacks. Hutcheson cleared the atmosphere with a drive that went into the right field bleachers.

The Cats did not succeed in knotting the score until the fifth, when Meyers singled after two were down and sprinted home on Whitworth's long double against the boards in left.

Fowler Starts Riot

Thus it remained until the seventh. Fowler inaugurated the big session with a double. Cox tried to sacrifice, but popped to third. Tavener beat out an infield rap and then the fireworks started. Meyers doubled, Whitworth doubled and after Moore had rolled out, Mallon cracked a triple. He rode in a moment later as Bonowitz put one over the left palings. Brown almost knocked Prothro down with a liner to close the inning.

In more Cat run in the eighth was just an afterthought. Fowler walking, taking third on Cox's single and romping in on Tavener's sacrifice fly.

BIG THRILLS OF WORLD SERIES

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer

NO. 1—BASEBALL'S FIRST "LONG PANTS"

World baseball series today, with all their pomp and excitement, are a far cry from the humble beginning nearly 50 years ago when the first clash of leagues took place.

The initial series, in no sense a world championship affair, was on the order of a demi-tasse, for only two games were played between Chicago, winner of the National league championship, and Cincinnati, champion of the American association.

That was in 1882, and probably the only excuse for the series was an agreement between the clubs, since there was nothing official about the meeting and the two leagues were not friendly.

Beginning in 1884 and continuing to 1890 the champions of the National league and the American association met each year, a series of 15 games being played in 1887 between Detroit and St. Louis.

In 1894 W. G. Temple, a Pittsburgh sportsman, donated a silver cup to the National league for a championship series, but those contests were not world championship tests. Only four series were play and the trophy then was returned to the donor.

In 1901 and 1902 there was bitter enmity between the National and American leagues, but the entering wedge was made by a Pittsburgh-Boston series in 1903, and the real world series started in 1905.

The 1903 series was under the jurisdiction of the Pittsburgh and Boston clubs, winners in the National and American leagues, and was decided in eight games.

The Red Sox staged a sensational comeback by winning four straight games after the Pirates had captured three of the first four. Bill Dinneen, now an American league umpire, won the deciding game, 3 to 0, in a thrilling battle with Deacon Phillippe, who pitched Pittsburgh to all of its three victories.

Dinneen won three of the Boston games and Cy Young the other two. Dinneen ended the last game by striking out the famous Hans Wagner.

In 1904 the New York Giants and the Boston Red Sox won in their respective leagues, but no series was played as John T. Brush, president of the New York club, insisted that an annual world championship series should be played under the National commission and the next year this was done.

That arrangement was continued until the National commission was replaced by K. M. Landis as baseball commissioner and he now rules supreme in the autumn classic.

A crew of New York Giants, wearing somber black, ran roughshod over the Philadelphia Athletics to start the official world series ball rolling in 1905. An odd feature of the series was that the losing team failed to score in each game of the series, a new attendance record.

Roger Bresnahan, Giant catcher, who led off in the batting order, and Turkey Mike Donlin, one of the great outfielders of the day, did some timely hitting for the winners.

Three times in the week's play the great Christy Mathewson blanked Mack's men, 3 to 0, 9 to 0 and 2 to 0, and Iron Man Joe McGinnity won the other New York victory, 1 to 0. Chief Bender, crafty Indian, turned in the As' lone triumph by a score of 3 to 0. Mathewson allowed only 14 hits in three shutouts. His performance has not been equaled in 25 years.

The series attracted a total attendance of 90,000 for the five games in New York and Philadelphia.

The 1905 teams lined up in the first game as follows:

Tomorrow—A Startling Substitute.

Jones Leads Amateur Field

MERION CRICKET CLUB, Ardmore, Pa., Sept. 22. (AP)—Golfing fireworks exploded all over these historic premises today as the one and only Bobby Jones skyrocketed into the lead for the first 18 holes of the two-day 36-hole qualifying test for the United States amateur championship.

The great Georgian, blazing the way as he began his last battle for a clean sweep of all the major golf honors of 1928, shot a brilliant 36-33—69, one under par and one stroke in front of his nearest two rivals—19-year-old Sidney Noyes Jr., of New York, a Yale freshman, and Dr. Oscar F. Willing, 40-year-old dentist from Portland, Ore.

Noyes finished the last nine holes in 32, two under par, to post the first par 70 of the day and set the pace until he was overhauled by Jones. Dr. Willing, among the late finishers, posted his 37-33—70 after barely missing a 70-foot putt that would have given him a tie with Jones.

Fourth place went to another youngster, George T. Dunlap Jr., of New York, the national intercollegiate champion, who scored 35-36—71 during the first day's struggle that was featured otherwise by the virtual collapse of the defending champion, Harrison R. (Jimmy) Johnston of St. Paul, and a hole in one on the 215-yard 17th by Maurice J. McCarthy Jr., of New York, metropolitan titleholder.

Loyola of New Orleans will play four night football games this fall. Two of the owl tilts are with intersectional foes, Loyola of Chicago and Butler.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 22. (AP)—Pounding the ball to every corner of the park, the St. Louis Cardinals moved a little nearer the National league pennant today with a 15 to 7 victory over Philadelphia. The victory left the Cards out in front by two and one-half games as the Cubs also won. Score:

STILL IN RUNNING

BOSTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—Retaining their mathematical chance to win the pennant race, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Braves 6 to 2 in the final game of the season at Boston today. The victory still left the Cubs trailing the Cardinals by two and one-half games with four games to play—all with Cincinnati at Chicago.

In turning back the Braves, Guy Bush turned in a brilliant exhibition of hurling, holding Boston to six hits, while the Cubs were pounding Socks Seibold, Eddie Brandt and Bruce Cunningham for 12 blows. Included in the collection of hits was Hack Wilson's 53rd home run of the season, delivered in the first inning with one teammate on base. Score:

With the Fightin' Pack

Ineligibilities are now the main worry of Coach Barry Holton.

Some of the boys, it appears, find the corridors more comfortable than the class room. It's cool there, you know, and whenever you want a drink of water, presto, all you have to do is go swig, without even asking the teacher.

Oh, the boys have been coming to school, all right—that is to the school building. But a few have prejudices against absorbing a little knowledge about quadratics, and who founded Rome, anyway.

Monday afternoon the coach, in person, laid the law down.

Said law being the following: Any member of the team reported ineligible to participate in the forthcoming croocial battle with the Lubbock Westerners will be asked to turn in his uniform.

That goes for one and all, said the mentor. Star or rookie; flash or frizzle.

That Lubbock battle, on Oct. 4, is going to be a wildcat. It is necessary that each man on the team come through with his class work and be eligible.

Everybody thought the Coyotes looked splendid against the Parrots last Saturday—thought they looked very splendid. But if you'd been on the practice field Monday afternoon when Coach Holton pointed out the boneheads the squad pulled during that game you'd have been surprised.

The coach got right after the boys, dividing the regulars into two teams, and showing how the Fort Worth offense operated, how it got through the Coyote line.

Before they got down to this, they practiced punting and passing. Charles Reeves reeled off some pretty punts, averaging all the way from 30 to 50 or maybe 60 yards—they're hard to measure with weak eyes.

Reeves can make them spiral like Hal Wiltse can make a baseball curve.

A long practice in drop-kicking was also "enjoyed by all."

Meanwhile Jerry Elliott had his C squad running around the field and practicing passing. Little devils not over four feet small—some of them. Future Coyotes, one and all. —THE RAMBLER

SECOND POLO TOURNEY TODAY

Round Robin Schedule Is Substituted

The polo tournament sponsored by the Junior chamber of commerce will enter the second round today with a change in schedule necessitated by the injury of five horses in the opening round Sunday afternoon on Clinerowe field, according to Horrace Robbins.

The lack of mounts forces today's round to be played as a round robin, Mr. Robbins said, with the Tulsa team playing Crowell three periods, Wichita Falls playing Crowell three periods, and Tulsa playing Wichita Falls three periods. The team making the highest score against its opponent will be judged the winner of the round robin. This plan will also be used in the third round matches Thursday, with Fort Sill meeting Crowell, and Wichita Falls meeting Tulsa in a double-header Sunday to choose the tournament winner.

The tournament started Sunday with the Wichita Falls Blues defeating Tulsa, 5 to 4, and Crowell defeating Wichita Falls Whites, 6 to 5. More than 1,000 fans witnessed the two contests.

The public is invited to attend today's and Thursday's games free of charge. Sunday a charge of 25 cents per person, or a maximum of $1 per car—no matter how many ride in it—will be levied to defray expense of feeding the mounts.

The teams are battling for silver trophies offered by the Hub Clothing company and W. B. McClurkan and company.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (AP)—Cotton prices made new low records for the season today throughout the entire list with general trading operations the most active experienced in weeks.

The decline was attributed largely to increased hedge selling by the South, which seemed to encourage more general selling by commission houses. The weakness in Wall street and favorable weather for the growing crop also contributed to the decline, but heavy trade buying offered strong resistance and held the movement of prices within comparatively narrow limits. The market worked steadily lower however, throughout the day, new December contracts declined to 10.85, and closed at that figure, a net loss of 13 points while the general market closed steady at 6 to 13 points net lower.

The opening was steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 1 point and the market was on a downgrade practically throughout the entire session despite the steadier Liverpool cables than anticipated.

Some traders were inclined to anticipate a bearish report on ginning by the census bureau, to be published at 11 o'clock Tuesday and which will compare with 3,351,613 bales last year and 2,500,782 in 1928.

Liverpool cabled the market there was steady on covering and continental buying and that the cloth inquiry was fair while yarn sales equalled production. Exports today 39,730, making 934,648 so far this season. Port receipts 72,355. U. S. port stocks 2,326,282.

Futures closed barely steady, 6 to 13 points lower. Spot quiet; middling 10.75.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 22. (AP)—Cotton dropped to new low levels for the season today, the decline being due to considerable hedge selling, fears of a large ginning total for the season prior to Sept. 16 and some further liquidation of October in advance of the first notice day. The market opened 4 to 5 points down and continued to ease off all during the session. The close was at the bottom showing net losses for the day of 11 to 15 points.

Liverpool came in 4 to 6 points better than due but the market here ignored the cables and opened 4 to 5 points down. Although there was a slight rally after the start it did not hold and prices resumed the downward trend owing to considerable hedge selling. By the end of the first hour October traded at 10.75, December at 10.90 and January at 11.01 or 5 to 6 points under the previous close.

The market continued to ease off during most of the morning and into the early afternoon making new low levels for the season with October at 10.69, December at 10.88 and January at 10.97 or 11 points on all months below Saturday's close.

Weakness in stocks and continued hedge selling caused prices to ease off further in the late trading October dropping to 10.65, December to 10.85 and January to 10.95. The close was steady and at the bottom with the more active months showing net declines of 14 to 15 points.

Port receipts, 71,416; for week, 111,913; for season, 1,783,334; last season 1,357,083. Exports, 38,841; for week, 711,717; for season, 913,039; last season, 708,576. Port stock, 2,330,550; last year, 975,235. Combined shipboard stock at New Orleans, Galveston and Houston, 58,512; last year 102,274. Spot sales at Southern markets, 63,433; last year 76,345.

Futures closed steady at net declines of 11 to 15 points.

Stock Market Sustains Heaviest Price Deflation in Recent Weeks

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Sept. 22. (US)—The stock market today suffered the most severe price deflation of any day in recent weeks. The wave of selling, which developed last week and which seemingly had spent its force by Saturday, was renewed from the opening today and engulfed the bull forces completely. There was little apparent effort to stem the offerings and prices yielded steadily before the pressure.

Practically the entire list receded to new low ground on the present weakness. Explanations for the weakness were many, but as explained here last week most of them were mere excuses. To the many rumors already circulated for days were added new stories of similar import, all of a disturbing nature.

The volume of transactions continued on a relatively active scale, over 2,300,000 shares changing hands today. Weakness in the grain markets, unduly disturbed by the rumors of Soviet bear raiding, and in cotton, which declined to new low prices, failed to cheer the stock market, and the latter was sadly in need of encouragement.

While "the bears" are blamed for the market's weakness, this column still believes that the selling has been more of the liquidating character than generally realized. The bear crowd undoubtedly has enjoyed ususual success of late, but without bringing out real liquidation their efforts would be unavailing. A good deal of the selling has been coming from foreign sources. Early cables related additional weakness in the German reparation bonds and this found immediate reflection in heavy offerings by an international banking house of International Nickel shares. Selling from the same source was also evident in Canadian Pacific. Both Nickel and Canadian Pacific are heavily held in England. Reported difficulties politically in Chile brought about renewed weakness in International Telephone, which broke through its previous low for years. Selling of this stock, however, has been persistent on realization its $2 dividend rate is hardly secure unless a decided improvement occurs in the company's earnings.

Realization of the type of selling which was going on in such special issues, hardly attractive to the bears as selling media, influenced the entire list and weakness developed in all sections. The railroad stocks, which had been performing rather encouragingly of late, joined the downward trend on appearance of a decidedly unfavorable Nickel Plate statement for the first eight months of this year. Such speculative favorites as Case Threshing, Vanadium, etc., broke into new low ground on sharp setbacks. The standard leaders, such as U. S. Steel, American Can, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas and others of similar character fared little better than the speculative issues, indicating the character of the selling. Disclosure that the American Telephone & Telegraph business index, as stated here last week, had been revised to indicate business upturn later than heretofore expected hardly improved sentiment. All in all, it was a market field day for the bears.

It has frequently been stated here that there has been heavy selling in our market for foreign account. The foreigners, impressed by their own unfavorable domestic situations, have been intensely bearish on American securities. Foreign speculative selling forms a large part of whatever short interest exists in the market. The bears will continue to succeed, if the decline can be explained in this fashion, until substantial investment demand is attracted to the stock market either by concrete business improvement or by appearance of such yields as to overcome the many uncertainties in the prospects. In the late trading today buying appeared for interests who came to the market's support both in the August break and in the June decline. This buying was not on an extensive scale but its continuance will serve to stabilize the market. Such buying is hardly intended to "pick bottom" prices, but is of a nature somewhat speculative in character, in the belief that at least technical conditions, in view of the sharp price decline and the considerable liquidation that has taken place, favor temporary relief from pressure on prices.

Wheat broke to the lowest price, for some options, in 24 years. The continued easy money conditions provided the only cheering factor of the day, and found reflection in attainment of new high prices for many bonds. The German issues, however, were under continued heavy pressure.

TEXAS CASH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, Sept. 22. (AP)—Trading was slow on the cash grain market here today. There was no export business. There was a fair demand for oats and barley but a slow demand for wheat, corn, and sorghums.

Estimated receipts—Wheat, 14 cars; corn, 10; oats, 11; barley, 1; sorghums 1; hay, 5.

Prices bid and asked, basis delivered Texas common points freight paid:

Wheat—No. 1 hard milling any protein 92@93½c.

Corn—No. 2 mixed corn 94@95c; No. 2 white 95@96c; No. 2 yellow $1.04@1.05.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Sept. 22. (AP)—Russia held the whip hand on grain prices today, offering large quantities of wheat abroad 10c a bushel lower than similar wheat from North America. But regardless of how much or little the Russian government was actually selling in speculative markets here or elsewhere, the outstanding fact was that Russia was making a price standard low enough to shut out competitors in Europe.

Meanwhile, northern American wheat export business today was virtually at a standstill, and the United States wheat visible supply mounted to a total never before equalled.

After outdoing bottom price records that reach back 24 years, the Chicago wheat market closed nervous ⅛@¼c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ¾@1¼c down, oats ⅜@1¼c off, and provisions unchanged to 12c decline.

Lowest prices of the day in Chicago wheat pit came just before the close, and followed a notice that the United States wheat visible supply total had increased 3,947,000 bushels last week and had reached the huge aggregate of 202,620,000 bushels compared with 188,343,000 bushels a year ago.

Corn and oats prices fluctuated in line with wheat. Corn dropped to a discount under wheat for the first time in several weeks, depressed partly by the initial arrival of this season new corn here, the earliest that new corn has reached Chicago in about 10 years.

Provisions reflected declines in the value of hogs.

Closing indemnities: Wheat—Dec. 82¾c, 86c; March 86⅛c, 89⅛c; May 89½@⅛c, 92½c. Corn—Sept., bids, 87¼c; Dec. 82¾@⅛c, 84⅜@⅜c; March 53⅝c, 86c; May 85⅛c, 88⅛@¼c.

PIT NOTES

CHICAGO, Sept. 22. (US)—A cable from Liverpool received after the close of that market stated that the upward turn was due to buying from this side.

Russian wheat according to a sample received by J. F. Jackson of Pynchon and company, is of excellent quality. The wheat is being offered in Western Europe.

The weather map showed continued dry and warm weather over this district, and the soil conditions are unfavorable for plowing in many sections.

Reports from Kansas stated that early seeded wheat is up to a good stand.

Minneapolis arrivals of wheat were 754 cars, compared with 798 cars last week and 673 cars last year.

H. L. Baldwin of Decatur says: "An inch of rainfall has been of great help in preparing soil for wheat seeding. Some wheat will be seeded next week, but others will wait until the following week to be clear of the fly-free date. Weather has been perfect for development and maturing of the corn crop."

Boston Wool Market

BOSTON, Sept. 22. (AP)—Wool prices are firmer as a result of more favorable outlook that has become increasingly evident during past week. The yarn market was reported more active. Woolen manufacturers have been taking wool more freely during the past week.

Corrected Pipe Line Figures for Past Week Show Drop 11,065 Barrels Day

Through an error in the week's pipe line runs of crude in the Wichita Falls district for the week ending Saturday, Sept. 20, 1930, in Sunday's Times, the figures showed a drop of 1,482 barrels each day. Correction of the output for the entire district revealed a decrease of 11,065 barrels daily during the period.

Responsibility for the big decrease is due to the proration of the oil throughout the district's pools. The evidence of this is found in the runs from Young county with a 3,824-barrel loss, and in Wilbarger, with a decrease of 3,020 barrels. Archer, Wichita and other pools being prorated according to the pipe line schedules. Below are the corrected pipe line runs daily during the week:

Spencer Bank Suspect Held in Portales, N. M.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Sept. 22. (UP)—Jimmy Watson, said to be a Shawnee plumber, is held at Portales, N. M., as a suspect in the Spencer bank robbery, Acting Police Chief Clarence Hurt said today. Oklahoma City officers probably will go after the youth this week, said Hurt.

Byron Keene, arrested as one of the two suspected bandits who several weeks ago escaped with over $1,000 after shooting Jess Pool, cashier, in the arm, is in the county jail awaiting trial. Keene was identified by Pool, officers said.

Watson is alleged to be the man who shot Pool after ordering the cashier to put up his hands. Pool has identified a picture of Watson as one of the bandits, police said.

Farmers Need Peace, Painleve Tells Group

PARIS, Sept. 22. (US)—Peace as the need of the farmer was stressed today by ex-Premier Paul Painleve addressing the agricultural society at Brenod.

M. Painleve reviewed the nation's duty to its farmers, continuing:

"But to enable him to pursue his work the farmer has need of peace. Peace it is that we all desire, and there isn't a frenchman, who, having been in the war, has not a horror of war.

"In france there is a fixed desire for peace, but let me say in all frankness I conceive of peace only with security. France's national defense is an element of peace. A France disarmed would be an example, but a temptation."

OIL PRORATION RULE ENDORSED

Operators Vote Adherence To State Order

Members of the North Texas Oil and Gas association voted in a meeting Monday to adhere without protest to the state order prorating production in this district 57½ per cent, with marginal allowances for wells producing six barrels daily or less.

The vote was taken after a lengthy discussion of the state proration order. The discussion centered about the question of requesting the railroad commission to waive temporarily its order to allow the operators and pipe line companies to work out a plan for uniformly reducing production on all properties 25 per cent.

Approximately 150 leading producers in the North Texas district attended the meeting which was held in the Wichita club.

During the discussions a number of talks were given, presenting individuals' plans for eliminating apparent inequalities and discriminations suffered under the railroad commission's order. Among the speakers were M. W. Blair, C. B. Long, Ed Peterson, John F. O'Donohoe, Orville Bullington, Harvey Harris, W. B. Hamilton and others.

Before the close of the session President P. B. Flynn launched a motion to appoint an umpire whose duties would be to oversee pipe line connections with the purchasing companies and to secure adjustments of any discriminations in the proration schedule. The motion was carried and the executive and proration committees will make the appointment within the next few days.

League Votes Increase In World Court Judges

GENEVA, Sept. 22. (UP)—A proposal increasing the judges of the world court from 11 to 15 was adopted by the judicial commission of the League of Nations today. The assembly probably will elect new judges, including Frank B. Kellogg of the United States for a nine-year term, on Wednesday or Thursday, at a plenary session.

The judicial commission also started debate today on harmonization of the Briand-Kellogg anti-war treaty with the league covenant, studying a project adopted by the last council of the league.

Boy Convicted Of Slaying Sentenced

DOYLESTOWN, Pa., Sept. 22. (AP)—William Davis, 11, of Philadelphia, convicted last week of manslaughter for shooting to death Stanley Picuski, 9, today was ordered to a reformatory for an indefinite sentence by County Judge Boyer.

The Davis boy testified at his trial that he had fired a .22 caliber rifle at a carriage in which Stanley and his grandfather, Adam Rawa, were riding. He said he intended only to frighten the horse because he was angry with Rawa for plowing up a small garden which he had cultivated while on vacation near Doylestown. The bullet struck and killed Stanley.

"She will. She'll telephone when she wakes up."

"Well, when she phones I'll tell her."

"Can't you tell me now?" he asked.

"Why?" she asked. "Did you want to make another engagement?"

"No, but—hang it, I wanted to—well, to know—in advance—"

"I never heard anything so stupid in all my life," she declared.

"I'm sorry," he said weakly.

She suppressed the giggle that had charmed him so when he had first heard it months ago. Had she ever been silly enough to think that there could be any difficulty in getting along in this too-masculine world? Any difficulty, that is, for a girl who had—something?

"I think I'll be able to go," she said, graciously.

"Then may I call for you?" he asked.

"Why—er—all right," she assented. She hung up, rudely, in the middle of his thanks. A woman's world! That is, a young woman's world. The age of youth!

She felt, as she set out for Mme. Galere's, as though all the world were compressed into a tiny ball which her well-shod toe spurned before her. She completely forgot that there ever had been an adage to the effect that pride preceded a fall.

Since early fall her lesson hours had been changed. Mme. Galere had acquired a genuine fondness for her pupil, a fondness that was enhanced by the mystery of Donna. For there was about the young girl a reserve that even older people hesitated to attempt to pierce. Who was she? From where did she come? Who were her people? These are questions that, even in this socially lax age, are nevertheless put.

But no one put them direct to Donna, least of all Mme. Galere. Donna's face was so candid, her manner so frank, that even those who slyly asked them did so with fear lest they be frowned upon. For the girl was popular, extremely popular. Sue Philemon frankly adored her. And where Sue Philemon went, the majority of the young people followed. As for the boys and young men: Donna was lovely, Donna was charming, Donna was good fun. And wasn't she a friend of Sue, and of Sue's friends?

She arrived a trifle ahead of time in the little reception room. From within the studio came sounds of singing, sounds that were interrupted by scolding from the teacher. For, charlatan in many ways that Mme. Galere was, she took her art seriously, and permitted no pupil to be lax or lazy.

Donna picked up a morning paper. Turning the pages idly, she saw a picture of herself and Sue, taken at the races yesterday. She hadn't even been aware that the photographer had leveled his camera at her. It was a good picture. When she arrived home she'd cut it out and paste it in a book. Her first newspaper picture.

Then her eyes ran down an adjacent column, the column conducted by an ex-butler for servants, but labeled "Society." As mean and low and scandalous a column as the libel laws would permit and the ex-butler could imagine. It was signed by a nom de plume—Mr. Manhattan.

The first paragraph caught her, struck at her, bruised and stabbed her.

"Who is putting up the money, society would like to know, for the unknown young woman who last spring rented the east side apartment of the well known society girl who is at present abroad? She seems to have an entree, but who really knows who and what she is and who pays her bills? Among many others, Mr. Manhattan would like to know."

And she had thought her position impregnable!

Aviator-Geologist Sought in Northland

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask., Sept. 22. (UP)—Veteran airmen of the subarctic today soared over the barren Muskeg country north of Lac La Ronge seeking Mike Finland, aviator, and geologist, lost for five days in the northern wilderness.

Finland, an employe of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting company, took off last Tuesday from Lac La Ronge for a flight to Wollaston lake, 200 miles to the north.

He failed to reach Wollaston and is believed to have crashed or made a forced landing in the uninhabited barrens.

WOMEN LEAD DANCE GRIND

10 1-2 Couples Remain In Marathon Here

Only 10 and a half couples were remaining when contestants in the marathon dance at Lake Wichita park passed their 100th hour of "stepping" at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, according to promoters.

The "half couple" represents Esther Cole of Iowa Park, who up until 3 o'clock Monday morning had been soloing for many hours, finally securing another partner and after dancing four hours, returned to soloing. She has until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning to get still another partner.

Several contestants were forced out of the dance Monday, succumbing to fatigue and exhaustion. Joe Carter of Wichita Falls, one of the most popular dancers with the crowd, dropped out early Monday morning, while Marie Wisdom, also of Wichita Falls, was forced out about the same time.

At the 100 hour mark, all dancers remaining were going good except for growing fatigue and cramping leg muscles, it was announced. Changes have been made in couples as men or women dropped out. When a man and a girl drop out, the remaining man and girl are allowed to dance as partners.

Women seem to be standing the pace better than the men, as three men to two women have dropped out, according to promoters.

Ivan Simpson, one of those who has forsaken the stage for the screen, shows promise, talent, ability—everything but good judgment, in fact—in one of the best-acted bits of the year. Simpson's lack of judgment was in his choice of "The Sea God" for his debut.

"The Sea God" is a fine example of how good acting can be wasted on a woozy plot. The story is just a little tipsy at the beginning and literally passes out of the picture before the end. It seems that plots aren't necessary in the South seas, anyhow.

Simpson's portrayal of hunger-crazed "Pearly Nick" is good enough for one of the best talkies of the year—if the rest of the picture were up to his standard. The deep-sea photography is well handled, and Eugene Pallette's bass voice adds a little color. But what can a few feet of good acting, a couple of good shots under the water and a few booms from Pallette's diaphragm do for a completely deranged scenario?

Even in such a picture, there is educational value, however. The brawny Richard Arlen stalks about in the bushes, a two-day beard on his face and his clothes holding together just enough to satisfy the censors. After several hours of continued warfare, including gunfire, spear throwing, dynamite blasts and hand-to-hand fighting, the boy swims out to the boat, is hoisted into Fay Wray's arms—smooth-cheeked, with nary a bristle.

And thus we learn, my dears, the definition for a close shave!

Food Stores Asked To Protect Wares

A warning has been issued to all owners of restaurants, cafes and food establishments that all foods must be protected from dust, dirt and flies by a glass or wire cover, according to Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief city sanitary inspector.

"A typewritten copy of the city ordinance has been delivered to each owner and it is expected that each proprietor will cooperate with the health officials in his instance," Doctor Farrell said. The penalty for violating the ordinance is a fine not less than $25 and not more than $200, Doctor Farrell pointed out.

Regular national service of telegram deliveries by motorcycle messengers is to be established in England.

GUARDS BREAK UP RIOT PLANS

1,500 Convicts Relieved Of Varied Weapons

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—Col. Edward B. Stone, principal keeper of the state prison revealed today that plans for a general riot and outbreak at the prison during a ball game yesterday afternoon had been frustrated by guards.

Fifteen hundred convicts were lined against a wall at an unannounced moment by armed guards while other guards made a quick search.

Improvised blackjacks, knives, pieces of metal and money clattered to the ground along the rows of men who sought to rid themselves of evidence.

Fifteen men were found with razors and knives and some had coils of rope tied about their bodies inside their clothing.

The men were placed in solitary confinement. Several convict barbers were found without their razors and also were placed in solitary confinement.

Knives and rope were found in sewer drain pipes in many parts of the prison.

The knives and blackjacks had been made from lead, stolen from the printing shop and steel from the automobile tag plant.

After the search the men found without weapons were taken into the ball park where the game was held as scheduled. There was no disorder.

WOMEN LEAD DANCE GRIND

10 1-2 Couples Remain In Marathon Here

Only 10 and a half couples were remaining when contestants in the marathon dance at Lake Wichita park passed their 100th hour of "stepping" at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, according to promoters.

The "half couple" represents Esther Cole of Iowa Park, who up until 3 o'clock Monday morning had been soloing for many hours, finally securing another partner and after dancing four hours, returned to soloing. She has until 7 o'clock Tuesday morning to get still another partner.

Several contestants were forced out of the dance Monday, succumbing to fatigue and exhaustion. Joe Carter of Wichita Falls, one of the most popular dancers with the crowd, dropped out early Monday morning, while Marie Wisdom, also of Wichita Falls, was forced out about the same time.

At the 100 hour mark, all dancers remaining were going good except for growing fatigue and cramping leg muscles, it was announced. Changes have been made in couples as men or women dropped out. When a man and a girl drop out, the remaining man and girl are allowed to dance as partners.

Women seem to be standing the pace better than the men, as three men to two women have dropped out, according to promoters.

To prevent further unemployment in British Malaya Chinese open-cast tin mines are being operated at a loss.

GEM: Bert Wheeler and Robert Woolsey in "The Cuckoos." Screen song.

Ivan Simpson, one of those who has forsaken the stage for the screen, shows promise, talent, ability—everything but good judgment, in fact—in one of the best-acted bits of the year. Simpson's lack of judgment was in his choice of "The Sea God" for his debut.

"The Sea God" is a fine example of how good acting can be wasted on a woozy plot. The story is just a little tipsy at the beginning and literally passes out of the picture before the end. It seems that plots aren't necessary in the South seas, anyhow.

Simpson's portrayal of hunger-crazed "Pearly Nick" is good enough for one of the best talkies of the year—if the rest of the picture were up to his standard. The deep-sea photography is well handled, and Eugene Pallette's bass voice adds a little color. But what can a few feet of good acting, a couple of good shots under the water and a few booms from Pallette's diaphragm do for a completely deranged scenario?

Even in such a picture, there is educational value, however. The brawny Richard Arlen stalks about in the bushes, a two-day beard on his face and his clothes holding together just enough to satisfy the censors. After several hours of continued warfare, including gunfire, spear throwing, dynamite blasts and hand-to-hand fighting, the boy swims out to the boat, is hoisted into Fay Wray's arms—smooth-cheeked, with nary a bristle.

And thus we learn, my dears, the definition for a close shave!

Food Stores Asked To Protect Wares

A warning has been issued to all owners of restaurants, cafes and food establishments that all foods must be protected from dust, dirt and flies by a glass or wire cover, according to Dr. J. M. Farrell, chief city sanitary inspector.

"A typewritten copy of the city ordinance has been delivered to each owner and it is expected that each proprietor will cooperate with the health officials in his instance," Doctor Farrell said. The penalty for violating the ordinance is a fine not less than $25 and not more than $200, Doctor Farrell pointed out.

Regular national service of telegram deliveries by motorcycle messengers is to be established in England.

GUARDS BREAK UP RIOT PLANS

1,500 Convicts Relieved Of Varied Weapons

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 22 (AP)—Col. Edward B. Stone, principal keeper of the state prison revealed today that plans for a general riot and outbreak at the prison during a ball game yesterday afternoon had been frustrated by guards.

Fifteen hundred convicts were lined against a wall at an unannounced moment by armed guards while other guards made a quick search.

Improvised blackjacks, knives, pieces of metal and money clattered to the ground along the rows of men who sought to rid themselves of evidence.

Fifteen men were found with razors and knives and some had coils of rope tied about their bodies inside their clothing.

The men were placed in solitary confinement. Several convict barbers were found without their razors and also were placed in solitary confinement.

Knives and rope were found in sewer drain pipes in many parts of the prison.

The knives and blackjacks had been made from lead, stolen from the printing shop and steel from the automobile tag plant.

After the search the men found without weapons were taken into the ball park where the game was held as scheduled. There was no disorder.
