Reagan issues call for military strength

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

LISBON, Portugal — President Reagan, lashing out at Soviet and Nicaraguan leaders, declared today that Western nations must remain militarily strong "so that never again would we be forced...to resort to violence" to safeguard liberty.

Warning of threats of Soviet aggression that have persisted since the end of World War II, Reagan rejected criticism from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev and accused Nicaragua of "interfering with democracy in the Americas."

About 40 Communist Party delegates to Portugal's Assembly of the Republic walked out of the chamber before Reagan delivered the final major speech of his 10-day European tour, after he conferred with Prime Minister Mario Soares.

The president began his speech at a rostrum overflowing with red, white and blue carnations by ad-libbing to the remaining delegates, "I'm sorry that some of the chairs on the left seem to be uncomfortable."

At another point in his address, which was warmly applauded by the 250-member Assembly, Reagan interjected that the meaning of democracy included "the right to speak, to assemble, to publish and to vote, even to walk out."

Shortly before Reagan entered the chamber, a sergeant-at-arms in blue swallowtail coat trimmed in gold ceremoniously removed a caged dove from the desk of Green Party deputy Antonio Gonzales and carried it outside, to loud boos from Communist members who then stalked out.

After the speech, the Communists issued a statement saying their walkout was intended to display their "indignation and repulse as to Mr. Reagan's presence, especially after his homage to Nazi criminals, members of the SS, in the cemetery of Bitburg."

The president congratulated Portugal for turning away from 42 years of dictatorial rule to embrace democracy, and criticized communist societies.

He said it is in "the collectivist world that economies stagnate, that technology is lagging and that people are oppressed and unhappy with their lives."

Citing Portugal's heritage of producing explorers, Reagan said, "Once again, you are charting a new course, not just for Portugal, but for all others especially those people of the Third World with whom your long-established ties permit you to speak with a special trust, wisdom and candor."

In summing up his trip, Reagan said, "I have seen in these past days reminders of the tragedy and the grandeur of our time; I have heard the voice of the 20th century. It is humanity's voice, heard in every century, every time.

Missile comments 'justified'

By NORMAN BLACK
AP Military Writer

WASHINGTON — Pentagon officials say President Reagan is justified in singling out a new Soviet missile as a major threat to the nuclear balance, but critics charge the Soviet weapon is less of a threat to America than the MX missile is to the Russians.

"The MX is obviously much more of a first-strike weapon than the SS-X-24, in part because it's more accurate," said John D. Steinbruner, director of foreign policy studies at the Brookings Institution.

"And you can't call their missile a first-strike weapon and not say the same about the MX," added William Arkin, the director of nuclear weapons research at the Institute for Policy Studies, a private think tank that has often criticized Pentagon policies.

The question of the threat posed by the 10-warhead SS-X-24, which the Pentagon expects the Soviets to begin deploying next year, arose Wednesday after it was singled out by President Reagan as an example of Russia's emphasis on weapons "clearly designed to strike first."

Addressing the European Parliament in Strasbourg, France, Reagan asserted the Soviet Union does not "share our view of what constitutes a stable nuclear balance." He added the SS-X-24, which can be transported and launched from rail cars, has the potential "to avoid detection, monitoring or arms control verification."

It's almost time to 'Celebrate'

By GEORGIA TEMPLE
Entertainment Writer

Countdown time for Midland's second annual Celebration of the Arts has arrived. The 11-day event, sponsored by Midland Arts Assembly, begins at noon Friday with opening festivities set for the courthouse lawn.

"Work has been done on Celebration since last August and we have over 300 volunteers who have given their time and effort to the event," says Mary Rasmussen, tri-chairman of the Celebration of the Arts committee along with William C. Morrow and Letty Wageman. "The Celebration is designed to provide a platform from which visual and performing artists may present their talent to Midland in a way in which Midlanders can enjoy what they have to offer."

The second annual Celebration of the Arts runs through May 20. Several changes have been made this time around, including:

— The addition of a second festival day — May 18 and 19, when performing artists provide continuous shows and Midland artists have their work for sale;

— Encore '85, a showcase presenting local talent, has expanded to two performances, one open to the public and the other for members and volunteers;

Wright feels tax reform should generate revenue

By L. EDGAR PRINA
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — House Majority Leader Jim Wright Wednesday said any tax reform would be "folly" if it did not produce substantial revenues to help reduce the soaring federal deficit.

In a meeting with reporters, the Texas Democrat said he understood that President Reagan's plan to modify the tax code was "revenue neutral" and would not result in additional federal income, although it would set lower maximum limits on the personal income tax.

"I do not believe Americans want a big tax cut at the very time we are on a credit card binge and sending the bills to our children and grandchildren," he asserted.

"It would be a terrible waste of energy, effort, agony and hurt — and some will be hurt in picking winners and losers — if we don't do something substantial to reduce the deficit."

Wright strongly urged adoption of what he called a "modest, minimum tax" of 15 percent on the largest corporations and the use of all such revenue, which he estimated at $10.7 billion over the next three years, to the task of deficit reduction.

According to Wright, 65 of the country's biggest corporations netted $50 billion in profits over the last three years, but paid no income taxes and, in fact, all but three of them received tax credits totaling $3.2 billion.

He said the 15 percent minimum tax applied to all corporations earning $1 milliln or more in reportable income would produce revenues of $10 billion per year to the government.

The Democratic leader conceded that a number of members of Congress were "somewhat intimidated" after Walter Mondale, an advocate of increased taxes, was swamped by Ronald Reagan in the presidential election last November.

On another subject, Wright said he thought the House would approve $14 million in humanitarian aid to the Contras, who are opposing the Marxist-Sandinista government in Nicaragua, possibly within the next two weeks.

He noted that a bil introduced by Rep. Robert Michel of Illinois, the House Republican leader, called for such aid and was defeated by only two votes earlier in the session. He said some members told him they would have cast ballots for it if had they known a somewhat similar measure sponsored by two Democrats would not be called up for a vote.

Wright denied that a visit by Daniel Ortega, the Nicaraguan leader, to Moscow shortly after the defeat of the Michel bill had caused a switch in favor of approval of aid to the Contras.

"Most members of the House hold no brief whatever for the Sandinista movement or for Daniel Ortega," he said. "We don't have any confidence in him. We don't like what he's doing domestically. We think he's making a terrible botch of things in Nicaragua."

Wright added that some members believe U.S. policies have caused problems for many Contras.

Midlanders head for polls Saturday to decide fate of jail

By ED TODD
Staff Writer

What becomes of the Midland County Jail may be uppermost on the minds of some Midlanders as they head to the election polls in Saturday's jail-bond election.

Midlanders will be voting on two propositions. They may vote for either issue, for both or for none.

Proposition No. 1 calls for the issuance of not more than $3 million in tax bonds to renovate, expand and "complete" the jail; to expand Culver Youth Home, a juvenile detention center; and to fund a study of Midland County needs into the 21st Century.

Proposition No. 2 would provide for the issuance of not more than $9.9 million in bonds for building an $8.4 million jail about 2½ miles east of Midland and for the estimated $500,000 expansion of Culver Youth Home.

Election polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday. Polling places by commissioners' precincts and voting precincts follow:

'Execution-style' attackers sought in Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — Police today were searching for three men who stormed into an apartment and began shooting and stabbing a group of Vietnamese immigrants, killing one and critically wounding two others.

The three attackers, who police described as Oriental males in their middle 20s, fled in one of the victim's cars after the attack at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday and were still at large early today, city police spokesmen said.

The men "came in with guns and knives and started tying them up with tape," police Sgt. Ned Anderson said. "They stuck socks in their mouths and then took them to a back room and started shooting and stabbing them one by one."

One of the men managed to escape to a nearby apartment and call for help, Anderson said. But by the time police arrived, the assailants had fled in a brown 1980 Datsun 200SX with California license plates owned by one of the victims, Lt. Robert Wisian said this morning.

One of the four injured men, Ba Ngoe Bai, 29, died just before 10 p.m. at Brackenridge Hospital, according to Wisian.

Two others — Danh Lee and Tuan Nguyen, 20 — were in critical condition this morning, and the fourth man — Tan Nguyen, 19 — was treated and released, Wisian said.

"I heard some shots and came out and saw them and it looked like they were being kidnapped or something because they were all tied up," said Tony Bass, 17, who lives in a nearby apartment.

Anderson said all the victims lived at the Stanford Court apartment complex, but that he isn't sure how many of them lived in the apartment where the incident occurred. The attackers apparently did not live there, officials said.

Wisian said the motive had not been exactly determined but that there was a "possibility" the victims knew the suspects.

He said they thought the attackers used to live in the same apartment complex.

No motive had been determined for the attack, Adams said, adding that the investigation has been hampered by the victims' inability to speak English.

REAGAN

"And the words are unmistakable; they call out to us in anguish but also in hope: let the nations live in peace among themselves, let all peoples abide in the fellowship that God intends."

Speaking indirectly to the new Soviet leadership, Reagan said the free West has learned after World War II it is a mistake to believe that "it is enough only to wish for peace.".

"Instead, we accepted reality; we took seriously those who threatened to end the independence of our nations and our peoples. And we did what peoples who value their freedom must do. We joined together in a great alliance. And we rearmed.

"But we did so only so that never again would we be forced — under the weight of our betrayed illusions — to resort to violence," Reagan said.

Even though his trip was dogged by controversy in West Germany, Spain and at Strasbourg, France, where he was heckled by leftist deputies Wednesday in a speech before the European Parliament, Reagan said today his European trip was "one fruitful in results and rich in memory."

Arriving at Sao Bento Palace for talks with Soares, the president had harsh words for Gorbachev. At a Kremlin rally Wednesday marking the 40th anniversary of the defeat of Nazi Germany, the Soviet leader called the United States "the forward edge of the war menace to mankind."

Asked what he thought of Gorbachev's speech, Reagan replied, "What I usually think of him." When a reporter said Gorbachev had called him a menace to mankind, the president snapped: "Who is he to talk?"

Reagan also lashed out at Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega. Told that Ortega, who is touring Eastern Europe, had called for an end to U.S. interference in Nicaragua, Reagan replied: "We are not interfering. They're interfering with democracy in the Americas."

The president said he was not surprised that Ortega visited Moscow last week. "That's his patron saint," Reagan said.

— Gourmet Midland, set for Saturday and cosponsored by the Visitors and Comvention Bureau of the Midland Chamber of Commerce, where about 20 food booths at Midland Center will provide foods from area establishments, groups and citizens;

— A Preview Party May 17, for more information call the Assembly, 687-1149;

— A Time Capsule, a lengthwise scroll containing the Centennial and the Celebration of the Arts logos and messages from Midlanders attending the Festival, which will be set in the wall of the Centennial Plaza July 4 to be opened in 40 years;

— And a $500 award, the Centennial Award, for the best visual art work with a centennial theme entered in the Festival.

On the Festival days, Mrs. Rasmussen says, "We have continuous performances by local performers, art work on show and for sale, food booths and three demonstration tents where demonstrations ranging from candy making to ice sculpture to pottery to painting will be going on all the time.

"These days are designed for family enjoyment, and we have a children's area in which acts will be going on all the time, a contest will run the entire time and there will be arts and crafts that young people can participate in."

The event during Celebration week which highlights local performing talent in a variety showcase is Encore '85, set for 8 p.m. May 16 at the Yucca Theatre, 208 N. Colorado Ave. Tickets to Encore '85, which are priced at $3, may be purchased through the Midland Arts Assembly office or at the door the night of the show.

First up, Gourmet Midland, set for 6 to 9 p.m. Saturday at Midland Center, focuses on Midland culinary talents. Tickets, priced at $15 per-person and $25 per-couple for the business-dress event, may be purchased at the Midland Chamber of Commerce through Friday. They may be purchased at the door Saturday.

Entertainment for Gourmet Midland will be provided by singer Rochelle Rabouin, accompanied by pianist Marty Gilmore. Those attending are asked to bring their tickets with them so they will qualify for the door prize, a trip to Dallas donated by KNFM-Radio.

Other highlights of the 11-day event include:

— Noon performances Friday and Monday through May 17 on the courthouse lawn;

— Midland Community Concerts "The Canterbury Trio" performance at Midland High School Auditorium at 8 p.m. Friday;

— Entertainment and demonstrations from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Saturday at Midland Park Mall;

— A public reception for nationally known artist Warren Taylor from 6 to 7:30 p.m. Sunday at Theatre Midland;

— A performance by the Thouvenel String Quartet of Midland at 8 p.m. Sunday at Theatre Midland;

Tornadoes hit South, West Texas

Associated Press

Residents in South and West Texas began cleaning up today after a storm front churned out at least five tornadoes and hurled down golfball-sized hail, officials say.

A tornado damaged a car wash, uprooted trees and damaged power lines in Nixon Wednesday night, and another twister downed power lines north of Calaveras Lake in southeastern Bexar County, the National Weather Service said.

Another tornado downed trees in northwestern Wilson County, one touched down between Knippa and Sabinal in eastern Uvalde County and yet another blew the roof off a house 10 miles east of Seguin.

Local authorities reported no injuries stemming from any of those tornadoes, however.

Strong thunderstorms with winds gusting up to 80 mph blew the roof off a house and damaged trees in southeast San Antonio.

Vice President George Bush, touring the Motorola semi-conductor plant in Austin, talks to lead production operator Beatta Wastak.

Bush urges lobbying to reduce deficit

AUSTIN (AP) — After getting some first-hand knowledge of microchips, Vice President George Bush urged high-tech entrepreneurs to lobby Congress to reduce the federal deficit.

During a six-hour visit to Austin on Wednesday, Bush told some 300 members of the American Electronics Association that their innovation and willingness to take risks — not government involvement — is what makes the American economy strong.

"A bureaucrat didn't fly the first airplane, develop the first mass production automobile, design the first radio. No government agency was responsible for the personal computer or the laser or the photocopier," Bush said.

"I'm going to go back to Washington reinforced in my conviction about the importance of the private sector, about the formation of capital, about taking risks and frankly proud of the fact that in the process some people can make a profit," Bush said.

"There's nothing wrong with making a profit in the United States, and if we ever lose sight of that we're going to be a gray bureaucracy with absolutely no progress."

Before the speech, Bush toured a Motorola semi-conductor manufacturing plant in Austin. The trip was part of a six-day, nine-state tour he is making.

"One of the things I've been doing on this trip to many states is to encourage people to contact their congressman and say, 'Look, please go in there and vote to bring the deficit down and bring it down without raising taxes,' " Bush said.

"It's time to get serious about the cuts in federal spending," he said, adding that if Congress won't reduce spending itself, Reagan should be given veto power over individual programs.

"Give the president a line-item veto and let him take the heat. And I'll guaran-darn-tee you he's willing to take the heat when it comes to cutting sacred programs out of the budget. The time has come to do that," Bush said.

Bush also said voters want the federal tax system simplified and rates lowered.

"We've got to have a simpler tax system also that builds on the incentives that were put in place in 1981," Bush said.

"It's time we traded complexity for lower rates, nobody will argue that. American people want, overwhelmingly...simplification and they also would like to have their taxes down."

In a private meeting with Travis County Republicans, Bush also welcomed former Democratic congressman Kent Hance into the GOP.

Employees have to pay for limousines

HOUSTON (AP) — Harris County officials approved a policy forbidding the rental of limousines at taxpayers' expense after members of a housing agency paid $4,560 for the service.

The written policy adopted Tuesday applies to all county employees and members of boards associated with the county.

Five members of the Harris County Housing Finance Corp., some with their wives, attended a three-day education conference in November in New Orleans. The total bill was $122,749, including air fare for wives.

The corporation is an agency of county government that authorizes tax-exempt bonds for multiple and single family housing.

Lester Simon, director of the county's housing authority, made the travel and conference arrangements. He said the authority advanced funds to the financing corporation to cover the conference. The corporation was then to reimburse the authority.

The corporation last week decided not to reimburse the authority for the $4,560 limousines tab. Simon first paid for the bill with his own credit card, he said.

The federal money channeled to the housing authority is for the sole purpose of aiding low income housing, and the conference "was not part of low income housing," says Jim Wilson, manager of the federal department of Housing and Urban Development in Houston. He said HUD funds the housing authority.

Wilson said he will send Simon a letter demanding the $4,560 be put back into the housing authority account.

"This should not have been borrowed," Wilson said. If the financing corporation refuses to pay the limousine tab, Wilson said Simon may have to cover the bill.

Simon says he is ready to cover the cost of the limousines if the finance corporation board finds that the bill is unacceptable.

House OKs local sales tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has voted to let most Texas cities add another penny to their local sales tax, a move that could raise that tax to 6.125 percent in some areas.

Under Killeen Rep. Stan Schlueter's bill, cities that do not collect a sales tax for transit could either tack on the added penny for transit or use it to reduce local property taxes.

The increased sales tax could virtually eliminate city property taxes in some areas. Lufkin, for example, could replace 95 percent of its property taxes by adding another penny to its current one-cent local sales tax.

The bill won 81-61 tentative approval in the House Wednesday, where it faces another vote.

The state sales tax is now 4.125 percent. Most cities collect a one-cent local sales tax, and several of the largest cities collect up to another penny for mass transit.

Under the Schlueter plan, cities with a population of 50,000 or more could collect the additional penny for transit. Any city could collect it for property tax relief.

"The people would vote to put this on themselves," Schlueter said of the sales tax hike, which would require a local vote.

The bill drew criticism, however.

Rep. Foster Whaley, D-Pampa, argued that the state might someday need the penny that Schlueter wants to give to cities. When the sales tax well is dry, the next step could be a personal or corporate income tax, he said.

"It's going to leave less room for the state," said Whaley. "We're that much closer to a state income tax."

And Rep. Al Price, D-Beaumont, said the property tax is fairer than a sales tax.

"Paying taxes ought to be related to one's ability to pay," he said. "Imperfect as it is, the property tax is a more accurate barometer of that ability to pay."

The Texas Association of Taxpayers, a business group, criticized the bill as unnecessary.

The House gave preliminary voice vote approval to a rewritten state election code, including changes that would:

— require voting booths at every polling place. Current law requires voting booths only in cities of at least 10,000 people.

— allow paroled felons to vote after two years, instead of the current five.

— remove the provision requiring primary voters to "pledge" support of the party's nominee.

Nightclub sued for alleged discrimination

HOUSTON (AP) — Nineteen people have sued a Houston nightclub, claiming it operates a "maximum quota scheme" on the number of blacks allowed inside.

Bruce Griffiths, an attorney for the Houston chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union, said Wednesday he is representing the group based on numerous alleged incidents of racial discrimination at the Fizz nightclub.

"It is not an absolute bar against blacks but a sort of quota system," Griffiths said. Once the quota is reached, he said, would-be black patrons are reportedly turned away at the door.

He said many blacks who cannot show two forms of identification with photos are turned away, while white patrons are not asked to provide such identification.

One reported incident, he said, involved Houston Oilers' cheerleader Angela Shanklin. She was denied entrance by a Fizz employee who accused her of stealing a "Fizz Fox Card" which she said had been sent to her guaranteeing her free admission into the club, Griffiths said.

He is asking the suit be a class action suit but isn't specific on the amount of damages.

Schroeder can't speak after stroke

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — A second stroke has robbed William Schroeder of his speech, but a hospital spokesman says the artificial heart recipient has rebounded from setbacks before and "we're hoping he can do it again."

Schroeder suffered a hemorrhagic stroke, which implant surgeon William C. DeVries defined as "bleeding inside the brain tissue which results from a leaking blood vessel or a blocked blood vessel," a hospital spokeswoman said Wednesday.

Doctors have not been able to pinpoint the cause or time of the stroke, which occurred on the left side of the brain, said Donna Hazle, public relations director for Humana Hospital Audubon. Schroeder, 53, remained in critical but stable condition and his treatment consisted of bed rest.

Schroeder, the longest-living recipient of a Jarvik-7 pump, could move the right side of his body — which is controlled by the left half of the brain — but "it's weaker than the other side," said Bob Irvine, Humana Inc. director of public relations.

Despite his "severe neurological problem," Schroeder was alert and responds to spoken commands, Ms. Hazle said.

Schroeder's condition is "slightly less critical than it was two days ago," Irvine said. "He's evidently a little bit more alert."

His doctors do not know whether Schroeder will suffer from permanent speech impairment or brain damage.

"We're hoping and praying that Bill Schroeder will continue to make the recovery this time as he has in the past," Irvine said. "The other times when there have been setbacks, Bill Schroeder has come back. We're hoping he can do it again."

Blood clots caused a series of strokes on both sides of Schroeder's brain on Dec. 13. His speech, memory and movement were impaired, but he began a regimen of therapy and gradually improved.

Communist strings

Look who's finally showing his true colors.

If anyone in this country had any doubts about the political bent of the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua, those doubts should now be gone. Sandinista leader Daniel Ortega Saavedra's hat-in-hand trip to Russia gave President Reagan all the justification he needed for slapping a tough trade embargo on that country. The Ortega trip behind the Iron Curtain has finally put his Nicaraguan government in focus as a definite Communist regime, another Western Hemisphere outpost for the Soviet Union.

Ortega's apologists in this country probably will continue to argue that his revolutionary regime is concerned only with agrarian reform — that he's seeking the eventual distribution of land parcels to the peasants, but these ridiculous assertions won't hold water in light of Ortega's Kremlin reception.

The U.S. Congress turned down President Reagan's request for a few million dollars in aid to the forces battling the leftists in Nicaragua. In the words of Senate Majoirty Leader Robert Dole, this was "a major misjudgement," considering the fact that Ortega openly sought $200 million in assistance from Russia.

How much of this goal Ortega obtained hasn't been disclosed, but the Nicaraguan dictator evidently will go home with a good amount of assistance. In fact, Tass, the Soviet press agency, indicated that generous support was pledged to "friendly Nicaragua," certainly meaning more equipment for the suppression of liberty in that nation.

Ortega got the full treatment during his Moscow stopover and was welcomed into the club by the new Russian boss, Mikhail S. Gorbachev, himself. Ortega was handed most of what he wanted along with one important lesson: The Russians never give anything away for free.

Now they own him.

That's something those of us in this country should not forget. Ortega's dancing to another tune — openly — and the Communists are pulling the strings.

Plus for the parks

William Penn Mott Jr. is an excellent choice to head the National Park Service. His recent appointment as director was made by Secretary of the Interior Donald Hodel. It does great credit to the Reagan administration.

Sometimes under Reagan's first secretary of the interior, James Watt, it seemed that the federal government wanted to turn over the park system to the Disney company and other private enterprises. But Mott's credentials as a professional park manager and as an environmentalist protect him from such accusations.

The main objection to the appointment seemed to be Mott's age. He's 75, a year older than the president. That isn't much of an objection, though, because Mott is vigorous, dedicated and an overachiever.

We expect him to be as good a director of the national parks as he was a director of the state parks in California under then-Gov. Reagan from 1967 to 1975. And that's very good indeed.

Mott is a mover. Parks have been his life. We look for good things to happen under his guidance at Yosemite, Yellowstone, the Grand Canyon and all the other national wonders protected by our government for the pride of this generation and all generations of Americans to come.

Another View:

Basketball's troubles

If a coach has to violate personal ethics for victory, as Willis Reed suggests is the case, college basketball is in urgent need of reform. Reed was discussing recently his decision to step down as head basketball coach at Creighton University.

"I think if you are going to stay in coaching and be successful, you are probably going to have to end up doing some things that I personally don't want to do," Reed said.

"There are so many rules being broken by so many teams," Reed said, "I would say that recruiting and the illegal things that go into recruiting are the worst part of it."

The charge that all is not well in college basketball is supported by other people familiar with the game. On some campuses reports abound of cars, cash and cushy jobs improperly offered to athletes. Charges stemming from gambling allegations have been filed against several Tulane University players. A Southern Illinois University assistant coach recently admitted making financial payments to a player.

Some college administrators seem ready to take action. The newly created NCAA Presidential Commission has drafted rules designed to counter abuses in college athletics. Among the proposals to be considered at an NCAA meeting in June is one that would shut down for up to two years any athletic program that repeatedly violates major rules. Another recommended rule would suspend coaches involved in violations.

College basketball has provided scholarships and professional opportunities for thousands of young athletes and entertainment for millions of fans. It has occupied an important place on the American sports scene. But unless action is taken to stop the spread of recruiting violations, gambling influences and exploitation of athletes that have marred some programs, college basketball will no longer be a place for decent people.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On May 9, 1754, the first newspaper cartoon appeared in America. The illustration in Benjamin Franklin's Pennsylvania Gazette depicted a divided snake, each part representing an American colony. The caption read: "Join or die."

On this date:

In 1864, during the Civil War, Union Maj. Gen. John Sedgwick was killed by a Confederate sharpshooter at Spotsylvania, Va. Sedgwick's last words, just before the fatal shot: "They couldn't hit an elephant at this distance."

In 1913, the 17th Amendment to the Constitution, providing for the election of senators by popular vote rather than selection by state legislatures, was ratified.

In 1926, Americans Richard Byrd and Floyd Bennett became the first men to make an airplane flight over the North Pole.

Don't disturb Commerce's nap!

WASHINGTON — Evidently taking his lead from the nation's nursery schools, the boss of a Commerce Department office has instituted an hour-long "quiet time" from 3 p.m. to 4 p.m. daily for all his employees.

Jack Anderson

According to an internal memo announcing the advent of the "quiet hour," the purpose is "to provide uninterrupted time to all employees" of the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service "so that they may do individual work, such as reading, writing, typing, proofing, etc."

The employees will not be expected to bring rest mats and assume the fetal position next to their desks, nor will milk and cookies be served to induce the proper restful attitude. But stimulating activity will be discouraged. "The hour will not be used for meetings, conferences, telephone calls, personal business, coffee breaks, etc.," the announcement warns.

And outsiders will be told that they should not call the service's employees and disrupt the quiet time. "All people who normally do business with US & FCS should be advised not to call or visit during quiet hour," the internal memo admonishes.

What about those who unwittingly expect the office to answer their inquiries during business hours? "Telephones may be answered by one person, taking names and messages for all remaining personnel on quiet hour," the memo explains, adding: "This duty should be rotated so that one person is not constantly taking messages."

Answering machines may also be utilized to enforce the quiet hour. But whether callers reach a person or a machine, they "should be advised that the person they are seeking is not 'available at the moment' and will return the call shortly,'" the memo says. "Other equivalent, diplomatic statements can also be used," it adds.

What about TIPs — Truly Important Persons — who may not be aware of the office's quiet hour? "Exceptions to quiet hour should be understood by all — the White House, congressional offices and the immediate office of the (Commerce) secretary." But lest President Reagan get too demanding, the memo warns sternly: "Exceptions must be minimal."

Kenn George, the head of the U.S. and Foreign Commercial Service, and the man who dreamed up quiet hour, said the move was an experiment intended to improve productivity. He said he tried it out himself for several weeks, and it worked. Our associate Donald Goldberg can attest to that. George didn't return his call until after 4 p.m.

Footnote: Meanwhile, out in North Dakota, another federal boss endeared himself to his employees — most of them — by an innovative personnel action. Col. John Politi gave 350 "non-essential" employees at Grand Forks Air Force Base a day off with pay because he was so pleased with an inspector general's visit to the missile base. The gesture will cost the taxpayers about $45,000.

But the colonel aroused the ire of the base's "essential" employees. Workers in the commissary and the fire department have complained because they had to work.

Air Force regulations permit administrative leave only for bad weather, high temperatures or other factors that may affect employees' health. Sen. Mark Andrews, R-N.D., told our reporter Mark Woolley he had talked with base officials and that "in their estimation" the idea didn't work out very well.

•••

POLISH ADVENTURE: The Polish government's crackdown on Solidarity leader Lech Walesa extends to foreigners who visit him. Ralph Andrews, an American movie producer, learned this to his dismay last month. The morning after a three-hour meeting with Walesa, Andrews was arrested by Polish secret police, interrogated at length, and ordered to stay in his hotel until he left for the airport the next day.

It was Andrews' fourth trip to Poland in connection with the movie he is making about Walesa and Solidarity. I had made the original arrangements for Andrews to meet Walesa, and had given him some questions to ask the Nobel Peace Prize winner. Andrews has told the story of his final trip to Poland with humor and palpable relief. Here are the highlights:

Andrews began sweating it out the minute he got off the plane at Warsaw. A premonitory hunch had led him to hide my list of questions and the contract documents for Walesa in his left sock; he had almost $4,000 in cash hidden in his right sock. ("Thank God I wear over-the-calf socks," Andrews said.) It was a wise precaution, for the Polish customs inspector searched his luggage with excruciating thoroughness.

Socialism 'a pain' in France

PARIS — The French, who politicize everything from industry to poetry, suddenly are having a lot of backaches, and socialism may be to blame. Polls show that since 1981 the percentage of people who say they are increasingly irritable has risen from 26 to 42 percent, the prevalence of backaches has increased substantially, as has the number of people who say they expect to be in an automobile accident. A decline in the nation's sense of well-being has coincided with the floundering of the first Socialist government under the Fifth Republic.

George F. Will

Four years ago this month, France elected Francois Mitterrand president and embarked on a historic journey in Europe's experience, a journey to the end of the line for socialism. Mitterrand, who once criticized Sweden's socialists for not dealing capitalism "a mortal blow," has dealt one to socialism.

In the 1981 campaign, he promised stimulative spending through expanded entitlements, a shorter work week with no cut in pay, job creation through public-works spending, steeper taxes on the wealthy, sweeping nationalization of many industries and banks, and an attack on the independence of Catholic schools. Then he rounded on the country and began keeping his promises.

Because France listens intently to intellectuals, it often is late learning the obvious. It has now learned that much of the money pumped into the pockets of people who are working less was spent on imports. So while productivity fell, demand rose and the franc fell, unemployment rose, the purchasing power of the employed fell, and so did Mitterrand in the polls, to a point lower than any postwar leader.

His biggest blunder was a bill to break Catholic schools to the state's saddle. The bill embodied traditional socialist thinking about conquering reactionary tendencies by nationalizing consciousness, and liberating children from the dead hand of the past, including parents. This brought a million protesters into Paris streets in the largest demonstration since Liberation.

Mitterrand promised radicalism and in two years he has delivered perhaps the most radical reversal in recent European history, imposing budgetary austerity more severe than Reagan has proposed. Candidate Mitterrand exhorted, "Let's break with the logic of profitability," and under his policies many businesses, alas, did. President Mitterrand now says, "We can no longer keep on crushing those who create wealth in France with taxes and social contributions."

He insists his conversion to tax cuts and spending restraints is just a "parenthesis" in the story of French socialism. But the parenthesis was preceded by failure so complete that the intellectual cupboard is barren of ideas about what can come next that will resemble socialism.

His semi-Reaganism has been called "supply-side socialism," but that is an oxymoron. The crux of supply-side economics is tax cutting to lighten the weight of the state on entrepreneurship, and the essence of socialism is the use of the state as the central directing source of entrepreneurial energy. Mitterrand lamely says that socialism just means a "mixed economy." If so, France has had socialism since 1945. Mitterrand's predecessor, Giscard d'Estaing, warned that when the combination of taxes and social security contributions exceeds 40 percent, "we're in socialism." If so, socialism arrived under Giscard, when the combination neared 43 percent.

France has more politics than probably is good for it. With 468,000 municipal councillors, 2 percent of the electorate is in elective office. But what unquestionably is good about French politics today is that the political label with cachet is "liberalism." Here liberalism retains its traditional connotations, which are unlike those of American liberalism. Here it means an anti-statist emphasis on personal initiative and market mechanisms.

Mitterrand's personal initiative has been a hyperactive foreign policy, searching for what some European politicians, envious of Mrs. Thatcher, call a "Falklands effect." But the principal effect of foreign events during the last decade has been to speed the collapse of confidence among French intellectuals on the left, who have abominable records of communist affiliation or fellow traveling.

Only intellectuals inordinately fond of abstractions (like the three great incompatibles, "Liberty, Equality, Fraternity") would take until 1975 to learn (from a book, of course: Solzhenitsyn's, which had its strongest impact here) about the concrete reality of the Gulag. Also instructive were Vietnam boat people, Cambodian genocide, Afghanistan atrocities and the suppression of Poland a nation about which France has long been sentimental. Today French intellectuals, writing with the vigor of people making up for lost time, are robustly anti-communist on their flight toward the right.

One fine day in 1953, the front page of the communist newspaper L'Humanite had a black border and this headline: "Dreadful News: Stalin is Dead." One fine day a headline may say: "Socialism, too."

Not using seats deadly

Forgive my ignorance, but I was under the impression that laws were designed for our safety and well-being, and that any violation of these laws was punishable.

There is one law in particular that brings this issue up. It is very recent, yet I doubt that there is an adult in this state that is unaware of its existence. It's the seat belt law, or rather, the child safety seat law.

As you are aware, it is now forbidden that any child under the age of 4 be allowed to ride in a motor vehicle without being strapped into a child safety seat, and yet I have seen dozens upon dozens of cars zipping around (not always within the speed limit, I might add) with, obviously, children under 4 standing up, held on laps and playing upon the entire backseats of cars unattended.

Having a friend or two that no longer have children due to auto accidents, this is highly distressing. Not one time have I ever heard of, much less seen, anyone being cited for failure to obey the child safety seat law.

Today marked my breaking point. On my way home I spotted a small economy car with six children (that I could see) riding around without any safety precautions at all, and to stress my point, the rear hatch of this car was opened as high as it could go.

Do people have a death wish for their children? It seems to me as if some of them might. As adults, they are able to decide whether to risk wearing a safety belt on themselves, but to risk their children's lives ... It's truly unforgiveable, when children of that age are innocent to the dangers as well as the decision.

I have written this in hopes that no only the parents of these little children will hear, but law enforcement officials as well.

I am not a parent, but I am a friend. When a friend of mine rides in my car with their child, they are required to bring their car seat with them. It only takes a few moments to unstrap and restrap a car seat into a car and it's absolutely no trouble at all when you consider what price you may pay — for neglect.

Teacher truly helped students

Verna Harris was in town last weekend. For those of you who know her, enough said. For those of you who don't, you missed a treat meeting and visiting with this gracious lady.

She was given special tribute at the Midland High School Showcase '85 held last Monday evening in recognition of her years of service as speech, debate and drama instructor at Midland High School from 1945-1964. Her record in the field of competition, performance and excellence stands tall in the Texas records of U.I.L. and forensic activities.

Her tireless efforts during those years were well known to those of us who were her students. She was the ultimate in educators — tough in the classroom, persistent in discipline and awesome in authority. But behind that facade beat the heart of a dedicated, loving, caring friend whose whole aim in life was to "help the kids." She had a way about her. She made us feel good about ourselves — she gave us confidence that we could do the job — she believed in us — she helped us give ourselves a chance to be the best that we could be.

In sharing the showcase experience with her, I don't know which was the most thrilling — to see the pleasure of the ex-students as they greeted their old teacher-friend or to see the looks on the faces of the present young students as they met and performed for the "legendary" Miss Harris.

So, I'm writing to let the city of Midland know that great educators do exist. We had the best! For many of us, she was the turning point in our young lives. For 19 years at MHS, she turned stumbling, stammering fledgelings into eagles.

For your dedication, faith, encouragement and hard work, thanks Miss Harris! But most of all, for your love!

Sports writers draw praise

I want to thank your sports writers for the fine job they did on the high school baseball games this year. They gave excellent coverage on the game and the stats were great.

I thought it was a fine season for most of the clubs! Maybe one of these days we will have more than one popular high school sport. I hope so.

Having played for Midland High in 1923 and 1924, I was hoping the 'Dogs would win. Maybe next year.

'Mountain man' testifies his mind in 'no man's land' before shooting

VIRGINIA CITY, Mont. (AP) — A father who admitted kidnapping a young athlete to live as a "mountain woman" with his son said his mind "went into no man's land" before he fatally shot another man who was hoping to pull off a rescue.

Don Nichols, 54, testified Wednesday in the trial of his 20-year-old son, Dan, charged with abducting and wounding U.S. biathlon team member Kari Swenson last summer. He also is charged with deliberate homicide in the death of Alan Goldstein, who tried to rescue Miss Swenson during her 18-hour ordeal.

The elder Nichols, whose trial date on kidnap and murder charges has not been set, showed no emotion as he related the fatal shooting from the witness stand.

When Goldstein happened on the Nicholses' wilderness camp where Miss Swenson was chained to a tree, he pointed a pistol at the men, Nichols said.

"My mind went out into no-man's land," he said. Nichols said he pulled his rifle from its case, loaded a shell and stepped behind a nearby tree.

When Goldstein shouted, "You're covered," Nichols said he stepped from behind the tree and fired from the hip.

"I pulled the trigger and he just went down like a light," he said. "I thought I had hit him in the chest and lungs."

Goldstein died from a bullet wound in the face.

The testimony ended the third day of the younger Nichols' trial. Earlier Wednesday, father and son admitted that the July 15 kidnapping of Miss Swenson, 23, was part of a plan to capture a woman for company in the wilderness.

Don Nichols said he bought the chain used to bind Miss Swenson seven years earlier, anticipating its use.

The father also told of his "mountain philosophy" that led to the abduction and shootings. Earlier, his son described his mixed emotions at being a mountain man.

Recalling his dozen summers in the mountains with Dan, Nichols said he impressed his philosophy on his son and taught Dan the "facts of life that school tries to repress."

Dan accepted his beliefs because "I started so young on him," the father said. "Kids just believe what their fathers tell them."

Earlier Wednesday, Dan Nichols testified his father brainwashed him into rejecting society in 1983 for a full-time life in the wilderness and sometimes beat him for disagreeing.

Speaking very softly and constantly wringing his hands, the younger Nichols said he was increasingly drawn to his father's style of life in the mountains, despite periods of loneliness.

Convicted rapist, ex-accuser take case to free Dotson to governor

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson and the young housewife who says she lied when she accused him of rape take their efforts to free Dotson after six years in prison to Gov. James R. Thompson.

Dotson, 28, and Cathleen Crowell Webb were among 18 people listed as witnesses at an emergency hearing today to consider clemency — considered the showdown in a seesaw two-month legal struggle to free Dotson.

Thompson, who called the special session, took an unprecedented step in announcing he would join the 10-member Illinois Prisoner Review Board at the hearing.

Both Dotson and Mrs. Webb were armed with results of recent lie detector tests — evidence not allowed in court — they hoped would bolster their case.

The tests were administered by the same examiner, who said he believed Mrs. Webb and Dotson were truthful. Dotson's test was taken Monday night.

County prosecutors, who oppose efforts to free Dotson, and Mrs. Webb's foster parents, who say they have serious doubts about her new story, also indicated they would testify before the panel.

The review board would make its recommendation to Thompson after the hearing, which officials said could last two days. The governor has promised to act within days after receiving the recommendation, which he is not bound to follow.

Dotson can be freed in four ways: by a general pardon that doesn't proclaim his innocence; a pardon based on innocence that would clear his record; a pardon that could set conditions he would be required to meet to gain freedom; or by a commutation of his sentence.

Last month, Mrs. Webb, now a 23-year-old mother of two who lives in New Hampshire, testified in Cook County Circuit Court that she fabricated the story that Dotson, of suburban Country Club Hills, raped her July 9, 1977.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Today partly cloudy and hot. High in mid 90s. Isolated afternoon thunderstorms with less than 20 percent chance of rain. Southeast wind 10 to 15 mph. Tonight fair. Low in mid 60s. South wind 5 to 15 mph. Friday fair and hot. High in upper 90s. Wind south 10 to 20 mph and gusty.

Tempertaure may reach record levels

From Staff and Wire Reports

Near record-breaking temperatures may be felt in the Midland area Friday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport forecasts fair skies through Friday with a low tonight in the middle 60s warming to a high in the upper 90s Friday. Winds will be from the south tonight at five to 15 mph increasing Friday to less than 20 mph and gusty.

Wednesday's high of 95 was eight degrees below the record set in 1947. This morning's low was 17 degrees above the 1969 record of 42.

STATE

Very heavy thunderstorms pushed into the lower Rio Grande Valley today in the wake of tornadoes late Wednesday that caused minor widespread property damage but no injuries.

A blanket of low clouds spread over the state, cooling temperatures slightly, although extreme South Texas was expected to top the 100-degree mark.

The thunderstorms, which stretched from Laredo to Eagle Pass, were the remnants of the large thunderstorm system that hammered sections of South Central Texas and the Edwards Plateau late Wednesday.

Elsewhere, isolated thundershowers were detected and were expected to linger into Friday.

Temperatures were in the lower 60s to lower 70s statewide except in the lower valley where a few middle 70s prevailed.

NATION

Showers and thunderstorms were widespread today from the south Atlantic Coast across the Tennessee Valley and the Gulf Coast to southwest Texas after after a rash of tornadoes hit Texas and South Dakota.

Rain also was scattered across Minnesota, southern California and the northern Rockies.

A high pressure system over eastern New York brought clear skies and chilly weather to the Northeast. Early-morning temperatures were in the 30s across much of New England and parts of the mid-Atlantic states, with the mercury dipping into the 20s in parts of northern New England.

Cloudy skies were common across the Rockies, with temperatures ranging from the 40s in northern sections to the 60s in southern sections.

Midland reps on way to state

By TERRY WILLIAMSON
Assistant Sports Editor

Midland's "State Bound Brigade" shoveled its way toward Austin today, eyeing Saturday's Class 5A state track meet at Memorial Stadium, dreaming dreams of possible glory.

The Tall City will be represented by six athletes in five events with Midland Lee's Diane White getting the first shot at a state championship in the long jump at 9 a.m.

The rest of the Midland aggregation will take to the track at 7 p.m. Saturday to finish the quest with Midland High shot put artist Darrell Davis owning the last chance at 9 p.m. in what may be the last track event of the year when finished.

In between, Midland Lee's Walter Jones will shoot for the gold in three events while Midland High's Ethel Edwards will test state track waters for the first time in the 200 meters as a sophomore, a rare happening at the state level.

Jones has become the first Lee athlete in history to qualify for three state track berths, winning entry in the 100, 200 and sprint relay. He will be joined by Harold Woods, Marq Brackens and Quintus Hampton on the relay. Chris Kenney is going as the team's alternate.

White is the first Lee girl to compete at the state level, so whatever she does will provide a taste of history for the school. Her district record jump of 19-9¾ ranks second best in the state behind Houston Sterling's Carlette Guidry, who has a 20-3 this year.

However, White managed a meager 18-4¾ at the Region I meet and was beaten by Amarillo High's Kim Guthrie with a 19-0¾. White will almost have to match her district performance to stay in the race.

White said at the district meet, "I think I can go 20-feet. That's what I'm shooting for." She was sick at the Region I meet and failed to gain a double state berth, finishing fourth in the triple jump.

Jones isn't favored in either the 200 or 100, but this is the chance he has wanted since he was a sophomore. Jones has never qualified for the state meet in an individual event. He has been on four Lee relay teams at state if you count this year's team.

"This is what I wanted, to qualify in the 100 and 200," said Jones at the Region I meet. "I know I won't be the favorite, but that doesn't scare me. I just have to get from one point to another as fast as I can. The rest will take care of itself."

Davis has his eyes set on the state shot put championship that got away from him last year as a junior when he placed third. He says that anything less than a state championship will be a disappointment.

"I only had a throw of 58-feet at state last year, and I don't want that to happen again," said Davis. "I'm not setting any goals because it seems like everytime I do, I don't get them. I just want to be the best when the chance comes. I don't care how far that is."

The shot looks like a two-man race. Davis owns the state's best throw of the year with a 63-3½.

San Antonio exploded for seven runs in the seventh inning for an 11-3 win over the Angels and a 3-2 edge in the Texas League series as Midland ended the brief homestand.

Faced with a 10-game road trip, it was a game the Angels needed. When the team returns home, it will have played 20 of the previous 25 games on the road. Consequently, any hopes Midland may harbor for the first half West Division pennant may depend on what happens in Tulsa and Shreveport.

Shreveport has been struggling, but Tulsa, blessed with a surfeit of good pitching, has been the strong team in the East Division. If Midland can stay close to the leaders through the trip, the schedule the rest of the way will be in their favor. It certainly can't be any worse.

UP UNTIL the seventh, it was still anyone's game. San Antonio led 4-2, but the Angels had been threatening in the fifth and sixth.

In the fifth, Juan Cruz singled and with one out Kevin Davis singled. Then Devon White lined to left. Cruz tagged up, started home and held up. When the throw went to the backstop, Cruz broke for home, but the delay was fatal. A good throw got him.

In the sixth, lefthanded power pitcher Vance Lovelace took over for Brian Piper and walked three of the first four batters he faced and that brought in Chris Thomas, who was promptly touched for a run-scoring single by Tito Nanni. But Thomas got Cruz on strikes and Heath on a pop.

Victory for Midland was still a possibility and then came the seventh. A seven-run rally and rain drove most of the 1,005 fans back to town.

Lefthanders Spiro Psaltis and Eddie Delzer were the victims of a 12-batter merry-go-round. The Dodgers collected nine of their 16 hits in the big inning. Talk about hitting for the cycle, Mike Ramsey almost did it in one inning, hitting a double and triple, neither of which batted in a run.

Cecil Espy had two singles, both producing runs.

Piper, who was 6-6 for San Antonio a year ago, got the win and had a no-hitter going until Reggie Montgomery drilled a homer over the left field fence, his seventh of the season, tops in the Texas League.

Piper showed signs of tiring in the fifth and Manager Gary LaRocque lifted him after the line-out-to-left kept the Angels from scoring.

HALO-UCINATIONS—Midland and San Antonio stand 5-5 on the season's series...The Dodgers stopped Billie Merrifield's hitting streak at eight games...The Angels return home May 21 against Tulsa, opening a 10-game stand against the East...

ELSEWHERE IN the Texas League, Jackson bombarded Tulsa in the third and fifth innings in gaining an easy 17-4 victory. Dewayne Vaught, 1-0, took the win, while Dewayne Henry, 1-4, took the loss for the Drillers. Mets starting pitcher Kenny Brown was hit with a pitch in the face and had to be taken to a hospital in the second inning...In Little Rock, Shreveport defeated Arkansas 5-1 on the strength of home runs by Alan Cockrell and Everett Graham...For Beaumont, it was a come-from-behind night as they posted a 6-5 victory over El Paso. The Diablos led 5-2 going into the sixth.

Daryl Sconiers (43) of the Midland Angels slides into second to break up a double play attempt by San Antonio shortstop Cecil Espy Wednesday at Angel Stadium.

Drug test plan receives mixed review

Baseball Commissioner Peter Ueberroth's call for subjecting baseball owners, managers, and minor leagues to spot drug tests met with mixed reviews among fans at Angels Stadium in a quickie survey.

About half the fans questioned didn't know about the latest scandal to rock baseball or weren't all that interested. One fan in attendance with his young son said, "We come out once in a 100 years. I don't want to get into that."

Oland Butler called the drug problem in baseball, "An internal matter within the organizations. I haven't thought much about it."

Victory Kuykendall, in regard to the drug tests for the minor league players, "If they can't test all players, major and minor, they shouldn't test any. You don't hear too much about drug problems in the minors. These boys don't have enough money to pay for drugs. I don't think it's that much of a problem here. It starts in the big leagues, once they start making money."

Johnson's hot hand carries Celts, 130-123

BOSTON (AP) — His team had been gunned down twice in a row and Dennis Johnson couldn't wait to get another crack at the enemy. His marksmanship was sure but he didn't tally the toll until the battle was over.

"I really don't pay attention to points," said Boston's sharpshooter for a day. "I try to do what keeps us up, so I don't worry about the number...As long as we're ahead by one, that's what counts."

Johnson, the worst shooter among the Celtics' starters, hit 13 of 16 field-goal attempts and piled up a season-high 30 points as Boston fought off the determined Detroit Pistons 130-123 Wednesday night.

Boston, which had lost the previous two games of the best-of-seven Eastern Conference semifinal playoff in Detroit, took a 3-2 lead and can wrap up the National Basketball Association series Friday night on the road.

If the Celtics win, they'll play host to Philadelphia Sunday in the opener of the conference finals. If they lose, they'll return home to face Detroit that day in a decisive seventh game.

In the Western Conference, the Denver Nuggets open the best-of-seven finals Saturday afternoon on the road against the Los Angeles Lakers.

Larry Bird overcame two mediocre games with a career playoff high 43 points, including 17 in the fourth quarter, but he shared the raves with Johnson.

"That's the best I've seen DJ shoot," said Boston forward Kevin McHale.

"The big key was Dennis," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "It was a backbreaking effort."

The guard broke Detroit's back, but it was his own back that had his coach worried. He missed Tuesday's practice with back spasms and received treatment Wednesday night before the game.

"That gave me cause for concern," said Jones. "But he wanted to play and he scored 22 points in the first half."

Johnson, who made 46.2 percent of his regular-season shots, poured in 14 points in the first quarter, connecting mostly from outside.

"We know we didn't want to go back there down a game so we went out a little bit more aggressive," said Johnson. "As long as I was pushing the ball up, I was getting a lot of jumpers that were wide open."

Boston ran better and got the ball inside more, two of its strong points, than it did in the two losses.

The Celtics led 38-33 after one quarter, 68-67 after two and 89-79 with 3:51 left in the third. But they couldn't shake the pesky Pistons, who scored the next six points to make the score 89-85.

And, the answers are...

Questions readers ask...and then wonder why when they get the answers:

Q—What ever happened to that female sports writer you had? You know the one that wrote the history on Roger Staubach, the one who played football at the military academy on the Hudson?

A—I think you may be referring to Lana Cunningham. She is still displaying her vast knowledge of the athletic world. A few weeks ago, the Midland Angels' Matt Perry called up and said he "had an exhibition score to report." Lana told Matt that the newspaper reported "Mooners", but didn't keep score.

Q—The NBA playoffs are underway and you usually have something unkind to say about the NBA. What happened, the cat got your tongue?

A—If you can say anything nice, don't say anything, is my motton. However, Houston and Utah offered evidence that too many teams are admitted to the post-season playoffs, not only of the NBA, but NHL and NFL, for that matter. They dribble the ball off their ankles and knees, didn't look where they were passing. In general, they exhibited little skill or finesse in trying and failing to make plays that are routine at the college level. The exhibition was especially disturbing since the Rockets, boasting two alleged franchise players, are supposed to be the team of the future. Forecast, Pat Ewing will have a far greater impact on the NBA than Sampson and Olajuwon combined. And remember, you also learned here that Marcus Allen would never make it in the NFL.

Q—You obviously rode up a Sierra Blanca ski lift with my daughter. In a story, you said she had a "tongue that would have shamed a drunken sailor." I wish you hadn't told everybody.

A—I'm sorry, it wasn't your daughter. She belonged to a group from a central Texas community, whose church was enjoying an outing in the mountains. However, the reference was indelicate, I should have said her language was "salty."

Q—Okay, big mouth, after using two columns to criticize Rand McNally's Pittsburgh's selection as the No. 1 place to live, just where would you live if you had a choice?

A—Well, er, a, Pittsburgh. It's No. 1, isn't it. See, I'm really very generous.

Q—More response on the Pittsburgh issue from MRT staff members.

A—From Lana Cunningham—I've heard that name someplace before —"I like Pittsburgh. I stopped in the airport there once. I was very impressed."

From photographer Ron Jaap, with whom I had my jousts during football season over the failures of his infamous Mountaineers. "I really like Pittsburgh. I think it's a wonderful town." Understandably, Pittsburgh would look good to someone who grew up in West Virgina and worked in Johnstown. Understandably, Pittsburgh

Q—I notice that Midland was ranked No. 4 as the place-to-live in Texas. What is your opinion of that assement.?

A—There's no accounting for some people's tastes. I would have to rate Midland as the No. 1 place to live in Texas...the rest of the top 15...2. Georgetown. 3. Alpine, 4. San Angelo. 5. San Marcos. 7. Kerrville. 8. Mineral Wells. 9. Durango, 10. Telluride. 11. Ouray. 12. Silverton. 13. Chama. 14. Taos.

Incidientally, Hartford, Conn., was given points for its proximity to New York City in the Rand McNally evaulation. Midland should receive the same considertation. We are a lot closer to Northern New Mexico and southwestern Colorado than Dallas, Houston, Beaumont, Austin or San Antonio.

1901 — Earl Moore of the Cleveland Indians pitched nine hitless innings against the Chicago White Sox before giving up two hits in the 10th to lose 4-2.

1916 — In his major-league pitching debut, Bruno Haas of the Philadelphia Athletics walked 16 Detroit Tigers in a game marred by a record 30 bases on balls.

1929 — The New York Giants' Carl Hubbell pitched a no-hitter against the Pittsburgh Pirates, the first by a left-hander in the majors in 13 seasons.

1937 — Ernie Lombardi of the Cincinnati Reds went 6-for-6 in a 21-10 rout of the Phillies in Philadelphia.

Seattle's Moore three outs away from no-hitter

Associated Press

Seattle right-hander Mike Moore, who has been having trouble at the start of games recently, had some problems at the end of one against the Milwaukee Brewers.

Three outs away from a no-hitter Wednesday night, Moore was unable to finish off the Brewers and was sent to the showers in a hail of singles in the ninth inning.

The only thing difference this time was he emerged a winner, as the Mariners hung on for a 4-2 decision.

"I haven't thrown anything close to this since Little League," said Moore, 3-3, whose spell was broken by Robin Yount's leadoff single in the ninth. He lost his shutout on two-out singles by Bill Schroeder, Ted Simmons and Mark Brouhard before Ed Nunez came on to get the last out.

The performance was easily the strongest this year for Moore, who had failed to last beyond the fourth inning in his two previous starts and had lost his last three games. He came into Wednesday's game with a 7.71 earned run average.

Moore, despite walking four batters, had the Brewers baffled before the ninth. Until the last inning, just about every play behind Moore was routine. Only four balls were hit out of the infield until Milwaukee broke through in the ninth.

"I was just looking for a good pitch," said Yount of his leadoff hit in the ninth. "He was throwing hard tonight. That's his strong point. He's an overpowering-type pitcher, and he was overpowering tonight."

"He had his night's work in after he lost the no-hitter, then the shutout," Seattle Manager Chuck Cottier said of Moore. "He had good command of his pitches. He was getting his breaking ball over and he had good velocity on his fastball."

The Mariners scored in the first off Ray Burris, 1-4, on Phil Bradley's triple and Alvin Davis' groundout, Davis' RBI double in the third, a run-scoring triple by Spike Owen in the fifth, and Davis' homer in the seventh.

American League

Red Sox 6, Angels 1

Tony Armas drove in two runs with a homer and a single and Jackie Gutierrez contributed a two-run single as Boston beat California behind the four-hit pitching of Dennis "Oil Can" Boyd.

Boyd, who had a 15-inning scoreless streak snapped by the Angels in the sixth, collected his fourth victory in five decisions. He struck out six, boosting his AL-leading total to 48, but walked seven.

A's 6, Blue Jays 4

Mike Davis and Donnie Hill hit consecutive home runs in the eighth inning and Steve McCatty gained his first win in his last 11 starts as Oakland defeated Toronto. Oakland was protecting a 4-3 lead when Davis and Hill homered off Toronto starter Doyle Alexander, who dropped to 4-1 after losing for only the second time in 15 decisions. Davis' homer was his league-leading 10th, while Hill's was his second.

The victory, only the third for Oakland in 13 games, made McCatty, 2-1, a victorious starter for the first time since last July 19. In his second start of the season, McCatty lasted until he gave up two hits to open the sixth.

White Sox 4, Indians 0

Ron Kittle and Jerry Hairston slugged solo homers and Britt Burns combined with three relievers on a three-hitter, leading Chicago over Cleveland.

Burns, 4-2, blanked the Indians on three singles through five innings, striking out three and walking none before leaving the game because of slight stiffness in his lower back. Gene Nelson pitched hitless relief through the eighth, Juan Agosto retired the first two batters in the ninth, and Bob James got Julio Franco on a grounder for the final out.

Hawks' goalie confident Oilers' streak will halt

CHICAGO (AP) — The Edmonton Oilers haven't been stopped yet in this year's Stanley Cup playoffs, but the Chicago Stadium may be as good a place as any to break the streak, says Black Hawks goalie Murray Bannerman.

Bannerman is confident the Oilers' post-season streak will skid to a halt tonight.

"The Oilers play awfully well at home," Bannerman said. But, he added, "We play well at ours. It's a little smaller — our ice surface. They might not be able to freewheel the way they like to.

"We should be able to forecheck them even better. We have to leave with a better taste tonight than the other night."

The Black Hawks Hawks face the unenviable task of coming back from a 2-0 deficit against the highest-scoring team in the National Hockey League. The Black Hawks were humiliated 11-2 Saturday and beaten 7-3 Tuesday night.

"After the first game, we gave it one of these," team captain Darryl Sutter said with a roll of his eyes. "At least, after (Tuesday), we know we've got a chance. We can play harder than we did tonight. We can play with them.

"There's two things you can do when you get bombed like we did Saturday," Sutter said. "You can crawl into a corner or you can get back up. At least we got back up."

Coach Bob Pulford echoed those comments. "We had a good effort, we were in the game most of the way. I think the bounces will start coming our way. If we win the next one, we're right back in it."

While the Hawks may have shown they don't plan to roll over and play dead in the best-of-seven series, the Oilers' posted their 12th straight playoff win and shattered the record they had shared with Montreal and Boston.

NBA strikes back, hits Akeem with fine

From Wire Reports

Rookie center Akeem Olajuwon of the Houston Rockets has been fined $1,500 for punching Billy Paultz of the Utah Jazz during their NBA playoff game April 28. The two players were under the Houston basket in the final minutes of Utah's 104-97 victory that knocked the Rockets out of the playoffs when Olajuwon threw a right hand that hit Paultz on the side of the face.

Scotty Stirling, the NBA vice president of operations, levied the fine Wednesday following an investigation of the incident by Jack Joyce, the league's director of security. In a letter to Olajuwon, Sterling said Paultz "was in no way prepared for the punch and totally defenseless. While this flagrant act was undetected by the officials working the game, it nonetheless violates all of the NBA's principles of fair play and good sportsmanship."

The NBA Dallas Mavericks waived Tom Sluby, a rookie guard from Notre Dame who averaged 2.4 points per game this season. Sluby was the Mavericks' third choice in the second round of last year's draft. He played in 31 of 82 games this past season...

The San Diego Padres violated the joint drug agreement between the players union and owners by suspending second baseman Alan Wiggins for the balance of the 1985 season, the Players Association says.

"When a player is ready to return to play, he must play," said Donald Fehr, the association's acting director. "They (the Padres) must adhere to that. If they try to do anything else, we'll make them adhere to it."

Wiggins' agent, Tony Attanasio, has said that Wiggins will be ready to play after completing a month long drug rehabilitation program. Padres President Ballard Smith said Wiggins would not play for San Diego in 1985, regardless of his progress in the rehabilitation program and he's not about to change his mind about Wiggins status with the club for this season...

Some of the San Antonio Gunslingers' latest paychecks have bounced. The San Antonio Light and The San Antonio Express-News quoted unnamed players who said their paychecks, which arrived three and four days late last week, bounced when they tried to cash them.

The Express-News reported South Texas Sports Inc., parent company of the USFL team, pledged to make the checks good by paying each player 50 percent cash and the other half with a personal check from club President Bud Haun.

Meanwhile, the USFL Players Association filed a formal grievance against STS to protest the franchise's chronic payroll problems this season. Four of the five series of Gunslingers' paychecks this season have either been late or lacked sufficient funds...

STATE

LaMarque's Vincent Carpenter has been over 60-feet four times in a row and has a season best of 62-9. Davis had a 62-8¾ last week and MHS assistant track coach Bernie Hagins noted, "We think we will have to have a throw of over 63-feet to win it."

Sophomore Edwards has been beaten only once this year in the 200. She has a season best of 24.62, which should be competitive, but experts are saying that a sub-23 seconds will be needed to win. Edwards won the Region I title so her competition will come from the likes of Chryste Gaines of South Oak Cliff, who has a season best of 23.94.

"I'll worry about state when I get there," said Edwards. "I just wanted to win the region meet and go to state. I knew I was going to go (to state) before we ran at the regionals. I had my mind made up."

Lee's sprint relay team has broken the Lee school record three times this year, twice at the Region I meet. Their record is now 41.0 and set at breaking the 41 second barrier.

However, Lee was second at the Region I meet as Fort Worth's O.D. Wyatt blazed to a 40.9 region record. Wyatt is one team Lee will have to face again and Roosevelt has a 40.6 this year as does Houston Forest-Brook.

"We broke our own record three times," said Woods. "We'll have to do it again and I think we can."

Lee should be well rested for this race since it is the second event of the day and Jones won't run until later. The problem with that is all the relay teams will be well rested and pumped up to get the meet started.

The state meet begins at 9 a.m. Friday with field events in lower classifications. Class 4A will compete in running events at 6:30 p.m. Friday.

Class 2A and 3A running finals will be at 1 p.m. Friday. Class A and 5A will run together Saturday night.

Hesketh nips Ryan in strikeout battle

Associated Press

National League

Beating strikeout king Nolan Ryan at his own game is a new experience Montreal's Joe Hesketh won't soon forget.

But it took an old bugaboo — one Ryan would just as soon forget — to make the 26-year-old Expos hurler a winner.

"I wasn't trying for strikeouts," Hesketh insisted Wednesday night after fanning an even dozen Houston hitters en route to a 1-0 victory built on a rare spell of wildness by Ryan.

"That one bad inning cost me," said Ryan, who walked three Montreal hitters and hit a fourth in the decisive second. It was reminiscent of the earlier years of his career when he led the league in walks eight times.

"I've gotten myself into problems like that before, but I usually dig myself out."

And he did just that in predictable Ryan fashion, striking out the side with the bases loaded. But he had started by walking Dan Driessen, hitting Hubie Brooks with a pitch and walking Tim Wallach and Herm Winningham to force in the game's only run and ruin a two-hit, 10-strikeout performance.

The 38-year-old Ryan left after seven innings with his all-time major league strikeout total at 3,922 — 39 more than Philadelphia's Steve Carlton.

But the night belonged to Hesketh, 4-1, whose career high in strikeouts left him 3,854 behind Ryan. He limited the Astros to four hits over 7⅔ innings, giving way to Jeff Reardon, who finished up to gain his National League-leading eighth save.

"I didn't think he (Manager Buck Rodgers) was going to take me out," Hesketh said. "But when you've got a guy who can do a job like Reardon, why argue with the decision?"

Mets 4, Braves 0

Keith Hernandez hit a two-run, first-inning homer and Ed Lynch hurled his first major-league shutout, limiting Atlanta to five hits as New York kept pace with Chicago in the NL East. The victory marked the second consecutive complete game for Lynch. "It was starting to haunt me, not getting any complete games," Lynch said.

Reds 8, Phillies 2

Dave Van Gorder's three-run homer off John Denny in the sixth inning propelled Cincinnati. Jay Tibbs, 2-4, was the winner while Joe Price worked the final 2⅔ innings and struck out the last six Philadelphia hitters. Pete Rose, who had a two-out double in the pivotal sixth, scored three runs to give him a career total of 2,100, seven short of Hank Aaron's National League record.

Padres 12, Pirates 2

Terry Kennedy, hitting .191 at gametime, banged a three-run double in a five-run San Diego fourth inning as Andy Hawkins, 6-0, won his sixth consecutive start by scattering nine hits over eight innings.

Cubs 1, Giants 0

Rick Sutcliffe pitched a six-hitter and fanned 12 batters and Ryne Sandberg hit a home run, one of just two hits off San Francisco's Mike Krukow, as Chicago remained tied with New York in the NL East.

Sutcliffe, 4-3, fired his second shutout of the season and the fifth since he joined the Cubs less than a year ago. Sandberg's homer, his fourth of the season, came with one out in the first inning.

Now you can save money on the best phones in the world.

Just visit our AT&T Phone Center* before June 16, 1985. After you buy a selected AT&T phone, we'll mail you a bonus certificate worth up to $40, for a future purchase.

And by the way, some of our phones are now at special sale prices. So you get a double bonus. A discount. And a certificate.

You can even use the certificate to help pay your AT&T leased phone bill. Or use it toward one of the many products our AT&T Phone Centers offer. Either way, it's valid any time from August 1st right through holiday time, December 31st, 1985.

Choices! Choices!

Just look at what we have in store for you: New one-touch memory phones. Our NOMAD cordless phones. Answering systems. Speakerphones. Auto dialers. You can even use your bonus toward any of our do-it-yourself wiring and accessories.

You'll also get the best advice on how to use your certificate. Just give us an idea of your family's needs, and the size of your home or apartment, and we'll design a grouping of phones that do everything you want. Including fitting your budget.

Sound good? Well, that's another point about AT&T phones. Our new phones sound as good as the phones you grew up with. They're made with the same high standards for sound quality and dependability. And for your convenience, there's even a 24-hour toll-free number. Just dial 1 800 555-8111.

Near you! Near you!

Bonus certificates like this don't come around very often. So look for the Extra! Extra! offer at our stores listed below. After all, AT&T phones do a lot of extra things for you. And so do these AT&T Phone Centers.

You'll save $20 on our 2100 Answering System. And get a $15 certificate.

Here are just two of the many products eligible for our bonus certificate. And they're both on sale.

You'll save $30 on our NOMAD* cordless phone with a two-way intercom. And get a $15 certificate.

*Owned and operated by AT&T. Please note: Some restrictions may apply. If you have any questions, ask one of our Phone Center salespeople or call our toll-free number.

Gridiron stars will kick off season

Meredith, Gifford tackle 'Odd Couple'

ENTERTAINMENT

SANTA FE, N.M. — Don Meredith and Frank Gifford will launch the 5th Anniversary season of The Santa Fe Festival Theatre by starring in a classic Neil Simon comedy.

Directed by Thomas Kahn Gardner, co-founder and artistic director of The Santa Fe Festival Theatre, "The Odd Couple," starring Meredith as Oscar Madison and Gifford as Felix Ungar, will be presented in eleven benefit performances Thursday through May 26 at the Greer Garson Theatre at the College of Santa Fe.

Meredith, now a Santa Fe resident, was a two-time All American at Southern Methodist University when he joined the newly formed Dallas Cowboys in 1960.

Retiring in his prime after the '68 season, Meredith joined ABC as an expert commentator for Monday Night Football, and won an Emmy award for his first year on the popular series in 1970. Meredith has acted in a number of television series and films, and in "Ducks In A Row" with The Santa Fe Festival Theatre.

Gifford was elected to the National Football Foundation Hall of Fame for his gridiron exploits at The University of Southern California, where he earned All-American honors, and later into the Pro-Football Hall of Fame for his career with the New York Giants.

Gifford began his broadcasting career in 1957, while still an active player with the Giants, and won an Emmy award as television's outstanding sports personality for 1976-77. He has also acted on television and in films.

Supporting Gifford and Meredith in "The Odd Couple" will be Ellen Blake, who plays Natalie DeRoy on Hill Street Blues; Brenda Wehle, well-known to Festival Theatre audiences for her portrayals in "Ducks In A Row" with Don Meredith and in "Wings;" and, as the poker-playing buddies, Victor Arnold, Andrew Duncan and Baxter Harris.

A Gala Benefit has been set for Friday's official opening night of "The Odd Couple," with ticket prices at $25, or $100 for the performance followed by dinner and dancing with the cast.

For the ten remaining performances, ticket prices are $10 and $15 for weekday evenings and a Sunday matinee, and $20 and $25 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings. All evening performances begin at 8 p.m. and matinees begin at 2 p.m.

The Santa Fe Festival Theatre was founded in 1981 to present the finest in classic and contemporary theatre. This year the emphasis is on recent plays by contemporary playwrights. The 1985 season begins on June 10 with Tina Howe's "Painting Churches," to be followed by Craig Lucas' "Blue Window" in July and Lewis Black's "Hitchin'" in August. Individual ticket prices range from $8 to $25, and a wide variety of discount subscriptions are available.

For "The Odd Couple," as well as for the regular season of plays, tickets and information can be obtained by calling The Santa Fe Festival Theatre box office, at 1-505-983-9400, Monday through Saturday, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Bonham groups take top honors

The Bonham Junior High School Orchestra, under the direction of Kathy Fishburn, won the top honor of "Best Overall Music Organization" at the Carlsbad Music Festival in Carlsbad, N.M., May 4.

In addition, the Crockett Junior High School Band, under the direction of Ben Walker, received "Outstanding Band" recognition at the Festival.

The music groups competed against more than 60 area schools at the annual contest.

Actress says 'Death in California' portrayal was hardest of her life

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — After finishing the most difficult role of her life, Cheryl Ladd has promised herself two months of relaxation. The relaxation won't be total, though, because she'll use part of her holiday to move herself and her family back into their house, which they vacated while it was being remodeled.

The role she found so emotionally and technically strenuous was in "Death in California," an ABC-TV miniseries airing Sunday and Monday. Based on fact, it's the story of a socially prominent woman whose fiance is murdered. The woman is raped repeatedly by the murderer and then becomes enamored of him.

"Although," Cheryl says, "it's only some people's opinion that she fell in love with him."

A book was written about the case, but Cheryl hadn't read it when she was offered the television screenplay.

"The script intrigued me right away," she says, "but I knew the role would be very difficult. I think it was the hardest of my life."

However, she says, capturing the character of a woman attracted to a violently evil man wasn't as hard as it might have been "because the script, like the book, was so well written."

"Emotions are so strange," Ladd says.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Friday, May 10, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Be flexible in the months ahead and fate will be more than kind to you and your loved ones. A new attitude improves a work relationship. Offer to take on those projects that nobody else wants. A reputation for being a hard worker helps you land the job of your dreams. Take a child's concerns more seriously. Your reassurance and interest means more than you realize. Promote your ideas to influential people. CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: actor Taurean Blacque of "Hill Street Blues," comic actress Nancy Walker, Fred Astaire, country music's Mother Maybelle Carter, producer David O. Selznick, philosopher-author Ariel Durant.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your plans could change at the last minute. Tackle essential chores early in the day. Flexibility wins you new friends and admirers. Romance picks up steam. Choose your confidants with care.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A difference of opinion could lead to a heated argument. Do what you can to defuse building tensions. Employment affairs proceed without a hitch. Pay attention to personnel changes. Update your files.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Distant affairs could affect what you are trying to accomplish at home. Postpone travel and keep spending down. A social event turns out better than anticipated.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Push ahead with complete confidence. You find a way to cut through red tape. Double check details to prevent costly mistakes. People at a distance are eager to hear from you. Write letters.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Postpone launching a new project and concentrate on what you do best. A phone call from a former employer saves you both time and money. Take a long-range view in business, romance.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Business affairs could be more complicated than usual. Seek expert's aid. A friend or acquaintance helps you see something you previously overlooked. Show your appreciation in a tangible way.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Your versatility amazes someone in a position to help your career. Do not be nervous about discussing matters with an influential person. A family relationship needs careful handling. Be less critical.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A friend or relative would like to capitalize on your financial success. Refuse to allow anyone to take advantage of you. Romance is more complicated than usual. Go slow on making promises.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A great day for tackling unfinished business. New, streamlined procedures help you beat the competition. Romance takes a back seat to work. Let loved one know how much you appreciate his/her understanding.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Get an early start this morning and you can enjoy a carefree weekend. Lend a helping hand to an inexperienced co-worker or subordinate. A young person asks an important question.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): An agreement can be reached if you drive a hard bargain. Avoid all types of gambling. A friendship helps you achieve a longtime career or social goal. Romance becomes more fulfilling.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Postpone starting new projects and catch up on routine tasks. Home affairs will not intrude on work. A faraway friend or relative wants to share important news with you.

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
2 ◇	Pass	3 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

Almost every bridge book for beginners contains a table of opening leads. These are sound, and usually you pay dearly for departing from the principles laid down therein.

However, no amount of rules can substitute for common sense. The tables cover most situations, but they cannot handle specific hands. To illustrate this point, consider this hand from the Vanderbilt Team Championship at the recent Spring North American Championships, held in Montreal.

The bidding shown occurred at the table where Subhash Gupta of Calgary held the West hand. He was preparing to bid some number of hearts when, to his surprise, South bid the suit in front of him. So he passed and three no trump became the final contract.

It was obvious from the bidding that dummy was quite likely to contain a singleton heart. If it was a low card or the ace, declarer would probably have at least two heart stoppers. But to cater to the possibility that either North or East would have a singleton queen of hearts, West led the king of hearts. When that picked up both the queen and nine, declarer was doomed. He held up one round, won the heart continuation and crossed to the king of diamonds to take the club finesse. West was able to cash his winners to inflict a substantial defeat on declarer.

You might expect Gupta's team to gain quite a few points on this deal. Indeed, as the cards lie three no trump can be made with the lead of a low heart. That contract was reached at the other table as well. However, Sally Wheeler of Houston, Texas, also found the lead of the king of hearts, so there was no swing on the board.

MTV trying to clothe drought victims

NEW YORK (AP) — MTV, the music television network, has joined forces with Catholic Relief Services to help clothe the children of drought-stricken Ethiopia with American-style T-shirts.

"It's the most practical thing a kid can wear," said Beth Griffin of Catholic Relief Services, which hopes to gather and ship 500,000 T-shirts to Ethiopia.

"Exact size isn't so important, they are unisex, and they're culturally acceptable for everyday wear in Africa," she said.

Ms. Griffin said MTV has promised 1,000 MTV shirts to get the ball rolling, and will appeal to its viewers to donate shirts to Catholic Relief.

NEW YORK (AP) — Film star James Cagney is recovering at his upstate farm following an operation three weeks ago to remove an infected growth from his leg, according to a published report.

"He's all right now," Marge Zimmerman, the 85-year-old actor's manager, told the Daily News in a story today.

"He had us worried because he had to go under anesthesia. But he's quite a remarkable man. The doctors had expected him to remain hospitalized for about six weeks, but he got out in two," she said.

According to the News, surgery on the veteran tough guy was performed March 20 in an undisclosed upstate hospital. A sore which wouldn't heal due to Cagney's diabetes became infected, necessitating the operation, Ms. Zimmerman told the News.

Cagney's health has caused his hospitalization twice in the last year. Last June, Cagney suffered a heart attack while vacationing in Boothbay Harbor, Maine; in November, he was hospitalized in New York after developing congestion in his lungs.

• • •

PEORIA, Ill. (AP) — Comedian Richard Pryor came back to the city where he spent his first 22 years to take his initial steps as a movie director, shooting a semi-autobiographical film "Jo Jo Dancer, Your Life Is Calling."

"This is great! Richard's home," said smiling Columbia Pictures spokeswoman Victoria Horsford as shooting of scenes began outside Irving Elementary School Tuesday.

Pryor, 44, co-wrote the script and is directing and starring in the movie, scheduled for release in time for the 1985 Christmas movie-going season.

The comedian portrays the adult Dancer and his alter ego in the film, much of which is done as flashback.

• • •

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actor Sylvester Stallone will have to pay neighbor Vin Scully, the Los Angeles Dodgers announcer, about $69,000 under a split-decision jury verdict for flood damage at Scully's home.

A jury ruled 9-3 Wednesday that 65 percent of the blame for $106,407 in damage should be borne by Stallone, who had the former owner relandscape a hill separating the two homes in 1978.

Scully, the voice of the baseball team for 35 years and an NBC sportscaster, was disappointed that the jury found him 20 percent responsible, but was "delighted that it's over," said his attorney, Daniel C. Cathcart.

Stallone, in Vancouver filming "Rocky IV," was pleased because the judge earlier had dismissed Scully's claims for $7 million in punitive damages, his personal attorney, Jack Bloom, who did not participate in the trial, said.

• • •

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Andre Previn, who takes over this year as director of the Los Angeles Philharmonic, says he wants to see future performances televised to make great music more accessible to people.

"I have a great many thoughts about music on television, and...I think it helps the identification of orchestra and conductor a great deal," said Previn, 56.

"If, by a flick of the switch, they can see a great orchestra playing great music, that is not popularizing it; that is simply making it accessible."

Previn has lived in England since 1968, when he took command of the London Philharmonic, a post he resigned in 1979.

• • •

FALMOUTH, Maine (AP) — Actor Gary Merrill, in a one-man demonstration near his home here, protested claims made in a scathing new book written by a daughter of his former wife Bette Davis.

"This book is like an Ivory soap ad, only reversed," Merrill said of the "My Mother's Keeper," by Barbara Hyman. "Instead of being 99 percent pure, this book is one percent pure...."

Merrill picketed a bookstore in Falmouth, carrying a handmade sign that read "Please Boycott 'My Mother's Keeper'."

The book portrays the 78-year-old Ms. Davis as an abusive alcoholic who urged Mrs. Hyman to have sex at age 13 and frequently called her other daughter a "moron" because she was retarded.

Merrill, 69, was Mrs. Hyman's adoptive father during a stormy 1950-1960 marriage to Ms. Davis. In her book, Mrs. Hyman accuses Merrill of beating both Ms. Davis and her daughter, as well as drinking incessantly.

Canterbury Trio to perform

The Canterbury Trio will perform at 8:15 p.m. Friday at Midland High School. The performance is part of the Midland Community Concerts subscription season.

The Canterbury Trio has emerged as one of today's finest young chamber ensembles, winning accolades from the press and public coast to coast. Violinist David Cerone, cellist Jennifer Langham and pianist Anne Epperson are accomplished artists in their own right who have earned special recognition as soloists both in the United States and abroad.

In addition to maintaining an active solo recital and chamber music career, David Cerone served on the faculty of Oberlin College Conservatory of Music for nine years and the Cleveland Institute of Music as chairman of the String Department for ten years. In 1974, he founded the Cleveland Chamber Music Seminar and served as its director until 1981.

Cerone was appointed to a position at the Curtis Institute of Music in 1981, where he assumed the duties of the late Ivan Galamian. He is a member of the Board of Directors of Chamber Music America and a director and faculty member at the Meadowmount School of Music.

The Canterbury Trio

Jennifer Langham has been hailed by the London press as a "brilliant young American cellist." She has performed frequently throughout the United States, England, France, Germany and Belgium as a recitalist, orchestral soloist and chamber musician.

She has been heard on European radio, National Public Radio and has been a featured soloist on BBC-TV. Her recent New York appearances include engagements at Lincoln Center with the Chamber Music Society, the 92nd Street Y and Merkin Hall of the Abraham Goodman House, as well as a concert for Mayor Edward Koch. Ms. Langham also appeared recently at the White House, performing for President and Mrs. Reagan. Her recordings appear on the BASF label.

Pianist Anne Epperson has performed as soloist in recital and with orchestra throughout the United States. In addition, she has appeared as collaborative pianist and chamber music partner throughout Europe and South America as well as in Canada, Mexico and the United States.

Since 1978 she has been a participant at Chamber Music Northwest and the Aspen Music Festival. She has served on the faculties of the North Carolina School of Arts, the University of Illinois and the Shepherd School of Music at Rice University in Houston. Ms. Epperson has recorded for Vanguard, Musical Heritage Society and Nonesuch.

Admission to the performance is by season membership only.

Young Life, a non-profit, non-denominational Christian organization for high school youth sponsored a "battle" Wednesday to raise money for "U.S.A. for Africa," which provides food to needy people. The youth battled each other in a series of events in which they attempted to remain as clean and dry as possible. Most were unsuccessful.

Ruling may be altered in case of 'no-pass, no-play'

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — District Court Judge Joe Connally Friday will decide if temporary restraining orders he granted against the Ector County School District, which allow two suspended Permian High School football players to suit up for spring training sessions, should be made temporary injunctions pending trial on the merits of the case.

May 2, Tommy Bryant, on behalf of his son, Terry, filed suit seeking to force ECISD officials to let his son play football despite the fact he had failed one course during a grading period.

Monday, April 6, attorney Gary L. Watkins filed suit on behalf of Ricky Cronk, 16, also seeking a restraining order that would allow Cronk to play despite a failing grade.

The dispute involves the so-called "no-pass no-play" rule included in sweeping educational reforms enacted by the Texas Legislature in 1984. State statutes governing participation in extracurricular activities went into effect April 5.

Bryant, Cronk and four other Permian High football players were declared ineligible for spring practice because each had failed one or more subjects in the preceding grading period ending April 25.

Attorneys for both students have taken exception to the six-week grading period used to rule the students ineligible as well as the constitutionality of the newly operative statute. Bryant contended in the petition filed by attorney Larry McMillion that failure to apply comparable sanctions against drill team and other activities is unfair.

Connally orginally granted the temporary restraining order for Bryant and "any student similarly situated," but later narrowed the order to allow only Bryant to be covered by it.

Monday noon, during a special meeting of the ECISD board of trustees, school district attorney Bob Cox was instructed to oppose the restraining order and the issuance of any injunction by Connally at the 9 a.m. hearing on the matter.

Head Start funding application OK'd

By MARK LEWIS
Staff Writer

The Midland Independent School District's Head Start Program had its application for continued federal funding approved Wednesday by the board of directors of the Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission.

"Midland has a good program," said Jerry Tschauner, the commission's director of planning. "All the Head Start programs out here are well run, and they all do a real good job."

If the grant is approved by the Department of Health and Human Resources, MISD will receive $286,909 from the federal goverment to combine with $101,966 in local funds for a total budget of $388,875.

"We're tremendously elated" with the commission's action, said Dr. John McAfee, directer of the Midland program, which he described as "one of the best programs in the country."

"We were monitored (by HHS) last year, and we were 100 percent in compliance," said McAfee, who attributed the program's high rating to its emphasis on cultural deprivation and to the high caliber of its staff.

"I think it's a definite advantage to be associated with a public school" instead of a community-action agency, as are most Head Start programs, McAfee said.

The MISD program will serve 155 3- and 4-year-old children, 90 percent of whom are economically disadvantaged and 10 percent of whom are handicapped. About 51 percent of the children are black and 45 percent are Hispanic.

"It provides a head start toward their formal education," said McAfee. "We try to enhance their self esteem and self-confidence."

The program, which is in its 17th year in Midland, also provides breakfast, lunch and a snack for the children, and provides medical and dental checkups. It employs seven teachers and seven teacher's aides, a home visitor, an education specialist, a social-services specialist, a nurse and a secretary. The program is housed in seven classrooms at the De Zavala Annex campus.

Though the federal budget deficit has threatened many social programs, McAfee is confident the application will be approved uncut.

"We're not going to get as much as we need," he said, "but President Reagan has a strong commitment toward Head Start, which he has designated as part of the safety net" of services for the poor.

Nursing home not ordered to close

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

A Texas Department of Health spokesperson in Austin today said the Terrace West Nursing Center, 2800 Midland Drive, in Midland has not been ordered closed under an emergency closure order.

The decision to close the facility, said Charlene Stowers, a TDH public information officer, was made by the management and owners of the facility.

Ms. Stowers said an investigation by state health department personnel in Midland had resulted in the nursing center being cited for 34 violations of state health department regulations. This resulted, she said, in the facility's federal medicaid and state medicare contracts being cancelled.

The citations ranged from major patient care deficiencies to improper hygenic procedures, such as failure to wash hands from patient-to-patient handling.

According to Ms. Stowers, the major patient care deficiencies were of a nature that would adversely effect the health and safety of residents. She noted, however, that the decision to close the facility was made by its management and it could have remained open while problems were remedied.

Jan Chermak, vice president of professional services, said the decision to close was made by the parent company, Hillhaven Corp. of Tacoma, Wash., so that the facility could be completely remodeled and renovated.

Shelter 'Helps Kids Cope' with chemical dependency problems

Liz O'Daniel

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Liz O'Daniel is helping kids to cope.

As program director of the Permian Basin Shelter for Battered Women and Children, Ms. O'Daniel has set out to break the cycle of family violence and chemical dependency through a citywide prevention program entitled "Helping Kids Cope."

The program, now in its third year, provides youth with a "peer pressure safe place where they can talk about their problems," said Ms. O'Daniel, adding "Kids make a decision as to whether or not they will abuse substances before they are in the fifth grade."

According to Ms. O'Daniel, the $30,000-per-year program is designed to provide services and educate children ages 3 to 13 through a series of workshops that build self esteem and decision-making skills. It also serves to promote family interaction and awareness regarding substance abuse.

"Everybody has equal time to speak and there are no put downs," she said.

According to Ms. O'Daniel, "Helping Kids Cope" treated 11 youth in April 1984 and 79 children last month so "you can see that this program has really blossomed."

In evaluating the project, she noted that the effective ways in which she sees children are:

"The angry child learns to deal with anger more constructively. For example, he hits a pillow instead of another person or he learns to talk to someone about his feelings.

Beard is as close to man's heart as his true love

Now that hirsute is in vogue for awhile, I'm not so sure I want to be just another bearded fellow who seems to be playing along with the Midland Centennial fanfare. Beards are a way of life, a commitment, and should not be treated as a novelty. Beards are not to have one season and flippantly discarded in another. They are as close to a man's heart as is his true love, his truly fair, and are almost as traumatic to lose. Are not beards, like loves, groomed and nurtured? Beards are not to be treated like disposable marriages, beer bottles or diapers. They are more serious endeavors than that. Just like marriage and flying, they are not to be taken as fun and games, although they should be full of joy. Beards are a serious cultivation despite their shabby appearance on some fellows.

Now, I'm not claiming to be a purist. Though I would like to have that facade, it would be a fraud. I've discarded beards in the past, just as I've discarded marriages and loves or loves and marriages have discarded me. But if I discarded, I did so with "good cause" or at least for what I believed to be for valid reasons. Once, in 1977, I believe, I shaved the beard for the sake of a joy ride but kept the moustache. I got the chance to go up in a jet trainer, a T-37 Tweety Bird, at the old Webb Air Force Base at Big Spring. The base commander, whom I now view as a cunning chap, told me I'd have to shave the beard to fly, for the base had no oxygen masks for bearded fliers. So, for the flight, I shaved. And once in the aircraft, I told the pilot the mask wasn't fitting snugly; it was leaking air. "Don't worry about it," he said. "We aren't going that high." And we didn't. We flew under 10,000 feet. We did a few rolls and loops but no spins, flew around like tourists and returned to base. All the while, I suspected the U.S. Air Force had plotted to de-beard me. The mask was just an excuse to bare me.

Afterward, I resumed not shaving and thereby struck back. Powerful counterblow! And I'm sure the Air Force was shaken.

Then, a couple of years ago, I, for no pressing reason, shaved daily for a season or so. It was, I guess, an experiment similar to a married man wondering what single life would be like. Well, I soon got tired of shaving just I had tired of a couple of marriages. So, simply, I quit shaving, and the phenomenon of a beard appeared. It was magic, and I again was comforted by an old friend.

As I reflect, I feel a tinge of remorse for having shaved. Was I unfaithful to my God-given beard? Was my vanity wounded by the razor's blade? I really don't know. Beards are so natural, it seems more sane to have one, fellows, than to go through the drudgery of shaving each day. But sometimes it's hard to go against a custom, such as shaving. Besides, shaving is big business, just like panty hoses, mascara, belts and hot sauce. When a few fellows don't shave and elect to grow beards, they stand out, which is not to say they're outstanding. They just stand out. Today in Midland, the bare-faced men seem to be the standouts. Fair or not, it will soon pass. And we bearded guys once again will be out and standing in our fields of beards.

Student charged in connection with damaged teller machine

From Staff Reports

A 25-year-old University of Texas of the Permian Basin student remained in custody this morning on charges of felony criminal mischief, according to reports filed with city police.

The man was arrested at 2:13 a.m. today after he was alleged to have approached officers investigating $1,070 worth of damage to the teller machine area at First City National Bank's drive-through, 901 Andrews Highway.

According to officers, the man came back to the scene of the crime to explain that he hadn't meant to damage the machine, but that it had taken a card and he was trying to get it back.

Detective Capt. Billy Ray said the man told officers the machine had taken one card so he tried to use another card to pry out the first one. When that card also was taken, the man used an instrument to try to force out both cards.

Police Roundup

Dennis Duke of Stanton reported the theft Tuesday night of two data cartridges valued at a total of $11,000, according to police reports. Duke said he had left the cartridges near the desk in his locked office in the Southwestern Bell building at 110 W. Louisiana at 5 p.m. Tuesday. When he returned at 8 a.m. Wednesday, the cartridges were missing.

Almost $9,000 worth of damage was reported at Grandy's restaurant, 3201 Andrews Highway, between 1 a.m. and 4:40 a.m. Wednesday, reports said.

According to Bernell Shelton, 703 S. Tilden, the restaurant was entered by breaking out the drive-through window.

The restaurant was ransacked and extensive damage to cash registers, coffee pots, calculators and a microwave oven was reported.

Two saddles valued at a total of $1,000 were reported stolen in a burglary Tuesday night of the Birkhead Feed Store, 100 N. Terrell. According to James Birkhead, Route 9 Box 9291, the store was entered between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 7:45 a.m. Wednesday by someone who separated the sheet metal on the northeast corner of the building. Also taken were an undetermined amount of syringes and disposable needles, reports said.

Billy Mack Harville, 4315 Neely, No. 804, reported his apartment was burglarized between noon and 5 p.m. Wednesday. According to reports, Harville returned home from work to find his front door standing open and a color television set, cable converter box with remote control, answering system, reel-to-reel tape recorder and player and stereo speakers missing. Total loss was placed at $894.

Joe L. Howell, 1001 W. Dakota, reported his unlocked Chevrolet pickup was burglarized between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 6:50 a.m. Wednesday. A gun, pump-rifle and portable television set valued at a total of $870 were stolen, according to reports.

Son Ngoc Ho, 5311 Canadian, reported his residence was burglarized between 1:45 p.m. Wednesday and 1:43 a.m. today. Entry was gained by prying open a garage entrance and then a door which leads into the kitchen, reports said. A $500 videocassette recorder was taken and $235 worth of damage to the doors was reported.

A $400 videocassette recorder and a $150 cable channel selector box were reported stolen from the Danny White residence, 909-A W. College. According to reports, entry was gained between 9:20 p.m. Tuesday and 7:30 a.m. Wednesday by removing a screen and raising an unlocked window.

Sharon Smith, 910 Waverly, reported the burglary between 8 p.m. Tuesday and noon Wednesday of a house at 3402 Cunningham. According to reports, a clock-radio, kitchen knife set, electric screwdriver and a cable television converter box were stolen. Loss was placed at $375.

A $123 pistol and a $200 shotgun were reported stolen in a burglary of the Clifton Mullins residence, 1301 S. Atlanta. According to reports, entry was gained at about 8:30 p.m. Wednesday by prying open the front door.

About $375 in change was reported stolen from vending machines in the office of Burnett Elementary School, 900 Raymond. Reports indicate the school was entered at about 3:30 a.m. Wednesday through a window which opened into the office.

In complaints filed with the county sheriff's office, Leland Davis of Odessa said three sodium security lights were shot out sometime Tuesday night at Gulf Oil Co., five miles north of Interstate 20 on FM 1788. Damage to the lights, located on the west side of the building, was placed at $600.

Robert G. Tankersley of Odessa told deputies his 1972 Chevrolet El Camino was burgarized between May 2 and Wednesday. A tool box and hand tools valued at $360 were stolen, reports said.

Alan Spinks, 3200 Boyd, reported the theft a month ago of a 5 horsepower motor for a side roll irrigation line from a site six miles east of State Highway 158 on County Road 120. The motor was valued at $300, reports said.

Assault suspect remains jailed after arraignment

From Staff Reports

A 22-year-old man remained in city jail this morning after he was arraigned Wednesday afternoon on charges of aggravated assault in connection with the stabbing Monday morning of a neighbor.

Curtis Lee Smith, 1107 E. Magnolia, was arrested early Monday after he called police about the stabbing incident. Bail was set at $7,500 by Justice of the Peace Charlie Sprayberry.

Smith is charged with the stabbing of 25-year-old Robert Arredondo, 1106 E. Hickory. Arredondo, who was in the Midland Memorial Hospital intensive care unit through Tuesday, was listed in fair condition today. He suffered stab wounds to the neck and back, reports said.

In statements taken by police, Smith said he was at Arredondo's house at 12:59 a.m. Monday when the two began arguing.

Smith said Arredondo hit him in the face with a beer can and knocked him to the ground. He claimed Arredondo stood over him with a knife and he pulled a pocket knife in self-defense and stabbed Arredondo, reports said.

After going home to change shirts, Smith called police, who found a bloody shirt in Smith's bedroom and a lock-blade knife in a dresser drawer, reports said.

A 27-year-old prison parolee involved in a traffic accident Tuesday morning was arraigned Wednesday on charges of possessing a prohibited weapon after a sawed-off shotgun was found in his car.

Patrick Lamar Andrews Jr., 1902 N. Midland Drive, is being held in city jail without bond until TDC officials transport him. Bond was not set because of his parole status, said Justice of the Peace Robert Pine, who arraigned him.

Andrews, involved in an accident at 10:13 a.m. Tuesday at the intersection of Louisiana Avenue and Andrews Highway, is alleged to have had the shotgun in his car when police arrived at the scene. The gun, which was less than 18 inches in length, is a prohibited weapon, according to arrest affidavits.

Police said Andrews was on parole for a burglary conviction.

Other survivors include one daughter, Monique Matthews of Sacramento, Calif.; one sister, Sharon K. Perez of Abilene; and two brothers, Wyatt Allen Matthews of Houston and John Douglas Matthews of El Paso.

Bond set for alleged kidnapper

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Municipal Judge Otis Moore this morning set bond for Henry Hollis Oliver Jr., 22, at $25,000 on a charge of aggravated kidnapping in the late Wednesday afternoon abduction of a 34-year-old woman.

Oliver, of 321 N. Amburgey, armed with a .22 caliber revolver, is alleged to have kidnapped Janet Lynn Tinsley from her apartment in the Springwood Apartments about 5:30 p.m. Wednesday after tying up her 12-year-old daughter.

Police spokesman John McAhon said the daughter managed to untie herself about an hour later and called police to report her mother had been kidnapped and gave police the name of the alleged kidnapper, described as an ex-boyfriend.

Oliver allegedly made Ms. Tinsley leave her apartment, get into her car and they reportedly drove around for about two and a half hours, before Ms. Tinsley managed to talk Oliver into letting her go at West 16th Street and Harless. Oliver reportedly left the vehicle and fled on foot. He was arrested a short time later by police near the intersection of Park and Annex.

Oliver remained in jail in lieu of bond this morning.

Shooting suspect remains jailed

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — A 25-year-old Odessa man was arraigned before Municial Judge Otis Moore on a charge of attempted murder in the Wednesday night shooting of Robert Dewayne Clark, 22, who remains in critical condition at Medical Center Hospital this morning with a gunshot wound in the head.

Moore set bond for Larry Lynn Calicutt, 122 W. Mable, at $7,500. Calicutt remained in jail in lieu of bond late this morning.

According to Odessa police spokesman John McAhon, Clark was on the south parking area of the Villa East Apartments, 2735 E. 8th Street, about 8 p.m. Wednesday when Calicutt drove up, got out of his vehicle, pointed a gun of unknown caliber at Clark and allegedly fired one shot. The bullet struck Clark in the right cheek and lodge in his neck near his spinal column.

After allegedly shooting Clark, Calicutt returned to his vehicle and fled. He was apprehended a short time later and arrested, said McAhon.

There was no indication as to the motive for the shooting at last report.

Condition improves of girl hit by car

From Staff Reports

A 9-year-old Midland girl struck by a car Monday while crossing Andrews Highway was upgraded from critical to fair condition today in Midland Memorial Hospital, according to a hospital spokeswoman.

Erika Hurrera, 2928 Louisiana Ave., had suffered head injuries after being hit when she ran between cars in the northwest-bound lanes at the intersection of Andrews Highway and Lousiana Avenue.

Water plan OK'd

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Legislature, frustrated in previous attempts to win voter backing for statewide water plans, has approved a $1.2 billion package for a ballot review in November.

The water plan worked out by House-Senate conferees was approved 127-15 by the House and 30-0 by the Senate Wednesday. The proposed constitutional amendment needed to set up the program now goes to the Nov. 5 ballot.

In previous years, voters have turned down water plans devised by the Legislature. East Texans have feared the plans might send their water to West Texas. Many voters were confused by complicated proposals.

"A lost child learns to become a part rather than apart from.

"The class clown becomes calmer, his humor more appropriate.

"The hero child learns to express his feelings," she said.

"We are here to educate children and give them the tools to learn to say no," she added.

Funded primarily through grants from the Texas Alcohol Commission, "Helping Kids Cope" has attracted the attention of shelters across the state," Ms. O'Daniel said. "It has the capacity to become a national program."

Since its inception in 1982, the Permian Basin Shelter for Battered Women and Children has expanded the program's services, providing additional seminars or workshops at the Salvation Army Day Care Center and the Westside Baptist Shelter in Odessa.

Ms. O'Daniel also is attracting attention to herself, receiving a gubernatorial commendation from Gov. Mark White as a pioneer in the prevention of substance abuse.

"It (the commendation) is a serious shot in the arm for the program, for the center and most of all for prevention because it gives prevention recognition. The program is finally getting the recognition it well deserves," she said. "I seriously recommend it for all kids."

PROGRAM

The Regional Planning Commission also gave favorable comment to a $347,123 request to HHS from the Big Spring Independent School District's Head Start Program, and an $18,697 request from the Community Council of Reeves County to help buy supplies and equipment for the Head Start programs in Pecos and Saragosa.

HOME

Arrangments have been made, she said, to assist families in selecting alternate facilities and to provide all necessary counseling and administrative assistance to assure a smooth and comfortable transition for residents.

In addition to working with residents and their families, Ms. Chermak said, efforts will be made to help those employees being laid off to find comparable employment.

Some of the deficiencies specifically cited by State Department of Health investigators included: inadequate activities programs, unsanitary conditions and lack of infection control, inadequate staffing and staff training programs, inadequate dietary services, unqualified or under-qualified supervisory personnel, improper nursing survices, lack of isolation for infectious diseases and improper refrigeration facilities for food stuffs.

Law enforcement officers honored by Optimist Club

From Staff Reports

Three veterans and three rookie officers from Midland law enforcement agencies were honored during "Respect For Law Week" this week by the Optimist Club of Midland.

Also, two special awards were given.

Cited for outstanding duty from the Midland Police Department were Detective Lt. Jerry Don Compton, veteran; and Patrol Officer Jeffery Lynn Darr, rookie.

From the Midland County Sheriff's Office, Deputy Sheriff Richard Stratton, veteran, and Youth Services Investigator Sue Rudie, rookie, were recognized.

Honored from the Department of Public Safety were veteran Trooper Jim Swain and rookie Trooper Leo Arrieta.

Also recognized at a luncheon and award presentation were Earl Stroup of RepublicBank Midland for outstanding private security guard, and the Midland Police K-9 Unit, represented by Sgt. Ed Nicks.

According to Dan Cornelison, president of the Optimist Club of Midland, the first step in creating a climate in which respect for law can exist is through establishing full cooperation between citizens and their local law enforcement officers.

Optimist International's "Respect For Law" program was initiated in reaction to public apathy toward the increasing problems of crime. The Optimists are quick to point out the program does not reflect a blanket endorsement of the practices and personnel of all law enforcement agencies; it does, however, emphasize the need for citizens to demand good law enforcement and to offer cooperation.

ACS to offer stop-smoking clinic

From Staff Reports

According to the American Cancer Society, cigarette smokers in Midland say "yes." In response to this, the American Cancer Society has scheduled a Freshstart clinic to begin Monday at 6 p.m.

The Freshstart program is designed to help people stop smoking and to stay off cigarettes. The program consists of four one-hour, small-group sessions. The focus of the program is to make stopping smoking a positive and successful experience.

A trained instructor will help focus and strengthen efforts and commitment.

For registration information, call the American Cancer Society at (915) 683-6374.

New plan may preserve most oil tax breaks

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Treasury Department's revised tax simplification plan is expected to preserve approximately two-thirds of the existing tax breaks for the oil and gas industry, congressional sources said Wednesday.

President Reagan will make final decisions on the administration's tax reform package shortly after his return to the White House Friday from his European trip.

Treasury officials have not said publicly what concessions they are willing to make to the oil and gas industry, but an aide to Rep. Tom Loeffler, R-Hunt, predicted some tax breaks would survive.

Pending at Treasury are decisions on whether to save the oil depletion allowance and permit accelerated write-offs for the costs of drilling dry holes and small wells.

As proposed last November by former Treasury Secretary Donald Regan — who replaced Baker as White House chief of staff in February — the original plan would repeal special tax breaks for the oil industry, including rapid write-off of certain intangible drilling costs and the oil depletion allowance now provided for energy exploration.

The Regan plan, now being referred to as "Treasury I," also would phase out the windfall profits tax on domestically produced crude oil by 1991 instead of 1994 as under current law.

Regan argued at the time that these tax incentives are inefficient and unfair to other industries. His plan, however, was greeted by a storm of protest from oil and gas industry representatives who warned that curtailing tax breaks would further damage an industry suffering economic setbacks.

The anticipated proposal — "Treasury II" — will be a "polished and political document," said Jim Whittinghill, a specialist in oil issues on Loeffler's staff. By contrast, the original Regan plan was "a collection of ideas that had been floating around the Treasury Department for decades."

Regan, who is now the President's closest adviser, is believed to be "not wedded" to the draft document, Whittinghill said.

A document circulated by oil-industry lobbyists, reportedly obtained from the Energy Department, states that the original Treasury plan would result in reduced oil production of approximately 411,000 barrels a day and reduced natural gas output of 1.1 trillion cubic feet a year by 1987. The Treasury Department denied authorship of the analysis, but informed congressional sources said it appeared to be correct in its findings.

Under consideration at Treasury, according to the document circulated on Capitol Hill, is a plan to compromise with oil and gas interests by retaining some of the current tax breaks for small wells, producing less than 10 barrels a day, known as "stripper" wells.

That provision, added to a shift to shorter depreciation periods for cost recovery, would restore two-thirds of what Treasury I would have eliminated, according to the document: The changes are estimated to be amount to about $5.6 billion in benefits by 1989.

Dollar decreases

LONDON (AP) — The dollar regained some ground in hectic European trading early today after falling sharply in Asian markets. Gold prices were higher.

The dollar fell nearly six pfennigs against the West German mark and dipped below 2,000 lire in Milan after heavy selling pressure, apparently started in Singapore. But it recovered slightly against most key currencies in early trading in Europe.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar fell one Japanese yen to a closing 251.75 yen from 252.75 yen at Wednesday's close. Later, in London, it was quoted at 251.975 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Wednesday:

—3.1460 West German marks, down from 3.1935.

—2.6425 Swiss francs, down from 2.6845.

—9.5750 French francs, down from 9.7275.

—3.5610 Dutch guilders, down from 3.6045.

—1,998.00 Italian lire, down from 2,026.50.

—1.3805 Canadian dollars, down from 1.3845.

GOLD

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $315 an troy ounce, compared with $313 bid late Wednesday. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $314.50.

In Zurich, the bid price was $314.50, up from $313.50 late Wednesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold rose $1.09 to close at a bid $315.39.

Silver was quoted in London at a bid price of $6.335 an ounce, up from $6.265 bid late Wednesday.

Thayer gets four-year prison term

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge, saying he was sending a message to Wall Street and brokerage houses across the nation, imposed a stiff prison sentence on Paul Thayer, former deputy secretary of defense, for lying to authorities investigating his insider stock-trading schemes.

U.S. District Judge Charles R. Richey on Wednesday sentenced Thayer and his friend, Dallas stockbroker Billy Bob Harris, to four-year prison terms on the one charge of obstruction of justice to which they had pleaded guilty.

Richey also fined Thayer and Harris $5,000 and ordered them to surrender to the U.S. Bureau of Prisons in Texas by 1 p.m. on Monday.

Thayer and Harris faced a maximum prison term of five years in prison for giving false testimony to Securities and Exchange Commission investigators.

Government prosecutors said Thayer, Harris and their associates netted $3 million in illegal profits from three separate insider-trading schemes between September 1981 and September 1982.

Prosecutors said Thayer illegally disclosed merger plans involving Allied Corp. and Anheuser-Busch Cos. Inc. while serving as a director of those companies. He was chairman of LTV Corp. in Dallas at the time.

After hearing lawyers for the two plead for probation and community service for their clients, Richey said the sentence must carry a deterrent to warn others who might want to commit white-collar crimes.

"In office buildings on Wall Street, you can hear all kinds of rumors of takeovers and mergers by people who have no business discussing this information, this inside information," he told the crowded courtroom. "And people take advantage of it."

In the Thayer-Harris case, Richey said, "there has been a breach of trust, false statements, injurious statements, obstruction of justice you have engaged in."

He said the false statements made to the SEC officials prolonged the investigation and resolution of the case by some three years.

"Based on deterrence — and the element of deterrence must be emphasized — and to maintain the integrity of the system of justice in the United States," he said he would impose the stiff sentence.

Although technically Thayer and Harris will become eligible for parole in 60 days, government prosecutors believe they will serve at least a year, maybe more.

Before Richey announced the sentence, the 65-year-old Thayer, who resigned from the Pentagon in January 1984, told the judge: "It is an understatement to say that I am sorry and very remorseful for violating the law. I have destroyed a lifetime of achievement. The last two years have been a living nightmare. I don't like myself as much as I used to."

Harris, 45, told Richey he was "embarrassed for all the troubles I have caused everybody. I take full responsibility for what I have done."

AMC closing 12 regional, zone offices

DETROIT (AP) — American Motors Corp. announced Wednesday it will close regional offices in Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Kansas City., Mo., and lay off 72 employees nationwide as part of its crash cost-cutting moves.

The cutbacks will leave eight zone offices to service AMC-Jeep-Renault dealerships. They are in New York, Washington, Atlanta, Detroit, Chicago, Dallas, Denver and Los Angeles.

The company's network of regional sales and service offices had up to 600 employees before the cuts were announced, said John McCandless, an AMC spokesman. The 72 layoffs, he said, apply to all 12 current offices.

AMC announced last month it would slash its internal budgets by 25 percent and that white-collar layoffs would result. More layoffs are expected in mid-month.

AMC, which is 46 percent owned by the French automaker Renault, has been suffering slumping car sales and rising operating costs.

Used car law goes into effect today

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's 89,000 used car lots must clearly tell customers whether they offer warranties — and what is covered — on the vehicles being sold starting today.

The warranty information and other consumer warnings are to be included in window stickers, required under new Federal Trade Commission regulations for the estimated 10.5 million used cars sold annually by dealers.

The regulation forces dealers to disclose the most important information needed by a used-car buyer — who has to pay for any needed repairs — said Carol T. Crawford, director of the commission's Bureau of Consumer Protection.

And the warranties may well prove a good guide to the quality of cars being sold, since a dealer is likely to offer more protection on cars in which he has more confidence, added deputy director Amanda Petersen.

The FTC rule covers sales of used light trucks as well as used cars by dealers who sell at least six vehicles a year. The roughly 7 million people a year who sell their own used vehicles privately are not covered by the rule.

Detailed information on the new regulation was mailed to every used-car dealer in the nation two weeks ago, Ms. Petersen added, in order to give them tine to comply.

"Consumers should look for the stickers starting (today), and we want to hear from them if they're not seeing them," she told a news conference Wednesday.

Dealers who fail to comply could face fines of up to $10,000 per day per violation, although Ms. Petersen indicated the agency will be tolerant of some missing stickers in the early going.

The major focus of the new stickers is to require the dealer to state that the car is being sold either "as is" or with a warranty. And if a warranty is offered, the terms must be stated on the sticker.

Ms. Crawford said a decade-long study of the used-car business found the biggest problem was dealers selling cars "as is," but verbally promising customers that they would fix any problems that came up. Promises that are not in writing cannot be enforced, she pointed out.

"For the first time, buyers will be able to walk into a used car lot and know up front, in writing, what warranty coverage is being offered."

While she could not estimate the cost of the regulation, Ms. Crawford said she thinks savings provided by warranties could range from $500 to $1,500 in repairs on cars with an average price of $3,000 to $4,000.

Warranties are not required by the rule, only that it be made clear whether they are offered and, if so, what systems are covered and for how long. Currently, she estimated, dealers offer warranties on about half of the $60 billion in used cars sold annually.

Besides the warranty information, the new sticker also warns consumers to get any promises in writing, suggests getting an independent inspection before buying a used car and provides a list of the major systems of cars and suggests problems that might occur with them.

There has been controversy surrounding the rule, primarily centered on a dropped provision that would have forced dealers to tell customers about anything they knew was wrong with the car.

Lexington introduces senior citizens' rooms

By SUSAN LINDSAY

THE LEXINGTON at 1003 Midkiff has recently designated a portion of their facilities for senior citizens and is introducing these rooms to seniors by offering a special discount off the first month's rent.

Savings coupons worth $60 are available at the desk for one and two bedroom units.

A special activities center for games or conversation has been established. A swimming pool and jacuzzi are also available.

The Lexington also provides two meals five days a week in the special monthly rate. This package includes meals, maid service, television rental, linens and telephone service, except for long-distance charges. Breakfast and an evening meal will be served.

There is no deposit required of senior citizens. Individuals interested in the program may tour the Lexington's open house from 1-5 p.m. Sundays.

NATIONAL BUSINESS CONSULTANTS, INC. of New Orleans have planned to open an office in the Midland-Odessa area.

Kenneth and Martin Neill are establishing the business. The Neills' have over 60 years of training and experience in business operation and problem solving.

Kenneth Neill is a graduate of Midland Lee High School and Texas Tech University. Since that time, he has been engaged in retail marketing and accounting.

Martin Neill, a former city council member and long time mechanical contractor, moved to Midland in 1936 where he graduated from Midland High School. He has been in business for over 40 years.

The business will offer services, such as merchantising, operations, open to buy, advertising, buying and inventory control, to retail establishments, contracting firms and manufacturing and service companies.

Stacy D. Bryan of Crane has been selected to recieve a college scholarship worth $4,000 from the Educational Fund for Children of PHILLIPS PETROLEUM CO. Employees.

She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William C. Claunch, Sr. and is a senior at Crane High School.

Winners are selected by a committee of educators and businessmen who have no connection with Phillips. The committee awards scholarships on the basis of scholastic record, future promise and financial need.

Each winner will receive a $1,000 award renewable yearly based on scholastic achievement, for a four-year scholarship of $4,000.

MOBILE AMERICA SALES CORP. has announced that Don Clay has been named salesman of the month for April. He also received this title in September and October 1984.

Clay joined the company in June 1984 and had 33 percent of the company's sales last month. He has consistantly been in the top 10 percent of sales for the entire company, which includes 24 other branches.

In addition, Clay, and other Midland-Odessa employees Don Simonson, salesman, and Thomas B. Kesterson, general manager, have been elected to the entire company's new President's Club. This is the highest honor within the organization. The Midland-Odessa men are the only members to the new club.

Kesterson was chosen from other managers and Clay and Simonson were chosen from about 185 other salesmen.

COMPUTERLAND will open a Midland store May 15 at Polo Park Colonade No. 1. A grand opening and ribbon cutting are scheduled for that day.

Vance Goss is manager of the local store, which is part of a chain of over 800 other Computerland stores. The Midland store has the same ownership as the Abilene and San Angelo stores.

Computerland is the world largest computer retail outlet.

10.01% EFFECTIVE ANNUAL YIELD
9.58% ANNUAL RATE GUARANTEED THROUGH MAY 31, 1985 $25,000 MINIMUM DEPOSIT

Invest in the InterFirst Investment Fund today, and you'll earn a better rate than the money funds pay.

Better yet, during May we'll guarantee you'll earn an annual rate of 9.58% (10.01% effective annual yield). And, if you're already in the fund, you can take advantage of the rate by adding unlimited amounts.

Rates are adjusted periodically to reflect market conditions. (Of course, through the end of May the rate will never go below 9.58%.) There are no fees. With only 7-days' notice you can withdraw your money without penalty. And as a depositor, you're insured up to $100,000 by the FDIC.

See an InterFirst banker for the details. And don't forget to pass it on.

We believe in you.

The InterFirst Investment Fund

If at any time the balance falls below $25,000, the rate paid is 5.5%. Substantial penalty for early withdrawal. Individuals and sole proprietorships only. Members FDIC

BUSINESS MIRROR

Specialists trace excessive billing

By PAMELA BROWNSTEIN

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — The breakup of American Telephone & Telegraph Co. and the emergence of competing long-distance phone companies has produced a more complex billing system for Americans — increasing the possibilites for errors.

The change is especially troublesome for businesses and government agencies, which have large phone systems, and that has spawned a growing band of sleuths who ferret out overcharges that can exceed hundreds of thousands of dollars.

"It's basically a recordkeeping failure," said James A. Bell, East Coast manager for Sears Communications Co., one of the consultants that contracts to search for telephone billing errors.

With so many levels of telephone bureaucracy to go through before a customer's order is carried out, the request sometimes is not transmitted accurately. "None of this is done maliciously," he said.

As an example of the problem, Bell said his office found more than $50,000 in overcharges for a New Jersey hospital he declined to identify.

James Carrigan, a spokesman for New Jersey Bell Co., estimates that such errors make up only a small percentage of the 3 million bills his company sends out each month.

Nonetheless, the concept of hiring a consultant is catching on, especially since many are paid only from refunds on any overcharges they find.

In northern New Jersey's Essex County, officials learned they had been overcharged by $218,000 for the telephone system in the court complex.

The error was discovered after employees at Ronald Chernow Communications Services Inc. spent a few months looking over the equipment and the bills, said Rona Parker, an aide to the county executive.

She said the county was so pleased with the results that it is thinking of hiring a consultant for other county offices.

Chernow said the breakup of the Bell System had produced communications problems between AT&T and the local phone companies.

He recalled a case in which a New York company moved to New Jersey and paid a "mileage" charge for keeping its old number. But the company still was being billed for a switchboard that no longer existed.

The telephone company wanted to send an employee to verify that the equipment was not there, but the building had been replaced with a parking lot, Chernow said.

"The larger the company or organization in terms of telephones or lines, the bigger the errors," said Frederick Jaworovich, founder of Telecom Solutions Group, another phone consultant.

He said the problem is compounded because the bills are too complicated for the average customer to decipher.

One of the most common errors is for businesses and governments to be billed for service or equipment that is not there or that has been disconnected.

Another common error is for a customer to be billed incorrectly because the wrong code is typed into a computer.

Occasionally, underbillings are discovered through the consultant's investigation.

Although one consultant said he does not turn over such information to the telephone company — "nobody hired us to do that" — Carrigan said any undercharges usually are discovered when the telephone company reviews the evidence the consultant submits.

Sometimes, Chernow said, no errors are found. But he added, "We make money on most of our accounts."

The concept, however, does not appeal to all potential customers.

Alan Armitage, director of communications for New Jersey's Hunterdon County, said county officials were considering hiring such a consultant until they decided to buy instead of lease their own equipment.

Under the terms of a proposal submitted by a consultant, the county would have had to continue paying a percentage of the overcharges to the consultant for at least a year after any overcharges were found.

Carrigan at New Jersey Bell said errors are most likely to occur in a large, complex account in which there are many changes, such as the addition or deletion of telephones or a new location for the equipment.

"We have no objection if they want to pay for them," Carrigan said of the use of the consultants. "It's not to our advantage to overcharge."

If the telephone does not offer competitive rates and services, he said, customers "may decide to use someone else's services or bypass our network."

STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE℠

HOW TO USE STOCKQUOTE HOTLINE

1. Call the StockQuote Hotline number listed below. A computer voice will answer and ask you for the Account Code.
2. Enter the Account Code, then depress the star key (*) on your telephone. The computer will then ask you to enter your Stock Code.
3. Enter the Stock Code for the stock you wish quoted, the computer will quote the Ticker Symbol, Current Price and Net Change from the previous day's close.
4. After the stock is quoted, the computer will ask you to enter another Stock Code. You have two options:
   A. You may request the quote for another stock simply by repeating Step 3, or...
   B. You may request additional information on the stock just quoted by once more depressing the star key (*), in which case the computer will respond with the Price, Net Change, Volume, High and Low. The computer will then ask you to enter another Stock Code (repeat Step 3).

You may enter up to 10 requests per call.

STOCK CODES

All Stock Codes are based on industry standard Ticker Symbols provided by your broker or available from any Standard & Poor's Stock Ticker Guide. Codes are made up of a series of two-digit numbers, each representing one of the letters in the Ticker Symbol.

To determine the two-digit code for any letter of a Ticker Symbol, remember: The first key to be depressed is always the one on which the letter appears. The second key is always a "1," "2" or "3" indicating that letter's position on its own key (first, second or third position). EXAMPLE: "IBM" = "43 22 61"; "BX" = "22 92." Remember to depress the star key (*) after entering each code.

ADDITIONAL ASSISTANCE

Call the StockQuote customer service number (915) 682-5311 (Monday thru Friday 8 a.m. - 5 p.m.) for additional information or to report any problem with the service.

Earthworms are not lunch meat ingredient

By SONJA HEINZE

Q. In the last few years I have noticed an extra ingredient listed in several types of lunch meats, in hot dogs and in sausages. It's called erythorbate, and I have heard it is earthworms. Is this true? Olga Olis, DeMotte, Ind.

A. Several readers wrote to me expressing similar fears about earthworms in processed meat and chopped meat. Nobody knows how such a rumor develops, but Terence Dockerty, a meat specialist at Cornell University's cooperative extension, gives us his interpretation of how this misconception took hold:

"When the word 'erythorbate' is said quickly, especially when used over the air waves, it can easily be heard as 'earth bait' and can thus be identified as earthworms or worms."

Although earthworms would probably be an excellent source of protein, at the present time no such substances are permitted to be added to any food in this country in accordance with federal, state and local regulations.

Sodium erythorbate is a chemical additive which brightens the pink color of hot dogs, ham, bologna and other cured meats. Another of its functions is to help protect the vitamin C in a product. It is generally regarded as safe by the Food and Drug Administration.

Q. We were wondering how long the word "vitamin" has been around and who coined it? Chris Churma, Central Point, Ore.

A. In 1911 a Polish chemist, Casimir Funk, coined the word "vitamin" while studying the disease called beriberi. He found that an extract of rice hulls prevented the disease and called the chemical makeup of this extract a "vitamine," which is a contraction of the words "vital amine."

A few years later it was discovered that the active material in the rice hulls was not an amine, and the final "e" was dropped.

Q. I have been using a wonderful recipe for years that originated in Trinidad. It calls for various ingredients, including a can of okra. Last week I thought I would improve on the recipe and bought fresh okra, but the dish turned out to be a disaster because cooking it fresh resulted in the okra giving off a terrible mucilaginous slime.

What do they do when they can it to get rid of this terrible slime? Enclosed is my recipe which I wish you would pass along to your readers. Many years ago I won a prize for it in a recipe contest. Dot Johnson, Port Chester, N.Y.

A. B.F. Trappey's, a company in Louisiana that cans okra and other Creole-type food products, advises that you probably didn't cook your okra long enough. D. H. Erikson, an executive with Trappey's, goes on to say that the secret is low temperature, long cooking. In the canned okra the slime has been cooked out.

"I'm told by the food chemist," says Erikson, "that the slime remains throughout the packing process until the product is steam-cooked, under pressure, after being sealed in the cans. The slime then becomes brine water, or the clear liquid you find in a can."

The recipe sent by this reader is very simple and is called Calaloo. Throw the following ingredients into one pot and simmer for an hour, adding water if necessary: 1 large can of spinach (or 1 large bag of frozen spinach); 1 can of okra; 1 small can of tomato sauce; 1 large onion, cut up; 1 smoked ham hock; salt, pepper and garlic to taste. It's especially good with leg of lamb or roast pork and brown rice.

Q. While enjoying a Dairy Queen Dilly Bar, I took time to read the wrapper and discovered that mono- and diglycerides are used in its making. Why are they used in ice cream and food products? Are they also used in non-dairy creamers? Are they harmful? According to my dictionary, they are a by-product of soap-making and fatty acids. William Englebert, Hobart, Ind.

A. "Eater's Digest," a consumer's factbook of food additives, by Michael F. Jacobson, a co-director of the Center for Science in the Public Interest, states the following: "This chemical additive makes bread softer and prevents staling (by preventing the starch from crystallizing), improves the stability and taste of margarine, makes cakes fluffier by helping generate and trap air bubbles), decreases the stickiness of caramels, prevents the oil in peanut butter from separating out. The list goes on and on. The average American consumes over a half pound of mono- and diglycerides as food additives annually.

"Mono- and diglycerides are safe and wholesome. In fact, they comprise about 1 percent of normal food fat and are part of our normal diet. Moreover, the bulk of normal food fats and oils is composed of triglycerides, which our body's digestive system converts to mono- and diglycerides. Cooking also converts a large fraction of fats and oils to mono- and diglycerides. The mono- and diglycerides derived from either food fat or food additives are absorbed into intestinal cells where they are largely converted to triglycerides, which then pass into the bloodstream."

Q. I asked readers to send in their suggestions as to what to do with those 35mm plastic film canisters one just hates to throw away, and here are the responses:

A. W. Romig, Santa Cruz, Calif.: "I have three indoor cats, and these film cans are their favorite toys. Every once in a while I fill one with catnip and punch a few holes in the top. If I ever move my refrigerator, I'll probably find hundreds of them."

Elizabeth Kummeth, Goshen, Ind.: "My husband is quite a farmer for a city fella, and he stores leftover seeds in them. He puts a tape on the top to indicate what is inside and the year. They store neatly in his wooden seed and garden box."

Molly Hampton, Mishawaka, Ind.: "These cans are indispensable in my home. In my overnight traveling case they hold shampoo and conditioners, aspirin, vitamins, alcohol for my pierced earrings, several pairs of earrings, hand cream. In the car I use them for holding several quarters for toll booths and phone booths. When I take large items to wash at the laundromat, the cases contain enough liquid detergent to do the job. For pet owners, like myself, the containers are perfect for taking stool samples."

Rev. Mary-Frances Jones, Austin, Minn.: "A friend of mine has a profoundly retarded child. Trying to get a retarded child to exercise fine movements was tough. So little candies and tiny marshmallows were placed in the film can. The can was closed, then if the child got the can open — a treat! I recommend giving the empty cans to centers for the retarded for their use in this way."

CONSUMING INTERESTS

Frozen treat surprisingly tasty

By LINDA ANDERSON

In summertime when the livin' is easy, manufacturers just love to introduce new cool and tempting frozen treats. And as the temperature rises, consumers' resistance to these treats drops proportionally.

Strange as it sounds, General Foods has recently begun marketing Jell-O Gelatin Pops, frozen whipped gelatin on a stick. Frozen Jell-O may not sound very appealing, but a message on the box reading "only 35 calories per bar" changed them into downright irresistible.

Taste-testers — the usual bunch of adults, children and teenager — tested this new treat for taste, price and advertising accuracy on its own merits. After all, there's really nothing to compare frozen Jell-O with.

Although the product is available in several flavors, including strawberry, raspberry and cherry (my favorite!), we chose orange for the test.

A 21.6-ounce box containing 12 bars, 1.8-fluid ounces each, costs $2.49, which averages out to just a little more than 20 cents each. (Prices listed are from a local supermarket. Prices at other locations may vary.)

Label advertising claims the product is "a refreshing snack ... a delicious frozen snack your whole family will love ... whipped and frozen to give it a delightfully smooth texture." Label information indicates this "delicious frozen snack" doesn't contain much nutrition, although it does contain no fat. Ingredients include water, sugar, corn syrup, gelatin and a whole lot of multi-syllabic, strangely spelled items.

In the taste-test, the product was a hit. The frozen Jell-O-on-a-stick really was smooth and creamy, just like its box advertising claimed, with a texture more like ice cream than popsicles. And it really does taste like Jell-O.

Both adults, usually much too mature for something frozen on a stick, enjoyed the treat. (Even though I don't usually like orange-flavored sweet treats. But 35 calories per bar! I couldn't pass it up.)

The teenager also enjoyed the product, but the children loved it. The 1-year-old quickly cleaned off her stick without dropping even one drip, a major undertaking for a normally messy kid. And the 4-year-old ate two bars in her first taste-test, and would have eaten all 12 by herself is she had been permitted.

Because it was so popular with the children and so easy to serve, we will probably try all flavors. The product was light, flavorful and just the right size. After all, there's always room for Jell-O.

Lightning safety: Wise precaution

By DENESE ALBRACHT

When it comes to a brilliant display of lightning in Texas skies, "better safe than sorry" is a good motto. Deaths from lightning may be rare, but it's short-sighted for anyone to ignore the simple precautions and slight inconvenience of safety measures.

The first rule of lightning safety is to get away quickly from any open space, such as a field, golf course, hill-top, beach or pool. Get away before the rain starts, since lethal bolts sometimes strike during the muggy lull before a storm.

If you're caught outside, the best kinds of shelter are buildings equipped with a lightning protection system, steel-framed buildings, and cars, busses or tractors with metal tops and closed windows. But don't trust a flimsy shelter on a golf course.

When you can't take cover, you can better your chances by taking refuge in a ravine, culvert or ditch — keeping away from pipes and staying alert for flash floods. When none of this is practical, crouch as low as possible with no part of your body except knees and toes touching the ground. Also remember to avoid tall isloated objects, like a lone tree, staying twice as far away as the tree is high.

Just being indoors doesn't entirely protect you from lightning. Stay away from open doors and windows, fireplaces, radiators, stoves, metal pipes, sinks, bathtubs, shower stalls and plugged-in electrical appliances. Electricity of lethal strength can enter a home not only by a direct strike, but also by a side flash from another object like a tree, and through pipe lines and wiring.

Unfortunately when someone is struck by lightning, bystanders often don't know what to do. Others won't touch the victim for fear he is still electrically charged. But a lightning victim can be safety touched and often revived by mouth-to-mouth resuscitation.

Adults who work outdoors or enjoy outdoor sports may have a healthy respect for lightning, but children are often unaware of its danger. Parents should review lightning safety precautions with their youngsters along with safe bicycling and swimming rules for the summer.

Consumers encouraged to air grievances

By JAMES M. WOODARD
Copley News Service

When a consumer has a grievance against a real estate broker, what can or should be done about it?

There are definite steps that can be taken to resolve a problem when one surfaces. And most real estate industry leaders encourage consumers to take appropriate action when they feel they have received unfair or unethical treatment.

"Most of our recent complaints from consumers center on alleged misrepresentations made by real estate licensees," said the director of a state Real Estate Commission.

Many of the current crop of "misrepresentation" cases relate to special financing plans, he pointed out. "Also, the structuring of the sales contract is often a source of problems."

A common denominator of most consumer complaints can be described as "lack of effective communications." Some brokers and salespeople fail to communicate important information; some consumers don't understand what is explained to them.

When a grievance does surface, the consumer can and should take appropriate action.

First, try to resolve the problem by discussing it openly with the broker. If this does not satisfy the issue, discuss it with the firm's owner or sales manager.

If the consumer wants to pursue the problem, he should contact the Board of Realtors covering the jurisdiction where the subject transaction took place.

The local boards have well-organized procedures for handling consumer complaints — procedures established for all boards by the National Association of Realtors.

The consumer's complaint is first described in writing, and submitted to the board's executive officer. It then goes to and is investigated by the board's grievance committee. If this body feels it is justified, it is referred to a Professional Standards Panel.

The panel is a small group of board members who have experience and expertise in the precise type of transaction that is the subject of the dispute.

DEAR ABBY

Language habits annoying

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: Basically, this letter is about people who basically overuse a particular word, or groups of words. Basically, the worst offenders are people who say "you know" four and five times in one sentence — basically speaking, you know.

You know how overworked those basic words can seem after basically a short period of time. You know, I find such repetitions basically nauseating, really.

Based on my aversion, you know, I'm considering taking drastic action to basically draw attention to this basic speech fault by taping the offenders' mouths shut, you know.

I'm basically a fan of yours, you know, so would you see if there are many others out there who, you know, have basically the same reaction? — GAIL H., SHOREWOOD, WIS.

DEAR GAIL: You know basically I can understand your irritation because I do know that such sloppy speech habits are formed by people with basically limited vocabularies.

But don't go away; here's a companion piece to your letter from Scottsdale, Ariz.:

DEAR ABBY: One of the most annoying habits I find among people, especially teen-agers and young adults, is ending every sentence with "OK?"

The sentence can be a simple statement, such as, "I went to the store," but there's that superfluous "OK?" tacked onto it as if it were a question.

The "OK" habit is a sign of insecurity, and is used by people who need constant approval for everything they say.

It makes one wonder how people can go through school with such an irritating habit without having it corrected by teachers or associates. — TIRED OF "OK" IN ARIZONA

DEAR ABBY: What can I do about an old high school classmate who has been after me to resume our friendship after 18 years? We no longer have anything in common, and to make matters worse, she has just given birth to her first baby! (My children are in their teens.)

She is eager for me to see her baby, and I dread it. I certainly don't intend to buy a baby gift for someone that I have no intention of seeing again.

I can't stall her any longer. What should I tell her that won't crush her? — TOO OLD FOR BABY TALK

DEAR TOO OLD: You certainly can't tell her the brutal truth — that you have nothing in common and don't care to see her baby. You're exerting far more energy ducking her and feeling guilty than it would take to buy her a little gift and see her baby. Sometimes the easiest way "around" something is right through it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO F.L. IN ALASKA: One's character is made up of what he (or she) does when nobody is looking.

Nation is developing bumper crop of potholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly 56 million potholes are jarring the nation's drivers, a result of the severe winter weather combined with the spring thaw, taking their toll on motorists, according to The Road Information Program (TRIP).

It says the 55,960,970 potholes produce an average of 29 craters for each mile of pavement in the United States.

TRIP says some 19.7 million tons of filler, estimated to cost $224 million, will be used nationwide to fight this year's pothole problem. One ton of asphalt will fill an average of 18 potholes.

Home temperature controls invented 100 years ago

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Automatic temperature controls in American homes were developed here 100 years ago from a discovery that dates back to the 18th century.

In the mid-1770s, physicists found that two attached strips of different metals would curl in response to temperature changes. Bi-metal strips began to be used to compensate chronometers for temperature variations. In 1879, a system was patented to maintain humidity levels in spinning and weaving shops.

And, in 1883, Albert Butz, a local inventor, used a thermostat with an electric circuit that responded to temperature changes by operating a motor that would open or close dampers on coal furnaces. Butz completed his system in 1885, and formed a company that eventually became Honeywell Inc.

Public Notice

OF TARIFF CHANGE FOR PRIVATE LINE CUSTOMERS

Southwestern Bell Telephone Company filed a tariff with the Public Utility Commission of Texas on October 3, 1984, to allow our company to provide additional on-premises Private Line Service only at locations where spare on-premises channel facilities exist.

The tariff will become effective upon approval from the Commission.

If the tariff is approved, the Company would not place new on-premises channel facilities in order to provide on-premises Private Line Service. The company will continue to offer on-premises Private Line Services which are currently being offered. In addition, no change in rates for these services will result from the proposed tariff.

The company does not anticipate any net change in revenues as a result of this tariff.

The Commission has assigned this matter to Docket 6015. Persons who wish to intervene or otherwise participate in these proceedings should notify the Commission as soon as possible. A request to intervene, participate or for further information should be mailed to the Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Further information may also be obtained by calling the Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division at (512) 458-0223, or (512) 458-0227, or (512) 458-0221, teletypewriter for the deaf.

Aviso al Público

ACERCA DEL CAMBIO EN EL SISTEMA TARIFARIO PARA LOS USUARIOS DE LINEAS PRIVADAS

El 3 de octubre de 1984, Southwestern Bell Telephone Company registró ante la Comisión de Servicios Públicos de Texas una nueva tarifa que permitiría a nuestra compañía proporcionar Servicios de Línea Privada adicionales en el sitio del usuario únicamente en ubicaciones donde ya existan instalaciones de transmisión disponibles en el sitio del usuario.

La nueva tarifa tendrá vigencia a partir de la aceptación de la Comisión.

De aprobarse la nueva tarifa, la compañía no colocaría instalaciones de transmisión nuevas en el sitio del usuario con el objeto de proporcionar Servicios de Línea Privada en el sitio del usuario. La compañía seguirá proporcionando lós mismos Servicios de Línea Privada en el sitio del usuario que actualmente se proporcionan. Además, la tarifa propuesta no ocasionará ningun cambio en las tarifas que se cobran por dichos servicios.

La compañía no anticipa ningun cambio real en los ingresos como consecuencia de este cambio en el sistema tarifario.

La Comisión ha registrado este asunto bajo el Docket 6015. Toda persona que desee intervenir o participar en el presente proceso debe notificar a la Comisión lo antes posible. Las solicitudes de intervención, participación o información deben dirigirse a: Public Utility Commission of Texas, 7800 Shoal Creek Boulevard, Suite 400N, Austin, Texas 78757. Para obtener mayor información debe llamar a Public Utility Commission Consumer Affairs Division, (512) 458-0223, o (512) 458-0227, o al (512) 458-0221 si requiere teletipo para personas con impedimentos de audición.

BETTER BUSINESS

Portraits prized possessions

By LINDA TRUITT

Linda Truitt

Portraits of our children, parents, grandparents and other relatives are prized possessions. Those of us with children will try to have their pictures taken by a professional at least once a year for gifts to be given to grandparents and other relatives.

While there are many reliable well-trained professional photographers, increasingly fly-by-night operators are setting up studios to take our money and then skip town.

Many people have lost money to such fly-by-night photographers in the last several years. A free photograph is the most commonly used bait. Such offers appear in coupon books, store displays, direct mail or you might be called on the telephone. Often such photographers will use a 35mm camera on a tripod instead of a regular portrait camera, and instead of making your selection from regular photographs you will be shown slides projected on a screen.

You risk never receiving your pictures from a fly-by-night photographer even though you may have paid a substantial deposit. This type of company most often blames the processing lab for the delays. You might be told the photos were lost in the mail, the lab shut down for the holidays or the lab had a backlog of orders.

Reputable photographers don't use 35mm cameras for portraits because the film cannot be retouched, according to Tony Corbell, owner of Tony's Studio of Photography of Midland. He also said that although many local established photographers do send their work to out-of-town labs, rarely is a picture lost in the mail.

Recently a temporary restraining order was issued against Coulter Studios of Odessa. Since December, 1984, the BBB has received 60 complaints against this company for non-delivery of photos, incomplete orders, wrong orders and/or poor quality.

The lawsuit filed by the attorney general claims the owners, Carl and Janie Barnes, violated the Texas Deceptive Trade Practice-Consumer Protection Act by not delivering the portraits as promised after receiving payment. The suit also alleges the owners induced consumers into buying portrait packages with no intention of delivering the photographs as promised.

The temporary restraining order prohibits the owners and their employees from "representing and offering to sell photographic goods and services."

On April 29, Carl and Janie Barnes filed for bankruptcy. Those customers who paid for but never received their pictures will have to stand in line with other creditors for their money.

By investigating the background of the studio before having your portrait taken, you are less likely to be left with an empty wallet and no pictures.

Woman resigns after flap caused by racist essays; Probe continues

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marianne Mele Hall, stalked by controversy because of her work on a book considered insulting to blacks, has resigned from a government tribunal, but a senator says an investigation into her appointment will continue.

Sen. Charles McC. Mathias Jr., R-Md., chairman of the Judicary subcommittee that oversees the Copyright Royalty Tribunal, said lawmakers must determine how Ms. Hall came to be nominated and how her work on the book escaped all but cursory notice during her Senate confirmation.

"The American people deserve an explanation of how this episode was permitted to occur, and a statement of what will be done to prevent a recurrence," Mathias said following Ms. Hall's resignation Wednesday.

"The inquiry commenced last week by the subcommittee on patents, copyrights and trademarks will continue, not to investigate (Ms. Hall), but to examine the nomination and confirmation process that served the nation so poorly in this case."

The book that sparked protests against Ms. Hall — and demands from more than 100 lawmakers that she resign — is "Foundations of Sand," a 1982 collection of essays.

"The Minority Problem," one of the 71-page book's eight essays, said most American blacks "insist on preserving their jungle freedoms, their women, their avoidance of personal responsibility and their abhorrence of the work ethic."

The authors recommended a "separate but superior" school system for blacks with "retired star athletes as principals."

Ms. Hall told a House panel last week that she was "merely the editor" of the book, but in documents filed with Senate Judiciary Committee at the time her appointment was under consideration, she described herself as a co-author. She is also listed as a co-author on the cover of the book.

A White House spokesman said Wednesday Ms. Hall was not asked to resign from the $70,000 post but had been discussing the matter with the White House. Spokesman Dale Petroskey said he's not aware of her talking to President Reagan, but said her resignation letter was addressed to him.

A Senate Republican source, who spoke on the condition he not be identified by name, said, "It's no secret the White House wanted her out."

Telephone attempts to reach Ms. Hall for comment were not successful Wednesday.

Mathias said Ms. Hall, who was confirmed April 12, "has done the right thing by resigning."

Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., reacted to news of her resignation with relief. "Thank God. She was a disgrace to the American system. Some of the views she held were a disgrace to the Republican party. They should have fired her. At least she had the sense to resign."

Mark Goodin, a spokesman for Senate Judiciary Chairman Strom Thurmond, R-S.C. said, "Under the circumstances, the senator feels she pursued the correct course of action."

Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., former chairman of the Congressional Black Caucus, said, "I think it's good for the country. It's not just that her remarks were insulting to blacks but that the United States government should have a higher standard for its public servants."

Black caucus reluctant to admit white

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The state Legislature's Black Caucus has drawn criticism from a Philadelphia civic leader for its reluctance to accept a lawmaker because she is white.

"You can imagine, if some white group came up and said only whites can join, what the blacks would be doing," said Sam Evans, who heads the American Foundation for Negro Affairs.

"They would be jumping up and down," he said Wednesday.

On Tuesday, it was disclosed that the caucus leadership was reluctant to admit Rep. Babette Josephs, a Philadelphia Democrat who said she wanted to join caucus because it is "progressive and urban-oriented."

"I am unaware of any sentiment on the part of any member to admit her," said Philadelphia Rep. Peter Truman, the caucus chairman. He said the group's bylaws require that its members be black.

Truman said the 18-member caucus would lose strength if it admitted "everyone who has a few black people in their districts." He said the caucus was designed for black lawmakers "who have needs peculiar to them."

Ms. Joseph said about one-fifth of her constituents are black.

"I'm concerned about urban problems. We have that in common. There is no urban caucus," she said.

Truman said Ms. Josephs' request has not been rejected. She will be allowed to present her case before the full caucus, which would then vote on whether or not to admit her.

The Black Caucus last week admitted Rep. Ralph Acosta of Philadelphia, a native of Puerto Rico, whose north Philadelphia district has the city's highest concentration of Hispanic voters.

Husband says he knew it was murder to kill wife

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Roswell Gilbert testified that he knew it was murder to shoot his wife of 51 years in the head, but said it had to be done to end her suffering from Alzheimer's disease and because "some things are more important than the law."

"I could hear her crying, she was in bad pain...she looked beautiful to me," Gilbert said Wednesday. "She said 'Please, somebody help me.' Who is that somebody but me?"

Testifying in his own defense, Gilbert, 75, said he could think of no other way to stop the pain his 73-year-old wife, Emily, experienced from Alzheimer's and bone disease.

Closing arguments in the first-degree murder trial were scheduled today. Gilbert, a retired engineer, faces life in prison if convicted.

Prosecutor Kelly Hancock said he would not seek the death penalty if Gilbert is convicted. Jurors also have the option of convicting Gilbert of lesser charges.

"I know it's murder, but so what? Some things are more important than the law," said Gilbert.

The defense, which rested its case Wednesday, contends the March 4 killing was the compassionate act of a loving husband who wanted to end his wife's suffering.

But Hancock says Emily Gilbert was killed because of her troublesome senility by a husband who remains healthy, active and astute. Hancock maintains the shooting was premeditated and constitutes first-degree murder.

A medical examiner testified Tuesday that Mrs. Gilbert could have lived 10 years more. Mrs. Gilbert suffered from Alzheimer's disease, a degenerative brain condition, and osteoporosis, an incurable bone disease.

Doctor's testimony may end von Bulow retrial

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Attempted murder charges in the retrial of Claus von Bulow could be dismissed because a doctor's statement that the socialite's wife caused her own first coma was never given to the defense team during the 1982 trial, lawyers said.

Dr. Janis Gailitis testified Wednesday that he told authorities in 1982 that Martha "Sunny" von Bulow's 1979 coma was caused by vomit cutting off oxygen to her brain, not insulin-induced low blood sugar, but was told not to volunteer the information.

Not sharing such information is grounds for dismissal of criminal indictments, said Harry Gemma, an assistant attorney general. He said he expected a dismissal request by defense lawyers.

The state alleges that von Bulow injected his wife with insulin in attempts to kill her, gain $14 million of her $75 million inheritance and be free to marry his mistress.

The defense says Mrs. von Bulow brought on her own condition by abusing drugs, alcohol and sweets, aggravating a chronic low blood-sugar condition.

Mrs. von Bulow recovered from the first coma but doctors say the second, which began in 1980 and continues today, is irreversible.

Pupils see equality in future

MIDDLETOWN, Conn. (AP) — The children of the 1980s see sexual equality and a woman president in their future, according to a poll of about 100,000 pupils conducted by the Weekly Reader.

The students were asked to think about what life will be like when they are as old as their parents are now. About 625,000 pupils, in second grade through junior high school, responded. A random sample of 100,00 was analyzed by the staff of the children's newspaper and The Future Studies Program at the University of Massachusetts.

Responding to a list of nine statements, the students most agreed that women and men will be treated equally in all ways and that by the time they are adults there will have been a woman president, said Terry Borton, editor-in-chief of the paper.

'Prudence' unmasked fraud

LEROY, N.Y. (AP) — The bank auditor who blew the whistle on E.F. Hutton & Co. Inc. says it was simple banker's prudence that uncovered Hutton's multibillion-dollar cash-management fraud.

"The people who brought this to my attention were really good bankers. They did what they had to do," said John Lounsbury, former internal auditor for the holding company of tiny Genesee Country Bank in this village of 5,000 people 25 miles southwest of Rochester.

Within a single week of December 1981, the rural bank bounced $21 million of Hutton checks that it discovered were not covered by funds on deposit.

Although Hutton immediately wired $32 million from its Manhattan headquarters to cover the checks, the rural bankers were not mollified. They went to the authorities.

That started a federal probe that resulted last week in 2,000 felony counts of mail and wire fraud against Hutton, the nation's fifth-largest brokerage house.

Man: Time to switch parties

DETROIT (AP) — Wayne County Executive William Lucas, who switched from the Democratic to the Republican Party, said others should follow his lead because the Democrats had taken its faithful members for granted.

"Some of us believed that only one party represented the poor only to find its proposed solutions have kept us poor and stripped many of us of our dignity," said Lucas, 57, a former FBI agent and longtime Wayne County sheriff.

Laxalt may add new element to 1988 race

By DONALD M. ROTHBERG

An Analysis

WASHINGTON (AP) — Speculation that Sen. Paul Laxalt of Nevada might get into the race to succeed his close friend Ronald Reagan as president is adding a new, potentially unsettling element to the early maneuvering for the 1988 campaign.

Laxalt would be the one candidate who could upset key aspects of the strategies of Vice President George Bush and Rep. Jack Kemp of New York, generally regarded as the two leading prospects for the 1988 GOP presidential nomination.

For example, how would the president respond to a contest in which his loyal vice president and his close personal friend were rivals?

"I wouldn't expect the president to endorse anybody in 1988," Bush has said. "He never has, and it's against his policies to do that."

He has been happy to have Reagan say repeatedly, "As far as I'm concerned there has never been a finer vice president."

That kind of statement appeared to send a clear message to Reagan's conservative supporters: Bush had been a loyal vice president and deserved their support in 1988.

But would Reagan continue to be as complimentary to Bush if Laxalt got into the race? Reagan and Laxalt have been close friends since they were governors of adjacent states in the 1960s.

"We're like brothers, just like brothers," is how Laxalt has described the relationship.

In 1976, 1980 and again in 1984, the Nevadan was chairman of Reagan's presidential campaign. At the Republican convention in each of those years, it was Laxalt who delivered the speech placing Reagan's name in nomination.

Laxalt often is described as the only person Reagan would be tempted to endorse as his successor.

Germany still paying restitution to Nazi victims

Associated Press

West Germany continues to pay modest damages to at least 200,000 Holocaust survivors around the world under a complex indemnification program established in 1952.

Spokesman Emil Buenke of the Finance Ministry in Bonn told The Associated Press by telephone that the West German government to date had paid 72 billion marks (about $24 billion) in compensation to victims of Nazi persecution.

The figure is expected to reach 86 billion marks ($27 billion) by the year 2000, he added.

Spokesmen for various Jewish organizations knowledgeable about the program or partly responsible for its implementation refused to discuss it on the record because of what they described as internal politics and concern that it might cast the Germans in a compassionate light.

But these groups said West Germany had rejected thousands of claims over the years by people unable to prove their physical or mental disabilities were the direct result of Nazi persecution.

The claims have been processed by German administrative agencies and courts. The New York-based Conference on Jewish Material Claims Against Germany monitors the implementation of the 1952 agreement and negotiates with the Germans for periodic cost-of-living adjustments to the annuities.

The Jewish sources told the AP in telephone interviews that claimants who were confined to concentration camps or Jewish ghettos in World War II received single payments based on a rate of approximately 5 marks ($1.60) per day of imprisonment.

Parade marks end of World War II

MOSCOW (AP) — Waves of World War II tanks, vintage artillery and veterans of the campaign against Nazi Germany accompanied nuclear rockets and young soldiers strutting past the Kremlin today in a tribute to the past and a show of modern might.

Red Army veterans, partisan and underground fighters, and members of Polish and Czechoslovakian divisions formed by the Soviets marched behind their wartime battle standards as the Soviets celebrated Victory Day, the 40th anniversary of the Nazis' surrender.

Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev, just 14 years old when the war ended, led members of the ruling Politburo onto Lenin's mausoleum to view the parade that climaxed a massive nationwide celebration.

Marshal Sergei Sokolov, the Soviet defense minister, congratulated the units taking part in the parade, and declared: "Mankind never before witnessed such valor, heroism, courage and will to win" as displayed by Soviet soldiers in World War II.

"Western propaganda makes considerable efforts to distort history, to absolve those who started the Second World War and denigrate the U.S.S.R.'s role," he said. "The war cost 20 million Soviet lives and we shall never forget that."

Of the major NATO allies, only the United States and West Germany said they would not send their ambassadors to the parade. U.S. Ambassador Arthur Hartman stayed away because of the shooting of an American military officer by a Soviet sentry in East Germany.

Thousands of specially invited citizens crowded onto one edge of the plaza, many of them covered with campaign ribbons and war medals. Small children perched on their fathers' shoulders and waved tiny red flags.

The appearance of Gorbachev and others Politburo members drew loud cheers and applause from the thousands of soldiers, citizens and foreign guests massed in Red Square on a chill, glowering spring day. Gorbachev walked across the top of the red granite tomb, waving to the crowd.

As the clock on the Kremlin's Savior Tower struck 10, Sokolov drove through the square in a gleaming gray convertible limousine.

He stood at attention and reviewed the crack troops of the Moscow garrison and other detachments. Sokolov congratulated each contingent of army, internal forces, KGB border guards, marines and parachute soldiers.

The Soviets displayed the red banner hoisted by Soviet soldiers over the Berlin Reichstag in May 1945. Veterans decked in war medals marched behind their battle standards and regimental banners, and the maroon-and-gold flags of the war theaters where they fought.

Polish and Czechoslovak veterans followed, and then young soldiers wearing the uniforms of the wartime Red Army and carrying vintage machine guns. After the nostalgic march, modern-day units strutted across the square in a precision parade step.

The mechanized display followed in a roar of engines and a blue-gray cloud of diesel smoke. It included some of the T-34 tanks sent into battle against the Nazis' Panzer divisions, old 100-mm self-propelled guns and the famed truck-mounted Katyusha rockets.

Dozens of modern tanks, rocket launchers, howitzers and other artillery also rumbled into Red Square, followed by olive-green trucks carrying unarmed nuclear missiles.

First lady may expand campaign against drugs

MADRID (AP) — With fresh votes of support from Pope John Paul II and leaders of the seven major industrial nations, Nancy Reagan says she intends to make her campaign against drug abuse a global effort.

In Lisbon, Portugal, on the last stop of her husband's 10-day European tour, Mrs. Reagan was to visit a newly organized group of parents fighting drug abuse.

Today's stop was not on Mrs. Reagan's original schedule, but was arranged through the efforts of Manuela Eanes, the wife of the president and one of the participants in Mrs. Reagan's recent "first ladies" conference on drug abuse in Washington.

The conference of 18 women was Mrs. Reagan's first such effort on an international scale and her stops during the president's trip have given the campaign added momentum, according to a top aide.

"I think the last month is just a preview of what's going to come over the next 3½ years," said James Rosebush, Mrs. Reagan's chief of staff.

Rosebuse said Mrs. Reagan plans to organize another anti-drug conference, and will travel independently to visit drug programs overseas in order to get more countries involved.

At stops in Bonn, Rome and Lisbon during the current trip, Mrs. Reagan's schedule focused on meetings on drug abuse and local treatment programs.

Mrs. Reagan told addicts at a treatment center outside Rome, where she received an award for her fight against drugs, "I don't want to lose you to drugs." And she told parents of addicts in Bonn, West Germany, that together they could "perform miracles" for their children.

Mrs. Reagan also found time to try her hand at flamenco dancing, and attend a star-studded dinner in Rome with a guest list headed by Sophia Loren, Gina Lollobrigida and the Aga Khan.

In West Germany, Mrs. Reagan joined her husband during his controversial visit to the military cemetery at Bitburg where 49 Nazi SS soldiers are buried.

But the first lady told reporters traveling with her that the highlight of her trip was a half-hour private meeting with the pope, who in a rare tribute released a letter praising her fight against drug abuse.

Friday deadline for refugee departure nears

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP) — Buses and trucks crowded with West Africans poured out of Nigeria today, a day before the military regime's declared deadline for the departure of 700,000 illegal immigrants.

Torrential rains that began Tuesday night drenched the refugees and their belongings as they waited in the open air for transport out of the country.

The exodus was ordered by Nigerian authorities last month in the face of slumping economic fortunes and a worsening crime rate. Millions of West Africans, mostly Ghanaians, fled from drought, famine and political upheaval to Nigeria in the 1970s during an oil boom.

With the world slump in oil prices, Nigerians say foreigners deprive them of work, and the expulsion is seen by some as a bid by Maj. Gen. Muhammadu Buhari's regime to bolster its popularity.

Thousands have packed open trucks making their way in convoys to Nigeria's western border with Benin.

On Wednesday, streams of up to 100 vehicles at a time crossed into Benin at Kakle and Igolo, most of them aiming to cross that country and Togo to reach Ghana.

The aliens waited in line for several hours before being searched by Nigerian troops and customs officials to make sure they were not carrying more than the 20 naira, the equivalent of $22, that the law allows.

Many sat in trucks atop mattresses and furniture, some holding onto suitcases packed with personal belongings. One girl clutched a basket of chickens.

Motorcycle escorts from Benin met the convoys and accompanied them to Hilla Condji, the frontier post between Benin and Togo. From there, the convoys traveled another 30 miles along the coastal road to Aflao, the border post between Togo and Ghana.

In Niger, Nigeria's northern neighbor, news reports said immigrants were arriving at the Niger-Nigeria border near Sokoto by the hundreds day and night.

RESIDENCE (915) 682-5044

Dear Midland County Citizen and Taxpayer:

I am writing this letter in response to the many inquiries I have received regarding the Bond Election to be held Saturday, May 11, 1985.

The Supporters of Proposition No. 1 are pushing for a downtown courthouse and jail complex. (This concept was voted down 4 to 1 in 1983). We are currently shipping over 20 inmates to other jails. The proposed renovation when plans are drawn, might increase the jail capacity by 20 more inmates. If we experience any growth in jail population, we will still be shipping inmates after the renovation. Proposition No. 1 also calls for a STUDY of future jail and courthouse needs again with a downtown complex in mind which will result in a called bond issue within the next 18 months that easily could be two or three times greater than Proposition No. 2. I don't think the taxpayers of Midland County want a 40 - 50% tax increase. We have no assurance that if we renovate the jail and spend 1.5 to 2 million all of the Jail Standard Commission objections will be met. And should the larger bond issue in 18 months fail our jail would probably be closed. I consider this a big gamble and an extravagant waste of the taxpayer's money. If we renovate the existing jail we do nothing to address other crowded conditions in the courthouse.

For six years the other Commissioners and I have been involved in studying jail problems, courthouse and jail construction and courthouse expansion needs. Our uppermost concern was to get the best jail and the most courthouse space with the least burden to the taxpayer. This we have done in Proposition No. 2. PROPOSITION NO. 2 PROVIDES FOR THE CONSTRUCTION OF A JAIL ON LAND ALREADY OWNED BY MIDLAND COUNTY, BUILT TO PLANS AND SPECIFICATIONS ALREADY DRAWN, APPROVED AND PAID FOR, RENOVATION AND REMODELING OF THE CULVER YOUTH HOME AS MANDATED BY FEDERAL LAW, AND THE FREEING-UP OF MUCH NEEDED SPACE IN THE COURTHOUSE. All departments need more room plus we need to provide for another County Court-at-law which has this year been created by the legislature.

Our six year study has resulted in a jail design that will house 225 inmates now with easy expansion of 75 more and ultimate expansion to 450 male inmates with 50 female inmates. Already approved by the Jail Standards Commission, this design called "Line-of-sight" can handle twice the inmates with the same number of jailers. The total expense during the life of a jail is 18% - building, 11% - maintenance and utilities and 71% - jailers and related personnel. Therefore, one can readily see that the "line-of-sight" design is a savings to the taxpayers. Construction for the jail in Proposition No. 2 can be underway in 45 to 60 days.

As an additional bonus in moving the jail and sheriff's office from the courthouse, we gain 21,200 square feet or an increase of 55% in useable space for court rooms and office expansion that will take us well into the year 2000.

If only Proposition 1 passes or if both propositions fail, Midland County can expect a tax increase greater than the tax for Proposition 2. Our backs are literally to the wall. Delays work against us, the taxpayers. I strongly support Bond Proposition No. 2 and I urge you to vote Saturday for Proposition 2. In the short and long run, Proposition No. 2 is the best for the taxpayer.

Sincerely,
Win Brown

THE BOOK — AND MAN — EVERYONE'S TALKING ABOUT: IACOCCA!

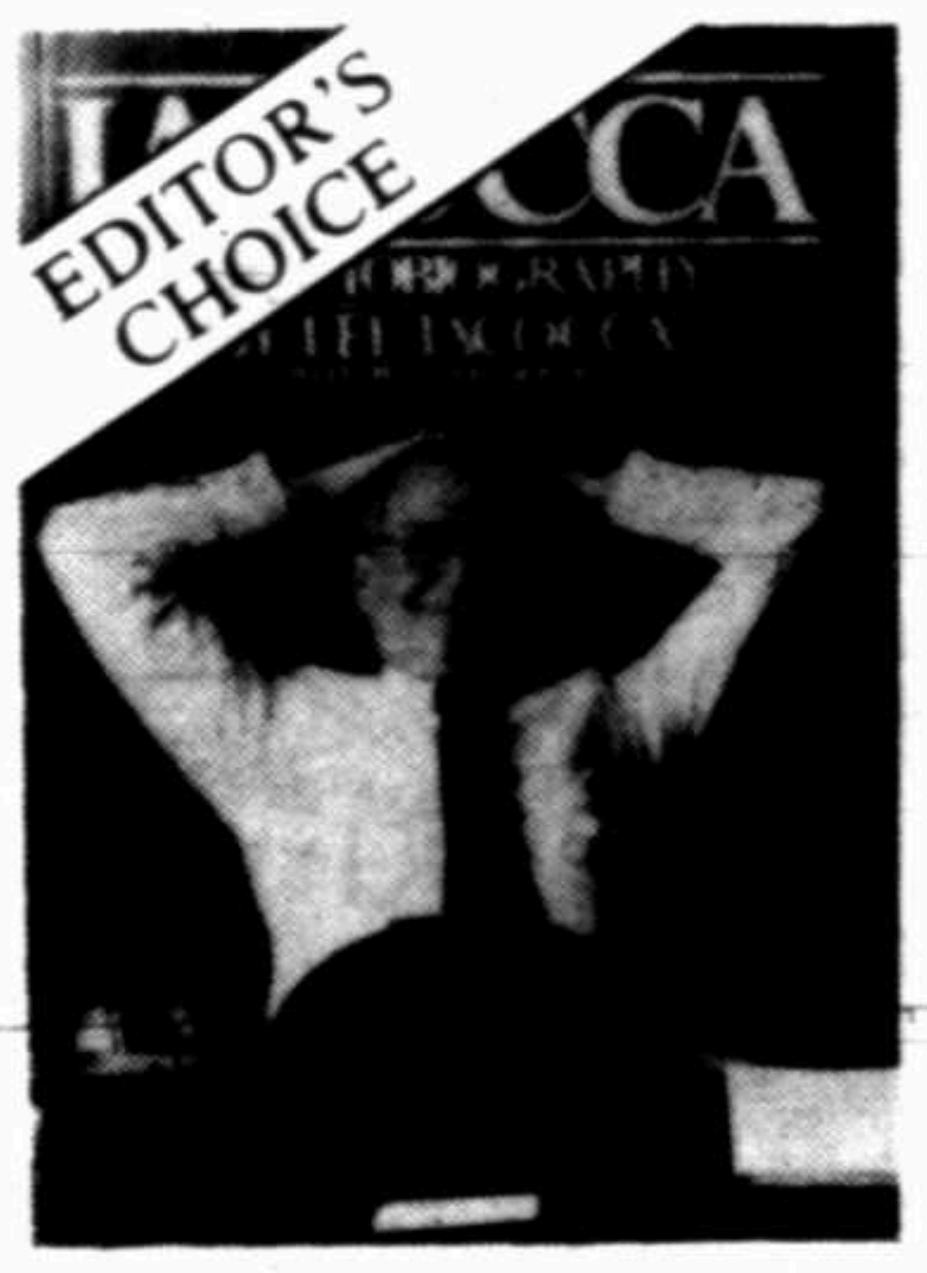
It's his story with lots in it for you: Iacocca's own tips on smart strategies for the all-American game called business.

"...I learned about the value of hard work. In the end, you've got to be productive."
Lee Iacocca

Here is the powerful, hard-hitting, straight-talking autobiography of the man who rose through the ranks of the Ford Motor Company to become its president, only to be tossed aside eight years later in one of corporate America's most intriguing power-plays.

You'll become privy to such behind-the-scenes facts as:

- How he changed the auto industry by creating the Mustang.
- Why and how Henry Ford fired him.



- How he acted as the midwife when Chrysler was reborn from near bankruptcy.

And, you'll get the author's thoughts on the art of winning and losing, the relationship between unions and management, the role of advertising and marketing, what's wrong with American business practices and why we're losing the game in world trade, plus his provocative insights in running a successful company business in today's tough competitive climate.

This fascinating self-portrait is must reading for anyone headed for a business career or looking to move up the corporate ladder.

Sources: Israel increasing military assistance to South Lebanon Army

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

JERUSALEM — Israel has increased its flow of ammunition and other military supplies to the South Lebanon Army in an attempt to buttress that force's defense of the Lebanese Christian town of Jezzin and its credibility as Israel's principal ally in southern Lebanon, informed sources said Wednesday.

The stepped-up supply effort was said to involve mostly ammunition for light arms, tanks and artillery to replenish the stocks of the force's units that are deployed in and around Jezzin, a Christian stronghold to which thousands of Christian refugees have fled in the last two weeks in the face of advancing Lebanese Druse and Moslem militias.

The South Lebanon Army, commanded by Brig. Gen. Antoine Lahad, a Christian, is supplied, financed and supported by Israel. It is designed to be the backbone of a system of local militias that are to police Israel's so-called "security zone," a six- to 15-mile-wide strip of Lebanese territory along the border with Israel.

Israeli officials repeated Wednesday that they will not intervene militarily to defend Jezzin, from which the Israeli army withdrew on April 29 and which is several miles north of the security zone. They have acknowledged in the past providing food, medicine and other "humanitarian aid" to the refugees in Jezzin, but it was the first time officials here also confirmed an attempt to shore up Lahad's military capability in the Jezzin area.

"We have a great interest in Gen. Lahad's credibility," a senior official said in explaining the Israeli military supply effort.

The official said Israel hopes the continued existence of Jezzin as a Christian stronghold defended by Lahad will make Lahad a hero to the Christians who live in the security zone, buttressing his credibility as a military leader and easing the task of recruiting new militiamen into the depleted ranks of his army.

Lahad's forces, which never numbered more than 2,000, have suffered a wave of desertions, especially by Druse and Shiite Moslems, as the Israeli army has gradually pulled back toward the border. The force is now overwhelmingly made up of Christians from far-southern Lebanon.

An Israeli military official said Lahad's force now numbers between 1,200 and 1,500 men, and that several hundred of these are with Lahad in the Jezzin area.

"The whole idea is not to let them collapse," another senior official said. "We have made it clear to Lahad that we don't regard Jezzin as part of the security zone. Our backing for him does not apply to Jezzin. He says that what happens in Jezzin will reflect on the whole of southern Lebanon."

The official said Israeli analysts are divided over the likely impact on the security zone should the South Lebanon Army collapse and Jezzin fall to the Druze and Moslem militias. However, it is clearly in Israel's interest, according to observers here, for Lahad and his men to appear to be an effective military force, capable of defending the villages in the security zone from outside militias.

A further weakening of the South Lebanon Army, or its outright collapse, observers say, would probably lead to a larger and more active Israeli Army presence in the security zone than is now planned. The Israelis intend to withdraw from the security zone by early June, but have made clear that they will continue regular patrols and maintain observation posts there when necessary in support of Lahad's men and other local militias allied with Israel.

Thus far, Lahad and his Israeli suppliers appear to be winning the gamble that Jezzin can hold. After driving thousands of Christians from their villages east of Sidon, the Druze and Moslem advance halted last week in heavy fighting around the village of Kfar Falous, about seven miles west of Jezzin.

There has been a lull in the fighting since then, with officials here describing the situation around Kfar Falous as a "standoff." Druse militia leader Walid Jumblatt said last week that he had no intention of attacking Jezzin, but Moslem militiamen have not indicated their plans.

Crisis caused in part by spending

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Foreign Minister Bernardo Sepulveda says the economic crisis felt throughout Latin America might be due partly to excessive defense spending by the superpowers.

"The phantom of war and the economic crisis seem to cancel our hopes for well being," he said at the opening meeting of the Organization for Prohibition of Nuclear Arms in Latin America. Sepulveda said money spent on the arms race could be used for the urgent needs of the developing world.

He said large government deficits and high interest rates cannot be separated from the "sterile effort for destruction" and that in turn is linked to Latin America's economic crisis. The foreign minister did not mention the United States specifically.

The organization was formed as a result of the Treaty of Tlatelolco, which was signed here in 1967 with the intention of making Latin America a zone free of nuclear weapons.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Administration reports more businesses formed in China

PEKING (AP) — More than 2,100 foreign-backed businesses have been formed in China since 1981, the state administration of industry and commerce reported today.

The official Xinhua news agency quoted an administration official as saying the businesses employ over 160,000 workers, including 11,000 foreigners.

Most are financed by investors in Hong Kong and Macau, Japan, the United States and Britain, the official said.

They include joint ventures, cooperative enterprises and firms wholly owned by foreign interests.

Domestically, China gained more than 2.2 million new businesses in the years 1981-1984 as Deng Xiaoping's economic reforms took hold, the report said.

Soldiers kill seven guerrillas

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Soldiers killed seven Communist guerrillas during search operations for an abducted steel company manager, the government's Philippine News Agency said today.

The agency quoted military officials as saying the guerrillas were killed during a two-hour assault Tuesday on a mountain rebel hideout near the boundary of Misamis Oriental province, 450 miles southeast of Manila.

The agency said the camp was suspected of being the base used by the guerrillas who attacked a government-owned steel company in the province on Sunday and rebels kidnapped the plant manager.

Gunmen assassinate new mayor

LIMA, Peru (AP) — Gunmen believed to be Maoist Shining Path guerrillas assassinated a mayor who had been elected to Congress in the April 14 general elections, police said.

Luis Alberto Guilar, the mayor of Yanacancha, died Wednesday while being treated for three bullet wounds at a local hospital in the town, 196 miles northeast of Lima.

The attack occurred 12 hours after unidentified gunmen shot Ricardo Belmont, a radio station owner and popular Lima game show host, wounding him slightly in the abdomen.

Nearly 5,000 peasants, security troops, and Shining Path guerrillas have lost their lives in a five-year insurgency.

Tractor plunges into ravine

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — A tractor towing a trailer loaded with primary school students skidded off the road and plunged into a ravine, killing 13 children in the Black Sea coast area, the Hurriyet news agency reported.

The report said 57 others were injured in the Wednesday crash.

Hurriyet said the children were returning from a picnic.

Thirty Italians stand trial

FLORENCE, Italy (AP) — Thirty Italians have gone on trial in Florence, charged with nearly a dozen abductions.

They were said to have extorted $5.5 million from the families of the victims but police say they have recovered less than a third of that.

The prosecution on Wednesday described the 30 as members of a major kidnapping gang that operated in Tuscany until early 1983.

Fossil of giant koala found

ADELAIDE, Australia (AP) — Scientists have found the fossilized jawbone of a giant koala that probably was twice the size of its modern tree-dwelling cousin — too big to live in the trees, a museum official said today.

"We've never found a specimen as large as this," said Neville Pledge, curator of fossils for the South Australia State Museum. "We've found fragments in other states but this is the first real evidence of giant koalas."

The fragment, estimated to be a million years old, indicates giant koalas roamed the continent long before the arrival of aborigines.

Pledge said in a telephone interview with The Associated Press that the creature probably disappeared during the last ice age, when changing climatic conditions deprived it of the shrubs and bushes it ate.
