Strong Farm Organization County's Present Big Need

Farm Association Leaders Told Now Is Time For Action

Cliff Day, State President Of Farmers Organization Points Out Needs

Must Organize

Farming Communities Like Floyd Missing Opportunity to Meet Demands

When farmers and business men of communities like Floyd County reach the realization they must have an organized front to present the just demands they need to make of industry, labor and government, they will begin to get results, Cliff Day, of Plainview, president of the Texas, Farm Association, told nearly thirty Floyd County farmers Tuesday here. But until they do organize for their own welfare and get their problems ironed out at home for presentation in an orderly manner abroad, they will continue to bear the brunt of low income and depressed living conditions, he said.

Day was speaking to a called meeting of farmers who gathered in the court house with twenty or more school districts represented.

Following his talk those present resolved to take the matter back to their home communities and report the reaction at a meeting on Wednesday of next week.

"What is needed is a thousand farmers in Floyd County acting together, with their business men backing them, to put their problems up to the government and to other forms of industry," Day said, pointing out that recent agreements among capital and labor leaders only arrived at the mutual conclusion that more money would be taken from the farmers' pockets and divided between capital in industry and labor in industry. "Whether there is anything right or wrong about that is beside the question at this time," Mr. Day said. "The point is that so long as we acquiesce in this reduction of our income and the partitioning of it among them-

Barbers Plan New Shop On West Side Square To Open Monday Morning

George Sherrill, Jack Burleson and Garlan Glover—three barbers who have served the public in Floydada for many years— will launch an enterprise of their own beginning Monday of next week, they have announced.

They will be equal partners in the business, having purchased the fixtures of the Court House Barber Shop on west side from Pope Duncan. Their location, they announce, will be in the Farris Building on west side, first door south of the Ritz Theatre, which is being redone this week, improvements including new floor. They expect to have an attractive shop and all modern sanitary equipment.

WELFARE OFFICE MOVED

The Floyd County welfare office, formerly on the same floor as the county agent's office and the district court room has been moved to a new room on the first floor directly across from the sheriff's office and next door north of the tax assessors office in the court house.

Regional Leader

Outstanding record of Conner Oden as a dealer in the Chevrolet Motor Company organization was recognized this week when Oden was named a member of the regional dealers' new car sales planning committee of eleven representing an area of five states.

Oden on Regional Dealer Committee For Chevrolet Co.

A. P. Barker of Lockney Also Serving on Organization Zone Committee

Conner Oden has been named on the regional dealer committee of eleven representing five southwestern states in the dealer organization of the Chevrolet Motor Company, he was advised by telegram Tuesday noon, and leaves today for Dallas for the first conference due to be held in the morning. States covered by the region are Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, New Mexico and Arizona.

Conner Oden of the Oden Chevrolet Company and Arthur P. Barker of Lockney Auto Company, Chevrolet dealers on two of the important district committees of the Chevrolet dealers organization, returned the first of the week from Oklahoma City, where they attended sessions of their respective divisions.

Oden recently was named on the Zone dealer planning committee on new car sales and Barker got a similar assignment on the planning committee for used car sales.

In a recent statement an official of Chevrolet Company declared that by means of the dealer planning committees the organization received the benefit of the best thought and advice of its dealers throughout the nation, and sixty per cent of the suggestions that come out of the various conferences have been adopted as sales policy in the past.

Both Oden and Barker have enviable records as dealers.

L. B. Martin Crowned District Lightweight Golden Gloves Champ

L. B. Martin, scrapping Floydada lightweight, was the only outsider to crash through the Lubbock City Golden Gloves Champions and add his name to the list of those that are to journey to Fort Worth to engage in the state finals which will be held there.

Louis Hollingsworth fought his way through the semi-finals into the final round but was defeated by Buck Gregory of Texas Tech. Hollingsworth was heralded by experts as the most finished boxer of the lot but drew stiff competition in the semi-final bout that probably caused his downfall in the final, since Gregory defeated his opponent by a knockout in the semi-final bout and had more time to recuperate for Hollingsworth.

Martin slapped Robert Parks of Lubbock into a technical kayo in his semi-final bout and won the final on a decision from Slim Spence of Lockney.

The other seven spots were all filled by the Lubbock City champions and will also go to Fort Worth for competition.

Pioneer Stock Farmer Came To Floyd County In 1891 From Hill County

Final rites for J. A. Huckabay, 83-year-old pioneer Floyd County stock farmer, were held Sunday at the First Baptist Church.

Mr. Huckabay was born in Alabama in 1854, his family moving soon there after to Georgia where they lived for several years. At the age of 18 Mr. Huckabay moved to Texas and settled in Hill County.

In 1884 he and Miss Sallie Frances Shepherd were united in marriage, and moved from Hill County to Floyd County in 1892, settling about 3 miles south of Floydada where he had been living since that time.

For the last five years Mr. Huckabay has been spending the greater part of his time at Austin because of his health.

He is survived by his widow and seven children, all present for the funeral services. The children are C. P., A. B., J. W., A. C., and T. J. Huckabay, Mrs. Maggie Jeffery, and Mrs. T. D. Smith.

The pallbearers were all old pioneer neighbors and friends of Mr. Huckabay and had lived for 40 years or more in the county. They were Glad Snodgrass, W. L. Fry, Roy Snodgrass, W. H. Hilton, E. P. Nelson, and W. B. Henry.

Funeral rites were conducted by Rev. G. I. Brittin of Plainview, assisted by Rev. R. E. L. Muncy, Rev. Vernon Shaw, and Rev. G. W. Tubbs. Interment was in Floydada Cemetery.

Mr. Huckabay was a charter member of Eastern Star and a member of the Masonic Lodge. Seventy-eight of his friends and neighbors and lodge members were named honorary pallbearers.

Flower attendants were Mrs. George Smith, Mrs. W. L. Fry, Mrs. Glad Snodgrass, Mrs. Frank Moore, Mrs. Roy Snodgrass, and Mrs. Carrick Snodgrass.

MRS. W. C. CATES TAKEN TO LUBBOCK FOR EXAMINATION

If she does not improve rapidly she is likely to be taken north for examination and treatment, it was said.

Farm Plans Well Under Way Here

All Farmers In Need Of Agencies Services Should Apply

Haste Urged

Loan Funds Are Available For General Farm Operating Expense

The making of farm plans and arranging for loans for 1938 farming operations is now well under way in Floyd County, according to Claude C. Carpenter, county rural rehabilitation supervisor of the Farm Security Administration.

It is important, Carpenter said, that all farmers in this section who are in need of the services offered by this federal agency get in touch with him as soon as possible. This is necessary, he explained because many farmers fail to arrange for their operations until the very last minute, resulting in a peak load during which time the supervisor cannot give farmers adequate attention.

A farmer who makes his contacts with this agency early in the season will be given more attention in the development of farm plans and are more likely to have their funds at the time they are most needed.

The primary purpose of the Farm Security Administration's lending and supervisory program is to assist farmers who are in need of help to become permanently self-supporting.

Loan funds are being made available for general farm operating expense such as the purchase of needed equipment, seed, feed, and livestock. In some cases the borrower may find it necessary to lease additional land in order that he may properly balance his farming unit through the addition of livestock and grazing facilities. The FSA program often includes such provisions in the farm plan designed by the county supervisors when making loans to farmers.

Rural rehabilitation supervisors assist borrowers in every feasable way in order that he may raise his standards of living, increase his net worth and purchasing power. Applicants must be willing to cooperate with the supervisor and follow recommendations included in the farm and home management plans jointly developed by the borrower and the supervisors. They must also be willing to keep a farm and home record book which is furnished by the Farm Security Administration.

Carpenter services Floyd and Motley counties. He is in his office in Floydada on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday and Saturday of each week.

First Birthday Is Celebrated This Week By Hagood Dry Good

Nationally Advertised Quality Merchandise Offered By Hagood Dry Goods

This week Cecil Hagood and Hagood Dry Goods will celebrated their first year in Floydada.

On February 12 of last year Mr. Hagood held his opening sale after moving his merchandise here from Lorenzo where he was in business for some time.

This week Hagood Dry Goods is announcing and celebrating his first year in Floydada with announcement of a new series and line of nationally known and advertised goods.

Mr. Hagood indicated that he intended to offer the people of Floydada "quality" goods and not "price" goods. At least, he said, the goods in his store are of the best quality available to any merchant in the country, and may be depended upon to always be such.

The variety and line of goods in the store will be enlarged and broadened from time to time as business permits, Hagood indicated.

To the customers and friends of the store, Mr. Hagood wishes to express his thanks for their patronage throughout the year and at the same time invites them to return.

SINGING SUNDAY

Regular Second Sunday singing will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Missionary Baptist Church in the south part of Floydada on the highway.

New Stamps song books have arrived and the new songs from them will be sung. Everyone is invited to attend.

City Council Passes "Anti-Peddler" Law In Effort To Protect Floydada Citizens

"Fly-By-Night" Vendor Is Outlawed By City's Ordinance

If Floyd County hits again with a 5,000,000 bushel wheat crop, a bumper cotton or grain harvest this year, the people in Floydada will have adequate protection from peddlers and vendors that "pestered" them from the time the news of the "big harvest" leaked out until to date.

The city council saw fit to pass on January 11 an ordinance declaring "all vendors, hawkers, peddlers, transient merchants and solicitors not requested upon private property by the owners of the property or occupants of the property, a nuisance, and liable to a fine of $1 or $100 plus costs."

The council heard a number of instances where Floydada residents has been "hooked" by these fly-by-night peddlers and "coupon" men, who promised and "guaranteed" much but who gave very little in return.

The old law of "let the buyer beware" held good and still holds good but now the resident that smells something "fishy" about the sales talk being put up by a transient vendor, can call the city hall and request that the city marshal have a conference with the "gentleman."

The ordinance clearly prohibits soliciting and peddling upon private residences in the city of Floydada, and it is up to the people to keep the law in force.

The citizens who patronize the fly-by-night hawker and gets "gyped" has no redress since the hawker has moved on to greener pastures, but if on the other hand, a local merchant had sold goods that didn't "quite reach par" the citizens could demand adjustment and get it.... the local merchants depend upon return business and good will.... the hawker and transient peddler depend upon only an enormous "first profit" from highly guaranteed (so called) goods or products

Make Us Money! Not Cost Us, Mrs. Holmes Says Of Dem. Agent

In a communication to The Hesperian this week Mrs. Ed Holmes urges all women interested in a home demonstration agent for the greatest agricultural county in Texas to attend the meeting Monday afternoon or to contact her commissioner before that date. Says Mrs. Holmes: "Wide-spread interest is being shown over Floyd County, both by the town and country women in home demonstration work.

Representatives from every community in the county are planning to attend the meeting with the Commissioners Court Monday, February 14. Miss Lida Cooper, district home demonstration agent, will be present at this meeting.

"The Commissioners were put in office to serve the people and are willing and anxious to do what the people want done most. So, if you would like to see a home demonstration agent put to work in Floyd County, do not fail to attend the meeting Monday afternoon or contact your commissioner in some way before that date.

"In this, the greatest agricultural county in Texas, why not have a home demonstration agent to teach the home makers how to save what we raise?

"It will make us money! Not cost us!"

'Room Needed' So Offices Changed In Court House

County Agent's Office Is Expanded To Handle Extra Duties

The courthouse has undergone a "shakeup" during the past week that has caused considerable change not in officials but in offices.

The additional work that is being done by the couty agent caused an overflow in that office and necessitated the securing of more space to handle the vast amount of county, state, and government work which is required of that office.

The commissioners granted the request for additional room by having other officials "swap" offices until the extra space was secured.

The two rooms formerly occupied by the Texas Highway Department were taken over by the county attorney and justice of the peace. The attorneys office will consist of the district court reporter's room and one of the rooms formerly occupied by the highway department, whereas the justice of the peace will have one room for an office as formerly. Both offices are located at the west end of the district court room on the second floor.

The Texas Highway Department took over office space in the room which had been used by the Floyd County Welfare office. It is located on the second floor and directly across from the county agent's offices.

The county agent's offices will now occupy the office space used by the county attorney and the justice of the peace as well as his old office on the second floor. These two new offices add three rooms additional space to the offices of the county agent and greatly reduce the crowded work that was necessary before.

The increased office space is expected to speed up work in that department a great deal as well as increase efficiency.

The Welfare office which was formerly on the second floor has been moved down stairs to the first floor directly west of the sheriff's office and north of the assessor's office. The space for this office was formed by partitioning off the north part of the assessor's office.

Moving and changing had been completed late Tuesday afternoon with the officials concerned putting a few finishing touches on their new offices and fixtures.

Tax Payments During January Total $73,312

Tax payments during January are given as follows; Current taxes, $56,719.44; supplemental taxes, $122.95; regular polls, $3,484.25; supplemental polls, $596.75; insolvents, $202.03; redemptions, $3,066.88; occupation tax, $133.40; cost (on delinquent), $106, and inheritance tax, $8,781.22.

The total collections for the month were $73,312.92.

An accurate check up of poll tax showed that 2,759 Floyd County persons paid their poll taxes for 1937 and will be eligible to vote this year. Exemptions were recorded at 108.

Cummings Reelected F.H.S. Head

Will Make Sixth Term At Head of Floydada School System

Began In 1926

Mrs. Dorris Jones To Be Language Teacher For Last Term

A. D. Cummings, superintendent of Floydada schools, was re-elected in that capacity for 1938-'39 school year, by the school board of the Floydada Independent School District Tuesday night.

Cummings began his work in Floydada schools in the fall of 1926 after graduation that spring from W. T. S. T. C. with a B. A. in History. He taught eighth grade history and eleventh grade economics and physics at the high school. He remained there until the fall of 1928.

At that time he was elected principal of Andrews Ward school but held that position only two years, becoming principal of the high school in 1930.

Remaining as principal for two years, the school board elected Cummings as superintendent of schools for the fall of 1932 and has seen fit to re-elect him in that capacity since that time.

With 11 years served in the Floydada schools, Cummings probably understands the problems of the district and school better than anyone else except those that have climbed the steps along with him as faculty members and school board members.

It is certain that the school board believes him an efficient and judicious superintendent or he would not have been able to continue at the head of the school system.

Cummings has not only made himself popular with the school board but has the favor and friendship of the students that have been taught by and under him these past years.

The regular meeting date for the county board is the first Monday of the month but because of the conflict with important meetings

At a meeting held Wednesday night at the First Christian Church annex scouts were selected to fill the shoes of Mayor, sheriff, deputy sheriff, fire chief, county attorney, county judge, and city marshal.

The scouts to fill the office were elected by their fellow scouts. Judge Tom Deen will give the oath of office to the boys Friday afternoon and on Saturday morning the boys will take over.

Ward Scholastics Get Examinations For Health Defects

Physical examination for scholastics of Andrews Ward School have been in progress this week, A. D. Cummings, superintendent of Floydada Public Schools announced, two local practicing physicians and a dentist giving a half-day of their time and Miss Carleton, nurse of the public health department also aiding. About forty children per day are being examined.

The working plan for the physical examinations was mapped out around the breakfast table last Friday morning at a down-town cafe. Local physicians and dentists are co-operating in a very gratifying manner, the superintendent said.

"There is nothing compulsory about the matter," the superintendent declared, "But we are much interested in the good health of the youth in the school and where we find defects we are anxious for the parents to know about them, and accordingly are giving these parents reports on their children."

The examinations, it is anticipated, will be completed sometime next week.

"THE REST OF THE RECORD"

The Hesperian (along with other papers it develops) editorialized last week to the general effect that the differences between the governor and the land commissioner on the oil land leasing program of the state, probably would turn out to be a question of judgment.

But not so, says the governor, who charges definite favoritism granted by the commissioner to persons on the "inside." The governor appears to be taking a chance on some of the things he says this week in his "The Rest of the Record." Newspapers and newspapermen, whom he accused of not printing all the news as an excuse or reason for his weekly mailing to the press, can't be blamed if they are unwilling to take such long chances it what the governor records is a sample of the kind of things they are leaving out of the record they present.

CORRUPTION IN PUBLIC OFFICE

There is little new under the sun. For practically every good or evil now in the world there was a counterpart sometime back in the history of some race. As for instance, corruption in public office, so often charged but so rarely proven.

In the eighteenth century in England offices were bought and sold at the highest bid. Newspaper advertisements now are extant and it is told about in books that public men actually offered for sale, according to emoluments and honors involved, offices of importance to the welfare of the people. It was about this time, too, as a corollary idea, that when parliament adjourned the sargeant-at-arms would announce in a loud voice for all who were to go to their homes to make preparations at once. The idea was that the departing legislator would be given protection from thugs and deadbeats on his way if he left when the official had ready a sufficient bodyguard for the purpose.

There is less corruption in public office now and the laws of our land are better enforced than in any time in civilized history, almost. Our (meaning the public's) complainings to the contrary that is just about the fact of the matter.

HARD TO PLEASE

The insistent demand that the national budget be cut has hit a stump on the first proposal made by the president. When several weeks ago he suggested a cut in the federal highway funds and a reduction of the road building program which would follow there was a storm of protest, at least from the southwest.

Officials of this area who have been in Washington pretty well voiced the opinion of southwestern people when they suggested there were many things preferably to be cut out of the budget instead of the road funds. And it would tear up the play house in this part of the world, sure enough. We think, right off, of several important roads for which panhandle and plains people have striven for several years, that would be out of the picture for awhile if the road money is taken out of the appropriation bill.

We want the tax bill cut, but there could be lots of cuts in lots of places that would be sufficient to work toward a balanced budget without taking our road plans away from us.

"LITTLE" MEN GOOD TALKERS

Washington was vastly amused and the news hounds of the national capital have had a favorite morsel for their writings about the "little" business men who went to see the president last week. Everyone of them had a speech to make and was hell-bent on making it, the reports indicate.

The "little" men who went to Washington were, generally speaking, millionaires and semi-millionaires, who, having been successful in convincing the home-folks they ought to be listened to, felt the broader sphere, the national hook-up as it were, was the natural next development. Will Rogers, living, would have had a lot of fun about that. The president and other high officials were tactful enough not to let anybody know they laughed.

PLENTY OF PROBLEMS, ALL RIGHT

"Little business" in the United States does have ample trouble. Almost so much that, like the men who went to Washington, it is incoherent. So many things wrong, so much that needs to be changed or un-changed.

At the same time, it is possible that the men who are at the heads of little businesses are at fault, and not the system of things or the government. It may be these "little" fellows need to learn the new tempo, get in step with the times in which they live. This though should have a calming effect on some of the persons who froth at the mouth and cuss the president.

TELEVISION 'HEADACHES'

Figuring out a way to get television to the masses of the people has the scientist and the investor worried. Present advancement of the art of sending through ether waves both sound and vision leaves it far short of perfection in numerous respects, one of which is limitation on distances which the combined waves may be sent. About forty miles now is the limit, without the use of "booster" stations. A television program may be sent about as far as the horizon.

However, the research is being continued with intensity, because television, in experiments thus far conducted, makes much more claim on fixed attention than does radio.

Perhaps, sooner or later, the problem will have been solved in such a manner as to make it appear simple. But it is certainly anything else now.

COUNTRY REAL ESTATE

Country real estate is the best investment. A study has revealed that most of the great American fortunes were made in real estate. Even those fortunes made in railroad building, were accumulated through real estate concessions obtained with the original grants for the rights of way.

Today, opportunities still exist for making money in country real estate and a profit can be made.

HOPE SPRINGS ETERNAL

As A Farm Woman Thinks

Nellie Witt Spikes

I do not Wonder at Don Quixote battling windmills. Windmills, to me have more personality than any other inanimate thing. Some lean forward as if listening with eager ears to the gossip of the world. Some rear back and hold their arms across their breast as if they were boosters and braggarts. Have you not noticed some, so dispirited they creak and groan with each passing wind? Some stand barely to the wind as if proud of the job of pumping clear, cold water for man and beast. Some have dignity and others act silly and vain.

Last week was a week of showers given by loving friends to my daughter Wilma and Margaret Wheeler, her sister-in-law. Pretty flowered china dishes, pitchers and bowls, sparkling glass, soft towels, beautiful lunch cloths. Oh isn't a shower nice for young brides?

I was in Floydada this morning, so early the merchants were opening up their stores and sweeping making ready for the work of the day. I was very much interested in the sight of a town just waking up.

Yesterday we made a trip to see Frank Norfleet, but he was away. Mrs. Norfleet, we found to be an entertainer equal to her husband. We saw the wild geese, the beautiful pea fowl, the white swan, the brilliant colored pheasants and the game chickens. On the walls are pictures of western scenes, lariets, hobbles, Mexican work of all kinds. Mr. Norfleet leads a brisk life, but is never too busy to spend pleasant hours with friends.

It is worth going in the Post Office at Floydada to be welcomed by such a pleasant smile and happy greeting as Mrs. Smith gives one.

Thank you Mrs. Smith, for the pleasure you give us.

And another smile and greeting welcomes me while in town. Yes, thank you dear Mrs. McGuire, for your appreciation of my column.

Mr. Clonts, our mail carrier, carries the mail, brings our papers, letters from friends, and of course at times, bills. But other things he has for us. A cheery good morning a question about our girls and boys and the whole day is happier.

I am planning to go to Tennessee, with my daughter Wilda and her husband James, the last of the week. So eager, I am to go see my dear children, my mind is on nothing else. I know all you mothers will be glad for me and all of you that have mothers will be glad for my son to be with his mother again.

Prehaps the next time I write in this column I shall be in my son's home in Memphis, Tennessee.

FLOYD COUNTY 14 YEARS AGO

ISSUE OF FEBRUARY 14,1924

The County Federation of Women's Clubs will meet in an allday session in the County Courtroom on Saturday February 23. A program will be given and lunch will be served to the visitors.

Tentative plans for a two-day School Fair and Interscholastic League Meet were made at the meeting of the Interscholastic League Committee in Floydada Saturday afternoon, at which time the date for the Fair this spring was decided upon as two weeks before the district meet which heretofore has been early in April. March 28, 29 are the dates unless there is a change.

The city Council, at their regular meeting Tuesday issued an order calling for an election for the City of Floydada on March 18 at which time the question of the issuance of sewer and waterworks extention bonds in the total sum of $60,000 is to be submitted.

A scholastic apportionment of $2 per capita was authorized today by the State Board of Education. This will make a total of $5 of the $12 apportionment to be distributed this year. The remainder to be granted by May 1, State Superintendent, S. M. N. Marrs, said.

The question of Home Demonstration Agent was brought before the Commissioner's Court again this week, when on Tuesday a delegation of women from Floydada, Lockney and Lakeview accompanied by Prof. Geo. A. Arms, of A. & M. College, and Miss Mamie Hayden, District Home Demonstration Agent presented additional petitions for the home demonstration work in Floyd County.

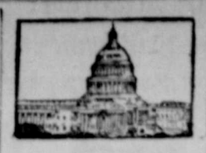

Coach J. C. Wester of Floydada High School had a likely looking squad of candidates out looking for places on the baseball team at the first practice Wednesday afternoon at Floydada Baseball Park. 26 men were out for places on the team.

Leonard Holmes was elected captain of the squad for this season. The team should be stronger than it was last season when it won district honors easily.

A sizeable smallpox scare has developed and it appears that following the measles epidemic we may have a smallpox epidemic.

WASHINGTON LETTER

BY SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT

WASHINGTON — For the first time since 1933 Congress will vote on a farm bill of its own writing. It has served unofficial notice to Department of Agriculture officials and AAA chiefs that their advice is not wanted. The AAA and the department don't like this a bit.

What's more the farm bill is the only measure which Congress shows any serious intention of passing.

Its mulishness about the farm bill is bringing cheer to those who have been exhorting the two Houses to make some pretense of independence. "Cut the lines to the White House" is an old cry which passage of the farm bill should silence at least temporarily.

Marvin Jones, chairman of the House Agriculture Committee, and Senator John Bankhead of Alabama, are the conference chiefs, and they knew what they wanted at the outset. It wasn't thaught necessary to approach even Secretary Wallace for words of advice or encouragement. As a result, department and AAA bigwigs are certain the bill will be unworkable. They are publicly washing their hands of the whole affair.

Only one difference of opinion existed between the two conference heads: Bankhead wanted more rigid crop control than Jones. There is little doubt that a compromise on that score will be effected.

Part of Congress' resentment against the AAA and its policies springs from the fact that the soil conservation program, and previous programs, penalized the farmer who wisely had diversified his crops, and rewarded the less efficient farmer, since benefit payments were based on changes in land use.

Conferees on the general farm bill had in mind a $10,000 top for benefit payments to sugar growers, but before anything could be put in legislation, Congress rushed through a sugar benefit appropriation bill calling for $39,000,000—which means that the six largest sugar producers may expect benefit payments as high as $400,000.

"Sugar" is a magic word in Congress. Ten well-staffed and efficient sugar lobbies are often on the scene to help congressmen make up their minds. The reason is that American are paying $350,000,000 in excess of world market sugar prices, so that 100,000 domestic producers may be protected.

That's why lobbyists keep up the old refrain; "What could be sweeter than a sugar bill?"

'Great Stone Faces' of Washington, Lincoln Will Last a Million Years

AS the nation celebrates this February the birthdays of its two greatest heroes, Washington and Lincoln, Gutzon Borglum is putting the finishing touches on his plans for completion of the Mt. Rushmore "Shrine of Democracy," in which the faces of Washington and Lincoln are sculptured 66 feet high.

The shrine, situated at the northern end of the Custer State Park in the Black Hills of South Dakota, depicts four epochs in the life of the nation. In addition to Washington and Lincoln, Jefferson and Theodore Roosevelt will be enshrined in the granite.

The four great epochs in American history, according to the sculptor, are Washington and the founding of the country; Jefferson and the period of westward expansion; Lincoln and the preservation of the Union, and Roosevelt and the joining of the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

BORGLUM has been working on the project 10 summers, and he believes that 1940 will see the big project completed. With him it has been a work of love, particularly the carving of the huge head of Lincoln, dedicated last August.

"Lincoln has been my first love," the sculptor-artist once said, "and as always with first loves, it fixed a standard. So I scaled sunlit heights with Lincoln—and produced the colossal marble head in the rotunda of the capitol of the United States."

That marble head in the capitol, undertaken as an experiment in dimensions, was the inspiration of the Rushmore figures which dwarf the far-famed Colossus of Rhodes and the Sphynx of Egypt. Geologists have figured that the four likenesses will remain serenely unconscious of nature's eroding forces for more than a million years.

WASHINGTON'S was the first of the faces to be completed. In 1927 when President Coolidge dedicated the mountain, he described the first president as "the foremost disciple of ordered liberty, a statesman with an inspired vision who is not outranked by any mortal greatness."

Lincoln's career has been described by Borglum in these words:

"Out of the west came Lincoln, and all that he had he gave to the preservation of the Union that had been bought so dearly and was falling to pieces."

"If you are an artist," says Borglum, "you may live with Lincoln. You sit with him—your coat is spread to keep the snow from the grave of Ann Rutledge; you will walk with Washington through the snow and suffer with him as you note the bloodstained footsteps at Valley Forge."

Borglum is an artist. And in building the shrine he has "lived" through the four epochs he is preserving in granite.

Carved in the granite of Mt. Rushmore in the Black Hills, the faces of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln, left to right above, with the face of Theodore Roosevelt, to be added later, will form America's "Shrine of Democracy." Washington's likeness, at right, was first to be finished. Gutzon Borglum, famous sculptor who also designed the Stone Mountain Memorial in Georgia, is in charge of the Rushmore project.

Chapman Announces Candidacy For Judge Of The 110th District

Splendid Co-Operation of People Of District During Appointive Term Is Much Appreciated

The Hesperian has been authorized to announce the candidacy of Alton B. Chapman for District Judge of the 110th Judicial District composing the Counties of Floyd, Motley, Briscoe and Dickens.

In announcing his candidacy Judge Chapman said that he wished to express his appreciation to the people of Floyd County for the many courtesies shown him four years ago when he was elected District Attorney and for the splendid cooperation given him by the people of Floyd County during the time he served in that office and during the eight months he has served as District Judge.

During the time that Judge Chapman served as District Attorney he handled approximately two hundred felony cases and out of these there were only three verdicts of acquittal on contested cases. In addition to his regular duties as District Attorney, Judge Chapman, with the help of the County Attorney of Dickens County, contested the application for probate of a will. They alleged the will to be forgery and won the contest in both the County Court of Dickens County and the District Court of that County. The case is now pending in the Court of Civil Appeals at Amarillo and a final verdict by the higher court in accordance with the verdicts in the two lower courts will mean that an estate worth approximately fifteen thousand dollars will be recovered for the State of Texas.

Judge Chapman has tried conscientiously to operate the Court with as much speed and economy as possible, and the people who have served as jurors know that there has been very little time and money wasted since he has been District Judge.

Judge Chapman said that most of the time between now and election will be taken up in the discharge of his official duties, and it will be impossible for him to talk with each voter personally; therefore, he has asked that this announcement be considered as his personal solicitation for the vote and influence of the people of Floyd County.

Particular Attention Given To Problems Of Farmer By Tarwater

Plainview Man Seeks Re-Election; If Elected, Long Service Will Put Him on Committees

A. B. Tarwater, of Plainview, for years representative of the 120th Legislative District, will be candidate to succeed himself, he has announced, and in that connection has the following statement:

"In making my announcement for Representative, 120th District, Texas Legislature, I have done so after consulting the citizens of the district and have been encouraged to again announce.

"As this district is wholly an agricultural section and I am a farmer, I have given particular attention to farm problems and my record will show that I have been fairly successful in getting results. When the present gasoline tax was enacted I sponsored and secured the passage of the refund provision which has saved the farmers many millions of dollars since it has been a part of the law.

"In the Regular Session of the last Legislature I introduced and secured the passage of the rural electrification law, was one of the sponsors of the Panhandle Water Conservation law and have taken an active part in much other legislation.

"Because of my continued service I have been able to get good committee assignments and chairmanship and am now chairman of the House committee on Agriculture. Throughout my service I have been on the revenue and taxation committee thus having an opportunity to learn at first hand the problems of state taxation. The raising of revenues is sure to be one of the major problems of the next Legislature.

"The following unsolicited comments; the first from Hon. Marvin Jones and the second from "Texas Parade," a prominent monthly publication in Texas, speak for themselves:

"The Texas legislature committee have been here and have really been helpful. A. B. Tarwater is one of the ablest men I know, and is usually well balanced and has fine judgment. I am proud of the fact that he lives in West Texas."

"Included in the group of 'Old Guards' in the legislature is Representative A. B. Tarwater of Plainview, one of the real dirt farmers who has stuck to his plow and cows. Representative Tarwater has been a champion of the agricultural interests through long legislative service and is, perhaps, the best informed member of either house on the trails, tribulations and problems of the agricultural element in Texas. Although he has rendered yeoman's service in the passage of much legislation calculated to improve the lot of the farmers, his several terms have been studded with efforts to aid in solving problems that affect, not only agriculture, but the welfare of the state as a whole."

Sunday School Lesson

International Sunday School Lesson for February 13, 1938.

Man's Use Of The Sabbath

Golden Text:—And he said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man Mark 2:27.

Lesson Text:—Mark 2: 23-28; 3:6

23 And it came to pass, that he went through the corn fields on the sabbath day; and his disciples began, as they went, to pluck the ears of corn.

24 And the Pharisees said unto him, Behold, why do they on the sabbath day that which is not lawful?

25 And he said unto them, Have ye never read what David said, when he had need, and was an hungred, he, and they that were with him?

26 How he went into the house of God in the days of A-bi-a-thar the high priest, and did eat the shewbread, which is not lawful to eat but for the priests, and gave also to them which were with him?

27 And he said unto them, The sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath:

28 Therefore the Son of man is Lord of the sabbath.

And he entered again into the synagogue; and there was a man there which had a withered hand.

2 And they watched him, wheather he would heal him on the sabbath day; that they might accuse him.

3 And he said unto the man which had the withered hand, Stand forth.

4 And he said unto him, Is it lawful to do good on the sabbath days, or to do evil? to save life, or to kill? But they held their peace.

5 And when he looked round about on them with anger, being grieved for the hardness of their hearts, he saith unto the man, Stretch forth thine hand. And he stretched it out: and his hand was restored whole as the other.

6 And the Pharisees went forth, and straightway took counsel with the He-ro-di-ans against him, how they might destroy him.

Bigotry and prejudice, rather than vital and intelligent convictions, are likely to result when our observance of a principal becomes formal and conventional. Even sound principles and worthwhile customs lose something of their reality under such circumstances.

A distinctive instutution of Judaism in the days of Jesus was the Sabbath. It was a noble institution based upon a fine conception and a sense of human need. It was the precursor of the Christian Sunday, which many Christians perfer to call the Sabbath, linking it with the Jewish institution rather than with the pagan derivation from which the word "Sunday" comes.

There is no doubt whatever that Jesus, as a sincere and devout Jew, highly regarded the Sabbath; but He found this noble institution given over in the minds of many people to purely formal obbservance, and to mere observance of a sort that utterly disregarded all sense of deeper human need and of higher human values.

When He healed a man upon the Sabbath Day, instead of rejoicing that a fellow mortal found health, the narrow people for whom observance of the Sabbath had become a matter of prejudice and bigotry found fault because the man had been healed on the Sabbath Day.

Our lesson tells how the disciples, as they went through the grain fields on the Sabbath Day and were hungry, plucked the ears and began to eat the wheat, just as many of us, when we were boys, have done. With these disciples it was a matter of sheer hunger.

Why should they not have taken the food that was near at hand and that required no work of preparation other than rubbing it in the palm of the hand and winnowing it? Yet the bigots complained that these disciples were breaking the Sabbath.

It was under these circumstances that Jesus asserted in the plainest way that "the Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the sabbath." That is a principle that might establish and practice in the whole range of customs and observances.

When customs and observances become exalted to a place where they supplant human values and human needs, it is time to protest in the name of humanity, and it is sound to protest in the name of God.

In our moden world, of course, the whole matter is in a measure reversed. We tend today to have lost all sense of sanctity concerning a day of rest, to say nothing of the Jewish or Christian Sabbath.

It will be recognized that in our modern complex world it would be impossible to arrange everything on a basis of old fashioned or strict observance of Sunday. It would mean that vast numbers of people would be subjected to great inconvenience, and possibly even to hunger and distress. We could not stop and paralyze our whole mechanism of life at certain hour on Saturday evening.

Neverless, it is not for the good of humanity or for the world that we have so far abandoned the possible observance of Sunday as a day of rest, and above all, the spirit of the institution.

If Jesus were in our cities today, I think possibly He might put the emphasis on a different place. We might think of Him as saying, "The Sabbath was made for man. Why doesn't man make better use of it?

Astounding Athletic Performance Will Be Saturday Morning Floydada Feature

Fire Department, The Hesperian, Merchants Bring Entertainment

The "Iron Man" in the person of Jack Kern, will give a free exhibition in Floydada Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

A demonstration of his pulling power will be given by Mr. Kern in down-town Floydada, the performance being free. In the demonstration he will pull a load of gasoline and oil by his neck, and a truck loaded with farm machinery and a tractor by an inner tube around his stomach.

Although Kern weighs only 170 pounds, he holds the world's record for moving the greatest load of weight with the human body. In a recent contest in St. Louis with a giant strong man from Coblenz, Germany, he defeated his 242-pound opponent by pulling four tons more, thus securing the world's title. In this contest he pulled twenty-four tons up a one per cent grade for forty-five feet.

In Ripley's 'Believe Is or Not' cartoon, Kern was compared with the ant and sand flea. The cartoon showed that an ant could move 300 times its weight on a level surface, while the 'Iron Man' could move 307.8 times his own weight, thus being able to move more than any living creature according to size.

Mr. Kern, who met with the merchants and Fire Department Monday stated that his performance was absolutely free to the public, no admission charges, no merchandise sold no collections taken. The merchants of Floydada, the fire department and the Hesperian have gone to considerable expense in bringing this event here.

Mr. Kern has arranged with Wester's Quality Bakery for a children's bread contest. The children are allowed to enter this contest free of charge and the winners will be awarded prizes.

Remember: The entertainment is all free and it lasts only forty-five minutes, beginning Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

Writing fluids, Hesperian.

Range Conservation To Be Made Statewide TACC Has Announced

Range Conservation Feature One Of Most Popular and Sucessful

The range conservation feature of the 1938 Agricultural Conservation Program will be statewide in application instead of applying only to 173 counties in the western section of the state, as was the case in 1937, Geo. Slaughter, Wharton, chairman of the Texas agricultural conservation committee, has announced.

The announcement was made after word to that effect came to the committee, in session at Texas A. and M. College, from I. W. Duggan, acting director of the southern region of the Triple A.

Participation in the range program is limited to those ranchmen who carry out practices set forth in the program in areas where these practices are approved as of value, Slaughter said. He indicated that the 1938 practices would probably be similar to those of 1937, which included construction of water reservoirs, spreading dams and spreading terraces and contour furrowing and elimination of certain range destroying plants.

"Ranchmen in some sections of the state, such as the Gulf Coast prairies, will probably find the provisions governing non-crop open pasture land, under the farm part of the program, more practical and attractive than the practices provided under the range feature," Slaughter pointed out.

"Owners of small acreages will probably find it practical to enter the range program," he continued, "as the ranch allowances are relatively low and administrative expenses would use up most of the payments."

The range conservation feature has been one of the most popular and successful AAA programs. The Texas AAA office has received applications convering the participation of 18,306 ranches, totaling more than 62 million acres, or over 75 percent of all the range land in the 173 counties affected by the 1937 program.

Old Age "Dividends"

Surplus of $966,795 in the old age pension fund proved a bonanza to Mr. and Mrs. Irving Van Brunt, shown above, and 35,000 other Coloradans over 65, who received "dividend" checks from the state pension fund's "jackpot." The money—in the case of the Van Brunts $27.77 each—was distributed when liquor and sales tax revenues accumulated a surplus in the pension fund at the close of the year. The Van Brunts regularly receive $45 each a month besides.

Applications Flood Local Welfare Office

"Work Wanted" is the wish of dozens of applicants at the local welfare office, Dot Slough has announced.

Approximately 15 families per week come to the office seeking employment on a farm or ranch. The demand for farm families is almost zero in Floyd County at this time, Mrs. Slough said.

The large wheat acreage that is being put in by the owners of the land is generally blamed for the condition. The families seeking farm employment are generally a man and wife without children, however in some cases there are children.

Mrs. Slough said that these families had been engaged in farming almost all of their lives and knew little of other types of work. These people were renters until the large wheat crop and the demand for increase acreage shoved them from the tenant farm into unemployment.

At present, demand for such labor is extremely scarce and in almost every case the man has not made his family's predicament known until there was nothing to eat. Few of the applicants have ever been on relief or any sort and know nothing of the procedure of obtaining WPA or other relief work to tide them over.

VEGETATION ON CONTOUR HOLDS MOISTURE, GIVES SHELTER TO WILDLIFE

In regions where winter snows produce a good part of the moisture needed for spring crops, farmers who left contour strips of vegetation standing in cultivated fields after harvest this fall probably will find soil moisture much greater next spring than in fields without vegetation, according to the Soil Conservation Service of the Department of Agriculture.

The strips act like a new fence to break the force of the wind and cause drifting. When the snow melts, the strips impede the flow of run-off water and force more of it to penetrate the soil where it can be stored for plant growth.

Farmers also are finding these buffer strips of vegetation a boon to wildlife because they furnish food and cover for game birds and animals during the winter months.

BEES FIND NECTAR SUPPLY VARIES AS TO LOCALITIES

Local conditions, soils, and climate seem to influence the nectar supply of plants from which bees gather their raw material. Science has not solved nearly all the problems raised by the bees in their search for honey material. W. J. Nolan, bee specialist in the United States Department of Agriculture, notes that alfalfa is a good nectar producer in the area west of the Mississippi River, but is of slight importance to the east. Buckwheat honey is well known for its dark color and characteristic flavor but nearly all of it comes from a relatively small area near Lakes Erie and Ontario; elsewhere in this country buckwheat is a honey plant of only slight importance. White clover is widely grown and is a first class honey source, but in certain localities it gives the honey bee little or no nectar.

Bells of England

Once England had, besides the seeding and harvest bells, the cleaning bell, tolled to tell the poor when to begin gathering corn in the fields, and the mote bell, to summon the qualified to court. The curfew bell remains.

Farmers Short Course Will Be Held In Two Sections This Year

Section for 4-H Club Boys and Girls Will Be Held On July 6, 7, 8

The Farmers' short course will be held in two sections in 1938, one for 4-H club members and one for adults, according to an announcement made by H. H. Williamson, director of extension service.

The section for 4-H club boys and girls will meet on July 6-7-8, and the adult section on July 12-13-14, Williamson said.

Heretofore the club members and adults have always met as one group for the annual get-to-gether on the campus of Texas A. and M. College. "The decision to hold short course in two sections was prompted by our desire to permit more farm people to attend, "Williamson said. "In recent years our accomodations have been so limited that we have been forced to restrict the attendance."

The attendance at the Short Course has been on the increase for a number of years. Some 5,000 people have been present at recent sessions. The college has been able to furnished rooms and meals for only 3,800 to 4,800. Around a thousand people, mostly from neighboring sections, have "commuted" daily between the college and their homes.

Williamson estimated that under the new arrangement accomodations could be provided for approximately 8,000 farm people and club members. With less demand on the time of teachers and lecturers, an increase in the quality of the program is also expected.

UNITED STATES "SAFEST" COUNTRY FOR LIVESTOCK

"The United States is probably the safest country in the world in which to raise livestock," says Dr. John R. Mohler, Chief of the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. "In addition, the supply and the wholesomeness of animal products in this country are excelled by those of no other nation."

Step by step, scientific research, he adds, has been whittling down the dangers and the losses until the supply of meat and milk has become one of the most dependable elements of national life.

Even in times of widespread drought and untimely freezing temperatures that curtail cereal, vegetable, and fruit crops, the production of meat and milk continues. Animals not only utilize a variety of feeds but, if necessary, are readily moved from areas of feed shortage to favorable locations.

Lungfish, "Living Fossil"

The lungfish is known as a "living fossil," a creature that is a holdover from prehistoric ages. It has evolved in the direction of land animals, but never has become one.

MR. GREER GIVES IDEAS ON SUSPENDED SENTENCES

I am opposed to a suspended sentence except in certain cases. For instance, an old supercilious and overbearing guy insults you and you just blaze away and smash his beezer as flat as a flitter. Just give a suspended sentence. That would be simple assault.

The next is aggravated assault like this. A white man was driving his own team of mules, hitched to his own wagon. A big negro was riding in the wagon with him. They came to a gate that they had to pass through. The white man told the negro to get out and open the gate. The negro said he would hold the lines while the white man opened the gate. The white man had a black snake whip about six feet long with a good keen buckskin cracker on the tail end of it. It was loaded with a piece of steel about half as long as the whip. No use to beat the negro over the head; as well beat a sheep over the head, so the white man just gave the negro a few raps around the neck 'til that negro was glad to get out and open the gate, singing "come butter come, come butter cake."

I was living in Hunt county at the time and after two or three trials, or mistrials, the justice of the peace told the constable to summons a jury from another neighborhood. It was a prairie country with a skirt of timber and another prairie and so on adinfinitem.

I lived on the Graham prairie. The constable summoned one from across Caddo, in the Vansickle neighborhood, one from Stringtown, which got her name from the way the first settlers settled the country. They would build their houses along at the edge of the timber so as to have logs to build their houses and barns and it is strung out for about a mile and three-fourths, hence the name, Stringtown. There had to be six men, four were from Graham prairie.

We made Taylor Graham from Stringtown our foreman. Graham was a very conscientious fellow and he argued that the only verdict we could render would be guilty, so I reluctantly signed the verdict. Well, when Graham handed in the verdict, the J. P. read it and asked: "So say you all, gentlemen?" we all nodded affirmatively. But I didn't think it right and told the court so. The prosecuting attorney named Heifner and defense attorney's name was Evans, B. Q. Evans. Evans was a quick spoken, quick acting person so he was called "be quick Evans," so he quickly jumped up and claimed a mistrial. I did not know the defendant nor the negro as the crime was committeed on the Hodges prairie.

I moved from Hunt county soon after that and I do not know how the case terminated.

The third case is stealing. You don't uphold stealing, do you Greer? Hold your taters 'til I tell you, then if you don't agree with me, the treat's on me, and I'll set 'em up.

There was a fellow with a big bunch of hogs. His name was Silas Good. A hog law had been passed and Silas was loose—herding his porkers down in the Sabine bottoms. There was a good mast but Silas' shoats ambled off up the river to a fellow's cornfield. Well, the fellow found Good's hogs in his field and put them up in a rail pen. Those of you who have had a bunch of hogs get in your corn, know how they will tear it down and destroy it.

Silas missed his hogs and followed them up the river to the cornfield and found them in the rail pen. He tried to pay off with part of the hogs, as he hadn't the money. Nothing would get his hogs but the cash, the corn raiser told him. That corn raiser didn't want Good to have the hogs for the law allowed him ten cents a day and it was costing him less than one cent.

Well Silas Good was a schemer too. After that corn raiser had gone to bed and to sleep, Silas slipped up to the pen, turned his hogs out and drove them back down the river to their range. If that is stealing, give a suspended sentence.

S. A. Greer.

All Cultivated Land In Floyd County Must Have A 1937 Worksheet

All cultivated land in Floyd County must be covered with a 1937 work sheet, according to information received at the county agent's office early this week.

Some 200 work sheets have been made over last week, but approximately 400 farms have not yet executed work sheets for the past year, the office reported.

The 1937 work sheets have a direct bearing on the 1937 cotton price adjustment payment and in establishing the county goals for the 1938 farm program. The state office also advises that unless this work is started immediately in all counties the 1938 program will be unnecessarily delayed. Everyone is anxious to receive information in regard to the new program and so to speed up the signing of late work sheets every one farming in 1938 should investigate the matter at once and in case a 1937 work sheet has not been filed it should be attended to at once.

Persons reporting to the office to sign 1937 worksheets should know the acreage and production of wheat back to and including 1930 if the farm was not covered by a wheat contract for 1936. Everyone reporting should know the name of the tenant and land lord for 1935.

DENTON, Feb. 10.—Miss Working Girl should watch with particular interest the discoveries that have been made lately about her wardrobe by the State Department of Labor in New York in connection with the efforts to determine a fair minimum wage.

The bottom annual cost for a wardrobe that will get by under all ordinary circumstances was estimated at $196.81. Although a girl can't very well win any medals for being the most fashionably dressed person in town on this, she can be neat and attractive at the office and be prepared for fun in the evenings.

First among the items listed are dresses, with eight allowed annually plus one evening gown. One shirt and blouse can be crowded in per year, but a sweater only every two years. Milady can have a new winter coat every three, and a new spring one every two years.

Only twenty pairs of silk hose can be worn out on this plan, which is less than two a month, and four pair of shoes. Three pairs of gloves and two handbags are annual quota, while rubbers, umbrellas and raincoats have to last two years.

Three nightgowns are Miss Workaday's allowable for the year, but she can only have a wool bathrobe every third year, and kimono and slippers every second year. In the way of underwear she can have exactly two vests, five panties, four slips and three brassieres. Belts, buckles, ornaments and other miscellany come out of a fund equal to five per cent of the total.

As limited as this budget may sound, girls at Texas State College for Women have found it of value as a yardstick for their needs and desires.

On The Garden Path

February is of course the accepted and ideal month in which to prune all types of trees and grapevines. It should be stressed, however, that shrubs blooming in the spring of the year must not be pruned until after they blossom. Old leggy growth and dead wood should be cut out of all shrubs and trees lessening the risk of decay and disease of the plants vitality.

Sprays of Spring-flowering shrubs and trees, such as Forsythia and Plum, can be brought into the house and forced in water about the first of February. Such forcing, however, is not likely to be successful unless the sprays have been subjected to plenty of cold weather.... During this month, too, Lilacs and other shrubs which are victims of scale may be sprayed with a lime-sulphur or miscible oil mixture. This should be done only during mild weather, and perferably on a windless day. Apply the spray from several directions to insure good coverage.

Some pleasant day while you are out around the grounds, look over the shrub plantings and see if they are crowding—such things show up well when the leaves are gone. Should any of them need moving, make a written note of it now, for future guidance.

Court Resumes Work Today As Paving Cases In Floydada Are Called

District court for Floyd County, winter term, is due to resume its work this morning after a day of inactivity following the completion of trials in criminal cases on the docket.

Due to be called is one of four paving suits growing out of the 1928 paving program. Rumor yesterday had it that one or more of these cases had been compromised and would be settled out of court. However, no official attention had been called to any change in the status of the cases.

Judgments rendered todate in the winter term include the following:

E. O. Nichols vs. R. O. Stark, executor of the will of Mattie E. Whiteley and others, suit on note; judgment for plaintiff as prayed for;

Olan N. Burrows vs. Elizabeth Burrows, suit for divorce, decree granted;

Ada Bell Alford vs. William Merle Alford, decree of divorce granted with restoration of maiden name of Ada Bell Davis;

Lou T. Cooksey et vir vs. D. H. Moss and others, suit to clear title; judgment granted plaintiff;

R. T. Jones vs. G. F. Weast, dismissed by agreement;

S. W. Hughes vs. Frank Boerner, judgment granting foreclosure on note to Floyd County National Bank;

Floyd Huff vs. W. C. Watson and others, suit on note and lien, judgment granting foreclosure of lien.

In the suit of the Case Company vs. O. W. Fry a jury verdict in favor of the defendant was returned into court last week-end. No formal judgment had been entered this week, however.

Judgments in cases on the criminal docket included three-year suspended sentence for Leonard Hicks charged with passing a forged instrument, three-year suspended sentence for Enoch Tedford on a charge of forgery, and the same for Malton Murrell alias Malton York on a charge of forgery.

Edward Moore, on a charge of theft, a felony, pled guilty and a jury assessed a penalty of two years in two cases, sentences in which are to run concurrently.

Rhesus Monkey Playful

The amiability of the rhesus monkey is its greatest misfortune. Since it is easily captured, it is cheap and widely used for medical experiments. A native of northeast India, the rhesus is hardy, playful, smart, and travels in troops. It stands about two feet high.

EDITORIAL

Do you have an ideal? Every great person some time in his life sets a high and noble goal ;he very early has some one or some thing as his high ideal, wheather he ever realize it or not. Early in life likewise each of us begins subconeciously to watch closely someone we admire and love Unconsciously, we weave into our own lives some part, some characteristic of our ideal. Then if we are to acquire certain habits and characteristics of our high ideal, let's make certain that we choose one worthy of our esteem; one who inspires us to higher things rather than one who would lead us into degradation.

To become rich is probably the supreme desire of some of us. Possibly we are willing to sacrifice happiness, friends, home, and everything for the sake of a little pleasure derived from monetary wealth. Or had we thought of it in that way? Perhaps, we long for fame, long for a high place among the men of the world. If so, have we considered what it, takes, wheather it can be done with honesty, or will deception be necessary in the realization of our selfish ambition? Possibly, there are a few of us who have as a goal in life to set an example above reproach. After all, let us question ourselves can we ever be happy unless we are making others happy?

Then as we think about determination our ideal and goal, lets make certain that back of it all, we have the right motive, the right desire—that of serving others!

THIS IS A "PLAY" ON WORDS, NOUNS AND VERBS

Since baseball will soon be the rage of the Floydada High campus, one person contributed the following publication for this one event.

The game opened with Glue at the stick and Measles catching.

Cigar was in the box; Short cake played short, and Corn was in the field. Cabbage was manager because he had a good head.

Eggs was the umpire, and he was rotten.

Song made a hit, and Sawdust filled the bases.

Then Soap cleaned up

Cigar went out and Ballon started to pitch, but he went in the air.

Ice went in and kept cool until he was hit by a ball. Then you should have heard Ice-cream.

Presenting Miss Rea (Dean And Friend)

One of the best loved teachers in Floydada High School is the history teacher and dean of girls, Miss Rea.

Miss Rea has been a member of the faculty for a number of years and has proved an invaluable aid to both students and teachers.

Miss Rea, as a colorful personality likes the following things: fish, garlic, Spanish rice, basketball, Fords, bright blue, history and math.

In this varied combination, you have an example of the cheerfull spirit of our History teacher.

Here's to Miss Rea. Long may she teach.

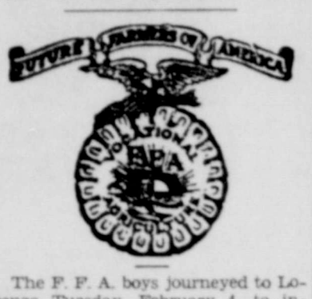

Senior Class Selects Invitations For 1938

There is no time for the senior to play now. Each day seems busier than the one preceding it, if that is possible. Besides having the pictures made, planning or the class project, working on events entered for the county meet, and one jillion and one other things, the invitations were chosen. They are attractive and sport a new type of paper. The paper is called "alligator paper".

There is a good madallion in the lower right hand corner of the invitation which furnishes the only decoration. On opening the invitation one finds, on the left, the card bearing the person's name fitted in the invitation. On the right side is the announcement. The calling cards are to be typed in Old English.

It was suggested that each senior buy a leather announcement for each of the richer relatives. Perhaps this will be a hint to some who receive leather announcements.

Also, the tryouts for the play (Junior-Senior Follies) will be held sometime this week. All who are interested are to try for the part they wish to play. Only those who are willing to work and want the play to go over will be there to try-out. Here's to a good play, seniors.

The F. F. A. boys journeyed to Lorenzo Tuesday, February 4, to initiate the Lorenzo greenhands; the officers which controlled the initiation were James Gibbs, Joe Smith, Joe Weems, Eugene Blackman, Ralph Taylor, Clifford Daniels and Raymond Colston. These boys initiated about 30 greenhands.

Also about twenty boys went to the initiation from Floydada to be raised to the Future Farmer's degree. These boys were initiated by Lorenzo's officers who took charge. The boys present were Carl Beck, Neil Bertrand, William Bertrand, Eugene Blackman, Louie Caffee, Raymond Colston, Clifford Daniels, C. W. Denison, L. T. Hickerson, Hudson Holmes, Nolan Husky, Charles Hulsey, Henry Hinton, Roy Lathem, Garth Morse, J. F. Poindexter, Carl Parrish, Joe Smith, Ralph Taylor, Milton Weems, and Aldine Williams.

The boys are now working on a poultry judging team which is expected to receive many honors.

Thru A Keyhole

This keyhole is about worn out, because we've looked through it so much!

On the level, it is getting a little dusty where the vision comes thru However, if we continue to pet it so thoroughly, maybe it will bear up under the strain.

One day after school, some erstwhile students forgot that the continuation of classes (called detention) was still in session and picked a spot under the detention windows in which to discuss teachers classes a swiped letter and various and sundry other subjects. The conferrants are still unidentified, but rumor has it that detention was entertained that day.

Kidnaping at midnight! Two blondes were about to the stage of writing their ransom notes when everything went flooy, and they were not even kidnaped! What a disappointment!

If you are seeking inspiration, just go to the Caliche pits. Dot, Bobby, and Cennye wrote some mighty passible poetry out that way Friday night .

Did it ever occur to you high-and-mighty males that due to your reluctance in stirring up hilarious times that all this school needs is two tombstones at its extremities. This town is the only graveyard in captivity with lights.

Evelyn has indeed aroused our curosity. After all, must she wear somebody's senior bracelet and then not disclose the name of its owner? We answer forcefully, no!

For the information of all you lads and lassies, the press club has erected a box in the entrance of Mr. Davis' office. Drop your gossip in the slot which is labeled, "Drop in your scoops, all you scoopers." And we do mean you!

This notice was sent to us recently. "Date wanted for Junior—Senior Banquet. Need two — one blonde (bring car) with blue eyes, pug nose and one brunette with brown eyes, medium nose.

See two Junior boys.

If anyone else wishes to advertise in this manner, bring it to the "scoop-box" in Mr. Davis' office.

Mr. Brown staged a novelty broadcast Monday at 4:00 p. m. His apparatus was hung from A. D.'s office to O. K.'s office and those entering these rooms were in for some mental torture.

When Miss Rees entered, she was asked several embarrassing questions, we fear. Beth also came in for some fancy coloring.

Some one reported that it was advisable not to stop by Lockney as too many girls were acquainted with Lockney sheiks. Or so was the case with Judson and Mary Frances.

The Smith twins seemed to be the favorites of High School musicians, but evidently Verne Phillips prefers Clyde. One hundred students can't be wrong. That was Clyde's sweater she donned Monday.

And speaking of twins, the Steen twins surely made a hit in chapel Thursday.

THINGS I WOULD LIKE TO DO

To swing from one light fixture to another (Tarzan-like) so that I could avoid the congested halls during a rush session.

To slide down the stairs in one of the large dish pans from the Home Economics closet.

To stack all the books in Miss Cade's room, one on the top of the other, put a fish bowl on top and open the windows letting in a strong north wind.

To have a radio handy so that when it got dull during English class I could tune in on the Dipsy Doodle or Bi Mir Bist Du Schon.

Speaking of English, I have been saving up my money the last few months to buy a cat so that I could take it to class, but now I don't guess I'll need it for I have been moved to a front seat. Could my being sleepy have any thing to do with moving to the front seat? You guess. I'm afraid to.

To put some oil on the hinges of the door to our classroom so when I try to sneak in late they won't make so much noise and have everyone looking back at me as I frantically try to find a seat.

Hit Of The Week

I DOUBLE DARE YOU

I double dare you to sit over here.
I double dare you to lend me your ear.
Take off your high hat and lets get friendly.
Don't be a scare cat; say what do you care—
Can't you take a dare.
I double dare you to kiss me and then.
I double dare you to kiss me again,
And if that look in your eyes mean what I'm thinking of—
I double dare you to fall in love with me.
I double dare you.

JUNIOR NEWS

Calendar Shows Much Entertainment Ahead

This week there is to be a county basketball tournament. The winners will go to the district tournament. The school calendar is nearly filled up.

On February 22, the F. F. A.-Home Economics party is to be held. This is always an entertainment which is looked forward to.

February 24 is a great day—the junior-senior follies. This promises to be a close race!

The Father and Son banquet is to be the night after the junior-senior follies—February 25.

Next, the freshman-sophomore follies take the day. This date is March 3.

Picture the excitement of April 1 and 2 which are the dates of the Interscholastic League Meet.

There are still several dates to be set—one is the junior senior banquet.

VALENTINE'S DAY

It's fun to wire flowers—try it! Catch the hint? Yes, it's a gentle reminder that Valentine's Day is once more approaching. February fourteenth carries with it much significance. The custom of exchanging valentines is ancient.

It was an old belief that birds began to mate on this day. After St. Valentine's death in 207, boys used to draw girls' names, and the girl whose name they drew, became their valentine.

So remember, if you have a valentine, remember her (or him) just 4 days from now. This is a charming old custom—one which everyone enjoys—again—try it.

"You sold me this car two weeks ago."

"Yes, sir."

"Tell me again all you said about it, then. I'm getting discouraged."

Il Duce's 20 year old son, Vittorio Mussolini, states that the purpose of his recent book, Flying Over Ethiopian Mountains Ranges is to have Italian youth learn to be above war's sorrow, seeing only its beauties. To Vittorio, his seven months' service bombing Ethiopians was a period of "magnificent sport."

"We arrived upon them unobserved," he writes of an action against the cavalry, "and immediately dropped our explosives. One group of horsemen gave me the impression of a budding rose unfolded as the bombs fell in their midst and blew them up. It was exceptionally good fun."

Chapel

An unusual chapel program was given Thursday, February 3. It was rendered by the Twins of Floydada High.

First on the program was a reading by R. T. Tyler whose twin, A. G., is in Andrews Ward school.

Next, Mr. Davis told a joke about Miss Rea and the Steen Twins. The joke was as follows:

It seems that Phil Steen went to history one day and got fifteen demerits. Phil, fresh from Ward school, was used to talking his teacher out of his demerits. But it seems that Miss Rea was relentless. After talking quite a while, she said, "All right, Phil, I'll take those demerits off if you will bring me the answers to these three questions."

How far is it around the earth?

How deep is the ocean?

What am I thinking?

The next day brought Phil to his history class all wreathed in smiles. Miss Rea, seeing him, asked for the answers to her questions.

His answer to the first was "A day's journey with the sun."

To the second he replied, "A stone's throw."

And to the third, "You think you are talking to Phil, but you aren't, 'cause I'm Maurice."

The rest of the program was as follows:

Steen twins, (acrobatics) monkey roll, elephant walk, handstand dive, pyramid, back-role, shoulder flip, broadway whirl, two-story walk.

Cleo Davis and Mary Lee O'Bannon sang "El Rancho Grande."

Claud Smith—piano solos which were: Gold Mine in the Sky and Waltz You Saved for Me.

Clyde Smith played a harp solo—Railroad blues, and as an encore, Fox Chase.

Clyde and Claud Smith played, on the guitar and harp, An Old Water Mill, Out on the Texas Range, and Double Eagle.

Several announcements were made by Mr. Davis and Mr. Cummings. This program was enjoyed by everyone—may we have another like it.

BILL "BRING'EM BACK ALIVE" DANIELS SNARES POSSUM

Billy Frank Buck Daniel is bringing them back alive! One night last week, the hero stalked the dark, treacherous, calmmy path of the Blanco Canyon jungle and snared the much sought after specimen of a rapidly diminishing specie.

In more literate words, this is what happened. Billy Daniel, who lives near the vicinity of Blanco Canyon, either by accident or by intentional purposes, managed to catch a possom this week and it has been on display in the trophy case at Floydada High. It has aroused curosity and been the conversational interest of the school.

WITH OUR EXCHANGE

The minister advertised for a man-servant and the next morning a nicely dressed young man rang the door bell.

"Can you start the fire and get breakfast by seven o'clock?"

"I guess so," answered the young man.

"Well, can you polish all the silver wash the dishes and keep the house neat and tidy?"

"Say, parson," said the young man. "I came here to see about getting married, and if its going to be as much trouble as that you can count me out right now."

"Drive like hell and you'll get there" is a quotation from a recently published safety poster. Not a bad sign.

Lulu, (on the phone) "Is that you honey?"

Honey: "Yes, this is honey, Lulu."

Lulu: "Honolulu! Great Heavens! I didn't ask for long distance."

"That's about enough out of you," said the doctor as he stitched up his patient.

On an examination, the teacher asked, "What school is located at Edmund?"

Pupil's answer: "The school for the feeble minded."

Sophomores Present

Emmett Hinson has jet black hair and brown eyes. His personality and disposition may be defined in one word "swell". He is a band member prefers it to all other subjects. As a trombone player the school just couldn't do without him. Emmett reached the fond age of fifteen last December 21. He is five feet, seven and half inches tall and weighs 137 pounds. His favorite expression is "Hi pal" and he prefers navy blue to all colors. Of all the redheads, blackheads, brownheads, brunettes, brownetts etc., he prefers blonds (good taste what?) As and athelete he is somepin.

So until next week here's saying adios.

MARTHA YEARWOOD

A 13 year old Freshman which the school is proud to have. She is always jolly and is every ones friend. She has brown hair and blue eyes; five-feet and three inches tall. She takes piano lesson and is doing exceedingly well. Martha is a good candy maker as well as a candy eater. Her favorite study is English and her favorite saying is 'Hi Futs'.

Income Tax Report For 1937 Must Be Filed By March 15

Internal Revenue Bureau Explains How To Make Reports

In an effort to prevent common errors in making out income tax reports the Bureau of Internal Revenue has prepared information sheets giving in outline what a person is required to do to satisfy the income tax law.

The period for the filing of income tax returns covering the calendar year 1937 began January 1 and ends at midnight of March 15, 1938.

The Bureau of Internal Revenue urges careful reading of the instructions accompanying the forms for filing the returns. Additional information, if needed, may be obtained at the office of a collector of Internal Revenue, deputy collector, or an internal revenue agent in charge. Taxpayers who apply to revenue officers for assistance in preparing returns should bring with them a copy of their prior year return. Also, as a further aid in the preparation of a correct income tax return for the year 1937, the Bureau has prepared a series of short newspaper articles, of which this is the first, advising the salaried man, wage earner, professional and businessman—in fact, every class of individual taxpayer—of his requirement and privileges as interpreted under the latest regulations, rulings, and decisions relating to the income tax law.

Forms for filing returns of income for 1937 have been sent to persons who filed returns last year. Failure to receive a form, however, does not relieve a taxpayer of his obligation to file his return and pay the tax on time, on or before March 15 if the return is made on the calendar-year basis as is the case with most individuals.

Forms may be obtained upon request, written or personal, from the offices of collectors of internal revenue and deputy collectors. Persons whose net income for 1937 was derived chiefly from salary or wages and was not in excess of $5,000 should make their returns on Form 1040A. Persons whose net income was in excess of $5000, or, regardless of amount, was derived from a business, profession, rents, or sale of property, are required to use Form 1040. Failure to use the proper form presents difficulties to both the taxpayers and the Bureau of Internal Revenue. Therefore, it is emphasized that a taxpayer engaged in a business or profession from which he derived a net income of less than $5,000 is required to use form 1040.

The return must be filed with the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer has his legal residence or principal place of business on or before midnight of March 15, 1938. The tax may be paid in full at the time of filing the return or in four equal installments, due on or before March 15, June 15, September 15, and December 15.

Offers Silent Coal Delivery

A truck which delivers dustless coal, without noise, is demonstrated above by R. E. Wall, left, Winston-Salem, N. C., coal dealer, who built his invention out of discarded automobile parts. The stoker or small lump coal is unloaded by a conveyor belt along the bottom of the truck, passes through the hopper, to which Wall points, where it is srayed with hot oil vapor to eliminate dust. A detachable conveyor belt chute takes care of the noise problem.

Meats At Attractive Prices Now Should Be On More Home Menus

Drive to Aid Big Texas Industry of Cattle Raising Undertaken by Packers and Food Dealers

E. L. Angus, chairman of a regional committee which has for its objective a larger consumption of meats in the homes of the cities and towns of the country, this week gave out a statement calling attention of housewives to the fact that meats of better grade are once more at a price level at which they should be seriously considered for the average family menu.

Help of local dealers in the program is being given heartly. A recent meeting called at the office of the Retail Merchants Association emphasized this need for help to put the meat producing business back on its feet. Regarding the present situation Mr. Angus said:

"After a year of sustantially reduced supplies of the better grades of live stock and a consquent reduction of supplies of the better grades of meat, meat production again is on the upgrade, and abundant supplies of improved quality meats are moving to market at prices that are attractive.

"Last year the American people did not get their normal supply of meat". The drouth of 1936 so greatly reduced the supplies of live stock feed that meat production was less by nearly two billion pounds than in 1936. With a new, abundant crop of live stock feed available, live stock producers have been turning this feed into finished, or high quality, live stock as rapidly as possible. Following a substantial increase in the supply, the prices of live stock and of meat have declined substantially from the levels which prevailed late last summer.

"Consumption of meat per captia dropped from about 126 pounds in 1936 to about 119 pounds in 1937. The reason for the drop in consumption was that there simply wasn't as much meat available.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, however, hog production, below normal for the past three years, is definitely expanding, and under the influence of the abundance of feed, production of the better grades of cattle is on the increase.

"Americans prefer meat with their meals. The recent development in the live stock and meat industry apparently assured them the opportunity to have more meat with their meals, with the quality of their fare improved and the unit cost substantially less."

County Agent Wants To Get Whole Farm Demonstration Here

Whole farm demonstrations over the state have caused a great deal of interest where they have been conducted, with prizes being offered each year for the home which was outstanding in the state.

A number of counties have begun these demonstrations and County Agent D. F. Bredthauer is anxious to have one begun in Floyd County in an effort to try the program here.

The number of homes entered this demonstration will have to be small the first year as it is new and will require much attention from the agricultural agent and extension specialists, but any farm family may undertake this demonstration. Its development consists of setting reasonable goals for both the farm and the home, then reaching them in an orderly way.

The whole farm demonstration is adapted to any size or type of farm or any form of land tenure.

The success of a whole farm demonstration is measured by the family's progress as reflected in the improvements made on the farm and in the home to meet the aims of the demonstration. Such a demonstration represents the work of the entire family and its cooperation with the Extension Service. Purpose of the demonstration:

To assist the family in developing a practical, progressive example of improved farm management and home making, and demonstrate the results for the advancement of the community.

Aims of the demonstration:

1. Development of a practical system of management which will provide a sustained income sufficient to insure a comfortable living and lead toward economic security.

a. Conservation and improvement of the soil by wise use of land, control of erosion and correction of deficiencies of soil.

b. Conservation of water by control of run off, a storage in tanks and reservoirs; intelligent application of irrigation.

c. Conservation of property by adequate care, intelligent use, reduction of avoidable risks.

2. Development of an efficient home program which is reflected in the family's health, comfort, cultural and financial advancement.

a. Conservation of human effort through efficient planning, use of economical laborsaving devices in the home and on the premises.

b. Conservation of health by providing food which meets the family's needs, providing adequate clothing and shelter developing proper sanitation.

3. Development of a tradition and value for the farm and the community that will command the interest, respect and admiration of present and future residents.

Old Square Nails Are Found In Homes Near Cone By Contractor

The old, square type of nails sold in hardware stores and supply houses of Texas in pioneer days and used for construction of the first homes built in this section fifty years ago, still are to be found occasionally.

Two recent instances of this kind came to light, both near Cone, where W. A. Gound had the job of remodeling and re-roofing one home built 49 years ago, and of razing and building in its place another one nearby.

Nails from the size used on dimension lumber to the smaller used for shingles were picked upon the jobs by Mr. Gound, and a few were left in The Hesperian window.

On the S. W. Wright place, the house built 49 years ago 6 miles west of Cone, was re-modeled for the Wright estate. Mr. Gound was assisted by John Kerlin and others. One daughter of the family still lives on the place.

The M. English place 3½ miles southwest of Cone was razed and a new residence put up. On some of the lumber from the old houses was found the brand of M. T. Jones Lumber Company, which operated in West Texas during the first pioneering days.

SOME HOGS HAVE MORE OF CHOICE CUTS THAN OTHERS

That hogs can be bred to dress out a higher percentage of choice cuts—hams, bacon, and loin—has been shown by comparison of Danish Landrace hogs with typical American breeds. United States Department of Agriculture meat specialists compared 56 Landrace carcasses with 240 carcasses of common domestic breeds.

The Landrace carcasses produced 18.3 percent hams, 12.4 percent bacon, and 16.4 percent loin. The American breeds dressed out 17.5 percent ham, 12.3 percent bacon, and 12.3 percent loin.

Landace carcasses weighing 170 pounds averaged 1.36 pounds more ham, 0.17 pound more bacon, and 6.97 pounds more loin than the average carcass of American breeds of the same weight. Some American breeds produced as large percentage of loin, but fall lower in the percentage of bacon. The head of the average Landrace hog also weighs 1.7 pounds less than the head of the average American hog.

Landrace hogs were imported by the Department in May 1934 for experimental purposes. With needs of the American swine industry in mind, especially the more effective selection of breeding stock, the Department selected the highly regarded Danish breed for study under American conditions.

The Department does not have any breeding stock available for sale, and is working with the breed purely on a research basis which may lead to the development of better qualities in established American breeds.

HOME OWNERS AND RENTERS ABOUT EQUAL IN VILLAGES

Home ownership versus renting is just about a toss-up in American village life on the basis of a Nation-wide house-to-house canvas of 22,644 native white families in all parts of the United States.

In half the village groups studied, more of the families interviewed at random were owners than renters; in half, more were renters than owners. Highest percentage of home ownership was in the Michigan and Wisconsin villages where 56 percent of the families owned their homes.

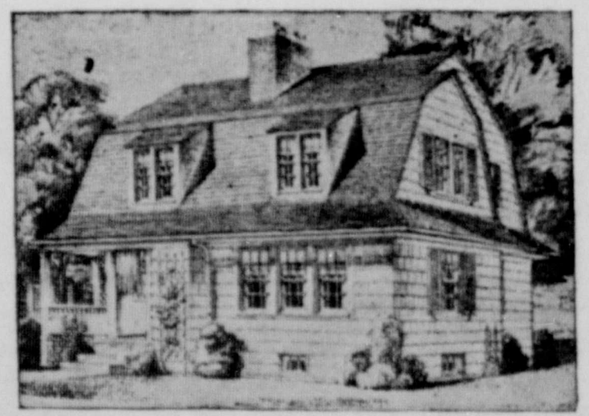

The percentage in the other village groups studied was: Vermont and Massachusetts, 52; Pennsylvania and Ohio, 52; Illinois and Iowa, 54; Kansas and North Dakota, 49; Colorado, Montana, and South Dakota, 48; California, 48; Oregon and Washington, 55; Georgia and South Carolina, white families, 38 percent, Negro families, 32 percent; North Carolina and Mississippi, white families, 45 percent, Negro families, 31 percent.

The average rents reported by the families interviewed who didn't own their homes ran as follows: Vermont and Massachusetts villages, $17; Pennsylvania and Ohio villages, $14; Illinois and Iowa villages, $10; Michigan and Wisconsin villages, $14; Washington and Oregon villages, $11; California villages, $15; Kansas and North Dakota villages, $13; Colorado, Montana, and South Dakota villages, $18; Georgia and South Carolina villages, white families, $11, Negro families, $4; North Carolina and Mississippi villages, white families, $15, Negro families, $5.

Meats At Attractive Prices Now Should Be On More Home Menus

Drive to Aid Big Texas Industry of Cattle Raising Undertaken by Packers and Food Dealers

E. L. Angus, chairman of a regional committee which has for its objective a larger consumption of meats in the homes of the cities and towns of the country, this week gave out a statement calling attention of housewives to the fact that meats of better grade are once more at a price level at which they should be seriously considered for the average family menu.

Help of local dealers in the program is being given heartly. A recent meeting called at the office of the Retail Merchants Association emphasized this need for help to put the meat producing business back on its feet. Regarding the present situation Mr. Angus said:

"After a year of sustantially reduced supplies of the better grades of live stock and a consquent reduction of supplies of the better grades of meat, meat production again is on the upgrade, and abundant supplies of improved quality meats are moving to market at prices that are attractive.

"Last year the American people did not get their normal supply of meat". The drouth of 1936 so greatly reduced the supplies of live stock feed that meat production was less by nearly two billion pounds than in 1936. With a new, abundant crop of live stock feed available, live stock producers have been turning this feed into finished, or high quality, live stock as rapidly as possible. Following a substantial increase in the supply, the prices of live stock and of meat have declined substantially from the levels which prevailed late last summer.

"Consumption of meat per captia dropped from about 126 pounds in 1936 to about 119 pounds in 1937. The reason for the drop in consumption was that there simply wasn't as much meat available.

According to the United States Department of Agriculture, however, hog production, below normal for the past three years, is definitely expanding, and under the influence of the abundance of feed, production of the better grades of cattle is on the increase.

"Americans prefer meat with their meals. The recent development in the live stock and meat industry apparently assured them the opportunity to have more meat with their meals, with the quality of their fare improved and the unit cost substantially less."

County Agent Wants To Get Whole Farm Demonstration Here

Whole farm demonstrations over the state have caused a great deal of interest where they have been conducted, with prizes being offered each year for the home which was outstanding in the state.

A number of counties have begun these demonstrations and County Agent D. F. Bredthauer is anxious to have one begun in Floyd County in an effort to try the program here.

The number of homes entered this demonstration will have to be small the first year as it is new and will require much attention from the agricultural agent and extension specialists, but any farm family may undertake this demonstration. Its development consists of setting reasonable goals for both the farm and the home, then reaching them in an orderly way.

The whole farm demonstration is adapted to any size or type of farm or any form of land tenure.

The success of a whole farm demonstration is measured by the family's progress as reflected in the improvements made on the farm and in the home to meet the aims of the demonstration. Such a demonstration represents the work of the entire family and its cooperation with the Extension Service. Purpose of the demonstration:

To assist the family in developing a practical, progressive example of improved farm management and home making, and demonstrate the results for the advancement of the community.

Aims of the demonstration:

1. Development of a practical system of management which will provide a sustained income sufficient to insure a comfortable living and lead toward economic security.

a. Conservation and improvement of the soil by wise use of land, control of erosion and correction of deficiencies of soil.

b. Conservation of water by control of run off, a storage in tanks and reservoirs; intelligent application of irrigation.

c. Conservation of property by adequate care, intelligent use, reduction of avoidable risks.

2. Development of an efficient home program which is reflected in the family's health, comfort, cultural and financial advancement.

a. Conservation of human effort through efficient planning, use of economical laborsaving devices in the home and on the premises.

b. Conservation of health by providing food which meets the family's needs, providing adequate clothing and shelter developing proper sanitation.

3. Development of a tradition and value for the farm and the community that will command the interest, respect and admiration of present and future residents.

Old Square Nails Are Found In Homes Near Cone By Contractor

The old, square type of nails sold in hardware stores and supply houses of Texas in pioneer days and used for construction of the first homes built in this section fifty years ago, still are to be found occasionally.

Two recent instances of this kind came to light, both near Cone, where W. A. Gound had the job of remodeling and re-roofing one home built 49 years ago, and of razing and building in its place another one nearby.

Nails from the size used on dimension lumber to the smaller used for shingles were picked upon the jobs by Mr. Gound, and a few were left in The Hesperian window.

On the S. W. Wright place, the house built 49 years ago 6 miles west of Cone, was re-modeled for the Wright estate. Mr. Gound was assisted by John Kerlin and others. One daughter of the family still lives on the place.

The M. English place 3½ miles southwest of Cone was razed and a new residence put up. On some of the lumber from the old houses was found the brand of M. T. Jones Lumber Company, which operated in West Texas during the first pioneering days.

SOME HOGS HAVE MORE OF CHOICE CUTS THAN OTHERS

That hogs can be bred to dress out a higher percentage of choice cuts—hams, bacon, and loin—has been shown by comparison of Danish Landrace hogs with typical American breeds. United States Department of Agriculture meat specialists compared 56 Landrace carcasses with 240 carcasses of common domestic breeds.

The Landrace carcasses produced 18.3 percent hams, 12.4 percent bacon, and 16.4 percent loin. The American breeds dressed out 17.5 percent ham, 12.3 percent bacon, and 12.3 percent loin.

Landace carcasses weighing 170 pounds averaged 1.36 pounds more ham, 0.17 pound more bacon, and 6.97 pounds more loin than the average carcass of American breeds of the same weight. Some American breeds produced as large percentage of loin, but fall lower in the percentage of bacon. The head of the average Landrace hog also weighs 1.7 pounds less than the head of the average American hog.

Landrace hogs were imported by the Department in May 1934 for experimental purposes. With need of the American swine industry in mind, especially the more effective selection of breeding stock, the Department selected the highly regarded Danish breed for study under American conditions.

The Department does not have any breeding stock available for sale, and is working with the breed purely on a research basis which may lead to the development of better qualities in established American breeds.

HOME OWNERS AND RENTERS ABOUT EQUAL IN VILLAGES

Home ownership versus renting is just about a toss-up in American village life on the basis of a Nation-wide house-to-house canvas of 22,644 native white families in all parts of the United States.

In half the village groups studied, more of the families interviewed at random were owners than renters; in half, more were renters than owners. Highest percentage of home ownership was in the Michigan and Wisconsin villages where 56 percent of the families owned their homes.

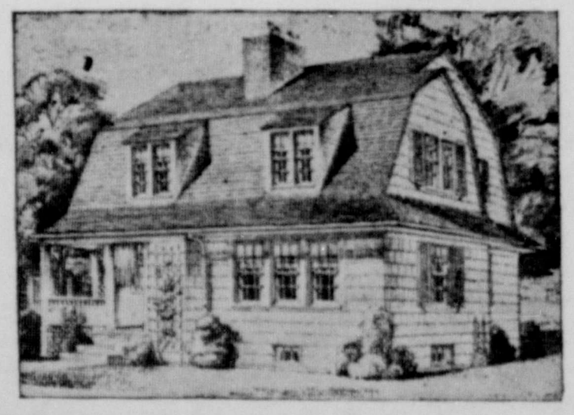

The percentage in the other village groups studied was: Vermont and Massachusetts, 52; Pennsylvania and Ohio, 52; Illinois and Iowa, 54; Kansas and North Dakota, 49; Colorado, Montana, and South Dakota, 48; California, 48; Oregon and Washington, 55; Georgia and South Carolina, white families, 38 percent, Negro families, 32 percent; North Carolina and Mississippi, white families, 45 percent, Negro families, 31 percent.

The average rents reported by the families interviewed who didn't own their homes ran as follows: Vermont and Massachusetts villages, $17; Pennsylvania and Ohio villages, $14; Illinois and Iowa villages, $10; Michigan and Wisconsin villages, $14; Washington and Oregon villages, $11; California villages, $15; Kansas and North Dakota villages, $13; Colorado, Montana, and South Dakota villages, $18; Georgia and South Carolina villages, white families, $11, Negro families, $4; North Carolina and Mississippi villages, white families, $15, Negro families, $5.

things can be done in 1938."

Dr. Ellsworth was then introduced and he spoke to the group on "Guiding the Cub's Life."

"There are seven hours of almost every boy's life that is spent entirely in unguided endeavor, and possibly misguided endeavor where it is unguided," Ellsworth explained showing statistics on which he had based his statement.

"Every boy from the age of five years to the age of 12 years has an ideal, generally some man or larger boy in his community that seems a 'god,' and he imitates this ideal personage at every turn. If the boy's ideal man does good the boy does good, and if the boy's ideal does bad the boy does bad. Therefore we older ones must watch ourselves to be sure that the boy who has picked us as an ideal must not be misguided," Ellsworth said.

"The experiences we gained as we moved along life's pathway from 5 to 12 years were the most vivid experiences that we ever received," Ellsworth declared, "And we must remember that this is as true of the cub today, therefore we must provide a wholesome series of experiences and impressions unless we want the cub to be misguided."

Ellsworth told of some impressions he received during his early life that have remained with him vividly while later impressions were soon forgotten or passed over. He explained that the seven hours of unguided effort that the cub usually had should be managed to give the boy the best and train him to avoid the bad and unwholesome things of life.

and not on good will or return business.

All peddlers and vendors are not "crooked" nor are they all "gyps" but the average resident cannot tell the legitimate seller from the crook in most cases, therefore the safe thing to do is report the peddler to the proper authorities and let them decide.

In almost every case the goods or products offered for sale by a peddler or transient solicitor can be had from a local merchant for the same price with the added satisfaction that if it is not as claimed the buyer can "take it back" and get his money refunded.

Solicitors have come to Floydada, it is reported, selling coupons on various articles. The money paid on the coupon was "merely a guarantee that the goods would be taken when the shipment was made," or the seller explained, that "it covered the first cost and would be deducted from the regular price." Generally the coupon seller vanished with the money and the buyer has only a nice shiny piece of bond paper to show for his money. The "shipments are yet to be made."

The ordinance offers no protection to the resident who bought and "got stung" but it does protect those who wish to protct themselves and their friends from shrewd salesmen in the future.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Fred Brown returned home Thursday of last week from Austin and other points in central and south Texas. They accompanied their sons, Rex and Harold to enter Texas University for the spring semester.
