The Society wants to send an expedition to scale the mountain this spring, and included in the list of volunteers are Senator Robert Kennedy, Defense Secretary Robert McNamara and Interior Secretary Stewart Udall.

Delegation Plans Austin Trip In Support of Water

Plans are being made for an extensive delegation from Rockport and Fulton to attend the committee hearing on House Bill 623, the legislation designed to furnish funds for a permanent water supply in Aransas County.

Chairman Harold Picton of the water board said that everyone in town should attend the committee meeting, which will be held in Austin next Wednesday night, March 17, at 7:30 p.m., and that those who could, should get in touch with Ed Harper, at Key Allegro, who is coordinating chairman of the transportation committee.

"We would particularly like to see officers of the various civic and service clubs," Picton said, "and as many other citizens as can possibly make the trip."

Harper, whose phone number at Key Allegro is SO 4-2772, was appointed at the last meeting of the Chamber of Commerce to act as coordinator for the trip, which, Picton pointed out, is one of extreme importance to the community as a whole.

"Without a permanent water supply," the board chairman said, "this community cannot continue to flourish. And without legislation enabling us to issue tax bonds, we can't build the water system needed to deliver that water from the San Patricio Municipal Water District to Aransas County."

Picton said the survey approved two years ago by the Texas legislature has been completed. This shows that approximately $2,500,000 will be needed to construct the necessary pipelines and treatment plant to deliver good water, he said.

"In the original bill, Picton pointed out, "we could only issue $70,000 in bonds for a survey, and this was not nearly enough to do the work necessary. The same bill allowed us to do anything we wanted with revenue bonds, but didn't explain how it was possible to obtain revenue from a non-existant water system.

"Our financial advisors have told us that a tax levy to support bonds is the only answer, and the bill introduced by Mr. Wieting is our attempt to obtain this tax levy. It is extremely important, and deserves the support of the entire community.

"There is nothing that impresses the legislature with the need for a bill like a good delegation from the area wanting the bill passed. That is why we urge everyone that possibly can to make the trip to Austin and to be there in support of the bill.

"Ed Harper will find transportation for some of those wanting to go but he needs the assurance of car owners that they intend to go to Austin and that they will carry others with them."

HUNG JURY IN MOORE CASE

In the State vs. W. E. Moore on a worthless check charge, Moore pled not guilty on account of insanity, and a hung jury resulted. Another trial is scheduled.

Water Bill Is Introduced By Rep. Leroy Wieting

A BUSY AMBASSADOR. One of the most demanding posts in the diplomatic field today is that of U. S. ambassador to South Vietnam, especially in the weeks following U. S. air attacks on North Vietnam strongpoints. Carrying his burden well, however, is Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, right, with a South Vietnam military leader.

Aransas County Water District Asks Taxing Power

After conferences with the governor, Texas Water Commission, city officials and tax payers, Aransas County's amended water bill was introduced in the Texas House of Representatives Wednesday by Leroy Wieting, state representative for this district.

Two years ago, the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District was created, and a $70,000 bond issue provided money for a survey of the district's water promlems and potentialities.

"The recommendation of that survey is that we tie on to the San Patricio Municipal Water District line from Lake Corpus Christi," Wieting said.

In essence, the bill is much the same as the one which created the Aransas County Conservation and Reclamation District two years ago. However, some changes have been made.

In Section 1, the following has been added:

"The ad valorem plan of taxation shall be used by the District, provided the amount of tax to be levied for all purposes shall not exceed $1 on each $100 valuation of taxable property, of which not exceed .10 cents may be levied for maintenance and operation purposes when authorized as provided in Section 10, hereinafter appearing."

This would give the district power to obtain taxes to support any bonds which might be issued, without which it will be impossible, according to the district's financial adviser, Laddie Janecek, of the First Southwest Company, to raise the money needed for construction.

In Section 2, paragraph 3, an addition has been made to give the district jurisdiction over sewer districts within the county. Section 5, of Chapter 337, Acts of the Fifty Eighth Legislature, Regular Session, 1963 (the original act) is further amended to read as follows:

"Sec. 5 May Issue Bonds. (a) For the purpose of providing funds for purchasing or otherwise providing works, plants, facilities or appliances necessary to the accomplishment of the purposes authorized by this act, and for the purpose of carrying out any other power or authority conferred by this act, the district is hereby empowered to borrow money and to issue its negotiable bonds to be payable from ad valorem taxes or revenues of the district, as are pledged by resolution of the Board of Directors. Without limiting in any way the amount of revenue bonds which may be authorized, issued and sold by the district for any authorized purpose, the amount of bonds which the district may issue and sell, supported in whole or in part by ad valorem taxes, shall never exceed the total principal sum of $3,000,000."

In other words, the district, if the act is passed in its present form, may tax up to $1 per hundred on county valuations, but may never sell more than $3,000,000 worth of bonds altogether, if the bonds are tax supported. The district may, however, issue revenue bonds up to its limit for that sort of bonding.

The difficulty has been, ever since the beginning, that these revenue bonds couldn't

CORRECTION PLEASE . . .

Last week the Pilot erroneously reported Monte Rouquette as running for school trustee, Rouquette still has some time to serve on his term.

The paper should have said that Roberts Johnson, of Lamar, was an unopposed candidate for the position.

Running for the Rockport position open on the board of trustees are incumbent Thomas Rogers and Hillis Dominguez. Rogers was appointed to the board upon resignation of long-time member Charles Roe. Dominguez ran two years ago, opposing Dr. H. F. Elliot.

Four File For City Council

Four men have filed for the city council race, two incumbents and two others.

Charles Garrett, incumbent in Ward One, serving his second term, is opposed by Marcelino Ramirez, an employee of Vernons Food Store.

Norvell Jackson, serving his second term since defeating V. A. Dullye four years ago in Dullye's bid for a second term, is once again opposed by Dullye.

Ramirez is making his first try at politics.

THREE PALACIOS BOYS HURT IN WRECK

Three Palacios youths received minor injuries when their car went out of control and crashed into the north end of the Copano Bay Causeway about 12:30 a.m. Friday.

Taken to Corpus Christi's Memorial Hospital were:

Reyes Vela, 18, driver of the 1950 automobile; Librado Ramos, 18, and Jesus Cano Lopez, Jr., 16.

Ramos and Lopez are in fair condition with multiple cuts and bruises. Vela was treated and released.

Highway patrolman Rayford L. Brown said the accident occurred when Vela attempted to light a cigarette and lost control of the car.

Brown said a fourth man, about 23 years of age, disappeared from the accident scene. The others had picked him up hitchhiking near Palacios and were taking him to corpus Christi.

A motorist who telephoned for an ambulance shortly after the wreck said she had seen four persons around the accident scene. The Aransas County Emergency Corps helped search for the man in the belief he could have fallen into Copano Bay.

Four Elementary School Burglaries Are Solved

After a week long investigation, Chief of Police Bob Hewes and Deputy Sheriff Joe De La Garza, working closely together, solved four recent elementary school burglaries and uncovered a youthful shoplifting gang.

On Monday Chief Hewes and Deputy De La Garza answered a call to the elementary school on a report that the school had again been burglarized. While making a routine check of the school, a teacher brought a pupil to the office of Principal Griffith with the thought that he had stolen a watch and some money the latter part of last week. This is when things began to roll.

After talking to approximately 14 young students, four boys two to nine years old, one 11 years old, and one 12 years old were implicated in the four burglaries - and numerous shoplifting trips to at least three local businesses. Among things stolen at the school and the businesses were money, knives, watches, wallets, pens, pencils, girl scout pins, stamps, candy, Coke, shells, cigar loads, magnifying glasses, alligators, scorpins, snakes and lizards. A hearing was held Monday afternoon in the chambers of Juvenile Judge John D. Wendell with all of the subjects, their parents, investigating officers and Mr. Griffith present.

The parents were ordered to make restitution for the broken windows at the school and for items that were not recovered. Most of these items the boys say were given to friends.

Teachers Are Re-elected By School Board

The School Board, at its regular meeting, renewed the contracts of all except four teachers, considered employment of others, and reset the date of the April meeting.

All teachers were re-elected except four who had notified the school board that they wished to make other plans for the coming year.

In other business, Dr. H. F. Elliot and Supt. Don Gray reported on a meeting they had had, along with county officials and members of the Fish and Wildlife Service anent possible sale of the Tatton Ranch lands. It appeared, Dr. Elliot said, that this sale will not go through.

The board meeting date for April was advanced to April 6, the same date as the school election, in order that returns from the election could be canvassed and results declared within the time specified by law.

Bids on sale of the Old Fulton school site will also be opened at this meeting. Gray said that so far, one inquiry had been made on the property. At the meeting, another developed, as William Johnson appeared on behalf of the Fulton Baptist Church, wanting to purchase two of the lots adjoining the church building, However, trustees told Johnson they would have to await the result of the bid opening before acting on his request.

Gray reported that four juveniles that had been breaking into Rockport Elementary School had been caught by concerted action of school authorities, city police and the Sheriff's Department.

The financial report of School Tax Assessor-Collector Mrs. I. E. McLester was then reviewed. Mrs. McLester said that 94.65 per cent of the county taxes had been collected so far, amounting to $445,969.82. Discounts allowed had amounted to $11,808.52, making a total tax credit of $457,778.32. Total taxes due at the beginning of 1964 amounted to $483,759.21.

Of this total collected, $362,573.46 was transferred to the local maintenance account; $60,651.90 went to interest and sinking fund No. 5, and $22,744.46 went to interest and sinking fund No. 6.

During February, Mrs. McLester said, $3,881.50 in delinquent taxes were collected, along with $588.01 in penalties.

WORKING STUDENTS MUST FILE RETURN

Working students got word on how to fulfill their tax obligations to Uncle Sam from Asa L. Crow, administrative officer, Internal Revenue Service, Corpus Christi.

1. Students earning $600 or more during 1964 must file an income tax return, even if the student is claimed as a dependent by his parents.

2. Students with incomes of less than $600 during '64, and who have had income tax withheld, should file a return to get these taxes refunded. Usually, a Form 1040A will do the trick.

3. Single students filing a return should claim one exemption for himself, even if he is also claimed as a dependent by his parents.

4. In a community property state, such as Texas, the total combined income of husband and wife is considered one-half attributable to each. Thus, married persons, including students, may elect to file a joint return by combining their total incomes; or separate returns with each reporting exactly one-half of the combined income.

5. Married students filing joint returns and who are furnished their chief support by their parents cannot be claimed as dependents by their parents.

SAVINGS BONDS SALES ARE $3589

January Savings Bond sales in Aransas County totaled $3589. This announcement was made recently by Fred Bracht, Chairman of the Aransas County Savings Bonds Committee. This represents 5.9 per cent of the 1965 goal of $60,000.

During January, 1965 sales of Series E and H Bonds in Texas totaled $14,311,691 or 9.3 per cent of the state's goal of $152.8 million.

In announcing the sales figures for the county. Chairman Bracht pointed out that the rallying cry of this year's bond campaign is "Practical Patriotism."

"The purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds is 'practical' because it is easy and sure. It is patriotic because the burchase of bonds are a mark in the faith of our country and its future. 'Practical Patriotism' is just good common sense and I urge all the citizens of our county to buy bonds where they work or bank," Bracht said.

Johnsons Make Trip Through Little Known Parts of Mexico

Thousands of miles through little-known portions of Mexicoco were recently covered by Mr. and Mrs. Hubert Johnson on a trip that took them as far south as Merida, Yucatan, then back across the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, through Mexico City and so home.

"We drove from Brownsville to Victoria, Tamaulipas," Mrs. Johnson said, "through barren country, and this was the least interesting part of the trip, with the poorest roads. The highway wasn't bad, but it wasn't good, either, and there wasn't a thing to see until we reached Victoria which, like all the other cities we saw, was lovely.

"From Victoria, way off to the west you could see purple mountains in the distance, but we didn't travel through them. Our road lay over high, rolling tablelands covered with vegetation. The first part of the road south of Victoria was not too much different from the land north of the city, and there were lots of organ-pipe cactus and plenty of chaparral, but when we got about 25 miles south everything began to change.

"Some of the land was being converted to henequin plantations. This is a plant that looks like a century plant, and they make binder twine from the fibers of its leaves. But after we reached the Tropic of Cancer and entered the torrid zone, everything was quite different. The hills were covered with cotton, corn, vegetables, citrus and banana trees—just hill after hill was like this, and it looked as though every bit of land was being used.

"Most of the houses were of poles stuck in the ground, plastered with mud and thatched with straw or palm leaves."

Turning from the Mexico City highway at Mante, the road they followed runs to Tampico, one of Mexico's finest seaports, which they reached in the middle of a norther and heavy rain.

"We stayed there that night," Mrs. Johnson said, "and were planning to leave early the next morning for Vera Cruz. We did, but we did our morning packing in the dark, because the storm knocked out the light system."

The roads from Victoria south were good, and the Johnsons bowled merrily along from Tampico, passing through Panuco, Tantoyuca, Tuxpam and Poza Rica, to Tecolutla and from here down the new coastal highway to Vera Cruz, where they stayed the second night out.

"It rained most of the way," Mrs. Johnson said, "for the norther went right with us, and at Vera Cruz the wind was terrific. Hugh had to wait and be careful to open the car door between gusts of wind. The motel was really lovely, and we enjoyed our stay, though the heavy tropical rain continued, and next day it took us 14 hours to make one stretch of 214 miles south of Vera Cruz.

The first town south of Vera Cruz is Alvarado, a fishing village at the mouth of the Papaloapan River. Once a waterlogged wilderness, the Papaloapan Valley has been extensively reclaimed by roads and dams, but in its jungle-like hitnerland boats are still the standard means of transportation, and motorist here encounters the first of the five unbridged waterways separating him from Merida, Yucatan.

"These ferries were what took up the time," Mrs. Johnson said. "We had long waits for each of them. But everyone was friendly, and the children were everywhere and well-behaved and like little dolls."

Between the Papaloapan Valley and the Isthmus of Tehuantepec, the country has become denuded by subsistence agriculture, with only an occasional patch of virgin forest clinging to hillsides too steep to farm. Elsewhere the trees have been slashed and burned in the most wastful form of farming—milpas agriculture—that will eventually lead to terrific erosion and land loss.

An exception to this is the lovely lake of Catemaco, near San Andres Tuxtla, where jungle-clad slopes fall steeply to the blue water, dotted with green islands. Fishing villages ring the shores of the lake, but there are no tourist facilities and the lake is still unspoiled by escapists.

ADVICE FROM IKE. President Lyndon B. Johnson, right, is a man beset with many world problems, and he welcomed the chance to hear views on varied subjects from former President Dwight D. Eisenhower. Ike was in Washington for a medical check when the chief executive invited him to visit him at the White House. — WFS

Acayucan marks the junction of the Merida highway with the one leading across the Isthmus of Tehunatepec to the Pacific slope, and is the southermost point on the road to Yucatan, which swings eastward here, and then northeast. On the nearby coast Cortez made his first landing in Mexico, and on this plain he won his first battle with the Indians, before establishing his permanent beachhead at Vera Cruz.

Beyond the Coatzacoalcos River, crossed to the east of Minatitlan, the highway passes through the most magnificant stand of rain forest along its entire length, then crosses the Rio Tonala into the state of Tobasco, and so to Villahermosa, not far from which lie the ruins of one of Mexico's oldest civilizations—the Olmec—where giant stone heads gaze enigmatically at the modern tourist.

Land east of Vellahermosa, between that city and Fronteria, is of the sort once cherished by Shanghai Pierce, early Texas cattleman—so wet that Pierce called his cattle sealions! This was the last link of the highway to Merida to be completed, and runs through the coastal plain where the rivers lose themselves in a watery maze of hyacinth-choked bogs and bayous, whith flocks of egrets and ibis.

"This was open range country," Mrs. Johnson said, "and you shouldn't drive at night, because there are always people and animals on the road. And in Mevico, you can go to jail for hitting someone."

The cattle are Brahmans, and sometimes belly-deep in swamp water the herds lead the life of brontosaurs, browsing contentedly or orchids and passion-flowers, and making Villahermosa as much a cow town as Fort Worth or Amarillo.

Between Frontera and Campeche, the road crosses two rivers, and two lagoons, and it was many sweltering hours later before the Johnsons pulled into Campeche, made famous in Texas by the fact that it is one of the shrimp capitols of the world, the shoreward haven of many boats fishing the Campeche Banks.

"The ferries were something," Mrs. Johnson said "There aren't many passenger cars on the roads. Nearly all the traffic is buses and trucks and when we would finally negotiate the perilous approach and get aboard, those big busses and trucks surrounded us and it was scary. And the crossings were wide and rough."

One of the crossings was across the Laguna de los Terminos, where in the time of the Conquistadores they discovered a thriving fishery by the Mayan Indians, who sun dried their fish and used it for trade with the peoples living inland.

At Campeche the Johnsons saw lots of shrimp boats as they pressed towards Merida through a plain covered with chaparral, as tangled and impentrable as any rain forest. Merida is 251 miles from Campeche by road, and centuries away by time, although gradually becoming more modern.

Once the center of the great Mayan Indian civilization, Merida, the Yucatan Peninsula is interesting to tourists because of the ruins of Chichen Itza, near Merida, while Merida itself is interesting because of it own history, architecture and the brilliant costumes of its friendly people.

"We never saw friendlier or more helpful people," the Johnsons said, "and the city was lovely, with its pastel-tinted buildings. There is even a law that requires owners to calcimine their houses twice a year. The buildings are from the Spanish colonial period, and show the influence of both Spain and of the Moors that ruled in Spain so long. And the markets at Merida like markets in all the other towns, were interesting and, because of the native costumes worn, especially colorful."

From Merida the Johnsons back-tracked to Coatzacoalcos and then went south to Acayucan and across the Isthmus of Tehunatepec. This is one of the sites that has been discussed as a possible location for a new Panama canal, and Hugh was anxious to see what sort of country the cut would run through.

They ran into some hard luck in the mountains, breaking a fan belt 20 miles from nowhere and limping into town with an emergency repair made from the strap of Mrs. Johnson's camera.

"It kept the fan going," she said, "so the car didn't heat too much, but of course the generator was cut out. Then when we got to town, it was siesta time, and we had to wait until everyone got around to opening up again about 4 o'clock." This was near the tile-roofed Matias Romero, and they 14 kilometers at the slowest speed of the whole trip.

From there they went on to Tehuantepec and Salina Cruz, past ox carts and women carrying things on their heads, to reach the beaches of the Pacific, before turning north once more towards Oaxaca and Mexico City.

"Oaxaca is a beautiful city in a valley," Mrs. Johnson said, "and from there the roads leads north through the mountains towards Mexico City. There were no barricades along the outside of the highway, which squirmed its way up the mountainsides on a series of shelves, and as there was fog, it could have been dangerous. Once when we came around a curve on the road there was a bus standing in the middle of the road. It had broken down, and before we finally got past it we had acquired three hitchhikers in the front seat with Hugh, along with sundry parts of the bus, which they wanted to have fixed. Hugh told them he would take them to the next town, although he didn't speak Spanish and I don't either, and they didn't speak English. But they wanted to go to Mexico City, about 227 miles away, and we wound up by taking them to Mexico City.

"It was a good thing we did, because they knew the road. But there were four of them in the front seat, and, although we couldn't talk to one another, we understoood each other and had a ball."

Mexico City, while exciting lacked the charm of the earlier part of the trip, Mrs. Johnson said, because it was more metropolitan, and the people weren't as friendly.

From there the Johnsons returned by way of San Luis Potosi, Saltillo, Monterrey and McAllen.

The prices were about the same as they would be for similar accommodations in this country, Mrs. Johnson said, as they followed the AAA guide book all the way, to be sure of obtaining places to stay where English was spoken and motels were good. Time consumed was 14 days, and the mileage traveled was 3886. Roads were good to excellent all the way except between Brownsville and Victoria, and even these couldn't be called bad.

In one or two places only low-grade gas was sold, and they used that without damage to their car, although it did cause the engine to knock and heat.

"Now that we know what there is, we want to go back," she said. "We tried to do too much and travel too fast."

MRS. H. A. McDONALD ENTERTAINS FAITH CIRCLE ON MARCH 4

AIR CONDITIONING IS MAJOR HEALTH AID

The American housewife has become air condion-concious.

Efficiency expert that she is, she has awakened to the very practical advantages of air conditioning.

Two-thirds of those interviewed by the American Gas Association reported that a favorable change had been noticed in the health of the family since living in an air conditioned home. All of these families rested better and slept longer at night. Families with children reported the higher number of health benefits.

Better appetites, relief from asthma were just some of the benefits reported by the American Gas Association.

A survey by an air conditioning firm confirmed this and, in addition, reported relief for 46 per cent of persons with heart trouble and 86 per cent of those with heat rash.

Savings in doctor bills and medicine expenses were reported in all surveys, and 22 per cent of the families in the A.G.A. survey reported a large savings.

Additional health benefits attributed to air conditioning included "nerves relaxed," "sinus relief," "arthitis relief" and "disappearance of heat sickness."

All surveys reported that people in air conditioned homes were more compatible during the summer months. They went out less often just to be comfortable and, all in all, spent more time together. In addition, they had increased energy.

Almost all families living in air conditioned homes would insist upon air conditioning if they were to move.

CARD OF THANKS

We desire to express to our kind neighbor and thoughtful friends our heartfelt thanks for their many expressions of sympathy. The beautiful floral offerings were especially appreciated.

Cub packs from Rockport, Port Aransas, Aransas Pass, Ingleside, Gregory and Portland will take part in the field day to be held at the Gregory High School Athletic Field where the meet will be under the direction of Neighborhood Commissioner Eugene Curington and Newton.

Packs from Taft, Odem, Matihis, Woodsboro, Refugio and Sinton will participate in the field day in Sinton. The Sinton meet will be under the leadership of L. D. Hawkins and Kiwanis Club president, Elridge Striedel. The Kiwanis Club will be the sponsor of the Sinton meet.

Events in the field day are the 50 yard dash, 100 yard shuttle relay, three-legged race, sick race, tire roll, high jump, broad jump, soft ball throw and the tug of war.

For the first time, the various events will be on an age basis rather than entries from dens. A den may enter a cub in each event for which they have boys of that age. Newton explained that this means that there will be an eight year old 50 yard dash, a nine year old 50 yard dash and a 10 year old 50 yard dash and so on for the rest of the events except for the two team events. The shuttle relay and the tug of war teams from each den can be made up of boys of various ages.

Newton urged den mothers and pack leaders to start practicing as soon as possible in order to be fully prepared for the biggest cub activity of the year.

WATER BILL—

be sold, because the district has never had any system from which to distribute and sell water, and hence, realize any revenue.

Sub-paragraph (f) has also been changed to eliminate the restrictions on the purpose for which the bonds may be issued. In the original bill, bonds supported by taxes were not allowed to exceed $70,000, and could only be issued for the purposes of making an engineering survey. The amendment reads as follows:

"(F) Form the proceeds of the sale of bonds, the district may set aside an amount for the payment of interest expected to accrue during construction, and a reserve interest and sinking fund, and such provision may be made in the resolution authorizing the bonds. Proceeds from the sale of bonds may also be used for the payment of all expenses necessarily incurred in accomplishing the purpose for which the district is created, including expenses of its organization, investigations and the issuance and sale of the bonds. The proceeds from the sale of the bonds may be placed on time deposit with the District's depository bank or may be temporarily invested in direct obligations of the United States government maturing in not more than one year from the date of the investment."

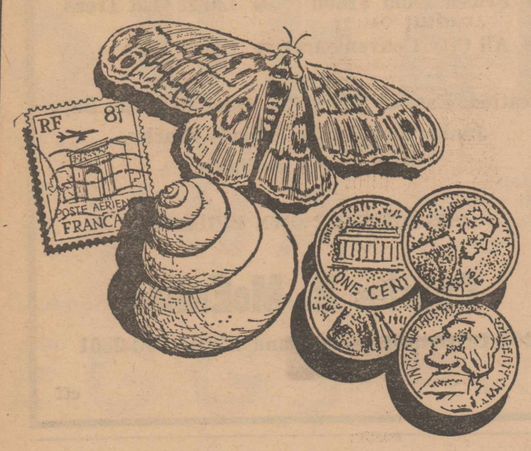

One other section has been amended in the bill now being offered. This was to eliminate restriction of taxing power to bonds that could be used only for an engineering study.

This portions of the bill reads as follows:

"The Board of Directors may, upon a favorable majority vote of the qualified property taxpaying electors of the district, voting at an election held for the purpose within the boundaries of such district, levy, assess and collect annual taxes to provide funds necessary to construct or acquire, maintain and operate works, plants and facilities deemed essential and beneficial to the district and its purposes, and also when authorized may levy, assess and collect annual taxes to provide funds adequate to defray the cost of the maintenance, operation and administration of the district. Elections for the levy of such taxes shall be ordered by the Board of Directors and notice there of shall be given and same shall be held and conducted and the results thereof determined in the manner provided herein with relation to elections for the authorization of bonds. All taxes by the district for any purpose shall constitute a lien on the property against which levied and limitation shall not bar the enforcement or collection thereof. In calling an election for taxes under this section, the Board of Directors shall specify the maximum rate of the tax which is sought to be levied and no tax in excess of that amount may be levied without submitting the question of the increased rate of taxation at an election as provided."

VFW Assists In Community Project

Veterans of Foreign Wars, Stewart - Wendell Post 3904 were engaged Wednesday in their third big community project of the year, when they poured the foundation for a primitive area scout hut northwest of town, to which local scouts will make pack trips.

Chester Johnson and Bob Hewes, committee members on the project, said that the foundation would be completed Wednesday evening, and that later a small building would be constructed to act as headquarters for the pack trips, as a cooperative program between the scout sponsoring organization, the First Presbyterian Church, Boy Scout Troop 49, and the VFW.

This is the third sizable project the veteran's post has engaged in recently.

At Christmas time they collected more than $100 for baskets to the needy, and distributed nearly three hundred toys donated by the students at the junior high school to needy youngsters. Recently they cooperated in a games party, to raise money for books at the Aransas County Public Library.

The post was also instrumental, as part of its Americanization program, in donating an American flag to Sacred Heart School.

Members of the post are now sponsoring a beauty contest to choose Miss VFW of Rockport, who will receive a $25 bond and a chance to compete in state and national contests. Applications for entry blanks should be made to Hewes or Johnson. The contest will be held in April, having been postponed from the March date originally set.

GUN DEATH RATE OFF

The record number of hunters swarming afield last year may have been the most safety-conscious in recent years, according to J. Weldon Watson, executive director of the Parks and Wildlife Department.

Reports from staff members, admittedly incomplete, significantly showed that of the accidents listed by the Department there was a decrease from 18 fatalities in 1963 to 10 in 1964. Accidents likewise dropped from 59 to 40.

Watson said his field staff "certainly welcomed the decrease in casualties since great emphasis has been in educating hunters to avoid mishaps." He pointed out that game wardens devote a great deal of time during the major wildlife harvest period toward aiding field casualties, finding lost hunters and otherwise helping out.

JUNIOR HIGH STUDENTS BALANCE READING DIET

Two hundred and forty-seven Junior High students have been busily engaged in balancing their reading diet this past school semester. Each student was given a pictured bookcase which indicated the ten classifications of books.

Every two weeks the students' section came to the library, checked out books and listed the author and title of the book in the correct place in their bookcase. Extra effort was made by each student to check out a book in a different classification in order to balance their reading and get acquainted with all types of books.

Most important of all was to acquire the habit of evaluating the books they selected to read in order to make them a better individual and a better student.

A goal of five books per semester was set and to read in at least four different areas.

Check up time came at the end of the first semester and the following students in the seventh grade are given the highest honor for having best balanced selection of books and in most classification: Joe Blackburn, Paul Lusby, Raymond Torres, Andy Crawford, Brenda Hawes, Aurora Mora, Diana Pena, Patricia Chupe, Jerral Hawes, Lenny Landrum, James Glesom, Mark Jeffers, Blenn Davis, Joe Morales, and Gilbert Arispe.

Students honored in the eighth grade are: Delores Huerta, Elmer Roberts, Patsy Armstrong, John Benavidez, Ruth James, Janie Rodriquez, Rosita Garza, Mark Lane, Doug Hoisengton Robert Rinche, Duke Eaton, Charline Taylor, Cindy Court, and Kenneth LeBlanc.

SUGAR-COATED IRONY. Latin American sugar-cane farmers, such as above one in Colombia, could benefit from trouble in Vietnam. Crisis in Southeast Asia threatened to keep sugar prices fluctuating, which could result in higher price level, though the U.S. favors low world sugar prices. The U.S. is concerned since high prices would greatly benefit Communist Cuba, which obtains 85 to 90 per cent. of it s foreign exchange from sugar exports. — WFS
