Coyotes may be spreading deadly plague to humans

By BRADLEY WORRELL
Staff Writer

Recently confirmed cases of bubonic plague in coyotes tested in Mitchell County are causing concern among Texas Department of Health officials.

Four coyotes tested positive for the plague in Mitchell County, some of the first cases since the last major outbreak last year in the Permian Basin, said Guy Moore, a zoonosis control specialist with the Texas Department of Health. Zoonosis is the study of diseases communicable from lower animals to man under natural conditions.

Howard County Trapper Lyn Carpenter said, "I myself don't know of any cases (in Howard County). The latter part of last summer four of our cottontails and jackrabbits completely disappeared. If that was the plague or not I don't know."

Carpenter said he has heard numerous complaints from area farmers and ranchers about attacks on domestic livestock by coyotes. He believes much of the reason is because all of the smaller animals the coyotes usually preyed on died off last year and the coyotes are now forced to look elsewhere for food.

The plague is the same bacterial plague referred to as the "Black Death" in the Dark Ages, Moore said. The United States first experience with the disease was in 1898 when ships from Asia brought over rodents infected with the disease. "Their rodents mingled with the local rodent population and the disease began spreading. It started in California in the 1900's, moved eastward (and) has now finally gotten to Texas," Moore said.

"New Mexico has had quite a problem with plague since about 1977 — (the Texas Department of Health) started a surveillance program about a year before then," he said. Public Health Region 3, has been expanded and now includes 36 West Texas counties including

Railroad Plaza plans go full steam ahead

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

Big Spring Main Street Inc. is soliciting tenants to occupy the two boxcars and one caboose that will be featured at the downtown Railroad Plaza currently under construction.

Eight businesses have expressed an interest in renting the spaces at the Railroad Plaza, said Teri Quinones, downtown development coordinator.

The plaza, located at 100 Main St. across from the Union Pacific Railroad Company, is designed to be a landscaped marketplace area commemorating Big Spring's railroad history.

In an effort to increase the pool of possible tenants, Main Street Inc. — also known as the Downtown Steering Committee — is calling upon the community to submit names of potential Railroad Plaza occupants, Quinones said.

The committee will then contact the businesses that local residents feel would do well in a Railroad Plaza location, she said.

"The committee really wants to know how the community feels in order to make their decision," said Quinones.

Initial committee recommendations on the types of businesses best suited for the plaza included: a restaurant or food vendor; a gift shop; and an arts and crafts vendor.

Of the business that have expressed an interest in occupying a boxcar or caboose at the railroad plaza, two are restaurants and six are arts and crafts vendors.

The interior of each of the boxcars measures 500 square feet, and the caboose measures 450 square feet. Rent will be negotiable depending upon the needs of the tenants, said Quinones.

If one of the boxcars is too small for a restaurant, for example, the business could rent two adjoining cars, she added.

Construction of the plaza is three weeks behind schedule because "all the moisture we had recently left the site wet and muddy," Quinones said.

The standing water made it impossible to pour concrete, she added, which resulted in crews having to keep Main St. near First Street closed "much longer than we thought it would have to be," she said.

Construction crews were in the process of moving a water main under the site at the end of the week, and were also completing curb and gutter work.

The Railroad Plaza is part of a three-prong Main St. Inc. renovation plan. Following construction of the plaza, the committee plans to initiate the renovation of the Settlers Hotel and implement a tax incentive.

Blackshear enters city council race

By MICHAEL DUFFY
Staff Writer

Tim Blackshear entered the District Two City Council race Friday under different circumstances than he did three years ago.

There were questions about the status of city government at the time and D.W. Overman — who had been critical of BLACKSHEAR city government — was campaigning on a platform of bringing openness and honesty to city government.

Blackshear believes the city government is currently being run cohesively and effectively, however, he believes he can bring the expertise he learned as a private businessman into focus for the benefit of Big Spring.

A native of the Crossroads of West Texas, Blackshear, 30, owns two businesses — Blackshears Rentals and Earthco Construction — and has lived in District Two for eight years.

He and his wife, Terri, have two children: Shane, six; and Timmy, two.

Blackshear said he believes it is the city's responsibility to provide quality fire and police protection — along with maintaining streets and

How people choose mates

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Men and women aren't just different, they also have different attitudes about what makes a good mate, says a researcher who quizzed both sexes in dozens of cultures worldwide.

While both sexes value kindness and intelligence, the five-year study suggests sexual differences in mate selection are virtually universal and probably rooted in man's evolution.

Fifty scientists studied more than 10,000 people of both sexes from 37 cultures in 33 countries to rate the desirability of 31 characteristics in a mate, said David M. Buss, a University of Michigan psychology professor who directed the International Mate Selection Project.

The study is to be published in the March issue of Behavioral and Brain Sciences.

The two basic differences emerged in nearly every culture, from Australians with western lifestyles to the Zulus of rural South Africa, Buss said.

"Men worldwide place greater value on mates who are young and physically attractive," Buss said Wednesday.

"Women prefer mates who are somewhat older, have good financial prospects and are ambitious and industrious," he said.

But the research also showed both sexes value kindness and intelligence more than income or physical appearance, Buss said.

"When I first found these sex differences, I was surprised."

Big Spring residents Alice Haynes, Ralph McLaughlin, Billye McLaughlin and Denise Crenwelge, have been selected as members of Rotary International's Group Study Exchange team from District 573. The team will tour Belgium in an effort to promote peace and understanding.

Four Big Spring residents to tour Belgium for Rotary

By STEVE GEISSEN
Staff Writer

As members of a Rotary International Group Study Exchange team, local residents Ralph and Billye McLaughlin, Denise Crenwelge and Alice Haynes will soon embark upon what they call an opportunity of a lifetime.

The Big Spring residents, along with Robin Bostic of Lubbock and Beth Duke of Amarillo, will tour Belgium — visiting historic sites, businesses, museums, homes and government institutions.

But despite the implications of the group's expansive month-long itinerary, the trip is not simply a well-planned vacation, team members said.

The team was picked for the trip after a rigorous selection process — the purpose of which was to choose four professional women and two team leaders from Rotary District 573 to serve as ambassadors representing Texas and the United States in Belgium.

The four women were chosen from among 24 candidates nominated from Rotary Clubs in Amarillo, Lubbock, Big Spring, Midland and Colorado City.

Another Big Spring resident, Teri Quinones, was selected as one of two alternates to the team.

At a recent Big Spring Rotary meeting, Ralph McLaughlin, a former district governor, was quick to inform members: "This is not a fun type of trip. These girls have been through a whole lot during the selection process to get where they are.

"These four ladies will be the United States while they are in Belgium. They will be the United States when they are before groups like this. And I think we are well equipped to leave a good impression."

The purpose of the Rotary's Group Study Exchange program is to promote world peace and understanding between people of various nations, said the McLaughlins, who are serving as team leaders on the trip.

The team will leave in mid-April and will visit the cities of Brussels, Antwerp, Wavre, Ciney, Aalst and Willebroek.

The group is the first women's team from District 573, which includes much of West Texas and the Panhandle, to participate in the exchange program that is funded by the Rotary Foundation.

Previous men's exchange groups from Rotary District 573 have toured countries such as Chile, Finland, England and Australia. Last year, a Rotary team from Belgium visited West Texas.

The team was selected by the Rotary Group Study Exchange Committee following a series of interviews, during which applicants were asked to answer questions on topics such as international relations and history. The applicants' professional achievements were also taken into consideration.

Crenwelge is news director for KBST Radio; Haynes is a dentist and director of dental hygiene for Howard College; Duke is family news editor at the Amarillo Globe News; and Bostic is an insurance claims coordinator for Employers Insurance of Texas in Lubbock.

While in Belgium, the group will stay with local families, and regularly speak at Rotary International meetings in various parts of the country.

The format of the trip is designed to immerse the group in Belgium's culture.

"We're going to see how the people of Belgium live and work, so that when the trip is over we will

GALVESTON — A Galveston police officer arrests a man after a disturbance broke out among the spring break crowd at Appel Park Friday afternoon. The barrage of spring break students bring money — and violence — to the Texas Coast.

University students bring money, violence to island

GALVESTON (AP) — Thousands of pale-skinned university students began arriving for the surf and sun of the Texas coast this weekend, boosting the economy of this island city but creating headaches for law enforcement agencies.

"We are expecting between 35,000 to 50,000 students (each weekend) this year for spring break," said Don Schatell, executive director of the Galveston Park board of trustees.

"If the weather stays as nice as it is today, we should do even better than last year, and last year was good," he said.

Meanwhile in the Corpus Christi area, officials were expecting about 100,000 students and family members to descend on the beach though Easter weekend, dropping an estimated $20 million for food, lodging and fun.

In addition, law enforcement officials eager to prevent accidents like one that marred last year's Spring Break festivities staked 3,000 wooden posts four feet high along a two-mile stretch of the beach to separate the beach driving lanes and keep cruising students from stopping to chat and creating traffic jams.

Other plans in the Coastal Bend call for a five-hour beach concert March 19 by Joan Jett and the Blackhearts, along with Joe "King" Carrasco, who also will make a Spring Break appearance at South Padre Island.

At South Padre Island, book-weary students began jockeying for space in the predawn hours Saturday to avoid a crush of some 50,000 beachgoers this weekend.

"We've got to get there before the sun comes up so that we can get a spot on the beach and get some premium tanning time," University of Texas freshman Jay Allen told the Austin American-Statesman. "I've heard a lot about South Padre Island from my friends. I've heard it's a lot of fun — a real party."

Allen said he and seven friends made reservations three months ago to stay in a South Padre condominium. The group is going prepared — they spent $200 buying liquor in Austin to avoid the higher costs on the island, he said.

"We purchased most of the stuff we need up here except for food, so that we do not miss a whole day of sun, shopping," Allen said. "We are taking two cars down and for safety we have two designated drivers who will not drink. We have also taken precautions regarding sexual safety."

Galveston's Schatell estimates that if the weather continues, Galveston hotels, restaurants and bars stand to make $2.5 million in direct sales. By the time that money changes hands four or five times, the total economic impact will be in the neighborhood of $10 million, he said.

George Koenig, director of marketing for the San Luis Hotel, said the island's largest hotel is already booked for three straight weekends and has 60 percent of its rooms reserved for the weekdays.

"It looks like we are going to have a good one," Koenig said. "It's already going pretty strong."

Schatell estimated that 75 percent of all 4,000 rooms at the island's other hotels are already reserved.

Galveston lifeguards and police were pressed into service a little earlier than expected Friday afternoon when Houston students from rival high schools sparked a melee that sent five people to hospitals and resulted in eight arrests.

Police ordered about 1,000 people off the beach at Appel Park after the fracas broke out around 1:30 p.m. among the high school students, who were in Galveston for an unauthorized "senior skip day," authorities said.

Three people were stabbed and two more suffered other injuries, though none was hurt critically, officials said. Some witnesses said they saw students being beaten with baseball bats.

"It was just a mass of bodies, with 300 to 400 kids just following the fight," said officer John Williams, who was on the beach when the fight erupted.

Police said no knives or weapons other than baseball bats and an ax handle were confiscated.

Fire ravages Big Bend

BIG BEND NATIONAL PARK (AP) — Fire roared through 500 acres of the Big Bend National Park Saturday, forcing the evacuation of about 100 campers, authorities said.

A detachment of about 17 firefighters Saturday night battled the High Chisos mountains blaze, which was first reported by campers early Saturday afternoon. A Department of the Interior-trained crew of Mescalero Apache Indians from Alamogordo, N.M. was expected to arrive Sunday to help fight the fire.

No injuries were reported, officials said.

"I can look out the window and see the glow of the fire up in the mountains," said Kim Alexander, an assistant manager at Chisos Mountain Lodge located about 2,000 feet below and at least five miles from the fire.

"The glow of the fire appears over Emory Peak," Alexander said. Emory Peak, at 7,830 feet, is the highest point in the Chisos range.

The fire burned woodlands, mostly oak, pine and juniper and trails in the Chisos were closed, officials said.

About 100 campers, mostly college students on spring break, were evacuated from the High Chisos area, said park ranger Karen Boucher.

"Everybody's safe right now; we closed the trails and got the college kids out," she said. "There were no problems with the evacuation."

Authorities believe the fire was started by people in the High Chisos.

"We speculate it's man-caused," said Big Bend National Park spokesman Robert Rothe. "We haven't had any lightning strikes in the area."

"It could always have been something really odd, maybe sunlight shining on a glass bottle."

Ms. Boucher said the rangers hiked for two hours along the rugged and often steep Blue Creek Trail, which runs from the desert to the high mountains, to reach the blaze.

The fire started at the 5,500-foot level along the Blue Creek drainage, which is a natural run-off on the west side of the Chisos, she said. Fueled by brush, the fire ran along the peaks of the High Chisos, which are more than 7,000 feet above sea level.

Rothe said park officials believe the fire wouldn't spread much Saturday night because of a combination of weather conditions, including falling temperature and wind speed, and rising humidity.

The fire danger Saturday was at "level 5," the highest stage of alert, due to warm temperatures and little rainfall, which dried vegetation. In recent days, temperatures have been in the 90s in the park, which is an area about the size of Rhode Island, Ms. Boucher said.

The blaze is the first in the 708,221-acre park this year, Ms. Boucher said. Last year there were 27 brush fires, she said, but only two scorched more than 300 acres.

The Chisos Mountain Lodge was filled to capacity with more than 140 visitors Saturday night, Alexander said. He said officials told him the fire presented no immediate danger to the facility.

"There's ash falling around here at this time," he said. "You can just see it in the distance. It's not a large glow at this time."

'Mudbug' battle continues

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Louisiana returned fire and declared immediate victory in the four-day war of words with Texas over who has the best crawfish.

"Texas is a Third World country when it comes to crawfish," said Karl Turner, executive director of the Louisiana Seafood Promotion and Marketing Board.

"The weight of world opinion is on our side. The war is over."

The battle began Tuesday when Texas' commissioner of agriculture, Jim Hightower, derided Louisiana crawfish as "smelly, mud-coated, itty bitty and slow-witted."

Replied Turner on Friday: "Louisiana crawfish are better, tastier, fresher and firmer, and everybody knows it."

As for Hightower, Turner said, "I wonder if he knows the difference between a crawfish and an armadillo."

Louisiana produces 100 million pounds of crawfish a year, almost 10 times as much as Texas, the No. 2 U.S. producer.

Hightower made his comments in touting a new process called purging, which Texas crawfish producers say yields fresher, cleaner and better-tasting mudbugs.

GTE files for rehearing on rates

AUSTIN (AP) — GTE Southwest Inc. has filed for a rehearing with the Public Utility Commission, saying the panel's order requiring the company to refund about $128 million in overcharges was unfair.

GTE officials said the PUC's ruling last month that the refunds be retroactive to Jan. 1, 1987 would hurt the company and its customers.

"The financial health of the company would be substantially impaired if the order is allowed to remain without further revision — particularly in the area of retroactive refunds," said GTE Southwest president E.L. "Buddy" Langley.

In addition to the refund for overcharges, the PUC voted to lower GTE's rates by about $59 million.

Langley said that during the two years of disputed charges, GTE was earning less than its approved rate of return.

Because of this, Langley said the commission's order on refunds on revenues collected two years ago "is simply unfair."

Do you remember the fire drills at school when you were a youngster? Teachers emphasized the need to clear out the building quickly and quietly, and periodic practice proved it could work.

Yet many adults give little thought to what would happen if their homes or offices burned. What would you do? Fire drills now can avoid tragedy later.

Note all exits from your home and make sure they're not blocked in any way. Discuss with the children how to get out of the house and where to meet nearby — then practice at least twice a year.

Consider every situation: If the fire is in a bedroom what's the best way to get out? If it's on the stairs? In the kitchen? If upstairs exits require the use of special escape ladders, practice using them until all family members can get out safely.

In case of smoke, stay low with a wet cloth to the face. Use stairs, never elevators, to get out. Don't try to put out any but the smallest fire.

Fire's frightening, but less devastating if you're adequately insured. Discuss it with us at:

Rallies boost strikers

MIAMI (AP) — Labor rallies boosted the spirits of striking Eastern Airlines workers Saturday while the struggling carrier attracted travelers "like gangbusters" to its bargain Northeast shuttle and worked to restore routes.

Aircraft were again reported flying near capacity on the second day of $12 fares on the Northeast shuttle linking New York with Washington and Boston, once Eastern's most profitable service. The pre-strike fare was $99.

"The shuttle's going like gangbusters," said Eastern spokesman Robin Matell. "This ($12 fare) has just created a tremendous groundswell of interest in traveling between the cities."

Joe Scott, an Eastern spokesman in New York, said the shuttle remained popular Saturday, but ticket lines at LaGuardia Airport were not as long as they were Friday.

Many flights were crowded with college students heading home for spring break. Because the hourly shuttle works on a first-come, first-serve basis, many passengers waited for hours before getting on a flight.

Matell suggested the solidarity of pilots honoring Machinists union picket lines might be cracking. "We have more than 200 pilots now, and yesterday we had inquiries from about 300 pilots inquiring about procedures for returning to work," he said.

But Air Line Pilots Association spokesman Jim Bost, an Eastern pilot for four years, discounted that report, saying: "So far they are still hanging tight with us. As far as we can tell the line is still holding solid."

Machinists leader Frank Ortis said the pickets' resolve was unwavering, despite urgings from Eastern to return to work.

"Management is calling people to go to work, saying it's all over," Ortis said. "This is company rhetoric, and we're telling members disregard that — we're still on strike."

Meanwhile, corporate shuffling by Eastern parent Texas Air Corp. continued as Eastern Express, a non-union commuter carrier that fed Eastern flights, was renamed Continental Express.

Vincennes captain's family victims of car-bomb attack

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Federal agents with brooms and metal detectors focused Saturday on the burned-out wreckage of a van driven by the wife of the Navy captain who mistakenly ordered the destruction of an Iranian passenger jet.

Officials said the case was being investigated as a possible terrorist attack.

The home of Capt. Will Rogers III, commander of the USS Vincennes, was sealed off and he and his wife, Sharon, were in hiding. Officials confirmed the couple received at least one threatening call about the missile strike on the airliner.

The van remained in the cordoned-off intersection where it exploded and burned Friday, moments after Mrs. Rogers got out when she heard a noise witnesses described as "two loud pops."

There also was increased security at the several military facilities in San Diego, the nation's largest Navy complex.

The van was the center of intense scrutiny Saturday by investigators from the FBI and other federal agencies, who had a command post set up nearby.

"We are into an exhaustive, painstaking, lengthy investigation to determine what type of bomb it was, what was used in it, how it was detonated," said Thomas Hughes, agent in charge of the San Diego FBI office. "There are fragments... that would lead one to believe this was a pipe bomb."

However, he said at a briefing Saturday that it had still not been determined whether it was a pipe bomb.

Investigators set up barrels covered with sieves and sifted through debris collected from the area shortly after Friday's explosion. Other investigators swept beds of plants lining the avenue with metal detectors.

The debris will be taken to a lab in Washington. Bomb analysts from the Los Angeles FBI office and the Washington FBI explosives unit were at the scene.

The roofs of buildings in the area also were being searched for any kind of evidence, Hughes said.

"Teams of investigators are running out just hundreds and hundreds of leads," Hughes said.

He said the Rogerses were being kept in a secure location. Their son, who attends school in upstate New York, was notified and offered protection, the FBI said.

Hughes declined to comment when asked about a report that a red car was seen behind Mrs. Rogers' van and made a quick U-turn after the explosion.

have as thorough a knowledge of the country as anybody except for the people that live there," Billy McLaughlin said.

The team members will keep diaries, and upon their return they will write reports detailing their experiences. They will submit the reports to Rotary officials, Crenwelge said. The team members will also speak about the trip to local Rotary groups, she said.

Preparation for the trip has been extensive, team members said. The group is studying French language, U.S. and Belgium history, and current events. In early April, team members will take an intensive, week-long French language course in Dallas.

The group plans to address the majority of the country's Rotary clubs in French, but they will also study Dutch — the language of northern Belgium.

The group is taking its language studies seriously because "we really want to dispell the ugly American stereotype," said Billy McLaughlin.

Team members likely will field many questions about U.S. political and social issues as well as international relations, said Crenwelge.

The women will also speak about their respective careers, which should spark considerable interest since Belgium is a "very male-oriented society," Crenwelge said.

"I think I'm going to attract a lot of interest as I show my feminism," she told local Rotary members.

Crenwelge said she will be diplomatic in answering questions about the role of women in the United States.

But she added, "I want them to understand that a woman can make it as a single individual and have a career — that it's not a necessity of life to have a man in order to have an identity."

Haynes described the trip as "an opportunity of a lifetime."

"I really feel this is one of the greatest opportunities of my life," she said. "It's something I always wanted to do, but I've never had the opportunity."

Haynes said it will be difficult to leave her two children, ages 6 and 3, but said the experience "will allow me to give my children so much more."

Mixed with their enthusiasm for the trip is appreciation of the Rotary's support, team-members said.

"The Rotary doesn't do for themselves. They do for others," Crenwelge said. "The Rotarians are as excited for us as we are for ourselves."

Billye McLaughlin, an avid Rotary supporter, had even higher praise for the organization her husband joined in 1957.

"When Ralph first got involved with the organization, I thought Rotary had the means of changing the world," she said. "And I still believe that."

Plague

Howard County.

Four human cases of bubonic plague have been reported since 1981, the most recent in 1988 in Pecos County, Moore said. In each of the cases the person was involved in such outdoor activities as hunting and trapping.

The plague can be transmitted in several different ways, depending on the form it takes, he said. Bubonic and systemic plague are transmitted through initial exposure, handling and eating of the infected mammal. Pneumonic plague — the most hazardous of the three and also the most rare — is transmitted in the air. "There have not been any cases of pneumonic plague in West Texas. Plague in general has been rare in West Texas until the last few years," Moore said.

"It's all plague," he said. "It's three forms of the same disease. The difference is in where the plague localizes." Bubonic plague effects the lymph glands, systemic plague effects the bloodstream and pneumonic plague effects the lungs, he said.

Moore said one of the ways the TDH attempts to keep track of the progress of the disease is to monitor segments of the wildlife population. Coyotes are especially useful "surveillance sentinels" because "they are the most populous predator in the region, have large individual home ranges, readily consume potentially infected rodents and have the potential to develop antibodies," he said.

Moore said preventive measures the public can take are: reporting rodent die-offs to local and regional health officials; keeping dogs and cats confined to their owners property and free of fleas; not handling dead or dying animals; and not dressing or eating wild rabbits.

"Persons who become ill with flu-like symptoms and elevated temperatures within a week of engaging in camping, hunting, trapping, or other outdoor activities in a known or suspected plague area should contact their physicians immediately," he said.

ferences in samples within the United States, people were skeptical that they would be found across cultures," he said. "I was skeptical as well. But after the data from 37 cultures were analyzed statistically, I was surprised at how pervasive the sex differences were."

Earlier animal studies have confirmed the theory that females prefer mates who bear greater gifts, hold better territories or display higher rank, Buss said.

Cross-cultural similarities in choosing a mate may result from patterns set by our ancestors, including a woman's traditional dependence on a man for food, shelter and protection, he said.

Western European and North American men included in the study preferred mates who were at least one year younger, Buss said. By contrast, men surveyed from Greece, Iran, Colombia and Bulgaria opted for mates who were three to four years younger, while Nigerian and Zambian men preferred women six or seven years younger.

Women from Indonesia, Nigeria and Zambia most emphasized the earning potential of their prospective groom, he said. Dutch, British and Zulu women placed the lowest values on a man's money-making abilities. American women considered finances important but not crucial.

The value placed on chastity varied widely from culture to culture, Buss said. Men from 23 of the 37 cultures considered marrying a virgin more important than did women.

Both sexes in China, India, Indonesia, Iran, Taiwan and Israel stressed the value of chastity, the study found. But most Western Europeans said prior sexual experience was irrelevant in a potential mate, Buss said.

• Art Focus, an artist co-op, moved to 215 Main St. "Since they moved downtown it means one less vacancy, and because of the type of business it is — an art gallery — they can draw people locally as well as off the freeway," she said.

Assistant DA's trial with DPS postponed

HERALD STAFF REPORT

The scheduled March 20 trial date for Howard County Assistant District Attorney William Dale Dupree's civil lawsuit against the Department of Public Safety in Abilene federal court has been postponed, officials said.

Susan Warner, the Texas Attorney General staff attorney representing the DPS in the suit, said Friday a new trial date has not yet been scheduled.

Warner confirmed that she filed new motions in the suit, but refused to comment on the specifics, citing pending litigation.

The suit stems from a May 6, 1987, incident when Dupree was arrested by DPS Trooper Weldon R. Jones after Jones allegedly discovered a bottle of pills in Dupree's vehicle.

A laboratory analysis eventually confirmed the substances in question were vitamin and fiber pills and the felony drug charge was dismissed by former Howard County Attorney Tim Yeats four days after Dupree's arrest.

Plaintiffs Dupree and his wife, Patricia Ann Dupree, filed the suit May 5, 1988, in Howard County District Court against Jones, as well as a supervisor known as "Sgt. (Frank) Woodall" and the DPS.

They alleged the arrest for possessing pills — later determined to be legal — resulted in libel and slander against the assistant district attorney.

Warner later filed a motion to have the suit moved to federal court because it included federal claims.

Big Spring man arrested on pornography charges

HERALD STAFF REPORT

A 29-year-old Big Spring man is free on $25,000 bond following his arrest Friday night in connection with the sex-related photography of children, Capt. Lonnie Smith said.

Police executed a search warrant at 200 N.E. Seventh St. shortly after 8 p.m. and arrested Ronnie Ray Rayos on a second-degree felony charge of sexual performance by a child, Smith said.

He declined to say whether evidence was seized from the house and said all information related to the investigation will be turned over to the district attorney's office.

Smith said Rayos, who is on probation, allegedly photographed at least two children and that the police department's investigation is continuing.

Rayos was arrested in April 1984 on a warrant charging him with sexual assault of a child in connection with an incident involving several juveniles, according to published reports.

He added that he will work to improve the quality of streets.

"I feel like I have knowledge of heavy equipment that may prove useful in the city's plans," Blackshear said.

He cited community involvement and a desire to improve Big Spring as the primary reasons for seeking the councilman's position.

Blackshear ran a respectable race against Overman in the 1986 District Two race, losing by just 200 votes, 990-790.

Overman said Saturday night he considered Blackshear a good candidate for the vacant council seat, but hesitated on offering any advice.

"It wouldn't be my place to offer any advice because he will learn everything while he is on the job, but I do believe there is going to be a money shortage problem soon facing the city and council," Overman said.

Overman announced on Feb. 27 he would not seek re-election for the District Two Council seat — a decision he made "with considerable thought."

March 22 is the last day interested and qualified persons can file their candidacies for mayor or District Two council seat. Blackshear is the only candidate who has filed for the council post.

A reservoir of experience

In nominating House Republican Whip Dick Cheney as defense secretary, President Bush is tapping a deep reservoir of experience in both White House and congressional affairs. This unique combination of talents — six-term Wyoming congressman and former chief of staff to President Gerald Ford — will serve the nation well as the Pentagon adjusts to the leaner budgets of the 1990s.

Mr. Cheney is highly respected not only by his colleagues in the House but by senators as well. His confirmation process should encounter none of the snags that trapped John Tower in a losing partisan imbroglio.

Because of Rep. Cheney's excellent connections on Capitol Hill, the armed services will be assured a strong voice in the battle for budget resources. Perhaps more importantly, President Bush's nominee possesses the credentials to reconcile the Pentagon's objectives with the political realities in Congress and the evolving relationship between the United States and the Soviet Union.

As Mr. Cheney's associates attest, few Washington veterans have a better understanding of how to get action within the corridors of power.

At the same time, Mr. Cheney brings a fresh perspective to national security issues, a fact that may enhance the prospects for genuine reform of defense procurement and other components of the military establishment.

The congressman has never served on the Armed Services Committee or the Appropriations subcommittee on defense, but he has been a member of the Intelligence Committee.

With Secretary of State James A. Baker and White House National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft, the Cheney appointment makes for a strong defense troika under President Bush. All three men have had a long and collegial association together, dating back to the Ford administration. Each is widely praised for his scholarly intellect, thoughtful approach to policy-making, and proved capacity to get things done.

Mr. Cheney also is a pragmatic conservative, earning a 100 percent rating from the American Conservative Union, and was one of Ronald Reagan's most ardent backers in the House. He fought consistently for military aid to the Nicaraguan Contras and pushed hard for increased funding for the Strategic Defense Initiative.

By joining the Bush Cabinet, Mr. Cheney sidetracks a promising career in the House, where as the number-two GOP leader he has harbored hopes of becoming speaker one day if the Republicans regain control. With this sacrifice, he has placed the needs of the country over his own ambition.

The Today Show, airplanes and other imponderables

By CHRIS SATULLO

I'm looking at a book called "Why Do Clocks Run Clockwise? — and Other Imponderables."

It's a compendium of answers to mundane but baffling mysteries, compiled by one David Feldman.

For example: Why is the moon so much bigger when it's near the horizon? (That's an optical illusion.)

Why do ants congregate on sidewalks? (Sidewalks are warmer and we keep dropping food on them.)

Why is a ketchup bottle so narrow that you can't fit a spoon in it to help the ketchup along? (Because, back when Heinz first started putting ketchup in bottles, the condiment was much more watery. The narrow neck was intended to impede the flow.)

As for the conundrum in the book's title, early clocks were designed to follow the movement of shadows on a sundial. In the northern hemisphere, those shadows move... well, clockwise.

Guest column

Browsing through this list of life's little riddles puts me in mind of a few that Feldman doesn't resolve in this book, such as:

- Why does Feldman call questions to which he's found answers "imponderables," since the word means something that can't be determined or evaluated.

- Why in the world did Bryant Gumbel leave that memo sitting where others could see it?

- How can anyone who has so much as watched a plane take off in the last few years call the deregulatory mania of the Reagan years a success?

Nowadays, anyone who buys a plane ticket offers a litany of

The gun bill that shouldn't be

By JESSE TREVINO

In every session of the Legislature, as in every session of Congress, some legislation that is introduced should not be.

Amid useful and necessary legislative work and often instead of needed attention to festering problems, the people's representatives generally find or make time to consider bills that run the gamut, from silly and innocuous to downright dangerous.

Much of this legislation dies a richly deserved death in committee. Much of it is so absurd that even the legislators themselves laugh at it. But a real problem arises when a dangerous proposal comes from a credible source at a time when the fluctuating atmosphere of political emotions might favor its passage.

This happened in Austin this week when State Sen. Ken Armbrister, D-Victoria, filed a bill that would permit licensed Texans to carry concealed handguns.

License applicants would have to pass a weapons proficiency course and a written test on state law in addition to undergoing a background check. Still, Armbrister's bill would allow any Texan who can qualify to carry a handgun almost anywhere — the exceptions being schools, airports, government meetings and places where liquor is served.

This is not gun control legislation. It is gun proliferation, and it should be shot down immediately.

The National Rifle Association should be particularly pleased: Armbrister finally turned the tables on NRA opponents in Texas. No longer will the Texas Legislature consider questions such as "How can we prevent our children from being massacred with an automatic assault rifle on a school playground?"

Now, lawmakers might soon consider the reverse: "How can we get more guns into the hands of more people in more places more of the time?"

Armbrister was quoted as saying, "Texans need the ability to defend themselves." Perhaps. In some neighborhoods in some cities of the state, that may be certainly true. But little good can be gained by arming as many citizens as possible.

The answer to the need for adequate police protection is just that, adequate police protection.

Let us take the worst, or any, neighborhood in the state. What would become of that neighborhood if, for example, a loud party were being held?

You can imagine. The first impulse of anyone disturbed by such a ruckus is to walk over and complain about the noise. Under Armbrister's bill, the result could well be a barrage of bullets.

What would happen if the neighbor calls the police instead? Same thing.

The objections to Armbrister's needless legislation should be evident to even the least-schooled citizen or the most ardent gun advocate. But similar legislation got the support of almost one-third of the Texas House two years ago.

Other potentially devastating results could come of Armbrister's bill, results that perhaps he has not considered.

What would happen to municipal and business insurance bills throughout the state? Insurance companies would demand sky-high premiums to cover the certain escalation of risk police officers would face in a normal day's work.

Those insurance bills would apply to every governmental entity, every security force in the state. The result could be fiscal chaos for both the public and private sector.

The explosion in liability insurance rates of three years ago could be repeated, for what business these days doesn't use a security company to protect its property?

But Armbrister's bill has a darker side beyond its financial implications. As Texas cities inevitably grow, they will take on more of the less-desirable characteristics of the country's larger cities.

One aspect of this growth pattern is the deterioration of some neighborhoods to the point that they become uninhabitable, even by the poorest of citizens.

Yet those areas, and some already exist in Houston, become staging grounds for precisely the kinds of crime against which Armbrister claims he wants to help Texans defend themselves.

Those neighborhoods have become nothing less than areas over which civilized society has lost control. Some areas of New York and Detroit, for example, are no longer patrolled by police.

In my mind, the proliferation of guns that Armbrister's legislation would produce would render greater areas of some of Texas' cities less safe than they are now.

Police, already fearful about the spread of stolen guns into these areas, could independently decide to avoid them altogether.

Hypocrisy and expediency in the John Tower matter

By WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

What rankles, finally, is the utter hypocrisy of the performance over John Tower, the fairy tale that it was a disinterested inquiry into Tower's qualifications to serve as defense secretary. And the towering figure in the hypocritical act was Sam Nunn.

Early in the debate, Sen. Phil Gramm got up on the floor and said he wished to read something. He read from a public statement made about John Tower in 1984 after he announced that he would not be campaigning for re-election as senator. He had served as chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee and as is the case with all chairmen of congressional committees, his work was closely observed by his colleagues.

The statement read by Senator Gramm likened John Tower to the aurora borealis, the rising sun and the full moon. It remarked on his great gifts to his country as chairman of the committee and as a senator, and expressed the hope that in the future he would not deny the country his invaluable services.

It was signed: Sam Nunn. And, we are led to believe, suddenly, thanks to the FBI, Sam Nunn discovered Demon Rum in Tower's background. If, while serving at his side in the Senate and in the committee room for 14 years he didn't know that John Tower could and did take a drink, then either Sam Nunn was blind or else he had reason to dismiss Tower's drinking as irrelevant to his performance of his duties.

But suddenly we discover that the FBI knows somebody or some people who have seen John Tower under the influence. None, it transpired, had seen him under the influence while performing official duties; and, in any event, the whole question became moot when he made his public pledge to give up drinking altogether, if confirmed.

But then the gradual assembly of the grand hypocritical tableau. What do you know, every Democratic member of the Senate committee is terribly afraid of the effect of booze on John Tower, while every Republican member of the Senate committee is unafraid of it.

This is really quite extraordinary — remember, this is a non-partisan question: Nobody doubts the qualifications of John Tower to act as secretary of defense save for that one point. How is it that on the committee, 11 Democrats were afraid of the possible effects of a drinking habit on the secretary of defense, while nine Republicans were either indifferent to the question or actively hostile to any suggestion that it was a factor worth pausing over?

I mean, is the fear of alcohol a distinctive characteristic of the Democratic Party? Given that it was a non-partisan issue, it is as if at a roulette wheel one had come up with 11 straight reds followed by nine straight blacks. The odds against that happening are 17 followed by a googol (100 zeroes) to one.

And when it went to the floor it was the same thing, with three exceptions — two of which were evasively expressed.

The reason Christopher Dodd of Connecticut voted for John Tower was, of course, not mentioned by Senator Dodd initially. He fished about for a reason to vote for him that would not run the risk of contradicting the findings of his fellow members of the Democratic Temperance Union.

So he said something about the ex post facto flavor of the whole thing, and his indisposition to go along with precedent-setting after the fact. What he didn't say then was why he voted for Tower, which was because Tower, 22 years ago, voted against censure for Chris' father, Sen. Tom Dodd, and Chris was repaying a family debt.

Lloyd Bentsen said that few senators knew John Tower as intimately as he did and that he really did not feel that there was any significant risk in sending John to the Pentagon.

What he meant to say was that John Tower is from Texas and Lloyd Bentsen is from Texas and John Tower, after reaching the Senate, never lost an election, and Lloyd Bentsen didn't want Tower fans in Texas giving him hell for the next few years because of his satellization by the mob.

There are undoubtedly six senators out there who really did worry about whether Tower would have been a security risk. But who are they? For all we know, three of them are Republicans.

Hundreds hope to sight apparition

TICKFAW, La. (AP) — Thousands of people were expected to gather in the tiny southeast Louisiana town of Tickfaw on Sunday in hopes of seeing an apparition of the Virgin Mary.

"We have calls coming in from all over. I understand there will be charter buses from all over the United States," police Capt. Ted Panning said Saturday.

He said between 5,000 and 60,000 people were expected to converge on Tickfaw, a town of 500 about 45 miles north of New Orleans.

Their destination was a field where a wooden cross has been erected beside a mobile home belonging to Alfredo Raimondo. Raimondo says the Virgin Mary appeared to him in Chalmette, a New Orleans suburb, and told him to go to Tickfaw to honor St. Joseph. Raimondo also has reported witnessing apparitions in Yugoslavia and Lubbock.

The site is located between the Antioch Baptist Church and the Sisters of St. Benedict Monastery. The pilgrims planned to celebrate Mass outdoors, have a candlelight procession and pray the rosary, said Robbi Mayfield, a pilgrimage organizer.

Arabs don't support death decree

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Arab students who helped sponsor a public reading of "The Satanic Verses" say they may not like author Salman Rushdie, but they want to show that not all Moslems support Ayatollah Khomeini's death decree against him.

About 300 people attended Friday night's reading and panel discussion on the University of Iowa campus. Twenty-five people read two-minute selections from the book that many Moslems claim blasphemes their faith.

Wan Hasni, a member of the Iowa City Islamic Society and a statistics student, said he and other Muslims attended the session at the Iowa Memorial Union "to hear the views, the feelings of others in the American community have about this book."

"A demonstration is appropriate if we need one. But it would have served no purpose to disrupt the reading," he said.

Saadi Simawe, a representative of the Arab Students Association who organized the event, said the reading aimed to demonstrate that not all Moslems support Khomeini's action.

"Fanaticism is always an aspect of insecurity," Simawe said. "I read the Koran, I respect the prophet. I think Islam is a great religion if taken personally. Once you are going to impose it on others, it is very dangerous."

Court clears Simmons execution

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Prison officials began preparing for the execution of convicted mass murderer R. Gene Simmons after the state Supreme Court ruled he was competent to waive his right to appeal his death sentence.

Friday's ruling clears the way for Simmons to become the first person to be executed in Arkansas in 25 years.

Simmons is to die by lethal injection Thursday for the December 1987 slayings of 14 family members. Their bodies were found in his home and on his property near Dover, Ark., about 75 miles northwest of Little Rock.

Simmons, 48, was sentenced to death last month by Circuit Judge John Patterson. He was convicted and sentenced to death last May for two other deaths that occurred during his 1987 shooting rampage.

The state Supreme Court ruling came one day after Simmons asked the court to expedite its review of his competency to waive appeals from last month's conviction.

"After a careful review of the record and exhibits, we affirm the trial court's decision that the petitioner has knowingly and intelligently waived his right to appeal," the court said in a three-page opinion.

Simmons asked that no one interfere in the case after an execution date was set in his first trial. He said the sentence was just, pleading, "Let the torture and suffering in me end."

Bodies still missing in Canada jet crash

DRYDEN, Ontario (AP) — Work crews using snowmobiles and snowplows recovered bodies from a snowy woods and looked for clues Saturday to the cause of an Air Ontario jet crash in central Canada that killed 24 people.

Officials on Saturday found the voice and flight data recorders, or black boxes. Chief inspector Joe Jackson of the Canadian Aviation Safety Board said while the two recorders were badly burned in Friday's crash, they could still be used.

At the crash site, dozens of investigators tagged blackened bodies and body parts as they waded through thigh-deep snow to photograph and probe the wreckage of the Fokker F-28 jet. Both pilots were among the dead.

Jackson refused to speculate on the cause of the crash.

Provincial police said two of the 47 survivors died later in hospitals. At least eight of the injured were in serious condition, said provincial police Constable Bill Brayshaw.

A temporary morgue was set up in a local sports arena. Police said removal of the bodies was being hampered by the freezing weather, deep snow and uneven bushy terrain near Dryden, a paper-mill town of 6,500 people about 200 miles northwest of Duluth, Minn.

Purses, one red high heel shoe and a wheel of the aircraft were among the debris spread through the trees and on the ground near the wreckage of the airplane. A woman's gray and pink sweater clung to a birch tree that had been cut in two during the crash.

Man says bomb threat was joke

RAVENNA, Italy (AP) — Police arrested a retired merchant who allegedly threatened to blow up the poet Dante's tomb, but the man said his threatening letters were just a joke, police said Saturday.

A police investigator, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the letters from the man in Ravenna threatened to blow up the tomb because Dante supposedly blasphemed the prophet Mohammed in his classic "Divine Comedy," written more than 650 years ago.

The retired merchant arrested Thursday admitted writing the threatening letters "only as a joke and had no idea all this fuss would have been created," the police official said.

Police were posted at the tomb after Ravenna Mayor Mauro Dragone and a newspaper received letters last week attributed to a group called "Guardians of the Revolution."

The writer of the letters said Dante, in his classic "Divine Comedy," placed the founder of Islam in hell.

The threats to blow up Dante's tomb sparked a furor in Ravenna because of the recent death threats made against British author Salman Rushdie, whose novel "The Satanic Verses" makes references to Islam and Mohammed that Moslems call blasphemous.

Apartheid condemned by church

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — The main church of ruling Afrikaners has declared apartheid a sin and asked forgiveness for its long support of the racially discriminatory system.

"We confess with humility and sorrow the participation of our church in the introduction and legitimization of the ideology of apartheid and the subsequent suffering of people," said the white Dutch Reformed Church.

The black and mixed-race Dutch Reformed Churches welcomed the most explicit condemnation of apartheid made by their white mother church but said it also must work to destroy the system it helped create.

President P.W. Botha and virtually his entire Cabinet are among congregants of the repenting church, which probably is Afrikanerdom's strongest single unifying factor.

There was no immediate reaction from the government to the church's declaration or to a government-appointed commission's report Saturday that called for voting rights for the black majority and an end to all apartheid laws.

Fighting kills scores of Afghans

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — A week of fierce fighting between anti-communist insurgents and Afghan government forces holding a strategic city has killed scores of people and wounded hundreds, a guerrilla spokesman said Saturday.

Thousands of guerrillas blasted Jalalabad in a relentless attack with long-range rockets and heavy artillery, said Mohammad Shoaib of the Jamiat-e-Islami insurgent group.

The city, Afghanistan's fifth-largest, is seen by the guerrillas as a stepping stone to the capital of Kabul, 75 miles to the west.

"Fighting is close to and around the city," said Shoaib. "There are rumors that some mu-jahadeen (guerrillas) have entered the city from the north, but there is no confirmation."

Several guerrilla sources said the insurgents now control a key government garrison on the outskirts of Jalalabad, which is 45 miles west of the border with Pakistan where many guerrilla groups are based.

The guerrillas captured as many as 500 government troops in the battle for the post, said Naem Majrooh of the Afghan Information Center, which opposes the Marxist government.

Majrooh said casualty figures "are very high. Most of the deaths are from mines and bombardments."

Launch on schedule despite stalled countdown

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The space shuttle Discovery's countdown was running smoothly Saturday and back on schedule for Monday's launch, after high wind stalled the countdown for seven hours during the night.

There were no reasons to believe the launch would not go as scheduled, said Robert Crippen, NASA's deputy director of shuttle operations.

"We don't have any significant issues that we are working," Crippen said after a Saturday afternoon mission management meeting. He added that the weather was expected to cooperate for Monday's liftoff.

Launch preparations were stalled for seven hours after wind gusting to 40 mph slowed some of the final maintenance and testing on Discovery late Friday. Loading of liquid oxygen and hydrogen fuel for the spacecraft's electricity generating fuel cells, scheduled to have started at midnight, was delayed until 7 a.m. Saturday.

Ronald L. Phelps, launch preparation test director, said the countdown schedule had a planned eight-hour hold. That hold was reduced to one hour, and workmen cleared the launch pad and began loading propellants.

By then the wind had calmed considerably.

"Losing those seven hours really didn't hurt us much," Phelps said. Despite the problems, he said, the countdown has "been one of the smoothest" ever.

Discovery's liftoff is set for 8:07 a.m. Monday. Forecasters predicted improving weather through the weekend with clear skies and calm winds by launch time.

Once in orbit, the crew of five will deploy a $100 million communications satellite and conduct scientific experiments during five days in orbit.

Monday's launch will be the third since NASA's shuttle flights resumed after the hiatus that followed the explosion of the shuttle Challenger in January 1986.

Discovery's commander, Navy Capt. Michael L. Coats, and his pilot, Air Force Col. John E. Blaha, practiced shuttle landings early Saturday in a training aircraft modified to handle the shuttle. All of the crewmen later spent an hour flying T-38 jets.

Others on the crew are Marine Col. James F. Buchli, Marine Col. Robert C. Springer, and Dr. James P. Bagian, a physician.

The astronauts arrived at the Florida spaceport Friday and said that after a four-year wait they were ready for orbit.

The crew originally was named in 1985 to fly a mission the following year.

KENNEDY SPACE CENTER, FLA. — The space shuttle orbiter Discovery, left, waits out some early-morning wind. Discovery is scheduled for launch Monday with a crew of five aboard. It will carry a tracking and data relay satellite, right, which will be used to provide high-capacity voice and data links between orbiting spacecraft and Earth-bound controllers.

Discovery crew to launch communications satellite

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery's cargo bay holds a $100 million satellite whose deployment will complete an orbiting communications network and enable NASA to shut six ground stations at a savings of $3 million a month.

The astronauts' release of the 2½-ton Tracking and Data Relay Satellite into its own orbit 22,300 miles up is the main goal of the 28th space shuttle mission scheduled for liftoff here Monday morning.

The first TDRS was launched from Challenger in 1983, and Challenger was carrying a second one that was destroyed along with the seven-person crew in the disaster of Jan. 28, 1986.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration considers the TDRS system so vital to space communications that TDRS satellites were assigned to two of the first three shuttle missions after the Challenger explosion.

On the first of those missions, Discovery's crew successfully launched a TDRS last September. If the third satellite is successfully launched Monday on the third post-Challenger flight, the system will be complete, with the two newest satellites in use and the oldest one serving as a spare.

Liftoff is set for 8:07 a.m. Monday for a five-day mission, with five astronauts on board. Discovery's countdown was put on hold for seven hours Saturday morning because high winds on Friday had slowed launch preparations, but NASA said the delay should not affect the launch.

Under the current system, 14 ground stations are stationed around the globe, and the shuttle communicates with Earth by beaming messages down to whatever station is closest, which then relays the information to mission control. Because the stations are so widely spaced, astronauts aboard the shuttle can't radio Earth at all for 85 percent of the time.

With the TDRS system, the shuttle will be out of radio contact with mission control just 15 percent of the time and it will be able to transmit much more data. Instead of radioing down to a ground station, the shuttle will send and receive its messages by transmitting upward to the TDRS satellites, one high over the Atlantic and the other high above the Pacific.

Because the TDRS satellites are positioned much farther away from Earth than the shuttle in orbit, they have the vantage point that will allow the shuttle to maintain radio contact with a single ground station on Earth almost all the time.

The TDRS also will improve communications with other satellites, including some military satellites.

With its seven antennas, a TDRS satellite can transmit to the ground station at White Sands, N.M., the equivalent of a 20-volume encyclopedia in one second.

Scheduled for closing are stations at Ascension Island in the South Atlantic; Santiago, Chile; Guam; Kauai, Hawaii; Dakar, Senegal; and Yarragadee, Australia. They employ a total of nearly 400 people, and most stations date back to Mercury, America's first man-in-space program, in the early 1960s.

Three of the stations, at Madrid, Spain; Canberra, Australia; and Goldstone, Calif., will not be closed but will be used by a space project managed by the Jet Propulsion Laboratory, Pasadena, Calif.

The other five stations will provide tracking data as a shuttle is launched or is landing.

Famous Texas longhorn bull brought to capitol

By SCOTT ROTHSCILD
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN — Texas, U.S.A., the sesquicentennial bull, who gained national fame because of his unique Texas-shaped birthmark and untimely demise, returned to the state Capitol Friday.

The Longhorn bull's head has been stuffed and mounted in the office of a state legislator.

"I'm very proud to have it," said state Rep. Kim Brimer, R-Arlington. "I'm a native Texan and I think every Texan ought to be proud of the tradition of the Longhorn steer."

In 1986, Texas, U.S.A., became a mascot for the 150th anniversary of Texas' independence from Mexico. The bull had a marking on his head in the shape of a map of Texas.

But the 4-year-old, 1,500-pound bull broke his back while mating, lingered for about one month and then died.

His death seemed to typify the frustrating times in Texas as oil prices and real estate values collapsed, and the state sank into deep economic problems.

Fort Worth-area rancher Larry Smith, who owned the bull, said it was a tough decision on whether to have the animal's head mounted, but he said he felt Texans should have a chance to see the bull.

"I would have buried him intact, but I didn't really feel that was my decision," said Smith, who lives in Brimer's district and is a state Republican executive committee member.

Smith thought about having the whole body stuffed, but Texas, U.S.A. had lost some hair during the time he was immobilized after his injury, he said.

AUSTIN — State Rep. Kim Brimer, R-Arlington, directs some capitol complex employees as they hang the head of Texas, U.S.A., the sesquicentennial bull, in Brimer's capitol office.

Smith spent about $1,000 on a taxidermist to have the bull's head, with a 42-inch horn span, stuffed and then gave it to his friend Brimer, who had it displayed on the wall in his legislative office.

He said the animal, which was considered average size for his age, could have lived for another 15 years had it not been injured. Texas, U.S.A.'s remains were buried on Smith's ranch "with all due honors," he said.

Teams perform state's first 'domino' organ transplants

DALLAS (AP) — Surgeons at Baylor University Medical Center performed the state's first "domino" organ transplants during a 13-hour dual operation in which a 43-year-old Garland man became a living heart donor.

Forty doctors worked on the procedures during which chronic emphysema patient Thomas Lee of Garland received the heart and lungs of a shooting victim. His own healthy heart was then used to save the life of Burl C. Hamilton, a 64-year-old Waxahachie man who suffered from end-stage heart disease, hospital officials said.

The operations on March 9 and 10 marked Dallas' first heartlung transplant and Texas' initial "domino" transplant, which was pioneered by doctors at Baltimore's John Hopkins Hospital in May 1987, a month after the world's first successful one was performed by Dr. Magdy Yacoub at London's Harefield Hospital.

Lee was listed in serious condition at Baylor's intensive care unit late Friday, while Hamilton was listed as critical.

"We are very pleased to report that at this point, the heart-lung recipient is doing extremely well," said Dr. Peter Alivizatos, director of cardiac transplantation at Baylor, told reporters of Lee, who was listed in serious condition late Friday. "He is conversing. We are pleased as we could be."

But Hamilton remained in critical condition in the hospital's intensive care unit. "He was a very borderline, very marginal patient," Alivizatos told reporters at a news conference. "He had been waiting nine months for an organ. He was gradually losing ground."

Surgeons first replaced Lee's heart and lungs with those of a shooting victim. The entire heart and lungs were removed as a unit because lungs-only transplants still are in the experimental stages, hospital officials said.

Lee suffered from chronic emphysema which didn't damage his heart, doctors said. So Hamilton, who suffered from heart disease, received Lee's healthy heart in a subsequent operation, completing the "domino" procedure.

"The heartlung transplant is less risky to the patient whose own heart is in good condition, but whose lungs are not functioning," Alivizatos said. "With the shortage of available organs, the domino procedure allows us to save two lives with one donor."

Lee, who has had to use oxygen tanks 24 hours a day for the last six years, had been awaiting a heartlung transplant since December 1988. Hamilton, a victim of coronary artery disease who had previously undergone bypass surgery, had been on a waiting list for a donor heart since May 1988.

The two shared an unspecified rare blood type which allowed for the dual transplants, doctors said.

The donor was a gunshot victim brought to Baylor's emergency center a few days before the operations.

Life before TV: stereoscopes

GROVES (AP) — Before video recorders, TVs and home movies, Americans in the 1800s invited friends to their parlors for the latest in mass-produced visuals.

Midway through the century, Americans were introduced to the stereoscope, a French invention that allowed a viewer to see a photograph in three dimensions just as in real life.

Cards with two seemingly identical, yet slightly different, images were viewed from a few inches behind a lens. Soon everyone was looking at realistic scenes of landscapes, presidents and even nude girls, said stereoscope collector Gordon Covington.

"A common scene in every home back then was a basket full of viewing cards on the coffee table — that was their entertainment," Covington said.

He has a basket like that in his living room. But in one of his back rooms, he keeps the good stuff. There's a collection of a few dozen stereoscopes and drawers of 10,000 cards to go with them.

Covington is retired as a clerk from Texaco. Now he and his wife, Jane, are dealers at the Mercantile Antique Co-op in Nederland. He is the president of the Southeast Texas Collector's Club.

Covington has huge boxy stereoscopes, small folding ones and paper ones. A slot on one charges the viewer a penny to look. A book about the White Mountains in New Hampshire has lenses built right into the cover.

His neatly organized cards show images of pre-war manufacturing, rural life, disasters and even comedy series. Time-delayed photographs of the moon and planets look ready to orbit off the card.

"You can name a subject, and they've made a picture of it," he said.

Early cards were made of tin, glass or cardboard-like paper. Later, the black-and-white images were hand-tinted. One of Covington's tissue paper cards, called Satan's Courtroom, shows colored skeletons and demons. Tiny holes in the demons' eyes make them appear to glow.

Covington showed cards that optometrists used to check eyes. Rabbits appeared to jump into a box. "You can do all kinds of weird tricks with these things," he said.

Covington said stereoscopes were very popular until about the 1930s, but the 3-D photo concept is not obsolete yet. He has a two-lensed camera he used to record both of his daughters' weddings.

Covington will display his stereoscopes at the D. Bob Henson Memorial Library this month.

Teens to get birth control, AIDS advice

AUSTIN (AP) — Abused, and neglected teen-agers taken into custody by the Texas Department of Human Services will soon receive birth-control and AIDS counseling as part of an expanded sex-education effort, officials say.

In addition, the agency is drawing up plans for all AIDS-prone children under its custody — from infants to adolescents — to undergo testing for the disease, the Atstin American-Statesman reported Saturday.

Kathleen Hamilton, head of DHS' Child Protective Services Division, said the sex-education programs will be offered only to children older than 14 under DHS conservatorship. But the AIDS education will be offered to foster parents and DHS staff members as well, she said.

Serpentologist William Haast admits to an obsession with snakes, especially the poisonous variety. He was back to work this past week after recovering from the bite of a deadly pit viper.

Snake-bit man makes his story; He lives but deadly serpent dies

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — The first time William Haast brought home poisonous snakes, his horrified mother left home for three days. She came back only because she realized her son's interest wasn't about to slither away.

At 78, Haast remains a self-described "snake-aholic," who has kept his energy and enthusiasm though he just weathered his 148th snake bite. It is not surprising it was the viper, not Haast, who passed on.

Haast is founder and director of the Miami Serpentarium Laboratories, which he started in Miami in 1946. He relocated the lab to Salt Lake City five years ago to concentrate on venom research and production.

Haast claims to be the first to standardize snake venom and produce it for research use. His clients include Wyeth Laboratories, the only producer of antivenins in North America, and almost every university in the country. He also has helped foster research into the use of venom against such diseases as polio, multiple sclerosis and AIDS.

Haast was in his lab collecting venom from a Pakistani pit viper Feb. 28 when the serpent bit his left thumb. Not overly concerned, he waited to see if the weekly venom injections he has given himself for 40 years would provide immunity to the poison.

When the bite was still bleeding after 24 hours, he took himself to the hospital and was diagnosed in critical condition, the venom robbing his blood of the ability to clot. Doctors said he could have bled to death from a bump or fall.

"I guess I excited every hematologist (blood doctor) in town," he said. "They dug up all the information they had on snake bites."

Haast, who was released from the hospital Wednesday, praised the extraordinary efforts in his behalf to obtain antivenins from California, England, the Soviet Union and even from private sources in Iran. A White House aide helped contact foreign sources and ease passage of the medicines through Customs.

"Those people involved in getting the antivenins are the heroes of the story," he said. "All I am the result of an accident." Haast's condition started improving after he received the serum from California, and doctors in the end opted not to use the foreign serums.

The night before Haast was bitten, he and Nancy Harrell, who helps direct the lab, went to a local steak house for what she called "anything goes day."

Sometimes at the end of the month Haast abandons a strict routine that includes eating animal protein only on even-numbered days and never touching refined sugar. This night, he consumed four chocolate sundaes.

"When I let myself go, I really let go," he said.

Small town torn by Iranian hostage ordeal

BATAVIA, N.Y. (AP) — The Rev. David Scheider is having a difficult time practicing what he preaches when it comes to Middle East hostage Terry Anderson.

Scheider has been urging residents of Anderson's hometown in upstate New York not to despair over the journalist's nearly four years of captivity in Beirut, Lebanon.

"We Americans are an action-oriented people. It's so difficult for us to sit back and just pray," he said.

Anderson, chief Middle East correspondent for The Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, by Moslem extremists in Beirut and has been held the longest of 12 foreign hostages.

Residents of Batavia will gather this week to observe the anniversary of Anderson's abduction.

"There isn't a person in town who doesn't know who Terry is and who doesn't regret what's happened to him," said Steven Hawley, a high school classmate of Anderson, a 1965 graduate of Batavia High School.

Batavia, a city of 17,000 located 35 miles east of Buffalo, has shown its concern. To mark the third anniversary of Anderson's capture, hundreds of residents donned yellow ribbons and marched in a candlelight vigil. And people turned out by the thousands to sign greeting cards that were sent to Beirut for his 41st birthday last October.

However, the events masked deep anxiety within the community over what to do about the hostages.

Many people support Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, who has traveled throughout the world, urging national leaders to work for her brother's release.

However, her outspokenness, including complaints that American officials have not done enough for the hostages, has put off some members of the community.

Batavia is a conservative town built around a Veterans Administration hospital with a sign that reads "The Price Of Freedom Is Visible Here."

Some people even considered Mrs. Say unpatriotic for criticizing the Reagan administration, said Hawley, a Republican legislator in Genesee County.

Even Mrs. Say's supporters, such as Ann Zickl, acknowledge that her comments were difficult for some people to accept.

"She's a strong, strong woman and this is a traditional community," Mrs. Zickl said.

Some questioned whether negative attention generated by Mrs. Say's comments served the captors' purposes.

"At some point, many people began to wonder whether the media attention may have been responsible for prolonging things," said Kathy Conley, another classmate of Anderson who had been active on his behalf. "And, I think I might agree that his captors certainly know what an issue he has become."

Mrs. Say acknowledges that the situation became politicized, but she insists she had no other option but to speak out.

Former hostages have told Mrs. Say that Anderson's captors would kill him if they thought Americans had forgotten him.

"My path is clear," she said. "We've got to keep the pressure on because that's what has kept Terry alive."

Mrs. Say spoke from her home in Cadiz, Ky., where she said she and her husband, David, moved last year for privacy.

She has returned to Batavia several times to meet with supporters and for interviews with the local media, and was expected to return Sunday for an ecumenical service at Notre Dame High School.

Her supporters say attitudes are changing.

"You don't hear real criticism of her anymore," said Terry Fritts, the host of a talk show on local radio station WBTA. "I think people understand better what she was trying to do now."

"There is also a lot of sympathy for her and her family," Ms. Fritts added.

Trucker gets 4-years in ramming rampage

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A trucker described by his family as a gentle man driven to desperation by personal problems has been sentenced to four years in prison for a car-ramming rampage that terrorized motorists for 40 miles.

Although a county probation report recommended that Charley Tom Lee be placed on supervised probation, Superior Court Judge Judith Chirlin sentenced him to state prison, saying his actions had instilled fear and terror in drivers.

She said some people had told her: "This was the commuter's greatest fear, as reliant as we are on our cars and the freeways."

Lee, 26, of Haltom City, Texas, pleaded guilty Nov. 18 to five counts of assault with a deadly weapon. He has been jailed since the May 18 incident in which about 30 cars were rammed but no one was injured.

He drove at speeds of up to 80 mph from Temple City to Los Angeles before California Highway Patrol officers stopped him at gunpoint on the Hollywood Freeway.

In a letter to the judge, Lee apologized and said he still could not explain the outburst.

His mother, grandmother and wife testified that Lee was a non-violent, responsible family man before the incident.

Lee's wife, Tammy, said he had been disturbed about being unable to support his family adequately. His mother, Billie Lee, noted that his father had attempted suicide several months before the rampage.

Student, 11, suspended in hair flap

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — The mother of an elementary school pupil has ruled out the barbershop for her son even though he was suspended because of what school officials contend is a martini glass design shaved on his scalp.

The school principal said Thursday the hair design, which the mother contends is an hourglass, encourages alcohol abuse.

"My son has missed three weeks of school because of a haircut," said Debra Muhammad, whose 11-year-old son, Isaiah, attends Robert E. Lee Elementary School. "I've never heard of anything like this in my life. I could see if he was a troublemaker. But for a haircut?"

Mrs. Muhammad said Isaiah's older brother has the same hourglass design carved in his hair.

Principal Gregory Muzik said all the youngster has to do to get reinstated is get a haircut. "I'm not saying the child is out of school forever," he said. "There has to be some willingness to cooperate."

Hair carvings have become popular among students, Muzik said. Most designs depict the name of sports heroes or somebody's initials and are no problem. But any design that seems to encourage drug or alcohol abuse or Satanism is prohibited, the principal said.

Only one other Lee pupil has run afoul of the rule, Muzik said, and that boy's parents promptly took him to a barbershop. But Mrs. Muhammad said a haircut for Isaiah is out of the question.

"It's the principle," she said. "Other kids have the same haircut, but he has been singled out."

Isaiah was suspended under the Richmond school division's standards of student conduct, which give principals wide latitude in enforcing rules on appearance, Muzik said.

Muzik conceded the design in the boy's hair could be subject to interpretation and said it is unlikely an 11-year-old even knows what a martini is.

Cute camel

Spock, the new Bactrian camel at the Brookfield Zoo, makes his first public appearance Friday with his mother, Carol, since his birth Feb. 18. Spock currently weighs in at around 200 pounds, up from 120 pounds at birth. He is the tenth Bactrian camel born at the zoo. Bactrian camels are natives of central Asia, have two humps and are hairier than the dromedary camel.

Mixed up moms take wrong kids

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Rosetta Kirks had been nursing her newborn son for three weeks when she noticed he looked small. Then she realized she'd been given the wrong infant.

Today, she's back home with her real 9-pound son, Nicolas.

"I'm sure this is the right one," a beaming Ms. Kirks, 30, of Inglewood, said Friday night as she cradled the boy. "I'm just glad to have my baby back."

Genetic tests completed earlier Friday confirmed Nicolas was Ms. Kirks' son and that she had received the wrong infant when she left the maternity ward at Kaiser Permanente Medical Center.

"Based on our own investigation and corroborating blood tests, it appears that two infants were in fact discharged to the wrong sets of parents," said Kaiser spokeswoman Janice Seib.

The hospital was investigating the apparent mix-up and reviewing its procedures, Ms. Seib said.

"Both families and infants have gone home with the right people," she said. "As far as we're concerned, that's it."

But the attorney for Ms. Kirks and Tommy Milligan, the father, told reporters he will work to see such mix-ups don't occur again at Kaiser.

"Something's wrong or faulty. Nobody should be put through what those people have been put through. The hospital shouldn't have done that," said attorney Jerome J. Eisenberg.

The other parents, identified as Nicholas and Firdowsa Amad Mallet of Baldwin Hills, couldn't be reached for comment. Hospital officials said they wanted privacy.

Both babies were born at Kaiser on Feb. 11.

Ms. Kirks became suspicious last Sunday when she looked at a photograph taken just after her son's birth and noticed the infant she was caring for seemed smaller, said Gene Murphy, a spokesman for Eisenberg.

"That baby had chubby cheeks, and the one she had at home had 'itty bitty' cheeks," Murphy said.

Ms. Kirks' son was 21 inches long and weighed 9 pounds, 3 ounces at birth, said Shelly Shellmire, another spokesman for Eisenberg. The baby Ms. Kirks had gone home with initially was 18 inches long and weighed 6 pounds, she said.

"She got nervous," Shellmire said. "She went to the dresser and got the baby's arm band and discovered that it had a different name on the arm band."

The mother then took the baby back to Kaiser and asked for her son.

Crossroads Country Honor Roll

A Wise choice for MVP

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

In a year where post players dominated area girls' basketball teams, one player stood — at least figuratively — heads and shoulders above the rest.

Tami Wise, a six-foot senior from Big Spring High School, was the main cog in the Lady Steers' drive to a third consecutive district title and has been selected as the Most Valuable Player of the Herald's Crossroads Country's Basketball Honor Roll girls' team.

Wise was a force on both ends of the court, averaging 23 points a game on offense and 10 rebounds and nine blocked shots a game on defense.

Her scoring power and defensive ability were the main reasons District 4-4A coaches unanimously named her the league's most valuable player.

But it is Wise's work ethic that most impresses her coach.

"I've said it before that it wasn't something that just happened; it didn't come naturally," Big Spring mentor C.E. Carmichael said of Wise's talent. "She worked so hard that she became a basketball player."

"She's gone from being a freshman who wasn't very aggressive and lacked confidence, to where the only person in her class is (All-State player Sherry) Swoopes (of Brownfield). Some college coach is going to be very fortunate to sign Tami Wise," Carmichael added.

But Wise isn't the only talented post player in the area this past season, as indicated by two other girls who are Honor Roll first-team selections.

Coahoma Bulldogette Kelly Williams, a 5'11" junior, was her team's leading scorer and a major reason for the Bulldogettes reaching the state playoffs.

Williams averaged 17 points a game on offense and 10 rebounds a game on defense, and is a two-time all-district selection. She was District 7-3A's outstanding sophomore for the 1987-88 season.

Her coach, Truman Meissner, said that Kelly's quickness helps her on the court.

"She has real good speed on the court and jumping ability," he said. "She takes the ball to the basket real well and has

Shellman is tops for boys

By STEVE BELVIN
Sports Editor

Big Spring Steers guard Abner Shellman highlights the initial Crossroads Country Basketball Honor Roll, heading a first team that has a strong outside touch. Joining Shellman is teammate Doug Young, along with Sands' Damian Zarate at the guard spots. The low post players are Klondike's Clint Kirkland and Colorado City's Dane Hoover, although Kirkland is more of a perimeter player.

Also highlighting the team is Big Spring coach Boyce Paxton who gets Coach of the Year honors. Paxton nosed out Colorado City's Chuck Claxton and Klondike's Mark Styles. Claxton, in his first year, led Colorado City to the area round of the state playoffs. Styles led Klondike to the regional tournament.

Paxton, in his third season at Big Spring, has transformed a sleeping program into a perennial winner. The Steers won their first district championship in 31 years. Big Spring finished with a 20-12 record, losing to Lubbock Dunbar in the area playoffs.

The previous two seasons before Paxton arrived at Big Spring, the Steers were 11-44. In Paxton's three seasons, the Steers are 61-35.

Shellman, a 5-11 senior guard, did it all. He was always a good scorer, but this season he improved to a top defensive player, said Paxton.

Shellman averaged 21 points and seven rebounds per game. He also averaged four steals and four assists per contest. He shot 51 percent from the floor and 69 percent from the line.

Paxton said Shellman had an all-star season, but was disgruntled Andrews' Gym Bice was named the 4-4A MVP instead of Shellman.

"Abner Shellman had a great year. I'm disappointed he didn't get the MVP," said Paxton. "Gym Bice loaded up on the other teams in the district. But when he played us, we shut him down."

"Abner is a very unselfish player. He was our most consistent player. He worked hard and

Glenn's four round-trippers lead Hawks

By STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

No banners were unfurled and no proclamations were issued, but for all practical purposes, Saturday was Darrin Glenn Day at Jack Barber Field.

Glenn, the Howard College Hawks' shortstop, hit four home runs and drove in 11 runs over two games to lead the Hawks to a 13-1, 11-4 doubleheader sweep of the Angelina College Roadrunners in non-conference action.

With the sweep, the Hawks improve their record to 17-4 for the season. Angelina's record falls to 2-14.

Glenn was particularly devastating in the first game, going a perfect three-for-three from the plate with three homers and seven RBIs.

"I'm just seeing the ball well, I guess," the El Paso native said. "I've been in a slump and I've been trying to break out of it. I decided to hit the ball hard and see what happened. Luckily, they went out."

First game

The Hawks scored four runs in the first inning and never looked back en route to a 13-1 destruction of the Roadrunners. The game was called after five innings because of the 10-run rule.

Starting pitcher Curt Schmidt went the distance for the Hawks, allowing three hits while striking out one and walking two to improve his record to 4-1.

The Hawk batters, meanwhile, had a field day against Angelina pitchers Rodd Hairston and Ronald Gary. Howard's batters, led by Glenn and Michael Bard with three hits each, rapped 13 hits over four innings.

The Hawks wasted no time in scoring, notching four runs in the first inning.

After leadoff hitter Jose Rubiera reached base on an error, Bard brought him home with a perfectly executed hit-and-run single to right field. Two outs later, Glenn blasted a Hairston fastball over the left field fence, scoring Bard and designated hitter Todd Kolbicka.

The Hawks' big inning came in the third when they plated six runners.

Gerry Camara led off with a single, stole second and went to third on a passed ball. Hairston then walked Kolbicka before Glenn smacked his second homer of the afternoon, again over the left-field fence for a three-run homer.

Right fielder Paul Sphyalski then singled and came home on a double from first baseman Kenny Frederick, who himself scored when Rubiera ripped a double to left center field.

Rubiera scored the last run of the inning when he was brought home on Bard's double.

Meanwhile, Schmidt had little trouble from the Roadrunners. He didn't allow a score until the fifth inning, when James Pickett scored on a single from Brandon Legendre.

"Everything was getting over; the curveball, everything," Schmidt said. "For as young as (the pitching staff) is, we're doing pretty good. We've got some good arms on this staff."

Howard added three more runs in the fourth inning. Glenn hit his third homer of the game, then catcher Brian Betancourt singled and came home when Frederick lifted one of Gary's pitches over the right field fence.

The Hawks put an Angelina comeback to rest by scoring four runs — three on Glenn's final homer of the day — in the sixth inning to down the Roadrunners, 11-4, in the nightcap.

Howard starter Ruben Felix surrendered three hits and four runs in four innings' work to take his second win of the season against no losses. Greg Kroeger pitched the last three innings to notch the save.

Arkansas men win sixth indoor crown

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Dawn Sowell led Louisiana State to its second title in three years and a relay world best, and jumper Edrick Floreal carried Arkansas to a record sixth straight men's title Saturday night at the NCAA Indoor Track and Field championships.

World bests were set by LSU's women's team in the 1,600-meter relay and by Clemson in the 3,200 relay. Hollis Conway, the 1988 Olympic silver medalist in the men's high jump, set an American record of 7 feet, 9 1/4 inches.

Sowell, a former high school standout who became so frustrated with her progress in 1987 that she gave up the sport temporarily, was the key to LSU's victory.

She won the 200 Friday night in a meet-record 22.96 seconds, then came back Saturday night and took the 55 in 6.62 before anchoring LSU's relay team that clocked 3:33.98.

However, since the team included one foreigner — Opal Cunningham of Jamaica — LSU's time cannot be submitted for a world record under international rules that stipulate all runners must be from the same country.

Nevertheless, LSU's time was far superior to the listed world record of 3:34.38 set by a West German team in 1981.

With four first-place finishes, including Tananjalyn Stanley's victory in the 55-meter high hurdles Friday in a meet-record 7.47, one second place, two thirds and a sixth, LSU finished with 61 points.

"If you max yourself out and give yourself first and second all the way down the road, we lost only a few points," LSU coach Loren Seagrave said.

In beating runner-up Villanova by 27 points, the Lady Tigers finished with the biggest winning margin since the women joined the NCAA in 1983.

Villanova's 34 points put the Wildcats 10 ahead of 1988 champion Texas and Alabama, which tied for third with 24 apiece. Indiana finished fifth with 31.

Arkansas' victory was much more hard-earned.

The Razorbacks, who have won every men's title since 1984, collected only 34 points — the same total they had last year — in edging Florida, second with 31. It was Arkansas' closest margin during its six-year streak.

Floreal, a Canadian, accounted for more than half the Razorbacks' points. After finishing second in the long jump Friday night, he scored a clutch victory in the triple jump Saturday, soaring 56-2 1/4. He needed to finish first or second in the triple jump for Arkansas to win.

Arkansas scored in only two other events, with Joe Falcon repeating as mile champion in 3:58.06 and Reuben Reina placing third in the 5,000 meters.

Scoring was on a 10-8-6-4-2-1 basis.

Clemson's performance of 7:17.45 in the men's relay went under the accepted world record of 7:17.8 set by the Soviet Union national team in 1971. But like LSU's relay team, it had at least one foreigner.

In Clemson's case, there were two foreigners — Phil Greyling of South Africa and Dennis Hines of Jamaica.

There was nothing to negate Conway's brilliant effort. He cleared 7-3, 7-5 and 7-7 on his first attempts, before breaking Jimmy Howard's American record of 7-8 3/4, also on his first try. He then had the bar moved to 7-10 1/2, but missed three times.

Officials cool to name change

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Landry is a big name, but Irving city officials say they don't think it is one they would like to hang over their stadium.

City Council members, shrugging off increasing pressure to change Texas Stadium's name to honor the recently replaced Dallas Cowboys coach, say they are cool to the idea.

And at least two council members suggested that maybe Dallas residents spearheading the move should instead push to rename the Dallas-Fort Worth International Airport after Landry. Council member John Danish said noted that "he flew in and out of there every other weekend."

"Oh my goodness," responded Dallas City Council member Lori Palmer upon hearing Irving city officials are bristling over name change pressure. "I hope Irving leaders don't become oversensitive about this. I think it is a great idea."

The Dallas Morning News polled eight of the nine Irving city council members to see if they were interested in changing the name of the city-owned stadium.

Irving Mayor Bob Pierce and two council members said opposite a change, four are leaning against it, and one told the Dallas newspaper that it would be acceptable if proposed by new owner Jerry Jones.

Dallas city officials have scheduled a Tom Landry Appreciation Day on April 22. Activities will include a parade, a recognition ceremony and a flag football game between Dallas Cowboys and Washington Redskins oldtimers.

San Jac eliminates Odessa Wranglers

FORT WORTH — Fourth-ranked San Jacinto opened a nine-point halftime lead and held off the second ranked Odessa College Wranglers for a 84-78 win Friday in men's bi-regional junior college playoff action at Wilkerson-Grimes Fieldhouse.

The Wranglers, champions of the Western Junior College Athletic Conference and Region V, saw their season end at 33-2. It marked the second consecutive year Odessa suffered a heart-breaking loss in the playoffs. Last year, the Wranglers dropped a 79-71 overtime decision to Jacksonville in bi-regional action.

The perennially strong Ravens now advance to the National Junior College Athletic Association national tournament March 14-18 in Hutchinson, Kan.

Odessa's Larry Johnson, who averaged 30 points and 17 rebounds per game, was limited to 16 points and 17 rebounds. The Wranglers were unable to contain San Jacinto's Darrell Reed, who scored 26 points, including three three-pointers. Isaiah Morris added 19 for the Ravens, who improve to 33-3.

Lynn Collins paced the Wranglers with 29 points, including six three-pointers. Pat Nash added 11.

ODESSA (78) — Nolan 0 11; Jackson 2 26; Johnson 6 4 16; Nash 4 0 11; Collins 10 3 29; Sullivan 3 0 6; Freeman 2 3 7; totals 27 13-22 78.

Selection committee busy at work

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Nine men meeting behind locked doors and protected by armed guards this weekend have a word for teams like Rutgers.

They call them at-large eaters. And if very many of them appear this year, they will have a big impact on who makes the 64-team NCAA Tournament and where they're sent when the field is unveiled Sunday afternoon.

Coming out of nowhere, at-large eaters grab one of the NCAA's 30 automatic bids by pulling off an upset in a conference postseason tournament, as Rutgers did Friday in the Atlantic 10. With an 18-12 record, Rutgers would merit small consideration for one of the 34 at-large berths that fill out the field.

But by locking up their league's automatic, they may force the selection committee to spend an at-large on somebody who would ordinarily figure to get in with an automatic — such as the Atlantic 10's Temple Owls.

"The at-large eaters provide us with an entrant that otherwise wouldn't be there," said Jim Delany, Ohio Valley Commissioner and chairman-designate of the committee. "It means there is one fewer at-large position. And it can put more pressure on the committee."

The committee does not necessarily scorn at-large eaters.

The NCAA's steadfast policy has been to encourage growing interest in college basketball by guaranteeing lesser conferences and teams a place in the tournament. And going from a 7-22 record last year to this year's NCAA field is certain to excite interest on the Rutgers campus in New Jersey.

"Upsets are part of the beauty of basketball," said Delany. "We've had as many as five or six conference tournament upsets in a year, and we've had years when there was none."

With no way of knowing how many at-large eaters would rise up to complicate things, the committee sequestered itself Friday morning, beginning marathon deliberations.

Befitting its hard-won stature among the country's premier sporting events, the NCAA Tournament is taking on even more the trappings of importance. For the first time, the committee blocked off the entire top floor of Kansas City's Hyatt Regency Hotel for the weekend and posted armed guards at the elevator door.

"I don't know if we'll need the security, but we'll need the time," said Tom Jernstedt, an associate NCAA executive director and chairman of the tournament. "I think this year it could be more difficult than ever to seed teams at the higher levels and to assign them to the various sites."

Another complicating new twist is a rule that outlaws the home court advantage. This could work to the disadvantage of top-ranked Arizona since the Wildcats can't play on their home court in Tucson in the first round of the West Regional.

But the committee has not outlawed the "home crowd" advantage, which possibly could work to the great benefit of teams like Indiana and Georgia Tech, to name only two.

"The No. 1 objective is to balance the bracket," Jernstedt said. "So we seed each of the four regionals one through 16, evaluate teams, and then determine where they should be sent. At the higher level of competition, there appears to be more parity than ever before, which will make that judgement even tougher, and it's never been easy."

Making teams ineligible to play tournament games on their home floor was supposed to be done in 1991, but the committee moved it to this year while conceding that several apparent discrepancies may arise.

Wherever a team plays 50 percent or more of its games is declared its home court. Thus, Arizona cannot be at Tucson for the first round.

But Indiana, a possible No. 1 seed in the Midwest, may wind up playing tournament games before the friendly folks at the Hoosier Dome in Indianapolis since Bobby Knight's team is officially "home" in Bloomington.

Georgia Tech may play in the Omni in Atlanta, which is just a few miles from its campus and certain to offer the Yellow Jackets all the comforts of home. Another home crowd situation could arise at Greensboro, N. Car., with whatever Atlantic Coast Conference teams are assigned there.

"This will be our next controversy," Jernstedt said. "For years, it was 'How can the NCAA permit teams to play on their home courts?' We discussed it and discussed it with all interested parties."

Finally, the committee voted not to let teams play on their home court. But the committee is very hesitant to move into the home crowd question because what is a home crowd? Does this mean North Carolina State cannot play at Charlotte? That St. John's can't play at East Rutherford? You can go right down the line.

"If we said you can't play in front of a home crowd, then we're going to end up with some empty buildings and do a real disservice to the fans and the tournament. The committee believes it's taken a big step to preclude teams from the home court."

Steers win one in tourney

LUBBOCK — The Big Spring Steers baseball team got whalloped by the Lubbock Estacado Matadors in the first game of the Lubbock Public Schools Invitational baseball tournament, but bounced back to nip Lubbock Dunbar, but lost to Frenship in the nightcap Friday.

Estacado scored 10 runs in the second inning on its way to a 17-9 win over the Steers in the first game. The Matadors pieced together 17 hits against Big Spring pitching. Dimas Morales took the loss for Big Spring. Timmy Gutierrez relieved him in the sixth inning.

The Steers got nine hits in the game and was led by left fielder Robert Perez, who hit two homers and a double. Marvin Rubio, Jason Phillips and Kevin Rodgers all tripled for the Steers.

In the second game the Steers rallied for three runs in the seventh inning to nip the Dunbar Panthers 9-8.

Chris Crownover picked up the win for Big Spring. Gutierrez also pitched in the victory.

The Steers got 10 hits in the game. The only extra base hit was a double by Terry Ward.

The Steers moved their record to 4-3 for the season.

The Steers only managed three hits and dropped a 4-2 decision to the Frenship Tigers.

Freddie Rodriguez took the loss for Big Spring. He went six innings and was relieved by Mike Hilario in the seventh. Perez, Hilario and Rodriguez each got a hit for the Steers.

Big Spring falls to 4-4 for the season.

Gonzales sets 800 mark

ODESSA — Ben Gonzales was the big bright spot for the Big Spring track teams as the Steers and Lady Steers competed in the West Texas Relays, which concluded Saturday.

Gonzales set a new meet and Big Spring High School record in the 800 meters. The Big Spring senior blazed around the track twice in a time of 1:55.50. The time breaks the old record of 1:56.9 set by Javier Calderon in 1982.

"Ben ran a very tackful race, said coach Randy Britton. "A kid from Lubbock Dunbar ran a 52 first quarter. Ben set back and ran a 56. He told me he could've run faster. Still that's pretty salty for this time of the year."

The Steers scored 40 points and finished eighth. Lubbock Dunbar won the meet with 109 points. Andrews was second with 99 and Estacado was third with 75 points.

Gonzales proved to be a double winner by taking the 1600 meters in 4:40. The next best Big Spring finish was a third place throw of 151-0 by Pete Buske in the discus. Chris Minter ran a 51.0 and placed third in the 400. "If Chris had run the backstretch he could have run in the low 50's," said Britton.

Tim Pruitt ran a 51.1 and finished fourth. Chris Polyniak ran a 10:48 to finish fourth in the 3200. Junior hurdler Rye Bavin ran a 15.2 in the 110 high hurdles prelims, but pulled a groin muscle and was held out of the finals.

The 1600 meter relay team of Nick Robertson (56.0); Tim Pruitt (51.3); Chris Minter (50.6); Gonzales (50.1) ran a 3:28.0 in the prelims, but was pulled from the finals because of injuries. "Pruitt was the only one that felt good. We've got a lot of injuries right now. Our fastest sprinter, Dennis Hartfield didn't run because of a pulled muscle. We'll try to get them healthy by next Saturday," said Britton.

The Big Spring girls scored four points in the meet. Senior discus thrower Tracy Schaffner tossed the oval plate 105-0.

"It was a very tough meet because the girls just had one division," said Big Spring coach Greg Hogue. "It was good competition for us though. It will help us prepare for district."

Both the Steers and Lady Steers will compete in the Canyon Reef Relays Saturday in Snyder.

Freeman third for Steer golfers

SWEETWATER — Chad Freeman shot a sizzling round of 73 Saturday to lead the Big Spring Steers to a second place finish in the Sweetwater Invitational golf tournament Saturday.

Freeman finished as the third medalist in the tournament, shooting a 78 Friday. Saturday the Big Spring junior came back with a one-over-par 73 for the best round of the day, finishing with a 36-hole total 151.

Sweetwater's Tony Lara was top medalist with a 148. Teammate Michael Torres was one stroke back at 149. Both Torres and Lara shot 76 on the second day.

Sweetwater won the tournament with a 315-312 for a 627 36-hole total. Big Spring shot a 327 on the first day and followed with a 321 on Saturday, for a total of 648. Andrews finished 13 strokes behind the Steers.

For the Steers, Chris Sims followed Freeman with an 80-77 for a 157. Junior Jon Hernandez shot a 168.

For the Big Spring B team, freshmen Jon Sims and James Welch played strong tournaments. Freeman shot a 86-78 for 164, while Welch shot a 87-84 for 171.

Big Spring coach Don Cook praised the play of his underclassmen. "Chad Freeman played well, he had a super round today (Saturday)," said Cook. "He's been playing real well the last two tournaments. Jon Hernandez played well also but Chad Sims didn't have one of his better tournaments. My two freshmen kids on the B team (Jon Sims and Welch) played real well. If I had had Jon on the A team we might have one that thing."

The Steers will begin district play Saturday in Fort Stockton.

Forsan golfer finishes second

MCCAMEY — Forsan golfer Brian Stone fired a 76 to finish as second medalist in the McCamey Invitational golf tournament Saturday afternoon.

The top medalist was Tim Segura of McCamey who shot a 70. Copie Davis Ozona was third with a 78.

Jeff Cook of Forsan finished 13th with a 96 and Dave Rundell was 20th with a 105.

McCamey won the tournament with a 337.

Phillies finally win first game

By The Associated Press
Thlly Mark Salas' homer in four innings. Ernie Whitt drove in a pair of runs and Lloyd Moseby homered for the Blue Jays and is now 10 for 20 for the spring with four RBI.

The White Sox committed four errors for the second straight game.

Astros 13, Dodgers 3
Gerald Young had three hits and drove in three runs as Houston scored 12 times in the fifth and sixth innings. With the scored tied 1-1, Young doubled to start a three-run rally in the fifth that was capped by Cesar Cedeno's two-run triple. The Astros sent 14 batters to the plate in the sixth, scoring nine runs on seven hits, three walks and an error. Dan Scarpetta started the inning and faced six batters, but got nobody out.

Angels 9, Brewers 5
Lance Parrish and Devon White drove in three runs each and Johnny Ray had three singles and two RBI for the Angels. Olympic hero Jim Abbott pitched three innings in relief, retiring the first three batters he faced before allowing two hits and two runs.

Athletics 6, Giants 2
Mark McGwire had two homers, his third and fourth of the spring, to account for three of Oakland's runs. McGwire is 10-for-20 and has hit safely in all seven games he has played. Glenn Hubbard had a solo homer for the Athletics, and Bob Welch pitched five innings, giving up one run and four hits while walking two.

hits and 11 runs. Shepard suffered his third loss of the season against one victory.

As in the first game, Howard began its scoring in the first inning. With one out, Rubiera doubled to right field and scored when third baseman Gerry Camara reached base on an error. Left fielder David Wallace, who had walked earlier, also scored on the play.

Howard added a run in the second when Shawn Wyss reached base when he was hit by a pitch, advanced to second when Spychalski walked and scored on Rubiera's

The Hawks struck for two more runs in the third. Glenn hit a one-out single to left field and scored on a triple by right fielder Michael Hughes. Hughes later scored on a single from Wyss.

Angelina began mounting a comeback in the next inning. With one out, Ramiro DeLeon reached base on a fielder's choice. The next batter, right fielder Dustin Smith, then powered a Felix pitch over the left field fence for a two-run homer.

Howard countered with two runs in its half of the inning. Camara reached on an error, stole second base and came home on Bard's second triple of the day. Bard then scored on a sacrifice fly from Glenn.

The Roadrunners chased Felix in the next inning. Shane Stelly doubled, and Mike Widner and John Thompson walked, loading the bases. HC assistant coach Frank Anderson then replaced Felix with Kroeger, who promptly surrendered a run-scoring single to Legendre.

Angelina added another run in the inning when Widner scored on a groundout, but Kroeger forced Broderick Valentine to pop to short and DeLeon to ground out to first to escape further damage.

The Hawks settled the issue with their four-run sixth. With one out, Wallace singled, Camara walked and Bard collected his third RBI of the game with a single to right field that scored Wallace.

The next batter, Glenn, then took one pitch for a ball before blasting a Shepard curve ball over the left field fence for his fourth and final homer of the afternoon. The drive also drove in Camara and Bard.

"This year, this has been the best two games I've had," Glenn said. "I thought I played pretty good in the field and at the plate. . . . Sometimes, you just see the ball well and get into a rhythm."

The Hawks return to action Tuesday when they host a doubleheader with Texas Southmost College, beginning at 1 p.m. at Jack Barber Field.

made everybody else work harder. He was a leader by example," Paxton concluded.

Teammate Doug Young started the season slow, but at the end he was perhaps Big Spring's best clutch performer. The 5-11 senior averaged 14 points and four four assists per game. He shot 48 percent from both the floor and field, and was one of the district's best three-point shooters, shooting 36 percent.

"Doug Young really came on strong as the season went on," said Paxton. "I wanted him to play the whole court and he started doing it. He rebounded, scored and played good defense."

Damian Zarate, a 5-8 senior guard, led the Sands Mustangs to the brink of the state playoffs and a 21-11 record. Zarate averaged 19 points, three assists, three rebounds and four steals per game. He shot 44 percent from the field and 62 percent from the line. He was 41 percent from three-point range.

Sands coach Jerry Gooch says Zarate is a "good scorer, a good shooter, who plays intelligent. He's real real good man-to-man defensive player," said Gooch. "Damian was a floor leader. He scored more points than anything off his defense."

Brad Holland, a 6-0 senior guard, led the Stanton Buffalos to a state playoff berth while being named the district's MVP.

Holland had a nice outside shooting touch and general good court say. He averaged 18 points, and four assists per game.

Clint Kirkland, a 6-0 wing, led Klondike to the state playoffs for the second consecutive season. The three-year starter overcame a serious ankle sprain early in the season, to come back and lead Klondike to a 21-13 record and a regional tournament berth.

Kirkland averaged 16 points, five rebounds and three steals per game.

Colorado City City junior Dane Hoover is the big man on the starting team. The 6-4 post player helped Colorado City to the area playoffs, where the Wolves were defeated by Decatur 61-49. C-City finished with an 15-14 record.

Hoover was District 7-3A's second leading scorer, averaging 21 points per game. He also averaged seven rebounds and shot 55 percent from the field.

good inside moves to get it in the basket."

Joining Williams at the post position is Elana Himes, a 5'10" senior from Borden County High School. The all-star led the Lady Coyotes in scoring with a 15.5 per-game average and shot 50 percent from the field this season.

The all-district performer was equally effective on defense, leading her team in rebounds with a 7.3 per-game average. Elana also contributed 87 steals for the 27-2 Lady Coyotes.

"Elana's probably the most physically dominating player I've ever coached," Borden County head coach Bill May said. "Just her aggressiveness alone can be intimidating, but she can be a finesse player when the need occurs."

Fellow Lady Coyote Lisha Sternadel, who also won all-district recognition, is the Honor Roll's first-team forward.

Sternadel, a 5'7" junior, scored at a clip of 11.4 points per game and shot 42 percent from the field for Borden County, the champion of District 16-A.

She also was a force on defense, grabbing 5.6 rebounds per game. Lisha had 116 steals, leading the Lady Coyotes in that department.

"Lisha's probably one of the best defensive players I've coached — and that comes from her aggressiveness," May said. "She's totally convinced that every loose ball on the floor is her's, so she comes up with quite a few steals."

"She's quick, and anticipates the ball well," May added. "She's one of those kids you love to have."

But not all of the area talent was limited to the inside players. There were several outstanding guards on Crossroad Country-area teams this season, and two — Big Spring's Peggy Smith and Stanton's Kelli Glaspie — were selected as the best at that position.

Smith, a 5'3" junior, is the Honor Roll's point guard. She scored an average of 11 points a game and was a first-team all-district selection. Smith was most effective shooting from the outside and was Big Spring's main three-point threat. She set a school record by making seven three-pointers in a game against Snyder this season.

She also was an effective floor leader, averaging nine assists a game. On defense, Smith averaged six steals per contest to lead the Lady Steers in that category.

"I think (Peggy) will be the best point guard in the state next year," Carmichael said. "I'm not sure I've ever coached a player who mentally grasped what's going on on the floor as quickly as her. . . . We haven't played a lot of man-to-man defense. . . . and that hurts Peggy. Man-to-man defense is her game."

Glaspie joins Smith at guard on the first team. The 5'9" senior led the Stanton Lady Buffalos in scoring with a 15-point per-game average, led in assists with an 8.3 average and in steals.

"She has a lot of natural talent, but she also works very hard," Stanton coach Rob Young said of the all-district performer. "She's a very heady player; she has a lot of basketball smarts, and that's probably the best thing about her."

Selecting the coach of the year from area schools was a difficult task, as a case could be made for four mentors.

Meissner led Coahoma to its second straight trip to the playoffs as the runner-up in District 7-3A.

May continued Borden County's tradition of dominance in District 16-A, landing the Lady Coyotes in the Region 1-A tournament for the second consecutive year. He has guided Borden County to the playoffs six times in his nine years as coach.

Not to be overlooked is Young, who, in his first season at the helm, led Stanton to a district runner-up spot and a bi-district playoff win over Iraan.

But the selection for coach of the year goes to Big Spring's C.E. Carmichael, who guided the Lady Steers to their third consecutive District 4-4A title in four years as head coach.

During his tenure, Big Spring has compiled a 117-26 record for a 76 percent winning average. Since dropping to Class 4A in 1986, the Lady Steers have been even more impressive, winning 88 percent of their games.

And Carmichael's record is more noteworthy when one considers that he accomplished it with different personnel. The evidence of this lies in the fact that three different Lady Steers — Wise, Teresa Pruitt and Katrina Thompson — have been named the district's MVP in the past three years.

Second team Honor Roll selections are:

Guard — Kate Phinizy and Vida Balague, Borden County High School. Phinizy averaged 6.6 points per game, led the team with 89 assists and had 103 steals for the season. Balague averaged 9.8 points per game, shot 45 percent from the field and led the Lady Coyotes in three-point goals with 43.

Forward — Gisila Spears, Big Spring, and Anne Damron, Coahoma. Spears was the Lady Steers' leading rebounder with 10 per game and averaged nine points per outing in scoring. Damron averaged 13 points and 10 rebounds per game for the Bulldogettes.

Post — Kaki Elmore, Stanton High School. She averaged 11 points and 10 rebounds per game, and was the Lady Buffalos' leader in free-throw accuracy (83 percent).

HONORABLE MENTION
Guards — Kim Gee and Paula Clanton, Coahoma; Deanna Herm, Sands; Stephanie Smith, Big Spring.
Forwards — Jennifer Hendleman, Big Spring; Shelly Kirkland, Klondike; Jocay Tunnell, Grady; Paige Wilson, Coahoma; Kristi Adcock, Borden County.
Posts — Sherrie McMorries and Freda Garza, Grady; Dina Simpson, Klondike.

Hawks blast Angelina

Sports Editor

The Howard College Hawks scored seven runs in the first inning and went on to defeat the Angelina College Roadrunners 10-5 Friday afternoon in the first game of a doubleheader.

In the second game Friday, Howard won 9-5 behind the pitching of Bailey Deeds.

In Friday's opener, the Hawks got a steady pitching performance from freshman left-hander Corey Zielinski. Zielinski went the distance, allowing six hits and recording six strikeouts while running his record to 4-0.

Scott Sanders went the distance for Angelina and allowed nine hits while fanning seven. Sanders struggled the first three innings, mainly with control problems.

Sanders issued five walks in the first inning and the Hawks scratched for five runs on only one hit. Catcher Brian Bean-count singled, driving in Gerlado Camara and David Wallace.

The Hawks added another run in the second, padding the lead to 6-0, thanks to two Angelina errors.

The Hawks got two hits in the third and added another tally, giving them a 7-0 lead. Designated hitter Todd Kolbicka doubled, and scored on a single by shortstop Jay Williams.

Angelina gamely battled back, cutting deficit to 7-3 going into the bottom of the fifth.

Howard added a run when Kolbicka took Sanders' offering deep over the left field fence for a solo shot.

Howard added two more runs off three hits in the sixth. Darren Glenn, Camara and Wallace all singled in the inning.

Angelina scored twice in the seventh, but it was too little, too late.

Howard improves its record to 15-4 and Angelina fell to 2-12.

Porkers advance to tourney finals

DALLAS (AP) — Lenzie Howell scored a career-high 31 points and Keith Wilson had 19 points in the second half Saturday night to lift Arkansas into the finals of the Southwest Conference post-season tournament for the first time since 1985 with a 94-84 victory over Texas A&M.

Arkansas, 23-6, meets the winner of the Texas-Texas Christian semifinal in the 3 p.m. championship game on Sunday for the automatic NCAA playoff bid.

Wilson, who scored 26 points in a 108-72 quarterfinal victory over Rice, had 25 points. Howell's previous career high was 26 points scored earlier in the year against Houston.

The Aggies, 17-14, were led by Donald Thompson who scored 23 points and Tony Milton who added 19.

Arkansas hit 11 of 12 free throws down the stretch against the Aggies, who committed their seventh foul with 15:34 to play. Three Aggies, Doug Dennis, Fred Ricks, and Tony Milton fouled out.

The Hogs built a 10-point lead at 69-59 but the Aggies cut the deficit to 75-73 before Arkansas put on its free throw shooting spree.

Lee Mayberry hit a three-point field goal at the buzzer to give the Razorbacks a 48-43 halftime lead. Mayberry finished with 15 points.

Howell scored 17 of his points for Arkansas in the first half.

Arkansas' pressure defense forced A&M into 14 first half turnovers while the Hogs committed only six errors.

A sellout crowd of 16,240 fans watched in Reunion Arena, the first sellout in the tournament since 1982.

College Roundup

Arkansas' defense forced A&M into 22 turnovers for the game and committed only 13 itself.

The Razorbacks shot 48 percent from the field and hit 29 of 40 free throws while the Aggies hit 47 percent from the field and 24 of 29 free throws.

Arkansas coach Noland Richardson praised Howell's steady play for the victory.

"He figures out a way to beat you," Richardson said. "He's the best kept secret in the Southwest Conference."

Howell hit 10 of 17 shots from the field and 11 of 14 free throws. He also had 12 rebounds and two steals.

"It was a great feeling to have that kind of game at home," said Howell, who is a San Jacinto Junior College transfer from Dallas. "We had a lot of fans in the stands and that helped our motivation."

The Aggies had 32 fouls called on them to 25 for the Hogs.

A&M coach Shelby Metcalf said the Razorbacks were just too deep for the Aggies to handle.

"They could afford a game in which a lot of fouls were called," Metcalf said.

Oklahoma 76, Iowa St. 74. If winning close games late in the season is good preparation for the NCAA Tournament, Oklahoma may be the team to beat.

Tyrone Jones' 3-point shot with one second left Saturday gave the second-ranked Sooners a 76-74 victory over Iowa State in the semifinals of the Big Eight tournament at Kansas City, Mo. On Friday, the Sooners beat Colorado in double overtime.

Jones said he didn't hesitate to put up the game-winning shot.

Victor Alexander, whose basket with 35 seconds left put the Cyclones ahead 74-73, had a chance to extend the lead after being fouled with eight seconds remaining. But he missed the front end of the 1-and-1. Oklahoma rebounded and Mookie Blaylock got the ball to Jones for the winning shot from the left corner.

Oklahoma, 28-4, will play Missouri for the Big Eight tournament championship on Sunday. The 10th-ranked Tigers advanced to the title game with an 88-83 victory over Kansas State.

In the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament, ninth-ranked North Carolina routed Maryland 88-58 and No. 7 Duke beat Virginia 69-58 to reach the finals.

In other semifinals, third-ranked Georgetown clobbered Pittsburgh 85-62 and No. 5 Syracuse beat No. 11 Seton Hall 81-78 in the Big East; Florida downed Tennessee 76-71 and Alabama beat Vanderbilt 83-79 in the Southeastern; No. 16 Louisville edged Memphis State 71-70 and No. 14 Florida State defeated South Carolina 80-63 in the Metro; top-ranked Arizona beat Oregon State 98-87 and Stanford downed UCLA 95-86 in the Pacific 10; and No. 19 Ball State edged Eastern Michigan 77-76 in the Mid-American.

Nevada-Las Vegas, ranked 18th, won the Big West tournament with a 68-62 victory over New Mexico State.

In regular-season Big Ten games, fourth-ranked Illinois routed No. 8 Michigan 89-73 and No. 15 Iowa beat No. 6 Indiana 87-70. Indiana, which had already clinched the conference championship, played primarily with reserves.

Oklahoma trailed by nine at halftime and didn't take its first lead until Stacey King hit a shot that made it 53-52 with 14:35 left. King fouled out with 3:35 remaining and finished with 14 points.

Iowa State coach Johnny Orr, whose team dropped to 17-11, said it was "as heartbreaking a loss as you can take."

"But I'm just as proud of these kids right now as I was yesterday," he said. "We battled them to the end."

ACC No. 9 N. Carolina 88, Maryland 58. J.R. Reid scored 17 points as the Tar Heels beat cold-shooting Maryland, which played without hospitalized coach Bob Wade. The Tar Heels, 26-7, reached the finals of the conference tournament for the 17th time in 36 years.

Wade collapsed moments after Friday's victory over top-seeded North Carolina State. He remained in an Atlanta hospital Saturday and school officials said he was resting comfortably. Maryland, led by assistant coaches Jeff Adkins and Brad Bradley, finished the season at 9-20 and suffered the worst loss ever in an ACC tournament semifinal.

No. 7 Duke 69, Virginia 58. Danny Ferry scored 23 points after going scoreless in the first 16½ minutes as the Blue Devils beat Virginia for the 15th straight time.

Ferry, who missed his first six shots and was scoreless until a layup with 3:30 left in the half, scored the Blue Devils' final six points before halftime for a 32-16 lead. He continued his hot streak in the second half, scoring six of Duke's first 10 points. Duke is 24-6, Virginia 19-10.

Big East No. 3 Georgetown 85, Pitt 62. Charles Smith scored 26 points to lead Georgetown, which broke the game open with a 20-0 run in the first half.

Pittsburgh, with a 17-12 record and four victories over Top 10 teams this season, is hoping for an at-large bid to the NCAA Tournament. There were eight lead changes and five ties in the first nine minutes before Georgetown, 25-4, took control.

No. 5 Syracuse 81, No. 11 Seton Hall 78. Sherman Douglas scored 27 points and Syracuse made 12 of its last 14 free throws to beat Seton Hall for the 17th straight time.

Syracuse, 27-6, got its last field goal from Derrick Coleman with 5:47 to play. But the Orangemen, who shoot only 61 percent from the line, took the lead for good on two free throws by Coleman with 3:21 left. John Morton led Seton Hall, 26-6, with 27 points.

SEC Florida 76, Tennessee 71. Livingston Chatman, who scored 25 points, broke a 61-all tie with a free throw and added a field goal 18 seconds later. The Gators then stretched the lead with free throws in the final minutes. Clifford Lett had 17 points for Florida, while Doug Roth led Tennessee with 14 points and 11 rebounds.

Alabama 83, Vanderbilt 79. Alvin Lee scored 24 points, including three straight 3-pointers during one stretch, as Alabama moved into the championship game.

Vanderbilt hit 11 of 19 from 3-point range, including a tournament-record six by Barry Booker. But Alabama also hit its 3-pointers (seven for 10), outrebounded the Commodores 34-25 and shot 55 percent from the field.

Metro No. 16 Louisville 71, Memphis St. 70. Louisville scored the final 10 points of the game to advance to the tournament final for the fourth straight year.

Freshman Everette Sullivan hit the front end of a 1-and-1 with two seconds left to give the Cardinals the winning margin. LaBradford Smith led the Cardinals, 21-8, with 18 points. Memphis State, 21-10, got 26 points from Cheyenne Gibson.

No. 14 Florida St. 80, S. Carolina 63. Derrick Mitchell scored 20 points and Tony Dawson 17 as Florida State downed cold-shooting South Carolina.

South Carolina, 19-10, hit only 29 of 70 shots from the field and had two long scoreless streaks in each half. George McCloud and Tharon Mayes each had 16 points for Florida State, 22-6, which beat the Gamecocks for the third time this season.

Duke 69, Virginia 58. ATLANTA (AP) — Danny Ferry scored 23 points after going scoreless in the first 16½ minutes, leading No. 7 Duke past Virginia 69-58 Saturday in the Atlantic Coast Conference tournament semifinals.

The defending tournament champion Blue Devils, 24-6, seek their third title in four years Sunday against No. 9 North Carolina, which beat Maryland 88-58.

Virginia, 19-10, has lost 15 straight to Duke since a 109-66 victory in the 1983 tournament.

Ferry, who missed his first six shots and was scoreless until a layup with 3:30 left in the half, scored the Blue Devils' final six points before halftime for a 32-16 lead. The Cavaliers made only 4 of 27 shots, 15 percent.

Ferry continued his hot streak in the second half, scoring six of Duke's first 10 points as the Blue Devils moved out in front 41-23 on Ferry's basket with 16:54 left.

Virginia, with Bryant Stith scoring five points, pulled to 41-31 with 13:29 left. Ferry then scored 11 of Duke's next 12 points, including three 3-pointers, and the Blue Devils led 53-39.

Duke led 65-47 on a basket by Alaa Abdalnaby, who finished with 13 points.

The Cavaliers fell behind early and failed to make a shot from the field after Matt Blundin's short shot with 10:07 left. Their first field goal of the second half came after 1:03 when Blundin again connected.

Duke took charge with an 18-4 run for a 23-8 lead with 6:12 left in the first half on a rebound basket by Robert Brickey.

Stith scored 15 points for Virginia and Richard Morgan had 13. Brickey scored 12 for the Blue Devils.

Edgewood edges Tidehaven 48-46

AUSTIN (AP) — Clint McPherson's shot at the buzzer gave Edgewood a 48-46 victory over Tidehaven and its first-ever Class 2A state basketball title Saturday.

Tidehaven's Larry Sanford had tied the game with 12 seconds to play. After a timeout, Edgewood's Todd Hale missed a shot from the left side with five seconds left but McPherson, who had nine points, put it back in from the right side as time expired.

Edgewood finishes 30-8 and Tidehaven fell to 30-7.

"I just told the guys, 'We've got plenty of time,'" Edgewood Coach Jack Shellnut said of the timeout. "This is no time to panic."

Edgewood led 22-18 at the half, but missed its first seven Arthur Lincoln to an 86-72 win over Austin Travis and in its fifth state championship in five tries at the 69th Boys' State Basketball Tournament.

The Bumblebees, 31-7, add this year's crown to trophies in 1981, 1984, 1986 and 1988. They have never lost at the state tournament, posting a perfect 10-0 mark.

Only Snook in Class A with 10 and Buna in Class 3A with seven have won more championships than Lincoln.

"It's great to be a part of history," said Tyler, who has signed a letter-of-intent with DePaul. "We may all go away and die someday, but this will always be here."

The upstart Rebels, 25-13, who came in with the worst record of any team in the tournament, surprised Lincoln in the first half and actually led through most of the first quarter in front of a crowd of 12,900.

Travis' last lead came at 21-20 before a jumper by Lincoln's Marlon Jackson made it 22-21 after the first quarter. The Bumblebees would never trail again.

Lincoln pulled away 49-41 at intermission. Tyler, an all-tournament selection a year ago, had 10 points in the quarter including a steal finished off with a thunderous dunk.

Nikell Williams kept Travis close, erupting for 21 first half points on his way to a game-high, 26 points. He also grabbed 13 rebounds.

State Tournament

shots after intermission. The Bulldogs' first score in the second half came with 3:45 left in the third.

Edgewood held Tidehaven top scorer Chris Grice to 19 points, 20 less than he scored against China Spring in Friday's semifinal.

Michael Goodson led Edgewood with 14 points.

Lady 'Horns escape Arkansas

DALLAS (AP) — Freshman Vicki Hall's 18-foot field goal with 23 seconds left lifted Texas to a 101-99 victory over Arkansas Saturday, giving the fourth-ranked Lady Longhorns to their seventh consecutive Southwest Conference post-season tournament championship.

Arkansas' Donna Wilson missed a running jump shot with five seconds left, Ellen Bayer grabbed the rebound and Texas secured the SWC's automatic bid before a tournament record crowd of 7,527.

Texas, 25-4, has won 22 consecutive games, but perhaps even more remarkable is its streak against SWC competition.

The Lady Longhorns have won 170 consecutive games against SWC opponents and have not lost a conference game since the women's teams began playing for the championship in 1983. That streak stands at 119 games.

Arkansas, 22-7, remains hopeful of securing an at-large bid to the NCAA tournament.

Texas led by as many as eight points with less than six minutes remaining. All-American Clarissa Davis scored 17 of her 36 points in the final 11:39, and when she converted a missed shot with 5:09 remaining, the Longhorns appeared comfortably ahead at 93-85.

But the Lady Razorbacks, who led by as many as six points in the first half, would not die. Lisa Martin's 3-point field goal with 2:14 left pulled Arkansas to 95-93. The Lady Razorbacks pulled even when Robyn Irwin rebounded a missed free-throw attempt and scored, completing a 3-point possession that tied the score at 99 with 40 seconds remaining.

But after a Texas timeout, Hall connected from the left wing. Hall finished with 21 points, including 14 in the second half.

Beaumont mayor to 'tip off' Chamber's 'full-court press'

HERALD STAFF REPORT

Maurice Meyers — mayor of Beaumont — will be the featured speaker at the Big Spring Area Chamber of Commerce's membership drive "Tip Off" Wednesday.

MEYERS

The drive — titled "Full Court Press" — will be from 4:30-6:30 p.m. in the Dorothy Arrett Coliseum. The public is invited to attend, and the event is free of charge.

Meyers will speak on how communities are meeting the challenges of the 1980s and developing for the 1990s.

In particular he will address: effective public and private economic cooperation, convention and visitors information centers, tax incentives, and clean/beautification projects.

Meyers was re-elected to a fourth term as mayor of Beaumont with 84.6 percent of the vote in April 1988.

His accomplishments and honors include: receiving the Political Courage Citation awarded by the John Ben Shepard Leadership Forum; founding Southeast Inc., a private, non-profit corporation implementing an innovative regional approach to economic development; being chosen as one of four U.S. mayors to make an official visit to Yugoslavia for the U.S. State Department; receiving the State of Israel "City Peace Award"; and being one of eight U.S. mayors invited to participate in the Eighth Jerusalem Conference of Mayors, sponsored by the U.S. Conference of Mayors, the American Jewish Congress and the Jerusalem Institute.

The goal of "Full Court Press" is to recruit 100 new chamber members, said officials.

The membership drive program consists of eight teams, organized to recruit new members.

Report meetings on the team's progress will be held March 21 and 28, and April 4 and 11.

Railroad Commission Chairman Kent Hance has announced that 12 permits to operate new pipelines in Texas were granted by the RRC in January, including a distribution line in Howard County.

Eight of the new permits were for gathering pipelines, one was for a terminal line, one was for a distribution line, and two were for multi-purpose and other lines. Gathering lines bring oil and gas from production leases. Terminal lines transfer oil to other pipelines.

Hance said in January, one operating permit was approved for a pipeline in the San Antonio area (District 11, two in Southeast Texas (District 3), three in deep South Texas (District 4), three in East Texas (District 6), two in the Midland area (District 8), and one in the Lubbock area (District 8A).

Gathering lines permits approved: Texas Coastal Pipeline System, Corpus Christi, gas, Duval County; San Diego Pipeline System, Corpus Christi, gas, Duval County; Gladewater Gas Gathering, Inc., Dallas, gas, Gregg County; Total Minatome Corp., Houston, gas, McMullen County; Union Oil Company of California, Andrews, gas, Gaines County; Feagan Gathering Company, Midland, gas, Pecos County; Eagle Gathering Systems, Inc., Longview, gas, Panola County; and Citgo Pipeline Company, Longview, crude/cond., Gregg County.

Distribution lines approved: Gulf Gas Utilities Company, Houston, gas, Howard County.

Multi-purpose lines approved: Hinmont U.S.A., Inc., Wilmington, Del., products, Chambers and Harris counties; and Lyondell Petrochemical Company, Houston, products, Chambers and Harris counties.

Terminal lines approved: Trifinity, Corpus Christi, crude/cond., Nueces County.

Offering the latest video releases at the lowest prices is the claim a new video rental store hopes to stake as it begins service to the Big Spring area.

Movie titles like "Poltergeist III," "Big Business," "Feds," "Midnight Run," "Married to the Mob" and "A Fish Called Wanda" can be rented for $2 at The Video Experience, store owners Mike and Brenda Parker said.

The video rental store is the second business for the Parkers, who are also the owners of the Brandin Iron Inn. The Video Experience, 1903 1/2 Gregg St., opened its doors Saturday and now does business from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. daily.

The Big Spring Amateur Radio Club participated in the Big Spring emergency alert system at noon on March 3. The club used the repeater, W5AW, the Andy Jones Memorial Station, to demonstrate that amateur radio operators can mobilize during weather or other public emergencies to handle emergency communications.

There was an excellent turnout of members, most of whom were mobile, who called in from all points in and around the city. Amateurs from as far away as Andrews and Snyder were also available for emergency communications.

Constable attends school

STAFF AND WIRE REPORTS

MIAMI (AP) — Housing discrimination against families with children is illegal starting today, but no-kids communities are fighting to protect their lifestyles even as experts laud the new law for addressing a national crisis.

"There will be resistance (and) claims of reverse discrimination, but the fact of the matter is Congress has decided families with children have a great need for housing and the law is designed to help them," said Jim Morales, staff attorney for the San Francisco-based National Center for Youth Law.

A 1980 Department of Housing and Urban Development study found that 75 percent of rental units nationwide banned or restricted children. Other surveys found 90 percent of apartment complexes in some communities closed to children.

"We just found an epidemic of discrimination against families

Five registered nurses at the VA Medical Center in Big Spring have been awarded the highest level of certification available to RNs. From left, the include Alonzo Landin, Joyce Wood, Sandra McCutchan, Tony Barrera and Carol Kurth.

Conrad Alexander, Director of the Big Spring VA Medical Center, proudly announces that five additional VA registered nurses have achieved the highest level of recognition available to registered nurses.

Carol Kurth and Alonzo Landin have been certified by the American Nurses Association in Gerontological Nursing; and Tony Barrera, Joyce Wood, and Sandra McCutchan have been certified in Psychiatric and Mental Health Nursing.

Certification by the American Nurses Association is earned by successfully completing a comprehensive examination. To recognize this significant achievement, each nurse has been recognized with an advancement in salary.

Trooper Rosanna L. Church, 28, graduated from the Department of Public Safety training academy in Austin and has been assigned to the Highway Patrol Service in Big Spring.

Church was one of over a hundred cadets recently commissioned as state troopers in graduation ceremonies in Austin. She is a native of Lubbock and assumes her new duties immediately.

Col. Joe Milner, DPS director, said he is proud of the new troopers and looks forward to their service with the department.

"These men and women have completed a vigorous 18-week course in basic law enforcement procedures," Milner said. "They have been well trained to uphold the laws of this state in routine as well as difficult and dangerous law enforcement situations."

"A Texas trooper is required to perform a number of different tasks in addition to traffic law enforcement. The trooper will assist in narcotics arrests and other felony cases as well as manhunt and disaster situations," Milner said.

The DPS training course included instruction in traffic law, criminal law, arrest procedures, accident investigation, and numerous other law enforcement related duties.

Kenneth E. Stanley, M.D., was appointed as a Staff Physician (Urologist), Surgical Service, at the Big Spring VA Medical Center, according to Conrad Alexander, Medical Center Director. Dr. Stanley comes to this assignment well prepared academically and professionally.

He graduated from the University of Kansas College of Medicine, Kansas City, Ks., in 1956 and he completed a rotating internship at the University of Texas, Galveston, in 1957.

Stanley fulfilled a fellowship residency in Urology at the Mayo Clinic, Rochester, Minn., from 1959 to 1963, and earned a Bachelor of Science Degree in Urology from the University of Minnesota in 1963. In 1967, he became a Diplomate, American Board of Urology, and in 1969 a Fellow, American College of Surgeons.

His academic credentials include a faculty appointment as Assistant Clinical Professor at the University of Kansas School of Medicine, Wichita, Ks.

Stanley was engaged in group practice at the Wichita Clinic, Wichita, Ks., from 1963 to 1975. Later, he served at the King Faisal Military Hospital, Khamsi Mushayt, Saudi Arabia in 1976-1977. His hospital appointments include staff appointments at St. Francis Regional Medical Center and the Wesley Medical Center, Wichita, Ks. Stanley served on active duty as a medical officer with the United States Navy from 1957 to 1959. Prior to his appointment at the Big Spring facility, Stanley served on the surgical staff at the VA Medical Center, Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Stanley is presently settling into the Big Spring Community and is looking forward to establishing a permanent residence here. He is happy to be in the city and will, no doubt, contribute greatly to both the VA Medical Center and the community.

Laura Moore, 1986 graduate of Hardin-Simmons University and account executive with Media Southwest of Abilene, has been named director of alumni relations and the Annual Fund at HSU.

She began work on Jan. 5, according to Richard M. Styles, senior vice president for advancement. "Laura's leadership and management skills, her educational background, and work experiences, plus her strong love for and commitment to HSU, strongly qualify her for this position," said Styles.

The former Laura Warren graduated from HSU in 1986 with a BA in psychology and mass communications with a public relations emphasis. She graduated cum laude. She served as Student Congress president, was a member of Student Foundation, and was selected University Queen her senior year. She was on the National Dean's List, and chosen for Who's Who Among University and College Students.

In 1986-87, she was a graduate student at the University of Manchester, England, having been granted a scholarship from Rotary Foundation of Rotary International. She worked in the public relations office at the university and traveled around England giving speeches at Rotary Clubs. In September 1987, she received her MEd degree in education and the mass media from the University of Manchester.

During the past year, Laura has served as account executive at Media Southwest in Abilene. Her supervisor, who owns Media Southwest, categorized her as "a people person who is highly organized and possesses good management skills."

She is married to Jay Moore who is a 1982 graduate of HSU. He is employed by Olney Savings in Abilene. They are active at Pioneer Drive Baptist Church where they teach in the College Sunday School Department.

She is also a member of the HSU Board of Young Associates.

A graduate of Big Spring High School, she was active in school affairs, serving as Miss Big Spring High, Homecoming Queen, a cheerleader, and editor of the yearbook.

The Big Spring Chamber of Commerce has joined forces with Fort Stockton, Monahans, Pecos and Odessa Chambers of Commerce to present a West Texas Area legislative symposium Friday at the Pecos County Civic Center in Fort Stockton.

Activities begin at 6 p.m. with the legislative reception and buffet; from 7 to 8 p.m. there will be legislative representative briefings; and a question and answer session will follow.

The symposium will be a high impact review on the issues that will effect businesses throughout West Texas. According to Larry Milner, president and CEO of the Texas Chamber of Commerce, "The 1989 regular session of the legislature may be the busiest in history... 30 percent more bills have been filed so far, compared to the 1987 session."

"Get Into Politics or Get Out of Business" is the theme of the symposium.

Among those expected to be present at the symposium are state representatives Dudley Harrison, Troy Fraser and Harvey Hilderbrand, along with State Sen. Bill Sims.

Also speaking will be John Johnson, a lobbyist with the Texas Tourist Council.

Some former and present Big Spring residents are making the Broncho BMW dealership in Odessa one of the tops in its class.

In the latest J.D. Powers Dealer Satisfaction Survey, Broncho BMW ranked in the top four in its seven-state district and in the top 50 nationally.

That could be due to the fact that several members of the Broncho BMW team are current Big Spring residents or grew up in Big Spring.

Kenny Greene, service manager, is a former Big Spring resident and his parents still live here.

James Dunne, sales manager, is also a former resident and his mother, Erma Dunne, works at the VA hospital.

Technician Ray Phillips currently lives in Big Spring and commutes daily to Odessa.

Another Broncho team member, Malcom Vincent of Midland, recently married an ex-Big Spring Kim Deel, daughter of Corky and Bobbi Deel of Big Spring.

Guess it takes some Big Spring power to make successful business across West Texas.

Citizens Federal Credit Union will have a reception Friday in honor of Sandy Wright's 20th anniversary with the credit union.

Members and friends are invited to come by and have cake and punch with Wright and other employees.

Wright began employment with Citizens in 1969 while the credit union was located at the Webb AFB. During her tenure with the credit union she has seen many changes.

At the beginning of her employment Citizens had assets of $6 million and has grown to $42 million today.

They went from hand posting ledger cards to in-house computer systems.

Wright, who is vice president of the credit union, also serves as treasurer of the Big Spring State Hospital Volunteer Service Council, chairperson of the OEA for Big Spring High School, and is a member of the Chamber of Commerce Blue Blazers.

In July, 1988 she graduated from the Southwest CUNA Management School at the University of Houston and is currently enrolled in a CCUE (certified credit union executive) program.

She is married to Danny Wright, and they have a daughter, Patricia, who is a senior at BSHS.

For the second year in a row, C.A. "Clay" Wilkins, a Colorado City native and executive director of the Texas Aeronautics Commission has been announced as the winner of the Federal Aviation Administration Administrator's Award for Excellence in aviation education for the FAA's 5 state Southwest Region.

His name has been forwarded to Washington, D.C. for consideration in the national competition. Wilkins was nominated in his capacity as a state official conducting a successful state wide aviation education program.

He is scheduled to receive the award on March 31 at the National Aviation and Space Education Congress held in St. Louis.

Wilkins has been the director of the Aeronautics Commission since 1980. A native of Colorado City, he has a long and distinguished career as both a military and civil aviator, and a friend of education. A decorated Vietnam Veteran and retired Air Force fighter pilot, he counts the distinguished Flying Cross and 11 Air Medals among his awards.

Big Spring landlords say they will obey law

In Big Spring, the effect of the new law on area housing is uncertain. Managers for Apache Bend, Barcelona and Coronado Hills apartments and for the apartment-owning Ventura Company said they have no minimum age requirements.

"We take every age," said Sharon Minyard, manager of Coronado Hills Apartments. She said the apartment's phone book advertisement: "... limited children and pets," refers to the number of children allowed rather than to an age limit.

Betty Henderson, manager of the Rock Terrace Apartments, said, "I did (have an age limit) before, but I've broken that rule lot's of times." Henderson said now that the new law has taken effect she may arrange the buildings so that some of the older residents are grouped together away from younger residents. The facility does not have a playground, she noted.

Beverly Waters, manager of the Park Hill Terrace Apartments, said that, "any aged (people) are welcomed" — retracting an earlier statement that "kids have to be at least three years of age," to live at the complex. Waters said when the complex was first constructed it was intended as an adults-only apartment.

"Blatant and legal cases of discrimination against families with children ... (are) happening all over the country and in all types of communities," said Lisa Mihaly of the Washington-based Children's Defense Fund.

Sixteen states have barred housing discrimination on the basis of familial status, but experts say the laws are generally weak and contain huge loopholes.

The California Supreme Court in 1982 prohibited discrimination against families with children in apartment rentals and later extended that to condos. Mobile home parks have been exempt, a provision the federal law will override.

But families still face subtler discrimination, such as limits on the number of occupants, complexes with segregated areas for adults and families with children, and other restrictive rules, said Morales. About a third of the housing complaints received by California's Department of Fair Employment and Housing involve children, he said.

U.S. company begins selling typewriters to Soviet Union

CORTLANDVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Standing outside former Soviet leader Andrei Gromyko's office while visiting the Kremlin last year, Randall Teague listened to a sound he hadn't heard in so long he nearly couldn't recognize it.

It was the tap-tap-tapping of a manual typewriter.

"I knew exactly what it was when I heard another old sound — the sound someone makes when they're using six carbons in a typewriter and they make a mistake," said Teague, a Washington attorney for Smith Corona Corp., who specializes in international trade law.

"If that's what one of the most powerful men in the country had in his offices, I wondered what everyone else was doing," Teague said in recalling the moment that spawned an idea for his client: peddling typewriters to Russia. In what company aides called an unusual deal, Smith Corona will sell a range of typewriters and portable word processors to Vneshtorgizdat, an official Soviet book publishing concern, to be paid for in U.S. dollars.

Vneshtorgizdat, also known as VTI, will then sell the machines throughout the Soviet Union, initially to universities, professional writers and for use in some offices, said Smith Corona President Lee Thompson.

The arrangement exploits a new Soviet economic liberalization policy, under which some Soviet companies that routinely earn foreign currency may keep part of the money to buy imports.

The policy went into effect in 1987, but is only starting to have some impact because it was deferred for all of 1988 in most cases, said Ed Hewett, a Soviet economy expert at the Brookings Institution in Washington.

"These are not the kind of deals that make headlines, so it's hard to know how many there are," Hewett said. "But I think we'll be seeing a lot more of these deals in the first half of the year."

On April 1, the policy will be expanded to include any Soviet company or even a region of the country that can earn foreign currency and wants to spend it.

"Of course, the problem is most Russian companies don't have products that they can sell to get foreign currency," said Hewett.

In VTI's case, it sells Soviet books around the world and earns dollars, yen, marks, pounds and other foreign money.

In the past, Hewett said, companies like VTI would sell products to an official Soviet foreign trade agency, which in turn would sell the books and keep the foreign currency.

Under the old arrangement, if VTI wanted to import something, it had to make a request and go through the foreign trade agency, which generally would select where the product would come from and what model or style it would be.

The Smith Corona deal was started when Teague, who specializes in representing U.S. business interests in the Soviet Union, bumped into an old Soviet friend Vladimir Prokopov during a visit there in January 1988.

In catching up on what was new in their lives, Prokopov told Teague he headed VTI and wished to import typewriters and word processors.

That discussion triggered a flurry of telexes, telephone calls and meetings over the course of the year, culminating with an agreement signed in January, Teague said.

"It just happens to be one of those situations where two companies had a great fit and were able to work things out," said Thompson.

The deal is part of an explosion in foreign demand for Smith Corona machines. Three months ago it signed an agreement with NV Philips, a huge Netherlands-based electronics firm, to supply typewriters throughout Europe.

Both developments indicate the continued rebound of Smith Corona, a subsidiary of the British conglomerate, Hanson Industries Ltd.

The company lost more than $100 million during the first half of the 1980s, consolidated from four plants to one and cut employment from 5,000 to 850 at its low point in 1984.

Today, the company employs 2,150 people and has regained dominance in the portable typewriter and word processor market. The company does not disclose sales or profit figures.

Smith Corona's Director of Advanced Products Raymond Blanchard, examines a "daisy wheel" which holds the type characters for Smith Corona's Cyrillic language typewriters. The Cyrillic characters of the Soviet language contains 33 letters compared to 26 for Latin keyboards.

Beil leaves S&L

The longtime president of the former First Federal Savings in Big Spring is apparently the latest victim of a savings and loan consolidation.

Charles Beil said he is currently pursuing other business opportunities, but has no plans to leave the Big Spring area in the immediate future.

Lu Norris has been named office manager of the Big Spring savings and loan institution, Beil said.

"Between 25 and 30 percent of the employees at the bank have voluntarily sought employment elsewhere," Beil said.

Consolidated Federal Bank Inc./Dallas acquired 15 failing savings and loan institutions in December and the status of the Big Spring employees has been uncertain.

"They don't have room for 15 people like me when they begin consolidating," said Beil, who had been employed by First Federal Savings for 23 years.

There are 29 fulltime and two part-time employees at the newly-consolidated institution.

Beil serves as chairman of the Chamber of Commerce downtown steering committee and has been an ardent backer of the downtown renovation project.

Rosewood Resources of Midland is testing for potential at the No. 1-2 D.C. Johnson, a Howard County wildcat located about three miles northwest of Knott.

The well was spudded on Feb. 15 and was taken to total depth of 3,600 feet. It had carried permit for maximum hole of 10,500 feet.

A completion rig has been called on station at the No. 2 Nevill, a developmental try in the Moore Field, Howard County, four miles northwest of Big Spring.

Spudded on Jan. 10, the well is bottomed at a depth of 3,325 feet. Enduro Oil of Houston is the operator. No details have been revealed regarding production outlook.

Drilling operations have been concluded at an undisclosed depth at the No. 1 Phillips in Howard County's B-C Field, about four miles north of Big Spring.

The well was spudded in mid-January, carrying permit for a 9,300-ft. Canyon Sand Test. Deminex U.S. Oil of Dallas is the operator.

The No. 1 TL&M is shut-in after reaching projected total depth in a lease within Howard County's part of the Snyder Field, three miles southeast of Coahoma. Tom Brown Inc. of Midland, operator, commenced drilling operations on Oct. 19 with total depth projected to 3,490 feet in the Clear Fork Formation.

Conoco Inc. of Midland is testing for potential at a developmental venture in the Howard-Glasscock Field, about four miles southwest of Forsan. The well is known as the No. 1 Belle Overton. Drilling got underway on Nov. 4 and progressed to total depth of 2,600 feet.

GLASSCOCK COUNTY

Showing ability to pump 16 barrels of oil with 17,000 CF gas and 16 barrels of salt water daily, a producer has been re-completed for added pay in the Spraberry Trend, Glasscock County.

Hanley Petroleum's No. 9 Francis Moeller is located about seven miles west of Bigby Corner.

It originally flowed 150 barrels of oil with 30 barrels of water daily when first completed in December of 1976 by the same operator.

Initial production was from the Dean Formation, 8,346 to 8,604 feet into the wellbore. New production will be from Clear Fork perforations at 6,425 to 6,433 feet into the hole.

MITCHELL COUNTY

Hrubetz Operating of Dallas has completed drilling and perforations at a total of six west injection wells which will be used to improve production in the Turner-Gregory Field, Mitchell County, about six miles northwest of Westbrook. Perforations ranged from 2,598 to 2,822 feet into the wellbores. The wells are designated as the Nos. 34 and 35 Gregory "A." No. 38 Gregory, No. 33 Jackson, No. 32 Powell and No. 31 Powell "A."

BARTLESVILLE, Okla. (AP) — In a move that will affect 95 Denver employees, Phillips Petroleum Co. is consolidating its North American exploration and land activities into its exploration and production offices in Houston.

Most of the Denver employees will be transferred to Houston or offered jobs at other Phillips offices. Phillips will keep about 35 jobs at its Denver office, company officials said.

The Phillips work force in Denver stood at about 240 last year. "This latest consolidation follows one begun last fall," said Leonard Rickards, Phillips executive vice president. "The results of that program convinced us that consolidating our exploration and land operations would further increase efficiency."

The company will pay enhanced severance benefits to employees whose jobs are eliminated and who are not offered a chance to transfer, officials said.

The reorganization, expected to be finished by this summer, will end exploration and production work at the Denver office.

Phillips merged its regional production and partnership operations based in Denver into other regional offices in Houston and Borger, Texas, last fall.

That consolidation, completed last month, resulted in transfer of about 70 employees and the firing of 40 more.

Phillips has North American regional exploration and production offices in Houston, Odessa and Borger, Texas, and Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

DALLAS (AP) — Texas unemployment has decreased for the first time since November, meaning 39,000 more people are working, the Bureau of Labor Statistics announced Friday.

Bryan Richey, regional commissioner for the bureau's southwest region, said 6.7 percent of the state's eligible labor pool is not working, down from 7.1 percent in January and December.

Gov. Bill Clements said the announcement "should come as wonderful news to all Texans who have worked so hard to bring our economy around."

"Certainly, it's the hard-working people of our great state who deserve all the credit for the strength in our economy," Clements said in a statement. "Because of their dedication and their commitment to our future, the Texas economy is barreling back."

Richey said the numbers are "not statistically significant," but they are "in the right direction."

Texas employment is more directly tied to swings in the local economy than other areas, Richey said. The oil and gas industry dictates the direction of the labor force, he said.

Richey said it will take one to two years to realize any substantial improvement for the Texas workforce. "No doubt it's unspectacular," he said.

February's figure is a 1.4 percent decline from February 1988's mark of 8.1 percent.

SEATTLE (AP) — The Federal Aviation Administration has received 59 reports of miswiring or faulty plumbing in cargo-hold and engine fire-suppression systems of Boeing commercial jets since 1981, officials said.

FAA officials said 32 of the problems were found by airlines between March 1988 and Jan. 31, when the agency issued an airworthiness directive ordering checks of all Boeing aircraft built since Dec. 31,

Industry hopeful about farm economy rebound

PRINCETON, Ill. (AP) — Despite last summer's disastrous drought, tractor dealer Chuck German says the U.S. agricultural economy is poised for recovery and growth thanks to lessons learned in the decade-long crisis that gripped the farm belt.

But German doubts manufacturers' bullish forecasts for strong sales of tractors, combines and farm implements. He doesn't see a quick fix, but a gradual improvement largely dependent upon cooperation from Mother Nature.

German, 52, is president of German Implement Co. of Princeton, a community of 1,700 about 20 miles north of Peoria. His experiences the past 10 years are common among people who sell tractors.

"Our last good year was 1979," German said. "Things started going downhill in 1980 and they really hit a low ebb in 1984. Our volume that year was half of our 1979 volume."

In 1981, German laid off 25 percent of his employees indefinitely, saying "it's sad, but it's been a matter of survival and waiting for things to pick back up."

Like most experts, German thought the farming industry was ripe for recovery last spring as tractor and combine sales started picking up. But sales eased quickly in the drought that parched the Midwest.

Instead, German watched the drought claim three neighboring farm equipment dealers. Illinois has lost 1,500 dealers since 1949, according to the Illinois Retail Farm Equipment Association.

German survived but had to cut expenses again, just as he did at the start of the decade when the farm economy soured.

Now, German said his manufacturers — Ford Motor Co. and Japan's Kubota Ltd. — are telling him to expect big demand in 1989.

While he agrees farmers need to replace aging equipment, German doesn't expect any activity in his showroom, which his father opened in 1940, unless rain falls more regularly than last year.

"Farmers are conservative and waiting for moisture," he said. "That's the big factor. My manufacturers are enthusiastic but I'm not."

That's because the farmers who survived the farm crisis are astute money managers who think long and hard before spending on average $60,000 for a tractor and $110,000 for a combine, he said.

Manufacturers, like Deere & Co. of Moline, are upbeat about 1989 prospects. That's partly because Deere enjoyed record earnings last year of $315 million despite the drought, which produced the worst year of tractor and combine sales industry-wide since records were first kept in 1963.

Deere flourished in the drought by cutting costs, entering joint ventures with foreign companies and expanding its product line — especially in the lucrative lawn and garden market.

The company's diverse array of insurance and financial services also helped the bottom line.

In a 757 cargo fire-suppression system last August but reported the problem four months later, Keith noted.

"Until now, I had been encouraged that there were definite improvements," his letter said. "The 757 issue, however, indicates that more needs to be done."

Part IIBy STEVE REAGAN
Staff Writer

Hi, and welcome to part two of the Second Annual Jason Awards, or "That May Be Entertainment, Part Two."

The awards, named after the machete-wielding villain of the "Friday the 13th" movies, are awarded annually to the best and worst movies currently available at your neighborhood video store.

The only criteria the movies must satisfy is that they be available at Big Spring video outlets. All decisions by the judge (me) are final, unless I change my mind at the last minute, which is a common occurrence around these parts.

Several winners were named in last Sunday's Herald, and several more are awaiting. So, what say we get cracking...

Best John Wayne movie — This is kind of like naming one's favorite form of lima beans. You've seen one Duke movie, you've seen them all, etc.

But for argument's sake, let's say it's a tie between "The Sons of Katie Elder," and "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance." Both feature the tough, swaggering John Wayne we all know and love, plus they feature other accomplished performers (Dean Martin, James Stewart, et al) who compliment the Duke nicely.

Worst John Wayne movie — "The Conqueror," without a doubt. Wayne tries to portray Genghis Khan in this movie, but he comes off looking and sounding like a kid in a third-grade play.

He actually says to Susan Hayward — and I'm not kidding — "My God, but you are beautiful in your wrath." Can you imagine the Duke uttering those lines?

He must have owed someone a gigantic favor to do this turkey.

Best movie series — The "Star Wars" trilogy. Great special effects, a wonderful story line and enough charming and off-the-wall characters to keep children of all ages engrossed for days.

And, for the record, my favorite character is R2D2. Sure, you can't understand a word he says, but some of my friends say the same thing about me.

Worst movie series — Oh my gosh, we have a double winner! The "Friday the 13th" movies won last week in the worst horror movie category, and it looks like they're the tops in this section, also.

What can I say about these films that hasn't already been said? Insipid, stupid, boring, insulting, predictable, moronic... A guy would have to have a thesaurus handy to review one of these dogs.

Best love story — "Children of a Lesser God." This movie, starring William Hurt as a teacher who falls in love with a deaf woman, realistically portrays the barriers they must overcome without turning into one of those depressing "boy meets girl, boy loses girl" films.

Marlee Matlin won the Best Actress Oscar for her portrayal of the deaf woman.

Worst love story — "Love Story," what else? I know there were millions of people who went gaga over this movie back in the early 1970s, but I refuse to seriously consider any film that has Ryan O'Neal in a starring role.

The guy gives whimpering a bad name.

Best actor — Dustin Hoffman. I have yet to see a bad movie that has him in a starring role. "Little Big Man," "Kramer vs. Kramer," "Marathon Man," "The Graduate,"... Most actors don't star in one decent movie in their life, but this guy has a dozen or so.

Worst actor — Ryan "I'm depressed" O'Neal. See above.

Special award — The Merry! Streep "If it's depressing, it must be acting" award goes to... Merry! Streep!

Don't get me wrong. She's a great actress and all, but can you imagine her in a romantic comedy? It'd be kind of like casting Pee Wee Herman in John Wayne roles.

Best movie — This is a toughie, but I'm going to give the nod to "Gandhi," simply because it's almost three hours long, and it kept my rapt attention during the entire time.

Worst movie — No toughie here. I was looking for a bad movie in this category, when the sales clerk gave me a copy and said, "This is the worst piece of 'Caligula' — that I've ever seen."

Truer words were never spoken.

Church librarian Christene Horn displays a microfiche file that contains some of the 100 million names the local genealogical library keeps on file at the Mormon church. Doing genealogical research keeps people from losing their identities, Horn says.

Digging out their roots

GENEALOGY, the study of the origin, descent and relationship of families. (Encyclopedia Britannica)

In America, genealogy was generally neglected until well past the middle of the 19th century. Only occasionally could a person be found who could trace his ancestry beyond his grandparents. Unlike the ancients, who organized their societies on a tribal basis — or the nobility and gentry of modern England, for whom a family pedigree is essential — the Americans hardly stayed put long enough to plant a family tree.

But Christine Horn, librarian at the Family History Center at the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 1803 Wasson Road, believes the interest in genealogy is growing. Her library is attracting more and more Big Spring residents who want to know something more about their past.

The local library is directly affiliated with the Mormon Family History Library in Salt Lake City, Utah, which stores an astounding amount of genealogical information. Everything in the main library — equivalent to more than 25 million 300-page volumes — is available on microfilm through the Big Spring Family History Center.

Through the International Genealogical Index, a microfiche file on the premises, Horn can come up with 100 million surnames, with sources of information available on each. The sources might be diaries, books, census data, marriage certificates, military records, even pictures — all of which are available on microfilm for a nominal fee from Salt Lake City. The local library is equipped with large microfiche viewers which produce the image actual size.

Here are other sources of information Horn can call on:

U. S. CENSUS — Available from 1790 thru 1910.

FAMILY REGISTRY — This includes the name of a person, plus all pertinent information, such as father, mother, spouse, date of death — even the name and address of the person who provided the data.

SURNAME CATALOG — An alphabetical catalog of surnames for which a written history is available.

LOCALITY CATALOG — An alphabetical catalog — by state and country — listing records which are available from that location.

Horn picked at random microfiche that listed a 220-page Historical Record of the Holmsly Family (1792); Sabine County (Texas) — 1860 Census (Civil War Military Records); a list of 650 "maiden names" from a county in Georgia; a roster of Civil War and Spanish American War soldiers; lists of persons buried in old cemeteries; marriage licenses from a county in Pennsylvania; licenses granted to sell liquor from 1850-1901 in Savannah, Ga.; and 100 years of issues of the London Times.

Horn stresses that the Family History Center contains records and data from all over the world, not just the United States. "China and Russia were closed to us until recently, but now we have a team collecting data there."

The Genealogical Society of the Mormon Church has collected records since the early 1800's — and continues to do so daily around the world. The data is microfilmed and stored in the main Family History Library, hewn out of solid granite, near Salt Lake City. Here the protection of the world's vital genealogical records is assured with filtered air, with temperature and humidity that remains constant, according to a church publication. The research is not restricted to Mormons, but includes the human family. "Since we eventually come to a point of common ancestry, we must have great concern for all persons."

"For the Mormons, genealogy is a part of their religion," Horn says, adding that the general public probably doesn't know that the Family History Library — which has been here 15 years — is open to the public.

Horn became interested in genealogy after trying to trace her Indian ancestry; she and her late husband, Jack, went on several Indian archaeological digs. A frequent instructor in genealogy classes at the church and at Howard College, Horn has been Family History Center librarian for the past three years. She is a member of the local Genealogical Society.

The Family History Center is open from 10 a. m. til 1 p. m. Wednesdays, and from 7 til 9 p. m. Thursdays. "If the demand becomes greater, we can add more hours," Horn says.

1. Draw up a family tree chart. You can make one of your own, pick up one at the U. S. Post Office, or use the form available for a nominal fee at the Family History Center.

2. Talk with or write to members of your family, particularly the older ones, and ask them about your ancestors.

3. Consult letters, family Bibles, birth and marriage certificates, military records, and other family papers for information.

4. While you may find great generals or royalty in your family tree, keep in mind that you may also turn up a horse thief or two. But don't let fear of what you might find stop your search. As the National Genealogical Society points out in one of its pamphlets, "You are not responsible for your ancestors."

5. Once you have filled in your family tree chart as far back as you can, only then are you ready to begin the search. Here are good sources of genealogical information:

Weddings

Champion-Arista

Ester Champion, Petersburg, and Daniel Arista, Lubbock, were united in marriage March 4, 1989 at a 2 p.m. ceremony at St. Elizabeth's Catholic Church, Lubbock, with Father Dillion, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Gilbert Champion, Lubbock; and the late Audelia Champion.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Arista Jr., Rt. 2 Box 138.

The couple stood before an altar decorated with candelabras.

Vocalist was Eddie Contreras.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an exquisite gown of satin schisli embroidery lace.

The bodice featured a Sabrina neckline with a keyhole opening adorned with pearls. The gown also featured half satin puff sleeves cording with a sheer stalling and appliques to the wrist. The low back was highlighted with a cathedral-length train adorned with lace and window pane cut-outs. She wore a crystal beaded headband featuring a side floral spray accented with a double pouf and a finger-tip illusion veil.

Bridesmaids were Cindy Gutierrez, bride's sister, Petersburg; Cindy Madrid, bridegroom's aunt, Midland; Leticia Madrid, bridegroom's aunt, Lubbock; Elena Trevino, bride's sister, Lubbock; Leslie Wienke, Bryan; Veronica Madrid, bridegroom's cousin, Pecos; Cindy Porras, bridegroom's cousin, Big Spring; and Eva Johnson, bridegroom's aunt, San Antonio.

Flower girls were Amy Madrid and Jade Johnson, bridegroom's

Best man was Tom Arista III, bridegroom's brother.

Groomsmen were David Gutierrez, bride's brother-in-law, Petersburg; Armando Madrid, bridegroom's uncle, Midland; Frank Madrid, bridegroom's uncle, Lubbock; Albert Trevino, bride's brother-in-law, Lubbock; Johnny Champion, bride's brother, Petersburg; Joe Champion, bride's brother, Petersburg; Raul Madrid, bridegroom's uncle, Oklahoma City, Okla.; and Mark Johnson, bridegroom's cousin, Ft. Worth.

Ushers were Gilbert Garza, bride's nephew; and Johnny Gonzales, Petersburg.

Candlelighters were Sandra Gutierrez and Robert Doport, both of Big Spring.

Ringbearers were Michael Trevino, bride's nephew; and Mansol Champion, bride's niece, Petersburg.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at St. John Neumann Catholic Church. The bride's table, draped with a dusty rose cloth, featured a four-tiered cake featuring a water fountain with two sets of stairs at the sides decorated with miniature bridesmaids and groomsmen and pink flowers. The bridegroom's table, draped with a beige cloth, featured a horseshoe-shaped German chocolate cake and a unity candle.

The bride is a 1985 graduate of Petersburg High School. She is employed by St. Mary's of the Plains Hospital, Lubbock.

The bridegroom is a 1984 graduate of Big Spring High School. He is a senior at Texas Tech University and is employed by Lubbock State School.

After a wedding trip to Ruidoso, N.M., the couple will make their home in Lubbock.

Gaskins-Rinard

Tasha Dean Gaskins, HC 77 Box T-32, and Jimmy Roy Rinard, Rt. 3 Box 86, exchanged wedding vows March 11, 1989 at a 7 p.m. ceremony at Midway Baptist Church, with Chet Haney, pastor, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Gaskins, HC 77 Box T-32.

Bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Jackie Rinard, Rt. 3 Box 86.

The couple stood before a white gazebo surrounded by greenery and arch candelabras decorated with spring flowers.

Organist was Sherry Fryear. Vocalists were Lisa Walker and Joe Wennik.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a traditional-style white gown of Chantilly lace over taffeta. The fitted bodice featured a portrait-neckline designed with a sheer lace yoke edged with a narrow lace ruffle. The hem of the A-line was decorated with a deep band of ruffles.

She carried a cascading white rose bouquet enhanced with spring flowers.

Maid of honor was Trisha Diane Gaskins, bride's sister, Big Spring.

Bridesmaids were Letty Jo Martin, San Angelo; and Brenda Sue McCutcheon, bridegroom's sister, Big Spring.

Flower girls were Julie Owens, bride's cousin; and Camie Carlile, who was escorted by Cody Carlile, bride's cousin.

King girl was Brittney Rose Griffin, niece.

Best man was Ray Rinard, bridegroom's brother, Big Spring.

Ringbearer was Patrick Wayne Lindsey, nephew.

MRS. TASHA RINARD

Groomsmen were Jesse Metcalf, Coahoma; and Terry Eichman, bridegroom's cousin, Arlington.

Ushers and candlelighters were Jimmy Wayne Eichman, bridegroom's cousin, Wichita Falls; and Clifford Snell, Big Spring.

After the wedding, a reception was hosted at the church. The bride's table, draped with an ecru lace cloth, featured a three-tiered cake topped with a Precious Moments bride and bridegroom figurine and a royal blue fountain.

Mints, nuts and punch were served from the table. The bridegroom's table, draped with an ecru lace cloth, featured an ALF cake and three small, heart-shaped cakes.

The bride is a graduate of Forsan High School. She attended Howard College for two years and is a member of Phi Theta Kappa honor fraternity. She is employed by American Petrofina Pipeline.

The bridegroom is a graduate of Coahoma High School. He is employed by McCutcheon Oil Co.

The couple will make their home in Coahoma.

He is a ground operations superintendent with Headquarters Continental Electronic Security Division, Kelly Air Force Base.

Preston is the son of Dee J. Preston, Sebring, Fla.; and brother of Gail S. Boggs, Indianapolis, Ind.

His wife, Air Force Tech Sgt. Gloria Preston, is the daughter of Dora Hernandez, 36 E. 10th St.

The sergeant is a 1970 graduate of Divine Heart Seminary, Donaldson, Ind.

In 1984, he received an associate degree the Community College of the Air Force.

Guide to healthy skin

By LADIES' HOME JOURNAL

A Meredith Magazine

Is there a perfect skin care program for women 25 and older? To find out, Ladies' Home Journal asked some of the nation's top doctors for their expert opinions. The doctor's overall message: protect and pamper the skin to keep it young and beautiful.

"There's nothing like leading a shady life" says Albert Kligman, M.D., Ph.D., a professor of dermatology at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine. He sees the beginning of a new trend toward greater protection against exposure to the sun.

Women who like looking bronzed can use tinted moisturizers or other means now available to create a tanned look without damaging their skin, according to Diana Bihova, M.D., a clinical instructor of dermatology at the New York University School of Medicine.

A skin routine that includes moisturizers is essential for women over 25. Dr. Kligman says most people don't know enough about skin care. He sees many women follow an elaborate ritual of scrubbing their face, using an astringent followed by a special cleanser to get rid of the astringent, then applying a lotion and masque.

"When I tell them that if they would stop using all those things their skin would improve, they're amazed," says Kligman.

Kligman recommends using a mild soap applied with fingers and lukewarm water. He also recommends a moisturizer after every shower and face washing to protect skin from the environment.

According to the American Cancer Society, one out of ten women will develop breast cancer sometime in her lifetime. It is currently estimated that over 37,000 women die each year as a result of breast cancer.

Ninety percent of breast cancers are diagnosed by women or their physicians finding a lump in the breast. Women who are diagnosed with a lump large enough to feel have a 50 percent five year survival rate. A woman who is diagnosed as having breast cancer by mammography, before a lump can be felt, has a 97% five year survival rate and a 90% 10 year survival rate. (The cost is only $50.00)

A mammogram can detect a cancer this small, even before it can be felt.

No cause for alarm

Dear Abby

DEAR ABBY: My wife has a serious case of emphysema and is on oxygen 95 percent of the time. I am her caregiver and try to see that she gets out for duplicate bridge, bingo and an occasional shopping trip.

Our problem? We must take a portable oxygen tank with us wherever we go, and people are of the opinion that if someone smokes in the vicinity of an oxygen tank, it will explode.

At a church bingo game recently, a woman who claimed to be a nurse created a very disruptive scene, insisting that my wife's oxygen tank might explode and kill everyone in the building! We were asked to leave the church, and my wife was devastated.

I appealed to Father John and he asked us to come to the next bingo game where he would have the fire chief attend and explain to the players that there is no danger of having an oxygen tank explode. (Oxygen does not "explode"; it only hastens burning.)

Well, yesterday someone at a bridge game expressed some fear that my wife's oxygen tank endangered everyone in the vicinity. The accuser was very pigheaded and refused to listen to me or call the fire department for reassurance.

Abby, people who suffer from lung disease live very limiting lives. In order for my wife to go anywhere, we must load her wheelchair and oxygen tank into the car and find a place large enough for the equipment.

Please address this problem in your column. People need to know more about this subject. — R.J.B. IN LAKELAND, FLA.

DEAR R.J.B.: Gladly. Some of the hysteria about the presence of an oxygen tank may be due to the fact that one sees "NO SMOKING — OXYGEN" signs posted in hospitals. These signs are there because there are oxygen outlets in the walls filled with concentrated oxygen, and should a fire break out, the oxygen would make the fire burn more quickly.

I checked with my local fire department, and the chief is in total agreement with yours. Your wife's oxygen equipment is no cause for alarm. A tank with a tube feeding a tiny stream of oxygen into your wife's nose endangers no one — even if someone were to be smoking nearby.

DEAR ABBY: My husband is driving me crazy. After a year of marriage, his disorganized, slovenly habits are starting to affect me. There is a pile of his clothes a foot high on our bedroom floor. It's been there for two months, and he hasn't decided what to do with it yet. Every closet and cupboard is crammed full of his stuff. Our dresser is covered with junk. He never puts anything away; he just keeps adding to it.

I've tried straightening up the place, but in two days it's a mess again. He "lost" a shoe once, and it turned up in the clothes hamper. I can't go on living like this. I am really at the end of my rope. What should I do? — WIFE OF A SLOB

DEAR WIFE: Since you are at the end of your rope — and possibly the end of your marriage — you are addressing your complaints to the wrong person. Give your husband a choice. He can either make an honest effort to correct his slovenly habits, or you are leaving.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ALL PARENTS: Parents who want to "train a child in the way he should go" should go that way themselves.

The facts about drugs, AIDS, and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy are all in Abby's new, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send your name and address, plus check or money order for $3.50 ($4 in Canada) to: Dear Abby's Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. Postage is included.

Burns celebrates

LAS VEGAS — George Burns, who opened Wednesday night at Caesars Palace, celebrates the success of his new book, "Gracie: A Love Story" by cutting a cake in the shape of the book at a party at Caesars Tuesday night. With Burns is Caesars' representative Stacey Vitto.

Names in the news

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — Johnny Carson, host of "The Tonight Show" for 26 years, says he'll be back for at least one more season — because of the weather.

Carson said Wednesday he recently had lunch with Brandon Tartikoff, president of NBC entertainment and signed on for another year.

"Last year I said to him — I made a foolish mistake — I said I'll do another year when it snows in Malibu. And it snowed in Malibu, so here we are," Carson said.

A rare snowstorm struck earlier this winter at the seaside community that is home to Carson and many other celebrities.

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Dith Pran, a New York Times photographer whose harrowing experiences in his native Cambodia inspired the movie "The Killing Fields," says a holocaust could recur there.

The United States must prevent the Khmer Rouge from regaining power in Cambodia, Pran told a University of Wisconsin audience Wednesday.

He urged his listeners to write their congressmen to put pressure on China to stop supplying the Khmer Rouge, the extremist group accused of killing millions of Cambodians after it came to power in 1975. It is now one of several groups fighting Vietnamese occupation.

"If you remain silent, the holocaust will happen all over again," said Pran, who escaped from Cambodia into Thailand four years after the Khmer Rouge took over.

NEW YORK (AP) — Singing star Lisa Lisa, actress Susan St. James and New York Knicks basketball player Sidney Green helped kick off a state program to build students' self-esteem and curb the dropout rate.

The volunteer mentor program they helped launch Wednesday will encourage sixth-graders to stay in school.

"If you have dreams, that is what you have to make reality," said Lisa Lisa. "No matter how many doors are slammed in your face."

Ms. St. James reminisced about an uncle who nurtured her dream of becoming an actress. "Take advantage of it," she said of the mentor program. "This is your chance to be better than the next guy."

Public service announcements to recruit adult mentors, especially former teachers and other retired people, will be narrated by actor Gregory Peck.

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Ailing industrialist Norton Simon has resigned as president of the Norton

DITH PRAN

Simon Museum and has been succeeded by his wife, Academy Award-winning actress Jennifer Jones Simon.

Simon, 82, who also resigned as a museum member and trustee, was recently admitted to the University of California, Los Angeles, Medical Center for an undisclosed illness, the museum said Wednesday.

Mrs. Simon, who won an Oscar for best actress in the 1943 film "Song of Bernadette," was elected chairwoman and chief executive of the museum.

Simon's art collection, on long-term loan to the museum, is estimated to be worth more than $750 million. It includes many works by masters such as Raphael and Rembrandt and a large number of modern works.

Simon made his fortune in the 1920s and 1930s in the vegetable packing and canning businesses, building a conglomerate that by the 1970s was worth more than $1 billion.

Blue Bell ice cream is becoming Texas favorite

By TUMBLEWEED SMITH

A dozen years ago, Coors beer was not available everywhere in Texas. Residents in areas that didn't have it wanted it bad. So they complained until they got it. The same thing is happening with Blue Bell ice cream.

In 1907, Brenham had several dairy farms, but no place to make butter on a large scale. To accommodate local farmers, the Blue Bell creamery was opened. The name comes from a wildflower that grows in the pastures around Brenham.

In 1911, ice cream was added to the product line.

"We shipped out a little ice cream packed in ice to nearby places like Caldwell, Wallace, Prairie View and other communities within 25 miles of Brenham," says Elton Anderson, who joined Blue Bell in 1930. He still works there.

Blue Bell has stopped making butter and now puts all its efforts into making ice cream. Blue Bell accounts for about 50 percent of the ice cream dollar in the markets it serves.

The company produces 40 flavors. Homemade vanilla is the number one seller.

All Blue Bell ice cream is made in Brenham. John Barnhill, vice president of sales, says his company has a good product and good people making and selling it.

"With those two things mixed in with some good advertising, you get an image that is almost greater than life," says John. The company's advertising slogan is "from the little creamery in Brenham."

John loves to tell what happened with Bluebell in Waco. "We really just gave in to the pressures of the consumer there because we had several letters from Waco people wanting Blue Bell ice cream," says John. "Then the Waco media started giving us flack."

When Blue Bell finally got to Waco, people were so excited to have it in the stores they asked for spoons and started eating it while waiting to be checked out.

Tumbleweed Smith

Ed Kruse, the head man at Blue Bell, would like to see ice cream sold in as many places as cold drinks are sold.

"Almost any place you go you're never concerned about being able to buy a soft drink," says Ed. "It's always available. I would really like to see ice cream in that same position."

Blue Bell is on the move. The company is opening its first distribution center outside Texas this year in Oklahoma City, western Louisiana residents get Blue Bell from the Longview distributor. Another distribution center recently opened in Corpus Christi.

Blue Bell can be found in about 75 percent of the state, but it is not available from Abilene to El Paso.

"We hope to get out there one of these days," says Ed. "We're not trying to keep our product from anyone. We'd sure love for everybody to have the opportunity to eat it."

He says there's no formula for Blue Bell's success.

"In the 50s we started working over every product we made, trying to make it as good as we possibly could. We take the best ingredients and the right combinations of cream and milk and sugar and put them together without regard to cost. Then after we make the product the best we can make it, we put a price on it. We try to price it so the consumer is getting real value and the best product they can get."

Some vacationers plan their trips through Brenham so they can tour the creamery then get a free ice cream cone. A new visitors center at Blue Bell will attract about 100,000 people this year.

Purists attempt to 'copyright' pizza

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — One hundred years after a Naples chef presented the queen of Italy with a patriotic pizza, purists and politicians want to "copyright" the simple recipe for a genuine Neapolitan pie.

Representatives from the Italian Association for Real Pizza, the Association of European Pizza Makers and the province of Naples met Tuesday to define exactly what makes a "Neapolitan pizza."

"All over the world, pizza is sold and consumed but often it is a product that has nothing in common with the original Neapolitan one," said Gennero Ambrosio, industry commissioner for the Province of Naples.

"It is, of course, impossible to 'copyright' a recipe, but to define the characteristic ingredients of real Neapolitan pizza is a step toward keeping a pizza with mushrooms or hot dogs on it from being called a Neapolitan pizza," he said.

On June 11, 1898, a young Neapolitan pizza chef set out for the royal palace on a mule with his wife and a sack of ingredients to try out a new recipe on Queen Margherita di Savoia.

The queen enjoyed the dish and asked the chef, Raffaele Esposito, what it was called. "It does not have a name, but from now on it will be called as your majesty," he is said to have replied.

Esposito had departed from the traditional pizza ingredients of the times: garlic, oregano and sardines or dried cheese. He instead used red tomato sauce, white mozzarella cheese and green basil, the colors of the Italian flag.

Cholesterol tests should be part of routine exam

By NAOMI HUNT
County Extension Agent

The National Cholesterol Education Program recommends that cholesterol tests become a routine part of all physical examinations, and all adults should know their cholesterol count. If the results show a cholesterol level:

- Under 200 mg/dl: The person is probably in a low-risk group. He or she should be retested at each complete physical and certainly every five years.

- Over 200 mg/dl: A second blood test should be done to confirm the findings of the first one.

- Over 200 but less than 240 on the second test: The person should be advised to go on a low-fat cholesterol-lowering diet.

- Over 240 on the second test: The testing laboratory will be asked to provide a breakdown of HDLs, LDLs and other blood lipids. People with existing heart disease or major risk factors such as high blood pressure, diabetes, obesity and cigarette smoking should have HDL and LDL levels tested regardless of the total cholesterol count.

Depending on results, a strict diet and lifestyle changes may be prescribed. If not totally successful, drugs may be necessary along with the diet.

Healthy-Heart Choices

For A Busy Lunch

When you eat out for lunch every day, making heart healthy food choices can help you feel better, keep your weight down and do your heart a favor!

Here are some suggestions for

Focus on family

lunches, whether you eat at a fine restaurant or a fast food store:

Visit the salad bar and load up with garbanzo beans or kidney beans. They are rich in the same type of soluble fiber oat bran contains. Avoid potato salad, pasta salad, bean salad, or slaw, all of which are loaded with oil or mayonnaise.

Fill your plate with veggies; put a tablespoon of oil/vinegar based dressing on the side. Add an oat bran muffin and a serving of fresh fruit.

A good sandwich choice is turkey on whole-wheat bread with lettuce, tomato, and a spicy mustard.

At a fast-food restaurant, the best choice may be a plain hamburger with lettuce, tomato, pickles, and mustard.

Eating broiled fish twice a week may reduce saturated fat intake while adding variety to noontime meals. But fried fish and fish sandwiches will just add fat to your diet.

Other good entree choices are bean burritos, soft chicken or beef tacos with a lettuce and tomato topping; spaghetti with a tomato or mushroom sauce; Chinese dinners with bean curd as the main ingredient; and chicken breast baked without the skin.

With Lea Whitehead

Sonny Choate made his debut as master of ceremonies at this year's first quarterly Community Luncheon. He gave all the credit for his proficiency to the Big Spring Tall Talkers Toastmasters Club.

Sonny later told Marae Brooks that he had just learned what her first name was — "Everybody always called her 'Dumpy' in high school," he explained to others in the crowd.

"Barefoot in the Park," the recent Spring City Theatre production, was being highly recommended by Dick Fields. His wife, Donna, plays the female lead in this production which the theatre group expects to repeat in the Starlight Specials at the Amphitheater this summer.

Cliff Attaway told Susan Knous and Sherry Rose that the Attaway family was expecting a new addition soon.

Others enjoying the fun included Bob and Jan Noyes, Clyde McMahon, Jr., Wayne Henry, Donette Phillips, Marie Hall, Mary Herrera, Bill and Joyce Crooker, Jackie Olsen, Kathy Sayles, Carl Schoenfield, Nell Ringener, State Representative

Early arrivals at the luncheon were Jackie Olson and Kathy Sayles, in line at the salad bar.

Troy Fraser and many, many more.

Squeaky Thompson's fishing trip this week had a rocky start and a rocky ending — but in between he had a great time.

He got up at 5 a. m. last Saturday (remember the snow and icy wind?) and drove to Midland International Airport to join about 25 other fishermen from Texas and New Mexico for a charter flight to Lake Bacarrac in Bacubirito, Sinaloa, Mexico. The take-off was delayed partly by the weather and partly by the fact the charter company had neglected to provide a flight attendant. Federal regulations require an attendant on charters of more than 18 persons, so the group had to stand around and tell fish stories until an attendant could be flown in from Dallas!

And then, there was the trip back. U. S. Border Patrol at Presidio emptied the plane of passengers and cargo — opening all luggage — and brought in their drug dog. "Can you imagine what a sight that was," says Squeaky. "Suitcases full of the dirty clothes worn by two dozen men who'd been on a five-day fishing trip!"

But otherwise, it was a perfect trip, Squeaky reports — the fishing was good, the weather beautiful and the companionship great.

George Von Hassel has just Inmates get fat in jail

PECOS (AP) — There's more than just bread and water on the Reeves County Jail menu.

In fact, Reeves County Correctional Facility officials say the eating is so good that their inmates often leave fatter than they came.

"We'll get dopers in here who are skin and bones because they haven't been eating," said Chief Sheriff's Deputy Jack Brewer. "By the time they get sent to TDC, they're off dope and fattened up and walk out of here in good shape."

It's no place for anyone on a diet. The folks at the West Texas jail serve three square meals — without cutting many corners.

Officials say most meals include at least 4 ounces of meat, and the meals occasionally include pork chops and steaks, luxury fare that would be unheard of at other jails.

"There are a lot of jails still serving beans, and others that only have two meals a day," said Reeves County Sheriff Raul Florez. Florez says the Reeves County Jail also used to rely on beans to pad the jail's food budget, but things have turned deliciously around under new food supervisor Johnny Salcido.

Salcido, who took the post in August, says he is providing inmate meals for an average of 85 to 90 cents per prisoner per meal, about the same money that was being spent before.

He reduced the size of the servings to cut back on the amount of wasted food. And selective shopping allows the county to provide higher-quality cuisine.

Don Rector, Lubbock, TTI, sponsor of the March luncheon, explains a game to Toni Eagle while Cliff Attaway, Wade Burroughs and Marie Hall wait their turn.

BUSINESS & INDUSTRY REVIEW

Edited by Lea Whitehead

Hitchin' Post is mecca for arts, crafts hobbyist

The Hitchin' Post, a weathered Western-style building at 1601 E. FM 700, has been a mecca for arts and crafts hobbyists for nearly 10 years.

The shop offers the latest in arts and crafts supplies; counted cross-stitch needs; a full line of custom-framing supplies, and more — plus classes to put it all together. And most importantly, you get the advice and help of owner Ernestine Day, who says she has "always been interested in arts and crafts."

The shelves are filled with instruction books, patterns, floss, hoops, needles, buttons, pom poms, shells, iron-ons, fabric glue, ribbons, beads, paints and 1001 items to fill every creative urge.

The biggest fad now, says Ernestine, is painted clothing — sweat shirts, sweat pants, tee shirts and tee dresses. The owner can give you a few basic instructions, but she suggests signing up for a clothing painting class.

The Hitchin' Post has a roomy classroom in which arts workshops and instruction classes are held.

Well known local artists Clara Tolle and Sheree Moates teach classes regularly on Wednesday and Thursday during the day and on Monday and Tuesday evenings. Clara's classes in oils, watercolors and pastels are for adults; Sheree teaches in the same media to children.

Classes in fabric painting and earring design, taught by Clara, are scheduled when a class is full, says Ernestine. To register for any classes, call the Hitchin' Post at 263-0783 or go by the shop. If you are interested in tie-dyeing, Ernestine can give you the necessary tips in just a few minutes.

Custom-framing is a specialty, with a full line of mats and ready made frames in stock. Ernestine also offers a vacuum mounting process, especially appropriate for prints, maps, and posters. "You can then frame them, or simply hang the items unframed," says the owner.

"We have customers of all ages," says Ernestine.

The Hitchin' Post is open Monday through Friday from 9:30 to 5:30; and on Saturday from 9:30 til 1 p. m. Ernestine's daughter, Marsha Bishop, works there parttime.

Many places may sell arts and crafts items, says Ernestine. "But we feel what our store offers is unique — we teach the customer how to do it, and we're always here to help them."

Card Of Thanks 693

Perhaps you sang a lovely song, or sat quietly in a chair; Perhaps you sent beautiful flowers, If so, we saw them there.

Perhaps you sent or spoke kind words As any friend could say; Perhaps you prepared some tasty food,

Or maybe furnished a car; Perhaps you rendered a service unseen.

Near or here or from afar, Whatever you did to console the heart We thank you so much Whatever the part.

Wild donkeys make pests of themselves

CINNAMON BAY, U.S. Virgin Islands (AP) — Wild donkeys are driving the tranquil Caribbean island of St. John to distraction.

An estimated 300 donkeys roam the smallest of the three main U.S. Virgin Islands. They knock over garbage cans, chew up gardens, wake people in the night, intrude on campers, eat native tamarind trees and foul the streets with their droppings. Sometimes, the ornery 300-pound pests kick and bite.

They also reproduce rapidly. After their first pregnancies, females stay in heat and can give birth annually. It is estimated that the donkey population will double in five years.

"They reproduce faster than jackrabbits in Australia," says Eileen Sundra, a native of Northfield, N.J., who has lived on the island for eight years and bought an air gun to keep them away from her garden.

The burros, descendants of wild asses from northeast Africa, were brought to St. John in the mid-1600s during Spanish colonial days. They were ideal for the rugged terrain and were valued as work animals in sugar and cotton plantations.

But with the advent of cars and roads in the 1950s there was little need for donkeys, and they were gradually turned loose.

"Today, they have no real domain," says St. John administrator William Lomax. "They roam the whole island and they don't seem to fear human beings. We're concerned they'll injure someone."

In the Caribbean, the problem is unique to St. John. With the creation of the National Park in 1956, more than half of the 21 square miles of land was preserved — a

Cooking convention covers centuries of techniques

Some seminars explored centuries-old techniques that are back in vogue; others taught how to reconcile cooking methods of the past with today's busy, hurried careerists. One answer: video shopping to replace time-consuming trips to the supermarket.

"People still want Momma's cooking but they don't want to spend time doing it," Louise Natenshon, a convention official and cooking consultant, said Wednesday.

"History to High Tech," the 11th annual gathering of the International Association of Cooking Professionals, joins chefs, restaurant owners and food writers on a wide mix of subjects from the gastronomy of grains to formulas for preparing chocolate.

Convention participants will attend workshops on such topics as "The Future of Food" and "Can Recipes Travel Through Time?"

Seminars in Chinese cooking showed how the ancient method of cooking food over smoldering tea leaves is still in style.

"Smoking and grilling are ancient technologies but they're also the wave of the future," Natenshon said. "They add a different kind of flavor, like Cajun cooking."

Several participants said they came to "network" as well as to learn about cooking.

"I think the most exciting thing is that people who like to eat are people who like life," said Janeen Sarlin, a cooking teacher who is one of nearly 400 participants in the convention that ends Saturday. "If I learn just one thing, some new way of doing something this week, it'll be worth it."

The convention could get a little technical. For example, an early workshop in "High-Tech Tips for Fail-Safe Recipes" was clearly not for the kind of cook who relies on Hamburger Helper or macaroni and cheese.

Shirley Corriher, an Atlanta-based cooking instructor and food consultant held a roomful of students in thrall for two hours as she addressed common cooking problems. First, she distributed lecture notes that included a section on the "basics of emulsion."

"There are 128 or more sugars found in caramel," she said, while whipping up fish, chocolate sauce and a cake brioche. "And the big secret for flakiness is 'cold, cold, cold.' ... You've got to get chocolate up to 118 degrees but you can't get it over 120 or it separates out."

But it's not all hard work. Participants sampled some of the goodies and will be allowed to kick up their heels during "Wine Tasting — A Personal Sensory Analysis." "Ways With Walnuts," or the "Fisherman's Feast," billed as the "finale" which includes a "bounty of fish from the North Atlantic."

Albert Kumin's "Luxuriate in Chocolate" was the most popular workshop, according to convention spokeswoman Valerie Bergman. Kumin, a renowned pastry chef and confectioner, designed menus for the White House.

Carol Cutler, the author of eight cookbooks, was one of 93 participants who signed up for Kumin's class.

"I like the master classes but it's really the networking that many of us come for," she said.
