SOVIET RAISES CRY OF IMPENDING WAR

Heroism Of Women Enables Rescue Of 168 In Big Hospital Fire

Home Town Talk

By B. D. D.

The deluge of new books has brought forth the observation that everybody who owns or can borrow a typewriter is writing a book. It's quite impossible even to read the reviews of all the new books, but if there is a flood of books many of them are well worth reading and the people are reading them.

And there never was so much talking—so many words—as are now being spoken. The radio, the dictaphone, the talkie, the lecture platform, conventions and conferences offer outlets for a veritable flood of talks and speeches, yet every once in a while somebody makes a talk or a speech well worth hearing.

"Bryan has passed away, Coolidge is silent, Hoover reads from a document, and despite Lloyd George, despite Borah, despite Briand and other oratorical mediocrities, there is no longer a Cicero to be heard," says P. W. Wilson, once a member of the British parliament, now an American journalist in lamenting the passing of oratory, in the current issue of the North American Review.

Loquacity, he says, has made speech the cheapest of commodities. "In earlier centuries a word really meant something," he points out. "If uttered it could be heard by only a handful of people. If recorded it had to be written with a pen on parchment or linen paper, and no mechanical duplication was possible. A man thought before he spoke. He thought a thousand times before he produced a manuscript."

The printing press, the typesetting machine, the radio and the talkie have made it easier a thousand fold to convey expression of thought, if any, but the very ease of expression has dulled its refinement.

The federal radio commission has extended the license of station KWKH owned by W. K. Henderson for a full 90 day period after finding that he had not violated his promise not to use profanity in broadcasting over the station. Talker avows there was no conscious association with this announcement and what he had been saying about books and speeches.

The reader doesn't have to go beyond this column to realize that talk is about the cheapest commodity of the day. Suppose for instance, Talker thought a thousand times before he hammered out this column. Well, Reader knows as well as Talker there would be no column. Suppose Talker had to think just once before writing how much would be left unwritten.

Somebody down in the state legislature suggested the other day that all those who opposed Governor Moody's plan to prison rehabilitation ought to resign and offer themselves for re-election. Somebody else proposed that Governor Moody resign and run for re-election on his prison plan.

It is rarely that issues are presented to the people in that manner. A multiplicity of issues are generally offered in our elections and there is seldom a clear cut mandate from the people on any single issue. After all ours is a representative form of government and we choose our governors and our legislators on their general fitness rather than their advocacy of something specific. Even if the legislators opposing and the governor favoring some specific issue were to resign and offer for re-election, that issue would be confused with others before election day. There isn't any better way than to vote for those whom we believe best qualified to represent us in such positions. But even so public opinion does exert a powerful influence and we admire the public official who makes an appeal to public opinion.

The Kansas City Star prints a story saying that President Hoover is in sympathy in his tariff views with the coalition of insurgents and Democrats. If he is he could make a 10 strike by saying so and helping put a tariff bill through. Our president has never yet appealed to public opinion and he doesn't realise how responsive it would be to courageous leadership.

Talker believes that public opinion is fairly well formed as to the tariff, it is against the schedules proposed by the regular Republicans. Public opinion is not so well formed regarding a rehabilitation plan for the Texas prison system. Governor Moody is not appealing to an opinion already formed. He knows this and that he has a difficult job in impressing his own views upon it. But this makes his effort to go to the people all the more courageous. Give him credit for that.

Screen's 'Child of Misfortune' Dies

Mabel Normand, Star of 'Mickey,' Claimed by Death

By DUANE HENNESSY

MONROVIA, Calif., Feb. 23. (UP)—Mabel Normand, whom film fans knew best as the comic "Mickey," died at 2:25 a. m. today in the Pottenger sanitarium, where for six months she had lain in the grip of tuberculosis.

The actress took a sudden turn for the worse just before midnight and at 1 a. m., her attendants knew that she could not live through the night.

"Miss Norman was conscious when she died, but so weak that she could not speak," her secretary, Mrs. Julia Binson, said.

"It was a blow. Up to 10 o'clock last night she had taken her nourishment as usual. Then she began to fail suddenly. We did not want to give up hope, but at 1 o'clock we realized that the end was not far away."

With Miss Normand when she died were only Mrs. Benson and a night nurse. The actress' husband, Lew Cody, screen actor, could not be reached before her death, so unexpected was the end.

Her mother, Mrs. Mary Normand, and her sister, Miss Gladys Normand, were to leave New York for Hollywood immediately by airplane.

The actress' body was taken to a Hollywood funeral parlor today.

ALARMS HALT MASS

Nuns and Nurses Remain Calm as Suffering Are Removed

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Feb. 23. (UP)—Heroism of nuns, nurses, firemen and policemen made possible the removal of 168 patients, including a dozen babies, when fire virtually destroyed St. Joseph's hospital here early today.

A sprained ankle, suffered by a fireman, was the sole casualty of a potential conflagration which, for a time, threatened to result in a heavy death toll.

Only the personal effects of patients were saved, and loss of the five-story building and its furnishings was expected to exceed a quarter of a million dollars.

Nurse Finds Fire

Miss Julia Harding, a nurse, was passing through a fifth-floor corridor shortly after 6 a. m. when she noted smoke emanating from a waste chute.

She ran to the telephone switchboard and shouted to operator Evelyn Welch:

"Hey, Welch! There's smoke coming out of the chute and I think there's a fire!"

While Miss Welch telephoned fire headquarters, Miss Harding hurried downstairs. Father Greeley, hospital chaplain, was celebrating mass in the ground-floor chapel when the the nurse burst into the room.

"There's a fire on the fifth floor," she yelled.

Babies Saved

Within 35 minutes, four alarms had been sounded, and 18 fire companies were on the scene. One hundred and twenty-five policemen were rushed to the hospital to aid in the rescue work.

The waste chute in which the fire originated was located near the children's and maternity wards.

While rescuers were removing 12 babies from the maternity ward to

Deaf Boxer Dies In Leap Made From Airplane In Effort To Regain Hearing

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Fred (Dummy) Mahan, welterweight boxer, from Tombstone, Ariz., plunged to his death here today in a 5,000-foot parachute jump from an airplane.

Mahan, a deaf-mute made the jump in an effort to regain his hearing. He had been deaf since he was eight months old.

Several thousand persons watched as he catapulted through the air from the airplane.

Only the pilot parachute opened as he fell from a plane piloted by Col. Harry Abbott, Berkeley aviator, inventor of a new type parachute which Mahan was using.

Colonel Abbott said after landing that Mahan pulled the rip-cord of the parachute too soon after jumping. The pilot parachute struck the stabilizer of the plane, hopelessly entangling the fighter, Abbott said.

The accident occurred almost directly over Mills field, San Francisco's municipal airport. The body fell in a meadow a short distance away.

Mahan was regarded as one of the outstanding welterweights in the country.

'RED' LEADERS PROFESS FEAR OF 'ATTACK'

Russian Communist Chiefs Claim Rest of World Is Hostile

ARMED FORCE READY

Speeches and Editorials Threatening in Tone And Text

MOSCOW, Feb. 23 (AP)—With celebration today of the 12th anniversary of the founding of the Red Army, Soviet newspapers and political leaders renewed the loud cry of "war." They appealed to the country to guard against the menace from imperialistic powers which were pictured as "jealous" of the Soviet's economic and industrial progress.

Communist authorities here appeared to entertain fear that the Soviet's European neighbors intend, in concert, to inaugurate either economic measures against their government, or a direct military attack. This war scare has become immeasurably intensified by the present campaign abroad against the Soviet government for its attitude respecting religion.

"Barrel of Powder"

"All the forces of reaction throughout the world are mobilized against the Soviet union, which is going full speed ahead toward socialism," declared Izvestia in a flaming front page editorial "the pope, the archbishop of Canterbury, the French police, the English diehards, socialists, fascists, foreign counterfeiters of Soviet money, and the German Bourgeoisie have united into one holy union to launch new bandit attacks upon our country.

"But the rulers of capitalistic Europe forget they are dancing the 'Cancan' on a barrel of powder We will remain firm and calm, watching this dance of dying capitalism. In our country all workers and peasants are convinced of the final results of the struggle between Bolshevism and capitalism.

Peasants "Ready"

"They want peace themselves, but if the enemy directs his guns on the land of the proletarian dictatorship each worker and peasant will consider it an honor to participate in the victorious marches of the Red Army in order to destroy the class enemy."

Naval Conference Has Collapsed, Writer for Daily Mail Declares

LONDON, Feb. 23. (UP)—H. J. Greenwall, special correspondent for the Daily Express, declared tonight the five-power naval conference had collapsed.

The collapse probably will be denied by the official spokesman for the British delegation, but it nevertheless is a fact.

"The naval conference of 1930 has failed, like the Geneva conference of 1927, because of insufficient preparation."

Greenwall said the four invited powers were astonished when they arrived at London and found no agenda prepared. He added the conference suffered from too much optimism ever since September, when Premier J. Ramsay MacDonald told the League of Nations assembly a complete Anglo-American agreement was in sight.

Foreign Minister Dino Grandi of Italy may not return from Rome, where he went last week, Greenwall said. The French are facing a serious cabinet crisis which may last longer than the conference already has lasted, and the Japanese are bored.

Thereupon, Greenwall asserted, the conference will end with the five powers blaming each other for failure.

The one-time service station operator and sailor, who after becoming mayor of Newbury Port served part of his first term in the city bastille for various infractions of Massachusetts law placed himself on the matrimonial market with the assertion "It's a great break for some girl."

The mayor proved himself no gentleman—at least by Anita Loos' standard—in the next breath by adding: "Blondes won't do."

Gillis said he would spend a week in San Francisco, where he will arrive tomorrow, looking over the prospects there. As to Hollywood "I'm saving the girls there for reserve."

The Newbury Port mayor described his own qualifications for the wife-hunt as: "Aged 33, healthy as they make them, and a darn fine fellow."

Election officials and balloting places will also be outlined in the resolution. In addition to Mr. Nelson's announcement for mayor, J. W. Hunt and J. N. Prothro have announced for places as aldermen.

Independent Oil Men to Seek Aid Of Farmers, Land Owners and Cities

FORT WORTH, Feb. 23. (AP)—Independent oil producers who yesterday effected permanent organization as the Independent Petroleum Association of Texas planned today to enlist the support of farmers, land owners, chambers of commerce, university officials and public officials in a launching a legislature program against what they termed the "strangled hold of pipe line companies" on the crude oil market.

Headed by Tom Cranfill of Dallas, president, the independents planned to send a train load of members to Austin Thursday to lobby for relief measures.

Speakers heard here yesterday in the general meeting and in the subsequent meeting of the board of directors said the crude oil price cuts had hit their business a vital blow. They declared the price cut had also reduced the revenue of the state from the gross production tax alone more than $1,250,000 annually more than the amount of revenue the legislature now in session

Detectives Escorting 'Fun Slayer' To New York Escape Guns and Knife

NEW YORK, Feb. 23, (US)—Two New York detectives, bringing James Bakerien, 23, confessed slayer of nine men, arrived here today from Detroit, white-faced, but alive.

They were haggard after a sleepless night during which they had discovered that Bakerien, heavily armed, had planned to add them to his roster of victims. He had planned to kill them at Pittsburgh, and also anybody on the train or station platform who might obstruct his escape.

Two pistols and a stiletto, obtained in Detroit from some source, were discovered on his person Saturday night as Detectives George Fitzpatrick and Arthur M. Horey, preparing to retire, casually decided to search their man.

His agile mind hit on Pittsburgh for the scene of his proposed double murder because there "I have friends," he said to his captors. He added:

"I'm going to burn, anyhow, and I had nothing to lose by bumping off you guys."

The two loaded guns and knife were discovered a few hours out of Detroit, where he had been captured last week.

Hambone's Meditations

SOVIET MAKES CRY OF 'WAR'

Red Leaders Fear Attack From Outside

dented in its fury, hatred, extent, and forms, and is the precursor of an armed attack by the capitalistic states.

K. E. Voroshiloff, who displaced Leon Trotzky as head of the Red army, warned that the Red army must ever be ready to repel foreign invasion. He called attention to the fact that foreign armies, including the American, have grown enormously in recent years.

America's Strength

"The United States now has 155 heavy machine guns and 792 small machine guns," he says, "whereas in 1924 it had only 24 heavy machine guns. The American army now has 121 large field guns, whereas in 1913 it only had 24.

"The air forces of all countries have steadily grown. France has 2,000 airplanes as compared with 1,550 in 1924. England has 1,350 as against 600 in 1924. [illegible] bordering countries have a total of 685 airplanes compared with 275 in 1924."

"There has been a similar growth of armored tanks among nations of the world. France has 2,000 such tanks, while England and the United States have 500 each. In case of war these countries can have their present industries produce an enormous number of additional tanks. For instance, England could produce monthly no less than 2,350 tanks, France 2,250, and the United States an even greater number.

Await Developments

"We must offset this menace in every way possible. The Red army, on the threshold of its 13th anniversary, together with 150 million people of our socialistic country, will watch with complete calmness the developments of events outside our country, in the conscious knowledge of the invincible power of our army. That army will be ready at any moment with arms to repel any foreign assault."

"We are creating a first-class military power," I. S. Unshlikht, assistant commissar for war, declared. "We are preparing millions for a future war with capitalism, but we must not forget that the chief requisite of victory is the rallying of the masses of the world around the banners of communism, world revolution, and the proletarian dictatorship."

Izvestia, the Soviet government's newspaper, said:

"The Red army, in fighting capitalism, will be supported by the exploited and oppressed masses of the world. The Red army will fight on behalf of all working classes regardless of nationality and color. We ask our enemies to consider this when plotting intervention."

Army Improved

Clemence Voroshilov, commissar for war:

"The army improved tremendously in 1929. During the last year it brilliantly met two tests of strength —the repulsion of the Masmatchi raiders into Turkestan and the crushing of the Chinese forces in Manchuria."

The revolutionary military council asked that the Red army "will answer every blow with a rain of blows."

CLERGY ATTACKS RELIGIOUS POLICY

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP)—The religious policy of Soviet Russia, termed "persecution" by Christian and Jewish leaders of Europe and the United States, today was attacked from the pulpits of churches and synagogues in New York as a prelude to the concerted protest which will begin in earnest three weeks hence.

Despite the designation of March 16 by the heads of several denominations as the date for universal prayers for cessation of anti-religious activities in Russia, many pastors and rabbis made the subject the theme of their sermons today.

March 16 has been set aside by Pope Pius, the Archbishops of York and Canterbury, heads of the Episcopal church in England; Bishop William T. Manning, of the Episcopal diocese of New York; Archbishop Platon, metropolitan of the Russian orthodox church in America, and other religious leaders. The New York federation of churches also has selected the day for prayer and protest. March 2 is the day set by the united Lutheran church for concerted prayer and protest.

The American Tract society announced today it was furnishing tracts in Russian, the counteract the movement of the Soviet authorities to make Russia a "Godless country." The organization said it had distributed 12,000 tracts in Russia already and was sending 24,000 more to its missionaries, "who are carrying on their work in spite of the drastic restrictions of the authorities."

The society refused to reveal the locations of the missionaries on the ground that there is "danger to those who are risking their lives to get the gospel."

Religion Called Ultimate Source Of National Welfare in Talk Here

Taking as a basis for his talk the chaotic conditions in the history of Mexico, John Daniel Barron addressed the Kay Bible class Sunday on the subject, "The Ultimate Source of a Nation's Well-Being." A crowd of 140 persons heard the talk. The talk by Mr. Barron was supplemented by a description of bull fights witnessed recently by N. H. Martin in Mexico City.

The key-note of Mr. Barron's address was struck when he said, "The ultimate source of any nation's well-being is its religion." Financial enterprise, the basis for many estimates of the strength of a nation, was shown to be without worth unless the character of the people is strong and stable, and character was pointed out as an outgrowth of religion.

History of Tragedies

Mr. Barron's address follows:

"One's heart grows sick in the reading of any impartial history of Mexico. It is a country whose history is one long series of pitiable tragedies. Its present national life touches the heart of every sympathetic person who reads about it, or comes in contact with it. Here we find a people the masses of whom are unsurpassed in immorality of every degrading sort; who are the victims of the worst sort of vice imaginable to the depraved mind of man. Two thirds of her people are hopelessly illiterate—unable to read and write. Her government is weak, hated by large groups, and unstable. The masses of the people, while living in the midst of plenty, live in abject poverty that robs life of its beauty. Its people migrate in order to live at all. Its sports are cruel, inhuman and dehumanizing, as is illustrated by the bull fights which Mr. Martin has described for us so vividly this morning. There is no sense of fair play; no sportmanship, no elevating aspect of the whole procedure. Their sports, which give a remarkable insight into their inner life, remind one of what a football game would be like between the lions and tigers in the wilds of Africa.

Resources Aplenty

"How can we account for this backwardness and loathsomeness in the life of our Mexican brethren?

"We cannot account for it in the lack of maternal resources with which to build a great nation. She has million of acres of virgin soil, and millions scarcely touched with her system of antiquated agriculture. She has millions of acres of fine timber. Her oil resources are abundant. The two greatest oil refineries in the world are in Mexico. Her annual export of oil amounts to 50 to 115 million barrels. The climate of this country is ideal for a great civilization. She has all the heart could desire in the way of outlets to the seas. In short, Mexico is blessed with all the material resources necessary to build one of the leading civilizations of the world.

"What, then, more than anything else, has held these people in a semi-civilized state while the countries to the north were building great and powerful nations? I answer without apology to any one that it has been the type of religion which has dominated the national life from the time of Cortez, 1519, to this good hour. The history of Christianity in Mexico is the most shameful in the world. The church of this country has shamefully exploited the people for over four centuries. It has failed to affect in the lives of the people any of the principles of Christ. It has stood for ignorance and successfully resisted progress on every hand. The future salvation of the Mexican people depends upon the elimination of the present type of religion and the substitution of a real, genuine, elevating religion.

Religion as Stabilizer

"The ultimate source of any nation's well-being is its religion. This puts to constructive use the resources of the country. Some one has said that the strength of a community is determined by the strength of its banks. In a sense this is true. But it is also true that the strength of a bank is determined by the character of the men who own and direct it. Capital without public confidence is weakness. Locks and keys do not insure our money in the local banks, it is the character of the men to whom we entrust it. So it is with a nation. Its strength resides in the character of its people, and religion is the only force we know of which will give great stability to character. Wherever religion is degenerate in the life of a people there is instability and ultimate chaos. Wherever religion is of an exalted type the character of the nation where it exists will be exalted.

"We do not claim for our country a perfect civilization. God knows there are things in it that ought not to be there. But the contrast between ours and that of our brethren in Mexico is enough to stab our minds awake to the fact that we have much to thank God for. Our Pilgrim fathers came to this wilderness in search of God rather than in search of gold, as did the Spaniards who came to Mexico. Our fathers founded our government and institutions upon Christian ideals in the main. They were mostly religious men. They forged Christian ideals and principles into the warp and the woof of our civilization, and made it what it is today. A man in this country could as easily escape the blessings of sunshine as he could the blessings of the Christian religion which has played so large a part in the making of our country one of the greatest in the history of the world.

ALL SAVED IN HOSPITAL FIRE

Heroism of Nuns and Nurses Allows Rescue

the fourth floor. Internes rushed to the fourth-floor room directly below the children's ward where anaesthetics were stored.

Thirty tanks of nitrous oxide, said by hospital physicians to contain enough explosive to blow up the city of Providence were removed and taken beyond the danger area.

Records Saved

Sister Bonno-Donna risked her life in a fruitless attempt to rescue the hospital records from a room on the fifth floor. Though partly overcome by smoke she was still trying to pry open the record cabinets when firemen discovered her. She struggled with them and they finally had to drag her from the building.

The records were salvaged later by Dr. Thomas Jackvony of the hospital staff, who, at the height of the fire, groped his way to the fifth-floor room and reached safety unassisted.

Hoseman Frank Main was the victim of the only casualty attending the fire. He suffered a sprained ankle when he slipped on a water-soaked floor.

Despite the excitement that marked the rescues, practically all patients remained calm. Patrolman Thomas H. Clay, carrying an elderly patient to safety, asked: "Are you nervous?" The patient replied: "I'm not a damned bit nervous for I know everybody will be all right."

Among the patients rescued was a Mrs. Amaral, who had given birth to a baby only 20 minutes before the hospital became enveloped in flames. She was transferred to the Homeopathic hospital where later both she and the baby were reported "doing nicely."

Flames did not reach the nurses' home, across the street, and the internes' home, in the rear of the hospital, was only slightly damaged by water.

LAREDO, Texas, Feb. 23. (AP)—This city's annual Washington's birthday fiesta had an international finale today as it shifted across the Rio Grande to Nuevo Laredo in Mexico today for the final event, a bull fight in which four bulls were conquered by the matador, Fregald Barrera.

The last event on the American side was a horse show featuring races, held at Fort McIntosh, the army post near here. Band concerts were held tonight on the plazas of both Laredo and Nuevo Laredo.

DEATH CLAIMS SCREEN STAR

Mabel Normand Dies of Tuberculosis

announced at the Pottenger sanitarium, an exclusive and secluded establishment, for a number of hours after it occurred. Miss Normand's health had been failing for the last three years. After several spells of illness first diagnosed as bronchial pneumonia, Miss Normand was removed to the sanitarium from her Santa Monica home.

Her marriage to Lew Cody occurred after a party in Beverly Hills. Hollywood said that the marriage would not last, but it did.

Cody was in seclusion in his Beverly Hills home tonight. He had not left the house since receiving word of his wife's death. His secretary said that he was too shocked to see anyone.

Mrs. Benson, who had been Miss Normand's companion for seven years, took charge of early arrangements, but said no funeral plans would be made until the arrival of the mother and sister from New York.

"I was too close to Miss Normand to ever know how near to death she was," Mrs. Benson said. "I didn't want to believe that she was going to die. She was brave and wanted so badly to live. She was so game after the blood transfusion two weeks ago.

"At the last she lay there, unable to speak, her arms crossed on her breast. I whispered prayers in her ear. Then she died."

Mrs. Benson said she believed Miss Normand's age was 36.

Unwelcome notoriety had dogged the actress through the last years of her life and she died believing herself a "true child of misfortune."

The success which Mabel Normand built step by step was torn down by a series of unfortunate complications in recent years.

The mysterious murder of William Desmond Taylor, film director, in 1922, put her name in newspaper headlines all over the world as the last known person who was with the director in the little Hollywood bungalow where he was found murdered the following morning.

Again, at a New Year's party in 1924, her name flashed into the limelight. Courtland S. Dines, wealthy clubman, was shot and seriously wounded by the actress' chauffeur, Horace A. Greer. Miss Normand said at the time that she was unaware of her driver's motive for the shooting.

The incident brought Will Hays, the film czar, to Hollywood to investigate. For a time it seemed that Miss Normand's picture would be barred by some organizations throughout the country, but then Dines recovered and the incident was put aside.

On Nov. 20, 1924, Mabel Normand lost a libel suit brought against Mrs. Georgia W. Church. The actress had asked $500,000 because Mrs. Church had named her in a divorce action.

Then there was the interruption of the happy life of Miss Normand and Cody so soon after their marriage.

Story has it that at this time a girl she had befriended in time of need turned against Miss Normand. The disillusionment caused Mabel to say she never would trust another girl and she became a "jolly good fellow."

In 1917, Mabel Normand completed her great film—"Mickey." It was the first big feature comedy starring a girl.

Shortly afterward, Miss Normand broke with Sennett, and made "Sis Hopkins," "The Slim Princess" and other pictures under the Samuel Goldwyn banner.

In 1921 Mabel rejoined the Sennett organization and starred in those other well known successes, "Molly O," and "Suzanna."

Just as she was about to make "Mary Ann" the Taylor murder came along and Mabel took a trip to Europe to forget.

Woman and Man Killed in Home

TEXARKANA, Ark., Feb. 23. (AP)—Mrs. Joe Hokes, 37, was shot and killed at her home here tonight and Joe Hokes, 51, her husband, was found dead nearby with a single-barreled shotgun beside his body. The charge from the gun had decapitated him.

Mrs. James Clark, 18-year-old daughter of Mrs. Hokes by her first husband, and her infant daughter were the only witnesses of the tragedy.

According to the daughter, Mrs. Hokes had just returned home and was standing in the kitchen when a single charge from the gun struck her in the left lung. She staggered into an adjoining room and fell across a bed beside her granddaughter. She died a few minutes later in a hospital.

Hokes was found in the living room of the house with the shotgun beside his dead body.

PASTOR LAUDS ROTARY'S WORK

Dr. McKenney Speaks on Club's Service

"Many years ago when Rotary was in its beginning, they said, 'Live and let live,' but now Rotarians say, 'Live and help live!'" Dr. S. S. Kenney told a large congregation at the First Methodist church Sunday night on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of Rotary International.

"This is the silver anniversary of Rotary," Dr. Kenney said. "At this evening hour on Feb. 23, 1905, Paul P. Harris, a young Chicago lawyer with three other men, founded it for fellowship. Since then more than a score of similar service clubs have been founded in this country and Rotary itself is organized in 60 countries with 3,261 clubs and 130,000 members who speak a score of languages.

"In uniting business and professional men in the ideals of service, Rotary seeks to improve the commercial and civic, the social and international conditions of mankind. No longer is it true: 'Where business begins, friendship ends.' The ratio of Rotary is about one Rotarian to 13,000 in the entire world. What a task, what a missionary problem is ours!

"The cogs of Rotary are symbolical of power, progress and perfection. They fit perfectly into every creed and craft, every race and religion. Here is a common platform on which all nations and denominations can stand. We must have peace! Rotary stands not for what we get, but for what we give. It seeks to put the golden rule into all human relations. 'Service above self' is our safeguard. We seek profit, yet 'He who profits most serves best.'

"True, the world war came after Rotary was founded, but since that time great strides have been made toward international peace. Note the good-will flights of Lindbergh and trips of the Graf Zeppelin. Note the Briand-Kellogg peace pact in Paris in 1928 with 15 participating nations. Since then 61 of the 64 sovereign nations have agreed never to go to war under any conditions, provided other nations would do the same. Churches, too, are becoming more tolerant. There was a great world conference on church federation in Lausanne, Switzerland, in the summer of 1927. How profitable it all has been!

"May our own generation witness a closer federation of churches and a greater bond of fellowship among the nations. And may all tribes of earth recognize more and more the fatherhood of God, the motherhood of earth and the brotherhood of man."

Special music for the services was given by the vested choir. The church was beautifully decorated and Dr. McKenney announced that the carnations given to all Rotarians and their ladies were donated by Ed Bebb, a member of the Rotary club here. The text was from Mark 10:43-45 on "The Dignity of Service," with special adaptation to the program for Rotary's anniversary.

Man With Mania to Kill Hunted by Dallas Cops

DALLAS, Feb. 23. (AP)—Detectives here today sought "a man with a mania to kill," after finding a goat with dozens of knife wounds in its side, apparently inflicted by a pocket knife, and a backyard in the East Dallas residential district, covered with chicken heads, blood stains and tracks. Heads of half a dozen chickens had been wrung off in another backyard in the same neighborhood. Heads and headless bodies of chickens were strewn along an East Dallas street. The detectives traced the stream of blood to a negro district a few blocks away, where the trail was lost.

MOTHERS' HOPES

What Chance Have They if Real Music Must Be Sacrificed to Machine-made Sound?

MOTHERS strive valiantly to give their children happiness—a chance to enjoy the richest, fullest lives. Contrary forces forever oppose Mother's hopes.

Today change — speed — unrest work to thwart her longing for contentment. . . . The ruthless spirit of the Machine Age threatens to crowd out all humanizing culture. . . . Men and women whiz heedlessly through life to the clatter of the eternal machine. . . . Now, the machine has entered the realm of the musical art. Is this the Song of Progress? No! Machine-made music can never provide a substitute for the mellowing cultural influence of Real Music. Those concerned for the future of the race will resent the strangling of the art of music by a mechanical substitute in the theatre. Yet the art will be strangled if this false economy is not halted by public demand. . . . Here is opportunity for Mother and all who share her hopes to cast a vote for preservation of Living Music. Colonial Modes in D.A.R. Tea Make Scene of Beauty

Lavender and old lace, powder and patches, hoop-skirts and pantalettes, with all the charming traditions and modes of colonial days gave the never failing appeal of that motif when the Maj. Francis Grice chapter D. A. R. entertained Saturday afternoon at the Country club with the annual colonial tea.

Mesdames E. C. deMontel and C. E. Deaton met the guests at the outer door, lovely in their high-dressed white hair, powder and patches and wide silken gowns. Mrs. E. T. Duff was the gracious colonial lady at the inner door and the officers, all in beautiful colonial costume, were in the long, brilliant line leading to the sunroom.

Washington Painting

George Washington looked benignantly down from over the fireplace. The painting, a splendid oil copy of the original Gilbert Stewart painting, was a gift of Mrs. A. Zundelowitz to the chapter. The national flag was the brilliant background before a long table where an antique candelabra, with three tall candles glowing in prismed beauty shone as proudly as it has shone for many years in Mrs. E. T. Duff's family. At one end of the room, Mrs. Carrie Wilcox sat beside a spinning wheel which is a treasure belonging to J. L. Jackson Sr. The lovely lace shawl around Mrs. Wilcox's shoulders—an heirloom in her family—drew much attention. Throngs of guests noted the two graceful old "side" chairs, with needlepoint covered seats, loaned by Mrs. Chas. H. Reid.

At the other end of the room beside another spinning wheel and surrounded by a bevy of young "colonial belles," sat Mrs. John Prewett, lovingly known as "Miss Becky" with antoher family heirloom in the beautiful embroidered shawl about her shoulders. In the sunroom, Mesdames J. E. H. Railey and S. Y. Ferguson poured tea from 3 to 4 o'clock and from 4 to 5 o'clock, Mesdames Carey Hunter and A. H. Carrigan presided before the handsome silver services. The table was covered with a beautiful madeira cloth with insets of real filet; from the graceful ferns in the center, masses of red carnation rose and above them miniature flags waved in honor of the day.

Young Members Serve

The younger members of the chapter, in the quaint, pretty costumes that seem all romance now, served in the sunroom where the plates carried out the patriotic colors.

Officers in costume and members who were also hostesses and almost all of whom wore colonial gowns, were Mesdames Fred T. Couper, A. H. Carrigan, E. B. Bailey, Charles Borland, W. H. Sanford, Louis Gould, J. E. Hall, C. W. Beavers, C. H. Reid, Jouette Bonner, George Truitt, J. S. Crumpler, Carey J. Hunter, Luke McCrory, J. T. Waggoner, E. C. deMontel, C. E. Deaton, E. T. Duff, Ben Ackermann, R. E. Allday, Walter Bachman, A. D. Bell, Ben Bell, Laura Porter Bristol, W. D. Brookover, Charles Birk, W. J. Burt, G. T. Buchannan, A. W. Burnside, S. H. Burnside, V. W. Cain, Walter Cline, R. E. Ducker, F. W. Fischer, Jasper Ferguson, S. Y. Ferguson, Sidney Gaines, Ed Gardner, M. M. Garrett, Dudley Golding, C. L. Grandbury, J. D. Hall, J. T. Harrell, J. Y. Holbrook, W. L. Herblin, Carey Hunter, J. R. Hyatt, J. I. Jackson, Carey Joline, Roy King, L. O. Landon, L. B. Lovejoy, A. C. Ludlam, Luke McCrory, Carter McGregor, W. M. Priddy, J. E. H. Railey, Martin Rowe, Dan H. Rubsam, Hugh Weaver, John L. Waggoner, P. A. Welty, Carey Wilcox, Clarke, Wilcox, G. D. Witney, G. K. Wilson, Perry Wilson, Claude Woods, Eleanor D. Pace, John Hampton, J. D. Robertson, Guy Rogers, D. C. Coplin, Kerbow, C. L. Apple, Misses M. D. Smith, Katherine Garrett, Mary Ann Denny, Sara Sue Denny, Nell Gibbs, Katherine Hall, Francis Smith, and Ruth Wilcox, Mesdames W. M. McGregor and Paul Pond.

Approximately 300 guests called for tea during the two hours reception. Before the arrival of the guests, A. C. Moline took moving pictures of the beautifully gowned hostesses in groups and singly, planning to perpetuate an event that makes older matrons bloom with fresh youth and adds lure to the younger.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS. L. N. CASON

We woke in the morning to hear the sound of a mocking bird. Red birds had already haunted us and the sound of a field lark had given us a dream of the sounds to come.

The birdal wreath is full of tiny green leaf and hedges where last winter's brown foliage has not yet entirelly fallen, is putting out tender sprouts of life.

There's a red budded shrub about to break into full flower back of other hedges. We do not know its name, but we feel the promise of its beauty.

Little modest sweet violets will be peeping from their nests of green in a few days more if winter does not come back.

The snow had barely melted when patches of grass grew bravely green. A calendar of the flowers and trees is so much more interesting than one of the months.

And we have a cold in our head.

We heard something we thought funny that will pass on. Speaking of elections and voting the other day, a lady spoke of the one time when she had put on a spare tire.

On her way to Holliday with several other women as little equipped with knowledge of tires as she, they had a blowout.

One of them tore a plank from a fence and the lady who drove the car got down in dust, that she said was 10 inches deep, and went to work—she wearing a new blue georgette dress.

Car after car filled with men passed by but not one stopped.

When all was finished but tightening the nuts, she told us that a man (seeing he was safe) asked if he could help. They told him everything was finished.

In her disheveled new blue georgette, she rose from the deep dust and turning to her helpless friends, said emphatically, "Now girls, that's what you get for getting the vote."

Durland Grove 1487 Has Regular Meeting

One of the most enjoyable meetings of Durland Grove Woodman circle 1487 was held Friday afternoon at Eagle's hall when one new member was elected and one new application was balloted on. A card of thanks from a member to whom flowers had been sent while in the hospital, was read by the chairman of the flower committee.

After the business meeting, Mrs. Mamie Cabiness drew the prize in a contest put on by the entertainment committee. Those who received favors from the friendship box were Mesdames E. Prang, Whittington, Mamie Stearman, Louise Scott and Maggie Brooks.

The degree team and officers will be entertained, Tuesday, Feb. 25 at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. J. A. Berry, 1003 Burnett, it was announced.

Refreshments suggesting Washington's birthday were served to 31 members.

Mrs. Ed Peterson Honoree at Dinner

Mrs. Ed Peterson was honoree on the way home from the Shriners' convention at Denver with a surprise birthday party given on the diner reserved for the occasion.

When they entered the diner, it was darkened and when lights were turned on, a birthday cake with the requisite number of candles was Mrs. Peterson's first intimation of the honor done her.

A delicious dinner was served to Messrs. and Mesdames Ed Peterson, Sid Gaines, Kindel Paulk, E. J. Tschabold, O. N. Mann and R. W. Reynolds and Messrs. Albert Ellis, W. H. Farmer, E. M. Berge, C. J. Johnson, and Dick Whittington of Wichita Falls; Bragg Calloway and J. E. Frazier of Houston; Tobe Bieze of Austin; Claude Doyle and Fred Booth of Waco.

'It's Certainly Been Blessing'

"Orgatone Relieved My Husband of Nervousness and Is Making a New Man of Him," Says Austin Woman

"Since Orgatone relieved my husband of his nervousness and dizzy spells I just can't help praising it to everybody," said Mrs. A. M. Dieterich, wife of a well known proprietor of the Dieterich Garage and residing at 2103 Holly street, Austin, Texas, a few days ago.

"For over a year," she continued, "my husband suffered from a general run-down condition that I thought was caused from a bad case of pneumonia which he had over a year ago. He had very little appetite and three or four hours after eating, would start suffering from a sour stomach and nothing would relieve him of this condition like it should and he would get weak and nervous and couldn't look after his work or business properly.

"His first dose of Orgatone seemed to hit the spot and he has been getting better ever since. He can eat, with a relish and has no trouble with gas; his stomach is toned up and he feels better in every way than he has in many years. Orgatone has relieved my husband of these very bad conditions and his general health has improved since he started taking it. Orgatone has certainly been a blessing to my husband and there are no better Orgatone boosters in this town than we are."

Unfair Pain

It is not fair that some women should suffer so each month. It isn't necessary! The menstrual process is natural, but the painful part is not. Midol will prove this to every woman who will try it. These wonderful tablets are non-narcotic, but they banish every bit of pain. They act directly on the organs affected by menstruation and they take effect in five to seven minutes. Better yet, the woman who anticipates her time and takes a tiny tablet of Midol beforehand will experience no pain at all.

Realize what Midol means. It is the product of specialists for this special purpose and it really does end all suffering and even the discomfort women once had to endure at such times. Always obtainable at any drug store in the convenient aluminum pocket case for only 50 cents.—Adv.

Wichita County Council Has All Day Meeting

An all-day meeting of the Wichita County Council P.-T. A. held at Fowlkes Station Saturday showed the splendid hospitality of the school patrons and a splendid school building and personnel. The silver cup for the highest percentage in attendance at the last county meeting stood on the top of a cabinet where four silver cups showed which a pretty pantomime on the stage demonstrated the motaer love of Mrs. Thorburn's song.

Burl Bryant, county school superintendent spoke on the way to secure libraries for the schools, telling of the splendid library system followed in Lamar county and the unit plan of Dallas county. Mr. Bryant is an enthusiastic believer in teaching reading and instructed the schools how to apply to the state librarian, Capitol station, Austin, for information.

Mrs. Vera Jo Dolph read Hoover's "Proclamation of Child's Rights," and made a splendid talk and a particular plea for immunization against typhoid, diphtheria and smallpox.

Mrs. Frank Creighton made an address urging the correspondence course on all people who intend to work in the association and stating clearly the aims and purposes of P.-T. A. "Out of the 12,000 schools in Texas," she said, "thousand have no P.-T. A. work. Four in Wichita county have none and one of those is not large enough." The district president, she stated, is the "state in action" and at the meeting in Electra to take place April 21, 22, 23, notes will be compared and everyone may get inspiration.

Then Mrs. Creighton showed the scrap book made by Mrs. John Fox in last year's work and urged all associations to make a scrap book. "Leaders must be equipped with knowledge," Mrs. Creighton stated as she closed her speech. The standard of excellence was urged as something for each P.-T. A. to work for.

The splendid reports from numbers of the country schools were particularly noted. Fathers as well as mothers work for the good of several schools who have their meetings at night.

Rocky Point school won with the highest percentage of attendance and carried the silver cup away from the hostess school. Iowa Park extended an invitation to the county council for the next meeting. A hearty vote of thanks was voted the Fowlkes Station for the hospitality shown.

Seventy-six delegates were present and over 150 attended the meeting.

Miss Tancred Re-Elected Junior Forum President

There is always an alluring interest, even to the older people, in the gay activities of the younger set. So, even though the latter part of last week was full of club, P.-T. A and social plans and programs, many paused to find interest in what the charming young group at the Junior forum were doing.

With several attractive matrons sponsoring the spring luncheon and bridge, Saturday at the Forum clubhouse about 65 girls in pretty spring gowns enjoyed an interesting program and elected officers for a new year.

Miss Mary Tancred was re-elected president and Mrs. Harriet Peterson Bass and Miss Mathilde Donnell were re-elected respectively treasurer and recording secretary. Others named were Miss Ruth Moore, first vice president; Miss Marjorie Bright, second vice president; Miss Mary Meredith, third vice president; Miss Mary Collier corersponding secretary and Mrs. T. A. Hicks was unanimously renamed sponsor.

The luncheon program embraced the following numbers: Miss Ima Jean Willis gave a clever burlesque of "The Shooting of Dan McGrew"; Miss Loraine Hambrick, accompanied by Miss Maurine Parnell sang several popular numbers and Miss Bernice Jeter gave an interesting review of Richard Halliburton's "New Worlds to Conquer."

Following the program the bridge tables were arranged with alternate red and white covers, and tallies and score cards carried out the patriotic motif.

In the games, Miss Wilma Brown had high score and was winner of a handsome tooled leather bag. Miss Dorothy Lee Taylor, with the second high score, received a complete set of costume jewelry; Mrs. T. A. Hicks received third prize, a pretty linen bag in brown and white and Miss Elizabeth Smith drew a dainty piece of French lingerie for cut.

"People told my mother how good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was for young girls, so I took it. I used to feel miserable at certain times but now I feel 100% better and have gained a little in weight too. I am only nineteen years old. I do not work but of course I help mother with the housework. We are both much pleased with the results from the Vegetable Compound and we recommend it to other girls who need it."—*Bernice M. M. TARDIEU'S LITTLE JOKER

Daily Editorial

MONSIEUR TARDIEU has a cold. No one doubts that the faucous atmosphere of fog-locked Albion has actually bitten into his membranes. Chill and dampness are no respecters of rank or responsibility.

Monsieur Tardieu not only has a cold, but the deep sympathy of all who realize how it must devastate the sensibilities of an eminent statesman to be forcibly retired from the disarmament conference, at its most acute moment. Coincidence has a pestiferous habit of adding the best-laid plans—in just that way.

To impute that Monsieur Tardieu conveniently arranged a rendezvous with an obliging germ, is too base the unwarranted a thought for contemplation.

And yet there are minds so warped and misanthropic, as to foster suspicion that the astute Andre may find consolatory compensations in his inopportune sore throat. His compulsory exit from the conference—immediately.

After delivery of an ultimatum that France must either obtain her full pound of naval flesh, or guarantees from the other four powers that any aggressor against her peace and sovereignty will receive no financial, munitions or sustenance aid from them—could hardly have been more strategically timed.

Monsieur Tardieu's absence not only interrupts the processes of negotiation, but provides the parties in interest with indefinite leisure to digest the significance of the French position.

Like a good dramatist, he rings down the curtain on a brilliantly climatic scene, and permits his audience to catch their breath and adjust philosophies for the finale.

The plot would now seem to center upon America's willingness to enter upon agreements which would defeat the avowed purpose of the conference or involve the United States inextricably with Europe's polemic fortunes.

France, in effect, offers us two alternatives: We must either give whole hog assent to her 1924 stand on naval parity, or abandon traditional aloofness from foreign entanglement.

In which latter case, the United States might just as well go hook, line and sinker and become a full-fledged member of the League of Nations.

THANKS to the assurance of certain Francophile citizens—who continue to conceive it our duty to place the arms and wealth of this country on promiscuous call—the Old World can't bring itself to surrender hope of seducing us into treaties which will forever suspend a sword of Damocles over our local lives and destinies.

Our inordinate riches and decisive man-power would be such determining factors in any feud yonder, that Europe simply refuses to relinquish a 12-year dream of finessing the United States into some cat's paw contract to become its armorer, almoner and cannon-fodder silo. Every French premier since 1918 has fostered the project of allying tri-color and Stars and Stripes, and has proceeded to mobilize sentiment to that end. Now, that Qual D'Orsay boldly lays cards on the table and practically tells us that Washington must either accede to French terms or see the Kellogg pact become a futile gesture. If Monsieur Tardieu will insist upon playing solitaire—so must we. Whatever other courses America may adopt for the sake of universal amity, and a half in the ruinously competitive armament budgets, popular sentiment, overwhelmingly recorded at three successive presidential elections, desiares that our own emergencies and periods shall exclusively be vested with the right to order the youth and the industries of the republic into battle. Lead another card, Monsieur Tardieu. The Stimson delegation instructed to bet on trumps not jokers.

The Back Yard Garden

THE TIME is fast drawing near when the suburban householder will find himself musing, in the peace of the evening, about his back yard garden.

The habit of keeping a garden on a suburban lot sometimes rises to the level of an art and sometimes sinks to the level of a vice; and every suburbanite is touched by it, in greater or lesser degree, at some time in his life. The time for it, we repeat, is almost at hand. From Galveston to Bangor, from Jacksonville to Seattle, good citizens will presently be getting out strings and stakes, rummaging in basement tool chests for trowels, buying openhandedly those gay, deceptive little packets of seeds that corner groceries, drug stores and hardware stores have for sale.

All of this never does anyone any harm, and occasionally the vegetables that are raised in these back yard gardens are quite edible—or, if it's another kind of garden, the flowers that are grown can actually be plucked, put in a vase and used to decorate a living room table. One wonders, though, why it is that this annual gardening epidemic has never drawn the attention of the learned students of the American mind. Assuredly, there must be something back of it all.

There is. In the first place, keeping a back yard garden is the hall mark of respectability, of placid and trustworthy domesticity. No man who putters about a nine-by-eleven plot of dirt, in the evenings, with a stained trowel and an aching pair of knees, would ever abscond with another's cash, or with another's wife. To keep a garden on this modest scale is to assure your neighbors that you are a man whom the bitter winds of temptation do not ruffle. You are not, in a word, flighty. There must be solid stuff in you.

But that is not the whole of it. Keeping a garden is not simply an attempt to get fresh vegetables or flowers. It is a sort of mystic rite; a method by which the victims of a hard, mechanical age can get into touch with the pungent earth once more.

For there are profound mysteries in this business of putting seeds in a black earthen furrow. Agriculture is the world's oldest miracle. The appearance of life in a spot of bare ground was surely the first intimation man had that his lonely ache for another life might not be simply a wild and hopeless dream. It is not without reason that orthodox religion is generally stronger in the farmland than in the city.

No suburban gardener ever stops to think all of this out, of course. The substance of it hangs with him, though, so that he draws an irrational kind of contentment out of his labors. He spades under a bit of sod, rakes it smooth, plants it and raises radishes and weeds; and through it all he perceives, without exactly realizing that he perceives it, that his existence is somehow in tune with a great rhythm which pervades the whole universe. He goes on his hands and knees to grub in the dirt, and he finds there something that the ordinary jobs of life do not give him. So, every spring, he does it again.

Not the Wisest Course

SOMETIMES it does seem as if our prison system could, just possibly be rearranged so that it would do its work a little bit better. A weekly magazine tells of the release from Sing Sing prison of one Frank Singer, who went in in 1909 for stealing $51. Singer came out "unable to tie his own tie or fasten his collar." The state gave him $10, he had $45 of his own and he had earned, during his term, nearly $36. With this equipment he was turned loose in a world which he had last seen more than 20 years ago—to sink or swim by his own devices, with the aid of some $91.

It is hard to escape a feeling that there is something wrong with this picture. In theory, this Frank Singer should be chastened and repentant, ready to take his place in society and earn his own living in an honest manner; but is he? Do these brief hints about him sound like it? Don't they suggest that his 21-year prison sentence might not have been the wisest way of dealing with his case, back in 1909?

A Constitutional Function

MR. HUGHES is confirmed for the supreme court, which is probably as it should be. Despite the last-minute charges against him, the man's reputation for learning, fair-mindedness and integrity is too great to cause many Americans to feel any dissatisfaction with his appointment.

Nevertheless, no one need say that the attack which certain senators opened should not have been made. In a democracy such as ours the senate ought to scrutinize such appointments very carefully. No man is so eminent that he should go into high office without any question as to his fitness being raised.

It is up to the president to make such appointments, but it is the senate's duty to deliberate over them. In taking the time to argue about Mr. Hughes, the senate was only carrying out its constitutional function.

"LOVEJOY" : : By : Beatrice Burton

CHAPTER XLIV

The white-walled, red-roofed houses of Hollywood shone like slabs of coral and pearl against the green hillsides that September morning.

Beyond them three or four sky-scraping hotel buildings glistened in the sunny blue sky, and miles away a burning oilwell near Culver City sent a great scarlet tongue of flame into the air.

"What a town!" Lovejoy caught her breath at her first glimpse of it. "I've never seen anything like it, Steve!—It's like some city out of a dream!"

"It's like Coney Island and a village in the Pyrenees and the student quarter of Paris all mixed up in a bowl and then spread out on the map like a pancake," said Steve without enthusiasm. "Walt until we go to Paris and London and Rome, Lovejoy."

His hand left the wheel of the car for an instant and closed over one of hers with a swift, hard pressure.

"We're going to have a great time, going places and seeing things—together," he added. "You and I, Lovejoy."

She nodded silently, and in great contentment, they rolled down into the town.

All of Hollywood seemed to be out walking on the famous boulevard that morning, and Lovejoy was sure that she never had seen so many pairs of silk sweat socks and bare legs before in her life.

Girls with beautifully bleached hair and wonderfully made-up faces went swaying along the sidewalk past the dress shops and the cosmetic shops and the beauty parlors. Hatless young men in knickers and bright-colored sweaters went flying past in open roadsters.

Steve stopped at a flower shop and bought a tight little knot of yellow daisies for Lovejoy's white flannel coat.

Then he turned the car toward the Ambassador hotel where they were to meet Major Badminton for lunch.

There was a whole row of little shops just inside the garden entrance of the hotel. One of them was an Oriental store, and in the window stood a little pair of jade trees exactly like the pair that Lovejoy had bought months before for the Tudor Road house.

She looked at them now without any feeling of homesickness or sadness or regret. They were part of a past that she had not enjoyed. That was all.

"I'm beginning to feel as if I'd never been married, Steve," she said suddenly. "Home and all the people and things back there seem like part of a very hazy dream to me—all but my baby, of course."

They went up the marble stairs into the long lobby with its thick rugs, its palm trees in tubs, its big plateglass windows open to the warm air and the sunshine.

There were two shops opening off the lobby. One of them was a dress shop and the other was a jewelry store.

While Steve steped up to the desk to get a room for her, Lovejoy strolled over to the show window of the jewelry shop.

In the very middle of it lay a square of black velvet. And in the middle of the velvet lay a diamond ring.

It was a plain narrow band of platinum set with one enormous jewel.

"Just look at that diamond. It's like a little lake with sunshine on it!" Lovejoy said to Steve when he came up to her. "It must be worth a young fortune."

She left him and followed a bell boy up to the room that he had taken for her.

She took a bath in the big white-and-silver bathroom and dressed afterward with careful leisure.

The French windows in the cool green-and-ivory room stood open. Below was a stretch of grgeen lawn and in the middle of it was a square swimming pool—a sparkle with sunshine.

It looks like that wonderful diamond downstairs, said Lovejoy to herself as she slipped into her white flannel suit and pulled her hat down over her hair.

Steve and Major Badminton were talking and smoking in the lobby when she went downstairs a little before noon.

"We're going to have an early lunch," Steve told her, jumping up from his chair, "and then the Major is going to take us through one of the movie studios."

The day moved on . . . Lunch at the Ambassador with Steve and the Major. The drive back to Hollywood. The trip through the great studios in Culver City where Lovejoy saw Marion Davies making a picture and actually laid her hand on the steering-wheel of John Gilbert's own roadster.

At five o'clock, when violet shadows lay across the Hollywood hills below, the "Hollywoodland" sign, she and Steve started back to Santa Barbara.

It was dark when they reached Ventura and the air was like cold spiced wine.

"We'll have a bite to eat here," Steve said when the first lights of the town flashed out above the road. "There's an old brown shingle inn down at Pierpont beach where they serve mighty good meals."

He turned off the highway and into a narrow road lined with eucalyptus trees. At the end of it was the inn, high on a point above the ocean.

There they had their dinner. Sand dabs and fried chicken, hearts of lettuce and rich coffee.

"Steve, what a day we've had!" Lovejoy sighed happily when they were out in the darkness once more with the road singing under the wheels of the car and the sea-wind in their faces.

"I never dreamed that I'd see all the wonderful things I've seen the last 10 days, Steve!" she went on. Without looking at him she knew that he was smiling to himself in the darkness. It always pleased him to know that he had pleased her.

His arm tightened around her shoulders.

"The desert and the mountains and the redwood trees!—Sheila's lovely house and Hollywood, Steve! I can't believe I'm really alive these days! I keep feeling as if I must be dreaming—and that I'll wake up and find myself back home trying to make both ends meet for Tom Nicholson—"

"That's all right! But don't talk about him!" Steve interrupted her sharply.

He swung the car to the right side of the road. It slowed down and came to a stop in the black shadow of the eucalyptus trees that bordered it.

"What's the matter? Is anything wrong with the car?" Lovejoy asked him.

"Not a thing," he said evenly. "I just forgot something—something that I bought for you today."

He took her left hand in his and drew off her wedding ring. The little plain cheap wedding ring that Tom had carried around in his pocket for weeks before their marriage two years ago.

Then Lovejoy felt him slip another ring over her finger. She held it up and peered at it in the darkness . . . It was the diamond ring that she had seen that morning in the lobby store of the Ambassador!

"I wish you were free now," Steve told her, tossing Tom's ring into the darkness, "and that we were married. Then we wouldn't have to go back to Sheila's house tonight. We could drive down into Mexico. Or we could drive up the coast to San Francisco . . . We could take a boat there, Lovejoy, and go to Hawaii for our honeymoon."

His voice spun magic for Lovejoy. Mexico City—San Francisco—Hawaii—

"I've always longed to travel everywhere," she said dreamily, "and I've always longed for a whooping big diamond like this. Steve you make every wish of mine come true! Do you know it?"

She put her arms around his neck and kissed him for "thank you."

It was 9 o'clock when they got back to the house in Santa Barbara. There were lights in it and the sound of music. In the stone-flagged courtyard stood a big closed car.

"Sheila evidently has some guests, what?" Steve asked as they got out of his car.

They went around to the front of the house where the garden, with its phlox and its stocks and its roses made the air sweet as honey. And there they stood for a moment before they stepped into the house, their arms tight around each other and their hearts beating fast as they kissed each other.

"I'm going straight to bed," Lovejoy whispered. "I'm all tired and dusty, and I don't want to meet Sheila's friends tonight. I can put a long-distance call in for Aunt Em from my room, can't I?"

On the hall table lay a telegram in its yellow envelope. It was the first thing that Lovejoy saw when she stepped into the house.

"There's a wire on the hall table for you, Lovejoy!" she heard Sheila call as she picked it up. "It came early this morning."

Those Edison Birthday Questions

Every year the newspapers corner Thomas Edison on his birthday at Fort Myers and ply him with questions. It's become an American custom.

PHILLIPS

But the questions are always the same. They never seem to open Mr. Edison up much. They lack variety and color. For Mr. Edison's next annual quizzing this department suggests:

1—Would you be interested in a scheme to make seersucker suits out of paper flowers?

2—What do you use to take strawberry stains out of a pair of white flannel pants?

3—Why have you at no time considered an invention that would do away with shaving?

4—How do you like your eggs, hard or soft?

5—Do you believe it possible to develop a cabinet radio that will combine all the features of an electric ice-box, a gas-range, a phonograph and fireless-cooker?

6—Do you consider golf a greater obstacle to industrial progress than the old-fashioned perch chair or malaria?

7—Is it true that you are working on a plan to produce buttons for tan shoes from ox-eyed daisies?

8—Do you think the American buggy whip will ever come back?

9—What, next to paper towels, do you think has contributed most to the increase of American irritability?

10—How long do you think it will be before a way will be found to make drivers of Ford cars turn out and let larger automobiles pass?

11—Having found a way to produce a rubber raincoat from goldenrod, what do you think of the chances of producing woolen underwear from the skin of prickly pears?

12—Do you think anything has influenced the steady decline of man as a serious factor in civilization more than white knickerbockers?

13—Is there, in your opinion, any use experimenting in the hope of finding a way to make something out of the figures left on a restaurant tablecloth after two business men have had lunch?

14—As a scientist, what do you think of "necking" as an American institution and do you as the inventor of the electric light feel responsible for its alarming development out of doors?

15—Looking backward, would you have gone ahead with the electric light if you had foreseen it as inflicting on humanity (a) traffic lights; (b) automatic cigaret lighters; (c) illuminated soap signs; (d) artificial sunburn mania?

16—How many years do you think it will take for the American public to be able to read and comprehend the words "No Parking?"

17—When you get into your pajamas, which do you put on first, the coat or the pants? Why?

18—Do you regard the present American craze for bizarre bathrooms as significant of anything and, if so, what?

19—Would you mind saying whether you consider General Electric a good buy at present levels? Westinghouse? Detroit-Edison? Electric Bond & Share?

20—Would you hold Steel bought at 220? Why not?

21—Do you think a young man who has played college football four years is as well fitted for life as a boy whose education has been confined to grammar school hockey?

22—What do you think of the relative importance of (a) channel swimming; (b) Niagara Falls; (c) chemistry; (d) roller-skating; (e) Calvin Coolidge; (f) electrical-engineering; (g) Dorothy Dix; (h) volley-ball?

Don't Get Excited!

It is an evidence of the highest culture when one can live in this rapidly changing, hurry-up age with a good control over all of the emotions. Those who have not attained such control find themselves torn by the passions of love, hatred, jealousy, etc. They are storm-tossed by over-emotion—going from the depths to the heights—from pleasure to pain—becoming alternately too depressed or too exalted.

Besides the ordinary emotions which we recognize as existent, there is doubtless another common one which few have recognized. This is the simple emotion of excitement. Many get a nerve-stimulating thrill every time they hear the fire engine dashing by, or when they read of a great disaster. Their excitement is not truly caused by either fear or sorrow, or any other of the emotions ordinarily understood.

One who has the proper poise and calmness of mind does not allow himself to be too often excited by any emotion. But it is nevertheless true that there are many nerve-racked people who allow their minds to be storm-tossed by every unusual story or news about happenings which can in no way immediately concern them. Such excitement only depletes the nerve forces and brings on enervation.

The man of power is always one who has a steady control over all emotions, and who uses his mental and physical energy where it will do the most good. The fault seems to be that many do not understand upon what events and emotions they should place the proper emphasis.

Women, as a rule, may be said to be the more nervous, and seem to waste more energy upon trifles. The business or professional man would not go very far in accomplishing any successful work if he could not learn to concentrate upon the important things of the day, but spent most of his time wasting his nerve forces by continually being either too sad or too glad.

The unsuccessful man is often the one who is effeminate enough to have the nature of an extrovert, which means one who is dominated by things outside of himself.

It might be well for everyone to take an emotional inventory at the end of each day. Take a piece of paper and write down a list of these emotions: Love, hatred, envy, jealousy, fear, malice. Then, on another line, put these down: Work, sleep, recreation. Check off on every one of these items, trying to remember back through the day how much time and energy you have actually spent in the power of emotions and observe how well you have balanced the hours of the day.

It is probably best to work about eight hours, sleep eight, and use the other eight hours for recreation and study. There should certainly be a smattering here and there during your waking hours of remembrances of mild enjoyments, lovely thoughts and joyful moments; but as you take an inventory of your emotions you may find it helpful to cut down the amount of time you are wasting on fear, hatred, jealousy, malice and other emotions and excitements which only waste energy and contribute their share to producing both nervous and physical disorders.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Urticaria

Question—A. G. writes: "I am a sufferer from what doctors diagnose as urticaria. It affects me with welts breaking out all over my body ranging from the size of a pea to that of half dollar, and they produce almost intolerable itching. What would you advise as a cure?"

Answer—Eat good food combinations and drink plenty of water between meals, using from one to two quarts before luncheon and the same amount during the afternoon. Send for my special articles on the cause and cure of acidosis.

Avocado

Question—H. G. asks: "What is an alligator pear?"

Answer—"Alligator pear" is the name which has been given to the avocado, but this name should not be used, as it does not describe the avocado. It is not a sweet fruit as the name "pear" suggests, but a salad fruit of a nut-like flavor and buttery flesh, rich in vegetable oil with also some protein and carbohydrates. This fruit may be used at almost any meal, and combines well with any other kind of food.

Tuberculosis

Question—W. G. writes: "I have tuberculosis in an advanced stage, but am 30 pounds overweight. I eat lightly. Do you think a fast would help me?"

Answer—As your assimilation is so good, you can no doubt be entirely cured through the proper dietary regime. Take a fruit fast until your weight is reduced to the normal, and then live on a diet free from starches and sugars. Others who read this will see that those who are overweight can develop tuberculosis. In this disease, it is not so much a question of lack of weight as of enervation and a tendency to catarrhal mucus.

Minstrel at Wellington To Aid Scouts' Cause

WELLINGTON, Texas, Feb. 23.—In order to raise funds to finance the Boy Scout movement in Collingsworth county, a negro minstrel will be presented Feb. 27 and 28 at the high school auditorium, according to A. M. Duvall, president of the Southeast Panhandle Area of Boy Scouts of America. The presentation will be staged under the direction of G. Ward Moody and Davis Robinson, who will announce the complete cast of characters next week.

Parades will be made through the downtown sections both afternoons before the nightly performances, with band concerts rendered. Complete uniforms for all characters will be secured from an eastern costume house, and the affair promises to be the most interesting of its kind offered in Wellington for many years.

Answer to Saturday's Puzzle

TERRELL CASE REOPENS TODAY

Proponents Likely Will Use Only One More Witness

AUSTIN, Feb. 23. (AP)—When the hearing of proposed impeachment charges against S. H. Terrell, state comptroller, is resumed before the house of representatives tomorrow it was held likely the proponents would rest their case after probably only one more witness testified.

Charles N. McClendon of Houston, was the only assistant of State Auditor Moore Lynn who had not testified with reference to alleged discrepancies and shortages in the comptroller's accounts, and it was believed he would be called.

While attorneys for Terrell did not divulge procedure they contemplated using in rebutting the house's case, it was generally believed that possibly it would be finished with the testimony of J. A. Phillips of Houston, certified public accountant, and of Comptroller Terrell. Phillips had made an independent audit of some of the accounts in the comptroller's office, especially those of which certain escrow funds and inheritance tax payments passed.

No Change Seen In Condition of Taft

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—The condition of William Howard Taft was reported today by his physicians as unchanged after a comfortable night. The bulletin, issued through the White House as are all official communications regarding the condition of the former president and chief justice, was signed by Dr. Francis R. Hagner and Dr. Thomas A. Claytor.

Demos Plan Tariff War

Fight Against High Rates To Start Today

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (UP)—Taking advantage of the confusion of old guard Republicans over the Hoover-Grundy incident, the Democratic-insurgent coalition in the senate today prepared to pound with renewed vigor against the high rates of the house bill.

Senator Barkley, Democrat, Kentucky, member of the finance committee declared the coalition in rewriting the tariff bill, is working "in the interest of the American consumer and the American laboring man."

Tension in Republican ranks had lessened over the Grundy flareup which followed publication by the Kansas City Star, a strong administration paper, of a story declaring the president approved the Democratic-insurgent slashing of rates. Senator Grundy circulated copies of the story among old guard members. Confusion resulted.

There was no intimation from White House sources as to the president's stand on the tariff bill. Likewise, Senator Watson, majority leader, remained silent as to what was discussed during his visit to the White House yesterday.

It was believed, however, that either the president had denied the interpretation of his tariff stand as published, or had made his position sufficiently clear to calm the alarms of the administration stalwarts.

HUGHES TAKES OFFICE TODAY

Simple Formalities Mark Court Induction

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23. (AP)—Charles Evans Hughes tomorrow will take up the duties laid down by the man who first appointed him to the supreme court 20 years ago.

Simple formalities will mark his induction into the post just vacated by William Howard Taft because of illness. With the resumption of work by the supreme court after a recess since Jan. 27, he will take the oath of allegiance, then that of Chief Justice of the United States, receive the greetings of the associate justices and plunge into the business of the court.

The new chief justice will find 53 decisions in the hands of the old members of the court for delivery. These will cover a wide range of subjects and among them may be rulings of the validity of the Hoch-Smith resolution which authorized the Interstate commerce commission to make rate reductions to help agriculture in distress.

Among the first cases before the court for argument will bring his son, Charles Evans Hughes Jr., before him to present the side of the government as solicitor general of the United States. The new chief justice is not expected to participate in the cases argued by his son, whose resignation is now in the hands of President Hoover.

Time Slips In

The wear and tear of nearly 20 years of competitive tennis must show even in a Tilden. The Tilden of 1921 or 1923 was probably the greatest tennis player the game has ever known. But the Tilden of 1930 can only hope to approach his best upon occasions now. And this will hardly be the best that he knew seven years ago.

Tilden, playing fine tennis along the Riviera, suddenly dropped straight sets to Peters, a sixth ranking British entry. It must have been one of those days that found Peters at his best or beyond his best, with Tilden in the slump that comes to the veteran. And slumps come more and more often to the veteran as the years slip by.

An occasion of this sort is the thing that baffles Davis cup committees. The American Davis cup committee knows that to have any chance for victory Tilden must play in the singles and be good enough to win at least one match. If Tilden isn't good enough to do this, no other American entry is. Tilden at his best is still the best of the American stars. He is still national tennis champion.

In the last two years Tilden has faced several occasions where his game suddenly broke in two. As one reaches the end of the long competitive road a collapse of this sort now and then is to be expected. It can't be helped. And it is difficult to forecast. The only way to meet and beat it is through longer periods of rest. The system after 35 doesn't rebound any too quickly. Nerve reserves are more quickly exhausted, and they need longer spells in which to recuperate.

Tilden will play better tennis if he doesn't play quite as much tennis, which is something he hates to believe. It is something each one hates to believe, but that doesn't keep it from being true. Tilden at his best is still a hard man to beat. But he has a harder time reaching his best—even the best of 1930.

The Same to All

Golf isn't the strenuous game that tennis is—tennis demanding more stamina than baseball. But even golf has to keep one eye fixed on the clock or the calendar.

Walter Hagen is about Tilden's age and has been around about as long. Hagen is still British open golf champion, but in the last two months of competition on the Pacific coast, with more than $60,000 to shoot at, Hagen collected only $80 as his share. He broke into the prize list only once, and he was no longer a factor in the P. G. A. championship that he dominated from 1924 to 1929.

This doesn't mean that Hagen is through or that he will flop in the next British open. But it means that he has reached the stage of his competitive career where the going is getting tough and tougher, where it is getting harder to win.

Hagen was a factor in the U. S. open of 1913. That happens to be 17 years ago, and he has had 17 years crowded with action. If he is at his best or near his best, he can make anybody step in the big test at Hoylake in June, but the odds against his being at his best get longer and longer as the years slip by.

There is one thing about Hagen—no matter how badly he may look for a week or for a month, he is one of the hardest men in sport to discourage. He can take a hard beating and come back with greater confidence and with more stuff than any one you can think of. As Bobby Jones will be on hand for the British open in June, the battle between this pair will be doubly interesting, as they have been the two big British winners of the last four or five years.

Another Case

This makes the case of George Herman Ruth doubly interesting. Ruth is about the same age that Tilden and Hagen show. But he has yet to show any outward sign of slipping.

With Ruth from now on it will be largely a matter of legs—legs and the physical condition needed to carry a big body through a long season that demands competition every day.

If Ruth can escape sickness or injury and take his turn for 145 or 150 games in a schedule, he should still be good for 50 or more home runs and a batting average above .350. He will still be a good outfielder, but he is also approaching the last turn that leads to the end of the road. There happens to be a road's end waiting for them all—and few road ends have waited for three greater athletic marches than Ruth, Tilden and Hagen. Jack Dempsey, at about the same age, is still staring somewhat wistfully at the old trail, still wondering whether or not to make one big stab before the gate is closed and locked for all time.

If the next generation can turn out a Dempsey, Tilden, Ruth and Hagen it will have to start early and travel fast. Few generations of sport have been able to offer a quartet who can match this four when it comes to public performance and to crowd lure. And it might also be remembered that each one of the four has been a master showman—which also counts.

Veteran Chicago Boxing Referee Is Suspended

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Davie Miller, veteran Chicago boxing referee, has been suspended indefinitely by the Illinois State Athletic commission for failure to explain his scoring of the Leo Lomski-Jimmy Braddock bout at the Coliseum Jan. 17.

The bout first was declared a draw, Miller's card deciding the issue when one judge voted for Lomski and the other cast his ballot for Braddock. Eleven days after the fight a checkup was made and it was learned that Miller's card, properly totalled, favored Lomski, and the commission declared the Aberdeen, Wash., boxer the winner. Miller ignored three invitations to appear before the commission to explain the error, resulting in the suspension.

OPENER TO BE ON CUBS' COURT

Wednesday Picked as Date For First Clash

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Texas, Feb. 23.—The Olney Cubs, winners of the district basket ball championship in Wichita Falls last week, will meet Estelline here Wednesday night in the first of a series of games to decide the winner of the bi-district championship and the right to represent Northwest Texas in the state tournament at Austin next month. The second game will be played in Estelline Friday night and should a third game be necessary it will be played in the latter place Saturday.

These same two teams battled through a three-game series last year for honors in this section, the Cubs losing in the third and final game. The local aggregation is built around three veterans of last year's squad, while Estelline's last year's team remains intact.

The Olney Cubs won the district title at Wichita Falls Friday and Saturday in an easy manner. The local boys drew a hard schedule, having to play three games the first day. The Cubs won their first contest from Nocona in the opening game of the tournament and followed in the afternoon by defeating Wichita Falls, in the semi-finals Friday night the Cubs were victorious over Bellevue in a one-sided contest. In the final game against Jacksboro Saturday night the Cubs defense allowed only two field goals and a free throw during the entire playing period for a total of five points, at the same time running up a total of 23. Wilson Gilmore, Cub star forward, was the sensation of the tournament, completely outclassing all others with his fast floor work and accurate eye for the basket. Scott Wix, guard and captain ran Gilmore a close second with several points to his credit and a splendid record in his guarding position.

Miami Bout Heads Card This Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 23. (AP)—The second annual battle of the Palms at Miami Thursday night with Phil Scott of England meeting Jack Sharkey in the feature bout heads the national fistic schedule for the week, but there is no lack of attractions in other cities.

Heavyweight, for the most part, will furnish the fireworks, but Chicago will see a third battle between Sammy Mandell, lightweight champion, and Jimmy McLarnin at the stadium Saturday night. This bout, a rubber affair, will be at 145 pounds and for 10 rounds. Mandell turned back McLarnin's challenge for the lightweight title here two years ago, but suffered a bad beating at the hands of the Vancouver slugger in a return meeting at catchweights several months ago at Chicago.

Madison Square garden's weekly show Friday night will be an all-heavyweight affair with Ted Sandwina, who recently knocked out Knute Hansen in a round, meeting Riccardo Bertazzolo of Italy in the feature bout of 10 rounds.

Primo Carnera, Italian giant, takes on Farmer Lodge at New Orleans tomorrow night.

SAN ANTONIO, Feb. 23. (UP)—Satisfied that his players are rounding into playing condition, Coach Dave Bancroft today allowed his New York Giant squad to take a vacation.

Bancroft has been impressed with the batting punch of Harvey Bailey, the 1929 Indian infielder-outfielder, he said.

Browns Still After That First Flag

They all have won pennants except the Browns. Considerable momentum was gained under Dan Howley in 1928 and 1929, when the team finished third, but it would seem to take more playing strength than the Browns can muster right now if the team is to hold that new pace. And that is no reflection on the ability of the five stars shown above with Bill Killefer, the new manager.

By JAY VESSELS
Sports Editor
(Associated Press Feature Service)

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 23.—Some fine summer before judgment day the St. Louis Browns are going out and win themselves their first American league pennant.

This doesn't look especially like the year the Browns will deliver, yet you can never tell what may happen when a club has on its roster such sterling ball players as Heinie Manush, Lu Blue, Oscar Melillo, Sammy Gray and Alvin Crowder.

The Browns are in a separate class when it comes to rating big league clubs on their all-time showing. For it is this team, you know, that never has won a major league championship.

They came pretty close back in 1922 when, with George Sisler at the helm, they fought the Yankees to the very last series of the season before the New York outfit crashed through into pennantland.

At that time the Browns weren't as desperate as they are now, for then both the Cardinals and the Washington Senators also rated as perennial alsorans. The Senators stepped out in 1924 and captured two flags in a row and in 1926, the Cardinals and the National league championship and repeated in 1928.

So here are the Browns still doing nothing but supplying cannon fodder for the stronger clubs. Even the Boston Red Sox who finished in the American league cellar seven times in the last eight years rate above the Browns in the pennant winning business. The Sox, beginning in 1915, won three pennants in four years.

Whether the Browns can deliver this year depends on their pitching and hitting. They have the fielding, as they proved in 1929 when they finished second to the Athletics as the league's best fielding team.

The pitching burden again will rest with Sammy Gray and Alvin Crowder, two American league veterans, and young Walter Stewart.

The hitting, on the basis of preseason dope, will have to be taken care of by Heine Manush, who seldom bats below .350; Centerfielder Fred Shulte, Shortstop Ralph Kress and Second Baseman Oscar Melillo, all youngsters, and First Baseman Lu Blue.

Manager Bill Killefer one-time first assistant to Dan Howley, has some new material coming up, none of which stands out.

It's too bad but unless two or three "finds" are uncovered in spring training, that first pennant for the Browns probably will have to wait a while longer.

Porkers Need Only One Victory To Win Southwestern Cage Title

By GAYLE TALBOT JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, Feb. 23.—Having received some very timely assistance from their former mentor, Francis Schmidt, the Arkansas university Razorbacks had their fifth straight Southwest conference basket ball title as good as in the bag today.

Schmidt, who piloted the Porkers to four flags, must be credited with an assist in their latest triumph. His Texas Christian Horned Frogs knocked Texas university's hopes into a cocked hat by trimming the Longhorns, 26 to 21, Saturday night at Austin. Defeat of the Orange quintet, coupled with the Razorbacks' double victory over the Texas Aggies, 28 to 25 and 25 to 23, left Arkansas assured of a tie for the crown, even if Coach Bassett's loopers drop both their remaining bouts with Rice Monday and Tuesday at Houston and the Longhorns win their last two from Southern Methodist and the Aggies. A victory over Rice in either tilt would give Arkansas the championship.

GAYLE TALBOT, JR.

The Razorbacks did just what they were supposed to do, sweep their series with the Aggies, but they were given a close scrape in the second bout. Tied 21-21 at the close of the regulation playing period, the Porkers slipped in four points in the extra period to win. Oliver, a substitute guard, accounted for all of them. Schoonover led the Arkansas attack with 11 points.

Texas Christian's quintet stampeded in the last five minutes of play to kick the Longhorns out of the title hunt. Texas was leading, 14 to 7, at the half and at one time in the second period had a 10-point margin, but the Frogs, led by Captain Eury, came up fast to pass them and forge ahead before the final gun. The fact that they sank three foul shots out of eight attempts hurt the Longhorns' chances.

Bears Drop Thriller

Baylor's Bears, playing without their scoring ace, Raymond Alford, who remained at home sick, dropped a thrilling 26-24 decision to Southern Methodist at Dallas. It was a see-saw affair from start to finish, with first one team and then the other taking a slight lead. With only a few minutes remaining the count was tied at 19-19. Captain Brooks, with 10 points, was high for the winners.

The victory practically cinched third place for the Mustangs for the second straight year. They have an outside chance of tying Texas for the second rung.

Six tussles this week will wind up the conference schedule. The card follows:

Monday: Arkansas vs. Rice at Houston.

Tuesday: Arkansas vs. Texas Christian at Dallas; Baylor vs. Rice at Houston.

The standing:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Arkansas	9	1	.900
Texas	7	3	.700
S. M. U.	5	5	.500
T. C. U.	4	7	.364
Aggies	3	6	.333
Baylor	3	6	.333
Rice	3	6	.333

WEST TEXAS LEAGUE MEETS

Airey Re-Elected Secretary; New Abilene Club Seen

SAN ANGELO, Texas, Feb. 23 (AP)—Officers were re-elected by the West Texas league in annual session here today. They are: president-treasurer, Dave L. Snodgrass of Coleman; vice president, J. A. Johnson of Midland, and secretary, Guy Airey of Wichita Falls.

Coleman, Ballinger, Midland and San Angelo representatives announced these cities will have teams if the league operates this year, and Airey reported he believed it likely a club will be formed by Abilene citizens to replace the team which Wichita Falls operated there in 1929. He will confer with them Monday. As Wichita Falls club secretary, Airey said the Spudders will not operate an Abilene team this season, but will loan its park and furnish surplus players to the new organization.

Of the six towns that comprised the circuit last year, Big Spring alone was not represented today. Should it withdraw, its franchise will be offered to Brownwood, Brady or Sweetwater.

The league reduced the salary limit from $2,400, including manager, to $2,000 exclusive of manager. The player limit remains 14, including manager, but each club must carry at least nine men without previous professional experience. Of the remaining five, one may be of class A or higher classification and the other four may be players of below A classification.

A split season of 140 games probably will start May 1.

Receipts last year were $6,763.33 and disbursements $6,747.32 with small sums due President Snodgrass reported. The league attendance totaled 83,435. Ballinger, smallest town in the loop, led with 17,011. San Angelo was second with 15,959.

Golf Course Being Laid Out in Yard of Jail

CHICAGO, Feb. 23. (AP)—A nine-hole golf course is being laid out in the front yard of the bridewell, or county jail.

James Curran, superintendent, said there was no intention of letting the prisoners play golf. Some of the nicer prisoners may be privileged to caddy now and then, but the course will be for the use of judges, prosecutors and defense attorneys, with an hour or so loose from the courtroom.

Prisoners now are at work on the course. Several men in jail for bootlegging are assigned to construction of the water hazards.

Frog Ace Leads Southwest Cagers In Scoring Race

DALLAS, Feb. 23. (AP)—Roy Eury, Texas Christian university center, scored nine points against Texas university Saturday night to run his total to 96 and take a commanding lead over his closest rival, Hart of Rice, but it was doubtful the Frog ace would lead the Southwest conference scoring race at the finish.

Eury has only one more game in which to boost score, while Hart has three more bouts. With any kind of luck, the Owl star should finish well ahead of the pack.

Players scoring over 30 points:

Steers Not Worried Over Holdout Situation

DALLAS, Feb. 23. (AP)—Looking forward to the arrival Friday of Skipper Jakie Atz, veteran of many seasons with the Fort Worth Cats and new manager this year for the Dallas steers, officials of the Dallas baseball club said today they were not alarmed over the holdout situation. All pitchers and catchers already were signed.

President Fred McJunkin said yesterday that eight players were still unsigned and he declared that no player on the roster of the club could be permitted to report for spring training Monday, March 3, unless he had signed his 1930 contract.

Spit is a horrid word, but it is worse on the end of your cigar

. . . the war against Spitting is a crusade of decency . . . join it. Smoke CERTIFIED CREMO!

The spitter is a beast. The law says "NO!" to his vile and vicious habit. But, for every spitter caught, there are hundreds who escape . . . hundreds who still roll cigars with filthy fingers—and spit on the ends! It is a fact that more than half of all cigars made in this country are still made by hand, and therefore subject to the risk of spit!

Certified Cremo protects you against this abomination! Every tobacco leaf entering the clean, sunny Certified Cremo factories is scientifically treated by methods developed by the United States Government during the war. And its purity is safeguarded along every step of the way by amazing inventions that foil, wrap and tip the cigars without the possibility of spit!

Try a Certified Cremo—see how wonderfully good it is! Made of the choicest, tenderest leaves that the crop affords, we claim Certified Cremo's quality is tastier than that of any other cigar. Don't let its 5c price stand in your way. Your physician has in mind a cigar like Certified Cremo when he recommends a mild smoke in place of heavy brands.

Crush-proof . . . immaculate . . . foil-wrapped . . . Certified Cremo is the kind of cigar the late Vice-President Marshall undoubtedly was thinking of when he said: "What this country needs is a good 5c cigar!"

LANDMARK AT MEMPHIS GOES

New Ice Plant to Replace Famous Home

Special to The Record News.

MEMPHIS, Texas, Feb. 23.—The oldest landmark in Memphis is being razed preparatory to the erection of a 17-ton ice plant and an office building, starting March 1. The ice plant will be electrically equipped and will occupy a space of 53 by 50 feet. Construction materials are to be concrete, brick and steel, also of fire-resisting materials throughout.

The old house was built in 1896 and when finished was considered the finest in town, according to Mrs. E. W. Henderson, the first owner. Allen Wilburn, now of Amarillo, contracted for the carpenter work and Tom Woodford did the painting and paperhanging. Mrs. Henderson made her home in this house until 1905 when she sold it to a Mr. Long. Long did not even move into the house and sold it to the father of Andrew Womack, Memphis grocery man. Mr. Womack retained the lots and house until recently when it was sold to the West Texas Utilities company.

Reviewing the history of the house, Mrs. Henderson said:

"Why, when that house was built there was very little in Memphis and people were still building little houses and when they would buy a more suitable lot they would just move their house on their lots, probably do a little repairing, build another room or so and think they were doing fine, so when we built our house everyone thought it very pretty. In those days it was very fine."

Mrs. Henderson and her son, Bob, still reside in Memphis.

Wichita County Fair May Be Incorporated

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Feb. 23.—It has been announced that an effort will be made to incorporate the Wichita Falls County Fair association. Should this be accomplished, it will assure a larger and better fair, and freedom from debt, according to the Iowa Park Herald. The dates of the fair have been set for Sept. 25 to 27 and the Tidwell shows, who furnished the carnival attractions last year, have been signed for these dates. The rodeo feature will be eliminated, it has been stated, and the rodeo grounds will be given over to the carnival and free acts.

Hollis Will Elect Councilmen in March

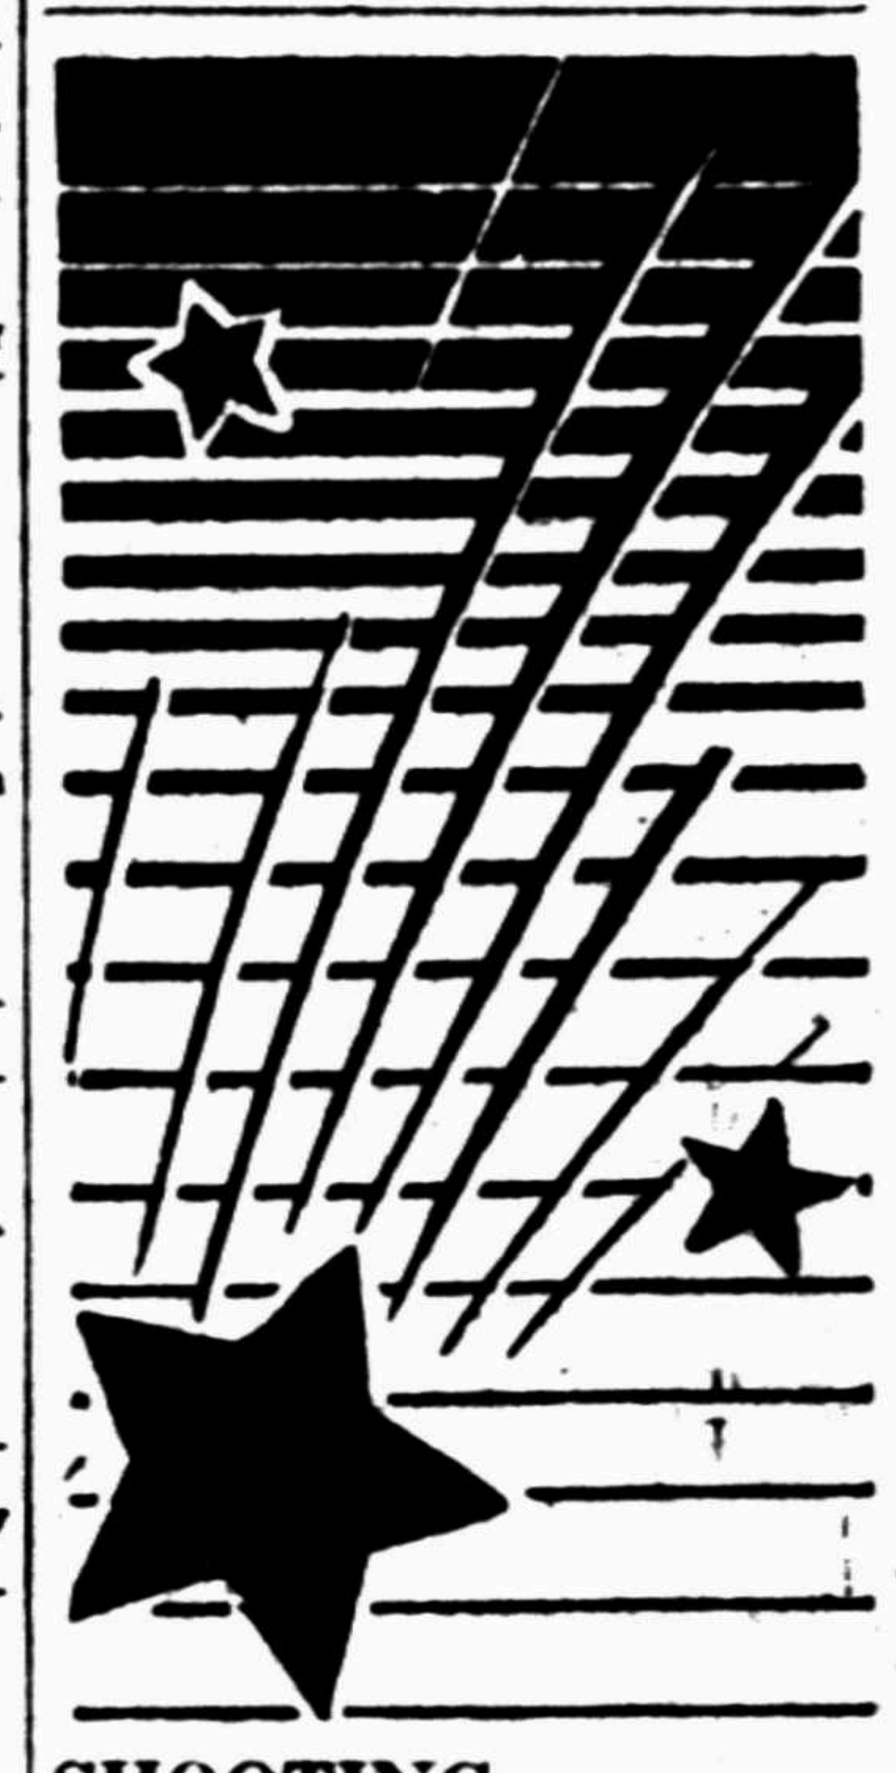

Special to The Record News.

HOLLIS, Okla., Feb. 23.—Due to the growth of the city of Hollis and its being designated as a city of the first class, an election will be held Tuesday, March 18, for the election of councilmen. The councilmen whose terms expire this spring are Oscar Abernathy, Ward 1; W. L. Hollis, Ward 2, Chester Caswell, Ward 3, and A. D. McClure, Ward 4. It is probable that a call for the election will be made by the city council within the next few days, setting out the voting places, designating the election of officials.

Deferred Tax Payments Favored at Iowa Park

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Feb. 23.—The city council of Iowa Park has expressed its favor of semi-annual payments of city taxes in order to relieve the pressure of these payments as are now expected in January, when other taxes are also due. An extension of one month has been granted to taxpayers this year, and it was stated that this decision would not become effective until 1931.

CHURCH ASLEEP SAYS MARTIN

Bible Teacher Points to Unchurched Throng

Pointing to the 75,000,000 "unchurched" people of the United States as a possible menace to the Christian institutions of the country, Judge P. A. Martin Sunday morning told members of the men's Bible class of the Floral Heights Methodist church that the church of God is asleep.

The speaker said he did not believe that such a thing would ever happen, but added that it would be possible for majority outside the church to "abolish the teaching and the preaching of the word, banish ministers, tear down churches, prohibit the teaching of the Bible anywhere, like Russia has done."

Awkening Needed

Judge Martin declared that the answer lay in the awakening of both ministers and lay members, calling upon Christians to use precept and example in going to this "75,000,000 of our fellow citizens and showing them as the Master commanded that 'the kingdom of heaven is at hand'."

An outline of the address is given below:

"In our missionary cultivation period of this past week we have learned the startling fact that less than 50 per cent of the people of the United States are even nominal Christians, in fact the author of the book we have studied says that fully 75,000,000 people now living under the stars and stripes of the union are the subject of missionary activity. These are like sheep without a shepherd, as the Savior said of the lost sheep of the house of Israel.

Facing this condition it is interesting to study the lesson of today, telling us, as it does, just how the Master, the founder of our religion, called the first preachers and the orders and directions He gave them before they went out to preach. Now do not confuse this call and this commission with the great commission finally given them after His resurrection and just before His ascension when He said 'go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature.' The time was not yet ripe for this world-wide commission. These 12 were to avoid the gentiles and the samaritans and preach only to the Jews. They were to go forth by twos to preach and to heal in the name of Jesus.

Blessing Promised

"Again we hear the direction 'as ye go preach saying the kingdom of heaven is at hand'—the same words used by John the Baptist and by the Master Himself at the very beginning of their ministry. They were also to heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils, and the promise is made to be that receiveth Me and he that receiveth Me receiveth Him that sent Me,' so they were distinctly given to understand that God would signally honor their ministry by the sure and certain recognition of their converts, as members of the kingdom and entitled to all its privileges. They were to go without scrip or raiment, depending upon the support of their converts and the hospitality of the people. And a blessing was promised to anyone who gave them even a cup of cold water in name of a disciple.

"Thus, after a season of education at the feet of the Great Teacher, they became 'fishers of men' as He had promised them on Galilee's shore where some of them were called to follow Him. And ever since this faraway time men have been called to go forth and seek the lost sheep in the name of the Master and preach that the kingdom of Heaven is at hand and at no time, even in the darkest of the dark ages, has there ever been an entire failure of such representatives of the kingdom. There are thousands of them now representing more than 600 sects or denominations preaching in their own way or in some way the gospel of the kingdom, and it is of these men we want to speak today; men who under holy orders, consecrate their lives to this great work.

Criticism Enough

"I am not here to criticise the modern preachers of the gospel; the Lord knows they have criticism enough without the lifting of a single voice against them; but I do say that it seems that for some reason the gospel they preach has seemed to have lost some of it's early power to the salvation of the world; the book we have been studying says that several of our churches have failed to gain in recent years, as they did in times past. I do not lay the blame at the door of the ministry, but I believe that the people are demanding some new things rather than the old in the ministry of the word, or else the ministry has departed too far from the old things, trying to keep up with the temper or distemper of the times; at any rate the church of God in our own country does not seem to be drawing men to its altars as they should be drawn, nor holding them as they should be held. And I think that we are really all at fault; both ministry and people.

The fact of the business is that the church of God is asleep. Now and then we are awakened by some special call like the Centenary in our church or the educational movement of our Baptist brethren a year or so ago, but when the immediate enthusiasms of the movement dies down we settle back into the former lethargy.

Ultimate Possibility

"I am not dreaming that such a thing will ever happen in our blessed country, but it is not a pleasant thought that in this land, where the majority rules in all things, this unchurched majority outside the kingdom of our Christ, could, if they should ever take the notion to do so, abolish the teaching and preaching of the word, banish our ministers from the country, tear down our churches, prohibit the teaching of the Bible anywhere, like Russia has done under their Soviet government. As I say, I have no fear that such a thing will happen, and yet it could happen.

"The challenge is to you and to me and to all who profess to be Christians to so live as to show the world of men round about us that there is a reality in the religion we profess and a superiority in the Christian life which will draw men into the kingdom. Let our preachers and people by precept and example go to this 75 million of our fellow citizens and show them as the Master commanded that 'the kingdom of heaven is at hand.'"

MAJESTIC: "Glorifying the American Girl," with Mary Eaton, Eddie Cantor, Helen Morgan and Rudy Vallee. If you can explain the title, tell us. Krazy Kat comedy—four stars. Movietone news.

STRAND: Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks in "Taming of the Shrew." See the other current shows later. Comedy. Musical feature. Sound news.

STATE: "South Sea Rose," with Lenore Ulric. Comedy. Sound news.

GEM: Clara Bow in "The Saturday Night Kid." "Their Second Honeymoon," comedy.

"Glorifying the American Girl," now at the Majestic. Did you struggle last spring with Bessie Love and Anita Page as they fought for the "big break" in "Broadway Melody?" Did you see Alice White as a "Broadway Baby," Hal Skelvy and Nancy Carroll in "Dance of Life," et cetera and so forth even to "On With the Show" and "Sally?" If so, and if such "heart-gripping drama" had the desired kick in it, then "Glorifying the American Girl" will be your dish. For it has the same schoolboy plot, the same cruel obstacles for the oppressed but talented little shop girl to surmount, the same dance steps by the chorus with close-up horizontals of the legs. All this plus the dazzling sets constructed for Flo Ziegfeld's famous follies. But if your appetite for back-stage chatter, dressing room intrigue and the hoofer's conquest of Broadway cloyed after the first half-dozen successive doses, this will be an excellent week to get the spring house-cleaning and gardening done.

One must search carefully to find any innovations, regardless of whether they entertain when found, aside from the extensive use of gorgeous backgrounds in the style of Ziegfeld's New York revues. Mary Eaton, if turned loose to sing and dance, would survive nicely even if Marilyn Miller was here last week. But Mary is not allowed to dance and sing, except occasionally in subordination to another of those stories. The plot? The out-of-town visitor in the next row remarked, to our hearing, its being quite thread-bare. To which her astute companion replied, as the chorus came on, that even the threads were missing. But the plots are like that on the hoofer's big battlefield. Just how long will talking-picture producers be sustained in their assumption that stories with dramatic interest can be drawn only from Broadway's musical comedy past?

Aided by techni-color photography, "Glorifying" contains scenic sets which in grandeur and extent dwarf those which may be constructed in a small playhouse. Assimilation of their details changes from an opportunity to a pastime as a soggy plot slowly wanders on into the mazes.

Lowly Cotton Burr May Become New Source of Wealth for Two States

Extensive Experiments Made in Oklahoma Indicate New Fiber Board Can Be Made From Gin Waste

By MATTYE WILSON
Record News Correspondent

ALTUS, Okla., Feb. 23.—A fiber board which has invaded the building industry and which is being made from the wastes of various feedstuffs might easily be produced from the cotton burr waste of Southwestern Oklahoma and North Texas, according to various experimentations of individuals interested in the commercial utilization of waste from cotton gins.

Investigation shows that Southwestern Oklahoma, Central South Oklahoma and Northern Texas produce 336,000 tons of waste annually or a total of 672,000,000 pounds.

Thousands of feet of waste could be converted into an insulation board such as "celotex." Celotex is made from cane fiber, weighs 600 pounds for every 1,000 feet. This amount of production in burrs annually if converted into an insulation board could be made to yield over 1,000,000,000 feet of such board assuming the weight to be approximately the same as celotex and also assuming that all available burrs were used for such manufacture.

Materials Used

Insulation board is made of cane fiber in Lousiana and Florida. It is made from wheat straw in Missouri. In Illinois it is made from corn stalks and from spruce wood in Minnesota. It can not only be made from cotton burrs but also from cotton stalks, according to recent surveys. The burrs are a valuable fertilizer also and their use is being encouraged over the cotton belt and especially in Jackson county this year.

Glen Hutton of Altus, has interested himself in the study of the various uses which may be made of cotton burrs. Jim McClintic, Oklahoma congressman, who is interested in the same subject is at the present time working with the United States bureau of standards in completely analyzing and experimenting on the uses for which the burr is best adapted. Small shipments of burrs have been sent to the bureau of standards for experimenting purposes.

Waste Runs High

Within a radius of 100 miles of Altus fully 500,000 bales of cotton are produced annually. Fully half of this has been snapped cotton. Each bale ginned from snapped cotton will produce from 400 to 500 pounds of burrs and waste giving for the area a production of 200,000 pounds of burrs and waste each year which is a problem to the gins the managers who are encouraging the farmer to return the burrs to the land as a fertilizer.

Prof. O. M. Smith of the State Agricultural and Mechanical college in a pamphlet entitled "Commercial Utilization of Waste From Cotton Gins," says "In Oklahoma and Texas, as shown by reports of the United States department of agriculture, for the past 10 years there has been produced an annul crop of 5,370,000 bales of cotton, varying from 2,679,000 in 1921 to 7,401,000 bales in 1926. Of this amount only that grown in the more arid and colder sections, as Central and Southwestern Oklahoma and Central and Northern Texas where the cotton does not grow rank and high may be harvested by the sledding method. The practice of picking unripe or unopened bolls is also followed. One-fourth of the cotton may be produced this way. In such a case there would be available an average of at least 336,000 tons of gin waste.

Low Freight Rate

"The average box car when loaded with shredded waste will contain more than the minimum of 30,000 pounds. The most economical freight rate may be obtained. Waste material such as this cannot be shipped any great distance. Assuming that the maximum distance is 100 miles, the cost of delivered waste will not exceed $3 for single and joint lines. This is assuming a $1 charge for shredding and loading and a freight classification the same as cotton seed hulls, $2.10 to $2.50 per ton."

Cotton gin wastes unless they contain considerable seed are proved to have little feed value other than that of a dilutant.

Other uses for which it may be developed are carbon, products of destructive distillation, soluable cellulose, rayon, paper, cardboard and wallboard.

These statistics indicate that a waste around the cotton vicinity of Altus could be utilized and the possibilities of establishing Altus as a concentration point in the event of its adaptibility in industrial uses is readily seen.

PRESBYTERIAN REVIVAL ENDS

Large Congregations Hear Alexander's Sermons

Congregations which filled the auditorium of the First Southern Presbyterian church Sunday morning and night heard the sermons of Dr. W. A. Alexander of Dallas which closed the eight-day revival meeting held by that church.

Dr. Alexander, pastor of the Highland Park Presbyterian church at Dallas, filled the pulpit here for the past week on a schedule which takes every Southern Presbyterian pastor to a neighboring post for one week of evangelistic effort at some time during this spring. Dr. Gaines B. Hall, pastor of the local congregation, recently spent one week in meetings at Clarendon.

Dr. Alexander chose for his text Sunday morning, "There Is Joy in the Presence of the Angels Over One Sinner That Repented." Parables of the prodigal son, the 90 and nine sheep, and the lost coin were used as a basis of his sermon.

"Loving kindness" is one of the sweetest expressions in the Hebrew language," said the speaker, "and it explains why the shepherd would search for the one sheep that was lost, though the other 99 were safe in the fold. He went because of a certainty that before long that sheep would be in dire difficulty and great danger. The man who is without Jesus Christ as a guiding influence in his life is just as sure to come ultimately to grief as that straying sheep would have been."

"Your conception of life is very different from that of God," Dr. Alexander continued, "you see yourself as happy, prosperous and enlightened, all in your own right; but God sees you as one lost because you are separated from Him."

Young people of the church comprised the choir for the evening service. Special numbers included "Hold Thou My Hand," by Briggs, song by Miss Kathleen Colligan, soprano, with violin obbligato by Mrs. J. E. Hall, and a male quartet number, "The Riches of Love."

Dan Norwood Trial Scheduled Today

The second trial of Dan Norwood, charged with the manufacture and the possession of whisky for sale, is scheduled to be called in the 89th district court Monday morning. Norwood was arrested last fall when county officers raided a big still near Electra.

His first trial, two weeks ago, resulted in a conviction on both counts of the indictment, with a one-year sentence for each count. Judge P. A. Martin granted a new trial on the grounds that the law forbids two convictions on one felony indictment.

George W. Anderson, assistant district attorney announced Sunday that the state would be ready to enter the second trial Monday morning.
