Paving the Way—
From Canned Milk—
Mean Grafters—
A Big Heart—

The Womans' Forum scores a notable success in its Marion Talley concert, with the greatest crowd ever to attend such an event in Wichita Falls. The writer knows nothing about the business of promoting such things, but it seems that by its success with Miss Talley, the Forum has made the way easier for other artists for John McCormack and the opera company wich are already booked here later in the season. Once the public has been able to secure good music, and has learned to appreciate the nation's finest artists, it demands the best. But it also is willing to pay for the best and to turn out to see and hear the best talent in the world of music or art.

Bowie is one of the leading small towns of Northwest Texas, and the largest town in Montague county. According to news dispatches, Bowie ships out 20,000 pounds of butter fat each day. Two years ago there was one milk station and one creamery there. Now there are one creamery and six milk stations. Not many years ago canned milk had the call in Bowie and surrounding counties. Now the dairy cow has the call, and according to agricultural agents, a good dairy cow is the hardest animal in West Texas to buy.

Miss Myrtle Neely, executive secretary of the Welfare board is going to start a new drive as soon as she is liberated from the Community Chest campaign. Miss Neely is going after the beggars who have started drifting into the city. Most beggars make an excellent living, and one was seen on the streets here who owns about $35,000 worth of property in Fort Worth. They should be made to move on, or if they are in actual want, should apply to welfare headquarters for aid. Kind hearted people who are ever willing to dig down for those in want, should not be imposed upon by this meanest type of grafter.

Little Miss May Paterson, who carries a mighty heart in her small body, writes a letter to The Record News saying that even had her skate not broken in the Thanksgiving marathon race, she would not have been able to defeat her opponent. This girl, not yet 12, is a true sportsman. So were the other contestants in the event. All were required to sign a pledge not to foul or receive any assistance. The pledge was unnecessary, for they cheered each other along on the long grind, and the winners were first to greet the losers, and the losers were the first to congratulate the winners when the race was over. If the courage and spirit shown by these young men and women is typical of this city, then Wichita Falls has cause to be proud of the spirit of its younger generation.

Football season is all over but the selection of mythical all-star teams. Now is the time to think what Wichita Falls will do for a playing field next year. This is the last year which Supdder park will be available, it is said. The type of young men which Coaches Ludgate and McCullum, and others in this city and section, keep on their football teams deserves a real gridiron and a real grandstand or stadium. Interest in football is never going to decrease. Wichita Falls should start building now for the future.

Leon Horn is elected chairman of the Texas Electric Service company safety council, a deserved honor by his fellow workers Mr. Horn is active in the Wichita Falls Safety Council. He keeps things moving with his own company. The newspapers tell a daily story of the tragic need of more such work and workers in Texas.

LOWELL CLARK SUFFERING OF SKULL INJURY

Boy, 8, Run Over By Car On Iowa Park Road Saturday Noon

DRIVER UNIDENTIFIED

Operator of Auto Shops To Render Aid After Accident

Shortly after one o'clock Sunday morning, Lowell Clark, 8, who had since early Saturday afternoon been unconscious after being struck by an automobile on the Iowa Park road was still in an unchanged condition, his chances for recovery being called critical.

As midnight approached Saturday night, physicians at the Wichita General hospital held grave fears for the life of Lowell James Clark, 8-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Clark, who had failed to regain consciousness nearly 12 hours after he was struck by an automobile just outside of the city limits on the Iowa Park road.

Fights For Life

Brought to the hospital about 1:30 o'clock in a Merkle ambulance, the boy was found to be suffering from a concussion of the brain, in addition to lacerations and bruises over his body, and physicians held small hope for his life. Fighting bravely, the boy improved late in the afternoon, only to lapse into convulsions about 10 o'clock, when physicians were forced to drain about an ounce of blood from the brain, which had congested from brain hemorrhages. Should the hemorrhages continue an operation probably will be necessary Sunday morning, it was said.

Clark was knocked down by an automobile on the Iowa Park road near the Ideal dairy, of which his father is an employe. Witnesses to the accident told physicians it was unavoidable, as the boy stepped from behind a large truck parked by the side of the road, to be struck by the passing car. Police at a late hour Saturday night had not learned the name of the driver.

Driver's Name Not Known

Early Sunday morning, J. M. Clark, father of the injured boy, declared that he had not learned the name of the driver of the car which struck his boy. It was reported, however, that the driver stopped after the accident and rendered aid. No record of his name was made however according to information at the hospital and at police headquarters.

POSSE DELAYED AND LOSE MEN

Robbers Who Got $30,000 Make Getaway

BEARDEN, Ark., Nov. 26. (AP)—Posses, off to a belated start because of the forcible detention of the town marshal, failed today to intercept five middle-aged men who robbed the Farmers and Merchants bank of aproximately $30,000 during the night.

The robbers, riding in an automobile bearing a Texas license, arrived in the town about 1 o'clock. Seizing Tom Pierce, town marshal, they locked him in a warehouse. Later they took him to the bank and held him while they worked deliberately with an acetylene torch until they opened the safe.

After gathering up the money, the robbers took Pierce to a refrigerator car about 50 yards away and locked him up. Pete Culp, an early worker, happened along and he too was placed in the car.

Trainmen found the two men several hours later. Pierce immediately organized for pursuit, but by that time the robbers had escaped.

Armistice Rumored Signed By Chicago's Gangland Warriors

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Reports of an armistice between two factions of rival Chicago gangsters fighting for control of gambling and bootlegging did not deter the police today from continuing their war against both factions.

More than 50 men were arrested last night when squads of detectives invaded the boxing match at the Coliseum in search of gang suspects, were in jail today and were likely to remain there until Monday despite strenuous efforts of some of them to gain their liberty.

The police said they would give all the gangsters a chance "to cool off" and did not intend to book any of them until the first of the week unless it became necessary to do so to hold them in custody.

While the reports of the armistice were being broadcast, the peace of Blue Island, a suburb, was disturbed by the second bomb explosion of the past two weeks, the target in each case being a gambling house. The police were endeavoring to determine whether the bombs were the result of the gang war or labor troubles.

WIFE REFUSES TO TALK AFTER HUSBAND SHOT

Herman Dees, of Houston, Shot to Death In Front Of Show

POLICE JAIL MATE

Mrs. Minnie Dees Silent On Event Leading To Shooting

HOUSTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—Mrs. Minnie Dees, held in jail here on the charge of murder, steadfastly refused Saturday to explain events leading up to the shooting during the forenoon of her husband, Herman V. Dees, who was killed on the sidewalk at a motion picture theater where he was house manager.

Dees was shot four times, according to Justice Campbell Overstreet, in contrast to an earlier report that while four shots were fired, but two took effect. Two bullets, the justice found, entered Dees' back, one in the spine at about the level of the shoulders and the other through his cheek. The other bullets struck him from the front, the justice said, one entering his right breast and the other his stomach.

Within a few moments the street was choked with a crowd milling about Dees who had fallen into the street. Members of the crowd carried him into the theater entrance. Thence he was taken to a hospital but died before the ambulance reached it.

L. T. LaRibeun, a passing autoist told police that he heard the first shot but that he thought it was a tire blowout on his own machine. He stopped, he said, to examine his tire when a man who proved to be Dees, fell from the sidewalk in front of his car. An instant later, he said, he saw a woman alight from a coupe and fire three additional shots at Dees. She stooped over Dees, according to LaRibeun, patted the wounded man's shoulder and said something that LaRibeun could not hear. LaRibeun said he was about 10 feet away. The woman, according to this version, put a small pistol in her pocketbook, started to re-enter her car when a policeman arrested her and drove away with her in the machine.

Justice Overstreet late Saturday refused to entertain a request for bail for Mrs. Dees and set her examining trial for next Friday. Mrs. Eva Bacher, Houston policewoman, unavailingly interceded for her before the justice, saying Mrs. Dees had had lots of trouble "and that only one side of the case was known."

While Mrs. Dees clung to her determination to make no statement even in the face of pleadings of a daughter by a former marriage, she readily told the district attorney that she and Dees had been married for 12 years. For nine years he had been employed by Will Horwitz, general manager of a chain of Houston motion picture theaters. Dees is survived by his mother.

CAROL CHOOSES NOT

Rumanian Prince Not Yet Candidate For Throne

PARIS, Nov. 26. (AP)—Former Crown Prince Carol does not choose to run—either as a candidate for the throne of Roumania or for membership of the regency.

While studiously avoiding all interviews or expressions of opinion on the present situation in Roumania, Carol has allowed it to be understood that the death of Premier Ionel Bratinau does not change the attitude he has adopted all along. This is that he is willing to return only if he receives an invitation which voices the general desire of his countrymen.

Carol's friends here are optimistic. They are convinced that this call will come before long.

CANYON PARTY FEARED LOST

Airplanes to Seek River Explorers

DESERT, Ariz., (U. S. Army Signal Corps to the Associated Press), Nov. 26—After 96 hours of almost continuous effort to reach the party long overdue on the Colorado river, no word had been received either by radio or by Indian runners.

The party, a combined exploring and film production party, started from Green River, Wyo., 15 days ago in six boats to make the trip to Lee's Ferry. Ten day's rations were carried for the party of 13 making the hazardous journey along the mile-deep gorge.

In a message sent to the adjutant general's office in Washington, sargeant Redding, in charge of the signal corps radio station here, reported that he had already asked the assistance of planes from Clover Field, Cal. Even planes, however, were regarded as only an experiment in the search as only small strips of the river can be seen from the rim.

An automobile expedition has been sent to Lee's Ferry and if the river party can reach that far it will be possible to bring them to safety.

(AP)—The Chamber of Commerce of the United States today was accused by Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee of "acting without information on the subject" in demanding a tax reduction of $400,000,000. CHEST TEAMS PLAN FINAL DRIVE TO GOAL

"Wichita Falls Cannot Afford To Fail," Says Cline

FUND NEARS $60,000

Workers Vote To Print Contributors' Names And Gifts

"Wichita Falls is going over in its Community Chest drive," said W. D. Cline, general chairman, Saturday night. "We now have $56,000 tabulated and there is $2000 more that has come in this afternoon. There is still another $2000 that will be in by Monday noon that will bring the total to $60,000. We expect to make the other $5000 with a little intensive work early this week.

Ask Non-Givers Aid.

"Wichita Falls cannot afford to fall down at this time. It would be the worst kind of advertising. Especially is this true when talk is going the rounds of the country that business is bad. Houston is the only city in the state that has put its drive over thus far.

"There are many who the workers have not been able to see. I wish that all who care to share in the success of this drive will call us or send their checks in. We feel sure there are many that have been missed because they were absent from their offices when the workers went there. I had one man come in today we did not have a card for and give me his check for $100.

Optimism Prevails.

"I think the workers and citizens have done wonderfully well thus far. There is more actual cash in than there has been on any of the previous campaigns. I feel that the campaign this far has been a huge success. The office force will have ready for us Monday the cards of all of those that have not given. A small group will meet at the Wichita club at noon and prepare to clean these up in a hurry."

A spirit of optimism prevaded the meeting of the workers Saturday noon at the Wichita club and all seemed to think there was no doubt but that the campaign was put over. Suggestion was made that the names of donors to the chest fund be published with the amounts. It was decided this would be done at the close of the drive.

HORTA, ISLAND OF FAYAL, Azores, Nov. 26. (AP)—The Junkers plane D-1230 made another unsuccessful attempt to hop off from Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, at 4 o'clock this afternoon.

The plane made several attempts earlier in the week to continue the journey with the three members of its crew and its passenger, Lilli Dillienz, Viennese actress. It started from Norderney, Germany, over a month ago.

The German consul and the Junkers crew told the Associated Press today "We earnestly request you to tell the American public that rumors of disagreements among the crew are unfounded."

Robbers Will Shoot Way Out Now Say Convicted Marauders

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Robbers who used to try to think their way out of difficulties now will use their guns to shoot their way out, two men convicted of robbery with firearms in connection with the holdup of a bank at Bradshaw, Texas said here today, when asked their opinions of the reward of $5000 offered by the Texas Bankers' association for each dead bank robber.

There will be no thought of surrender on the part of the robbers, especially when their death will mean $5000 to an officer who more than likely has not any too much money, Eddie Doyle, and W. L. Colton, now confined in jail here upon conviction of robbery charges in connection with the Bradshaw bank, declare.

Doyle and Colton said the reward offer would result in every would-be robber carrying a gun, even those who work at night. They said they never carried a gun, and did not have one with them when they robbed the Bradshaw bank.

REPUBLICANS HAVE CONTROL FOR SESSION

Tax Revision Bill And Appropriations Ready For House Now

VARE ROW FIRST

Election Cases Will Be Referred to Committee For Action

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—The Seventieth Congress has made a running start for its first session which begins a week from Monday, but it has a long, hard winter and spring ahead of it.

The host of returning senators and representatives today found a tax revision bill and several appropriations measures practically ready for house action and a fair beginning made on the tremendous problem of flood relief.

Likewise organization slates in the two houses have been set up for formal approval with every indication that the republican majorities would again have control of the senate and the house.

House Ready First.

While organization of the house would be perfected on the opening day, that of the senate may be delayed until the second or third day of the session while the row over the seating of senators-elect Frank L. Smith of Illinois, and Wm. S. Vare of Pennsylvania, both republicans, is being threshed out.

Thus the senate as well as the house will start right out on some of the most important questions which will face it and the Christmas recess is apt to find the Smith-Vare case disposed of and the tax reduction measure passed by the house.

The Smith-Vare fight will be launched when those senators-elect are called to the dais by Vice President Dawes to take the oath of office. Objection is to be raised to administering the oath and after the full and free discussion in which the senate invariable indulges, a majority will decide the question.

Reports to Flood In.

Leaders on both sides predict that neither Smith nor Vare will be given the oath and that their cases, involving expenditures in their primary campaigns, will be referred to the elections committee with instructions to make an early report as to whether they should be seated.

Organization of the senate is expected to follow the vote on the oath to these members and then the two houses will appoint the usual committee to notify President Coolidge that congress is ready to function. On the day following, the president's annual message will be sent to Capitol Hill and the flood of annual reports from the budget bureau and various other governmental departments and agencies will descend upon congress.

Plums Cause Worry.

As the members continue to come into town during the pre-session week, party leaders, who have been on the ground for some time, will hold various conferences in an effort to iron out some of the difficulties which are to beset the new congress.

One of these will be the division of committee representation between republicans and democrats. The majority in the senate probably will be given an additional place on each of the important standing committees, with the republican membership reduced by one.

Senate republicans will have their party conference next Saturday to make up its slate of officers with the prospect that George Moses, of New Hampshire, will be renominated as president

MOODY SEEN FOR PROGRAM

Smith Campaign Proves Complication

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. — Will the democratic national committee put Gov. Dan Moody on the Jackson day dinner program Jan. 12?

This has come to be a question of keen interest to Texas democrats since it will mean a call for the governor to share in leadership and direction of the party's national affairs in the presidential campaign next year. Failure to name Moody among the speakers at the pre-convention rally would mean that Texas and its 40 votes will largely be diregarded next year, and minimized because of the certainty the state will support any party nominee.

Invitations Soon.

Invitations to the Jackson day dinner will be issued within the next three weeks. Attention given Moody by outstanding Eastern democrats and democratic newspapers during the past two years have indicated the probability that Moody will be called to sound a note in the concord of party hopes of victory.

The Texas situation may be complicated by the Al Smith campaign already under way. But the Jackson day dinner is sponsored by the democratic national committee, and has been announced by Clem L. Shaver, national chairman. It is supposed to represent the party as a whole.

The gathering in January will be held under direct auspices of the national committee, during the two-day meeting held by the committee to select the 1928 convention city.

His Decision Important.

Moody's decision, if he is offered one of the coveted places among the list of speakers at the Jackson day party festival, will have an important bearing on his own share in the party's efforts to select a nominee and to name a president next year. If he declines to attend the national rally, it will mean that he will confine his efforts to the Texas share of the nominating convention, and that he probably will not be among those campaigning for the party victory in doubtful states.

It will mean he may lead the Texas delegation, as is generally expected, but that he will have given definite notice that he is not to be tied to the kite of any favorite son boon.

It may mean further that Texas democracy, under his leadership, will have something important to say about the selection of any candidate, based on the wet and dry issue expected to dominate the next campaign.

Wet Issue to Fore.

The Jackson day speakers will have little success, it was believed, in avoiding references to the liquor issue, and expressions significant to Al Smith hopes and prospects in 1928.

Texas may be in a position of unprecedented influence in the 1928 race, due to the solidarity and the size of its delegation, and if this recognized by the national party leaders, it is expected to take visible form in the Jackson day dinner. If Texas is to wield the influence of its strategic position, this also, in the opinion of those who have watched the manoeuvers of politics in the national field for years, will be made clear at the same party conclave.

Atwell Mixes Justice With Good Advice In Court Session Here

Sentence time in federal court always has its tense moments, however Saturday afternoon produced several surprises to the spectators present to hear Judge William H. Atwell pronounce sentence upon those who had been tried during a full week of criminal docket work.

Perhaps one of the most unusual was that of a state assistant district attorney speaking up in behalf of one about to be sentenced and another when a father came forward and admitted that perhaps he was responsible for the waywardness of his son.

Sam B. Spence, assistant district attorney in the state courts, arose after Judge Atwell had called the name of Thelmon Watson. The defendant had pleaded guilty to the theft of a package from a parcel post wagon.

"I would like to speak a word for this young man" said Spence. "He is not a common thief. He is farming out on an irrigated patch at K-M-A and came to town and got drunk. While coming up an alley he took a package from the wagon, carried it a few steps and threw it down. He slipped the invoice into his pocket and was later arrested for being drunk. It was then the officers found the slip and he was connected with the missing package.

Jail Sentence

"I have made an investigation of him and neighbors out there tell me he is a good boy. Since this occurrence they tell me he has been sober, made a good crop and has cared well for his wife and baby.

Judge Atwell studied for a moment and said "You do not look like a thief to me and you have had people come here and speak for you. You must not disappoint them. Further than that you have your wife and baby. I am also aware of some other good you have done and I sentence you to 90 days in the Wichita county jail."

John H. Berry had pleaded guilty to the transporting of a stolen automobile across a state line. Scarcely had the court told him to stand when his father, now of Casper, Wyo., stepped from behind the rear of the railing and asked permission to say a word. It was granted.

Father Takes Blame

"Judge I am probably to blame for this boy's trouble," he said with his voice shaking.

"I had not seen him for nine years until the other day and as is the case in many instances where a father and mother are separated the child gets the worst of it. He has fallen into evil ways and companions. I have told him that when he gets out of this if he will come to me I will take care of him and try to make amends for what I have neglected."

It was a full minute before Judge Atwell could speak. He asked regarding the car and its condition. "There is nothing I can say after that fine man has spoken," said the court.

"Those are strong arms that are held out to you. We have many loves in this life among them the love of the father who usually says little about it. I know of some of the good you have done also. You have been in jail since June 28. I am going to give you a year and a day, no I will make it ten days, dated back to Aug. 1. You will understand the why of the ten days later."

The ten days was to allow for a record for parole to which Berry will be eligible in a short time.

Others Sentenced

Earl Bozeman, 22, and Grady King, 14, pleaded guilty to passing altered currency. The boy stated that he passed five of the bills and received $1 for passing each one. He said he gave the money to Bozeman who had altered them. Both lived at Paducah. Dewey Modgeley of Paducah spoke up for the boy and told the court that his father was crippled and needed his help. The youngster said that he had gone as high as the fifth grade in school and that his mother was dead. He was given four years in the federal training school at Washington and Bozeman 18 months at Leavenworth dated back to Sept. 1. The court attempted to console the child by telling him the school at Washington would give him excellent advantages and take his care from the shoulders of his father. He refused to be consoled and sobbed all during the sentencing of the others.

Roger Field, negro, was sentenced to 15 months dated back to Sept. 1 for passing altered currency.

Hilbert L. Jones, using the mails to defraud Montgomery Ward and company, was sentenced to a year and a day.

E. L. Stanton and J. R. Teague, two cases each of post office robbery, were given three years in each case to run concurrently.

Joe Washington, theft from the mails, was given 15 months dated back to Nov. 3.

Louise Parker, possession of narcotics, has spent 106 days in jail and was sentenced to 100 days, dated back so she had no more to serve.

George Bloxsom, possession of narcotics, year and a day.

Ruth Kebodeaux, sale and possession of narcotics, sentence held up pending investigation by court of charges. Released on bond.

FINGER PRINTS ROBBERY PAIR

Capt. Tom Hickman Joins Efforts to Identify

ODESSA, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—In an attempt to solve the mystery surrounding the identity of two alleged bank robbers one of whom was instantly killed at the rear door of the Citizens National bank here early yesterday morning and the other who died this morning from wounds suffered at the time, finger prints of the pair were taken tonight by Ranger Captain Tom Hickman.

In the meantime a check for $10,000 was forwarded from Fort Worth by the Texas Bankers association to be distributed equally among Sheriff Reeder Webb, Deputy Tom Jones, Sheriff A. C. Francis and J. W. B. Hogan as the reward offered by the association of $5000 for each dead bank robber.

The finger prints will be taken to Fort Worth Sunday to be checked with the identification files of Fort Worth police in an effort to learn the identity of the two men, although one man has been identified as Karl Hanson of Bonham and the other as Tom McBurnett of Bell county. No relatives had communicated with Ector county officers here to claim the bodies and burial arrangements have been held up pending more complete identification.

McBurnett was thought to have had a brother living in Fort Worth but Sheriff Webb was informed today that the dead man had no relatives in Tarrant county. A Dallas woman though to be the sister of McBurnett, telegraphed Captain Hickman that the man was not related to her.

According to Captain Hickman, Hanson is believed to have served a sentence on a Texas prison farm and to have escaped or was pardoned.

AUSTIN, Texas, Nov. 26.—Mrs. Florence Griffith made a thousand mile trip from Topeka, Kan., to Austin to gain custody of her eight year old son, Lorance, but she arrived a few days too late, and failed.

The father now was the son and the whereabouts of both are unknown.

Mrs. Griffith recently learned that the youngster was living in Austin with Mrs. Katie Truelove, sister of her former husband.

Wishing to gain possession of her boy, Mrs. Griffith determined to come to Austin and institute legal proceedings, if necessary.

But Lorance was taken to Fort Worth a few days ago by Mis Truelove and given to his father.

Mrs. Griffith has returned broken-hearted to Topeka.

EXPERTS CALL REMUS INSANE

Ex-King of Rum Dealers Begins His Battle

By Universal Service.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 26.—George Remus was insane many months before he shot and killed his wife, Imogene, in Eden park, Cincinnati, on the morning of Oct. 6 of this year, for which crime he is now being tried.

This is the belief of two prominent Cincinnati lawyers, both of whom had close business relations with the man who dispensed the bulk of nation's liquor after prohibition, and who were the first witnesses for the defense after the state rested its case this morning.

They are Leo A. Burke, and A. D. Beatty. Beatty, a colored attorney, for two years a member of the Ohio legislature and for three more an assistant United States district attorney here. Their testimony was the first of a long chain by which Remus and his brilliant associate counsel, Charles Elston, expect to undermine the state's contention that Remus has always been sane, and was especially so the morning he killed his beautiful wife while she was on her way to complete her divorce case against him.

The defense will call between 90 and 125 witnesses to refute the state's case and to prove that Remus, master bootlegger, was the victim of temporary manical insanity when he shocked the country by his act on that sunny autumn morning.

Conversations Barred.

Burke, first defense witness, told the jury that he was called in consultation many times on business matters during June and July by Remus. Beatty met Remus after the latter had completed his sentence in Atlanta penitentiary for violation of the prohibiton act.

Despite Elston's strenuous efforts to get before the jury conversations which took place between Remus and these two men, and which led them to believe he was not in his right mind, Judge Chester R. Shook, ruled with the state in its obpection to this attempt. Elston's purpose was to show that Remus driven to the verge of insanity by his wife's alleged association with Franklin L. Dodge, former department of justice ace, who was responsible for the gigantic Remus rum trust being dismantled and the master mind being sent to federal prison.

States Closes Case.

The state closed its case with the evidence of William Hulverson, automobile dealer, who drove Remus from the scene of the slaying to the Pennsylvania station a few moments after he had shot his wife. The state had attempted to prove that George J. Conners, Remus' liquod partner had driven him away and that Conners, by this act, was part of a conspiracy with Remus and others to put Mrs. Remus out o fthe way because she know too much.

Hulverson's appearance on the stand caused a bitter wrangle between Elston and Chief Prosecutor C. P. Taft II., son of the former president. Hhis testimony refuted one of the state's own contentions.

"I picked up Remus as he was wanderng in Eden park," Hulverson testified. "He told me he had done some shooting in the park."

"I invited him to ride down town with me, if he was going that way," testifed Hulverson.

Attorney Incensed.

"This man was to be a defense witness," shoulted Elston. "It should remain for us to call him to refute the state's ridiculous charge that Conners or George Klug, Remus' chauffeur drove Remus away frȯ mthe park. I demand that all such testimony as would tend to give the jury that impresson be strcken from the records. The prosecution has built this thing up deliberately and now when they discover who did drive Remus away from Eden park they bring this witness to save their faces."

Remus Leaps Up.

Remus and Elston plan to call many lay witnesses to destroy the value of the report submitted to the court by the three alienists, David I. Wolfstein, E. A. Baber, and Charles E. Kiemy, who declared in their belief Remus was sane when he killed his wife and is sane now. And there was an acrimous dispute between Remus and Elston over these same three alienists when the latter moved that they be ordered to leave the bench where they have been sitting for days studying the actions of Remus.

Remus sprang from his chair beside Elston. He had been reading a treatise on medical insanity and was aparentity aying litle attention to what wa sgoing on. But he galvanized into action.

"Your honor," he said. "We withdraw that motion. These gentlemen have been most considerate of the defendant. I am sure we don't want them removed from the bench."

"This is most embarrassing," he said. "Do you concur with Mr. Remus, Mr. Elston?"

Attorney Hesitates.

Elston hesitated. But he refused to bow to his defendant's wishes. "Most emphatically no, your honor!" he stated.

Remus was on his feet again. "But I am sure Mr. Elston will do me the favor to withdraw the motion." He bowed considerately to his associates. "I don't want these gentlemen removed on my account."

Elston, about to object further to Remus' action, changed his mind and resumed his seat. The motion was withdrawn.

Football Death Toll At 15 During Summer

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 26. (AP)—The death toll in the ranks of football players in the United States during the 1927 season was set at 15 Saturday in a report of statistics compiled by George E. Two were reported in Pennsylvania and one each in Kansas, Colorado, Oklahoma, Nebraska, New Jersey, Wisconsin and Michigan.

POOR ROOSTER!

Two Aged Negroes In Fight For Lone Cockerel

DALLAS, Nov. 26. (AP)—Two Dallas detectives were called upon to make a decision as difficult as that of King Solomon when two women claimed the same baby, when they were called to stop a disturbance between two old negro men. The negroes arguedabout the ownership of a rooster. When the detectives arrived in answer to a call from neighborss they found the men in the street each holding and pulling a leg of the unfortunate rooster. As they yelled at each other the fowl squawked. The officers heard the arguments and then suggested that a coin be flipped by the claimants. The debaters agreed and abided by the decision of the coin.

NEW SHOW IN CONCHO WELL

Extensions Feature Week In Permian Basin

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 26.—A half mile western extension of the Yates field in eastern Pecos county and a half wile western extension of the Independent pool in Upton county were among features of the week's oil development in the Permian basin in west Texas. Winkler county also gained two producers and attention was attracted to Concho county by reason of a promising oil showing in Parks and Lawson's No. 1 W. O. Shultz in sandy lime from 1049 to 1059 feet. This wildcat was to have been shot late Friday with 40 quarts of nitroglycerin, after having bailed a small amount of high gravity oil, according to reports here.

California Company's No. 7 Yates, being drilled in Friday, was reported to be flowing a heavy amount of oil at 1205 feet. A report on the gauge was not available but it was rumored the well was estimated to be making 1000 barrels or more hourly. The well is in section 34, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. company survey.

Half Mile Extension

Kirby Petroleum company's No. 1 Tippett marked a half mile western extension of the Yates pool when it made a 30-barrel head in 40 minutes from 1334-37 feet. At 1318 feet in lime there was 800 feet of oil in the hole, and 300 feet at a depth of 1305. The test is 250 feet south and east of the Kirby's lease in section 108, T. C. Ry. company survey. Kirby drilled the test for a half interest in the east 50 acres of a 100-acre tract held by Collins and Stroube, which is west of the Runnels county school land, on which Gulf Production company last week brought in its No. 1, marking a half mile extension north and slightly west.

McMan-Marland No. 10 Yates, in section 34 1-2, another Pecos county completion during the week, was 140 barrels an hour initially with a total depth of 1510 feet. Red Bank Oil company's No. 2 Smith, 832 feet from the north line and 1980 feet from the west line of section 24, block 194, G. C. & S. F. Ry. company survey, came in making 25-barrel heads every 30 minutes at 1652 feet in a pay that was topped at 1603. Roxana No. 2 Tippett, 330 feet from the west line and 275 feet from the south line of section 102, T. C. Ry. company survey, came in for 105 barrels hourly and made a peak flow of 170 barrels hourly before being pinched. The pay was topped at 1350-70 feet and drilling stopped at 1517. Roxana No. 4 Tippett was waiting for cement 6 5-8 inch to set and No. 4 Tippett was rigging up.

Failure Reported

One of the week's failures was Olean Petroleum company's No. 1 Harral, in section 82, block R3, G. C. & S. F. Ry company survey, which struck sulphur water at 2965 feet and drilled to 2990.

Another failure during the week was Newman Oil company's No. 1 B. C. Clark in Crockett county, which struck sulphur water at 2106 feet. It is 1650 feet from the north line and 2310 feet from the west line of section 1, block AB, G. C. & S. F. Ry. company survey.

Texas company's No. 1 Union Land company extended the Independent pool in western Upton county approximately one mile west from Humble's No. 6 Ricker & Dodson. It swabbed five barrels of fluid, all oil except 1.8 per cent basic sediment, hourly, from 2,268 feet. Oil rose 500 feet in the hole at 2,173 feet and the well swabbed 60 barrels Sunday at 2223. The well is 330 feet out of the north corner of section 23, block 35, H. & T. C. Ry. company survey, is about three-quarters of a mile from the Upton-Crane county line and is northwest of the discovery Baker well in Upton county.

McCamey Area

Texas company's No. 4 Perry in the McCamey area in Upton county, completed Thursday at 1995 feet, only two feet in the pay, was maintaining a flow of 115 barrels hourly at last reports reaching San Angelo. While not the largest well initially in the area, the steady production indicates that the new producer may be one of the best. It is located 2310 feet from the west line and 330 feet from the north line of section 3, G. C. & S. F. Ry. company survey, south of and between Champlin Oil & Refining company's Nos. 2 and 3 Lane. Texas No. 4 Perry is the farthest south producer in the area. It topped the lime at 1890 feet. Texas No. 5 Perry is rigging upup 465 feet east of No. 4.

Cranfill & Reynolds' No. 2 Hendricks, in the southeast part of the Winkler county field, was flowing Friday at the rate of 1200 barrels a day from a total depth of 2963 feet. Humble's No. 4 T. G. Hendricks, in section 34, flowed 2420 barrels of oil through a one-inch choke in thirteen hours from 2890 feet. The well had been gassing heavily after passing the 2500-foot level.

East Gets Oil From Midwest

The Atlantic coast states, which refine enormous quantities of petroleum, depend upon other domestic and foreign sources for 98.3 per cent of the crude oil put through their definerieș, the United States bureau of mines, department of commerce, points out in a report just issued.

Oil production in western Pennsylvania and New York furnish 1.7 per cent of the crude oil refined in these states. Of the gasoline consumed, including exports, 47 per cent is refined outside of this group of states, while 47.2 per cent of the gas oil and fuel oil delivered in the region comes from outside refineries.

Total Atlantic coast runs to stills of domestic and foreign crude oil in 1926 were 2,310,000 barrels larger than in 1925, states E. B. Swanson, economic analyst, in Information Circular 6050. This increase is a balance between a decrease of 3,253,000 barrels in the quantity of domestic crude oil refined and an increase of 5,563,000 barrels in the amount of foreign crude oil refined during 1926, as compared with 1925.

Receipts Increase.

Total Atlantic coast receipts of domestic crude oil during 1926 were slightly larger than in 1925, being 1703,056,000 barrels as compared with 162,798,000 barrels in 1925. The larger refinery runs of domestic crude oil in 1925 were due to the fact that 3,303,000 barrels were withdrawn from refinery storage during 1925 to augment the quantities received, while during 1926, 805,000 barrels were added to storage.

Shipments of crude oil by tankers from Gulf coast ports increased from 72,556,000 barrels in 1925 to 78,992,000 barrels in 1926, while receipts by pipe line decreased from 16,246,00 barrels in 1925 to 12,069,000 barrels in 1926. The pipe line receipts in 1926 from the Appalachian and Illinois fields were approximately equal to those of 1925, but pipe line receipts from the Mid-Continent fields decreased from 11,903,000 barrels in 1925 to 7,458,000 barrels in 1926. Tanker receipts of crude oil from California were 2,000,000 barrels less than in 1925. Total receipts of foreign crude oils, including topped crudes and other fuel oils, increased fro m50,763,000 barrels in 1925 to 52,492,000 barrels in 1926.

Production of gasoline by Atlantic coast refineries advanced from 41,527,000 barrels in 1925 to 46,142,000 barrels in 1926, an increase of 4,615,000 barrels, or 11.1 per cent over 1925. This percentage increase in refinery production of gasoline corresponded with an average increase of 12.6 per cent in gasoline consumption in the Atlantic coast area. The increased gasoline production was due partially to the fact that 2,277,000 more barrels of domestic and foreign crude oil were run through the refineries in 1926 than in 1925, but more largely to the fact that more gasoline was produced from the crude oil in 1926 than in 1925.

MOTHER!

Look at Child's Tongue if Sick, Cross, Feverish

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad; has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Fig Syrup," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless, "fruity laxative"; they love its delicious taste, and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Fig Syrup," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

ELECTRA MAN DIES OF INJURIES RECEIVED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

LODGES HONOR JOE M'CRACKEN

Services Sunday Or Monday For Youth

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Texas, Nov. 26.—Funeral services for Joe McCracken, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. B. McCracken, who died in a local hospital early Saturday afternoon from injuries received last Wednesday in an automobile accident near Oklaunion, are to be held here either Sunday or Monday, according to announcement from the family, who are awaiting the arrival of relatives from points in Texas and Oklahoma.

Bank Teller

McCracken, who was a teller at the First National bank, was driving to Vernon with his friend Jack LeBus, when the accident occurred. Their car was overturned in a ditch when a sharp curve was misjudged, according to reports of the accident. Both boys were rushed to a local hospital, where it was thought at first their injuries were only minor. Later it was discovered that McCracken had sustained a fractured skull at the base of the brain, which resulted in his death Saturday. LeBus was discharged from the hospital shortly after receiving emergency treatment.

McCracken was born in St. Joe, Texas, 22 years ago this coming June. He moved with his parents at an early age to Donley county, and to Electra eight years ago. He was a member of the 1923 graduating class of the Electra high school, and later studied at a business college in Abilene. For two years he was an employe of the First National Bank, later joining the force of the First National Bank as teller. He was a member of both the Modern Woodman of America lodge, and the Knights of Pythias, both of which lodges are to be present in a body at the burial services.

Three of the active pallbearers, C. F. Fuggs, G. B. Ewell, and A. F. Haaf, were chosen from the Knights of Pythias lodge; while the other three, Herman Gibson, Sturgeon Jennings, and Joe Platt, were selected form the force at the First National Bank. Honorary pallbearers will include the membership of both lodges to which McCracken belonged.

Relatives Attend

Besides his parents, he is survived by a sister, Willie McCracken; two brothers, Roy and Bale; a cousin, C. Bob Robinson; and his grandfather, Joe McCracken, all of whom live in Electra; six uncles, J. E. McCracken of Bowie; J. L. McCracken of Wellington, Kans.; Jeff and Colon McCracken, both of Electra; and six aunts, Mrs. Mattie Skinner, Waurika, Okla.; Mrs. Lottie Latham, Geronimo, Okla.; Mrs. Schlott, St. Joe, Texas; Mrs. Maggie Tendian, McClain, Texas; Mrs. Pattie Tender, Winters, Texas; and Mrs. Adeline Bowen, of Wingate, Texas. All of the relatives, with the exception of the uncle at Wellington, Kans., are to attend the funeral, members of the family announced.

To Save Motorists

Father Thomas J. Glynn, of St. Peter's Roman Catholic church, McKeesport, Pa., poet, philosopher and inventor, claims to have invented a filtered tube attachment for auto exhausts, to save hundreds of lives lost annually from carbon monoxide discharge.

DAIRY COWS HARD TO FIND

Demand Far Ahead Of Supply Here

Never before has there been so widespread a demand for milk cows in Texas. Any cow showing fair dairy form, or one giving two gallons of milk or more, sells for every dollar she is worth—and then some.

Registered dairy cattle are particularly hard to get, according to County Agent G. C. McGown. During recent weeks he has made two or three trips to Fort Worth, Bowie and into the South Plains in quest of dairy cattle for Wichita county farmers. He found good dairy cattle for sale to be few and far apart.

Heavy Demand.

"The demand for good cows seems to exceed the supply," Mr. McGown said. "There are more buyers than sellers. Anyone with a herd of cows to sell need only whisper the fact to some neighbor and in a short time he will be mobbed by buyers.

"Maybe the demand comes from the fact that butterfat has brought a big price for many months. In this immediate section it may be because of the establishment of the Kraft cheese factory in Wichita Falls, thus affording a big market for dairy products. Anyhow, with cows average or better and plenty of feed the income from a small herd of cows keeps the farm running on a cash basis. A lot of folk have found that out and they want a few more cows."

But no farm, community or state can be built up by buying cows, Mr. McGown pointed out. A cow is not made better by changing hands. She may do better for her new owner because of better feed and care, but she is the same cow after being sold.

Urges Breeding.

"To increase the total number of good cows we must breed better ones," Mr. McGown declared. There is one way to do that, and one only. That is by the use of the better kind of bulls. Attention must be focused on the value of bulls in building up the profitable kind of milking herd.

"For the time being we must make the best use with what cows we have. We can double the production of some by better feeding and increase the production of nearly all 25 to 50 per cent with the proper kind of rations. Happily enough, the increase by better feeding will represent a substantial profit over what is now being made from the cows.

"But we can feed out of the cows only what has been bred into them. They will respond to feed up to the limit of their ability and no further. This means they will pay a profit on only so much feed.

"Hence, to increase dairy profits further we must breed into our future cows the ability to turn large amounts of feed into milk. That just as plainly calls for bulls of the better kinds, bulls from dams with authentic records and sired by high producing bulls.

"Fortunately, such bulls are not high in price. In fact, they are cheap, if not too cheap. In the last few years breeders have not secured the actual cost of raising their bulls. That they have actually raised and sold many bulls at a loss is to their credit. They have done it for love of the dairy cow and with the hope that things would soon take a turn for the better."

Mrs. G. C. Hathaway Re-Elected President of Council of Women

County Clubs Draft Year's Program at Annual Meeting At Wichita Courthouse

Mrs. G. C. Hathaway was re-elected president of the Wichita county council of home demonstration clubs at the annual meeting of presidents and secretaries of the member clubs held Saturday in the Wichita county courthouse. Plans for the year also were perfected for the clubs' activities, and other county officers were chosen as follows: Mrs. E. F. Moore, Bowie, first vice-president; Mrs. Jack Hammer, Clara, second vice president; Mrs. Albert Hayton, Valley View, third vice president; Mrs. W. E. Robinson, Lakedale, recording secretary; Mrs. A. N. Dahl, Hardin, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. C. E. Taylor, Burwise, treasurer.

10 Clubs in County

There are ten clubs in the county this year and all reported considerable activity. Each has worked on the projects attempted, and the reports, as given at the meeting, indicate good progress.

The year book for 1928 was approved and the plans and outlines for the year's work were finally turned over to Miss Ethel L. Webb, county home demonstration agent, for completion. These books will be rounded into shape for the printers immediately by Miss Webb, and printing probably will begin Wednesday or Thursday.

Each member of each community club in the county will receive one of these books. They outline in detail the work of the women's home demonstration club, and also give the schedule of activities and information concerning them for 1928.

Year's Activities

January will start the year's work with something different from previous years in so far as the month will be devoted to home and yard improvement and also to a living room contest.

Activities for other months as outlined are: February, leather work; March, special egg dishes; April, meal planning; May, tailored finishes; June, community canning; July, distinctive dress and buying for the family; August, glove making; September, standard exhibits; October, glass painting; November, meat dishes, and December, gifts for all.

It was announced that the next meeting of the county council at the courthouse will be held the second Saturday in December and will be a Christmas party.

A three day school of instruction in leather work will be given at Iowa Park in February by Miss Webb, it was announced. This school will be open to all members of the clubs in the county.

75 CALLED FOR OIL TESTIMONY

Government Springs Surprise in Call

WASHINGTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—Springing a surprise in the contempt proceedings against Harry F. Sinclair, wealthy oil operator, W. J. Burns, founder of the Burns Detective agency, and four of their associates, District Attorney Gordon began today the preparation of approximately 75 subpeonas calling as government witnesses nearly every person who testified during the grand jury investigation into the charges of tampering with the Fall-Sinclair oil conspiracy jury.

Associates Cited.

Sinclair, Burns, the oil man's confidential associates, Henry Mason Day of New York, and Sheldon Clark of Chicago, W. Sherman Burns, manager of the Burns agency, and C. L. Veitsch, Burns' Baltimore manager, have been cited to appear before Justice Siddons, in the District of Columbia supreme court December 5 to show cause why they should not be punished for contempt of court.

The government charges in its petition upon which the rule of contempt was issued that Sinclair sent Day and Clark to Washington where they engaged the Burns detective agency to "spy upon, to bribe and intimidate and to do anything calculated to interfere with or impede" the Fall-Sinclair jurors in the unbiased discharge of their duties.

In calling as government witnesses those who appeared before the grand jury, the district attorney's office let it be known for the first time that it would use the Burns operatives in attempting to prove that contempt of court had been committed. The Burns detectives carried on the shadowing of the trial jury and their reports, seized by the district attorney, disclosed that they had kept up an intensive surveillance. They even inquired into the juror's personal financial affairs among their neighbors and the government contends that such close scrutiny of a juror is contempt of that court.

that is financed, every city, county or state bond issue, every large railroad issue of securities and every other kind of big financing requires what is known as a "sinking fund." Into this sinking fund goes periodical payments the total of which is sufficient to pay the whole debt at maturity. Any kind of financing that does not provide such a sinking fund is doomed to failure on the part of the borrower to meet the matured obligation. The building and loan provides such a fund. On a $1000 loan a sinking fund of $7.50 a month is established. This sinking fund EARNS interest. At the end of 7 1-2 years the total payments into the sinking fund have been $625 but EARNED interest raises this to $1000 and thus the money is available to pay the matured obligation. PROTECTION OF DAIRY HERD INCREASES MILK PRODUCTION

BARNS SAVE OWNER MONEY

A. & M. Expert Tells How To Build Plant

BY A. L. DARNELL.

Professor of Dairy Husbandry, Texas A. & M. College.

Written Especially for The Record News.

In two previous articles we have discussed briefly the great importance of good cows for the dairy herd. Having good individuals is the first essential to success in the dairy business. These good cows are largely artificial and must be so treated. When man started the demonstration and improvement of cattle for milk production there was likely no great need for artificial protection of the animals. However, at this stage of development cows did not produce more than 1800 or 2000 pounds of milk yearly. We now have thousands of cows in each of the dairy breeds producing this much or more milk in one month's time. The world record in milk production, or even the average production of dairy cows in the United States is artificial to the native ability of the dairy cow when man began improving them.

Barns Cheaper.

The fattening steer is protected from severe climatic condition by the thick layers of fat over the body, but the good dairy cow is spare in condition, carrying but little flesh and needs to be comfortably housed if she is to do good work. In some of our states where there are several months of cold weather, the dairymen appreciate fully the importance of having comfortable stables for the dairy herd. As a rule, there are more losses from exposure in states where, from the usual mildness of the climate, provisions are not made to protect the cattle in severe weather that occurs only at intervals. Any dairyman in the southwest knows that this is about the condition we have and that when one of these severe changes comes there is a loss of from ten to 20 per cent in milk production. The body temperature of about 102 F. of a cow must be maintained regardless of the surrounding atmospheric temperature. In order that the cow may maintain her normal temperature during cold weather she must necessarily consume more feed. It is certainly "cheaper" to assist the cow in this matter by putting her into a comfortable barn rather than have her burn feed in her body that probably costs from $30 to $40 per ton.

Proper housing of the dairy herd means the most economical milk production. Suppose you have your entire herd in good milk flow in the fall of the year when, here in the southwest we have a fairly moderat temperature, and suddenly we have a severe cold rainy spell. Milk production drops considerably, and then it costs in feed about twice as much to restore the normal production when the weather is again moderate. In this connection it is well to study carefully how closely the spring and early summer conditions may be maintained throughout the year. We all know that the maximum production of our dairy cows is reached at this season of the year. This is largely due to the excellency and abundance of green feeds available, but at the same time the animal enjoys a moderat temperature and clean comfortable surroundings. There is an abundance of sunlight and fresh air and the cow has perfect freedom of movement. These conditions should be maintained as nearly as possible throughout the year if good results are to follow.

Cleanliness Important.

The dairy barn is also a place where human food is produced. Moreover, this food is used in the raw state and in many instances for infant feeding. Cleanliness must therefore be observed in every operation and the barn must be so constructed as to permit of easy, thorough and frequent cleaning, and as nearly as possible the avoidance of all dust. The floor should be smooth and without crevices for dirt to collect and it should also be hard and impervious to water so as to allow washing and scrubbing when necessary. There is a growing demand by health officials and milk consumers for better sanitation in barns and dairies. Nearly all states now have milk ordinances regulating the production of sanitary milk. These regulations are becoming more stringent and an immense improvement has been made in the past few years.

The system of housing dairy herds may be divided into two classes:

1. The single stabling system.
2. The double stabling system.

Under the single stabling system we have several types of barns; namely the basement barn, the two story or loft barn, the one story or shed barn, the open shed barn and the round barn. Several of these different types of barns may also be used in the double stabling system of housing the dairy herd.

The basement barn, the two story or loft barn and the round barn are not used very extensively in the southwest. Barns of these type will be found more practical in regions having more severe weather in the winter months. In the western section of Texas and the Panhandle region these barns will be found very practical. However, in the centrae and southern part of Texas the one story or shed type of barn for milking, combined with an open shed or partly covered barnyard for feeding hay and other roughage will prove more practical.

Double System.

The double system of housing the dairy herd is becoming more popular and in recent years is being used to some extent in the colder regions of the United States. This system consists of a small one story barn in which the cows are fed concentrates and milked, and a shed opening to the south in which the hay and other roughage is fed. This open shed should be floored and so arranged that the cows may be bedded during cold or rainy weather. There are several advantages to this system of housing dairy cattle, but the principal one is the economy in labor. It does not require as much labor to properly care for the herd when this system is practiced, and there is always a clean barn in which to milk the cows.

There are certain considerations which should be taken into account in building the dairy plant regardless of what system may be used. Some of the most important things are: (1) the location of the building, (2) grouping of the buildings, (3) the size of the building, (4) shape of building, (5) material to be used in construction, (6) arrangements in the building, (7) lighting, (8) equipment.

Each of these considerations warrants a lengthy discussion, but in this brief article we can only summarize some of the most important.

One who has worked on a dairy farm knows that the most desirable location for the barns is a hill top if possible. Plenty of drainage from the barn and barnyard is the first requisite to sanitation and by locating the building on a hill you will have ample drainage with the least effort on your part. In the arrangement of grouping of the buildings, convenience is an important consideration. However, the feed shed and silos should not connect directly with the milking barn. The milking barn should have the long axis running north and south so that sunlight will reach both sides of the building. The feed shed should be walled up on the north and face open on the south. It should be conveniently located to the milking barn. In so far as ventilation is concerned it is not necessary to give the matter consideration in this system as the herd will be in the open shed most of the time. The size of the building will of course depend upon the number of animals in the herd.

Material For Floors.

It is not necessary to have a milking barn sufficiently large to take care of all the herd at one time. Milking may be done in relays. Barn should be built of fireproof material, but this is not necessary. Certainly they should have concrete, creosote brick, or cork brick floors. Now as to the arrangement in the barn, we must again state that convenience and comfort should be given first consideration. So far as facing the cows in or outward, that is merely a matter of choice in most instances. There are good reasons for doing it either way. The platform on which the cows stand should be of sufficient length so the cows do not stand with their hind feet in the gutter. The mangers or feed troughs should be wide, with divisions between each cow. The alleyways in front of the mangers should be at least four feet wide and if the cows face inward, the alleyway behind the cows should be four or five feet in width. The milking barn should have all the light space it is possible to set in the walls without weakening them. Each cow should have at least five square feet of light space.

Farm and Garden

Seventh and Indiana corners did not contain the usual number of farmers Saturday. The delegation there said that most of the boys were at home getting produce ready for the Christmas market.

L. C. Murrell, who lives near Petrolia, was among those present at Seventh and Indiana Saturday afternoon. He says things are mighty quiet in that district now and that he hopes they will liven up a bit. Mr. Murrell takes The Record News regularly.

Marketing small foodstuffs is the farmers problem around Wichita Falls, according to Mrs. W. E. Robinson of the Lakeside community. Mrs. Robinson was a Wichita visitor Saturday and didn't hesitate to say what she thought of the problem. "It is easier to sell our vegetables to people passing by and to the little places in our community than it is in Wichita," she said.

Mrs. Robinson is active in farm work in the county and is secretary of the county council of women's home demonstration clubs.

V. E. Griffin, who lives at 2015 Buchanan street, was down at Seventh and Indiana Saturday afternoon, talking with some of his friends from the country. He says that the chief thing the farmers seem to be talking about there is the Bible. "They have to have something to think about in between seasons, so the Bible comes in right handy," said Mr. Griffin.

C. C. McGowan, county agricultural agent, was busy for a little time Saturday afternoon buying the kids some new shoes.

A couple of boys in town from way out at Muleshoe, next door to the New Mexico state line, were asked how things were out their way. "Shoe shop, shoe shop," was the reply. "Whatta you mean, 'shoe shop?'" they were asked. "Hoofing right along, and moving fast," the boys answered. They were down at Seventh and Indiana chinning around with some of their friends.

G. V. Mitchell has a 35-acre place near Kemp City, and is going right ahead with his poultry and dairying activities during the off season. He was telling Saturday how his father used to be school teacher in a Swedish community near Herrington, Kansas. Mr. Mitchell is a progressive farmer who is getting as much out of 35 acres as many men will get out of 350.

J. S. Deake who lives west of town was among those present at Seventh and Indiana Saturday. He says the wheat is looking good at their place and that they now have 125 acres planted with wheat, barley, rye and sweet clover.

Children begging farmers to buy lead pencils were prominent at Seventh and Indiana Saturday afternoon. Those little girls at an early age have learned well the gentle art of wheedling men out of nickles. Their favorite method of making a farmer boy dig up a nickle for a lead pencil he didn't want was to stick one in his pocket and hold out their hands. These little kids reported a better business than most of the farmers at the corner.

D. W. Wylie, who recently moved his cotton offices to the Kahn building at Seventh and Indiana, was watching the farmers on the streets below Saturday afternoon. "If the preachers could get down here and hear some of these discussions of religion, they would get some new slants on how to conduct the church business," was his smiling comment as one man started to harangue a crowd.

Northwest Texas Rice Acreage Leads Entire Nation In Production

West Texas rice has yielded 104 bushels an acre, and in so doing has established a high record for any point in America, as 70 to 80 bushels is considered a high return.

Facts and figures were presented Saturday by M. R. Oates, agricultural and industrial agent of the Fort Worth and Denver, showing that rice may be raised successfully on irrigated land in this section of Texas. He specified the Wichita valley as the district best suited to the development.

Kincheloe brothers, near Chillicothe, are netting about $2000 on 20 acres of demonstration rice this year. It was on their land, under Lake Pauline, that the 104-bushel yield was obtained on one tract of 6 3-4 acres with a close planting of 1000 pounds of Lady Wright rice. This patch was one of several which Kincheloe brothers planted, and gave them the highest return in every class. In pounds, the yield was 30,780.

High Yields

Three major patches were planted by the Kincheloes.

The largest was a 10-acre seeding of Early Prolific. The 1000-pound planting was thinned. The acre yield was 52 bushels and the total weight was 30,180, or 850 pounds less than the total poundage of the Lady Wright rice of the same amount of seed planted on 6 3-4 acres.

The Blue Rose variety was planted on a 10-acre tract and yielded 75 1-2 bushels per acre for a total yield of 33,220 pounds.

All of these three varieties were from the Beaumont district, and the seed was from plantings at a lower altitude and a more southern latitude.

Seeking to simulate conditions of the same latitude in rice growing, Mr. Oates obtained, and presented to Kincheloes with the compliments of his road, two batches of seed from the rice district of the same north latitude in Arkansas as the Kincheloe place in Hardeman county.

Each of these batches of rice seed totaled 90 pounds, and each was planted on a 3-4-acre tract.

Many Varieties

Arkansas Early Prolific yielded 72 bushels per acre on this tract as compared to the 52 bushels per acre yield of the same variety from Beaumont. Arkansas Blue Rose yielded 95 1-2 bushels per acre as compared to the 75 1-2 bushel per acre yield of the same variety from Beaumont. No Lady Wright from Arkansas was planted.

Considering the money return of the crop and the possibilities for Wichita valley farmers, Mr. Oates said he believed rice offered the best possible return when compared to cotton and wheat and other commodities now grown.

He explained that the difference in the results obtained might have been due to the time of planting or to the thinning out in planting the Early Prolific and Blue Rose on the larger tracts. He pointed out that the old rice districts plant about 90 pounds to an acre, and that the best results in the Kincheloe plantings were obtained in the case of the Lady Wright variety where a close planting of 148 pounds was allowed to each acre.

A wheat grain drill was used instead of a rice drill and Mr. Oates believes this may have had some effect on the returns.

The total cost per acre was $13.40 which was divided as follows: Labor, $2; harvesting and twine, $2; threshing, $8.45, and water free. He pointed out that water for rice under a ditch would cost farmers $3.50 an acre, so that the cost would have been increased to $16.90 if it had been necessary to buy water as probably would be the case with most farmers.

Good Profits

The gross return per acre will be about $70. At the cost of $13.40, the net return should be $56.60.

Freight and water cost considered, Mr. Oates says the Wichita valley farmer should easily receive a net return of $50.

"I consider that it will pay farmers who are under ditches and can get the water to plant rice," he concluded. "It is a good crop and I look for a fairly good acreage to be planted in this territory this coming season."

W. R. Van Cleave, who hangs his hat at his dad's place six miles out of town on the Henrietta road says they are busy at his place getting ready for winter. "Kind of in between seasons, and there is plenty to keep us busy."

They Rolled Their Way To Victory In Thanksgiving Day Skating Marathon

—Photos by S & S Commercial Studio.

Here are the pictures of the notables in the Thanksgiving Day roller skating marathon staged last Thursday morning under auspices of the Wichita Falls Record News and the Wichta Falls Athletic club, otherwise called The Gym, Inc.

At the lower right is little Miss May Paterson, 12, who finished second in the woman's class of the marathon.. Because of her extreme youth she was the most interesting figure in the race. She received a special $5 cash prize from Mayor Shepherd who told her that her performance was one of the most remarkable feats of endurance he had ever had brought to his attention.

MATTHEWS ON ALL-AMERICAN

Sprott of Aggies Is Also Given Mention

NEW YORK, Nov. 26, (AP)—The New York Sun today announced its all-American football selections for Bruce Caldwell of Yale as a halfback in spit of his ineligibility in the last two games. The selections are based on a canvass of 129 college teams throughout the country by the Sun's representatives. "Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan the year's outstanding end, Jess Jess Hibbs of Southern California the dominant tackle, Larry Bettencourt of St. Mary's the class of the centers, Morley Drury of Southern California the leading quarterback, Bill Webster of Yale the strongest guard as well as the most inspiring team leader and Bruce Caldwell of Yale the most valuable backfield man."

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 26 (AP) A. C. Sprott of Livingston, right tackle on the 1927 Aggie championship team, was advised in a telegram today from Keath Speed, managing editor of the New York Sun, he had been named "all-American alternate" by the newspaper.

Sprott has finished his football days at A. & M. as he will graduate this school year. He is student representative on the athletic council of the college.

Before coming to A. & M. Sprott played football on the Livingston high school team and at Alexander Junior college, Jacksonville, now Lon Morris college. He was on the A. & M. freshman team in 1924, and played tackle and center on the varsity in 1925. He lacked but four minutes of required varsity play that year to get his letter. He is 23 years of age and weighs 190 pounds.

The gymnasium, which will cost $37,000, will be one of the most modern in the southwest. It is being built of face brick and will harmonize with other buildings on the Trinity campus.

The gymnasium will meet a long-felt need at Trinity as it is to be used as a social center and an auditorium as well as a plant for physical education.

COYOTES GAIN MORE YARDAGE

Statistics of Sandstorm's Victory Interesting

Although defeated by the Golden Sandstorm of Amarillo the Wichita Falls High School Coyotes were by no means out done in every part of the game as can be seen from the statistics of the sports editor of the Amarillo Daily News. ATHLETES TO HAVE DINNER

FORT WORTH, Nov. 26. (AP)—Coaches and other Southwest conference athletic leaders will be invited to attend the high school letter men's banquet in Fort Worth on December 9.

The conference meeting will be held December 8 in Dallas and it it is believed many of the athletes will accpt the invitations. Stripling schools, is being arranged by the Fort Worth chapter of the Texas A. & M. Students' association.

Stagg Can't Get Good Grid Material From High Schools For Some Reason

So Chicago Mentor Builds Teams From Ground Up And It Takes Time to Develop Green Players

Special to The Record News.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26.—By finishing in the first division of the big ten with a record of three games won and three lost, the University of Chicago football team did better than Director A. A. Stagg had expected when he framed the hard schedule of eight games. The Maroons had six conference contests and two intrsectional games, losing the first to Oklahoma, and winning the other, with Pennsylvania. In the conference, victories over Indiana, Purdue, and Wisconsin were balanced by losses to Illinois, Michigan, and Ohio.

Chicago had only average material this season, but Stagg turned out his usual good line, and developed one of the best conceived attacks in the country. Stagg was one of the few coaches to make a real weapon of the lateral pass, just as he did of the forward pass when it was first introduced. A characteristic of his offence this year was the development of his use of the man in motion. He had a new backfield formation of a short box, which he used in connection with his "flanker" formation.

Rouse Star of Team.

Capt. Ken Rouse was the star on the team, and his work this season makes him rank as one of the great linesmen of the country. Rouse is certainly of all-American ability. John McDonough's remarkable defensive work against Ohio and Illinois; the general all-around play of Hugh Mendenhall, a sophomore, and of Vin Libby, playing his first season, were other factors in Chicago's werk that were prominent.

The Maroons this season will lose Rouse, Ben Greenebaum, centers; Bob Wolff, and Bill Heitmann, guards; Paul Lewis, tackle; Lawrence Aptix, end; Kyle Anderson, halfback; John McDonough, quarter, and Togo Bygert and "A" Fulton, sub quarters.

There is enough material left over to give Stagg a very strong start toward a good team, especially in the backfield, where he has Burgess, Mendenhall, Leyers, Libby, Raysson, Pratt, and Bluhm, all of whom are good men. In the line he has Spence, Krog, Priess, Jersild, Daniels, Stickney and Welly for ends; Cassele and Weislow for tackles; Weaver and Proudfoot for guards, and Small at center.

The freshman material this season has not been very good. As usual, Stagg will not be able to rely very much in the class of 1931 until their junior and senior years, by which time he will have had a chance to teach them same football. When Stagg does get a good high school player it is unusual.

Longhorn Star Builds Aggies' Dormitories

BRYAN, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Harry Pfannkuche of San Antonio, all Southwestern conference center in the season of 1925, and former star of the Longhorns, has been named as a supervising engineer for the construction of new dormitories at A. and M. college. Pfannkuche played football and baseball at the University of Texas in 1924 and 1925, and in 1921 he played with Tulane University.

"It's a good idea to mix the blood," stated President T. O. Walton in employing Pfannkuche along with several A. and M. graduates of the school of engineering.

She's True Blue Little Sport Too

May Paterson Gives Rival Racer Credit

Little May Paterson, 12 years old, runner-up in the woman's section of the Thanksgiving Day skating marathon race from Burkburnett to Wichita Falls, is a true blue little sport. In a letter addressed to the Wichita Falls Record News Saturday she gave full credit for the victory for the special $15 prize for the woman skaters to Miss Helena Workman, the winner.

The letter, written by little Miss Paterson's father, James L. Paterson, manager of the Keilley Baking company, is as follows:

"My daughter, May Paterson, who took part in the skating marathon on Thanksgiving Day, has asked me to state that it was simply exhaustion that caused her to cry at the finish and not disappointment because she did not win.

"She also bids me say that even if her skate had not given way, she knows she had no chance of winning, and she thinks it is only fair to give Miss Workman, who is a far more expert skater, the full credit of her victory."

GRASS GREENS FOR EL PASO

Water Defeats Desert In Building Up Course

EL PASO, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—Water will accomplish wonders, they say, and El Paso has gone a long way toward proving this in building its municipal golf course.

Located in the shadow of barren Mount Franklin and in the midst of a vast expanse of sandy and rocky land on which only sagebrush and cactus grow, the municipal course here stands as a testimonial to what a lot of water and keeping will do.

The fairways are of green grass, set out about four years ago. Stretching down through the sagebrush they form veritable ribbons of green in the rough country of that section. It is hard for one to realize that the thickly sodded fairways were only four years ago covered with those hardy plants that abound in the "rough."

When Albert S. Vallespino, superintendent of the golf course, started laying it out four years ago there was much doubting as to the outcome. It was generally believed that the course would never be anything to phone home about, that the fairways would be only stretches of sandy loam from which the brush had been cleared. But the pretty fairways show the result of Vallespino's work and his ample use of water.

The 18 holes are bounded by trees set out on the course. Traps cover the course to make it "sporty." The greens are now being changed from pressed cottonseed hulls to grass. One of them has just been opened and others soon will be.

The course is considered by visiting golfers who have played on it as one of the best municipal courses in the state. The Tri-State tournament, composed of golfers from New Mexico, Arizona and Texas, was recently played over it and entrants from all three states expressed wonder at the improvement in the 18 holes.

The city council has plans for further improving the course to insure a good golfing place for golfers who visit this edge of the United States.

Strangler Lewis Wins Over Ukranian Rival

WICHITA, Kan., Nov. 26. (AP)—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, claimant to the world's heavyweight wrestling title, was awarded a decision over Alexander Garkawienko, Ukrainian, here Friday night, when the latter failed to show for the third and deciding fall. He said his foot was injured in breaking out of a toe hold.

Garkawienko took the first fall in 47 minutes. The second went to Lewis in 21 minutes. Lewis weighed 230 pounds and his opponent 235.

22 Texas Steeds Given 'T' Letter

Seven New Players Get Coveted Award

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. (AP)—Twenty-two players and a manager were awarded unqualified "T's" Friday night for their services on the Gridiron for Texas university this season. Of the list 15 were already letter men, only seven players being added to the list of the "T" wearers. The newcomers to the "T" fold include Boyles, Brown, Rose, Hammonds, Beular, Beaty and Reynolds. Reynolds and Hammonds already had been awarded the "T" in track in past seasons.

Of the list of 22 lettermen in football, 17 will return for the 1928 team. The five men that leave the team are Higgins, King, Estes, Allen and McCullough.

Alvaro McCallum On Visit to His Family

Coach Alvaro McCallum of the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes is in Austin visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. McCallum. Mr. McCallum is the superintendent of the Austin schools and Mrs. McCallum is secretary of state. Coach McCallum went to Austin to spend the Thanksgiving holidays after his return from Amarillo Friday. He will be back on duty Monday and will probably start training the Wichita Falls high school Coyotes for basketball the latter part of next week.

Hollis Tigers Play 22 Foes On Gridiron Without Single Defeat

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 26.—The Hollis high school football team completed its second consecutive all-victorious season by defeating Mangum, Southwestern (Oklahoma) conference champs, here Thanksgiving Day 44 to 20. The victory gave the Tigers a record of not having been beaten or tied in their past 22 contests.

Pete Nance, captain and fullback, who has been Hollis' outstanding star in practically every conflict this season, played through the game with a badly injured knee which was dislocated several times. With Nance hurt, Tucker, Curb, Walker and Jenkins bore the brunt of the attack while Raymond Newberry, plucky little center, was his usual self on defense.

In eight games this season, Hillis scored a total of 278 points to 59 for its opponents. It included among its victims the powerful Vernon Lions, and Altus, Oklahoma, which had gone through the season unbeaten until it met the Tigers.

The Hollis season record follows: Hollis 33, Erick 0; Hollis 32, Seyre 0; Hollis 55, Elderado 0; Hollis 14, Anadarko 13; Hollis 63, Duke 0; Hollis 19, Altus 13; Hollis 18, Vernon 13; Hollis 44; Mangum 20.

Doc Stewart To Take Mine Cagers On Tour of Texas During Holiday

EL PASO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Plans for making the Texas College of Mines basketball team on a trip through east and central Texas cities during the Christmas holidays are being made by E. J. "Doc" Stewart, athletic director at the mines. Stewart plans to make the trip by motor bus and play teams in Dallas, San Antonio, Fort Worth, Austin, and Houston.

Games have already been scheduled with several teams in San Antonio and Austin and others are being arranged.

The athletic council of the Mines gave its sanction to the trip after a check-up of the football season, which proved to be very successful, according to Edmund H. Kuhn, a member of the council.

Stewart has several good men around which to build his basketball team. Billy Clark of Austin, star of the football team, is also a star basketball player. Then there is McMillan, San Antonio, who played with San Antonio high school; DuChanne, also from San Antonio, and Hildebrand from the Alamo city. Jeff Campbell, from Abilene, also is a forward of no little ability.

About 20 Miners have signified their intention of reporting for practice when Stewart issues the first call. Mack Saxon, assistant football coach, will also assist Stewart with the basketball team.

Saints To Train For Cage Foray

Last Year's Title Winner Shot to Pieces

AUSTIN, Nov. 26 (AP)—Basketball practice for the 1928 season will get under way at St. Edward's university Monday under direction of Thornton J. O'Connor, star forward on the Saint team several years ago. He has been assistant football coach for the past two years.

O'Connor will face a difficult task, as the championship team of last year was shot to pieces by graduation last spring. Along with Sticks Reilleg the outstanding Texas conference performer of last year, the Saints also los Durrenberger and Erspamer, two sterling guards.

Captain John O'Brien, Jansing, Deegan, Solomito and Watty James are the letter men back in school this year. Of these, Jansing probably showed the most promise of developing into a star performer.

Drake Wins Easily Over California U.

COLISEUM, LOS ANGELES, Nov. 26. (AP)—The football team from Drake university, Des Moines, Iowa, and the Bruins of University of California at Los Angeles scrambled and fought on even terms for two periods today, then the Southerners' defense crumpled under the Iowa drive and Drake won, 25 to 6.

A small crowd of less than 4000 watched the game. The Bruins, who will graduate next season from the Southern California conference into the faster company of the Pacific coast circuit, staked and lost on long passes. Drake mixed an aerial attack with vicious line plunges to upset the U. C. L. A. outfit.

Boston College Whips Holy Cross by Hair

BOSTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—Thirty yards worth of penalties on two plays for unnecessary roughness and not enough seconds in a minute cost Holy Cross the decision against Boston college and sent the Worcester collegians down to a six to nothing defeat in the 25th annual gridiron joust between the two Jesuit institutions here today.

The lone Boston touchdown came with startling suddenness at the end of the fourth quarter after 50 minutes of scoreless battling, and seemingly after Holy Cross had worked out of a bad hole.

COACH DANA BIBLE'S FIVE YEAR CONTRACT ENDS

Aggie Mentor Wins Two Grid Flags During Period

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Nov. 26.—Thanksgiving Day's victory for the Texas Aggies over the Texas Longhorns, by adding another Southwest Conference championship to A. & M.'s belt, gave A. & M. its fifth conference championship during the ten years that Dana X. Bible has been head coach at the College.

This is the fifth year of a five year contract as head coach at A. & M. signed by Bible in 1923 and the championship this year is the second during that five year period.

Coach Bible Pleased

In reviewing the season just closed, Bible finds much to compliment not only in the support of the college administration, the alumni and other friends of A. & M. but in the spirit of the players as well. "The boys have had a keen desire to become better football players. They have been very faithful in their work. They have gone at full speed in practice. The reward for any team that will work as hard as our boys have this year will be success. And there has been the finest sort of cooperation from every one interested in A. & M., the faculty, the alumni, others of friends and supporters."

Bible took occasion to pay tribute to the fine sportsmanship of Texas in the Thanksgiving Day game, victory in which was the last needed to assure the championship. "Sportsmanship is traditional with Texas," he said, "and it's a pleasure to play such an opponent."

Bible Came In 1917

Bible's first year here as head coach was in 1917 and that year he put out the conference winners. War clouds were dark on the horizon at that time and after the Thanksgiving Day game he entered the air service of the army and was with the colors for 18 months. He returned to A. & M. in 1919 after the war and repeated his performance of 1917 by putting out another championship team in 1919.

A. & M. repeated as conference winners in 1927 and 1925. With the conference championship this year, Bible has scored five championships out of ten years as head coach. Fans will recall that the 1921 champions added to their laurels by defeating Centre College and grabbing off the Southern championship. Centre College that year had electrified the football world by winning the Southern flag, defeating Harvard and winning on the West Coast. Then came the game with the 1921 Aggies and Centre tasted defeat.

Business Office Smiles

James Sullivan, business manager of athletics at A. & M. college, wore a pleased smile the day after this year's history making Thanksgiving Day game, and it was not alone a smile of satisfaction at the victory of the Aggies and the record gate receipts for Kyle Field.

The fact that an artistic bronze tablet had been fastened, all unknown to him, over the center entrance to the new $75,000 concrete unit of A. & M.'s football stadium, contributed in part to the smile. Why, will be known in knowing the legend on the tablet. It reads as follows: "In appreciation of James Sullivan. An untiring worker in the cause of Aggieland. This stadium erected in 1927."

The tablet was erected by the alumni of A. & M. It was put in place the day of the Thanksgiving game.

Sullivan was the moving spirit behind the plan to erect a concrete stadium for A. & M. The unit now complete is on the west side. In time it is planned to build east and north units, making a great U-shaped stand that will seat 30,000 or more. The stadium is being built by the athletic department out of its revenues.

ARMY-NAVY FIGHT BY ROUNDS

Navy gained on the first exchange of kicks. After receiving the kickoff Army could not advance and Murrell punted to Navy's 35-yard line. Navy used a quick kick in punting back and grounded the ball on Army's five-yard line. Murrell had to kick right out and Lloyd ran out of bounds on Army's 42-yard line. The Middies gained 30 yards on the exchange of kicks and immediately launched a rushing attack.

Navy plunged to a first down on Army's 29-yard line, then made another on the 19-yard mark. Clifton picked up eight more and then made it first down on the five-yard line. Army stopped Clifton before he could start and navy was setback 15 yards for holding. Lloyd and Ransford failed to gain on a double pass. Lloyd's sweeping end run was spilled and when Clifton made only six yards through center Army took the ball on its 10-yard line.

Pass For 25 Yards.

Cagle passed to Murrell for a gain of 25 yards on the third play of the second period, placing the ball on Navy's 22-yard line. Two line plunges were unproductive and on the third Cagle was blocked before he could get a pass off and tackled for a loss of 15 yards. Murrell then kicked to Navy's eight-yard line. Lloyd returned the kick and Cagle ran it back to Navy's 35-yard line.

Wilson got five yards off tackle, but on the next play a poor pass stopped him without gain. Navy failed by inches to catch Cagle's pass and another incompleted pass gave the ball to Navy on its own 20-yard line. Clifton at once rushed through center for 12 yards and a first down. Lloyd added four. Navy got a "break" when a pass, Lloyd to Ransford, was completed by way of a partial block by an Army player. It placed the ball on Army's 44-yard line. Navy's running game was stopped, however, and Lloyd kicked to Cagle inside Army's 10-yard line.

Navy scored a safety when Murrelll's kick against his own goal line was blocked and bounced out of bounds in the end zone. The play was automatically a safety and gave the Navy two points. Army put the ball in play on a free kick and Ransford ran it to the Army's 43-yard line.

Army Shows Speed.

Army got a good start in the second half when Cagle ran the kick-off back 20 yards to Army's 36-yard line. Murrell made it first down in two plays and Wilson added five. Army drew an off-side penalty and then bucked the ball out of bounds. Cagle was tackled before he could pass and Murrell kicked to Ransford on Navy's 11-yard line.

Wilson took Lloyd's punt and ran 18 yards to Navy's 28-yard line. The Army captain bucked to the 18-yard line and first down. Wilson bucked out of bounds and when the ball was brought in Wilson, carrying the ball for the fourth successive time, added seven yards. Wilson then slipped off tackle and dragged a flock of tackles to within a yard of the goal line. It was first down and goal to go.

Wilson went over for the touchdown through center and Cagle kicked the goal, making the score Army 7; Navy 2.

Navy, after two line slashes and a feeble incompleted forward pass, kicked to Cagle, who fumbled on his 25-yard line. A Navy player covered the ball temporarily, but could not hold it and Naye fell on it and kept it for the Army. The Navy forwards had something left and stopped the Army drive. Murrell kicked to Ransford on Navy's 38-yard line.

Cagle intercepted a pass on Navy's 40-yard line and ran 36 yards to the four-yard line. Wilson needed only two plays to make the touchdown this time.

Cagle again kicked the goal, making the score: Army 14; Navy 2.

Fourth period: On a variation of the Pennsylvania hidden ball trick Murrell caught the Navy flat footed and ran 24 yards to Navy's 39-yard line. A long pass grounded. Wilson ripped off 11 yards, but Army was penalized 15 yards for holding. Lloyd intercepted one of Cagle's long passes on his 32-yard line and ran 10 yards before being forced out of bounds.

Wilson got the ball back for the Army by intercepting Lloyd's pass on Navy's 44-yard line. Cagle passed to Murrell, the ball being downed on Navy's 35-yard line. Wilson made it first down on the 31-yard line.

Two Five-Yard Penalties.

Two five-yard penalties drove Army back to the 41-yard line, but the Cadets got the lost yardage back with a pass to Wilson. Murrell then kicked out of bounds one yard from the Navy goal line. Lloyd kicked from behind the goal line to Wilson, who ran to Navy's 42-yard line.

Murrell plunged to the 30-yard line. Murrell again fooled the Navy by hiding the ball and going to within inches of a first down. The next slash gave first down on the 20-yard line. A bad pass cost the Army five yards. Cagle took the ball on a double pass, but gained only three yards.

Wilson failed. Cagle lost six yards and Navy took the ball.

Lloyd passed to Coffman on Army's 45-yard line. The next two passes grounded and Lloyd kicked outside on the Army's four-yard line. Murrell kicked back to Navy's 45-yard line.

Navy got a first down by an Army off-side penalty and Clifton ran to Army's 30-yard line. Two passes failed after a smash yielded five yards. From near midfield Lloyd tossed a forward pass to Sloane, who caught it as he slid across the goal line for the touchdown. Captian Hannegan kicked goal and the score was: Army 14; Navy 9.

Army elected to receive and Wilson ran the ball back 35 yards to midfield. Hutchinson, substitute for Cagle, made 10 yards, but Army was penalized 15 yards for holding. Hutchinson got all but one yard of it back. Lloyd took Hutchinson's punt and ran it 23 yards to the Navy 33-yard line.

Lloyd passed to Parish, who just entered the game, for a gain of 14 yards, placing the ball on Navy's line. A pass was messed up as the game ended.

Hunt Last to Wear No. 8 for Aggies

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Nov. 26.—The number 8, made famous in Southwest conference football circles by Joel Hunt of the Texas Aggies, will be worn no more by grid performers of the Maroon and White. "No. 8" has been dedicated at Aggieland to Joel Hunt, flashing star of the gridiron, who took off and laid away for the last time after the Thanksgiving day game the maroon jersey with that number on the back that he had carried through so many grim fights and so many victories for the Aggies.

Athletic authorities have announced that Hunt's jersey with its now famous number will be kept at Aggieland in the athletic hall of trophies and that No. 8, being dedicated to Hunt, will not be used hereafter as a player's distinguishing mark.

Texas To Play Vandy Oct. 13

One-Game Contract For Dallas Next Year

AUSTIN, Nov. 26. (AP)—Athletic officials of Texas university Saturday signed a contract with Vanderbilt university providing for one football game to be played in Dallas on October 13, 1928, it was announced by Dr. R. A. Law, chairman of the athletic council.

A tentative contract made by the athletic department several days ago and forwarded to Nashville was approved at the meeting of the council Friday night, and on its receipt Saturday signed by the Vanderbilt authorities it was finally signed also by the Texas varsity officials.

The contract ends a long series of negotiations between the two schools, the existing contract having been terminated with the game at Dallas this fall.

Vanderbilt originally insisted that Dallas be the home grounds of the Longhorns if the two schools were to continue relations, suggest a home and home contract on that basis. University officials have been working to get the traditional intersectional clash played in Austin and Nashville on a home and home schedule.

Vanderbilt offered a compromise saying she woud play two games in Dallas if the Texas team would come to Nashville one year but this was turned down by the Texas council and the offer that a single game be played was made. Vanderbilt accepted this proposal.

Only one date remains to be filled on the Texas schedule next year, that of Saturday, October 6.

HOUSTON, Nov. 26. (AP)—The John Reagan high school eleven annexed the city grid championship at Rice field Saturday by defeating Sam Houston in their annual struggle 12 to 0.

OREGON AGGIES TIE CARNEGIE

Pacific Coast Team Halts Powerful Invader

By Universal Service.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 26.—The Oregon Aggies and Carnegie Tech of Pittsburgh, Penn., fought a sensational 14-to-14 tie game here this afternoon in the first intersectional clash between the two institutions.

Both elevens scored a touchdown in the first period which ended seven all. The second period was scoreless.

Infantry Teams In Hot Battle

Fort Sam Houston Club Brings Home Bacon

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26. (AP)—Uncle Sam's 23rd infantry of Fort Sam Houston brought home the bacon in its toughest assignment of the year by a 19-15 score over the first infantry eleven from Fort D. A. Russell, Cheyenne, Wyo., in a post-season championship affair here Saturday.

It was a football game from the opening kickoff until the last forward pass was frantically thrown by the first infantry in the gathering darkness. Everything in the football book was unleased. There were forward passes, sensational runs, a safety, field goals and touchdowns. There were two lines charging like fiends and two backfields that knew not when they were stopped.

Enumerating stars would be a task—they were all stars. It might be said, however, that for 23rd, Minnis, Shaw, Mintzer and Heffner played an outstanding game. Prisco, Wilson, Plummer and Mellman stood out somewhat for the doughboys from the north.

T. C. U. CAGE CALL ISSUED.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 26. (AP)—Basketball hopes will replace football regrets Monday at Texas Christian university when Coach Matty Bell will call out his varsity prospects for the first practice of the year.

It's Amarillo and Abilene, the Golden Sandstorm against the Eagle, for the bi-district title contest this week in the Texas university state interscholastic high school football championship race. Abilene won from Cisco in her district final 27-0 Friday, while Amarillo eliminated Wichita Falls, 22-6 the day before. Whichever of the two teams win the bi-district race will have to be reckoned with seriously for the state title. Abilene won the state championship in 1923. Then for three years Cisco trounced the Eagles regularly but this year the Abilene eleven is again in the race. History may be doing a ditto.

The only team in the southwest which has a perfect victory average over enough teams in the Southwest conference to be awarded the title were it a member of the organization is that known as the Centenary Gentlemen of Shreveport. Centenary, which has won its last 10 games in a row against the stiffest kind of opposition and playing through one of the most formidable schedules in the south, licked four Southwest conference teams. The Gentlemen tasted the gore of the Baylor Bear, saddled the S. M. U. Mustang, made 'mulleys' out of the T. C. U. Horned Toads and plucked the tail feathers of the Rice Owls. The Bears and the Owls were of course comparatively weak foes for the Gentlemen but taking the Horned Toads and the Mustangs to a country cleaning is something to write home about.

* * *

Now the Gentlemen are after a post season game with the Texas Aggies, champions of the Southwest conference. The Aggies have to their credit victories over Arkansas, Baylor, Rice, S. M. U. and Texas university, while to their discredit, if any, is a scoreless tie with T. C. U., the same Horned Frogs who held the Texas Longhorns to a non-touchdown deadlock and lost to Centenary. It would be quite interesting to see the game between the Gentlemen from Shreveport, La., and the Farmers from College Station, Texas.

* * *

Centenary has for several years tried to obtain the badge of a member in the Southwest conference. On each occasion their application drew a blackball, various arguments being used by various members of the conference to prevent the enrollment of the Gentlemen. It is quit probable that the Gentlemen will again knock at the Southwest conference portals for mission this winter. We wonder what the answer will be. Certainly the old argument that Centenary is not strong enough to add prestige to the organization cannot now longer be used. In addition to its perfect standing in Southwest conference scalps, the Centenary team holds five successive triumphs over Southern intercollegiate athletic association rivals. That again is something to drop a note to the old folks about.

* * *

We are inclined to believe that Centenary has earned its fee of admission to the Southwest conference. Scholastic standards as stiff as those set up in the Texas collegiate organization are now being observed by the Gentlemen and all the rules of good sportsmanship have been obeyed. Shreveport is in the Texas league. Why not add her to the Southwest conference?

* * *

There should be no regrets over the defeat of the Wichita Falls Coyotes in the district football race. The Pack met a worthy foe under distressing odds, the boys fought a good fight and they deserve a pat on the back. It's time now to turn attention to the work of preparing for a strenuous basketball season. The other race has been run so far as the Coyotes are concerned.

POLO GROUNDS, NEW YORK, N. Y., Nov. 26.—The Navy football craft was having what you might call "Bon Voyage" over the first leg of the course up at the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

The weather was fine. The water was smooth. Everything was very nice, indeed, and at least half the crowd of 75,000 spectators lining the shores 'neath Coogan's Cliffs were lustily expressing the hope that the boys would make Port Victory all O. K.

'Twas off Cape Second Half, with all right and tight aboard, and the river men of the Army from up the Hudson two points astern, that there came o na blow, and what a blow, my hearties.

Harry Wilson Star

Something hit the Navy canoe loaded as she was with fond hopes of triumph, For'd, as we marines say. It sounded like Harry Wilson, a brawny big back from West Point, wit hno football conscience.

"Cap'n" reported one of the Navy crew, "I think we're leakin'!" Something hit 'em aft. It felt like Christy Cagle, another of those ruthless Hudson dusters.

"I guess maybe we're sinkin'!" commented the captain of the Navy skiff. "Such lovely weather, too."

Well, the final score was 14 to 9 in favor of the Army in that Army-Navy game, which is what this tale I sail about, despite the impression that the foregoing paragraphs might lend that we were out on a regatta up there at the P. G. today.

Navy Is Obstinate

It was about as expected, except that the Navy was as obstinate in the first half as its aged old billy goat, which dug furrows in the grass with its forfeet trying to pull away from its keepers during the game.

The Annapolis young men stood up against the onslaught of the Army for the first half hour in a manner that brought goose pimples of apprehension out on the gray clad, and somewhat pop-eyed young whoopers for your Uncle Samuel's war college up the river. The Navy grabbed two points for itself on a safety in the first half and the Army not only couldn't score, but got jolly well shoved around in the interim.

But in the second half there were two distinct "ker-chugs" in rapid succession, the first being Wilson, and the second Cagle, and then another very loud "ker-chug," which was Cagle and Wilson in conjunction, and thereafter, until late in the evening the Navy didn't do so well.

Boys Get Busy

'I wonder what's been detaining those boys," commented a grizzled army officer, with a sigh of relief, as Cagle and Wilson broke out with two touchdowns. A lot of othesr were wondering the same thing. Perhaps "biff" Jones the Army coach, was holding them in restraint so as not to unduly alarm the sailors early in the game.

Wilson, the Army captain, playing his last game, hadn't done a thing up to the moment he started doing a lot of things, though Cagle had been all over the game like a rash from the start.

Out of the gathering dusk of the autumn afternoon, "Whitey" Lloyd of the Navy, began lashing long forward passes, and he finally sent Sloane sprawling over the Army goal line with one that lifted the Navy hopes very high indeed for a spell. It was a most spectacular play, one of the kind that really ought to win a game to send a man home babbling to himself.

Army Tanks Get Going

But in the end the Army swooped down on the Navy goal posts like a gray cloud, and tore the white stancions from the turf, and bore them about the field while the blue-clad young men from Annapolis looked on more in sorrow than in anger. At least they had thrown a good scare into the soldiers, and had made what the football experts call one of the best teams on the Atlantic seaboard look very small in the first half of the game.

The way that Navy line stood up under the attack of the heavy cavalry of the Army astounded the onlookers. Time and again Cagle, Wilson and Murrell swung at it in wild charges, only to be thrown back upon their own redoubts. Time and again the Navy swept the Army ends in disconcerting dashes.

Biff Talks to 'Em

Mr. "Biff" Jones the Army coach, probably said a lot of things to the soldiers in the dressing room between the halves. They say football coaches are that way when things are not going to suit them. The Army came out for the second half with a whoop, and a thunderous drive headed by the great Cagle and Wilson, that could not be resisted. The Navy line that had stood so valiantly throughout the first half suddenly wilted and Cagle and Wilson went streaming through.

It was a great game. The Navy Army was 2 to 1 favorite in the betting, but at the end of the first half almost any Army bettor would have been willing to call it a draw. "Whitey" Lloyd, Clifton and Ransford behind that taut Navy line had raised what we call the dickens with the stout fellows from West Point. I here quote you some of the statistics of the game for the benefit of those who like their football reduced to figures.

Figger, Boys, Figger

First downs: Navy, 13; Army, 11.

Total passes: Navy, 18; Army, 11.

Passes completed: Navy, 5; Army, 4.

Passes intercepted: Army, 2; Navy, 1.

Average distance gained on kicks: Navy, 39; Army, 39.

Fumbles: Army, 1; Navy, 1.

Penalties: Navy, 25 yards; Army, 50 yards.

DAVE BANCROFT
WAS ONCE CONSIDERED THE BEST SHORTSTOP IN THE LEAGUE
SORDS

By JACK SORDS.

Brooklyn is getting to be the dumping grounds for all the fading stars who have not entirely outlived their usefulness. Dave Bancroft is the latest of the near "has beens" to join his slipping brothers.

Dave fell far below his usual high playing standards this year. He fielded brilliantly at times, but was much weaker with the stick than he was when he played short for the Giants, winding up the season with the sickly average of .243. Maybe the burden of being manager had something to do with it. At that he failed to land the Braves in the first division in four tries. He finished eighth in 1924, fifth in 1925 and seventh this and last season.

Bancroft, 35 years old, has just completed his thirteenth season as a major leaguer. He made his professional debut in 1909 in the Minnesota-Wisconsin league and joined Portland of the Coast league in 1912, where he played three years before being sold to the Phillies. In 1920 he went to the Giants in a deal that sent Art Fletcher and pitcher Hubbell to the Phils. The Giants let him go to the Braves in 1924 to succeed Fred Mitchell as manager, trading the shortstop along with Bill Cunningham and Casey Stengel for Joe Oeschger and Bill Southworth.

Some of the men he joins who are nearing the end of activity in uniform are:

Max Carey, 36; Bill Doak, 36; Hank De Berry, 35; Dazzy Vance, 34, and Jesse Petty, 32.

The way things stand now Dave will hold down the shortstop position for Brooklyn and he may be the making of Horace Partridge, youthful star, who seems to need only an old head to work alongside of him.

Time of periods, 15 minutes; start of game, 1:30 p. m.

CHICAGO, Nov. 26. (AP)—All California is sad and "Drury" tonight.

The Trojans from the University of Southern California, coming out of the west undefeated, lost a heartbreaking one-point football game to Notre Dame on Soldier field this afternoon, 7 to 6, before 112,000 spectators, the greatest throng that ever witnessed a gridiron struggle in America.

The victory was a repetition of the Notre Dame triumph of a year ago, when Rockne's ramblers snatched a 13-12 victory over the Trojans, at Los Angeles.

Trojans Score First.

The Trojans, in a smashing, irresistible attack, scored early in the first period, with Captain Morley Drury, their brilliant quarterback, and candidate for all-American honors, tossing a forward pass to Russell Saunders that resulted in a touchdown. When Drury sent his toe crashing against the ball in an attempt to add the extra point, Chilly Walsh, the Notre Dame right end, hurled himself against the ball, and blocked it, giving Notre Dame the brea kit needed.

A few minutes later, in the same period, Notre Dame found its chance to score, opened up with its aerial shots and tossed a pass across the goal with Charley Riley, the little quarterback heaving the ball to Ray Dahman. Then with the Notre Dame line holding like a stone wall, Dahman stepped back and successfully booted a drop kick for the added point, giving Notre Dame its edge and finally, victory.

Last of the Scoring.

Thereafter for the remaining three periods, the fighting Notre Dame team, with frequent shifts in the lineup, set up a defense that held the coast invaders in check, stopped the running attack of Drury, and twice nipped the surges that threatened their goal line.

Individually, the game resulted in a thrilling offensive battle between Drury and Christy Flanagan, Notre Dame's great halfback.

Flanagan, playing his last game for Notre Dame, overshadowed all his previous sensational performances, splitting the line with his powerful thrusts, and shooting around the ends for long gains. In the first stages of the battle, Flanagan faking a backward pass, smashed through the Trojans' forward wall repeatedly.

Drury Is Tower.

Drury, a combination of Red Grange, Herb Joesting and Bennie Friedman, a little bit of each, carried the brunt of the Southern California's attack, playing himself almost to the point of exhaustion. Drury, carrying the ball four out of five plays in the first half, spent his strength before three periods were finished. He missed the aid of Harry Edelson and Don Williams, in carrying the ball. Edelson was forced out of the game because of injuries and Williams was left home in California, nursing injuries.

112,000 See Game.

The tremendous crowd witnessing today's game surpassed the record-breaking attendance of 111,000 that turned out for the Army-Navy clash just a year ago. Although no championship, sectional or otherwise, was involved, no football game ever played in Chicago attracted so much attention.

UGLY GIRLS WORST WIVES

Ugly girls make the worst wives, according to the latest prison report in Japan. The moral for Nippon's young men appears to be not to marry ugly girls, but to choose the prettiest they can find. At all events, this is the advice of the prison authorities at Tochigi Prefecture. They declare that the majority of criminal women are ugly. But officials say that perhaps there are not many ugly girls in Japan, for women inmates of Japanese prisons number only 910 in comparison with a total of more than 41,000 men.

This New Service Ends Gear Grief

Thanks to a new invention you can now procure service that will do as much to prolong the life of gears as Alemiting (chassis lubrication) every 500 miles does to prolong the life of your car.

This invention is the Alemite Gear Flusher, a device for flushing out gear cases with kerosene under power. It rids transmission and differential of all old grease and abrasive matter before fresh lubricant is injected. Leading auto. engineers say this should be done at least every 2,500 miles to keep gears easy to shift and from becoming noisy.

EASTERN OIL MEN IN CITY SHOW REAL OPTIMISM FOR INDUSTRY

"CUT" RUMORS FEARED HERE

Thanksgiving Week Sees Several News Wells

By TOM TRULY
The Record News Oil Editor

While North Texas oil men were scanning the petroleum horizon with increased apprehension for fear that a distant rumbling of another cut might come nearer home, new activities slumped as compared with the past week although holding a steady pace.

Yet the most encouraging event which has occurred in this district in many months was evinced in the visit here of representatives of eastern interests, whom, it is understood, feel that better times are not so far ahead that large investments are no longer safe. While no deals were actually announced here during the past week, Eastern oil men who have their ears to the ground were declared to be highly optimistic.

Several New Wells

Besides gaining almost its usual number of new tests, Wilbarger county was the scene of an important extension this week while Young county tallied with two big producers and Jack county with one. The fact that Thanksgiving day came during the week was responsible in part at least for the slight decline in field work. Many local operators were absent from the city throughout the last half of the week.

The Wilbarger extension was made by Fain-McGaha Oil company in its No. 1-L Waggoner in section 31, block 4, H. & T. C. survey. It found the pay at 2375-91 feet and swabbed 125 barrels adding a quarter of a mile to the Milham production in the Rock Crossing pool.

In the Graham field of south central Young county Pitzer and West brought in two wells with a combined yield of almost 1200 barrels daily. Their No. 2 Henson flowed 38 barrels an hour and made 5,000,000 cubic feet of gas at 2000-03 feet, which is unusually high. Their No. 5-A Morrison in the Hammond survey was a 225-barreler from the 2200 foot pay.

While these two wells served to keep the Graham field alive, there was another important development there, although quite disappointing. Paull Oil company's No. 3 Morrison drilled to 2335 feet and entirely missed the pay thus making the outlook for the east side of the pool rather dark. New drilling blocks continue to be assembled in the territory radiating from Graham and by the time 1928 has rolled around about a dozen wildcats will be howling for attention in addition to two-thirds that number which are already under way.

In Jack county just one producer was reported. It was Christie Brothers No. 2 Jones Estate in the S. P. R. R. survey, abstract 550. Finding the Strawn sand at 2061-76 feet, this well paid off at the rate of 145 barrels daily.

Wichita county was quiet and had it not been for Producers Drilling company's No. 3 Love in the Kennard survey, south of Iowa Park, would have made an extremely poor showing. This well is making 50 barrels from 1817 feet and has caused two other wells to start penetrating the sod.

Cooke county holds a big promise which will not be fully revealed until early in the coming week. It is W. J. Green's No. 1 Campbell, southwest of Muenster which is showing plenty of oil at 745-54 feet. In this horizon is a four-foot shale break beginning at 747 feet but solid sand was found from 751-54 feet.

Deep Test Has Ellenberger

Is the Elleberger lime in North Texas to be penetrated its entire thickness? Many efforts have been made to drill through this hard formation but noen have been successful. Now it has been found below 5000 feet and may be pierced.

The Watchorn Oil and Gas company's No. 1 Williams Brothers in north Jack county found the Ellenberger at 5310 feet and will continue drilling. This test has been drilling for several months with considerable oil in the hole, the oil having come from formation at 4467 to 4504 feet.

Many oil men hold to the opinion that oil will be found under the Elleberger if it is ever drilled through. Should this theory prove true in this case, Jack county can claim one of teh nation's deepest oil fields.

GETS GAS FRANCHISE

GUYMON, Okla., Nov. 26—The natural gas franchise at Guymon, in Texas county, Oklahoma Panhandle, has been awarded to A. J. Hardendroff. It will be managed under the name of the Texas County Gas company and will take gas from a well drilled by H. F. Wilcox Oil and Gas company nine miles northwest of Cuymon. Hardendroff also has the gas franchise at Clarendon, in Donley county, in the southeast area of the Panhandle field of Northwest Texas.

Montague and Jack County Fields In Small Gains As District Drops

Heavy losses in every field but five, one of which neither gained nor lost, shoved the daily average production of the north Texas district down to 91,290 barrels during the past week, a aloss of 1245 barrels as compared to the previous week's figure.

Montague gained 75 barrels and Jack 55 while Wilbarger and Clay counties showed smaller gains

Young county, which has been climbing for several weeks, lost 665 barrels the past week. Heavy losses were also registered by Elecrta, Archer and Cooke.

Gas Fires for Christmas at Crowell

With machinery and equipment on the ground and actual work already having started on Crowell's natural gas system, citizens of that town are hopeful that they can welcome Santa Claus into homes warmed with gas produced in Foard county of which Crowell is the capital. INTEREST KEEN IN WILDCATS

Five Have Already Found Oil At Seminole

TULSA, Nov. 26.—Oil men are manifesting the keenest of interest in the wildcats of the Seminole district. Five of these have already found oil and may open new oil pools, if not extensions to proven pools there.

Barnsdall Oil company No. 1 Fife, in the northeast of the northwest of 14-6-5, south of the Barnsdall pool, in Seminole county, had the Mayes lime at 3,680 feet, and the Woodford at 3,970 feet and was drilling ahead at 4,037 feet. This offsets information received by telephone from Shawnee that it had found the Viola high. The Viola is yet to be penetrated in this wildcat.

Prairie Oil and Gas company at No. 1 Stubbs, in the northwest corner of the northeast of the northeast of 18-9-7, found the Hunton lime from 4,065 to 4,096 feet, and is swabbing 90 barrels a day. It will not be deepened for some time. This well is east of the Seminole City pool.

Gypsy Oil company's No. 1 Solomon, in the southeast of the northeast of 21-10-7, east of the Searight pool, was opened the other day for three hours and produced 147 barrels in that time and then headed up. It is definitely accepted as pool opener.

Southern Seminole

In southern Seminole county, the Tom Slick, Inc., No. 1 Moore, in the southwest of the northeast of the southwest of 1-6-6, was bottomed at 2,442 feet, with 1,000 feet of oil in the hole. It is being bailed so the pipe can be recemented. T. B. Slick is very "hot" on that southern area of Seminole county and recently paid $10,000 in cash and $10,000 in oil for the northwest of the southwest of 16-7-6, from the Douglas Oil company, including the Seminole City, Searight, Bowlegs, Earlsboro and Little River pools, has produced approximately 138,000,000 barrels of high gravity oil to November 1, so field economists report.

Only Burbank has done more, but it will shortly be passed by the Seminole area, for the 430,000 barrel a day average amounts to 12,900,000 barrels a month, and Burbank is averaging but slightly more than 30,000 barrels a day, or 900,000 barrels per month.

To October 1 the five pools had actually produced 11,696,000 barrels, with Seminole City leading with 49,033,000 barrels; Bowlegs was next with 27,281,000 barrels; Earlsboro did 22,416,000 barrels; Searight had done 10,937,000 barrels, and Little River had made 0,-327,000 barrels a day.

It was reported from Shawnee the other day that Gypsy Oil company had passed the Carter Oil company as the leading produced in the Seminole field, but this was incorrect. A late check of the leading producers showed the following for that 24 hours:

	Wells	Bbls.
Carter Oil Co.	122	55,482
Gypsy Oil Co.	100	48,190
I. T. I. C. Co.	126	44,354
Barnsdall Oil	74	41,136
Prairie O. & G.	74	35,325
Sinclair O. & G.	53	33,750

East Central Texas Pools Do 28,890 Bbls.

The Woodbine sand pools of East Central Texas—seven in number—averaged 28,890 barrels a day the past week from 1588 wells. The pools, daily production and wells follow:

	Output	Wells
Mexia	8700	421
Currie	585	40
Cedar Creek	1200	11
Richland	740	89
Powell	13,860	762
Wortham	2465	197
Nigger Creek	1340	68

Panhandle Now Sending Out More Crude Oil Than Fields Produce

More oil is going away from the Panhandle field of Northwest Texas than is being produced there, and reports say that crude buyers continue to flock to Amarillo and Pampa. This situation is in a way causing much new work in the plains field.

The daily movement the last two fiscal weeks follows:

	Nov. 10	Nov. 17
Pipe Line Rus	57,848	61,496
Refinery Runs	6,884	9,828
Tank Cars	28,397	33,079
Total Distribution	93,129	104,403
Total Production	85,194	82,752

Phillips Petroleum company is assembling material at Borger for the enlargements to the Alamo Refining company plant that it recently acquired. It is also starting work on a new natural gasoline plant in the Bowers area of Gray county.

Dixon Creek Oil company is ordering its 12,000 gallon gasoline plant in the Dixon Creek pool rebuilt. It was destroyed by fire last week, entailing a loss of around $90,000.

To Run Plant

Root Refineries, Inc., of ElDordo, Ark., which has maintained an office in Amarillo for more than a year, without doing anything more than watching the situation, has contracted to run the Federal Gasoline company plant at Borger, located in section 13, block Y.

Receivership proceedings have been invoked against the McMillen Oil corporation, having three wells in the Sanford-Paramount pool, all in section 82, block 46, of H. & T. C. survey, and the California Eastern Oil company having five wells in section 21, block Y, of M. & C. survey, near Borger. The low price of crude hit them hard, along with other difficulties.

The Lenix-Pattison 20 acres in section 11, block Y, of M. & C. survey, which at one time was touted as the Panhandle's best small tract, was purchased by Harry Steckoll of the Tulsa Pipe and Supply company for $16,000,000. The Steckoll purchase included their 5-16 interest. The two wells on the lease were dead when he took charge, and J. R. Phillips of Skiatook, Okla., and head of the Skia-Tex Petroleum company, directed the work of cleaning them out and one of the wells is now making better than 130 barrels a day.

Crude Stocks Lowered

On November 1 there was 18,-149,401 barrels of oil in the storage tanks over the six counties that constitute the Panhandle field, or 390,426 barrels less than was held in them on October 1. The capacity of the tanks totalled 24,-283,500 barrels, indicating room for 6,134,099 barrels.

By counties the tankage up and amount of oil in stock follows:

County—	Capacity (bbls.)	Stock (bbls.)
Carson	5,950,000	4,847,459
Donley	110,000	working
Gray	6,972,000	5,488,636
Hutchinson	11,032,500	7,765,288
Potter	110,000	working
Wheeler	109,000	48,018
T'ls Nov. 1	24,283,500	18,149,401
T'ls Oct. 1	23,913,500	18,539,827

Corrosion Trouble Anew

Panhandle operators are already complaining again about corrosion, due to the sulphur content of the gas and oils, especially in the Carson and Hutchinson areas. Storage tanks that have been emptied have been found to be badly etched and in many instances have been entirely destroyed.

One firm, which is slowly withdrawing from the Panhandle, took down a lot of tanks and removed them to its Borger machine shop for reworking, cutting down and other uses, and it found almost a 75 per cent loss.

Word from Pecos and Winkler counties, also from the Crane and Upton areas of West Texas field tell of similar troubles from HS-2. The sulphur content out there is larger and the tank troubles are multiplied.

SURVEYING NEW LINE.

Engineers of the Ozark Pipe Line corporation are surveying the new 10-inch line from Cushing, Okla., to Pecos, West Texas, via Healdton. It will be a welded line, and connect West Texas with the Alton, Ill., and East Chicago, Ind., refineries of the Roxana.

BROWN COUNTY RECORD

BROWNWOOD, Texas, Nov. 26.—There were 1, 536 producing oil wells in Brown county, of Central Texas during October, which produced a total of 19,536 barrels of crude, or an average of 12 1-3 barrels per well.

NO DERRICKS IN YATES POOL

Shallow Field Drilled With "Spudders"

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 26.—There is no liquid gold flowing "over the top" on derricks in the renown Yates field in Pecos county, the greatest oil yield per wel lof any konwn field, where last week the Mid-Kansas and Transcontinental Oil companies brought in their No. 20 Yates for a potential production of 65,880 barrels a day, based on a 45-minute test guage.

No sooner had the press messages flashed over the country that the third largest well ever trought in had been completed in Pecos county than telegrams started pouring into San Angelo from news agencies, syndicates, news reel photographers and press organizations, wanting pictures of the well gushing oil over the top of the derrick.

There are no derricks in the Yates field.

There are no derricks over No. 2C Yates. The only thing that can be seen is a small control head sticking three or four feet out of the ground, screwed tight on to the casing of teh well, which is cemented to the ground by a four-foot concrete slab. Most of the wells have been drilled with national and spudder machines, a few star rigs and hardly any hardly any standard rigs at all. When such is used, the rig is moved away as quickly as the well is completed and another well started.

The Yates pool, despite its greatest production, is not an othordox looking oil field. Tourists have been rushing to the field, disappointed at not finding a forest of derricks an doil gushing here and there. They see the little pipe sticking out of the ground and that is all.

There is only shallow production in the Yates field and until yet no deep pay has been sought.. Therefore, the nation's greatest potential oil field remains without a derrick.

Prominent Texas Oil Operator Dies Saturday

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26. (AP)—P. S. Powell, 58, formerly of Tulsa, Okla., a prominent oil man, died in a hospital here today. He had lived here four years. He is survived by his widow and two daughters who make their home in Tulsa and one son who lives in Eldorado, Ark. Funeral arrangements await word from relatives.

COLGATE, Okla., Nov. 26.—The Colgate anticlien in Coal county situated southeast of the Allen pool in Pontotoc, Seminole and Hughes counties, is due for an active play in 1928. The Indian Ter- has a large block in Coal county, and is said to have found some outstanding oil structures upon its acreage.

Archer County's Trade With Jim Ferguson Muddled

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANELO, Nov. 26.—When Jim Ferguson filed on four leagues of land on the Crockett county ranch of J. M. Shannon of San Angelo, oil lease matters became more complicated in West Texas. Mr. Shannon said he expects a showdown in the case by the first of the year, as oil companies at that time will either pay rentals or drop the lease.

This land exchanged hands several times before Shannon bought it about 20 years ago from Theodore Bjorkman for $1:50 an acre, and he can hardly see how Archer county commissioners could receive the former governor's money in filing on it for oil and gas rights.

An attack as to the constitutionality of a county selling oil and mineral rights may come out of the case, San Angelo attorneys believe, while some point out that the validity of the sale of the land by Archer county years ago may be the basis of the action of the Archer county commissioners and Mr. Ferguson in fighting the suit.

PAMPA FIELD SCORES GUSHER

Panhandle Activity Center In Gray County

Special to The Record News.

AMARILLO, Nov. 26. — Panhandle operations the past week have been centered around the Bowers area south of Pampa in Gray county, where one of the largest gushers of the new pool was drilled with a rotary.

This new gusher, the Danciger Oil company's No. 3 Jackson is located in the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 88, block B-2, Gray county, one offset to the northwest of the famous Delaney well, which has been making oil for 44 days and is still flowing between 4000 and 5000 barrels daily. The Danciger well topped the granite wash at 2835 feet and made 40 barrels an hour from the top pay. But when the bit reached 2960 the flow started off at the rate of 300 barrels an hour and after 10 hours the flow had dropped to 260 barrels hourly, which has been maintained ever since. The oil from the big well is of the same gravity as the Delaney well, being 44.6 gravity.

Rotary Operation.

This well has been watched closely for some time due partly to the announcement by the operators that it would be drilled in and completed with rotary tools. The fact that it was completed with this kind of tools will undoubtedly cause many others to be drilled in with rotary equipment and thereby save the expense of standardizing on top of the pay as has been the custom.

In Sherman county, where two wildcats have been getting most of the attention, the Phillips Petroleum company is rebuilding a rig over its No. 1 Price and Fuqua in section 33, block 2-B, the first one having been burned when 1,500,000 cubic feet of gas was found at 3225 feet, which became ignited. The other test, the Gibson Oil corporation's No. 1 Bivins in section 35, block 3-B, is drilling at 3350 feet after cutting off a water sand at 3310 feet. This test found 6,000,-000 feet of gas at 3050 feet and 7,000,000 feet more at 3290 feet. The next 200 or 300 feet in both of these tests will no doubt determine whether a pool will be opened in southeast Sherman county for some time or not.

Oil Strike On Huge Acreage

Green's Test in Cooke Shows Improvement

W. J. Green and associates seem to be about to realize the oil man's dream. On a solid block of approximately 5000 acres, southwest of Muenster in Cooke county, Green et al, have a well which is looking better as the hours roll along.

It is their No. 1 Louis Campbell in the O. Levitt survey, which topped a sand showing oil at 745 to 747 feet. Drilling in and bailing, the test showed plenty of oil. A four-foot shale break was encountered but the oil bearing sand quickly put in its appearance again.

Saturday the well was shut down but was to drill a few feet deeper into the sand in hopes of opening up a new pool in Cooke county, which would be the shallowest in that county.

The block comprises the entire Ball ranch.

ANOTHER GAS RESERVE.

Houston Oil company, one of the foremost distributors of natural gas on the Gulf coast, has leased 15,510 acres of gas territory in Duval county, Southwest Texas. The lease was taken as a gas reserve. Its No. 2 Brunt, in the Cole pool, of Webb county, had an open flow of 50,000,000 feet, and No. 20 Cartwright, started off at 35,-000,000 feet, and No. 5 Roche, in the Refugio pool, made 30,000,000 feet initial.

MAKES OIL SURVEY

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Nov. 26.—A. T. Coumbe, assistant economist of the United States Bureau fo Mines, has been transferred from Washington, D. C., to the Petroleum Experiment Station at Bartlesville. He is making an economic survey of the uses of petroleum products in the Mid-continent area.

Christmas Fire of Natural Gas Crowell's Hope As Work Is Begun

Special to The Record News.

CROWELL, Nov. 26.—Construction on Crowell's natural gas system is progressing rapidly and this city will very likely be burning gas by Christmas, according to A. H. Culburtson of Culbertson Brothers of Fort Worth, holders of the Crowell franchise. Several carloads of material are arriving daily for the construction work.

Culbertson Brothers also have a franchise at Thalia, ten miles east of Crowell and will start work there as soon as the system in Crowell and the line to the gas well, near Thalia, has been completed. Four inch mains are being laid in Crowell and the line to the well will also be four inches.

Culbertson Brothers were given the Crowell franchise September 20 when the application for franchises of two other companies were turned down by the city officials. The franchise provided for the holders to begin work within 90 days from the time of letting the franchise, however, it is believed that Crowell will be using gas by that time as a result of the quick action by Culbertson Brothers.

Several carloads of eight inch pipe have also arrived in Crowell to be used by the Stamford Gas company who will start construction soon on a line to extend from a point near Chillicothe on the Upham Gas line that comes from the Amarillo fields, south to Stamford. Gas from this line will serve most of the towns between these points. It will be about 100 miles in length.

MURCHISON-TURBEVILLE

Murchison Oil company has spudded in its No. 2 Turbeville, located 150 feet from the south and west lines of the north half of block 18, Jefferson county school lands in South Archer county. Murchison recently completed a dry hole on this tract.

NEW MORRISON WELL

Pitzer and West have completed their No. 5-A Morrison in the Hammond survey, Morrison field at Graham, south Young county, flowing 250 barrels daily from the sand at 2212-24 feet.

SOUTHWEST IOWA PARK

Five tests are drilling away in the Watkins field southwest of Iowa Park in Wichita county. They are all in the area proved "likely" by the discovery of a 1525-foot sand by Henry Hobbs' No. 1 Watkins.

Vergate Oil company is drilling at 700 feet in its No. 1 Watkins, located in block 46, Kemp's Wichita Valley lands.

Henry Hobbs' No. 2 Watkins, 600 feet west of his No. 1 in block 46, is drilling at 500 feet.

Magnolia Petroleum company's No. 12 Watkins, an effort to find the new sand, is drilling below 500 feet.

Producers Drilling company (O'Donohoe and Gates) is drilling at 1000 feet in No. 1 Hodges in the H. T. & B. survey.

GOLDING AND COCHRAN IN PRIDEAUX FIELD

In the Prideaux field of northeast Young county, Golding and Cochran have a lease in the best part of the shallow pay district which apparently is paying off handsomely. They have just completed their No. 19 Prideaux pumping 25 barrels daily on actual gauge from the 650-foot sand. Golding and Cochran have kept a spudder rig busy on this tract since their No. 1 was completed several months ago and are now drilling No. 20.

NEW RIG IN GRAHAM AREA

The only new test started outside of the proven area in the Graham area of Young county during the past week was Mann and Forbes No. 1 Martin and Cramer, southwest of the producers and in the Ben Hill survey, abstract 137. Rig is being built at a point 164 feet from the north line and 152 feet from the east of the nine-acre Martin and Cramer tract.

FARMER RANCH AREA

Three tests, any one of which may extend the production, are now holding the attention of those interested in the area surounding the Panhandle and Burton pool on the Farmer ranch, North Anderson ranch subdivision of Southwest Archer county.

Carey and Rhader in their No. 1 Farmer, located in the J. Poitevant survey, have considerable oil in the hole from sand at 1509-11 feet and will probably complete a producer early in the week.

Burton and Grisham are drilling at 1500 feet and looking for the sand in their No. 1 Farmer, also in the J. Poitevant survey.

Lee Wilson's No. 2 Farmer, south of the pool, is drilling around 1500 feet and may have the sand at any time.

SOUTHEAST WILBARGER

Frank Grebin and the Syndicate Oil company are rigging up to drill their No. 1 Waggoner six miles northwest of Dundee but in Wilbarger county, being just east of the diversion lake. The location is 1000 feet from the north line and 150 feet from the east of section 3, H. & T. C. survey, abstract 201.

JACK SHALLOW FIELD

Results of the past week's drilling in the shallow pool of northwest Jack county were not particularly encouraging, a field report shows. Henderson and Chandler completed their No. 1 Jackson in section 1, S. P. R. R. survey, abstract 574, as a dry hole at 704 feet after testing a sand showing oil at 565-77 feet and drilling through a water sand at 605-15 feet.

Kessler and Logan's No. 1 Clarihew in block 30 of the M. Putnam survey, was a failure at 1000 feet.

Spoonts et al had a dry hole at 555 feet in their No. 1 J. B. Martin, located in block 1, J. W. Williams survey.

Clay-Wilson Oil company's No. 1 Green in the Edward Wray survey, a deep test, is drilling at 1100 feet.

GOODWIN-COLEMAN

T. I. Goodwin is drilling at 850 feet in his No. 1 Coleman, located in block 27, Brazos county school lands, northeast Archer county. This well was reported previously as belonging to George L. Pace.

ROLLSTONE DEEP TEST

Col. A. Rollestone's No. 1 Schonokenburg in the Huseman survey, near Clara in north Wichita county, is drilling at 3,475 feet and is Wichita county's deepest active well. Col. Rollestone, while active in Colorado, is said to have drilled the world's deepest test east of California.

MARLAND-CHERRYHOLMES

Marland Oil company and Boch are cleaning out at a depth of 2,-535 feet in their No. 1 Cherryholmes, Jack county wildcat.

MONTAGUE COUNTY

Continental Oil company and Bridwell and Heydrick have made location to drill their No. 1 Cuningham as an east offset to the Continental's new producer on the Edmonson land in north Montague county.

Bridwell and Heydrick are building derrick for their No. 1-C Salmon in the F. Robertson survey, after completing No. 3-A Salmon as a dry hole at 1902 feet.

DARR-EDWARDS

Frank Darr is drilling at 400 feet in his No. 2 A. B. Edwards located 450 feet from the north and west lines of block 26, George Bruner survey in northeast Archer county, being and on a trend which has been played consistently during the past four years in the belief that a pool is to be uncovered in that district.

ROAMER-MCCLATCHEY

Roamer Oil company has completed its No. 3 Mrs. McClatchey, located in section 171, T. E. & L. survey, north Young county, as a dry hole at a total depth of 1153 feet.

Stocks Lowered In Three States

Crude oil stocks in Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana approximated 98,660,124 barrels on Nov. 1, or 866,846 barrels on less than a month previous, and 7,633,253 barrels more than was in storage on Nov. 1, 1926.

Crude in steel storage in the Gulf Coast field decreased 241,970 barrels from Oct. 1 to Nov. 1.

600 Gallons of

Rainsoft Water Gently Cleans Every Fabric Pore

OUR washing process calls for from nine to twelve changes of water—over 600 gallons in all! Every few minutes we change the soap baths and rinses—adding new rainsoft water that is fresh and pure—until the final rinse is drawn off crystal clear. Contrast this to the methods of the average laundress who strives for sanitation with but four water changes! Then you'll appreciate the superior service we can give you—if you'll only give us a call.

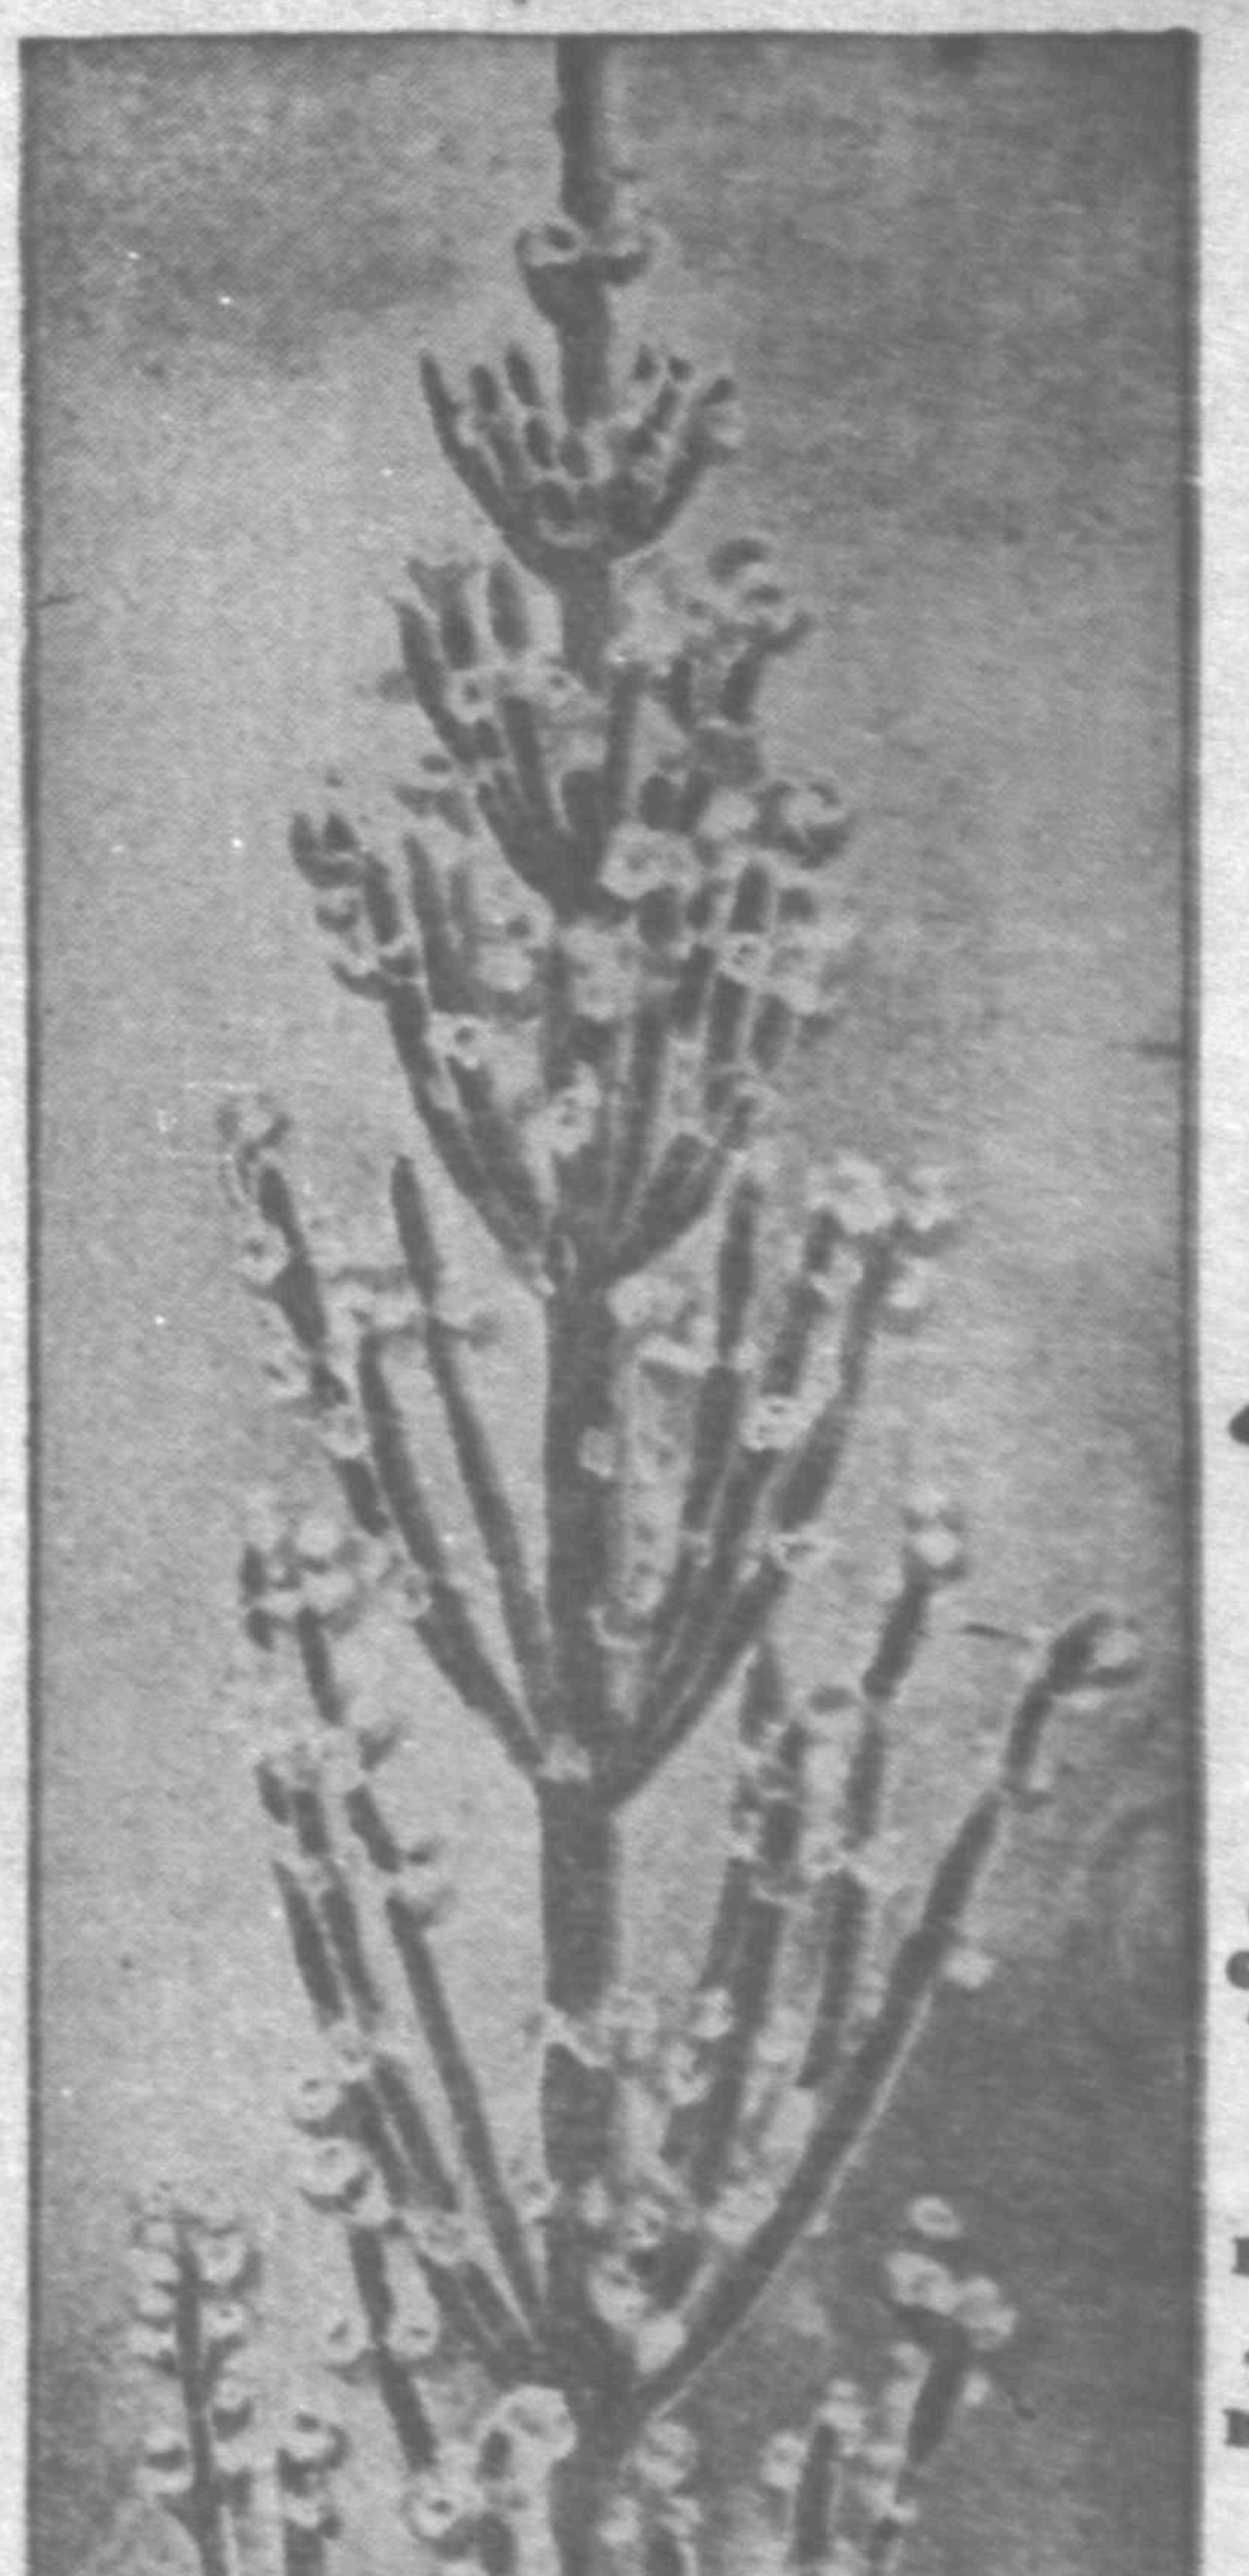
How NECTAR Is Really Produced by PLANTS

Death-Defying Drink of Ancient Greek Gods Is Sugary Sap.



Above—Ancient Statue of Hebe, Cup-Bearer to the Greek Gods, Pouring "Nectar," a Fabled Immortalizing Drink. Left: A Plant Producing "Nectar" by Secreting Through Glands in Its Flowers a Sweet Sap Which Evaporates and Becomes Sugar to Attract Insects.

WHEN Hebe, daughter of Zeus, and cup-bearer to the Grecian gods, filled her bowl with nectar, the fabled drink of the dwellers on Olympus, it may have been a real liquid, after all, which the ancient Greeks believed had the power of immortalizing those who drank it.

Modern science defines nectar as a fluid always sapid, usually sweet, often odorous, which is elaborated in any part of a plant, remaining where formed or making its way to some other part, its reason for existence being the necessity for the removal of some useless or injurious substance, or for some provision to attract nectar-loving animals to the plant for some definite purpose.

Professor J. K. Wilson, of Cornell University, says that it is doubtful if the use of the term "nectar" conveys the same idea to everyone, as it has two rather extreme definitions and that somewhere between which lies the ordinary conception of the word. When it is used one immediately associates it with a flower that is filled with a sweet liquid, which includes all plant secretions and excretions, whether from nectaries or otherwise, that may be collected by insects for the sugars they contain.

Everyone has wondered what this fluid, which the ancients believed to be the drink of the gods, and which scientists now know nature provides for another purpose, is composed of. Professor Wilson gives the following explanation in Gleamings in Bee Culture:

"The composition of this liquid is quite similar, when first secreted, to the sap of the plant. But it rapidly becomes concentrated through evaporation, and may eventually leave on the plant either concentrated sugar solutions quite similar to nectar or a crystalized residue containing sugar. A chemical examination of the excreted liquid from corn and timothy showed both organic and inorganic substances. Of 1030 parts of solid material from corn, 750 were organic and 280 were inorganic. The inorganic materials were similar to those that may be found in the soil solution. Among these were nitrates, carbonates, chlorids and sulfates. Among the organic substances numerous enzymes and several sugars were observed.

"It should not be inferred, however, that all this excreted liquid may be gathered for the sugar it contains. It is only when it becomes concentrated that it contains enough sugar to attract insects. Probably in most cases insects pay no attention to it; but it would seem that favorable conditions might occur when considerable quantities are available, and it may be that some of the off-flavors of honey are due to substances accompanying sugars from this source.

"It may be said, therefore, from the standpoint of differentiation, that true nectar comes from nectaries that are situated either in the flower or on some other part of the plant; that honeydew nectar may come from two sources—one from insects, known as insect honeydew, and the other from 'plant honeydew.'

"Many plants have their nectar-glands within the flower only. White clover is an illustration of this. Others have them only on parts other than the flowers, as is the case with cassia, while still others, for example, cotton, may have them in both places. Thus they may occur as modifications or appendages of any floral organ. Nectaries may be found on the calyx, or ordinary bracts, or involucre, or peduncle, or leaf. This variability in situation has possibly added to the confusion that already existed as to what should be included in the term nectar.

"The excretion from modified stomata may also be a nectarlike liquid, and one that at times is quite sweet. This excretion is the result of internal pressure forcing the plant-sap, with its dissolved sugars and salts, outward so that it collects as drops over these openings. Sometimes the force of excretion is so great and continued so long that drops fall. Nearly all plants, either while young or if placed under proper conditions, may excrete such a nectarlike liquid. Whenever the internal pressure of the plant, caused by active absorption of water and accompanied by forced filtration is greater than the reduction force of transpiration, excreted liquids may appear. This condition is more likely to occur after warm rains, especially during the evening, night, or early morning, than at any other time.

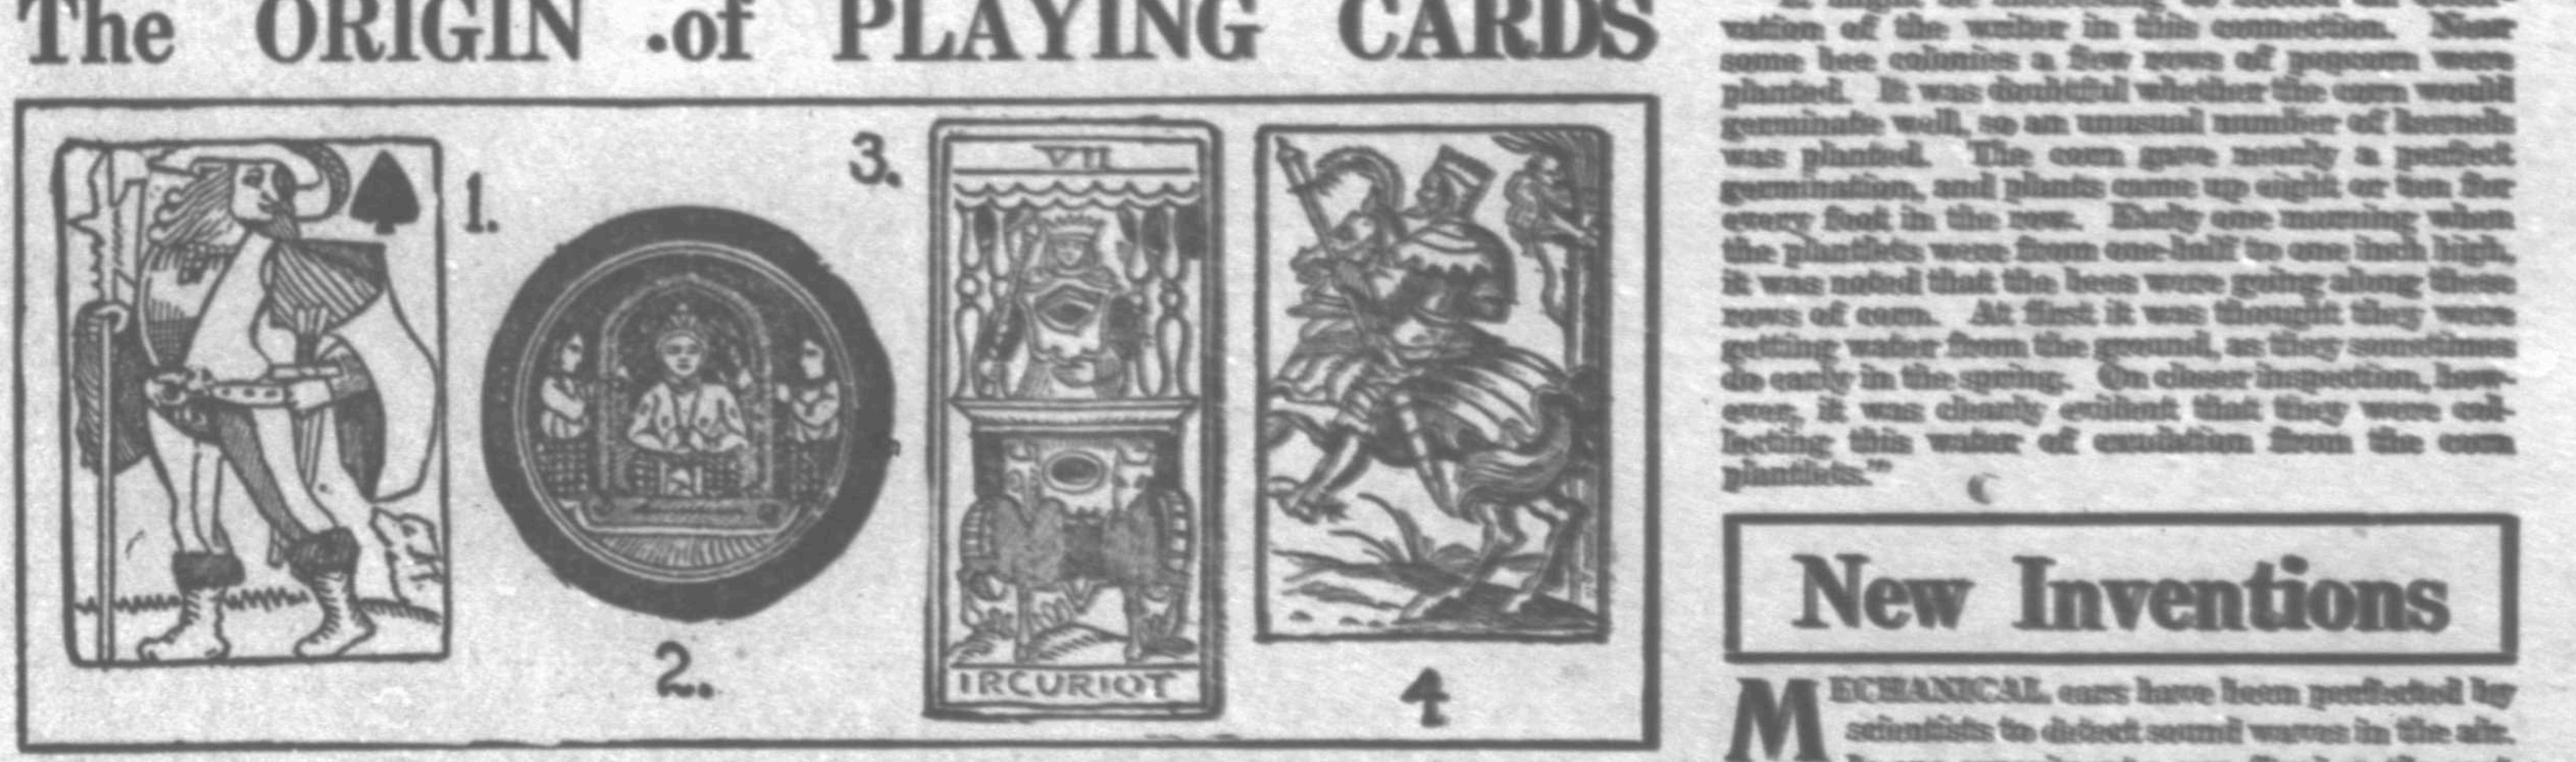
"Corn, oats and wheat seedlings that are just coming through the ground may excrete drops that are quite rich in sugars. The endosperm of the grain at this period is being digested rapidly. The starch is being converted into sugar and possibly other substances faster than the growing seedlings can use them. With the rapid absorption of water and the forced filtration, some of these dissolved substances are carried out through the surface openings—modified stomata—which are located at the periphery of the blades or leaves. It often collects in large drops, and can be readily seen. Sometimes this liquid is quite turbid, and may actually taste sweet.

"The amount and chemical composition of this sapid liquid that is excreted from modified stomata varies considerably. As many as eighty-five drops per minute have been seen to fall. The drops may come out with force enough to throw them five or six inches. Mr. Munting, two hundred and fifty years ago, said that he had seen a fine stream of water like a fountain springing from the leaves of aroids. He probably was exaggerating, although it is not impossible that such might be the case if sufficient water were taken into the plant.

"The excretion of water by plants is probably more common than the secretion of nectar. It may be seen often on lawn grasses and on plants whose leaves or blades may be near the ground. It is quite regularly confused with dew by most persons. It may be seen on taller plants such as corn, oats, timothy, columbine, roses, bridal wreath, strawberries, sow thistle, buckwheat, and a great many other plants. It has been reported to drop from the immature leaves of the aspen, the maple and certain other trees, as in the case of the so-called rain trees of the tropics. This excreted material soon becomes concentrated and produces a sweet liquid that probably should be called 'plant honeydew'; as such, bees and ants collect it with avidity. It is different from the honeydew that is produced by insects, and should not be confused with it.

"It might be interesting to record an observation of the writer in this connection. Near some bee colonies a few rows of popcorn were planted. It was doubtful whether the corn would germinate well, so an unusual number of kernels was planted. The corn gave nearly a perfect germination, and plants came up eight or ten for every foot in the row. Early one morning when the plantlets were from one-half to one inch high, it was noted that the bees were going along these rows of corn. At first it was thought they were getting water from the ground, as they sometimes do early in the spring. On closer inspection, however, it was clearly evident that they were collecting this water of exudation from the corn plantlets."

The ORIGIN of PLAYING CARDS



The Four Examples of Playing Cards Shown Are the Following: 1. A Jack in the Earliest Known Example of Printed Playing Cards. 2. A Round Indian Card. 3. An Italian Card of the Early Eighteenth Century. 4. An Illuminated German Playing Card of the Early Sixteenth Century.

ALTHOUGH the real origin of playing cards is most uncertain, they appear to the majority of people as modern as most of the things of today. But a second look at a pack will convince anyone that they are quite different from anything of the present age. The queer costumes of the figures on the face cards, according to The Pathfinder, are those of the time of Henry VII of England, whose reign marked the beginning of English playing cards.

One popular belief is that Charles VI, the mad king of France, had playing cards invented for his personal amusement. But historical records show that cards were known in Virbo, Italy, in 1849, although they were a little different from the modern playing card. Some authorities claim that they originated with the Saracens, but they were possibly known to the Orient before the Christian era.

The Chinese dictionary, "Ching-tsze-tung," published in 1678, declares that cards were invented by a Chinese in the reign of Seun-ho, 1120 A. D. There is also a tradition that cards have existed in India from time immemorial and that they were invented by the Brahmans.

The invention of cards has also been assigned to the Egyptians, the Arabs, Germans, Spanish and French. Cards were known in England as early as the middle of the thirteenth century.

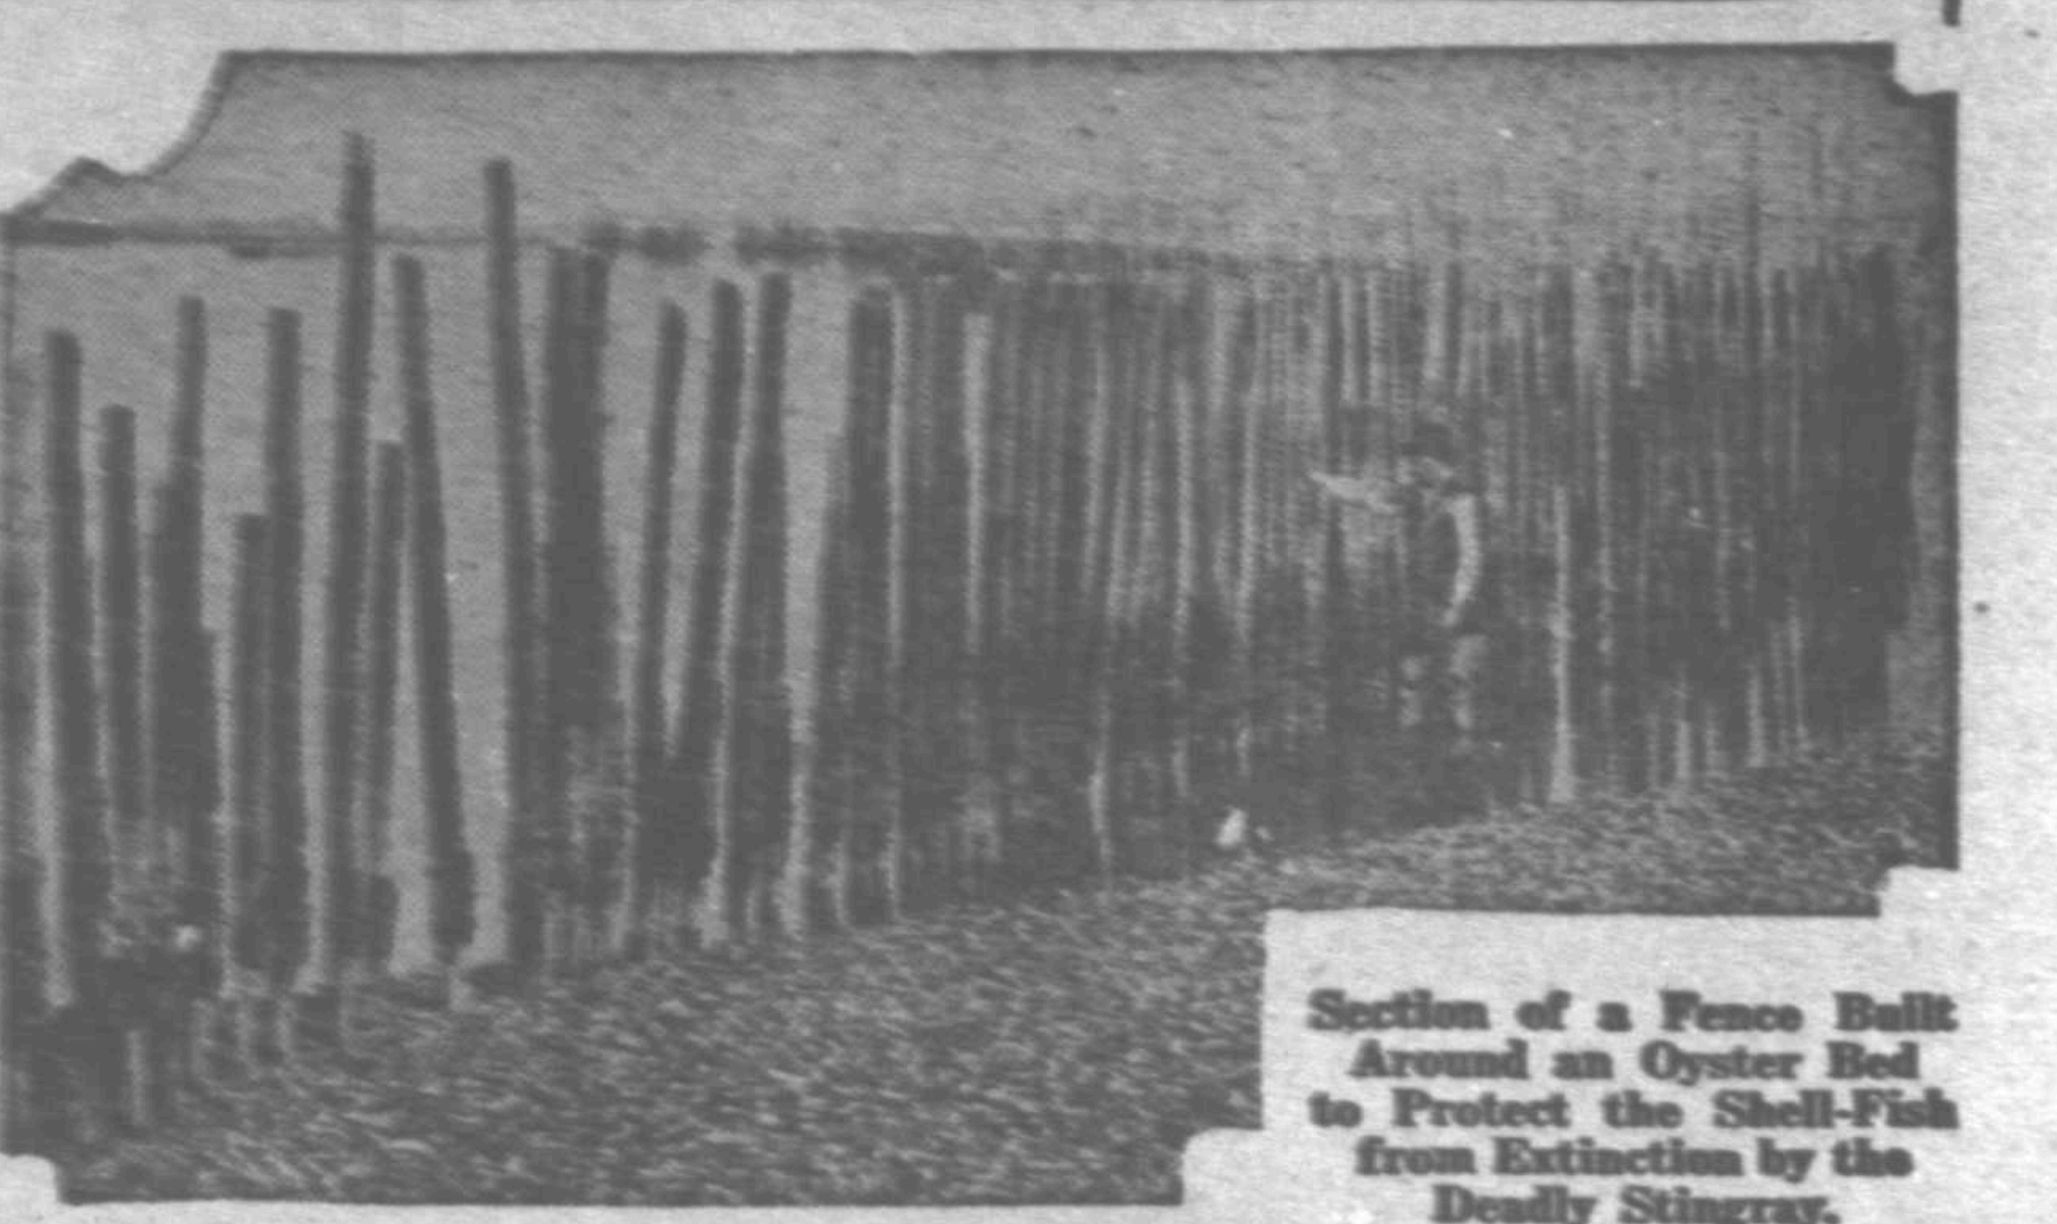
WHY a CAT Is BELIEVED to Have NINE LIVES

THE belief that a cat has nine lives is probably based on the fact that a cat is more tenacious of life than most other animals. Those who have undertaken to kill cats appreciate that fact.

Attempts have been made to trace the origin of the common expression back to ancient Egypt. It is often said that Pasht, or Bastet, the cat-headed goddess of Egypt, had nine lives and that this circumstance gave rise to the old saying about a cat having nine lives. Egyptologists, however, say that they have found no evidence for the statement. In fact Bastet, being a goddess, would be regarded as immortal. Nine, however, was a favorite number in Egypt, as well as with other ancient orientals, and it may have somehow been associated with the cat-headed goddess.

FENCES for OYSTERS



Section of a Fence Built Around an Oyster Bed to Protect the Shell-Fish from Extinction by the Deadly Stingray.

ON the Pacific coast they build fences around oyster beds. The fences are not meant to prevent the oysters from escaping, but to keep out the rays—not the rays of the sun, but the big fish that are deadly enemies of the bivalves. Some of them are stingrays, which carry beneath their tails many-barbed darts of bone, sharp-pointed and dangerous. There are other species of rays in those waters and all of them have a keen appetite for oysters.

A band of bandit rays will raid an oyster bed and destroy every oyster in a single night. Their mouths are set with bony plates, and their jaws are so powerful that they easily crush the strong shells of the biggest oysters.

The fence for defense pays the oyster men for these bivalves are precious on the Pacific coast. All of them have to be brought of thumb-nail size, from Atlantic waters. Planted, they will grow in two or three years to marketable size; but they will not breed for the water is too cold.

There are plenty of natives oysters on the Pacific coast. In fact, they are so plentiful that in some localities entire sea beaches are practically composed of them. But they are hardly bigger than a silver quarter, and so possess no table value. Their redeeming quality lies in the circumstance that they make most excellent oyster cocktails.

Speaking of oysters "escaping" recalls an amusing incident in which figured a Frenchman who undertook some years ago, in New England waters, to establish a bed of scallops. He supposed that they were sedentary bivalves, like the oyster, whereas in truth a scallop, by opening and closing its shell rapidly, can swim with great swiftness.

The Frenchman hired fishermen to collect several thousand scallops, which were duly established on an excellent bottom. The next day he went to look at his scallop bed, and not a single scallop was to be found. They had all skipped out over night.

Where the Harvest Time Is Still Celebrated by Curious Customs

QUAINT customs, dating from ancient times, still mark the celebration of the gathering of the harvest, which also was a time of thanksgiving as it is today.

In ancient Egypt, where the welfare of man depended on the double aspect of corn — that of the young green blades promising the new supplies of food, and that of the ripened grain, which not only gives that food but supplies the means for the next crop—it will readily be seen why many of the legends and harvest customs depict two personalities.

For example, Osiris, the golden god of ripe grain, dies, is scattered and is sought by Isis, his wife, in her dual capacity of goddess of the Nile (whose waters brought the harvest), and "the Green Goddess," that is, the young growing corn. Again, there is Demeter the Mother, or ripe corn, seeking and finding her young daughter Persephone, the springing corn.

In Silesia and in southern Saxony the spirits of the harvest are represented either by an Oats-bride and an Oats-bridegroom or by a Wheat-bride and a Wheat-bridegroom. There is a wedding procession in which the "bride" and "bridegroom" are taken round the village in a decorated wagon drawn by oxen. The usual dances and songs follow.

In Germany a Corn-Mother is believed to sit on guard in the cornfields and the peasants are forbidden to pick the poppies or cornflowers lest she catch them. She is believed to be present in the last handful of corn left standing at harvest-time, and when this is cut down she is supposed to be driven out or killed. All kinds of superstitions are extant which declare that the girl who gathers the last of the corn will be wed within the year, or if a married woman picks it that she will bear a child before the next harvest.

There are many instances of the last bunch being made into a corn-queen, or a corn-doll, a corn-mother, or an old corn-woman—it being decorated and sometimes carried to the church and treated with special reverence, and songs are sung while the reapers dance round it, entreating the corn-spirit to give them a bounteous harvest the following year. In the Island of Islay the corn-woman is hung up on the farmer's wall till the following sowing-time, when she is taken down, pulled to pieces, and the grain given to the horses to eat to ensure a lucky harvest.

In Slavonic countries, in France and also in Germany, there is another series of folk-tales which regard the corn-spirit as an animal, and it is variously alluded to as a wolf, a dog, a cat, a hare, a goat, a sow, or an ox; in some districts even as a cock. They are quaint rather than beautiful or poetic, and again one finds that penalties or good fortune attend the man or woman who cuts the last standing ears of grain.

In former times, after reapers had done their work they were accustomed to meet at some barn or inn and make merry with ale and cake. The feast had several names, such as Mell supper, Churn supper, Harvest supper and Feast of Ingathering.

In countries where rice is the staple food, a Mother of Rice is the object of veneration, and one finds there in actual practice the ceremonies for propitiating her such as must have once held sway among the present more advanced countries.

The Malays, Burmese and Dyaks are typical examples of these primitive folk. They believe that the race is animated by a soul, and treat it with the solicitude due to the more honored among themselves. The young rice is fed with rice-pap as though the rice-ears were infants, and, according to a writer in "Great Thoughts," "none may fire a gun or make loud noises near the field when the rice is in bloom, for then it should not be startled, lest the soul of the rice be killed and the harvest be lost."

Even the reaper's knives are of a peculiar kind that can be hidden in the hand so that the rice-spirit is not startled when cut down.

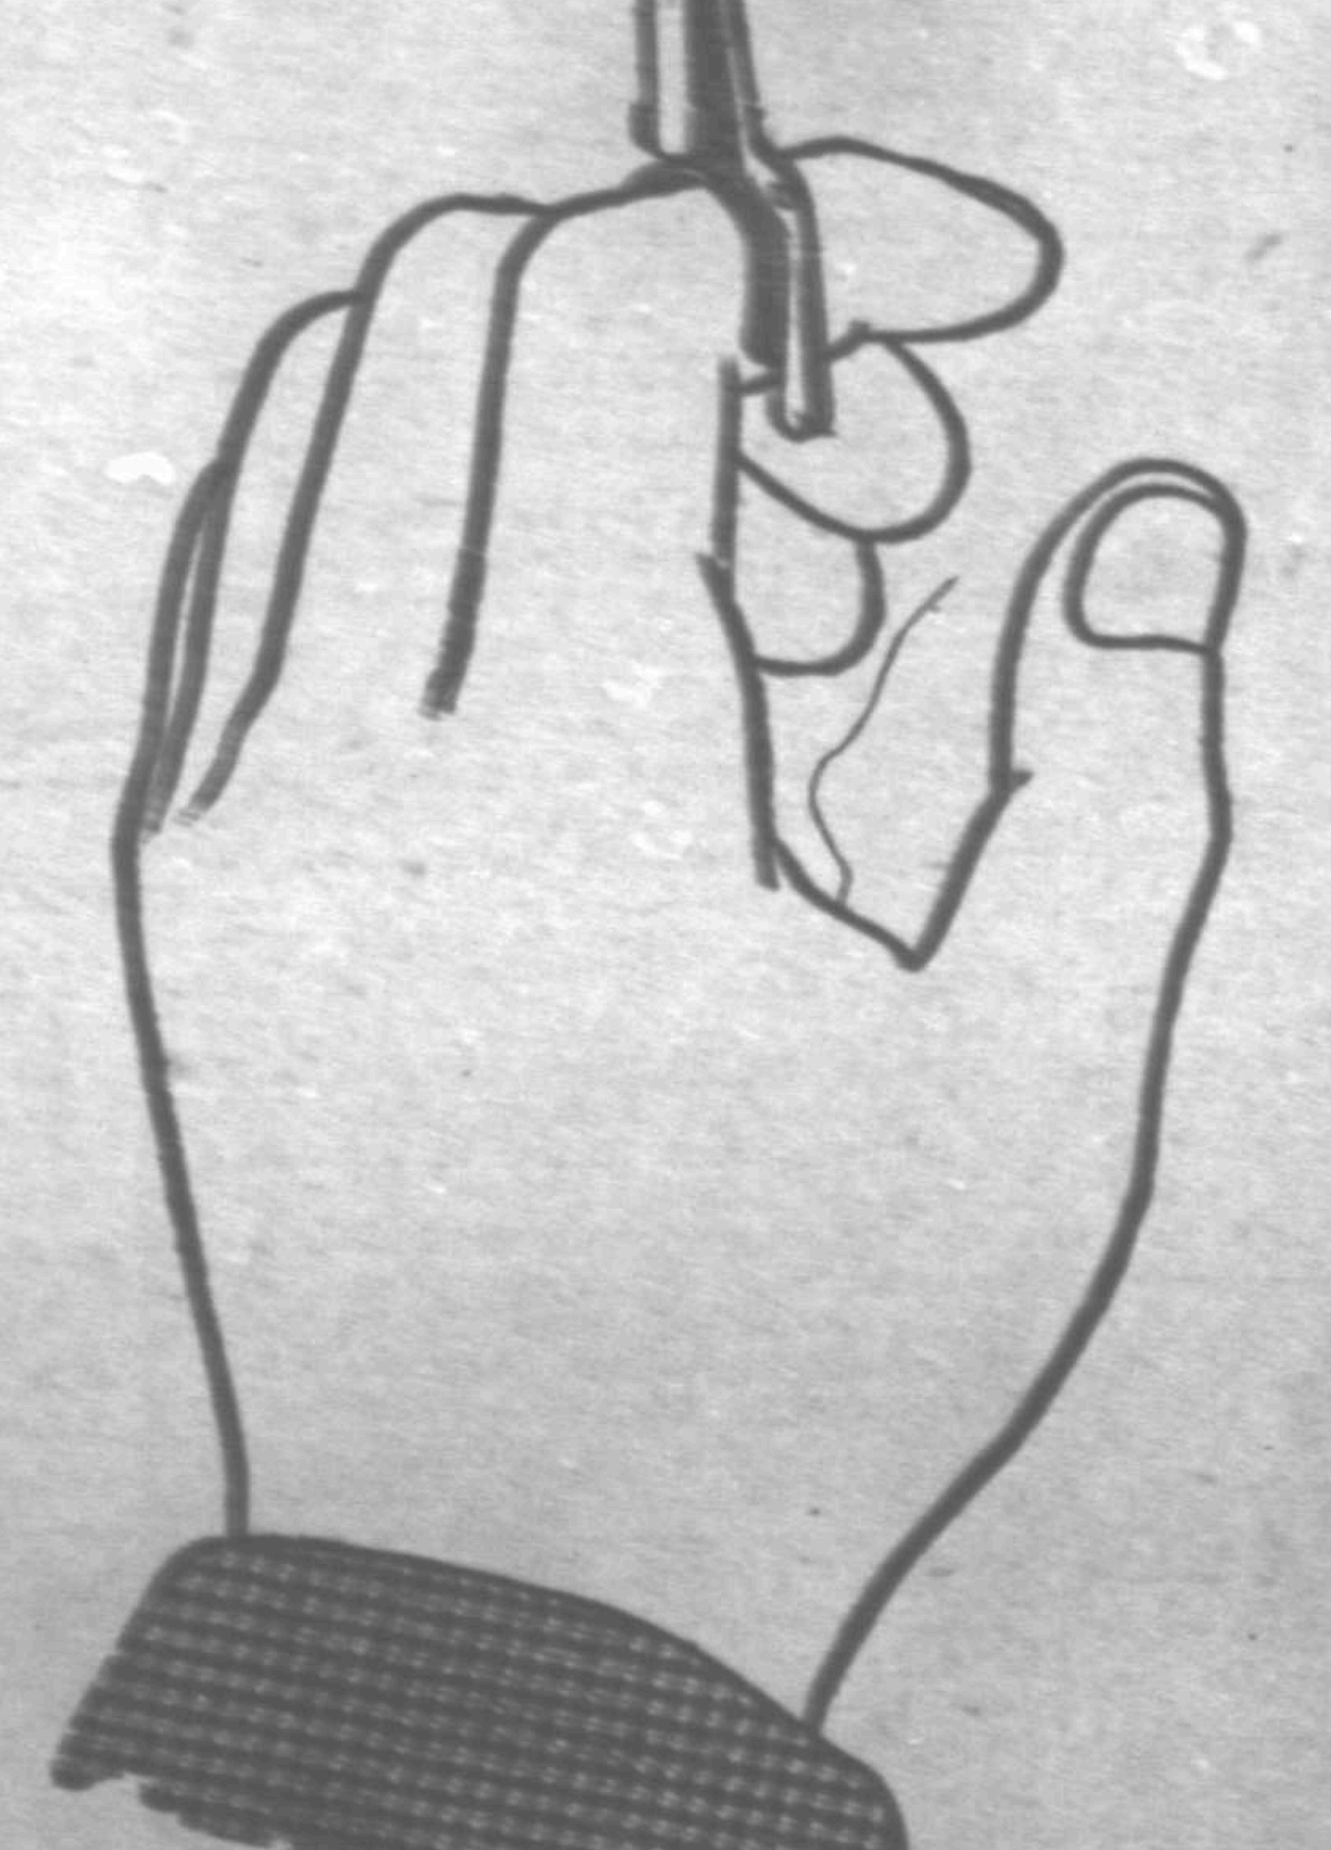
New Cigarette Holder for Fastidious Smokers

A NOVEL and convenient cigarette holder is the invention of Michael J. Russak, of New York. It has a finger-gripper and a cigarette-gripper. The cigarette-gripper has two jaws which, conforming to the shape of the cigarette, are held together by a coil spring.

To insert a cigarette, the jaws are caused to part by pressing with the thumb a small lever provided for that purpose. The lever being then released, the jaws clasp the cigarette firmly.

It will be observed that the cigarette is held transversely with relation to the finger, in a position most convenient for the smoker.

The device is meant to be applied to the forefinger of the left hand. It leaves all the fingers of that hand free for use; it affords to the smoker the agreeableness of tasting the tobacco directly, as an ordinary holder does not; and it prevents discoloration of the fingers by the tarry tobacco oil.



The Holder Has Two Grippers, One for Grasping the Cigarette and the Other for Attaching the Device to the Smoker's Forefinger.

How the Dutch Make Their Windmills Talk

THE landscape of Holland is dotted with myriads of windmills which form one of the most striking characteristics of that thrifty country. To most observers they all look very much alike, but the "set" of the sails, when the arms are at rest, is capapble of considerable variation. How the resourceful Dutch millers take advantage of these different settings in order to convey interesting items of news to the countryside by using a well-understood code of signals, actually to make their windmills "talk," is explained in the Wide World.

The idea is extremely ancient; it is even said that semaphore signalling started from this source.

When there is a wedding in a Dutch miller's family he sets the sails at the proper angle and often decks the arms with flags and streamers, so that all neighbors within eye-range can learn of the happy event.

Other variations of angle proclaim the birth of a baby boy or girl, a request for the services of the millwright, and a dozen other little messages.

If the miller sets his millsails in the form of a cross there is sadness in the family, for this position denotes a death.

During the Great War sundry other signals were passed on with incredible switfness by means of the "talking windmills."

Price List Stationary As Steel Common Demand Continues To Be Strong

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Steel Common continued in demand during today's half session and created sufficient good feeling to sustain the list in the face of very heavy profit-taking. In so far as average price was concerned the list remained practically stationary. A few issues such as Radio and American Smelting forged ahead to new high record levels but their gains were counterbalanced from the liquidating setback in North American, New Haven, Montgomery Ward and a few other pool pets. Scandinavian monies featured a generally strong foreign exchange market with further advance. Commodities quieted with cotton options easing off on week-end realizing while the grain market held fairly steady.

Bank statement issued after the close proved quite a disappointment as the street had thought that recent calling of loans had effected improvement in the local position. While the average statement showed an excess reserve of near $5,000,-000, the actual statement revealed a deficit of $39,-400,000. In the ordinary course of events it would be likely that sufficient loans would be called early this week to wipe out the deficit but the monetary developments recently have proved a puzzle on so many occasions that there is no surety as to whether such action will be taken.

After the great enthusiasm exhibited in the New Haven market, Friday, there was a surprising lack of support evidenced to meet the week end profit taking. The decline was orderly but brought about the comparatively little stock causing the impression that the pool that has been tied up for some months is none too sure of its bullish hopes being fulfilled. If the dividend forecast so definitely for 1928 were as certain as some brokerage wires indicate it would seem that a one-day flurry would not cause those interested to back away from the market. Other low priced rails immediately eased off when it became apparent that the New Haven group would not follow up Friday's operation.

While Inland and Otis Steel jumped a small fraction the response to the announcement of the merger plans of the Eaton interests of Cleveland which will bring together Republic and Trumbull. The Cleveland interests control these and other steel companies altogether, it is stated by those associated, that there is no idea of bringing Otis into the merger.

Grain

TEXAS CASH GRAIN.

FORT WORTH, Nov. 26. (AP)—Wheat prices were practically unchanged on the Fort Worth cash grain market Saturday. Exporters continued to bid $1.36 to $1.37 for No. 1 hard delivered to Texas gulf ports. Milo and kaffir were selling two cents higher whil emaize heads were $2 per ton and kaffir heads were $3 per ton above Friday's price.

Wheat: No. 1 dark hard $1.48½@1.53; No. 1 ordinary hard $1.46½@1.47½; No. 1, 75 per cent red or better milling $1.50@1.52.

Corn and oats were unchanged.

Markets Are Quiet After Thanksgiving

A slight lull is noted in the Wichita Falls produce markets immediately following Thanksgiving. The Thanksgiving business is reported as having been slightly better than usual. The Christmas busisiness is due to come in with fairly heavy volume about the first of the month.

The number of farmers in town Saturday was much smaller than a week ago.

Oranges, bananas and lemons are higher in price than usual and there is little prospect of them coming down. Oranges are due to go higher with the only supply now available being from Florida. The naval oranges have been slow in ripening and it will be two or three weeks before shipments in quantity are received.

Offerings of turkeys by the farmers were light Saturday but are expected to pick up in another week.

Vegetables, fruits, turkeys, chickens and eggs show little change in price. Butter and cream register slight advances.

Saturday's local market prices follow:

Butter	45@46c
Cream, sour	44c
Cream, sweet	50c
Milk, lb.	60c

N. Y. Stocks

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (AP)—The main price movement in today's stock market continued upward, although heavy week-end profit taking brought about some irregularity towards the close. Disregarding the increase of $25,000,000 in brokers' loans to another new high record for al ltime and the prospect of stiffer call money rates over the week-end, speculators for the advance bought heavily of a wied assortment of stocks, lifting more than a score of them to new peak prices.

Although reports of further improvement were noted in the steel and copper industries, the main back ground for the current upswing appears to be the tremendous investment demand for high grade securities as reflected in the prompt absorption of nearly $200,000,000 in new bond offerings during the week. While the announcement of the Republic-Trumbull Steel merger took Wall street somewhat by surprise, it apparently was without influence on the stock market. Republic Steel closed nearly a point lower at 61½.

United States Steel common, yesterday's late feature, advanced to a new high on the current recovery at 147⅝, or nearly 29 points above last month's low and then settled back to 147, up 78 net. General Motors common, which sold within a point of steel a month ago, showed a net gain of ½ at 128. Radio Corporation advanced 2 points to 95⅝.

Rails were again sluggish, Delaware and Hudson and Chesapeake and Ohio recorded moderate gains, but New Haven and the St. Paul issues, which were strong yesterday, yielded to realizing sales.

Foreign exchanges were irregular. Sterling yielded to profit taking, demand bills slipping back 1-16 of a cent to $4.87½ and moderate recessions also took place in the Belgian and German rates. Italian, Dutch and Norwegian currencies were slightly firmer.

SPOT PRICES DROP LOWER

Receipts Saturday Total 25 Bales

Wichita Falls spot cotton was down 20 to 30 points Saturday, middling bringing 17.75-17.80. The range of prices was from 17 for snaps to 19 for the better grades.

The offerings were few. Practically all of the cotton in the district has been ginned. Buyers have been withdrawn from the district and buying is confined almost entirely to the offices.

Cotton yard receipts Saturday totaled about 25 bales.

Cotton seed was quoted at $35 a ton.

NEW YORK COTTON.

NEW YORK, Nov. 26. (AP)—The cotton market was lower today under liquidation and southern selling, January selling off to 19.32 and closing at that figure. The general market closed steady, at net declines of 14 to 20 points.

The opening was steady at an advance of four points to a decline of 3 points. There appeared to be a little covering by near month shorts and some buying on the relatively firm showing of Liverpool. The strength abroad failed to stimulate any general or aggressive demand, however, and the market soon eased under comparatively small offerings.

Continued talk of probable curtailment in domestic cotton mills and complaints of a poor spot demand, probably tended to check buying, and as prices weakened, liquidation became a little more active.

Prices reached the lowest levels of the day in late trading, December selling at 19.32 and May at 19.73. The close was at the lowest, although the final tone of the market was steadied by covering and trade buying.

No particular news feature was emphasized in connection with the easier ruling of prices, but it was supposed the [illegible] of Liverpool [illegible] better demand [illegible] buyers, which may have accounted for some of the selling.

Private cables [illegible] selling against actual buying in the Liverpool market had been more than offset by continental support and fair trade calling, and also reported an improving demand for cotton cloth. Traders evidently found little or no improvement in reports from the domestic goods markets, however, and the amount of cotton on shipboard awaiting clearance at the end of the week being estimated at 342,000 bales against 243,000 at the same time last year, was regarded as pointing to continued small exports.

Offerings of December were light following the liquidation of yesterday and at the close December was selling on practically even terms with January.

Lorado Taft Will Lecture at Forum Saturday Evening

Lorado Taft, famous lecturer and sculptor, will appear at the Womans Forum at 8 o'clock Saturday evening as the first number on the season's artists' program. The number is to be under the auspices of the general forum and forum members will be admitted on red membership cards while men will be admitted on green cards.

While this will be the initial appearance of the well known sculptor in Wichita Falls, a number of citizens have heard Taft elsewhere and have expressed themselves as enthusiastic to hear his lecture again. Taft's lectures abound in witticisms which keep his audiences alert and interested. He is known as one of the great sculptors of the day, in addition to his celebrated ability to make people laugh and enjoy his talks on art as they listen.

His address Saturday evening will be "American Sculpture and Sculptors," and will be delivered in the auditorium of the club house. Among other addresses which have been heard by citizens are "Recent Tendencies in Sculpture"; "Rodin and 'the Latest' "; "Modern French Sculpture"; "Michaelangelo"; "The French Cathedrals and Their Builders"; "One Hundred Masterpieces of Sculpture" and "Sculpture of the Italian Renaissance."

Lorado Taft is a native of Illinois and was graduated in 1880 at the age of 20 years, at the University of Illinois at Urbana where his father was for a long time professor of geology. The great sculptor first became interested in sculpture when at the age of 13 he was permitted to help a Belgian sculptor repair a collection of casts which had reached the university badly damaged in transit. The boy found it a delightful game to pick the pieces out of the packing boxes and fit them together. Later came the discovery of modeling in clay, an interest which superceded all others and which was carried on through his college life, and which was the inspiration for going to France to study in Paris at the Ecole des Beaux Arts for five years. The following year he returned to his native state and established a studio in Chicago where he has lived since, and which he now makes headquarters while making his lecture tours.

For thirty-five years Taft has been connected with the Art Institute of Chicago as instructor in modeling and as a lecturer, where he holds the title of Professorial Lecturer on the History of Art. He is also non-resident professor of art at the University of Illinois. He was made a member of the National Commission of Fine Arts, Washington, D. C. in 1925 and is a member of the National Academy of Design and of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, an honorary member of the American Institute of Architects and is one of the Board of Art Advisors for the state of Illinois.

Mr. Taft's first ideal work of importance was at the Columbian Exposition where he undertook the decoration of the Horticultural building. His two groups of "The Sleep of the Flowers" and "The Awakening of the Flowers" placed on the sides of the entrance gained for the young sculptor recognition and later, remuneration.

Among his best known works are the following "The Solitude of the Soul" at the Art Institute in Chicago; "The Blind," an ideal group inspired by Maeterlinck's drama of the same name; the sculpture of the Columbus Memorial Fountain at Washington, D. C.; the Washington Monument at Seattle, Washington; "The Fountain of the Great Lakes," Grant Park, Chicago; "Black Hawk" and Ogle County Soldiers' Memorial, Oregon, Ill.; "The Thacher Memorial Fountain" at Denver, Colo., and "The Fountain of Time," the vast bit of work erected recently on the Midway Plaisance, Chicago.

Miss Scott Arrives From New York To Assist Mrs. Tandy

Miss Elsie Scott, niece of Mrs. Roma Tandy, arrived this past week from New York to spend the winter with Mrs. Tandy, and to be associated with her in business.

Miss Scott is a Texas girl, coming from San Antonio. She attended Southern Methodist university of Dallas and received her literary degree from the University of Texas.

Following this, Miss Scott spent some little time traveling in Europe, being entertained quite extensively in the homes of prominent people in the various countries of Europe.

Upon returning to the United States she entered the Parsons School of Fine and Applied Art in New York. Miss Scott has also studied at the New York School of Interior Decoration, both schools ranking as the finest of their kind in the country. Miss Scott has done intensive studying at the Metropolitan Art meseum in connection with her school work. While in the New York School of Interior Decoration, she studied under Paul Theodore Frankl, leader of modernistic art in America, and Virginia Hamill, who assembled the art display at the Macy exposition of art and trade in New York. This display was regarded by outstanding critics as being perfect in every detail, and serves as a landmark in modern art.

Miss Scott, because of her splendid education, both in America and abroad, and her association with the very finest in her line of work, is well equipped to give excellent advice in any field of interior decoration.

Announcement Made of Approaching Marriage of Popular Wichita Girl

Announcing the approaching marriage of Miss Edna Rundell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Rundell, to Arthur Boyd Kirby of Amarillo, which will take place December 10 at the First Baptist church, Misses Eileen Willis, Ellen Hooker and Elizabeth Peters entertained with a charming luncheon at the home of Miss Willis, 1406 Tilden street, Saturday at 1 o'clock.

The reception suite of the Willis home was beautifully decorated with masses of orchid chrysanthemums. The luncheon was served at individual tables, six tables being arranged around the bride's table which was particularly lovely with its table decoration of a petite bride and groom standing in front of an altar under cover of a large white wedding bell which was tied with a fluffy maline bow. Falling from the center bell were white streamers with miniature bells and place cards at each guest's place. The other tables were carried out in the bride's chosen colors of orchid and pink, large pink wedding bells tied with large bows of orchid maline, decorating the centers of the tables, and pink streamers bearing miniature pink bells and place cards dropping from the center of the bell.

The announcement of the wedding was made in a particularly unique manner. Orchid and pink balloons tied with orchid maline bows floated around in the air were caught by ribbon streamers under the glasses at the places of the guests. Immediately following the music program each guest was given a pin to burst the balloon with, and the balloons were found to contain the announcement of the approaching marriage in the form of a delightful little rhyme.

The following program was enjoyed by the guests: Pearl Louise Albritton gave as a reading, "The Bride and Groom;" Mrs. F. R. Collard gave a piano solo and Mrs. Lee Clark gave a vocal solo, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. B. Lovejoy.

R. Potter, newly elected president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs. The luncheon will be held at 12 o'clock in the auditorium of the clubhouse.

The luncheon will be open to forum members and their guests and to all the federated clubs and their guests. Prominent club members from over north Texas have been invited to attend the luncheon and it is expected by the forum membership that many will attend. Reservations are to be made with Mrs. D. J. Carithers at 5366. Reservations will be closed at 11 o'clock Wednesday and members are urged to make their plans early.

Since the election of Mrs. Potter at the recent El Paso convention many cities over the state have honored Mrs. Potter. Probably the most distinctive of all was the reception which her home town, Bowie, accorded her upon her arrival from the state federation meeting. School was dismissed and the citizenship of Bowie turned out in full to do honor to the woman who had so recently received the highest honor within the gift of Texas womanhood.

Mrs. Potter has been active in federation work for 18 years during which time she has held many important positions. She is a writer of note and a speaker of ability. In addition to being president of the Texas Federation of Women's clubs, she is also president of the Texas Press association. Mrs. Potter is recognized as one of the prominent historians of the state. She has led the way in writing county histories, in writing a history of her own Montague county which is full of early historical facts. This history has been used in the county schools now for many years as a text book.

Her extensive work in federation has given her a close friendship with leaders in federation not only in Texas but also in the national organization. This particularly will qualify her for the place of president of the Texas clubs at the time of the biennial meeting in San Antonio next spring when Texas will be the hostess state to the federated clubs of 48 states and more than 18 foreign countries.

Mrs. E. B. Lawson of Nowata, Okla., probably one of the most distinguished figures in the National Federation of Women's clubs, who serves in the capacity of chairman of music for the general federation, has wired that she will be present for the luncheon. She will speak on "The Music Department of the National Federation of Women's Clubs."

Following her talk Mrs. Lawson will sing two selections of Indian music. As an interpreter of Indian music Mrs. Lawson is unexcelled. She is of Indian descent and is therefore capable of giving the best interpretation to this particular type of music.

Club House Presents Pretty Appearance At Thanksgiving Tea

Not since its completion has the Womans Forum presented so beautiful and imposing an appearance as Thursday afternoon upon the occasion of the Thanksgiving tea given to compliment forum members and their out-of-town guests.

Various kinds of autumn flowers, artistically grouped and attractively arranged as to color scheme in the different rooms of the forum, were the sole embellishment of the beautiful club house upon that occasion. Giant red and cream chrysanthemums with southern smilax intermingled, were grouped upon the wrought iron stands of the foyer, while the beauty of the dining room was enhanced with a single vari-colored table centerpiece of different flowers and banked with ferns and small chrysanthemums.

In niches and along the side of the auditorium into which the dining room opened, were tall floor vases of chrysanthemums in many colors and shades, roses, smilax and fernery.

The stage presented a festive air with garlands and baskets of pretty flowers, and a single basket of radiance roses adorning the piano.

The house party of more than thirty forum members was attractively attired in evening dress, the brilliant colors and delicate pastel shades of the gowns blending in with the severe beauty of the background of the royal red drapery. Guests were received at the committee room and with the receiving line extending into the auditorium, grouped along the center and just before the stage.

Guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. T. T. T. Reese, with the following house party: Mesdames T. M. Conrey, Dan Hardy, John R. Chambers, E. T. Duff, Ben G. Oneal, W. J. Grisham, W. A. Freear, D. Duval, Ivan Murchison, E. P. Bass, R. L. Underwood, G. D. Hall, T. J. Waggoner, J. M. Bradshaw, P. S. Richardson, C. W. Gilliland, and Miss Maude Nored.

The following program was given: An original piano composition by Mrs. Harwood Stacy, a group of songs by a quartet made up of Mesdames P. M. Cordell, Ray Wilhite, C. H. Evans, and J. E. Stratton, "Down in Sleepy Town" and "Pearl, That Girl" composed by Miss Dorothy Nolen and Mattlyn Wilson and sung by Miss Nolen; violin solo by Mrs. Bruce Greenwood with Mrs. Lucille Brooks Huff at the piano.

Music - Musicians

By MME. COBINA WRIGHT
Famous Songstress and Society Leader

(Copyright, 1927, By Universal Service.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 26.—Many and extraordinary are the varieties of New York audiences but there is one whose rank and demeanor it is a special delight to observe.

To see it you must get to the Morning Symphony concerts for little children. Eleven years old are these famous concerts, much older indeed, than a great many of the miniature patrons.

Recently, the gala opening of the season was celebrated by the presence of Walter Damrosch as guest conductor of his own veteran orchestra. His Lilliputian audience, the tiniest of which elevated themselves to more advantageous positions by mounting chair arms, simply hung on Mr. Damrosch's words of explanation. They all seemed satisfied with what they heard, and appreciative of the fact that they were addressed without condescension, given indeed such an important status that they were able to feel a bit patronizing towards the assortment of loving aunts, uncles, grandmothers or governesses, who were perhaps holding a fluttering small hand for fear that little Marie-Louise, or little Alfred Edward might misbehave at the symphony concert!

But not at all; the whole army of children prove excellent listeners. Their excitement mounts up a bit towards the end of the concert it is true, and in a small way they try to demonstrate their approbation much after the fashion of New York greeting the arrival of Col. Lindbergh; there is a gleeful rain of programs, from galleries and boxes, and the children's symphony concert is over!

THERE IS only one Mary Garden. No matter what she does, she is always fascinating, interesting and charming.

On Tuesday evening, November 16th, she gave a recital at the Plaza ballroom for the benefit of the Sailors and Soldiers' club of New York. She sang the aria from "Louise," songs of Debussey, Massenet, the Berceuse from "Jocelyn" with cello accompaniment by Paul Gruppe, and other compositions of Rachmaninoff and John Alden Carpenter.

Her voice was in splendid condition, and her interpretations as usual, showed her great art. She looked like a young girl of twenty, in an exquisite clinging gown of light green embroidered with crystal, which showed to advantage her perfect figure.

The audience demanded encore after encore; particularly delightful was her singing of "Coming Thru the Rye." What a pity there is only one Mary Garden in the world.

Florentine Imports At Mrs. Carver's Gift Shop

OF COURSE you've been charmed at one time or another by the exquisite gifts tourists bring from Italy. Do you know that those very Italian prints, hand-carved picture frames, Florentine leathers, and countless other lovely bits, are to be found at Mrs. Carver's Gift Shop, Kemp Kort, Apartment No. Two? These are imported direct from Florence and, whether you are in search of the different in Christmas cards or gifts, you'll find it here.

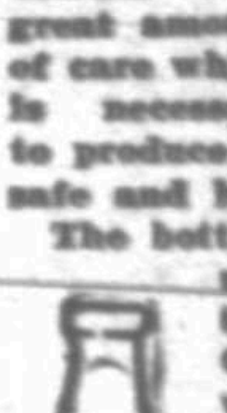
CRYSTAL clear, sparkling bottles filled with A grade milk—that is what Chapman's Dairy delivers to your door and this week, in a tour through the town plant, I had an opportunity to ascertain the great amount of care which is necessary to produce so safe and healthful a milk.



The bottling alone involves the use of the most scientific modern machinery. Chapman's bottles are washed by machinery and sterilized at 220 degrees. From this intense, germ-destroying heat they go direct to the mechanical filler, which pours rich, pure milk into clean, sterilized bottles whose sparkle bespeaks their guarantee to the marketing public. In this process there is practically no chance of contamination. Everyone knows that milk is the best food but, unless you've tried it, you can't know just how truly Chapman's is the best milk. GROVE'S SHOE SHOP, 709-A Indiana, has been redecorated throughout and is now catering especially to ladies. Many a weary Christmas shopper will welcome the moments spent in these cozy, pleasant surroundings while her shoes are repaired. And as she waits, the shining new show cases will give the best suggestions of all for His gift — hand-tooled leather gifts. Groves has a special on this week, too, the smart ladies' bags in hand-tooled leather, valued as high as $10 are now priced only $5.85—don't fail to see them tomorrow.

THE first Majestic vaudeville bill for December will set a prece-forDecember will set a precedent for the entertainment of the month. For Thursday and Friday, Dec. 1st and 2nd, five excellent acts are scheduled including the comedy novelty of the season, "On the Air," a hilarious travesty on the radio, presented by all the artists on the bill, and Adela Verne, one of the world's foremost pianists. Paderewski said of her, "The little woman plays like a big man. With her rich, powerful, almost virile tone; with a precise rhythm, with remarkable endurance and, above all, with her inborn musicianship, she gives the impression of a personality."

So much for the coming vaudeville, but have you seen Bebe Daniels in "She's a Sheik?" It is now showing at the Majestic and will continue through Wednesday. Don't miss "She's a Sheik," those who have seen it say it's better than "Senorita!"

DE GUICHE—Have you read Don Quixote?

Cyrano—I have, and found myself the hero.

De Guiche—Windmills, remember, if you fight with them, may swing round their huge arms and cast you down into the mire!

Cyrano—Or up—among the stars!

(From Act 2 of Rostand's "Cyrano de Bergerac").

Yes, there are windmills in life and always their strength and direction, even their velocity, are controlled by ourselves. Opportunity and circumstance, the huge arms of our windmills, fling us up or down according to the merit of our character, ability and intellect. Practical intelligence (coming under the last-named quality) is of so great importance that, though a man possess integrity, talent and brilliance his career may prove unsuccessful without this attribute. Practical intelligence begins with a balance at the bank. Open an account now at the Wichita State Bank and Trust Company, where astute business advice is at your service.

HOSTESSES for these four merry weeks before Christmas will find that nothing will delight their guests and arouse the real gladsome spirit of Yuletide as effectually as Colvert' molded and tinted ice cream.

For refreshments or dessert at the coming parties of all types, Colvert's special molds are the wisest things to serve. Not only because this rich, pure ice cream is both a nourishing and delicious food, universally healthful and popular, but because of the distinctly decorative touch they give the table and for the important part they play in engendering the lively fun that makes any party a success.

A few of the most seasonable molds are: Christmas bells (offered either in sherbet or ice cream), holly wreaths, turkey gobblers and ice cream Santas. These last are particularly cunning with their white faces and beards, green caps and red suits.

An ice cream fruit cake is another attractive novelty. It is round and pink outside with "Merry Christmas" in white—the inside, with its many colors, is rainbow hue. To be most effective, this ice cream fruit cake should be served to the hostess and cut by her on the table. As for the molds, you'll find them most pleasing when several different ones, for instance Santas, bells and holly wreaths, are served on a platter from which the guest makes his own selection.

Place your orders as early as possible in order to avoid disappointment for already the holiday ball is rolling! Phone your Colvert dealer now.

Chinese Luncheon at Womans Forum Proves To Be Unusually Attractive

The humor, the pathos and the beauty of the Chinese race were the keynotes struck by the speakers on the program of the Chinese luncheon sponsored by the literature department of the Womans Forum Saturday, when three speakers shared jointly in making the program an unusually attractive one, and in impressing the beauty of the Chinese appointments upon the minds of the capacity number of luncheon guests at the club house.

The speakers were Miss Elna Martin of Dallas, Mrs. Tom Padgitt, also of Dallas and of Coleman, and Ralph Rowntree, who is displaying his exhibit of Chinese paintings at the Womans Forum this week.

Miss Martin, who has been English instructor in the Soochow university in Soochow, China, gave an interpretation of the Chinese race in her talk, "My Friends, the Chinese," stressing the humanness of the Chinese race and displaying that human nature in the great republic of China is the same as human nature in the state of Texas. The humorousness of the Chinese rave was brought out in her address, and she took her hearers along with her and showed a writers' reaction to the humanity of the Chinese.

Mrs. Padgett, also a native Texan, has been impressed by the pathos of the great yellow race, and her address, "As I Passed By," abounded with references to the piteous backwardness of the Chinese people. The repression of the natives was the burden of her talk as she expressed herself glad to be away from the piteousness of the eastern world. She showed to the luncheon guests stereotype slides made in colors of the beautiful scenes which are typical of China.

The beauty of the vast country was brought out by the address and the pictures shown by Ralph Rowntree, a native of Stamford, and a man who is intimately connected with the life of China. He displayed his art exhibit of Chinese pictures which are to remain on display at the club house all this week.

A typically Oriental color scheme of Chinese red and gold was carried out in the gorgeous table appointments. The "W" shaped banquet table was cvered with a Chinese red and gold banquet cloth, and the individual places were marked off by strips of Chinese red and gold, each guest finding a Chinese favor at her place. Beautiful Chinese candelabra were placed around on the table amidst the bowls of chrysanthemums which added the floral touch. Buddha incense burners, Chinese pergodas and Chinese dinner gongs, all added to the general Chinese effect of the table.

A simple Chinese menu was served to the guests.

The house party for Saturday was made up of the following: Mesdames James O. Berney, J. C. A. Guest, Newton Maer, Robert H. Brown, Deane J. Wolfe, Ted Harris, Hugh Weaver, D. J. Carithers, T. P. Lynch, Lyle Sproles, Luther Hoffman, C. C. Jones Jr., J. L. Elliott, W. W. Silk, T. M. Conroy, M. E. Peters, G. B. Smedley, Bentley Nelson and Misses Jennie Robertson and Clara Shultz.

A luncheon party of about 140 guests were entertained with the following persons making reservations for parties numbering from one to eight persons: Mesdames Ben G. Oneal, Mrs. Sam Kruger, C. W. Gilliland, Mack Thomas, Mason Wilson, Sam Egger, J. H. Harris, C. T. Youger, C. E. Bailey, Roy I. Carter, D. Dellis, G. L. Shepard, W. L. Morgan, John W. Caldwell, Ted Harris, Howard Renfro, Ben Kaufmann, Dave Paul, J. Truman Stevens, E. T. Duff, W. B. Lehrack, A. L. Lane, J. C. Berney, Tom Pedgitt, G. K. Wilson, C. C. Jones Jr., William Morgareidge, J. T. Young, Loran Taylor, J. C. A. Guest, W. J. Masters, S. A. Mye..s of Henrietta, E. G. Miss Bonnie Jennings Becomes Bride Of Francis C. Awtrey of Electra

Special to The Record News.

ELECTRA, Nov. 26.——A wedding of unusual interest took place here Saturday, November 26 at high noon, when Miss Bonnie Jennings, daughter of Mrs. Grace Jennings, became the bride of Francis C. Awtrey, son of Mrs. Suda Awtrey of this city. The wedding took place in the First Christian church, the Rev. C. C. Klingman reading the beautiful ring ceremony.

Before the ceremony, Miss Beulah Ross, of Vernon, rendered a violin solo, "Out of the Dusk to You," by Lee, after which Miss Mary Ellen Scott and Miss Ross played the wedding march from Lohengrin for the entrance of the wedding party. They also rendered "The Melody of Love," during the ceremony, which took place before the flower banked altar. The recessional was the march from Mendelsohnn, played by Misses Scott and Ross.

Mrs. Grace Jennings, the bride's mother, was her matron of honor, and her brother, Spurgeon Jennings, was best man. She was given in marriage by another brother, J. C. Jennings. The bride was attired in a chin-chin blue chiffon velvet gown, made in semi-tailored style, with accessories to match. She carried a bridal boquet of small pink rosebuds and lilies-of-the-valley, tied with pink and blue shaded ribbons. The matron of honor wore a gown of black shadow velvet trimmed in coral pink, with hat to match. Her corsage was of pink rosebuds and lilies to match the bridal boquet.

After the wedding, a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, on West Ida avenue, for the old friends and relatives. The house was decorated in the chosen flowers and colors, and a dainty luncheon was served. The bride's cake was cut and toasts proposed, after which the wedding couple left by automobile for Fort Worth, Dallas and Waco for a brief visit with friends of the groom. They will be at home to their friends after December 1, at their new home in the South Side addition, here.

MARION MAKES OPERA DEBUT

Greatest Thrill in Pleasing Her Old Friends

By MARION TALLEY

It seems strange for me to be recounting my experiences during that eventful night, on Feb. 17, last. I had been anticipating my first appearance on the stage of the Metropolitan opera house, and for many months. Even before Gatti-Casazza asked me to sign a contract in July of 1925, I had hoped that one day that supreme privilege for a singer would come to me. And since hope may be succeeded by anticipation, well—almost everyone knows what the feeling is.

I cannot truly say that I had held great expectations prior to the first journey I made from Kansas City to New York, in the winter of 1922. Some people, I am told, entertain the belief that I made up my mind when very, very young that some day I would be a Metropolitan opera principal. While that has a certain romantic touch, it is not strictly true.

First Trip to New York

You see, I was only 15 when Mrs. Minna K. Powell, then music editor of the Kansas City Star, Jacob Harzfield, and other Kansas City citizens arranged for my trip to New York. I had sung because I loved to sing; perhaps for the reason that it was impossible for me not to have done so. And what one wishes with all one's heart to do is, I dare say, the thing one does.

Opportunity favored me. My old-time friends were loyal; and to their number were to be added others to whom I am forever obligated. They helped to make possible my first appearance at the Metropolitan. And I am indebted in particular to Otto Kahn, Catti-Casazza, Maestro Tullio Saveafin, Maestro Genaro Papi, Maestro Ricardo Delera and Wilfred Pellitier, and Stage Director Wilhelm von Wymetal. Without their encouragement and instruction and constant advice I could not have sung Gilda in "Rigoletto," and subsequently Lucia in "Lucia di Lammermoor," Le Rossignol in "Le Rossignol," The Doll in "The Tales of Woffman," and the other roles in which I have appeared in the opera house admitted to be the foremost in all the world.

But let me go back to the day of February 17, last, and still farther since, for a week before my introduction to a Metropolitan opera audience, I gave the matter deep thought. There had been stories told me of the nervousness an artist experiences during a Metropolitan debut, stories of many sorts. Stage fright, I believe is the term applied to the feeling most singers have who step for the first time on that great stage.

Had No Fear

I hope that my readers will not misunderstand me when I say that I was not disturbed by what was to come; nor by what actually did come. I prepared to go to the opera house at half after seven on the night of my opening performance. I reached the stage door, which is on the Fortieth street side, and left the taxi with mother. We went inside, greeted the opera house employes, who are to be found in that part of the building, and walked directly to the dressing room assigned to me.

I slipped out of my street gown, got into the first-act costume which Gilda must wear. Then Mr. Wymetal made my face up, for though I do not use cosmetics, it is compulsory, under the glare of the footlights to do so. Mr. Gatti visited me before the curtain rose, and Maestro Serafin came back, too. I was really perfectly calm: It may be my nature, but I have never quite understood why singers should be nervous over what they are capable of doing.

It was, as I recall, a little after 8 o'clock that I was in readiness to answer my call to the stage. Outside I could hear the footsteps of people passing to and fro. Members of the opera house management, other attaches and principals ready to go on together with members of the chorus who belonged on the feminine side of the stage (you see the men have dressing rooms on the Thirty-ninth street side, with the women on the Fortieth street part.)

It came at last—the call to the stage. I walked out, and went to the first entrance on the right of the stage as one faces the auditorium. I was still composed. I had done a sufficient amount of vocalizing to warm up the voice; and it was responsive. I knew my words and music, and also the action of the character. Even the outcome was not a thing to be feared—at least, that was my belief. I am against worry in any form, for it only lessens our resources—whatevery they may be.

Different Audience

Finally came my cue, and I stepped out in view of the audience. Though I had faced larger assemblages in Kansas City, this one was somewhat different. Then there was the tremendous mass of light just down before the orchestra, which I could dimly make out. Beyond was the auditorium, and it looked solemn and huge, and the faces of many people.

I got over this, naturally, in a short space of time. I was glad to find DeLuca, who was singing Rigoletto, standing near my entrance point; and I was glad, I admit, to feel the support of his arms as I sang my first phrase . . . Even as I caught the sound of welcoming applause.

Looking down towards Maestro Serafin I met his glance. It seemed to be directed towards me a friendly feeling. I think, had I been nervous, that all this evidence of good will and support would have banished it.

DeLuca and I began our duet, and I was started. I had no feeling of exultation at being there; rather was it one of thankfulness for the opportunity.

When the moment arrived for the Caro Nome aria I was not fearful, as perhaps might have been the case with the first important solo to deliver. I felt afterwards, however, that I had sung it better at the dress-rehearsal. The first act finished; then came the applause . . . and the curtain calls.

A change of costume for the second act, then to the stage again. It has ben said that I acquitted myself better than in the opening act, but I can say I was at no greater ease. I remembered all that had been taught me, in both singing and action; and it was the same in the concluding scenes, which found me for the first time in public in such a costume as Kilda must wear in the final act.

The many curtain calls after the last curtain gratified me beyond words to express. I was very, very happy and grateful. But I think I was happiest for those who had placed their confidence in me.

Then Kahn came, and Gatti, Mayor Beach of Kansas City and other personalities. There were more flowers, and everyone was unspeakably kind.

It was nearly 2 o'clock in the morning when mother and I, with a friend, got into a waiting taxi. A quarter of an hour later we were in our apartment home. And I realized then, my eyes smarting from having to stand for so long facing the Kleig lights which the photographers had used, that I was a little fatigued.

And that, as I recollect, is the story of how I went through my my Metropolitan opera house debut.

DENTON, Nov. 26. 26. (AP)—A joint of lead pipe with eight holes gnawed through it by rats was brought into Denton by Frank Mayfield, plumber. It is believed the rats were poisoned and seeking water gnawed through the pipe.

When to Suspect Acid Scalp

It isn't age that dulls the hair Nor frequent washing or curling. If your hair lacks all life and lustre, it may be due to a condition you can correct in twenty-four hours. Acid scalp.

Neutralize the acid secretions of the scalp, and your hair will have the lovely sheen that makes any hair so attractive. A few drops of Danderine will do this; and as its name implies, Danderine is a scientific dandruff dissolvent. Five minutes after Danderine is applied, every particle of dandruff has been dissolved!

Acid scalp should be suspected if your hair is at all stiff or stringy, or won't hold a wave. Another sign—not so easily detected in one's self—is an acid odor to the hair when it is warm, or after exercise. And for thirty-five cents at any drugstore, you can get a bottle of Danderine that will keep your hair soft and sweet and "on its good behavior" for weeks!

WICHITAN TO BUILD HOTEL

J. V. Howell Leases Site In San Angelo

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANGELO, Nov. 26.—Another old San Angelo landmark is passing, giving way to progress. The old Girdwood wagon yard property on East Concho avenue and Magdalen street, a center always humming with activity before the trucks took the place of horse-drawn freight wagons, is to be transformed into a modern city block.

J. V. Howell, Wichita Falls realtor and oil operator, has leased the site, more than two acres, for ten years, with an option to buy. A hotel, apartments and stores will probably be built. It is close in the business district, adjoins the City park, and both East Concho and Magdalen are included in the city's paving program.

The property fronts north on Concho avenue 303 feet and extends back to the Concho river, 420 feet at the farthest point.

Residence lots on East Harris and Fourteenth streets have been bought by Mr. Howell. He has purchased 259 acres in the shallow water belt north of the city from E. L. Boykin, which he expects to divide into five and ten-acre tracts. He also bought 540 acres from Sam Kistler. It is out of the Jim Johnson ranch, about four miles northeast of San Angelo. Roy E. Howell of Wichita Falls is associated with J. V. Howell in the purchase of some of the San Angelo property.

TATOO REPLACES BRAND

CANYON, Nov. 26.—The old-time brand used throughout the western cattle country has been relegated to the past by the West Texas State Teachers' college. The herds of this college are tattoed through the ears, which is claimed makes it impossible to change brands.

Appeals Court Delays Warrant Case Decision

The second court of civil appeals at Fort Worth Saturday again failed to hand down a decision in the warrant injunction case. There was no indication when this decision would be handed down. The suit is one in which J. M. Childers and others are seeking to restrain the city council from receiving monies on city warrants totalling $214,000 designed to complete the memorial auditorium, extend the water system and purchase additional ground for a cemetery.

Attorneys here are of the opinion that the decision may be held up until the Gainesville warrant case is finally decided. Unofficial word was received that the supreme court has granted a rehearing in this case.

40 and 8 Members To Meet at Burk

Members of the 40 and 8 will hold a special meeting Monday night at Burkburnett in the American Legion hall to prepare for the promenade to be given Wednesday night. The Wichita Falls voiture will be in charge of the promenade, according to Dr. L. I. Lucey, commander. The parade will start at 7 o'clock Wednesday night and the local wrecking crew will be assisted by that of Frederick, Okla., voiture. Vernon voiture will have representatives present and others in nearby towns are also expected.

Oates to Attend Development Meeting

Oates, agricultural agent of the Fort Worth and Denver, is leaving Monday for Chicago to attend the stock show and also the meeting of the American Railway Develpment association, December 1 and 2. The railway development association is composed of men in all parts of the United States who are employed by the railroads in the furtherance of the agricultural, industrial and colonization efforts of the roads in the territories they serve.

Children of Austin School Interested In Activity Clubs

The many different clubs of Austin school which meet bi-monthly are a source of inspiration and interest to the students. Each pupil has an opportunity to choose for himself which club he wishes to join, and each is a member of some one club of the school.

The Servant club is sponsored by Miss Churchwell and which trains the children for a good citizenship, showed a true Thanksgiving spirit at its last meeting. Each of the children brought canned goods, fruit and other groceries which were distributed to poor families of the city. The happy faces of the children proved once more that "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

The Travel club at its Wednesday session was entertained by a half dozen second grade children singing Thanksgiving songs in a way which showed careful training.

The Art and Culture club, which is sponsored by Miss Taliaferro and Mrs. Murray has for president, Roberta Lincoln; vice president, Orlena Man, and secretary, Daisy Coombs. They also have a program committee consisting of Margaret Walton, Bernice Goff and Dale Grant. The purpose of this club is to study and endeavor to appreciate different types of art and artists and their influence on society.

An attractive play which was staged by some of the children of the reading classes of Austin school were enjoyed Friday for the other departmental classes. The little play stressed and encouraged the reading of good books. The presentation was called "The Golden Key" and may be summarized as follows:

The scene is in the garden of Doctor Dolittle and a committee from Bookland is to meet there and enter into a contest to decide what could give to children the most happiness.

Robin Hood, a member of the committee, decides that Old book friends are the source of the greatest happiness and proceeds to call in some of them who are greeted by the children who have now entered the garden.

Joe March, another member, declares the New book friends are best and calls in her favorite ones.

Peter Pan relies on the fairy folk to provide the greatest happiness and soon the garden becomes a scene of beauty as the fairies appear. Alice in Wonderland admits that Old book friends, New book friends and fairy tales can each mean happiness but explains that children cannot buy all the books they would like to read. Alice then gives each of them a card to the Public Library and tells them that there they may become acquainted with the best books in the world. The children then declare her to be the winner of the contest and she is accordingly awarded the Golden Key as a prize. The small actors and dancers showed remarkable skill and artistry in interpreting their parts and it was evident that they had been carefully trained. The children in the cast were as follows:

News Notes From P.-T. A. Council

Approximately 59 persons were present Monday evening at Valley View school, when the Valley View Parent-Teacher association was organized by Mrs. John C. Kay of Wichita Falls. Mrs. Kay was introduced by County Supt. Burl Bryant, also of Wichita Falls, and following Wichita Falls women made talks: Mrs. Harry ten Brink talked on membership, Mrs. W. Roberts on finance, Mrs. W. A. McGee, program planning and publicity, after which the organization was perfected with the capable staff of officers being made up of both teachers and parents.

In the meeting the fathers were 55 in attendance and in talking to motions. Membership dues of 50 cents were voted and promptly paid.

During her talk Mrs. McGee inquired as to how many were taking one or both the Wichita Falls daily papers, Record News or Wichita Times? Ninety-five per cent said they were taking Wichita dailies, and were enjoying reading the constructive news found in the Sunday P.-T. A. columns.

Following adjournment Principal J. R. Steedham, with his faculty of 13 teachers, conducted parents and visitors through the splendid equipped building, among the most interesting features of which were tidy class rooms decorated with Thanksgiving motifs, a library of several hundred volumes, piano, shower bath, lighting and heating systems, outdoor court and spacious auditorium with its artistic stage scenery. The school also boasts an up-to-date teacherage, and according to Mr. Bryant, Valley View is one of the largest rural schools in Texas.

When the president of our school board talks on matters pertaining to schools, then what is said automatically becomes P.-T. A. news, for parents and teachers alike are vitally interested. Judge W. B. Chauncey, president of the board, who visited his son, Ford, at state university last week, states that he made various inquiries about social activities of the student body, and among other things was gratified to learn that the greater per cent of boys and girls, students of the university, attend some Sunday school and morning church services, regularly. Wichita Falls parents who have sons and daughters in the university should feel proud of the splendid record, to which they are making no small contribution.

Nutrition Officer Addresses Mothers On Matters of Diet

Newer knowledge of nutrition and the place that nutrition occupies in service in the American Red Cross chapter organization was the subject of the talk given by Dr. Marietta Eichelberger, assistant national director of nutrition service in the American Red Cross, Friday evening when she addressed a group of P.-T. A. members at the home of Mrs. T. H. Lawson, president of the city council of P.-T. A.

Doctor Eichelberger stated that the nutrition service is primarily educational and is organized to prevent mal-nutrition. She quoted figures to the effect that from 20 to 50 per cent of the children of the public schools are 10 per cent underweight.

Adult education is an important item in the study of nutrition, said the speaker, and parents are to make a study of the important subject before children may gain the results of nutrition study. The speaker especially emphasized the need of the newer knowledge in the field of nutrition which is based on scientific knowledge.

Present were: Doctor Eichelberger, and Mesdames W. M. Ferrill, Rudolph Ort, F. C. Dillingsly, R. D. Ford, C. C. Jones Jr., W. Roberts, Harry Graham, Walter B. Taylor, W. A. McGee, Lawson, and Misses Mary E. Southerland and Rose Lee Harkins.

Why She Doesn't Bob - - Call Again

By MARIE THERESA
The Record News Staff.

WHEN a celebrity comes to town, people naturally wonder as to the identity of the person who comes most near to capturing the attention of that famous person.

Who hobnobbed around with Marion Talley when she paid Wichita Falls a fleeting visit last week? The singing mayor of the city? The president of the Womans Forum which organization sponsored her coming? The chairman of arrangements for the concert? The reporters from the city papers?

None of these—Gertrude, the colored maid from the G. B. Smedley home is that fortunate person. For it was with Gertrude that the young star held the greatest amount of conversation, and it was Gertrude that was first allowed to express her opinion of the success of the concert.

And the Smedley family came mighty near losing a good maid, too, for Mrs. Talley, Marion's mother, you know, asked Gertrude to come to Kansas City to work for them.

"Law, Miz Smedley, I'd not leave you all to work for the president's wife," said Gertrude with an affectionate grin after she had let her mistress worry a while over the situation. "They're just folks like you all, but I don't want no change right now."

Gertrude treasures a dollar bill given her by the mother of the youthful soprano. She earned that by holding the listerine bottle for Marion.

"I never did see anybody who used so much listerine in all my life—she gargled her throat with it every few minutes, and I held the bottle when she wasn't using it," the borrowed maid remarked.

* * *

"MY SOUL," gasped Gertrude as she was taken into the new auditorium early Friday morning, "are you all goin' to bring that there primer donner into this place with the winders dirty? Won't I have time to get 'em washed afore she gets here?" and Gertrude could be appeased on that score only when her attention was diverted from the paint stained windows.

When Talley began to sing "There'll Be No Night There," Gertrude was placed on a box where she could both hear and see the star as she sang what proved to be Gertrude's favorite of the numbers sung Friday evening. The box and other courtesies were the idea of the manager, Mr. Bellews, who saw to it that Gertrude was not slighted on anything that could be obtained for her.

But Gertrude is modest concerning her social success with the gracious Marion, and merely stated that the famous song bird said very little to anybody, and "just come in and set down" while Gertrude offered her the water brought especially in a water bottle in order that the throat of the singer might not be irritated with the water from the new pipes in the auditorium. Nor were other details for the comfort of the star lacking, and Gertrude was a well-laden lady's maid when she finally had gathered together all the paraphernalia she had managed for, that Miss Talley might be made more at home.

"SHE skipped around and danced all the time and liked everything that everybody tried to do for her, and even liked the bare dressing room that doesn't have much in it yet, and didn't seem to pay no mind to them dirty winders," said Gertrude as she stood ready for the homeward trip laden with towels, bottles, brushes, and packages tied up and into which no one was allowed to peep.

In remarking that the Talley party was just "plain folks," Gertrude has reached the point of philosophy that most persons attain sometime in life — that the really great person is one that is thoroughly human and easily approached.

JUST Saturday, an officer of the Forum, remarked that she feared the many distinctions conferred upon Lorado Taft might detract somewhat from the numbers of persons who would hear him on Saturday evening when he will lecture on "American Sculpture and Sculptors," at the Womans Forum as the first artist to be brought here on the fine arts tickets of the Forum for the present season.

Those who fear that Taft will lecture only to those who understand art and sculpture and will bore those who know little of the fine arts, are due a surprise. Lorado Taft is one of the cleverest humorists on the American stage today, taking the center of the stage for entertainment and pure wit, with speakers such as Strickland, Gilliland and others who are noted only for their speaking ability and not for pre-eminence in any of the fine arts.

Taft will keep his audience alert to hear the next "crack" and will add a bit to the appreciation of the finer things, as he goes along. He will use a bit of clay for models, but he will never make so vast a mistake as to expect the audience to delve deeply into his pet subject of art.

* * *

MORE about Taft later—did you ever see things group themselves together for the amusement and edification of the people of the community in so short a period? Art exhibit, Talley concert, the grand opera everyone is on his toes to see and hear, the Chinese luncheon with three native Texans giving of their observations in the years they have spent among Oriental peoples, another art exhibit, John McCormick, worlds of local talent entertainment, the Follies, "Kid Boots," and so on, until a person who must discriminate dos person who must discriminate does be able to "take in" the other attractions. If this pace keeps up. Marie Theresa will have to start writing about something every week and desert her field of talking about nothing at all.

OH, YES, a wedding has been seared up for December 10—and that is something else to think about—there have been plenty of weddings but they have been so sudden that they've not kept the society pages, and incidentally the editors, very busy.

And another thing, will the lady sitting back of me at the Talley concert please take note of this? Marion Talley hasn't bobbed her hair for the simple reason that it is far too pretty to be discarded. That's true, Marie Theresa went back of the scenes Friday evening following the concert to find out the reason of the long fluffy curls and was told just that. Yes, call again.

Dorinda's Diary

Point of View

The donkey's song is not a pretty song;
You would not wish to hear it all day long;
Yet when the humans cry: "The donkey brays!"
How do they know? Perhaps the donkey prays.

To ears attuned—but not to yours and mine—
The donkey renders harmonies divine;
Yet should your voice and mine in paeans blend,
Who knows what donkey-ears it might offend!

—Ada Kyle Lynch, in "West Winds."

NOW wouldn't a lot of people be helped if they (I, You, Us) would study the above lines and get what's in them?—not calling any b-o-d-y a donkey! Oh, no, the editor made me promise when I asked him to give me enough paper to write my diary on, that I would never call any one a donkey on paper that ever belonged to The Record News . . . for it's like he said: "Dorindo," he said in the commanding voice he uses on solemn occasions, "never call any one a donkey—you might hurt the donkey's feelings—and there are so many of them; we must think of the circulation of the paper."

Now I never had a thought of ever calling any one a donkey, but you know how open our thoughts are to suggestion, and that started me to thinking on donkeys! And you know how thoughts are—you either have to accept 'em and give 'em the guest room with the pink draperies or shut the door in their faces—so, I'm entertaining a donkey!

* * * *

AND one cannot hide a mental guest any easier than a guest in the house. This donkey has pushed the pink draperies aside and is braying out at every window—and, as he announces himself by his braying, I might as well talk about him. We always talk about our mental guests.

I find even donkeys have decided views and opinions and like to express 'em, even as you and I. Their kicking isn't any worse than the way some of us kick when things don't go just the way we want them to—and as Ada Kyle Lynch says (I wonder who wished a donkey on her!), "to ears attuned—the donkey renders harmonies divine."

Now I'm a little juberious of that, since I've had this one braying here in my guest chamber, but Ada seems to know what she's talking about and I'll take her word for it and take it for granted he wonders why I raise my voice and what right I have, as much as I do about him.

One thing certain, tho, I won't promise to stop with a chessy grin of ecstacy at his braying, but I won't disturb his solo, for as Ada says, "Perhaps the donkey prays!"—The only way to get rid of one mental guest is to put another in its place—so out goes the donkey—as fond of him as I have become!

* * * *

ONE usually goes from the sublime to the ridiculous, but in this instance 'tis the 'tother way 'round—for now my thoughts go to Friday night, when I sat way up in the highest seat in the auditorium (No Jezica, not in price; distance) and listened to all that melody. Even as I was submerged in the music and personality of Marion, my thought was on something else.

I wondered if all those happy folk gave a thought to the work leading up to this hour. If they knew how many women had given their time the past month—and longer—completing all the details that brought this marvelous voice to us. I wondered if they wouldn't appreciate it more if they realized all the work involved.

Every work has to have a leader and in this case the one who led has put over a few other big things since she has been here, so this climax of bigness was no urprise to thoe who have been watching her. Quiet and unassuming, as are most people who accomplish things, Bettie Smedley (Mrs. G. B. Smedley) adjusts a lever here, another there, in the undertaking at hand and glides smoothly over the bumpy road to achievement. Hurrah for Bettie and all the women who helped her bring us that wonderful voice—and wasn't Marion sweet? Just like your little girl, or my little girl.

ANOTHER little girl sweet as yours or mine and with a future as great as Marion Talley's—only in a different way—is Bertha Mae Kruger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Kruger. Only 12 years old; one book of poems already published and another in the offing!

Sweet songs this young poetess is writing. Little songs filled with an understanding that seems far beyong her years and throbbing with the simple things we all love She has an asset few young writers can claim; an understanding, helpful family.

Her mother, who writes beautiful things, both in prose and poetry, knows when to praise and when to criticise. Her father does not withhold his encouragement when needed. This may not seem remarkable to the uninitiated, but the usual thing is for the young poet to be laughed at, criticised and discouraged.

* * * *

ON THE program given by the drama department of the Womans Forum, Tuesday afternoon and evening, was Mrs. Charles Hutchins of Denver, Colo., singing old songs accompanying herself on the harp. Mrs. Hutchins has played for Wichita Falls before, but never to such an appreciative audience.

Following drama of great intensity and preceding comedy, it was the happy link that established her in the hearts of her listeners—old songs and a woman's fingers on a harp; could anything be sweeter?

OH, THAT elusive little light in the "Will-O'-the-Wisp"—it needs a page all to itself—for thereby hangs a tale that gives an insight into the many steps necessary for the smallest thing in any stage production at the Forum.

We all know how things go off that Una Fulton (Mrs. E. L. Fulton) and Ella Merle Mathis direct and when they also take part in it themselves it's bound to be a success, so I'm going to let the others, who saw them in Tuesday's program, tell about all the actors, except the little light.

Monday noon, the principal actor, the fascinating, bobbing little light that spelt ruin in the life of the poet's wife, was still unheard and unsung and was leading a quiet life on the shelf of a department store.

"There must be night, a cliff and a bobbing light leading there to," said Una. "But where's it, they, them, coming from?" said they whose part it is to get properties. Charms from the two directors: "Don't bother us."

Picture then Dorindo and one of the cast, Nell Reid (Mrs. Chas. Reid) starting down town to hunt one night, one cliff and one bobbing light. They first went to a telephone and called up every one they knew, but no one could put their hands on either object wanted.

Then they went to every sign painter in town and with tears in their eyes begged for scenes depicting nights, cliffs and bobbing lights—no encouragement. Then to Mr. Noble at the theater, so weary and humble they only asked for any old cast off nights, cliffs and bobbing lights. He sent them to the store room. A mad, scrambled hunt thru tons of scenery revealed nothing resembling that for which they sought.

In the alley back of the theater, as they went out, Nell picked up a discarded frame and staggered out to a convenient dray and haughtily demanded they deliver the frame at the Womans Forum. They charged her $4.00 for her haughtiness. She then rushed madly across the street, Dorindo at her heels. A rush into a store brought forth 5 rolls of black crepe paper and some small objects she concealed in her purse. Not knowing or caring whether it was a night, a cliff or a bobbing light, I got in the car beside her and we Lindied out to the Forum. It was now nearly three bells and the curtain was to go up at that fatal hour.

The frame which had preceded us by $4.00 met us at the door and entered with Nell who soon had it set up back of the stage window and simply smothered in black paper.

She then took the small object from her purse, attached it to a long cord, tied it on the end of a broom, stuck it behind the black covered frame and lo! night and the bobbing light (small Christmas tree bulb)! She then rushed into the dressing room, got into her costume and was on the stage in plenty of time to tell the world the poet's wife fell off the cliff, when she knew very well she hadn't put any cliff there for anybody to fall off!

But the bobbing light was the heroine, anyway.

—DORINDA.

Sewer Extension Work Completed by Company

Work on the sewer extension contract of the Janes Contracting company, started about a year ago, was completed Saturday and the final bill turned over to W. E. McBroom, city clerk. The total amount of the contract is $67,250.33. This money was provided by the $100,000 bond issue of last December. Some of the money still remains and the rest has been used to pay for lines laid by the city.

Included in the work is some 8.37 miles of sewer lines. There have been built a 21-inch and an 18-inch interceptor line with 41 lateral lines leading from them. This work has done much, according to city officials, to place the sewer system closer to the growth of the city.

COMEDY STAR BILLED HERE

Al K. Hall Heads Week's Vaudeville Program

Much of a mixture in vaudeville will be presented to the fans Thursday and Friday at the Majestic. Ranging from classical music to jazz and near slapstick comedy almost any theatergoer should find at least one act pleasing on the bill. Comedy undoubtedly holds the lead on the bill as Al K. Hall is the headliner.

Hall is one of the best comedians in the business. He has made a brilliant success in musical comedy and now is trying out the three a day again. Hall has plenty of fun in his bag and it is never certain just what he will do from one minute to the next. He calls his vehicle "The Sap at the Beach." Hall is the Sap and appears in the role of a life saver. Two men and a woman are in his company as supports.

Al uses pantomime and dancing to help along in getting laughs for his audience. While the act of course will follow the same general lines, it has often been said that members of the cast are not sure with just what they will be confronted for Hall's fertile brain often works up a new stunt in the middle of a show.

The opening act is called "A Comedy Novelty." Dave Prince is a juggler while Sylvia Price is an artist with the crayons.

Adele Verne, pianist, comes second on the bill. Her talent is said to be unusual and she has appeared in concert work much. She is said to play much like a man. She does not try to impress one as to the various points of her artistry but merely tries to get from her selections the feelings of the author.

Hall comes along in the third place on the bill and is followed by Tad Tieman and his Tunesmiths. This is a jazz orchestra number which is said to be different from the usual presentation. The boys wear extreme Boston bags. They are the most ultra collegiate in type and even surpass the comic artist's conception in some ways.

The closing act is a combination of all the others. It is called "On the Air" and all the artists take part in a travesty on radio. They do nothing that was done in their regular turns although some of the others may take a wise crack or two at a stunt. This is said to be a real feature of the bill.

STRAND BOOKS HUGO'S STORY

"Les Miserables" Opens Run Here Today

So big as to beggar description, so delicate in its artful shadings of pathos and humor, and yet so overpowering in dramatic power and sweep that the audience will be held constantly in the grip of tense interest, admiration and sympathy, Les Miserables opens today at the Strand Theater for five days.

One cannot see this gripping, soul-stirring movie masterpiece without realizing that infinite patience, unlimited money and inspired endeavor were lavished upon the production, for no item in the tremendously big tableau seems to have been too small to be worthy of the utmost care in reproducing, when actual antiques could not be obtained.

It is said that most of the scenes, excepting those representing Paris, were taken on the actual locations of the book. These Parisian sets were built with such astonishing fidelity that they convey the illusion of age and realism, and to such an extent that it is difficult to believe that they were not photographed a hundred years ago.

Jean Valjean, regarded by many as the most beloved character in fiction, is played by Gabriel Gabrio with a depth of understanding that makes the man of burdens live and breathe.

The lovely Cosette, the terrible Javert, the crafty Thernardier and Father Myriel, the saintly—all these are brought to being on the screen with the force of truth.

The film was originally produced in such great length that it had to be exhibited in France in a series of six showings. The American distributors have reduced it to feature length, retaining the essentials of the great story in big gripping scenes.

The scene in the court room, where Valjean gives himself up to the law, would wring tears from the heart of a stone if a stone had a heart. The scene of the historic barricades is a big and exciting drama within a drama. The prison at Toulon, the Paris sewers, Valjean's escape from jail, the love of Cosette and her poet revolutionist—these will linger long in the memory of everyone who sees "Les Miserables."

Is Your Dog Telepathic?

The dog who knows when his absent master is returning home and goes to meet him at a certain hour is common enough, but in England one dog goes to the railway station to meet his master who returns home at almost any hour of the afternoon or evening. Major Harding Cox, an expert on the hibits of dogs, says this is done by telepathy, declaring that some dogs have a "wireless" connection with the brains of their masters.

Fright Restores Voice

A commercial traveler who lost his voice through fright at Bristol, England, had it restored by a similar scare. While in the Bristol Zoo he was startled by a baboon which sprang against the bars of its cage toward him. As a result of the shock the man lost his voice completely. Doctors were unable to help him, but a few days later he recovered his speech when two speeding automobiles seemed about to crash near the spot where he stood.

Prince Has Prince Double

Prince George of England has been considerably embarrassed lately by being reported in all sorts of places abroad while he has been at Balmoral all the time. His "double" is Prince George of Russia, who is not the least bit like him in appearance. The Russian George speaks perfect English, however, and is often taken for a member of the English royal family. He is enarly six feet four inches tall.

Finding a burglar in his bedroom, Rev. William W. Anderson, parish minister of Beardson, Scotland, captured the man and turned him over to the police.

New York Comedy Plays Here Under Auspices of Business Women

That "one touch of nature make the whole world kin" has been forcefully exemplified in "Three Wise Fools", a delighful comedy of men and manners by Austin Strong, and originally produced by John Golden, with all the consistency, artistry and completeness which have characterized his previous contributions "Turn to the Right", "Lightnin" and 'Seventh Heaven."

This exquisite gem of characterization and humor which ran for 333 performances at the Criterion theater, New York, is the attraction coming to the Palace theater Wednesday, Dec. 7. It is being presented locally by the Business and Professional Women's club.

It wouldn't be fair to give an inkling of the plot. Suffice to say that there are plenty of thrills, heart throbs and laughter in "Three Wise Fools" to please even the most blase habitue of teh theater. Mr. Golden believes in these ingredients, especially in laughter, which is the foundation of all his offerings.

This is the one of a series of clean, wholesome plays now being presented on tour by Better Plays Extension, an organization which has the hearty endorsement of Mr. Golden and many other New York producers and artists. In the cast are such excellent players as Betty Reynolds, as "Sidney"; Carson Davenport as the Judge; Edwin Brady, the banker; Henry Herbert, the doctor; and Robert White as "Gordon."

Bebe Daniels Star of Excellent Comedy Showing at Majestic

She's a Sheik" the new Bebe Daniels comedy which arrived at the Majestic yesterday shapes up as one of the season's funniest films. Listen to a brief outline of the plot:

Bebe, granddaughter of a sheik, refuses to marry the man who wants her, William Powell, a desert bad 'un. On a trip to an outlying Foreign Legion post she meets and falls madly in love with Richard Arlen, a captain of the Legion. Unfortunately, he being entirely wrapped up in Josephine Dunn, a visitor, fails to return Bebe's affection. Taking one of his jocular remarks up in the wrong manner—"if you want to win your sweetheart and he resists, carry him off into the desert"—Bebe kidnaps Arlen with the help of two friends and takes him to her home in the oasis.

There, all the methods known and a few that are unknown, to women, are tried out but Arlen remains obdurate. Not being at all interested in his firey Arabian beauty, he is anxious to return to his command. Finally, Bebe agrees to take him back whereupon Powell appears on the screen. Knowing that Arlen is technically a deserter, he sends word to the latter's superior officer. The Legionnaires arrive to shoot the deserter and Powell's bloodthirsty tribe surrounds them. Then, when all seems lost — but why continue?

From the above, the action and plot can easily be visualized. As for the laughs, they're there a'plenty. For instance, Bebe's efforts to tame the man she loves involve a leopard, a wild animal's cage, a whip and everything but actual brute force. A modern go-getting cave-woman if ever there was one! And yesterday's audiences have raved about the climax; one that's as funny as it's thrilling.

CLARA BOW AT OLYMPIC

"Wine" Shows Violations Of Pro Law

"Wine," starring Clara Bow, coming to the Olympic Theater Monday is the screen version of one of the most sensational works of recent fiction. It is a Cosmopolitan Magazine story of the same name written by William MacHarg, who devoted his talents to a scathing expose of the manner in which the prohibition laws of the nation are flagrantly violated by men and women of breeding, education and high social position.

Universal entrusted the portrayal of the story to a cast of drawing proven talent; Clara Bow, Forrest Stanley, Huntly Gordon, Myrtle Stedman, Robert Agnew, Walter Long, Leo White and Grace Carlisle. Louis Gasnier directing.

Principal among the spectacular features of the screen story are a number of cafe scenes, where throngs of fashionably gowned women applaud the efforts of professional entertainers. In fact the extras witness just as fine an entertainment as they could have found in a real cafe, for the beautiful girls who danced in beautiful if scanty costumes on the screen version of "Wine," were recruited from those who make their living doing the same thing in the cafes of Los Angeles and Hollywood.

Also, there is a thrilling raid by prohibition officers, who not only create consternation among the guests in the main room of the cafe, but carry their activities to a number of private rooms where youth of either sex are holding high revel, stimulated by indulgence in the commodity of the bootlegger.

The main theme of the story concerns the life of a father, mother, and debutante daughter, accustomed to every luxury that money affords. When the story opens the man is facing financial ruin. Urged by his wife he consents to lend his name and business acuteness to a giant scheme to flood the country with illicit liquor, which results in something bordering on tragedy.

Lon Smith Praises City's Hospitality

Much praise for Wichita Falls' reception to the Baptist convention here, and for the new city auditorium, is contained in a letter from Lon A. Smith, railroad commissioner, to G. H. Watson of Wichita Falls.

The letter follows in part:

Permit me to say this: I have never seen a convention of people handled with better dispatch than this Baptist convention. Your people were untiring in their efforts to make the visit of every one pleasant. Many were the fine expressions heard on every side from visitors who were enjoying the hospitality of Wichita Falls citizens. The questions of religion so far as denominations are concerned were entirely obliterated. Your entire citizenship joined most generously in every effort for the entertainment of the people. The people of Wichita Falls are to be congratulated on their splendid auditorium. We Baptist people felt a little bit proud that we were the first religious body to hold a session in your new auditorium.

"I am certain our people will want to come to Wichita Falls again as the years go. Whether they do or not, there will be ever lingering in their thoughts kind remembrances of the generous hospitality of your people. The papers gave most freely their columns to a fair report each day of the proceedings. Often newspapers take little interest in gatherings of this nature but both of your papers gave careful and helpful reports each day of the happenings of the convention. In fact I have not heard a low note sounded and I am certain that everyone who had the opportunity to be your guest for this week went away singing highest praises of your city and your people.

Very truly and sincerely yours,
LON A. SMITH,
Commissioner.

How To Plant and Care For Pecan Trees Told by Writer

By MORA C. CLARK

First: Select location for tree. Lay off a square 4x4 feet. If covered with sod, scrape off to a depth of two inches and throw to one side not to be used again.

Second: Proceed at once to dig a hole three feet square and three feet deep. In the center of this dig, with a post hole digger, a hole three feet deeper, throwing this clay to one side, not to be used again.

Third: If real tough clay is encountered as this cubic yard of soil is removed, it should be thrown aside and replaced with good soil. Cut and spade a cubic yard of soil into as fine condition as possible and mix with it 3 1-2 pounds of fertilizer pulverized, unburnt lime and sulphur in proper proportions. This must be thoroughly mixed with one full cubic yard of soil, as the mason mixes his mortar. Repeat operation of mixing each four or five days until trees arrive. Never handle this soil when wet enough to clog, however.

Fourth: When trees arrive throw a few buckets of water on them, while packed, and never let them become exposed uncovered to sun or air for a single minute, keeping roots wet every instant, until planted. Millions of trees have died from failure to follow this rule.

Sixth: First, fill the small post hole with the prepared soil and saturate it with water so no air pockets are left in it. This may be done a few days before trees arrive.

Seventh: Take only one tree out of packing at a time. Cut off any bruised or broken roots with sharp knife. Set in center of hole two inches deeper than in nursery. Determine this by laying stick across hole and note place at which it strikes tree. Roots are three to three and one-half feet long. Quickly throw in the prepared soil until hole is filled within three inches of top—then turn in water until every particle of this soil is thoroughly saturated, shaking the tree from side to side with the hand until all air is worked from around roots. When this water has settled, in 30 minutes probably, fill up hole with prepared soil, leaving top soil loose and pulverized.

Then inspect following day. If soil has settled below surface fill in with more loose soil until almost level. Heap dirt in a sharp pile around the body of tree eight inches higher than surface and cover the surrounding soil to a depth of four to six inches with decaying leaves or straw, or much better still, with rich, strawy stable manure, taking care not to let it come into contact with the trunk of the tree. The fertilizing elements from this will enter the soil during the winter season. You will not have enough soil to fill this hole, especially if you have thrown aside considerable tough clay. Supply this with good rich garden soil—no fresh poultry or other fertilizer.

The chief reasons why trees die are: Exposure of roots to air and sun; clods and air pockets, a hard, baked soil around them while young, weeds and grass allowed to grow around them.

Keep in mind that each pecan tree has a potential value of $500 for nuts and another $500 for beauty and ornament, which justify every possible attention that you can give it.

Doctor Found What is Best for Thin, Constipated People

As a family doctor at Monticello, Illinois, the whole human body, not any small part of it, was Dr. Caldwell's practice. More than half his "calls" were on women, children and babies. They are the ones most often sick. But their illnesses were usually of a minor nature—colds, fevers, headaches, biliousness—and all of them required first a thorough evacuation. They were constipated.

In the course of his 47 years' practice (he was graduated from Rush Medical College back in 1875), he found a good deal of success in such cases with a prescription of his own containing simple laxative herbs with pepsin. In 1892 he decided to use this formula in the manufacture of a medicine to be known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and in that year his prescription was first placed on the market.

W. B. Caldwell, M.D.
AT AGE 83

The preparation immediately had as great a success in the drug stores as it previously had in his private practice. Now, the third generation is using it. Mothers are giving it to their children who were given it by their mothers. Every second of the working day someone somewhere is going into a drug store to buy it. Millions of bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are being used a year.

Its great success is based on merit, on repeated buying, on one satisfied user telling another. There are thousands of homes in this country that are never without a bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and we have gotten many hundreds of letters from grateful people telling us that it helped them when everything else failed.

Every drug store sells Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Keep a bottle in your home—where many live someone is sure to need it quickly.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE.

"DUDE RANCH" MOVING EAST

San Antonio Now Boasts Of Wild West Resort

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 26. (AP)—The historic Gallaher ranch, 25 miles west of San Antonio, which has been the scepe of fights between Indians, between Indians and Spaniards and between pioneer Texans and Mexicans has become the eastern frontier of the "dude ranchers."

The ranch, which was once the headquarters for a 300,000 acre ranching project, now consists of about 10,000 acres. It was established in 1848 by a man named Gallagher, who is said to have been the hero of the phrase "Let'er Go Gallagher."

Remains of Gallagher's famous irrigation project can still be seen. The early irrigation experiment is said to have cost in excess of $100,000 and to have irrigated only 200 acres of land.

The present owners have added to the original ranch buildings, retaining the pioneer style of stone building with walls two feet thick and narrow windows for loopholes.

The ranch will be open the year round and will carry on all of the activities of a real ranch on a commercial scale.

One of the most famous spots on the ranch is Council Mountain from which Indians used to send their smoke signals after tribal councils.

So far as is known the Gallagher ranch is the eastern and southern outpost of the "dude ranch" industry, which has been carrying the "wild west" to the east in late years. Another ranch utilized as a resort, is located at Alpine and the same man will manage both properties.

Episcopal Clergy Pays Tribute to Rev. Datson

The Rev. Frederick T. Datson, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Wichita Falls, Texas, entered into eternal rest on Wednesday, Nov. 9, 1927.

We, the clergy of the Diocese of Dallas, desire to place on record, together with our sense of bereavement and our profound sympathy with the sorrowing family, our deep and sincere appreciation of the personal character, and the intellectual, pastoral and administrative ability of our late associate and fellow-priest.

Coming to this diocese of Dallas early in 1914 as rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, Wichita Falls, he served his parish, community and diocese, with conspicuous efficiency up to within a few months of his decease. For about a year and a half, 1918-19, he served as rector of Trinity Parish, Fort Worth. At the time of his lamented death, at the age of 53 years, he was the third priest of the diocese in order of canonical connection.

By reason of his widely exercised civic and religious activity in Wichita Falls in furtherance of educational, philanthropic, and Christian enterprises, he had come to be recognized as one of the city's foremost citizens, known, honored, and loved by all classes of people. This fact was impressively indicated in local newspaper accounts of his death, and was strikingly manifested, at the time of his burial, by the numerous representatives from various civic bodies who paid their sorrowful tribute to his memory.

The extensive and valuable parish property in the heart of the city embracing a new church and parish house, stand as a lasting monument to his energy and success as an executive and administrator.

The diocese of Dallas has lost by his demise one of its most capable, conscientious, and useful clergy, whose wider interest and service have been of great benefit to the diocese, and have been recognized by the bestowal of the highest honors that were within its gift.

"Lord, all-pitying Jesus blest,
Grant him Thine eternal rest."

They Hate Jazz in This Town

NEXT DANCE?
TIME OUT
THE SHEIKS AND FLAPPERS STRUT THEIR STUFF
IT TAKES THE OLD TIMERS TO SHOW THE YOUNG ONES

By NORMAN E. BROWN.

HARTSTON, Pa., Nov. 26.—I have just dropped out of the land of jazz for a night—dropped out as completely as though I had taken some magic wand and turned back the calendar 40 years.

I have enjoyed—keenly—a night of recreation with folk who are thrilled with the lively step of the quadrille, content with the music of the town fiddler and his "Old Dan Tucker," and aren't worried at all about the "modern tendencies" wrecking our social flivvers.

Dance in Historic Inn.

Here, in an old inn, where Commodore Oliver Hazard Perry stopped on his long march to Lake Erie to engage in his memmorial battle with the British, the years are rolled back two nights each week to the days when Lee Mason, now proprietor, was "a kid."

Hartston is 16 miles southwest of Meadville. The piano player, Gerald Mason, is imported from Meadville. It's a short drive nowadays but that ride drops you into the darkness and silence of a far-away country night. I made the trip with the piano player.

Ten miles form Meadville we pulled up at a cross-roads. The country store was dark. Where the blacksmith had been, the garage loomed—but black as well. We drove on.

Gather Around Wood Fire.

"Pull up under that big elm," someone shouted when we drove up to the inn. "Looks like rain."

It might just as well have been a row of buggies and spring wagons as a row of gas buggies lined along the road.

In the "living room" of the inn a wood fire crackled. The ladies gathered around the stove. The men braved the chillier dance hall.

Merle Louterman resined his bow. The music started. Harry Woodward, caller, sung out "Get your partners for a quadrille." Six sets answered the call.

"Have had eleven sets in this same room," said Woodward.

The music begun.

"Salute your partners."

I looked at the dancers. All old folks? No. Not at all. Two or three young folks. But the flappers were dancing with the older partners.

So were the Mister Flappers.

"Same in the side."

"Join your hands and circle around."

Tires the Flappers.

It's usually the young folks ask the older ones to dance, said Woodward between calls.

"Meet your maid and promenade.'"

"Reason is that they have to have one of us old timers to keep them going right," Woodward again.

Later.

"Old Mother Finnegan," and Pete Groger calling. Little fellow and how he had danced! Intricate little quick steps that bothered his partners—including two maids who could enter any beauty contest.

Feet iching strains of the "Arkansas Traveler," "The Ocean Wave" and a dozen other old timers. Two o'clock in the morning. Anyone tired? The young folks.

"Meet your maid and promenade. Anywhere, I don't care. Down the cellar in the old arm chair."

Oh yes, there were one or two modern dances.

"Mostly for a breathing spell for them young uns, said one resident who had lived within sight of the dance hall some forty-odd years.

WHEN KIDNEYS HURT CONSULT YOU RDOCTOR

Drink Lots of Water All Day and Take Salts if Back Aches

No man or woman can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Eating too much rich food creates acids, which excite the kidneys. They become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood. Then we get sick. Rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders often come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys, or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, begin drinking a quart of water each day, also get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys may act fine.

This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for years to flush and stimulate the kidneys; also to help neutralize the acids in the system, so they no longer cause irritation, thus often relieving bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink which everyone should take now and then to help keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby often avoiding serious kidney complications.

Another Library War Waged

While Chicago rids its libraries of alleged British propaganda, Memphis, Tenn., is taking drastic measures to free its library of—mice and roaches. A coating of lacquer on all books is being applied to discourage the roaches, and Tom, above, posing with Miss Adellide Spencer, assistant librarian, is chasing the mice to cover.

Ready to Launch Giant Dock

The remaining four sections of the giant pontoon dock for the British naval base at Singapore will be launched at Newcastle,-on-Tyne before the end of the year, and it is hoped to complete the dock by May, 1928. The first three sections were launched last July. More than 20,000 tons of steel and 3,500,000 rivets will be used before the dock is finished. The sections will be fitted together in the water and tested, then divided in twain to be towed to Singapore through the Suez canal.

More Scope for Prison Labor

Finance Minister Mitsuchi of Japan has proposed to the government a plan for using the labor of prison inmates more extensively. The plan is to train the prisoners in a more systematic and practical way in factory and architectural work so that their services may be employed for the general manufacturing and construction purposes of the country. Experimental training so far given to some prisoners is so reassuring in results that several government institutions have been built by this prison labor.

U. S. CAR SHOW OPENS SUNDAY

Trend in Body Styles To Be Revealed

By RAY PRIEST
Universal Service Automobile Editor.

DETROIT, Mich., Nov. 26.—Automobiles gathered together for the 23rd annual salon which opens in New York Sunday are valued at over a million dollars and are representatives of six nations, according to a summary of the reports from there.

Each year the salon showing, which precedes the national automobile show by six weeks, has established the trend in bond styles. This year with 14 American custom body builders exhibiting those familiar with their products see a definite American trend.

Trend Was Predicted.

This trend was predicted by many motor car executives who saw the Paris and London automobile shows this year. Harley J. Earl, designer of the new La Salle and Cadillac who is now in charge of the body design division of the General Motors corporation said on his return from abroad that he saw a greater enthusiasm for American design than ever before. His assertion was substantiated by the huge increase in purchase of American-built cars at the two foreign shows.

Calling attention to the New York automobile show recalls the increasing conjecture here regarding possibility of Ford exhibiting his new model A at the annual manufacturer's show. The talk was accentuated here last week following a visit made to the Dearborn offices of Ford by Roy D. Chapin, president of the National Automobile Chamber of commerce, which conducts the show. To exhibit, Ford must join the chamber.

Ford May Display.

Chapin's visit at Dearborn might have been for the purpose of arranging the motor magnate's entrance into the manufacturer's association, which would mean his displaying the new car at the January show. However, it is known that the new Ford will be shown the public at least a month before the start of the New York show.

Merger rumors are rife in Detroit again. This time they include the names of Peerless, Jordan, Hupmobile, Continental Motors and Durant.

Ross W. Judson, president of Continental, in whose office a meeting of executives of those firms named was held last week refuses to talk on the subject. He tells all questioners that he "knows nothing."

Sales Zones Increased.

Chevrolet this week has increased its sales zones to 44 in the United States to care for its ever increasing sales. Chevrolet has had to add 10 sales zones is in the year. The newest zone is in the Detroit area. It was made by extracting a portion of the Flint and Cleveland zones. The 1928 quota for the new zone is 30,000, according to A. H. Goodman, who was made zone manager.

Chevrolet's sales during 1927 will exceed one million cars. Forty-four times 30,000 suggests that this division of the General Motors may sell something like 1,320,000 cars during 1928.

Chevrolet also announces this week completion of its $2,000,000 parts and service expansion program extending over the last year. The last unit was opened in Flint upon completion of the $625,000 building for that sales zone.

In addition Chevrolet Spent huge sums in construction of four major supply depots and complete reorganization of those in Oakland, Cal., and Tarrytown, N. Y.

Motor Convention.

United motors service, the division of central motors in charge of replacement and accessory units will conduct a convention in Detroit starting next Friday, of the salesmen from the 23 control branches in the United States and Canada.

Chrysler's pre-showing of 1928 models which close in Detroit Sunday showed that increased horsepower rating of its "80" for next year was as desirable a feature as the beautiful new body trend on this line of the company. Three custom built body designers varied with the chassis design for interest.

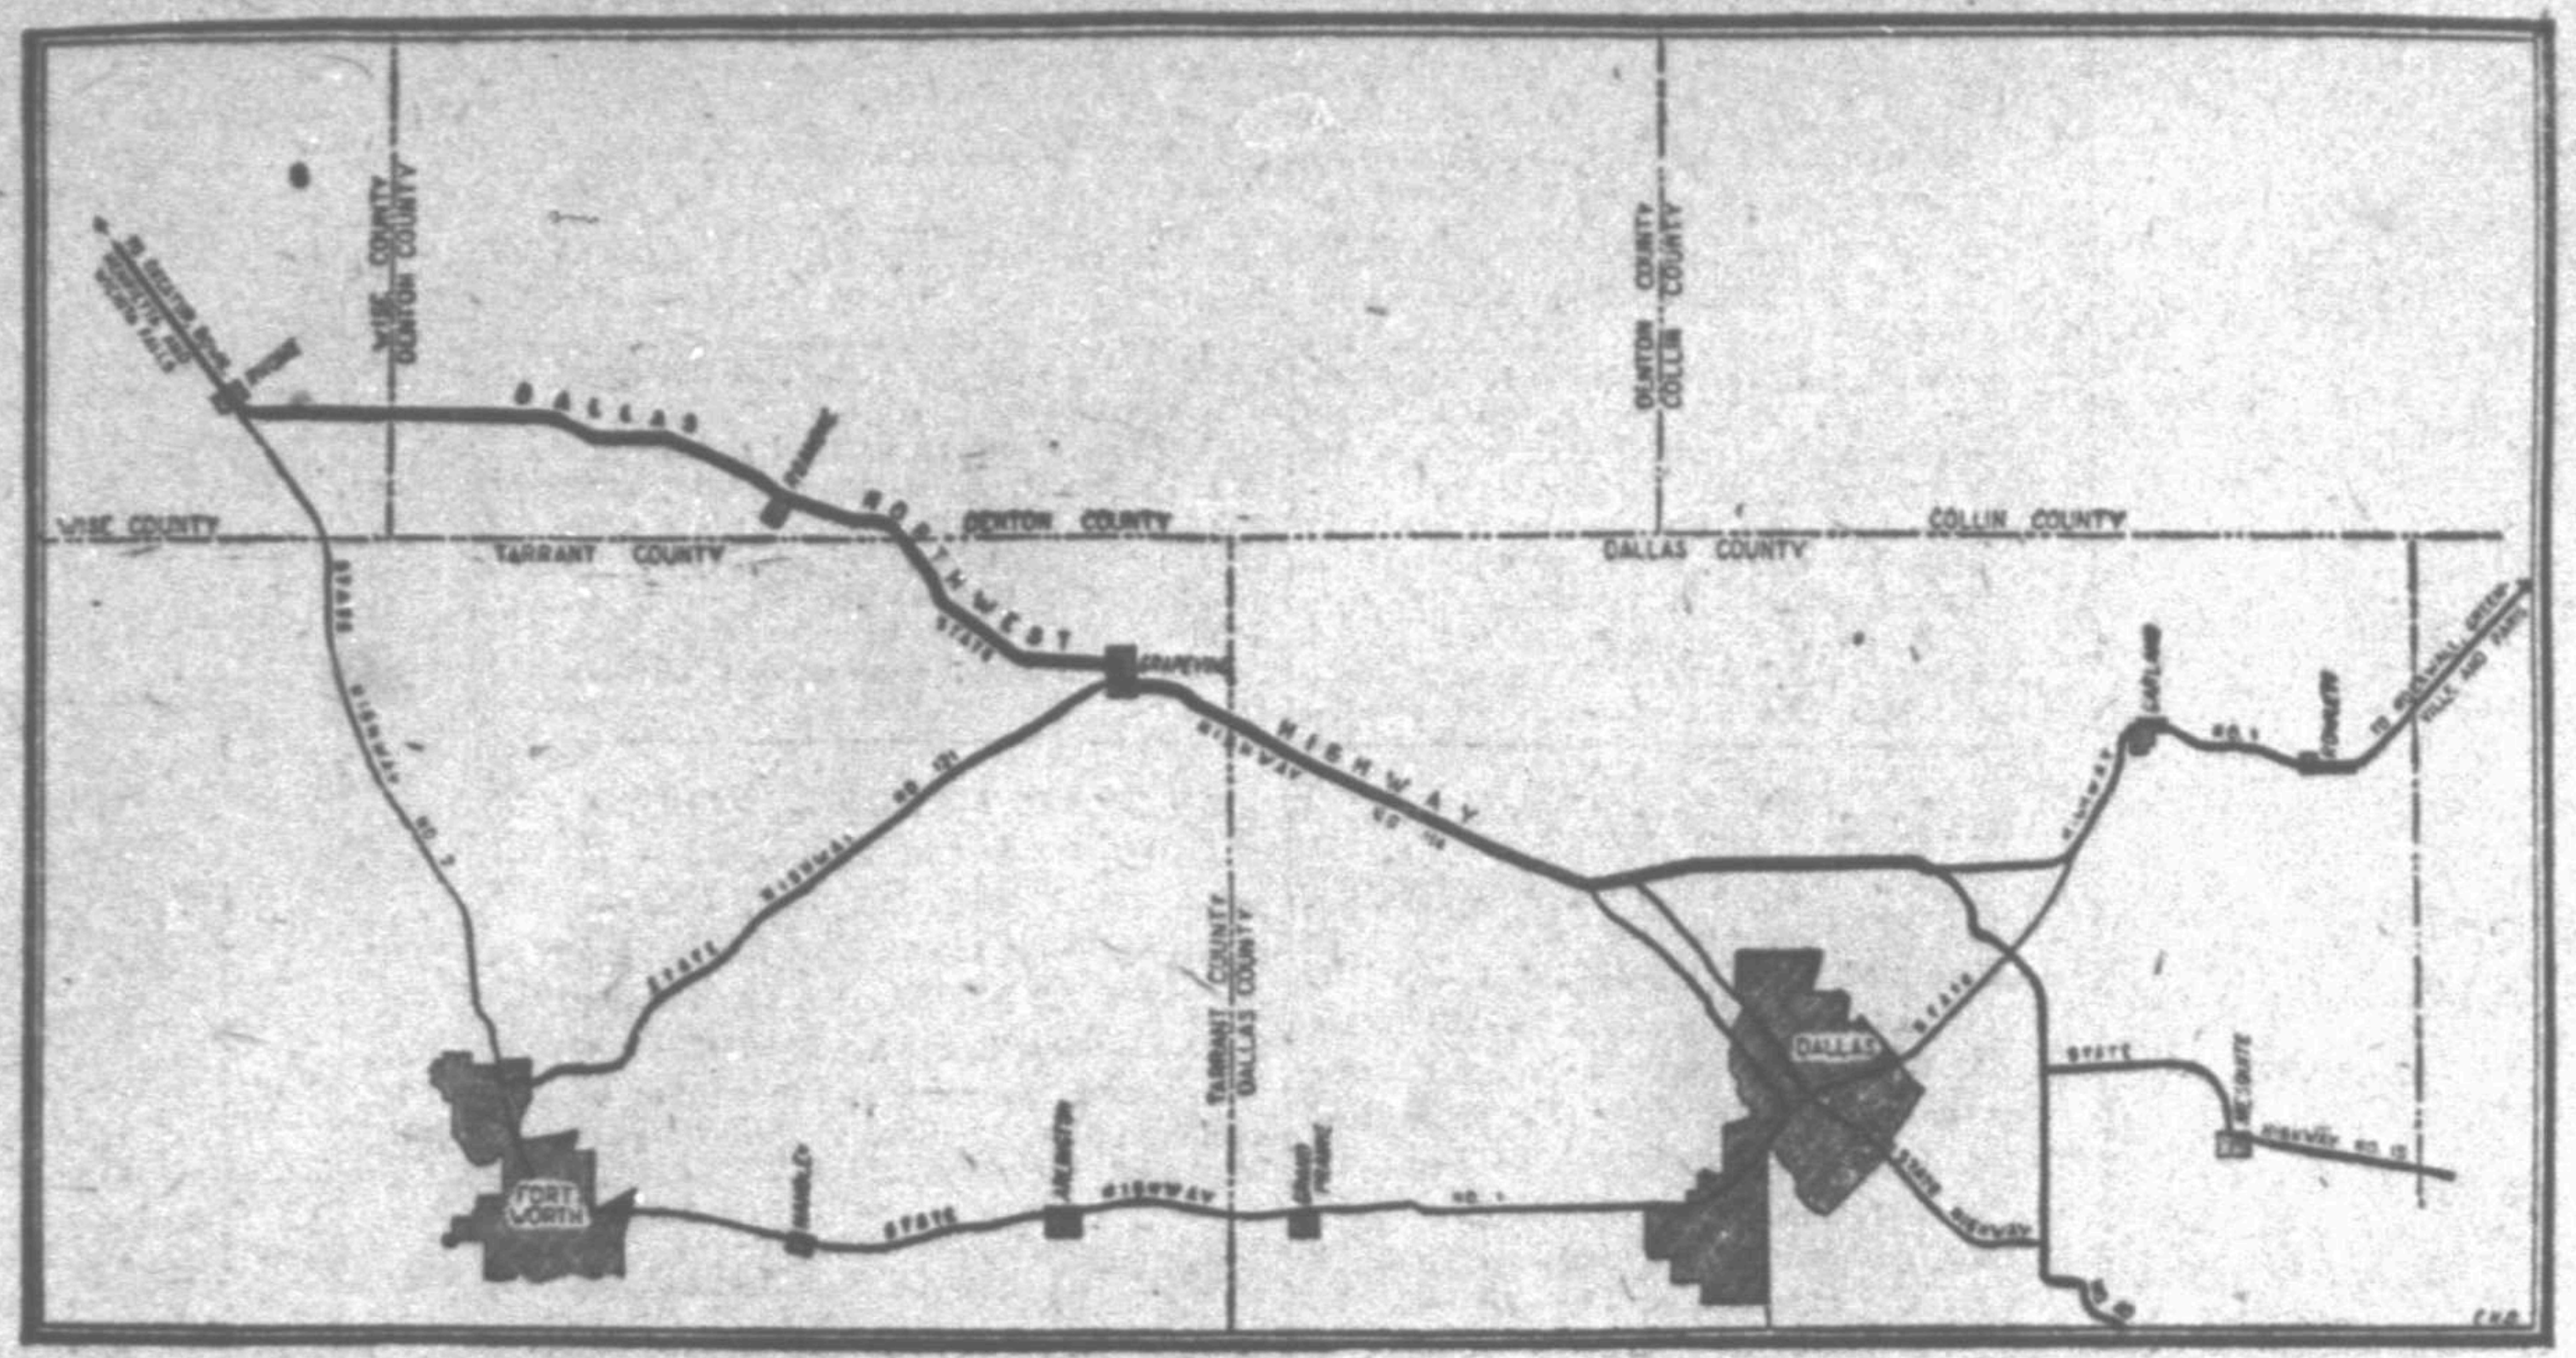
New Highway Shortens Northwest Texas Route to Dallas



The above map shows the route of the Dallas-Northwest highway and important connections. The new road will materially shorten the motor vehicle distance between Dallas and northwest Texas points, at the same time providing a by-pass around the most congested traffic centers of north Texas. Through travel can miss either Fort Worth or Dallas or both. Assurance of cooperation in building the new highway was given by the state highway commission at its November session. Dallas county officials plan to begin construction work by early spring.

This highway, designated as state highway 114, will be 50 miles long, extending from a point on state highway 1 about eight miles northeast of Dallas, to the town of Rhome, on state highway 2, north of Fort Worth. It intersects many improved traffic ways leading into Dallas and Fort Worth. Dallas county will build a connection around the eastern side of the city of Dallas to enable travel to and from east and southeast Texas to reach the northwest highway without passing through the congested traffic of the city.

Dallas county will provide 60 per cent of the $2,373,000 estimated cost, under the plan approved by the highway commission. The road will be of best type reinforced concrete from 18 to 40 feet wide. A 100 foot right-of-way has been secured for it.

C.-C. Airport Committee May Resume Drive Monday Afternoon

The drive to raise $8000, the balance necessary for the Wichita Falls airport probably will start Monday afternoon, according to James W. Chatham, industrial and traffic manager of the Chamber of Commerce.

The airport committee of the Chamber of Commerce, of which C. W. Cahoon is chairman, will meet Monday morning at 10 o'clock in the offices of the chamber to pick a sub-committee to raise the money.

The size of this new committee and its probable membership have not been announced.

As soon as the committee is organized, it will start to work raising the funds necessary.

He also said that with the need of the airport well known and recognized by Wichita Falls, he does not look for any difficulty in raising the money, and expects it to be done quickly.

More than $15,000 of the $25,000 total capital has been subscribed.

Hawaii expects a record tourist invasion this winter.

"BABOON BOY" VERY STRONG

A strange story of South Africa has set London talking. About 25 years ago two of the Cape police, while huntng baboons, caught one of the laggards, only to fnd that it was a well grown native boy. He was unable to talk and disliked normal food. He skurried on all fours and it was difficult to teach him to use his legs as the sole means of locomotion. Today he speaks English, can run a ten-mile errand and can lift and carry enormous weights. He remembers being taken from his kraal when a baby and cared for by a boboon foster-mother.

TEXAS PLANS BIGGEST MEET

General Federation Goes To San Antonio

Special to The Record News.

SAN ANTONIO, Nov. 26.—Plans for the biggest convention of women ever held in Texas, the entertainment of the biennial of the general federation of Women's clubs, are under way with the establishment of headquarters at the Gunter hotel, San Antonio, and the active functioning of 40 committees in preparation for the convention, May 28 to June 6, inclusive. Ten thousand delegates are expected representing every state in the union and many foreign countries.

Committees at Work.

The committees, appointed in September, have begun work, according to reports made by Mrs. Henry Drought, local chairman. These 40 committees will meet again in January in conjunction with the state board of which Mrs. J. U. Fields of Haskell, Texas, is chairman. The meetings are to be held in San Antonio.

While it has been the policy of the city entertaining the biennial to handle the convention with local committees, this convention is planned on state lines and its success will be the business of every club woman of Texas according to the decision of the executive board. The details of the co-operation of local and state activities will be worked out in January when the state board meets.

The San Antonio executive committee, including Mrs. Henry Drought, chairman; Mrs. A. H. Worden, Mrs. J. T. Smith, Mrs. A. A. Brown, Mrs. E. C. Branch, Mrs. Ed W. Oeffinger, Mrs. J. S. Wright, Mrs. Eli Hertzberg, Mrs. J. S. Peter, Mrs. F. F. Stauffer, with 40 chairmen of committees of arrangement are planning extensive entertainment. They wish to make San Antonio and adjacent territory attractive by planting showy flowers, wild flowers and shrubs. With the co-operation of the state committee, information will be furnished visitors about the history and development of Texas, and entertainment with rodeos and barbecues and distinctive southwestern attractions.

STUDEBAKER now holds every official stock car record for endurance and speed, regardless of power or price!

World's Champion Car
25,000 miles in less than 23,000 minutes!

AT Atlantic City Speedway between Oct. 18th and Nov. 4th, three strictly stock Commanders each went 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes—total elapsed time! Two roadsters each completed the 25,000 miles in 22,968 consecutive minutes—a Sedan in 24,200 minutes. Nothing else on earth ever traveled so far so fast!

The American Automobile Association certified to the time and distance, and disassembled the cars following the run to establish their status as strictly stock models.

The Studebaker Commander now holds all official endurance and speed records for stock cars, regardless of power or price!

What These Records Mean to You

This great achievement proves that it is now possible to purchase a truly great automobile at a moderate One-Profit price. It proves that The Commander, because of its super-abundant power, will perform for many years, eagerly, easily, smoothly and with no labor or effort, any and all tasks placed upon it.

Four basic elements of Studebaker superiority made possible these world records and will also make possible for every Commander owner long, faithful service and low maintenance costs:

DAVE HILGERS

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 26.—Dancing through life always has been a symbol of wasted opportunities, but Dave Hilgers and Fred Wilcox, two husky University of Wisconsin seniors, are dancing their way through college and finding it an unusually profitable occupation.

While their classmates are earning their board washing dishes or waiting on table, Hilgers and Wilcox are filling the roles of professional escorts.

The two students discovered this unique work by accident. They had filed their application for work at the university employment office.

One day a girl called who wanted to learn how to dance and she was willing to pay for it. Hilgers was called in and he delivered the goods so well that the girl asked him to take her to the next dance—for pay, of course.

The next day Wilcox was called in and a partnership formed. They established a rate of wages, and advertised.

'You bet it pays," says Wilcox. "You'd be surprised how many women there are who are willing to pay for the companionship of a decent young fellow.

"We get all sorts of requests. Dances predominate, but there are occasional theater invitations, and we often are invited to stay for dinner—all of which helps two struggling young students."

Glasgow is soon to have its first ice rink in 10 years.

50-YEAR SILENCE ENDED

Jilted 50 years ago, James Mason of Great Canfield, England, made a vow to isolate himself for the rest of his life in such a way that he would never look upon the face of a woman again and never see or speak to any man except his brother, Thomas. The brother, who is now 68, two years younger than James, vowed that he would devote his life to the hermit and guard him from intrusions. On two occasions recently Thomas relaxed his vow in order to permit James to be seen by a pension officer and a clergyman he sent for when James suffered a stroke.

Labor Invasion Resented.

The importation of Japanese and Chinese expert tobacco workers into the Philippines has started a lively agitation to halt the invasion of foreign labor. Those wha champion the move, however, believe that with such workers in the islands "Manila smokes will again come into their own." The importation of expert laborers, provided their stay is limited, is defended on the ground that it will be a tremendous benefit

FIGHTING UNDER FIVE FLAGS

to Douglas De Younge Silver
As Told by Tracy Richardson

PART FIVE.

THE STORY SO FAR:

In preceding installments of this narrative Mr. Richardson described his experiences in the Mexican revolution against who had deposed Porfirio Diaz. When Madero was assassinated and Huerto became president, Richardson and Salazar, the general commanding the rebel army, switched their allegiance to the government. Their chief opponent was Pancho Villa who commanded the rebel forces. Villa, in the north of Mexico finally forced Salazar to quit, but just before he fled to the American side Salazar commissioned Richardson to rush to Mexico City with important messages to President Huerto.

Thrilling Days and Nights Near Vera Cruz.

After delivering Salazar's messages to President Huerta I loafed around Mexico City for a while until I woke up with a start one day and realized I was just about broke. I tried to raise funds by risking what little I had left on roulette but Lady Luck was a long way from sitting on my shoulder that day and I was cleaned out. There didn't seem much else to do but sign up with the nearest revolution, when we got word that the American forces landed at Vera Cruz.

In Mexico City at the American embassy they had two Maxim machine guns but no one except Captain Burnside, the military attache, knew anything about them and he was so busy with a million other things that he didn't have time to take charge of them. As soon as word reached the capital that the hated Americans had landed at Vera Cruz the war fever ran high. Americans stayed indoors. Crazy mobs of yelling Mexicans swayed through the streets, waving bottles, chanting La Paloma, and eddying around the American embassy.

Of course there were a great many Americans there for protection against the Mexicans outside who were all too willing to storm the place with one wild rush. Just when matters appeared most interesting I was asked to take charge of the machine guns and about three hundred Krag rifles. I distributed the guns—most of them to American newspaper men—and was about to give word to open fire on a crowd swooping up the front steps when federal soldiers suddenly appeared and drove the mob back. If the soldiers had been thirty seconds later I hate to think of the carnage due to be caused.

Tracy Travels Incognito.

The federals then took over the embassy. They were very courteous, asked us to please relinquish all our arms, and assured us that was the only way of avoiding serious trouble. Charge d' Affairs O'Shaugnessy was extremely diplomatic with them and told us to let them have their own way, which was all we could do anyhow. That night the charge d'affairs was given his papers and permitted with all his staff to board a train for Vera Cruz.

Nelson O'Shaugnessy, just before he left, tried to have me taken along with him but the Mexicans wouldn't permit it. They insisted that as I was not registered as a member of the embassy entourage, I could be granted no diplomatic privileges. They took great pains to point out that I had to stay in town but I could see through their game. Huerta had simply taken advantage of a chance to get me, and get me right.

Having nothing else to do, I went down to the station to see the embassy party off. No sooner had the train pulled out than an Englishman (I can't give his name because he's doing a thriving business in Mexico today) came up to me with the news that federal soldiers were parked all over the embassy ready to put me in jail as soon as I appeared back there. He had an automobile there at the station with him.

Being at a loss for a definite plan of action we got in his car, drove around Mexico City all that night and spent the next day hiding in a garage.

I was just about to begin a horse stealing raid to gather mounts for an open dash to Vera Cruz, when my English friend struck an idea. He brought me to another Englishman, a friend of his, who explained that he and his wife had passports for himself and his wife, and permission for them both to go to Vera Cruz. He was very anxious for his wife to get out of the danger zone but didn't feel that he could afford to leave his business interests in Mexico City. He greeted with acclaim the proposition that I use his name, passports, and in exchange offer protection to his wife.

The Englishman's wife and I soon started out. We boarded the train safely but once on I grabbed the very last seat so no one could get behind me. Then I wrapped a blanket around me, pulled my hat way down over my face and made believe I was asleep although I never felt less like it. I had two big pistols on me and lots of ammunition and decided, in case of trouble, to sell my life at as high a price as possible in case any prowling greaser spotted me. Luckily, none did.

The next day at noon our train came to "The Gap" where the expert Mexicans had ripped up three miles of track when they evacuated Vera Cruz after the Americans had stormed and captured the town. I saw that the British lady was placed in the safekeeping of some people who would take care of her. Then I started to hike across "The Gap," eager to reach American territory just as quickly as possible. I was burned pretty brown but at the same time I modestly conceded that I didn't look like a Mexican.

Scouting by Air.

All my fatuous imaginings were in vain. As I approached an American naval officer in command at the American end of The Gap, he deigned to glance at me briefly, then he turned to one of his men.

"This greaser looks like he may assay about three points higher than a Moron," he said, "Let's see if he can help us out."

Then he shot some high grade Annapolis Spanish at me. I might have understood ancient Hindu about as well, so I looked at him and laughed.

"Don't say it with flowery Spanish," I urged him, "Try me on English. It will be easier on your vocal chords and my ears."

Then we went into satisfactory conference. He was trying to make arrangements with the Mexican guards for an exchange of mail so we crossed The Gap to the Mexican outpost, holding up a big white towel for a truce banner. We completed the mail exchange, strolled back across No Man's Land, got on board another waiting train and before long were in Vera Cruz.

General Funston had, in the meantime, arrived from Galveston with transports and troops and was in command of the entire city of Vera Cruz. Marines, M. P.'s and sailors were in charge all over the town. I ran into Captain Burnside and he asked me if I wanted to serve in the intelligence department as a scout. Needless to say, I was eager to get mixed up in the forthcoming hostilities so accepted the offer. One of my first duties was at the direct request of General Funston.

There had been many conflicting reports regarding Mexicans constructing gun emplacements outside the city and headquarters was anxious to establish the veracity of the rumors. So about 15 minutes after I walked into headquarters they ordered me aloft in a naval seaplane, one of the first airplane scouting trips ever made into the interior.

My pilot afterwards became one of the band of American aviators who were the first to hop across the Atlantic in their seaplanes. He had a good time with me. After some zigzagging around the town we found the artillery emplacements and the trail, plain as a white ribbon on the floor, that the army hadn't been able to find after days of scouting over the ground.

When that flight was over if anyone had told me that three years later I would be flying my own bus in the British navy, scouting over the North Sea, I would have told him he was cuckoo. Incidentally today you couldn't load all the money in the world on trucks and dump in my back yard if I had to take a flight in the crazy crate I rode in Mexico to even up for it.

The maps of the country were accurate enough as far as the coastline went, but could not be counted on as guides to the interior. Information was badly needed concerning roads and rivers leading north, west and south. I undertook to do this work and so had to spend days and nights out alone in the bush armed only with a knife and pistol. It was as hot as the hammers of Hades and the wood ticks, of which the Mexican variety is the world's prize nuisance with the brakes off, picked me out as a special target.

A Swift and Silent Meal.

I worked as much as possible at night but sometimes had to prowl around during the daytime to check up on my bearings. Mexican soldiers were scattered all over the bush and were laying for map-making scouts such as myself. At one time, when my rations ran out I was so fiendishly hungry that I walked right up to the front of an adobe house and begged a woman, who seemed to be in charge, for a bite to eat.

She had trouble in understanding me, and as I didn't want to linger out in front in full view of all and sundry I pushed right through the door and carried on the conversation under shelter. Just then my intended hostess made a frenzied gesture of silence and whispered that there were eight federal soldiers sleeping in the back room. I told her I didn't care if there were 80, what I wanted was a meal, and that if she would fetch it in a hurry I would take it in the front room and eat quietly. I tiptoed away and in a few minutes she came back with tortillas, beans and meat. She whispered that the only reason she was doing it was that she was angry with the Mexicans for camping out at her rancho for two weeks instead of only overnight as they had originally specified.

Eating in a roving army over a period of months on the Mexican battlefields isn't very conducive to silent table maneuvers but I knew if I made much commotion in the house the enemy would be up and after me. So with a great deal of self control I used the muffler, but packed away mucho meal nevertheless. When I had finished in about nine minutes, I eased myself out the front door, thanked my hostess profusely, and struck out for the wilds again.

Later that same day in trying to get to a particular vantage spot I found out a hurried trip across an open space was necessary. I made careful observations and then dashed for a large tree in the center of the opening. Just as I reached the tree, rifle fire crackled nearby.

There was nothing to do but wait until somebody showed himself but although I lay there for some time there was no further sign of activity. It was beginning to get on my nerves. After about 10 minutes I cautiously peered around the corner of the tree—and saw no one. Then I heard rifle fire again, more distant this time. Curiosity engendering boldness I decided to definitely find out what all the shooting was about, so crept carefully to a group of trees a hundred yards away.

Walking some distance from the clearing I soon saw a Mexican farmer clearing off brush. Much of it was cane or bamboo and he was burning some of it. As it burned, the joints would swell and explode with a sound startlingly like a rifle shot. Taking it all together this bush life was too exciting for anyone to thoroughly enjoy. Half the time I was scared to death and the other half I was ashamed of myself for being that way.

Dodging Death in Thorn Bush.

On this particular trip I spent four or more days scouting and then reported back to Funston. He wanted to know the condition of the narrow gauge railroad running to Jalapa, having had unverified reports saying that part of the road had been torn up. The general asked me to get the information as soon as possible and then return by way of the beach to see where it would be possible to land troops.

I carried papers which let me get through the lines any place at any time so I went to El Tejar to the marine outpost and then at night slipped through the lines. It was impossible to follow the railroad for very far as the Mexicans had an outpost a few miles from the Americans. There was nothing for me to do but start through the bordering swamps and make for the hills several miles away. It was a tough, slow job.

For five days I made my way up that track, always in the bush off to one side, passing many menacing groups of Mexican soldiers, but getting along very nicely. I had secured accurate information as to the condition of the rail line, measuring the exact distance where the line was torn up, and had observed the condition of the various bridges. At night I used to sneak down to the water beneath the different bridges and measure the depth of the water in case the bridges should be destroyed and the Americans wanted to replace them.

Finally, after I had secured all the information required, I turned around and started back. I had been coming back about a day when I ran squarely into a detachment of Mexican soldiers. I spotted them first but before I could duck out of sight they saw me. I tarried no longer but broke into a run that would have made Paddock look like a paralytic ambling up to the judge to receive the death sentence.

They were mounted so I had the advantage; I ducked and dodged through the bush as best I was able and finally crawled into an especially thick growth of thorn bush. The Mexicans beat up the vicinity in all directions for hours while I lay there in that thorn patch hot, thirsty, and scared to death, not daring to move—and every time I wiggled a fraction of an inch I coerced a few thorns into various vulnerable anatomical sections.

I stayed there all the rest of the day and until well after dark, when I crawled out, spent an hour picking thorns loose. Then I made tracks as fast as possible for the American lines. The next night I knew I was close to the marine outpost of El Tejar and I remember it was raining so hard you couldn't see any thing 10 feet away. Being leery of approaching the camp by the same swamp route I left by I decided to go directly down the railway past the Mexican outpost.

Luckily for me the rain had driven them to cover; they were quartered in a section house and had all evidently taken refuge on the porch. I drifted past them and figured my own troubles were about over. Knowing about where the marine sentries were I approached them whistling, to show them I was only a good natured American glad to get home. This, I fondly imagined, would prevent any untimely fireworks.

Tracy Steals the Mexican Navy.

I also used my flashlight to give the marines plenty of warning. Suddenly without a word or greeting, a rifle roared just ahead of me. The same split fraction of a second the shot crashed out I had stepped between two cross ties and stumbled forward. Even in the tropical rain I felt my hat being lifted right off my head. I let out a howl that made the rifle shot sound like a cap pistol and which surely must have aroused the Mexican outpost. Anyway, I made my own side understand I was a friend who sought immediate shelter. The marines then barked for me to come on in and not standout there trying to raise the dead.

As soon as I identified myself and established friendly relations I went back for my hat. There was a nice, neat, little bullet hole in it where that over-excited sentry's bullet had gone through. If I hadn't stumbled in the hair breadth second before that agitated marine squeezed his trigger, a tombstone engraver along with a corps of cemetery assistants would have had another little job of work.

The next thing on the program was a marine venture—a little out of my regular line but welcome nevertheless. We were told that the Mexicans were gathering a lot of boats at Alvardo, south of Vera Cruz somewhere near the narrow guage railroad. Along with a Cuban who was working with the American forces I was ordered to Alvarado to find out how many boats the enemy had, what condition they were in and what they were planning to do with them. If necessary, we were told to destroy them.

The day after leaving camp we struck the town, sneaked down to the beach and as the garrison detailed to guard the boats seemed to be absent, we loitered around the little bayou in which the boats were kept, taking as many notes as possible. After a half hour, during which time nobody showed up, the Cuban and I decided to run off with the Mexican navy and bring it into Vera Cruz.

Accordingly we hitched them all up together in a line, and after starting up a big launch at the head, moved out of the basin aiming for the open sea about a half mile ahead. The channel was narrow but well buoyed so I had no difficulty keeping in safe water. When we got out a ways, however, the water widened considerably until we could see the ocean ahead; then the water got bumpy from the cross chop and whoever had layed out the buoys seemed to have fotgotten to indicate a safe passage to the deep water.

There was about a thousand yards of shoals to be negotiated but almost all the space in front of us was covered with breakers. Big ones, too, because there was a stiff breeze kicking 'em up from the gulf. There was nothing to do but plough right ahead, trusting to luck that we could get through. We couldn't turn back because we had no safe place to return to. Anyway, just when I found there were no buoys, a few bullets began to whistle overhead, evidently from the detail in charge of the boats who had probably come back from a saloon and discovered their loss.

Robbing the Sharks.

There was a pretty prospect, and a unique one, too. Breakers in front and bullets behind. Sharks also beneath—that whole part of the gulf swarms with them. The only dimension we couldn't be attacked from was the air. I prayed in about four different languages and steered off to the left for what I though was an open spot through the roaring tumblers.

It proved to be safe and we got through all right to deep water beyond but then, instead of keeping right on going for a mile or so until I could be sure of avoiding breakers on a trip up the coast, I turned left right away. Things went all right for about an hour but then we hit more trouble. This time a wide shoal that I found myself trapped in before I could swerve to the right and safety. One big comber just slapped us broadside and carried our launch and its tow a couple of hundred yards in towards the beach. It's a wonder we didn't upset then and there.

The engine was swamped and died—and so did the Cuban—nearly.

We couldn't do anything but hold on tight and hope that when we were finally upset it would be in water too shallow for the sharks to come on and do their stuff. A hungry shark will venture just so far in shallows and then curve away for deeper water. We saw a lot of menacing fins just cutting the surface when we first started to wash in but as we neared the beach they cleared out.

Pretty soon, when we got within 50 yards of the shore, it was shallow enough to jump out and wade it, which we did in a hurry. A few minutes later all the boats were up on the beach, and as the enemy didn't seem to be around, not having been able to cross the entrance of the bayou five or six miles back, we used axes and wrecked every boat there, so they couldn't be used as transports by the Mexicans.

We got back safely and reported what we had done, receiving rather a hollow commendation in view of the fact that we had failed to pull a big coup so successfully started. What they would have done with those boats if we had brought them in, I don't know. The Americans had plenty of their own, and I only ran away with the Mexicans' because it would have made a spectacular entrance into the Vera Cruz harbor.

By this time there were dozens of newspaper men around the town all looking for excitement. If they couldn't find it, they were busy cooking something up. The late Richard Harding Davis was among them and thought he would like to make a trip to the Mexican lines, to get a slant on their side of things. Against advice he made the trip, was taken prisoner, held for a few days under trying circumstances but was finally released. When he returned to the American lines he was more than willing to stay there. Richard Harding Davis was just another gringo to the Mexicans.

By the first of July everybody was certain there would be no formal war. I waited until the fourth, when the Americans fired off so many cannons that the poor greasers thought the whole American army and navy was about to start an attack, and then took the next boat out for Galveston. On board ship, somebody broke into my cabin and stole every cent I had with me so I had to borrow money at Galveston to reach El Paso where I had a financial cache.

Back at my old headquarters we got word that the European war had just started so I saw the French consul and made arrangements to join the Foreign legion. I didn't go through with this scheme though, but went to Canada and joined the Princess Pats instead. That's another story, however, and will be dealt with in later chapters.

The Heir And The Heiress

BY GEORGE ADE.

ONCE upon a Time there was a Working Horse who used to lie awake Nights framing up Schemes to Corral more Collateral to leave to the Olive Branches.

They may have looked like Jimpson Weeds to the rest of the World but to Pa and Ma they were A-1 Olive Branches.

Pa was a self-made Propposition-Sole-Leather, Hand-stitched and Four-Ply, with Rivets around the Edge.

His Business Career had been one long Rassle with Adverse Circumstances. Nothing was ever handed to him on a Sheffield Tray with Parsley around it. The World owed him a Living, but in order to collect it he had to conduct his Arguments with a piece of Lead-Pipe.

He was out for the Kale, if you know what that means. He was collecting Hebrew Diplomas and he had special Liking for the light-colored Variety with a large C in the Corner.

He was going to provide for his Family, regardless of what happened to other Families.

He had a little Office back of the Bank and made a Specialty of helping those overtaken by Trouble. Any one in Financial Straits who went into the Back Office to arrange for a Loan was expected to open Negotiations by removing the Right Eye and laying it on the Table.

The Life After Death.

Pa had Mormon Whiskers and a Mackerel Eye and wore a Shawl instead of an Overcoat and kept a little Bag of Peppermint Drops in his Tail-Pocket and walked Pussy-Foot and took more Stock in Isaiah than he did in the Sermon on the Mount.

"A couple of heirs can spend much money."

The above is merely a Rough Outline, but it will help you to understand why his Wife preceded him to the Other Shore.

She was a Good Woman who never formed the Matinee Habit and up to the Day of her Death she could put her Hand on her Heart and truly say that she had not wasted any Money on Jewelry and Cut Flowers.

But she could have written a large Book on how it feels to get up in the Morning and stir a little Oatmeal.

Pa and Ma saved and skimped and held out and trimmed and manoeuvered for years.

They had been brought up in the School of Hard Knocks, but they wanted Bertrand and Isabel to go through Life on Ball Bearings.

Pa finally went to his Reward, according to the Local Papers, and then it came out that Bertrand and Isabel had $400,000 each, which was more than Pa had ever turned in to the Assessor.

These two Children had been sheltered from the Great World, although never stinted in the matter of Sassafras Tea or the Privilege of reading Books written by Josephus and others.

As soon as he came into his Inheritance, Bertrand looked about in a startled Manner and then bought himself a Plush Hat and began to cultivate Pimples.

A few Days later he might have been seen riding in a Demonstrating Car with a Salesman who wore Goggles and who told him that all the Swell Guys were putting in Orders for the $6,200 Type with the jeweled Mud-Gards. And next Morning the Sexton observed that Father, by turning over in the Grave, had somewhat loosened the fresh Earth.

Bertrand had Modern Plumbing put into the Old House and built a Porte Cochere on the Side and moved a lot of Red Velvet Furniture into the Parlor. Some said that the Moaning Sound heard at Night was only the Wind in the Evergreens, but others allowed that it was the returned Spirit of the Loan Agent checking over the Expenses.

Isabel stopped wearing Things that scratched her and began ordering from a Catalokue, because the Local Dealers didn't carry anything but Common Stuff. Also she began to Entertain, and the first time she served Hot-House Asparagus in January, the House rocked on its Foundation.

In the meantime, Isabel had got so far along that she could tell by the Feel whether the Goods were real or only Mercerized, and each Setting Sun saw a new Crimp in the Bank Account.

All Statisticians agree that a couple of Heirs can spend Much Money if they do not work at anything else. Especially when every Pearl in the Rope represents a Chattel Mortgage and a fancy Weskit is a stand-off for One Month's Rent of a good piece of Town Property.

Bertrand married a tall Blonde who knew that Columbus discovered America and which kind of Massage Cream to buy, and let it go at that.

They went abroad and began to Ritz themselves. Every time Madam walked into one of those places marked "English Spoken while you Wait"—Zing! The Letter of Credit resembled a piece of Apple Pie just after the willing Farm Hand has taken a Hack at it.

Blood Is Thicker than the Skull.

Isabel hastened to make an Alliance with one of the oldest and toniest Families west of Bucyrus and north of Evansville. She succeeded in capturing an awful Swell Boy who wore an Outside Pocket on his Dress Coat and made a grand Salad Dressing (merely rubbing the Bowl with a Sprig of Garlic) and was otherwise qualified to maintain Social Leadership all the way from the Round House up to the Hub and Spoke Factory on the Hill.

Isabel's Husband built a House near the Country club so as to get the Automobile Trade, coming and going. Some of the Best People would drop in and show the Ice-Box how to take a Joke.

Late at Night, when a Hush fell upon the $28,000 Bungalow, the Deep Quiet signifed that some had Passed away and others had locked Horns at Bridge-10 Cents a Point.

Even Lake Superior would go dry if tapped at two different Points by Drain Pipes of Sufficient Diameter.

After Bertrand returned from Europe with his Paintings and a Table d'Hote Vocabulary, he and Brother-in-Law began to compare Mortgages. By consulting the Road-Map they discovered that the Primrose Path would lead them over a high Precipice into a Stone Quarry, so they decided to take a Short Cut at Right Angles and head for the Millionaire Colony.

The day they started for New York City with a coil of strong rope, their purpose being to tie Kuhn, Loeb Co., hand and foot, it is said that a long vertical crack appeared in one of the most expensive monuments in Springvale cemetery, as if some one underneath had been trying to break out and head off something.

In preserving the form of a narrative it becomes necessary to add that Bertrand is now the obliging night clerk at a hotel in Louisville, with a maximum rate of $1.50, single and a shower bath.

Brother-in-law is assistant treasurer at Temple of Amusement which guarantees all the latest and best films.

What become of the bundle?

Listen.

When Pa locked up his desk and started for the Pearly Gates, he left behind in the office an humble man Friday, who took care of the books and did the collecting.

This understrapper was a model citizen of 35, who wore a plain string tie, drank malted milk and was slightly troubled with bronchitis.

When the children began throwing at the birds, he bought himself a net and got busy.

Any time anybody wanted to plaster a mortgage on a desirable corner he was there with a fountain pen and a notary.

It nearly broke his back to carry all the property, but he kept buying it in and then hung over his desk until all hours of the night figuring how he could meet the payments.

He wore the same overcoat for nine years and his wife never saw one of these hats with magoobulum and bazoosh flounced all over it unless she went down town and looked through a window.

One day a friend remonstrated with the slave.

"Why are you wearing yourself to a shadow and getting old before your time?" he asked. "What shall it avail a man if he is principal depositor at a bank when it comes to riding behind horses that wear plumes?"

"I will tell you," replied the slave. "I have a boy named Bertrand and a little girl named Isabel and my wife and I have decided that it is our duty to leave them well-fixed."

Pays for Slaying

Three dollars in cash and two diamond rings is the price which police say Alvin Greenwaldt, of Mt. Horeb, Wis., paid for the slaying of his wife, Mrs. Emma Greenwaldt, 36, both shown above. Greenwaldt and Arthur Paetzold, both said to have confessed, Paetzold to the actual killing, are held in the Waukesha, Wis., jail. Mrs. Greenwaldt was choked to death on an auto ride with her husband and Paetzold. Insurance carried by Mrs. Greenwaldt is said to be the motive.

Infant Care

No mother in this enlightened age would give her baby something she did not know was perfectly harmless and reliable, especially when a few drops of plain Castoria will right a baby's stomach and end almost any little ill throughout the system. Fretfulness and fever, too; it seems no time until everything is serene.

That's the beauty of Castoria; its gentle influence seems just what is needed. It does all that castor oil might accomplish, and without shock to the system. Without the evil taste, Castoria is delicious! Your own tongue will tell you why "Children Cry for It." Being purely vegetable, you can give it as often as there's the least sign of colic; constipation; diarrhea. Or whenever there's need to aid sound, natural sleep.

Only one word of warning: the above is true of genuine Castoria.* Fletcher's is the original. Other preparations may or may not be as pure, as free from a single doubtful drug. Physicians tell parents to get Fletcher's Castoria, and no child of this writer's is going to test any other kind. I'll save a dime some other way.

*SPECIAL NOTE: With every bottle of genuine Fletcher's Castoria is wrapped a book on "Care and Feeding of Babies" worth its weight in gold to every mother or prospective mother.

Fat Is Now A Folly

Look about you—note how slenderness prevails. Excess fat is the exception now. You must realize that some great factor has helped to bring this change.

That factor is embodied in Marmola prescription tablets. It is a substance which, in the body, turns food into fuel and energy rather than into fat. Marmola supplies it to those who have too little.

Medical science discovered this factor over two decades ago. For over 20 years people have used it in Marmola and told others the results. Millions of boxes have been employed in fighting excess fat. Now almost everybody has slender friends who can tell what Marmola did.

No abnormal exercise or diet is required, though moderation aids results. Simply take four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. Then cease, unless you start to gain again.

Try Marmola, in justice to yourself. Watch its results in new beauty, new health and vitality. You cannot afford to stay fat when natural reduction has become so easy. The complete formula is stated in every box, also the reasons for results, to banish any fear of harm. Order now, before you forget it, and you will always be glad that you read this.

Marmola prescription tablets are sold by all druggists at $1 per box. If your druggist is out, he will get them at once from his jobber.

Paish and His Prediction

SIR GEORGE PAISH, a noted British economist, has sounded another warning, a world warning. Sir George Paish has sounded more warnings than any Jewish economists now on the stage of action. His latest is that the United States ought to spend $1,000,000,000 or better, $2,000,000,000, out of its annual income of $9,000,000,000 in foreign countries, to permit these countries to purchase American produce in return and to enable them to meet their obligations to the United States for the capital supplied them since the World war.

Sir George lets it be known that unless the American people spend one billion or two billion dollars out of its annual income of nine billion dollars in foreign countries, a world credit crisis is coming, and the United States will be the greatest sufferer. Sir George was a great economist before the coming of the World war. He was forever sounding warnings.

This is where the crisis will hit first, according to Sir George, already the farming industry is meeting its liabilities. Certainly any further contraction in the demand for foodstuffs accompanied by still lower prices for agricultural products, would have disastrous consequences."

This is a hint to the American growers of things that Economist Paish believes in high priced American wheat, corn and cotton. Isn't it true that the larger the surplus of American produce the lower the price in the markets of the world.

Jack Has His Revenge

GOVERNOR JACK WALTON of Oklahoma was impeached and ousted. Now certain lawmakers of Oklahoma have called an extra session of the lower house of the legislature to investigate the administration of Governor Henry S. Johnston. Lawmakers who sent Jack to trial and after trial to execution, enacted a statute making it possible as well as legal for a certain number of legislators to call a special session in an emergency.

Well, a certain number of legislators have discovered an emergency and they have called a session. They say that their governor is a misfit; they say that he is dominated by a woman, his private secretary; they say that he is irresponsible and indifferent; they say that he does not play the game according to Hoyle. There are social leaders in Oklahoma. They have social leaders everywhere.

Social leaders are not fond of Johnston. They arranged a great inaugural ball in his honor. He attended decked out in a brown business suit, loud socks, tan shoes and a glaring or flaring red necktie. They insist privately that this afforded or furnished sufficient grounds for the impeachment and ousting from office of any man who had been pushed in the governor's chair by Vox Populi.

Think of a governor at an inaugural ball sporting a red necktie with a rich coloring that would have paralyzed a race track tout. It was damnable. "Forgive!" Not on your life. "Forget!" Never while time shall last.

Millions For Improvement

DALLAS is a progressive Texas city and the people of Dallas are going to spend $22,000,000 for city improvements in the coming years. Dallas has just finished a $8,000,000 dam and reservoir to guard against a water famine in the years to come. This is the fourth large investment it has made in water supply equipment and conservation equipment since the year 1900.

Fort Worth is on the way. Millions are to be expended for the construction of its third lake or reservoir and the project covers the conservation of flood water and the reclamation of thousands of acres of lands to be made valuable by engineering skill and the money of taxpayers.

Verdict of a Humorist

WILL ROGERS is a humorist, he is a showman, he is a writer, he is a vaudeville performer, he is a maker of moving pictures. He has returned his verdict.

"Mussolini is the greatest, the ablest, the wisest and the most forceful leader today of all men who walk the stage of action."

Yes, but the Reds will get him yet.

Speaking of Work Days

PRESIDENT WILLIAM GREEN of the American Federation of Labor, declared in a recent lecture, universal establishment in industry of the five-day work day week is a goal which the Federation is determined to reach as being practical, economically sound and socially necessary.

Mems Foster of the Houston Press has a platform that is more enticing: Two hours for labor and six hours for golf. In the not remote past Mems labored in his writing den guided by another schedule of work hours. In those trying times his maximum was 18 hours and his minimum 14. He fell for golf and now he is happy.

Letters From A Wichitan On Broadway

By Frank Ernest Nicholson

The first part of this story happened some 12 years ago. The setting was originally in a class room of the Wichita Falls high school. The central character is one Leslie Turner, supported by a cast including a teacher (a stickler for deportment), and the writer. A large number of students were here and there bent over books.

Everything was very quiet in the class room; each pupil busy with his or her own thoughts and the teacher busy with her report cards. Suddenly the quietness was shattered by a snicker that proved rather devastating to the teacher's efforts for discipline. The snicker was both disparate and quite out of place in a class room; class rooms being what they are. It was the writer who snickered.

The teacher soon found the cause of this disreputable behavior to be a cartoon of herself—gloriously illustrated by Leslie Turner. The drawing depicted certain of the lady's facial features that were—well, unusual, to say the least. She lost no time dispatching the two of us with a note to the principal. But Les and I didn't go to the principal. Instead, we went to the basement and took another look at the cartoon he had drawn, and talked of art.

Leslie and I talked of art again yesterday. He is living in Westport—a picturesque suburb of New York, a play-ground and work shop of numerous well-known artists. His home sets back from the street in a clump of cypress trees. It is a quaint little house; over a hundred years old, painted white and has pale green shutters and trellises. From the street a gravel walk winds through a net work of vines and shrubs to the front door.

Inside, before an old Dutch fireplace—the stones of which were brought to this country over a century ago by the ancestors of someone or other, Leslie told me of the progress he's made in art since that eventful day of his first cartoon.

Today, Leslie Turner actually holds a high place in the field of illustrating. He has regular assignments to illustrate stories for the Saturday Evening Post, Ladies Home Journal, and other leading periodicals.

His rise to success has been most unusual in that to this day Leslie Turner has never attended an art school. A contemporary of his told me Leslie has accomplished more during the last three years than is usually accomplished in this profession in 15 years. There is a great deal of individuality in his work and he has that rare ability of drawing characters who are whimsically humorous—if you know what I mean. If you don't, take a look at his illustrations in the Post of Henry A. Shute's "Plupy" stories. During his spare time Leslie draws pictures for the amusement of his two charming little children.

In his collection of drawings I saw nothing that exactly resembled the aforementioned cartoon, but we did talk of it—and where it had led him, and I do hope that teacher sees this letter.

Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Martin, Mildred and Jack, were recent visitors in Gotham, arriving from Wichita Falls via Chicago. The other night Loren Stone and I met them at the McAlpin hotel—it was good to see someone from Wichita Falls.

Mildred, Jack, Loren and I left the hotel for an impromptu theater party at the Fulton. Reaching the street we found it raining unmercifully. Now, looking for a vacant taxi in New York when it is raining is like looking for a needle in the proverbial haystack—even though Manhattan is said to have 25,000 taxicabs. Well, time passed and so did each of those 25,000 taxis before we found one that was empty. The McAlpin isn't far from the Fulton in distance, but in the before-theater rush, it's a long way in time. We missed the first act altogether, but during the traffic tie-ups there was no lack of entertainment, what with so much to talk about. Anyhow, Mildred and Jack know now why people in New York are late to the theater—especially when it rains.

Am attending a ball given by the Texas club of New York at the Plaza hotel. The Texas club is quite prominent here socially, and the Plaza is quite the Ritz—all of which means that I'll have a lot of news to tell you next Sunday.

Governors I Have Known

—By—
Hugh Nugent Fitzgerald

WRITTEN EXCLUSIVELY FOR THE WICHITA FALLS RECORD NEWS

THIS IS the story of a cub reporter, who traveled from the news room of a daily newspaper to the high office of governor of Texas. William P. Hobby was a cub reporter on the staff of the Houston Post when the writer first crossed his path and formed his acquaintance. He is a native Texan, a son of the piny woods section of the commonwealth, of southern ancestry, as his forebears fought in all the wars from that of American Independence to the great battles for the Southern Confederacy and the flag which went down in defeat at Appomattox Courthouse. He was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth. He was not rocked in a golden cradle. He is a product of the public schools and higher institutions of education of Texas.

In his early youth he resolved to be a newspaper writer,—a son of the fourth estate. In his early youth he caught the eye and won the friendship of the late Col. R. M. Johnston, for forty years a notable figure in the Texas newspaper world and in the state and national councils of the democratic party. As has been said he began a cub reporter. He climbed the rounds of the ladder under the tuelage or training of Colonel Johnston. He filled every desk in the editorial department of the Post until he became managing editor. He must have filled the positions handed to him most acceptably, for Colonel Johnston was a glutton for work and he expected the members of his staff to fill their assignments to the very letter of instruction.

HOBBY never held a public office until he aspired to that of lieutenant governor of his native state. He announced early in the campaign of 1914. Col. Thomas H. Ball became the primary contender for the pros. James E. Ferguson became the winning contender for all democrats who were arrayed against Colonel Ball. Colonel Johnston and the newspaper tribe of Texas, with few exceptions, backed Hobby to a successful finish. He had opposition. A leading pro state senator from North Texas was his most promising rival for the nomination. Johnston and Ferguson were in hostile camps, but the followers of Johnston and many of the followers of Ferguson gave their support to Hobby.

It is a matter of history that the Ferguson-Hobby democratic ticket was swept into office. It is a matter of history that as lieutenant governor and presiding officer of the senate, Hobby, never noisy and never spectacular, made an ideal ruler or handler of the gavel. Fairness and dignity marked his career in the chair and non-partisanship as his committee assignments from start to finish in the years he presided over the upper house of the legislature. Ferguson and Hobby were renominated and re-elected in 1916. A bitter campaign was made by the pros in the democratic camp to defeat Ferguson for renomination. He triumphed over an East Texas banker whose campaign was managed by Sterling P. Strong, long the head of the anti-Saloon league and a fighter for prohibition from his early boyhood. Then came, in a very few months, the political upheaval which rocked Texas as an earthquake rocks the mountains above and the valleys below in volcanic lands.

HOBBY stepped into the office of Governor. A cub reporter in his youth had become the chief executive of one of the most powerful and historic American commonwealths. It was a position that would have tested the patience of a saint. Hobby is not a saint. Saints are not manufactured in newspaper offices or schools of experience. He never lost his poise. He never lost his temper. He avoided the snags. He carried on. Ferguson had served six or seven months of his second term. He was on the outside of the breast works. He was bitter. He had been dragged or thrown from Alpine heights into the valley below. Human nature is human nature. It hasn't changed since Adam and Eve were driven out of the Garden by the angel with the flaming sword.

There were powder magazines everywhere in the democratic camp. And the World war was at its height. Women demanded the ballot. They were thoroughly organized in Texas. As a compromise or starter, they clamored for the legal right to cast ballots in primary elections although it required an amendment to the constitution to make them full fledged citizens legally entitled to go to the polling places on general election day and throw their votes to the candidates of their choice. As governor, Hobby agreed to the proposal and the legislature gave the women the primary ballot for the first time in the history of the commonwealth.

He served out the unexpired term of Ferguson. Long before its finish he had announced as a candidate for election as governor. He was ambitious and his friends were ambitious that he should fill the office by the votes of the people—first as the primary choice of the party and second as winner on general election day. Ferguson had not been idle. He had been disqualified to serve the people in any state office by the ouster judgment of the high court of impeachment. Regardless of this he announced as a candidate against Hobby and his name appeared on the official ballot for the primary contest. It was a campaign remarkable for its vituperation, its historical frenzy, its criminations and recriminations and the wild absurd charges and allegations that were hurled from every stump in Texas, against Hobby. Ferguson, the most successful of crashers in his earlier campaigns, went down in defeat.

Hobby won the nomination two to one, in the heaviest vote ever castup to that time. Woman had the primary ballot. She used it. According to the political wiseacres of the period, four-fifths of the women of Texas who participated in the primary election gave their ballots to the candidate who had begun his career as a cub reporter on the banks of Buffalo bayou. Hobby was elected in November of the same year. He was inaugurated as a governor named by the people as their choice for the highest honor in their gift. His political opponents, when he succeeded Ferguson as governor, declared him to be an accident—a man who would never be called to the first place or highest office of the commonwealth by a majority of voters. His political opponents were mistaken. He was called by a majority most sweeping by the democratic men and women of his native state.

WILLIAM PETTUS HOBBY is not a flamboyant personage. He is not an inflammable orator. He hasn't many of the qualities of an eloquent demagogue. There are not many demogogues trained in the school of journalism. Products of this school are not given to wild outbursts of speech nor do many of them fall for the vagaries of fallacies of the hour. Their training is all against it. And then again Hobby had been thoroughly drilled by a veteran journalist who began life a printer and a cub reporter, who believed that silence is golden, that quick thinking and common sense methods are the methods which carry a man to lasting success, and win for the seeker a place in the sun.

Hobby had not been classed as a prohibitionist. War-time emergencies called for war-time legislation. Saloons were practically closed in Texas in the early days of the first regular term of office of this erstwhile cub reporter. He signed the bills. There were many training camps of soldiers in Texas. Governors and lawmakers the country over concluded that whisky and gun powder did not mix, and that the young rifle bearers of America would be safer on the water wagon than on the beer wagon. Decisive action followed. Then came the 18th amendment. A Texas legislature ratified the amendment.

Then prohibition was voted into the constitution of Texas and later along the 19th amendment made the women of Texas full fledged citizens and full partners with the men in the shaping of governmental affairs.

These were not volcanic shocks. They were revolutions. They ushered in a new civilization after kicking out a civilization that had served its time in the ever onward march of progress. Many wise laws were enacted while Hobby had the reins of government.

To enumerate these would be like a list of principal forward-looking legislation in Texas for two decades.

Hobby cut the state tax rate from the limit of 35 cents to 23 cents—the first time it had been reduced since the Waters-Pierce judgment filled state coffers during Campbell's term.

Hobby gave to the school children of Texas free textbooks, and provided rural aid for the schools where tax values were low. His administration struck a body blow at illiteracy by enacting the Texas compulsory education law.

Two devastating drouth years came in succession, bringing West Texas to its knees. The youthful governor called upon the legislature for action, and provided a revolving fund, by which he financed buying the seed and the feed which made the planting of the 1919 crop possible. These loans were largely repaid.

* * *

GOVERNOR HOBBY, seeing the unhealthy spread of land tenantry in Texas and its adverse effect upon the state's citizenship, started a broad movement for home ownership and farm ownership which is still bearing fruit, and the democratic party of Texas officially adopted and commended his home-ownership plank as part of its platform.

The cub reporter-governor's decisive action saved the cotton farmers of Texas untold hundreds of thousands of dollars, for when the federal government threatened to bottle up the state's ports because of boll worm infestation of the fields, the governor quickly drafted a bill, called the legislature together and provided machinery for quarantining affected areas, for controlling and planting of cotton in danger zones, and providing funds to pay the farmer for cotton destroyed in protection of the state's greatest farm industry.

Hobby's war measure and co-operation with the federal government recruited 200,000 Texas boys for the World war, and besides, he built up a reserve national guard which was trained and ready for the call to service. Then when the boys came back, Hobby sponsored legislation which restored the ballot to them despite their lack of the state poll tax. He went further. He built for the gassed and tuberculosis-ravaged Texas warriors the magnificent tubercular hospital which later became the American Legion tubercular sanitarium at Legion, Texas.

The youthful governor not only carried the state through the critical war period and the trying year of reconstruction which followed the war; but he pioneered in constructive statesman-like legislation which brought Texas from far down the line among the states to rank near the top of the progressive commonwealths.

Governor Hobby, by sponsoring and approving the law creating the board of control, inaugurated the budget system into the state, and correlated the buying and business activities of the government and the administration of all eleemosynary institutions into the hands of one board of administrators.

Another act of his administration was to raise the scholastic apportionment for the schools to $14.50, the highest in the history of the state until the fall of 1927, when it was raised back to this level and for the first time touched $15.00.

When a longshoremen's strike bottled up the ports of the state, Governor Hobby sent troops to Galveston and took charge of the situation, opening the ports to commerce. He convened the legislature and caused to be passed the open port law whose purpose was to assure that channels of commerce would be kept open, regardless of action of any parties to any labor of wage controversy.

* * *

ALL THIS as the war tried the mettle of the people of Texas, and left in its wake a disrupted and trying period. Peace came, or at least partial peace of the people of the commonwealth, but in the camps of the opposition the beacon fires continued to blaze on the hill tops and as an aftermath of the World war the furies of the dark ages threatened to loosen their dogs of political war, and political warfare is just as savage and just as calamitous as the wars of sword and cannon and rifle.

Fried and foe, at least those who were his friends and foes in the years he held office, should be willing to concede that Hobby was governed by common sense methods and direct conservative action while he held the reins of governor. He was not malicious. He did not attempt to pay off old scores. He did not tear the bandages from wounds that were healing or attempt to expose or rather uncover the scars of yesteryear. Hobby had been a plodder, a steady and industrious plodder in his newspaper life before he was called to political office, but he ever kept his eye on the spot in the sun and ever looked forward to a successful career in his chosen field when the time came for him to retire to private life.

He was a delegate to the national convention, held in the city of San Francisco in 1920. He was a vice president of that convention. Many of his friends wished to place his name before the convention as a candidate for vice president. He stepped on the boomlet. He would not permit it. He voluntarily retired to private life with the verdict of those responsible for his career that he had striven at all times to be a worthy public servant and to give to the people a government based on fundamentals, ever conservative and ever economical in expenditure of the money of the taxpayers.

HE DID this when his friends insisted the road to the United States senate was wide-open for him.

In his journalistic career he published and edited a daily newspaper in the city of Waco. He sold his holdings in the capital of McLennan county and journeyed to Beaumont in the county of Jefferson, where the Enterprise, now a successful morning paper, fell into his hands as its guiding spirit. Beaumont became one of the rapidly-growing cities of Texas and the county of Jefferson one of the richest counties of the commonwealth. He embarked in the banking business as well as the insurance business and in the fields of finance and the fields of journalism he has a fixed place as a result of his well-directed labor.

He is the head of a morning and an afternoon newspaper in the city of Beaumont. He is the guiding spirit or chief executive of the Houston Post-Dispatch, where he began his career as a cub reporter more than 30 years ago. He is connected with the official families of a Beaumont bank, a Houston bank and an Austin bank and holds directorships in two or three successful insurance companies organized under the laws of the commonwealth of Texas. As mistress of the mansion for more than three years, Mrs. Hobby became widely known as a graceful and tactful hostess and ever a valuable aid to that husband who began life a cub reporter and in after years guided the destiny of a commonwealth whose mud sills were placed by Stephen F. Austin, whose freedom was won by the sword of Sam Houston and whose star of destiny some day will place the commonwealth at the head of the procession of all the states of the sisterhood of this greatest of all republics.

A clever politician is the wife of this former governor. She inherited it. Her father, Samuel Bronson Cooper, for many years was a widely known member of the lower house of congress. She spent her girlhood at the capital of the nation. After his retirement from congress the father, by appointment of a president of the United States, served as a member of the board of appeals of the New York customs house and there his daughter saw a great deal of the bright side of social life on the island of Manhattan.

HOBBY has taken a keen interest in political affairs since 1920. His newspapers supported the candidacy of Dan Moody for governor. There are men who say that he would like to return to the active political game, and like other governors or former governors, ambitious to wear senatorial togas and fell by the wayside, he would not mind being measured himself for the toga of an American senator. All this is hearsay. All this is gossip that blossomed and died in the haunts of men.

Hobby has his newspapers, his banking interests and his insurance interests. He is a cub reporter who won the place he coveted in the sun. Houston is his place of residence. Texas is his home. As for the correspondents, all the sons and daughters of the newspaper tribe, there were no latches on his doors while in high office and no flunkies to carry in the cards. A sketch and the face of Pat Neff in the picture will be the ninth contribution for the readers of this newspaper interested in governors who have had their day in the public affairs of Texas.

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK McCOY

Author of
"The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Dr. McCoy, who can be addressed in care of this paper.

WANDERING KIDNEYS.

Many patients come to me who have nearly worried themselves into the grave since some doctor told them that they had a floating, or "wandering" kidney. There is usually little harm produced by misplacement of either one of the kidneys, but many are undoubtedly frightened into believing it is a serious condition.

The kidneys are supposed to be located slightly under the ribs on each side of the back, but years of experience as a diagnostician have convinced me that the right kidney is naturally located two or three inches below the place assigned to it by the anatomists. Out of thousands of cases examined, I found this to be the rule, except with those who are abnormally fat, in which case both kidneys are pushed out of their normal positions.

Of course, if either of the kidneys descends as low as the hip bone, there may be a serious blocking of urine because of the connection with the ureter which carries the urine to the bladder. Surgical operations are usually advised for such cases and the kidney is anchored into what is considered its proper position. Such operations are wholly unnecessary if the patient is willing to devote some time and energy in systematically developing the muscles of the abdomen.

If either kidney is found to be very low, the proper treatment is to go to bed for two or three weeks, keeping the hips slightly elevated and, while in this position, doing all of the different exercises which will develop the abdominal muscles. It is a good plan to take a milk diet at this time, using as much as six quarts of milk daily. This will keep the intestines filled and, together with the fat that has accumulated around the intestines, will assist in raising the kidney into its normal position. I do not advise the milk diet for this purpose unless the patient is also willing to take the setting-up exercises.

If the floating kidney patient is unable to take the rest in bed, it is better to stay on a well balanced diet and get slower results from the exercising. Although a wandering kidney can be raised by any kind of "stuffing" diet taken while in bed, nothing is gained by this treatment unless the body is kept strong by the patient taking all of the exercises possible to do while lying in bed. If the fattening treatment alone is used, the patient will only be weak when he finally gets up, and the kidney will slowly slip back into its prolapsed position.

QUESTION: Mrs. E. W. writes: "At mealtime I eat enough so that my stomach always feels loaded but still I am very hungry. No matter how much I eat or how well I chew my food, I am still hungry."

ANSWER: Try eating an extra amount of green vegetables with your meals, and see if this does not overcome your feeling of hunger. If this does not satisfy you, it may be a sign you have tapeworms. Send for a special article on intestinal parasites.

QUESTION: Mrs. G. writes: "After eating, I have a very bad taste in my mouth as though I had burned it with some hot drink, or more of a bitter burning. Am nervous, and have dizzy spells."

ANSWER: Your trouble is caused by biliousness, and this is undoubtedly from overworking your liver because of using wrong foods. Take a fruit fast for a few days, and then begin on the weekly menus which I give every Saturday in this column.

QUESTION: Frank J. writes: "Is it a fact that snails are eaten in France—with such an abundant variety of "regular" foods to choose from?"

ANSWER: Yes. Snails are considered a great delicacy in France, Paris alone consuming over 80,000,000 a year. The snail industry in Europe dates back to 50 B. C. But when you think about it, the snail is a cleanly little animal, living on wholesome vegetable foods. While I do not recommend it, it would seem our American prejudice against snail eating is somewhat unjustified.

QUESTION: Mrs. K. B. asks: "Will boiling food ten minutes kill botulism if it is present? I use the cold pack method of canning green string beans, but am always a little afraid to use them afterwards, even though I boil them twenty minutes."

ANSWER: If string beans are canned properly there need be no fear of botulism, as these micro-organisms are destroyed if the beans are boiled or steamed long enough. When you open a can of string beans notice if they have a normal odor and if so re-boil them for about ten minutes. If any botulism exists, its effect will be nullified by this method and no harm will result.

QUESTION: Worried writes: "I have been advised to take —— injections to relieve me of a poison which seems to have affected my arm, the result of diseased teeth which have been removed. Please advise your opinion of this treatment."

ANSWER: I do not advise any "injection" treatment except the injection of warm water as an enema. Careful dieting will get rid of the results which have come from abscessed teeth, and I do not know of any injections which are so effective, with none of the grave dangers of developing other troubles. If you are poisoned with impurities, clean out the poison, but do not put in any more. That is simple enough advice, but you will find that it always works.

Famous Covered Bridge Condemned

Old Kentucky Bridge of Civil War Fame.

NICHOLASVILLE, Ky., Nov. 26.—Historic old Camp Nelson bridge, one of the most interesting wooden spans in the United States, has been condemned by highway authorities as unsafe and will be maintained hereafter purely because of its historical associations.

Locally, it is known as the Wernwag bridge. It was built in 1838 by A. L. Wernwag, a pioneer bridge contractor.

It spans the Kentucky river near the Palisades, and is 225 feet in length.

An unusual feature of its construction is that not a single ounce of metal is used in it. It is pinned together by the oak pins used by the original builder nearly 90 years ago. It is said to be the longest single-span cantilever bridge in the world.

When the Civil war started, it was the only bridge crossing the Kentucky river. General Nelson, with his federal forces, seized it and built Camp Nelson nearby. After the battle of Perryville, the union hold on the span was never seriously disputed.

Ruins of the old camp still are in evidence, and nearby is the national cemetery, where more than 3000 soldiers of the "sixties" lie buried.

For many years the camp ruins, the cemetery and the bridge have been among the outstanding points of interest in this part of the hills of Kentucky.

Pulling up a cabbage, a man of Middlesborough, England, found a treasury note worth $2.50 curled around the root, and surmises that it had been blown into the garden.

HOLLIS AUTO SALES SOARING

Many Farmers Purchase New Vehicles

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Nov. 26.—One of the many signs of the increased prosperity of Harmon county, is the number of new cars which have been sold since farmers began selling their cotton. It is estimated that there are now more new cars in this county, than there has ever been at one time, heretofore. Since August 20 licensed car dealers in Harmon county, have sold 259 new cars, according to records in the office of Harry Hicks, highway agent for Harmon county.

Of this number, only 37 were sold to merchants or people who lived within the corporate limits of Hollis, Gould or Vinson.

"Coxey's Army" Leader Still Fighter at 73

QUINCY, Ill., Nov. 26. (AP)—Jacob Coxey, picturesque leader of "Coxey's army," in 1893, still is determined to "do something for the people."

He is thankful, he said last night, that he has retained his strength long enough to fight the "interest trust." He is 73 years old.

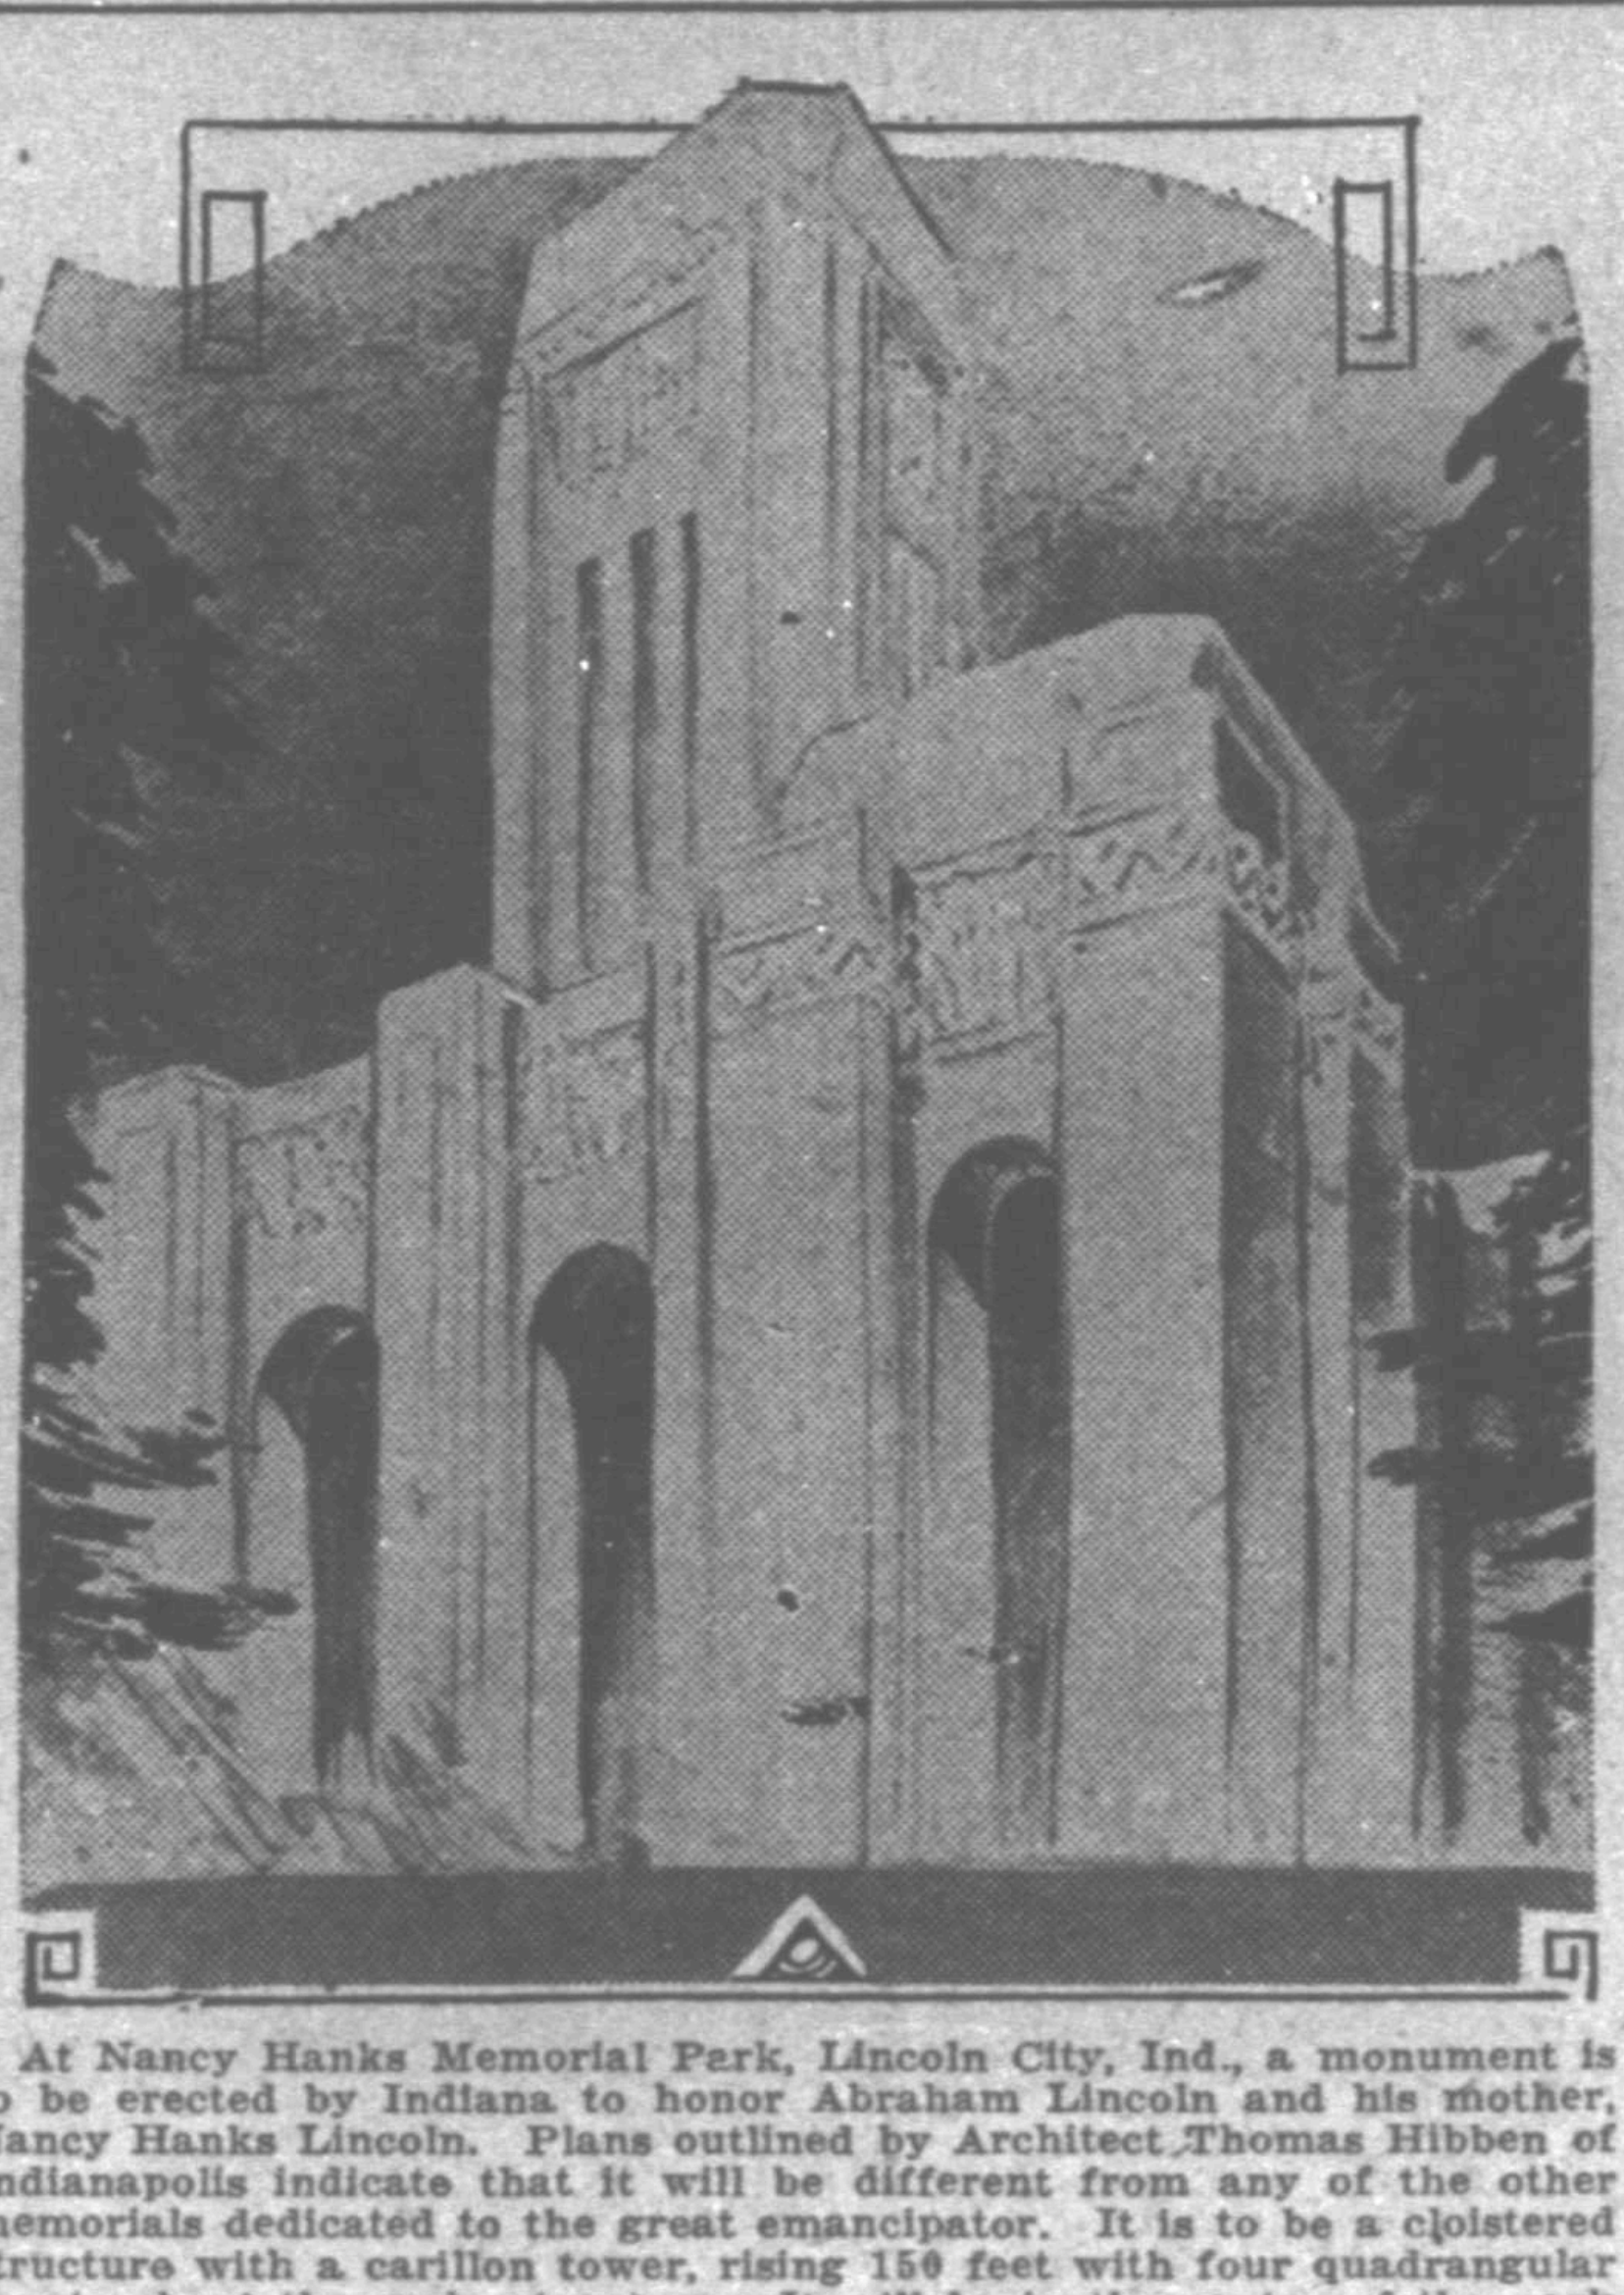
Monument to Honor Lincoln



At Nancy Hanks Memorial Park, Lincoln City, Ind., a monument is to be erected by Indiana to honor Abraham Lincoln and his mother, Nancy Hanks Lincoln. Plans outlined by Architect Thomas Hibben of Indianapolis indicate that it will be different from any of the other memorials dedicated to the great emancipator. It is to be a cloistered structure with a carillon tower, rising 150 feet with four quadrangular courts about the main structure. It will be in the center of the park which includes the site of the Lincoln cabin in the Hoosier state and the grave of his mother.

Music At The Churches

It is thought among numbers of people that music at a church service is potentially the essence of the hour of worship. It is thought of, usually, in terms of an impetus to the words of the pastor. The words of the pastor's sermon, with the ramifications of meaning, are given interpretation and life through the music of the choir, the music of the vocalist, or the instrumental soloist. And in this, the selection of the musical program is paramount in importance.

That this scheme is being carried out in Wichita Falls churches is plainly evidenced by the interest taken in the musical activities of each church. Most of them have a director of music charged with the arrangement of each Sunday's features. The programs, as weeks have gone by, have been lengthened, and in some cases greatly improved by additions of music bits not so common to the average program.

Musical programs arranged for this Sunday promise some of these selections. At the First Methodist church, morning services, two solos will be given in addition to the regular organ numbers by Mrs. J. W. Akin, Jr. Mrs. F. M. Hansen, assisted by the choir, will sing "In the Cross of Christ I Glory," by Stults; and a quartet, consisting of Messrs. Hansen, Bohmfalk, MacGregor, and Gray will sing "Though Your Sins be as Scarlet," by Doane. "Hear My Voice," by Petrie, will be given at the evening service by E. F. Bohmfalk, and F. M. Hansen, assisted by the choir; and Joel H. MacGregor will sing Schuler's "Can I Forget," a tenor solo.

Instrumental selections to be presented at the Church of the Good Shepherd Sunday will include "Allegro," by Kroeger, an organ prelude: "All the Works of the Lord are Good," by Nichol, an offertory anthem; and Donohue's "Postlude," all of which will be played by Miss Florence Sammons. In the evening, Mrs T. B. Greenwood will play a violin solo, "Poem," by Fibich.

Mayor R. E. Shepherd and Guy E. Curtis, educational director of the church, are to sing a duet, the title of which was not announced, at the morning service of the First Christian church. Other musical features will be given.

At the First Presbyterian church, morning service, Mrs. Hallie Adams Hill and Daniel E. Grieder, junior pastor, will sing a duet, "In Heavenly Love Abiding." At the evening services, an orchestra under the direction of L. V. Lawler will play, and Mrs. Hill will sing as a solo, "Let Not Your Heart Be Troubled."

The Rev. and Mrs. David Rees-Jones are to be soloists at the morning service of the Floral Heights Presbyterian church. Mrs. Rees-Jones will play "Cavalleria Rusticana," by Mascagni, and Rubenstein's prelude from "Kamennoi Ostrow," on the piano; and the Rev. Rees-Jones, pastor of the church, will sing Briggs' "Hold Thou My Hand."

At the morning services of the First Southern Presbyterian church, Mrs. W. L. Underwood will give a vocal solo, "The Lord is My Strength." In the evening, the choir will sing Rockwell's "Rejoice Greatly."

Special music at the First Baptist church, morning service, will include a vocal duet by Misses Adelle and Juel Ray and two organ solos, "A Song of Thanksgiving," (Demarest), and "Nocturne in D Major," (Maitland), by Mrs. F. C. Collard. In the evening, the women's quartet, consisting of Mesdames Cordell, Wilhite, Evans, and Stratton, will give several selections. Organ numbers for this service will include Maitland's "Grand Chorus," and Ganne's "Extase."

1st Methodist S. S. Competes For Honors; To Be Scored Monday

The Sunday school of the First Methodist church, which to date has probably the largest attendance of any church school in Wichita Falls, is to be officially scored and rated for the first time Monday evening, when Judge John C. Murphree of Iowa Park, official scorer of the North Texas conference, checks the record at a meeting of the educational council of the church. The council, composed of 114 members, is called to meet at the church at 7:30 a. m.

It is confidently felt by officers of the church that the school will reach the grade which will entitle it to be rated as a "standard" school. This will mean that the church in the past has accomplished at least 90 per cent of the program of the year's work. Should it reach only 80 per cent, it will be designated an "advanced" school; and should it fall to 65 per cent, it will be named a "progressive" school, according to an outline of the work given by E. F. Bohmfalk, educational director of the church.

The score of the school is to be sent to the general Sunday school board at Nashville, Tenn., who will in turn award the deserved seal. From this time on, Mr. Bohmfalk said, the school is to be scored and rated annually.

Other business matters are to come before the council meeting, which is to be in charge of Mr. Bohmfalk. The council is composed of the general officers of the Sunday school, departmental officers and teachers.

ASPIRIN

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Bayer Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. If it says Bayer, it's genuine; and if it doesn't, it is not! Headaches are dispelled by Bayer Aspirin. So are colds, and the pain that goes with them; even neuralgia, neuritis, and rheumatism promptly relieved. Get Bayer—at any drugstore—with proven directions.

CHURCH PLANS XMAS PLAY

Sibley-Taylor Church To Present Pageant

Among the first of the Wichita Falls churches to begin preparations for Christmas celebrations, the Sibley-Taylor Methodist church has already chosen the title of their pageant, which will be presented on the evening of December 19 in the church auditorium, it was announced by Harold White, chairman of pageant arrangements. Over 100 people will appear in the presentation, entitled "The Way," a musical pageant by Gladys Brockwell, and arrangements are being completed to have a ten piece orchestra under the direction of Mrs. Eddie M. McKinley.

Further plans for the entertainment are to be discussed in a meeting of the instigators of the play Sunday afternoon at the church, Mr. White announced. Besides the latter, J. L. Arnold, superintendent of the Sunday school, Mrs. McKinley, and other assistants are busy with the project.

Nine Additions To New Church Reported

With one more week to go, the revival services at the Sibley-Taylor Methodist church have been quite successful, according to the pastor, the Rev. Ben Bell, who reported Friday that nine additions had been made to the church.

The revival will continue through next week with services each evening, with M. E. Taylor in charge of the music.

Makes Fat People Slim

New York Physician Perfects, Simple and Easy Method of Reducing Weight

Dr. R. Newman, a licensed practicing physician, of 286 Fifth avenue, New York, announces that he has perfected a treatment, which has quickly rid fat people of excess weight. What is more remarkable is the doctor's statement that he has successfully treated thousands of patients for fat reduction without unnecessary change of diet or burdensome exercise. He also says that fat people who suffer from chronic rheumatism, gout, asthma and high blood pressure obtain great relief from the reduction of their superfluous flesh. Realizing that this sounds almost too good to be true, the doctor has offered to send without charge to anyone who will write him, a free trial treatment to prove his claims, as well as his "Pay-when reduced" plan. If you want to rid yourself of superfluous fat, write him today, addressing Dr. R. Newman, 286 Fifth Avenue, New York City, Dept. R.

BUICKS TAKE REPEAT TEST

Many Owners Buy Second To Augment First

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 26.—The seven Buick models comprising the series 115 group, which was introduced into the Buick line less than four years ago, is finding particularly ready acceptance among the fast-growing ranks of two-car owners, C. W. Churchill, general sales manager of the Buick Motor company, announced this week. Mr. Churchill was discussing the American family's increasing recognition of its need for more than one automobile.

Dealers' reports, Mr. Churchill said, indicate that a surprising proportion of the series 115 models sold during Buick's record-breaking past three months were bought by owners who already possessed one or more of the series 129 or series 128 models, Buick's retail sales for the period between June 30 and October 1 totaled 82,955, of which approximately half were cars of series 115.

Credit for the immediate success of the series 115 Buicks is given by dealers to the one-quality policy governing construction of the entire Buick line. Though designed to the requirements of the driver who prefers a somewhat lighter car than the 120-inch and 128-inch wheelbase Buicks, the seven models on the 114 1-2-inch wheelbase are identical with the others in quality of material, in workmanship, and in engineering details.

"This fact, said Mr. Churchill, "has made our series 115 cars popular among owners who have long derived satisfaction from the larger Buicks. It is only natural that when need for a second car arises, they turn again to Buick. Besides assuring themselves of reliable transportation, they secure added convenience in operation and servicing, through use of two or more cars of the same make."

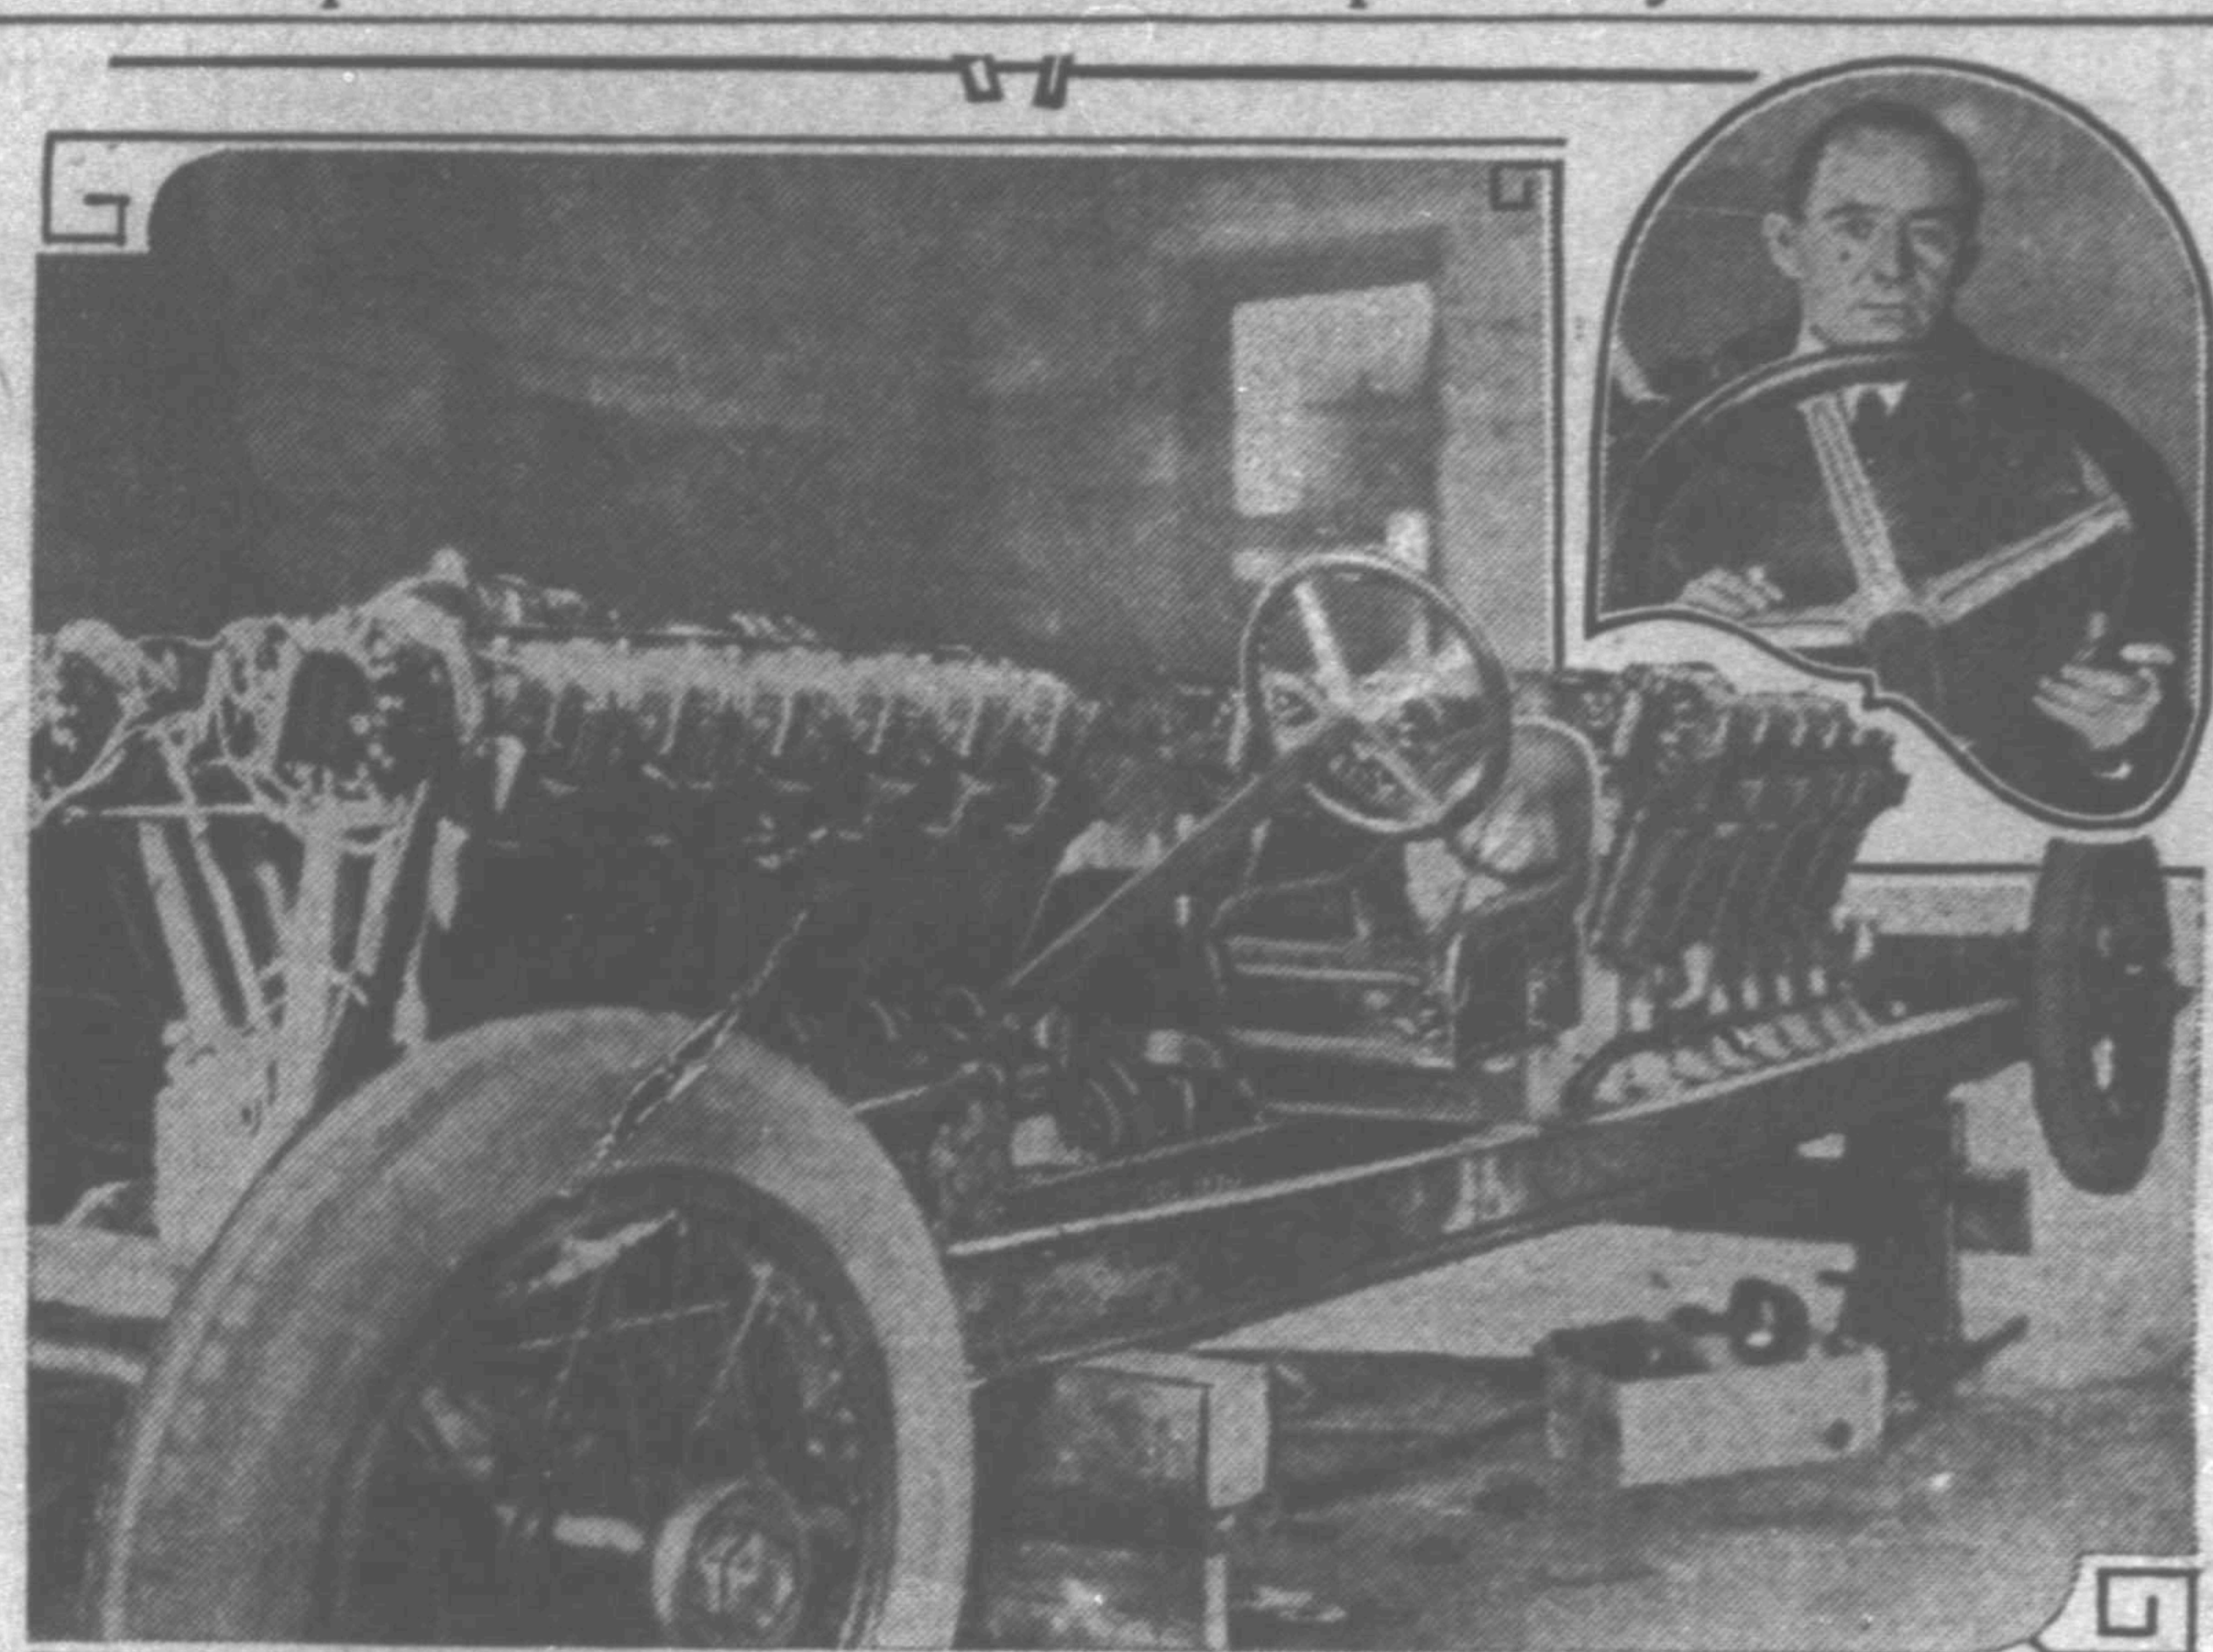
Studebaker Sets Another Record

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Nov. 26.—The only remaining official speed and endurance record not held by Studebaker was acquired November 15 when two stock model Studebaker Commander roadsters set a new world record for 2000 miles. Each Commander broke the previous record of 70 miles per hour. One averaged 72.2 miles per hour; the other, 73.3 miles per hour.

This record, as with others established in the last few months, was made under the supervision of the American Automobile association. The contest board of this organization is responsible for the checking of all official runs in the United States. At the completion of the 2000-mile record, the two Studebaker Commanders were disassembled, checked with other cars of the same make, and pronounced strictly stock models in every respect.

The establishment of the 2000-mile record follows the run of three stock Studebaker Commanders, each of which traveled 25,000 miles in less than 25,000 minutes. Nothing else on earth had ever traveled so far as fast as each of these three American automobiles.

Speed Demon Rarin' to Burn Up Country Roads



This 1500-h. p. racing car "Triplex" has been under secret construction in the Philadelphia workshop for the past six months. One 12-cylinder 500-h. p. engine in the front and two of similar power in the rear, each using four carburetors, comprise its power plant. The wheels shown are temporary. Note the absence of springs in the rear to minimize bouncing. J. M. White, inset, Philadelphia auto manufacturer and sportsman, is the owner of the car, which accommodates two passengers. It is claimed to be the most powerful car ever built.

Chevrolet Announces $625,000 Parts Building Opened at Flint

The Chevrolet Motor company today announces the opening of a new $625,000 parts and service building in Flint, Mich. This structure marks the completion of a two-million-dollar parts and service program extending over the last year and a half and involving in addition the construction of four major supply depots and a completion reorganization of those at Oakland and Tarrytown.

The new Flint building is a three-story steel and concrete structure with a total of 225,000 square feet of floor space. Railroad docks for 12 freight cars have been provided to expedite shipping.

Made necessary because of the great increase in Chevrolet ownership during the year, the new warehouse is one of the finest in the industry with the most modern conveyors and the latest equipment for handling parts, and promises to provide Chevrolet with the most complete facilities for the efficient handling of parts distribution.

The structure becomes the central Chevrolet warehouse, the major portion of which is devoted to the storing of parts to insure good service to Chevrolet owners. More than two million dollars worth of parts will be kept on hand at all times.

Since the first of the year, Chevrolet has also established complete warehousing operations at Des Moines, Memphis and Kansas City, with a new warehouse to be completed in Los Angeles, February 1. The four major supply depots built in the last year and a half are at Janesville, Wis.; St. Louis, Mo.; Norwood, Ohio, and Buffalo, N. Y.

FALCON SETS ECONOMY NOTE

Trend Toward Knight Motor Seen by Dealers

Reports received at the offices of the Falcon Motors corporation, Detroit, from hundreds of owners of the Falcon-Knight six, indicated that this car occupies a conspicuous place in the automobile field, especially from a standpoint of economical operation. This economy of operation, according to officials of the company, applies not only to fuel and oil but in general repair costs an dmaintenance.

Although the first of these cars were not marketed until last March, the usual acceptance of these Knight engined models presages a remarkable sales year for a car in its initial year of production. Production is being maintained at a steady pace while an analysis of the sales sheets reveals a continuous demand on the part of motor car buyers.

This is due, well-informed automobile men say, to the unusual trend toward cars powered by the Knight sleeve-valve engine, the type of power plant used in the Falcon-Knight, also to the high standard of performance set by this new six. In speed, power, stamina, economy of operation and comfort, the Falcon-Knight six has been outstanding in the light six field. Several tests have been imposed on this car in various sections of the country and in each instance the Falcon-Knight has shown quality unsurpassed in its price classification.

Sleeve-Valve Motor Power

In each cylinder of the famous Falcon-Knight engine just two sleeves glide up and down, replacing the complicated clutter of valve parts in the ordinary poppet-valve type of motor.

Falcon-Knight sleeve-valve performance means a smooth, active flow of power that surpasses ordinary six-cylinder performance just as the average six surpasses the four.

The Yes, Yes, Chorus

By BRUCE BARTON

Illustrated by RAEBURN VAN BUREN

RECENTLY I heard a man described in an interesting way. We met him quite casually in the corridor of a hotel, and though he spoke only a dozen words, there was so much vitality in his manner that I wanted to know more about him.

"Who is he?" I asked.

"He is Vice President of the Blank Corporation," my friend replied. "He is the man who tells President John Blank the truth."

President John Blank is enormously rich. A large majority of his many employees work on the theory that if they can find out what the old man would like to hear, and tell it to him, the sun will shine brightly on their path.

This vigorous Vice President pursues a different policy. When he has made up his mind, it's made up, and he says precisely what he thinks.

The result is that while John Blank disagrees with him violently on occasion, John Blank can't do without him.

The greatest menace to a big man's success is the atmosphere of wholesale agreement in which his days are passed. That atmosphere hangs heavy around the office of the White House; it poisons the councils of corporations; it destroys the perspective of successful writers and speakers and other people of note.

Shrewd executives recognize this menace and seek to protect themselves against it. Lord Northcliffe, for example, tried hard to find people who had enough backbone to be willing to disagree with him.

"He abandoned the Carlton Club," said someone writing about him, "because he discovered that most of its members were of the same way of thinking, and that he could derive no new ideas from them."

When the Emperor of Rome was driven through the streets in triumph, a slave was stationed in the chariot at his elbow. As the cheers of the crowd rose higher and higher, it was the duty of the slave to lean forward and whisper: "Remember, thou too art mortal."

I sometimes think that a man of sound judgment could make a very good living in any large city if he would develop the functions of that slave into a recognized profession.

For a good-sized fee he could arrange to visit the mayor and the presidents of big corporations after office-hours. Locking the door of the private office, and drawing up his chair close to the desk, he could say: "Now that the members of the 'Yes, Yes Chorus' have all gone home, what are the questions on which you would like to hear the real truth?"

EUROPE FIELD FOR U. S. CARS

Part Payment Plan Will Sell Many Autos

KENOSHA, Wis., Nov. 26.—C. W. Nash, president of the Nash Motor company, who has just returned from the Paris and London automobile shows, sees every indication of a growing market for American-made automobiles abroad. Improved economic conditions, particularly in England, France,, Germany and in the Scandinavian countries, together with the development in Europe of good roads, and cited by Mr. Nash as reasons for a growing demand for the motor car.

"In France, for example," said Mr. Nash, "there are 40,000 people and only about half a million automobiles, as contracted with our 20,000,000 cars in America for a population of 110,000,000. This same ratio applies pretty generally throughout Europe and so the potential market there for automobiles is very large indeed.

"Financing of automobiles for the retail buyer, in my opinion, is another factor that will help in the development of the European market; the 'time payment' method of buying which long since has been recognized in America as sound business procedure is just now coming into general practice throughout Europe and I can see no reason why it should not be equally successful there if the plan is handled on a sound and business-like basis.

"American motor car manufacturers, I feel, are in a position to best supply the European demand; cars built in this country have come into general favor in Europe and this is particularly true of our six-cylinder cars. The average European, like the average American, prefers the smooth performance of a 'six' and whereas the average moderate priced car of European make is a 'four,' American manufacturers in the past few years have developed moderate priced 'sixes,' economical not only with reference to first cost but also in regard to fuel consumption—an important factor in Europe because of the high price of gasoline there."

Brakes Feature 1928 Hupp Six

A new braking system, called the Hupmobile-Midland (steeldraulic), combining the best principles of the hydraulic and mechincal four-wheel types, is one of the score or more new features of the new 1928 Hupmobile six.

The new system is remarkably positive and of unusual simplicity, Hupmobile engineers point out. Toggles, clevises, pins and other parts heretofore considered detrimental to the mechanical systems are almost completely obviated. Operation is direct through flexible steel cables, enclosed in specially designed conduits.

Decided superiority over all other four-wheel brake systems is also claimed for it in eliminating brake drag. An increase of from 10 to 15 per cent in effective power over any other four-wheel brake system, through elimination of this brake friction and faster brake release, is claimed for it. Consequent freedom from "freezing" of brakes, longer tire life and more economy from gasoline naturally follow, it is pointed out.

This elimination of brake drag is made possible by the sytem's permitting sixty-two thousandths of an inch clearance between the drums and linings, as against only ten thousands of an inch, or even less, in other four-wheel systems.

RIGHT-FOOTED LOOT.

Dogs Guard Dead Master's Cave

AWAITING THE RETURN OF THEIR MASTER ARE EIGHT HUGE CANINES

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Nov. 26. With only a pack of faithful dogs to howl his funeral dirge, Harry J. Deal, mystery of the Tennessee mountains, died recently in the dank hillside cave, which for years has been his home.

Whatever tragedy it was that changed him, in a day, from a business man of consequence in an eastern city, to a cave-dwelling recluse, remains a secret.

Kept Past a Secret.

Harry Deal, patently a man of culture, education and no mean artistic talent, made many acqpaintances, but he never spoke of his past here and no explanatory records were left among the meager possessions fround with his body in the shallow cleft in Signal Mountain side, ten miles from Chattanaooga.

His secret died with him.

Twenty years ago he came, walking down the dusty road over Missionary Ridge, into the city. He soon took up his strange lodging in the mountains, collected his pack of mongrel dogs, and became a familiar figure in the district.

To the inquisitive he smiled and talked only of flowers, plants, snakes, rocks and his interest in nature. For 20 years he turned his back upon the comforts of civilization and eked out the simplest sort of existence.

Find Effects of Other Days.

In the hermit's satchel, which was a never-forgotten part of his equipment, was found an old picture of Deal's office in former days. The outlay of the room and fixtures indicate that its owner was a man of position and influence. In the back-ground was hung a sign, reading: "H. L. Deal, Board of Trade Inspector and Flour Trier."

The last two words but add to the mystery, for who can interpret them?

His registration certificate gave his age as 77 and his occupation as an illustrator. An intricate map, carefully drawn, revealed him an adept draftsman.

Visited by Woman.

According to the conductor of the traction company running in the neighborhood of Deal's cave, a well-dressed woman once visited him at his lonely mountain retreat. She, too, was a mystery, since Deal refused to discuss her brief and mysterious call.

Deal loved his mountain home, which was reached by a treacherous path scarcely discernible amid the wild undergrowth of the southern mountains. From a large, flat rock, used by Deal as a reading room, he could enjoy the ever changing panorama of the tall trees, the hazy blue mountains and the gleaming waters of the historic Tennessee river.

Still guarding his primeval home, awaiting the return of their beloved master, are eight huge dogs. They growl and snarl a warning to hundreds of the curious, who, since the death, are wearing a distinct path to the picturesque abode in the bleak mountain side.

American-Made Automobiles Well Received at Paris Salon Exhibit

Greater enthusiasm for American-designed motor cars than in any previous year was expressed by European visitors at the Paris Salon and Olympic this year, and indications point to largely increased purchases of American cars abroad, in the opinion of Ernest W. Seaholm, chief engineer of the Cadillac Motor Car company, and Harley J. Earl, body designer of the new Cadillas and the LaSalle car.

Mr. Earl and Mr. Seaholm have just returned to the United States after attending the two leading European automobile shows of the year and observing the effect of American exhibits upon the European visitors.

"The increased use of color was particularly notable at the Grand Palais. The continental manufacturer is using it this year with a more sure technique and with daring lack of restraint. The almost total absence of open cars, excepting a few sport models, lessened interest in fabric bodies and emphasis upon convertible type bodies are also outstanding features," Mr. Seaholm states.

"European manufacturers," he continues, "are very distinctly endeavoring to get the advantages of American quantity production methods."

Mud Lark Tour of 21 Years Ago When Winter Hegira Comes Along

Thousands of motorists are preparing to tune up their cars or are alreadys started on their annual hegira to the semi-tropical sections of the country where winter's rigors are non-existent. This type touring had its official inception on Dec. 23, 1906, according to an account of the pioneer "Mud Lark" published in "Motor Talk" January, 1907.

Against the advice and council of friends and auto skeptics, R. R. Owen, of Cleveland, and two venturesome friends nearly 21 years ago decided to start in mid-winter on a pathfinding tour from New York City ot Daytona Beach, Fla., in an Oldsmobile touring car. They accomplished the run in 18 days of constant battle against obstacles that the modern motorist would hardly care to pit his more powerful car against.

A few of the incidents of the trip that occurred so frequently that they become part of the pathfinders' day's work included driving their Oldsmobile for hours at a time in low gear through mud hub deep; fording streams with water to the floor boards — one time reaching above the top of the engine and necessitating pumping the water out of the cylinders—plowing through sand and then besting mountain grades consisting of rock and gullied roads.

An excerpt from the log of the trip is descriptive of the trials of the pioneers:

"The car nobly pulled these 20 miles through mud to the axles. Franklin Junction was a source of delight for us for here we secured our first meal in 13 hours.

"While there our Oldsmobile was christened 'Mud Lark' with all due formality, while the boys looked on with hats removed."

Dodge Mailers Hold Record For Detroit

Detroit's largest mailing department, and the one which handles the largest amount of all classes of mail is that of Dodge Brothers, automobile and truck manufacturers, experts from the post office department at Washington state. The Dodge mail division also has been notably successful, they say, in establishing an efficient method of handling all classes of mail.

On the average, 11,000 pieces of incoming first class mail and 25,000 pieces of out-going first class mail are handled daily by this division of Dodge Brothers, Inc. In addition, it handles daily papers, trade papers, trade magazines, second, third and fourth-class mail and parcel post packages. Outgoing parcel post packages alone average a half freight car daily. This does not include the various special mailings for which regular days are set aside. The weekly output of special material averages 18,000 envelopes per week, a line about two miles long if extended end to end.

STEARNS HAS GROWING SALE

Fall Business Shows Good Volume

With the fall selling season well under way, unusual interest is being exhibited in the Stearns-Knight six and eight cylinder cars, according to officials of the F. B. Stearns company, Cleveland, who report that the sales volume of both lines of Knight engined cars is highly satisfactory with indications pointing to a high sales mark for the last quarter of the year.

During the past six months the Stearns-Knight dealership organization has been materially expanded, this resulting in an increased distribution of both the Stearns-Knight six and eight cylinder models.

Not only has there been a marked demand for the eight cylinder model but the six cylinder Stearns-Knight cars, which have long held a conspicuous position in the quality car field also have registered increased popularity, officials of the company declare.

Since the introduction of the Stearns-Knight eight cylinder model, the first straight eight Knight engined car to be built in America, it has won a distinctive place among the cars that sell in the higher price ranges. This distinction is attributed in part by automotive experts to the perfection attained in the Knight sleeve-valve engine, the employment of worm type axle which provides smooth and vibrationless operation at all speed ranges, and the superior quality of materials and workmanship throughout. These qualities, it is pointed out also are features in the Stearns-Knight line of sixes.

In both the six and eight cylinder bodies there are many interesting developments which are unique even in the most luxurious body developments of the finest motor cars in the world.

The first attempt by Baroness Kimiko Shirnae, wife of an official in the household department of the government of Japan, to paint a picture, was recently admitted to the Imperial Fine Arts society exhibition at Toyko.

While the population within the territorial limits which embrace Germany today is one-tenth greater than 20 years ago, the number of workers has increased nearly 40 per cent, according to official figures just given out.

Chrysler Demand Sets New Record

A reception surpassing in enthusiasm anything ever previously experienced even by the popular cars of the Chrysler corporation is greeting the three new models introduced in the last few weeks by this company, according to advices from Detroit received by local dealers.

Ever since the appearance in July of the Great New "62," the first in the series of new cars presented this summer, Chrysler factories have been unable to keep pace with the orders that have been pouring in, company officials state. Successive presentations of the New "52" and the Illustrious New "72," which followed the initial "62" announcement, served to swell the tide and as a result the company, despite strenuous manufacturing schedules in all departments, has found itself constantly in an oversold condition on all three models.

The enhanced beauty of the new cars' contours and colors, their mechanicalrefin ements,and the increased luxury provided by artistic touches in interior furnishings and by the new saddle-type springs, adjustable seats and many other innovations, have been making an instanteous appeal to the buying public wherever the cars are on display. This favorable impression, dealers report, is always increased when the unbelievably smooth and powerful performance of the cars isex perienced by those who have an opportunity to drive them and the statement is common that visitors who enter dealers' showrooms as curious spectators speedily become admirers and enthusiastic buyers.

Company officials say they are receiving hundreds of telegrams from distributors which reflect this enthusiastic reception. Coming from every part of the country they leave no doubt about the public attitude.

WILLYS GETS BIG RECEPTION

Whippets With New Ideas Hold Position

Since the introduction of the Willys-Knight great six with the five optional color combinations there has been a decided trend to this Knight engined six, according to sales officials of Willys-Overland, Inc. This trend also is noticeable to a marked degree in the "70" Willys-Knight line of motor cars, it is said at the Toledo factory.

Production of the Willys-Knight great six and the "70" Willys-Knight models is being maintained at a steady pace to meet the demand for these popular cars, according to company officials.

In the Willys-Knight great six line the new color combinations give the buyer a wide range of selection to satisfy individual tastes. Each combination presents a harmonious blending of rich colors entirely in keeping with the rich interior upholstering and the quality tone of the car throughout.

The Whippet, with its striking fuel economy, power, speed and stamina records set in various parts of the nation since its initial introduction a year and a half ago, also continues to maintain its superior position in the light car field.

These features include four-wheel brakes, unequalled fuel and oil economy, power and speed to meet the most severe demands, abundance of leg room in the interiors, low center of gravity type of construction, thus giving greater road stability, comfortable riding qualities which have set a new standard in the light car field.

ATONES FOR 25-YEAR-OLD PILFERINGS.

CLEVELAND, O.—Twenty-five years ago Morris Garfinkel operated a small store. One day, although he did not know it, a small quantity of candy disappeared from the store. Now Garfinkel has received a letter from a man containing a money order for 50 cents, confessing the larceny now quarter of a century old. "Now that I want to be right with God," the man wrote, "this 50 cents will atone for my juvenile pilferings."

Motion picture shows are being given by the government in small towns of Italy, several auto trucks, with projectors and a screen which may be quickly erected out of doors, making regular tours of the country.

Boscoe was of the sea. And now, here was Luella, whom he loved, wanting to put her roots down into soil, shying away from the only kind of life that was endurable to him. At first, it was only a rift. In the end, it was to widen and finally separate them.

FOR six years, Luella had lived on her father's barge, "Cynthia." It had a one-room cabin divided by a cretonne curtain. They slept on either side of it on cots and all night long, the curtain seemed to be a living thing; animated with the breathing of the two occupants of the great hulk of a boat that plied between Brooklyn Harbor and Providence. Sometimes, a barge named "Moonrise" joined in line with "Cynthia" and aided and abetted by six or seven more of the sea-going barges, plied their coal trade as far up as Rhode Island.

A great six-foot, brawny fellow with a perpetually open shirt-front and terrific, tattooed arms, and red-brown hair that stood off at all angles, was master of the "Moonrise." He occupied its single cabin alone. He had a voice like a fog-horn. He tossed it about as the string of barges traveled at night, shouting, laughing and finally wooing.

He wooed Luella, leaping from his barge to her's with a throw of his great body that had the grace of a discobolous. Then one day, on the trip from Providence, Luella's father died of a stroke.

But Luella Loved the Land

It left her alone. Pitifully alone. With all her traditions of life in the open, Luella was a frail, yellow bit of a girl with eyes that seemed perpetually to be looking at you over the rim of a glass of milk, and a sweet, trembling mouth. Boscoe, the owner of "Moonrise", loved that mouth. He wanted to cover it with kisses. He wanted to share his barge with her, and the irreconcilable aspect of what seemed a simple enough love-affair, was that Luella loved the land. Night after night, as their barge slid softly down the gun-metal sheaf of waters, Luella sat on the deck outside the cabin, watching the lights of the houses along the banks, blink and glow from behind their shrubberies.

Anchored, rooted, stable people were behind those windows. Generations of babies had been born under those roofs. Trees had their roots in the good, rich soil surrounding those houses. Pavements ran before them and turned corners and led to more secure houses with their foundations in soil.

The only garden Luella had ever known was a geranium in a flower-pot on the window-sill of her barge cabin. Her boulevards were the soot-flecked deck that ran around the coal-bins. A cretonne curtain was the only wall she had on which to hang a picture.

Boscoe loved what he called the "landlubber" in her and it was only after the death of her father and he was entreating her to meet the situation by marrying him, that he was jerked to the realization that this seemingly harmless predilicton threatened to become an actual menace between them.

Her Yearning Separated Them

What he had thought cunning in her, now began to take on proportions that were terrifying to him. Boscoe was of the sea. Its salt was in his matted chest. The only roof he yearned was the open, star-lit one that hung over water. The pull of tides at night was in his veins. And now, here was Luella, whom he loved, wanting to put her roots down into soil, shying away from the only kind of life that was endurable to him. At first, it was only a rift. In the end, it was to widen and finally separate them.

It is more than probable that Luella had never dreamed it could happen so. Certainly it had been farthest from the simple mind of Boscoe, who loved her, and yet, night after night, as they sat on deck outside the simple cabin they called home, the yearning in Luella's heart rose like a wall between them.

Luella's heart was cast landward, so were her eyes. Little gardens within paling fences seemed to hold out their hands to her. Hands that were the shape of slim, yellow crocuses. So instead of planning, they fell to wrangling. Luella, who wanted a garden and a house built into the soil. Boscoe, who loved the sleek, slapping of water against the sides of his barge and the sense of movement, instead of soil beneath him.

It was a girl who came to visit on one of the fleet of barges for over Sunday, who finally turned the little tide of Luella's destiny. She worked in what was called a "sunlight factory" in Providence, Rhode Island. She boarded with a family who lived in a house surrounded by three acres of truck-garden. She earned eighteen dollars a week, sealing boxes that contained beaten biscuit.

Luella sold her barge, which was mortgaged almost up to its value, and with forty-eight dollars in her pocket, and a mixture of yearning for Boscoe, semi-regret and happiness at her decision in her heart, turned landward.

It is possible that Luella felt sure he would follow. In fact, she was partially right. For weeks, Boscoe battled with himself, wanting her, loving her, and yet too stubborn and too leary of the land to capitulate.

In the end, he turned sullen and drove his barge up and down in a silent kind of resignation.

Life in the sunlight-factory was disappointing to Luella. The confinement was hard on her. The companionship of the hundreds of twitting and twittering girls was monotonous and the truck-farmers with whom she boarded were a querulous, noisy lot who intruded on her privacy. The girl whose beckoning finger had led her landward, proved none too congenial because her interests were too fly-away. Luella, who loved the land, wanted to settle and enjoy it. This friend of her's, Myrtle, had no rest. She was a humming-bird of a person. To live around her, to a person of Luella's tranquility of spirit, was dizziness.

Finally, she left the sunlight-factory and went to clerk in a Five- and Ten-Cent Store on the main street of Providence. She moved her lodgings, too, where she might be nearer to her place of employment. This time, there was no garden plot around the house where she boarded. It stood flat on the sidewalk, and in the evening the boarders spread straw mats on the stoop and inhaled the stale air off the granitoid.

Myrtle, who had whirred into her life like a humming-bird, whirred out of it. After about eighteen months, Luella awoke one day to the consciousness that she was sick for Boscoe.

With the same quick decision with which she had set off landward, she now set off for the barges. A fellow named Terry, a big, gruff, good-natured ruffian of a chap who happened to be in the harbor with his flatboat, informed her that three months previous, Boscoe had gone off inland; married a girl named Myrtle and was truck-farming up in the hills behind Providence.

That same week, Luella married Terry. They live on the flatboat which plies between Providence and New York.
