Decision Expected Today In Duckett's Change Of Venue Fight

58 WITNESSES QUESTIONED IN YOUTH'S TRIAL

Court's Stand On Transfer Of Case Likely To Be Known by Noon

JURORS QUIZZED

Selection of Trial Jury Looms as Difficult Undertaking

By H. I. KIEFER
Staff Correspondent

ARCHER CITY, Aug. 20.—George Duckett probably will know by noon tomorrow whether he will be granted a change of venue for his trial on a charge of murder in connection with the alleged slaying of Charlie McDaniel, pioneer cattleman, at Dundee last July 18.

Although attorneys for the defense, after having called and questioned 58 witnesses during Monday's sessions of the 30th district court in their effort to prove that Duckett cannot obtain a fair trial in Archer county, expressed uncertainty Monday night as to how much more evidence they intend to offer, court attendants had been advised unofficially that the matter probably will be in the hands of Judge E. G. Thornton for decision during Tuesday morning.

Uncertainty Exists

What then may happen remained only a matter for conjecture. Should Judge Thornton allow the change of venue, a continuance of Duckett's trial must automatically follow. Upon the judge would fall the responsibility of selecting the county where Duckett can next be called in trial.

Even greater uncertainty existed as to what the next step will be should Judge Thornton deny the motion. Defense attorneys declined to indicate whether they then will offer motions seeking a continuance.

Still another problem lay ahead should it be ordered that the trial proceed. Of the 58 prospective jurors called for the case, 54 testified under oath in varying degrees of positiveness Monday that they have formed opinions as to the guilt of innocence of the accused man. The expressions of opinion in the belief of court attendants, would preclude the possibility of securing a qualified jury from among those who have been summoned on the venire.

C. C. McDonald, Wichita Falls attorney, who did the questioning for the defense Monday, declined Monday night to express any opinion as to how much more evidence would be offered in support of the motion for a change of venue. He will not know, he said, until he and C. F. Marshall and B. W. King, Graham attorneys with whom McDonald is associated in the defense, have conferred Tuesday morning.

Early Decision Seen

The prospect of an early decision in the prolonged legal fight, however, lay in the announcement of H. R. Wilson of Wichita Falls, a former district judge and now serving as special prosecutor, that the state does not expect to offer any

Murder Charge Filed Against Dallas Youth

DALLAS, Aug. 20. (AP)—W. A. Ball, 19, was formally charged with murder today after the death of Frank Williams, 40, who was wounded by a pistol shot on the night of Aug. 10 at the home of Mrs. Willie B. Ball, mother of the accused youth. Ball originally was charged with assault to murder, and had been at liberty under $2,000 bond.

After the shooting Ball told authorities he shot Williams when the latter abused his mother and threatened to kill him if he interfered.

GUARD RENTS CITY'S SPACE

Auditorium Basement To Be Used by Soldiers

Four units of the Texas National guard in Wichita Falls will occupy the basement of the Memorial auditorium as their home and armory, according to a decision reached by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, and the city council Monday night.

The guard units at present are located in scattered quarters, the artillery battery being in one of the old airplane hangars at Call field and the infantry unit in an upstairs room on Ohio street.

The agreement, which has been approved officially by the council and which has been approved in detail by officers of the guard, is being drawn up by Thelbert Martin, city attorney, at the request of Mr. Fairtrace.

Stables for the artillery battery horses will be erected on the new city barns site by the guard, and rooms will be partitioned in the basement of the auditorium for the cannon, caissons and other equipment of the artillery and infantry units.

The cost of the stables and other improvements is to be $3,300 and it will be borne by the guard. The rent for the first year will be $1. At the end of the year the improvements become the property of the city, and the rental of the auditorium basement and of the stable property becomes $270 a month.

F. M. Rugeley, city engineer, and Mr. Fairtrace were granted permission to attend a national conference of engineers at Cleburne next Monday which was called by the state for the purpose of inspecting a new system of sewage disposal that has been adopted there. Engineers of national note have signified their intention of being present, and several addresses on the problem will be made.

The ordinance prohibiting and regulating the use of explosives in the city was passed on third and final reading. It is effective in 30 days under the city charter.

L. H. Gould, representative of the United Spanish War Veterans association, asked for the free use of the auditorium Sept. 21 for the veteran's presentation of a minstrel show. The proceeds of this show will be used to help pay for the monument the veterans erected in front of the auditorium.

Demo Headquarters Established at Dallas

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—All Texas Democratic congressmen will be asked to aid the national campaign in this state this fall, Jed C. Adams of Dallas, Democratic national committeeman, said today.

State headquarters was established here today with W. A. Thomas of Dallas in charge.

Youth Postpones Date Of Wedding; Girl Suicides

ELDORADO, Kan., Aug. 20. (UP)—Before his sweetheart, Helen Snyder, 22, of Wichita, committed suicide, Jimmy Maxwell, 20, of Wichita, told her he could not afford to marry her until later, Maxwell told a coroner's jury investigating the suicide today.

DEATH CLAIMS FORMER LEGATE TO ENGLAND

Col. George Harvey Dies Suddenly After Recent Illness

MAKER OF PRESIDENTS

Was First to 'Discover' Wilson; Later Aided Harding

DUBLIN, N. H., Aug. 20. (UP)—Col. George Harvey, famous editor, publicist and ambassador to Great Britain under the Harding administration, and sometimes called maker and breaker of presidents, died at his home today.

Death came suddenly after a recent illness. Mrs. Harvey and the family physician were at the bedside.

Born in the village of Peacham, Vt., 64 years ago, Col. Harvey became one of the most popular and influential figures in the politics of the last 20 years.

He is credited with having discovered the presidential possibilities of Woodrow Wilson, then at Princeton. Harvey's astute knowledge of publicity methods and his connections in the publishing and financial world are said by some historians of the period to have been largely responsible for building Wilson up into a national figure strong enough to break the majority for Champ Clark at the Baltimore convention and carry off the nomination.

Split With Wilson

They broke soon afterward, however, when Wilson felt Harvey's Wall street connections were embarrassing. Whether justified or not, Harvey always felt Wilson had been ungrateful and he became a bitter enemy and one who had as much as any man perhaps in robbing Wilson of the supreme triumph, American ratification of the treaty of Versailles and membership in the League of Nations.

It was Harvey, who wrote in vitriol, who set the pace for the anti-league arguments. He spent most of his time in Washington during the league fight, meeting with the senate irreconcilables each night after the day's session, suggesting as to strategy, coining phrases at which he was adept, spotting the openings through which the big guns in the senate could be directed. He sat in the senate galleries throughout the debate, watching it step by step, conferring constantly with Senators Lodge, Borah, Hiram Johnson, and the late Senator Brandegee of Connecticut.

Picked Harding

Again in 1920 Harvey played an influential part in national affairs. It was in his room at the Blackstone hotel in Chicago that the Republican insiders met after midnight one night during the convention and dickered over the nomination, finally selecting Warren G. Harding as the candidate.

When Harding was elected, he made Harvey ambassador to Great Britain and it was said here that the genial ambassador's confidential

Moody Grants Mexicans Stay of Execution

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Yielding to interventions by Mexican Ambassador Telles at Washington and Consul General Santa-Ibanes at San Antonio, Gov. Moody granted a stay of execution today until September 7 to Clemente Rodrigues and Esquivel Servina, convicted of criminally attacking a San Antonio high school girl and sentenced to the electric chair.

The Mexicans were to have been electrocuted early Tuesday morning at the Huntsville state penitentiary.

Moody Hears Petition To Relocate Prisons

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—R. E. Scott, secretary of the Richmond chamber of commerce, conferred with Gov. Moody today about the state prison problem and showed him resolutions adopted at a recent meeting of Fort Bend county citizens proposing relocation and centralization of the prison system. Scott said the governor seemed favorable to the idea.

Mrs. Willebrandt's Raids Irk U. S. District Attorney

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (US)—Charles H. Tuttle, U. S. attorney in New York, grew extremely tired today of the "wholesale investigation of night clubs" being conducted under the direction of Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, assistant attorney-general of the United States in charge of prohibition enforcement.

So Mr. Tuttle, pacing the corridors of the dingy old federal building, announced in no uncertain terms that there would be no more subpoenas issued for alleged patrons of our local night clubs because "it is not right to subject the public to such notoriety and publicity."

Not far away from Mr. Tuttle when he uttered these words to the press were 17 assorted witnesses—bankers, brokers, social registerites—summoned to appear today before the federal grand jury to tell what they knew about the sale of whiskey in Broadway's palaces of joy.

Girl Near Death After Four-Story Fall From Wichita Falls Building

Becoming Faint, Miss Eulah Shipley Topples From Window As Scream Warns Office Attache

Hospital attendants late Monday night held but scant hopes for the recovery of Miss Eulah Shipley, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Shipley, 1109 Monroe street, who sustained critical injuries when she fell four floors from a window in the Harvey-Snider building shortly before noon, Monday.

The girl fell from the window as she was waiting for a friend. In the fall to the sidewalk below she sustained a broken back, and both legs and ankles were broken. Despite the constant attendance of physicians, little improvement in her condition was noticed Monday night, and owing to the alarming nature of her injuries grave fear for her life was expressed.

Miss Shipley, according to some versions of the accident, which was without eye witnesses, apparently fell from the office window in a faint. An employe in the office where she entered said that Miss Shipley had come seeking a friend, and later had complained of the heat. On being told that her friend did not work in the office she had entered, Miss Shipley went to the window and sank down, according to the office employe, a tenist. The attention of the latter was next aroused when she heard Miss Shipley say "I'd better be going," followed by a scream. She looked around to see Miss Shipley's fingertips slip over the window ledge.

In the crash to the sidewalk, the girl encountered guy wires of electric signs, which badly lacerated her body. As she crumpled on the sidewalk, a crowd, realizing what had happened, attempted to lend assistance. A Burris-Shepherd ambulance was called, and the victim was rushed to the hospital.

Woman Sues State Ranger for $35,000

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—G. H. Spencer and wife, Mrs. Ruby Spencer, today filed suit in district court here against State Ranger Homer T. Glover of Angelina county, asking damages in the sum of $35,000.

It was alleged Mrs. Spencer was placed under arrest without warrant and placed in the Angelina county jail, where she "suffered much mortification, great humiliation, mental and physical pain and suffering."

Excluded Nations May 'Adhere' to Peace Pact

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (UP)—Russia, Spain and other countries not formally invited to sign the anti-war treaty with the 15 world powers at Paris can adhere to the pact by sending notices of their adhesion to Washington, acting Secretary of State Castle said today.

These declarations can be filed in the capital any time after the treaty is signed next week, he explained.

Radio Station Towers To Appear Soon

Steelwork of the first of the two steel radio towers that is to rise for station KGKO atop the Perkins-Snider building will begin to show itself above the roof in the next few days, it was learned Monday.

The Panhandle Steel company plant on the Burkburnett road is rushing work on the towers, and expects to have them completed in the shortest possible time.

Brother and Sister Die As Interurban Hits Car

PLAINFIELD, Ind., Aug. 20 (UP)—Stanley Smith, 9, was killed instantly and his sister, Marcelli, 11, was injured fatally here today when an automobile in which they were riding was struck by an interurban. The children resided in Pawhuska, Okla.

Mrs. Ola Smith, mother, and Imogene, 4, a sister of the dead children, were injured seriously.

YANKEE DOODLE SETS RECORD

Art Goebel Pilots First West-to-East Flight

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (UP)—Yankee Doodle came to town today. The plane so named, an all-white Lockheed-Vega monoplane piloted by Art Goebel, made it in two minutes less than 19 hours from Los Angeles and without any stops enroute.

The flight not only clipped 7 hours and 52 minutes from the mark set by Lieuts. James A. MacReady and Oakley Kelly in 1923, but it was the first eastward nonstop trans-continental flight ever made.

145 Miles Per Hour

In addition, Goebel, winner of the Dole Hawaiin race last year, and his companion and backer, Harry Tucker, Santa Monica, Calif., sportsman, set another record. They left Mines Field, Los Angeles, at 12:10 p. m., Pacific time Sunday (4:10 p. m. New York daylight saving time) and their wheels touched the ground here at 11:08 a. m. today. The trip was made at an average speed of approximately 145 miles an hour— a new record for flights of such distance over land o. sea.

Goebel and Tucker literally made the flight between meals. They had an ample supply of food aboard, but so intent were they on breaking speed records that they never touched so much as a sandwich between Los Angeles and Curtiss field.

It was a few moments after 11 a. m. that mechanics at Curtiss field spied a white monoplane of unfamiliar design racing toward the landing field.

Few Welcome

Despite the remarkoble nature of the flight, hardly 100 persons were on hand for its completion.

When MacReady and Kelly flew from New York to San Diego, landing May 3, 1923, they were greeted by an hysterical mob at Rockwell field and lifted on the shoulders of shouting admirers while the ovation, as it were, threw its hat in the air with a wild cheer.

"From coast to coast is but a single span," began one account of the feat. "The Atlantic and Pacific are terminals of America's air lanes, and if one wishes, there are no stops in between," began another.

But MacReady and Kelly's flight was more than five years ago and, although there have been attempts, no other plane until today has succeeded in spanning this continent without pausing.

American Engineer Murdered in Mexico

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (UP)—Henry C. Schmitt, American mining engineer was murdered in the state of Durango, Mexico, Consul William I. Jackson reported to the state department today from Torreon.

Jackson's telegram stated Schmitt was killed Saturday by two unidentified persons at Tlavador mine, 60 miles southwest of Torreon.

Fifteen soldiers have been sent with Jackson to recover the body.

New Credit Paper Urged As Aid to Agriculture

Connally Speaks At Huntsville and Brenham

BRENHAM, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Tom Connally of Marlin, candidate for U. S. senator, made two militant campaign speeches to large Walker and Washington county audiences today, at Huntsville in the afternoon and Brenham at night.

HASSELL HAS SMALL CHANCE, SAYS M'MILLAN

Explorer in Subarctic Area Of Labrador Despairs Of Safety

CHANGE IN WEATHER

Northern Conditions Described as Unusual By MacMillan

NAIN, Labrador, Bowdoin Harbor, Aug. 20. (By Radio to The Associated Press)—If the monoplane Greater Rockford bearing Pilot Bert Hassell and Radio Operator Parker Cramer is down in open water there is no possibility of them getting ashore, Commander D. H. MacMillan said here tonight.

Weather conditions here have been good for the past few weeks with light south winds and but little sea. The weather is not so good today and a change is probably forthcoming, with indicated winds from the east which will be unfavorable for the plane. If the plane is not seaworthy, Commander MacMillan, in charge of the Rawson-Field Museum expedition here, and artic explorer, believes "it is all over."

Walking Impossible

"If they are down in the vicinity of Cape Chidley we may not hear from them for several weeks," Commander MacMillan said, "as the fishermen are now leaving in their schooners. Some of the bays are deep, and efforts to walk to safety would be almost impossible for one not knowing sites of the Eskimo encampments."

Nain, Labrador, is about 325 miles south of Cape Chidley where Operator Cramer is reported to have been when he sent the signal R at 3 o'clock central time Sunday morning. The signal R designated the plane as "75 miles off Cape Chidley" according to a prearranged schedule.

Bowdoin harbor, where Commander MacMillan and the expedition are located is about 25 miles north of Ninain, or within easy radio distance of where the Greater Rockford dispatched its final signal.

"We are keeping a sharp lookout for any signals which may come," Commander MacMillan said.

Conditions Unusual

"Ice conditions on and near Labrador this year have been most unusual. We have not seen a pack of ice since June 15. Old fishermen have never seen anything like that.

"Scarcity of any ice for footing lends a hazard which the fliers might otherwise use in making their way to land."

Commander MacMillan in his message disclosed plans for the expedition's departure south tomorrow, and they will arrive at Wiscasset, Maine, during the next few weeks, after a year in the subartic area for the Field Museum expedition, which is also co-financed by Frederick R. Rawson, Chicago capitalist.

Burleson Declares He'll Support Tom Connally

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Albert S. Burleson, former postmaster general in President Wilson's cabinet, said today he will support Congressman Tom Connally for the United States senate against Senator Earle B. Mayfield, running for reelection.

"Connally does not talk dry and act wet", Mr. Burleson observed.

Fire Destroys French Warehouses in Morocco

SAN JURGO, Morocco, Aug. 20. (UP)—Fire today destroyed the French military and civilian warehouses. Several soldiers fighting the fire were seriously burned. The damages were heavy.

EXPERT HOPEFUL

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 20(US) "There is no reason yet to lose hope for the safety of the plane, Greater Rockford," Helge Bangsted, an expert on Greenland, stated tonight. Bangsted who has just returned from Greenland declared that there should be no cause for serious anxiety until five days have passed without word from the fliers.

Alaska has her bathing beaches and beauties, too. This little miss was winner of first prize in a recent beach parade at Ketchikan, Alaska, Bugge Beach, frequented by hundreds of people from May to October, is one of the few bathing resorts in the territory.

WM. A. WHITE GIVEN REPLY TO ACCUSATION

Nominee Declares Charges Are 'Unfair, Unmanly, Un-American'

DETAILED ANSWERS

Smith's Assembly Voting Record Is Carefully Explained

ALBANY, N. Y., Aug. 20. (AP)—Training guns on William Allen White and other critics of his public career, Governor Smith declared tonight in a detailed review of his stand on social legislation as a member of the New York assembly his record "as an opponent of immorality is fixed and secure."

The Democratic presidential nominee's statement, made public after several weeks had been spent in its preparation, was aimed particularly at the Kansas editor, who recently charged the governor, as a legislator, favored the saloon and organized vice.

It also assailed Republican national comittee for "openly associating itself with this personal attack," and was intended to include in its scope among others Dr. John Roach Stratton, the New York Baptist minister, who has been outspoken in assaults on the governor.

"Unfair Un-American"

As for Mr. White, the nominee said that the editor's statements about him and his legislative record were "slanderous" and that the attack on him was "unfair" unmanly and un-American."

"I have the satisfaction, however, of knowing," Governor Smith said, "that it is not consurred in by the people of my own state who have year after year expressed confidence in me, notwithstanding that a large part of this matter herein referred to was laid before them in the past by agents of my political enemies."

In formulating his reply to White, the governor, who Wednesday evening formally will accept the presidential nomination, studied old legislative journals and records, and to refresh his memory, examined in detail scores of proposals listed by the Kansan.

Once And For All

"I am glad to have this matter out of the whispering stage and put in the open; once and for all I shall meet it now. I regard it as purely political, and when the campaign begins I do not propose to have the issues of that campaign befogged by controversy over irrelevant things, such as the discussion of my votes as a legislator some 20 or more years ago."

Declaring that "publicly and by many letters in my possession, the late Rev. Canon John P. Peters, when chairman of the committee of 14, the leading anti-vice society of New York, repeatedly thanked me for cooperation with that organization", the governor went on:

"No one in all the 25 years of my public life has ever dared to make the vile suggestions which emanated from Mr. White, with the approval of Henry J. Allen, publicity director of the Republican national committee. What a cowardly course the Republican national comittee pursued. It issued a slanderous statement through its official publicity bureau, then after its general publication in the press, attempted to evade responsibility by the childish claim that it had been given out by accident. That is not fair play."

Official Release

In this connection Governor Smith referred to White's cablegram from Europe last week denying that he had "retracted" those charges against the nominee dealing with gambling and prostitution and which, the governor added, was given to the newspapers as an "official release" from the Republican national committee.

"Lacking the courage to stand by its complicity in the attack, he added, "the Republican director of publicity the next day states that he withdraws his issuance of Mr. White's withdrawal of his withdarwal."

Taking up first White's charges dealing with liquor proposals, the governor said there had been a "deliberate attempt" to show that his votes "dealt with a far greater number of so-called liquor bills than

FOUR KILLED IN TORNADOES

Iowa and Minnesota In Path of Hurricanes

DUBUQUE, Iowa, Aug. 20. (AP)—The Telegraph-Herald's correspondent at Austin, Minn., reported tonight that four persons were killed and damage estimated at more than $500,000 caused by a tornado which struck the center of the town shortly after 5 p. m. today.

ST. PAUL, Minn., Aug. 20. (AP)—At least two persons are known to have been killed and a score or more injured in a tornado which swept across Freeborn and Mower counties in Southern Minnesota today.

Early reports told of one death and a dozen or more injuries and much property damage at Austin. An unidentified man was killed there. Another death was near Glenville, Minn.

The tornado struck a path ranging from two blocks to two and a half miles in width through the southern section of Freeborn county and through a northeasterly direction in Mower county taking its toll in Austin, Glenville and other communities. A thorough check on the stricken districts was almost impossible.

Mrs. Chris O. Hagen, a farmer's wife living near Glenville was carried for about a half mile from her farm home and dropped in a slough by the storm. She was dead when rescuers found her.

The other death occurred in Austin when the tornado destroyed the Motor Inn building. Up to a late hour the man killed there was unidentified.

ROCKWELL CITY, Iowa, Aug. 20. (AP)—Two lives were taken by a tornado that swept across Twin Lakes, a resort five miles north of here at 5 p. m. today.

CHEMIST BURNED

DALLAS, Texas, Aug. 20. (UP)—His clothing set ablaze by exploding ether, Henry T. Herndon, 26, a chemist, received serious burns here this afternoon.

Relatives of W. J. McDonald Win Continuance of Case to Contest Will

PARIS, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Declaring their attorneys were unable physically to present detailed evidence in a lengthy trial, involving bequest of $1,000,000 for erection of an astronomical observatory at Texas university, relatives of the late W. J. McDonald today obtained continuance until Oct. 29.

It further was recited some of the contestants, relatives of the late bachelor millionaire, had employed Clyde Sweeton, Houston attorney, during the last few days and that it was not possible for him to become familiar with the case on such short notice.

Judge Phillips granted the motion but called a special term of court in order to have the docket clear for what promised to be an extraordinarily long proceeding.

The case was called for retrial after the state supreme court had granted the contestants a writ of error on the grounds that the trial court erred in nature of its instructions in regard to "insane delusions." The court's verdict in the original trial, held soon after McDonald's death, upheld the bequest to Texas university.

TEXAN'S YACHT IN LONG TOUR

Esperenza, Owned by Beaumont Man, Leaves Soon

CHICAGO, Aug. 20.—Probably the most interesting yachting news in and around Chicago today is the proposed cruise of Mr. S. W. Parrish's "Esperenza," a double-ended ketch, flying the burgee of the Beaumont (Texas) Yacht club.

This cruise, a semi-scientific jaunt, is to take up the greater part of two years and include many foreign ports in its itinerary.

The Esperenza is leaving Chicago for New York via the Great Lakes. Upon its arrival at the Erie canal the rigging will be removed to comply with canal regulations and the ketch will make the 50-hour journey through the canal under auxiliary work.

To Be Refitted

She is equipped with a 200-horse power Hall-Scott marine engine, capable of about 12 to 15 knots per hour, but canal regulations require a maximum speed of six miles per hour.

At New York she will be refitted, her masts restepped and provisions taken aboard for a cruise to Norfolk, Charleston, Annapolis and down the coast to Jacksonville and Miami.

From the Florida coast she will point for the West Indies, visiting Cuba, Jamaica, Porto Rico, Haiti and the Bahamas.

From the West Indies the ship will go to Vera Cruz, Mexico, down the Ishmus past Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and touch at Yucatan.

Here the scientists will go ashore for a visit to the ruined cities of the extinct Mayas, principally that of Chichenitza, where they expect to gather valuable data on the customs and mannerisms of this long dead civilization.

To South America

After the expedition into Yucatan peninsula the ship will sail for Venezuela, South America, another scientfic enterprise, thence to Colon, Panama; through the canal to Balboa on the Pacific side, up the west coast of Mexico and lower California to Los Angeles and San Francisco. This part of the cruise is expected to require about a year.

At San Francisco the Esperenza will be refitted and prepared for further wanderings.

She will put out from Frisco for Hawaii, stop there for a short time and continue on, visiting the islands of the South Seas.

Her next port of call will be New Guinea where the scientists plan to disembark for considerable time for an excursion into the interior of the island, as yet not thoroughly explored.

No plans have been made regarding the further travels of the Esperenza, but it is believed she will continue on to Australia before returning to the United States.

The owner of Esperenza is a resident of Tulsa, Okla., and Beaumont, Texas. He is an independent oil operator with experience in Mexico as well as southwestern United States.

Built in 1913

The Esperenza was formerly owned by Henry Berkhauser of Green Bay, Wis., and was brought to Chicago to be fitted out for this cruise. She is now a guest of the Chicago Yacht club at Belmont harbor.

She is 79 feet 10 inches over-all in length, 56 feet 5 inches on the water-line, she draws 6 feet 5 inches of water and carries 13 tons of keel weight and five ton of concrete and iron ballast.

She was built in 1913 by William J. Starr, amateur boatbuilder of Baltimore, Md., as an auxiliary ketch and placed second in last year's Mackinack race.

In addition to her staff of zoologists, botanists, anthropologists and archaeologists, she will carry a crew of six seamen, her owner and two officers.

Her skipper is Capt. Howard Blummer, who will also act as navigator; her engineer and first mate is Lee H. Parrish, geologist, and son of the owner.

Death Dealing Sound Waves Startle Scientists When They Kill Life Germs

BERKELEY, Cal., Aug. 20. (INS)—Death dealing sound waves!

An experiment in this strange new field, it was revealed today, has been successfully carried out by three University of California scientists.

The demonstration that high frequency sound waves emanating from a crystal vibrating at the rate of 750,000 times a second, will kill large protozoa.

So terrific and so instantaneous was the effect of the lethal sound waves, that the gill filaments of the protozoa were torn from their bodies.

Strange fields of conjecture for scientists of the future have thus been opened. But the Berkeley scientists would make no predictions as to the future application of death dealing sound waves.

Whether armies of the future will be decimated by directed sound, hurled through the ether by electrical apparatus, interests them not at all. They are delving in a field of pure science.

A. R. Olson, associate professor in the department of chemistry, one of the experimenters, even pointed out that previous experiments had been conducted in this same field; that he and his associates, F. O. Schmitt, reasearch assistant, and C. H. Johnson, teaching fellow, have merely carried on the work to a higher degree of perfection.

Beneficial rather than destructive results are more the goal of the local scientists. Bloodless surgery has been accomplished by the same methods used to kill the microscopic organisms.

In carrying out the experiments, which were begun two years ago, they found it necessary to invent and to build much of their own apparatus. They perfected glass needles to carry the sound vibrations, the points of which were so fine as to be almost invisible.

This delicate instrument was necessary because all the experiments must needs be carried out under powerful microscopes. They were exploring in a world unknown to the naked eye.

First a drop containing the protozoa was placed on a microscopic slide and a glass cover laid over it. The slide was then laid over an oscillator dish.

The oscillator dish contained a crystal which was caused to vibrate by the passage of an electrical current through the liquid in which it was immersed.

In conducting the experiment with planarian worms, the glass needle was used.

The large end of the needle was placed in the oscillator dish, and the point of the needle directed against the worm.

So delicate was this operation that scientists used an extremely sensitive instrument, the micro-manipulator, with which to guide the needle.

They discovered that when the needle point was placed against the worm, even though lightly, the vibrating point instantly burned the worm. If the shank of the vibrating point were placed across the worm, the body would be severed.

Oklahoma Ballot Investigation Ends

SAPULPA, Okla., Aug. 20. (UP)—Investigation of alleged corruption in the Creek county primary elections was at a stand still today.

Governor Henry S. Johnston who informed Mayor Lafe Speer he would take a hand in the affair, did not appear here Saturday, as indicated, nor today.

Although it was rumored the county election board would hold a session today, no move toward this end had been made by mid-afternoon.

It was believed the board would not meet until next Thursday, as scheduled.

Cleburne Youth Lost Since Sunday Night

CLEBURNE, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Morris Hopkins, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Hopkins, three miles west of Cleburne, vanished in the night and a search had failed to solve the mystery of his disappearance Monday. Members of the Boy Scout troops of Cleburne combed the countryside and dragged the waters of the Nolan river.

Hopkins was missed early Monday morning.

Appointment of Louisiana Man Strongly Opposed

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20. (AP)—An application for a writ to restrain Dr. Joseph A. O'Hara from attempting to take over the office of president of the Louisiana Board of Health, to which he was appointed today by Governor Long, was filed in civil district court by attorneys for Dr. Bowling.

Judge Gaze signed a temporary restraining order and set August 23 as the date for the hearing.

Dr. Bowling said he had slept in his office "a few nights" in order to be certain it was occupied at all times. Asked if the guard he had employed was still on the job he said:

"I have had a friend there."

Japs Claim Soviet Causes Uprising

TOKYO, Aug. 20. (AP)—Japanese military circles believe the Mongolian uprising against Chinese authority in the District of Kulunor was instigated by soviet sources. They estimate that Japan may be compelled to give serious attention to the situation if the movement results in soviet control being extended from outer Mongolia to inner Mongolia.

Official Japanese dispatches describe the disturbances as resulting from an attempt of Mongol Buriat tribesmen to win their independence from China. These advices give the separatist movement a local character.

DEATH HOLDS GOLD SECRET

Dead Man's Pal Continues Search for Rich Mine

WOODLAND, Calif., Aug. 20.—Location of a bonanza in the Oregon mountains at Day's Creek Ridge is still a dead man's secret.

Returning to his little farm near here, C. J. Meier, veteran prospector, who has devoted most of his life to searching for the fabulous treasure, still has hopes and as soon as he gets another grub stake, back he will go to Day's Creek.

It was 31 years ago that Meier found his partner, Edward Schefflen, dead in the Oregon hills. Beside him were several samples of gold ore. Meier had been killed by chemicals he was using to assay the metal from a rich lode he had found. The ore ran $5,000 to the ton.

This was Schlefflen's second big strike. He had discovered the famous Tombstone mine in Arizona. Although he made more than a million dollars out of that strike, Schefflen continued to follow the lure of gold.

Twenty years later when he and his partner Meier were tapping the Oregon hills Schelflen made his last find.

After Meier had buried Schefflen, he started a search for the vein of ore, and he has been searching ever since. He has scoured 300 square miles in the Day's Creek region—futilely.

Each year after he has made enough to carry him for several months he leaves his farm here and again takes up the hunt for the lost bonanza.

Rescuer Learns That Col. Fawcett Is Dead

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (UP)—The mysterious disappearance in the Brazilian wilderness three years ago of Col. P. H. Fawcett, famous British explorer, ended in his death, according to a story appearing in the New York World today and copyrighted by the North American Newspaper alliance.

The story says that Commander George H. Dyott, who went in search of Colonel Fawcett's party the first of this year, had sent a radio message to an operator in Rio De Janeiro, who had in turn relayed it to Robert Lloyd of Elmsworth, Pa., and William McDonald Jr., of Hollis, N. Y.

The message, according to the World's story, said that Fawcett had been killed by Indians in July, 1925.

Officers Fail to Glean Bank Raid Information

SAPULPA, Okla., Aug. 20. (UP)—Efforts of Colorado officers to connect Oklahoma suspects with the bank holdup and killings recently in Lamar, Colo., failed here when they were unable to identify a man questioned here in connection with the crime.

Lamar officers and other officials came here over the week-end to view a suspect held in the county jail but none of their descriptions tallied with any member of the gang which last May robbed the Lamar bank, killed two officials and escaped into western Kansas.

San Antonio's Tallest Building About Finished

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—San Antonio's tallest structure, an office building, is fast nearing completion and already towers above the business district. The building is in the newer part of the downtown section and the steel work for the first 27 stories is in place. When completed it will be 35 stories. The only other building in town anywhere as tall is 21 stories.

BANKER MOURNED

PACT SIGNING TO HAVE COLOR

Imposing Array of Diplomats Attend

PARIS, Aug. 20. (UP)—The signing of the Kellogg anti-war agreement a week from today will be attended by an imposing array of diplomats and plenipotentiaries representing many of the leading nations of the world.

In addition to the signatories already announced, the foreign office learned unofficially today that Premier Mussolini had instructed Count Manzoni, the Italian ambassador to Paris, to sign for Italy, Poland notified the Qual d' Orsay that Foreign Minister August Zaleswki would come to sign in person if possible.

The others announced are:

Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state, United States; Aristide Briand, French foreign minister; Lord Cushendun, for Great Britain, Northern Ireland and India; Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister; Paul Hymans, Belgian foreign minister; Jacobus Smith, Union of South Africa; W. L. Mackenzie King, premier of Canada; Sir C. V. Para, New Zealand; Patrick MacGilligan, Irish Free State foreign minister; Count Uchida, Japan; Dr. Edouard Benes, Czecho-Slovakian foreign minister.

An extensive program of banquets and receptions for the foreign diplomats have been arranged.

Turning down all offers of professional football, Bennie Oosterbaan will be a full-time coach at Michigan next year.

Escaped Texas Convict Captured Near Laredo

LAREDO, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Willie Rodriguez, who escaped from the Blue Ridge state prison farm August 13, was captured last night by Laredo officers. He was identified by finger prints.

Rodriguez, who was sentenced from Wilson county on a murder charge in 1926, told officers he escaped from the camp on a horse.

Ernest Robertson Will Wed Portland Ore. Girl Aug. 20

The announcement of the approaching wedding of Ernest Robertson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wiley L. Robertson of this city, to Miss Claudia Fletcher of Portland, Ore., has just been received here by friends of the family.

The wedding will take place in Portland August 29. Announcement of the marriage was made at a party given by the mother of the bride, Mrs. Jack Fletcher, in the Alderwood Country club in Portland recently.

Both young people are graduates of the University of Oregon where Mr. Robertson specialized in law, following his graduation. He is a member of Phi Delta Theta social fraternity. The bride-elect is a member of Pi Beta Phi social sorority, and of Theta Sigma Phi, professional journalistic fraternity, and Mortar Board, senior girls' honary fraternity.

The wedding will take place at the St. Michaels and All Angels Episcopal church, and the reception which will follow the wedding will be held in the home of the parents of the bride.

CHIC CHERIE — Latest Fashions

Being in a contemplative mood, Cherie had to find something to contemplate and since the early fall styles are already appearing that problem wasn't so hard. Not as hard as seven times 19, for instance. The answer is that there's nothing much more worth looking at than the back views of the new autumn fashions. Take them in order—the shemise is pleated ninon trimmed with Alencon lace and shows the newest back-decolletage for evening lingerie. The coat is also cut to a point in the back and the line of seaming is accentuated by two slightly flaring flounces. The evening gown is interesting for its crushed collar and shirred side panels. The back is slightly bloused.

The deep V line is being used more and more on the back of gowns as well as on the front. The evening dress to the left shows such a neckline, emphasized by a little cape, by the line of the girdle and by the dipping of the skirt flounces. The dress next to it offers the same line on the bodice and in the placing of the pleated ruffles of the skirt. This black satin and pink georgette affair illustrates a new color combination, too. The rounded cape and skirt panels of the third frock are not quite so new, but at that aren't more than a few months old and good for another year. The coat to the right uses lines of stitching and rows of buttons to show that wraps have ideas, too.

If You Don't Know for Sure You Love A Man, Be Sure of This; You Don't

Shall an Artistic Girl Marry for Love or Remain Single in Order to Achieve a Career?—The Hazards Of a Companionate Marriage—Advice to a Young Girl On How to Treat Her First Beau.

Dear Miss Dix—Should an artistic girl marry an artistic man whom she loves, or an unartistic substantial business man who loves her, but whom she is not sure she loves, although she admires him very much? Should a girl who has aspirations for a career in an artistic line rely upon her own abilities and enter the working world, or should she take a good chance when she has it and marry a man who would be able to be a great asset financially to her career.

—TILLY.

Answer—I don't think that a girl should marry any man concerning whom she has any doubt about her feelings. If you don't know whether you love a man or not, set it down that you don't. When you are really in love for keeps, you won't have to analyze your feelings, or vivisect your heart, or take your temperature. You will know that you have a bad case of love, and you will think you are going to die if you don't get that particular man.

Matrimony is a strenuous job. For most women it is like sentence at hard labor. Even the best of husbands are difficult to get along with, and try a woman's patience, and nothing but love and the grace of God gives any woman the strength to carry on. So take my advice and don't marry any man that you don't care enough for to think every sacrifice sweet because you make it for his sake.

As to whether it is better for an artistic girl to marry a kindred soul, or to unite herself to an earthling, much is to be said on both sides of the question. If you marry another artist, you will have a husband who speaks your language, who is interested along the same lines that you are, and who will understand your aims and aspirations. But artists are notoriously temperamental in disposition and when two temperaments clash there are fireworks. Also, if you and your artist work along the same line, the question of professional jealousy comes in, and that adds nothing to the peace and harmony at a home. Nor is the artistic husband often a good provider, nor easily domesticated.

Your good, solid, practical business man may never be able to discuss the technique of your art with you, but he is a lot less liable to say things to you that will hurt your feelings. He may never be able to thrill in unison with you, but he has his feet planted on the solid ground and is a safe lightning rod for your moods. Yet you may always feel that while he feeds your body, he starves your soul.

So there you are, and you can take your choice. But if you want a career, don't marry at all. She travels the fastest who travels alone along the road of ambition. Somehow matrimony and careers for women don't mix. When a man marries he merely annexes a wife to his business in life, but when a woman marries, marriage becomes her business in life.

There are very few careers that can be pursued at home. To succeed a woman must go into the outer world. She must give her time, her thoughts, her interests, her strength to her work and to just that extent she robs her husband and her home. You cannot picture the ideal wife and mother off lecturing or singing or making political speeches while husband and children shift for themselves as best they can.

Nor can you bank on the man you marry enthusiastically putting up the money to forward your career. Don't marry a man thinking he will furnish the money to send you abroad to study painting or singing, in the hopes that you may become famous and leave him. That is too much to expect of a husband.

So, if you are career mad, strike out for yourself without encumbering yourself with a husband, either artistic or otherwise.

—DOROTHY DIX.

Answer: There is no such thing in reality as the companionate marriage. So far it is merely a theory, a suggestion put forward by Judge Lindsey for alleviating what he considers the hardships of matrimony.

The idea of the companionate marriage is that the man and woman who enter it assume no obligation toward each other except that of agreeable companionship. The husband does not support his wife. She continues to earn her own living, and in case they part she is entitled to no alimony. There are to be no children, and if they do not find marriage perfectly agreeable, or if either one tires of the arrangement, they can get a divorce as easily and inexpensively as they got a marriage license.

But, as I said, the companionate marriage is so far merely a theory. No such marriage law has been passed in any state, and if your young man marries you, he will have to take out the old-fashioned marriage license that is based on the idea that marriage is a binding contract and not a sixty days' option.

My advice to you, Sara, is to enter into no marriage with a man who is such a coward that he is afraid to assume the responsibilities of a family, and who cares so little for you that he is providing a way even before marriage to shake you when he gets tired of you. Don't marry any man who isn't willing to take you for better or for worse, and who isn't ready to swear at the altar that he will cherish you in sickness or in health, and that he will endow you with all his worldly goods.

In a companionate marriage, if such a thing were possible, all the advantages would go to the man. He would have the services of a wife who supported herself and helped support the home, and who assisted him in getting a start in the world, but she would have no share in the fortune whose foundation she had labored to lay.

When she got old and lost her charms he could discard her as easily as an old shoe, and it is a safe bet that if companionate marriage ever prevails, mighty few women of 40 will still have a husband.

—DOROTHY DIX.

The Day Book of a New Yorker

By GRANT DIXON

NEW YORK, Aug. 2'—The young man stepped into the telephone booth at exactly 10:10, just as he had the night before, and just as he had the night before that. You see, he had recently been transferred to night work and he found it hard to "carry on" without a few words with his darling to make the night seem shorter.

So 10 o'clock every night found him creeping stealthily downstairs, wary of detection, for well he knew the amount of kidding he would have to stand were he caught.

So far his secret was safe, he was sure.

He reckoned without his operators, however, for tonight as he dropped his nickel he was greeted, not with the customary "Number, please?" but instead with a cheery, "Oh, hello, you want Blank 7784? Just a moment, please."

And he was connected with his party before he had time to recover from his astonishment.

The shifting of the sailing hours of transatlantic liners from day time to midnight has cut a wide swath in the daily earnings of those swarthy hawkers along the Battery Park sea wall who rent out marine glasses to curious sightseers and inquisitive vacationists for a close-up view of ships, the Statue of Liberty, Ellis Island and Governors Island and other interesting things that make up the spectacle of the New York Harbor.

Battery Park, with its boat landings, and Aquarium, is one of the sightseeing points in New York and is usually thronged with persons exuding a holiday atmosphere. And of all the interesting things to be seen from the southermost point of Manhattan Island, nothing proved more interesting, so the marine glass hawkers claim, than the passing out to sea of one of the numerous giant liners that ply between New York and other seaports of the world.

The marine glass hawkers could easily rent all the dozen or more glasses each hawker has when a liner passes with the aid of several puffing tugs, as two thousand or more sea voyagers crowd the deck rails for a last glimpse of New York.

With the present midnight sailings and the hawkers' greatest sales object removed, they are now earning less and crying their wares more than they formerly did. But they are hopeful that the daylight sailing schedules of old and better days soon will replace the present midnight departures.

The horoscope printed upon the little cards which some weight machines eject are impressive—especially when they relate to children.

"What does mine say, mother?" asks Joe, aged four.

"You have a strong tendency for politics, but the practical affairs of life keep this tendency in the background of your mind. It's impossible to be two places at once."

He studies it seriously and remarks: "Let's go to the beach."

The Things That Last

IN THE town of Tenayuca, half a dozen miles outside of Mexico City, archaeologists are restoring a great Aztec temple, one of the finest now in existence.

Its four wells are paneled with bas-relief serpents chiseled in stone. A great, steep stairway leads up the west side of the tall pyramid; at the top is an open space where once the stone altar and sanctuary stood.

Much of the structure is missing. For centuries Indians and white men have carried away stones for building material. The towering mass of earth and rock that remains was not, for a long time, even known to be an artificial affair; people who lived near it supposed it was just a rather symmetrical hill.

It is interesting to ponder on the fate that overtakes old buildings.

Five centuries ago this building at Tenayuca represented the utmost in theological knowledge and architectural skill that could be found in the new world. It was one of the great achievements of a race; it symbolized the highest point reached by the minds of America's wisest men in their upward gropings for truth and beauty.

Undoubtedly, the men who built it and served in its ritual looked on it as permanent. Their nation ruled all of the world they knew about; no vision of the future that they might have had could have foretold the complete extinction of their civilization. Yet today their imposing temple, where they groped for an understanding of the infinite, is a moss-grown ruin, visited only by professors with notebooks.

This sort of moralizing is old stuff, perhaps. Yet it is exactly the sort of thing that we, who have such unlimited faith in the things we make with our hands, ought to indulge in a little more.

Some day, in all probability, the United States of America will go the way of the empire of Montezuma, and our finest buildings will be rubbish heaps for antiquarians from—China, shall we say? Wars, revolutions, economic shifts and natural catastrophes will destroy all that we have built; and what will be left? What have we, today, that would be thought worth saving by an alien race of conquerors?

Not much, perhaps. Intangible things, at best; a glimpse of beauty, here and there, a vision of sanity amid the chaos of life, a gleam of eternal truth found in the turmoil of things,—nothing more. Steel and stone rust and crumble. If they are the only materials in which we can build there won't be much left of our handiwork. Until we learn how to produce something besides skyscrapers and automobiles and steel plate, we needn't feel that we're going to bequeath such a great deal to posterity.

Another Submarine Sinks

THE TRAGEDY that sent the Italian submarine F-14 to the bottom the other day is instructive for us who had our own submarine catastrophe a few months ago.

This accident was very similar to the one that sank the S-4. The F-14 was just coming to the surface when a speeding destroyer crashed into it. It sank almost at once, in 130 feet of water.

There was a disposition in some quarters in the United States to blame the navy department for the S-4 tragedy. The Italian incident ought to demonstrate one thing; that submarines are risky affairs, at best, and that there can be tragedies in connection with their use in all navies. The mishaps that come seem to arise from the nature of the submarines and not from official incompetence or neglect.

Tourists and Skulls

SOME of the things that people do are rather discouraging to one who likes to believe the best about human nature.

At the great battlefield of Verdun, the authorities are having a great deal of trouble with tourists. The tourists poke about the battlefields for bones. They prod into the ground, dig up skulls, flourish them with glee and cart them off—to do Heaven knows what with them. It would take a peculiar sort of person to take any pride in a souvenir of that kind.

One Argentine tourist company, it seems, even furnishes spades to the parties it sends to Verdun.

A thing like that is, we repeat, rather discouraging. The hundreds of thousands of heroic French and German soldiers who died at Verdun would have felt inspired, surely, if in their last hours could have foreseen what would happen only 12 years later.

An ostrich thinks he's out of sight when he puts his head in the sand, and so does a man when he puts on a silk hat.

Lancaster, (Ohio) farmer set a hen on a batch of turtle eggs. They hatched, and the whole family turned turtle.

KEEP FAITH WITH CITY

The closing of the doors of the First National bank shortly after banking hours Tuesday afternoon has created an atmosphere of uncertainty which should be dissipated at once. It is true that the cessation of business at the bank caught some depositors who do not have funds readily available from other sources, but it is also true that no permanent injury will result to many depositors by the delay in straightening out the bank's affairs.

There is no use in minimizing the seriousness of the situation, but at the same time, there is little danger of a business stringency unless Denton citizens and business men lose their heads and create through their fears, an artificial tightening of business. Business men must be lenient with their customers who have deposits tied up in the bank, and citizens above all, must retain their confidence in Denton and Denton institutions.

Depositors in the bank should wait patiently, with a knowledge that everything possible is being done to prevent the loss of a single penny to those who had deposits in the bank.

PAPER CELEBRATES ANNIVERSARY

Today the Record-Chronicle completes its first 25 years as a daily newspaper, a quarter of a century of supplying news to the citizens of Denton and Denton county every afternoon except Sunday. In that period, Denton has grown from a large town to a small city, widely known for its educational facilities and its beautiful homes.

In this same period, the Record-Chronicle, too, has grown. From a four-page newspaper, it has developed into an eight, 12 or 16-page newspaper each afternoon. The faith which this newspaper and its personnel has in Denton has not been dimmed during the 25 years, and we face the next 25 years with a supreme confidence in the future of Denton.

The FORBIDDEN DOOR — by Herman Landon

Ernest Mallingham was alone in the library filled with strange curios gathered from many lands by the great scientist, Winthrop Gaston Martenet, erratic and tireless explorer into the mysteries of life, who had now been dead seven years.

Ernest was waiting for a woman and because these queer surroundings got on his nerves he was waiting impatiently. Julia was late again. Julia was the young widow of old Martenet's son Maxwell, a man twice her age. Maxwell had disappeared four years after his father's death and because he had been more or less a nobody it was taken for granted he was dead. But Ernest Mallingham was suspicious and when the young widow appears he accuses her of keeping a secret from him and the rest of the world. Breaking down, she promises to tell him all. Hannan Martenet, son of Maxwell Martenet, lately arriving in New York from the tropics, finds he is being trailed by a young woman. He visits the family lawyer, who gives him a letter from his grandfather which he is to read and then destroy. The letter warns Hannan not to open "the iron door until the clock has stopped" and ends with a drawing of a man his grandfather calls dangerous. As Hannan finishes reading there is a knock and the original of the drawing stands before him.

"You spoke of my father," he remarked. Have you any theory with regard to his death?"

How Hannan Heeded the Warning

Hannan's brain made a few giddy revolutions, and then, with the mental buoyancy of a man whose life is made up of many surprises, he mastered a fair imitation of poise.

"Come in," he said pleasantly.

With many apologies his visitor walked into the room. He hoped Mr. Martenet would not resent the intrusion. He begged forgiveness for coming up without having himself announced. He had been told by the clerk downstairs that Mr. Martenet's telephone was out of order, and so he had ventured to proceed without the usual preliminaries. His name, by the way, happened to be Mr. Peters—Mr. Horace Peters.

Hannan, with one hand in the pocket of his dinner jacket, where his grandfather's letter reposed, proclaimed himself happy to make Mr. Horace Peters' acquaintance. Mr. Peters was a short man in faultless evening clothes, and the long sweep of his swallow-tails made him look a little ridiculous. The wide and immaculate expanse of his shirt front seemed a trifle out of proportion. His head was somewhat larger than symmetry allowed. His nose was a thing of ruddy hues and generous dimensions.

The mouth need not have been quite so long from corner to corner. In fact, Mr. Peters seemed out of proportion in various ways, both as to physiognomy and stature. And he looked exactly like the sketch in Hannan's pocket.

A little uneasily Hannan fingered his grandfather's letter. Mr. Curry had cautioned him to burn it immediately after reading it, and for no apparent reason he was already wishing he had done so. It could be of no further use to him. Its contents, the sketch included, were indelibly etched in his memory.

He offered cigarets, apologizing for having no cigars. Mr. Peters accepted one, declaring he never smoked anything else. Then Hannan struck a match, casually drew the letter from his pocket, formed it into a taper, ignited one end, and held it to the tip of his visitor's cigaret. Then, while covertly studying Mr. Peters' face, he lighted his own. He watched the taper turn into an elongated flake, waited until it had been reduced to char, then opened a window and flung it to the breeze.

"That's that," he said.

"Love letter?" asked Mr. Peters with an engaging smile that revealed a prominent gold tooth. If he thought the younger man's act peculiar, his face showed no sign of it.

Hannan merely smiled mysteriously.

"When I was young," said Mr. Peters, "it was the custom to preserve love letters, tie a nice ribbon around them, and put them away in lavender. Times change, and manners with them." He sighed wistfully. "As old Horace, my great Latin namesake, put it: 'Laudorem vaccit laeck.'"

Hannan looked at Horace Peters, then up at the ceiling. His eyes twinkled softly. An amusing and genial sort was Mr. Peters—but dangerous? Hardly. At least, one would never think so to look at him. Was it possible that Winthrop Gaston Martenet had been mistaken for once in his estimate of character?

Mr. Peters polished his lenses. He looked about the room, and a puzzled expression came into his face as he saw the disorder. Either the expression was genuine, Hannan reflected, or else Mr. Peters was a clever actor.

"Quite a rough-house, isn't it?" the younger man remarked. "Somebody sneaked in here and turned things upside down while I was having dinner."

"Dear me!" Mr. Peters looked sincerely astounded. "Burglars, of course?"

"Of course," said Hannan carelessly. "But they didn't get anything.

"That's fortunate. It shows a sad state of affairs, however, when a man is not safe in even a high-class hotel. Yes, a very sad state of affairs, Mr. Martenet. As the great Horace once remarked: 'Caiorum cupata quest.'"

Hannan gave him a gently mocking look.

"Oh, come now, Mr. Peters. Horace never said anything like that. It isn't even Latin."

Mr. Peters stared at him in astonishment, then grinned in a shamefaced way.

"No," he confessed, "it isn't Latin. I don't know any Latin. I just made it up. For years I've been making up sentences that sounded like Latin and springing them on my friends.

"They sound well and—er—everybody thinks I'm a learned man. You are the first one to jerk me up on it. Imagine that! I have been getting away with it for years, and then you come along and expose me."

His humiliation made Hannan laugh. He could see that his rating for intelligence had suddenly gone up in his visitor's estimation. Again he wondered about his grandfather's estimate of the man. Mr. Peters was a fraud—a rather amusing and amiable one—but it was hard to picture him as anything worse than that.

"By the way," said Mr. Peters, recovering from his embarrassment, "I saw an item in the papers this morning to the effect that you were in town. I made up my mind to call on you and see if I could be of any service to you. You are practically a stranger here, having been absent so many years, and a stranger is sometimes in need of friends."

"It was good of you to look me up."

"You haven't called at the old home yet?"

"No, not yet. I shall probably make a call there tomorrow."

"Do, by all means. Mrs. Martenet, your stepmother, is a very charming lady. I know her well. I also knew your father, Maxwell Martenet. He and I became very close friends during the last few years of his life. I often heard him speak of you, sometimes regretting that he had rather neglected you."

"Oh, I'm sure he had no cause for regrets on that score."

"Yet that was the way he felt. He was a very kind man, Hannan—you don't mind if I call you Hannan?—and a man of a deep emotional nature. It was so deep, in fact, that it rarely showed on the surface. In that one particular he resembled your grandfather somewhat. There was another of nature's noblemen, Hannan, although very few people understood and appreciated him."

"You knew my grandfather?" asked Hannan, suppressing a smile. It was rather humorous to hear Winthrop Gaston Martenet lauded by the very man of whom he had cautioned his grandson to beware.

"Very well," said Mr. Peters with feeling. "Your grandfather was one of my dearest friends, although I did not always understand him. He was a true friend, a great scholar, and a very fine gentleman."

Mr. Peters appeared deeply moved. For the moment, at least, it was impossible for Hannan to question his sincerity. Winthrop Gaston Martenet and his warning faded into the background.

"You spoke of my father," he remarked. "Have you any theory with regard to his death?"

"Theory? Why theorize about it?" Puzzlement was written all over Mr. Peters' disproportionate features. "He went away and died, and that was all there was to it."

Hannan let the subject drop. Mr. Peters was like all the others. He was unable to conceive of anything dramatic or extraordinary happening to Maxwell Martenet.

"How long do you intend to remain in town?" asked Mr. Peters after a pause.

Hannan drew a long breath. He welcomed a return to lighter topics.

"Hard telling. Probably as long as the excitement keeps up."

"Excitement? Have you had any excitement?"

"Nothing but," said Hannan.

He studied Mr. Peters with a covert but observing gaze. Somehow that last sentence had not sounded quite natural. It had been edged with an undertone that instantly reawakened some of the suspicions instilled in his mind by his grandfather's letter. He resolved to subject Mr. Peters' candor to a little test.

"Only this afternoon," he said lightly, "I was set upon by a paid of ruffians in a downtown cafe."

"Indeed?" Mr. Peters exclaimed, and again Hannan weighed carefully all the little shades in his voice. "What happened?"

"There was a certain letter in my pocket. They took it away from me," Hannan lied glibly.

"They took it——" Mr. Peters started from his chair, but sank back again. "I hope it wasn't important."

Hannan smiled. His little ruse had succeeded in an astonishing way. Mr. Peters' fragmentary sentence, together with the look of stupefaction that had lingered for just an instant in his eyes, had started a train of flashes running through Hannan's mind.

"I envy you, Mr. Peters," he commented. "I really do. It's a great gift to be able to control one's expression. You controlled yours pretty well that time—better than I could have done myself. Your mask slipped off for just a second, and then it was back again. It was very well done."

"My dear young man—" Mr. Peters made a gesture of bafflement— "I haven't the least idea what you are talking about."

"No? Well, I'll explain. I told you the two bruisers got the letter away from me. It was a lie—and you knew it was a lie. How did you know?"

Mr. Peters gave him a long, injured look. Then his expression changed to one of good-natured frustration mingled with admiration. He studied Hannan's face as if for the first time questioning the young man's unsophisticated look.

"You are a clever young man—very clever," he murmured. "I knew, of course, that the letter was not removed from your possession, for I had received a report to the contrary. Besides, I saw you turn it into a cigarette lighter. I couldn't know it was that particular letter, but I had strong suspicions. Yes, you startled me for a moment—threw me off my mental base. Clumsy of me!"

Hannan's smile grew a little somber. His grandfather's warning came back to him in all its terse forcefulness. Horace Peters, for all his ludicrous appearance, was that astute sort of villain who, is too clever to persist in vain pretenses.

"Would you mind telling me," Hannan asked, "why you were so anxious to get hold of the letter?"

"Yes, I would mind very much."

"Do you know its contents?"

"No, but perhaps I could make a close guess." Mr. Peters rolled shrewd, smiling eyes at his young companion. "Among other things I believe you grandfather said something about me in the letter—something uncomplimentary."

"What makes you think that?"

"Why, you practically told me so yourself. I gathered it from your expression when you first saw me. You had never seen me before, yet you stared at me as if—well, as if somebody had warned you against me." Mr. Peters laughed quietly. "There must have been a description of me in the letter. Otherwise, how did you recognize me? Tell me that, Hannan."

Hannan's eyes narrowed. Mr. Peters' guess had come very close to the truth.

"You make me very curious, Horace Peters. As the other great Horace might have said, you've got me guessing. Be a good sport and answer one more question. Why did you come here tonight? It wasn't just your tender heart and loving kindness, was it?"

Mr. Peters hesitated a long time before he answered. At length he got up, crossed the floor a few times with his prim, rooster-like strut, stopped to admire a water color of some merit on the wall, and flicked his coat tails with a staccato movement.

"If I answer you truthfully, you will call me a liar," he said in a serio-comic manner.

"Credit me with a little tact," Hannan begged in a faintly mocking tone.

"Well, then—" Mr. Peters turned away from the water color and strutted up to where Hannan stood. He took hold of the solitary button on the young man's dinner jacket and twisted it absently. "You have already guessed my motive, Hannan. It was my kind and tender heart that drew me here tonight. Oh, call me a liar if you like. I don't mind. Your grandfather once called me that. But he was wrong."

The mocking smile on Hannan's lips grew fainter and fainter. He stared at the little man who stood twirling the button on his dinner jacket. Why should Mr. Peters have told such a clumsy and barefaced lie? A man of his subtlety and mental agility could surely have invented a better one. Why, then—? Hannan wavered a little. It did not seem likely that a man of Mr. Peters' intelligence would have made such an absurd statement unless it happened to be the truth.

"Well, why don't you call me a liar?" the little man went on, still fiddling absently with Hannan's button. "As a matter of fact, I don't care a snap whether you believe me or not. I am only telling you, in order to keep the record straight, that your grandfather did me an injustice. Toward the very last our long and intimate friendship was ruptured by a misunderstanding. I was too proud—or stubborn, if you prefer—to argue with him and try to convince him he was wrong. For that matter," he added with a touch of asperity, "I'm not going to argue with you."

"Let go my button," said Hannan, a little dazed from his attempt to reconcile his conflicting impressions.

"You make me nervous with that fiddling. What was the misunderstanding about?"

"I won't be cross-examined." Horace Peters drew himself up with dignity. "I can see you think I'm a liar, even though you're not candid enough to tell me so to my face."

Hannan's brain was churning with incongruities. Still another contradiction came to him. "Was it your kind and tender heart that made you sick those two bruisers on me?"

"It was," said Mr. Peters coldly. "I acted for your own good. I don't expect you to believe it, and I shan't attempt to convince you. I can read your mind, young man. You are determined to interpret my actions in the worst possible light. It's beneath my dignity to argue with such as you. Good night—and be damned, sir!"

He snatched up his silk hat and strutted off in a great and haughty haste. Hannan was bewildered and speechless. He watched Mr. Peters' flying coat-tails, almost tempted to call him back, but feeling it would be useless. A personality like Mr. Peters', full of contradictions, eccentricities and odd peculiarities, made him feel at a loss.

And just then, with his hand on the door-knob, the little man turned. He came back, holding his head high, and stuck his hand in his pocket.

"I almost forgot." His voice was loftily frigid. He drew an envelope from his pocket. "Your father handed me this the last time I saw him. He asked me to deliver it to you."

Hannan took the envelope, glanced at his father's prim and cramped handwriting, and started to open it.

"I have a confession to make," said Mr. Peters in the same cold and haughty tones. "I opened and read your father's letter."

Hannan gave him a dazed look.

"I do not choose to explain," declared the little man. "Neither shall I apologize. I opened and read your father's letter for reasons that seemed sufficient to me."

With that he strutted off again. Hannan looked down at the flap of the envelope. The opening and resealing must have been done very cleverly, for no sign of tampering was evident. It occurred to him that Mr. Peters could have withheld his confession and Hannan would have been none the wiser.

He drew out and read the inclosure. The letter was trivial in its nature, consisting merely of a number of suggestions concerning the disposition of certain articles belonging to the family—just such a letter as might have been written by a man of quiet and humdrum tendencies. If Mr. Peters had expected to discover something of a sensational nature, he must certainly have been disappointed.

Hannan felt a little disappointed, too. And again he asked himself why Mr. Peters had confessed that he had opened the letter. Perhaps it was a sort of pride—the pride of a man who, though he may stoop to shabby things, yet disdains concealment. In the midst of his perplexity his eyes fell on the line at the top of the letter. It was only a date, and as often happens he had not noticed it at first.

His gaze fixed on the line with an intensity out of all proportion to its apparent importance. At first, indeed, he could not understand why the line absorbed his attention in such a curious way.

"October 1, 1923," he mumbled.

He jerked up his head, then stood stonily still. Thoughts trudged sluggishly through his dazed brain. October 1, 1923——. The letter had been written a little more than two years ago. And his father—Hannan suddenly felt a little shock—his father was supposed to have died four years ago. A mistake of some kind? Perhaps his father had meant 1921. But that was not very likely; people rarely made mistakes of that sort. Careless ones sometimes dated their letters a year back, especially in the first weeks of a new year, but they were not so likely to err on the side of the future. No, the date was probably correct, yet——

He looked up from the letter. Mr. Peters, with his jutting coat-tails and bewildering ways, was gone. But he could not have been gone long—only a minute or two. In all probability he had not yet reached the street. Likely as not he would wait a few moments for a taxi.

Hannan reached for his hat. A very still, small voice said beware! But Hannan was not listening.

TO ALL BASEBALL UMPIRES

Umpire, in the second frame
Of that close and thrilling game;
Well you earned your righteous name:
"Robber!"
Seven strikes you judged as "ball"
Tell me, can you see at all?
Could you blame our angry call:
"Robber"?

Through our infield wildly tossed,
That was not the thing that lost;
Bum decisions were the cost;
Robber!
True enough, our hits were few,
And we pulled a bone or two,
But the game was lost by you,
Robber!

Yes, you treat our rivals kind;
You must have an infant's mind;
Are you absolutely blind,
Robber?
Though we cuss and we defame
Your decisions and your name,
Still you surely boss the game,
Robber!

Belgians May Be Given Stay of Deportation

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—A stay of deportation for Sgt. Robert Cleuter and Corporal Albert Gillet Belgians who are threatened with enforced departure from the country after serving terms with the army, may be arranged if the men wish to stay here three more years.

The men were assured upon enlistment that they could complete their citizenship at the end of their enlistment. Because of this they failed to have their passports properly validated and as a result face deportation, although they have proved themselves good soldiers and men of high character. Both have re-enlisted and it is thought that their stay can be lengthened until this enlistment terminates. The men, however, feel that such an expedient would only postpone their deportation. Major S. W. Fitzgerald of Brooks field has gone to Washington in their behalf.

THE BOOK OF KNOWLEDGE

After foreigners had tried to stir American citizens to help France in her war on England, Congress passed the Alien and Sedition Acts, providing punishment for foreigners who spoke or wrote against the government. Imprisonment and exile were imposed. The laws were short-lived but made President Adams very unpopular. The cry went up that "a few rich men were running the country."

Virginia and Kentucky legislatures passed resolutions saying that the government had gone beyond its powers.

Adams was a candidate for re-election in 1801 against Thomas Jefferson, founder of what is now the Democratic party.

But the troubles of the Adams administration worked against his resuming office for a second term. The Federalist doctrine of government by the aristocratic few began to pall on the people, who wanted every class to have a voice in the nation's affairs. Thomas Jefferson and Aaron Burr received the same number of votes, but the House of Representatives chose Jefferson.

GULF STREAM STILL NORMAL

Captains Err in Reporting Current Changes

GALVESTON, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—The question, "is the gulf stream changing," which springs up at almost regular periods, has been revived again. Although two American ship captains just arrived at London reported the gulf stream had reversed its current, best information from authoritative sources in Galveston, is that the current is behaving in a perfectly normal manner.

"Of course the stream fluctuates to a minor extent all the time," Lieut. A. E. Freed, officer in charge of the Hydrographic bureau, explained, "but as to a decided change or a reversal of current, no such thing has been reported."

The action of the prevailing winds is the largest factor in the shifts of the gulf stream which takes place at certain periods of the year. Lieut. Freed pointed out. During July and August the stream is as far from Galveston as it will be during the entire year, about 180 miles, but during February and March the current moves to within 60 miles of shore. This proximity of the stream is largely responsible for the fogs prevalent during the winter months and also tends to give Galveston a milder climate at that time, Lieut. Freed said.

Hydrographic officials explained that there is a counter current running opposite to the gulf stream about 30 miles from shore, and it is possible that this stream confused the two captains.

Substantiation of Lieut. Freed's report was made by Capt. P. G. Avery of the Mallory liner, San Jacinto, which arrived in Galveston from New York. Capt. Avery said that he had noticed no change in the current of the stream, and he has been traveling the route between New York and Galveston for a number of years.

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

By DR. FRANK McCOY
Author of "The Fast Way to Health"

Questions in regard to health and diet will be answered by Mr. McCoy who can be addressed in care of this paper.

The Cure of Asthma

The first thing for the asthma sufferer to do is to stop the use of any drug he is taking. This includes the elimination of adrenalin, serums, morphine, optum, smoking powders, coffee or caffein in any form.

The next step in the cure is to completely cleanse the alimentary canal of any accumulated food or toxic fecal matter. At least two enemas daily should be taken, and more if necessary to assist in eliminating intestinal gas.

No food of any kind should be used for at least four or five days —no milk, soup, coffee, cocoa, or any other drinks, except whatever water is desired. This is a simple "water" fast, and will bring about the quickest relief in getting rid of asthmatic wheezing, and will work wonders in assisting in the elimination of accumulated bronchial mucus.

The water fast should be continued for longer than four or five days if it is necessary, extending it to 10 or 15 days if symptoms persist or the tongue remains heavily coated and the breath foul. No fear need be felt about the consequences of the longer fast, as only good results will follow. This fast has been taken by many thousands, and thousands of actual cures reported, without a single harmful experience.

After all symptoms have subsided, and it seems advisable to break the fast, the following dietary regime should be followed: Upon arising in the morning take a few calisthenic exercises in a room with plenty of free circulation of air. Follow the exercises with a cold shower bath, then:

Breakfast: The whites of two eggs, prepared in any manner except by frying; two or three pieces of Melba toast, browned all the way through. Choice of a small dish of one of the following stewed fruits: Prunes, figs, raisins or applesauce. These should be prepared without adding any sugar. No cream nor milk should be used.

Luncheon: Choice of one or more, as desired, of the following vegetables: Celery, spinach, small string beans, asparagus, summer squash, cucumbers, egg plant, small beets and tops, small turnips and tops, small carrots, small parsnips, lettuce, okra, chayotes, oyster plant (salsify), mallow, kale, zucchini, parsley, nasturtium leaves and flowers, endive, avocado (alligator pear), or ripe olives. These may be used either cooked or raw, or both cooked and raw, and in any reasonable quantity.

Late in the afternoon some more calisthenic exercises should be taken, as well as a fairly long walk, followed by a shower bath and 30 minutes rest in bed.

Dinner: Choice of one of the following proteins: Beef, mutton, chicken, fish or rabbit. No more than one quarter of a pound should be used. The vegetables should be chosen from those listed for luncheon, and the combinations should be kept simple. My suggestion is to use only one cooked and one raw non-starchy vegetable at this evening meal. No desserts.

An enema should be taken just before retiring. The daily use of the enema should be continued for at least several weeks.

If there is any return of asthmatic symptoms it may be well to return to a fast for a few days and then resume a diet which I have just suggested.

Questions and Answers

Question: High school girl asks: "What would you advise for a girl that wanted to sleep all the time?"

Answer: If eight hours of sleep do not refresh you it is because your system is burdened with poisons from bad habits of eating, and from the effects of too much study and not enough physical exercise. If a physician's examination has failed to disclose any definite disease, you can rest assured that you need a thorough bodily housecleaning which will eliminate the morbid material in your blood stream with which you are burdened.

Question: L. S. writes: "Please advise when cottage cheese is used in place of meat, what is the ample portion per person?"

Answer: It is all right for most people to use about one quarter of a pound of cottage cheese in place of the same amount of meat. This is approximately an ordinary sauce dish full.

Question: Mrs. K. writes: "I weigh 180 pounds and should weigh 130. If I take off my surplus flesh at the rate of 10 pounds per month would that be too much? If I walk five or six miles per day will that help me very much in taking off flesh?"

Answer: It is all right for you to take off surplus flesh at the slow rate of 10 pounds a month, but you can lose much faster than that if you will first take a short fast and then follow it with a limited diet, free from carbohydrates. There is no danger in reducing rapidly if you will follow the plan I have so often suggested in this column. It is essential for you to walk at least five miles daily if you wish to reduce the weight around your hips and buttocks.

HOMERS BY JENKINS, BENTON AND SWENSON HELPED EASY WIN

SHORES HURLS VICTORY, 10-4

Spudders Pound Earl Caldwell for 12 Knocks

WACO, Texas, Aug. 20.—The Spudders hammered Earl Caldwell, another of Del Pratt's big league prospects, like he was a "busher" today, and with Bill Shores hurling effectively had no trouble winning. The score was 10 to 4.

Wichita Falls maced 12 hits, including home runs by Jenkins, Benton and Swenson. It was Jenkins' 25th circuit drive of the season and increased his lead in that department of mauling. Tom also smacked a double and single.

Lamb, Swenson and Stanton clouted a brace of hits apiece.

After the Spudders established an early lead, Big Bill Shores just eased along and won as he pleased, hold the Cubs to seven hits and fanning five.

Cubs Hit 2 Homers

Caldwell and Sears also hit home runs.

Singles by Stanton and Smith and Benton's home run gave the Spudders three runs in the third and Jenkins' circuit drive in the fourth accounted for another.

Caldwell hit his home run in the fifth.

The Spudders tallied three more in the sixth. Lamb was safe on Battle's error and went to third on Jenkins' double. Swenson's single scored Lamb and Jenkins, Wally going to second on Johnson's fumble. Stanton's safe hit counted Swenson.

Spuds Tally 3 More

Waco scored one in its half. Brown doubled, went to third on Pratt's fly to Lamb and scored on Battle's single.

Wichita Falls made another cluster of three runs in the seventh. Lamb doubled and scored on Jenkins' single. Swenson hit his home run, scoring Jenkins ahead of him.

Pratt's men tallied two in the ninth. Windle singled. With two out Sears, batting for Caldwell, hit a home run.

Galloway's team plays its last game of the season here Thursday.

Baer Facts

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—The boyish scoots have taken our advice in the matter of "no smoking" signs.

They will not police the nation in midget squads under the impression that a daily good deed means yanking corncobs from an old lady's face with such enthusiasm that they also pull out a yard of bridgework at the same time.

We are thankful that the Boy Scoots are going to stick to reform within the party.

As a boy we always looked upon smokers with great reverence and awe. We remember Uncle Ben who told us to watch him closely while he blew smoke out of his ears.

Uncle Ben always smoker a cigar until it looked like a discarded painter's brush. He would take a big inhaler of the smoke and we used to watch him carefully to observe the smoke coming out of his ears.

At that time we did not know that eustachian tubes were not chimneys. While we watched his ears like a hound dog at a rabbit hole, Uncle Ben would burn the back of our hand with the lighted cigar stub.

Which was supposed to be a great joke. But the first time Uncle Ben pulled that gag we lowbridged him with a parlor lamp. And that time the smoke did come out of his ears.

The smoke not only came out of his ears, but out of his toupee, his underwear, his sleeves and his pant legs.

We cured uncle's ears of the smoking habit. He still balances cigars between a lower lip and an upper tooth. But he doesn't embezzle any more Boy Scooters with that ear business.

The Boy Scoots is a fine organization dedicated to the great outdoors. If it stays away from afternoon teas, the lounge room of the Mauretania and the mezzanies of Park avenue it will never be annoyed by ancient flappers breathing sparks and cinders like unto St. George's dragon.

The birds, the bees, the squirrels and the woodchucks are within the jurisdiction of the scoots.

The ponds, the lakes and the sunshine are also theirs. But when you are less interested in freckles than tined chin, then you are no longer a Boy Scoot and woe is yours.

DAILY DOPE

By LARRY DAILEY

THAT OLD SAW to the effect that a ball culb leading the pennant race July 4 will win the flag may be discarded along with other fallacious axioms of the sports trades, such as "youth must be served" and "they never come back." It doesn't always follow that a team leading Independence day, which is around the halfway mark, is going to be on top in late September. If the races in the big leagues and Texas loop had halted July 4, the flag winners might have been entirely different than the clubs which ultimately will triumph in those circuits.

Houston captured the first half championship of the Texas league by a comfortable margin, with Fort Worth second and Wichita Falls third. Now the Spudders apparently are headed toward the winning of the second half—and the Cats are out of the race. The Spudders are enjoying a commanding lead over the Buffaloes and seem almost safely "in" as second half winners, though one who has observed the uncertainties of baseball for several seasons will not concede the championship until it is decided mathematically and to the exclusion of any doubt.

IT IS LIKELY that the Spudders will settle the issue for this half before they return home, Aug. 30. The season closes Sept. 9, and as this was written, before yesterday's game, Galloway's men held a seven-game lead over the Buffs. Another of those important series is to be played at Houston this week, with the Spudders meeting the Buffs Wednesday and Thursday. With the championship of the second half still not cinched and in view of the traditional rivalry of the contending clubs, hard fought and interesting games will of course ensue. A split for the Spudders in the two gamer will be eminently satisfactory.

IN THE NATIONAL LEAGUE, the Cardinals apparently "cracked" and their loss of three straight games to the Giants indicates the St. Louis club may be definitely counted out of the race, although the Red Birds still are hovering near the top. It seems that the Cards are going away, a similar condition suffered by their farmer boys, the Houston Buffs, while the Giants, like the Spuds, appear to have only recently attained their top speed. Judging from the way they have been going in past weeks the Pirates also finally have attained the form expected of them.

New York and Pittsburgh probably will fight it out down the stretch for the senior loop gonfalon. This prediction is made in the light of their recent play. But if the season had ended in July the Cards or Cubs would be the winners.

IT WAS ALL the Yankees' own way, a month or so ago. The champions may eventually come through again. But not without a battle from Mr. Cornelius McGillicuddy's young men. The Yankees enjoyed a lead of from 10 to 12 games around July 4. That margin is now down to five as this was written. The Athletics' chances to overhaul Huggins' haughty men were dimmed recently when they failed to take advantage of two straight wins of the White Sox over the Yanks. However, the A's still have an outside chance. They have three games left in New York. Both contenders finish the season on the road and the A's, to date this season have shown themselves better on alien fields than the Yanks. Anyhow, it's an interesting race and still has an element of uncertainty, while July 4 it looked like as much a breeze for the Yanks as Tunney had when he fought Heeney.

Negro Rival to Ruth

Mule Sellers, with the St. Louis Stars, is the Babe Ruth of the Negro National league. His manager says Sellers is ahead of Babe this season and is likely to slam 65 or 70 four-baggers before the season is completed.

Cincy Semi-Pro Wanted

Detroit and the St. Louis Cards are keeping an eye on Ray Leeds, 21-year-old semi-pro player at Cincinnati. He looks like a good prospect.

BUFFS DEFEAT STEERS TWICE

Houston Gains Half Game On Galloway's Men

HOUSTON, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—The big guns of the Buff attack Monday swung into action against four Dallas hillock toilers and Houston grabbed a double-header, 10 to 4 and 10 to 2. Worthington was the "Big Bertha" of the Buff artillery. In the first game he banged out a brace of triples and in the second encounter he accumulated three doubles.

The double win enabled the Buffs to gain half a game on Wichita Falls, the Spudders leading by six and a half games. Scores, first game:

BEARS DEFEAT CATS

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Ragged pitching marred a game until Glaser stepped on the strip to hold the Fort Worth Panthers while the Bears won Monday, 8 to 7. Christian and Wachtel gave a sorrowful exhibition of hurling and Burns, who succeeded Wachtel, proved an easy mark for Bruin bats. Then Bill Goff came in to check the Bears after they had taken the lead off Burns.

Mulvey was the bright spot in the field with two fast double plays after a hard run and perfect throw from right field in each instance to cut down Cat scoring chances. Score:

Look for Nice Eleven

Princeton and Yale, both with good prospects from last year's freshman squad, expect to have strong elevens this fall.

Suits Pittsburgh Fans

Fans in Pittsburgh think the Pirates will not have a catching burden as long as Charley Hargreaves is able to don mask and mitt.

Pirates After Warstler

The Pittsburgh Pirates are said to be after Rabbit Warstler, promising young shortstop with Indianapolis in the American association.

Denver Eleven Looms Formidable In Mountain Conference Battle

Colorado Aggies and Utah Regarded as Other Cantenders for Championship of High Altitude Region

DENVER, Colo., Aug. 20. (UP)—Fred T. Dawson, who coached the Nebraska Cornhuskers through so many successful seasons, will come into his own in the Rocky Mountain conference this autumn with an eleven that seems destined to be one of the region's outstanding teams of recent years.

Dawson came to Denver university from Nebraska three years ago. It has taken him that long to build up the Pioneers to a point where they will be the hardest team in the inter-mountain West to defeat. With Glenn Preston, former star Nebraska backfield man to assist him, he will have a veteran squad bolstered by strong material from last year's freshman team.

Shifting of coaches during the summer months may strengthen several conference members. Brigham Young university of Provo has constructed a new stadium and obtained as coach Otto Romney, brother of Mitt Romney, who starred with the Chicago Maroons, from Montana State college.

Dysche at Montana State

John Dysche, who assisted Romney at Montana state, has been put in charge there.

Bill Saunders, who assisted Harry Hughes at Colorado Aggies last year, is the new head coach at Colorado Teachers college. John Van Liew resigned from Western State college and Stuart M. Clarke, assistant football coach at Wyoming last year, was appointed to fill his place.

Denver university, Colorado Aggies and Utah university are favored contenders for the championship this fall. The Aggies won the title last year after a close race. Coach Hughes lost several of his stars, but has an abundance of material coming up.

Coach Ike Armstrong, former Drake fullback, will be heavily hit at Utah university. With the exception of Captain Alton Carmen, 200-pound tackle, virtually the entire 1927 eleven was lost by graduation.

Dick Romney, another of that noted football family, must develop a new combination at Utah Aggies but has a husky crowd of last year's frosh to help him.

Other Squads Mediocre

Coach Billy Van de Graff, former Alabama and Army star, has only fair prospects at Colorado college. But in the past he has been able to produce surprisingly strong squads on virtually nothing.

Colorado mines is depending upon Coach George Allen, formerly of Dartmouth, but he will have only a mediocre squad. Mines, Colorado Teachers and Western State will take their usual number of beginners.

Coach George McLaren, Pittsburgh, begins his second year at Wyoming university and doubtless will have more success than last year. Most of his regulars will be back, including Harkins, valuable quarterback.

Unless weaker schools of the conference display greater strength this fall it is possible that the larger and stronger institutions will break away and organize a new league. The present organization is a cumbersome one and the new conference would consist of Denver university, Colorado college, Colorado Aggies, Utah university and Utah Aggies.

City Sandlot Ball Title Finals Today

The last double header of the sandlot baseball teams will be played Tuesday starting at 3 o'clock at Katy park.

The Little Spuders meet the Seymour Roadsters for the championship of the Junior league while the Lee Street Sluggers engage the East Side Sluggers in a battle for the City Park league title. Both games will be seven innings. The lineups of the teams are as follows:

Roughhouse Boys On Mat Tonight

Pasha and Parelli Meet In Feature Shindig

Kala Pasha, the roughhouse Turk, is no minnow in his home town puddle by any manner of means. Take that Pasha on the back end of his name. Pasha is a Turkish title and means "general." But Joseph Parelli, Italian exponent of the mat game who meets Kala tonight at Spudder park says the only "general" the terrible Turk will be interested in after the match is the "General hospital."

"Yes sir, you tell that Turk he'll think an operating table is a bed of roses compared to any wrestling mat he gets mixed up with me on," announced Parelli last night.

The match between the two bruisers, both of whom are inclined to be a little bit rough when excitement of the tussle sways them, ought to be one to the liking of the Wichita Falls fans. At least it seems that the rough matches are the ones to draw the biggest houses.

Preliminary to the Parelli-Kala Pasha engagement, Promotor Alex B. Ross has arranged a series of three boxing exhibitions.

In the semi-final, Country Boy Owens, boxing for the first time in three months after his recovery from a broken arm, will meet Howard Jernigan for six rounds. Lefty Hemie will take on Johnny Owens for four rounds, while the first preliminary will be a four-round elimination between Bud Scott, 90 pounds, of Electra, and Little Boy Blue, 90 pounds, of Wichita Falls, for a shot at the paperweight championship of West Texas. A gold medal emblematic of this championship has been posted by Harry Katz of this city.

President Registers High Target Score

SUPERIOR, Wis., Aug. 20. (AP)—The trout in the Brule around Cedar Island Lodge had a rest today thanks to the targets on the estate.

They had a hard time of it with President Coolidge blazing away at them with a 12-gauge repeating shot gun. He broke 24 out of 25 before he was interrupted by rain.

SMITH DEFENDS VOTING RECORD ON SALOON BILLS IN REPLY

DISCUSSION IS FINAL, HE SAYS

Nominee Calls Thrust Unmanly and Un-American

in fact they did." He also charged that the intent of various proposals had been misrepresented, and he recalled that Republican leaders in the legislature frequently had lined up as he did on them.

Statement In Full

With regard to commercialized vice, the governor referred to his vote against a bill first before the assembly in 1910 which sought to regulate the renting of rooms in hotels and which, he continued, was "unquestionably unconstitutional and unwirkable."

"On this bill, and this single bill alone," he declared. "William Allen White would have my wife, my children and my friends believe that in my long public career I was friend of public prostitution."

As for gambling, Mr. Smith said all the bills referred to by Mr. White dealt with betting at race tracks. At a regular session the nominee recalled, he voted with Governor Hughes "against the race tracks," but at a special session later "voted the other way" as protest against "the unjustified action of the governor in calling the legislature back into extraordinary session after the matter had been fully thrashed out and disposed of at the regular session."

No More Discussions

One other bill listed by Mr. White sought to prevent oral betting at race tracks. Governor Smith said, adding that "how impossible such a statute was of administration I need not say."

"I have been called by my party to leadership in a great campaign," said the governor, in winding up his statement. "I am hoping to be put in a position to do for the people of this country what I have accomplished for the betterment of the government of my state, and from now on I shall refuse to be drawn into any further discussion of these matters."

The governor's statement in full follows:

For some reason best known to himself, Mr. William Allen White of Kansas in an interview made slanderous statements about me and my legislative record. After those statements had received nation wide publicity, and on July 31, Mr. White said. ". . . . The governor in casting those votes against those reform bills might honestly have felt that the bills were unconstitutional, or were not enforceable, or infringed upon personal liberty, or encouraged police blackmail.

"But Governor Smith certainly is entitled to fair treatment. I always have tried to fight fair. I have never consciously questioned any man's motives and so this morning before the morning papers have come and before I know what, if any, reply Governor Smith has made to my statement of yesterday, I desire to withdraw the charges formally in so far as they affect his votes on gambling and prostitution, but not his position as to the saloon.

"So the 10 or a dozen votes on gambling and prostitution come out of the record. I hope now American newspapers, and particularly Republican newspapers, will give the same consideration to this statement that they gave to my statement yesterday."

Political Attack

At the beginning of this statement, I said the reason for the attack was known only to Mr. White. However, the appearance of the Republican national committee in the controversy indicates that it was a political attack probably inspired by that committee, because the Republican national committee this week issued an official release to the newspapers in which Mr. White retracts his retraction.

Here we have an unmistakable evidence of the Republican national committee openly associating itself with this personal attack. Lacking the courage to stand by its own complicity in the attack the Republican director of publicity the next day stated that he withdraws his issuance of Mr. White's withdrawal of his withdrawal.

I am glad to have this matter taken out of the wispering stage and put into the open, once and for all I shall meet it now. I regard it as purely political and when the campaign begins I do not propose to have the issues of that campaign befogged by controversy over irrelevant things, such as the discussion of my votes as a legislator some 20 or more years ago.

My record as an opponent of immorality is fixed and secure publicly and by many letters in my possession. The late Rev. Canon John P. Peters, when chairman of the committee of fourteen, the leading anti-vice society of New York, repeatedly thanked me for my cooperation with that organization. No one in all of the 25 years of my public life has ever dared to make the vile suggestions which emanated from Mr. White, with the approval of Henry J. Allen, publicity director of the Republican national committee. What a cowardly course the Republican national committee pursued! It issued a slanderous statement through its official publicity bureau and then after its general publication in the press, attempted to evade responsibility by the childish claim that it had been given out by accident. That is not fair play.

Confident of New York

I am confident in the belief that the people of the state of New York approved of my legislative record; otherwise, they would not have thereafter elected me to the highest office within their gift—the governorship of New York for four terms.

I cannot, however, let go unchallenged the political attempt to tear down my character and reputation by seeking to align me on the side of opposition to the regulation of the liquor traffic and in favor of gambling and prostitution.

My critics seem to take the position that every amendment to the former New York excise law which apparently made it stricter was a good bill. If they had studied the question they would have come to the same conclusion which the committee of fourteen expressed in its annual report for 1914, which says:

"Very frequently the most obvious correction is found to conflict with the purposes of those interested in the law in another way."

Each bill mentioned by my critics has been listed separately without allowance for the duplication of a large number of bills dealing with the same subject matter in accordance with the well-known legislative practice. In this way a deliberate attempt is being made to show that my votes dealt with a far greater number of so-called liquor bills than in fact they did.

For convenience, I have divided the bills under discussion into groups. Reference is made to a great many bills designed to change the law with their respect to the establishment of premises licensed to sell liquor within 200 feet of a church of a school. To the casual reader it would appear that this was a concerted provision of our excise law. The fact is that all of these bills were designed to accomplish just two purposes. The first was to permit the Hotel Gotham at 55th street and Fifth avenue to secure a liquor license, the second, a legislative enactment recommended by the court of appeals to straighten out an apparent mistake in the language of the excise law.

Claims Unfairness

As an example of the unfairness of Mr. White's attack, he stated that I voted to allow saloons within 200 feet of a church or school any place on Manhattan Island south of 59th street. One of the bills mentioned was so drawn, but if Mr. White was disposed to be fair to me, he would read the bill in its entirety and find that by its wording, it applied only to the Hotel Gotham. This hotel was within 200 feet of a church. Acting under a decision of the courts, the hotel served liquor to its guests by the device of renting a house outside of the 200-foot limit, having a hotel employee purchase the liquor in this house and then carry it through the streets for service to the guests in the hotel itself.

Fairminded men were confronted with a decision as between a license for the sale within the premises of the hotel and the spectacle of bellboys walking through the street with cocktail shakers and wine baskets in their hands. I chose to end the hypocrisy of such a procedure and in view of the high character of the hotel, I was entirely satisfied that if liquor was to be consumed within the hotel, it might just as well be sold in it.

The Gotham hotel bills received the support of the leading members of the assembly of both political parties from the cities, and one of them was passed by a Republican legislature.

Even more strikingly unfair is the comment on bill number 517 of 1911, which is the other bill in this group. The language of the law which existed before this time made it impossible for a hotel to renew its liquor license if a school or church came within 200 feet of it years after the hotel had been built. The question was litigated as to the wording and intent of the statute all the way to the court of appeals. In its decision that court said:

"That the operation of the statute in cases like the one now before us is manifestly harsh and would doubtless be a cogent argument to support the proposition that the legislature could not have intended such effect, and might be conclusive where the language of the statute at all ambiguous; but in view of the clear phraseology of the law the convention is inadmissible and the courts must remit those aggrieved thereby to relief by legislative action."

Voted For Relief

That relief suggested by our highest court, I voted to give. The bills were opposed by only a handful of assemblymen. On the 1098 measure only 31 men out of the 150 voted in the negative.

Another group of bills related to the subject of liquor tax certificates. Bill introductory number 1,618 of 1910 sought to give to the holder of a liquor tax certificate the same benefit that the court of appeals gave to violators of other laws when that court in an opinion said that suspension of sentence suspended all operation of the law against the convicted person. I voted against this bill because I thought it was harsh, unjust and unreasonable.

Bill 1,062 of 1911 was an unimportant one, reducing the time from two years to one year when an application to renew a certificate might be made by one who had been previously deprived of it through the misconduct of a servant or agent, and not of the owner himself. The fairness of this bill is best attested by the fact that only 44 men out of 150 in the assembly voted against it.

Bill 7,307 of 1917 was designed to cure a defect in the law with respect to the transfer of certificates. It was supported by the Republican leader of the assembly and only 11 men out of 150 voted against it.

Even more striking is the criticism of me for voting for assembly bill 1,119 of 1911 which was a technical amendment to the excise law with relation to the surrender and cancellation of the tax certificates. It was a departmental measure requested by the commissioner of excise. Not a single member of the assembly voted against it.

I am criticized for voting against a large number of local option bills:

Introductory number 625 of 1904.
Introductory number 141 of 1905.
Introductory number 446 of 1906 in two different forms.
Introductory number 134 of 1910.
Introductory number 1,329 of 1911.
Introductory number 247 of 1911.
Introductory number 617 of 1911.

In the same class are bills number 1,123 of 1911, 722 of 1907, and 25 of 1906.

Most of these bills are duplicates of one another. The popular opinion of this state at that time on the subject can best be seen by looking at the vote on bill number 134 of 1910. In that year the assembly was strongly Republican and yet only 52 men out of 150 voted for this bill; 84 men, Democrats and Republicans alike, voted against it.

Local Option Vote

There was a strong sentiment at that time against the extension of local prohibition by the local option method because of the inability of officials to enforce the law in the dry sections, the substitution of so-called clubs for places licensed by the state, and the loss by the state of the license fees and tax which came to it where sale was made in the normal legal way. Practically every assemblyman from the cities voted as I did on these measures, and in thus casting their votes they were undoubtedly representing the will of their constituents.

Assembly bill introductory number 616 of 1913 permitted a private school, not a public school, to consent that a liquor tax certificate might issue for premises within 200 feet of it. I was speaker of the assembly that year and did not vote one way or the other on that bill.

Assembly bill introductory number 436 of 1915 sought to prohibit the sale of liquor in a city adjacent to a college or university supported wholly or partly by the state. There were grave constitutional objections raised to the bill and drastic criticisms of the technical features of its provisions. In an overwhelmingly Republican assembly only 47 out of 150 members voted for it.

Similarly, assembly bill introductory number 81 of 1915 was attacked on constitutional grounds. The speaker of the assembly that year was a well known prohibitionist. Even he opposed the bill. In voting against the bill, I was in the company of the Republican speaker, the Republican chairman of the committee on rules and the Republican floor leader.

Assembly bill introductory number 1049 of 1911 was a bill which added one hour in the morning to the time when liquor could be sold, and provided that the hours of sale in cities of the third class and villages of over 5,000 inhabitants should be the same as in first class cities. The latter provisions were earnestly sought by the large villages on Long Island. Under the old law the closing hour for them was 11 o'clock. It was not being observed and its existence was a source of corruption among local police officials in those villages. I remember the addition of an hour in the morning was intended for the accommodation of night workers. In my own district all the morning newspapers were printed. It probably contained more night workers than any other region of similar size in the country, and in voting for the bill I was certainly representing my constituents.

It is worthy of note that on this bill the division was between the city and the country representatives, but the representatives of the villages involved voted in the affirmative and with a balance of power passed the bill. The foregoing record indicates that not only cities of the first, second and third class but also the larger villages favored the passage of this bill.

Prostitution Bill

Mr. William Allen White sailed for Europe with a happy and contented mind, I hope, and I would not disturb it by attempting to describe to him the heavy weight that he laid upon my family when he accused me of being a friend of prostitution. Apparently, he was ashamed of it himself as is evinced by his attempt to withdraw it. It was all predicated on my vote against assembly bill 2627 of 1910. Among other things this bill sought to regulate the renting of rooms in hotels. Like a great many other measures intended to bring about some highly desirable purpose, it was unquestionably unconstitutional and unworkable. In 1910 the assembly was strongly Republican. When the bill first came before that body it was overwhelmingly defeated, and in all my legislative experience I never heard from lawyers in the assembly a more convincing argument against the constitutionality of a pending enactment than that made against the particular bill. Three weeks later, after considerable pressure from certain sections of the state and admittedly for political purposes, the vote was reconsidered and the bill was passed. It was freely admitted that it created no new provision of law and added nothing that was not already in the penal code.

I was right in my first vote when an overwhelming majority of the assembly, both Democrats and Republicans, voted with me. I stood by my position as no argument was made to change my mind. The political expediency of the Republican party, appealing to certain sections of the state, was not sufficient for me to compromise with a principle. On this bill and this single bill alone, William Allen White would have my wife, my children and my friends believe that in my long public career I was a friend of public prostitution.

Race Track Measures

Mr. White also made reference to bills dealing with betting. All of these bills had to do with the race tracks. I was in sympathy with Governor Hughes at the regular session of the legislature and voted with him against the race tracks. In the extraordinary session, I voted the other way, not that my vote made any difference but I joined with a substantial number of members of the assembly who used their vote as a protest against what they believed to be the unjustified action of the governor in calling the legislature back into extraordinary session after the matter had been fully thrashed out and disposed of at the regular session.

The other bill referred to by Mr. White sought to prevent oral betting at the race tracks. How impossible such a statute was of administration I need not say. It required but a small amount of common sense and judgment on the part of any intelligent person to know that that was nothing more or less than lumbering up the state's books with a gesture that never could have any real force or effect.

I have given to this matter a great deal of my time and I have answered subject by subject and bill by bill. In my speech of acceptance I will define in no uncertain language my attitude to the public saloon, and I lay before the people of this country for a close study, the record of my 25 years in elective public office. I denounce as unfair, unmanly and un-American this slanderous attack upon me and my record. I have the satisfaction, however, of knowing that it is not concurred in by the people of my own state who have, year after year, expressed their confidence in me, notwithstanding that a large part of this matter herein referred to was laid before them in the past by agents of my political enemies. I am sure that I am right when I say it is not concurred in by the fair-minded, intelligent, thinking people of the country.

I have been called by my party to the leadership in a great campaign. I am hoping to be put in a position to do for the people of this country what I have accomplished for the betterment of the government of my own state, and from now on I shall refuse to be drawn into any further discussion of these matters.

Al to Recall Day He Was a 'Freshman'

Nominee's Notification Is Anniversary

ALBANY, N. Y. Aug. 20. (UP)—The mammoth celebration that some 100,000 Democrats and citizens of Albany will put on for Gov. Alfred E. Smith when he is notified formally Wednesday night of his nomination will be a political anniversary celebration as well for the Democratic nominee.

It was just at this time, 25 years ago, that as a rising young Tammany member, who was showing a talent for politics as well as the stage, young "Al" Smith, as he was popularly called, was nominated by the Democrats for assemblyman from the second Manhattan district.

That was the beginning of a career here in the capitol that led four times to the governor's chair and will go a step further Wednesday night when Democrats of the whole country will clothe him formally with the highest honor they can bestow.

Started His Climb

He won that election, defeating Paul Kamisky, and thus started a series of victories which has been interrupted but once, a career similar to that of Calvin Coolidge, retiring president of the United States.

There is an old story of that nomination. Young "Al," then 25, sat one afternoon in the commissioner of a jurors' office, where he held a small political job. One of the lesser officials of the Tammany organization came into the office.

He surprised the young man by asking if the suit he wore was the only one he had. Smith nodded.

"Well, hurry home and get it pressed," the Tammany official said. "You're going to be nominated for the assembly tonight."

As is the way with human kind, the Democratic nominee is thinking much of these early days now, in these hours before he takes upon himself, officially, the mantle of his party in a national campaign. He talks over with friends and political associates those early battles which started him upon the long road that led to the governor's mansion here.

"Freshman" Days

When he stands before the crowd of 100,000 or more expected to gather here Wednesday night and looks down State street toward the union station and the shimmering Hudson he will recall, doubtless, a cold January night when he climbed that same hill in the face of a bitter wind. That was in 1904. The young man was here to begin his first term in the assembly. He was a freshman in politics, and Albany looked cold and cheerless to him that memorable night.

DEATH CLAIMS FORMER LEGATE

Maker of Presidents Dies Suddenly

letters to Harding from London gave the president great pleasure and he often read them to his intimate friends. Harvey created much amusement in London by riding around in a Ford automobile, and by his "stovepipe" hat, which he always wore, and his horn-rimmed glasses—he was one of the first to wear this type of eye glass which is now regarded as typically American all over the world.

Harvey also restored the black silk knickers of a past age as his official court costume, provoking much merriment at home.

Outspoken Diplomat

Harvey was one of the most outspoken diplomats ever sent to the court of St. James by the United States but his humor had a softening effect and his very frankness won him much friendship—he was so American, his fellow diplomats thought. However Harvey is credited with having done a difficult job in the British war debt settlement negotiations. Resigning, he returned to America and became editor of the Washington Post at the insistence of his old friend, and boon companion, Ned McLean. Harvey's pen had lost none of its sharpness and he had much to do with arousing sentiment against entering the world court.

Bitter Towards Hoover

After a year, however, he passed from the public eye, wrote a biography of the late Henry C. Frick, steel magnate, and edited the North American Review. A few weeks ago Senator George Moses, an old friend and associate in the League of Nations fight, visited him hoping to get him to join the campaign for Herbert Hoover. But Harvey always fought Hoover. In 1920 when Hoover was a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, Harvey printed a photograph of Hoover smiling, in a dinner jacket, and referred to him as an English gentleman. Harvey was almost as bitter toward Hoover as Reed.

In fact there are so many points on which Harvey and Governor Smith agree that had he lived, the famous editor might soon have been back in the Democratic party where he started.

He began as a newspaper reporter, became editor of the New York World, was president of Harper and Bro., published Harvey's Weekly during the war and through the 1920 campaign in order to defeat the peace program of Wilson, and conducted the scholarly North American Review at intervals over many years. He belonged to many clubs and was welcome at most, so genial and fascinating was he in conversation.

Tom Mix Is 'In For It' as Warrants For Arrest Are Issued After Brawl

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20. (AP)—Two warrants for arrest of Tom Mix, screen cowboy star, were issued at city prosecutor's office late today on complaints sworn to by Miss Midgie Miller, wife of Will Morrissey, stage and cabaret comedian.

Miss Miller, her left eye covered with a bandage, appeared alone at the prosecutor's office. Her husband, she said, was "flat on his back from the booting Mix gave him," and suffering from concussion of the brain as a result.

Miss Miller reiterated previous charges that Mix made an unprovoked attack upon her husband at a house warming party given by a friend at Playa del Rey.

She admitted Morrissey had handed Mix some "left handed compliments" before the fists began flying.

Mix, in statements issued today, denied he had started the battle. He said he had struck Morrissey only in self defense.

Morrissey and his wife were arrested today after the fight on drunk charges.

Miss Miller later appeared in court and was released on a $20 bail. Morrissey did not appear, however, his attorney testifying that he was in bed recovering from the effects of the fight.

Miss Miller declared that a civil suit against Mix would be filed.

Duckett Case Decision Today

evidence in connection with the venue hearing. When the defense finishes and unless there is a sudden change of prosecution plans, he said, the matter will go immediately to the judge for decision. Mr. Wilson is assisting Ben Allred, district attorney, and Dick Kealey, assistant district attorney, in the prosecution.

Tuesday morning promised to bring a continuation of probably one of the hardest fights ever made in a Northwest Texas court for a change of venue in a criminal case. Veteran attorneys could recall no other instances in which members of an entire jury panel have been called to give testimony designed to aid a judge in determining whether an accused person can obtain a fair hearing at a place set for a trial. The effort of the defense to secure a venue change was no surprise. The method followed in the effort to prove the contention, however, did take court habitues by surprise.

State Is Ready

The fight opened within a few minutes after court had convened Monday. Judge Thornton called the case in which Duckett is accused of murder. Allred announced that the state was ready and prepared to insist upon an immediate trial. McDonald followed the announcement by asking that the court, of its own motion, order a change of venue. Judge Thornton declined the request, and then McDonald offered a formal motion on behalf of the defense asking for the venue change.

In the defense motion, it was contended that Duckett could not obtain a fair trial, first because it was alleged that the man slain had been a peace officer and his death had antagonized all other peace officers of the county against the accused; and second, because "a dangerous combination of influential purposes" desired the conviction of Duckett. In this connection, it was alleged, that Duckett's arrest had occurred only eight days before the Democratic primary of July 28 at which Ed Goodwin, sheriff, was seeking renomination. Attached to the formal motion was an affidavit purporting to bear the signatures of Neal M. Rayburn and Robert L. Glass of Dundee which expressed as their opinion that Duckett could not obtain a fair trial in Archer county.

Political Significance

Of the 58 witnesses called during the day, the testimony of only one had any bearing upon the allegation that political motives had hastened the arrest of a suspect in connection with Mr. McDaniel's death. That witness was Clyde Taylor, Archer county clerk, and he was the last one called Monday. Through him, official returns from the last sheriff's race in Archer county were put into the record. Mr. Taylor testified that according to the returns, Goodwin had been renominated for sheriff by a majority of 119, and that Goodwin's majority in the Dundee box alone was 72 votes.

The examination of the witnesses became a monotonous proceedure, as 56 members of the jury panel followed each other to stand to be asked virtually the same set of questions by McDonald and, for the most part, to give the same answers to the various questions.

McDonald's questions became almost stereotyped. He asked each witness whether he had followed the various incidents in connection with the death of McDaniel, who was shot down while thwarting an attempted robbery of the First State bank of Dundee. McDaniel then asked each witness if he recalled the occasion of Duckett's arrest at Newcastle; whether the witness remembered that Duckett had been denied bond after a habeas corpus proceedings; and whether the witness recalled that certain alleged eye witnesses had positively identified Duckett at that hearing either as being the man who fired shots which killed McDaniel or who engaged afterward in a spectacular flight to Wichita Falls.

Many Form Opinions

Without exception, the 56 witnesses testified they had heard of and had discussed the occurrence at the time of the shooting. With one or two exceptions, all said they had followed details of McDaniel's death and Duckett's arrest in the newspapers. All except four said they had formed opinions of one kind or another. The majority replied, in answer to direct questions by McDonald, that their opinions were "against Duckett."

Of the 56, 52 said they had followed the details in The Wichita Daily Times or The Record News. Several copies of The Times and Record News of dates on and immediately following the day of the shooting were put into the court record. Copies of the issues were placed upon the witness table, and were examined at McDonald's direction by nearly all the witnesses who said they had read the stories immediately upon getting the paper. McDonald contended that the stories, photographs and drawings in the newspapers, together with the mouth-to-mouth discussion following McDaniel's death, made it impossible to secure an impartial jury in Archer county. The last thing done before court adjourned for the day was the introduction into the record of clippings from still other issues of the Times. The clippings were stories bearing on various phases of Duckett's arrest or hearing that followed.

Among the witnesses who testified he did not follow the newspaper stories was one who said that he subscribed to only two publications.

"What are they?" asked McDonald.

"The Baptist Standard and Capper's Weekly, was the reply.

McDonald also asked practically every witness whether expressions the witness had heard while discussing the case had not been "against Duckett, in the great majority."

While many of the witnesses replied "Yes," a considerable number answered in substance that "some seemed to think the defendant is the right man and some think he isn't."

Pleads Alibi

Duckett is pleading an alibi, and at his habeas corpus hearing, more than a score of witnesses testified in support of his contention that he was in his home town of Newcastle at the time Mr. McDaniel was killed more than 50 miles away.

Mr. McDonald also met failure in his effort to develop that Duckett had been brought to Wichita Falls immediately after arrest because officers had feared that mob violence might have followed confinement at Archer City. Nearly all the witnesses said they knew Duckett had been taken to Wichita Falls, but all denied that they had understood the action was due to fear of mob violence. P. L. Ward, who resides 12 miles southeast of Archer City, did testify, however, that "folks were all riled up" in his neighborhood.

Holliday Band To Feature Reunion

The Holliday band, under the direction of Paul Seeds of Wichita Falls, will be one of the feature attractions of the three-day United Confederate Veterans' reunion at Holliday Aug. 29-31, it was announced Monday.

Ther are only eight of the veterans of the gray left at Holliday, and August 30 has been set aside as "Veterans'" day to which veterans of all wars have been invited.

The reunion, which will be held two miles south of Holliday, will include a carnival, ball games, free vaudeville and a dance each night.

Tom Connally, Alvin Owsley, Dan Moody, J. A. Kemp and Judge P. A. Martin have been invited to make addresses.

Musician's Federation To Present Program

The Wichita Falls chapter of the American Federation of Musicians, No. 549, will give its first free, public concert Tuesday night in Bellevue park, it was anounced Sunday by C. C. Bunnenberg, superintendent of parks.

COOK REPLIES TO CHALLENGE

Wichita Falls, Texas, Aug. 18, 1928.
Mr. Ben P. Allred,
Wichita Falls, Texas.
Dear Sir:

I have just noticed your political advertisement in the Electra Star and various other papers of Wichita county, which purports to be a copy of a letter which you have addressed to me challenging me to meet you in joint debate at Electra on Aug. 23, and elsewhere, to discuss the issues of this campaign between you and myself for judge of the 78th district court.

It seems to me, from a consideration of your advertisement, that the only thing we could hope to do would be to engage in a campaign of personalities and vilification of each other. I say this only because, in your advertisement, you charge me, first, with being too old; you then refer to the members of the Wichita county bar as "my lawyer lieutenants" because they are supporting me. These things with your reference to a member of my family clearly demonstrate the character of campaign that would be conducted if I accepted your challenge.

I conceive that the office of district judge is one of grave responsibility in that such judge is called upon to pass upon the property rights and liberties of his fellowman, and a campaign of mere personalities and mud-slinging would tend to show unfitness for this high office rather than qualification.

I conceive that a discussion of the matters mentioned in your letter would in no way help the voters to make a better choice for this important office.

I therefore, respectfully decline to accept your challenge.

Yours truly, W. W. COOK.

ROBINSON IS SURE OF SOUTH

Nominee Plans Speaking Tour in Eight States

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—Expressing confidence as to solidarity of the south for the Democratic ticket, upon his arrival here today, Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the party's vice presidential nominee, mapped out a speaking itinerary which probably will call for his appearance in eight southern states in early stages of the campaign.

He declared emphatically the word he brought here to the Democratic national committee as to conditions in the south was encouraging and that there had been "tremendous change in public sentiment" since his visit to New York shortly after the Houston convention.

He contended Republican claims of strength in the south had aroused the Democrats "as I have never seen them aroused before," and predicted popularity of Governor Smith will grow as the campaign progresses.

Further than to say that after his notification in Hot Springs, Ark., August 30, he proposed to speak in Dallas and Cisco, Texas, on September 3 and 4, the senator declined to discuss the itinerary under consideration.

It is known, however, that he has been deluged with invitations from the south and it is believed that from Texas he will proceed to Tennessee and from there through Georgia, northern Florida, North and South Carolina and thence into Kentucky. This trip probably will extend from September 6 to 21 and from 10 to 14 addresses are under consideration.

Wichitan Injured When Car Strikes Another

J. W. McAfee of 2301 Taylor street was slightly injured when the automobile in which he was riding struck a parked automobile in the 2200 block on Holliday street about 8:30 o'clock Monday night. He was taken to the Hargrave-Walker hospital suffering from severe bruises about the body and an ugly cut on the face. His condition was not believed to be critical.

Story of Hidden Fortune 'Arises 'As Clue to Florida Mystery Murder

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., Aug. 20. (UP)—The mysterious murder of Cecil Upton has started reports here of a fortune amassed by Upton and believed to have been hidden on his plantation at North Boynton.

Upton was killed at his plantation several months ago and his attacker has not been found, but evidence that the man had large holdings has been discovered, according to a keeper at the plantation.

Jesse Rogers, a caretaker, living near the Upton mansion, said tonight that he had found a strong box hidden in the kitchen of the house. It contained stocks purchased in 1904 in many new western companies.

Upton's career is something of a mystery. He was said to have been a member of a distinguished English family, who came to America in 1900 because of a quarrel with his father. He continued to receive money after arriving in Florida and was a large holder of notes and mortgages securing during the land boom here.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—Early declines were followed by rallies in the cotton market today on a moderate demand prompted by continued reports of deterioration crop prospects in the south. December contracts after selling off from 18.60 at the start to 18.23, or 36 points net lower, just about recovered the loss, closing at 18.58. The general market closed firm, net 5 points higher to 5 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 points to a decline of 2 points. There was some buying on reports of showers in the eastern belt over Sunday and the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. This demand was promptly supplied by a continuation of the selling movement which had been in progress here at the close of last week and which may have been encouraged by the failure of the buying to become more aggressive, or a favorable view of the rains reported in some parts of the southwest and central belts.

After showing net losses of about 30 to 34 points the market rallied some 18 or 20 points from the lowest on covering or rebuying, but the demand soon tapered off and the market weakened again during the afternoon. Early buyers were among the sellers on the decline which carried prices to about the early low levels and some selling was reported here for southern account.

Offerings were comparatively light after the heavy selling on the early break, however, and the market firmed up later in the day on a renewal of covering or re-buying.

October was relatively firm, closing about 4 points over December compared with a discount of 3 points at the close of the previous day.

Port receipts today 9.923. U. S. port stocks 445.785. Exports today 6.364, making 174,360 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20. (AP)—Heavy speculative selling and some hedging forced cotton prices lower today and active positions traded below the 18-cent level, but rains in sections of the belt where moisture is not wanted brought out trade buying and covering which absorbed offerings and gradually left December contracts from 17.81 to 18.19. The option closed at 18.08 compared with 18.13 at Saturday's close. The general market closed steady net 1 point up to 4 down.

Liverpool cables were 7 to 8 penny points higher than expected but the market here failed to respond and opened barely steady. The higher English market, however, brought out some demand right after the start.

Despite the weather map's showing of considerable rain in the central and eastern section of the belt the market turned weak later in the morning under rather extensive speculative selling some of which was purported to be for Wall street and western account. The rains which at first failed to influence values were accentuated by detailed reports and in late trading induced general trade buying and covering which gradually carried October and December deliveries practically to the early highs. There was a slight flurry of selling in final trading and October closed at 18.02 and January 18.14.

Selected Stocks Gain in Face Of Call Rate Advance; Motors Down

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (US)—Selected stocks were pushed higher in the face of an advance in the call money rate to 7½ per cent from a renewal of 6 per cent today. Except for those few issues influenced by group work, the industrials remained irregular, while rails and oils continued quiet but fairly firm throughout.

General Motors was the target for heavy bearish operations and added 2 points more to its loss. Can again enjoyed the best buying and moved into new high ground followed closely by Continental Can. Chrysler was rallied against a rather crowded short interest but its advance was slowed by continued liquidation. Postum and Public Service of New Jersey stood out by reason of strength, responding to special influences.

The higher call rate was experienced as was forecast here exclusively Saturday morning and is expected to be followed by continued tightness in the call market tomorrow.

Banks Call Funds

The banks called $35,000,000 in all so that the entire $70,000,000 unexpectedly thrown into the market just before Mr. Durant's sudden sailing for Europe has now been entirely withdrawn. The ability of certain individuals to influence corporate funds takes control of the call money market away from local banks temporarily.

If the short interest increases, it would be no surprise if these individuals again flood the market with funds for a moment and cause another sharp jump in technically cornered stocks sometime during the next ten days. Thereafter a different story will be told, however, as corporations will need their funds for September interest and dividend payments while the huge government turnover will naturally cause banks to withdraw further amount of the loans they are extending to brokers.

According to their associates, the most powerful operators of the moment were again the principal buyers of can. It is said they intend to take their purchases entirely out of the market and should they do so it will put Can a little closer to being another National Biscuit. It will take several years before Can's financial position or earning power is compared to biscuit but those buying are reputedly taking a position for such an extended outcome. The activity in Continental Can was influenced by operations of the pool that has been at work in this stock for several months. They were encouraged to resume work by American Can's strength as told of here last week.

Katy Prominent

Running in of shorts in Chrysler was no surprise and somewhat similar action is planned in Montgomery Ward at the right time. Postum's advance was in response to knowledge of plans for acquisition of additional properties which add to income. Public Service buying came from banking quarters usually familiar with the affairs of the company. There was talk of increase in the dividend in the not distant future.

Katy jumped into prominence in the rail list, although there is considerable doubt that the Loree merger plans will receive the approval of the commission. Quiet buying in Erie was due to expectation of dividend on the preferred within a month or so.

Tidewater Associated again was best bought in the oil group. One active firm issued special wire telling of rumors of an opinion and also of rumored plans to get the stock higher prior to release of a very good earnings statement. It can be stated, however, that no pool operation of the character talked of has been definitely agreed upon as yet. Recent buying is explained as due to belated recognition of the improved earnings of the company, it being estimated that net for the current year should be more than sufficient to warrant a $1 annual dividend rate. Warner's move followed advice that "A" shares probably would be called when the "B" stock is listed on the big board. Governors of the Exchange are due to act on the listing Wednesday. It is estimated that $150,000,000 is being spent for installation work for talking movies throughout the country. Western Electric, and therefore American Telephone, get most benefit therefrom.

Commodoties remained under heavy professional pressure, with cotton sold from the opening as further favorable crop estimates were forthcoming. There was momentary rally in corn on favorable export reports but it petered out under the influence of the steady decline in wheat which was influences by bearish weather news. Sterling dropped to the low of the year on resumed steady offerings in a generally irregular foreign exchange market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Demand for good to choice fed steers and yearlings was broad and the limited supply sold at mostly steady levels. Choice yearlings brought 16.85 at Chicago and best heavies went at 16.50; fed western grassers were numerous at 12.50@14.25 at Kansas City and straight grass steers ranged from 10.00@12.50. Fat she stock ruled weak to 25c lower and vealers were 50c to $1 off. Fleshy feeders sold up to 14.25 at Kansas City, with the bulk going at from 10.50@13.50. Total receipts at the eleven markets were 99,400 against 85,300 a week ago and 108,110 a year ago.

Although receipts were somewhat heavier than a week ago, a good shipping demand held hog prices on a weak to 15c lower basis. Choice 180 to 210 pound weights sold up to 12.65 at Chicago for the day's top. Arrivals around the loop totalled 85,700, as compared with 74,680 last week and 81,975 a year ago.

Fat lamb prices were under pressure and declines of 25 to 50c were registered at practically all the larger markets. Best range lambs reached 14.75 at Chicago. Total supplies were 91,700 against 72,195 a week ago and 85,870 a year ago.

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 20. (UP)—Hogs—Receipts 900; rail receipts limited to one carlot, selling steady at $11.90; truck hogs mostly 10c lower, practical top on truck lots $11.40; few up to $11.50; bulk truck butchers $11@11.40; packing sows at 8.75 to $9.25 and few stocker pigs around $8, steady. Medium to choice heavy weight $10.90@11.90; medium weight $11.40@12.00; light weight $11.10@12.00; light light $9.25@11.50; packing sows, smooth and rough $8.75@10.00.

Cattle—Receipts 5,500; market slaughter steers slow, barely steady; closing weak to lower; offerings mostly grassy of value to move $9.25@10.90; several carlot sales in this spread. Desirable fat yearlings very scarce. She stock and cutters, active, fully steady, three car top choice cake few cows $9.65; other fat cows $9 and less; low cutters $4.25@4.75; few strong weights at $5. Other classes cattle generally unchanged. ### CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. (US)—Under the influence of declining foreign markets and increased hedging pressure, local wheat prices moved lower in today's trade. Buying by holders of privileges finally checked the decline and the market finished 1⅜@2⅛c off.

September corn continued to move up on short covering, aiding the December future which had a heavy tone. This grain finished the session 1⅜c higher for the September to ½c lower. Oats were unchanged to ⅝c lower at the close and rye was 1¼@1⅜c down.

Liverpool closed 1½@1⅝c lower. While cables gave no other cause for the decline than continued favorable conditions for the crops of the world, they said the market was steady at the decline owing to light shipments to the United Kingdom. Winnipeg futures kept pace with Chicago, closing 1⅜@2⅜c lower. Buenos Aires was ⅝@1⅛c lower at mid-day.

Nothing new in the wheat situation having developed over the week-end, there was little demand for the scattered offerings by locals and commission houses. In addition to this pressure, the market was called upon to absorb some rather substantial hedging, which was attributed to the northwest.

Weather conditions in the northwest on both sides of the line were very favorable. Advices from across the boundary said harvesting is rapidly getting under way.

Corn continued to display an irregular, nervous tone. Short covering was still on in the September. The deferred deliveries were weak and heavy on reports of generally favorable weather over the belt. They were prevented from registering larger losses in price due to the gains made in the September.

Cash corn met with a moderate demand. Charters were reported made for 480,000 bushels to Buffalo and Georgian Bay. Visible stocks of corn in the United States decreased 949,000 bushels.

Arctic Rescuers Redouble Efforts In Battle With Waning Midnight Sun

ROME, Aug. 20. (UP)—With scarcely more than two weeks remaining before the Arctic midnight sun begins to wane and finally turns the polar regions into a continually frozen night, efforts are being rushed to reach the still missing members of the dirigible Italia's crew and those lost during the recent rescue operations.

The second attempt which has so far been made to reach the Italia men carried off in the envelope of the dirigible after the crash has started, it was announced officially here today. The rescue ship Braganza has departed from Kings Bay for northeast Spitzbergen with two light seaplanes on board which will systematically cover the district eastward and northward of Cape Leigh Smith from the air while searching parties will cover the northern coast of northeast land.

Likewise, efforts are being made to find Captain Roald Amundsen and his crew of the French airplane piloted by Rene Guilbaud which started out to search for General Umberto Nobile's camp on the arctic wastes June 18. The plane has not been heard from since.

The Danish government has placed the polar ship Gustax Holm at the disposal of the French government to assist in the search for the French airplane party. The ship at present is patrolling the east coast of Greenland.

The other ships, which are still participating in the search, are attempting to penetrate as deeply as possible into the frozen channels, but it is pointed out that aside from the heavy icebreakers other vessels can do little or no good in the frozen seas after another fortnight's time.

SPARE TEETH FOR TRAVELERS

Dental Specialist Stresses Need of 'Extras'

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. (UP—If contemplating a long trip one should make sure that his spare set of false teeth are in good shape.

In these hazardous days when accidents are frequent, one never can tell when he might damage his false teeth and a spare set is almost as indispensable as a spare tire to an automobile, Dr. Paul J. McGowan, Boston specialist attending the dental laboratory technicans conference here said.

"While accidents to false teeth are rare," Dr. McGowan said, "a set may be dropped and broken or may be injured by biting upon something too hard. It is not uncommon, however, for an absent-minded wearer to mislay his teeth and he would hesitate to appear in public unless they were found."

As an example of the extent of mortification and embarrassment that might be caused, he cited the case of a society matron, who, because of an accident to her artificial teeth on the eve of her daughter's wedding when there was not time to recall invitations, was forced to absent herself from the affair.

"Tourists crossing the ocean," the specialist said, "have been known to drop their dentures overboard and remain in the reclusion of their cabin until reaching the other side. A mishap of this kind might result in the postponement of a long-dreamed-of European trip, and has in many instances caused the cancellation of hotel and railroad reservations.

"The loss of a set of artificial teeth, which may represent an investment of as much as $5,000, not to speak of the annoyance to the loser, may be regarded by the humorist as a colossal joke, but to the victim it is tragedy. The practical joker, with his perverted sense of humor, has been known to hide a set of teeth belonging to another."

To those whose false teeth represent a big investment, those who have enemies, Dr. McGowan advised a cheaper "spare" set to be worn when danger of theft presents itself.

Air Derby Draws 31 Plane Entries

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20. (AP)—Thirty-one pilots and airplanes from all sections of the United States have been entered in the New York to Los Angeles air derbies which will be started in conjunction with the national air races at Mines field here starting September 8.

Prizes totalling $62,500 and trophies will be at stake in the four races. The New York to Los Angeles non-stop contests will have $22,500 up and three class races through control stations will pay a total of $40,000 in addition to the entries filed for the New York-to-Los Angeles flight. A number of aviators have entered the lists of the international air derby from Windsor, Ont., and the pan-American-American derby from Mexico City. Two other races from San Francisco and from Oakland to Los Angeles also have drawn a number of entries.

Gasoline Users Helped by Tax Cut

HOUSTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Effective Sept. 1, gasoline prices to consumers throughout the state will be reduced one cent a gallon by the Texas company, Guy Carroll, assistant to the president, announced today.

On that date the state gasoline tax is to drop from three to two cents on each gallon.

The present retail price in Houston is 21 cents a gallon.

Magnolia Petroleum company officials also said retail purchasers of Magnolia would get the benefit of the one cent tax decrease.

Greek Held Captive For Ransome Saved

ATHENS, Greese, Aug. 20. (AP)—Former Deputy Melas, who was held captive by bandits until ransomed, reached Janina in safety although feverish from exhaustion. He said that during his captivity he had been fed only dry bread and had been continually threatened. The military authorities have undertaken a pursuit of the bandits.

CAL'S SON HAS 'PERSONALITY'

He's a 'Good Fellow' But He Doesn't Talk

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 20. (UP)—Despite careful shielding which the president's son receives, this city today learned much concerning John Coolidge, who is the guest here of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Frank.

Golf and dinner dances occupied most of his week-end visit at the home of the University of Wisconsin president.

Miss Helen Metcalf of Milwaukee, a dinner partner, shyly disclosed that being the president's son is among the least of his recommendations. John Coolidge is "interesting," "a very fine dancer," "has personality and good looks," she attested.

After the dance he escorted her to the home of a sorority sister whom she is visiting. R. C. Wood, his secret service companion, a firm but none the less charming gentleman, followed in another automobile

What did they talk about? Miss Metcalf was as uncommunicative as the president's son in the presence of his bodyguard when this question was asked but she admitted "he is interesting in conversation."

As a golfer, John says "gee" every time he drives into the rough. But he is a "good all-around fellow," added Ernest Kloetzli who served him as caddy. He doesn't even get mad when a caddy loses the first ball driven off the tee.

A girl reporter, who stepped in a few questions ahead of the secret service, learned from John himself that "you can never be hurt by anything you don't say."

Veterans of 1898 To Visit Cuba

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Three decades after freeing Cuba from Spain another American army will invade that island on a peaceful expedition to gather at the national encampment of the United Spanish War veterans, at Havana, Oct. 8-12.

Twenty thousand veterans who fought in Cuba, in the Philippine insurrection, Boxer rebellion and the World war are to make the trip by boat from Atlantic and Gulf ports. They will be welcomed by President Machado of the Cuban republic.

The official party, headed by Gen. John J. Garrity of Chicago, chief of the veterans, will travel on the battleship Texas, flagship of the United States fleet, which will be escorted from Key West, Fla., to Havana by the Cuban flagship Cuba and two gunboats.

English Woman Mayor Praises 'Johnny Walker'

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—The mayor of Southampton, Eng., Mrs. Lucia Marion Foster-Welch by name, arrived at New York today.

She was met in state at quarantine by the city's official reception tug and was welcomed at city hall by the Mayor James J. Walker.

"We in England have no Jimmy Walker," said Mrs. Foster-Welch in response, but we have another Walker—a Johnny Walker—who has been going strong for more than a hundred years. I hope Jimmy will go strong for a good many years."

Mayfield Addresses Home Town Audience

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Strident voiced and challenging, United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield, running for reelection, invited a home town crowd here tonight to compare his legislative record with that of his opponent in Saturday's run-off primary—Congressman Tom Connally. The senator concentrated on what he described as Connally's lack of accomplishments in his "twelve long years at Washington."

Former Rail Head Given Demo Post by Raskob

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20. (UP)—Samuel Rea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad, will act as chairman of an independent committee to direct the Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania.

Rea's appointment was announced today by John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee.

Sinclair Lewis And Bride Sail for Home

PARIS, Aug. 20. (UP)—Sinclair Lewis, author of "Main Street," sailed for New York today on the liner Hamburg. Lewis was accompanied by his wife with whom he has been spending an eight-month "caravan honeymoon" in Europe.

PROPOSED constitutional amendment—authorizing legislature to grant confederate pensions regardless of date pensioner came to Texas or when widow married pensioner or when she was born. H. J. R. No. 15. House joint resolution. Proposing an amendment to section 51, article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas, authorizing a tax levy for confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows, and providing for submission of same to the qualified electors of this state at any election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, and providing the necessary proclamation and appropriation to defray expenses of proclamation, publication and election. Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Texas: Section 1. That section 51, of article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas be amended so as to read as follows: "The legislature shall have no power to make any grant or authorize the making of any grant of public moneys to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled confederate soldiers and sailors under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient, and to their widows in indigent circumstances under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; to indigent and disabled soldiers, who, under special laws of the state of Texas, during the war between the states, served in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids or Mexican marauders, and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia who were in active service during the war between the states, and to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances, and who are or may be eligible to receive aid under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; and also grant for the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the confederacy, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided for by law; provided the legislature may provide for husband and wife to remain together in the home. There is hereby levied in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the constitution of Texas, a state ad valorem tax on property of seven ($.07) cents on the one hundred ($100) dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pensions for services in the confederate army and navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the state of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the legislature may reduce the tax rate herein levied and provided further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in cases of public calamity. Section 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, at which all ballots shall have printed thereon "For the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances, and authorizing tax levy therefor," and "Against the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances and authorizing tax levy therefor." Each voter

Secret Service Men Deny Kidnaping Girl

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (UP)—Herman J. Galloway, acting United States attorney general, and Chief Moran, of the secret service, today denied knowledge of charges that government agents had kidnaped Martha Thompson, secretary of H. M. Blackmer, Denver oil man.

Tyson S. Dines, Blackmer's Denver attorney, charged that during the alleged abduction the agents obtained the evidence on which the government is seeking to extradite Blackmer from Paris on a perjury charge.

Officials Begin Drive To Exterminate Rats

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Enacting the role of a modern Pied Piper, M. C. Counts, county agent, and J. M. Hill, San Antonio, field assistant in the United States bureau, biological survey, have decreed death to all rats in Tarrant county this fall.

Counts and Hill are conducting a survey as the forerunners to the drive against rodents. Every district of the county will be visited with a view of making a simultaneous drive.

Traps and poison will be used to eliminate the pests.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—Early declines were followed by rallies in the cotton market today on a moderate demand prompted by continued reports of deterioration crop prospects in the south. December contracts after selling off from 18.60 at the start to 18.23, or 36 points net lower, just about recovered the loss, closing at 18.58. The general market closed firm, net 5 points higher to 5 points lower.

The opening was steady at an advance of 7 points to a decline of 2 points. There was some buying on reports of showers in the eastern belt over Sunday and the relatively steady showing of Liverpool. This demand was promptly supplied by a continuation of the selling movement which had been in progress here at the close of last week and which may have been encouraged by the failure of the buying to become more aggressive, or a favorable view of the rains reported in some parts of the southwest and central belts.

After showing net losses of about 30 to 34 points the market rallied some 18 or 20 points from the lowest on covering or rebuying, but the demand soon tapered off and the market weakened again during the afternoon. Early buyers were among the sellers on the decline which carried prices to about the early low levels and some selling was reported here for southern account.

Offerings were comparatively light after the heavy selling on the early break, however, and the market firmed up later in the day on a renewal of covering or re-buying.

October was relatively firm, closing about 4 points over December compared with a discount of 3 points at the close of the previous day.

Port receipts today 9.923. U. S. port stocks 445,785. Exports today 6,364, making 174,360 so far this season.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 20. (AP)—Heavy speculative selling and some hedging forced cotton prices lower today and active positions traded below the 18-cent level, but rains in sections of the belt where moisture is not wanted brought out trade buying and covering which absorbed offerings and gradually left December contracts from 17.81 to 18.19. The option closed at 18.08 compared with 18.13 at Saturday's close. The general market closed steady net 1 point up to 4 down.

Liverpool cables were 7 to 8 penny points higher than expected but the market here failed to respond and opened barely steady. The higher English market, however, brought out some demand right after the start.

Despite the weather map's showing of considerable rain in the central and eastern section of the belt the market turned weak later in the morning under rather extensive speculative selling some of which was purported to be for Wall street and western account. The rains which at first failed to influence values were accentuated by detailed reports and in late trading induced general trade buying and covering which gradually carried October and December deliveries practically to the early highs. There was a slight flurry of selling in final trading and October closed at 18.02 and January 18.14.

Selected Stocks Gain in Face Of Call Rate Advance; Motors Down

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (US)—Selected stocks were pushed higher in the face of an advance in the call money rate to 7½ per cent from a renewal of 6 per cent today. Except for those few issues influenced by group work, the industrials remained irregular, while rails and oils continued quiet but fairly firm throughout.

General Motors was the target for heavy bearish operations and added 2 points more to its loss. Can again enjoyed the best buying and moved into new high ground followed closely by Continental Can. Chrysler was rallied against a rather crowded short interest but its advance was slowed by continued liquidation. Postum and Public Service of New Jersey stood out by reason of strength, responding to special influences.

The higher call rate was experienced as was forecast here exclusively Saturday morning and is expected to be followed by continued tightness in the call market tomorrow.

Banks Call Funds

The banks called $35,000,000 in all so that the entire $70,000,000 unexpectedly thrown into the market just before Mr. Durant's sudden sailing for Europe has now been entirely withdrawn. The ability of certain individuals to influence corporate funds takes control of the call money market away from local banks temporarily.

If the short interest increases, it would be no surprise if these individuals again flood the market with funds for a moment and cause another sharp jump in technically cornered stocks sometime during the next ten days. Thereafter a different story will be told, however, as corporations will need their funds for September interest and dividend payments while the huge government turnover will naturally cause banks to withdraw further amount of the loans they are extending to brokers.

According to their associates, the most powerful operators of the moment were again the principal buyers of can. It is said they intend to take their purchases entirely out of the market and should they do so it will put Can a little closer to being another National Biscuit. It will take several years before Can's financial position or earning power is compared to biscuit but those buying are reputedly taking a position for such an extended outcome. The activity in Continental Can was influenced by operations of the pool that has been at work in this stock for several months. They were encouraged to resume work by American Can's strength as told of here last week.

Katy Prominent

Running in of shorts in Chrysler was no surprise and somewhat similar action is planned in Montgomery Ward at the right time. Postum's advance was in response to knowledge of plans for acquisition of additional properties which add to income. Public Service buying came from banking quarters usually familiar with the affairs of the company. There was talk of increase in the dividend in the not distant future.

Katy jumped into prominence in the rail list, although there is considerable doubt that the Loree merger plans will receive the approval of the commission. Quiet buying in Erie was due to expectation of dividend on the preferred within a month or so.

Tidewater Associated again was best bought in the oil group. One active firm issued special wire telling of rumors of an opinion and also of rumored plans to get the stock higher prior to release of a very good earnings statement. It can be stated, however, that no pool operation of the character talked of has been definitely agreed upon as yet. Recent buying is explained as due to belated recognition of the improved earnings of the company, it being estimated that net for the current year should be more than sufficient to warrant a $1 annual dividend rate. Warner's move followed advice that "A" shares probably would be called when the "B" stock is listed on the big board. Governors of the Exchange are due to act on the listing Wednesday. It is estimated that $150,000,000 is being spent for installation work for talking movies throughout the country. Western Electric, and therefore American Telephone, get most benefit therefrom.

Commodoties remained under heavy professional pressure, with cotton sold from the opening as further favorable crop estimates were forthcoming. There was momentary rally in corn on favorable export reports but it petered out under the influence of the steady decline in wheat which was influences by bearish weather news. Sterling dropped to the low of the year on resumed steady offerings in a generally irregular foreign exchange market.

MIDWESTERN REVIEW

KANSAS CITY, Aug. 20. (AP)—(U. S. D. A.)—Demand for good to choice fed steers and yearlings was broad and the limited supply sold at mostly steady levels. Choice yearlings brought 16.85 at Chicago and best heavies went at 16.50; fed western grassers were numerous at 12.50@14.25 at Kansas City and straight grass steers ranged from 10.00@12.50. Fat she stock ruled weak to 25c lower and vealers were 50c to $1 off. Fleshy feeders sold up to 14.25 at Kansas City, with the bulk going at from 10.50@13.50. Total receipts at the eleven markets were 99,400 against 85,300 a week ago and 108,110 a year ago.

Although receipts were somewhat heavier than a week ago, a good shipping demand held hog prices on a weak to 15c lower basis. Choice 180 to 210 pound weights sold up to 12.65 at Chicago for the day's top. Arrivals around the loop totalled 85,700, as compared with 74,680 last week and 81,975 a year ago.

Fat lamb prices were under pressure and declines of 25 to 50c were registered at practically all the larger markets. Best range lambs reached 14.75 at Chicago. Total supplies were 91,700 against 72,195 a week ago and 85,870 a year ago.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

By THOMAS TEMPLE HOYNE

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. (US)—Under the influence of declining foreign markets and increased hedging pressure, local wheat prices moved lower in today's trade. Buying by holders of privileges finally checked the decline and the market finished 1⅜@2⅛c off.

September corn continued to move up on short covering, aiding the December future which had a heavy tone. This grain finished the session 1⅝c higher for the September to ½c lower. Oats were unchanged to ⅜c lower at the close and rye was 1¼@1⅛c down.

Liverpool closed 1⅛@1⅜c lower. While cables gave no other cause for the decline than continued favorable conditions for the crops of the world, they said the market was steady at the decline owing to light shipments to the United Kingdom. Winnipeg futures kept pace with Chicago, closing 1⅜@2⅜c lower. Buenos Aires was ⅞@1⅛c lower at mid-day.

Nothing new in the wheat situation having developed over the week-end, there was little demand for the scattered offerings by locals and commission houses. In addition to this pressure, the market was called upon to absorb some rather substantial hedging, which was attributed to the northwest.

Weather conditions in the northwest on both sides of the line were very favorable. Advices from across the boundary said harvesting is rapidly getting under way.

Corn continued to display an irregular, nervous tone. Short covering was still on in the September. The deferred deliveries were weak and heavy on reports of generally favorable weather over the belt. They were prevented from registering larger losses in price due to the gains made in the September.

Cash corn met with a moderate demand. Charters were reported made for 480,000 bushels to Buffalo and Georgian Bay. Visible stocks of corn in the United States decreased 949,000 bushels.

Arctic Rescuers Redouble Efforts In Battle With Waning Midnight Sun

ROME, Aug. 20. (UP)—With scarcely more than two weeks remaining before the Arctic midnight sun begins to wane and finally turns the polar regions into a continually frozen night, efforts are being rushed to reach the still missing members of the dirigible Italia's crew and those lost during the recent rescue operations.

The second attempt which has so far been made to reach the Italia men carried off in the envelope of the dirigible after the crash has started, it was announced officially here today. The rescue ship Braganza has departed from Kings Bay for northeast Spitzbergen with two light seaplanes on board which will systematically cover the district eastward and northward of Cape Leigh Smith from the air while searching parties will cover the northern coast of northeast land.

Likewise, efforts are being made to find Captain Roald Amundsen and his crew of the French airplane piloted by Rene Guilbaud which started out to search for General Umberto Nobile's camp on the arctic wastes June 18. The plane has not been heard from since.

The Danish government has placed the polar ship Gustax Holm at the disposal of the French government to assist in the search for the French airplane party. The ship at present is patrolling the east coast of Greenland.

The other ships, which are still participating in the search, are attempting to penetrate as deeply as possible into the frozen channels, but it is pointed out that aside from the heavy icebreakers other vessels can do little or no good in the frozen seas after another fortnight's time.

SPARE TEETH FOR TRAVELERS

Dental Specialist Stresses Need of 'Extras'

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. (UP—If contemplating a long trip one should make sure that his spare set of false teeth are in good shape.

In these hazardous days when accidents are frequent, one never can tell when he might damage his false teeth and a spare set is almost as indispensable as a spare tire to an aptomobile, Dr. Paul J. McGowan, Boston specialist attending the dental laboratory technicans conference here said.

"While accidents to false teeth are rare," Dr. McGowan said, "a set may be dropped and broken or may be injured by biting upon something too hard. It is not uncommon, however, for an absent-minded wearer to mislay his teeth and he would hesitate to appear in public unless they were found."

As an example of the extent of mortification and embarrassment that might be caused, he cited the case of a society matron, who, because of an accident to her artificial teeth on the eve of her daughter's wedding when there was not time to recall invitations, was forced to absent herself from the affair.

"Tourists crossing the ocean," the specialist said, "have been known to drop their dentures overboard and remain in the reclusion of their cabin until reaching the other side. A mishap of this kind might result in the postponement of a long-dreamed-of European trip, and has in many instances caused the cancellation of hotel and railroad reservations.

"The loss of a set of artificial teeth, which may represent an investment of as much as $5,000, not to speak of the annoyance to the loser, may be regarded by the humorist as a colossal joke, but to the victim it is tragedy. The practical joker, with his perverted sense of humor, has been known to hide a set of teeth belonging to another."

To those whose false teeth represent a big investment, those who have enemies, Dr. McGowan advised a cheaper "spare" set to be worn when danger of theft presents itself.

Air Derby Draws 31 Plane Entries

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 20. (AP)—Thirty-one pilots and airplanes from all sections of the United States have been entered in the New York to Los Angeles air derbies which will be started in conjunction with the national air races at Mines field here starting September 8.

Prizes totalling $62,500 and trophies will be at stake in the four races. The New York to Los Angeles non-stop contests will have $22,500 up and three class races through control stations will pay a total of $40,000 in addition to the entries filed for the New York-to-Los Angeles flight. A number of aviators have entered the lists of the international air derby from Windsor, Ont., and the pan-American-American derby from Mexico City. Two other races from San Francisco and from Oakland to Los Angeles also have drawn a number of entries.

Gasoline Users Helped by Tax Cut

HOUSTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Effective Sept. 1, gasoline prices to consumers throughout the state will be reduced one cent a gallon by the Texas company, Guy Carroll, assistant to the president, announced today.

On that date the state gasoline tax is to drop from three to two cents on each gallon.

The present retail price in Houston is 21 cents a gallon.

Magnolia Petroleum company officials also said retail purchasers of Magnolia would get the benefit of the one cent tax decrease.

Greek Held Captive For Ransome Saved

ATHENS, Greese, Aug. 20. (AP)—Former Deputy Melas, who was held captive by bandits until ransomed, reached Janina in safety although feverish from exhaustion. He said that during his captivity he had been fed only dry bread and had been continually threatened. The military authorities have undertaken a pursuit of the bandits.

CAL'S SON HAS 'PERSONALITY'

He's a 'Good Fellow' But He Doesn't Talk

MADISON, Wis., Aug. 20. (UP)—Despite careful shielding which the president's son receives, this city today learned much concerning John Coolidge, who is the guest here of Dr. and Mrs. Glenn Frank.

Golf and dinner dances occupied most of his week-end visit at the home of the University of Wisconsin president.

Miss Helen Metcalf of Milwaukee, a dinner partner, shyly disclosed that being the president's son is among the least of his recommendations. John Coolidge is "interesting," "a very fine dancer," "has personality and good looks," she attested.

After the dance he escorted her to the home of a sorority sister whom she is visiting. R. C. Wood, his secret service companion, a firm but none the less charming gentleman, followed in another automobile.

What did they talk about? Miss Metcalf was as uncommunicative as the president's son in the presence of his bodyguard when this question was asked but she admitted "he is interesting in conversation."

As a golfer, John says "gee" every time he drives into the rough. But he is a "good all-around fellow," added Ernest Kloetzli who served him as caddy. He doesn't even get mad when a caddy loses the first ball driven off the tee.

A girl reporter, who stepped in a few questions ahead of the secret service, learned from John himself that "you can never be hurt by anything you don't say."

Veterans of 1898 To Visit Cuba

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (AP)—Three decades after freeing Cuba from Spain another American army will invade that island on a peaceful expedition to gather at the national encampment of the United Spanish War veterans, at Havana, Oct. 8-12.

Twenty thousand veterans who fought in Cuba, in the Philippine insurrection, Boxer rebellion and the World war are to make the trip by boat from Atlantic and Gulf ports. They will be welcomed by President Machado of the Cuban republic.

The official party, headed by Gen. John J. Garrity of Chicago, chief of the veterans, will travel on the battleship Texas, flagship of the United States fleet, which will be escorted from Key West, Fla., to Havana by the Cuban flagship Cuba and two gunboats.

English Woman Mayor Praises 'Johnny Walker'

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—The mayor of Southampton, Eng., Mrs. Lucia Marion Foster-Welch by name, arrived at New York today.

She was met in state at quarantine by the city's official reception tug and was welcomed at city hall by the Mayor James J. Walker.

"We in England have no Jimmy Walker," said Mrs. Foster-Welch in response, but we have another Walker—a Johnny Walker—who has been going strong for more than a hundred years. I hope Jimmy will go strong for a good many years."

Mayfield Addresses Home Town Audience

AUSTIN, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Strident voiced and challenging, United States Senator Earle B. Mayfield, running for reelection, invited a home town crowd here tonight to compare his legislative record with that of his opponent in Saturday's run-off primary—Congressman Tom Connally. The senator concentrated on what he described as Connally's lack of accomplishments in his "twelve long years at Washington."

Former Rail Head Given Demo Post by Raskob

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 20. (UP)—Samuel Rea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad, will act as chairman of an independent committee to direct the Democratic presidential campaign in Pennsylvania.

Phone Your Classified Ads to 4391

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the next day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad Department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Where ads are ordered and paid for no refunds are allowed where ads are cancelled before expiration date.

CLOSING HOURS FOR CLASSIFIED DISPLAY
3 p. m. for Record News day before publication.
11 a. m. for Times day of publication.
SUNDAY DEADLINE BOTH PAPERS 1 P. M. SATURDAY.

CLOSING HOURS FOR STRAIGHT CLASSIFIED ADS
Ads accepted for week days until 6 p. m. day before publication and for Sunday's issue until 7 p. m. Saturday night.

NO DISCONTINUANCE ORDERS WILL BE TAKEN AFTER 6 P. M.

THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT IS OPEN ON SUNDAYS
from 4 to 6 p. m. And telephone orders for classified ads to be inserted or to be discontinued will be accepted.

Exceptions: Want ads will be accepted over the telephone for all excepting the following classifications: Situations Wanted and Wanted to Rent. Ads for these classifications are cash with the order and will not be accepted over the telephone.

Ads coming in after closing hours will not appear until next morning's issue, with exception of Lost and Found. Ads coming under this classification will appear under the Too Late to Classify column in the evening edition.

The Times reserves the right to classify all Classified Ads under the appropriate headlines and to revise or to withhold from publication any ads deemed objectionable.

PROPOSED constitutional amendment—authorizing legislature to grant confederate pensions regardless of date pensioner came to Texas or when widow married pensioner or when she was born. H. J. R. No. 15. House joint resolution. Proposing an amendment to section 51, article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas, authorizing a tax levy for confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows, and providing for submission of same to the qualified electors of this state at any election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, and providing the necessary proclamation and appropriation to defray expenses of proclamation, publication and election. Be it resolved by the legislature of the state of Texas: Section 1. That section 51, of article 3, of the constitution of the state of Texas be amended so as to read as follows: "The legislature shall have no power to make any grant or authorize the making of any grant of public moneys to any individual, association of individuals, municipal or other corporations whatsoever; provided, however, the legislature may grant aid to indigent and disabled confederate soldiers and sailors under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient, and to their widows in indigent circumstances under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; to indigent and disabled soldiers, who, under special laws of the state of Texas, during the war between the states, served in organizations for the protection of the frontier against Indian raids or Mexican marauders, and to indigent and disabled soldiers of the militia who were in active service during the war between the states, and to the widows of such soldiers who are in indigent circumstances, and who are or may be eligible to receive aid under such regulations and limitations as may be deemed by the legislature as expedient; and also grant for the establishment and maintenance of a home for said soldiers and sailors, their wives and widows and women who aided in the confederacy, under such regulations and limitations as may be provided for by law; provided the legislature may provide for husband and wife to remain together in the home. There is hereby levied in addition to all other taxes heretofore permitted by the constitution of Texas, a state ad valorem tax on property of seven ($.07) cents on the one hundred ($100) dollars valuation for the purpose of creating a special fund for the payment of pensions for services in the confederate army and navy, frontier organizations and the militia of the state of Texas, and for the widows of such soldiers serving in said armies, navies, organizations or militia; provided that the legislature may reduce the tax rate herein levied and provided further, that the provisions of this section shall not be construed so as to prevent the grant of aid in cases of public calamity. Section 2. The foregoing constitutional amendment shall be submitted to a vote of the qualified electors of the state at an election to be held on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November, A. D. 1928, at which all ballots shall have printed thereon "For the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances, and authorizing tax levy therefor," and "Against the constitutional amendment authorizing aid to confederate soldiers and sailors and their widows in indigent circumstances and authorizing tax levy therefor." Each voter shall scratch out one of said clauses on the ballot, leaving the one expressing his vote on the proposed amendment. Section 3. The governor shall issue the necessary proclamation for said election and have the same published as required by the constitution and laws of this state. The sum of $5,000 or so much thereof as may be needed is hereby appropriated for the expense of publication of said amendment.

Secret Service Men Deny Kidnaping Girl

WASHINGTON, Aug. 20. (UP)—Herman J. Galloway, acting United States attorney general, and Chief Moran, of the secret service, today denied knowledge of charges that government agents had kidnaped Martha Thompson, secretary of H. M. Blackmer, Denver oil man.

Tyson S. Dines, Blackmer's Denver attorney, charged that during the alleged abduction the agents obtained the evidence on which the government is seeking to extradite Blackmer from Paris on a perjury charge.

Officials Begin Drive To Exterminate Rats

FORT WORTH, Texas, Aug. 20. (AP)—Enacting the role of a modern Pied Piper, M. C. Counts, county agent, and J. M. Hill, San Antonio, field assistant in the United States bureau, biological survey, have decreed death to all rats in Tarrant county this fall.

BUTLER STILL IN G. O. P. FILE

Slam at Hoover Made As A Republican, He Says

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (AP)—Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler's opposition to prohibition and armament views of Herbert Hoover, as set forth in a letter to the New York Times today was expressed by the Columbia university president "as a Republican and as a member of the party organization."

The letter by the educator, long prominent in Republican party, caused a sensation in political circles. Dr. Butler disagreed with the Republican nominee's stand on the naval program of the United States and on the 18th amendment, repeal of which the Columbia president favors, and said he wished to disassociate himself from Mr. Hoover's stand on those issues.

When asked whether his letter was to be construed as meaning that he would support Governor Smith, Dr. Butler replied with this statement:

"My letter to the Times ought to make it perfectly plain that the position I have taken has been taken by me as a Republican and as a member of the party organization."

Leaders Silent

Miss Sarah Butler, acting chairman of the Republican state committee, said her father would make no further comment.

Miss Butler said she had "no statement of any kind" to make on her father's position.

Numerous leaders of both parties declined to discuss the Butler letter. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Senator Joe T. Dobinson, Democratic vice presidential nominee, however, made brief comments.

The secretary, returning on the Leviathan from a European vacation said:

"I do not think Dr. Butler's statement will have any effect on the campaign."

Senator Robinson said he was "very glad" to read the educator's letter and "to know that he is dissatisfied with some aspects of political questions presented by Mr. Hoover."

Road Manager Names Cause of Wage Dispute

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 20. (AP)—General Manager Flynn of the Burlington lines west, has returned to Chicago to discuss what he refers to as "the fly in the ointment" in the wage controversy involving western railroads. He is ice chairman of a committee of eight railroad executives dealing with brotherhoods in the dispute.

The question holding up settlement, Flynn explained, is a rule which prohibits doubleheading of trains of more than 40 cars.

Road to Romance Leads Chicago Pair to Jail

CHICAGO, Aug. 20. (US)—Love's air castles crumbled here today for 15-year-old Agnes Rogers, when George Schaffer, her youthful sweetheart, was arrested on a charge of stealing an automobile.

The couple had been touring the high road to romance for several days, sleeping in parks and vacant houses.

Police picked the pair up after the machine crashed into a tree.

William De Mille is coming home, affiliating himself again with the Paramount Famous Lasky corporation. The announcement was made by Jesse L. Lasky, first vice president in charge of production.

The pioneer producer and director will return to Paramount to associate himself with Roy J. Pomeroy, director of sound effects, in the development of audible motion pictures in the Hollywood studios. For the past two and a half years De Mille has been connected with the Cecil B. De Mille company, having left Paramount to join his brother's organization.

"William De Mille comes back to us with a remarkable background, one which makes him invaluable in furthering sound pictures," said Mr. Lasky in his announcement. "For 13 years he and the stage were kin, so to speak. He is a dramatist as well as a producer of note and his name means much to the literary world. De Mille's stage plays, "Strongheart," "The Warrens of Virginia," "The Woman" and others, have made stage history."

BURK TO HEAR ALLRED SPEAK

Judicial Candidate Opens Campaign Tonight

Ben P. Allred, district attorney, and candidate to succeed Judge W. W. Cook as magistrate of the 78th district court, will open his final speaking campaign at Burkburnett Tuesday night at 8 o'clock, he announced Monday.

The candidate will speak on the streets of the town, near the courthouse, according to announcement.

Mr. Allred announced that he wished to invite either Judge Cook, or his son-in-law, Roy J. Daniel, to meet with him at that time in a discussion of the "issues of the campaign." James V. Allred, brother of the candidate, will also speak.

Mr. Allred said he plans to speak Wednesday night here at Bellevue park, and Thursday night at Electra, winding up the campaign in a speech at Iowa park Friday night.

'Brain Contests' For Athletes Suggested

NEW YORK, Aug. 20.—Intercollegiate "brain contests" by groups of colleges and universities throughout the United States are suggested by Dean Carl E. Seashore of the University of Iowa, as a means of encouraging students of more than ordinary ability and giving them recognition similar to members of the college athletic teams.

In the current issue of School and Society, Dean Seashore presents a "series of principles," and visualizes intercollegiate academic competition throughout the country. At present Yale and Harvard are the only schools in the country holding these contests. Dean Seashore suggests that places on "teams" should count as part of the student's school record.

Life Guards Unable To Swim, Probe Reveals

NEW YORK, Aug. 20. (UP)—Investigators of the municipal civil service commission disclosed today that city beaches employ 15 life guards who cannot swim. The 15 bronze-skinned young men who were admired by feminine bathers had been appointed to the service without taking required tests, it was disclosed. Not one of them would go into water deeper than his shoulders.

Wife's Bigamy Charge Is Countered By Her Hubby

Charges of bigamy filed against a negro man here may have to be transferred to his wife if the negro is able to prove charges he has made counter to those made by the woman, it was revealed Monday.

The woman who filed the charges claimed that her husband had married her without obtaining a divorce from a former wife. The man countered with charges that the woman had married a man from whom she had not been divorced prior to the time she married him.

Meanwhile charges have been filed against the man pending further investigation into the conflicting claims.

MILK SUPPLY IS MAINTAINED

Cheese Plant Receipts Total 20,000 Pounds Sunday

The supply of milk brought to the Kraft Cheese company plant here in the past week has held up remarkably well, it was announced Sunday by C. L. Teissler, manager.

"Due to the hot weather, the pests in the fields and the flies, the cows usually do not produce as much milk," Mr. Teissler explained. "Like human beings, they don't care for as much food as they would in cooler weather.

"Recently, I have seen cows above water.

"When these conditions are considered, I consider it notable that we received more than 20,000 pounds of milk Sunday, and also that the supply of milk is continuing well for this time of the year.

"This input of milk also is an indication that the farmers within a radious of 25 miles are realizing more and more as time goes on that there is a definite and strong value to milk selling.

"The farmers are taking more interest in dairying. Many are replacing their cows with better ones or adding one or two to those they already have. They find they are able to take care of a few more cows with practically no more overhead expense, and that they receive considerably more income.

"We are pleased with conditions, and look for an excellant fall."

NICHOLSON WILL SUPPORT TICKET ALL WAY THROUGH

To the Democrats of Wichita county:

I am a candidate for a second term as county judge of Wichita county.

I am a Democrat and will support the nominees of my party from the presidency down to the precinct officers. I have never bolted the Democratic ticket in my life and when the time comes when I can't support the nominees I will not be a candidate on the Democratic ticket. I will be and have been consistent and honest with my party.

Will my opponent, Mr. John P. Marrs, be frank enough with the voters of this county to tell them whether or not he bolted the ticket in 1924, and made speeches against the ticket, and if he will support the Democratic nominees at the general election this year?

It has been rumored that both Mr. Marrs and myself have been dodging the issues, telling some of the voters that we would vote for one party and others that we would vote for the other. A frank statement from both of us will give the people the facts. I have given mine and ask him to answer the above questions.

I ask the voters for their support on my record as a Democrat and on my record during the one term I have served as county judge. I feel that my service and experience during the one term fits me all the more for beneficial service during a second term.

Respectfully,

E. W. NICHOLSON

$30,000 Permit Granted for Work On Perkins-Timberlake Property

A $30,000 building alteration permit was taken out Monday for Perkins-Timberlake, owners of the business property at 922-926 Indiana which was formerly occupied by a drug store, barber shop and furniture company.

The permit, which was taken out by L. C. Green for Taylor Brothers, contractors, is effective at once.

A basement of 50x150 feet will be run under the building, and the building will be raised to two floors throughout. A new front of the arcade type will be installed and it will contain what is known as five "islands" or show windows with walking space completely around them.

A long time lease is reported to have been given on the property to Isaac, Silvers and Brothers company, Inc., of New York.

Work will start at once and probably will be completed in about 90 days.

Kiwanis Club Invited to Exhibit Pigs at Iowa Park's Fall Fair

The Kiwanis club members were invited to exhibit their pigs at the Iowa Park fair in October by C. C. Hudson at the weekly luncheon of the club at the Kemp hotel Monday noon.

Dr. F. R. Collard, president, announced that the Kiwanis shower for children of the city would be used at Lee and Second streets the first three evenings of this week and at the corner of Virginia and Jalonic streets Thursday, Friday and Saturday, from 6 to 7 o'clock each afternoon.

Explaining that the proposed $280,000 bond issue on which a vote is called for August 28 will not be a new debt but the lowering of interest on an old debt, Walter D. Cline urged members to support the measure. The bond issue, he declared, would go a long way toward putting the city on a cash basis.

Miss Sylvia Smith thanked the club for the scholarship to the Wichita Falls Junior college and played two numbers on the piano.

Charles Chenault, Bailey Cantrell and Kirby Cawthon were introduced as new members by Rex Watland.
