FNB's Fraser says bank rumors are unfounded, foolish

By LESLIE HAINES
Energy-Business Writer

The top man at First National Bank of Midland, Charles D. Fraser, says the bank is strong, solvent and prepared to weather the downturn in the energy business no matter how long it takes.

Any rumors to the contrary are "unfounded and foolishness," he said Friday in an exclusive interview with The Reporter-Telegram.

First National had a mixed year in 1982, as did other local businesses, when the recession and falling energy demand came here to roost. The bank ended the year with an $11.8 million profit, down about 45 percent from 1981's total of $21.5 million.

First National has $1.8 billion in assets, making it the fifth-largest Texas bank and the 115th largest in the nation.

The bank increased the amount it sets aside to cover possible loan losses, however, from $11.2 million in 1981 to $50 million in 1982.

THIS DREW the attention of the state and national banking community and others who track First National, which is considered a barometer of energy banks in the Southwest. The Friday edition of The Wall Street Journal recapped the bank's 1982 financial performance under a headline emphasizing the loan loss reserve increase.

Fraser, chairman, president and chief executive officer of the bank, said the article was in general favorable; he is not concerned about the loan loss reserve figure.

"We're capitalized so we can stand the worst, and we expect the worst is not going to happen — but if it does, we're prepared."

Fraser said he does not expect loan losses in the aggregate, in the next two or three years, to approach the $50 million mark.

He admitted FNB has more "loan quality problems" than in recent years, just as do other banks, "but, the bank is significantly larger than in previous years, so you've got to relate it to size as well as dollars."

FROM 1974 to 1979, the bank doubled in size, and from 1979 to 1980 its deposits nearly doubled.

"In view of current economic uncertainties, both worldwide and in the oil and gas industry specifically, the $50 million reserve clearly demonstrates our solvency and financial strength," Fraser said.

By creating a loss reserve substantially higher than FNB had in the past, and yet still enjoying a profit, the board of directors thought the move "was a clear way of saying the bank is prepared for a long period of economic weakness, if that should occur," he said.

Recently, there has been much speculation about FNB, and energy bankers in general, because of falling crude oil prices. These prices affect the value of energy reserves in the ground, upon which many oil and gas companies' loans rest.

First National makes no secret of the fact most of its biggest clients are energy companies: Its quarterly reports are prefaced with the statement, "The business of producing energy is the main source of loans and deposits for First National."

RUMORS ABOUT the bank and Fraser's part in it have circulated for weeks. They are partly due to the fact officers from other large Texas banks are often seen in Fraser's office. He said it's all routine business. For example, the bank uses InterFirst Bank, Dallas, as a correspondent bank, and has done so "for 50 years, probably more."

And, Fraser's absences recently due to an illness, from which he says he is recovering, added to speculation the bank was about to be taken over.

In the past, Fraser and the board of directors felt it would be imprudent to comment, fearing they might inadvertently fuel the fire, but he took time out from meeting with energy loan customers Friday to talk to The Reporter-Telegram.

"There have been no negotiations with anyone to sell or merge the First National Bank of Midland," he said.

"We must continually assess the prudence of being an independent bank, which is now surrounded by holding company branch offices; but to date, our opinion is we do a better job of serving local needs than we would if the bank were managed from Houston, Dallas, or somewhere else."

FRASER SAID he thinks the media in general have overplayed the effects on the energy business of the economic downturn and falling crude oil prices.

"I'm not saying I don't think crude oil prices won't drop, but I think probably the range is such that the industry as a whole, and this bank in particular, won't be as affected as people are predicting.

"We are in a short period of time — one to three years — of readjustment and slowness...We've just geared ourselves to work through whatever the slowdown is, and for however long it takes."

To increase capital, the bank successfully issued $30 million worth of stock in August, and in December sold its office building to a group of private investors for $75 millon.

Natural gas price control lift could be announced today

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration officials expect President Reagan to announce Saturday that he will soon ask Congress to lift all price controls on natural gas, an Energy Department source who declined to be identified said Friday night.

Earlier this week, Reagan heard a report from Energy Secretary Donald Hodel that Congressional leaders probably would go along with such a proposal, and Energy Department staff members worked late Wednesday night putting the finishing touches on a draft bill.

After Hodel's report, White House aides said the president wanted to talk with the affected congressional figures himself, and thus probably would not make up his mind right away.

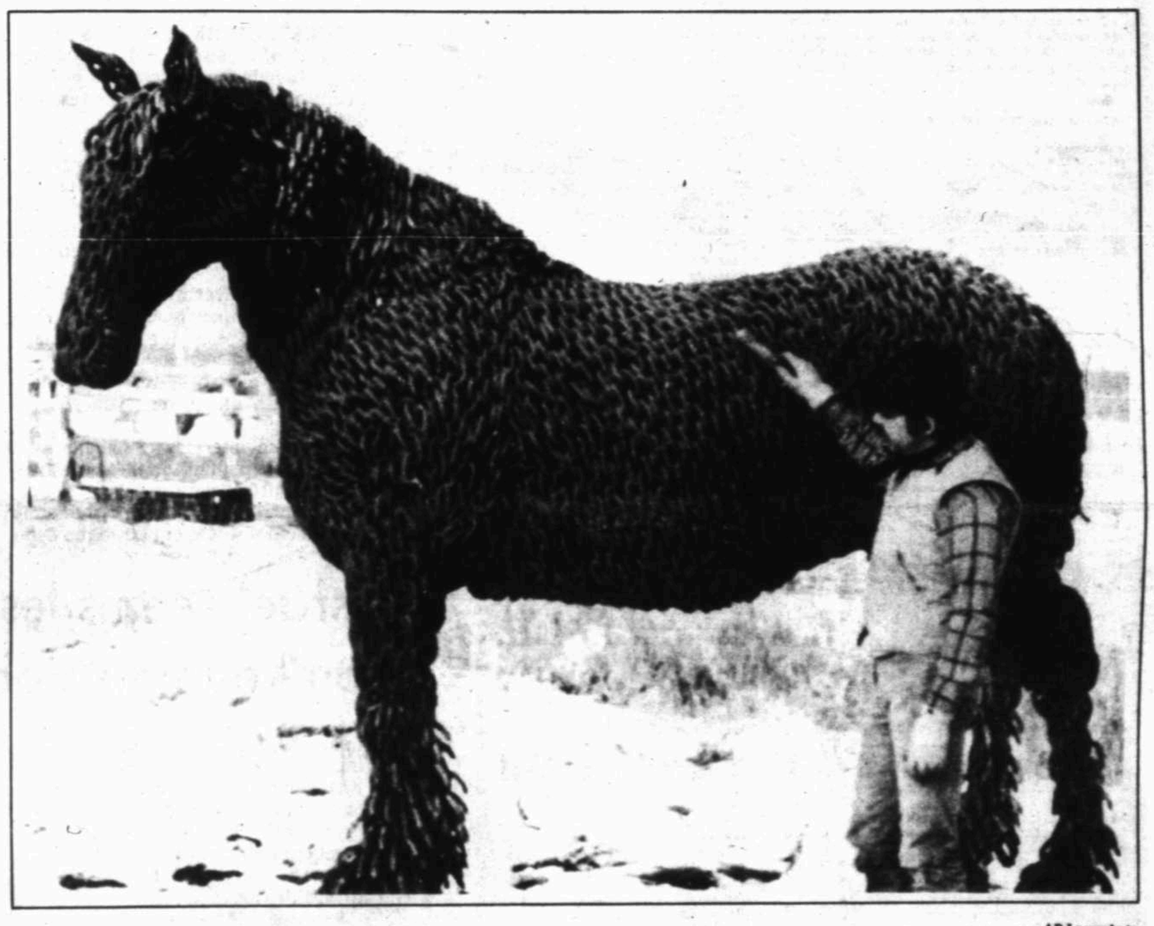

Under a 1978 law, controls are being removed in stages from gas discovered after April 1977, with complete pricing freedom scheduled for 1985. But older gas, roughly half the nation's supply, was supposed to be kept under price ceilings.

Despite a growing number of shut-in wells and falling prices on the spot market, consumers have been faced with price increases of 20 percent to 40 percent this winter, and any administration proposal is expected to contain measures aimed at easing the burden on them.

One reason for the higher prices is so-called "take-or-pay" contracts signed by many pipeline companies after the rough winter of 1976-77. Those agreements require payment for the gas whether it's used or not, so pipelines keep on taking it, while dropping their cheaper suppliers as demand has fallen during the recession.

Another reason is the switch of many industrial customers to fuel oil, leaving the largely fixed distribution costs of pipelines and local distribution companies to be spread over a smaller customer base.

Reagan campaigned in 1980 on a pledge to drop all price controls, but the administration has not moved before this because of Congressional opposition.

MADDness caused by DWI growing throughout Texas

"We're just all trying to work together to solve a problem and save some lives. We know that lives that are being taken on the highways can be cut down."
— Milo Kirk

A car driven by a drunken 19-year-old hurtled over a hill near Sherman April 17, 1981, turning a van carrying 11 people into a tumbling mass of metal and flying bodies.

Three passengers in the van died, Milo Kirk's 9-year-old stepson suffered critical injuries and the car's driver walked away from the scene.

Mrs. Kirk got MADD that tragic Good Friday evening after seeing friends and her child laid low by a liquor bottle on wheels.

Today, as vice president of Dallas' chapter of Mothers Against Drunk Drivers, Mrs. Kirk works to "get even" with the problem of drunken drivers, who, on average, kill once every 23 minutes.

"It's an epidemic on our highways that's totally out of control, that only we citizens can do anything about," she said. "I was totally unaware of the death and injury that drunk drivers are causing. I look back and think how uninformed I was. And now I feel much more aware."

In Midland Friday to speak at the Tenth Annual Regional Institute of Alcohol and Drug Abuse Studies, Mrs. Kirk said her bitter experience with a drunken driver, unfortunately, is only one tragic tale among many. Her boy recovered from severe head injuries. Mrs. Kirk said she knows many others are not so fortunate.

MADD estimates drunken drivers injure about 650,000 annually and kill approximately 26,000 people each year. MADD was born in May 1980 when Candy Lightner of Fair Oaks, Calif., lost her 13-year-old daughter to a drunken driver.

When the driver received probation for the offense, Mrs. Lightner's frustration ignited her one-woman crusade against drunken drivers. Her personal battle will be dramatized in an NBC television movie March 14.

"She could not understand how a system would allow a person who had killed another person with their vehicle to be let go, to be put back on the street," Mrs. Kirk said.

MADD now has 111 chapters in 36 states, including Texas chapters in Houston, Austin, San Antonio, Dallas, El Paso and Brazos County. About 30-35 applications are pending for new Texas chapters.

Several banks lower prime lending rate to 10.5 percent

NEW YORK (AP) — Several banks lowered their prime lending rate Friday to 10.5 percent, its lowest level in four years — a move applauded by the Reagan administration, which has suggested banks could afford to charge less interest on loans.

Among the banks cutting the prime rate from 11 percent were No. 2-ranked Citibank, No. 5 Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. and No. 6 Chemical Bank, all of New York; No. 8 First National Bank of Chicago and No. 15 Mellon Bank of Pittsburgh.

In Washington, Martin Feldstein, chairman of President Reagan's Council of Economic Advisers, said the fall in the prime rate brought it in line with other interest rates, creating a "spread" of approximately 2½ percentage points between the prime and money market interest rates. He said the spread was now in "line with what it was a year ago."

Most of the banks that lowered the prime did so without comment.

But William J. McDonough, chief financial officer at First Chicago Corp., parent company of First National, said: "We're reacting to our conviction that the economy has begun a recovery, and that should reduce private-sector credit demand through an improvement in profits for corporations."

He said that factor, combined with declines in the interest banks must pay to obtain money and "our conviction that inflation has come down and will stay down," led to the reduction.

The prime lending rate has not been at 10.5 percent since November 1978, when it was rising toward a record 21.5 percent in December 1980. The cut was the latest in a gradual decline that began last July, when the prime peaked at 16 percent.

The prime rate is the base on which banks compute interest charges on short-term loans to corporate clients.

Stenholm: People should give of selves

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Staff Writer

"People must be willing to give of themselves so there will be something here tomorrow" was the closing statement of U.S. Rep. Charles Stenholm's speech here Friday night. But it also was a hint of what Congress will be asking the people to do in paring the budget from its record $208 billion deficit.

Stenholm, 43, a Democratic farmer-congressman from Stamford, was guest speaker for the banquet ending "Engineers Week," sponsored by the Permian Basin Chapter of the Texas Society of Professional Engineers. Held in Ranchland Hills Country Club, Engineer of the Year award and scholarship recipients also were honored.

G. Thane Akins, a petroleum engineer by trade and Midland's mayor by a desire to serve, received the coveted Engineer of the Year Award. "This is overwhelming to me, an old country boy who grew up in the town of Brady," said Akins.

Acknowledging the "tremendous support" he had received from others, including his wife Jean, Akins recalled an incident that led him into petroleum engineering.

CALLING IT "Speech No. 13," Akins said when he was in the eighth grade he heard an uncle who worked for Hughes Tool in Kermit talk about petroleum engineers. "He said they didn't do anything and made a lot of money. I decided that's what I wanted to do," he joked.

Turning serious, Akins called engineering an elite society and a field that will be in great demand in the world.

Stenholm was introduced to the audience in engineering terms with the ending phrase that "he's got his head screwed on straight."

America's economy is sick, Stenholm said, but he has yet to find anyone who would want to live in another country. And while the negatives about the economy apparently are emphasized daily, he pointed to positives: an interest rate that has dropped down to 11 percent from a high two years ago of 21.5 percent and an inflation rate that has sunk from a high of 12.5 percent to about 5.

Despite the good points, Stenholm acknowledged that with 12 million Americans out of work, there are a lot of people paying the price of a poor economy.

"It's a challenge to us (politicians) not to fumble the ball," he said.

"The challenge to Congress is to come up with solutions to come down with the deficit. I'm a confused Jones County farmer who's hearing President Reagan say that deficits don't matter and Speaker of the House Tip O'Neill saying let's balance the budget," said Stenholm in referring to a philosophical switch of the two men.

In a brief interview with The Reporter-Telegram, Stenholm said the size of the deficit was worrying a lot of congressmen. "It took us 206 years to accumulate our first $1 trillion in debt. In three years we've added $600 billion."

He admitted that some budget cuts in the past two years haven't been fair to everyone, with lower income people appearing to take the brunt. "We have to look straight across the board."

Stenholm dwelled on Social Security, asking the audience in a critical tone where Americans got the idea they were entitled to cost-of-living adjustments every year. That aspect wasn't written into the law when the system was established in 1937, he said.

"What's convinced America that cost-of-living adjustments in Social Security are an inherent part of the Social Security system? We demand COLAs and don't worry about where the money comes from," he said.

Mayor named 'Engineer of Year' at TSPE banquet

A REPORT RELEASED by a bipartisan committee that allegedly would keep the system solvent "is a cop-out, folks. If we don't reduce the cost-of-living adjustments and increase the retirement age, our children will be paying 25 percent of their salary into Social Security.

"If Congress doesn't do something by Easter of this year, the Social Security checks won't come out by July," he warned.

Everyone is working toward retirement age and that Social Security check. "My main goal in life is to become a senior citizen, folks, because it sure beats the alternative," Stenholm said to the chuckling crowd with a smile.

Instead of revamping that system, though, Stenholm said constituents are asking that the defense budget be cut to help reduce the federal deficit. "The facts do not bear out that we are overspending on defense," he said, comparing the percentage of the proposed 1982-83 budget for defense with that of 1960. Today's falls below that of over 20 years ago.

Stenholm pointed out that President Reagan didn't get all he wanted the past two years in defense, and he expects the same result this year. He disagrees with Reagan's proposal to freeze military pay, saying the only way he could accept it is if everyone's pay is frozen.

"We will have to take a look at some weapon systems and slow down on procurement of others," he added.

AGRICULTURE IS one area paying the price of recession. Just as dropping oil prices help the economy but hurt oil producers, lower food prices are damaging America's farmers.

Stenholm criticized philosphies of former presidents Nixon, Ford and Carter and that of President Reagan which embargo food to the Soviet Union and China on the theory it will make them change their systems of government.

"Our own government won't allow farmers to compete on the free market in the world," said the congressman. "We have to recognize the world as it is, not as we wish it were. You don't govern with philosophy, you govern with policy."

During an interview, Stenholm said he has a "open mind" on the suggestion that the third 10 percent tax cut not be implemented. Theoretically, the additional monies would cut down the deficit.

"The challenge to Congress is to come up with solutions to come down with the deficit...It took us 206 years to accumulate our first $1 trillion in debt. In three years we've added $600 billion."

As a member of the Conservative Democratic Forum, better known as the Boll Weevils, Stenholm was one of the conservative Democrats who led the swing vote on crucial budget issues and in support of Reagan in the past two years.

The group is still "alive and well," said Stenholm with a slight laugh. But Reagan's honeymoon with Congress is over, he said during an interview. "It's down to the hard job of governing and the real world for Reagan."

THE BOLL WEEVILS have a task force designing an alternative to Reagan's budget, according to Stenholm. "We'll play a little quiet diplomacy," he said of the year.

Reagan's proposal that the minimum wage requirement for teen-agers be dropped so more could go to work won't pass, said the congressman.

Calling for their assistance on legislation, Stenholm told the audience that he needs help on making decisions.

And when they ask for his help, "All I ask of you is to sit down and talk it out; analyze the pros and cons just in case you get what you want."

There was a Chrysler dealer in a small town who was on his way to file for bankruptcy, said Stenholm in beginning one of his illustrations. On either side of his firm were foreign car dealerships which were making profits. The man spied a bottle on the street in front of him, pulled out the cork and out popped a genie who would give him one wish. He wished to be a foreign car dealer, he said.

"Poof. He became a Chrysler dealer in Japan," he joked.

Germans allege Soviets trying to sway elections

BONN, West Germany (AP) — West Germany charged the Soviet Union with "massive interference" in domestic affairs Friday and accused the Kremlin of trying to influence next week's national election.

Government spokesman Juergen Sudhoff said remarks made Wednesday by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko were also "an attempt to separate West European and American interests."

Sudhoff told a news conference that Gromyko's comments in an interview published by the Soviet newspaper Pravda represented a "direct and massive interference in West German domestic affairs."

He said Moscow is making "an unconcealed attempt" to influence the close campaign, now entering its final phase before the March 6 vote.

But the spokesman said Bonn would "not be provoked," and would continue to seek a "propaganda-free and businesslike dialogue with the Soviet Union."

In the Pravda interview published Wednesday in Moscow, Gromyko said Western Europe's NATO allies were forced to follow the lead of the United States in security issues.

Gromyko claimed the NATO allies were "popularizers" of a U.S.-backed plan to station 572 medium-range nuclear missiles in Western Europe to counter Soviet rockets deployed over the past few years.

Sudhoff said Radio Moscow broadcast a similar commentary earlier this week in German.

"When Moscow is broadcasting in German, it is not meant only for listeners in the East," Sudhoff said.

The missile plan has become a central theme in the West German election.

Conservative Chancellor Helmut Kohl backs the NATO plan, which calls for deploying the new missiles by year's end unless the Soviet Union agrees to withdraw its missiles targeted on Western Europe.

But opposition Social Democratic candidate Hans-Jochen Vogel says both the Soviet Union and the United States should make a supreme effort to avoid deploying the missiles by offering new proposals at the Geneva arms talks.

Israel seems less adamant on keeping troops in Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Israel is backing away from its demand to keep a battalion of troops permanently inside the Lebanese border, apparently brightening prospects for an agreement on a withdrawal of foreign forces from the country, U.S. officials confirmed Friday.

Successful completion of the protracted negotiations to remove Israeli, Syrian and Palestine Liberation Organization forces is considered essential by the Reagan administration for getting started on an overall Middle East settlement.

Israel still wants electronic and other monitoring devices installed to guard against a renewal of cross-border rocket attacks by PLO guerrillas.

But this is considered a manageable request by U.S. and Lebanese authorities.

Drunken drivers causing MADDness

Mrs. Kirk is one of 430 Dallas MADD members. Her friend, Dallas chapter president Joyce Clark, still walks with a cane because of injuries she suffered when thrown from the rolling van almost two years ago.

Texas' MADD groups vigorously promote legislation to "close loopholes" in Texas laws governing driving while intoxicated, according to Mrs. Kirk. She said more than 40 pieces of alcohol-related legislation are now before the 68th session of the Texas Legislature, where some opposition has come from alcohol interest groups and House Speaker Gib Lewis.

MADD's proposals are championed by State Sen. Bill Sarpaulis of Hereford, whose Senate Bill 2 would make it illegal to carry an open alcohol container while operating a motor vehicle. Sarpaulis' Senate Bill 3 would increase alcoholic beverage license fees, the proceeds of which would feed an alcoholic treatment and rehabilitation fund.

Mrs. Kirk said Sarpaulis' Senate Bill 1, proposing a mandatory fine and license suspension upon an initial DWI conviction, could help eliminate alcohol abusers who slip through the system by "deferred adjudication," a variation on probation.

"The person who eventually kills someone with their automobile has been arrested for DWI charges before," she said. "We've seen this pattern too many times. Bad driving record, no license, no insurance and sometimes — believe it or not — no remorse."

Mrs. Kirk said the drunken driver who haunts her memory had been charged with DWI three times. At the time he crashed into the van, he was driving recklessly enough to attract the pursuit of an off-duty state trooper.

In addition to their lobbying efforts, Mrs. Kirk said, MADD volunteers monitor the progress of DWI prosecution in the courts.

She said MADD members also offer alcohol education for adults and students, provide counseling for victims and offenders, and continually encourage formation of new MADD chapters.

"In no way are we trying to preach any morals of drinking," she said. "We go in and give them statistics, give them facts."

MADD's efforts are making a difference in Dallas, according to Mrs. Kirk. She said a "Home for the Holidays" program, in which law enforcement officials made spot checks on drivers during the past New Year's holiday, helped contribute to Dallas' first New Year's weekend without a traffic fatality since 1948.

She said students and parents are encouraged to sign contracts which require the student to call home for a ride if they become too drunk to drive. In return, she said, parents are called upon to bring their children home safely — no questions asked.

"It's working; it's working because it has to work," said Mrs. Kirk, who encouraged those in attendance to begin the extensive research and application process necessary for organizing a local MADD chapter.

"Our ultimate goal is to have a MADD chapter established in every county," she said. "We're just all trying to work together to solve a problem and save some lives. We know that lives that are being taken on the highways can be cut down."

Fraser says talk foolish

Short-term borrowings increased, as did the amount of loan charge-offs. But First National made a profit in 1982 and is still making one, Fraser said. He was reluctant to make specific forecasts about the bank's first quarter of 1983 but he said the bank would show a profit.

FRASER ADMITTED there has been some loss of depositor confidence and some loan quality problems but he remains optimistic.

"We don't know where we'd rather be, or what we'd rather be doing," he said of Midland and the oil and gas business.

"All Midlanders are involved in the energy business whether we sell groceries or hamburgers or whatever."

He said morale at the bank has been adversely affected by some of the rumors, but he is proud of his employees' work.

"Our position has been, quote, 'to keep a poker face, tell the truth, do your job, don't get angry, and the rumors will go away.'"

Attempted burglary damages machine

A burglar trying to cut and pry open a change machine at the Nice & Clean Center at 807 S. Midkiff Road sometime early Friday morning caused an estimated $500 damage to the coin machine but failed to open it, Midland police reported Friday.

Approximately $25 in bills and an undisclosed amount of coins were in the machine.

In another incident, Ann Overstreet told police Friday a console color television set, valued at $575, was taken in the burglary of her house at 202 E. Pecan Ave. sometime during the night.

Motorcyclists hurt when tire blows out

ODESSA — Two Fayetteville, N.C., motorcyclists were injured about noon Friday when their motorcycle went out of control after the back tire blew out on Interstate 20 west of Odessa, according to the Department of Public Safety.

Christopher Holland, 20, driver of the motorcycle, was treated and released at Ector County's Medical Center Hospital. But his passenger, Dianne Holland, 19, suffered head injuries and was listed in guarded condition in the hospital's recovery room Friday night.

San Diego rolling out possible wet carpet for queen

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II sailed up the Mexican coast Friday toward San Diego Bay, where a harbor full of boats and Navy cannoneers readied to welcome the British monarch on her first visit to California.

More than 3,000 people received invitations to cram the boardwalk and cheer Saturday as the red, white and blue royal yacht Britannia berths at Broadway Pier under the shadow of downtown skyscrapers.

National Weather Service forecaster Bill Exley predicted "a lot of sunshine, but it will start getting overcast in the afternoon."

Later Saturday, a Pacific storm, with heavy surf and gusty winds, is forecast to hit the southern California coast.

Inclement weather could complicate the queen's scheduled landing Tuesday at Santa Barbara harbor, which is being dredged as a result of an earlier storm.

The queen is making her first visit to the United States since the Bicentennial in 1976 as part of a month-long tour of North America that began Feb. 13 in Jamaica.

She and her husband, Prince Philip, set aside 10 days for California, where they will see some of the state's scenic areas — including the Yosemite Valley National Park and the cliffs, beaches and bays from San Diego to San Francisco.

Thousands of Californians have been invited to receptions, lunches and dinners with the royal couple, including Gov. George Deukmejian, Sen. Pete Wilson and presidential aides Michael Deaver and Edwin Meese III.

President Reagan and his wife, Nancy, will play host to the queen at their Santa Barbara County ranch and will spend their 31st wedding anniversary on the Britannia off San Francisco on March 4. Hollywood plans a gala Sunday, including crooner Perry Como, who will appear at the queen's special request.

Queen Elizabeth's trip up the Mexican coast followed the route of Portuguese explorer Juan Cabrillo, who discovered San Diego Bay for the Spanish in 1542.

But the rest of the queen's first day in the state will follow a more typical tourist's route. She and Prince Philip will ride their royal barge around the harbor, home of the largest concentration of naval vessels in the world.

After lunch on the aircraft carrier USS Ranger, they'll visit the Scripps Institution of Oceanography and will examine geological and marine life research projects and receive a book of 8,000 color sea slug photos and a rare ancient sea shell.

PUC puts Mattox request on hold

AUSTIN (AP) — Attorney General Jim Mattox's attempt to represent residential customers in the face of General Telephone Co.'s $84.5 million rate hike request was put on hold Friday by a Public Utility Commission hearing examiner.

Eric Wolfram, a former PUC examiner representing Mattox, argued that residential customers are the "least organized" in efforts to fight rare hikes.

Residential customers are "big enough, signficant enough and unrepresented enough" to merit representation by the attorney general, Wolfram told Hearing Examiner Angela Williams.

Ms. Williams said she would decide next week whether to let Mattox intervene in the case.

GTE and PUC staff lawyers do not want Mattox involved in the rate hearing, which begins April 18.

GTE lawyer Ward Wueste argued that Mattox, as attorney general, is the commission's lawyer and would have to defend the PUC against any court challenge of rates set in the GTE case.

Representing consumers fighting the rate increase "puts the attorney general on both sides of any lawsuit" stemming from the GTE request, Wueste contended.

Sara Cristol, a lawyer with the PUC general counsel staff, said the staff welcomes intervenors in most cases. "Two heads are better than one, usually," she said.

She complained that Mattox's involvement in the hearing would be "an unworkable conflict of interests with the attorney general on all sides."

Wolfram said former Attorney General John Hill represented consumers at the PUC's hearings on Southwestern Bell's first two rate hike requests. Wolfram, a PUC examiner from 1979-81, said GTE fears the attorney general's office "may be well financed enough" to mount an effective battle against the rate hike.

He said the PUC general counsel's office "has some paranoia" about Mattox's request.

"The general counsel says, 'We'll take care of these people,'" Wolfram said, adding that the general counsel's idea of "public interest" includes "the public interest of the utility companies."

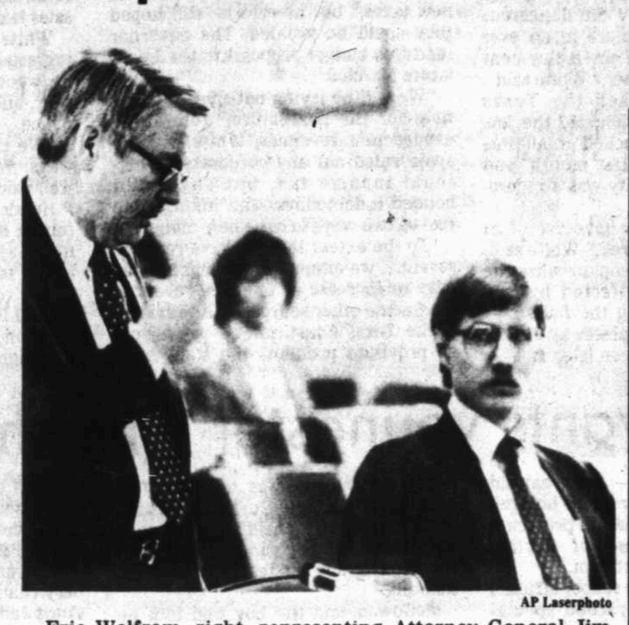

Wolfram said Mattox wants to represent GTE customers who live outside of cities represented by the Texas Municipal League, which has hired a lawyer to fight the rate hike. TML lawyer Don Butler said Friday he "wholeheartedly" supports Mattox's effort to intervene.

In announcing his effort to get involved, Mattox said, "Someone needs to represent the interests of the consumers. Under my constitutional authority to represent the people of Texas, I feel it is my duty to seek intervention in this case."

Mattox said Friday that GTE service "is poor, and those customers should not have to pay exhorbitant rates for inadequate service.

"I said during my candidacy for attorney general that I intended to be an advocate for consumers before the PUC, and that is exactly what we're seeking to do in this case," he said.

Mattox said he would ask a court to allow him to intervene if the PUC examiner denies his request.

Man to be arraigned for priest's death

ODESSA (AP) — A New Mexico man accused of killing a priest was to be arraigned Monday in Ector County district court, officials said.

Harry Reyos, 26, of Chama, N.M., was being held on $100,000 bond Friday in the beating death of the Rev. Patrick Ryan, whose body was found in an Odessa motel room Dec. 22, 1981.

Reyos surrendered Nov. 18, 1982, in New Mexico after offering Albuquerque police information concerning Ryan's death, authorities said.

Reyos, indicted for murder by the Ector County grand jury Dec. 16, 1982, was booked in the Odessa City Jail about 9:30 p.m. Thursday after being transferred from New Mexico.

State District Gene Ater said he may set a trial date for Reyos at Monday's arraignment.

"But I don't see any way we can have a trial in this thing before April or May," Ater said.

Ryan's bound and beaten body was discovered by a maid at the Sand and Sage Motel and was not identified for several days.

Several of Ryan's Denver City parishioners identified the body Dec. 27, 1981. The priest was reported missing after he did not show up to perform Christmas services at his church in Denver City, about 90 miles northwest of Odessa.

Licensed nurse says she has 'nothing to hide'

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — A licensed vocational nurse named in a wrongful death suit has "nothing to hide," but eventually may face criminal charges because of "a country DA who hasn't done his homework," her attorney said Friday.

The nurse, Genene Jones, appeared for almost three hours Thursday before a grand jury investigating a string of "suspicious" infant deaths at San Antonio's Medical Center Hospital from 1978 to early 1982.

"We considered the Fifth Amendment. A lot of times it's better. But she has done nothing wrong," her attorney, William Chenault, said Friday.

Ms. Jones also has appeared before a Kerr County grand jury looking into the Sept. 17 death of an infant who reportedly died of respiratory failure after being treated in the Kerrville office of Dr. Kathleen Holland.

The wrongful death suit, which names both women, was filed in connection with the death of that infant, 15-month-old Chelsea Ann McClellan. Ms. Jones was employed by Ms. Holland at the time.

No criminal charges have been filed in either county's investigation.

The dates of the deaths being investigated here coincide with the time of Ms. Jones' employment at Medical Center Hospital, which ran from October 1978 to March 1982, records show.

Chenault said his client has been unfairly "singled out."

"I don't expect any problem in San Antonio — we don't think there are any facts. But in Kerrville, you've got this country DA (district attorney Ron Sutton) that probably will be pressured to come up with something.

"We are concerned with Kerrville because they just flat haven't done their homework," he said.

Sutton said Friday from his Junction office that he suspected Chenault's comments were designed to provoke an early indictment in Kerr County.

"That way he would get to look at my files to see what evidence we had, and what San Antonio has," he said. Sutton has signed a mutual assistance pact with Bexar County District Attorney Sam Millsap.

An attorney for Ms. Holland told investigators she would invoke the Fifth Amendment if forced to testify before the grand jury here Thursday without immunity, Millsap said.

Sutton said Friday that Ms. Holland initially refused to certify that the medical records of seven children provided to the Kerr County grand jury — including those of Chelsea Ann McClellan — were complete. She did so about a month later, he said.

Published reports have said the deaths of the children in San Antonio may have been caused by the deliberate injection of drugs to induce cardiac or respiratory failure.

Bexar County Medical Examiner Vincent DeMaio said one of the drugs that might have been used — heparin — would be "undetectable" in autopsies or toxicology tests.

Ms. Jones and Ms. Holland have filed court documents denying any negligence in Chelsea Ann's death in Kerrville, about 50 miles northwest of here.

Chenault said Ms. Jones quit her job at a San Angelo nursing home this week after receiving telephoned death threats and calls labeling her "a baby-killer."

Three arrested for counterfeit bills

HOUSTON (AP) — Three men arrested after phony $100 bills were offered to pay a topless club bar bill were indicted Friday by a federal grand jury on charges of counterfeiting.

Ronald Eugene Fountain, 39, and Dale Michael Bridget, 29, both of Houston, and Alfredo Mandac Bartolome, 37, of Seabrook, were charged with making $750,000 in counterfeit $100 bills.

Mike Brown, an assistant U.S. Attorney, said personnel at a topless club spotted two phony $100 bills when Fountain tried to pay for drinks on Jan. 25. Fountain and Bridget were arrested that night and Bartolome later turned himself in.

Brown said the bills had been illegally produced by photocopying and were "of pretty good quality."

All three men are free on bond.

The indictment alleges that Bridget printed the bogus bills at the N-B Printing Co., a Houston business owned by Bartolome.

Charges against Harrelson not dismissed

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — A federal judge refused Friday to throw out three perjury charges against Jo Ann Harrelson, accused of lying to the grand jury in an investigation of the assassination of a San Antonio federal judge.

Mrs. Harrelson, wife of the man convicted of being the sniper who shot U.S. District Judge John H. Wood Jr., goes on trial Monday in federal court here on the perjury charges.

In a pre-trial hearing Friday, U.S. District Judge William Sessions rejected defense motions that three of the charges were repetitive.

He also rejected other motions, including a request to have a subpoena lifted from one government witness since both defense and prosecution had agreed on his testimony.

Mrs. Harrelson, 42, has already been convicted of obstructing justice in the investigation of the murder and of buying the rifle prosecutors say was used in the assassination.

Bill regulating tax payments introduced

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislation relating to the time that motor vehicle tax receipts must be sent to the Comptroller of Public Accounts by counties has been introduced by Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield.

Current law provides for such funds to be sent on the 10th day of each month.

HB 858 would provide for payment on the 10th if the amount collected by a county was less than $2 million annually.

If the amount collected is $2 million to $10 million annually, the county would pay the money to the comptroller weekly.

If the amount collected is $10 million or more annually, counties would pay daily.

Seismographic operations bill introduced

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Legislation relating to seismographic operations on the right-of-way of public roads has been introduced by Rep. Dick Burnett, D-San Angelo.

HB 921 provides that "a person may not conduct a seismographic operation for the purpose of exploration for oil or natural gas on the right-of-way of a county road or other public highway without the consent of the owner of the property adjacent to the right-of-way at the operation site.

"The county or an individual or other private legal entity may bring an action to enforce this act," the bill states.

Bill would change height restrictions

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield, has introduced legislation relating to the height restrictions on motor vehicles used to transport seed cotton modules.

HB 860 would amend existing law by providing that maximum height would be 14 feet, 6 inches.

Other provisions of the existing law regarding weight, length and operation of such vehicles would be unchanged.

White: Border situation 'dangerous'

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White said Friday he wants to talk to President Reagan at a weekend governors' meeting about the "dangerous situations" along the Texas-Mexico border due to high unemployment.

"We'll have a briefing paper prepared for the president which should illuminate very clearly the dangerous situations that exist there in an ever increasing number of unemployment on both sides of the river," White said.

Earlier in the week the Texas Employment Commission said the jobless rate in Laredo reached an all-time high of 27.3 percent last month, and the rate in Starr County was a record-tying 50 percent.

"The dangers that we have (are) of an economy that is fractured," White said. "I don't think many people realize the numbers of people affected by (the peso) devaluation along the border — what it's doing to businesses as well as to workers who have been laid off."

White said he would ask President Reagan "to help provide impact aid as far as jobs are concerned. There are many things that need to be done along the border that are not make-work jobs that would be a benefit to the communities many years in advance."

White could no longer promise "no new taxes," but he said he still hoped they could be avoided. The governor sends his budget proposal to the Legislature March 9.

"We will be laying out some alternatives for the Legislature," for raising needed new revenues, White said. He again ruled out any corporate or personal income tax, but suggested bonded indebtedness and hiking state fees as two ways to raise new money.

"To the extent that we have reduced revenue, we either have to tighten our belts or increase or enhance revenues from some other source," White said.

The Texas Constitution's pay-as-you-go provision prohibits the state from planning to spend more than the comptroller's estimate of how much money the state is expected to have on hand.

Comptroller Bob Bullock's next estimate, to be made public March 8, is expected to be less than previous forecasts because of falling oil prices and a retail sales slump that will mean less sales taxes collected.

White ruled out budget cuts involving salaries for schoolteachers, which he wants to see increased by 24 percent, and highway repair and maintenance.

"We cannot afford not to build highways. We cannot afford not to have well paid teachers," he said.

He also ruled out increasing college tuition as a way of raising new revenue, saying that would be a "roadblock" to education.

"We've seen enough of that at the federal level under this current administration," White said. "It's a tragic and shortsighted approach."

Clerk wants youngster who shot him prosecuted

LA MARQUE (AP) — A 68-year-old liquor store clerk said from his hospital bed he hopes authorities will prosecute an 11-year-old boy accused of shooting him during a robbery attempt.

The boy, described by school officials as an emotionally disturbed special education student, was not identified because of his age. Curtis McGowan, principal of the child's elementary school, said the boy came to him Tuesday after telling his teacher about the shooting.

McGowan said the boy told him he couldn't sleep the night after the robbery attempt.

The shooting occurred Monday night at the P&L liquor store here. The boy was arraigned on an aggravated robbery charge Wednesday before County Court Judge Ron Wilson.

Bill Biaggne, who was substituting at his wife's liquor store because a regular employee was ill, said Thursday he "absolutely" wants the child prosecuted.

"I can't see no reason why you can't prosecute him," said Biaggne.

Man who lost both legs, arm accepts $2.35 million settlement

BEAUMONT (AP) — A man who lost both legs and an arm when he fell in the path of a rotating mower has accepted a $2.35 million out-of-court-settlement from Canadian and Delaware corporations.

Joe Mizell, 20, of Cleveland, was scheduled to testify Thursday before a federal court jury when Massey-Ferguson Inc. of Canada and FMC Corp. of Delaware offered the settlement.

Massey-Ferguson agreed to give Mizell $1.5 million, and FMC will pay $850,000, according to Mizell's attorneys, Ronald Krist and Robert Morrison.

Mizell lost his left arm and both legs in April 1981 while driving a Massey-Ferguson diesel tractor that was pulling a six-foot FMC rotating mower.

Mizell, a high school senior at the time of the accident, fell off the operator's seat into the path of the mower, attorneys said.

Group petitions to remove official

WASHINGTON (AP) — The National Women's Health Network began collecting signatures on a petition Friday asking that President Reagan fire Marjory Mecklenberg as head of the government's birth control and adolescent pregnancy programs.

The group, the largest women's health organization in the United States, began its campaign on the day that a rule was to take effect requiring that parents be informed when their daughters under 18 received birth control pills, intrauterine devices or diaphragms from federally subsidized clinics.

The rule did not take effect because two federal judges issued decisions saying it did not follow the intent of Congress and would lead to more unwanted pregnancies. The administration is appealing the decisions.

Mrs. Mecklenberg, deputy assistant secretary for population affairs at the Department of Health and Human Services, is regarded as the chief author of the rule.

Sybil Shainwald, women's network president, said that Mrs. Mecklenberg's policies are "detrimental to the public's health."

"These policies constitute an unwarranted invasion of privacy and run counter to the goal of accessible, affordable family planning services for all who need them." Ms. Shainwald said.

The organization estimates that implementation of the rule would cause at least 30,000 adolescents not to seek contraceptives from birth control clinics since their visits would be reported to their parents.

President Reagan defended the rule Friday when he was was asked it at a question-and-answer session.

Heckler asks Senate for confirmation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Margaret Heckler asked the Senate on Friday to confirm her as secretary of health and human services, saying that even though the government "can't do it all," it can "do a better job with what we have."

Mrs. Heckler told the Senate Finance committee that she intends to carry out all the president's policies at the largest government agency with enthusiasm, even if she disagrees with them.

For example, she said, she doesn't think she could change President Reagan's mind about the proposed rule requiring that parents be told if their daughters under age 18 receive prescription contraceptives from federally subsidized clinics.

"The fact of the matter is, the president himself feels strongly about this issue. He has taken the position that the department supports. The issue has beeen closed, really."

A federal court order barring its enforcement is being appealed by the administration. Without that court order, the rule would have taken effect Friday.

The committee also questioned John A. Svahn, the current commissioner of Social Security, who has been nominated to be undersecretary of the department.

Sen. Bob Dole, R-Kan., said he anticipated no problems in winning confirmation for either nominee. The committee is due to vote on the nominations on Wednesday.

Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., takes his seat after introducing Margaret Heckler to the Senate Finance Committee.

Dole also promised to seek swift consideration for both nominations and said they might reach the Senate floor as early as March 4.

Mrs. Heckler, a Republican from Massachusetts, served eight terms in Congress before being defeated in a re-election bid last year. She would be the third woman to serve in the Reagan cabinet.

The Finance Committee members questioned Mrs. Heckler most closely about proposed legislation which would strip the Supreme Court of its power to rule on abortion or other issues.

When Sen. Bob Packwood, R-Ore., asked her about her stand on the issue, Mrs. Heckler attempted to sidestep the question. But after persistent questions by Sens. George Mitchell, D-Maine, John Chafee, R-R.I., Max Baucus, D-Mont., and Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., she relented, but failed to commit herself.

"I happen to have very little respect for the Roe v. Wade decision (which legalized abortion). I cannot follow its legal reasonsing. To say the Congress of the United States would be precluded from reviewing a very poor judicial ruling is a proposition I am not about to embrace at this point," she said.

"The constitutional amendment is the usual approach. To foreclose all other legal options goes beyond the commitment I would like to make today," she added.

Two say they're not guilty of 13 Chinatown murders

SEATTLE (AP) — Two young men pleaded innocent Friday to 13 counts of first-degree murder and one count of assault arising from a weekend massacre at a gambling club in Seattle's Chinatown.

Police said they still did not know the identity of a third man sought for questioning.

The lone survivor of the killings at the Wah Mee Club, Wai Y. Chin, 61, remained hospitalized under police guard and in stable condition Friday. He is expected to be the star witness in the case.

Kwan Fai "Willie" Mak, 22, and Benjamin Kin Ng, 20, made a brief appearance Friday before King County Superior Court Judge Gerard M. Shellan for arraignment.

If convicted, they face a possible death sentence. King County Prosecutor Norm Maleng has said he will not plea bargain on the sentence even if one of the men identifies the third suspect.

The two were ordered held without bail. Defense attorneys said they may ask for bail at a hearing tentatively set for March 8.

Aside from acknowledging their names, they said little at the hearing. The names of the 12 men and one woman slain were read and each defendant, through his attorney, pleaded innocent to each count.

The trial will start "no sooner than May, probably in the summer," said Senior Deputy King County Prosecutor Robert Lasnik.

"Maybe not 'til fall," said Mak's attorney, John Wolfe.

Chin, according to a police affidavit, survived a bullet wound in the neck and told authorities that Ng, Mak and a third man he did not recognize had robbed, bound and shot him and the others.

Four lines in the affidavit were deleted at the request of defense attorneys by Seattle District Court Judge Philip Y. Killien when it was released Thursday. Killien reaffirmed his decision after a hearing with newspaper lawyers Friday morning.

He said the information, if disclosed, would seriously harm the Constitutional rights to a fair and impartial jury.

The sworn statement by Lt. Robert Holter, head of the homicide unit, relates details of Chin's story, the initial search of Ng's and Mak's homes, and other details.

Killien said there would be "severe" logistical problems moving the trial out of King County for a different jury pool. And he said there could be a constitutional challenge to a "jury of their peers" if selected from outside the Seattle area on grounds there are few citizens of Chinese heritage in the state outside Seattle.

Chin told police the two suspects and a third man pulled out revolvers shortly after they were allowed into the Wah Mee Club, and robbed and tied up the seven or eight middle-aged people present. They then forced the doorkeeper to admit another six or seven people, and robbed and tied each one at gunpoint, he said.

Then a series of shots rang out, Chin said.

Wind can make you blue, but this winter's been OK

Weather not too stressful

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans still trying to cope with Celsius and the wind chill will increasingly have a new measure of misery to deal with, the "weather stress index."

So far this hasn't been a very stressful winter on which to try out the factor, but meteorologists say that when it is calculated, the new measure does give an improved picture of how weather affects people.

It can be used in weather forecasts to inform the public about weather conditions, and also is expected to be useful to engineers, architects and others whose work must take weather conditions into account.

Basically the stress index takes the wind chill factor, the measure of how cold the wind makes it feel, and adds the effect of humidity to improve the calculation of how cold or hot the air seems to people.

Developed by meteorologists at the National Weather Service and the University of Delaware, the stress factor has been in use since last September, although it has received little public attention.

Wind chill has been widely used to measure the effect of weather, since it combines temperature with the effect of wind, which evaporates moisture from the skin and makes temperatures feel even cooler. The humidity, the amount of moisture in the air, also affects that evaporation, and including it in the measure provides a better calculation of how people will react to certain conditions.

However, meteorologists note that people also adjust to the climate where they live, meaning that the same conditions in one area would cause more stress than somewhere else.

They offered New Orleans as an example. Residents of the Crescent City would be very uncomfortable on a day of 15 degrees Fahrenheit, 80 percent humidity and a wind of 15 miles per hour. Indeed, such a day in New Orleans would be assigned a stress index of 99, meaning that 99 days out of 100 could be expected to be more comfortable than that.

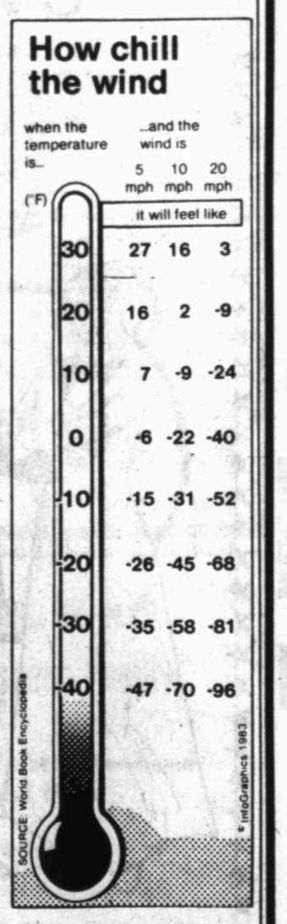

The same set of conditions would be pretty common on a winter day in Bismarck, N.D., however, where those weather conditions rate only a 30 on the stress factor. That means on average, only 30 days out of 100 could be expected to be nicer in that city, and residents there are likely to be prepared for such weather.

While February conditions are still being measured, December and January provided a winter with remarkably little stress this season. The weather service's climate analysis branch calculated that only parts of Florida and central Idaho managed any stress of 90 or more during those months. There were no such severely stressful days in the Ohio Valley or Upper Midwest, and the season's biggest storm on the East Coast arrived in February.

On average, the meteorologists say, any given location in the country could have expected to have at least six days of severe stress in December and January.

Taking a look back at last winter, climatologists have used the index to calculate that Jan. 10 and 11, 1982, were the most uncomfortable days of the century for the area east of the Rockies.

On Jan. 10, Norfolk, Neb., had a temperature of minus 23, but it felt like minus 58 when the wind and humidity were figured in. On the 11th, Philadelphia's minus 3 felt like minus 14, and Atlanta's minus 4 felt like minus 20, the weather service said.

According to the weather stress index developed by National Weather Service and University of Delaware meteorologists, the wind chill factor can make people miserable.

Least Heat Moon talks to people from small towns across America

NEW YORK (AP) — When William Least Heat Moon listens, people talk.

He listened to people all across the country, from Ninety Six, S.C., to Hat Creek, Calif., and from Dime Box, Texas, to Thief River Falls, Minn., as they talked to him in cafes, in bars, in their homes.

"Wherever I went, I found people interested in talking about the odd historical aspects of their town," he said in an interview. "In a small town when you've lived there 40 years everybody's heard your story and when a stranger comes in they're pleased to find a fresh pair of ears."

Adding to that a fresh pair of eyes, and a keen interest in people, places and ideas, Heat Moon, 43, has written a book, "Blue Highways: A Journey Into America," about his three-month trip of 13,889 miles — more than halfway around the world.

Following the double trauma of a failed marriage and the loss of his job as a college English teacher, Heat Moon fitted his half-ton van with a bunk, packed his old U.S. Navy seabag with clothes, added a tape recorder and camera, and took off on America's back roads — the ones marked in blue on the old maps.

SHUNNING THE interstates, he headed for places like Nameless, Tenn.; Opelousas, La.; Liberty Bond, Wash., and Hungry Horse, Mont.

"I love names and peculiar words; I have a fascination with the poetry of the land, and once you know the history behind the names, they definitely become poems," said Heat Moon, a slim, bearded man in jeans, who is part American Indian.

"Every town seemed to have the unofficial historian, more frequently a woman. Most have a resident codger who seems to lie in wait for a stranger, and one regular in the bar who makes it his business to talk to whoever comes in."

Though he slept in his van, called Ghost Dancing, and prepared many of his meals there on a small stove, he always ate breakfast in the local cafe or grill, where it was easiest to strike up a conversation.

"I found that breakfast was a good time to get the pulse of the community," he said. "And if you were talking to an elderly person they were much more alert then than later in the day.

"I'd be talking naturally to someone, but once I started hearing good stories, then I would switch to my reportorial mode and listen with a different ear. Later, going down the road, I would turn on my microcassette recorder and would try to reconstruct the conversation as best I could."

HEAT MOON WAS invited to "so many meals," especially in the South, where he found "Southern hospitality" a reality.

"In the north-central states it was more difficult to take a conversation past hello and goodbye," he recalls. "No place between Idaho and New York State did a single person buy me a beer or I buy them one. But in the Northeast, which is thought of as being cold, I found people quite friendly."

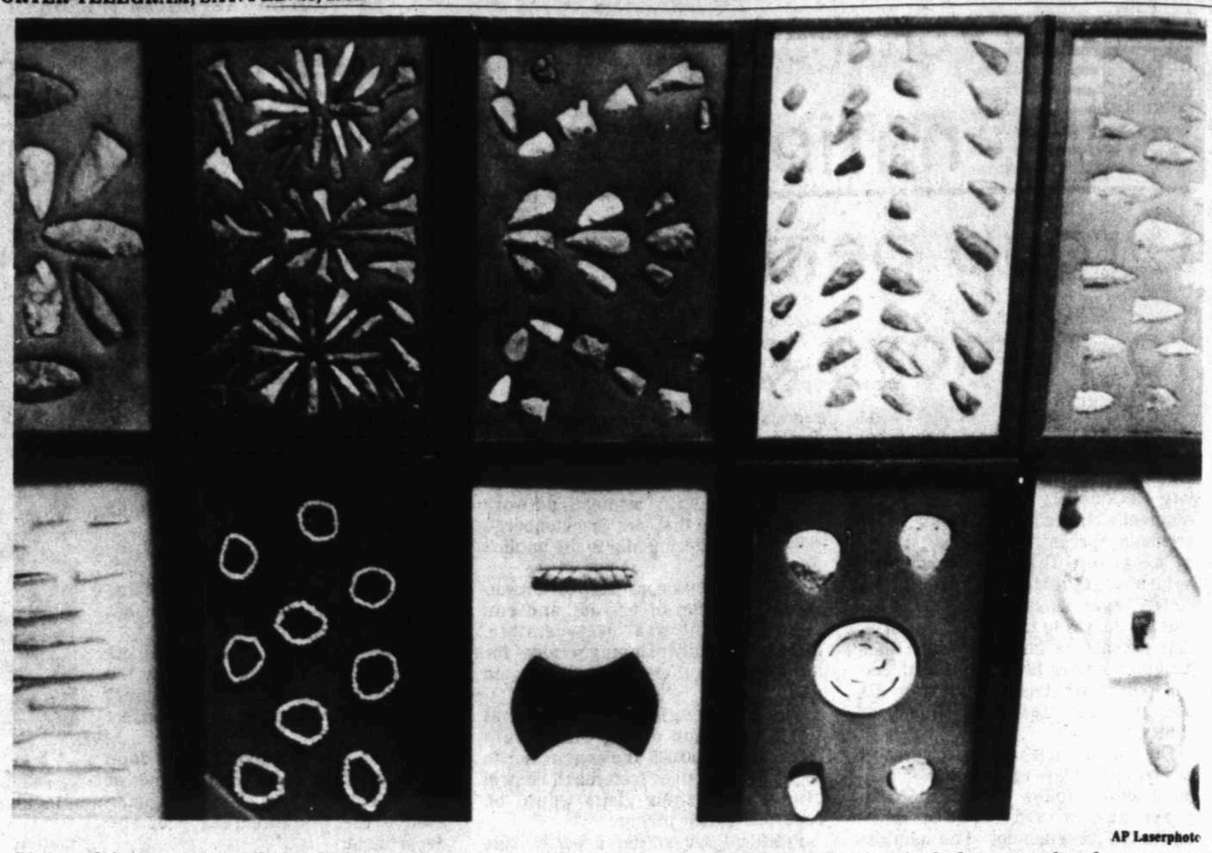

Heat Moon, strangely enough, also found it difficult to strike up conversations with Indians, probably, he says, because of his Anglo appearance.

"But going on the road and wandering put me in touch with the spiritual side of tribal America," he said. "My angle of vision changed and I was beginning to see things in the context of the long heritage of red America."

When Heat Moon, who is also known as Bill Trogdon, located the grave in North Carolina of an ancestor eight generations back, William Trogdon, he found another side of his heritage.

"I HAD SEEN A PHOTO of the tombstone in a Trogdon family history written in the '20s and it was something I'd always wanted to see since I bore his name. In a way it was like meeting him."

Heat Moon, who went back to the University of Missouri for a degree in photojournalism after having previously received a Ph.D in English there, is remarried and living in Columbia, Mo.

Pictured is a portion of the Indian artifact collection owned by Louis Mattox, a disabled worker who lives in Waverly, Ky. The collection includes arrowheads, ceremonial beads and adornments carved from animal bones.

Indian artifacts fascinate collector

WAVERLY, Ky. (AP) — The fact that Indian tribes once roamed the western Kentucky hills didn't mean much to Louie Mattox, until he started kicking up some dirt in a field 10 years ago.

"It was during dinner and I was just poking around," Mattox recalled recently. "I found an arrowhead or two and it got me thinking."

It also got him looking. Just about every lunch hour was spent poking around in the dirt. Soon, his weekends were spent in the fields. In time, Mattox's lifelong fishing and hunting habits gave way to seeking Indian artifacts.

"I knew an arrowhead when I saw one, but that was about it," Mattox said.

About a month after he started, Mattox found a clay pot. That hooked him.

His new hobby led to memberships in archeological societies and subscriptions to magazines. Mattox, 47, has become something of an expert on early residents of western Kentucky. He has amassed an impressive collection of arrowheads, clay pots, ceremonial beads and other materials left by the Indians from as far back as 2,000 years ago.

"For a private collector, I've got quite a bit," Mattox said. "But I've never bought or sold anything."

However, Mattox's artifact-hunting days are mostly over now. An accident in 1979 at an aluminum plant in Newburgh, Ind., left him unable to work. It is now difficult for him to stand for long periods.

Before the accident, Mattox often hunted for artifacts with friends, he said. Once, he and another man came on an old burial ground that proved an archeological gold mine.

"The other guy sold all his stuff," Mattox said. "He ended up with nothing and I ended up with my collection."

There have been attempts to buy pieces from his collection, including a $1,000 offer for a perfectly preserved catlinite pipe, used by the Mississippian culture 500 years after the birth of Christ.

Joan, his wife of 26 years, accompanied Mattox on many of his expeditions. "Mostly, though, I just cleaned up the stuff after he found it," she said.

Like many collectors, Mattox has not confined himself to one area. He has a large collection of Avon glassware, silver spoons, TV Guides and hundreds of coffee mugs from Boy Scout conventions, collected during his years as a scoutmaster.

Nowadays, he retires to a small room in his basement and admires his Indian artifacts, displayed in glass cases on the walls.

Women Against Pornography cites companies for sexist advertisements

NEW YORK (AP) — Gentlemen may prefer women with "shapely, sexy, silky legs," but Women Against Pornography says the hosiery ad that makes that claim is among 1982's most insulting.

Hanes, whose ad shows a man ogling a woman's exposed legs while ignoring his "comfortably, tastefully dressed" female companion, was among five companies awarded plastic pigs Thursday for what the group called sexist advertising.

Another was Maidenform, whose campaign shows women dressed only in underwear in professional surroundings with fully clothed men.

Annual awards for what WAP considered non-sexist advertising were given to three companies. The Ford Motor Co. got the top award for an ad that pictures "a confident, middle-aged, sturdily built black woman welder."

Runner-up awards for non-sexist ads went to Multifoods for a Kretschmer Wheat Germ advertisement portraying an "active, athletic and vibrant older woman" holding a tennis racket, and Eastman Kodak for an ad showing a "young, black, female athlete vaulting over high hurdles."

Representatives of Ford, Multifoods and Kodak were at the news conference where the awards were presented. None of the criticized companies were represented.

H. Cotler, a men's apparel company, won a plastic pig for its picture of a fully clothed, "frontally positioned man" standing over a "supine, simpering, scantily clad woman." WAP said the ad "celebrates male domination of women and conveys the myth that women enjoy degradation."

"We're sorry if it offended anybody," Leslie Cotler, president of the Manhattan-based firm, responded.

Cotler noted that the ad in question actually ran in 1981. "We've since changed our advertising so it has no females, but not because of anything Women Against Pornography said."

Faye Rosen, Maidenform's spokeswoman, was at a meeting Thursday afternoon and could not be reached for comment.

Hanes said its response could be given only by Roy Asch, senior vice president of sales, who was out of the office Thursday.

Another pig went to Christian Dior for "The Diors," a series of ads that feature two men and a woman romping in a scene "with sadomasochistic overtones," the group said.

Tucson cowboy rounds up shopping carts

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — In a manner of speaking, you might call Joe Landeros a modern-day cowboy.

Landeros travels all over Tucson in a dented pickup truck, trying to round up herds of shopping carts.

He is president and sole employee of Maverick Cart Co. and he lassoes stolen or strayed shopping carts for nine grocery and department stores.

The carts are worth $60 to $130 each. Landeros gets about $3 per cart returned.

Losses in parts of Arizona that Landeros does not patrol amounted to more than $500,000 last year, according to a spokesman for the Retail Grocers Association of Arizona.

Scouting apartment complexes, houses, alleys and laundromats, Landeros corrals about 100 carts each day.

"Those little carts are like calves, you know," he says. "They don't get far away from me."

He got into the business by chance.

Professor touts 'E.T.' dolls as investments for future

BOWLING GREEN, Ohio (AP) — While financial wizards tout high-tech stocks as investments for the future, Dr. Jeffrey Gordon says the smart money is acquiring "E.T." dolls and "Star Wars" drinking glasses.

Gordon, assistant professor of geography at Bowling Green State University, says buying goods now that will show up as collectors' items at future flea markets is becoming a hedge against inflation.

After traveling the country visiting flea markets, Gordon said he is convinced they are a vital, growing segment of the $200 billion "underground" economy that is untaxed and unregulated.

"It's a relatively new phenomenon," said Gordon, 36, a native New Yorker who has taught at Bowling Green for three years. "Flea markets only developed during the 1950s, and I'd say they haven't peaked yet."

Gordon said his interest in flea markets as a geographer traces to the study of anything that fills space on the horizon, from mountains to unusual mailboxes.

The flea market business is huge, Gordon said.

"We're probably talking about the largest untaxed legal business in the country. The government would like to impose a sales tax, or license flea market vendors, but I don't see that happening anytime soon — there are just too many of them."

Flea markets have enjoyed great popularity in the past three decades because the quality of goods produced by American manufacturers has become shoddy, Gordon said.

"Used stuff, old stuff, resells and resells because it's better than anything new made today," he said.

The flea market economy has produced a class of nomadic tribes, full-time vendors who travel the country selling their wares, Gordon said. In the winter, they set up in the Sun Belt and the South. Summer brings them closer to the urban North.

He said it is easy to predict what items will fetch high prices at flea markets 20 years from now.

"Nostalgia is always a big seller, even at today's flea markets," Gordon said. "I'd pick things that are inexpensive, not likely to last in normal use, that would hold some special meaning for people at a later date. Anything along a 'Star Wars' theme, or the 'E.T.' materials, dolls and the like, should be good investments."

One key to speculating on flea markets — pick today's popular hero for lasting value, Gordon said.

Dr. Fred Tank, director of the University of Toledo's Center for Economic Education, said it is difficult to estimate how much money flea markets generate.

But Tank said he doubts that much of the income earned through flea markets is reported.

Couple shares home with lady-lovers, clown

LOWER ALLEN TWP., Pa. (AP) — Mel Austin and his wife share their Cumberland County home with two true lady-lovers, a clown, and a hyperactive worrier who's had nervous breakdowns.

The Austins, married for 13 years, do not have any children. But they do have four parrots, three macaws and a cockatoo, and sometimes there isn't a lot of difference.

"If your kids are sick, you have to get up in the middle of the night to take care of them," said Austin, a policeman. "Well, it's the same with these guys."

The baby that screams and cries in the kitchen is Peppy the Amazon parrot, and between wails he chatters in Spanish.

"Peppy was raised in Mexico, and he seems pretty fluent in Spanish," Austin explained. "We tried to have it translated, but he talks too fast."

Peppy also hates men, and Austin can't handle him without wearing gloves because of the claws and a curled beak that's nearly two inches long.

But his wife, Sandy, a nurse, can come as close as she likes without worry.

"Willie is a lady's parrot, too," Austin said of Peppy's neighbor across the kitchen. "But Peppy is worse, he gets very upset around men."

In the cage next to Willie, Jake is perched quietly, eyeing the visitors with suspicion. He's an African Gray parrot and probably the best talker in the house, but his chest is featherless and Austin said he's a very nervous bird.

"He's had nervous breakdowns, and sometimes he just tears whole bundles of feathers from himself," he said.

In another corner of the kitchen is a cage for Gus, an Amazon parrot who was Austin's first "real" bird.

"I had a parakeet when I was a kid, but that doesn't count. I'd always wanted a macaw...or a parrot," said Austin, who bought Gus more than three years ago, and the family's been growing ever since.

Daisy, a hyacinth macaw, might be worth $5,000, said Austin, who admitted that keeping these birds has turned into an expensive hobby.

New York PBS station solicits funds from members for programming

NEW YORK (AP) — Pinch Channel 13 and public TV cries, "Ouch!"

New York's 13, the primary producing station for non-commercial television, is asking its 300,000 members for more money. And that means some major programs and series — like "Nature" and the upcoming "Heritage: Civilization and the Jews" — could be in trouble.

The appeal for additional support went out on Feb. 18, less than two weeks before public TV's Festival '83 fund-raising drive, during which Channel 13 hopes to raise $2.5 million in pledges and add 60,000 members.

"Unless at least $1 million can be raised in the next few weeks from members like you," John Jay Iselin, president of WNET-13, said in a letter to members, "we may have to cut back on the variety and quality of our programming."

And that would affect every station in the system. WNET and WGBH in Boston combined produce or present about 80 percent of the programs offered Public Broadcasting Service member stations.

"Clearly, in an economy that is not expanding, we cannot count on expected revenues to cover future programs."

—John Jay Iselin

CHANNEL 13 is in no danger of collapse, says Iselin, whose objective instead is "working capital" for future programming.

Up to now, WNET's approach has been to embark on a major project in the belief that money to pay for it could be arranged down the line.

"We undertook 'Civilization and the Jews,' an $8.5 million production, with only $1 million in hand," Iselin says. "In the past, we could go into a project anticipating income."

No longer, he says.

"Clearly, in an economy that is not expanding," Iselin says, "we cannot count on expected revenues to cover future programs."

"Civilization and the Jews," a six-hour series, almost certainly will be completed. About $5 million of the project has been covered, and Iselin says he expects to have the rest — from foundation and corporate underwriters — before long.

"Nature," a critically acclaimed Channel 13 coproduction with the British Broadcasting Corp., is still looking for a corporate underwriter for another season next fall.

CONTINUING SERIES produced or co-produced by the New York station, like "Great Performances," "American Playhouse," "Frontline" and "Non Fiction Television," do not appear to be in jeopardy.

Part of 13's financial squeeze has to do with public TV's practice of reimbursing stations only after a project is completed. A station like Channel 13 has to pay for a series like "Civilization and the Jews" before it can recover all available production money.

That has helped boost 13's debt to about $6 million while it waits for reimbursement.

And federal funding for public television has declined from $172 million for 1982 to $137 million this year and $130 million next.

Public TV's audience, however, reached a record 49 million viewers during the first week of the current season, Oct. 11-17.

Unemployed need to garden, group claims

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

About half of all Americans already grow some of their own food, and a national gardening organization is trying to encourage the unemployed to join the hoe and shovel brigade.

"People who are in trouble right now could be helping themselves," said Nancy Flinn, a spokesman for Gardens for All, a non-profit group founded in 1972.

Ms. Flinn said her group, which is located in Burlington, Vt., is trying to work with labor unions to establish community gardens for the unemployed. She noted that many unions already have set up food banks to help members who have lost their jobs and said gardens would be "a natural adjunct."

Not only would unemployment gardens provide fresh food and save money for the jobless, Ms. Flinn said, they also would serve a psychological purpose — giving people "a feeling of being again worthwhile."

Vegetable gardening has grown steadily since the early 1970s when soaring food prices led people to look for ways they could save money, and a new survey shows its popularity has continued.

The survey, conducted for Gardens for All by the Gallup Organization and based on interviews with a national sample of 3,032 adults, showed that a record 38 million households had vegetable gardens in 1982. The percentage of households who were gardening declined slightly — from 47 percent in 1981 to 46 percent in 1982. But an increase in the total number of households meant the number of gardeners stayed at the record level.

The Gallup researchers defined a vegetable garden as a separate plot of land devoted to growing vegetables; the 38 million figure did not include people who raised a few vegetables along with flowers or other plants. In 1982, the survey found, about 6 million households grew small amounts of vegetables, meaning that 44 million households, or about 53 percent of the total, produced at least some food for themselves.

The people questioned by Gallup agreed that the main reason for gardening is financial. Twenty-seven percent of those surveyed who had gardens said they grew some of their own vegetables to save money.

Woman carves by hand portraits, plaques, clocks

LAVEEN, Ariz. (AP) — Mary Shay's father insisted his daughter enter a profession that made money, not go into art.

So she majored in chemistry but studied drawing, art history and sculpture on the side.

"About three years ago, he ate his words," she said.

Mrs. Shay has become widely known for her wood-relief carving, having won many awards in international competition.

She carves "the old European way," she said — by hand. She is known more for her portraits but also does statues, animals and other wood items, including plaques, clocks and fireplaces.

She has done a 2-by-4-foot carving for a Methodist church in Ohio of Christ as the Good Shepherd and the 23rd Psalm written in Old English lettering.

Another carving, "The Buffalo Hunt," is formed from an old piece of black walnut taken from a homestead cabin in Kansas.

"I usually use wood that's near the age of the subject matter and near the locale," Mrs. Shay said.

Each piece of wood has a story, she said.

She sketches the design first, then chooses the wood, selecting the hardness and grain she wants.

Many times she researches the dress fashions of a period to give her works authenticity.

High injury rate may be result of inexperience

ATLANTA (AP) — Federal researchers say inexperience may be a factor in a high injury rate for 18-and-19-year-old male workers.

Using a study of hospital emergency room admissions, the National Institute for Occupational Safety and Health reported earlier this week that during peak employment seasons, males 18 and 19 are five times more likely to be injured than men 55 and over.

Businessman revives craft of shoemaking

PORT TOWNSEND, Wash. (AP) — A former businessman with a dream of reviving the ancient craft of making shoes by hand attracted five students who would rather be independent than rich.

Each of the five who responded to an ad that Alan Zerobnick placed in Mother Earth News paid $3,000 for an intensive monthlong workshop on shoemaking.

The students included a barber, a park worker and an oil company computer operator.

"I try not to paint anybody a rosy picture," said Zerobnick, 36, of Cosmopolis. "I tell them if you start right now, and work as fast as you can for the rest of your life you can't begin to fill up one Kinney's Shoe Store. I tell them to think small and stay small."

A good week's production for a cobbler is three pairs, Zerobnick says.

That output, at $125 to $175 a pair, would mean gross earnings of $18,750 to $26,250 annually. With materials deducted, that would mean an annual income of $11,250 to $17,250.

But that's enough to survive outside the "rat race," said Zerobnick.

Student Cliff Stout, a 48-year-old computer operator, said he flew here from New Jersey for the class because his company is cutting its payroll "and also this seemed to be a good way to slip into retirement... it's not physically demanding and I could do it long after normal retirement age."

Student Arlen Johnson, 51, of Anchorage, Alaska, said he has been an Army barber for 22 years and would like to open a small barber shop in the city. Shoemaking attracted him "because I've been looking for something to do in the downtime, and I've had my fill of reading," Johnson said.

Born in Colorado, Zerobnick worked in television and marketing, then started a backpacking equipment company but "packed it up" in 1976 to head West. He made his first shoes for himself and began to make others for friends who admired his efforts.

He learned his craft by reading, practicing and consulting with some shoemakers "who now are in their 70s and 80s" and with younger orthopedic shoemakers.

Why would people pay $100 and more for a pair of his shoes?

Comfort, says Zerobnick.

The forms from which factory-made shoes are fashioned are made in standard sizes and "the average human being doesn't have standard feet," he said.

"Look around you on the street some day and you'll see a lot of people like that" he said, hunching forward and grimacing. Those are the people who need custom shoes, according to Zerobnick.

His shoes are also built to last. "Some of the first shoes I made are still on the road after seven years," he said proudly.

For their $3,000, students at the Tenderfoot Workshop received hand tools, books and enough leather for 15 to 20 pairs of shoes. The package also included a month's room and board in the old Army buildings at this city's historic Fort Flagler.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Sunday, February 27, 1983

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Elizabeth Taylor, Joanne Woodward, Ralph Nader, author Irwin Shaw and former Texas Governor John Connally celebrate birthdays today. Also born on this date: Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, Supreme Court Justice Hugo Black, actress Joan Bennett and singer Lotte Lehmann. Doubts about a family member disappear, reducing tension. Financial considerations lead you to get your work better organized. Let go of a resentment you have harbored for far too long. Travel brings increased business and new romance. Check up on those who handle a family trust. Loved one shares a secret. You find greater recognition once you stop pursuing it so hard.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Make certain you are covered where it counts. A gossiping co-worker should be avoided. Pay bills and go over bank statement. Your best bet is to let romance simmer for a while.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Discuss an office problem with mate. He/she could offer valuable advice. Devote the day to family and friends, not work. A phone call greatly improves your mood.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Your frame of mind makes it easy for you to have fun today. Romance contains an element of surprise. Play a waiting game. Vacation trips enjoy highly favorable influences.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): If you feel ambivalent about romantic partner, go slow. There will be plenty of time later to make serious declarations and decisions. A neighbor tries to play matchmaker. Be kind but evasive.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Do not take on problems that you cannot possibly solve. Entertainment that leads you to dig into your savings will not be worth it. A do-it-yourself project may be too ambitious.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A coincidence does not just happen. Carefully scrutinize a proposal you receive while on a social outing. Guard your privacy even from friends. Drop unreliable associates before they tarnish your reputation.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): You do your best work with people, not machines. Be bold when recruiting support for a community project. Your efforts can mean a lot to neighborhood children. Letters, phone calls pay off.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Do not misinterpret your friends' good intentions. They really do have only your best interests at heart. Youngsters need certain responsibilities. Insist that they pitch in and help with chores.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Family affairs deserve top priority. Re-organize your schedule so that you and your children have more time together. Let your adversaries make the first move. They may fall flat on their faces.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Community involvement gives you a lift. Your critics' perceptions of what you are doing is way off-base. Student loans are approved. A new romance is part of the picture.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Women have better luck than men when shopping today. Try stores you do not usually frequent if looking for a special gift. Couples should discuss their finances. Mutual resources need greater protection.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Confront your adversaries early in the day. They not only back down, but join you in a pleasurable pursuit! Let by-gones be by-gones. Home improvement projects enjoy favorable influences.

PUC to rule on Bell rate increase

AUSTIN (AP) — A Public Utility Commission examiner said Friday she'll rule next week on a $12.3 million rate increase for Southwestern Bell — an increase the company did not request.

Now, however, Southwestern Bell officials say they need that money to cover losses forced by a PUC order modifying the way telephone companies share long distance revenues. The new method resulted from General Telephone Co.'s complaint that Bell was keeping more than its share of the toll revenues.

Under the new system, Bell must turn over a larger portion of the long distance money to 55 other Texas telephone companies, including GTE.

Bell spokesman Dale Johnson said the money would be raised by increasing intrastate long distance tolls by a penny a minute for most calls up to 41 miles.

Johnson said the company wants to put the increased rates in effect, under bond, on March 1. The bond would cover any refunds needed if the commission later denies the increase.

"This is not an increase that will aid Southwestern Bell's overall return," Bell lawyer Jon Dee Lawrence told Hearing Examiner Carolyn Shellman.

Lawrence called it "purely and simply an additional expense to Southwestern Bell."

"There is no possibility of increased earnings for Southwestern Bell," he said.

White agrees to support utility regulation reforms

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White agreed Friday to support eight suggestions for utility regulation reform proposed by a coalition of church-sponsored community groups.

White said all eight suggestions were things he previously supported, such as abolishment of the fuel adjustment clause and creating an office of public counsel for ratepayers.

"We'll see the free enterprise system can work for the people of Texas," White told about 400 cheering delegates from six cities.

The local groups gathered here to lobby for utility reform, representing Houston, San Antonio, Fort Worth, El Paso, Austin and Rio Grande City, gave White a standing ovation after he went down the list of their suggestions and endorsed each one.

Afterward, he told reporters some changes can be made without involving the Legislature.

"To some degree we can do it by rules changes," said White. He said that would be easier now that two of the three members on the panel are his own appointees, as of March 1.

White was especially critical of the past practice of allowing a utility company to bill customers for a construction project under way — before the project produces any electricity.

"That is one of the greatest ideas ever to come along," White said sarcastically. "I wish every company had the opportunity to share in it. It's always nice to go into business and ask your customers to pay for it before you deliver it.

"Really what they ought to do is not send you a bill for construction work — they ought to send you a stock certificate."

"City-owned utilities have not been covered by this regulatory authority, but I believe when you have good sound authority regulating other utilities, it will be a lesson for all those city-owned utilites," said White.

Besides agreeing to back abolition of the fuel cost pass-through, hiring a consumer lawyer and not making customers pay for construction projects while they are in progrees, White agreed to the group's support proposals calling for:

— tighter rules on "sweetheart" deals between a utility company and a subsidiary;

— tougher procedural rules for appeals to the utility commission;

— financial and management audits by outside firms.

The body of a second victim of a boating accident lies on the bank of Lake Ray Hubbard Friday morning after rescuers pulled it from the Dallas area lake. Three people were rescued shortly after a boat carrying seven people sank Thursday night. The body of a 2-year-old was discovered before 3 a.m. Friday and two people are still missing.

Search continues for more victims of boating accident on Dallas lake

DALLAS (AP) — The bodies of a 2-year-old boy and a 19-year-old man who drowned in a boating accident in Lake Ray Hubbard were found Friday, but the search continued for other victims.

Authorities feared four people lost their lives when the 18-foot inboard-outboard motorboat capsized about 1,000 yards offshore after it was hit by a large wave about 9 p.m. Thursday. Three people were rescued.

The dead were identified as 2-year-old Christopher Eshom of Dallas, and 19-year-old Michael Harvey. The Dallas County medical examiner's office said the two were accidentally drowned.

The baby's body was found by his grandfather, Nickie "Cowboy" Mathison, about 3 a.m. Friday about 10 feet from shore.

Mathison said his daughter, Titania Eshom, 21, her son and five other people were fishing near the Dallas Power & Light Co. generating plant on the lake when rough waters swamped the boat.

Mathison said he talked to one of the men who was rescued, and was told that the fishing party was returning to shore when they hit a big wave.

"It came up over the bow of the boat and the boat slid sideways and another wave came over the side of the boat," said Mathison. "He said it went down within two seconds."

Mathison said that Christoper was wearing a life jacket when the boat sank, but the jacket was not on the baby's body.

Three people, including Mrs. Eshom, were rescued shortly after the accident. They had floated ashore on boat cushions, Mathison said.

Representative introduces criminal law measures

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Seven measures dealing with criminal law matters have been introduced by Rep. Jim Rudd, D-Brownfield.

HB 855 would allow a trial judge to allow a person convicted of a misdemeanor or sentenced to confinement in a county jail for a felony to serve his or her sentence during off-work hours or on weekends.

Current law doesn't contain the specific references to misdemeanor or felony convictions.

HB 856 would amend the categories for classification of criminal mischief.

The bill would change the classification for a Class A misdemeanor from $20-$200 to $20-$1,000, and for a third-degree felony from $200-$10,000 to $1,000-$10,000.

HB 857 sets out procedures for a judge to enter into the record a specific statement regarding the granting of probation in certain felony cases.

HB 859 provides for a county which transfers a defendant to the Department of Corrections to furnish a written report to the department regarding the offenses involved.

HB 861 provides for courts to impose requirements for participation in community service work programs as conditions of probation.

HB 888 sets out the jurisdiction of a trial court over a person after he or she has been sentenced to the Department of Corrections.

HB 889 provides for a judge to have authority to require restitution as a condition of probation, and to require that a defendant "remain under custodial supervision in a community-based facility."

The bill also provides that the court note in the record the reasons when a defendant is not placed on probation.

Rumbaugh doesn't want medical treatment

AMARILLO (AP) — A Death Row inmate, critically wounded after attacking a U.S. marshal at a court hearing, does not want medical treatment, officials said Friday.

Deputy U.S. Marshal Glen Bevers said that convicted killer Charles Rumbaugh, in critical but stable condition at Northwest Texas Hospital, regained consciousness Friday and demanded to see his lawyer.

"He wants to refuse medical treatment," Bevers said.

Rumbaugh stunned a courtroom Thursday when he yelled that he had chosen his "way to die," lunged at a deputy U.S. marshal and was critically wounded by a single gunshot to the upper left chest.

Deputy U.S. Marshal Olen R. McClendon shot Rumbaugh after the inmate swung with a makeshift weapon at the officer and shouted, "Shoot me!"

Rumbaugh, 25, had just testified at his competency hearing that he was not depressed and was aware of his surroundings, when he suddenly said, "I have already chosen my way to die — by shooting."

He pulled the weapon from his clothes and swung at McClendon, who drew his .38-caliber pistol and fired once.

Rumbaugh's weapon, authorities said, was a metal bucket handle covered with cloth on one end.

Wright's oratory honored

WASHINGTON (AP) — In a city where talk is sometimes cheap but good oratory is highly valued, House Majority Leader Jim Wright of Texas was honored Friday for being the finest orator in Washington.

Wright, who can bring a hush to the House with speeches delivered in a soft Texas drawl, received the "Speaker of the Year" award from the Capitol Hill Toastmasters Club, a group dedicated to improving the art of public speaking.

"He brings despair to the hearts of his opponents," explained David Joergenson, club president, in an interview before the award was presented. "And when he stands up to talk, the drone on the floor ceases and everybody listens, even though they may not agree with what he says.

"...He's got a good sense of drama, of pause, and vocal inflection," said Joergenson. "He's very good with the gestures."

Presented with a plaque at a club luncheon, Wright gave a brief example of his skills in expressing his gratitude.

"My father was a purveyor of words," Wright began. "I tried to learn from him.

The mellow voice rose and fell expressively, the face cracked into a boyish grin, the hands clutched at the plaque or waved through the air as Wright continued to talk of his father.

"On one occasion he was presented an award and he began so graciously by saying, 'I truly know no other member who could deserve this less nor one who would could appreciate it more.'

"And I thought, 'well, that's nice. I'll remember that. The next time somebody makes an award to me, that's what I'll say...'

"And the time came when someone presented me an award and I said, 'I truly can't think of anyone who would appreciate this less or deserve it more.'

Bolivian government's crackdowns apparent

An Analysis

By PETER McFARREN

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP) — The arrest of a 15-member death squad that included a lawyer and bodyguard for Nazi war criminal Klaus Barbie indicates the Bolivian government's growing commitment to crack down on rightists who trafficked in cocaine and terror under past military regimes.

The fifteen are accused of taking part in the 1980 torture-murders of Socialist leader Marcelo Quiroga Santa Cruz, Roman Catholic priest Luis Adolfo Espinal and eight leaders of the Leftist Revolutionary Movement.

Interior Minister Mario Roncal Antezana told reporters Thursday the 15 were being turned over to the courts for trial. "It is a test for a democracy that now has an independent judicial system," he said.

He refused to say when they were arrested or under what circumstances.

But Mario Ronca named one of their collaborators as Pier Luigi Pagliai, an Italian terrorist and drug trafficker who was kidnapped Oct. 10 — the same day the civilian government took over — and flown to Italy, where he died from wounds received during his capture.

The Italian government accused him of participation in the 1980 Bologna train bombing that killed 85 people.

The paramilitary groups worked for Gen. Luis Garcia Meza, who became president of Bolivia in July 1980 following a bloody coup, and for Col. Luis Arce Gomez, the interior minister under Garcia Meza.

The civilian government headed by President Hernan Siles Zuazo that took over last year has started to take action against the groups. It also expelled Barbie to France on Feb. 5 after he had lived in Bolivia for more than 20 years.

The Bolivian government had previously accused Barbie, known as "the Butcher of Lyon," of organizing the paramilitary groups. One of the 15 arrested was lawyer Adolfo Ustares, who in 1980 became controller general of Bolivia.

Gandhi says outsiders behind uprisings

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said Friday she believes outsiders encouraged the violence that killed at least 1,300 people in Assam state, and implied that the United States sought to destabilize India.

Clashes began early this month between Hindu Assamese and Moslem settlers from Bangladesh, with many of the Assamese opposed to state elections ordered by Mrs. Gandhi's central government. The Hindus wanted the settlers disenfranchised and expelled, but the three-stage elections were completed Monday despite massacres and hundreds of fires set by arsonists.

Mrs. Gandhi was asked at a news conference if she thought there was foreign influence behind the agitators in the northeastern state, and she replied:

"I THINK they have been given encouragement from outside but it's not something that you can pin down. I don't think I can elaborate except that certain elements are interested in destabilization of a country such as India, especially if that country tries to be strong and independent."

A reporter asked her after the news conference if she meant there had been U.S. influence behind the turmoil. She noted that American periodicals have carried articles about "destabilizing governments" and added the United States has "a reputation for that sort of thing."

But Mrs. Gandhi also said there "would have been large-scale violence" even if she hadn't ordered the state elections.

She blamed the bloodbath on the anti-alien movement, saying it fomented an atmosphere of "fear and terror" during more than three years of "narrow-minded" agitation against settlers and minorities.

AP Laserphoto

Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi said Friday she thought election-related uprisings in Assam state might have been fomented by a foreign government.

Ten more killings were reported Friday in Assam, and 22 bodies from earlier attacks were discovered. Some 100 arrests were reported in central Assam and a curfew was ordered in three areas.

NEWS REPORTS said about 30,000 people, virtually all of them Moslems, were gathered along Assam's borders, fleeing to West Bengal and other states. They said at least 11,000 others had left the state in recent days. Fires have left an estimated 100,000 people homeless.

Mrs. Gandhi rejected opposition charges that the violence was caused by the calling of elections, and said there were three reasons for going ahead with the balloting:

—Most of the people, including tribespeople and minorities, wanted them.

—Opposition parties did not solidly back a move for constitutional amendments that would have prolonged central government rule over Assam, which would have expired next month.

—It was unacceptable to allow one dissatisfied group "to thwart an inevitable constitutional process."

THE CENTRAL government had been ruling Assam directly after violence blocked previously scheduled elections, but Mrs. Gandhi said the constitution barred continued central control.

Negotiations between her government and the anti-alien movement broke down last month and she ordered the elections for a state assembly and to fill 12 vacancies in Parliament.

Mrs. Gandhi said the student-led movement's demand for removing immigrants' names from the voting lists and their expulsion had frightened many natives as well as settlers — both Hindus and Moslems.

She said the movement wanted to disenfranchise "people whose families had lived for hundreds of years" in India.

Nearly complete results of the voting showed that Mrs. Gandhi's Congress Party had won 90 seats in the new 126-seat state legislature. Some races were still undecided and violence prevented completing the balloting in 18 districts.

U.S. pays Kenyan hooker's family for her death at hands of sailor

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — The U.S. government paid $16,860 in damages Friday to the family of a Kenyan prostitute killed by a 19-year-old U.S. Navy man during a drunken fight, court sources reported.

A U.S. official who declined to be identified said the check was turned over to Monica Njeri's brother, Peter Dominic Muigai, in the High Court, which approved the out-of-court settlement. Muigai sued the sailor, Frank Joseph Sundstrom, and the U.S. government on behalf of Miss Njeri's two children, who are 8 and 13.

Sundstrom in a drunken fracas smashed a beer bottle over the woman's head and stabbed her with it after paying her $23 to spend the night with her while on shore leave in Mombasa in 1980. He pleaded guilty to manslaughter, and the High Court freed him on his pledge of good behavior, provoking a flood of protesting letters to the newspapers.

U.S. officials said they didn't know Sundstrom's hometown and believed he had been discharged from the Navy.

Medicine women aid in search

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — Two Malaysian medicine women were taken to North Sumatra Friday to help in the search for chocolate magnate Philip Upali Wejiwardene, a nephew of the president of Sri Lanka.

Upali and five others disappeared Feb. 13 in his private plane while on a flight from Colombo to Kuala Lumpur. The plane is believed to have gone down in the Malacca Strait near Medan, the capital of North Sumatra.

Relatives of one of the other missing men said the medicine women, or bomohs, were hired after they went into a trance and said all the missing people were alive.

Indonesian vice president named

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP) — President Suharto on Friday accepted the nomination of Gen. Umar Wirahadikusumah, 60, to succeed Adam Malik as vice-president. He will be elected March 1, when the People's Consultative Assembly meets to re-elect Suharto to his fourth five-year term.

Umar, the head of the state auditing office, was nominated by leaders of the three major parties in the assembly. In his military career, he headed the Jakarta military command during the attempted Communist coup in 1965, commanded the Siliwangi Division and the army strategic command and was the army chief of staff.

Malik, a veteran of the Indonesian independence movement and former foreign minister, ambassador to Moscow and president of the U.N. General Assembly, has been vice president since 1978. Sources close to Suharto said he wants to retire and lead "a quiet life."

Convicted hookers claim jurors clients

ODENSE, Denmark (AP) — Two prostitutes convicted of robbery are demanding a new trial on the grounds that three of the jurors were former clients.

The women were sentenced recently to prison terms of four and five years after a jury found them guilty of robbing a blind man of his wallet and holding up two shopowners at gunpoint. Their loot totaled about $700.

They appealed to the Supreme Court for a retrial before a new jury or a reduction of their sentences. The appeal will be argued in May.

"My clients told mne that three male jurors were former clients and consequently were not qualified to judge them," said their lawyer, A. Moltke-Leth. Prosecutor Hanne Bech said they should have asked for the men to be excluded at the start of the trial.

The names of the women were not made public in accordance with court practice. Nor were the three jurors identified.

Swiss to have first female pilot

ZURICH, Switzerland (AP) — Regula Eichenberger, 28, becomes Switzerland's first woman pilot of a commercial airliner in March, the Swiss airline Crossair announced Friday.

A spokesman said she will be co-pilot of one of the line's 20-passenger, propeller-driven Metro IIIs after completing training in Zurich.

"Crossair can see no reason to shut women out of the pilot's profession," the spokesman said.

Crossair is one of two small commercial Swiss airlines that provide local and limited international service. Swissair is the country's national airline.

Filipino students burn 'Uncle Sam'

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — About 400 students burned two effigies of Uncle Sam during a 90-minute demonstration in front of the U.S. Embassy Friday demanding abolition of U.S. military bases in the Philippines and denouncing President Ferdinand E. Marcos as a "U.S. imperialist puppet."

Mexican hotels to stop charging foreigners more

MEXICO CITY (AP) — The Tourism Department established a scale of maximum rates for hotel rooms Friday and declared illegal the growing practice of charging foreigners more than Mexicans.

The scale published in the federal register sets maximum legal prices in pesos only through Dec. 15, ending the practice found in some hotels of charging Mexicans for rooms in pesos while quoting foreigners a higher price in dollars.

The practice of dual pricing began after the peso was devalued for a third time in a year last December.

The peso dropped from about 26 to the dollar in January 1982 to the current 150 to the dollar, giving foreign tourists an instant bargain. Some hotels quietly offered Mexicans lower prices to keep domestic business.

Dollars are accepted, but only at the equivalent of the legally set peso rates to eliminate overcharging foreign tourists.

Tourism Secretary Antonio Enriquez Savignac said at a Thursday news conference announcing the new scale that it is intended "to try to eliminate the disparity in rates, also really to regulate the situation and fix maximum rates."

He said hotels violating the decree could be fined 100,000 pesos — about $660 — the first time, double that the second and have their licenses revoked the third.

"We think that the practice of charging in different denominations now should end," Enriquez Savignac said

The Tourism Department last published a price scale for hotel rooms, authorizing a 20 percent increase, in April 1982.

Enriquez Savignac said that since then hotels have made requests for rate increases individually, because of the peso devaluations and soaring inflation.

Residents of Johnstown, Pa., which has the highest unemployment rate of 211 metropolitan areas in the U.S., joined together Friday to pray for work. A giant billboard indicated their feelings.

Pennsylvania's crisis town struggles through another

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. (AP) — Residents of the city famous for murderous floods prayed and brainstormed Friday at a meeting called to fight Johnstown's latest disaster, the worst unemployment rate of any U.S. city.

"We need the help of the business community, the government and the Almighty," James White, co-chairman of the Johnstown Affirmative Action Council, told about 200 people jammed into a downtown hotel meeting room.

"This town here, after three floods and after picking itself up so many times, still has the vigor," proclaimed retired steelworker Paul Parashin, 75, to his neighbors' applause.

Johnstown, a steel and coal center of about 35,000 people, suffers a 22.7 percent unemployment rate, highest of the nation's 211 metropolitan areas, the federal government reported last week. Some small towns have higher unemployment rates.

The near-shutdown of two major steel mills in the past three years, and later slowdowns in nearby coal mines and other mill suppliers, mean that more than 24,000 workers in two counties are unemployed, according to state officials.

Worst off is Bethlehem Steel Corp.'s 12-mile-long wire, rail, road, axle and railroad car plant, where 5,100 of 7,000 employees are on layoff, with only a small recall in sight this year.

James D. Evans, president of International Refractories Inc., told neighbors that small businesses like his are suffering, too. Pleading for government action, Evans said his company has laid off 32 of 57 workers.

"This town here, after three floods and after picking itself up so many times, still has the vigor."

Johnstown is best known for the May 1889 flood that killed 2,209 residents when an upriver dam burst. Major floods in 1936 and 1977 took 93 more lives and caused millions of dollars in destruction.

But the city is also the nation's most crime-free, scoring the lowest violent-crime rate for 18 of the last 19 years, the FBI says.

Officials don't know why crime is low, but they say their isolation and close-knit ethnic neighborhoods are possible reasons.

"But now we want to be known as the city that never quits," said Mayor Herbert J. Pfuhl Jr., who called the town meeting so he could gather ideas to take to a March 7 meeting at which he will discuss federal aid with Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan and other officials.

The day-long meeting was a combination community brain-storming session, pep rally and prayer service. Outside the hotel, a local billboard company parked a large sign proclaiming, "We Want to Get to Work."

Many asked for public programs to retrain idle steelworkers and coal miners for "high-technology industries," which they hoped would flock to this area with tax incentives in proposed "enterprise zones."

Rangers reach girls' I finals

LEVELLAND — The Greenwood girls' basketball team avenged its only Class A loss of the 1982-83 season Friday by posting a 56-52 victory over Forsans in Region I girls playoff action here.

The Rangers, with a 28-2 record (the other loss was to 5A Midland High in the Tall City Tournament), had to overcome a 10-point halftime deficit in the earlier meeting with Forsans and came within one, 48-47, of claiming the victory.

In the Region I victory, Greenwood coach Cliff Stephens was happy his Rangers held the halftime lead, 29-22.

"In the second quarter we played real well," said Coach Stephens. "We forced them into a lot of turnovers and got some quick baskets on them. I was pleased to have a lead at the half. The last time we played them we were down by 10 points and had to play catch up in the second half. I'm glad we didn't have to do that this time."

THOUGH GREENWOOD won the basketball game, Coach Stephens wasn't overly pleased by the way the Rangers did it.

"We won the game and I'm happy about that," he said. "I thought we were pretty sluggish. Forsan was probably the reason for that, they're a good team. We did play good when we had to in a nip and tuck game."

Belinda Duke was a key to the Ranger victory with 23 points including several "big free throws late in the game. She played well all around," said Stephens.

Greenwood also got 19 points from Renvy Evans.

For Forsans, Teresa White led the scoring with 22 points while teammate Vicky Baggett added another 20.

"I'm real proud of the girls because they came through when they really needed to," said Stephens. "It seems like the bigger the game the more they realize how important it is."

Getting the victory moves Greenwood into today's semi-final game against Sudan at 9:30 a.m. with the winner advancing into tonight's championship game at 7.

Chap Center to host 5A doubleheader Tuesday

District 4-5A's Odessa High Bronchos took an early bow from the Bi-district playoffs Friday night when they dropped a 69-65 decision to Amarillo Caprock in Levelland.

In other bi-district action involving a 4-5A team, San Angelo used five players in double figures to offset a 32-point performance by Plainview's Gil Wright to gain a 79-73 victory Thursday and move into the Area playoff game.

The victories set up an Area playoff doubleheader for Tuesday at Midland College's Chaparral Center, the site of the Region I playoffs next weekend. San Angelo will take on El Paso Eastwood at 6 p.m. and Caprock will face El Paso Bel Air at 8.

Caprock jumped out to an 18-13 lead in the first quarter, but OHS rallied to cut it to two at the half, 35-33 before dropping back by five after three quarters, 51-46.

Amarillo, which improved its season record to 17-13, came up with 19 points from Troy Fry and 12 each from Scott Brewer and Robby Lambert. Howard Harris paced the 21-12 Bronchos with 22 points while Willie Adams added 15 and Joe Terry 12.

THE BOBCATS took control of the game in the first quarter by running to an 18-7 lead and held a 38-29 advantage at halftime. The Bulldogs made their big attempt at winning the game in the final frame by outscoring San Angelo 28-23, six too few on the scoreboard.

San Angelo's Lorand White led the five-man attack with 24 points while Jeff Kasner added 18, Jack Carsner 14, Augie Alcala 11 and Henry Green 10. Plainview's only other player in double figures was Roy Thompson with 10.

Eastwood, District 2-5A's runner up team, will bring in a 25-4 record against San Angelo's 23-11. Cap Rock is 17-13 on the year while Bel Air boasts a 26-2 mark.

El Paso Bel Air's Monica Campos (20) dribbles by Duncanville's Shelly Wolf (43) in driving for basket in Region I Class 5A Girls basketball action at Langford Chaparral Center Friday. Finals are this afternoon.

Duncanville, Nimitz meet

District 8-5A girls' basketball teams continued their dominance of West Texas with first round victories in the Region I girls' basketball playoffs at Chaparral Center, Friday.

Duncanville, which led by 23 points in the third period, survived a second half rally by El Paso Bel Air for a two-point victory, 51-49 in the opening game. Irving Nimitz came from behind, forcing El Paso Eastwood into overtime before running away 50-42.

The two district foes will meet for the fourth time this year in the finals at 2:00 p.m. today. Duncanville has won two of the three previous meetings.

THE DUNCANVILLE Panthers used their superior height and inside game to pull away from Bel Air in establishing a 44-21 lead with 11:29 left in the game.

But for the next eight minutes the Highlanders outscored Duncanville 27-9, taking a 48-47 lead with 4:30 minutes left to play.

During that time Bel Air forced the Panthers into 11 turnovers and allowed them only two shots from the field.

Three turnovers later the game took a sudden turn when Bel Air's La Tanya Thompson fouled out of the game. Besides her fifteen points, the 5-foot-11 Thompson was a key in turning the Highlanders around as she was the only player able to deal with the taller Panthers.

On the foul Cathy Nixon made one of two shots to even the score at 48 all.

Bel Air again took the lead when Monica Campos hit the front end of a one-and-one but that was all the scoring the Highlanders would get.

Nixon put the Panthers ahead to stay on a short jumper with a minute left and Shelly Wolf closed out the scoring with a free throw at the 30 second mark.

"I've had 26 years of this," Duncanville coach Jeanette Meadows said pointing to her white hair. "We just weren't ready for the press, it works on your head and we aren't ready for that kind of pressure.

"They changed to a pressure-rotation defense and hit phenominally. I felt the lob pass was open all night but our passes were bad and number 24 (Thompson) played good defense.

THE NIMITZ Vikings hit two of three from the field and went six for seven at the line in overtime to put themselves in the championship game.

Eastwood didn't get a free throw and hit only one of seven shots in the extra three minute period to send both El Paso teams packing.

Eastwood had two starters, 6-1 Alex Provencio and 6-foot Debbie Anderson, foul out in the fourth period. In OT Carol Glover, the Troopers leading scorer with 16, was called for her fifth foul as the meat of Eastwood's game was forced to sit out the final moments.

"We played pitiful the first half and were still in the game," Nimitz coach Al Tiller said.

"The big difference was Eastwood's foul trouble," he said. "We thought we could get them in foul trouble and we did.

"We're a small team but our kids are scrappy, you can tell that by how many times they go diving in the floor for a loose ball. That's the kind of team that got us here," he said.

SWC reacts to Walker signing

By ANDREW M. WILLIAMS
Associated Press Writer

Football officials at six Southwest Conference schools said Friday the United States Football League is no longer welcome on their campuses because of the signing of underclassman Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker of Georgia.

Officials at Texas Christian, Baylor, the University of Texas at Austin, Rice University, Texas A&M and Texas Tech, reached by phone by The Associated Press, said they would no longer cooperate with scouts of the fledgling football conference.

"I believe that we will throw eggs and apples and whatever else we've got at those people," said Joe Hornaday, sports information director at Texas Tech. "They are very unwelcome." He said the ban was backed by head coach Jerry Moore and Athletic Director John Conley.

The league, which has a TV contract with the American Broadcasting Network and the Entertainment Sports Programming Network, will begin play this spring.

Walker signed a contract with the New Jersey Generals Wednesday. The three-year pact is worth an estimated $5 million. USFL officials said Walker's case is special and deny further designs on athletes still eligible to play college football.

Baylor head coach Grant Teaff called that promise "a bunch of hooey."

Texas coach Fred Akers said he wrote a letter Wednesday to the USFL office notifying officials they are banned on his campus. He said the decision will stand "until I'm convinced that they've got a concrete, consistent policy" on recruiting underclassmen.

"What they need to do is have a policy on keeping their word," Akers said. "They've signed underclassmen. They agreed they wouldn't."

The officials said representatives of the league would no longer be allowed to view school films of their athletes. The school officials said they would no longer arrange interviews between the scouts and players.

Mavs win over Blazers

DALLAS (AP) — Reserve guard Elston Turner scored all eight of his points in a 16-3 third-quarter run as the Dallas Mavericks defeated Portland for a 133-117 win Friday.

The Mavericks, led by 27 points from Mark Aguirre and 21 by Jay Vincent, missed only eight of 23 shots in the third quarter that gave them a 97-78 edge.

Portland, led by Kenny Carr's 19 points and Mychal Thompson's 15, hit only 10 of 23 shots in the critical quarter. The loss was Portland's second in a row.

The Mavericks broke a three-game losing streak to raise their record to 27-29 and move into third place in the Midwest Division ahead of idle Denver.

HEADLINE — "A 3 12-Minute Tape of Praise For Fernando Valenzuela by Dodger Manager and Dodger Vice President Sway Arbitrator into Giving Pitcher $1-Million Contract."

We take you now to 1963 where team owner Moe Gull is on the phone hotly to his manager, Tommy LaBonza. The owner is speaking — er, better make that shouting — as we tune in.

Owner: "LaBonza, what's the matter with you? Have you lost your mind? Telling the press that our star pitcher should be arrested for obtaining money under false pretenses. Did you tell the press it should be a federal offense to pass yourself off as a pitcher with his stuff? That he should be suspended for delay of game when he throws his fastball? That he would be better off to mail it? That his curveball should be named 'Twiggy' and that you can't tell his earned-run-average from the Dow Jones, and he ought to come out with a new line of shirts with a gopher on 'em?"

MANAGER: "Well, I did say the 's' didn't belong on his fastball. And, when somebody asked me what kind of a curveball he had, I did say 'I don't know, nobody's ever caught it yet.' But, Boss, what am I supposed to say? This guy's been knocked out of the box 18 times in a row! In the first inning! He ain't got a batter out since silent movies. You don't watch his games, you listen to 'em. They sound like the siege of Warsaw. What am I supposed to say?"

Owner: "You could say he's a slow developer. You could say he's another Koufax, that, one of these days, he'll make the world forget Dazzy Vance! What good is it going to do to say you've seen better arms on the Venus de Milo?"

Manager: "Dazzy Vance?! Boss, this guy not only shouldn't be mentioned in the same breath with Dazzy Vance, he shouldn't even be in the same sport. As for Koufax, the only thing this guy has in common with Koufax is they're both air-breathing mammals. There, the resemblance stops. On the mound, they're not even the same species."

OWNER (hissing): "Don't you think I know that?! I can read statistics, can't I? Don't I have to repair centerfield seats every time he pitches? Who was it begged the umps to put in old balls every time he pitched with men on base like a guy using a cut-ball over water in golf? I'm no dummy, you dummy! But how do we sell tickets if you keep knocking the product? You got to tell people that bunch of clowns I signed are all on their way to the Hall of Fame. Cross youur fingers if you want. Go to confession. But we got to make a buck, we've got to make poeple think they're looking at the 1927 Yankees on a run of hard luck. This is a business, LaBonza! Shape up! This is not 'To Tell The Truth,' this is not an integrity contest. Who are we going to sell all those hot dogs and bobblehead dolls to if you keep coming up with honest answers? I can get lots of guy to tell the truth. But this is Show Biz, Babe. You think those magicians really cut girls in half? It's all illusion, you goof. Tell 'em you're sure this guy will break all Nolan Ryan's records before he's through. Never mind that you mean for bases-on balls. I got seats to fill, TV contracts to sign. Get with it, dummy."

WE DISSOLVE now to the year 1983. Same cast of characters. The owner is, if anything, even madder as he gets on the phone.

Owner: "Now, you've done it, chump! What do you mean getting on the air and telling the world that 'A player like this comes along once in a lifetime'? What are you trying to do? Ruin me? Can't you tell the people this is the luckiest bum you ever saw in your life? That, if it weren't for a fast outfield, he'd be back in Albuquerque trying to stop the bleeding? What is it with you and that G.M. of mine? Do you want to go back to scouting for a living? Maybe your family will let you wait on the table or stuff the ravioli for them."

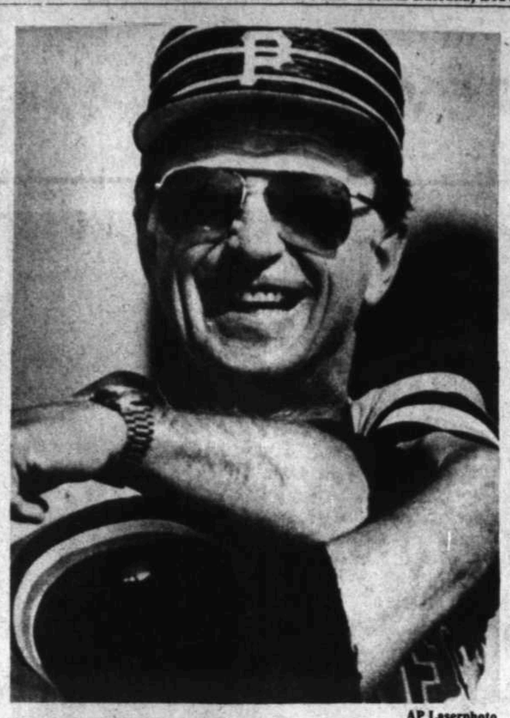

Manager: "But, Boss, this guy just threw three no-hitters! In a row! He hasn't given up an earned-run since Mother's Day! What am I supposed to say? That he can't cure colds? That he reads with his lips?"

Owner: "You can tell'em he's too fat. Or too young. Or too anything! Unless you want to be working for him some day! Tell me, do you have any idea how much this young man is going to be asking for if you keep saying he puts you in mind of Koufax or Grover Cleveland Alexander? If you keep telling the world how lucky we are to have him? His agent makes more money than you do! Keep it up and I'll be lucky to have him as a partner."

Manager: "Boss, what do you want me to do? This guy's our stopper, our pennant insurance! Without him, there's no way we're going to win the pennant."

OWNER (pensive): "Pennant? Pennant? Who wants to win the pennant? That's another thing I been meaning to talk to you about, LaBonza. Do you realize what winning the pennant would do to our payroll? I've traded away half a team already to guard against it. Now your job is to mismanage what's left. As usual. And stop praising those guys to the skies. Point out the league isn't what it used to be. That baseball isn't what it used to be. Wonder out loud how good this guy would be if he had to get the ball past Willie Mays or Henry Aaron. Babe Ruth. Say a guy should have to pay to pitch against the San Diego Padres. Say a guy should blush to make more money than DiMaggio. Especially this guy."

Wife's putting advice pays

MIAMI (AP) — Allen Miller, operating on intructions from his wife, Cindy, converted his new putting stroke into a one-stroke lead after two rounds of the $300,000 Doral-Eastern Open Golf Tournament.

"I've been fighting it and fighting it and fighting it for the last two years," Miller said, then reconsidered. "I've been fighting it ever since I've been on the tour. And now I've made more putts in the last three rounds, going back to the pro-am on Wednesday, than I've made in my whole life."

And the reason, Miller said after his 7-under-par 65 Friday, is a changed putting stroke that came as a result of long work and instruction from his wife, a former LPGA touring player.

"I had an unusual type of putting stroke," said Miller, winner of a single title in 13 years of PGA Tour activity. "She's been trying to get me to putt more like everyone else. We've gone back to fundamentals, keeping the putter low on the backstroke, low and square through the ball.

"I'm not going to say I'm going to win the golf tournament. I'm not that kind of guy. But this new stroke is going to pay off down the road."

Miller, who said he considered leaving the tour until a late-season surge last year prompted him to try it again, held his single-stroke lead over flu-stricken George Burns, Tom Kite, Mike Gove and Gary Koch, tied at 136, eight under par for two trips over the Doral Country Club's Blue Monster course which, in the absence of winds played easier than usual.

Danger lurks in Miami streets, that's new?

MIAMI (AP) — There is danger lurking in the streets of Miami this weekend during the running of the Budweiser Grand Prix.

Today and Sunday there are going to be sports cars — some of them standard production models, others more exotic and prototypes — racing on a winding, 12-turn course constructed amid the downtown businesses.

The danger is not so much inherent in the speeds of up to 160 mph that the fastest cars will hit on the two long straightaways. Instead, it is evident in the 3-foot-tall concrete barriers that line virtually the entire circuit.

"There is no place for error here at all," noted Hurley Haywood, one of America's premier sports car drivers. "When you make a mistake on most road courses, you slide through the grass and eventually stop. Then you try to get the car going again. Here, if you make a mistake, you're in the concrete."

Englishman David Hobbs, who has driven in just about every major auto racing series, agreed. "Most drivers will adapt pretty well to whatever the conditions are," he said, "but drivers are going to make mistakes. And here, a small mistake is going to turn into a major drama.

PRODUCTION SYSTEMS NODAL ® ANALYSIS

A ONE WEEK COURSE
March 7-11
Midland Hilton Inn

A Nodal (new and revolutionary) systems analysis approach for oil and gas wells.

This course is designed for Engineers, Managers and Field Foremen associated with Production Systems and Artificial Lift Planning.

Instructor:
Carl Granger, BS

Each participant will receive three books:

•Technology of Artificial Lift Methods, Vol. 1, inflow performance, multiphase flow in pipes, the flowing well.

•Technology of Artificial Lift Methods, Vol. 11, beam pumping, gas lift, electrical pumping, hydraulic piston pumping, jet lift, plunger lift, other methods of lift and comparison of methods (2 books).

•Vol. III, 2200 pages of new gradient curves including vertical multiphase flow, horizontal multiphase flow, gas production and gas injection curves. (scale = 20,000 ft. by 5600 psi.) (2 books).

This course will show you how you can SAVE MONEY and INCREASE PRODUCTION by:

• Changing the separator pressure
•Changing the flow line size
•Changing tubing size
• Increasing perforation shot density

•Placing well on Artifical Lift
•Applying Nodal Systems Analysis to entire system
• Knowing how to predict flow capacity of oil and gas wells.

QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED IN THIS COURSE
• Production rates possible -oil or gas?
•Tubing size correct?
•Flowline size correct?
•Enough perforations?
• Completion problems gravel pack or other restrictions?
•Safety valve sized and set correctly?
• Is surface choke necessary and is it sized correctly?
• Should be on Artificial Lift?

The above questions will be answered in detail by:

• Showing methods for predicting the flow rates possible from oil and gas wells.

• Showing how to use gradient curves and computerized multiphase flow correlations to select tubing sizes for vertical or directional wells.

•Showing how to use gradient curves or multiphase flow correlations to select flow lines for either horizontal or inclined flow.

•Presenting a complete systems analysis to show the effect of perforation shot density. A standard shot density of 4 to 8 shots per foot may not be sufficient.

•Applying the Nodal systems principle to check the effect of restrictions such as gravel pack.

•Applying the Nodal Systems approach to see if the safety valve is sized correctly and check to see if it will close correctly.

•Applying the Nodal Systems approach to correctly size a choke for a certain flow rate and to see if the choke should be eliminated.

•Applying systems analysis to see what effect the separator pressure has on the entire system. A correct setting of the separator pressure, in particular for a closed rotative gas lift system., may show a tremendous rate of return on investment.

•Working example problems to show: (a) the rate possible by natural flow, (b) the rate possible by artificial lift.

WE WILL SHOW YOU:
•How a change in separator pressure will save money with no loss in production.
•How a change in flowline size or separator pressure may prevent buying additional compressor H.P. for gas lift.
•How increasing the perforation shot density may double the production on gas wells.
•Why the tubing size may be too small or possibly too large.
• How to predict the flow capacity of oil and gas wells.
• Other production problems.

Kitchel's back injury ends season

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) — Fourth-ranked Indiana University suffered a major blow Friday when it was announced that senior forward Ted Kitchel, the team's leading scorer, will probably be lost for the remainder of the basketball season because of a back injury.

"In all probability he is lost for the season," said Indiana sports information director Kit Klingelhoffer.

Kitchel, the leading scorer in the Big Ten entering this week's action, left Thursday night's game against Michigan six minutes into the first half and never returned. He scored just five points.

The Hoosiers, 20-4, have four games left this season and will likely receive a bid to participate in the NCAA postseason tournament.

After Walker signs, ticket sales spurt

SOUTH HACKENSACK, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Generals have sold about 5,600 season tickets since Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker signed a contract with the United States Football League team, club officials said Friday.

Walker, who will receive an estimated $5 million over three years from the Generals, has generated about $600,000 in ticket revenue.

Walker still wants degree

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — As he packed his bags to head south for the start of his professional football career, Heisman Trophy winner Herschel Walker said he hopes to return to the University of Georgia.

"I'll still come back and get my degree," Walker told a reporter. "I'll be back in the summer if the (United States Football League) season is over. If not, I'll be back in the fall. My plans haven't changed, just redirected ..."

Walker, who jumped to the USFL after being declared ineligible for his senior season at Georgia, stopped in his hometown of Wrightsville, Ga., Friday before heading for the New Jersey Generals' camp in Orlando, Fla., on Saturday.

THE ATHLETE, HIS fiancee and father arrived at his home at about dusk Friday. Reporters said Walker gunned his car as he pulled into the driveway, forcing about 15 reporters and photographers standing on the shoulder to scramble out of the way. Walker entered the house without speaking to reporters.

Three Georgia State Patrol cars cruised the street in front of the home, while a private bodyguard sat in a car parked in the driveway.

In a brief interview Thursday at his Athens apartment, which was strewn with clothes, suitcases and equipment bags, Walker had told The Atlanta Constitution, "I guess I should already be there (in Orlando), but everything happened so fast."

He said he was looking forward to playing in the fledgling USFL, which opens its first season March 6.

Asked if he will play in the Generals' opener, Walker said: "If I'm there, I expect to play. I don't think they hired me to sit on the bench."

"I'M IN SHAPE because I've been running track," he added. "But that's not exactly football shape. I don't think it will take me that long once I get going."

Walker reportedly will earn $5 million over three years with the Generals in the richest pro football contract in history. The contract was signed Wednesday, just hours after Georgia declared him ineligible because of an earlier agreement with the USFL franchise.

Walker's attorney, Jack Manton, said the stakes could get even higher in the fall of 1984 because Walker's contract probably will come up for renegotiation about the time he becomes eligible for the National Football League draft.

NFL SPOKESMAN Dick Maxwell in New York said Walker would be eligible for the draft as early as April 1984 or as late as 1985. A player becomes eligible when he earns his degree, when he uses up his college eligibility or when five years have elapsed since he entered school, Maxwell said.

Manton said the USFL's television contract will come up for renewal about the same time, and "no renewal will be granted until the television people find out how long Herschel is committed to the league.

"So they will want to know where Herschel is going to be. This will put us in the enviable position of a contract renegotiation without asking for it," he said.

Manton said his ultimate goal is for Walker to be "the highest paid player in all sports, both team sports and tennis, golf or boxing."

He said he expects Walker to be a better professional player than a college player, despite his record-breaking performances in three years at Georgia.

"That is absolutely the most ridiculous statement ever made ... (But) I can see it all happening," Manton said. "The one-on-one opportunities that will be presented Herschel in the pros will produce great plays over and over again."

THE CONTRACT signing Wednesday ended five days of controversy in which Walker initially denied reports that he had signed an agreement with the Generals last week. Last Friday, Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said he was convinced Walker was telling the truth because "Herschel's never lied to me."

But the school declared Walker ineligible Wednesday after discovering that Walker actually had signed a contract in a violation of NCAA rules regarding player eligibility.

College prexies reaffirm stance

WASHINGTON (AP) — A college presidents' group reaffirmed its commitment Friday to tougher academic standards for student athletes, but said it was willing to consider options for achieving that goal — including the possibility of ruling out intercollegiate competition for all freshmen.

The American Council on Education's athletics panel was instrumental in pursuading the National Collegiate Athletic Association to pass a new rule last month that would require freshmen athletes starting in 1986 to have a combined score of 700 on the scholastic aptitude test and a C average in college-preparatory subjects.

Those who did not meet those grades would be ineligible for competing in intercollegiate athletics during their freshman year.

Some presidents of predominantly-black colleges have attacked the proposal, charging that it would have a particularly adverse impact on their students.

Jack Peltason, president of the association of 1,600 colleges and universities, said in an interview that his group was willing to consider other options, including declaring all freshmen ineligible for intercollegiate athletics.

Peltason said the presidents on the association's Committee on the Problems of Major Intercollegiate Athletics "are not prepared to retreat from their commitment to raising academic standards, but they are prepared to consider other options."

The committee, which includes about 40 college presidents, adopted a resolution that called anew for strengthening standards for student athletes, while expressing a "willingness to consider options to improve those standards."

The comittee called for talks this spring with the National Association for Equal Opportunity in Higher Education, a group of historically black colleges.

Gregory R. Anrig, the president of the Educational Testing Service, has said that if a strict cutoff of 700 were used in the Scholastic Aptitude Test in 1981, 51 percent of all black male freshmen would have been ineligible to compete in athletics at the 277 colleges in the NCAA's Division I.

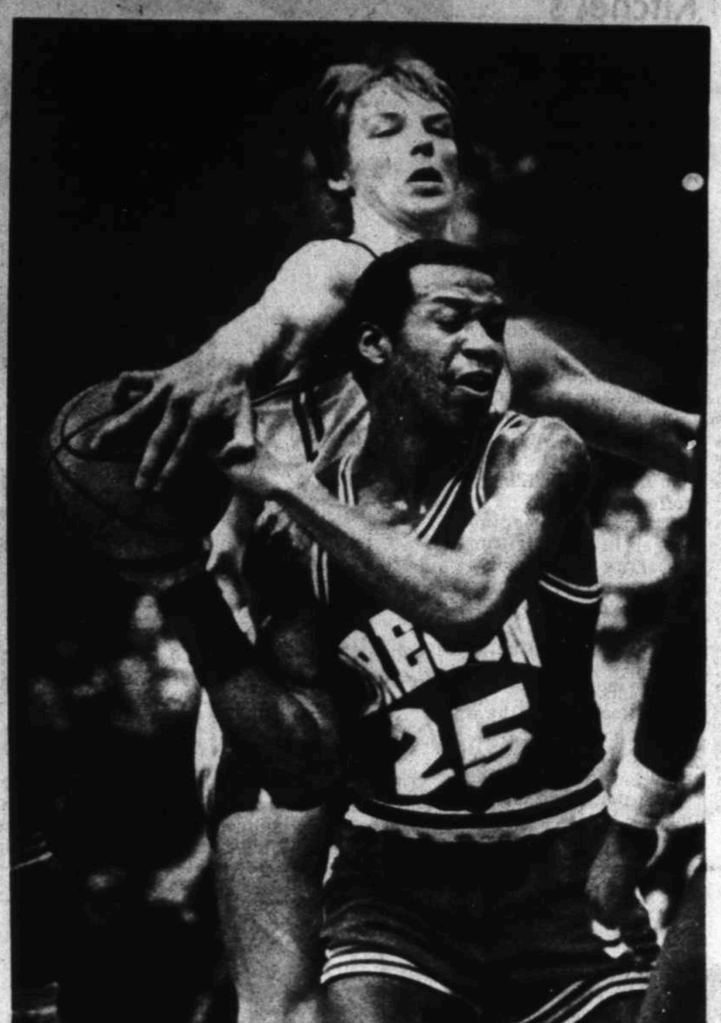

Abila opponent scratched

Midland professional bantamweight Richard Abila wasted a trip to Corpus Christi this week. One opponent he was supposed to fight, Houston's Jesse Sierra, pulled out and his replacement, San Antonio's Carlos Flores, wouldn't take a mandatory eye examination and was forced to scratch.

By not fighting, Abila's four-month hiatus from boxing will continue indefinately and his record will remain at 7-1.

Though Abila wasted his time, Midland's other pro boxer, Benito Banda, was able to get in his four-round bout against newcomer Barry Houseman. The Tall City's junior lightweight probably wishes he wouldn't have since Houseman used a strong inside jab to control the fight and take a unanimous decision.

The victory gives Houseman a 1-0 record while Banda is still looking for his first win against four losses.

Angels' Burleson tries ailing arm

CASA GRANDE, Ariz. (AP) — After four days of drills mostly involving pitchers and catchers, it is a shortstop who has made the biggest impression in the camp of the California Angels.

Rick Burleson, attempting a comeback after a torn rotator cuff sidelined him for practically all of 1982, has caught new Manager John McNamara's eye. "I'm pleased with what he's shown me. He's a lot further along than what I'd been led to expect."

Foster reports

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Outfielder George Foster and third baseman Hubie Brooks, who struggled through sub-par seasons in 1982, reported to the New York Mets camp two days early Friday and got to work immediately.

Foster, who signed a five-year, $10 million contract after being traded by the Reds, batted only .247, with 13 home runs.

Kemp arrives

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — A clean-shaven Steve Kemp arrived in training camp Friday and, like newly acquired infielder Bert Canpaneris, made his first appearance in New York Yankee pinstripes.

Kemp will be the Yankees' right fielder, but Manager Billy Martin said he is thinking of flip-flopping Kemp and left fielder Dave Winfield when the Yankees play at Boston's Fenway Park because of the short distance in left and the normal distance in right. "I think that's a very good idea," Kemp said.

Campaneris, who had been cooling his heels here all week while the Yankees were dickering with his Mexican team for his services, worked out for the first time Friday after the Yankees' Columbus affiliate in the International League purchased the 40-year-old veteran's contract on a conditional basis. If Campaneris signs, the Yankees will pay $5,000 to Poza Rica.

Jays sign trio

DUNEDIN, Fla. (AP) — The Toronto Blue Jays signed minor-league pitcher Chris Knapp, third baseman Mickey Klutts and shortstop Lavell Blanks.

Knapp 29, was 36-32 in 122 games with a 5.00 ERA in five seasons with the White Sox and Angels. Last year he was 6-6, 8.10 ERA with Des Moines.

Klutts, 28, has seen action with the New York Yankees and the Oakland A's. Last year in Oakland he hit .178 in 55 games with no homers and 14 runs batted in. Blanks, 33, formerly with the Atlanta Braves and the Cleveland Indians, played the last two years in the Mexican League.

SPRING TRAINING

Sutter ready

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) — Relief star Bruce Sutter reported Friday amid a vanguard of St. Louis Cardinals pitchers and catchers and pronounced himself fit following arthroscopic knee surgery. "The knee is good," said Sutter, who had been hampered by ligament damage in his left knee for three seasons. "I ran today. If I slip occasionally, it might hurt a little."

Also appearing strong was right-hander Andy Rincon, who spent most of 1982 in the minor leagues in an unsuccessful attempt to battle back from a broken arm he suffered the year before.

Howe sidelined

VERO BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers pitcher Steve Howe missed Friday's spring training workout because he of an inner ear problem and dizziness. Howe is scheduled to pitch batting practice Saturday.

The Dodgers continued to experiment with outfielder Candy Maldonado as a third baseman. Maldonado had not played third base until arriving in training camp.The team will play intrasquad games Saturday and Sunday.

Reds arrive

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — Second baseman Ron Oester was the first regular besides pitchers and catchers to show up at the Cincinnati Reds training camp.

Blyleven optimistic

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Cleveland Indians right-hander Bert Blyleven, a 12-year-veteran, is looking forward to the 1983 baseball season after undergoing elbow surgery.

"This is one of the most exciting spring trainings I will ever have. I'm happy to be back," said Blyleven, 31. "I'm anxious, everybody is optimistic, and we only have one way to go— that's up.I have four more years left on my contract. I'd like to get healthy and be able to finish it."

Last May 1, while pitching against the Oakland A's, Blyleven asked to leave the game when he felt something pop in his right elbow. Four days later, he underwent elbow surgery to repair a torn muscle and missed the rest of the season.

Prior to last season, Blyleven never had a year with an earned run average over 4.00. In his four starts last year, he was 2-2 with a 4.87 ERA. His lifetime ERA is 2.96.

Sabres defeat Bruins

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP) — Rookies Dave Andreychuk and Mal Davis scored third-period goals to propel the Buffalo Sabres to a 7-6 come-from-behind National Hockey League victory over the Boston Bruins here Friday night.

The Bruins had a commanding 3-0 lead after the opening period and held a 6-1 margin by the 4:44 mark of the second. But Buffalo came back with four straight goals before the end of the second period against Pete Peeters, the NHL's top goalie this season, to narrow the gap.

Andreychuk tied it when he steered in a perfect pass from Paul Cyr at the 13:09 mark and put it to the far corner. Then, with Buffalo enjoying a man advantage, Davis got his third of the year when he banked home a rebound of Andreychuk's shot on a power-play attempt.

Tony McKegney, Andre Savard, Dale McCourt, Lindy Ruff and Brent Peterson were the other Buffalo scorers.

For Boston, Barry Pederson scored his 37th and 38th goals of the year. Peter McNab, Keith Crowder, Mike Milbury and Bruce Crowder were the other Bruin marksmen.

It was Buffalo's second successive victory over Boston after losing all of the teams' first five meetings this year.

Who cares about selling tickets?

Manager: "But, Boss , what about tickets? Customers?"

Owner: "Tickets? Oh, sure. I been meaning to speak to you about that, too. They keep pointing out how many extra we sell on the night this guy pitches. I was wondering, could we keep it a secret what night he pitches? Where he is in the rotation? Jerk him around in it? Warn people over the air the parking lot's full that night? I'm talking survival here, baby."

Manager: "Well, Boss, there's one thing you could do."

Owner: "What's that?"

Manager: "You could sell it to Hollywood as a horror movie. 'The Creature That Ate Baseball.'"

Add UNLV to victim list

Another No. 1 bites the dust

FULLERTON, Calif. (AP) — Add Nevada-Las Vegas to the long list of college basketball powers — including Virginia, North Carolina, UCLA, Indiana and Memphis State — that went down to defeat this season shortly after gaining the top spot in the weekly polls.

A tenacious defense by the Titans of Fullerton State put the brakes on the Runnin' Rebels Thursday night, 86-78. Fullerton extended its home winning streak to 16 games and ended the perfect record of No. 1-ranked UNLV at 24 games.

"Fullerton outplayed us the entire game...give them the credit," said Rebels Coach Jerry Tarkanian. "We've had a lot of good times this year. We've done a lot of celebrating. Now it is time to experience this."

FOUR OF THE Titan defenders formed a box in front of the basket to hinder Rebel center Sidney Green, who was held to a respectable but below-average 17 points and eight rebounds.

And the Titans' Gary Davis spent the night hounding UNLV sharpshooter Larry Anderson, who was held to eight points. Anderson had scored 30 when Nevada-Las Vegas beat the Titans 76-71 a month ago.

Fullerton is now 19-5 with all of its losses in road games.

Guard Leon Wood, who led the Titans with 21 points and 12 assists, said he and his teammates have repeatedly heard the question: "Who is Cal State Fullerton and why can't we win the big one?"

"But after tonight, I'd like to hear what they have to say," added Wood, who twisted an injured ankle before limping through the final minutes of play. He was using a crutch after the game but his smile couldn't have been any bigger.

TITANS COACH George McQuarn also recalls the comments about Fullerton being merely a mediocre team. "We've heard those comments persistently through the year...(now) I'd tell those people we beat the No. 1 team in the country."

Tarkanian said of the Fullerton defense: "We've seen that stuff before. The zone didn't hurt us. We just didn't rebound." He also could add that the Rebels didn't shoot or dribble well in the second half after leading 46-41 at the intermission on 56.4 percent accuracy from the field.

A departure from his usual dominance by the Rebels' Green hurt his team when the game was close in the final minutes. "Sidney got (the ball) low three times there late in the second half. He put the ball on the floor (dribbled) and lost it each time," Tarkanian said.

FORCED INTO FOULING to regain the ball, the Rebels watched as Wood scored two free throws and Davis four in the final two minutes to complete the victory.

Guard Ricky Mixon had 20 points for Fullerton despite an off-night shooting, 9 of 24 from the field. But Wood scored the first six points of the second half and Mixon made four of his long shots early in the second half as Fullerton opened up a 55-51 lead.

In one of those moments, Wood launched a frantic 26-foot shot as he was running out of time on the 30-second shot clock, midway in the second half. The ball hit the backboard before going in the basket for a three-pointer.

"I sure wasn't trying to bank it...I figured luck was on our side and that anything still could happen," Wood said.

The Rebels played without one starter, and used another who was ailing. Forward Eldridge Hudson was out with a hyperextended knee, and guard Danny Tarkanian, son of the coach, played some after being hospitalized earlier in the week with bronchitis.

Daniel birdies 18 for Tucson lead

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Beth Daniel sank a 10-foot eagle putt on the 13th hole Friday to vault into a two-stroke first-round lead, firing a four-under-par 68, in the $150,000 Tucson Conquistadores LPGA Open.

Daniel, of Seabrook Island, S.C., shot an even-par 35 on the front side and a four-under 33 on the back nine on tthe 6,248-yard, par-72 Randolph North Golf Course.

Patty Hayes, Ladies Professional Golf Association Hall of Famer Sandra Haynie, and Ann-Marie Palli were tied two strokes back at 70.

Four golfers were tied at 71 — Amy Alcott, Patty Sheehan, and Japan's Tatsuko Ohsako and Yuko Moriguchi.

Nancy Lopez, this year's leading money-winner, shot 36-37 for a one-over-par 73, while Ayako Okamoto of Japan, the 1982 Tucson winner, was well down in the pack after shooting 38-39 to finish the round at 77.

Last year's leading money-winner, Joanne Carner, is not competing in the three-day, 54-hole tournament.

Playing the back nine first, Daniel, 26, took command with the eagle 3 on the 13th. Hayes later momentarily stole the lead on No. 2, a par-4, 340-yard hole, when Daniel bogeyed it. But Hayes bogeyed No. 4 and Daniel, the 1981 leading money-winner, birdied the third and fourth holes to regain the lead.

"Someone told me I was in the lead while I was going down the fourth hole," said Hayes, whose best finish last year was a tie for 13th. "I guess I just gagged ... It's been a long time since I was that close."

Daniel hit a 3-iron into the 13th green and confidently sank the putt for the eagle. "That really pumped me up," she said. "All of a sudden a mediocre round has turned into a good round."

The opening scores were higher than expected on the municipal course.

Daniel, however, was not surprised. She said the course conditions made it difficult to play.

"The course is not in very good shape," she said. "They just overseeded with rye here, and there are thick layers of rye out there. It makes it hard to putt. You can't get a true reading on them."

Carl Lewis scores a rare double

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Lewis became the first athlete to win a sprint-long jump double in the USA-Mobil Indoor Track and Field Championships in 38 years and Stephanie Hightower set a world indoor best in the women's 60-yard high hurdles Friday night.

The remarkable 21-year-old Lewis won the long jump with a modest leap of 27 feet, 4¾ inches, then less than two hours later came back to win the 60-yard dash in a meet-record 6.04 seconds.

It was only the second such double in the meet's 95-year history. The only other athlete to do it was Barney Ewell in 1945.

In the long jump, Lewis, the only athlete ever to clear 28 feet indoors — he holds the indoor best of 28-1 — took only one jump. It was good enough to win, but it wasn't good enough to satisfy the crowd at Madison Square Garden.

There was no reaction from the fans when it was announced that Lewis was passing his second, third and fourth attempts, but when the crowd was informed he was not taking his fifth or sixth tries, there were scattered boos.

The boos, however, turned to cheers when Lewis blazed out of the blocks in the 60 and easily won the race, beating a field that included James Butler, the world's top-ranked 200-meter runner, and Ron Brown, the former Arizona State University standout.

Paul Harney fires 68 in Vintage seniors

INDIAN WELLS, Calif. (AP) — Paul Harney fired a 4-under-par 68 Friday, giving him a 36-hole score of 138 and a three-shot lead at the halfway point of the $300,000 Vintage Invitational golf tournament for seniors.

Harney, 53, recorded four birdies and no bogeys in the second round over the 6,903-yard, par 36-36—72 Vintage Club course.

Tied for second place at 141 in the 72-hole event which is scheduled to finish Sunday were first-round leader Gay Brewer, who had a 73 Friday, and George Bayer, who had a 70 in the second round.

USFL's Simmons accepts invitation from coaches

NEW YORK (AP) — Chet Simmons, commissioner of the United States Football League, said Friday he has accepted an invitation to attend next Thursday's American Football Coaches Association meeting in Dallas.

The USFL is under fire from college campuses due to the signing by the New Jersey Generals of University of Georgia junior tailback Herschel Walker. Many college coaches have said they will bar USFL scouts from their campuses. Simmons has said the signing of Walker will not trigger a wave of "raids" of college talent.

In a statement released by his office, Simmons said, in part: "The purpose of the meeting, as stated by Coach McClendon, is to take a realistic approach and review the curent legal status of a young man's right to seek employment and to balance that status with the desires of the colleges ... We welcome the chance to address this matter with the representatives of various colleges and universities and hopefully we will both achieve together a meaningful solution."

Linehan paces Longhorns

AUSTIN (AP) — Distance specialist Kim Linehan won two events and led the University of Texas to a mammoth lead Friday after the second day of competition in the women's Southwest Conference Swimming and Diving Championship.

Texas won seven of eight events to build an almost insurmountable lead before the final day of competition Saturday.

Ms. Linehan finished first in the 400-yard Individual Medley and the 200-yard Freestyle.

Teammate Joan Pennington led a Longhorn sweep of the top four places in the 100-yard Breast Stroke and placed second to Texas captain Jill Sterkel in the 50-yard Butterfly.

Texas has 571 points.

Democratic presidential hopefuls learn it pays to start early

An Analysis

By WALTER R. MEARS

WASHINGTON (AP) — Any guidebook to Democratic presidential politics for 1984 would have to begin with one simple rule: it pays to start early, very early. And no matter how early that is, some other candidate almost certainly will have been there sooner.

That's why there are four declared candidates for the Democratic presidential nomination right now, staffed, hunting money and organizing the primary states a full year in advance of the first competition for delegates. The list soon will go to five, then, in all probability, to seven or more.

Candidates have come sooner to past campaigns, but singly. The two prime examples were Sen. George McGovern in 1972, and former President Jimmy Carter in 1976. Both were longshots, both won the nomination, and the architects of campaigns since then have looked to profit by those examples.

Hence the cavalry charge of Democrats for 1984, an early start that comes despite — and, ironically, in some cases because of — the efforts of reformers to compress the campaign calendar.

THIS CAMPAIGN is more than a marathon, prompting Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona to observe that if he'd decided to start running for the 1984 nomination early in the winter of 1983, he would have been a day late and a dollar short.

The Democrats who are running, and have said so, are, in alphabetical order, former Florida Gov. Reubin Askew, California Sen. Aln Cranston, Colorado Sen. Gary Hart, and former Vice President Walter F. Mondale.

Sen. John Glenn of Ohio will join them in a month or so. Sens. Ernest F. Hollings of South Carolina and Dale Bumpers of Arkansas may, too.

The early entries have had their agents at work in Iowa for as long as six months, preparing for a delegate contest that won't happen until a year from Sunday. Most every New Hampshire Democrat with know-how, or a mailing list, or access to either, already has signed up with one candidate or another. That first presidential primary of the season is scheduled on March 6, 1984.

ORGANIZED LABOR broke its tradition and decided to endorse a candidate for the Democratic nomination before the primaries. The AFL-CIO always had waited out the primary campaign and backed the winner. The strategy this time was to endorse a candidate no later than December 1983, in order to concentrate and accentuate the campaign clout of the labor federation. In other words, start early.

But the candidates started earlier. They're trying to get labor support well in advance of the campaign, to help them get organized and raise money this year, not next. AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland wants to keep labor neutral in the campaign buildup, so that the organization can unite behind a single candidate in the primaries.

He has asked state and regional AFL-CIO organizations to avoid involvement at this stage. That's going to be hard to manage.

Two reform rules, both Democratic, have contributed to the rush.

ONE IS THE change in the primary election system to require proportional representation in the distribution of delegates. It took partial effect in the last campaign, and is fully in force for the next one. What that means is that losing primary candidates won't be wasting their campaign money in states they otherwise might write off; a respectable showing will win at least a few delegates. That makes it more attractive, and sensible, for a candidate to run everywhere, instead of picking the most promising targets for primary campaigning. And it takes longer to organize a campaign across the board than one that is targeted to specific contests.

The other, ironically, was the Democrats' effort to compress the campaign by grouping the primaries in four months, beginning in March 1984. The result was to push the primaries and caucuses closer together, which means that the candidates will have little time next year to run in one state and prepare for the next, capitalizing on victory or regrouping in defeat.

Senator predicts ERA passage

Hearst Feature Service

WASHINGTON — The Equal Rights Amendment will pass Congress within the next 18 months to become a major issue in the state legislative races of 1984, Sen. Bob Packwood predicts.

The Oregon Republican said it will pass the Republican-dominated Senate for political reasons, although he does not now have the votes.

"I just don't think the Republicans want to go back into the 1984 elections with the albatross around their neck of having killed the ERA," said Packwood, who with Sen. Paul Tsongas, D-Mass., is a primary sponsor of the ERA.

The original ERA died last summer because it fell three states short of ratification, which requires approval by three-fourths of the states.

Despite predictions by anti-ERA crusader Phyllis Schlafly that the amendment was buried for good and gloomy assessments by ERA supporters that it might take a decade or more for revival, the opposite appears true.

ERA activists made major legislative gains last fall in Florida and Illinois, two key states where the ERA lost repeatedly.

One significant result of the election is that the Illinois legislature, which has required approval of constitutional proposals by a three-fifths vote rather than a majority vote, as is common in other legislatures, is changing its rule. It has already been modified in the assembly and a similar change is expected in the state senate.

"This virtually assures passage in Illinois," said Judy Goldsmith, National Organization for Women president.

NOW has launched a survey of ERA strength in every state legislature. In the bulk of states, local ERA approval came soon after Congressional approval in 1972, well before Schlafly and ultra-conservative groups mounted a campaign against it.

The NOW survey will dictate where the 280,000 membership organization will concentrate its organizational efforts. In some states, notably Illinois and Florida, telephone banks used in the pursuit of ratification are now being used to recruit new members.

In Congress, the required two-thirds vote in the House apparently already is assured. That margin is within reach in the Senate, Packwood and Tsongas say, and the pressure is expected to intensify as the 1984 elections approach.

Of the 44 senators who have not signed the new ERA resolution, 10 are Democrats and 34 are Republicans — and many of them are up for reelection next year.

"Once the House passes it, we are faced with the issue in the Senate. If we pass it, Republicans get no special credit. But if it dies, and it dies at the hands of a Republican-controlled Senate, it becomes an issue again that Republicans killed the ERA," Packwood said.

"I just don't believe that will happen. I don't believe Republicans will kill it," Packwood said.

ERA strategists are considering trying to postpone an ERA vote in the Senate until next year to maximize visibility and election-year pressures.

President Reagan's opposition to the ERA and the Republican party platform retreat from it in 1980 after 40 years of support are partially responsible for the gender gap that first surfaced in the 1980 presidential race.

"There is a genuine gender gap — we do 5 percent to 6 percent worse among women than we do among men — and we're bad enough off with men," Packwood said.

Would he and other moderate Republicans try to put the ERA back into the party platform in 1984, taking a cue from the gender gap?

Packwood, who angered Reagan and his GOP colleagues a year ago with a blunt warning that the party risked losing women, racial minorities and environmental activists, smiled and said that still was an open question.

"I think that would depend on the nominee," he said.

Scientists snatch egg to preserve condor

SAN DIEGO (AP) — In an unprecedented attempt to save the California condor from extinction, a condor egg is being incubated at the San Diego zoo in hopes it will hatch successfully.

The three-week old bluish egg — six times the size of a chicken egg — was taken earlier this week from the rugged Ventura County condor sanctuary, put in a specially-built "egg suitcase" and flown to the zoo.

Scientists said this is the first attempt in history to artificially incubate a condor egg and rear the chick from birth, scientists said.

The egg, which is three weeks old, was snatched by two scientists who had spent four days in a pup tent covered with brush. The tent was only a minute's walk from the nest.

Scientists grabbed the egg when the father condor interrupted his incubating duties and the mother condor was away from the nest.

Bill Toon, the zoo's condor keeper, and Noel Snyder, of the U.S. Wildlife Service, said they donned sterile surgical gloves before placing the egg in the suitcase, which is heated to a temperature of 95 to 97 degrees.

"We're hopeful and we're frightened," said Toon, referring to the egg's chances of hatching.

Toon said taking the egg was the "least detrimental way" to try and save the condors because the parents usually hatch another egg if they lose their first.

The egg was taken as part of a program aimed at increasing the productivity of the nearly extinct California condor. He said there are only 17 to 20 of the huge birds left in their natural mountain habitat.

Three California condors — all male — are in captivity. One is at the San Diego Wild Animal Park near Escondido. Two are at the Los Angeles Zoo.

The egg is now in an incubator at the zoo's Avian Propogation Center, a $500,000 facility for the incubation of eggs and the raising of birds.

Handicapped woman gets teaching degree

BAYTOWN (AP) — Thirteen years ago, a little tow-headed girl walked out of a Houston hospital and looked at the grass. "I didn't know it had little blades. I spent hours looking at it."

Carole Black had been blind until that day. In her mind the grass had been a carpet.

Now, 23, she is very close to realizing a goal she has tenaciously worked for since the third grade. She has an elementary education degree from Lamar University.

She graduated in this year's January class — a semester late. Her 25th eye operation kept her from the books for a semester.

Her graduation marked another step in a calculated plan to overcome a handicap. It was Ms. Black's own idea, one not shared with her own teachers.

"I would tell them what I wanted to do...even into high school. They would tell me 'I wish you could," she recalled.

"I would never say that to a kid. If they told me they wanted to be president, I would wish them luck," she said. "I wanted it bad enough I didn't care what they said."

One gets the feeling Ms. Black would join a teacher monastery if one were operating. She spends most of her time thinking about "my kids." Right now she is student teaching here. She spent her high school and college years at Lamar convincing the Baytown school officials she could do the job.

"I would beg teachers to allow me to come into their class and just watch, when I was in high school. Pretty soon I would gain their trust and I would be participating in the work."

She "worked her way in" bugging teachers to allow her to watch, observe and learn to guide people. She still has some of the lesson plans she remembers from her early years. She noticed some of the tricks that didn't work so well.

"I would analyze why something didn't work and learn from it."

Books have been Black's task master for the past 4½ years. It takes her an hour to read what it would take a normally sighted person 15 minutes to read.

"I had to buckle down and really work at it. There was no time to spend with my friends; maybe I would have a chance to say 'hi' on the phone. I gave myself Saturdays off. I had to. And I didn't go to summer school. I couldn't possibly read three chapters a night."

Her reading gear includes several magnifying glasses. She must plan her day out carefully, rewriting board work in large script. Each time she gets a call to substitute in a new school she must go early to find her way around.

How do the kids she teaches react to her eye problem?

"It is very noticeable that I'm different. My eyes are permanently dilated. So I explain to the kids that I can only see so far away. They ask me what I can see. And I tell them who has a yellow shirt on and who has pretty braids," she said.

Because of the operations, about one a year from birth, Ms. Black is able to see forms and colors, but no definition.

And, yes, sometime she resented the time she had to spend in a hospital bed, and the boat rides she couldn't take because the stitches in her eyes would rupture. She loves water sports.

"Sometimes it would hurt to say 'no' to my friends. I resented it. We are just like anybody else, only more so," she said.

But there are also benefits. A little boy learned a shape as his fingers traced a yarn form.

"Unless the Lord builds the house, they labor in vain who builds it..." Psalms 127:1

Tennessee Williams found dead in NYC

'Greatest American playwright' was 71

NEW YORK (AP) — Tennessee Williams, the Pulitzer Prize-winning playwright whose Southern roots and bleak family life erupted on the stage in "The Glass Menagerie," "Cat On A Hot Tin Roof" and "A Streetcar Named Desire," was found dead Friday. He died of natural causes. He was 71.

"He was the greatest American playwright. Period," said Walter Kerr, a drama critic for the New York Times.

Williams' body was found Friday morning by his secretary, John Ucker, on the floor of Williams' room at the Elysee Hotel, where he had been staying for the past week.

Dr. Elliott Gross, the city's chief medical examiner, said his preliminary examination determined Williams died unattended Thursday night of natural causes.

He said he was aware of a police report that an empty wine bottle was found in the room and two capsules or pills were found beneath the body, but he would not comment further and said an autopsy would be performed.

Sy Pinto, general manager of the mid-Manhattan hotel, said Williams had stayed at the hotel on and off for 15 years.

HOWEVER, SINCE 1945 he had spent the bulk of his time in Key West, Fla., "just always writing," according to Michael Powers, spokesman for Williams' manager.

"We're all deeply grieved here," said Carol Calkins, associate director of the Tennessee Williams Fine Arts Center in Key West, where Williams was the most famous of residents.

Williams is survived by his sister, Rose, and a brother, Dakin. Funeral arrangements were not yet arranged, Powers said.

The playwright's popularity had declined after his last commercial success, "Night of the Iguana" in 1961, when drink, drugs and dim reviews began to darken his life. As late as 1980, his "Clothes for a Summer Hotel" closed on Broadway after a short, disastrous run.

Williams was a homosexual, and homosexuality subtly pervades his works. He said he "fell apart" in 1963 after his constant companion of 14 years, Frank Merlo, died of cancer.

THE THEMES OF time and memory, death and loss, became central motifs in his later works and also preoccupied the author during a 1981 newspaper interview about his then-latest play, "Something Cloudy, Something Clear."

That play was based on Williams' experiences during a "pivotal summer" in 1940 after he said he had just "come out of the closet" as a homosexual.

Williams talked about a "contemporary" quality to events as people get older. "The past and present begin to merge. You also realize time runs short — it runs out on you," he said.

He recognized his "decline in popularity," but refused to stop writing because "I have the example of so many playwrights before me."

His own example will live on, secured by his stunning success in 1945 with the "The Glass Menagerie," which was deemed at the time to have surpassed in dramatic impact the plays of any other living American playwright.

IT BROKE BOX office records and won the New York Drama Critics' Circle award. Critic Howard Barnes of the Herald Tribune called him "the Eugene O'Neill of the present period on the stage."

His reputation was cemented with "A Streetcar Named Desire," the story of the disintegration of a refined Southern woman, and "Cat on a Hot Tin Roof," both of which won Pulitzers.

He used sexuality, stark imagery and physical violence to illustrate the lives of his weak yet insightful characters.

His force in the American theater was established by these and a string of other plays: "Summer and Smoke," "The Rose Tattoo," "Camino Real," "Suddenly Last Summer," "Sweet Bird of Youth," "The Night of the Iguana" and "The Milk Train Doesn't Stop Here Anymore."

Many of these works continue to be revived by small theater companies and repertory groups and some have been adapted to the screen.

WILLIAMS ALSO worked on those screenplays and wrote several original ones, the most controversial of them "Baby Doll," because of its sexual theme.

Willams drew on the South, its images and characters, for many of his plays, short stories and poems, because it was there that he was born on March 26, 1911, in Columbus, Miss., the second of three children.

His parents baptized him Thomas Lanier Williams, under which he published his early works. Later, he adopted the name that his fraternity brothers gave him, Tennessee, because he thought it better suited an author.

His father, Cornelius, was a hard-drinking traveling clothes salesman who moved the family to St. Louis when Williams was 12. His mother, Edwina, was the daughter of a Southern Episcopal minister who bitterly resented her husband and continued to dwell in the memory of her life as a Southern belle.

Their dismal relationship sorely affected Williams' relationship with his father, and he sought refuge in writing, later drawing on his St. Louis apartment and his sister's collection of glass animals for "The Glass Menagerie."

Marx finances investigated before death

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — The Bank of America began investigating Groucho Marx's financial dealings with his companion, Erin Fleming, while the comedian was still alive, a bank official testified Friday.

Heidi Galke said the investigation was started because the bank had already been named temporary conservator of the aging comedian's estate while a court battle was raging over who would be permanent conservator.

Marx died in 1977 at age 86, and the bank is executor of his estate.

Ms. Galke, a vice president and trust officer in charge of the bank's probate administration, was questioned by defense attorney David Sabih, who tried to show the bank spent thousands of dollars from the estate preparing for the current suit against Miss Fleming.

The bank is seeking return of some $400,000 in presents Marx gave Miss Fleming, 42, during their six-year relationship. The bank's lawsuit contends Miss Fleming bullied and intimidated Marx into presenting her with lavish gifts, allegations the former actress vehemently denies.

"We did start an investigation during the conservatorship proceedings because, based on the testimony given as far as financial dealings were concerned, it suggested strongly that we had to investigate further," Ms. Galke said. "That is the duty of a conservator."

About $8,500 was spent on initial legal fees, which she said were "applicable to the contemplation of these proceedings."

The $150,000 that Marx willed to Miss Fleming has been frozen since his death, although all other bequests have been given out, Ms. Galke verified.

Jimmy's secretary no dirty rat: Cagney home really on fire

STANFORDVILLE, N.Y. (AP) — Actor James Cagney thought his secretary was kidding when she awakened him with orders to flee his burning farmhouse. It was no joke, but the 83-year-old screen star and his wife escaped injury.

"I said, 'James, there's a fire in there!'" secretary Marge Zimmerman said. "He said, 'Really?' He thought I was kidding because I kid him a lot. I said, 'No, I'm not kidding. Get up. Get out.' By then there was smoke in the dining room."

James Cagney

Mrs. Zimmerman rushed Cagney and his wife, Frances, from the old, wooden beamed house in their pajamas as firefighters arrived. Cagney, star of movies ranging from "Public Enemy" to "Ragtime," was moved to another house on the Verney Farms estate.

The fire, which was reported at 9:24 a.m., was quickly put out by firefighters. It was limited to the living room and part of the attic of the main house in the rural town of Stanford.

Fire Chief Dennis Smith said the fire erupted from a fireplace and spread to the attic. Firemen had to punch a hole in the roof to douse the last sparks, Smith said. One firefighter suffered minor injuries battling the blaze.

Employment office head joins unemployed

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The state's employment security commissioner is out of a job, and has applied for unemployment benefits of $110 a week.

"I was hired for four years, served four years, my term expired, then I was unemployed," said Bob Bible, who left Gov. Lamar Alexander's cabinet Feb. 15 and is entitled to 26 weeks of benefits.

Bible likely won't be collecting benefits for long — he takes the examination for a real estate license March 26, and won't need benefits after that, he says.

Obscure committee wants to raise fees for state permits, licenses

AUSTIN (AP) — An obscure committee and a senator who says he prefers to stay in the background are in the legislative limelight after submitting a report that could bring in $60 million a year in higher state fees for permits and licenses.

One of the fees — to register manufacturers of food and drugs — was set at 25 cents in 1911 and has never been raised. Others have not been increased since the 1920s and 1930s, and it is obvious they do not cover present-day administrative costs.

Sen. John Leedom said he knew the Senate Committee on Fees and Grants was on the "right track" when he learned that the state highway department's 25-cent fee for issuing duplicate car titles costs the department $360,000 a year more than it yields in revenue.

Adoption of the committee's recommendations could result in higher fees for many state services, such as granting hunting and fishing licenses, deeds for veterans land purchases, examinations of agricultural produce, youth camp inspections, wine and beer retailer permits and permits to seed clouds for rain.

Leedom, a Dallas Republican, presented the committee report to legislative leaders, who responded with praise or similar proposals.

Gov. Mark White favors fee increases, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby called the report "excellent," Speaker Gib Lewis said he supported the concept, and Comptroller Bob Bullock suggested tying fees to the national Consumer Price Index.

"You know when it costs an agency $5 to process a receipt for a 25-cent fee that our whole fee structure is long overdue for an overhaul," Bullock said.

According to the committee report, the state collected $501 million in fees in 1981, a 4.5 percent decline from 1980.

Leedom, a 61-year-old former city councilman, patterned the committee's study after one he did in Dallas in the late 1970s. "I came down (here)...with the feeling there might be the same situation with the state," he said in an interview.

What is so surprising about Leedom's effort — besides its financial significance in hard economic times — is that it was done with so little fanfare by a senator who often says he doesn't yet know what's really going on in the Legislature. "It's over my head," he says.

Leedom's resolution creating the committee did not even provide expense money, but he recalls citizen member Bob Folsom of Dallas saying, "I'd be disappointed, John, if it was any other way."

Leedom also made sure the committee could not subpoena witnesses, because he wanted all testimony to be voluntary. The committee's meetings were open to the public, but attracted virtually no attention.

"Being a Republican (in a predominantly Democratic Senate), I was in no way trying to point out things ought to be different. It was an election year; I just wanted to do the job and not try to grandstand or showboat," Leedom said. "It just seemed to be something that was appropriate."

One criterion used in proposing new fees was whether the old fee covered the cost of service. If that could not be determined, the committee based the increase on a cost of living index. Many fees were recommended to be left as they are.

Ambassador says Mexico society in crisis, but moving

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Special Ambassador Fausto Zapata suggested this week that Mexico's current situation lies somewhere between "doomsday predictions and overflowing optimism."

In the text of a speech prepared for delivery in San Diego to a Copley Newspapers conference, Zapata recommended that observers take "a sensitive yet reliable intermediary point of view. From this vantage point one sees not a society in crisis but a society on the move."

My Own Two Feet

I didn't need God! Used to boast about how I could stand on my own two feet.

Then came the broken leg. With lots of time to think and little to do I began to discover another dimension of our existence. We aren't simply "on our own." Some divine purpose links our life to the Creator. Seeking that purpose and striving to fulfill it — that's what life is really about.

I started going to church on crutches.

The leg is fine now, except for that ache when it's going to rain. My larger view of life continues to enrich each day.

And I'm finding it easier to attend worship — on my own two feet!

WHO IS THIS WHO CASTS OUT DEMONS?

Once as Jesus was teaching in the synagogue, a man possessed by a demon began shouting at Him, "Go away! We want nothing to do with You, Jesus from Nazareth. You have come to destroy us. I know who You are--the Holy Son of God."

Jesus cut him short. "Be silent!" He told the demon. "Come out!" The demon threw the man to the floor as the crowd watched, and then left him without hurting him further.

Amazed, the people asked, "What is in this man's words that even demons obey Him?"

The story of what He had done spread like wildfire throughout the whole region.

After leaving the synagogue that day, He went to Simon's home where He found Simon's mother--in--law very sick with a high fever. "Please heal her," everyone begged.

Standing at her bedside He spoke to the fever, rebuking it, and immediately her temperature returned to normal and she got up and prepared a meal for them!

As the sun went down that evening, all the villagers who had any sick people in their home, no matter what their diseases were, brought them to Jesus; and the touch of His hands healed every one!

Some were possessed by demons; and the demons came out at His command, shouting, "You are the Son of God." But because they knew he was the Christ, He stopped them and told them to be silent.

Early the next morning He went out into the desert. The crowds searched everywhere for Him and when they finally found Him they begged Him not to leave them, but to stay at Capernaum.

But He replied, "I must preach the Good News of the Kingdom of God in other places too, for that is why I was sent."

General Ahmed Hassan, deputy police chief of Assiut, Egypt, stands at ease in front of his bullet-pocked police station in southern Egypt. Hassan led the attack to retake the building after it was stormed and captured 15 months ago by Moslem extremists trying to capitalize on the uncertainty following the assassination of Anwar Sadat.

Southern Egyptian town no longer hotbed of dissent

ASSIUT, Egypt (AP) — Just over a year ago, defiant women in veils and bearded men wearing white robes — the uniforms of militant Islam — were commonplace in this southern provincial capital. Friction between Moslems and Assiut's minority Christians often flared into gun battles.

Today, one sees only a few veils and robes, and Moslems and Christians say they are getting along with each other.

The government claims it now has the problem of Moslem extremism under control. Not long ago there were fears in some diplomatic quarters that Egypt would go the way of Iran, now an Islamic republic.

In a recent interview with The Associated Press, President Hosni Mubarak said restoring calm to Egypt was one of the main accomplishments of his 15 months in office.

"I don't think (Moslem extremism) is as dangerous as some people think — we have full control of that," he said.

Assiut, an agricultural center 223 miles south of Cairo, was once a beehive of Islamic fundamentalist activity. On its university campus, there were protests against Egypt's peace treaty with Israel. With one-quarter of its 250,000 residents Christian, there were frequent clashes on its streets.

The turning point for Assiut — and the rest of Egypt — was Oct. 6, 1981, when Moslem extremists assassinated President Anwar Sadat, and police in Assiut smashed a bloody Moslem uprising. By official count, 66 policemen and 21 civilians died and 150 were injured.

"They killed military people and civilians, and most people in Assiut were disgusted by this rebellion," said Gen. Ahmed Hassan, the deputy police chief who led the attack to retake the main police station.

Hundreds were arrested in Assiut and more than 2,500 nationwide, and the government began taking control of about 20,000 privately built mosques.

Twenty-eight of the 300 men on trial in Cairo on charges of trying to establish an Iranian-style state are from Assiut. The No. 1 defendant in the so-called Al-Jihad (holy struggle) trial is Omer Abdel-Rahman, a blind sheik who formerly taught at the Assiut branch of Al-Azhar University.

"What they did was against Islam — the court will judge them," said Sheik Ramadan Heikal, the government-appointed religious leader in charge of all Moslem charities in Assiut.

Many of those arrested have been found innocent and released. Nationwide, 1,400 people still are being held.

Sitting at the Mokadis (Christian Pilgrim) Cafe, Mohammed Abdel-Aal, 21, a Moslem student at the local university, and three friends said many of those arrested are back at the university.

Church Women United and the Midland Association of Churches are holding a special service Friday at 7:30 p.m. at First Christian Church, 1301 W. Louisiana Ave.

Scientists start vineyards in laboratory

AP Laserphoto

Professor Carole Meredith of the University of California at Davis, checks a culture in the viticulture department where they are using high technology to clone grape genes.

DAVIS, Calif. (AP) — Few enterprises are as bound by tradition as the ancient art of growing grapes for wine, but now high technology is heading for the vineyards.

Scientists are learning to use genetic engineering to start vineyards in laboratory dishes and do in a few months what traditional breeders would need acres of land and many years to accomplish.

Right now, said Carole Meredith of the University of California-Davis, "We're mostly concerned with developing our techniques" and testing them by breeding a grape that's resistant to a specific disease. The Northern California campus boasts a world-class department of viticulture and enology — grape-growing and wine-making.

For centuries grape-growers, like other farmers, have improved their crops by selecting the best plants for new generations. The most valued wines of Europe are the result of centuries of selections. Imported to America, these grapes are the foundation of California's thriving wine industry.

THE GENETICS change with each new plant. Besides the natural mix of genes, nature adds random mutations — new versions of genes that are the basis of evolution and the key to plant and animal breeding.

The trick in breeding new varieties is to search for plants with beneficial mutations and use them to improve the next generation.

But that's a long time for such slow-growing plants as grapes and the sprawling vines need so much room breeders rarely have more than a few thousand plants to scan.

Genetic engineering can boost that number into the millions, reduce the time between generations to days and do it in a container smaller than a jelly jar.

Instead of growing plants from seeds or cuttings, scientists are learning to "clone" them from a single cell.

"We look for mutations that might be useful," said Ms. Meredith. "It might be a one in a million event, but in a small flask we can grow 100 million cells."

SCREENING FOR valued mutations sounds simple. You expose everything in the dish to a chemical or disease and take the cells that survive. But it gets complicated when the goal is a plant that thrives with too little or too much water, extremes of heat or cold or a dearth of nutrients.

If the research is successful, it "may result in more choices about where you plant crops. Maybe you won't have to go to places like the Napa Valley to get high-quality wine grapes," Ms. Meredith said.

Though wine is produced in more than 30 states, she said, a significant industry exists only in California, New York and, more recently, Washington. Vintners also are becoming active in Oregon, Pennsylvania, Texas, Michigan and a few other states.

Ms. Meredith said grapes might someday be tailor-made for especially harsh regions, "but that sort of thing is 50 years away."

Similar research is being done with most major crop plants and progress has been "a lot faster (than with grapes) because they have the people and the resources."

MS. MEREDITH, whose two-year-old project is supported primarily by the wine industry with contributions from raisin and table grape organizations, said the grape research is so new Davis has the field almost to itself. Similar work is being done at New York's Cornell University and in Australia. In Europe, she said, "they do research but it tends to be more traditional...They have a long tradition of growing grapes and they're not interested in changing it."

Ms. Meredith said the first cloned grapes won't show up in her lab for several years.

There's a basic problem: "If our work is going to have agricultural impact," she said, "it's essential that we be able to generate plants from a single cell. This is what we can't do yet with grapes."

Ms. Meredith, like many other plant geneticists, is honing techniques with tobacco, the guinea pig of plant research. "This kind of technique can be done very well with tobacco" and she's confident it eventually will work with grapes.

Plant cells are grown in a solution, called a medium, of various nutrients. "By manipulating the levels of one or two homrones in the medium, we can get sprouting from single cells. (The cell) begins to get green and you begin to see little tiny leaves and pretty soon you get a little plant." No seeds are involved.

WITH GRAPES, she said, "we can generate plants from small bits of tissue (and) we think we're seeing the beginning of this process at the single cell level."

While developing cloning procedures, Ms. Meredith's team is also preparing for the first problem they'll tackle: a bacterial infection called Pierce's disease which "hits all types of grapes in California. We don't have any resistant varieties or any chemicals to control it."

Scientists think the disease kills plants by producing some kind of poison and Ms. Meredith is trying to identify that toxin so resistant plants can be sought.

Guam governor institutes fat-loss program

AGANA, Guam (AP) — Gov. Ricardo Bordallo is planning to trim the fat from the government of Guam — and he's not talking about the budget.

Bordallo this week ordered government department heads to design a physical fitness program for their employees and have workers join a weight reducing program sponsored by the government.

The governor says the programs, which he wants prepared by March 15, should include a plan for intramural sports competition between employees of the government, the largest employer on this Western Pacific island of 100,000 people.

The weight reducing program, run by the Department of Public Health and Social Services, consists of nine one-hour sessions for groups of 10 to 20 workers.

Studies have shown that employees are more productive when they are in top physical shape, Bordallo said.
