House to offer plan for Nicaraguan aid

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — The Senate Tuesday night voted 53-46 to give President Reagan $14 million in aid to U.S.-backed rebel forces fighting the Nicaraguan government but the House rejected the proposal 180-248.

Reagan won over some of the 10 Senate Democrats who sided with him by pledging to use the money only for humanitarian aid and to re-open bilateral talks with the Sandinista government in Nicaragua.

Also, the president agreed to other points a Democratic negotiating group had urged upon him at a marathon Monday White House negotiating session.

Eight Republican senators voted against the aid proposal.

The House will take up substitute plans for aiding the Nicaraguan Contras today. If one is approved, House and Senate conferees will try to thresh out differences and come back tothe two chambers for final approval.

In the meantime, however, the president's hands are tied legally on giving assistance in any form to any of the several groups trying to overthrow the leftist government headed by Daniel Ortega.

Both of Texas' senators — Lloyd Bentsen, a Democrat, and Phil Gramm, a Republican — voted for the Reagan aid request.

The president's pledges came in a letter addressed to Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., and quickly distributed to members in both houses.

As approved in the Senate, the resolution (S.J. Res 106) authorizes the release of appropriated funds and frees the executive branch from restrictions imposed last October against the support of military or paramilitary action in Nicaragua.

The president, however, said he will provide assistance to the "democratic resistance only for food, medicine, clothing and other assistance for their survival and well-being -and not for arms, ammunition and weapons of war."

Included is a presidential commitment, requested by Bentsen, to consider economic sanctions against the government of Nicaragua.

"While economic sanctions are unlikely by themselves to create sufficient pressure to change Niaragua's behavior, the Sandinistas should not benefit from their present access to the U.S. market while continuing their intransigence on issues affecting our national security," the president wrote.

Bentsen, in a floor speech, said both parties had made concessions leading up to the vote. He was particularly pleased that the president pledged to encourage the Contadora peace process, endorsed by many Latin American leaders but downplayed by the administration until now.

"The president moved a substantial way to meet the Democrats, and at least half way toward the government of Nicaragua," Bentsen said.

In the House, supporters of unrestricted aid to the Nicaraguan rebels, known as Contras, conceded during daylong debate they had lost that battle.

Rep. Albert Bustamante, D-San Antonio, a first term freshman, voted against the Reagan plan. In astatement before the vote, he said, "It is time to end our present policy of intimidation and invasion...to foster cooperation rather than confrontation."

Contras still controversial

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras (AP) — The anti-Sandinista rebels say their fight to topple the leftist Nicaraguan government has been hurt by shortages of arms and supplies since Congress halting funding last year.

President Reagan, who on Tuesday lost his battle in Congress to renew military aid to the rebels, calls them "freedom fighters" whose aim is to oust the Marxist-oriented government he claims has stolen the 1979 Nicaraguan revolution that ousted Somoza.

But independent human rights groups, including American religious organizations, say the Contras have engaged in terrorism and have a record of widespread cruelty and brutality.

Contra is the Spanish word meaning against.

By most counts, there are more than 16,000 Contras in the two main rebel armies, the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, which operates along the Honduran border in the north, and the Democratic Revolutionary Alliance, which is based in Costa Rica in the South.

A third smaller group of rebels is the Misura, which consists of Indians who lived along Nicaragua's east coast until they were forced to relocate by the Sandinistas.

Some estimates of the total rebel strength range as high as 35,000.

The Central Intelligence Agency has worked closely with the Nicaraguan Democratic Force, known by the Spanish initials FDN, which includes former members of the National Guard among its top officers.

Its leaders concede that since the U.S. aid was discontinued, their fighting has been scaled down because of a lack of weapons, medicines, clothing and other supplies.

But Indalecio Rodriguez, one of six members of the FDN directorate, vowed over the weekend to launch an offensive within a month.

The FDN says it is getting 1,300 new fighters each month, mainly young Nicaraguans who are leaving their country to avoid being drafted into the military.

Rodriguez said the FDN now depends on private donations and gets weapons by capturing them from the Sandinistas or buying them on the international arms market, and for the past four months has been relying almost totally on captured weapons and ammunition.

Another FDN official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said between 1982 and 1984, the FDN received about $10 million worth of weapons and supplies from Argentina and about $5 million worth of weapons from Israel, along with $500,000 in cash and clothing from Nicaraguan exiles in the United States and more than $320,000 From Cuban exiles in Miami.

Argentina and Israel have denied supplying arms and supplies to the rebels, and it was not possible to verify the rebel claims.

The Democratic Revolutionary Alliance is headed by Eden Pastora, a former member of the Sandinistas and popular hero of the revolution, who said his fighters also are hampered by a lack of arms, medicine and clothing.

Council undecided on effort to cut MidTran costs

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistamnt City Editor

MidTran, the city's subsidized public transportation system, can be operated cheaper, according to a spokesman with a transit study group, but one Midlander objected to some of the recommended cuts.

During a City Council meeting Tuesday, the panel listened to methods of reducing costs of operating MidTran, but came to no decision. Instead, Bob Babbitt with McDonald Transit of Fort Worth was instructed to look at how much it would cost for a contract pay structure with social service agencies.

Among the three choices listed by Babbitt were:

— Alternative 1 would require a $218,163 subsidy from the city's general fund if MidTran is operated at its current level of service with costs controls and management procedures tightened.

■RV rules considered; Related story — Page 1C

— Alternative 2 would provide MidTran's service only to elderly and handicapped persons and would delete all commuters, day care and student services. This would require $115,244 out of the general fund.

— Alternative 3 is the elderly and handicapped service based on the assumption the city would no longer receive additional funds from the Urban Mass Transportation Administration. It would require $253,000 from the general fund.

In a study presented to the council, Babbitt noted that one of the major problems plaguing MidTran is a "continuous shifting of system-wide objectives and management personnel."

Bonus baby surprises everybody

DENVER (AP) — Kathleen and Greg Miller were expecting quadruplets, so when the doctor said, "Don't go away, there's one more," there was considerable commotion in the birthing room.

The surprise announcement was made by Dr. James Delaney as he rushed to deliver the babies by Caesarean section by midnight Monday so they'd have the same birthday. Because No. 5 was tucked high up near Mrs. Miller's rib cage, ultrasound had not detected it, he said.

All five, born 7½ weeks early, made the midnight deadline and were doing very well Tuesday, hospital officials said.

Dr. David Belenky, the chief neonatologist at St. Joseph Hospital who specializes in critically ill newborns, said because the doctors and supplies were only set up for four babies, "It took some scrambling to get ready for the fifth one."

He said each baby had its own placenta, so they are not identical.

Mrs. Miller, 28, and her 29-year-old husband had been trying to have children for six years. She was taking a fertility drug when she became pregnant with the quintuplets.

"It's one of the greatest feelings that Kathy and I have ever had. We lost a baby last spring," Miller said at a news conference Tuesday. That baby died of toxemia, which is poisons or toxins in the bloodstream.

Body may be that of missing Odessa woman

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

ODESSA — The search for a 27-year-old Ector County woman, last seen alive about 12 days ago, may have ended in a field about five miles north of Andrews late Tuesday morning.

The Andrews County sheriff's office notified the Ector County sheriff's office about 11:30 a.m. Tuesday that oilfield workers had found a body.

Ector sheriff's Capt. Gene Kloss, Lt. Jerry Davis and the department's identification officer went to the scene to determine if the body might be that of Lois Ann Lloyd, 2519 Judy, who has been missing about 12 days and feared the victim of foul play.

The body was found on the east side of a cactus bush west of U.S. Highway 385 in a field, according to Kloss. The body, in an advanced state of decomposition, was clothed in a sweat shirt and panties, he said. The oilfield workers who found the body usually entered the field from the west, but Tuesday came in from the east side.

Kloss said Andrews County Peace Justice G.A. Ragsdale pronounced the unidentified victim dead at the scene and released the body to Ector County authorities.

Kloss said Ector County Peace Justice Virgil Lumpee ordered an autopsy and the body was sent to a Dallas pathological lab to determine cause of death and possible identification.

A copy of Ms. Lloyd's fingerprints also was sent to Dallas to aid in identification. A preliminary report is expected sometime today, he said.

The nature of wounds on the body, according to Kloss, tend to indicate the body could be that of the missing Ms. Lloyd, whose burned 1976 Pontiac was found about 5 a.m. April 13 in a ditch between Interstate 20 and the north service road, about two miles west of Loop 250.

Judge Sarah Hughes, who swore in Johnson, dies at 88

DALLAS (AP) — U.S. District Judge Sarah T. Hughes, who swore in Lyndon B. Johnson as president after the 1963 assassination of President John F. Kennedy, has died at the age of 88.

Mrs. Hughes, who had been appointed to the bench by Kennedy, died about 11 p.m. Tuesday at Presbyterian Hospital, said Lois Swan Jones, an aide to Mrs. Hughes.

She had suffered a massive stroke three years ago and had been in a nursing home since, Ms. Jones said. Mrs. Hughes was hospitalized in February.

Mrs. Hughes was a women's rights activist whose best argument was her own success at law and politics. Impudent lawyers, doubletalking witnesses and political opponents learned to fear and respect her.

She stood 5-foot-1 and weighed just over 100 pounds, but she was a stern jurist who ran a no-nonsense courtroom, often silencing men twice her size and half her age.

The late President Johnson and his wife, Lady Bird, were personal friends of hers, and when Kennedy was assassinated Nov. 22, 1963, Johnson called for her to give him the oath of office.

The hastily assembled ceremony took place at Dallas Love Field aboard Air Force One as Mrs. Kennedy, in a blood-splattered dress, stood by Johnson.

"I'm sure she'd like to be remembered for swearing in Lyndon Johnson, but she'd also like to be remembered for some of her good judicial decisions," Mrs. Jones said.

Mrs. Hughes was an outspoken Democrat and a controversial figure in Dallas, where her rulings were widely criticized by local officials as being too liberal.

She said her greatest achievement was a bitterly disputed order to improve the Dallas County Jail, which she called a "factory for crime." The 1972 order was resisted by county officials and it was not until eight years later that construction began on a new jail.

Senate begins work on budget for 1986

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — The Senate is beginning work on the 1986 federal budget with Republican leaders still searching for last-minute converts needed for a politically sensitive plan they negotiated with the White House.

Senators were to tackle the plan today after months of offstage maneuvering, with President Reagan preparing to give a nationally televised pitch for it at 8 p.m. EST.

Votes were not expected until Thursday at the earliest to give Reagan a chance to present his case.

The plan to trim $300 billion from federal deficits over the next three years without raising taxes still appeared shy of majority support in the GOP-run chamber, leaders conceded.

Republicans as well as Democrats were divided on many of the domestic program cuts and eliminations contained in the spending outline, and on its proposed limits on Social Security benefit increases.

On the eve of the opening of Senate debate, Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., expressed reservations about its chances.

"We may fail. There isn't any certainty we're going to pass a deficit reduction package of $300 billion," Dole told a farmers' group on Tuesday. "I'm not a pessimist. But I'm a realist."

Senate debate on the budget was expected to last for several weeks.

Dole said he would keep the Senate working late each night until it finished. "It's the only game in town," he said. "When we start, we're going to hang in there. If we fail, we have to try something else."

President Reagan argued assertively for the plan on Tuesday, claiming Congress should "stop making excuses and start showing some backbone and leadership" by approving it.

"We can no longer afford to finance everything," Reagan said in a speech to the National Association of Realtors.

The plan, which would reduce the nation's $200 billion-plus deficit by $52 billion in the fiscal year that begins next Oct. 1, would phase out or eliminate nearly 20 federal programs — including Amtrak rail passenger service and the Jobs Corps.

Under the plan, defense spending would be allowed to rise, but only by 3 percent in 1986 in addition to inflation, half the increase originally proposed by the president.

Social Security cost-of-limit benefits would be held to 2 percent in each of the next three years for rates of inflation below 4 percent, under the plan.

Although Senate leaders have claimed majority support for most parts of the plan, they have never asserted lining up more than about 40 votes for the package as a whole.

And Senate and administration leaders have voiced concern that the whole plan might unravel if some of its more divisive items — such as the Social Security limits — were stripped off.

"The question is support for what — the package or for various parts?" said Budget Director David Stockman, who has been waging a heavy lobbying campaign on Capitol Hill in behalf of the package.

"We're still assessing the situation," he said on Tuesday.

Some Republicans have suggested alterations to make the plan more politically palatable. "You can never rule out modifications, but we've probably gone as far as we can or should," Stockman told reporters.

Several sources said Republicans were short of the strength they needed to defeat amendments to delete some of less popular cuts.

In his speech to the real estate brokers, Reagan conceded that passage of the budget "will not be easy to get through the political process."

He said lobbyists representing affected interests were "out in force" to whittle away at the plan — perhaps working to substitute tax increases for budget cuts.

The audience of several thousand cheered and applauded the president repeatedly and promised to urge Congress to vote for the plan endorsed by Reagan and Senate Republican leaders.

Austin concerns delay Stacy action

Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Concerns by the city of Austin over protection of water rights downstream of Stacy Reservoir have delayed final action by the Texas Water Commission in the settlement of the dispute over construction of that Colorado River project.

TWC members and representatives of the Lower Colorado River Authority, Colorado River Municipal Water District and other parties, including Austin, will meet again Thursday morning to determine if additional testimony will be required before the TWC acts on project permits.

LCRA has proposed amending its permit for water in Lake Buchanan to allow diversion of 113,000 acre-feet of water annually for Stacy.

CRMWD is seeking diversion of up to 113,000 acre-feet, along with approval of the construction permit for Stacy, which was remanded to TWC by the Texas Supreme Court.

The changes are to complete the settlement agreement reached by LCRA and CRMWD on Stacy in February.

LCRA, CRMWD and Austin presented testimony by witnesses at TWC's Tuesday afternoon hearing, with most of the presentations involving effects of the reservoir under the proposed settlement.

LCRA is to receive releases from CRMWD from Stacy if LCRA's downstream reservoirs drop below 60 percent of their capacity, except when the water is required for CRMWD municipal needs, or if Stacy's level would be reduced below 1,530.5 feet elevation.

Roger Navola, representing Austin and Garwood Irrigation Co., said he had concerns over effects of Stacy on the yield of the Highland Lakes, and whether downstream irrigation rights will be protected under the language of the proposed permits.

Nevola said he wasn't opposing the settlement, but that clients wanted the record to clearly reflect their concerns, in case it is necessary in the future to seek releases of water fom Stacy to protect senior downstream water users.

Some argument resulted between Nevola and Austin attorney Frank Booth, representing CRMWD, over prepared testimony offered by Nevola.

The hearing will reconvene at 10 a.m. Thursday at TWC offices to determine if Booth or other attorneys will cross-examine engineer Paul Thornhill, whose testimony was accepted after arguments as to its relevancy.

Commissioner Lee Biggart said the TWC was not "ready to issue a permit this second," and asked that Nevola furnish any requested changes to the other parties by noon Wednesday.

CRMWD General Manager Owen Ivie, Big Spring, testified briefly Tuesday, and was asked about the possible sale of Stacy Water to Abilene.

Ivie noted TWC authority would be required, since the sale would mean an interbasin transfer of water from the Colorado to the Brazos basin.

Seven children removed from shack

Associated Press

CORPUS CHRISTI — Authorities took custody of seven children ages 1 to 15 after they found three of them in a one-room shack, apparently abandoned with no food except bird seed they were eating off the floor, officials said.

Health officials went to the shack after being tipped by a concerned school nurse, said Helen Reeves, nursing director of the City-County Health Department.

"It was real bad. It was just a little shack," Ms. Reeves said Tuesday. "Clothes were scattered on the floor, and mattresses were propped against the wall."

Ms. Reeves said some of the children told them they hadn't eaten in four days. Three were in the shack, one was found in a separate building on the property and three others were taken into custody when they came home from school, officials said.

"The story we got was that there were little children being left alone with a 15-year-old while their parents went to Mexico," Ms. Reeves said.

The building was described as a one-room shack with a bathroom and no cooking facilities. Police reports said it appeared the building was used as a mechanic's shop because clothes scattered on the floor were covered with oil.

The children were in the custody of the Department of Human Resources, and officials there declined comment. The parents were not located when the children were taken into custody and their whereabouts was still not clear Tuesday.

"I'm not at liberty to discuss anything about the situation," said Betty Francis, supervisor for the child protective services of DHR.

Court officials said the case had not yet gone before a judge.

According to police reports, the police met Health Department officials at the small building about 3 p.m. Friday. The door was locked, but they convinced one of the children to open it, the reports said.

Three of the children were toddlers, and were eating bird seed on the floor which had dropped from two parrot cages, officials said. A police report said there was no food in the house.

One baby "had bird seed in its mouth," Ms. Reeves said. "They said the last time they ate was a hamburger on Monday, and we were there on Friday."

A 15-year-old boy, the eldest child at the residence, was found in a large metal building behind the shack after one of the children ran back and banged on the door, officials said. One child told police the boy stayed in the shed because he does not speak English, the reports said.

Two Americans among 28 cardinals named today by pope

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope John Paul II named 28 new cardinals today, including a pro-Solidarity prelate from his native Poland, the head of the embattled church in Nicaragua and the archbishops of New York and Boston.

The new cardinals, who come from 19 countries, will be formally elevated at a consistory at the Vatican on May 25.

John Paul named cardinals from Ethiopia and Nicaragua for the first time and promoted the Rome-based leader of the Ukrainian Catholic Church, Archbishop Myroslav Ivan Lubachivsky, a U.S. citizen.

The cardinals include Archbishops John J. O'Connor of New York and Bernard F. Law of Boston.

A number of major archdioceses traditionally headed by cardinals had no leadership of that rank because of deaths or retirements since John Paul's last consistory in 1983.

The promotions will bring the number of cardinals under the age of 80 and therefore eligible to vote for a new pope to 120 — the limit under church rules.

The pope, making the announcement during his general audience in St. Peter's Square, said other churchmen "deserved to be included on the list" but that he did not want to go above the limit set by Pope Paul VI.

The pontiff chose the archbishop of Wroclaw in his native Poland, Henryk Roman Gulbinowicz, who was a firm supporter of the now outlawed Solidarity labor union and is known to take a hard line toward the Communist government.

Also named as cardinal was Archbishop Miguel Obando Bravo of Managua, who has pressed the pro-Marxist government to negotiate with opposition forces.

A second Polish cardinal chosen was Monsignor Andrzej Maria Deskur, a Rome-based close friend of the pope, who recently retired as head of the Vatican's Commission for Social Communications for reasons of health.

Another Eastern European promoted was the Rome-based Czechoslovak Archbishop Jozef Tomko, who the pope also appointed to head the Vatican's missionary arm, the Congregation for the Evangelization of Peoples.

From Latin America the pope also named as cardinals Archbishop Juan Francisco Fresno Larrain of Santiago, Chile, and the Rome-based Venezuelan Rosalio Jose Castillo Lara, who heads the Vatican's canon law commission.

For the first time, the pope named a cardinal from Ethiopia, Archbishop Paulos Tzadua of Addis Ababa.

Two Canadians were promoted to the rank of cardinal — the archbishop of Quebec, Louis-Albert Vachon, and Archbishop Edouard Gagnon, who heads the Pontifical Commission for the Family.

John Paul also named as cardinals the archbishops of Cebu, Philippines; Lyon, France; Utrecht, Netherlands; and Madrid, Spain.

The Polish-born pontiff has never revealed the name of a cardinal he chose "in pectore" — in his heart — in 1979.

Amputee's family moves to new home

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — Ten-year-old Bobby Williams, amputated at the waist at age 5 because of a rare birth defect, has moved from a ramshackle house to a new home built with thousands of dollars in donations.

In a few more days, Bobby's old house next door with its rotting floor boards, exposed wires and bedrooms the size of walk-in closets in most modern homes, will be torn down.

His mother, Dorothy Mae Williams, said recently she regrets that memories will disappear when the old house is demolished but she recognizes the many heartwarming memories that helped to build the new one.

The Home for Bobby Williams Fund begun last year by Mrs. Williams' former employer has raised more than $150,000, including a recent $20,000 donation by actress Pia Zadora and her husband. Local builders volunteered their services.

The deed to the house and property is in Bobby's name but it also accommodates his parents and 10 brothers and sisters, all accustomed to living in poverty in one of the wealthiest states in the nation.

But neither poverty nor handicap has slowed Bobby's spirit. He has steel rods inserted into his spine to replace the soft, flipper-like stumps of legs with which he was born. He must wear diapers because he is incontinent.

The handicap didn't hold him back from helping with the new house. Not only did he help select the paints and carpeting, he also helped hammer shingles onto the roof and carry supplies to the builders.

"I climbed up the ladder and through the opening in the roof to help out," Bobby said with a grin. Mrs. Williams raised her eyebrows and said she unsuccessfully tried to order an end to Bobby's days as builder's apprentice.

"But I've never been able to stop him before," she said.

"That's probably one reason why he's so well adjusted. We never tried to handicap him, because if we pity him, how would he grow?"

Bobby cheerfully discussed the advantages of walking on his hands.

"At night, when everybody's asleep and I'm hungry, I sneak into the kitchen and raid the refrigerator," he said between giggles. "Last week I ate dad's Twinkies and he never even knew."

Mrs. Williams once again raised her eyebrows — in surprise.

The new house allows Bobby to do a lot of things in privacy. He now has his own bedroom, painted blue, as he wished, with an adjoining bathroom. The five bedrooms for the rest of the family are upstairs, along with an office where Mrs. Williams can work on a part-time basis.

Financially, Bobby's family is better off than last year, when Bobby Williams Sr. was out of work and Mrs. Williams held four jobs to make ends meet. The father now works at a local auto dealership and Bobby's fund has ensured that food is always on the table.

It has also provided a tutor for the boy.

"The local school was gearing Bobby in programs I didn't like," Mrs. Williams said. "They wanted to keep him in handicapped classes with kids who are emotionally disturbed or slow learners. But there's nothing wrong with my son's mind, so why subject him to something like that?"

Now that the family is settled into their new home, Mrs. Williams says it's time to continue writing thank-you notes again to the thousands of people who wrote to Bobby with emotional support and money.

"At first I felt ashamed — I didn't want people to know how badly we were doing," she said.

HUGHES

In the struggle over the jail, Mrs. Hughes said she prevailed by using a formula she said she relied upon all her life: "Pick out your goal and then use determination and courage to reach it."

Born in Baltimore, she met her husband, George Hughes of Palestine, Texas, while they were at George Washington University law school. She had worked her way through law school by working as a police officer in Washington. They were married and moved to Texas in 1922.

When they arrived in Texas she sought a job with a local law firm.

"I offered my services to every law firm in Dallas. I didn't know there was any discrimination against women," she said later. She became a staunch women's rights activist, and wrote the bill that later allowed women to serve on juries in Texas.

But she never claimed to be a member of any women's liberation movement — "I've always gotten things on my own. I haven't gotten them because I belonged to some women's group."

She launched her political career with a successful bid for the statehouse in 1930 and was re-elected twice. In 1935, she became the first woman appointed a state district judge in Texas and was re-elected seven times before President Kennedy named her to the federal bench in 1961.

She was defeated twice in election tries, once in 1946 when she ran for Congress and once in 1958 when she sought a seat on the Texas Supreme Court.

After her first 10 years as a state judge, she boasted that she had not missed a single day because of illness.

But in early 1980 she fainted in court and spent 10 days in a hospital, where doctors implanted a pacemaker to regulate her heartbeat.

She was back on the bench the next day.

"People are as old as they feel and as old as they do," she said. "It's not chronological age that counts."

She once admitted that she could have settled in a politically friendlier city.

"I did not realize the people of Dallas County were so conservative," she said. "People were willing to vote for me for judge because they thought that I would be fair. But they were not willing to vote for me in a place where I could change the laws."

Her husband, a lawyer for the Veterans' Administration, died in 1964.

MIDTRAN

Under the plan of operating door-to-door service, the buses will never be full, he said. Since McDonald took over MidTran's operations Feb. 26, after the resignation of director Doris Velasquez, the department staff has been reduced by four persons, or two full-time salaries. In addition, said Babbitt, all marketing expenditures have been eliminated, a new pass program has been implemented, improvements in vehicle maintenance have begun, and all payments enforced. Babbitt said in cases where one child was being paid for and three rode the buses, the parents now are having to pay for three children.

But Jan Davidson objected to the recommendation to drop the individual service. Speaking for Midland Association for Retarded Citizens and the Junior League's Children's Dental Clinic, she said MidTran is the only means of freedom for retarded citizens.

When the dental clinic operates on Wednesdays for indigent children, it tries to get these students back to their schools as soon as possible and pays MidTran to transport the youths.

But, instead of taking the retarded persons to their jobs or these children back to school non-stop, the buses now are diverting to pick up other people and making the workers or youths late in getting to their destination, she said.

Babbitt said the service provided MARC and the clinic's clients falls between regular service and fixed rate service. "If we can set it up as a charter service it will be $45 an hour," he said.

Before he could continue, Mrs. Davidson interjected, "Why has it changed all of a sudden? You would come and pick up my kids for $1.75 (each at the clinic) and now you're not. These are indigent children. We don't have a set time for picking up the children. We have to call and say we're ready for the kids to be picked up. Last time we had to take the kids back to school because MidTran wouldn't come get them."

And by diverting the buses to pick up other people instead of taking the children directly to school is wasting gasoline, said Mrs. Davidson, who is the wife of Councilman Steve Davidson.

"There's a lot to it that's wasting gas," said Councilman David Godfrey, who has said in the past he would prefer to eliminate MidTran.

"Don't get rid of MidTran," Mrs. Davidson said. "It's a freedom for indigent people and retarded citizens."

Godfrey suggested Babbitt look into how much money it would cost the city if MidTran were discontinued but the service provided by local taxi companies with the city subsidizing the rides. "We need to get the government out and get private enterprise involved," he said, referring to UMTA's involvement.

Davidson suggested Babbitt contact non-profit service organizations and "get a better feel" for their transportation needs.

BODY

Examination of the car by Midland County sheriff's deputies revealed human remains in the trunk of the vehicle, which was registered in Ector County.

The Ector County sheriff's department was notified and had launched an investigation when a call was received from an oilfield worker in the far west section of the county saying he had discovered what appeared to be a quantity of blood and human remains near a pump jack on a Shell Oil lease about two miles north of Interstate 20 and a half mile east of FM 866.

Midland DPS lab tests, according to the Ector County sheriff's office, showed blood samples taken from the burned car and those found near the pump jack matched the blood group shown in Ms. Lloyd's medical records, obtained from Medical Center Hospital in Odessa.

Hair found at both scenes in the two counties showed to be of the same general color as samples found on a hair brush taken by investigators from Ms. Lloyd's home.

Kloss late Tuesday afternoon refused to speculate that the body was that of Ms. Lloyd. He did indicate damage to the skull was consistent with what investigators expected to find when they located the body from which the skull and brain fragments already found had come.

Ector and Midland sheriff's deputies searched wide areas of both counties last week and a DPS helicopter, equipped with an infrared heat-sensing camera, spent almost 10 hours searching without success for a body.

Israeli forces begin withdrawal from Bekaa

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israeli occupation forces Wednesday began pulling back from east Lebanon's Bekaa valley, where they faced the Syrian army since Israel's 1982 invasion of Lebanon, state-run Beirut Radio reported.

The radio quoted unidentified Lebanese internal security forces as saying Israeli troops in armored personnel carriers and trucks were retreating southward from the 31-mile cease-fire line as of 7 a.m.

Israeli forces also began a withdrawal from the Jizzine, the largest Christian city in south Lebanon, and the strategic Barouk mountain just north of the city, the radio added.

The report said the Israelis sealed off all roads to the Bekaa and Jezzine upon beginning the withdrawal.

The broadcast gave no further details.

Thousands pay last respects to Neves

BELO HORIZONTE, Brazil (AP) — Five people were trampled to death by a delirious crowd fighting for a last glimpse of the body of President-elect Tancredo Neves.

Hundreds more were injured when the wildly chanting multitude Tuesday toppled an iron security fence in front of the governor's palace in Minas Gerais state where the body of the 75-year-old leader lay in state, authorities said.

Neves, whose political career spanned 50 years, died Sunday of an uncontrolled bacterial infection and complications from seven operations. He was first hospitalized March 14, hours before his scheduled inauguration as Brazil's first civilian leader in 21 years.

Neves' body was to be flown on an airforce plane today for burial in his hometown of Sao Joao Del Rei, a city of 53,000 located 115 miles south of here. President Jose Sarney, Neves' family and government ministers were to fly by helicopter to the town, where Neves' body was to lie in state until his funeral late this afternoon.

There also have been processions for the deceased leader in Sao Paolo and the capital Brasilia.

Dr. Antonio de Farias Vecchio, coordinator of the main emergency ward in Belo Horizonte, said: "The crowd charged forward and the fence fell on them." Television film showed hundreds of women and children screaming in anguish as they were trampled by the stampeding crowd.

Her voice shaking, Neves' widow, Risoleta, tried to quiet the shouting masses from a palace balcony after the tragedy. "Have patience and remain calm," she pleaded. "He is here and you will see him."

"Tancredo lives. He did not die. He is alive in your hearts, long live the martyr of liberty," she said, referring to Neves by his first name, as nearly everyone here does.

Hundreds of thousands of people packed the airport and lined downtown streets in Belo Horizonte, a city of 1.8 million, to bid good-bye to the grandfatherly leader, who had become a symbol of democracy in this vast South American nation.

The emotional farewell in Neves' home state of Minas Gerais was marked by chants of "Tancredo, Tancredo, Tancredo," as the flag-draped coffin was driven on a fire truck from Pampulha airport to the governor's palace, where it was to lie in state until early Wednesday morning.

A military police escort of jeeps and motorcycles was joined spontaneously by hundreds of bicycles and joggers, turning the procession into a noisy parade.

Some onlookers held photos or old campaign poster of the short, balding Neves. One man held a sign saying in Portuguese, the Brazilian language, "for us, Tancredo did not die."

Sudan offered billions by Libya

Los Angeles Times-
Washington Post News Service

KUWAIT — Libya has offered billions of dollars in cash and the Soviet Union also has promised financial aid if Sudan will severe diplomatic relations with the United States, the Kuwaiti newspaper Al-Watan reported Tuesday.

The newspaper quoted diplomatic sources in Cairo as saying the new military leader in Khartoum, Abdul-Rahman M.H. Swareddahab, flew secretly to Egypt last Thursday and conferred for four hours with President Hosni Mubarak on the offers.

The sources added that the conditions placed by Libya on its offer of $3 billion were the breaking of relations between Khartoum and Washington and an agreement by Sudan to join Libya in a merger.

The deal was proposed by Khadafy Al-Dam, the brother of Libyan leader Moammar Khadafy, who visited Khartoum last week.

A Sudanese military delegation, later went to Tripoli, the Libyan capital, the sources said. They did not indicate whether Sudan accepted the Libyan offer.

The same sources reported that the Soviet Union, has invited Swareddahab to visit Moscow and "promised to grant the new Sudanese government financial aid in return for cutting off relations with Washington.

Ex-security adviser urges Reagan to give up 'Star Wars' strategy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former U.S. security adviser Brent Scowcroft, saying prospects are "fairly bleak" for a Soviet-U.S. arms reduction agreement, is urging the Reagan administration to give up its "Star Wars" missile defense plan in a deal that would scrap multiple-warhead rockets on both sides.

In a speech Tuesday night, Scowcroft said neither negotiations nor technology will provide "simple solutions" to the arms competition between the superpowers. He said the Soviets want to stop the Star Wars proposal — known formally as the Strategic Defense Initiative — without giving up anything.

Meanwhile, "the United States doesn't want to put it on the table at all," Scowcroft said.

Scowcroft suggested one approach to break the apparent impasse in the talks in Geneva, Switzerland, which went into recess Tuesday, would be for the United States to "trade SDI for something that would make a real difference."

And that, Scowcroft told the Committee for National Security, a private arms control group, would be eliminating multiple-warhead missiles and strengthening procedures for controlling crises.

Scowcroft, who was former President Gerald R. Ford's national security assistant, headed a bipartisan commission appointed by President Reagan that proposed the United States gradually phase out multiple-warhead missiles in favor of single-warhead weapons on mobile launchers.

In his speech, Scowcroft urged the administration try to make a deal with the Soviets in Geneva in which both sides would make concessions — the administration by shelving the idea of a missile defense system that relies on futuristic technology and the Soviets by scrapping their heavy, multiple-warhead ground missiles.

"I think it's highly unlikely to expect any far-reaching reductions or changes in the Soviet system if they have to look over their shoulder at the unknown prospects of a defense for which they may need these warheads," Scowcroft said.

The $26 billion Star Wars research program is designed to find out if the United States and its allies can be shielded from attacking missiles. President Reagan has defended it as moral, and potentially effective, while critics say it would be very expensive and would spur the Soviets to develop weapons to pierce the U.S. defenses.

"Sometimes we beguile ourselves with the notion of simple and total solutions, be they arrived at through negotiations or technology," Scowcroft said. "The problems are difficult and we must resist the urge for simple solutions."

Assessing the first round of talks in Geneva, he said the prospects of an eventual agreement were "fairly bleak based on the initial positions of the two sides."

Scowcroft said "the Soviets at the present time want us to give up the SDI without paying anything for it, and the United States doesn't want to put it on the table at all. It's very hard to get much further apart than that."

Issue of racism raised in France

PARIS (AP) — "Is France becoming racist?" headlined the news magazine Le Nouvel Observateur. "France, is it really racist?" asked the rival weekly Le Point.

The issue also has been raised in French political debate — as well in the violence of bombs and the more subtle undercurrents of society.

The foreign immigrant in France has become a focus of attention with the rise of unemployment and the economy far from healthy.

About 4.7 million immgrants live among France's 54.6 million people. Large numbers of them entered illegally but became legal residents under a special amnesty offered by President Francois Mitterrand's socialist government after 1981.

Many of them — most particularly 1.5 million legal Arab immigrants — have complained of job and housing discrimination for years.

And in France, where anti-Semitism is usually lumped in with racism, the March 30 bombing that wounded 18 people at a Jewish film festival in Paris added another bloody punctuation mark to what many French Jews have encountered since the Nazi occupation of World War II.

More recently, bombs went off before dawn April 13 outside the Israeli-owned Bank Leumi and the National Immigration Office in Paris. Damage was extensive in both places but there were no injuries.

The largest foreign colony in France is Portuguese, numbering about 860,000. They, along with 426,000 Italians and 380,000 Spaniards, are generally well accepted in the community.

The major butt of racism is the North African community, 777,000 Algerian and 520,000 Moroccan immigrants, and the 420,000 "harkis" — Algerians who fought for the French in the Algerian war, fled at independence in 1962 and now are French nationals.

The smaller groups of black, sub-Saharan Africans also come in for racist attacks, but the phenomenon is not one of straightforward color. The North Africans are much lighter-skinned than the sub-Saharan Africans, but often distinctive by facial structure.

French blacks from the Caribbean and Indian Ocean seem to be generally integrated and less objects of racial tension. There are many in the Paris police force, for example, but no official statistics are kept.

That the French establishment is now posing the question of racism and that mainstream politicians of all stripes are denouncing "the rise of racism" reflects the introduction of a new element in the social and political equation — the National Front.

The National Front is a political party on the extreme right headed by a 57-year-old former paratrooper, Jean-Marie Le Pen. After a decade on the political fringes, the party is now in a position to tip the balance in France's 1986 legislative elections.

Le Pen's talk of "France for the French" has the political establishment concerned over an awakening of xenophobia — a fear or hatred of foreigners.

Le Pen denies he is racist. He sues for libel — and wins — any time anyone accuses him of it.

Norwegian trawler grabs Soviet tracking device

LONDON (AP) — A Soviet submarine tracking device has been dredged up from the seabed by a Norwegian trawler in the Greenland Sea southwest of Spitsbergen Island, Jane's Defense Weekly reported.

The magazine said Tuesday the device, two metal tanks packed with electronic gear, appears to be part of a Soviet underwater surveillance system designed to keep track of the movements of Western submarines through the strategically important waters north of Scandinavia.

Jane's, whose military yearbooks are considered authoritative by the defense establishment, said the device was believed to be part of a network based in the Barents Sea to protect Soviet nuclear missile-carrying submarines in the area.

Activists steal mice from lab

LONDON (AP) — Animal rights activists have stolen 150 infected mice from a hospital laboratory, and a hospital official warned they could spread disease.

A caller to Press Association, Britain's domestic news agency, said the Animal Liberation Front claimed responsibility for the robbery. The caller said the Tuesday break-in at the Public Health Laboratory of St. George's Hospital in south London was the start of a campaign to highlight the hospital's "extremely cruel" experiments on animals.

Hospital administrator Robert Royce appealed for the return of the mice, which were part of a research project, and warned that they could spread disease if they bit anyone.

Hunter kills zoo leopards

PEKING (AP) — A northwest China zoo conspired with a hunter to illegally trap 12 snow leopards and killed two of the almost-extinct beasts through negligence, a newspaper said today.

The Peasant Daily said game wardens fined the People's Zoo in the Qinghai provincial capital of Xining $9,520 and hunter Chen Tai'he was fined $4,555 for violating regulations protecting the animals.

The newspaper did not say whether the remaining 10 snow leopards were freed.

Zoologists regard snow leopards as almost mythical creatures. The off-white, spotted predators have been rarely seen and are said to roam the mountainous wilds of Qinghai, Tibet, Gansu, Sichuan and the Xinjiang Autonomous Region in western China.

Lion escapes from zoo

TOKYO (AP) — About 500 children and their parents were evacuated from a children's zoo in Okinawa today after a lioness escaped from its cage, and police then shot and killed the animal, police said.

No one was hurt during the 90 minutes that the 6-foot, 220-pound female lion eluded police at Okinawa Children's Land in Naha, Okinawa, Japan's southernmost state, 1,000 miles southwest of Tokyo, police said.

The lion escaped when a zoo janitor left its cage door unlocked, police said.

Within an hour after noticing the animal was missing, police directed people safely from the zoo and alerted residents near the park.

Fire in mine kills 11 miners

TOKYO (AP) — A fire broke out in Japan's oldest working coal mine on a small island off the west coast Wednesday, killing 11 miners and injuring five, police said.

Nagasaki state police said the fire broke out at 9:35 a.m. at the Mitsubishi Coal Mining Co. on Takashima, a small island about seven miles southwest of Nagasaki City.

Officials for the mining company said an alarm was sounded and most of the 478 miners inside the mine at the time of the blaze escaped safely.

Police said the fire was extinguished soon after it started, but the mine shaft was blocked by heavy smoke.

'Country lawyer' spent life protecting Constitution

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The death of former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the "country lawyer" who presided over the Watergate hearings that led to the resignation of a president, has cost the nation a "towering historical figure" who championed the Constitution.

Ervin, 88, died of respiratory failure Tuesday at North Carolina Baptist Hospital's Bowman Gray Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Roger Rollman. Kidney failure contributed to his death, Rollman said.

A critic of the civil rights movement and a supporter of individual civil liberties during his 20 years in the Senate, Ervin was hailed by former Gov. Jim Hunt as a man who "loved the Constitution more than any man alive today."

"He protected it during its time of greatest crisis and helped write history for our state and nation," Hunt said. "He will truly be recorded as a towering historical figure and all North Carolina will forever be proud of him."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who called Ervin his mentor, adviser on constitutional matters and friend, said, "A giant has fallen...I've never known a more remarkable American than Sam Ervin."

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over trials involving the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in 1972 and the subsequent White House coverup, said: "I was very fond of him and admired his patriotism, his dedication to his work and above all, his courage."

NATION

Ervin's strict interpretation of the Constitution defied easy political classification. He sided with liberals and conservatives in becoming one of the chamber's most respected authorities on Constitutional law.

Ervin battled affirmative action proposals, the Equal Rights Amendment, surveillance of dissenters during the Vietnam War and efforts to return prayer to public schools.

For him, it was all the same battle — preserving the Constitution.

Ervin's independence made him a natural choice when Senate leaders sought a chairman for the sensitive and potentially explosive hearings on Watergate in the summer of 1973.To Ervin, the scandal that led to the resignation of President Richard Nixon was the nation's biggest tragedy since the Civil War.

"In the Civil War, there were many redeeming features of sacrifice and valor displayed on both sides," he said. "But there was no sacrifice or spirit of sacrifice, or no valor, really, displayed on the part of those responsible for the Watergate hearings, except to sacrifice their character." However, he added, "We do have this encouragement. We were able to weather the Watergate affair with all our essential institutions of government intact."

During the Watergate hearings, "Senator Sam" T-shirts and buttons sprouted across the nation. But Ervin, his bushy eyebrows telegraphing moral indignation and blue-gray eyes twinkling at the onset of a joke, insisted he was "just an old country lawyer."

Ervin was born Sept. 27, 1896, in the foothills town of Morganton, one of 10 children.

His father, Samuel J. Ervin Sr., was a self-taught lawyer who "hated the oppression of government, and I guess instilled in me the idea that, after all, the greatest threat to our liberties comes from government, not from others."

Ervin said he tried to heed Shakespeare when confronted with a choice between his own conscience and politics: "To thine own self be true, and then it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

'Senator Sam' had 'such thirst for the law'

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — In his final years, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. amazed colleagues half his age with energetic legal research, witty books and articles, lengthy interviews and letters to politicians — all inspired by the Constitution.

"He had such a quest or thirst for the law, for perfection in legal principles, that he couldn't wait to finish his breakfast so he could get to his library," said Robert B. Byrd, a Morganton lawyer whose firm hired the late senator several times in the past few years to help on constitutional cases. "He stayed busy all day long."

Ervin died Tuesday of respiratory failure at the age of 88.

Up until about a year ago, when arthritis forced him to spend most of his time at his modest brick house in this town of 14,000 people in the Blue Ridge foothills, Ervin drove his old blue Oldsmobile to his law office every day.

"He parked it in the same place, same time every day — you could set your clock by it," Byrd said. "He worked through lunch, talked on the telephone, had interviews, did research on the Constitution."

Last year, Ervin worked tirelessly on his third book: "Preserving the Constitution: The Autobiography of Sen. Sam Ervin." He wrote to President Reagan deploring what he said was the adminstration's efforts to mix religion and government. He wrote numerous letters to newspapers on constitutional matters, along with a column on growing old.

"He said that so long as a man has his mind and intellect, the aging process will never bother you," Byrd said, adding Ervin read for recreation. "He'd read every piece of law he could get his hands on. He'd get the briefs from the Supreme Court and read constantly, as if he were working on a case."

During a long interview at his book-crammed house last summer, Ervin walked with a cane and appeared gaunt. But the eyes under the bouncing eyebrows showed the same flashes of indignation and twinkles of merriment as during the Watergate hearings.

He pounded his desk when he said that Reagan's "efforts to exploit religion for political purposes" were the gravest threat to the Constitution today. "There have always been people in society who wanted to regulate other people's beliefs," he said.

But minutes later, he smiled wryly as he recalled fighting a proposed constitutional amendment permitting school prayer in 1966.

"I prayed that that it would go way off somewhere and never come back to bother the Senate," he said. "Well, the Bible says that the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much...My prayer was not answered...I knew I prayed fervently...so I decided I wasn't righteous."

Reporters often called Ervin for his views on legislative matters involving the Constitution, and politicians from both parties invoked the name of the lifelong Democrat.

Ervin provided Byrd's firm with research for defendants ranging from a man charged with liquor law violations to a company being sued for pollution, but they all involved the Constitution.

"He had a God-given talent — the best I ever saw — to analyze a legal matter," Byrd said. "In a few minutes he could tell me what the real issues were — what the pinballs were. He could quote cases from 30 years ago. It was unreal."

Common Cause: Administration 'radically' changing ethics rules

WASHINGTON (AP) — Common Cause said today the Reagan administration made a "dangerous and radical change" in ethics rules for federal employees by deciding that appearances of conflict of interest are not violations.

The self-styled citizens' lobby told Congress that the January ruling of the Office of Government Ethics, in the case of Attorney General Edwin Meese, attempted to write "a totally new definition of the standards of conduct."

David H. Martin, director of the ethics office, ruled that Meese violated no ethics rules even though federal jobs given to his financial benefactors created an "appearance problem."

He concluded it was necessary to "look behind the appearance to determine if there was any substance to the appearance" — and found none in Meese's case.

In testimony prepared for a Senate Governmental Affairs subcommittee, Common Cause senior vice president Ann McBride said that agencies throughout the government have punished employees for creating the appearance of conflict — even when there was no evidence that their decision-making was affected.

She noted that federal regulations, guided by a 20-year-old presidential order, require officials to "avoid any action...which might result in, or create the appearance of" conflict.

Today, Martin was repeating his January interpretation to the Governmental Affairs panel. He said the "appearance" language merely requires officials "to make every effort to avoid...the public perception that the...employee had abused" ethics rules.

Supporters push for resolution honoring 'victims of genocide'

WASHINGTON (AP) — Supporters of a controversial congressional resolution paying homage to 1.5 million Armenian "victims of genocide" say they will push for passage of the measure despite opposition from Turkey and the Reagan administration.

A similar measure passed the House last year, but was defeated in the Senate, and the resolution faces an uncertain future this time around.

The Reagan administration and the Turkish government have waged a "potent lobbying" campaign against the measure, Stephen Serkaian, special assistant to Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., said Tuesday.

Reagan and Sukru Elekdag, Turkey's ambassador to the United States, fear the measure could encourage Armenian terrorists to carry out future attacks against Turks and Turkish-Americans.

Levin, the resolution's principal Senate backer, scheduled a speech on the Senate floor today about the World War I-era Armenian massacres, Serkaian said.

Armenian terrorists, vowing to avenge the deaths of Armenians at the hands of Ottoman Turks 70 years ago, have claimed responsibility for dozens of shootings and bombings around the world in the past decade.

But Rep. Tony Coelho, D-Calif., the resolution's chief House sponsor, said the measure "wouldn't have a ripple of impact on them (the Turks)."

Nancy Reagan convenes 'first ladies' summit

By SUSANNE M. SCHAFER

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nancy Reagan, convening a "first ladies' summit" on drug abuse today, is welcoming women from several countries that are under attack in Congress for flooding the United States with illegal drugs.

The women have come from all corners of the globe, ranging from Japan to the tiny island of Mauritius. They are all mothers, some of them professional women and all of them interested in learning more about how to fight drug abuse, according to James Rosebush, Mrs. Reagan's chief of staff.

Mrs. Reagan was to open the conference in the East Room of the White House, after greeting her 17 guests at the door and posing for photos with each of them. And President Reagan was to drop by for the first such "summit" ever held in the White House.

Although White House officials say the women will not deal with policy questions in their two days of discussions, they represent nations that have had differences with the United States over stemming the international drug trade.

Bolivia, Jamaica, Pakistan and Mexico — which were all expected to send representatives — have been targets of criticism from both Democratic and Republican members of Congress for failing to take enough steps to cut the flow and production of illicit narcotics.

Two chief critics are Sen. Paula Hawkins, R-Fla., and Rep. Charles Rangel, D-N.Y., who fought to pass legislation saying that Reagan must cut off foreign aid to countries that he finds have not made adequate progress in reducing narcotic-producing crops.

Bolivia is the specific target of another such bill sponsored by Mrs. Hawkins, while Rangel — chairman of the House Select Committee on Narcotics — has called for sanctions against Pakistan, Thailand, Peru and Mexico.

Colombia, which is sending a first lady to the conference, received praise in a recent State Department report for eradicating one-third of its huge marijuana crop and for extraditing drug traffickers to the United States.

Colombia still supplies more than half the imported marijuana consumed in the United States. It is the third largest producer of coca and is the largest manufacturer of refined cocaine, the report noted.

In an interview, Mrs. Hawkins praised Mrs. Reagan's effort to bring the women together, saying they can be "very influential" in their own countries. But she said she intends to "keep up the pressure" against nations who do not cut their drug exports.

Jack Cusak, Rangel's chief of staff on the narcotics committee, said the congressman "has a lot of respect" for Mrs. Reagan's work, "but we need the first man, as well as the first lady." Cusak said Rangel has been critical of Reagan administration cuts in funds for federal drug abuse and treatment programs, which slashed the 1981 spending of $404 million down to $252 million in 1984.

Sen. Joseph Biden, D-Del., the ranking minority member of the Judiciary Committee, said "anything the administration does — including Mrs. Reagan's efforts — to highlight the depth and severity of the problem in its international aspects is useful."

"But the real test will come in the remainder of this year on how strongly the administration (commits itself) to the establishment of a drug czar and a true coordination of our drug enforcement policies," Biden said.

Robert Feldkamp, public affairs officer for the Drug Enforcement Agency, said U.S. government agents have increased their seizures of heroin, marijuana and cocaine and made more arrests and gotten more convictions in drug cases during the past four years.

"Nearly all the drugs consumed in the United States come from someplace else," said Feldkamp. "We think Mrs. Reagan's conference will be beneficial."

'Country lawyer' spent life protecting Constitution

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP) — The death of former U.S. Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr., the "country lawyer" who presided over the Watergate hearings that led to the resignation of a president, has cost the nation a "towering historical figure" who championed the Constitution.

Ervin, 88, died of respiratory failure Tuesday at North Carolina Baptist Hospital's Bowman Gray Medical Center, said hospital spokesman Roger Rollman. Kidney failure contributed to his death, Rollman said.

A critic of the civil rights movement and a supporter of individual civil liberties during his 20 years in the Senate, Ervin was hailed by former Gov. Jim Hunt as a man who "loved the Constitution more than any man alive today."

"He protected it during its time of greatest crisis and helped write history for our state and nation," Hunt said. "He will truly be recorded as a towering historical figure and all North Carolina will forever be proud of him."

Sen. Jesse Helms, R-N.C., who called Ervin his mentor, adviser on constitutional matters and friend, said, "A giant has fallen...I've never known a more remarkable American than Sam Ervin."

U.S. District Court Judge John J. Sirica, who presided over trials involving the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in 1972 and the subsequent White House coverup, said: "I was very fond of him and admired his patriotism, his dedication to his work and above all, his courage."

NATION

Ervin's strict interpretation of the Constitution defied easy political classification. He sided with liberals and conservatives in becoming one of the chamber's most respected authorities on Constitutional law.

Ervin battled affirmative action proposals, the Equal Rights Amendment, surveillance of dissenters during the Vietnam War and efforts to return prayer to public schools.

For him, it was all the same battle — preserving the Constitution.

Ervin's independence made him a natural choice when Senate leaders sought a chairman for the sensitive and potentially explosive hearings on Watergate in the summer of 1973.To Ervin, the scandal that led to the resignation of President Richard Nixon was the nation's biggest tragedy since the Civil War.

"In the Civil War, there were many redeeming features of sacrifice and valor displayed on both sides," he said. "But there was no sacrifice or spirit of sacrifice, or no valor, really, displayed on the part of those responsible for the Watergate hearings, except to sacrifice their character." However, he added, "We do have this encouragement. We were able to weather the Watergate affair with all our essential institutions of government intact."

During the Watergate hearings, "Senator Sam" T-shirts and buttons sprouted across the nation. But Ervin, his bushy eyebrows telegraphing moral indignation and blue-gray eyes twinkling at the onset of a joke, insisted he was "just an old country lawyer."

Ervin was born Sept. 27, 1896, in the foothills town of Morganton, one of 10 children.

His father, Samuel J. Ervin Sr., was a self-taught lawyer who "hated the oppression of government, and I guess instilled in me the idea that, after all, the greatest threat to our liberties comes from government, not from others."

Ervin said he tried to heed Shakespeare when confronted with a choice between his own conscience and politics: "To thine own self be true, and then it must follow as the night the day, thou canst not then be false to any man."

'Senator Sam' had 'such thirst for the law'

MORGANTON, N.C. (AP) — In his final years, former Sen. Sam J. Ervin Jr. amazed colleagues half his age with energetic legal research, witty books and articles, lengthy interviews and letters to politicians — all inspired by the Constitution.

"He had such a quest or thirst for the law, for perfection in legal principles, that he couldn't wait to finish his breakfast so he could get to his library," said Robert B. Byrd, a Morganton lawyer whose firm hired the late senator several times in the past few years to help on constitutional cases. "He stayed busy all day long."

Ervin died Tuesday of respiratory failure at the age of 88.

Up until about a year ago, when arthritis forced him to spend most of his time at his modest brick house in this town of 14,000 people in the Blue Ridge foothills, Ervin drove his old blue Oldsmobile to his law office every day.

"He parked it in the same place, same time every day — you could set your clock by it," Byrd said. "He worked through lunch, talked on the telephone, had interviews, did research on the Constitution."

Last year, Ervin worked tirelessly on his third book: "Preserving the Constitution: The Autobiography of Sen. Sam Ervin." He wrote to President Reagan deploring what he said was the adminstration's efforts to mix religion and government. He wrote numerous letters to newspapers on constitutional matters, along with a column on growing old.

"He said that so long as a man has his mind and intellect, the aging process will never bother you," Byrd said, adding Ervin read for recreation. "He'd read every piece of law he could get his hands on. He'd get the briefs from the Supreme Court and read constantly, as if he were working on a case."

During a long interview at his book-crammed house last summer, Ervin walked with a cane and appeared gaunt. But the eyes under the bouncing eyebrows showed the same flashes of indignation and twinkles of merriment as during the Watergate hearings.

He pounded his desk when he said that Reagan's"efforts to exploit religion for political purposes" were the gravest threat to the Constitution today. "There have always been people in society who wanted to regulate other people's beliefs," he said.

But minutes later, he smiled wryly as he recalled fighting a proposed constitutional amendment permitting school prayer in 1966.

"I prayed that that it would go way off somewhere and never come back to bother the Senate," he said. "Well, the Bible says that the fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much...My prayer was not answered...I knew I prayed fervently...so I decided I wasn't righteous."

Reporters often called Ervin for his views on legislative matters involving the Constitution, and politicians from both parties invoked the name of the lifelong Democrat.

Ervin provided Byrd's firm with research for defendants ranging from a man charged with liquor law violations to a company being sued for pollution, but they all involved the Constitution.

"He had a God-given talent — the best I ever saw — to analyze a legal matter," Byrd said. "In a few minutes he could tell me what the real issues were — what the pinballs were. He could quote cases from 30 years ago. It was unreal."

Officials seek way to scrap cemetery visit, paper reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House officials are seeking a way to scrap President Reagan's planned visit to a German military cemetery, according to reports.

A private message was sent to West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl from the White House urging Kohl to seek an alternative to the May 5 Bitburg cemetery visit, The New York Times reported in today's editions.

The planned visit has drawn widespread criticism, particularly from American Jewish leaders and veterans groups.

The Times, citing unidentified White House officials, said the message, sent during the weekend, was signed either by National Security Adviser Robert C. McFarlane or one of McFarlane's aides. Reagan was "irritated" about the letter, it said.

The Washington Post quoted top Republican political strategists as saying there is strong consensus among them that Reagan should abandon plans to lay a wreath at Bitburg during his German visit.

Von Bulow shows emotion on tour of mansion he shared with wife

NEWPORT, R.I. (AP) — Claus von Bulow's stoical facade faltered as he returned with 15 jurors to Clarendon Court, the Millionaires' Row mansion where the state says he tried to murder his wife with insulin injections.

Von Bulow joined an entourage of judge, jury, attorneys, prosecutors and sheriffs Tuesday for a 45-minute tour of the turn-of-the-century waterfront estate where Claus and Martha "Sunny" von Bulow spent summers and holidays.

Television cameras perched atop cherry pickers and ladders overlooking an ivy-covered wall caught von Bulow apparently fighting back tears and wiping his eyes with a handkerchief after greeting four frisky golden retrievers he used to take for walks.

Von Bulow's show of emotion was in stark contrast to his emotionless courtroom demeanor and his casual out-of-court chats with reporters.

Defense attorney Peter A. DiBiasi said it was von Bulow's first visit to Clarendon Court since state police questioned him there in 1981, prior to his indictment on two attempted-murder counts.

Superior Court Judge Corinne P. Grande told the 11-woman, four-man jury the visit would help them visualize testimony in the case. She said she would hear several motions today when court resumes in Providence.

Battling bear may meet match in Bozeman body

BOZEMAN, Mont. (AP) — Victor, a 600-pound bear who according to his trainer has whipped as many as 50,000 humans in the wrestling ring, may meet his match if he takes on the Bozeman City Commission.

The barnstorming bruin had a date at the Sundance Saloon to try to put the old hammerlock on a few homo sapiens, but the match between man and beast was opposed by commissioners who called such skirmishes "repugnant," "cruel" and "uncivilized."

Those turned out to be fighting words for Bob Moudree, the owner of the Sundance Saloon, who says if bears can't wrestle in his bar then he'll try to use the ballot to send the cantankerous commissioners into political hibernation.

Push never came to shove between Victor and the commissioners, however, because the bear never showed up at the Sundance Saloon Monday night. It's not that he turned chicken, it's just that his trainer's truck broke down in Miles City 285 miles away.

It's not clear when the battling bear will pop into Bozeman to take on all comers, since his dance card is booked solid for the next month, but when and if he does show his snout, he may find the City Commission loaded for bear.

The commissioners may not have been able to take any action even if Victor had shown up Monday since there is no existing ordinance.

Geographers can't find way around Detroit center

DETROIT (AP) — They might know their way around a globe, but scholars attending the 81st annual Association of American Geographers conference are getting lost in droves inside Detroit's gleaming Renaissance Center.

"We're geographers, and even we can't find our way around in here," said Robert Frenkel of Oregon State University.

"It's difficult to find the front from the back because of its circular design," said Geoffery Wall, a professor from the University of Waterloo in Ontario. "There seems to be lots of wasted space, which I know is an architect's delight."

Ted Goudge, a specialist in sports geography from Southwest Texas State University, arrived early because he wanted to take in a baseball game Sunday at Tiger Stadium.

"I was so embarrassed," Goudge explained. "I came in early. A friend of mine came two days later and we got lost. I thought I'd be able to show him where all the good bars were, but I couldn't."

Police charged with assault

NEW YORK (AP) — Two officers accused of using an electric "stun gun " to torture a man suspected of selling $10 worth of marijuana were released without bail after they were arraigned on felony assault charges.

At Tuesday's hearing, the officers, Sgt. Richard A. Pike, 50, and officer Jeffrey W. Gilbert, 33, were granted a preliminary hearing.

After two other men arrested on similar charges accused officers of burning them with the device, Police Commissioner Benjamin Ward said investigators would question all 60 officers involved in a drug crackdown at the precinct where the officers were assigned.

Accused rapist cautious

CHICAGO (AP) — Gary Dotson, who has spent six years in prison for a rape his accuser now says never happened, is in a cautious mood as Gov. Jim Thompson prepares to hold a clemency hearing in the case, his lawyer says.

The hearing before the Illinois Prison Review Board will be held May 9 in Chicago, Thompson said Tuesday.

Dotson, sentenced to 25 to 50 years in prison after his 1979 conviction on rape and aggravated kidnapping charges brought in the case of Cathleen Crowell Webb, "was seriously disappointed by (court) proceedings on three separate occasions and caution is the closest thing to optimism he can achieve," Dotson's attorney, Warren Lupel, said.

Mafia boss' sons indicted

NEW YORK (AP) — Three sons of the late Mafia boss Joseph Colombo and 22 others indicted on charges including murder, rape and torture, are "legbreakers, thugs and punks," a federal official said.

Anthony Columbo, 40, and his brothers, Joseph Jr., 38, and Vincent, 34, and the others were accused Monday of participating in a crew that committed crimes including the beating death of a 71-year-old man during a robbery.

Referring to reports of the "so-called new Mafia that engages in white collar crime," Edward McDonald, head of the federal Organized Crime Strike Force, said, "Make no mistake about it, the old Mafia still exists."

IDEAS IN DECORATING
"THERE'S GOLD IN THAT OLD SOFA."

If your old sofa looks as though it's on its last legs, don't be too quick to bundle it out of the house. Resourceful home-owners are discovering that many old pieces have a value you can't buy today. And they are restoring them through reupholstery. The economics of reupholstery works for them, too. For dollars and cents it can be one of today's best buys.

THE VALUE IS IN THE FRAME. If your old sofa (or chair) has a good frame, it's well worth reupholstering. A frame is the essential element in the structure, and if it's solid there's no point going out and buying a new one. So, what's a good frame? One that's made of hardwood—Oak, or maple, for example. Hardwood is strong and has longevity. A clue is its weight: Hardwood is heavy. That's why furniture salespeople will often lift up one end of a sofa when showing it to a customer. They are demonstrating the frame's weight. And the frame is what your upholsterer can check out.

THE ART OF REUPHOLSTERY. Building on your old frame (where you save big dollars), the upholsterer re-ties the springs, puts in new webbing, all new padding and filling, and totally re-creates the sofa. This is all hand-work involving a high order of skills. What you get back is a piece of furniture in the class of a custom-made.

THE FABRIC ADVANTAGE. A significant advantage in reupholstering is fabric selection. You choose from a practically panoramic range of colors and textures. So you can find just about any fabric, at any price, to fit any decor.

All of the above advantages, are available at Hines Wood Upholstery Co. They have served the upholstery needs of the Permian Basin for the past 34 years. Come by 1105 N. Midkiff or Call 694-8891 for more information on solving your furniture problems.

Republicans protest resolution of congressional race

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Republicans, apparently having lost a lengthy battle over Indiana's 8th District congressional election, vowed "massive retaliation" against the "rottenness" used by Democrats to win the seat.

"The House Democrats' perfidy in the election contest in Indiana's 8th District is the worst display of partisan rottenness I have ever seen, or ever heard of, in 22 years of elected public service," said Rep. Bill Frenzel, R-Minn.

"Nothing else even comes close," Frenzel asserted as the House Administration Committee voted 12-0 — with all seven Republicans walking out in protest — to recommend that the House seat Democratic incumbent Frank McCloskey over Republican challenger Richard McIntyre.

Prior to the vote, Republicans committee members failed on a straight party-line vote in an effort to have the seat declared vacant so Indiana's Republican Gov. Robert Orr could call a special election to fill it.

"There is no question in my mind that most Democrats would probably in their hearts have preferred the task force to report McIntyre the winner," said Rep. Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash. But, he added, "If your suggestion is that because one side feels strongly, the other side should violate their conscience...I can't agree with that notion."

The full Democrat-controlled House is expected to vote on seating McCloskey early next week. Republicans have threatened a new fight if he is seated.

"I think you can assume massive retaliation," Rep. Robert Walker, R-Pa., said following the session.

Republicans had kept the House in all-night session early Tuesday as they vented their anger over the recount's reversal of earlier victories by McIntyre. They have mentioned various delaying and harassment tactics under consideration, as well as the possibility of introducing a resolution of censure or expulsion against Rep. Leon Panetta, D-Calif., the chairman of the task force that investigated the election.

The Republicans renewed their late-night complaining about the decision Tuesday night, using two hours after the regular House session finished to criticize the recount.

The session finally ended at 12:06 a.m. today, or more than 33 hours after the House convened at 3 p.m. Monday.

That, said Rep. Robert Dornan, R-Calif., "makes this the longest House session in 197 years."

The main bone of contention is what votes should have been counted in the recount ordered by the House Administration Committee task force, appointed after the House refused to seat either McCloskey or McIntyre.

The seat has been vacant since the Indiana secretary of state declared McIntyre a 34-vote winner of the Nov. 6 election. A state-ordered recount put him ahead by 418 votes.

But Democrats claimed inconsistent counting rules were used in the 8th District's 15 south-central Indiana counties, disenfranchising some voters.

The task force decided to re-tally all of the more than 234,000 ballots cast in the election. When it was finished, McCloskey won by four votes.

The Republican member of the task force, Rep. William Thomas of California, fought a losing battle to throw out ballots that lacked any precinct clerks' initials or precinct numbers, as required by Indiana law.

But Panetta, along with Democrat Willam Clay of Missouri, claimed that in the absence of allegations of fraud, the voter's intent was paramount and the maximum number of votes should be counted. So those ballots were counted.

When the General Accounting Office auditors ended their tally, McCloskey was ahead by 3 votes. Then the task force began a series of votes on dozens of disputed ballots in which the two Democratic members repeatedly out-voted Thomas.

The most heated debate was over whether to count absentee ballots that lacked required signatures from either voters or witnesses.

In some counties, election officials improperly sent those ballots on to the precincts, where they were mixed in with other ballots and counted on election night.

Miami official: States dumping Cuban ex-cons

MIAMI (AP) — The rape conviction here of a Cuban immigrant recently released from a New Jersey jail has led to charges that other states are "dumping" their Spanish-speaking ex-cons in Dade County.

Sergio Leon, a Mariel refugee, was convicted last week and sentenced to prison in the rape of a 5-year-old boy.

Dade County officials say at least two other states, Tennessee and Texas, have also deported unwanted Cuban refugees to Miami, and the county manager wants Gov. Bob Graham to take action.

Two Mariel refugees arrested for loitering in Miami in the past year had been released from jails in those two states, said Robert Bernal, an assistant county administrator.

Prompted by the publicity surrounding the Leon rape case, County Manager Merrett Stierheim mailed an official complaint to Graham last week.

"These are interstate deportations," said Bernal. "We call them dumpings."

Syd McKenzie, Graham's chief counsel, said Monday that the governor's office will "carefully look into the facts."

In the most publicized case, Leon was released from jail in New Jersey in February 1984. Bernal said New Jersey officials escorted Leon to the Dade County-operated Cuban-Haitian Intake Center, which specializes in the care and resettlement of troubled Cubans and Haitians.

The Intake Center arranged for him to be placed in a halfway house, and several months later he was arrested for raping a boy who lived nearby.

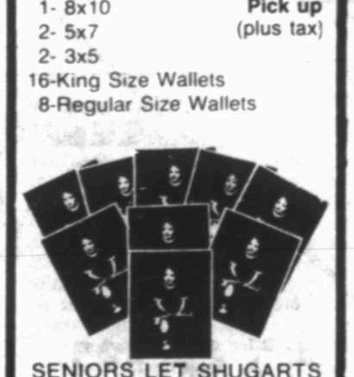

In his letter to Graham, Stierheim also mentioned the cases of Osvaldo Brunet Ramos and Diego Perez Ramirez.

Lawyer talk

Cowboy philosopher Will Rogers had something to say about nearly everything. Nowhere did his pointed humor strike more candidly, though, than when he spoke of lawyers.

Said Will: "The minute you read something you can't understand, you can almost be sure it was drawn up by a lawyer."

Most non-lawyers, many of whom have fought their way through the legalistic jungle that confuses even simple and ordinary documents such as marriage licenses and divorce pleadings, probably will breathe a sigh of relief to know there's someone out there who also believes much of the legalistic jargon being used today is useless and serves no useful purpose other than to encumber everyday life.

Her name is Terri LeClercq and she has embarked on a mission of vital interest to most non-lawyers — reducing the amount of legalese in wills, divorces and real estate transactions, three of the ordinary classes of documents that almost everyone is likely to come into contact with at some time in their lives.

"In law school, students enter speaking English. By the end of the first semester, they are speaking lawyerese. They pick up a lot of it through osmosis," says Ms. LeClercq, who teaches legal writing at the University of Texas Law School.

"It's our job in the law school to convince the students that clear, concise language will get the message across more effectively than jargon."

We commend her cause and hope she will be able to convince lawyers that they are really cluttering up the world with a bunch of non-essential and confusing legal mumble-jumble.

Getty getting more

The Getty Museum continues to strip Europe of its art treasures, much to the consternation of other collectors for private and public institutions.

Its latest purchase is the "Adoration of the Magi," a painting of the Madonna and Child, done by Italian Renaissance artist Andrea Mantegna around 1500. The purchase price was $10.5 million — a world record amount for a painting bought at auction.

Other institutions are upset. One by one, the world's masterpieces are going into the Getty Museum, which is located in Malibu, Calif. This is good for Californians, who can readily visit the collection, but tough on the rest of the world's art lovers.

When Getty died in 1978, he left a fortune in trust for the museum, a sum which now amounts to about $2.3 billion. And in order to keep its status as a charity, the museum must spend about 75 percent of its income, or about $120 million a year. Thus Getty buyers are on the scene, checkbooks in hand, when art treasures are sold.

It is said that Getty often ate by candlelight to save on electricity. He made his millions in oil and gave little or none to his family.

He often said he was "born to acquire — an honest vice." He still will go on acquiring, it seems, for many years to come.

Another View:

Berkeley's protests

Until 20 years ago, 16 states in the United States maintained laws that prohibited interracial sex and marriage. This embarrassment probably isn't known by many of the anti-apartheid demonstrators at UC Berkeley who, ostensibly, are agitating the university to sell off $1.7 billion in investments in companies that do business with South Africa.

Berkeley students sincere in their commitment to racial justice in South Africa — and not merely using the current demonstrations as a way to recreate the protest years of the 1960s — should ponder the history of racial progress in this country before trying to undo wrongs elsewhere.

Black Americans have made great political, social and economic progress — largely through non-violent means — since the Civil War. Yet equal opportunity and an end to poverty for many are still goals, not realities.

The road to racial justice in South Africa can only be more difficult because the country's ruling whites, unlike white Americans, are a minority. That is no excuse for the Pretoria regime's insistence on barbaric laws. However, the challenge for all committed to the continued political and economic improvement of black South Africans should be to encourage non-violent progress so long as there is movement in that direction, not promote violence.

Forcing U.S. companies to divest from South Africa can only strengthen the resistance to reform by the country's ruling whites and hamper efforts by U.S. corporations to improve the lives of black South Africans. (Disinvestment by the University of California also might be a legal violation of the university's fiduciary responsibilities.)

At least one small but welcome step in the direction of peaceful progress was the decision by the South African government to repeal its apartheid laws against miscegenation. This will be some relief to those South Africans caught by love or marriage between the racial boundaries even if it won't provide political rights for the majority.

In yet another action, South Africa completed the withdrawal from Angola of troops which have occupied that country for 10 years. While Pretoria continues to resist the United Nations, the United States and Western powers with efforts to set up puppet government in neighboring Namibia, the Reagan administration has made it clear that it won't tolerate defiance of a U.N. resolution calling for Namibia's independence. A Pretoria-controlled ruler in former South West Africa can last no longer than did Bishop Muzorewa in what was once called Rhodesia.

If South Africa's grudging concessions are not sufficient for the impatient, the alternatives of bloodshed, anarchy and chaos can't be preferable. As Secretary Shultz noted, "We must not stand by and throw American matches on the emotional tinder of the region."

Views on aid to the 'contras'

OSHA chief's holdings risky

WASHINGTON — Seven days before Labor Secretary Raymond Donovan was indicted on grand larceny charges last fall, he granted an unusual waiver to the man he had appointed two months earlier to head the Occupational Safety and Health Administration.

This questionable waiver allows the new OSHA chief, Robert Rowland, to take part in agency decisions that affect corporations in which he has substantial investments.

Jack Anderson

Rowland is a Texas lawyer and Reagan disciple who owns stock in a number of chemical, energy and pharmaceutical companies; all of them have a significant financial stake in OSHA rulings designed to protect workers from industrial hazards.

Rowland has placed most of his holdings in what is known as a qualified blind trust. It allows him to know which stocks he still retains ownership of, but not which new stocks his trustees decide to buy for him.

Rowland declined to discuss his holdings with our associate Donald Goldberg, but an aide said that when he was chairman of OSHA's review commission from 1981 till last July, he recused himself from matters involving companies in which he owned stock.

Donovan's memo of Sept. 26, 1984, relieves Rowland of any necessity to recuse himself now that he is in more direct control of agency decisions that could affect his investments.

Donovan wrote: "I am hereby granting you this waiver ... to engage in the following activities insofar as they may affect interests specifically named in your financial disclosure report ... the setting of policy (including enforcement policy), the making of legislative recommendations and other legislative matters, rule-making, safety and health standards and administrative matters."

The waiver does not apply to specific OSHA actions in which the companies are a direct party in contention.

According to Rowland's financial disclosure statement, he owned stock in the following companies that have an actual or potential interest in decisions made by his agency — decisions which Rowland is explicitly allowed to make by Donovan's waiver memorandum:

— Monsanto: Rowland owns at least $15,000 worth of stock in this company, which manufactures benzene and formaldehyde, both potential carcinogens. Rowland has denied a petition by the United Auto Workers seeking to temporarily limit workers' exposure to formaldehyde. Benzene standards are under review by OSHA; some manufacturers in which Rowland owns stock have opposed tougher standards for the chemical.

— Exxon: Rowland owns at least $15,000 worth of stock in the oil and gas company, which also uses benzene in its operations.

— Tenneco: He owns at least $15,000 worth of stock in this oil and gas producer. Like Exxon, Tenneco would be affected by OSHA's proposed standards on oil and gas operations. OSHA has announced that these standards will be modified because of industry objections. Tenneco also has shipyard operations that are subject to OSHA regulations.

— Johns-Manville: Rowland has another $15,000 or more in this company, which has manufactured asbestos. OSHA is in the midst of its rule-making process for asbestos, and its decisions on the risks associated with asbestos could have a major impact on lawsuits against Johns-Manville.

— Squibb and Schering-Plough: Rowland owns stock in these big pharmaceutical firms, which could be affected by OSHA's laboratory safety standards.

Rowland's appointment must still be confirmed by the Senate. The Labor Committee's top Democrat, Sen. Edward Kennedy, is planning to question Rowland and other Labor Department officials about the waiver.

ART BUCHWALD

It's only a lousy $14 million!

As everyone knows, I'm very generous when it comes to financing revolutions in Central America. So when I was asked by a White House lobbyist to help the administration's efforts to wrest $14 million out of Congress to support our Nicaraguan freedom fighters I told the man, "I not only support Mr. Reagan, but tell the president he doesn't have to go to Congress. Just charge the $14 million to my VISA credit card."

Art Buchwald

"We don't want you to put up the money," he said. "All we're asking you to do is stand behind the president in the Oval Office when he says, 'The Sandinista government is the greatest threat to mankind since the world began.'"

"I'll be there," I assured him. "But why don't you let me pick up the tab as well? It's only peanuts, and in this way the president won't have to go to Congress on his knees."

He said, "It is no longer a question of money with Mr. Reagan, but of honor. The president has put his reputation on the line over Nicaragua. If he loses the fight on this one, we will be sending a message that any government in the Western world can stomp on us."

"I'll tell you what. I'll give the money anonymously," I said. "Then when the contras overthrow the Sandinistas you can pay me back."

"It will take more than $14 million to bring down the Sandinista government."

"Then why doesn't the president ask the members on the Hill for the exact sum it will take to wipe them out?"

"Because it might cost a billion dollars before we're through, and we know Congress won't go for that."

"That is a lot of coffee beans," I admitted. "I'm curious. How did you arrive at the original $14 million figure?"

"It seemed like a nice compromise between nothing and a billion. You can't even buy a used American fighter plane for that kind of dough, and we felt Congress would consider it chicken feed. But word leaked out that once we used up the $14 million we were going back to ask them for more. If we had known how much trouble we were going to have we would have asked for the full amount. Then if we were rejected it would look as if Congress was voting against the money and not the president on his Central American policy."

"I can see where you blew it. By asking for such a meager sum you tipped them off that Mr. Reagan was making them stand up and be counted as to where they really stood on Communist subversion in Nicaragua."

"There may be something to that," he admitted. "But our main concern now is public support for the president in what he's trying to do down there."

I said, "Look, I can't give you a billion dollars because I'm thinking of buying CBS. But if the president wants 10 or 20 million for the freedom fighters until Congress sees a light at the end of the tunnel, I'll send my kid over with a check."

"It won't be necessary," the White House man said. "At the moment we just need people of your high caliber to come out for what we're doing."

"You got it," I assured him. "Who else have you lined up?"

"The Pope has come out for President Reagan's Nicaraguan policy."

"I read the Pope denied it," I said. "Who is lying?"

"Neither one. Let's just say the Pope's support got lost in the translation."

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today's highlight in history:

On April 24, 1800, Congress approved a bill establishing the Library of Congress in Washington, D.C., appropriating $5,000 "for the purchase of such books as may be necessary."

On this date:

In 1704, the first American newspaper printed on a regular basis, the Boston News Letter, was published for the first time.

In 1792, the French national anthem "La Marseillaise" was composed by Claude-Joseph Rouget de Lisle.

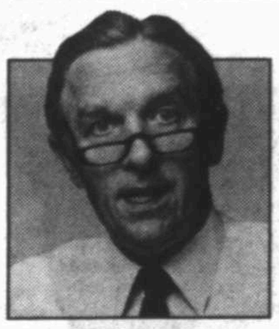

In 1877, federal troops were ordered out of New Orleans, ending the North's post-Civil War rule in the South.

Today's birthdays: Critic Stanley Kauffmann is 69. Actress Shirley MacLaine is 51. Actress Jill Ireland is 49. Actress-singer Barbra Streisand is 43.

Thought for today: "If you think education is expensive — try ignorance." — Derek Bok, president of Harvard University.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan, Crane, Gaines, Andrews, Dawson, Borden, Martin and Howard counties: Tonight...fair and not so cool. Lows upper 50s. Wind south 10 to 15 mph.

Thursday...partly cloudy and warm. Highs upper 80s. Wind south 15 to 20 mph and gusty. Lake wind advisories may be required.

Warming trend due

From Staff and Wire Reports

Warmer temperatures are expected in the Midland area through Thursday as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts fair skies tonight and a low in the upper 50s, becoming partly cloudy with a high in the upper 80s Thursday. Tonight's winds will be from the south at 10 to 15 mph increasing Thursday to 15 to 20 mph and gusty.

Tuesday's high of 77 was 18 degrees below the record set in 1965. This morning's low was 10 degrees above the 1968 record of 37.

STATE

A weak warm front which brought mostly fair conditions across the Lone Star State today was expected to keep skies sunny, with only widely scattered thundershowers in some sections.

Some low cloudiness also formed in deep South Texas and along the lower Gulf coast. The National Weather Service said the front should reach from North Central Texas to a low over Southeast Colorado by Thursday.

A high-pressure mass centered in Central Texas kept winds light across most of the state.

Temperatures cooled to the 40s and 50s across northern sections, while readings in the 60s and 70s persisted elsewhere. Extremes ranged from 42 degrees at both Amarillo and El Paso to 76 degrees at Brownsville.

Partly cloudy skies were expected in southern sections, with highs in the 80s and 90s, except upper 70s in the Panhandle. Lows tonight should range from the 50s and 60s to near 70 degrees along the Gulf coast.

NATION

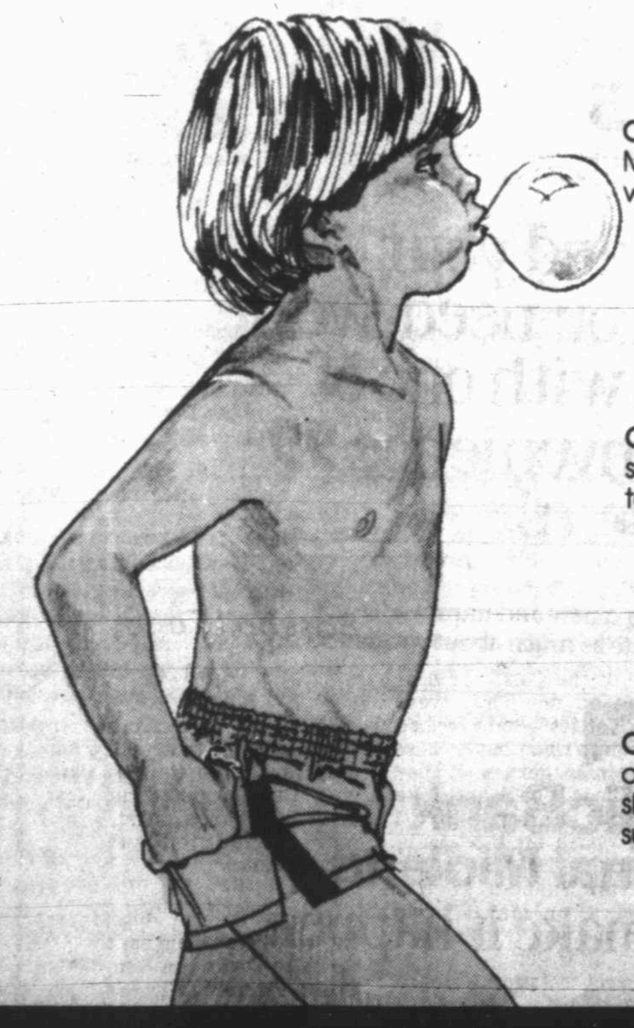

Wet and windy weather pushed through the nation's midsection today following a string of tornadoes and prompting flood watches, while snow and high winds hit mountains in the West.

Showers and thundershowers were scattered from the lower Mississippi Valley to the western Great Lakes today in the wake of tornadoes in Missouri, Texas and Louisiana on Tuesday that caused minor damage and no reported injuries.

Three to 5 inches of rain had fallen in 48 hours on northwestern Iowa, northeastern Nebraska and southeastern South Dakota. Flash flood watches were posted there and in parts of western Michigan.

Elsewhere, showers were scattered from Pennsylvania to the northern Atlantic Coast.

Heath's homer sends Angels off a winner

By TED BATTLES
Sports Editor

Using the same old Tried and True script that Horatio Alger found so productive, Midland's Angels made it three in a row with an 8-7 win over the El Paso Diablos in the final game of the Texas League home stand Tuesday night.

This time it was catcher Dave Heath drilling a solo home run to left field in the eighth inning to give Midland a 5-5 record for the stand.

The Diablos, who led 6-3 early in the game, pushed over an unearned run in the top of the eighth to tie it, but Heath, the first batter up in the eighth, got it right back with one swing off Doug Norton, 0-4.

"I was looking for a slider. That's what he threw me the last time I faced him," said Heath. "He got it up high."

ON A night when the flag hung limp and a lot of long drives stayed in the park for want of a gentle push from the prevailing winds, "There was no doubt about Dave's," said Manager Joe Maddon, "it was well tagged."

So as the Angels depart for San Antonio and the opener of a 10-game road trip tonight they are beginning to swing their weight around with authority. Tuesday's game was the fifth straight one-run game the Angels have played.

"What I like about us, even in some of the recent losses, is that we are swinging the bat well and what's more we are swinging against good pitching," Maddon beamed.

MIDLAND combed former major leaguer Tom Candiotti for nine hits in 6 1/3 innings to take a 7-6 lead on a three-run fifth in which Dan Murphy and Devon White singled and with two out Reggie Montgomery delivered a two-run double to left. Billie Merrifield then singled home Mongtomery.

In the first, Tito Nanni doubled in two runs and Montgomery knocked in the other.

Righthander Steve Finch started out like he was headed for an early shower, giving up three runs in the each of the first two innings. After that, the redhead from Phoenix faced a minimum 15 batters until Billy Joe Robidoux and Glenn Braggs singled with two out in the sixth. That's when Maddon brought in Julian Gonzalez. Finch had thrown 110 pitches. The most he'd thrown before Tuesday was 70 and he admitted he was getting tired.

"It was the best thrown game I've caught this year," said Heath, "even the first two innings. He gave up a couple of walks and hit a batter, but he was establishing himself inside. Against hitters like El Paso has, you have to do that. Even the hits they got were off good pitches. And when Steve missed, it was inside, where he had to be."

Finch, 27, is no wet-behind-the-ears babe in the woods. He has spent the last five years pitching in triple A. "I pulled a groin muscle one year and pulled the same groin muscles for six straight years. I once threw 92 mph, but I had to change my delivery. This is the first year I've pitched without my leg wrapped."

LAST WINTER, Finch went to a therapist in Phoenix, who seemed to solve his problem, so far at least.

And now he's throwing like he did as a kid. "My velocity is up, my control is better and my forkball is consistent."

He signed with the Angels in the spring and they saw enough to want to keep him, but he would have to pitch in AA ball. Finch is grateful for the opportunity.

"Once he settled down," said Heath, "He kept them in check until we could catch up."

Rebs make quick work of Odessa

By ERIC SCHURER

ODESSA—If it was a playoff tune-up that Midland Lee was looking for, it was nowhere to be found amid the wreckage of the Rebels' 16-5 win over the undernourished Odessa High Bronchos Tuesday.

Lee, now 11-2 and still one game behind District 4-5A-leading Abilene Cooper, jumped on OHS for 14 runs in the first two innings to coast to the win. Despite the lopsided margin, the playoff-bound Rebels never did seem to kick into playoff gear.

Saturday's Games

After putting the early stranglehold on the Bronchos, 3-9, Lee eased off on the pressure, scoring just two runs through the final five innings as Mike Rittenberry and reliever George Matta nailed down the victory.

"We're kind of playing down to the competition, I guess," Rebel coach Ernie Johnson said. "It's hard to play your best ball when you play a team that is down like that. But these guys haven't mentioned the word playoff once that I've heard."

IF THE Rebels aren't yet thinking playoff, they soon will be. With just the cross-town rivalry with Midland High remaining on their regualar season schedule on Saturday, the Rebels will have a week off to prepare for their likely opening-round opponent, Lubbock Monterey.

Although Tuesday's display was not quite playoff-caliber baseball, Lee showed just enough fire in the early innings to show why they're worthy of second-place in the district.

The Bronchos were down, and sinking lower as Lee rapped out nine hits and batted around in each of the first two innings serving notice that this was not to be a repeat of Saturday's 7-6 upset loss to Abilene High.

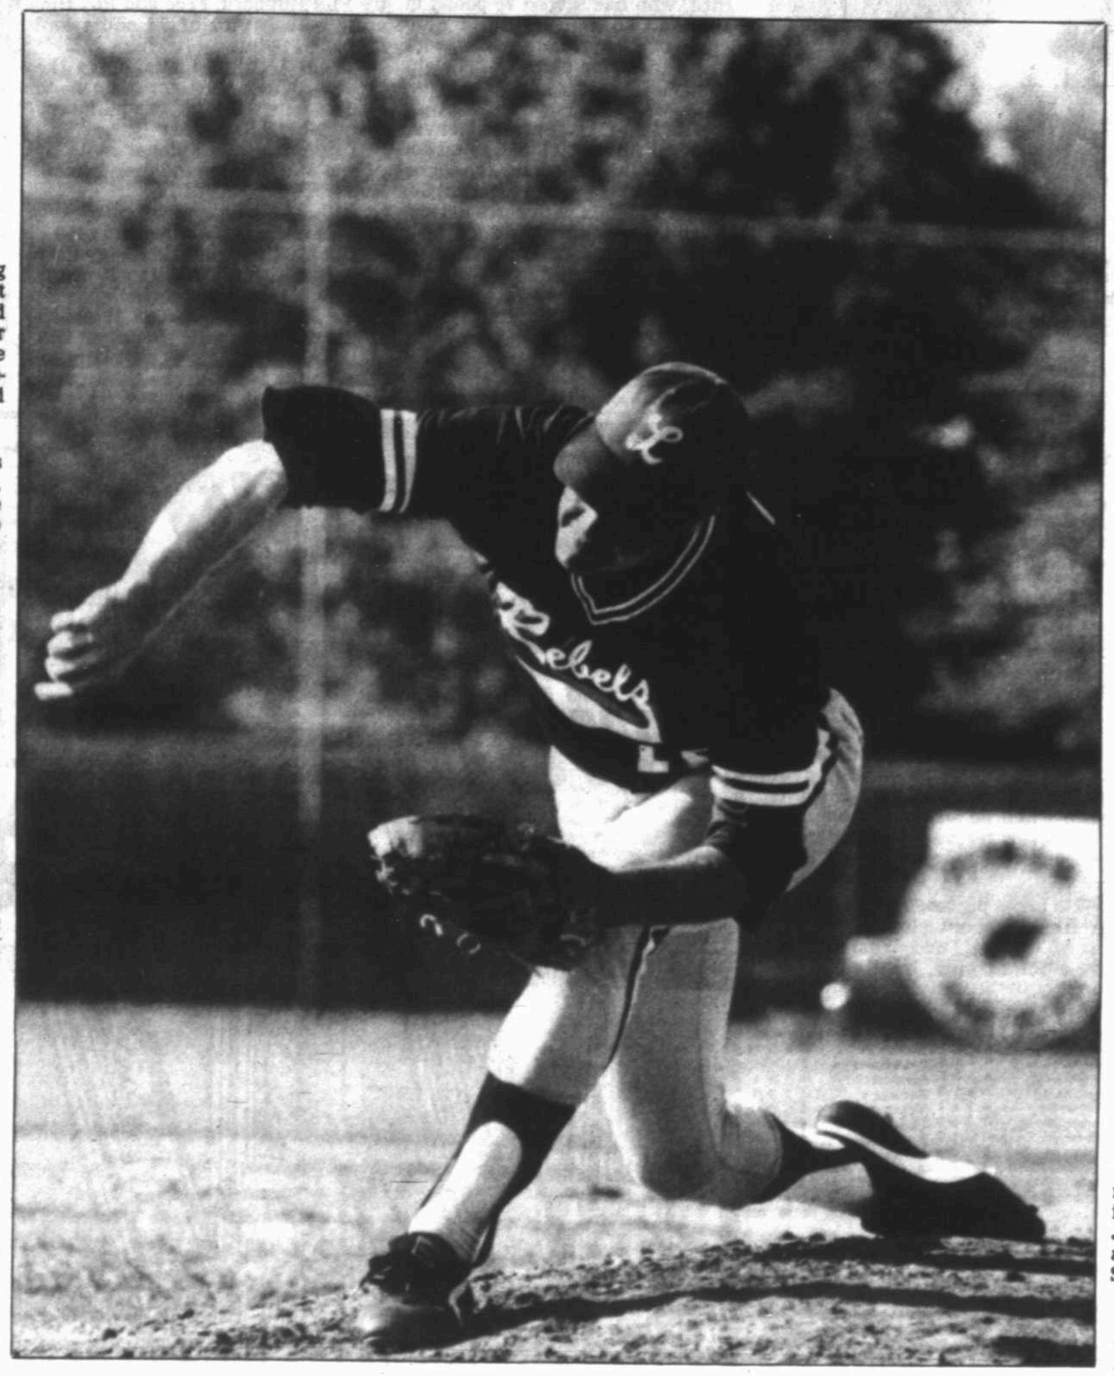

Designated hitter Greg Shaw continued his onslaught against district pitching with a 3-5 day with four RBI. Shaw came up with run-scoring hits in the first and second innings to raise his district RBI total to 20 tops in 4-5A.

Third baseman Paul Colwell added two hits and three RBI and Dirk Bergoon and Donny Rivas each added a pair of runs batted in. Catcher Jimmy Phillips added three hits to the Rebel attack.

WHILE NOT sharp on the mound, Rittenberry raised his record to 5-2, 2-1 in district play, by going the first six innings before Matta pitched the final inning. The righthander scattered seven hits, walked four OHS batters and hit two others.

"He's out there worrying about how bad he is throwing and all he has to do is realize the situation he's in and see that he's not doing that bad," Johnson said. "Those long innings stymied him and against a team like this it's hard to get up for. He's not doing that bad for the conditions he's working in."

'Dogs halt Permian with gifts

By BOB BRUNDAGE
Sports Writer

"You see what happens when you put the ball in play," has been one of Midland High coach Tim Whalen's favorite sayings all season. He said it again Tuesday when his Bulldogs scored 10 unearned runs to post a District 4-5A victory over Odessa Permian.

The Bulldog lineup didn't pick on the Permian pitching staff as much as it did on Mojo's infield defense, or lack thereof. The Panthers booted the ball six times at six different positions to help keep the Bulldog attack rolling.

The only earned runs the Bulldogs were able to score came in the first and second innings. Darren Thorpe recorded one when he led off the first with a walk, stole second and scored on Mike Stanton's single. Stanton eventually came home when Permian catcher Mike Munguia was tagged with an error to keep the inning alive.

In the bottom of the second, leading 2-1, MHS errupted for four more runs, three of which shouldn't have come in. Matt Sears tallied that lone real run with a single and went around the bases to score when Thorpe reached on a fielder's choice.

Kenny De La Garza followed by reaching on Donnie McNatt's throwing error from third which allowed Jaime Salazar to score and Thorpe and De La Garza came home on Stanton's single to left.

Two errors in the third on second baseman Hoak Bethel and shortstop Rich fletcher gave the 'Dogs three more runs and miscues by pitcher Alton Holloway and first baseman Albert Jimenez tallied three in the sixth.

Kosar opts for hometown Browns over the Vikings

By JOEY HOLLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

MIAMI — Quarterback Bernie Kosar today said he has decided to go with his hometown favorite, the Cleveland Browns, in the National Football League supplemental draft, spurning overtures from the Minnesota Vikings.

"In all probability, I'm going to finish off this semester, which ends in the next two weeks, and then make myself eligible for the supplemental draft," Kosar said.

Kosar said a major part of the decision was his "commitment to the Youngstown-Cleveland area, I wanted to go home."

Kosar left open a slight possibility that he wouldn't join either team if he has any academic problems during the University of Miami's summer session. He needs six credits in summer school to be eligible for graduation and the NFL.

NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle, in an 11 page decision released Tuesday, gave Kosar two days to make up his mind. Rozelle said Kosar, the top quarterback in Miami history, had to decide whether he wants to play for the Cleveland Browns or the Minnesota Vikings.

Rozelle upheld both the trade between Minnesota and the Houston Oilers that gave the Vikings the first crack at Kosar in next Tuesday's regular college draft, as well as Cleveland's deal with the Buffalo Bills that gave the Browns first pick in a supplemental draft if one is necessary.

Kosar has two years of college eligibility left but has said he intends to graduate this summer.

In the first case, Minnesota could draft him. In the second case, he would likely go to Cleveland, which has made it no secret it would select him if it gets the chance.

When he announced his intentions to forgo his final two years of college eligibility last month, Kosar said his first choice in the NFL was the Browns, whom he had followed since his childhood in nearby Boardman, Ohio.

The Vikings were his second choice because their quarterback coach, Marc Trestman, filled the same role when Kosar was at Miami in 1983.

The confusion began March 13 when Kosar announced that he would obtain his degree this summer and turn pro rather than return for his third season with the Hurricanes, whom he led to the national title on New Year's Day, 1984.

THAT IMMEDIATELY focused attention on Houston, which held the second pick in the draft and had the first shot at Kosar because Buffalo, which has the first pick, had already signed Virginia Tech defensive end Bruce Smith. Finally, two weeks ago, the Oilers traded their first-round pick to Minnesota, which picks third, in exchange for the Vikings' first- and second-round picks.

On the same day, however, the Browns dealt their top pick in the 1986 draft and an undisclosed player, believed to be linebacker Chip Banks, to Buffalo for the first pick in the supplemental draft.

At that point, Rozelle suspended the April 15 date by which Kosar was to formally notify the league that he is entering the draft. The commissioner summoned representatives of all four teams involved for a hearing.

Cooper win clinches first place

From Staff Reports

Abilene Cooper, the No. 2 ranked 5A team in the state, clinched no worse than a tie for the District 4-5A title Tuesday, posting a 14-3 victory over San Angelo.

The Cougars moved into sole possession of first place Saturday when Abilene High knocked off Midland Lee 7-6 in eight innings. The Rebels and Cougars were tied at 10-1 going into the game. The Cougars are now 12-1 with the AHS Eagles as their final opponent Saturday night at Hardin Simmons Field while Lee, 11-2, hosts Midland High at 2 p.m.

Should Cooper lose to AHS and Lee defeat Midland High, leaving the league in a two-way tie for first place, the Cougars and Rebels will meet in a one-game playoff to be arranged if necessary. A Cougar victory and it makes no difference what Lee does. Cooper will be the 4-5A champion for the second year in a row.

Elsewhere in the league race, Big Spring notched its second victory of the season over Abilene High, claiming a 7-2 decision. Midland High was a 12-8 winner over Odessa Permian and Lee ripped Odessa High 16-5.

4-5A Roundup

COOPER JUMPED out to a 6-1 lead in the bottom of the second inning and padded it with eight runs in the fourth through sixth frames. The Bobcats managed lone tallies in each of the second, fourth and seventh innings.

Cooper's Mike McKellop, who was tagged with his only earned run of the 4-5A season in 18 innings of duty, calimed the victory in relief of starter Glenn Freeman. McKellop is now 4-0 on the year. San Angelo's Greg Lisewsky suffered the loss.

At the plate, district-leading hitters Nathan Jones and Scott Anderson, padded their grips on the batting title with strong performances. Jones collected a double and two singles in four at bats for one run and two RBI while Anderson tagged a pair of singles in four at bats and scored three runs.

Should the Cougars hold on and win the 4-5A title, then they would advance into the bi-district playoffs where they would meet the District 3-5A runnerup. The 3-5A race has yet to be decided with four teams still in the running: Lubbock Monterey, 12-1; Plainview, 11-3; Amarillo High, 9-4; and Lubbock High, 8-5.

The district 4-5A runnerup will face the 3-5A champion.

BIG SPRING came up with a 10-hit attack at the plate and pitchers Tommy Gartman and Mike Dodd teammed up on the mound to scatter six Abilene High hits in the Steers' 7-2 victory.

Jerry Anderson had the big hitting day for the Steers with a 3-for-4 performance which included a pair of doubles to produce two runs and two RBI.

Cleveland topples Bird-less Celts

Associated Press

The Cleveland Cavaliers, after winning their first National Basketball Association playoff game since 1977, didn't want to hear that it was tainted.

The Cavs, who lost the first two games of their first-round series in Boston by a total of five points, took advantage of injured Celtics star Larry Bird's absence in Game 3 Tuesday night. Cleveland broke a 17-game losing streak against the Celtics with a 105-98 victory in front of a sellout crowd of 20,900 at Richfield, Ohio.

"I said to the players after the game, 'Be proud about tonight. Don't let Larry Bird not playing take away from what we did,'" Coach George Karl said. "That team probably wins 55 (regular-season) games without Larry Bird, instead of 63 with him."

"We played them two tough games in Boston when they had Larry Bird, and we should have won at least one of them," added World B. Free, who scored 32 points to lead the Cavaliers. "When you take a guy like Kareem (Abdul-Jabbar) off the Lakers, they're still a great team."

Bird, who had scored 70 points in the first two games, didn't play because of a persistent problem with bursitis and bone chips in his right elbow.

IN OTHER playoff games, Denver edged San Antonio 115-112 to take a 2-1 lead in their series, the Los Angeles Lakers completed a 3-0 sweep of Phoenix with a 119-103 victory and Portland took a 2-1 lead over Dallas with a 122-109 decision.

Tonight, Milwaukee is at Chicago, Detroit at New Jersey, Houston at Utah and Philadelphia at Washington. The Bucks, Pistons and 76ers lead 2-0 and the Rockets-Jazz series is deadlocked 1-1.

NBA Roundup

On Thursday, Boston is at Cleveland and Dallas at Portland, while the fourth game of the Nuggets-Spurs series is at San Antonio Friday.

Celtics Coach K.C. Jones sent in Scott Wedman as Bird's substitute, and he filled in admirably, scoring 30 points. But a lack of depth hurt the Celtics, who got just 10 points out of their non-starters.

"K.C. said, 'Let's just run the plays for Scott that we run for Larry,'" Wedman said. "Psychologically, it took us a while to adjust to him not being here."

Wedman led a Boston rally in the fourth quarter with 12 points before he fouled out with just over a minute to play.

"I did all right, but we lost," he said. "I'm not Larry Bird."

The Cavaliers led by 10 entering the final period, but Wedman scored four of the Celtics' eight straight points to cut the deficit to 76-74.

Three more times — 88-86, 90-88 and 92-90 — the Celtics got within two, but each time, Cleveland responded with baskets — one each by Phil Hubbard, Free and Roy Hinson, who hit 10 of 14 shots and scored 21 points.

"What I enjoyed was, down the stretch, when they got it down to two, we distributed the ball very unselfishly," Karl said.

Kevin McHale finished with 21 points and 11 rebounds for Boston. Robert Parish scored 19.

Trail Blazers 122, Mavericks 109

Kiki Vandeweghe and Kenny Carr each had a run of 10 straight points to help Portland overcome Dallas.

The Mavericks, who got 30 points apiece from Rolando Blackman and Mark Aguirre, led by as many as nine points twice in the third quarter before the Trail Blazers fought back.

Portland reeled off 12 unanswered points, including 10 straight by Carr, to pull ahead 81-78 with 4:11 to go in the third quarter. In the fourth period, Vandeweghe put the game out of reach with 10 in a row, the last two with a 20-footer to make it 117-106 with 45 seconds to play.

Vandeweghe led Portland with 24 points, while Clyde Drexler had 20 points, 10 rebounds and 10 assists for the Blazers.

Nuggets 115, Spurs 112

Alex English scored 27 points to lead Denver, which held off a San Antonio rally in the fourth period to beat the Spurs in Texas for the first time since 1981, a span of 15 games.

John Paxson, who finished with 16 points, led the fourth-quarter rally for the Spurs with 10 points, but missed a three-point attempt that would have tied the game at the final buzzer.

George Gervin, who finished with 30 points, and Paxson led a 20-6 Spurs surge in the opening 4:35 of the final quarter, but San Antonio could only close the gap to 100-99 and never took the lead.

"No more jinx in San Antonio," Denver guard Mike Evans said. "We came out determined to play well. We wanted to bury San Antonio on their home floor, but it didn't turn out that way."

Lakers 119, Suns 103

Los Angeles completed its sweep of Phoenix in what turned out to be the closest game of the three.

James Worthy scored 12 of his 23 points in the second period, when the Lakers outscored the Suns 43-33 to take control of the game.

The Lakers, who will meet the winner of the Dallas-Portland series, opened the second period with a 15-4 run that turned a 25-25 tie into a 40-29 lead.

Phoenix closed to 60-52 on Mike Sanders' layin with 1:07 remaining, but Worthy scored seven points down the stretch — including a three-point goal at the buzzer — for a 68-58 halftime lead. The Suns, who got 26 points from Maurice Lucas, got no closer than nine points in the second half.

"It doesn't make any difference who we play next," Lakers Coach Riley said. "You have to play your best in the playoffs, and that's what we got to be concerned about. We're moving up and that's the only thing that counts. I'm delighted to get this one over with."

Gators nip San Antonio

Associated Press

Texas League

A three-run first inning propelled the Beaumont Gators to a 6-2 Texas League win over the San Antonio Dodgers Tuesday night in a rain abbreviated schedule.

Rain forced postponement of Tulsa's match at Shreveport and Jackson's game with the Arkansas Travelers.

Beaumont scored three runs on no hits in the first. Losing pitcher Vance Lovelace, 0-2, walked Mark Wasinger on a wild pitch and another wild pitch moved him to second. Wasinger was sent to third on an error and then scored on a wild pitch.

David Corman walked, stole second and reached third on a grounder by Shane Mack. Benito Santiago reached on a fielder's choice.

BULLDOGS

Gonzalez scattered Permian's eight runs on 12 hits and three MHS errors through five different innings, letting the Panthers nibble away at his lead — as big as 12-5 in the sixth — but never really allowed them back in the game until the final frame when Permian mounted a three-run rally that died with a Bulldog double play.

That double play, the league-leading 12th twin-kill of the 4-5A season for MHS, came with nobody out and two runs already in in the seventh.

"When you play some defense, a lot of good things can happen," said Whalen.

Gonzalez improved to 7-3 with the victory.

For Permian, starter Davey Wright gave up nine of the the Bulldog runs, including both that were earned, and fell to 3-8 on the year. Larry Hill pitched two innings of one-hit shutout relief and Holloway the final frame.

BULLDOG NOTES: The victory guarantees Midland High a winning season with a 13-10 overall record with one game left to play and no worse than .500 in 4-5A games. The 'Dogs, at 7-6, also clinched sole possession of third place with the win. Permian, 5-8, 7-13, is tied with Abilene High for fourth. AHS suffered a 7-2 defeat to Big Spring to give MHS third place outright...For MHS, Saturday's game against Midland Lee can make for a happy season if the Bulldogs can knock off the district's second-place Rebels, 11-2, 19-6. Game time is slated for 2 p.m. at Lee Field.

Still, even with the help, the Bulldogs had to hit the ball to bring home 12 runs. Stanton and Greg Hatcher carried most of the load at the plate as each collecte three singles in four attempts. Stanton's hits produced four RBI and one run scored while Hatcher tallied a run and an RBI.

"I was pleased with the way they hit the ball," said Whalen. "On that curve ball that Holloway threw up in Hatcher's face (in the sixth inning), Hatcher dusted it for a single, just like you try to teach them."

ON THE mound, the Bulldogs got seven up-and-down innings from starter Michael Gonzalez. However, even when he was in trouble, Whalen never seriously considered a reliever.

"He had a big lead so I thought I'd let him go about pitching his way out of trouble," said Whalen. "He's got a lot of guts, he'll challenge you."

ANGELS

While Finch's performance was impressive, it was lefthander Eddie Delzer who picked up the win, coming on in the eighth when Gonzalez faltered and facing the heart of the Diablos batting order. "It was a good way to finish. Mainly, I wanted to stay away from walks, yet keep from being down the middle. I needed an outing like that."

HALO-HOOPS—The Angels' Three, Four, Five and Six hitters are hitting .432 through the last three games...Montgomery stretched his hitting streak to nine straight with his three rbi night and is 12-for-35 (.343) during that stretch...Billie Merrifield is 8 for his last 16 at bats...The Angels kept 250-pound Joey Meyer in check Tuesday, only 2-for-4, but for the series he was 12 for 20 with seven RBI...Billy Joe Robidoux hasn't been any slouch either, going 16-for-39 against the Angels...

NASCAR rules aim at Bill Elliott's car

Associated Press

ATLANTA — Competitors engineered a NASCAR rule change in an attempt to slow down Bill Elliott, the Dawsonville, Ga., driver who has won three of seven races this year, Elliott's crew chief charges.

The rule change, which requires all Grand National cars to have a 50½-inch roof height, is designed to get rid of the aerodynamic advantage of his team's Ford Thunderbird, Ernie Elliott told The Atlanta Constitution Monday.

The new rule, announced Sunday, will take effect at the May 5 Winston 500 in Talladega, Ala., a race the Elliott family team had been favored to win.

Previous racing specifications stemming from factory stock designs required Fords to have a 50-inch roof and General Motors cars to have a 51-inch roof. A half-inch of roof line could have a significant aerodynamic effect on the Elliott car's performance at Talledega, where drivers reach speeds of about 200 mph.

Ernie Elliott said Junior Johnson, who fields the Chevrolets driven by racers Darrell Waltrip and Neil Bonnett, led the push for the rule change because his cars have been losing to the Elliott car.

Johnson's team has won two races this year, both Neil Bonnett victories.

Sutcliffe, Sandberg carry Cubs

Associated Press

National League

Once again, the Chicago Cubs are riding the Sutcliffe & Sandberg express.

"He really looked determined before the game," Cubs Manager Jim Frey said after Sutcliffe, last year's National League Cy Young winner, scattered eight hits and blasted a long home run Tuesday night to lead Chicago past the Pittsburgh Pirates 5-0.

Sandberg, the NL's Most Valuable Player last season, was batting just .143 and had not driven home a run this year before he homered in the fourth inning.

"I'm glad he got a hit," Frey said. "He's in n of those streaks right now where you just have to fight your way through it"

Sutcliffe, 3-1, had won 16 straight regular-season games before losing his last start in Montreal. Sutcliffe, an admitted "sore loser," did not allow a Pirate runner past second base.

Sutcliffe touched off a two-run third inning with a single against Mike Bielecki, 1-1, and then homered in the fourth.

"We're not playing like the Chicago Cubs can play," Sutcliffe said. "The only thing we've been doing is playing good, solid defense. I was just mad. I wanted to get things started."

TWO BATTERS after Sutcliffe homered, Sandberg unloaded.

"I've hit some good balls that have been caught and I've swung at some bad balls," Sandberg said. "You find yourself trying to get four hits in one at-bat and you can't do that."

Keith Moreland singled twice to knock in three more Chicago runs.

Meanwhile, Pittsburgh Manager Chuck Tanner is still waiting for his team to get into the swing. Last season, the Pirates led the league in pitching but lacked punch, and this year looks like a repeat so far.

"We just have had no offense," Tanner said. "I'm happy with our pitching but we haven't hit the ball consistently all year. Our big bats — (George) Hendrick, (Steve) Kemp, (Bill) Madlock, (Tony) Pena, Jason (Thompson) — are going to have to produce or we aren't going to win very many games."

Madlock is batting .146, Hendrick .166 and Thompson .217, while Thompson has the team's lone home run this year.

Braves 4, Padres 2

Rick Mahler, the top winner in the major leagues, raised his record to 4-0 by winning his fourth start of the season. Mahler went the first seven innings, allowing five hits, and Bruce Sutter finished up for his third save.

Dale Murphy, leading the majors in home runs and runs batted in, doubled home an Atlanta run in the first inning. That brought his RBI count to 22 in 13 games this year.

Terry Harper lined a three-run double in the third off loser Mark Thurmond, 0-2.

Steve Garvey drove in both runs for host San Diego, one of them with his third home run of the year.

Giants 2, Dodgers 1

What does Fernando Valenzuela have to do to win?

Valenzuela has not allowed an earned run in 33 innings this season, yet saw his record slide to 2-2 when San Francisco scored twice in the fifth on a two-run error by Dodgers shortstop Dave Anderson.

It was Valenzuela's ninth loss in his last 10 decisions at Candlestick Park.

Mike Krukow, 2-0, pitched well for the Giants, scattering seven hits while striking out 10.

Astros 6, Reds 4

Kevin Bass homered for the second straight game and also singled twice, driving in four runs at the Astrodome. Bass has two home runs this season, matching his 1984 total.

Bass cracked RBI singles in the first and third innings and hit his two-run homer in the fifth off loser John Stuper, 2-1.

Houston rookie Ron Mathis won his first major-league game. He took a two-hitter and 6-0 lead into the eighth before Cincinnati rallied for its four runs. Gary Redus singled home two runs and reliever Frank DiPino allowed an RBI double to Dave Parker and threw a wild pitch that let the other run score.

Dave Smith pitched the ninth for his third save.

Cardinals 8, Mets 3

Andy Van Slyke tripled and doubled and Lonnie Smith singled twice and stole three bases for free-wheeling St. Louis.

The Cardinals combined eight hits, seven walks, three New York errors and five stolen bases to win.

The game was tied 2-2 in the bottom of the third inning in St. Louis when action was delayed for 68 minutes by rain. When play resumed, Jack Clark bounced into a forceout that let Smith score from third base to put the Cardinals ahead for good.

Kurt Kepshire, who entered the game with a 15.63 earned run average, pitched seven-plus innings to win his first game in three decisions. Tom Gorman, 1-1, took the loss.

Expos 5, Phillies 4

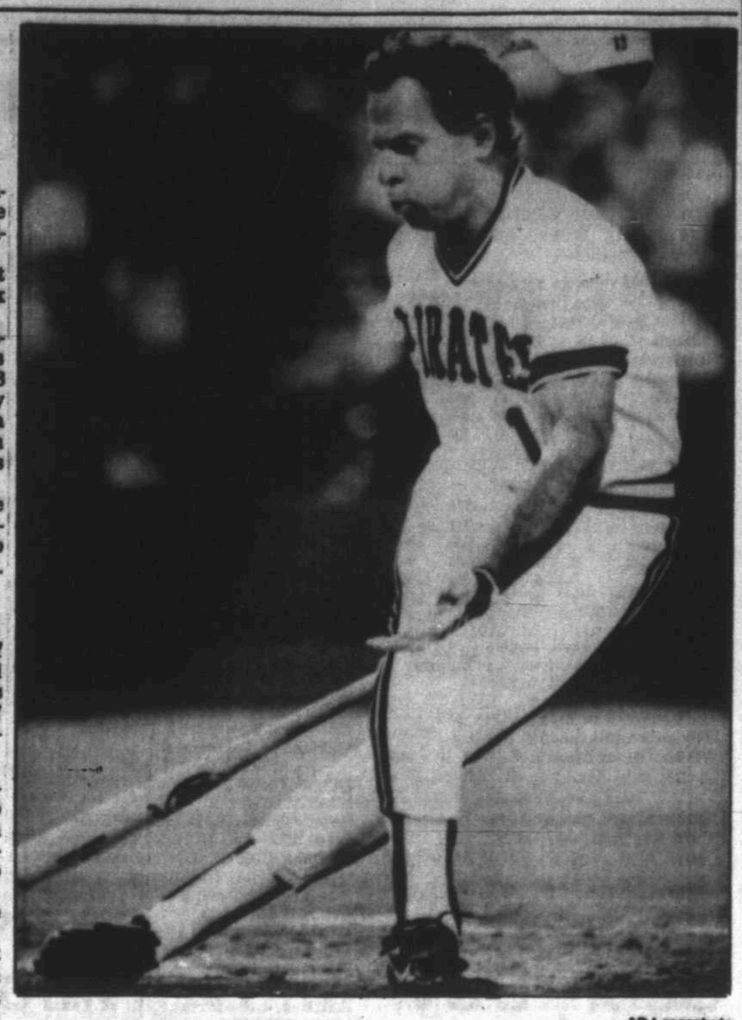

Vance Law fouled off a couple of full-count pitches, then took ball four for a walk with the bases loaded and one out in the bottom of the 10th inning to force home Montreal's winning run.

Philadelphia reliever Charlie Hudson, 0-2, gave up a leadoff single to Andre Dawson in the 10th and then struck out Hubie Brooks. But Hudson walked the next three batters to lose the game.

Jeff Reardon, 1-0, pitched three scoreless innings to get the victory.

The Expos took a 4-0 lead against Steve Carlton in the first inning on four straight hits with two outs, including doubles by Brooks, Dan Driessen and Tim Wallach.

The Phillies tied it against Steve Rogers on Tim Corcoran's two-run single in the fifth.

Steve Kemp of the Pittsburgh Pirates takes a mighty cut but misses. The Bucs were shut out, 5-0, by the Cubs Tuesday.

Brunansky tags Barojas, Jays blow late lead; same old story

Associated Press

American

It's just like old times in the American League. Minnesota's Tom Brunansky is playing long ball with Salome Barojas and the Toronto Blue Jays' bullpen is blowing late leads.

Brunansky has faced Barojas 14 times. He has seven hits, including five home runs and 11 RBIs. Home run No. 5 was a two-run shot in the first inning Tuesday night that started the Twins to a 4-2 triumph over the Seattle Mariners.

"There are certain guys you just feel confident against," Brunansky said. "Ever since he was in Chicago (with the White Sox) I've had great success against him. I don't think I've hit this well against any pitcher."

Meanwhile, Toronto took a 4-2 lead into the ninth inning only to see the Kansas City Royals score five times off relief ace Bill Caudill and make off with a 7-6 victory.

"I guess I was right after all when I said last week in Baltimore that it wouldn't be the last time," said Caudill, who was hit hard on April 13 as the Orioles scored six times in the eighth inning, rallying from a 7-2 deficit for an 8-7 victory."It just came a lot quicker than I expected. But it won't continue. I'm too good a pitcher for that to happen and I didn't get here on a fluke. I'll hear a lot more applause before the season's over."

Royals 7, Blue Jays 6

Caudill relieved Doyle Alexander after seven innings and breezed through the eighth but got in trouble in the ninth when Jim Sundberg and pinch-hitter Dane Iorg opened with singles and Willie Wilson was hit by a pitch to load the bases.

Caudill stormed from the mound when plate umpire Drew Coble awarded Wilson first base.

"He made an attempt to get hit and not an attempt to get out of the way," Caudill said. "That changed the whole perspective of the ballgame. Instead of bases loaded, there's one out with runners at first and second."

One out later, George Brett doubled all three runners home for a 5-4 Kansas City lead. Jorge Orta then homered, offsetting two Toronto runs in the bottom of the ninth against Kansas City relief ace Dan Quisenberry. Toronto had taken a 4-2 lead with three runs in the sixth, two on Willie Upshaw's double.

Tigers 4, Indians 3

Kirk Gibson had three hits, including a two-run bloop double to snap a fifth-inning tie, and Dan Petry, Bill Scherrer and Willie Hernandez combined to scatter nine hits as Detroit snapped a two-game losing streak.Petry gave up six hits in 6 2-3 innings. Hernandez relieved Scherrer in the eighth for his third save.

Red Sox 5, Yankees 4

Dwight Evans drove in his second run of the game with an 11th-inning single and Boston took advantage of two of New York's four errors to score two unearned runs in beating the Yankees for the fourth straight time. Marty Barrett started the 11th with a single off New York relief ace Dave Righetti and Jackie Gutierrez sacrificed. Wade Boggs then beat out an infield single up the middle and Evans' single to left broke the tie.

Orioles 11, Rangers 1

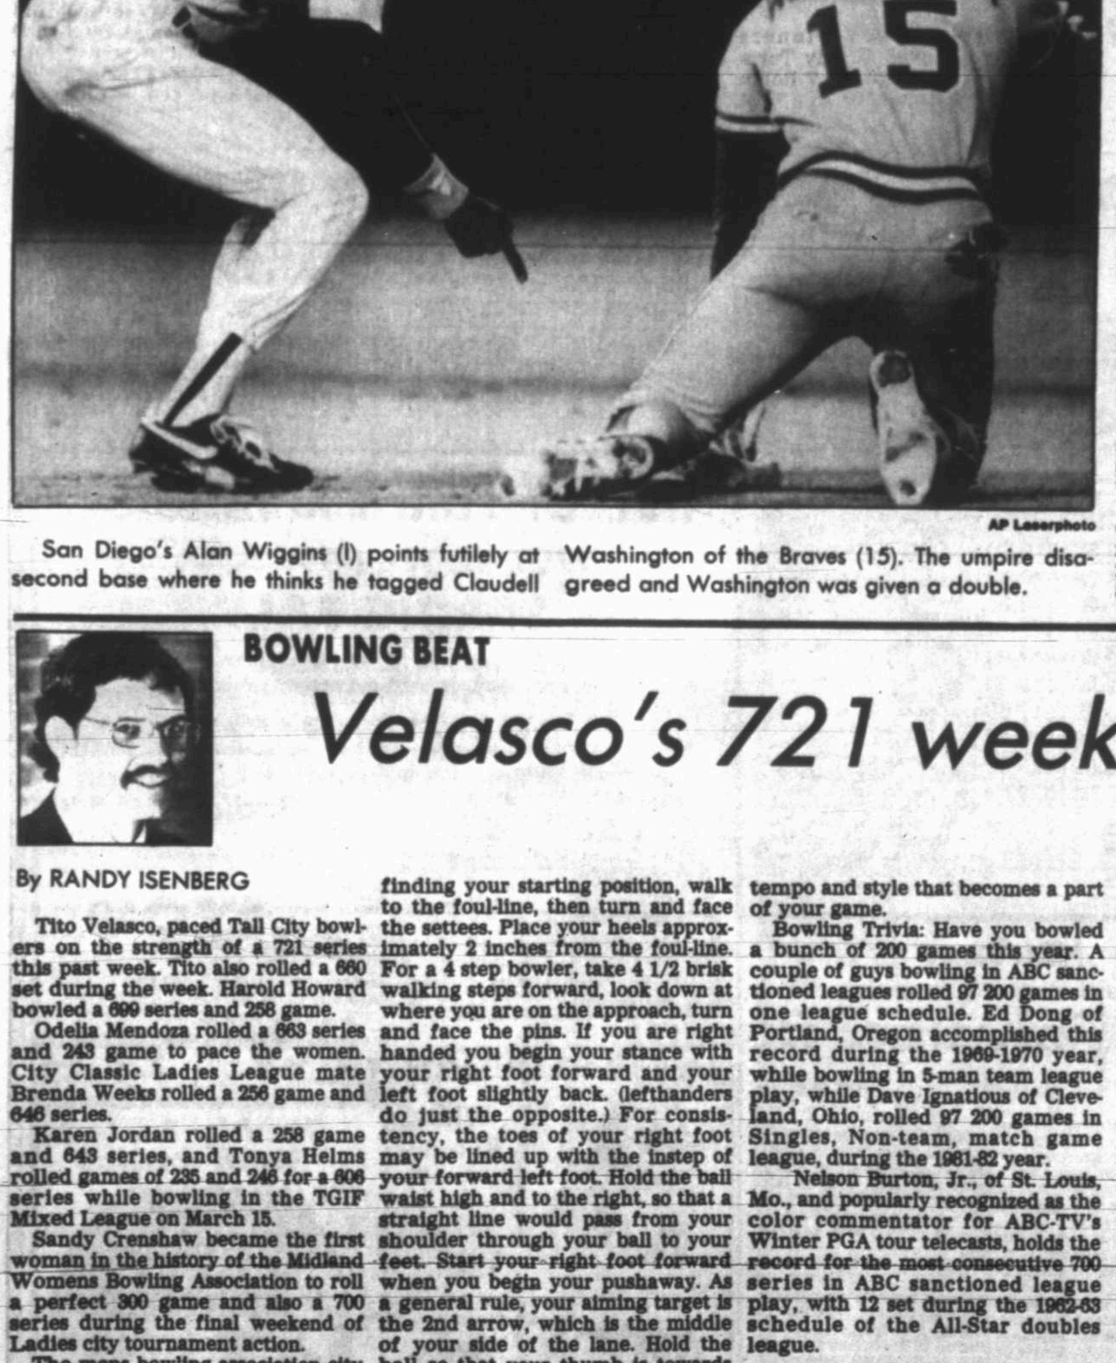

Storm Davis pitched a three-hitter and Rick Dempsey, Dan Ford and Mike Young homered for Baltimore. Davis, who entered the game with an 8.31 earned run average, retired 19 batters in a row after the Rangers loaded the bases with no one out in the first inning and scored their only run.

White Sox 6, Brewers 5

Pinch-hitter Oscar Gamble's bases-loaded single capped a two-run rally against Milwaukee relief ace Rollie Fingers in the bottom of the 10th inning. After Milwaukee had gone ahead 5-4 in the top of the 10th on Ted Simmons' RBI single, Fingers took over from Bob McClure, who had retired all 10 batters he faced.

Athletics 14, Angels 9

Dusty Baker drove in five runs with a three-run homer and a double and Carney Lansford added a three-run homer as Oakland withstood a six-homer assault. Trailing 7-1 after 3⅓ innings, the Angels hit six solo home runs, two of them by Reggie Jackson. Jerry Narron, Dick Schofield, Bobby Grich and Doug DeCinces also homered for California while Dave Kingman and Mike Davis connected for Oakland.

San Diego's Alan Wiggins (l) points futilely at second base where he thinks he tagged Claudell Washington of the Braves (15). The umpire disagreed and Washington was given a double.

REBELS

"I never did feel like a pitcher out there today, I was just out there throwing," Rittenberry said. "The last couple of times out there I haven't felt good. I just have to relax and get my confidence up. I've got a lot of time to work on it before playoffs start."

Aha! The Rebels do realize they are heading toward their third straight playoff appearance and not just the season-ending match up with MHS on Saturday.

The trick now becomes for Johnson to keep his game-ready and sharp for Saturday's contest with the Bulldogs and beyond.

"I told them after we lost Saturday, that the best way to get ready for the playoffs would be to win the next two games, so far we're doing all we can to get there," Johnson said.

REBEL NOTES: Unless Cooper, ranked second in the state, loses to AHS Saturday, and Lee wins forcing a one-game playoff, the Rebels will have at least 10 days off before playoff games begin. New UIL rules call for a one-game playoff in the first round unless the coaches agree otherwise.

Johnson prefers a three-game set and has plans to discuss that possibility with Monterey coach Bobby Moegle within the next week...

Phillips' 3-4 Tuesday raised his average to .600 (6-10) over the last three district games... Shaw's 20 4-5A RBI lead the league, he has 24 overall... Rittenberry's victory was his first since toppling Cooper, 5-4 on March 16... Each Lee starter scored at least one run as the Rebs sent 12 men to the plate in the first and second innings.

Bowling Tip: If you are just learning how to bowl, and maybe feel a little awkward in approaching the foul-line, here is a tip that may help you. The basic bowling approach consists of 3 steps and a slide. In finding your starting position, walk to the foul-line, then turn and face the settees. Place your heels approximately 2 inches from the foul-line. For a 4 step bowler, take 4 1/2 brisk walking steps forward, look down at where you are on the approach, turn and face the pins. If you are right handed you begin your stance with your right foot forward and your left foot slightly back. (lefthanders do just the opposite.) For consistency, the toes of your right foot may be lined up with the instep of your forward left foot. Hold the ball waist high and to the right, so that a straight line would pass from your shoulder through your ball to your feet. Start your right foot forward when you begin your pushaway. As a general rule, your aiming target is the 2nd arrow, which is the middle of your side of the lane. Hold the ball so that your thumb is towards the 10 O'clock position.

IN PRACTICING your approach, start by practicing without a ball. Work on your footwork fist, and then add the ball movement sequence. Once you feel confident, practice. The foot movements (for righthanders), begins, right-left-right and slide on your left foot. The ball movement sequence is: out-down-back and roll. You may feel mechanical at first, but with practice, this will smooth out, and soon you will gain confidence and begin knocking down more pins consistently and with knowledge. As you become a more experienced participant, you will learn to make adjustments with your game and develop a tempo and style that becomes a part of your game.

Bowling Trivia: Have you bowled a bunch of 200 games this year. A couple of guys bowling in ABC sanctioned leagues rolled 97 200 games in one league schedule. Ed Dong of Portland, Oregon accomplished this record during the 1969-1970 year, while bowling in 5-man team league play, while Dave Ignatious of Cleveland, Ohio, rolled 97 200 games in Singles, Non-team, match game league, during the 1981-82 year.

Nelson Burton, Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., and popularly recognized as the color commentator for ABC-TV's Winter PGA tour telecasts, holds the record for the most consecutive 700 series in ABC sanctioned league play, with 12 set during the 1962-63 schedule of the All-Star doubles league.

ERNIE BRONSON, of Lawton, Oklahoma began the night of April 28, 1978 with a 109 game while bowling in the Friday Night Mixed League. His final 2 games were 200 and 299 for a 708 Series. The 109 game is the lowest game ever bowled enroute to a 700 series, in ABC league history.

Nordiques edge Canadiens, 7-6

Associated Press

Stanley Cup

In 1982, Dale Hunter scored the biggest goal in the history of the Quebec Nordiques.

Tuesday night, in similar though not quite as dramatic fashion, Hunter duplicated the feat.

Hunter took a pass from Michel Goulet, who scored three goals, and blasted a slapshot past goalie Steve Penney at 18:36 of overtime to lift Quebec to a wild 7-6 victory over the Montreal Canadiens in the third game of the Adams Division final. The win was the Nordiques' second in overtime in the best-of-seven National Hockey League series and gave them a 2-1 lead over their archrivals.

"For now, at least, this is the most important goal of my career," said Hunter, whose overtime tally in Game 5 of the opening round of the 1982 playoffs allowed Quebec to eliminate Montreal.

"I was following Goulet up along the side and he dropped the puck when he collided with a defenseman," said Hunter. "I picked it up, took a step, lowered my head and took a slapshot."

Four times the Nordiques rallied from one-goal deficits in a game with a disputed goal, brilliant overtime goaltending by Penney and Quebec's Mario Gosselin, and a total of 140 minutes in penalties.

Ironically, Dale's brother Mark, a Canadiens right winger, had a pair of scoring chances early in overtime. On the first, at 2:32, he poked a rebound toward an open net but defenseman Mario Marois swept the puck out of danger.

Gosselin stopped Hunter on a breakaway at 4:02.

Bobby Smith, who had two goals for Montreal, got one from center ice. His sharp-angle shot either caromed off Gosselin's skates or slipped through a hole in the outer rim of the net.

"Winning the third game takes a lot of pressure off us," said Goulet, who leads all playoff scorers with 11 goals. "Now we know we're coming back for at least one more game at home."

Flyers 5, Islanders 3

The visiting Flyers grabbed a 4-1 lead but had to withstand a 27-shot barrage by the Islanders in the second period. Pelle Lindbergh again was outstanding in goal for Philadelphia. Brian Propp scored the winning goal on a 2-on-0 break with New York during a five-minute power play and Ron Sutter had a goal and two assists.

"We were very fortunate that we came out of the second period the way we did, with a lead," said Propp. "Our goalie sat on his head for us, so we had to do something for him in the next period."

They did, holding the Islanders to only four shots on goal.

"I was really tired in the second period and it was really warm," Lindbergh said of the New York barrage in the middle stanza. "They were shooting from all over the place, but fortunately we got two goals, too.

"The way we came back in the third period, it showed that even when we played really bad, we could still play really good."

Black Hawks 5, North Stars 3

The visitors fell behind 2-0 when Dennis Maruk and Dino Ciccarelli scored for Minnesota. But Bob Murray and Tom Lysiak connected before the end of the first period, then Al Secord scored twice in 2:08 of the middle period to put the Black Hawks in charge.

Secord snapped a 2-2 tie with 2:50 left in the second period when he took the puck away from North Stars defenseman Craig Hartsburg and wristed a 20-footer between the legs of Minnesota goaltender Gilles Meloche.Then Denis Savard stole the puck from Minnesota's Ron Wilson and took a slapshot that Meloche stopped, only to see Secord flip in the rebound.

Chicago goalie Murray Bannerman made 38 saves.

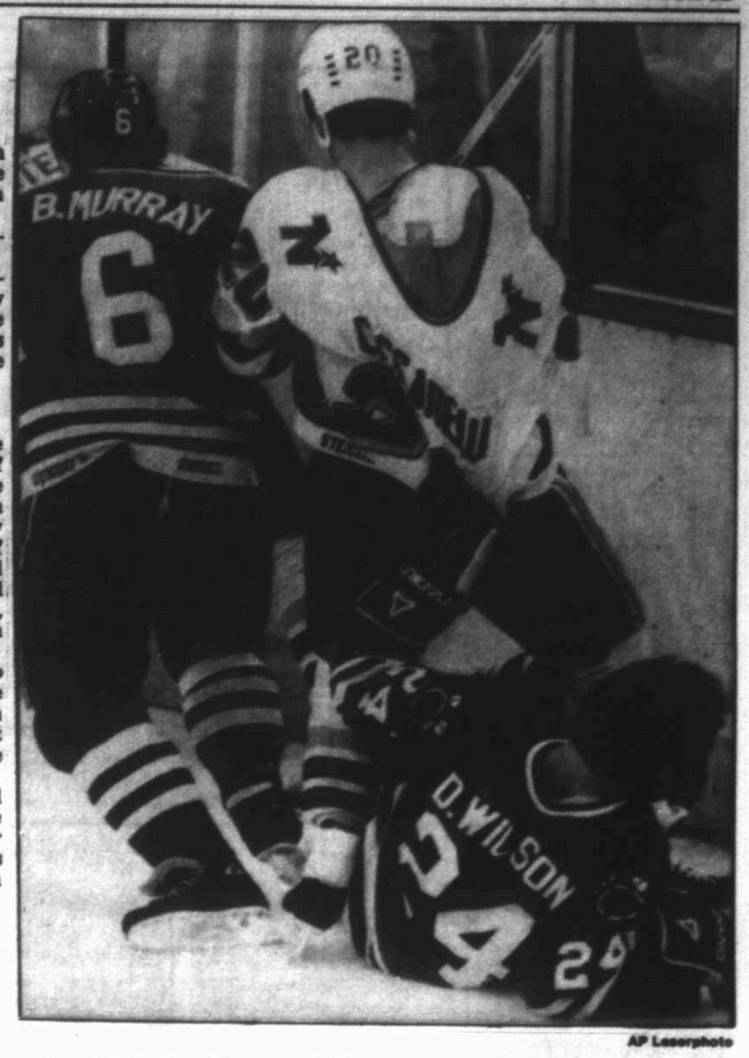

"You have to overpower Bannerman with chances. He's only human," Minnesota's Steve Payne said."He always plays well against us in the playoffs. Bannerman was the difference."

Oilers 5, Jets 4

Edmonton beat Winnipeg for the ninth successive time in playoff action as Mark Messier had three assists and Glenn Anderson added a goal and two assists. Wayne Gretzky scored the game-winner at 6:13 of the third period when he got behind defenseman Randy Carlyle, skated in on goalie Brian Hayward and, after faking a shot, slid home a backhander.

Defenseman Dave Babych, who also had two assists, tied the score with only 15 seconds remaining in the second period on a wrist shot which was misplayed by goalie Grant Fuhr.

"I gave up a bad one in the second period and I had to come out in the third and make a few good saves for the guys because I knew the guys would come through and get me a goal," said Fuhr.

Scott Davis moves into second round in WCT

By TOM SALADINO
AP Sports Writer

ATLANTA — Fifth-seeded Scott Davis barely made it into today's second round of the $375,000 WCT-Atlanta tennis tournament when the youngster turned his frustration into a "kamikaze and a spinning dink-a-mango."

The 22-year-old Davis, ranked 13th in the world, had to go three sets and one hour and 51 minutes before disposing of veteran Wojtek Fibak 6-2, 53-6, 7-5 in a first-round match Tuesday night in which only two of the eight seeded players saw action.

John Sadri downed fourth-seeded Tomas Smid 6-3, 6-4 in the only upset so far in the tournament, which began Monday. In other matches, Tim Wilkison defeated Tom Cain, 7-6, 6-3, John Fitzgerald defeated Larry Stefanki 6-0, 6-3 and Ken Flatch beat Vijay Amritraj 6-4, 6-4.

Tonight, the top-seeded and No. 1-ranked player in the world, John McEnroe, will meet Brian Teacher, while No. 2 seed Kevin Curren takes on Wilkison.

Poland's Fibak, giving away 10 years to Davis, said,"For a while I did good. In the old days, I had a chance to win these matches. Now I'm losing them."

He had his chance in the final set when he was leading 3-1 and serving, but failed to capitalize and was broken by Davis, who eventually went ahead 4-3 and won when Fibak lost his serve while trailing 6-5.

"I was getting frustrated," said Davis, who led Stanford to the National Collegiate Athletic Association championships in 1983. "Especially when he had me 1-3 and had a couple of break points which would have put me out of the match.

"Then I loosened up, that's what I do when I get frustrated and just say the heck with it. At deuce I hit a kamikaze and a spinning dink-a-mango (a cannon-like forehand and then a drop shot for winners), won the game and got my momentum back."

The victory put him into a second-round match today against David Pate.

Sadri, one of the hardest first servers in the sport, had seven aces in avenging a recent loss to Smid.

"I served very well and got my first serve in," said the 28-year-old from Charlotte, N.C., ranked 33rd in the world. "That was the difference from the last time I lost to him a couple of weeks ago in Rotterdam."

Texas A&M clinches SWC women's crown

Associated Press

BRYAN, Texas — Texas A&M's Patricia Gonzales edged teammate Fiona Conner to win the Southwest Conference women's individual golf title Tuesday, but the pair helped the Aggies clinch their first SWC team title.

Gonzales won the individual title, despite shooting a three-over-par 75, and ended the three-round, 54-hole tournament with 223.

Conner had a two-over-par 72 in the final round and had a total of 226, while Martha Foyer of Southern Methodist had 228.

Hibernating Jaeger returns with easy win

Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — A ninth-month hibernation was over and Andrea Jaeger wasn't sure how she'd feel when she finally took her place behind the baseline to play a competitive tennis match.

"I thought I'd be nervous, like I wouldn't be able to hold onto a racquet or something. Everything was built up for my first match, and it's a relief now that it's over," said Jaeger after she defeated Barbara Gerken in a first-round match in the $75,000 Virginia Slims of San Diego on Tuesday.

Jaeger needed only 65 minutes to oust Gerken 6-2, 6-3.

The win, fashioned in the familiar Jaeger style of strong baseline play with many lobs, earned the 19-year-old a spot in the round of 16 where she will face 15-year-old Melissa Gurney on Thursday.

A feisty competitor who climbed to a No. 3 ranking in 1982-83 and had been the youngest player ever to be seeded at Wimbledon, Jaeger was forced from the tennis court last May by a rash of injuries that included a strained rotator cuff, a pinched nerve in her neck, bouts with arthritis and back spasms.

The injuries forced her out of the French Open in May and then from the Olympic Tennis matches in August.

"I was just run down, my body couldn't take it," Jaeger said of her injuries. "I thought I was tough, that I could take it forever, but I found out I couldn't."

Jaeger used the time away from tennis to begin zoology classes at Sante Fe Community College in Gainesville, Fla.

In her first try back, after playing tentatively at first, Jaeger forced some of the rust off the weapons that lifted her among the elite in women's tennis.

"I served well and didn't miss any balls because of my shoulder," she said. "I could have played three sets. I think she would've gotten tired before me. Endurance has always been my strength. I don't know if it still is, but I hope so."

When Jaeger, who began challenging those in the professional ranks at 14 and won 13 national titles before she could vote, finally went to the sidelines, many reports speculated that she was suffering from "burnout."

"If I'd had burnout, I couldn't have come out here and played today," she said. "If I was burned out before, I'd be so nervous, I couldn't get out of the bathroom.

"Those people will have to eat their words now. I don't think it was fair for them to say. Burnout and injuries are two totally different things."

Other first-round winners included top-seeded Wendy Turnbull, Barbara Jordan, No. 7 Robin White, and sixth-seeded Roz Fairbank.

Burwick rides handicap to City tournament win

From Staff Reports

One of the reasons bowling is such a popular sport is the handicap system that gives every bowler a chance to win. During the recently concluded Midland Women's City tournament, Dawn Burkwick proved how true that is.

Carrying a 90 average, Burwick got hot in the city tournament, rolling a 712 handicap series to claim first place honors, beating out second place finisher Jeanette Darrough by 34 pins.

Burwick wasn't, and still isn't finished. Teamming up with Lynn Edwards-Harris, Burrick has a shot at her second title in the doubles event. At the conclusion of the tournament, Burwick-Harris are tied with Brenda Danley and Carolyn Daugherty for top honors at 1284.

The two doubles teams will meet at a date to be arranged for a rolloff to determine the champions.

In the team event, Tommy's Supermarket defeated McCabes No. 1 by the closest of margins, 2980-2979 while B.J. Electric finished a close third at 2970.

Darrough, on the strength of her second place finish in singles won the tournament's all-events division with a 1904, defeating Kathy Rhodes by a two-pin count.

Karen Jordan was the winner of the all-events scratch event with a 1672.

Sandy Crenshaw, who became the first woman to bowl a 300 in Midland during the tournament this weekend, couldn't use her perfect-game score toward all-events honors.

According to the rules, a bowler may roll in the team event more than once with a different team but must use the first team score rolled toward all-events, not the best of the two. Crenshaw's 300 came in her second team outing of the tournament.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Some self-promotion is in order. Channel your energies into creative projects. A former romantic partner could reappear. Keep a cool head. Investigate the possibility of applying for a scholarship or training course.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Meet additional work demands without expecting immediate remuneration. Rewards will come in the near future without you even asking. Someone shows a strong romantic interest in you. Be tactful but firm.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Pay more attention to paper work and accounting matters. Go over cost figures with higher-ups. Original ideas count big with those in authority. Creative financing helps you to purchase that dream house.

Don't ever believe that a contract can't be defeated. Accurate defense can work wonders.

We like North's decision to raise to two spades at his second turn rather than rebid his diamonds. If there is game in the hand, it is more likely to be in the major suit than the minor. And should South have responded on a four-card suit, he must allow for the possibility of a raise with only three-card support during the rest of the auction. South's spade rebid confirmed a five-card or longer suit, and North had no hesitation in accepting his partner's game invitation.

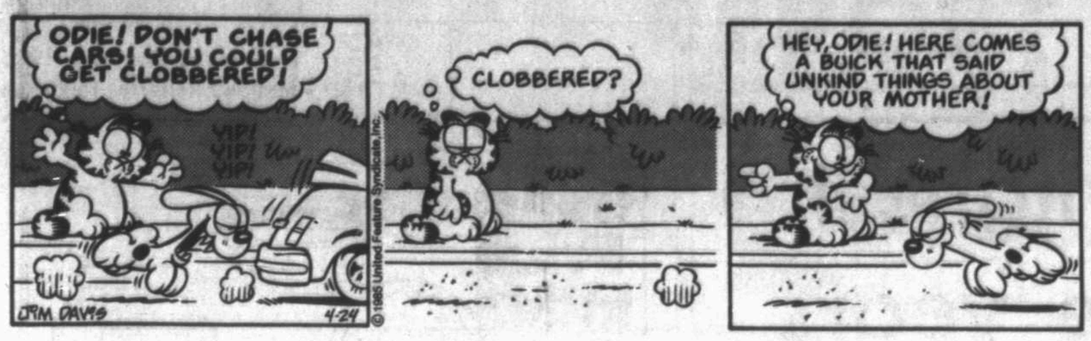

West got his side off to an excellent start when he chose to attack with a heart rather than a club. Declarer played low from dummy, East won the king and took some time to study the situation. It seemed probable that his partner had a trump trick and that, together with the ace of diamonds, would complete the defensive book. Where was the setting trick going to come from?

A club trick was doubtful, especially since declarer surely had either the king or queen in the suit. A third red-suit trick was impossible. That left only the possibility of developing a second trump trick. The one distribution where that might be feasible was if diamonds were 2-2 and West held two spade honors.

At trick two East shifted to a low diamond. Declarer won in dummy and immediately led a trump to his jack and West's ace. West returned a diamond and a pretty defense reaped its just reward. East won the ace and returned his last diamond. Whether declarer ruffed high or low made no difference. West's ten of trumps was promoted to the setting trick.

Actress averts pair of muggers

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Jennifer Beals, star of "Flashdance" and working on a remake of "The Bride of Frankenstein," decked a would-be mugger in Grand Central Terminal, a Columbia Pictures spokeswoman says.

Ms. Beals remained "pretty cool" after the incident earlier this week and told the man who tried for her purse, "You shouldn't be doing that" after punching him in the jaw, said Ann Marie Stein.

The Yale University student arrived in Manhattan from New Haven, Conn., and was walking through the terminal when a man dropped a coat in front of her to slow her pace, Ms. Stein said.

A second man came up behind and reached into her purse, she said. Ms. Beals noticed the second man, turned and smashed him in the face.

Nothing was taken from Ms. Beals' purse and she was uninjured. Neither of the would-be muggers was arrested.

The actress is currently in Italy reshooting a scene for the remake, titled "The Bride," which also stars rock idol Sting.

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Singer Arlo Guthrie says his legendary father, Woody, was a prolific composer who "threw away more stuff in two weeks' work than I've written in my whole life."

"Most of his songs were concerned about the simple integrity of being a human being," Guthrie, 37, said Tuesday in an interview at a Bonneville Power Administration facility at Portland, where he gave an impromptu concert for 400 employees. "He wanted people to feel good about themselves."

In 1941, Woody Guthrie worked for the fledgling BPA writing songs aimed at helping open the Pacific Northwest to hydro power.

He composed 26 songs to honor the agency's development of Columbia River hydroelectric power, and the agency presented his son with a tape of 11 of them Tuesday.

Guthrie is trying to help his cousin, Washington state Rep. Joe Tanner, D-Ridgefield, launch a campaign to make one of the songs, "Roll On, Columbia, Roll On," the state's official folk song.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ann Jillian, who underwent a double mastectomy less than two weeks ago, is due to return to work Thursday on Irwin Allen's production of "Alice in Wonderland," a spokesman said.

"Miss Jillian was given a clean bill of health by her doctor on Monday," Suzanne Ryan of the William Morris Agency said Tuesday.

The actress, who starred in the 1983 NBC series "Jennifer Slept Here" and the year before played the title role in the TV movie "The Mae West Story," underwent surgery April 12 for breast cancer.

Miss Jillian, 35, plays the Red Queen in the all-star production of the Lewis Carroll children's classic, Tony Habeeb, a spokesman for Allen, said. The four-hour show will be telecast next season by CBS.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (AP) — A man accused of swinging a tire iron at baseball star Reggie Jackson in a parking lot pleaded innocent to charges of assault with a deadly weapon and disturbing the peace.

Tim Clinton Williams, 20, entered the plea Monday in Desert Municipal Court, Deputy District Attorney Jim Koerber said. A pretrial hearing was set for May 10.

Williams, free on $10,000 bail, was accused of assaulting the 39-year-old Jackson at the Gene Autry Hotel, where California Angels team members were staying during spring training.

Jackson was on his way to breakfast at the hotel restaurant when he encountered Williams and a companion. The two allegedly screamed racial slurs at Jackson in the hotel parking lot, and Jackson slapped one of them before Williams allegedly swung a tire iron, police said.

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — After 25 years of studying unpenned chimpanzees in Tanzania, Jane Goodall is spearheading an effort to help others learn from chimps in zoos across the United States.

At the Cheyenne Mountain Zoo on Tuesday, Ms. Goodall described the new project — dubbed "Chimpanzoo" — as a chance for researchers to learn how captivity affects chimps.

The zoos, all chosen because they have colleges or universities nearby, stretch from Florida to California. In Colorado Springs, Colorado College plans an anthropology course centered on the idea beginning this summer.

Ms. Goodall said captive chimp research provides an area of study for people whom she cannot bring to her Gombe Stream Wildlife Preserve because of the political situation.

Hundreds of people, their interest piqued by National Geographic Society television specials on her work, have written her each year, asking to come and help, even if only to wash dishes, Ms. Goodall said.

"It's always rather sad to write back now that there's nothing I can offer," she said.

'Cosby' affecting network programming

By FRED ROTHENBERG
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK — "The Cosby Show," which brought a big smile to NBC by helping turn around its ratings fortunes, also seems to be changing the face of prime-time television for next season.

"I think you'll see more sitcoms emphasized, at the expense of action-adventure," Dave Poltrack, CBS vice president for research, said Tuesday after the A.C. Nielsen Co.'s season-ending prime-time ratings results were released, reflecting significant changes in network viewing habits.

Last season, no comedy was in the Top 10. This season, "Cosby" and NBC's "Family Ties" were Top 10 shows, while NBC's "Cheers" (12th) and "Night Court" (19th) and CBS' "Newhart" (16th) and "Kate & Allie" (17th) cracked the Top 20.

NBC, with more comedies than the other two networks, vacated the ratings cellar for the first time in a decade, leaving ABC in third for the first time since the 1974-75 season. CBS was first for the sixth consecutive season with an average rating of 16.9 to NBC's 16.2 and ABC's 15.4.

Only NBC gained audiences from a year ago, while the three-network rating dipped below 50 percent (48.5) for the first time ever. The rating measures the percentage of the nation's 84.9 million tuned to the networks.

ABC's "Dynasty" was the season's No. 1 series, with a 25.0 rating, edging its rival nighttime soap, CBS' "Dallas," which had ruled the roost three of the past four seasons. "Dallas" averaged a 24.7 rating.

"The Cosby Show," the highest rated new show since "Mork & Mindy" six seasons ago and the most popular series since January, finished the full 1984-85 season as the No. 3 show, with a 24.2 rating.

DOLLAR

Dollar rallies

LONDON (AP) — Speculation that U.S. interest rates will stay high ignited a strong rally by the dollar today, a day after the currency's biggest one-dy advance in 3½ years. Gold prices were steady after an early dip.

Leading the dollar advance were higher short-term interest rates in America and a growing belief that the Federal Reserve will keep rates high to combat inflation, dealers said.

After figures Tuesday showing a jump in U.S. inflation to an annual rate of 5.8 percent, the dollar jumped nearly 2 percent against the currencies of most of its trading partners. The dollar had plunged as much as 20 percent against some currencies since setting a string of record highs in February.

As the rally continued today, dealers said investors seemed to be ignoring another set of figures — durable goods orders, which were sharply lower — released the same day, the dealers reported.

"The market is moving entirely on interest rates," said a dealer in Frankfurt. "No one is looking at negative news ...

In Tokyo, where trading ends before Europe's business day begins, the dollar rose to a closing 250.10 yen from Tuesday's 248.45. Later, in London, it was quoted at 250.85 yen.

Other dollar rates at midmorning, compared with late Tuesday:

–3.0960 West German marks, up from 3.0625.

–2.5880 Swiss francs, up from 2.5125.

–9.4920 French francs, up from 9.2475.

–3.5070 Dutch guilders, up from 3.4355.

–1,961.50 Italian lire, up from 1,935.50.

–1.3633 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3545.

In London, the British pound was quoted at $1.2410, compared with $1.2560 Tuesday.

Gold steady

Gold prices were steady today after an early dip.

Gold opened in London at a bid price of $321.80 an ounce, compared with late Tuesday's $326.30. At midmorning today, the city's five major bullion dealers fixed a recommended price of $322.60.

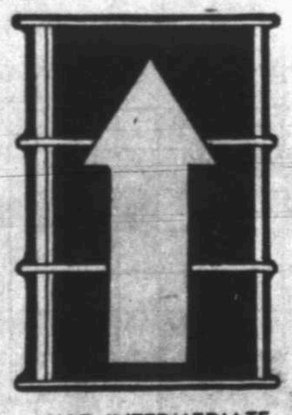

In Zurich, the noon bid price was $322.30, down from $326.50 late Tuesday.

Earlier, in Hong Kong, gold fell the equivalent of $2.58 to close at a bid $323.95.

In New York Tuesday, gold fell $4.40 to close at $323.00.

Silver was quoted in London today at a bid price of $6.15 an ounce, down from Tuesday's $6.285.

Dollar jumps to highest level in over three years

NEW YORK (AP) — A rise in U.S. interest rates prompted the dollar to stage its sharpest advance in more than 3½ years, gaining nearly 2 percent against the currencies of its major trading partners.

Even separate government reports issued Tuesday of a 2.3 percent decline last month in U.S. factory orders for durable goods and of a 0.5 percent rise in American consumer prices in March only briefly held the dollar down.

Stocks also rose broadly Tuesday, triggered by a late rally in the blue chips that lifted the Dow Jones industrial average to its highest level in nearly seven weeks.

As the dollar shot higher, analysts said, buying picked up from traders who had earlier bet on further declines and were forced to scramble either to lock in profits or limit losses.

In little more than 24 hours, the dollar had soared almost 4 cents against the British pound and surged up more than 11 pfennigs against the West German mark. There are 100 pfennigs in a mark.

The Federal Reserve Board said its index of the dollar against 10 major currencies climbed 1.9 percent Tuesday, its biggest gain since the 2.1 percent surge of Aug. 3, 1981, when the dollar was in the midst of a strong rally.

Tuesday's gains "are indicative of a turn of the dollar's fortunes," said Gary Dorsch, a currency analyst at Oppenheimer Rouse Futures Inc. in Chicago.

After reaching record heights on Feb. 25, the dollar had plunged 12.4 percent through last Thursday. But in the three trading sessions since Thursday, it has rebounded 3.6 percent.

Dorsch said the reports were viewed "as old news" and that there was a growing "perception that the economy will pick up in the future."

Yields on three-month Treasury bills jumped nearly a fifth of a percentage point from Monday's weekly auction and prices of 30-year Treasury bonds, which move in the opposite direction of interest rates, fell $7.50 for each $1,000 in face value.

Earlier, expectations of a slowing economy and falling interest rates had hurt the dollar because of the prospect for a reduced return on dollar-denominated investments.

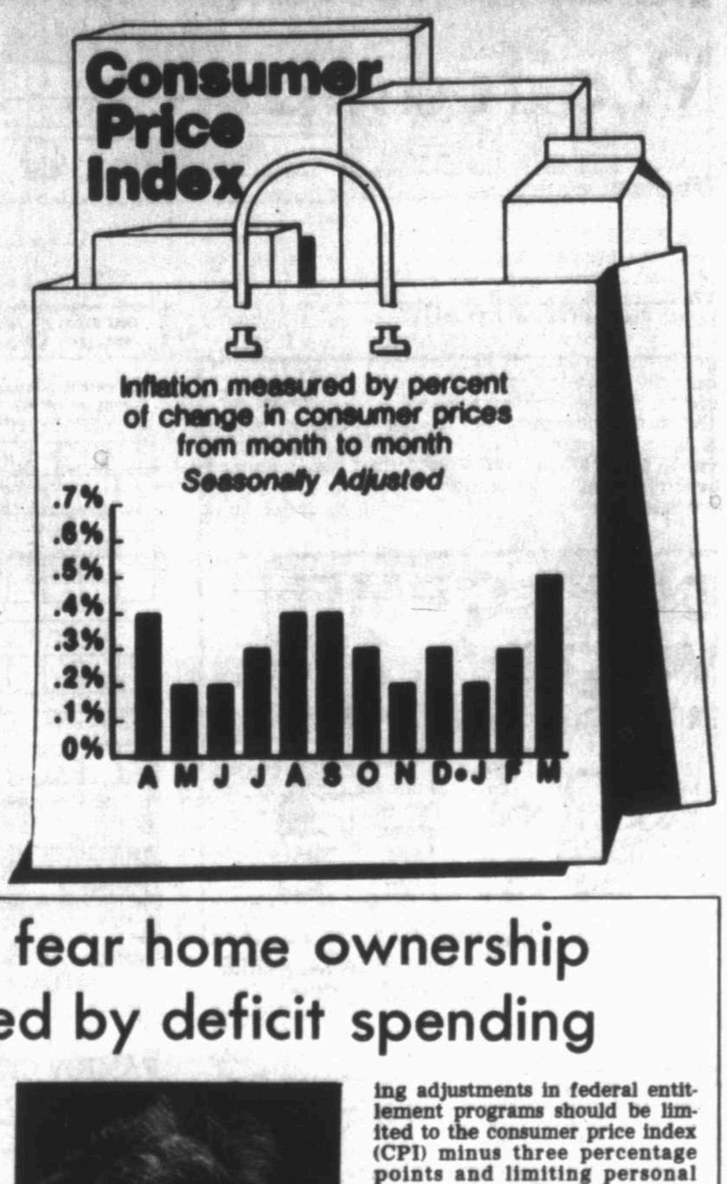

On Wall Street, financial, auto, paper and retail issues also paced the gainers.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials rose 12.15 to 1,278.71, its best gain since March 19, when it climbed 21.42. Tuesday's rise also lifted the average to its highest level since it stood at 1,280.37 on March 6.

Advances led declines 3 to 2 on the New York Stock Exchange, whose composite index rose 0.63 to 105.43.

Big Board volume swelled to 108.92 million shares — its highest level since March 19 — from 79.93 million in the previous session.

Until the final hour, when the Dow Jones industrials began moving up sharply, the market had extended its lackluster performance of recent weeks.

Airline chairman considers new competitive strategies

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — People Express Airlines Inc., which posted losses in the last two fiscal quarters, may introduce frequent flyer and frequent user packages to remain competitive against the larger carriers, the no-frills airline's chairman says.

In addition, Chairman Donald C. Burr on Tuesday attributed the two quarterly losses — the first in the 4-year-old company's history — to growing pains in the development of the airline, which has taken investors and the airline industry by surprise in becoming a popular carrier serving 32 destinations from its Newark hub.

He also told reporters after speaking at a meeting of the New Jersey Business and Industry Association that the airline's expansion would not be as fast as it had been in the past.

"We've reached our objective," said Burr, noting that his firm has added 14 new destinations to its schedule since last June.

He said the company was considering frequent flyer and frequent user programs in which travelers who use the airline often could take advantage of fare discounts or accumulate "points" toward free trips or vacations.

He said People Express was opposed to such programs, but noted it was considering them because of "competitive pressure."

Frequent flyer programs on other air carriers entice corporate travelers to choose a particular airline for frequent business trips by offering that individual "points" towards weekend flights and free vacation packages.

As a possible example of People Express' frequent user program, Burr said the airline might offer discounts if a passenger bought a large number of tickets to a particular destination.

The airline's expansion, which reached 100 percent to 150 percent annually since People Express's first flight in April 1980, was expected to be about 14 percent between March and December of this year, Burr said.

He said that growth included adding just four more Boeing 747's to the fleet during the next two years. People Express' 68 aircraft make a total of 394 flights daily.

People Express reported Tuesday it lost $18.8 million, or 99 cents per share, on revenues of $195 million for the first quarter ending March 31, 1985.

Company officials said the quarterly results stemmed from losses of between $20 million and $25 million for the first two months of this year.

Burr said results improved during March and were expected to continue recovery, partly because of an increase in the number of passengers and because of higher prices that went into effect in March. He also said new higher rates set to be phased in on several routes during June also would help and noted that rate increases already announced were the only ones foreseen by the airline.

"We're in pretty good shape on the fare front," Burr said.

Realtors fear home ownership threatened by deficit spending

By SUSAN LINDSAY
Business-Oil Writer

Home ownership is on the upswing in Midland but is threatened by federal deficit spending, said Joan Noel, president of the Midland Board of Realtors.

Noel said the local board has joined the National Association of Realtors in its call for a decrease in the federal budget and announcement of its "Three-for-all Plan" during Private Property Week, which runs Sunday through May 4.

"Private Property Week is one way of focusing public attention on the need to preserve and protect private property rights and increased awareness of the active role of realtors in their communities," she said.

Private property rights consist of the right to use, enjoy, sell or freely transfer ownership of real property except for certain limitations to protect the right of others, she said.

"Private property rights, which Americans enjoy through the U.S. Constitution, the Bill of Rights and common law, are the foundation of our nation's free enterprise system and the quality of life which is unique to America," she said.

Noel said federal spending has increased from $93 billion in 1960 to over $900 billion fiscal year 1985. The national debt, which was $300 billion in 1960, rose to more than $1 trillion in 1981, and is presently at $1.5 trillion. "Unless more budgetary changes are made, the national debt threatens to grow by $200 billion a year for the next three years," she said.

"The National Association of Realtors has proposed a plan to cut the $200 billion deficits projected for the foreseeable future, without exacting an unfair sacrifice by any Americans," she said.

The plan states that cost-of-living adjustments in federal entitlement programs should be limited to the consumer price index (CPI) minus three percentage points and limiting personal income tax bracket indexing for inflation to three percentage points less than CPI increases.

The plan also says that defense spending should be allowed to grow by less than 5 percent annually and domestic discretionary spending should be frozen.

Noel said the plan does not call for any existing entitlement program benefits and no increase in taxes. Instead, it would slow the growth of entitlement payments and reduce the size of the tax benefit expected from indexing, she said.

She said the program is necessary to create a better housing market.

There are several benefits from owning a home, including greater personal savings, she said.

A recent University of Michigan study showed that homeowners save 50 percent more than renters at the same income level, she said.

Homeowners typically have a higher standard of living with reduced reliance on governmental retirement programs, she said. As an example, she noted that among Americans 65 or older, homeowners amassed $21,600 in net assets while renters had only $100 in net assets.

Unocal raises stakes in takeover battle against Pickens

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unocal Corp. on Tuesday raised the stakes in battle against Texas oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr., offering $3.6 billion to buy back more than 28 percent of its stock whether or not Pickens succeeds in his bid to gain control of the company.

Unocal's $72-per-share offer gave shareholders who have tendered their stock to a Pickens-led investor group just three days to change to their minds.

It also increases the pressure on the Pickens' group, Mesa Partners II, to sweeten its bid.

Pickens, chairman of Mesa Petroleum Co. of Amarillo, Texas, responded by telling a Unocal shareholders meeting in Los Angeles to tender their stock to Unocal.

"Go ahead and take the $72," Pickens told the shareholders. "It's a good price."

But at the same time, Pickens urged shareholders to send him their proxies to postpone Unocal's annual meeting next Monday so the Pickens group will have more time to mount its takeover bid and nominate its own slate of directors.

T. Boone Pickens, Jr.

Even though the stock buyback would create a heavy debt burden for Unocal, it would give the Pickens group a bigger percentage of the company because fewer shares would be left outstanding.

Meantime, Unocal said its first-quarter earnings rose by only three-tenths of a percent to $180.7 million, or $1.04 per share, on revenues of $2.8 billion, compared to a year earlier when it earned $180.1 million, or $1.04 per share, on sales of $2.7 billion.

Unocal, based in Los Angeles and the nation's 13th-largest oil company, is offering to buy 50 million shares of its stock with securities valued at $72 a share.

Pickens' group is currently offering $54 a share for 64 million shares of Unocal.

Unocal stock rose $1.25 to close at $49.25 a share as the most active issue on the New York Stock Exchange. Nearly 5.5 million shares changed hands.

Unocal, the parent of Union Oil Co. of California, said Tuesday it was revising an earlier stock buyback plan that Pickens' had criticized as being too conditional. He had said it was an illusory because it guaranteed shareholders nothing.

The original plan called for Unocal to buy back 87.2 million shares of its stock, or 49.9 percent, with securities valued at $72 a share, only if Pickens' group succeeded in its $54-a-share offer to expand its holdings in Unocal from 13.6 percent to 50.1 percent.

Unocal said that in addition to now offering to buy 50 million shares regardless of Pickens' progress, it still will offer to buy an additional 37.2 million shares if the Pickens group succeeds in its bid.

Eugene Nowak, an oil industry analyst at the New York securities firm Dean Witter Reynolds, said Unocal's new stock repurchase plan would make a takeover less attractive to Pickens because it would substantially increase the company's debt.

Unocal's debt was $1.12 billion at the end of 1984. Financing the repurchase of 50 million shares would add another $3.6 billion in debt, while the purchase of 87.2 million shares would cost $6.3 billion.

Nowak said, however, "It's not an unwieldy debt. It's not a deal killer."

Nowak noted that an earlier Pickens target — Phillips Petroleum Co. of Bartlesville, Okla. — increased its debt load by $4.5 billion to finance a restructuring to placate Pickens and a later suitor, financier Carl Icahn.

Nowak also said the actual value being placed on Unocal's stock-note swap is "very near" the face value of $72 per share because holders of the notes would have first claim on company assets.

Usually, debt securities are discounted from their face value based on such factors as their backing, interest rates and length of time to maturity.

'Lobster Walk' benefits March of Dimes

By SUSAN LINDSAY

On-the-job miles clocked by local RED LOBSTER servers wearing pedometers will benefit the March of Dimes during the company's annual "Lobster Walk."

Gene Slotke, manager of the Midland restaurant, said the walk will continue through Monday. He said his employees' daily average is about two to five miles each.

The miles recorded will generate cash donations pledged to each employee on a per-mile basis. The walks are designed to give local March of Dimes chapters a head start on their activities for the organization's national "Walk America" fund drive.

AMOCO PRODUCTION CO., Andrews, has completed the No. 114 Midland Farms Deep Unit, prolific Wolfcamp oil producer in the Midland Farms field of Andrews County, to flow 463 barrels of 41.1 gravity crude with 268 Mcfd and two barrels of water on a 12/64 inch choke, flowing tubing pressure of 150 psi. Gas-oil ratio is 579:1. The well is flowing from the Wolfcamp interval 8,329 to 8,833 ft., which had been acidized with 11,780 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Drilled to 9,401 ft., the well is plugged back to 8,885 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 9,401 ft.

On ground elevation of 3,036.4 ft., formation tops include the Yates at 2,998, Grayburg at 4,418, Clearfork at 6,123, Wichita Albany at 7,437, Wolfcamp Zone I at 8,308, and Wolfcamp Zone II at 8,463 ft. The top of the pay is 8,329 ft.

According to Steve Brown, District Manager for Amoco out of Andrews, the company has plans to drill several offset wells to the No. 114. He said the operator has reason to believe there might be some similar wells in the field.

Martin discovery pumps 15 barrels

CITATION OIL & GAS CORP., Houston, has completed the No. 1 Ervin Eoff, Martin County wildcat, to pump 15 barrels of 35.5 gravity crude and no water. Citation perforated the pay 7,247 to 7,473 ft. and acidized with 9,500 gallons of 15 percent NeFe acid.

Drilled to 12,200 ft., the well is plugged back to 8,422 ft. with 5 1/2 inch casing set at 8,427 ft.

Service Fracturing to buy assets of the Buie Co., Inc.

PAMPA (SWN) — Service Fracturing Co. has signed a letter of intent to acquire all the property, plant and equipment of The Buie Co., Inc. of Wichita, Kansas for $1,600,000 in cash, Jerry H. Guinn, Serfco president, announced.

Buie is an oil and gas well servicing firm specializing in acidizing and fracturing wells, which is the same business Serfco is in. In addition to the regional office in Wichita, Buie operates district offices in Pratt and Great Bend, Kansas. The closely held firm has been in business since 1980, and is owned by brothers Jerry and Ron Buie.

Guinn said the two firms will sign a definitive agreement on May 1 and expect to close on May 31. He added that the Pratt and Great Bend operations of Buie are a good natural expansion of Serfco's existing operations at Perryton, Texas, and Woodward, Oklahoma. "The sales office at Wichita also will enable Serfco to expand its industry contacts for these operating areas," Guinn added.

Councilman, firm receive conviction

NEW YORK (AP) — Former City Councilman Eugene Mastropieri faces up to 18 months in prison following a federal appeals court's decision upholding his conviction and that of the Southland Corp. on conspiracy charges.

Mastropieri and Southland, the Dallas-based parent of the 7-Eleven convenience store chain, were also fined $10,000 each following their conviction in a Brooklyn federal court in a case that grew out of a bribery plot.

Prosecutors charged that in the late 1970s, while still a councilman, Mastropieri took $96,500 from Southland in a plan to bribe at least one state tax official in order to settle a tax case against the company. No official was ever identified as a bribe target nor was any money ever paid, prosecutors said.

The Brooklyn jury found Mastropieri guilty of conspiring both to commit the bribery and to deceive the Internal Revenue Service by listing the fee from the company as a legitimate business expense. Southland was found guilty only of conspiring to deceive the IRS.

The verdict was unanimously affirmed Tuesday by the U.S. 2nd Circuit Court of Appeals.

Mastropieri, a Queens Democrat, resigned from the Council shortly before he was indicted in 1980 for income tax evasion and perjury. He served several months in prison after his conviction in that case, and now manages a chain of laundries in Queens and Nassau County.

His attorney, Gerald Shargel, said he would have to study the appeals court's decision before deciding whether to seek review by the U.S. Supreme Court.

Southland has vigorously denied the charges and contended the jury's verdict on its conduct was inconsistent. The company's attorney, Peter Bleakley of Washington, was unavailable for comment Tuesday, a secretary said.

BUSINESS BRIEFS

Southwest's income decreases $4.9 million

DALLAS (AP) — Southwest Airlines Tuesday reported a drop in net income for the first quarter of $4.9 million compared to the same period in 1984.

For the three months ending March 31, the company earned net income of $5.32 million compared to the $10.22 million earned in the record 1984 first quarter.

Earnings per share of 18 cents represent a 48.6 percent reduction from the 35 cents-per-share earned a year ago.

Although operating revenues increased 8.5 percent to $135.7 million compared to the first quarter of 1984, operating expenses increased 15.7 percent to $126.7 million.

In a statement, board chairman and president Herbert D. Kelleher said the results of a "very strong March" could not counteract extreme weather in January and February. The company also incurred start-up expenses in the quarter by beginning service to Chicago and St. Louis on March 17, as well as battled fare reductions by other airlines in early 1985.

A merger between Southwest Airlines and Muse Air, another Dallas-based carrier, is pending.

Diamond Shamrock has decrease in income

DALLAS (AP) — Diamond Shamrock Tuesday reported a slight decrease in net income, accompanied by a 16 percent decline in sales for the first quarter of 1985.

Net income was $59.1 million, or 44 cents per share, compared with $59.5 million, or 43 cents per share in the first quarter of 1984, the company reported.

For the first quarter of 1985, sales and operating revenues were $954.7 million, down from $1.1 billion in the same period a year ago, Diamond Shamrock reported.

"Despite the continued tough environment in the oil and gas business, all of our businesses continue to report solid performances, while our balance sheet remains very strong," William H. Bricker, chairman and chief executive officer of Diamond Shamrock, said in a prepared statement.

On a pre-tax basis, first quarter results of $109.8 million included a gain of $24.5 million from the sale of the company's interest in Japanese joint venture in the agricultural chemical and animal health fields, Bricker said.

Company President J.L. Jackson, commenting on first quarter business trends, said that "the oversupply of petroleum products worldwide resulted in lower profit margins this quarter for both the North American and international crude oil and natural gas operations. Compared to last year's first quarter, exploration costs were up modestly."

Net crude production was 77,660 barrels per day for the quarter, flat with last year's first quarter production, Jackson said.

He said that natural gas production in North America reached 310 million cubic feet per day this quarter, up 4 percent from a year ago, due primarily to intensified marketing activities.

SBA revenue bonds approved by committee

AUSTIN (AP) — First issuance of industrial revenue bonds by the Texas Small Business Industrial Development Corp. was approved Tuesday by the Texas Economic Development Corp.

The bonds, totaling $1.89 million, will be used to finance a manufacturing facility in Dallas, a warehouse-office in San Antonio, and a commercial office and warehouse complex in Hurst.

The Small Business Industrial Development Corp. was created in 1983 as a statewide insurer of industrial revenue bonds to help small businesses grow.

Gulf-Chevron merger gets final approval

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has approved the last of a series of divestitures it had required as a condition for authorizing the $13.3 billion acquisition of Gulf Corp. by Chevron Corp., the biggest business combination in U.S. history.

The FTC announced Tuesday that it has approved Chevron's plan to sell 51 percent of Gulf's stake in the West Texas-Gulf Pipeline to three of its partners. Gulf owned 57 percent of the pipeline.

It was the final divestiture of Gulf assets required by the FTC to resolve anti-trust concerns in the giant oil industry merger.

On March 14, the FTC had given Chevron permission to begin integrating the assets of the two companies, noting only one final step remained in the required sales of assets.

Financier stops proxy fight against Tiger

LOS ANGELES (AP) — New York financier Saul Steinberg has called off his proxy fight against Tiger International Inc., which bowed to his demand that he be given seats on Tiger's board.

Steinberg is the largest shareholder in the company.

In a brief announcement Tuesday, the air cargo and trucking concern said it has agreed to expand the size of its board to 11 instead of nine members.

Tiger also agreed to nominate Steinberg, chairman of Reliance Financial Services Corp., and a Steinberg ally, Stephen Peck, a partner in the investment firm of PPN Partners, to fill the two positions.

Directors are to be elected at Tiger's May 23 annual meeting.

Multimedia reports quarterly earnings

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Communications giant Multimedia Inc. on Tuesday reported net earnings for the first quarter of 1985 were $7.6 million, up 9 percent from the $7.03 million earned in the same quarter last year.

Earnings per share were 46 cents, compared with 42 cents during the same quarter of 1984.

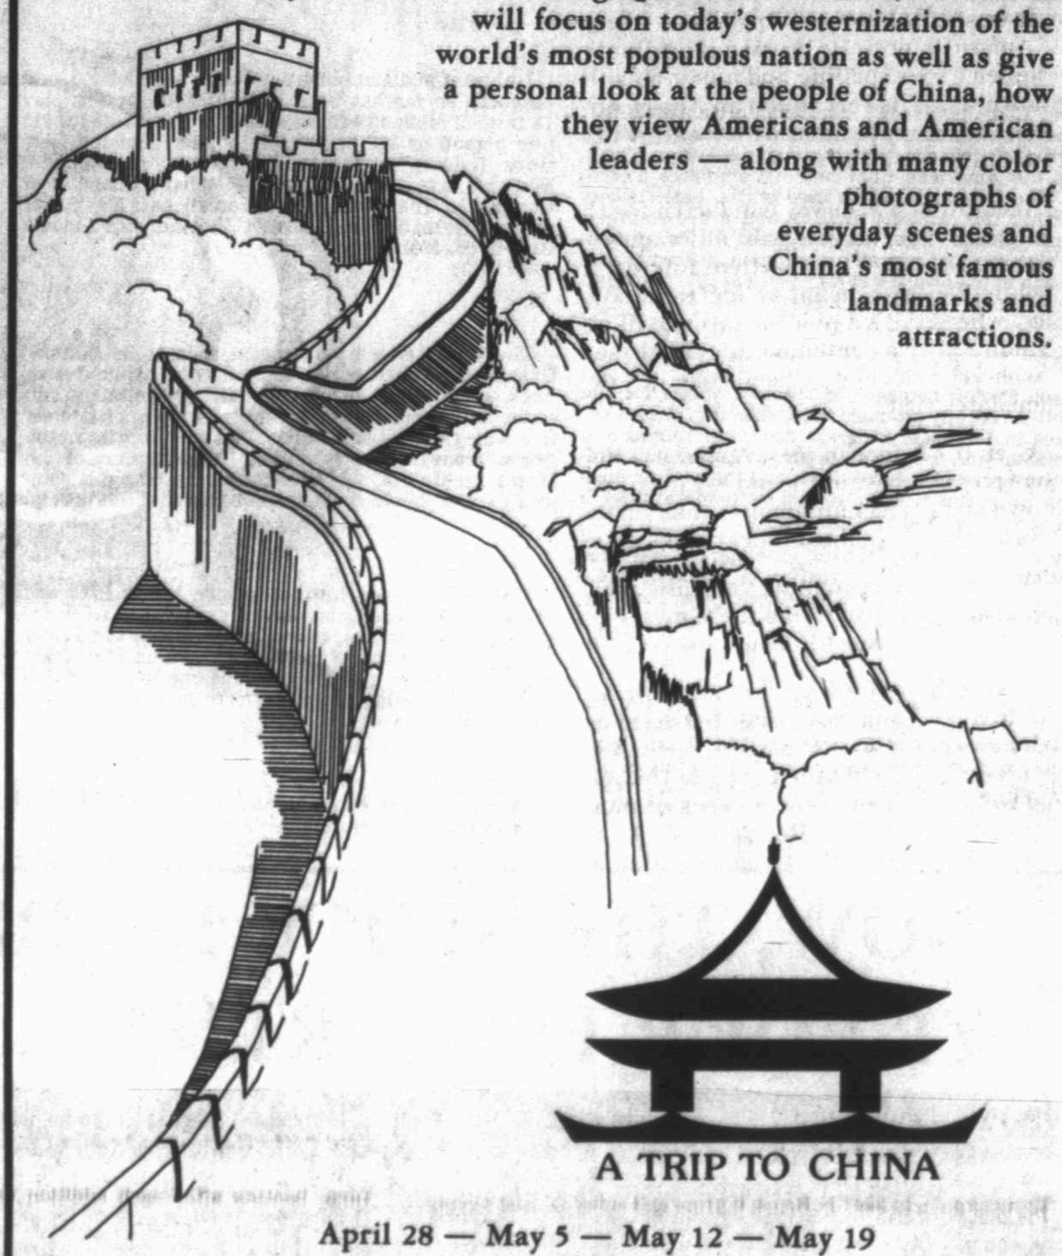

Revenues for the first quarter totaled $73.86 million, compared with $65.9 million for a gain of 12 percent. Broadcasting revenues were up 14 percent to $31.25 million from $27.5 million, while cablevision revenues increased 13 percent to $17.9 million from $15.8 million. Newspaper revenues were $24.68 million, compared with $22.6 million, an increase of 9 percent.

Xerox planning to sell its education publishing firms

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — The Xerox Corp. said Monday that it would sell its educational publishing companies to four buyers for more than $500 million.

Xerox, which has encountered difficulties in its primary businesses of office systems and financial services in recent years, said it would use the proceeds to reduce debt, which at the end of 1984 was $1.6 billion.

"These sales also permit tighter focus of Xerox resources on our mainstream businesses," said David T. Kearns, president and chief executive of the company, which is based in Stamford, Conn.

The announcement came about one week before Xerox is scheduled to introduce a line of office automation equipment, and analysts said the divestiture should help underscore the company's commitment to that segment of its business.

"It's a streamlining operation for them," said Philip A. Cavalier, an analyst at Pershing & Co.. "It's better for them to take the $500 million and focus their operations on digital technology and their office-automation systems."

Xerox said it had signed letters of intent with four companies to purchase its publishing units. The International Thomson Organization Ltd., through its United States holding company, has agreed to purchase the R.R. Bowker Co., University Microfilms International and Autex Systems. Gulf and Western Industries has agreed to buy Ginn & Co.. The Field Corp. will buy Xerox Education Publications, and the Times Mirror Co. will acquire Xerox Learning Systems. All of the buyers are already involved in publishing.

Specific purchase prices will be disclosed when definitive agreements are signed, Xerox said. It added that the transactions should be completed by late May or early June.

Xerox began acquiring educational publishing companies about two decades ago, when the outlook for growth in its copier business became uncertain. But the publishing units, while profitable, did not grow at the rate that Xerox had hoped, analysts said.

Since then, the company has diversifiedinto the financial services field, acquiring Crum & Forster, a property and casualty insurance company, for $1.6 billion in January 1983.

"The educational business no longer fits into their strategy," said Eugene Glazer, an analyst at Dean Witter Reynolds Inc. Glazer estimated that profits for the educational publishing units were between $35 million and $50 million in 1984.

Last week, Xerox said that it wanted to develop 2,267 acres of land it owns near Leesburg, Va., for corporate and residential use. A Xerox spokesman said that the land sale was a long-term project that was not intended to help pay down the company's debts.

Analysts said that Xerox has high hopes for the new line of office-automation equipment, including computer communications systems and printers. "The capital requirements of that technology are enormous," Cavalier said. "They have to refocus themselves on that."

Xerox earlier reported income from continuing operations in 1984 of $375.6 million, or $3.42 a share, down 23 percent from the $491 million, or $4.68 a share, reported for 1983.

E-Systems reports record sales

DALLAS (AP) — E-Systems announced at its annual shareholders meeting Tuesday record quarterly sales and new order booking that resulted in the highest backlog ever achieved.

Also, company officials said, net income from operations set a first-quarter record high.

Sales for January-March of this year totaled $220.5 million, compared to $193 million for the same period in 1984, officials said.

Net income for the first quarter was $14.5 million, or 48 cents a share, compared to $15.8 million, or 52 cents a share, for the same period last year. However, last year's first-quarter net income included a non-recurring gain of $2.1 million, or 7 cents a share, from sale of property.

Classic American Pies

It was once known as "pye," but when that favorite of American desserts crossed the Atlantic Ocean, it adopted a new spelling and a new meaning. Pie, as it's known today, is very much an American classic. In Scotland, pies are filled with meat. A Frenchman, unfamiliar with the word, opts for tarts or flan.

According to a survey conducted for the Keebler Company, more than a half billion pies are baked at home each year. The rebirth of interest in American cooking has also meant an increased awareness in pies, whether it's a pioneer favorite like Shaker Lemon Pie or a contemporary classic such as Raspberry Chocolate Cheesecake in a delicious chocolate crust.

Even the prince of pies, Apple, has undergone some changes. The best of the old — tangy apples, rich brown sugar and cinnamon — take on new flavor appeal when combined in a crisp graham crust.

Whether you're making your first pie or you're a seasoned cook, you'll find these pies will soon become the classics of your kitchen, too.

SHAKER LEMON PIE

1 Butter Flavored Pie Crust
1 egg yolk, slightly beaten
2 large lemons
4 eggs, beaten well
2 cups sugar

Preheat oven to 375° F. Brush bottom and sides of crust evenly with egg yolk; bake on baking sheet until light brown, about 5 minutes. Remove crust from oven.

Slice lemons as thin as paper, rind and all. Combine with sugar and let stand for 2 hours or longer. Add beaten eggs to lemon mixture; mix well. Spoon into crust, arranging lemon slices evenly. Bake on baking sheet for 30 minutes. Cool 2 hours before serving.

RASPBERRY CHOCOLATE CHEESECAKE

1 Chocolate Flavored Pie Crust
12 ounces cream cheese, softened
1/2 cup sugar
1 teaspoon vanilla
2 eggs
1/2 cup frozen raspberries, well drained

Glaze:
1 teaspoon butter
1 ounce unsweetened chocolate
1/4 cup powdered sugar
1 teaspoon dark corn syrup
1 tablespoon cream or evaporated milk
2 teaspoons boiling water
1/2 teaspoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 325° F. In medium bowl, beat cream cheese until fluffy. Gradually add sugar and vanilla. Add eggs one at a time, beating after each addition until well blended. Fold in raspberries, reserving a few for garnish. Place crust on baking sheet. Fill with raspberry mixture. Bake for 35 minutes. Cool completely and refrigerate.

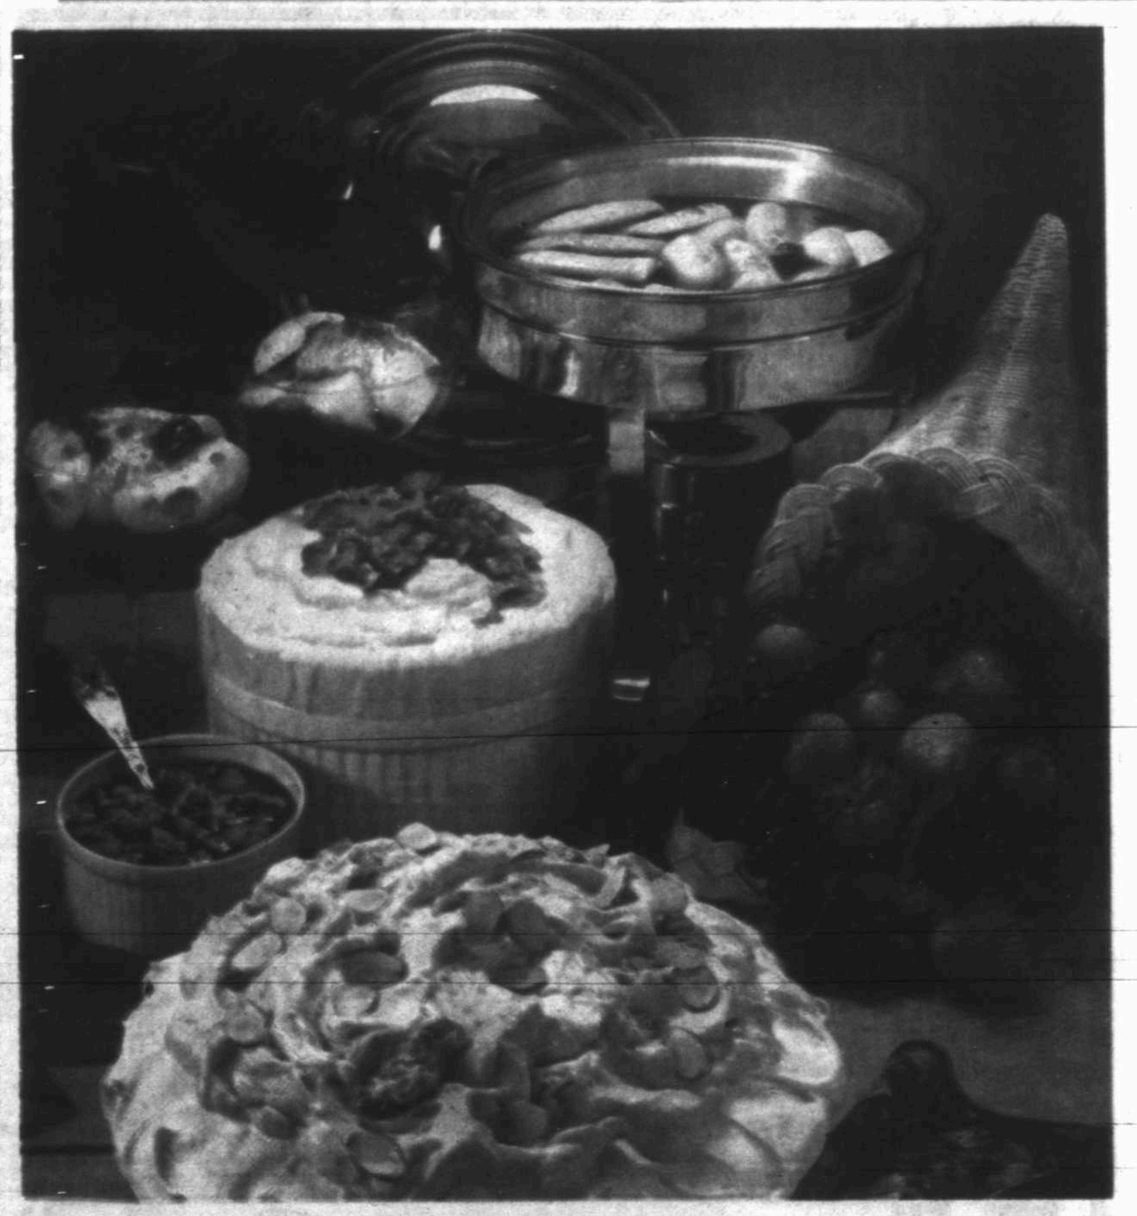

To make glaze: Place all ingredients except vanilla into saucepan. Stir constantly over low heat until chocolate is melted. Remove from heat. Stir in vanilla. Pour over chilled cheesecake and refrigerate for 4 hours. Garnish with reserved raspberries.

DUTCH APPLE PIE

1 Graham Cracker Pie Crust
1 egg yolk, beaten
5-1/2 cups fresh, peeled, sliced cooking apples
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1/2 cup sugar
1/4 cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
1/4 teaspoon nutmeg
Topping Mixture:
3/4 cup flour
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup brown sugar
1/3 cup butter or margarine

Preheat oven to 375° F. Brush bottom and sides of crust evenly with egg yolk; bake on baking sheet until light brown, about 5 minutes. Remove crust from oven.

Combine sliced apples, lemon juice, sugar, brown sugar, flour, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Mix well and spoon into crust. In medium bowl, combine topping mix of flour, sugar, brown sugar and butter with a fork until crumbly. Sprinkle topping mixture evenly over apples. Bake on baking sheet until topping is golden and filling is bubbling, about 50 minutes. Cool.

Delectable Desserts

Many of us are experimenting with cooking these days. Recent studies have shown that more of us are cooking from scratch for a variety of reasons. We're looking for better taste, flavor, economy and natural ingredients. We want to be able to control what goes into our food, to season as we choose and to make food preparation more personal and imaginative.

Desserts are one area where a cook can really indulge his or her creativity. Light, elegant desserts like the ones suggested here are easy.

For example, grape jelly makes a flavorful sauce to complement the tart taste of the Frosty Lime Souffle. The light and airy Strawberry Angel Pie gets its delicate pink color and great flavor from strawberry preserves. And either grape or strawberry jam turns everyday bananas into a ready-in-minutes showpiece when flamed at the table.

Both the souffle and pie can be made in advance and refrigerated until serving time.

STRAWBERRY ANGEL PIE

(Makes 8 servings)

4 egg whites
1/4 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup sugar
1/2 cup finely chopped almonds
2 cups heavy cream
2 tablespoons orange flavored liqueur OR 1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 cup Strawberry Preserves
Sliced almonds or candied violets

Beat egg whites and cream of tartar until foamy. Gradually beat in sugar and continue beating until meringue forms stiff, glossy peaks. Fold in chopped almonds. Spread over bottom and sides of greased 9-inch pie plate; use a spatula or back of spoon to spread meringue to 1/4-inch thickness on bottom and 1-inch on sides. Bake at 275°F. for 1 hour. Turn off oven; leave meringue in oven until cool.

Whip cream to soft peaks. Fold in orange flavored liqueur and Strawberry Preserves. Spoon into cool meringue shell. Chill or freeze overnight. Garnish with almonds or candied violets.

FROSTY LIME SOUFFLE

(Makes 8 servings)

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
3/4 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 eggs, separated
1/2 cup cold water
1/3 cup lime juice
2-1/2 teaspoons grated lime peel
1/8 teaspoon green food coloring
1 cup heavy cream
1 cup Grape Jelly
1/4 cup undrained crushed pineapple
1/2 cup chopped macadamia nuts, almonds, pecans or walnuts

In top of double boiler, combine gelatin, 1/4 cup sugar and salt until well blended. In bowl, beat egg yolks with 1/2 cup cold water and lime juice until well mixed; stir into gelatin mixture. Cook over hot, not boiling, water; stir constantly until mixture is thickened and coats the back of a spoon. Remove from heat and stir in 2 teaspoons grated lime peel and food coloring. Pour into large bowl and cool to room temperature; stir occasionally.

In small mixer bowl, beat egg whites until foamy. Gradually add remaining 1/2 cup sugar and continue beating until egg whites are stiff but not dry.

Whip cream. Pile cream and egg whites on top of yolk mixture; gently fold in. Spoon into 5-cup souffle dish. Chill until firm, at least 3 hours.

BANANAS AFLAME

(Makes 4 servings)

1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/2 cup Grape or Strawberry Jam
4 medium ripe bananas, quartered
Dash cinnamon
1/4 cup banana liqueur
3 ounces light rum
Vanilla ice cream

Melt butter in chafing dish or skillet. Add Grape or Strawberry Jam and blend well. Add bananas and saute several minutes. Sprinkle with cinnamon. Pour banana liqueur and rum over fruit and ignite, basting bananas with flaming liquid. When flame dies out, serve over vanilla ice cream.

DEAR ABBY

Children who open books also open up the world

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: As an eighth-grade English and social studies teacher, I am trying to encourage my students to establish the habit of reading.

Students tend to emulate and identify with famous people, so I am asking various celebrities to help me with this project. As you know, Abby, better educated students grow up to be more informed and responsible citizens.

Would you please write a paragraph or two, stressing the importance of reading?

Thank you for your time and help. — RAY SMYTHE, PORTLAND, ORE.

DEAR MR. SMYTHE: With pleasure. If I could give young people one piece of advice, it would be, read, read, read!

Reading will open up new worlds, real and imagined. Read for information, read for pleasure, read for inspiration. Our libraries contain a wealth of information and entertainment, and it's all yours — as much as you want — free for the taking!

The person who DOES NOT read has no advantage over the person who CANNOT read.

And since last week was National Library Week, I want to encourage parents to read to their very young children. This loving act will create a bond of closeness between parent and child as well as make the child aware of the buried treasures that can be found in books.

Let me share with you the closing paragraph from one of my favorite poems, "The Reading Mother" by Strickland Gillilan:

"You may have tangible wealth untold;
"Caskets of jewels and coffers of gold.
"Richer than I you can never be
"I had a mother who read to me."

DEAR ABBY: "Waiter in Beverly Hills" was way off base when he said, "The cook is the highest paid employee in the restaurant — in fact, in the better restaurants the cook has more money than the people who eat there."

Abby, some chefs may make that kind of money, but there's a big difference between a cook and a chef. A chef is a well-trained, specially schooled, high-salaried professional for whom cooking is an art — not just a job.

In case you don't know it, the most overworked and underpaid employee in a restaurant is the busboy. Everything you touch, the busboy has washed before you got there, and he'll wash it again after you leave. He gives the cook clean plates for the food, and the waiter clean silver and clean glasses. He's the one you see balancing a tray with about 100 pounds of dishes on it. If a busboy makes a minimum wage, he's lucky. Fortunately, the waiters and waitresses do share their tips with him, but it's not much.

Don't get me wrong; everybody in the restaurant business really works hard and few get rich, but if there's an extra tip to be given, remind your readers to give it to the busboy. — SAN ANTONIO COOK

Grape season brings fresh menu flavor

By TOM HOGE
AP Food and Wine Writer

The season for California grapes has arrived. Every state grows some grapes, but California contributes the greatest part of the crop destined for commercial consumption.

Two of California's major table grapes, the Perlette with its frosty green hue and the red Cardinal, become available in May. The Perlettes are around until July and the Cardinal season runs through August. Thompson seedless arrive in June.

The popularity of grapes in America has soared in recent years, moving up from 10th among fresh fruits in 1972 to fifth place in 1982, according to the California Table Grape Commission. The emphasis on natural foods has been a big factor in this dramatic increase. Physical fitness has become an important motivation in our diet.

The California grape season, under normal weather conditions, begins about mid-May and continues through January of the following year.

Unlike many fresh fruits, grapes can be harvested only when they are ripe. After picking they will not get any sweeter.

The fruit must be well protected after harvesting, since it is vulnerable to warm temperature, excessive moisture and mold.

The origin of grapes is obscure, but it is believed that they existed as far back as 4000 B.C. The Scriptures say that grapes were the first vegetation planted by Noah after the Flood.

Most of the grapes produced commercially in America are said to come from vines of the same species that were cultivated in Asia Minor in prehistoric times.

Grapes are good in many dishes, both hot and cold, but my favorite is in salads such as this one, featuring chicken.

GRAPE-CHICKEN SALAD

2 cups diced cooked chicken breast
½ cup sliced celery
½ cup green pepper bits
½ cup French dressing
2 cups seedless grapes
Salt and pepper to taste
Salad greens, including lettuce and cucumber
½ cup dairy sour cream
1 ounce white wine
¼ cup walnut bits

Marinate chicken, celery and green pepper in French dressing 1 hour. Add grapes and season with salt and pepper. Arrange on greens. Mix sour cream and wine and add to salad. Garnish with nuts. Serves 4.

Dried plums can take the place of candies

By TOM HOGE
AP Wine and Food Writer

When I attended boarding school many years ago, prunes were served for breakfast every day, and my liking for this tasty dried fruit palled.

But when I went out into the world, I acquired the habit of munching pitted prunes instead of candy. Soon I was putting prunes in pie, cake and puddings. To this day, I have prunes in one form or another almost every week.

Thus it was with considerable interest that I recently read a book about the origins and development of the prune. This dried plum had its beginning in Asia, then made its way to Europe, where it quickly became a favorite as a snack, in desserts and as a stuffing for meats and poultry.

All prunes are plums, but not all plums have the special quality to make good prunes. Some dry better than others, it seems.

Today, prune plums are grown mainly in California, where 73,000 acres are under cultivation. In fact, California now provides about 75 percent of the world's prune supply and about 98 percent of those grown in the United States.

Until fairly recently, prune plums were allowed to fall to the ground, then hand-gathered. Now, large machines called mechanical shakers grip the base of ech plum tree and in a few minutes shake the fruit onto a large canvas. From there they are put on a conveyor to big bins.

As soon as the fruit is harvested, it is washed, placed on large wooden trays and put in dehydrator tunnels. Under controlled temperature, the fruit is dried for from 15 to 24 hours. It takes about three pounds of fresh plums to make one pound of prunes.

Many people used to avoid prunes because the pits made eating difficult. But today, special machinery has been developed to remove the pits. About 30 percent are treated thus and the figure is steadily rising.

Prunes are especially good in cake or cookies, as in this recipe for Chocolate Nuggets.

CHOCOLATE PRUNE NUGGETS

½ cup butter or margarine, softened
1 cup brown sugar, packed
½ cup milk
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 egg, beaten
1⅓ cups flour
⅓ cup cocoa powder
9 ounces coarsely chopped prunes (about 1⅓ cups)
½ cup chopped walnuts
½ cup semi-sweet chocolate pieces
Powdered sugar

In large bowl, cream butter and brown sugar. Mix milk with soda and add to butter mixture, along with the egg. Beat thoroughly to blend. (Mixture will appear curdled). Mix in flour and cocoa and blend thoroughly. Mix in prunes, nuts and chocolate bits. Drop by heaping teaspoonfuls 2 inches apart onto greased cookie sheets. Bake in 375-degree oven 8 to 10 minutes. Remove to racks to cool. Dust with powdered sugar. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

To obtain other recipes, taken mostly from Tom Hoge's writings over the past years, send $2 for a copy of "101 Recipes" to Gourmet Corner, AP Newsfeatures, 50 Rockefeller Plaza, New York, NY 10020.

Cupcakes tasty at teatime

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Cupcakes, glazed with apricot preserves and topped with coconut, were in style for teatime fare in the 1920s. Those were the days when cupcakes such as these were served warm from the oven because then their texture is at its best. A hostess had household help or else she had to be in the kitchen until shortly before her guests arrived.

The way we serve these cupcakes warm these days is to bake them ahead, leave them plain and then, when we need them, reheat them briefly in a hot oven. Only the apricot glaze and the coconut topping is added just before serving.

APRICOT AND COCONUT CUPCAKES

1½ cups sifted cake flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
⅛ teaspoon salt
Two ¼-pound sticks butter, at room temperature
¾ cup sugar
3 large eggs
2 tablespoons milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
½ cup sieved apricot preserves
Shredded or flaked coconut

Grease and flour eight 6-ounce custard cups. On a sheet of wax paper sift together flour, baking powder and salt.

In a medium or large bowl, beat butter until fluffy. Gradually beat in sugar. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until blended after each addition. Gradually and gently beat in flour mixture until blended; beat in milk and vanilla. Turn into prepared custard cups. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester comes out clean — 20 to 25 minutes.

Turn out of cups onto wire rack; leave bottom side up. While still warm, spread outside of cupcakes with apricot preserves; top with coconut. Serve at once. Serves 8.

McDonald's first employee recalls company's history

By JOHN FLINN
Hearst News Service

Art Bender recalls it as if it were yesterday, but it happened 36 years and 51,807,000,000 burgers ago.

It was in a little restaurant off Route 66 in San Bernardino, Calif. The date was Dec. 19, 1948. At 6 p.m., Bender unlocked the front door and let in a chubby, 10-year-old girl who had been waiting outside. She stepped up to the counter and asked for six hamburgers.

With that order, the first McDonald's hamburgers were sold.

Bender, now 67, was the company's first employee, and is the former owner of seven McDonald's franchises. He also has a few confessions which may cause the McDonald's PR people to wince. He says he never was thrilled about the Filet-O-Fish, that some McDonald's and Burger King franchises buy their beef and buns from the same supplier and that fast-food magnate Ray Kroc, who died last year, didn't get along with the original McDonald brothers.

It was Kroc who built McDonald's into what it is today, an empire of more than 8,300 restaurants that continues to expand at the rate of one new outlet every 17 hours. Under Kroc, the company raised its familiar golden arches in 32 countries, including Malaysia, Belgium, the Netherlands Antilles and Nicaragua.

"You can walk into any McDonald's in the world and the food will be exactly the same," Bender notes with pride. "Well, maybe the bun texture in Sweden and England is a little different."

Although the Illinois-based McDonald's Corp. likes to begin company history in 1955, when Kroc entered the picture, the actual roots go back to 1948. It was then that brothers Dick and Maurice "Mac" McDonald decided to convert their barbecue joint into a drive-in hamburger stand. As their first employee, they hired the then 31-year-old Bender, a musician who became a cook and counter person.

Hamburgers were 15 cents, fries a dime and milkshakes 20 cents. It was the era of the automobile, and Southern California was the center of the paved universe. Their drive-in was an instant hit, and the brothers cautiously began opening a few additional hamburger stands in the Los Angeles area.

Enter Kroc. In 1954, he was a distributor of five-spindle Multimixers who wanted to know why so many of the milkshake blenders were being sold in Southern California. One visit to a busy McDonald's gave him the answer.

"His first thought was that if he could open a bunch of these McDonald's restaurants he could sell a lot of Multimixers," Bender recalled. "The McDonald brothers didn't really want to get into the franchising business, so Kroc offered to do it."

The following year Kroc hired Bender to supervise the opening of his first franchise in Des Plaines, Ill. Under their franchise agreement, the McDonald brothers got one-half of 1 percent of the profits from all franchises.

By 1960, more than 200 McDonald's restaurants had sprouted up across the country, but friction was growing between Kroc and the brothers.

"They just didn't get along after awhile," Bender says. "Ray wanted to do things his way, but he always had to get their approval."

A year later, Kroc offered to buy out the brothers for $2.7 million. They agreed. It seemed like a good deal to them at the time, but it didn't wind up as the smartest business move ever made. Had they kept their original percentage, the McDonald family's share of 1984 sales alone would have been $50 million. Maurice died about 10 years ago; Dick is alive and living in New Hampshire.

Bender also ended up doing all right by the burger business. Kroc rewarded him for his loyalty by granting him one of the earliest franchises. He eventually owned seven outlets in the Fresno area, before selling them back to the corporation in 1980. He won't say exactly how much money he made, but it's a safe bet that he came out better than his former bosses, the McDonald brothers.

'McStatistics' for 1984 listed

Hearst News Service

During 1984, McDonald's used:

— 435 million pounds of ground beef, the equivalent of 435,000 head of cattle.

— 3.4 billion buns, enough to circle the globe at the equator 8.7 times.

— 3.2 million pounds of pickles, the equivalent in weight of five Saturn V rockets.

— 81.1 million pounds of cheese; no cute equivalents, but it's a lot of cheese.

— 5.4 million gallons of ketchup, enough to fill 164 jumbo railroad tank cars.

— 1.5 billion potatoes, one of every six potatoes grown last year in Idaho.

Other McFacts:

— McDonald's chef Rene Arend, creator of the Chicken McNugget, previously cooked for Queen Elizabeth and the King of Belgium.

— The first Ronald McDonald (in 1963) was Willard Scott, now weatherman for NBC's Today Show.

Honey topping crowns spice cake

HONEY TOPPING

In a small bowl, beat together ¼ cup butter (softened) and ⅓ cup honey until blended; stir in ¼ cup flaked coconut and ¾ cup coarsely chopped pecans.

Bake a spice cake in a 9-inch square pan; spread honey mixture over top of hot cake; broil about 6 inches from high heat, turning as necessary, until nuts are browned but not scorched — 2 to 3 minutes. Serve warm or cold, cut in squares in pan. —(AP)

Public library excellent source for new recipes

By BETTY WILSON
Hearst News Service

It isn't necessary to buy cookbooks if you avail yourself of a not-always-thought-of source. It's your public library.

Look under number 641.0 to find food-related subjects at the library. That category begins with books on the history of eating and continues on through information about specific foods, meal planning, special diets, entertaining and food preservation.

Among todays most popular titles in the food-related sections of libraries are books about Mexican food, pasta, cooking with wine, breads and soups. There also are children's books which help kids learn about food and develop good eating habits. These cookbooks offer basic information on food supply, diet and family meals, with simple recipes. The "Easy Menu Ethnic Cookbook" series will acquaint youngsters with eight other countries and their eating habits.

There also are books which contain foods mentioned in fairy tales and children's classic literature, such as "Heidi's Toasted Cheese Sandwiches." "The Little House Cookbook," by Barbara Walker, features recipes and information about frontier foods taken from stories by Laura Ingalls Wilder.

Library books last a long time. Published in 1951, "The New Settlement Cookbook" is where to look for great-grandma's special recipes.

("The Storybook Cookbook," Carol MacGregor)

2 eggs
¾ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
4 slices cheese
8 slices bread
4 tablespoons margarine

Break eggs into a pie pan and beat with a fork. Stir in milk and salt. With bread and cheese, make four sandwiches.

Melt two tablespoons of the margarine in a skillet over medium heat. Dip the sandwiches on both sides in the egg and milk mixture. Let them soak 1 minute. When the margarine is hot, place two sandwiches in the skillet and brown on each side, turning with a spatula. Remove. Add the remaining margarine to the skillet and brown the remaining two sandwiches.

MEAT LOAF
("Settlement Cook Book")

1½ pounds ground beef
½ pound ground pork
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 medium onion, minced
1 stalk celery, minced
1 medium carrot, grated
½ cup corn flakes
2 tablespoons barbecue sauce
1½ teaspoons salt
½ teaspoon pepper

Have the meat ground twice. Combine the beef and pork. Season with salt and pepper. Add other ingredients, mix well and shape into a loaf. Bake in a moderate oven, 350 degrees, for 1 hour. Strips of bacon may be placed over the top before baking. Serves 8.

Pepper pickle perfect for party

Associated Press

PEPPER PICKLE

2 large sweet red peppers (each about 8 ounces)
⅛ cup sugar
1 cup cider vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon (generous) pickling spice

Halve peppers lengthwise and remove seeds and membranes; cut lengthwise into 1½-inch wide strips. In a 2-quart saucepan over medium heat, bring sugar, vinegar, salt and spice to a boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Boil without stirring for 5 minutes. Add pepper strips and bring to a boil again; cover and boil until tender-crisp — 5 minutes. Store in a covered container in the refrigerator. Drain chilled pepper strips before serving. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Poppy seed wakes up flavor

By DIANE SAVAGE
Copley News Service

"Poppies! Poppies will make them sleep!" Who could forget the wicked old witch cackling with glee as Dorothy and her friends dozed just outside the emerald gates of Oz?

It's quite true that certain poppies can make you sleep. Papaver Somniferum (that's Latin for "sleep-bearing poppy"), contains the fluid from which opium is prepared.

But the tasty blue-black seeds in your kitchen spice rack come from a very different variety (Papaver Rhoeas), and are wholly free of sleep-inducing elements.

Popular in Central European cuisines, poppy seed often is an ingredient in cakes and in fillings for sweet breads and strudels. (When used as a filling, the seeds often are crushed.) Poppy seeds impart a delicate, nutty flavor to baked goods of all kinds. And as far back as 1500 B.C., Egyptians prized the seed as a source of cooking oil.

Here's a flavorful way to "wake up" your morning toast: Lightly spread slices of whole wheat bread with butter and a little honey. Sprinkle with poppy seeds and place under the broiler just until brown.

Sweet Poppy Dressing (recipe below) is as versatile as it is delicious. Serve on fruit or tossed green salads, or as a dip for raw vegetables or apple slices.

HONEY-POPPY CRACKERS

1½ cups whole wheat flour
¼ cup poppy seeds
1 tbsp. honey
¼ tsp. baking soda
¼ cup vegetable oil
⅓ cup cold water

In large mixing bowl, stir together flour, poppy seeds, honey, baking soda and oil. Add water gradually, stirring until mixture forms ball.

Roll out dough on cookie sheet and score into small squares or rectangles. Prick all over with fork.

Bake in preheated 350 F oven for 15 minutes. Let cool slightly, then remove carefully with spatula to wire rack and allow to cool completely. Store in airtight container.

Makes about 4 dozen crackers.

NOODLES FROM HEAVEN

2 tbsps. poppy seeds
⅓ cup slivered, blanched almonds
3 tbsps. butter or margarine
8 ozs. hot cooked, drained noodles
⅛ tsp. pepper

In small frying pan, saute poppy seeds and almond slivers in butter until butter is golden. Add to hot noodles along with pepper, tossing lightly to coat. Serve immediately.

Serves 4 to 6.

SWEET POPPY DRESSING

¾ cup cider vinegar
¾ cup tahini
¼ cup water
¼ cup honey
1½ tbsps. poppy seeds
Dash salt

Combine all ingredients in mixing bowl and beat with wire whisk until blended, or shake in covered jar.

Cover and refrigerate until ready to use. If too thick, add a little more water and stir to blend before serving. Makes about 2 cups.

American cooking gaining international respect

By MARY WENDT
Hearst News Service

Some of the credit for the revival of American regional cooking can be attributed to Betty Groff and her two best-sellers on Lancaster County Pennsylvania Dutch cooking.

Our cooking may have been influenced by techniques and ingredients from other countries, Groff says, but "Pennsylvania Dutch and Creole are the only pure American cuisines. The cooks used what was on hand — ingredients indigenous to the states — to prepare the dishes. I'm so proud of the dishes. European restaurants are even serving American food now. I don't think we'll ever get to the bottom of the wonderful foods served in the states."

Groff and her husband, Abram, are the owners of Groff's Farm Restaurant and the Cameron Estate Inn and Restaurant (which opened about four years ago) in Mount Joy, Penn., in Mennonite Lancaster Country.

Recipes for the special kind of country cuisine served in both her establishments are just a portion of her books, "Good Earth and Country Cooking" (Stackpole, 1974) and "Country Goodness Cookbook" (Doubleday, 1981); both books also could be read as homey, down-to-earth autobiographies.

GROFF'S COOKING career was launched when, as a young bride in the early '60s, she served an authentic Pennsylvania Dutch meal to 32 members of a camera club from the Internal Revenue Service in her dining room. The menu — home-cured ham, chicken and prime rib served with freshly-picked vegetables and all the trimmings — is basically the same served today, five nights a week for up to 130 people each evening.

New York Times food writer, Craig Claiborne, visited Groff's Farm in its early years and wrote a glowing account of the experience. Then food authority James Beard asked her to be a consultant for the "Eastland Heartland Cuisine" edition in the Time-Life series of "Foods of the World." Beard also insisted she write a book of her own. "Good Earth and Country Cooking," a joint venture with Jose Wilson, Beard's ghost writer, is a celebration of wholesome natural food prepared the old-fashioned way. The book sold more than 70,000 copies and paved the way for her "Country Goodness," which made the best-seller list one month after it was published.

The book is sprinkled with anecdotes about many of the recipes — pear and noodle soup from a Mennonite friend in Kansas, zucchine frittatas from an Italian friend, tomato and eggplant casserole discovered during a Caribbean vacation and German hot potato salad from a restaurant in Saxenhausen. Other entries include hearty, fresh-from-the-farm fare like chicken and noodles, corn chowder, chicken and dumplings, Swiss steak, chicken pot pie, pork and sauerkraut with dumplings, turkey croquettes, salmon cakes, apple dumplings, blueberry shortcake, Boston cream pie, peach cobbler, apple turnovers, rice pudding and apple crisp.

Maybe we can't eat dishes like this every day, but we can at least indulge ourselves occasionally. The recipes make six servings.

CRAB SOUP

3 tablespoons butter
2 cups water
2 medium potatoes, cut in julienne strips
1 cup finely chopped celery
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
2 teaspoons salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste
¼ teaspoon seafood seasoning (Old Bay Brand)
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups diced crab meat
⅛ cup evaporated milk
4 cups milk

Saute the onion in the butter in a large, heavy soup kettle. Add the water, potatoes, celery, parsley, salt, pepper and seafood seasoning. Cook, uncovered, for 12 minutes, or until tender. Most of the liquid will have evaporated. Sprinkle the flour over the potatoes and stir. Add the crab meat, evaporated milk and milk and simmer on very low heat for 30 minutes more or until the potatoes fall apart and thicken the soup.

ROAST LOIN OF PORK WITH APRICOT-PINEAPPLE GLAZE

1 6-pound loin of pork, with bone
2 teaspoons salt
⅛ teaspoon pepper
1 cup water

Season the pork loin with salt and pepper and place it in a small roasting pan. Add the water and cover. Bake in a preheated oven at 375 degrees for three hours. Remove the cover and pour some of the glaze over the meat. Reduce the heat to 350 degrees and bake for another 30 minutes. Serve the remainder of the glaze with the meat.

Apricot-Pineapple Glaze:
⅛ cup cooked and pitted apricots
⅛ cup pineapple
1 tablespoon cornstarch
⅛ cup red or white wine
¼ cup brown sugar
⅛ teaspoon ground cinnamon
¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg
¼ teaspoon ground cloves

Blend all the ingredients in a food processor. Bring to a slow boil in a heavy saucepan. Simmer for three minutes, stirring constantly with a wooden spoon. Set aside, and serve hot or cold.

PICKLED CAULIFLOWER

5 medium heads cauliflower
1 cup salt
1 gallon water
Syrup:
4 cups vinegar
4 cups sugar
1 teaspoon ground tumeric
2 teaspoons celery seed
1 tablespoon mustard seed

Clean and trim the cauliflower. Break the heads into buds. Dissolve the salt in the water, pour it over the cauliflower buds in a large bowl, and soak overnight. Drain and rinse with cold water.

Combine the vinegar, sugar and spices in a large pan and bring to a boil. Add the cauliflower and cook for eight minutes. Pack into hot sterilized jars and fill with syrup to neck of the jar seal.

BLUEBERRY PUDDING

1 cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup water
2 teaspoons lemon juice
2 cups blueberries
Butter
Whipped cream

In a heavy saucepan, mix the sugar and flour. Gradually add the water, stirring until smooth. Add the lemon juice and the blueberries. Bring to a boil and boil approximately five minutes until thickened. Pour blueberry mixture into a buttered 2-quart casserole or baking dish. Pour batter on top.

Batter;
½ cup granulated sugar
3 tablespoons butter
1 cup flour
¼ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ cup milk

In a bowl, cream the sugar and butter. In a separate bowl, sift the flour, salt and soda. Add the milk and the flour mixture alternately to the sugar and butter until well blended. Drop this batter by the tablespoon on top of the blueberry mixture. Do not mix. It may sink, but it will rise again to the top and brown while baking. Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven for 60 minutes. Serve with whipped cream.

Pasteurized milk 'is safe food'

BOSTON (AP) — Give or take a few million swigs, Americans drink 279,232,860 glasses of milk each day without any lasting encounters with salmonella, yersinia, listeria or shigella.

All of these bacteria can cause food poisoning. All of them can multiply nicely in milk. Yet federal experts say milk is remarkably safe.

"If one looks at the total volume of pasteurized milk consumed, the attack rate is very, very low," said Dr. Morris Potter of the federal Centers for Disease Control. "Pasteurized milk is a safe food."

This makes the outbreak of salmonella poisoning in the Midwest all the more noteworthy. More than 10,000 people in six states are reported to have been sickened, apparently by contaminated milk produced by a dairy in Melrose Park, Ill.

"People should write it off as a fluke," said Anthony Luksas, vice president of the United Dairy Industry Association. "It's unfortunate, but it's a fluke."

Federal statistics seem to bear this out.

Robert Sanders, deputy director of the Milk Safety Branch of the Food and Drug Administration, said less than 1 percent of all the outbreaks of food poisoning reported in the past decade had been attributed to milk.

The most important step in the production of safe milk is pasteurization. Only about 1 percent of the milk consumed in the United States is raw or unpasteurized. Yet over the past 30 years, raw milk has accounted for about 95 percent of all the outbreaks of milk-borne food poisoning.

"There is a significant risk of disease from drinking unpasteurized milk," said Dr. David W. Fleming of the CDC in Atlanta. "The reason pasteurization is performed is because milk coming out of cows occasionally has pathogenic bacteria in it. If that milk is drunk, people will get sick."

In 1980, for instance, the CDC investigated 605 outbreaks of food poisoning. Two were linked with milk. In both cases, the milk was unpasteurized.

The outbreaks that sicken the most people, however, almost invariably involve pasteurized milk. In the Illinois incident, experts assume the milk somehow became contaminated with salmonella after it went through the purification process.

Potter said something like that probably happened in a major outbreak three years ago in Tennessee, Arkansas and Mississippi. That illness was traced to milk produced by a dairy in Memphis, Tenn., that had been tainted with yersinia bacteria. Although there were 172 confirmed cases of food poisoning, investigators estimated 19,000 people got sick.

Pasteurization purifies milk by heating it but not boiling it. Typically, dairies heat milk to at least 160 degrees for 15 seconds, then quickly chill it.

If the raw milk is heavily contaminated with bacteria, it's at least statistically possible for some of the organisms to survive, Potter said. Even when milk is stored at 42 degrees, yersinia and listeria can multiply, and salmonella will grow at 45 degrees.

Instances of food poisoning from milk that is properly processed and handled are almost unheard of. In fact, the only documented outbreak like this occurred two years ago in Massachusetts.

At least 49 people fell ill with listeria infections, and 14 of them died, after drinking the same brand of milk. CDC investigators theorize the bacteria slipped through the pasteurization process, perhaps by hiding inside white blood cells in the milk that insulated them from the heat.

These things occasionally happen despite detailed regulations and regular inspection by government agencies.

State agencies keep watch on milk processors, but almost all the state laws are based on a model federal dairy ordinance. These regulations were first drawn up in 1924 by the Public Health Service and have been updated ever since.

The federal rules specify that farms be inspected at least twice a year and processing plants four times annually.

In 1949, the National Conference on Interstate Milk Shipments was set up by state health officers to oversee the production of milk that is sold across state lines. Dairies that want to sell milk in neighboring states must comply with the federal standards, and they are checked and rated by state regulatory agencies.

Sanders said more than 90 percent of the milk in the United States is produced to the federal standards, and that's a lot of milk.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, American's consumed 6.37 billion gallons of milk in 1984, or 26.9 gallons for every man, woman and child. Across the nation, this figures out to 279.2 million 8-ounce glasses of milk drunk each day.

Councilmen approve compromise RV ordinance

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

Rights of recreational vehicle owners vs. the rights of neighbors was decided Tuesday by the Midland City Council which approved a compromise ordinance for keeping the vehicles at the owners' houses.

The changes will allow:

— Visitors to park their RV on the street for a maximum of 48 hours or to occupy the RV of their host.

— 48 hours to load and unload an RV while parked on the street.

— An RV up to 26 feet in length to be parked in front of the house if certain requirements are met. The RV must be parked on a paved surface at least 11 feet from the curb.

However, the council deleted the recommendation to allow a minimum of 5 feet from a side property line to a parked RV, which was a reduction from the current requirement of 7 feet.

These changes were initiated by a group of RV owners who asked the council at its Feb. 26 meeting to amend the ordinance. They had argued the ordinance was forcing them to pay rent to keep the RVs stored elsewhere, and some couldn't afford the additional expenditures. Three meetings were held with Councilman Gordon Marcum II and spokesmen for the RV owners, and the proposals Tuesday were the result.

However, not all RV owners at the council meeting were in agreement on the changes, and a newly elected council member who will take office next month didn't agree with the amended ordinance.

Mayor G. Thane Akins pointed out to the group that filled the council chambers that, "We want to come up with something that will take into account as much as possible everyone's situation. We don't allow large tractor-trailers to be parked in a neighborhood."

Max Domino, the RV group's spokesman, supported the changes and added, "I've noticed more cars illegally parked in the city than RVs." He later added that an RV parked in front of a house or on the street is not ruining neighbors' property but rather the owner is taking care of an expensive investment.

Nick Scarafile, 2700 Wydewood, pointed out that RV owners must pay additional taxes on the vehicles and for that reason he felt the owners should be able to park them anywhere on their property.

"We pay more taxes than a neighbor who has the same value of property," he said.

"The State Legislature passed that law. I have to pay the same tax on my airplane, but it doesn't give me the right to park it in front of my house," said the mayor. "Maybe it's a ridiculous comparison. That tax doesn't give you the right to park it (RV) anywhere."

Akins later noted that if the neighbors hadn't voiced their objections to the council, there would be no ordinance regulating where the vehicles could be parked. "The zoning ordinance is there to protect the neighbors. We have an ordinance in place because we heard from them before."

Disagreeing with the changed ordinance was Florence Clark, 2203 Western Drive. "I'm not in favor of having anything any longer than 20 feet parked in front of a house. It will devalue the property. We own a 31 foot RV, but we have it legally parked," she said, referring to a special storage space where her vehicle is kept.

Katie Heck, who will take her oath as an at-large council member in May, said she had a "strong opinion against most of these provisions. If I had a tall shiny object in the yard next to me either shading my tomatoes or reflecting the sun onto them, I'd be a little upset. If you can afford an RV, you should be able to provide a place for it," she said.

Another RV owner had complained that "if we don't have the right to do what we want with our property, what is this country coming to."

The mayor replied, "We are not an island. We've got to live together and do those things which are compatible with each other."

New municipal court judge hired; Stop sign installation OK'd

By LANA CUNNINGHAM
Assistant City Editor

A new municipal court judge was hired, installation of more stop signs was approved and a site for a Campfire Girls headquarters was located when the Midland City Council met Tuesday in a regular session.

James Zane Brazell, 31, was hired at a salary of $39,000 a year to replace Michael Abrams in the municipal court. He received his law degree from the University of Houston Law School and worked for Exxon several years before going into the County Attorney's office as an assistant two years ago.

"I enjoy public service and thought this was a way to continue in it, to gain a different perspective," he said. "You're being more of a referee than an advocate." He started his new job this morning.

Public Works Director Fred Baker reported traffic studies indicated six intersections which needed stop signs installed. The signs will be installed on Mark Lane at Neely Avenue, on Preston Drive at Loop 250, Sunburst Drive at Wadley, Sinclair Avenue at Loop 250, Wydewood Drive at Highway 385, on Wydewood at Sinclair and on Mark Lane at Sinclair.

The council questioned Baker about the lack of timing of traffic signals on Andrews Highway, which is a state highway. He said lightning had gotten into the system and seven controls have been affected. "It went around our lightning arrestors and also TESCO's (Texas Electric Service Co.)," he said.

Baker said the traffic light system is tied together by a control cable. The lightning caused shorts inside the system, but the traffic personnel are trying to determine at what points. "If it's burned in the conduit insulation underground, we've got a real problem. We'd have to rewire them," he said.

Petro-Plains Campfire, Inc., was given approval to construct a $250,000 headquarters on two lots adjacent to the city Parks and Recreation Department office and gymnasium on Elizabeth Street. Rent will be $100 a year and won't begin until the facility is constructed.

Testimony resumes in trial of former bank president

By JULIE HILLRICHS and and RON GILMORE
Staff Writers

Witnesses for the prosecution resumed testimony today in Federal District Court in the trial of former Metro Bank President John Edward "Eddie" Thomas of Odessa. Thomas is charged with nine counts of embezzling or misapplying more than $550,000 and five counts of making false entries into bank records between June 1981 and July 1982.

Seven witnesses were called by the prosecution Tuesday in the opening day of the trial.

Assistant U.S. Attorney Wayne Speck had indicated in opening statements that the prosecution would not be able to provide a whole picture at once — that it would take testimony from many witnesses to show what happened when Thomas was president of the now-defunct Metro Bank.

"The proof will come in bits and pieces," he said. "No one person will give you the whole picture. When you see the bits and pieces together, only then will you get the whole picture."

During the second day of testimony, prosecutors called W.C. Castillo, owner of the Brewery, 1409 E. 7th St., Odessa.

Castillo told members of the six-man, six-woman jury that he and Thomas formed a partnership in 1981 to purchase corporate stock.

"In whose name was the stock purchased?" asked Speck.

"Eddie Thomas and W.C. Castillo," the witness answered.

"He asked me to write a check for the stock. I knew it wasn't any good because I didn't have the money in my bank account. He told me not to worry about it," Castillo said, revealing that although the checks were honored by Metro Bank, his account was put into an overdraft position.

Speck went on to question Castillo about the payments of the stock totaling an estimated $90,000 and profits resulting in their eventual sale eight days later.

"What happened to those checks?" asked Speck.

"They (the stockbrokers) sent them to the bank," Castillo said.

And what was Thomas' answer when you questioned him about the checks?" asked Speck.

"I told him I needed those checks to get this overdraft off my bank account. He said let's do it tomorrow," Castillo answered.

"What happened later," asked Speck.

"I'm still waiting on tomorrow," the witness said.

A federal grand jury Jan. 21 returned its original indictment against the 42-year-old Thomas for six counts of embezzling or misapplying funds and five counts of making false entries. But errors in dates and amounts of money prompted a reindictment Feb. 22 on the nine counts of embezzlement and five counts of making false entries, defense attorney John Cliff of Odessa has said.

Thomas, president of the bank at Midland Regional Airport from its inception in 1978 until he resigned July 14, 1983, could be sentenced to up to 70 years in prison and fined up to $70,000 should he be convicted of the charges. The bank failed July 29, 1983.

In opening day testimony, prosecutors called Barbara Mathis, a former operations officer of Metro-Bank, in an attempt to show the jury that Thomas violated standard banking policies.

"I encountered a lot of policies that deviated from standard banking procedures," she said. Included among the violations, she said, were problems with keeping loans within "proper limits," loans made by Thomas to himself that "were not reported to the board of directors" and severe overdrafts approved by Thomas.

"I've never ever been in a bank that had overdrafts like Metro Bank," said Ms. Mathis. "They were staggering."

Ms. Mathis also indicated that a $416,000 loan made to FTH Inc., a company in which Thomas was a partner, had been shown as "paid-off" by a FTH check that was insufficient.

"Was it hot?" asked Speck.

"Yes it was," she said.

The bank officer also told the jury of a check for $5,000 that Thomas cashed shortly before leaving Metro Bank.

"He took the check to one of the tellers for cash while leaving on a forced vacation situation," she said. "The check was from FTH, payable to Metro Bank and should have been used to help recover part of the $416,000."

Ms. Mathis recalled still another situation involving a cashier's check for which there was payment.

"Absolutely nothing paid for the $140,000 check that went to Permian Bank," she said. "The check went through unfunded. I was out of balance in my cashier's checks from October to February."

"Was that when it was paid for with a hot check?," asked Speck.

"That's right," she said.

During cross examination, the defense tried to discredit the witness.

Attorney John Smith attacked Ms. Mathis on the bank's "staggering overdrafts."

"Is it illegal to authorize an overdraft?" asked Smith.

"No, it's not," she said.

Smith then pointed out that Ms. Mathis had occasional overdrafts in her personal account at Metro Bank.

Plan would add class for junior highs

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland junior high school students would attend one additional class per day under a proposal to reorganize its instructional and administrative program into a seven-period school day.

The proposal, presented Tuesday to Midland school trustees during a regular board meeting, would extend the class day to seven periods with the inclusion of state mandated reading and computer literacy programs, according to Maridell Fryar, director of secondary education.

The plan also would create a basic study skills course for students in both seventh and eighth grade and, in addition, provide for a dean of students to represent each of the three junior high schools to replace the already established interns and vocational counselors.

According to Mrs. Fryar, the move would not lengthen the actual school day. Instead, class periods would be shortened to 50 minutes.

In other action, trustees:

— Authorized the district to seek bids for construction at Alamo Junior High School.

The project, estimated at $840,000, would be funded by monies received from a 1982 bond election. Included in the project is construction of a 7,500-square-foot administration addition, entry canopy, flagpole and concrete plaza area; remodeling of a 2,500-square-foot office area; putting in new parking for 46 vehicles, a new loading zone for automobiles and entry doors; remodeling the band, choir and bathroom areas; and installing new concrete walkways, turfgrass and irrigation systems.

Architect for the project is Terry Harden of Yandell & Hiller Inc. of Fort Worth. Construction bids are scheduled to be presented to trustees at its July 8 board meeting.

— Expelled a Lee Freshman High School male student and a San Jacinto Junior High School female student for the remainder of the school year.

GISD trustees adopt plan for honors courses

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

In the words of Superintendent Samuel Martin, the Greenwood Independent School District took a "giant step" Tuesday when trustees adopted a three-year, three-part plan to identify and place some 250 students in honors courses by 1988.

The "One, Two, Three Plan For Excellence," approved Tuesday during a regularly scheduled meeting, is designed to "improve what is taught and learned," according to curriculum supervisor Jean Schwisow.

The plan, scheduled to be implemented districtwide beginning this fall, will serve selected primary intermediate and secondary students.

The first plan of action, according to Ms. Schwisow, is to "identify able learners" in grades K-6 in group setting served by a trained teacher in the regular classroom environment.

Also, students in grades seven and eight will be provided with specific subject matter blocks and designed clusters for the academically motivated student. These clusters programs are designed to prepare youngsters for honors and advanced training courses in language arts, history, science and algebra.

Selected students in grades 9-12 will be assigned to "pull-out" programs until a group of honors and advanced training courses are made available in 1986-87.

By 1986-87, students in grades nine-12 who rank in the top seven to 10 percent of the total student population will be assigned to honors and advanced training courses with an emphasis on research, independent study and creative/productive thinking.

The district anticipates full implementation of the program for all students by 1988.

According to Martin, GISD will be responsible for providing a large percentage of the funding to establish and maintain the program, but declined to specify the exact cost.

"There will be some cost. We're taking a giant step out here," he said.

MC board expects loss of funds under proposed budget

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Midland College could lose an estimated $650,000 to $850,000 over the next two years if lawmakers fail to arrive at a compromise budget to fund the state's junior colleges in 1986-87.

Under a proposed budget, the Senate Education Committee has recommended that Midland College be allocated about 7 percent less than it received during the 1984-85 biennium. A House Education Committee budget recommends neither an increase nor a decrease in state funding in 1985-86. MC had requested a 13 percent increase during the next two fiscal years.

Funding for the state's junior colleges is allocated in two-year intervals with the monies being provided for instructional programs only.

MC received about $4.9 million in state funding in 1985, including those dollars provided for coordinating board-approved academic courses and monies allocated from the Texas Education Agency.

"It doesn't look very good," MC College President Dr. Jess Parrish told trustees Tuesday during a regularly scheduled board meeting. "The House has been pretty good to us when you talk in terms of increases and decreases, but the Senate version could be very damaging.

"I don't know when they're (lawmakers) going to get it through their heads that junior colleges receive money only for instructional programs. If they cut funding then we have to start cutting programs," he said.

Parrish noted that a legislative proposal to raise tuition would help to make up for some of the monies lost, but added that a Senate version of the bill fails to include junior colleges.

Instead, the Senate compromise bill calls for tuition rates for Texas undergraduates at its four-year institutions to jump from $4 to $12 per semester hour this fall and $16 next year. Out-of-state students would pay $120 per semester hour instead of the current $40. Tuition rates at the state's junior colleges would be established by local trustees.

A House version of the bill, designed to raise tuition an estimated $235 million to $273 million, would apply to all institutions of higher learning, including junior colleges. The proposal would raise resident tuition from $4 per semester hour to $8 per semester hour this fall while out-of-state tuition would jump from $40 to $120 this fall.

College officials are expected to submit a proposed budget to trustees for the 1985-86 academic year early next month. Parrish recommended, however, that the introduction be delayed until the conclusion of the legislative session.

"It would be ridiculous to submit two or three versions of the same budget and then turn around and amend it," Parrish said. "We still don't know what they're going to do."

In other action, trustees:

— Elected officers to three trustee positions. Elected to the positions were William "Hoyle" McCright Jr., president; Gloria Hinojosa, vice president; and Ralph L. Way, secretary.

— Accepted the resignation of snack bar employee Margie Peddy and photography instructor Kenneth Foster.

— Heard a division presentation from the college's Department of Respiratory Therapy. Staff members include Dr. Eileen Piwetz, chairman, Health Sciences Division; Terrance J. Gilmore, program director; and Bob Weidman, clinical director.

Jury chosen in Odessa murder trial

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — The murder trial of a 58-year-old Stanton man, accused of the January 1983 shooting death of a 64-year-old Odessa man, continues in 161st District Court today.

About mid-afternoon Tuesday, Judge Tryon Lewis seated the jury of seven women and five men.

The bullet-riddled body of James Dewey McWilliams was found Jan. 13, 1983 in a field near the intersection of U.S. 385 south and FM 1787.

J.M. Stewart was arrested that same day in connection with McWilliams' death, but was released without bond March 3, 1983.

When new evidence surfaced in the case, according to the Ector County sheriff's department, Stewart was again arrested in December 1984 and formally indicted by the grand jury January 10, 1985 on a charge of murder.

Stewart's court-appointed attorney, Keith Wilson, in a pretrial hearing April 19, argued that Stewart's right to a speedy trial was violated because charges initially filed in 1983 were never properly dismissed.

70th District Court Judge Gene Ater held that despite Stewart's incarceration from Jan. 13 to March 3, 1983 and from Dec. 31, 1984 until the present time his speedy trial rights had not been violated.

Items taken from house being built

From Staff Reports

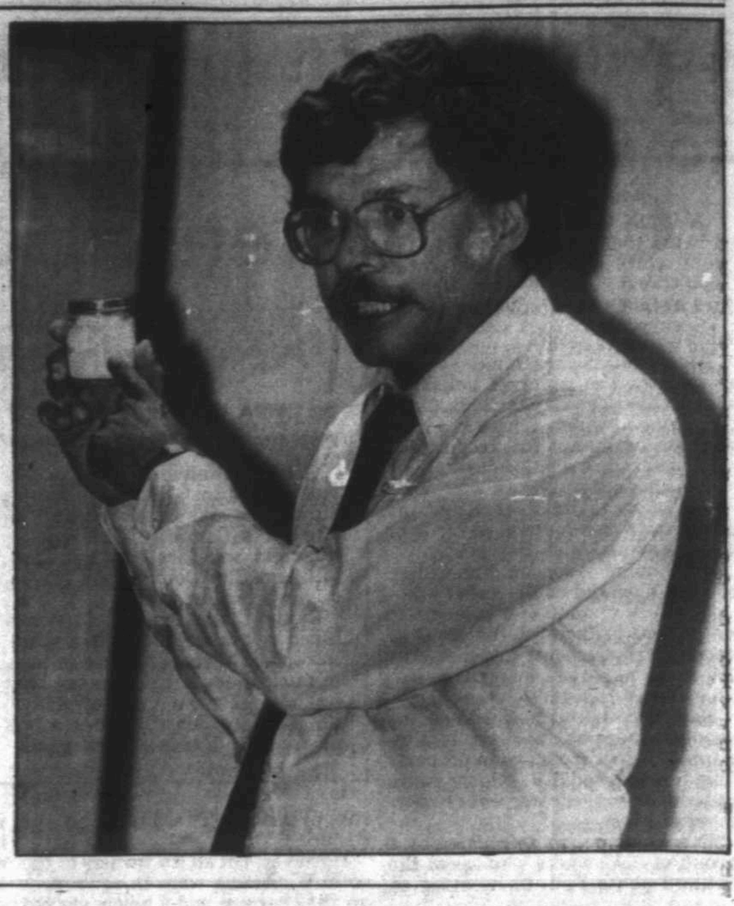

Almost $3,000 worth of items were reported stolen from a southside house under construction, according to reports filed with city police Tuesday.

Damage to the door frame, lock and ceilings also was reported, according to police. Total loss was placed at $2,930.

Deborah Bryant, 502 S. Clay, reported the burglary of her residence. Entry was gained between April 16 and Tuesday through a back door, according to reports. Taken were a $1,500 television and stereo console, $75 vacuum cleaner and $250 cable television converter.

Trust fund set up for accident victim

From Staff Reports

A fund to help pay medical expenses for a 4-year-old Midland boy injured Sunday in an accident that killed his grandfather and critically injured his grandmother has been established.

Reagan Lynch, son of Ronnie and Denise Lynch, 4905 Wilshire, suffered injuries in a two-vehicle accident at FM 585 and U.S. Highway 67 near Bangs. He was a passenger in a pickup driven by his grandfather, Darrell Winiford Hocker, 53, of 4405 Wilshire, who was killed. His grandmother, Wanda Hocker, 48, is listed in stable but guarded condition at Brownwood Regional Hospital.

Reagan this morning was listed in fair condition at Hendricks Medical Center in Abilene. He suffered a broken leg, skull fracture and several cuts, bruises and abrasions. Doctors hope to move him to a Midland hospital this week.

A fund at Midland American Bank has been established to help defray medical and other related expenses for Reagan, who was not covered by insurance. Contributions may be sent to either the Midland American Bank at Texas and Big Spring streets or the one at Cuthbert and Andrews Highway. Contributions also may be sent to Wilshire Park Baptist Church, 801 S. Bentwood, which Reagan's family attends.

TRIAL

"Who approved your overdrafts,?" he asked.

"The same one that approved yours — Brooks," shot back Ms. Mathis. Brooks Akins was an officer at Metro Bank.

The defense cross-examined the witness on a statement she had made earlier about "always being written up by bank examiners" for violations.

"Did you ever see the bank examiner's reports?" Smith asked.

"No," she said.

"Then how did you know if the bank was 'written up?' " he asked.

"I was mistaken if I said that we were written up," she said.

Finally, the defense attempted to show that Ms. Mathis had a personal vendetta against Thomas.

Smith asked Ms. Mathis why she didn't go talk to Thomas if she suspected there were banking violations.

"I didn't like Thomas," she said. "If you had been called the names I had been called, you wouldn't go talk to him either."

"In your estimation, Thomas wasn't a good banker then?" asked Smith.

"In my opinion, he was about the sorriest banker I ever saw," she said.

Also called as witnesses were Larry Hearn, officer of Permian Bank and Trust in Odessa; Jo Frank, former assistant cashier; and Diane Muery, a former secretary to Brooks Akins at Metro Bank; Duncan Spillar, former president of Cielo Vista Bank in El Paso; and Elaine Kimbrew and Curtis Fowler.

The prosecution attempted to show that Thomas deleted names from an overdraft list that was reviewed by the board of directors each month.

"On one occasion I heard Mr. Thomas flipping through the reports in the other room and heard him rip out some pages," said Ms. Muery.

"His hands were shaking and he came out and told me to take his name off the list — that it wasn't 'right,' " she said. "The directors never saw that item."

Again, the defense tried to discredit the prosecution's witness by showing that she was not a reliable witness.

"Did you ever attend those board meetings?" asked Smith.

"No, sir," she said.

"Did you have any idea of what they were discussing in those meetings?," he asked.

"No," she said.

Board OKs summer school program

From Staff Reports

AUSTIN — The State Board of Education has given final approval to rules that require school districts to offer eight-week summer school programs for students with limited ability to speak English and who are eligible to be enrolled in kindegarten or first grade.

The board voted in April to approve the rules that mandate the pre-school summer programs to be operated during the eight weeks preceding the opening of schools for the regular school term in autumn 1985. Parents have the option of whether to enroll their children in the summer program.

House Bill 72 directed those school districts required to offer bilingual programs during the regular school term to establish the half-day, eight-week summer programs for pre-kindergarten and pre-first grade students of limited English proficiency.

Teachers are required to possess certification or endorsement in kindergarten, early childhood education, bilingual education, English as a second language or elementary education. Student progress must be reported to parents and to each student's teacher at the beginning of the regular school term.

The Legislature mandated that the programs concentrate on intensive language development to prepare students for kindergarten or the first grade.

Lewis predicts little debate on bill to end funding for state universities

AUSTIN (AP) — The House went to work today on a $36.4 billion two-year state budget proposal that would end funds for state universities in Odessa and Galveston.

Speaker Gib Lewis says he "can't find any opposition" to the spending plan crafted by the Appropriations Committee. The budget would balance without tax hikes, assuming legislative approval of state fee hikes, college tuition increases and several minor revenue bills.

"From what I pick up from members, very few amendments have been drafted," said Lewis. "I think everyone realizes what we have to do."

He predicted "very little, if any, debate."

The proposed budget would phase out the University of Texas of the Permian Basin and Texas A&M University at Galveston. In previous weeks, key lawmakers agreed that money would be put back into the budget on the House floor.

But Lewis said Tuesday he's not sure.

"Those will be two proposals that will be brought up. As far as predicting what will happen, I really don't know," said the speaker, adding that he opposes closing any state colleges without a full study.

Also today, the House planned a final vote on a bill that would require cities to compensate owners of billboards that are ordered removed as a result of city ordinances aimed at controlling such signs.

"This is a bill that protects the individual's right to own and maintain property against overreaching government," said bill sponsor Bill Messer, D-Belton.

Messer won 82-61 approval for the bill in a preliminary vote Tuesday.

The billboard measure also gives the state the power to regulate billboards in unincorporated areas.

Messer complained that city ordinances against billboards amount to unfair confiscation of existing billboards. In lieu of compensation, some cities allow illegal billboards to remain up for several years so the owner can continue to make money.

That does not go far enough, said Messer, who wants compensation in the form of cash payments, tax abatements or other benefits.

In 1983, Gov. Mark White vetoed a similar bill approved by the House and Senate. Messer told the House that White told him he "will make his decision when it gets there" this year.

The lengthy floor debate included a series of amendments, most of which were killed. The debate on state regulation in unregulated areas boiled down to a discussion of the relative merits of billboards.

"I don't like driving along looking at billboards. I'd rather look at wildflowers," said Messer. "But it is property."

Ranger: Lucas' claim that police fed him information 'absurd'

Associated Press

Lucas

Henry Lee Lucas' claims that he confessed to scores of murders he didn't commit, with the help of inside information fed him by law enforcement officers, is absurd, Texas Ranger Bob Prince says.

Prince, who headed a Texas Rangers' task force in the Lucas investigation, said Tuesday that to believe Lucas is to assume "a mass conspiracy...of officers throughout the United States to clear these cases. That's ridiculous."

The Ranger sergeant issued the denial from his office in Austin after Lucas held a news conference earlier Tuesday in Waco to publicly recant his confessions of hundreds of slayings across the country over a 10-year period.

"He's got everything in the world to gain by getting people to believe he didn't kill anyone," Prince said, calling Lucas' statement that he has killed only his mother, "absolutely absurb."

"Lucas has personally led officers back to well in excess of 100 crime scenes. He has brought up information on crimes that they were totally unaware of because it is out of their jurisdiction," Prince said.

"Do you believe the word of a convicted murder and a habitual liar, or do you believe the word of law enforcement officers across the United States? Were they all duped?"

Lucas, 48, a one-eyed drifter from Virginia, said at his news conference Tuesday that he was able to provide inside information about many of the murders because investigators led him to the scenes of crimes, provided him information about the murders and even showed him photographs of the scenes.

Lucas was in Waco to testify before a McLennan County grand jury that is investigating the authenticity of his claims.

Lucas was brought to Waco on April 12, and has testified for more than 11 hours in front of the Waco grand jury, which also listened to the testimony of approximately six other witnesses. The grand jury recessed on April 18, but is scheduled to reconvene on May 3.

Over the objections of State Attorney General Jim Mattox, a federal judge ordered Lucas to be transferred to San Antonio, where he was to testify today before a federal grand jury that sought to determine whether questioning officers had violated Lucas' civil rights.

"We are convinced there are cases that Lucas has not committed despite his confessions," Mattox said.

"We want to see if some of these cases were improperly closed and if necessary, reopen them. We have found two or three cases where officers had good suspects that were dismissed after Lucas confessed," Mattox said.

Lucas already has been convicted of 10 killings and faces death by injection in Texas. He is charged with slayings in Maryland, Florida, Louisiana, Georgia and Arkansas.

He previously claimed to have committed as many as 600 murders, but told the Dallas Times Herald earlier this month that he was guilty of only three and had confessed to the others to make fools out of police agencies.

On Tuesday, Lucas recanted further, saying the only person he ever killed was his mother — a crime for which he was convicted in Michigan in 1960. It was after his incarceration for that crime that he had claimed to have begun his cross-country killing spree.

"I've been aided by the Texas Rangers' Bob Prince. I've been aided by Clayton Smith of the Texas Rangers. I've been aided by other police departments in the investigations. By people they'd bring in with cases they wanted cleared," Lucas said at his news conference.

Lucas said he decided "to tell the truth" because he doesn't want the real murderers to go free.

IT'S NOT TOO LATE TO GET IN SHAPE FOR SUMMER

YOU CAN LOSE UP TO 30 LBS. BY JUNE 1.

Hi! I'm Roxie Forrest, owner of Nutri/System weight loss centers in Odessa, Midland and Big Spring. But weight loss is more than a business to me because it wasn't long ago that my clothes stretched instead of hung. That I used a cover up over my swimsuit. That all my clothes had long sleeves to cover up my arms. And everytime I bent over to pick something up, I got in my own way. After four children I had accumulated my share of baby fat. At Nutri/System we know how self-conscious being over weight can make you. Nutri/System is not magic; you have to want to lose weight. But if you are fed up with being overweight, Nutri/System can help. You can lose up to a pound a day. And more importantly, you can keep that weight off with our program. Right now at Nutri/System I will deduct $5.00 for every pound you want to lose. Lose ten pounds and save $50.00. And there is no limit.

Won't you join me and hundreds of others and become one of our Nutri/System success stories. It does work! I went from being a size 12 to a size 7 three years ago and have not changed.

Offer expires April 30th

'Rose among the thorns'

The dawning of another spring is shown by the beautiful touch of nature with the delicate petals of a white rose, contrasted to the rugged texture of an old post that has been around for many seasons. This white hybrid rose as found in the country outside of Lufkin.

STATE IN BRIEF

Skeleton identified as missing Arlington woman

BEDFORD (AP) — The Tarrant County Medical Examiner's office has identified a skeleton found in a wooded area of this Fort Worth area community as that of a 23-year-old woman missing from Arlington.

Annette Francis Melia was last seen Sept. 22, 1982 when she made a call to her sister from a convenience store on Highway 360, said Arlington police.

The identification by the medical examiner's office Tuesday followed authorities' discovery of the remains over the past weekend.

Ms. Melia told her sister, Debbie Fox, in the conversation about a job for which she had applied. Ms. Fox said the woman was supposed to call her later in that day to make arrangements for a visit, but never contacted her.

Wyomingites extradited

RAWLINS, Wyo. (AP) — A Rawlins woman and her son have been extradited to Texas to face charges in connection with the shooting death of a man in Paradise, Texas.

Johnnie Soule, 43, and her son Jackie Sherwood, 26, were arrested in Rawlins on murder warrants from Texas late Friday, according to Carbon County Sheriff's Deputy Leroy SGraham.

Graham said they were arrested in connection with the death of Homer Minyard of Paradise. Graham said Minyard was shot in the head last Wednesday with a 20-gauge shotgun. His body was found on the side of the road by a passing motorist near Chico, Texas.

Jail inmate escapes

ANGLETON (AP) — Brazoria County sheriff's officers are still searching for a prisoner who walked out of the county jail, authorities say.

Goerge Francis Vertz, 55, a kitchen trusty assigned to baking bread, used a piece of metal to keep a door from locking then fled the area after a guard left, authorities said.

Jail officials said they noticed Vertz, 55, was missing from the fifth floor in the county courthouse at 4:20 a.m. Tuesday.

Investigators think Vertz, who had been in the jail for three months awaiting trial on a burglary charge, may have stolen a knife from the jail kitchen.

Court to decide if rights of retarded violated

WASHINGTON (AP) — For the second time in five weeks, an apparently divided Supreme Court grappled publicly Tuesday with a dispute over a Texas community's exclusion of a group home for the mentally retarded.

The court must decide whether the rights of 13 prospective residents of a group home for mentally retarded people were violated when Cleburne, Texas, officials banned the home from a neighborhood where boarding houses, apartment houses and nursing homes could locate.

The court's decision, expected by July, could alter significantly the legal rights of the nation's mentally retarded, reaching beyond the "home movement" aimed at removing such people from large institutions.

A second round of arguments was ordered by the court after Justice Lewis F. Powell missed the March 18 argument session while recuperating from surgery.

Speculation has centered on the possibility that the court's eight other justices were so closely divided in the case that they scheduled Tuesday's argument session to assure Powell's participation.

Powell shed his usual courtroom reserve to pose several questions to both lawyers.

He quizzed Earl Luna of Dallas, Cleburne's lawyer, about the wisdom of a city ordinance that lumps the mentally retarded in the same category as "alcoholics, drug addicts and the insane."

And he pointedly asked Renea Hicks of Austin, Texas, the lawyer representing the corporation seeking to locate the group home in Cleburne, about potential "overcrowding" there.

The Cleburne zoning ordinance, invalidated by a federal appeals court, required group homes for the mentally retarded to get special permits before locating in most residential areas.

In July 1980, the Cleburne Living Centers applied for such a permit. The men and women who were to live there are mildly or moderately retarded, and would have received 24-hour supervision from CLC staff members.

The application was denied by the Cleburne City Council after nearby residents objected.
