Congress, Clinton act against Castro

■ White House accepts sanctions against Cuba that will allow Americans to sue foreign investors who make use of property in Cuba confiscated during Castro's rule.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Rushing to punish Cuba, Congress and President Clinton agreed Wednesday on new sanctions that would bridle foreign investment with the goal of removing Fidel Castro.

"Farewell Fidel. That's the message of this bill," said Senate Foreign Relations Committee chairman Jesse Helms, R-N.C., the legislation's Senate sponsor.

The White House, seeking to avoid a veto, accepted controversial language in the sanctions bill that will allow American citizens to sue foreign investors who make use of property in Cuba confiscated during the 3 1/2 decades of Castro's rule.

It also denies entry into the United States to anyone who traffics in confiscated property and codifies into law all previous executive orders on America's 34-year-old embargo on Cuba.

"This is going to have a tremendous impact on Fidel Castro and his ability to stay in power," said Rep. Dan Burton, R-Ind., the House sponsor of the legislation.

After agreement was reached with the White House, House and Senate negotiators quickly approved the "Libertad" (Liberty) bill. It is expected to go to the House and Senate floors by early next week for certain decisive approval.

The White House threatened to veto the bill last fall when it passed both chambers because of the Royal split

Princess Diana agrees to divorce Prince Charles, Wednesday, saying she would keep her title as Princess of Wales, but Buckingham Palace claims that issue hasn't been settled. The decision also means Diana will never become Queen of England.

Divorce to end Charles', Di's stormy marriage

LONDON (AP) — Ending weeks of speculation, Princess Diana agreed Wednesday to a divorce with Prince Charles — but even that could not go smoothly.

A chasm opened up when the two sides discussed the details — with Diana saying she would keep her title as Princess of Wales and Buckingham Palace claiming the issue had not been settled.

The surprise announcement brings an end to a stormy marriage that began with a fairy-tale wedding ceremony in 1981 and collapsed 11 years later after both sought solace in affairs.

The decision also means Diana will never become Queen of England.

No financial settlement for Diana was announced, and there was no word about whether she had won the role she wanted as an informal goodwill ambassador for Britain.

The public airing of Charles and Diana's dirty laundry created a spectacle that led some to question whether Britain's royal family was still an asset to the country.

Queen Elizabeth II herself was visibly pained by the constant stream of public recriminations and revelations about her son's tortured marriage.

Diana issued a statement Wednesday saying she had agreed to a divorce, announcing unequivocally that "The Princess of Wales will retain the title and be known as Diana Princess of Wales."

"The princess will continue to be involved in all decisions relating to the children and will remain at Kensington Palace with offices in St. James's Palace."

Buckingham Palace balked, confirming that the estranged couple had met earlier Wednesday at Charles' office — but said no terms had been set.

Board may be able to seek alternatives if cluster committee can't reach decision

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

If a recent rupture of the school district's desegregation advisory committee proves terminal the school board could have leeway to seek alternatives to the current system of desegregation, according to Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr.

The cluster committee is composed of chairman Steve Buck, 10 representatives appointed by the Midland Independent School District's board of trustees, and 10 members appointed by the original interveners in a 1976 federal lawsuit that led to the desegregation of Midland schools.

The cluster committee is charged with researching alternative methods of desegregation to the current federally imposed cluster system of schools.

Most of the board-appointed members walked out of a meeting Feb. 26, leaving the intervener-appointed members unable to form a quorum and continue, according to committee members.

At a Tuesday MISD board meeting, representatives of this committee asked school officials about the possibilities that exist in the aftermath of last week's walkout.

Alma Marshall, one of the original interveners and a member of the cluster committee, addressed the board and expressed her dismay at the actions of the board's appointees.

"I am thoroughly amazed," Ms. Marshall said. "I have seen a lack of concept of majority rules.

"I have been outvoted every day of my life — that's the way it goes. That's democracy in action ... If you get outvoted, you don't just pick up your marbles and go home," she said.

She asked the board what would happen if the committee could not reach an agreement before the April 1 deadline. Specifically, she asked if the board would then be free to explore alternatives in the absence of the cluster committee.

"As far as I know, there is nothing in the (Agreed Judgment) that would prevent the board from taking some action

Study to explore cost of renovating, building for San Jacinto junior high

By Myra Lee Salcedo
Staff Writer

Major changes are in store for San Jacinto Junior High School. Midland's smallest public junior high school needs more students, and possibly, more room to grow.

A feasibility study is under way to explore the cost-effectiveness of renovating the junior high or building a new one. Building it new on a larger site would eliminate several problems, according to Midland Independent School District administrators.

For example, Abell Junior High School is situated on 30 acres with four sports fields. San Jacinto is located on eight acres with one sports field and is landlocked, according to Wilson Heidelberg, MISD executive director of auxiliary services.

"With only one sports field, it makes it difficult to schedule boys and girls sports.

"If the assumption is that it is not feasible to renovate San Jacinto, then I would recommend to the board that it be built on another site," Heidelberg said at Tuesday's board meeting. "It would take a study to decide where."

Citizen police give 200 tickets to violators of handicap parking

By Joe Gaines
Staff Writer

Citizen's Police Academy alumni, members of Volunteer Handicap Enforcement, have given 200 tickets since August to motorists who illegally park in handicap spaces.

The program, which started after handicapped citizens voiced concern about the problem, has had an effect, police Sgt. Brian Bogart said.

"When you have volunteers spending 35-40 hours a week patrolling spaces, it tells people they're going to get caught if they park in a space illegally."

Volunteers and the police are still working out the program's kinks. Some spaces still aren't up to code — with proper signs and parking lines — even though businesses were asked to comply, and some vehicles use the wrong type of handicap identification.

Volunteers hope to solve the problems by issuing warnings, distributing photographs of vehicles in violation and having application forms for proper handicap identification.

"We don't want to fine (a handicapped motorist) just because they have the wrong identification, we just want

BILL: Congress, Clinton approve Cuba sanctions lawsuit provision. But Clinton was reluctant this time to stand in the way of passage after Cuba's downing over the weekend of two American planes, presumably killing four Cuban-Americans.

(From 1A)

In a compromise, the president was given authority to waive the litigation right, but for no more than six months at a time, when the national interest is involved.

"The president, in light of the incident Saturday, believes tightening the embargo on Cuba is a necessary step now, both to deal with this incident and promote our overall goal of democratic change in Cuba," White House press secretary Mike McCurry said.

The lawsuit provision and the entry ban are certain to draw fire from other Western countries that trade with Cuba and have long rejected participating in the U.S. embargo. Canada and other countries have voiced displeasure over the idea of unilateral U.S. action restricting their rights to invest in Cuba. Opponents in Congress say the lawsuit provision also could cause a serious logjam in U.S. courts.

Backers of the bill, which has strong congressional support, insist it could provide the pressure finally to bring down the Castro government. Rep. Benjamin Gilman, R-N.Y., chairman of the House International Relations Committee, contended it would "bring an early end to the Castro regime by cutting off capital."

"We are in the very last stages of this confrontation," said Rep. Robert Torricelli, D-N.J. He called for the "purest, hardest and most determined form" of legislation.

Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., ranking Democrat on the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, said he will vote against the bill because it would worsen living conditions for the Cuban people, "alienate our allies and tie the administration's foreign policy hands."

Supporters said the interests of other countries are secondary to driving Castro from power. "The United States cannot continue placing American lives at the hands of foreign interests," said Rep. Ileana Ros-Lehtinen, R-Fla., a Cuban-American representing Miami. "The United States must stop hiding behind international public opinion and stop wavering on its foreign policy."

The bill urges the president to seek an international embargo against the Castro government and authorizes him to assist the democratic movement there.

It bars financial aid by U.S. agencies for any transaction involving U.S. property confiscated by the Cuban government and codifies into law all existing executive orders on the trade embargo to ensure they may not be lifted before a transition government is in place.

It also links U.S. aid to the former Soviet states to their assistance to Cuba and tightens the ban on purchase of sugar products of Cuban origin.

In another development Wednesday, U.S. officials agreed on action to avert the possibility of another incident off Cuba's coast next weekend. Exile leaders plan to send two planes and a flotilla of boats to the area where the two Cessnas were downed last Saturday.

Officials said the Coast Guard will try to mark the area where the planes went down, to minimize the possibility that the group will stray into Cuban territory and possibly provoke another incident.

The Clinton administration maintains the planes were shot down in international airspace. Cuba says they were within its territorial limits.

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for cloudy skies with snow or sleet likely. Forecasters with the National Weather Service expect a 60 percent chance of precipatation with an accumulation of 1 to 2 inches of snow by noon.

The high will be in the mid- to upper 30s. Winds are to be from the east to southeast at 10-20 mph, according to the National Weather Service.

Tonight forecasters expect decreasing cloudiness with a low near 20.

Friday should be mostly sunny and warmer with a high near 50.

After an overnight low of 28, Wednesday's high reached 54, compared to the record high for that date of 87 set in 1940. The record low was 14 set in 1962.

STATE

An arctic air mass continued to slide into the state's northern half Wednesday, exactly one week after most of the state was baking under a record heat wave.

Light rain, with a sprinkle of sleet and snow, moved into the state in West Texas as most of the northern tier of the state reported temperatures in the 40s and dropping Wednesday afternoon. Cloudy skies and gusty winds made it seem even colder.

Winter weather and storm advisories were in effect for most of North and West Texas for Wednesday night and today.

North Texas temperatures weren't expected to surpass 40 today as the region that was ravaged by grass fires just days ago braced for snow, sleet and freezing rain.

Snow in West Texas is expected today in the Guadalupe Mountains and eastward, though the southern part of the region could see temperatures in the 60s.

Temperatures in South Texas were markedly cooler Wednesday. Areas that saw 90s Tuesday saw nothing more than 70s Wednesday as the season's latest cold front pushed into Mexico.

Readings in the southern part of the state should go no lower than the 40s except for the Hill Country, which could see some 30s. Light rains are expected across the region.

NATION

Snow fell over the Pacific Northwest and the Great Lakes Wednesday while cold and rain swept the Southeast and low-temperature records were set in Montana, Wyoming and Nevada.

The heaviest snowfall was over Oregon's southern Willamette Valley. Up to 10 inches fell in the Eugene area where several thousand people lost electricity.

Sleet fell along the northern California coast, a foot of snow fell at Mount Shasta and 18 inches fell at Trinity. One to three inches of snow fell at elevations as low as 700 feet above sea level north of Redding.

Strong winds were howling along the western slopes of the Washington Cascades. Gusts reached 89 mph at Crystal Mountain, and winds blew down trees in Clark County, Washington.

A strong cold front moved across the Southeast, spreading a band of heavy rain and strong thunderstorms from the central Gulf Coast into the Carolinas.

There were scattered reports of downed trees and power lines. Five mobile homes were lifted off their foundations by strong winds and destroyed near Roberta, Ga. Heavy rain caused flooding in areas from the lower Great Lakes through the southern Appalachians.

Behind the front, colder air spread through the Plains and the Mississippi Valley. Rain was mixing with sleet over the southern Plains, and heavy snow was falling over the northern and central Great Lakes.

Lake-effect snow squalls were reported from northern Ohio into western New York and Pennsylvania.

Record lows included 19 below at Helena and 17 below at Great Falls in Montana and 20 below in Casper, Wyo. The nation's hot spot was 83 degrees at Miami. The coldest spot was 34 below, at West Yellowstone, Mont.

SPLIT: Charles, Di to end stormy marriage

(From 1A)

"At this meeting details of the divorce settlement and the princess's future role were not discussed," a statement said.

In fact, the palace implied the princess had arranged yet another surprise for her mother-in-law, Queen Elizabeth II. "The queen was most interested to hear that the Princess of Wales had agreed to the divorce," the palace said.

One thing Diana would relinquish was the "Her Royal Highness" address, her spokeswoman Jane Atkinson told the Associated Press.

A communications breakdown between Charles and Diana is nothing new.

Diana told television viewers in November that soon after she was married, the royal family's stony silence in the face of her complaints about the pressures of her new job compounded her depression and drove her into a bout with bulimia.

"Maybe I was the first person ever to be in this family who ever had a depression or was openly tearful," she said. "And obviously that was daunting, because if you've never seen it before, how do you support it?"

It got so bad that she described Charles' entourage as "the enemy."

It was the extraordinary television interview — arranged without palace approval — that apparently prompted the queen to say Dec. 20 that she wished for their speedy divorce.

Diana had confessed to adultery in the interview, echoing an earlier televised confession by Charles.

The queen has reportedly has been outraged at Diana's tendency to go to the press first, without consulting the palace. But Diana's lawyer, Anthony Julius, saw nothing wrong with Diana's decision to call reporters first.

"It was entirely appropriate that the decision should have been communicated in that way," he told the British Broadcasting Corp.

Aside from the title and her residence, Diana will be negotiating a financial settlement and her future role.

But the most sensitive issue may their children: Prince William, 13 and second in line to the throne, and Prince Harry, 11.

The boys were Diana's "prime concern," Atkinson told reporters.

If Charles and Diana were a normal British couple, she would be able to take a continued central role in their upbringing for granted.

But the royal family does not trifle with raising its future kings — the last king to get a divorce, King George I in 1694, was advised that constitutionally, he was primarily responsible for the upbringing of any heirs. That still holds.

Diana has implicitly criticized the royal family for not being accessible enough to its subjects, and has suggested that Charles might not make a suitable king. Such talk might exacerbate negotiations over the children's future.

One constitutional historian predicted that Diana would end up on the losing end of any such talks.

"She will never be Queen Mother," David Starkey told Channel Four Television News. "Twenty or 30 years down the line everyone will have forgotten about Diana. She will have joined the list of clapped-out celebrities living in California."

Julius, Diana's lawyer, said he could not speculate on how long negotiations would take. "What will happen now is that there'll be discussions between lawyers and a time scale will be addressed," he said.

If Charles and Diana agree on these issues, the legal proceedings probably will be quick and brief. Formally separated in December 1992 after 11 years of marriage, they have already exceeded the two-year separation minimum for an uncontested divorce.

Without her consent, Charles would have had to wait two more years to be permitted a unilateral divorce.

Charles has said he has no intention of remarrying. But Camilla Parker Bowles, the woman with whom Charles had an affair, divorced her husband last year.

The monarch is temporal head of the Church of England, which does not accept remarriage of divorced people in church.

Whatever happens now, London commuters heading home said they would be relieved to see the end of it.

"'Bout time, too," said Roger Parkyn, a London advertising man. "It's been such a protracted business. You get the impression they're trying to squeeze all the publicity they can out of it."

COST: MISD looks into changes for junior high high in terms of enrollment," said MISD administrator Larry Lusby.

(From 1A)

Because there is no new housing development near the school, Lusby said, "our projections indicate San Jacinto will decline in enrollment as other schools increase. We also need to provide a better balance ethnically.

"With the current school boundaries, San Jacinto doesn't have any growth potential," Lusby said. "And now it is a majority minority (the majority of the school population consists of students of races that are a minority in Midland) school and San Jacinto is the only Midland junior high in that category."

MISD administrators have proposed a plan to zone undeveloped land in north Midland — including land that will be developed as Desert Shores (owned by the Montana Cree Indians) — for San Jacinto.

On Tuesday night school board trustees unanimously tabled a motion to set the new boundaries for the junior high.

San Jacinto Principal Larry Winget questioned setting the boundaries, then deciding to rebuild the junior high at a different site, and redrawing the boundary lines again.

MISD Superintendent Joseph Baressi Jr. said it was highly likely the undeveloped section will be in the San Jacinto attendance zone. "We could modify it if we need to," he said.

Baressi said that students already living in the area — now zoned for Goddard Junior High School — could continue going to Goddard. "This (the new boundary) would only effect students moving into the area in the new developments, if the boundary is approved," Baressi said.

Heidelberg said preliminary development plans for Desert Shores included a site for an elementary school. He said developments commonly include public school sites in plans. "It's all very preliminary with no commitments of any kind," Heidelberg said.

At Tuesday's meeting, trustee Adela Marmolejo expressed concern that the next elementary school should be built in south or east Midland. "The south side has been promised a school. I hope we get it before the Indians get it," she said.

MISD trustees are set to hear a report on the feasibility study on Tuesday. The next board meeting is set for Tuesday in order not to conflict with spring break.

CLUSTER: Board could come up with alternatives

if the committee is unable to reach an agreement," Baressi said.

Ms. Marshall also asked the board for all the information that has been given to board-appointed members of the committee, and asked for all information on the Agreed Judgment available from the federal government.

Ms. Marshall asked if the board had submitted a plan to the subcommittee that has been formed by the board-appointed members.

Baressi said that he had been asked by subcommittee members for some information developed by a previous committee — on which Ms. Marshall had served — but that the information did not constitute a plan and was a matter of open records for anyone who wanted it.

Ms. Marshall and other representatives voiced displeasure with school officials dealing directly with a subcommittee that has been formed without a vote from the entire committee.

Dan Leonard, a member of that group, said that all members of the committee were aware of the subcommittee's formation, since it was discussed in their presence and no opposition was voiced.

"I think I asked him for that document before we ever broke off into subcommittee," Leonard said.

The committee is scheduled to meet again today.

them to come into compliance," Bogart said.

Initially, three-fourths of the city's handicap parking was not up to code Bogart said. Businesses with spaces that weren't up to code were sent letters asking that they comply.

"The city can't force businesses to comply, only the state and the American Disabilities Act can," Bogart said.

Members of Volunteer Handicap Enforcement receive three to four hours of classroom and field training on the law, Bogart said. Volunteers are licensed by the state secretary and receive a identification card from the city. Two officers must patrol together and they must wear a citizens patrol uniform. Volunteers check in with the police dispatcher when they come on duty, are given a patrol car with a phone and must check with the dispatcher when they go off duty.

Violators have 14 days to pay a $50 fine or contest the ticket. Julia Joplin with the district attorney's office said she has only seen 15 tickets go to trial.

The Volunteer Handicap Enforcement illustrates how citizens can get involved in policing the city and reducing crime. Its affect could be similar to what another program, Citizens On Patrol, has on the city's vandalism problem, police Sgt. David Garcia said.

Irish-British summit sets terms for talks

LONDON (AP) — Britain and Ireland set a date for Northern Ireland peace talks on Wednesday, and waited to see whether the IRA chooses to continue bombing or have its allies take seats at the negotiating table.

For 17 months, the Irish Republican Army had suspended its violent campaign to end British rule of Northern Ireland. The lull was shattered Feb. 9 when the IRA, fed up with the slow progress toward talks, called off the cease-fire and set off a bomb in east London, killing two people.

Prospects for peace seemed to collapse under the renewed violence, but in a dramatic turnaround Wednesday, Prime Minister John Major of Britain and Irish leader John Bruton announced in London that talks would begin June 10.

Sinn Fein, the IRA's political ally, cannot join the talks unless the guerrillas restore their truce, the two leaders insisted. But Britain dropped its demand that the IRA start disarming before Sinn Fein is admitted to negotiations — a key issue that had held up the talks.

Sinn Fein leaders welcomed the long-sought setting of a date but were upset that the province would first hold elections to produce a negotiating team.

"I think that the first duty Sinn Fein has in all of this is to get clarity in determining whether the present package contains the dynamic to reestablish the peace process," said Martin McGuinness, the reputed former IRA commander who leads Sinn Fein's negotiating team.

David Ervine, leader of the Progressive Unionist Party, which is allied with an outlawed Protestant paramilitary group, saw possibilities. "This can work," Ervine said.

The elections, first proposed by a Protestant-based party gained symbolic significance after IRA supporters dismissed them as a delay tactic that proved Britain was not serious about negotiating.

IRA supporters have claimed that Major's adoption of the elections proposal was the straw that provoked the IRA's return to violence. Three people died in IRA bombings in London this month — one of them the bomber.

Bruton and Major insisted that Sinn Fein could not join the talks until the IRA reinstates its cease-fire.

"There is no place whatsoever for violence or the threat of violence in the peace process or in the negotiations," Major told Parliament.

"Those who advocate violence or do not dissociate themselves clearly from its use ... cannot expect others to go on sitting at the negotiating table with them," he said.

Saddam purges rivals, reports of bloodbath rife

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Saddam Hussein has killed two of his own grandchildren in his savage purge of two defectors and their supporters, Iraqi opposition groups claimed Wednesday.

Reports of a bloodbath persisted, with one opposition group saying many army officers in the northern city of Mosul were fleeing with their families for fear they, too, had been marked for death because of real or suspected links with the defectors, Saddam's sons-in-law.

There has been no independent confirmation of the opposition reports of a purge orchestrated by Saddam's sons Odai and Qusai. Diplomats in Baghdad reported the capital was quiet, although there were opposition reports of clashes in the city.

One report said the eldest son of Deputy Prime Minister Tariq Aziz, a longtime confidant of Saddam's, had been arrested.

If that is true, it could indicate the purge may be mushrooming out of control with Odai targeting his rivals as well as those deemed tainted by their connections to the high-ranking former defectors.

In public, Cubans follow official line, defend attack, privately less so

By James Anderson
Associated Press

HAVANA — On the streets of Havana on Wednesday, Cubans defended the missile attacks that downed two U.S. civilian aircraft. But in private, some voiced reservations, their hearts reaching out to four countrymen who perished.

Juan Diaz, an airport porter, sat on a sidewalk reading Granma, the official Communist Party newspaper.

"The Cuban people like the rest of the world know everything about what happened," Diaz said. He was convinced that the planes were first warned away from Cuban airspace on Saturday, then downed inside it.

Diaz had only contempt for Brothers to the Rescue, the Cuban exile group that flew the planes as part of its campaign to destabilize the government of President Fidel Castro.

"They are provoking us," he insisted, saying they were fighting a "counterrevolution."

Behind closed doors, however, some Cubans were more critical.

"It's hard. It's hard," said Juanito, a waiter who didn't want his full name used, fearing problems with authorities.

"They didn't need to shoot them down," he said. "They were Cubans, too."

The United States claims the airplanes were over international waters when the planes were shot down, and on Wednesday President Clinton and Congress agreed on new sanctions aimed at destabilizing Castro's government.

Apparently trying to win over skeptics like Juanito, more than 200 uniformed military cadets staged a noisy rally at the Jose Marti Military Technical Institute to support the downings and denounce what speakers called U.S. imperialism.

"Until victory always! To the victory of the fatherland!" the cadets shouted in unison. "Long live a free Cuba! Until death!"

After the rally, an institute official, who didn't give his name, told a foreign reporter that Cuba had no choice but to fire at the airplanes.

"It really was a situation that no country can tolerate," he said, citing other alleged incursions of aircraft from the United States.

But he added, "We do not believe that it is necessary to kill any civilian."

Despite the boisterous rally, most Cubans went about business as usual on a sunny, balmy day, taking uniformed children to school, lining up to buy shoes in a corner store, setting up wooden stands to sell used books of poetry and histories of the Cuban revolution.

Aging American and Soviet-built cars jockeyed for space with bicyclists along the city's boulevards. One taxi driver listened to a Florida-based radio station as he drove, turning up the volume for a song by the U.S. rock band, The Presidents of the United States of America.

There was no business-as-usual at Havana's airport, where dozens of worried U.S. residents jammed a ticket counter trying to find a way home.

On Tuesday, President Clinton canceled all direct flights between the two countries to protest the shooting — and left many visitors stranded.

"I don't know what I'm going to do," said Marta Duenas, of Tampa, Fla., whose charter to Miami was canceled. "I have no money."

Harried Cuban aviation officials tried to book passengers, free of charge, on regularly scheduled flights to such third-country destinations as Nassau in the Bahamas and Cancun, Mexico.

From there, however, some passengers would be on their own.

Maria Medina waited at the rear of the crowd, holding her passport and those of her two children, aged 2 and 11.

"I just want to go home," the Miami resident said. "I'm nervous here. Something is going to happen."

Airline officials said they didn't know how many Americans were stranded.

In the United States, some 2,000 Cuban citizens with charter tickets home were facing the same problems, said Jose Ponce, spokesman for the Cuban Interests Section in Washington.

"The only thing we can do is speed their visas ... and allow them to go through third countries," said Armando Amieva, Cuba's secretary in charge of economic and scientific affairs.

Fallout from nuclear testing protests hits wineries in France

VILLEFRANCHE-SUR-SAONE, France (AP) — Vintners, especially those in the Beaujolais heartland, are being hurt by a wine boycott spurred by French nuclear tests.

Exports of Beaujolais Nouveau dropped about 15 percent due to the boycotts, Michel Rougier, head of the Beaujolais wine growers association, said Wednesday.

The boycotts were most effective in Japan and northern Europe, where sales plummeted 50 percent, he said.

Wineries in Bordeaux, where France's most coveted and exported wine is cultivated, reported similar results.

Bordeaux wineries will lose at least $200 million as a result of the boycotts, the Bordeaux wine growers' association estimated.

Six underground nuclear blasts in French Polynesia from Sept. 5 through Jan. 27 spurred worldwide protests. In Australia, angry residents poured French wine into the streets.

Exports of Beaujolais Nouveau since the fall were down by about 15 percent or 910,000 gallons, compared to the same period in previous years. That translates into $11.6 million in lost sales for wine growers in the Beaujolais region around Villefranche.

Goulet warrants voters' approval

Several other political nominees will be chosen by Midland County voters when they go to the polls to cast ballots in the March 12 primary elections. In several instances, the winner of the primary will be the person to occupy the office because there will be no opposition in November. But in some of the races, an unopposed opposition party candidate will face the primary election nominee during the November general election.

Below are the Reporter-Telegram's recommendations on each of the contested races.

Republican Primary:

Commissioner, Precinct 1

Completing his first term as county commissioner of Precinct 1, Henry E. Goulet drew two opponents — oil company owner-operator Melvin "Mac" McEwen and retired teacher Orin W. Wade.

While both McEwen and Wade profess a deeply held desire to see the county Veterans Service Office reopened, Goulet correctly points out that he was the sole vote in favor of keeping the veterans office open when the commission voted to close it because of budget considerations. Goulet also says that if re-elected, he will fight to reopen the office as well as to work for the benefit of county retirees.

While we have favored abolishing the office if indeed there was duplication of services and the services that veterans need could be obtained elsewhere at a saving to taxpayers, there seems to be no reason why this subject should be an issue in this race. All candidates agree on it.

While either McEwen or Wade would bring sound guidance to the Precinct 1 slot, we were pleasantly surprised by Goulet during his first term. He has performed capably and has shown sound judgment. We urge Republican voters in Precinct 1 to cast their ballots for Henry E. Goulet for county commissioner.

Justice of the peace, Precinct 4

Because of a lawsuit that necessitated election of justices of the peace and constables in all Midland County precincts, there are several candidates for those offices in all precincts, but only one contested race appears on the Republican ballot. That's in Precinct 4 where the justice of the peace seat is being sought by John Miller, George D. Zimmerman, Linda Collins, Norma Louise Davis and Reuben Ramirez.

The background and training of each of these individuals varies extensively, but the outstanding candidate is Miller, who formerly was employed as police chief for Midland Independent School District (MISD). In that capacity, Miller's experience and training make him well-suited to step into the position of justice of the peace. We encourage voters in Precinct 4 to cast their ballots for John E. Miller for justice of the peace.

Constable, Precinct 4

There is really no need for a constable in each of Midland County's four precincts. On the Republican ticket, former Department of Public Safety Major E.K. Browning is running for the nomination and has expressed strong support for efforts to abolish the constable's office and have it merged with the Midland County Sheriff's Department. County Judge Jeff Norwood is asking Rep. Tom Craddick to propose a bill that, if approved by constitutional amendment, would abolish these constable positions.

That makes sense, even though it may necessitate the hiring of additional deputies (potentially those now serving in the constable's office).

We encourage voters in Precinct 4 to cast their ballots for E.K. Browning.

Democratic Primary:

Justice of the peace, Precinct 3

Two men are seeking the nomination as justice of the peace in Precinct 3, Hilario "Lon" Dominguez, an assistant fire marshal with the Midland Fire Department, and Michael Wayne Wallace, a counselor's clerk at Midland Freshman High School.

Although both men are obviously interested in serving the community, Dominguez by virtue of his work in the fire marshal's office is a better choice. Winner of this race will face Keith R. Jobe, the sole Republican running, in November.

We urge voters to cast their ballots for Hilario "Lon" Dominguez.

TODAY IN HISTORY

Today is Thursday, Feb. 29, the 60th day of 1996. There are 306 days left in the year. This is Leap Day.

Today's highlight in history:

Two hundred years ago, President Washington proclaimed Jay's Treaty, which settled some outstanding differences with Great Britain, in effect.

On this date:

In 1504, Christopher Columbus, stranded in Jamaica during his fourth voyage to the West, used a correctly predicted lunar eclipse to frighten hostile natives into providing food for his crew.

In 1792, composer Gioacchino Antonio Rossini was born in Pesaro, Italy.

GEORGE WILL

Buchanan may be too much for S.C.

WASHINGTON — American politics sometimes seems to be a tale told by someone with a terrific sense of humor. Just now it is delicious that Republicans who are alarmed by hurricane Buchanan are hoping for balmy political weather in Saturday's primary in the state of John C. Calhoun and secession — turbulent South Carolina.

Will

That state was important to the genesis of Pat Buchanan's candidacy because Roger Milliken, the textile manufacturer from Spartanburg, is an important financial resource for the Buchanan campaign, as for other protectionist agitations. But the state is a refutation of protectionism.

Since 1975, the number of South Carolinians employed in the textile industry has declined from 137,500 to 88,700, because of technological modernization and foreign competition. But total employment in the state is at a record peak, the unemployment rate (5.4 percent) is below the national rate (5.6 percent), and in parts of the state, such as around Spartanburg, you have to hide in a barn to avoid getting a job (one paying more than most textile jobs pay) making BMWs or other products financed by influxes of foreign capital attracted by the state's business climate.

Another reason Buchanan might not seduce South Carolina is that he is perhaps a bit too scintillating. From congressman Preston Brooks (who used a heavy cane to beat a colleague unconscious in the House of Representatives in 1856) to Pitchfork Ben Tillman (send me to Washington, he said, so I can poke President Cleveland, "an old bag of beef," with a pitchfork "in his old fat ribs") to Strom Thurmond (who at age 6 in 1909 shook hands with Tillman, who had made Strom's father a U.S. attorney even though, or perhaps because, the father had killed a man in an argument about Tillman's politics), South Carolina has had its fair share of turbulence. Perhaps it has had its fill.

Buchanan's success has opened the sluice gates of interpretation, much of it focusing on his "anger" and that of his followers. True, he revels in the title of Angriest White Male, and they relish scandalizing the forces of respectability in the normally sedate Republican parlor. But reveling and relishing are pleasures. He is having the time of his life, and his followers seem to be having fun, which suggests that an ingredient in his success is something far more disruptive than anger. That something is boredom.

Noting that boredom is among the most insistent and universal forces shaping human behavior, Robert Nisbet, the sociologist, notes that the cures of boredom include war, murder, revolution, pornography, suicide, alcohol and narcotics. And, he might have added, demagoguery.

Buchanan banishes boredom by the vehemence with which he insists that the times are terrible. They are, he says, because wages (actually, the median wage, adjusted for inflation) have declined slightly since 1973.

Never mind that, as Amity Shlaes of The Wall Street Journal's editorial board, writing in Commentary, notes, current measurements of inflation substantially overstate it. Furthermore, "wage" is an increasingly inadequate measure of compensation because such non-wage compensations as benefits and government transfer payments have risen to 18 percent of the average employee's compensation, which is one reason (another is the underground economy) why Americans in the bottom fifth of income earners spend almost twice the income they officially report. Furthermore, the nation's per capita GDP continues to rise steadily. Furthermore, a study comparing the income and consumption patterns of baby boomers in 1989 with that of their parents indicated that the younger group had a real per capita income 55 percent higher than that of their parents at the same age.

Never mind. Here is a paradox of contemporary politics. The more successful a society becomes, the more bored it becomes, and the more susceptible it becomes to the stimulus of politicians' claiming that it is really becoming less successful.

Pitchfork Buchanan, with his entertaining rhetoric about leading peasants armed with pitchforks in a rising against the decline of everything, is an anodyne to the tedium of America's continuing success. But don't try to tell him the whole theory of this, because the mere mention of evolution makes him cross.

George Will's column is distributed by Washington Post Writers Group.

Corporate downsizing enters major league

The name of the game in this country now is "downsizing." CEOs play it by reducing their work staffs, voting themselves a million-dollar bonus and having stockbrokers give them a ticker-tape parade down Wall Street.

Buchwald

What started as a small hobby in the executive-suites dining room has now become a major industry, with companies vying with each other as to how many people they can lay off. What you're hearing more and more from the brass upstairs is, "We had to burn down the company to save it."

There is even talk that baseball owners, hit by high salaries and disappointing second-quarter hot-dog sales, are thinking of downsizing their teams.

At a recent meeting of the owners, Goldrick said, "Why can't we field eight players instead of nine?"

Popsicle said, "How will it work?"

"We could have the second baseman also fill in at shortstop. Many times my second baseman has absolutely nothing to do."

Pizza said, "I think we could play the game with seven players. We'll eliminate the center and left fielder, and the right fielder can cover everything in back."

Drumbeat said, "Suppose your center fielder is your best hitter?"

"Then you leave him in and pink-slip the third baseman."

Meatball said, "Why don't we eliminate the outfield completely and have first and third cover it? Or we could offer the catchers a buyout and install a computer in their place."

"Suppose they squawk?"

"We'll tell them if they won't go quietly, we're going to move home plate to Hong Kong and play all our games overseas."

"What can we do to make them feel less essential?"

"We'll offer to retrain them as TV repairmen."

"I like that idea," said Pizza. "And so will my stockholders. Fielding nine men on a team is a waste of money, and we're not keeping up with the times. We can't compete with the Japanese and Mexican teams if we don't cut costs."

"Will the fans be upset if we cut the teams down?"

"They will get used to it if we lower the price of Cracker Jacks."

It is duty of county to maintain cemetery

Midland County was first deeded a few acres of land for Fairview Cemetery. The county later bought additional acres to meet the need for burial plots. However, the problem of maintaining a large cemetery is an important and ever-present one.

It is my understanding that the maintenance of Fairview Cemetery is the obligation of the county government. I urge the county commissioners and county judge to meet this serious obligation.

There is a great deal of history buried on that old hill. Early settlers who built this county and city are there. Veterans who gave their lives in several wars for our freedom are at rest there. People of diverse ethnic, religious, political and economic groups are buried in that cemetery. Although we all share some responsibility to maintain Fairview Cemetery, the county government holds legal title to that responsibility.

The county officials should study this maintenance problem and commit county funds to its solution. People should be able to bury their dead with the assurance that the cemetery will be cared for into the distant future. The county must maintain Fairview Cemetery.

Americans should reject Dole at polls

Before we vote in our Republican primary, let's consider the record of Sen. Bob Dole.

He was the leader in getting the infamous Genocide Convention Treaty ratified in the U.S. Senate on a Sunday. As far as I can tell that international treaty has nothing to do with physical genocide, but concerns ideological genocide. It is conceivable for a Christian missionary to be charged with the crime of genocide for converting a group of people, forced to stand before the International Court of Justice at The Hague and face the death penalty if found guilty. As with all international treaties, this one supercedes our U.S. constitutional rights.

During debate of the infamous crime bill, which infringes on constitutional rights and wastes a lot of tax dollars, he threw up his hands and conceded defeat to the socialist promoters, leaving the courageous Sen. Orin Hatch to oppose it.

I can't believe this could be the right leadership for the United States of America, and I urge every voter to reject Sen. Dole in this presidential primary election.

Reeves has proven herself in position

Kathy Hodge Reeves, our present tax assessor/collector, has proven to be experienced, dedicated, trustworthy and responsible, as endorsed and predicted by her predecessor in 1992. The citizens of this community elected Reeves based on those qualifications. We have witnessed her dedication through the changes and enhancements in the tax office. As a citizen, new small business owner and taxpayer of Midland, I commend Reeves for her diligent efforts to better serve Midland County. I encourage the voters of Midland to join me in keeping Reeves as our tax assessor/collector.

Planned lake would hurt natural resource

In reference to George Ochsner's letter of Feb. 21 concerning the planned Desert Shores 64-acre lake, I must emphatically agree. As a resident of Melody Acres who must depend solely on well water, I possibly would be directly affected by the lake. I also am concerned about humanity's blatant and unnecessary overuse of one of our most valuable resources (and I don't mean oil and gas). A 64-acre lake supplied by groundwater is as naturally occurring in West Texas as palm trees in Alaska.

Some "back of the envelope" calculations indicate that a 64-acre lake will lose an average of 175,000 gallons per day through evaporation, even after being recharged by our meager annual rainfall of 14 inches. This doesn't even include the inevitable loss from leakage into the ground, which brings up an even greater concern. Through time, the lake's water will become saltier and harder because of the constant evaporation. This eventual "salt brine" will be seep downward into the "fresh water" supplies of the Desert Shores' neighbors.

Don't get me wrong, I'm all for the intelligent development and growth of Midland, but not at the expense of a natural resource for purely aesthetic purposes.

Our policy on letters

The Reporter-Telegram recognizes the "Letters to the Editor" format as an important forum for citizen opinion and encourages participation of all readers. To that end, we have set as few rules as possible. However, we must have some, and they are:

- Letters must be signed and include a street address and daytime phone number for verification. Letters not including this information will not be considered for publication.
- They should be no more than 350 words in length. While some lengthy letters are published, we reserve the right to edit when necessary due to space limitations. The briefer the letter, the better its chance of publication.
- Only one letter per month per writer can be published.
- Letters will be edited for length, taste and legal reasons and are accepted only on that basis. Letters which are difficult to reduce in length will be returned to the writer to be edited before being re-submitted.
- We do not publish 'open' letters, copies of letters sent to others or multiple signatures.

Because we cannot research and verify all information in letters, by publishing them we neither imply nor guarantee the accuracy of information stated by writers.

Letters should be sent to: The Editor, Midland Reporter-Telegram, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, TX 79702.

Fear grips Christian village amid Islamic insurgency

AZBIT EL-IQBAT, Egypt (AP) — Fear grips this Christian village.

It is the fear that keeps the school closed and the farmers off their verdant fields. It is the fear that stops villagers from walking the dirt roads at night and makes Christians bolt their windows and doors.

It is the fear that burst forth a few days ago when three Muslim militants stormed Azbit el-Iqbat, and in a 15-minute spasm of violence and chaos, gunned down eight people, six of them Christians.

The seemingly random bloodletting was part of the almost daily ritual of violence that plagues Egypt's south — a war in which the victims have often become statistics, forgotten amid government proclamations that the insurgency has all but ended.

The massacre Saturday stands as bitter testimony to the resilience of that war. After four years and at least 920 deaths, Egypt's Islamic insurgency shows no signs of ending. Rather, it has ebbed and flowed, only to return to provinces long thought safe.

Assiut province, where Azbit el-Iqbat is located, was declared secure more than two years ago. In the past two weeks, 28 people have died in attacks.

Human rights groups say the assailants increasingly kill civilians, often minority Coptic Christians, in a campaign to replace Egypt's government with strict Islamic rule — and to instill fear among those who disagree.

The militants succeeded in Azbit el-Iqbat, a village of 5,000 Christians an hour's drive south of the provincial capital, Assiut.

Tucked between hills and surrounded by fields of clover and wheat, villagers in this gathering of mud-and-brick huts feel like they are under siege.

Memo to candidates: Hide that government resume

By Ron Fournier
Associated Press

■ News analysis

WASHINGTON — WANTED: Leader of the free world, president of these United States. Good pay. Great benefits. Political experience not required.

Don't even bother with the resume.

After years of bashing Washington, politicians are reaping what they sowed. Applicants for the nation's highest office face a jaded electorate craving the never-been-elected-to-nothing Un-Politician.

Today it's Steve Forbes. It was Pat Buchanan last week, Colin Powell last year and Ross Perot the last presidential campaign.

"These guys come across as people who would be a punch in the nose to the establishment," said Tom Cronin, president of Whitman College in Walla Walla, Wash., and a political scientist.

Forbes pulled off a political coup Tuesday with a victory in Arizona's hard-fought primary and Buchanan scored an upset win in New Hampshire, shattering Bob Dole's front-runne status and sounding alarms at the White House.

President Clinton and Senate Majority Leader Dole are old faces in these fresh-face times.

The allure of the non-politician was clear Tuesday, when Arizona primary exit polls showed that Ross Perot's 1992 voters sided overwhelmingly with Forbes and Buchanan. Half the state's Perot voters sided with Forbes, a third with Buchanan.

■ More national news/8B

Forbes, a magazine publisher, was favored by eight in 10 Delaware and Arizona voters who said "not a career politician" was an important candidate credential.

The anti-establishment sentiment has gathered steam in recent years: Perot captured 19 percent of the 1992 vote, and a majority of Americans tell pollsters they are open to a new political party.

Politicians can blame themselves. Congressional and presidential candidates who attacked the political establishment — even while working in it — helped stir up the inherent uneasiness that Americans feel toward government, political scholars say.

Clinton, a long-serving governor, pledged in his 1992 presidential campaign to fight "the entrenched bureaucracies and special interests that dominate Washington" — and that are still alive and well.

The Republican "Contract with America" contained anti-establishment efforts, like term limits, that failed to materialized after the 1994 GOP landslide.

"There's a lot of bashing the status quo and they're all a part of it, and can't get disentangled from it," said pollster Andrew Kohut of the Pew Research Center for People and the Press. "They're caught in their own trap."

Forbes and Buchanan hope to slam it shut on Dole.

One of Forbes' chief New York backers, former state GOP Chairman J. Patrick Barrett, said Wednesday that the publisher is on a roll because he lacks "that stench" from Washington.

"He's got most of the Republican establishment against him, but maybe that isn't all bad these days," Barrett said.

Buchanan calls Dole "Beltway Bob" and derides the GOP establishment as "barons and knights."

All too aware of his rivals' point, Dole keeps trying nonetheless to turn his government record to his advantage.

"I'm proud of my experience," he said Tuesday. "Some people say, 'You shouldn't say that — that makes you an insider.' But I'm proud of it."

Kohut and others caution voters are traditionally tantalized by unknowns, but usually end up settling for predictability.

"The paradox is that when it comes to actually electing a president ... we often in the final analysis put in office somebody with experience — who is, after all, a politician," Cronin said.

City tries to beat state roadwork

Officials hope proposed water district can be completed before fall

■ Formation of new district allows residents, city to pool money for construction of waterlines.

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

In light of plans by the state to rebuild Midkiff Road north of Bluebird Lane this fall, city officials are moving ahead to see if enough nearby residents are interested in tapping into the municipal water supply.

"It is desirable to construct this (water lines) before the pavement is put in by the state," said Harvey Hansen, the city's director of engineering.

About a year ago, several property owners approached the city about forming a water improvement district, Assistant City Manager Glen Hackler said. Forming a district allows residents and the city to pool money for the construction of water lines.

City residents in that area now rely on well water. "The water in most cases is brackish and hard," Hackler said.

To create a district, at least half of the property owners and holders of 50 percent of total property valuation must sign a petition. There are about 20 property owners — with about two to 60 acres each — in the area zoned agriculture-estate.

"We need at least two more signatures from property owners to make this a reality," Hackler said.

Those signatures must be secured within the next several weeks to have sufficient time to form a district and install lines before the state's roadwork.

The Texas Department of Transportation plans to rebuild and widen Midkiff Road from Bluebird Lane to Mockingbird Lane, according to Mike Chetty, TxDOT area engineer. Construction is expected to begin in October, he said.

The work will be part of a three-part highway project with an estimated cost of $1.6 million. In addition to Midkiff Road, Midland Drive from Bluebird Lane to Wood Drive and Mockingbird Lane from Midkiff Road one-half mile west will be rebuilt and widened.

If a water improvement district isn't formed, the city likely will install casings under the roadway in case a district is created in the future, officials said. Casings will allow placement of water lines without having to tear up a recently paved road, officials said.

The cost to install a 16-inch waterline on Midkiff Road north of Bluebird Lane, a 12-inch line on Bluebird Lane west of Midkiff Road and an 8-inch line east of Midkiff Road would be approximately

MC dedicates center in honor of Helen Greathouse

By Tonie Miller-Uzzel
Staff writer

Dozens of little voices lifted spirits despite dreary weather outside as the Helen L. Greathouse Children's Center was dedicated at Midland College Wednesday.

A ceremony to honor philanthropist Helen L. Greathouse for her contribution to the college was highlighted by the children who attend the center.

The dedication honored Mrs. Greathouse for her recent gift of $750,000 to Midland College's Chaparral Circle Endowment Fund, which was established in 1992 to help maintain the quality of education at Midland College.

President David E. Daniel named the contributors who not only have made Midland a great community, but whose dedication to Midland College has made it a premier junior college nationwide.

"This college reflects the greatness of a great community," Daniel said.

"The Greathouses did so much to benefit children in this community," he said. "At their pharmacy they made sure children didn't go without the medicine they needed just because they had no money."

Mrs. Greathouse and her husband, Barney, moved to Midland on Dec. 31, 1929. They opened a drugstore in 1933. Mr. and Mrs. Greathouse moved their business to the site of the Walgreen's in the Village Shopping Center in 1955. The couple worked side by side for almost 37 years and participated in many projects to help others. Greathouse died in 1973.

D-FY-IT's aim for prevention to target area's younger youth

By Joe Gaines
Staff Writer

Organizers of D-FY-IT, which rewards students in grades nine through 12 who follow a drug-free lifestyle, are hoping to expand by reaching out to younger students.

Joan Johnson, executive director, hopes to offer the program to seventh- and eighth-graders next year.

With the problem of drugs showing up in children at younger ages, organizers realized seventh- and eighth-graders would benefit, Ms. Johnson said.

'We can use what we've learned to show other kids what should and shouldn't be done.'

— Crystal Alvey, a senior at Lee High School

The program's student board also wants to reach out to younger students by doing peer counseling, where older students could offer advice to younger students.

Youths are more trusting of those their own age and more likely to listen to what other youth say, said Crystal Alvey, a senior at Lee High School. "We can use what we've learned to show other kids what should and shouldn't be done."

D-FY-IT, which aims to keep children drug-free, is funded by the city and through private support. The program targets children who have family or friends affected by drugs, but membership is offered to all students in grades nine through 12 at Midland and Greenwood schools.

Currently, 1,600 students are members.

Before being able to join, each student must take a drug test, with parental consent, and sign a form promising to stay drug-free. They also must agree to random drug testing in the future.

Members are given a card that allows them to receive discounts at local merchants and to attend pizza parties and barbecues.

Students at OC get place of their own

From Staff Reports

ODESSA — Odessa College students now have a lounge of their own. A Wednesday ribbon-cutting unveiled OC's newly remodeled Student Activity Center-Travis Hall.

The former economics building now boasts a game area with pool and ping pong tables, full-size kitchen, meeting rooms and a large-screen television.

'The facility was designed with student needs in mind.'

— Joanne Sanford, director of student activities at OC

"I am very excited to be opening the Student Activity Center," said Joanne Sanford, director of student activities. "The facility was designed with student needs in mind. We want everyone to use the center."

The center is located off West University Boulevard to the east of the administration wing. "The building housed other classes over the years and is now remodeled for students," said OC spokeswoman Susan Hammons.

OC President Vance Gipson, OC board President Gary Johnson and members of the Odessa Chamber of Commerce participated in the ribbon cutting. Afterward, the OC Jazz Band performed, and there was an open house and building tours.

A ribbon-cutting and reception marked Wednesday's opening of the new student center at Odessa College.

Students ponder, place their own values, priorities on information

Todd

No hassle. No fuss. No arguments over a dress code; there was none — none posted on the bulletin boards at school. Like discipline, dress started at home and ended there — school-days or weekends.

No contentious debates over academics or over what knowledge should be opened or closed, what cultures should be studied or ignored, lauded or condemned.

In classroom studies, there were no good or bad subjects. They simply were. This is how they appeared from the perspectives of the scholars — historians, scientists, thinkers — and through their textbooks and in the interpretations of the teachers and, then, the students.

We, the students, were exposed to new worlds — sometimes delightfully so, sometimes begrudgingly, sometimes boringly. We were there, in class, to learn and to heighten our curiosity and our questioning and our thought and our reasoning.

We were there to understand the world and the world about us and not to become that world or other worlds.

As students (pupils, back then), we listened, we read, we observed, we considered, we pondered, we wrote, we thought, we doubted and we affirmed or denied even as we learned. And we culled bits and pieces of information just like we did on the farm. We could tell a "bad potato" — incongruity — from a good one and contradictions from inconsistencies and harmony from disharmony. That is just good scholarship in the disciplines, history, the sciences, the arts, literature.

The premise was straightforward, as I reflect over my old school years in rural and small-town America in the 1940s and the 1950s. It went something like this: "Here's the information and the context. And the values and the priorities affixed to that information are for the student of life to ponder and to do with what he or she will."

That's the way it was and, I suspect, they way it still is.

Students are students, as we all should be, from birth until death. We pick up, examine, discard, pick up, retain, build, revise, pick up, modify, sculpt, edify, pick up and examine until time is spent.

Usually we do all those things successfully in com

POLICE REPORTS

Drug conviction

A federal jury convicted a Midland man Wednesday on four different drug charges including selling and possessing crack cocaine.

Anthony Cottrell, 27, was convicted of conspiracy to distribute crack cocaine, two counts of distribution of crack cocaine and possession of crack cocaine, Assistant U.S. Attorney Glenn Jackson said.

Cottrell's offenses occurred during a period in 1994, he said. On March 31, 1994, the Midland Police Department executed a search warrant that resulted in the possession charges.

An undercover informant working with the Drug Enforcement Administration task force supplied the information for the other convictions, Jackson said.

"It was a nice cooperation between the two agencies," he said.

Jackson said Cottrell remains in the custody of U.S. Marshals. He faces a minimum sentence of 10 years in prison and could be sentenced to up to life in prison. He will be sentenced in 60 to 90 days.

The tougher sentence is a result of the large amount of drugs involved in the case and the fact that Cottrell is a repeat offender, Jackson said.

Educator sues child protection agency for revealing names

AUSTIN (AP) — A teacher sued the Texas Department of Protective and Regulatory Services Wednesday, saying the agency wrongly divulges names of people who give information on suspected child abuse.

The Association of Texas Professional Educators filed the lawsuit in state district court in Travis County against the agency and its executive director on behalf of Patsy Arnold. The teacher group also is named as a plaintiff.

According to the lawsuit, Ms. Arnold last year reported suspected abuse after a child told her a leg bruise resulted from her mother striking her.

The child's parents, who obtained an agency letter to Ms. Arnold regarding the case, came to the school to see the teacher, the lawsuit says.

The teacher group said there were differing explanations about how the parents got the letter. DPRS spokeswoman Linda Edwards said it was mailed to the parents by mistake.

"She had a visit from the parents. They have indicated an anger and disappointment with her, and she's worried about it," said Doug Rogers, executive director of the teacher group.

Ms. Arnold, who teaches Spanish at an Arlington high school, was not at a news conference by the teacher group to discuss the lawsuit.

The lawsuit requests a judgment that the agency violated Ms. Arnold's rights and Texas law by giving her name to the alleged perpetrator of abuse.

It also seeks an injunction requiring the agency to ensure the identities of people who provide information about possible abuse or neglect are protected.

Ms. Edwards said while Ms. Arnold's situation involves a "one-time, innocent and unfortunate mistake," at issue is the larger question of how to interpret state law giving confidentiality to people who report child abuse.

The agency follows and even worked to strengthen that confidentiality law, she said.

But a person suspected of child abuse can get a copy of the investigation record, including the names of people who provided information about the suspected abuse, Ms. Edwards said.

Before that record is released, information is deleted that would identify which of the people reported the suspected abuse, she said.

"That kind of goes back to due process. Anyone who is being accused of something has a right to know what they're being accused of and who's accusing them of it," Ms. Edwards said. A court also could order the identity of the reporting person disclosed, she said.

Peggy DeRouen, president of the teacher group, said of the alleged perpetrators' rights, "We ask, what about the rights of our children?"

DPRS is willing to discuss the matter further "because teachers are very important to us," Ms. Edwards said.

"They are the single largest group that reports child abuse and neglect and we need to make sure we are not doing something that has a chilling effect on their willingness to report, and report using their names," she said.

Ms. DeRouen said there is a chilling effect, although she and other group officials couldn't immediately say how many other instances there are in which teachers' identities have been disclosed.

A ruling by the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin last year, involving a minister, upheld a trial court order for DPRS not to divulge the identity of people who report suspected abuse or neglect, the teacher group said.

pliance with universal laws and within the natural order of things. Otherwise, they will fail.

Flight that disobeys the laws of aerodynamics will falter.

Mind, body and spirit that are exercised will grow, develop and prosper in their own ways. Ignored, they will atrophy — wither and decay — just as surely.

Nutrients enhance life. Poison kills. In either case, laws are in effect: honored and broken.

As students learn and mature, they, with the guidance of wisdom and truth, learn discernment. That was true back then in my early school-days. It was true way before then. And it is true even now.

From my experience and observations, I suspect that the most damaging and damning aspects of education is the old nemesis: "Contempt prior to investigation," which British philosopher Herbert Spencer addressed this way: "There is a principle which is a bar against all information, which is proof against all arguments and which cannot fail to keep a man in everlasting ignorance. That principle is 'contempt prior to investigation.'"

Learning, as in reading and studying and doing, is good and healthy and exciting if you are doing what is good and right for you.

Parents urge quick investigation into racial slurs by teachers

■ TEA report on Lamar High School says review accreditation team found 'severe problems with the attitudes ... of some teachers.'

Associated Press

ROSENBERG — Parents and community leaders called Wednesday for a quick investigation after a report quoted unnamed local teachers calling Hispanics "animals."

The Texas Education Agency report on Lamar Consolidated High School in suburban Houston said a peer review accreditation team found "severe problems with the attitudes and expectations of some teachers."

Some teachers "explicitly stated their opinions that Hispanic and African-American students were probably not going to do well," the report showed.

"For Hispanics, it's better to be dumb," was one of the comments reported after a Feb. 20-22 visit. "They're (Hispanics) just animals," and "I could train an animal better than YOU," were among the others.

"In addition to being morally offensive, these comments are indicative of counterproductive attitudes," the report stated.

The Fort Bend Interfaith Council, the Missouri City & Vicinity Branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and concerned residents gathered in front of the Lamar Consolidated Independent School District administration building to demand immediate action by the district.

"We can't tolerate these attitudes," said Richmond lawyer Dora Olivo. "The education of our children is too precious. It is the base of building a strong country."

District spokesperson Kris Taylor said the district was taking steps to find out if the TEA will release the names of the teachers quoted in the report.

"The district's reaction, I think, is shock that a teacher would actually say that," Taylor said.

The accreditation report recommended immediate training for teachers about attitude problems. It stated: "Most teachers are simply providing basic textbook-driven instruction and making no effort to further modify to meet student needs."

The report was released Friday and printed in the local Herald-Coaster newspaper, and Ms. Olivo said she received telephone calls over the weekend alerting her to the comments.

"We need to take whatever action is necessary to support good teachers but make it clear to the school district that it is unacceptable to have any person who has these kinds of attitudes about any children," Ms. Olivo said.

TEA spokesman Joey Lozano said the names of the teachers involved were released to the school district.

Police charge pre-teen boys with assault in beating of autistic woman

■ Attacks began last month after victim's cousin moved into her home with his girlfriend, two sons.

Associated Press

DALLAS — For weeks, five elementary school boys held a series of beating "parties" during which they used belts, their fists and a toilet plunger to thrash and sexually assault an autistic woman, police said.

The boys, ages 11 and 12, have been charged with aggravated assault and sexual assault on the 40-year-old woman, who has a mental capacity no greater than that of an 11-year-old.

"It's one of those things you wouldn't think children at that age ...," said Sgt. Ross Salvarino. "They have fights, normally over little things, but nothing this vicious, an attack almost like an animal pack attacking something."

The boys were taken into custody Friday and were being held Wednesday at a juvenile detention center.

The woman was at home after being treated for injuries.

"Physically, the wounds about her face were superficial," Salvarino said. "Emotionally, well, she's settled back into her normal routine."

The victim had lived with her mother until the older woman's death several years ago. A guardian then was appointed to care for her.

The attacks began last month after the victim's cousin moved into her home with his girlfriend and her two sons, police said. The guardian was living outside the home.

The two boys who recently moved into the woman's house allegedly led the beatings and invited other youngsters to join in beating "parties," Salvarino said.

They would hit her in areas typically hidden by clothes, he said. In the last attack, the boys hit the woman's face, neck and shoulder with a toilet plunger. According to police, the boys sexually assaulted her with the handle.

The woman had difficulty explaining what happened but could answer specific questions about the sexual assault.

Neighbors said they are disturbed by the incident.

"I just thought it was terrible," a woman identified only as Maxine told Dallas television station KDFW. "I've known those little kids for quite a little while because they used to live right across the street ... I'll be at home a lot by myself. It really does bother me."

Gary Arey, assistant Dallas County district attorney, said the boys face a maximum 10-year sentence for aggravated assault and up to a 40-year sentence for aggravated sexual assault.

If convicted, the boys would begin their sentences with the Texas Youth Commission and possibly could be transferred to a Texas Department of Criminal Justice facility, he said.

The abuse came to light Feb. 20 after a boy at the house asked two neighborhood children walking home from school if they wanted to join a party, Salvarino said.

The neighbors later told police that several other boys inside the house ordered the woman to remove her clothes. When she refused, the other boys began beating her, the neighbors said.

The two neighbor boys left to report the incident. By the time police arrived, the five boys had fled.

Police believe the cousin and his girlfriend were unaware of the beatings. "After school, the boys were alone until the adults came home from work," Salvarino said. "Until that time, the boys had been mistreating her."

Autism is a severe developmental disability affecting communication, social interaction skills, learning and behavior. Those born with it interact with others only slightly and many times do not speak.

The five boys have been expelled from John Neely Bryan Elementary School.

Can You Buy A New $1,500 Furnace for $378?
(Read Amazing Story Below)

Dear Friend, Yes, it's absolutely true, you can actually replace your old (and probably very inefficient) furnace and air conditioner as a package for at least $1,500 less than you would have to pay at any other time.

Let Me explain,
Every year the months of January and February "Kill" my business. I lose a ton of money during these "Killer" months and it takes me the remaining ten months each year to make up for them. And I'm looking for the same thing to happen this year.

MY PROBLEM IS YOUR OPPORTUNITY
I've decided to give up trying to make a profit during the "Killer" months. If I can only minimize my losses during January and February I will come out ahead the other ten months.

Here's how this (admittedly daring) offer came about.
Every year the big manufacturers of air conditioners have to guess how many to build to meet the demand. Of course they're never exactly right. So, they always have some inventory they must hold over until the next summer season. I went to one of these companies and contracted for the purchase of 52 premium air conditioners and furnaces in the four most popular sizes used in the Permian Basin. And, because of the quantity and time of year, I was able to buy them at drastically reduced, below wholesale out of season prices.
They are brand new 1995 models. And they are NOT seconds or "blems" or standard "builder" models. They are factory fresh premium air conditioners and furnaces and have a full factory warranty.

HERE'S HOW YOU CAN GET A FURNACE FOR "ZIP"
By putting this furnace and air conditioner package together (then "Jaw Boning" the factory) and committing to a do-or-die purchase agreement of 52 systems, I was able to buy both the furnace and the air conditioner for less than I thought possible!
So, if you buy one of these 52 new premium air conditioners (but only if one of the four sizes I have will fit your house,of course), I am virtually giving you the furnace as a bonus. All I ask is for the $378 in labor it costs to have your furnace installed.

HERE'S HOW
Just call me at 561-9440 anytime. I will have one of my design consultants come out and measure your home (and determine the availability of the proper size). Don't forget, I only have 52 matched systems in four sizes. When they are gone this remarkable offer ends also.
He will show you the real world price on the air conditioner that fits your home. Then he will show the substantial savings now. And it will include all labor and installation materials. Nothing is left out.

THE CONCEPT IS SIMPLE REALLY
By letting you win big now, I will win at the end of the year.
I'm betting that if I make you an offer that is "irresistible" (at least it should be if your furnace or air conditioner is over eight years old) and I barely mark it up above the below-wholesale price I paid, I will accomplish two things.
1. It will cover my rent, utilities, insurance and taxes in the "Killer" months.
2. I can pay my professional staff of 10 technicians to work instead of paying them to sit home.
If I can accomplish these two objectives I will minimize my losses and the rest of the year can be a winner.

NO OBLIGATION
Even after he completely explains the installation there is absolutely no obligation. If you decide you don't want to take advantage of the spectacular savings - that's ok. I will give you a surprise gift worth $50 because you are kind enough to read this letter and give me a chance to solve my problem. I want you to think well of Claire's Service even if you don't buy.

YOU CAN BUY WITH NO CASH
You don't even have to pay me right away. I have set up a terrific bank rate financing. I even decided not to mark up the interest rate like most companies do.
Consider this, if you decide to make monthly investments instead of paying cash, the entire amount of your payments can be more than offset by the savings on your utility bills. It's like "having your cake and eating it too".

IRONCLAD GUARANTEE
I'm so confident that you will save at least 25% on your cooling and heating bills (I'm projecting more like 30% to 50%) that I will pay Double The Difference for two years if you don't. And he'll show you how this is figured.
If these premium systems were not among best on the market I couldn't afford to make such a promise.

WHY THIS OFFER CAN'T LAST
You must act before March 15th. Here are two reasons why.
1. I only have about 13 of each of the four sizes. When all of the air conditioners are sold and all the free furnaces are given away in a particular size, that's it. There are no more at this price.
2. If I have any of the 13 systems left on March 15th (although I doubt that I will) this offer still ends.
Here's why.
The only reason I am making this virtually No-Profit (for me) offer is because of the "Killer" months. My business always starts improving in April and since I got the furnaces "dirt cheap" I can sell them at 1995 prices next November and December and still come out ahead.
Give me a call now at 561-9440 or 1-800-220-9440 and I will set an appointment for your no-obligation survey.
Thank you for reading this rather long letter. I hope you will profit greatly because of it.

Warmly,
Tim Claire

P.S. Six months from now, this will probably be the most appreciated opportunity ever extended to homeowners in the Permian Basin. Every one of the 52 proud owners will have an almost unfair advantage over the utility companies.
P.S.S. Don't forget, if your air conditioner is over eight years old a rewarding $50 surprise gift awaits you. And there is no obligation.

Prices skid

A five-day rally in heating oil futures prices skidded to a halt Wednesday on the New York Mercantile Exchange after surprisingly low consumption last week and building stocks signaled a supply crunch has eased.

Reports from the American Petroleum Institute and the Energy Department knocked heating oil prices off 3 1/2-year highs and forced a massive sell-off of the expiring March contract, said Prudential Securities analyst Bob Baker.

March heating oil futures fell 4.60 cents, or 7 percent, to 59.68 cents a gallon.

The heating oil retreat dragged gasoline and oil prices lower. April crude oil tumbled 41 cents to $19.29 a barrel. Local crude purchasers lowered their posted price 50 cents to $17.75.

API figures released late Tuesday showed U.S. distillate stocks of heating oil and diesel fuel fell just 314,000 barrels last week, well below market expectations of a 1.5 million barrel to 3 million barrel drop.

The Energy Department before trading began further steepened the declines by reporting distillate inventory for the same period rose 500,000 barrels.

Dollar higher

NEW YORK — The dollar rose against major currencies Wednesday, particularly gaining against the German mark, which was hurt by renewed speculation of an interest rate cut.

The dollar strengthened against the yen as the U.S. trade deficit with Japan shrank for the first time in four years. The market ignored the U.S. deficit's overall rise to its worst showing in seven years.

The mark weakened against numerous currencies Wednesday as prospects seeped through the market for a German interest rate cut as soon as Thursday. Rate cuts typically weaken a country's assets and currency.

The dollar was quoted at 104.53 yen, up from 104.35 late Tuesday. The dollar was changing hands at 1.4671 marks, up from 1.4521.

Other late dollar rates in New York, compared with late Tuesday: 1.1944 Swiss francs, up from 1.1813; 5.0205 French francs, up from 4.9810; 1,550 Italian lire, up from 1,545; and 1.3773 Canadian dollars, up from 1.3744.

The British pound was quoted at $1.5338, down from $1.5395.

Gordon Moody, publisher of the Global Energy Outlook, says a combination of rising demand and lagging production will move energy prices higher in coming years.

Energy writer predicts prices will go higher

By John Paul Pitts
Oil Editor

Increasing demand accompanied by lagging production could cause oil prices to go higher in the coming years, says a well-known energy writer.

Gordon Moody, featured speaker at the Midland Chapter, Society of Independent Professional Earth Scientists (SIPES) seminar on "How to Prosper as an Independent Earth Scientist" told the oilmen that the world was awash in oil, but limited in its ability to produce it, because of political instability and a five to seven year lag time.

Because of this combination of events, Moody, who analyzes world trends, said the world was headed for an oil shortage that would impact prices upward. "As an economist, I know that price is based upon supply, and supply is based on the capacity to produce."

Moody, who publishes the Global Energy Outlook, published monthly by World Energy Group Inc., an energy update read by over 100,000 high level energy executives and officials worldwide, says the energy market is headed for catastrophe in the Middle East, because most of the excess capacity to produce oil is in the Middle East. "There is only 15 million barrels per day of excess capacity and most of it is in the Middle East."

He said Middle East production hinged on Saudi Arabia, which was headed for upheaval under the new ruler Abdullah. "Abdullah is not a friend of the West. He is a devout Muslim, and he believes Saudi Arabia has been selling its oil too low."

Moody believes that Saudi Arabia will go the way Iran, Iraq and Libya went. "They all used to be our best friends, and now they are our worst enemies." He said from 1996 on, the world will pay $100 billion more for energy because of changing world events.

One of the factors leading to higher oil prices would be a growing demand from China for oil. "Once China begins to trade its bicycles for automobiles, it will outpace its ability to produce enough energy at home and will turn to the Middle East for crude oil supplies, and the U.S. will have to compete with China for the capacity."

The helicopter pilot-economist, who originally published his newsletter for Bell Helicopter before retiring this year, said the U.S. could become a hostage to the Middle East oil producers.

"We are now importing 50 percent of our crude oil, and that is expected to go to 60 percent. Our government leaders tell us they can live with that, but I don't think the nation can live with it."

On a positive note, Moody said South America was coming on strong as an oil producer, and that reserves in the deep Gulf of Mexico could be in the hundreds of billions of barrels. He warned, however, that deep Gulf drilling could result in territorial conflicts with Mexico.

Moody said the positive outlook for oil prices had caused many of the heavy investors, such as Marvin Davis and the Bass Brothers, to invest heavily in oil and gas. He said it was wrong to think of giving up on domestic production, because the U.S. still had 106 billion barrels of oil.

He also noted that 57 billion barrels of onshore reserves were connected directly to inland refineries. "It would be hard for imported oil to get to refineries in Odessa, Tulsa and Denver." He also noted that there was a limit to how much oil the U.S. could import, because there was a serious shortage of tanker capacity.

Inflation hits two-year high; Dow falls

WASHINGTON (AP) — Inflation posted its biggest surge in more than two years in January, when consumer demand for heating fuel boosted energy prices. The blizzard and cold also contributed to the largest drop in existing home sales in nine months.

But analysts said the winter effects will be temporary and contended other signs, including growing exports and the first decline in business inventories in nearly two years, signal a pickup in economic growth later this year.

The Consumer Price Index shot up 0.4 percent in January, the steepest jump since a similar increase in October 1993, the Labor Department reported Wednesday.

The increase was led by a 1.9 percent surge in energy costs, also the biggest since October 1993. Fuel oil prices were up 8.8 percent, biggest gain since October 1990; natural gas was up 0.6 percent and gasoline jumped 3.7 percent. Electricity, however, was down 0.4 percent.

But food prices inched up just 0.1 percent after remaining unchanged in December.

The core CPI — excluding the often volatile food and energy components — rose 0.3 percent, the largest gain since a 0.3 percent increase last October. Contributing to the advance was a 0.7 percent increase in apparel costs, largest since August 1993.

Still, many analysts noted that because of government difficulties in adjusting for seasonal variations, inflation since 1991 has been sharply higher during the first quarter than its yearly average.

In a separate report, the National Association of Realtors said sales of previously owned homes dropped 4.1 percent in January, to a 3.71 million seasonally adjusted annual rate. It was the fourth straight decline and the biggest since sales fell 4.4 percent last April.

Art Godi, the association president, said the January drop was due to severe weather as well as consumer concerns over the economy that contributed to earlier decreases.

Traders work the floor of the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday.

NEW YORK (AP) — Late sell programs erased early gains Wednesday, sending the Dow Jones industrials sharply lower near the close but leaving the broad stock market mixed.

The Dow Jones industrial average ended down 43.00 at 5,506.21 after giving up a morning gain of more than 30 points.

But the broad market did not perform nearly so poorly. Advancing issues barely led decliners on the New York Stock Exchange.

And broad indexes weathered the drop in blue chips, finishing narrowly mixed. The NYSE's composite index fell 0.97 to 344.62. The Standard & Poor's 500-stock index declined 2.49 to 644.75.

But the Nasdaq composite index rose 1.38 to 1,107.55, and the American Stock Exchange's market value index added 2.80 to 566.66.

Blue-chip stocks tracked bonds. The long Treasury bond rose about a half point in the morning but dipped in the afternoon on a weak Treasury auction of 5-year notes. The 30-year Treasury bond was up 1-32 point near the close, yielding 6.47 percent.

The Commerce Department said business inventories fell 0.5 percent in December, while sales rose 1 percent. That suggested to investors that manufacturers might increase production to replenish inventories, which could produce a potentially inflationary increase in economic activity.

Bob Dickey, managing director and technical analyst at Dain Bosworth Inc. in Minneapolis, said the market was reacting to two major cross-currents.

In one corner are "folks who are seeing risk of higher rates and potentially a slowdown in the economy," Dickey said. "Those are the people taking profits right now."

Offsetting them are money managers who continue to receive heavy cash inflows from investors. The money managers have to put that money to work for their customers by buying stocks, and the buying has kept stock prices aloft, Dickey said.

Midland Chamber membership drive meets 1996 goal

By Mella McEwen
Staff Writer

Midland Chamber of Commerce officials expressed satisfation with the recently concluded membership drive.

The drive met its goal, bringing in 164 new memberships for a total of $30,645, the board of directors learned at Wednesday's board meeting.

The top performer was Debbie Bergen of Preferred Personnel with 28 memberships; the Preferred Personnel team brought in 31 memberships.

New members will be welcomed at a reception March 6 at the chamber boardroom.

Board members were told that HOK of Dallas and Leland & Associates of Denver, who are assisting the Downtown Revitalization Steering Committee in its efforts to revive downtown Midland, have conducted more than 100 interviews with "stakeholders" in the downtown area. Preliminary findings will be presented Friday at a committee meeting.

The chamber is continuing its efforts in other areas of economic development. The Retention/Expansion committee visited several local manufacturers in the last 30 days.

LuAnn Morgan, vice chairman of the economic development committee, said that issues identified during visits with the manufacturers include education and training for employees, work- force development, marketing opportunities and real estate for expansion.

She also told the board that four site visits have been made by industrial prospects so far this year; three new requests for proposals were received during February.

Mark Thomas, economic development director for the chamber, met with seven manufacturers in the San Diego, Calif., area recently; three planning site visits are sheduled for the next two months. A fourth, an aviation maintenance concern that could bring 70 jobs to Midland, visited Midland in January.

Carl Zapora, executive director of the United Way, told the group that United Way of Midland officials have been working with United Way officials in Chihuahua, Mexico. He said this summer's Nike Permian Basin Open golf tournament will benefit both Medical Center Hospital Foundation in Odessa and the United Way of Midland.

Jose Zertuche, president of the Midland Hispanic Chamber of Commerce, told members that his organization is organizing an international trade exposition with Chihuahua. The expo is tentatively set for the third week in August.

The Hispanic chamber has received assistance from the Midland chamber, and Zertuche said his group plans to include as many other interested organizations as possible.

INVESTOR'S GUIDE

Excess in nest egg can be put to work earning money

By Bill Doyle

Q: I'm 39 years old and starting to think about retirement planning. I contribute 15 percent of my $30,000 annual salary to a 401(k) retirement plan. In addition, I have saved about $75,000, which is in a certificate of deposit maturing in April.

I would like to keep about $25,000 available for home improvement or an emergency. I really don't know anything about investing, but I feel I should be doing something other than rolling over my savings into another CD.

What do you think I should do, and how should I get started?

Doyle

A: I'd say you should start a slow and steady program of mutual fund investing, after putting the maximum amount you are allowed in the 401(k) plan. Because of tax deferral and — in most plans — some employer matching contributions, 401(k)s are simply too good to pass up. Max out!

That $75,000 is an unnecessarily large nest egg for someone in your financial circumstances. Even the most conservative bankers don't recommend cash reserves in excess of six months' salary. The vast majority of families don't come close to tucking that much away.

If you have been following the business and financial news at all, you know we have been in a "bull market." The prices of stocks and mutual funds holding stocks soared better than 30 percent last year.

And you probably know that, with annual gains averaging 10 percent, stocks and funds holding stocks have been excellent long-term investments.

But you also should be aware of the market's 22 percent plunge on just one day: "Black Monday," Oct. 19, 1987.

That's why my recommendation is for dollar-cost averaging, the simple process of investing the same amount of money in the same security at fixed intervals.

Doing that, you get more shares when prices are low, fewer shares when prices are high and no ulcers from trying to outguess the market. Unless the price of the shares you are buying goes down, down, down and never comes back up, you come out a winner.

For you, investments of $1,000 per month seem to be in order until you get your cash reserve down to about the $25,000 you indicate you really want.

Q: I recently sold some property and have $13,000 to invest. I plan to retire in three years and will then need this money.

I am considering investing in "index mutual funds." How do you feel about such funds? Which ones would you recommend?

A: This column never recommends individual securities, be they mutual funds, stocks or bonds. But I certainly think highly of index funds.

That type of fund attempts to mirror overall stock market performance by holding in its investment portfolio stocks that duplicate a popular stock market index, such as the Standard & Poor's 500.

Since few mutual funds outperform the overall stock market — and none does so consistently — investing in an index fund makes sense.

The index funds can't quite match the indexes, because the funds do have operating expenses. That's why it's important to pick a fund with a low "expense ratio" — annual expenses expressed as a percentage of fund assets. Every fund's expense ratio is printed in its prospectus, in financial manuals you can find in most public libraries and in Friday editions of The Wall Street Journal.

Q: I purchased tax-free bonds from T. Rowe Price, Scudder and Dreyfus in 1985 and have reinvested all dividends and capital gains. I do not have records of how much I paid for these bonds. Could you advise me as to how a determination of costs could be obtained?

A: First off, you do not own bonds. The three names you cite are mutual fund management organizations. They run mutual funds, some of which hold municipal bonds in their investment portfolio. Apparently, you bought shares of such funds. "Muni" bonds pay tax-free interest, which is passed on to fund shareholders as tax-free dividends.

You should be able to get a record of your original investments and reinvestment costs from each of those three organizations. Write to them and ask.

Daiwa Bank pleads guilty to criminal cover-up, will pay $340 million in fines

NEW YORK (AP) — Daiwa Bank Ltd. on Wednesday pleaded guilty to a criminal cover-up of $1.1 billion in bond-trading losses and will pay $340 million in fines, setting one of history's biggest banking frauds.

The financial penalty against the big Japanese bank is the fourth-largest ever levied by U.S. authorities against a financial institution operating in the United States, after Drexel Burnham Lambert's $650 million, BCCI's $550 million and Prudential Securities' $370 million.

At a hearing, U.S. District Judge Kimba Wood approved the agreement in which Daiwa pleaded guilty to 16 of 24 criminal counts, including numerous charges of fraud and deception in connection with the huge bond losses.

In exchange, the government dropped eight record-keeping and mail fraud counts, including some charges related to Daiwa's conduct prior to a 1991 federal law that stiffened regulation of foreign banks operating in the United States. The government also agreed not to press further charges against Daiwa or Daiwa Bank Trust Co., its banking trust subsidiary.

The Osaka-based Daiwa, one of Japan's biggest banks, was accused last November of conniving with its former top New York bond trader to hide 12 years of extraordinary losses from bank regulators.

Toshihide Iguchi, the trader, has pleaded guilty and accused Daiwa management of urging him to continue the cover-up after he confessed the losses to the bank last July.

Daiwa had faced up to $1.3 billion in fines, or about four times the plea amount, if it had been found guilty at trial. The charges included obstructing examinations of its branches, making false statements to federal authorities and forging records.

The trial had been set to start April 15.

The bank "has gotten itself rid of a huge albatross around its neck," said Louis Begley, Daiwa's lead lawyer in the case. "It's relieved and happy."

Early this month, Daiwa shut its U.S. operations in compliance with a government-ordered eviction from the United States as additional punishment for the scandal.

To comply, the bank sold branches in 15 U.S. cities and most of its loans and related assets to Sumitomo Bank Ltd. for $3.37 billion.

A former general manager of Daiwa Bank's New York branch, Masahiro Tsuda, also has been charged in the cover-up. Tsuda, who has pleaded innocent, has no intention of pleading guilty, said his lawyer, Stanley Arkin.

Daiwa's board in Japan agreed to the deal in part because it had no defense against some of the charges, including its failure to immediately report the loss.

Foster mom's slaying brings social-service changes

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — Charles Johnson knew his 15-year-old foster son was trouble almost from the moment the teen-ager walked into his suburban home in December.

Johnny Jordan had a swagger about him and talked back.

But Johnson says he didn't know the whole story until after he found his wife, her head crushed and body smoldering, dead on the kitchen floor of their home Jan. 29. The boy was charged with beating 62-year-old Jeanette Johnson with a hatchet and setting her on fire.

Johnson says the Lucas County Children Services agency never told him that the 15-year-old, who has been in and out of foster homes since 1988, had a history of theft and vandalism against previous foster parents, and had once assaulted a foster mother. He also had served 10 months for assaulting a bus driver.

"If I had known about all that stuff, I would never have let him in my house," the 70-year-old retired welder said.

Agency spokesman Mark Harris says the Johnsons were told — twice, both times orally.

Nonetheless, the agency has changed its policy, now requiring social workers to give foster parents details about a child's past in writing. The document must be signed by the agency and the foster parents before a child is placed.

"With this form, you can document everything that has been told. This will prevent any future misunderstandings," Harris said.

Nationally, foster parents too often know little about a child's background, said Don Duquette, a University of Michigan law professor and director of the Child Advocacy Law Clinic in Ann Arbor, Mich.

What foster parents are told varies from state to state, county to county. Most children services agencies do not require that parents be told about a child's criminal background.

'If I had known about all that stuff, I would never have let him in my house.'

— Charles Johnson, of his 15-year-old foster son Johnny

"Generally speaking, foster parents ought to know what they're getting into," said Bruce Boyer, supervising lawyer at Northwestern University's Children and Family Justice Center.

In Ohio, the Lucas County Children Services agency says the slaying has hurt what was a robust foster parent program, with about 300 foster parents caring for 600 children. Some parents have quit, others have decided not to join. A few now refuse to take teen-agers.

"The unfortunate thing is we've never had an incident like this before. You hope that nothing like this happens again," Harris said. "But in the meantime, it gives all of these kids who are in foster care a bad name."

Before the slaying, Lucas County social workers were required to tell foster parents about a child's criminal and medical history. The way in which parents were to be notified — orally or in writing — was not spelled out.

In the case of the Johnson family, when the agency called the couple to tell them Jordan would be placed in the home, "they were told the information that we had at the time."

Judge quashes tobacco company subpoenas for CBS material

NEW YORK (AP) — A judge ruled Wednesday that CBS News does not have to give a tobacco company material from its "60 Minutes" interviews with a whistleblowing former executive.

The judge, who said he wanted to safeguard "a viable free press," also refused to compel correspondents Mike Wallace and Morley Safer and others to give pretrial depositions.

The Brown & Williamson Tobacco Corp. wanted the material for a lawsuit in Kentucky against Jeffrey Wigand, a biochemist and former B&W vice president. It accuses Wigand of breaching confidentiality agreements by divulging company secrets on "60 Minutes."

Wigand accused former B&W Chairman Thomas Sandefur of lying when he told Congress he believed nicotine is not addictive.

State Supreme Court Justice Robert Lippmann granted CBS' request to quash subpoenas for some 20 pieces of written text and video and audio recordings.

Attempts to get evidence from news organizations that are not parties to a case would subject them "to enormous depletions of time and resources as well as seriously impede their ability to obtain material from confidential sources," Lippmann wrote in his 16-page decision.

CBS had quashed a story on Wigand and Brown & Williamson, then finally aired it after The Wall Street Journal published excerpts.

Jones to see Rams

DALLAS — Middle linebacker Robert Jones could be the next starter to leave the Cowboys, depending on how things go with his visit to the St. Louis Rams on Thursday.

Jones' agent, Dallas-based Jordan Woy, indicated that three other teams are interested in the fifth-year player. But, Woy said, for Jones to visit other teams next week "depends on the Rams."

Free safety Brock Marion, another Woy client, is being courted by Miami Dolphins coach Jimmy Johnson. Marion, who was a rookie during Johnson's last season as head coach of the Cowboys, is expected to visit the Dolphins on Monday, Woy said.

Marion is a restricted free agent. Because the Cowboys tendered him a $356,000 qualifying offer, Johnson would have to compensate Dallas with a seventh-round draft choice if the Dolphins offer Brock more money.

Rebels, 'Dogs host Champions

By Sean Wallace
Sports Writer

Tournament Of Champions

If you believe in the law of progression, this is the year for Midland High to win the Tournament of Champions.

After finishing third in 1994 and runner-up last year, the Bulldogs have a little bit of momentum heading into this year's edition, which begins today at Christensen Stadium.

"This is the tournament that all the kids are looking forward to," MHS coach Lew Kennedy said. "Traditionally, we've done pretty well in this tournament. The kids want to make a good showing because its our housec that the other teams are coming into."

Game Bracket/2C

The Bulldogs share the domicile with the Midland Lee Rebels, who are looking to get back into the tournament's championship game for the second time in three years. Lee won the title in 1993 and then in 1994 with a win over Monterey.

"Two years ago we were in the finals but last year we went out in three," Lee coach Jesse Benavidez said. "This is a big tournament for us. We want to make up for last year and get back on track before district season starts."

Lee, the defending District 4-5A champions, have had a tougher time this season. The Rebels were swept by Monterey on Tuesday to fall to .500 on the season, and could meet up with the Plainsmen

Boys regional on line at Chaparral Center

By Terry Williamson
Sports Editor

5A Region I Tourney

There will be only a couple of small changes when the Region I boys basketball tournament unfolds today and Saturday at Chaparral Center.

Half of last year's field will be on hand, beginning at 6 p.m., for another shot at earning a Final Four bid and a trip to Austin next weekend. The one major change, however, is the big one. El Paso Riverside, last year's Region I champion, is not in the field.

District 4-5A champion Abilene Cooper (23-10) will meet District 6-5A champion Euless Trinity (28-3) in the 6 p.m. contest while District 1-5A champ El Paso Irvin (25-5) will take on District 7-5A champion Fort Worth Dunbar (28-4) at 7:45 p.m.

The two winners will play in the Region I finals at 1 p.m. Saturday. That winner will be headed for Austin's Final Four and a chance to make a run at the state championship next weekend in Austin.

All the teams involved this year are district champions. No second or third place teams survived the Region I wars this season.

The Cougars of Cooper are making their third consecutive Region I appearance, and coach Greg Gober is hoping the third time is a charm. In 1994, Cooper lost in the Region I semifinals.

ST. LOUIS: WAYNE'S NEW WORLD

Game on for Gretzky, Blues

■ Now with his eight years as a King behind him, Wayne Gretzky hits the practice ice with his new team, the St. Louis Blues.

By Beth Harris
AP Sports Writer

BURNABY, British Columbia — Pushing and shoving broke out when Wayne Gretzky's hockey show rolled north into Canada on Wednesday, creating a buzz not seen in these parts since the Canucks lost the Stanley Cup in 1994.

Children got jostled as hundreds of people jockeyed for a glimpse of Gretzky arriving for his first practice in a blue-and-red St. Louis Blues jersey.

Gretzky emerged last from the team's charter bus to the cheers of the biggest crowd to watch a Blues practice in years.

Then the scramble was on.

People dashed upstairs to watch his news conference. Gretzky sipped from a glass of ice water between questions.

Later, two teen-age boys tried to wheedle the glass from an arena employee.

"We already sold it — for $2,700," the worker joked.

"I got $2,800," one of the boys shot back.

None of the chaos was lost on Gretzky.

"I feel like a young kid. I'm nervous, excited," he said. "That's what it's all about. You've got to have pressure."

As soon as Gretzky sat down to a barrage of flashing cameras, the questions started coming about how he is going to help the Blues win a Stanley Cup.

Blues coach Mike Keenan admitted the stakes shot up when Gretzky's trade from the Los Angeles Kings went through Tuesday night.

"Our expectations and the expectations of our fans have increased dramatically," Keenan said. "Those pressures are what drives the best athletes in these games. If it doesn't come to pass, I don't have any reservations about acquiring Wayne."

Then Gretzky headed to the dressing room to change into the turtleneck he always wears under his jersey. One familiar touch was missing, though. He failed to tuck the right side of his jersey into his pants, a trademark touch that makes him easy to spot.

That set the crowd in motion dragging chairs from the arena's dining room out to a balcony overlooking the ice. Nobody actually sat on the chairs, they stood on them to get a better view of Gretzky taking the ice behind Brett Hull.

"He's better than Gordie Howe. My mom likes him, too," said Mirko Ilic, an 11-year-old from Burnaby, who rushed from school to the 8-Rinks Ice Sports Centre. "I'm going to the game tomorrow and it's going to be a lot of fun."

His 10-year-old friend, Lisa Keserich, wasn't so impressed.

"My favorite player is Pavel Bure," she said of her city's biggest star.

Great expectations surround Gretzky to get Blues a Cup

By Ken Rappaport
AP Hockey Writer

After making the West Coast safe for hockey and creating a new awareness across the United States, Wayne Gretzky's next mission somehow doesn't seem so daunting.

All he has to do this time is bring a Stanley Cup to St. Louis.

Once again, great expectations surround The Great One.

And why not? He has already lifted other teams to new levels, and a league to his own level, and beyond.

Jordan, MC meet Texans in loop finale

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Sports Writer

Tonight Midland College's Shannon Jordan suits up for the final time against the South Plains Lady Texans, a team with which she almost spent her junior college basketball career.

But you won't find the 5-foot-7 sophomore three-point specialist rubbing it in that her team, the Lady Chaparrals, are in the playoffs while the team she initially verbally committed to will be spending the postseason at home after making the playoffs last year.

"I'm still really good friends with them," said Jordan, whose teammates will make their final Western Junior College Athletic Conference appearance this year with a 6 p.m. tipoff at the Texan Dome. "They've talked to some (future college) coaches about me and really helped me out that way."

That attitude is typical of Jordan, whose constant smile seems to burst out with a traditional West Texas "Howdee!"

"It was never a personal thing," said Jordan of her decision to come to Midland. "They knew I was doing what I needed to do. When I came to Midland, everything felt right. I'm very glad I'm where I am now."

For the Meadow High graduate, South Plains in Levelland seemed like a perfect match at the time.

"I did want to stay close to home so Mom and Dad could see all my games," she said. "But Midland was the perfect place. I was away at college but I was close enough for them to come to my games. They've seen every conference game but one."

Loyd and Leslie Jordan, Shannon's parents, could be considered the Globetrotters of West Texas. Shannon's

Chaparrals at South Plains 8 p.m., KCRS (AM 550)

The Midland College men's basketball team ends what has been a helter skelter season and MC career for three of its players.

Tonight at 8 p.m., the finale takes place in the Texan Dome in Levelland as the Chaps take on Western Junior College Athletic Conference champion South Plains College.

Midland College, 16-12 for the season and 4-7 in Western Junior College Athletic Conference action, go into tonight's game knowing there will be no post season for the first time since 1990-91 season (the last under then head coach Reggie Franklin). But the Chaps have the opportunity to be the only team to win two conference games from SPC.

"There isn't a team that beat SPC twice," said Midland College coach Pat Rafferty. "We can do something that no other team has done. I think we will go up and play hard."

The Chaps have already defeated the

UIL Girls State Tournament

AUSTIN — Undefeated Alief Elsik's Class 5A semifinal against Georgetown on Friday in the girls' state basketball tournament has the makings of a championship game.

But the winner will have no time to celebrate with either 1994 5A champion Amarillo or last year's 5A titleholder Austin Westlake waiting in the finals.

Led by Rice-signee Marla Brumfield, a 5-foot-9 slashing forward who averages 17 points per game, Elsik (38-0) comes to Austin as one of only two teams in the 20-team tournament field with the glitz and burden of an unblemished record.

The other unbeaten team is Canyon (30-0) in Class 4A.

Due to an antiquated pairings system used by the University Interscholastic League that seeds only the top two teams in each class and then uses a coin flip to determine the opponents of those teams, Elsik will face Georgetown (34-2) at 7 p.m. Friday in the semifinals.

Defending champion Austin Westlake (34-2) will face Amarillo (29-8) at 3 p.m. Friday.

Florida's Hernandez sharp in majors debut

The Associated Press

Spring Training Roundup

MELBOURNE, Fla. — The stern, focused look on the face of Livan Hernandez rarely changed Wednesday.

Not when he trotted past autograph-seekers 30 minutes before his debut on American soil. Not during the playing of the national anthem. Not when he whiffed his last batter with a curve on a 3-2 count.

Hernandez, signed by the Florida Marlins after he defected from Cuba, pitched the first two innings of a 5-4 win over the University of Miami, and the results were tantalizing.

He faced the minimum six batters, giving up one hit that was negated by a double-play grounder, with two strikeouts and no walks. He threw 24 pitches, 16 of them for strikes.

The one hit, a sharp single to right by Jim Gargiulo, came off a well-placed fastball on the outside corner.

"I was impressed with what I saw," manager Rene Lachemann said. "He hit his spots with the fastball and his command was good for the first time out. We'll continue to evaluate him, but it was a good performance."

Hernandez, who just turned 21 in January signed a four-year contract worth up to $6 million four months after he deserted the Cuban national team in Mexico and playing in the Dominican Republic for the winter.

The Marlins' starting rotation is set. Hernandez is likely headed to Class AAA Charlotte, although Lachemann has said he'll give him an opportunity.

He made the most of a brief one against the Hurricanes.

"It's my first outing, but I felt very prepared, very strong," he said through an interpreter. "I think I'm ready to play in the majors. I'm still trying to get a spot in the rotation. I know those spots are already taken, but I'm going to work hard and try to get one of those spots."

About 30 reporters surrounded him in a clubhouse lounge after his stint. His only emotion came from explaining his nearly bald head, how he wasn't satisfied with the way Mario Brito had cut his hair and that he finished the job himself.

If there was any nervousness with dealing with a horde of media or making his Marlins' debut, he didn't show it.

"He was very poised," catcher Charles Johnson said. "I'm pretty sure he was nervous, but he didn't show it on the mound."

Pitching coach Larry Rothschild estimated his fastball to be in the low 90s. His off-speed pitches were equally impressive.

Against the last batter he faced, Pat Burrell, he missed with three fastballs, then got back to 3-2 with two more fastballs. He got Burrell swinging on a curve.

"I can throw that pitch at 3-2 and any other situation," Hernandez said. "I have plenty of confidence in that pitch."

Burrell said the curve caught him off guard. He had been expecting another fastball.

Rothschild praised his balance and pitch selection.

"He was cool out there," he said. "His breaking ball was good. He threw it at 3-2, so he's got confidence. I don't think he pitches away from his breaking ball. I think he likes to get to it. It was good to see that with a hitter in there, he throws it crisper and firmer."

No Decision on Belle

NEW YORK — There was no decision Wednesday on whether Cleveland outfielder Albert Belle will be fined or suspended for his behavior toward a television reporter during the World Series.

The players' association and major league baseball continue to negotiate on the matter.

Acting commissioner Bud Selig is prepared to fine Belle, perhaps as much as $50,000. If Belle doesn't agree to a fine, Selig is ready to suspend the temperamental outfielder, baseball officials said.

The union says a $50,000 fine is too harsh and is attempting to negotiate a lesser penalty.

Rangers Sign Buford

PORT CHARLOTTE, Fla. — The Texas Rangers signed outfielder Damon Buford to a one-year deal Wednesday, the team announced.

No terms were announced.

The agreement leaves five of the 39 players on the major league roster unsigned, including two starters from last season — shortstop Benji Gil and outfielder Rusty Greer.

The Rangers are scheduled to play an intrasquad game Thursday before beginning their regular spring schedule Friday against the Chicago White Sox at Sarasota.

Bichette visits Williams

TUCSON, Ariz. — Dante Bichette has learned that three spring training workouts do not equal two hours with Ted Williams.

"You could go your whole career and not get some of the information and experience I got this weekend," Bichette said Wednesday after returning from the Ted Williams Museum and Hitters Hall of Fame.

Bichette, who hit .340 with 40 homers and 128 RBIs for the Colorado Rockies last season, said he spent more than an hour with Williams during breakfast Monday and about another hour during dinners Sunday and Tuesday night at Hernando, Fla.

"It was everything I expected and more," Bichette said. "I had a chance to sit down and talk and have breakfast with my hero, and we talked hitting and it was just a blast."

Mets, Padres heading to Mexico for series

The Associated Press

SAN DIEGO — The San Diego Padres and New York Mets are going south of the border for major league baseball's first regular-season venture outside the United States and Canada.

Their Aug. 16-18 series will be played in Monterrey, Mexico, because of scheduling conflicts at Jack Murphy Stadium.

"What began as a scheduling problem evolved into a real opportunity for us to break new ground for major league baseball," Padres president Larry Lucchino said Wednesday.

The Republican National Convention had asked for the option to use Jack Murphy Stadium as the site for the acceptance speech by the presidential nominee on Aug. 16.

The GOP later decided against the stadium plan, but the San Diego Chargers of the NFL have scheduling priority at the stadium and have an exhibition game slated for Aug. 17.

So the Mets-Padres series will be played at Monterrey Stadium, a baseball-only ballpark built in 1990 to hold 26,000 fans. A contingent of Padres and Mets officials, including Padres manager Bruce Bochy and Mets manager Dallas Green, toured the stadium last December.

The series will be a homecoming of sorts for Padres pitchers Fernando Valenzuela and Andres Berumen, both natives of Mexico. Valenzuela was with the Los Angeles Dodgers when they played an exhibition in Monterrey in 1991.

"I think it's going to be a good experience for the fans there," Valenzuela said Wednesday at spring training in Peoria, Ariz. "I've played there before, but now it's going to be the regular season. The games are going to count. So that's pretty good."

The series gained approval from baseball's owners in January, and the Major League Baseball Players Association gave its approval last Friday.

"We're excited about participating in this historic event," Mets vice president David Howard said. "This is important in the international growth of the game. The Major League Baseball Players Association deserves a great deal of credit for its support and cooperation."

The Seattle Mariners had proposed to start the 1995 season with a series in Japan, but it was vetoed by the union.

Old man Sandberg relishes rare day off

By Mike Nadel
AP Sports Writer

MESA, Ariz. — Ryne Sandberg got the afternoon off and the Chicago Cubs hope he enjoyed it.

Trying to make a comeback at age 36 after retiring midway through the 1994 season, Sandberg was conspicuously absent from the team's intrasquad scrimmage Wednesday.

"I sent him home," Cubs manager Jim Riggleman said. "He's been working hard since October, he reported to spring training early with the pitchers and catchers and he got all his work done this morning. I told him that there aren't going to be too many days off over the next seven months."

Sandberg, one of baseball's best second basemen in the decade before he retired, had two singles Tuesday in the Cubs' first intrasquad scrimmage.

Riggleman said that with the exhibition season scheduled to open Friday against Seattle, Sandberg has progressed better than anyone could have hoped.

"When the pitchers throw batting practice instead of the coaches, that's one step. Yesterday was another step, with the umpire back there (for the scrimmage). And Friday will be another step," Riggleman said. "At every step to this point, he's just been outstanding. He hasn't been good, he's been outstanding. It's like he never missed a beat."

STATE: Elsik, Canyon only unbeatens would think Elsik should be facing Amarillo. At least that's what Elsik coach Laura Dawson assumed.

(From 1C)

"I thought we would be playing Amarillo based on the records," Dawson said Wednesday. "But we feel very fortunate that we are in the tournament.

"There is some sentimental value to us playing Georgetown. I went to Southwestern University (in Georgetown), and we are going to take a drive through the town to see what's there," Dawson said.

Georgetown senior guard Natalie Tucker averages 19 points to lead a disciplined half-court offense that totally contrasts Elsik's overdrive, running game and full-court pressure defense.

"Georgetown is very fundamental," Dawson said. "They seem to play real well together. They are real balanced. Tucker is their go-to player, and of course the crowd will be really on their side being 30 miles from home."

Elsik, which is just outside of Houston, will be making its second tournament appearance. Georgetown, which is making its sixth state tourney trip, was runner-up in 4A in 1992 and 3A champs in 1979.

Westlake, which beat Duncanville 59-56 in last year's 5A title game, is led by Krista Watson and Sarah Howden, who each average 12 points. Amarillo features a balanced attack, led by junior guard Jenny Blades with an average of 14 points per game.

In Class 4A, Canyon is top-ranked and clearly the team to beat. Coached by Joe Lombard, the Lady Eagles won the 1992 3A championship.

Canyon, which is led by Courtney Sims (12 points, 6.1 rebounds and 5 steals per game) and Valeree Valdez (12 points and 9.3 rebounds per game), is seeking its eighth state title in its 15th tournament appearance and will face Crosby (22-10) on Thursday.

In the other 4A semifinal, Cedar Hill (34-4), making its first tournament appearance, will take on Waco Midway, the 4A champions in 1994.

In Class 3A action Thursday, Groesbeck (34-2) will meet Liberty Hill (28-4). In the other bracket, Lindale (33-3) faces Slaton (25-7), which won the 3A title in 1987 and 2A titles in 1980, 1979, 1978 and 1974.

In Class 2A, three teams from last year's final four are back, including defending champion Ozona (35-2), which takes on Poth (32-5) in Friday's semifinal action. Ozona beat Poth 65-42 in last year's semifinals.

Gunter (34-1), which lost in last year's semifinals to Cooper, takes on tourney newcomer Edgewood (33-2).

In Class 1A, perennial powerhouse Nazareth (34-2) will be making its 16th state tournament appearance when it faces three-time state titlist Round-Top Carmine (25-3) in semifinal action on Thursday. Nazareth has won 12 state titles, including four straight 1A crowns from 1988-91.

In the other semifinal, Celeste (35-2), which won back-to-back 1A championships in 1992 and 1993, takes on tourney-newcomer Zephyr (28-7).

CHAMPIONS: Lee, MHS open play today

again in the tournament.

The Rebels open the three-day, double-elimination tournament today at 10 a.m. against El Paso High and a win would move them into a second-round game against the Monterey-El Paso Hanks winner later that night at 8.

The Bulldogs' first game is at 5:30 p.m. against El Paso Bowie. The other first-round game pits Odessa Permian against Amarillo Tascosa at 3 p.m.

"I really thought we would have a better showing against Monterey, becuse I think we're going to see them again," Benavidez said Tuesday night following Monterey's doubleheader sweep over Lee. "They should be the team to beat around here, not just for the tournament but for the region."

Pitching plays a greater role in a three-day tournament than in the regular season, and Midland High comes in with a number of hurlers who have already seen mound time this year.

"We've got about seven guys on the staff here who can pitch, so that's really going to help us," said MHS senior Keith Lant, who threw a two-hitter against defending regional champion Lubbock Coronado Monday. "Coach (Kennedy) hasn't really said what are rotation is going to be, but we're all going to be ready when he needs us to pitch."

Kennedy said he is happy with how the staff is shaping up as the Bulldogs enter the tournament with a 5-1 record.

"I've been pleased with our pitching, but we've got to start getting ahead of the hitters," Kennedy said. "You can do so much more on the mound when you're ahead in the count."

Lee, meanwhile, is still trying to find a combination of pitchers to carry it through the season, and Benavidez might be getting some good news in the near future.

Senior Mark Holly, who spent the early part of the year with the basketball team and saw limited action in a relief role last weekend in Houston, will start for the Rebels during the tournament, possibly their second game.

"He got in some work in Houston but really all he's done is some long tossing over the winter," Benavidez said. "We really don't want to rush him and possbile get him hurt. We've still got a long season ahead."

The Rebels also got a lift as senior Randy Forman came back with a solid performance Tuesday. The 6-foot-3 senior allowed just two hits in 3 2/3 innings of work of Tuesday's second game against Monterey and struck out two, keeping the Rebels in the game.

"Randy needed some confidence and he really pitched well," Benadvidez said. "That was probably the best he's pitched this season, and against a good team like Monterey."

Both teams come into the tournament swinging the bat pretty well. The Bulldogs rang up 20 hits Monday in a sweep over Lubbock Coronado while the Rebels are averaging about eight runs a game.

Midland High's middle of the order —seniors Clay Johnston, Jason Rogers and junior outfielder Russell Dunlavy — lead a Bulldogs' attack which had seven extra-base hits on Monday, including back-to-back home runs from Johnston and Rogers.

"Clay and Jason are really hitting the ball well and that's part of the senior leadership we are looking for," Kennedy said. "You've got to have good senior leadership and that's what we're getting."

The Rebels have been hitting the ball well lately, taking third place in a tournament last weekend. Lee senior third baseman Britt Harper is beginning to show the power which saw him bat .322 a year ago with two home runs and 23 RBI. The 5-10 senior blasted a home run on Tuesday.

But the Lee offense doesn't stop there. Senior outfielder Matt Withrow is on a .562 pace the past week while Justin Ham hit .333 and second baseman Nick Benavidez was hitting at a .416 clip.

REGIONAL: New champ to be crowned

(From 1C)

Last year Cooper fell in the finals.

To take that extra step, Cooper must defeat the Trojan team of coach Tommy Newman. That is a rematch of last year's semifinal in which Cooper won 55-45. Junior Brandon Schmitz and senior scoring leader Mark Smith will have to carry the big load for Cooper.

Trinity would like to make amends from last season and have both Landry Kosmalski (13 rebounds per game) and Dylan Ocean scoring over 20 points per game. The Trojans are ranked as the No. 8 team in the Southwest by USA Today and owns a victory over Dunbar, 66-65 OT, in the semifinals of the Lion's Club tournament in Fort Worth this season. Two of Trinity's three close losses have come at the hands of state ranked Duncanville. The Trojans are known for a tight defense, giving up only 51 points per game.

Just mention the Region I tournament, however, and you automatically think of the Dunbar Wildcats, who have made the show for 11 consecutive years under coach Robert Hughes.

The Panthers are averaging 81.4 points per game. Michael Byars, a junior, is coming off a 22-point game against Fort Worth Paschal and Daniel Tate, a 6-3 guard, is one of the leading three-point shooters in the state, hitting 49 of 97.

Irvin, the team that eliminated Midland High from the state playoffs last season, has now taken that extra step to the Region I level under coach David Castillo. Since the Region I moved to Midland in 1982, the Rockets have been in the tournament only once in 1989.

The Rockets' top star is 6-5 post Marcus Faison, who scored 17 points at the Chap Tuesday night against Lubbock Monterey in a region quarterfinal. But Faison has scoring help. Jose Escobedo, 6-7, had 20 points Tuesday while Edmund Stansbury, 6-2, had 13 points.

Shaq beats Mourning, Magic take out Heat

The Associated Press

NBA Roundup

ORLANDO, Fla. — Shaquille O'Neal won another personal matchup with Alonzo Mourning and the Orlando Magic cooled off the Miami Heat with a 116-112 victory Wednesday night.

O'Neal had 31 points and 14 rebounds to Mourning's 18 points and 10 boards as the Atlantic Division leaders improved to 29-0 at home and dealt Miami its first loss since coach Pat Riley remade the Heat with three trades last week.

Anfernee Hardaway just missed a triple-double with 27 points, 10 assists and nine rebounds. Dennis Scott added 25 points for Orlando, which also beat Miami in another Shaq-Zo showdown on Feb. 17.

Tim Hardaway, one of the five players the Heat obtained before last Thursday night's trade deadline, led Miami with 22 points and 13 assists. Rex Chapman had 16 and Walt Williams 14.

Suns 117, Timberwolves 93

MINNEAPOLIS — Charles Barkley finished one assist shy of a triple-double and Phoenix outscored Minnesota by 20 points in the third period.

Barkley had 24 points, 11 rebounds and nine assists and Michael Finley added 21 points.

Danny Manning scored 11 points in the third quarter and finished with 17 for Phoenix.

Hawks 90, Trail Blazers 88

ATLANTA — Mookie Blaylock hit a 3-pointer with 11 seconds to play to lead Atlanta to a victory over Portland as coach Lenny Wilkens notched his 999th career victory.

Arvydas Sabonis hit two free throws to give the Trail Blazers an 88-87 lead with 41 seconds to go. Blaylock, who had 23 points and eight assists, then nailed the game-winner from the left side.

Portland's Clifford Robinson missed a last-second 20-footer.

The win was the third in a row for Atlanta and left Wilkens, the NBA's all-time winningest coach, one victory shy of 1,000. He'll go for the milestone 1,000th on Friday when the Hawks host Cleveland.

Sabonis collected 26 points and 10 rebounds, and Harvey Grant added 17 points, including five in the final three minutes.

Celtics 121, Hornets 116, OT

BOSTON — David Wesley scored 33 points, including the go-ahead basket in overtime, as Boston snapped a five-game losing streak by beating Charlotte.

Dino Radja and Rick Fox scored 16 points each and Pervis Ellison had 20 rebounds for Boston.

Kenny Anderson had 22 points and 13 assists but lost his dribble at the end of regulation to force overtime and was ejected in the final period for throwing the ball at Day.

Jazz 115, Bullets 93

SALT LAKE CITY — The Utah Jazz scored 20 of the game's first 22 points and won for the sixth time in seven games with a victory over Washington.

Karl Malone scored 26 points and John Stockton and Jeff Hornacek added 17 apiece. Malone scored 15 points in the third quarter and Utah led 81-61 heading into the fourth. The Bullets trailed by at least 17 points the rest of the way.

SuperSonics 94, Pistons 80

SEATTLE — It seems nothing can stop Seattle, not even the ejection of Shawn Kemp.

Gary Payton scored 17 second-half points and Seattle held Detroit to 32 points in the final two periods as the SuperSonics won their 11th straight game Wednesday night, 94-80 over the Pistons.

The Sonics broke the game open without the services of Kemp, who was ejected by official Steve Javie for arguing a call with 9:31 left and the Sonics leading 73-68.

The Sonics outscored the Pistons 58-32 in the second half in improving their record to 43-12.

Lakers 99, Grizzlies 80

VANCOUVER, British Columbia — Cedric Ceballos scored 23 points and led four players in double figures as Los Angeles beat expansion Vancouver by 19.

Jordan, Barkley fined

NEW YORK (AP) — Michael Jordan and Charles Barkley were fined $10,000 each by the NBA for failing to show up for a media availability day on the Friday before the NBA All-Star game in San Antonio.

Jordan and Barkley reportedly were off playing golf at the time, either in Las Vegas or Phoenix.

"He has a lot of pressures that are maybe unique, but the rules are the rules, and he'll get fined," deputy commissioner Russ Granik said at the time about Jordan, who received a similar fine in 1993 for missing the obligatory session.

Shaquille O'Neal, who remained only a short time at the session, was not fined. Nor was Hakeem Olajuwon, who said airline problems were the reason he failed to attend.

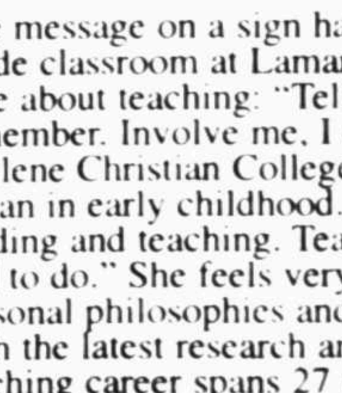
Teacher of the Year
Lamar Elementary



Sylvia Kerby
Lamar Elementary
Third Grade

The message on a sign hanging in Sylvia Kerby's third grade classroom at Lamar Elementary sums up her attitude about teaching: "Tell me, I forget." Show me, I remember. Involve me, I understand." A graduate of Abilene Christian College, Kerby's love of education began in early childhood. "I have always had a love of reading and teaching. Teaching was just something I felt I had to do." She feels very strongly about backing up her personal philosophies and does this by staying current with the latest research and trends in education. Her teaching career spans 27 years and she credits some of her own growth as a teacher to those at Lamar. "I teach and work with wonderful professional people who provide me with the motivation and confidence to reach my own personal beliefs and goals. I'm very proud to be a part of the teaching profession." Mrs. Kerby is involved in several professional organizations and has participated in numerous workshops including the New Jersey Writing Project, Impact, Literacy 2000 and ELIC.

Iowa State (19-8, 8-5) got a season-high 31 points from Kenny Pratt and 24 from Dedric Willoughby.

CHAPS: Three players in final game

(From 1C)

Texans, 23-5 and 9-2 this season. Sophomore guard D'Juan Baker led the Chaps on Feb. 5 in the 91-71 blowout win in Chaparral Center with 25 points.

The game will mark the end of the line for three MC sophomores. Baker, Devon Phillips and Mike Carrasco will don the green and gold for the last time.

"I miss them already, they are going to be special," said Rafferty.

Carrasco, a native of Crane, is a player that has been with Rafferty for two seasons and leaves, not with the stats of players like Baker and Phillips, but with the an attitude which breeds success.

"He will be a successful person," said Rafferty. "We had to change to an up-tempo style of play that did not behoove Mike. He understood his role and played hard. It says a lot about him as a young man."

Carrasco, who is undecided about where he will take his game, says that his love for the game is the reason is why he could go from a 20-point, 16-rebound post player at Crane to a role player at MC.

"At the college level, the whole team can play," said Carrasco, who was a three-time all-district player at Crane. "I love the game of basketball and being a part of a team. Coach (Rafferty) has instilled to me that without the other players, a star wouldn't get his 30. If I put in two points and we win, it is a win for everybody."

Understanding roles on the court is just one concept that the sophomore has had to get used to. Carrasco, who averaged just under three points and two rebounds a game in his two years, came to Midland from Crane (est. population: 3,500) and it did take time to adjust to a bigger city away from home.

In addition to living away from the nest, Carrasco was married this past summer to his wife, Kim. Both steps have helped in the growing process for the 20 year-old.

"It (marriage) makes you more responsible especially living away from the (MC athletic dorms)," said Carrasco. "If I slipped up I would hear it from both ends (coach and wife). Coming from a small town like Crane, I didn't want to go far."

Carrasco says that his future will include basketball and getting that all-important degree. He aspires to be a teacher and coach when his days on the hard court are over, but for now he wants to keep playing ball until that buzzer sounds.

"I'm lucky," said Carrasco. "Coach Rafferty gave me an opportunity to play. My wife knows how much I love basketball and how dedicated I am. If I had to do it all over again, I wouldn't change a thing."

JORDAN: Hard work pays off for guard

(From 1C)

younger sister April is a junior on a Meadow team that fell in the Region I-1A final to Nazareth just last weekend. Jordan also has a younger brother, Dustin, who is 18.

"They see (high school and junior college) games on Monday, Tuesday, Thursday and Friday," Jordan said. Saturday, too, for part of the season.

Jordan, who has hit 45 three-pointers this year after leading the team with 73 last year, credits her parents for her outgoing personality and leadership qualities.

"I just try to find something positive in everything. That's a big deal to me," Jordan said. "I think that in any kind of situation there is a positive. My parents have just been so good about encouraging us all the time. And with the leadership too. They've always been leaders and they've always encouraged us to be leaders.

"Some of the guys give me a hard time about it and call me 'Smiley,' but that's part of what I want to do. I know that sounds kind of fruity," Jordan said.

From her love of Mexican food and the Dallas Cowboys to her favorite type of music — country — Jordan is pure small-town West Texan. She sees that as one of the reasons why Panhandle girls basketball, especially in the smaller schools, is so successful year in and year out.

"I think a lot of it is just dedication and hard work," Jordan said. "You see that in everything about West Texas.

"And being from Meadow, all we had to do was play basketball," she said. "If you were bored on Saturday night we would just go up to the gym. We spent every Sunday afternoon there after church, shooting baskets and playing with the guys."

"Tradition is a big part of West Texas basketball," Jordan said. "In Nazareth that's really true. They breed those basketball players up there. There are a lot of big families. (In Meadow) it's probably not as much like that. But a lot of girls that graduated with me have sisters on the team now."

Although Jordan is an upbeat, positive person, even she is surprised at all the Lady Chaps have accomplished in just two short years.

"The first time I ever talked to coach Jones, I really liked what I heard," Jordan said. "He even talked about a national championship then. I never thought we would be as good as we are."

The Lady Chaps have done more than maybe anybody thought they would — except, perhaps, Jones.

Midland was ranked as high as No. 8 last year, compiled a 23-8 record and recorded its first-ever regional tournament berth. The Lady Chaps lost a first-round game to McLennan Community College. They achieved a No. 6 ranking this year but are currently in the poll at No. 17 after losses to Howard College and Frank Phillips. They have stayed in the polls for most of this season while compiling a 24-5 overall record and 13-4 WJCAC mark.

"I don't know if it will sink in until we're away from here for a few years," Jordan said.

What Jordan will be doing after graduation is still in question.

"I'm trying to keep my options open," said Jordan, who had a 3.97 grade point average her freshman year. "But right now I'm just concentrating on playing hard. I'll worry about that when we're finished playing."

Whatever the future brings, you can be assured Jordan will find the silver lining. "I think going to a junior college, especially Midland, has been one of the best things for me," she said.

If Jordan leaves marks on the record books she currently holds, like most three-point goals in a game (seven), most in a season (73) and, probably, most threes in a career (118 and counting), the Midland College women's basketball program will most likely remember her as one of the best things that happened to it.

Nashville votes to sell bonds for stadium

The Associated Press

NFL Notes

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — Senators voted 23-9 Wednesday to sell $55 million in bonds to help build a stadium for the Houston Oilers, but delayed action on a bill to make sure the state is repaid.

The deal among the Oilers, Nashville Mayor Phil Bredesen and Gov. Don Sundquist requires that a portion of sales taxes from tickets, concessions, team paraphernalia and seat leases be used to pay off the 30-year bonds.

Hampton, 49ers talk

SANTA CLARA, Calif. — The San Francisco 49ers and free agent running back Rodney Hampton moved toward an agreement Wednesday, leading club president Carmen Policy to predict the signing of an offer sheet by Friday.

The Giants would have a week to decide whether to match the deal or free Hampton to become a member of the 49ers.

Cardinals sign Brown

TEMPE, Ariz. — Lomas Brown, a Pro Bowl selection in each of the last six seasons with the Detroit Lions, will be counted on to help solve the Arizona Cardinals' pass-protection problem.

Brown received a three-year, $9 million contract calling for a $3 million signing bonus and an average annual salary of $2 million.

Colts Match Offer for Coryatt

INDIANAPOLIS — The $18 million offer extended to linebacker Quentin Coryatt by the Jacksonville Jaguars was matched by the Indianapolis Colts.

The Colts and Bears also were reportedly interested in Arizona Cardinals center Ed Cunningham.

GRETZKY: Trade sends 99 to Blues

(From 1C)

Thursday night against the Canucks.

"There's been so much going on, I'm just starting to concentrate on the hockey," he said. "We need to worry about winning tomorrow night's game and take it from there."

Gretzky has yet to sign with the Blues, but Keenan expects negotiations to begin as early as Thursday. He denied that businesses in St. Louis would subsidize Gretzky's contract.

Agent Michael Barnett said there is no timetable for a deal to be cut.

Asked if Gretzky would give up his marketing rights to the Blues to help the team finance his contract, Barnett said: "I wouldn't say never. Many players now in the league have given clubs their marketing rights."

Barnett sees a spark in Gretzky that had been missing during his final days in Los Angeles.

"It's an exciting time for him. He's playing with a new group of players and a new environment," Barnett said. "With the playoffs coming up, I think you'll see a jump in him."

But for Gretzky's former teammates in Los Angeles it took a while for the news to sink in.

They had lived with the rumors and turmoil for six weeks, but when the decision was finally made to trade Gretzky to the St. Louis Blues, his now ex-teammates were still caught by surprise.

Kevin Todd, the Los Angeles Kings' new No. 1 center, refused to believe the news at first, even though it was being delivered by Gretzky himself via telephone.

"I thought he was kidding," Todd said Wednesday morning. "But then I could tell by the way he was talking that he was being serious, that a trade was made."

Right wing John Druce had gone out to dinner with his family that night and hadn't turned on his car radio, so he didn't find out until teammate Rob Blake phoned him around 10:30 p.m., almost two hours after Gretzky had appeared at a news conference announcing the deal.

NHL HIGHLIGHTS

EDMONTON OILERS (1979-88)

Reclaimed by Edmonton as an underage junior prior to 1979 expansion draft. Played on four Stanley Cup championship teams (1984, '85, '87 and '88) in nine NHL seasons with the Oilers before being traded to the Los Angeles Kings on Aug. 9, 1988, along with Marty McSorley and Mike Krushelnyski for Jimmy Carson, Martin Gelinas, three first-round draft picks and cash.

LOS ANGELES KINGS (1988-1996)

Scored 802nd goal on March 23, 1994 vs. Vancouver (goaltender Kirk McLean) to become the NHL's career goal-scoring leader, passing Gordie Howe. Recorded his 2,500 career point, an assist, on April 17, 1995 at Calgary.

ST. LOUIS BLUES (1996-???)

Traded to the St. Louis Blues by the Los Angeles Kings on Feb. 27, 1996 for Roman Vopat and Patrice Tardif, centers; Craig Johnson, left wing; and a 1997 first-round draft choice.

Flyers tie up Stars 4-4

The Associated Press

Flyers	4
Stars	4

DALLAS — Eric Lindros scored his 40th and 41st goals and Craig MacTavish tied the game with 7:00 to play as the Philadelphia Flyers rallied from a two-goal, third-period deficit for a 4-4 tie with the Dallas Stars Wednesday night.

The Flyers missed a chance at the victory with 23 seconds left in overtime when Anatoli Semenov missed an open net from point-blank range.

Mike Modano collected his 31st goal and Benoit Hogue had three assists to put him over 400 points for his career as the Stars stretched their unbeaten streak to four games and continued their climb in the Western Conference playoff race.

Daryl Sydor, Guy Carbonneau and Grant Ledyard also had goals for the Stars. Pat Falloon also scored for the Flyers, who had won three of their previous four games.

The Flyers capped their third-period rally on MacTavish's 30-foot blast from the high slot at 13:00. MacTavish's fifth goal of the season tied the game at 4-4.

Dallas had a two-goal lead after two periods but Falloon narrowed the gap to 4-3 1:25 into the final period with his 18th on a wrist shot from the top of the left circle.

Lindros scored his second of the game at 13:40 of the second period when he knocked in his own rebound, narrowing Dallas' lead to 3-2.

But the Stars boosted their advantage to 4-2 with 2:21 left in the second period when Modano backhanded the rebound of Ledyard's shot past Ron Hextall.

BLUES: Team now has Cup expectations

(From 1C)

He could arguably be considered the most important player in the history of hockey.

The centerpiece of four Stanley Cup teams in Edmonton, Gretzky's number 99 was a synonym for "great" in Canada, and his impact on a city and nation was greater.

Edmonton was a relatively new boom town predicated on oil. But the Oilers hockey team became its greatest natural resource, and Gretzky a national hero who received more mail than Canada's prime minister.

Edmonton had been called the "city of champions" for its various sports accomplishments, and it would be unfair to say that Gretzky put the town on the map. But the Oilers became the city's proudest export and main tourist attraction, thanks to Gretzky, who was always embarrassed by his nickname, but hardly ever failed to live up to it.

Surrounded by some of the finest talents the game has ever known, Gretzky was the cover boy for a high-powered Oilers team for 10 years. He had the most recognized face in hockey, its most lucrative contract and its most sought-after autograph.

He scored at adding-machine totals, breaking the 200-point barrier four times. His staggering numbers created headlines for a league hungry for publicity. And he arrived on the scene at an opportune time — just when broadasts of the game were starting to expand.

Gretzky quickly became a reference point for his own records.

His accomplishments were such a quantum leap statistics-wise, it was something that could be communicated to even the most casual hockey fan. Here was a player who was scoring regularly in the 200-point range when the previous yardstick for measuring a great player was 100 points.

Gordie Howe, Bobby Orr and Bobby Hull all made an impact on the sport, but not even those illustrious players could pierce the public consciousness like Gretzky. None had Gretzky's public relations power, charisma or international reputation.

Gretzky's 92 goals and 215 points in a season are league records. He has long since broken Howe's career record of 801 goals, and his expanding record point total is now well over 2,500. For the 1980s, he practically took personal possession of the NHL's scoring and MVP trophies.

He was at the top of his game when the unthinkable happened — he was traded from Edmonton to Los Angeles. And while Canada mourned the loss of its darling, the NHL saw it as a coup.

With Gretzky going to Los Angeles, he not only could awaken a dormant franchise, he could wake up a whole league by opening up expansion in warm-weather sites. That's exactly what happened.

The United States had been generally blase about hockey before Gretzky arrived in Los Angeles. He made a difference.

If not for Gretzky, it's quite probable there would be no expansion teams in Anaheim and San Jose today. Or even in Florida and Texas, for that matter.

Now that the West has been won, the Great One hopes to conquer new horizons.

Even though he's past his prime at 35, no one will doubt that he can.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

THURSDAY, FEBRUARY 29, 1996

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Do less, but do it really well. Curb a tendency to bite off more than you can chew. Teamwork is the key to getting ahead. Delegate authority to trustworthy subordinates. Artistic and creative types will receive new financial support as the year progresses. Develop an idea further before presenting it to higher-ups. Vacation travel may have to be postponed while you work on an exciting assignment. Temporary sacrifices will be rewarded.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DAY: actor Dennis Farina, actress Michele Morgan, baseball manager Al Rosen, bandleader Jimmy Dorsey.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): An overdue message could make this an A-1 day! There is no need to walk on eggshells or act hard-boiled. Good news centers around a romance or events taking place at a distance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A new project or duty is your vehicle to stardom. It pays to clarify team goals and each player's role in ensuring victory. Let your actions reflect what you feel in your heart. Romance soars!

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You are an ingenious business manager who knows the score. Take direct action on several fronts. Pay more attention to psychic promptings and intuitive hunches.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Romance occupies your thoughts. As you receive new information, someone's motives and objectives become clear. Take the initiative in your personal relationships.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your smooth style and excellent timing put you in the swing of things today. Bright ideas abound; take steps to protect yours. Romance brightens when you adopt a more confident approach.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): A good day to review accounts and catch up on your bookkeeping. Family members can help if you tell them exactly what you need. Finding common ground with a co-worker is not easy. Try harder.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): The sure path to success becomes slippery. Keep your footing by checking the accuracy of the information you are given. Refuse to act without proof.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Knowing the ropes puts you at an advantage now. You could receive a substantial pay raise. Give some thought to purchasing a car. Clear communication is vital at place of employment.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You will make swifter progress if you do not fret over your workload. Do everything you can to clear away a web of confusion. If a real estate deal is pending, settle it this afternoon.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Be practical in money matters. Even minor repairs will make your home more comfortable. Paying closer attention to detail will prove highly beneficial.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): You could receive something of a shock at work. Take any changes that are announced, in stride. Stick to the task at hand instead of chatting with co-workers. Those who gossip will waste valuable time.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Use your negotiating skills to gain long-term benefits. An older person has played a major role in your professional and personal life. Try not to be thrown by a change in your relationship.

Many hands hinge on the ability of one side or the other to gain control of the trump suit. Follow the play of this deal.

Note that the Moysian 4-3 spade fit offers the only chance for game. Even so, we would have liked to see how the auction would have progressed had West made a takeout double over the one-spade response. Assuming four spades could be made, East-West have a profitable save in clubs.

West led the king of clubs, then shifted to a trump. Declarer made a superb play to render the defenders helpless by playing low from dummy and allowing East's nine to win the trick! The contract could no longer be touched. Declarer can win any red-suit return in hand, arrange a club ruff on the table, then draw trumps and run diamonds for 10 tricks. (If East reverts to clubs, declarer ruffs in dummy, cashes the ace of trumps then comes to hand with the king of diamonds or ace of hearts to draw the rest of the trumps.)

The defenders can wrest control of the hand easily enough. West should simply continue with the ace of clubs, forcing dummy to ruff. As long as East waits to ruff the fourth diamond, declarer will have to concede a trump and two hearts in addition to the club the defense has already banked.

What if, after ruffing the club, declarer ducks a trump? East wins and perseveres with clubs. No matter in which hand declarer ruffs, East must score another trump trick trick and a heart.

Alan Arkin to star in movie based on kidnapping of U.S. ambassador

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil — Alan Arkin is in Rio to star in a Brazilian movie based on the real-life kidnapping of a U.S. ambassador.

The movie is based on a book by one of the kidnappers, who is now a federal congressman for the Green Party.

Arkin will play Charles Elbrick, who was abducted by leftist guerrillas in 1969 and used to negotiate the release of political prisoners held by right-wing generals. Filming starts March 8.

NEW YORK — Six weeks of the "Jim J. and Tammy Faye Show" was about all Tammy Faye Messner could take.

Tammy Faye Messner quits syndicated TV show.

The former wife of disgraced evangelist Jim Bakker has quit the syndicated TV show, saying the workload was too much as she deals with the difficulties of her current husband, Roe Messner, who awaits sentencing for bankruptcy fraud.

"The rigorous taping schedule and the stress that comes with a national television show is more than I can handle at this personally difficult time," Mrs. Messner said Tuesday in a statement.

She said she also wants to spend more time promoting an inspirational infomercial and finishing her book.

The Los Angeles-based show airs in about half of the country's TV markets. Ann Abernethy will succeed Mrs. Messner as Jim J. Bullock's co-host.

HUNTINGTON, W.Va. — Soupy Sales got a plaza in his name instead of a pie in the face.

The comic's hometown named a plaza in front of the city's civic arena in honor of Sales, who gained fame taking pies in the face on his own TV show in the late 1950s and early '60s.

"This is very emotional for me because you usually have to be dead before they do something like this," he said Tuesday. "But I've died in clubs before."

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — James R. Schlesinger, a former secretary of defense and energy, donated $1 million to Northern Virginia Community College to build an arts and cultural center in memory of his wife.

It will be named the Rachel M. Schlesinger Concert Hall & Arts Center. Mrs. Schlesinger died in October of cancer. Schlesinger announced the gift Tuesday, on what would have been her 66th birthday.

Mrs. Schlesinger was an accomplished violinist. She played with the Arlington Symphony Orchestra and was a member of its board.

Schlesinger served as defense secretary for Presidents Nixon and Ford in 1973 and 1974. President Carter appointed him the nation's first secretary of energy.

* * *

LOS ANGELES — They are TV icons: Mrs. Olson. Mr. Whipple. The Maytag Repairman. The Clapper Lady. And Rodney Allen Rippy.

At 3 1/2, Rippy conquered America with his adorable, wide-mouth attempt to eat a Jack-in-the-Box Jumbo Jack hamburger.

Twenty-four years later, he's still stuck with the burger image.

Rippy, now 27, works as a news coordinator and producer for KABC-TV.

"I think people just get a bigger kick out of seeing me. I'll get invited down to auditions and people will say, 'Wow! You still look the same.' I have to tell them, 'Forget about that. Just give me the job!'" he said. "I still have to prove I can do more than just bite a burger."

* * *

"Ted Turner has been particularly energetic in describing what I'm all about. And I appreciate his help. Ted, last week, called me 'the schlockmeister.' To this, I guess I must plead guilty ... if your idea of 'schlock' is 'The X-Files,' the Times of London, NFL football, 'The Simpsons,' Sky or Star broadcasting, our Fox educational children's programs, NHL hockey, feature films like 'Waiting to Exhale.' ... We do, however, draw the line at professional wrestling and brown-nosing foreign dictators. You'll have to turn to Ted's channels to see that. I'm reminded of something Disraeli once said to a colleague in Parliament: 'Honorable sir, it's true that I am a low, mean snake. But you, sir, could walk beneath me wearing a top hat.'"

— Rupert Murdoch in a speech at the National Press Club on Monday.

Carpal tunnel syndrome common

By Jane E. Brody
N.Y. Times News Service

Even surgeons now agree that conservative therapy is the best approach, with surgery reserved for the small percentage of patients who do not improve sufficiently without it. (Dr. Houshang) Seradge advises against any use of the injured hand in the first week to 10 days of treatment. Even ringing a doorbell, pushing a shopping cart or holding a cup increases pressure and delays healing.

Carpal tunnel syndrome has plagued workers for more than 100 years, but not until it struck the nation's reporters and editors with a vengeance did this debilitating disorder of the wrist, hand and arm become a household word.

It is now recognized to afflict nearly two million workers and to cost American business an estimated $20 billion a year.

And with millions of schoolchildren growing up using computers, more and more jobs being done on computers, millions of adults abandoning the United States mail for E-mail and growing numbers of people signing on to the Internet every day, there is a pressing need for preventive attention and simpler correctives. Even now, experts estimate the average person faces as much as a 1 in 10 chance of eventually developing it.

CARPAL TUNNEL syndrome began to get attention when hundreds of reporters and editors who spent almost their entire workday on a computer were suddenly afflicted.

The syndrome, caused by repetitive physical stress, previously had mainly been known among blue-collar workers: meat cutters, construction workers, jackhammer operators, carpenters, assembly-line workers, upholsterers and sewing machine operators. More recently, it has become a problem for supermarket cashiers who use scanners.

It also occurred among dental hygienists, pianists and violinists, knitters and crocheters, baseball pitchers and bank tellers. But not journalists, not, at least, when they pounded out their copy on typewriters.

The first symptoms are tingling and numbness in the fingers, which progresses to aching or shooting pains and weakness in the hand and forearm. A common early warning sign, awakening at night with numbing, tingling pains engulfing the hand and arm, is rarely recognized for what it is because it occurs unrelated to the daytime stress.

The syndrome results from pressure on the median nerve, where it, nine tendons and a number of blood vessels pass through a narrow tunnel in the wrist created by bones and a ligament.

Anything that causes the tissues in the tunnel to swell, including pregnancy, thyroid disease and oral contraceptives, can compress the nerve.

It was hard at first for writers and editors to believe they could get hurt sitting at a desk and typing. Many ignored the early symptoms of carpal tunnel trouble until it became so bad they could no longer do their jobs or much of anything else that involved hands and manual dexterity or strength. Many required long rehabilitation or surgery to release the pressure on the nerve. And some had permanent nerve damage.

But the enormous amount of attention the condition then received, including several books, countless newspaper articles and a cover article in Time magazine, "Crippled by Computers," spawned intense medical interest and a new industry of computer ergonomics.

PHYSICAL THERAPISTS, orthopedic surgeons and ergonomics experts have not wasted any time in coming up with alternatives to abandoning the computer. They start with posture. Never has sitting up straight, with good support for your back, been more important. Poor posture creates added stress on your arms and wrists. Feet should be flat on the floor, elbows close to the body, forearms parallel to the ground, wrists unbent and not resting on anything and hands in a straight line with the forearm. The computer screen should be at eye level or require no more than a 15-degree downward bend of the head.

Frequent short breaks from the computer are crucial: 15 minutes of rest for every two hours at the keyboard. Get up, walk around, stretch. Massage the palm side of each hand and fingers with the thumb of the other hand.

At the annual meeting of the American Academy of Orthopaedic Surgeons in Atlanta this week, Dr. Houshang Seradge of the University of Oklahoma Health Sciences Center suggested that a five-minute series of simple exercises be done at the start of each work shift and after each break. The exercises reduce the pressure in the carpal tunnel. Each is done for a count of five and the series is repeated 10 times.

START BY bending the wrist and fingers upward (as if in a handstand position), then straighten the wrists and relax the fingers. Next, make a tight fist with both hands, then bend the wrists down while keeping the fists, then straighten the wrists and relax the fingers.

More general preventives include maintaining a normal body weight and getting regular exercise, which delay aging of the nerves, and avoiding sleeping with wrists flexed or with a hand under the head, which puts pressure on the median nerve.

Even surgeons now agree that conservative therapy is the best approach, with surgery reserved for the small percentage of patients who do not improve sufficiently without it. Seradge advises against any use of the injured hand in the first week to 10 days of treatment. Even ringing a doorbell, pushing a shopping cart or holding a cup increases pressure and delays healing.

Standard conservative treatment, which lasts at least several weeks, involves wearing a wrist brace and splint, especially at night, and taking an anti-inflammatory medication.

SOME THERAPISTS also say that supplements of vitamin B6 — 150 to 200 milligrams a day — can sometimes relieve the symptoms of carpal tunnel syndrome, particularly in women who are pregnant or taking birth control pills and who may be deficient in this vitamin.

For the small percentage of patients who fail to get adequate relief from conservative treatment, more direct measures are needed. Last week, at the surgeons' meeting, Dr. J. Lee Berger, who is affiliated with Seton Hall Graduate School of Medicine in West Orange, N.J., described a minimally invasive procedure to reduce pressure on the median nerve. He inserts a balloon catheter, like those used in angioplasty to open clogged arteries, through a quarter-inch incision under the ligament of the carpal tunnel. The balloon is then inflated, stretching the ligament and making more room for the nerve. Berger reported that 85 percent of 120 patients had marked improvement after this procedure.

Earlier this year, Dr. Michael I. Weintraub, a neurologist from Briarcliff Manor, N.Y., described a noninvasive laser treatment to stimulate the nerve and relieve symptoms of carpal tunnel syndrome. In a preliminary study, he said the response rate was better than 70 percent.

IN A MULTICENTER study of more than 500 patients, Dr. Daniel J. Nagle of Northwestern University Medical School found that operating through a scope instead of opening the wrist, as is done in conventional surgery, could shorten recovery time and speed a return to work and normal activities.

Several informative books have been written about carpal tunnel syndrome and other repetitive stress disorders, including:

"The Hand Book," by Stephanie Brown (Ergonome, 1993, $19.95), is a well-illustrated "hands-on" guide to avoiding computer injury. It can be purchased along with a poster from Ergonome, 145 West 96 Street, New York, N.Y. 10025, for an additional $4 for shipping and handling. The company has also produced a software version of the keyboard method described in the book "KeyMoves." It is available in both Windows and Macintosh versions for $29.95, plus $5 for shipping and handling.

"Repetitive Strain Injury: A Computer User's Guide," by Dr. Emil Pascarelli and Deborah Quilter (John Wiley & Sons, 1994, $14.95), is a comprehensive guide dealing with many common repetitive stress injuries.

"Relief from Carpal Tunnel Syndrome and Other Repetitive Motion Disorders," by Norra Tannenhaus (Dell Medical Library, 1991, $3.99), is a handly little paperback. If it is not available in stores, ordering information is available from Dell Readers Service, Box DR, 666 Fifth Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10103.

DEAR ABBY

Teen who's hard to handle needs firmer grip from his father

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I am living with a man I'll call Steve and his 17-year-old son, "Charles." We plan to marry in four months. I love Steve very much, but I can't handle Charles. I lived with my stepmother from the time I was 11 until I was an adult, and believe me, I know what it's like.

Van Buren

Charles' mother lives nearby. She's a heavy drinker, which is why she can't keep him, and he doesn't want to live with her. At first, everything went fairly well. I tried hard to get along with Charles, but he took advantage of me. I recently put my foot down, and now I'm the "wicked old witch."

Charles dropped out of school, stays out all night, has girlfriends spend the night, and his bedroom is so filthy the door must remain closed because of the smell. He works full time, and I feel that if he's not going to school, then he should pay rent and do his share around the house. That was the rule when I was growing up, and it worked.

Part of my problem is that I can't get his father to enforce any rules; when I try to talk to him, he either says, "Well, Charles is only 17" or, "I don't want to talk about it." It's putting a strain on our relationship.

Abby, I am childless, so maybe I am too strict. I was not raised the way Charles is being raised — meaning no control at all!

I've loved Steve for six years and I don't want to lose him. Abby, am I being a "wicked witch"? — TIME BOMB IN MESA, ARIZ.

DEAR TIME BOMB: Charles is screaming for help. His mother is an alcoholic, his father can't control him, and you are without parental experience. What you are attempting to do for Charles is correct — but he may not appreciate it for years. Go to the library for books on stepparenting and blended families.

Also, make an appointment with a family counselor and insist that Steve and Charles go with you, and don't take "no" for an answer.

DEAR ABBY: My daughter's boyfriend gave her an engagement ring on St. Valentine's Day. They had been going together for three years, so it wasn't exactly a surprise to our family or his.

Well, her boyfriend's mother went ahead and put the announcement of their engagement in the local newspaper. Abby, my question to you is: Is it the business of the fiance's mother or the mother of the bride to put the announcement of the engagement in the local newspaper?

I am not going to sign my name because I don't want any hard feelings with my daughter's future mother-in-law. She is a very nice person, but she did this without saying anything to me about it. — MOTHER OF THE BRIDE

DEAR MOTHER OF THE BRIDE: The etiquette authorities on whom I rely — Letitia Baldrige, Emily Post and Miss Manners — all agree that the mother of the bride should contact the local newspaper to publish the engagement announcement.

YOUR CHUCKLE FOR THE DAY: "The only reason I would take up jogging is so that I could hear heavy breathing again." — ERMA BOMBECK

DEAR ABBY: Whatever you say, I promised my sister I'd do.

My boyfriend, "Chuck," has been married three times and has children from all three marriages. Chuck told me he had married young the first time and just made "bad" choices the other two times.

Before I get in any deeper with Chuck, my sister suggested I call his ex-wives and get their side of the story. She also heard that he'd been engaged before. My sister says Chuck is bad news. I believe he is just the romantic type who jumped into these marriages after whirlwind romances with what turned out to be crazy women. What do you think? — BEING CAREFUL

DEAR BEING CAREFUL: Listen to your sister and chuck Chuck. Her advice is right on target.

What teens need to know about sex, drugs, AIDS, and getting along with peers and parents is in "What Every Teen Should Know." To order, send a business-sized, self-addressed envelope, plus check or money order for $3.95 ($4.50 in Canada) to: Dear Abby, Teen Booklet, P.O. Box 447, Mount Morris, Ill. 61054-0447. (Postage is included.)

'Living simple life' becoming too complicated

By Jon Hahn
N.Y. Times News Service

Just as we're being reminded how true happiness comes from worrying less and living with less, they come out with a gizmo that lets you warm up or cool down your car with a telephone call.

One more thing to deal with, more or less.

It's an electronic remote control thing that's not even remotely needed, unless you're still locked into that New Toy Syndrome. For $750, Clifford Electronics of Chatsworth, Calif., is marketing this so-called IntelliPage unit as the latest word in convenience.

Unlike existing remotes that turn on your car from, say, 400 feet, this one works like a regular electronic pager. You can dial up your car during a flight from New York and it will be running and all comfy warm — or cool — by the time you land in Washington, D.C. Or Seattle. But only if your car has automatic transmission.

It also can be programmed to raise or lower your convertible top.

For as many reasons as something like this might be convenient, I can counter with: Do we really need this much convenience?

As much as I cursed the wired remote on our vintage VCR, there was a certain simplicity about it. Having retired that old unit along with an even older television, we now find ourselves with a new VCR and TV and, of course, two truly remote remotes.

Neither of which we quite understand. Either of which is supposed to do the job of both. Neither of which can be found when needed.

And the basic truth is, we could live without them. Sort of.

I am tempted to put at least one foot into the Voluntary Simplicity movement, if only to force myself back into a less-complicated, less-cluttered lifestyle. But could I do this and still drive my new pickup truck? After all, I declined the automatic transmission, electric windows and door-lock option, but had to accept one with air-conditioning, tape deck and digital AM-FM radio.

We've lived all these years without a cellular phone, but the Heir Apparent gave me one for Christmas "so that Mom can find you when she needs you." That sounds fine, but so far, the only calls have reminded me to pick up milk and bread.

I could do all my gardening with a few simple hand tools, but that would mean not being able to crank-up my GartenPanzer mini-rototiller that churns 1.5 acres of garden or turf into planting bed in one fun-filled weekend afternoon.

I've learned to live without the Cuisinart in the kitchen, but only because it's broken. I love some of my new nonstick pots and pans, but there was something so simple about a heavy cast-iron frying pan or dutch oven.

The electric can opener we could live without, but the family dog would take that personally because he associates that noisy appliance with his supper time.

The automatic dishwasher is fine, but I find myself pre-rinsing and scrubbing off the heaviest grunge, just like the old days.

You could get on a real roll here, chucking those things you could live without ... did live without before they were invented, or you could afford them.

All right — I could not live without my cordless, hand-chuck, reversible electric driver-drill. But that, frankly, is because I hate extension cords more than I hated the wired VCR remote.

I lived fifty some years before I got the table saw. And almost as long without the remote-activated garage-door opener. Only for the past several years have I even had space enough in any garage to park a vehicle — mostly because those spaces were cluttered with stuff.

From only the briefest of explanations on this Voluntary Simplicity thing — which goes by other names — it holds for choosing as well as having. You can simplify your life if you consciously choose to get something, do something, have something.

Or, choose not to.

I choose not to think too much about it until after I take the new hammock out for spring and lie down in it as I choose not to clean the garage.

It isn't likely you will see these styles — or anything close to them — hanging on the the racks of favorite local stores or even at the latest social event. However, many designers enjoy creating these whimsical fashions for their seasonal shows. These haute couture ensembles are not styled with the idea that anyone will order one, but rather they are created as attention-getting devices that add sparkle, style and pizazz to the collections.

While these fashions may be considered outrageous by everyday standards, they still give a hint to what is in store for wearable spring fashions. Color this season will be like a rainbow revolution, with brilliant brights, snappy black and whites, rich melons and party pastels painting the palette. Even lush neutrals and stark whites will fit into the scheme.

Texture also is in demand with an exciting variety of fabrics being used for everything from suits to swimsuits.

Trade deficit hits 7-year high

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States suffered a $111.04 billion trade deficit last year, the worst in seven years. The deficit with Mexico was a record, a showing certain to energize foes of the administration's free-trade policies.

The Commerce Department's final tally on trade for 1995 showed the deficit with China also climbed to a record. But the imbalance with Japan, while still the largest for any country, shrank for the first time in four years.

The deficit in goods and services represented an increase of 4.5 percent from a 1994 gap of $106.21 billion. In goods alone, the imbalance was even worse, surging to an all-time high of $174.47 billion.

The administration, which has made trade the centerpiece of its foreign policy strategy, sought to play down the rising deficit and focus instead on the advantages the U.S. economy was receiving from rising exports.

Laura Tyson, head of the president's National Economic Council, U.S. Trade Representative Mickey Kantor and Commerce Secretary Ron Brown all held briefings to showcase the fact that for the first time in years, the growth rate in exports exceeded the percentage increase in imports.

Exports of goods and services were up 11.7 percent in 1995 to $783.66 billion while imports rose 10.8 percent to $894.70 billion. The trade deficit is the difference between imports and exports.

Tyson said that strong export gains were recorded for a wide range of American goods from poultry and wheat in the farm sector to computer chips and other advanced technology products.

Kantor said the gain in merchandise exports was the biggest in dollar terms in U.S. history and proved the success of Clinton's "tough trade policy that stands up for American workers and farmers."

But GOP presidential candidate Pat Buchanan, the administration's toughest trade critic, said the new government report highlighted the total failure of Clinton's policies.

Campaigning at a South Carolina textile factory forced to close because of import competition, Buchanan said the increase in the trade deficit meant "we just lost 2.2 million jobs last year."

Newcomers capture multiple Grammys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Alanis Morissette's "Jagged Little Pill" was named rock album and album of the year and her emotionally raw single "You Oughta Know" won two other awards as the Grammys embraced some cutting-edge music Wednesday night.

Seal's "Kiss from a Rose" won record and song of the year, and he was named best male pop vocal performance.

Mariah Carey, who entered the competition tied with Morissette's leading six nominations, won nothing — her traditional-sounding album "Daydream" failed to generate trophies in a year with the recording academy skewed to a not-so-romantic view of life.

Morissette's "You Oughta Know" won best rock song and female rock vocal performance.

With 1995's best-selling album "Cracked Rear View," Hootie won best new artist and pop group vocal performance for "Let Her Cry."

"You Oughta Know," with graphic sexual references, was performed word-for-word by Morissette on the Grammy stage but CBS bleeped out the most flagrant four-letter word.

"This award does not represent the fact that I'm better than any other women that were nominated with me but it does represent a lot of people connected to what I wrote ... and for that I'm grateful," Morissette said after receiving her trophy for female rock vocal performance.

Vince Gill, the trio TLC and Stevie Wonder also captured two Grammys apiece, Frank Sinatra scored his first victory in decades and Nirvana was saluted for its last effort before the death of leader Kurt Cobain.

A surprised Annie Lennox said she was honored to win a Grammy for the best female pop vocal performance in a year of so many strong performances by women artists.

Coolio won best rap solo for "Gangsta's Paradise." In perhaps the most meaningful acceptance speech, he addressed black and Hispanic students who have been engaged in brawls on a Los Angeles high school campus.

Most of the awards in the 88 categories were presented in a program before the CBS telecast with Ellen DeGeneres as host.

DeGeneres had her own edge, opening with off-color banter about a song title. "This is not your father's Grammys," she noted later in the telecast.

Sinatra captured his first competitive Grammy in 29 years. His "Duets II" was named best traditional pop vocal performance.

"It was a dream," said producer Phil Ramone, who picked up the Grammy for Sinatra.

Recording industry mentor Babyface, who worked with artists ranging from TLC to Vanessa Williams and Madonna, was honored as producer of the year.

Country's hot new star, Shania Twain, topped a competitive field to capture best country album for "The Woman in Me."

Vince Gill's "Go Rest High on That Mountain," written about his late brother Bob, was the heartfelt winner of best country song. "It's the first thing I've ever done that was really personal," Gill said.

In a posthumous honor to Cobain, the Seattle grunge band's leader, Nirvana won best alternative performance for "MTV Unplugged in New York."

In the increasingly important rap category, trophies went to Naughty by Nature for best album "Poverty's Paradise," and to Method Man featuring Mary J. Blige for group performance for "I'll Be There for You/You're All I Need to Get By."

In the rhythm and blues competition, TLC won group vocal performance for "Creep" and best album for "Crazysexycool." Stevie Wonder's "For Your Love" claimed best male vocal performance and best song. Anita Baker banked the female vocal performance trophy with "I Apologize."

There was diversity in the rock category. Tom Petty's "You Don't Know How it Feels" won male vocal performance, Blues Traveler's "Run-Around" took group vocal performance and the Allman Brothers' "Jessica" was the instrumental performance winner.

The metal performance Grammy went to Nine Inch Nails' "Happiness in Slavery." Pearl Jam's "Spin the Black Circle" was the best hard-rock performance.

GOP musical chairs: Forbes joins troika

WASHINGTON (AP) — With the deep-pocketed Steve Forbes back in the hunt, the Republican presidential race careens through a dozen states in the next week, a dizzying stretch of opportunity and peril for the three candidates atop the pack.

'Dole

From South Carolina and Georgia, to Maine, Massachusetts and Connecticut, and on to Maryland and Colorado, this next stretch will for the first time subject the candidates to a range of diverse electorates all at once.

Heading into South Carolina's vote on Saturday, Forbes, Pat Buchanan and Senate Majority Leader Bob Dole were clustered at the front. Forbes is the leader in delegates, but it is truly a race without a front-runner and one in which no prediction seems safe.

After all, just a week ago Lamar Alexander had the spot now occupied by Forbes in the top tier. He could lay claim to it again if he can engineer a strong showing in South Carolina. But he caused barely a ripple in the three states that voted Tuesday, and has scarce resources to compete with the personal fortune of a newly energized Forbes.

Buchanan

"We've still got a three-man race but, with a different three," said Republican pollster Ed Goeas. "A protracted three-man race is not good for Dole, and Forbes has the resources to hang in there."

Still, the Dole camp had some hope heading into this next stretch. For starters, Dole won North and South Dakota on Tuesday, lifting his spirits.

Also, Forbes won't be able to match the time and money he invested in Arizona, where an absentee ballot operation planned months ago and more than $4 million in television advertising were keys to his victory.

Buchanan also lost some steam in Arizona after boasting that victory was within sight. And nearly half the GOP primary electorate in the three states that voted Tuesday worried that Buchanan was too extreme to be president.

"We knew Buchanan motivated his voters but we are now seeing evidence that he is motivating people to vote against him, too," said Goeas.

Here is a candidate-by-candidate look at the terrain for the contests just ahead:

BOB DOLE: "The next big event is South Carolina," he said Wednesday. For him, South Carolina is a must-win primary for a boost heading into Georgia next Tuesday, which shapes up as Alexander's last stand. If Dole wins South Carolina, the next task will be to deny Forbes momentum heading into the March 7 New York primary. That would require wins almost everywhere on March 5, when Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Vermont hold primaries. Dole has backing from the GOP governors in South Carolina, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Massachusetts and New York, providing him valuable surrogates at a time candidates can't be in every target state.

Forbes

Still, Dole, once the overwhelming front-runner, has yet to win outside of his native Midwest.

PAT BUCHANAN: A disappointing third in Arizona makes a South Carolina win critical if he is to compete for the nomination and not just delegates. In 1992, Buchanan claimed to speak for the culturally conservative South but was crushed by President Bush in South Carolina, 67 percent to 26 percent, with Bush benefiting from the state GOP organization now in Dole's corner.

In South Carolina and Georgia, Buchanan is banking on deep support from Christian conservatives active in GOP affairs.

He hopes to lure "textile Democrats" into the South Carolina primary with attacks on free trade deals. On Wednesday, for example, he labeled Dole "the bellhop of the Business Roundtable" for supporting trade deals. Dole, Forbes and Alexander all back free trade, leaving Buchanan this niche.

STEVE FORBES: The "big Kahuna," in the words of his spokeswoman, is New York's March 7 primary. Forbes and Dole are on the ballot statewide; Buchanan qualified in about half the state. "New York is going to be Dole's firewall, he's got to win here," said state GOP Chairman William Powers. Forbes will spend heavily — along the way nudging Dole ever closer to the primary spending limit he faces because he accepts government matching funds.

While the South is tough territory for Forbes because of his views on social issues, Colorado, Maryland, and the New England primaries offer a chance to target more upscale, moderate-conservative voters with the flat tax and other Forbes proposals. A March 5 win or two would help heading into New York.

SERVICES TO ELIGIBLE PERSONS UNDER THE JOB TRAINING PARTNERSHIP ACT (JTPA)

The Permian Basin Private Industry Council is developing a grant application and program operating plan for the Permian Basin Region's employment and training programs for program year 1996 (July 1, 1996 through June 30, 1997). These will be submitted to the Texas Workforce Commission for review, comment, and approval for funding under the Workforce and Economic Competitiveness Act, Section 4.04 (c)(3), Section 4.05 as amended by HB 1863 and PL 102-367, Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) Reform Amendments.

The Title IIA and IIC Employment and Training Program is available to economically disadvantaged adults and youth (persons whose family income meets certain minimum levels set by the Federal government) and to other individuals as identified by the Private Industry Council. The program offers education and training services in the classroom or in the workplace. The estimated allocation for Title IIA is $948,830; the estimated allocation for Title IIC is $177,181. Approximately 376 adults and 70 youth will be served through these programs.

The Title III economic Dislocation and Worker Adjustment Assistance Program (EDWAA) offers basic readjustment and retraining services to dislocated workers (persons who have lost their jobs through economic circumstances over which they had no control). Approximately 227 dislocated workers will be served with an estimated funding allocation of $572,777.

Persons served by these programs must live in one of the following Permian Basin counties: Andres, Borden, Crane, Dawson, Ector, Gaines, Glasscock, Howard, Loving, Martin, Midland, Pecos, Reeves, Terrell, Upton, Ward, Winkler.

A summary of the program plan is available for review, between 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. Monday through Friday, upon request in advance. Inquiries or comments concerning these programs may be directed to Mr. Willis Taylor, Director, Employment and Training, Permian Basin Regional Planning Commission (915-563-1061).

The final plan will be available for review, upon request, April 12, 1996.
