Reagan Plan Heading For First Showdown

WASHINGTON (AP)— The Reagan administration's economic program is heading for its first showdown in the full House with outnumbered Republicans optimistic they can deliver a crucial victory for the president. The Democrats' top vote counter figures they could either win by six or lose by 60.

Less than 40 hours after President Reagan personally appealed to a joint session of Congress to act quickly on his package of spending and tax cuts, the House was beginning debate today on whether to endorse a budget resolution backed by the president or a still-developing alternate plan being pushed by the Democratic leadership.

The House is the big hurdle for Reagan. His program is virtually assured of passing the Senate, where Republicans hold a majority.

Rep. Delbert L. Latta of Ohio, the ranking Republican on the House Budget Committee, said Reagan will "absolutely" prevail when the votes are counted in the House.

House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., predicted Wednesday: "We'll either win this thing by five or six votes or lose it by 60, because if you start to lose it, the swing will come."

Meanwhile, one congressman said as many as 35 of a group of 47 conservative Democrats probably will support the president's proposal over an alternative budget plan still being pieced together by the Democratic leadership.

Rep. Charles Stenholm, D-Texas, predicted that six to 10 Democrats who are not members of the Conservative Democratic Forum also will go along with Reagan.

If those shifts occur and Republicans sustain only two or three defections, as GOP leaders claim, it would assure Reagan of victory when a final vote in the House occurs next week, probably Tuesday. Democrats hold a 52-vote majority in the House and a net switch of 27 Democrats would enable the president to prevail if all the Republicans vote together.

However, Republican Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi remained cautious, saying, "We've still got a few ways to go."

SEMIFINALISTS—Snyder High Students Brad Robertson and Valeta Wheeler, standing, were chosen as semifinalists in the National Merit Scholarship Program. SHS Has Two Semifinalists

Two Snyder High School students are among the 15,000 students from the state of Texas who have qualified as Merit Program semifinalists because of their high 1980 PSAT-NMSQT scores of 178 or above.More than one million students took the tests.

Valeta Wheeler and Brad Robertson will now have the opportunity to continue in the competition for Merit Scholarships which will be awarded in the spring of 1982.

Semifinalists in the program represent the top half of one percent of the state's graduating seniors.

As an extra benefit, semifinalists are offered a special service in which the students name two colleges of their choice and they are in turn identified to the colleges by name.

Thursday update

State Revenue Figure Delayed

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Comptroller Bob Bullock said today uncertain economic conditions in Washington and elsewhere might delay any new estimates on state revenue until after the Legislature adjourns June 1.

Under the state's pay-as-you-go policy, legislators are prohibited from spending more than the comptroller certifies will be forthcoming from state taxes.

"I would like to have the revised forecast done by the time the House and Senate iron out their differences in the budget, but I make no promises," Bullock said. "But I can promise Texans one thing — the state will not go into the red."

Panel To OK Crop Support

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee, like a House subcommittee before, is headed toward approving major crop price-support loan programs opposed by the Reagan administration.

"We're marching up a hill we're going to have to march back down before we report a bill," Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the chairman, said as the general framework for price supports was being set.

Texas Air Request Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Civil Aeronautics Board today rejected a request by Texas Air Corp. that would have allowed the company to move next week to gain control of Continental Airlines.

The decision gave new life to attempts by Continental to fight off the takeover and to efforts by 2,000 Continental employees to purchase stock in the airline.

Severed Thumb Is Re-Attached

Surgery to re-attach a thumb lost by a Snyder man in a rig accident apparently has been successful in Lubbock General Hospital.

The surgery was performed Tuesday night after Wesley Rawls, 39, chief operator with N. L. Well Services, lost the thumb of his right hand when an oil saver manual dropped.

Rawls was working on a rig on the Leroy Spires Ranch about 20 miles north of Snyder on the Clairemont Road. He has been with the company about six years.

Roland Bowden, field supervisor for the same company, was on location when the incident occurred. He said he applied a tourniquet and rushed Rawls to the hospital.

Rawls was then transferred to the Lubbock General Hospital by Scurry County EMS for emergency surgery.

Although specialists said the hand looks great, they will not know for another two or three days whether Rawls will regain full function of his thumb.

Q.-Is it illegal to pop wheelies with a bike that has butterfly handlebars?

A.-Although there is no state law against it, Sgt. Jerry Parker with the Snyder Police Department says, "I do not feel like it would be a safe practice on the streets." He also advises that those on bicycles are subject to the same laws and regulations applicable to motor vehicle drivers. This includes racing and exhibition of acceleration which is prohibited.

Legislators Agree To Up Legal Drinking Age

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — After weeks of wrangling over alternative proposals, the Texas Legislature has agreed on a compromise measure raising the state's legal drinking age from 18 to 19 effective Sept. 1.

Gov. Bill Clements was expected to sign the legislation as soon as it reached his desk.

The measure approved Wednesday was the third compromise on the drinking age bill to be offered in a debate over excessive drinking on public school grounds.

A Senate proposal that would also have have raised the drinking age to 19 became embroiled in controversy when an amendment was added by the House requiring grocers, bartenders and liquor store clerks to verify a youth's age before selling him or her liquor. The amendment would have held liquor operators responsible for all sales of alcohol to minors.

A House-Senate committee voted 8-1 Wednesday to drop the amendment and defeated an effort by Rep. Don Lee, D-Harlingen, to raise the legal drinking age to 21.

"If we do that (raise the drinking age to 21), we would have to raise the marrying age to 21 also," said Rep. Ronald Coleman, D-El Paso.

The conference committee's report was approved by the Senate on a voice vote without dissent. The House approved the measure 119-26 and sent it to the governor.

Rep. Dan Kubiak, D-Rockdale, said he has introduced a separate bill to strengthen laws against selling alcohol to minors.

A colleague, Rep. Ron Wilson, D-Houston, said the committee report "takes the teeth out of the bill we sent over. What you have now is a Trojan horse with no Trojans . . . The Senate didn't want to bite the bullet."

Mad Bostonians Block Roadways

BOSTON (AP) — As the mayor warned that financial woes are changing this city "from Camelot to Cleveland," the state Supreme Court was hearing arguments today on whether Boston's penniless school system would stay open for the rest of the academic year.

Meanwhile, citizens angry over the city's recent layoffs of police officers and firefighters blocked some roads into the city for the second straight day today.

About two dozen people paraded in front of the East Boston entrance to Sumner Tunnel under Boston Harbor, one of the major rotes into the city from the north.

In the suburb of Brookline, parents and schoolchildren blocked Route 9 to protest the layoffs of school crossing guards.

The schools exhausted their $210 million budget Tuesday.

The full bench of the Supreme Court scheduled a hearing today to decide whether a lower court acted properly when it ordered the city to keep the schools open even though they are broke.

Mayor Kevin H. White met Wednesday with two City Council members to try to break a deadlock blocking agreement on a school bailout plan.

He and the full council were to meet late today in an effort to conclude a compromise that would provide money to keep schools open for the rest of the year, cover tax abatement payments the city must make and reopen some recently closed police and fire stations.

But the issue of rehiring 400 laid-off police officers and firefighters still was unresolved.

Chambers In 3 Cities To Plan Drive

Plans for a membership contest involving chambers of commerce in at least three area cities, including Snyder, were to be discussed this afternoon at a meeting in Big Spring.

The possibility of a membership drive being conducted simultaneously in Snyder, Big Spring and Lamesa was discussed earlier by telephone, and today's meeting was scheduled to firm up the plans.

The representatives of the three cities who made the tentative plans also planned to invite Sweetwater to participate, but it was not known this morning whether chamber officials there had accepted.

Bill Warner, manager, and Brenda Hedges, president-elect and membership chairman, were representing Snyder at the meeting in Big Spring.

50 Owners Seek To Sue Cadillac

DETROIT (AP) — Cadillac said it is standing by its V8-6-4 engines despite reports that more than 50 owners are seeking to join a suit that claims the engines are "inherently dangerous."

In a statement Wednesday, Cadillac said the engine "was approved for use in 1981 Cadillac passenger cars only after extensive testing. Cadillac stands behind its products and ... intends to defend the litigation vigorously in court."

Adrian Karp, a lawyer from Morris Plains, N.J., who filed the suit, said the engine tends to stall "at any speed," making cars equipped with the engines susceptible to rear-end collisions.

General Motors introduced the engine in its 1981 Cadillac models, promoting it as a fuel-saving innovation. It was designed with a small computer to cut gas consumption by reducing the number of cylinders operating, depending on driving demands.

Karp said he filed a state court action in New Jersey in February after trading in a 1981 Cadillac Seville with a V8-6-4 engine.

Jury Assesses 12-Year Term

It took a jury 30 minutes to find Bernard Dale Garrett guilty in 132nd District Court of charges that he stole a set of hydraulic tubing tongs owned by Pool Well Servicing. The tongs were valued at more than $10,000.

The jury also set the penalty at 12 years in the State Department of Corrections. Sentencing will be carried out May 11.

A jury is hearing evidence today in the trial of Johnny Hermosillo who is charged with failure to stop and render aid in an incident that occured Feb. 27.

Judge Wayland G. Holt was hearing both cases.

Lyle Alexander, who began work on an airplane before moving from Snyder, completed the construction project recently, and his hand-made craft made a successful flight that attracted the Austin American-Statesman.

Lyle and his wife, Evelyn, now live at Round Rock, and the Austin paper sent a reporter out to watch the first flight of the little cream and red biplane.

The name of the craft is Terry Anne. The Austin reporter didn't know it, but many Snyderites will recognize that this is a combination of the names of the Alexanders' daughters, Terry and Anne.

Lyle built the plane, designed after a Marquart MA-5, mostly by himself, but the Austin writer noted that his wife, Evelyn, and a son-in-law, Ralph Russell, gave him a hand.

Lyle, a bomber pilot during world War II, said the plane-building project was a life-long ambition.

The project required six years and some 3,000 man hours of work, he estimated.

K. O. Pitner says he is more tolerant now of one thing that some drivers do that used to irritate him considerably. He used to have little patience with a driver who flashed his turn signal for turning one direction and then did the opposite.

But a few months ago, Pitner bought a new car, and for several weeks he noticed that on some occasions, other drivers were giving him signals, some even shaking their fists at him.

"It was about three months before I found out the turn signals on that car were cross-eyed," Pitner said. Some how, it got out of the factory and all the way to the consumer with the left turn signal blinking when the right one had been turned on, and vice versa. The indicator on the dashboard wasn't any help at all. It showed that the system was working properly.

CRMWD Bill Has Easy House Trip

AUSTON—A bill enabling the Colorado River Municipal Water District to cooperate with area public agencies and private industry to provide anti-pollution facilities sailed through the second reading in the House this week.

Rep. Jay Gibson, Odessa, shepherded the measure through the House on a voice vote withou opposition. The bill (HB 1801) is expected to gain final passage and in that event, Sen. W. L. Short of Tahoka is due to seek to substitute the House bill for his SB 618 and ask for final adoption by the Senate.

As matters now stand, cities, counties and industries in the West Texas area served by CRMWD do not have an agency to which they can turn to help in planning, building or financing anti-pollution works mandated by state and federal law. Under HB 1801, tax exempt revenue bonds could be issued for these purposes.

Another section of the bill amends the CRMWD act to redefine the primary district boundaries to conform with the corporate limits of the member cities---Snyder, Big Spring and Odessa---as of Jan. 1, 1981, instead of the original March 1, 1949. This also would enable the district to annex territories annexed subsequently by the member cities.

Rep. Gibson said he regarded HB 1801 as being vital to the growth and development of West Texas. Co-sponsors with him were Reps. Larry Don Shaw of Big Spring, Walter Grubbs of Abilene, Dick Burnett of San Angelo, Jerry Cockerman of Monahans, and Mary Polk of El Paso. Sen. Ray Farabee has been closely allied with Sen. Short in the companion effort in the Senate.

a place to stop

Congress was recently asked to raise the "temporary" ceiling on the national debt to an astounding $985 billion. Otherwise, we are told, the government would be in default, a supposedly unthinkable proposition.

Rep. Ron Paul (R-Tex.) has pointed out that the government is already defaulting on part of the debt, every year, through inflation.

Paul points out that it is a deliberate policy that benefits government and a few special interests, while harming everybody else. Those other people harmed include people on fixed incomes and pension funds and those who hold government bonds. Inflation is like stealing money directly from these people.

From that observation Congressman Paul goes on to suggest the unthinkable that it might not be such a bad idea for the government to be officially in default. It might just be the most honest position the government has held in decades. "We are in an economic emergency, and even if it required certain subsidies to the wealthy — but not Social Security checks — to be held up for a week or so while the budget is cut, it would be worth it," he suggests.

We're not sure if the idea is feasible, or if we endorse it, but it's certainly worth thinking about. Mightn't there be some way to pass emergency legislation that would keep a few things like Social Security rolling, while Congress applied some of its vaunted skill at legislative logrolling to make genuine budget cuts?

The alternative that even the Reagan administration seems to endorse is to keep raising the supposedly temporary debt ceiling, hoping against hope that sometime in the near future the government's appetite for ever greater debt will diminish and abate.

Alcoholics and drug addicts generally find that a gradual easing off from their habit just doesn't work. The only way to quit is to quit, cold turkey. That just may be the only solution to a government that seems addicted to ever-increasing levels of deficit spending and inflation.

Cosmetics have been a serious problem for a long time. In the 1930's, there was a lash dye being sold which ended up blinding several women. After the product was finally recalled, the people who had already bought it were never told about the problems. No serious attempt was made to warn consumers.

Many times, the FDA has discovered a cosmetic to be dangerous and have seized shipments. But the discovery is never made before the product has been on store shelves for some time. And the FDA had to have already received several consumer complaints for them to even investigate the product.

Not too many years ago, mercury was discovered to be in a certain face cream. The discovery was made only after some women had suffered mercury poisoning.

Mercury is absorbed through the skin pores and remains in the body. So each application of the cream added to a buildup which finally resulted in the poisoning.

Again, after the product was seized, no attempt was made to warn the consumers who had already bought the cream or even to make sure the product was removed from all the stores before more people bought it.

These are not isolated cases. There have been deaths and injuries from cologne, deoderant, eye shadow and lipstick to name a few.

Although many people have brought suit against beauty products, the cases are usually settled out of court for big sums and agreements are usually reached in the settlement whereby neither party is allowed to discuss the case.

One of the reasons the cosmetic companies get away with putting unsafe chemicals in their cosmetics is that they fight having to list ingredients on packages. They argue that they would be giving away trade secrets if they had to do such a thing.

Some companies are finally listing product ingredients on packages voluntarily. Not that the average consumer would know which chemicals, mixed together, would have toxic effects, but someone might notice. It seems that the company that is willing to advertise the product ingredients probably doesn't have anything to hide.

Women have been taking chances for a long time. They take a chance every time they use a beauty product. They trust the product to at least be safe — even if it doesn't do all it says it can.

Now men are starting to take the same risks. The following is a quote from a skin care column in a recent House and Garden issue.

"Most men really only need three products: a cleansing lotion, an eye cream and a moisturizer with a sunscreen. For color they use a bronzer."

Good luck guys!

mechanical men

A robot, says Webster, is "a machine that performs the mechanical functions of a human -- but without emotion."

Britain now has about 100 sophisticated robots at work.

West Germany has about 850.

The United States has some 3,000.

But the Japanese have whole factories operated almost altogether by some 60,000 "mechanical men."

At the Datsun factory near Tokyo robots have taken over most of the dirty or dangerous jobs.

They weld, paint and perform other chores around the clock -- faster, cheaper and better than humans.

And hear this: Though Japan has the most highly automated industrial plants in the world, unemployment in Japan is only two-percent -- about one-third of ours.

The Christian Science Monitor dispatched Goeffrey Murray to Japan to see and report on their robots.

Here is what he witnessed at the Fujitsu Fanuc factory:

Sixteen hours every day the factory is run entirely by robots -- manufacturing robots.

About 100 humans show up for the remaining eight hours only to make certain everything is running smoothly. That is one-fifth the number of workers who would be required in a conventional factory.

Fanuc's announced objective is to achieve unmanned factories all over the world.

And within five years to be turning out next generation robots of such improved efficiency that one can do the work of 15 humans.

Japan thus expects to increase it's already high efficiency rate by another 70 percent in this decade.

Japanese trade unions have not resisted this evolution; welcoming instead the elimination of dangerous and monotonous factory jobs.

Experience in Japan is teaching that the automation of assembly lines merely moves blue collar workers into white collar jobs.

And that improved company efficiency results in generally higher salaries.

A Fanuc spokesman remembers that, as the industrial revolution of the 18th century pushed workers from farms to factories, this new "revolution" will push workers into the tertiary sector of health and education and entertainment and a better life.

This is a footnote which may or may not be appropriate.

A recent TWILIGHT ZONE television movie featured a robot baseball pitcher who could strike out anybody -- until he was required by league rules to take a physical exam.

The robot's creators realized he would have no pulse without a heart so they quickly installed a heart.

After which he could not bring himself to strike out anybody.

Instead, the robot with a heart found delight in making the batters happy.

I don't know why fiction somehow seems relative...

WASHINGTON (NEA)—With one notable exception, the group of several hundred people that gathered at a church here recently to mark the 30th anniversary of Camp Rim Rock was composed of school-age children and their parents.

About half of those present were girls between the ages of 7 and 17, most of them former or future summer-camp attendees. Because the "birthday party" was held on a warm Saturday afternoon, their mothers and fathers were dressed in casual clothes.

But conspicuous at the edge of the group was one stern-visaged young man who appeared to be in his early 30s and was dressed in a business suit and necktie. When others laughed, he remained somber as he constantly surveyed the crowd.

He was a special agent of the United States Secret Service and his mission that spring day was to protect from harm Joan Mondale, the wife of former Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Mrs. Mondale, invited as a special guest because her daughter is an alumna of Camp Rim Rock, made a brief speech about the virtues of summer camp, then joined other parents for a chat over fruit punch and cookies.

Did any of the girls or their parents pose a threat to Mrs. Mondale? Did she require protection from an armed, highly trained agent of the federal government?

Only three days earlier, those questions were indirectly answered by a man who ought to know. Secret Service Director H. Stuart Knight, during his appearance as a witness before a subcommittee of the House Appropriations Committee.

The subcommittee chairman, exploring possibilities for enhancing the Secret Service's capability in wake of the attempted assassination of President Reagan, suggested that the agency may have been stretched too thin because it was "protecting too many people at one time."

Responded Knight, "There are some people we're required by law to protect who, in my opinion, do not need Secret Service protection."

Knight did not single out Mrs. Mondale or any other individual, but it's obvious that providing around-the-clock protection to the wife of a former vice president is an exercise of dubious value if the president is in danger.

There currently are no fewer than 20 men and women, ranging from 13-year-old Amy Carter to 96-year-old Bess Truman, whom the Secret Service is required by law or executive order to protect 24 hours a day, 365 days a year.

That list includes the president, his wife and children; Vice President George Bush and his wife; former presidents, their wives and children under 16; and the widows of deceased presidents, unless they remarry.

Those quirky rules mean, for example, that Jacqueline Kennedy lost her Secret Service detail forever when she married Aristotle Onassis in 1968, even though he died in 1975.

Mrs. Truman, on the other hand, did not remarry, so she has been under the constant surveillance of the Secret Service ever since her husband died more than eight years ago.

Mamie Eisenhower received similar protection during the decade in which she outlived her husband. Lady Bird Johnson remains a Secret Service "protectee" even though her husband died more than eight years ago.

Secret Service agents dread assignment to Mrs. Truman's protective detail because the job is so boring. In failing health in recent years, she seldom leaves her house except for hospital visits.

Mrs. Truman is a revered figure to whom a grateful nation might well wish to supply the services of a nurse or housekeeper. But does she require a squad of law-enforcement officers? Does 13-year-old Amy Carter face some grave threat that 23-year-old Susan Ford need not fear?

The Mondales, given protection as a courtesy for six months after his term expired, will lose their Secret Service detail this summer. It's time for the White House and Congress to consider additional reductions so that the Secret Service can concentrate its efforts where they're most needed.

A squad of only 13 American athletes competed in the first modern Olympic Games in 1896 in Athens.

Chinese Allow Couple To Reunite

HOUSTON (AP) — A Chinese ballet soloist and an American ballerina who fell in love and got married, escaped today to a secret location to continue a honeymoon interrupted by a tense diplomatic tug-of-war.

Their 20-hour drama had a storybook ending Wednesday as Chinese consulate officials allowed Li Cunxin, 20, to leave their four-story, steel-grated building -- a free man -- with his bride of two days, Elizabeth Mackey, 18.

The newlyweds, whose romance blossomed while they were members of the Houston Ballet Company, hurried into a waiting automobile and sped away to a destination so secret even the bride's mother did not know where they were headed.

"They need time by themselves," said Janet Mackey. Asked where her daughter and her new son-in-law would spend the night, she said, "I have to go where they are and I don't know where it is."

Li's attorney, Charles Foster, said he planned to help the dancer apply for U.S. citizenship, but denied that Li would seek political asylum.

Li, a big hit with the Houston Ballet who became a guest soloist, was scheduled to return to China Wednesday. Instead, he informed consulate officials the night before that he had married an American girl and would not be returning after all.

At that point, Foster said, Li was forcibly detained by three Chinese officials.

When he and his bride emerged nearly a full day later, both appeared weary but happy. Li said the Chinese "regretted but respected" his decision.

"I am very happy to stay with my wife in America and work in America," Li said in halting English as the new Mrs. Li clung to him and rested her head on his shoulder.

She did not speak to anyone but held fast to Li's arm as the couple dodged a crowd of reporters shouting questions and fled in the car.

"She knows it's not going to be easy," said Mrs. Mackey, who arrived in Houston Sunday from her home in West Palm Beach, Fla. She said Li and her daughter, who moved to Texas to study at the Houston Ballet Academy, would return to West Palm Beach and live their "a couple of months, to establish residency" after their honeymoon.

APPLE PUDDING

We've updated one of our favorite homey desserts. ½ cup all-purpose flour ½ cup quick-cooking oats ½ cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1-3rd cup butter ½ cup chopped (small-pea size) toasted blanched or unblanched almonds
2 cups homemade or canned unsweetened fairly thick applesauce
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind ½ teaspoon ground cardamom
2 large eggs
1 cup heavy cream

Stir together the flour, oats and sugar; with a pastry blender cut in the butter until particles are fine. Stir in the almonds. Stir together the applesauce, lemon rind and cardamom. In a well-buttered round 1½-quart casserole (about 7½ by 2½ inches) layer almond mixture and applesauce mixture, starting and ending with almond mixture; use 3 layers of almond mixture and 2 layers of applesauce mixture. Beat eggs slightly; add cream and beat to blend; pour over top and pierce with a fork to to allow cream mixture to soak into layers. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until top is golden brown and set — 45 to 50 minutes. Serve warm. Pass a shaker of powdered or confectioners' sugar. Makes 6 servings.

Here is another hand from the Cavendish Club rubber bridge game. Metals broker Jeff Westheimer, who held the South cards, overbid a trifle when he jumped to six hearts, but in his partnership with accountant Norman Halper, who sat North, he knew one thing which was that Norman always had at least 16 high-card points when he opened one no trump.

West opened the king of spades. Jeff looked over dummy for a couple of seconds and remarked, "There are a lot of ways to play this slam and practically all will bring it home. I'll sure look like an idiot if I find a way to get set."

He took dummy's ace of spades, cashed the king of hearts and led a second heart toward his hand. East followed and Jeff played his jack. West took his queen and said, "You can't have started too well."

Jeff showed his hand and replied, "Well enough! I feel like the man at the racetrack who has a daily double on every horse in the second race. I can yell, 'Come on anybody.'"

Jeff was right. His heart play had been a sure thing. Whatever West led Jeff was sure of his slam.

AUCTION ITEMS—Mike McCormack displays the stained glass window he has donated for Saturday's Senior Center auction, while a bronze sculpture donated by Terry Gilbreth is shown at the right. Both are local artists. The auction will begin at about 6:30 p. m. Saturday in the Scurry County Coliseum.

More Items Added To List For Sr. Center's May Day Auction

A stained glass window and a second bronze sculpture have been added to the list of items to be auctioned Saturday at the Senior Center's May Day in the coliseum.

Mike McCormack is the donor of the stained glass window, which shows a wild goose in flight against a full moon.

Terry Gilbreth, another Snyder artist, donated the sculpture. It is an old fashioned saloon girl, $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches high and mounted on a hardwood base, perfect for display in a home or office. Gilbreth, until recently director of the Diamond M Museum, is now a full-time artist and works out of his Hidetown Bronze Foundry on the Lamesa Highway.

McCormack's stained glass creations are displayed in his studio at 24th and College Ave., and he welcomes visitors. Most of his work is done on a commission basis, he says, since this enables the buyer to get just the design and size to fit into the space for which it is purchased.

There is almost no limit to the design which can be created in stained glass, McCormack says, and he enjoys the challenge of turning ideas into decorative windows or other items.

The cost of a stained glass piece varies according to several factors, as one might expect, but a rule of thumb price is $50 per square foot, says McCormack.

May Day is sponsored by the Senior Center each year to raise money to supplement its operating fund. Items to be auctioned may be seen from the time the coliseum opens at 4:30 p. m. Saturday until the auction begins about 6:30 p. m. Arts and crafts items and baked goods will be sold in booths opening at 4:30, and entertainment is scheduled from 4:30-6:30 p. m. Other items to be auctioned include 30 quilts made in the Senior Center, a bronze sculpture by Dr. Robert Taylor, paintings donated by Emma Huffman and Glover's, a framed decorative poster and an autographed basketball from the NIT champions of Coach Nolan Richardson at Tulsa University.

Final Passage Expected...

Parole Control Bill Wins Tentative Okay

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements' bill tightening his control over paroles has won tentative House approval after representatives rejected another measure taking the governor out of the parole process altogether.

The governor's bill advanced, 105-35, and final passage was expected today. That would send the measure to Clements' desk for signature.

Before passing Clements' bill, the House voted 89-58 to table a measure by Rep. Craig Washington, D-Houston, stripping the governor of his power to approve or deny paroles.

In the forefront of the debate was the fact that Clements has denied 26 percent of the paroles submitted to him since he took office in 1979 — probably more than any other Texas governor.

Rep. Gerald Geistweidt, R-Mason, sponsor of Clements' bill echoed the complaint of the governor's staff that the Board of Pardons and Paroles recommends too many prison inmates for parole.

"Texas has one of the most lax and most lenient parole systems of any state. You can be released after serving one-sixth of your time," Geistweidt said.

When Clements vetoes paroles, "he is speaking with the voice of the people. He is speaking with the street sense of the man on the street," Geistweidt said.

Washington said the governor and his staff lack the expertise to judge parole cases and he predicted that the system could lead to some future governor selling paroles.

"We will have a scandal in the governor's office by some governor who sells paroles," he said.

The three-member board and the six independent parole commissioners make up three panels that recommend paroles to the governor. The governor may grant only paroles recommended by the panels.

Clements' bill would take away the commissioners' independence and make them employees of the board. The governor, instead of the board members, would designate the chairman and vice chairman of the board.

Also in Clements' bill is provision for state-funding of halfway houses for parolees.

Washington's bill would have given full authority to grant parole to nine parole commissioners, with no involvement of the governor. The Board of Pardons and Paroles would have had authority only to recommend pardons and revocation of paroles. The governor would retain authority to grant pardons and revoke paroles.

The Legislative Budget Board estimated Washington's bill would save the state $6 million next year and $11 million in 1983 by increasing paroles and reducing the prison population.

Geistweidt said in 67 percent of Clements' denials, one member of a parole panel had voted against giving parole.

"The governor is there on behalf of the people, closing the door," he said.

Geistweidt, without naming anyone, said there are some "bad eggs" among the six parole commissioners, and Rep. Jerry Benedict, D-Angleton, asserted there is an ongoing "battle between the board and the commissioners."

By Act of Congress, Dec. 15 has been observed as Bill of Rights Day since 1791.

HEALTH

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Fan of stationary cycling

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What is the difference in calories used on a stationary bicycle compared with a regular one? I prefer using the stationary one because I can watch TV or read during the exercise. I don't have to get dressed to go out and I can do my riding regardless of the weather.

I do about 15 miles a day. Does it make any difference in terms of calories if I do one long set of 60 to 90 minutes or three short sets of 20 to 30 minutes? I read somewhere that the first 15 minutes of any exercise burns up the most calories.

DEAR READER — There is no way I can tell you how many calories you are using with a stationary bicycle. There are many different models and some can be adjusted to require greater effort while peddling. Some sophisticated cycles can even be programmed for hills and valleys and to respond to the person's own heart rate.

As a general rule, a regular bicycle will require about half as much energy per mile as you would use walking or jogging, assuming that you do both cycling and jogging at a comfortable relaxed speed for maximum biological efficiency. In both, the distance is the important factor as far as calorie use is concerned.

No, in terms of calories it doesn't make much difference if you do the 15 miles in one or five sessions. It is like walking. If you walk 10 miles a day it doesn't matter if you break it up or do it all at once. That is one of its good features. When you first warm up, your circulation and muscles may not yet be at peak efficiency but the energy difference is unimportant. The distance is what counts in terms of calories. You may have read something about steady state exercise or some other results besides just calorie effects.

Many of the misconceptions about exercise are discussed in The Health Letter number 15-12, Exercise Wise, which I am sending you. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019. It includes discussions about the effects of distance and body weight on how many calories you use.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Is it at all possible to have a reversal of a tubal ligation either through surgery or some sort of an implant? I am 27. At age 22 I had unsuccessful spine surgery and was told no more babies. Since then I have had another operation which was successful. I was sterilized to protect my back but my doctor says I can carry a baby now.

I have a 9-year-old son. Six months ago I remarried. My husband and I would be interested in knowing if there is anything at all that could be done.

DEAR READER — Surgery is successful in some cases. Talk to your gynecologist about it; it depends some on what type of tubal ligation you had. New microsurgery is a big help in many cases. Some doctors claim as much as 50 percent success in opening the tubes.

I'm sure you have read of the recent animal research on transferring an ovum from the ovaries into the upper uterus or in the tube below the blockage. Then normal fertilization occurs and a pregnancy ensues. Within two years that may be available for people who cannot solve a blocked tube problem otherwise.

Burglary Suspects Arrested

Two suspects in a Scurry County burglary have been arrested in King County, officers here have reported.

Charges of burglary of a habitation have been filed here against Lester Julian Bradley and John Stanley Bradley. They are charged with burglarizing the Dwaine Williams residence east of Snyder on April 25.

Officers here said they had been informed that the two also are suspects in a Fisher County burglary.

Missing Pickup Found By Police

Police are investigating the unauthorized use of a motor vehicle this morning that occured sometime late Wednesday night or today.

Weldon Rich of 3789 Dalton called police at 5:20 a.m. and reported a Halliburton pickup with the keys left in it had been taken from his residence. The pickup had been noticed by the police at 3:15 a.m. parked at the library. Sgt. Burns is investigating.

Wednesday morning, Mrs. Jim Severs reported two walkie talkies missing which are valued at $20 each.

A burglary of a business was reported to officer Buddy Kinney at 10:45 a.m. Mrs. Lema Hatfield said someone had gained entry to The Sweet Shop through the carhop room door and had taken three rolls of quarters from a money bag.

A minor accident occured at 25th and Ave. Q at 11:39 a.m. Involved was a 1978 Oldsmobile driven by Marie King and a 1980 Oldsmobile driven by Mildred Garrett. Officer Kerry Fritz worked that mishap.

Another accident occured at 1200 28th St. at 1:30 p.m. and was worked by Kinney. Involved was a 1969 Oldsmobile-driven by Dee Ann Pierce and a 1976 legally parked Chevrolet owned by Carla Jones. The Oldsmobile had moderate damage and the Chevrolet had only minor damage.

A juvenile was taken into custody at 7 p.m. in reference to a shoplifting at Hastings Book Store.

Some property which had earlier been reported stolen from an N.L. Well Servicing truck was discovered lying along the sides of the road in several places. It is believed now that the equipment fell out of the vehicle and was not stolen.

King Henry VIII of England married Catherine Howard, his fifth wife, in 1540.

Balks At Blank-Check Policy In El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Foreign Affairs Committee, rebelling at a "blank-check" policy on El Salvador, wants a ban on U.S. military aid and advisers unless President Reagan certifies that the ruling junta is promoting democracy and not abusing human rights.

The stand, set forth in an amendment to the pending foreign aid bill, was approved 26-6 Wednesday with support from 18 Democrats and eight Republicans.

Administration officials said the amendment, which sets forth six conditions for U.S. aid to the embattled Central American republic, could tie the president's hands in foreign affairs. Nevertheless, they added that nothing in the measure conflicts with administration goals.

To become effective, the amendment must be approved by the full House and Senate. Congress then would have to determine what conditions, if any, have not been met and enact separate legislation to withdraw aid and advisers.

"This vote represents a decisive repudiation of the blank-check military policy of the Reagan administration in El Salvador and constitutes a significant victory for those who believe we should not provide unconditional military aid to the government of El Salvador," said Rep. Stephen J. Solarz, D-N.Y.

The amendment was sponsored by Solarz and another New York Democrat, Jonathan B. Bingham, who said it was meant to "make use of this military assistance as leverage to help achieve the goals we all support in El Salvador."

The amendment would require Reagan to certify that the Salvadoran junta headed by President Jose Napoleon Duarte:

—Is not engaged in "a consistent pattern of gross violations of internationally recognized human rights."

—Has achieved "substantial control" over all government security forces "so as to bring to an end the indiscriminate torture and murder of Salvadoran citizens by those forces."

—"Is making continued progress in implementing essential economic and political reforms," including land reform.

—"Is committed to the holding of free elections at an early date."

—"Has demonstrated its willingness to negotiate with opposition groups an equitable political resolution of the conflict."

—Is making a "good-faith effort" to investigate the slayings of three U.S. Catholic nuns, a social worker and two American labor representatives.

The conditions are similar to ones that Sen. Christopher J. Dodd, D-Conn., says he will propose when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee considers its version of the aid bill.

Solarz attempted to make the amendment stronger by authorizing an immediate assistance cutoff if Congress finds White House assurances inadequate. But this was rejected by committee Republicans.

Also defeated by the panel were proposals by Rep. Gerry E. Studds, D-Mass., to cut off military aid immediately and by Rep. Michael D. Barnes, D-Md., to force withdrawal of all U.S. military advisory and training personnel.

Quiet Prevails At Prisons Affected By Work Stoppage

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — About 2,800 inmates are taking part in a peaceful work stoppage at a maximum security prison, the second protest this week at a Texas Department of Corrections unit, a TDC spokesman said.

The prisoners, all at TDC's Ellis unit, described the strike as a "peaceful protest" over "a number of grievances" put forth by the inmates, TDC spokesman Rick Hartley said Wednesday.

Hartly said the prisoners taking part in the protest have been confined to their cells. The unit houses about 3,050 inmates.

A warden and a prison farm manager were killed April 4 at the Allis Unit during a scuffle with a prisoner. The inmate charged with murder in the deaths, Eroy E. Brown, has said he was acting in self defense.

The protest Wednesday comes on the heels of a "bad food" strike and another work stoppage at TDC's Ramsey Unit in Brazoria County south of Houston.

Hartley said the leaders of the strike at the Ellis Unit had not met with prison officials.

He said the grievances include a request for the state to drop its appeal of a federal court ruling that orders sweeping changes in the state prison system, the replacement of TDC director J.W. Estelle and higher inmate wages for agricultural work performed by the prisoners.

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice two weeks ago ordered massive changes in the TDC operations, saying inmates had "suffered cruel and unusual punishment for too long."

He ordered fewer men per cell, improvement in recreational and rehabilitation programs and better medical care.

Hartley said the strike at the Ramsey Unit began Monday with 259 of the prison's 2,208 imates refused to work and a majority of the inmates refused to eat.

He said by Wednesday, the number of inmates taking part in the protest had dropped to nine, he said.

Hartley Ellis Unit inmates staged a similar protest in March that also was peaceful.

Farmland Report

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says updated reports continue to show that foreigners own less than 1 percent of the farmland in the United States.

According to an annual report on foreign land ownership released this week, foreigners held about 7.8 million acres. That was an increase of about 2.2 million acres from what the department reported the previous year.

But Agriculture Secretary John R. Block said "about 1.8 million of that increase was due to late-filed 1979 reports being included in this year's report."

Block said, "The actual increase was about 414,000 acres out of a total U.S. agricultural area of about 1.25 billion acres."

Next year's report "could once again contain late-filed reports," he said. The total acreage of U.S. agricultural land owned by foreigners "is too small to measure the impact on agriculture at the national level," Block said.

Highlights of the report — ESS-9 — are available from: ESS Publications, Room 0054-S, USDA, Washington, D.C. 20250.

The first ship to sail the upper Great Lakes was the Griffon. She was launched in 1679. The vessel, built at Niagara for Cavalier de la Salle for use in the fur trade, was lost later that year when, laden with furs, she sailed from Green Bay on Lake Michigan. Various wrecks since examined have given no evidence of being the remains of the historic ship.

Dear Abby

Whole Truth Will Mend Parents' Broken Hearts

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1981 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: Our daughter is 28 and a nurse. She took a job several thousand miles from home and has been gone nearly a year. We were hoping she'd come home last Christmas, but she said she'd come home next summer and bring her fiance. (She had written about a young man whom she'd fallen in love with, describing his "beautiful attitudes, brilliant mind and outstanding character.")

Now we know why she didn't bring him home for Christmas. He's an amputee! He lost both legs just below the knee in an accident. We learned this yesterday from a letter she wrote us.

We are heartsick. She's such a beautiful girl and could easily get a whole man. Abby, how do parents adjust to knowing their daughter will spend the rest of her life caring for an invalid?

BROKENHEARTED PARENTS

DEAR PARENTS: What makes you think he's an invalid? You would be amazed how well some people can manage on artificial limbs. There is no reason to be heartbroken. If he's "whole" enough for her, it says a great deal for her values. Theirs could be a completely beautiful and fulfilling marriage.

DEAR ABBY: When my friend's children entered school, she was free to do all the fun things — bridge, golf, women's clubs, business trips to exotic places with her husband, etc. She paid no income or Social Security taxes.

When my children entered school, I went back to work, attended classes on a part-time basis and earned a college degree. With each promotion, my income and Social Security taxes increased.

We are now at retirement age. My friend draws an amount equal to half the Social Security benefits received by her husband. I cannot draw half of my husband's benefits nor can he draw half of mine.

My advice to women is: Don't work! That way you can have your cake and eat it, too. Sign me,

NOT AS SMART AS I SHOULD HAVE BEEN

DEAR NOT AS SMART: My sources at Social Security tell me that a wife who worked can take one-half of her husband's benefit or draw a benefit on her own record, whichever sum is larger.

The architects of the Social Security Act probably reasoned that the non-wage-earning wife needs half the Social Security benefits received by her husband because she has none of her own.

DEAR ABBY: Last year I had open-heart surgery. I have suffered nearly all my life with asthma, and just lately I developed emphysema. I stopped smoking seven years ago and cannot tolerate cigarette smoke.

For years I have allowed a neighbor to use my telephone. She's a chain smoker who comes to my door smoking a cigarette, with a pack of cigarettes in one hand and a lighter in the other. She walks in, starts looking for an ashtray, then proceeds to fill my place with smoke! She is also an alcoholic, and has telephonitis when she is on a toot.

After so many years of letting her use my telephone, I don't think I could refuse her now, although she is much better off financially than I am.

What should I do?

THE COUGHER

DEAR COUGHER: Tell your nervy neighbor that you cannot tolerate cigarette smoke and she may not smoke in your place. Period.

Atlanta Police Apply The Heat

ATLANTA (AP) — Authorities were cracking down on prostitutes and petty criminals in an effort to extract information about the slayings of 26 young Atlanta blacks, officials said.

During police sweeps last weekend, 74 people were arrested on charges ranging from sodomy to the possession of drugs and firearms, officials said Wednesday. The people rounded up in the sweeps were then questioned about the rash of slayings since July 1979, officials said.

Atlanta Mayor Maynard Jackson told reporters police "have sent the word through the criminal element" to fill in police on any information in "the underworld grapevine" about the slayings.

Although the criminals "don't like the heat we're giving them," Jackson said, so far informants have not given any useful information to the special police task force.

Atlanta Public Safety Commissioner Lee Brown said police officers were told before the raids to "never overlook what our No. 1 priority is. And the priority at this time is to bring closure to the unsolved cases of our children and our young adults."

Meanwhile, missing persons investigators canceled a search for a 13-year-old black youth reported missing late Wednesday afternoon after the youth was found asleep in the basement of his home.

Sean Collier, 13, last was seen about 4:30 p.m. on the southwest Atlanta where he lived, but police spokesman Bill Todd said Collier was found asleep and unharmed early today.

Collier had been reported missing by a friend of the family, who told police that Collier's mother was too upset to call. Todd said the alert was canceled about 2:50 a.m. EDT.

The special task force is looking into the disappearance of only one youth — 10-year-old Darron Glass, who vanished last year.

The task force generally has not taken over investigations of missing youths until 72 hours after disappearance is reported.

Meanwhile, officials of the Georgia Department of Human Resources said child-death investigators haven't asked them for mental health records from Georgia. Officials at two mental hospitals in Florida reported receiving a request for the names of all patients discharged to the Atlanta area during the last five years.

Irish Concerned About Elections

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republic fears that the violence expected in Northern Ireland if IRA hunger striker Bobby Sands dies will spill over the border. But politicians throughout the country are more occupied with the coming general election.

Spokesmen for all political parties except Sinn Fein, the political arm of the Irish Republican Army, advocate a compromise between Sands and the British government. But they have made few official statements on the growing crisis or suggestions of a way out of the impasse.

Prime Minister Charles Haughey's refusal to intervene on behalf of Sands is an indication of his government's attitude toward the IRA man's demand for special treatment as a political prisoner. That's a status the Irish government doesn't give its IRA prisoners either.

The government obviously does not want to get involved in an issue that many politicians believe could inject confusion into the campaign for the May election and even force its postponement.

The election, in which Haughey is fighting for his political life, is being fought chiefly on economic issues — and most politicians want it to stay that way.

The public remains generally unemotional.

Small groups of activists from time to time hold marches in Dublin or occupy private buildings to demonstrate support of Sands. But they get little support. Most people, although concerned about the backlash the IRA threatens if Sands dies, take the view that the choice of life or death is his to make.

Houston Clinches Series, 4-1...

Rockets Finals Bound

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - Who could have guessed it?

With a losing record in the regular season, the Houston Rockets were supposed to provide an early playoff tuneup for powerful Los Angeles and or San Antonio, then humbly step aside to watch the championship finals of the National Basketball Association.

But the Rockets will be playing, not watching. Writing one more chapter in a storybook season, Houston outscored Kansas City 11-4 in the final three minutes Wednesday night to defeat the Kings 97-88 and win the Western Conference championship four games to one.

The Rockets, who finished the regular season 40-42, will face either Boston or Philadelphia in their first appearance in the NBA finals in the history of the franchise. And they are the first sub-.500 club to reach the championship round since the 1958-59 Minneapolis Lakers.

"This team developed over the year," said Rocket Coach Del Harris. "It wasn't until the last 30 games I began to insert Billy Paultz into the lineup. Robert Reid has become a man in the NBA the past few weeks. This team went from being a bunch of individuals going off in all sorts of directions to a team of individuals who love each other."

Paultz scored 12 points and Reid 14, but it was center Moses Malone who destroyed the Cinderella season the Kings were trying to write. Malone scored 21 points in the first half to help erase a 23-12 Kansas City lead and finished with 36.

"We played solid defense," said Malone. "That's the only way we could get here. We got our heads together. We wanted to show the people of Houston we could make the playoffs."

The Kings battled injuries to Phil Ford, Otis Birdsong and Joe C. Meriweather throughout the playoffs, but were cursed again Wednesday night when Otis, after scoring 15 points, was helped off the floor at the 4:13 mark tf the third quarter with a muscle spasm in the back.

The Rockets never led until Bill Willoughby hit two free throws for a 79-77 advantage with 10:11 to play. After Sam Lacey's two free throws cut Houston's lead to 86-84 with 3:27 to play, the Rockets took control, with Malone, Tom Henderson and Reid hitting buckets and Paultz making two key rebounds.

Boston Forces Series Extension With Sixers

BOSTON (AP) - A full house at Boston Garden, reliving past nightmares, poured onto the floor when it beheld a strange and wondrous sight - M.L. Carr latching onto a game-clinching rebound.

His retrieve with one second left secured Boston's 111-109 victory over the Philadelphia 76ers Wednesday night that kept the Celtics breathing in the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The thrilling victory left the 76ers with a 3-2 lead heading into the sixth game of the Eastern Conference championship series Friday night in Philadelphia.

"I could sense by the way we were playing that this would be different," said Boston forward Kevin McHale. "In the other games, instead of playing with poise at the end, we were clutching and not moving the ball well."

Philadelphia led 109-103, but Nate Archibald, who had 23 points, made a three-point play with 1:20 left. Larry Bird, who led all players with 32 points and 11 rebounds, then hit a basket with 47 seconds to go.

With 20 seconds left, Carr grabbed an offensive rebound and was fouled by Julius Erving. He made both shots and Boston led 110-109.

When Bobby Jones missed an off-balance shot, Carr got the rebound, was fouled with one second left and sank one shot. He deliberately missed the last two free throws, hoping the clock would run out in the rebound scramble.

But Philadelphia got the ball and called time out with one second to go. Bird tipped and Robert Parish stole Jones' inbound pass as time expired.

Rangers Win

ARLINGTON -- Danny Darwin came within one hit of making history here yesterday when Boston centerfielder Rick Miller slapped a sixth-inning single to left field, tarnishing what would have been a no-hitter.

As it was, Darwin's one-hit pitching performance led the Texas Rangers to a 5-0 victory.

Big Ten Planning To Slap Illinois

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) - Because of the controversial eligibility case of University of Illinois quarterback Dave Wilson, the Big Ten Conference plans to bar Illinois from post-season play in all sports for three years and withhold television revenue for two years, it was reported today.

It would be the most serious setback to UI athletics since the slush-fund scandal 14 years ago.

University sources say the Big Ten decision could cost the school $2 million and wreck its athletic programs, the Champaign-Urbana News Gazette said, and some favor leaving the conference rather than accepting what they consider unfair sanctions.

The Big Ten notified Illinois of its decision, and UI officials met Wednesday to discuss the case. They declined public comment, saying the Big Ten wanted to make the first announcement, probably at a Saturday news conference in Schaumburg, where the Big Ten is headquartered.

Wilson dazzled fans with his record-breaking passing in 1980, playing for new Coach Mike White under a court order. He wants the courts to clear the way for him to play again in 1981.

Carlton Records His 3,000th Career Strikeout

By The Associated Press

Philadelphia's Steve Carlton generally takes personal achievements with aplomb, but Phillies Manager Dallas Green says even his star pitcher was caught up in the excitement of becoming the first left-hander in baseball history to surpass 3,000 strikeouts.

Carlton struck out the side against the Montreal Expos in the first inning Wednesday night to join just five other pitchers in the 3,000-strikeout club.

The 36-year-old hurler went on to scatter nine hits and strike out nine as the Phillies beat the Expos 6-2. That gave the three-time Cy Young Award winner a 4-0 mark for the season.

In other National League action Wednesday night, Cincinnati topped San Diego 8-5, Houston nipped Atlanta 5-4, Pittsburgh crushed the New York Mets 10-0, San Francisco upended Los Angeles 3-2 and the Chicago Cubs ended a 12-game losing string by beating St. Louis 6-1 in the first game of a doubleheader. The second game was suspended by darkness with the score tied 2-2 after 11 innings.

The Phillies wrapped it up for Carlton in the seventh when Larry Bowa and Bob Boone singled, Carlton doubled home his second run of the game, Pete Rose was intentionally walked and pinch-hitter Del Unser hit a three-run double.

Astros 5, Braves 4

Jose Cruz cracked a two-out, run-scoring single in the top of the ninth inning to give Houston the victory after the Braves had scored three runs in the eighth to tie the game at 4-4.

King Expected To File Counter Suit

LOS ANGELES (AP) - An attorney for tennis star Billie Jean King says a suit will be filed soon against a wheelchair-ridden hairdresser who has sued her for "palimony," claiming the two lived together in a homosexual relationship during the early 1970s.

King said in a statement Wednesday the allegations by Marilyn Barnett, 32, were "untrue and unfounded," and that she was "shocked and disappointed" by her former employee's action. Her attorney said King's suit will seek to have Barnett evicted from a house owned by King and her husband, Larry.

NOTICE

NOTICE TO SUMMER LEAGUE SOFTBALL-BASEBALL COACHES AND MANAGERS: Due to the expanded number of teams and sites for this year's summer leagues, The Snyder Daily News has adopted a new policy for regular game coverage.

The News will provide "wrapup sheets" which will include blanks for player's names, hits, winning pitcher and losing pitcher, score by innings and other details. Coaches, managers or league presidents may pick up these sheets at the newspaper office. An attempt will also be made to deliver bundles of "wrapup sheets" to "press boxes" that are accessible to entry.

In order to provide coverage for your team, these completed sheets must be filled out and turned in to the news office by 8:30 the morning following your game. It is suggested a representative drop completed sheets through the mail slot (to the right of the news office door) in the evening after the game.

The News will be able to report only on those games which are written up on these "wrapup sheets" or on other paper, legibly printed or typed.

'Look Ma, No Cavities' May Become A Reality

BOSTON (AP) — That old advertising pitch — "Look, Ma, no cavities!" — has come true for millions of American children. Fluoridated water, better toothpaste and good care are making the piercing whine of the dentist's drill a worry of the past.

But the good news for patients may mean uncertain times and a changing role for the 448,000 men and women who make their livings repairing tooth decay.

Study after study in recent years has documented a remarkable improvement in the health of American teeth.

Fluoridated water, now available to about half of all Americans, is given much of the credit for conquering cavities. But a soon-to-be-published report shows a dramatic drop in tooth decay even in towns where the water is not fluoridated.

Between 1958 and 1978, Dr. Robert Glass examined the teeth of 1,776 children in the school systems of Norwood and Dedham, two Boston suburbs. In 20 years, he discovered a 50 percent drop in the number of decayed, filled and missing teeth.

Glass, a researcher at the Forsyth Dental Center in Boston, said he found the statistics "amazing" because neither town had fluoridated water during that period. He attributed the change to fluoride toothpaste and mouthwash, more emphasis on brushing and flossing and the introduction of high-speed drills that have improved the quality of dentists' work.

The National Institute of Dental Research in Bethesda, Md., has noticed similar changes. Dr. William Bowen, chief of the institute's Caries Prevention and Research Branch, is overseeing a nationwide study of 49,000 children who live in both fluoridated and non-fluoridated areas.

The results are not all in yet, but Bowen predicts they will show a 25 to 30 percent reduction in cavities in the past 10 years alone.

The institute also is working on a cavities vaccine that Bowen says could be introduced within the next decade. It, too, would help eliminate cavities.

For dentists, cavities are big business. In 1979, Americans spent $3.7 billion on fillings, or about 27 percent of the nation's total dental bill.

Presbyterians To Travel To C-City

Members of First Presbyterian Church in Snyder will travel to Colorado City this Sunday, May 3, to worship with the First Presbyterian congregation there, the Rev. Gary West, local pastor, has announced.

There will be no services at the First Presbyterian Church in Snyder this Sunday. Those interested in going to Colorado City for the worship should meet at First Presbyterian Church here at 10 a. m. Sunday. A car caravan will leave at 10:15 a. m.

The occasion for the joint worship srrvice is the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Colorado City Presbyterian Church. The church there was founded in 1881 when the Rev. O. F. Rogers preached the first sermon heard in Colorado City. The present building was erected in 1925.

The Snyder Presbyterian Choir will bring special music at the worship service, which will begin at 11 a. m. Leading the worship will be the Rev. Roy Byrd, pastor of the Colorado City church, and the Rev. Gary West, pastor of the Snyder church.

A catered meal will follow the worship service. Cost of the meal is $2.50 per person, and those planning to attend should make reservations by calling First Presbyterian Church at 573-6915.

Farm Income Future Dims

WASHINGTON (AP) — While the past winter's slump in market prices for livestock and other commodities has been good news for consumers, it has put a big dent in 1981 farm income prospects.

But the Agriculture Department says the farm income situation is expected to brighten during the remainder of 1981, although the year will not be as good financially for farmers as was indicated six months ago.

Department economists said Wednesday that food prices are not going up quite so rapidly this year as had been predicted. That is because they rose less in the first quarter of the year than had been anticipated.

6 Perish In Houston Blaze

HOUSTON (AP) — Two adults and four children died when an early-morning fire raged through their one-story, brick duplex in northeast Houston. Firefighters responded to the call at about 4 a.m. today.

A Houston fire department official said the duplex was engulfed in flames when firemen arrived at the scene. The bodies were discovered after the blaze was extinguished. The side of the duplex where the bodies were found was heavily damaged. One person in the other side of the duplex escaped injury.

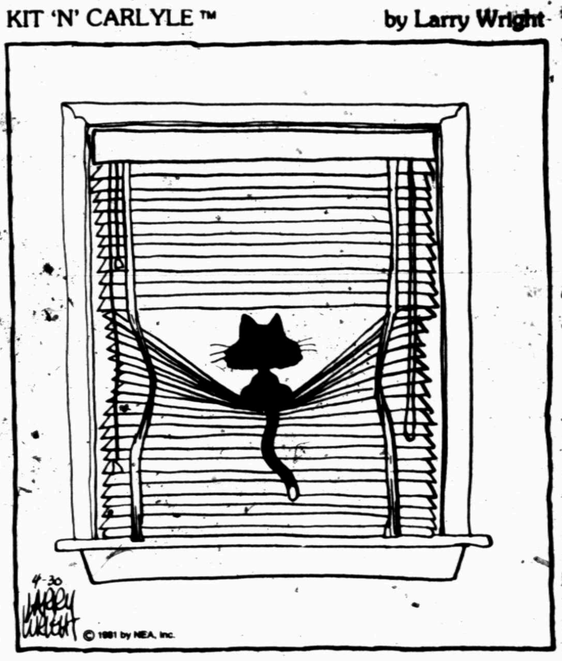

Pill Eases Stage Fright

DENVER (AP) — Performers suffering the agonies of "stage fright" may get relief from an inexpensive pill that doctors say works without slowing or distorting the senses.

The medicine, propranolol, is a prescription drug used widely for certain heart ailments. It blocks the flow of adrenalin into the bloodstream, according to Dr. Charles O. Brantigan, director of the Noninvasive Vascular Diagnostic Lab at Presbyterian Hospital.

2 Options For Burial Of Vets

Families of veterans who select a burial site for a deceased veteran in a private cemetery have two options for Veterans Administration assistance in marking the grave, E. H. (Dan) Dever Jr., Scurry County Veterans Service Officer, reminds.

VA will provide a headstone or marker free of charge and ship it to the consignee designated on the application. Cost of placing the marker in a private cemetery must be borne by the applicant.

A second option is that VA will reimburse part of the cost of a headstone or marker bought privately and placed on the grave of a veteran. The current amount is $59, which is the average cost of headstones purchased by VA.

Application for the $59 reimbursement for a marker other than a VA standard should be filed at the nearest VA Regional Office. Persons wishing information may contact Dever's office in the administration building at Western Texas College.

Commissioners Plead Guilty To Kickbacks

TYLER, Texas (AP) — A Bowie County commissioner and four others indicted by federal grand jurors investigating road material procurement irregularities in three states have pleaded guilty to accepting bribes and kickbacks.

Commissioner Milton Minter resigned his post Wednesday after the panel indicted him, former Bowie County Commissioner Howard Martin of Texarkana, Dallas Thompson of Arlington, John F. Lands of Atlanta, Texas, and George W. Tyson of Murphy.

Minter pleaded guilty Wednesday to one count of accepting bribes and kickbacks from road material vendors and Martin pleaded guilty to two counts of the same charge before U.S. District Judge William Steger.

Both men face a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Thompson pleaded guilty to a single count of racketeering and faces a maximum sentence of 20 years in prison and a $25,00 fine.

Lands entered a guilty plea to one count of promoting illegal acts and faces up to 5 years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Tyson, his former son-in-law, faces a possible maximum penalty of three years in jail and a $500 fine for hiding the fact that Martin and Minter had accepted bribes.

Steger scheduled sentencing for May 26.

U.S. Attorney John Hanna Jr. indicated more indictments may be returned, saying the grand jury is still meeting and the investigation, involving possible road materials kickback schemes in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, is continuing.

In Oklahoma, seven county commissioners, one former commissioner and the owners of two supply companies were charged Tuesday with participating in kickback and fraud schemes.

They were accused of violating the Hobbs Act, which relates to interfering with interstate commerce and face maximum sentences of 20 years each and $10,000 in fines, if convicted.

U.S. Attorney Larry Patton and C. Edwin Enright, special agent in charge of the Oklahma City FBI office, said the investigation has been in progress for almost three years.

The Associated Press learned last month that federal investigators had examined records in several northeastern Texas counties over the past year and that the investigation covered 16 counties.

Dozens of present and former county commissioners' court members were investigated.

A county judge, who asked that his name not be used, told AP at that time that one county commissioner had agreed to pay back money received and resign rather than face prosecution.

Baylor's McCall In Race For SBC Spot

DALLAS (AP) — Baylor University president Abner McCall has agreed to oppose the current president of the Southern Baptist Convention, Bailey Smith, in the race for presidency of the world's largest Protestant denomination.

McCall, 65, said Wednesday he did not seek the nomination but agreed to accept it because "a substantial segment of Southern Baptist people" are being excluded by those who support Smith.

McCall has announced his plans to retire after 20 years as president of the Baptist university in Waco.

Moderate Baptists have said they are "truly disappointed" in Smith's leadership and their apprehension grew last week when Smith released committee appointments.

The fundamentalists who backed Smith's election have been carrying out a 3-year plan to take over the denomination through elections and committee appointments.

The moderates say Smith's recent appointments were stacked in favor of the fundamentalists who favor agency and institutional staffs and faculties who share their belief in a literal interpretation of the Bible.

Dr. Ralph Langley, pastor of First Baptist Church of Huntsville, Ala., will nominate McCall.

"I have asked for and received Abner's permission to put his name into nomination. His nomination will give the convention a clear-cut option," Langley said.

Langley described McCall as a "Baptist's Baptist."

"He doesn't act big and he doesn't talk big, but he walks tall. He is as plain as cornbread, but he comes through as a solid man from my corner," he said.

Smith, 42, had announced he would seek a second term as president at the annual meeting of the 13.6 million member denomination last month in Los Angeles.

McCall's candidacy marks the second time in recent history anyone has challengd an incumbent president.

Smith drew criticism earlier for remarks he made about Jews. He told an audience at the National Affairs Briefing in Dallas last August that God does not hear the prayers of Jews.

Drummer Quits

LONDON (AP) — Ex-Beatle Paul McCartney, who formed the group Wings after the Beatles split up in 1970, is now facing problems with his band.

Denny Laine, the band's drummer since it was formed in 1971, quit suddenly Tuesday in a disagreement over McCartney's decision to halt the group's public appearances temporarily.
