Night sessions

If they change it, would you come?

As Midland City Council members consider the merits of evening meetings, they plan to gauge public interest by meeting after 5 p.m. once each quarter in the coming months. If citizen attendance doesn't improve during this trial run, however, the council is not likely to change from its regular 10 a.m. twice-monthly schedule.

What is your opinion of the better council meeting time? The Reporter-Telegram Cityline COMMUNITY PULSE wants to know: Would you be more likely to attend a City Council meeting if it took place after the end of the traditional workday? Call 560-2400 and select category 7655 to voice your opinion.

The poll will remain open until midnight today and results will appear in Friday's edition.

Train crash

COTEAU-DU-LAC, Quebec — A tractor-trailer truck collided with a Via Rail passenger train at a crossing during a heavy snowstorm Tuesday, killing four people and injuring 48, officials said. Via Rail spokesman Paul Raynor said the truck lost control and hit the first car of the train. The car was knocked off the track but remained upright. The train was traveling from Quebec City to Toronto when the collision occurred in Coteau-du-Lac, 25 miles west of Montreal. "The trailer hit the side of our train and took out the whole side of the club car," said Fred Buchanan, a passenger in the car that was hit. The truck driver leapt clear before the impact and escaped injury, officials said.

The dead were identified only as two men and two women. Via Rail officials said 19 passengers were in the first-class car, right behind the locomotive, and 79 others were in three coaches./7A

Ashes stolen

RICHARDSON — A family is offering a $200 reward for the return of an urn containing the remains of a loved one stolen during a burglary. The bronze urn containing the ashes of Donald L. Tolin Jr. was taken from Dorothy Hawthorne's home while she was vacationing in Washington state, family members said Monday./3B

Thompson pleads guilty

Suspended sheriff to resign post

■ Lawman faces possible prison sentence of 10 years to life on cocaine conspiracy charge.

Associated Press

DALLAS — Suspended Presidio County Sheriff Rick Thompson pleaded guilty Tuesday to a cocaine conspiracy charge in the seizure of more than a ton of the drug, valued at $1 billion in street sales.

Three other charges against Thompson are scheduled to be dismissed by United States District Court Judge Jerry Buchmeyer at Thompson's sentencing April 17 in Dallas.

Thompson faces a possible sentence of 10 years to life in prison and a fine of up to $4 million for conspiracy to import and cause to be imported more than five kilograms of cocaine from Mexico, said Tom Beery, a federal prosecutor from Midland.

Buchmeyer accepted Thompson's plea, which was included in a sealed agreement, and said he would review a pre-sentencing report on the suspended sheriff. Sentencing was scheduled for April 17 in Dallas.

Thompson will resign his position in the wake of his guilty plea, said Barry Crutchfield, his attorney.

Election funds report places Gideon on top

■ Candidate has raised the most contributions in sheriff's race, records show.

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

Wayne Gideon, Midland's 57-year-old retired police chief who is campaigning for Midland County sheriff, so far has raised more campaign money — $25,429 — than that of the three other candidates combined, according to records in the Midland County Elections Administrators Office.

The 1992 campaign contributions reflect donations and loans through Jan. 30. The deadline for the required filing of contributions 30 days prior to the March 10 Republican Party and Democratic Party primary elections was Monday, Feb. 10.

Among Gideon's contributions were three $5,000 contributions from Walter R. Davis, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Fasken, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bird. Contributions of $2,500 each came from John L. Cox and Mr. and Mrs. George Glass. Buddy Branum con-

Women hear a message in Tyson rape conviction

By Leslie Dreyfous
Associated Press writer

■ Analysis

Many women expected Mike Tyson to go free. They'd watched Justice Clarence Thomas' confirmation and William Kennedy Smith's acquittal. They knew how seldom sexual assault cases are prosecuted, and how seldom they are won.

"She asked for it," could be heard in bars and on street corners. The nightly news captured locals outside the courthouse in Indianapolis, cheering the boxing hero who was hoping to regain the heavyweight title this spring.

The defense depicted the victim as a wily beauty contestant capitalizing on her encounter with a celebrity whose name wasn't Kennedy — but was about as well known. Or alternatively, a spurned woman with an ax to grind — perhaps like Anita Hill.

"The way things have been going, I was sure the woman would be blamed," said Regina Thompson, a legal secretary in New York. "But finally the message is clear: No means no," added her friend, Cheryl Burger.

Mobil considers nationwide cuts

By John Paul Pitts
Business/Oil Editor

Mobil operations in Midland may be looking at a significant slash in the work force, company officials said.

Darlene Taylor, a spokesman for Mobil Exploration and Producing U.S. Inc., confirmed Tuesday that the company had plans to "get smaller in 1992." She said Charlie Spruell, president of the company, recently had visited Midland and other major Mobil locations throughout the U.S. to inform employees about company plans.

Lamar Smith bill seeks repeal of U.S. energy taxation policy

Staff Report

WASHINGTON D.C. — Saying there must be a fundamental change in America's energy policy, U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, Tuesday introduced a bill calling for repeal of the Alternative Minimum Tax, which he described as unfair to the oil industry.

Smith represents Midland in Congress.

The Alternative Minimum Tax disallows certain exemptions and forces oil producers to pay as much as three times in taxes what someone in any other business would have to pay, according to a statement issued by Smith.

"There must be a fundamental change in the America's energy policy — starting with repeal of the Alternative Minimum Tax (ATM) provi-

Albertson's Inc. plans to retain former Jewel Osco employees

Staff Report

Albertson's Inc, which announced two weeks ago it would purchase all Jewel Osco stores in Texas, has offered all Jewel Osco employees jobs once the acquisition is completed, company officials said.

Albertson's Vice President William Emmons, in a letter last week to all 7,702 Jewel Osco employees in Texas, said, "Albertson's plans to employ former Jewel Osco employees in the stores where they are presently working."

The purchase involves one Jewel Osco store in Midland, which employs 181 people. There are two Albertson's stores here.

The decision to retain the employees was applauded by the Texas Chamber of Commerce, which said the decision was "another indication the Texas market continues to rebound."

Emmons said in the letter "Albertson's knows Jewel Osco employees are a solid

Council selects attorney for vacant at-large slot

Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Midland attorney William C. "Bill" Morrow Tuesday became the newest member of the City Council.

Morrow was appointed to the at-large position recently vacated by John Castro. He was chosen after an executive session, from a list of about eight people who had indicated interest in the job.

Although no formal interviews were conducted, and the names of candidates were never released, Mayor Carroll Thomas said Morrow's community involvement and long-term commitment to Midland speaks for itself.

For at least one member, however, the appointment came too soon.

"I have nothing against Mr. Morrow. I think he's a fine candidate," said Tom Johnston, District 4 member, who opposed the vote. "Mine was kind of a protest vote."

THOMPSON: Suspended Presidio County sheriff pleads guilty

(From 1A)

"The dangers are just too great under federal sentencing guidelines. Therefore, we didn't want to go to trial," Crutchfield said, adding that his client chose to plead guilty to one of four charges instead. "He could die in prison.

"The prosecution's case had merit and demerit," he said. "They had some weaknesses as well as strengths."

The sheriff, wearing a white hat, left court with his wife, Barbara, holding his arm.

"I have no comment," Thompson told the AP after his appearance.

Crutchfield said Thompson was abused by unnamed individuals and became a victim of government prosecution. But the attorney would not elaborate, citing the sealed plea-bargain agreement.

Prosecutor Beery took exception to Crutchfield's view of Thompson as a "victim" of federal government prosecution.

"Anyone who brings over a ton of cocaine into this country from anywhere is going to be a 'victim' of prosecution, I can damn sure guarantee you," Beery said. "The only people he (Thompson) has victimized are his own family by engaging in this crime."

Beery said he wonders "how many suicides, how many overdose deaths, and how many addicts are contained in that one ton of cocaine. Those are the real victims, not criminals like the sheriff," the prosecutor said.

"If he (Thompson) felt like he was victimized," Beery said, "he should have gone to trial. The choice was his."

Thompson's lawyer, Crutchfield, said "the situation with Mr. Thompson is that he had the opportunity to keep the drugs once he became aware that the cocaine was involved. But, instead, he was used by individuals who played both ends against the middle. He didn't realize it until it was too late."

Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter, who for 5½ years in the 1970s was Thompson's chief deputy at Marfa, said Tuesday night that the Thompson incident "really saddens my heart."

"But he (Thompson) is the one that made the decision," Painter said. "Whatever consequences occur, he's the one that has to bear them. And it's sad that a fellow officer and a fellow sheriff has been caught up in this (illicit cocaine) activity. Each of us is a human being, and we each make our own track."

Painter, Midland County sheriff since 1985, was Thompson's chief deputy from 1973 to 1978. After that, he moved to Midland.

Painter said that Thompson is, "I guess, no different than the attorney (Jeff Spain of Odessa) that hired a man to kill his wife and was recently sentenced to the penitentiary. And it also brings to memory the former city councilman (Kelly Fish) from Midland that was indicted and arrested and subsequently pleaded guilty and received probation on felony theft charges. And Roland Wilkinson, former chief appraiser for the Midland Central Appraisal District, who was indicted and arrested and received probation on felony theft charges."

Thompson, 45, ended a four-week stay in jail Monday by posting a $5,000 bail bond set by Buchmeyer. The judge set aside a no-bond ruling that had kept Thompson at Reeves County Jail in Pecos since Jan. 13.

Last month, Thompson was charged in connection with 2,421 pounds of cocaine seized from a horse trailer parked at the Presidio County Fairgrounds.

On Jan. 9, a federal magistrate had ruled that Thompson should be held without bond because he was a threat to the community and to witnesses who could testify against him.

Buchmeyer reviewed that ruling at the request of Crutchfield, of Lovington, N.M.

Thompson's case was moved to the northern district in Dallas after U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton stepped aside. Bunton represented Thompson in an election lawsuit in the 1970s.

Glyn Robert Chambers of Alpine, a co-defendant, has pleaded guilty to one of the charges in exchange for testimony against Thompson.

Before Thompson's indictment, he had contended that the drugs were being used in a reverse drug sting he was operating alone.

The Presidio County sheriff for 18 years, Thompson had served as chairman of the board of the El Paso-based Multi-County Narcotics Task Force and formerly was president of the Sheriffs Association of Texas.

Thompson was suspended from office without pay following his four-count indictment.

Charges against the sheriff that were to be dismissed included conspiracy of possession with intent to distribute more than five kilograms of cocaine, possession with intent to distribute more than five kilograms of cocaine and importing and causing to be imported more than five kilograms of cocaine from the country.

Iranians celebrate 13th anniversary of Islamic revolution

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Proclaiming "death to America," hundreds of thousands of Iranians demonstrated in their capital Tuesday on the 13th anniversary of the Islamic revolution's triumph over Iran's pro-Western monarchy.

President Hashemi Rafsanjani told demonstrators the sight of such large crowds, some of whom walked for hours to get to the rally, brought tears to his eyes, Tehran radio said.

Tehran television showed Freedom Square and the surrounding streets packed with crowds that looked to be in the hundreds of thousands. It also showed rows of buses, suggesting many people were brought from outlying areas.

Iran's official media, monitored in Nicosia, said 2 million people, or the equivalent of one-fifth of Tehran's population, gathered to renew allegiance to their revolutionary patriarch, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini.

Although the chants and demonstrations were familiar, Iran has changed considerably since Khomeini died of cancer on June 3, 1989.

Rafsanjani has sought to end the Islamic republic's isolation and shed its pariah image by building bridges with the West and Iran's Arab neighbors. He has also called for an end to "empty slogans."

However, he has not gone so far as to oppose anti-Western rallies or threats against the United States and Israel. Doing so would play into the hands of his radical opponents, who already accuse Rafsanjani of betraying Khomeini's legacy.

An Iranian resistance leader Tuesday condemned Iran's leadership in a statement sent by facsimile from Paris to The Associated Press in Nicosia.

Massoud Rajavi of the People's Mojahedin of Iran said Khomeini and his followers "have brought nothing to the Iranian people but pain, suffering, misery, misfortune, destruction and homelessness."

Tuesday's rally was the culmination of daily celebrations that began Feb. 1, the anniversary of Khomeini's return from exile in 1979. He seized power 10 days later.

Iran's official Islamic Republic News Agency said crowds began gathering at dawn, many waving portraits of Rafsanjani, Khomeini and his successor as spiritual leader, Ayatollah Ali Khamenei.

They shouted "Allahu Akbar!" — "God is Great!" — and condemned Israel.

Ex-KGB agent proud of FBI work

MOSCOW (AP) — Former KGB agent Boris Yuzhin spent five years in prison — much of it in isolation — for cooperating with the FBI in San Francisco, but he said Tuesday he would do it all again.

"I am proud of what I've done," Yuzhin said, just days after being released from the Perm 35 prison labor camp. "There are some things in life that could justify plenty of years' punishment."

Yuzhin said he began providing information on KGB methods "free of charge" after his first exposure to the West made him see the evil in the Soviet Communist system.

In the United States, "I had a chance to pick up some real knowledge about what was doing in my own country," he said.

"For the first time in my life I had access to all publications which were prohibited here in this country," he said in rusty but fluent English.

"I had a chance to pick up any book I wanted. I just kept reading and reading, and the more I read, the more I realized that the official ideology which I studied here, which I was educated in here, it was nothing but a big lie."

Yuzhin, 49, was among 10 political prisoners released Friday from the labor camp 1,000 miles east of Moscow that once held Jewish dissident Natan Sharansky.

AP Laserphoto

Boris Yuzhin, right, and Vladimir Potashov meet with reporters.

President Boris Yeltsin called them the last prisoners of conscience in Russia. But Yuzhin and other released inmates disputed that at a news conference Tuesday, although none offered specifics.

"They called us the last political prisoners, but that's not so," said Viktor Makarov, another former KGB agent. "I do not believe the Russian government because under different slogans they continue the same policies."

Human rights activists contend there are more than 100 people still imprisoned in Russia for refusing to serve in the military.

"We didn't betray our country; we just tried to change it," said Vladimir Potashov, who served 5½ years for giving information to the United States.

"We did our best before perestroika even began. Now, all of our conclusions are justified," Potashov said.

Yuzhin served slightly more than one-third of a 15-year sentence and was sent to Perm 35 only in December.

Armenians begin battle in Nagorno-Karabakh

MOSCOW (AP) — Armenian militants launched a major offensive Tuesday in the disputed region of Nagorno-Karabakh by capturing an Azerbaijani village and killing several people, Russian media reported.

The exact death toll was uncertain. About 20 people were wounded, including women and children, in the tank and artillery assault on the village of Malybeili, according to the region's Interior Department.

The fighting took place as Secretary of State James A. Baker III arrived for talks in Yerevan, the Armenian capital, and as a special commission of the Conference on Security and Cooperation in Europe headed to the battle zone.

Armenian and Azerbaijani forces have been battling sporadically for control of Nagorno-Karabakh for four years, and several hundred people have been killed. The mountainous region is populated mainly by Armenians, but is located within Azerbaijan and has been under Azerbaijani control since 1923.

The territorial dispute between mostly Christian Armenia and Muslim Azerbaijan has ancient roots. Mediation efforts by Russian President Boris Yeltsin have failed to resolve it.

Baker was in Armenia on a swing through the former Soviet republics. He was scheduled to travel to Baku, the Azerbaijani capital, on Wednesday.

Japan tunes in to sumo wedding

TOKYO (AP) — Sniping over trade doesn't mean Japan-U.S. relations are all bad. Just witness the two hours of TV devoted Tuesday night to the wedding of a Hawaiian, sumo wrestling champion Salevaa Atisanoe.

At 559 pounds, he is easily America's biggest celebrity in Japan.

The wedding and gala reception was mobbed by reporters and drew more than 1,000 guests, including some of Japan's best-known entertainers and political kingmaker Shin Kanemaru. The reception for the wrestler, who has endeared himself by learning to speak Japanese, and his bride was broadcast live.

"This is really something," Atisanoe, clad in a traditional black kimono, said at a crowded news conference shortly after he exchanged marriage vows with former model Sumika Shioda.

Known in Japan as Konishiki, or "the Little Brocade," Atisanoe is the first foreigner to reach sumo's second-highest rank and the only foreigner to have won two of the six annual tournaments. He's the heaviest man ever to compete in Japan's ancient national sport.

Success has made him a frequent guest at state banquets and embassy functions, and rubber "Konishiki masks" are a common item on toy store shelves.

But at 28, he may be nearing the twilight of his career.

The competitive lifespan of sumo wrestlers is relatively short due to the toll inflicted by the weight they carry.

WEATHER SUMMARY

Expect a high near 70 today

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a high near 70 and southwesterly winds at five to 15 mph. Tonight should be fair with a low in the lower 40s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Thursday should be partly cloudy with a high near 70.

After an overnight low of 45, Tuesday's high reached 69 compared to the record high for that date of 85 set in 1962. The record low for that date is 14 set in 1963.

STATE

Warm south winds continued to bring Gulf moisture and higher temperatures to most of Texas on Tuesday.

An upper level disturbance moved across the region, bringing showers and thunderstorms to much of the state. The warm frontal boundary remained in place along the coastal plains brought a few showers and thunderstorms that continued to move northward across South Texas.

Skies remained mostly cloudy but a few breaks in the clouds allowed temperatures to climb above normal. Highs peaked in the mid-60s to mid-70s.

In West Texas, high thin clouds and some late developing low clouds gave way to partly sunny skies.

Southwest winds reached 20 mph with occasional gusts in northern parts of the state, while southeast winds whipped the Gulf Coast at up to 20 mph.

NATION

Rain fell over the south-central part of the nation Tuesday and snow was scattered from the northern Plains to New England. Southern California braced for more rain in the wake of floods.

Flash-flood warnings were in effect for a second day Tuesday in the Los Angeles region and heavy rain caused street flooding.

Several more inches of rain was expected from another storm bearing down on Southern California, where a 7-inch downpour Monday flooded part of the San Fernando Valley. Up to 30 inches of snow fell in the Sierra Nevada on Monday and into Tuesday.

Winter storm warnings and watches were posted through the night into early today for the Tehachapi Mountains and southern Sierra in California, and for the mountains of west-central Nevada.

Most of the rest of South Dakota got 2 to 4 inches. In spite of the season, it was the first snow in a month for much of the state.

CONVICTION: Many expected Tyson to go free

that the woman was in his hotel room at 2 a.m. or whether he was sexually explicit with her and other contestants at the Miss Black America pageant.

"The Indianapolis jury acknowledged the right of a woman to think of herself as something more than a piece of meat, to think of herself as a human being whose body is her own," said Lynn Schafran, an attorney with the NOW Legal Defense and Education Fund. "That was important ... necessary."

Over the months, issues of sexual harassment and acquaintance rape have been brought into focus. That's healthy, activists say. More troublesome to many women, however, has been the discouraging bottom line.

"It was getting hard to have much faith that a woman could ever win," said Barbara Otto of 9 to 5, a national organization for working women. "Society still has this problem with women 'wanting it' or 'asking for it.' In a way, that's what makes this victory even more resonant."

Still, it was a victory tempered by questions of racism.

"Historically, this country has been much more willing to accuse and find black men guilty of rape," said Mary Beth Maxwell, who deals with sexual assault issues as a director of the U.S. Student Association.

"We have to ask: If he had a different last name — like Kennedy — or the color or his skin was different, then would Tyson have been convicted?" she said. "It isn't about race. The message is that women must come forward."

Rape remains the most underreported of all major crimes. Only one in 10 sexual assault victims file comlaints with police, according to the National Victim Center in Washington. Of some 100,000 such complaints filed last year, only a fraction went to trial.

Claire Walsh, a counselor and expert on acquaintance rape, has guided many victims through the often degrading process of prosecuting their assailants. She was encouraged by the Tyson verdict, but only slightly so.

"I would like to consider it as the door opening and letting in the light of change. But I'm not that optimistic," said Walsh, who directs a rape prevention program in St. Augustine, Fla.

TSONGAS: Candidate surges to front, polls show

gas-led ticket this fall.

Their concern is based partly on the sour memory of 1988 nominee Michael Dukakis, another Greek liberal from Massachusetts, who was crushed by George Bush.

Only Tsongas can go Dukakis one better.

"I'm a Greek, I'm a liberal from Massachusetts, I hold no office to raise money from, and I've had cancer," he said recently. "I've got only one horse to ride, and that's truth."

Tsongas' mission is nothing less than rewriting his party's "Twinkie" economics — to give it a no-frills approach anchored on restoring America's manufacturing base.

He favors capital gains and other tax breaks to encourage new business investment and easing of antitrust laws, but he rejects politically popular middle-class tax giveaways favored by some rivals.

Tsongas's ads brag, "He's no movie star." In his speeches, he tells voters, "I'm not running to be Santa Claus."

On the stump, Tsongas is often asked if he can be elected if he is the nominee. "I'm not one of those people who believes losing is good for the soul," he answers.

And he has never lost an election, going back to 1968, when he was elected city councilor in his home town of Lowell, Mass., and including two terms in the U.S. House and one in the Senate.

But until this week, he often sounded more like someone defending his role as a messenger than a candidate.

"If I'm eliminated in this race, you are not going to have a major candidate talking economic truth," he said at a town meeting in Raymond two weeks ago.

But in the last two days, with polls showing him surging to the front of the Democratic pack, Tsongas has been swarmed by media, leaving the candidate and his staff a little startled.

"I'm not used to this. ... I find this twist of events so bizarre," he said Tuesday as he and a gaggle of reporters filed into a Manchester YWCA for an endorsement.

"A month ago, I was selling stock that was supposed to go to my daughter's education so I could loan money to the campaign," he said.

"Why did it happen? I don't know. Why are you here? I have no idea, but don't leave," he told reporters.

FUNDS: Gideon raises more campaign money

(From 1A)

tributed $1,000, and William D. Kleine $500.

Gideon made a $2,154.70 loan to his campaign.

The other candidates, Sheriff Gary Painter, 44, Reuben Richardson, 56, and Melvin "Big Mac" McEwen, 58, listed lesser contributions.

Richardson, an investigator for the Midland County Attorney's Office, listed $8,966.99 in contributions, including a $1,000 donation from Joe M.L. Melton; $500 contributions each from Randall Gibson, Kingdon R. Hughes and Herbert E. Ware Jr.; and $2,600 in loans from his wife, Susan.

Richardson listed 23 contributors whose donations started at $40. Additionally, $519.99 was contributed to Richardson's campaign in individual amounts of less than $50 each.

Painter's campaign contributions totaled $6,600, including a $600 loan Painter made to pay his filing fee with the Midland County Republican Party.

Painter's biggest single contribution was from Midland rancher George Glass, who donated $2,500 to the sheriff's campaign. AA Discount Bonds and Paulco Construction each donated $500.

The sheriff listed 16 contributors in addition to supporters who each contributed $50 or less to his campaign.

McEwen, an oil-field equipment broker, listed $1,700 in campaign contributions ranging from $75 to $300. Not listed individually were $525 in contributions of less than $50 per contribution.

By law, campaign contributions of $50 or more must be listed along with names of their donors.

The four candidates for sheriff are running on the Republican Party ticket. There is no Democratic Party candidate for sheriff of Midland County.

SLOT: Attorney becomes newest council member

(From 1A)

Johnston had advocated individual interviews of about 10 minutes with each person who had indicated interest. He alone voted against the appointment Tuesday, as Mayor Carroll Thomas, at-large member J.D. Faircloth, District 3 representative Buddy Sipes and District 1 member James Devenport voted for it. District 2 Councilman Michael DeVaughn was absent from Tuesday's meeting due to the death of his mother.

"By asking for applications, I think we should have taken the time to interview people," Johnston said. "Had the position been a single-member district, I would have voted differently. But this was at-large. There were several people I was impressed with, and I wanted to get the chance to talk with them."

The mayor said Morrow was appointed because he had the qualifications and "has been active in the community for years."

Now in private law practice, Morrow, 56, lists among his civic work membership on the boards of the United Way and Texas Rehabilitation Commission, work with the Permian Basin Centers for Mental Health/Mental Retardation and Midland Community Theater.

He is a former president of the Industrial Foundation of Midland and a former vice president of the Midland Chamber of Commerce.

Morrow said Tuesday he wanted to join the council to help preserve the city's quality of life.

"I've lived here 25 years. I love this place," he said. "I want to see it continue as the fine city it has been. I want to make a contribution to the city, and this was a way I could do it."

Morrow named among Midland's strengths the people, "both the more permanent residents and the folks who pass through town." Among his priorities are budgetary controls and continuing past efforts toward economic development and diversification.

Ed Vogler, chair of the city's airport advisory board, said he had mixed feelings about Morrow's appointment.

"I am well-acquainted with Bill and I think he'll do a fine job," Vogler said. "But I had hoped the council would appoint someone with a real knowledge of the airport. That is really the critical issue for the city in the coming years."

Elvia Hernandez, president of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, expressed a similar view. That group had supported at least one Hispanic candidate for the position after Castro, the first Hispanic at-large member to be elected, departed.

"We are very disappointed," Ms. Hernandez said. "I'm sure he will be a fine member, but I'm concerned it isn't representative of the community. We worked very hard to get a Hispanic elected and we wanted a Hispanic in there."

work force of trained, productive employees. We couldn't be happier that Jewel Osco store employees will be receiving job offers. For most positions, we will offer pay and benefits programs that are similar to and in some cases better than the present Jewel Osco programs."

He added that the company is scheduling meetings throughout Texas with Jewel Osco employees to give them more information about the company as well as the job offers and pending acquisition of their stores.

Albertson's and Jewel Osco — a division of American Stores — have signed a tentative agreement for the acquisition by Albertson's of 52 Jewel Osco combination food and drug stores in Texas and 22 others in Oklahoma, Florida and Arkansas.

The deal has been characterized as a friendly merger and is subject to the expiration of a federally required waiting period that applies to all such transactions. Tentative completion of the acquisition is set for April.

BILL: Smith describes tax as unfair to oil industry

sions that dried up investment pools for oil and gas developments in 1986," Smith said.

He said the Tax Reform Act of 1986 resulted in the loss of 1.7 million barrels of oil production daily, which equals about $50 billion in lost tax revenue and hundreds of thousands of jobs.

"In the last 10 years, the number of active independent oil and gas producers has dropped by nearly 60 percent, a critical point since they have historically drilled over 85 percent of the exploratory wells in the lower 48 states," Smith said.

Smith added that his bill would repeal the 1986 tax code provisions that placed percentage depletion and intangible drilling costs as preference items under the Alternative Minimum Tax. The bill is similar to legislation introduced by Sen. David Boren's (D-Oklahoma) S. 2159 bill for economic growth.

In a Reporter-Telegram survey of Permian Basin oil producers, the producers cited the Alternative Minimum Tax one of the main reasons for the current depression in the oil industry.

Harry Spannaus, executive vice president of the Permian Basin Petroleum Association, has said that the tax, along with environmental concerns, is the top priority of the oil association in 1992.

Added Smith: "The oil industry is in a tailspin. At the end of January, the rig count dropped to its lowest level in recorded history. Yet Congress stood silently by."

He added that studies showed that if Alternative Minimum Tax penalties were removed, the industry could mobilize 1,200 rigs as compared to the recent record low of 653, and in the long term, restore the 200,000 jobs lost since the oil crash of 1986.

MOBIL: Company mulls cuts

(From 1A)

She said the numbers mentioned for downsizing producing units were about 20 percent to 30 percent nationwide, but it was unknown how different regions would be affected.

"Right now, we don't know how the distribution of layoffs will apply or how Midland will be impacted," Ms. Taylor said. "It will be the end of this month at the earliest before we could give an answer on that."

Larry Bohot, area production manager in Midland, said Mobil has study teams looking at restructuring plans and it may be the second quarter before change is finalized.

Bohot and other area production managers in Midland were unable earlier this month to respond to the Reporter-Telegram annual survey asking Permian Basin operators for drilling plans and capital budgets.

Ms. Taylor said that most likely they were unable to respond to the survey because of the uncertainty of the situation. She said studies had been going on for the last several months, as the company looked at ways to become more profitable and competitive.

"But I can assure you that no final decision has been made," she said. "The numbers for Midland are just not there yet."

Inside sources, however, say that studies are further along than indicated and that some employees have even received tentative terms of severance packages.

Ms. Taylor did confirm, however, that reports of a 50 percent reduction in the work force was not true. But she said that exploration units in the U.S. would experience deeper cuts than producing units.

Mobil has three production units headquartered in Midland, but no exploration unit.

While Midland is not expected to be spared in the nationwide cuts, there are several Mobil projects under way in the Permian Basin that will need to be completed and could lessen the area's impact.

One project is the Pegasus field, south of Midland, where three-dimensional seismic data has revealed numerous new drilling prospects in the Ellenburger formation, and the other is expansion of the Salt Creek $CO_2$ project near Snyder.

Experts: China leaning to economic reform

N.Y. Times News Service

BEIJING — Some Chinese officials say they see momentum building within the leadership to accelerate economic change while toning down the hard-line oratory that has dominated the press and the airwaves for more than two years.

Since the reappearance of the senior leader, Deng Xiaoping, in southern China last month and on television last week, some Chinese say they are guardedly optimistic that moderates may be gaining ground. Economists and other officials have been excitedly discussing the prospects for expanding reforms that have been almost stagnant for two years.

"There won't be an overwhelming breakthrough," said a Chinese who in the past has been generally pessimistic about prospects for liberalization. "But the mood has definitely changed over the last month."

The official Chinese press imposed a virtual blackout on Deng's excursion to the capitalist-style special economic zones of Shenzhen and Zhuhai in southern China.

But many intellectuals and officials who learned of the trips from foreign journalists and international radio broadcasts see them as an attempt by Deng to show full support for economic liberalization and to put economic development back at the top of the national agenda.

"Whoever is opposed to reform must leave office," Deng was quoted as saying in Wen Wei Po, a Beijing-controlled newspaper in Hong Kong.

In the past few weeks, top Chinese officials have been echoing the policy of economic openness with new verve.

President Yang Shangkun called for reform during his trip south to meet with Deng, and at a recent gathering of military officers he also called on the army to support change, according to a Chinese official with close ties to the army.

In the past, Prime Minister Li Peng has generally been wary of any rapid steps to liberalize the economy. But last month, he told a gathering of provincial governors that the country had to "quicken the pace of reform," and he raised the issue of bankruptcy as crucial in reforming state-run enterprises, said a Chinese official present at the meeting.

"We must be able to fire people," Li reportedly said at the meeting. "You guys figure out the percentage."

In the past, state enterprises have almost never dismissed employees except for criminal misconduct. Layoffs were seen as the downside of capitalism, so it is startling for Li to urge giving such authority to managers.

Some Chinese contrasted Li's remarks to those he made on a visit to Shanghai in November, when he said that a new development area there called Pudong should not be based on the Shenzhen special economic zone.

Fire damages EuroDisney hotel

MARNE-LA-VALLE, France (AP) — A fire apparently sparked by a short circuit caused minor damage Tuesday to a hotel under construction at the EuroDisney theme park west of Paris, officials said.

The fire broke out at 9 a.m. at the Sequoia Lodges, a 40-room annex to the main Sequoia Hotel. About a dozen rooms were damaged before the blaze was brought under control two hours later, a fire official said.

· EuroDisney, Europe's long-awaited version of the Disneyland amusement park, is scheduled to open April 12.

Pan-Islamic fear should not rule

The Bush administration is right to speed the posting of new American ambassadors to Azerbaijan and the former Soviet Central Asian republics of Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan. But Washington shows alarming signs of succumbing to a simplistic fear of a pan-Islamic bloc.

These countries have a legitimate need to diversify their economic links, and that includes trade with Iran or other Islamic countries. A panicked reaction in Washington could actually provoke the kind of religious polarization it is meant to combat. Secretary of State James Baker needs to examine these issues with an open mind as he visits the region.

Iran's international activities are genuinely worrisome. Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani presents a more moderate image than his predecessor, Ayatollah Khomeini. But Iran continues to pursue a worldwide campaign of assassinations, death threats and support for terrorism. And it is actively shopping for missiles and nuclear bombs.

Iran hopes to draw the former Soviet republics into its orbit and has been aggressively wooing several of them. But Tehran's efforts face major obstacles. Most of these countries are Turkic in language and culture, not Persian, and many of their Muslim inhabitants are Sunnis, not Shiites.

More important, all have just emerged from foreign domination and are scarcely eager to rush into any other country's exclusive embrace.

It is reasonable for these countries to wean their economies away from distant European centers and develop new rail and trade links with Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and China. Such steps would fortify their independence and their economies, goals Washington has an interest in encouraging.

Only in the last few months have U.S. relations with Central Asia been freed of the distortions of Russian imperialism and communist ideology. There's no need to rush into new distortions based on a hypothetical pan-Islamic threat.

Report reveals Desert Storm chaos

WASHINGTON — One year ago, Operation Desert Storm was raging in the Persian Gulf with awesome precision. From the U.S. perspective, it was a triumph of technology — or so it seemed.

Anderson

Today, the "hottest document in town," as one source called it, is a Pentagon assessment of the war that is being watered down before it is delivered to Congress. Sources have detailed for us the latest draft of this report, and it proves that things are not always as they seem.

The "Nintendo war" that the world watched on television was a front for a chaotic campaign. The truth is that the U.S. high-tech intelligence system collapsed under fire. Field commanders didn't have the timely information they needed for the battle. Some targets were repeatedly bombed after they were already destroyed. The allied troops faced a much smaller Iraqi force during the ground war than was previously estimated. And they killed far fewer Iraqi soldiers than the 100,000 estimated after the war.

Congress has been pushing for a full accounting from the Pentagon on the "lessons learned" from the war. The military coughed up an interim report last July, and the final report was to have been submitted two weeks ago. But it has been held up by the Pentagon that is still arguing about how to tell the story. They have no intention of telling it all.

The "Secret" draft we have had access to suggests that the war was really won in the first 72 hours, and after that a kind of controlled chaos descended on the "Black Hole" — the Air Force's command center in a basement storage room of the Royal Saudi Air Force headquarters in Riyadh.

Among the conclusions of the draft report are these:

The number of Iraqi casualties during the 44-day war appears to be between 20,000 and 40,000. In fairness, when the Defense Intelligence Agency issued its 100,000 estimate, they said the numbers could be off by 50 percent either way.

Gen. Norman Schwarzkopf had been told by the DIA and CIA that there were 540,000 Iraqi troops deployed when the war began. In reality, there were 400,000. Before the ground war began, thousands of those had fled for home and 87,000 eventually crossed over to the allies. By one estimate in the report, less than 175,000 Iraqi soldiers were left when the ground war began.

Reconnaissance photos of Iraq and Kuwait were few and far between. U.S. troops relied on a half-dozen satellites code named "Keyhole." A couple of them are so sophisticated that they can read a license plate from 500 miles out in space. But the troops weren't reading license plates. They needed a bigger picture. Using the Keyhole photos was "like looking at the battlefield through straws," a source explained.

The ideal photos would have come from SR-71 "Blackbird" reconnaissance planes that could have swept over the battlefields as often as needed — if the Pentagon hadn't foolishly retired the planes in 1990.

When photos were available, they were badly managed. Photo transmission equipment broke down, so the military resorted to couriers hand delivering the pictures to the battlefield units. One A-10 attack plane unit complained that they were often given only three photos to be shared by eight squadrons. Gen. Schwarzkopf, knowing of the shortage, once chewed out a subordinate for giving the general better pictures for his briefings than the troops were getting for the actual battle.

The lack of photos meant pilots hit the wrong targets, were unable to find their targets, or hit the same targets over and over again, risking their lives to hit a site that was already demolished.

In an interview with our associate Dale Van Atta just before the air war began, Schwarzkopf acknowledged that bomb damage assessment would be a problem. He began relying heavily on video cameras mounted on planes, and even on CNN reports.

At least a third of the air strike missions were changed at the last minute. Distribution of the orders was cumbersome. They had to be hand-delivered to the Navy because the Air Force and Navy computers were incompatible.

UT proposed curriculum change is political fluff

Let there be no courtship with political correctness at the University of Texas-Austin. The tenure-track faculty members at UT's main campus are being asked to vote on whether students should be required to take multiculturalism courses on Third World or non-Western cultures. The professors should vote "no" on this political fluff.

Proponents of race-based curriculum reform claim that mandating students to study courses on minorities and Third World cultures will broaden their perspective on other peoples and other worlds. They say it will also send a message that the university welcomes minorities. Bunk.

This proposed curriculum change sounds like nothing more than an attempt at political indoctrination.

The study of great Western thought should not be reduced in order to make room for the study of non-Western works of little scholastic value — simply because they are non-Western.

It goes without question that educated people need to — and do — learn about minorities and Third World history, literature and thought.

People of all cultures should be welcome at the university. But the education they are offered once there should not be diluted by political fluff.

Public school monopoly hurts goal of education

Parental choice in selecting schools, a key component of President Bush's education reform program, was excluded from the bill approved by the Senate Labor and Human Resources Committee.

In fact, committee chairman Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., refused even to discuss the administration's proposed choice demonstration projects.

Despite the prevailing view held by the education establishment, parents often are far better qualified than public school officials to determine what is best for their children.

Many parents with the financial means to do so choose to send their children to private schools.

It only would be equitable to extend the same opportunity to parents who now cannot afford it.

Under a choice plan, the only public schools that would have something to fear are those which are so bad that parents choose to send their children elsewhere. And who would mourn the closing of bad schools?

In reality, a de facto public school monopoly is denying millions of poor and middle-class children the educational opportunities they could have under parental choice.

Officials push Radio Free Asia program

WASHINGTON — Television junkies have a hard time getting their squared eyes focused on this fact: The rest of the world gets most of its information from radio. The short-wave set remains most people's lifeline to news they are confident is truthful.

Safire

For world news, people who live in present or former Communist nations turn to the BBC or the Voice of America. For local news, despite frequent jamming, they turn to the stations of Radio Free Europe-Radio Liberty, which act as surrogates — and lately, exemplars — for free local media.

The VOA's editorials are under the control of our State Department, with the USIA as its bureaucratic intermediary. When Saddam Hussein in 1990 objected to a broadcast that predicted Iraqis would someday be free, our ambassador in Baghdad cravenly apologized, and Secretary of State Baker ordered all such VOA encouragement of freedom censored at Foggy Bottom.

But RFE-RL, though taxpayer supported, is insulated from political control by a board, now ably headed by Steve Forbes. Without the burden of being our official voice, it can speak frankly about what is happening inside the country to which its signal is beamed. Dissidents and refuseniks throughout the former Soviet world now fervently bless RFE-RL for breaking through their isolation.

Its truth-purveyors have now set their sights on the two areas most in need of the good word: Central Asia, where most country names seem to end in -stan, and the Far East. In both areas, Baker's State Department is fighting to snatch RFE's funds and block its mission.

To beam to Central Asia's mainly Muslim republics, the United States prevailed on Israel seven years ago to provide the site for a huge transmitter. No other ally wanted that responsibility, and migratory-bird fanciers in Israel are still suing; but at our urging, agreements were signed, a highway re-routed and power lines brought to the Negev site, and $54 million was spent toward completion in 1996.

Now Baker wants to pull the plug on the project. State seeks to move the RFE radio relay station out of Israel, perhaps to make it solely a VOA transmitter in some other unspecified country.

Only a month ago, President Bush's task force on international broadcasting, headed by the Christian Science Monitor columnist and former VOA director John Hughes, recommended the RFE transmitter in Israel (which would also transmit VOA signals) go forward. But the funding is set to be ambushed by State at Darman Gulch.

The Hughes task force urged another project that has Foggy Bottom apoplectic: It's called Radio Free Asia, a new and needed effort to carry truth about local events into China, Vietnam, North Korea and Laos (I would add Singapore).

Members including hard-liners Richard Allen, David Abshire, Peggy Noonan and Ben Wattenberg produced the most sensible, timely and best-written (Peggy and Ben know how) pro-freedom report to come out of Washington in years. This is how it reaffirms RFE's independence of the striped-pants set: "The history of the past few decades suggests that diplomacy helped keep the world safe; ideas helped make the world free." •

State manipulated a minority to counter with: "China today is notably open ... people have numerous sources of information ... word-of-mouth travels very fast ..." If that were true or relevant, why does Beijing frequently jam even the egg-walking VOA service?

Congress and the president have just appointed a new commission to follow up on Radio Free Asia. A majority of the eight congressional appointees seem pro-RFA; Bush has chosen John Hughes (on the record, for), David Anderson (a State China hand likely to be against) and has one more pick that should indicate his policy.

The most important aspect of a presidential campaign is the photo opportunity. It is a great moment recorded on camera that can either make or break the candidate.

Buchwald

I'm certain that everyone saw the magnificent photo op of President Bush with a cow in New Hampshire. Well, that cow was not there by accident. She was there because one of the President's advance men made sure she was there — and it wasn't easy.

This is how picture opportunities are made:

Headquarters notifies the advance man in Iowa that the President is coming, and since everyone is worried about the polls they want as many picture ops as they can get.

"Ernie, have you got a hog for the President to ride on?"

"I found one, but the owner is not sure he wants his hog to be in a picture with George Bush. The farmer says he has to live with his neighbors after the President's gone."

"Well, then find another hog. What about the grade school pictures with the Head Start kids?"

"We can't do it in the school we wanted. Our Head Start program was still in place, but the building was closed because they ran out of money."

"Keep trying. There must be a school that's open somewhere. The President would like to visit a hospital to show his interest in medicine. What have you got?"

"I can line up a hospital, but I'm not sure we can get anyone from there who will talk to the President. Pat Buchanan tried for a photo op in a clinic, and they threw bedpans at him because of his stand on health care."

"Are the 'Bush-Quayle' signs ready?"

"We had a glitch on that one. It appears that the printer we ordered them from went bankrupt. So we had to give the order to a print shop in Thailand."

"Look, we're in a dog fight and you keep telling us all the bad news. What about the kid for the President to kiss?"

"We found a baby. His mother was just laid off from the pencil factory, but she'll let the President kiss her baby in exchange for having a few words with him on the woes of being an unemployed mother during a recession."

"Scratch the mother. Get another baby."

"I'll try, but it's not easy to find parents willing to have their babies kissed by a politician in the present economic climate."

"Ernie, when the President lands at the airport we'd like him to be greeted by the high school band and 50 cheerleaders with pompons. Have you got it? This is a special request from CBS."

"There is no band, or cheerleaders, in this town any more. The school was forced to drop them both due to lack of funds. It's no big deal because they had to abandon the football team as well."

"So what kind of photo opportunities are left?"

"I have 30 unemployed factory workers holding up a banner saying, 'We Love You, President Bush.'"

"How did you manage to do that?"

"I agreed to pay them $10 each. They were very happy because they said it was the first work they'd had in six months."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Wednesday, Feb. 12, the 43rd day of 1992. There are 323 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On Feb. 12, 1809, Abraham Lincoln, the 16th president of the United States, was born in a log cabin in what is now Larue County, Ky.

In 1870, women in the Utah Territory were granted the right to vote.

Truck-train crash kills 4 in Quebec

COTEAU-DU-LAC, Quebec (AP) — A tractor-trailer truck collided with a Via Rail passenger train at a crossing during a heavy snowstorm Tuesday, killing four people and injuring 48, officials said.

Via Rail spokesman Paul Raynor said the truck lost control and hit the first car of the train. The car was knocked off the track but remained upright.

The train was traveling from Quebec City to Toronto when the collision occurred in Coteau-du-Lac, 25 miles west of Montreal.

"The trailer hit the side of our train and took out the whole side of the club car ," said Fred Buchanan, a passenger in the car that was hit.

"There was a tremendous bang and the whole side of the train was gone. The seats ... on that side were driven right into the seats on the opposite side.

"People were literally torn apart, and the people right across the aisle from me were two people who were killed. You didn't even see the bodies flying, it happened so fast. There was a tremendous bang and then there was debris flying everywhere."

The truck driver leapt clear before the impact and escaped injury, officials said.

The dead were identified only as two men and two women. Via Rail officials said 19 passengers were in the first-class car, right behind the locomotive, and 79 others were in three coaches.

Paul-Henri Boutin, director of Valleyfield Hospital where the injured were taken, said 48 people were treated, all but three for slight back and neck injuries. He said none of the injuries was believed serious.

Buchanan, 56, an engineering manager, emerged with a scratched knee.

Car bomb kills police officers

LIMA, Peru (AP) — A powerful car bomb shook the U.S. ambassador's residence Tuesday night, killing two Peruvian police guards outside and badly wounding two others, police said.

Neither of Peru's two leftist rebel groups immediately claimed responsibility.

Later, guerrillas bombed at least three banks in Lima.

The blast at the residence tore a hole 20 feet long in a 10-foot-high protecting wall and knocked out power lines in the area.

U.S. Ambassador Anthony Quainton was not home at the time, and no one inside was hurt, an embassy spokesman said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

"There was considerable damage inside the residence — broken glass, light fixtures," he said.

The explosion rocked the main U.S. Embassy building across Arequipa Avenue from the residence.

The four police officers were part of the security team that guards the embassy and residence, a police spokesman said.

Police said a red car had been parked in front of the wall shortly before the explosion, but all that remained were twisted pieces of chrome and charred metal.

Officers pointed patrol car headlights into the gap in the wall and searched for more explosives after the blast. Tree branches and rocks littered the sidewalk.

The car bomb was the second major attack against the U.S. ambassador's residence in Lima in less than six years.

In April 1986, the Tupac Amaru Revolutionary Movement exploded a 130-pound car bomb behind the same wall to protest the U.S. air attack on Libya. No one was injured.

The Tupac Amaru also has tried to attack the ambassador's residence with grenade launchers and to strafe it and the embassy with machine-gun fire.

The Shining Path, Peru's more powerful guerrilla group, rarely attacks diplomatic targets.

The Maoist rebels did claim responsibility for the downing of a U.S. anti-drug helicopter in January. The crash killed three Americans contracted to work in Peru's fight against drug trafficking.

Everyone talks tax cuts, but millions could pay more

WASHINGTON (AP) — While families and investors await word on how big a tax cut they will get from Congress and President Bush, millions should be watching instead to see how much their taxes are going to rise.

Bush's budget, with its proposals for a reduction in capital-gains taxes, an increased exemption for children and a new credit for some home buyers, would be financed in part by tax increases exceeding $21 billion over the next five years.

Among the targets: State and local government employees; boaters; pay-phone users; securities dealers, and buyers of certain life insurance policies.

A Democratic plan to give a temporary credit of up to $200 a year to wage-earners would be financed by higher taxes on couples with incomes in the $200,000-plus range ($100,000 for singles) and a new surtax on millionaires.

The House Ways and Means Committee will begin deciding Wednesday what kind of tax-cut plan is called for and how it should be financed.

The Democratic-controlled panel is likely to reject Bush's proposal, which the president billed as desirable to boost the economy. But the committee probably will send the president's bill to the full House for a vote, along with a Democratic substitute aimed at pleasing the middle class.

Bush, like Ronald Reagan, relishes a reputation as a tax-cutter flatly opposed to any tax increase. But just as Reagan signed a dozen tax increases in his eight years as president, Bush relented in 1990 and agreed to higher taxes to reduce the budget deficit.

The president's proposal shies away from any general tax increase — but millions would feel the sting anyway. Among the proposals, and their five-year costs:

■ Two million state and local government employees who have held their jobs since before April 1, 1986, would be required to pay the 1.45 percent tax that finances Medicare hospital insurance. Workers hired since that date already pay the tax. All but about 300,000 of the 2 million already are covered by Medicare because of previous employment or their spouse's coverage.

The change, which Congress has repeatedly refused to approve, would cost workers more than $8 billion, which their employers would match.

■ An estimated 100,000 operators of diesel-powered recreational boats would begin paying the 20.1-cent-a-gallon tax on diesel fuel. The estimated $200 million would finance repeal of the luxury tax on yachts costing more than $100,000.

■ The nearly 1,000 credit unions with assets over $50 million would be subject to income tax for the first time, costing them as much as $2 billion.

■ More national news/ 1D

Critics say this would penalize 32 million members of those credit unions. The administration says the change would be fair because large credit unions function like full-service banks, which pay such taxes.

■ Local calls on coin-operated phones would be subject to the 3 percent telephone tax, costing users about $500 million.

■ Many brokers would be required to change their method of valuing securities held for sale to customers, costing the brokers $4 billion.

■ Corporations would lose the ability to deduct interest paid on loans secured by the cash value of life insurance on key executives or employees. This would cost businesses at least $2.5 billion.

■ Buyers of certain annuity investments would lose a tax advantage unless the policies include a substantial risk of loss if the taxpayer dies prematurely. Without such a risk, interest built up by the investment would be taxed as earned, costing nearly $2 billion.

■ The IRS would have 45 days after an excise or employment tax return is filed before any refund begins earning interest; the same rule already applies to income tax returns. The change would cost taxpayers $1.8 billion in lost interest.

■ Charities with receipts over $25,000 a year would have to report to the IRS and the donor each gift exceeding $500. The donor would have to list the gift on his or her tax return. This would bring in an extra $622 million, presumably from people who now cheat on their taxes.

Organization announces plan to trace victims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Archivists are poring over Nazi death camp records in a new American Red Cross effort to catalog thousands of names and help families of Holocaust victims learn the fate of their loved ones.

The original records — including transport lists, death books and lists of victims of medical experiments — have been accessible to the public through the National Archives for 20 years. But because they are difficult to wade through, they have been of value mostly to historians and scholars.

These documents "will now be used for a truly humanitarian purpose," Elizabeth Dole, president of the American Red Cross, said Tuesday.

"Yellow with age, these documents will bring light to the final days of hundreds of thousands who suffered," she said. "They provide vital information on at least 300,000 individuals, and possibly as many as half a million, who disappeared at the hands of the Nazis."

On Tuesday, Mrs. Dole presented microfilm of the first 7,000 names to the International Committee of the Red Cross to be cross-referenced and integrated into the files of its International Tracing Service in Arolsen, Germany.

The international service, which was launched after World War II, has 46 million records on 13 million people, but most of the names from the death camp records the National Archives holds are new, Red Cross officials said.

The documents researched so far include transport lists, death lists, lists of victims of medical experiments and forced labor and concentration camp records mainly from Auschwitz, Buchenwald and many smaller satellite camps, Red Cross officials said.

Thousands of boxes holding the records are stored in a National Archives warehouse in Suitland, Md.

The documents were confiscated by U.S. forces following the collapse of Nazi Germany as evidence in war crimes trials. They were declassified about 20 years ago, National Archive officials said.

That these documents could be used as a tracing tool was recognized initially by archivists for the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council, created by Congress in 1980 to build a Holocaust museum, and the Holocaust and War Victims Tracing and Information Center in Baltimore, opened by the American Red Cross in September 1990.

"The records have been there," said Robert Kesting, one of the U.S. Holocaust Memorial Council archivists who initially recognized their value. "It's just that it wasn't applied to victims per se, or tracing of victims."

The Red Cross Baltimore tracing center, which is part of its international tracing service, has processed 6,000 tracing requests since it opened a year and a half ago.

"The news that the documents provide is rarely good news," Mrs. Dole said. "It may confirm a date of death, it may show passage on a death transport. But it renders a service which cannot be measured — the knowledge of the fate of a loved one allows family members to move on in the grieving process."

But, she added, "sometimes miracles occur." About 50 family members have been reunited through tracing requests handled by the Baltimore center, she said.

It will take archivists about a year to finish sorting through the death camp records and deliver the rest of the names, Mrs. Dole said.

Tracing requests should be made to a local Red Cross chapter, which will forward the information to the Baltimore tracing center. The request is recorded there, translated into German and sent to the International Tracing Service.

City Council sees airport in disrepair

Curt Wilcott/Reporter-Telegram

Engineer Kyle Womack, left, fields questions Tuesday from City Council members Buddy Sipes and James Devenport, second and third from left respectively, during a tour of the airport, which allowed council members to see areas of the airport that are in need of repair. Others on the tour were airport advisory board chairman Ed Vogler, right, and council member Tom Johnston, second from right.

They looked behind walls, above ceiling tiles and under the floor. They saw growing mold, standing water and crumbling concrete.

City Council members toured Midland International Airport Tuesday, getting a firsthand look at some things few travelers would ever see.

"Beyond the 10-year range, this facility will no longer be viable to the community," said Kyle Womack, an engineer with Parkhill, Smith and Cooper.

The firm had conducted extensive research on Midland International Airport while planning for the new terminal construction project.

Although the council has derailed that project with an indefinite delay, city officials urge some type of action toward renovation or repair of the building.

"Basically, this facility is available for use to the city for the next 10 to 15 years," Womack said. But he estimated repair costs would total between $1 million and $1.5 million each year during that time.

He told them the terminal needs $5.5 million in repairs just to comply with the Americans with Disabilities Act, insurance standards and to continue operations.

Council members looked into an area where ceiling tiles had been removed, showing exposed metal and wiring completely without fire protection. Womack said there is probably some asbestos in the ceiling that would have to be removed if renovation was planned.

Peering into a utility hole, council members saw at least a foot of dirty water standing under the floor beneath the facility's concrete slab. Womack said the water is perilously close to electrical wiring.

Behind walls, seepage has caused mold to grow, resulting in constantly peeling wallpaper near the airline boarding areas. In some places, the same situation exists underneath carpeting.

Along the window ledge in the boarding area, moisture is causing wood to rot. Womack told the council walls and other areas would need a complete waterproofing.

Moisture is also to blame for crumbling concrete on the covered parking structure, a situation Womack said is a liability as well as a hazard. That structure, he said, also needs work on its joints and will have to be moved eventually to accommodate any increase in traffic flow.

Back inside, at the top of the concourse ramp leading to the boarding gates, Womack turned to look back and indicated the steep slope. "I wouldn't want to try to maneuver a wheelchair down that," he said.

The airport must begin working for compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act, part of which is aimed at removing architectural barriers that prevent disabled persons access to facilities.

Built originally in 1957, the airport terminal was expanded in 1979. Womack said plumbing, as well as heating and cooling systems are "a time bomb waiting to happen." The sewer system, cannot handle any expansion.

But, he told the council, "a lot of the decisions you are going to make will depend on how long you want to stay here."

Airport official to apply for PFC

■ Council tells Ken Day to seek $3 passenger facility charge that could be used for airport improvements.

By Debbie Lincecum
Staff Writer

Let the application process begin.

Midland City Council members Tuesday authorized Airports Director Ken Day to file the application for a passenger facility charge (PFC), a $3 per-ticket fee at Midland International Airport. The application must be approved by the Federal Aviation Administration, but could be in place by September.

Leaders said the revenue from that charge would be used to fund improvements at the airport — to be chosen later from a list that is dominated by runway, ramp, and similar work, but may hinge on the fate of the new terminal project.

Now on indefinite hold, the $29 million terminal project was originally proposed to be partially funded with a PFC. Now that the construction is uncertain, the city has tried to separate the two issues — the relatively unpopular project and the PFC they say is critical to the airport's future finances.

Even if the terminal project sinks, city leaders say, the airport will need the PFC revenue if it is to do any improvement projects without the use of tax-

Gun law OK'd on first reading

Staff Report

An ordinance to prevent the use of guns in the city limits got council approval Tuesday.

The measure will require a second approval Feb. 25 to become law. It prohibits the use of firearms — including air rifles and BB guns — inside the city.

Not designed to prevent gun ownership, the rule is hoped to help law enforcement officers deal with negligent gun use. It allows provisions for firing in an approved range, or by an officer of the law.

But local resident Bruce Taylor told the council he isn't satisfied. He and a group of supporters like the measure, but want bow and arrow shooting prohibited as well.

"It's been six months and nothing's been done," said Taylor, who requested such an ordinance after a dangerous incident in his neighborhood that involved a bow and arrow.

The city legal department is drafting a bow and arrow ordinance, but they say the issue is more complicated than the firearms measure and may take some time.

Committee to study options to school cluster system

MISD officials satisfied with student PSAT scores

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

MISD high school students surpassed district expectations on the Prescholastic Aptitude Test/National Merit Scholarship Qualifying Test (PSAT/NMSQT), according to preliminary results.

The lengthy multiple-choice test measures knowledge in mathematics and language arts.

Merit Scholars are selected based on their PSAT/NMSQT performance, SAT scores and other information. Students doing well on the test may be offered scholarships from various sources.

"More than 13 percent of our test takers have scored in the range that can be expected to garner recognition through the national merit program," said Joe Cummins, MISD executive director of planning, evaluation and testing.

Cummins said the test is "a practice test for the SAT (Scholastic Aptitude Test).

"It enables students to see where they need work before taking the SAT and it enables colleges to begin the search for National Merit Scholars," he said.

The scores expected to garner recognition are 55 or higher in the verbal portion of the PSAT and scores of 60 or higher on the math portion of the test.

The mean scores on the test for all students in Midland public schools were 42.5 in the verbal portion and 47.8 in the math section. The mean scores for Lee High School were 41.5 in verbal and 46.6 in math. MHS's mean scores were 43.9 for verbal and 49.6 in math.

Approximately 1.8 million students nationwide took the test. Locally, 364 MISD students — 147 at MHS and 217 at LHS participated in the test. The figure represents 34.5 percent of the district-wide junior class of Realigning Midland public school's cluster system was the topic of much discussion at Tuesday's school board meeting.

School board trustees and citizens addressing the board noted that adding a new elementary school affords the district "a window of opportunity" to reconsider having stand-alone schools, or rather, schools outside of the cluster system.

A timeline with a schedule to consider various options facing the district — with the addition of the new elementary school and junior high school — was presented by Joe Cummins, executive director of planning, testing and evaluation for Midland Independent School District.

The timeline included identifying attendance areas to be changed from Santa Rita to Bush elementary schools, identifying kindergarten pupils who will move from Santa Rita to Bush and identifying the number of rooms available at Bush (to accommodate pupils from the Greathouse Elementary School district for a year while the school is being built).

Bush has students in kindergarten through third grade and has 17 more classrooms under construction which could serve a fifth grade population.

School board president Ken Marks said persons from his district, which includes Santa Rita, recommended a proposal concerning its fifth graders and how they would or would not fit into the cluster system.

Martha Manulik, representing MAP (Midlanders Advocating Progress), addressed the board and requested they look at other options to putting all of the schools into the cluster system.

The district has 22 elementary schools currently grouped into "clusters" for the purpose of integration.

As part of a court decree, students attend neighborhood schools in kindergarten through third grade and begin busing in fourth grade.

All the clusters have three schools with the exception of Cluster #6 which became a four-school cluster with the addition of Bush. When Barney Greathouse Elementary School is opened in September 1993, the district will have the option of keeping six clusters of three schools (21 of 23 schools) leaving two schools out of the cluster.

Citizens at community meetings have suggested operating the two schools as pilot magnet or year-round schools.

"We are not advocating unitary status and we are not asking to do away with the cluster system," Ms. Manulik said. "There are other options it seems the board doesn't have time to study, and we are asking the board to delegate some of this to the community (by way of forming a board-appointed committee to study the issue)."

She said the committee should include representatives of all segments of the community including Anglos, representatives from FOCUS (Federation of Citizens United to Serve), the NAACP (National Association for the Advancement of Colored People), and LULAC (League of United Latin American Citizens).

Trustees also suggested appointing a representative from the education committees of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, the Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, and the Midland Black Chamber of Entrepreneurs.

Ms. Manulik, who is the VIPS (Volunteers in Public Schools) supervisor for MISD, said that parents and volunteers are interested in pilot programs which could be implemented in stand-alone schools.

"There are a lot of things we can do," she said. "I hate to see us not look at this."

MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. suggested a committee could be appointed by the board as was done during redistricting. "We as a staff could provide data" such as enrollment numbers, demographics, and building capacities.

Baressi recommended each board member appoint three persons from their district to serve on the committee.

When queried by board trustees, FOCUS chairman Alma Marshall said, "We aren't opposed to communication, but some things are not negotiable. We won't accept unitary status and Martha has already addressed this. We will also not accept separate but equal terms. We will have legal advice. We don't want to open any doors that we can't close — which would be moving toward unitary status."

Several members of the Hispanic community expressed their support of forming a committee.

Ms. Manulik's suggestion was a presentation, not an action item. No action was taken, but trustees supported her suggestion and will begin submitting names of persons from their respective districts.

Ms. Manulik said she would contact the minority organizations.

Testimony begins in Midlander's attempted murder trial

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Testimony began Tuesday in the trial of a 23-year-old man who is accused of brutally beating another man with a baseball bat in September 1990 during a party at a Midland apartment.

The defendant, James Michael Walker, pleaded not guilty to attempted murder in Judge Pat Baskin's 142nd District Court.

The charge centers on the injury of Eusebio Saiz, a Midland man who was found unconscious about 5:30 a.m., Sept. 27, 1990, outside his residence at the Midland Elms Apartments, 3601 Andrews Highway, police said.

Saiz, 25 at the time, had been at a party downstairs, police said.

Testimony is expected to show that Walker became angry because Saiz was being "fresh" with the defendant's girlfriend at the party, said John Westbrook, prosecutor for the District Attorney's Office.

Walker reportedly went to his car and retrieved a baseball bat or perhaps a table leg, Westbrook said.

"He just walked up behind the victim and clubbed him in the back of the head," Westbrook told jurors during opening statements.

"He (Saiz) was instantly unconscious, instantly bleeding from the head," Westbrook said.

Three or four people, including the defendant, carried the victim and left him near a stairwell outside his apartment door, police reported at the time.

Saiz, after being discovered by a neighbor, was transported to the hospital, where doctors expected the victim to die, according to hospital officials at the time. A police officer at the scene described Saiz as bloody with an eyeball popped out of the socket, testimony indicated.

Saiz, who was in a coma for a few months, is permanently disfigured with disabilities that include garbled speech, Westbrook said. He is currently undergoing rehabilitation therapy at a Galveston hospital.

The victim reportedly doesn't recall the incident at the party, Westbrook said.

Defense attorney John Roosa said his client doesn't dispute hitting Saiz, but disputes that his intent was murder.

"The hardest thing is to try to convince 12 people he had an intent to kill this person," Roosa said before the trial began.

Roosa said he seeks a lesser charge such as attempted assault.

If convicted of attempted murder, Walker, who has a past criminal conviction, faces a sentence of five years to life imprisonment.

If found guilty of aggravated assault, Walker could be sentenced from two to 20 years incarceration.

The trial is expected to last two days.

FEE: FAA must approve PFC application

(From 1B)

payers' money.

Deputy City Manager Mike McGregor said PFC revenues could be saved for up to three years, or used to finance runway and taxiway improvement projects beginning in early 1993. The project list to be submitted to the FAA has a total monetary value of $40-45 million.

Approval for the application was unanimous, although it followed a tense exchange between the council and Ron Ricks, vice president for governmental affairs of Southwest Airlines. He told the council not to build "a field of dreams," and expressed the corporation's opposition to "unnecessary" improvements at the airport.

"Everything we see at every airport in this country was built without a PFC," said Ricks. He told the council the airline would "negotiate" with them so that it could pay for improvements at the airport, as long as it was agreed they were necessary.

Ricks said the implementation of a PFC at Midland International would lower passengers during already difficult times for airlines.

"Nothing needs to be done at the airport in the short term that we can do with existing revenue," said Ricks.

Day said the airport does not want to raise airline fees — rent and landing fees — to fund projects because the cost could become prohibitive to a new carrier that considered locating in Midland.

Mayor Carroll Thomas publicly admonished Ricks.

"I think you're here today trying to create confusion and misunderstanding, and I'm very disappointed," Thomas said.

McGregor said the PFC seems to be a "threat to the traditional way things have been done," because it is not controlled by airlines. Although the airlines' opposition will be noted with the city's application, it does not prevent FAA approval.

Day will be assisted in the application process by Parkhill Smith and Cooper engineering firm. The firm got a $77,000 contract with the city to pay for that work as well as help with issues of compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act at the airport.

In addition, Day said he has been notified that more FAA grant money may become available for airport improvements.

As part of President Bush's plan to stimulate the economy, more money could become available for airports, and the city has filed applications for those funds.

PFC revenues can be used as matching funds for federal grants.

Court orders investigation into Texas judge

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal appeals court has ordered a committee of judges to investigate allegations of improper conduct by a Texas federal judge involved in legislative redistricting, it was announced Tuesday.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans ordered the committee to act on a complaint by Lewis Earl, a lawyer from Post and board member of the citizen group Common Cause.

Earl alleged that U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin acted in a partisan way when ordering a new state Senate redistricting map for the March 10 elections.

That plan for the 31 Senate districts is opposed by Democratic leaders, who charge that Nowlin — a Republican appointee — had a Republican state legislator secretly make adjustments in the map.

Nowlin repeatedly has declined to discuss the allegations, saying that he won't comment on pending litigation. His office reiterated that Tuesday when contacted by The Associated Press.

Gov. Ann Richards hailed the inquiry, saying Nowlin's redistricting order "seems tainted."

"Political shenanigans of this sort are a crying shame," Richards said.

Texas Attorney General Dan Morales said he would give the committee access to his office's investigation into Nowlin and state Rep. George Pierce, R-San Antonio. "I am sickened by much of what we have found already," Morales said.

While the redistricting case was before a three-judge federal panel, Nowlin asked Pierce to work on the map.

The state and minority groups contend that Nowlin imposed Senate districts in such a way as to increase Republican representation at the expense of minorities.

Searchers find crash wreckage

DARROUZETT (AP) — Searchers found the wreckage Tuesday of a small plane in the Texas Panhandle. Two Perryton, men were killed in Monday's crash.

The men were returning to Perryton from Oklahoma City at the time of the crash, authorities said.

The Cessna 210 was found about 2 p.m. Tuesday on a farm near Darrouzett, said Ochiltree County sheriff Joe Hataway. He identified the dead as Dave Kemp and Kemp's son, Billy, 22. The elder Kemp's age was unavailable.

The plane made radio contact with the Gage (Okla.) Municipal Airport around 8 p.m. but the pilot did not report any trouble, he said.

Dense fog that dropped visibilities to 100 feet kept rescue workers from mounting a search until about 1 p.m. Tuesday, Hataway said.

SCORE: Students do well on test

(From 1B)

1,055. Additional numbers of students usually take the later PSAT which will be offered in the spring.

Students usually take the test in their junior year for a $6 fee, according to Ted Miller, MISD spokesperson.

Cummins noted that participants — locally and nationally — are disproportionally drawn from the majority (Anglo) student population. The MISD junior class is 62 percent Anglo, 27 percent Hispanic, almost 10 percent black and less than 1 percent comprised of students of other nationalities. The ethnic breakdown of MISD juniors taking the test is 81 percent Anglo, 11 percent Hispanic, 6 percent black and almost 2 percent of other nationalities.

"Minority participation is still lower than is acceptable, but we appear to be making progress," Cummins said. "We had a small increase in the percentage of minority students taking this test this year over last year."

Cummins said the school district will receive the final report on test scores — with local, state and national comparisons — in May.

MISD: Panel to study options

(From 1B)

Charging a committee to study the cluster options will probably be an action item on the next agenda, according to MISD spokesperson Ted Miller.

In other action, trustees called the school board member election to be held jointly with the city, Midland College and hospital district May 2.

Trustees approved submitting a class-size waiver to the Texas Education Agency. A class enrollment survey conducted on Jan. 31 indicated that there were overloaded classrooms (out of compliance with the state-mandated 22 pupils to 1 teacher ratio in kindergarten through third grade) in 12 situations.

Campus Improvement plans developed by each campus in the district were approved.

Trustees accepted a gift of a golf cart to the Lee High School Athletic Department from Doss Rogers, president of Rogers Ford Sales Inc.

Due to spring break, trustees approved changing school board meetings to March 17 and 31.

Lindee Brown to perform

Staff Report

Lindee Brown, a soloist and recording artist from California, will perform Feb. 19 at 7:30 p.m. at the Permian Church of Religious Science, (PCRS) 2311 Elizabeth St.

Ms. Brown has performed all over the world, including in Finland and Russia. She has produced two cassette albums "Part of My Heart," which consists of vocal selections, and "Inner Ecstacy," a relaxation meditation tape.

The soloist travels part of the year to New Thought churches throughout the country. She dedicated her "Part of My Heart" cassette "To all that have made any of the 12-step programs a part of their life."

Ms. Brown will be the first singer in a series of musicians and singers to perform at PCRS.

There will be no admission charge, but a love offering will be taken.

The second part of the musical series will feature an evening of musical meditation offered by Lex James, a former West Texan from Big Spring. James and his partner, Art Darcy, are accomplished concert pianists. They will perform at PCRS March 4 (Ash Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m.

The third event is a multi-media presentation of photography and inspiring music presented in a three-dimensional show entitled "Dimensions of Love" by Awakening Hearts Productions. It will be presented April 29 at 7:30 p.m. at the church.

For more information on the church or the musical series call 684-4230.

Midlander rear-ends pickup

Staff Report

A 60-year-old Midland woman was charged with following too close to another vehicle Monday night following a two-car accident in the 3300 block of N. Garfield St., police reports said.

Bonnie S. McClellan, of the 1700 block of W. Illinois, reportedly rear-ended a 1991 red Mitsubishi pickup driven by 19-year-old Teresa Ward when she failed to slow down after Ms. Ward had slowed for traffic, according to reports.

Ms. Ward reported an injury but declined treatment, the report stated.

Damage to the two vehicles was minimal, according to reports.

Family of man who killed nun watches execution

The State

HUNTSVILLE (AP) — With his mother and two sisters sobbing a few feet away, a defiant Johnny Frank Garrett was executed early Tuesday for raping and killing a 76-year-old nun at an Amarillo convent more than 10 years ago.

Garrett, 28, was 17 when he broke into the St. Francis Convent on Halloween night in 1981 and raped and stabbed Sister Tadea Benz.

"I'd like to thank my family for loving me and taking care of me," he said in a final statement. "The rest of the world can kiss my ...."

He was declared dead at 12:18 a.m., CST, six minutes after the lethal drugs began flowing into his arms.

While Garrett laid motionless strapped to the gurney, his eyes and mouth open, his mother, two sisters, a brother-in-law and stepfather repeatedly expressed love for him and broke into a version of the hymn "Amazing Grace."

"He's in a better place than we are," one sister said, then used a profanity to declare that Garrett no longer would have to put up with people telling him what to do.

For the first time in several years, the prospect of an execution drew a relatively large crowd of spectators outside the Walls Unit of the Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

As Garrett's relatives and other execution witnesses emerged from the prison's front door, the boisterous group of about 70 death penalty supporters cheered loudly and broke out into a chorus of "Na-na, na, na, hey, hey, good bye." They also chanted: "Kill the freak, remember the nun."

"We're here to celebrate his death, that he won't be here any more," Mike Moore, of Orange, a sophomore at nearby Sam Houston State University, said.

A smaller group of about 30 death penalty opponents held a candlelight vigil across the street from them.

Attorneys for Garrett unsuccessfully argued he was insane and should not be put to death. They said Garrett suffered from multiple personality disorder and was insane because of severe physical and sexual abuse as a child.

But in three appeals decided late Monday by the U.S. Supreme Court, the justices rejected those arguments, clearing the way for the lethal injection.

Garrett came within an hour of execution Jan. 6 before Gov. Ann Richards issued a 30-day reprieve at the urging of Pope John Paul II and before the high court ruled on the case.

Richards' rare use of her authority to grant a reprieve prompted an equally unusual hearing by the Texas Board of Pardons and Paroles to consider whether to recommend to the governor that Garrett's sentence be commuted to life.

But at the hearing last week, the board overwhelmingly voted to keep the death sentence.

"He knew what was going to happen," Potter County District Attorney Danny Hill said early Tuesday after he was told the execution had been carried out.

"The process often works slowly, sometimes it works extremely slowly, but it works," said execution witness Will Pryor, first assistant to the Texas attorney general. "It's an appropriate sanction. Tonight was another example of that."

The night of the slaying, officers spotted Garrett, who was well-known to them because of previous run-ins with the law, running from the convent about two blocks from his home.

Detectives eventually matched his fingerprints with those found in the nun's room on a crucifix, on her bed and on a knife.

Garrett's execution was the 44th in Texas since the state resumed the death penalty in 1982. The total is the highest of any state with capital punishment.

Burglars take urn containing man's ashes

RICHARDSON (AP) — A family is offering a $200 reward for the return of an urn containing the remains of a loved one stolen during a burglary.

The bronze urn containing the ashes of Donald L. Tolin Jr. was taken from Dorothy Hawthorne's home while she was vacationing in Washington state, family members said Monday.

"She was almost getting back to normal," said daughter Donna Hickson. "Now she's a wreck again."

Tolin died of AIDS at age 26 last July, said Ms. Hickson.

Ms. Hickson and another daughter, Kimberly Webb, persuaded their mother to take the vacation.

The daughters had been checking the apartment since Ms. Hawthorne left Sunday. But nine hours later, Ms. Hickson found the apartment had been ransacked.

The urn was next to a television and videocassette recorder, which also were stolen, said Ms. Hickson.

"It was in the cabinet my mom bought especially for him," said Ms. Hickson. "She's kind of made it into a shrine to him. It has his picture on it, and the urn was on the bottom shelf."

The women said they didn't want to tell their mother about the burglary until she returned in about two weeks. But they said she found out about it from a friend.

"Stuff was thrown everywhere, drawers were pulled out," said Ms. Hickson. "I didn't even notice my brother's urn was gone. I was talking to police when I noticed it was gone.

"I almost lost my mind," she said.

Burglars also took a clock, a telephone and an answering machine.

The urn, which resembles a small jewelry case or safe, weighs about 40 pounds and is labeled with Tolin's name and the words "Restlawn Memorial Park."

"It's solid bronze, but it looks like solid gold," Ms. Hickson said. "These people obviously never realized what they got.

"It's one thing to be robbed and violated, but to steal the remains of a loved one makes me sick to my stomach," said Ms. Hickson. "It's like he died all over again."

Family members are offering a $200 reward for the return of the urn and remains.

"I suspect when they find out what it is, they'll throw it in the trash," said Ms. Hickson. "But you would think they would bring it back. Even robbers and thieves have hearts, don't they?"

State employees support state income tax

AUSTIN (AP) — A group representing state government employees said Tuesday it is willing to support a state income tax, if that's what it takes to save their jobs.

"We feel that state employees have been used to balance state government enough," said Dennis Gilliam, president of the Texas Public Employees Association.

About 12,000 to 15,000 of Texas' more than 210,000 state government employees are members of the organization, said Lane Zivley, the group's executive director.

In order to save members' jobs, Zivley said, the organization must be prepared to propose to the state's lawmakers alternative cost-cutting plans other than reducing government jobs.

"If it takes a tax, do it once, quit band-aiding and get it over with," Zivley said. "The treatment of these employees and these agencies is atrocious.

"As far as a personal income tax, if that's what it takes ... I feel our board of directors will probably come out for (it)," he said.

Another proposal Zivley said the group would support is an overhaul of the current tax system.

"When you talk about a tax restructuring, that doesn't necessarily mean new taxes," Zivley said. "You're letting everybody pay their fair share. It means a great deal of money to the state of Texas."

Chocolate is tradition on Valentine's Day

By Carol Deegan

NEW YORK (AP) — As Valentine's Day approaches, thoughts turn to chocolate. And heart-shaped cakes, cookies and other sweet treats.

Although Americans are passionate about chocolate, it is difficult in many areas of the country to purchase fine chocolate cakes and desserts, says cookbook author Faye Levy.

Thus, Levy says, it is better to bake a wonderful chocolate dessert for Valentine's Day. Just don't make it a huge layered cake with lots of goppy frosting.

"For Valentine's Day, it's nice to have individual, elegant desserts that have an intense chocolate flavor, because chocolate is so much associated with love," Levy said in a telephone interview from her home in Santa Monica, Calif. "Not one of those really high cakes, but a nice, rich European-style cake."

And although hearts and chocolate just seem to go together on Valentine's Day, it isn't that shape of the dessert that matters, Levy says. "The main thing is that it tastes good."

"Use the best ingredients," she says, "especially if you're making something like a truffle or a cake that doesn't have a large amount of flour in it, because you really taste the chocolate more."

Levy is the author of "Chocolate Sensations" (HPBooks, $25), which won the Tastemakers award for the best dessert and baking book of the year in 1986. The cookbook will be available in soft-cover later this year.

FOR ALICE Medrich, cookbook author and owner of seven Cocolat bake shops in the San Francisco Bay area, desserts are an art form — a chance to delight the eye and the mind, as well as the palate.

For Valentine's Day, Medrich suggests a heart-shaped cake or chocolate truffles served on a heart-shaped plate or presented as a gift in a heart-shaped box.

"Truffles are considered luxurious and sophisticated, but with good chocolate, they can be quite easy, especially when they are dusted in cocoa, so you don't have to worry about dipping," Medrich said in a telephone interview from California.

Medrich is the creator of the pingpong ball-sized American truffle.

Her cookbook, "Cocolat: Extraordinary Chocolate Desserts" (Warner Books, $35), is now in its fourth printing. The cookbook won four awards in 1991 including cookbook of the year at the first James Beard Awards and the award for best baking book from the International Association of Cooking Professionals.

Medrich says chocolate is "an enduring passion" in the United States because "we were raised on it, it was a part of our childhood."

"We had chocolate pudding, a chocolate candy bar at the movies, and the flavor and texture was there for us, it wasn't a taste we had to acquire. It was the ultimate 'comfort' food growing up," she says. "As adults, we develop a palate for wine and coffee, but chocolate, we have that practically at birth. It's linked to early feelings of well-being and love."

MEDRICH OPENED her first Cocolat bake shop in Berkeley, Calif., in late 1976, with a hunch that chocolate sales were ready for an explosion. Her hunch proved correct — U.S. chocolate consumption rose 33 percent from 1980 to 1986.

"People started to begin to appreciate chocolate, and with the more sophisticated palate, there was more of a trend toward bittersweet chocolate and more adult consumption of chocolate," she says.

Cocolat sells 3 million truffles a year, 2,000 cakes a week, and has a wholesale business that stretches from Miami to Juneau, Alaska. Cocolat products are also available by mail.

Whatever the reason for chocolate's popularity, Susan Smith of the Chocolate Manufacturers Association says Americans are consuming 2.8 billion pounds of the sweet stuff each year. From 1985 to 1990, per capita consumption of chocolate rose from 8.5 to 11.2 pounds.

Other cookbooks devoted to chocolate include "The International Chocolate Cookbook" by Nancy Baggett (Stewart, Tabori & Chang, $40) and "365 Great Chocolate Desserts" by Natalie Haughton (HarperCollins, $16.95).

Haughton focuses on simplicity. Chocolate chips are used whenever possible and a chapter is devoted to gussying up mixes. Also included are more complicated creations, a chocolate glossary and a chapter of recipes children can make.

Baggett's cookbook traces the history of chocolate: "Discovered by Central American and Mexican Indians, introduced into Europe by Spanish conquistadors, carried back to America by the Dutch and the British, and finally improved dramatically by the Dutch and the Swiss, chocolate may represent the most complex and sustained international culinary collaboration ever."

Alice Medrich's Chocolate Valentine Marquise is the royalty of mousses. It is rich with butter and very, very chocolatey. The texture is stiff enough to slice and definitely to be eaten with a fork, in small servings, like a very rich and rare cake. Creme Anglaise is the classic accompaniment.

CHOCOLATE VALENTINE MARQUISE

11 ounces bittersweet or semi-sweet chocolate, cut into bits
4 ounces sweet butter (1 stick), cut into small pieces
2 teaspoons powdered (not freeze-dried) coffee, dissolved in 2 teaspoons water
4 large eggs, separated
⅛ teaspoon cream of tartar
2 tablespoons sugar
2 tablespoons unsweetened cocoa powder
Creme Anglaise (optional)
Special equipment: a 7-inch heart-shaped, straight-sided bottomless form with 3-inch high sides

Trace a heart exactly the size of the bottomless form on a piece of waxed paper or parchment paper. Melt 1 ounce of the chocolate and spread it on the paper within the tracing. Tape the paper to a baking sheet to keep the chocolate heart from warping as it hardens and place the form over it. Refrigerate while you make the marquise. The thin chocolate heart on the bottom of the dessert will keep the marquise from sticking to the serving platter.

Melt remaining 10 ounces of chocolate and butter together in a medium bowl placed in a pan of barely simmering water. Or melt chocolate and butter in a microwave-safe dish in a microwave oven on medium (50 percent power) for about 2½ minutes. Stir from time to time to hasten melting. When chocolate is melted and smooth, whisk in dissolved coffee powder and egg yolks. Remove from heat; set aside.

In a clean dry mixing bowl, beat egg whites and cream of tartar at medium speed until soft peaks form. Gradually sprinkle in sugar, beating at high speed until stiff not dry. Fold one-fourth of egg whites into chocolate mixture to lighten it. Fold remaining whites into mixture until completely incorporated. Scrape mixture immediately into prepared mold. Chill at least 4 hours before unmolding to serve. Marquise may be completed, covered and refrigerated, 2 days ahead of serving, or frozen up to 2 months.

To unmold and serve: Sprinkle the top lightly with cocoa sifted through a fine strainer. Remove tape, tilt the form, and peel the paper from the bottom. Place the form on a serving platter. Gently warm the sides of the mold with a hot, wrung-out wet towel. Slip the mold off quickly. Dust the top with cocoa. Serve cold, cut in thin slices, with Creme Anglaise, if desired.

CREME ANGLAISE

2 cups milk
4 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla extract

Have ready, near the stove, a medium-fine strainer set over a clean medium-size bowl placed in a bowl of ice water.

In a heavy, non-reactive medium-size saucepan, scald milk.

In a bowl, whisk yolks, gradually adding sugar until mixture is pale and thick. Pour scalded milk gradually into yolk mixture, whisking constantly until all the milk is added. Return mixture to saucepan and cook over medium heat, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon, reaching all over the bottom of a pan to avoid scorching. Sauce must not boil or even simmer. It will thicken slightly as it cooks. Remove from heat when sauce coats spoon lightly (about 175 degrees to 180 degrees F) and pour it immediately into a ready strainer and bowl. Allow to cool completely, then stir in vanilla. Sauce may be completed and refrigerated 1 day ahead. Makes 2⅔ cups.

Note: Keep the whisk in contact with the bottom of the bowl as you mix to avoid making foam or froth. Foam makes it hard to see whether or not the sauce is starting to simmer.

(Recipe from: "Cocolat: Extraordinary Chocolate Desserts" by Alice Medrich. Warner Books, $35)

DEAR ABBY

Sexual harassment stalks men as well as women

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I was pleased to see the issue of sexual harassment in the workplace publicized in your column. I can personally attest to the fact that this is not an exclusively male-initiated problem, although I agree that women are overwhelmingly its victims due to the predominance of men occupying positions of authority over women.

Van Buren

I am a man. Twenty-five years ago, when I was a young medical corpsman in the military, on two separate occasions, I was the victim of sexual harassment. Both times, the perpetrators were female officers (nurses) in authority over me. When I politely turned down their advances, I received poor job assignments, the least desirable work schedules, etc., until I managed to get transferred out of their work areas. My experience was not unique, as any man in the service can tell you.

The point I want to make is this: It really makes no difference which gender is guilty of making unwelcomed sexual advances on the job, it is still one of the most under-reported discriminatory behaviors within the work environment.

Abby, no one — male or female — should tolerate this kind of abuse. The government agency charged with the responsibility for investigating reports of sexual harassment at the workplace is the federal government's Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC). There are regional offices in larger cities around the country. — GERALD JOHNSON, GILMER, TEXAS

DEAR MR. JOHNSON: Thank you for a valuable contribution to this column.

DEAR ABBY: I am 70 years old. I've been talking to myself since I was 11. Recently, a neighbor told me he saw me in my car, talking to myself! I know I talk to myself a lot, but I've always tried to avoid being caught at it.

Once, I saw a woman coming down the aisle of the supermarket, totally oblivious of the people around her, talking to herself out loud! I could see myself in the future. Then I read a letter in your column from a man who had bitten his fingernails since childhood, until he read a letter in Dear Abby that he could break the habit by wearing a rubber band around his wrist. The moment he realized he was about to chew his nail, he would snap the rubber band just hard enough to make a little sting, and it would distract him and curb the urge.

A month later, I am almost cured! I did learn to be careful not to wound myself as I snapped the rubber band.

Where has that wonderful idea been all these years? Gratefully yours ... RITA AUSTIN, KANSAS CITY, MO.

DEAR RITA AUSTIN: I'm glad it worked for you. The same principle can be used for breaking other annoying habits, such as reaching for a piece of candy, a second helping, or the habit of interrupting people, the urge to bad-mouth someone, repeat gossip — the list is endless.

CONFIDENTIAL TO WINNIE IN ASHLAND, KY.: If you don't know him well enough to know whether he's lying or telling the truth, you don't know him well enough to marry him. Trust me.

Most teen-agers do not know the facts about drugs, AIDS, and how to prevent unwanted pregnancy. It's all in Abby's updated, expanded booklet, "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-size, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054. (Postage is included.)

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Frozen fish fillets are low-fat, low salt

By Linda Anderson

"Healthy" eating has struck again. It's not enough to market frozen dinners and entries; now Healthy Choice has found a way to make low-fat, low-calorie breaded frozen fish fillets and sticks.

Anderson

Sounds impossible, you say? That's what I thought, so we bought a box of Healthy Choice frozen breaded fish fillets to check out for taste, price and advertising accuracy.

A 12-ounce, four-fillet box of breaded fish cost $3.59, or about 90 cents per fillet (which sounded pretty steep to me). The eight-fillet box cost more than $5, which is cheaper per fillet, but still sounds outrageously expensive.

Label advertising claims each "low saturated fat" fillet contains "25 mg cholesterol" and "300 mg sodium," and is "New!" and "Great Tasting."

Advertising on the back of the box claims "Healthy Choice Fish Fillets set a new standard for great taste, quality and nutrition. Unlike most breaded fish fillets, Healthy Choice is not prefried, and therefore delivers the delicious taste of mild Cod, delicately coated in a crispy breading, without all the extra fat! And, they're packaged in convenient inner packs to preserve freshness and great taste. ..."

Nutrition label information lists each fillet as containing 140 calories, 4 grams fat (or 36 calories from fat. The label claims that's about 26 percent of calories from fat, which is below the American Heart Association's recommended maximum of 30 percent calories from fat.) and 300 mg. sodium.

That brings us to the taste-test. I heated Healthy Choice fish fillet in the oven at 375 degrees for about 30 minutes, as per instructions. (The box says "Microwave oven preparation is not recommended." The last time I ignored that recommendation I regretted it.) Then the youngest taste-tester (the pickiest eater) sampled it. I thought it was light, crispy, very non-greasy (low-fat, you know), and just about flavorless — the flavor improved when I added salt. The little taste-taster, who is not known as a big fan of fish, thought the fillet was "wonderful." She polished off her serving and asked for more — although she did say it tasted better with the added salt.

Well, I guess the Healthy Choice breaded frozen fish fillets are a hit at our house. But I still think that's pretty expensive for a box of frozen fish.

Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.

CHOCOLATE: Homemade goodies sweeten holiday

(From 4B)

CLASSIC CHOCOLATE TRUFFLES

8 ounces semisweet or bittersweet chocolate, cut into bits
3 ounces sweet butter, cut into pieces
1 egg yolk
½ cup unsweetened cocoa powder
Special equipment: a 5x9-inch loaf pan, or any shallow pan with a similar dimension, bottom and sides lined with waxed or parchment paper, or aluminum foil; fluted paper candy cups (optional)

Melt chocolate with butter and ¼ cup water in a bowl set in a barely simmering water bath. Stir from time to time until mixture is melted and smooth. Or melt butter and chocolate in a microwave-safe bowl in microwave oven on medium (50 percent power), stirring once or twice, for about 2 minutes. Off heat, whisk in the egg yolk just until incorporated. Do not mix or beat more than necessary. Strain truffle mixture into the lined pan and chill, without stirring, until firm, about 1 hour.

Remove pan from refrigerator. Unmold and cut into ¾-inch squares. If chocolate is too firm to cut without breaking, wait 15 to 20 minutes to soften slightly.

Put cocoa into shallow dish. Roll truffle squares in cocoa, rounding them between the palms of your hands. Dust your hands with cocoa as necessary to keep truffles from sticking. If the truffles are too hard to shape, wait until they soften slightly. If they are too soft, refrigerate until firmer. Truffles look more authentic if they are a little irregular, so don't try for perfectly smooth round balls. Shake truffles gently in a dry strainer, if necessary, to remove excess cocoa.

Truffles may be made and stored in an airtight container in the refrigerator for 10 days or frozen for 3 months. Remove from refrigerator about 30 minutes before serving to soften slightly. Serve heaped in a candy dish, or place each truffle in an individual fluted paper candy cup. Makes 30 bite-size truffles.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1992

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: New promises and projects make this a very busy time for you. Get a major work issue settled before this month ends. Joining a support group next June could lead to higher self-esteem. September brings a second chance for romantic happiness. Listen to your heart. An unusual business arrangement could prove highly successful in November. Seeking wise counsel next December will lead to new domestic harmony. Protect your family's interests.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: President Abraham Lincoln, actress Joanna Kerns, TV host Arsenio Hall, author Judy Blume.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Corporate types may be difficult to pin down today. Work on your own as much as possible. Home life offers a peaceful respite from your busy work schedule tonight. Turn in early.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A quick quip could cause trouble. Be careful not to say anything that could be used against you later on. Returning telephone calls promptly prevents hurt feelings.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your ingenuity helps you handle any job snags that arise today. Take your time when considering a new financial commitment. Impulsive decisions will backfire.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Pay keen attention to all information your senses gather today. You will learn a lot! An exacting task will require all of your concentration. Be quiet about your career plans for now.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A financial talk or shopping trip will benefit you. You are a magnet for money now and will make wise choices. A night of discovery lies ahead. Intellectual endeavors enjoy favorable influences.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Curb your tongue and cool your temper. Lashing out at someone who has disappointed you will create an even deeper rift. Try your hand at creative writing or plunge into the arts.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Do not let tedious tasks put you in an irritable mood. You will get much further than you think. Listen to the voice of experience when it comes to money matters.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Good timing is the key to success. Join forces with someone who is eager to pursue a moneymaking project. Do not play tricks on your loved ones. Keep any promises you make.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Work hard to maintain your work schedule, despite frequent distractions. Steady progress is essential for success. Spend some time alone later today, but do not become anti-social.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): You may be asked to mediate a feud today. Maintain your objectivity. Recycling a project will let you make new business profits without incurring additional expense.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You may feel at odds with someone who insists he has a cross to bear. Do not let a philosophical argument turn personal. Romance resembles a rollercoaster now. Hold on tight to your mate!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Stop twiddling your thumbs. Your creative genius can turn a dream into reality. Get better organized at work. Family members are looking to you for leadership.

TODAY'S CHILDREN are hard-working and tenacious, able to overcome almost any obstacle. Count on these Aquarians to use their knowledge and resources wisely. They are not averse to seeking the limelight if doing so will suit their purposes. These Aquarians' enthusiasm for intellectual pursuits will set them apart. They make excellent scholars and researchers.

Opening lead: King of ◇

When logic tells you that a certain holding can't exist, it is masochistic to ignore what you have learned and to pursue a line that is bound to fail. Here's an example of what we mean.

South's decision to jump to game looks a bit pushy. However, it was based on the presumption of a double fit, and receives the endorsement of this department.

West led the king of diamonds and, in response to East's signal of the ten, continued with the ace and the seven. Declarer ruffed and drew trumps in three rounds, West discarding two hearts.

The fate of the contract hinged on declarer losing no more than one heart trick, so declarer led a heart and confidently finessed the jack. The operation succeeded, but the patient died. East won the ace and exited with a club, and in the fullness of time declarer had to concede another heart trick.

With a long heart suit headed by the ace and assets that West was known to hold (the ace-king of diamonds and a singleton spade), West would have opened the bidding in first seat. Therefore, East had to have the ace and, for a two-level overcall as a passed hand, West virtually guaranteed a six-card suit, marking East's ace as a singleton. All declarer had to do was duck the heart in dummy, and, on regaining the lead, take the marked finesse for West's queen. Equally effective would have been to cash the club winners first before leading a heart to the jack, forcing East to yield a ruff-sluff.

Although the contract should have been made, East could have defended better. A low diamond at trick one might have persuaded West to shift to a heart. East wins the ace, returns a diamond to West's ace and gets a heart ruff for a one-trick set.

Danny Glover's readings give life to black history in poetry

FAYETTEVILLE, N.C. — Danny Glover brought the triumphs and tragedies of black history to life in a dramatic reading from the poetry of Langston Hughes.

Glover read more than 25 short poems by Hughes for an audience of about 500 in a Black History Month celebration at Fayetteville State University on Monday night. Hughes, a poet, playwright and song-lyric writer, died in 1967.

Glover

Glover said poetry can ease inhibitions and bridge communication gaps.

"Langston made black people feel positive about themselves," he said. "He made us laugh, cry and dream. He made us move forward with a sense of purpose and with love for ourselves."

Glover has starred in such films as "Lethal Weapon," "The Color Purple," "Silverado" and the current "Grand Canyon," as well as the television miniseries "Lonesome Dove."

LINCOLN, Neb. — Environmental lawyer Robert F. Kennedy Jr. said his audiences generally break into two camps, based on age.

"When I talk with the older crowds I'm Bobby's son — or John's nephew," he said, referring to his father and his uncle, President John F. Kennedy. "But nowadays when I talk to the younger ones, I'm Arnold Schwarzenegger's cousin."

Kennedy

His cousin, Maria Shriver, is married to the movie star.

Kennedy, an attorney at the environmental litigation clinic at Pace University Law School in New York, discussed his efforts to clean New York's Hudson River.

"People here tell me they remember my dad when he campaigned in Nebraska," he said in a speech Monday at a high school. "It always touches me when, 20 some years after my father's death ... people still remember him with such affection and high regard."

MINNEAPOLIS — The Jets, a pop music group whose Top 10 hits included "You Got It All" and "Rocket 2 U," are in bankruptcy court, but a lawyer said Tuesday the group would continue performing.

"This is a fresh start for them," said Allen Saeks, who represents the seven brothers and sisters who make up the band. The band filed under Chapter 7 of the federal bankruptcy code to dissolve its current business organization late last month.

The band's bankruptcy filing listed $1.2 million in debts, much of it owed to companies owned by the band's manager, Don Powell. The band and Powell are disputing how much is owed.

Powell, who also was the group's producer, said MCA Records told him Monday it was dropping the band. He said a new album is about 95 percent finished, but didn't know what would happen to it.

The Jets, based in the Minnesota town of Dayton, performed at the White House and the 1987 World Series and for the king of Tonga, the home country of their parents.

Its members are Katherine Noga and Elizabeth, Heinrich, Moana, Leroy, Rudy and Eddison Wolfgramm.

NEW YORK — Penn & Teller, the whimsical magicians, will star in a new PBS series aimed at showing kids and families the process involved in the visual and performing arts, officials said Tuesday.

"Behind the Scenes," a 10-part, half-hour series, will premiere in September. It will be co-produced by New York's WNET-TV and Learning Designs, a private company. The series has a total budget of $4.8 million.

WNET said $3,450,000 of that already has been raised, $1.5 million from the National Endowment for the Arts and $675,000 from the McDonald's restaurant chain, the show's exclusive corporate underwriter. The balance will be sought from foundations, the station said.

DAYTON, Ohio — Dance and film star Gregory Hines, seeking inspiration, flew in for a day to coach some tap dancers.

"What I get from this is inspiration, and I need that," Hines said Monday night after leading a class for 25 dancers. "I like to get out and check out the scene, and the scene here is good. These people can really tap."

Hines suggested the class last week during a telephone conversation with Sharon Leahy, artistic director of Rhythm in Shoes, a Dayton tap and clogging dance company.

Even though Hines is scheduled to begin rehearsal Thursday for a musical about entertainer Jelly Roll Morton, he said, "Get together the best tappers you can find, and we'll do a class."

The class was free to the dancers but drew more than 100 spectators at $10 each. The money went to the Dayton Community Dance Partnership.

Man checking pastures finds remains of 80-year-old man

CLARKSVILLE (AP) — The skeletal remains of an 80-year-old man have been discovered by a Paris man inspecting his pasture land.

Alan Parks was checking his pastures about 12:30 p.m. Monday when he came upon the remains of Max Glenn Morris, who had been missing for more than three months.

Morris had left his home during an afternoon rain on Oct. 28 to look for his dog. Several hours later, severe thunderstorms accompanying the season's first cold front dumped about seven inches of rain in the area, swelling creeks and hampering rescue efforts.

The dog had never left the property. It was in a barrel by the barn, staying out of the rain.

On several occasions, more than 100 volunteers on horseback and four-wheelers joined county and state officials in the search. But those were called off after two weeks because of swollen creeks.

Morris' body was found about 2½ miles north of his home.

No evidence of foul play was found and it's likely Morris died of exposure, said Carl Motley, Red River County chief deputy.

Group speaks out against castration

HOUSTON (AP) — A civil rights group has called for the immediate resignation of a judge considering the voluntary castration of a Houston man charged with molesting a child.

Steven Allen Butler, 27, faces up to life in prison on a charge of aggravated sexual assault of a child in the court of State District Judge Mike McSpadden, an advocate of castrating some sex offenders. The judge said last week that Butler will be granted 10 years' deferred adjudication if he pleads guilty to the April 24 charge and is castrated.

"This is merely an effort to set a precedent and open doors of opportunity to castrate thousands of black males legally," said Frank Burns, president of the state conference of NAACP branches.

Community activist Jew Don Boney also decried what he called McSpadden's "sick mindset" for considering the punishment.

Butler, who is black, has said he would rather be castrated than sentenced to a long prison term.

"It's inhumane, it's barbaric, it's irrational, and it's also illegal," Boney said Tuesday. "We felt that somebody, out of a sense of humanity, needed to speak out against the judge."

But McSpadden accused Burns and his group, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, of being soft on crime.

"It's a shame the black community doesn't have more responsible leadership," McSpadden said. "At a time when the NAACP should actually push for stronger punishment . . . they take the opposite approach, knowing that the black community is the most victimized by crime."

Burglar takes consulate's computers

HOUSTON (AP) — Police on Tuesday were seeking a motive for a break-in at the Mexican Consulate in which two personal computers containing trade information and mailing lists were stolen.

The items taken over the weekend were valued at about $10,000, while the more expensive computers, other electronic items and cash were left behind.

"It leaves a question mark in our minds as to actually why it occurred," Albert Ephraim, a Houston police officer and liaison with foreign consulates.

The FBI and the U.S. Department of State, which routinely respond to incidents involving consulates, also are looking into the burglary, discovered early Monday by a consulate official.

Ricardo Ampudia, the consul general of Mexico here, said the information stored in the computers pertains to trade and business activities between Mexico and the United States. A mailing list of U.S. citizens doing business or having cultural ties with Mexico also was stored in one of the computers.

Camper found shot in head

JOHNSON CITY (AP) — A man who had been camping in Pedernales Falls State Park since Friday was found dead with a gunshot wound to the head, authorities said.

Blanco County Sheriff Holton Burleson said the 27-year-old San Antonio man was found in eight feet to 10 feet of water in the Pedernales River about 2 p.m. Monday.

Burleson said the man, who had been seen alone in the park about 40 miles west of Austin, had been shot in the head.

Burleson said park rangers became suspicious after seeing a car near the river but no driver. Later, a ranger walking along the river saw blood and bone fragments, and a search for the victim was begun.

Rebels defeat OHS, 4-0

By Joe Wyatt
Staff Writer

While the Midland Lee soccer team has spent the early part of its District 3 schedule doling out goose eggs, the Odessa High Bronchos have been laying them at a frenzied clip.

That pattern continued Tuesday at the Lee field, where the Rebels tightened their grip on the district top spot with a 4-0 shutout over winless OHS.

The Bronchos, 0-5 in league play, fell to 0-9 for the season as Lee made OHS its fourth shutout victim in four district games. It was the third straight game in which the Bronchos failed to score.

But shutouts are getting to be old hat for the Rebels, who moved to 4-0 in league play and 7-0 overall.

The Lee defense has six shutouts to its credit in seven overall tries.

"We think we can keep doing it," Lee defensive stalwart Tommy Tipton said of the shutout string. "It's not a life or death thing. We'd like to keep it going, but if it doesn't we're just happy with winning."

Tim Tucker's head-in past startled OHS goalie Ibis Ley just a minute and a half into the game was a good indication that Lee was on its way to winning Tuesday.

Tucker one-timed the ball into the net off an indirect kick from Dennis Ehler.

Lee scored twice more in the first half, getting the first goals of the season by Pablo Rodriguez and Leo Daud to go up 3-0.

Daud, a foreign exchange student from Brazil, set up the goal by Rodruguez, who is a foreign exchange student from Uruguay. The international tally ripped straight through the heart of the OHS defense and came in the 24th minute of play.

Then, Daud took a pass from Jeramy Keener and launched his first goal into the upper left corner of the net during the 27th minute.

Jason Gotcher capped the scoring from in front of the Broncho net during the 28th minute of the second half. Matt Perkins assisted on the goal.

Elsewhere in District 3, Midland High shutout Odessa Permian 3-0, and San Angelo toppled Abilene Cooper 3-1. Abilene High was idle.

"It's always good when you win," said Lee coach Eddie Bull, whose Rebels outshot OHS 18-1. "Odessa (High) is a lot better than people think, and this game was good because we were consistent with what we did."

That consistency was especially evident on defense. Lee keeper Freddie Silva, untested in the first half, gave way to Vijay Gollopudi after halftime. Gollopudi turned back the only shot that came his way.

"Our defense takes a lot of pride in what it does," Bull said. "Our kids understand the intensity level that's necessary in the defensive end, and they've gotten to the point where they're mature enough to understand that we're going

Suit dropped

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — John Daly's former fiancee withdrew a lawsuit that said the PGA champion owed her $1 million for breaking a promise of marriage, her lawyer confirmed Tuesday.

Daly

Bettye Fulford did not give any reason for the voluntary request for dismissal of that lawsuit in Shelby County Circuit Court or of an accompanying paternity suit filed in Shelby County Juvenile Court, attorney F. Dulin Kelly of Hendersonville said.

"I have no idea. I just did what my client told me to do," said Kelly, who said the instructions to withdraw the lawsuits came as a surprise to him.

Fulford said in the lawsuit that she was pregnant with Daly's child.

Daly was in Australia, and was unavailable for comment.

Bulldogs repel Bobcats, 79-74

By Bill Price
Staff Writer

Though Midland High has not yet been mathematically eliminated from a playoff spot in District 4-5A boys basketball, many Bulldog partisans can't help but look forward to next season.

MHS repelled a second-half surge by San Angelo Tuesday at the Chaparral Center, as the Bulldogs took a 79-74 win and made their record 16-12 overall and 5-5 in district.

With league leaders Abilene High and Abilene Cooper both taking wins Tuesday — AHS defeated Odessa Permian 84-81 to go to 8-2 in 4-5A, while Cooper demolished Odessa High 81-42 for a 7-2 loop mark — MHS has two games remaining on its schedule and could conceivably wind up tied with Cooper if the Cougars lose their last three.

On Tuesday, the 'Dogs got 19 points from 6-4 junior Antwan Goodley, 17 out of junior guard Mike Melzer, 14 from senior Brian Rounding and 11 on the play of sophomore Joseph Golding.

Chaps clinch region berth

By Jimmy Patterson
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland College's 81-54 win over Clarendon Monday night clinched a Region V tournament spot for the Chaparrals, their first post-season appearance since the 1988-89 season.

MC, now 10-1 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference play with five games remaining, could lose the remainder of its games and still finish with one loss fewer than Western Texas and Howard. Those two teams are currently tied for fifth place in the league with 5-7 records.

The top four teams in the WJCAC qualify for the Region V tournament, to be held March 6-10 at Waco's McClennan Community College.

WTC and Howard are all but out of the race. Even if both won the remainder of their games and finished 9-7, Odessa College would practically have to fall off the face of the earth to miss the tournament.

As the conference race begins to wind down, here's how the future looks to shape up for South Plains, New Mexico Junior College and Odessa, the three other teams that should represent the WJCAC in Waco:

■ South Plains (10-2). The Texans, by virtue of their 92-87 win over NMJC Monday night, are in. Even if the Texans were to lose the remainder of their games and finished 10-6, their record would be no worse than fourth best in the conference. Losing out will not happen to SPC. # Unified pairs team flawless

ALBERTVILLE, France — Talk about your sports dynasties.

The Boston Celtics, the Montreal Canadiens, even the ghost of Knute Rockne could learn a thing or two about winning tradition from what the Soviets and their political offspring have achieved in pairs skating.

After Tuesday night's masterful performance by world champions Natalia Mishkutienok and Artur Dmitriev, here's what the country's top pairs finishes look like in the eight Winter Olympics dating to 1964:

■ Tuesday's Results/3C

Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. Gold. GOLD.

The world champions — Russians competing for the Unified Team — brought the crowd to its feet and were first with all nine judges, earning seven near-perfect 5.9s for artistic impression.

But even the Russians think the end of the longest championship streak in the history of the Winter Games may be in sight.

"Our country has just broke down," said Tamara Moskvina, the couple's coach. "I think there will be a decline in the level of achievement, and this decline will last some time."

Elena Bechke and Denis Petrov of the Unified Team got the silver, and Canadians Isabelle Brasseur and Lloyd Eisler took the bronze as the top six placings in the original program remained the same.

The top two American pairs provided no evidence of a future challenge to the Russians' three-decade hold on the sport. National champions Calla Urbanski and Rocky Marval tripped and flipped their way to 10th place, while Californians Natasha Kuchiki and Todd Sand were shaky but held onto sixth.

On another rink an hour's drive higher in the Alps, the United States scrapped its way to a second straight victory, 2-0, over Italy on Tuesday, for its best Olympic start since its unbeaten gold-medal team of 1960.

Ray LeBlanc made 46 saves in recording America's first Olympic shutout since 1964, and Marty McInnis and Ted Donato scored power-play goals.

But Americans dreaming of a Lake Placid II take note: The wins aren't coming easily here and five other teams are 2-0.

"There are six very good teams and each of those six very good teams deserves a gold medal," said coach Leszek Lejczyk

MHS: Paxton slapped with two technicals

(From 1C)

Also, 6-8 junior Andre Gill blocked five shots while scoring nine points, so it's easy to see MHS has a bright spot the size of a supernova in its future.

"I was looking forward to this year too," said MHS coach Jack Stephenson. "We've got some nice, nice seniors (Rounding, Phil Koss, Scott Lunsford, Robert McKee and Watu Todd). We're certainly not going to abandon them (in the last two games).

"But I think we've got the best team in the league at this time. There were times this year I didn't think that we did, but tonight was probably the best we played all year in the first half."

That's when the Bulldogs rolled to a 15-point halftime lead while holding all-everything Bobcat Robert Smith to eight points.

MHS started off hot, jumping out to a 10-2 lead and leading 18-14 after the first eight minutes. In the second quarter, Rounding broke out of a two-week three-pointer slump with a trey and eventually went-3-for-8 from three-point range.

"I felt more comfortable with the threes tonight. In past games I was fading to the left or the right, and I started out rusty in this game. But after that I got my confidence up," Rounding said.

His second three came at 4:10 in the second and started a 7-0 run Bulldog run that caused San Angelo coach Boyce Paxton to call a time out with the score 33-19. By intermission Paxton had picked up the first of two technical fouls while watching the 'Cats shoot 10-of-36 from the field and commit 13 turnovers.

The third quarter began with MHS building its lead to 18 points at 44-28, but then the Bobcats came alive and went on their own 10-0 spree that made the score 44-36 with 5:32 remaining in the quarter.

Gill then hit a short jumped and tapped in a Golding miss before Paxton received his second technical with 4:35 on the clock. The call seemed to animate San Angelo, though, as the Bulldogs were outscored 11-6 in the rest of the third.

The fourth quarter saw Smith come alive, scoring 12 points to end the game with 26. But every time the Bobcats, who got within four points three times, made a move to cut the lead even more, the 'Dogs retaliated.

Melzer scored 11 of his points in the fourth, and his free throw shooting down the stretch (5-for-7) made the difference.

"We just didn't show up in the first half and we paid the price for it," Paxton said. "We perked up and played petty well in the second half, but it was too late. In the second half we played well enough to win if we could ever have gotten a break or a call."

In junior varsity play, MHS destroyed San Angelo 95-50 as five Bulldogs scored in double figures. Kirk French led the way with 20 points, while Justin Hobbs, Freddie Stricklin and Phil Warlick added 11 each. Billy Merritt also scored 10 points for MHS. The Bulldog JV is now 20-5 for the season and 9-1 in district.

to try and do what ever it takes to get better everytime we play."

The Rebels could have made it 4-0 in the first half, but Tipton's penalty kick sailed high in the 28th minute.

"I wish every one of our defesive players could get a goal," Bull said of his decision to let Tipton attempt the kick instead of an offensive player.

"We don't get a lot of credit for what we do on defense," Tipton admits. "It's been that way since we were little kids. But we're starting to get a little bit more credit this year."

The Lee junior varsity also won Tuesday, defeating the OHS JV 2-0.

Lee visits Abilene High (3-1) Saturday at 2 p.m. The Eagles are the only team to score on the Rebels this year. Lee downed AHS 3-2 in a shootout to decide the winner of the Abilene Invitational.

Rodriguez hat trick leads Bulldogs past Permian, 3-0

Staff Report

ODESSA — Mario Rodriguez sparked the Midland High offense with a second-half hat trick and the Bulldogs cruised to a 3-0 District 3 soccer victory over Odessa Permian here Tuesday.

The win lifts MHS to 3-2 in league play and drops Permian to 1-4.

Rodriguez, who was hit with a yellow penalty card in the first half, began the scoring with a penalty kick in the second minute of the second half. The chance came when MHS' David Farias was pulled down from behind.

Rodriguez followed with an unassisted goal in the 13th minute, and he completed the hat trick with a booming volley past Permian keeper Chase Anders from the top of the penalty area in the 28th minute of second half play. Greg Pinkerton's corner kick fed Rodriguez on the finale.

"Mario played extremely well in the second half," MHS coach Tom Esikhati said. "He's been shooting and shooting and he's just had a lot of bad luck. But he concentrated in the second half and the goals went in."

Keeper Jeremy Hernandez made four saves in recording the shutout, and MHS, which started league play 0-2, won its third straight.

The victory leaves MHS alone in fourth place in District 3, just a half game behind San Angelo and Abilene High, which are each 3-1 thus far.

The Bulldogs host Abilene Cooper when loop play resumes Saturday.

MC: Chaparrals clinch playoffs

(From 1C)

could go a long way in determining who actually wins the conference, also have New Mexico Military and Howard remaining on their schedule.

■ New Mexico Junior College (8-3). The T-Birds' magic number for regional qualifying is one. That '1' is a virtual certainty. Year in and year out, the T-Birds have the easiest finishing schedule. NMJC's remaining games come against four of the league's lower echelon teams in NMMI, Clarendon, Frank Phillips and Western Texas. Although NMJC defeated WTC by a mere bucket 102-100 earlier this season, the T-Birds only stiff challenge in their remaining games comes against Midland, February 24, at Chaparral Center.

■ Odessa College (7-4). Despite their troubles this season (losing their first two conference games; being held to 43 points against SPC), the Wranglers are in good shape to grab the final regional qualifying spot. Even if OC finishes 9-7 and tied with Howard, the Wranglers advance after beating the Hawks twice. If OC somehow manages to lose four or all five of its remaining games, that would put either Howard or Western Texas in position for post-season. Won't happen, though. OC has Clarendon Thursday, and Frank Phillips next Monday, two gimme games, and all OC needs to land its spot.

One certainty: Frank Phillips, Clarendon, and Reggie Franklin's New Mexico Military Institute have all been mathematically eliminated, while Western Texas and Howard are sitting on a bubble that is almost certain to burst within the next five days.

Holyfield, Tyson bout cancelled

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Heavyweight champion Evander Holyfield said Tuesday an Indianapolis jury convicted a person, not a sport, when it found former champion Mike Tyson guilty of rape.

"It's not a black eye on the game," Holyfield said. "It's a black eye to the person. He just happened to be a boxer."

Holyfield wouldn't rule out a future fight with Tyson after the former champion's legal problems are resolved.

"It depends on what he does while he's in jail," Holyfield said at a news conference in his lawyer's office in Atlanta.

Holyfield agreed with his promoter, Dan Duva, who said the champion wouldn't be fighting Holyfield soon even if Tyson remains free on appeal of his rape conviction.

"I don't deserve to fight anyone that put themselves in that situation," Holyfield said.

Holyfield said he was disappointed that a fight with Tyson never took place.

"It was something I felt the public wanted to see," he said. "It's sad the public won't see the two best boxers of the era."

"Our sport and our business has enough black eyes and enough negative things written about it," Duva said a day after Tyson was convicted in Indiana State Court of raping a Miss Black America beauty pageant contestant.

Brooke cans 58 for MBT Eagles

Staff Report

Joshua Brooke got the green light Tuesday night and he took it to heart. Brooke fired in 58 points to lead Midland Baptist Temple past Sherwood Christian Academy of Odessa, 108-48.

Brooke, a senior, hit 24-of-43 field goal attempts — six of them from three-point range — as MBT lifted its record to 16-4.

Clay Gunter added 17 points for the Eagles, who capped their home schedule by shooting 50 percent from the floor and 80 percent from the stipe.

The Eagles finish the regular season next Tuesday against Victory in Carlsbad, NM, then head for the Texas Christian Athletic League (TCAL) state tournament, where they will be the third-seeded team.

In MBT's junior game, John Koss and Charles Tatum each scored 13 points as the Eagles dropped Sherwood 54-6. Cody Reynolds added 12 for MBT.

Sherwood Christian (48): E. Mata 8 3-4 24, T. Adam 7 1-3 16, B. Mide 2 1-4 5, J. Moern 0 1-4 1, J. Barreroza 1 0-1 2. Totals: 18 6-16 48.
Midland Baptist (108): Joshua Brooke 24-43 4-8 58, Paul Gaymon 6-8 0-0 12, Russell Maxey 3-8 1-3 8, Glen Bishop 1-7 1-2 3, Clay Gunter 8-14 1-2 17, John Koss 4-7 0-0 8, Seth Gunter 1-4 0-0 2, Charles Tatum 0-3 0-0 0. Totals: 47-94 12-15 108.
Three-point goals: Sherwood (6) Mata 5, Adam 1; MBT (7) Brooke 6, Maxey 1. Total Fouls: Sherwood 14, MBT 16. Fouled Out: Bishop, Gaymon.

MBT players honored

Staff Report

Midland Baptist guard Josh Brooke and Lady Eagle forward Sera Ares were recently named to the Texas Christian Athletic League (TCAL) All-State basketball team while Eagle point guard Clay Gunter was a second team All-State selection.

Brooke's 30-point per game scoring average is tops in the state this year among TCAL schools. He also led his team in free throw percentage

NBA Roundup

SAN ANTONIO — David Robinson scored 23 points and dominated Robert Parish in the middle as the San Antonio Spurs held the Boston Celtics to their lowest point total of the season in a 100-84 victory Tuesday night.

San Antonio led by as many as 24 points in the fourth quarter, as Robinson outscored Parish by 17 points and outrebounded him 15-6. Parish also had eight turnovers.

Parish had scored 30 points and grabbed 14 rebounds in the Celtics' 98-89 victory over San Antonio at the Boston Garden.

Pacers 100, Magic 98

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP) — Detlef Schrempf scored 26 points, including a game-winning 17-footer at the buzzer, and grabbed a career-high 23 rebounds for Indiana.

The Pacers outscored the Magic 8-2 in the final 58 seconds on 3-pointers by Chuck Person and Reggie Miller and the final shot by Schrempf.

Orlando led 95-86 with 3:03 to play, but the Magic missed seven free throws down the stretch to allow Indiana to pull close. The Pacers, who have won five of their last six games, were 23 of 25 from the line, while Orlando was 28 of 46.

Hornets 113, Hawks 108

ATLANTA (AP) — Kendall Gill scored 27 points and Larry Johnson made four clinching free throws for Charlotte in the final 13 seconds.

It was the third victory in a row for the Hornets, their first three-game streak since last April. The Hornets have beaten the Hawks in six of their last eight meetings.

Johnson and Johnny Newman each added 18 points for Charlotte and Dell Curry had 16, including a 52-footer at the buzzer ending the third quarter to give the Hornets an 85-84 lead. Rookie Paul Graham had a career-high 24 points for the Hawks.

Lakers 116, Timberwolves 108

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Terry Teagle sparked a third-quarter rally with 13 straight points and Sam Perkins and James Worthy dominated inside for the Lakers.

Teagle scored all but two points in a 15-4 run late in the third quarter that put the Lakers in command.

Minnesota led 73-72 when Perkins started the surge with a pair of free throws. Teagle, who finished with 17 points, followed with a variety of jump shots and drives to the basket, capping the rally with a baseline jumper that put Los Angeles ahead 87-77. Perkins scored 27 points and Worthy added 23 as the Lakers won for the 10th time in 14 games.

76ers 114, Heat 102

MIAMI (AP) — Hersey Hawkins scored 20 of his 29 points in the first half as Philadelphia took an 80-49 halftime lead and snapped Miami's team-record seven-game home winning streak.

Johnny Dawkins scored six of his 11 first-quarter points during an 18-4 run that gave the 76ers a 29-16 lead with 2:47 left in the period. Hawkins then had eight points on two 3-pointers and a layup during a 21-5 spurt that put Philadelphia up 52-26 with 8:08 left before halftime.

Miami's Rony Seikaly scored 20 of his 23 points in the first half to keep the score from being even more lopsided.

Bulls 133, Nets 113

CHICAGO (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 34 points as Chicago extended New Jersey's losing streak to eight games.

The victory ended a two-game losing streak for Chicago, which is 22-2 at home.

The Bulls started the fourth quarter by scoring the first seven points — two baskets by B. J. Armstrong and a three-point play by Will Perdue — to regain the lead at 100-94. The Bulls built the lead to 114-98 when Jordan hit a pair of free throws with 7:14 left.

Bucks 104, Pistons 87

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Moses Malone paced a 19-3 fourth-quarter run as Milwaukee beat Detroit in an emotional game featuring six technical fouls on the Pistons.

Pistons coach Chuck Daly was ejected with 4:03 to go when he was called for his second technical, seconds after Orlando Woolridge had been tagged with a technical during a timeout. Daly left the floor screaming and gesturing at the officials.

Malone finished with 24 points and 13 rebounds and Dale Ellis also had 24 points for the Bucks. Woolridge led Detroit with 21 points and Joe Dumars added 19 for the Pistons, who had their four-game winning streak snapped.

Jazz 111, Cavaliers 109

SALT LAKE CITY — John Stockton's driving layup with .1 of a second remaining gave the Utah Jazz a victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Blue Edwards' steal with six seconds left set up Stockton's shot. Edwards knocked the ball away from Cleveland's Mark Price three seconds after Jeff Malone had hit a 3-pointer to tie the score at 109-109.

Stockton's shot bounced around before dropping through and it appeared at first that Karl Malone had touched the ball in the cylinder, which would have resulted in offensive goaltending. But officials Joe Forte, David Jones and Greg Willard allowed the basket and television replays showed the ball was not touched.

SuperSonics 105, Rockets 99

SEATTLE — Eddie Johnson hit the go-ahead basket with 56 seconds left and Ricky Pierce added four clinching free throws, helping the Seattle SuperSonics defeat the Houston Rockets.

Pierce scored 16 of his 31 points in the fourth quarter and helped the Sonics overcome an 86-77 deficit early in the final period.

Hakeem Olajuwon of the Rockets was 16-for-22 from the field and finished with a season-high 40 points and 19 rebounds.

Seton Hall pulls off Big East upset again

Top 25 Basketball

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — All five Seton Hall starters scored in double figures and the 25th-ranked Pirates ended what had been the longest intra-conference losing streak in the country Tuesday night with an 86-76 victory over No. 10 Syracuse.

The last time Seton Hall (14-6, 6-5) had beaten the Orangemen was Feb. 21, 1981, 23 games ago. The streak was tied with Indiana's run over Wisconsin in the Big Ten.

Syracuse (16-4, 8-4) had won 25 of the 26 previous meetings since the teams began playing in the Big East in 1979.

The streak appeared to be in jeopardy early as Syracuse missed its first 10 shots from the field and committed five turnovers, the Pirates were able to only take a 14-5 lead.

Syracuse went on a typical Orangemen run with the points coming in transition to take a 37-36 halftime lead.

Seton Hall got the lead for the first and last time in the second half on a three-point play by Jerry Walker with 15:46 to play, the first of nine consecutive points Walker would score as the Pirates took a 50-44 lead with 14:21 left.

The Pirates made effective use of a zone defense for a spell in the second half and John Leahy's four-point play with 4:57 left gave them a 70-61 lead and was the last field goal they would score until Luther Wright's three-point play on a slam dunk with 16 seconds left made it 86-76.

Georgia 64, No. 20 LSU 62

BATON ROUGE, La. — Georgia withstood a rally by 20th-ranked Louisiana State and came away with a victory behind 21 points by Kendall Rhine.

LSU (14-6 and 7-2 in the Southeastern Conference) could get its up-tempo game going only in spurts against the deliberate Bulldogs (11-9 and 4-6).

LSU took its only lead since the first point of the game at 48-47 on two free throws by Vernel Singleton.

Litterial Green, who finished with seven points, far below his average of 20 a game, hit two free throws to put Georgia back out in front, and the Bulldogs went on a 13-5 run to lead 60-53 with 4:31 to go. Rhine had six points in the run.

Shaquille O'Neal, LSU's 7-foot-1 All-American center, fouled out with 6:11 to go with 19 points, nine rebounds and seven blocked shots.

SWC Basketball

DALLAS — Chad Allen hit four free throws in the last 15 seconds Tuesday to carry Southern Methodist to a 44-38 Southwest Conference victory over Texas A&M in the lowest scoring game of the year for both teams.

The Mustangs improved to 4-5 in the SWC and 10-11 overall, while Texas A&M, losing its 12th consecutive game, dropped to 0-8 and 3-16.

In a game in which both teams shot poorly, the Aggies rallied from a 12-point deficit but couldn't produce when it counted.

Reserve Matt Haralson scored five points to pull A&M within a point at 37-36 with 3:42 to play, but the Aggies couldn't make another field goal while SMU hit seven free throws.

Mike Wilson led SMU with 14 points and 12 rebounds. David Edwards led the Aggies with nine points.

SMU held Texas A&M to its lowest scoring first half of the year as the Mustangs clamped a tight man-for-man defense on the Aggies for a 25-15 lead at intermission. A&M's previous low for a first half this season was 18 points against Missouri.

The Aggies shot only 22 percent in the first 20 minutes and Edwards missed all nine of his field goal attempts.

A&M shot 28 percent from the field for the game to 36 percent for SMU.

The 38 points was the second lowest scoring game in history for the Aggies, who scored 36 points against Texas Tech in 1966.

No. 2 Virginia one-ups No. 1 Maryland, 75-74

Women's Basketball

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP) — Second-ranked Virginia beat No. 1 Maryland 75-74 before a rare sell-out crowd Tuesday, as Heather Burge had 24 points and 17 rebounds to help the Cavaliers avenge their only loss of the season.

Dawn Staley added 19 points for Virginia, which has won eight straight since a 67-65 loss to the Terrapins. The Cavaliers (21-1 overall, 11-1 in the Atlantic Coast Conference) blew a nine-point second-half lead before holding on to snap Maryland's 11-game winning streak.

The Terrapins (20-2, 10-1) twice had a chance to take the lead in the closing seconds. First, Virginia's Dena Evans blocked a shot by Limor Mizrachi with 16 seconds left. Then, after Staley missed three front end of a 1-and-1, Maryland's Jessie Hicks missed everything on a tough shot from the baseline off an inbounds pass.

Dafne Lee led the Terrapins 23 points, including 15 straight in the second half, and Malissa Boles had 20.

Fed chief: Recovery 'hopefully' near

Rehiring is 'slow,' but economic health is coming, Greenspan says

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan conceded Tuesday that rehiring after recession cutbacks "has been particularly slow" but stuck to his view that interest rates are low enough to bring economic recovery — "hopefully in the reasonably near future."

Greenspan left open the possibility of further moves to push rates lower and stimulate business. But he said actions already taken by the central bank should be "adequate to turn the economy onto the path of sustained recovery."

He promised, as he has in other recent appearances, "We must and will continue to monitor day-to-day developments closely for validation of that judgment, and, if necessary, move toward an increased degree of monetary ease."

Greenspan spoke at a convention of the Independent Bankers Association of America, a group of small-town and country bankers.

Shortly after his remarks, the Federal Reserve drained money from the banking system for the third consecutive business day, indicating policy makers did not want short-term interest rates to fall.

Although Greenspan's comments echoed testimony delivered a week ago to Congress, they were his first since Friday when the Labor Department reported U.S. employers shed an unexpectedly large 91,000 jobs from their payrolls in January.

Analysts were split over the meaning of the speech, and financial markets showed little reaction to it.

"He's a little bit worried about the payroll number but not worried enough to change policy," said David Jones of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co. Inc., a government securities dealer in New York.

Fed policymakers "are saying in no uncertain terms ... 'Don't count on any relief soon,'" he said.

However, economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch in New York said he believed the central bank wanted to nudge rates lower soon but did not want to stir up markets until after Thursday, when the Treasury Department is to finish its three-day auction of $36 billion in government debt.

"I think the Fed is going to be easing fairly soon," he said. "Perhaps they'll ease on Friday ... but if they don't they'll ease some time in February."

In the speech, Greenspan noted the poor employment situation, pointing out that in the six months that ended in January fewer than half the nation's major industries posted employment gains.

"Rehiring has been particularly slow, and recent employment trends have been weak," he said.

On the positive side, he said lower interest rates have encouraged both consumers and businesses to reduce debt.

"I expect the payoff (from that) ... hopefully in the reasonably near future," he said.

Meanwhile, Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. Chairman William Taylor told the bankers that the drop in interest rates was among the factors contributing to an improving outlook for the banking business despite a sharp increase in assets held by problem banks.

"No one ever wants to be optimistic. It's always dangerous. ... But the facts of the matter are ... it's not all darkness," he said.

He acknowledged that when the final accounting is made, the fund insuring bank deposits likely will be shown to have been in the red at the end of 1991, requiring it to dip into the $30 billion line of credit provided by Congress just before Thanksgiving.

Prices tumble

NEW YORK — Oil prices took a sudden, sharp tumble Tuesday, even though OPEC ministers were gathering in Geneva to discuss production cuts.

West Texas Intermediate for delivery in March settled at $19.28 per barrel, down 50 cents, at the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Local crude purchasers such as Scurlock Permian lowered their posted price 50 cents to $18 per barrel; Texaco Trading and Transportation lowered its price 75 cents to that level.

"The decline is somewhat surprising ahead of the OPEC confab," said Andrew Lebow, a senior oil broker and analyst with E.D.&F Man International Futures Inc.

Other oil market experts agreed Tuesday's price fall made little sense.

Traders are generally reluctant to sell oil on the eve of any OPEC meeting, and one analyst suggested some market participants may have gotten some inside information.

Such trading is perfectly legal in the oil futures market, unlike the stock market, though it creates headaches for those who are trading in the dark.

After the oil market was closed, the American Petroleum Institute reported Tuesday evening that the nation's supplies of home heating oil and gasoline fell last week, while refineries increased their output and the stockpile of crude oil was slightly higher.

The supply of distillates, which include home heating oil, fell 5.5 million barrels, to 122.5 million, for the week ending Friday. The supply of gasoline fell 1.8 million barrels, to 228.3 million barrels.

The supply of crude oil rose 0.6 million barrels, to 334.9.

Dollar gains

NEW YORK — The dollar closed higher Tuesday as expectations of an imminent cut in interest rates subsided.

The dollar rose to 127.55 Japanese yen in New York from 126.70 on Monday.

The British pound fell against the dollar, slipping to $1.7970 in New York from late Monday's $1.8190.

Market rises

NEW YORK — The stock market settled modestly higher Tuesday in directionless trading.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials added 6.49 to close at 3,251.57.

Advancing issues outnumbered declining ones by about 9 to 7 on the New York Stock Exchange.

Home prices post big jumps in some areas

- Increases occur in inland cities where housing often is less expensive, survey shows.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Despite a stalled national economy, consumers forced up existing home prices at double-digit rates in 23 U.S. cities in the October-December quarter, a real estate trade group said Tuesday.

The big increases occurred in inland cities where housing often is less expensive than that in coastal metropolitan areas, according to a survey by the National Association of Realtors.

Existing home prices compared to the same quarter of 1990 rose in all but seven of the 117 metropolitan areas as falling mortgage rates triggered heavy demand, particularly in the lower price range, despite an anemic economy.

Home buyers in Spokane, Wash., 300 miles from the Pacific coast, saw the median price soar 19 percent, to $67,500. The typical price jumped 16.7 percent, to $72,700, in Baton Rouge, La., which is 100 miles from the Gulf coast; and 16.4 percent, to $58,300, in Peoria, Ill.

The median means that half of the homes cost more and half cost less.

At the same time, prices fell 0.2 percent, to $119,500, in Providence, R.I., while rising just 1.1 percent, to 209,900, in Los Angeles on the other coast.

Regionally, the median price rose 7.9 percent, to $77,700, in the Midwest and 6.3 percent, to $88,400, in the South. Combined, that was nearly three times the meager 3.6 percent gain in the West, to $142,700, and 1.8 percent advance in the Northeast, to $137,300.

The national median for the fourth quarter was $99,000, 7.4 percent higher than the fourth quarter of 1990. Forty-five areas had price gains exceeding the national increase.

Sales increased in all four regions from fourth quarter to fourth quarter.

"When a lot of buyers start coming into the market at the same time, prices are going to move up," said Realtors economist John A. Tuccillo.

Airline slowdowns won't make skies friendlier

By Dirk Beveridge
Associated Press writer

NEW YORK — First, the recession devastated earnings at the nation's airlines. Now, it's forcing a sobering reduction in growth plans at the two biggest carriers.

At first blush, one might think slower expansion could make the aviation superpowers, American Airlines and United Airlines, a little less of a threat to their weaker rivals.

But experts said Tuesday that less spending on airplanes and other equipment at two of the so-called "mega-carriers" won't make life easier for smaller carriers. It does, however, raise questions about whether the third-largest U.S. carrier, Delta Air Lines, could soon announce reductions in its own expansion plans.

The airlines have been put into a financial tailspin, first by the Persian Gulf crisis, which raised fuel prices and spooked passengers, and second by the recession, which cut into demand for air travel and prompted struggling carriers to initiate harmful fare sales.

"If it's tough on the big guys, the strong guys, it's 10 times as tough on the people that are already in financial difficulty," said Lee Howard, president and chief executive of Airline Economics Inc., a Washington-based aviation consulting firm.

But the biggest airlines acknowledge they need to slow the pace of their dizzying growth.

Chicago-based United announced on Monday that it was cutting its capital spending plans through 1995 by about $6.7 billion, to $12.2 billion. United will achieve this cut by taking delivery of 156 aircraft during that period instead of its initial goal of getting 278 new planes.

United's move follows that of archrival American Airlines. American, based in Fort Worth, Texas, announced in November it would trim $8 billion from a $22 billion capital spending plan. That would scale back the planned size of American's aircraft fleet by 93 aircraft at the end of 1995, athough the fleet would still be substantially larger than it is now.

The big carriers have achieved much of their growth at the expense of the industry's weaklings, buying prized international routes from such carriers as Pan American World Airways and Trans World Airlines before Pan Am and TWA went into bankruptcy.

Tumbling school jumps onto Midland scene

By Mella McEwen

New Midlanders Michael and Mary Ann Hooper have opened MIDLAND TRAMPOLINE AND TUMBLING SCHOOL at 5025 Princeton, Suite 5 in the Princeton Office Park.

McEwen

Michael, Hooper, the coach, said the school teaches competitive and non-competitive tumbling and trampoline for ages 2 and up, with classes from 9 a.m. through 7 p.m. The classes are for all levels, from beginner through elite.

The Hoopers are members of the Southwest Trampoline and Tumbling Association and American Trampoline and Tumbling Association and the school is safety-certified.

He has two years' coaching experience with the Acrospirits of Levelland and Lamesa — where he still serves as assistant coach; and three years judging experience. His 9-year-old daughter last year went to the national championships in her advanced age group and placed seventh in the nation on trampoline and ninth on mini-trampoline.

Lessons are $25 a month for one lesson a week, $35 for two lessons a week. Lessons are an hour long.

Burton Stovall, owner of Stovall's Scuba Center, and James Welty, formerly assistant manager at Ski Skellar Sports, have formed ASI INVESTMENT GROUP INC.

The duo opened Adventure Sports & Clothiers last year in Sunset Mall in San Angelo, specializing in snow skiing, scuba diving, windsurfing, in-line skates, bicycles, hiking and camping plus active wear for all seasons.

Now the operation is coming to Midland in La Villa shopping center, Midkiff Road and Wadley Avenue. It will be a combination of Stovall's Scuba Center and Adventure Sports & Clothiers under the same roof at Stovall's Scuba Center.

Stovall's will continue to focus on scuba diving and Adventure Sports & Clothiers will initially focus on windsurfing, water skiing, climbing and swimwear, adjusting as the seasons change.

OLYMPICS: Skiiers all share misery of difficult Russi downhill course

(From 1C)

of Poland, whose 0-2 team does not.

Despite moving into position today for a sweep of the women's singles luge medals and a possible gold in the men's Nordic combined, Austria didn't know whether to celebrate continued wild success at the Winter Games or bemoan two sad setbacks.

Sabine Ginther, one of the biggest stars in women's skiing and a possible triple Olympic medalist, broke a bone in her back Tuesday and was being sent home to Austria.

Fellow Austrian Hubert Strolz was only 100 feet from becoming the first Alpine skier to win the same event in two Olympics when he skidded off a bump and missed a gate in the final slalom run of the men's Alpine combined.

That slip gave the gold to an Italian skier who leaves all the "La Bomba" bombast to Alberto Tomba. Josef Polig, a shy 23-year-old who works in his mother's food store back home, called himself lucky and said his victory was "a gift."

"Now it's up to Alberto to improve our Olympic record," Polig ventured.

Three women from Austria, headed by sisters Doris and Angelika Neuner, led the luge singles going into today's final two runs. Cammy Myler and Erica Terwillegar, both of Lake Placid, N.Y., stood sixth and seventh with lingering medal hopes.

Several top men's and women's skiers share a common misery at these Olympics: Their medal hopes have been devoured by a downhill course designed by Bernhard Russi, the 1972 Olympic downhill champion from Switzerland.

The latest was Ginther, who had been the favorite in the women's combined. A non-contender, Wendy Fisher of Incline Village, Nev., also was knocked out of the Games in a separate spill on the tough women's downhill course Tuesday.

Several athletes collapsed in exhaustion at the finish of the first-ever women's Olympic biathlon competition Tuesday. Anfissa Reztsova, a Russian competing for the Unified Team, drew on her cross-country strength to endure the tough, mile-high course and claim the gold medal in the 7.5-kilometer race.

The victory also made her the first woman to win gold medals in two different Winter Olympics sports. Reztsova won a gold medal in the Soviet cross-country relay team at the 1988 Olympics in Calgary and had a silver medal in the 20K before learning the marksmanship skills required in the biathlon.

The winning Unified Team skating pairs couple was disappointed not to celebrate their heritage in their moment of triumph atop the medals stand Tuesday night.

"I like my anthem, the Russian anthem, and the Russian flag. It's not good for me" to not hear and see them, Mishkutienok said in halting English.

America's "Blue Collar Couple" — waitress Urbanski and truck driver Marval — was chagrined after an abysmal showing in front of a supportive crowd full of Americans. Urbanski landed on Marval's skate during a split triple twist early in the program, and things got worse from there.

"It was not to our standards, not really acceptable," Urbanski said. "We haven't had a really bad performance yet and we can learn from it."

Clemens, rookies honored at baseball banquet

HOUSTON (AP) — American and National League rookies of the year Chuck Knoblauch of Minnesota and Jeff Bagwell of Houston and AL Cy Young Award winner Roger Clemens were honored Tuesday night at the seventh annual Houston Baseball Dinner.

Knoblauch jumped from Class AA in 1990 to become the Twins' starting second baseman, helping them win the World Series. He hit .281, drove in 50 runs and stole 25 bases and hit .308 in the World Series against the Atlanta Braves.

Clemens, who lives in nearby Katy and pitched for the Texas Longhorns, earned his third Cy Young Award. He compiled an 18-10 record with a 2.62 earned run average. He struck out a league-leading 241 and walked 65 in 271.1 innings.

Bagwell also was honored as the Astros' most valuable player in 1991 and became the Astros' first NL rookie of the year. He hit .294, second on the team to Craig Biggio, and led the Astros with 82 RBI.

Former Houston schoolboy and Longhorn pitcher Greg Swindell received the AL's Consort Control Award. Swindell, traded this winter from Cleveland to the Cincinnati Reds, walked only 31 batters in 238 innings for a league best average of 1.17 per nine innings.

Casey Candaele, who started at five possitions and batted .262 last season, earned the Astros "Mr. Hustle" award and former Houston Post sports editor Clark Nealon won the Fred Hartman Award for long and meritorious service to baseball.

The award was renamed this year in honor of Hartman, the late editor of the Baytown Sun and longtime secretary-treasurer of the Houston chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America. Hartman was a previous winner of the honor.

Bush steps up campaign, readies attack

WASHINGTON (NYT)— In a sign of lingering concern over Patrick J. Buchanan's presidential challenge, President Bush's announcement of his candidacy on Wednesday will kick off a sharply accelerated New Hampshire campaign in which the Bush camp has added events and laid plans for an attack on Buchanan if it proves necessary.

Initially hoping to reduce the importance of Buchanan by ignoring him, the Bush organization had planned to keep the president's visits to the state to a minimum and to rely primarily on surrogate campaigners, like his wife, Barbara, as well as television advertisements and interviews conducted by way of satellite from the Oval Office.

But opinion polls showing that Bush enjoyed a surge in popularity after his last visit on Jan. 15, and then slumped again during his absence of more than three weeks, prompted the campaign to expand Bush's personal schedule in New Hampshire.

The president will spend the entire weekend there before Tuesday's vote, instead of the one-day trip on Saturday that was scheduled. Bush will announce his candidacy during a speech to about 1,000 supporters at a Washington hotel and a subsequent appearance before the New Hampshire Legislature on Wednesday.

As Bush prepared for his visit to New Hampshire on Wednesday, his efforts were complicated by a new series of television advertisements being run by Buchanan, a conservative columnist, that strike Bush on the same weak flank that the Democrats have made a target — painting him as indifferent to Americans' everday concerns.

"Until I came up and announced my candidacy, those people in Washington behaved as if they did not care," Buchanan says in a new television commercial. He adds: "Those who did this to you have forgotten you and walked away from you. Together, you and I can take America back and make her great again."

Even if Buchanan is not a serious threat to Bush's re-election, as the Bush campaign believes, his new attack on the president highlights the way his challenge vexes Republican strategists: it only serves to reinforce the Democrats' arguments at a time when the president had hoped to be coasting through a relatively smooth primary season.

Instead, the Bush campaign has been forced to confront Buchanan, developing a strategy that Bush aides described as an effort to wound Buchanan as much as possible in New Hampshire and then to eliminate him entirely in the next big day of contests, on March 3, when Buchanan is challenging Bush in the Georgia and Maryland primaries.

Bush aides hope to be rid of Buchanan well before the June 2 primary in California. They believe a contest could complicate Bush's position in the nation's most populous state, which Republicans fear the president could lose in the general election.

Appearing before the New Hampshire Legislature on Tuesday, Buchanan delivered the sort of tough, protectionist message that the Bush campaign hopes will prove unappealing to voters,

Dahmer escaped six close calls, police say

MILWAUKEE (AP) — An officer who was fired for taking a 14-year-old boy back to Jeffrey Dahmer's apartment, where the youth later was killed and dismembered, testified Tuesday that Dahmer "appeared to be a normal person."

The encounter was the last of several times Dahmer evaded police detection during a 13-year period in which he killed and mutilated 17 young males, according to testimony during Dahmer's insanity trial.

Defense attorney Gerald Boyle contends Dahmer had an uncontrollable sexual attraction to corpses, driving him to kill. But prosecutor E. Michael McCann says Dahmer could have controlled himself.

In other testimony Tuesday, Dahmer's former apartment manager, Sopa Princewell, said he confronted Dahmer several times about a strong odor coming from Dahmer's apartment. The smell later was identified as that of body parts.

Dahmer told him the smell was caused by a broken freezer and a fish tank, Princewell said.

Former officer John Balcerzak and his former partner Joseph Gabrish encountered Dahmer on May 27 while responding to a call about a naked, dazed boy on the street. Dahmer told them the boy, later identified as 14-year-old Konerak Sinthasomphone, was his adult, homosexual lover.

They left his apartment after they saw photographs of the boy posing in black, bikini underwear, which led them to believe Dahmer was telling the truth, Balcerzak said.

"He remained calm and forthright throughout the entire interview," Balcerzak said of Dahmer. "He appeared to be a normal person."

Balcerzak and Gabrish were fired after Dahmer told police following his July 22 arrest that the boy was among 11 victims whose dismembered body parts were found in his apartment.

Dahmer told police he killed the boy soon after the officers left. He said if the officers had looked in the next room, they would have found skulls, frozen body parts, severed heads, torsos in an acid-filled vat and preserved genitals.

Earlier testimony showed that Dahmer had at least four other close calls with police:

■ He first dodged police in 1979 when he killed an 18-year-old, his first victim, in Ohio and put the dismembered body in a car to take to a dump. Dahmer told authorities an officer stopped him on suspicion of drunken driving, flashed a light in the back seat of the car and allowed him to drive away after Dahmer said the plastic bags there contained garbage.

■ Two police officers testified that they found nothing unusual about Dahmer when they questioned him in 1988 about a man's claim that Dahmer robbed and drugged him at Dahmer's grandmother's suburban Milwaukee home. Police dropped the case after Dahmer denied the allegations.

■ Police Lt. Scott Schaefer testified that Dahmer helped officers search his apartment for evidence after being arrested in 1988 for sexually assaulting a teen-age boy. Dahmer was later convicted and served nine months in jail.

■ Dahmer admitted hitting a 15-year-old boy on the head with a rubber mallet after luring him to the apartment with plans to kill him in 1990. The boy reported the attack to police, but records show they never questioned Dahmer.

Dahmer has pleaded guilty but insane to 15 slayings in Milwaukee. The jury's verdict will decide whether he goes to prison or a mental hospital.

He is not charged with one Wisconsin killing because of insufficient evidence, and he will stand trial later for the Ohio slaying.

Court refuses to block return of refugees

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court refused to block the forced return of Haitian refugees to their homeland Tuesday, but left open the possibility it could take such action later this week.

The court gave the Bush administration until Friday to respond to an emergency request, filed Monday by lawyers for the refugees and aimed at halting all repatriations.

The request said returned Haitians face political persecution at home, and alleged that U.S. officials know that some already-repatriated Haitians have been "tortured, killed or persecuted."

Only Justice Harry A. Blackmun voted Tuesday to block the forced returns to Haiti pending the administration's response and further court action.

The court is not expected to rule further in the case until receiving the response from Justice Department lawyers.

Arthur C. Helton, director of the Refugee Project of the Lawyers Committee for Human Rights, voiced dismay at the Supreme Court action, and said State Department investigations into reports of abuses of returned Haitians "have been cursory and dismissive."

"The burden of proof is now on the government to show that Haitians do not face danger upon return to Haiti," Helton said.

Meanwhile, repatriation efforts are continuing.

A total of 510 Haitians were returned home Monday from the Guantanamo Bay naval base in Cuba, State Department spokesman Richard Boucher said.

About 500 Haitians are due to be sent back Wednesday, with further repatriation scheduled for Thursday and Friday, he said.

Democrats start playing rough in New Hampshire

MANCHESTER, N.H. (NYT) — Elbows were flying in the Democratic primary race Tuesday.

In a rough new phase of the New Hampshire campaign, there were sharp attacks, emotional radio and television ads, last-minute image shaping, and in every camp a keen recognition that unpredictable New Hampshire was living up to its reputation as the days ticked down to the Feb. 18 primary.

Gov. Bill Clinton of Arkansas, who has watched his lead in the polls evaporate over the past four days amid accusations of marital infidelity in a supermarket tabloid and questions about his draft status during the Vietnam War, mounted a new television campaign intended to capitalize on his wounds by presenting him as populist martyr.

Echoing a powerful theme in Southern politics, Clinton's advertisements plead with the voters, "Send a message to Washington and Wall Street and to the tabloids."

Looking straight into the camera, Clinton concludes: "This is your election, your economy, your country. Take it back."

Former Sen. Paul E. Tsongas of Massachusetts, meanwhile, was glowing with his new status as the candidate running neck and neck with Clinton in the New Hampshire polls.

But he took the opportunity to reiterate his against-the-grain economic message, as the Democrat who calls for a cut in the tax on capital gains to encourage long-term investment and rejects tax cuts for the middle class.

"My economic views are different," he said, campaigning Tuesday, "not only from Governor Clinton's but from every other Democrat and from George Bush."

Sen. Tom Harkin of Iowa meanwhile was touting the mandate from his native state as he flew back to New Hampshire on Tuesday. Harkin captured 76.5 percent of the vote in Monday's caucuses, based on returns from 97 percent of the precincts.

After brandishing hometown headlines about his success, and brushing aside the fact that his rivals largely ceded him the contest in his native state, Harkin immediately sought to reassert his theme that he is the unashamed, true-believing orthodox Democrat in the race.

He did so, in part, with an attack on Tsongas. Harkin asserted that Tsongas was esssentially preaching Reaganomics and was still buying into the theory that a cut in the tax on capital gains would trickle down to help the middle class.

"I think his mindset is right where Reagan and Bush are," the Iowan said.

Sen. Bob Kerrey of Nebraska, who is running close to Harkin in the polls in New Hampshire, was concentrating on boosting his "presidential image" — and the president he most preferred to be compared with was John F. Kennedy.

Kerrey, is trying to convert what many poll takers say is an undeveloped foundation of personal popularity into presidential support. Tuesday, he was campaigning on the steps of the Nashua City Hall, where Kennedy made his first campaign stop of the 1960 race, and where a bust of the slain president was conveniently available for the television camera crews.

With Kerrey was Sen. Daniel P. Moynihan of New York, who noted that Kennedy called for a "new generation" of leadership. "He was right then," Moynihan said. "And Bob Kerrey is right today."

All of the candidates were scrambling to adjust to a shifting political reality — an electorate that seems to skitter among the candidates, searching for an answer to their recessionary woes, but still uneasy with a field of men who arrived late and are still trying to close the sale.

"It's become a classic New Hampshire primary," said George Bruno, a former state Democratic chairman.

Report finds girls have unequal opportunities in school

By Susan Chira
N.Y. Times News Service

School is still a place of unequal opportunity, where girls face discrimination from teachers, textbooks, tests and their male classmates, according to a report being released Wednesday that examined virtually all major studies on girls and education.

Girls and boys start school roughly equal in skills and confidence, but girls trail by the end of high school, said the study, "How Schools Shortchange Women: The AAUW Report," commissioned by the American Association of University Women Education Foundation.

"This latest report presents the truth behind another myth — that boys and girls receive equal education," said Alice McKee, president of the AAUW Educational Foundation, in the report's foreword. "The wealth of statistical evidence must convince even the most skeptical that gender bias in our schools is shortchanging girls — and compromising our country."

For the report, researchers at the Wellesley College Center for Research on Women examined more than 1,000 publications about girls and education, including hundreds of research studies. From the material, most of it from the 1980s, the researchers concluded that:

- Teachers pay less attention to girls than boys.
- Girls still lag in mathematics and science scores, and even those who do well in those subjects tend not to choose math and science careers.
- Reports of sexual harassment of girls by their male classmates is increasing.
- Some tests remain biased against girls, hurting their chances of scholarships and getting into college.
- School textbooks still ignore or stereotype women, and girls learn almost nothing in school about many of their most pressing problems, such as sexual abuse, discrimination, and depression.

"This is truly a wake-up call to the nation's education and policy leaders, parents, administrators and guidance counselors that unless we pay attention to girls' needs today, we will find out 15 years from now that there is still a glass ceiling," said Anne Bryant, executive director of the association. The report addressed the experiences of girls in public schools from preschool through high school.

The report does acknowledge that girls generally get better grades than boys, but it argues that, when all their school experiences are examined, girls are still shortchanged.

And the U.S. Department of Education says that 61.6 percent of the girls who graduated from high school in 1989 were enrolled in college that fall, as against 57.6 percent of the boys.

The report makes 40 recommendations, including training teachers and changing teaching methods to meet girls' needs, encouraging girls in mathematics and science, toughening school policies against sexual harassment and placing girls' problems on the agenda of education reformers.

1872 Mining Act still intact for today's gold prospectors

By Dirk Johnson
N.Y. Times News Service

CARLIN, Nev. — Like the wizened old prospectors with a pick, a shovel and a dream, today's gold miners search for treasures in the public lands of the West.

But they use explosives rather than picks, carve holes 600 feet into the earth and haul ore on trucks so huge the tires are 13 feet tall.

Using the latest technology, the Barrick Gold Strike Mine here in the foothills of the Tuscarora Mountains recovered more than 500,000 ounces of gold last year.

But like its pick-and-shovel forebears, Barrick did not pay a cent in Federal royalties on the $175 million worth of gold it took from public land.

While mining has changed substantially, the 1872 Mining Act has not.

Under the law, which was signed by President Ulysses S. Grant to encourage settlement of the West, prospectors who stake a mineral claim are not required to pay for using the land or to pay royalties on the minerals it takes.

The Mining Act, which is headed for a showdown in Congress soon, has become the latest battleground in the debate over the best uses of public lands in the West.

Like earlier battles over grazing fees and logging rights, the mining issue tends to pit urban environmentalists against rural Westerners who work the land. And it raises the question of how much of the Old West culture and economy is appropriate for the New West.

SEN. DALE BUMPERS, D-Ark., has called the Mining Act "a license to steal." He has sponsored a bill, which has been through subcommittee hearings, that would impose a 5 percent royalty on minerals.

That would bring $200 million a year to the federal treasury, based on government estimates of $4 billion worth of minerals removed from federal land every year.

The bill would set aside a third of the money for environmental cleanup of old mines and would establish stiffer standards for reclamation, the practice of returning mined land to its original condition.

The measure would also grant broader discretion to officials in the Bureau of Land Management and the Forest Service to reject unsuitable efforts to mine public lands.

A similar bill, sponsored by Rep. Nick J. Rahall 2d, D-W.Va., would not impose royalties.

The Mining Act has remained intact as politicians in Western states have joined forces with conservatives in other parts of the country to beat back efforts to change it.

"But this year, we feel we have the best shot at completely rewriting this law that we've had in a long time," said Katherine Holmann, a lawyer with the Sierra Club, who says there is now enough support in Congress to pass the Bumpers bill.

MINING INDUSTRY OFFICIALS say that provisions in that bill would be crippling, resulting in a loss of 30,000 jobs in Western states.

They say the proposal would simply spur mining companies to move to other countries with looser restrictions.

State governments that rely heavily on local taxes on mining companies would see their treasuries dwindle; in Nevada alone, mining companies paid $78.6 million in state taxes in 1990.

And rural economies in the West, the miners say, would become even more dependent on jobs in tourism, which rarely pay anywhere near the $15-an-hour wages that the average mine worker earns.

The mining industry says the proposal would hurt communities like Elko, which is about an hour away from the Barrick mine. Because of the mine, Elko has grown to about 22,000 from 12,000 in the past six years.

Under the Mining Act, anyone who finds commercial minerals on public lands must establish a claim with the federal government to obtain mining rights.

If a mining company wishes, it can "patent" 20-acre tracts for $5 or less, transferring ownership to private hands. Up to now, some 3.2 million acres of public land, an area about the size of Connecticut, have been sold under this patenting process.

IN SOME CASES, the law has allowed people to buy federal land and make millions of dollars in profits by converting the property to ski resorts, golf courses and condominiums.

Mining officials denounce such abuses.

But they contend that the government could stop such scams, which have been well-publicized, without drastically changing the 1872 Act. They also say they would not oppose the payment of holding fees on public lands.

But 5 percent royalties on the selling price of the gold, as called for in the Bumpers bill, would put many mines out of business, they contend.

"The mining industry doesn't have any philosophical problems with paying a royalty; they just can't afford it," said Steve Alfers, a Denver lawyer who worked on a study of the potential effects of proposed mining law changes.

"They just don't have those margins. Look at the arithmetic. The average cost of producing an ounce of gold is $317. The finished price of gold is $350. With a 5 percent royalty, you're talking about 50 percent of that margin. It's just too high."

Oil and gas producers pay leasing fees of 12.5 percent. Coal producers pay an 8 percent royalty. But mining officials say the cost of mineral exploration is much higher. Companies spend hundreds of millions of dollars in exploration before finding a rich lode, they say.

Mineral mining endured hard times in the 1970s and 1980s, when employment fell nearly 30 percent. Experts on Western economy say another severe blow would be devastating.

John Knebel, president of the American Mining Congress, argues that changes in the law "wouldn't just hurt mine workers in the West."

"If we have to cut projects, and stop buying machinery, then the guy on the line at the Caterpillar plant in Illinois, where they make the tractors, he goes out of a job," Knebel said.

THIS ARID, DESOLATE stretch of northeast Nevada is the ancient homeland of the Shoshone Indians, and many members of the tribe now work for the mine. Most mine workers live in Elko, where Barrick has subsidized the construction of more than 100 homes.

The company, which has about 1,200 workers, contributes $3,000 toward the college or trade school education of each employee's child.

Photo of alleged MIA was fraud, ABC news says

WASHINGTON (AP) — A color photograph purportedly showing a missing soldier from the Vietnam War alive in a prison camp was a fraud distributed by a POW-MIA hunter who has raised more than $3 million, ABC News reported Tuesday night.

Unlike several blurry photos of MIAs dismissed as fakes in recent years, the alleged photo of Army Maj. Donald G. Carr was so clear and convincing that the Pentagon launched a full investigation last year.

Carr has been missing since 1971, when his plane crashed in Laos. His family was encouraged when the photo of a man looking like Carr, middle-aged and wearing a blue knit shirt, surfaced last summer.

But ABC News reported its investigation found the photo was not of Carr in a Laotian prison camp as purported but rather of a man believed now to be living in Germany who resembled him.

The photo was taken at an exotic bird export company outside Bangkok, Thailand, the owner of the company told ABC.

Pentagon spokesman Steve Little said U.S. investigators have also determined the alleged photo of Carr was actually taken of a "third-country" citizen living in Thailand.

Little said the Pentagon was continuing to investigate the photo and also was trying to locate the site in Laos where the plane carrying Carr and a pilot crashed 20 years ago. Neither has been found.

Sen. John McCain, R-Ariz., a former POW, demanded a full investigation of Jack Bailey, the retired Air Force colonel and self-described POW hunter who surfaced with the photo last year.

In the last eight years Bailey's "Operation Rescue" has raised more than $3 million for the POW-MIA cause, ABC reported.

"If the family members are being deceived, not only monetarily but emotionally, this kind of thing has to be brought to a stop," McCain told the network.

When confronted that the photo was a fraud, Bailey punched ABC reporter James Walker in the face and threatened to break his neck, the network reported.

COLONIAL TABLE AND BENCH

The trestle table and benches pictured here were designed for a breakfast nook, but may also be used to convert other places in your home into cozy corners. We gave these pieces a natural finish, but you may also antique them in a dark, distressed finish or paint them to match your decor. Simply trace the pattern onto wood, saw out the parts and assemble. The legs should be available at home centers.

SELLER Dennis Lee Elam, Chapter 7 Trustee, will auction these properties without minimum to the highest bidder on February 28, 1992 at 1:30 pm. Bidders may vist with the Trustee and his attorney concerning any questions about the sale prior to that time.

SALE SITE The auction will be conducted at the Holiday Inn Centre, Odessa, Texas 915/362-2311. The location is west of the Midland Airport on 6201 East Highway 80.

INSPECTION The plant will be open for inspection Friday, February 21, 1992 from 9:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Bidders are invited to visit the site at that time and inspect the equipment. Bidders are urged to inspect the plant to satisfy themselves of its condition.

INFORMATION The Trustee has an information package available. The package gives a property inventory and legal description of the plant. The information package is available at a cost of $30.00. The information package contains information from consultants detailing the presence of asbestos at the plant. All prospective purchasers are urged to familiarize themselves with the contents of this information package, including all references therein to the presence of asbestos at the plant.

CONDITIONS OF SALE There is no warranty or guarantee intended or implied by the Trustee. The plant is being sold "as is", "where is", without recourse and without express or implied warranties of merchantability or fitness for a particular purpose. Bidders are required to exercise due diligence with respect to the plant's environmental condition. Buyer is responsible to satisfy himself prior to the auction as to the information concerning and condition of the plant and interest being sold, including the presence of asbestos at the plant and its consequent effects upon the plant's value and feasibility.

The property and plant will be sold free and clear of liens and encumbrances, pursuant to 11 U.S.C. S353 and Court's AGREED ORDER on MOTION of DENNIS LEE ELAM, Chapter 7 Trustee, for AUTHORIZATION for SALE of PROPERTY FREE of LIENS.

The properties will be sold subject to any existing joint operating agreement, gas purchase contract, farm-out contract, farm-in contract, preferential right to purchase and/ or any other existing contracts of any nature whatsoever found or involved in oil and gas operations and properties as well as any other matters of record in the county where a property is located and TITLE DEFECTS PRESENTLY EXISTING, if any. Buyer assumes the responsibility of notifying proper parties in order to assume rights of record.

TERMS All purchases are to be paid in U.S. Funds the day of the auction by cash, cashier's check or company check accompanied by bank letter of credit guaranteeing payment. No Exceptions. Full Settlement to be made pursuant to clearing of funds and deposit in the Trustee's bank account.
