Obituaries

Archie John Kountz

Archie John Kountz, age 66, went home to Jesus on December 26, 2021, after spending a special week with his family.

Archie was born in Big Spring, TX to Lucille and "Jack" John Henry Geyer Kountz, Jr. on April 16, 1955. He married Cinda Lea Nickelson on December 4, 1976. Archie had a heart for service and served on numerous boards over the years, where he derived great joy from improving the lives of others. He retired in 2020 and was always ready to spend time with his sons and their families, especially if it included hunting, fishing, traveling or activities with his grandchildren. Most evenings you could find Archie sitting on his patio, grilling food and sipping a drink with his faithful four-legged companion, Zoey. He enjoyed cooking, gardening and canning, but his favorite part was sharing the fruits of his labor with others.

Archie's presence could light up a room. He had a way of making friends with anyone he met. Those that knew Archie loved him, and once you met him you could never forget him. His laugh was hearty and warming, and his smile had a way of spreading to all who saw it.

His calming presence, smile and famous hugs will be missed by his loving wife of 45 years, Cindy; his children: John Kountz and his wife, Ana; Adam Kountz and his wife Julie; Ryan Kountz and Mikayla Garvey; and his grandchildren Scarlett and Jack. He is also survived by his brother-in-law, Gene Nickelson, sister-in-laws: Cathy Govert and Rita Talarico; 7 nieces and 2 nephews and three cousins.

Archie was preceded in death by his parents Lucille and Jack Kountz.

The family held a private memorial service in Dallas, Texas last week with James Talarico officiating.

His family asks that in lieu of plants or flowers, donations be made to your favorite charity. To donate to a cause important to Archie, please make a donation to the Samaritan's Purse for tornado victims in Kentucky or Open Door in Lubbock, TX in his memory.

DELNOR POSS: NO TIME OUT

Tumbleweed Smith
Special to the Herald

Tumbleweed Smith

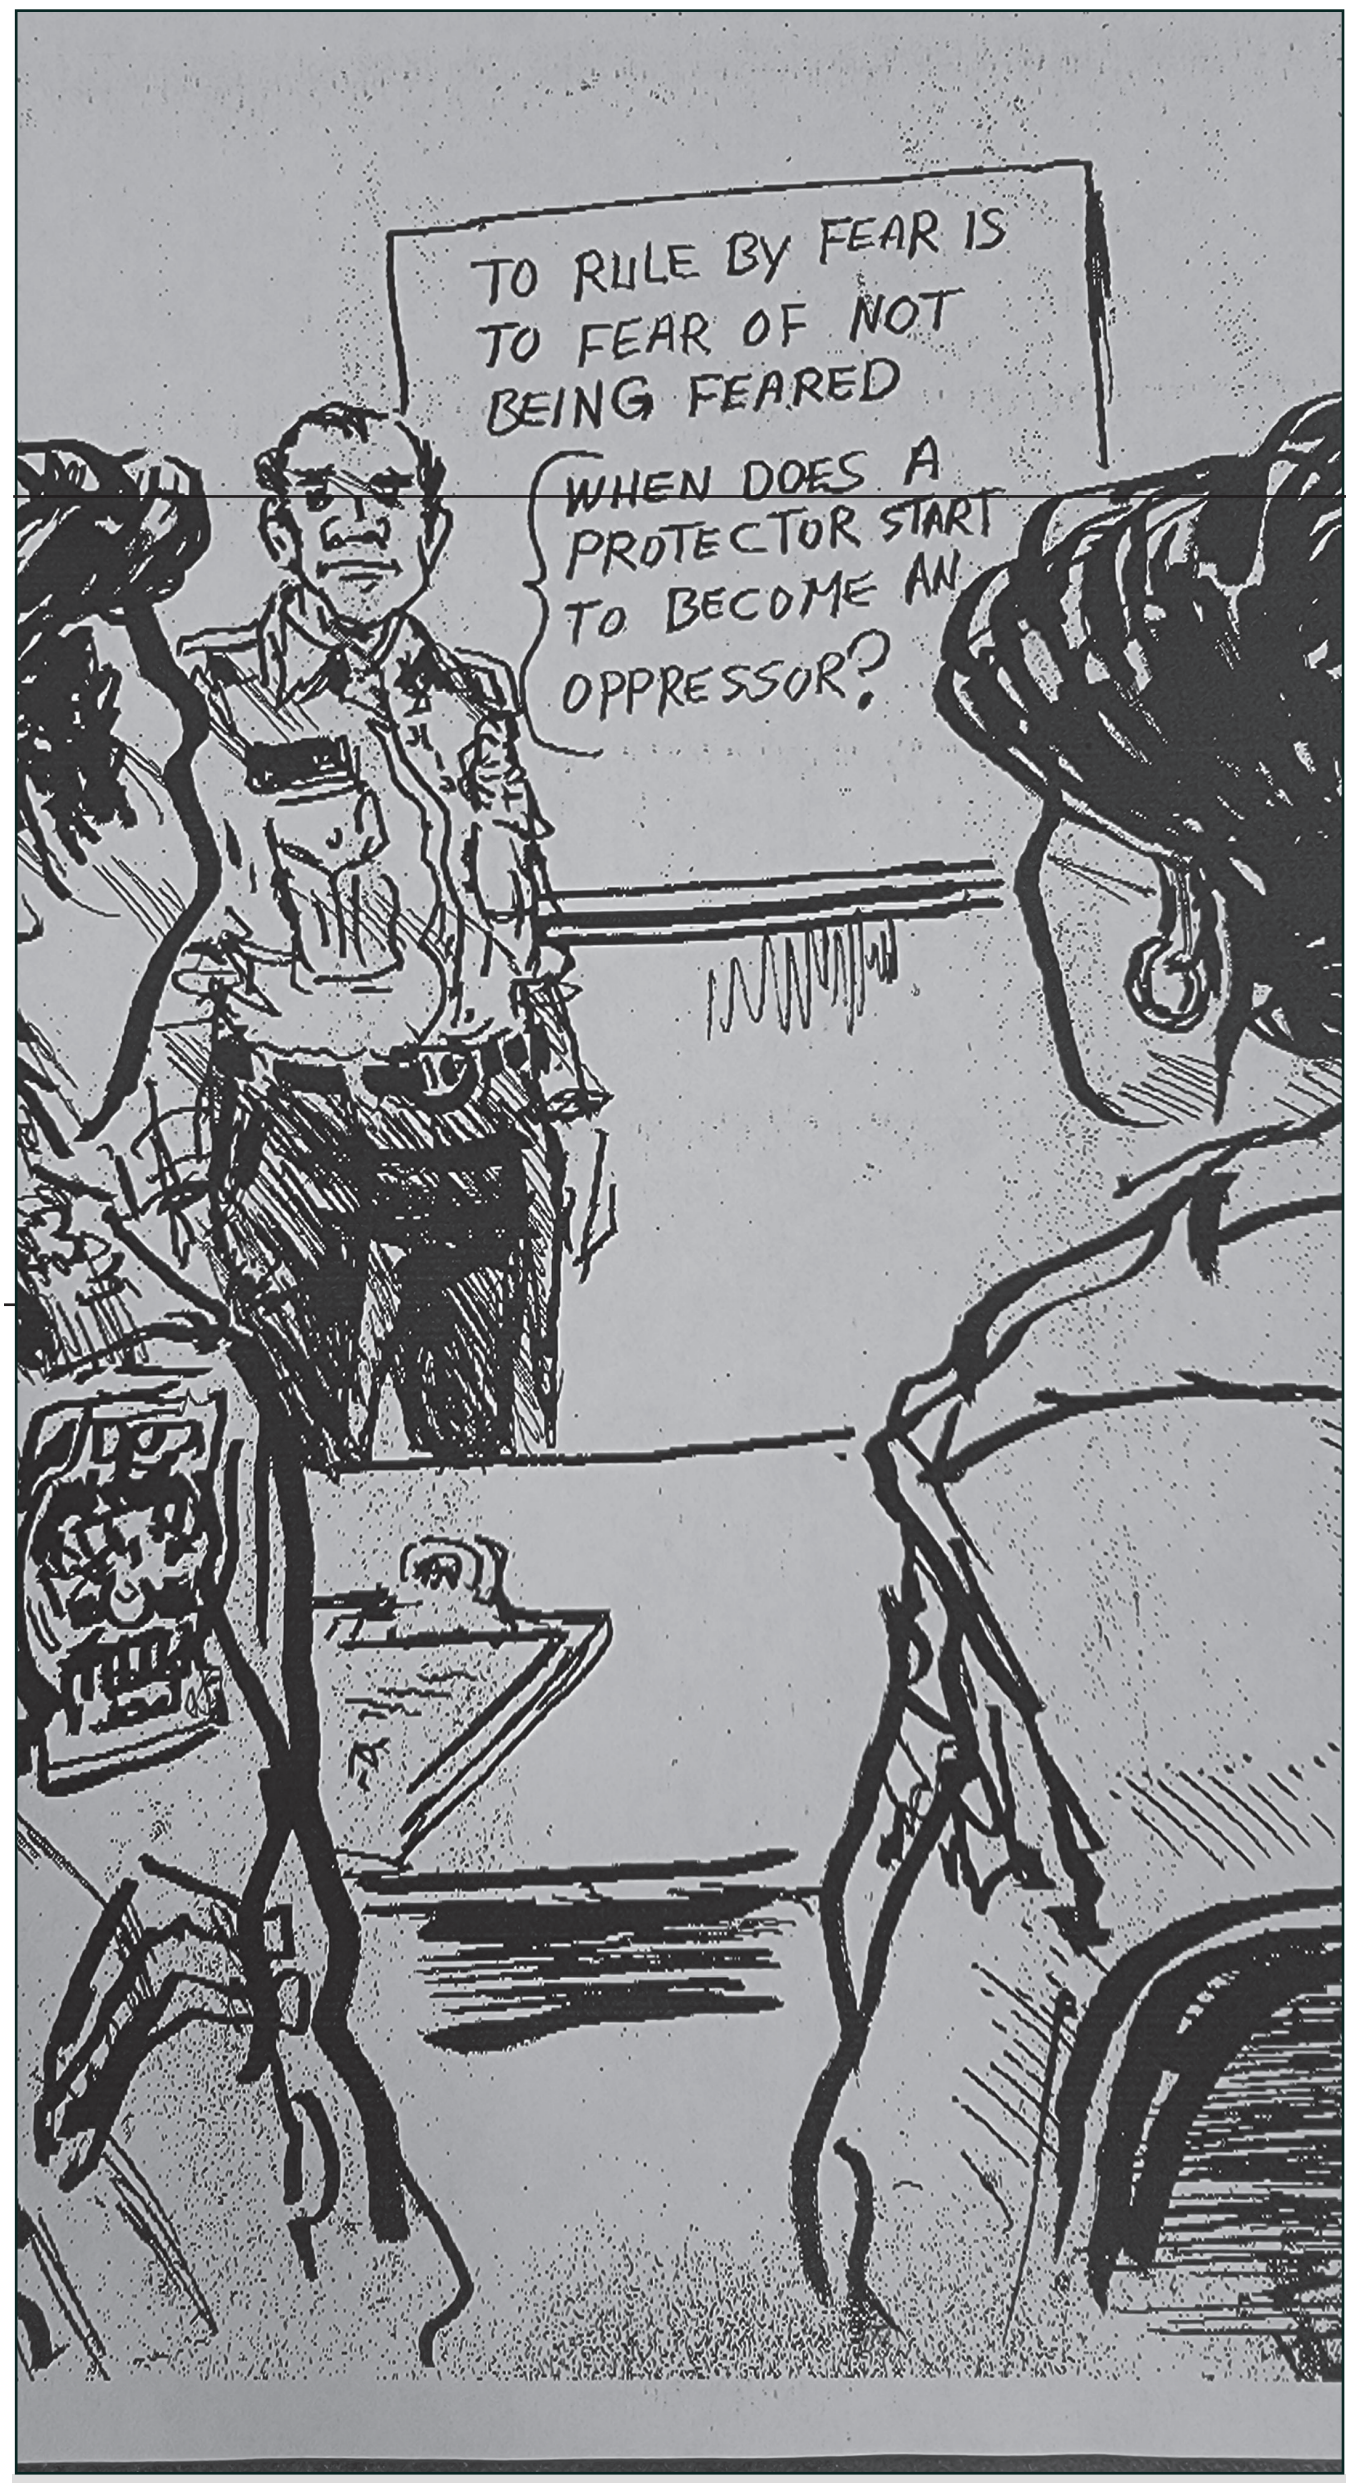

Delnor Poss had a 40 year career teaching and coaching sports at Midland College. He grew up playing sports at schools in California, Oklahoma and Texas. Later he coached at high schools. At Midland College he worked his way up to Athletic Director. His teams won 12 National Championships in 5 different sports. His golf teams earned 4 national titles, a world championship and later some of his athletes played in The Masters, PGA Championship, Ryder Cup and British open. Delnor is in 6 Halls of Fame. He has written a book about his life before, during and after coaching titled NO TIME OUT! MY NON-STOP LIFE. Presently he works as a sports consultant in New Mexico.

I've known Delnor and his wife Martha for more than 50 years. My son took piano lessons from Martha. Delnor calls her his best friend and adviser and says he couldn't have done anything without her. Martha is a beautiful woman than men admire. Delnor thinks some of the jobs he got were because he took Martha to the interviews. His book praises Martha through all their adventures together.

The book is full of anecdotes and fun stories, some of which show Delnor to do some crazy things. Once when he was changing jobs and driving back and forth between towns before moving in at the new location, Delnor and Martha went to a grocery store and bought lots of meat and produce and put it in the refrigerator where they would be moving. Before he left he turned off the electricity, so all the groceries spoiled. "The odor was terrible. We couldn't stand it," says Delnor.

When he was settling in to his new coaching job at Menard, a town known for its practical jokes, a man in a white pickup drove up as Delnor was unloading his car at the new residence. "He introduced himself and said he lived in a house above us up the hill," says Delnor. "While he was talking to me he kept trying to catch a glimpse of Martha. He told me to watch out for the guy next door, that the guy was a sex deviate and couldn't be trusted. Martha should keep the doors locked all the time." The visitor told Delnor that he was a member of the school board and if he needed anything to let him know. He said goodbye and left in his white pickup. This was about 2 PM. A little after 5, the next-door neighbor pulled into the driveway that he shared with Delnor. "He came over and introduced himself and welcomed me to Menard and to the neighborhood. We visited for a while and when he started to leave he told me to watch out for the man who lived behind us in that house on the hill. 'He can't be trusted so make sure your wife locks the doors when she's home by herself.' I felt those two guys were pulling my chain. I figured I had 2 local neighbors as characters."

The next morning Delnor went to the post office and who should show up but the neighbor who lived up the hill. Delnor asked him, "Did you hear the shot last might?" The man said no. Delnor said, "I caught my next door neighbor looking in the window of my house so I shot him." The neighbor was shocked. Delnor said, "Got you, didn't I." The man laughed and said, "You're gonna fit right in here."

Second Time Around

By STEVE BELVIN
Contributing Writer

Reminiscing about this past football season in the Crossroads Country. A great run for coach Jason Phillips' Forsan Buffaloes who made a strong showing in the playoffs. Hawley, the team that beat Forsan 24-21 for the district title, lost in the state championship game to Shriner 47-12. Down the road, the Westbrook Wildcats won a state six-man title.

Here is my list of memorable games that I saw in 2021,

BEST GAME - Class 2A Bi-district game in Brownwood, Forsan defeated Goldthwaite 22-15 in a battle that went down to the waning seconds of the game.

The Forsan defense made a superb goal line stand. Third and goal from the Forsan two-yard line, Goldthwaite's Jason Patrick was dropped for a two yard loss by sophomore linebacker Grant Roman and senior safety Cayden Morgan. On fourth and goal from the four, Patrick was hit hard, fumbled, recovered by Ernesto Rivera at the Forsan one.

Forsan tried a quarterback sneak and just barely avoided a safety. The next play Nate Hernandez ran for eight yards to get the Buffaloes out of a hole and run the remainder of the clock off.

Two memories from that game and both involved Forsan junior Nolan Park. On Forsan' opening possession Goldthwaite pinned Forsan inside its five yard line. On fourth down Park boomed a 68 yard punt that took Forsan out of trouble waters.

Just before half with one second remaining, Park was asked to attempt a 44-yard field goal. He barley missed. The ball bounced off the right goal post. The kick would have been good from 50 plus yards. Park nailed an absolute rocket.

BEST TEAM - New Deal Lions. In their second round 28-24 win over Forsan the Lions danced with who got them there, a powerful running game and a stout defense. New Deal proved that a one-dimensional team could get it done. Nothing fancy, Leric Eaton carried the ball 42 times for 238 yards and all four of his team's touchdowns.

Eaton got to know Forsan's Morgan very well that night. Morgan was a busy man, making an astounding 29 tackles, that right, 29 tackles! 15 solo and 14 assisted. I have a feeling we'll see Caden Morgan on some All-State teams.

BEST INDIVIDUAL PEFORNANCE - It came on week eight in Stanton when the Stanton Buffaloes upset the Coahoma Bulldogs 30-17 in 4-3A play, This was the game that started Stanton's unexpected march to the playoffs.

It was a march that led to what is called "The biggest upset in Texas" when Stanton defeated No. 3 ranked Childress 39-34 in the first round of the playoffs.

In Stanton's win over Coahoma, Stanton senior Miguel Moreno had the game of a lifetime. Moreno, who plays, defensive back, running back and sometimes quarterback, led his team in tackles with 10 which included a quarterback sack, a forced fumble and a recovered fumble. He also caused a blocked punt and intercepted a pass late in the game when Coahoma was threatening.

He iced the game by throwing a 23-yard scoring pass to Alex Flores, making it a two-score lead for the Buffaloes. Just to go in for good measure, Moreno was the leading rusher with 141 yards on 18 carries and kicked a 32-yard field goal

Oh what a night!

Bills seek to clinch AFC East in season finale against Jets

NEW YORK JETS (4-12) at BUFFALO (10-6)

Sunday, 4:25 p.m. EST, CBS

BETTING LINE: Buffalo by 16 1/2, according to FanDuel SportsBook.

AGAINST THE SPREAD: New York 6-10; Buffalo 9-7.

SERIES RECORD: Bills lead 66-56.

LAST MEETING: Bills beat Jets 45-17 at New York on Nov. 14, 2021.

LAST WEEK: Jets lost to Buccaneers 28-24; Bills beat Falcons 29-14.

JETS OFFENSE: OVERALL (21), RUSH (24t), PASS (17), SCORING (25).

JETS DEFENSE: OVERALL (32), RUSH (29), PASS (29), SCORING (32).

BILLS OFFENSE: OVERALL (5), RUSH (6), PASS (10), SCORING (3)

BILLS DEFENSE: OVERALL (1), RUSH (19), PASS (1), SCORING (2)

TURNOVER DIFFERENTIAL: Jets minus-13; Bills plus-8.

JETS PLAYER TO WATCH: QB Zach Wilson. The rookie has been solid down the stretch with a streak of four consecutive starts with no interceptions, something no Jets QB has done in his first season. He has thrown only two touchdown passes in that span, but his decisiveness and confidence have been much improved. The Bills' top-ranked defense will give Wilson one final tough test heading into the offseason.

BILLS PLAYER TO WATCH: RB Devin Singletary. Buffalo has re-established a ground game behind Singletary, who had a career-best 23 carries for 110 yards and scored twice against Atlanta. In 14 quarters since Buffalo trailed 24-3 at halftime in an eventual 33-27 OT loss at Tampa Bay, Singletary has combined for 287 yards rushing and four TDs, and 86 yards receiving.

KEY MATCHUP: New York's backfield vs. Buffalo's D-line. The Jets' backfield has combined for 525 yards rushing over the past three games, and faces a defense which has allowed an average 151 yards rushing while yielding TDs rushing over its past five games.

KEY INJURIES: Jets WR Braxton Berrios was placed on IR on Friday after missing practice all week with a quadriceps injury. He was leading the NFL with a 30.4-yard kick return average (among players with 20 returns) and was second in the league with a 13.4-yard punt return average (among players with 15 returns). ... LT George Fant was placed on IR earlier in the week, so Conor McDermott is expected to start in his place. ... DL Quinnen Williams is expected to play after missing last Sunday's game while on the COVID-19 list. ... WR Jamison Crowder (calf) could return after missing two games. ... Rookie WR Elijah Moore has been on injured reserve for four games with a quadriceps injury, but coach Robert Saleh didn't rule him out for the regular-season finale. ... Rookie RB Michael Carter was in the concussion protocol early in the week after being injured against Tampa Bay. ... Bills WR Emmanuel Sanders' status remains uncertain after missing this past weekend's game with a knee injury. Otherwise, Buffalo's lineup is relatively healthy.

SERIES NOTES: The Bills have won three straight meetings and four of five, with the lone loss coming in a mean-nothing 2019 season finale in which Buffalo rested most of its starters. ... The Bills are 12-6 in their past 18 against New York. ... Buffalo's 489 yards offense and 45 points scored in the win at the Jets in November are season highs. The 45 points scored also matched a series high for Buffalo set in a 45-14 win on Dec. 8, 1963.

STATS AND STUFF: The Jets are missing the playoffs for an 11th consecutive season to match the franchise's longest drought. ... New York has rushed for at least 150 yards and held opponents to one or fewer sacks in consecutive games for the first time since 2016. The Jets ran for 150 last Sunday against Tampa Bay, which entered as the No. 3 overall run defense, and 273 against Jacksonville two weeks ago. ... Wilson leads rookie QBs with four TD runs. He needs two more to tie Geno Smith (2013) for the most by a Jets rookie. ... If he plays, Carter needs 55 yards from scrimmage to become the fourth Jets rookie RB to get 1,000, the first since Clark Gaines in 1976. ... The Jets have allowed a franchise-record 477 points this season, topping the 457 they allowed last season. ... LB C.J. Mosley has a career-high 155 tackles, ranking him fifth in the NFL. It's the most for New York since Jonathan Vilma led the league with 173 in 2005. ... LB Quincy Williams has a career-high 102 tackles. His nine tackles for loss lead the Jets. ... The Bills have won three straight and will clinch their second consecutive AFC East title with a win or a New England loss to Miami. Buffalo hasn't won consecutive division championships since a four-year run spanning 1988-91. ... With two TDs rushing last weekend, QB Josh Allen became the NFL's first player with at least 100 touchdowns passing and 20 rushing through his first four seasons. ... Allen finished with a career-worst 17.0 passer rating after throwing a career-high-matching three interceptions against the Falcons. He has combined for 12 interceptions and two lost fumbles in his past nine outings. ... Allen's career record is 20-17 when committing a turnover. ... Buffalo generated 19 first downs rushing against Atlanta, tied for third on the franchise list and the most since 21 in a 38-13 win over Washington on Nov. 3, 1996. ... Buffalo is 9-1 this season when scoring a TD rushing. ... With 221 catches, WR Stefon Diggs is three short of passing New England's Wes Welker for most in the NFL by a player in his first two seasons with a team. ... Diggs had a season-high 162 yards receiving on eight catches and scored a TD against the Jets in November. ... Buffalo is 7-0 this season when scoring a TD on its game-opening drive. ... Rookie DE Greg Rousseau forced his first career fumble with a strip-sack of Atlanta's Matt Ryan last week. ... Buffalo has allowed 11 TDs passing to match the fewest in a 16-game season, a team record first set in 1996.

Jaguars sponsor sues to have name removed from 'clown game'

By MARK LONG
AP Pro Football Writer

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. — The title sponsor for Jacksonville's season finale against Indianapolis is suing the Jaguars in hopes of having its name disassociated from the game during which disgruntled fans are planning to dress as clowns to protest team owner Shad Khan's decision to retain general manager Trent Baalke.

RoofClaim.com, a roofing company based in Georgia that does business in Florida, is seeking to avoid "its brand being emphasized as the primary sponsor of the clown game," according to a complaint filed Thursday in circuit court in Jacksonville.

The company is demanding a jury trial and seeking damages in excess of $30,000. It also wants temporary and permanent injunctive relief from the Jaguars using the RoofClaim brand.

A Jaguars spokesman called the lawsuit "baseless and without merit," said Friday that the team "will exhaustively protect our interests in this matter at every turn."

According to the sponsorship agreement attached to the lawsuit, the company signed a four-year deal in August that started at $600,000 annually and increased about $18,000 every year thereafter. The deal includes a provision that would allow RoofClaim to terminate the agreement if Urban Meyer was no longer the team's coach between the end of his third season (2023) and March, 1, 2024.

RoofClaim said it attempted to end its affiliation with the Jaguars the day after Meyer was fired Dec. 15, ending one of the worst coaching tenures in NFL history. The lawsuit says the Jaguars refused and insisted the partnership continue.

The deal guarantees the company a single-game spotlight in each of the four seasons, but the suit argues the Jaguars breached terms of the agreement.

The team "utterly failed to provide the sponsorship benefits outlined in the agreement," the lawsuit alleges, adding that the Jags breached the deal "by exposing RoofClaim.com's brand to a toxic marketing environment that will cause irreparable harm."

Jacksonville's finale will feature a "Klown out" in the stands. Hundreds, if not thousands, of fans are planning to wear clown attire – red noses, colorful wigs, face paint — in hopes of persuading Khan to fire Baalke, whose draft picks have been underwhelming and his free-agent acquisitions less than impactful.

'Jeopardy!' champ hits $1 million; talks fame, trans rights

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — "Jeopardy!" champion Amy Schneider is adding to her list of bragging rights and admirers.

Already the highest-earning female contestant in the quiz show's history and the woman with the longest winning streak, on Friday she became one of only four "Jeopardy!" players to reach seven figures in regular-season winnings.

She's collected $1.02 million in 28 victories, solidifying her 4th-place position on the list that includes Ken Jennings with $2.5 million; James Holzhauer, $2.46 million, and Matt Amodio, $1.52 million.

Schneider, who's also fourth in consecutive wins, will compete again Monday.

Poised and affable on TV and in an interview with The Associated Press, she doesn't seem the gloating type. But she is tickled by the fact that she's fulfilled a prediction made by her 8th-grade classmates in Dayton, Ohio: She was voted most likely to be a "Jeopardy!" contestant, based on her geography and spelling bee prowess.

More significantly, she's the first transgender person to qualify for the show's tournament of champions. In a series of tweets last November, Schneider said she's proud to be a trans woman and wants people to know that aspect of her, adding, "but I'm a lot of other things, too!"

Schneider's "Jeopardy!" achievements have made her both an inspiration and a target for transphobic insults online — which she batted away with the same aplomb she displays on TV. Her deftness earned attention last week from Harvey Fierstein.

"I couldn't be prouder if she were my own daughter," the writer and Broadway star tweeted.

Fun fact: Schneider is proud of a podcast she did on "Downton Abbey" and invites those who are interested to listen to "hundreds of hours of content" about the PBS series.

Schneider, an engineering manager living in Oakland, California, recently talked with AP about her newfound fame, keeping her day job — but dreaming about an entertainment career — and being a voice for the trans community. Remarks have been edited for clarity and length.

AP: Are you having pinch-me moments over how well you've done on 'Jeopardy!'?

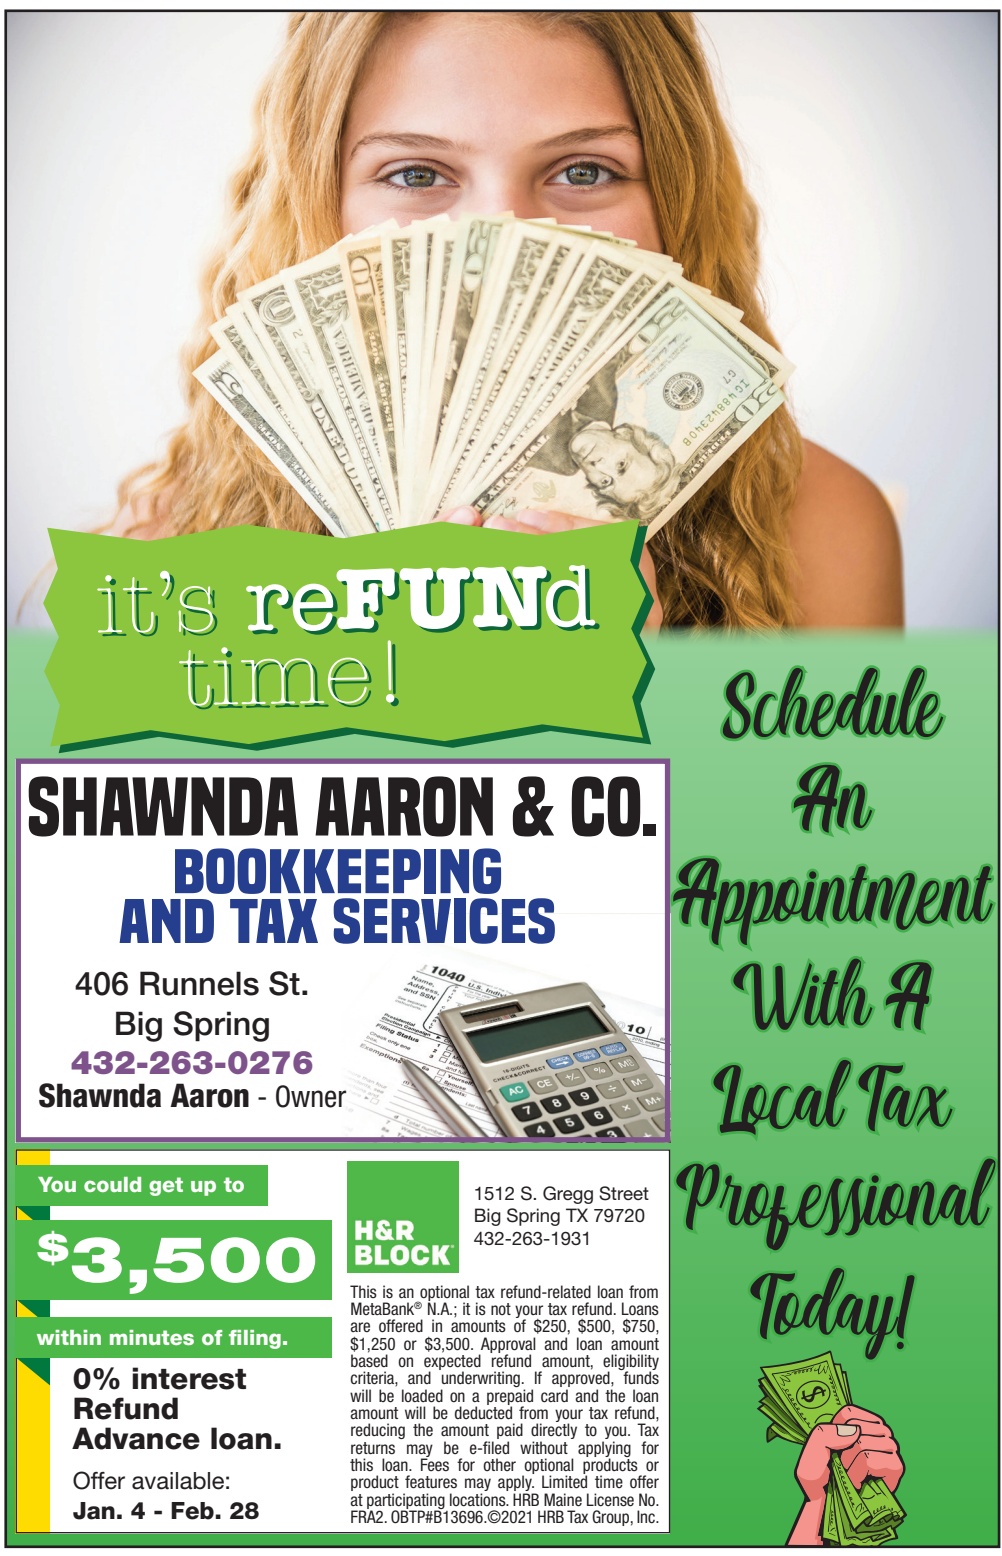

SCHNEIDER: Absolutely. Just seeing myself on TV still is almost a shock, even though I was there when it all happened. I thought I could win some games but I didn't think I would do this well. The other day, my girlfriend mentioned some famous people that had gone to her high school, and I was thinking, "I know there was somebody who went to mine." I looked it up on Wikipedia and there I was, listed under notable alumni. That was a very weird moment to see that.

AP: You've mentioned actor Laverne Cox and comedian Natasha Muse as trans women you find inspiring. Have you heard from viewers who see you as a role model?

SCHNEIDER: I have definitely heard from other trans people who have been sort of thrilled to see me out there. But one of the things that I've enjoyed the most is hearing from parents, and sometimes grandparents, of trans people, an older generation. There's a lot of fear for their loved ones who are trans, and worry that they might be limited in life. To be able to go out there and show that I can be successful in a very mainstream type of way has, I think, made a lot of them feel better about the people in their lives.

Recipe Corner

Comforting chicken soup

As weather chills, that dip in temperature is often accompanied by cold and flu season. Many people are anxious to avoid feeling under the weather this time of year, and to help ward off many illnesses, one may only need to look to the kitchen stove.

Chicken soups and other soup recipes long have been touted as homeopathic remedies for colds. Not only are they hydrating, hot soups can break up congestion in the nose and chest. Plus their vegetable-rich content offers the vitamins and minerals needed to boost one's immune system.

Any soup will do, but "Sylvie's Stars and Moon Soup" is whimsical enough to excite even the pickiest and youngest members of your household. Enjoy this recipe, courtesy of "Soup's On: Soul-Satisfying Recipes from Your Favorite Cookbook Authors and Chefs" (Chronicle Books) by Leslie Jonath and Frankie Frankeny.

Sylvie's Stars and Moon Soup

Serves 2 to 4

2 cans (10.5 oz or 14.5 oz) chicken broth (or homemade if desired)

2 medium carrots, peeled and cut into coins

1/4 cup orecchiette

1/2 cup elbow macaroni

1/2 cup mini pasta stars (pastina)

1 cup frozen shelled edamame

8 green beans, cut into 1/2-inch pieces

1 cup shredded, cooked chicken

Freshly ground black pepper

Pour the broth into a medium saucepan over medium-high heat.

Add the carrots and bring to a boil.

Add the orecchiette and cook for 2 minutes.

Add the macaroni and cook for 3 minutes more.

Add the stars, edamame, and green beans and cook for 4 minutes more.

Add the chicken, cook until it is heated through, then sprinkle with pepper and serve.

Chef's note:
Dana Corwin, from Food & Wine, makes this soup almost every Saturday in the winter with her daughter Sylvie.

Feel free to take liberties with the recipe.

Change the vegetables, add more broth or adjust the seasonings.

The dish is very forgiving and versatile.

Individual needs should inform emergency plans

Storms, natural disasters and other emergency situations are unpredictable. Planning for the unpredictable is no small task, but emergency response professionals and public health agencies emphasize the importance of having a plan in place should disaster strike.

The National Centers for Environmental Information reported there were a record 22 separate billion-dollar weather and climate disasters across the United States in 2020. That shattered the previous annual record and led to $95 billion in damages, marking a bookend to a five-year period between 2016 and 2020 that saw the total cost of a billion-dollar disasters exceed $600 billion. Such figures illustrate that while the disasters themselves may be unpredictable, it's not hard to conclude that they're going to come and they're going to be costly.

When planning for disasters, families are urged to consider the specific needs of each person in their household. Ready.gov, a disaster preparedness public service campaign sponsored by the U.S. government, urges families to keep the following factors in mind as they prepare disaster response plans for their households.

• Ages of members within your household: The ages of individuals within the household merit consideration. Young children or seniors may not be able to navigate the household in emergency situations, and it may take longer for heads of household to get everyone out if some people need assistance. Emergency plans can be altered as children grow older and can take on more responsibility.

• Responsibilities for assisting others: Assign older children and adults specific responsibilities if anyone in the household will require assistance. For example, adolescents can help a live-in grandparent get out of the house.

• Locations frequented: Defining the locations household members frequent can make it easier to find everyone in the case of emergency.

• Dietary needs: Document the unique dietary needs, including food allergies, of each person in the household so no one has an adverse reaction to food during or after evacuating.

• Medical needs: Document each individual's medical needs, including their prescriptions and any equipment they need.

• Disabilities: Include individual's disabilities-related needs or access and functional needs, including devices and equipment.

• Languages spoken: This information can help emergency response personnel communicate with anyone who does not speak the native tongue.

• Cultural and religious considerations: Document individuals' cultural and religious considerations so anyone trying to help them can do so while respecting their beliefs.

• Pets or service animals: Emergency assistance shelters admit only service animals, so anyone traveling with animals will need to provide proof that the animal is recognized as a service animal. Families should plan ahead and arrange for housing for pets in the case they have to evacuate their homes.

No two families are the same, so it's a must that disaster preparedness plans take each individual's needs into consideration.

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	2♦
Pass	3♥	Pass	4♥

Opening lead — five of spades.

The Flannery convention, used mostly in tournaments, was devised for those hands where the opening bidder has specifically five hearts and four spades and usually less than 16 points in high cards — a hand that is difficult to describe in standard bidding methods. Those who play Flannery open such a hand with an artificial bid of two diamonds. Partner then makes whatever response is appropriate for his high-card values and distribution.

This deal occurred some years ago in the Blue Ribbon Pairs. At most tables, North got to four hearts and made four after East led a club to West's ace and ruffed the club return.

But our story concerns itself with the table where South, playing Flannery, got to be declarer at four hearts and West led his singleton spade. South played dummy's eight, which held the trick. Then, unaware of the catastrophe about to befall him, declarer led dummy's queen of diamonds, at which point the roof caved in.

East took the diamond with the ace and returned a low spade, ruffed by West. West then led the ace and another club, ruffed by East. East played another spade, ruffed by South with the nine and overruffed by West with the ten.

The debacle continued when West led another club, ruffed by East, and East then returned a fourth round of spades. Declarer ruffed with the four, overruffed by West with the six, and South's agony was finally over.

It is true that declarer could have made the contract by simply drawing the opposing trumps at the start of play. But instead, he went down four — 400 points — all because of his seemingly innocuous play of the queen of diamonds at trick two!

Tomorrow: Famous Hand.

Fun By The Numbers

Like puzzles? Then you'll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, so sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Holiday Mathis

Lunar Squares

The fresh Aries moon forms three squares: First, to Venus, then the sun and finally, to Pluto. Many believe in their rightness. Those who leave room for the possibility that they are wrong will have an edge. The humble can see opportunities that are invisible to the confident. Openness is necessary to improve. Caution avoids disaster.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). You are a warrior. It doesn't mean you always want to fight the opposition. It means that your actions are imbued with purpose. The purpose today will be to assist in keeping things orderly and peaceful.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). Rare entities are sought after; common ones are overlooked. When everyone wants it but few can have it, the value goes up. To make something more precious, you will limit access to it.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Your relationship with a certain person is moving with the times, a sign that there's real potential here. The better you know and trust each other, the more opportunity there will be to conquer the world as a team.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). There's nothing wrong with mediocrity, yet you're not interested. You'll pick what you're already good at and work as hard as it takes to make yourself remarkable.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). An uncomfortable feeling comes back. In the past, you didn't know how to manage it -- maybe you still don't -- but you're willing to try to take it on anyway.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). On one hand, you hate to waste. On the other hand, in today's case, (SET ITAL)not(END ITAL) wasting will take a great deal of preparation (which can feel to you like waste). It's a matter of choosing your battle.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23). Your improvements will come by way of subtraction. Getting rid of things makes room. It works in love, too, as relationships could use more space. Back off and wait for the wonder that will rush to fill in the blank.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 21). Emotions are among the day's most valuable gifts. Feelings lead you places. Lovely ones send you to beautiful vistas. Raw and painful ones are shortcuts to an improved version of yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21). Occasionally, your mind adopts an unhelpful strategy (for instance, obsessing about a situation that you can't control). Tell your mind to figure out the part of the scenario you can do something about.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19). You won't take pity on a single soul, especially not on yourself, because you wholeheartedly believe in each person's ability to rise to the occasion and do what's necessary.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18). Circumstances are changing quickly. It seems like you just made the plan and it already needs alterations. That you're able to adjust easily is a skill on its own -- one you'll be using often in the weeks to come.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20). You have a gift for putting yourself in the other person's place and really understanding what it's like to be there. You'll sort out a conflict and save the day.

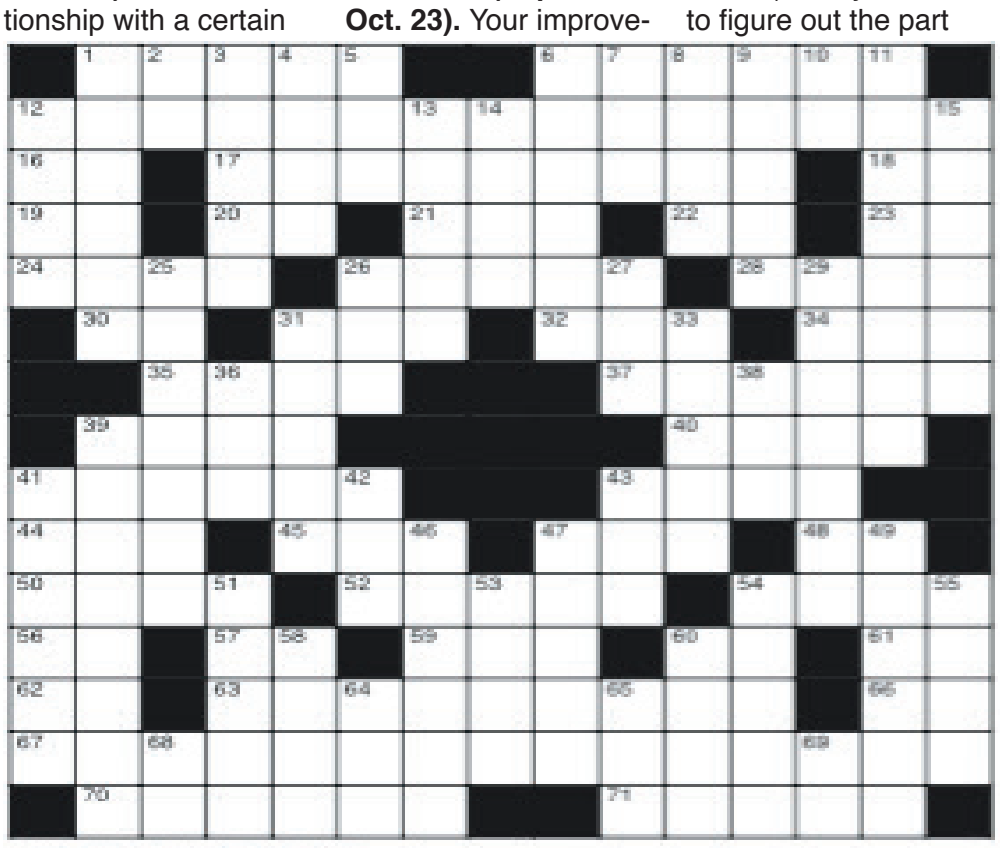

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (Jan. 9). A year sprinkled in wonders! Your optimism and curiosity will attract fascinating people. Friends and teachers will help you nail an achievement. You'll keep building relationships. The old alliances will be a perfect match for new opportunities. A May investment will be part of your legacy. Taurus and Aries adore you. Your lucky numbers are: 10, 3, 33, 18 and 49.

FORECAST FOR THE WEEK AHEAD: Human behavior comes with varying degrees of compulsivity. There are certain things we all do that we immediately regret and later repeat. And though we wish it were otherwise, it's like we can't help ourselves. The young, impulsive Aries moon forms a series of squares at the start of the week. We act and we make mistakes. These mistakes provide some deep truth, pick up a few tricks or, perhaps, if we're lucky, make the one gentle change that sets everything in better balance. It all starts with self-acceptance and a desire to learn.

The first Mercury retrograde of 2022 occurs in Aquarius, the sign of technology, and Capricorn, the sign of power structures. If there were a word for the particular kind of frustration that occurs when computers disappoint, that word would be trending through the weekend and beyond. The lesson in technological breakdowns is crucial as it's essentially a lesson in what it means to be human. To depend too heavily on machines is to be weakened by them. The frustrations of this retrograde will help us find our strength.

CELEBRITY PROFILES: Happy Birthday to Catherine, Duchess of Cambridge (aka Kate Middleton), a Capricorn whose star burns so bright that the entire world seems to be watching her every move. With Mercury and Venus in philanthropic Aquarius, Middleton works for the good of humanity, while Mars, Saturn and Pluto in Libra promise that diplomacy and tact will eternally stand her in good stead.

Son-in-Law Is Humiliating Our Darling Daughter

Dear Annie: Hope you can give us some sage advice! My daughter is married to a man who has many good qualities but is very controlling. He knows everything and always must have things his way as well as the last word. When we are all together, he dominates the conversation when we are eager to hear from his wife who we all miss and love.

My daughter is well aware of her husband's shortcomings, but she loves him and continues to take his verbal abuse and put-downs. Sadly, sometimes he does this in front of us. My other three children are very upset by this behavior toward their sister. To make matters worse, the husband has called me and my other children from time to time to complain about his wife (my daughter/their sister). It is VERY difficult for us to hear these petty complaints.

For example, he recently called me to say that he and his mother have been discussing my daughter's failings. Apparently, she doesn't cook the way he would like. He is a workaholic and comes home at odd hours even though he is his own boss. She can never rely on a time for dinner even though she has often asked him to let her know when he will be home. She does not prepare elaborate meals, rather she prepares a meal that she can reheat when he finally returns.

He also complained to me that my daughter will ask him which of two or three dresses he would like her to wear to an event they will attend together. She simply wants to please him. But he thinks she is wasting his valuable time and should make the decision herself without bothering him.

Recently, he called my eldest daughter to complain about his wife (her sister) and said, "If I divorce her one day, my life will be so much better." This has upset all of us. My children think that they should tell their sister what her husband is saying about her behind her back. And I hesitate as I think that this will break my daughter's heart to hear the nasty things her husband says about her to us.

You should know that we have all encouraged marital counseling. And they tried it, but apparently it has not worked because we continue to get these troubling calls from the husband.

The question for you is: Should we tell my daughter what her husband is saying about her to us? Or should we remain silent? Thanks for any help and suggestions. -- Very Sad Mother of a Very Sweet and Special Daughter

Dear Very Sad Mother: Although your son-in-law became part of the family when he married your daughter, your allegiance should be to her first. Even if it's heartbreaking to hear, she deserves to know her efforts and time put toward being a wonderful wife are being wasted on a man who doesn't respect or appreciate her in the slightest, in public or in private.

In the end, I'm sure it will mean the world to your daughter to know that you and the rest of your family have her back because her husband clearly doesn't. He should be careful what he wishes for; "one day" might come sooner than he realizes.

John Cena is 'Peacemaker' again in HBO Max series

After being part of the Suicide Squad, Peacemaker is ready to go off on his own.

Following the 2021 movie about the team of convicts turned crime-fighters, John Cena works again with writer-director James Gunn by reprising the DC Comics character – who intends to instill peace, even if that takes committing mayhem – as the new series "Peacemaker" begins streaming Thursday, Jan. 13, on HBO Max. A black ops soldier, Christopher Smith (Cena) uses everything at his disposal to try to shape the world the way he'd like it, whatever price anyone else must pay in the process.

"I was not planning to do it at all," maintains "Guardians of the Galaxy" filmmaker Gunn of revisiting "Peacemaker" in series form, but he thought differently after he was approached by DC executives. "They were like, 'Hey, if you could do a TV show on any one of the characters from "The Suicide Squad," who would you do?'

"I just found something really interesting about Peacemaker, because I loved working with John Cena and I thought that he had a lot of acting gifts and comedy gifts that we weren't able to fully utilize in the movie. And also because I thought he was just a really cool, interesting character that could be pertinent to today's world, in terms of his sort of backwards way of looking at things. A lot of the show is about his friendships with these other characters, even though they represent very different parts of America today."

Robert Patrick ("Scorpion") is cast as Peacemaker/Christopher's disapproving father Auggie, with the "Harry Potter" movies' Freddie Stroma as Adrian Chase, a district attorney who moonlights as crime-battler Vigilante. Danielle Brooks ("Robin Roberts Presents: Mahalia"), Steve Agee and Jennifer Holland also are series regulars.

The notably glib Cena built a successful acting career out of his fame as a WWE superstar, and while he deems "Peacemaker" a sensible career step, he also feels it fits his overall approach. "Living life with a sense of curiosity and a sense of challenge to want to see more, learn more, do more, I think that's a great way to go about using the gift that we're given," Cena reasons. "That's only my perspective, but I don't think that should be just applied towards a career. I think that's a great way to look at life."

As for what he believes will sustain the character throughout a series, Gunn reflects, "Peacemaker has a lot to learn, and it wouldn't take just one season of TV for him to learn that. But it is that ability to learn that he does have, I believe, that for me makes him a little bit more likable."

It's 'The Righteous Gemstones' up close and personal in Season 2 of HBO comedy

"The Righteous Gemstones" opens its second season Sunday on HBO.

The Season 1 finale of HBO's "The Righteous Gemstones" saw Jesse Gemstone arriving in Haiti to assist son Gideon on a humanitarian mission. So in the second season, might we be seeing a more grown-up version for the televangelist family's notoriously immature eldest son?

"I think that's a fair assessment of where Jesse was at," says the actor who plays him, Danny McBride. "But like all of us, growth takes time and even if you're in Haiti to do a noble mission you still might need more work on yourself when you return home."

The new season of the McBride-created, -produced and -written comedy arrives Sunday, Jan. 9, and finds the Gemstone clan continuing to put the grift on their megachurch's flock as outsiders from the past and present set their sights on bringing down this shady empire.

The Season 2 storylines will also delve into the psyches of several of characters, among them family patriarch Eli, played by John Goodman.

"Part of the big concept this season is about where Eli comes from and about how far he's willing to go," McBride explains. "And that's sort of some new territory that we're getting into this season that we weren't privy to last season. It's just kind of unwrapping these layers of the Gemstone family and sort of showing who these people are for real and where they come from and how they got here."

Also getting a substantial arc this season is Amber (Cassidy Freeman), Jesse's loyal and doting wife. She gave him the boot in Season 1 after he showed her the blackmail video, and now she's flying solo and feeling empowered.

"Amber gets to kind of choose how she wants to go forward in her marriage this season ...," Freeman explains. "And she also gets to choose how she wants to be with her family. You know, there was betrayal and regaining that trust and creating those bonds to come back together stronger than before ... . So I think her journey this season is figuring out how to really stand by her family and create those alliances and become a team again."

Other returning characters include Adam Devine as self-esteem-challenged youngest son Kelvin, Edi Patterson as underestimated middle child Judy, Skyler Gisondo as Gideon, Jesse and Amber's estranged son, and Walton Goggins as Eli's brother-in-law Baby Billy Freeman, who himself seemed to be in line for growth following a near-death experience in Season 1.

PBS' 'All Creatures Great and Small' remake starts Season 2 on 'Masterpiece'

Callum Woodhouse (left) and Nicholas Ralph star as Season 2 of "All Creatures Great and Small on Masterpiece" begins Sunday on PBS

As it did the first time, television's take on "All Creatures Great and Small" has quite a bit of story left to tell.

Thus, PBS' remake of author James Herriot's autobiographical saga starts its second "Masterpiece" season Sunday, Jan. 9 (check local listings). The new episodes continue the mid-1930s saga of young veterinarian Herriot, played by Nicholas Ralph, as a job offer weighs heavily on him when he returns to work in England's Yorkshire Dales after his holiday back home in Glasgow. That could lead to big decisions in turn for his boss, Siegfried Farnon (Samuel West), and his love interest Helen Alderson (Rachel Shenton) – who called off her engagement to the wealthy Hugh Hulton (Matthew Lewis) over her deepening feelings for Herriot. Callum Woodhouse and Anna Madeley also star.

"It was always planned to be a returning series," executive producer Colin Callender explains, "although I don't think any of us expected to be received so very warmly in the U.K. and the U.S. in the way we were. The timing of it coming out in the middle of COVID helped, I think (in terms of the drama's gentle approach, and viewers being at home to watch). The cast had to work through the whole COVID protocols and all that; it was not without its challenges, but they did an extraordinary job."

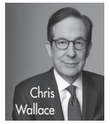

The first season of "All Creatures Great and Small" marked stage actor Ralph's first film work, and while he recalls having a case of "healthy nerves" when filming began, he notes that he "really did feel at home on that first day. I was lucky as well because the first day was with Sam (West), and he didn't really leave my side and was there to answer any question. And we had a lot of fun with the scenes. They were very hard, but it was a great introduction, and you just kicked on from there."

From Fox News to CNN: Why Chris Wallace made his move

Chris Wallace

Q: Why did Chris Wallace leave Fox News Channel after so long? – Kathy Miles, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: If one takes what he had to say about it at face value, the veteran newsman (and son of fellow television-news veteran Mike Wallace) was presented with a new challenge elsewhere and decided to accept it. He'll be joining CNN+ when that streaming-service corollary of the cable network launches later in 2022, and he'll reportedly do a weekday program that will let him address subjects beyond politics.

It also must be noted, though, that Wallace spent a lot of time delineating for critics between what he does and what Fox News Channel's weeknight opinion-show hosts do. It's possible that he might have decided the time to keep doing that was over, and Wallace's new program is being designed around his hard-news approach. At least for now, "Fox News Sunday" is being handled by a rotating set of anchors in the immediate aftermath of Wallace's departure from that news operation.

Sunny Hostin

Q: I often hear Sunny Hostin reference her legal background on "The View." Exactly what sort of an attorney is she? – Susan Levy, Clovis, Calif.

A: With a Doctor of Law degree from Notre Dame Law School, she first went to work as a law clerk for a retired chief judge of the Maryland Court of Appeals, then joined the Antitrust Division of the U.S. Department of Justice as a trial attorney. Following that, Hostin became a federal prosecutor specializing in child sex crimes ... and while she's typically passionate (along with the show's other hosts) about the subjects she addresses on the weekday ABC program, that's likely why that subject elicits such particularly strong responses from her.

Hostin also has delved into other areas of the law professionally, as with her time at risk-consultant firm Kroll, where she served as a managing director of business intelligence and investigations. In that role, she oversaw investigators who looked into cases of fraud around the globe.

Ginger Zee

OF 'GOOD MORNING AMERICA' AND 'HEARTS OF HEROES' ON ABC

Your second memoir – "A Little Closer to Home: How I Found the Calm After the Storm" – is being published Tuesday, Jan. 11. How did you decide on your approach to writing about aspects of your life that might surprise your "Good Morning America" audience, such as an early pregnancy, an abusive relationship and a suicide attempt?

I had to consistently think, "How does this become a story that helps someone? How does this go beyond being about just myself?" The beauty of doing "Natural Disaster: I Cover Them. I Am One." (Zee's first book) was that I got to learn so fast, and I'm hoping that with this book, I've been able to add more tools and more helpful hints about the healing process. You need the reality and you need the trauma to get to the point of giving people advice.

How did you come to the decision to do a second memoir?

The publisher asked me if I would write a follow-up, and the first intention was to do it for a younger audience. I started doing test groups, meeting with high-schoolers, and I was really impressed with where we're at with mental health at a younger age because of the people I met. But I started thinking, "I don't know if that's the right book to write. I feel like there might be more for adults before getting to something like that. And I don't even know if I'm even the right person to write that book."

Then, there came the morning when we were replaying Christine Blasey Ford's testimony (about alleged sexual misconduct against her) on "GMA" ... and in that moment, it hit me that not only did I have more stories to tell, but it probably was the most important part that had not yet been told. I'm so ready for it now.

Still, what's your feeling about the general public knowing so much about your personal history now?

There are moments of trepidation. I'd be lying if I said I didn't have those, particularly because this book is heavier – but at the same time, I think it's going to explain a lot more. And I know, in my heart, that it's going to help a lot more. And those moments of trepidation quickly go away.

Guarnaschelli challenges culinary masters in 'Alex vs. America'

Alex Guarnaschelli's reputation as a fierce competitor on shows such as "Iron Chef America," "Food Network Challenge" and "Beat Bobby Flay" is legendary. But now she's willing to put herself at a competitive disadvantage in a new show airing on Food Network.

In "Alex vs. America," airing Sundays, the chef and cookbook author invites in culinary masters from across the country to compete in their given specialty, be it chocolate, shellfish or sugar.

The catch here is that these areas may or may not be Guarnaschelli's strong suit, thus forcing her to up her game and perhaps stretch her culinary boundaries. The final products undergo a blind tasting and a winner is declared. Eric Adjepong ("Top Chef") is the host.

"It makes me feel like what would normally come into my head to do is not going to cut it here ...," Guarnaschelli explains. "I have a lot of pride when it comes to competing. And does that always means that the pride only comes when you win? No. I think the pride comes, too, when you make a good dish and you're proud of it even if it's not the best dish.

"And then there's the other side of it," she continues, "which is you don't always win. Did you learn? Did you grow? Did you interface with people that you wouldn't have and did you see interpretations of these ingredients or techniques that you didn't know? Absolutely. So the question is, somehow how can you be the master of your universe and a student of it at the same time? And I think viewers might feel a little bit of the same, I'm hoping."

And learning is what it is all about for Guarnaschelli. An executive chef at New York's Butter restaurant with more than 30 years of experience, Guarnaschelli is always ready to add another weapon to her culinary arsenal. And competing against people who are considered to be masters at what they do is a great way to learn – and be humbled.

"Cooking has a way of always cutting you down to size," she says. "There's always another piece of humble pie available for consumption. I like the learning. I like winning. I don't mind that I don't always win. And I love the learning of it. And I love the energy. I didn't know so many people wanted to come and try and beat me."

"Monarch" (Fox — series premiere, Jan. 30)

This new multi-generational drama is set in the country music world, where the undisputed first family is led by Dottie and Albie Roman (Susan Sarandon, Trace Adkins), matriarch and patriarch of this dynasty. If their public image is synonymous with honesty and forthrightness, however, the private truth is very different indeed. Beth Ditto, Anna Friel, Inigo Dominic Pascual and Joshua Sasse star; Eva Amurri, Sarandon's real-life daughter, and Tony Award winner Faith Prince appear in recurring roles.

With a diverse resume ranging from the TV series "Once Upon a Time" and "Big Love" to the feature films "Mona Lisa Smile" and "Walk the Line," Ginnifer Goodwin had yet to tackle situation comedy.

So when the opportunity to play ignored housewife Jodie, who reassesses her life following her best friend's death in the Fox comedy "Pivoting," which premieres Sunday, Jan. 9, she was all in.

But the happily married actress admits that getting into her character's headspace was a challenge.

"I feel like she's sort of in such a messy place that I couldn't define her while I was like working with her, and that's not something I'm used to ...," Goodwin says. "(Co-star) Maggie Q and I were discussing this ... (and I said) to her, 'I don't know who this woman is. I don't know what I'm doing.' And Maggie said she didn't know either, and we decided that that just must be where the characters were in their lives. We have no idea what we're doing."

In the series, Goodwin, Q ("Nikita") and Eliza Coupe ("Happy Endings") play girlfriends who decide to change course in their lives, or pivot, when their close friend Coleen dies. It's based on a true story, that of executive producer/showrunner Liz Astrof, who lost a friend to lung cancer in middle age.

For Goodwin's Jodie, that means stepping out of her life as the altruistic, put-upon mom and wife and putting herself first, making a few ill-advised, irresponsible and even self-destructive decisions along the way.

"In her pivoting towards self-care, she actually goes too far and of course starts blowing up her life," Goodwin says with a laugh. "So it's very fun because she's very flawed and I really prefer a flawed character."

best of... BEST RICHARD LESTER MOVIES

BY JAY BOBBIN

"A Hard Day's Night" (1964) One of the most significant music-driven movies in screen history follows The Beatles as they get ready to make an appearance on British television. Under Lester's direction, it's a heightened view of the "Fab Four," with Paul McCartney trying to keep tabs on his mischievous and "very clean" grandfather (Wilfrid Brambell) as the lads prepare for their home-screen performance.

"Help!" (1965) Lester reunited with The Beatles – getting a bigger budget and color film – for this spy spoof that ultimately takes the group to the Bahamas, as villains chase them to gain possession of Ringo Starr's special ring.

"A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" (1966) With a Stephen Sondheim score, Lester's screen version of the stage hit spoofing the Roman Empire is headed by such comedy greats as Zero Mostel, Phil Silvers and Buster Keaton.

"The Three Musketeers" (1973) Lester's hugely entertaining version of the adventure classic boasts an all-star cast including Michael York (as D'Artagnan), Oliver Reed, Richard Chamberlain, Charlton Heston, Raquel Welch, Faye Dunaway and Christopher Lee. A "Four Musketeers" sequel was made back-to-back with this film.

"Superman II" (1980) Though a Richard Donner-overseen "Director's Cut" eventually was released, this version that brought in Lester to succeed him was the theatrical release, with the Man of Steel (Christopher Reeve) and super-villains including General Zod (Terence Stamp) using Earth as a battleground.

movie review

BY JAY BOBBIN

'Point Break' still furnishes land, air and sea excitement

Some movies remain so original and fresh, they don't need updates ... and even though it got one anyway, "Point Break" is among those films.

It's hard to believe the 1991 adventure-drama (which AMC shows Sunday, Jan. 9) is now more than 30 years old, since director Kathryn Bigelow ("The Hurt Locker") invested it with as much energy as – and arguably more than – many present-day releases. Keanu Reeves went a long way toward establishing his action cred as Johnny Utah, a college athlete whose fame isn't necessarily an asset in his new career as a Los Angeles-based FBI agent.

It doesn't impress his boss (John C. McGinley) nor, at least initially, his veteran partner (Gary Busey) ... until he gets a hunch about an elusive bank-robbery gang whose masks give the criminals the nickname The Ex-Presidents. Utah suspects the crooks are surfers, so he decides to immerse himself in that culture, seeking training in riding the waves from a reluctant and rebellious young woman (Lori Petty).

Through her, Utah eventually connects with her self-assured and somewhat mystical ex-boyfriend Bodhi (Patrick Swayze), whom Utah sees as a valuable source even if Bodhi himself should turn out not to be involved in the robberies. It's not a leap to say that Utah is seduced by Bodhi and his followers, with one especially striking sequence taking the agent along with them in his sudden introduction to skydiving.

In fact, the cinematography (by Donald Peterman) and the editing (by Howard Smith) are two of the strongest suits of "Point Break" from start to finish. A year earlier, Bigelow directed the Jamie Lee Curtis police drama "Blue Steel" and showed the same knack for using those aspects to advance the story ... but here, she impressively employs a much bigger canvas, including the entire sky at a couple of key points.

"Point Break"

Reeves does a fine job of establishing the impulsive-hero image that also would serve him well several years later in "Speed," while Swayze is downright magical in one of his best roles, one that it's hard to imagine another actor matching (as was confirmed by this effort's 2015 reboot). Credit also goes to Petty – commendably believable as she shows her resistant-at-first Tyler warming up to Utah as he tries to master the techniques that will be necessary for him to catch the bad guys – and to Busey, hugely likable as the world-weary sidekick grudgingly aiding Utah.

The original "Point Break" remains a terrific example of its genre, and much of its ongoing appeal is that you can sample its frequent and amazing stunts from the safe comfort of your chair.

LIEV SCHREIBER

Isaac Liev Schreiber was born in San Francisco on Oct. 4, 1967. His childhood was marked by his mother abducting him and taking him to a upstate-New York commune, followed by his father abducting him back ... with the mother eventually getting custody after a protracted legal battle.

While living with his mom in frequently impoverished conditions in Manhattan, Schreiber enrolled in the Joffrey Ballet School. His mother's influence over him extended to not letting him watch color movies, making such performers as Charlie Chaplin among his favorites. Schreiber pursued his formal professional training at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, then went on to the Yale School of Drama – from which he received a master's degree – and London's Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Following early roles in independent films such as "Walking and Talking" and "Big Night," Schreiber began to make a name for himself in the "Scream" franchise, then gained more notice for pictures including "Ransom" and "The Hurricane" and the cable movie "RKO 281" (in which he played a "Citizen Kane"-directing Orson Welles). "The Sum of All Fears," "Kate & Leopold" and a remake of "The Omen" were among other career-building projects for Schreiber.

On stage, Schreiber has starred in the Shakespearean works "Hamlet," "Henry V" and "Macbeth," and he won a Tony Award for a Broadway revival of "Glengarry Glen Ross." He also has done much narration and voiceover work, often heard on such PBS programs as "American Experience," "Nova" and "Secrets of the Dead."

After doing television duty on "CSI: Crime Scene Investigation," Schreiber spent seven seasons in the title role of "Ray Donovan," the Showtime series about a fixer trying to handle his family's complications while also tending to clients' needs. The cable network premieres the sequel film "Ray Donovan: The Movie" Friday, Jan. 14, with the main character's current experiences juxtaposed with the past of his father Mickey (fellow returnee Jon Voight); Schreiber also is an executive producer of the movie.

Schreiber has two sons from his decade-plus relationship with actress Naomi Watts, his co-star in the movie "The Painted Veil."

A couple takes care of business and family on HGTV's 'Married to Real Estate'

Egypt Sherrod and Mike Jackson

As its title might suggest, "Married to Real Estate" isn't strictly about the buying and selling of homes.

No, the hourlong series that premieres Thursday, Jan. 13, on HGTV (and is available to stream on discovery+) follows real estate broker and designer Egypt Sherrod ("Property Virgins") and her builder husband Mike Jackson as they find clients their ideal home in their dream neighborhood and then help them tweak it to suit their needs.

But in Atlanta's red hot market as in most of the country, houses sell quickly, bidding wars are common and buyers can become discouraged. So the couple urge their clients to be more flexible in terms what they'll accept and then make bigger

"You have many families now who are combining living spaces," Sherrod explains. "So ... it's bringing Mom in or an elderly parent so you can take care of them now and so you have to find a house that has a space for Mom or for Dad to live as well. Or families who are bringing the kids in because job situations have changed a lot and sometimes folks need a fresh start and so they're combining living spaces and they need houses where they can add additional square footage. ... But wherever you can increase livable square footage is always going to be a win."

In addition to the trials and travails of an active real estate market and running a successful business, Sherrod and Jackson in the show also deal with having an active family with three children ages 20, 9 and 2.

"This one is more about the holistic experience

Herbert airing it out for Chargers

Justin Herbert's elite arm strength was already well-known around the NFL. But a recent play involving the Los Angeles Chargers' second-year quarterback served only to burnish what is becoming a legendary reputation.

It was third and 11 with time running down in the second quarter of the Bolts' Week 14 game against the New York Giants when Herbert dropped back, rolled right and launched a bullet 65 yards on a fly that wide receiver Jalen Guyton caught in stride in for what would be a 59-yard touchdown pass and a 24-7 lead. Fans and announcers at SoFi Stadium went berserk and the video of the play soon went viral.

As much MVP talk swirls around Tom Brady, Aaron Rodgers and Kyler Murray, it might be wise not to sleep on Herbert. As of mid-December, the 2020 Offensive Rookie of the Year was fourth in the league in passing yards with 3,822 (behind Brady, Derek Carr and Matthew Stafford) and third in passing touchdowns with 30 (behind Brady and Stafford).

Furthermore, after two losing seasons the Chargers have a legitimate shot at the postseason and the stellar play of their 23-year-old signal caller is a big reason why. If he and the Bolts can stay hot and reach the playoffs, Herbert and his cannon right arm may wind up with another addition to his trophy case.

Herbert and the Chargers can be seen in action Sunday, Jan. 9, when they drop in on the Las Vegas Raiders in the regular season finale airing as a regional game on CBS.
