Coming Sunday

Rebuilding

Volunteers are expected to converge on the small West Texas community of Saragosa in late August in a concerted attempt to rebuild the town, destroyed by a tornado earlier this year. Read about their efforts in Sunday's Local section.

Seasoning

More and more, cooks are learning that herbs are the answer to keeping the flavor in foods while cutting down on salts and sugars. Read more about the culinary and medicial values of herbs in Sunday's Lifestyle section.

Loaning

Midland banks had the highest percentage of non-performing loans of any metropolitan area in the state during the first quarter of the year. Sunday's Business section provides complete rankings for banks around the state.

Central American agreement signed

GUATEMALA CITY (AP) — The presidents of five Central American nations signed an 11-point agreement Friday designed to bring peace to the region but left details of its implementation to be worked out by their foreign ministers.

The tentative, fragile nature of the pact was suggested by its title, which they avoided calling a treaty and instead termed "a procedure for establishing a firm and durable peace in Central America."

The pact was signed by the presidents of Guatemala, Nicaragua, El Salvador, Honduras and Costa Rica at a two-day summit, and was based on a proposal submitted by President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica on Feb. 15.

It calls for a cease-fire in 3½ months in Nicaragua's civil war and the leftist insurgency in El Salvador, but depends on the willingness of insurgent forces in both nations to lay down their arms.

Arias read the document in an ornate reception hall at the National Palace. The presidents then signed it.

President Vinicio Cerezo of Guatemala hailed the pact as a "historic acheivement." Roberto Viera, El Salvador's vice minister of communications, said it was "conceptual" but an "important step forward."

"It's a tremendous breakthrough," said Luis Solis, chief of staff for the Costa Rican Foreign Ministry.

In addition to the cease-fires, the agreement calls for reconciliation between the governments and opposition groups in El Salvador and Nicaragua, steps to assure democracy in each of the five nations, an end to outside aid to irregular forces, and a halt to the use of any country's territory by rebels trying to destabilize another country.

It left to the five nations' foreign ministers the job of finding ways to implement those goals, a task that has been a stumbling block to peace for years. Also left undecided were the terms of verification and regional arms limitation.

Viera said the United States and the Soviet Union and its allies would be "exhorted" to halt aid to insurgent forces in Central America, but acknowledged there was no guarantee they would do so.

In Washington, House Speaker Jim Wright called the accord "substantial," adding, "You probably need to keep your fingers crossed and hope it doesn't come unglued."

He said he hoped the United States would respond positively and that President Reagan would withhold any requests to Congress for a renewal of aid to the Nicaraguan Contra rebels as long as the peace process is on track.

"I believe the president is going to try to act in good faith," he said, even though the agreement worked out in Central America differs from one proposed by Reagan and Wright earlier this week.

The U.S. proposal, issued Wednesday, dealt only with Nicaragua, where the Contras have been trying to topple the leftist Sandinista government.

White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said, "We are anxiously awaiting details of this agreement. After we have received it and have had a chance to analyze it we will be in a position to comment."

The Nicaraguan Resistance, the main Contra rebel group, issued a statement in Guatemala City saying it generally supported the pact. It noted, however, that the document included no sanctions and called for reversing conditions that have been the base of the Sandinista regime for eight years.

The five presidents worked on the document at a meeting that lasted into the early morning Friday, then left their staffs to clear up details in an session that went to almost 5 a.m. The presidents then met again for two hours to ratify those details.

Pickens sets sights on aerospace firm

DALLAS (AP) — Oilman T. Boone Pickens Jr. has set his sights on a major aerospace company for the second time in two weeks, announcing Friday his investor group was seeking federal permission to acquire up to 15 percent of Singer Co.

As with Pickens' recent move to acquire a similar stake in Boeing Co. it was unclear whether he was maneuvering for a possible takeover or just acquiring stock as a passive investor.

But a number of analysts said Pickens was unlikely to attempt a takeover of Stamford, Conn.-based Singer or of Boeing, and instead was attempting to profit from investments in companies he considered undervalued.

Pickens' Mesa Limited Partnership indicated it owned stock and options representing 4.4 percent of Singer's 21 million outstanding common shares. The partnership stated it was notifying the Federal Trade Commission and expected clearance to acquire up to 15 percent within 30 days.

Singer stock rose $4.62½ to $51.50 Friday on the New York Stock Exchange.

Based on the current stock price, Singer had a market value of about $1.08 billion.

Mesa officials did not return telephone calls seeking further comment, and Singer declined to comment on the disclosure.

Mesa, which is based in Amarillo, late last month said it was acquiring $15 million in Boeing stock and got federal permission to acquire up to 15 percent of Boeing, the nation's biggest commercial aircraft maker and a major defense contractor.

Boeing's board of directors adopted a "poison pill" takeover defense following the disclosure and have been lobbying Washington state lawmakers to pass a tough anti-takeover law at their special session scheduled for Monday. Several legislative committees met Friday to determine whether to consider the bill.

Singer is a consumer and commercial electronics manufacturer that generates most of its revenue from its aerospace operations, which include defense contracting, flight simulators and navigation systems.

The company spun off 85 percent of its well-known sewing machine operations and its furniture business to stockholders in October 1986.

While Singer likely would be a much less expensive target than Boeing, which would cost nearly $8 billion at its current market price, analysts said Pickens' past strategy made a takeover unlikely.

Pickens made his reputation as a raider of massive oil companies, such as Gulf Corp., Unocal Corp. and Phillips Petroleum Co. He made millions of dollars by launching hostile takeover bids for companies he considered undervalued and selling his stakes when the target companies repurchased their own stock or were bought by rival bidders.

Oil prices move lower after volatile week

NEW YORK (AP) — Oil prices drifted lower again Friday, ending a volatile week that saw prices shoot over $22 per barrel and then slide back below $21.

On the New York Mercantile Exchange, contracts for September delivery of West Texas Intermediate, the benchmark U.S. crude oil, lost 15 cents to settle at $20.99 per 42-gallon barrel.

The bellwether contract lost more than a dollar in the last four trading sessions, after trading as high as $22.67 in response to last weekend's violence in the Middle East.

Prices for refined oil products also eroded further on Friday. The September contract for wholesale unleaded gasoline fell .18 cent to 54.64 cents a gallon, while the near-month contract for wholesale No. 2 heating oil dropped .38 cent to 54.90 cents a gallon.

Bob Baker, an analysts with Prudential-Bache Securities Inc., said traders had concluded that "the clear nervousness that came into the market after the riots (in Mecca, Saudi Arabia) was not founded with any bona fide threats to oil supplies."

In other markets, stocks turned in a mixed performance Friday. The Dow Jones industrial average of 30 blue-chip stocks, which reached its 48th record high of the year Thursday at 2,594.23, closed down 2.23 to 2,592.

Analysts said some investors cashed in their gains for the week, partly because of fears that any weekend hostility in the Middle East might hurt the market Monday.

Gold prices plunged by more than $15 a ounce, and the dollar pushed higher. Republic National Bank in New York reported gold fell from $468.70 to a late bid of $453.50.

After Monday's fear-inspired rally in the oil futures market, analysts said traders began unloading contracts and heading for the sidelines to await the next big development in the Middle East.

The majority of Midland police and Sheriff's Office patrol officers use disposable rubber gloves, like those worn by police Cpl. Jim White, when contact with body fluids of suspects or victims is expected. The gloves prevent officers from contracting hepatitis or the AIDS virus, lawmen say.

Gloves protect local officers from disease

By PATRICK CRIMMINS
Staff Writer

Most Midland patrol officers wear rubber gloves to prevent contracting contagious diseases, such as hepatitis or AIDS, but are not required to do so, according to department officials.

"There is no official policy, but it is common practice," for patrolmen to wear the gloves, said Cpl. Jim White, police spokesman.

Police Chief Richard Czech has not established a policy on the gloves because all officers have first aid and medical training, which includes instruction on AIDS and how it spreads, White said.

Such training has influenced the "vast majority" of officers to carry gloves with them on patrol, he said.

But historically, law officers have feared hepatitis because it is commonly associated with heroin addicts and other drug abusers, White said.

"Hepatitis is a bigger problem for us," than AIDS, he said, adding that there have been documented cases in Midland of officers contracting hepatitis while on the job.

Most officers who patrol Midland County outside the city limits also wear the disposable gloves, but are not required to, said Midland County Sheriff Gary Painter.

"We don't have a policy per se," said Painter. "Most of the patrol officers do have them."

Officers are wary of both AIDS and hepatitis, and aware that a suspect carrying one of the diseases could well carry the other, Painter said.

The unpleasant fact faced by lawmen daily is the intimate contact they often have with body fluids of suspects or victims, White said.

Officers have to prepare for contact with "every human excretion possible: urine, feces, blood, vomit, saliva. I've also been bitten several times," he said.

Some patrol officers also carry plastic mouth shields in the event they must perform mouth to mouth resuscitation. The shields permit air flow, but no contact with body fluids, he said.

Police officers commonly wear rubber gloves for reasons having nothing to do with contagious diseases, but the AIDS epidemic has focused attention on the risks public safety officers face, White said.

"Officers usually wear the gloves at crime scenes, to keep them from coming into contact with blood, and to avoid leaving any fingerprints," he said.

"Any time we run a search warrant (for narcotics), the Criminal Investigation officers are required to wear rubber gloves," Painter said, agreeing that the gloves help officers avoid contaminating evidence.

Officials move to revoke Costa Rican's probation

CORPUS CHRISTI (AP) — Federal authorities are moving to revoke the probation of man believed linked to a right wing political party in El Salvador.

Francisco Guirola-Beeche was among four men arrested at the Kleberg County Airport on Feb. 6, 1985, after authorities seized seven suitcases filled with $5.98 million in cash. Guirola, the son of a Costa Rican diplomat, and another man pleaded guilty to violating currency reporting laws.

While the men never disclosed where the money was headed, others alleged the money was intended for El Salvador's right-wing ARENA party, led by Roberto D'Aubuisson, for use in a political campaign against the ruling Christian Democratic Party of President Jose Napolean Duarte.

Under terms of their plea agreement, the two men received five years' probation and relinquished any claim to the money.

A hearing is scheduled for Friday before U.S. District Judge Hayden W. Head Jr., but Guirola's attorney, James F. Gilbride of Miami, said it is unlikely Guirola will appear because the Immigration and Naturalization Service has revoked his visa to reenter the country.

After entering his plea, federal authorities moved to have him deported. While the proceedings were under way, Guirola returned to Guatemala to attend to business on the family plantation. After Guirola notified U.S. authorities that he had voluntarily left the United States, his visa was revoked.

Without a visa, Gilbride said Guirola was unable to return to the United States to meet with his probation officer of Miami.

County polling places listed

From Staff Reports

Midland County voters will cast ballots today for an optional one half of 1 percent sales tax to reduce the county's ad valorem (property) tax rate.

Polls will open at 7 a.m. and close at 7 p.m.

The measure, if passed, would reduce county property taxes by 30 to 40 percent and bring in an estimated $3 to $4 million in sales tax revenue.

Property taxes currently generate about $9.6 million for the county.

The purpose of the new proposal is to spread the tax burden more evenly among those living, visiting and doing business in Midland County.

Precincts will be combined into the following polling places:

— 101 — Airline Mobile Home Park, West Highway 80, Recreation Room.

— 102-103 — Alamo Junior High School, 3800 W. Storey.

— 104, 105 and 106 — Fire Station, Thomason Avenue and Midland Drive.

— 202 — Greenwood Independent School District, Administration Building.

— 201, 203 and 209 — Midland County Extension Building, East Highway 80 and Fairground Road.

— 206 and 210 — Midland College, 3600 N. Garfield St.

But despite some sharply worded anti-American threats from Iran, the region turned unusually quiet during the week. U.S. warships, assigned to protect Kuwaiti oil tankers plying the Persian Gulf, escorted one vessel without incident.

Three more Kuwaiti vessels were ready to go Friday, but Pentagon officials said they probably would not sail until U.S. minesweeping helicopters arrived next week. The supertanker Bridgeton hit a mine on the first trip last month.

"In the absence of fresh news the market is going to head lower," said Andrew Lebow, an analyst with Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc.

Basin trade forum linked to NETWORK

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

More local stories, Page 2C

ODESSA — The Permian Basin International Trade Forum is the only such organization in the State of Texas, outside of the Houston area, to be affiliated with NETWORK, a computerized "electronic mailbox" system coordinated by the Houston World Trade Association, according to Robert Handy, association executive director.

Handy told about 25 PBITF members and guests attending the group's monthly luncheon meeting at the Odessa Hilton Friday that the organization's affiliation with NETWORK puts members and other users "on the cutting edge" as far as international trade is concerned.

Utilizing a computer system and special projector, Handy demonstrated the capabilities of the NETWORK system's bulletin board feature, which allows members and users to post buy and/or sell notices for products and services.

The notices remain on the bulletin board for two weeks, he said, and the cost is about $24.

Anyone with a personal computer equipped with a telephone modem, he said, can read messages from members all over the world who want to buy or sell products. It costs a member-user 25 cents to read the bulletin board messages.

The core feature of the NETWORK system, Handy said, will be a database that will include specific information about the membership of all world trade centers and associations utilizing the system.

There are currently 43 world trade centers with some 40,000 to 50,000 members hooked into the NETWORK system, he stated. All database information will be available for viewing by members when it is finally brought on-line, Handy said.

Anti-Castro leader released from jail

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Anti-Castro leader Orlando Bosch was released from jail Friday night after serving nearly 11 years behind bars on charges of planning the 1976 bombing of a Cuban airliner.

Bosch, 59, was taken away from La Planta jail to an undisclosed location in a police escort shortly before 11 p.m.

A judicial release order was issued Friday by the appeals court that upheld Bosch's acquittal in the bombing of the Cubana de Aviacion plane in which 73 people were killed.

The director of the jail initially refused to release Bosch, saying he had not received necessary identification papers, according to Bosch's attorney, Francisco Leandro Mora.

The attorney, Bosch's wife and members of the Justice for Orlando Bosch Committee waited for him outside the jail. Leandro Mora called Bosch's continued detention "legal sadism."

Bosch, a physician and militant foe of Cuban President Fidel Castro, had his acquittal upheld Tuesday by a three-judge panel of the 8th Superior Penal Court.

It was the third ruling in favor of Bosch, who despite earlier lower-court acquittals was never released from jail. The latest acquittal is being appealed to the Supreme Court.

The 8th Superior Penal Court acquitted Bosch of being an accessory to homicide. It also upheld the homicide convictions of two of his co-defendants, Venezuelans Hernan Ricardo and Freddy Lugo. They were sentenced to 20 years each by a lower court.

A fourth co-defendant, Luis Posada, Carriles, escaped from a Venezuelan jail two years ago and has not been found.

Through it all, Bosch has maintained his innocence.

The plane, on a commercial flight from Venezuela to Cuba on Oct. 6, 1976, blew up shortly after taking off from a stopover in Barbados, killing all 73 people aboard. Most of the passengers were Cuban athletes returning from a fencing tournament in Caracas.

The case has soured Cuban-Venezuelan relations. In 1960, Cuba pulled its diplomatic representatives from Caracas when a military court acquitted Bosch.

The agreement calls for the five foreign ministers to meet within 15 days to set up "rules...for compliance" and establish committees to work out details.

The ministers have 90 days to establish final terms for the cease-fire, democratization, amnesty for political prisoners and armed opponents, an end to outside military aid and an end to use of any country's territory by rebels seeking to destabilize another nation.

The pact calls for an international commission to analyze progress on the agreement within 120 days, and for the presidents to meet 30 days after that to hear its report.

The commission will be made up of the foreign ministers, the secretaries general of the United Nations and the Organization of American States, and representatives of eight other Latin American nations known as the Contadora group and Contadora support group.

The four Contadora nations — Colombia, Mexico, Panama and Venezuela — have been working without success since January 1983 to draft a Central American peace treaty. They took their name from the Panamanian island where they began the peace effort.

"We've always said a range of possibilities could happen here, from a comprehensive agreement to a statement of will," said Costa Rica's Solis. "We are very happy the former has h..ppened."

Asked how the agreement could be described as comprehensive when key issues remain to be worked out, Solis said, "Those are the bets you have to take. But maybe some of those other details already have been settled." He declined further comment.

Asked if Reagan's proposal lent impetus to an agreement, Solis said, "I don't think the Reagan plan was any more important than any of the others. President Arias said all along that the Reagan plan was incompatible with his own."

The Reagan proposal called for suspending U.S. military aid to the Contras if the Sandinistas agreed to a cease-fire, restored democratic processes and rejected Soviet bloc military aid.

If Nicaragua did not agree by Sept. 30, Reagan planned to ask Congress for $150 million for Contra aid over the remaining 17 months of his term. The current U.S. allocation of $100 million runs out Sept. 30.

Veto may mean trouble for angry consumers

By DAVID PLESA
Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Consumers who have complaints about their monthly electric bills may have trouble getting results following a governor's veto that cuts spending at the Texas Public Utility Commission.

Gov. Bill Clements, however, did leave intact the Office of Public Utility Counsel, which represents residential and small commercial ratepayers at the PUC.

Asked why he did not veto spending at the public counsel's office, which he has sharply criticized in the past, Clements said: "Well, I guess the answer to that is I would probably put someone in there in whom I have confidence and that would give me a pipeline, if you will, into what the PUC is doing, which I have some real misgivings about."

Clements has not yet named someone to replace former Public Counsel Jim Boyle, who resigned last year when faced with the governor's promise not to renew his appointment. His term expired in February. Clements will submit a nomination within 60 days, said James Huffines, director of governmental appointments.

In signing the state's new, two-year budget Thursday, Clements vetoed the entire $400,000 budget of the PUC's Consumer Information and Response program. The main function of the program is to investigate and mediate disputes between consumers and utilities and make sure utilities comply with approved tariffs.

In making the line-item veto, Clements said services provided by the commission's consumer program are duplicated at the public counsel's office.

"Veto of this item eliminates unnecessary duplication in state services," Clements said in the proclamation outlining the $167.4 million in line-item vetos.

But the understaffed public counsel's office already refers almost all consumer complaints to the PUC's consumer response program.

"We normally refer the consumer complaints and tell them that if they don't get satisfaction, then come back to us," said Clarence Johnson of the public counsel's office.

Johnson said his office will have to review its resources to determine how to pick up the slack. "Our resources are strained, but we will just have to do the best we can with the resources that are available," he said.

Acting Public Counsel Geoffrey Gay, who worked under Boyle, said no one from the governor's staff has approached him about filling the position for the full two-year term.

"I would agree with the governor that this office must continue to function to provide accountability at the PUC," Gay said.

Clements also will replace PUC Commissioner Peggy Rosson, the El Paso housewife then-Gov. Mark White appointed in 1983, when her term ends on Sept. 1, Huffines said. The governor's staff is interviewing candidates for the job, he said, and should have a nomination on hand also within 60 days.

The PUC's consumer program, which employees seven people, is the principal point of contact for consumers with complaints and information requests, spokesman Bill Dunn said.

"We have been operating with a reduced staff, and the $400,000 has got to come from somewhere and that is a challenge the commission will have," he said.

Fire destroys house in Valley View

From Staff Reports

A house in the Valley View section of southeast Midland County was destroyed late Friday by a fire that had engulfed the residence by the time firefighters arrived.

Reports from the scene were that "the house burned to the ground," according to a Midland Fire Department dispatcher that came on duty at 11 p.m.

No one was believed injured in the blaze, because an ambulance was not requested by fire officials at the scene, the dispatcher said. He said he did not know if the house was occupied.

At least two units from the Midland Fire Department and a battalion chief were called to the scene about 10:25 p.m., on County Road 1160 near FM 1213, according to another dispatcher who took the initial report of the blaze.

The Greenwood Volunteer Fire Department was also notified of the fire, and one truck was sent to the house, the dispatcher said.

The gloves are not furnished by the police department, but are relatively cheap at six dollars for a box of 50, White said. Painter said the county furnishes his officers with the gloves.

The sheriff said he "most heartily approves" of the wearing of gloves in his department.

"The new threat of AIDS I think we are all aware of now, and before that we were trying to protect ourselves from hepatitis," he said.

"Concern has really escalated the last couple of years," White said. "And I still think some officers simply don't know how AIDS actually can be transmitted. That's something we need to work on."

Clarification

In Thursday's edition of the Reporter-Telegram, Midland Fire Department reports said that a landing gear of a single-engine plane collapsed while the pilot, Brad Baysinger of Midland, was taking off. According to Baysinger, the fire department report was incorrect. Baysinger said the mishap was the result of a "structural failure," and he was taxiing the aircraft, not taking off or landing, at the time.

DEATHS

George P. Robertson

LAFAYETTE, La. — George Pink Robertson, 77, brother of the late Alton C. Robertson of Midland, died at his home Thursday in Lafayette.

Services were to be today at 1 p.m. in Delhomme Chapel of the Flowers under the direction of Delhomme Funeral Home in Lafayette. The Rev. Stephen L. Williams of the Episcopal Church of Ascension, and the Rev. A.O. Sigur, pastor of Lady of Fatima Catholic Church, were to be officiating.

Graveside services and burial will be in Colorado City Cemetery Monday at 11:30 a.m. under the direction of Kiker Seale Funeral Home in Colorado City.

He was a native of Loraine and was the son of the late George Jewel Robertson and Ruby Cook. He was a resident of Lafayette for 24 years. He was a retired staff landman with Marathon Oil Co. for 39 years and was a charter member of the National Association of Petroleum Landmen. He was also a member of the National World War II Glider Pilot Association and served in World War II as flight officer in Guilders where he was taken prisoner during the Holland invasion. He served one year at Stalag Luft #1 German prison camp.

Robertson was the recipient of the Mame Campaign medal with one Brown Star air medal, Purple Heart, Silver Star and was recognized for participation in airborne operations of the defense — the Netherlands.

Survivors include his wife, the former Myrtis Meyers of Lafayette; one adopted son, Phillip Alta Robertson of Eugene, Ore., and numerous nieces and nephews.

He was preceded in death by one other brother, Scott Robertson of El Paso and one sister, Josephine Robertson Marshall of Loraine.

Judge compares drunk's auto to machine gun

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Comparing an intoxicated driver's car to a machine gun, a judge sentenced a Corpus Christi man Friday to two concurrent 10-year prison terms and levied $121,000 in restitution for an accident that killed four young people on spring break.

Gregory Mikolajczak, 30, was charged in March with four counts of involuntary manslaughter stemming from the deaths of Jolene Mary Christensen, 19, of San Antonio; Larry Dean Flippen, 22, of Fort Worth; Elaine Marie Hull, 17, of Dallas; and Nancy Ann Kervin, 19, of Dallas.

He pleaded guilty last month to two counts of involuntary manslaughter while the other two counts were dismissed. The two dismissed counts were considered during his sentencing Friday.

Tests determined that Mikolajczak had a blood alcohol level of 0.18, almost twice the legal limit of 0.10.

District Judge Jane Brasch said although she did not consider Mikolajczak a future menace to society, she wanted the sentence to send a message to other potential drunken drivers.

"The message is going to be that people cannot drink and drive," she added. "He might as well have had a machine gun going down the road."

Several friends and family members of the victims of the March 18 accident on state Highway 48 between South Padre Island and Brownsville were in the courtroom Friday.

"I have a 4-year-old who goes to the grave site and wishes Elaine hadn't died," said Mary Lee Hull, the victim's mother. "I have a 10-year-old who has a lot of anger. He'll probably have to go to counseling."

Carolyn Thomas, 18, of Dallas, Elaine Hull's friend, was hospitalized for two months after the accident, and told the judge the accident ruined her high school graduation.

Mikolajczak's mother, Ethleen Mikolajczak of La Sara, testified that her son was a model child.

"He's suffering," said Mikolajczak's aunt, Anna Hickey of Sweeny. "I know it probably doesn't compare to their suffering, but I know he's suffering."

Defense attorney Melchor Chavez had asked for probation.

Prosecutor Mervyn Mosbacker had asked the judge to consider the car a deadly weapon in handing down the sentence.

"There's no question he had a disregard for their lives," Mosbacker said.

"I just deeply regret everything that's happened," Mikolajczak told the judge before receiving the sentence.

In addition to the prison sentence and restitution, the judge levied fines of $10,000 and suspended Mikolajczak's drivers license for two years.

The four who died were among eight packed into a four-door Honda.

Two jailed in plot to smuggle guns into Mexico

These Chinese-made AKS semi-automatic assault rifles seized at an international bridge leading from Brownsville to Matamoros, Mexico, are part of a multimillion-dollar industry of weapons and ammunition smuggled from the United States into Mexico, according to an Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms agent said.

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Two men remained jailed Friday in connection with a plot to smuggle into Mexico Chinese-made assault rifles popular in insurgency warfare and drug trafficking, a federal official said.

Christ Heart, an agent with the federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said the AKS semi-automatic assault rifles seized at the border earlier this week are similar to those used by the Contra rebels operating along the Nicaraguan border.

U.S. Magistrate William Mallet set bond at $50,000 for Arnoldo Gracia-Garcia, 29, of Matamoros, Mexico. He is charged with filing a false report for allegedly identifying himself as a U.S. citizen when he bought the seven guns equipped with folding stocks and spike bayonets at a Brownsville store.

The judge set bond at $5,000 for Saul Borrego Ramirez, 32, who is being held as a material witness. He is also a resident of Matamoros, across the Rio Grande from Brownsville. Both men were in the Cameron County Jail Friday.

Gracia was arrested Tuesday at the Gateway International Bridge between the two border cities after U.S. Customs and ATF agents allegedly found the weapons concealed in Gracia's car.

Ramirez was arrested at a Brownsville house where the guns allegedly were kept until the smuggling attempt was made.

Both men had been under investigation for two months, Heart said.

Heart said gun smuggling from the United States into Mexico has developed into a multimillion-dollar industry along the border.

"There's big money in guns," Heart said. "There's a lot of traffic in guns, because guns going south is like narcotics going north."

He said the weapon can hold a 40-round magazine producing a firepower popular for use in insurgency warfare and drug trafficking. The AKS rifles legally sell for $450 in South Texas gun shops, he said.

"The moment you cross the (Rio Grande) river, it's worth $1,500, minimum," he said.

20,000 apply for amnesty in Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — The federal illegal alien amnesty program which began three months ago has had more than 20,000 applicants processed in Houston so far, officials said Friday.

The Houston Legal Center anticipates about 100,000 will file for the amnesty under the program in Houston by year's end, said Richard Rioa, the center's director.

Over 700 of the applications have been recommended for denial, said Leland LaGow, the center's assistant director.

LaGow said about 60 percent of denials were for driving while intoxicated offenses, but discrepancies between state and federal law on the offense could mean those aliens still may win approval.

As a result, applicants recommended for denial due to DWI offenses are being issued six-month work authorization cards, enabling them temporarily to work legally.

Under state law, most DWI offenses are misdemeanors, but some can be punishable by up to two years in prison. Under federal law, any crime punishable by more than a year in prison is grounds for denial of an amnesty application, Rios said.

Washington officials would make the final decision in cases of illegal aliens applying for amnesty who have DWI offenses, Rios said.

The Houston amnesty center has been one of the busiest in the nation.

Congress approves hike in debt ceiling

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress Friday approved an emergency increase in the national debt ceiling and prepared to recess for the summer, having failed to produce legislation to cut the nation's huge budget deficits.

The Senate Friday night by a vote of 51 to 39 followed the House in passing a bill increasing the Treasury's borrowing to $2.35 trillion through Sept. 23. The House action was by voice vote.

The stopgap bill was needed because a previous interim debt measure expired at 12:01 a.m. EDT Friday. Stripped of its borrowing authority, the Treasury suspended sales of U.S. savings bonds and the government faced default by mid-August.

Passage of the short-term debt bill came after House and Senate negotiators failed in a week-long flurry of talks to reach agreement on a long-term debt bill containing a plan to restore strength to the Gramm-Rudman budget-balancing law.

However, the limited duration of the debt bill meant that pressure would return in September to finish the legislation.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, a prime sponsor of the original law and the plan to revive it, pressed his cause until the last minute.

"We are losing today our best opportunity to fix the Gramm-Rudman law," he said.

But even as Congress was fleeing the corridors moistened by Washington's steamy summer, the House negotiators held another meeting. They rejected the argument that failure to finish before recess was fatal to the effort.

"I think a substantial amount of progress has been made, and will survive until after the recess," said House Majority Leader Thomas S. Foley, D-Wash.

House Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said he was nailing down areas of possible compromise so that when lawmakers returned after Labor Day, they wouldn't have to "start from scratch."

Both chambers had previously voted in favor of the $2.8 trillion debt bill to finance the government's deficit operations into 1989.

Bakker condemned for 'emphasis on pleasure'

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Members and leaders of Jim Bakker's denomination condemned the fallen evangelist Friday for his lavish lifestyle and for bringing "an emphasis on pleasure, prosperity and personal gain" into the religious community.

"We are deeply saddened, ashamed and repentant before God for these problems in our church family," said the Rev. G. Raymond Carlson, reading a statement from the executive presbytery of the Assemblies of God to a hushed national convention of an estimated 15,000 people.

"Sadly, the convictions of holiness and personal piety have been eclipsed with self-interests and prosperity," the statement from the 13-member executive body said.

TV evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, who had pushed the charges against Bakker with officials, was to speak later to a foreign missions gathering.

Carlson, the 2.1 million-member denomination's general superintendent, said Bakker and his ex-PTL network colleague, Richard Dortch, spurned the church inquiry and their rights to appeal.

Both men, ousted afterward from the ministry, were invited to take part in the disciplinary proceedings, but declined to appear either on the South Carolina district level or on the national level.

"That door was left open to them throughout these proceedings," the account said. "Neither of them chose to avail themselves of these opportunities."

The massed church representatives, who only moments before had been singing and praying exuberantly, sat in silence as the brief statement was read. Afterward, there was no comment from the floor.

D.L. Parker and his wife Sharon sell anointing oil at the Assemblies of God convention Friday in Oklahoma City. The convention continues through Tuesday.

The executive group, in their report, cautioned church members "to guard carefully against stating our personal opinions" on the Bakker case or similar matters.

Bakker quit his television ministry in March after admitting a sexual encounter with a woman follower, and the church in May revoked his ministerial credentials for adultery and alleged homosexual acts.

Asked why none of the church delegates responded to their leaders' report, the denominational information secretary Juleen Turnage said:

"Our people are so sick of this thing, they feel it's been talked about too much and run into the ground."

The executive group, in their report, cautioned church members "to guard carefully against stating our personal opinions" on the Bakker case or similar matters. But that didn't seem to prevent individuals from talking to reporters.

The Rev. Mel Surface of Wichita Falls, Texas, said the denomination's main problem with Bakker's behavior now focused on his exorbitant way of living.

Concerning the sexual episode, Surface said "lots of people would like to see an indication of repentance and restoration in the spirit of Christian love and fellowship."

"The greatest distress comes from continued revelations of his (Bakker's) extravagance, which indicates a deeper problem. It was not just a one-shot failure. His continued behavior challenges all of us to examine our own lifestyle."

Several others noted Bakker's lifestyle as a key problem, and also deplored his failure to go through a two-year church rehabilitation process to restore himself to the ministry.

Studies indicate island destroyed 150 years earlier than believed

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — Danish scientists studying ice in Greenland say they have found evidence showing that the great volcanic eruption that destroyed the island of Thera and its thriving Minoan civilization occurred in 1645 B.C.

That is 150 years earlier than the date ascribed to the catastrophe by many archeologists and throws their timetable of Minoan history into doubt. It would squeeze into a relatively short span of a few centuries the construction period for the huge palaces and other structures built by the Minoans on Crete and the Aegean Islands, including Thera (also known as Santorini).

The eruption is also of special interest because of its association by many archeologists with the legend of Atlantis, as described by Plato. A number of features in Plato's account are reminiscent of Minoan civilization, including the role played by sacred bulls. According to Plato, the island was close enough to threaten Greece and was engulfed by the sea.

"There occurred," he wrote, "violent earthquakes and floods; and in a single day and night of misfortune all your warlike men in a body sank into the earth, and the island of Atlantis in like manner disappeared in the depths of the sea."

In a study by the Danish group, published in the journal Nature this week, the scientists suggested that the eruption destroyed the original island in three stages, leaving the ring of smaller islands that remains. Excavations of the buried city of Akrotiri, now under way, have revealed remnants of a rich culture, a prehistoric Pompeii.

The Greenland evidence has come from cores of ice extracted by a Danish-American-Swiss expedition from the ice sheet at Dye 3, a radar station near the center of south Greenland. Layers of annual ice deposits, particularly those of the past several thousand years, can be identified by several methods.

When a major volcanic eruption throws ash into the stratosphere it is deposited over most of the region, north or south of the equator, in which the eruption occurred. Even though the ash is not sufficient to form a dark layer, its sulfate content makes the ice abnormally conductive of electricity.

The extracted cores of ice have been scanned for such layers, identifying many associated with known or unknown eruptions of the past. The Danish group found three conductive layers from the general period of the Thera eruption, but only one was formed by sulfate. It was dated within 20 years of 1645 B.C.

A commentary in the same issue of Nature gives 1550 to 1500 B.C. as the period that most archeologists believe the civilization on Thera reached its peak and was destroyed.

But a date closer to that derived from the ice has been suggested by measurements of radioactive carbon in twigs buried by the ash. Examination of tree rings in bristlecone pines that were then growing in California has shown that they suffered unusual frost damage between 1628 and 1626 B.C. This has been attributed to a pall of volcanic ash after the eruption.

Gas station front home of corn crop

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — Jim Klein plants field corn in front of his service station each year, just to keep a tradition alive.

Klein, 53, said a passing truck in 1945 spilled seed corn on the spot and it has grown there since. Klein said somebody donates seeds every year to keep the 42-year tradition alive.

"We try different seeds to see how tall it will grow," he said recently. "One year, a bunch of students flattened them all out and hung a sign on it that said 'Soil Bank.'"

Other than a few minor incidents, he hasn't had many problems with vandalism to the crop, a type grown to feed livestock and not for the table.

"The students take some of the ears, and the squirrels get some," he said. "People from places like New York City come through and they've never seen corn before so they get a little bit of it."

Germans copying American yuppies

FRANKFURT, West Germany (AP) — Every evening West Germany's well-paid young professionals crowd into the "yuppie" cafes of Hamburg, Munich and Frankfurt, showing off the designer clothes that help make the new generation a hot consumer market.

Taking their cue from the American yuppies who brought their dual incomes to fashionable city apartments and suburban homes, many Germans in their 20s and early 30s ignore social protests to pursue money instead.

"The yuppies are everywhere in West Germany," says Cyril N. Kuhn, publisher of Maenner Vogue (Vogue for Men) magazine in Munich. "Our whole advertising campaign is based on that."

Many are bankers, stockbrokers, lawyers and doctors. A growing number of young entrepreneurs also are breaking into the rigid German business environment.

Kuhn, an American who has lived in Germany for seven years, said in an interview that he was enthusiastically pursuing the yuppie market. He said it was populated by an "elitist bourgeoisie" interested in becoming "international Germans."

German yuppies prefer the Porsche 924-S or 944 sportscar. The richest buy the Porsche 928-S4, with a price tag of $70,000 for the 1988 model. Others, still early in their careers, rocket along in the powerful but less pricy Volkswagen GTI.

As they move into their 30s, West German yuppies appear to go for sleekly styled BMW and Mercedes sedans.

Rolex watches are in. So are credit cards, in a country where cash-and-carry is still preferred. Foreign travel is a must. Travel agents say the United States is a favorite destination.

The growth of such West German fashion names as Jil Sander, 43, and Daniela Bechtolf, 30, both from Hamburg, is giving Italian designers stiff competition in the German market.

Maenner Vogue is filled with ads for high-priced fashion and accessories. The August issue features a guide to trendy hangouts in Duesseldorf.

Germany's elegant Steigenberger hotel chain has started pitching to the "up-and-comers of the yuppie generation" in some of its advertising.

"We're certainly making an effort to reach them," company spokeswoman Lise Lindemann said in an interview.

Rising young executives can earn from $55,000 to nearly $100,000 a year by the time they reach 30, according to industry estimates. Young foreign exchange traders at banks can earn from $41,000 to close to $70,000.

With the salary comes a wide array of perks ranging from vacations to company cars and club memberships.

It's a far cry from just four years ago, when hundreds of thousands of young people took to the streets in anti-missile protests.

Last April's traditional Easter holiday march against nuclear missiles drew only 1,000 people to a Pershing 2 base in Mutlangen and about 8,000 in Munich.

The spectacular success of West German tennis stars Boris Becker and Steffi Graf boosted the yuppie boom. Both teen-agers have appeared in dozens of ads, including a Becker series for the conservative Deutsche Bank and a Graf ad for an Opel convertible.

After work, many German yuppies gather at cafes and nightspots such as Frankfurt's Pour Toi cafe, Schumann's in Munich, Checker's in Duesseldorf.

They pass up sauerbraten with cabbage for nouvelle cuisine dishes of avocado and salmon.

Daniel Milewicz, born in Israel and now a Frankfurt resident, at 29 is co-owner of a chain of fast-food stands.

He says having money lets him vacation where he wants. "The important thing is being able to decide when, where and how often to go."

Milewicz told the AP in an interview, "Sure, there are many people my age who feel very comfortable doing business in New York and London. But there are also a lot who still feel most secure in the four walls of their own home."

There are approximately 9.9 million people in their 20s in West Germany and another 8.1 million between 30 to 40 in this nation of 61.5 million people.

Reinhard Springer, 39, of the Hamburg advertising firm Springer and Jacoby, says his work is cut out for him to convice middle-age German business executives that newer, jazzier ideas are needed to reach the 25- to 35-year-old market.

He says he is bombarded with ideas from his 80 colleagues, whose average age is about 29.

Professor Bruno Tietz, a leading economics researcher and forecaster at the University of the Saarland, says that up until about the year 2005 "things look very positive" for West Germany's yuppies.

But already the number of unemployed people under 30 is about 900,000 and is expected to grow, along with a burgeoning elderly population.

He says unless major changes are made, that will create serious economic problems less than two decades from now.

"They will find themselves working even harder to support the others," Tietz says of the affluent. "That, of course, would lead to new social tensions."

Disney can't find truck to haul elephant

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — The Walt Disney people made an elephant fly in the movies, but they can't haul a real one 80 miles for a publicity picture.

Walt Disney World officials have searched for days but can't find a suitable truck to transport a 10,000-pound elephant from Tampa's Busch Gardens to the Magic Kingdom in Lake Buena Vista.

Unlike the animated "Dumbo," a real elephant needs a special truck to get around in.

"All the elephant trucks are up North, where the circuses are still performing," Disney spokesman Tom Brinkmoeller said.

"If this were winter, we'd have no problem because the circuses would be back in Florida. But we need to move this big guy right now."

Disney plans to introduce outdoor, circus acts this fall and wants to pair Mickey Mouse and an elephant for publicity photos in the next few days.

An open livestock truck wouldn't work, and a regular loading ramp would buckle, said Brinkmoeller.

"Also, my traffic department people said we couldn't use a van for transporting our Clydesdale horses because an elephant is very curious and would tear it all up with its trunk," he said.

Researchers make no joke of new studies on humor

By DANIEL GOLEMAN
New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — "In America, everything is permitted that's not forbidden," a European joke has it. "In Germany, everything is forbidden that's not permitted. In France, everything is permitted, even if it's forbidden. And in Russia, everything is forbidden, even if it's permitted."

Such jokes fit well the notion that much humor veils aggression, permitting the joke-teller, in Freud's words, "to be malicious with dignity." But Freud's longstanding analysis of humor as the release of repressed feelings is receding as a growing group of social scientists, for whom humor is no joke, make it the focus of serious research.

In the new work, humor is seen less as disguised hostility and more as a stimulant to problem-solving and productivity, as an aid to education and as the stuff of social bonds.

While humor and its uses have been a subject of conjecture since Aristotle, and although there is a large body of psychoanalytic literature dealing with jokes, the topic has had little scientific research until recently. "Humor has been a neglected topic among researchers," said Donna Cooper, a psychologist at the University of Connecticut who is a consultant on the uses of humor in organizations. "Most psychologists are preoccupied with grim topics and problems; humor and the positive emotions get little interest or funding."

Of late, though, that has begun to change. Some of the more visible new research, inspired by Norman Cousins' widely read account of how watching Marx Brothers movies and other comedy films helped him recover from a debilitating illness, deals with links between positive feelings and healing.

Less well known is recent research suggesting that putting people in a good mood by telling them jokes makes them think through problems with more ingenuity. Casual joking at work may thus improve people's effectiveness in their tasks.

"Any joke that makes you feel good is likely to help you think more broadly and creatively," said Alice M. Isen, a psychologist at the University of Maryland in Baltimore. The elation that comes from hearing a good joke, Isen has found, is similar to that which people feel when they receive a small, unexpected gift. Such elation, her research shows, facilitates ingenuity and innovation.

In the research, reported in a recent issue of The Journal of Personality and Social Psychology, Isen found that people who had just watched a short comedy film of television "bloopers" were better able to find a creative solution to a puzzling problem than were people who had watched a film about math or who had exercised.

The problem posed was one frequently used in such research: People were given a candle, matches and a box of tacks and asked to attach the candle to a corkboard wall so that the candle would burn without dripping wax on the floor.

Most people who try to solve this problem fall prey to "functional fixedness," the tendency to see the objects presented them only in terms of their conventional uses. Those who were in a good mood from watching the funny film, however, were generally able to solve the problem by seeing another use for the box holding the tacks: They tacked the box to the wall and used it as a candleholder.

In other studies, Isen found that the comedy film increased people's ability to think more broadly, seeing relationships that otherwise eluded them. This is a mental skill that is important in finding creative solutions to problems and in foreseeing the consequences of a given decision. The ability to recognize complex relationships and far-flung implications has also been found, in other research, to mark the most successful business executives.

"The mind associates more broadly when people are feeling good after hearing a joke," said Isen. "They think of things they ordinarily would not and have access to a broader range of mental material. And the more ideas present in your mind, the more ways you see to connect things; you're able to see more solutions."

In light of this and other research, joking at work is being appreciated as more than mere diversion. For example, research to be reported next month at the annual meeting of the American Psychological Association shows that the feeling of having fun at work is more important than overall job satisfaction in workers' effectiveness.

In a survey of 382 people from a wide variety of work places, David Abramis, a psychologist in the School of Business Administration at California State University at Long Beach, found that those who felt their work was fun performed better and got along better with their co-workers than did those who were satisfied with their jobs but did not see them as fun.

Traditionally, psychologists have focused on people's sense of satisfaction with their jobs as a measure of their psychological adjustment to work. Abramis, though, believes that the feeling that one's work is fun is of equal importance and that job satisfaction and having fun at work are independent considerations.

One of the major sources of fun at work, the study showed, is joking with fellow workers, according to Abramis. "If you are trying to improve people's performance at work, it is not enough to improve their job satisfaction," he said. "People will tell you they are satisfied with their jobs because, for example, they have job security. But increasing their sense of having a good time at work improves their performance over and above satisfaction."

While joking may foster better job performance, it also has its dangers, particularly carelessness, according to Isen.

U.S., U.S.S.R. agree to speed up nuclear arms negotiations

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union agreed Friday to speed up the nuclear arms talks, including work on a joint draft treaty on intermediate-range missiles, in preparation for next month's meeting between their top envoys.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard A. Shevardnadze said negotiators are being instructed to try to prepare a "mutually acceptable" draft accord for eliminating the missiles before his meeting with Secretary of State George P. Shultz.

He said the agreement came during his three-hour meeting with chief U.S. negotiator Max Kampelman at the Soviet mission.

"We agreed that our delegations will try to best use the time available before the meeting — and we don't have much time before that meeting, only about a month or so — to prepare a mutually acceptable draft treaty on medium-range and shorter-range missiles," he told a press conference. The meeting is scheduled for Sept. 15-17.

Shevardnadze said they also agreed to intensify work in the other two areas under negotiation at the talks — long-range, or intercontinental, nuclear missiles and space and defense systems.

Kampelman, speaking at a separate press conference, said: "We both understood that we have a major responsibility to move these negotiations forward to agreement."

But the deputy U.S. negotiator on intermediate-range missiles, John Woodworth, said he would be surprised if the two sides completed a draft text in time for the meeting.

"I rather suspect that there will continue to be work that needs to be done and we'll of course continue right through (the Shultz-Shevardnadze meeting) and as long as it takes to get the job done," he said.

He said the two sides have overcome "the most substantial substantive issues" and are now working on technical issues such as verification, or anti-cheating measures.

Shevardnadze said, however, that the Soviet Union remained firm in its position that warheads for West Germany's 72 Pershing 1A missile would have to be destroyed under an Intermediate Nuclear Force agreement, which would cover all nuclear missiles with a range of between 300 and 3,000 miles.

"They have to be eliminated. It's that simple," he said.

Woodworth reiterated the U.S. position that the Pershing question "is unrelated to these negotiations" because it deals with an agreement with an ally that existed before the Geneva talks began.

The Soviets say U.S. refusal to include the warheads in the Geneva negotiations is the major obstacle to agreement.

But Woodworth said the issue "is not affecting the (day-to-day) work in the negotiations." Neither he nor Kampelman would comment on whether it might be solved in a forum outside the Geneva talks.

Shevardnadze said he had detected "some nuances" in Kampelman's remarks about the Pershing warheads "and they will be subject to negotiations." He did not elaborate.

In Bonn, West Germany, a leading member of Parliament said Friday that U.S. national security adviser Frank Carlucci had reaffirmed American support for his nation's insistence on keeping the Pershings.

Aquino vows to fight 'anarchy with law'

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — President Corazon Aquino, in a eulogy for an assassinated Cabinet member, vowed Friday to fight "anarchy with law and murder with justice."

Scores of troops stood guard at St. Andrew's Church in suburban Parañaque as she eulogized Local Governments Secretary Jaime Ferrer, 70, who was shot to death Sunday as he drove home from church. It was the first murder of a Cabinet member in the nation's history.

The killing, the most spectacular in a series of unsolved political crimes, prompted charges from Philippine news media and opposition leaders that the Aquino government is losing control of the country.

Police picked up a man and woman Friday for questioning in the case but said there were no significant leads. Two men who had been identified as suspects in Ferrer's shooting were released this week for lack of evidence.

"His murder was the unwritten paragraph of my State of the Nation (address)," said Mrs. Aquino, who was widowed by an unsolved political murder in 1983. "It states the most serious challenge that faces us today: can we have order without tyranny and peace without oppression? Must democracy fight with the weapons of its enemies: with treachery and cowardice?"

Mrs. Aquino, looking drawn and somber, promised Filipinos a government that respects the rule of law and "even in emergencies conducts itself with decency toward its people."

"Democracy can survive the death of Jimmy Ferrer, as it can survive the deaths that may follow, although I pray that this will be the last," she said. "But democracy cannot survive the adoption of the ways of its enemies. We shall continue to fight anarchy with law and murder with justice."

Police say at least four officials — House Speaker Rep. Ramon Mitra and three election commissioners — received death threats after Ferrer's slaying.

Mrs. Aquino acknowledged no Cabinet member was killed during the 20-year authoritarian government of ousted President Ferdinand Marcos despite broad opposition to his administration.

"Perhaps it is not abuse that provokes violence, but decency that is mistaken for weakness," she said.

Speculation on the identity of Ferrer's assassins has centered on Communist rebels, believed responsible for many of the attacks which killed more than 50 police and soldiers in Manila this year.

In Bacolod City, 300 miles to the south, gunmen thought to be rebels killed one policeman and wounded another Friday as the two shopped in a local market.

The military reported meanwhile that 493 people died nationwide last month in insurgency-related incidents.

Indians claiming more land

SMITHERS, British Columbia (AP) — Eight thousand Indians living on 45 square miles of reservations have laid legal claim to 22,800 square miles of some of Canada's most beautiful real estate as their hereditary home.

The land sought by the Gitksan and Wetsuweten Indians in a case before British Columbia's Supreme Court is about the size of West Virginia and is filled with ice-capped mountains, forests, minerals, salmon runs and totem poles bearing witness to their ancient culture.

As key evidence to support their claim, 54 hereditary Indian chiefs are using traditional oral history called "ada'ox" — lore and tribal law handed down from generation to generation through the centuries.

Attorneys for the province of British Columbia have objected to the testimony on grounds that it is inadmissable hearsay evidence. But the court has permitted the chiefs to recite their oral history, while reserving decision on the attorney's objection.

The land, in the Skeena Mountain region, lies west of the Canadian Rockies in British Columbia and southeast of the Alaskan Panhandle.

In a rare matrilineal Indian society, the main evidence so far has come from women elders, including Mary Johnson, 77, a Gitksan chief whose family has included four centenarians in the past 400 years.

"My great-great-grandmother told of the day all the dogs began barking," Mrs. Johnson said in an interview.

"She went to see why and ran back to tell her grandmother that monsters had come with long ropes made out of roots. It was the first telegraph wire. I never dreamed I'd be standing in court facing these monsters."

The white men who brought the telegraph, railroad and cattle ranches forced the Indians off their land, she added, even though the Gitksan and Wetsuweten never signed any treaties.

In a claim first filed in 1977, the Indians seek compensation for all such land sold by the British, who then governed Canada, and for any damage caused by loggers and other industries to the forests and streams of the Skeena and Bulkley Valleys.

"You can see throughout our territory all the stumps and the white people have pocketed millions and millions of dollars," Johnny Davis, a centenarian chief, testified recently. "We want that back."

Even more ambitiously, the tribes seek full political and economic control of the region.

This has angered some local whites who say they'll fight before handing over anything to the Indians.

However, some whites who are members of the Smithers human rights society, are seeking to persuade their neighbors that "we would all gain by having an injustice, no matter how old, put right."

To appease the whites, the Indians amended their original claim to guarantee property rights for existing landowners.

Both sides expect the case to take five years and end up before the federal Supreme Court in Ottawa, Canada's capital. The case is expected to provide the first comprehensive definition of native rights in Canada — rights enshrined in the Constitution but legally obscure.

"It's unlikely we'll win outright," said Neil Sterritt, a college-educated mining expert who is part-Wetsuweten and president of the Tribal Council. "But we can't walk away with nothing either."

Council director Don Ryan, a Gitksan and former social worker, said "history is doctored against us" but real gains of importance to aboriginal peoples everywhere include the acceptance of oral history in a court of law and the redefinition of Indian trading and commercial rights.

"They've made it illegal for us to trade, sell and barter fish for 100 years," he added. "Whatever happens, there's going to be Indian jurisdiction here."

The Indians are trying to satisfy the provincial court that the sparsely populated region 200 miles from the Pacific coast is rightfully theirs. They first made a legal claim a century ago.

The prime defendant is British Columbia's provincial government, which took over the administration of crown lands with Canada's independence from Britain. It has refused to consider land claims on grounds that its colonial responsibility to the Indians ended when British Columbia joined the Canadian federation in 1871.

The federal government, also a defendant, has accepted more than 300 claims across the country for negotiation, but none of them has demands as comprehensive as those of the Gitksan and Wetsuweten.

For seven weeks, a small courtroom in this town of 5,000 on the Yellowhead Highway became the provincial Supreme Court.

With the help of four white lawyers from Vancouver, whose fees are paid by the federal Department of Indian Affairs, the tribes claim their ownership dates back more than 5,000 years.

They cite legends to locate their origins in the Skeena region.

Confederate soldiers' remains rest in unmarked graves

PORT HUDSON, La. (AP) — Most of the Union dead from the Civil War's Battle of Port Hudson rest in honor here in a well-manicured cemetery.

But, for 120 years, some of their fallen brethren and their confederate counterparts lay unheralded beneath unmarked earth in thick Louisiana woods, victims of mistaken identity.

The Battle of Port Hudson was a 48-day siege — the nation's longest — but it played no major role in the outcome of the Civil War, had not the casualties of better known conflicts of that war and has received short shrift from most historians.

At the time of the siege, the Union controlled New Orleans and had encircled the citadel of the confederacy — Vicksburg. Once Vicksburg fell, Port Hudson was untenable.

About 20 years ago, according to archaeologist Doug Owsley, the Sons of Confederate Veterans organization was determined to honor the confederate war dead of Port Hudson. They placed small, polished granite stones over what they believed to be the graves of unknown Confederate soldiers.

Those sites were graves, but not for soldiers. As vandals hoping to find Civil War artifacts discovered, civilians were buried there. Now, Owsley and his assistants have found where the Confederate dead — along with Union soldiers who died storming the lines — really are buried, not far from the civilian graves.

On a recent return to the site, sweating profusely in the steamy Louisiana heat and swatting at swarming mosquitoes, Owsley speculated on the plight of Union soldiers, forced to storm across open fields to try and take the earthen battlements built by Confederate soldiers.

"Can you imagine what it must have been like along here for the Union soldiers in those wool uniforms?" he asked as he walked along one-time battle grounds where thousands of Union soldiers and hundreds of rebels died.

Owsley, a Smithsonian Institution archaeologist, became involved in the project when the Port Hudson Battlefield Preservation Committee decided to find out just where the Confederates were buried. Owsley had worked at Louisiana State University and was familiar with the area. He began work in the Spring.

He and his assistants first excavated some of the gravesites marked by the Sons of Confederate Veterans 24 years before. And they confirmed what some area residents had been claiming for years. It was not a military gravesite.

Owsley then began exploring the area, looking for depressions in the soil that indicated possible burial sights.

Clear skies to continue through Basin weekend

From Staff and Wire Reports

No chance of rain is expected through the weekend, and clear skies with continued hot temperatures are expected, according to forecasters at Midland Regional Air Terminal.

Today will be sunny and hot, with a high temperature expected in the upper 90s. Winds will be from the south, 10-20 mph.

Clear skies are expected tonight with a low in the lower 70s expected. Sunday will be clear with a high in the mid-90s.

Friday's high of 99 was just five degrees cooler than the record high of 104, which was set in 1964. Friday's low of 67 was ten degrees warmer than the record of 57, which was set in 1939.

STATE

High pressure centered over North Texas continued to heat up the Lone Star State Friday with temperatures in the 90s over much of the state except for a few readings into the 100s.

The National Weather Service said a thundershower moved across Beaumont, dropping temperatures down to 83 degrees for the low reading while Wichita Falls had the highest afternoon temperature at 102 degrees.

Skies remained clear over the Panhandle and most of the south plains with partly cloudy conditions covering the rest of the state.

A trough of low pressure across northeast New Mexico was producing southwest winds gusting to near 30 miles an hour in the Panhandle. Otherwise southerly winds breezed most areas of Texas with speeds mainly in the 5 to 15 mile an hour range.

NATION

Temperatures were seasonal across most of the nation Friday, offering a respite from the high heat that had gripped so much of the country, while storms were reported in parts of the West and Southeast.

Showers and thunderstorms were scattered at midday from the southern Plateau and southern and central Rockies across Nebraska and South Dakota into Iowa.

Dime-size hail and nearly 2 inches of rain were reported late Friday morning at Sierra Vista, Ariz., the National Weather Service said. A flash-flood watch was posted for southeastern Arizona.

Marble-size hail pelted Gallup, N.M., and Yellowstone Park, Wyo., and street flooding also was reported in Gallup.

Widely scattered thunderstorms were reported from the lower Mississippi Valley to the southern half of the Atlantic Coast, particularly in North Carolina and southwestern Virginia.

Two weeks ago Gordon Banks was struggling for a roster spot. Now, the former USFL receiver is the Cowboys No. 1 wide receiver after Mike Sherrard broke his leg Wednesday.

Forgotten Banks to step from shadows to spotlight

By DENNE H. FREEMAN

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Two weeks ago, wide receiver Gordon Banks was trying to make the Dallas Cowboys' 45-man roster.

Then Ray Alexander broke his wrist, Everett Gay severely sprained an ankle, and Mike Sherrard broke his leg.

Newly acquired Rod Barksdale is slowed by a hamstring pull.

Banks is now the starting split end, just like he was last year when the Cowboys opened the season against the New York Giants.

"This is a big chance and I just hope I can justify Coach (Tom) Landry's faith in me," Banks said. "I like pressure. It's an opportunity. Pressure makes water run uphill."

Banks replaced an injured Mike Renfro last year, catching 15 passes for 178 yards before Renfro returned to the lineup in the Cowboys' sixth game of the season. Banks won a game ball against St. Louis.

RENFRO WILL be the starter on the flanker side.

"We hated to lose Mike. Now, I have to build up some kind of confidence in our coaching staff to get me the ball," Banks said.

"We just didn't get to know Gordon when he came to us in 1985," Landry said. "But he is a hustler, works hard and does everything you want him to do."

A former USFL star, Banks caught over 60 passes in each of his three seasons. He was the only player to catch a pass in all 54 USFL games.

Banks was signed as a free agent out of college by the New Orleans Saints. Dick Nolan, the Cowboys' secondary coach, was head coach of New Orleans at the time.

Banks, who has been timed at 10.33 in the 100-meter dash, played two years with the Saints before he was released during training camp in 1982.

BANKS' BIG drawback is his 5-foot-10 height.

"Banks has great speed," Landry said. "He is a good route runner, also. He is short and not a great target downfield."

In two years with the Cowboys, Banks has yet to score a touchdown in a regular season NFL game.

"I'm looking forward to the first one and then a lot more after that," Banks said. "I may have some kind of a special celebration."

Banks said Landry had a team meeting after Sherrard's injury.

"He told us we have to dig deeper now," Banks said. "We have a higher hill to climb. It would have really been devastating if it happened during the season. At least we have time to prepare."

Walker hurts knee to miss scrimmage

THOUSAND OAKS, Calif. (AP) — Running back Herschel Walker will miss Saturday night's annual Blue-White Dallas Cowboys intra-squad game because of a bruised knee.

The injury is not serious and Walker was being rested as a precautionary measure, team doctors said.

"I'm fine," Walker said. "No problem."

It wasn't certain whether Walker would play in the Cowboys' preseason opener Aug. 15 in San Diego.

New Chief ready for opener

CANTON, Ohio (AP) — Frank Gansz, the new head coach of the Kansas City Chiefs, welcomes the opportunity to open the NFL exhibition season a week ahead of the rest of the league.

"I'm anxious to start setting things," said Gansz, whose Chiefs play the San Francisco 49ers on Saturday in the annual AFC-NFC Hall of Fame game. "The work we're getting (in practice) is very good, but we're going to be a 45-man roster, not a 100-man roster. I'm anxious to start honing it down."

San Francisco Coach Bill Walsh isn't quite so enthusiastic about the early opening.

"In the sense of getting game experience for the players, it's good," Walsh said. "But as far as our practice schedule, it disrupts it."

Walsh said he would start veteran Joe Montana at quarterback, following him with former Tampa Bay and United States Football League quarterback Steve Young and possibly rookie John Paye, a Stanford product.

MONTANA MISSED seven weeks last season because of back surgery that threatened to end his career, but he came back to lead the 49ers to a 10-5-1 record and the NFC West title.

"We usually will play Joe for about 18 to 20 minutes of the first game," Walsh said. "Usually, if you have seen him throw about 10 passes, you can expect him to come out of the game."

Walsh will be using the pre-season to evaluate several position, including linebacker, where veterans Tom Cousineau and Keith Browner are challenging for starting jobs, and wide receiver, where former Dallas Cowboy Tony Hill is among the newcomers.

Kansas City, which went 10-6 last season and made the playoffs for the first time in 15 years, nonetheless had the worst offense in the NFL.

Gansz describes his quarterback situation as "competitive," with Bill Kenney and Todd Blackledge fighting for the starting job. Both are likely to play Saturday.

At running back, Gansz will be taking long looks at rookies Paul Palmer of Temple and Christian Okoye of Azusa Pacific. Palmer, Kansas City's No. 1 draft pick, was the runner-up to Vinny Testaverde in Heisman Trophy balloting. Okoye, a second-round pick, is a Nigerian-born 253-pounder who has played football only three years.

"I think everyone on this football team can see how valuable Christian Okoye is to this team," said Gansz. "He's just starting to blossom. Who wants to tackle him?"

Hall of Fame Game

THE NFC leads the Hall of Fame series 8-7-1.

The game at Fawcett Stadium, adjacent to the Pro Football Hall of Fame, will follow the annual induction ceremonies on the steps of the hall.

Being enshrined this year are former Kansas City quarterback Len Dawson, Miami fullback Larry Csonka and center Jim Langer, Pittsburgh defensive lineman Joe Greene and running back John Henry Johnson, Oakland offensive guard Gene Upshaw and New York Jets receiver Don Maynard.

Three of nine Midland teams survive first round

From Staff Reports

Midland teams didn't have a very good night Friday in the opening round of play in the 1987 State Class C softball tournament at Hogan Park's Bill Williams Complex. Of nine Tall City teams that played, eight suffered defeat.

The three Midland teams to advance in the double elimination tournament were Exxon E&P, Stadium Sports and The Slammer.

Exxon had an easy time of it against Odessa's Meridian Oil, posting a 17-7 victory while Stadium Sports romped past V.P.S. of Seminole, 13-4. The Slammer was in a tight battle with G&N Pump/Western Flyer of Monahans, but pulled it out by a 10-8 margin.

For the other six Midland teams it was a rough night as Mix Company of Iraan defeated Luchini Engineers, 18-3; Wickson Insurance of Seminole nipped Bandal Bandits, 4-3; Crane's Weekend Warriors doubled LMP Aviancia, 14-7; An-

Wadkins, Floyd are all business

By BOB GREEN

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP) — Lanny Wadkins and Ray Floyd are old friends and golfing buddies. But they won't be shooting the breeze when they get together for Saturday's third round of the 69th PGA championship.

"We're good friends. We've played together many, many times. Our families are close," Wadkins said of his co-leader after two rounds of the last of this year's four major championships. "But there won't be any idle chatter out there. No 'how's the family?' or 'where are you going for dinner?' None of that. We're both pretty serious on the golf course."

Wadkins and Floyd may be friends, but they're also two of golf's most intense competitors.

"You know, the last two majors Ray won, I was second to him. It's about time to turn that around," Wadkins said.

He and Floyd each overcame the sweltering heat to record 2-under-par 70s Friday and completed 36 holes in 140, four under par on the PGA National Golf Club course.

Floyd and Watkins have plenty of company, though. Eight other players are within three shots of the lead and a host of others are within striking distance.

"The game is still on for a lot of players," said Wadkins, the 1977 PGA champ.

PGA Championship

Ray Floyd

Among them is his younger brother, Bobby, who held the first-round lead with a 68, but slipped back with a 74 and was two shots back at 142.

Wadkins said he and Floyd know what to expect from each other.

The deep rough and damaged, dried-out greens have sent scores soaring — but have taken a back seat to the oppressive heat.

Jeff Sluman had a share of the lead until he bogeyed his final hole, missing a short putt, and dropped back into a tie with Tim Simpson at 141, one shot off the pace. Sluman matched the best round of the steamy day with a 69, while Simpson had a 70 after shooting a 71 Thursday.

Future of AA franchise in fans' hands

Battles

Come in from out-of-town, buy a ball club and everybody becomes suspicious about your motives.

It's Carroll Rosenbloom syndrome, I guess.

First thing, the home fans want to know about is the future of their club. "You gonna keep it here? You gonna move it? What's your angle? What can we expect from you?

Remembering Robert Irsay and the Baltimore Colts, fans may want assurance the new owner is not an insomniac, who might sleep-walk his club to Indianapolis or San Angelo some night at the quarter-moon stage of the month.

When Chicagoan Richard Holtzman was officially introduced as the new owner of the Midland Texas League franchise last week, the questions began as to the possibility of the club moving or the major league affiliation changing.

Holtzman assured he didn't buy the club to move it and he was pleased with what he had seen of the California Angels as a major league affiliate, the way it handles its young talent and the type of coaches and players it has sent here.

HOLTZMAN'S observations came after several visits to Midland to watch the club perform.

As for guarantees, Holtzman wasn't making any ironclad commitments. Owning a ball club is fun for the 37-year-old real estate developer and rehaber, but it's also business.

He didn't buy the Angels in a bargain-basement sale. The price he paid, from all indications, is staggeringly more than the amount Bernard Lankford and Max Christensen paid to the Chicago Cubs, who had previously operated the franchise. The Cubs were happy to have local ownership take over the team and assume some of the responsibility.

It has been a prosperous ball club in the last few years and that's one of the attractions that brought Holtzman's offer to Lankford, who bought out the Christensen interest a few years ago.

Holtzman is enthusiastic over the support of the club and has ideas of how Midland fans can have a better time watching Angel baseball.

Holtzman lists as factors making Midland attractive: "AA baseball is the most profitable level of minor league ball...Texas is probably the best place to play baseball because of the hot weather...Midland's facility has the best playing surface in the minors."

The businessman in Holtzman sees the franchise as one with yet untapped potential. Although the club has set attendance records in each of the last three years, he feels it can do even better.

Who is going to dispute the head of Chicago's biggest real estate development outfit?

THE MESSAGE Holtzman seemed to be sending the worriers about the club's West Texas future is that as long as the fans demonstrate they want a team by their support, they'll have it.

From another standpoint, Holtzman's regard of the Angels as a business as much as a hobby, means he quite probably will employ the leverage of Midland as a desirable place to develop young talent to bring competitive and winning clubs to the city.

Jim Paul has done that in El Paso and the Diablos are the team to beat every year. When they aren't the team to beat, there's a new affiliation.

HIGH ON Holtzman's list is a major league exhibition game. Some read the desire as an ultimatum to the Angels, who, it was assumed, refused to play an exhibition here.

Holtzman said that isn't the case at all, "I don't think they've ever been asked."

Exhibitions can be played in the spring, as Milwaukee and the Chicago Cubs exhibition in 1975, or on an off day during the regular season when major league clubs are are traveling from one coast to the other. The opposition could be the minor league club.

"One other thing. I'd like to see the Angels send star players in to Midland during the off-season to help promote baseball," Holtzman said.

Contrary to original reports, Holtzman is not a White Sox fan.

"I live within three blocks of Wrigley Field," he admits. He buys season tickets to White Sox games because the Yankees are his favorite team.

His Rehab projects include the historic Brandon Inn in Vermont...another Bob Newhart....and Chicago's North Side. "The area around Wrigley Field has made a comeback. It's the place to live. That's one reason there's neighborhood opposition to lights."

The big difference in Chicago and Baltimore, where there has been extensive rehabilitation of rundown neighborhoods, is "In Baltimore the city works with the developers. They share some of the cost and set standards. In Chicago, the real estate developer is on his own. He foots the bill and also establishes his own standards."

American hosts clear out for overflow

By BARRY WILNER

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Faced with a severe housing shortage, some of the host Americans at the Pan American Games began moving out of the athletes' village Friday.

Nearly 1,000 more athletes than expected will participate in the games, which begin with opening ceremonies Saturday and action in 18 sports on Sunday.

The athletes' village was becoming so overcrowded that the United States volunteered to move many of its competitors to hotels. As many as 300 of the 758 American athletes will wind up in hotels, U.S. Olympic Committee President Robert Helmick said.

"When you have a lot of house guests and you run out of beds, you're the one who sleeps out on the porch," Helmick said.

"I think that this gesture was a fantastic gesture of solidarity and friendship," said Mario Vazquez-Rana, president of the Pan American Sports Organization.

Pan Am Games

Housing is needed for about 5,900 people, and the facilities at Fort Benjamin Harrison, where the athletes' village is located, fell short by nearly 500 beds. With about 300 American athletes not staying at the village and the addition of two Army barracks to house other foreign athletes organizers feel they have coped with the problem. The 225 soldiers normally housed in the the barricks were sent to hotels.

"While we were obviously not expecting the number of people we received," Ted Boehm, chairman of the local organizing committee, said, "we do have capability to deal with the situation, and we believe that by the time the games start, we will have all the athletes adequately housed."

NOT EVERYONE in the athletes' village was satisfied with the solution because conditions still will be crowded.

"Housing is a touchy subject," said Tony Glasgow, a high jumper from Bermuda. "I think the organizers should have been a little stricter with countries that sent more athletes than they indicated. Other countries suffer."

Bermuda is sharing space with the delegation from Uruguay.

"They are one of the countries that brought twice as many as they indicated. They arrived first and took over most of the building," he said. "As a result, we are squeezed six in one room.

"We are being punished even though we brought the exact number of athletes we indicated. Those teams arriving late are really having it rough."

Meanwhile, members of the Cuban American National Foundation said they want to educate Americans about the rough conditions in Cuba, but they will not encourage athletes to defect.

"We are not here to provoke any incident or induce anyone to seek political asylum," Jorge Mas Canosa, chairman of the foundation, said. "Our mission is to educate the American people about Cuba. We would like to present the other side of the story. Cuba has never done that."

BUT MAS said his group would help any Cubans who choose to defect.

"We are here to make certain that if any Cuban athlete, by his own decision, elects to seek political asylum, that his or her rights will be protected, and that he will have access to a fair hearing," Mas said.

The opening ceremonies Saturday night at the Indianapolis Speedway are sold out, with 70,000 people expected.

Competition starts Sunday in basketball, baseball, track and field, swimming and diving, canoeing and kayaking, cycling, equestrian, field hockey, rhythmic gymnastics, judo, modern pentathlon, roller skating, soccer, softball, table tennis, team handball and weightlifting.

Fraser to mix things up

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Ron Fraser, coach of the U.S. baseball team at the Pan Am Games, says that what his team lacks in talent it can make up in gimmicks.

Fraser took a U.S. team to the 1973 world amateur baseball championship in Managua, Nicaragua by packing his 28-man roster with 28 left-handers. Left-handed hitters and left-handed pitchers confused the best teams in the world and the U.S. pulled off a stunning upset.

This time, Fraser takes what he calls an underdog U.S. baseball team into the eight-team round-robin Pan Am baseball competition. He will pin his hopes on an aggressive — some might say unpredictable — attack and a pitching-by-committee staff.

"I wanted to do something different, that would revolutionize things," says Fraser, also the coach at the University of Miami.

So Fraser's starting pitcher usually goes the first three innings, with as many as three or four others splitting the remaining six innings.

In the U.S. team's 34-game tour leading up to Sunday's opening game against Canada, no pitcher went longer than six innings.

"It's kind of unique," Fraser says. "We've had four or five pitchers pitch almost every game. We'll continue that here."

Similarly, Fraser tries to use every player on his roster every game. The U.S. attack is based on speed, not power.

The U.S. team hit but 37 home runs on its 34-game tour. Left-fielder Ted Wood led the team with six homers, while second baseman Ty Griffin and first baseman Tino Martinez each hit five.

But the U.S. team stole 116 bases in 155 attempts while going 26-8 on its pre-Pan Am tour.

Crum leads gold-digging U.S. cagers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The first time Coach Denny Crum will see the Panamanian basketball team will be when his U.S. players take the floor against it in Sunday's opening game of the Pan American competition.

"I haven't seen any of the competition yet," Crum said of the nine other nations that comprise the men's basketball competition. "I have to be concerned with our team and that they play to their abilities."

Crum has assembled a team with considerable ability. Leading the team is 7-foot-1 center David Robinson of Navy, the No. 1 draft pick by the San Antonio Spurs of the NBA.

Joining Robinson in the probable starting lineup will be Danny Manning of Kansas, Ricky Berry of San Jose State, Rex Chapman of Kentucky and either Jerome "Pooh" Richardson of UCLA or Indiana's Keith Smart.

"The starting lineup might change every game," Crum said. "It will depend on what we are going to see. It's not that important."

What is important is the United States' impressive basketball history in the Pan Am Games.

U.S. teams have won eight of the nine gold medals awarded and 59 of the 61 games they have played. The United States is currently on a 28-game winning streak since a 73-69 loss to Cuba in 1971.

"These guys are good enough athletes that they should respond to the pressure," Crum said. "We're the heavy favorites but games are won on the floor and there will be a lot of good competition and we can't afford a letdown.

"These guys don't want to be the Pan Am team that was beaten."

Panama is coached by Jim Baron, the head coach at St. Francis, Pa. The team won the Central American basketball championship earlier this year but its tallest players are 6-8 centers Amado Martinez and Mario Butler.

"We do know that last year Argentina beat the United States by four points in the World Championships and we only beat Puerto Rico by one. Brazil was in the final four of the World Championships," Crum said.

The U.S. entry in the World Championships was led by Robinson and it won the gold medal with a victory over the Soviet Union.

Crum is not trying to lessen the status of the competition here by not scouting them.

"There's no time to prepare anyway," Crum said. "We have four games in five days so there won't be any practices. We have prepared the team for different things. If we play as well as we can we should beat these teams."

Said Manning, "You can't go in overconfident, that's the worst thing you can do. These teams will be up to beat us, we're the USA and we have a lot of talent. These teams are looking forward to it to show the USA up."

In addition to Panama, Mexico, Argentina and Venezuela are in the same pool with the United States in the round-robin format. Brazil, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Uruguay and Canada comprise the other pool.

The U.S. women's team doesn't play until Wednesday when it meets Peru. There are only seven women's teams in the basketball competition.

The women are defending the gold medal.

Tigers deal Coles for Bucs' Morrison

DETROIT (AP) — Darnell Coles, plagued by a season-long slump at the plate and troubles in the field, was traded Friday by the Detroit Tigers to the Pittsburgh Pirates for third baseman Jim Morrison, officials said.

The Pirates also will receive a player to be named later.

Coles, who last year hit 20 home runs and had 86 RBI, slipped this season to four home runs, 15 RBI and a .181 batting average in 53 games with the Tigers. He also committed a team-high 17 errors this season.

"At this time we felt we were in need of a right-handed hitting infielder who could help us down the stretch," General Manager Bill Lajoie said Friday. "While we hate to give up youth with the potential of a Darnell Coles, we felt it was something we had to do to make our push for first place this season."

Morrison, 34, is a 10-year veteran batting .264 with nine home runs and 46 RBI in 96 games with the Pirates this year.

Howe returns in Ranger drubbing

Associated Press

BALTIMORE — Larry Sheets hit a pair of two-run homers and Ken Dixon pitched a perfect game for 5⅔ innings as the Baltimore Orioles defeated the Texas Rangers 9-2 Friday night.

The first homer by Sheets and a three-run homer by Cal Ripken Jr. gave Baltimore a 5-0 lead in the first inning, and the Orioles went on to snap a four-game losing streak.

Dixon, 5-8, who gave up three hits and struck out seven in seven innings, allowed his first hit when Bob Brower grounded a single to center with two outs in the sixth.

Texas reliever Steve Howe, battling back from five major and minor league suspensions for drug abuse, made his first major-league appearance since Sept. 10, 1985. He allowed one hit in two innings. Howe almost hit Sheets with his first delivery in the fifth, but included 15 strikes among his 20 pitches.

Ruben Sierra ended Dixon's bid for a shutout, hitting his 21st homer in the seventh following a leadoff single by Curtis Wilkerson. Mark Williamson pitched the final two innings for Baltimore allowing no hits.

Blue Jays 15, Indians 1

CLEVELAND — George Bell and Fred McGriff homered and Dave Stieb won his fifth straight decision as Toronto routed Cleveland and took over first place in the AL East.

Stieb, 11-5, gave up seven hits in eight innings. He walked none and struck out one. Stieb has not lost since June 28 and is 8-2 in his last 12 starts.

Bell hit a three-run homer in the seventh inning, his 34th. He has 95 runs batted in, tied for the major-league lead with Andre Dawson of the Chicago Cubs.

Fred McGriff homered to start the Blue Jays' four-run second against Darrel Akerfelds, 0-3, and he also singled during a five-run rally in the fifth.

Tigers 8, Yankees 0

DETROIT — Detroit's Dave Bergman drove in four runs with an RBI single and a three-run homer as the Tigers beat New York, knocking the Yankees out of first place in the AL East.

The Tigers scored three runs off Yankee starter Rick Rhoden, 14-7, in the second inning and four more in the third to make a winner or rookie Jeff Robinson, 8-5.

Robinson, who gave up three successive singles before working out of a bases-loaded jam in the first inning, settled down to retire 17 consecutive batters after the first two Yankee hitters singled to start the second.

Alan Trammell started Detroit's second with a single, went to third on a single by Matt Nokes and scored on Bergman's one-out single. Chet Lemon singled Nokes home and the Tigers wound up with runners on second and third when New York left fielder Gary Ward kicked Lemon's hit toward center field for an error. Pat Sheridan's sacrifice fly drove in Bergman for a 3-0 lead.

Nokes and Jim Morrison, who was obtained earlier in the day in a trade that sent Darnell Coles to the Pittsburgh Pirates, singled in the third and rode home on Bergman's sixth home run.

Red Sox 4, Royals 3

BOSTON — Marty Barrett drew a bases-loaded walk with two outs in the ninth inning, capping a two-run rally that gave Boston a victory over Kansas City.

The Red Sox got four walks from Charlie Leibrandt, 11-9, and reliever John Davis in the ninth. Don Baylor led off with a walk and took third on Dwight Evans' double. One out later, John Marzano hit a sacrifice fly that made it 3-3.

Spike Owen was intentionally walked and Davis replaced Leibrandt. pinch-hitter Mike Greenwell walked on a full-count pitch to loaded the bases and Barrett then walked on a 3-1 pitch. Barrett has two game-winning RBI this season, both on bases-loaded walks.

Twins 9, Athletics 4

MINNEAPOLIS — Joe Niekro, currently appealing a 10-day suspension for allegedly scuffing baseballs, pitched eight strong innings as Minnesota beat Oakland.

Niekro made his first appearance since being ejected from last Monday's game in California when an emery board and sandpaper were found in his pockets. American League President Dr. Bobby Brown imposed a 10-day suspension, but Niekro is appealing the penalty and can pitch until his appeal is heard.

Niekro, 6-8, took a three-hitter and 9-2 lead into the ninth inning, but left after a walk, a hit batter and RBI singles by Mike Davis and Terry Steinbach. Dan Schatzeder got the final three outs.

Brewers 7, White Sox 4

CHICAGO — Greg Brock's RBI single sparked a three-run 10th inning and gave Milwaukee a victory over the Chicago.

Rob Deer, who hit two home runs in the game, was intentionally walked and Brock singled off the glove of second baseman Fred Manrique. Steve Kiefer and Ernest Riles hit RBI singles later in the inning, sending Chicago to its fifth straight loss.

NEW YORK — Ron Darling pitched a four-hitter and struck out 11 as the New York Mets won their seventh straight game, a 7-1 victory over Chicago Friday night.

Darling, 8-7, who won his fourth straight decision, took a three-hit shutout into the eighth, but Ryne Sandberg's 13th homer, his 1,000th career hit, accounted for Chicago's only run.

NL

Darling, who walked three, did allow a hit until the fourth inning, when Rafael Palmeiro doubled with one out. Palmeiro and Jody Davis singled in the seventh.

Kevin McReynolds, extending his hitting streak to 13 games, had three hits, including a two-run double, in four at-bats. Rafael Santana hit a solo homer in the sixth inning, his fifth of the season, and Gary Carter added a two-run homer in the eighth.

Pirates 9, Expos 3

PITTSBURGH — Al Pedrique and Mike LaValliere both had three hits and knocked in two runs, and Bob Walk won his first game since May 13 as Pittsburgh used two four-run innings to beat Montreal.

Walk, 3-1, making his first start in a month, pitched six innings and allowed five hits, including home runs to Tim Raines and Andres Galarraga. Brett Gideon pitched the final three innings for his third save.

Losing pitcher Bob Sebra, 6-12, retired the first two hitters in the second before R.J. Reynolds reached first on second baseman Vance Law's error and stole second. A single by LaValliere knocked in Reynolds, and Pedrique followed with an RBI double.

Phillies 15, Cardinals 5

PHILADELPHIA — Chris James hit a three-run homer in the first inning and finished with three hits and five RBI as Philadelphia snapped a six-game losing streak with a rout of St. Louis.

Shane Rawley, 14-5, worked seven innings, allowing 11 hits and four runs, for his sixth straight victory. The Cardinals, whose lead in the National League East was cut to 3½ games over the New York Mets, used five pitchers, including Jose Oquendo, who now has played every position except catcher this season.

The Phillies, who scored 15 runs in their previous six games, got 15 hits and six walks, two of them forcing in runs. Mike Schmidt and Glenn Wilson had three RBI apiece for the Phillies.

Padres rip Scott, Astros

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Stanley Jefferson and Tony Gwynn hit consecutive triples to open the first inning and Mike Scott's wild pitch gave the San Diego Padres a lead they did not relinquish on the way to a 7-1 victory over the Houston Astros Friday night.

The victory was the Padres' fifth in their last six games and snapped a four-game winning streak for the Astros.

Mark Davis, 6-6, earned the victory with three innings in relief of rookie left-hander Eric Nolte, who walked seven and couldn't make it through the fourth inning. Scott, 12-8, pitched six innings, allowing six hits and two runs.

The Astros stranded 10 runners in the first four innings and 16 in the game, tying a club record established in 1979.

Nolte, making his second start since he was called up from Wichita on July 30, surrendered an unearned run in the first inning on a pair of walks, a bunt single and a throwing error by first baseman John Kruk.

The Padres made it 2-1 in the bottom of the first after Gwynn knocked in Jefferson with his triple and scored on Scott's wild pitch.

That's the way it stood until Juan Agosto relieved Scott in the seventh and gave up four of the Padres' five runs in the inning.

Sophomore nine claims 4th place in state tourney

From Staff Reports

LEWISVILLE — Midland Western's Texas American Bank finished in fourth place in the 1987 Sophomore Baseball state tournament here this week.

Western opened the tournament with an 8-6 lost to host Lewisville on Tuesday but came storming back with a 17-9 victory over Denton on Wednesday.

Western was eliminated from play Thursday, suffering a 4-3 loss to Jacksonville.

For the season, Western posted a 16-7 record. Western won the district title in San Angelo last week to gain it's state berth.

Members of Western Texas American Bank are Bradley Brunson, Jeremy Burton, Joe Dominguez, Raymundo Dominguez, Dennis Ehler, David Haskell, James Madrid, Mark Monroe, James Patton, Marty Renz, Abel Rodriguez, Robert Thorns and Gregg Welborn.

Coaches for Western were Jake Madrid and Andy Madrid while Alex Madrid was the team manager.

McLain could soon be freed

ATLANTA (AP) — A lawyer for Denny McLain said he hopes baseball's last 30-game winner will be out of prison within 10 days after a three-judge panel Friday threw out his racketeering conviction.

"Come Monday, we're going to ask the judge to set a bail bond for him," said attorney Arnold Levine of Tampa, Fla. "The mechanics may take a week to 10 days. We hope to have him out very quickly. He's anxious to come back to his family."

Levine, who phoned McLain at a federal prison in Talledega, Ala., said, "He was thrilled; he started to cry. His immediate reaction was, 'Hey, I've got to call my wife.'"

Friday's ruling by the Atlanta-based 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals entitles McLain to a new trial on charges he was part of a loan sharking scheme and threatened violence to collect debts.

Levine said he hopes the charges simply will be dropped, citing the 29 months McLain already has served and the expense of repeating a trial which took four months.

McLain, 42, was sentenced to 23 years for racketeering, extortion, conspiracy and possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

The appeals court threw out all those convictions, as well as the racketeering, conspiracy and extortion convictions against co-defendant Seymour Sher.

The 11th Circuit said U.S. District Judge Elizabeth Kovachevich unfairly rushed McLain's 1984 trial in Tampa. The appeals court also faulted the trial prosecutor for insulting a defense lawyer in front of the jury.

McLain's best year in the major leagues was 1968, when he went 31-6 with a 1.96 earned run average with the Detroit Tigers. He won the Cy Young award as the American League's top pitcher and the Tigers won the World Series.

He won the Cy Young award again in 1969 with a 24-9 record, but his career then nosedived. He was suspended for disciplinary reasons for part of the 1970 season and compiled a record of 17-34 from 1970 to 1972 with Detroit, Washington, Oakland and Atlanta, finishing his 10-year career at 131-91.

In 1984, he was among seven people indicted in an alleged loan sharking and cocaine smuggling scheme.

After a mistrial, McLain and Sher were convicted in a four-month trial in late 1984 and early 1985. McLain went to prison March 16, 1985.

HoJo's bat cleared as crackdown begins

By RICK WARNER

NEW YORK (AP) — As baseball started its crackdown on illegal bats Friday, one of the prime suspects was cleared by the National League.

The league said an X-ray of Howard Johnson's bat at a medical facility revealed no signs of illegal tampering or alteration. Umpires confiscated Johnson's bat Thursday night after the New York Mets third baseman hit a home run against the Chicago Cubs.

"When it happened last night, I was glad it happened," Johnson said before Friday night's game against the Cubs. "Let's get it settled once and for all."

The confiscated bat was returned to Johnson before Friday night's game.

Illegal bats and lively balls are considered possible explanations for the record-setting power display in the major leagues this season. Home runs are up more than 20 percent over last year's record pace.

Some hitters, including Johnson, have been accused of inserting cork, rubber or metal into their bats to increase their power.

Johnson, who has a career-high 27 home runs this season, also had his bat confiscated after homering against the St. Louis Cardinals July 30. Umpires checked the bat, found nothing illegal and returned it to Johnson after the game.

At the time, St. Louis Manager Whitey Herzog said: "He looks like Babe Ruth up there and I know he ain't that good."

"I don't know what Whitey Herzog is trying to prove," Johnson said Friday. "He's convinced that I'm doing something illegal, and I don't know what it's going to take to change his mind."

METS HITTING instructor Bill Robinson said Johnson isn't getting the credit he deserves.

"The young man is having a heluva year," he said. "The pitcher laid a pitch right in there last night. He waited on the ball good, and did all the things he's supposed to do. If he popped up, we wouldn't be going through this."

The ruling came on the same day that baseball began enforcing a new policy that allows managers to ask the chief umpire to impound one bat per game from the opposing team. If the bat is ruled illegal, the player and his manager face fines or suspensions by their leagues.

In announcing the policy Thursday, Commissioner Peter Ueberroth said his office had received "indications" that some players were using illegal bats. The commissioner's office declined to reveal what kind of evidence it had, how it was obtained or which players were involved.

A spokesman for Hillerich & Bradsby Co., which makes most of the bats used by major-league hitters, said Friday that the company has not changed its production methods in 103 years.

"We're not doing anything different," Bill Williams said from the company's headquarters in Louisville, Ky. "If we were, we'd be taking out advertisements bragging about it."

WILLIAMS SAID the company makes its bats with northern white ash from New York and Pennsylvania, the same wood it has been using for years.

"The trees are about 60 years old before they're cut down, which means they started growing when Babe Ruth was playing," he said.

Although the wood hasn't changed, Williams said, new bat styles may be giving batters a boost."

Rains dampen Henredon play

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Heavy rains — the LPGA's constant companion this year — showed up again Friday and washed away the second round of the $300,000 Henredon Classic.

The rain, which began about 5 a.m., soaked the Willow Creek Golf Course for about three hours. Tournament officials made two attempts to start play, but the creek which winds its way through the course had overflowed its banks, making play impossible.

Plans now call for the second round to be played Saturday with the 36-hole cut to be made at the conclusion of the round.

Shula will miss scrimmage, not Hall inductions

Associated Press

Miami's Don Shula will not coach Saturday when his Dolphins meet Atlanta in a scrimmage at the Falcons training camp in Suwanee, Ga.

Instead, Shula has a date in Canton, Ohio — to usher two stars of his championship teams from the 1970s, fullback Larry Csonka and center Jim Langer, into the Pro Football Hall of Fame.

"It's really great to see guys who helped you win — 17-and-0, the back-to-back (1972-73) Super Bowls — get some recognition," Shula said.

Others scheduled for induction into the Pro Football Hall of Fame this weekend include Gene Upshaw, Don Maynard, Joe Greene, Len Dawson and John Henry Johnson.

NFL Camps

Injuries

Miami offensive lineman Ronnie Lee went down with a knee injury during a workout with the Falcons, who have been practicing with the Dolphins in this week. The extent of Lee's injury was not known.

It's possible linebacker Hugh Green may play in the Miami-Atlanta scrimmage. Green is coming back from a knee injury suffered early last season.

Meantime, the Falcons will probably play without rookie running back Kenny Flowers, who continues to nurse a sore thigh.

There's a chance Chicago Bears quarterback Steve Fuller might not play this season because of a sore right shoulder.

"We'll let him rest three or four weeks," Bears trainer Fred Caito said. "If there is no response, then we have to think about surgical treatment, and that would put him out the whole season."

Washington Redskin Coach Joe Gibbs said running George Rogers, who is nursing a sprained big toe on his left foot, will not play against the New York Jets in Saturday's scrimmage in Easton, Pa.

Duty Calls

Running back Napoleon McCallum, anxious to continue his pro football career with the Los Angeles Raiders, is considering trying to resign from full-time duty in the Navy and request reserve status, his agent said.

McCallum was formally notified this week that he would not be allowed to play with the Raiders this season while he is on active duty as an ensign. McCallum, with four years remaining on a five-year commitment following his graduation from the Naval Academy, was allowed to practice and play with the Raiders last season while stationed in Long Beach, Calif.

Wanted in Camp

Holdout defensive end Earl Wilson may not make the San Diego Chargers this year if he does not report to training camp by Sunday, said Coach Al Saunders. Sunday is also the deadline for rookie tight end Rod Bernstine, whom the club has said it will trade if he fails to sign by the end of the weekend.

Wilson, acting as his own agent, has contacted the Chargers once since training camp opened a week ago. The team hasn't heard from him since Monday. Bernstine, from Texas A&M, is the Chargers top draft pick.

The Chargers have been able to sign at least one player. Former Los Angeles Rams kicker Frank Corral came to terms and will challenge incumbent Rolf Bernirschke.

No Wright Answer

Quarterback Randy Wright was still holding out on the Green Bay Packers on the eve on their first full-scale intra-squad scrimmage.

Even without Wright, Coach Forrest Gregg said, "I think it should be a good scrimmage." The Packers will use rookies Don Majkowski and Dave Yarema and veterans Chuck Fusina and David Woodley at quarterback.

Gregg also had no comment on reports the Packers were considering trade talks if the Wright situation can't be resolved.

American Bowl '87

The Denver Broncos and Los Angeles Rams begin their exhibition schedules many miles from home.

Sunday, some 80,000 fans are expected at London's Wembley Stadium to witness the Broncos play the Rams in a game dubbed "American Bowl '87."

Parts of Europe, as well as the United States, will see the game on live television.

White must play to get full pay

DALLAS (AP) — Dallas Cowboys quarterback Danny White, limited by injuries to six starts last season, will receive a cut in pay under his new contract if he starts less than eight games this year.

"That was something the Cowboys were concerned with," White said from the Dallas training camp at Thousand Oaks, Calif. "They didn't feel they got their money's worth out of me last year."

White earned a base salary of $605,000 last year. He will receive base pay of $750,000 this year if he starts at least eight games, The Dallas Morning News reported Friday.

If White starts fewer than eight games — half the regular season — he'll only get $500,000, the newspaper said.

White broke his wrist when he was leveled by Carl Banks of the New York Giants in the ninth game [illegible]. He had missed

She keeps things hopping in busy Honolulu Harbor

HONOLULU (AP) — Beverly Miller, the first woman to direct traffic in Honolulu Harbor, smiles and says, "Yes, I guess I'm sort of a social secretary, too."

During each of her eight-hour shifts in the many-windowed harbor controller's office atop Aloha Tower, no ship can enter, leave or move within the harbor without her permission.

In addition, she says, "we have to handle all the phone calls about anything anyone wants to know about ships offshore or in port."

So she frequently finds herself telling wives and girlfriends of seafarers when their men have, or will, come home. "The women in the waterfront community know we can tell them which ships are in and when other ships are due," she says.

Ms. Miller, who first came to Hawaii in 1950, was a public school teacher for four years and later worked as a tour bus driver.

But in 1980, when she found herself needing a better-paying job, she responded to a state Department of Transportation advertisement and qualified to become a harbor controller. For two years she didn't hear anything. But in 1983, she was hired and went to work, becoming the first woman controller in the 57-year history of Aloha Tower.

She says that during her first week, "captains and harbor pilots calling in on the radio frequently hung up on me. They thought they'd gotten a wrong number.

"But everyone in the waterfront community, which is really a town within a town, soon knew that there really was a woman in the tower and settled down. Now everyone, even on the radio, just calls me Bev."

During a single shift Ms. Miller handles as many as 40 dockings, departures or other movements of ships longer than 65 feet. The ships involved range from tugs to liners. Of all the craft she sees regularly, she especially likes working with inter-island tug-and-barge tows.

She has to be ready to provide captains and Honolulu's seven harbor pilots with information on wind conditions in the harbor. And she has to be ready to close the harbor as necessary when arrivals or departures would be hazardous.

As part of her job, she directs the placement of signals — a large orange ball and a large orange triangle — on the tower's flagstaffs.

When the ball is raised, a big ship is coming in and no departures are permitted. When the triangle is raised, a big ship is leaving and no arrivals are permitted.

"When both are raised," Miller says, "everybody stays put."

In addition, each controller is responsible during his shift for dispatching the state's six harbor police officers.

When the officers tow cars improperly parked at harborside sites, it is the controllers who hear from irate drivers.

Ms. Miller says: "You'd be surprised how busy the harbor can be between midnight and 5 a.m." She adds that shipping has become so rapid that "a car carrier can dock, offload 500 automobiles and be gone in seven hours."

Ms. Miller recalls an interest in reading books about merchant ships traveling all over the world when she was growing up

Rising malpractice premiums may limit medical care, Bowen says

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Americans will find it harder to get medical care unless states limit medical malpractice insurance premiums and reduce malpractice claims, Health and Human Services Secretary Otis R. Bowen said Friday.

Insurance premiums for the average American physician rose 81 percent from 1982 to 1985 while increasing 113 percent for the hardest-hit specialty, obstetrics-gynecology, according to a government study the former Indiana governor released in his home state.

"Increases of this magnitude are worrisome," Bowen said.

"They raise concerns that older physicians may simply retire rather than meet the expense of these premiums, while physicians in their middle years will simply stop performing the high-risk procedures that are associated with malpractice suits."

The result is that people will have less access to medical care, he said.

Bowen said that because it is not the federal government's role to regulate tort law or insurance rates, the states must tackle the problem by revising their policies.

The 209-page report by the Task Force on Medical Liability and Malpractice concluded that some states had taken action in recent years to alleviate the problem but that more action was needed.

The panel offered a broad framework of alternatives for states to consider, including setting fair and reasonable limits on the damages plaintiffs could receive in medical malpractice suits; reducing the time in which such suits could be filed; instituting pretrial screening panels for lawsuits and allowing their decisions to be admissible in court; and allowing juries to consider a plaintiff's collateral sources of compensation, such as insurance and workers' compensation, in determining a claim.

Bowen stressed, however, that "we have to make sure people who have suffered injuries as a result of malpractice are compensated,...and we do have to make sure that the quality of care is maintained."

The panel also recommended that state licensing boards be properly staffed, financed and authorized to carry out effective disciplinary programs and that education programs be initiated to help doctors understand the legal system and patients realize the risks of medical care.

Although the study concluded that such actions could have a far-reaching impact on medical care, Bowen acknowledged that the recommendations would not solve the crisis immediately because legislative action takes time.

"Sure there'll be a one- to three-year turnaround time on this, without question," he said. But he noted that nothing would be gained by standing still.

"It's going to be a long, slow, painful process to really get hold of it," added task force co-chairman Jay Plager, former dean of the Indiana University School of Law.

The problem must be addressed not only by legislators but also by lawyers, medical professionals and educators, he said.

Repellant profits

Daphne Riley, 11, turned misery to profit by selling squirts of insect repellant to joggers and families bothered by mosquitoes in an Amarillo park recently.

WEST TEXAS IN BRIEF

Smith gathers signatures to repeal Windfall Profits Tax

From Staff Reports

U.S. Rep. Lamar Smith, R-San Antonio, Friday, said he has gained support of 50 House members in urging repeal of the Windfall Profits Tax and adoption of special assistance for the domestic oil industry in the final version of the Trade Bill.

In the letter sent Friday to House members of the conference committee, Smith urged the adoption of the provisions to "restore the vital domestic oil industry to a competitive position to enhance the nation's energy security."

Smith said the Windfall Profits Tax was created in 1980 to divert profits from the oil industry to the federal treasury and was a disincentive to investment in the oil industry.

He also said that the proposed Trade Competitive Assistance program would extend the benefits of the current Trade Adjustment Assistance to the support industries of the oil industry that had been excluded.

The letter was signed by 24 members of the Texas House delegation, with Speaker Jim Wright indicating he would sign at a later date. While promising to support both measures, Republican Bill Archer of Houston and Democrat J.J. Pickle of Austin declined, saying it would be improper to sign the letter since they were conferees.

Other signatures include Republican Whip, Trent Lott, and a bipartisan group of members from Oklahoma, Louisiana, Mississippi and Colorado.

Center could lose funds

Reporter-Telegram Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Midland County needs to improve the conditions at its restitution center or risk losing their state money, the Texas Adult Probation Commission said Friday.

At its meeting, the commission decided to fund the restitution center for six months and take up their case again to see if improvement have been made. Midland County requested $427,329 for the year, but the commission awarded $179,639 for half a year.

"The center is not as safe and healthful as it should be," said Debie Bartles, a spokeswoman for the commission. "They pass the health inspections, but just barely."

Ms. Bartles said the health problems are "unfortunate" because the center "has an excellent success rate."

The county requested another $110,397 for its specialized caseload, such as programs for the mentally ill and alcohol and drug abusers. The commission awarded $41,371.

If the Legislature reconvenes and gives the probation department more money, the commission will likely give Midland County another $50,000 for its specialized caseload, she said.

Abandoned rig still mystery

From Staff and Wire Reports

BIG SPRING — Lawmen had no additional information late Friday about a tractor-trailer rig carrying onions that was found abandoned on Interstate 20 with its motor running.

"We've had no new reports, no updates on it," a dispatcher at the Howard County Sheriff's office said late Friday night.

Earlier Friday, authorities said there were few clues about the whereabouts of the occupants.

The truck was unoccupied for two days before officers were notified Wednesday afternoon, Howard County Sheriff A.N. Standard said Friday.

Standard identified the driver as Thomas Stephen Blake of Alamogordo, N.M., and said he was accompanied by a woman passenger.

He said there was no indication of violence.

Documents in the truck helped identify the pair, he said.

Blake was bound for Atlanta, according to family members.

Man defends urine treatments for AIDS patients

HOUSTON (AP) — AIDS patients receiving urine injections can have their immune systems strengthened by the treatment, said a man whose clinics offering the treatment are the target of a state lawsuit.

Clinic-owner William Hitt testified in state district court that the practice of giving AIDS patients injections of their own filtered urine is controversial, however, and not recognized by many experts.

"I don't think many experts have evaluated the treatment," he said Thursday.

The state is seeking to halt the injections and stop Hitt from claiming his treatment can prevent opportunistic infections from affecting vulnerable AIDS patients and allergy sufferers.

Hitt is part-owner of three clinics, two in Houston and one in Dallas, where AIDS patients and others receive weekly urine injections. The three clinics are currently treating 205 patients.

During Thursday's first day of hearings, Assistant State Attorney General Rose Ann Reeser contended Hitt's patients were not receiving the injections on instruction of licensed physicians, one practice the state is seeking to end.

Hitt contends all patients are seen by physicians and have standing orders for the injections, but said it was possible some patients may have obtained the injections without seeing a physician.

Ms. Reeser also contended Hitt is not making any systematic study of the treatment's effectiveness. Hitt said a study is under way has found that two patients died while under the treatment, and "six or seven" have died since May after halting the treatment.

Fort Worth billionaire Sid R. Bass files for divorce

FORT WORTH (AP) — Fort Worth billionaire Sid Richardson Bass has filed for divorce from his wife of 22 years, Anne Hendricks Bass.

In his divorce petition, Bass cited marital discord and a conflict of personalities. No hearing date has been set in the case, which was filed July 31 in state district court.

Bass' attorney, Dee J. Kelly, declined to comment on the suit.

Mrs. Bass was traveling in the Soviet Union with her two daughters, according to sources at the Fort Worth Ballet where Mrs. Bass is vice president.

Bass helped build his estimated $3.2 billion fortune by directing profitable battles against corporate giants such as Texaco. But in recent years he has been more interested in long-term holdings and is the dominant shareholder in Walt Disney Corp.

He owns a 20 percent stake in that company worth about $1.7 billion.

A Bass partnership also is the largest shareholder in AMI with $171 million worth of stock.

The Basses' marital problems have been chronicled in newspaper columns since late 1986, when reports surfaced of Sid Bass vacationing in Europe with Mercedes Kellogg, wife of a former U.S. diplomat and heir to the Kellogg cereal fortune.

Bass is asking for control of separate property belonging only to him.

Catholic Indians pushing for sainthood of dead Mohawk woman

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — Catholic American Indians are hoping Pope John Paul II will designate a Mohawk woman who died 307 years ago as the first Indian saint when he visits Phoenix this fall.

"It would be a very beautiful thing," said John Pelotte of Gallup, N.M., the first Indian Catholic bishop. "We have every hope that the Holy Father will do this. We certainly have expressed that hope very loudly and clearly in all our correspondence with Rome."

Pelotte, who will join the pope here in September in a special meeting with 16,000 Indians, said such a canonization "would have a very strong impact" on the nation's 1.5 million Indians, about 285,000 of whom are Catholics.

The candidate for sainthood, Kateri Tekawitha, was beatified by the pope in 1980, the step before canonization.

"Up until the beatification, she was known only to the tribes of the Northeast" where the Mohawks are located, Pelotte said. "Now, you can find statues of her in Navajo churches. All across the Southwest, there are pictures and medallions of Kateri Tekawitha. This in itself is a kind of miracle, good enough for her canonization. She has been the great unifier of Indian Catholics."

If the pope designates her for sainthood, the College of Cardinals in Rome would process the canonization, which could take several months.

Pelotte said he has received no signals from Rome but thinks it is possible because Pope John Paul has named others to sainthood on previous trips.

Tekawitha died in 1680 at age 24 of smallpox after leading a life, according to the Catholic Encyclopedia, of "austerity and charity."

Her baptism in 1676 and her vow to remain a virgin met so much opposition she was forced to flee her tribe, but she continued working among other tribes, historians say. It is said that at the moment she died, her smallpox scars vanished.

The pope's visit with the Indians here is being billed as a step toward reconciliation.

Spain to honor Jews on anniversary of expulsion

MADRID, Spain (AP) — When Queen Isabella sent Christopher Columbus off to sea in 1492, she also expelled Jews from Spain. Now as the 500th anniversary of Columbus' discovery of America nears, Spain is offering Sephardic Jews around the world a special place in the celebrations.

Sepharad is the Hebrew name for Spain and Sephardic Jews are descendants of the people expelled by Queen Isabella.

Special plans are being made for them during commemorations in 1992 of the 500th anniversary of Columbus' landfall in the Caribbean.

Spain's secretary of state for international cooperation, Luis Yanez, already has declared Toledo the "international capital of Sepharad-92," likening the ancient city to a "Sephardic Jerusalem."

Toledo, 40 miles south-southwest of Madrid, was the site of a flourishing Jewish community and a center of international learning in the 12th to 15th centuries.

The government decision puts Toledo on a par with Barcelona and Seville in importance in the observance of the anniversary's other main events — the Summer Olympic Games in Barcelona and the World's Fair in Seville.

The dual objective, Yanez said, is to make Toledo "a center of international pilgrimage," and "to publicize Spain's Jewish past both at home and abroad."

Samuel Toledano, leader of Spain's Jewish community, said the anniversray plans are of "great importance."

LIFESCOPE

World Seeks Peace But Finds None! Lifescope Says, "No God, No Peace!" "Know God, Know Peace!"

Following after the Holy Spirit leads to life and peace, but following after the old nature (our fleshly desires) leads to death. So now, since we have been made right in God's sight by faith in His promises, we can have real peace with Him because of what Jesus Christ our Lord has done for us.

After all, the important thing for us as Christians is not what we eat or drink but stirring up goodness and peace and joy from the Holy Spirit. For Christ Himself is our way of peace. He has made peace between both Jew and Gentile by making us all one family, breaking down the wall of contempt that used to separate us. For Christ's death on the cross has made peace with God for all of us through His blood.

Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything . . . If you do this you will experience God's peace, which is far more wonderful than the human mind can understand. His peace will keep your thoughts and your hearts quiet and at rest as you trust in Christ Jesus.

When the Holy Spirit controls our lives He will pro-duce this kind of fruit in us: love, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, gentleness and self-control . . .

The wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, willing to yield, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy. Now the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace by those who make peace.

May the Lord of peace Himself give you His peace no matter what happens. For Jesus gives you a gift - peace of mind and heart! And the peace He gives isn't fragile like the peace the world gives.

Yes, the Lord will give strength to His people and bless them with peace.

'Spiritual Explosion' to begin at Faith Temple

Kenan

Faith Temple Church, 1605 N. Terrell at Jax, will hold its 13th annual Spiritual Explosion 8 p.m. Monday, through Aug. 15, and 3 p.m. Aug. 16.

Daily seminars will be held at 11:30 a.m.

The services will begin with a musical Monday which features the Explosion Mass Chorus and other groups and soloists from the surrounding area. Special guest will be Keith Childress of Tulsa, Okla., who is a television and recording star.

The church's pastor, the Rev. W.C. Kenan, says the guest speakers include Bishop A. LaDell Thomas, Waco, Tuesday; Dr. P.H. Porter Jr., Denver, Colo., Wednesday; the Rev. Al Johnson of Los Angeles, Calif., Thursday; evangelist Jaunita Sapp of Dallas, Saturday; and evangelist Dennis Martin, Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 15. At 3 p.m. Aug. 16, the Rev. S. Allen and the choir from Fort Worth will close out the Spiritual Explosion.

The Rev. Alvin Pope, Fort Worth, will lead the nightly inspirational meetings and the Rev. Lemuel Thuvton, Lubbock, will conduct the daily seminars.

The Explosion will be highlighted by a Founder's Banquet at 5 p.m. Aug. 15 at Midland Center, Main Street at Wall Avenue.

The Explosion Vacation Bible School will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Wednesday through Friday. The choir from the All Nations Pentecostal Center Church of God in Christ, Denver, Colo., will sing Wednesday night.

Kenan invites the public to attend any or all services. For more information call 684-5253 or 682-2663.

Spiritual exercise offered

Exercise with a spiritual lift — AerobiRhythm's "Balance" workshop, will be held at First Baptist Church Aug. 21-22.

The Aug. 21 session, which begins at 4:30 p.m., includes basic training for beginning instructors on the how-to's of teaching, organizing, administering and promoting fitness as a ministry in churches. The Aug. 22 session, which begins at 8:30 a.m., emphasizes balance in all areas of life — exercise, nutrition, stress management and spiritual development.

The workshop is open to instructors, students and persons interested in learning more about fitness. For more information or registration information call Charlie Elliott, 682-7669.

Church offers free VBS

The Midland Church of God, 5300 Thomason Drive, will host a free community Vacation Bible School beginning Monday. The five-day program features classes for children ages 2-12.

"Students will enjoy putting into practive new insights about Jesus and about themselves," says a church spokesman. "Plus Vacation Bible School is fun."

Theme for the school is "Hallelujah! Jesus is King." The supervised activities include crafts and singing. Classes will be from 9 a.m. to noon.

For more information or to enroll students call Sandy Oldham, 694-7586. Free will offerings will be accepted for the school.

Youth called to mission

Wilcox

Nineteen-year-old Cory Arden Wilcox will be the featured speaker at a Sacrament Meeting in his honor, noon Aug. 23, at the chapel of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, 2101 Tarleton St.

Wilcox has been called to serve a two-year mission for the Latter-day Saints. He will serve in the Salt Lake South Mission and will enter the Mission Training Center in Provo, Utah, Sept. 16.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Wilcox, he is a member of the Midland Second Ward. Wilcox was born in Sidney, Neb., and has lived in Midland for 11 years. A 1987 graduate of Lee High School, Wilcox taught gymnastics at the Alamo YMCA the last three years as well as working for the Midland Reporter-Telegram.

All missionaries receive training prior to their mission at the Provo Mission Training Center. About 400 missionaries weekly are prepared for their missions, with 30 different languages being taught at the Center. The church has about 35,000 missionaries in 78 countries and territories worldwide for the church.

Like all missionaries for the LDS Church, Wilcox will receive no pay for his services. He will be supported by his own savings and will spend 60-70 hours each week teaching people about the gospel of Jesus Christ.

The public is invited to attend the Sacrament Meeting being held in Wilcox's honor.

Grace greets new pastor

Wolfe

Grace Presbyterian Church of Midland announces that the Rev. Hawley Logan Wolfe has been chosen as the church's new pastor and head of staff.

Wolfe served six years as assistant minister of First Presbyterian Church, Deerfield, Ill., before coming to Midland.

He received a Bachelor of Arts Degree in English at Cornell University and studied an additional year at Westminister College, Cambridge, England. He then went to Princeton Theological Seminary for his Master of Divinity Degree, concentrating on the New Testament.

Joining him in Midland are his wife, Anne, and their four children, Hannah, Sarah, Nathanael and Leah.

"The people of Grace warmly welcome visitors to their church," says a church spokesman. "Services center around the holy Scriptures and their message to the people in Midland, Texas, in 1987. Church school offers indepth Bible studies as well as Christian approaches to personal and social problems."

Grace Presbyterian Church, 2801 N. Garfield St., holds Sunday School at 9:30 a.m. and worship services at 11 a.m.

Film series in second week

The showing of a four-part film series entitled "Celebration of Discipline: The Path to Spiritual Growth" is in its second week at Golf Course Road Church of Christ.

The films are the work of Dr. Richard Foster, associate professor of theology and writer in residence at Friends University, Wichita, Kan. Foster, a popular Christian lecturer, is the author of the books "Freedom of Simplicity" and "Celebration of Discipline."

The second film, "Celebration of Discipline: The Path to Spiritual Growth," which deals with the disciplines of meditation, fasting, study and prayer and how they move people closer to God, will be shown at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the church's family center.

Child care is provided and no donations will be taken.

Organist joins Church

Lackland

Anthony F. Lackland has joined the staff of First Christian Church as organist and choralmaster.

Lackland recently moved to Midland from Newark, Calif., where he was organist and assistant director of music for the First Presbyterian Church.

He also has experience as a piano and theory instructor at the New Jersey Keyboard Institute, Lincroft, N.J., as assistant organist and director of music at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Roman Catholic Church, Asbury Park, N.J., and as pianist for the 878th Army Band.

Lackland has a degree in Music Education with a concentration in piano and voice from Westminister Choir College, Princeton, N.J. While there he recorded with the Westminister Singers and served on the Symphonic Choir Advisory Board. In 1984, he spent a semester of special studies under Dr. David A. Karp and Dr. William Cooper at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, where he received the 1984-85 Meadows Artistic Achievement Scholarship Award and the SMU chapel Choir Scholarship.

His credits also include performing as a soloist and accompanist in six states and the District of Columbia, in addition to singing with the major orchestras on the East Coast, including the New York Philharmonic, the Philadelphia Philharmonic and the Atlanta Symphony.

A member of the Music Teachers National Association, he is studying organ with Lester E. Ackerman Jr., of First Presbyterian Church.

A 26-year-old native of New Jersey, his interests include composing Christian music, working with youth, swimming, reading and spending time with people.

Seminary classes begin

Classes at West Texas Baptist Institute and Seminary, 3500 Anetta Dr., begin Aug. 25.

The school, which is located at Tall City Missionary Baptist Church, will be one day a week for 16 weeks. Classes begin at 7:30 a.m. and end at 10 p.m. Pre-registration is being held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Aug. 21 and 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Aug. 22.

Members of the administration staff are the Rev. W.R. Simpson, pastor of Tall City Baptist Church; the Rev. Danny McClintock, pastor of Westwood Missionary Baptist Church, Odessa; the Rev. Rex Reynonds, pastor of First Missionary Baptist Church, Hermleigh; the Rev. David Dawson, pastor of First Missionary Baptist Mission, Big Spring; and Jo Ellen Alexander, member of Tall City Missionary Baptist Church.

Faculty members include Reynolds, McClintock, Simpson, Dawson, Ron Wales, Charles May, Warren Rainwater, Mike Holman, Stacy McIntosk and Monty Hilliard.

A tentative course schedule includes Homiletics, English, New Testament Survey, Ministerial Practicalities, Music Fundamentals, Bible Doctrine, Bible Analysis, Defense of the Faith, Church Administration, Missionary Baptist Distinctives, Mission Methods, Old Testament Survey, Personal Evangelism, Music and Bible in Eight Ages.

Tuition is $5 per-semester hour. The first semeater ends Dec. 16, and the second semester begins Jan. 5.

The institute and seminary first opened its doors in 1972 and was operational for three years. Teachers then were Jerry Coffman, Amon Langston, Jim Slocumb and Simpson. This fall marks the reopening of the institute and seminary.

God viewed as 'Father, Mother, or both'

Most Americans are inclined to think of God as "Father," but a third of them lean toward the "Mother" concept or a blending of both, a survey finds, and they're more likely to consider the deity as "Friend" rather than "King."

Oddly, a preference for the "Father" image has increased slightly in recent years as organizational efforts were made to modify the masculine idea.

A second survey released this month, concerning church contributions, indicates that Roman Catholics have halved the percentage of annual income they give to the church, although Protestant giving has remained steady.

The findings about terminology for God were made by the National Opinion Research Center in Chicago, which regularly keeps tabs on religious trends. Views of God were scaled between various sets of two choices.

In a representative sample of 1,400 people, the center found that 51.9 percent view God as "Father," compared to 46.1 percent in 1984, and an additional 16.4 percent are inclined that way — a total of 68.3 percent.

However, 7.2 percent regard God as "Mother" or incline that way, while 24.5 percent are in the neutral middle between the two qualities — a total of 31.7 percent.

Theologically, God is considered neither male nor female, but all-inclusive. The traditional male imagery is used metaphorically. Several moves have been made lately for more inclusive language in Scripture readings.

Annulment cases before Vatican up from 1985

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The Vatican's court of appeals for marriage cases, the Roman Rota, last year decided 123 cases in favor of annulment, citing causes ranging from nymphomania to bigamy to a lack of witnesses at the wedding.

The U.S. National Catholic News Service says the figure represents an almost 20 percent increase from 1985, according to a recently released yearbook of Vatican activities.

Monsignor Kenneth Boccafola of the Rota staff says the agency has given "more credence" to psychological conditions that may restrict a person's ability to contract a marriage.

In one case in which annulment was granted, a woman suffered from nymphomania, "which can render the woman incapable of assuming the essential obligation of fidelity," the report says.

Other conditions considered grounds for annulments in 1986 included schizophrenia, alcoholism so severe it causes personality changes, "manic-depressive psychosis" and "irresponsibility" so severe it was seen as limiting a man's ability to assume marital duties.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 9, 1987

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: A lively love life could be a top priority this year. Keep your emotions under control. Do not allow someone to manipulate you in the name of love. There may be temporary setbacks ahead, but they will only improve your chances for big success later on. Have faith in your family. Loved ones are in your corner come rain or shine. Cut down on business overhead and profits will rise. Do everything you can to boost productivity!

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: Basketball star Bob Cousy, tennis great Rod Laver, boxer Ken Norton, Atlanta Brave Ted Simmons, soul/pop singer Whitney Houston, author Izaak Walton.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Although the indirect approach will pay big dividends at work, you need to lay all your cards on the table when talking with family members. A barbecue or short trip boosts your spirits.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): There is still time to set things right with a sibling. You rise to new heights when challenged by mate. Travel could be difficult. Do not go unless you have no out.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Others make it clear they want more of your time this weekend. Family-oriented fun provides especially happy moments today. Too much food may make you sleepy. Give in to fatigue and rest.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Approach a love relationship with both eyes open. Try to get closer to the earth this weekend. Spending time in the garden helps you forget your cares. Cheer up a family member.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): You may have misjudged someone's feelings. Make amends. If you follow your instincts, you will not go wrong again. Travel costs vary. Check around for a better air fare or hotel rate.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): You are moving into a position where you can get almost anything you want from your career. Spend some time alone today. You will enjoy takng a trip down memory lane with a friend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Family, home and real estate interests are highlighted today. A social event could be the setting for a wonderful romantic encounter. The affection between married couples deepens. Speak from the heart.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A day trip brings a welcome change of scene. Try to take a more detached approach when discussing serious matters. A child's unruly behavior could be a bid for parental attention. Be a good listener.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Setting aside all thoughts of work will add to your enjoyment of the day. See what you can do to brighten up your home. Plan a special evening for mate. Pursue romance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Home and family matters deserve top priority today. By trying to please everyone, you could end up pleasing no one — including yourself. Exercise more tact to avert quarrels. New financial rewards are featured.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Count your pennies today and resist the temptation to splurge. Light exercise and fresh air are favored. Do not be afraid to open up with your teen-agers — they may surprise you by reciprocating!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Continued effort is required to implement your plans. Family members may be in a somber mood. Keep calm and find out what is bothering them. A social event helps restore domestic harmony.

Endurance swimmer plys icy waters of Bering Strait from U.S. to U.S.S.R.

LITTLE DIOMEDE, Alaska (AP) — An endurance swimmer spent two hours and 12 minutes plying the icy Bering Strait on Friday, completing an unprecedented swim from American to Soviet territory.

Escorted by a Soviet vessel and two Eskimo walrus-skin boats carrying researchers and reporters, Lynne Cox arrived at the Soviet island of Big Diomede at 1:02 p.m. after a swim of four to six miles in 39-degree water.

Cox was greeted by Soviets when she reached Big Diomede, where two large tents had been set up on shore.

The 30-year-old Californian, a pioneer of long-distance swims around the world, has completed longer swims, but none colder.

The 100 residents of Little Diomede turned out as Cox and an entourage of 11 researchers and reporters piled into two skin boats for the trip through fog and drizzle and calm seas to the starting point.

Adults cheered and children dropped red and blue balloons in the water.

The boats motored south for about 10 minutes, then at 10:50 a.m. Cox jumped into the water, swam a short distance to shore, turned around and began her swim, according to citizens band radio reports from witnesses in the boats.

She started from the island's south end to compensate for tides and currents. Although the distance between Little Diomede and Big Diomede is only 2.7 miles, Cox had to swim an estimated four to six miles to get across.

The water was calm, but fog obscured the channel most of the way across. A 20-foot Soviet vessel joined the escort around noon, when Cox reached the swim's halfway point at the international date line.

The two skin boats accompanying Cox were allowed to continue, but several other boats piloted by Little Diomede residents were turned back. Big Diomede, uninhabited except for a military reservation, is normally off limits to Western travelers.

Project coordinator Joe Coplan said he would be carrying a plaque from Alaska Gov. Steve Cowper, and gifts of black bread, salt, tobacco and candy for the Soviets.

The Soviet Union, in clearing the way for the swim, said Thursday it would not require Cox or her party to have visas.

The Soviets' willingness to cooperate with the effort capped a two-year effort by Cox to make the swim.

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Country singer Michael Martin Murphey was on his way to Wyoming when he thought he saw a friend.

Murphey, whose song "A Long Line of Love" hit No. 1 on the Billboard magazine country charts released Friday, said he had been sleeping on his bus Thursday until a thunderstorm woke him.

As the bus passed through Lincoln, the singer thought he saw "crop artist" Stan Herd, who created a patchwork quilt in a field for Murphey's "Line of Love" video, nominated for country video of the year.

Sure enough.

Herd was in town trying to raise $15,000 for a crop-art sculpture that is being planted near Lincoln in conjunction with a Sept. 19 Farm Aid concert, which Murphey is planning to play.

Murphey found Herd and gave him $500 for the sculpture. Murphey also found out that the Haymarket Street Dance takes place at the same time as the Farm Aid concert, so he agreed to do a little extra work.

TOKYO (AP) — Former Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi, a signatory of Japan's war declaration against the United States who later pushed through a postwar alliance with Washington, died Friday of heart failure. He was 90.

He also spent 3½ years in prison as a war criminal, placed there by United States occupation authorities after Japan's 1945 surrender.

City will review credit policy, mayor says

AUSTIN (AP) — With controversy swirling over a city staff decision to stop accepting letters of credit from many lenders, Austin Mayor Frank Cooksey said the City Council will review the policy after public hearings.

"I think we have to have the full policy brought to us and we need to make a decision on that," Cooksey said.

The plan to have the council rethink the staff decision on letters of credit was a reversal for Cooksey. The mayor had said earlier this week that the staff exercised legitimate discretion in deciding which banks and savings and loans were qualified to issue letters of credit.

The new policy triggered angry reactions from banking and business leaders. "It is important enough to the community to have a perfectly fair presentation," Cooksey said.

The city holds letters of credit in lieu of a performance bond or surety bond until road and utility work promised by developers is completed.

The policy protects homeowners who could find themselves with lots in unfinished subdivisions and protects the city from having to pick up the cost of uncompleted work.

The use of letters of credit also accommodates developers, who can sell lots before the utility work is finished.

But last week, after a closed-door meeting with Cooksey and the rest of the City Council, the staff put in place new rules that require any bank issuing a letter of credit to have a rating of 10 on a scale published quarterly by Sheshunoff Rating Services. The new criterion, which takes into effect capital, assets, liquidity and bank management, eliminated 27 of the 47 banks in Travis County, including the four largest which hold 65 percent of bank deposits in the area.

Some developers said the new policy would stall work in subdivisions.

Cooksey said the rules the city staff put into place will remain until the council reconsiders them.

Cooksey said he agreed that the city must adopt regulations to protect the city from financial institutions that could go under.

Targets of Clements' vetoes strike back

AUSTIN (AP) — Judging from the reaction, Gov. Bill Clements' vetoes pinched some people, agencies and colleges where it hurts.

Clements Thursday signed the largest state budget in Texas' history — $38.132 billion — but vetoed $167.4 million from various programs.

More than $106 million of that came out of budgets proposed for public and higher education.

His vetoes will eliminate a proposed $34 million state highway building and $3.5 million in projected spending by some agencies for maintaining and operating airplanes.

Clements said he wanted to encourage agencies to use planes from the aircraft pooling board — "that's what I've done and it works great."

Commissioner Garry Mauro of the General Land Office, which lost $894,024 as a result of the governor's veto, said he thought vetoes of certain aircraft operations was an attempt to draw attention away from education vetoes, "which are unpopular."

Mauro said the vetoes would shut down his office's aerial survey program, and force each of his 11 inspectors on the ground to be responsible for 2 million acres off state-owned land.

Ironically, according to Mauro, his office has a job for the governor on Sunday and Monday, and that is taking aerial photos of possible super collider sites near Abilene.

Tony Proffitt, a spokesman for Comptroller Bob Bullock, was asked about the veto of nearly $1.5 million from the comptroller's aircraft operations. He said airplanes have been an integral part of the comptroller's tax audits. "We want auditors in our office or the client's office and not somewhere in-between," he said.

Rep. Bill Ceverha, R-Richardson, said, "I think it's terrific. In a time when you're talking about cutting money in education we've got these state officials using airplanes as if they were the emperor of China."

Clements vetoed a $52 million subsidy lawmakers wanted to give school districts where property values have declined by 8 percent or more, and Texas Education Commissioner William Kirby said, "If there had to be something cut, this is probably the least harmful."

He said during the past several years the bulk of the subsidy has gone to wealthy districts that have experienced a dramatic drop in taxable wealth because of the decline in oil and gas prices.

Marlin Johnston, commissioner of the Department of Human Services, said a $16.2 million veto wipes out administrative appropriations for two major programs — protective services for children and family self-services, such as family planning — and would result in a job freeze in those areas.

Johnston said it also does away with administration money for elderly and disabled victims of abuse. The Gray Panthers of Austin said the 70-year-old Clements had shown a callous disregard for impaired adults who are unable to protect themselves.

Another veto, according to Attorney General Jim Mattox, would eliminate $1 million from his program to enforce court-ordered child support payments.

Mattox said the loss of money would force his office to neglect certain cases and "more families — perhaps as many as 400 to 500 — will end up on the state's welfare rolls."

A total of $6.6 million was cut from administrative funding in university systems' offices.

"It's going to be hard to overcome," said regent Joe Reynolds of Texas A&M University.

A&M lost over $690,000 in 1988-89, the University of Texas $1.4 million and the University of Houston $2.1 million in 1989.

Personal notes aid probe of attack on minister's wife

DALLAS (AP) — A collection of personal notes written by the wife of a prominent Dallas minister is helping authorities in their probe of a near-fatal choking of the woman, says the lead investigator in the case.

"These were some personal notes she made during a period of time," said the investigator, Rick Silva of the Dallas Police Department. "They've been helpful in giving us background information on her and the people in her life."

Silva would not discuss the contents of the notes, but a source told the Dallas Morning News the notes included Margaret "Peggy" Railey's reflections on family, church and the difficulty of being a pastor's wife.

The source told the newspaper the personal notes, written on lined, yellow note pads, were not dated, but they indicated that Mrs. Railey was unhappy with her life at times.

Investigators say the notes were seized by police after the attack three months ago on Mrs. Railey, who remains is a coma at a Tyler nursing home.

Silva said police were still receiving information in the case.

Mrs. Railey's husband, the Rev. Walker Railey, has told police he returned home about 12:40 a.m. April 22 to find his wife unconscious.

STATE IN BRIEF

EMT equipment stolen

PARKER (AP) — Volunteer emergency medical technicians here said they discovered their most vital life-saving equipment had been stolen when they arrived at the scene of an automobile accident last week.

Fortunately, a man who was trapped in the car did not require immediate medical attention, said Donna Saunders, one of the EMTs. If he had been seriously injured, she said, he might have died.

Parker is one of three small Collin County towns that have had emergency medical equipment stolen, and officials are wondering if a ring of thieves are hitting small-town fire departments, possibly to outfit an ambulance service.

"It wouldn't be any good to anyone unless they use it," Ms. Saunders said.

Most of the equipment, valued at $20,000, stolen from Parker has been replaced, she said.

If the theft occurred three nights earlier, a man who was seriously injured in a motorcycle accident probably would not have survived, Ms. Saunders said.

Woman repeatedly shot

KERRVILLE (AP) — The wife of a Kerrville banker found slain Thursday morning was shot at least 10 times with a small caliber weapon in the head, arm, chest and both hands, autopsy results released Friday indicate.

Kerr County Justice of the Peace Betty Burney said preliminary autopsy results show Joyce Walters, 44, was killed sometime between 9:30 p.m. and 10:30 p.m. Monday night.

Raymond Charles Tabares Jr., 18, a special education student at Center Point High School, was charged with murder in the Walters slaying and was being held on $500,000 bond in the Kerr County Jail Friday.

Mrs. Walters, wife of Kerrville banker Roland Walters, had been missing since Monday night.

Groups' request denied

AUSTIN (AP) — A federal court in New Orleans has denied a request by two civil rights groups to halt a plan that would end most cross-town busing of students in Austin public elementary schools.

In a July 24 order, U.S. District Judge James Nowlin of Austin threw out a request by the NAACP and Mexican American Legal Defense and Educational Fund to reopen a 17-year-old lawsuit that resulted in court-ordered busing to end racial segregation in the Austin Independent School District.

NATION IN BRIEF

Mayor Koch suffered 'tiny, trivial stroke,' doctor says

NEW YORK (AP) — Mayor Edward I. Koch suffered a "tiny, trivial stroke," but remains "ostentatiously healthy" and full of wisecracks and should be back at his desk by next week, a doctor said Friday.

Koch's stroke was "the neurological equivalent to breaking his toe," said Dr. J.P. Mohr, head of the stroke center at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center's Neurological Institute.

The 62-year-old mayor was sped from Lenox Hill Hospital to the medical center Friday morning after symptoms that had led to his hospitalization Thursday — slurred speech, dizziness and nausea — recurred.

On Thursday, doctors said they believed he had suffered a transient ischemia attack, or TIA, a briefly diminished flow of oxygen to the brain.

But Mohr said that was reclassified as a stroke when the condition did not disappear. A stroke is any arterial disturbance that either cuts or limits the flow of oxygen to any portion of the brain.

The stroke occurred in an artery the size of a human hair, and it would not have been detected at all without the state-of-the-art equipment at Columbia-Presbyterian, according to Mohr.

Soviet scientist queried

SEATTLE (AP) — A Soviet scientist was questioned by federal authorities Friday, one day after he reportedly ditched his comrades in a shopping mall and walked into a restaurant waving a small American flag to seek asylum.

FBI agents met Dmitri Vinogredov, 30, at a bar where he was sent by a restaurant patron who took him home and out for dinner.

Vinogredov, a zoologist working aboard the research vessel Babaevsk, temporarily docked in Aberdeen, failed to return on the bus that took some of the ship's 68 crew members to the Capital Mall in Olympia on Thursday, said the vessel's captain, Slava Temin.

Instead, Vinogredov walked into the lounge of Charlie's Restaurant and struck up a conversation with Mark Grimes, 28, of Lacey.

"He walked in like this," Grimes said, waving a small American flag. "He said, 'I love America.' I said, 'Where you from?' He said, 'I'm from Russia and I'm defecting.' "

Pizza vehicles sabotaged

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sand was put into the gas tanks of 23 Domino's Pizza vehicles, apparently in protest over the chain's opening of a restaurant in Honduras, a company spokesman says.

On Thursday, a letter was posted on the building housing The Ann Arbor News accusing Domino's founder Tom Monaghan of exploiting poor people in that nation, said Domino's spokesman Ron Hingst.

"Somebody doesn't agree with Tom's philosophy on some things," Hingst said. He said the vehicles, parked outside five Domino's locations in Ann Arbor when they were vandalized Wednesday, belong to a franchise holder and not to Monaghan or the company itself.

In May, Domino's announced it had opened an outlet in San Pedro Sula, Honduras. The store is part of a pilot program to open outlets in Third World countries, said company Vice President Dave Board.

Board said all profits from the store would be reinvested in Honduras in such enterprises as a pizza sauce packaging plant.

Meese urged to resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Six Democratic House members on Friday called for Attorney General Edwin Meese III to resign, contending he tried to cover up the Iran-Contra affair.

The effort was organized by Rep. John Conyers, D-Mich., who told a news conference that Meese intentionally misled Iran-Contra investigators and the American public and that he also has ignored ethics laws by filing a flawed financial disclosure form.

Reagan offers new covert disclosure policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan agreed Friday to notify congressional intelligence committees of covert operations within "two working days," but said this new disclosure policy should exclude "the most exceptional circumstances."

In a letter to Sens. David Boren, D-Okla., and William Cohen, R-Maine, the chairman and co-chairman of the Senate Intelligence Committee, Reagan acknowledged that in light of Iran-Contra revelations, "we cannot conduct an effective program of special (covert) activities without the cooperation and support of Congress."

He agreed to a series of steps to improve notification procedures called for by provisions of the National Security Act of 1947, although Reagan distanced himself from legislation that Rep. Louis Stokes, D-Ohio, has introduced, requiring a notification within 48 hours of the inception of an intelligence operation.

Reagan did not elaborate on what he meant in his letter, which he hand-delivered to Boren and Cohen during a brief Oval Office ceremony, by "exceptional circumstances."

Nor did the letter spell this out, although Reagan did write the two committee leaders that "the president must retain the flexibility as commander in chief and chief executive to exercise those constitutional authorities necessary to safeguard the nation and its citizens."

But in reply to a reporter's question about whether the changes were in response to the administration's failure to notify the congressional committees of the program of clandestine arms sales to Iran, Reagan said, "I haven't called them mistakes yet."

The agreement, said White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater, culminated "a period of intensive and fruitful consultations" between the White House and the Senate Intelligence Committee.

President Reagan shakes hands with Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., chairman of the Senate Select Committee on Intelligence, right, as Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, vice chairman of the commission, looks on during a meeting Friday.

Later in the day, Boren told a news conference: "I am pleased by the president's response to the suggestions made by the Senate Intelligence Committee. The president's letter is a good first step toward greater cooperation between Congress and the White House in national security matters."

But he said "further legislation" might still be needed.

Cohen said:

"This is a very positive step. Obviously it is not the end result. But it does reflect a change in attitude. It's clear there will be no more oral findings, it's clear there will be no more retroactive findings."

Reagan will give a nationally broadcast address next Wednesday night in which he delivers his first formal response to the revelations of the Iran-Contra hearings.

"The measure of agreement that's reflected in the letter demonstrates the value of bipartisan cooperation between the Congress and the executive branch in the intelligence area," Reagan said.

"I firmly believe that the new procedures we're putting into place will strengthen that cooperation, specifically the work of your committees," he said.

Among the changes that Reagan embraced were these:

— Except in cases of "extreme emergency," all future national security "findings" will be in writing.

"If an oral directive is necessary, a record should be made contemporaneously and the finding reduced to writing and signed by the president as soon as possible, but in no event more than two working days thereafter."

The Iran-Contra committees heard conflicting testimony — and, in fact, Reagan has made conflicting statements — about when, and under what conditions he authorized the initial transfer by Israel of U.S. arms to Iran in the late summer of 1985.

— "No finding should retroactively authorize or sanction a special activity," an unmistakable response to the after-the-fact findings the White House assembled to give legitimacy to certain aspects of the arms-to-Iran sales.

— In instances in which a president might authorize covert undertakings by some agency or persons outside the CIA or intelligence agencies, "all applicable procedures for approval of a finding and notification to Congress shall apply."

Ultra-Orthodox, secular Jews battle in Jerusalem streets

JERUSALEM (AP) — Hundreds of Ultra-Orthodox and secular Jews fought in the street near a movie theater Friday night, and police used tear gas to separate them.

No serious injuries were reported. Police said they arrested one secular demonstrator.

It was the most violent confrontation between secular and Ultra-Orthodox Jews in recent years.

About 200 Ultra-Orthodox men marched from the Orthodox quarter of Mea Shearim to the Beit Agron theater to protest the showing of films on Friday night, which they consider a desecration of the Sabbath.

The Orthodox men, dressed in black suits and hats, were met by about 500 secular demonstrators, some organized by the Citizens Rights Movement, a liberal political party. They raised signs that read: "No to religious coercion" and "Keep away the darkness."

Fist fights broke out. Three Ultra-Orthodox demonstrators were seen beating and kicking a woman photographer. Secular demonstrators beat them in turn.

Other fist fights began. Secular demonstrators, many wearing shorts and T-shirts in the summer heat, chased the Ultra-Orthodox down an alley before motorized police arrived and fired bursts of tear gas that scattered the crowd.

Police also followed the Ultra-Orthodox protesters and fired tear gas.

Municipal authorities have said city regulations prohibit showing movies on the Jewish Sabbath. One theater complex is said to have stopped showing films Friday and Saturday because of complaints from Orthodox Jews.

Secular and religious groups also are at odds over a proposed municipal soccer stadium. Orthodox Jews object because games would be played on the Sabbath.

Iran has bought $1 billion in arms in '87, sources say

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iran has purchased arms valued at about $1 billion so far this year and may have up to 100 Silkworm anti-ship missiles, U.S. intelligence sources said Friday.

The sources, discussing the matter only if not identified, said top Defense Department officials recently received an assessment of Iranian arms purchases from January through July.

It still lists China as the largest supplier of major weapon systems to Iran. The sources added, however, there is now some evidence that China, in the face of American pressure and publicity, may be reducing its dealings with Iran.

In the first seven months of the year, though, China sold about $400 million worth of arms to Iran, the sources said. Deliveries included a new load of Chinese-built Silkworm missiles along with multiple rocket launchers, artillery pieces, and anti-aircraft missiles.

The second leading supplier remained North Korea, the sources said. It provided arms worth about $250 million, including artillery pieces, ammunition of various types and Soviet-designed Scud surface-to-surface missiles.

Warsaw Pact allies of the Soviet Union provided about $200 million in arms during the period, primarily small arms and rifles, ammunition and transport trucks, the sources said.

Two American allies in Europe — Portugal and Spain — were next on the list, providing an estimated $150 million in munitions and components for Iran's domestic arms industry, the sources added. Shipments from those countries apparently included machinery components, the officials said.

The sources declined to characterize the latest estimate of arms shipments as representing any significant increase from recent years.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Actor satisfactory after car accident in Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Actor Matthew Broderick was reported in satisfactory condition Friday, two days after he was hurt in a car crash which killed a woman and her daughter.

Broderick, 25, suffered a broken leg and minor injuries Wednesday when the car he was driving collided with another car near Enniskillen, about 80 southwest of Belfast, police said.

A Northern Ireland police spokesman declined to discuss the cause of the accident.

The two people in the other car, Margaret Doherty, 63, and her daughter, Anne Gallagher, 28, were killed.

Broderick's girlfriend, Jennifer Grey, 23, who was riding in the car with him, was released after treatment for shock at Erne Hospital in Enniskillen.

Broderick, who starred in the film "War Games" and the Neil Simon play "Brighton Beach Memoirs," was transferred Friday from Erne Hospital to Royal Victoria Hospital in Belfast.

Gorbachev 'chat' aired

MOSCOW (AP) — Mikhail S. Gorbachev said Friday in a nationally broadcast chat with U.S. Russian teachers that he and his people feel no hostility toward Americans, who he admitted are materially better off than Soviets.

But the Soviet leader said in the highly unusual remarks that his country's guarantee of cradle-to-grave social benefits is superior to the U.S. system.

Gorbachev also told the teachers he has kept up a dialogue with President Reagan despite acute disagreements.

The Communist Party general secretary also said he will continue to patiently seek arms control accords with the United States.

Gorbachev met in an ornate reception room at party Central Committee headquarters with more than 20 American teachers of Russian who are in the Soviet Union to study the language.

Locomotive hits train

MOSCOW (AP) — A locomotive with malfunctioning brakes slammed into the rear of a Moscow-bound passenger train at more than 80 mph early Friday, smashing two coaches and killing passengers, Tass said.

The official Soviet news agency said the electric locomotive was pulling a freight train laden with 5,000 tons of grain, but became detached from the cars when the brakes failed to work.

Fifty-three of the freight cars derailed, and the locomotive, which was speeding down a grade, plowed into the rear of the overnight passenger train bound from the southern Russian city of Rostov-on-Don to the capital.

Tass said the exact number of casualties in the 1:30 a.m. collision about 600 miles south of Moscow had not been established.

Its first report, however, termed the wreck a "disaster," and said the Communist Party Central Committee and government sent condolences to the families of those killed.

British-linked bank selling South African subsidiary

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Standard Chartered bank said Friday it will sell the bank's shares in its South African subsidiary for the equivalent of $254 million, or $9.35 a share, the largest divestment ever by a foreign corporation.

It is the 114th company to leave South Africa as the campaign by anti-apartheid activists for divestment has grown during the past two years.

Directors of Standard Bank Investment Corp. declined comment on why the British parent intends to sell its 39 percent share in the bank, founded in 1862, to South African investors for 715.9 million rand over the next four months.

In a news release issued in London, the directors of Standard Chartered said they "have concluded that the redeployment of resources from South Africa is in the best interests of Standard Chartered's shareholders."

Standard Chartered became the third large multinational bank to divest from South Africa, following London-based Barclays last November and Citicorp of New York in June.

Barclays had been the largest divestment when it sold a 40.4 percent stake in Barclay's National Bank Ltd., now known as First National Bank, in a deal valued at $123.84 million.

The divestments have further isolated South Africa's white minority government, which maintains a system of segregation from the black majority known as apartheid.

Bus plunges into canal

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — A bus carrying 110 people left a highway and plunged into a canal Friday, and 90 people were feared killed, according to a broadcast report.

The accident occurred in northern Uttar Pradesh state, 108 miles northeast of the capital of Lucknow, All-India Radio reported.

At least 35 bodies were recovered, and rescue workers were searching for more, the radio said.

The cause of the accident was not immediately known.

There are a lot of cars that cost more than a Volvo.
But few, if any, are worth as much. Especially when you consider everything a Volvo has to offer.
Like a three-year limited warranty that puts no limit on mileage. An eight-year limited warranty against corrosion. And a comprehensive roadside assistance plan called "On Call."SM
Not to mention Volvo's legendary reputation for safety and durability. $15,735*
So if you're in the market for a new car, test drive a Volvo 240 sedan or wagon (or, for that matter, any of our 700 series cars).
You'll find there's only one thing better than not settling for less.
And that's not paying more for it. VOLVO A car you can believe in.
