Stretching in shape

Coach Curtis Didway makes sure the Harvester football candidates don't cheat on their stretching exercises Monday morning during the first full workout. The players will sweat through morning and afternoon drills until school begins Aug. 29. The first four days of workouts will be without contact or pads.

Leon on job; urges caution

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski took command of the House investigation into alleged South Korean influence-buying today and said no one should jump to conclusions about the case.

Jaworski urged great caution to avoid creating the impression "that this is a holocaust of some kind and then get into it and find it isn't that at all, that there has been wrongdoing, per chance, but that it's not as widespread as had been originally thought."

Jaworski talked to reporters briefly as he arrived on Capitol Hill to personally take charge of the House ethics committee's investigation.

"I don't like to see any institution of government labeled as not trustworthy or many of the individuals involved in that institution as not trustworthy until we know what the facts are," Jaworski said. "And this jumping to conclusions really bothers me," he said.

Jaworski said the first thing he planned to do was get a briefing from the special staff conducting the House probe.

He said it is impossible to predict how soon the investigation can be completed because "we don't know what problems we may run into."

"Haste will come sooner," he said. "Thoroughness will come first."

"I have a feeling it's not going to be a simple task," he said. "It's one of ferreting out the facts and searching for the truth and you never know what you're going to run into, what roadblocks there may be."

Jaworski said he expects public hearings but he said some testimony may be taken by the House committee in closed session to avoid public "accusations made by innuendo."

"We want to make certain we don't in any wise do harm to anyone who may be innocent," he said.

Although Jaworski declined to say when he hoped to complete the probe, associates said he hoped the task can be completed by early next year.

The House ethics committee will receive recommendations from Jaworski and in turn recommend to the full House possible punishment for present or former congressmen.

With Congress out of town for a month-long recess, the only other scheduled activity this week is a House merchant marine subcommittee hearing set for Wednesday on the Panama Canal agreement worked out by President Carter's negotiating team.

The panel, headed by Rep. John Murphy, D-N.Y., has called as witnesses national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski and Panama Canal negotiators Elliswiler Bunker and Sol Lanowitz.

Some members of Congress are criticizing the agreement, which calls for Panamanian control of the canal by the year 2000. Murphy has denounced the agreement as "an apparent surrender of American-owned property in Panama to a revolutionary despot."

Jaworski will turn quickly to preparing a timetable for the Korean investigation and is expected to present his schedule to the ethics committee on Aug. 24.

He has vowed to recommend punishment or prosecution for any wrongdoing he finds in the Korean influence-buying affair but he also has indicated in public comments that he believes the scope of the scandal has been exaggerated.

Jaworski was asked to head the investigation last month after Philip A. Lacovara quit in a dispute with the panel's chairman, Rep. John Flynn, D-Ga.

Jaworski said last week documents he is seeking from the Justice Department could be as crucial to the Korean investigation as White House tapes were to Watergate. The documents reportedly include one detailing cash payments Korean rice dealer Tongson Park made to about 20 congressmen plus several other U.S. officials.

Peace meeting closer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter will meet with the foreign ministers of Israel and at least four Arab nations next month to build on what the administration calls "continuing momentum" toward a Geneva peace conference on the Middle East.

These meetings and what the President concedes are "major differences between Arabs and Israelis" were likely to be topics for discussion at lunch to be held between Carter and former Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Another probable item for discussion was the new Panama Canal agreement, which Carter and Kissinger have talked about on the telephone within the past week. The President would like support for Senate ratification from the former secretary, whom he criticized during last year's presidential campaign for being a "lone ranger" in foreign policy.

The pact faces stiff opposition. Acknowledging that the agreement "is a tough political question," Carter wrote to all members of Congress on Friday for the second time in a week saying "I need your help."

The White House made his letter public on Saturday.

At the September talks on the Middle East, the foreign minister of Lebanon might join his counterparts from Syria, Jordan, Egypt and Saudi Arabia in their parade to see the President and Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance. The Middle East ministers will be attending the United Nations General Assembly that month.

Still to be worked out are dates for the meetings and whether they will be in Washington or New York, according to an administration official.

The significance of the meetings, the official said, is that "the peace process is still going on."

"The momentum is continuing," he said.

Carter announced his meetings with the foreign ministers after receiving a first-hand report Sunday from Vance on his 13-day trip to six nations in Europe and the Middle East.

Vance said the United States has pared differences between Arabs and Israelis "down to the bedrock."

After Vance's report, which lasted more than 2½ hours, the White House issued a statement saying the secretary had made "some progress" on his tour, "particularly in reaffirming Security Council resolutions 242 and 338 as the basis for negotiations."

The White House statement also said both sides have moved "closer to a common concept of the mutual obligations of peace."

"During his trip, Vance said the Arabs had moved a little closer to Israel's demand for normal economic and diplomatic relations."

But "major differences" remain, the statement said, "on how Palestinian views can best be represented in negotiations, but also on the definition of secure and recognized borders and the nature of a Palestinian settlement."

Gray County Sheriff Rufe Jordan said Collins turned in his resignation in Gray County in November, effective Dec. 1. He had planned to retire, but decided later to work for Roberts County Sheriff Eddie Brines.

Collins is about 60 years of age, according to Sheriff Jordan.

Collins then, according to Comer, escorted LaLone out of town. However, in the meantime, Collins radioed back to the sheriff's office, asked the person on duty to call the girl's home and asked, if they knew LaLone.

"They said they did and didn't want him around," Comer said in describing the events which took place. "He (Buster) let the kid out and he promised to go to Hobbs. Buster went home and received a call that a car was hidden in the weeds in Roberts County. When Buster checked the car out he found it was stolen from Sunnett Saturday night. The keys were found near the spot where LaLone was originally found. A call came through from the first caller and said the boy was back."

Comer said when Collins went back the 90-minute chase began with some Roberts County residents joining in. The chase continued to a gulley near the football stadium in Miami. Collins reportedly yelled for him to stop, but LaLone replied, "No."

The shot was fired when LaLone was in the gulley and he climbed up the side of the gulley after he was shot. Collins and others helped him over the fence.

State to pay tax and retirement plan

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

At an annual cost of more than $100 million, Texas will begin Sept. 1, 1978 paying Social Security taxes for the 140,000 state employees, according to Joe Nelson, Texas Public Employees Association field representative in Austin.

The TPEA annual meeting now is in session at the Villa Capri Motor Hotel in Austin.

In a telephone interview with The News, Nelson said the bill passed during the last session of the legislature. The cost of it is estimated at $104 million.

"It is based on 5.8 per cent of $16,500 (current base)," Nelson said of the estimate, adding that there was no way to determine an exact amount because "if the federal government raises the amount of withholding or the base the state employee will pay the difference."

Nelson said it has not been determined if state employees must pay income tax on the Social Security picked up by the state.

"The attorney general is working on that," he explained. State Senator Max Sherman, in a telephone interview with The News today, said the Social Security tax was given to state employees in lieu of a cost of living raise in 1978.

"The Texas Public Employees Association pushed heard for that benefit," Sherman said.

There are about 37,000 members of the TPEA, according to Nelson. Keynote speaker for this morning's session of the annual meeting was Texas Governor Dolph Briscoe.

Sherman told The News of another bill involving money for state employees. Texas legislators have voted themselves a retirement plan that will allow a legislator up to 60 per cent of a district judge's salary.

Sherman said district judges will be paid $34,500 annually beginning Sept. 1.

The senator explained that a legislator cannot draw the retirement pay until he reaches 60 years of age and must have served at least eight years. Reduced benefits will be available at age 55.

After serving for 12 years, a legislator becomes eligible for full benefits at age 55 and for reduced benefits at 50, Sherman explained.

He will not be eligible for any benefits under the plan since he has resigned after six and a half years as state senator to accept the post of president of West Texas State University.

"I've never been retirement oriented," he said. "I guess I think I will live forever."

State Representative Phil Cates of Shamrock, however, has served the required time and will be eligible for retirement when he reaches the required age. He has announced that he will not seek re-election when his term expires at the end of 1978.

Roberts County deputy resigns after shooting

By ANNA BURCHELL
Pampa News Staff

Former Gray County Deputy Sheriff Buster Collins, who has been serving in that capacity for Roberts County, handed in his badge and gun Sunday afternoon after he shot a 20-year-old man at Miami.

James Grafton LaLone, 20, was in Highland General Hospital today in satisfactory condition. He is recovering from wounds where he was shot in the side by Collins from a 40-yard range with a 38-caliber pistol.

The shooting followed what District Attorney Harold Comer of Pampa described as a 90-minute chase on foot by Collins and other Miami residents.

Comer said Collins turned in his badge pending an investigation into the shooting by a Roberts County grand jury. The district attorney was attempting to reach Judge Grainger McIlhenny at noon today to determine when a grand jury could be impaneled in Roberts County.

Comer said Collins was on duty when he received a call about 9 a.m. Sunday from a Miami resident reporting a person was near the home "acting suspiciously."

When Collins arrived at the scene he reportedly found LaLone asleep near the complainant's neighbors' home with a bull whip and an open knife stuck in the ground. LaLone told Collins, according to the report, that he was waiting on the girl who lived across the street.

Collins then, according to Comer, escorted LaLone out of town. However, in the meantime, Collins radioed back to the sheriff's office, asked the person on duty to call the girl's home and asked, if they knew LaLone.

"They said they did and didn't want him around," Comer said in describing the events which took place. "He (Buster) let the kid out and he promised to go to Hobbs. Buster went home and received a call that a car was hidden in the weeds in Roberts County. When Buster checked the car out he found it was stolen from Sunnett Saturday night. The keys were found near the spot where LaLone was originally found. A call came through from the first caller and said the boy was back."

Comer said when Collins went back the 90-minute chase began with some Roberts County residents joining in. The chase continued to a gulley near the football stadium in Miami. Collins reportedly yelled for him to stop, but LaLone replied, "No."

One-third of cig brands show low tar, nicotine

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cigarette manufacturers are continuing their competition to attract health-conscious smokers who can't kick the habit, the government's new rating of cigarette tar and nicotine levels shows.

Nearly one-third of the 166 brands of cigarettes tested by the Federal Trade Commission had relatively low levels of tar and nicotine, the elements of cigarettes that the government maintains can cause lung cancer and heart attacks.

The ratings, released Sunday, reconfirmed a general industry trend toward lower tar and nicotine content, according to the FTC, which based its findings on tests of cigarette samples purchased in 50 states. The ratings were the first since November 1976.

In a report to Congress last month, the commission noted that in the past year the lower tar and nicotine cigarettes have been the subject of an intensive promotional effort by cigarette manufacturers.

The FTC, which conducts the tests annually under a mandate from Congress, called for legislation changing cigarette labeling.

Asserting that present health warnings understate the hazard, it urged Congress to order more strongly worded labels advising consumers that cigarettes can kill them.

The industry regards all cigarettes having less than 15 milligrams of tar as being in the low range. The latest ratings show 52 of the 166 brands with less than 15 milligrams of tar.

Tar ratings ranged between five-tenths of a milligram in filtered Carlton 70s regular to 34 milligrams in Players nonfilter hard packs. Nicotine ratings ranged from Carlton 70s regulars' five-one-hundredths of a milligram to Players regulars' 2.5 milligrams.

Carlton king menthol, Now king menthol (hard pack), Carlton king and Now king (hard pack) all followed with 1 milligram of tar and one-tenth of one per cent of nicotine.

Next on the list were Ioeberg 100s menthol and Lucky 100s, both with 3 milligrams of tar and three-tenths of a per cent of nicotine. In the last ratings both brands showed 9 milligrams of tar and six-tenths of one per cent of nicotine.

Repeating at the bottom was Players with 34 milligrams of tar and 2.5 per cent of nicotine. Just ahead of it was Domino with 33 milligrams of tar, 1.4 per cent of nicotine.

Tar is the element in cigarette smoke that produces cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute. Nicotine is a poison and, because it acts as a powerful stimulant in small doses, is a prime suspect as a cause of heart attacks, government officials say.

African emperor frees 55-year-old reporter

NICE, France (AP) — Associated Press reporter Michael Goldsmith has been released after being held for a month by Emperor Bokassa I of the Central African Empire.

Goldsmith arrived in Nice this morning for a brief reunion with his wife, Roxanne. He planned to fly to London this afternoon to see his mother, who is seriously ill.

The 55-year-old journalist declined to comment immediately on his arrest and confinement but said he was "in good health now" despite a history of heart trouble.

Goldsmith, a British citizen assigned to The AP office in Paris, went to Bangui, the capital of Bokassa's landlocked nation, on July 11 for a four-day stay. He was detained July 14, along with Washington Post reporter Jonathan Randall, after filing a story on the emperor and his plans for a coronation Dec. 4.

Randall, an American citizen, was released July 21 after the intervention of U.S. diplomats.

Western diplomats said they were told Goldsmith was being held incommunicado in the emperor's palace. Diplomats in Paris who sought to intervene on his behalf said Bokassa's ambassador to France told them: "Goldsmith is accused of espionage. Five hundred pages of documents were found in his possession, and every member of the diplomatic corps in Bangui knows what's in them."

There was no explanation. Selwyn Prince, a British consul stationed in Chad, flew to Bangui in late July and met with the foreign minister of the Central African Empire, but the minister refused to discuss Goldsmith's case. Other officials told Prince they believed Goldsmith to be a South African.

AP President Keith Fuller made an appeal for the release of the veteran reporter which the U.S. Ambassador Anthony Quainton relayed to the emperor on Aug. 1.

FORUM ...and against 'em

'Intelligence' and counter

By THOM MARSHALL
Pampa News Co-Editor

At one point during the most recent school board meeting, Trustee Al Smith commented, "I think the intelligent voters will see the facts and make the right choice," indicating that "the right choice" would be to vote for the bond issue.

I disagree. And while Mr. Smith has indicated he considers me unintelligent, my opinion on the issue remains that it would be better to operate with the money available and pay as we go.

Sure repairs need to be made to Pampa's schools. And that's where money should be spent — not on giving away to teachers or on interest to pay back $2.2 million in bonds over the next 12 years. That interest, by the way, is considerable. We will be paying back about 3 million dollars over twelve years in order to spend $2.2 million in three.

I won't say that any intelligent person should see that such a plan shows disrespect for the dollars that the school board fellows have extracted from PISD taxpayers, because I consider Mr. Smith and most of his fellow trustees to be intelligent beings. Misguided, perhaps, and far too liberal in their spending habits as concerns school money, but intelligent.

They are intelligent enough not to venture away from their home court when it comes to discussing the bond issue.

The board recently was challenged to a debate by John Gikas, a 12-year veteran of school board duty who has voiced much opposition to the current bond proposal, and E.C. Sidwell, also a former school board member and a former mayor of Pampa.

Gikas and Sidwell proposed an organized debate — type discussion between them and the superintendent and one of the school board members be conducted on a neutral site, open to the public.

Our school board fellows are too sharp for that one. Smith, in explaining why the tossed gauntlet would not be picked up, pointed out the number of public meetings held in the past by the school board fellows and added, "All action took place in open session when patrons were invited to be in attendance."

But those games were played on the school board's home court according to school board rules with all members of the school board, a superintendent, an assistant supe, a business manager, the school principals, and assorted other highly paid administrative personnel on the home team.

An example of how those fellows can team up against someone who questions their advice or decisions occurred at the most recent session.

At one point in the meeting Smith defended a budget item concerning travel expenses by saying it was "like you do in any industry."

But minutes later, when the same inquiring citizen Smith had directed his comment to compare another school budget item to industry, Trustee Bob Lyle parried with: "This is not industry, this is school."

Judging from that exchange, it apparently is okay by home court rules for the home team to use the line about industry but it is against the rules for any opposition to use it.

Another intelligent thing the school board fellows have done is show as many folks around the schools as possible. Show them where paint is peeling, etc. Of course much of the damage now so visible in some of the schools was a result of this summer's violent hail storm, as I understand the situation. And repairs for that damage will be covered by insurance, as I understand it.

While the school board fellows showed how much the schools are in need of repair, they preached that the only way to get things fixed up is by passing a big bond issue. Their sermon is that if we want our schools kept up properly, if we want our children to be properly housed during school days, if we want to do the "intelligent" thing, we have to vote for the bond issue.

It's a clever attack. But it isn't true. There is plenty of money available — more than $6 million a year — to run Pampa Schools and keep them in a good state of repair. Surely our school board fellows are intelligent enough to figure out how to operate properly within a budget of that dimension.

When my friend Mayor Max was accused of taking a bribe, he was first advised to plead nolo contendere.

But I told him not to do it unless he was sure a quid pro quo could be proved. A pro bono publico is always a possibility, I said.

Thanks to Spiro Agnew, everyone knows what a nolo contendere is. "It's what you do when you want to go on TV talk shows instead of to jail," Mayor Max said, indicating he would be willing to accept a similar settlement of his hassle.

But Max was not so sure about quid pro quo. "Is that when a professional fisherman catches his quota of squid?" he asked.

As for pro bono publico, Max thought this meant Sonny Bono is switching to public TV.

Obviously, for many people it is not enough that priests have quit saying mass in Latin. Politicians and Washington newsmen should make a similar concession in the interest of an informed citizenry.

For instance, Leon Jaworski has agreed to take over as counsel to the House Ethics Committee's investigation of Korean influence — peddling in Congress. He was asked how much the taxpayers must pay for his esteemed services.

He is serving "pro bono publico," Jaworski said.

What does that mean? It means Jaworski is donating his legal service "for the public good."

As a member of the public, the next Government support means government regulation, as more than one "private" institution has found to its sorrow. The most recent — and rather complicated — case is that of Davidson College in North Carolina, a Presbyterian college which, like virtually every college nowadays, accepts or allows its students to accept government funds.

Until two months ago, Davidson's by-laws required professors to be "prepared conscientiously to uphold and to increase (Davidson's) effectiveness as a church-related college." However, in February, Davidson had hired on Ronald Linden, whom it knew to be Jewish. Davidson had apparently not fully screened Mr. Linden's views on that by-law, but when he soon enlightened them, when he wrote in his letter accepting the post:

"I should make clear my strong opposition to such policies as morally repugnant, socially anachronistic, and scholastically unwise. During my time at Davidson, I will strongly support any movement to eliminate such laws and practices."

The college instantly rescinded the job offer, whereupon Mr. Linden made himself a cause celebre; the state legislature began the process of cutting off aid to Davidson students, and the trustees repealed the offending by-law.

Now, Davidson College is not the ideal ground on which to fight this battle: according to the college president, the hiring was meant deliberately as "opening a position to Jewish faculty member," so the college appears to have been either going in for tokenism, or engaging in an intramural power struggle that makes this a question of politics rather than principle.

But the case still raises two crucial points: 1) The egalitarians make no distinction between institutions that discriminate against a particular group, and institutions that are set up for a particular purpose. If this Presbyterian college had hired Moslem and Buddhist teachers and then turned down a Jew, the charge of anti-Semitism would have been made prima facie. If your local Harvard alumni association accepted members who had graduated from Yale and Berkeley but not from Chicago, it would be a discriminatory rather than a special-purpose organization; but not if it accepts only Harvard graduates. 2) Either we must resign ourselves to accepting government control of private institutions, or else we must find some socially and politically feasible way to make colleges again self-sufficient and self-governing.

time you seek the advice of a lawyer, you might be tempted to test his Latin by telling him to send his bill to Sonny Bono Publico. That wouldn't be fair.

It should be remembered that Leon Jaworski is not your everyday do-gooder. He has previous experience as special prosecutor in the Watergate investigation. He learned how much money a lawyer can make while working only for the good of the public.

Jaworski's book about Watergate is currently a best-seller. So is his law firm, thanks to Watergate publicity. And he is a regular on the lecture-TV circuit.

It is likely that Jaworski got more bono out of Watergate than any other member of the public, with the possible exception of Gerald Ford, who was practically unknown before being appointed to the pro golfo tour.

Which brings us to quid pro quo. This means "one thing in return for another." If it could be proved that Richard Nixon made Ford president in return for a pardon, that would be a quid pro quo. It would also be a blessing for golf galleries, who would no longer have to worry about being hit by Ford's stray golf balls.

The quid pro quo phrase is heard often these days in connection with quid supplied by South Koreans to many of our congressmen. How many congressmen traded quo for the quid? That's what Leon Jaworski has been retained to find out, pro bono publico.

At first, it was hoped that all guilty congressmen would voluntarily step forward and commit hara-kiri, but this idea was voted down in committee when it was discovered that hara-kiri is Japanese, not Latin. As one senator pointed out, the Japanese could be offended if they interpreted mass hara-kiri by Congress as a ridiculing re-enactment of World War II.

So now it is up to Jaworski to dust the quid and the quo for fingerprints. The case of Edwin and Elaine Edwards is typical of the puzzlers which will test the gum on Jaworski's shoes.

Edwin Edwards is now governor of Louisiana but he used to be a congressman, at which time he was a buddy of Tongsun Park, who is a South Korean businessman, not a recreational area, although there is considerable similarity.

Park had a large quota of quid to distribute. Edwin Edwards says he didn't get any, but his wife, Elaine, did. She got $10,000 in cash quid from Park. Did Congressman Edwards give Park any quo in return?

Edwards says don't be silly, he didn't even know Elaine had the quid. She spent it on clothing and he didn't even notice. He was probably too busy standing guard over his quo. A congressman can't be too careful.

Anyway, the bell just rang, signaling the end of this Latin class. On his way out Mayor Max said he has decided not to plead nolo contendere. Instead, he is going to convert all his quo into quid and put it into his wife's name, for the public good.

Then, Mayor Max said, he will go squid fishing with Sonny Bono.

A weekly report on new developments in the marketplace that are expected to affect your life

TREND: Want to play a little game with the experts? Figure out how much you spend, in an average month, on eating out. Picnics don't count. What the experts are saying is that 10 years ago, if you were typical, you spent 20 cents of every dollar in restaurants. Last year, the figure was 36 cents. And by 1980, it's expected to hit 40 cents of every buck you shell out to keep yourself and your family fed. The experts, who have surveyed Americans from the time they get up for a mid-night snack to the time they duck out for a late night bite, credit the shift to changes in lifestyle and the fact that more women are working. Women, they say, now weigh the economics of eating out compared to the time spent shopping, cooking, serving and cleaning.

SCHOOLS: Courses in reading, writing, arithmetic just aren't enough to prepare youngsters for the future. That's the inevitable conclusion of a still small but growing number of educators who are behind development of courses about the future. They note that we teach children about the past (history) and the present (usually social studies), but little about how to face the years ahead. If you're seriously interested in future studies, you can make contact with the World Future Society, an association that studies alternative futures. It's located at 4916 St. Elmo Ave. (Bethesda), Washington, D. C. 20014. It publishes a magazine and a number of newsletters on the future in housing, careers, food, communication, health, resources, technology, human values, lifestyles and government.

MEDICINE: It's a camera that doesn't take pictures like a normal camera. Nor is it an x-ray device in which x-rays make an image on film. What University of California researchers have done is develop a radiation camera that can see a beating heart in three dimensions. It uses highly sophisticated computer techniques to see different layers of muscle of the heart and the blood flowing through it. By enabling a doctor to see the true condition of the heart in action, he'll be able to tell if it's really sick. Researchers at the Berkeley, Cal., laboratory say patients will suffer little or no discomfort during the procedure, which involves converting radiation into useful images. The camera is due to be in operation by late fall.

TRAVEL: Now here's a name to remember: Kabushiki Kaisha Hasegawa Haguruma Inc., also known, for simplicity's sake, as KKH. It has patented a vehicle jack that sounds like an absolute winner. It consists of a reinforced nylon bag with a one-way valve. A hose link goes from the car's exhaust to the valve; the gas inflates the bag and raises the car so that you can change the tire. The bag also can be placed in such a way that, if you are stuck in a ditch, it will raise the car and cause it to roll away laterally.

FOOD: Watch out Col. Sanders! A Southern California supermarket chain is now offering 9 pieces of cooked chicken in a bucket for one-third less than fried chicken outlets in the area.

BUSES: As any motorist knows, there is a demon who causes the light to turn red just before he reaches a crossing. In Swansea, England, the transport authority has a solution—for buses, anyway. It involves (1) a device under the bus that identifies it to (2) a detection loop buried in the roadbed which (3) signals to a device that controls the traffic light. Thus, buses approaching a traffic light will be able to advance the start of the green light or delay the start of the red.

TEETH: You're going to be hearing a good deal more about xylitol, a natural sugar alcohol derived from leaves, mushrooms, berries, and birch bark. Reason: Research shows that it can prevent tooth decay started by other sugars. Dr. Thomas Graber of the University of Chicago believes that adding three to six sticks of xylitol gum to your diet can reduce cavities as much as 90 per cent. And he has experimental evidence to prove his claim. What the xylitol does is limit the action of streptococcus mutans, a bacteria that is present in the mouth. Specifically, this bacteria produces acids that eat into our teeth.

Your Birthday

Aug. 16, 1977

More fun things than usual are in store for you this coming year. Keep them in perspective. Take care your frivolous interests don't detract from your serious pursuits, like earning a living.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) This could be an expensive day for you because you may have to pay for someone else's mistakes. Be careful in whom you place your trust.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) You need to strike a happy medium today. In going after what you want, you are either too assertive or too vacillating.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Resist the temptation to take a few verbal swipes at one you're not fond of. If what you say is untrue, it could boomerang.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't get caught in the middle over money with friends today. Try to quietly arrange that everyone gets his or her individual check.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec.

21) Fate could tag you today, although you're innocent. Even allies you'd expect to do so could blame you if things go awry.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Take on no tasks today you feel to be beyond your ability. If something does go wrong, you could experience considerable guilt feelings.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Promises, promises, promises! That's just what they are and you'd be very unwise today to bank on anything promised until it's fulfilled.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) If you're looking for cooperation today, don't flatter or bully others. You must be sincere and compassionate to win friends and influence people.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you're somewhat of a nit-picker. Your fault-finding will annoy others and also bother you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Normally you're quite cautious about making decisions. Today you could easily fall prey to a glib salesman.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The likelihood of domestic disputes is very high today if you're too pushy. If you shove others, they'll shove back.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Because of a fear that you're in the minority today, you may let pressure groups bulldoze you. You'll fare better by standing up for your rights.

A tiring job

But a profitable one for these Denver Boy Scouts who collected more than 4,000 old tires and earned about $1,300 for their troop. The drive was sponsored by local retailers. About 40 per cent of the casing collected were reusable.

Apprenticeships give job edge

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer
As the competition for jobs increases, young would-be workers are finding that apprenticeship programs can give them the edge they need in the search for employment.

The programs usually involve from two to five years of on-the-job training along with some formal classroom training. The apprenticeships are not easy to come by. There are more applicants than there are openings in almost every area.

Unions, high school guidance counselors, vocational schools, trade associations and regional state and federal employment offices are good sources of information for specific requirements and information on how to apply.

Finding out which occupations offer apprenticeship opportunities can be tricky. To help steer young people on the right road, the Labor Department has prepared a list of jobs for which apprenticeships are available and has assessed the employment outlook in each field.

Here is a rundown of some job areas in which employment is expected to grow faster than average from now through 1985 and for which you can train in an apprenticeship program:

LITHOGRAPHIC WORKERS: Job opportunities will grow due to the increased use of offset presses in place of letter presses. The best chances are for those with some post-high school training in printing technology. Apprenticeship programs usually last four or five years.

BOILERMAKING: Construction of new electric power plants and the expansion of industries, such as steel and petroleum, which use boilers are expected to boost employment. Apprenticeship lasts four years.

OPHTHALMIC LABORATORY TECHNICIANS: The rising demand for eyeglasses will help job hunters. Training may be through apprenticeship program, vocational school or on-the-job. Some states require licenses.

ASBESTOS AND INSULATION WORKERS: Increased construction and the need for energy conservation will boost employment. Most opportunities will be in metropolitan areas. Four-year apprenticeship program, with examination on completion. Applicants generally must be at least 18.

CEMENT MASONS, CONSTRUCTION ELECTRICIANS, GLAZIERS: Increased construction activity is expected to help would-be workers. Applicants for apprenticeship programs generally must be at least 19. A three-year apprenticeship is recommended for cement masons; a four-year program for electricians and glaziers.

PLUMBERS AND PIPEFITTERS: Jobs will be available due to construction in areas such as chemical and petroleum refineries and nuclear power plants which use pipe-work. Applicants should be at least 16, an apprenticeship, including at least 144 hours of classroom training, lasts five years.

ROOFERS: Increased construction, repairs and water-proofing will create job opportunities. Applicants should be at least 18, with a high school diploma or its equivalent. Apprenticeship program is three years, with a minimum of 1,400 hours of training and 144 hours of classroom instruction in subjects like blueprint reading, mathematics and safety.

Further information is available in the Labor Department publication, "Jobs for Which Apprenticeships are Available," and a companion guide, "Jobs Requiring Junior College or Technical Training." There is no charge for either booklet; both are available from the Consumer Information Center, Pueblo, Colo., 81008.

A more complete listing of some 850 occupations, including information on the type of work involved, places of employment, training and qualifications needed, employment outlook, earnings and working conditions and sources of further details is offered in the Labor Department's "Occupational Outlook Handbook," published every two years. It costs $7 and is available from regional offices of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Nation's economic glass: half full or half empty?

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Suddenly, the chief discussion in financial circles here is whether the glass is half full or half empty, and whether we should keep our eye on the doughnut or on the hole.

That is to say, how are we to read the economic reports that point to a slower rate of expansion in the second half of the year and into 1978? Is the direction ominous? Or is it healthy?

Most of the bank and other forecasters around New York seem agreed that there is no cause for alarm, but even they cannot ignore the soft areas of the economy that the more pessimistic are emphasizing.

"The half-empty theorists — who of late seem to have an unusually persuasive impact on the stock market — stress the softness in consumer spending," notes Morgan Guaranty, which tilts toward a degree of optimism.

"U.S. economic growth is slowing down," says Chase Manhattan, but adds: "This isn't cause for alarm: What's developing is a shift from an exceptional rapid pace to one that's still substantial and also more sustainable."

And Citibank, speaking of the stock market, comments that "Wall Street might be accused of paying more attention to the hole than to the doughnut — of reacting to declines in profits by a few large corporations and ignoring the gains by the vast majority of firms."

But when an economy begins to shuffle a bit, with some indicators up and others down or sideways, it seems that forecasters of gloom come out of hibernation. Some even use the word "recession." Some say "Buy gold."

Such attitudes are still in the minority, it appears, but they are having their impact, especially on the stock market, where the Dow Jones industrial average is down to its lowest in more than a year and a half.

Is the stock market a good forecaster of events to come? You can argue it either way, depending on whose statistics you use, but there is one thing you must respect: There is a reality among those who play for money.

The next consideration is whether those who play for money are smarter than others or whether they are routed by neurotic fears, such as the ever-present threat of rising interest rates.

A lot of the big institutions haven't demonstrated an expert's ability in playing the money game over the past few years, a good deal because they seem to be responding more to fears than hopes. The doughnut and the hole.

Citibank thinks investors should be more aware of the sharp rise in corporate profits during the second quarter of the year — "the best news for the most firms in a long time."

But those disposed to worry will, of course, ask, "What about the next quarter and the quarter after that?" And they have plenty more to worry about too, if they are so inclined, such as the imbalance of trade.

Lobbyists hit FCA issue

By JEFFREY MILLS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Lobbyists on both sides of a proposal to establish a federal consumer agency are working without interruption through a month-long congressional recess to find support among members of the House of Representatives.

The buttonholing has shifted to the congressional districts and is focusing on fewer than 100 House members who are considered undecided on the bill. A vote is likely in the House this fall.

The "Nickel Campaign," inspired by consumer advocate Ralph Nader, says it has showered 40,000 nickels and propaganda letters on fence-sitting representatives. The campaign is designed to demonstrate a willingness to pay the five cents a year the agency would cost each taxpayer.

Red fights one in Louisiana

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Members of Red Adair's wild wild fighting team try again today to put out a natural gas blowout about 20 miles northwest of here in Point Coupee Parish.

The well, owned by Chevron Oil Co., blew out Saturday evening and Adair's crew from Houston was called in to try to cap it. However, efforts to do that failed on Sunday.

No one was injured in the blowout, officials said, and there is no estimate of how much gas has escaped. The blowout occurred as workmen were moving drill pipe into the well shaft, officials said.

Randy Morris killed in Saturday auto crash

A Pampa youth was in good condition this morning following an automobile accident Saturday which claimed the life of Pampa native Randy Lee Morris, 22, now of Wheeler.

A passenger in the vehicle, Matthew McCauley, 17, of Pampa was in good condition this morning at Children's Hospital in Oklahoma City.

The accident occurred at about 10:30 p.m. 16 miles east of Wheeler on State Highway 152 in Oklahoma.

The Morris car, according to the Oklahoma Highway Patrol, struck a pole and rolled over once.

Services for Morris were scheduled at 2:30 p.m. today in the First Baptist Church of Wheeler with Reverend David Campbell, pastor, officiating.

Burial was to be in Wheeler Cemetery by Wright Funeral Home.

Morris, born in Pampa, moved to Wheeler with his parents in 1965. He attended Wheeler High School and was employed on a drilling rig for two years.

Survivors include a son, Gary of Salt Lake City; his mother, Mrs. Glen Sparlin of Wheeler; his father, S.A. Morris of Wheeler; a sister, Mrs. Yvonne Bailey of Lubbock, a half brother, Elvan Allred Burk Burnett and grandparents, Mrs. W.L. Morris of Wheeler and Mr. and Mrs. R.E. Feemster of Wellington.

Carter claims confidence in Lance

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter says he has confidence in Budget Director Bert Lance but knows Lance will quit if government investigators prove there are any improprieties in his financial dealings.

The President's statement was his first expression of personal confidence in Lance since the Treasury Department, under the authority of the comptroller of the currency, began investigating loans Carter's longtime friend obtained when he was a Georgia banker.

Carter spoke in an interview with ABC News that was broadcast Sunday night. He was questioned Wednesday, at the end of a five-day visit to his hometown of Plains, Ga. Since Wednesday, there have been reports that the comptroller has broadened his investigation.

The New York Times said Saturday that investigators for Comptroller John Heimann are searching the records for about 20 additional loans which might have been extended to Mrs. Lance, as well as other family members and business entities.

In a story Sunday, the Times said "a potentially embarrassing agreement" between Lance and Robert Bloom, acting comptroller before Heimann took office, was rescinded the day before Carter nominated Lance to be budget director.

Under the agreement, signed Dec. 2, 1975, Lance pledged to correct a number of serious management deficiencies at his Calhoun First National Bank in Georgia, some of which violated the law, the Times said.

The newspaper said today that special Internal Revenue Service agents are investigating the handling of Lance's banking affairs by officials of the comptroller's office. The IRS would neither confirm nor deny that report, attributed to administration sources.

Specifically, the Times said, the IRS agents are investigating whether Bloom proceeded properly in giving Lance a clean bill of health in a letter to the Senate committee considering his nomination.

The agents also are reviewing how examiners supervised the Georgia banks with which Lance was associated before taking office, the paper said.

An administration official conceded Saturday that Carter was paying a political price for the investigations. "Certainly it's politically difficult for us," said the official, privy to the President's thinking. He declined to be identified.

Asked whether Lance might quit, the official added:

"I would expect he would not, and everyone would hope that he would not take any sort of action like that."

Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve said Sunday it was making 195 stocks traded over the counter, including those of another Lance bank, the National Bank of Georgia, subject to its reserve requirements. Lance headed the bank before joining the administration.

The action means buyers of the stock can borrow only 50 percent of the purchase price and must put the rest up in cash. Previously, there was no limit to the amount buyers could borrow for these stocks.

IRA to escalate

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer
BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — The Irish Republican Army is expected to escalate its attacks on British troops in an attempt to compensate for its failure to disrupt Queen Elizabeth's visit to Northern Ireland last week.

"Operation Monarch," the massive security operation during the royal visit, bottled the guerrillas of the IRA's Provisional wing up in the Roman Catholic areas that are their strongholds and forced them to limit their attacks to those areas.

However, the British cannot maintain that kind of round-the-clock pressure for long.

Sympathy for the Provisionals among the Catholics has waned in the last year, but they still maintain a hard core of deep-rooted support. British intelligence sources admit this is all the guerrillas need to continue their hit-and-run war.

"We know that militarily we can't win this war," said one Provisional officer. "But the Brits know they can't win either, so this thing will go on until the Brits finally get exhausted and agree to get out."

"Every Brit soldier that we shoot takes the Brits that much closer to the point of exhaustion. Every time we force the army to kick down doors and arrest women and kids, they stir up the people, and we advance."

He conceded that British efforts to improve conditions for the province's Catholic minority after 50 years of discrimination by the Protestant majority has eroded support for the Provisionals.

"It's very subtle and it's quite effective," he said, "but we can live with it."

The IRA's failure to wreck the queen's visit was one of a string of propaganda reverses it has suffered in the past year. At the same time, security forces have been arresting more guerrillas and forcing down the level of violence.

Seventy-nine persons were killed in the first half of this year, less than half the 175 killed in the same period last year.

The police say 825 persons have been rounded up since Jan. 1, 20 per cent more than were arrested during the first seven months of 1976. They say most of those brought in were Provisionals, and some were top IRA men.

Chip and wife at church, but he's still moving out

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite Chip and Caron Carter's affectionate appearance together at Sunday church services, the President's 27-year-old son is planning to move to Plains, Ga., and leave his wife and baby boy in the White House.

Chip, who resigned his $8,000-a-year job with the Democratic National Committee last week, is planning to leave for Plains in the next few days to work in the Carter peanut business, a White House spokesman says.

"It is expected that Caron and (baby) James will join Chip later," the spokesman said Sunday.

The couple were married in 1973. Their son, James Earl Carter IV, was born last Feb. 25.

Meanwhile, close friends of Chip said he and his wife have been having problems since last year's campaign.

"I don't think it was a secret to anybody in the family that Chip was unhappy in the marriage," said a former co-worker of the President's son.

On occasion, the outgoing Chip has been seen at Washington parties and in local hangouts without his wife. A vacation trip the couple took to Florida a month ago was seen by friends as a final attempt to reconcile their differences.

There have been reports that the young couple were having marital problems, but Chip and Caron smiled at each other, whispered and held hands at the worship service also attended by the President and Mrs. Carter.

Although the White House has refused to confirm or deny that Chip and Caron, 26, were considering a separation, Caron's father, Ben Griffin, said Saturday that the two were having marital problems.

"I don't think it's reached a point that it's a hopeless situation," Griffin said.

The White House also denied reports that the President had angrily ordered his son to leave the White House after Chip informed him he wanted to separate from Caron.

But a source in the White House who saw Chip after his meeting with his father Wednesday said the President's son looked like "a whipped puppy."

President assesses self

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter credits himself with improving the image of the federal government in the minds of Americans, but he concedes that his administration has yet to prove it can solve the nation's toughest problems.

In a critique of his performance after six months in office, Carter concluded that progress has been made in improving the tone of government.

But the President expressed discouragement over efforts to lower inflation and unemployment. And he admitted that there have been no spectacular achievements in foreign affairs.

In a personal report card, Carter summed up his first months in office this way: "Specifics — too early to say. Tone, trust — pretty good."

Carter had been asked to rate himself as President in an interview with ABC News, conducted in his hometown of Plains, Ga., last Wednesday and broadcast Sunday.

The Arawak Indians used hex signs on their houses to ward off evil spirits.

Ma Bell averts strikes

By The Associated Press
Agreements reached in weekend bargaining around the country ended or averted strikes against most local telephone companies, but scattered walkouts continued today.

Mail ratification was expected to be completed by mid-September on contract agreements reached this weekend on local issues.

The Communications Workers of America and Bell Telephone Co. had reached a national contract agreement on Aug. 6 calling for 31 per cent in wage increases over three years.

Sales personnel, line workers, clerks, operators, repair workers and installers were involved in the local contracts.

Strikes that began at midnight Saturday in New York State, Indiana, and parts of Georgia lasted only hours before negotiators agreed on terms. However, walkouts were in effect today in parts of Virginia, Michigan and New England.

In Richmond, Va., some 750 CWA members are striking a Western Electric Co. plant, which continued operating with management and supervisory workers. Western Electric makes Bell equipment.

About 165 advertising representatives who are CWA members continued on strike against the New England Telephone Co. in Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine. Picket lines were reported in Springfield, Mass., and Portland, Maine.

A larger force of 25,000 New England Bell workers, members of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, settled a pact with the company this weekend.

In Michigan, Bell settled with 20,000 CWA workers after a seven-hour strike. However, some operators continued to picket at Ann Arbor, saying they want extra money for dealing with computers.

Western Electric Co. settled with 20,000 CWA employees on Sunday. Some Georgia members had begun to picket when word of the settlement reached them.

A strike by 32,000 workers in New York State ended after seven hours.

Illinois Bell reached agreement with the CWA and the IBEW on contracts covering 25,000 workers.

Connecticut workers reached tentative agreement with the Southern New England Telephone Company, keeping 9,100 workers on the job.

The CWA agreed on a local contract with Indiana Bell early Sunday, ending a four-hour walkout by 8,200 workers across the state.

In Seattle, Pacific Northwest Bell made an 11-hour settlement with 11,000 workers.

In Denver, negotiators for CWA's Mountain Bell Bargaining Unit and the telephone company reached tentative agreement on the pact Saturday. It covers local issues affecting 23,000 Rocky Mountain area telephone workers.

The Pacific Telephone Company reached accord with 60,000 workers who are covered by the CWA, the Order of Repairmen and Toll Testers and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Pacific Telephone serves about seven million customers in California and Nevada with a total work force of 93,000.

In Pennsylvania and Delaware, the Bell Telephone Co. reached agreements covering about 25,000 employees.

First lady has surgery

WASHINGTON (AP) — First Lady Rosalynn Carter, who will celebrate her 50th birthday Thursday, was operated on today in what her press secretary described as "a routine gynecological procedure."

"Mrs. Carter is just fine and will leave the hospital later today," said press officer Mary Hoyt after the dilation and curettage operation.

Mrs. Carter arrived at the operating room in Bethesda Naval Hospital about 6:30 a.m. and returned to the presidential suite at about 7:50 a.m., Mrs. Hoyt said.

"It is anticipated she will be picked up later today by the President and will go directly from the hospital to Camp David for the rest of the week," she said.

The procedure was performed by Dr. Douglas Knab, chief of the obstetrics and gynecological division at the suburban Maryland hospital.

For many years the procedure has been used to treat minor irregularities in the female reproductive tract.

Mrs. Hoyt and White House physician William Lukash accompanied Mrs. Carter to the hospital Sunday night.

No schedule changes are planned for the First Lady, who is preparing for a visit to Canada later this month.

Nazi escapes from Rome

ROME (AP) — Ex-Gestapo official Herbert Kappler, serving a life term for the reprisal mass execution of 335 Italian civilians, has vanished from a military hospital where he was being treated for cancer, police said today.

Kappler, 70, had said he wanted to die in Germany, but Italy's highest court ruled last December against setting him free.

On learning of his disappearance, Jewish leaders in Rome called for a demonstration at the hospital later today.

The onetime Rome commander of the Gestapo, the Nazi secret police, had been under treatment at Celio hospital here for the past several months. His lawyer said he was suffering from terminal stomach cancer.

Police gave no details of the disappearance, but the state-owned radio network said it learned that Kappler was visited at the hospital early Sunday by two women carrying two large bags.

The radio said the women may have arranged the escape, taking Kappler away in a waiting automobile. The radio station conjectured that it was possible to carry the German out in a large bag "because of Kappler's light weight after so many months of cancer sufferings."

Police later found the car on a Rome street, but there were no traces of the woman or Kappler, the broadcast said.

The 335 Romans were shot on Kappler's orders in the Ardeatine Caves near the catacombs in southern Rome on March 24, 1944, just 24 hours after Italian partisans attacked a column of German soldiers marching up downtown Rome's Via Rasella and killed 32 of them.

The court that sentenced the Gestapo chief to life imprisonment in 1948 found that he was following orders for the execution of 320 persons — Nazi policy called for such a 10-1 ratio of retaliation — but held him personally responsible for the 15 other deaths.

Kappler argued that the other deaths resulted from the confusion of the moment.

He served 28 years in prison, most of them at a medieval castle-prison in Gaeta, a seacoast town between Rome and Naples, before being transferred to the hospital.

They were in collision with a vehicle driven by a Cabot employee.

"On such occasion, defendant's employee who was then and there within the scope and course of his employment, was negligent. Such negligence was a proximate cause of the injuries to plaintiff..." the petition reads.

Two separate suits were filed against Cabot Corporation late Friday in 223rd District Court here as a result of an accident June 27, three miles east of Pampa on U.S. 60.

A van, in which the plaintiffs were riding, was in collision with a car driven by Cabot employee Louis Clinton Jones, 41, of 1806 Fir. Jones was pronounced dead at the scene.

The suits, filed by John Throckmorton Jr. and Marjorie Sawyer, both Gray County residents, seek $9,999 each for pain and lost earnings.

The CWA agreed on a local contract with Indiana Bell early Sunday, ending a four-hour walkout by 8,200 workers across the state.

In Seattle, Pacific Northwest Bell made an 11-hour settlement with 11,000 workers.

In Denver, negotiators for CWA's Mountain Bell Bargaining Unit and the telephone company reached tentative agreement on the pact Saturday. It covers local issues affecting 23,000 Rocky Mountain area telephone workers.

The Pacific Telephone Company reached accord with 60,000 workers who are covered by the CWA, the Order of Repairmen and Toll Testers and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers.

Pacific Telephone serves about seven million customers in California and Nevada with a total work force of 93,000.

In Pennsylvania and Delaware, the Bell Telephone Co. reached agreements covering about 25,000 employees.

Police report

Pampa police investigated two thefts and four non-injury accidents over the weekend. Officers also arrested one man for driving with a suspended license and made two arrests for driving while intoxicated.

A riding moor and barbecue grill were reported stolen from 1632 N. Faulkner and thieves took several traffic cones and at least two wooden barricades from the construction site on Barnes Street.

The Pampa Fire Department responded to an alarm from 1708 Aspen Saturday, according to Tom Leggett, fireman.

Leggett said the alarm was actually a smoke scare. An air conditioner motor had shorted out but there was no fire.

Damage was restricted to the motor. Owner of the property is G.A. Darling.

Texas weather

By The Associated Press
Thunderstorms were expected to roam the state again today after widely scattered thunderstorms and showers dumped generally light amounts of rainfall around Texas Sunday and during the night.

Most stations reporting any moisture at all reported amounts slightly more than a trace of rainfall.

More thunderstorms were on tap today, mainly in the afternoon and evening over the entire state.

Most portions of the state reported partly cloudy skies early today.

Jaycee music festival

"Gospel Joy" a group of girls from Berger will be among the entries in the International Country Gospel Music Festival Aug. 25 at M.K. Brown Auditorium. Wally Fowler of Nashville, Tenn. will be featured at the festival, which is sponsored by the Pampa Jaycees. First prize will be $50. Second and third prizes will be announced later. From left are Diane Berry, Theresa Anderson, and Janis McCown with Jan Smith, seated. Those interested in entering the contest are urged to call Ron Spears at 869-6642. A limited supply of tickets are on sale at Cabot Corporation in the Hughes Building and Montgomery Ward at Coronado Center. Proceeds will go to the Jaycee charitable community activities.

Advice

Dear Abby

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I have a handwritten letter from a highly respected prominent married man who was my lover for 17 years. In that letter he said he never loved anyone in his life the way he loved me!

He died recently, and now I want the world to know the truth.

Can I buy space in my local newspaper and have that letter reproduced? Nothing would make me happier.

BACKSTREET SWEETHEART

DEAR SWEETHEART: Each editor uses his own discretion as to what shall be published in his newspaper. But I hope you realize that what may make YOU "happy" may cause embarrassment and heartache for the family of your deceased lover. Think about it. Then please forget it.

DEAR READERS: The editor of Teen Magazine sent me an "ad" that ran in a high school newspaper. With so many teenagers seeking summer employment, it might be helpful:

Looking for a Job? Use this checklist on job interviews:

1. Ask for at least $374 a month, plus free room and board.
2. Insist on 30-days' vacation for the first year.
3. Demand $300 for new clothes, plus upkeep allowance.
4. Be sure full, free recreational facilities are available—golf, tennis, theatres, pool, horseback riding, etc.
5. Scream if you don't have a free medical and dental plan with unlimited sick leave. Tell your boss-to-be you expect a $150 per month raise if you get married.
6. Don't be hassled because you are without experience. Pound the table and let it be known that you expect to learn a skill at his expense with full pay.
7. Insist on the option of quitting after three years to go to college and that you expect him to contribute two-thirds to an educational fund of more than $8000!

The punch line: "If an employer agrees to all of these terms, you're in the U.S. Army!"

DEAR ABBY: My problem is really more of a question. Which way should a corsage be worn?

My mother says you wear flowers just like they grow—with the stems at the bottom, and the flowers on top. If she's right, almost every girl I've seen wearing a corsage has had it on upside down.

Is my mother right?

D.B.

DEAR D.B.: She's right.

CONFIDENTIAL TO D.W.R.: The only way I know of to double your money is to fold it over once and put it back in your pocket.

Ask Dr. Lamb

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB: I am a diabetic and have been for 10 years. I use 30 units of Lente and eight units of Ultralente insulin each morning. I have been called a yo-yo diabetic because my monthly blood test results in a count from a low of 55 to as high as 400.

Even though I am extremely careful of what I eat and get what I consider a reasonable amount of exercise, the numbers come up high and this is most alarming to me. My doctor says not to worry, but I do.

Is there a guaranteed diet to follow? I hear so much about fructose, lactose, dextrose and all the rest that I am confused. What causes the extremes in sugar count even though the diet doesn't change?

I'm 51, female, 5 feet tall and weigh 120 pounds. Since I'm a shorty I would like to take off some weight but this is difficult being a diabetic and subject to insulin shock. How can I lose weight without the risk of insulin shock?

My diet consists of fish, chicken, vegetables, and an occasional lamb or beef meal. Ten years ago my weight was 102 pounds. Thank you for any advice you can give.

DEAR READER: A diabetic's life has to be fairly well regulated in terms of diet, activity, and even exposure to stress to have a constant blood sugar level if the diabetes has progressed to the point that insulin must be used.

The best advice I can give you with your story is to eliminate all starches, and all sweets. Give up milk, too. Why? To get rid of all the ready sources of glucose. All of the starches and sugars are converted to simple sugars (monosaccharides) in the small intestine before they can be absorbed. If you consume foods that are rapidly

Polly's pointers

By Polly Cramer

DEAR POLLY: Thrifty wrote that she was looking for a useful place for her small appliances that need repair. She should contact the high schools in her area as many of them offer students a class in appliance repair and would appreciate such a donation. — JOAN

DEAR POLLY: When new shoes or purses have an odor in them put some of your favorite chewing gum on the inside. Unwrap it, of course, and leave in the shoes or purse for about 48 hours.

Sometimes patients in nursing homes get into the wrong room by mistake so I have made name tags that can be attached to their clothing. The proper room number is also on the tag so it is easy for an aide to get a "lost" patient back to the room where he belongs.

When tennis shoes get muddy let the mud dry before trying to clean them. When dry most of it peels right off. When washing sneakers use an old but stiff toothbrush and warm soapy water. — LUCINDA

DEAR POLLY: Now that the weather is so warm many children will be using their wading pools. Instead of just dumping the water out at the end of the day have the little ones get their sprinkling cans or even their sand buckets, fill them with the water in the pool and then water Mommy and Daddy's plants. This saves water so impresses conservation on the children and keeps the children amused for a while longer, too. There is no need to feel guilty about filling the pool with scarce water when it can be used as both a pleasure and a necessity. — JEAN

The piercing truth

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) — Do you know what you can get besides holes for ornaments when you have your ears pierced?

Given the right medical history and the right circumstances, you can get dead, for one thing.

Dr. Robert B. Payne of Charlotte, N.C., who specializes in internal medicine and cardiology, knows of one such case.

Several years ago, a college student, 19, came to him with infected earlobes.

"She had pierced her ears herself, using broom straws to keep the holes open," he says, "and that's how the infection got started."

And once started, it moved quickly through the circulatory system into the brain. The student eventually died of staph infection and a brain abscess.

Possibly she shouldn't have had her ears pierced at all because she had "severe rheumatic heart disease" and was vulnerable to infection. Surely she shouldn't have done it without medical supervision.

Ear piercing, you see, creates a puncture wound which, doctors say, can provide a "portal of entry" for infection, especially when the piercing is done under non-sterile conditions — at home, in jewelry and department stores. (Swabbing beforehand with alcohol, they say, is adequate for an injection — a quick healing puncture — but alcohol won't kill viruses such as serum hepatitis.)

Still, that college student thought ear piercing was an innocuous enough procedure, and many jewelry and department stores seem to agree.

But, says Payne, "If I were running a department store, I'd be terrified to think my store was piercing ears because you're doing a surgical procedure and taking great risk."

He stressed that to stores in Charlotte and, for the past five years, he says, he hasn't seen a case of serious infection from ear piercing "because it's now being done here by surgeons and ear, nose and throat specialists."

Sterile conditions aside, how often does anyone in a department or jewelry store take an adequate medical history from a customer to avoid poor risks? asks Dr. Thomas A. Cortese, Jr., an Indianapolis dermatologist who has written about the complications of ear piercing.

And who ever thinks, as he does, to check any scars on the body? "I do that to make sure the person isn't subject to keloids. That's when the tissue keeps building up after the wound is healed and you get a growth that can be permanent." On the earlobe, that would look like a marble, obviously something to be avoided.

Then there's the most common complication of all, allergy to metal, usually to nickel which is a common alloy of gold.

Pure gold, you see, is 24 carat. Any other denomination, 14 carat, for instance, means alloys have been added, usually nickel because of its strength and color.

When women with a susceptibility to nickel allergy (perhaps one out of three) have their ears pierced with earrings containing nickel, which is often the case, they can develop an uncomfortable sensitivity which can last for life.

"I use earrings with stainless steel posts with 24-carat gold on top of that to pierce ears," Cortese says, "and in ten years I've had no allergy at all in the patients I've pierced."

All risks considered, he concludes, "There should be regulations against indiscriminate ear piercing by lay people."

That may take some doing considering how department stores and jewelry companies thrive on ear-piercing promotions. The "buy a pair of earrings and we'll pierce your ears free" pitch.

"It's one of the most successful ways to literally create new customers," says Norman Silverman, New York Sales representative of Wells-Benrus which regularly sponsors ear-piercing promotions in stores around the country.

"In January, we had our first three-day ear piercing promotion in Gimbel's in New York," he says. "We did 800 women in those three days which amounted to $8,000."

The people who do the piercing, he says, are practical and registered nurses whom Wells trains for a week.

Basically, they're taught to use a "stapling" gun in which they insert a prepackaged plastic cartridge containing a 14-carat gold earring.

Wells supplies the store with liability insurance, and the customer signs a form releasing Wells and the store from all responsibility for any "loss, damage or injury, including death." Her signature also acknowledges "awareness of the risks and hazards inherent in ear lobe piercing."

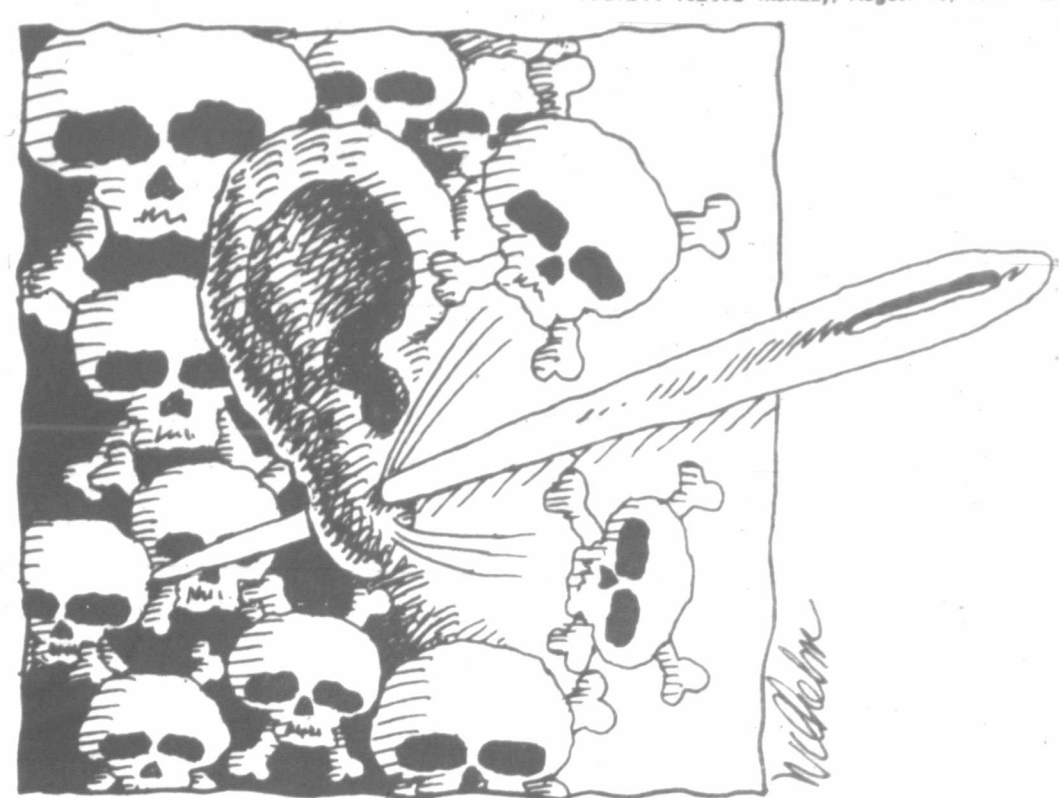

Is she aware? And do the nurses take medical histories?

"We instruct our people to ask about things such as diabetes," he says, poor risk criteria. "In fact, we turned away people just today in a store on Long Island."

We didn't see anyone turned away that day in Gimbel's New York where Wells had just begun another three-day promotion. We watched an endless line of women getting their ears pierced by two young women in white who said they were nurses.

One spoke English with great difficulty. Neither, in our two visits to the store, asked any customer for a medical history or did anything more than swab earlobes with prepackaged "clinical towelettes," mark them for piercing and staple the earrings through.

Oh, yes, as far as nickel content in Wells' 14-carat gold earrings, Silverman thought it did exist, but the president of the company allowed as how he didn't know.

Tiffany's has conscience

NEW YORK (AP) — The Tiffany touch embraces emerald bracelets, solid gold watches and diamonds by the yard. Yet few people know the glittering palace on Fifth Avenue as a showcase for capitalist common sense and religious credo.

The driving force is Walter Hoving, Tiffany's board chairman and chief executive. He likes to believe the world's most famous jewelry store has a conscience.

"I think a company should have a soul. Most don't. I know. That's why American business has gotten such a bad reputation. Profit maximizing sounds so greedy," Hoving said in a recent interview.

While this gentle man enjoys setting standards of taste and elegance for the Social Register set, he has another consuming interest — The Walter Hoving Home in Garrison, N.Y., for heroin-addicted girls.

More than $356,000 is sent to the center each year from store sales of a small pin with the message, "Try God." Hoving, a devout Episcopalian, wears one in the lapel of his tailor-made suit jackets.

"We teach the girls to accept God into their lives," said the tall, lean Hoving, who has run Tiffany's since 1963. "We take them out of poverty and put them into the Lord's hands. Our success rate has been phenomenal."

That is the private side of Tiffany's. The public side is spelled out in the store's familiar, subdued ads appearing almost daily in the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, the Chicago Tribune, the Los Angeles Times and other newspapers.

Sometimes the $1,000 ads display jewelry. Other times they are mini-lessons in capitalist thought, with such titles as "Is Profit a Dirty Word?" and "Are the Rich a Menace?"

This kind of personal conviction mystifies Wall Street analysts and may be the reason Tiffany's has retained a unique corporate image since it was founded in 1837 by Charles Lewis Tiffany.

Tiffany's 800 employees don't spend hours analyzing public taste. Instead they decide for themselves what jewelry is chic and exciting.

"That old motto about 'Give the customer what she wants' is ridiculous," Hoving said. "Most people don't know what is beautiful. So they rely on us to show them."

Despite stock market declines in recent years, Tiffany's profits are stronger than ever. Hoving says they usually run about 6 per cent — well above average for retail and department stores.

You may want to put half of that batch of cupcakes you have baked in the freezer. Leave them unfrosted. To thaw, let them stand unwrapped at room temperature for about half an hour. Remove the wrapping and frost.

Airline feud grows hot

DALLAS (AP) — The feud among three Texas-based airlines warmed Sunday when a report by the Justice Department surfaced, alleging that Braniff International and Texas

International airlines worked together to thwart competition by Southwest Airlines.

The report claimed the two interstate carriers exchanged business secrets and ordered employees not to cooperate with the intrastate Southwest Airlines.

Cited in the report were internal company memos and grand jury testimony that had been secret.

That grand jury testimony was made in 1975, after an anti-trust indictment charged that Braniff and TI conspired to restrain trade at a time when Southwest was just getting off the ground. The indictment was dismissed on procedural grounds.

A new grand jury is presently investigating the case. Both Braniff and TI have denied any wrongdoing in the matter.

Southwest was organized in 1967, but court cases kept the airline on the ground until 1971, when a Supreme Court ruling allowed it to begin service.

Once service began, the report said, Braniff and TI mapped strategies that included close monitoring of Southwest ticketing operations. The report said the goal was to see if Southwest was violating Civil Aeronautics Board rules by carrying passengers making interstate flight connections.

The report also quotes a memo in which Jim Street, Braniff director of passenger and cargo services, told his employees, "If one of our Rocket flights incurs a delay, we will not under any circumstances refer any of our stranded or delayed passengers to Southwest."

"We will supply no information, loan no equipment nor in any way accommodate or assist Southwest Airlines."

The report also states that a TI executive tried to influence officeholders to appoint persons sympathetic to Braniff and TI to the Texas Aeronautics Commission.

Briscoe chooses no side in Hill-Bullock battle

EDINBURG, Tex. (AP) — Texas Gov. Dolph Briscoe will sit on the sidelines and not enter the political battle brewing in Austin between the state's attorney general and comptroller.

Last week, Atty Gen. John Hill was taken to the Texas Supreme Court by Comptroller Bob Bullock over Hill's reluctance to release delinquent tax rolls to the comptroller.

"I won't comment on that situation," said Briscoe Sunday before delivering the commencement speech at Pan American University. "That is strictly between the two men involved."

However, the governor did comment on the upcoming $2 increase in vehicle inspection fees.

When asked if the increase refuted the governor's oft-made statement that Texans have had no "new taxes" during his reign, Briscoe replied: "I don't think that can be considered a new tax. We considered that very carefully before the increase was made. I can't remember the exact percentage, but most of that increase goes to the businesses where the inspections are made. These people were hurt by the $2 fee so most of the money made off the increase to $4 will go to them."

The governor urged Pan American's 550 golden anniversary graduates, "not to be content with simply making do with the results of unsuccessful policies of the past. One common ingredient to success, whether we are measuring an individual or an entire civilization, is the will to succeed."

"Without the will to overcome obstacles and challenges," he continued, "no educational preparation on earth can prepare an individual for a successful life, a successful career or a success experience of any kind."

Women to boycott firms

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — A boycott resolution The women's group alleged that the Stevens Co. discriminated against women and blacks.

Assessments were voted by the caucus with an eye toward building a political war chest. The group decided to gather $27,000 to be used in electing women to the Texas House in vulnerable district. Some of the money would also be donated to organizations lobbying for causes deemed worthy by the Caucus.

Resolutions endorsing welfare reform, abortions for welfare recipients and equal rights for homosexuals were adopted.

Mimi Purnell of Austin was elected president of the Caucus, replacing Bonnie Lesley of El Paso.

Wadkins wins PGA title in sudden-death playoff

By TOM SEPPY
AP Sports Writer
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins feels like both hero and villain. Wadkins, a seven-year pro who has never reached the level of greatness predicted for him, won the 59th PGA National Championship Sunday with a victory over Gene Littler on the third hole of the sudden death playoff.

"I feel like a villain in a lot of ways," said the 27-year-old Wadkins in pulling off the biggest comeback of the tour this year when he made up six strokes in the final round. "They just don't come any finer than Gene. He's everybody's Mr. Nice Guy."

"At this point in his career, it would have meant a lot. I've had a rough three years, but Gene has been through worse than me."

The 47-year-old Littler, leader from the beginning, had a five-stroke lead going into the final nine holes but bogeyed five of the first six and then had pars on the last three to drop into a tie with Wadkins, who birdied No. 18 to finish his round at six-under 282.

"I made a lot of bad decisions about starting out and coming in," said Littler, whose nickname is "the Machine" for his near-perfect swing. "I misclubbed at least a half dozen times."

While Wadkins waited on the 18th green, Littler and Jack Nicklaus, playing one three-some apart, were locked in a duel which many thought would produce the winner on the sunlit, 6,888-yard, par-72 Pebble Beach Golf Links.

Littler, winner in Houston by three strokes over Wadkins, made the turn for home at 10 strokes under par, taking bogeys at Nos. 3 and 5 but making birdies on 4, 6 and 7. Nicklaus and Wadkins made the turn at six under.

Littler then bogeyed No. 10, parred No. 11 and bogeyed Nos. 12 through 15.

While this was taking place, Nicklaus parred No. 10 through 16 before catching a bad break on No. 17 when his tee shot on the 200-yard, par-three hole caught the crown of the green and kicked right. He bogeyed the hole to go five under.

"Gene wanted to give it to me," said Nicklaus, "but I couldn't take it."

Littler parred the final three holes to set up the first sudden-death playoff ever in a major tournament.

On the first extra hole, a 382-yard, par four, Wadkins said he used the wrong club and missed the green. He saved par with a 20-foot putt, while Littler had a tap-in for his par.

Both birdied the 502-yard, par-five second hole, each missing an eagle putt with balls rimming the cup.

On the 388-yard, par-four third, Littler hit his second shot short and to the left while Wadkins went over the green. Littler then chipped out of the grass badly and missed the 20-foot putt to the right.

Wadkins chipped to within five feet, sank the putt and leaped with joy.

To Wadkins, the victory meant many things in addition to the $45,000 first prize. He becomes a member of the Ryder Cup and World Cup teams and is exempt from qualifying on the tour for the next 10 years and for the PGA Championship for a lifetime.

In 1975, Mike Garman, then with the St. Louis Cardinals, handed out 23 intentional bases on balls, a record.

But Jack still King

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent
PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, golf's "bridesmaid," can't you see it in the headlines now? Another major championship lost by the margin of a gnat's eyebrow — his third this year.

Hasn't won a major now in 24 months. Thirty-seven years old. Maybe some of the old zing is gone, eh? Where's that old knockout punch? Remember Ben Hogan? What happened to Arnold Palmer?

Poor Jack. Yeah, poor Jack. He needs your sympathy about as much as the Rockefeller do. Or the sheiks of Arab.

Throw no charity bazars for the Golden Bear. No tin cups on the street corners, please. Forget those solicitations for aid.

Vultures may be winging overhead, but they may die of starvation or boredom if they plan to wait for Jack Nicklaus' bones to be picked.

Young Lanny Wadkins, 27, is the new PGA champion but Nicklaus remains king of the pros. Even Tom Watson, the brightest star of 1977, acknowledges it openly.

"He is the master," says Watson, who barely beat out Nicklaus for the Masters and British Open titles this year. "Ten years from now, maybe I can claim it, maybe somebody else can. But it's a recognition that can only be carved out over a great number of years — as Jack has done."

Nicklaus' third place finish in the PGA here, one shot back of Wadkins and 47-year-old Gene Littler, earned him $15,000 and pushed his 1977 prize collection to $285,812, within easy reach of Watson's leading $281,478.

Jack has led the money-winning list eight of his 15 years as a pro. He has scored over $3 million in official money, almost twice that of his closest pursuer. Besides his 63 tour victories, 79 world-wide and 14 major pro championships, his 1-3-3 record in the major tournaments is phenomenal.

He has 15 seconds and nine thirds, meaning that with a tricky bounce here and there Nicklaus could have amassed 25 or more major crowns.

"Each time I come close and don't win, it hurts me," Nicklaus said after surging from six shots back of the front-running Littler with nine holes to play to pull even going to the next-to-last hole.

Rangers one back

By DENNE H. FREEMAN
AP Sports Writer
ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — The Texas Rangers sealed a contract on Chicago's "South Side Hit Men" Sunday night, sending the White Sox staggering out of Arlington Stadium with taunts of their own theme song:

"Na na na na, na na na na, hey hey hey, good-bye," a record Sunday crowd of 29,734 fans chanted as the Rangers outslugged the White Sox 12-9 to move within a game of the American League Western Division leaders.

The theme song, which comes from a hit record in the late 1960s, is chanted by Chicago fans after each time a White Sox opponent gets into trouble. The team organist starts it up and the chant has seemed to inspire the low-rated White Sox all year.

Ranger pitcher Dock Ellis said, "Our fans are starting to feel the excitement of being in a pennant race. They know they are getting something now and they're going to be back for more."

Ranger Manager Billy Hunter said, "The fans have given us a big lift. That's why Chicago plays so well at home is because they have the fans behind them."

Texas took two out of three games in the series, which drew a record 101,718 fans. Never had such crowds attended a three-game series in the six-year history of the Ranger franchise.

The Rangers won, 10-7, lost 6-5 and then followed the hitting of Claudell Washington and relief pitching of Paul Lindblad and Ellis to the victory Sunday night.

"We knew we would probably have to score 10 or 12 runs each game to beat them and we did," said Hunter.

White Sox Manager Bob Lemon, whose team is batting .283, said, "Let's face it. They (the Rangers) have better hitting and pitching than we did."

Orantes upsets flat Connors

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Spain's Manuel Orantes enjoys not having any pressure when he plays Jimmy Connors.

"If I lose to Jimmy, everyone expects it, so the pressure is on him," said Orantes, who needed only 72 minutes to win his third U.S. Open Clay Court championship at the Indianapolis Racquet Club on Sunday.

Orantes said he was surprised with the ease of his nationally televised 6-1, 6-3 victory over Connors, who is the top-ranked player in the United States and rates alongside Bjorn Borg of Sweden as the world's best.

"He made a lot of mistakes, which is unusual for him," said Orantes, the world's sixth-rated player, whose last victory over Connors came in the finals of the U.S. Open in 1975.

The play of Orantes, who earned $17,500 for the victory, failed to impress Connors.

"He just kept the ball in play and didn't do anything exciting," said Connors, who won here in 1974 and 1976. "He doesn't have an overpowering game, but had good movement."

Connors, who went home with $6,750, said the tournament was important for his conditioning. "I feel better today than I did yesterday," he said, "but I'm going to take a week off and then play in Boston before the (U.S.) open at Forest Hills. By then, I'll be roaring."

Orantes, who won here in 1973 and 1975, wasn't ready to talk about a rest.

In men's doubles, Australians Cliff Letcher and Dick Crealy lost more than the championship when they were defeated by Chileans Jaime Filio and Patricio Cornejo 5-7, 7-5, 6-3.

Tournament director Stan Maliss withheld their winnings of $1,625 apiece because the team was almost an hour late for the championship match. He added that a letter would be sent to the International Professional Tennis Council asking that action be taken against them.

Third-seeded Laura DuPont, Matthews, N.C., stopped six-time champion Nancy Richey, San Angelo, Tex., 6-4, 6-3. Saturday for the women's singles title. South Africans Linky Boshoff and Ilana Kloss successfully defended their doubles title by beating Wendy Overton, Boca Raton, Fla., and Mary Carillo, Douglaston, N.Y., 7-5, 6-3.

Del Rio loses

PLAINVIEW — New Orleans pitchers Dick Wentz and Guy Rutledge each baffled Del Rio batters with one hit, 4-0 and 10-0, to win the Southwest Regional Babe Ruth Tournament championship here.

New Orleans advanced to Newark, Ohio where they will play the Pacific Northwest camp in the first round of the Babe Ruth World Series Aug. 20-27.

ST. LOUIS CARDINALS PROSPECTUS

Like Bengals, Cardinals may have been best 10-4 team not to make the playoffs. Don Coryell has been something of a miracle man in his four years. Cards have won 31 games the last three. And he's done it with defense that always look sieve-like but manages to hold together. Upgrading that defense continues to be main area of concentration. Attack is potent

OFFENSE

Quarterback: Jim Hart, that free agent find of long ago, continues to rank with best passers in league, throws often and long. And Cardinals drafted eventual successor, Steve Pisarcikewicz. Rating—B+.

Receiving: Development of Ike Harris, who led with 52 receptions, has taken pressure off Mel Gray, makes double coverage almost impossible. Especially speedy J.V. Cain also zips through secondaries from tight end. Backup help available. Rating—A-.

Running: The quality threat is Terry Metcalf, who needs to be spelled because of heavy duty as returns man, receiver and runner. George Franklin may be rookie fullback to crash through. Otherwise Jim Ots and Steve Jones lead brigade of heavy duty backs. Rating—B.

Offensive Line: One of stellar units in league. Couple of all-pros on right side in ferocious guard Corrad Dobler, man-mountain Dan Dierdorf. Tom Banks at center is all-league type, too. Drop in quality on left side, but not enough to be felt. Rating—A-.

DEFENSE

Defensive Line: They've tried a lot of bodies in recent years, and they're still trying them. Oldster Bob Rowe retired, but he was hurt in '76, leaving room for brisk development of Mike Dawson as rookie. Keep hoping Walt Patulski will progress. Rating—B-.

Linebackers: Won't seem the same without Larry Stallings on right side, as he was for 14 years. Yet unit is well enough fortified with Tim Kearney in middle, Mark Arneson and Al Beauchamp outside. Also have Penn State rookie, Kurt Alleman. Rating—B.

Secondary: Strong unit led by play of Roger Wehrli on one corner, vet Ken Reaves at safety. Also acquired Perry Smith, competent corner, from Green Bay, and got good results last year from Mike Sensibaugh at safety. Picked up Neal Craig, too. Rating—B-.

Kicking: Special Teams: For accuracy and consistency, there's no better placement kicker than Jim Bakken. But Terry Joyce was last in NFC punting, so Cards signed Mitch Hoopes, ex-Cowboy. Terry Metcalf reluctantly agreed to continue return duty. Rating—B.

PREDICTION

Cards have been running neck-and-neck with Dallas and Washington for division laurels last three years. Not much to choose between them if Cards straighten out their defensive front, they could jump ahead. Meanwhile, pick them third in NFC East.
