In West Bank...

Armor Out In Force

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israel rolled armored personnel carriers into the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River in its strongest show of force in more than a week of Palestinian protests that have left seven Arabs and one Israeli dead.

The armored vehicles, carrying heavy machine guns, appeared in Nablus and Ramallah Thursday, shortly after the mayors of both cities were fired by Israeli authorities. The dismissal of another West Bank mayor last week triggered the Palestinian demonstrations.

Masked attackers hurled grenades at an Israeli army vehicle in the occupied Gaza Strip Thursday, killing one soldier and wounding three others as well as three Arab bystanders. Sgt. Pinhas Grossmark, 30, was the first Israeli killed in the latest violence in the occupied territories. The military command said the ambushers escaped into a nearby orange grove.

In Beirut, the Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine claimed responsibility for the attack. But the Palestine Liberation Organization, a grouping of eight separate guerrilla armies including the Democratic Front, denied the claim in a telephone call to The Associated Press.

The dismissals of Mayor Bassam Shakaa of Nablus and Kerim Khalaf of Ramallah came under sharp attack by Israel's opposition Labor Party which said the action was certain to worsen the Jewish state's relations with the Palestinians. The move also fueled one-hour sympathy strikes in Lebanon, Syria and Jordan.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Dean Fischer expressed the Reagan administration's "profound concern" over the deteriorating situation in the occupied territories, captured by Israel in the 1967 Middle East war. He cited the "tragic and needless deaths and injuries" to both sides and said the administration regrets Israel's decision to remove the elected Palestinians from office.

The Israeli government said Shakaa and Khalaf were fired for incitement, repeatedly disrupting public order and — alleged under PLO instructions — failing to cooperate with Israeli civilian authorities.

Their removal sparked a new round of demonstrations throughout the troubled West Bank. An Arab mob attacked an Israeli car in Adna, a village near Hebron, and set it ablaze when the passengers fled. One Israeli was hurt by a stone thrown by a protester, the military command said.

In Nablus, rocks and bottles were thrown at soldiers who dispersed angry Arab crowds with tear gas grenades, Associated Press reporter Jonathan Immanuel said. Several demonstrators were arrested by troops using nightsticks to subdue at least one person.

Troubleshoots Radio; Shuttle Passes Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Columbia's crew was troubleshooting a radio today as the shuttle passed a major test of engine endurance in the bitter cold of space. A weather forecast for New Mexico called for adequate landing conditions next Monday, despite gusting winds.

There was a chance the radio problem could cut the flight short, or that New Mexico sandstorms could keep the ship aloft an extra day. But Flight Director Neil Hutchinson said he expected neither to happen, that Columbia would come home on Monday as scheduled.

Just after midnight, while astronauts Jack R. Lousma and pilot C. Gordon Fullerton slept, they sailed through the midpoint of their planned seven-day voyage. A forecast from White Sands Missile Range predicted Monday's landing conditions would be acceptable despite winds gusting to 20 miles an hour.

Mission Control said scientists were excited about the information they'd received from Columbia's experiments, and Lousma reponded, "We're pleased to hear it, that's what we came here to do."

When the astronauts awoke, they received "top of the morning" greetings from Mission Control along with teleprinted instruction on how to tackle a failure in the ship-to-shore radio system. Like in any office system, they encountered a glitch here — the printer was feeding wildly for a short time.

Thursday, the low-power section of one of two S-band communications transponders failed and officials said that if it cannot be fixed, they would consider terminating the flight early. The high-power side of the failed unit was operating when checks were made today.

Even with both transponders out, Columbia could land safely, the flight director said. He reported several ground stations can communicate with the spacecraft through UHF channels and that much of the reentry and landing is conducted through UHF.

Hutchinson raised the possibility of an extended mission, should high winds predicted at the White Sands Missile Range persist into Monday, blowing up the fine gypsum sand and reducing visibility.

He said that by conserving fuel and power, NASA expected to save enough of both to operate Columbia an extra day in orbit.

For two days, the shuttle's nose has faced the sun, leaving the tail section and its engines and fuel tanks in freezing shadow, exposed to temperatures as low as 215 degrees below zero.

NASA engineers don't believe the cold will affect the ability of the fuels or engines to function. Lousma and Fullerton were to find out today by firing two of the powerplants in one of the major thermal tests of Columbia's third shakedown cruise.

The first test went perfectly; if there were a problem with the second, early this evening, the astronauts would turn the tail to the sun and heat up the units — just as they did on Wednesday when exposure to the cold froze sealing material and prevented a tight closing of the cargo bay doors.

Friday update

Noguchi Suspended

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles County Coroner Thomas Noguchi, slapped with the maximum penalty short of firing by county supervisors because of alleged mismanagement, will appeal his 30-day suspension to the Civil Service Commission, his attorney says.

Noguchi "has reiterated his determination to explore every legal avenue," attorney Godfrey Isaac said Thursday, shortly after the county Board of Supervisors announced its action. "He's not going to walk away from the job."

The board said it suspended the so-called "coroner to the stars" without pay effective Monday because Noguchi did not respond satisfactorily to charges of poor management, excessive absenteeism and prejudicial remarks about celebrity deaths.

A secretary in Noguchi's office said he was not available for comment.

Breaking Point Reached

NOTTINGHAM, England (AP) — Walter Hinton, described by a judge as a "shy, retiring man," put up with his wife's nagging for 30 years but he snapped when she pulled the plug on his stereo, according to court testimony.

Hinton, 57, grabbed his 51-year-old wife, Violet, around the neck and strangled her to death, the Nottingham Crown Court was told at Hinton's trial Thursday.

Hinton pleaded guilty to manslaughter, but Justice Sir Maurice Drake placed him on three years' probation and released him from custody.

New Martial Law Enacted

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — Bangladesh somberly marked its independence day today in the aftermath of a coup that imposed martial law on this poverty-stricken Asian nation.

Martial law leader Lt. Gen. Hussain Muhammed Ershad canceled the annual military parade that highlights the celebration of Bangladesh's 1971 independence from Pakistan. Dacca residents observed a strict 10 p.m.-to-5 a.m. curfew that emptied the streets well in advance of the deadline.

Ershad, 52, overthrew elected President Abdus Sattar on Wednesday in a bloodless coup he said was aimed at rooting out the "cancer" of widespread corruption perpetuated by the civilian government.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

James Roberts of the Andrews County News thinks coliseums may have kept the Andrews High School Mustangs from winning the Class AAAA state basketball title this year.

"Next time the team plays in a coliseum-type structure, let's carry our own sheets to hang as a backdrop behind the baskets," Roberts suggested.

"Most West Texas basketball teams are accustomed to playing in gyms in which blank walls are immediately behind the goals.

"In Snyder, where the Mustangs suffered a conference loss, and in Austin Frank Erwin Center, tiers of seats with moving people are located behind the goals. It changes the perspective and the shooting of the players is affected.

"We know the UIL has a rule for everything, but we wonder if bedsheets are prohibited."

Lynn Brisendine of the Brownfield News tells about a boy who was wandering around his neighborhood one day when he came across a chimpanzee. The boy took the chimp by the hand and they walked along together. A police patrol car came along, and the startled policeman jumped out and asked the boy what he was doing.

"Just out for a walk," said the boy.

"Why don't you take him to the zoo?" asked the policeman, pointing to the chimp.

"Good idea!" said the boy.

The next day, the same policeman saw the boy and the chimp.

"I thought I told you to take him to the zoo," said the policeman.

"I did take him to the zoo yesterday," said the boy. "Today, I'm taking him to the movies."

Then there's this story passed along by Craig Nieman of the Lamb County Leader-News.

A preacher was energetically trying to scare his flock into the paths of righteousness by describing the judgment day.

"Thunder will roll like chariot wheels across the sky! Flame will spew from the heavens! Floods and cyclones and earthquakes will demolish the buildings of man; yea, even the mountains will fall to dust!"

Wide-eyed with hope, a small boy turned to his mother. "Mom," he whispered, "will I get out of school?"—WACIL McNAIR

To Join Odessa Bank...

Warner Resigns Post As Chamber Executive

Bill Warner, executive director of the Snyder Chamber of Commerce, has resigned to join the staff of a bank in Odessa.

A special meeting of the chamber's board of directors was called for noon today to receive Warner's formal letter of resignation.

"This, without doubt, was one of the most difficult decisions of my life," Warner said. "I could not, however, ignore the opportunities presented to me at this time."

Warner became executive director and manager of the chamber here on June 26, 1978, succeeding Bill Henry. He came here from San Angelo, where he was assistant chamber manager assigned to industrial development.

BILL WARNER

In leaving the position with the chamber here, he also will be vacating the position of consultant to the Scurry County Board of Development. The chamber manager has served in that capacity since the BCD was organized several years ago.

Warner said he has accepted the position of aide to the president and chief executive officer of First National Bank in Odessa, and he has been asked to begin his duties there April 12.

"I regret not having accomplished all of my goals for Snyder and the chamber. I do, however, believe we have made great strides toward most of them. With the quality and number of concerned community leaders on both boards, and Snyder's great potential, this chamber-BCD can become one of the strongest and most effective in West Texas. I wish all the best for each of you and for Snyder and Scurry County."

Hospital Board Purchases Land

The Board of Directors of Cogdell Memorial Hospital voted to purchase a parcel of land just south of the hospital during their regular monthly meeting Thursday night.

The land in question is located between the hospital and the Martha Ann Woman's Club and will be purchased from the Bowden family out of funds on hand in hospital accounts.

In the only other official action of the meeting, the board also voted to extend hospital administrator Cy Miller's contract for another year. Miller's contract now extends through March 31, 1984.

Gary Tipton with Boon-Chapman of Austin attended the meeting and discussed an alternative insurance plan for hospital employees with the board.

Hospital officials are looking for a new way to provide hospitalization and major medical coverage for their employees in light of a recently announced 49 percent increase in the Blue Cross premiums for the coming year.

The Boon-Chapman plan, as presented by Tipton, would allow the hospital to become essentially self insuring, thus realizing considerable reductions in insurance costs while maintaining at least the current benefit levels.

The board took no action on the proposal pending further investigation of this and other alternative insurance plans.

Easing Back After Conviction...

Ex-Governor In Spotlight

BALTIMORE (AP) — His ffiends do not expect Marvin Mandel to run for office again right away, but the former Maryland governor, convicted on federal mail fraud and racketeering charges, is easing back into public life.

"Somewhere along the way, people have to come back into the community," said a spokesman for a local men's group that asked Mandel to present an award to Baltimore Mayor William Donald Schaefer.

Audience response to Mandel's appearance Monday was warm. It was his first formal social function since being released from federal custody Dec. 18.

"What we're saying in effect is welcome home," said the toastmaster, Solomon Liss, a Mandel appointee to the state Court of Special Appeals.

Later this year Mandel will be a guest lecturer at the University of Maryland Law School; in May he will be the subject of a "roast" by a local chapter of the American Cancer Society.

The former governor, convicted in connection with a scheme to fix racetrack dates, agreed to speak to the law school students on bill-drafting and executive-legislative relations.

Bruce Bereano, who teaches the course, was at one time Mandel's attorney. He said Mandel is one of many lecturers he has invited.

Cathy Sloman of the cancer group said Mandel was chosen because the society was looking for someone who could draw a large enough crowd to produce $40,000 in donations.

Mandel spent 19 months in prison at Eglin Air Force Base in Florida and several weeks at a Baltimore halfway house before being released in December. At that time Mandel told reporters "I have no intention of walking away from politics. It's been my life. I am not ruling out seeking political office."

But the 62-year-old former governor still faces problems resulting from his conviction.

Disbarment proceedings against him began this month; his license to practice law has been suspended since his conviction.

The state Attorney Grievance Commission citation against Mandel refers to disciplinary rules against "conduct involving dishonesty, fraud, deceit or misrepresentation."

"All of those rules, we suggest, were violated," said the commission's Glen Grossman.

The Maryland Attorney General's office expects a trial date later this year for a civil suit against Mandel and his wife for the return of about $24,000 worth of items — including furniture and liquor — taken when they left the governor's mansion in 1979.

The Mandels have countersued, claiming the items belonged to them, said assistant Attorney General James Shea.

"I'm sure he has his detractors out there, his haters," said Frank A. DeFilippo, Mandel's former chief of staff, but added, "I think a lot of people think Marvin ... got a bum rap.

"But ask people on the street, 'Who was the best governor of Maryland?' They'll say Marvin Mandel every time," DeFilippo said.

UFW Leader To Head Walk

PIRU, Calif. (AP) — United Farm Workers leader Cesar Chavez joined marchers on a 50-mile, four-day protest walk to publicize continuing UFW strikes against four companies targeted in contract disputes.

The march through Ventura County is the second this month for Chavez, 55, who frequently used the tactic in the 1960s and '70s. A 70-mile hike through Texas recently dramatized UFW calls for better enforcement of minimum wage laws there.

More than 1,450 UFW members have been striking West Foods Inc., a mushroom grower, since Nov. 19, and in the last three weeks walked out on three growers' associations: California Coastal Growers, Limoneira and L & O Growers. The associations supply workers for small citrus farmers.

A UFW spokesman, Chris Hartmire, said resurrecting the protest walks "was not a conscious decision" by the union. "In both cases, the workers decided they wanted the marches and asked Cesar if he would participate."

Between 500 and 600 chanting demonstrators stepped off Thursday in Piru for the westward walk slated to end Sunday in Oxnard. No incidents were reported as the hike began, sheriff's Deputy Dennis Blanchard said.

Hartmire said the key issue was proposed lengths of contracts. The UFW wants one-year pacts; growers are holding out for three-year agreements.

"Money is not the main issue," he said. "We still have differences on money, but they're not that great."

Single-year pacts are important to the union to deal with "the problem of disappearing growers," he said. Growers often sign one-year agreements with the associations to obtain labor, then quit after one season and are outside the union's reach.

The UFW wants union pacts of the same length as the growers' association agreements.

In Texas, the hike from Brownsville to San Juan was intended to publicize UFW demands that the U.S. Labor Department strengthen enforcement of wage laws. A union survey showed Texas farm workers were paid an average $2.45 an hour. The federal minimum wage is $3.35.

Chavez frequently led protest marches in the UFW's early days, but the practice faded with passage of the landmark Agricultural Labor Relations Act of 1975, which established rules for unionizing farm workers.

Hartman said although Chavez still is fatigued from the Texas walk, he "will march as long as he is able in Ventura County."

We tend to keep going in the direction we are first pushed.

Most of us inherit from our parents our religion, our prejudices and our politics.

Only rarely has our nation spawned a political leader of such magnetism as to attract and hold converts.

Abraham Lincoln did it.
Theodore Roosevelt did.
Franklin Roosevelt did.
Ronald Reagan might.

Political parties — political labels — are not inherent in the American political system. Our Constitution makes no provision for "parties."

Jefferson started and Andrew Jackson revitalized the Democratic Party, which remained dominant for half a century.

Until Lincoln.

Lincoln made morality decisive, aroused the electorate to an almost religious fervor. Then, embracing protective tariff and the Homestead issue, he carried every free state except New Jersey.

Such was the effectiveness of Lincoln in making "republicanism" popular that after his death, with only one exception (Cleveland), no democrat was elected president for half a century.

The next watershed election, Teddy Roosevelt's on 1904, introduced the strongest third-party our nation ever knew, introduced "government regulation" of rail rates and the beginning of the modern social-service state.

Like Lincoln's, his strength was "personal," his "rough-rider image."

The next of the charismatic giants was Franklin Roosevelt in 1932. Such was his personal appeal that, even from a wheelchair, he demolished the GOP.

Even arch-Republican Henry Cabot Lodge could win a Senate seat only by proclaiming himself a New Deal disciple.

By 1938, in state after state, Republicans called themselves "Roosevelt Republicans" or, as in Wisconsin and Minnesota, adopted third-party identification.

Indeed, such was FDR's charm that it won the allegiance of young Ronald Reagan.

Until Reagan emerged on the national scene, 20 percent more Americans called themselves "Democrats" than called themselves "Republicans.

In one year under Reagan, that margin has been reduced to eight percent.

In Reagan's first year, two members of Congress have switched to his party: Pennsylvania's Atkinson and Arizona's Stump.

In state politics a parallel Democrat to Republican affiliation shift is apparent: Von Reichbauer In Washington, Pierce and Keller in Texas, Bill Owens in Massachusettes.

Those elected Democrats are now converts to Reagan Republicanism.

This president, with tenacious stubborness concealed behind a gorgeous grin, has even moved the South north.

Now can he move the Left right? He's made a good start.

For Easter...

Roast Veal Is Novel Choice

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine & Food Writer

Easter is a great religious feast of Christendom, one which in the past was linked with the Jewish Passover.

This stems from the belief that the Christians' release from bondage through the resurrection of Christ was considered by many analogous to the release of the Jews from their bondage in Egypt. In fact, in the early days of the Church, Easter was celebrated on the Passover.

One favorite Easter meat is the lamb, and a young sheep was the mandatory sacrifice of the Passover.

But it should also be noted that the other favorite Easter meat is pork, usually in the form of roast ham or suckling pig. The pig is high on the forbidden-food list of world Jewery.

Whereas lamb and pork are generally regarded as the interchangeable stars of the feast, there are other Easter meats especially in Europe.

In Italy kid, or young goat, is served on many Easter tables, and in Greece kid is also often substituted for the traditional lamb.

Roast veal is a popular Easter entree in both Poland and Estonia, probably harking back to the fatted calves of biblical celebrations. The Easter feasts in Greece also feature keftedes — meatballs — with ground beef the main ingredient.

In the English town of Hallaton the celebration is kept going with an Easter Monday outing which features a contest called a Hare-Scramble and Bottle Kicking. It seems the men of the community compete in kicking bottles to the village boundary line. Among the prizes provided by the rector of the church are rabbit pies.

Veal is ideally suited for Easter since young beef is most abundant in late winter and spring. Here is a recipe for roast veal that offers something different for your Easter board.

3 pounds boneless veal roast
Salt and pepper
½ cup butter
1 cup sliced onion
2 celery stalks trimmed and cut into 1-inch lengths
1 cup white wine

Season meat with salt and pepper to taste. In skillet, sear meat on both sides in butter till golden brown. Remove from skillet. Brown onion and celery; add wine and stir well. Put meat on rack in roasting pan. Pour contents of skillet over roast. Roast in preheated 350-degree oven for 1¾ hours. Serve sauce with roasted potatoes and accompany with a green salad. Serves 6-8. Serve with chilled white or rose wine.

NEW YORK (AP) — The owner of a tiny general store in Boothbay Harbor, Maine, won't be required to change its moniker from Gimbel, but must post a disclaimer saying it has nothing to do with the New York concern of the same name, a court has ruled.

"Although I didn't think there was any, I'm happy to dispel any public confusion between the two businesses," said Jack Gimbel, owner of Gimbel and Sons Country Store.

The Devil's Coup is the name given to a play in which you make a grand slam when one defender holds Q-X-X of trumps and the other holds J-X. Needless to say, specific distribution of their cards is essential for this coup to succeed.

This example is from Traub's "Trump Technique." Alec points out that it would be better a percentage to take the 6.78 percent chance of dropping Q-J doubleton than the much smaller chance of finding the exact distribution you need. Anyway, with perfect timing the coup will work here and as you can see the Q-J does not drop.

Take the ace of hearts. Ruff a heart. A club to dummy. Ruff another heart. A diamond to dummy's queen. Ruff the last heart. Cash the ace and king of diamonds and the king-queen of clubs to discard dummy's last diamond. Now lead your last club.

If West ruffs low take dummy's nine and the ace-king of trumps takes the last tricks. If West plays his queen, overruff and finesse against East's jack.

Note that you needed 3-3 breaks in the red suits, four clubs with East and split trump honors, but then the Devil is entitled to an occasional miracle.

Caring for toenails

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I read an article in the paper about a solution or salve to use on your toenails to soften them so you could get rid of ingrown toenails or soften the hard material under the nails. There wasn't any name for it and I can't find it. Can you tell me what it is and where I can get it?

DEAR READER — I am not sure what you read but many people do have problems caring for their toenails. You can help solve such problems by being sure the shoes you wear really fit you. That means you should be able to wiggle your toes inside the shoes. If you can't, they are too short or too narrow or both.

The second point is to keep your nails properly trimmed. Use a regular toenail clipper that is straight across the end and not curved. Trim the nails straight across. Sometimes if there are sharp corners that stick out and dig into the adjacent toe you will need to round these. In general, rounded nails contribute to ingrown toenails.

If you have a corner that is turned under after you have softened it by soaking your feet, carefully lift it up and slip a small wedge of cotton under the corner. That will help to train the nail so it doesn't turn under.

Almost all toenails will soften if you soak them long enough in warm water. Immediately after you dry them you can cover the nail with Vaseline. The Vaseline acts like a moisturizer; it's one of the best.

For problem nails and toes you can cover the nails and toes with Vaseline and put on heavy socks to sleep overnight. If you do this once or twice a week and lubricate your toes and nails after each shower or bath you will soon see evidence of softening your nails.

Don't expect to cure advanced ingrown toenails this way. They may require surgical excision. Don't try to treat an infected ingrown toenail yourself either.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 11-8, Your Feet and How to Care for Them. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I was surprised about the lady who wrote that her friend was not being fed in a nursing home. We didn't have that problem in the nursing home where I worked. The food we served was the same that the nurses and aides ate. We took the time to feed the older people who couldn't feed themselves.

If her friend is losing weight, it is probably because she won't eat her food. The older people would complain and when we would try to feed them they would either knock our hands away or spit in our faces. If she doesn't like the way her friend is being cared for, she should volunteer to feed her.

DEAR READER — There are good and bad nursing homes. There are good doctors and bad doctors, good nurses and bad nurses, good aides and bad aides. That is the way the world is.

Your own letter, though, establishes the point that being sure people in nursing homes get fed properly is not always a simple matter. That is why I think the family and relatives should be sure their loved one is getting proper care. The daily living pattern in nursing homes is very important, particularly nutrition (not just serving the right food but being sure it is eaten) and physical activity to the extent the person can be active.

Fire Ants To Continue March

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Ravenous and sometimes deadly fire ants probably cannot be erradicated and will continue their steady march toward the rich agricultural fields of the Pacific Coast, experts say.

Most insect specialists "agree that eradicating fire ants is no longer possible," Dr. Richard Lipsey of the Kenco Chemical and Manufacturing Corp. of Jacksonville, Fla., told a fire ant conference Thursday.

"Fire ants occupy over 230 million acres with no significant natural enemies to keep their populations in check," Lipsey said.

He said the ants, which have decimated corn and soybean crops in the Southeast, are as far west as Texas and are advancing on California's rich citrus fields at the rate of 35 miles a year.

"We must learn to live with fire ants, but at a distance," said Lipsey.

A physician told the conference a 34-year-old woman and a 43-year-old man allergic to the bite of the insects died recently in San Antonio after they were bitten on the feet by the ants.

"I have a feeling that there are more (deaths)," said Dr. Frank James Jr. of San Antonio.

And Terry Coghlain of Texas A&M University said some of the 2.5 million people stung each month by fire ants suffer "shock and severe hives."

Ira Baptists Set Revival Service

"Listen Now, Hear Forever" revival services are scheduled to begin at First Baptist Church of Ira, with a worship service Sunday at 11 a.m.

The service will be followed by dinner on the grounds (covered-dish style), according to Mike Brown, pastor of the Ira congregation.

Those leading the services will be preaching evangelist Syl Moore and singing evangelist Steve Mason.

The services will continue through Friday night and will include a morning Bible study at 10 a.m. and a worship service at 7 p.m. each evening.

Special emphasis for each night will be Sunday--high attendance; Monday--school night; Tuesday--music night; Wednesday, God's family night; Thursday, children's night; Friday, youth night.

Syl Moore is pastor of the First Baptist Church of Anton. He served for 20 years in the U. S. Air Force until he was honorably discharged in 1975.

Moore served overseas and while stationed in Japan, was pastor of an English speaking church.

He pastored the Fairview Baptist Church near Levelland before moving to Anton.

The first year at Anton, the Sunday School was recognized as one of the fastest growing Sunday Schools in the Baptist General Convention of Texas.

Steve Mason is Minister of Youth and Music at the First Baptist Church of Loraine. He is a student at hardin-Simmons University.

Pesticide Was Stolen

HOUSTON (AP) — A deadly pesticide was stolen Wednesday from a truck parked outside an eastside restaurant, a City Health Department spokeswoman said.

A container storing the toxic chemical, sodium fluroacitate, had been locked in a steel box and placed in a private pesticide company truck, said spokeswoman Ava Plummer.

The box was discovered missing about 7 a.m., Ms. Plummer said.

The white crystaline powder "is extremely lethal is swallowed," she said.

"We don't think the person who took this chemical realizes just how dangerous it is," she said.

For Budget Compromise...

Time Is Running Out

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan is being warned by Republican leaders in Congress that time is running out for White House participation in efforts to trim the record deficit in his fiscal 1983 budget.

"I can't wait forever," said Senate Majority Leader Howard H. Baker Jr., adding that the Senate Budget Committee would probably begin work on a spending outline next week unless there are indications of compromise from Reagan.

Baker, R-Tenn., joined with House GOP leader Robert H. Michel of Illinois in expressing impatience Thursday.

"Maybe I have to move on the shoulder and get around this stalled caravan," Michel said.

A Senate GOP source who asked anonymity said Baker's remarks were "a signal to the White House that we're running out of time."

Elsewhere on Capitol Hill Thursday, the House Social Security subcommittee approved a bill to continue disability benefits to people for up to six months after the government determines they should be removed from the rolls.

Rep. J.J. Pickle, D-Texas, the subcommittee chairman, said the proposal is designed "to slow down the harsh, if not in some instances, inhumane" way the Social Security Administration is conducting its accelerated review of disability recipients.

Meanwhile, several lawmakers pushed ahead with a move to repeal a 1981 law giving legislators a special deduction that will save the average congressman about $7,500 a year in federal income taxes.

A petition intended to force a House vote on a bill repealing the living-expense deduction was introduced by Reps. Pat Schroeder, D-Colo., Tom Lantos, D-Calif., and Ray Kogovsek, D-Colo. The petition was signed by several other House members, including Republicans, but it will need 218 signatures — half the House plus one — to force the Ways and Means Committee to bring the bill to the floor.

In other congressional business:

—An aide to Rep. Lyle Williams said the White House has agreed to consider the Ohio Republican's proposal to tax imports 3 percent to raise money to help retire the national debt.

—Sen. John Heinz, R-Pa., said Congress is losing patience because of the failure of European allies and Japan to set new minimum interest rates for their government-supported export credits. Heinz is sponsoring a bill to give the Export-Import Bank $1 billion to subsidize U.S exports with below-market loans.

—A House subcommittee endorsed legislation to allow 100 U.S. cattle tick inspectors to carry guns. The "'river riders" say they have been shot at as they patrol the U.S.-Mexico border in Texas looking for infested livestock.

—The House Agriculture subcommittee on department operations and research refused on a tie vote to back industry-sought changes in the federal pesticide law to limit public access to health and safety data submitted to the government.

Good, Bad News In Car Industry

By The Associated Press

The number of workers laid off indefinitely by the hard-pressed auto industry has edged upward, but a union official representing workers at the biggest automaker says a new labor agreement will end the "hemorrhaging of jobs."

The automaker, General Motors Corp., announced meanwhile it is forming a robot company based in southeastern Michigan, a region whose economy has been ravaged by a slump in the auto industry.

The auto-industry slump continued this week as car production plunged almost 37 percent from the comparable 1981 week, according to figures released Thursday.

Thursday also brought reports of problems in two other hard-pressed industries, savings and loan associations and real estate.

And while the number of business failures stabilized in mid-March, a private credit-rating agency says the total remains 54 percent higher than a year ago.

"A year ago inflation was the most compelling problem. We are now worried about unemployment and recession," Norman Robertson, Mellon Bank's chief economist, said Thursday in Pittsburgh.

The GM council of the United Auto Workers union overwhelmingly recommended ratification of a contract calling for wage and benefit concessions in an attempt to save jobs and make GM more competitive.

Dear Abby

Family Affair Creates An Unexpected Issue

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1982 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I have a problem I can't talk to anybody about. My husband had an affair with my 17-year-old niece, and now she's pregnant. The only ones who know about it are my husband, the girl, the doctor who confirmed it, and now me.

My husband has always been a decent family man, and my niece is a nice, quiet girl who never even had a steady boyfriend. Nobody would ever believe this could happen to us. We are all respectable, churchgoing people.

My niece is in her third month, and soon everyone will know she's pregnant. This is a small town, and I don't want my family split up over this. We have three fine children. My husband has been walking around like a zombie for the last six weeks. He finally broke down and told me what was wrong. He says he loves me very much and must have been crazy. Meanwhile my niece says she "loves" my husband and wants to have his baby so he will have to marry her. (He's old enough to be her father.) I still love him and will stand by him regardless. Please help me, Abby.

OUT OF MY MIND

DEAR OUT: Since you are a churchgoing family, I urge you to talk to your clergyman. All of you involved desperately need his advice and counsel. Your husband should also see a lawyer. Because the girl is a minor, he could be charged with statutory rape. No man can be forced to marry a girl if he doesn't want to. I commend you for standing by your husband. Hang in there and good luck.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I'm a 19-year-old unmarried woman, and my problem has almost become an obsession with me. I have sagging breasts like a woman who has nursed six kids! The rest of me is well-proportioned, but every time I look at my body in the mirror I get depressed. I tried toning up my chest muscles by weight-lifting, but all I got were big arms.

I know how I got this way, Abby. I developed early (age 12) and I never owned a support bra, so I bounced around a lot, and now I am paying for it. I look OK in an uplift bra, but I look terrible in a bathing suit.

If I didn't have this problem I would have a really nice-looking figure. Would plastic surgery help? I'm saving up for a fur coat, but I'd trade it for an operation. Thanks.

SAGGING IN SANDUSKY

DEAR SAGGGING: Yes, plastic surgery can help. If you don't know a board-certified plastic surgeon, ask your family physician to recommend several. Talk to two or three, then make your own selection.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: I have a friend who has been seeing a guy who's been married, divorced and has five kids. She's so wrapped up in him that sometimes she doesn't see her family for weeks. Recently she told me that she loves this guy and he wants to marry her, but first he wants her to prove that she loves him by living with him for a year, doing all the cooking, laundry and taking care of his kids. (Their mama ran off and left them.)

She's 19 and he's 33. Do you think this guy is just using her? And how can I help her?

HER FRIEND IN ALABAMA

DEAR FRIEND: You can help her by being her friend. Whether I think she's being used is not important. Only if (and when) she concludes that she's being used will she do something about it. People "in love" are deaf, dumb, blind.

* * *

U. S. Senate Names Abscam Probe Panel

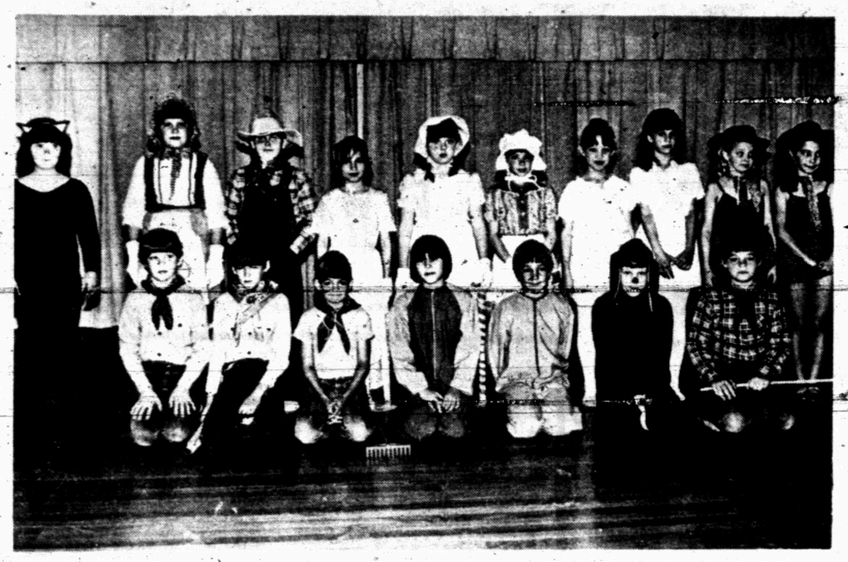

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Howard Baker is promising a "demonstrably impartial" Senate probe of the FBI's Abscam inquiry that led to the conviction of seven congressmen on criminal charges.

"It's not a fishing expedition. It's not a witch hunt. It's not an attempt to hang or whitewash the FBI or the Justice Department," the Tennessee Republican said Thursday.

He made the statement as he announced formation of a bipartisan committee of eight senators to look into charges, made by former Sen. Harrison A. Williams and others, that the FBI abused its power with the undercover Abscam probe.

The special Senate committee will have until Dec. 15 — and longer, if necessary — to complete its work, Baker said. The Senate has approved $250,000 for the committee's expenses.

Companies To Benefit From Oscar Victories

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — What is an Oscar worth?

The price the Dodge Trophy and Awards Co. charges for the statuettes the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences will hand out Monday night is a secret, but Hollywood legend has it that winning an Oscar can bring actors and movie companies millions of dollars.

While the legend may be accurate for some companies, it's not always so for actors.

Theater owners are apt to book and rebook the winning film, and viewers of the Oscar awards ceremony are drawn to theaters by the hoopla and by film clips of the winner, said Charles Powell, former publicity and advertising chief for MGM and Universal and now head of a film marketing firm.

"The best-picture award can mean a minimum of $6 million but closer to $10 million in ticket sales," said Powell. "That has been the experience over the past 10 years."

Sometimes the entire release pattern is built around the awards. Four years ago, Universal faced a problem with "The Deer Hunter," an expensive, unrelenting treatment of the Vietnam war. The company decided to release the film in Los Angeles just in time to qualify for the awards. A few more bookings were added in February, with the broad release scheduled to coincide with the Oscars.

The strategy worked. "The Deer Hunter" was named best picture of the year, and a problem picture became a huge moneymaker. The rentals in the United States and Canada totaled $31 million, meaning more than twice that amount poured through box offices.

Does Oscar have the same golden touch for acting award winners?

"It certainly didn't help Luise Rainer, who won two years in a row and then dropped out of sight," says Billy Wilder, who directed the 1945 film and Oscar winner "The Lost Weekend."

"It certainly didn't help Ernest Borgnine," he said. And what about winners Louise Fletcher, Miyoshi Umeki and George Chakiris?

Convicted Kidnappers Are Still At Large

VERONA, Italy (AP) — An Italian court has convicted and sentenced 17 Red Brigades terrorists for kidnapping U.S. Army Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier, but nearly half of them are still at large.

Italian law permits defendants to be tried in absentia and eight of the Red Brigades members convicted by the three-judge tribunal Thursday have evaded arrest. Most are members of the guerrilla group's "executive committee" that planned the kidnapping.

"We lost a battle but the war is not over," defendant Cesare di Lenardo told reporters from a cage in the courtroom before the verdicts were announced. Di Lenardo, who refused to cooperate with police, drew the stiffest sentence, 27 years.

In 1969, Charles de Gaulle resigned as president of France when his referendum constituional reforms was defeated.

Six-Year-Old To Trial

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — A 6-year-old girl accused of giving a schoolmate a bloody nose will be tried as an adult on charges of aggravated battery, a circuit judge ruled today.

Judge R.A. "Buzzy" Green said he would set a date later for the jury trial of the girl and a 13-year-old boy. Defense attorneys asked that the case go to a jury rather than arbitration.

Nancy Jo Burch, who left the courtroom in tears as television cameras and reporters closed in on her, is accused by 7-year-old Shirley Lynn Nickolls, a Duval Elementary schoolmate, of beating Miss Nickolls with a stick and drawing blood.

If convicted of aggravated battery, the girl could face a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Miss Burch's attorney, Alan Wilhite, contends that under common law, a child under 7 lacks the cognitive ability to commit a crime. Green ruled Tuesday that he wouldn't dismiss the charges on those grounds.

Attorneys for both defendants asked today that the case go to a jury, rather than sending it to community arbitration, a juvenile procedure in which all parties involved sit down with an arbitrator and try to work out a disposition of the case.

Over the prosecutor's objections, Green noted that the defendants have a right to a jury trial if they so request.

Wilhite declined to reveal why he asked for the trial.

"I have a lot of motions ready, but I'm not at liberty right now to discuss them," he said, adding, "My only concern is for that sweet 6-year-old girl."

Prosecutor Don Royster said he thought the defense request was "ridiculous."

"I've got a 13-year-old rapist that's been declared mentally incompetent to stand trial. I don't know what I'm going to do with that. I've got more serious problems to worry about. This should have gone to community arbitration," Royster said.

The prosecutor also criticized Wilhite and Miss Burch's parents for seeking publicity for the case.

Outside the courthouse today, Miss Burch tearfully responded to reporters' questions with "Yes" and "No" answers.

Asked if she understood what was going on, she said: "No."

The attorney for the 13-year-old co-defendant requested that the boy's name not be publicized.

The incident apparently stemmed from a shoving match in January. Nancy Nickolls, Shirley's mother, said her daughter pushed Miss Burch into a mud puddle after Miss Burch shoved Miss Nickolls.

On Feb. 4, the boy pinned Shirley's arms, Miss Burch took a stick and whacked Miss Nickolls a couple of times, Mrs. Nickolls said.

U. S. Court Issues Ruling On Tax Exemption Status

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled today the Internal Revenue Service no longer can grant tax exemptions to veterans groups while it denies such status to other charitable or educational organizations that conduct lobbying activities.

In a 6-4 decision, the court said it is unconstitutional, when granting tax exemptions, to distinguish between veterans groups, which can keep their tax-exempt status despite lobbying activities, and other nonprofit organizations, which lose their exemptions when they lobby Congress on legislation.

Cleburne Men Are Jailed

CLEBURNE, Texas (AP) — Two Cleburne men were jailed Wednesday on capital murder charges in the rape-strangulation of an 81-year-old woman, authorities said.

Police Clear Two Burglaries

Snyder police officers cleared two recent burglaries and a criminal mischief complaint with the arrest of a 16 year old male subject Thursday afternoon.

The arrest of the boy reportedly cleared the March 14 burglary of the Don Adams Laundry, the March 23 burglary of the Carol Armstead residence at 1915 Coleman Avenue, and the March 12 criminal mischief incident at the Ruby Price residence, also on Coleman Avenue.

All of the items taken in the burglary of the Armstead residence were reportedly recovered from the suspect and an accomplice Thursday afternoon. Juvenile proceedings against the boy are expected to begin today in connection with the burglary of the laundry.

Local police are also investigating one theft report received late Thursday afternoon. Wayne Melton of 1900 West Drive called police around 6:20 p.m. Thursday and reported the theft of a head from a 292 Chevrolet engine from his back yard. Value of the missing head was listed at $110.

Around 8:15 p.m. Thursday, police were called to the Hasting's Book Store in Varsity Square where they arrested a male subject on misdemeanor shoplifting charges. The subject had reportedly attempted to leave the store without paying for a paper back book when store employee's called police.

Cougars To Take Toughest Challenge Saturday

NEW ORLEANS (AP) - The last time the University of Houston's basketball team was in New Orleans, the Cougars won the Sugar Bowl tournament.

It could be even sweeter this time for Coach Guy Lewis - if his unranked Southwest Conference club can get by top-ranked North Carolina in Saturday's NCAA championship semifinals.

"North Carolina has no weaknesses," Lewis said Thursday. "We've got teams in the Southwest Conference like North Carolina - but none as good. It'll take something special to beat North Carolina."

The Houston-North Carolina game will precede the Louisville-Georgetown game at the Superdome, which will be witnessed by a record crowd of some 61,000, plus a national television audience in the millions. The winners will play for the NCAA championship Monday night.

"North Carolina is as good as any team in the country," Lewis said. "They've got strength at every position - just a great, great ballclub."

The contest features two teams of contrasting styles and temperments. Under Coach Dean Smith, a master of control, North Carolina exhibits a disciplined style of play that includes an intimidating offensive slowdown known as the "four corners."

Under Lewis, Houston is a run-and-shoot team spearheaded by guard Rob Williams, who at 22 points a game is the highest scorer in the Final Four.

Houston, 25-7, and second in the Southwest Conference, has adjusted well to every other team thus far in this championship tournament. The Cougars beat Alcorn State, Tulsa, Missouri and Boston College en route to the regional championship in the Midwest.

Lewis has high regard for the Tar Heels, especially senior Jimmy Black, whom Smith calls "the best point guard in America."

With Black controlling the offense, North Carolina, 30-2, won the Atlantic Coast Conference championship and captured the East Regional with triumphs over James Madison, Alabama and Villanova.

It is Smith's seventh trip to the Final Four and Lewis' third. Neither has won an NCAA championship.

Louisville's Denny Crum, on the other hand, is going for his second title in three years. His 1980 Cardinals won over UCLA, and the four starters who played supporting roles that year to All-American Darrell Griffith are back.

Crum was asked if he felt he would have an advantage over Georgetown Coach John Thompson, who's coaching his first Final Four team.

"The only thing about that is John and I don't get to play," Crum said. "If there is any advantage, my players might have it."

Louisville, 23-9, was the Mideast Regional winner. Georgetown, 29-6, the Big East playoff winner, was the West Regional champion.

Bengals Facing Fast Field At San Angelo

SAN ANGELO -- Snyder High School boy's track team was slated to begin preliminaries in the San Angelo Relays here today. The 70-team, four-division meet continues through Saturday.

Snyder had its best finish of the season last weekend, when the Tigers placed second in the Canyon Reef Relays. Despite the lofty finish, Coach Robert Crawford was looking for Snyder to do better in several events this weekend - if not in points, in better distances, heights or times.

"We were happy to place second here, but I felt like we should have done better in some areas, the high jump, the long jump and the pole vault," said Crawford. Snyder took ribbons in all three events, but did its distances and-or heights were less than had been previously accomplished by the team.

"We're ready to go, I think," added the coach about today's meet. "We've had some conflict because some of our young men were involved with the one-act play this week and weren't able to work out, but they tell me they are ready to go."

The Tigers will again be up against strong competition.

"This will be our toughest meet of the season," added the coach. "It could also give some indication as to how the district meet will turn out."

Twelve schools, including seven of the nine District 2-AAAA teams, will compete in division II. They are Snyder, Andrews, Fort Stockton, Pecos, Lake View, Ector and Monahans from District 2-AAAA, as well as Levelland, Canyon, Vernon, Fredricksburg and Kerrville Tivy.

There will be four divisions, I for 5A schools, II for 4A schools, III for 3A schools and IV for 1A and 2A schools.

Action began at 2:30 today with the preliminary running of the 400 meter relay. At the same time, the 3200 meter run prelims was to be held at the College Track, north of Angelo Stadium. The discus and long jump - the only field events set today - was also to begin at 2:30.

Prelims were to continue with the 110 meter high hurdles and the rest of the running events, including the 100, 200 and 400 meters, the 300 hurdles, the 800 meter run, 1600 meter relay and the 1600 run.

Saturday's action begins at noon with the shotput and follows with the high jump at 1:30 and the pole vault at 2. Running finals will begin at 1 p.m.

Snyder will take 16 athletes to the meet, leaving its freshmen to compete in the single-day Sweetwater Relays in Sweetwater on Saturday. Also competing in that meet will be Snyder's seventh and eighth grade boys and girls teams.

At Fort Stockton...

Tigers Open 2-4A Play

FORT STOCKTON -- Snyder's Tigers are slated to begin District 2-AAAA baseball play here tonight, assuming the visitor's role against Fort Stockton at 7:30.

Elsewhere throughout the district, Andrews is at Pecos and Ector is at Lamesa. Monahans is idle from loop competition.

The Tigers, under the guidance of Coach Albert Lewis and assistant Roland Herrera, are 9-5 for the season. The squad boasts non-district wins over 2-4A members Andrews, Monahans and Ector, and has lost to Pecos. Snyder's other losses have come against Abilene Cooper (2), Big Spring and Lubbock Estacado.

The Tigers have beaten, in addition to the three district rivals, Levelland (3), San Angelo Central (2), and Big Spring.

Coach Albert Lewis indicated this morning he would start senior John Wilson, 3-1-2, on the mound. Fort Stockton is expected to counter with two-year letterman Freddie Fierro, who was 4-2 and made honorable mention honors last year.

The Tigers have not played Fort Stockton this year, but Lewis saw the Panthers in the Monahans Tournament and he assures they are tough.

"Fort Stockton really impressed me," said the coach. "They hit the ball extremely well. They lost to Pecos (in the semifinals) 6-2, but they put a lot of people on the bases. They out-hit Pecos but they made a few mistakes and that cost them."

Tentatively, short stop Brent Roemisch will lead off for the Tigers, followed by outfielder Perry Echols, outfielder Britt Vincent and catcher Jesse Hernandez. Playing the other positions, though not in batting order, will be Barry Davis at first base, Charles Bollinger at third base, Curtis Gafford at second base, and Casey Peterson in an outfield position.

Hernandez leads the Tigers in hitting with a .628 average. Vincent is hitting .400, while Wilson is hitting .353, Peterson .324 and Echols .317.

FRIDAY'S GAMES: Snyder at Fort Stockton, Andrews at Pecos, Ector at Lamesa, Monahans open.

Fems Find Competition At Lubbock Tourney

LUBBOCK -- Snyder girls will attend the Lubbock Girl's Invitational Track Meet here Saturday at Coronado High School.

Preliminary running events are slated in only four events, the 100 hurdles, and the 100, 200 and 400 meters, and will begin at 10 a.m.

Field events will also begin at 10 with the discus and long jump. The shot, triple jump and high jump will be held at 2.

Running finals are scheduled to begin at 2:15.

"We don't have a complete list of teams at the meet, but I know there will be a bunch of tough 5A schools there," said Coach Patty Grimmett.

Among the schools expected to attend are Coronado, Estacado, Dunbar, Monterey and Lubbock High from Lubbock. Big Spring and Amarillo Tascosa, the 1981 champion, are also expected.

Snyder looks to continue to improve as it has in the past three weeks, and has a chance to set at least one record.

"They list the shot put record as just 36-6½," said Coach Grimmett. "We hope Brenda (Anderson) can beat that."

Anderson has won the shot put at each meet she has competed in this season. She hurled the shot 40-5 last week.

"We should do pretty well. I think the competition will be tough, but we're used to that by now. If all our girls are healthy we should do well."

Snyder has competed in three meets this season, advancing its point total from 26 to 28 in the second running at Hereford, and to 40 last week in the Canyon Reef Relays.
