Battle Over Fortas Nomination Gets Underway In The Senate

Solons Expecting To Block Confirmation

By ROY McGHEE

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate today moved into the climatic battle over nomination of Abe Fortas to be chief justice, and his critics predicted they had more than enough votes to keep going a filibuster to block confirmation.

Democratic leader Mike Mansfield, who moved late Tuesday to call up the controversial nomination for debate, asked for a quorum call when the Senate convened at 10 a.m. Only 10 members answered the first roll call but a quorum of over half the members was achieved a little later.

Armed With Speech

Sen. Robert Griffin, R-Mich., came armed with a 50-page speech as a leader of opposition planning to talk to death even the Mansfield motion to bring the Fortas nomination up for debate.

Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N C., another foe of Fortas, said the opposition had "votes to spare" to block any motion to halt a talkathon.

In his prepared speech Griffin said the record of Fortas, a friend of President Johnson and now a Supreme Court associate justice, is "inadequate, inconsistent and contradictory."

"I can't imagine the Supreme Court, or any court, passing judgment on a record such as this," said Griffin.

Griffin said that in sending up Fortas' name to succeed Earl Warren as chief justice, Johnson was asking the Senate to "rubber stamp a nomination which rewards 'an old friend' — a nomination based on an unprecedented conditional 'resignation' which has all the appearances of political manipulation at the highest levels of the other branches of government."

Warren submitted his resignation to Johnson with the stipulation he would step down when a successor was "qualified" to replace him. That has been taken to mean when the Senate confirms a new chief justice.

Griffin and others object to this, claiming that technically no vacancy exists on the court until Warren actually leaves the post.

"I think it's clear as the noon day sun in a cloudless sky that there's no vacancy as long as Earl Warren is sitting there,"

Snipers Firing In Mexico City

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Scattered sniper fire today crackled across Mexico City where at least five were dead and 16 wounded in the latest battles of a student insurrection. Olympic Games workmen strung up a million lights spelling "all things are possible with peace."

Army troops seized two more provincial universities as the insurrection showed signs of spreading nationwide. Both major campuses in the capital were now under government control.

Student leaders appealed to the International Red Cross to send in rescue teams and hid their wounded in private houses and school buildings to keep them out of government hands.

They insisted the toll of dead and wounded was much higher from gunfights at Polytechnic Institute and the Tlatelolco housing project Tuesday and suggested police were making student casualties "disappear."

Hospital officials confirmed five dead, including two policemen, and 16 wounded, including three policemen in critical condition.

Army troops occupied Mexico City's second huge university complex, the Polytechnic Institute, after a nine-hour battle Monday night and Tuesday.

Troops Tuesday took over the State University of Guerrero in Chilpancingo, 175 miles south of Mexico City, and the University of Juarez in Oaxaca. Police or army units have put down demonstrations in at least five other provincial cities, including some where preliminary Olympics events are scheduled. The games start in Mexico City Oct. 12.

Student disorders have been an almost daily occurrence in the cappal since July, when police were accused of "brutality" in breaking up street clashes. Since then students have escalated demands for removal of the police chief and the riot police force into a campaign for repeal of subversive laws and the immediate release of jailed Communists.

5 Days Left To Get New Trash Cans

Only five more days left for Pampa residents to install those new 32-gallon trash cans in compliance with a city ordinance which becomes effective Tuesday, Oct. 1.

City Manager Charles Hill said today a notice will be posted on the old 55-gallon oil drums which can no longer be used after Tuesday. If property owners sign the notice, the old containers will be hauled off to the city dump free of charge.

Beginning Tuesday, Hill stated, no trash will be collected from any of the old containers.

The city manager also stated that the new "train" system of making trash collections will not by ready for use Oct. 1, but the ordinance calling for the oil drums to be replaced with the new containers will go into effect on that date.

Hill said delivery of equipment for the new sanitation department collection set-up has been delayed, but should arrive soon and be put into service.

"Meanwhile," Hill said, "it is hoped residents will install the new trash cans before the next Tuesday deadline."

The ordinance allows residents to utilize more than one 32-gallon trash can if they desire. A number of the cans, already placed by local citizens, have been reported stolen so some method of identification should be placed on the cans.

Nixon, Humphrey Trade Charges In Campaign Talks

By United Press International

Richard M. Nixon says Hubert H. Humphrey is the "most uncompromising defender" of the Johnson administration and adds flatly he's willing to be held "accountable" for the Eisenhower administration, if Humphrey will be held accountable for Johnson's policies.

Humphrey, although not referring to Nixon, said meanwhile that his campaign was the target of a highly disciplined, well-organized effort by agitators to destroy the Democratic party and the United States.

Nixon, winding up a campaign trip stretching from the Great Plains to the Pacific Northwest, derided the "compassion" which Humphrey claims as one of his strong points.

He accused Humphrey of advocating and developing policies which boosted the cost of living for America's elderly and raised the price of groceries and medicine for its poor.

He demanded of a crowd sprinkled with peace demonstrators whether it was "compassionate to have had no program for the solution of the crime crisis."

In Minneapolis, Humphrey challenged Nixon to compare the Eisenhower and Johnson administrations. In New York, Nixon's campaign manager, John M. Mitchell, accepted the challenge.

"... Mr. Humphrey said that if he is to be held accountable for the Johnson administration, Dick Nixon should be accountable for the Eisenhower administration. We'll accept that choice gladly. Let the American people decide between President Eisenhower and President Johnson."

Humphrey, at a Minneapolis news conference, said his campaign was being attacked by "not just hecklers, but highly disciplined, well-organized agitators ... some of them are anarchists, and some of these groups are dedicated to destroying the Democratic party and destroying this country."

The vice president renewed his challenge to Nixon to meet him in a national debate on network television.

Commies, Aided By Traitors, Hit Green Beret Camp; 135 Killed

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—A Communist assault force aided by traitors inside a U.S. Green Beret camp struck with 300 mortar rounds today and then charged with flamethrowers and dynamite before the defenders killed an estimated 135 attackers and drove them off.

"We know we had some Viet Cong in the camp," said Lt. William Yaniuj, 24, of Irving, N.J., one of 38 Americans defending the camp with 300 Vietnamese. "The attackers knew just where to cut the barbed wire. They knew where we were weakest. They had to have inside help."

Mortar Barrage

The attack began with a barrage of mortars from a nearby bamboo forest near the Cambodian border. Then at 4 a.m. from the jungle darkness hundreds of Communists suddenly appeared in the camp—they had cut their way through the barbed wire strands around the camp.

The Americans and Vietnamese battled the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong for two hours and a half. When the Communists withdrew they left the battlefield littered with enough TNT and dynamite to obliterate the camp.

Reports of pro-Viet Cong traitors in the camp were nothing new in this border warfare northwest of Saigon. It happened last month at Duc Lap. And it happened five weeks ago at Katum when the Communists breached the outer defenses before being hurled back.

Military spokesmen, reporting the predawn attack on Katum Special Forces camp 75 miles northwest of Saigon, also said U.S. helicopter gunships sank 36 Viet Cong sampans 50 miles west of Saigon.

Allied casualties at Katum four miles from Cambodia and just north of Tay Ninh City, were reported as 11 dead and 16 wounded. But U.S. and South Vetnamese spokesmen differed on Communist casualties.

Casualty Tolls Differ

The attack brought Red troops with flamethrowers right up to the camp's barbed wire. South Vietnamese commander said they counted 135 Communist bodies afterwards. U.S. officials said they knew of only 49 dead and eight prisoners.

U.S. spokesmen meanwhile reported six companies of U.S. 9th Infantry troops killed 37 members of a mixed Viet Cong-North Vietnamese force in two days of fighting 10 miles southwest of Saigon.

They said Col. Ira Hunt of McLean, Va., led troops using "people sniffer" devices to find the Red position and close a noose around it. U.S. casualties were one killed and four wounded.

The attack on Katum was the latest in a series of Communist attempts to overwhelm strategic border posts that guard infiltration routes.

The spokesmen said the Green Beret and government defenders charged out of the camp after routing the Communist attack and found the battlefield strewn with 2,400 pounds of TNT, seven Chinese-made rocket launchers, four flamethrowers, 25 Chinese AK47 rifles and 1,000 rounds of ammunition for the rocket launchers.

Military spokesmen reported

Witnesses To Convene In Pampa

Jehovah's Witnesses have announced that their next semi-annual convention will be held in Pampa Nov. 22 to 24 at the Robert E. Lee Jr. High School Auditorium.

Charles A. Regal, local presiding minister of Jehovah's Witnesses, said over 700 delegates will be in Pampa for the convention.

The convention will feature morning, afternoon, and evening sessions devoted to prayer, Bible study talks, discussions, and dramatizations. There will also be a baptism of new ministers.

Top speakers will include Gerald D. Grizzle, Texas circuit No. 10 traveling minister; and Lester Dugan, New York, eight-state district supervisor for the Witnesses. Grizzle spends a week in Pampa three times a year, working with the local congregation. Dugan's address will be "God's Way is Love."

Some 600 attended the last semi-annual convention of the church group in Pampa in 1963 when there was about five inches of snow on the ground, Regal said. The 700 figure represents out-of-town representatives only, he said, adding that 1,000 attended a similar session in Borger last year.

Clergy Leads Draft Board File Burners

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UPI)—Fourteen demonstrators led by seven clergymen broke into Selective Service Headquarters here Tuesday, dragged draft files outside to the base of a flagpole and set them afire.

Flames fed by what the demonstrators called "homemade napalm" licked close to the top of the flagpole dedicated to World War I veterans. The pole stands in a small triangular park across the street from draft headquarters.

The group joined arms, sang religious songs and recited passages from Scripture before police arrived. As firemen doused the flames, the demonstrators were arrested without resistance. Police said the 14, including five Catholic priests, a Protestant minister and a Christian Brother, would be charged with burglary and arson.

7 Named To CoC Board

Seven members of the Pampa Chamber of Commerce were elected this morning to serve three-year terms on the board of directors.

The new directors were selected by the Chamber membership out of a total slate of 14 nominations.

The new directors and the firms they are associated with are Bill Atkinson of Western Warehouse; Milo Carlson of J. E. Carlson, Inc.; Clinton Evans of Tex Evans Buick; Kay Fancher of Panhandle Insurance; Jim Hughes of radio station KGRO; Don Lane, Pampa attorney; and James McCoy of Pioneer Natural Gas.

The other nominees were Norman Fritzler, Verl Hagaman, E. L. Henderson, Fred Neslage, Jim Stallings, Jack Vaughn, and Calvin Whatley.

The ballots were counted this morning in the Chamber office after being mailed out last week.

The new directors will be officially installed Oct. 14 and introduced to the membership at the annual banquet on Oct. 29.

New officers of the board of directors will be elected in a meeting scheduled for next Tuesday.

'Sportsmen' Turn Salmon Run Into A 'Hog Wallow'

MANISTEE, Mich. (UPI)—The state of Michigan has closed Bear Creek and six miles of Little Manistee River after fishermen speared, clubbed and hauled away in washtubs Coho salmon moving upstream to spawn.

"They turned it into a hog wallow," said Warren Shapton, deputy director of field operations for the Department of Natural Resources. "It was enough to turn my stomach."

The pillage occurred last weekend when the state conservation department lifted the large, silver-scaled fish over its wear on the Little Manistee to permit the fish to enter Bear Creek to lay their eggs.

As a courtesy to fishermen the department had decided to allow angling during the spawning run. As the first of some 5,000 fish appeared, hundreds of fishermen stood shoulder-to-shoulder on the banks of the tiny stream.

At first they were restrained, using conventional bait and line. Then, somehow, pandemonium spawned and spread—the crowd ran wild, trampling private property and clubbing fish, spearing them, ripping them open as they caught them and throwing their entrails into the stream.

The band and PHS concert choir's first nationally televised appearance will be Dec. 15, when they participate in their "Los Angeles '68" project, playing the half-time performance for the Los Angeles Rams vs. Baltimore Colts National Football league game.

'An Urban University Complex For Fort Worth-Dallas Area Opposed

AUSTIN (UPI) — A proposal by the Texas College Coordinating Board Tuesday to establish an urban university complex in the Dallas-Fort Worth-Denton area met widespread opposition today from educators.

The proposal called for combing the University of Texas at Arlington, North Texas State University and Texas Woman's University under a new, independent governing board.

Announcing the change at Austin, the coordinating board cited an "indefensible deficiency" of doctoral graduates in the North Texas area.

The board noted that the Dallas-Fort Worth-Denton area offers about 30 per cent of the state's doctoral programs but produces only 10 per cent of the doctoral graduates.

Gifford Johnson, president of the Southwest Center for Advanced Studies at Plano, said he does not think the urban university plan would "best suit" the area's needs.

"It seems a tremendously larger, unwieldy institution," Johnson said. "As a practical matter, TWU, NTSU and others have their same boards; this plan might cause them to discontinue their board just to create a large board."

Johnson said he prefers the University of Texas plan to use existing schools in the area and build another university.

When coordinating board members Charles Scruggs of Dallas, Harry Provence of Waco and the board"s commissioner, Dr. Bevington Reed, announced the urban university complex plan, Reed said the University of Texas proposal was what brought "the urgency of the matter to a head."

Called 'Disastrous'

"My first reaction is that it would be disastrous to the whole North Texas area to remove UTA from the University of Texas system," Mrs. J. Lee Johnson of Fort Worth, a UT regent, said. "I think it would be criminal.

"I think this school (UTA) has made incredible progress under all sorts of difficult circumstances and has an opportunity to move forward in many areas.

"... If we're going to have a major university in this area, let's make it first class instead of trying to mess everything up and reshuffle in an effort to come up with something

Blind, 65-Year-Old Grandmother Is West Texas State University Coed

By MIKE WESTER

CANYON, Tex. (UPI) — A blind, 65-year-old grandmother-coed enrolled at West Texas State University is working towards a history degree she says "God meant for me to have."

Mrs. Marcia Caldwell, who earned 78 hours of credits in two years, graduated from Howare County Junior College at Big Spring where she made the dean's list twice and was honored in "Who's Who Among Students in American Junior Colleges." She attended summer classes at West Texas.

"My son says its a case of bull headedness, but I call it plain determination," said Mrs. Caldwell.

Ran Station

Mrs. Caldwell's husband died four years ago, and she ran his service station in the Panhandle town of Channing for a year before she began visiting relatives.

"I visited relatives around the country for a while," she said, Knowing that there was something for me to do and that God would let me know what it was."

Mrs. Caldwell said that one morning while visiting in Florida she realized "God meant for me to go to college." She said a sister living in Big Spring had a stroke, and she went to care for her.

"While I was there I called the college, passed a test and enrolled," she said.

Makes Out Images

Although Mrs. Caldwell is legally blind, she can make out images with one eye that retains some vision. She is able to read — slowly — by using a very strong magnifying glass and laboring over printed matter. Because of the heavy reading load required in college, and because of her almost total blindness, Mrs. Caldwell must spend most of her non-classroom time studying.

"I tire easily," she said, 'but can rest a few minutes and then go back to reading."

Under a state program for the blind, Mrs. Caldwell is supplied a 'reader" — one who reads her lessons to her. She is allowed to use a reader up to 96 hours per month with state funds.

'I didn't have a reader at Big Spring," she said. 'I had to read there on my own."

Those who must earn their living travelling with a presidential candidate fall into a distinctive way of life after being on the road for any length of time.

While the Nixon campaign travel organization is considerably better than most similar outfits of years past, a basic problem remains—human survival.

The Republican campaign crew, for example, can lick many incredibly complicated logistical problems except one, laundry. Arrangments can be made with hotels to keep pressing service open overnight, but to convince a hotel laundry to remain open during the night is virtually impossible. As a result, when the Republican candidate's party swoops down into a city, spectators may notice sharp creases but crummy shirts.

Dampened Newsman

One distinguished network newsman tried doing a drip-dry shirt in a hotel the other night and showed up next morning on Richard M. Nixon's own plane carrying a thoroughly wet shirt on a hanger. It had rained during the night and the resultant humidity was too much for the miracle fabric.

Then there was the Secret Service agent who clothed himself entirely in drip-dry fabrics from underwear to suit. Confident in the warranty assuring dry clothing in two to three hours, the agent washed his underwear, shirt and socks. the morning after he shaved and showered, then he started to dress only to discover that his underwear, shirt and socks were, if anything, wetter than when he went to bed.

Time was short and he had no choice. Painfully he pulled on the wet things and reported for work, looking exceedingly limp and cursing the day he placed confidence in the new fabrics. What had happened, however, was that his roommate was a prankster and while the laundry-conscious agent was soundly asleep, the jokester got up and stuck all the clothes under the shower to get them good and wet again.

Rush Laundry Expensive

New York was a laundry stop for the Nixon party this week since the candidate was there for two nights and it was possible to get one-day laundry service. This can be brutally expensive. During the Republican convention at Miami Beach, the hotel laundry price per shirt was 80 cents plus a 25 percent surcharge on the entire bill as the premium for one-day work.

The candidate always looks bandbox fresh because he carries unlimited luggage and never runs out of clean shirts. Also, there always is someone to keep his suits freshly pressed.

Another problem of survival: sleep. The candidate can and usually does get anywhere from two to four hours more sleep each night than members of his staff and the large press party travelling with him.

Television In Review

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—ABC-TV Tuesday night introduced an hour series with a willingness to be different: "That's Life," a book musical about a young couple, their romance and marriage. The setting is New York, and the star is Robert Morse.

The concept, the very idea, of a weekly book musical—with new and old songs—seems like a backbreaker. But there are key creative people with the series who used to be associated with "The Honeymooners" productions of the Jackie Gleason Show, so the background for success is there. The question is whether "That's Life" can handle the competition of NBC-TV's Tuesday night movies.

The pleasant thing to report is that, despite several lapses and an overlong early monologue by guest star George Burns—who otherwise was a fairly amusing narrator—the series showed that it will risk imagination. It is the only way to go because the commercial odds are almost all against it at this point, so it must gamble all the way in hopes of finding and creating its own audience.

Nice Couple

The debut concerned the meeting of Morse and his female costar, E. J. Peaker. Their singing voices are the stage kind which normally don't pull in the provinces. But they are a nice couple. And while Burns was only of slight help, Tony Randall was super in a dream sequence as "Rodney Wonderful," who is Miss Peaker's theoretical ideal; and The Turtles, a pop group, were wonderfully entertaining in a discotheque scene, especially a fat, bushy-haired, bespectacled member of the group. The guest stars will decide the fate of this series.

Another new ABC-TV series Tuesday night also indicated a willingness to take a fresh approach. It is called "The Mod Squad," and the 90-minute introduction of this weekly hour set the stage for future episodes: Three troubled youngsters who have split from their families go to work for the police—in a strained relationship—as undercover personnel who can get into places in the new youth- oriented society where regular cops can't infiltrate.

The principals, Clarence Williams, Michael Cole and Peggy Lipton, show real potential—and if the adult audience is not so quick to turn off a youth-oriented show, it may well find a good touch between the lives of plot and police work.

Doris Day Familiar

CBS-TV Tuesday night offered the new half-hour Doris Day situation comedy, in which she is a widow with two young sons on a ranch. In the debut there was a mixup in a birthday dinner for Doris in a restaurant. Miss Day is Miss Day, and that's what CBS-TV is counting on for ratings. And that's all there is to say about that.

Also Tuesday night, CBS-TV presented a new hour Western, "Lancer," about two half-brothers, one Eastern and smooth, the other Western and rough, who return to help their father on a ranch. Wayne Maunder and James Stacy are good as the sons. Otherwise, a Western is a Western is a Western.

The third CBS-TV premiere Tuesday night was "60 Minutes," a news magazine of the air that will appear on alternate weeks. There was a worthwhile film section about Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey watching television in their hotel rooms as they were nominated for president. And the other stories and commentaries also had a very civilized approach.

Man Charged With Taking Truck Here

A 21-year-old man on parole from the state penitentiary was charged yesterday with operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

David Lee Hale, 21, of 803 W. Foster, was arraigned before Justice of the Peace E. L. Anderson and later remanded to the Gray County jail in lieu of $1,000 bond.

Police officer Joe Brewer was credited with arresting Hale after police had received a complaint about 7:30 a.m. from K-Tex Oil Co., 440 W. Brown, that a late model flat bed truck had been stolen.

Brewer found the truck stuck in the mud at the corner of Ford and Somerville streets. He tracked the driver of the vehicle to a nearby house, where the resident identified Hale as the man who had come to the house and asked to be pulled out of the mud.

Hale said he "borrowed" a car from the garage, got it stuck, "borrowed" the truck to pull the car out of the mud, stuck the truck, returned the car, and then "borrowed" another car—which also got stuck and left on the railroad right-of-way near Purviance St., police said.

that's unsatisfactory."

Sweeping Changes

Dr. Frank Harrison, president of UTA, said the proposal looked like a "pretty sweeping change."

"The University of Texas at Arlington has made considerable progress under the UT system," he said.

Dr. John A. Guinn, president of Texas Woman's University, said he did not like the proposal to abolish boards of regents at the three universities.

Safeguarding Character

"I think most American educators would agree that it's important to take elaborate pains to safeguard the institutional character of all institutions of worthwhile learning," Guinn said.

Dr. Frank Harrison, president of North Texas State University, was out of town.

Ben Wooten of Dallas, president of the NTSU board of regents, said he had no information on the proposal but meant to look into it.

The coordinating board proposed that the present governing boards of NTSU and TWU be abolished and control of UTA be transferred from the UT regents to the new board.

Warner Speaks At Perryton JC 'Bosses Night'

The time of opportunity is now, John W. Warner told Perryton Jaycees and their bosses last night at the annual Bosses Night Banquet in Perryton. "Whether you are young or old or in between makes no difference," he said, in a speech entitled "Community Service Benefits You."

"William Pitt became Prime Minister of England when he was 24, while Gladstone first attained that position after he was 80. Yet history records that both men did an outstanding job," Warner said.

"Julius Caesar had conquered 300 nations, 800 cities and three million men before he was 35. Alexander the Great wept at the age of 33 because he had conquered all of the known world and there were no other worlds to conquer. George Washington won his first battle as a colonel at the age of 22. Yet Abraham Lincoln was not considered fit for the presidency until he was past 50. J. P. Morgan made his money after age 60. Cornelius Vanderbilt made $1,000,000,000 after age 70. Martin Luther nailed his thesis to the church door when he was 29. Westinghouse invented the air brake at 23. Jesus Christ ended his ministry at 33. If Winston Churchill had only lived 64 years, he would have been an unknown because he became Prime Minister of England at 65 and went on to become one of the best known people in the world."

Citing examples of Pampa men who had increased business for their employers and who had gained advances in devotion to community service, Warner said that young men need the experience of working with people.

Warner has been a member of the Pampa Jaycees for six years and has served as chairman for about 30 projects, including the Career Clinic, College Day Workshop and Children's Shopping Tour. He recently was named the outstanding Jaycee speaker in Texas out of 15,000 Texas Jaycees and was named among the top six in the nation out of 300,000 United States Jaycees. He is the Chairman of the Commission on Education for the First Methodist Church, is beginning his seventh year as a Sunday School teacher and his fifth year as a member of the Official Board. He is also a member of the executive committe, the long-range planning committee and the church choir.

This month a series of 28 meetings are being held by librarians to answer questions on legislation proposed by the state legislature.

Mrs. Rosalyne T. Shamblin, Amarillo, field representative of the Texas State Library Association, will answer questions for the program directed by Mrs. Elizabeth Crabb, extensions coordinator for the Amarillo library.

The three hour workshop in Amarillo at Mary E. Bivens Memorial Library will start at 10 a.m. and end at 1 p.m. Library board members, librarians and friends of library organizations will attend.

Renews Charge

Griffin charged anew that Fortas continued to participate in White House decisions after becoming an associate justice.

Mansfield, who said earlier he would permit debate to run several days, said today he would file for cloture "at an appropriate time." He did not spell out how long this would be.

One of Fortas' leading opponents, Sen. Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., predicted that the motion to debate the nomination would never come to a vote.

Mansfield and Republican leader Everett M. Dirksen support Fortas, but both are pessimistic they will be able to muster the two-thirds vote necessary to halt debate and get moving on the issue. Both believe the nomination would be confirmed if it could be brought to a vote.

Mansfield caught the opposition coalition of conservative Republicans and southern Democrats off guard late Tuesday with the unexpected motion to take up the nomination next.

His move left dangling some $100 billion in appropriations the Senate must yet consider, $71.9 billion of it the long-awaited and all-time record appropriation for defense.

Putting this legislation behind the nomination appeared to favor the opposition by adding to pressures on the leadership to settle the matter as soon as possible.

Sen. Robert P. Griffin, R-Mich., organizer of the bloc opposing Fortas' confirmation, said his forces were not disorganized by Mansfield's surprise move and "quite a lot" of senators were ready with lengthy speeches opposing President Johnson's selection of an old personal friend and confidant to succeed Chief Justice Earl Warren.

Their objections center on constitutional and philosophical principles that:

Fortas continued advising Johnson after joining the Supreme Court; he accepted law school lecture fees raised from individuals who might at sometime be court litigants; he is a "judicial activist" inclined to legislate from the bench rather than interpret the Constitution; his decisions in obscenity. Communist and criminal defendant cases sided with the guilty; Johnson, as a "lameduck" president, should leave so important a nomination to his successor.

Never in history has a chief justice nomination been filibustered.

Communist attacks on key bases and field units at several places in South Vietnam today and Tuesday. Guerrillas launched a 15-round rocket attack on Allied installations around Da Nang and ambushed an armored infantry convoy near the "Street Without Joy" — Highway One along the northern coast.

Spokesmen said the infantrymen turned the tables on the ambushers, killed 92 and losing one man killed in daylong fighting.

Far Saigon Attack

Military spokesmen meanwhile threw up the most stringent security network around Saigon since the May offensive, searching all vehicles and interrogating travelers. The move underscored fears the Reds would launch their third offensive by September's end.

Radio Hanoi fueled these tensions today with a broadcast that claimed guerrilla leaders held "a grand meeting Tuesday morning somewhere in South Vietnam." It claimed 400,000 "enemy troops" had been killed in the war.

Communist rocket teams fired at least 15 122mm rockets into Allied positions at Da Nang Tuesday night, military spokesmen said. Mortarmen followed up by hurling 20 rounds of 20mm shells into the Red Beach area five miles northwest of the norhtern capital.

Damage and casualties were described as light.

Deductible Will Be Hiked Jan. 1 On Medicare Bill

Beginning in January, an older person who goes to the hospital under Medicare will be responsible for the first $44 of his hospital bill — now averaging about $600 for the average hospital stay by a Medicare beneficiary, according to Howard L. Weatherly, Pampa social security Officer-in-charge.

The $4 increase from the present $40 deductible results from a provision in the law requiring an annual review of the deductible amount.

The law specifies that if this annual review shows that hospital costs have changed significantly, Weatherly stated, the hospital deductible amount must be adjusted for the following year. Necessary increases in the deductible amount are to be made in $4 steps to avoid small annual changes.

The results of the annual review of the inpatient hospital deductible also apply to the dollar amounts a Medicare beneficiary pays toward a hospital stay of more than 60 days, or a post-hospital extended care stay of more than 20 days.

These amounts therefore will also increase by 10 percent, effective Jan. 1, to $11 a day for the 61st through the 90th day of a hospital stay; to $5.50 for the 20th to the 100th day of a stay in a post-hospital extended care facility and to $22 a day for each day of the lifetime reserve of 60 days, the reserve account a beneficiary can draw upon if he ever needs more than 90 days of hospital care in the same benefit period. The changes in these amounts apply only to the hospital insurance part of Medicare and do not affect the financing of the supplementary medical insurance, the voluntary program which covers doctor bills and a wide variety of other medical services, Weatherly said.

Price Calls For Enactment of Oil Import Policies

Panhandle Congressman Bob Price urged enactment of oil import legislation in the House of Representatives this week.

In a special order on Trade Policy, Price told House members that there was a day-to-day assault on the Mandatory Oil Import Program in an effort to dismantle it entirely.

Price had reference to an application by Occidental Petroleum Company for a Foreign Trade Zone in Maine where the company would process some 300,000 barrels a day of foreign oil. Two-hundred thousand barrels of finished product would be sold in the United States.

"Should this project be approved, such approval would involve a clear misuse of the Foreign Trade Zones Act," Price charged. "It would be a mockery because this proposal has one single purpose; to permit its sponsor to supply a U.S. refinery entirely on foreign oil and therefore to gain a private nullification of the provisions of the oil import program," he added.

Earlier this year, Price testified before the House Committee on Interior and Insular Affairs and the House Committee on Ways and Means that the Mandatory Oil Import Program should be written into law with specific guidelines to assure compliance with the national security provisions of the program.

THE LIGHTER SIDE
Gifts For Lawyers

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Before proceeding any further, I want to make it perfectly clear that what you are about to read is not something I made up.

There really is a gift catalog for lawyers and it truly does include such items as a "personal injury settlement evaluator."

A friend of mine who works approaching, passed it along to me.

"This may come in handy in case you have an ambulance chaser on your gift list," she said.

Eliminate Guesswork

The "personal injury settlement evaluator," which sells for only $15, certainly looks like something my favorite pettifogger would be pleased to find in his stocking Christmas morn.

It enables an attorney to determine instantly how much his clients should sue for. Takes much of the guesswork out of litigation.

"Not only does it calculate "the probably jury verdict" but, according to the catalog, "also serves as an effective piece of demonstration evidence in settlement talks."

As a companion piece, the 'future damage calculator" looks like a bargain at $5.95. It has a slide chart that shows what the payments should be if the damages are paid in installments.

First, however, the lawyer must win the case. He therefore would undoubtedly appreciate receiving a gift-wrapped "vehicle speed and stopping distance computer."

Personal Computer

"Answers you need in every one of your accident cases can now be dialed in seconds with this new computer," the catalog says.

Should he be unable to settle out of court, and the case goes before a jury, counselor might prefer a "personal medical and expense daily journal." It tells "how to get a complete record of personal injury symptons, treatment and expenses."

"No element of damage is overlooked," the catalog says. "One report book holds all the information you need to assemble a substantiated presentation of damages."

Marital accidents being almost as common as traffic accidents, another appropriate fight would be a "divorce folio." It's purpose is to help the attorney "determine a proper fee, in advance."

Any of these items should make a lawyer's Yuletide happy. And if he happens to have a client with a whiplash, it will be a merry Christmas indeed.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Wiesenberger Investment Report says "richly appraised glamor stocks" and certain cyclical groups probably will remain under pressure for the time being. The investment analyst says new commitments should be confined to "well situated defensive issues, special situations and moderately appraised" issues with good chances of increasing earnings even if the economy loses some of its buoyancy.

Spear & Staff says expansionary forces should reassert themselves in the second half of next year, helped by expiration of a good part of the recent tax surcharge and an increase in consumer funds. Thus, the company says, any stock selloff between now and that time "is likely to be brief."

E.F. Hutton & Co. says that market's overall technical condition is "quite strong" and any possible weakness that develops should be "relatively mild." The company says it feels the highs of the year in the popular averages have yet to be seen and will be significantly above current levels.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI)—Shearson, Hammil & Co. says that with an extension of the current strength the market could become quite overbought and vulnerable to profit taking. Thus, the analyst says, it would be a good idea to take advantage of the opportunity to move out of stocks rising either too fast or without a good specific reason.

C.B. Richard, Ellis & Co. says the current range of the market offers "formidable resistance" to further upward movement but that a few more days of heavy trading activity could help overcome it. The company says that if no progress is made in the next few sessions, it is "likely" that the market will trend downward.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute suggests that some of the current market strength is due to Wall Street anticipation of a Republican Presidential victory in November. It says, therefore, that the near term performance could become unsettled if the White House race develops into a close contest and that "any sudden burst of strength" by Hubert Humphrey could "give the market a good case of the jitters."

Points for Students to Ponder

Student unrest is not a phenomenon confined to the Western world alone. What is puzzling, however, is that both youthful action and official reaction seem to follow the same pattern, whether it is in a totalitarian society or one that may properly be called democratic.

An example is the wave of student riots and demonstrations against the government that swept through Poland last March. The demonstrations lasted over two weeks and involved some 50,000 young people in eight university cities.

What happened at the University of Warsaw, where it all began, is described by Stefan Korbonski, a journalist and a member of the Polish parliament in happier days and now head of the Polish delegation to the Assembly of Captive European Nations in New York.

On March 11, some 4,000 students had gathered for a protest meeting "when, unexpectedly, a phalanx of uniformed and helmeted regular militia forced its way in, attacked the surprised students and beat them mercilessly with long billy clubs.

"Within minutes, blood was seen everywhere—on hundreds of faces, on students' suits and on the pavement. Several girls were thrown to the pavement and kicked. . .Students began to fight back with whatever they could lay their hands on, and fighting spilled over into Krakowskie Przedmiescie Avenue—the tumult increased by the sirens of the oncoming ambulances."

Substitute Columbia University for the University of Warsaw, or Michigan Avenue for Krakowskie Przedmiescie Avenue, and the account strikes disturbingly close to home.

There the similarity ends, of course. The free speech and press and other basic rights which the Polish students were demanding are things American students already enjoy in abundance. The attack on them, unlike what happened at Columbia or in Chicago, was entirely undeserved and unprovoked—though it must be admitted that to dictators nothing is more provocative or threatening to internal security than demands for free speech and thought.

Polish students, and students in any Communist land, would be flabbergasted at the freedoms and opportunities American students take for granted. Why, then, the seemingly unendurable dissatisfaction of some of our young people?

Is it that they are so certain they are right and everyone else is wrong, about the Vietnam war, especially, that the ends they want justify any means?

Are they so convinced that the democratic method, the basic rule of which is decision by the majority, is so moribund and incapable of meeting the problems of the nation that there is no alternative but violent confrontation with authority?

Is it merely the exuberance of the young, or their natural impatience with imperfection?

Probably the students themselves don't know. But maybe they had better pause and ask themselves.

The society they think is so rotten that it deserves to be torn down in a society their counterparts in Poland and elsewhere behind the Iron Curtain would be willing to—and may eventually have to—give their lives to achieve in their own countries.

A Myth Exploded

In some sections of the western part of the United States, there are far more cattle and sheep than there are people. But, in spite of the low, human-head count, the communities and ranches of the sparsely settled West enjoy most of the amenities of the urban areas. And, contrary to the notion that every body burns candles except where a subsidized electric power project has brought in electricity, a major part of the most remote regions are customer territories of taxpaying, investor - owned electric companies.

The service territory of one such company includes the more remote sections of eastern Oregon, Nevada and Utah. Without a dime of subsidy, this company has steadily expanded its service through the distant reaches of these western states. And, it has paid taxes to every level of government for the privilege of doing so. More than that, its rates have steadily declined as the consumption of power has gone up. In one community, Cedar City, Utah, its customers have enjoyed annual savings of more than $180,000 as a result of eight rate reductions over a recent two-year peroid. Its customers in the Cedar City area are now paying 22 per cent less per kilowatt-hour of electric energy than they were 9 years ago. The company pays federal, plus local taxes in each community it serves and seeks to attract new industry and payrolls by offering favorable electric rates.

Thus, private enterprise is very much alive n the sort of sparsely settled country where many people have come to believe most electric energy is furnished by tax-supported, government power projects.

30 Million Steaks

Scare stories have a way of catching people's attention and spreading with the speed of a prairie fire. A favorite outdoor activity has been threatened by just such a story.

An imaginative writer spotted a report by scientific investigators that charcoal-broiled meat contained a cancer-inducing substance. The story soon spread that it was dangerous to health to broil our hamburgers and steaks over a charcoal grill. A lot of people thus crossed outdoor broiling off their list of summer pleasures. But, like most scare stories, this one was grossly exaggerated. A prominent medical columnist has pointed out that the amount of the cancer-inducing substance in a charcoal - broiled steak is so minute that a person would have to eat close to 30 million steaks to consume an ounce of the allegedly dangerous chemical.

At the price of steaks, it is doubtful that there is much risk of anyone getting cancer from overeating these broiled delicacies. Sometimes scare stories can do irreparable harm. It is well to spread a few grains of salt on the works of writers and speakers whose stock in trade is to alarm rather than inform.

Burning Thoughts

The government of Malaysia has warned that citizens carrying cigarette lighters engraved with the thoughts of Mao Tse-tung are risking arrest under the nation's Internal Security Act.

"The Communists are using all types of methods to spread Mao's thoughts," explains an official. "We even found them on the wrappings of preserved olives."

Preserved olives are bad enough, but cigarette lighters—that's clearly inflammatory.

The American Way

By D. R. SEGAL

I have never met Jo Foxworth, but she's made a speech I think I'd have enjoyed. Miss Foxworth is an advertising executive in New York and the winner of some sort of award. This is not said in derogation of her accomplishment, but the awarding of plaques, medals, scrolls and certificates is one of the nation's leading industries, and winning one of these baubles is about as heroic as getting a base on balls.

Nevertheless, and getting back to the point of this piece, Miss Foxworth took as the subject of her sermon some recent phenomena — Pop art, Op art, Mod and Camp (low, middle and high) Explaining High Camp, Miss Foxworth said this:

"Take a Tiffany glass lamp shade. If you put one in the living room where the hideous things were originally designed to go, that's almost square . . .so it's Low Camp. Put one in the bathroom which is where most of the real Campers would hang it (over the john) and that's Mass Camp. But turn it upside down, put it on the floor and fill it up with peanuts — and that's it—High Camp!"

She went on to take a firm stand against what she called the Ugly Hour type of life, and that's where she began to whang on the strings of my heart. Hark! as Annie says to Sandy:

"Our music is noise, our dances are convulsions, our language is unprintable, our religions are Godless and our manners are just plain ungodly." And she proposes this creed:

"I believe in soap and water and shampoo.

"I believe that the razor and blade and barber will rise again.

"I believe that any knee over 40 is better off covered, except Marlene Dietrich's — and so are all the knobby knees of any vintage.

"I belive that the wordsmith of the day should not be Lady Chatterley's lover—and that the gamey gamekeeper's language belongs, if anywhere, on the back fence and not at our conference tables and luncheon tables.

"I believe in two sexes — each distinguishable from the other by clothing and hairdo.

"I believe that it is still socially acceptable to keep one's clothes on at social events—Berkeley University notwithstanding.

"I believe that courtesy is not corny, loyalty is not square and God is not dead— although he must get awfully sick."

Which strikes me as a workable set of ideas and altogether remarkable coming from someone in the advertising business. I have sometimes discussed with my friend Sam Papert, a fellow we have taken to raise, the standards of the advertising profession. Sam is a newspaper representative who worries— about everything. I suspect he worries about the same things that got Miss Foxworth into a snit, inasmuch as he is the one who sent me the report of her speech. Anyway, it's comforting to think that not everybody in advertising is as bad as I tell Sam.

Boy, they've got enough 'filberts' in Washington to fill 20 million Christmas stockings.

The Humane Society was denied a petition to stop the interior dept. from trapping a few wild mustangs left in this country and grind them up for dog food.

I tell you, its enough to gripe my middle kidney. I saw them wild horses once when I was a boy and they are a beautiful sight. Running, and snorting they are about the only remaining symbol of feedom left.

I suppose that's why the bureaucrats don't like having them around. If they can't control them then they want to destroy them. The Humane Society says the bureau of land management "secretly begun costruction of traps and plans for fencing off water holes" used by the mustangs.

They planned to trap these wonderful beasts by cutting off all but a single source of water which would result in many of them dying of thirst. I guess we can't stop them from roundig up the mustangs and destroying them, but I know of a few jackasses I would like to round up and cut their water off. I don't know if they would have any market value, though. Dogs ain't too particular about what they eat but they do draw the line somewhere.

Projected Space Committee Grilling on NASA Program Apparently 'Last Straw' Before Webb Resignation

ROBERT ALLEN

JOHN GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — James E. Webb was headed for an unpleasant and potentially embarrassing confrontation with the Senate Space Committee when he abruptly resigned last week as head of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Four days previously he had been told by Chairman Clinton P. Anderson, D-N.M., that he would be called on the committee carpet soon to justify NASA's operating plans. For Webb, already fretting over his pared-down $3.85 billion budget, it was apparently the last straw.

Webb quickly requested, and was granted, an appointment with President Johnson. They met last Monday in what insiders say was an attempt by Webb to have Johnson intercede with Anderson. Anderson and the President are old friends, and Johnson is a former chairman of the Senate space committee.

In their White House meeting, however, the President showed no disposition to intervene on Webb's behalf. In the animated discussion the fast-talking Webb submitted his resignation and it was accepted. At a news conference later, Webb said he was not satisfied with the pace of the U.S. space program at a time when it is clearly running second to Russia's.

In his letter to Webb, which he has declined to disclose, Anderson is said to have advised the civilian space boss that he would be recalled for space committee questioning as soon as the NASA budget got final congressional approval.

Anderson stated brusquely that his committee was not satisfied, in at least two respects, with Webb's proposed operating plan for the current year. The principal points at issue were NERVA, the nuclear powered rocket program, and NASA's administrative outlays proposed for this year.

Nuclear rocket propulsion has been nursed along by Anderson for 10 years. Before there was any U.S. space program, Anderson, then chairman of the Senate-House Atomic Energy Committee, was authorizing visionary research on nuclear-powered space flight. He reportedly told Webb that the $32.5 million planned this year was not enough for NERVA, which had been budgeted for $60 million.

Anderson is reported to have questioned Webb's proposed reallotment of certain operating funds into NASA's administrative echelons. He's said to have asked why costs for administering the $3.8 billion-a-year space program have not been materially reduced from the costs of a $5 billion program, and why NASA's payrolls have not declined as previously projected.

Webb was caught in a tightening budget squeeze. Congress gave him nearly $6 billion for the non-military space program as recently as 1966, but the outlay has been dwindling ever since, and Congress, despite Webb's best persuasive efforts, has shied away from establishing major space goals beyond the manned moon landing still hopefully planned for next year.

It is a bit of irony, however, that Webb should have his final run-in with the chairman of the Senate Space Committee. Things were different back in 1961 when Webb assumed command of the fledgeling U.S. space effort.

At that time the Senate chairman was the late Sen. Robert S. Kerr, D-Okla. Webb, while he had been former President Truman's budget director and had held other government jobs, stepped into the space agency from a job with Kerr-McGee Oil Industries, Inc., Sen. Kerr's oil firm.

McNAMARA AGAIN — After a short lapse, members of the House are happily throwing darts again at a favorite old target, former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara, who is now president of the World Bank.

McNamara and the bank are under fire for a $5.3 million loan designed to help in the development of Ecuador's fishing industry. United States representatives supported the granting of the loan, which will surely be a great help in improving Ecuador's tuna fleet.

The trouble is that Ecuador claims territorial fishing rights stretching 200 miles seaward from its coasts. The Ecuadorian navy has seized half a dozen ships within those "coastal waters" this year, including four U.S. tuna boats boarded 20 miles at sea last month and held for payment of $200,000 in fines.

Noting that President Johnson recently signed a bill aimed at withholding U.S. assistance from nations which take such action, Rep. Lionel Van Deerlin, D-Calif., complained about the World Bank loan in a recent House speech. He said the State Department obviously supported the transaction by which Ecuador got help from the internationally operated World Bank.

Rep. Thomas R. Pelly, R-Wash., also criticized McNamara for the loan. He said the claim for a 200-mile territorial limit is "outrageous" and called the seizure of U.S. vessels "an act of piracy." Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Ia., a veteran McNamara gadfly, also joined in the criticism.

RFK — The Kennedy family is quietly assembling its own book of anecdotes about the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y. The word, as of now, is that the volume is to be given private circulation within the family and a close circle of friends.

Question Box

(We invite questions on economics and the proper functions of government which will not injure anyone.)

QUESTION: Should any man-made or civil law, local, state, or federal, do injustice to any person in the World?

ANSWER: . They should not, of course, but they nearly always do. We can think of lots of man-made civil laws that do injustice to many, many people. No true law, that is, one that is in harmony with natural law or God's law, would do any injustice to any individual. If it is in harmony with God's or natural law, it is moral and just.

It is because we have so many man-made civil laws, or artificial laws, which are out of harmony with God's laws or nature's law that we are in the predicament we are in today.

All these man-made laws that injure people are out of harmony with the Declaration of Independence which recognized and set forth that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed — and that means the consent of each individual, not merely the consent of the majority.

It is easy to give plenty of examples of man-made laws that injure some individual. One is such local laws as zoning laws which deprive a man of the right to manage his own property as he sees fit. If he manages it so as to damage someone else, his neighbor or whomever he damages, has a right to collect the damage.

The progressive income tax, an inheritance tax, and a gift tax, are examples of laws that are completely out of harmony with natural law or God's law and out of harmony with the Declaration of Independence. Laws that impose taxes to make a man pay for something he doesn't want to use injure those who are forced to pay for something they don't want to use. They are therefore not moral law. They are civil or artificial, man-made laws that injure many people.

We can think of but few laws which injure any person that should be made legal and binding. Such laws as making it a crime to steal and murder.

A harmful law can be made legal, but it cannot be made moral and just.

A Look at the Book

By DR. BOB JONES

A Price to Pay

It is always wise to ask oneself, "To' what results will this course of action lead me?" A consideration of the consequences rarely precedes the deed which ultimately produces a tragedy. One who considers the inevitable results of sin will pause before rushing headlong to his destruction.

Playing with fire, the boy does not behold in advance the charred and smoking ruins which will result from his carelessness. Taking his first drink, the youth does not see in the glass the reflection of the red-eyed drunkard he will become. Juggling his expense account or misappropriating a few dollars, the young businessman fails to consider the humiliation and tragedy looming ahead on the road of dishonesty as it leads him toward gray prison walls.

This is an important question, "What effect will this act have on me today?" But definitely more important is the question, "What will be the final result of this act?"

In the time of the Prophet Jeremiah the nation of Judah had almost completely forgotten God. Enamored of the idolatry of neighboring countries, nobility and common people alike had become corrupt and wicked. Moral conditions were growing worse all the time. But, in those days, as always, God had a faithful few who didn't follow the popular trend. Jeremiah was one of these. Alarmed by the blindness of the people to the impending national destruction, crying out against the popular sins of his day, he sought to warn them of the results of their course of life. Watching the people listen gladly to false prophets who promised peace and prosperity and blessing, Jeremiah asked them this question: "What will ye do in the end?" He lived to see the answer to his own question. In the end their city was destroyed. In the end they were slain or taken captive.

Sin always brings destruction in its wake. You may seem to get by with the violation of God's law today, but the "wages of sin is death." You may hide your sin from others now, but what will you do in the end when you come to stand in the presence of God, from whom nothing is hid?

Is God Illegal?

Almighty God, We Acknowledge our dependence upon Thee, and we beg Thy blessings upon us, our parents, our teachers and our country.

The words above are historic. They are also illegal. In 1962 the Supreme Court ruled that school children in New York could not recite them.

Prayer in the classroom isn't precisely illegal; a supreme Court decision binds only those parties concerned in the particular case. A decision is the "law of the case," not the "law of the land." For all practical purposes, however, what the Court said in 1962 affects the whole country. Lower courts are not particularly eager to be overruled, and everybody knows what the Supreme Court would decide on any future school prayer questions.

The ironic thing about the whole prayer issue is that, according to a Harris Poll of a few years ago, more than 94 percent of the American people stand in favor of prayer in public schools. How can it be that this overwhelming majority is ignored?

In a Representative Republic the will of the people is supposedly reflected and expressed — not buried and repressed. That the American public should be so arbitrarily silenced on such an important issue is one of the greatest insults of our day. But what can be done? The Court is not likely to reverse it's decision, the will of the people notwithstanding.

What can be done is so simple that most people overlook it. We need not go through the grueling process of amending the Constitution. The Constitution already provides a solution.

" . . . In all cases affecting Ambassadors, other public Ministers and Consuls, and those in which a State shall be a Party, the Supreme Court shall have original jurisdiction. In all the other Cases before mentioned, the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to Law and Fact, with such Exceptions, and under such Regulations as Congress shall make."

Congress can bar the Supreme Court from hearing any school prayer cases. The lower courts would no longer act upon fear of reversals. The will of the people could be expressed. All by a single, simple act of Congress.

Dean Clarence Manion has prepared an exhaustive critical study of the whole school prayer issue— its history, its development and what you can do about it. In a special position paper entitled "God and the Government," Dean Manion strips away the nonessential and misleading rhetoric, and tells it like it is.

The Doctor Says

By DR. W. G. BRANDSTADT

Heavy Smoking can Cause Premature Births

Q—In what week of pregnancy would a woman notice her abdomen beginning to protrude? How soon after conception do breast changes occur?

A—The increase in the size of the abdomen in pregnancy comes about so gradually it is hard to pinpoint the moment when it becomes unmistakable. This varies greatly with a woman's body build and somewhat with the sharpness of the eyes of the observer. In general, pregnancy begins to show in most women after nine or 10 weeks Breast changes occur at about the some time but these are more noticeable in a first pregnancy than in subsequent ones.

Q—Can a woman whose monthly periods last only a day or two become pregnant and have a normal child?

A—Yes, unless some other abnormality exists.

Q—What effect would excessive smoking (three packs a day) and drinking (six cans of beer a day) by a mother have on her fetus?

A—The only effect heavy smoking has been shown to have on a pregnancy is to cause miscarriage or premature birth. But this should be sufficient reason to quit smoking or at least limit your smoking to half a pack a day.

Although information on the effect of a mother's drinking is not so specific, authorities agree that it is harmful. If you would hesitate to give a newborn baby a shot of whisky, you should remember that part of all you drink will find its way to the fetus through the umbilcal cord.

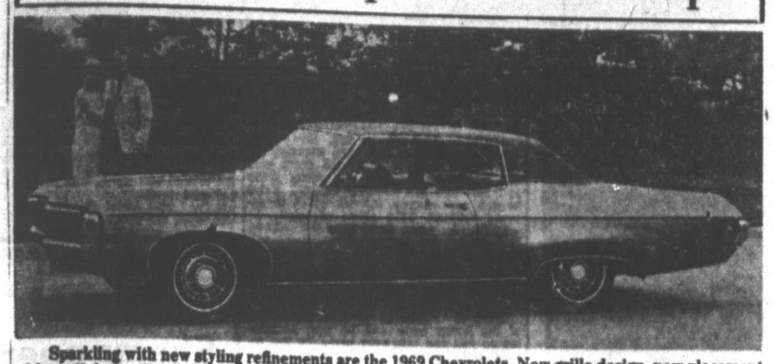

Q —Is it safe for a pregnant woman to exercise, wear a girdle or sleep on her stomach? Why, in the first two months of pregnancy, do the breasts get so large?

A—All pregnant women who are in good health should get some exercise daily. The amount to be recommended would depend on the stage of pregnancy and other factors and should be determined by your doctor. When your regular girdle begins to feel tight, you should switch to an adjustable girdle. Sleeping on your stomach will have no harmful effect in early pregnancy. Later, it will be awkward and you will naturally find a more comfortable position.

The body changes accompanying pregnancy are controlled by your hormones, They are aimed at nourishing the new baby, both before and after birth. Why the breast changes occur so far ahead of time is anybody's guess.

In 1781, Gen. George Washington, backed by the French fleet, with 9,000 colonial troops and 7,000 French soldiers, began the siege of British and Hessian forces at Yorktown Heights, N.Y.

Demos Fear Illinois Is Republican Country

By DAVID SMOTHERS
UPI Senior Editor

CHICAGO (UPI)—At the back of a bar in an Irish neighborhood on Chicago's South Side is a fresh new sign which reads, "Support Mayor Daley and The Chicago Police."

Such spontaneous hometown support may warm the heart of Chicago's suddenly controversial mayor. But it is not likely to do much for three guys named Humphrey, Shapiro and Clark.

There is a growing trepidation among Democratic chieftains in Illinois that many of the same people who are praising Daley and his police department's riot control are planning to cast their votes Nov. 5 for Richard M. Nixon, or even George C. Wallace, rather than Daley's man, Hubert H. Humphrey.

Bad News

If that's the way it's going to be, it has to be bad news for Samuel H. Shapiro and William G. Clark, the entries on the Democratic ticket for governor and senator.

As far as the people of Chicago—perhaps the people of Illinois—are concerned, Daley's personal standing probably was not hurt by the spectacle of police battling young demonstrators during the Democratic National Convention. His popularity may have even increased. But it is unlikely that Daley can transfer his reinforced law and order image to the men who need it—the candidates his usually peerless Chicago machine are supposed to pull to victory in Illinois.

The big question in Illinois, in fact, is whether Daley's machine has the stuff this year to deliver even Chicago for the Democratic headliners.

There are a variety of alarm signals indicating the machine and the state party are in deep trouble.

Alley Cats

It is one of the axioms of Illinois politics, for instance, that the Democrats fight each other like alley cats in the warmup stages of a campaign and then unite behind the leadership of Daley and his handpicked candidates for the home stretch.

Coincidentally, Illinois Republicans have been prone to squabble with each other in the early going and to keep on disliking each other, in public or just behind the scenes, right up to election day and beyond.

This year, the traditional patterns of behavior seemed reversed.

The Republicans had a ding dong gubernatorial primary which left many party members seething over the winner, hard-nosed Cook County (Chicago) Board President Richard B. Ogilvie. But primary loser John Henry Altorfer is out working hard for the ticket and has shown no reluctance to appear at Ogilvie's side.

Few Worries

And there are few worries or quarrels attending Everett McKinley Dirksen in his bid for a fourth term. The sachem of Senate Republicans is confining his campaigning, for the most part, to lending a benign presence to occasional celebrations of party unity and to frustrating Clark by blandly ignoring his existence.

While Illinois Republicans join in admiration of each other and of Nixon, Daley is hard pressed to keep order in the Democratic ranks. Some of the troops are even firing at him. Items:

—Clark's refusal to follow a hard Daley-Johnson line on Vietnam. The Illinois attorney general unveiled himself as an unexpected dove and broke ranks at the convention by endorsing Sen. George S. McGovern. Perhaps as a result, Daley kept Clark guessing until the last minute whether he would turn up at a fund-raising banquet this month. When the mayor finally showed, he was one of the few in the crowd without a dinner jacket, and he left early to attend a wake.

State Treasurer Adlai E. Stevenson's refusal to hail the Daley way of keeping order in the streets and in the party. Stevenson, bearer of an illustrious name and the Democrat's best vote getter in Illinois lately, instead called the state party "feudalistic" and said the convention uproars had made Chicago "scorned by thinking people throughout the world."

Panic Reports

Rumors that Daley's precinct captains, the pride of their profession, in the past are turning in panic reports of Wallace inroads among white union members who are ordinarily counted upon to vote the straight Democratic ticket without even reading the names on the ballot.

The ground rules of Illinois politics dictate that Democratic candidates must win big in Chicago if they are to hold off the Republicans downstate. John F. Kennedy took only a handful of Illinois counties outside of Cook in 1960, yet still won the state and the presidency by a whisker (and there are Nixon loyalists who still swear Daley somehow turned that trick by stealing 4,500 odd votes in his bailiwick).

In that year, the Daley machine was in perfect health. This year it is far from that. Yet it could be that even a Chicago jugernaut in top operating form could not save Illinois' 26 electoral votes—fourth fattest package among the states—for the Democrats in 1968.

The law and order issue draws a deep welt in Illinois—among Chicagoans frightened by riot in the Negro ghettoes, among downstaters alarmed that big city crime and civil dissent may spread their way. The convention riots, Daley's toughness notwithstanding, irritated the unease.

Wallace, without hardly even trying, has been the chief beneficiary of this concern over the state of society in Illinois. The full extent of his support at this point is incalculable, but some informal samplings in Chicago working class areas have shown him trailing only Nixon, with Humphrey eating dust.

COUNTRY GIRL has a lot of appeal. Carol Anderson, 16, of Edison, N.J., leans on a hay rake at the New Jersey state fairgrounds in Trenton. The New Jersey state fair, the oldest in America, was first chartered by England's King George in 1745.

Chevrolet introduces 1969.

Caprice. Match this, you other 69's!

There is no joy in the land of our competitors today.

But let us ask you this.

Should we have made the Caprice shorter instead of the longest Chevrolet ever built? Or adorned it with flashy nicknacks to make it look less expensive?

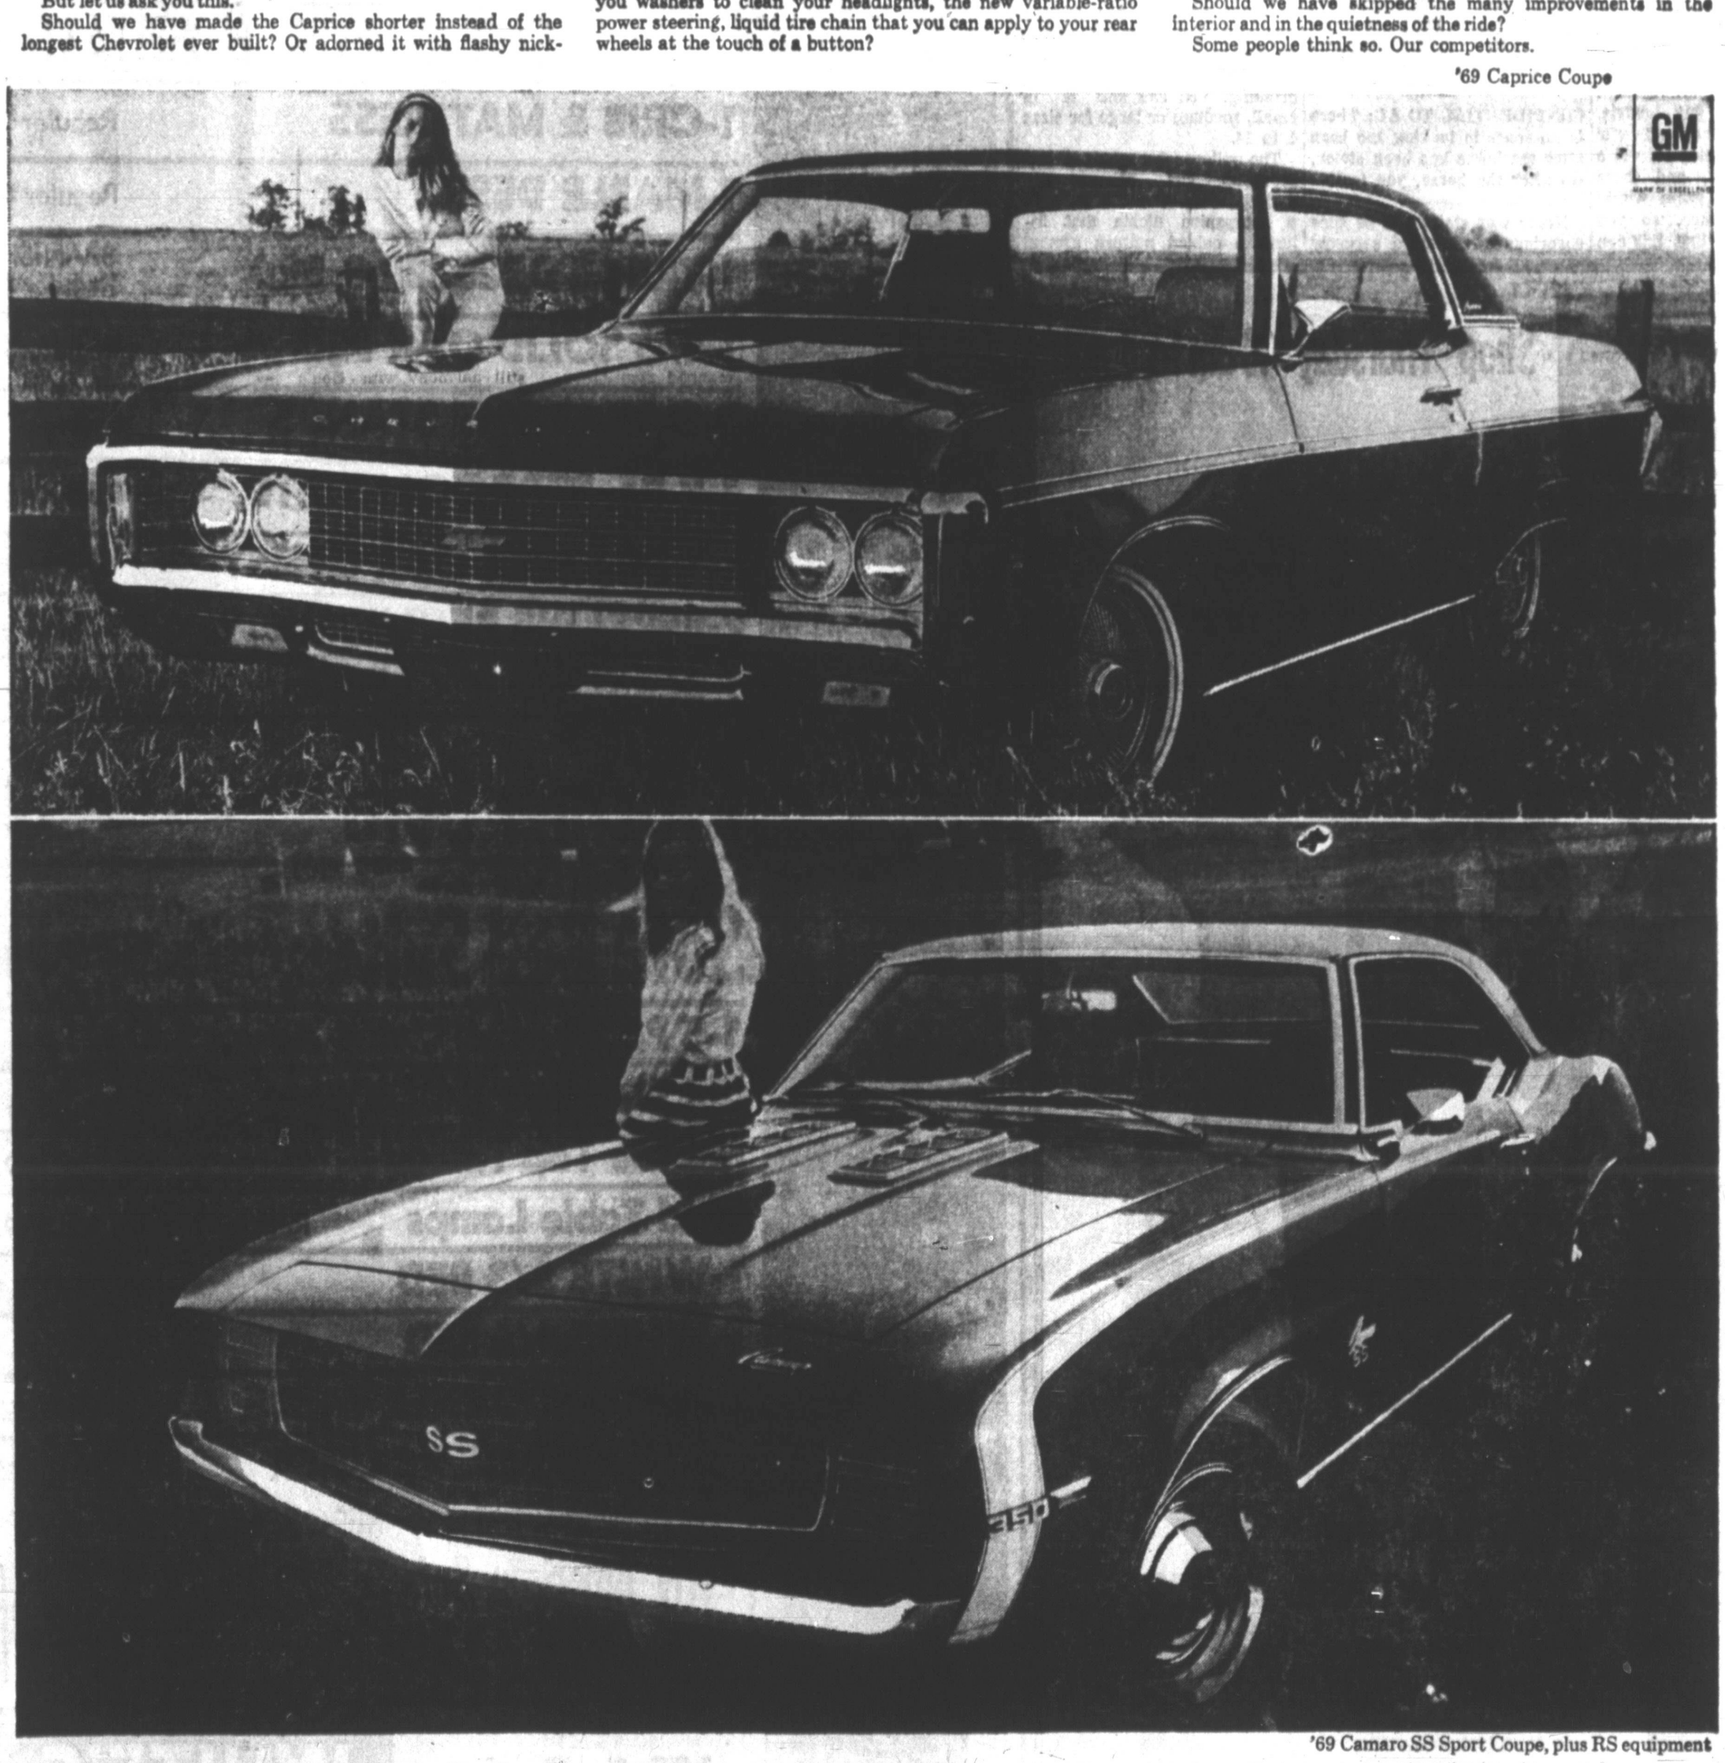

Just because competition doesn't should we not have offered you washers to clean your headlights, the new variable-ratio power steering, liquid tire chain that you can apply to your rear wheels at the touch of a button?

Should we not have included the new 327-cubic-inch engine, the biggest standard V8 in its field?

Should we have skipped the many improvements in the interior and in the quietness of the ride?

Some people think so. Our competitors.

'69 Caprice Coupe

'69 Camaro SS Sport Coupe, plus RS equipment

Camaro. Who needs to say "announcing" or "new".

Look at how it all hangs together. No gingerbread anywhere. Not a line that isn't leaning into the wind.

The interior is also much improved.

The ride is quieter.

The power range is very impressive.

Standard V8 is 210 hp. SS engines available up to 325 hp.

For added SS appeal: striping that flanks the nose and charges up the side, power disc brakes, wide oval tires with raised white lettering.

And when those big, fat tires grab the ground, you can almost hear the suction.

Your Chevrolet dealer offers this advice:

Go on, you other sportsters. Gnash your gears and look tough.

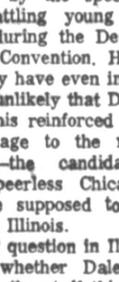

Maybe it will help.

Putting you first, keeps us first.

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: My son is being married soon. Two years age, his father and I were divorced, and his father is now married to the woman he has been playing around with for the last 5 years.

Under the circumstances I feel that my husband's new wife does not belong at our son's wedding.

My son and his fiancee feel that now that father finally married this little homewrecker, she should attend the wedding.

I am considering asking them to make a choice. If they want me at the wedding, father's wife can stay home. If they want her, I'll stay home. What is your opinion?

WAITING

DEAR WAITING: If it's common knowledge, and not just your opinion that father's wife is a "homewrecker," she doesn't belong at your son's wedding. Don't punish the young couple, however, by giving them a choice. Go and be a lady. If father's wife insists on going, too, it is she who may have difficulty holding her head high.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 14-year-old girl, and my best girl friend is worrying me to death. She is also 14, but she is very developed (physically) for a girl her age. She looks like about 18. She told me that for the last 3 months a 19-year-old boy has been coming over to her house to see her in the evening while her parents are at work. Her parents don't even know this guy exists. She tells me that all she wears when he comes over is a bikini bathing suit, and there is no place to swim within 5 miles of her place, so you know as well as I that this can mean big trouble.

I keep telling her to be careful, but she says nothing has happened so far, and nothing will.

What can I do to prevent trouble? I can't tell her mother because her mother will probably tell her how she found out, and my girl friend will never speak to me again. Sign me,

WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: Tell your mother. She'll know what to do.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 2 years and have no children. Because I have no children, my friends, relatives, and neighbors think I am the perfect baby-sitter. I love children, and I don't mind baby-sitting in an emergency and I never charge for my services.

Is there a nice way to tell these people to find somebody else? I am sick and tired of being used. One girl actually drops her child off at my house without even asking me first. Many times my own plans have been ruined because parents don't come back to get their child when they say they will. Thank you.

M.R.H.

DEAR M.R.H.: No one can "use you" without your cooperation. And if you are "used" once by inconsiderate, nervy acquaintances, shame on them. But if it happens twice, shame on YOU!

CONFIDENTIAL TO AL: There is no sense in locking the barn after the horse has been stolen. Go after the horse, you fool!

Never wax stairs and be sure coverings are fastened securely

Children Copy Parents' Knitted Fall Fashions

By Judy Love
(Newspaper Enterprise Association)

Children often are carbon copies of their parents in the way they look, act and dress. As a knitter, you no doubt turn out fashions for your favorite youngsters that are miniature models of what you —or their parents — are wearing.

Back in the 13th century, youngsters had special privileges in the matter of dress. Laws, designed to keep excessive luxuries in check, did allow embroidery to be worn by boys up to the age of 12 and by unmarried girls.

For the most part, however, children's fashions over the years reflected the styles worn by adults. In the 19th century, boys grew up almost overnight. Until age 4 to 5, a boy wore skirts, then traded them in for long trousers and a tiny bowler hat just like daddy's!

The 19th-century lad's costume was simpler than his father's but it was clumsy and confining for active games. Today's little boy is luckier by far — with a rugged little he—man wardrobe that's ready for action.

The sweater I'm showing today is designed to make a little boy every inch the sportsman that his father is. Rows of cable patterns are he-man handsome and the collar is shaped into an easy neckline for extra comfort in wearing and dressing. You can knit it in small, medium or large for sizes 4 to 14.

The pullover for moms or any grown-up girl plunges into a deep, deep V neckline. Knit a companion dickie that features a cabled pattern around a stand-up collar, or wear the topper with a crisp white or colored blouse. The sweater can be knit in sizes 12 to 18 in all - wool Sesame superknitting worsted. This yarn has one of the largest color ranges on the market today.

For your copy of knitting directions for both pullovers, send 50 cents to Stitchin, Time C—O Pampa Daily News P.O. Box 503, Radio City Station, New York, N. Y. 10019. Please ask for leaflet No. S137 and be sure to include your zip code with your name and address.

KNIT KNACKS

A new knitter, Miss LE from Saginaw, Mich., has written for an explanation of "yarn over." This is actually an increase stitch, often called for in directions for the openwork increases on raglan sleeve shapings. It's also used in lace patterns.

HANDSOME TOPPERS are easy to knit for outdoor sports of all ages. Knitting directions for both the boy's pullover in sizes 4 to 14 and mom's slimming V-neck sweater and dickie are available.

Astrological Forecast

By CARROLL RIGHTER

(FOR THURSDAY, SEPT. 26)

GENERAL TENDENCIES: Be very careful you do not get into any argument with another and steer clear of accidental conditions and if you do, you find you have a good chance to get one who is pretty highly placed to go along with some idea that has to do with the school of thought most important to you whether in mental, physical outlets.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) —Keep those appointments tha are imporant to your schemes right now, and don't permit a co-worker to get you down, make you feel you are shirking duties. You need a new channel through which to express yourself. Find peace of mind.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) —Know just what your real responsibilities are and then discharge them very quickly as well so that tonight you can turn your mind toward the romantic. Forget early morning tangent that prevents your getting your work done.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) —Out of the house early and be with associates so you can talk over plans for the future, make the right arrangements with them. A former partner can also be won back. Do so through gentle conversation.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) — You have home or office duties that should be attended meticulously now, so leave outside matters until a better day. Be careful in motion or there can be an unfortunate accident. A day for pitching right in and getting things done.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) — If you think you are not in a good financial condition, forget it and concentrate on having a good time socially so you renew your energies and get good ideas. Show that particular talent you possess. Then tomorrow get going great guns.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) — That excellent idea you have can't be put in motion right now, since kin expect much of you, so please them for today. Have social fun at home tonight. Outside affairs could prove very disappointing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Why fairs could prove very disappointing.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) — Why don't you forget that worry that is only a pain in the neck and be out in the business world and make your mark in the world? Combining efforts with good friend sees much accomplished. Be yourself.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) —Don't permit acquaintances to encroach on your time, etc. and get busy handling practical matters that are vital right now. Analyzing what you have to do and then getting into duties sees them done in jig time. Be efficient thorough.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21)—Steer clear of that Big-wig who demands too much and get busy handling personal matters that are important to you and reputation. Are you going to let that little nitwit lead you the wrong way?

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) — Better finish off what you have promised instead of delving into some new outlet about which you know little or nothing. You need good advice badly, so seek it from a real expert. Do nothing hastily.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) —You are by nature a gregarious person and this is a good day to be just that and get the results you want, both in business and personal areas. Discharge obligations wisely. The social tonight can be most wonderful for you.

Doctor Disenchanted By North Viet Communism

By HELEN GIBSON

SAIGON (UPI)—The North Vietnamese doctor, who had spent a year with his regiment fighting the allies near Saigon before he defected, spoke softly but bitterly about the state of his country.

"Many things came up in my mind to make me come to the South Vietnamese government," he said. "I thought about my family's standard of living compared to what it used to be; that the people work so hard but have almost no enjoyment; that we are given ownership papers to everything, but in fact we own nothing."

Dr. Le Cong Hung, dressed in civilian clothes, simply walked away from the Dong Ngai regiment one evening a few months ago when it was fighting the allies on the outskirts of Saigon.

He hid in a printer's shop until 5:30 the next morning.

"I found an ARVN (South Vietnamese) lieutenant and said I come from Hanoi and want to turn myself in and they wouldn't believe me," said the doctor. "Then finally they took me to headquarters. I talked to the major. I was encouraged. He didn't look like the sort of rascal I had expected the ARVN officers to be."

The 38-year-old doctor with the mobile, intelligent face leaned forward and thumped the table in front of him and said:

"I did not understand communism any more, you see. I didn't want to follow blindly what the party told me, to follow the ridiculous slogans. When the party tells us to go, we go. They say fight, we fight."

Hung's wife and two children are still in the north. He left them 18 months ago when he was suddenly told by the army that he would be going south—within the next six hours, for an indefinite period of time. After pleading, he managed to get four days off in which to see his family, scattered in all parts of the country.

His wife had to work in a dye factory, and the children were sent to live with a grandmother, because neither parent liked having the children brought up by the government-run factory nursery.

Hung looked tired and sad when he spoke of the country he had left behind.

A worker cannot leave a factory, a farmer cannot leave his land, he said, without permission. Even shifting from one factory to another to do the same job needed a permit.

A visit to one's family in another province required a batch of papers and there was serious trouble for everyone, if a stranger walked into a village and was not reported.

"I have a niece who wants to go to the University of Hanoi," he said. "The city corporation says it is her duty to work there as a secretary. So she is a secretary."

In the cities only 20 per cent of the students can go on to higher education, and only 15 per cent in the rural areas, it was learned from another defector.

But Hung said many intellectuals in North Vietnam felt the same bitterness as he did—writers who can only write along approved lines, painters whose art is shaped by the party.

"People still think, though," said Hung. "They are not robots. They know that Asian communism has been mortified by Mao, and it is not suitable for today any more."

North Koreans Still Want US Pueblo Apology

TOKYO (UPI)—North Korea said Tuesday the 82-man crew of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo will be freed only when the United States formally apologizes for the "crime" of spying inside the territorial waters of the Communist state.

The Pueblo was captured on Jan. 23 by North Korean gunboats in the Sea of Japan. One crewman was fatally injured in the incident.

The North Korean demand came in an article in the authoritative newspaper Rodong Shinmoon signed by "Commentator" which is usually a pseudonym for a high-ranking government oficial, broadcast by the Communist Korean Central News Agency (KCNA).

It was the first definite statement by the Pyongyang regive since rumors of the imminent release of the American prisoners circulated earlier this month.

The broadcast, monitored in Tokyo, said the article was titled "U.S. Imperialists will never have crew of armed spy ship Pueblo sent back unless they apologize."

It said the Pueblo crewmen "honestly confessed to their criminal acts and repeatedly entreated the government of the Democratic (Communist) Pioples Republic of Korea to leniently pardon them . . . " The Communist radio has broadcast alleged "confessions" by Capt. Lloyd Bucher, the skipper, and members of the crew saying the ship was inside North Korean waters when captured.

GRIEF-STRICKEN Vietnamese woman cries bitterly as she surveys remnants of her Saigon home after shelling by Viet Cong, who also struck cities of Tay Ninh and Nhabe, the air base at Bien Hoa and five artillery bases.

Washington Report

From Congressman

BOB PRICE 19TH DISTRICT, TEXAS

Appropriations for the Foreign Assistance Act of 1969 were substantially reduced in the bill passed by the House of Representatives last Thursday. In my opinion, however, the entire $1.6 billion approved for Foreign Aid could have been eliminated from appropriations for fiscal 1969 without seriously affecting the program.

Because of the continuing seriousness of the U.S. balance of payments problem abroad and the inflationary spiral at home, I voted against the bill along with 138 other Members. The President had requested $2.9 billion in his budget. The Foreign Affairs Committees of the House and Senate had reduced the authorization for Foreign Aid to $1.98 billion and then the Appropriations Committee had cut that figure to $1.6 billion. But, as Rep. Otto Passman, the Chairman of the subcommittee said, the bill has become . so framentized that it is necessary to go through the entire budget to pick-up all the pieces that are not included in the bill.

The Committee report on the bill itemized $10,847,940,000 for selected programs involving international activities that the President has requested in the 1969 budget. In addition to the $2.9 billion for foreign assistance, other programs and requests included both military and economic assistance in the Defense budget, Export-Import Bank, PL 480 (Food for Peace), Inter-American Development Bank, International Development Association, Asian Development Bank, Peace Corps, foreign educational assistance, contributions to international organizations and others that add up to almost $11 billion. This compares with the 1968 request of $9.2 billion and 1967 of $8.2 billion.

Those who decried the cuts and the left-wing WASHINGTON POST that ranted editorially of "reckless abandon" and "hatchet-work" on what they termed a "bare bones" request ignored the fact that unexpended balances for these programs now total $20,762,926,000. And, unless there is a substantial increase in U. S. commercial exports, we can look forward to another substantial deficit in our international balance of payments account in calendar year 1968. The 1967 deficit was $3,650,000,000 and resulted in this year's gold crisis.

A list of countries that have purchased gold from us during the period 1957 through 1967 shows that each one of the countries was or is now a recipient of U.S. assistance during that period. Their actions have reduced our gold stockpile from $22,857,000,000 on Dec. 31, 1957 to $11,981,594,750 on Dec. 31, 1967. In addition, many of the countries were also purchasing newly-mined gold to add to their gold reserves. The 72 countries that purchased this more than $20 billion in U.S. gold, during that 10 year period, received $22,949,900,000 in U. S. economic and military assistance.

There is no question of U. S. concern and compassion for the hunger, poverty, and distress in many parts of the world. And our help could have been continued with the huge amounts already funded in previous years. But, in the face of a $25.4 billion deficit this year, a $30 billion annual cost of the war in Vietnam, continuing inflation, cost of living increases, gold outflow, skyrocketing costs for medical care, education and everything else, I consider it unfair to ask the U.S. taxpayer to assume the burden of taking care of all of the so-called under-developed countries of the world.

DEADBEAT

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (UPI)—Service station attendant Wilber Boop said a man driving a battered old car pulled into his station and ordered 50 cents worth of gas.

Boop told police the man not only refused to pay the bill but also demanded trading stamps. When Boop refused, the man hit him and drove away.

QUICK TRIP

LAS VEGAS, N.M. (UPI)—Two of three escapees from the San Miguel County Jail thumbed their way back behind bars Tuesday.

The two men, one an accused murderer, hitched a ride with Sheriff Pat Gallegos, who drove them straight to jail.

WHITE ELEPHANT

BEDHAMPTON, England (UPI)—Mrs. Dorothy Jones, a housewife who doesn't drive, Tuesday went to Winchester to pick up a new car worth $3,120. It was the second automobile she has won in promotion contests.

FOREIGN NEWS COMMENTARY
Olympics Threatened

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Roadblocks and military emplacements guarding the way to Mexico City's Olympic Games Stadium are significant of a challenge to vested Mexican authority going far beyond the mere interruption of an athletic contest.

NOT GEORGE GOBEL although there is a resemblance. This is noted criminal lawyer Melvin Belli as he appears in his acting debut on an episode of the "Star Trek" TV series.

Their success is threatened by spreading antigovernment student unrest that began last July as a rather ordinary clash between rival student groups and now has burgeoned into an attack on Mexico's whole economic, political and social structure.

The students charge the government is corrupt and protects a new type of overlord not much different from the landed oligarchy of the past.

The real story behind charge and countercharge is more difficult to disentangle.

One view is that the government and police overreacted in the first incident last July and followed it up in attempting to quell three days of riot and destruction beginning with celebration of the 10th anniversary of the Cuban revolution.

Student protests against alleged police brutality and violation of traditional unipersity autonomy have blossomed to include demands for release of political prisoners and abolition of laws punishing those accused of subversion.

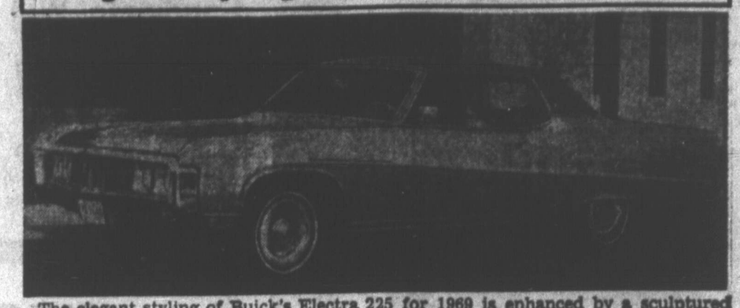

In Mexico City, more than 1,000 university students have been jailed, and the student demonstrations have spread to half a dozen other Mexican cities. There have been casualties.

The government charges the demonstrations have been taken over by Communists of the Che Guevara and Mao Tse-tung stripe.

Between the extremes may lie the unfortunate truth—the failure to find a meeting ground between a government which has pioneered great economic and social gains and an educated youth demanding that they go further and faster.

Elegant Styling For 1969 Electra Series

The elegant styling of Buick's Electra 225 for 1969 is enhanced by a sculptured sweepline that extends the full length of the car from the front wheel housing to the rear bumper. The Electra series has all-new bodies with luxurious new interiors and a new suspension for better handling. Side window vents have been eliminated on all upper series cars in Buick's 1969 line, for improved visibility and to reduce wind noise. Complimenting the exterior styling is a new instrument panel with all components clustered in front of the steering wheel for improved driver accessibility. The Electra is powered by a 430-cubic inch V-8 engine coupled with a Turbo Hydra-matic transmission. Power brakes and power steering are standard on the Electra.

Wallace Leads In Vietnam Poll

SAIGON (UPI)—George C. Wallace has jumped to a two-to-one lead over Richard M. Nixon in a presidential poll in the English-language Saigon Daily News.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey trailed in third place with 13 votes against 127 for Wallace and 64 for Nixon.

Newborn Babies Not Necessarily 'Bundles of Joy' To This Mom

By JOAN HANAUER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Whoever named newborn babies bundles of joy never changed a dirty diaper at 2 a.m. or tried to coax an affectionate response from a cross-eyed, bald-headed infant.

As a guess, it seems likely the term came from a doaing-a-a distance grandparent. Even adoring fathers know better.

What every woman should know about babies, particularly the expectant mother walking around in a glow of anticipatory love, is that infants are more like lumps than bundles, and the joy involved rests more in what the little lump will become than what he is.

By the time the baby is a few months old, of course, it all changes and infant enters a delightful stage of coos and smiles.

Speaking from experience, when I first brought my tiny daughter home from the hospital I was horrified to find my mother-love tested by a rain of wet and soiled diapers, burping problems and spitting up.

Depressing Reality

What was bothing me was not the much discussed post natal depression—it was depressing reality. The picture was this:

—I was trapped in my own home, unable to do anything on the spur of the moment because baby couldn't be left alone. I practically had to hire a babysitter so I could go to the supermarket, a trip that was becoming my idea of jailbreak.

—On top of the housework, which I attacked compulsively out of the guilty feeling that as a temporarily nonworking mother I had no excuse for a messy home, there were the baby's chores. They weren't difficult, but that formula-making, sterlization, feeding, bathing, changing, all had to be done on schedule, not when I felt like it.

All this would have been okay if my little daughter even knew who I was or showed some sign of noticing me. Instead she stared at me—or the rug or the slipcovers—with crossed eyes and a vacant face.

Adding to my mounting hysteria would be the women who would tell me, "This is the wonderful time—enjoy it while you can. You'll miss it when the baby starts to grow."

Questionable Motherhood

One night I sobbingly confessed to my husband the fear that I was an unnatural mother. He said he thought most women felt as I did. Not entirely reassured I began to question friends.

"I didn't think my kids were fun until they were old enough to take to the zoo," one friend, whose two children are teenagers, told me.

"I felt as if I were in prison," another said, although it didn't stop her from having a second baby recently.

A third friend reminisced about the period by saying, "Ugh!"

Then my daughter took over by giving me a broad grin that obviously was intentional, not intestinal. She made noises at me ranging from the traditional "coo" to something that sounded like "glonk," was said in a loud voice and obviously meant, "Hurry up and change me, mommy, I'm hungry."

Almost overnight the lump had turned into a real person who loved carrots and hated her vitamin drops. I melted into a puddle of sentimental slush on that first smile and never hardened again.

But I wish someone had told me what every mother ought to know.

In 1965, the M.t Taal volcano erupted in the Philippines, killing at least 184 persons.

The 1969 Cadillac is dramatically restyled to look lower, wider and longer. The Fleetwood Brougham (top) shows the new dual horizontal head lamps and the combined parking and cornering lights wrapped around the leading edge of the front fender. The familiar cross-hatch grille features horizontal and vertical bars in a "floating fin" effect.

The ultimate in luxury personal cars, the Cadillac Eldorado, (bottom) features styling changes while continuing the strong character lines popularized by two successful years of production and sales. A new finely textured grille bears a family resemblance because of the cross-hatch theme. Elegant new wheel discs add distinction to the side view.

Among the convenience and safety related improvements are: a new seat belt system with automatic adjustors; a new Dual Comfort seat, that allows the driver's seat to be adjusted separately from the passenger's; and a closed cooling system, with a "closed" radiator and translucent reservoir permitting visual checking of the fluid level without exposure to hot coolant.

Senators Fear Soviet Undersea War Lead

By PATRICK J. SLOYN

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Present plans to limit the U.S. nuclear submarine program will drop this country behind the Russians in undersea warfare capability in the years to come, according to Senate defense specialists.

Taking former Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara to task, the Senate military preparedness subcommittee said in a report Monday that the decision to stop building U.S. nuclear subs after 1971 should be changed.

"The U.S.S.R. is giving major emphasis to qualitative improvement of its submarine fleet and brings into question the validity of our assumption that the United States is, or will be, qualitatively superior the panel said.

McNamara argued in a "record of decision" given the subcommittee before he left the Pentagon earlier this year that the U.S. submarine attack fleet should be held at 69 nuclear and 36 diesel vessels.

The Senate panel said, however, that McNamara's argument underestimated Russia's submarine capability.

While security regulation prohibit detailed discussion of the document, the panel said, its conclusions "were based upon intelligence estimates of Soviet nuclear attack submarine performance characteristcs which were erroneously too low and have since been revised upward on two occasions.

..Although Russia has a larger fleet—350 compared to this country's 146 subs—McNamara determined that the U.S. lead in nuclear propulsion gave America a quality lead over Soviet quantity. Of the U.S. total, 105 are attack boats, 33 nuclear powered and 72 propelled by diesel. The forty-one others are Polaris missile firing subs.

The Senate report said Russia had difficulties originally in developing nuclear propulsion but now is producing "nuclear submarines at a rapid rate."

'Orange Rustlers' Are Active In The Valley

By KENNETH R. CLARK

EDINBURG, Tex. (UPI) —In the old days — as any habitual viewer of the late late show knows — rustlers rustled cattle.

In the Lower Rio Grande Valley of Texas, the rustlers still are at it, but cattle no longer are the target. Rustlers now rustle oranges, and their clandestine operations — ranging in volume from a few bushels in the trunk of the family car to wholesale operations which frequently clean out entire groves —annually cost the citrus industry thousands of dollars in lost crops.

In an effort to check widespread raiding among the trees, Texas Citrus Mutual, to which most producers belong, has posted a $100 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of any orange thief.

Owing to what one grower Monday called a marked reluctance on the part of law enforcement agencies to pursue charges, the producer still finds he must ride shotgun on his own crop if he doesn't want to lose it.

"In most cases, the sheriff and the district attorney won't do a doggone thing about it," said Fuller Duke, of McAllen. "The thief you catch has got to have at least five bushels in his possession before you can even swear out a warrant."

Duke blamed the reluctance on the fact that local lawmen "just don't want to go to the expense of prosecuting a case unless it's a big one."

Unfortunately, the big ones all too often are honest mistakes—or at least they can successfully be billed that way.

Oranges are purchased from the grower while they still hang on the trees, and packers who purchase them are the ones who send the harvest crews in to do the picking. Frequently, the foreman of a harvest crew will get his directions confused, and wind up in the wrong grove.

When that happens, it usually is up to the grower to track down the company that picked his fruit, and try to collect his bill.

US Lead In Air Said Endangered By Reds

WASHINGTON (UPI)— American space officials are not sure who is ahead in the space race, but they warned today the United States "in a very short period of time" could lose its world lead in the air.

Acting space chief Thomas O. Paine told a Honse space subcommittee that the Soviet Union, far from neglecting air science in pursuit of space feats, "is pressing ahead in a most determined manner" on development of advanced aircraft.

Edward C. Welsh, executive director of the National Aeronautics and Space Council, said he is worried about apparent "shortsightedness" in this country on the need for air research 8"an arena in which we have the world leadership but which we could lose in a very short period of time."

Earlier Paine, appraising Russia's recent sucessfull moon orbit, told newsmen Russia should be able to land men on the moon "in the next year or so" and that possibly the United States also can achieve this feat by mid-1969 if everything goes right.

Testing of the Apollo 7 spaceship, to be used in a manned orbit of the earth, developed a hydrogen pipe leak today at Cape Kennedy, but officials said the Oct. 11 launch date would not be affected. Apollo 7 is another in a series of launches leading to a U.S. effort to land a man on the moon.

Meanwhile, the Senate Foreign Relations Committee today recommended ratification of a treaty to require the safe return of astronauts who make emergency landings in foreign countries.

Southwest Conference Coaches Looking To Saturday's Conflicts

By United Press International

From Fayetteville to Lubbock to Houston today, Southwest Conference coaches turned from hindsight over the past weekend to prep[illegible] for this week's action.

Texas A&M coach Gene Stallings said Tuesday he and his staff had scouted this week's opponent, Tulane.

"They have good size and their quarterback is a good runner," Stallings said.

Questioned about Tulane's defeat by Houston, he said, "Tulane is not as bad as the Houston score indicated. If they had not thrown a couple of interceptions in the third period they might have been ahead."

Stallings said his defending conference champions were now in better shape than last year at this time.

In Houston, Rice Owls coach Bo Hagan said he wants to "forget about the Washington clock and start concentrating on LSU."

Hagan earlier had protested referees in the Rice-Washington game Saturday failed to keep the clock running in the final moments of the game. Washington kicked a 51-yard field goal in the last seconds to tie the score 35-35.

But Hagan figures his major worry now is Louisiana State University and Tuesday the Owls concentrated on recognition drills against LSU's plays.

A drizzling rain forced the Arkansas Razorbacks indoors Tuesday as coach Frank Broyles concentrated on defending against the Tulsa offense.

The Razorbacks, winners of their opening game against Oklahoma State Saturday, will host Tulsa in Fayetteville this week.

Broyles said his team would probably get a lot of contact work in today if weather permitted.

In Dallas, Southern Methodist worked out in a light rain Tuesday, preparing for Saturday's contest against Ohio State.

Rain slowed practice in Austin too, as the University of Texas Longhorns quit after a 1½ hour practice on a muddy field. The Longhorns worked on fundamentals in all portions of the game, preparing for the conference opener Saturday against Texas Tech.

The Baylor Bears ignored a blowing rain in Waco Tuesday as they practiced for Saturday's clash with Michigan State. The offense reviewed its rushing plays, while the defense concentrated on working against Michigan State's offensive plays.

Batting Race On In N.L.

By FRED DOWN
UPI Sports Writer

Suddenly there's a race in the National League—one which could make Matty Alou a two-time batting champion and cost Pete Rose $25,000.

It all looked cut and dried a few weeks ago when Rose was leading the NL in batting by a mile and talked about being the first player who was not a star pitcher or a home run hitter to command $100,000 a year.

But now Alou, who won the NL batting title with a .342 average in 1966, is in a virtual tie with Rose for the lead and the two seem headed for the closest finish since 1931 when Chick Hafey won the crown with .3489 followed by Bill Terry at .3486 and Jim Bottomley at .3482.

It required four places in the percentage column to determine the leader after Tuesday night when Alou went 2-for-4 and Rose 0-for-3 in the Pittsburgh Pirates' 2-0 victory over the Cincinnati Reds. Rose's average, going into the final games of the season, is .3344 while Alou's is .3337.

Giants Clinch Second

The San Francisco Giants clinched second place for the four straight season with a 5-4 victory over the Houston Astros, the Philadelphia Phillies beat the St. Louis Cardinals, 2-1, the Atlanta Braves downed the New York Mets, 7-4, and the Chicago Cubs topped the Los Angeles Dodgers, 3-2, in other National League games.

In the American League, the Detroit Tigers defeated the Baltimore Orioles, 5-3, the Cleveland Indians downed the New York Yankees, 5-2, after a 5-1 loss, the Washington Senators drubbed the Boston Red Sox, 10-2, the Minnesota Twins beat the California Angels, 5-3 and the Chicago White Sox topped the Oakland Athletics, 5-1.

Jury Is Still Out On Detroit Experiment

By VITO STELLINO
UPI Sports Writer

The jury is still out on the Mickey Stanley experiment but the guy waiting for the verdict is Al Kaline.

Stanley, shifted from centerfield to shortstop this week by Manager Mayo Smith so he can put Kaline back in the outfield for the World Series, played errorless ball and collected a hit, scored a run and drove in one as the Detroit Tigers topped the Baltimore Orioles, 5-3, Tuesday night.

Stanley, who made two errors there Monday night in the first game of the Baltimore series, is one of the game's best fielding centerfielders but is the first to admit he isn't comfortable yet at shortstop.

"The worst part of this isn't my fielding, it's not being able to relax out there," Stanley said.

No Decision Yet

Smith, who won't commit himself to any decision, only says, "There's a 50-50 chance Stanley will play shortstop in the series."

Elsewhere in the American League, Washington routed Boston, 10-2, Cleveland beat New York, 5-2, after losing the first game, 5-1, Minnesota topped California, 5-3, in 10 innings and Chicago beat Oakland, 5-1, in 12 innings.

In the National League, Chicago edged Los Angeles, 3-2, Pittsburgh blanked Cincinnati, 2-0, Atlanta beat New York, 7-4, San Francisco topped Houston, 5-4, and Philadelphia edged St. Louis, 2-1.

Bill Freehan hit a two-run homer during a three-run fourth inning to pace the Tigers past the Orioles. Mickey Lolich allowed six hits in six innings to gain his 17th win.

Stottlemyre Takes Win

Frank Fernandez hit a two-run homer and Mel Stottlemyre pitched a four-hitter for his 21st victory as the Yankees topped the Indians in the first game. But Max Alvis drove in two runs and Lou Johnson scored two as the Indians came back to win the second game.

Mays Homers

Willie Mays drove in three runs with the 586th homer of his career and a two-run bunt single for the Giants, who once again will finish second under Manager Herman Franks. Frank Linzy, pitching in relief of Ray Sadecki, raised his record to 9-8.

Gary Sutherland singled with two out in the ninth inning to drive in John Briggs and give the Phillies' Jerry Johnson his fourth win.

Hank Aaron and Tommie Aaron combined for five hits and Deron Johnson hit a two-run homer as the Braves dealt Met rookie Jerry Koosman his 12th loss against 18 victories. The chief result of the Atlanta victory is likely to be that John Bench of the Reds will be voted the NL rookie of the year.

Ferguson Jenkins won his 19th game for the Cubs as Adolfo Phillips hit his 12th homer and scored another run.

Johnny Unitas Is Due To Play In Pittsburg Game

By MILTON RICHMAN
UPI Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UPI)—Johnny comes marching home this Sunday and anybody who thinks he's coming home just to sit there with his arm in a sling doesn't know Johnny at all.

Johnny Unitas, pro football's premier quarterback, will play Sunday for the first time this season.

"My arm feels much better," he says. "I'm starting to find I can get a lot more on the ball."

Baltimore's 35-year-old wheelhorse hasn't played a single minute yet this season because of tendonitis in his million dollar right elbow but there are two special reasons he wants to in Pittsburgh Sunday. He's missed the Colts' first two games already and doesn't want to make it three in a row for fear of getting rusty. Good quarterbacks, like good violins, need an occasional tune-up when they aren't being used.

Then there's another reason. It may not be very important to anybody else but it is rather important to Johnny Unitas.

He has the normal, natural instincts of any top flight athlete and one of them has to do with a normal, natural desire to perform well in his own hometown.

Johnny Unitas never has. He never has because he has never been able to.

It's hard to believe but every since Unitas joined the Colts 12 years ago they've never played a regular league game in Pittsburgh, and how does that grab you for intelligent, progressive-minded scheduling?

Returns To Hometown

Regardless, Pittsburgh native Johnny Unitas finally gets his chance to play in his own hometown against the Steelers Sunday and he won't use it up on the bench although his throwing arm still isn't 100 per cent.

White Deer After Win Number One Friday

White Deer will be hoping for win Number 1 Friday as Texas schoolboy football swings into its third week.

The Bucks will travel to Panhandle to take on the Class-AA Panthers — one of three District 1-AA teams engaged in tilts with area teams this weekend.

White Deer failed to score against tough, highly-ranked Class A Clarendon last week in a game seen by some as a preview to bi-district play. Clarendon whitewashed the Bucks, 23-0.

The loss followed an earlier defeat by Silverton, 21-20, in one of the area's major upsets.

Panhandle was pulling a surprise of its own last weekend when it nipped the tough Shamrock Irish, 13-12.

While the Bucks are trying to get back in their winning ways and make a run for the 1-A crown they shared last year with Gruver, Silverton district, darkhourse of 2-A, will be trying for win number three over class B Groom.

Canadian, picked for the cellar in District 1-A, will try for the second victory of the season when it travels to Follett. The Wildcats won their first against Booker, 14-13, but were thumped 27-0 by Spearman last week.

Wheeler, picked to finish second in District 2-A behind powerful Clarendon, will play Class AA Stinnett.

McLean, another member of District 2-A, will play Boys Ranch in a game at McLean.

Lefors, still looking for its first victory, will finally get into its own league Friday night when they play another Class B team, Turkey, in a game at Turkey.

And Miami, in an interstate clash of 8-man football teams, will play powerful Balko, Okla. in a game at Miami. Balko has a 34-game winning streak and has captured its district crown for three consecutive years. Coach Roger McFarren's Warriors trounced Gate, Okla., 42-8, last weekend to end a 10-game losing skein.

Thousands have perished and death threatens many more before a settlement is reached in the secessionist struggle.

Highlights and Sidelights From the State Capitol

By VERN SANFORD
Texas Press Association

AUSTIN — "Unity" was the unofficial theme of both Democratic and Republican state conventions, and each party expects to carry that concept on to a victory on election day, Nov. 5.

Democrats at Austin passed the torch to Lt. Gov. Preston Smith, their nominee for governor, and heard ringing cries to support the party's ticket from courthouse to White House. Ben Barnes, the youthful lieutenant governor nominee, and Smith literally joined hands to dispel all rumors that they would not work together.

State Democrats also adopted a 16-point platform, emphasizing need for law and order and improvements to education at all levels. They elected both liberals and conservatives to the new State Democratic Executive Committee (with only 13 holdover members) headed by Dr. Elmer C. Baum of Austin as chairman, Mrs. Ralph O'Connor of Houston as vice-chairman and H. H. Coffield of Rockdale as secretary.

Gov. John Connally broke the ice on the national ticket front by endorsing Hubert H. Humphrey and urging Democrats to band together in his behalf. And the convention was read a telegram from Pres. Lyndon B. Johnson saying Humphrey is his man.

In Fort Worth, Republicans, full of optimism over Richard Nixon's chances to sweep the state and nation and hopeful of statehouse gains as well, heard go-go speeches.

GOP leader Jack Cox of Austin told fellow Republicans, "If you are more liberal than I am, or if one of us is more conservative than the other, it does not mean one of us should be read out of the Republican Party." Shouts of affirmation went up through the hall, and every shade of Republicanism — ultra-conservative through progressive — decided to devote every effort to a Nixon-Agnew campaign.

Gov. Spiro Agnew was the hit of the convention, there, telling the 2,500 what they wanted to hear, and telling it well. It was a warm first meeting between the vice-presidential nominee and his fellow party members of this state.

Republicans adopted a platform of their own and Peter O'Donnell Jr. of Dallas remains at the helm of the GOP executive committee.

George Wallace supporters turned out for the Dallas convention of the American Party, and in short order endorsed Wallace and former Georgia Gov. Marvin Griffin for places on the Nov. 5 general election ballot as candidates for president and vice-president. No motions were accepted to nominate new state party officers, although there is some discontent in the ranks.

A relative handful of delegates walked out in protest to what they termed John Birch Society control of the party's state committee. But they were solid in their backing of George Wallace for President. Wallace himself was at the convention, exhorting his followers to work hard on his behalf.

NEW COLLEGE APPROVED —Creation of new state senior colleges in San Antonio, Corpus Christi, Houston (two) and the Midland-Odessa area has approval of the Coordinating Board, Texas College and University System. Board also recommended an "upper division" — junior and senior years —higher education center at Laredo.

Master plan being compiled by the Board apparently will contain a proposal to limit enrollments at state institutions beginning in 1972.

Board recommended creation of a new dental school although it declined to make recommendation as to site.

OIL ALLOWABLE HELD FIRM — Railroad Commission fixed statewide oil allowable at 41.3 per cent of production potential.

Figure is unchanged from Sept. Percentage factor permits maximum production of 3,246,026 barrels a day. Nine of 14 major crude oil buyers sought to keep the allowable intact. Four wanted a decrease and only one sought an increase.

TAVERN - VENDING MACHINE PROBE OPENS —First witnesses before a House committee Then a public hearing will be held in each of the counties involved: Zapata, Jim Hogg, Webb, Maverick, Dimmit, Kinney, Edwards and Val Verde. All claimants to water in the area will have a chance to press their claims if they feel they should be listed in the Commission's list of water users.

Water authorities said this procedure will save millions of dollars and years of time over the ponderous court process followed in the 12-year-old lower Rio Grande rights case.

HIGHWAY CUTBACK — Congress' spending reductions have resulted in a sharp cutback in highway building in Texas for the rest of 1968. October contract lettings, as a result, will be cut from the planned $32,210,000 to $19,500,000.

State Highway Engineer J. C. Dingwall said, however, that construction will go as planned on farm-to-market roads and other work which does not involve federal aid. A special bid-opening has been set for Dec. 31, after the trimming has been done.

SECRET MEETING — Closer cooperation between state government and the state's leading university was the topic of an intense, high-level, secret meeting in Kerrville called by Gov. Connally.

Meeting was between about 50 University of Texas at Austin administrators, deans and department clairmen and the same number of executive directors or board members from major state agencies, along with Connally, Lt. Gov. Preston Smith, Speaker Ben Barnes and Rep. Gus Mutscher of Brenham.

WATER MEETING — House Interim Water Committee, chaired by Rep. Bill Clayton of Springlake, will hold a hearing on Oct. 5 in Hereford.

Among the topics discussed will be (1) whether the economic benefits of the water to be imported into West Texas from East Texas and the Mississippi River will be worth the cost to West Texans; (2) whether they will be willing to pay the cost of the water; and (3) whether the present law giving private ownership to the state's ground-water resources should be changed to establish state control of ground water.

WASHINGTON — Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., charging that opponents of the confirmation of Abe Fortas as chief justice of the United States are using new left tactics in their threatened filibuster.

"It strikes me as ironical that Senate conservatives who might join in a filibuster would be in a practical sense using the same political tactics as for example the hippies and the yippies they so often criticize."

In 1850, the flogging of sailors in the U.S. Navy was abolished.

BULL HORNS IN and comes a cropper. Usually it's the bullfighter who does a somersault, but in San Sebastian, Spain, Curro Romero calmly looks on as the bull goes head over heels after one of its horns became firmly stuck in the ground following the animal's charge.

BURNING QUESTION—Should a gentleman offer a cigar to a lady?—is answered in Vietnam. A Third Marine Division leatherneck offered this woman a cigar and she accepted. It happened in a small fishing village near Quang Tri.

REMINISCENT of the Battle of Britain during World War II, Big Ben rises from the ruins of a demolished building. Actually, however, this structure near London's famous clock is being torn down in a modernization program.
