Future looks good for Alex

By JOHN BROOKS
Managing Editor

It was nice to see Alex last Sunday.

Alex was having a big time at Dameron Park. He was swinging as high as he could go, showing off for his big sister Alma. His niece and nephew mimicked him.

Alex got tired of the swings. It's easy for a 10-year-old to get bored with a simple swing. Alex and Alma began an impromptu game of tag, chasing each other around the park.

Alex got thirsty. So did Alma. They ran over to the water fountain for a drink. Alma took off running for the fountain, leaving Alex behind. Alex didn't like that. He raced from behind and took Alma to the ground with an open-field tackle.

They wrestled on the ground, giggled, got up and walked to the fountain. Together.

Alex, you see, needed a little help.

He's blind.

The last time I saw Alex, I thought he was dead.

It was a crisp November evening in 1985. I had driven to the Pizza Hut to pick up a small Italian sausage and was driving back to the Castro County News office when I saw the police car's lights about six blocks north on U.S. Highway 385. I went back to the office, grabbed a camera, and drove to the accident.

It was 6:45 p.m. Twilight. Too late to drive by sunlight, too early for headlights and street lights to take full effect. It was light enough to see too much.

There was a pickup truck stopped in the highway. Just a few yards away lay a bicycle, its chrome bumper and reflective pedals twisted, useless. Not far from the bike, in the middle of the highway, lay a single tennis shoe.

40 yards away from the bike, covered only by a glittering gray windbreaker, life dripping from a gash in the back of his head, lay seven-year-old Alex Perez.

Twice in the next week, as Alex lay in a coma in Northwest Texas Hospital in Amarillo, doctors told Mr. and Mrs. Joe Perez that there son wasn't going to make it. Alex was going to die. There was nothing they could do.

Quayle's job record suspect

By ROBERT GREENE
Associated Press Writer

Vice President George Bush promised new jobs for minorities and said he'd be a "good president for all Americans" during a swing through his adopted home state, but his running mate ran into fresh questions today with a report he fudged on his official resume.

Democrat Michael Dukakis kept up his code of silence on Dan Quayle questions but unloaded again on the Reagan administration, saying it has lost the war on drugs with Bush as the lieutenant.

Quayle was campaigning in the Midwest trying to answer questions on farm and trade issues when The (Cleveland) Plain Dealer reported that he exaggerated his job record in the Indiana Attorney General's office.

Quayle had just begun to shed some of the questioning about his military record and relations with a former lobbyist.

Quayle's Senate biography, which is being distributed as official background of the Republican vice-presidential nominee, says: "He was chief investigator for the Consumer Protection Division of the Indiana Attorney General's Office from 1970-1971."

The Plain Dealer reported that the Consumer Protection Division didn't even exist in 1970 and that Quayle spent most of the period as a low-level clerk. It said he put in less than three months in the investigator's job, and had already moved on to another job when the division officially opened for business in September 1971.

The new disclosure came just a few hours after Bush had declared the controversy over his running mate to be a thing of the past.

Campaigning in Texas with a Mariachi band and wearing a guayabarra, Bush promised in the sweltering late-summer heat of San Antonio "to help those minorities who haven't really had a shot at the starting line."

"The best way to do that in employment is to have urban and rural enterprise zones, a break in that tax structure that will encourage business to locate where those populations are."

Reagan tried to create such zones on a national level in the early part of his administration as a means to combat unemployment, but opponents said they failed to produce results when tried on a state level.

Bush also said he supports affirmative action programs "so minorities have a better shot at the American dream," pledged to fight gun control and help the faltering oil industry.

Dukakis, returning to Boston after a Midwest sojourn, escalated his attacks on Bush through his role in the Reagan administration.

"Why after seven years of task forces and policy boards and grandiose claims have cocaine imports tripled, drug-related deaths doubled, and heroin imports risen by 50 percent?" he asked at a rally in Cleveland.

He also said the administration's association with Panamanian leader Manuel Antonio Noriega while he was "actively involved in the drug business" was "criminal."

Dukakis running mate Lloyd Bentsen ran into flak Thursday when the World War II veteran pilot told a veterans' group that Dukakis and the Democrats could be trusted with the nation's defense.

Stolen vehicles in two accidents

Two persons are in custody following automobile accidents that involved vehicles stolen Thursday in Hereford.

A Hereford man, 17, name unavailable, is awaiting arraignment on charges of driving while intoxicated and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle after wrecking a Walcott school van-type bus in a one-vehicle accident just west of Canyon.

The bus had been stolen from the parking lot of a Hereford car dealer where the van was being serviced. The man is charged with stealing the van around midnight Thursday night.

A 25-year-old man was arrested at the scene of an accident in the 200 block of San Obregon Street when he lost control of the motorcycle he was driving and struck a pedestrian.

When officers checked the motorcycle's registration, they discovered the motorcycle had been taken without the owner's permission. The man was charged with unauthorized use, no driver's license, no insurance, expired registration and expired inspection.

The pedestrian, Robert Martinez, 19, suffered a twisted ankle and scratches on his back.

'Throngs' expected for rally

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organizers expect tens of thousands of people to gather Saturday to try to rekindle the dream that the Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. shared with the nation 25 years ago during the march on Washington.

King's widow, Coretta Scott King, Democratic presidential nominee Michael S. Dukakis and civil rights leader Jesse Jackson plan to address the gathering.

But Republican presidential nominee George Bush did not respond to an invitation, said the Rev. Joseph Lowery, who succeeded King as head of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference.

"We have not heard from Mr. Bush," Lowery said at a news conference Thursday. A Bush spokesman, Dan McLagan, said the vice president plans to campaign in Texas on Saturday.

An estimated 250,000 people marched in Washington on Aug. 28, 1963, one of the great days in the civil rights movement and the occasion of King's moving "I have a dream" speech.

The same number of people commemorated the 20th anniversary of the march five years ago.

Lowery said he expects "throngs" to march Saturday, but he declined to predict the number.

The march in 1963 spurred Congress to pass the Civil Rights Act of 1964.

"Something magic happened there. A new vision was shared with the American people. Whether that happens on Saturday or not, I don't know," said Andrew Young, who in 1963 was a young minister working with King and is now the mayor of Atlanta.

Since 1963, said Lowery, "everything has changed and nothing has changed. We have come a long, long way. But we still have a terribly long way to go, particularly in the arena of economic justice."

Thirty-one years after King, Lowery and Ralph Abernathy helped found the SCLC, the median income of blacks remains only 57 percent of the median white income.

Local Roundup

Police cover nine reports

Hereford police were kept busy with nine reports Thursday, while also issuing eight citations.

Reports included a prowler report in the 100 block of Northwest Drive; a boy, 14, reported as a runaway; threat charges filed by a man against another man who threatened him in public; a dog owner was cited for allowing her dog to roam loose after her poodle bit a boy riding a bicycle;

A 15-year-old girl who was reported as a runaway was later found; neighbors argued over broken fence boards in the 100 block of Lake; a man in the 100 block of Ironwood discovered his pickup windshield, worth $250, had been broken; and a man in the 200 block of 16th Street reported that an AM/FM stereo unit and a CB radio had been stolen from his pickup.

Fire Marshal Jay Spain and Hereford police are investigating a vehicle fire in the 300 block of Avenue E. Firemen responded to a vehicle fire alarm, and, after the fire was extinguished, the van's owner discovered that $1,080 worth of goods had been stolen from the van.

County arrests two

Two persons were arrested Thursday by Deaf Smith County sheriff's officers. A man, 43, was arrested for theft of services, and a man, 18, was charged with enticing a child.

Also reported were an inmate scratching his name on a holding cell window and an assault on East U.S. Highway 60.

Chamber hears plans, reports

A report on industrial development activities and plans for a membership drive highlighted the regular monthly meeting of the Deaf Smith County Chamber of Commerce board Thursday evening.

The chamber's industrial development committee is currently working with five prospects, according to Mike Carr, executive vice president. Carr made the report for Ken Rogers, committee chairman, who announced that three proposals have been made to major companies and one proposal was submitted to a small company.

One project was announced this week. The chamber is seeking a united community effort in its effort to land a major food corn contractor and processor. Two other proposals have also gone to food processors, with the possibility of using the old Swift plant for the project.

In other business Thursday, directors discussed plans for a membership drive in order to put the chamber in a stronger financial position. The board also heard reports on the Town & Country Jubilee, the Farmer's Market, the Hereford Learning center, and the Welcome Newcomer project being started by the Women's Division.

No action was taken at the meeting because of the lack of a quorum. Directors present were Larry Malamen, president; Mike Bowles, B.J. Gililand, Doug Josseland, Rocky Lee, Sue Malamen and Carol LeGate.

Today is Gary Christensen's last day at the Brand.

We, and you, and Putt Powell, will miss him.

The next sports editor here will be facing quite a challenge: He or she will have to go some to cover local sports as thoroughly as Gary has over the past three years.

If there was a sports event, whether it was seventh grade B-team or varsity, YMCA or Kids, Inc., Gary was there.

Gary also did something unique in local school sports with his research on Hereford's football history. I don't know how many hours he spent reading old newspapers, trying to track down scores and games. It took a lot of tedious work, and Gary's to be commended for that.

Good luck, Gary.

Will we ever find all of the uses there are for Velcro?

Velcro was invented back in the late 1950s and is one of thousands of little goodies we use today from yesterday's space program.

Velcro isn't EVERYWHERE, but it seems to be cropping up in more places more often.

I got a little promotional kit in Thursday's mail from Ford Motor Company. It was more than I'll ever need, but these PR people gotta work.

Anyway, it all came in this nice little trifold covering that was fastened with Velcro.

That got me to thinking: What are we missing on Velcro.

How about Velcro on the back of a rug, with another piece on the floor. None of this rug creep. And speaking of rug creep, wouldn't it be good for guys who wear toupees?

Not knowing any better, I asked some persons of another gender if Velcro wouldn't work to fasten bras. "No," one of them said, "one wrong move and it's all over." They did, however suggest that men's ties could use Velcro. Instead of a clip-on, you could have a press-on.

I told them that if they wouldn't worry about ties, I wouldn't worry about bras.

Why not have a Velcro wall in every room? Instead of having nail holes and plaster patches, you could just have one wall in every room made of Velcro. It comes in a variety of colors, and you can paint over it without it losing any of its sticktuitiveness.

Then when you want to hang a picture or a clock or any of this decorating stuff, you just put some Velcro on the back of it and you have it up. Crooked? Just take it off and stick it again.

It could also work great for discipline. Instead of telling your child to stand in the corner, you could get two or three large pieces of Velcro and really stick them in the corner.

ALEX

Alex's parents "prayed like we had never prayed before," Dad said. Alex rallied both times.

Alex spent most of the next six months in the intensive care unit. Alex was under the care of three different doctors as he rallied. The doctors saw little hope for Alex, but his arms and legs began to respond to stimulation.

Then it was time for total rehabilitation. He had to re-learn how to walk and talk. He had to be toilet-trained again. "We went through a lot of Pampers," Alma said.

All of the training was a little harder the second time around. Alex was blind.

Do not tell Alex he's handicapped. "I'm blind. I'm not crippled," he said it with all of the insistence a 10-year-old can muster. Alex dresses himself, combs his hair, brushes his teeth, and insists he not be helped. "He's very sensitive about someone saying he's handicapped," Dad said. "He wants to do everything he can for himself."

Alex used to be crippled. For almost a year, Alex could only get around in a wheelchair. In June 1987 he walked unaided for the first time. 14 months later, walking is old hat.

"Look at him run," said Dad. Joe is just as proud as would be the father of a toddler. Suddenly, Alex trips: His right foot stepped on the little-bit-slower left foot. "His left leg is still a little show," Dad said. "We still have some rehabilitation work."

Alex isn't handicapped in school, either. "He can read Braille so fast it's unbelievable," Mom said. "It took him no time at all to learn. The Commission for the Blind has helped us, and since he went back to school in Dimmitt last year, they have helped him while the teachers have also been learning."

"It's amazing how good his sense of touch is," Dad said, laughing about how he can touch Alex lightly on the shoulder. "I can just barely touch him, and he'll say 'What do you want, Dad?'"

"I'll try to touch him like one of my older sons would touch him, but he always knows it's me. I asked him one time how he knew it was me. He said 'Because you have hair on your hand.' I had never noticed it before."

The touch, smell, and maybe other senses help Alex get around without a cane or a guide dog. "Even at school, he doesn't use a cane," Dad said. "He learns his way around somewhere so fast... We have goats and pigs on our farm (between Dimmitt and Hereford on FM 1055). He feeds and waters them. He knows the pigs by the way they act."

Mom, Dad, and Alex are hoping he may someday see again. "The doctors say there is still swelling on his head," Dad said. "It may be 3 or 4 more years before it's gone. We just pray and hope the Lord gives us another miracle. If he could just see a little bit..."

"We settled (Out of court: The amount of the settlement, by agreement, cannot be disclosed) with the guy that ran into him. They asked us what we were going to do with it. I told them I would give all of that money back if Alex could see again."

Bush promises jobs to spur economy

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Vice President George Bush, promoting a strong defense and traditional values while lambasting his Democratic opponent, promised more jobs to keep the economy moving forward.

"I want to keep America a land of big opportunity and strong in value," Bush said Thursday. "Opportunity means jobs and jobs are what we have provided to the American people, 17 million new jobs in 6 years."

"We are not only creating jobs at good wages. We are creating jobs at better wages and we've got to keep this economy going forward," he said.

In his first appearance in his home state since being nominated for president, Bush talked to about 1,200 supporters during a 20-minute rally at the tourist-lined River Walk.

Bush, who will be in Longview today for another rally, is touring the state during a four-day campaign swing. Bush frequently has been criticized by Texas Democrats, who have called him a tourist because his home in Houston is a hotel suite.

Bush told the crowd how he and his wife, Barbara, drove across West Texas 40 years ago to start a new life in Odessa.

"Texas was a place of big opportunity, a can-do place and it was strong in the traditional values of family, faith, freed and patriotism. That has never changed and it will never change," he said.

Bush blasted Dukakis on the Democrat's stance on school prayer, abortion, gun control and reduction in military weapons and system.

"I believe in voluntary prayer in school. He opposes it. I believe in right to life and encourage adoption, not abortion and I believe our school children should have the right to say the pledge of allegiance," Bush said.

"I believe my opponent has opposed every weapon system since the sling shot," said Bush, a decorated World War II veteran and former CIA director.

Bush did not mention his embattled running mate Indiana Sen. Dan Quayle, whose military service record and purported relationship with former Washington lobbyist Paula Parkinson have sparked debate.

He also did not criticize Texas Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, the Democratic vice presidential candidate.

Instead, Bush talked about President Reagan economic policies, which he said were working. Bush also said he would put incentives in the petroleum and energy industries and would help small businesses.

Bush said the Massachusetts governor was partially correct in saying the U.S. economy could get worse.

"They can't get elected unless things get worse and things won't get worse until they get elected," Bush said.

"Let my opponent from Massachusetts travel around the country telling people how horrible things are. I am going to tell them how good things are and what I, George Bush, will do to make them better for every American," he said.

Clements wants changes made in thrifts industry

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Bill Clements has announced the creation of a committee to seek public and legislative support for reforms in the savings and loan industry.

The Savings and Loan Legislative Committee is an outgrowth of the governor's task force on thrifts, Clements said in a Thursday statement. The task force presented its reform proposals to Clements in January.

The panel will help draft legislation based on task force recommendations, promote public awareness of the need for thrift industry reform and lobby the 1989 Legislature for approval of the package, Clements said.

The task force recommended changes in qualifications for the state's savings and loan commissioner and in the composition of the Finance Commission's savings and loan section. It also proposed stronger state regulatory efforts.

"Restoring stability to our savings and loan industry is essential," Clements said. "We must address this problem area of our economy so that the economic recovery in Texas can continue full speed ahead."

The eight-member committee will be headed by John Wilson Kelsey of Houston, senior vice president of Drexel Burnham Lambert, Clements said. Kelsey was a member of the Savings and Loan Task Force.

Also named by Clements to the committee were Rep. Bruce Gibson, D-Godley, chairman of the House Committee on Financial Institutions; Sen. O.H. "Ike" Harris, R-Dallas, chairman of the Senate Economic Development Committee; Alan Myers Jr., chairman of the Olney Savings Association and immediate past president of the Texas Savings and Loan League.

Sergeant thought to head spy ring that sold secrets

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — A former U.S. Army sergeant was ordered held in prison for allegedly heading an international spy ring that authorities say sold NATO secrets to the Soviets since the late 1970s.

A special Supreme Court panel ordered the suspect, Clyde Lee Conrad, held in prison pending further investigation following his arrest on Tuesday, said Chief Federal Prosecutor Kurt Rebmann. He was charged with "compelling suspicion of espionage activities in an especially grave case," according to the prosecutor's office.

The New York Times, quoting U.S. and West German officials, said today that Conrad is believed to have transferred information on rocket bases and on NATO's secret oil pipeline to resupply tanks in West Germany.

Officials earlier said the ring was believed to have stolen documents concerning NATO defense plans for Europe and U.S. Army contingency plans for a ground war with the Soviet Union in Europe.

Rebmann's spokesman, Alexander Prechtel, said Thursday that it's too early to determine what damage the spying caused the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

A second American soldier who was not identified received a "five-figure sum" of money for supplying the ring with military secrets, Rebmann said. Prechtel said two Hungarian-born brothers arrested Tuesday in Sweden with cipher keys, coded messages and radios were a part of the ring.

"We can't exclude the possibility that millions of dollars are involved," Prechtel said.

A U.S. Justice Department official, speaking on condition of anonymity, called the case "a serious encroachment on our national security."

Army records released in Washington said Conrad, of Sebring, Ohio, was born in 1947 and worked for the U.S. military for 20 years, first as an infantryman and then as an "administration specialist."

According to his service records, Conrad received the National Defense Service Medal, the Vietnam Service Medal, five Army Commendation medals, the Army Achievement Medal, three Meritorious Service medals and seven Good Conduct medals.

Prechtel said Conrad worked with classified military defense plans for seven years at a U.S. Army base in Bad Kreuznach in central West Germany, with access to a wide array of secret documents.

Conrad allegedly engaged in espionage work after he left the service in 1985, Prechtel said.

In a statement, Rebmann also alleged that Conrad had turned over the most recent batch of information to his Soviet bloc contact in Vienna last month.

Rebmann said officials still were investigating to determine exactly what was missing.

Cable News Network on Thursday quoted unidentified West German sources as saying Conrad systematically photographed files between 1980 and 1985. The CNN report said investigators believe he may have transferred material onto a personal computer, which was seized at his home.

Prechtel said that while "several" people had been taken into custody or arrested, he could not confirm a New York Times report Thursday that eight people were rounded up.

The Times said the network was uncovered by West German and U.S. officials, including agents from the FBI and the Army. The Army has about 250,000 military personnel in West Germany at more than 200 installations and frequently warns its personnel to beware of Soviet bloc spies.

Rebmann's statement said Conrad sold secret documents to "a Soviet bloc secret service."

"He (Conrad) recruited another member of the U.S. Army for espionage work and paid him a five-figure sum for the delivery of military documents," Rebmann's statement said. The type of currency was not disclosed.

Question: This is the first year I've had Medicare coverage and I now have several doctor's bills to submit under my medical insurance coverage. Should I send my bills to my Social Security office?

Answer: No, do not send the medical insurance bills to your Social Security office. You should send your bills to the Medicare carrier that handles claims for your state or county. You can find the address of the carrier who handles your claims in YOUR MEDICARE HANDBOOK. Be sure to submit your bills on the Patient's Request form, also called a Form 1490S. Most doctors' offices and all Medicare carriers and Social Security offices have copies of the form.

QUESTION: I have been receiving Social Security disability benefits for the past 4 years and my condition has not improved. Is there a time limit on Social Security disability benefits?

ANSWER: You will continue to receive a disability benefit as long as your condition prevents you from working. There is no time limit. However, your case will be reviewed periodically to see if there has been any improvement in your condition and whether you are still eligible for benefits. And, if you are still eligible when you reach 65, your disability benefit will be automatically converted to retirement benefits. Usually there is no change in the amount of your payment when this happens.

QUESTION: My friend's young son was seriously injured in an auto accident and will not be able to return to work for over a year. He recently found out he will get a Social Security disability benefit. He found out his wife and two young sons will also be eligible for payments. Is this true? If so, how many young people realize that the Social Security program is more than just retirement benefits?

ANSWER: Yes it's true. A lot of young people don't realize just how important Social Security is for them even before they're old enough to college retirement benefits. Every month more than 3 million workers under 65 get disability payments from Social Security and more than 1 million wives, husbands, and children get payments as dependents of disabled workers. These payments make a real difference to people while they're recovering from an accident or illness and getting ready to return to work.

QUESTION: I just got a notice from Social Security saying my SSI case is being reviewed. What does that mean?

ANSWER: As required by law, Social Security reviews every SSI case from time to time to make sure people getting checks should continue getting them and that they are getting the right amount. You will be asked for similar kinds of information you provided when you applied for SSI.

QUESTION: I'm planning to retire before I reach 65. Is there any way to find out how much my Social Security payment will be?

A small flat sponge or paper towel kept in your refrigerator vegetable bin can absorb much of the excess moisture collecting there.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In response to "Strictly Anonymous, USA" (whose husband drank like a fish), you told her she was strong, but you didn't encourage her to leave him.

If she has been supporting her children without her husband's help, it would be a lot easier to do without him around. I know. I did it, but it was tough sledding. I, too, was so fed up that I had thoughts of running away, but I just couldn't leave my kids.

We are stronger than we know. And we are not alone. I am eternally grateful to Al-Anon for putting me wise to myself. I was an "enabler" who remained in a marriage for 17 years, knowing that I never loved the man. After he lost three businesses and was found guilty of a federal offense, I finally said, "Enough! What could be worse than this?"

I did not have the support of my parents. (They were afraid of what the relatives would think.) My in-laws haven't spoken to me in four years and may never speak to me again, but that's OK. I got into the mess alone and I will get out of it the same way.

I am learning to trust, for the first

Names in the News

LONDON (AP) — A white Mercedes owned by George Harrison and used in the Beatles' film "Let It Be" sold for $29,740 at an auction of rock memorabilia, Christie's auction house said.

The 1969 car drew the highest price of any of the 426 items on sale Thursday, said Victoria Wolcough of Christie's.

Other auction highlights included handwritten lyrics to "Whatever Gets You Through the Night," John Lennon's first hit after leaving the Beatles, which went for $10,224; a pair of Michael Jackson's dancing shoes, which fetched $5,577; and the first major collection of clothing owned by the late punk rocker Sid Vicious to be sold, which went for more than $16,900.

"It was an enthusiastic crowd, a very busy auction," said Ms. Wolcough, adding that buying was dominated by Warren Stone of the Hard Rock Cafe in Los Angeles and by Brian Murphy of the London Hard Rock Cafe.

OAKVILLE, Calif. (AP) — Robert Mondavi, the dean of California vintners, celebrated the 1988 harvest with the annual blessing of grapes and the start of the crush in Napa Valley.

Beaming under a cloudless, sunny sky Thursday, the energetic, 75-year-old Mondavi told tourists and guests crowding the crushing area at his winery, "This is our 23rd vintage ... thank you for coming."

The crowd applauded after the Rev. Andre Tournier of St. Joan of Arc Church in Yountville, wearing a 200-year-old robe, blessed the grapes with new juice and holy water.

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Lawyers for the Beatles' licensing company have filed suit over what they charge are pirated compact disc recordings of songs and interviews by the former rock group.

"It not only rips off the Beatles, it rips off the public," said attorney Paul LiCalsi, representing London-based Apple Corps Ltd.

The eight pirated CDs include a 1961 audition tape the Beatles made for Decca records and a 1962 live performance in Hamburg, he said Thursday.

The suit names Jay Chernow of Sayreville and two companies, San Juan Record and Tape Club Ltd. and Music Rent, both of Parlin, among other defendants.

Reached for comment, Chernow said he was the president of the companies, which only do licensing. He said the music and interviews were legally licensed and denied the allegations in the suit.

time in my life. I'm scared. I make mistakes, but they aren't fatal. I have accepted the fact that I'm human. No more playing Super Mom. My children are learning to be independent for the first time. We are going through adolescence together. And we're going to make it! Hallelujah!—M. In Gloucester, Mass.

DEAR M.: Thanks for a wonderfully upbeat letter. I love your can-do approach to life, and your courage is sure to be contagious.

I'd like to recommend a book that will help those who are living with an alcoholic or have the problem themselves. It is "Getting Better: Inside Alcoholics Anonymous" by Pulitzer Prize-winner Nan Robertson.

This is a poignant and brutally frank story of a highly successful journalist who for years was a closet drinker. Finally, through A.A., she turned her life around. Her insights are marvelous and her story is an inspiration. The publisher is Morrow. The price, $17.95.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Please again, just one more time, blast the slob who never send thank-you notes. I swear I will buy a dozen papers and send your column to all my relatives!

I am fed up with announcements for graduations, showers, weddings and new babies. I wind up sending money because I don't know most of the people well enough to select an appropriate gift. I never hear from them—until the next time they have something to announce.

I did receive a note recently. It read: "Dear Uncle: I finally graduated college, etc., etc." No mention to Dear Aunt who spent half a day shopping for the gift. I've been married to Dear Uncle for 36 years and my name hasn't appeared in the obits as yet, so I guess I'm still here. If the graduate had waited for Dear Uncle to buy a card and sign a check, he would have waited a very long time.

Thanks for letting me spout off, Ann. I'm serious about sending copies of your answer to all my relatives.—Aunt Softie in the Hinterlands

DEAR SOFTIE: Here's your letter. Start clipping, dearie. Your beef is plenty legitimate. I hope others who have been similarly abused will clip it, too.

Take charge of your life and turn it around! Write for Ann Landers' new booklet, "How to Make Friends and Stop Being Lonely." Send a check or money order for $3.50 and a self-addressed, stamped, business-size envelope (45 cents postage) to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.
