'All hail the power....'

on vehicles. Charlie Alexander, bottom photo, picks up the pieces from the shattered back window of his Datsun, which was parked at the Petroleum Information building at 500 N. Baird St. when the hailstorm struck about 4 p.m.

Flood of insurance claims follows storm

By PATRICK DEAREN
Staff Writer

Insurance agencies this morning were flooded with damage claims in the wake of a brutal hailstorm that struck Midland and east Midland County Thursday afternoon.

Baseball-sized hail pummeled portions of Midland in a brief span beginning at approximately 4 p.m. Thursday, and by the time it had subsided numerous auto windshields were left shattered, hoods and fenders dented and the roof of at least one mobile home east of the city damaged.

The storm apparently began in southeast Midland and moved in a northeasterly direction through the downtown and east Midland area, as numerous reports of hail flooded the National Weather Service.

At 4:04 p.m. 1- to 2-inch hail was reported to the NWS as falling in the Tall City, and by 4:10 p.m. baseball-sized hail was striking the downtown area.

At 4:20 p.m. mobile homes at Sherwood Mobile Home Park 2.8 miles east of Midland on East Highway 80 were struck by 2- to 2½-inch hail, while 25 minutes later the Arco plant on the east side sustained baseball-sized hail.

Hailstones of similar proportions pounded agricultural fields along East Highway 80, completely destroying at least one farmer's cotton crop. Midland Farmers Co-op gin suffered cracked windows in a four-minute span as the storm swiftly swept eastward across Midland County.

Wilson Upchurch, who lives six miles east of Midland on FM 1140, may have received the biggest hailstone during the storm. Upchurch reported a softball-sized hailstone measuring 11½ inches in circumference landed in his yard at the height of the storm.

Scores of damage reports to vehicles tied up insurance agency switchboards early today, with most of the reports centered in the downtown area. According to insurance company spokesmen, broken windshields and dents were the most common claims filed. One man reported hail damage to a fleet of 20 vehicles.

A few reports of home damage were noted by insurance officials, including one in which two hailstones slashed through the roof of a mobile home four miles east of the city.

While Midland Memorial Hospital emergency room personnel did not treat anyone suffering injuries from falling hailstones, there were confirmed reports of minor cuts and welts suffered in the downtown area.

Rain accompanied the hail, flooding downtown streets and stalling some vehicles. However, the NWS, located west of Midland at Midland Regional Airport, recorded only an official trace.

Most area towns escaped the heavy rain and hail, although Lamesa reported pea-sized hail and Stanton reported heavy showers.

The Permian Basin area again was given a slight chance of additional precipitation this afternoon, but weekend conditions should be favorable with fair skies and a high temperature in the low 80s.

Thursday's high was 84 degrees, 16 degrees shy of the record of 100 set in 1947. This morning's low of 63 didn't threaten the record of 41 set in 1938.

Will Reagan compromise on proposed tax cuts?

By CLIFF HAAS
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, savoring a "resounding victory" in his first big budget battle in the House, now is hinting at compromise on the massive tax cuts he has pledged to deliver to the American people.

The $688.8 billion budget blueprint for fiscal 1982, matching Reagan's call for deep spending and tax cuts, was endorsed overwhelmingly by the House on Thursday, with scores of Democrats defecting to join a unanimous Republican minority.

On two votes, the margins were 253-176 and 270-154 for the Reagan-backed plan crafted by Reps. Phil Gramm, D-Texas, and Delbert L. Latta, R-Ohio.

Those far outstripped the 51-seat majority that Democratic leaders had hoped would be their check on what GOP leader Robert Michel of Illinois trumpeted as a change of course for American government. And they left some of the president's opponents and supporters doubting that his less popular proposal for a three-year, 30 percent tax cut could be stopped.

Reagan, however, seemed to be relaxing his vow not to compromise on taxes.

"I happen to believe that what we have proposed is an integral part of the program and strive for all of that," he said when asked about a tax compromise, hours after the House vote as he prepared to welcome Japanese Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki to a formal White House dinner.

"But I don't know what other proposals might be made, just as Gramm-Latta came forth with a proposal with regard to the budget that, uh, even suggested more cuts," Reagan added.

House Budget Committee Chairman James R. Jones, D-Okl., whose budget proposal was scuttled in favor of the Reagan-backed plan, said after the vote that if president gives his tax-cutting recommendation "the same attention" as the budget plan, "I believe it will carry."

Reagan hailed his victory — just the first step on the congressional budget path — as a "historic moment of commitment to a government that can both serve the people and live within its means."

The next step is in the Senate, which is considering a $699.1 billion budget resolution that differs little from the measure endorsed by the House. The Senate's Republican majority was almost certain to deliver on its proposal — also embraced by Reagan — perhaps by Monday.

Although interest up, economy showing signs of improvement

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite renewed surges in interest rates, the economy shows signs of improvement, with receding inflation predicted for the rest of the year.

The current worldwide glut of oil has slowed energy price inflation, while spiraling housing prices have tapered off because of high mortgage rates, and several economists say the price trends are expected to continue throughout 1981.

As a result, some forecasters predict inflation will run below a 10 percent annual rate for the rest of the year, perhaps as low as 8 percent.

Consumer prices rose 12.4 percent last year, with energy and housing price rises leading the way.

The latest inflation pulse was to be taken today with the government's release of its report on wholesale price rises during April.

The government also planned to release its report on the nation's unemployment rate during April. The jobless rate stood at 7.3 percent of the workforce in March and has shown little change since jumping from 6.3 percent to 7.6 percent during the spring of 1980. Economist Donald Ratajczak at Georgia State University, which issues its own price report each month, estimated that prices at the wholesale level rose at only a 7.5 percent annual rate during April, less than half the increase recorded for March.

Ratajczak said a long-expected surge in food prices still has not developed, while energy inflation is rapidly receding. In general, he concludes, "inflationary pressures definitely are moderating."

Inflation at the wholesale level rose at a 16.2 percent annual rate in March — the steepest increase in eight months — because of sharp jumps in energy costs and a new rise in food prices.

The wholesale report — which the government refers to as the Producer Price Index for finished goods — usually provides a good indication of future price trends at the consumer, or retail, level.

In March, consumer prices rose at an annual rate of 7.5 percent, the slowest pace since last summer.

Irish violence less than feared

By ED BLANCHE
Associated Press Writer

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Sniper fire, a gun battle and some rioting occurred in Northern Ireland after the Irish Republican Army buried its new hero, hunger-striker Bobby Sands, and renewed its vow to free all of Ireland from British rule.

In Dublin, police reported a bungled attempt to assassinate a former foreign minister of the Irish Republic, Garrett Fitzgerald, leader of the opposition Fine Gael Party and an outspoken critic of the IRA.

The violence in Ulster Thursday night was less intense than security chiefs had feared. But the 20,000 mourners at Sands' funeral cheered wildly when IRA political expert Owen Carron declared in a fiery graveside oration:

"Bobby Sands, your sacrifice will not be in vain... We haven't got the tanks and the guns but, please God, this will not always be so."

Police headquarters warned the province to be alert "in the days ahead...having regard to the known intentions" of the IRA's Provisional wing and the splinter Irish National Liberation Army. The police statement added: "This should be especially borne in mind by persons who occupy positions of prominence or influence in the community."

Mobs of young Roman Catholics lobbed gasoline and acid bombs at security forces in Belfast and Londonderry, as they have every night for more than a week, and in the border town of Strabane. Police said Strabane's municipal tourist bureau was gutted by firebombs.

under sporadic sniper fire in Roman Catholic areas of Belfast and Londonderry. Officials said at least one policeman was wounded.

An army patrol fought a gun battle with four guerrillas near the border of the Irish Republic Thursday night. The soldiers captured one gunman and another was arrested by police in the republic. Unconfirmed reports said the other two guerrillas were shot and killed, but the army refused to confirm or deny it.

Sands, a 27-year-old member of the IRA Provos, died of starvation early Tuesday in the Maze prison near Belfast, where he had been serving a 14-year sentence for illegal possession of firearms. He had fasted for 66 days in a campaign to force the British to jail IRA members as political prisoners rather than common criminals.

Three other convicted guerrillas remain on the hunger strike despite the British government's adamant refusal al to give them political status. There were unconfirmed reports another prisoner would join them Saturday.

Francis Hughes, 25, was in the 55th day of his fast. Sinn Fein, the IRA's political front, claimed Hughes is in grave condition and in severe pain. But Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher's government once again vowed to stand fast.

"We are not prepared to concede the principle of political status for which Robert Sands was ordered to die, nor are we prepared to do so to prevent others taking the same course," said Humphrey Atkins, the Cabinet minister for Northern Ireland, in a TV broadcast.

The IRA's farewell to Sands, four weeks to the day after he was elected to the British Parliament, brought out the biggest funeral crowd the outlawed guerrilla army has mustered in nearly 11 years of sectarian warfare.

Investigation begins into plane crash

WALKERSVILLE, Md. (AP) — Investigators trying to determine what caused a military radar jet to crash, killing 21 men and women, may never make their findings public, the Air Force says. The investigation began Thursday after searchers who had spread out in human chains found the remains of the last of the 18 servicemen, a civilian contractor and two Air Force wives who perished in the fiery crash Wednesday.

Water bubbles up through a clogged street drain on Garfield Street Thursday afternoon after a hail and thunderstorm. The National Weather Service, located at Midland Regional Airport, officially recorded only a trace of rain, but much more than that fell throughout Midland.

Air Force Brig. Gen. Peter Odgers, interim chairman of the Air Force investigation, would not speculate on the cause of the crash. But he conceded during a news conference at the site, a remote barley field, that sabotage had not been ruled out. Eyewitnesses said the jet looked like a "ball of fire" as it fell to the ground. But Odgers said there was no proof the plane had exploded.

Air Force M. Sgt. Cleveland Parker at Andrews Air Force Base said the results of the investigation will be "implemented into safety procedures." "The results may not ever be released publicly," he said. The plane, a $50 million EC-135N, was only one of eight such planes built, and the first ever to crash, the Air Force said. It was attached to the 4950th Test Wing based at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base in Dayton, Ohio. The aircraft did not have aboard a flight recorder like those used by commercial pilots to tape a continuous record of procedures, Parker said.

Missing youth found, in custody

ATLANTA (AP) — Fourteen-year-old Eric Thompson, who disappeared for two days and was the focus of an intense search in this city where 26 black youths have been slain, has been found and is in the custody of juvenile authorities, police said. Thompson was found Thursday night and placed in the custody of suburban Cobb County officials, Atlanta Police spokesman Roger Harris said. Harris would not say where Thompson was found or why he was placed in a juvenile detention center. A spokesman at the Youth Development Center in Marietta, about 10 miles northwest of Atlanta, confirmed that Thompson was in the center Thursday night, but refused to release other details.

Thompson's case had been investigated by the police missing persons unit, not the special task force investigating the slayings and disappearances that began 22 months ago. Before he was located, Thompson last was seen Tuesday afternoon boarding a bus in downtown Atlanta. He was reported missing Wednesday by Brahdon Southern Jr., director of the Challenge School, a special state-run facility attended by at least two of the 26 slain blacks. The boy had run away before and had missed classes in the past, but Southern said Thompson always had called to say if he would be absent. Meanwhile, authorities in DeKalb County confirmed that they have subpoenaed a list of Boys Club employees in the Atlanta area. DeKalb authorities are investigating the slayings of four youths whose bodies were found in that suburban county. The task force is also investigating those slayings.

DeKalb Public Safety Director Dick Hand said police are conducting a "general background check" to determine who may have known or come into contact with the victims. Bob Jackson, associate executive director of Metro Atlanta Boys Clubs, said the 13 Boys Clubs in the Atlanta area employ a total of 125 staff members. "I can see why they asked for (the staff list)," Jackson said. "Most of the victims must have visited a Boys Club at some time." In another development, an Atlanta man, Larry Marshall, 34, was sentenced to three years in prison on misdemeanor charges. Officials dropped an attempted robbery charge following his decision to cooperate with the task force investigating the slayings. Marshall was extradited from Hartford, Conn., in April. Police said they wanted to question him about his relationship with one of the victims. But after a session last week with the task force, Fulton County District Attorney Lewis Slaton said Marshall provided no new information. Marshall was sentenced Thursday for convictions on two charges of theft by taking and one count of defacing the mail.

Fraud probably cost government up to $220 million

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fraud and illegal activities may have cost the government as much as $220 million in 2½ years, but the actual losses may never be known because most incidents go unreported, the General Accounting Office says.

The GAO, the investigative arm of Congress, found evidence of fraud in the 21 agencies it surveyed. The study examined 77,000 cases where fraud was known or suspected.

The fraud found in the GAO analysis, which covered the period from Oct. 1, 1976, to March 31, 1979, ranged from actions committed with the help of computers to simple theft of government property.

The GAO said it probably cost the government between $150 million and $220 million. "Actual losses due to fraud and other illegal activities will never be known because most go undetected," the report noted.

Theft was the most common type of fraud, making up nearly half the 77,000 cases checked. Among the least prevalent types of fraud were the failure to meet contract terms, extortion, private use of government property and kickbacks or bribes.

Some of the government's biggest programs — including food stamps, most Medicaid cases and most Aid to Families With Dependent Children cases — were not checked because those programs are under the jurisdiction of state and local authorities.

TEXAS BRIEFS

Blockade threat between Juarez, El Paso retracted

EL PASO, Texas (AP) — The Mexican union leader who threatened to blockade the bridges between Juarez and El Paso says "it was never our intention at any moment" to carry out the threat.

Roberto Delgado Urias, head of the non-government Confederacion Revolucionaria de Trabajadores, threatened Monday to block all traffic coming into Juarez in eight days if "extremely slow and humiliating" border inspections were not corrected.

He said union members crossing to work in El Paso are often held up for several hours in the mornings, causing them reprimands and sometimes costing them their jobs.

About 8,000 union members possess "green cards" identifying them as permanent resident aliens who may work in the United States, primarily in construction, agricultural and manufacturing jobs, he said.

Delgado said he met with U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service district head Al Giugni and inspection supervisor Henry McGehee Wednesday and asked them in writing to look into the problem.

Violent confrontations following an apparently spontaneous bridge blockade in 1979 left one Juarez girl dead when a car ran over her. That protest, which blocked the bridges for two days, came after INS officials deported more than 100 illegal aliens.

Masked men rob noted surgeon

HOUSTON (AP) — Three men wearing ski masks and wielding a pistol broke into the home of Dr. Denton Cooley, forced the noted Houston heart surgeon to lie down on the floor and robbed him of $250, police said.

The bandits broke through a glass-enclosed porch and forced the surgeon to lie on the floor of the library, said Lt. D.L. Sitz.

Cooley's wife, Louise, heard a noise and went downstairs. When she discovered the bandits, she ran to a neighbor's house and called police, Sitz said.

Three suspects were arrested and questioned late Wednesday, but only one man — who carried a 9mm pistol — faces charges, the detective said.

Cooley was unable to identify the suspects and a laboratory analysis of their clothing, shoes and hair was inconclusive, Sitz said.

Plywood, two-by-fours taken from local construction site

A burglary and two theft complaints were reported to city police during the past 24 hours.

Thirty-two sheets of plywood and some two-by-fours were taken from a construction site at 425 Neely Ave., police were told. Value was placed at $400.

A three-wheeled motorcycle worth $1,000 was reported stolen from 1301 E. Mulberry, and Milton Taulton of 2911 W. Louisiana told officers a reel-to-reel tape player valued at $150 was taken in a burglary of his residence.

Entry was gained through an unlocked front door. Fire of undetermined origin heavily damaged a tin storage building at 4707 Comanche about 5:30 p.m. Thursday. Five fire units responded to the blaze, which also destroyed the contents of the building, owned by James Cunningham.

A car owned by Charles Bishop sustained heavy damage in a fire at Garfield and Carter Streets about 7:30 p.m. Thursday. Seventy-five gallons of water were needed to extinguish the blaze in the 1980 Pinto.

Ohio man stabbed to death on visit

DALLAS (AP) — Police say the slaying of a grocery manager found in a fashionable Dallas suburb was so cruel that it looked like the killer was out for revenge.

Michael A. Roop, 32, of Toledo, Ohio, died at 3:37 a.m. Thursday at Parkland Memorial Hospital. He had been stabbed about 30 times and apparently had been robbed. A construction worker found him in a fashionable neighborhood near Southern Methodist University.

"It was a brutal, brutal thing," said Highland Park police Chief Henry Gardner. "If he wasn't a stranger, you would think this was some sort of vindictive thing."

Highland Park police Sgt. Larry Gentry said Thursday police had no leads in the slaying. The body was taken to the Dallas County medical examiner for an autopsy.

Roop, a store manager for Centre Supermarkets, was in Dallas for the Food Marketing Institute convention.

"He was a stranger here," Gardner said. "His wallet was found there empty of money. A fellow traveling is bound to have some money on him. He didn't, so that's evidence they took his money."

Inmate threatens to jump from roof

HOUSTON (AP) — Authorities talked five hours with a "despondent and depressed" Harris County jail inmate who had threatened to jump from the rooftop of the eight-story building before the prisoner voluntarily surrendered.

The inmate, Dudley Shawn Prichard, 23, stood near the ledge Thursday until his attorney, sheriff's deputies, fire department officials and members of the Crisis Negotiating Team coaxed him back into the building.

Prichard had demanded to be given "some kind of uppers," said Lt. J. Galtzberg of the Harris County sheriff's department. Officials agreed to deliver the drugs "to buy some time" but the demand was never met, Galtzberg said.

The spectacle attracted a crowd of several hundred on the ground below, but after three hours of waiting, "the crowd kind of dwindled down," said Cpl. Tom Twardowsky.

Texans charged in illegal alien deal

BOSTON (AP) — Two Texans have been released on $1,000 bail for a May 21 hearing on charges they illegally brought six Mexicans into the country to work for their Houston-based roofing company.

The two men were arrested earlier this week after police in Woburn discovered six Mexicans living in an old warehouse.

William Overstreet, 31, and Alvaro Nunez, 42, could receive $2,000 in fines and two years in jail if convicted. The Mexicans, also released on $1,000 bail after a hearing in U.S. District Court, could receive six months in jail and $500 fines for entering the country illegally.

Klan leader wants arbitration panel

HOUSTON (AP) — Louis Beam, grand dragon of the Texas Ku Klux Klan, says he will "offer a wreath of reconciliation" to Vietnamese fishermen at a KKK rally Saturday in Santa Fe.

Beam said he plans to propose that a four-member arbitration panel comprised of himself, American and Vietnamese shrimpers and a representative of Gov. Bill Clements be formed to discuss the long-standing dispute over fishing rights in Galveston Bay.

"I'm extremely satisfied with the practical results that have occurred from our participation in the dispute between the American and Vietnamese fishermen," Beam said. "With a little reasonableness on both sides, the problem can be solved."

At a Feb. 14 rally, Beam demanded refugee settlers leave the area before the shrimping season opens May 15 or the Klan "would take action" to resolve the

ON THE ROAD Checking devices can help avoid certain accidents

By SUE ALFORD
Traffic Safety Planning
Midland College

If you're fascinated with number games and formulas and have fun with tests, things-to-do, things-to-figure and other gimmicks that produce some kind of information, you'll be interested to know that driving has its share of such devices. They could help you avoid an accident, so let's review some.

Check Your Speedometer

Is your speedometer accurately telling you how fast you're going. Give it this test. Accelerate to a steady speed and maintain that speed from beginning to end of a mile. Check the number of seconds it takes you to go the mile. Divide the number of seconds into 3600 and the result is your speed.

Compare this speed with the speed indicated by your speedometer as you traveled the mile. You can determine a mile from your odometer (which is usually more accurate than your speedometer) or, better yet, from mile posts.

Covering a Lot of Ground

At any speed, you're probably traveling faster than you realize. For instance, even at a snail's pace of 10 miles per hour you're covering 15 feet every second.

It's easy to figure. Just multiply your speedometer reading of miles per hour by 1 1/2 and you'll get the number of feet — within a foot or two — your car is covering in one second.

At 40 feet you travel 60 feet per second, and at 55 you're zipping along at about 83 feet per second. It's easy to see why it's dangerous when a driver's attention is distracted for even a second or two.

How Fast do You React?

One important fraction of time is that between the instant you spot danger and the instant you start action to avoid the danger. It's called reaction time, and although it's only a split second, a car covers more road than you might think before a driver takes action.

Here's how to figure this reaction distance: Take the first digit of your speed and multiply by 11, then add the second digit. In other words, 30 miles per hour your reaction time is 33 feet (11 X 3 + 0), at 42 it's 46 feet (11 X 4 + 2).

This is the distance your car will travel from the time you see a hazard ahead until you move your foot to the brake and apply it.

Safe Following Distance

One of the best known formulas in driving is used for determining safe following distance.

It states that you should stay one vehicle ahead for every 10 miles per hour that you're traveling. That means if you're going 40 miles per hour you should be allowing four vehicle lengths between you and the vehicle you're following.

Then there's the two-second rule that indicates whether or not you're maintaining a safe interval. It goes like this:

Select an object alongside the road ahead of you and count the time it takes you to reach it after the vehicle ahead of you has passed it. Count "one thousand and one, one thousand and two." If you reach the object before you've finished counting "one thousand and two," you're following too closely. At night or in bad weather, of course, you should allow more distance.

Prosecutor questions reduction of FBI role in probes

The Los Angeles Times

WASHINGTON — The federal government's new top prosecutor Wednesday questioned the wisdom of reducing the FBI's role in bank robbery and fugitive investigations.

D. Lowell Jensen, assistant attorney general in charge of the Justice Department's criminal division, said in an interview that the decision by the Carter administration to leave more bank robbery cases to local authorities has had an unfavorable "ripple effect" on the criminal justice system.

"If local police arrive at the scene of bank robbery with sirens blaring and catch the bank robber, that's one thing," Jensen said. "If they don't, then you're into a long-term investigation, and the FBI does that better."

has scaled down its participation in bank robbery probes as the bureau has shifted its priorities to organized crime, white-collar crime and foreign counterintelligence. The pull-back drew criticism from the banking industry and some of its friends on Capitol Hill, but Webster — under pressure of budget cuts and backed by the Carter administration — stuck to his guns.

As an example of the "ripple effect," Jensen said, bank robbers who are violent criminals now are being sent to overcrowded state prison systems, while the one system that has space for them is that of the federal penal institutions.

Jensen said that the shift of federal fugitive investigations from the FBI to the U.S. Marshals Service was not working very well. The marshals are "not structured well for that," being most experienced in courthouse rather than field work, Jensen said.

There have been preliminary talks about reestablishing FBI jurisdiction over fugitive pursuits, he added.

Jensen said that he thought that the decisions for reducing the FBI's role had been made without proper consideration of its effect on the entire criminal-justice system.

Jensen said "Nobody is looking to change the (FBI's) investigative priority structure now." But he questioned whether increasing the bureau's bank-robbery and fugitive work would necessarily cause a one-to-one reduction in effort on the FBI's high-priority work.

A one-to-one correlation assumes that investigators are always working at capacity Monday through Friday, overlooking the rhythm of investigative work, which may well occupy an agent fully Monday through Wednesday, then give him nothing to do on Thursday, Jensen said.

Jensen said that his inclination was to favor the FBI's reasserting a larger role investigating bank-robberies, but that it was too early to describe him as urging the move.

"Just about everything is on hold" until Attorney General William French Smith's violent-crime task force makes its initial report to him next month, Jensen said.

Jensen criticized the failure of state, local and federal prosecutors and investigators to share their findings with one another.

Such successful anti-crime strategies as the "career criminal program," through which law-enforcement authorities focus their efforts against serious repeat violators, depend heavily on pooling information, Jensen said.

He observed that about 40 attempts to create federal-state-local law-enforcement groups are under way now, but said the Department of Justice and the Treasury been "terribly uneven."

As an example of the failure to coordinate law-enforcement efforts, Jensen noted that the FBI, the Drug Enforcement Administration of Department's Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms Division all divide the country into regions that do not match one another's.

"We haven't got our thing together," Jensen said.

The assistant attorney general said that an effort should be made to develop systems that depend not so much on personalities for success as on the integrity of the system.

"Today, our success depends to a great extent on personalities," Jensen said. "When the personalities are gone, there is nothing there."

Reagan abolishes commissions

By CHARLES R. BABCOCK
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Reagan has abolished the judicial nominating commissions designed by former president Carter to broaden the base for picking appointments to the nation's courts of appeals.

Reagan rescinded the executive orders establishing the panels on Tuesday without any official announcement. Thomas DeCair, a Justice Department spokesman, said Wednesday that administration officials felt the commissions weren't needed to fill the nine vacancies now existing in the federal appellate courts. A long-term selection mechanism hasn't been agreed on yet, he added.

When President Carter and Attorney General Griffin B. Bell set up the commissions for the 11 circuits in 1978, it was seen as an effort to take the patronage plum away from members of the Senate who traditionally recommended political supporters for the prestigious posts. During his term, Carter named 56 of the 132 federal appellate judges.

Bell got Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., then-chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, to agree to have senators use the presidentially appointed commissions to find appeals court judges. Senators kept their powerful voice in selecting District Court judge nominees from their states.

Ann Macrory, a Washington attorney who monitored the Carter process for the Judicial Selection Project, said Wednesday she was disappointed but not surprised by the Reagan administration's action. "It looks like we're right back to square one, to total Senate control, with all the progress out the window," she said.

Critics of the Carter program noted that the selection commissions were often packed with Carter convention delegates or friends, and that 99 percent of those recommended were Democrats. In one case, Carter turned down the commission recommendation that Archibald Cox, a favorite of Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., fill a vacancy on the U.S. First Circuit Court of Appeals. Bell said Cox was too old. Kennedy aides viewed it as a partisan slap at a presidential rival.

In another incident, the apparent winner of a seat on the Tenth Circuit was rejected at the last minute after House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., intervened for the brother of Utah Rep. Gunn McKay.

Macrory agreed that the Carter commissions were political, but said that system's main advantage was "to open the process up to qualified people who never considered themselves eligible before."

Carter appointed more blacks and women to the federal bench than any other president did, and more than 40 percent of the federal judges now sitting.

Justice spokesman DeCair said abolition of the appeals court selection commissions didn't mean that the Reagan administration would abandon a broad search for judicial candidates. "Watch what we do," he said. "We don't intend to lessen the effort to find qualified women and minorities."

One department official said the new selection process will be "less structured" than the commissions were, but will include contacting a wide range of political and interest groups. DeCair added: "When you get to the circuit court level, it's easy to identify and evaluate qualified candidates."

Kirkland rails against review of safety rules

By MERRILL HARTSON
AP Labor Writer

BALTIMORE (AP) — AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, conceding that unions lack the political clout to reverse the budget-cutting fervor in Congress, is railing against the Reagan administration's move to review job safety regulations for their cost to industry.

Acknowledging Thursday that "we don't at the moment have the votes" to save cherished labor programs from the budget ax, Kirkland aimed his fire at Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan, whom he accused of renegeing on a promise to consult labor in advance of major administration decisions.

Kirkland is presiding over a quarterly meeting of the AFL-CIO's top policy-making council, which was to receive a report today on agency moves to subject cotton dust and lead safety regulations to cost-benefit analysis.

The federation leader said decisions on job safety rules "all came as surprises. We were not consulted. We were not asked our opinion. We were not given the opportunity to explain our side of the case."

Donovan, who was meeting with building trades union officials at the Labor Department on Thursday, retorted in a telephone interview:

"I have no desire to get into an unproductive argument with Mr. Lane Kirkland. I did make a commitment to consult with labor before making major agency decisions which affect labor. I believe I have done so."

He had on at least one occasion told a labor group: "I will never blindside you."

Kirkland and Donovan crossed verbal swords in Bal Harbour, Fla., in February, two weeks after the labor secretary was confirmed by the Senate.

The two emerged from an executive council meeting with conflicting accounts of the degree to which the 35 union presidents on the policy-making body were willing to give Reagan's economic program a chance.

The AFL-CIO and the American Textile Workers

AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland, right, closes his eyes as he winds up with the gavel in a make believe gesture of hitting Secretary Treasurer Tom Donahue, prior to a meeting Thursday. The executive council opened a two-day meeting in Baltimore.

Union have assailed the administration's decision to withdraw the cotton dust standard, issued by the Carter administration in 1978 to protect mill workers against brown lung, a respiratory disease.

In the May edition of the Communications Workers of America's newsletter, union president Glenn Watts declared, "The health and safety needs of CWA members and other workers apparently will be considered only as an afterthought to business profit concerns."

Donovan maintained Thursday that the cotton dust standard is only being studied.

"When we have concluded that study, we will consult with representatives of organize labor as well as other affected parties before reaching a final decision," he said.

Members of the textile workers union and the Brown Lung Association staged a demonstration in Washington on Monday to protest the review of the cotton dust standard.

State report pinpoints cause of mine explosion

By NANCY TRAYER
Associated Press Writer

DENVER (AP) — An electrical spark, possibly from a damaged shuttle-car cable, flew into a pocket of methane gas to trigger a mine explosion last month that killed 15 coal miners in Redstone, according to a report by the Colorado Bureau of Mines.

The report said a malfunctioning ventilation system may have allowed the methane gas to collect 7,200 feet from the entrance to the Dutch Creek No. 1 mine. And a 200-foot crack in the mine ceiling added to the buildup of methane by allowing more gas to seep into the area where the explosion occurred, according to the report.

The report was released Thursday by the state's chief coal mine inspector, Art Haske. It was the first official report on the cause of the explosion and confirms the speculation of safety and mine officials immediately after the blast.

Based on a three-man investigation by the state Bureau of Mines, the report pinpointed the cause of the April 15 explosion in the mine — one of four operated in the Redstone area by Mid-Continent Resources Inc.

The explosion destroyed an electrical transformer station 7,200 feet below the mine entrance — leading state inspectors to believe the blast originated at the station, said the report. An electrical spark from a faulty piece of equipment may have ignited an explosive mixture of methane gas, the report said.

A damaged trailing cable on a shuttle car could have caused that spark, the report said. Shuttle cars are used to transport workers and coal in and out of the mine.

State inspectors noticed a 200-foot crack in the mine ceiling that could have emitted "considerable gas" to cause the explosion, according to the report. "It is also believed that the main air current into this section of the mine was partially or wholly cut off just prior to the explosion," the report said.

Haske said the electrical spark must have hit a "huge pocket of methane" that triggered the explosion. And he believes some of the mine's ventilation system may have been damaged or left unmonitored, causing a fatal buildup of methane gas.

Christopher faces extradition

COLUMBUS, Ga. (AP) — A Superior Court judge ordered a closed session for today's extradition hearing for a white Army private reportedly accused in the "22-caliber slayings" of three black men in Buffalo, N.Y.

Buffalo authorities cited, Buffalo authorities could return him to New York immediately, Hodge said. On Thursday, Mahoney asked a state Supreme Court justice in Buffalo to block the disclosure of certain information pertaining to the soldier.

The information at issue was in affidavits filed by authorities to obtain search warrants. Mahoney said disclosure of the affidavits would make the defense more difficult, because they contain prosecution theories about the crimes.

Muscogee County Sheriff Gene Hodge said Judge John Land was expected to rule sometime after the hearing whether Joseph Christopher, 25, should be returned to New York.

Christopher, of Buffalo, has been stationed at Fort Benning since he joined the Army in November.

Last week, a grand jury in Buffalo handed up a sealed indictment in connection with the September slayings of three black males, all shot with the same .22-caliber gun.

Seven black males were slain in the Buffalo area from September through December.

District Attorney Edward Cosgrove has declined to identify the person indicted on three counts of second-degree murder, but defense attorney Mark Mahoney said it was Christopher. If the judge allows Christopher to be extra-

Controlled drugs seized at home of male nurse

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Investigators looking into a string of 27 mysterious deaths at two hospitals questioned a male nurse, searched his house and seized small amounts of two controlled drugs, according to San Bernardino County authorities.

One of the drugs, Lidocaine, which is used to control irregular heartbeats, showed up in high levels in the bodies of some patients whose deaths are being investigated, the Los Angeles Times reported.

Robert R. Diaz, 43, a registered nurse, was questioned at his home last weekend and his house was searched by authorities investigating the deaths, according to San Bernardino County Sheriff's Detective Leroy Morgan. No charges have been filed and the county district attorney's office said it had not determined whether any wrongdoing was involved in the deaths.

A sheriff's spokesman would not comment on whether Diaz is a suspect in the case.

Diaz, in an interview with the Los Angeles Times, published today, said authorities recovered small amounts of morphine and Lidocaine.

He said he had the Lidocaine because he accidentally left some in his coat pocket at work and brought it home with him. He said that he had found a half-empty vial of morphine and meant to report it, but by then was no longer working at the hospital.

Everett Martin, administrator of San Geronimo Pass Memorial Hospital at Banning, one of the two hospitals involved, said that while Lidocaine is used in treatment, "There is absolutely no reason for a nurse to have (personal) possession of Lidocaine. It is a controlled substance."

Diaz has been a licensed nurse in California since Feb. 28, 1979, according to the state Board of Registered Nurses.

The 27 deaths have occurred at Community Hospital of the Valleys in Perris and San Geronimo.

Diaz, who worked at both hospitals on temporary assignment from a nursing registry, told The Times his first night on duty at the Perris hospital was March 29, when two patients died on his shift.

Diaz told The Times he was trying to persuade officials at the hospital to see if their supplies of Lidocaine were contaminated. He said he was "scared" at the high number of deaths that occurred during the 11 days he worked there.

"I started getting scared after the fifth one or sixth one," he said.

Burned child moved to Shriners Burn Unit

GALVESTON, Texas (AP) — A 10-year-old girl who suffered second- and third-degree burns last month in a mobile home fire has been transferred from a Houston hospital to the Shriners Burn Institute.

Dena Jane Bruner was moved Thursday from Hermann Hospital to the Galveston facility, where her condition was listed as stable.

Odell Hyden, a Shriners member from Houston, said he worked to have Dena admitted after reading published reports about the April 17 blaze and its affect on the child's family.

Shriners, which operates the hospital without charge to burn patients, will pay for all of Dena's ensuing medical bills estimated from $80,000 to $100,000, Hyden said.

Dena suffered burns over 20 percent of her body and faces plastic surgery, said Shriners hospital spokesman Jeffrey Pascal.

The child's mother, Dolores Jane Joslyn, 49, died when firefighters failed to rescue her from a burning mobile home. Dena was rescued by her brother-in-law, Carl Adams, who reached into the burning trailer, grabbed her by the legs and pulled her to safety.

Respect for the officers

The announcement Tuesday of W.C. Newman, David Cobos and Price Robinson as Midland's officer, deputy and rookie of the year, respectively, was significant and commendable for what it represents.

Recognition of the two police department officers by their fellow officers and Cobos by the captains of the four sheriff's department divisions certainly means a lot to each man's career and, understandably, will be appreciated in that context.

But in the broader sense the awards were more significant because of what they mean to law enforcement as a whole.

Certainly it's not our intent to take anything away from the individual awards and what they mean. Without a doubt the three officers have performed their individual duties in an exceptional manner and are deserving of the awards voted them.

In the broader sense, though, through presentation of the awards, Midlanders have recognized three of the municipal servants who protect city residents and uphold the laws governing our society.

The efforts of the men and women in uniform who seek to protect and defend us often go unrecognized. It is, perhaps, paradoxical that society created the laws it now asks the officers to uphold. Yet all too often we ridicule, taunt and otherwise abuse the very individuals who often are risking their own lives just to ensure our safety and that of our possessions.

Police Chief Wayne Gideon noted during the Optimist ceremony that "law enforcement is a most difficult job." He's correct, of course, and much of the blame rests with society. While it's true that most areas are experiencing an increasing crime rate and widespread lawlessness, it also must be recognized that society has been responsible for the enactment of laws that make the job of law enforcement agencies a more difficult one.

Thursday marked the end of Respect for Law Week. The importance of that observance — and of recognition ceremonies for law enforcement officers such as the one held at the Optimist Club Tuesday — cannot be overemphasized.

Those honored Tuesday, and all their fellow officers, deserve the gratitude of all of us. We should never fail to appreciate the service they render.

Nuclear genie at large

The nuclear genie, once out of the bottle, cannot be put back in. That is as true of India and Pakistan, bitter adversaries on the subcontinent of India, as it is of the United States and the USSR.

When India exploded a nuclear device in 1974, it was inevitable that Pakistan would bend all efforts toward the goal of doing the same.

And it now appears that Pakistan is nearly ready to conduct its first nuclear test explosion. Sen. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., told the Senate in a somber speech recently that both India and Pakistan appear to be making preparations for underground tests of nuclear warheads.

Cranston's view, shared by a number of other Democratic senators, is that we should deny all aid to Pakistan unless Pakistan promises to terminate its nuclear weapons development program.

The problem with that approach is that Pakistan undoubtedly prizes its nuclear bomb effort more highly than any amount of external military aid. Pakistan will refuse the aid and continue the bomb effort.

There is something a little inconsistent about the policy of the major nuclear powers, which refuse to submit their nuclear facilities to any intentional inspection and have no intention of renouncing nuclear weapons. We are insisting that Third World countries submit to inspection and renounce such weapons at the same time that we are multiplying and modernizing our own stockpile of nuclear warheads.

The United States, USSR, France, England, China and India have the bomb. Israel probably has it, too, but is keeping it secret. Pakistan will have it soon, and so will a dozen other countries in the next century.

We must continue to resist nuclear proliferation. But we should realize that the effort is almost certainly a lost cause, and weigh our options accordingly.

FINALLY GETTING THE MESSAGE?

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

Security tightened after Haig's office invaded

WASHINGTON — A few weeks ago, five activists opposed to the administration's policy in El Salvador managed to make their way onto the seventh floor of the State Department, where the top brass have their offices.

While two of the intruders diverted the guard on duty, the other three entered Secretary of State Alexander Haig's suite, shouted slogans and dumped blood and ashes on the plush furnishings.

Haig was in his suite at the time, but security officers subdued the protesters without much trouble. The incident, however, has quickened the department's moves to tighten security at home and abroad in the wake of the attacks on U.S. embassies in recent years and the assassination attempt on President Reagan in March.

Haig's high profile and hardline policies make him a prime target for terrorists, security officials fear. They note that he narrowly escaped an assassination attempt in Belgium on June 25, 1979, four days before he left his post as NATO commander.

Special measures are being taken to make Haig's home in nearby Bethesda, Md., safe from unexpected visitors. Officials did not want to set a dollar figure on the cost of these security arrangements for fear of tipping off potential intruders to the exact nature of the safety devices. But sources told my associate Lucretia Lagnado that only about $12,600 worth of equipment will be permanently attached to the house; the rest can be removed and used again when Haig leaves office.

Possibly to reassure Haig's neighbors in the posh suburb, officials did disclose that attack dogs are not part of the security system. Instead, sophisticated "motion detector" devices will spot anyone approaching the large house and its tree-shaded yard.

Haig's limousine is also being fitted out with security equipment, including a special tracking device that will enable authorities to locate the vehicle in case it is stolen.

Internal security measures are also being tightened up at Foggy Bottom — particularly concerning access to the seventh floor. "It's a tricky business," one State Department official explained. "There are all sorts of visitors — busloads of tourists, schoolkids. It makes it very difficult."

Overseas, plans are proceeding both to make our embassies more secure and to prevent sensitive documents from falling into the wrong hands in case an embassy is overrun. The Iranian militants were able to seize our Tehran embassy before security officers could destroy some highly sensitive papers.

Eventually, the State Department hopes to solve this perennial problem by simply eliminating the presence of sensitive documents in our embassies. The plan would involve an electronic storage and retrieval system in Washington. Overseas personnel would plug into the computer to store sensitive information and call it up

CHARLEY REESE

New world organization needed to replace U.N.

Charley Reese

The United States should withdraw from the United Nations. There is no longer any justification at all for continued American participation in this immoral and corrupt organization.

Even the cultural, scientific and humanitarian agencies of the United Nations have been politicized and corrupted by the Soviet Union, the Arab bloc and the black African nations.

Really now, do you think South Africa and Israel are threats to world peace? Both countries combined have fewer people than Mexico City if you exclude the blacks in South Africa who have no voice in the government.

I really don't care that black African politicians are obsessed with the South African and that the Arabs are obsessed with Israel, but to continue the charade of a world organization allegedly concerned with peace is preposterous under the circumstances.

A better solution would be for the United States to withdraw totally from the U.N. and to invite those nations which really are committed to decency, human rights, and peace to form a new and honest world organization. We provide 25 percent of the United Nations budget although we are only one of over 150 members and what do we get? The opportunity to sit in a room full of tyrants, killers, and clowns and listen to them berate and insult the United States and other democracies.

If you read the United Nations charter instead of listening to naive upper middle class civic organizations drool over United Nations press releases, you can see clearly why the U.N. is worthless. What its founders intended was a continuation of the World War II alliance. In plain language, they intended World War II allies to rule the world under the guise of a world organization.

That's why all the power was vested in the Security Council and the five big allies — the U.S., Great Britain, France, China, and the Soviet Union — were given permanent seats and veto power. In other words, the United Nations would do nothing that the Big Five did not want it to do. The General Assembly has no power. Its resolutions carry no weight. The power to wage war, to apply sanctions, rests only in the Security Council.

Unfortunately for the idealists who dreamed up the United Nations, the wartime alliance fell apart. The Soviet Union went its own hostile way. The empires of Britain and France fell apart and, without their empires, Britain and France are not great powers (Great Britain today has fewer tanks than Libya). The Chinese government, which was an ally, was replaced by a communist government which was an enemy. No alliance, no effective United Nations.

The United Nations cannot do anything to thwart any effort supported by communists because the Soviet Union vetoes it. It cannot do anything which we don't like because we will veto it. Therefore, as it concerns the single greatest threat to peace — conflict between the superpowers — the United Nations is completely useless.

I suppose that's why it occupies its time berating Israel and South Africa. Not only is it pointless for us to finance a quarter of this stupid charade, it is dangerous to maintain the illusion of a world organization committed to human rights and peace when in fact what we have is a world organization committed to hatred, prejudice, propaganda, espionage, and subversion. The majority of the members of the United Nations are totalitarian governments who do not even make a pretense of observing the U.N. Declaration of Human Rights.

How much better it would be to start over and build an organization of those nations which are, in fact, committed to the principles of freedom and respect for human rights. Without the participation of the 15 or so remaining democracies, the United Nations would die quickly.

We can have all the dialogues we want with totalitarian states, including the Soviet Union. We do not, however, have to participate with them in an organization which adds a false front of respectability to their disgraceful policies and which they use as a weapon to undermine the remaining free nations.

If you agree, write your Senator. Tell him (or her) we want to withdraw from the United Nations and form a new world organization truly committed to peace. If enough of us promote the idea, we might get some results.

INSIDE REPORT:

Rapping Volcker's knuckles might help restore confidence

By ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

Evans Novak

WASHINGTON — As the bond market continued to fall April 30, President Reagan's two top monetary strategists in a closed-door, Cabinet-level meeting put the blame squarely on the nation's central bank: the Federal Reserve Board, headed by Paul Volcker.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Beryl Sprinkel and assistant budget director Lawrence Kudlow did not mince words. They indicted the Fed for inflating the money supply in a vain effort to force interest rates down. The perverse result of money-supply tinkering has been higher interest rates (the prime moved to 18 percent last week). That threatens Reagan's economic program with disaster no matter how strong he is in Congress.

Responsible administration officials talk guardedly of a possible financial panic later this year, with falling lending institutions and bankrupt small businesses. That is why key administration officials want a quick, well-publicized Oval Office meeting where Ronald Reagan would deliver a Dutch Uncle lecture to Chairman Volcker.

There is little that the Fed can do quickly to retrieve the situation. But the spectacle of the Fed chairman paying homage to the president might sweeten the temper of financial markets. That, combined with Reagan's success toward passage of his budget and tax programs, could halt the ruinous drop in bond prices, which are tied to interest rates.

Critics of the Fed say I told you so. The economic task force headed by budget director David Stockman had prepared a section of the federal economic report sharply critical of Fed operations. But the president's orthodox outside economic advisers, headed by Arthur Burns (a former Fed chairman himself) and Alan Greenspan, killed the report. A policy of detente with Volcker was established.

As detente was pursued, "the Fed printed money," in the words of one bitter administration official. Such Reaganites believe that unwitting expansion of bank reserves caused by clumsy Fed tinkering the past three months have sent interest rates to the sky and frightened financial markets into the cellar.

The fright in the markets was heightened by $35 billion in new federal borrowing since the beginning of the year. The White House staff, led by Edwin Meese III, long ago smothered the declaration of economic emergency suggested by Stockman and Rep. Jack Kemp during the transition. As a result, there was no appeal to Congress for quick action on the budget and tax cuts.

But, say the Reaganites, tax-cutting and budget-cutting progress was good enough to warrant more favorable market reaction. It was overridden by what administration monetary experts consider an inept, doctrinaire Fed staff tinkering with bank reserves in ways that perhaps even Volcker does not fully understand. To its critics, the Fed is a runaway bank exceeding its balance.

As the bond market continued to fall on April 30 and, even more seriously, on May 1, Miss Rosy Scenario gave way to Mr. Bleak Forebodings inside the administration. With small businesses unable to borrow funds, the prospect of bankruptcy for small banks and savings and loan institutions is possible.

The administration's principal recourse is to send a message to the markets that Reagan is truly serious about curbing inflation. That explains Stockman's decision to try cutting another $5 billion in the last five months of fiscal 1981. It also will explain the expected biting of the bullet when Stockman cuts back on Social Security payments for future years.

In this climate, a tax bill that would appeal to the big investors is now transformed from a luxury to a necessity. The across-the-board cuts as outlined in Kemp-Roth are not enough. The administration needs a sharp, quick drop in taxation of dividends and interest, plus a meat-ax cut in the capital gains rate.

Even with all this, critics of the Fed feel the Reagan-Volcker summit is essential. If the notion can be conveyed that the Fed chairman's knuckles have been rapped, a little confidence might return. Any sign that the central bank no longer will tinker with interest rates would be welcomed.

To some key administration officials, the Fed's ability to confuse markets would be markedly reduced if, once again, the dollar were tied to a standard commodity — green onions, silver or, most likely, gold. Thus, the current crisis might have a gold lining. If so, that will come later. Today's goal is mere survival, and there is no overwhelming confidence that it will be achieved.

On March 8 Troy, N.Y. police found the nude, sexually abused body of Charlene O'Brien, 6, far left. On April 3 Troy police charged Susan Davis, 15, right, with murder and aggravated sexual abuse. On Thursday Rensselaer County Grand Jury decided that Davis will be tried as an adult. Both are recent, undated photos.

Teen-age girl indicted in death of small child

By CYNTHIA BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — Police found the naked body of 6-year-old Charlene O'Brien in a clump of bushes in a blue-collar neighborhood of Troy on March 8. She had been smothered and raped with a stick.

The slaying of the kindergartener shocked local people. Police searched for a suspect seen by passers-by, someone described as a slight, white male, while mothers drove their children to school and kept them off the streets.

But what happened April 3 shocked people even more. Police arrested a 15-year-old girl and charged her with second-degree murder and aggravated sexual abuse.

On Thursday, a Rensselaer County grand jury indicted young Susan Davis in the slaying, saying she exhibited "a depraved indifference to human life," and ordered her to be tried as an adult.

The grand jury could have opted to return the case to Family Court for disposition as a juvenile case. "It's the most complex case I've ever been involved in," said Joseph West, assistant police chief in Troy. In 24 years on the force, West said, he has never handled or seen a case like this.

"This case is not the norm. It is extremely rare," said Paul Elisha, spokesman for the New York State Department of Youth.

RECALLING THE investigation, West said the idea that a female suspect might be involved came up early, as investigators stretched their imaginations to include all possibilities. It was not seriously pursued until much later, he said.

When asked why the initial police composite sketch of the hunted suspect was identified as a male, West said: "If you saw Susan Davis, you wouldn't realize at first that she was a girl. In fact, everybody here who saw her for the first time thought she was a boy."

Even after the investigation began to center on teen-age girls, West said he "never figured it would be such a young female. It is her youth that surprises me more than her sex."

Before April 3, Susan was just another kid on a sleepy block of tiny homes. Neighbors remember her back to the day she was born.

Erwin Shwalb lives next door to the white house trimmed in green where Susan has lived all her life.

"She came from a good family and she was just another kid on the block," Shwalb said. "She practically grew up with my girls. They played ball together and jumped rope together."

Shwalb said his own reaction to the arrest was disbelief. He said Susan had fallen in with friends whom he described as "a little on the rough side" but said he could not believe she could commit such a serious crime alone.

"She's taking a fall," Shwalb said. He paused for a moment, leaning on the fence that separates his home from the Davises', then added, "Mr. Davis says she was 'so obsessed' with watching the case unfold in the weeks after Charlene's killing."

Karen Flaherty, a social studies teacher at Thomas A. Knickerbocker Junior High School, recalled Susan chiming in with her classmates, saying "Yes, yes," that she, too, would like to catch Charlene's killer.

EDWARD WALSH, 14, delivers newspapers on the block where Susan lived. He was her classmate from first through fifth grade at nearby St. Augustine's Academy. He recalled that Susan was "sort of quiet, never bothered anybody" — but that she was frequently the butt of children's cruelty.

"A lot of kids used to make fun of her because she looked kind of dirty and had pimples. She never said anything — she just took it and kept going," Edward said.

Susan's junior high acquaintances paint a grim picture of her school life.

"Susan was by herself a lot. Everybody made fun of her because she was shy," said Cathy Elting. "Susan used to get into a lot of fights with girls at lunch. They used to shoot food at her. She would run out and cry. She's not the fighting type."

Scott Harrington, also 15, said most of Susan's friends were "little kids."

Hans Toch, a psychologist and professor at the School of Criminal Justice at the State University at Albany, specializes in violent behavior.

"In retrospect," Toch said, "we can always see a pattern of why someone commits an offense," but there are people who go about their business and are never suspected of being psychotic until they show it.

In other instances, he said, "There are people who are perfectly normal for whom you can push a button and, for a few tragic moments, they become very different."

Susan is now being held in a state detention center in Ulster County. "It's not really an optimum place for a kid but, unfortunately, the detention system is not geared for long-term placement of kids," Elisha said. "There are simply no provisions for them."

Reagan promises more cooperation

By MICHAEL PUTZEL
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, saying the United States and Japan are both partners and competitors, is promising visiting Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki that the administration will consult more closely with the Japanese on future decisions affecting the two countries.

Both leaders pledged increased cooperation Thursday as they began two days of talks designed to help them get to know each other while forming a foundation for future efforts to resolve policy differences on trade, defense and foreign relations.

A U.S. OFFICIAL said he understood Reagan acknowledged that "our consultations might not have been as full as Japan might have expected" before the United States lifted its grain embargo against the Soviet Union.

The Japanese, who supported U.S. sanctions in retaliation for the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan, have complained that they were given no advance warning that Reagan was lifting the embargo.

The American official and a Japanese government spokesman said Reagan promised to discuss such matters with Japan in more depth in the future.

The president, looking fit and carefully groomed less than six weeks after he was shot in the chest in an assassination attempt, chatted with his guests Thursday night after a formal White House dinner in Suzuki's honor. He then sat erect in a straight-backed wooden chair during a performance by soprano Shirley Verrett.

AFTER ESCORTING THE prime minister and his wife to their limousine, Reagan returned to dance two numbers with his wife, Nancy, and chat with a few friends before retiring for the evening.

Suzuki, who like Reagan is 70 years old, told his host: "I have to admit, Mr. President, that I can't match your health and vitality. I was born 26 days before you."

Reagan's toast, like that of his guest of honor, stressed deep friendship between the United States and Japan and how "profound the similarities are," although the two countries have become both "principal trading partners and chief competitors."

THE AMERICAN PRESIDENT recounted a Japanese legend about two villages separated by a river. A man from one town would come out and sing, and his voice would carry across the river to the next town, Reagan said. The people of the second town found a singer of their own.

Hearing the second singer prompted the first man to sing at the top of his voice.

"The singing grew more and more beautiful as each singer found depths to his talent that he hadn't known were there," Reagan said. "Well, Japan and America are like those singers. ... The standards we set for each other are marks of excellence."

BUT AS IF TO WARD off the inevitably tragic conclusion to that legend, the president said, "Yet, we do not exhaust ourselves in that contest but rather pursue our respective goals as friends and allies."

It was the first meeting between the two leaders, but Suzuki said he felt as though he had known Reagan for years. One U.S. official said the prime minister told Reagan he valued the opportunity to talk "as real buddies."

The official, who briefed reporters on the condition his name not be used, said one of the key differences between the two countries — the level of Japan's defense spending — was barely discussed in the 50-minute private session between the two men and a slightly longer followup session with key aides.

AT THE START of the visit, Reagan praised Japan's resolute opposition to the Soviet occupation of Afghanistan more than a year ago.

"We in America," he said, "are grateful for the strong measures that you have taken to penalize the Soviet Union for its violent aggression in Afghanistan. ... You have rescued refugees, imposed sanctions against tyrants and offered economic assistance to the oppressed."

President Ronald Reagan stands behind Japan's Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki at the White House Tuesday as they began two days of meetings.

Three patients die as doctors strike

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — At least three patients reportedly have died untended by doctors in government-run hospitals where physicians are striking for higher pay and increased benefits.

Two deaths were reported by officials at Nairobi's Kenyatta National Hospital, the nation's largest medical facility, soon after the doctors' strike began Thursday. Both were auto accident victims who died while nurses tried to find doctors to treat them, the reports said.

Another patient reportedly died in the rift valley farming town of Nakuru, and several other patients were reportedly on the verge of death because of lack of medical attention.

Health Ministry officials met representatives of the striking doctors Thursday but their talks ended in apparent deadlock.

The doctors are demanding higher pay, and allowances of up to 50 percent of their monthly salary to compensate for working at public hospitals instead of going into private practice. They have already rejected one government offer.

VIPS Luncheon

By WANDA MOUTON
Lifestyle Editor

About 200 outstanding school volunteers from the 26 public schools here were recognized at a luncheon Thursday at Green Tree Country Club.

The event was sponsored by the Volunteers in Public Schools (VIPS), a part of the City Council PTA program; and hosted by Midland National Bank.

The luncheon was held in conjunction with School Volunteer Week.

Receiving awards as outstanding elementary school volunteers were Sharon Boyd, Bonham; Marion Culbertson, Bowie; Linda Graham, Burnet; Elisa Garibay, Crockett; Virginia Nall, DeZavala; Gay Storch, Emerson; Sheila Simpson, Fannin; Brenda Steward, Henderson; Linda Stevens, Houston; Darla Taylor, Jones; Debbie McLucas, Lamar; Pam Broach, Long; Linda Stevens, Milam; Florence Mailey, Pease; Peggy Palmer, Rusk; Helen Alvarado, South; Gyn Jobe, Travis; Letty Craft, Washington; and Diamantina Abeyta, West.

Gayle Dodson, City Council PTA president, gave the opening remarks, recognizing several who were instrumental in making the VIPS program a success. She also recognized Bobbie Martin, a past PTA council president and president of a local unit, who has been a member of PTA for 21 years.

Mrs. Dodson gave thanks to four banks, Midland National Bank, First National Bank, Commercial Bank & Trust and Texas National Bank, for their voluntary funding of the VIPS program.

Dr. James Mailey, superintendent of schools, also addressed the group. "When things need to be done—when PTA determines it needs to be done—then it gets done," he said. "I'm referring specifically to two bond elections, behind which PTA gave their support and they passed."

"VIPS is a can-do program and it has been recognized across the country," he said.

He also recognized school board members who were present, including Bill Jackson, Gary Hopper, Ann Page (who was also attending as a VIPS volunteer), and Parker Humes, school board president, who also addressed the audience.

"Take a look at schools in the larger cities across the nation and the state and see how the numbers decrease in PTA among parents and other school volunteers when confidence in the public school is lost," said Humes. "You don't see that here. We are grateful for the confidence you have shown in our public schools."

Mrs. Dodson introduced Nell Furgeson, who is chairman of the VIPS program this year, and noted that the Midland program had won outstanding program in the state.

Mrs. Furgeson recognized the 19 volunteer chairmen from each school, and they were presented corsages.

She also presented the plaques to the outstanding volunteers in each school.

Special guests were the volunteer representatives from the schools, school principals and workers, and PTA presidents from each school.

Acknowledgement was given to the four banks who had provided funding for the program this year: Bud Blake, Lamar Outdoor Advertising; Albertson's; The Midland Reporter-Telegram; Gary Hopper, KOSA-TV; Max Howard, KNFM; MISD; and McDonald's.

Quackery business is booming

ATLANTA (AP)—Arthritis quackery is big business and growing annually, reports the Arthritis Foundation.

This year, the organization warns, arthritis patients will spend about $950 million on quack devices, unproven remedies and "miracle" cures. That is 25 times the amount that will be spent on legitimate arthritis research.

First, there are many victims to prey on — more than 31 million Americans suffer from the disease. Second, it is a chronic disease — once developed it remains for life, bringing pain and a constant desire for relief.

Women doctors lag in medical school promotions

By DANIEL Q. HANEY
Associated Press Writer

BOSTON (AP) — Medical schools are doing a good job of accepting women and training them to be doctors, but they are slow to put females in administrative jobs, a study says.

"Medical schools should consciously take the lead in promoting women, as they did in admitting women to medical school," said the study, published in today's New England Journal of Medicine.

An accompanying editorial said the problems "go beyond prejudice" because women's child-rearing duties hinder their rise to the top of their profession.

The study was conducted at the University of Arizona College of Medicine by Judith B. Braslow and Dr. Marilyn Heins.

They found that about a quarter of the young doctors setting up practice in the United States now are women.

In 1970, women accounted for 11 percent of the students starting medicine school. By 1979, that number had grown to 28 percent.

Only 14,000 women graduated from medical schools between 1930 and 1970, compared with 20,000 between 1970 and 1980.

However, the study said, there has been only a small increase during the last decade in the number of women on medical school faculties, and few women hold administrative positions. No medical school is headed by a woman, the study said.

The researchers said medical schools should recruit young female graduates.

"Until female students, residents and faculty begin to see more women in the positions that count in academic medicine, there will continue to be issues of concern to women in medicine," they wrote.

However, the accompanying editorial said, "It may be wise to accept the likelihood that even with the best will in the world, women will continue to be under-represented at the upper levels of medicine."

But the problem may be eased, she wrote, if the profession makes it easier for women to resume their careers after their children are in school.

Automation no threat to secretaries

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Although technology is rapidly changing the appearance of today's offices, secretaries surveyed at a recent professional conference here agreed almost totally that automation will never pose any threat to their job security.

A survey of 400 women who attended "Secretary Speakout '81," showed that 93 percent believe technology will neither threaten nor replace them. Of the rest, fewer than 1 percent feel threatened by technology; 5 percent feel this might become a problem, and 1 percent are uncertain.

The survey was conducted by American Pad & Paper Co., an office-supplies manufacturer headquartered in Holyoke, Mass., in conjunction with Professional Secretaries International, which sponsored the conference. It covered topics ranging from job responsibility and productivity to the purchase of office supplies.

More than two-thirds of those polled said they were generally satisfied with their job responsibilities. These include such chores as making photocopies, running internal and external (non-business-related) errands, making coffee, ordering and purchasing office supplies, as well as the routines of typing, filing, taking dictation, handling the telephone and making travel arrangements.

Of the 30 percent who are dissatisfied with some of those job responsibilities, almost all singled out running outside errands for executives as something they should not have to do.

When asked if they had ever refused to do something, 82.5 percent said no. The 17.5 percent who said yes most often cited making coffee, running outside errands and handling personal business for the boss.

A majority of those surveyed are executive secretaries 30 to 39 years of age, married, have some college education and are earning $20,000 or more a year, somewhat above the average family income for the nation.

Over 40 percent of this group have been in the work force for at least 11 years but in their current jobs for less than 10 years. More than 75 percent are working for one or two people with the title of vice president, president, chairman or chief executive officer.

Most work in companies or institutions with at least 1,000 employees (45.2 percent) while more than 20 percent work in places employing fewer than 100.

Respondents other than the executive secretaries held such titles as administrative assistant, secretary, legal secretary, office manager and administrator.

More than half said that typing, handling correspondence and taking phone calls were their most important duties. Taking dictation, filing and making travel arrangements for their bosses were also considered significant duties.

Sixty-six percent said they enjoyed correspondence, typing and handling the telephone the most. But almost 50 percent said they didn't like filing.

Some 68 percent feel handling the telephone is a crucial activity. Almost 94 percent have to screen their executives' phone calls; 46 percent said they screened every call that came through the switchboard. Some 45 percent said that their executives had private phone lines and most were required to answer the private lines also.

Salary is considered a high priority among this group of office workers, with almost 86 percent reporting that what they earn is directly related to their personal productivity.

Of the respondents, 72.4 percent said the absence of job advancement opportunities would not adversely influence their own personal productivity.

With regard to office technology, 72 percent work in companies that use word processors and a comparable number are employed by companies that use office computers outside accounting departments. Of those secretaries with access to word processors, only a third have been trained to use them.

Professional Secretaries International, formerly the National Secretaries Association, is a non-profit professional association devoted to upgrading the standards of secretarial performance by means of continuing education programs. Total membership is placed at approximately 42,000.

Music engraver's work cut by computer

By OLE DUUS
Associated Press Writer
AARHUS, Denmark (AP) — A rare combination of music science and computer knowhow is bringing into print treasures of old music, some never before published. It also is eliminating for contemporary composers long, frustrating years of waiting for publication of their works.

The unusual combination is personified in Mogens Kjaer, 40, a university-trained musicologist and self-taught computer specialist. His brainchild of 10 years ago is becoming the most radical innovation in music printing since the first lines of music were engraved in the 16th century.

Even in the age of advanced computer technology, there is fascination in watching Kjaer sit down at a four-octave piano keyboard, silently play a score of music into a digital computer and minutes later have the first master sheet come out on a graphic plotter.

If a music engraver could be found today who would undertake to prepare Beethoven's 5th symphony for printing, it would take him at least 90 days. Kjaer's computer does it in 16 hours.

The method is called scan-note. Kjaer first envisioned it when he was still a music teacher, pianist and bandleader who had an active interest in computers and datalogy. Loathing the labor of hand-writing arrangements for students and musicians, he persuaded a local data software firm to cooperate in devising a computerized shortcut to printed music.

Scan-note is now a company in its own right, and after 10 years of development and about $500,000 in direct investment, the system is increasingly good business.

Proof is that the system now supplies the master films for about 10 percent of all music printed in Europe, and the company's sales manager, Knud Dalboe Andersen, predicts it will cover 80 percent of the market five years from now.

This is no trifle considering that, in Europe alone, an estimated 400,000 sheets of music, new and old, are prepared in various methods for printing every year.

Trade sources consider it a fair guess that each sheet is printed eventually in an average of 3,000-5,000 copies.

Another measure of success is the type of business coming Kjaer's way. Orders from Austrian and West German publishers have included all the waltzes composed by Johann Strauss, the complete works of Joseph Haydn and all the cantatas of Johan Sebastian Bach.

An Italian foundation guarding a treasure of medieval manuscript music placed an initial order involving hundreds of mostly unpublished madrigals, some by Antonio Vivaldi.

Recently, the unknown manuscript of a symphony written by Mozart at age 9 was discovered in Germany. When the score goes into full print soon, it will have gone through Kjaer's system.

The rather simple system is built largely from standard equipment. What makes it so different from any other are the 12,000 instructions fed into the computer using a system where just one music symbol may require 200 digital impulses.

The secret of Kjaer's system is his study of a thousand years of musical notations to define and systematize the rules, and then their conversion into logical computer instructions.

"Without Kjaer's combination of musicology and datalogy, which may not be found in any other single person, this thing would not have been possible," says Andersen, the sales manager.

Scan-note programmers, all with university degrees in music, now work from two piano key terminals, each capable of producing 60-70 sheets of music in an eight-hour day.

The right hand plays the music from the piano keys into the computer. The left activates a special keyboard for such functions as ties, slurs, note values, figurations and possible text lines.

The computer feeds the instructions to a fast printer for proofreading. A slower graphic plotter then draws up an oversized sheet, which subsequently is scaled down photographically to the desired size of the master film to be used by the publisher for the printing of the music.

Unplanned births are declining

ATLANTA (AP) — Married women in the United States are having only half the unplanned children they had in the 1960s, primarily because more of them are using contraceptives and abortion, a Centers for Disease Control researcher says.

Studies conducted by Princeton University and the National Center for Health Statistics showed that nearly six in 10 births to married couples were unplanned in the early 1960s, while only three in 10 were unplanned in the mid 1970s, John E. Anderson of the Atlanta-based CDC's family planning division said Tuesday.

"Approximately 70 percent of the married women in the United States are using birth control," he said, adding that a high percentage of those who do not use contraceptives "are not at risk because they either can't become pregnant, they desire to get pregnant or they are pregnant already."

But because single women are excluded, "this analysis really misses what is probably a significant proportion of unwanted or unplanned births," he said in an interview.

Anderson defines unplanned births as those that are unwanted as well as those that are "mistimed," or wanted by a couple but at a later time.

The CDC official's analysis of the Princeton and NCHS studies was published in the latest issue of Family Planning Perspectives, the magazine of the research arm of the Planned Parenthood Federation of America.

Anderson said his research showed women below the poverty level have a higher rate of unplanned pregnancies, although the number of unplanned births has dropped at all levels of society since the 1960s.

In 1976, about 47 percent of the births to women below the poverty level were unplanned, compared to 28 percent for women whose income is twice the poverty level or more, he said.

Accompanying Anderson's article in Family Planning Perspectives is a report by Dr. Charles F. Westoff of Princeton, who noted a decrease in the risk of unplanned pregnancy in the 1970s.

Westoff found that poor women, blacks and women with less than a high school education have from two to 2½ times more risk of unwanted births than more affluent, white and better-educated women.

Work-at-home offer? — Proceed with caution

COLLEGE STATION — Tempted by a "work-at-home" offer?

Be careful, and proceed with caution — or create your own "work-at-home" business, advises Linda McCormack, a family resource management specialist.

Mrs. McCormack is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

In many "work-at-home" cases, the potential "employee" or "investor" (you) is asked to send a membership or registration fee to a company "for more information" or "to obtain the materials necessary to start the job," Mrs. McCormack notes.

Too often, these "job materials" and "investment secrets" turn out to be simply promotional literature — not work, she says.

If you want to make money at home, and if you have an idea of what you want to do, place your own advertisement in the paper, the specialist says.

DEAR ABBY

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: You've often recommended Alcoholics Anonymous, Gamblers Anonymous and Overeaters Anonymous for compulsive drinkers, gamblers and overeaters.

I wish there was an Adulterers Anonymous for compulsive adulterers. I am one, and there's nothing I can do about it.

Don't laugh, Abby. I have a wonderful husband and family, but I've gone from one adulterous affair to another until now I can't even count them. I'm not oversexed. In fact, I'm just the opposite. I get nothing out of these affairs. I can't for the life of me understand why I deliberately get myself into such miserable situations that offer no sexual fulfillment, knowing if I'm caught I'll lose my husband and children and everything that is dear to me.

I must be crazy. Can't something on the order of Alcoholics Anonymous be organized for compulsive adulterers? — WEAK IN ILLINOIS

DEAR WEAK: I can't imagine a compulsive adulterer phoning another compulsive adulterer and being talked out of it.

You need some form of psychotherapy. Only when you understand what motivates you to behave as you do will you be able to control your actions. Your community mental health clinic can provide you with confidential counseling at a price you can afford. Please give the clinic a call.

DEAR ABBY: Here's the picture: I took a date to a lovely dinner dance. Mary Jo sat at my left and to her left sat a gentleman named Bill who asked her to dance. Without any further ado, Mary Jo turned to me and said, "I'm going to dance with Bill."

On the way home,

Mary Jo and I had a few words about what happened. I say either Bill should have asked me if he could dance with Mary Jo, or she should have asked my permission to dance with Bill.

I figure that she is my girl for the evening, and I don't like giving her free to entertain single men who are there. It just so happens that Bill's wife would not attend with him because she thought the modest amount for the evening was too much. (Incidentally, this couple is very well-heeled.)

But even if the evening cost me only a dollar, I still think my date should have shown more loyalty to her escort. What is your opinion, O Wise One? — RICHARD IN LANSDALE, PA.

DEAR RICHARD: You're right. Mary Jo should have asked you if you minded if she danced with Bill. And/or Bill should have asked you if he could dance with your date. However, Mary Jo is not your "property"; she is only your date, and as such she is not yours to "give free" or withhold.

Use nylon net to make lump-free gravy

DEAR HELOISE:
Your ideas for nylon net are very good, but I have one I'll bet no one has tried as yet...
If you love gravy — but often end up with lumps in it, here is something very simple:
For just such emergencies, keep a piece of white nylon net. Cut it larger than the bowl you want to pour the gravy in, put it on top of the bowl and use clothespins to hold it in place.
Pour the gravy through the net. Then, if necessary, pick up the corners of the net and squeeze the remainder of the gravy through it. Strains out lumps smooth as silk.
Don't throw the net away. Wash it, let it dry, and it is ready to use again. — Jim Bachs

You could even spray a little dust magnet on the paper towels or put them around a broom to wipe up spills if stooling is a problem.

It's amazing how well the towels stay together. — Heloise

CUP CAKE LINERS

Dear Heloise: When you are out of cupcake papers cut pieces of aluminum foil about four inches square. Shape them around the bottom of a small glass approximately the size of the cupcake tins.

This will make perfect little liners for the pans and you won't have to waste gas chasing to the store. — Emma

HANDY TO HAVE

Dear Heloise: I really use those throw-away plastic sandwich bags — in my purse!

I put my toddler's bib in one and it's clean to use when we're eating out. My purse is clean when he's through, since I put the soiled one back in the bag.

I also carry a damp washcloth in another for clean-up emergencies.

Still another has a small assortment of miniature toys, blunt scissors, crayons, etc. (all noiseless!) for times when we're visiting people not used to children, or to use when my toddler gets restless in church. — R.A.

Study indicates that both family and employer suffer when both parents work

By The Associated Press

Americans believe family life isn't the same with both Mom and Dad out working, and neither is the workplace, a new poll indicates. While the poll said a majority of men and women believe that the family is hurt when both parents work, "the potential impact of family life on work seems to be as great or greater than the impact of work on the family," said the report by Louis Harris and Associates Inc. The polling firm said companies "will come under increasing pressure to adopt more flexible benefits and work policies" to make it easier for employees to manage job and family successfully. The findings, released Wednesday, come at a time when more and more women are in the labor force — regardless of whether they are married or have children. The Department of Labor says, for example, that more than half of all married women living with their husbands have paying jobs. As of March 1980, almost 57 percent of women with children under 18 were in the labor force; 53 percent of the children under 18 had mothers who worked outside the home. The survey on family attitudes toward work was conducted by Harris for General Mills Inc. It consisted of interviews last November and December with six groups: 1,503 adult family members, 235 teen-agers, 104 personnel executives from major corporations, 56 labor leaders, 49 traditionalists or leaders in the "pro-family" movement and 52 feminists, active in women's rights organizations. The pollsters found expected disagreements among the groups on some issues, including the effect of the growing trend toward dual wage-earner families. Fifty-two percent of adult family members, for example, said there had been a negative impact on the family as a result of both parents working. Twenty-eight percent said there had been a positive impact; 14 percent said there had been no impact at all; and 6 percent were not sure. Sixty-five percent of the labor leaders, 60 percent of the personnel executives and 100 percent of the traditionalists agreed that the impact had been negative. But 67 percent of the feminists said the effect was positive. Women who work outside the home were split. Forty-four percent said the impact was negative; 37 percent said it was positive; 14 percent said there was no impact; and 5 percent were unsure. Majorities of most of the groups interviewed said children are more likely to get into trouble if both parents have paying jobs. Only 19 percent of the feminists took this view, however. Given a list of programs and proposals and asked whether each one would be a good or bad thing for families, the family members gave positive votes to just about everything mentioned. Eighty-five percent, for example, said it would be good if employers made it easier for working parents to arrange jobs and careers around children; 81 percent said it would be good if children were expected to take more responsibility; 65 percent approved of government tax deductions to help people pay to have someone care for their children, and 65 percent said it would help if day-care centers and other child-care services outside the home became more common. The personnel executives, labor leaders and feminists generally endorsed the same programs. A majority of the traditionalists also supported the idea of employers making things easier for working parents, of government tax deductions and of increased responsibility on the part of children. But 81 percent of the traditionalists said that more day-care centers would have a bad effect on families. The family members also were given a list of employer-provided potential benefits and asked which ones would be helpful. The most popular proposal — approved by 74 percent of the family members — was the freedom to choose the benefits that best suited their needs. Sixty-two percent also said it would help if they could work part time with full-time employee benefits.

Tighten shingles with roofing cement

By ANDY LANG AP Newsfeatures

Q — Some of the asphalt shingles on our roof are loose. They are not broken, just loose at the edges. How can these be tightened?

A — Most of the time a liberal coating of roofing cement under the edges is all that is necessary.

Q — I will soon be putting up some new aluminum gutters around my house. How many leaders do you need for a length of gutter? A. — One leader for every 32 to 36 feet of gutter is required. Be sure, of course, that the gutter is sloped to carry the water toward each leader.

Q. — I have never used shellac, but would like to try it out on some unfinished furniture. However, I want a clear finish and when I went to buy it, I found that it comes only in white and orange. Where can I buy the clear kind?

A. — Both the white and the orange are clear.

Calling ordinary shellac white is misleading. Calling it orange is closer to the truth, since the orange has an orange hue even though it is transparent. For your purposes, the white is what you want. Remember, though, that all clear finishes impart some shading to wood.

Four killed, 20 hurt as gunman sprays bullets into tavern crowd

By JIM CHURCH
Associated Press Writer

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — A man who allegedly fired an automatic pistol into a crowded rock 'n' roll tavern, killing four people and wounding at least 20 before being wrestled to the ground, faced arraignment today on murder charges.

At least 10 of the wounded were in critical condition after the shooting Thursday night, authorities said.

"He didn't say nothing. He just opened the door and started firing," said Brent Yagle, a patron at the Oregon Museum tavern. "I didn't think the shots were real until I saw people dropping."

"The first thing I did was grab for the gun," said Ashley Mitchell, a patron who helped subdue the man. "I struck him four times on the head." The gunman, hit on the head with a pool cue, was held by customers until police arrived.

Police arrested Lawrence W. Moore, 25, Lyons, Ore., and booked him on charges of first-degree murder, Sgt. Gary Kinsman said. Moore was scheduled for arraignment today.

"We have no idea of the motive at this point," Kinsman said. "It's still pretty much in a turmoil." The names of the victims were not immediately released.

At least 10 ambulances were called in from surrounding communities to take the injured to Salem Hospital, Kinsman said. Relatives swarmed to the hospital as news of the shooting spread.

Patrons said the man fired his first shot toward the bar, then turned the weapon toward the crowd.

"The gunman fired multiple rounds, reloading clips of ammunition several times," Kinsman said.

"During one of the lulls in shooting, the gunman was jumped by one patron, immediately joined by several other patrons, who were able to subdue him," he said.

At least four people tackled the gunman, who did not resist as one man hit him on the head with a pool cue while another grabbed for the 9 mm weapon, witnesses told police.

The tavern, a popular night spot, is two miles from downtown Salem near the Willamette river in a residential area of the capital.

Triple murder defendant gets death sentence in Oklahoma

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Triple murder defendant Clifford Henry Bowen has been formally sentenced to death, in a courtroom ringed with guards following threats against the judge's life.

More than a dozen law enforcement officers ringed the courtroom as District Judge Raymond Naifeh pronounced the sentence.

Naifeh said he received a telephone call shortly after midnight Thursday threatening his life if he sentenced Bowen to death.

Bowen was convicted of three counts of first-degree murder and was sentenced to death by lethal drug injection on July 21. Because of automatic appeals, the sentencing date will be changed.

The 49-year-old Tyler, Texas, man was convicted March 13 in the July 6, 1980, slayings of three men at the Guest House Motel in northwest Oklahoma City.

Former police officer, Harold Dean Behrens, is serving a life sentence for a murder conviction after hiring a hit man to kill one of the men. Prosecutors claimed that the hit man hired was Bowen.

District Judge Raymond Naifeh denied Bowen's request for a new trial.

Bowen was convicted in the deaths of Lawrence Evans, Marvin Nowlin and Ray Peters.

Cash may become universally available this year

The Washington Post
WASHINGTON — For some it's the ultimate nightmare: You're in a strange town and you're out of money. Your personal check is as good as a $3 bill; your hotel (restaurant, shop, hospital, gas station, taxi, etc.) doesn't accept your brand of credit card. At times like these, Karl Malden won't come to your rescue. What you need is cold hard cash — and fast. But where can you get it at 2 a.m.?

Back home, you could have called a friend or used your plastic card in the automatic teller machine (ATM) of your friendly local bank. But on the road...

Don't despair. Nineteen eighty-one is likely to go down in financial annals as the year in which cash finally became universally available.

Thanks to the advanced technology of interstate electronic-funds-transfer systems and the ambitious initiatives of national credit card companies, a traveler soon will be able to insert a magnetic card into one of many terminals anywhere in the country and withdraw cash from his or her home bank account. In some cases, it may be possible to get a cash loan from the machine.

At the moment there are numerous regional ATM systems. Several months ago, the American Banker, a trade paper, counted 100 multi-institution, electronic-funds-transfer systems throughout the country. Among the largest are the TYME (an acronym for Take Your Money Everywhere) system in Wisconsin and neighboring upper Michigan, with its 250 terminals shared by 313 financial institutions, and the Rocky Mountain Bankcard System of Denver, in which 200 institutions participate.

Interchange across state lines has reached "epidemic" proportions on the West Coast, according to the publication. Western Bancorp of Los Angeles is creating an 11-state, 900-branch system with several hundred ATM machines.

The question now is whether these regional systems will continue to develop, eventually reciprocating with one another, or whether national organizations will take them over or create their own systems. Given the evolution of the credit system from one of local and regional charge cards to one dominated by national giants, the outlook for regional networks may not be too bright in the long run.

American Express, MasterCard and Visa all recently have announced plans to set up nationwide instant-cash services.

Starting in July, American Express will expand the functions of its Gold Card to enable customers to obtain $500 a week from an ATM machine at any one of 149 locations in 16 major cities. Eventually that will be expanded to 30 cities. The machine gains instant access to the customer's account at the bank that issued the card.

The minimum income required to apply for a Gold Card is $20,000 a year; the annual fee for the card is $50. A Gold Card holder currently can use it to purchase traveler's checks at airport terminals and to cash a $1,000 personal check or get a $1,000 line of credit at 11,000 offices of participating banks in the United States and Canada.

Interbank Card Association, which franchises MasterCard, announced recently it would begin a pilot national ATM interchange system in November. The sole function will be to allow cardholders to get cash from bank machines where the MasterCard logo is displayed. The new function will be added to all existing MasterCards, which cost anywhere between $10 and $20 a year at various issuing banks. A spokesman said the magnetic card is compatible with many different systems throughout the country, but he declined to say how many individual banks the company hopes to sign up.

Visa USA is looking cautiously at late fall or the beginning of next year as its target date for an ATM sharing program. The company is investigating several cards that can be used in ATMs, including a new travel and entertainment card for affluent customers. (This is Visa's answer to the American Express Gold Card.) According to a Visa spokesman, the amount of the withdrawal authorized is determined by the issuing bank at which the customer has the account, subject to a reasonable limit put on by the accepting bank so as not to deplete its reserves. Of course every cash advance will have to be approved by the issuer. The whole authorization process will be completed in an average of three seconds.

The Carter administration recommended that curbs on electronic transfers between states be relaxed first. When and if this happens — and the Reagan administration seems to be leaning in that direction — "interstate banking can occur at the flick of a few switches," in the words of the American Banker. Yet by the time regulated banks are permitted to engage in interstate banking, they may find unregulated credit card companies, brokerage firms and retailers already have flicked that switch.

Chinese leadership at odds over freedom of expression

By MICHAEL WEISSKOPF
The Washington Post
PEKING — On a crisp spring morning recently, four eminent college professors completed their daily shadow-boxing exercises and began discussing the banned film "Unrequited Love" that intellectuals everywhere in China are debating.

As they strolled beneath drooping willow trees on the campus, Prof. Qian opined that while the film depicts the gloomy experience of most Chinese intellectuals, the screenplay writer still manages to avoid unpatriotic attacks against the motherland.

His three colleagues dissented in the finest Socratic fashion. The film, said one, suggests that China no longer deserves the loyalty of its battered artists and writers. It degrades the Communist Party, asserted another professor. It smears Mao Tse-tung, argued the third.

Overwhelmed by their reasoning, Prof. Qian finally conceded. "The writer has indeed distorted the patriotic feeling of our intellectuals," he said. "Although our intellectuals have suffered, they never have lost their confidence in the glorious future of the motherland."

Although similar colloquies no doubt take place in centers of learning all over China today, the early-morning discussion of the four eminent professors was in fact invented by the party's theoretical journal Red Flag in its edition released Wednesday.

As a major article in the influential party organ, the fictitious debate provides the latest evidence of the actual sparring said to be occurring within the leadership over the issue of freedom of expression and dissent.

The same kind of high-level debates have come at critical points in the nation's past, preceding the two most devastating periods for Chinese intellectuals — the anti-rightist campaign of the 1950s and the Cultural Revolution of the '60s and '70s.

This time, however, there is little to indicate that the debate will turn as ferociously against China's men of the letters and arts. Even the most conservative forces merely seek to discipline intellectuals at a time when social solidarity is considered a vital ingredient in efforts to improve the sagging economy, diplomatic sources said.

"How can we ask the people to look forward if writers write things that make people look backward at old problems?" asked a Chinese official in a recent interview.

While the issue of creative expression boldly resurfaced in January after the party issued strict new guidelines for writers and artists, most debate thus far has centered on the film "Unrequited Love," which spurred Wednesday's Red Flag article.

Never shown publicly, the film portrays the life of an artist who repatriates to China after the communist takeover because of love for his country. Back home, he suffers bitter persecution during the Cultural Revolution, raising questions about the system's fairness to him.

Last month, an unusually harsh attack in the Army's Liberation Daily criticized the screenplay writer, Bai Hua, for blackening the nation's image as well as the reputation of the party and socialism.

The following day, however, the party's newspaper People's Daily reprinted a speech by the top cultural policy-maker, Zhou Yang, arguing against labeling intellectuals who produce misguided works. Instead, he recommended conciliation and re-education.

Not long after the Zhou article, the widow of premier Chou En-lai, herself a Politburo member, wrote a letter to party leaders urging an end to criticism of Bai Hua and other writers, according to Chinese sources. She is said to have claimed that writers suffered enough during the Cultural Revolution and should be left alone.

With the nation's party and Army leaders openly disputing the limits of criticism for wayward intellectuals, students at the prestigious Peking University have put up wall posters demanding the public showing of "Unrequited Love" and a subsequent public debate on its merits and demerits.

In its Red Flag article Wednesday, the party carefully sifted through the varying points of view on the controversial screenplay, using the fictitious debate as a vehicle for airing the issue publicly. Although the prevailing view was critical of the writer, he was not named nor was it especially harsh.

Israel plays down Syrian advance

By FAROUK NASSAR
Associated Press Writer

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — President Reagan's special envoy Philip C. Habib, met for 90 minutes with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis on ways to persuade Syria to withdraw its anti-aircraft missiles from Lebanon. He told reporters afterwards the situation was "dangerous."

The sound of artillery fire was heard in the suburban presidential palace as Syrian troops traded fire with Lebanese Christian militiamen at three central city locations.

A police spokesman said four mortar shells exploded near the downtown Prime Ministry 15 minutes before Habib's motorcade arrived from the palace for his meeting with Prime Minister Shafik Wazzan.

In Damascus, Syrian President Hafez Assad said his armed forces were "poised to answer adequately any Israeli aggressive action" as a result of Syria's deployment of heat-seeking SAM-6 and SAM-2 surface-to-air missiles in eastern Lebanon.

Israel has demanded Syria remove the missiles and has threatened military action if it doesn't.

Syria moved in the missiles on April 28, a day after Israel shot down two Syrian helicopter gunships north of the Zaharani River. Israel claimed the helicopters were attacking its Christian militia allies around the Christian city of Zahle.

The Syrians police a 4½-year-old civil war armistice between right-wing Christians and leftist Lebanese Moslems and Palestinians. Originally billed as peacekeeping forces, the Christians maintain the Syrian troops have become an occupation army.

Habib, a retired career diplomat, arrived in Damascus Thursday with Morris Draper, the assistant undersecretary of state for Middle Eastern affairs. They drove to Beirut, crossing the Bekaa Valley, where they had an opportunity to see at least two of the SAM-6 batteries on either side of the Damascus-Beirut highway.

Habib and Draper met with U.S. Ambassador to Lebanon John Gunther Dean on Thursday. They plan to return to Damascus on Saturday to see the Syrians and reach Jerusalem on Sunday for talks with Israeli leaders.

In Tel Aviv, Israel reacted cautiously today to reports from Beirut that Syria has moved about 4,000 troops south of the "red line" Israel set as the southern limit for Syrian expansion into southern Lebanon.

"It seems to me that these are only rumors," Deputy Defense Minister Mordechai Zippori told Israel Radio. "It's true that the Syrians have some sort of intention of strengthening themselves in Lebanon, but certainly not beyond the Zaharani River." Zippori, who has administered the Defense Ministry since defense chief Ezer Weizman quit last May, said the Syrians appeared to be showing caution by not moving more anti-aircraft missiles into Lebanon.

He predicted U.S. and Soviet diplomatic efforts to defuse the latest Mideast crisis "will bear fruit."

Lebanese government sources who have proved accurate in the past said Thursday that Syrian troops and armor pushed through the narrow mountain tracks as far south as Kfar Tibnit, a Lebanese village about eight miles south of the Zaharani River "red line" and eight miles north of the Israeli border.

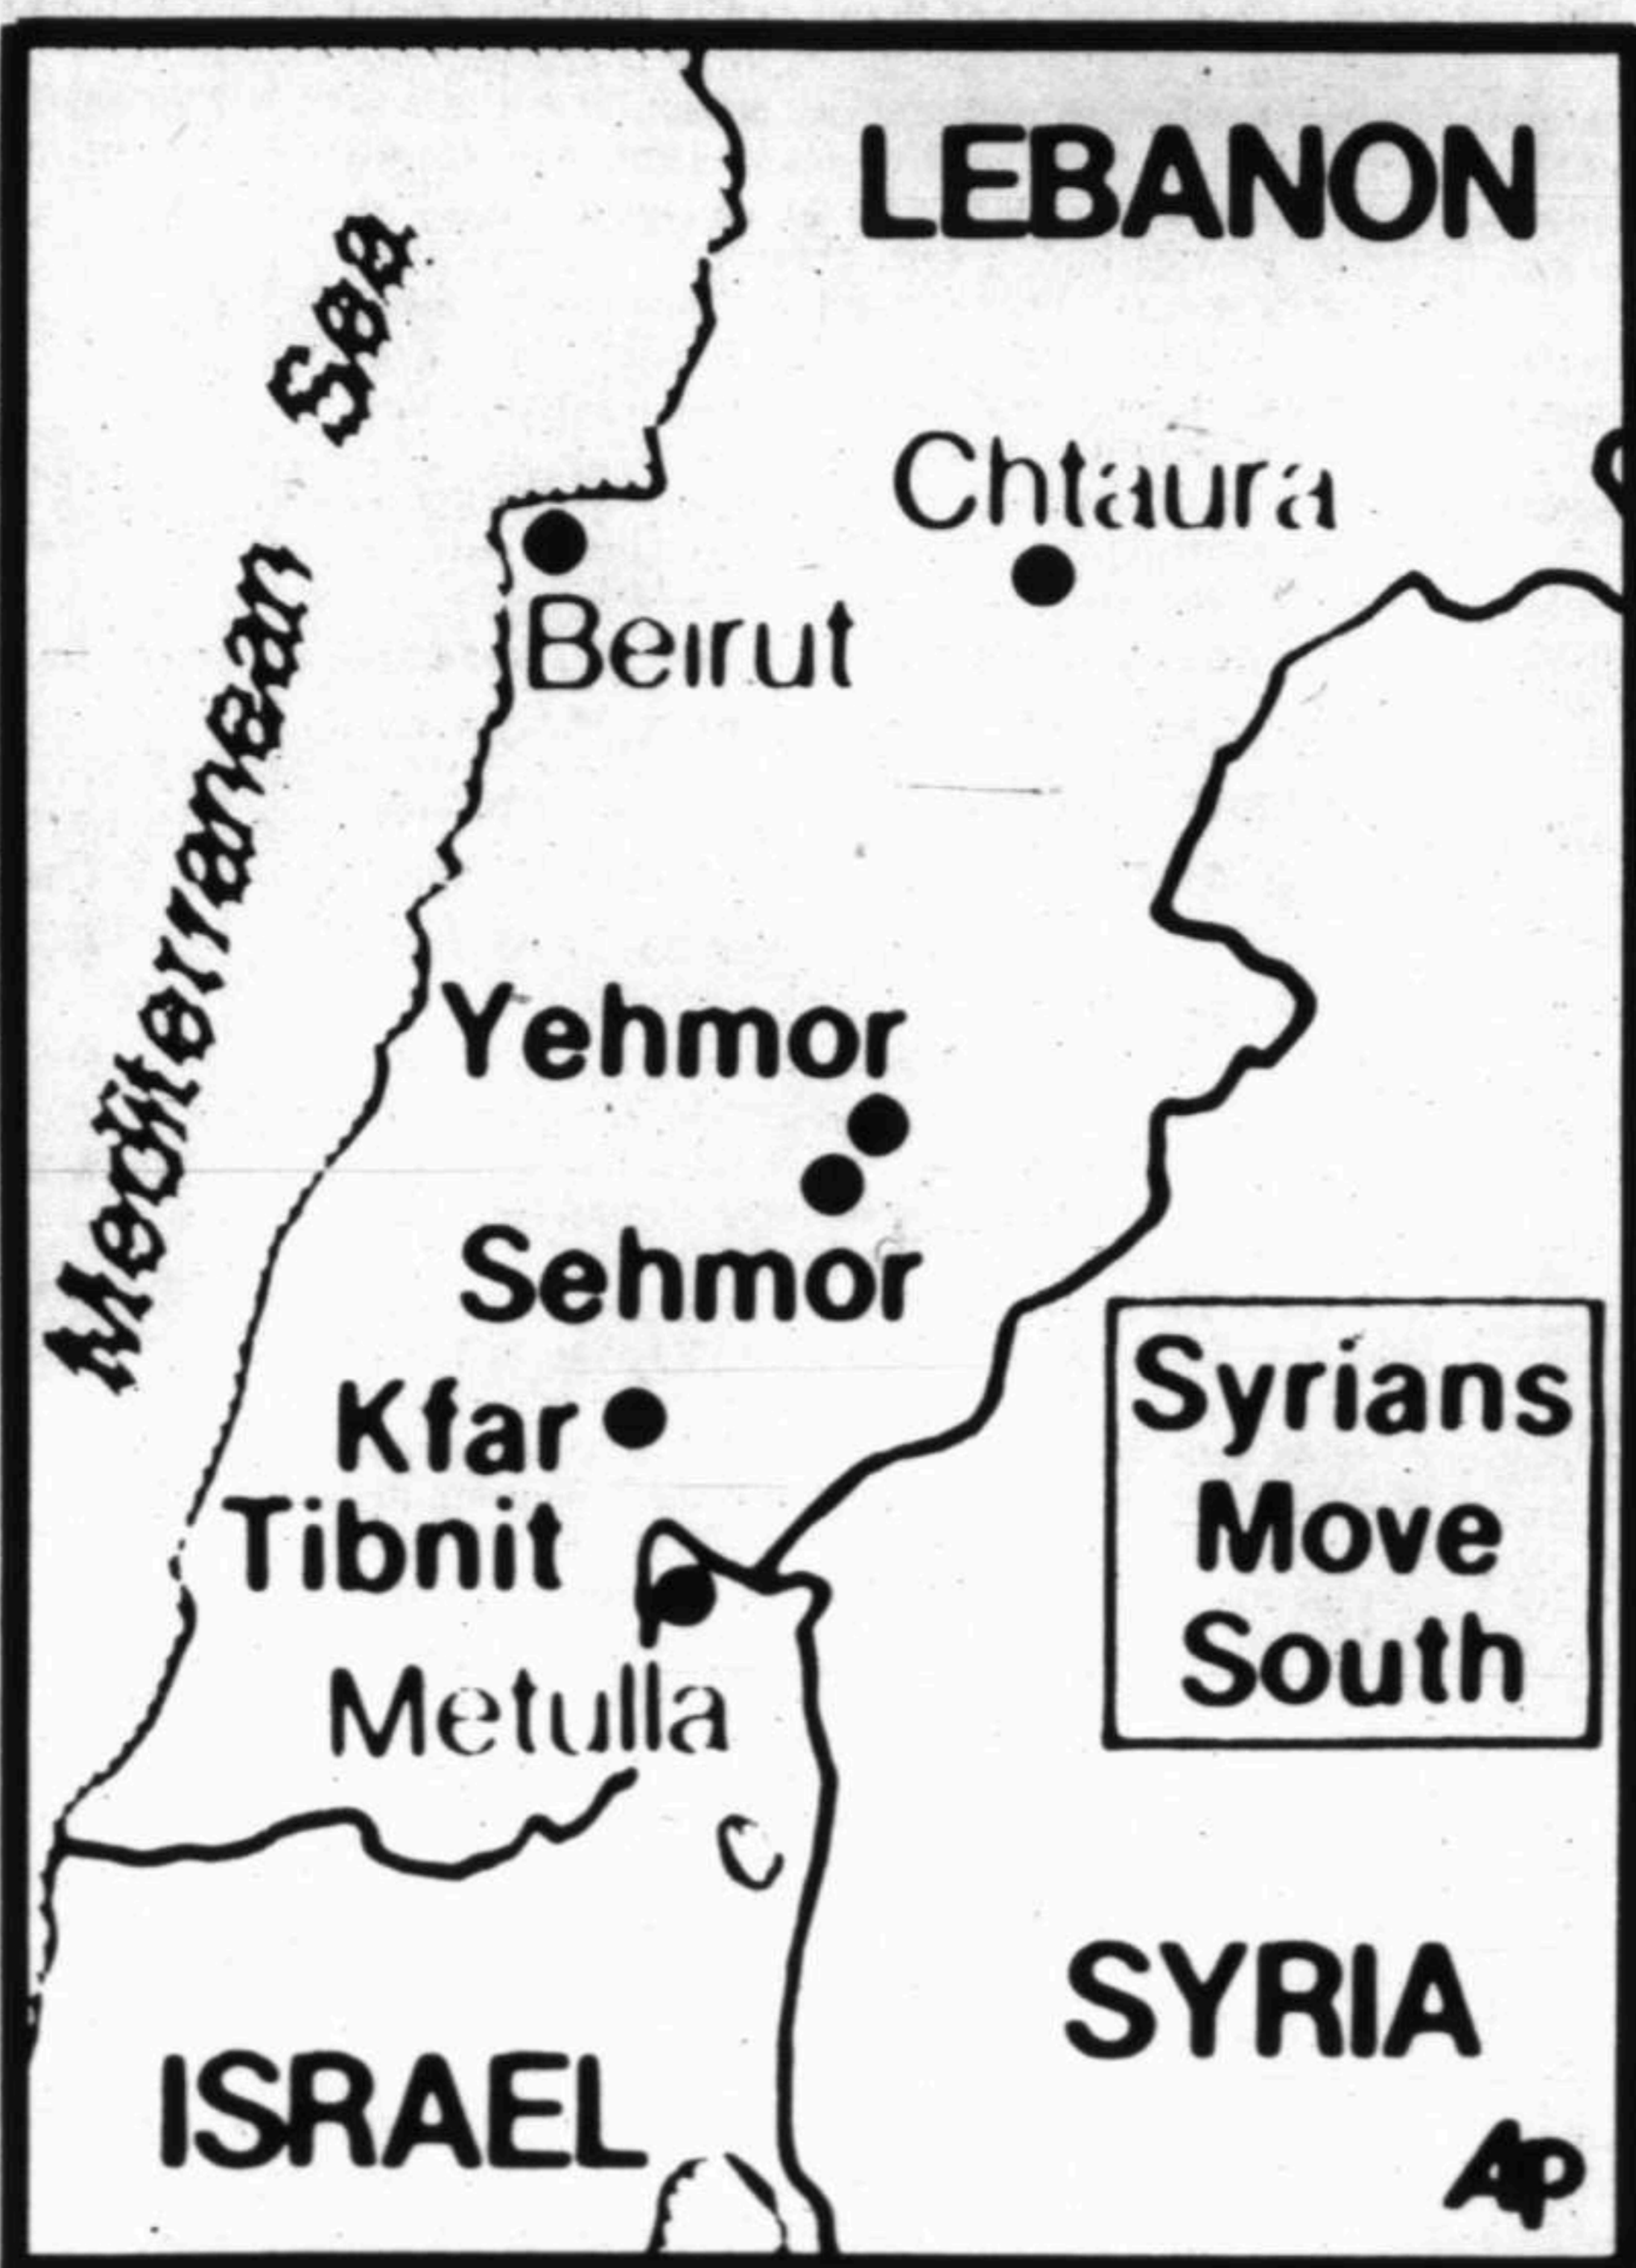

Israel has claimed Syria agreed secretly five years ago that its troops would not move south of the Zaharani. The Jewish state has warned repeatedly that Syria would risk war if it breached the so-called "red line."

The purported agreement, spelled out publicly for the first time last weekend by Israeli opposition leader Shimon Peres, apparently barred Israeli troops from striking in force north of the Litani River, which runs parallel to the Zaharani and about eight to 10 miles south of it.

Israeli troops frequently strike into southern Lebanon south of the Litani in pursuit of Palestinian guerrilla forces dug in north and west of the Israeli border.

Syria has denied it made any agreement with Israel governing its forces in Lebanon, but has not commented on the reported advance south of the Zaharani.

"We're following the situation closely," said Secretary of State Alexander M. Haig Jr. in response to questions in Washington. Haig did not confirm the Syrian troop movement, telling reporters, "I've seen the same reports you have."

Map locates Lebanese towns of Yehmor, Sehmor and Kfar Tibnit where Syrian tanks took positions Thursday according to the Lebanese government. Kfar Tibnit is approximately eight miles from the Israeli border town of Metulla.

Poland's Communists plan reforms

By Thomas W. Netter
Associated Press Writer

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — Poland's ruling Communist Party today unveiled a program for an extraordinary Party Congress in July that stresses further social and economic reforms and increased cooperation with the independent Solidarity labor federation and the Roman Catholic Church.

The program published in major Warsaw newspapers thanks the Soviet Union for its assistance during the past year and calls for closer ties with socialist allies. But it also pledges to develop friendly relations with Western powers such as the United States, West Germany, France, as well as with the Vatican.

The official PAP news agency said the program will be debated at the July 14-18 congress, which was scheduled in the wake of last summer's nationwide labor unrest.

"The deformations of the 1970s are not the crisis of principles and values of the socialist system, but a consequence of their having been ignored and infringed upon," the document said.

"A truly strong socialist state is a state which derives its strengths from the endorsement of its program by a majority of the society."

Release of the program comes during a five-week-long lull in Poland's social turmoil, a groundswell of grassroots demands for political reforms and efforts to restore equilibrium to the economy and reduce food shortages.

Its conciliatory tone reflects the easing of tensions with the Soviet Union, which has frequently responded to past or proposed reforms by accusing "outside influences" of trying to subvert Poland from its socialist path.

The party, apparently responding to recent member criticisms that it had lost touch with the rank-and-file, called in the document for the election of more workers to party positions.

It also proposed that people "of no party affiliation" have access to top state posts, and that there be an increase in candidates for the Parliament, although it stopped sort of endorsing free elections.

A PAP summary of the document said the party favored "extending the platform of cooperation between the state and the church" which counts among its members almost 90 percent of Poland's 35 million citizens.

Cooperation with Solidarity, the first independent union in the Soviet block, will be based on the union's adherence to constitutional principles and its statute, PAP said. Solidarity claims 10 million members, compared to 3 million party members.

Poland, which currently owes an estimated $24 billion to the West, will embark on an economic stabilization program including restricted investment activity, and reform of food, fuel and energy retail pricing "with just and genuine compensation" to increase supply, the document said.

However, it would be an "illusion to expect instantaneous results of the reform," it said.

Finally, the document emphasized an enduring role for private farmers as "the core of Polish agriculture." The private farmers, who produce most of the nation's food, staged strikes and it-ins this winter to back demands for their own independent union. Parliament granted them authorization Wednesday despite opposition from party leader Stanislaw Kania.

Meanwhile, Czechoslovakia's official press said today that creation of a farmers' union in Poland will lead to dangerous power blocs.

Japanese not satisfied with U.S. submarine crash report

TOKYO (AP) —

Japan's Maritime Safety Agency said today it has asked the U.S. Navy for an explanation of "discrepancies" between its report on the collision of a Japanese freighter and a U.S. nuclear submarine and accounts of the accident by the freighter's crew.

Two Japanese crewmen died in the April 9 collision between the USS George Washington and the 2,340-ton Nissho Maru, which sank in 15 minutes. There were no American casualties and no damage to the 6,800-ton sub's reactor or nuclear weapons system, the Navy said.

Takashi Noro, director of coast guard and rescue operations for the MSA, said statements by the 13 Japanese survivors differ "markedly" from the U.S. Navy report on several points, and key questions remain unanswered.

The MSA is conducting its own investigation, and has asked U.S. authorities to clarify the questionable points in the Navy report, Noro said. The MSA findings will be submitted to Prime Minister Zenko Suzuki after he returns from talks with President Reagan in Washington.

Japanese Foreign Minister Masayoshi Ito, who is accompanying Suzuki, was presented with a copy of the U.S. Navy report when he arrived in New York Tuesday.

Specifically, the report does not explain why the collision occurred.

At the funeral of his father, 7-year-old Gerard Sands, above, places a memorial wreath on the casket as IRA gunmen, below, fire three volleys in salute. Bobby Sands, an IRA guerrilla jailed at Belfast's Maze Prison, died after a 66-day hunger strike. He was buried Thursday at Milltown Cemetery.

Hunger strikes staged for variety of reasons

By CAROLYN LESH
Associated Press Writer

PARIS (AP) — More than 200 young men and women, some encouraged by the fast-to-death of IRA guerrilla Bobby Sands, are on hunger strikes throughout Europe to press campaigns for a wide variety of causes.

In cathedrals, in hospital rooms, in prison cells, they are starving themselves to bring about changes in prison life, to complain about immigration policies or to forward battles for secession by ethnic minorities.

Hunger strikes are reported in France, Spain, Italy and Turkey, in addition to Northern Ireland. They pose serious moral questions for governments and physicians and severe medical risks for the fasters.

A month ago in West Germany, an imprisoned member of the terrorist Red Army Faction died after a two-month hunger strike despite medical intervention shortly before his death.

Many of the seven current European hunger strikes began in the final days of Bobby Sands, who died Tuesday on the 66th day of his fast. Several of the strikers have said Sands' death gave them courage to continue.

There are three hunger strikes in France over issues that have long haunted the conscience of the nation.

In the central city of Bourges, four men and two women are in the 29th day of a fast demanding amnesty for all alleged political prisoners in France and the abolition of the State Security Court, the legal branch that deals with terrorists.

The six, all from the Basque region of Spain and France, started their action in the cathedral in the center of Bourges, the city's chief tourist attraction. All had been transferred to a hospital by Monday.

"A few days before one of them was hospitalized, we were sitting together in the cathedral," said Laurent Pierret, one of about 30 persons in a group formed to support the hunger strikers. "She asked me, 'Could you read to me. I can no longer see to read.'"

Pierret said the strikers have lost 26 to 33 pounds and have refused intravenous feeding. He said they often spoke of the possibility of Sands' death and said his hunger strike had "given them moral courage."

"They are all in weak condition," a physician at the Bourges Hospital said. "We are in a difficult position. Under French law, if a person refuses medical help, we are powerless. We cannot even feed them intravenously if they fall into comas and have previously stated they want no medical assistance."

The six received a letter this week from French Socialist leader Francois Mitterrand, President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's Socialist opponent in the presidential election Sunday. Mitterrand said if elected, he would support efforts to abolish the State Security Court.

In the Paris suburb of Massy, 21 Tunisian immigrant workers have been on a hunger strike since April 22 at the Church of St. Paul. They are protesting orders for their expulsion from France.

In the Basque country of southwest France, 22 suspected Basque terrorists have been on a hunger strike since April 27 at the prison in Bayonne, near the Spanish border. Like Sands, they are demanding to be classified as political prisoners.

Earlier this year, six Corsican nationalists staged a two-month hunger strike in an unsuccessful attempt to win bail before their trial in the State Security Court. They abandoned the strike when their condition became critical. Later they were given stiff sentences for involvement in a demonstration in which three people were killed.

In Ireland, three Irish Republican Army men at the Maze prison outside Belfast are on hunger strikes in an effort to win the political-prisoner status Sands had sought. Francis Hughes, 25, is in his 55th day without food and reported in serious condition. The other two are in their 48th day of fasting.

In Italy, about 100 prisoners at the San Domenico Prison in L'Aquila, 90 miles east of Rome in Italy, began a hunger strike the day Sands died. Prison officials said they wanted their demands broadcast on television but have not said what the demands are.

In Spain, 75 alleged members of the Basque separatist organization ETA began a hunger strike in Madrid's Carabanchel prison on the day Sands died. Prison officials said they were protesting the Spanish government's request for the extradition of alleged Basque terrorists from France.

Hunger strikes are not a fashion among Turkey's violent political, religious and ethnic dissidents. On Monday, however, jailed leftist terrorists said they were fasting to protest prison conditions and alleged torture of political prisoners.

New form of deTENTion planned

By GARTH JONES
Associated Press Writer

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Tent cities inside present state prison units and a new conditional parole system will be used to ease overcrowding in the Texas Department of Corrections, Gov. Bill Clements said Thursday.

National Guardsmen stretched a squad-sized tent on the Capitol lawn later as a preview of the prisoners' new homes.

"If tents are good enough for our Army, for our Marines and our National Guard, they're good enough for our prisoners," Clements told a news conference.

Clements said the tents are part of a two-pronged effort to answer a federal court's finding that Texas prisons are so overcrowded that 3,000 inmates sleep on the floor.

He said the plan resulted from a series of conferences that involved state prison officials, the Board of Pardons and Paroles, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, Speaker Bill Clayton, and Attorney General Mark White.

Clements said the two steps would include:
— Amend a Senate-approved bill, now pending in the House, to allow 1,500 low-risk prisoners, near the end of their sentences, to be released from Texas Department of Corrections units and sent to halfway houses in Houston, Dallas, Fort Worth, and San Antonio. He said a number of prisoners have already asked to be released under the conditional parole plan.

— Set up tent cities, "with cots and board floors," within the security perimeters of present TDC units. "These groups of tents would take another 1,500 inmates off the floor by July 1." By November, Clements said, prison construction planned or now underway would allow these 1,500 to be moved into permanent housing.

Clements stressed that the release of inmates would be allowed only to "intensively supervised halfway houses" and that the tent cities would be inside the same security systems that protect existing prison units.

Those scalper's tickets could cost six months

AUSTIN, Texas (AP) — Scalpers who hawk high school and college athletic tickets for more than face value could spend six months in jail under a bill that has advanced in the House.

Representatives tentatively approved the bill Thursday on a voice vote and were scheduled to take final action today. Passage would send it to the Senate, where a broader bill already has passed.

Rep. John Bryant, D-Dallas, said Southwest Conference officials requested the bill because of a "serious problem" with scalpers accumulating large blocks of tickets while college alumni and students sometimes can't get seats.

Scalping recently came to public attention when it was reported that some University of Texas football players had sold tickets above face value in violation of NCAA rules.

Bryant's bill provides up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine for buying or selling a ticket to a high school or college game at more than face value.

Rep. Ed Emmett, D-Kingwood, tried to expand the bill to include scalping of tickets to professional sporting events, but Bryant said he feared this might kill the measure.

Rather finds he's coping with 'pressure cooker' job

By TOM JORY
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Rather has been the subject of intense scrutiny since he took over from Walter Cronkite two months ago as CBS' "Evening News" anchorman, but all of the pressure, he says, has been from the outside — the media and the competing networks.

"If it has worked so far, and I believe it has," Rather said in an interview as he began his ninth week on the job, "it's because we've got an awful lot of good work out of an awful lot of good people."

"I knew there would be ups and downs," he said, "but I might have underestimated the depth of commitment here. These people are determined to make it work."

Rather said that very little of the commentary on his performance as Cronkite's successor has been negative, but added:

"I do worry some because so much attention is given to the superficial aspects of broadcasting — who's up and who's down. All that counts, but is far less important, is maintaining a standard of good, solid journalism."

The "Evening News" attracted 26 percent of the audience in Rather's first week, March 9-13, compared with 23 percent for NBC and 22 for ABC. By the eighth week — through May 1 — the "Evening News" share was 24 percent, to ABC's 23 and NBC's 22.

The perceptible erosion has been heralded by the opposition as a sign that CBS' frontrunning status in the evening news field is in jeopardy.

But Paul Isacson, a vice president for sales for CBS, said the shift in audience may be more a factor of transition than of any disaffection with the anchorman.

"It appears Rather is changing viewing habits," Isacson said, "and what I think you're seeing is viewers looking around, and most of them coming back to CBS." In fact, he said, CBS' share of one segment of the audience, women 18-34, has increased by 17 percent in the last year, while ABC's proportion has declined by 7 percent.

Further, Isacson said, commercial time for the "Evening News" "sold faster than ever" for Rather's first full quarter as anchorman, reportedly at a rate of $50,000 for a 30-second spot. "That's a great source of encouragement," he said.

The competing networks have, in the meantime, waged extraordinary promotional campaigns touting their own evening newscasts — ABC's "World News Tonight" and "Nightly News" on NBC.

"We were under no illusion that it would be easy," Rather said. "We knew we'd be in for a tough fight."

"It's really very early to talk about losing viewers to the other networks," he added. "A lot has happened in the last two months that could affect the ratings in the short run. I think it's going to be a year or a year and a half before we can really say anything definite."

In attempting to establish himself as Cronkite's successor, Rather may have been helped by two unforeseen events, the attempted assassination of President Reagan on March 30, and the space shuttle flight in mid-April.

Rather said he expected Cronkite, still a correspondent for CBS News, to handle the shuttle, as he had done with all previous space flights. When Reagan was shot outside the Hilton Hotel in Washington, Rather was on the air within minutes, and national ratings showed CBS with 33 percent of the audience between 2:33 p.m. EDT and 9 p.m., to 30 percent of ABC.

"Sure, I've felt the pressure," Rather said of his two months in the highly visible position. "I wish I hadn't. There's no sympathy called for, though. What I do believe is that in the long pull, what counts is coverage, and I'll put ours up against theirs any time."

'Spacey' characters due honorary degrees

COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — The man who scored "Star Wars" and two men who know space firsthand will receive honorary degrees from the University of South Carolina next week.

Space shuttle pilots John Young and Robert Crippen will be awarded honorary doctor of science degrees at the May 16 commencement exercises, USC President James B. Holderman said Thursday.

Boston Pops conductor John Williams, who composed the themes for "Star Wars," "The Empire Strikes Back" and "Close Encounters of the Third Kind," will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

Young and Crippen, who piloted the Columbia on its successful maiden voyage last month, also will address more than 2,800 graduates and their families.

The two astronauts visited aerospace workers in Huntsville, Ala., Thursday to thank them for their part in building the reusable spacecraft.

Crippen told the group he was confident of the craft's reliability — enough to "take my mother in it." But he said laymen should not go on space flights until the testing of the craft is complete.

WASHINGTON (AP) — First lady Nancy Reagan is seeing some of her favorite people these days.

On Thursday, congressional wives gave a luncheon for Mrs. Reagan and surprised her with entertainment by Frank Sinatra, a close friend of the first family.

On Sunday, the first lady's two children will fly to Washington for a Mother's Day celebration at the White House, said Sheila Tate, Mrs. Reagan's press secretary.

Ron Reagan Jr. and Patti Davis, along with Ron's wife and some other family friends, will attend a special Mother's Day dinner on what is expected to be a quiet day, Mrs. Tate said Thursday.

BURBANK, Calif. (AP) — The recorded reunion of Paul McCartney, George Harrison and Ringo Starr is now hitting the nation's airwaves.

The surviving Beatles didn't get together to record the Harrison song — they recorded their contributions separately — but the release of "All Those Years Ago" marks the first time three Beatles have performed on the same song since the legendary group broke up a decade ago.

The Harrison composition is a tribute to John Lennon, who was shot to death outside his New York City apartment Dec. 8.

Warner Bros. Records spokesman Bob Merlis said Thursday the song was released to radio stations Wednesday and Thursday and will be available in some record stores this weekend.

NEW YORK — Moorhead Kennedy, one of 52 Americans held captive in Iran, and Cyrus Vance, who quit as secretary of state over an attempt to rescue the hostages, are joining forces in an effort to stress the importance of religion in international affairs.

Kennedy is resigning as a State Department foreign service officer to head the Cathedral Peace Institute, a new center established by the Episcopal Cathedral of St. John the Divine to study religion and international affairs.

Vance, who left the Carter administration after an aborted hostage rescue mission, which he opposed, is an honorary co-chairman.

The two men agreed Thursday that the United States underestimated the religious factor in evaluating Iranian tensions. Kennedy blamed that partly on the United States' separation of church and state.

"It is essential," Vance said, "that we have full and complete knowledge of religion in the world and currents that are at work."

DALLAS (AP) — First there is inspiration, then there is the "lustful" time of creation — and then there is tedium, says filmmaker Ingmar Bergman.

The 62-year-old Swedish director of such movies as "Cries and Whispers" made his first public appearance in the United States on Thursday to describe his art to students at Southern Methodist University.

Bergman admitted he is "very, very lazy," but said he sometimes gets visions while seated in his easy chair. After such a vision comes the creative process, when the artist feels "that this is going to be the best scene ever made and you want to protect it from others."

Then comes the writing: "Writing is boring, very boring, and it takes so much patience."

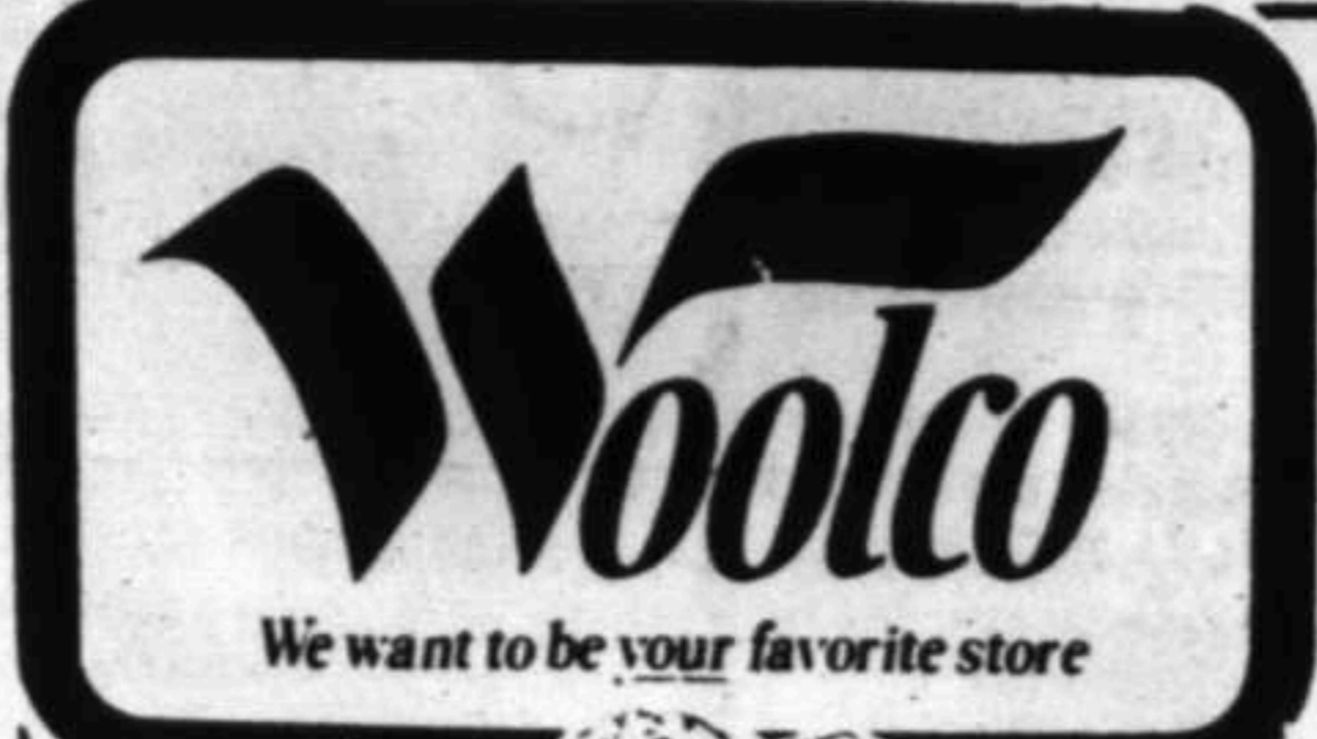

Bergman is spending four days at SMU, which Saturday will present him with a $25,000 award for artistic excellence.

Queen accepts assignment to U.S. embassy in London

BANGOR, Maine (AP) — Former hostage Richard Queen, who spent 250 days as a captive in the U.S. embassy in Tehran, will be heading overseas next month for a new diplomatic assignment.

Queen told a business breakfast Thursday at Husson College that he will be assigned to the U.S. embassy in London.

Queen, whose parents live in Lincolnville, has been working at the State Department in Washington since his Iranian captors released him last July after he contracted multiple sclerosis.

Addressing a capacity crowd of 450 at the breakfast, Queen said it was wrong for the United States to support the shah with huge shipments of weapons.

"We fed his dreams," said Queen, describing those dreams as unrealistic.

Recounting his ordeal as a captive of Iranian militants, Queen said "a mythical world helped me escape reality." He said he looked to seasonal changes, rather than day-to-day ones.

He said the hostage drama had a healthy effect on America by helping to unify the country and bring out a spirit of patriotism.

Mobile officials set flood damage near $33 million

MOBILE, Ala. (AP) — A flood that forced the evacuation of hundreds of people earlier this week will cost the weather-ravaged port city nearly $33 million in damage to homes, businesses and property, city officials said Thursday.

Mobile Public Works Commissioner Lambert Mims said the $32.7 million figure includes estimates of damage to homes, trailers, city property and private businesses.

Prichard Mayor John Smith estimated damage to his nearby city, also hit hard by floodwaters, at between $3 and $5 million.

Lambert said 1,314 Mobile homes and 23 trailers were flooded. The combined damages amount to $15.4 million, he said. Damage to private businesses was set at $12.6 million and $4.6 million for city-owned property, Lambert said.

Meanwhile, disaster relief centers began assisting victims of the flood.

No serious injuries or fatalities occurred as thunderstorms dumped between 8 and 12 inches of rain on the Mobile area in a six-hour period Tuesday night. Most of the flood victims lived along low-lying areas around Three Mile Creek.

But Carroll Saboe, chief of the Geological Survey's Hydrologic Information Unit at Reston, Va., said flooding like that caused by rain-swollen streams would not be expected to occur on the average of more than once about every 25 years in the area.

Some flood victims were recovering from last year's April and May floods, which did at least $3 million worth of damage.

Overweight people likely to have high blood pressure

Dear Dr. Solomon: My blood pressure and weight have both gone up over the past few years, as my physical activities have declined. Is this a coincidence or are the two factors related? I don't see what weight has to do with blood pressure, but I can't deny what I see. — Tony

Dear Tony: Overweight people are much more likely to develop high blood pressure than individuals of normal weight. Why this happens is not completely understood, but some researchers have suggested that the larger and heavier a person is, the greater the blood supply needed to keep him or her functioning effectively. This, in turn, puts an added strain on the cardiovascular system. Other studies indicate that dietary factors, particularly excessive cholesterol and a high salt intake, as well as lack of physical activity are responsible for increases in blood pressure.

With my own patients, I stress the advisability of both a program of weight control exercise and behavior modification. This approach has been successful with many people.

Dear Dr. Solomon: Some time ago, one of the men who works in the machine shop where I am employed suffered an accident on the job that resulted in the loss of a finger. The foreman on the job at the time rushed the worker to a hospital where, I assumed, the finger would be reattached — or, at least, an effort would be made to do so. When he returned to work, however, I learned that this had not been done although the worker was given the choice. I didn't want to ask him too many questions about the accident because I think he may still be sensitive about it; but I'm curious about why someone, if given the choice, would not want a finger that had been severed in an accident reattached. — Rudy

Dear Rudy: I can only speculate about the situation you present, but it is possible that the person had to choose between cosmetic considerations and practical considerations. An important factor in arriving at such a decision, which you do not mention, is which finger was severed.

From a cosmetic standpoint, I don't suppose there would be any argument over the idea that five fingers are preferable. However, a reattached finger that is stiff and does not function properly may pose a greater problem to a person than if it were missing altogether.

FAA's gun warning not heeded

A warning from the Federal Aviation Administration that air travelers are prohibited from carrying loaded weapons in airline luggage isn't being heeded, even with the penalty of a fine or jail sentence.

The agency said in a recent report there have been 21 incidents in the last six years in which loaded firearms have gone off inside luggage. These resulted in the death of one person and injuries to two others. Four of the incidents and one of the injuries occurred in 1980.

The FAA noted that in 1980 it investigated 48 reports of loaded weapons in airline luggage. These investigations resulted in fines against 33 passengers and action is pending against four others.

Both FAA safety regulations and Department of Transportation hazardous materials regulations prohibit the carriage of loaded weapons in checked luggage and each prescribes penalties of up to $1,000 for violations. A person is subject to a fine if he or she presents a bag containing a loaded weapon to the airlines under a new FAA rule that became effective this month.

In addition, Congress last year passed a law which makes the carrying of loaded weapons in checked luggage a criminal offense. Violators can get up to a year in prison or a fine as high as $1,000 or both.

The one death reported as a result of carrying a loaded firearm occurred on Nov. 24, 1976. A loaded .357 Magnum revolver in a duffel bag went off as the bag was being unloaded from a Frontier Airlines plane at Denver's Stapleton International Airport. The bullet killed a Frontier employee.

The first of two injuries occurred on Aug. 11, 1978, at the St. Louis airport. A .25-caliber automatic in a bag went off when the bag was unloaded from an Ozark Airlines plane. An Ozark employee received a minor head wound as a result.

The second incident occurred on Aug. 29, 1980, at Love Field in Dallas when a .22-caliber derringer pistol went off as the owner set the bag on the floor so that the baggage tag could be checked. The bullet hit the person doing the checking in the leg.

In all three cases, owners of the luggage paid civil penalty fines — $1,500 in one case and $1,000 each in the other two.

FAA regulations permit unloaded firearms to be carried in checked luggage. But the passenger is required to notify the airline that the weapon is there and declare that it is unloaded. The luggage must be locked and the passenger must have the only key.

Nixon, Ford, Carter support Sunday elections

WASHINGTON (AP) Richard Nixon, Gerald Ford and Jimmy Carter — three men who won or lost the nation's highest office on a Tuesday — support the idea of Sunday presidential elections.

Their views were contained in letters for presentation to the Senate Rules and Administration Committee by Rep. Mario Biaggi, D-N.Y., sponsor of a House bill to shift general elections to Sunday and require polling places across the country to close simultaneously.

"I think your suggestion with regard to Sunday voting has a great deal of merit," Nixon wrote. "Constructive steps that can be taken to increase voter turnout should receive very serious consideration."

Ford said, "You make a most persuasive case for legislative action at the federal level to increase voter participation in national elections."

"I agree with you that declining voter participation is a great danger facing our nation and we must address ways to reverse the trend, if our electoral (system) is to remain strong," Carter wrote. "I believe that your proposal has merit."

Biaggi called the statements "encouraging and very cognizant of the seriousness of the problem which our electoral system faces because of declining voter turnout."

"Certainly," he said, "these three former presidents, who were either the losing or winning candidates in all but one of the presidential elections since 1960, have a unique and valuable perspective to offer any discussion of our nation's election process."

The committee hearing concerned bills by Sen. S.I. Hayakawa, D-Calif., that would establish uniform poll closing times nationwide, prohibit the release of results until all polls close and change election day to Sunday in 1982, 1984, 1986 and 1988.

The committee also is considering the impact of election night television projections on voter turnout and a bill, sponsored by Rep. Cecil "Cec" Hefelt, D-Hawaii, to close polls simultaneously and declare a national holiday on the present general election day, the Tuesday after the first Monday in November.

The Biaggi and Hayakawa proposals are similar. Polls everywhere would be open a set number of hours and close at 8 p.m. or 9 p.m. EST, regardless of location. In the East, voting would be in the afternoon and evening. Balloting on the West Coast would be in the morning and afternoon.

Both men say they want to increase voter participation — last year's 53.95 percent was the lowest in 32 years — with Sunday elections and halt media winner projections based on Eastern returns while polls in the West remain open.

Hayakawa said early TV network projections of President Reagan's election angered West Coast voters and discouraged an unknown number from voting because they felt the presidential race already was over.

He said the ire intensified when Carteg conceded defeat while polls were still open in the West.

"A great many of these potential voters turned around and went home," Hayakawa said. "Several members of Congress may have lost their bids for re-election because those people failed to vote."

The committee also was scheduled to hear from representatives of the three major TV networks — ABC, CBS and NBC as well as the Cable News Network, National Association of Broadcasters, the League of Women Voters and the Federal Election Commission.

Hayakawa said he introduced his legislation because the news media is unwilling "to curtail their own guesswork activities and join us in the attempt to encourage every voting age citizen to participate in the election process."

Cigarette ad campaign upsets Down Easters

PORTLAND, Maine — A full-page ad for Camel cigarettes showing a virile young man paddling a canoe through the frothy rapids of northern Maine's Allagash Wilderness Waterway has Down Easters fuming.

Some Maine residents familiar with the 92-mile chain of lakes and rivers, a favorite haunt of whitewater canoeists, resent the connection with cigarettes. Others say the ads give a false image of the waterway. Still others fear the ad campaign could bring droves of tourists to the remote region.

"The Allagash was created as a protection against the encroachments of commercialism and Madison Avenue and everything that represents," said Herbert Hartman, director of the Maine Bureau of Parks and Recreation, which administers the waterway.

A series of "Camel Expeditions" advertisements in a $1 million campaign aimed at enhancing the masculine image of Camel cigarettes is starting to appear in some of the better known men's magazines, such as Playboy, Esquire, Sports Illustrated, Signature, Money and Sports Afield.

The Allagash ad carries the heading "Camel Expeditions — Where a man belongs," followed by a graphic description of the Allagash experience:

"No man alive should miss it. For here you can prove just what kind of man you are.

"Here on the wild and awesome and profoundly majestic Allagash."

Even the Maine Publicity Bureau, which applauds the promotional tie-in with one of the state's major outdoor attractions, acknowledges the ad portrays the Allagash canoe trip as being a lot tougher than it really is.

"It makes it appear that it's just a brutal, macho thing to do," Bruce Taylor, a bureau spokesman, said. He said the ad seems to put the Allagash experience on a par with the kind of rugged adventure portrayed in the novel and film, "Deliverance."

"To try to turn it into something it really isn't is perhaps a disservice to the Allagash and also a disservice to us," Taylor said, noting that women, children and entire families are a familiar sight along the waterway.

The marketing campaign, launched this spring, involves R.J. Reynolds, the nation's largest cigarette manufacturer; Thomas Cook Travel, the world's largest travel agency; and Batten, Barton, Durstine & Osborn, one of the premier ad agencies on Madison Avenue.

The purpose, according to Reynolds spokeswoman Betsy Anness in Winston-Salem, N.C., is to enhance "brand image." In the case of Camels, she said, the appeal is to men between the ages of 21 and 35. "These are men who are young, adventurous, very independent — someone who wants a very masculine lifestyle."

To appeal to that lifestyle, Reynolds teamed up with Thomas Cook to create "Camel Expeditions" — vacations that provide particular adventures. Besides the Allagash trip, the trips include a windjammer cruise in the West Indies and a trek through the steaming jungles of Ecuador.

The 10-day Allagash trip costs $798 per person. It is booked through Thomas Cook and conducted by Maine Wilderness Paddlers Inc. of Mount Desert, owned by Bob Mensink.

The state publicity bureau sees the ad as a legitimate tool for promoting Maine tourism. Taylor equates it with a recent television commercial for Miller beer featuring a Down East lobsterman.

"I don't think people make a direct connection between Maine and cigarette smoking," Taylor said. "Any time we can have a legitimate tie-in with a commercial interest, I'm certainly not going to kick it out the door."

Others disagree. "What bothers me most is the smoking connection," said Rob Gardiner, executive director of the Natural Resources Council of Maine, the state's largest environmental organization. The NRC played a key role in the establishment of the Allagash Wilderness Waterway two decades ago.

"I find the association of smoking with the wilderness experience to be totally incongruous," Gardiner said, who expressed concern that the waterway and its campsites are already operating near capacity and cannot withstand any tourism boom resulting from the ads.

The trips are scheduled to run through 1981 and 1982, but the promotional campaign is too new to gauge the initial public response.

"I think the great outdoors and health are the very antithesis of smoking," said Hartman of the Bureau of Parks and Recreation, a former Maine guide who still does the Allagash two or three times a year.

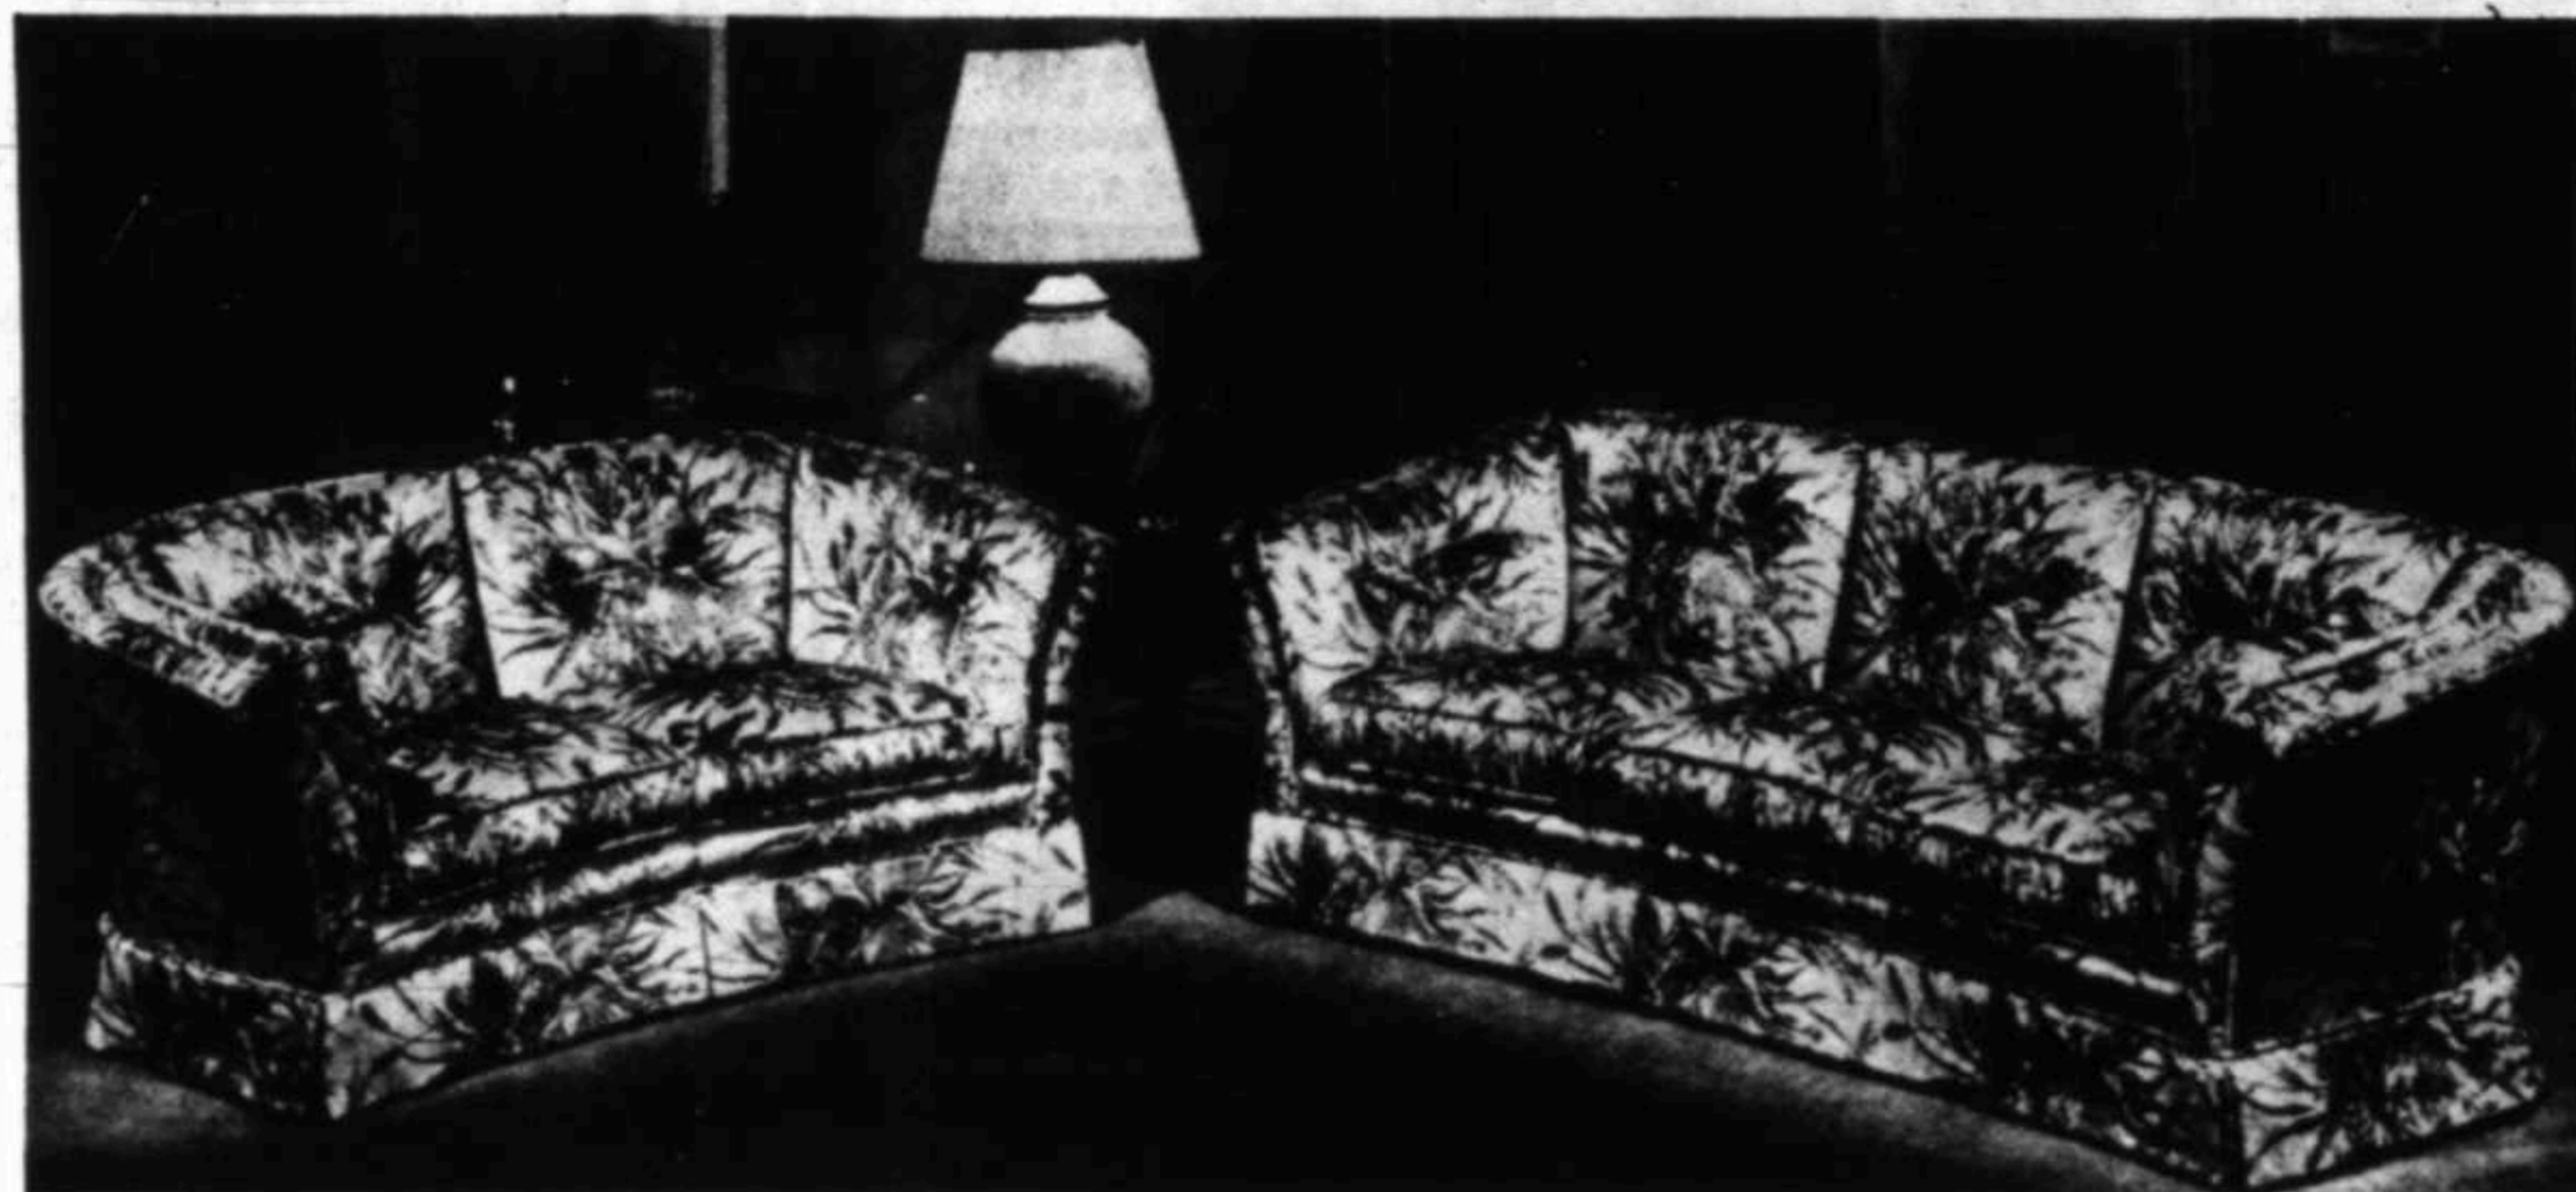

"And I don't like the sexist stuff. The fact is that the Allagash is used and enjoyed by hundreds, even thousands of women and children each year," he said.

While acknowledging that the ad may not be worded most advantageously, Mensink said he believes the campaign still represents a valid way to attract tourist dollars to Maine.

"I think it's going to bring people up here. I don't see how it's going to hurt anything," Mensink said.

Celtics may be losing the war against Rockets

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Celtics, having lost the battle against overconfidence, are a step closer to losing the war against the Houston Rockets.

The dominant feeling among observers was that the contest for the National Basketball Association title would be no contest. Rarely has there been such a disparity in the records of the final combatants.

The Celtics were 62-20 in the regular season. The Rockets were 40-42. Going into Thursday night's second game of the championship series, Houston had lost its last 14 games against the Celtics and was 3-31 in Boston.

LIKE MANY others, the Celtics apparently expected the series to be brief — until Thursday night.

Showing strong defense in the last half of the fourth quarter and capitalizing on the sloppy Celtic play, the Rockets rallied from a seven-point deficit in the final 7:09 and won 92-90 to even the best-of-seven series at one game apiece.

"We just played a very poor basketball game. It's a demonstration of what guys do when they get a big head," said Boston forward Cedric Maxwell.

Before the loss, the Celtics maintained that they were not taking the Rockets lightly. Maxwell disagreed.

"We're playing with the idea that all we have to do is walk out on the court and Houston will drop dead," he said. "We're just playing overconfident and I think this is a good game for us to lose because it brought us down to earth ... You beat a team 14 straight and it's hard to think they're much of a challenge."

The Rockets didn't win their eighth post-season road game, a playoff record, simply because Boston played poorly. The brilliance of Houston center Moses Malone, coming off a mediocre opening performance, had a lot to do with the victory.

"We got contributions from everyone. The bench was great and Moses came back to being the king of the mountain," said Houston reserve guard Calvin Murphy.

MALONE HAD 13 points and 15 rebounds in the Celtics' 98-95 victory Tuesday night but came back with 31 points and 15 rebounds Thursday night. After Boston took an 82-75 lead with 7:09 to go, Malone scored seven points, blocked two shots and stole a pass.

"Moses passed the ball extremely well," said Maxwell. "He hit a couple of cutters and we weren't able to double on him as much as we wanted to."

"They weren't as aggressive coming to the boards as they were in the first game," Malone said of the Celtics. "I was determined they weren't going to push me around like they did in the first game."

"In game one we took what they gave us," said Rockets Coach Del

Harris. "Tonight, we decided to challenge their defense more."

Larry Bird led Boston with 19 points and, for the second straight game, grabbed 21 rebounds. He also had five of Boston's 22 turnovers. The Celtics had 19 in the first game.

"They played good defense. We had a three-second call late in the game. We turned the ball over a few times. But they played well," Bird said.

UNTIL THURSDAY night, Boston had won all 29 games this season in which it had held its opponent below 100 points.

The Celtics had trailed at halftime in their previous six playoff games but won the last four. On Thursday night, they led at halftime.

That 49-45 edge dissolved into a 68-68 tie after three quarters. And, in the final 7:08 of the game, Houston outscored Boston 17-8. The Rockets took the lead for good, 89-88, on Bill Willoughby's jumper with 2:10 left.

"In the last game we played 46 great minutes and two bad minutes at the end and lost," Murphy said. "Tonight we played 46 so-so minutes and two great minutes at the end and won."

"It looked like they wanted it more than we did," said Boston forward Kevin McHale.

The usually reliable Bird was stymied twice in the final minute.

His shot from near the foul line missed with 38 seconds left.

"The Celtics set a great pick," said Robert Reid, who was guarding Bird. "Bird did a curl and I ran after him. It wasn't any tough defense. I'm just thankful he missed."

On Boston's final play, Bird did the same thing but was covered. He passed to a wide open Nate Archibald, who missed a shot from 20 feet with two seconds remaining.

"We just wanted to stop Bird because he's the guy they've gone to down the stretch in the playoffs," said Reid. "Allen (Leavell) came over to help out. We had to sacrifice and left someone open. Tiny (Archibald) had been making that open shot all night and he just missed."

BIRD HAS led the Celtics in scoring 11 times and rebounding 12 times in the 13 playoff games.

"We have to get other people involved," said Maxwell, who had 10 points in the first game and six in the second. Center Robert Parish also had a subpar game with nine points in 14 minutes before fouling out.

Houston outscored Boston 22-8 from the foul line and hit 33 percent of its first-half field goal attempts before finishing at 40 percent. Boston's 62 percent halftime average fell to 50 percent for the game.

The next two games are in Houston Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

"We never believed all that stuff about how they were going to sweep us in four," said Murphy. "If the Celtics don't believe in us now, they are in trouble."

Midland High's Jerry Zachery tries in vain to pickoff a Big Spring runner Thursday at the Lee diamond, but the Bulldogs were not to be denied the victory. MHS now goes against Midland Lee Saturday with the second half championship going to the winner.

Bulldogs set up showdown with Lee

By MIKE CRUVER
Sports Writer

Through the generosity of Midland Lee baseball coach Ernie Johnson and the Big Spring Steers, Midland High posted a 13-7 win over the Steers Thursday in a makeup District 5-5A game played on the Lee High diamond.

The win gives the Purple Pack a 5-1 second half mark and sets the stage for Saturday's showdown with Lee for the second half crown. Big Spring drops to 3-3 in the district and 13-12 overall.

The regular 5-5A season ends Saturday at Lee when the Rebels take on MHS in the biggest game of the year. A win would give the Pack the second half crown and force a four-team playoff — Lee, Abilene Cooper and Abilene High, to determine the first half winner, who then would meet MHS. If Lee wins, it is all over as the Rebels would be district champs by virtue of winning or tying for both halves.

Just as the game was to start at Memorial Stadium field, Mother Nature hit with rain, hail, lightning and thunder. When the skies cleared, the field looked more like a swimming hole than a baseball field. So, MHS coach Tim Whalen got on the phone to Johnson and received permission for the game to be moved to the Lee diamond.

After an hour's delay, the game was underway with Doug McLean going against Waine Shipman.

MHS drew first blood in the bottom of the first when Teddy Bartley reached on an error with two down, Jerry Zachery singled and Frank Garramone walked before Michael Feldt was hit by a pitch to force in a run. Joel Castaneda ended the threat by bouncing out to first.

Big Spring evened the game with a run in the second. Tommy Olague outlegged a shot to deep short, Lupe Ontiveros walked and Jeff Harwood laced a double to left for one run. Marcus Armendariz then grounded out third to first and when Harwood, on second, went to third on the play the Purple Pack got him in a run down for the final out of the frame.

The Bulldogs came back with three runs in the bottom of the frame. After McLean singled and Kyle Ford reached on an error, Davis crashed a one-out homer over the leftfield wall for three runs to give the Pack a 4-1 lead.

The Steers grabbed the lead by scoring five times in the fourth frame. McLean had a little trouble finding the strike zone as he walked three batters and gave up two big hits to help the Steers' cause. MHS chipped in with a costly error to aid the Steers rally. The big plays in the inning were an error on Eddie Portillo and a triple by Mark Warren. With the bases loaded and two down, Armendariz hit a grounder to short that Portillo couldn't corral and two runs scored. After the bases were loaded again, Warren drove a drive to center that Davis missed making a diving catch on; the ball went to the fence and three runs crossed the plate. Dickie Wrightsil ended the inning by rolling out pitcher to first.

Coming from behind has been standard for MHS in the second half so Purple Pack fans were sure of a rally. And, indeed, the Dogs scored two runs in the fifth to take a 7-6 lead. The only shocking thing about the rally was the hero. With one down, and Frank Garramone on second with a double, Castaneda got a fastball down the middle from Shipman and sent it over the leftfield fence for a two-run blast. The homer was Castaneda's first extra base blow of the season. Coach Whalen said, "Castaneda is capable of hitting with power. Last year he won a game for us with a homer but this season he has been in a season-long slump."

"The excitement wasn't over yet. Big Spring tied the score at 7-7 with a run in the sixth inning. Warren singled and errors by Ramos and Bartley gave the Steers their seventh run.

In the home half of the sixth, the Steers' defense deserted them. They committed five errors. The Pack rapped out four hits and scored seven runs to take a 13-7 lead. Feldt was hit by a pitch with the bases loaded for one RBI and Ford stroked a two-run single for the Pack. Errors accounted for MHS' other four runs.

Big Spring made one last effort to snatch the game from defeat. With one down, Lupe Ontiveros walked but was cut down on a fielders' choice before Tony Ontiveros singled to put two runners on with two down. McLean then got Warren, who had two hits and three RBIs, to reach for a curve on the outside of the plate and sent it high, but harmlessly, to Davis in center for the game-ending out.

Davis carried the big stick for the Pack by going 2-for-5 and driving in four RBIs. Garramone had a perfect day at the plate by belting two doubles and walking twice. Feldt, Castaneda and Ford each drove in two runs for the Bulldogs.

Scott leads Drillers over Jackson Mets

By The Associated Press

Designated hitter Barney Scott had a solo homer, drove in two runs and scored twice as the Tulsa Drillers defeated the Jackson Mets, 8-3, in a Texas League baseball game Thursday night.

In other Texas League action, El Paso beat Amarillo, 7-6, and Shreveport edged Jackson, 3-2.

Tulsa jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the first inning and held a 6-1 lead after three innings. Mike Ancich had a solo homer in the ninth for Jackson.

Tony Hudson, 2-3, was the winning pitcher. The loser was Brent Gaff, 4-1.

Jim Hall's Chaparral causes imitation

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — According to one veteran observer, when someone comes up with something dramatically different and successful in auto racing, his competitors either bide their time, hoping it will go away, or have it banned.

If all else fails, they copy it.

The ground effects concept, an aerodynamic design that uses air channels beneath the car and side skirts to create downforce, virtually glueing the car to the track through the turns, is such a development.

Midland's Jim Hall, the owner and chief designer of the Chaparral team, is the man generally credited with creating the ground effects car. He had it before anyone else, developed it faster than anyone could copy it and watched with pride as it dominated the 1980 season with Johnny Rutherford in the cockpit.

The car dubbed the "Yellow Submarine," won five races, including the Indianapolis 500, and the national championship.

Other teams began to get the hang of ground effects, which driver Bobby Unser called "black magic." In fact, Unser and the rest of the team operated by Roger Penske were right on Hall's heels by the end of the year.

But, long before the season was over, there was talk about banning the articulated (moveable) skirts that were developed to keep constant contact with the ground.

One of the two warring Indy car sanctioning bodies, Championship Auto Racing Teams, banned the moveable skirts for 1981, but allows the cars to use fixed skirts. The U.S. Auto Club, which retained the sanction for the Indy 500, banned skirts completely.

The NASCAR rule says nothing may hang below the body of the car.

There was an immediate outcry from the teams that have sunk millions of dollars into the development of new ground effects cars. Some said the rule would slow the cars to a crawl, while others charged the change would make the cars unstable in the turns, therefore making them less safe.

Unser put the first claim to rest on Monday at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, turning a sizzling practice lap at more than 197 mph. And, by the end of Wednesday's practice session, in which a record 49 cars took to the 2.5-mile oval, there had been only two minor accidents.

"You do lose quite a bit of downforce without the skirts," explained Gordon Kimball, the young Stanford University graduate who spent some

Johnny Rutherford waits for his turn on the track during an Indy 500 practice session Thursday while aboard Jim Hall's highly successful ground effects

Watson shares lead with Norris

DALLAS (AP) — When it comes to being the boss of the course, Tom Watson has no peers at the Preston Trail Golf Club and the Byron Nelson Classic.

Watson, the game's current kingpin, assumed his usual role today atop the leader board of the $300,000 tournament but he had to share it with an unknown.

He is seeking an unprecedented fourth straight Nelson championship and a place in the history books beside legendary Walter Hagen, who won four successive PGA championships. No other player has won a tournament four times in a row.

Dipping 3-under-par after four holes, Watson breezed home Thursday with a 4-under-par 66 and a share of the first round lead with young Tim Norris.

Tim Norris?
Don't feel bad if you've never heard of Norris. Watson wasn't sure he had either.

"Honestly, I don't know him," Watson confessed after learning he was tied for the lead with the 24-year-old rookie, a product of Fresno State in California.

"Is he just a rookie?" wondered Watson, the reigning Masters champion who won his last time out in New Orleans.

"Where is he from?" he asked. Told of the Fresno connection, Watson, whose $193,000 this year eclipses Norris' earnings by almost 200 to 1, smiled and said:

"Wait a minute, now. He's from California. Yes, I met him at San Diego. He's a big strong kid — looks like a middle linebacker. But he plays better than a middle linebacker."

For his own part, Norris seemed singularly unimpressed by a round that included six birdies and two bogeys over the 6,993-yard par 70 Preston Trail course.

"I know if you shoot the scores out here, everything else would take care of itself," he said. As for Watson, he added:

"I don't worry about Tom Watson. I have enough to worry about with myself."

The prince and the pauper took a two-shot lead over a quintet that included Ray Floyd, Mark McCumber, Lennie Clements, Beau Baugh and stormy Bruce Lietzke.

"Even if I won the tournament I still wouldn't like this golf course," said Lietzke, complaining that the greens were bumpy and grainy and the fairways less than adequate.

Twelve other players, however, managed to beat par with 69s, and another 11 matched it. Lee Trevino, who has vowed to win this tournament in his hometown, headed a group of 15 at 71.

"I won't die happy until I win here," said the Merry Mex.

Mario Andretti isn't pleased with strong showing

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Building speed through the week leading up to qualifications is "the name of the game," says Mario Andretti, pleased but not satisfied with his strong showing so far in practice for the Indianapolis 500 auto race. Andretti, the 1969 Indy winner, was one of 11 drivers who had topped 190 mph by the end of practice Thursday.

Bobby Unser, who had a hot lap at 197.715 on Monday, was still the fastest going into today's next-to-last practice session before Saturday's run for the pole.

"You never stop trying to go faster," said Andretti, who had the quickest practice speed Wednesday with a lap at 194.3 mph and improved on that Thursday with the day's top speed of 195.143.

"Everybody has a timetable when they get out here," said the 41-year-old Andretti, seeking a start in his 16th Indy race. "First you go out just to shake down the car. Then based on what you feel has to be done, you go through a sequence of things to get the car dialed in properly."

Andretti has twice before sat on the pole at Indy. In 1966, the year after he was rookie of the year with a third-place finish, he was fast qualifier but lasted only 27 laps in the race. He won the pole the next year but again was knocked out early with a lost wheel.

time with the Chaparral team and went on to design the Wildcats that are being driven here this month by the Patrick Team trio of Andretti, Gordon Johncock and Gordon Smiley.

Englishman Patrick Head, who designed the Longhorn car, which is driven by three-time Indy winner Al Unser, as well as the very successful Formula One Williams cars, thinks that ground effects cars will be around for the foreseeable future with or without skirts.

"Without the skirts, you have to put more of the downforce into the (rear) wing, where it isn't as efficient or effective," Kimball added. "I wouldn't say it's a safety problem, but it probably makes a difference to the drivers, who have to drive fat out without lifting (coming off the throttle) in order to get the speed. I don't think they like it as well."

"And, without the skirts, you need more horsepower to get the same speed."

When asked if that meant these same cars, with the skirts that were part of their original design, would be running at or over the 200 mph mark, Head replied, "I think that's very likely."

Knepper blanks hapless Chicubs

By The Associated Press

It's been the kind of a year for Bob Knepper that even when his fastball isn't working, it won't slow him down.

"I didn't have a good enough fastball so I had to concentrate on keeping the ball down," the Houston Astro left-hander said Thursday after posting his third shutout of the young season with a 6-0 victory over the Chicago Cubs.

Knepper, who earlier pitched 1-0 shutouts against Los Angeles and Cincinnati, scattered six hits this time, allowing the Cubs to hit only two outfield flies.

"I'm not aware of doing anything different," said Knepper, who was acquired by the Astros in an off-season deal with San Francisco. "I'm relaxed. All I'm trying to do is throw strikes and let the defense do the work."

Knepper's pitching, incidentally, has been a big factor toward the Astros' recent surge. The defending National League West champions have won nine of their last 11 games after a dismal 3-12 start.

Knepper, 3-0, was in danger of losing his shutout in the sixth when pinch-hitter Steve Dillard singled and took third on a single by Ivan DeJesus with none out. But the left-hander struck out Scot Thompson and got Bill Buckner to hit into a double play.

Along with his fine pitching performance, Knepper triggered a two-run rally in the second with a single. He eventually scored on a sacrifice fly by Jose Cruz, who knocked in two runs for the Astros.

Dodgers 2, Phillies 1
Steve Garvey's RBI single in the eighth lifted Los Angeles over Philadelphia and handed right-hander Marty Bystrom his first major league defeat after seven victories.

Bystrom was brought up last September and won five games in the Phillies' drive to the National League East championship and started Thursday night's game with a 2-0 record.

Jerry Reuss, last year's NL comeback player of the year, pitched a six-hitter for his third victory in four decisions. He struck out four and walked none.

Dodger Manager Tom Lasorda said that Reuss' successes over the past two seasons are a result of learning to get the ball down.

Mets 3, Giants 2
Ed Lynch gave up six hits in 72-3 innings while Doug Flynn and Mike Jorgensen belted home runs to lead New York over San Francisco. Lynch left the game in favor of Neil Allen, who earned his fourth save after the Giants scored their second run in the eighth when Dave Bergman singled and came home on Milt May's single and an error by right fielder Joel Youngblood.

Doyle Alexander got by the first 21-3 innings, but Flynn belted a homer to tie the score at 1-1 in the third. With one out in the sixth, Bob Bailor singled. After Youngblood popped out, Jorgensen hit his third homer of the year.

Expos 2, Padres 1
Ellis Valentine delivered the tie-breaking run with a two-out double in the eighth, leading Montreal over San Diego behind Scott Sanderson's four-hitter.

Rodney Scott began the Expos' eighth with a walk off starter Chris Welsh with one out. Scott then stole second and advanced to third on a fly ball. He coasted home as Valentine drilled a pitch to left field.

Sanderson walked one and struck out four while improving his record to 4-1.

"When Ellis got that hit it was a big lift for all of us," said Sanderson. "Even though we needed three outs. We went out there with confidence in the ninth."

Braves 4, Cardinals 3
Reliever Bruce Sutter walked Brian Asseltine on a full count with the bases loaded in the eighth to give Atlanta its winning run over St. Louis.

Sutter issued the walk, forcing in Jerry Royster, after St. Louis starter Silvio Martinez yielded a one-out single to Bob Horner and walked Dale Murphy. After pinch-runner Royster and Murphy executed a double steal, Sutter intentionally walked Glenn Hubbard and struck out Bruce Benedict before walking pinch-hitter Asseltine.

Right-hander Rick Camp picked up his third victory in four decisions after allowing one unearned run in the final three innings.

"The ball was around the plate," Asseltine said of Sutter's pitch that walked him. "That's what he was trying to do. He tries to get you to swing at his pitch. They're not going to give you anything too good."

Pirates 3-7, Reds 1-1
Tony Pena drove home the winning run with a single in the seventh and Rick Rhoden won his fourth straight game with relief help from Enrique Romo as Pittsburgh defeated Cincinnati in the first game of their double-header.

Dale Berra drove in four runs, including three with a bases-loaded double in the fourth, to pace Pittsburgh's offense in the second game. Eddie Solomon scattered seven hits in the nightcap before needing Grant Jackson's relief help in the ninth.

Lamar Johnson of the Chicago White Sox is tagged out at the plate by Texas Ranger catcher Jim Sundberg Thursday. Sundberg nailed Johnson

Rangers warn cable outlets

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers have sent telegrams to 33 cable television companies warning them not to telecast games of the American League baseball club when it plays at home.

The cable companies pick the games up from cable networks which show the games in the visiting team's cities.

The Ranger front office learned that Wednesday's game was shown on at least one cable system when callers lit up the switchboard to complain about a remark that Chicago White Sox announcer Harry Caray made about Texas and country-western music.

The Rangers are in the final stages of signing a 20-game package with a local subscription television company that would provide some local telecasts of home games. They would be paid a reported $30,000 per game.

The club's management sent telegrams to the 33 cable outlets that are within 35 miles of Arlington Stadium, baseball's established blackout area.

The Rangers claim that the Federal Communications Commission allows baseball teams to black out home games and warned violators of legal action.

However, White Sox co-owner Eddie Einhorn, formerly of CBS sports and considered an expert in the fast-developing field of television technology, said the Rangers probably don't have a legal basis to make such demands.

Oakland imposters stop Detroit Tigers

By The Associated Press

Who are Bob Owchinko, Jeff Jones, Craig Minetto and Bo McLaughlin and what are these imposters doing on the mound for the Oakland A's?

What's that, you say they pitch for the A's? Don't be silly, everyone knows only Mike Norris, Rick Langford, Matt Keough, Steve McCatty and Brian Kingman pitch for the A's. Don't they always finish what they start?

Not always. Thursday was one of those rare occasions — only the ninth time in 28 games — when Oakland's starting pitcher wasn't around at the finish.

In fact, Keough departed with one out in the third inning, allowing three runs on eight hits. And Manager Billy Martin not only went to his bullpen, he trotted out everyone who resides there before the A's nailed down a 5-3 triumph over the Detroit Tigers.

"The bullpen was super, especially Bob Owchinko," said Martin, who has claimed all along the A's have an underrated relief crew.

"The biggest reason we've been unnoticed is that our starters are so good," said Jones, the winner as the A's upped their record to 22-6.

While Oakland's relievers were stifling the Tigers on one hit over the final 6-3 innings — a two-out single in the ninth — the A's batters went to work to erase a 3-1 deficit. Cliff Johnson homered in the fifth inning, pinch hitter Mitchell Page connected in the sixth to tie the score and Tony Armas and Jeff Newman added solo shots in the seventh. Armas' was his ninth of the season, tops in the majors.

Owchinko pitched four scoreless innings and Jones went two more, giving way to Minetto after walking Alan Trammell with one out in the ninth. Minetto retired Steve Kemp on a line drive to right, then surrendered a single to Richie Hebner. McLaughlin took over and went to a full count on Lance Parrish before the Detroit catcher fouled out to end the game.

Rangers 9, White Sox 4
Errors by Chicago pitcher Ed Farmer and outfielder Harold Baines allowed the tying and lead runs to score on the same play, opening the door for a seven-run Texas outburst in the eighth inning. With Texas trailing 3-2, Leon Roberts singled to open the eighth and John Grubb sacrificed. Farmer fielded the bunt but threw wildly past first. Roberts scored as Baines chased the ball down in right field and Grubb also scored when Baines' throw sailed past catcher Carlton Fisk into the Chicago dug-out.

Jim Sundberg singled, Mark Wagner doubled and Bump Willis greeted Lamarr Hoyt with a single that scored both runners. Willis stole second and one out later Al Oliver was walked intentionally. After Buddy Bell grounded out, Bill Stein singled Willis and Oliver home. Roberts, batting for the second time in the inning, was safe on a throwing error by third baseman Jim Morrison as Oliver scored.

Mariners 4, Brewers 1
Rookie Dave Henderson belted a two-run homer in the second inning and Floyd Bannister scattered eight hits as Seattle won for the second night in a row under Lachemann's direction. Henderson connected off Moose Haas following Bruce Bochte's single while Tom Paciorek drove in the other two runs with sacrifice flies.

Angels 2, Yankees 1
Ken Forsch scattered eight hits, Don Baylor's sixth-inning single broke a 1-1 tie and Don Aase put down a bases-loaded threat in the eighth inning. Forsch won over Tommy John, who limited California to six hits. The Angels were held hitless until Rick Burleson led off the fourth inning with a single. Dan Ford followed with another single and Fred Lynn sacrificed before Burleson scored on a wild pitch.

The Yankees tied it in the top of the sixth on singles by Willie Randolph, Jerry Mumphrey and Reggie Jackson.

Blue Jays 6, Indians 2
Otto Velez ignited a four-run rally in the fourth inning with a homer, Rick Bosetti drove in two runs and Dave Stieb hurried a five-hitter to pace Toronto. Velez, who hit seven home runs against Cleveland last year, collected Toronto's first hit when he led off the fourth inning with a home run just inside the right-field foul pole off Rick Waits. Jorge Bell followed with a single and, after John Mayberry walked, Bosetti singled to score Bell. Danny Alinge singled Mayberry home and Ernie Whitt followed with a perfect suicide squeeze bunt that scored Bosetti. Mayberry homered in the eighth.

Ruidoso Downs tough act to top

By The Associated Press

In the world of quarter horse racing, picturesque and purse-rich Ruidoso Downs remains a tough act to follow.

Located in the Sacramento Mountains of south-central New Mexico, Ruidoso Downs is to the speedy quarter horses what Churchill Downs is to thoroughbreds.

Each summer, the owners of quarter horses from California to Louisiana migrate to the mountain community in search of a share of some of the biggest purses in horse racing.

Ruidoso Downs opens its 1981 season today and the quest for the big money will begin almost immediately. Trials for the $35,000 Kansas Futurity are scheduled for May 14-15, with the top 10 horses advancing to the finals on June 7.

The richest race on the track's 70-day racing season is the All American Futurity, which this season has an escalated purse of $1.5 million. The race, known as the richest horse race in the world, is run annually on Labor Day in September.

Sandwiched in between is the $600,000 Rainbow Futurity in late July. All three of the futurities are for 2-year-old quarter horses, but in recent years the track's management has launched an ambitious program to keep older horses at the races by offering their owners equally enticing purses.

The All American Derby, an offshoot of the futurity, is limited to 3-year-olds. This year the derby will carry a purse of exactly $1 million and will be run the week prior to the All American Futurity.

Other major quarter horse stakes races at Ruidoso Downs will include the $575,000 Rainbow Derby on July 5, the $225,000 Kansas Derby on May 24, the inaugural Rainbow Silver Cup for 4-year-olds on June 14 and the $175,000 World Championship Classic on Aug. 2.

The Downs at Santa Fe also opens its season Friday and like Ruidoso Downs will offer a 70-day season that runs through Sept. 7. La Mesa Park at Raton opened its season last week and will run through Oct. 4 under a 59-day season.

The Downs at Santa Fe, which has shown steady growth under owner Ken Newton, this season will again feature its Santa Fe Futurity, with a purse upwards of $175,000. The race is for 2-year-old thoroughbreds and will be run Aug. 29.

But despite a steady flow of betting money from a growing number of fans, the horse racing industry in New Mexico has come under considerable scrutiny in recent months. In reaction, the New Mexico Racing Commission within the past six months has toughened regulations governing the use of pre-race drugs.

First, the commission outlawed the use of Lasix, a drug used by trainers to control internal bleeding in horses. Last month, the commission toughened things further by banning the use of the drug commonly known as "bute" on race days. The drug had been used extensively by horsemen to keep sore horses running.

Racing officials remain confident the industry is on solid ground, despite the recent adverse publicity.

"Racing remains a very healthy and growing industry in New Mexico, despite the detrimental things that have been said about it," said Ruidoso Downs General Manager Finlay MacGillivray. "I feel the racing commission has taken hold and is in the process of correcting any problems that had developed."

At Santa Fe, Newton has hired a new security force to oversee operations from the grandstand to the stables. The move was also apparently in response to the racing commission's new get tough policy.

"It is our intention to insure that the integrity of the racing industry in New Mexico is maintained at the highest level and that The Downs at Santa Fe will be in the forefront in achieving these aims," said Newton.

Ron Beserra, the commission's executive secretary, said the commission's goal was a simple one. "The commission has taken a very positive stand," he said. "It simply wants to see better horses racing."

And Beserra said the commission, through its tougher drug regulations, was delivering a message to trainers. "It will take better training to stay in business," said Beserra.

Dibbs upsets Flames lick North Stars, 3-1

Johan Kriek

NEW YORK (AP) — Tenth-seeded Eddie Dibbs, playing his normal steady game, upset Johan Kriek of South Africa, the No. 7 seed, 6-3, 6-0 Thursday night to advance to the quarterfinals of the $592,000 Tournament of Champions at Forest Hills.

Dibbs will meet second-seeded Jose-Luis Clerc of Argentina in Friday's quarterfinals. Clerc advanced with a 7-6, 6-3 victory over Heinz Gunthardt of Switzerland.

In other matches Thursday, Carlos Kirmayr of Brazil eliminated Angel Gimenez of Spain 3-6, 7-6, 6-2; Mel Purcell ousted Fritz Buehning 6-1, 6-0 and fourth-seeded Eliot Teltscher survived an upset bid, beating Mario Martinez of Bolivia 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

Besides the Dibbs-Clerc matchup, other quarterfinal matches Friday will send Purcell against 11th-seeded Victor Pecci of Paraguay, Teltscher against No. 5 Wojtek Fibak of Poland and Kirmayr against No. 9 Balazs Taroczy of Hungary.

Dibbs broke Kriek in the seventh and ninth games to capture the opening set as the South African made 14 forehand errors. In the second set, Kriek found his problems from the other side, making 16 backhand errors.

Dibbs, who won the $175,000 U.S. Pro Championships in Boston last year to qualify for this winners-only event, broke Kriek in the second game of the second set—a 10-minute battle from the baseline. That seemed to take all of the fight out of the South African, who provided only token resistance to the persistent Dibbs the remainder of the match.

CALGARY, Alberta (AP) — There seemed to be some dispute about pressure and momentum following Calgary's convincing 3-1 victory over Minnesota in the fifth game of their National Hockey League semifinal series Thursday night.

The Flames, who now trail the best-of-seven series 3-2, feel the pressure is on Minnesota. The North Stars, however, believe that playing Game 6 back in Bloomington on Saturday night still gives them a decided edge.

"I gotta think the pressure is going to be on them now," said Calgary's Bob MacMillan, who scored the Flames' first two goals. "They sure don't want to be coming back here for a seventh game."

"If I were them, I'd be worried about us now," added Calgary Coach Al McNeill. "I don't know if you'd call it panic but they had better be worried."

Minnesota Coach Glen Sonmor laughed at the notion that the momentum had shifted and that his club was running scared.

"How would they like to change around?" Sonmor asked. "They can't lose, how much more pressure can there be than that? The pressure is still very squarely on them Saturday night."

MacMillan brought life to a previously misfiring Calgary power play and Flames' goalie Pat Riggin kept the North Stars at bay until the waning minutes of the game to force the sixth contest.

The Flames had converted just one of 18 power-play chances against Minnesota in five previous games.

But MacMillan tapped in a rebound from the left edge of the crease at 18:54 of the first period after Jack Carlson was called for delay of game.

Minnesota's power play, meanwhile, went limp. The North Stars had been successful on 33 percent of their power play chances in the series, but went 0-for-3 in the first period and finished with one power-play goal in seven chances for the game.

MacMillan scored his second goal of the night and eighth of the playoffs just 55 seconds into the second period. He intercepted a pass at the Minnesota blue line, stick-handled neatly past defenseman Curt Giles and drew goalie Gilles Meloche out of the net.

The Flames, outclassed by the smooth-skating Stars in both games in Minnesota, forechecked and backchecked the entire game, giving the North Stars very few good chances.

The good chances Minnesota did have Riggin kicked out. The second-year goalie turned back 32 shots before the North Stars finally scored on Craig Hartsburg's power-play shot with 3:58 left in the game.

Willi Plett got Calgary's second power-play goal at 3:54 of the third period, deflecting in a shot by Paul Reinhart to give the Flames a 3-0 lead.

Islanders set playoff records

UNIONDALE, N.Y. (AP) — They still have one series to go and the New York Islanders already have established a number of National Hockey League playoff records.

The defending Stanley Cup champions have looked awesome while holding a manpower advantage and have been exceptionally dangerous while a man short in eliminating Toronto, Edmonton and their local rivals, the Rangers, en route to the finals.

"We don't spend extra time practicing the power plays or killing penalties," said pesky center Butch Goring, who has been effective on both units. "We get plenty of chances to work out during games."

"The key to our power play is that everyone can score. We can throw so many lines at you that it must look like wave after wave of scorers to the other teams."

The power-play tidal wave has wreaked such havoc in these playoffs that the Islanders have scored 26 times while the opposition is penalized, an NHL postseason record. Mike Bossy has eight of those power-play tallies, also a league playoff mark. "We go into each game with the same idea on power plays," said Bossy, who tied Phil Esposito's regular-season record with 28 such goals this season. Bossy's 68 goals was tops in the league.

Strike time nears as foes squabble

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a strike deadline just three weeks away, the Major League Players Association has charged the club owners with refusing to provide information necessary to conduct collective bargaining.

The players' union made its charge in papers filed Thursday with the National Labor Relations Board.

The sole issue in the current bargaining, the association noted, is over the clause which governs the movement of free agents through the re-entry draft.

The union contends in the charges that the club owners have demanded the association surrender rights it had previously won and agree to a proposal which would "substantially reduce the bargaining power and mobility" of free agents.

The association contended that the club owners have justified their free-agency proposal on the grounds they no longer can afford player salary increases, they have refused repeated requests to open their financial ledgers to the union.

Specifically, the players association charged the club owners with violating the National Labor Relations Act by refusing requests for financial information it said it needed to assess the owners' claim of financial hardship. Also, it charged the owners with falsely denying — as a pretext to avoid the clubs' obligation to provide financial information — that their financial conditions have relevance to their newly-implemented free agent compensation plan.

Both Marvin Miller, executive director of the players' union, and Ray Grebey, chief negotiator for the owners' Player Relations Committee, refused comment on the charges.

The players have voted to strike on May 29 if the new plan on free agent compensation, unilaterally implemented by the owners, remains in effect.

The plan requires that teams losing certain players in the free agent re-entry draft be compensated in the form of roster players from the teams which sign the free agents.

NORRISTOWN, Pa. (AP) — A 28-year-old man who told his hostages in a 1½-hour siege that illiteracy made him unable to support his family has been sentenced by a judge to learn reading and writing.

Firefighters charged with arson

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Three firefighters who allegedly set fires out of boredom have been charged with arson, officials said. "This is an unusual arson case because these fires weren't set for monetary gain," said H.B. McPherson, assistant commissioner for the Division of Fire Prevention in the state Insurance Department.

"Our information is that the men set these fires out of boredom." State arson investigators said the men work for Rural Metro Fire Department, a privately owned fire-fighting company that contracts with communities to provide fire protection.

They were arrested Thursday at their fire station in west Knox County.

McPherson said state arson investigators believe the men were responsible for fires that did more than $2 million damage during a 14-month period. They included a blaze that did $50,000 worth of damage to the Knox County Public Library and one that damaged the Farragut High School Library.

Chicago senior citizens join forces to help protect apartment complex

CHICAGO (AP) — For three hours early in the morning, Elvira Piodela sits by the door of her apartment complex and knits booties for underprivileged children. So far, the 78-year-old force behind a guard of "senior power" says, she has foiled five muggings. "People were getting mugged in the elevators, and if they weren't getting it there, they were getting it in the halls," said the woman who organized a volunteer guard for Chicago Housing Authority's Pomeroy building for senior citizens. "I just got tired of it."

The CHA does not assign security guards to its senior citizens' buildings because there isn't enough money in the budget, according to Tina Vicini, the housing's authority's public information director.

At one time, workers paid under the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act were assigned to the building as guards. A housing spokesman said CETA employees were shifted to other projects, where they were more needed.

But Mrs. Piodela says she asked the CHA to remove the workers after about two weeks because they were unreliable, often showing up at work late or drunk.

That was when the seniors banded together to protect themselves. While neither Chicago police nor the CHA keeps crime statistics on individual buildings, Pomeroy manager Joa Ha estimates crime is down at least 60 percent, and he credits the volunteer

Hundreds attend children's services

CHICAGO (AP) — About 900 people packed a memorial service at a school where two children were killed by an out-of-control car the day before.

Principal Sol Wernick told the group Thursday. "We have endured a major tragedy. There is no way to easily forget the situation."

Eight of the 19 Chopin Elementary School children injured in Wednesday's accident remain hospitalized.

A 14-year-old girl who was injured critically received a court-authorized blood transfusion in efforts to save her life. The parents of Sara Salas had refused consent on religious grounds.

She was reported in serious condition Thursday night. She underwent surgery Wednesday night on open fractures of both legs and had lost considerable blood, officials said.

The driver of the car, Puerto Rican Cruz Rivera, 50, was indicted Thursday by a Cook County grand jury on a charge of reckless homicide.

guards. Mrs. Piodela proposed the guard at a meeting of residents of the 117-apartment building. "I got a force of 21 seniors. Senior power, I call it," she said. "They each work a three-hour shift by the front door. We have a watch post and buzz the residents in."

Eight hurt

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Eight people received minor bruises and a ninth was burned at a Goodyear Tire & Rubber plant when fuel fumes from an auxiliary power plant exploded, a company spokesman said.

The extent of damage was not determined immediately.

lives here — that's important," said Mrs. Piodela. "You can't let people who don't belong inside get in." "Just last week I buzzed a woman in — she lived here — and right behind her came a man about 20. He was trying to get in and I stopped him. I asked him where he was going, and he made up some name and some room number, and I told him nobody with that name lives here.

YOUR BIRTHDAY TO-DAY: Actor Albert Finney, who will play "Daddy Warbucks" in the movie version of "Annie," was born on this date. Also sharing this birthday with you: actresses Candice Bergen and Glenda Jackson, and all-time tennis great Pancho Gonzales. Romance will be both fast-paced and rewarding in the year ahead. Partnerships of all types will experience difficulties at times but should emerge stronger than ever. A confusing employment situation will straighten itself out if you will remain for a while. Personal finances undergo positive change. Spend more time with loved ones. Romantic partner would like to help you fulfill your dreams.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): A family picnic may produce greater happiness for others than for you, but you will be glad you took part. Stranger's remarks may strike a responsive chord in your heart.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): An old romance could be rekindled. Catch up with your personal correspondence and bills. Your involvement in a community project may aid your career.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A sports event could catch your interest today. Member of opposite sex is impressed by the way you handle sensitive situations. Your ego will receive a big boost tonight. Romance blooms.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Take time off from chores, and enjoy yourself today. If you feel like shopping and can afford it, go ahead! Good news leads to a happy romantic encounter this evening.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Loved one's reassurance makes you feel happy and content. Choose companions who share your interests. Guard against eating or drinking too much at social gatherings.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A romantic, fun-filled weekend is in store for you. Go along with the group and let others worry about making the plans. A cash surprise could add to your enjoyment.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Being with the one you love is what matters the most to you now. Even simple pleasures are deeply satisfying. You would be wise to keep certain things to yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Take care of bills and important papers before going out today. Travel may not be as agreeable as anticipated. You probably will have a better time staying at home.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): A better day for social activities than for work endeavors. You may find certain advantages to planning a vacation with a group. Be sure to agree in advance on a proper division of costs.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Have fun today, but do not overextend yourself financially. More cash has been going out than coming in recently. If you have children, level with them regarding finances.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Visiting your former haunts can help rekindle romance. Be more affectionate and less demanding with loved ones. It is time to pick up the threads of the past.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Give free rein to your creative talents. Let someone special know how you really feel about him or her. Avoid making large financial outlays. Meet your obligations on time.

Study the hand closely and then tell us which of the defender's cards took the crucial trick against South's six heart contract. Would you believe it was West's six of hearts?

North drove to slam even though he knew that the hand was a partial misfit. From his point of view, South could easily have held another key card, which would have made the slam laydown. Even then, it took sterling defense by East to sink the contract.

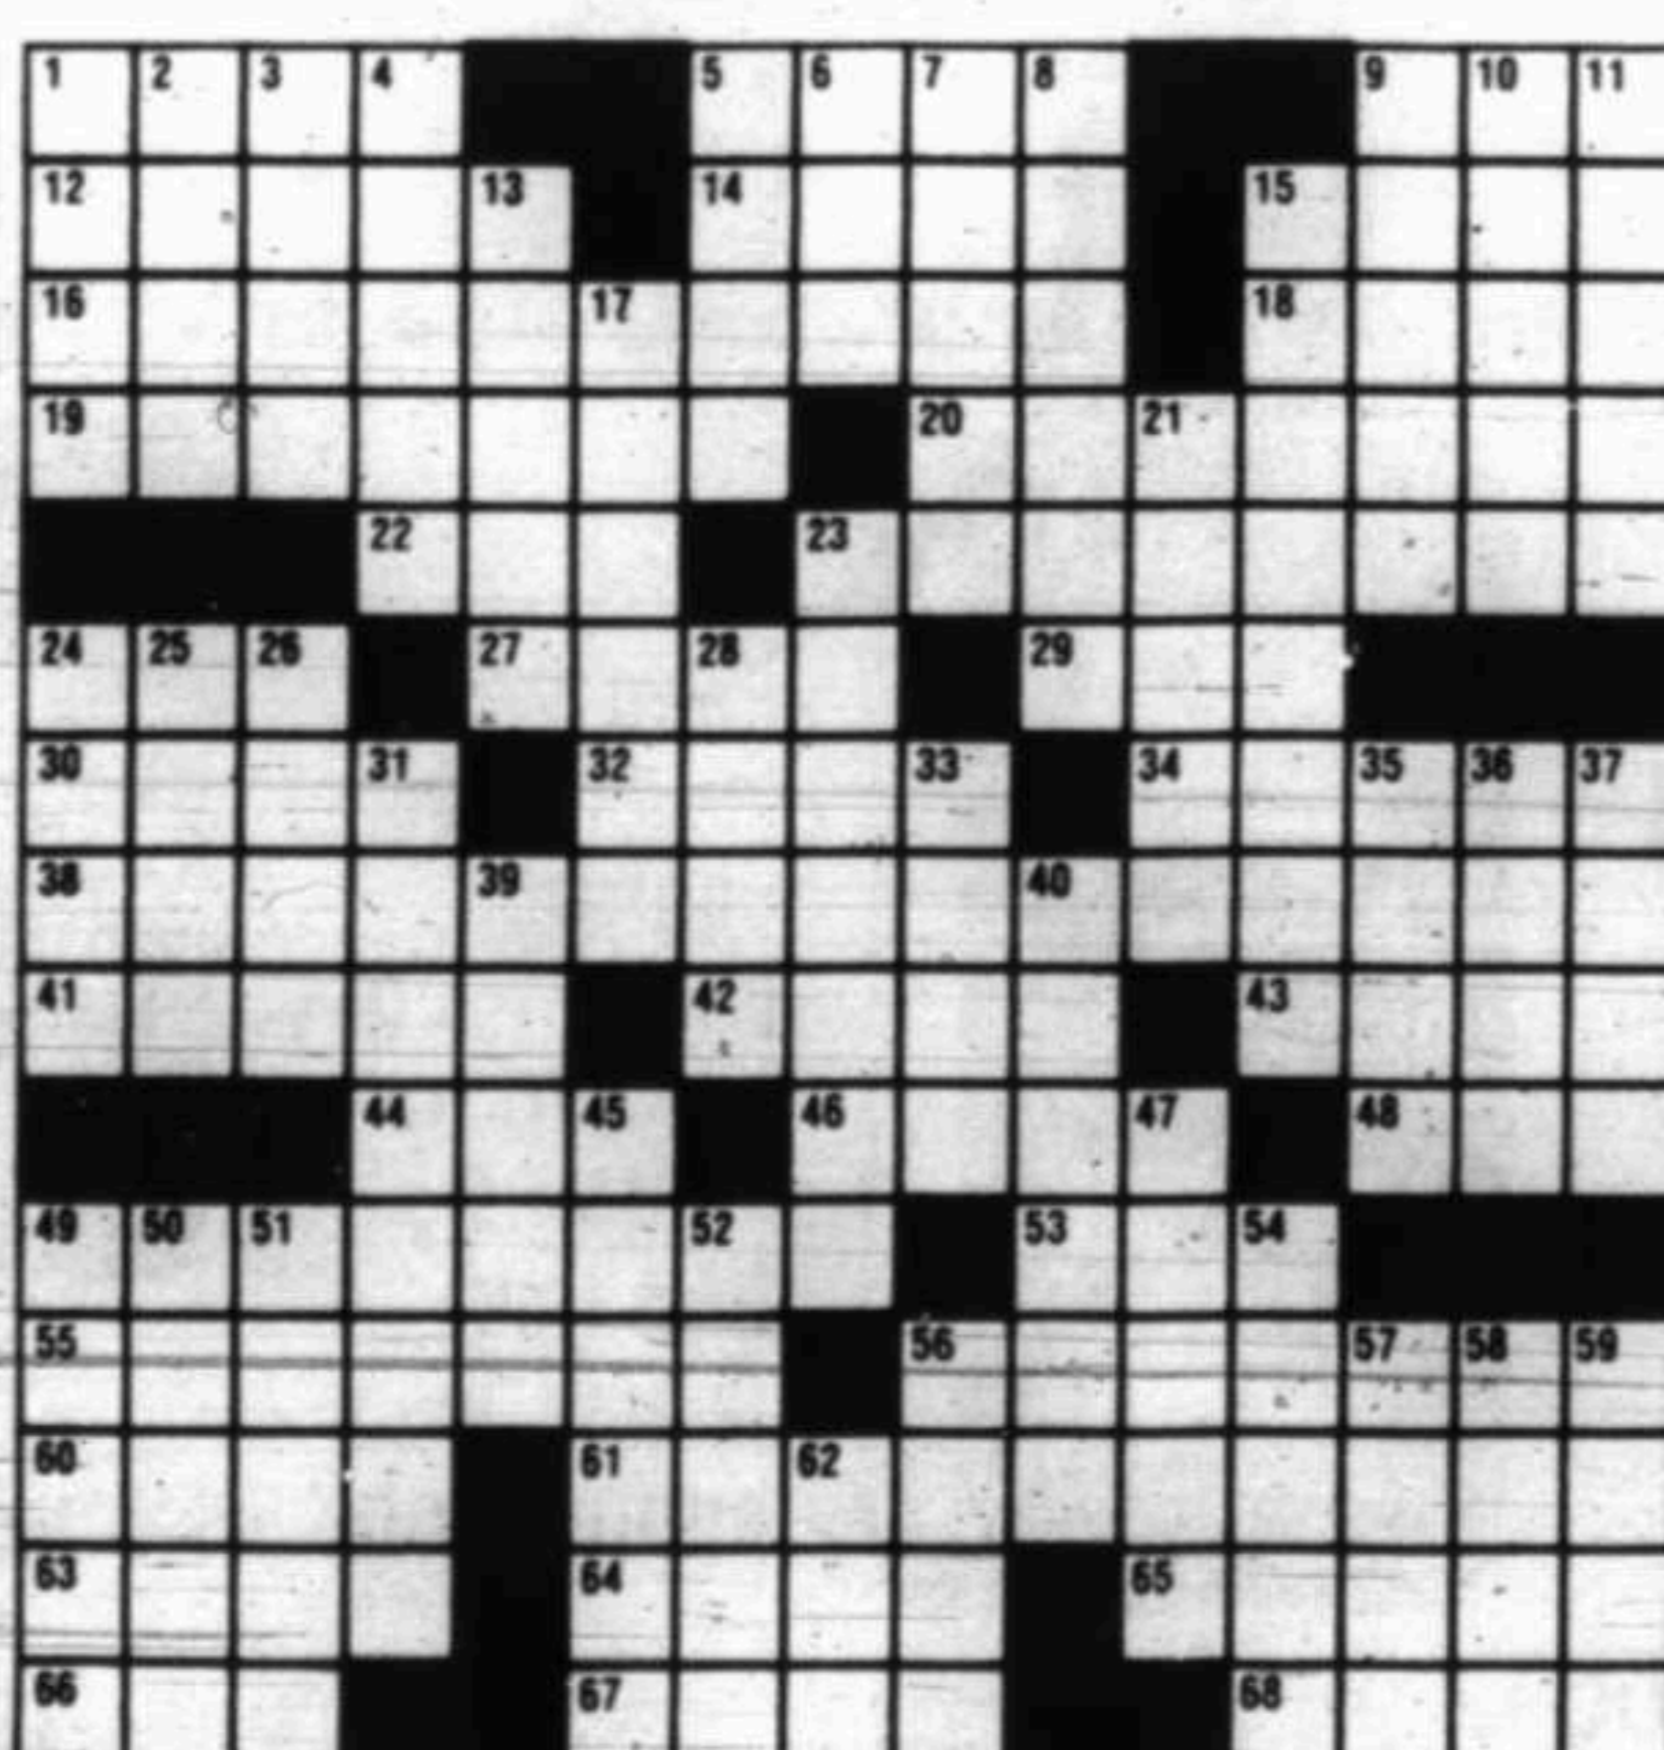

The auction suggested that declarer might need ruffs to make his contract, so West would have been well advised to lead a trump and put his key card to use right away. When he selected a spade, he gave declarer a crucial tempo. South could count four quick tricks in the side suits. If he could score his combined eight trumps separately, he could be home.

Declarer won the ace of spades in dummy, cashed the top diamonds for a spade discard, and started on his crossruff. He noted that West followed to the second diamond with the jack, so he

Brinkley surprised at success of 'NBC Magazine'

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — There probably is no more avid a David Brinkley fan than my Uncle Sammy. Said Uncle Sammy last week, "Guess old Brinkley has a new show. Pretty good."

No, Sammy, Brinkley's show isn't new. It's been on the air since September, but "NBC Magazine" was better hidden than joy at tax time.

NBC's programmers, Fred Silverman and Brandon Tartikoff, hating to waste an hour of prime time on a news-magazine, ditched Brinkley's lovely effort by putting it on Friday night, at precisely the hour when "Dallas" holds court.

After fiascos with Tom Snyder and "Prime Time," NBC just wanted to go through the motions. "They regarded it as something they had to do," said Brinkley. "They just assumed it would have bad ratings."

Did it ever. "NBC Magazine" finished at or depressingly near the bottom of the ratings all season long.

Then NBC had a curious change of heart. Two weeks ago, it moved "NBC Magazine" to Thursday night, where something amazing happened. People watched. More people than watched "Park Place," "Bosom Buddies" and "Checking In," three competing sitcoms representing the sort of programming that Silverman and Tartikoff thought ought to occupy prime time.

In its Thursday debut, "NBC Magazine" finished tied for 25th in the ratings. It finished ahead of "Happy Days," ahead of "That's Incredible." It finished ahead of NBC's own programming prize, "Lobo."

Brinkley, who used to feign indifference toward ratings, when indifference was necessary to getting on, noticed the turn.

"The showing in the ratings is, as they say, only one of many considerations at the network," Brinkley said in a telephone interview. "We say that, but in fact, it is the first thing we look at."

Brinkley fairly beamed over the program's good showing. "I, frankly, was surprised," he said. "I didn't think we'd do that well. Indeed, I assume we won't do that well in the future."

Nobody saw us anyway, so repeats will look new, won't they?" — and then start with a bang in September.

That may yet be possible, for if the repeats score well enough this summer, it may earn a better spot on the schedule. Then again, we all know that a show's rating is only one of many considerations a network looks at.

Some time off this summer to travel and do some "Magazine" stories he hasn't had time to do while working the show. The program would go into repeats over the summer — "Where we've been, on Fridays next to 'Dallas,' amid growing political tension over the slayings of three military men Thursday by Basque separatist guerrillas. Rightists, angered by the slayings, have demonstrated against the government and called for the army to seize power. Police braced for fresh trouble at the funerals of was wounded in the blast that killed his aide, a guard and a driver, and injured 14 others. The general was reported recovering satisfactorily today after surgery. Police reported no arrests or leads to the two men on a motorbike who pulled alongside the general's car at a downtown Madrid streetcorner and placed the lethal explosive on the roof of the car.

breed. Brinkley's easy brand of authority lends a comfortable ambience to the show, which features a flexible format allowing exploitation of fresh news, rather than being limited to the canned minidocumentaries featured on CBS' "60 Minutes" and ABC's "20-20."

Betsy Aaron, Garrick Utley, Douglas Kiker and Jack Perkins (who did a wonderful piece on electronic games last week) are first-rate accomplices.

And Brinkley had great plans for the show. He was going to take some time off this summer to travel and do some "Magazine" stories he hasn't had time to do while working the show. The program would go into repeats over the summer — "Where we've been, on Fridays next to 'Dallas,'

Government considers civil rights lift

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Premier Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo met with his Cabinet today to consider emergency measures against terrorism, including the possible lifting of some civil rights, government sources said.

Critic bored with latest 'Dallas' whodunnit

By PETER J. BOYER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Dallas" has another whodunnit going. I don't care. What's wrong here?

Not only do I not care whodunnit, I'm not entirely certain what was done. I was stirring peppers into a pot of black-eyed peas at the critical moment of last week's episode, and by the time my wife's urgent call wrenched me from the stove, I had missed everything but Cliff Barnes standing in a pool shouting up to J.R. Ewing, "You bastard!" And, you know? My first thought was, "I wonder if I put in enough peppers..."

I like my peas hot. "It's Kristin," said my wife, joining me at the stove. "J.R. killed Kristin. You didn't put in too many peppers, did you?"

She likes her peas mild.

It occurred to me that just a year ago, matters "Dallas" were central to more than one Friday night conversation at our house. J.R. (Larry Hagman) had been shot, and the hype surrounding the season-ending mystery assumed gross proportions when the actors' strike delayed its resolution. We even watched reruns.

It turned out that Kristin (Mary Crosby), J.R.'s sister-in-law lover, had plugged the boy. We'd been took. After that disappointing non-development, I couldn't watch "Dallas" without thinking of that fairy tale, "The Emperor's New Clothes."

Naked, "Dallas" didn't look so good. Trash-with-class suddenly seemed simply trash. I started going out Friday nights again, and found myself growing intolerant of my wife's lingering passion for the show, which, happily, began to wane when baseball scene.

And so now, "Dallas" has another cliffhanger. It's safe to look down, the drop isn't as steep as they'd have you believe.

So, what's the set-up this time? Barnes, that goony ineffectual, finds a stiff in the Ewing pool. She's dead, he mutters. He looks up, to see J.R. standing behind a broken rail, smiling that once-effective smile.

Now, what we're supposed to think is that J.R. didn't do it. That's too obvious. The poor child jumped or fell into the pool. Or maybe somebody else did it, and J.R. just happened on to the international revolution.

Or Afton Cooper, J.R.'s new mistress, or Louella Lee, J.R.'s secretary, who somehow got J.R. mad.

No, we're supposed to wonder whether the victim was Sue Ellen (Linda Gray), J.R.'s often-threatened wife. Or Pam Ewing (Victoria Principal), the spectacularly endowed nitwit who helped Sue Ellen make off with J.R.'s child.

Or Leslie Stewart

Three charged in drug distribution deal

BERKELEY HEIGHTS, N.J. (AP) — The brother of television star MacKenzie Phillips has been arrested with two others on drug charges, police said.

Jeffrey E. Phillips, 23, and Neil B. Kessner, 33, both of New Providence, were arrested Sunday when their car was stopped on a city street. Judith Ann Delia, 23, of Berkeley Heights, who owned the car the men were driving, was arrested later at her home.

All three were charged with possession with intent to distribute 58 biphetamine capsules, 198 amphetamine capsules, less than 25 grams of marijuana and five grams of hashish, police said.

They were released on bail pending court action. Miss Phillips, 21, who starred in the television series, "One Day at a Time," and her father, John Phillips, 47, who founded the Mamas and Papas singing group in the 1960s, have been speaking out recently against drug abuse.

Both were treated at a drug rehabilitation program, and the elder Phillips said his family had kicked the drug habit.

York splendid in new off-Broadway production

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Susannah York, known to Americans primarily as a blond English movie actress, is playing the title role in Ibsen's "Hedda Gabler" here, off-Broadway. She is splendid.

In fact, the revival of the 1890 play, which opened Tuesday night, is well worth a trip to the Roundabout Theater to see. Harris Yulin as George Tesman, Hedda's husband, also is wonderful.

Miss York's Hedda Gabler combines being a woman of today and a woman of her time. She conveys high intelligence, personality force and the frustration of boredom, which sometimes makes her sarcastic. When entertaining suitors had gone on until it was either marry one or reject all and live as a reclusive old maid, she had married the man she considered her best shot.

Yulin as George makes it easy to see why she chose him. He's good, wants to do what's best for his wife and, while he's a writer who wastes time in too much research, he isn't dumb.

Paul Shenar is handsome, combining a rugged and poetic look, as Ellert Lovborg. Hedda had preferred him but he was an alcoholic. Back from a long, boring honeymoon, finding Lovborg sober and the author of a brilliant book, Hedda won't be unfaithful to her husband.

The tragedy of Hedda Gabler's life is that she didn't have the option of going out and becoming an executive. Miss York conveyed her potential to do that wonderfully well. She, also conveyed the feminine charm which attracted men. Having nothing else to focus her energy on, she devotes it to getting Lovborg to carry out her romantic daydream of him as a poet doomed to suicide. She also ends by shooting herself. And Miss York's Hedda makes that an act of courage, not desperation.

Roxanne Hart is remarkably good as Mrs. Elvsted, who isn't an intellectual. Philip Bosco is Judge Brack, who wants to be a "tame" beau of Hedda Gabler's. Bosco is very good at portraying a man who thinks himself clever and is more boring than her husband.

Set design by Lawrence King and Michael Yeargan was a big room with groupings of dark furniture and a dramatic oval window, all good theatrically, the window probably not realistic for a cold climate.

New movie a worthless venture

By BOB THOMAS
Associated Press Writer

THE LEGEND OF THE LONE RANGER is aimed at the intelligence of television viewers who enjoyed cowboy series before they became adult westerns. Rarely has so much money (around $20 million) been spent on such a lame-brained venture. Lacking the gumption to play it straight-faced or camp, the filmmakers have produced a hybrid full of stilted dialogue, wooden acting and predictable action, tied together with insipid doggerel. After "Heaven's Gate" and "The Legend of the Lone Ranger," God help the poor, abused western. Rated PG, apparently because of a few naughty words.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions:

G — General audiences. All ages admitted.

PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

R — Restricted. Under 17 requires accompanying parent or adult guardian.

Truman in 'noble spirits'

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Bess Truman was in "noble spirits" after hip surgery, but the health of the 96-year-old former first lady cast a shadow on an award ceremony today honoring former President Jimmy Carter.

Carter and other dignitaries were to arrive today to mark the 97th birthday of Mrs. Truman's late husband, former President Harry S. Truman.

Mrs. Truman was reported in stable condition today in the intensive care unit of Research Medical Center, where she was taken Wednesday after suffering a "serious" fracture of her right hip in a fall at her home.

After 45 minutes of surgery to remove bone splinters and replace the hip ball joint with metal parts, Mrs. Truman was in "noble spirits," doctors said.

Carter was scheduled to arrive in nearby Independence, Mo., today to receive the annual Harry S. Truman Public Service Award. The award is given each year by the city of Independence in Truman's honor.

Phil Wise, Carter's chief of staff in Plains, Ga., said the Carters were praying for Mrs. Truman and had planned to visit her at her Independence home.

A hospital spokeswoman said Thursday night that no one from the Carter camp had called to arrange a hospital visit.

Mrs. Truman's daughter, Margaret Truman Daniel, saw her mother Thursday afternoon, a hospital spokeswoman said. Mrs. Daniel, who was Mrs. Truman's only outside visitor since the surgery, arrived Wednesday from her home in New York City.

Television commentator Eric Sevareid also was to be honored today at the 29th Annual Harry S. Truman Good Neighbor Award Foundation luncheon. The event began as an annual birthday dinner and was continued as a commemorative event after Truman's death Dec. 26, 1972.

Doctors said Mrs. Truman withstood Thursday's surgery remarkably well for a woman her age, but they said they were concerned about possible complications, such as pneumonia.

"I don't want anybody going around her with a cold of any kind," said Dr. Wallace Graham, the family physician for the past 36 years. He said that Martha Truman, the president's mother, died in 1947 at the age of 94 from complications arising from a broken hip.

Graham said Mrs. Truman suffered irregular heartbeats during the operation. "But that straightened out after surgery," he said.

Graham said Mrs. Truman could be in intensive care as long as three days. He said he was unsure when she would be released from Research, where she has been hospitalized several times in recent years.

Mrs. Truman, who is confined to a wheelchair and has nursing care around the clock, told Graham she fell on the wooden floor of her first-floor bedroom when she tried to get out of bed unassisted.

Actresses Shirley MacLaine, left, and Brooke Shields embrace on stage in Manhattan Sunday evening as they participate in a celebrity fund raiser for the re-election campaign of Andrew Stein, Manhattan Borough President.

Paper settles strike

NEW YORK (AP) — Today's New York Times was out on the streets according to schedule after a walkout by The Newspaper Guild ended in time for the striking workers to get out the first edition.

One arrest was reported during the 6½-hour strike Thursday, which ended at 1 p.m. with approval of a tentative three-year contract.

The pact also applies to Guild employees at the Daily News and will be voted on by the membership next week.

The New York Post has bargained with the Guild separately since the newspaper bolted the New York Publishers' Association during a 1978 newspaper strike. The Guild and Post have yet to come to terms on a contract.

The three-year agreement gives Guild employees of the two papers the same raises recently negotiated with pressmen's and deliverers' unions — $51 more per week the first year, an additional $36 the second year and $37 more the third year.

Like the craft union contract, the Guild settlement includes $6 more per week in fringe benefits the second year and cost-of-living increases in the second and third years to match any inflation over 6 percent.

Police hunt Safeway poisoner

LONDON (AP) — The hunt is on for an extortionist who slipped deadly weedkiller into jars in three Safeway supermarkets and demanded $1 million to stop doing it.

The unidentified poisoner sent a ransom note to the American-owned grocery chain Wednesday, triggering an exhaustive search of the company's 91 stores in Britain.

Three glass jars poisoned with Paraquat were found in Birmingham, in central England, and at Formby and Southport, in the northwest. The jars contained small pickles, spaghetti sauce and tomato juice.

The Newspaper BIBLE

WOW! WHAT A PRAYER MEETING!

The apostles were at the Mount of Olives when Jesus ascended, so now they walked the half mile back to Jerusalem and held a prayer meeting in an upstairs room of the house where they were staying. This prayer meeting went on for several days.

During this time, on a day when about 120 people were present, Peter stood up and addressed them as follows: "Brothers, it was necessary for the Scriptures to come true concerning Judas, who betrayed Jesus by guiding the mob to Him, for this was predicted long ago by the Holy Spirit, speaking through King David.

"Judas was one of us, chosen to be an apostle just as we were. He bought a field with the money he received for his treachery and falling headlong there, he burst open, spilling out his bowels. The news of his death spread rapidly among all the people of Jerusalem, and they named the place 'The Field of Blood.' King David's prediction of this appears in the Book of Psalms, where he says, 'Let his home become desolate with no one living in it.' And again, 'Let his work be given to someone else to do.'

"So now we must choose someone else to take Judas' place and to join us as witnesses of Jesus' resurrection. Let us select someone who has been with us constantly from our first association with the Lord - from the time He was baptized by John until the day He was taken from us into heaven."

The assembly nominated two men: Joseph Justus (also called Barsabbas) and Matthias. Then they all prayed for the right man to be chosen. "O Lord," they said, "You know every heart; show us which of these men You have chosen as an apostle to replace Judas the traitor, who has gone to his proper place." And Matthias was chosen and became an apostle with the other eleven.

Employee survives elephant attack

OMAHA, Neb. (AP) — Paj was "just being an elephant" when he threw a clod of dung at a zoo employee and then rammed the screaming man with his head, say officials of the Henry Doorly Zoo.

But Garry Cox, who received bruises and what he termed two "compressed fractures" of the lower vertebrae during the attack, says he may not go back to his job as supervisor of apes and pachyderms.

"I thought I was going to die," the 7½-year zoo employee said Wednesday from his bed in Omaha's St. Joseph Hospital.

Cox, 26, said the 15-year-old, 6-ton bull elephant, one of three at the zoo and the only male, had been breeding and was "touchy."

As he entered the cage Monday morning, Cox said, Paj threw a clod of dung with his trunk.

"But other attendants had said he had thrown things at them recently," Cox said. "So I gave him the command 'no.' I thought that would be enough."

It wasn't.

"I was perhaps 10 feet away, and he charged," Cox said.

He said the animal was tethered but the chain's length allowed it considerable freedom. A tusk ripped at Cox's upper left arm, and then he was pressed against the wall of the cage.

Cox said Paj then pushed him to the floor in a cross-legged position. Paj, on his knees and pressing downward with his head, shoved Cox across the floor.

"I was screaming," he said. "The pain was unbearable and the force unimaginable. I had carried an elephant hook with me. It's a 3-foot length of metal with a prong on the end and I began jabbing it upward. It was all I could think of to do."

"Finally, I hit the roof of the elephant's mouth, and it let loose. I squeezed between the metal bars of the cage which are about 18 inches apart.

"If I had been there five seconds longer I would have been in the morgue."

Debate, protests continue over finances in Boston

BOSTON (AP) — Democratic lawmakers were regrouping their forces today in an effort to win passage of a bill that would get money quickly to financially pinched Boston.

The proposal, which would allow the city to borrow at least $44 million, came up 10 votes shy of a needed two-thirds majority in the state House on Wednesday.

The measure, which has not been considered in the Senate, has been called the "Boston bill" but would affect any community without money to operate schools for the state-mandated 180 days. Republicans said it needed careful study and sought a delay.

Last week, the Legislature approved a $9.4 million repayment to Boston for school construction.

City councilors, after intense lobbying by labor union leaders, agreed Wednesday to divide up the money as Mayor Kevin H. White asked — $6.4 million to the School Department, which exhausted its $210 million budget more than a week ago, and $3 million to the Public Safety Department to rehire 400 laid-off police and firefighters and reopen some closed neighborhood stations.

White said the money also would delay until June 30, the last day before tax-cutting Proposition 2½ takes effect, the laying off of another 400 public safety workers.

But the Boston Herald American reported today that a top aide to White said termination notices will be sent next week to 800 city employees in 17 other departments, and that an additional 800 will get layoff notices early in June.

The newspaper said that adding the 1,600 to 1,560 already let go will put the total at 3,160.

With the money, the mayor reopened two of the seven police stations and one of the 13 fire stations closed last month.

But some residents still occupying three of those stations said that was not enough. Demonstrators snarled rush hour traffic Wednesday at two arteries.

Proposition 2½, which limits property taxes to 2½ percent of assessed valuation, takes its first big bite out of the city's income on July 1.

As it applies to Boston, the bill in the Legislature would allow the city to issue $24 million in bonds to pay court-mandated refunds of property tax overcharges to businesses and to issue at least $20 million in notes for the school system.

The system was being kept open by court order before the Legislature's $9.4 million appropriation, which will fund the nation's oldest public school system for 10 days.

Efforts by White and the council to agree on a financial plan for the schools bogged down in attempts to curb each other's powers.

Ys now offering resident camp

Midland's YMCAs are now offering a one-week resident camp for the first time in their camping history. Boys and girls that will be in the 4th through 8th grades next fall will have the opportunity to spend the week of July 13 at the Buffalo Trail Scout Ranch in the Davis Mountains.

Among the activities will be horseback riding, swimming, hiking, archery, riflery and fishing. The cost of the week-long camp is $65 for members and $70 for non-members, which includes transportation, food, lodging and all activities. The camp is limited to 50 participants and registration deadline is May 29. Early sign-up will ensure your child a place in this new camp. For more information contact your neighborhood YMCA.

Decline foreseen in health care for poor

By SHARON COHEN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO (AP) — Health care for poor people will suffer as a result of proposed cuts in government spending and an anticipated decline in private philanthropy, a group of researchers predicts.

In an article in the current issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association, the researchers said a sagging economy in the first half of the 1980s and spending cutbacks will cause problems for public hospitals, health agencies and health science centers.

Current public-opinion polls show much lower levels of interest in social problems such as health care, said the article, which based its predictions on results of the polls and long-term economic forecasts.

"The public today places lower priority on the overall improvement of community services, particularly tax-supported services," the article said.

One of the results "will be a public retrenchment in care for poor people," said Dr. Robert Blendon, an author of the article and member of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation of New Jersey.

"Public dollars will be going down," he said in a telephone interview, adding that there likely would be large-scale cutbacks in Medicaid, neighborhood health centers and clinics that provide preventive health care.

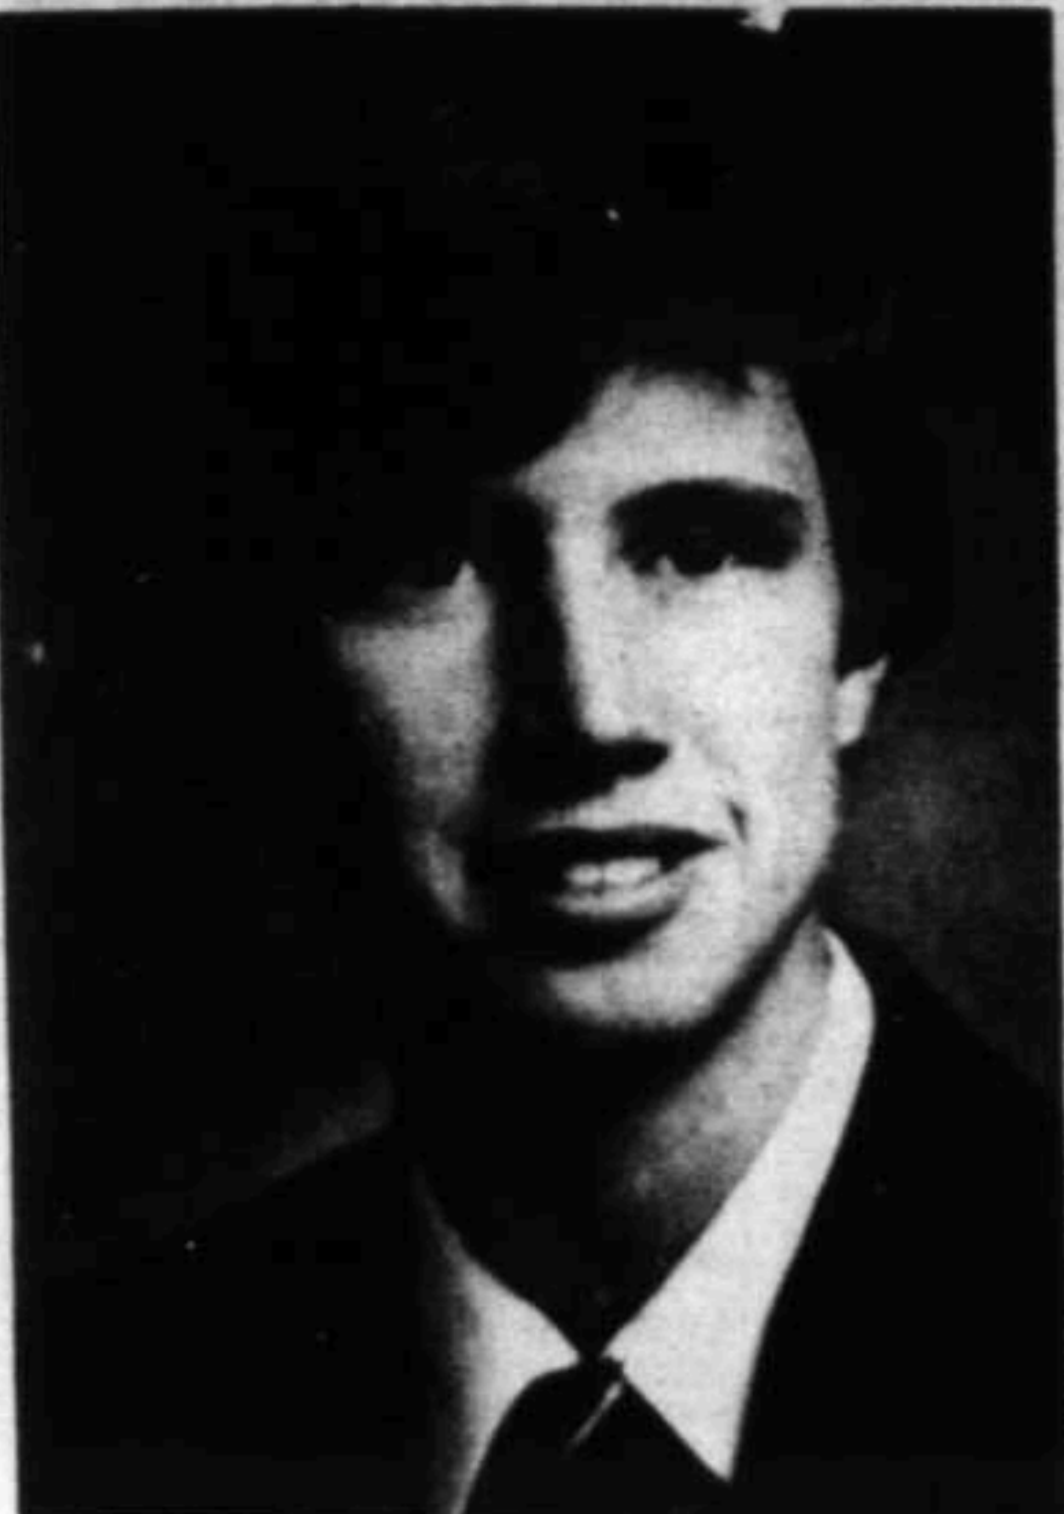

Public hospitals also could face serious financial problems and be forced to cut back services because a significant part of their patient load is poor people, many of whom can't pay for treatment.

With reduced government money, Blendon said, "hospitals will get big deficits. Their books will turn red. They'll (hospital administrators) call the mayor and say, 'My God, I have terrible financial problems.'"

Dr. Carl J. Schramm, director of the Center for Hospital Finance and Management at Johns Hopkins University, also said a feeble economy would have its most immediate impact on Medicare and Medicaid recipients.

Some of those poor people will receive free health care, Schramm said, but "there will be a great amount of pressure to shift the cost of treating (those) patients to the insured patients," increasing insurance costs.

Phillip L. Smith, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy L. Smith, has been selected to receive a scholarship from the Midland Woman's Club. A senior at Lee High School, he will attend Midland College upon graduation and plans to major in finance and business.

Nancy Ellen Chandler, 17, of Route 3 Box 358A, is the recipient of a scholarship from the Midland City Council of PTA. Miss Chandler, a senior at Midland High School, participates in drama, French Club and Junior Achievement. Her guardians are Cecilia Brazell and Mary Ruth Duvall.

Panel supports free lunches, still expected to cut spending

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Agriculture Committee appears certain to meet President Reagan's 1982 spending target for food stamps despite its rejection of an administration proposal to reduce benefits for families whose children receive free school lunches.

"I don't believe we have to rubber stamp any administration... if there are legitimate budget savings elsewhere," said Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan.

Reagan wanted to reduce food stamps to families in the school lunch program to save at least $500 million a year. Although vigorously backed by the committee chairman, Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the proposal was defeated by a 14-3 vote.

But the committee went along Thursday with other changes Reagan proposed for the food stamp program, including a "workfare" plan that states can adopt at their own option.

If "workfare" is used by all states, as many as 2 million of the 23 million recipients of food stamps could be required to work for them, the administration says.

The panel already had endorsed Reagan's proposed tighter eligibility requirements, which will eliminate 1 million higher-income people from the program and cut benefits for millions more with incomes above the poverty line.

With cost-saving measures of its own, the committee seems certain to adopt a food stamp bill which next year will save at least $1.6 billion, a figure the Congressional Budget Office says is needed to meet likely spending targets.

Among the cost-trimming actions taken Thursday were postponement of various benefit adjustments due to inflation and pro-rating the value of food stamps for the first month they are issued. The committee also made substantial cuts in benefits for Puerto Rico, where 58 percent of the population receives food stamps. "This is a tough issue, food stamps," Dole said. He said the committee's action "is a recognition that you can't cut the heart out of the program. There are other federal programs."

After successfully leading the attack against the school lunch proposal, Dole turned won an even closer 10-7 vote against reinstating a requirement that food stamp recipients pay some part of their income for benefits. It was repealed four years ago, and the administration declined to take sides Thursday.

Helms, who pushed the "workfare" proposal, said he hopes it will be mandatory in the future.

"Out there with all welfare programs, there's a sophistication for beating the game," Helms said. "It's a question of whether we're going to tighten this program up."

Under "workfare," people age 18 to 60 would be required to work without pay in public service jobs to earn their food stamps. They would have to work how many hours it took at the minimum wage to earn the value of the stamps but no one would work more than 40 hours a week in any combination of jobs.

Incapacitated people and those caring for children under 6 years old would be exempt from the program. States also would have the authority to expand exemptions.

Based on results from seven pilot "workfare" projects around the country, John Bode of the Agriculture Department said, "We're finding workfare to be marginally cost effective."

"It is not viewed by the administration as a budget savings item," Bode said. "But it is viewed as an improvement to the program image."

Runaway inflation benefitting some Americans, Fed chairman Burns says

CINCINNATI (AP) — President Reagan's goal of taming inflation won't help everyone, says former Federal Reserve Board Chairman Arthur Burns. He says some people are benefiting from runaway inflation.

"A pro-inflation constituency is slowly being built up," said Burns, who addressed a Xavier University founder's day dinner Thursday. "A fair number of people have a stake in inflation."

For example, Burns said, some homeowners have stretched mortgage payments to the limit, counting on inflationary wage increases.

He also said some manufacturers have signed labor contracts granting high wages in anticipation of an inflated market for their goods.

And, Burns said, incomes would increase at a slower pace if inflation were lowered.

"Although most people say we need to stop inflation, there would be a fair number of people who would find that would not be in their interest," he said. "Inflation works all kinds of injustices. Some people are able to make it work for them and actually make money off it, but others would be left behind."

Although slowing inflation would hurt some, Burns said he would take even more drastic measures than Reagan has proposed to stop inflation. Some of the most drastic steps have to be taken in the auto industry, he said.

"To have a prosperous automobile industry, wages will have to come down," he said. "Eventually, it will have to happen."

Burns, a member of the Federal Reserve's board of governors from 1970 until 1978, began teaching economics at Rutgers University in 1927, then taught at Columbia University from 1944-1969.

"I started lecturing on the problem of inflation in the late 1930s," he said. "I think the world is beginning to listen now because inflation is a worldwide disease, and the world is ready to do something about it."
