Autopsy Ordered In Woman's Death

A verdict in the death of Mrs. Pauline Carr Hall, 46, is pending results of autopsy findings ordered by Justice of the Peace Jess Slaughter.

The body of Mrs. Hall was found in a ravine 40 yards from the street by James and John Gay, 11-year-old twins who were playing in the 3200 block of Eleventh Place about 5 p.m. Wednesday. She appeared to have been dead several days, according to Detective Paul Alexander.

HOSPITAL

Mrs. Hall had been a resident of the Big Spring State Hospital, but was reported missing from the hospital March 12. A witness reportedly saw a woman Monday fitting Mrs. Hall's description near where she was found.

Police do not suspect foul play, according to Detective Jim McCain. A local doctor performed the autopsy, and tissue samples have been sent to Abilene for laboratory examination.

Funeral for Mrs. Hall is pending at River-Welch Funeral Home. She was born April 14, 1922, in Albuquerque, N.M. She is survived by her mother, Mrs. S. A. Douglas, El Paso.

Identification of Mrs. Hall was made through papers she carried in her purse and personal identification by state hospital personnel.

THIRD ONE

Mrs. Hall's body was the third to be discovered here in the last five months.

The body of Alvis W. Cummings, 58, was discovered in a vacant field near Northwest Third and Bell Thanksgiving Day, undiscovered for about 30 days.

The skeletal remains of an 81-year-old Negro man was discovered by a telephone lineman 1¼ miles north of the west IS 20 overpass of the Texas and Pacific Railway Co. He was identified as James Reddick Clark and was last seen alive April 25, 1966.

PILGRIMS

Egyptian Plane Falls, 92 Persons Killed

CAIGO (AP) — A Soviet-built Egyptian airliner returning from a Moslem pilgrimage to Saudi Arabia with 101 persons aboard crashed in flames at the airport in Aswan in upper Egypt today. Officials said 92 persons were killed.

The Ilyushin 18, delivered to the United Arab Airlines two weeks ago, exploded and burst into flames after a wing hit the runway, officials reported. Wreckage was scattered 800 yards.

The plane carried a crew of seven.

Fourteen persons were taken alive from the wreckage, but five of them died shortly after reaching a hospital.

Pilgrims returning from Saudi Arabia are usually taken to Aswan for a two-day quarantine before being allowed to return to their homes in Egypt.

Water Plan Zips By Senate Panel

AUSTIN (AP) — The most expensive water plan in the history of the world — according to Sen. Tom Creighton, Mineral Wells — has been approved by the Senate Water and Conservation Committee.

The $9 billion Texas water plan is bigger than California's $3.5 billion project to bring northern California water to parched southern California, Creighton told the committee Wednesday night.

"It's better than anything the Romans did," Creighton said.

'I hope we have better luck than they did," said Sen. J. P. Word, Meridian.

Texas' share of the plan would be $3.5 billion. The federal government would pay the rest.

The plan calls for redistribution of surplus East Texas water and Mississippi River water to thirsty West Texas and South Texas. It is to take care of Texas' water needs to the year 2020.

The cost of the plan previously has been reported as $10 billion, but Howard Boswell, development fund manager of the Texas Water Development Board, said the actual cost is closer to $9 billion.

The committee approved six bills in less than half an hour. Only one bill is needed to make the Texas Water Plan complete. It would give the water development board the power to condemn land needed for the project. The bill was referred to a subcommittee to explore the precise dimensions of this power of eminent domain.

The bills approved by the committee would increase the water development fund by $200 million and remove the 4 per cent limitation on state bonds. The $3.5 billion in state bonds would require a two-thirds majority in each house of the legislature.

Connally Predicts Trouble Ahead

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Gov. John Connally said today Gov. Preston Smith will have a hard time convincing legislators to approve his tax proposals.

Connally said the new governor will have particular difficulty in creating a $10 tax on moving traffic violations.

"I just don't believe the legislature will pass that portion of the bill," he said. "The joke around Austin is that it will be the retirement act of 1969 if they do pass it."

Speaking Wednesday night, Connally said Smith's proposals of a one cent increase in the cigarette tax and of a tax on gross receipts of the chemical industry also will meet with difficulty in the legislature.

"Trying to write a bill that would just tax the gross receipts of the chemical industry in my judgment is going to be very difficult," Connally said.

LT. R. E. GRIFFITH

Tributes To Lt. Griffith Set Friday

Solemn tributes of a grateful community and nation will accompany Lt. Robert E. Griffith, 23, to his final rest here Friday.

Lt. Griffith gave his life in combat action March 3 in Vietnam. Earlier, he had been decorated for gallantry in action, receiving the Silver Star in addition to the combat infantryman and Purple Heart badges.

His body will arrive at 12 midnight today at the Midland airport and will be brought here for the final rites at 2 p.m. in Eleventh Place and Birdwell Lane Church of Christ. Richard Williams, Altus, Okla., who was his minister here, will officiate, assisted by the present minister, T. Lloyd Cannon. Burial will be in Trinity Memorial Park with full military rites and an Army guard of honor. Nalley-Pickle Funeral Home is in charge of local arrangements.

Mayor Arnold Marshall issued a proclamation calling upon all who fly their flags to post them at half staff Friday in honor of Lt. Griffith. Dr. Halvard T. Hansen, commander of the American Legion, joined in urging residents to fly their flags at half mast.

Lt. Griffith was born Sept. 2, 1945, in San Antonio. The family moved here in 1947, and he completed high school here, attended Howard County Junior College and Abilene Christian College before entering the Army in November, 1966. He was platoon leader in Company A, 3rd Battalion of the 4th Infantry Division's 8th Infantry.

Surviving are his wife, the former Linda Duncan, and their son, Wesley, nine months; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Griffith, 1303 Mulberry; and a brother, Lt. Wayne Griffith, who is escorting his brother's body from the West Coast on the final journey home.

Real Joker!

BROOKVILLE, Pa. (AP) — David Brosius, 12, received a release form from NBC this week asking for permission to use a joke he sent to "Laugh-In."

David, a sixth grader, signed the release but included a request in the return letter. It said, "If you use my joke on your show, will you please use it on the last half because my dad watches another program during the first half."

Chartered Plane Crashes, 16 Die

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A chartered plane carrying a group of Tennessee sportsmen on a hunting trip crashed and burned while landing in heavy fog this morning at New Orleans International Airport and the coroner reported 16 men killed.

"We believe there are 16 dead," said Dr. Charles B. Odom, Jefferson Parish coroner. "It fits in with the number of those on board the plane—27—three crewmen and 24 passengers." Odom said he believed all the bodies had been removed from the charred aircraft.

Earlier, Fire Chief William Mancuso of Kenner, who helped set up a temporary morgue at the airport, said 19 bodies were visible in the wreckage.

Eleven survivors, none of them in serious condition, were rushed to Ochsner Foundation Hospital. Only three were admitted.

The plane, a DC3, had been sold Wednesday by Avion Corporation to a broker and had been chartered by the West Tennessee Sportsmen's Association.

"A doctor said he counted 10 bodies in sight in the plane," said Jay Charrier, a lineman for the General Aviation Corp. "Myself, I saw about three bodies."

Authorities said the plane came from Memphis and was headed for Belize, British Honduras. It was landing here to refuel and go through customs.

The plane crashed at 7:02 a.m. (CST) on the east-west runway. The crash left a gaping hole in the fuselage, and propellers and other parts were scattered across the runway for 1,000 yards.

PAY $25,000 IN FINES, RELEASED

Peru Seizes More U. S. Boats

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Peru seized two more U.S. tuna boats but released them Wednesday night after their captains paid $25,000 in fines.

The incident could complicate the negotiations John Irwin, a special representative of President Nixon, is beginning with the Peruvian government over the expropriation of U.S. oil properties.

Irwin, who arrived last week, declined to comment on the seizure of the two ships from San Diego, Calif., the Cape Anne and the San Juan, 23 miles off the north coast of this Andean nation.

A Peruvian torpedo boat took the two U.S. ships in tow. Peru claims a 200-mile territorial fishing limit while the United States and most other nations recognize a 12-mile limit.

For the San Juan, whose captain had to pay a $17,000 fine, it was the second encounter with Peruvian naval power. Last Feb. 14, when a gunboat seized another U.S. ship, the San Juan was fired on.

The Cape Anne, whose captain paid an $8,000 fine, was involved in a similar incident in 1965 when it sailed under the name Mayflower, maritime sources here said. Then it was sailing 75 miles offshore when a Peruvian vessel fired at it, slightly wounding an American seaman.

In Washington, several congressmen called for reprisals against Peru, and Rep. Thomas M. Pelly, R-Wash., said there have been nearly 80 "illegal" seizures of American tuna boats on Latin-American coasts since 1961."

Rep. Edward A. Garmatz, D-Md., introduced a resolution demanding the return of the U.S. destroyer Isherwood, which is on loan to Peru. U.S. law already provides for the return of such warships from countries that illegally seize U.S. fishing boats.

Irwin is continuing his talks with government officials about the expropriation of the International Petroleum Co., a subsidiary of Standard Oil of New Jersey.

SMITH AWAITS REACTION TO TAX PROPOSALS

Legislators To Write Their Own Bill

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Preston Smith waited today for public reaction to his latest new tax recommendations, and legislators got ready to write their own tax bill.

There were indications the first major move toward producing $261 million in new revenue for 1970-71 will come next Wednesday.

Meanwhile both houses met today to consider a long list of committee-approved bills, then were expected to quit until Monday.

JOINT SESSION

The governor told a joint session of senators and representatives Wednesday afternoon that he thought $71 million in new tax money should be raised from cigarette smokers and chemical manufacturers.

Smith recommended raising the state cigarette tax from 11 to 15 cents a pack, which also carries eight cents federal tax. The governor predicted most cigarette sellers would up prices five cents a pack, giving them another cent profit along with the four cents for new state tax money. Smith estimated the four cents increase would produce $71 million for 1970-71.

The governor said another $45 million could be raised in the next biennium by a .5 per cent gross receipts tax on chemical products manufactured in Texas. Motor and special fuels would be exempted, as would natural sulphur, natural gas and cement. The tax would hit manufacture of organic and inorganic chemicals and gases, resin and plastics, drugs, cleaning and toilet goods, explosives, carbon black, paints, inks and other chemical preparations.

Speaker Gus Mutscher was caustious in comment on the governor's recommendations but the speaker said he would talk with House leaders about a major tax bill hearing next Wednesday.

"I can't help but applaud the governor's efforts to bring some degree of balance between business and consumer taxes," Mutscher said.

Lt. Gov. Ben Barnes, who is leaving for Washington today for a talk with Vice President Spiro T. Agnew on federal-state tax sharing, said he would keep an "open mind" on Smith's proposals.

Rep. Ben Atwell, chairman of the House Tax Committee and co-sponsor of the only House bill introduced that has the chemical tax, said he would need assurances the tax will not hurt the competitive position of Texas' fast growing chemical industry.

"Ridiculous," said Sen. Jack Strong, Longview, about the chemicals levy. "It's a gross receipts tax on a gross receipts tax. Chemicals are produced from oil and gas, which already have a gross receipts tax."

Rep. Jim Nugent, Kerrville, said the cigarette tax increase was "certainly an equitable and reasonable approach inasmuch as past history has shown the legislature that regardless of whether it is a one cent or a three cent tax, the price to the public goes up a nickle."

Smith apparently shook some legislators when he suggested they keep "your thinking clear and straight about a corporation profits tax. . I frankly do not know how much longer such a tax can be postponed in Texas."

One of Smith's aides said he came close to recommending such a levy.

"I sure don't want to hear any more talk about a corporate income tax. . . because a personal income tax comes next," said Rep. Bill Heatly, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee.

Smith also said he wanted legislators to know that he was serious about recommending in February a $10 penalty for each moving traffic fine to produce about $38.5 million the next two years.

SERIOUS

"Whether it was a politically wise recommendation, or whether it was a good recommendation, may be questioned, but I assure you it was and is a serious recommendation," he said. In a session of the House Revenue and Tax Committee after Smith's speech, Rep. R.H. Cory, Victoria, tried unsuccessfully to get the $10 traffic fine penalty plan sent to the attorney general for a legal test. He said he had letters from a number of attorneys who thought the plan would be unconstitutional by "using police power to raise taxes."

Cory said he would make a second attempt later.

Smith also repeated his stand against any one-year appropriations of the type that caused a legislative crisis between Smith, as lieutenant governor, and former Gov. John Connally. The 1967 legislature approved spending for only one year then Connally was forced to call the 1968 special session where the sales tax was increased one cent to cover second year spending.

Agent Foils Sky Pirate

(AP WIREPHOTO)

Spoils

FBI agent John Reed of Oklahoma City was just a passenger on Delta's flight 918 Wednesday night until a 27-year-old gunman attempted to hijack the flight to Cuba.

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A gunman who had ordered a flight to Cuba was disarmed and arrested aboard an airliner by an FBI agent among the passengers when the plane landed here to refuel.

RICOCHETED

As the agent, big, graying John Reed, struggled with the would-be hijacker, the man's .22-caliber pistol went off, but the bullet richocheted off the floor without hitting anybody.

The FBI identified the gunman as Douglas Alton Dickey, 27, and said documents in his possession showed he was born in Casa Grande, Ariz. He was held on a federal charge of air piracy, which carries a maximum penalty of death.

Robert E. Rightmyer, agent in charge of the New Orleans FBI office, said Dickey boarded the plane, Delta Airlines Flight 918, Wednesday night at Dallas.

Rightmyer said the man produced his pistol and took over the plane about five minutes before it was scheduled to land at New Orleans. He agreed to a landing when the pilot said he could not make it to Cuba without refueling.

Once the plane was on the ground, Rightmyer said, the gunman said the 89 other passengers could get off. The last passenger to approach the exit door, where the man stood gun in hand, was Reed, assistant special agent in charge at Oklahoma City.

Reed stopped in front of the man and informed him he was under arrest. He said the man replied:

"I do not intend to kill you but I am going to Havana and I am going to shoot you in the leg."

SUBDUED

Reed subdued him in a quick struggle, during which the pistol fired once.

POOR SERVICE, HIGH RATES

Telephone, Electric Utilities Under Fire

AUSTIN (AP) — Sen. J. P. Word of Meridian leaned forward on the table and solemnly asked a witness complaining about telephone service: "Have you ever counted how many rings it takes to get a long distance operator?"

"No sir, I—"

"Well, I have," interrupted Word, his face reddening. "It took 75 rings."

Word's impromptu comments were an example of the complaints made by 20 witnesses Wednesday about telephone and electrical service and rates.

They appeared before the Senate State Affairs Committee in favor of a proposal by Sen. Charles Wilson of Lufkin to establish a nine-member Texas Utility Regulation Board to set "rates and standards of service."

The committee was in session, before a large crowd, for three hours and then quit to make way for another committee hearing. Wilson said he was "saving his heavy artillery" for next week, and those opposing the bill still have to testify, so it almost certainly will be the longest committee session of the legislature.

It was Wilson's show all the way. He has been promoting the hearing for weeks in Austin and around the state and sat at the committee table prompting each witness if they forgot a complaint which they apparently had told him before.

Wilson hired a cameraman to film the hearing, with sound, to show later on television.

Truman Kirk, a teacher at Cisco Junior College east of Abilene, said when he was on the Abilene City Commission it was decided to make a telephone rate study.

"A Southwestern Bell representative from Dallas came over to my little office, shook his finger in my face and said: 'Who do you think you are investigating us?'

"Basically, I'm a conservative and opposed to regulatory agencies," Kirk said, "But we have to make an exception when you have something like we have here."

Wilson said, "the basic ingredient of the free enterprise system is the law of the market place. I'm in the lumber business and sell 2-by-4's, and if I charge too much or am too rude to my customers they can go to my competitors.

"This right does not exist with no place else to go."

U.S. Battlefield Dead Tops 10,000 Since Talks Began

SAIGON (AP) — The U.S. Command announced today that 351 Americans were killed in action in Vietnam last week, pushing the total of U.S. battlefield dead to 10,112 in the 10 months since the Paris peace talks began and to 33,063 in more than eight years of war.

The American toll last week was 15 more than the previous week's total and raised the number of Americans killed in the first three weeks of the Viet Cong's spring offensive to 1,140, only 240 less than the 1,380 U.S. troops reported killed during the eight weeks of 1969 prior to the offensive.

If the current casualty rate continues the total of American dead in the Vietnam war will exceed the Korean war toll of 33,629 by the end of this month. More Americans then will have been killed in Vietnam than in any other war in U.S. history except the Civil War and the two world wars.

The U.S. Command said 1,401 Americans were wounded last week, compared with 1,694 the week before.

South Vietnamese casualties were 325 killed and 1,158 wounded, up from 259 and 1,058 the previous week, the government said. Despite the mounting allied casualties, the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were paying a far heavier price for their offensive.

U.S. headquarters said 4,137 of the enemy were killed last week, bringing the total enemy dead to at least 119,100 since the Paris talks began last May and to at least 465,479 since the United States entered the war on Jan. 1, 1961.

The enemy toll for the first three weeks of the offensive is 15,099 dead according to allied figures.

As the enemy's offensive rolled into its 26th day with no end in sight, U.S. headquarters reported about 30 rocket and mortar attacks on allied bases and towns Wednesday night. For the second night, the chief target was Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city and a major military base.

U.S. spokesmen said more than 20 rounds of 100-pound rockets and mortars hit two buildings at the U.S. Navy's Camp Tien Sha, a Navy cargo loading pier, a Seabee base, a Navy hospital and a Marine air base.

Two rounds missed Camp Tien Sha and landed in a nearby village, killing two Vietnamese civilians and wounding six others.

Spokesmen said military casualties and damage were light, with about half a dozen Americans wounded but none killed. One mortar round did light damage to a ward in the hospital, but no casualties were reported there.

The rockets that hit Da Nang Tuesday night killed 14 civilians and wounded 24.

Hard ground fighting also was reported close to Da Nang. South Vietnamese headquarters said enemy squads slipped into Vinh Dien, a district capital 10 miles south of Da Nang, before dawn Wednesday, and government militiamen, infantrymen and armored personnel carriers battled all day to root them out.

The bidding:

Opening lead: Ten of ♡

South's one no trump response to his partner's take-out double, holding only five points in high cards, does not meet with our approval. Altho he has the opponent's suit well stopped, South should have better values for his call—a bid of one no trump in this situation designates about eight or nine points.

Inasmuch as he has no real suit of his own and a pass would be unthinkable, it is suggested that South respond in the cheapest available three card suit—spades. Partner should be relied on to base any subsequent actions solely on his own holding.

West opened the ten of hearts against three no trump and dummy's queen was put up to hold the trick as East dropped the eight. South observed that his work was cut out for him, inasmuch as he lacked entries to make plays from his own hand.

The queen of clubs was led at trick two and West won with the ace. A heart continuation appeared risky, so West shifted to the nine of diamonds. Dummy played the king and returned the jack of clubs. East was in this time and led back the queen of diamonds.

South won the trick with North's ace and cashed the ten of clubs on which West discarded a heart. From East's failure to return a heart when he was in, declarer concluded that West had started with a six card suit. He also appeared to be marked with both the king and queen of spades as part of his opening bid. If declarer's assumptions were correct, then a profitable series of end plays were in the offing.

A spade was led from dummy to declarer's ten and West was in with the queen. The latter was down to all hearts and spades and, being reluctant to lead a heart, he exited with the eight of spades. North's jack was played which held the trick. The ace was cashed, dropping the outstanding spades, followed by dummy's seven which was established as the 13er.

West was down to three cards—the K-9-7 of hearts. A heart was led and ducked into his hand, forcing him to surrender the last two tricks to South's ace-jack. In all, declarer won three spades, three hearts, two diamonds, and one club.

A Devotional For The Day

Blessed is the man who endures trial, for when he has stood in the test he will receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him. (James 1:12, RSV)

PRAYER: Dear God, we thank Thee for the blessings of patience, both in us and shown us. Without Thy patience toward us, we would experience Thy wrath and scorn and lose all hope. Teach us patience in our relations with our fellowmen. Amen.

Czech Headache

There is reason to think the denizens of the Kremlin may be wishing they had never had the bright idea of occupying Czechoslovakia. The blatant indulgence in force outraged the world and dealt Soviet prestige a severe blow. It continues to have consequences which seriously embarrass the Kremlin and suggest a stronger undercurrent of rebellious spirit than one might have thought existed.

Evidence of such a spirit has been abundant in Czechoslovakia. Somewhat more surprisingly, dissent has been manifested in the Soviet Union itself.

Striking evidence of this is found in the case of a former Soviet major general, Pyotr G. Grigorenko, who has been something of a stormy petrel ever since he asserted that the repressive spirit of Stalinism was not dead. For that breach he was demoted to private and cashiered from the army in 1964. Before the invasion of Czechoslovakia he was among signers of a letter protesting Soviet pressures on Prague. Now, goaded by the fiery suicides of two young Czechs, Grigorenko has been circulating an appeal to Soviet citizens to demand the withdrawal of Soviet troops.

Grigorenko is joined in this by Ivan A. Yakhimovich, who expressed dissident views to party leaders and for his trouble was dropped as chairman of a collective farm. Two stout-hearted men do not constitute an army of dissent, but their actions hint at much more beneath the surface.

In Czechoslovakia, dissent is open and widespread. Reports from Moravia give an indication of this. There students who resented the presence of Soviet army patrols in a Moravian city protested to high Czech officials — whereupon, rather surprisingly, the patrols were halted. In Moravia, too, a Czech major-general has publicly stated that he is at loss to explain to his men why Soviet troops must remain in Czechoslovakia. The consequences of the invasion continue to emerge, and presumably are causing headaches in Moscow.

'BUT IT'S KHRUSHCHEV'S OLD HALO'

Ray Case Simply Won't Die

James Earl Ray, who pleaded guilty to the slaying of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., has begun serving the 99-year prison sentence meted out to him. On the face of it, this would seem to wrap up the case.

The matter is not quite that simple. For one thing Ray has written the presiding judge that he wants a new hearing over his guilty plea. Moreover, many Americans feel that the deal between defense and prosecution whereby Ray entered a guilty plea after only minimal court proceedings was a breach of faith. There is a widespread belief that the trial should have been allowed to take its normal course so that the full truth of the matter — insofar as it is known — could have been drawn out for the enlightenment of the public.

This would have been desirable, in particular, because of the possibility that Ray conspired with others to assassinate Dr. King. This possibility is not the fruit of idle speculation. At least one investigative reporter of good reputation seems to feel there was a conspiracy. It is known that the Justice Department has been seeking to uncover a plot — or at least to find out whether there was a plot.

This investigation should be continued until all possible evidence has been thoroughly sifted. And when that has been accomplished, if nothing substantial enough to warrant further court proceedings has been found, the attorney general should issue a statement setting the matter in perspective.

President Can Use Senator Jackson

WASHINGTON — Sen. Henry Jackson of Washington State is the Nixon administration's "most wanted" Democrat, but the President's failure to get him into either the Defense or State Departments is not a total loss. Jackson may be of more help by staying in the Senate.

Jackson figures to be the topmost non-Southern Democrat who will support Mr. Nixon in the nitty-gritty of nuclear arms and nuclear negotiation. It's now plain that neither Mike Mansfield nor Ted Kennedy, one the majority Senate leader and the other his assistant, is going to be helpful in the tightly related matters of deploying a missile defense.

WITHOUT MANSFIELD or Kennedy, to say nothing of former stalwarts like Stuart Symington who has skidded almost into the peacenik arms of Bill Fulbright, Mr. Nixon does not have the bipartisan Senate backing that he needs in the upper reaches of foreign policy. If he can't get consent in the Senate, Mr. Nixon is going to need advice.

JACKSON, a 20-year insider on weapons and atomic energy, has never served on the Foreign Relations committee and is seldom thought of as an idea-man in international diplomacy. But he has used his Government Operations subcommittee chairmanship on "national security and international operations" to place a prodigious amount of useful knowledge into circulation. Just recently Jackson released publication of what amounts to being a handbook on dealing with the Russians. The material in it is not new, but is newly collected, and should be required reading at the White House and State Department. It is titled "The Soviet Approach to Negotiations."

TWO CHAPTERS in Chairman Jackson's publication deal with the "gamesmanship" of Soviet negotiators. They are not at all "like us" when they sit down at a table. Dean Acheson, one of the contributors, says that Russians come to the table, not to reach an agreement, but to make an impression of some sort on world opinion. Another contributor, Professor Joseph Nogee, finds that any substantive agreement on nuclear matters is out of the question. He finds that Russia long ago has "permanently nationalized the atom," and has no purpose in nuclear negotiations except to reject our proposals "without appearing to do so."

STILL ANOTHER chapter, this one by former Ambassador George Kennan, gives a simple list of "Don'ts" which Mr. Nixon and his men ought to paste into their hatbands. Never, says Kennan, "act chummy," or "assume a community of aims which does not really exist," or go in for "fatuous gestures of good will," or fear to be "heavy" even on "minor matters," or be afraid of "unpleasantness" with those across the table.

IT WON'T DO to give Sen. Jackson too much credit for other men's wisdom. He didn't write this pamphlet. He only caused its publication. But the collective advice in its 92 pages looks like the best deed yet done by a Democrat for this Republican President.

Billy Graham

Although I am happily married and have four lovely children, I am deeply involved with another woman. I don't know how to get out of the hell I'm in. W.K.

Yes, you are in hell, a hell of your own making. There is no way you can get out yourself. By a tremendous act of your will, you may break off this unholy relationship with this other woman but your conscience will continue to tell you how wrong you have been and you will not find any true peace. But, there is a way out, a way which will bring forgiveness and peace. Confess your sin to God. Ask His forgiveness and then ask Him to give you the strength to turn from this sin and live for His glory. You have sinned against yourself; you have sinned against your wife; you have sinned against this other woman; most of all, you have sinned against God. The Gospel story is one of forgiveness for sin and of power to overcome sin. All of this is through what Jesus did for you on the Cross. Explain it? No, it cannot be explained but it is true. Rationalize it? It cannot be rationalized because it is a supernatural thing, something which God has done for us. But, when we accept it and act on it we find that it works. I do not know the details or the sordid ramifications of your sin, but this I can assure you on the Word of God Himself that He will forgive you and help you if you will turn to Him. With the Psalmist you will say, "I watied patiently for the Lord; and He inclined unto me, and heard my cry. He brought me up also out of a horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet on a rock, and established my goings."

Plenty Of Company For 'Judas'

NEW YORK (AP) — In every takeover attempt of one corporation by another, the skids are greased by at least one disgruntled employe. To some he is a Judas; to others, himself included, he may be a saint. He is always present.

This is a view of a man who advises companies fearful of being absorbed in the present day rash of conglomerations, or the merging and molding of disparate enterprises into one larger company.

Dr. Eugene Jennings of Michigan State University, who has spent most of his adult life studying and advising management, writing about it, and teaching it to students, offers this as one explanation of how mergers are accomplished.

THE JUDAS, if he is to be called that, is a terribly abused individual, at least in his own viewpoint. He has nothing to lose if his company is taken over and so he supports the moves of the aggressor company.

He might be a controller or an engineer in a company where controllers and engineers never have a shot at the presidency. He may be in what Jennings calls a nonpriority or terminal route.

He is, nevertheless, an important and powerful man in the company. He knows the large stockholders and so can talk them into agreeing to the takeover. He also owns stock himself, and he has influence with the directors.

"In every instance," Jennings says, "there is one of these individuals. If he isn't immediately obvious to the aggressor company he soon will be, and the aggressor need do nothing in order to obtain his help.

"HE WILL announce himself," Jennings has found. "He'll get on the phone and say: 'I'm the controller of XYZ. I think it would be a fine thing for you to take over this company for the following reasons. . ."

With this important contact established, the aggressor company then has a spokesman within the power structure, a man capable of arguing its case with management and with powerful stockholders.

The pattern reappears, Jennings notes. Furthermore, with a bit of reflection it shouldn't be impossible for the management of a company being threatened to know who the individual will be.

Jennings advises firms that the best protection against takeover, however, is to maintain a high price-earnings ratio, meaning a high per share market valuation of its stock in relation to earnings.

Sure Beats Blindness

By JOE WING
(Substituting for Hal Boyle)

NEW YORK (AP) — It was just five years ago this spring that I began to go blind. But there was something I could do about it, and I did.

As a result, I can see now as well as anybody my age has a right to expect—better perhaps than you do. In the doctor's office my vision is 20-20, although it's not that perfect under working conditions.

What brought this all about was of course that I developed cataracts in both eyes and had them removed. Neglected cataracts, as one of my grandmothers could have testified, may well result in total blindness.

WHEN FRIENDS first heard about my affliction, they seemed as shocked as if the surgeon had pointed a scalpel at one of their own eyeballs. Their sympathy made me feel pretty important, and helped scare the daylights out of me.

Of course nobody likes to have his eyes fooled with. And in spite of assurances from the opthamologists that such operations are nearly foolproof, I waited as long as I dared.

Really though, it was quite simple. They drugged me until I was practically unconscious, slit open my left cornea, lifted out the clouded lens, and sewed the eye back up again. There was little pain and, thanks to new techniques, no necessity for immobilizing me. After five weeks, I had been fitted with special glasses, was back on the job and paying off the doctor's bill.

IN MY RIGHT eye also, however, there was an incipient cataract. It didn't develop as quickly as those things sometimes do, but a year ago I had to have it excised. A cataract, incidentally, is not a growth but simply a clouding of the natural lens. The only way to treat it is to remove the lens.

With contact lenses and ordinary reading glasses, my vision is about as good as ever, though the contacts cause discomfort.

Without the contacts but wearing heavy, thick "cataract glasses," I have no more discomfort than anyone using spectacles, but my periphery vision is limited. As a result, I'm apt to bump into people on the street, and stumble upstairs, and find automobiles sneaking up on me.

IF I DISCARD both lenses and glasses, I can still see enough to get around a room or perhaps walk down the street (I've never tried it) but I cannot recognize anyone even two feet away.

So it's not all roses, and I recommend earnestly that you maintain good vision and, if possible, shun the operating table. But a cataract operation sure beats blindness.

Replies To The Man Who Rides Bike

By G. C. THOSTESON, M.D.

A little while ago a gentleman, initials A.P.C., wrote that he'd tried riding a bicycle but people hooted at him and made fun of him.

Among replies have been:

Dear Dr. Thosteson: About A.P.C. riding his bike at 58, my goodness, that is a very young man. My husband at 66 would really enjoy riding with him if he lived nearby. Don't worry about these ignorant people that harass others. My husband rode a bike two summers ago and it was great fun, but it wore out, so now he walks miles a day. — M.L.S.

Dear Doctor: He should go to Florida and visit the trailer parks. Many men and women ride bicycles for the exercise and pleasure.

In the last few years there are tricycles big enough for adults, and many women and some men ride them — they didn't ride bikes when young. These people are from 60 to 80 years old. I know, I am one of them. — Mrs. P.T.

And from New York came a fat envelope from Ralph Hanneman, director of community relations for the Bicycle Institute of America, pointing out that many cities and states have established special bicycle routes, some of them just safe places to ride, some actually scenic tours. Wisconsin has an "across-the-state bikeway."

In Pendleton, Ore., there's a Red Beret Bicycle Club, with all the members over 60.

One organization, which appeals to bike-riders of all ages, sizes, and energies, is the League of American Wheelmen (5118 West Foster Ave., Chicago, Ill., 60630, if anyone is interested) which offers bike insurance and a bike publication, "American Cycling," to its members.

A physician, Dr. Paul Dudley White, has done as much as anyone to popularize the bike as a health gadget, one of his remarks being, "I'd like to put everybody on bicycles, regularly. It's a good way to prevent heart disease."

Others have observed that bikes help their arthritis, which makes plenty of sense. We know very definitely that movement of arthritis joints (but not excessive strain) keeps them limber.

My vote is with the bicyclers. Let the hooters hoot, if they want to be so bad-mannered.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Is pernicious anemia hereditary? Although I feel healthy I wonder if I should seek preventive measures. — M.L.

It occurs sufficiently often in families to raise a strong suspicion that there may well be a hereditary factor.

There is no preventive measure, but the best precaution would be examination and a blood count from time to time. The disease can be readily controlled when detected. Some of the common symptoms are sore tongue, weakness, loose stool, and pallor.

You can lose weight if you really want to! Dr. Thosteson's booklet, "Lost Secrets of Reducing," tells you how — naturally and with no gimmicks — to the level best suited to your individual needs. Around The Rim

Make Way For The Weeds

I don't know what they were using in Vietnam that caused all the ruckus, but I wish some of that material used for defoliation over there could be shipped home and used in a number of areas in our city. With the threat of spring's arrival at hand, we are assured some of that sprouting green will certainly become weeds.

UNFORTUNATELY, weeds being what they are, they will be thriving mostly in places where they are the most unsightly — at the curblines of streets, and in the downtown areas, and even in the pavement itself. I would not hesitate to predict that unless they move fast, city crews will be faced with the prospect of taking a hoe to the weeds before they can pave the old Crawford Hotel site.

THERE ARE numerous large cracks in the sidewalks and streets downtown that furnish the weeds a home all summer each year, and several bare spots along streets in this area are quickly conquered by a weed cover, when winter finally checks out of the picture.

It is significant that the shopping centers have few such problems, credited I suppose to the fact that they are still relatively new and that the owners have control of the parking space on which they pay taxes. The older downtown area is left to periodic visits of city maintenance crews.

IT IS STRANGE that when the city called for requests of possible projects that might be included in the new budget, there was no one on hand to suggest that an old recommendation from the traffic commission be revived — permanent, daily crews for keeping down the weed growth on public right-of-way.

Doubtless there is some kind of stepped-up program included in the new city budget anyway (incidentally, public hearing on the budget will be held Tuesday at city hall). Still, it appears something that raises the ire of so many residents every summer would draw more support at a time when something might be done about it.

PROBABLY THE best of programs is not the sole answer. Property owners can wage the best war against this unsightly annual pest, and this is the time of the year for the battle plans to be drawn.

We've Got To Elect A Computer

WASHINGTON — One of the subconscious fears people have about any nuclear missile system is that because the time element is so short, the decision to launch a missile soon will have to be left up to computers.

Therefore, the question of the future is not which man you want to have his finger on the button, but which computer.

WE ALL HAVE read stories of computers that have sent one person five million Reader's Digests, who who have paid a janitor $1 million for a week's work; and anyone who has a charge account knows how stupid and inconsiderate a computer can be. So it's no wonder that the American people have anxieties about a computer deciding whether or not we're going to get into a nuclear war.

It seems only fitting that the American public should elect the computer that will make the most important decision for mankind.

AT THE MOMENT we have many fine computers to choose from. There's IBM, of course, there's Univac, Honeywell, Data Control, RCA and General Electric, just to mention a few.

These computers could easily be put on the ballot in 1972, and instead of a President, we would choose one of them to lead the country for the next four years.

We still would have a political campaign, with the computers vying for votes amongst the electorate. Each computer would have a platform so the people knew where it stood.

AND STYLE still would play an enormous part, as it has with human candidates. A good-looking computer with appeal to women probably would have a better chance of getting elected than an older computer that knows more but just doesn't have the charisma.

The computers would be subject to questioning by the press to see how they behave under stress. They also would appear on television to discuss how they would handle a missile crisis. (This could either be by recorded voice or teleprinter.)

The computers would have to let the American public know whether they're programmed for a tough posture with the Soviets, or whether they have left room in their calculations for accommodation.

AFTER WEIGHING all the pros and cons of the computers, the American people would then go to the polls and decide which computer was up to fulfilling the awesome responsibility of deciding the fate of the world.

Then there are those who might miss the excitement and glamor that come with having a human being as President of the United States. But in these perilous times, a human being is just not up to the responsibility.

A COMPUTER can work 24 hours a day, seven days a week. It isn't subject to political pressures. It can make decisions in seconds, and it isn't going to fly every weekend to Key Biscayne.

Also, the beauty of having a computer for a President is that we no longer would have to worry about human error. It's true we still would have to worry about a computer erring, but on the other hand, if the computer erred, we wouldn't have to worry about it very long.

The Policy On Anti-Missiles

WASHINGTON — The issue of the anti-ballistic-missile system is far from settled. Congress, however, after reflecting on what a "do nothing" alternative could mean, will eventually approve President Nixon's request for a relatively smaller program than the Johnson administration proposed.

For the Senate and House to do otherwise than endorse the plan would scare the public. A vote of "no confidence" in the President's project, given at this time, would encourage the Communists to press forward with their military expansion and take advantage of what would appear to be great discord on the defense policies of the United States.

SUPPORT BY Congress at this time, on the other hand, could prove a constructive move. It would indicate clearly to both the Soviet Union and Red China that the American people will not take chances and are convinced that the sound policy for the United States to pursue is to build a defense mechanism against missile attack while continuing to seek arms agreements calling for mutual restraint by the major powers.

Mr. Nixon wants to negotiate from a position of strength. If the House and Senate disagreed with such a course, this attitude could arouse a feeling of insecurity throughout the country. Dissenters in the Republican and Democratic ranks in Congress would hardly wish to take responsibility for producing that result.

PRESIDENT NIXON reasons that a resolute course, adopted now, would be noted abroad and that changes can be made from time to time through the "annual review" promised by the administration.

In reality, the President has taken a step which, in the long run, could avoid the provocation of a nuclear war. While many Americans may not understand all the technical factors involved in the deployment of an anti-ballistic-missile system, the Soviets and the Red Chinese will get the main point — namely, that the United States intends to spend whatever is necessary to protect its population by providing a system which deters nuclear attack.

THE PRESIDENT has made it clear that his policy is solely concerned with defense. He says the modified program will give the Soviet Union "even less reason to view our defense efforts as an obstacle to talks."

The President will continue to stress the fact that his whole program is based upon deterring an enemy from launching any attack. He feels it is necessary to protect enough of the deterrent apparatus so that the moves to be made by this country in retaliation against an attack "will be of such magnitude that the enemy would think twice before launching a first strike." The President expects the Soviet Union to "recognize very clearly the difference between a defensive posture and an offensive posture."

ON THE WHOLE, an analysis of Mr. Nixon's latest statements shows that he is deeply concerned, first of all, with the security of the United States and that he does not intend to allow the possibility of political schisms at home to affect his judgment when he prepares to make significant decisions in the international field.

What Others Say

January is not usually a big month so far as traffic deaths are concerned. Had last year's January figure of 3,480 fatalities been the monthly average, the toll during 1968 would have been under 42,000, whereas in fact it exceeded 50,000.

In January, 1969, however, fatalities were up 11 per cent over January last year — 3,860 deaths as against 3,480. It is a dishearteningly poor start.

The increase emphasizes anew that our means of curbing traffic accidents are simply not good enough. The January figures indicate that we must make a concerted and more vigorous effort to put safer cars on the road, improve driver performances, accept and abide by higher road safety standards. This complex problem demands a multi-faceted approach.

New Pentagon Leadership Has All But Shot Down Jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The new Pentagon leadership has all but shot down the FB111 strategic bomber former defense chief Robert S. McNamara insisted would be a good replacement for aging B52s.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird told Congress Wednesday he is cutting plans for the swing-wing jet to only four squadrons—a nominal 60 planes.

Three years ago McNamara was proposing 250 FB111s—variants of the controversial TFX design—contending it would be about as good, and less expensive, as another advance bomber the Air Force could develop to haul its nuclear bombs in the 1970s.

Laird made plain he was buying the four squadrons mainly to recover something from the vast funds spent on the program —"to salvage what we can of the work in process," as he put it.

Despite months of work, Laird said, the FB111 "is still experiencing development and production difficulties and the cost per aircraft continues to mount."

Pentagon officials said the 60 planes will cost $1.7 billion over-all, which includes heavy research and development expenses. McNamara originally estimated 250 models would cost $1.9 billion.

Laird said he would accelerate efforts to develop a completely new nuclear-equipped plane the Air Force calls the Advanced Manned Strategic Aircraft—AMSA.

Laird proposed spending $100 million to move toward full-scale engineering development for an AMSA in the next fiscal year.

The FB111 trimming was the latest setback to McNamara's program for having each of the services develop the planes they needed from one basic design.

The Navy tried to get a carrier-based fighter, the F111B, from the TFX design but junked the program after months of development difficulties and spending more than $200 million.

The Air Force fighter-bomber version, the F111A, is coming along with fewer problems although 13 have crashed during tests, combat trials in Southeast Asia and training flights. The Air Force says F111A bugs will be worked out and that it wants the plane.

Laird apparently is also satisfied the F111A will be an asset in the Air Force inventory.

Pentagon officials say he has approved a force level of more than 400 F111As, about the same number authorized by the outgoing defense administration of Clark M. Clifford.

The FB111 will serve to bridge the gap between the B52 stratofortresses, developed in the 1950s, and the forthcoming AMSA.

Laird has not yet committed himself to buy the AMSA, saying only that engineering development this year would bring him more quickly to a point of decision.

The cost of buying 200 AMSAs has been estimated at $10 billion.

Searching

Mildred Donivan, manager of automotive special services for R. L. Polk & Co., pulls out a reel of computer tape on which car registrations are listed. Polk, the only company in the United States which keeps records on the registrations of all motor vehicles in the 50 states, is helping Chevrolet find the owners of cars the firm is recalling.

First Recall Letters Mailed To Car Owners

DETROIT (AP) — The first letters notifying more than three million Chevrolet owners that their cars or trucks may have defects go into the mail today, more than three weeks after General Motors announced it was recalling the vehicles.

Chevrolet Division said the letters would go out by certified mail at the rate of 100,000 a day until all the owners are told to take their vehicles to dealers for inspection or service.

At that rate it should take until the middle of May to inform all the owners.

At 36 cents a certified letter the postage alone will cost over $1 million.

The Chevrolet cars and trucks are part of the 4.9 million vehicles called in by GM on Feb. 26 in the auto industry's largest recall campaign.

Chevrolet said the delay in getting out the letters was caused by shortage of a new part, the time required to put together a list of the owners to be notified and "just getting the massive paper work done."

The Chevrolet portion of the huge recall involves:

—Two million 1965 through 1968 model standard-size Chevrolets for service to the rear portion of the body to prevent exhaust fumes from entering the vehicle.

—723,000 1968 and 1969 model cars and trucks equipped with the four-barrel, quadra jet carburetor, in which a cam which might break is being replaced.

—400,000 cars which may have both problems.

Chevrolet is the last of the GM divisions to get started in mailing its recall letters.

Cadillac, Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac are already mailing letters to tell nearly 1.4 million owners of 1968 and 1969 vehicles equipped with the quadra jet carburetor that they have the same problem as 1.12 million Chevrolet owners.

On Tuesday, GM announced it was recalling 1.1 million cars, trucks and buses to be inspected for possible problems in their braking systems. A Pontiac division spokesman said they had not yet started mailing notices to the owners of 967,000 1965 and 1966 cars involved.

A GM spokesman said letters to the owners of the other vehicles—trucks and buses turned out by Chevrolet or GMC Truck & Coach Division— were being mailed Wednesday and today.

Man's Locker Is His Castle

BOSTON (AP) — A man's home is his castle. So is the locker he hires in a subway station and neither may be entered without a warrant, U.S. Judge Frank J. Murray ruled Wednesday.

The ruling was in the case of Richard L. Small, 19, of Somerville, charged with possession of marijuana, seized by a U.S. narcotics agent in a locker Small hired at the Harvard Square subway station.

Judge Murray, granting a motion to suppress evidence of the seizure, said, "The locker may be viewed as an area . . . like a home . . . where a person is constitutionally protected and where he has a reasonable expectation of privacy."

LIZA SAYS: 'PACK OF LIES'

Australian Scandal Charges Vote Posted

CANBERRA, Australia (AP) — The Australian House of Representatives voted today not to investigate scandal charges involving Prime Minister John Gorton and actress-singer Liza Minelli.

One of the charges was that the U.S. Central Intelligence Agency paid $15,000 for an article about Gorton which Miss Minelli had written and then sold it to African, European and American publications.

Defending himself in the House the 57-year-old Gorton said he had been the subject of a scurrilous whispering campaign.

Gorton said he was satisfied with his own conduct and that Miss Minelli, the 22-year-old daughter of singer Judy Garland, had said the whole thing was "a pack of lies."

An opposition member, Albert James, told the House that an Australian gossip sheet called Things I Hear had reported that Miss Minelli, who visited the country last year, had written the article for the British magazine Private Eye in which she "recounted what she claims were her experiences with the leading Australian political figure."

The alleged contents of the article were discussed but the debate was carried out "under privilege" which means the substance of the charges could not be made public.

James said the article allegedly dealt with incidents at a Sydney night club, in Bali during a visit by Gorton to Indonesia and in Canberra last Christmas.

James called for an investigation by the Parliamentary Privileges Committee.

The vote against the investigation was 75 to 34 and followed party lines, with one member of the Labor opposition voting with the government.

Sirhan Is Sick, Getting Sicker?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A change has come in the courtroom behavior of Sirhan Bishara Sirhan as his mind is probed, poked and dissected day after day before the jury trying him for the murder of Robert F. Kennedy.

Once attentive, he now barely glances at the witnesses. Once easily aroused to fury by any suggestion that he is mentally ill, Sirhan now sits quietly—almost dreamily—as psychologists say he is sick and getting sicker.

There was one such occasion Wednesday as Dr. Roderick Richardson described him variously as:

Paranoid, bitter, rebellious, wordy, power-oriented, dependent, moralistic, vulnerable, frail, unpredictable, legalistic, critical, suspicious, unreasonable, aggressive and socially inadequate.

Sirhan busied himself reading a small stack of cards and telegrams sent him for his 25th birthday.

To observers who have been in court with Sirhan for more than 10 weeks of trial, it is obvious that he dislikes being portrayed as mentally ill, but his attorneys say he now realizes that it might save his life.

If the jury can be persuaded that Sirhan was mentally incapable of meaningfully premeditating the killing, it could return a lesser verdict than first-degree murder, which calls for life imprisonment or the gas chamber.

"Mr. Sirhan at the time of the assassination," Richardson said, "was in a state of gathering paranoidal rage. Assassination serves as a release for a lot of pent-up paranoid feeling."

Sirhan's family asked for permission to bring some special treats for his birthday, but were turned down by his jailers. His meals, always specially and separately prepared, remained jail food.

Mary Sirhan, his mother, was telling an interviewer outside the courtroom how she usually made Sirhan's favorite dishes on his birthday when a bystander cut in with, "We all loved Bobby."

The 56-year-old woman turned away.

Special Council For WT Diocese

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The Rt. Rev. Harold C. Gosnell, bishop of the Episcopal Diocese of West Texas, announced Wednesday that a special council for the 60-county diocese will be held here Saturday.

About 500 delegates will attend the council to kick off an Episcopal advance fund drive in honor of retired Bishop Everett Jones, whom Bishop Gosnell succeeded earlier this year.

This will be the first such fund campaign since 1960. Goal is $1,775,000.

Army Recruiter Retires, 22 Years

SGT. JOE A. WELCH

Army recruiter Sgt. 1.C. Joe A. Welch, who has served in the West Texas area for almost six years, will retire from the military March 31 after 22½ years of service.

Sgt. Welch began his tour of duty in West Texas in August, 1963, when he was assigned to a one-man recruiting station in Snyder. While in Snyder, he met and married his wife, the former Mrs. Alma Kennedy. He enlisted his two step-sons, Danny Ray and Ralph Dennis into the Army. Dennis is still serving in the Army as a security agent in Vietnam.

When the station in Snyder was closed, Sgt. Welch was transferred here in 1966.

He has signed up 558 West Texas men and received numerous awards for his recruiting work. A dozen of the awards were for "Top One-Man Station" in 102 counties in the Dallas recruiting district, and two top station awards for a five state area. He has been cited on five occasions for his Women's Army Corps recruiting.

He was made a member of the Commander's 500 Club Oct. 14 when he enlisted his 500th Army man in ceremonies held in Midland.

Sgt. Welch has over eight years overseas service with two tours in Korea, Okinawa and Japan, and two tours in Germany. He holds the Army Commendation Medal; six awards of the Good Conduct Medal; American Campaign Ribbon, Victory Medal; Korea Service Medal; Occupation Medal for both Korea and Germany and two awards of the National Defense Service Medal.

Retirement ceremonies will be held at the recruiting main station in Dallas, and after a short vacation, Sgt. Welch and his family will reside at 3239 Drexel.

People Notice Swinging Mayor Candidate In LA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A comely red-haired housewife who says Los Angeles "deserves a swinging mayor" is going after the job with green stockings, songs and miniskirts.

"Politicians are asleep on the job," Eileen Nora Anderson, 32, tells political rallies. Then she launches into song:

"I would like to do lots of good things for this great big city.

"Lower all your taxes, do away with smog and pity.

"Legalize gambling and control it by the city.

"Take the burden off the taxpayer—today.

"Yeh. Yeh. Yeh.

Eileen admits "It's a new approach." So is her garb: green mesh opera hose, green miniskirts to accent her long flowing red hair and green eyes. "People remember me."

Eileen, 5-foot-4 mother of three, with a 37-24-34 figure, is one of 13 candidates trying to unseat Mayor Sam Yorty in this city's April primary.

"I feel very qualified," she says, in her clipped British accent. "I've fought city hall before."

Farm Bureau To Back Changes

WACO — Farm Bureau has taken action to support changes in the cotton loan program that will encourage mills to buy through established markets rather than through the Commodity Credit Corp., according to Sidney Dean, president of the 110,000-member Texas Farm Bureau.

Dean reported that the American Farm Bureau federation board of directors has approved a recommendation calling for the following changes in the present program: 1) extend the CCC cotton loan term to 12 months from the time the cotton is placed in the loan, and 2) set the CCC re-sale price at 115 per cent of the loan rate, plus the actual carrying charges.

Dear Abby

A Cuddly Mother-In-Law

DEAR ABBY: I've got mother-in-law trouble — but not the kind you usually hear about.

I am 33 and my mother-in-law is 45, and a real swinging divorcee. She's the kissy type. always kissing me hello and good-by, even when I'm only going into the next room.

If I sit down, Maureen (that's her name) is on my lap in two seconds. She's always wanting me to dance with her, and when she cuddles up, her instincts are anything but maternal.

My wife doesn't even notice, and thinks it's great that her mother likes me so much. Abby, it's gotten so I dread being left alone with Maureen. How can I chill her without making an issue of it? A SON-IN-LAW

DEAR SON-IN-LAW: First start calling her "Mother" instead of Maureen. Then tell her you don't feel like dancing, and she's too heavy to hold on your lap. If she's still in your hair, you must be doing something wrong. I've yet to meet a 33-year-old man who couldn't run faster than his mother-in-law.

• • •

DEAR ABBY: I have never told my troubles to anyone before, but I think it would help me to unburden myself. I have been married for 42 years and have three wonderful married children. This is my complaint: My hubby has retired and he stays home all the time now. He is forever changing everything around in my household, and I am going crazy trying to find things. If I say anything to him about it, well, Abby, you never heard such foul language. Then he will get angry at me and won't speak to me for days. I don't mind that, but he slams doors and pulls out drawers until I think I will lose my mind.

I am a nervous wreck. I have always looked forward to growing old gracefully, not being frightened to death by a raving maniac. What can I do?

MISERABLE

DEAR MISERABLE: You husband sounds like a sick man. Tell your story to one of your three wonderful married children and ask them to help you get their father to a doctor for a check up. It's not unusual for a retired man to make his presence felt around the house, but your man is overdoing it.

• • •

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

ANGUILLANS REMAIN QUIET FOLLOWING BLOODLESS INVASION

British Paratroopers Broil Under Caribbean Sun

ANGUILLA (AP) — British troops, broiled under the Caribbean sun today as they went through the motions of military occupation. The Anguillans remained quiet following the bloodless invasion of their tiny island.

"Doesn't this sun ever go down?" complained a sunburned paratrooper manning a highway checkpoint.

The 35-square-mile island has few trees, and many of the young men flown out from cold, gloomy Britain were badly sunburned a few hours after their dawn landing Wednesday. Temperatures were in the upper 80s.

NO RESISTANCE

The 6,000 Anguillans offered no armed resistance to the occupation by 135 British paratroopers and marines, and there was only one major emotional outburst. When acting President Ronald Webster called on British officers at their command headquarters Wednesday, a crowd of about 300 of his people hoisted him to their shoulders, shouted their support and sang the Anguillan freedom song to the tune of the Battle Hymn of the Republic.

Webster went to the schoolhouse headquarters to arrange a meeting with the occupiers, which he said would be held today. However, he said he would hold no formal negotiations until the British troops are withdrawn.

Webster also protested the invasion in a note to London Wednesday night.

Anthony Lee, an official from London installed by the invasion force as commissioner for the island, said the British occupation might last several years. But the paratroops and marines are expected to depart soon, leaving a detachment of London police to keep the Union Jack flying.

OCCUPATION

The British government has assured the Anguillans they will not be forced back into federation with the island of St. Kitts. They seceded from the federation May 31, 1967, complaining that the federation's prime minister, Robert L. Bradshaw, treated them as stepchildren.

Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart told the British House of Commons the occupation would give all concerned a breathing space to determine where their real interests lie. He made clear that the government feared Anguilla's secession, if it succeeded, would inspire other islands to break away from other British-sponsored federations, leaving Britain to take care of the rebels when they couldn't support themselves.

For the most part, Anguilla's 6,000 Negro inhabitants stood about in small groups and watched impassively as the white invaders set up roadblocks and posted guards at such strategic points as the island's partially paved airstrip.

MOB CONTROL

No arrests were reported, but a white American, Jack Holcomb, was put on a chartered plane by British soldiers and flown to St. Thomas, in the U.S. Virgin Islands. Holcomb, a Fort Lauderdale, Fla., real estate developer, had beer advising Webster.

The British had said U.S. underworld figures were reported getting control of the island, possibly to make it a haven for gamblers. Webster said that was absurd.

Webster told newsmen the islanders would hold a peaceful demonstration today outside the island's only high school, which the British are using as their headquarters after moving the classroom furniture outside. The island leader said he did not plan to ask British permission to hold the demonstration.

Outside Anguilla, the U.N. Special Committee on Colonialism agreed to take up the invasion as requested earlier by Jeremiah Gumbs, an Anguillan-born U.S. citizen who appears at the United Nations on behalf of Webster. The committee has many black African members and is certain to condemn the British.

WHITE RULERS

From black Africa came demands that Britain apply the same treatment to the white rulers of breakaway Rhodesia, and the Soviet news agency Tass called the invasion an example of Britain's traditional gunboat diplomacy to maintain colonialism.

John Crompton, premier of Anguilla's Caribbean neighbor, St. Lucia, defended the British action, saying it was in keeping with a decision by Caribbean heads of government last month that "no outside elements (should) cause any disturbance in Anguilla."

But a more powerful commonwealth prime minister in the area, Hugr Shearer of Jamaica, said his government found no justification for the use of force in Anguilla.

Threat To Escalate Viet War Backfires

PARIS (AP) — The United States charged today the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese offensive in South Vietnam "is a calculated part of a plan to take over South Vietnam by force."

At the ninth session of the Paris peace talks, South Vietnam accused the other side of preparing a massive new attack on Saigon and said unless it is called off it will have an adverse impact on the negotiations.

IT IS CLEAR

The Viet Cong's National Liberation Front defended the offensive as an answer to what it called "terrorist and sweep operations against the South Vietnamese people." It asserted President Nixon's warning of an "appropriate response" to the current offensive was a threat to escalate the war.

North Vietnam declared the United States and its allies had intensified the war, a charge rejected by the American delegation.

The meeting adjourned after four hours and the participants agreed to meet again next Thursday.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said that the Communist command planned its offensive long ago and made detailed and careful preparations which were in no way a response to U.S. acts.

"It is clear," he continued, "that the attacks which were launched on Feb. 22 were not undertaken as a response to any recent allied initiative. They were instead the long-heralded winter-spring campaign of 1969, a campaign of which your side warned in advance and of which it has boasted since."

HOPELESS

Addressing the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong's National Liberation Front, Ambassador Pham Dang Lam of South Vietnam said "many divisions of your soldiers are about to engage in a hopeless attack on Saigon."

"If that attack occurs," Lam declared, "it will surely be smashed and it will also cause heavy losses to your side and much mourning to the people. Therefore I call on your side not to proceed further on that costly adventure, in order to keep alive the prospects for these meetings."

Tran Buu Kiem of the National Liberation Front, speaking first, in effect discounted the allied charges in advance. He said the Viet Cong had won sweeping victories and the United States "must bear full responsibility for the waste of GI's lives."

"The Nixon administration dare not face the hard facts and draw a conclusion therefrom," said Kiem. "It still nurtures the hope of retrieving the situation by new military means and further threatens the Vietnamese people with 'appropriate response.' In other words, this is a threat of escalating the aggressive war."

Defending the offensive, now in its third week, Kiem said the attacks had been undertaken to "mete out punishment to the invaders and traitors" in response to "terrorist and sweep operations against the South Vietnamese people."

Red China Selling War Goods To Uncle Sam?

MOSCOW (AP) — Communist China has been selling war materials to the United States for use in Vietnam, a Soviet newspaper charged today.

The newspaper Sovetskaya Rossiya (Soviet Russia), reprinted a report from a Ceylonese newspaper that the U.S. 7th Fleet "bought from Hong Kong firms secretly controlled by Peking a consignment of various goods and 15 transport barges which were then shipped to South Vietnam."

Two Soviet correspondents reported in another newspaper that Soviet warplanes and tanks are operating near the disputed island where Russian and Chinese troops have clashed three times this month.

The border area around the island known to the Russians as Damansky and to the Chinese as Chenpao has been reported generally quiet since the last major clash a week ago.

Sovetskaya Rossiya and Moscow Radio also claimed that special trains are transfering large numbers of farmers and skilled workers from Moscow and other parts of European Russia to the Far Eastern frontier.

The reports hint that salaries and living conditions will be considerably improved for persons willing to make the journey, apparently to reinforce Russia's hold on the thinly settled border lands claimed by China.

Red China continued to report progress in its "preparedness against war" and claimed that production has increased as a rebuff to Soviet intrusions into China.

Coahoma To Get 'Impact' Funds

COAHOMA — Approval of $10,433 as a tentative entitlement for a federally affected area was announced today for the Coahoma Independent School District.

Rep. Omar Burleson advised school officials that $3,651 of this amount had been certified for immediate payment.

The funds are being supplied under Public Law 874, under which the United States government makes payments to local subdivisions as a type of "in-lieu-of-taxes" arrangement of support.

Weather Forecast

Rain and showers are due Thursday night in parts of California, Oregon and Nevada. More rain is expected in the eastern Lakes area with snow flurries due from Wisconsin north. More showers are due in the Virginias and parts of Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. It will be cooler in most of the nation but warmer along the Atlantic Seaboard.

SNAKE HANDLER FOR ROUNDUP
Pat Burchfield of Columbus, Ohio

Good Grief! Snakes Alive Time Again

The seventh annual Big Spring Jaycees Rattlesnake Roundup will begin Friday for three days of rattlesnake hunting, live snake handling demonstrations, an antique car show and carnival at College Park Shopping Center.

Activities will kick off with a parade at 4:30 p.m. Friday through Big Spring. Attractions will include the Shrine Motorcycle Patrol, antique cars, live snake demonstrations and Miss Diamondback, Judy Fletcher.

Headlining this year's roundup will be Pat Burchfield, a professional snake handler from Columbus, Ohio, who appeared here three years ago as a member of the U.S. Army Research Team.

Burchfield will demonstrate live snake handling and venom extracting. A skinning pit and rattlesnake snacks will also be offered at the former location of Lewis' variety store in College Park Shopping Center, headquarters for the roundup.

About 50 snake hunters from throughout the nation will begin registering at the roundup headquarters at 8 a.m. Friday and the hunt will officially open. Don Horton, chairman of the Jaycee project, said the hunt has been advertised nationwide and inquiries have been received from as far away as Ohio and other states.

Registration for hunters will be held each day during the roundup from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and there will be poisonous snake exhibits and guided tours for hunters and photographers.

Burchfield will give handling demonstrations of live poisonous snakes from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday, and from noon to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Prizes for the hunt will be awarded at 5 p.m. Sunday. First prize for the total number of pounds of snakes caught during the three-day hunt will be $50. Second prize will be $35, third prize, $25, and trophies will be given for the top first places. Hunter with the longest snake caught in the roundup will receive $5 per foot for the snake and a trophy. Snake caught with the most rattles will receive a trophy and $1 per rattle.

Snakes brought to roundup headquarters Friday will be purchased at 20 cents per pound, while rattlers purchased on Saturday will bring 12 cents per pound. Snakes caught Sunday will be 7 cents per pound.

The antique car show will be held Saturday and Sunday, along with a "swap meet" for antique car enthusiasts. The show is sponsored by the Big Spring Region of the Antique Automobile Club of America.

The Jaycee carnival will open Friday afternoon and continue through Sunday at the shopping center.

A Rattlesnake Roundup Dance, featuring the Blue Tweed, is set for 8 p.m. Saturday at Cosden Country Club. The public is invited, and tickets are available from Jaycees or at the dance. Admission will be free to persons bringing in a live rattlesnake.

A special "battle of the bands" contest is also slated for Saturday afternoon at the roundup headquarters with area musicians invited, Horton said.

Car Cars Gone

Mrs. J. L. Hanke, 1311 Harding, reported to police that three hubcaps had been removed from her car while it was parked at her home. The hubcaps were valued at $31.35.

Good, Palatable Grass Cheapest Food To Grow

Grass is our basic heritage and good, palatable grass is the cheapest feed to grow, says Paul Gross, Howard County agricultural agent.

Grass affords protection from floods, guards cities' water supplies, furnishes cereal crops and provides forage for livestock and wildlife, adds Gross.

Knowing which grasses grow on your range can be the key to successful range management, Gross points out. Certain pasture grasses are indicators, like signs on a highway. They show whether the range is going up-hill or down, or if the road ahead will be crooked or straight.

The ranchman should know the kinds of plants growing on his range, Gross added. He should know their forage value, how to use them properly, the kind of livestock to utilize them to the fullest and the proper seasonal management.

The rancher should also know the drouth resistance and liveability of grasses, how and when to control noxious plants, how to properly distribute livestock for uniform forage use and to develop a grazing system to keep the livestock numbers and forage in balance.

Stockmen should read the signs on their range, Gross advises, and then handle it accordingly. "Know Your Grasses," a publication of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, can help answer many questions dealing with good range management and is available in the county agent's office, according to Gross.

Israelis Accused Of Using Napalm

TEL AVIV (AP) — Arab and Israeli forces dueled again in the violence-scarred Beisan Valley south of the Sea of Galilee today. The Israeli army said two border policemen were wounded.

The army reported an Israeli frontier patrol was the target of bazooka and small arms fire near Tirat Zvi, 20 miles south of the sea. The patrol returned the fire.

It was the second day of action along the Jordanian cease-fire line. Several Israeli border settlements were fired on Wednesday, and Israeli planes roared across the Jordan River to hammer suspected guerrilla positions.

The Israeli newspaper Haaretz said the planes blew up an ammuntion dump in the northern part of the valley.

The newspaper also said some of the Arab rounds came from Soviet 122mm artillery and 120mm mortars manned by Iraqi troops. Iraqi soldiers have been stationed in the area, and some have moved north into Syria.

A military spokesman in Amman accused the Israelis of using napalm and machine guns in the air attack.

At the United Nations, Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah denied Iraqi charges that Arabs in Israeli-occupied territory were being deprived of their rights. He replied that Iraq was using political hostility toward Israel as a pretext for "cruelty against Jews simply as Jews."

Foreign Minister Abba Eban of Israel, speaking in Chicago Wednesday night, pinpointed the significance of recent cease-fire violations in the Middle East.

'Lamesa Cares' Team Named

LAMESA — Leaders have been named for the "Lamesa Cares" campaign which will seek to finance the building of a permanent facility for the Lamesa Day Care Center, Inc. Milton Ashmore, president of the board of directors, was named general chairman of the $20,000 drive which will continue through April 15.

A group of seven will be working for gifts of materials, properties and larger amounts of money as memorials. Heading this division is the Rev. Walter Horn, who has been instrumental in the establishment of the local service. The Select Seven consists of J. P. White, J. B. Claiborne, Skeet Noret, C. A. Hollingsworth, Ray Renner, Tom Conner and John Palmore.

A Special Seven team, headed by Willis Gresham, will be organized for a general campaign beginning April 1.

Community activities including a society salad supper and a Mexican supper are in the planning stages under the direction of Fred Neuman.

The Lamesa Day Care Center, Inc., is a nonprofit organization for care of children of mothers who could not work if professional service costs were required. The pilot project for the center has been in progress at the First Christian Church on a trial basis for almost a year. It will be expanded to a 40-child capacity in the permanent facility. Among its functions are balanced meals at noon for the children, citizenship and personal care and wholesome recreation for pre-school youngsters. Charges for the service are based on the family's income.

H-SU Workshop Lures Mrs. Avery

Mrs. Johnnie Avery is in Abilene today and Friday for a meeting of the newly organized Texas Association of Student Financial Aid Administrators.

Mrs. Avery handles the aid programs for Howard County Junior College.

The workshop being held on the campus of Hardin-Simmons University will emphasize federal, state and private assistance programs for college students and their schools. Friday the entire day will be devoted to the Texas Opportunity Plan Program.

Petrofina's Earnings Up

American Petrofina, Inc., in its 1968 annual report distributed this week reported significant expansions of capacity have laid the foundation for future growth in earnings. New records of sales and earnings were established in 1968.

An increase of 16 per cent in net income was realized on a 12 per cent gain in operating revenues which rose to $207,250,000 as compared with $184,893,000 in 1967. Based on average shares outstanding during each year, earnings per share were $2.19 compared to $1.97 in 1967.

Capital expenditures of $41,895,000 in 1968 were the largest in American Petrofina's history. New manufacturing facilities added, or substantially completed during 1968, represented more than one-half of the record capital budget.

American Petrofina is engaged in exploration and production activities in the Southwest, Mid-Continent, and Rocky Mountain regions. In addition to its petrochemical facilities, it operates two refineries in Texas and one in Kansas. American Petrofina's motor oils and lubricants are marketed under the Fina brand and are distributed through more than 3,400 service stations located in 17 Mid-Continent states.

American Petrofina for the third consecutive year reported increases in production of oil and gas, in operating rates at the company's refineries and in sales of refined products and petrochemicals.

At Big Spring a new two-stage 50,000 barrel per day crude distillation and propane deasphalting unit was constructed during 1968 and brought on stream in February, 1969. This facility enabled American Petrofina to retire 34,000 barrels per day of less efficient capacity including a small refinery at Colorado City.

DEATHS

Mrs. Julia White, Lengthy Illness

STANTON (SC) — Mrs. Julia White, 87, died Wednesday in a Big Spring hospital after a lengthy illness. She was born July 14, 1881, in Georgia and married the late W. W. White in 1907 in Georgia. He preceded her in death Jan. 3, 1967. The family moved to Martin County from Howard County in 1924.

Funeral will be held Friday at 3 p.m. in the Assembly of God Church, with the Rev. Ray T. Hill, Big Spring minister, officiating. Burial will be in the Evergreen Cemetery by Gilbreath Funeral Home.

Survivors include one son, Lewis White, Big Spring; one foster daughter, Mrs. Liz McCurdy, Stanton; one foster son, J. V. Hopper, Brownfield; one sister, Mrs. Lena Woods, Rangely, Colo.; 13 grandchildren and 14 great-grandchildren.

R. A. Smart Sr., Services Pending

Robert A. Smart Sr., 84, former Big Spring resident, died Wednesday night in a San Diego, Calif., hospital. Services are pending at River-Welch Funeral Home here.

Mr. Smart was born March 24, 1884, in Winthrop, Ark., and he married Ida Mae Ward there on Jan. 1, 1907. She died in 1968. He had lived in California six months, after residing in Big Spring three months. Prior to that he was a resident of Idabell, Okla.

Survivors include four sons, Lincoln Smart, Eureka, Calif., Robert A. Smart Jr., Big Spring, John W. Smart, Calpella, Calif., and Floyd H. Smart, Galena Park, Tex.; five daughters, Mrs. Tex.; five daughters, Mrs. Apton Mears and Mrs. David Read, both of San Diego, Calif., Mrs. T. A. Bratton, Tumwater, Wash., Mrs. Russell Seastrunk, Goodman, Mo., and Mrs. T. H. Roach, Eureka, Calif.; 21 grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

W. F. Terry, 87, Ackerly Farmer

ACKERLY — W. F. Terry, 87, retired farmer and for many years a resident of Ackerly, died Thursday at Brownfield. He was the father of Mrs. B. C. Brown, and the grandfather of Mrs. Gale Batson and Billy Brown, all of Ackerly.

Mr. Terry succumbed in Brownfield after a brief illness. He had farmed in this community from 1929 to 1943. He moved to Brownfield that year.

Born in Alabama in 1881, Mr. Terry moved to Texas as a young man.

Services are to be at 2 p.m. Friday in the East Hill Church of Christ in Brownfield. Burial will be in Brownwood cemetery.

Survivors include his wife, three sons and two daughters.

CONTRACEPTIVE REVOLUTION IMPACT UNVEILED

'The Identity Problem Of The American Woman'

By CLARE BOOTHE LUCE
Distributed By The Associated Press

Our society is still grappling with the massive economic, political, and social problems of the ever-accelerating technological revolution. It has not yet faced the questions raised by the contraceptive revolution. Possibly this is because most of these questions for our generation are, regrettably, academic.

But the impact on the psyche of young American women has already been shattering. We, of an earlier generation, do know that the Industrial Revolution, with its partial economic emancipation of women, has resulted in the rapid erosion of the once-sacred institution of marriage, and this worries us.

WHO AM I?

But the young woman knows, even if her parents do not, that the contraceptive revolution has challenged the most ancient concepts of the very nature of woman herself, and left her in a state of bewilderment and uncertainty about her proper role in society. The contraceptive revolution, even more than the Industrial Revolution, has given her an "identity problem."

Who am I? What am I? the young woman asks. A woman, yes, a creature that can bear children, yes, she answers. Nothing can change that. But now her questions begin where her grandmother's ended. Should childbearing and motherhood, her main biological function, become her main function in life—the be-all and end-all of it? Indeed, who obliges her to bear children at all, if there are other things she needs, or thinks she wants more? Should she enjoy sex without marriage? Should she learn sex before marriage in order to be a better bed partner to her husband? If she wants children, and he doesn't, should she have them anyway? Or what if he does, and she doesn't?

MISTRESS

Is he the master of her body, or is she its mistress? Should she work after she marries if her husband doesn't want her to? What if she is earning higher wages than he is? Who is the head of the family if she is as good a breadwinner as he is? How should she space her children? Should she have them while young, or wait until she is more mature, or financially better off?

The Industrial and contraceptive revolutions have also had their impact on man's relation to woman as prospective wife and mother.

Consciously or subconsciously, today's young husband knows that any woman, able-bodied enough to make her way through a supermarket, can feed him about as well as she can—and so, for that matter, can the restaurant down the street where, by the way, there is a very pretty waitress.

He knows that everything the family wears comes from a department store, and that it is the laundry that sews the buttons on his shirts and pajamas and does Junior's diapers. He knows that she is not absolutely indispensible to his material well-being and comfort and as a consumer of domestic goods; rather than what she once was, a producer, she represents a one-way drain on his pocketbook. He has lost that old-time esteem for the arts of the housewife. And he has consequently lost self-esteem.

MOTHERHOOD

The loss of esteem, for the one who loses it, or the one who has lost it, is never a happy augury for a marriage.

Man continues, of course, to esteem motherhood. A good mother is still praised by man, by her children, and all society. But let's face it: man does not esteem motherhood as greatly as he did in the days when childbearing was always a life and death matter, and child-rearing involved endless drudgery and self-sacrifice, and when the mother herself was her children's schoolmistress.

Motherhood and fatherhood, once proclaimed by all men as the most beneficent force on earth, are nowadays seen by too many young men as demoniac and emasculating forces. A generation of males has grown up, prone, even eager, to blame all their shortcomings and failures on having had too devoted, too solicitous, and child-devouring mothers, and overly domineering, or perhaps, woman-dominated fathers.

The practical consequences of this state of affairs is that it has become harder and harder for young women who do want children and a home to get and to keep husbands.

STILL A TRAP

Fortunately for woman, her body is still a trap—if no longer a baby trap, a man trap. Young men still desire women as much as ever, even though they don't want to marry them as much. Today, a young woman with matrimony in mind must put far, far more emphasis on her "sexiness" than her grandmothers did.

The first thing she must learn is to make her person glamorous, and these days, to show as much of it as possible. There is a felt need, in the contraceptive society, for any and every kind of product that will make a female more sexually attractive than nature bothered to do.

There is a certain irony here, and there may be a tragedy as well. Modern woman is at last free, as a man is free, to dispose of her own body, to earn her living, to pursue the improvement of her mind, to try for a successful career. She is free, in short, to become a person.

And yet, all of our advertising, most of our movies, and much of our literature, seek to persuade her that her real nature is to behave like a mere sexual object—or what our grandfathers called a "man's plaything." A certain whorishness, at least in her appearance, is, she is told, the very essence of "femininity." "Womanliness," on the other hand, imposes other demands on her.

Modesty, self-effacement and efficiency are what are expected of her in the home and, above all, in the office. Indeed, the last stronghold of Victorian sex relations is in the office. A man's secretary, the office wife, is the model of what all good wives once were—the calm, cheerful, entirely obedient creature without whose services man couldn't get on with his own work.

When we consider the identity problem—no crisis that faces the American woman, we will not be surprised that the divorce rate is steadily rising in all classes of society, except among the very poor. (Desertion, the poor man's divorce, doesn't show up in the divorce statistics.)

The marriages of old were cemented by the material needs a wife had for a husband, and vice-versa. Love was a luxury in marriage. Today, marriage is a luxury, and the only cement (unless it is provided by religious considerations) is love—mutual love.

But love, which is a many-splendored thing, is also many-faceted. One of its most notable and regrettable facets is its tendency to evaporate slowly, or sometimes even suddenly.

SEX RELATIONS

It is interesting to note that the lowest divorce rate seems to be among couples both of whom have had a college education. Similar backgrounds and interests and a good measure of intellectual equality would seem today to offer the hope of a durable marriage. I think that if we observe our quite young people, without blowing our parental or grandparental tops, we will discern the beginnings of a new pattern of sex relations and of marriage based on the equality of both partners.

The desegregation of the sexes has been proceeding rapidly even among oldsters. Few men any more stop in at the club on the way home for a drink. They rush home hoping to join the wife before she finishes her first martini. There is quite evident desire among the very young to do away not only with sex segregation but even with superficial sexual distinctions. Boys seem eager to look more like girls and girls to look more like boys.

Boys expect girls to participate in their activities, even the more dangerous ones like surfing, shooting, and motorcycling.

Come to think of it, in their sharing of physical ventures, young people resemble their pioneer ancestors more than they resemble us. But there is one great difference: the "double standard" in sex matters seems to be disappearing. We are told by sociologists that young men welcome, but they do not demand, virginity in their brides. Young husbands don't like, but they forgive, infidelity in their wives almost as readily as their wives forgive it in them. In the marriage of these young people, there is very little division of labor on sex grounds—labor pains still excepted.

BRIDES WORK

Brides go to work so their husbands can finish college, or write books or whatever. Young husbands bathe the baby, change diapers, tidy up the apartment, cook the meals when their wives are otherwise busied. Coeducationally oriented, they read and discuss the same books. Questions of superiority and inferiority are decided on an ad hoc basis. If you do your own thing, whatever it is, better than your mate, your superiority in that thing is accepted—and on to the next case. Today's young males and females are, in short, beginning to feel and act as equals. It could be that this generation is the first in history to accept the personhood as well as the womanhood of the female. If so, I look upon this as a happy sign that a new and better foundation for love and marriage is coming into being.

Hungry Squirrel Finds A Friend

Associated Press Photographer Charles Knoblock went looking for a feature picture recently in Lincoln Park. Things were dull. He tried to lure some of the small animals close enough to make a few photos. As last resort he put a few peanuts into his long-lens case, went off to a distance and this is what he finally came up with. Little ol' squirrel found the nuts, from left, top, to bottom, right.

Shrimp Trawler Training School

BRAZOSPORT, Tex. (AP) — In a building adjacent to Brazosport's busy shrimp harbor the first shrimp trawler crew training school is now in session.

Ten young men have started classes in the pilot program sponsored by the Freeport Shrimp Association which obtained the training school grant through the National Alliance of Businessmen's JOBS program. Funds for the program are administered by the Department of Labor and the initial grant for 100 students is valued at $310,000.

The course is open to applicants from anywhere in the five-county Houston metropolitan area and is aimed specifically toward the region's unemployed, underemployed or disadvantaged residents, and is designed to produce skilled personnel for the rapidly growing shrimping industry.

Qualified applicants are enrolled in the course as employes of various shrimp producers and receive trainee pay at $1.60 per hour during eight weeks of classroom training.

On-shore training precedes a 44-week, on-the-job training period aboard shrimp trawlers. When the applicants have completed the year-long training period successful trainees will be fully qualified and experienced trawler crewmen.

The first two weeks in the classroom are devoted to instruction and counseling in job orientation, familiarization with the shrimp fishing industry and vocabulary and communications.

In the next six weeks the men receive instruction and practice in all phases of the industry including making and repairing nets, navigation, vessel handling, deck gear use, winch and line handling and care of the catch.

Robert Wallace of Clearwater, Fla., an educator and counselor with 25 years experience in the shrimp industry, is the program director of National Fisheries Training Center. The program is designed and conducted by Fitzgerald Laboratories of Annapolis, Md.

The program is being heralded as big help to the industry by members of the shrimp fishing fleet. A chronic problem of the shrimp fishing industry in recent years has been a shortage of qualified personnel and this program may pave the way to meeting some of the industry's needs.

New Space Glossary

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Here is a glossary of terms used in recent separation and rendezvous:

LEM — Nickname for lunar module being tested by Apollo 9 for landing men on the moon during Apollo 11 this summer.

SPIDER — Radio call name for the LEM.

GUMDROP—Radio call name for the command module, used in communication while it and LEM are both manned.

AGS — Pronounced "aggs," stands for aboard guidance system, an emergency computerized steering system for use if the LEM's primary guidance system fails.

MINIFOOTBALL — Initial path followed by LEM after separation from command module. Maximum distance from command ship is 2.8 miles and path assures vehicles come back together after one orbit if something goes wrong.

MAXIFOOTBALL — Larger path separating vehicles as much as 55 miles, also assuring the craft approach one another after an orbit in case of trouble. Both paths football-shaped.

Next Georgia Governor — Or Governess?

By KATHRYN JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—Virginia Maddox hasn't decided whether to run for governor of Georgia in 1970. But her husband—the governor—talks as if she will. And in the Maddox household, that seems to be the controlling factor.

"I haven't made up my mind and won't until it's closer to 1970," blonde, blue-eyed Mrs. Lester Maddox said.

But her husband, who is prevented by state law from succeeding himself, has said that while he doesn't think she would want to run, he might persuade her to do so.

'HE'S THE ONE

And Mrs. Maddox, as quiet and reserved as her husband is talkative and outgoing, is the first to admit he usually has his way.

"He's the one who really wants me to. He's the one who usually wins out on these things," she said. "I'm usually the last one to hear about any political decision. I first heard about this one—running for governor—on the radio."

Maddox has said frequently that the more he hears of conservatives leaving the Democratic party, "the more determined I am that my wife will be the next governor."

Such pronouncements surprise no Georgians, who are used to strange twists and turns in their unpredictable politics.

Praising his wife in a recent speech, the governor said: "She's been behind me so steadfastly and so long, I think it's only right that she should have a chance to stand in front and let me back her up for . . . well . . . something like four years."

This is the same road to high office that former Alabama Gov. Lurleen Wallace took. Her husband, George Wallace, was also prevented by state law from succeeding himself.

Obviously, Mrs. Maddox, 48, is not yet ready to hit the campaign trail. "Right now, I'm not thinking too much about it. I'm just trying to do as good a job as possible as First Lady."

Mrs. Maddox has never done any politicking on her own and has made only one speech in her life—to the Future Homemakers of America. And she refuses to discuss her political views. She leaves politics to her husband.

The mother of four, she worked with her husband at the Pickrick, the restaurant which he closed in 1964 rather than integrate. And she ran their furniture store, also called Pickrick, when he first became governor. The furniture store has since been sold.

LUCKY WOMAN

Two of the Maddox children, Ginny, 27, and Larry, 20, live at the mansion. Lester Jr., 25, is married and so is daughter Linda, Mrs. Donald Densmore.

Of her husband, Mrs. Maddox says, "He's always the one who cheers us up. I'm a lucky woman. My husband is always in a good mood. Or if he isn't, he never lets me know." She says he is a gentle person "who is always nice to everybody, always glad to see anyone."

When Lurleen Wallace was lunching one day last year with Mrs. Maddox at the Georgia capitol, Mrs. Maddox was asked whether she would ever run for governor.

"Oh, I don't know," she replied. "That's a long time off."

"Of course, I never thought I'd be governor," quipped Mrs. Wallace.

COULD SPARK SWEEPING NEW ECONOMIC, CULTURAL PATTERN

Changes Downtown Dallas Into Dazzling Showplace

DALLAS (AP) — An ambitious redevelopment project is visually altering the face of the west end of downtown Dallas and could spark the beginning of a sweeping new economic and cultural pattern for the city.

Known as Main Place, the 10-acre block of land is being transformed into a dazzling showplace of outdoor sunken plazas, gleaming office buildings, sub-street level stores, an overhead hotel and a variety of cultural and recreational facilities.

ATTRACTIONS

The first phase of the project, One Main Place, opened at the end of the year.

Two Main Place, an office complex about twice the size of One Main Place, will begin building shortly, and the luxury hotel, to be known as Three Main Place, will be started a year later. Both are scheduled for completion in 1973.

It took one decade to assemble the first 74 parcels of land from 350 owners for the sweeping Main Place idea. The project sprawls where there once were third and fourth rate hotels, dingy cafes and some vacant and unpainted buildings.

"If it wasn't blighted, it was very close to it," assistant city planner James Schroeder said.

The developers, said Schroeder, "have removed something that was unattractive and undesirable and replaced it with something . . . being done on such a scale that it has its own built-in attractions."

It would be accurate, he said, to credit the Main Place project with the initiation of a downtown west side cultural and commercial awakening.

VEIL LIFTED

When the veil was lifted more than four years ago on the $155 million project, William T. Overton, president of the developing firm—Dallas, Texas, Corp.—said this:

"It is our hope that this will have a catalytic effect to stimulate further private enterprise development of the original section of the central business district."

Overton said then he saw Main Place as a model of what could be accomplished to encourage the rehabilitation of the area. He was right.

Since then, 110 acres has been developed or improved in the city's west side.

Already completed on the periphery of Main Place are the 52-story First National Bank Building. A new Dallas Federal Center is being built across the street from the massive development.

Other firms have announced plans to build a 22-story office building and motor inn and 1,000 seat theater.

Several other West End businesses, including the Dallas Times Herald, have remodeled their structures.

The lanky and young Overton, puffing mechanically on his pipe, said that $175 million in construction or improvements has been committed within a two-block radius of his project.

EYESORES

He says that the west side still has some eyesores. But the developer said the unsightly property left is owned in large blocks by just a few persons. He predicts that they, too, will be compelled to redevelop to make the most valuable use of their land.

Most of the buildings in the western edge of the business district went up during the 1880s and 1890s. But Dallas eventually grew away from the Trinity River, and by the post-World War II era, slim new skyscrapers began to crop up in the business district's east side. The west once the hub of the city, lagged.

The freshly announced plans, the new structures and face-lifting of old buildings have all come about since the Main Place idea was revealed.

The nearly-completed 34-story high office and retail complex, One Main Place, faces a 30,000-square foot outdoor sunken plaza considerably larger than Rockefeller Plaza in New York. It will be surrounded by stores on concourses below street level.

When this development is completed it will form a single "super block" 15 feet below street level.

CHANGE HABITS

The idea is to eliminate the conflict between pedestrian and vehicular traffic on the street level. It allows shoppers and businessmen to move to all parts of Main Place without crossing a street.

"It is going to change the habits of people," Overton said.

Schroeder sees a change in the decades ahead that will affect the whole complexion of the downtown core.

The One Main Place concept is based on the work of a team of specialists at the Columbia University School of Architecture. Among the key ideas in the Columbia Plan:

—The major cause of blight is congestion, produced by a conflict in the movements of people and vehicles of various kinds.

—Downtown land is too valuable to use only eight hours of the day. The human should receive more from his city environment than he is getting, and one of the ways to do it is to build a retail complex that can also double as a cultural center during the evening.

WALKWAYS LINK

—Any new cultural-retail complex should be built in such a way that the other property owners in the area can attach themselves to the center shopping unit.

The Main Place planners are hopeful that eventually a system of walkways below street levels will link the entire downtown core of buildings.

The Main Place project represents a pooling of big Texas money interests. The principals are Overton's banker father, W. W. Overton Jr., and John D. and Clint Murchison.

Overton said at the time the plan was announced that "a big hunk of Dallas capital has been committed to this project."

In early December, however, Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York which held a $31 million mortgage loan for One Main Place, announced it had bought the first phase of the project.

A number of national business firms have taken space in One Main Place. These include Equitable Life Assurance, General Electric, the Texas Pacific Oil Co. and a number of firms in the financial field, including Goldman, Sachs & Co., E. F. Hutton and Hornblower & Weeks-Hemphill, Noyes.

Among the foreign tenants is the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

A major tenant is the Texas Bank, which occupies six of the 34 stories in the one million square feet of office space.

Two Main Place, which will straddle Main Street at its base and shoot up to 50 stories, will have floors almost an acre in area. It will contain nearly two million square feet of office space and 1.4 million square feet of retail and garage space on five levels beneath the street.

Main Street, a north-south artery, passes through the heart of the project. The 70-foot clearance span over the street will be achieved by mounting the building on a massive grid of girders 26 feet deep, supported by two piers measuring 50 by 130 feet.

The grid will be cantilevered to afford sheltered areas on two sides of the structure.

The addition of the Main Place complex is expected to solidify the position of Dallas as a headquarters city for business concerns. Only New York, Los Angeles, and Chicago have a greater number of headquarters offices of large businesses.

Entice Super Bowl To New Orleans

Al Hirt (left), the New Orleans trumpeter, and George W. Healy Jr., executive editor of the New Orleans Times-Picayune, had this reaction at Palm Springs, Calif., Wednesday after the owners of football's professional teams voted to play the 1970 Super Bowl game in New Orleans. The decision came at the owners' winter meeting in Palm Springs. Hirt and Healy were leaders of a task force from their city.

Freehan Sidelined With Broken Nose

By The Associated Press

His day off turned into an awful day for Bill Freehan, the slugging catcher of the Detroit Tigers.

The Tigers left several players including Freehan behind at their Lakeland, Fla., training base Wednesday while the rest of the squad moved over to Tampa for an exhibition game against the Cincinnati Reds. As it turned out, Freehan would have been better off playing in the game.

An errant batting practice pitch by outfielder Jim Northrup hit Freehan squarely in the face, breaking his nose. He'll be sidelined at least 10 days. And to make the day a total washout for the Tigers, the Reds won the exhibition game, 4-3.

YANKEES TRIUMPH

In other exhibition action Wednesday, the New York Yankees edged Atlanta 3-2, Boston bombed Houston 13-1, Los Angeles shut out St. Louis 3-0, the New York Mets shaded Philadelphia 5-4, Baltimore downed Pittsburgh 8-5, the Chicago Cubs dropped Cleveland 10-7, San Francisco defeated Seattle 9-4, the Chicago White Sox defeated Kansas City 5-1, Minnesota tripped Washington 6-4 and the Yankees' "B" team edged Montreal 5-4.

Freehan was tapping home plate with his bat when Northrup's pitch hit him. "Jim shouted and I looked up just in time to get smashed," Freehan said. "That bone must have shattered in 10 places."

"It was stupid of me not to look before I threw the thing," said Northrup. "I could kick myself for being so dumb."

Meanwhile, at Tampa, the Tigers dropped their fourth in a row with rookie Darrel Chaney's sixth inning homer giving the Reds the victory.

Catcher Frank Fernandez tagged a two-run homer in the seventh inning, sending the Yankees to their victory over Atlanta. It was the sixth loss in the last seven starts for the Braves.

Jim Lonborg pitched four hitless innings and singled two Boston runs across in a seven-run rally against Don Wilson as the Red Sox battered Houston. George Scott had a two-run double in Boston's big fourth inning.

TWO IN SHUTOUT

Len Gabrielson's two-run triple was Los Angeles' big blow and the Dodgers got shutout pitching from Bill Singer and Claude Osteen to beat St. Louis. Curt Flood had two hits for the Cards.

Cleon Jones drove in four runs with a homer and a single against Philadelphia, leading the Mets to their fifth straight victory. Jones boosted his spring average to .433 and has three homers and 12 RBI in eight spring games. Deron Johnson had a three-run homer for the Phillies, his first hit of the spring.

Brooks Robinson walloped a grand slam homer and Frank Robinson added a two-run shot as Baltimore beat Pittsburgh. Rookie outfielder Al Oliver had three hits including two triples for the Pirates.

The Cubs spotted Cleveland six runs in the first inning and then roared back to beat the Indians. Rich Nye worked six innings in relief, allowing one run and smashed a two-run homer to lead Chicago's comeback.

FOR 2ND WIN

Local JV Slams Midland, 10-7

Big Spring's JVs combined some timely hitting with nine bases on balls to defeat Midland High's reserves, 10-7, in a baseball game here Wednesday.

Tommy Tanner, Dave Duncan and Moses Flores divided time on the mound for the Shorthorns, Duncan getting credit for the victory. Together, they surrendered six hits to the visitors.

Riley Falkner banged out three hits and drove in two runs for Big Spring while Roddy Caffey and Jumbo Martincz each came up with two blows. In all, the Dogies had 11 hits.

Big Spring scored in every inning but one in which it came to bat.

Now 2-1 on the season, the locals hit the road Monday, traveling to Odessa to oppose Permian.

Quadrangular Set At Texas Tech

LUBBOCK — Southwest Conference track will come to Lubbock Saturday, as Texas Tech plays host to Texas A&M, TCU, and SMU in a quadrangular meet at the Tech track.

The location of the meet was in doubt as late as Tuesday due to the heavy weekend snowfall, but Texas Tech officials feel the track will be in shape for Saturday's meet. A high school field will be used in the event the track is unfit for competition.

One of the highlights of the meet should come in the shot put where Tech's Ronnie Mercer will face A&M's Ronny Lightfoot, and SMU's Sam Walker. Mercer, the SWC shot put champion, has thrown near 56 feet this season as have Lightfoot and Walker.

Two Pampans Are Signed By LCC

LUBBOCK — Two Pampa High School basketball players, Johnny Epperson and Jim Hollis, have signed letters-of-intent with Lubbock Christian College.

Hollis averaged 19.5 points a game the same season and counted 37 points in one contest. He was named Player of the Year in 4-AAAA.

Epperson tallied an average of nine points and five rebounds a game.

JAN VETETO

Queens Leave For Tourney

HCJC's Jayhawk Queens leave today for Nacogdoches where at 4 p.m. Friday they launch their bid for the Texas Intercollegiate Women's Basketball championship.

Competition in the two-day event, scheduled to be held on the Stephen F. Austin campus, is open to both junior and senior college teams.

The Queens meet Texas A & I in the first round. HCJC will carry a 7-9 record onto the court.

HC's playmaker is Jan Veteto, a 5-4 freshman who has played the game seven years. She enrolled from Panhandle High School, where she was all-district her senior year. She also served as team captain.

Panhandle finished second in its conference race four years in a row while Jan was enrolled there. She can play both forward and guard.

Stephen F. Austin and Texas Women's University are favored to play in the 7 p.m. finals Saturday.

The Queens wind up their season in the tournament.

AFL Backers Could Stump For Changes

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — The American Football League, which three days ago was expected to approve retention of the status quo in professional football, has turned its joint meeting with the National League around and appears to have insured realignment for 1970.

The AFL prepared a plan to present to National Football League team owners today in their first joint meeting on the matter since they received alternatives Monday.

Although no one was saying much about the plan, The Associated Press learned that the AFL idea involves a general outline of the form pro football can take for 1970, the year the 1966 merger agreement takes final effect.

FOUR DIVISIONS?

For example, the 16-team NFL and 10-team AFL could be amalgamated into two divisions of seven teams each and two of six, or they could be integrated into two conferences with divisions of four, four and five.

NFL owners appeared to be more receptive to the AFL idea Wednesday.

"Both leagues worked on juggling teams from one league to another," Commissioner Pete Rozelle said, acknowledging for the first time that the NFL was thinking of anything but retention of the present 16-10 setup with the addition of interleague games.

At the beginning of the week, all but a small minority of AFL owners were thinking the same way.

But that minority, led by Paul Brown of Cincinnati and Gerald Phipps of Denver, has dramatically gained the sentiment of the rest of the teams.

Odessa Races Set March 28

ODESSA — The West Texas Racing Association spotlights the start of its modified stock car '69 racing season with a benefit race in cooperation with the American Cancer Society.

To be held at Odessa Speedbowl, Friday night, March 28, at 8 p.m., this promises to be an exciting opener for the racing circuit. The race is state approved and 35 entries are scheduled to compete.

Cars and drivers from Lubbock, Abilene, San Angelo, Sweetwater, Colorado City and Amarillo are expected. These cars will be previewed in Odessa's Sherwood Shopping Center Saturday from 12 noon to 4 p.m. Tickets for the race will be available at this preview and through the American Cancer Society.

The West Texas Racing Association is 200 members strong, with a circuit composed of three tracks. Racing is programmed each weekend — Fridays at Odessa Speedbowl, Saturday in Abilene and Sunday in San Angelo. Several rule changes have been made this year providing a better show for spectators. Drivers will be competing on an over-all point system from the three tracks on the circuit. Points are accumulated into a point fund totaling $1,000 to be awarded to the '69 champion.

Cars and tracks are improved — several '67 and '68 model cars will be seen this season. These top-notch racers, under the skilled hands of their drivers, reach speeds up to 90 miles per hour on the quarter mile oval.

President of the local chapter of the West Texas Racing Association is Russell Bradley, a racing competitor and Odessa businessman.

The Odessa Speedbowl, location of the benefit race, is located five miles east of Odessa on the Odessa-Midland highway, directly behind Odessa Country Club.

Simpson In Continental League? It's Possible

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — The president of the Orlando Panthers says O.J. Simpson has offered to play for his Continental Football League team for $400,000, and the Panthers think that's a fair price to pay Orange Juice to promote the Sunshine state's favorite beverage.

"O.J. and his agent approached Jim Dunn, the Continental League commissioner, two weeks ago and offered to play for $400,000 if O. J.'s negotiations with the Buffalo Bills fell through," said Elmer Cook, Panthers president.

"We went to the Florida Citrus commission and asked them to put up the money, since it was a natural promotional bit to go along with their slogan—Drink O.J.," Cook explained.

The Citrus Commission seemed quite warm to the proposal, Cook said, figuring that a specimen of manhood like the ex-Southern California running back would do as much to up the sale of orange juice as all the vitamin-C plugs put together.

At present, Simpson is committed to contract negotiations with the Bills of the American Football League, and cannot legally play for any other AFL or National Football League team if he fails to reach a contract with the Bills.

However, there's nothing to stop him from playing for a Continental or Canadian team.

Cook's CFL may be bush, but his business acumen is big league, and he thinks there is a very good possibility from a business angle that O. J. will play for Orlando.

Alcindor Era To End In Louisville Soon

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The era of Lew Alcindor at UCLA, unmatched in the history of college basketball, ends this week in Louisville where the Bruins are favored to win an unprecedented third straight national title.

The 7-foot-1½ agile giant is the main reason the Bruins are favored to turn back Drake Thursday night and take the championship Saturday. After that he's assured big money from the professionals as the No. 1 target of both major leagues.

The incredible collegiate era of Ferdinand Lewis Alcindor Jr. was heralded at a 1965 news conference in New York when he announced he would enroll at UCLA.

"It has the atmosphere I wanted and the people out there were so nice to me," he said.

UCLA dedicated its new Pauley Pavilion on Nov. 30, with a varsity versus freshman game. The varsity the previous year had won its second straight national college title. The frosh had Alcindor.

He hauled down 21 rebounds, scored 31 points and the yearlings won 75-60.

During an unbeaten freshman season, Alcindor was shielded from the press. The same has been true during much of his career.

Coach John Wooden knew the consequences of having such a superstar, explaining, "There are others on the team, too. I was concerned about how the other players would feel."

In Alcindor's sophomore year UCLA had a 30-0 record won the national title and he won player-of-the-year honors.

An eye injury during January of his junior year hampered his effectiveness for a few games, including a 71-69 loss to Houston in the Astrodome, the first defeat of the Alcindor era after 47 victories.

UCLA avenged the loss with a 101-69 shelling of Houston and Elvin Hayes in the semifinals of the NCAA tournament and then beat North Carolina for its second straight title.

Local Cars Are Entered In Event At San Angelo

Big Spring will be represented by seven cars in the first Custom Car and Hot Rod Show ever held in West Texas, an event scheduled Saturday and Sunday in the San Angelo Coliseum.

The annual show is to be produced by Texas Autoramas of Houston and will feature the famed "Batmobile" and the "Daktari Safari Wagon." Both automobiles were designed and engineered by George Barris Kustom City of North Hollywood, Calif.

The Batmobile was created exclusively for the "Batman and Robin" ABC television series.

The Daktari Safari Wagon, a $12,000 custom comes from the African compound, "Wameru," and was styled for the Ivan Tors-MGM production of "Daktari" a CBS-TV television series. It is complete with a gun display, cape buffalo horns, a $4,000 paint job of metalflake white murano pearl and candy black done in a camouflaged Zebra stripe, and rugged chrome wheels.

Some of the other attractions will be the top 10 cars that follow the International Championship Show Circuit. These auto creations include the most beautiful customs, roadsters, pickups, motorcycles, and sports cars in America.

Competition is also open to street cars, dragsters, hot rods, drag boats, go-karts, antiques and model cars. The model car contest is for three age groups 6-9, 10-13, and 14-17. Trophies will be given to the first, second and third place winners of all classes.

Many new car dealers will have the latest factory works jobs along with other special displays at the show.

The two day event will draw some 200 entries from all over the Southwest. Of special interest will be the motorcycle "choppers" and their wax "angels," shown by the Reapers a Houston motorcycle club.

The doors will open each morning at 11 a.m. with the awards presentation set for 9 p.m. Sunday. Entry deadline is midnight, March 21. Entry blanks are available through Texas Autoramas, 2507 TCU Avenue, San Angelo, Tex., or by calling (915) 949-1030.

Three 3-4A Tilts Scheduled Today

Three makeup baseball games are scheduled in District 3-AAAA today.

Abilene High goes to Midland to tangle with Lee in a battle of undefeated teams.

San Angelo invades Midland to tangle with Midland High. Abilene Cooper will be at home to Odessa High.

The games were to have been played last Saturday but were weathered out.

Hernandez Hurls One-Hit Game

SNYDER — Merce Hernandez set Lubbock High down with one hit in leading the Snyder Tigers to a 4-1 victory here Wednesday.

Lubbock managed its lone safety off the right-handed junior in the seventh inning.

Dave McGinnis clubbed a two-run homer for Snyder in the third.

HC Tests Wyoming Quint In Nationals

HUTCHINSON, Kan. — Howard County seeks to salvage something in the National JC Basketball tournament at 12 noon here today in a consolation round game against Northwest Community College of Powell, Wyo.

The Texans lost their opening game in the tournament to Murray State of Tishomingo, Okla., 71-68. Powell was kayoed by Burlington, Iowa, 88-70.

Should the Hawks win today, they would return to play at 12 noon Friday. If they lose, they return home.

HC will carry a 29-4 record onto the floor against Powell, which is back in the meet after a year's absence. Northwest Community represents Region 9 in the meet. Powell defeated Lamar, Colo., 89-80, in the finals of its regional tournament after knocking off Northeastern Colorado of Sterling in the semifinal round, 88-87.

Northeastern is the same team which humbled HCJC early in the season. All year, Sterling was rated fourth in the nation.

Robert Jackson, Bruce Belcher and Mickey Wilson are the sophomores who are playing out their string for HCJC. The rest of the group returns in 1969-70.

In championship round games played Wednesday, Paducah, Ky., edged Hutchinson, Kan., the host team, 86-85, and Burlington, Iowa, bounced Murray State, 67-62, to advance into the semifinals.

Earlier, Moberly, Mo., ousted Miles City, Mont., 85-66, in the day's only consolation bracket game.

Vincennes, Ind., dumped Brevard of Cocoa, Fla., 97-83 and Robert Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., nipped Gardner-Webb of Boiling Springs, N.C., 88-83 in day games to complete first-round play.

Hutchinson's Kenney Wiens missed a free throw which would have tied Paducah with two seconds left. Ray Willis scored 34 points for Hutchinson. Bob Jones canned 22 for the Kentuckians.

Burlington overcame a second-half spurt by Murray State and took command with three minutes to go. Fred Brown had 25 points for the victors, but scoring honors went to Mike Johnson of Murray State with 31.

The impetus for Vincennes' decisive triumph was the scoring of Oscar Evans and Willie Hughs, who each had 24 points. Gary Phenis had 22 for Cocoa.

Pittsburgh, paced by Perry Johnson's 32 points, led Boiling Springs most of the game. George Adams paced the North Carolinans with 29 points.

Today, Robert Morris of Pittsburgh, Pa., plays Vincennes, Ind., and defending champion San Jacinto of Pasadena, Tex., takes on Robert Morris of Carthage, Ill., in quarter-final action.

In other consolation round games, Gardner-Webb of Boiling Springs, N.C., meets Brevard of Cocoa, Fla., and Providence, R.I., vs. Phoenix, Ariz.

The lone loser's bracket game sends Hutchinson against Murray State.

Casper Is Making Plans To Grab Masters Crown

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Bill Casper is not exactly the conniving type but he admitted today he has designs on the Masters.

He hopes to sneak up on it.

"I keep trying to find the right formula for going into the tournament," the 1968 pro golfer of the year said. "One year I play a heavy schedule, the next year I lay off, then I pick a spot here and there.

"I'm still looking for the answer."

Casper, who has played only five rounds of golf in the last four weeks, is one of the star-studded field of 144 teeing off today in the first round of the $100,000 Greater Jacksonville Open.

The once feared big three—Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player—also are in the pack for the first time this year plus Lee Trevino, the U.S. Open titleholder, and the crowd of young turks threatening to take over the game.

For many of them, this is the stretch run toward the Masters, the season's first major championship coming up in April in Augusta, Ga.

None is looking toward the grand spectacle amidst the Georgia pines with greater anticipation than Casper, the 37-year-old Mormon with the world's most exotic allergies.

Bill has won two U.S. Opens. He is second only to Arnold Palmer in all-time money winnings. He led everybody last year with more than $211,000.

LOOKING 'EM OVER

With Tommy Hart

O. J. Simpson, Southern California's fabulous football player, may make a million dollars by the time he completes his first season in professional ranks.

Orange Juice is holding out for a $600,000 contract from the Buffalo Bills. That sort of money likely will never again be paid by the mercenaries, but O. J. may come close.

Only recently, Simpson signed a promotional contract with Chevrolet that will bring him a quarter of a million dollars over the next three years.

His agents are now negotiating with at least four more of the country's largest business firms in attempts to work out similar arrangements, which may also involve his wife and three-months old daughter.

In the last couple of months, Sports Headliners, Inc., which handles O. J.'s business deals, has received 340 requests for appearances of the fabulous star. Over a period of 60 days, Simpson filled 45 of those dates, invariably for a healthy fee.

* * * *

Simpson's contract demands with Buffalo have been called "outrageous" by club owner Ralph Wilson (who thinks so little of Buffalo, by the way, that he makes his home in Detroit).

O. J. negotiators are seeking a total package that could exceed the amounts usually mentioned so far. Everything considered, the package could reach seven figures.

Even though Simpson has been drafted by Buffalo, he could still wind up playing for Oakland. The Bills are said to be interested in a deal that would bring QB Daryle Lamonica, Ben Davidson and Tom Keating to them.

That way, Wilson could get off the hook and still wind up with some fine talent.

Simpson obviously has had some splendid advice in dealing with professional teams.

Arthur Godfrey, who is a TV pitchman and tries to be other things he isn't, laid down the rules for negotiations such as the one involving Simpson when he said, a few years ago:

"Get it while you're hot, baby, because you're going to be cold a long, long time."

* * * *

Which pro football coach has the best career record?

Its not Vince Lombardi or Paul Brown. No. One is Johnny Rauch, who compiled a 33-8-1 record at Oakland before shuffling off to Buffalo. (His record likely will drop in a hurry there). Baltimore's Don Shula is second, with a 63-18-1 record. Lombardi is third.

The worst record? It's now held by Tom Fears of the New Orleans Saints (.259).

* * * *

Floyd (Pepper) Martin, the former Big Spring school athlete, later a pro baseballer, is being transferred from Los Angeles to Eugene, Ore., by his company this summer.

Randy Prince, the splendid athlete for Midland Lee High School (basketball and baseball) is the son of Jim Prince, who hit a fabulous .429 for the Midland entry in the old Longhorn League back in 1947 — tops in a hit-crazy league.

Randy will be back next season to terrorize Lee's basketball opponents. The fact that he will again be eligible makes Lee the automatic favorite in District 3-AAAA.

HC Tennists Are Beaten

ODESSA — Odessa College's tennis team continued to dominate Western Junior College Athletic Conference tennis with a sweep of HCJC here Tuesday.

The Wranglers won six matches, all men. Howard County failed to take any women contestants.

The victory gives coach Virginia Brown's crew a 12-0 conference record after earlier this season, sweeping New Mexico Military Institute.

In Tuesday's action, Leo Estopare defeated Cruz Lechuga, 6-3, 6-2 while Bruce Banisky defeated Jack Cathey, 6-0, 6-0. John Bohuslav then beat Russell McEwen, 8-0, 6-2 and David Fee downed Robert Lynch, 6-0, 6-2 for singles points.

Estopare and Banisky easily took McEwen and Lynch, 6-0, 6-0, and Fee and Bohuslav teamed to beat Cathey and Lechuga by the same score.

Wylie Bound For Norman?

DALLAS (AP) — Unless somebody comes up with a super sell job, Joe Wylie—last of the Texas schoolboy football blue chips—is Oklahoma bound.

"If I had to sign today I would sign with Oklahoma," says the Henderson, Tex., flash.

But Wylie quickly adds "Texas is very much in the race. I also plan to visit Arkansas on April 12th. And I'm still thinking about Texas Tech."

As you might imagine, Wylie has had plenty of company the last three months.

"I've kept a log and it shows 34 visits since Jan. 3," says Wylie, who scored 34 touchdowns last season.

Been getting a lot of steak dinners, Joe?

"No sir! I haven't gone out once. I've been trying to get a ruling that it was OK. Technically, everybody does it. But I still want to finish track season and there are some schools down there that might use that as an excuse to get rid of me."

Been eating in a lot?

"Yes sir. We've been having Wylie steak. We've got about 100 head of cattle and it beats going to any restaurant. (Oklahoma coach) Chuck Fairbanks ate supper with us on one of his three visits."

Milwaukee Prospering In Pro Cage Circuit

By The Associated Press

Lew who?

With or without Lew Alcindor, Wednesday was Milwaukee's day in the National Basketball Association.

In a special coin toss with Phoenix, the Bucks won the draft rights to UCLA's All-American 7-foot-1½ center. But Alcindor didn't score a point or grab a rebound as the Bucks downed the Suns 117-110 in a game between the NBA's Eastern and Western cellar-dwellers.

Elsewhere, New York prevented Baltimore from clinching the Eastern Division title 104-100, Philadelphia stayed in the running with a 136-115 triumph over Seattle, Boston virtually ended Chicago's playoff chances 104-92 and Cincinnati took Los Angeles 136-128 in overtime.

In the American Basketball Association, Kentucky walloped Denver 131-106, New Orleans crushed Minnesota 134-106, Houston beat Dallas 130-121 and Los Angeles beat Oakland 143-136.

"We lost," said Richard Block, president of the Phoenix Suns, after losing the Alcindor coin flip, and that about sums up the Suns' day.

Repeated rallies fell short in Phoenix' loss to Milwaukee on the court, despite Dick Van Arsdale's 32 points. Jon McGlocklin led the Bucks with 26 points.

New York prevented Baltimore from clinching its first regular season championship behind Willis Reed's 37 points. With three games left, the Bullets lead Philadelphia by 2½ games. The 76ers are 1½ games in front of the Knicks.

Reed scored 12 points in a 22-10 fourth-quarter burst that sent the Knicks ahead 103-93 after they trailed most of the game.

Colleges Must Shape Up Or Pay

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — American colleges "must either shape up to responsibilities and take their place in our community or be willing to pay the price of campus destruction," Rep. Shirley Chisholm, D-N.Y., said Wednesday night.

The first Negro congresswoman addressed about 250 persons at the University of Notre Dame's Community Forum on Black Power.

She said the "lashing out on our campuses today is symptomatic of the grievous ills and decadent values of our society and our present day leadership."

Discussing causes of college disturbances, she said, "We must remove the bandage and begin to apply massive doses of medicine at the causes of student unrest. The university and the community must work cooperatively for the betterment of all people to fulfill its responsibility and maintain its place in this urban society."

She said if the policy making bodies of the universities "are not attuned to the urban crisis, the student rebellions and faculty discontent, then university existence will be one where constant conflict becomes the order of the day."

Queen's Pageant Date Announced

STANTON (SC) — The Lions Club met Tuesday with president Russell McMeans presiding. It was announced that April 29 had been set as the date for the queen's pageant and contest. Jerry Bethel and George Walker were appointed to serve with Paige Eiland, on the queen's committee. The slate of officers were nominated by the past president's committee and the steamroller's committee and will be elected at the April 15 meeting of the club. Twenty-one members were present at the noon luncheon.

Freeport PO Pact Awarded

FREEPORT, Tex. (AP) — Tex R. Flaniken, Freeport postmaster, has received notice that a contract has been awarded for the construction of a new Freeport Post Office. The contract went to Postal Enterprises, Inc., of Oklahoma City.

This building will take the place of the one on East Fourth Street which has been used for many years, and which was Freeport's only post office until the new larger main office was constructed several years ago.

16 School Votes Cast

Sixteen absentee votes have been cast since Monday in the Big Spring Independent School District trustee election, according to Pauline Petty, Howard County clerk.

Absentee balloting in the county clerk's office will be held through April 1, and the election will be held April 5 at Big Spring High School.

Seven candidates are seeking elections to two positions on the school board. They are incumbent Grant Boardman, L. D. Haywo.rth, Mrs. Patteann Daniel, Wendell Stasey, Max F. Moore, A. K. Guthrie and Sidney T. Clark.

Mrs. Petty said that one absentee vote has been cast in the election of county school board member in Pecinct 1, and three votes in the county board election for Precinct 2. H.H. Rutherford is seeking re-election to the Precinct 1 post and J. D. Gilmore is running for another term in Precinct 2.

Persons are reminded that Big Spring schools will dismiss April 3 for the spring vacation, and those planning to be out of town for the Easter weekend will be away for the election.

Admits U.S. Can't Stop Soviet Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said today the United States "cannot stop a massive Soviet attack on our cities" but contended the modified antiballistic missile (ABM) system would "protect people by making sure a nuclear attack doesn't occur in the first place."

Opening the Nixon administration's fight for public and congressional approval of the controversial ABM project, Laird said the system is based on the theory "We must rely on our deterrents to make sure a nuclear attack doesn't start."

Laird rejected the contention by ABM opponents that the project is an escalation of the arms race. He called it instead "a building block for peace" which "opens the door wider to mutual arms control" with the Soviet Union.

"It strengthens our ability to prevent nuclear war," Laird told the Senate Armed Services Committee headed by Sen. John Stennis, D-Miss.

Calling the revised ABM by the same "Safeguard" name given it last week by President Nixon, the defense secretary said it "is not a stumbling block to arms limitation talks with the Soviet Union," adding: "The Soviet Union is given an added incentive to negotiate a meaningful agreement."

In the event the Soviets fail to take advantage of this opportunity, Laird said, the Safeguard strengthens the nation's defense posture by providing greater protection of its strategic deterrent force.

Laird made clear his program is aimed both at the possibility of a Communist Chinese missile attack in the 1970s and the growing offensive missile force of the Soviet Union.

The opposition forces had planned a barrage of criticism from the Senate floor today in preparation for Friday's nationally televised appearance before the Senate disarmament subcommittee.

The Armed Services Committee is heavily weighted with backers of the revised ABM that President Nixon called for last Friday.

The disarmament subcommittee, however, is weighted the other way with its chairman, Tennessee Democrat Albert Gore, an outspoken opponent of any ABM.

After Laird presented a general defense budget rundown behind closed doors Wednesday, Stennis said today's session was set aside to explore "the positive side" of the ABM.

But Laird touched on the Sentinel in the closed session when asking for $800 million to get construction started on the first two sites and to procure 10 more.

Laird, in what was the administration's initial presentation of its ABM case on Capitol Hill, said the new system is needed because of the growing nuclear threat from Communist China.

He said the revised ABM system is unmistakably defensive and "it will be deployed in a manner clearly related to the emerging threat."

The Nixon administration's ABM is designed to protect the nation's deterrent missile and bomber force at an estimated cost of $6 billion to $7 billion.

The original ABM approved by the Johnson administration would have guarded 15 major cities at a cost of $5.5 billion. The administration is asking almost $900 million less than Johnson to get its Sentinel going and says that ultimately it will be less expensive because it won't expand with a much larger Sentinel.

Minimum Wage Measure Sent To Subcommittee

AUSTIN (AP) — The House State Affairs Committee has referred a minimum wage bill to a subcommittee.

The committee approved a bill authorizing a University of Texas Medical School in Houston. This bill now goes to the House floor.

The minimum wage bill, presented Wednesday night, is the same bill that a Senate committee approved Tuesday night for debate by the entire Senate.

The bill would set a $1.25 an hour floor under Texas workers —with many exceptions—in February, 1970, and raise it to $1.60 in 1972.

Many of the South Texas farm workers who dramatized the minimum wage issue by marching 400 miles to the state Capitol in 1966 would be covered by the bill, but at a lower figure—$1.10.

Only 3 per cent of Texas farms would be covered under the bill —those with three or more full-time employes. This includes all the big Rio Grande Citrus farms that were involved in the 1966 labor dispute.

Domestics and persons under 18 who are not high school or vocational training graduates would not be covered by the bill

Program, Financing Go Together, Workshop Told

A chamber of commerce program of work and financing go hand in hand, persons attending a West Texas Chamber of Commerce leadership workshop here Wednesday were told.

Gene Garrison, executive vice president of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce, and R. T. Wilson, assistant general manager of the Abilene Chamber of Commerce, spoke on programs of work and financing, respectively, at the afternoon session of the all day workshop at Cosden Country Club. More than 60 persons from 18 area cities attended the affair which was hosted by the Big Spring Chamber and sponsored by the community service committee of the WTCC.

Grady Elder Jr., chairman of the WTCC community services committee and executive vice president of the San Angelo Board of City Development, presided over the afternoon session. The morning session featured a keynote address by W. H. Collyns, editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

Garrison said that chamber officials should take a good look at their community and organization of the chamber of commerce when setting up a program of work.

"You need to define the role and purpose of the chamber in your town, and develop a measuring stick to evaluate your programs," he said. "Figure the most important jobs to fit the role of the chamber. In Odessa, the chamber's first function is to build the economy of the city."

After a purpose is set, an analysis of the community should be made to decide what projects should be developed, he said. The program should identify the city's potential and what jobs can be accomplished.

"We should look at the problems the community has, but also the opportunities that go toward building a better city," Garrison said.

Projects should be listed according to the most urgently needed, he said, and there should be as much membership involvement as possible.

Wilson, speaking on membership and finance, said that membership and financing projects add up to money. Chambers of commerce must have something to sell before members and funds can be enlisted, he added.

"The criteria of any program of work is support of the membership with funds," he said. "This may not be in numbers, but the total amount of money and time invested by the membership."

Wilson said that the best thing a chamber of commerce has to sell is its accomplishments of its program of work. The chamber also must figure how much funds it will need to accomplish its program of work, he said.

He listed methods of increasing membership and finances, including annual membership drives, a permanent membership team, one-day drives and contests between cities.

Wilson said that a chamber of commerce budget should be set by the membership and publicized.

"Those who write the chamber of commerce budget will also underwrite it," he said.

Wild Fire Chase

GLOUCESTER, Va. (AP) — J. J. O'Connor, chief of the Gloucester volunteer fire department, and fireman Fred Sterlin were standing in front of the fire house Wednesday when a truck passed with a tarpaulin blazing in the back.

O'Connor jumped into his pickup truck and chased the other vehicle. By the time he flagged it down, Sterling and other firemen arrived with a pumper to extinguish the blaze.

Paving The Way

Work has started on the city's $262,522 paving program. Curbing will be set first and the streets graded before the paving is put down. J. D. Caldwell is contractor for the 65-block project. This work is being done on Lancaster, between First and Second. Curbing is also being poured on NW Ninth, between Aylford and San Antonio.

Laundry Union To Abandon Spa

ELSINORE, Calif. (AP) — A laundry workers' union in Los Angeles is abandoning its 10-year-old health resort, saying fewer than 10 per cent of its 6,000 members, mostly low income Negroes and Mexican-Americans, used it.

An industrial relations study showed that, to many workers, the idea of a luxurious lakeside resort seemed culturally alien. The study also showed that the members don't like to think of themselves as laundry workers and, thus, weren't anxious to mix socially with their fellow workers.

Spokesmen for the laundry owners said free dental care may be provided the workers instead of the spa 70 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Goliad School Schedules Finals In Spelling Bee

By SAM BLACKBURN

Goliad Junior High School reduced a field of 54 of its best spellers to 10 at its semifinal spelling bee Wednesday afternoon.

The 10 survivors will be pitted against one another Friday, March 27, and the victor will be the 1969 school Goliad spelling champion. He or she will be eligible to compete in the Seventh Annual Howard County Spelling Bee to be held at the Big Spring High School April 19.

Some of Goliad's best known spellers did not get a chance to compete. One was Paul Talbot, who was the county bee runnerup in 1968. He was ill and could not take part.

Goliad Junior High School inherited a number of school champions of 1968 by the process of graduation from elementary grades. Scott Tyra, who was Kentwood champ two years ago but did not make the title last year, is on the list of the 10 top spellers left at Goliad. He appears to be the only champ or runner-up of other years who survived the elimination.

Mrs. Janice Rosson was pronouncer for the semifinals. The three judges were Mrs. Cornelia Gary, Mrs. Lynn Calvert and Mrs. Robert Thompson.

The 10 who will try for the school crown are: Frank Lagor, Bobette Riner, Craig Shipman, Nathan Poss, Jill Robinson, Patty Malone, Cathy Fowler, Terryl Hobbs, Bob Webb and Scott Tyra.

The 54 who appeared in Wednesday's bee were the top spellers from the classroom eliminations. Several hundred Goliad youngsters were originally in the competition.

Fugitive Caught

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — A fugitive from Los Angeles was caught here by the seat of his pants.

As Charles Davis, 34, walked along a street someone called police after noticing that across his hip pockets was stenciled "Los Angeles County Jail."

MRS. DAVID L. HODNETT

Enthusiastic Mother Likes Children, Home

By RHODA LEMONS

Mrs. David L. Hodnett, 2718 Lynn, is one of those enthusiastic mothers and wives that thoroughly enjoys her family and home. The Hodnetts have four children, Angela Dawn, 11, a fifth-grader at Kentwood Elementary School; David Craig, 10, a fourth-grader; Russell Dean, 5, and Stacey Renae, 4.

Hodnett is shop foreman at Bob Brock Motor Company and works part-time as a mechanic at the Honda Cycle Shop.

"We plan most family activities and meals around my husband's working schedule," said Mrs. Hodnett. "It is a treat for all of us when he is home."

Mrs. Hodnett has projects in the offing at all times. She is re-upholstering the living room love seat and has recently completed a rocker. "I just love to try things I have never done before," laughed Mrs. Hodnett.

"I like to paint, not pictures, but walls and boards," she said, and recently when she painted their living room, she dressed the children in old clothes and gave them a roller. After painting one wall, they were content to play while their mother finished the room.

"I don't worry about housework," said Mrs. Hodnett. "I plan each day to the best of my ability, including the meals, and if everything does not get done, then I just wait and try again tomorrow.

"More than anything I would like to be well organized, but I would rather the children enjoy their home and bring their friends over than to have everything always in order."

Mrs. Hodnett collects old furniture. She has a cedar chest which originally belonged to her great-great - grandmother. She refinishes the old items and considers it a "labor of love." She has done several articles in decoupage, and again, because her children were interested, she gave them a special project to decoupage along with her.

She makes candles and papier mache candlesticks (using tins and jars) resulting in beautiful accessories. She has made four and given some to friends.

Mrs. Hodnett is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Boykin, and her father helped them make a beautiful ornamental key hanging in their living room. They used a board of two thicknesses for the base and after sanding, she stained it with a "rub and buff" gold paint accented with black.

Keys are one of her favorite collections, and she is mounting a grouping on a wallboard for the den.

Her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Hodnett, live in the country, and Mrs. Hodnett enjoys being so close to all the grandparents. They keep the children for her in emergencies, and they get to share activities with all the uncles, aunts and cousins.

Mrs. Hodnett keeps a child after school hours for a friend, and keeps two children for another friend when she substitute teaches. "I love children more than anything," said Mrs. Hodnett. One day, she looked in her backyard and counted 21 children playing — with two more on the way over.

"I took a picture just to prove to my husband what I do all day," said Mrs. Hodnett, who laughed and said he still almost didn't believe it after seeing the picture.

Mrs. Hodnett spends much time chauffering her children to music lessons. Angelo has taken piano for four years and Craig is studying guitar. Both are active in the First Baptist Church youth choir.

Mrs. Hodnett, a member of the Child Study Club and Kentwood Parent Teacher Association, is president-elect of the PTA City Council.

"I have enjoyed PTA more than anything else I have belonged to," said Mrs. Hodnett, who was elected delegate to the state PTA convention for the past two years. "Being in PTA has given me a new insight into the lives of my children, the schools and community," concluded Mrs. Hodnett.

SEA FOAM SALAD

1 No. 2½ can pears and juice
2 pkgs. lime gelatin
2 small pkgs. cream cheese
1 carton low calorie whipped topping

Heat pear juice with enough water to make two cups. Pour over lime gelatin and mix. While hot, pour in cream cheese (which has been mashed with two tablespoons of milk). When mixture is cool and thick, add pears which have been mashed with a fork. Add whipped topping and mix. Pour in desired shape molds and chill.

BACON AND EGG SALAD

½ head lettuce (torn in small pieces)
2 diced tomatoes
5 sliced crisp crumbled bacon
3 boiled diced eggs
Dash of seasoned pepper
Dash of salt
1 tbsp. diced onion (optional)
Oil and vinegar dressing

Cook bacon slowly until very crisp, then crumble. Meanwhile, boil the eggs and dice. Combine all ingredients except salad dressing. Toss salad gently. Pour small amount of salad dressing over salad.

ARTIFICIAL STRAWBERRY SHORTCAKE

2 pkgs. strawberry gelatin
1 carton low calorie whipped topping
2 cups cold water
1 angel food cake

Add two cups hot water to gelatin and stir until dissolved. Add two cups cold water. Place in refrigerator until congealed. Stir half the whipped topping into the gelatin. Slice angel food cake into individual servings. Top with gelatin mixture and a puff of whipped topping on top of each piece. (This gelatin and whipped topping mixture is delicious served with a meal as a salad.)

ORANGE CHICKEN

1 (2½-3 lb.) chicken
Salt and pepper
Monosodium glutamate
¼ cup melted butter
2 tbsps. oil
3 tbsps. freshly squeezed orange juice
1½ tbsps. grated orange rind
½ tsp. rosemary
2 tsps. chopped parsley
Orange slices (thin)

Cut up chicken and season with salt, pepper and monosodium glutamate. Combine remaining ingredients except the orange slices. Place chicken pieces on broiler pan or barbeque grill (six to eight inches from charcoal fire). Brush with orange-butter mixture, and broil very slowly, turning frequently and brushing with mixture often until chicken is golden brown (about 45 minutes). Garnish platter of chicken with orange slices.

OVEN BARBECUED SPARERIBS

3 lbs. spareribs (sprinkled with powdered meat tenderizer)
½ cup brown sugar
1 tbsp. dry mustard
2 tsps. salt
¼ tsp. black pepper
¾ tsp. ginger
¼ tsp. cinnamon
1 can (8 oz.) tomato sauce
¾ cup vinegar
1¼ tsps. Tabasco sauce
2 tbsps. grated onion
1½ cloves garlic (crushed)

Preheat oven to 350 degrees and place spareribs on rack in broiler pan and roast 45 minutes (no salt). Pour off excess fat as it accumulates.

Meanwhile, combine sugar and spices in sauce pan. Mix well. Add remaining ingredients and bring to a boil over medium heat, stirring often. Pour one-third of sauce over ribs and continue to roast 30 minutes. Turn ribs over. Pour ½ of remaining sauce over ribs. Roast about one hour longer until fully cooked. Brush often with remaining sauce the last hour until done.

BARBECUED BRISKET ROAST

1 large brisket roast
1 bottle liquid smoke
Garlic salt
Onion salt
Celery salt
½ bottle Worcestershire sauce
Barbecue sauce

Trim excess fat off roast. Pour one bottle liquid smoke into loaf pan lined with foil. Put brisket in pan, turning lean side down for one minute and sprinkle with garlic, onion and celery salts. Turn meat over and repeat process. Refrigerate overnight. Next day, pour on half a bottle of Worcestershire sauce, cover and seal tightly with foil. Cook at 275 degrees for five hours. Uncover, and spread top with barbecue sauce. Put back in oven uncovered for one more hour. Serve hot or cold.

CRISPY CUKES FOR CRACKERS

2 medium cucumbers
1 can white tuna
1 pkg. cream cheese
2 tbsps. cream
Crackers

Peel two medium cucumbers and slice lengthwise. Scrape out seeds and center portion. Soak the cucumber shell in ice water until crisp. Combine tuna, cream cheese and cream. Fill shells with tuna mixture and roll in cold wet cloth. Keep in refrigerator until ready to serve. Slice thin and serve on crackers immediately.

Make Tasty Cheese Dip For Party Fun

To make a tasty mushroom and cheese dip, combine one (8-oz.) can tomato sauce with mushrooms and one package Italian salad dressing mix. Soften one (8-oz.) package cream cheese and gradually add tomato sauce mixture, blending thoroughly. Serve with assorted crackers and chips.

Make Spring Dessert From Exotic Recipe

Here's a recipe for a luscious dessert with an intriguing historical background. Apricot-Pineapple Dessert Squares have a base and topping of a not-too-sweet rolled oats-cream cheese crumble mixture. The toasty, nut-like flavor of rolled oats complements a slightly tangy filling of apricots and pineapple.

Though these ingredients seem quite common — and actually are in our modern world — they have an exotic and cosmopolitan history. Oats have flourished in northern Europe for centuries. And we all know of the popularity of oatmeal porridge in Scotland and the later use of rolled oats in a great variety of American dishes.

But did you know that apricots originated in eastern Asia, and that they then traveled to India, Persia, Greece, Italy and Spain? The Spanish introduced apricots in California where they are now grown commercially. And the pineapple, so closely identified with Hawaii, is really native to South America! It was transported from the Caribbean to Spain and Portugal and finally to Hawaii — again by the Spanish. From Hawaii it's clear sailing across the Pacific back to China, where we first found apricots!

APRICOT-PINEAPPLE DESSERT SQUARES

Crumb Base:

1 cup rolled oats (quick or old fashioned, uncooked)
1 cup sifted all-purpose flour
½ cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
½ cup butter or margarine
One 3-oz. pkg. cream cheese

Filling:

One 8½-oz. can crushed pineapple
One 11-oz. pkg. dried apricots, cut up
½ cup sugar
1 tbsp. cornstarch
½ tsp. salt
½ tsp. cinnamon
¼ tsp. nutmeg

For crumb base, heat oats in shallow baking pan in preheated hot oven (425 degrees) four to five minutes; set aside. Sift together flour, sugar and salt into bowl. Cut in butter and cream cheese until mixture is crumbly. Stir in oats. Firmly press ½ of crumb mixture into ungreased 8-inch square glass baking dish. Reserve other ½ for later. Bake in preheated oven (425 degrees) 12 to 14 minutes or until slightly browned. Cool.

While crumb base is baking, prepare filling. Drain pineapple, reserving syrup. Add enough water to syrup to make 1½ cups liquid. Combine apricots, sugar and liquid in medium-sized saucepan. Simmer 15 minutes, stirring occasionally. Cool to room temperature; add well-drained pineapple. Mix together cornstarch, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg; add to apricot-pineapple mixture; blend well.

Spread filling evenly over crumb base. Top with reserved crumb mixture. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees) 20 to 25 minutes. If desired, serve warm with ice cream. Makes nine servings.

Try Hot Sundae

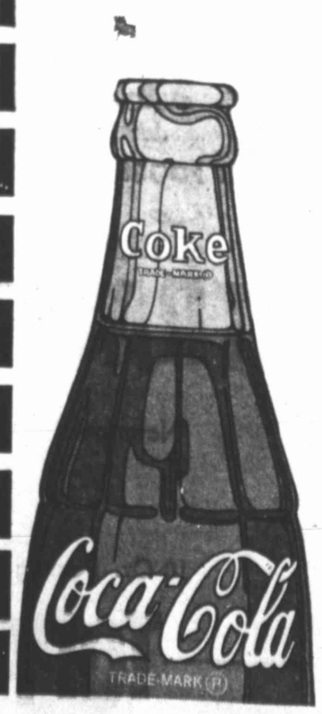
Saute drained canned pear halves in butter and brown sugar until glazed and heated through. Flavor with rum and serve with soft vanilla ice cream topping.

Serve Luscious Dessert

Make apricot-pineapple squares soon and treat your friends to a deliciously exotic dessert. They are easy to make and will become a permanent part of your recipe collection file.

PLAY BIG Name BINGO YOU CAN WIN $100

Just look for 20 famous faces under bottle caps of Coke. Match the faces with brief descriptions and paste the faces on the game card at left. For each description, look through all 20 famous faces to see if any match correctly. For example, get the "Abraham Lincoln" picture liner and glue it in the space marked "Freed Slaves." It's that simple. Correctly completed card wins you $100. But remember, there are 20 liners showing famous faces, and only 10 descriptions on the playing card. So play carefully. Fill in as many spaces as you can correctly and send card to: "Big Name Bingo", P.O. Box 582, Westport, Connecticut 06880. Read the official rules below for complete details. Play Big Name Bingo—the most refreshing way in the world to win $100! (Famous faces for Big Name Bingo are also found under caps of Tab.)



OFFICIAL RULES:

1. Picture liners are available under caps of Coca-Cola and Tab. Pictures are also printed on the bottom of can cartons. You may trade any picture liner for any other that you want by sending the undesired picture liner plus the name of the picture liner you want together with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Picture Liners", P.O. Box 582, Westport, Connecticut 06880. Additional playing cards also are available from this same address.

2. On the playing grid you will find 10 "questions". Adjacent are pictured examples of 20 possible "answers", which may be obtained as provided in Rule #1. There are no other picture liners in the contest. Answer each question by gluing the correct picture liners face up and clearly visible over the appropriate questions (be careful, in some instances the same picture liner may be used to answer more than one question and certain questions may not be answered by any of the picture liners).

3. When you have glued on as many "answers" as you can correctly, sign your card and send it along with your name and address to BIG NAME BINGO, P.O. Box 582, Westport, Connecticut 06880, for verification and awarding of prize if you are a winner. DO NOT SEND METAL BOTTLE CAPS IN THE MAIL—only the liners themselves. Entries must be postmarked no later than May 31, 1969. Winners will be notified by mail about June 20, 1969. Limit one prize to a family.
If your entry is judged incorrect, you will not be notified unless you enclose a stamped self-addressed envelope with your entry. You will be notified following the official closing date of the contest. No other correspondence will be entered into regarding this contest.

4. Players submitting a card which is judged exactly correct will be awarded $100.00. The decision of the judges will be final and entry in the contest signifies the agreement of the entrant to abide by the judges' decision. All entries become the property of The Coca-Cola Company and none will be returned.

5. Except for incidental help from family and friends, entries must be wholly the work of the person in whose name the entry is submitted, and will be disqualified for professional or compensated help. The Coca-Cola Company reserves the right to terminate this contest at any time. Contest materials are void and may be rejected if not obtained through legitimate channels, or if any part is illegible, mutilated, smeared or tampered with. No facsimiles are eligible. Void where restricted by law. Applicable taxes are the responsibility of winners. Promotion ends May 31, 1969.

6. Offer open to all U.S. residents except employees (and their families) of The Coca-Cola Company, its bottlers, marketing agencies and parties engaged in the development, production and distribution of contest materials.

TO JUICY BEEF STEAKS

Secondhand News Might Be Answer

Editor's Note: Two scientists at Texas Tech's livestock research center say that waste paper may be the answer to economical feeding of cattle and sheep and a practical step toward solution of the waste and pollution problem.

LUBBOCK (AP) — Secondhand news often arrives at the dinner table via the neighborhood grapevine, but it soon may find a new mode of transportation—a juicy beef steak or a tender lamb chop.

Scientists at the Texas Tech Livestock Research Station near Amarillo say cattle and sheep really go for newspaper, high quality bonds, onion skin, paper sacks and other forms of waste paper.

WASTE PAPER

"Cattle and sheep at the station have been eating waste paper and doing well on it in trials," said Dr. Loyd Sherrod, animal nutritionist, and Keith Hansen, animal husbandman.

"Feed efficiency—how much gain per pound eaten—was not quite so high on paper as on all grain sorghum," said Hans "but was higher than on comparable amounts of alfalfa or waste material."

He said there was "very little difference" observed in marbling score and the final grade of the meat, but that the fat thickness on the meat produced by a 15 per cent paper ration was less than with other rations.

Waste-paper-fed sheep digested the proteins in their rations just as well or even better than in high quality cane hay, said Hansen.

Sherrod explained the experiment with 63 Hereford heifers divided into seven groups.

One of the rations for the seven groups included a control which had 86.2 per cent grain sorghum in it plus cottonseed meal, urea, molasses, vitamin A and minerals.

REPLACED BY HAY

In one of the rations 7.5 per cent of the grain was replaced by alfalfa hay, and in another ration, 15 per cent was replaced. In two others, 7.5 and 15 per cent of the sorghum were replaced by dried ground feedlot solid-waste materials, and in the final two rations the 7.5 and 15 per cent substitution was paper.

The rations fed to sheep ranged up to 45 per cent paper replacing equal parts of high quality cane hay by weight.

Consumption of rations containing 15 and 30 per cent paper was equal to the control formula which contained no paper. The ration containing 45 per cent paper was consumed at about 95 per cent of the level of the no-paper ration, the experiment showed.

DIGESTIBILITY

Digestibility of the energy components increased with each level of paper up to 30 per cent with a leveling off when the paper was increased to 45 per cent, the study indicated.

Protein digestibility in the rations containing paper was either slightly higher or equal to the control ration, Dr. Sherrod said.

"The results of this experiment indicate that the energy components in paper were digested to a greater extent than those in cane hay and that protein digestibility was not appreciably affected by the use of paper as a roughage source in the ration," he said.

The two scientists also acclaimed this waste-paper feed idea as a step toward solving the nation's waste and pollution problem.

More than 40 million short tons of paper are produced annually in North America alone. One-third to one-fourth of it is reclaimed, with the remainder becoming a disposal problem, Sherrod pointed out.

He cited one plant that must get rid of about 1,500 pounds of wet paper daily. A newspaper with 100,000 circulation will use approximately 10,000 tons of newsprint a year which eventually gets thrown away.

Then there are paper sacks, wrapping paper, stationery and thousands of other waste paper products which are looking for a place to be used constructively," Sherrod added.

He said a 100,000 circulation newspaper will produce enough waste paper to feed 100,000 head of cattle.

"If waste paper can be economically channeled toward the nations' feedlots, significant contributions may be made toward solution of some of the nation's major solid waste problems," Furr said.

New Folder Of Flowers

AUSTIN — "Flowers of Texas" — a spectacle of bloom and blossom — introduces some 60 species of Texas' most beautiful flowers, shrubs and trees in all seasons.

The Texas Highway Department, which released the lavish new color folder today, expects it to be one of the most popular items among the family of recreational and travel literature produced by the department.

The new folder was designed for two purposes — to erase any notion held by out-of-state residents that Texas is an arid, barren wasteland — and to enhance the pleasure of both Texans and visitors by identifying some of the state's most common and colorful plants.

Far from being a wasteland, the folder points out that Texas leads the nation with an abundance of blossoming plants — more than 5,000 species of wild flowers alone. Closeup color photographs illustrate tropical plants at the Lower Rio Grande Valley, wild orchids from the Big Thicket, bright plains flowers, and vivid blooms of thorny cacti.

Flower fanciers and garden clubs have frequently asked that such a publication be added to the family of travel literature produced by the Texas Highway Department. In response to that demand the new folder lists 58 species by common and botanical names, including facts about blooming season and where they are usually found. Other species are illustrated in landscape views.

Free copies of the new "Flowers of Texas" folder may be obtained at all Highway Department offices and Tourist Bureaus. They are available upon request, and in limited quantities to garden clubs and similar organizations.

Requests by mail should be directed to the Texas Highway Department, Travel and Information Division, P.O. Box 5064, Austin, Texas 78703.

'Gloomy' Viet Report Action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, who has tried to restrain critics of President Nixon's war policies, now says the administration's "gloomy report" on Vietnam points up the need for increased presidential efforts to end the fighting.

Mansfield said in an interview that testimony Wednesday by Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird before a closed session of the Senate Armed Services Committee implied the adminis tration is "planning for two more years of war."

"If that is so," the Democratic leader said, "it calls for greater, more concentrated and more private efforts at Paris to bring this war to an end."

Muted as Mansfield's criticism was it marked the first departure from his stand announced when Nixon took office of not attacking the President on Vietnam in order to allow him time to formulate his own policies.

Ray's Request To Withdraw Guilty Plea No Surprise?

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — James Earl Ray wants the judge to reopen the Martin Luther King Jr. murder case, void his plea of guilty and give him a trial by jury.

Ray's intention to seek a new hearing was stated in a letter he wrote from his cell in the state penitentiary to Judge W. Preston Battle, who on March 10 accepted the guilty plea and imposed a 99-year sentence.

"He said he's going to file a postconviction petition and get a lawyer," Judge Battle said Wednesday in disclosing receipt of the letter. "If he does, then we'll have an evidential hearing."

CHANCE TO SHOW

Such a hearing would give Ray a chance to show that his legal rights were impaired to the extent that a new start in the case is warranted.

Expressing no surprise at Ray's move, Judge Battle commented: "Everybody does it." Petitons from prisoners have flooded the courts in recent years in the wake of Supreme Court decisions more sharply delineating the pretrial rights of accused persons.

Percy Foreman, the lawyer who advised Ray to plead guilty and who says his connection with the prisoner is now ended, said in New York:

"I think that James Earl Ray enjoys the spotlight and any way he can keep the center of the stage he will do it. I wish him well. I don't think it advisable, but that's his responsibility, not mine."

Foreman reiterated his personal conviction that contrary to the views of many who suspect a conspiracy, Ray acted alone.

"James Earl Ray decided, and he alone decided, to kill Martin Luther King so he could claim the glory," Foreman declared.

RACIST

"I think James Earl Ray was a racist. He thought he would be a hero. He completely misconceived the thinking of the white race."

Only a day after his guilty plea Ray told officers taking him from Memphis to the Nashville penitentiary:

"I was convinced if I didn't plead guilty I was going to the electric chair. I wish the hell I hadn't now because with what they had on me I believe the worst I'd gotten would have been life."

Under a 99-year sentence, Ray, now 41, is ineligible to seek parole until he has served 30 years. With a life sentence he would be eligible in 13 years 7 months.

Meanwhile Gov. Buford Ellington of Tennessee, referring to the theory that Ray was part of a conspiracy, said he wonders how "one man alone could do all the things he did."

Orders Totaling Nearly $1 Million

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Ventura Manufacturing Co., a Lockheed Aircraft Corp. subsidiary, received orders totaling nearly $1 million during its first six months of operation, officials announced.

The Ventura plant was established here under a federal government test program to train and hire unemployed. It manufactures, overhauls and repairs aerospace equipment.

The first class of 11 unemployed began training in July, 1968. By December, 1968, the firm had 159 employes, including 113 trainees.

Widening Generation Gap Not Just Fault Of Adults

SWARTHMORE, Pa. (AP) — The dean of women at Swarthmore College says the generation gap isn't just a case of adults not talking to or understanding young people--it's often the other way around.

Barbara Pearson Lange said the widening generation gap is one of the reasons she's quitting her post at the suburban Philadelphia school after seven years as dean.

When young people say "don't talk to anyone over 30," the 58-year-old dean said, "then people over 50 really haven't a chance to be effective with them."

"There is no difficulty in students coming to talk to me when they have a protest to make. The difficulty is to get them to listen to me and my point of view," she said in an interview by Deborah Ovedoff in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

"The technique I have used and I can recommend it to parents—is to listen very carefully and then to use the question method; ask them what they would do if they were me. In other words, get them to play a role," the dean said.

Dean Lange, sister of columnist Drew Pearson, said despite the widening gap, she felt she still understood young people.

"Once my youngest daughter was out of college," about two years ago, she said, "I felt I no longer had my finger on the pulse of what youth needed or wanted. But that does not mean I feel out of step with today's college students."

Dean Lange, who has six grandchildren, said she has often had to serve as a mediator trying to help parents understand their daughters' points of view.

"I am not sure that young people think we have a great deal of wisdom because we have lived longer and experienced more. They want the freedom to make their own mistakes and then they want you to help them out."

Waco Man Guilty Of Assault Raps

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A Waco, Tex., man has been sentenced to 55 years in the Missouri penitentiary on charges of assaulting a St. Louis youth and his girl friend in May of 1967.

Jimmie Johnson, 30, received the sentence Wednesday from circuit judge Alvin J. McFarland.

McFarland had found Johnson guilty of assault with intent to ravish the girl and of assault with intent to kill the youth. Johnson denied all the charges and waived a jury trial.

It's Fun, Sun Time For Truman

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Former President Harry S. Truman, rebounding at 84 from a bout with the flu, will arrive Saturday for two weeks of rest and relaxation on his favorite island in the sun.

John Spotswood, former state senator and longtime friend, said Truman and his wife Bess will arrive by Air Force jet at Boca Chica Naval Air Station.

"He's feeling a lot better than he did a year ago," Spotswood said.

Otepka's Allies Expect Victory

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of Otto F. Otepka's Senate allies in his five-year battle with the State Department predicts speedy confirmation of the former security officer's appointment to the Subversive Activities Control Board.

"Justice has finally triumphed," said Judiciary Committee Chairman James O. Eastland Wednesday after President Nixon nominated Otepkh to the SACB.

Eastland, whose committee will consider Otepka's nomination for the $36,000 a year post, predicted prompt Senate approval and said it should "clear the air once and for all in the Otepka case."

Eastland's comments were typical of senators who backed Otepka in his fight against State Department charges of unauthorized disclosure of classified documents to Senate investigators.

And senators who tried two years ago to abolish the SACB as a do-nothing agency indicated they would not oppose Otepka's confirmation even though they might continue efforts to cut the board's funds.

The board, which owes its existence largely to support from Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen, has had its mandate to say who is a Communist nearly demolished by the Supreme Court.

Ironically, Otepka reportedly owes his appointment largely to Dirksen although the minority leader denies it.

Otepka, who was the State Department's chief security evaluator, was dismissed in November, 1963, after superiors accused him of supplying documents and information to the Senate Internal Security subcommittee without authorization.

Shortly before his dismissal all of the senators on the subcommittee joined in a letter to former Secretary of State Dean Rusk expressing their confidece in Otepka's integrity and ability.

WAYMAN CLARK

Clark To Be Boss Lion Downtown

Wayman Clark, assistant general manager of Neel's Transfer and Storage, is the new president-elect of the Downtown Lions Club.

He, together with a slate of officers presented previously by the nominating committee, was elected Wednesday to take office in July. He will become the 43rd man to hold this office of the club which was chartered in 1929.

Other officers elected were Winston Wrinkle, first vice president; Roy Hughes, second vice president; Don Shoemake, third vice president; Jeff Brown, Liontamer; Bob West, secretary-treasurer; Aubrey Bryan and John Dibrell to be new directors, and Joe Horton to fill out a one-year unexpired term.

Clyde McMahon Jr., current president, announced that the club will observe its 40th anniversary May 16.

He also pegged May 1-2-3 as the dates for the annual light bulb sale spearheaded by Jim Lemons, general chairman. The club will have an annual Chinese auction April 2, he added.

Visitors Wedesday included Leonard Lyons, Forrest Lineberry and Tommy Thompson, all of the Midland South Side Lions Club.

Texas Spring Fragile Thing

By The Associated Press

A little dry norther reminded Texans today that the new spring season, bowing in officially at 1:08 p.m., is still a fragile youngster.

There were at least mild drops in temperature everywhere except the extreme south part of the state as a new Pacific cool front swept toward the coast.

The cooling was particularly noticeable because it occurred only a day after the mercury climbed into the 80s and 90s at numerous points.

By early morning the forward edge of the advancing front lay along a line linking Texarkana, San Antonio and Del Rio. It was expected to push through remaining areas and into the Gulf of Mexico before day's end.

Winds up to 40 miles per hour in gusts and blowing dust in the Panhandle-Plains sector heralded the cool front's arrival Wednesday afternoon. No rain fell anywhere in the state.

Forecasts promised fair weather over the northern half of Texas and rising temperatures by Friday. It was expected to be clear to partly cloudy in the southern half.

Thermometers hit Wednesday afternoon highs of 94 degrees at Cotulla and Laredo, 90 at Del Rio and the 80s at many other places. The coolest spot was Galveston with a top mark of 67.

Readings near dawn today ranged from 30 at Dalhart and 33 at Amarillo up to 61 at Del Rio and 63 at Brownsville.

Cancer Society Aims Outlined

STANTON (SC) — The purposes and aims of the cancer society were given at the Wednesday meeting of the Rotary Club by Tom Angel, president of the Martin County Unit of the American Cancer Society and Mrs. Marvin Standefer, 1969 Crusade chairman for Martin County. Jim McCoy presided at the business session and George Shelburne gave the invocation. John Rankin led the singing, accompanied by Angel on the piano. Ten were present for the meeting.

Take Your Time

LARKSPUR, Calif. (AP) — Betty Mitchell felt in a prosaic way an age-old desire of poets and philosophers: To stop time in its flight.

A bird — she thought it was a crow — flew in her bathroom window, grabbed her $150 gold banded watch from a bedroom dresser and flew away, she told police.

Police Fail To 'Buffalo' Students At University

By The Associated Press

More than 300 students seized a building at the State University of New York at Buffalo while 21 students at the university's Stony Brook campus were sentenced to 15 days in jail for a 2-hour sit-in last week. Other schools across the nation were taking preventive and punitive action to curb campus unrest.

The Buffalo students, predominantly white, moved into Hayes Hall, the administration building Wednesday afternoon. They walked out this morning, obeying a court order that set a 7 a.m. deadline for vacating the building.

Scores of police stood by as the students moved to the student center.

The students had demonstrated in downtown Buffalo against a three-year prison sentence given to a draft resister. As they moved on Hayes Hall, they stopped to raze three construction shacks at a Navy research project on campus.

The protesters demanded an end to defense-oriented research on campus, abolition of the Reserve Officers Training Corps and amnesty for all participants in the sit-in.

They also called for open admission for students from poor families and Vietnam veterans, establishment of a special college to meet working class needs, and full integration of a construction force at a new campus in nearby Amherst, N.Y.

Buffalo, largest branch of the State University, has 22,000 students.

At Stony Brook on Long Island, the 21 students, including five girls, were handed the maximum 15-day terms after they pleaded guilty to loitering.

Judge Edward U. Green told the students, "You were given all the leniency in the world by everybody else." The 21 had been among a group that remained in the campus library overnight last Thursday to protest the arrest of a student who had been barred from campus after he failed academically.

At other schools:

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—A high school student was shot, 17 persons arrested and nine students and two policemen injured when students went on a rampage after a basketball game in the University of Pittsburgh Field House.

Police said 200 youths took to the streets, fought each other, then began heaving rocks at cars and stores. They were dispersed within two hours.

One student was shot in the foot during the scuffling. It was unclear who fired the shot.

DURHAM, N.C.—Duke University placed 48 Negro students on probation for a year for their role in last month's takeover of the administration building. The students demanded a black studies program, which the administration is now planning.

CHICAGO—The University of Chicago expelled 16 students for their role in a two-week sit-in at the school. Earlier, 21 students were expelled and 62 suspended, after the demonstration against the school's refusal to rehire Mrs. Marlene Dixon, a radical sociology instructor.

NEW YORK—Columbia University notified its Jewish and Protestant chaplains, who were openly sympathetic to campus rebels, that they had not been rehired. Rabbi A. Bruce Goldman said his case was being studied by city's Commission on Human Rights. The Rev. William F. Starr was the other chaplain.

HOUSTON, Tex.—The University of Houston barred Mark Rudd, who helped lead last spring's protests at Columbia, from speaking on campus. Rudd had been invited by two students groups.

A spokesman for Students for a Democratic Society said Rudd would speak today despite the ban.

AUSTIN, Tex.—SDS filed a petition in federal court to set aside a University of Texas decision to keep the left-wing group from holding its national convention at the Austin campus next week.

SDS asked for injunctive relief and $25,000 damages. The suit will be heard Monday.

SPRING HERE? WHO DO YOU THINK YOU'RE KIDDIN'?
Stubborn old mesquite refuses to believe what the almanac reports regarding end of winter.

Spring In Big Spring, Tra-La, Tra-La, Tra-La

Big Springers had a fine preview of spring weather on Wednesday afternoon. It was an advance showing of the arrival of the new season which moved into town at 1:08 p.m. Thursday.

The bright sun warmed the area up to a summery 80 degrees in midafternoon Wednesday and the night proved one of the mildest in many weeks.

Low reading before dawn Thursday was 40 degrees.

At 8 a.m. the temperature was 45. There seemed a good chance at that hour the day might equal Wednesday for pleasantness.

With the arrival of spring, winter, which had held sway since 1 p.m. Dec. 21, terminated. Spring will continue through 7:55 a.m. June 21.

Snyder Selected All-American City

SNYDER — This community's drive to shake off the barnacles of age and post-boom scars has paid off in the selection of Snyder as an All-American city.

Snyder becomes one of two Texas cities so selected, and one of only 11 for the entire nation. Edinburgh is the other Texas All-American City, and Lockhart received honorable mention in the competition sponsored jointly by the National Municipal League and Look magazine.

Snyder's entry consisted of 26 separate projects, all of them undertaken and financed locally without help from any outside source.

Included in activities were the demolition of some 250 old buildings, mostly at city expense. (Where property owners granted permission, the city bore the expense of removing the old places.) A $400,000 downtown renewal program was effected, a $1.25 million coliseum was erected, a school for retarded children was established.

In addition to these, there were other activities such as 1,051 citizens chipping in $10 each for a campaign to acquire a site for American Magnesium Co., which is erecting a $15 million plant 11 miles southwest of Snyder.

Jaycees promoted a year-long cleanup campaign. Garden clubs paid for and planted flowers and trees. In the downtown area 12 blocks of walks were ripped up and replaced with new ones of exposed aggregate, and benches, cutouts and pedestrian shelters were added. Fifteen business houses modernized their fronts. The courthouse square was beautified and off-street parking provided. April 11 has been set as the date of a community celebration of the new, outstanding honor.

Banditos Leading In C-C Campaign

Standings in the Big Spring Chamber of Commerce membership drive today revealed that Burgess' Banditos are in the lead with the Ambassadors Club trailing as the campaign moves well into the second week.

The Banditos, led by John Burgess, show a commanding margin over the Ambassadors Club, directed by Roger Brown.

Afton Marwitz of the Banditos looms as the favorite to capture the expense-paid weekend trip to El Paso for the top salesman. Marwitz jumped to a quick lead when the drive began March 15 and has continued to maintain his position on top.

Jim Butler is the current leader for the Ambassadors.

One Accident

Police investigated one traffic accident here Wednesday. Cars driven by Joe Gomez, 1000 E. 3rd, and L. C. Williams, 406 W. 17th, were in collision at Twenty-first and Johnson.

Pupil Unrest Dangers Cited

WASHINGTON (AP) — Psychologist Bruno Bettelheim says there are striking similarities between student disorders in the United States and the upheaval in German universities that preceded the rise of Adolf Hitler.

Bettelheim, a survivor of Hitler's concentration camps, says a determination to bring down the establishment is the same motive in both cases, but the great danger now is to the universities, not the nation.

In testimony prepared for House Education subcommittee hearings on student unrest. Bettelheim said a further parallel between today and pre-Nazi Germany is a prevailing attitude that the disorderly youths are idealists concerned with the real issues of society.

Justice To Arabs Seen As Key To Mideast Peace

There are two sides to the Middle East crisis, and the Arab side is not generally understood and appreciated in the United States, Dr. Abed T. Arja told the Downtown Lions Club at its Wednesday meeting.

Despite the intense feelings which have taken progressively deeper root in the past quarter century, he added that "I don't see any reason why the Jews and Arabs cannot live together in peace.

"They are basically the same (Semitic) people, have similar languages and other characteristics. Once the Palestinian refugee problem has been settled, there is no good reason why there cannot be peace in the Middle East."

What is lost sight of and which is poorly understood here is that with the creation of the Israeli state in 1945, Arabs living in the territory were arbitrarily uprooted, he noted. Today there are about 1½ million of these refugees which have been dispossessed and now live on 17 cents a day.

"What would be your feeling if you were pushed off your land and had to give up most of your possessions?" Dr. Arja asked.

He touched briefly on the history of the Middle East, from the Biblical days through the centuries of the Turkish Empire, until its dissoluton toward the end of the 19th century. The last vestiges passed with the ill-fated German-Turkish alliance in World War I, and much of the territory was mandated to Britain. In 1918 only about 10 per cent of the Middle East population was Jewish, but by 1936, under impetus of a Zionist movement, this had grown to upwards of 400,000.

Even then, he said, there was not too much difficulty, but when Britain turned over its mandates to the United Nations after World War II and a state of Israel was created, bitter trouble started with uprooting of Arab natives. The story of the Middle East has been one of oppression and subjection for centuries, but Dr. Arja held hope that through justice to the Arabs, the way could be opened to peaceful settlement of difficulties. Dr. Arja, a member of the club, is leaving soon for a new station with the VA Hospital system in Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Wiley Talks On Interior Decorating

"Decorating started with the cave man, when the cave woman carved on walls," said Mrs. Don Wiley, guest speaker Monday for the Xi Mu Exemplar Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi. Mrs. Wade Choate, 1807 Main, was hostess.

In discussing interior decorating, Mrs. Wiley said planning should begin with floors, walls and drapes, while the focal point should be something such as an attractive fireplace, large picture or beautiful table.

"The 'in' thing is to mix furniture types, never putting more than two like pieces in one room," continued Mrs. Wiley. "Pictures should be arranged in odd numbers."

The speaker noted that in ancient times, Egyptians were often buried with their household possessions. The Greeks contributed classical designs in architecture and decorative objects. Present day decorating evolved from trends developed through the Roman Gothic, Renaissance and Elizabethan periods, however. Mrs. Wiley expressed the opinion that the United States has contributed little that is new in the field of decorating.

Mrs. Roy Granbery presided and announced that the BSP City Council will contribute $100 to the Dora Roberts Rehabilitation Center. The Founder's Day banquet will be held at 7:30 p.m., April 29, with Xi Mu being responsible for invitations and place cards.

The meeting concluded with "crazy bridge," and guests were Mrs. Jerry Snodgrass, Mrs. Jerry Sherrill and Mrs. Jimmy Taylor.

The next meeting will be Monday in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room with Mrs. Bobby Bradford and Miss Beverlyn Jones as hostesses.

Charter Draped By Rebekahs

Mrs. Joe Smith was elected president at Tuesday's meeting of Alpha Beta Omicron Chapter of Coahoma, Beta Sigma Phi, in the First Federal Community Room. Mrs. Frank Pearson was hostess.

Other officers named were Mrs. Pearson, vice president; Mrs. Roe Fulgham, recording secretary; Mrs. Jack Owens, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Don Cunningham, treasurer. City council representatives are Mrs. Cunningham, Mrs. Gerald Cox and Mrs. Mackey Hayes, alternate.

Initiation was held for Mrs. Pearson, Mrs. Charles Hill Jr., Mrs. Jack Owens and Mrs. Morris Fraley. Mrs. Cunningham presided and announced she will host a tea honoring rushees Sunday in her home at Sand Springs.

Mrs. Pearson was named decorations chairman for the BSP City Council Founder's Day program. Mrs. Fraley and Mrs. Cunningham will serve coffee April 2 at the Veterans Administration Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bell of Huntsville were weekend guests of her parents, the Ralph Bryants. Other guests of the Bryants were the Tommy Bryants of Abilene, Miss Donna Bryant of Odessa and Carole Bell and Patricia Bell of Howard Payne College.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Ranne and Linda spent Friday in Midland as guests of the G. C. Rannes and the Leman Joneses.

Rebekahs Drape Charter Tuesday

Mrs. Gene Crenshaw draped the charter in memory of Mrs. Don Brashears in a candlelight ceremony, "The Open Gate," during a dinner held Tuesday by Big Spring Rebekah Lodge No. 284 in the IOOF Hall.

Mrs. Travis Melton read an invitation from Lamesa Rebekah Lodge No. 90 to attend a friendship night March 29. Mrs. L. A. Griffith read the history of Schuyler Colfax, founder of the Rebekahs. Troy Durham, degree team captain, announced initiation will be held Tuesday evening.

Hostesses were Mrs. C. D. Herring and Mrs. Logan Grider. Forty-seven visits to the sick and shut-in were announced.

Mrs. W. Bain Presented Pin

Mrs. W. H. Bain was presented a 25-year membership pin at Wednesday's meeting of the Ladies Society of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen in the IOOF Hall. Mrs. W. W. Marlin presided. Hostesses were Mrs. J. C. Cravens and Mrs. J. F. Skalicky. The next meeting will be April 16, when Mrs. Marlin and Mrs. W. N. Wood will be hostesses.

ESA Holds Leadership Seminar

Mrs. Jack Hardin of Amarillo, second vice president of the Texas State Council, Epsilon Sigma Alpha International, was guest speaker at the District Eight leadership seminar held March 16 in Kermit and hosted by Theta Gamma Chapter.

Mrs. Hardin's topic was "Qualities of Leadership," and she stressed that leadership is highly individual and is one of the most subtle forces by which things are governed.

"A prime factor in leadership is dedication and a strong belief in something," said Mrs. Hardin. She said the first step toward achieving genuine leadership is the ability to affect others, which is earned through the power of personal example.

The Kermit Community Center was decorated to carry out the seminar theme, "A Song in Your Heart," in keeping with Mrs. Don Hyman's theme for the year, "ESA — Something to Sing About." Mrs. Hyman is president of District Eight.

The seminar talks included "Rushing" by Mrs. E. C. McFadden, Mu Delta chapter, Crane; "Awards," Mrs. Ivan White, Beta Iota, Ft. Stockton; "Disaster Fund," Mrs. John Tinney, Lambda Alpha; Odessa. "Publicity," Mrs. Brunell Harvey, Epsilon Mu, Odessa; "Social Service," Mrs. Dennis Collins, Theta Gamma, Kermit; "ESA Home," Mrs. Tony Watson, Beta Eta, Midland; and "Successful Chapters," Mrs. Monte LaFon of Theta Gamma, Kermit.

DeMolay Mothers To Assist With Activities

Activity schedules for the observance of National DeMolay Week were announced by Mrs. Gloria Strom Ezell, president of the DeMolay Mother's Club, at a meeting in her home Tuesday. This year marks the 50th anniversary of the Order of DeMolay.

The local observance will begin Saturday when the DeMolays will operate Radio Station KBYG. On Sunday, the group will attend 9:45 a.m. services at St. Mary's Episcopal Church as part of "Reverence Day."

Monday, parents and friends of DeMolays are invited to attend a meeting at the Masonic Temple when representative awards will be presented, and a ritual honoring mothers will be performed. Afterward, the DeMolay Mothers' Club will provide refreshments for a reception. Also, on Monday, the DeMolays will participate in a noon television show. The members will raise flags for local patrons on Tuesday and a regular meeting will be held; Wednesday, they will wash the memorial statue at the Municipal Auditorium; and Friday is the date set for a dance at Big Spring Country Club for DeMolays and their guests.

The boys will clean windshields as a community service project on Saturday, March 29, and will place a wreath at the grave of Leon P. Moffett, who founded the local chapter in 1952. The special week will climax March 30 when the DeMolays will attend services at the First Presbyterian Church and meet for lunch at Cosden Country Club.

Lions Auxiliary Holds Luncheon

The Downtown Lions Auxiliary held a luncheon Wednesday in the home of Mrs. Charles Havens, 616 Tulane. Mrs. M. R. Turner presided and directed the discussion of the Western District, Texas Federation of Women's Clubs convention to be held March 28-29. Guests were Mrs. H. C. Petty and Mrs. Jim Parks. The next meeting will be held April 16 in the home of Mrs. Marshall Cauley, 524 Scott.

Continues Study

Mrs. Morris Holmes continued the Bible study on the Book of John at Tuesday's meeting of the Woman's Society of Christian Service at Wesley United Methodist Church.

To Wed

Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Slate, 1600 Vines, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Kay, to Terry O. McDaniel, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. McDaniel, 803 Avondale. The couple will be married April 3 in Las Vegas, Nev.

High Tallies Given For Newcomers

Mrs. Jack Affleck and Mrs. W. E. Archibald were hostesses at Wednesday's bridge meeting at the Newcomers Club in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room.

Mrs. William Skaggs, president, introduced two guests, Mrs. Ann Griffin and Mrs. R. H. Goodwin. Other guests were Mrs. Shine Philips, Mrs. J. D. Millstead, Mrs. Robert Spear, Mrs. H. S. Foster and Miss Linda Roscoe.

Six tables were in play. Winners were Mrs. James H. Wilkins, first; and Mrs. Goodwin, second. Bridge-o was won by Mrs. N. E. Picquet.

The next meeting will be a dessert bridge April 1, in the Blue Room of Cosden Country Club. A couple's dinner and bridge party will be held April 12 in the First Federal Community Room.

Mrs. John Knox Creates Floral Arrangements

Mrs. John Knox presented the program by creating six flower arrangements at Monday's meeting of the After Five Garden Club in the home of Mrs. John W. Hughes, 1323 Mobile.

She made arrangements using bulb plants, peach blossoms and forsythia, and her designs included the use of driftwood in Japanese arrangements. She expained that jonquils are the most fragrant flower in the narcissus family, and that the name came from Narcissus, a figure in Greek mythology.

Mrs. Tom Ivey presided and announced the District One, Garden Clubs, Inc., meeting will be held April 10-11 in Lubbock. The spring convention of Texas Garden Clubs, Inc., will be held May 26-28 in Austin, and the national council of state Garden Clubs, Inc., will be held May 8 in Dallas.

Members were reminded to work from 9 to 10 a.m. Saturday at the site of the 'big spring.' The club donated to a lifetime membership for Mrs. Lee Coyle, district one governor.

Mrs. Truett Thomas was a guest.

Nurses Planning State Convention

The Texas Nurses Association state convention was discussed when the local Constituent No. 24 held a dinner meeting Tuesday in the Officers Open Mess at Webb Air Force Base. Maj. Lillian Parish was hostess. Mrs. Fannie Clark, president, introduced two guests, Mrs. Charles Stewart and Mrs. Ralph Emerson. The April 8 meeting will be held in the Pioneer Gas Flame Room.
