Richards, Bush to face off

Candidates accept Oct. 21 debate

■ Senate contestants Fisher, Hutchison plan similar showdown.

Associated Press

AUSTIN — Gov. Ann Richards and Republican challenger George W. Bush will debate face-to-face at least once before the Nov. 8 election, both confirmed Wednesday.

Bush joined Richards in accepting an invitation to debate at a town hall forum in Dallas on Oct. 21 that is scheduled to be broadcast on television and radio.

"I look forward to it," Bush said. "I look forward to talking about specific ways to make Texas a better place."

The Democratic incumbent agreed to the meeting last month, saying her campaign also hoped to arrange more joint appearances.

"We're eager to debate. We're glad he's accepted one and we're ready to talk about others," said Richards' spokesman Rafe Greenlee.

Greenlee said the candidates have received numerous invitations, and that Richards has agreed to debate on the CNN-TV program "Larry King Live."

Asked how many other debates he might take part in, Bush said, "We're working that out right now . . . I think there'll be more."

At the Dallas debate, citizens will join news reporters in questioning the two candidates. Jonnie

Jackpot rolls over

No tickets correctly matched all six numbers drawn Wednesday night for the twice-weekly Lotto Texas game, state lottery officials said. The jackpot was worth an estimated $3 million. The numbers drawn from a field of 50 were: 1, 7, 8, 11, 25 and 36. Lottery officials estimate the jackpot for Saturday night's game will be $10 million.

Allergy season

DALLAS — Itchy, watery eyes and repeated sneezing signal what's ahead for many North Texans and this year may be particularly miserable. Ragweed plants, whose giant variety can grow to be 6 feet or higher, spew pollen until they exhaust themselves or until the first killing frost. Its spikes of flowers produce much discomfort, with the microscopic pollen released into air until it reaches another flower. Or worse, your nose. The noxious plant is found all over the Lone Star State./3B

Beach pollution

WASHINGTON — Volunteers scouring 4,500 miles of coastline in three hours collected 7.3 million pieces of trash. That, says a new study, illustrates how the nation's beaches remain polluted despite the increased focus on protecting the environment./3A

Grand jurors probe death of Anderson

By Ed Todd
Staff Writer

GEORGETOWN — Williamson County grand jury, which this week indicted Round Rock carpenter Roger Eugene Fain Jr. in the death of his girlfriend, is investigating the death of former Midlander Darlene Anderson.

Fain, 40, was indicted on murder charges in the July 27 shooting death of Sandra Dumont, a 39-year-old Austin blackjack dealer.

Fain, who is married, allegedly was having an affair with Ms. Dumont, who had been missing since July 25 when she left an Austin nightclub.

The murder indictment also charged Fain as a "habitual criminal," according to Williamson County District Attorney Ken Anderson.

If convicted, Fain's sentence could range from 25 years to life in prison, said Anderson, who is no relation to Ms. Anderson.

The bodies of Ms. Anderson, 38, of Round Rock and Ms. Dumont were found by police in a Round Rock ravine on Aug. 12.

Rock Rock is a community of about 34,000 people just north of Austin and is in both Williamson and Travis counties.

Unexpected maneuver by Vatican delays abortion debate by 2 days

By Barbara Crossette
N.Y. Times News Service

CAIRO — In an unexpected maneuver Wednesday that angered many participants in the U.N. population conference, the Vatican was able to to put off for two more days any debate over how to deal with abortion in a plan to stabilize world population in the coming decades.

The Vatican move, apparently supported by several small countries that did not enter the debate until Wednesday, in effect reopened a discussion on the language of one paragraph of a 113-page document and sent it back to a committee until Friday.

The action brought sharp condemnation from Egypt, the conference host, and sent delegates from a number of nations into private meetings to try to find a way to force the issue back onto the conference floor over the Vatican's objections.

At issue is paragraph 8.25 — a number that is taking on symbolic impor-

Health-care bill post-mortem: Missed deadline caused loss

By Christopher Connell
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Five days into his presidency, Bill Clinton put his wife, Hillary Rodham Clinton, in charge of making good on a bedrock campaign promise: Send Congress a plan to reform health care within 100 days.

"If it were 101 days, I wouldn't have a heart attack," Clinton conceded good-naturedly. "But I want it done now."

The president and his health-reform task force missed the deadline, and it wasn't until late September before Clinton outlined his plan. The final White House product — a 1,342-page bill — was unveiled on Oct. 27.

Looking back, friends and foes of Clinton's drive for major health reform agree that the battle was lost in those long months wasted on a secretive, widely ridiculed search for the perfect plan.

Health reform now hangs by a thread in Congress, with hopes gone for legislation that would deliver on Clinton's promise of "health care that's always

Study: Many emergency room doctors lack adequate training

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Many U.S. emergency rooms are staffed by doctors who were never taught how to treat a heart attack, resuscitate a child or treat bleeding, and patients may be dying as a result.

"It would be fair to say that lives could be saved . . . if all emergency departments were staffed by appropriately trained individuals," said Dr. L. Thompson Bowles, president of the National Board of Medical Examiners and the chairman of a group of 38 health care authorities who studied the issue.

The panel, which convened in April, included a number of experts who were not emergency medicine specialists. Their report is to be released Monday.

The report strongly condemns a practice in which medical residents supplement their modest incomes by working part time at night in emergency rooms.

"Many 'moonlighters' lack training and adequate experience in any aspect of primary health care," the report said.

O.J. probe witness picks jail, cites threats to his life

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A witness who says his life is in danger if he testifies before a grand jury investigating O.J. Simpson's best friend was jailed for contempt Wednesday by a judge who told him he can talk or stay behind bars.

"You hold the keys to that jail cell," Superior Court Judge Stephen Czulegar told John M. Dunton.

The grand jury is investigating Al "A.C." Cowlings, who drove Simpson on a bizarre flight from police in a Ford Bronco that ended in the football hero's arrest June 17.

In a separate development, Simpson has agreed to give guardianship of his minor children to the parents of his slain ex-wife, according to court papers obtained by The Associated Press. If Simpson is acquitted he would have the right to seek the children's return.

Dunton's lawyer, Robert Rentzer, said his client will take his case to the California Supreme Court. He said Dunton is willing to remain in jail "as long as necessary" to save his life.

He could be held until next June, when the grand jury term expires.

Dunton and his lawyer have refused to say who Dunton fears or why.

Dunton, a 32-year-old ex-convict with a record for forgery, approached the district attorney's office with information abut the Simpson case, his lawyer said, and was promised anonymity.

According to various reports, he told prosecutors that he had secondhand information regarding others who might have been seen outside Nicole Brown Simpson's condominium the night she and friend Ronald Goldman were slain.

Simpson goes on trial in the slayings Sept. 26. His lawyers have argued that prosecutors are using the grand jury in the Cowlings case to gather information against Simpson. Prosecutors have denied that.

Rentzer said Dunton gave prosecutors "a great deal of information."

"He just didn't give them names. They promised him they would treat it with confidentiality," the lawyer said.

Court voids buffer zone at abortion clinic

■ Federal court rules zone around Buffalo clinic is too restrictive and thus violates constitutional rights of Project Rescue.

N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — A federal appeals court in Manhattan on Wednesday struck down as unconstitutional a court-approved buffer zone to prevent anti-abortion demonstrators from encroaching on an abortion clinic in Buffalo, N.Y.

The 2-to-1 ruling by the U.S. Court of Appeals for the 2nd Circuit comes two months after the U.S. Supreme Court approved a 36-foot sanctuary around a Florida clinic that had been besieged by opponents of abortion.

The appeals court based its decision not on broad legal principles, but on a determination that the Buffalo clinic had not presented sufficient evidence to justify a buffer zone similar to the one approved by the Supreme Court for an abortion clinic in Melbourne, Fla.

Constitutional law experts said Wednesday's decision strongly suggested that future court rulings on protests at abortion clinics would likely be narrowly based, predicated on the specific circumstances at each clinic.

The appeals court said that a 15-foot protective zone around the Buffalo GYN Women Services clinic, included in a sweeping federal injunction against abortion opponents, was too restrictive and thus violated the constitutional rights of Project Rescue, which has been leading demonstrations there.

The court upheld other provisions of the injunction, including measures that barred demonstrators from trespassing, making loud noise and impeding the flow of patients and staff.

In rejecting the buffer zone, the appeals court said that keeping protesters at least 15 feet away from the clinic "sweeps too broadly and burdens more of Project Rescue's constitutionally protected expression than is necessary to protect the government's significant interests in the safe performance of abortions, in public safety and in protecting all persons' constitutional rights."

The court also struck down as unconstitutional another provision in the Buffalo injunction that had barred anti-abortion counselors from approaching patients to try to talk them out of having an abortion.

The Supreme Court took a similar position in its decision in June in the Florida case.

A patient does not have to listen to someone trying to talk her out of an abortion, the court said, but she does not have the right to stop such advice being offered.

The opinion was written by Judge Thomas J. Meskill and supported by Judge Frank X. Altimari.

In a dissent, Judge James L. Oakes said the provisions that were struck down were "necessary to ensure the health and safety of the patients receiving abortions" and "only prevent the protesters from persistently badgering people at close range."

Government does flip-flop in reverse discrimination case

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — A white teacher laid off in favor of an equally qualified black teacher argued she was a victim of reverse discrimination, and the Justice Department under the Bush administration agreed.

The government helped Sharon Taxman sue and win $144,000 in back pay and damages in 1992.

But now the government has switched sides and is backing the Piscataway Board of Education in its appeal. The Clinton Justice Department contends the board had the right to retain Debra Williams for the sake of racial diversity.

Taxman's lawyer, Stephen E. Klausner, called the switch "unethical and reprehensible" and said Wednesday that he will fight it.

Deval L. Patrick, assistant attorney general for civil rights, said the government switched sides because the judgment in favor of Taxman was wrong.

Patrick said the case does not involve quotas, which the Clinton administration opposes, but affirmative action — "a different animal."

In a friend-of-the-court brief filed Tuesday with the 3rd U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Philadelphia, the Justice Department argued that workplace diversity can be taken into consideration in voluntary affirmative action plans.

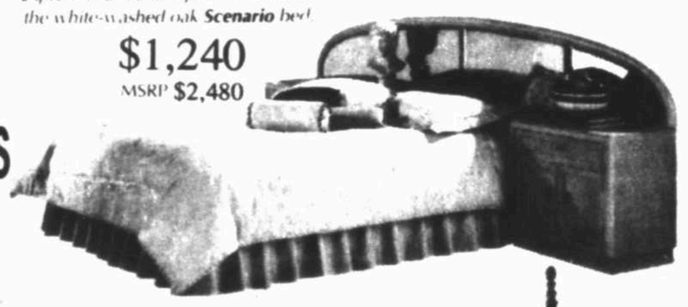

Klausner, however, complained.

New memorial in Washington to honor black Civil War soldiers

By Harry F. Rosenthal
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — In this city of monuments, 360 commemorate episodes in American history, a quarter of those honoring events and participants in the Civil War. But not one honors the 178,000 black soldiers who fought in that war.

Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt pointed that out on Wednesday as he took part in the groundbreaking of an African American Civil War Memorial in one of Washington's oldest black neighborhoods.

Not one, Babbitt said, "makes even a passing reference to the heroism and the role . . . of former slaves, the victims of centuries of oppression and injustice."

The United States Colored Troops came into being in 1863 after Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation, which stated that former slaves were to be received into the armed services.

The memorial will be on a plaza created by construction of an underground subway stop in the Shaw neighborhood, at 10th and U Street, N.W. The area is named after Col. Robert Gould Shaw, commander of the 54th Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, which figured in the movie "Glory."

"It marks the beginning of a new thrust of tourism beyond the monuments and memorials on the Mall," said Frank Smith Jr., a member of the District of Columbia city council who was the driving force behind the memorial project.

The memorial will be a semicircular three foot-high curved stone inner wall holding stainless steel plaques with the names of the black Union soldiers and the 7,000 white officers who led them. It was designed by architects Paul S. Devrouax Jr. and Edward D. Dunson Jr.

It was a collaborative effort between the District of Columbia, the National Park Service and the Metro transportation system.

This monument will be primarily a tourist attraction, Smith told about 400 people assembled under a tent at the site.

A Family Heritage Center, at a middle school across the street, will be established to educate the public about blacks' role in the Civil War. It will house a library and a computerized database.

Funeral is held for suspect, 11, slain by gang

CHICAGO (AP) — Robert Sandifer should have been starting sixth grade Wednesday, scampering across the schoolyard with other 11-year-olds, lugging a backpack or chafing in a new shirt.

Instead he was buried, a murder suspect who himself was shot to death when fellow gang members got to him before police could.

Nicknamed "Yummy" because he loved cookies, Robert was hunted by police for three days last week for allegedly firing a pistol into a cluster of people on Aug. 28. The shots killed a 14-year-old girl, Shavon Dean, 10 yards from the front door of her South Side home.

Robert's body was found in a dank railroad underpass. He was killed with two bullets to the head. Two brothers, ages 14 and 16, are charged with his killing, allegedly planned to curtail the police attention Robert drew.

Four hundred people crowded into the Youth Center Church of God in Christ, a converted movie theater, to say goodbye. Across town, on the playground of the school Robert attended, classmates reflected on his death.

"The only way to get out," 11-year-old Eric Norah said sadly, "is to die."

Short of 5 feet tall, not quite 70 pounds, Robert had 12 felony arrests and was prosecuted at least eight times in the past two years on charges including robbery, car theft, arson and burglary. Twice convicted, he received probation.

In the church, Robert's body lay in a small coffin, clothed in a tan suit and brown tie, a stuffed toy pig and teddy bear beside him.

As mourners streamed by, his grandmother, Jannie Fields, let out a piercing scream.

Nation's beaches yield mountain of trash in 3 hours

WASHINGTON (AP) — Volunteers scouring 4,500 miles of shoreline collected 7.3 million pieces of trash in three hours, illustrating that beaches and waterways continue to be polluted despite the heightened concern about protecting the environment.

A report Wednesday by the Center for Marine Conservation, based on items collected by 158,000 volunteers, said a broad array of debris — from empty soda cans to medical syringes — litters coastal America and the shores of its rivers and lakes.

Among the items collected in the cleanup campaign: 1.7 million cigarette butts, 344,502 pieces of glass, 203,330 straws, 333,996 bottles, 210,553 cans, 134,547 cups, 40,508 balloons, 30,326 light bulbs and fluorescent tubes, 10,166 syringes, 55,470 plastic trash bags and 6,636 condoms.

A volunteer in Louisiana found a $2 lottery ticket, and another one in Texas discovered a 5-pound bag of cocaine labeled "radioactive." A skeleton turned up on a Mississippi shoreline. Volunteers found everything from stripped vehicles to abandoned shopping carts.

The cleanup crews covered ocean beaches and inland shorelines in 32 states as well as Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands at various times last September and October. Each search lasted three hours.

"This report," said Roger McManus, president of the Center for Marine Conservation, "is not about trash, it's about people. People are the ones who pollute."

LOSS: Post-mortem pins blame for Clinton's defeat on delay

(From 1A)

there."

The House and Senate have barely a month before lawmakers break for elections, and the issue is what incremental changes Congress will make. And if a modest bill is passed, Clinton will have to decide whether to abandon his veto threat and sign the legislation.

Last year's delay "was an enormous advantage to us," said John J. Motley, vice president for government affairs for the National Federation of Independent Business, which rallied opposition against forced employer contributions.

As the Clinton administration worked on its plan, the health industry and business groups launched a $100 million-plus lobbying effort against the president's reforms — a campaign the White House blames for its troubles.

The administration also decided that health reform had to take a back seat to winning congressional approval of its budget. But Clinton's slim budget victory in August 1993 made health reform even harder.

The financial plan tapped $55 billion of savings from Medicare and Medicaid over five years to reduce the deficit and stiffened Congress' resistance to any additional tax increases.

And as the economy picked up, Americans' anxieties about losing their health insurance went down.

That made it tougher for Clinton and his allies to convince middle-class Americans that their health benefits were not safe. Fifteen percent of Americans — almost 39 million people — are uninsured, but 85 percent have coverage.

Back on Sept. 22, 1993, expectations were high for Clinton's health-reform speech to the nation. He unveiled a prototype of a health security card emblazoned with the seal of the United States and promised, "This card will guarantee you a comprehensive package of benefits that can never be taken away."

The health-care system, the president argued, "is badly broken and we need to fix it."

Polls showed overwhelming public support as Mrs. Clinton campaigned for health reform on Capitol Hill, delivering a whirlwind of congressional testimony to friendly committees. But other Clinton administration officials got a much frostier reception.

"Lurking in the background were genuine philosophical disagreements about what to do and major political obstacles," said Drew Altman, president of the Kaiser Family Foundation, a nonprofit policy group.

The private health insurance industry poured $12 million into its "Harry and Louise" ads that showed a middle-class couple voicing their fears about bureaucrats restricting health choices and rationing care.

Bill Gradison, president of the Health Insurance Association of America, said the ads resonated because they asked questions that already were on people's minds.

Ira C. Magaziner, the senior White House adviser who oversaw the preparation of Clinton's plan, said, "Never in the history of this country have modern technology and scare tactics combined to produce the degree and tone of misinformation that was spewed out so quickly about health care reform."

But Clinton's mandatory insurance-purchasing alliances were dead on arrival, reviled by Democrats and Republicans alike.

The drug industry was less confrontational but equally effective. Congress quickly scuttled Clinton's plan to create a committee to pressure companies to hold down prices of new, breakthrough drugs.

Bob Blendon, a Harvard School of Public Health expert on polling, said the erosion of support for the Clinton plan was "like water dripping on a stone."

Fifty-nine percent of Americans favored it in September, but only 43 percent by February, according to USA Today-CNN-Gallup surveys.

"They didn't make a very good political call about the environment they were in," Blendon said.

Republicans, led by Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole of Kansas, raised the question of whether there really was a health crisis. Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, also expressed doubt about whether the health system was in such dire straits.

Moynihan earlier had given the White House heartburn by calling Clinton's financing a "fantasy."

Clinton got a chance to relaunch his health initiative in his Jan. 25 State of the Union address. He emphasized that what he wanted was "guaranteed private insurance for every American," not a government takeover.

Then he took out a pen and threatened to veto any bill that failed to guarantee health insurance for everyone "that can never be taken away."

The bold gesture cheered Clinton's strongest supporters, but painted the president into a corner.

"It was a bad mistake," said Michael Bromberg, executive director of the Federation of American Health Systems, a group of for-profit hospitals. "It made it even more difficult for him to compromise."

A few weeks later, the Congressional Budget Office said the White House plan would increase the deficit by $74 billion over five years, not shrink it.

The Business Roundtable, a policy arm for top corporate executives, endorsed the less regulatory approach in a bipartisan managed competition bill by Rep. Jim Cooper, D-Tenn., and others.

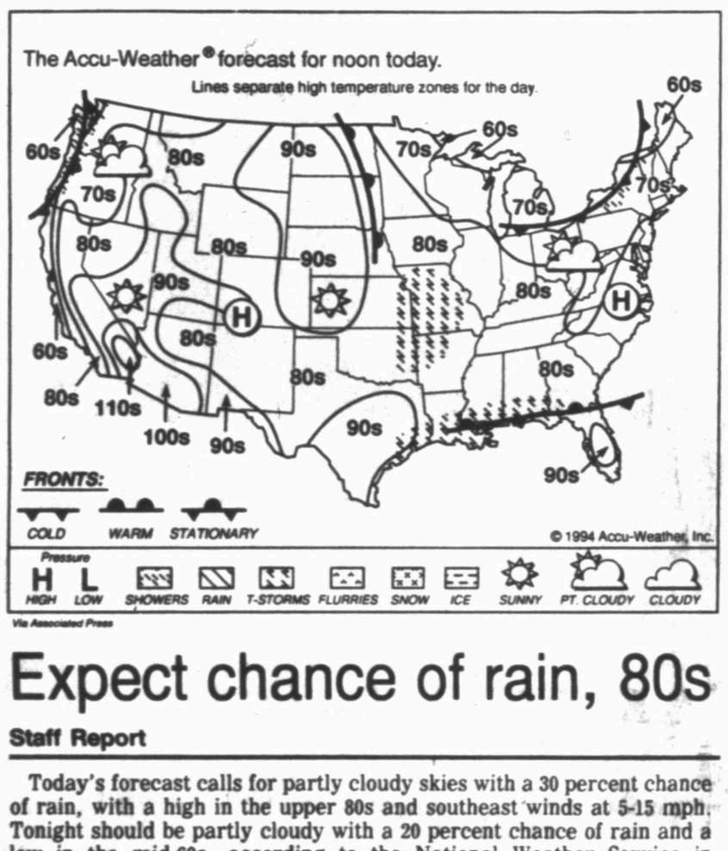

The U.S. Chamber of Commerce dropped its support of employers' and employees' sharing responsibility for health premiums. Even the American Medical Association retreated from an endorsement of making employers pay.

Ron Pollack, executive director of Families USA Foundation, an unabashed advocate of the White House approach, complained that while opponents kept up their "disciplined mantra of government, bureaucracy and taxes ... supporters would say, 'We're in favor of much of the plan, BUT,' and focus on their narrow concerns."

Clinton complained that every time he made a concession, the Republicans moved farther away. Dole and 23 other Republicans once had endorsed the idea of combining subsidies with a mandate on individuals to buy insurance by 2004, but they retreated from that.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., was indicted and forced to relinquish the chairmanship of the House Ways and Means Committee. Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., whose father introduced the first national health insurance bill 51 years ago, couldn't break the gridlock over employer mandates in his Energy and Commerce panel.

Expect chance of rain, 80s

Staff Report

Today's forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with a 30 percent chance of rain, with a high in the upper 80s and southeast winds at 5-15 mph. Tonight should be partly cloudy with a 20 percent chance of rain and a low in the mid-60s, according to the National Weather Service in Midland.

Friday should be partly cloudy with a high near 90.

After an overnight low of 68, Wednesday's high reached 87 compared to the record high for that date of 99 set in 1930. The record low was 55 set in 1957.

STATE

A nearly stationary front, which stretched across the southern part of Texas, provided the focus for shower and thunderstorm development Wednesday.

Scattered showers and thunderstorms were occurring along the coast and over parts of southeast and South Texas. Skies were mostly cloudy with temperatures ranging from 77 at Palacios to 98 at Del Rio.

The forecast calls for partly cloudy skies with widely scattered showers and thunderstorms over the Hill Country and Coastal Plains through today. Highs will be in the 90s with lows in the 70s.

Skies were cloudy over North Texas, where scattered showers and thunderstorms were reported over the west and central sections of the region. Temperatures ranged from 70 near Abilene to 93 at Waco.

Today's forecast for the region calls for mostly cloudy skies with scattered to numerous thunderstorms in the west and south and widely scattered thunderstorms east and north. Highs will be in the 80s and 90s with lows ranging from 63 to 70.

NATION

Mostly warm and dry weather stretched across much of the United States on Wednesday but wet, windy weather was headed for the Pacific Northwest.

A stalled storm system in the Gulf Coast caused scattered thunderstorms from Florida to Texas. One storm in Texas dumped more than an inch of rain in three hours near Lamesa.

Rainfall for the six-hour period ending at 7 a.m. CDT included 1.47 inches in Whiting Field Naval Air Station, Fla.; 1.13 inches in Abilene, Texas; and .66 of an inch in Pensacola, Fla.

The Associated Press contributed to this report.

ABORTION: Vatican maneuver delays debate

tance here — an already much-diluted section that deals with abortion. The Vatican insists that all references to abortion and other language that might imply that it is acceptable as a method of family planning be removed from the plan of action.

But most delegations, including the one representing the United States, expect the Vatican will refuse to sign the agreement, the same position it took at the population conferences in 1974 and 1984. Many delegates here believe that in the end the Vatican's team will have to step back and allow a consensus to carry the document, with reservations appended by the Holy See.

"Does the Vatican rule the world?" asked Egypt's population minister, Maher Mahran, speaking at a news conference shortly after Wednesday morning's discussion was derailed by new objections from a group of small nations, most of them Latin American. "We respect the Vatican. We respect the pope. But if they are not going to negotiate, why did they come?"

Several reasons have been suggested for the Vatican's action: Some believe it is still possible to force some changes in the language, while others say the Vatican merely wants to prolong the debate to draw attention to its objections and possibly generate more support. But this did not seem to be happening Wednesday.

The Vatican's willingness to delay an international forum in order to make a point on abortion has isolated it.

DOCTORS: Many have no emergency training

(From 1A)

25,000 jobs in emergency medicine are filled by doctors certified to provide emergency care. In many U.S. hospitals, doctors do not need such certification to work in the emergency room.

"When people ask if there's a doctor in the house, they have reason to expect that every physician can do the minimum to save a person's life in an emergency. This is not the case today," Dr. Lewis Goldfrank, one of the report's contributors, said in a statement.

He said a better question might be: "Is there a paramedic in the house?"

"When a young person finishes medical school, they might not know how to treat these things as well as a paramedic," Goldfrank, director of emergency medicine at Bellevue Hospital in New York City, said in a telephone interview.

Hospitals often hire part-time emergency room doctors to save money, said Dr. David Sklar, an emergency medicine specialist at the University of New Mexico and the president of the Society for Academic Emergency Medicine.

"If you get someone who's just done an internship, they're willing to work for whatever you pay them, and you get what you pay for," Sklar said.

William Erwin, a spokesman for the American Hospital Association, said, "Hospitals would of course prefer to have their emergency departments staffed by physicians who specialize in emergency care, but that's not always possible.

"Particularly in rural areas, hospitals are fortunate to attract enough physicians of any specialty to provide emergency care," he said.

Part of the problem, the report said, is the lack of adequately trained individuals. Fewer than 20 percent of American medical schools require courses in emergency medicine, the report said.

"There aren't that many people to go around now. That has to be understood," Bowles said. "One of our tasks was to implore the society and its political structure not to cut back" on training emergency medicine specialists.

The report called for a classification system that would give the public some idea what a given emergency room is equipped to handle.

"I think the public would be shocked if they knew how few physicians are competent to provide CPR," said Dr. Thomas Meikle, president of the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation of New York, which commissioned the report.

"It seems to me that being able to provide CPR and basic first aid and emergency service would be fundamental skills that any physician licensed to practice medicine should be able to provide."

PROBE: Grand jury investigates slaying

(From 1A)

neer who was national marketing director for Austin Semiconductor Inc., had been missing from her Round Rock home since June 27.

Ms. Anderson worked for Texas Instruments in Midland until she moved last year.

Fain — who participated in ground and aerial searches for Ms. Anderson — lived about a mile from Ms. Anderson's home. He worked in an Austin building-supply store, where Ms. Anderson and her two children, Daniel, 14, and Marlena, 12, met Fain last spring, Ken Anderson said.

Ms. Anderson's relationship with Fain was that of a "casual, slight acquaintance," the district attorney said.

Fain especially had befriended Ms. Anderson's son, who was visiting his mother and sister. Following the 1990 divorce of their parents, Daniel was placed in the custody of his father, Midland insurance executive Dan Anderson; Marlena was placed in custody of her mother.

The Williamson County grand jury's term has been extended for 90 days — until the end of November — to investigate the death of Ms. Anderson, Anderson said Wednesday.

"At this point, the (Round Rock) Police Department has interviewed dozens, if not a hundred, witnesses" in connection with Ms. Anderson's death, he said.

Her death has been ruled a homicide caused by trauma to the head.

"(Police) have sent more than 200 pieces of physical evidence to the DPS (Texas Department of Public Safety) crime lab" for analysis, Anderson said.

"In large part we are waiting for the crime lab to give us results, although there's still a lot of people who need to be talked to," Anderson said.

Shortly after Fain was arrested at his estranged wife's Austin apartment in connection with the death of Ms. Dumont, the district attorney suggested that Fain might be connected to Ms. Anderson's death. "We feel that there is not a killer on the loose," he said at the time.

Fain is being held in the Williamson County Jail in lieu of a $5 million bond.

"Hopefully, before too much longer, we will have enough evidence to talk to the grand jury some more," Anderson said Wednesday.

At the time of his arrest, Fain was on "mandatory supervision" in Williamson County after he had been sentenced to two years in prison for "false imprisonment" — kidnapping — according to a probable-cause murder affidavit signed by Round Rock Police Department Sgt. Mary Ryle.

DEBATE: Richards, Bush accept invitation

(From 1A)

England, spokeswoman for KERA, one of the debate's producers, said the gubernatorial candidates are scheduled to debate from 9 p.m. to 10 p.m.

A similar debate is planned that same evening for the two major U.S. Senate candidates. Democrat Richard Fisher has accepted and talks are continuing with Sen. Kay Bailey Hutchison, R-Texas, Ms. England said.

United We Stand America, the group founded by Ross Perot, announced Wednesday that it would coordinate a debate between Fisher and Hutchison Oct. 26 on the campus of the University of Houston.

Both candidates have agreed to participate in the forum, which will feature a single, as-yet unnamed moderator, said Bill Walker, United We Stand state director.

In other political developments Wednesday:

■ Richards' campaign charged that Bush's plan to overhaul juvenile justice laws would cost $1.4 billion and asked how the Republican would pay for it. "If Mr. Bush can't put some meat on the bone here and explain how he would fund his proposals, then all we have is a lot of words, some TV ads and a really slick brochure," said spokesman Chuck McDonald.

Bush called the Richards' cost estimate absurd. "They must be using the same accountant that was ... over there in Beaumont where they spent $380,000 a bed for a youth facility," he said. Bush said about $50 million would be needed for tents, temporary barracks and expanded facilities to house additional juvenile offenders.

■ Bush continued to criticize the state's new penal code. He said the law goes too easily — automatic probation — on some convicted of selling less than a gram of hard drugs. "Texans like me will be outraged when they find out what the new penal code does to our state," Bush said.

McDonald said the penal code rewrite was a two-year, bipartisan effort that involved law enforcement officials, teachers, legislators and others. "About the only person we never heard from was George W. Bush. He's a day late and a dollar short," McDonald said.

■ Tex Lezar, the Republican candidate for lieutenant governor, also criticized the penal code. He called expanded probation "hug-a-thug" and said it "will allow 43 percent of those criminals who would otherwise have been sent to prison to receive probation instead."

■ Fisher, the Democratic Senate hopeful, announced endorsements from several public employee unions, including the Texas Federation of Teachers and the International Police Union, and said they show widespread support for his candidacy. "These are the people who are on the front lines of public service. These are the people that do the job taxpayers pay for," he said.

■ Mrs. Hutchison picked up the endorsement of 140 retired military generals in San Antonio.

Appearing with former defense secretary Caspar Weinberger, the senator said the American military must be kept strong in these times of cutbacks. Both she and Weinberger also criticized the Clinton administration over a possible invasion of Haiti.

"I do not think it is in our interest to spill one drop of American blood in Haiti," Mrs. Hutchison said, to loud applause from the generals.

Deadly defoliant Agent Orange plagues 2nd generation in Vietnam

By Mort Rosenblum
Associated Press

HO CHI MINH CITY, Vietnam — Long after lush growth masked the scars of Agent Orange on the landscape, doctors here blame the deadly defoliant for a second-generation wave of cancers and birth defects.

Vietnamese specialists are seeking support from retired U.S. Adm. Elmo Zumwalt, who commanded naval forces during the Vietnam War.

"Many, many friends of mine die," said one of the specialists, Dr. Nguyen Thi Ngoc Phuong of Tu Du Hospital.

Zumwalt was among officers who ordered the spraying to deny cover to Vietnamese troops. He blames Agent Orange for the 1988 cancer death of his son, who served under his command, and for brain damage to his grandson.

He is expected to arrive Friday for a weeklong tour of Vietnam to assess what might be done to counter the aftereffects.

Phuong said surveys show that dioxin from Agent Orange lingering in body tissue affects young mothers as well as men exposed decades ago. She predicts a closer look would reveal dramatic proportions.

"We must carry out long-term studies, but we can't," she said. "After we concentrate on schools, housing, family planning, it costs too much for us."

Dr. Arnold Schecter, a dioxin specialist at the State University of New York at Binghamton who is coming to Vietnam with Zumwalt, declined to draw conclusions from studies done so far.

"We just don't know yet," he said. "We hope to convince the U.S. government to fund its own scientists to do dioxin research, in cooperation with the Vietnamese, for the profit of everyone."

Until 1971, U.S. planes sprayed 12 million gallons of Agent Orange, containing 374 pounds of dioxin. Researchers say dioxin can remain in humans for decades, triggering cancers after long dormant periods.

Its use in the war remains controversial, exposing U.S. commanders to charges of chemical warfare. Zumwalt said recently he would spray Agent Orange again if it was the only means of protecting his forces from jungle ambush.

After the war, impoverished and isolated Vietnamese officials did only sketchy research into contamination. They found many presumed victims had died undiagnosed in remote mountain areas.

At Tu Du Hospital, Phuong makes her point with visits to a grim ward where young women who were breastfed from mothers sprayed by Agent Orange are treated for cancers of the placenta during pregnancy.

Statistics show a sharp increase of these disorders — choriocarcenoma and molar pregnancies — among women in their early 20s, although Schecter cautions this has not been positively linked to dioxin.

Nearby, 50 deformed children play listlessly in a few rooms, their permanent home. Grotesque skull shapes, missing limbs and cleft palates all suggest Agent Orange.

In another wing, men are treated for cancers of the liver and lungs.

"This is a very serious problem, not only medical but also economic and political," said Dr. Le Cao Dai, in Hanoi, who heads a committee to examine effects of chemicals used during the war.

Some foreign donors have made small grants to pay for the costly process of dioxin screening, he said, but Vietnam has been able to spare only a few thousand dollars for research.

"The U.S. has spent millions and millions to do research on its veterans, who were here for a year and did not have this drop on their heads," Dai said. "A lot of Americans don't want to know."

U.S. scientists say that work in Vietnam has been limited because of a trade embargo lifted only in February. Zumwalt said he delayed his own visit until official barriers came down.

But now the issue is under fresh scrutiny.

U.S., Cuban talks break hints no fast end to crisis

NEW YORK (AP) — After a brief meeting Wednesday, the United States and Cuba temporarily suspended talks on stemming the Cuban refugee exodus, and Cuba's chief delegate flew back to Havana for consultations.

Negotiations are expected to resume in New York, possibly Friday.

The delay in the talks, which began one week ago, indicates there will be no quick or easy solution to the refugee crisis that has bedeviled the United States but strengthened Cuba's bargaining position.

U.S. officials want to end the flow of more than 30,000 Cubans who have fled their island since early August. But diplomats say Cuba may be trying to prolong the talks to pressure the United States into tackling U.S.-Cuban relations and the devastating U.S. economic embargo against Cuba.

David Johnson, spokesman for the U.S. delgation, said he would "not ascribe any particular significance" to Cuban delegation chief Ricardo Alarcon's departure for Havana on Wednesday. The U.S. delegation was returning to Washington, also for consultations.

In Washington, Secretary of State Warren Christopher characterized the talks as "useful and businesslike."

Wednesday's session, which broke up after 45 minutes, focused on a Cuban counterproposal to the U.S. offer to expand legal immigration from Cuba to at least 20,000 people a year in return for Havana's promise to halt the exodus. Only 2,700 Cubans were admitted last year.

An administration official in Washington said the proposal submitted by the Cuban delegation was a "significant improvement" over an earlier one.

But, the official, speaking on condition of anonymity, said, "There are still things in there that are not going to work."

Cuba has said the refugees are fleeing for economic reasons and an agreement must include discussion of the 32-year U.S. economic embargo of the island.

Best-selling author James Clavell dies

LONDON (AP) — James Clavell, the screenwriter and best-selling author of the Far-Eastern sagas "Shogun" and "Tai-Pan," has died at age 69, his publisher said Wednesday.

Clavell died in Switzerland on Tuesday after suffering a stroke over the weekend, said Eric Major, of the Hodder and Stoughton publishing house in London.

The Australian-born Clavell, who lived in Switzerland, was a screenwriter of popular movies, such as the first version of "The Fly," "The Great Escape," and "To Sir With Love."

But it was as the author of long, intricately plotted novels filled with the color of the Far East that he became an international success.

Millions of readers worldwide were drawn into the history and flavor of Japan, China, Macao, Hong Kong, and eventually Iran with Clavell's meticulously researched stories.

The adaptation of "Shogun" and "Noble House" into television mini-series further multiplied his audience.

Clavell's latest novel, "Gai-Jin," set in 19th-century Japan, was published last year and quickly became a bestseller.

"He was one of the great epic storytellers of our age — a man who was deeply imbued in tradition, and also enormous fun to work with," said Major.

Invasion of Haiti can't be supported

As U.S. officials inch ever closer to a decision to invade Haiti, there is every reason for President Clinton to make clear to the American public his justification for such military involvement.

Ostensibly, Clinton's reasoning would center around the military regime that still holds power in the island nation, but would that not set a dangerous precedent for the United States? After such an invasion, would not the United States be expected to step in every time a military regime grabbed power from a duly-elected government? To this point, Clinton has not explained what U.S. interests in Haiti would compel an invasion that could well be expected to result in loss of American lives. With that result a definite possibility in the event of an invasion and with the mood of the American people uncertain at this point, Clinton will be playing with political fire if he determines to go ahead with an invasion.

There are other alternatives that are certainly worth administration consideration:

■ Clinton could work to negotiate an acceptable resolution to the Haitian situation. The newly formed National Committee on Mediation would be a good place to begin. The committee, comprised of Haitian business, academic, and political leaders and strongly supported by the democratically elected Chamber of Deputies, could be brought into the plan. Clinton also could appoint a bipartisan delegation to meet with the committee and determine areas of potential compromise that will allow for the installation of a democratically elected president and dismissal of the military junta.

■ The president certainly should lift the economic embargo on Haiti. Most of the refugees fleeing Haiti are doing so because the embargo has wreaked havoc with Haiti's economy.

■ Clinton could also do absolutely nothing, although that might be the least attractive of the options.

Haiti's problems are serious and the plight of the Haitian people heartrending, but the United States should not make a bad situation worse by launching an ill-advised and politically unpopular military invasion.

ANOTHER VIEW

India's dirty little war stifles human rights

A relentless, deadly struggle goes on and on in India's mainly Muslim state of Kashmir, where New Delhi is trying to crush forces seeking independence or union with Pakistan. The violence comes from both sides, but India's obdurate insistence on resolving a political problem by force has increasingly enmeshed it in a campaign of lawless state terrorism. The ugly results are documented in a new study by Human Rights Watch/Asia.

Regrettably, Washington, instead of raising its voice to defend human rights, has lowered it in an effort to improve commercial and diplomatic ties. The U.S. may have little power to deter India from repression. But the Clinton administration should assert American disapproval more forthrightly.

Kashmir's political status has been disputed almost since the subcontinent was partitioned in 1947. A local Muslim uprising drew armed support from Pakistan. The Hindu maharajah then called in Indian troops who recaptured most of his lost territory. The two countries have confronted each other over tense cease-fire lines ever since. Meanwhile, on the Indian side, a promised plebiscite was never held and the state was formally incorporated into India in 1954. Separatist agitation continued on and off, flaring again into open conflict in 1989.

Some pro-Pakistani militant groups have resorted to terrorist deeds like kidnapping, assassination, and extortion and even to common crime. No political grievance can justify such acts.

But Human Rights Watch/Asia reports that Indian forces, which are obliged to follow higher standards, have also resorted to reprisal killings and burning down villages. They are also said to be executing many suspects without trial; 200 in the first half of this year and 50 in one month alone, according to local human rights groups. There are also many reports of torture and "disappearances," two other common features of state terrorism.

India insists it has prosecuted some responsible for these crimes, but has offered no information about such prosecutions. The State Department, in its latest annual human rights report, said "there was little evidence that the responsible officials received appropriate punishment."

Until this year, American officials were equally candid in their public statements. But more recently, after New Delhi warned that continued human rights criticism could damage relations, the Clinton administration has gone silent on the subject. Meanwhile, India has aggressively courted help from the likes of China and Iran to block condemnation by the U.N. Human Rights Commission.

The administration needs to find a firm and consistent voice on human rights, whether in powerful countries like India and China or puny ones like Haiti and Cuba. Selective denunciations carry no moral authority. Criticizing the weak but not the strong is bullying, not leadership.

Meanwhile India, which captured the world's moral imagination with Gandhi's non-violent struggle for independence, is now in the unflattering company of countries that use deadly force to keep their unhappy citizens in line.

GEORGE WILL

Clinton's downdraft hurts incumbent

PHILADELPHIA — Three Septembers ago Harris Wofford was happily becoming a leading indicator of political upheaval. Today he is trying not to be one.

Will

In May 1991, he was appointed to the U.S. Senate seat of the late John Heinz. That November, in a special election, Wofford, a practicing liberal and little-known former college president, soared from far behind to defeat Richard Thornburgh, former governor and former Bush administration attorney general. Wofford's win helped catapult his campaign manager, James Carville, to the cockpit of Bill Clinton's campaign, which stressed health-care reform in part because Wofford had done well by saying that if every criminal has a right to a lawyer, every American has a right to a doctor.

But that slogan was less important to Wofford's win than the recession, weariness with George Bush and the fact that Thornburgh boasted of being at home in Washington's corridors of power — a capsule description of what most Americans deplore. And today Wofford is ranked by the non-partisan Rothenberg Political Report as "the most endangered incumbent" senator this year. The cause, together with Clinton, of this vulnerability is Rick Santorum, 36, a two-term Republican congressman from Pittsburgh.

Politically, Pennsylvania is three states. The southwest corner, 12 counties in the Pittsburgh media market, has almost half a million more registered Democrats than Republicans, but Santorum expects to win there where he won his seat by defeating a seven-term Democrat. In 1992 he was re-elected with 61 percent of the vote in a district that by then had 71 percent Democratic registration.

Pennsylvania's southeast corner is Philadelphia and its collar counties. Santorum thinks he can win the election just getting the registered Republicans in this corner, but he expects to do better, appealing particularly to urban Democrats who are angry about the decline of public schools and favor, as he does, school choice programs.

Pennsylvania's third part is the "T," the central vertical strip and the northern horizontal strip. Santorum says he is receiving an explosion of support there because of his vote against the crime bill with its ban on assault weapons.

The state may call to mind images of molten steel and coke smoke but agriculture is the largest business and the state has the nation's largest rural population. Lots of farmers, and city people, too, are hunters. Santorum says that on opening day of deer season a million hunters take to the woods (which must then be as noisy and dangerous as the third day at Gettysburg).

Gun-toting, deer-slaying Pennsylvanians are not toting assault weapons. But, Santorum says, they know that this is the first time since 1934 (machine guns) the government has banned a category of weapons, and they are sure this — and the Clinton health-care bill, and much else — is part of a pattern of government assaults on personal liberty.

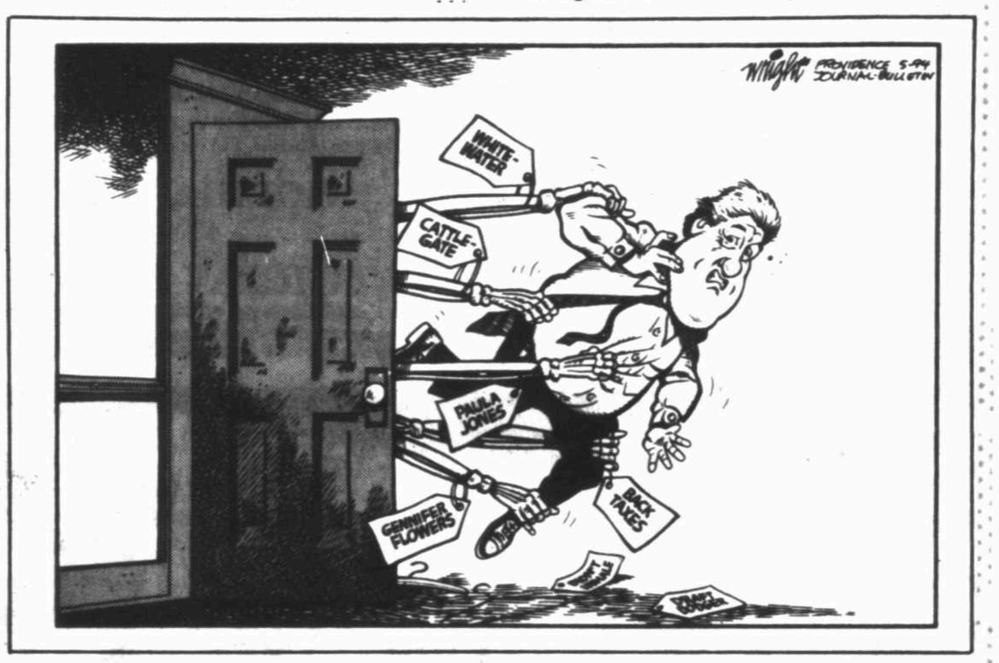

That is Santorum's theme, which he repeatedly introduces with the words of an 18th century Philadelphian, name of Franklin: "They that can give up essential liberty to obtain a little temporary safety deserve neither liberty nor safety." Clinton, says Santorum, claims his economic policies will provide "economic security" and "employment security," and his crime bill provides "personal security," and his health bill "health security." But the proper tone of American life was set across the street from Santorum's campaign headquarters in this city, in Independence Hall, 218 years ago, when the signers of the Declaration of Independence put all security at risk for freedom.

Wofford, 68, bears the banner of traditional liberalism, so the issues are clearly drawn. But it is the Clinton downdraft that may be decisive.

In a national survey of 1,000 registered voters, Frank Luntz, a Republican pollster, has found that only 29 percent answer "yes" to the question "Is Bill Clinton doing well enough as president to deserve four more years?" Even among those who voted for Clinton only 56 percent say "yes"; among self-identified Democrats, only 51 percent.

Three years ago Wofford rose as his opponent plummeted in Bush's downdraft. Today Santorum knows how Wofford felt.

MIKE ROYKO

Teens want clothes to show what they aren't

There are many ways to measure the economic prosperity of a society: gross national product, manufacturing, growth, exports and so on.

But an entirely new measure has been developed by Dr. I.M. Kookie, the renowned expert on lots of stuff.

Royko

At a recent meeting of the Economics Club of Milwaukee Avenue, Dr. Kookie discussed his finding.

"I was idly flipping through a catalog for a clothing company," he said. "It was called J. Crew, which my wife told me was a fashionable kind of outfit.

"I came to a page where they showed bluejeans, the traditional denim pants. The pants came in three basic styles.

"First, there was a spanking new pair of bluejeans, wrinkle-free and neatly pressed. They cost $34.

"Next, there was a pair that was already faded and old looking. These cost $38.

"And finally, there was a pair that was faded and old looking and it also had a hole in the knee, kind of a frayed slash. And these cost $44.

"Then I flipped to another page, where they sold flannel and denim shirts. And the most expensive ones were faded and had frayed collars.

"I am not the kind of person who is on the cutting edge of fashion, so I found it surprising that a pair of old, beat-up pants with a hole in the knee would cost more than a pair of fine new ones.

"Or that the kind of shirt that an honest working man used to wear would cost so much because it looks frayed and worn out.

"So I did some research on this, and I discovered that this is not something new in the strange world of fashion.

"I am told that it started with very young people of the upper-middle class, which is not surprising, since they are known to be dimwitted and for taking great pride in their sad mental condition.

"It seems that some of their screeching cultural icons who are on MTV wore clothes with holes that made them look like bums and poor urchins, and this became very popular among young people. It is fortunate for the rest of society that none of the stars of MTV wear diapers with doo-doo or we would have a real sanitation crisis on our hands.

"My research also showed that in most prosperous suburban communities, the wearing of neat, new-looking clothes is considered, to use a French phrase, dee-classy. That means it does not have class.

"The goal is to look like a hard-working person or a homeless person, but without having to actually do any hard work or sleep on a grate.

"So now we have the sons and daughters of doctors, lawyers and business tycoons who look like they have just finished a hard day of putting up steel girders, when the truth is that they have just carefully dressed for an evening at the Hard Rock Cafe.

"I have documented evidence of a genuine old bag lady taking pity on a rumpled wretch she saw on the street and offering to share her meager possessions, only to discover that he was a graduate student in the school of business at Northwestern University. Sly lad that he was, he accepted her offer of help, took a set of her long underwear, and was the fashion hit at his fraternity's next shindig.

"This is known as making a fashion statement. What this fashion statement says is: 'Hey, look at me, I'm 25 years old and I am still playing show and tell.'

"All through the prosperous communities of America, old clothing is in great demand. Outer wear must look tattered and torn. Many young people rush from resale shop to resale shop, hoping to find the ideal knee-hole or broken zipper fly.

"But at the same time, in genuine working-class communities, the demand remains for new garments. To offer a parent a trouser with a hole in the knee is to insult and seek a punch in the chops.

"So we have a strange coming together. The young and prosperous of our society want to look poor and hard-working, while the working class wants to look prosperous. This explains why so many people of modest means try to dress like professional golfers.

"And so I have developed my Theory of Reverse Prosperity. It holds that a society is in great shape when its most prosperous young people can afford to spend extra money to look like they are downtrodden.

Island becomes 'fatted calf' of fund-raising

MARTHA'S VINEYARD — One of the down sides of Martha's Vineyard getting so much publicity is that everyone is under the impression this island is loaded and ripe for political fund-raisers.

Buchwald

The politicians now call it "Martha's Eldorado."

I realized how bad it had gotten when I received a call from Bladings Landing. "I'm giving a cocktail party for Mugsy Krewpshaw who's running for governor of Hawaii. We'll have hot hors d'oeuvres and a free clam bar. Since you live on the island it will only cost you $1,000, unless you want to shake Mugsy's hand. That will cost another $500."

"I know this is a silly question, but why would someone who lives on Martha's Vineyard care who gets elected in Hawaii?" I asked.

"Because you live on an island, and everyone must pay attention to the politics of other islands around the world."

"When is it?"

"Wednesday night."

"I can't come, I'm going to a clambake for Katherine Bannetti, who is running for senator from Oregon," I said regretfully.

"Why are you doing that?"

"Because the Lundenfellers are giving it, and I am hoping to get in the Felix Neck golf club. Lundenfeller, who is on the board of Felix Neck, indicated I had a much better chance of getting in if I gave $1,500 to Katherine."

"Go to both."

"It's not just the Lundenfeller's blast. The Renwicks want me to come to a square dance for Edsel Cowbelt who is running for district attorney in Denver. They're charging $1,000 to get in and $1,500 extra if you want to dance with Cowbelt's wife. Frankly I'm getting a little tired of all these political fish fries. Why can't we enjoy our vacations on this island like everyone else?"

"No one says you have to come to the party. Just send us a check for $1,000 and we'll mark you present. Martha's Vineyard has now become the fatted calf of fund-raising, replacing Southampton and Malibu Beach."

"How do you know we have so much money?"

"Princess Diana doesn't vacation with poor people. I'll make a deal with you. If you give me a check for $750 we'll take your picture with the candidate, which is suitable for framing and can be hung in your boat house or your guest room on the Vineyard."

"I would probably agree to the proposal, but just this morning I heard from Sen. Dogwood's people and they want me to attend a midnight sail to raise money for his defense fund. He's accused of stealing tip money from the Senate Cloakroom, so it's a good cause."

I passed on the Hawaii bash — but it didn't matter because, as soon I hung up, the phone rang. It was Iris Caplan, who wanted to make sure I was coming to a fund-raiser for Congressman Doggerel of Florida. She promised he would give a private briefing on his plan to clean up the water in the Everglades.

Marines begin exercise amid warnings to Haiti

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — U.S. Marines assigned to a potential Haiti invasion force began training Wednesday on a Puerto Rican island amid new talk in Washington of a U.S.-led intervention in Haiti.

In all, 1,800 Marines are practicing to evacuate the estimated 3,500 American civilians in Haiti, said Lt. Elizabeth Jones, spokeswoman for the Roosevelt Roads Naval Station in Puerto Rico.

Secretary of State Warren Christopher warned that Haiti's military leaders must step down voluntarily or be forced out by a U.S.-led invasion.

"One way or the other, the de facto government is going to be leaving," Christopher told reporters in Washington on Wednesday. "Their days are definitely numbered."

In Haiti, a key supporter of the military had his own warning for the United States. The Haitian senator said Haitians will join together to fight U.S. troops.

"President Clinton must realize that an intervention will not be an invasion of army headquarters but of the entire country," Sen. Thomas Eddy Dupiton told The Associated Press in Port-au-Prince, the Haitian capital.

The Marines have been deployed on two U.S. combat ships in waters off Haiti since mid-August.

Jones declined to say how long the training exercises on the small island of Vieques will last or what will be involved.

In similar five-day exercises on Vieques in late July, nearly 1,000 Marines and Navy SEALs splashed ashore in amphibious landing craft and practiced firing with grenade launchers, rifles and machine guns.

The training was supposed to intimidate Haiti's military rulers and break the monotony of weeks at sea for the Marines.

The Marines and sailors were replaced in mid-August by the current detachment, assigned to the USS Wasp and the USS Nashville, Jones said. The two ships are carrying 1,800 Marines and 1,425 sailors, she said. The Wasp is the world's largest amphibious assault ship.

The Clinton administration in recent days has been more overt in alluding to an invasion to dislodge Haiti's military leaders, who ousted elected President Jean-Bertrand Aristide in a coup three years ago. Military intervention has broad opposition among Republicans in Congress.

Despite doubts, Britain cuts back Belfast security

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Despite continuing doubts that the Irish Republican Army has laid down arms forever, Britain said Wednesday it is relaxing security in Northern Ireland.

On the seventh day of the IRA cease-fire, British Prime Minister John Major said, "Gradually, it is being made a little clearer that perhaps this is not just a temporary cease-fire."

"But," he added, "it isn't clear yet."

In Shannon, Ireland, Vice President Al Gore met with Irish Prime Minister Albert Reynolds and then indicated he accepted Reynolds' judgment that the IRA's 24-year war against British rule in Northern Ireland was over.

Gore also urged Protestant unionists in Northern Ireland to trust Reynolds in his effort to work out a peaceful solution to the province's sectarian strife.

"He is a man of his word, totally and absolutely. And I would encourage anyone to make a decision on participation on that basis," Gore said.

In launching a new effort to find a peaceful solution, Reynolds and Major pledged last December that they would not implement any settlement unless it was acceptable to a majority of Northern Ireland's people.

Once Major is satisfied that the IRA cease-fire is permanent, Britain has promised to meet with the guerrillas' political allies in the Sinn Fein party to discuss terms for joining all-party negotiations.

Britain's top official in the province, Sir Patrick Mayhew, confirmed Wednesday that security has relaxed. News reports have said that some vehicle checkpoints have been abandoned.

Moscow explosion kills as many as 10

MOSCOW (AP) — An explosion shattered a police station Wednesday night, and conflicting accounts said as many as 10 people were killed and 27 injured.

Officials said workers apparently left the site 10 minutes before the blast and might have forgotten a burning cigarette inside. But they did not rule out that the explosion resulted from a criminal attack.

The Interfax news agency said the blast occurred in a basement area used to store cans of paint and other materials. It said a district housing maintenance service shared the building with the passport office of police station No. 44.

Igor Nadezhdin, spokesman for Moscow's municipal medical department, said five bodies had been recovered so far, and rescue teams were searching for other victims in the rubble of the two-story building.

The official count was at least 10 dead and 21 injured.

But Interfax reported a different casualty toll of six dead and 27 injured, five of them children.

Murder trial gets green light

Defense attorneys try to shift suspicion to Alabama inmate

■ Michael Blair, who is charged in the kidnap and murder of a 7-year-old Dallas girl, goes to trial Monday in Midland.

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

DALLAS (AP) — Defense lawyers for a man accused of killing a 7-year-old North Dallas girl have interviewed an Alabama prison inmate who they say is a more likely suspect.

Lawyers for Michael Blair on Tuesday talked with the Alabama inmate, hoping to tie him to the murder of Ashley Estell.

The child was abducted from a Plano park during a soccer tournament on Sept. 4, 1993. Police found her body the next day on a dirt road six miles away.

According to court documents, the inmate, who has used several aliases and is a past sex offender, was working as a soccer official the day Ashley disappeared.

"He gave police conflicting statements as to where he was that particular time," said defense attorney Donald McDermitt.

Blair, who has spurned offers for a plea bargain, has said he is innocent.

Plano attorneys and District Judge Nathan White Jr. have determined the change-of-venue trial of a man charged with the kidnapping and killing of a 7-year-old north Dallas girl will begin at 1:30 p.m. Monday at the Midland County Courthouse.

Officials thought the trial might be postponed until Tuesday or Wednesday, but Collin County officials are ready to begin hearing testimony for the prosecution.

Jury selection for the trial was completed Friday after two weeks of attorneys' examinations of more than 200 potential jurors.

The capital-murder trial is expected to last as long as four weeks.

The defendant, Michael Blair, is charged in the Sept. 4, 1993, kidnapping and strangulation of 7-year-old Ashley Nicole Estell of north Dallas.

Ashley was taken from a Plano park while she and her parents were watch-

Group honors Bonilla for big deficit cutting

By Gary Shanks
Staff Writer

U.S. Rep. Henry Bonilla, R-Texas, is proud that the National Taxpayers Union — a non-partisan group working to reduce federal spending — has recognized him as a "deficit cutter."

The non-profit, 250,000-member group recognized Bonilla for having voted for more spending cuts than any other legislator from South or West Texas, according to Allison Broumley Griffin of Bonilla's Washington, D.C., office.

"Every time I travel around the 23rd District, at every town meeting, the message from my constituents is clear — cut spending first. People shouldn't have to pay higher taxes to reduce the deficit; Congress should control its spending habits and make the tough choices to balance the budget," Bonilla said.

According to the NTU, Bonilla voted to cut spending by more than $23 billion during his first term in office.

One of the few spending measures Bonilla voted for was the now-defunct superconducting super collider, which would have brought $11 billion in jobs and technology to the state, according to the October 1993 Congressional Quarterly.

Democratic challenger Rolando Rios of San Antonio takes Bonilla to task, however, for making "irresponsible cuts" in federal spending.

Of the NTU survey, Rios cautioned against placing faith in groups that represent "special interests."

Regarding Bonilla's voting record, Rios said, "He has cast what I think are some very irresponsible votes."

Rios contends Bonilla has voted to reduce veterans' benefits, increase rural electric rates and to cut earned income tax credits that benefit middle-class families.

"This is just another example of how Bonilla votes against working fami-

Players from Midland and Odessa to compete at U.S. Tennis Association's national tournament Nov. 18-20 in Tucson.

Eight Midland and Odessa residents have the chance to bring home a national trophy as they look ahead to the U.S. Tennis Association's national tournament in Tuscon, Ariz.

The team recently beat out five other teams from around the state at the BMW/TTA Mixed Doubles Texas Sectional Championship in Conroe and earned the chance to play at the national level on Nov. 18-20.

Midlanders Jeane Hightower, Paula Hollar and Shane Williford and Odessans Betty Fredrickson-Sorrells, Aaron Layman, Greg Groseclose, Bill Mills and Karin Carlson formed the team this spring with the goal of making it to the national tournament.

"We all play at the Midlander," Ms. Hightower said. "We are all good friends. We are very competitive and all play about on the same level. Our goal when we formed the team was to advance through to the national tournament. That has been our main thrust the past five or six months."

The eight players, who range in age from 23 to 60, first competed in a qualifying regional round in Lubbock in August.

Later the same month, the group played in the Conroe tournament, where they beat teams from College Station, San Antonio, Houston, Fort

Runners to kick off Septemberfest with five-kilometer race Saturday

By Michael Kashgarian
Staff Writer

Midland runners are gearing up for this Saturday's five-kilometer race, which marks the start of Septemberfest.

"In the past, historically, it's been the largest race in Midland," said Andra Chamberlin, co-founder of the Permian Basin Road Runners Club Inc.

With the exception of last year, the Septemberfest run has been held annually since the mid-1980s.

In the past, the event has consisted of a 10-K race and a two-mile race. Since the Permian Basin Road Runners Club took over as host, the race has been shortened to 5 K due largely to the lingering summer heat during early September.

This year's race begins at L Street by Haley Park and proceeds east on Holloway Avenue to F Street. The route will continue north up F Street to Cuthbert Avenue, loop around Hill Park, west on Storey Avenue, south on K Street and back east on Kansas Avenue. The runners will return to F Street and follow their tracks back to Haley Park.

"It's a very scenic course and it's a very fast course," Ms. Chamberlin said.

The race begins 8:30 a.m. Saturday.

"There are age groups from 12 and under to 70 and over," said David Ham, manager of Peyton's Bikes.

Runners are separated into five-year age groups with awards for first, second and third place and overall male and female and overall master — over 40 years old — male and female.

For those not into running, a 5 K Fitness Walk will be held at the same time

ED TODD

Giving sincere thanks might preserve all life forms

Why do people kill that which they admire?

They do, you know.

People are funny, peculiar, that way.

Todd

But it is natural, I suppose, to kill for sport and for food, clothing and shelter, particularly since man has claimed dominion over all things, even that which he cannot control.

Mankind claims the sunrises and the sunsets, admires them, and lets them be.

Ah, do we not admire the swiftly running deer, the graceful big cats, the sly foxes and the flight of game birds?

We do. They are good.

And we, in our own way, admire the skill, the engineering, the survivability of the ant, the yellow jacket, the dirt dauber, the spider and the sparrow. Yet, we, often out of fear, convenience and annoyance, kill them, for they invade our territory.

Indeed!

I dare not now make an argument for killing or not killing fellow creatures — for shortening their lifespans in the service of mankind's need for food, clothing, shelter and oftentimes, for money and entertainment. Sometimes in the wilds, killing is for survival's sake.

Each time we sit down for a hearty, meaty meal of fish, fowl or beast, we are sanctioning the early death of creatures that we often admire for their singular qualities, lifestyles and abilities.

For instance, there are no better aviators than our friends the birds.

In our casual investigations and scientific studies, we are fascinated by the histories and life cycles of all creatures: crawfish, lobster, shrimp, salmon, trout, bass, cod, whale, shark, ant, bugs big and small, wild turkey, dove, quail, deer, owl, hawk, eagle, raven, deer, buffalo, calf, cow, bull, lamb, goat, rabbit, coyote, lion, fox, beetle, butterfly, praying mantis, lady bug, song-bird and hummingbird.

Each has its niche.

The wonders of life amaze those who appreciate all living things.

It is heartening to read and hear of tales of old hunters, such as the American Indians, who gave thanks to the Great Spirit for life and for their quarry, which they hunted for food, clothing and shelter.

TRIAL: Girl vanishes while attending soccer match ing her brother play in a soccer tournament.

(From 1B)

Blair was arrested 10 days after Ashley's body was found. He has been jailed ever since in lieu of $1 million bond.

The killing generated an abundance of public concern, resulting in White's decision to move the trial to Midland. Concern also mounted over Blair's release from prison. This public concern sparked an internal investigation by the Texas Department of Criminal Justice (TDCJ) into the circumstances surrounding Blair's parole.

Blair had been imprisoned beginning Oct. 28, 1988, on a 10-year sentence for burglary of a habitation and indecency with a child; he was paroled in April 1990, according to investigators' findings. Blair was arrested on murder charges on Sept. 15, 1993.

After the investigators' report was completed, Texas Attorney General Dan Morales filed an opinion that the internal report was public information and the document was then released.

Disclosed in the document are a multitude of findings related to Blair's parole that investigators found significant.

Among these are:

■ At the time of Blair's parole, the TDCJ and pardons and paroles division were in the midst of a tremendous period of change, due to the merging of those two agencies.

■ The indecency with a child offense was not entered into various computer databases and was subsequently unknown to those handling Blair's case.

■ A TDCJ sociologist who designs institutional programs was unaware of the child sexual offense.

■ If they had been aware of details of the indecency with a child offense, parole commissioners said they would have ruled differently on Blair's case.

■ Due to the absence of any documentation pertaining to Blair's sexual offense, the Dallas parole staff did not place Blair on the sex offender program after his release in the Dallas area.

■ Between his release and arrest on murder charges, a Richardson police officer saw Blair crouching in front of a business. Blair claimed to have been trying to retrieve an envelope he slipped under the door. He later admitted he was trying to get the envelope out to see if it had money in it. These charges were later dropped and Blair's parole officer recommended Blair be allowed to continue on parole.

RUN: Children may take part on the same course. There will be awards for the top female and male walkers.

And for youngsters, there will be a non-competitive 1 K Children's Fun Run, open to those 12 years and under. The children's run begins at 9:15 a.m.

"It's strictly a fun run," Ms. Chamberlin said. Parents are encouraged to run with their children.

To take part in the 5 K Road Race, 5 K Fitness Walk and the 1 K Children's Fun Run, there is a $15 registration fee. All proceeds will benefit the Museum of the Southwest.

In addition to entering the event, participants will receive a T-shirt designed by local artist jo duFo.

"And everyone's race number gets them in to Septemberfest," Ms. Chamberlin said.

The 25th Septemberfest — Saturday and Sunday — includes 68 artist booths, food booths, performers, children's activities and special shows such as the Laser Light Show.

Organizers expect a good turnout for the runs.

As of late Tuesday, 110 people had registered for the race. Generally, about two-thirds of total runners pre-register, Ms. Chamberlin said.

Participants can pre-register at Peyton's Bikes, 3327 Wadley Ave. For more information, call the bike shop at 699-1718.

Runners also can register on the day of the race between 7 a.m. and 8 a.m.

People are asked to refrain from bringing in-line skates, baby joggers and headsets because of insurance liabilities.

Sponsors of the race are Jack Sherman Chevrolet, Texas Commerce Bank, ARCO, Costal Management Corp., ClayDesta Corp., KNFM and NewsWest 9.

lies," Rios said.

In the survey, NTU based its ratings on votes cast in the House from January 1993 to June 1994. Lawmakers were ranked by subtracting the amount of cuts they voted for from the spending increases they voted for, Ms. Griffin said.

"Washington needs a strong dose of reality," Bonilla said. "When most Americans don't have enough money to buy everything they want they have to cut back and reduce their spending," he said.

In ranking members of Congress by their votes to spend additional funds, — with No. 1 being the highest spending legislator — Bonilla ranked 369 out of a possible 432," said an NTU spokeswoman. This indicates only 63 legislators voted for more cuts and against more spending than Bonilla.

The anti-tax group spokeswoman said, "369 is very good."

Bonilla said the favorable rating by the NTU is an affirmation of his efforts to represent "the wishes of American families and business owners."

CONNECT: Lawyers point to Alabama man

(From 1B)

Defense lawyers plan to show that Blair was at home at the time of Ashley's kidnapping. They want the Alabama inmate to testify.

Assistant District Attorney J. Bryan Clayton called the inmate a "nonfactor in the case."

Testimony is scheduled to begin Monday in Midland. Attorneys have spent two weeks selecting a jury of seven women and five men.

The trial was moved to West Texas because of intense pretrial publicity.

COURTSIDE: Group has 9 rating on road to Tucson

Worth and Corpus Christi in a round-robin competition.

"There were three courts of mixed doubles with three matches each," said Ms. Fredrickson-Sorrells, the team's captain. "It was best two out of three."

Going into the Tuscon competition, the group has a national rating of 9.0, which is the highest amateur division.

"If we win at the national tournament, then we can't compete as the same team next year," Ms. Hightower said. "The same team won't be intact because the USTA will not allow players who have advanced so far in the ratings to play together."

In order to compete at the Tuscon tournament, the team must raise $3,500 for the flight, room and board and meals, which the team is hoping to do through sponsors and donations.

Ms. Hightower said the team is sponsored by Paul Thorp at the Midlander, Jim Woodcock, Jim Henry and the Reporter-Telegram.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

By Jeane Dixon

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1994

HAPPY BIRTHDAY! IN THE NEXT YEAR OF YOUR LIFE: Success is certain once you get out of a rut and make constructive changes. Business accelerates in November, triggering increased profits before the end of the year. A romantic relationship takes on a rosy glow. An important new beginning is possible next spring. Combine business with pleasure if taking an overseas vacation in the summer of 1995.

CELEBRITIES BORN ON THIS DATE: comedian Sid Caesar, basketball player Maurice Cheeks, actress Heather Thomas, country music legend Patsy Cline.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Keep your ambition under wraps if you want to win a co-worker's cooperation. Focus your attention on constructive aims and stick to projects already underway. End a relationship that is going nowhere. You deserve better!

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Do not allow outside pressures to hamper your progress at work. Your efforts to deepen an understanding will break down any barriers to an agreement. Take advantage of educational opportunities which could boost your income.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Procrastination could be your downfall. Once you decide what must be done, do it! Direct action will silence a potential opponent. Staying close to home will save you money.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A sensible schedule will keep you on track even if unexpected problems crop up. Add special events to your social calendar. Signing up for lively workshops will introduce you to interesting people.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): A wonderful time to launch a new sales or advertising campaign. Break away from your regular work routine and get better organized. A romance begun now could prove unusually glamorous. Have fun! Make new contacts.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Continue to capitalize on yesterday's developments. As the day wears on, you are likely to stumble onto an awkward domestic situation. Let sensitivity and empathy be your hallmark when dealing with troubled individuals.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): An unpromising situation could put you in a blue mood. Resist an urge to avoid people. Talking shop at lunch proves productive. Influential people become eager to have you on their team.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): A recent business or financial triumph prompts others to say good things about you. Take advantage of a highly favorable financial or domestic development. Do not let arguments wreak havoc with your love life.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Taking care of unfinished business today will prevent a troublesome situation from developing. Be extra careful when driving or playing sports. Otherwise you could end up paying for someone else's mistake. Keep mate's secrets.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Check up on a credit or tax matter; you could find a puzzling situation. The afternoon presents you with an interesting dilemma. This is not the right time to experiment with new accounting methods!

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A new romantic attraction could lead you into deep waters. Look before you dive into a secret alliance. There is more at stake than your peace of mind. Send healing thoughts to loved ones.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Issuing a take-it-or-leave-it ultimatum regarding a job or business dispute would be a mistake. Temper power with wisdom as you climb the ladder of success. Suggest a compromise.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
2 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♡

The French have a term for it — the 'expasse.' That contrasts with the normal finesse, or "impasse." The nearest we can get to it in English is the phrase 'indirect finesse.'

North-South were using an old-fashioned 22-24 points as their range for an opening bid of two no trump. North had just enough for the leap to slam.

After the lead of the ten of hearts, declarer could count 11 fast tricks — one spade, four hearts, five diamonds and one club. Looking no further than the spade finesse, declarer won the first trick in dummy and immediately led a spade to the queen. When that lost, the contract went the way of all flesh.

Declarer can do better by combining the indirect finesse with the straight finesse. After winning the first heart in hand, declarer leads a low club to the queen. Since the king is with West, her majesty becomes the 12th trick.

A good technician might try to get home via another maneuver — a Vienna Coup. Declarer wins the first heart and ducks a club, a necessry tactic to "correct the count." Next, all winners are cashed except for the ace of spades, including the ace of clubs. Declarer ends in dummy with a spade and the queen of clubs, and with the ace-queen of spades in hand. West cannot guard the king of spades and keep the clubs.

Pretty, except for one problem. If East wins the first club and shifts to a spade, declarer is forced to take the finesse. Thus, this line is inferior to the "expasse" with the "impasse" in reserve.

German paper publishes nude photograph of Prince Charles

LONDON — A German newspaper published a photograph Wednesday of Prince Charles in the nude.

Buckingham Palace was not amused.

"We think it is completely unjustifiable for anybody to suffer this sort of intrusion," said a spokesman.

The picture stops short of full frontal nudity only because it is very grainy, apparently made with a lens that wasn't long enough, then blown up.

The 4.9-million circulation newspaper did not reveal how the photograph was taken.

Britain's Daily Mirror newspaper said a French magazine Paris Match also will publish the photo. No British newspapers have published it, so far.

DETROIT — Tom Arnold seems nice enough to Frederic Champnella, aka Dad to Arnold's new girlfriend.

Tom Arnold seems nice enough to his new girl's dad.

Julie Champnella, a 21-year-old college student, has been spotted with Arnold around the country, arriving by helicopter at Woodstock '94 and exploring exclusive stores.

"I hold him in high regard inasmuch as he flew in personally with Julie for the sole purpose of meeting with her mother and her family to assure us that his intentions were honorable and he would make sure no harm came to Julie," Champnella said in Wednesday's Detroit News.

He said his daughter, who attends Eastern Michigan University, is "a sweetheart, an average kid."

Arnold, 35, and his wife, Roseanne, are getting a divorce. He met Ms. Champnella at a nightclub while she was visiting her brother Eric — a comedian, actor and screenwriter — in Los Angeles.

NEW YORK — Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley-Jackson will take the stage at the MTV Video Music Awards on Thursday in their first television appearance as husband and wife.

The couple will perform an introductory bit, then turn over the show to host Roseanne, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Among those who will perform at the awards ceremony at Radio City Music Hall are the Rolling Stones, Bruce Springsteen, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, Snoop Doggy Dogg, Stone Temple Pilots and the Beastie Boys.

WASHINGTON — Kirk Douglas, Aretha Franklin and Pete Seeger will be honored in December by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

They were chosen along with composer Morton Gould and producer-director Harold Prince for the "unique and invaluable contribution they have made to the cultural life of our nation," center Chairman James D. Wolfensohn said Wednesday.

The five will be honored Dec. 4 at a gala performance and fund-raiser.

LOS ANGELES — Robert Redford doesn't watch Robert Redford movies.

"When the work is finished, it's finished, and re-visiting it doesn't feel so good," the actor-director said in an "Entertainment Tonight" interview to be broadcast Thursday.

Robert Redford doesn't watch Robert Redford movies.

"It's kind of like graduating from high school and going back on campus — things don't feel so good anymore."

Redford, 57, said he would like to star in another movie with Paul Newman. They appeared in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" in 1969 and "The Sting" in 1973.

"I like Paul. He's a good friend," Redford said. "Because we're friends and because of our place in the industry and the history that we both have, I think it would be great fun."

Redford directed the upcoming "Quiz Show," about the game show cheating scandal of the 1950s.

The bidding:

SOUTH	WEST	NORTH	EAST
2 NT	Pass	6 NT	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Ten of ♡

The French have a term for it — the 'expasse.' That contrasts with the normal finesse, or "impasse." The nearest we can get to it in English is the phrase 'indirect finesse.'

North-South were using an old-fashioned 22-24 points as their range for an opening bid of two no trump. North had just enough for the leap to slam.

After the lead of the ten of hearts, declarer could count 11 fast tricks — one spade, four hearts, five diamonds and one club. Looking no further than the spade finesse, declarer won the first trick in dummy and immediately led a spade to the queen. When that lost, the contract went the way of all flesh.

Declarer can do better by combining the indirect finesse with the straight finesse. After winning the first heart in hand, declarer leads a low club to the queen. Since the king is with West, her majesty becomes the 12th trick.

A good technician might try to get home via another maneuver — a Vienna Coup. Declarer wins the first heart and ducks a club, a necessry tactic to "correct the count." Next, all winners are cashed except for the ace of spades, including the ace of clubs. Declarer ends in dummy with a spade and the queen of clubs, and with the ace-queen of spades in hand. West cannot guard the king of spades and keep the clubs.

Pretty, except for one problem. If East wins the first club and shifts to a spade, declarer is forced to take the finesse. Thus, this line is inferior to the "expasse" with the "impasse" in reserve.

German paper publishes nude photograph of Prince Charles

LONDON — A German newspaper published a photograph Wednesday of Prince Charles in the nude.

Buckingham Palace was not amused.

"We think it is completely unjustifiable for anybody to suffer this sort of intrusion," said a spokesman.

The picture stops short of full frontal nudity only because it is very grainy, apparently made with a lens that wasn't long enough, then blown up.

The 4.9-million circulation newspaper did not reveal how the photograph was taken.

Britain's Daily Mirror newspaper said a French magazine Paris Match also will publish the photo. No British newspapers have published it, so far.

DETROIT — Tom Arnold seems nice enough to Frederic Champnella, aka Dad to Arnold's new girlfriend.

Tom Arnold seems nice enough to his new girl's dad.

Julie Champnella, a 21-year-old college student, has been spotted with Arnold around the country, arriving by helicopter at Woodstock '94 and exploring exclusive stores.

"I hold him in high regard inasmuch as he flew in personally with Julie for the sole purpose of meeting with her mother and her family to assure us that his intentions were honorable and he would make sure no harm came to Julie," Champnella said in Wednesday's Detroit News.

He said his daughter, who attends Eastern Michigan University, is "a sweetheart, an average kid."

Arnold, 35, and his wife, Roseanne, are getting a divorce. He met Ms. Champnella at a nightclub while she was visiting her brother Eric — a comedian, actor and screenwriter — in Los Angeles.

NEW YORK — Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley-Jackson will take the stage at the MTV Video Music Awards on Thursday in their first television appearance as husband and wife.

The couple will perform an introductory bit, then turn over the show to host Roseanne, said a source who spoke on condition of anonymity.

Among those who will perform at the awards ceremony at Radio City Music Hall are the Rolling Stones, Bruce Springsteen, Tom Petty and the Heartbreakers, Snoop Doggy Dogg, Stone Temple Pilots and the Beastie Boys.

WASHINGTON — Kirk Douglas, Aretha Franklin and Pete Seeger will be honored in December by the John F. Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts.

They were chosen along with composer Morton Gould and producer-director Harold Prince for the "unique and invaluable contribution they have made to the cultural life of our nation," center Chairman James D. Wolfensohn said Wednesday.

The five will be honored Dec. 4 at a gala performance and fund-raiser.

LOS ANGELES — Robert Redford doesn't watch Robert Redford movies.

Robert Redford doesn't watch Robert Redford movies.

"When the work is finished, it's finished, and re-visiting it doesn't feel so good," the actor-director said in an "Entertainment Tonight" interview to be broadcast Thursday.

"It's kind of like graduating from high school and going back on campus — things don't feel so good anymore."

Redford, 57, said he would like to star in another movie with Paul Newman. They appeared in "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid" in 1969 and "The Sting" in 1973.

"I like Paul. He's a good friend," Redford said. "Because we're friends and because of our place in the industry and the history that we both have, I think it would be great fun."

Redford directed the upcoming "Quiz Show," about the game show cheating scandal of the 1950s.

LIFESTYLE & FASHION

Spiritualism evident in styles

By Linda Gillan Griffin
N.Y. Times News Service

HOUSTON — Blood of the Kiowas and Comanches runs deep in Tom Mauchahty-Ware.

"Ah ho!" he shouts at his audience, urging them to applaud in his native way the American Indian fancy dancing performances of his brother Bill Ware, 11-year-old son Thomas, cousin J.J. Lonelodge and friends Ronnie Ahboah and Sonny Klinekole.

"Ah ho!" the audience shouts back.

This is what real Indians say, Mauchahty-Ware tells those gathered in a semicircle around a stage — not "how" and not the lip-beating "oh-oh-oh-oh" made so famous in early westerns.

"Pass it on," he prompts the audience. "Let people know American Indians were never stupid enough to beat their own lips up."

And so it is, with humor, openness and more often lately, a true spirit of sharing, that American Indians are selling other Americans bits and pieces of the Indian lifestyle, both physical and spiritual.

THE SCENE at the Houston Indian Market and Southwest Showcase, held annually at the George R. Brown Convention Center here, is not what would have been expected only a few years ago. There are not so many women in prairie skirts dripping turquoise necklaces and cinched in by concho belts. In fact, men and women alike are wearing more cowboy gear than Indian accessories.

Mauchahty-Ware, dressed in buckskin, bright colors and feathers, plays the Indian flute and is master of ceremonies for a group of American Indian dancers from Anadarko, Okla.

His groundbreaking performances in several films — notably "Last of the Caddos" and "Son of the Morning Star," about the demise of Col. George Armstrong Custer — yield a living for the performer and earned kudos for the films' use of real American Indians, their artifacts and music.

After the performance, which includes 11 varieties of Indian dances and a fair amount of audience participation, onlookers drift back to the booths or off to sample Indian frybread and tacos. But they'll be back at the stage for entertainment by Knifewing, South American Gauchos, Ehecatl Aztec dancers and Mussie Braun and the Boys.

MANY OF the people who attend this show are serious collectors of American Indian art, artifacts, jewelry and fashions. And while it may seem a misnomer to label Indian clothing "fashion," the truth is there are constantly evolving trends in this market, just as there are in Paris, Milan and Seventh Avenue fashion circles.

The major trend today is Indian spiritualism, which incorporates a closeness to, respect for and symbiosis with nature, as well as strong beliefs in recycling what one takes from nature.

"We're finding the interest in the last four to five years has been spirituality," says Tom "Gray Elk" Rael of Brighton, Colo. Once the Indians' closely guarded secrets, their religious beliefs today are being released for other people to understand, says Rael.

And as they understand, they come to appreciate and respect their American Indian brothers and sisters, and, eventually, many want to own something that embodies the Indian symbolism.

In the Rael family booth, shoppers might end up with some type of recycled road kill.

"We stop for all road kill," says Rael. "We say a prayer for the animals, which goes back to how humans were created by the gods but were less than perfect, so the animals were sent to teach man virtues."

Gray Elk also tells shoppers about dream catchers, the intricate webs some Indians weave on round frames, about breastplates made of turkey bones and stained with coffee, and about how the family is crossbreeding birds (including eight colors of turkeys, "the wisdom bird") to produce feathers similar to those of endangered eagles and hawks.

Although there are booths that push cliched Indian and western goods — phony cactuses, bluebonnet paintings, howling metal coyotes, colorful twisted lizards and enough Kokopellis to fill a few symphony orchestras — they are in the minority. But for the serious collector, legends like the ones Tony Hillerman imparts in his novels come alive in art and fashion.

JUST AS New Age interests have brought crystals and spiritualism to mainstream American culture, the same are appearing in Indian art and fashions. And the Indians themselves are as modern as the next American.

Fancy dancer J.J. Lonelodge wears striped soccer trunks under his buckskin and feathers ("I'm what you call an Indian athlete," he jokes), and his uncle, Bill Ware, age 59 and going for his third national title in the golden years fancy dancing category, wears a purple cotton T-shirt.

Thomas, the 11-year-old national champion fancy dancer, has been in the arena "since he was in Huggies," his father explains — twirling, whirling, braids flying and feather atwitter.

Ronnie Ahboah, another of the fancy dancers, is one of the best in the country, Mauchahty-Ware explains. And when Ahboah spotted himself in some unauthorized footage of a television commercial, he did what any modern American Indian would do.

He's not going to shoot the offenders with arrows, says Mauchahty-Ware. "We're gonna get our lawyers in there."

Ah ho!

At Wit's End
Don't confuse fact with romantic fiction

By Erma Bombeck

I read a lot. Fiction mostly. It has to be. Where else would you find a 42-year-old heroine (with a teen-age son studying in Rome) who brings to an affair a flat stomach, a waist the size of Arnold Schwarzenegger's wrist, and the pale, ivory skin of a teen-ager?

Bombeck

OK, so maybe 42 isn't over the hill, but don't tell me it doesn't require maintenance. (My body peaked at 18 and then started to go.) Blue veins begin to surface, a gray hair grows right out of your head where everyone can see it, the chin goes into the first stage of dividing into two and will continue to multiply like a naughty cell. Your lipstick bleeds through the rivulets around your lips; you go through a tube of Erase every week. The derriere looks more like a parachute every day.

This is too much of a coincidence, but I picked up a book last week where the heroine, Elizabeth, was a happy housewife who started a weekly column and it caused a sensation. She was asked to go on television and was yet another smash. A syndicator put her in 400 newspapers and she became a household word (right under "bleach"). Talk about life imitating art!

She was raising two teen-agers, traveled by private jet, had an estranged husband who ran 40 newspapers and was famous. She did her own hair and still had time to work in an affair with a talk-show host. She lost me in the last paragraph, but if I had known the perks of a career like this, I'd have taken better care of my body.

As I turned each page, I became aware of the mistakes I had made.

I should have said more often, "I don't have time to eat." I always had time. I ate airline food and sent compliments to the chef. I ate every bit of the rubber chickens smothered in gravy and never went through an airport without a soft pretzel in my mouth.

Before I had children, I should have shopped around for a doctor who could have given me an elastic implant so that my stomach could have returned to its original shape.

Elizabeth and her husband were partners in everything. I couldn't hang a picture together with mine. As for an affair with a talk-show host, I never had the underwear for it.

I couldn't stand not knowing how Elizabeth fared, so I did something I rarely do. I turned to the end of the book. It wasn't much of a surprise. She, with her ivory skin and flat stomach, who could wear a satin chemise without having it wrinkle, reunited with her husband — the one with the hard, muscular body and a touch of gray that made him look interesting. She still had it all.

I have it all too. It just isn't distributed the same.

Dear Abby
Political beliefs don't spoil marriage

By Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing about the letter from the Connecticut woman who said she and her husband got along very well — until the subject of politics came up. (She was a Democrat, and her husband was a registered Republican.)

Van Buren

Well, my Republican grandmother married a Democrat, and my Republican mother also married a Democrat. I, a staunch Republican, married a registered Democrat — who is now deceased. I am 78 years old, and in all the years of our marriage, there was not one bit of friction.

The secret of keeping the peace in spite of everyone's political differences was very simple: All of the spouses respected each others' privacy, and their right to vote as they saw fit.

I have never been too proud to keep my mouth shut to keep the peace. — MARY A. CANNON, GARDEN GROVE, CALIF.

DEAR MARY: Hooray for you. Two very famous couples who disagree politically come to mind: Jane Fonda, outspoken Democrat, and Ted Turner, lifelong Republican. But judging from the way they hold hands and look at each other, politics is the last thing they have on their minds.

Also, Maria Shriver (her mother is a sister of the late President Kennedy) and Arnold Schwarzenegger: Maria rides the donkey, but hubby rides the elephant.

DEAR ABBY: In reply to the woman who asked if her family is unusual because she's a Democrat and her husband is a Republican, so they never talked politics anymore — well, I suspect many people are "unusual" in the same way.

When my husband and I married, 22 years ago, we were both middle-of-the-road Democrats. Now we rarely talk politics.

I am a left-of-center feminist, my husband is a Rush conservative, and we absolutely are not able to discuss political issues. Yet, I would say we are happily married. After all, what counts in a marriage is love, respect, trust and integrity — not a voting record. — A GALVESTON, TEXAS, REVEREND

DEAR ABBY: I wish to comment on the woman who has a politically mixed marriage. (She's a Democrat and her husband is a Republican.) Please assure her that this is not unusual.

I have been married three times and had very little in common with any of my wives — politically.

My first wife was a fiery liberal Democrat, and I have always been a conservative Republican.

I met my second wife at a Young Republicans convention to be sure I didn't have the same problem again. By the time we were divorced, she was a Democrat.

My third wife, to whom I have been married 11 years, is — believe it or not — a political cartoonist. You have probably guessed it: She is a Democrat.

Abby, political diversity is not uncommon in marriage. — STILL A REPUBLICAN, SPRING HILL, FLA.

DEAR STILL: A mixed marriage, politically speaking, can endure — providing discussions concerning politics do not erupt into full-fledged battles. Couples whose political philosophies differ are usually better off if one doesn't try to convert the other. Trust me. In 1956, my husband was a staunch Eisenhower supporter. I campaigned for Adlai Stevenson.

Local Girl Scout given scholarship

Staff Report

Kappy Prentice of Midland has received the Girl Scout Gold Award Scholarship, awarded by the families of Mary Wynn Hinkle and Janice Eleanor Hill Matthews in honor of their memories. The scholarships are awarded each year to a Senior Girl Scout who has earned the Girl Scout Gold Award, the highest recognition a girl can earn in scouting. The award symbolized outstanding accomplishments in leadership, community service, career planning and personal development.

For her award, Miss Prentice developed a three-part project, which took about six months to complete. She served as secretary on the Outdoor Program Caravan, an outreach project; planned and presented "Celebrating Our Differences" training for volunteer staff members working with the caravan; and coordinated and supervised younger Girl Scouts working with the program.

Outdoor Program Caravan was designed to take the Girl Scout program "on the road" and give children the chance to participate in outdoor activities a week at a time.

Miss Prentice also worked throughout the year with developmentally disabled girls in a Midland Brownie troop and at Girl Scout Day Camp in Midland with the Buddies and Pals unit.

She is now enrolled at Texas Tech University, where she plans to major in physical or occupational therapy.

Strike talks

NEW YORK — Negotiators for owners and players held an informal 3-hour meeting Wednesday night and said they would continue discussions on Thursday, just one day before the deadline for canceling the baseball season. "I'm sure if we get closer to a deal, I'm sure that date might have some flexibility," Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris said of the Friday deadline set by executive council chairman Bud Selig.

UH scandal

HOUSTON — Former and current University of Houston football players routinely paid another player to take their math exams, the Houston Chronicle reported Wednesday. University officials say the newspaper is milking old news.

"The university is going to do the right thing. If you do the wrong thing and get caught, you're going to be talking to the newspapers, because you're not going to be on the team," coach Kim Helton said Wednesday. But three former players say the cheating is more widespread than first reported to university officials last December.

Carlson still No. 1

HOUSTON — Although Bucky Richardson practiced as the Houston Oilers top quarterback on Wednesday and newcomer Billy Joe Tolliver worked as his backup, Cody Carlson could still start on Sunday against Dallas. Carlson suffered a second degree separation of his left, non-throwing shoulder in Sunday's 45-21 loss to Indianapolis. On Wednesday, he threw without shoulder pads and watched the live practice. "I'm preparing Bucky to be the guy," assistant head coach Kevin Gilbride said. "If it comes Sunday and Cody says he can go, he'll go. But now, I'm prepared to go with Bucky." Richardson threw three second-half touchdowns in a lost cause Sunday in his best regular-season performance since being drafted out of Texas A&M in the eighth round in 1992.

Cowboys sign RB

IRVING — Rebuffed in their attempts to acquire Washington's William Bell, the Dallas Cowboys signed rookie Lindsey Chapman for a second time on Wednesday as a backup to Emmitt Smith. Chapman, of the University of California, was cut from the New York Jets training camp this summer. He was signed by the Cowboys and cut the next day. Dallas cut Lincoln Coleman on Tuesday and thought they had Bell, until the Redskins matched the Cowboys' two-year offer of $108,000 and $135,000.

Underdogs rule Open

■ Unseeded Andre Agassi beats third seeded played to land in U.S. Open men's semifinals while No. 7 Jana Novotna tops No. 4 Mary Pierce to move to women's final.

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Andre Agassi's improbable journey through the U.S. Open landed him in the semifinals Wednesday night, thanks in part to a gesture of sportsmanship by Thomas Muster at a crucial juncture.

Unseeded and unexpected to do much in this Open after losing in the first round a year ago, Agassi played a flawless third set to beat the 13th-seeded Muster 7-6 (7-5), 6-3, 6-0 and set up a match Saturday against the only other American left in the tournament, Todd Martin.

Martin beat Bernd Karbacher 6-4, 7-6 (7-5), 4-6, 6-4 Wednesday.

Agassi had boasted earlier in the day that he would beat Muster, who won four of their five previous meetings.

"I was more or less popping off," Agassi said. "But I had a gut feeling. Not that I didn't have respect for him. We've had a lot of hard battles, some really close ones, and I felt it was overdue for me."

When it ended, Agassi pumped his arms and bellowed. He said he could think of only one thing: "Super Saturday, baby, Super Saturday."

On Super Saturday, both men's semifinals will be played in addition to the women's final.

Jana Novotna, seeded seventh, beat No. 4 Mary Pierce 6-4, 6-0 to advance to the women's semis against No. 1 Steffi Graf, who beat Amanda Coetzer 6-0, 6-2. Arantxa Sanchez Vicario and Gabriela Sabatini will play in the other semifinal.

Agassi and Muster waged a baseline duel of thunderous shots, each trying to pulverize the ball harder than the other. But it was the greater variety of Agassi's game — his ventures to the net and stronger returns — that turned the match in his favor.

Muster, who aggravated his sore left knee, also couldn't do much with Agassi's serve, breaking him only in the third game of the match.

"He was risking more than I was," Muster said of the tiebreaker that he felt turned the match. "He was playing great tennis, not missing much, and controlling everything."

Though the packed stadium crowd cheered Agassi's every winner, Muster received sustained applause when he gra-

MHS, Lee face each other to open 4-5A play

■ Lady Dawgs and Lady Rebels open district volleyball season with 2:30 p.m. match Saturday at MHS gym.

By Amy Wolfenbarger
Staff Writer

The last time Midland High and Midland Lee met on the volleyball court, the two cross-town rivals put on one of the most exciting matches witnessed during the 1993 season.

Despite the fact that the Lady Rebels were at the top of the District 4-5A standings for a good portion of the loop schedule and eventually finished second while the Lady Dawgs failed to make the playoffs, the two teams proved that a rivalry can produce great play on both sides of the net.

Lee and Midland will renew that series Saturday at 2:30 p.m. at the Midland High gym when both teams open their district season.

This year's Lady Dawg team hardly resembles the one that took the court last year. A new coach and only one returner who played the entire season make for a lot of question marks for the Midland High fans.

First-year coach Terri McColloch has already proved she can guide a team over the best of 4-5A. In three seasons at tradition-rich Alpine, McColloch led her team to the three district titles and three Region I-3A tournaments.

"At Alpine, we beat Odessa High, Midland High, Lee, Abilene Cooper and split with (defending 4-5A champ) Central," McColloch said. "And we've already won more games (in preseason) than they (Midland High) won last year."

Under the guidance of Sonja Pittman, who retired from coaching this spring to go into private business, led the Lady Dawgs to a 10-17 overall mark and a 5-7 district record for a sixth-place finish. One bright spot, however, was the play of the coach Susan Nix-led junior varsity, which finished 21-5 and 9-3.

With the loss of four starters, the Lady Dawgs will rely heavily on that JV squad.

"Inexperience (will be a weakness)," said McColloch. "I mean Jamee Stennett is the only one with a full year of experience."

Stennett, a junior middle blocker and classmate Toya Zachery, started last year along with four seniors. But she missed the end of the season because of

First week tough for area teams

■ Several area high school football teams will have to wait until at least the second week of the football season to get wins.

By Mike Butts

For several area football teams, last week's season debuts didn't exactly inspire comparisons to precision machinery or classic verse. Only three teams came away with wins. The others fell victim to upsets, one-sided loses or ends to winning streaks.

Lebby

They were left repeating the 0-1 high school football mantras: "It's only non-district," and "There's always next week."

The rundown:

■ Andrews, an 11-2 Region I finalist last season and a top-ten member of at least one preseason Class 4A state ranking, fell 17-10 to Snyder, a 5-5 team in 1993 not expected to make the playoffs this year.

■ Rankin, which lost almost every starter from '92, managed a 65-point turnaround in losing to Iraan 25-7. The Red Devils had beaten the Braves in last year's opener 47-0.

■ Midland Christian's 32-game winning streak ended with a 14-8 loss at Dell City. The Mustangs had not lost since '91.

■ Big Spring fell to Borger 25-0 to end their five-year opening-game win streak. It was the first opening game shutout for the Steers since 1970.

■ Garden City fell to Forsan 34-0 for its second straight shutout. The Bearkats ended 1993 with a zero on the scoreboard.

The only real upset of the bunch came in the ANDREWS game. New Mustang coach Mike Lebby says the loss humbled his players.

"I had kids come up to me afterwards and tell me they were embarrassed and that's good," Lebby said. "Taking nothing away from Snyder, our kids I hope

'Fish' jump from pan into fire tonight

Petitt

After Week One of the Southwest Conference season, the league posted a respectable 4-3 record with the only mild surprise being possibly the ease in which Baylor defeated Louisiana Tech and Texas Tech's win over a veteran New Mexico team.

But the road gets tougher in Week Two. Three league foes battle Top 15 ranked teams.

No. 1 Nebraska 48, Texas Tech 3: Texas Tech coach Spike Dykes had to be pleased with the play of the freshman class during last Saturday's 37-31 win over New Mexico. The Red Raider offense amassed 467 yards despite playing two quarterbacks, four wide receivers and one tailback from the freshman class.

Tonight, the top-ranked team in the country rolls into Lubbock. The boys from Lincoln, Neb. possess speed, size, depth and talent at every position. It doesn't take Mel Kuiper Jr. to figure out Tech's key to staying close is to stop the Nebraska running game. Keep away always worked in the sand lot for me. Tech must try to piece together a couple of first downs to provide a respite for the defense.

Nebraska held West Virginia to five yards offensively in the first half in its season opener 10 days ago. Cornhusker head coach Tom Osborne says that polls do not matter. But he knows what it is like to be the only game in town and tonight he's the only game in the nation. National television exposure has a way of keeping team's from overlooking a sure win.

Louisiana Tech 20, Houston 17: The Bulldogs had eight fumbles against Baylor a week ago. Do not look for a repeat in their home opener at Rustin, La.

Baylor 33, San Jose State 31: The Bears have found a replacement for the departed J.J. Joe. Freshman quarterback Jeff Watson of A&M Consolidated led Baylor to four touchdowns in a 44-3 win last week. The Baylor coaching staff will try to keep the offense elementary for Mr. Watson.

Rice 22, Tulane 16: Rice opens the Ken Hatfield era at home. Tulane could keep the game close after losing to Southern Mississippi a week ago.

Oklahoma 31, Texas A&M 16: A year ago it was OU winning 44-14 at home. A&M's depth has suffered with the departure of underclassmen when the probation broke out. Oklahoma won three games against SWC teams a year ago and Gary Gibbs knows that a win Saturday combined with wins over Texas Tech and Texas later in the season would leave the recruiting unguarded.

New Mexico 28, TCU 21: Stoney Case took the blame for his team's collapse at Tech last week. He went 2-for-7 passing with two interceptions during the third and part of the fourth quarters. Tailback Winston Oliver is questionable for the Lobos and his return could be enough for UNM to beat the Horned Frogs in Albuquerque.

Texas 33, Louisville 24: After allowing a previously no-name running back 251 yards in the season opener, Texas will clamp down its defense against the Cardinals. The 'Horns hadn't won a home opener since 1988.

Last Week 6-1; Overall 6-1.

Former Houston players allege academic cheating

By Danny Robbins
New York Times

HOUSTON — At least a dozen University of Houston football players, including members of the current UH team, participated in an academic cheating scheme in which players routinely paid a teammate to take math exams over a period of years, interviews with former players reveal.

Players who took part in the scheme provided Linton Weatherspoon, a UH defensive tackle from 1990 to 1992, with cash and other gifts in exchange for taking tests, the former players said.

Players started paying Weatherspoon to take tests under former UH coach John Jenkins and continued the practice for at least a semester under current coach Kim Helton, who replaced Jenkins in May 1993.

Weatherspoon's activities came to the university's attention last December when he was caught attempting to take an algebra final for Tim Winburn, an offensive lineman who played for the Cougars as a freshman during the 1993 season.

Weatherspoon was suspended from the university for five years. Winburn was suspended for the 1994 spring and summer terms.

The university also alleged at the time that Weatherspoon had taken a test for another student — a non-athlete — in a calculus class during the 1993 spring semester.

But Winburn and two other former UH players said in recent interviews that the incidents barely scratched the surface of a much larger network of academic cheating involving current and former Cougars players.

Henry Trueba, UH's senior vice president for academic affairs and provost, said he would investigate the former players' claims and look closely at the factors that would allow such a scheme to exist.

Winburn said Weatherspoon last fall took an algebra midterm for him and for two other UH players who remain on the team — without getting caught. He estimated 10 players may have been involved in the scheme.

"I know Linton took tests for a lot of players," said Winburn, who chose to attend Collin County Community College in his hometown of McKinney, Texas, rather than return to UH this fall.

Another former UH player, linebacker Delithro Bell, said he did not arrange for Weatherspoon to take any of his math tests but knows of three current Cougars players who did make such arrangements. Bell put the total number of players involved at between 10 and 20.

Former Cougars quarterback Chandler Evans is another ex-UH player who said he did not take part in the scheme but knew of it.

"I know he had been doing it (taking players' tests) for several years while he was there (at UH)," he said.

realize they can't read the newspaper and let people tell them that they're the best thing going because it's a different team, a different season and a different schedule."

Down 14-10 with 7:30 left in the game the Mustangs fumbled on their own 10-yard line and "that's when they decided to play," Lebby said. Andrews fumbled inside the one with a minute to go in the contest.

"We've got a lot of kids who haven't played varsity before and if we don't play hard we won't win," Lebby said. "And honestly, there were some times (against Snyder) we didn't play hard."

Andrews tries to turn things around at Lubbock Estacado Friday.

While RANKIN's score looked bad, the Red Devils led 7-6 after three quarters and got the ball inside the 10 three times — at the end of the first, second and third quarters — without scoring. They botched the snap on a field goal attempt to end the first half and failed to score on fourth down and goal to end the third period.

"Mature football players usually do that pretty consistently, they score when they get down there 80 or 90 percent of the time," Rankin coach Raul Sanchez said. "But we're young."

New Red Devil quarterback Jo'El Armendarez rushed for 98 yards and completed seven of 11 passes for 83 yards. Rankin plays at Forsan Friday.

MIDLAND CHRISTIAN also missed a good scoring chance in its loss to Dell City. The Mustangs fumbled at the two-yard line with three minutes to play. Dell City played with eight seniors, Midland Christian coach James Blake said. The three-time TAPPS six-man state champions are relying mostly on talented second-teamers from last year.

By Wednesday, Blake wasn't fretting over the end of the winning streak.

"The streak is not what interests us," Blake said. "What interests us is what happens at the end of the year, (whether) we get into the playoffs and try to defend our state championship again. Streaks are going to come and go."

The Mustangs play Lazbuddie, another tough UIL team, at home Saturday. The Longhorns won eight games and made the playoffs last year.

"Our philosophy has always been to play the best UIL teams we can find," Blake said.

BIG SPRING coach Dwight Butler calls it "a tough month." The Steers play the rest of their non-district schedule against 5-4A teams beginning at Sweetwater Friday and then a quick turnaround to Lubbock Estacado Thursday. Those two teams and Big Spring's next opponents, Snyder and Levelland, all won their openers.

Butler didn't come away from the Borger loss with all bad impressions.

"There were some bright spots," Butler said. "The only really distressing thing was the fumbled snaps. That was a big concern (but) we were able to move the ball."

LAMESA finally dropped their losing streak of 11 games by beating Pecos 28-12. And Tornado coach Gary Yoder is ready to leave the memory behind.

"It's fine (to end it) but all we want to concentrate on is this year," Yoder said. "We're trying to build on this (win), not just emphasize what we stopped."

Yoder credits his offensive line in the win. It opened holes for halfbacks Fonzie Jenkins and Ernie Morales and quarterback Robby Trevino, who combined for 224 yards rushing.

"I thought the offensive line probably was as much a key as anything," Yoder said.

The Tornadoes are at San Angelo Lake View Friday.

GARDEN CITY faces STANTON in Stanton Friday. And the Bearkats will have to do it without halfbacks Bryan Harp and Ryan Seidenberger. Seidenberger broke a leg in the Forsan game and Harp has a cut foot.

GREENWOOD lost to a more experienced and highly-regarded Ballinger team in its opener. But the Rangers seem to have found a quarterback. Junior Josh Jones rushed for 129 yards and his only pass completion went for a 61-yard touchdown. The Rangers play at Fort Stockton Friday. Greenwood beat the Panthers at home last year 35-14. The Panthers lost their opener to 3A Denver City 41-0.

TRINITY tries to go to 2-0 Saturday at home against Bethel Christian at 3 p.m. The Chargers feature 200-pound running back Matt Dickman, who had 196 yards in the team's win over Community Christian.

grades. The only other familiar faces to MHS fans are seniors Elaine Salgado at setter and Deshawn Berry at outside hitter, who were moved up from the JV near the end of the season.

McColloch

Corder

"We've already improved so much from just three weeks ago it's unbelievable," said McColloch.

Rounding out the varsity, which McColloch trimmed from a whopping 45 players who initially tried out for the program, are three seniors and two juniors.

One of the top newcomers to the program is Norwegian foreign exchange student Elisabeth Mathiassen, a senior outside hitter. Mathiassen sneaks up on the district opponents, having already been named to two all-tournament squads.

Setters Jennifer Allen and Heather Klein round out the seniors. Juniors are Elesceeya King, middle blocker, and Sara Pritchett, defensive specialist.

McColloch said she does not have a single player who noticebly stands out above the rest and feels that will work to her advantage.

"Because of that teamwork, I think we'll have fewer down games," McColloch said. "We've got several players who can play any position"

The Lady Rebels, while sporting one of the highest numbers of returners among all the district teams, will look extremely different than the stuff-blocking team of 1993, which finished with an 11-14, 8-4 record.

Fourth-year coach Anita Corder lost 5-foot-10 Heather Huff, the district's outstanding hitter, and 5-11 Tera Mander, the outstanding defensive player in 4-5A. Huff signed to play with Abilene Christian while Mander is at the University of New Orleans. Frontline specialist Deborah York, the last of Lee's three giants at 6-0, is continuing a basketball career at Midland College.

"The biggest difference is I'll be able to see out of the timeout huddle," the 5-4 Corder said jokingly. "We're probably not as good at the net as we were last year but defensively, we're very quick. We're digging a higher percentage of balls in defensive transition."

Technically, the Lady Rebels return three and one-half starters. Senior setter Roseann Sullivan returns to direct the Lee offense while senior outside hitter Emily Hayes will be a power at the net and behind the service line. Senior outside hitter Crystal is the only other fulltime starter returning while Kristen Dunn split time with York last year, serving as a backline defensive specialist.

Other varsity returners are seniors Marci Stone, middle blocker, and Farrah Fisher, outside hitter. Top newcomers are juniors Amber Willis, middle blocker, and Kasey Wolters, outside hitter. Juniors Kim Hall, Ida Molina and Julie Siebold make up the remainder of the varsity roster.

Corder said most of her preseason has been spent garnering consistency among her players.

"We've had moments of brilliance then moments of what I call flakiness," Corder said. "It's something we've talked about as we begin week five: What's the makeup of this team? As Emily (Hayes) put it 'We're hot or we're not.'"

Corder said she felt if her team could find consistency, it would go a long way to a winning season.

"I think you can get a consistent mental state," Corder said. "You've got to decide how you're going to play before you ever step on the court. Then if you play at the top of your game, then whether you win or lose, you feel good about the way you played."

Besides the defensive quickness, Corder said the intelligence of her team will be a plus.

"This whole group is very intelligent," Corder said. "And it's a real challenge for me as a coach because this team is further along than any I've coached. I've never been able to do offensive and defensive systems work this early in the season. They constantly want to learn more and ask questions all the time."

Marino's 300th TD draws little notice

DAVIE, Fla. (AP) — In the wake of Dan Marino's triumphant return to the Miami Dolphins, his latest milestone drew little notice.

Marino became the second quarterback with 300 touchdown passes by throwing for five scores in Sunday's 39-35 victory over New England. With a career total of 303, Marino is a good bet to surpass Fran Tarkenton's 342 by next season.

"He's going to have all the passing records when it's over with," Dolphins coach Don Shula said.

The record book received a respite when Marino missed the final 11 games of last season with a ruptured Achilles tendon. But now he's back and, judging from his performance against New England, feeling fine.

"That was one of the most phenomenal performances you'll ever see from an individual," Marino's backup, Bernie Kosar, said.

Marino, 33 next week, has always indicated he plans a long career. If he plays another six or seven years, he'll take many records into a new dimension.

How does 500 touchdown passes sound?

"Staggering," Miami fullback Keith Byars said.

"I'd like to catch a hundred of those," receiver Irving Fryar said.

"With the record what it is now, he's going to put it way out of reach," tight end Keith Jackson said.

Fryar and Jackson doubt that Marino will play into his 40s, but Byars said the quarterback may be around for another decade or more.

"Look at Joe Montana — he's 38 and still going strong," Byars said. "Dan has taken care of himself and is keeping his body in shape.

"And that arm — it's going to be like Nolan Ryan. It's going to be priceless. He's going to still be able to throw that ball, no matter how old he gets."

Until last season, Marino was the NFL's most durable quarterback. Now, aside from a right ankle that is still healing, he's in the best shape of his career.

"If he wants to play into his 40s, I don't think anyone around here would have any problems with it at all," Byars said.

Meanwhile, the records continue to fall. Marino broke another Sunday — Johnny Unitas' league mark for games with at least four touchdown passes. Marino has done it 18 times, and will try to do it again Sunday at Green Bay.

The 12-year veteran ranks third on the NFL career list in completions (3,242) and passing yardage (41,193). Tarkenton leads in each category (3,686, 47,003), and Marino could break both records next season.

Defensive backs must wonder where it will end.

"The Marino Record Book," Fryar calls it.

A week ago, there was speculation that Marino, still hampered by last year's injury, wasn't ready for the season. Then he shredded the Patriots and won the AFC offensive player of the week award for the 15th time.

That's a record.

NFL on Fox beats CBS in first week's ratings

NEW YORK (AP) — Fox's preliminary national rating for its first Sunday of regular-season NFL coverage was 15 percent higher than CBS' rating for the opening week of 1993.

Sunday's 1 p.m. EDT games on Fox got an 11.1 rating and 30 share and its 4 p.m. games had a 9.1 rating and a 23 share, Nielsen Media Research said Wednesday.

The rating is the percentage watching among television households in the nation and each point represents 942,000 homes. The share is the percentage tuned in among televisions on at the time.

Last year, CBS had a 9.1 rating and 26 share for its 1 p.m. games and an 8.4 rating and 22 share for its 4 p.m. games.

TENNIS: Muster's sportsmanship applauded ciously allowed a replay of a point he was awarded near the end of the second set.

Muster was serving at deuce to stay in the set, trailing 5-3, when Agassi hit a backhand return that was called long. Muster overruled the linesman and replayed the point. Agassi accepted the gift, then won the point when Muster tapped a forehand volley into the net. A long forehand by Muster on the next point gave Agassi a 2-0 lead in sets.

"That's not why I lost the match," Muster said, "but, I mean, if the ball is that far in, even if it's 5-3, deuce, whatever, I can't look at it because it's so bad. It is a slow ball and the (linesman) is sleeping at the baseline, and that's frustrating. That is why I gave it to him. We're good friends, and I don't think I should steal a ball like that."

Said Agassi: "That's just a perfect example of what kind of guy Thomas is. We're good friends, and what he did out there just shows what kind of pride he takes in what he does. You don't see that much anymore."

Agassi, who hadn't gone this far in the Open since reaching the final in 1990 and getting crushed by Pete Sampras, didn't make an unforced error in the third set. He simply hauled off and whacked everything with the confidence that it would go in, and every shot did. As well as he played in beating Michael Chang in the fourth round, Agassi was even better this time.

"I went on the court with a lot of respect for what I had to do to beat this guy," Agassi said, "and I stuck to my game plan. I knew I had to keep control of the baseline points because he's not a very good defensive player. Thomas is not as confident on hardcourts. I knew if I got through the tiebreaker, his confidence level would drop. After a while, Thomas didn't believe in himself."

Muster said he felt resigned to defeat as Agassi got better and better.

"Everything he did, he did better than me," Muster said. "What can I do? I can't call him names. That's not tennis."

Agassi's next opponent, Martin, didn't much impress the player he beat to get to the semis.

"If you ask me for a prediction, I won't bet money on Todd Martin," Karbacher said.

Martin agreed he would have to improve.

"My level of intensity throughout the match has to be a little higher," Martin said. "That would make everything a little better. That's all I can control. If it's good enough to win the tournament, fine."

Agassi became the seventh unseeded man in the history of the U.S. singles championships, since seeding began in 1927, to beat three seeded men in one year.

Informal meeting yields promise of ending strike

■ Strike still on after three-hour meeting but negotiators plan to continue today, one day before cancelation deadline.

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators for owners and players held an informal 3-hour meeting Wednesday night and said they would continue discussions on Thursday, just one day before the deadline for canceling the baseball season.

"I'm sure if we get closer to a deal, I'm sure that date might have some flexibility," Colorado Rockies owner Jerry McMorris said of the Friday deadline set by executive council chairman Bud Selig.

McMorris, Boston Red Sox chief executive officer John Harrington and Milwaukee Brewers vice-president-general counsel Wendy Selig-Prieb attended the meeting with union head Donald Fehr.

"There was a good exchange of ideas," Harrington said. "No proposals were made."

Fehr said he expected the larger bargaining groups to meet Thursday.

"I'm not at the stage where I can say anything definitve," said Fehr, who was joined by two other union officials. "There's nothing definitive to say.

"We'll let things percolate and see what people come up with overnight."

Harrington said people from the union invited the owners group to dinner and he termed the evening "fruitful."

Twelve players from the union's negotiating committee were said to be headed to New York as the strike reached its 27th day.

"If we make a proposal, it will be because we believe we've come up with something new based on information we were given last weekend," Fehr said earlier.

He had said the union had received additional details on the revenue-sharing plan owners agreed to in January.

Houston Astros owner Drayton McLane said talk of revenue-sharing was what got things moving.

"He (Fehr) told Bud he would like a group to come up and talk about revenue-sharing," McLane told KRIV-TV of Houston on Wednesday. "It's the first time they've agreed to address that issue.

"It's the first really positive signal in 10 days. Hopefully, it's the start of meaningful conversation."

Several officials on both sides said they expected a possible union plan to be a variation of the "taxation" concept. Under this plan, the salary cap owners have been demanding would be replaced by a system in which richer clubs would share a higher percentage of their locally generated revenue if they exceed certain levels of payrolls or revenue.

Also traveling to New York on the behalf of owners, according to management sources, were Chicago White Sox owner Jerry Reinsdorf, Atlanta Braves president Stan Kasten and former St. Louis Cardinals CEO Stuart Meyer.

Federal mediators, who entered the dispute the day after the strike began Aug. 12, played no role in the renewal of talks. Brian Flores, the national representative of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service, said they didn't plan to attend any meetings this week.

"If we played any role whatsoever, it was bringing people to a certain place at a certain time so they could look at each other and perhaps make an appointment to see each other later," Flores said.

The strike, baseball's eighth formal talks since the strike began and none since Aug. 25. But an informal meeting on Aug. 31, which included Fehr and McMorris, sparked a series of background telephone calls that led to Wednesday's events.

Fehr said the union decided to call in its bargaining team after Selig's announcement Sept. 2 of the tentative Friday deadline for canceling the rest of the season.

Players expected in New York on Wednesday or Thursday included Tim Belcher of Detroit, Jay Bell of Pittsburgh, Kevin Brown of Texas, Brett Butler of Los Angeles, Tom Glavine of Atlanta, Orel Hershiser of Los Angeles, Dennis Martinez of Cleveland, Paul Molitor of Toronto, Scott Sanderson of the White Sox, Bob Scanlan of Milwaukee, Terry Steinbach of Oakland and B.J Surhoff of Milwaukee.

"What the players want is to continue the season," Bell told ABC Radio after arriving in New York. "Basically what we've done is given the owners the ability to come to us and negotiate a contract. Right now, all we can do is as players is just wait around and see what happens."

Prices gain

NEW YORK — Oil prices finished higher on Wednesday in thin holiday trading as the market awaited weekly inventory figures.

West Texas Intermediate for October delivery rose 19 cents per barrel to finish at $17.81.

Local crude purchasers raised their posted price 25 cents to $16.25 a barrel.

Prices have been helped this week by the International Energy Agency's estimate of higher crude oil demand in the final three months of the year. Trading, however, was still cautious ahead of Wednesday evening's release of the American Petroleum Institute supply data.

Public forecasts showed expectations for a drop in crude supplies.

Trading has also been thin all week because of the Labor Day and Jewish New Year holidays.

After the market closed on Wednesday, the API reported crude supplies fell 1.28 million barrels to 321.59 million and gasoline stockpiles fell 3.69 million barrels to 205.68 million. Distillates, which include heating oil, rose 3.75 million barrels to 136.32 million.

Refineries cut production during the week to 94.7 percent of capacity from 95.6 percent the week before.

Natural gas prices were higher. October contracts rose 3.5 cents per 1,000 cubic feet to finish at $1.631.

In London on the International Petroleum Exchange, North Sea Brent Blend crude oil rose 20 cents per barrel to finish at $16.53.

Brokerage tussle

NEW YORK — A legal tussle between Kidder, Peabody & Co. and its former star bond trader is quickly deteriorating into a near-brawl, highlighting cracks in the arbitration system that aims to settle such disputes.

Lawyers for Joseph Jett, who was fired by Kidder for an alleged scheme to create fictitious profits to inflate his bonus, have demanded the brokerage advance Jett nearly $600,000 to pay for thousands of hours in defense costs.

They also accuse the brokerage of using evasive tactics to avoid surrendering crucial documents.

Avon in play

NEW YORK — Plenty of investors called on Avon, snapping up its stock on speculation that the cosmetics company is about to be taken over.

Shares in Avon Products Inc., finished $2 higher at $61.50 on the New York Stock Exchange Wednesday. That was its highest close this year, but down from a midday peak of $62.87½.

CNBC cable network financial commentator Dan Dorfman reported rumors that Goldman Sachs & Co. is putting together a transaction that would pay $80 a share for Avon's stock.

Productivity sinks to 5-year low

■ Report causes no stirring on Wall Street, where investors wait for other inflation-gauging economic reports due out today, Friday.

Associated Press

WASHINGTON — The productivity of America's businesses registered the biggest decline in five years while production costs rose in the April-June quarter, a revised government report released Wednesday showed.

Productivity — defined as output per number of hours worked — dropped at an annual rate of 2.5 percent in the non-farm business sector during the second quarter, the Labor Department reported. It was the sharpest decline since 1989, when productivity fell at an annual rate of 3.7 percent in the January-March quarter.

The report "tells us that the best news on productivity is behind us," said economist Michael Niemira of Mitsubishi Bank in New York City.

"We've seen a cyclical pickup in productivity in the last couple of years, which is normal in a recovery," he said. "But we've now turned the corner and very convincingly."

Niemira said he expects small productivity gains for the remainder of the year.

The report said unit labor costs rose at an annual rate of 3.4 percent, more than the 2 percent initially reported. Unit labor costs rose 3.1 percent in the first quarter.

Hourly compensation increased at an annual rate of 0.8 percent, the smallest increase since the first quarter of 1988.

About two-thirds of the cost of a product comes from labor costs.

The report caused no stirring on Wall Street, where investors waited for other inflation-gauging economic reports due out Thursday and Friday. Jittery investors have reacted negatively to any signs of inflation, which drives down the value of their holdings.

The Labor Department said output was up 2.7 percent, but that was lower than the 4.1 percent rate initially reported. Output increased 5.2 percent in the first quarter.

The lower productivity came as the number of hours workers were on the job shot up at the highest level in six years. The number of hours worked increased 5.4 percent, the Labor Department said. That was the biggest increase since the April-June quarter of 1988, when a rise of 6.1 percent was reported.

Economists have expected productivity to slow and even decline some as companies added new workers and the current business cycle began maturing. Many companies boosted payrolls to meet expected higher demand for their products and services, but analysts have said the demand was not as strong as anticipated.

"When we were getting good productivity gains, we also were getting very slow employment growth," Niemira said. "Obviously a pickup in employment is good news, but the downside of that is that the pickup is bringing with it less productivity."

Economists watch growth in productivity for insights into long-term economic trends. Over time, productivity determines the nation's living standards and the competitiveness of its products overseas. Strong productivity is more likely to hold off inflationary pressures.

Robert Palmer, president of Digital Equipment Corp., displays the world's fastest and highest-performance microprocessor, the Alpha AXP 21164, introduced by Digital Wednesday.

Digital offers new high-powered microprocessor

N.Y. Times News Service

MAYNARD, Mass. — Digital Equipment Corp. introduced the next generation of its Alpha AXP 64-bit microprocessor Wednesday and laid claim to having the world's fastest and highest-performance chip.

The speed of the new chip may bolster Digital's competitive position in the hotly contested market for computer systems. The financially troubled computer maker has bet its future on the Alpha AXP chip, offering a range of computer systems, from personal computers to powerful mid-range systems, based on the new technology.

In addition, Digital hopes the fast performance of the chip will help it gain acceptance among other computer-systems vendors.

Digital said that the new chip surpassed the company's own speed record, accomplished by an Alpha AXP microprocessor introduced in 1993, and that the chip was at least two to three times faster than competitors like Intel Corp.'s Pentium and the Power PC from IBM, Motorola, and Apple Computer.

Robert B. Palmer, Digital's president and chief executive, said the Alpha AXP 21164, which is based on RISC, or reduced instruction set computing, was nearly four times faster than the original Alpha AXP chip, introduced in February 1992.

Palmer said the chip was the first to reach 1 billion instructions per second. Computer performance is generally measured in millions of instructions per second.

Digital introduced a 266 MHz version of the new chip, priced at $1,865, and a 300 MHz version, priced at $2,669. The prices are based on quantities of 5,000.

But Palmer said products utilizing the new chips would not be available for "nine months to a year."

Digital, which has lost $4 billion in the last four years, is depending on its customers to shift from its best-selling but outdated VAX technology to Alpha-based systems. About 6,000 software applications are now available for Alpha AXP systems, the company says.

Airlines slash fares in latest price skirmish

N.Y. Times News Service

Most of the nation's largest airlines on Wednesday lined up like lemmings behind the latest of what seems to be a never-ending string of air fare sales, saying they would match the new bargain prices offered Tuesday night by Continental Airlines.

However, budget-minded travelers who didn't take advantage of fall fare sale initiated by Continental last month, likely will pinch themselves when they discover that in most markets, the latest price cuts don't go as deep as those that expired Aug. 26.

American and Delta airlines, the dominant carriers at Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, said Wednesday that they will match Continental's price cuts in competitive markets. In fact, all of the nation's major airlines except discount king Southwest Airlines of Dallas, moved Wednesday to match Continental's pricing initiative. Southwest already has fares as low or lower than Continental's sale fares.

The new fare sale — which is good for travel through Dec. 14 with some popular holiday travel dates blacked out — ostensibly features fare cuts of up to 50 percent off the regular price of standard 14-day advance purchase round-trip ticket aimed primarily at leisure travelers.

But Tom Parsons, editor and publisher of Best Fares Discount Travel Magazine in Arlington, Texas, said most of the price cuts seem to be in the 25 percent to 30 percent range, especially in markets that host hub airports, such as Dallas/Fort Worth Airport, which is a hub for American and Delta airlines.

"In the hub cities like D/FW, Continental is trying to keep their major competitors like American happy by not slashing fares too drastically," Parsons said.

"With their last fare sale, the one that ended Aug. 26, (Continental) upset a lot of other airlines when they went into a lot of those other carriers' hub markets and cut the fares drastically, like by 50 percent. For example: last time, Continental cut the St. Louis-to-San Francisco fare to $178 round trip. This time it's $338.

INVESTORS' GUIDE

Limits set on annual savings bond purchases

By Bill Doyle

Q: I bought Series EE U.S. savings bonds, from March through November in 1993, paying a total of $58,750. At that time, I did not know and I was not informed I was not supposed to purchase such a large amount. Only several weeks later was I told by the bank that I should not have gone over $50,000.

Doyle

Now, I don't know what to do about it. Can you put something in your column about this? Is there a penalty involved?

A: For openers, the information you received from the bank is wrong. There is a limit on the amount each person is allowed to put into EE bonds registered in his or her name each year. But it is far lower than $50,000.

That maximum annual amount is $15,000, which will buy $30,000 face amount of EE bonds. Remember that an EE bond is guaranteed to double in value by the end of its initial maturity period. So, $15,000 put into EEs now will become at least $30,000 after 24 years.

You might have an "out" here, if those bonds you bought are not all registered in your name. If they are in co-ownership form — your name "or" another person's name — the limit can be apportioned between the co-owners, effectively doubling the limit to $30,000 purchase price and $60,000 face value.

Forget about being hit with with an out-of pocket penalty. When EE bonds are bought in excess of the annual limit, one of two things can happen:

■ If the beyond-the-limit purchases were inadvertent, things are allowed to stand.

■ If the excess buying is ruled to be a purposeful violation of the rules, you would be forced to deem the extra bonds you purchased, at the price you paid for them. That means you would not receive any interest for the time you held the bonds. If you are so inclined, you can call that a "penalty," but it would not require you to fork over any money.

Q: So far this year, I have already invested $15,000 in EE bonds, all registered in my name and Social Security number. Suppose I buy more EEs and my name and Social Security number does not show up anywhere on those bonds.

For example, if I have the new bonds registered in the names and Social Security numbers of my grandchild and his mother, would that be allowed?

A: Yes. The annual limit applies to ownership of EEs — not to the people who purchase those bonds.

If your generosity allows you to do so, you can invest $15,000 in EEs each and every year for as many people as you please.

Q: I have bought EE bonds through the payroll savings plan at work, as well as through several banks and savings and loan associations. My employer does not know about my other savings bond purchases. Nor does each bank and S&L know I am buying bonds at work and elsewhere.

So, how in the world will the government ever find out if I exceed the $15,000 EE annual purchase limit?

A: Records of savings bond purchases and ownership are maintained by the Treasury Department's Bureau of the Public Debt. Excess EE purchases show up on that bureau's computers.

Until several years ago, even the sharpest-eyed computers had difficulty spotting such things. But the bureau's Regional Delivery System has greatly simplified things.

The RDS started in 1990 and began operating nationwide late in 1992.

TO FIND OUT HOW EASY IT IS TO PLAY, CALL CITYLINE AT 560-2400 AND PRESS 1111 FOR DETAILS ON THE "IT'S 4U" GAME.

INTRODUCING THE NEW CITYLINE SERVICE DIRECTORIES, THE PERMIAN BASIN'S HANDY NEW ADVERTISING INNOVATION AND THE NEWEST GAME IN TOWN - IT'S 4U!

The lively new easy-to-use Cityline service directories put you in touch with advertisers, doctors, contractors, insurance professionals, personal service consultants and all kinds of services – 24 hours a day.

Use it often and get updated information such as special discounts and events from advertisers in the Permian Basin Area Wide Phone Book.

It's as easy to use as your telephone – and even easier to win Prizes, Prizes and more Prizes everyday – one of 40 prizes worth more than $4,000 – by playing the "It's 4U" Game.

SAVE THE SPECIAL SERVICE DIRECTORY SECTION IN TODAY'S MIDLAND REPORTER-TELEGRAM.
You'll want to keep it for its useful information and use it to play the "It's 4U" game.

PERMIAN BASIN Cityline

A 24 HOUR INFORMATION SERVICE

560-2400

"It's 4U" Game Rules
Anyone 18 years or older can enter except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Brite Systems Inc., Associated Publishing Co., and their advertising and promotion agencies.The "It's 4U" Game is designed for people who live in the Midland and Odessa calling areas and no purchase is required to play or win prizes, although long distance toll charges may apply if you call from outside the Midland-Odessa calling area. Look for the "It's 4U" Game ad in advertisers' service directory in the Midland Reporter-Telegram every day until Oct. 30, 1994. Call 560-2400 and enter any four-digit advertiser's code listed in the directory. You will hear a brief advertiser's message and, if you are one of five instant winners chosen at random each week, you'll win one of that week's prizes. If you are an instant winner, listen for details about claiming your prize. In order to claim your prize, you will be required to give your name, age, address and telephone number. The more often you call, the better your chance of winning a prize. You can also enter a second chance drawing for unclaimed prizes by hand-printing your complete name and address and daytime phone number on a 3"x5" piece of paper and mailing it in an envelope to "It's 4U" Second Chance Game, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702, so that it is received before the deadline, Oct. 30, 1994. Enter as often as you wish, but submit only one entry in each envelope. Entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned. Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Monday and ends at 11:59 p.m. Sunday. Each week for eight weeks ending Oct. 30, 1994, five entries will be selected at random and will win that week's prize. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the "It's 4U" game will equal $4,000 or more. The names and cities of winners will be published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram Classified Ads pages. No substitution of prizes is permitted. Only one prize will be awarded to each winner. By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Void where prohibited. © 1994 HEARST CORPORATION. ALL RIGHTS RESERVED.

HAPPINESS IS AN EXTRA

$350-$800 A MONTH!!!

As a Midland Reporter-Telegram distributor you're an independent contractor running your own small business. Depending on the size of the route(s) you can earn from $350 to $800 monthly, and in some cases, even more!

Actual delivery takes 1 - 2 hours Monday - Saturday, and 2 - 3 hours on Sunday, depending on the size of the route. Papers must be delivered by 6 a.m. on weekdays and 7 a.m. on weekends.

You'll need a valid driver's license, and a dependable vehicle. A modest cash bond is also required to get your small business started.

For more information call the Circulation Department or apply in person

Midland Reporter-Telegram

201 E. Illinois

688-2700

The Midland Reporter-Telegram has an opening on one of its few "Special Allowance" routes. This larger route receives a $25 check each Friday in addition to the regular monthly route profits. The route is in the Loop 250 and Midkiff area.

As with all newspaper distributorships, this opportunity requires a 7 day a week commitment (when you go out of town, you must arrange a substitute for yourself) and it is early morning work.

Newspaper distributorships provide great supplemental income for anyone willing to work early morning hours. These routes require a small deposit.

ODESSA COLLEGE

ODESSA (Aug. 25,1994)—Divorce, bankruptcy, sexual harrassment, criminal law and wills are among topics to be discussed during 12 community law forums being conducted by Odessa College Sept. 8 through Dec. 1. The public is invited to attend these forums which will give information on various aspects of the law. Sessions will be held from 7-9:30 p.m. on Thursdays in the Electronics Technology Building, Room 130. There is no charge for attending and no reservation is required.

The first session is entitled "Family Law." Subjects to be covered in this session are marriage, protective orders, divorce, custody, property, collection of child support and visitation and support. Local judges and attorneys participating in this forum will be 244th District Judge Joe Connally, Glenn Pipes, Kathy Wilson, Assistant District Attorney Preston Stevens, Diane Lee, Lilly Plummer, B.J. Brown and Brenda Titus.

"Criminal Law" is the topic of the Sept. 15 seminar in which traffic, licensing and misdemeanor law, DWI, sentencing and probation and local court procedures will be discussed.

For more information, call Odessa College at 335-6861.

SBA Workshop

The M.A.N.O. Chamber of Commerce is sponsoring a Small Business Administration workshop. The workshop will feature the loan application process on applying for an SBA loan. It will also include the process for the 504 loan. The speaker for the session will be Mr. Armando Garcia.

DATE: September 12
TIME: 6:00-9:00pm
PLACE: Southside Senior Citizens Center
900 S. Dixie

Can we afford the Hispanic male dropout rate?

By Joseph A. Fernandez

As early as the year 2010, the Hispanic population may be the largest minority group in the United States.

Even sooner, possibly by the year 2000, Hispanics will constitute the greatest number of minority children under age 18.

This is why it is so disconcerting that while high school dropout rates of most racial and ethnic groups have declined over the past several decades, that of Hispanics has shown little sign of decreasing.

According to a report by the General Accounting Office, in 1990 the dropout rate for Hispanics between ages 16 and 24 was about 30 percent.

That's 66 percent higher than the next largest group, African-Americans, who had an 18 percent dropout rate. Whites had a 10 percent dropout rate, one-third the rate of Hispanics.

At first glance, these numbers may not appear alarming. But when considered in relation to the labor force, they take on a new importance, especially for Hispanic males.

In 1993, the U.S. Department of Labor reported that 12 percent of white male workers in the labor force and 18.5 percent of African-Americans male workers were high school dropouts. But an outrageous 41.6 percent of Hispanic male workers had dropped out.

America has entered the era in which a post secondary education is necessary for more than half the occupations that will become available in the future. The competition for jobs fierce. It is not surprising, then, that Hispanic male workers hold the lowest-skilled and lowest-paying jobs.

Of Hispanic males in managerial positions, only 8 percent are dropouts. Of Hispanic males in farming, forestry and fishing, 77.6 percent are high school dropouts.

With a median full-time annual salary of $13,435, Hispanic males without a high school diploma make 39 percent of what Hispanic male college graduates earn — $34,099 annually. Only 9.6 percent of employed Hispanic males are college graduates.

While the U.S. economy continues to wax and wane, worrying even the wealthiest people, many of the children of today's working poor are not being educated and are sealing their fate: a future of low-wage, low-skill careers.

Understanding why the dropout rate is so high among Hispanic males lies partly in understanding Hispanic culture.

It is very common in poor Hispanic households for children to drop out of school to help support the family by working at part-time or full-time jobs.

UNAM celebrates 50th anniversary of San Antonio Branch

SAN ANTON10 - The initial emergence of the presence of the National Autonomous University of Mexico in San Antonio did not stem from a planned program by the institution to spread its wings beyond the national borders. On the contrary, from its inception, the history of UNAM in the United States is an unusual one which was to unravel in a most interesting fashion in the years to come. It is a history involving many individuals and personal moments. Indeed, it would seem to be quite by accident that a group of Mexicans living outside their country of origin, spurred on by a fellow Mexican citizen, combined their ideals, hopes and longings, which in turn gave birth to the idea of hosting courses on Mexican culture and language by eminent scholars of Mexico. This idea was later promoted in collaboration with the Mexican government until in 1944 it became a reality. The first courses of the National University of Mexico began most enthusiastically thus affirming the need of the Mexican community in San Antonio to maintain links with its cultural heritage and history. Henceforth, a first chapter was opened in the history of a special relationship between the Community of San Antonio and UNAM.

During the period covering 1944-1971, yearly courses were held at different locations in San Antonio although Trinity University hosted these courses for almost fifteen years. Some of the most outstanding scholars of Mexico visited San Antonio during those years leaving behind a strong tradition and legacy of excellence. Hundreds of students from diverse cultural and social backgrounds participated in these yearly events and each came away not only with acquired learning and knowledge but also with unique memories of special people they had met and experiences-had lived. There is no doubt that the perception many San Antonians held of Mexico, its people, history and culture changed during those years as a result of these courses.

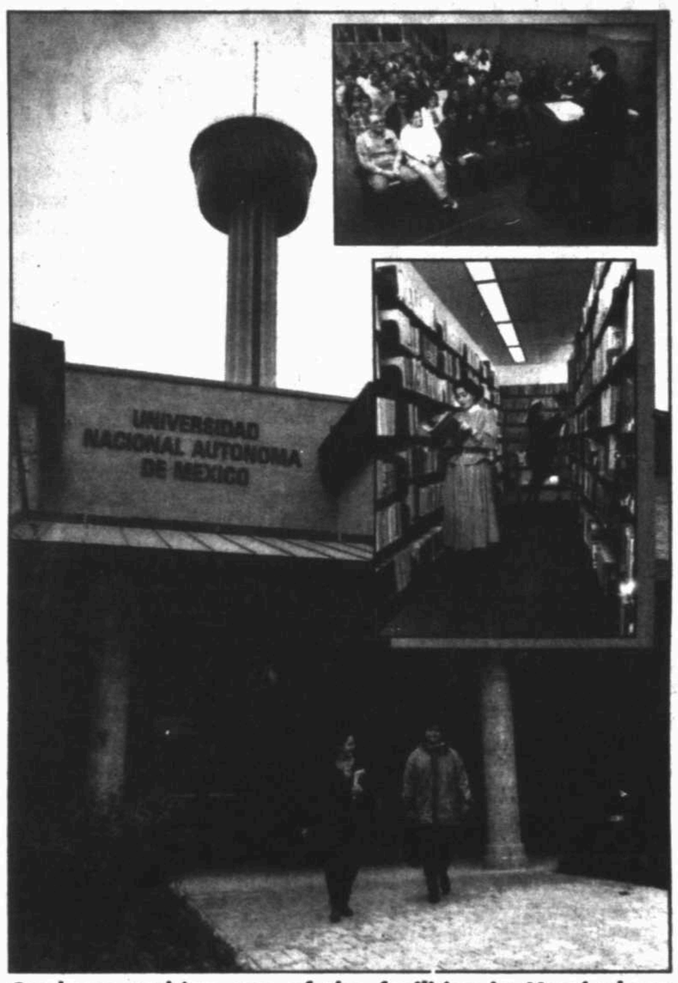

Interestingly, although the major driving force behind the courses in its initial phase was a group of dedicated Mexican citizens, a non profit organization was born from within the community in 1952 with the sole purpose and responsibility of facilitating and continuing these courses until 1972.

The year 1972 opened a new chapter of this history, when under the auspices of the Mexican government and at the invitation of the City of San Antonio, Lic. Luís Echeverría, the President of Mexico of that time inaugurated a school in the heart of San Antonio on the grounds of Hemisfair Park where the famous World Fair Exhibition had taken place in 1968. This Permanent Extension School of UNAM, as it was to be called, would hold year round courses on Mexico and the Spanish language. The National University continued to send some of its most qualified professors to continue the legacy set forth by their previous scholars. There is no doubt that the nature of the courses did change in keeping with the growing needs and interests of the San Antonio community.

The next significant event for the development of UNAM in San Antonio took place in 1986 with the inauguration of a new building in Hemisfair Park replacing the previous location which no longer met the needs of the campus. This endeavor was effectuated by the City of San Antonio under the direction of former Mayor Henry Cisneros, also former student at the school. Furthermore, a new support group drawn from key community members and leaders, collaborated closely during this important phase.

The campus continued to grow and prosper not only in keeping with the original purpose of reach-

Corredora inspiró para intentar el tetratlón

Por Jeffrey McDonald

Para algunos, un programa de ejercicio y buena salud envuelve correr, mientras otros siguen el ciclismo. Todavía otros prefieren natación. Elena Reyes prefiere las tres.

"Siempre he trabajado fuera, desde que tenía dieciséis o diecisiete," dijo Reyes, una secretaria con la Compañía de Marathon Oil, en Midland. "Siempre he hecho ejercicio y aerobics Y tomé natación hace dos años."

"Y cuándo comencé a nadar, no podía dar ni una vuelta! Quiero decir, que puedo nadar, pero no con el propósito de ejercicio. Así que fui y finalmente aprendí a cómo nadar cincuenta vueltas."

Reyes campo atraviesa, sigue una variedad atlética y programas de ejercicio, pagando con resoltados cuándo entró al Triathlon Tall City 1994, el cual se tiene cada verano en Midland.

"El tetratlón? Fue el 20 de agosto, y era nadar 500 metros, andar en bicicleta 20 kilometros y luego 5-kilometros de carrera, "dijo Reyes. "Y llegué en segundo lugar en la categoría de mujeres del grupo de 30-34 de edad."

Reyes está particularmente orgullosa de su realización en el tetrelón desde que se impuso la meta que tenía recientemente fija y la cual representó un genuino desafío.

"En el año último, estaba participando en diferentes eventos del Permian Basin Road Runners," dijo Reyes, refiriendose a un grupo de corredores, y corredores de caminatas de Midland quienes eran anfitriones de varios eventos de carretas y caminatas en el Permian Basin todo el año- muchos de los cuales son patrocinados por organizaciones sin ganancia locales. "Estaba involucrada en algunas de las carreras. Y en un evento saque el segundo lugar, y en otro saque el primer."

Fue el ultimo evento, el de los 10,000 de Tall Town, una combinación de eventos de carreras 10-kilometros y 5-kilometros que beneficiaron al Programa Palmer Drug Abuse, Reyes aprendió del tetration.

"Probé el de Tall Town y saque primer lugar," recordó. "Y la gente habló acetca de este tetratlón. Y fue lo que me motivó para competir. Y eso fue lo qué me inspiró para intentar el tetratlón."

Preparaciones y entrenamiento para el evento presentaron un desafío, de igual manera para alguien como Reyes quien tenía la

Motivated runner turns tri-athlete

For some, a program of exercise and fitness involves running, while others pursue cycling. Still others prefer swimming. Helen Reyes prefers all three.

"I've always worked out, ever since I was sixteen or seventeen," said Reyes, a secretary with Marathon Oil Company, in Midland. "I've always worked out, and the aerobics. And I took up swimming two years ago."

"And when I started, I couldn't swim a lap! I mean, I could swim, but not for exercise purposes. So I went and finally learned how to swim fifty laps."

Reyes' cross-training, pursuing a variety of athletic and exercise programs, paid off when she entered the 1994 Tall City Triathlon, which is held each summer in Midland.

"The triathlon? It was August 20th, and it was a 500-meter swim, a 20-kilometer bike ride, and then a 5-kilometer run," said Reyes. "And I came in second-place in the women's category of the 30-34 age group."

Reyes is particularly proud of her accomplishment in triathlon since it was a goal that she had only recently set for herself, and it represented a genuine challenge.

"In the last year, I was participating in some different running events that were put on by the Permian Basin Road Runners," said Reyes, referring to a Midland-based group of runners, joggers and race-walkers who host several running and walking events in the Permian Basin throughout the year - many of which are fundraisers for local non-profit organizations. "I was involved in doing some of the runs. And in one event I got second place, and in another one I got first."

It was at the latter event, the Tall Town 10,000, a set of 10-kilometer and 5-kilometer running events that benefit the Palmer Drug Abuse Program, that Reyes learned of the upcoming triathlon.

"I tried the Tall Town, and took first place," she recalled. "And people there talked about this triathlon, and said it was coming up. And that kind of motivated me to try it. And that's what inspired me to try triathlon."

Preparations and training for the event presented a challenge, even to someone like Reyes who was accustomed to an exercise regimen. And meeting the challenge was not made easier by the West Texas weather.

"Not particularly. I like to stay more indoors when I workout. But not for this," said Reyes. "It was particularly difficult training in that 105, 106 degree weather. So that was pretty tough, where you get off the bike and then go run two or three miles."

"Well, when I was training for the triathlon, I was working out about four times a week, oh, for about an hour-and-a-half. And I would be combining two events together. I would swim, one day, and ride a bike. Or I would ride a bike and jog. Plus about 200 situps a day!"

Reyes points out that an exercise program - any program, not just one training for the triathlon - offers both short-term and long-term benefits to the individual.

"Mainly, I exercise because my health is important, and I enjoy it," she explained. "It's a great stress reliever and it's a good way to meet lots of people."

"I would definitely encourage anyone, of any age group, to be involved in some type of exercise program. It's given me a lot of satisfaction. I find it fun and enjoyable and the results are very rewarding. Sometimes people are reluctant, because they say, 'I can't fit it into my schedule.' But I think a person is worth taking time for themselves, and taking an hour each day, or a few times a week. It's good for the mind and body!"

Reyes adds there is also a sense of accomplishment and pride that comes from setting goals, and achieving them.

"I was proud of myself, proud that I had accomplished this goal that I set out for myself, four months ago," she explained, adding that she is considering longer, more demanding races in the future. "Well, I'll tell you, I wont be afraid to tackle them if they come my way. Because I was afraid of this [the triathlon] when I first started. But I felt so good when I finished this, when I crossed the line. I felt so good that I was able to accomplish this!"

From salsa to hamburgers, tastes cross the border

(NU) - From tortillas and tacos on Main Street U.S.A. to hamburgers and fries on the Paseo de Reforma avenue in Mexico City, hungry consumers in both the United States and Mexico are developing a growing appetite for cross-border cuisine.

Traditional Mexican specialties are rapidly becoming staples of the U.S. diet. U.S. tortilla sales total $1.84 billion a year and are expected to reach $3 billion by next year. More than four billion tamales are expected to be sold annually in the United States by 1997.

Tex-Mex and other Mexican food have become increasingly popular fare at restaurants such as Chi-Chi's and Taco Bell.

Cross-Cultural Appetites

With the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) now in place, it is easier for companies in both countries to meet U.S. consumer demand for authentic Mexican ingredients. Ben & Jerry's Homemade Inc., the Vermont-based ice cream manufacturer, is importing coffee beans from the Mexican state of Chiapas to make its coffee ice cream.

And the Montes Group, a Mexican confectioner, expects to bring its popular hard candies and toffees to the United States.

Traditional American fast-food chains have also gotten into the act. McDonald's now offers chicken fajitas on its menu, while Wendy's is considering installing a "salsa bar," to use for toppings on sandwiches, baked potatoes and french fries.

Salsa is a particularly good measure of just how hot Mexican cuisine has become in the United States. Salsa sales in 1992 reached $546 million, and are expected to hit $1.5 billion in 1996 — exceeding even ketchup sales.

"Salsa is as mainstream as hot dogs and apple pie these days," said Katie Barclay, marketing manager for New York-based Heluva Good Cheese, which recently added Heluva Good Salsa to its product line.

The appetite for Mexican food in the United States has been equaled by the growing appetite for American food south of the border. Just as Americans are devouring chili nachos and tortilla chips at a record pace, Mexicans also are clamoring for American favorites such as hamburgers, donuts, pizza and ice cream.

Sales in Mexico from fast-food chains such as McDonald's, Kentucky Fried Chicken and Domino's Pizza and supermarket staples such as Tyson Foods chicken and Sara Lee desserts are growing steadily.

Partnerships in Taste

Increasingly, U.S. and Mexican companies are entering into joint ventures to satisfy cross-border appetites. Grupo Bimbo, a Mexican food products company, will now be able to market its goods throughout the United States, thanks to a partnership with Texas-based Mrs. Baird's Bakeries Inc.

In Mexico, Bimbo also has established joint ventures with Sara Lee Corp. and Wonder Bread, which is now baking "authentic" soft tortillas.

This cross-cultural exchange in cuisine has generated some very creative culinary combinations. The Good Earth, a Minneapolis, Minn., restaurant chain that specializes in health food dishes, now offers its customers pineapple and cranberry salsas. Some like it hot — and healthy too!

LowDoc program boosts loans to women. minorities and veterans

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Small Business Administration's (SBA) acclaimed new LowDoc program has passed the $100 million mark since going nationwide in July, posting strong gains in loans made to minorities, women-owned businesses and veterans, SBA Administrator Erskine Bowles said today.

"This program is doing exactly what we wanted it to do so far," Bowles said. "It is breaking through the gridlock of paperwork that kept commercial banks from making these smaller loans, and is offering dramatic proof of the heavy demand for this kind of loan. LowDoc is encouraging the dreams of thousands of entrepreneurs, boosting the nation's economy and financing the creation of new jobs.

" LowDoc — shorthand for low documentation loans — is based on a one-page application form for loans under $100,000. The program makes SBA's basic business loan guarantee program more user friendly than it's ever been, Bowles said.

Combining a greatly simplified application process with a rapid response from SBA loan officers — as little as two or three days — LowDoc slashes pages and pages of bureaucracy and red tape out of the loan process.

Thus far, SBA has made 2,126 LowDoc loans worth more than $102 million, for an average of $47,977. Twenty-four percent have gone to businesses owned by women, 20 percent to businesses owned by minorities and 16 percent to businesses owned by veterans. Forty-five percent have been made in rural areas and 69 percent have been for new businesses.

"In Region VI — serving Arkansas, Louisiana, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas — 1875 LowDoc loans, eighty-eight percent of all LowDoc loans nationwide, have been approved as of July 31, 1994 for a total of $90,377,000. Twenty percent of those loans went to minority-owned businesses, twenty-three percent to women-owned businesses, and sixteen percent to Veteran-owned businesses. Fifty percent have been made to businesses in rural areas," said Regional Administrator James Breedlove. The regional totals include the loans made since the beginning of the pilot project.

SBA tested limited documentation loans in Texas, beginning in late 1993, to overcome the red tape associated with applying for and, for lenders, making loans under $100,000. Bowles expanded the program nationwide in July 1994, citing the fact that volume in that region for loans under $100,000 tripled over the same six-month period a year earlier.

LowDoc applies to loans of under $100,000 made by banks and guaranteed up to 90 percent by SBA. The approval process focuses on character, credit and business experience and loans can be made for an existing business, a business purchase, or a business start-up. LowDoc relies heavily on a lender's experience and judgment of a borrower's credit history and character. The primary considerations are the borrower's willingness and ability to repay debts, as shown by his or her personal and business credit history, and by past or projected business cash flow. No predetermined percentage of equity is required and lack of full collateral is not necessarily a determining factor.

The application form for loans under $50,000 consists of a single page. Applications for loans from $50,000 to $100,000 include that short form application plus the applicant's income tax returns for the previous three years and personal financial statements from all other guarantors and co-owners of the business.

"In our continuing effort to improve turn-around-time on loan processing, the SBA Houston office processed two Low Doc loans electronically on August 24, using the new Tsoft financial software. The total processing time for both loans, including final approval and response to the bank was 45 minutes," said Breedlove. "We can expect to see substantial improvement in our processing time once our loan officers are trained on the software package. Electronic processing allows a loan officer to process loans in a complete paperless environment."

Any small business eligible under the regular 7(a) loan program can apply under LowDoc if its average annual sales for the previous three years is $5,000,000 or less and it employs 100 or fewer individuals, including the owner, partners, or principals.

The program recently won a National Performance Review Hammer Award from Vice President Al Gore, who cited it for "making tremendous advances in customer service and cutting bureaucratic red tape."

PERMISO DE CONSTRUCION
A TODAS LAS PERSONAS Y ENTIDADES INTERESADAS:

Por el presente se lea notifica que Refugio para Control de Animales de la Ciudad de Midland ha solicitado un Permiso de Calidad de Aire Numero 25626 de la Comision de Conservacion de Recursos Naturales de Tejas (TNRCC o Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission). Si se aprueba este permiso, se autorizara la construccion de una incinerador para desperdicios patologicos en Midland, condado de Midland, Tejas. El sitio de la planta propuesta es 1200 N. Los Hispanos educados tienen mas cultura que otros grupos

Palabras de Mónica Gómez, 16 años, participante del Programa Fulbright de Intercambio Estudiantil.

Por Edwin Sotomayor

Mónica Gómez nació en Quito, Ecuador, hace 16 años, es hija de Federico Gómez Guarderas, industrial y hacendado, y Luciana Wilford de Gómez, antropóloga graduada en la histórica y prestigiosa universidad española de Salamanca. Siendo estudiante del quinto curso (equivalente al 11ſ grado en los E.U.A.) del colegio de secundaria Cardenal Spellman, de la capital de Ecuador, Mónica -gracias a sus excelentes calificaciones en inglés y las demás materias- consiguió el patrocinio de la Cámara de Agricultura de la provincia del Pichincha, Ecuador, y de la agencia de la Comisión Fulbright de los E.U.A. en Quito, para participar en el ampliamente conocido programa de intercambio internacional de estudiantes y profesores fundado por el Senador norteamericano James William Fulbright en 1946. Para sorpresa de Mónica, fue destinada a la secundaria Lee, en Midland, Tejas. Ella esperaba una 'high school' en California ó Florida. Pero de esa emoción de sorpresa sólo ha quedado un tenue recuerdo, porque ahora ha sido reemplazada por un enorme contento en el corazón de Mónica, y a estas alturas ella no cambiaría la secundaria Lee de Midland por ninguna otra 'high school' de los E.U.A. En sus propias palabras nos dice: "a las pocas horas de arribar a Midland y conocer a los Torres (la familia que hospeda a Mónica), sentí que estaba en algo así como una prolongación de mi casa. Todo el mundo me abrazaba y me tuteaba. Me hablaban con tanta familiaridad y cariño que me hacían emocionar. Y sentía un nudo en la garganta por la alegría de verme aceptada y querida desde el primer instante, como si me hubieran conocido de siempre. En esos momentos no sabía que también la demás gente de Midland tenía tanto calor humano como los Torres. El primer día de mi asistencia a la secundaria fue igualmente algo muy bonito para mí. Los profesores me hicieron sentir con mucha confianza. Y mis compañeros me hacían tantas preguntas amistosas e inteligentes, que me dí cuenta de que verdaderamente yo les interesaba como persona y que estaban dispuestos a ayudarme en todo lo que se me ofreciera.

!En verdad no cambiaría esta secundaria de Midland por ninguna otra!

Y Mónica nos sigue hablando de sus principales intereses en esta excitante etapa de su vida como estudiante de intercambio en los E.U.A. "Las materias que más me gustan son Estudios Sociales y Geografía. Porque uno debe conocer sobre las condiciones de vida de las demás gentes, su desarrollo, sus necesidades, sus aspiraciones como sociedad organizada, cómo se están solucionando sus problemas de supervivencia. Y así mismo uno debe saber, por lo menos, la ubicación de los demás países del mundo, sus principales ciudades, sus recursos naturales, sus accidentes geográficos como las montañas, ríos, lagos, selvas, para así tener una idea del planeta en el cual vivimos y al cual debemos amar y mantener limpio para que todos podamos existir sanamente. La defensa del ambiente natural y de las especies en peligro de extinción, es algo que me apasiona desde que estaba en la escuela primaria. Mis padres siempre me han apoyado en esto y en todo proyecto escolar que se me ha asignado para mis tareas trimestrales de grupo. Mi padre, como hacendado cuidadoso que es, me ha enseñado el amor y el respeto a la naturaleza.

Mi madre, como antropóloga que ha viajado por muchos países, me ha enseñado, en cambio, la admiración y la apreciación positiva para todas las naciones y culturas del mundo. Gracias a los conocimientos que tienen mis padres, a su ejemplo continuo, a las personas cultivadas que tienen como amistades por toda

Mónica Gómez, brillante estudiante hispana del Programa de Intercambio Fulbright.

Hispanoamérica y Europa, especialmente España, me he dado cuenta perfectamente de que los hispanos cuando alcanzan una buena educación, sin importar la clase social de la cual vengan, siempre tienen mucha más cultura universal que las personas de los demás pueblos y grupos de la humanidad. Y eso es porque el hispano tiene una sed de saber sobre todo lo visible e invisible, y no sólo sobre una vocación en especial 'y ahí pare usted de contar', como dice el dicho. Otra cosa que hace que el grupo hispano sea superior en cuestión de conocimientos y cultura, es que es el único grupo en el mundo que defiende su idioma en forma organizada, a través de una institución central del idioma, como es la Real Academia Española de la Lengua. Por eso, el hispano, cuando conoce bien su idioma, es en el mundo el que mejor habla su propia lengua. Los demás pueblos no hablan ni saben su propio idioma como el hispano culto, porque no tienen una Academia de la Lengua, como la española, que los oriente y les dé la perfección necesaria para hacerlo. Esa es mi opinión sincera y creo que no me equivoco.

Nos quedamos un instante en silencio. Pensamos: ¿quién es esta chiquilla sentada frente a nosotros que habla como una profesora universitaria experimentada? ¿De dónde ha sacado semejante vocabulario y fraseología de conferencista de asamblea? Hasta sentimos algo de maravilla por la rapidez conque esta adolescente lanza al aire pensamientos de bastante peso. La curiosidad es muy grande, así que le preguntamos: ¿dónde aprendiste todo eso que has dicho y, sobre todo, quién te enseñó a hablar como maestra de oratoria? Y ante nuestras palabras y expresión de asombro, Mónica nos lanza una carcajada que nos desconcierta aún más. Pero luego recupera su compostura y nos explica: "mi abuelito fue rector de la Pontificia Universidad Católica de San Francisco de Quito. El era un magnífico orador y un enciclopedista notable, además de abogado y doctor en Teología. Cuando yo estaba en el vientre de mi mamá, ó sea antes de nacer obviamente, mi abuelito se acercaba a la barriga de ella y me hablaba. Hacía eso casi todos los días. Me daba discursos, me leía pasajes de toda clase de libros. Me 'enseñaba' materias de la secundaria y de la universidad. También me recitaba poemas de autores clásicos y me cantaba arias de óperas famosas. Tenía una bellísima voz de tenor. Y cuando yo nací mi abuelito continuó haciendo lo mismo, cada fin de semana, hasta el año pasado, cuando su alma bendita dejó su cuerpo. O sea que tuve el mejor maestro del mundo en todas las materias y artes de la cultura universal. Yo pienso que a eso se debe toda mi facilidad de expresión, que la he tenido desde que estaba en el jardín de infantes. Un sicólogo, amigo de mi hermano mayor, está seguro de que lo que hizo mi abuelito fue lo apropiado para despertar y desarrollar todos los niveles de mi capacidad para aprender, y que si eso se hiciera con todos lo niños, no habría en el mundo nadie ignorante ó perezoso para aprender. Así que yo he sido muy, pero muy afortunada. ¿No es eso grandioso, que una cosa así le haya pasado en su vida a una muchacha como yo?

Y claro que es algo grandioso. Concordamos ampliamente con nuestra entrevistada. Luego, pensando en el futuro de esta excelente estudiante del programa de intercambio, inquirimos: ¿piensas seguir alguna carrera universitaria? Y Mónica nos responde, "claro que sí. Pienso estudiar dos profesiones universitarias. Ecología tropical y biología marina. Para defender las selvas del Amazonas que están consideradas como los pulmones que purifican la atmósfera de la Tierra, y también para defender a las ballenas, las focas y otras especies del mar, amenazadas por los barcos cazadores de esos hermosos y muy necesarios animales para el equilibrio de la llamada cadena alimenticia. Esas son mis metas por ahora. Espero que para lograrlas mi familia me siga apoyando como hasta ahora lo ha estado haciendo.

Le pedimos a nuestra entrevistada sus últimas palabras para nuestros lectores. Y con una amplia sonrisa, Mónica concluye diciendo: "me gustaría dirigir mis palabras a toda las gentes jóvenes del oeste de Tejas, para decirles que únicamente avanzando en las diferentes etapas de su educación van a poder encontrar un significado en su vida, y que -entonces- se alejen de la tentación de las drogas, el alcohol, los graffiti obscenos, las fiestas salvajes, el conducir a velocidades ilegales, el sexo sin protección, las trasnochadas, y todo lo que les hace daño en su salud y les deja un vacío en sus vidas porque no les lleva a ninguna parte. !Chao!

Another day older and deeper in debt

By ROSS PEROT

DALLAS — In the excitement over the crime bill and health care, we have avoided dealing with our most fundamental problem — the debt.

As Congress continues its uninhibited spending spree, let's take the few minutes to look at the numbers.

History teaches us that nations typically do not react to financial problems until a catastrophe occurs. The magnitude of our financial problem is so great that we must have the self-discipline to deal with it — now.

Read page 25 of the 1995 Clinton Budget Plan, and you will find a chart forecasting that the next generation to be born will pay 82 percent of wages in taxes, leaving only 18 cents out of every dollar earned to support the family.

Clearly, this would be the end of the American Dream.

The world's last superpower should have substantial cash reserves to allow it to immediately react to emergencies. Instead, we are $4.6 trillion in debt.

We go into debt an additional $1 billion each working day, and we must also make interest payments of almost $1 billion every working day.

The American people have guaranteed over $15 trillion including the banks, savings and loans, small investors in Wall Street, home mortgages, college tuition programs and pension funds.

The unfunded liability for federal pension plans alone is $1.4 trillion. If we wait until financial panic occurs to take action, these guarantees will bankrupt our country.

Time is our enemy. In Churchill's words, we need "Action this day."

In the past, we paid our bills and behaved responsibly. We have accumulated more debt in the last 12 years than in the first 200 years of our country's existence.

How did we get into this mess?

In 1960, when John F. Kennedy was president, the federal government spent only $100 billion.

By the end of the Vietnam War in 1973, Washington spent $200 billion.

Today we are spending $1.5 trillion a year — and Congress is literally working night and day to dramatically increase this number.

Are the American people 15 times better off than in 1960?

NO!

Since 1980, the standard if living has dropped for 80 percent of our families.

A 1950 dollar bill is worth less than 18 cents today. Big government is not working.

The Clinton Economic Plan gave us the largest tax increase in history. It passed by only one vote. (The votes needed to pass this law were brought with several billion dollars of taxpayer money.)

This plan never balances the budget, and it forecasts a $385 billion increase in the debt in the year 2003 — just one year.

The one year increase in our debt in the year 2020 is projected to be $1.5 trillion, an amount equal to our entire federal budget today.

...clearly, this would be the end of the American

This is comparable to having your doctor tell you he has found cancer cells in every part of your body.

To help you understand the magnitude of our problem, just one line in our budget, "overhead," exceeds the entire annual government expenditures of France.

Social Security taxes are projected to exceed 30 percent of each worker's salary in the year 2030, because we are now spending the Social Security surplus to artificially reduce the debt — a shell game being played at the expense of the American people.

If you are still not convinced that we must aggressively and intelligently deal with this problem now — just take a look at how our debt is financed.

Seventy percent of the entire debt is financed short term — five years or less. This is like financing your home mortgage short term. It won't work.

Every time interest rates go up 1 percent, we add $3 billion a year to our debt.

Today, short term interest rates are usually low — 4.75 percent. Short term rates have been as high as 16.25 percent in the last 15 years.

We collect a total of $560 billion in income taxes.

If interest rates increase to an overall average of 12.2 percent, all of the revenue from income taxes would be needed just to pay interest on the debt.

Never forget, interest payments buy nothing for the American people.

Who is going to pay for this mess? Go look in the mirror — you are.

Surely, after spending all of this money, we have created Utopia for our people.

Our only challenge should be to repay the debt.

Instead, after spending trillions of dollars, we have the most violent, crime-ridden society in the industrialized world.

We have 5 percent of the world's population and 50 percent of the world's cocaine use.

Our schools rank near the bottom of the industrialized world. Our cities are in disarray. Our industrial base is decaying. We now have more people working at all levels in government than we do in manufacturing.

(Never forget, we must be a manufacturing superpower within our borders if we want to be able to defend this great country.)

We have the worst of both worlds — we must pay the debt and spend trillions of dollars to solve these problems.

Big government did not work. With this dismal record, why would we even consider letting Washington take over one of our largest and most successful industries — health care?

Every prior generation of Americans passed on a better, stronger country.

Our children and grandchildren depend on us. The whole world depends on us. We must stop this irresponsible trend.

We must impose discipline on spending. Here is a plan of action:

— Develop and publish a detailed financial plan to cut spending and balance the budget.

— Pass the Balanced Budget Amendment to the Constitution. This will force Congress to act responsibly.

— Pass a law that requires the American people to approve any new tax increase by referendum.

— Give the president the line item veto to get rid of pork and waste.

— Start keeping accurate financial records. Tell the people the truth.

— Eliminate off balance sheet accounting and other financial tricks.

— Prepare an audited quarterly financial report for the people to show that we are on schedule in balancing the budget.

Congress must lead by example by cutting its salaries, perks, staff and other expenses.

I can sum up everything I have said with these words:

"The budget should be balanced.

"The Treasury should be refilled.

"Public debt should be reduced.

"The arrogance of public officials should be controlled."

These are not my words. Cicero spoke them 2000 years ago. History does repeat itself.

If you agree that we must resolve the debt problem, write your members of Congress. Urge them to do it. They will listen to you in an election year.

(Ross Perot, independent candidate for president in 1992, is author of "United We Stand: How We Can Take Back Our Country.")

ENFOQUE A LA SALUD

Ser Padres no es algo Facil

Como médico que atiende a los recién nacidos, a menudo me maravillo del contraste entre los pequeñitos indefensos que salen de mi cuidado y la independencia de mis propios 10 hijos de 9 meses a 18 años de edad.

Ser un padre toma flexibilidad, paciencia, consistencia y mucho amor. Esos bultitos desvalidos pronto crecen desafiantes pero muy amorosos con una mente propia ¿Cómo sabe COMO SER un buen padre?

Al contrario de lo que le digan otros, el ser padres no es algo que viene naturalmente. Se deben aprender habilidades para ser buen padre.

La Dra. Lou Ann Mock, psiquiatra del desarrollo de Baylor College of Medicine en Houston ofrece tres sencillas sugerencias:

- Dele amor a sus niños. Demuestre afecto, de suficientes abrazos, alábelos, y enfóquese más en su conducta positiva que en la negativa.
- Atienda las necesidades de ellos. Asegúrese de que se sientan seguros, protegidos y que tengan lo básico—comida, calor, resguardo, seguridad y sobre todo amor.
- Ponga atención a la edad. Los padres de infantes requieren habilidades diferentes que los padres de los niños pequeños, preescolares y adolescentes.

¿El consejo principal de Mock?

"Recuerde que sus niños no pertenecen a usted. Pero son su responsabilidad de criarlos", dice ella. "Piense en ellos como unos visitantes bienvenidos. Su trabajo es prepararlos para el mundo.

A veces en situaciones tensas de la vida cotidiana, es fácil olvidar su papel como padre. A veces es más fácil azotar a su niño en lugar de trabajar para resolver el problema o darle un castigo razonable.

La serie de folletos de la salud de Baylor College of Medicine llamados "Pensamos en Tí" se discuten algunos consejos en "Criando a sus Niños: Consejos Útiles para los Padres" lo cual sugiere varios puntos de valor.

Para Infantes (de 1-3 años): Déjelos que lloren ya que ésta es la manera que los bebés expresan sus necesidades. Con el tiempo aprenderá a "leer lo que necesitan". NUNCA CASTIGUE A SU NIÑO POR LLORAR. El castigo físico puede ser fatal. El castigo verbal enseña al niño que no se debe confiar en la gente y los enfada más. Si usted siente perder el control, salga del cuarto por un minuto ya cuando el bebe esté seguro en la cuna; llame a su esposo(a) o amigo(a); haga algo físico tal como bailar, subir a la bicicleta estacionaria—o lo que sea para restaurar su calma.

Para Preescolares (de 3-6 años): Permítales que ellos hagan decisiones limitadas como "¿Te quieres ir a la cama ahora o después de un cuento?" Enseñe con mensajes positivos. Dígales lo que quiere, no lo que no quiere. Diga "deja la leche y da una mordida a la carne" en vez de "para de jugar con la leche."

Para los de edad escolar (de 6-12 años): Ayúdelos a trabajar en buenos hábitos formando reglas (no hay televisión hasta después de la tarea). Permítales ayudarle con quehaceres fáciles (que hagan su cama, pero no espere que laven su loza fina). Deles una pequeña compensación.

Para adolescentes (de 13-18 años): Deles libertad y privacidad pero todavía ponga restricciones apropiadas como llegar al hogar temprano, quehaceres, etc. Recuerde cuando era adolescente. No los regañe o avergüence delante de los amigos, permítales que tengan amigos de visita, y ahora más que nunca, deles apoyo y elogios.

"Criando a Sus Niños" también sugiere los siguientes puntos:

- Sea un buen ejemplo. Los niños aprenden imitando.
- Resuelva los problemas con su esposa(o) antes de que el problema surga. Discuta lo que hará la siguiente vez que su niño(a) de 5 años tire la comida al piso. Prepárese.
- Sea consistente cuando imponga límites. Si deja que los niños se queden una noche hasta las 11 p.m., y la siguiente noche hasta las 8:30 p.m. eso es confuso.
- Deles castigo apropiado por su mala conducta. Si su niño destruye su libro favorito, deje que le compre un libro nuevo con su propio dinero. Esto también enseña el valor de poseer y tener dinero.
- Deje que los niños escojan con límites. Pregunte a su niño si quiere una manzana o jugo de naranja —no qué clase de jugo quieren.
- Recuerde que, sí esta bien enojarse con sus niños. Pero hágales saber que está enojado(a) con sus acciones. También, el castigo físico enseña al niño que está bien pegar; el abuso verbal les enseña que son "estúpidos" o "perezosos." Piense antes de castigar.
- Cuando aplique el castigo, asegúrese que es apropiado. El propósito del castigo es enseñar a los niños cómo comportarse, no castigar por sí. Para los niños pequeños use (time out) "tiempo." Explíqueles porqué su conducta está equivocada y envíelos a su cuarto por un período breve. Para niños más grandes o adolescentes, quitándoles un privilegio puede ser efectivo.

Ser padres a cualquier edad no es fácil. Ni tampoco se es por instinto. Pero se puede aprender. Hable con el pediatra de su niño, maestros, otros padres, consejeros de su iglesia, sus propios padres, amigos, y disfrute los premios y retos de la paternidad.

UNAM: Continues to expand and develop ing out to the Mexican community but also serving as a tool for educating other sectors of the population on Mexico and its language. Steps were taken to encourage research in areas related to bilateral relations between Mexico and the USA. Indeed, an unprecedented step was taken in 1992-93 when a series of seminars and modules were initiated on various aspects of trade with Mexico, targeting business persons, scientists, politicians and scholars who needed to acquire specific information on Mexico in light of -more the Free Trade Agreement.

On the cultural side, the school has been an avid promoter of culture and arts from Mexico thus organizing countless events including many symposia and conferences. Needless to say, this has all taken place in addition to the docent role of the school which has also grown extensively with the number of enrollments increasing every year.

In 1991, UNAM was a major participant in the corollary events that took place as a complement to the Splendors of Mexico Exhibition in San Antonio. A monumental exhibition directly from the Castle of Chapultepec was curated at the school and inaugurated by the President of Mexico, Lic. Carlos Salinas and Dr. José Sarukhán, Rector of UNAM.

Today the presence of UNAM in San Antonio continues to expand and develop opening up new doors and welcoming all the challenges and possibilities that come its way. This school has truly exemplified the spirit of cooperation and mutual respect that can be achieved between two countries in the area of culture and education. The relationship between the university and the City of San Antonio as well as the community as a whole has been the most integral and significant element in the continued success of the only branch of a foreign university in the United States of America. Fifty years of this presence is truly a major achievement that must be celebrated on both sides of the border!

Finally, the Romulo Munguia Library, which presently has 16,000 volumes, has been honored as the recipient of the archives of Dr. Henry Cisneros, former Mayor of San Antonio. To house these archives and other special collections, the San Antonio City Council offered its support to expand the library and, with the help of volunteers, the Henry Cisneros Special Collection has been created. The expansion and collection were inaugurated on May 5 in the presence of Dr. Henry Cisneros, Secretary of Urban Development and Housing, and Dr. José Sarukhán, Rector of UNAM and Mayor Wolff.

TETRALON: Es particularmente difícil

costumbre de un régimen de ejercicio. Y hacerle frente al reto no lo hace más fácil por las temperaturas del Oeste Texas. "No particularmente. A mí me gusta más hacer mis ejercicios dentro de una facilidad deportiva que afuera. Pero no por esto," dijo Reyes.

"Es particularmente difícil entrenar con una temperatura de 105, 106ß. Así que es bastante duro, cuando se baja de la bicicleta y entonces va corre dos o tres millas." "Bueno, cuándo entrenaba para el tetratlón, estaba entrenando afuera cerca de cuatro veces por semana, oh, cerca de una hora y media. Y combinaba dos eventos juntos. Nadaba, un día, y andaba en bicicleta. O andaba en bicicleta y trotaba. Más cerca de 200 sentadillas por día!"

Reyes señala que un programa de ejercicios- cualquier programa, no solo un entrenamiento para el tetratlón - ofrecen ambos a corto plazo y a largo plazo beneficios al individuo.

"Principalmente, hago ejercicios porque mi salud es importante, y lo disfruto," explicó. "Es un gran remedio para el estress y es una buena vía para conocer a mucha gente."

"Animo definitivamente a cualquiera, a cualquier grupo de cualquier edad, que se envuelvan en algún tipo de programa de ejercicio. Me a dado mucha satisfacción. Lo encuentro divertido y agradable y los resultados son muy recompensados. A veces personas son renuentes, porque dicen, no puedo encajar dentro de mi agenda . Pero pienso que una persona vale si toma el tiempo para ellos mismos y tomando una hora cada día, o algunas veces por semana. Es bueno para la mente y para el cuerpo!"

Reyes agrega que es también un sentido de realización y orgullo que llega de los objetivos puestos y por llevarlos a cabo.

"Estoy orgullosa de mi misma, orgullosa por haber logrado estos objetivos que me hice, hace cuatro meses," explicó, agregando que considera más extensas, más demanda de competencias en el futuro. "Bueno, les diré, no tendré miedo de acometerlas si pasan por mi camino. Porque estaba asustada de esto (el tetratlón) cuándo yo de primero comencé. Pero me sentí muy bien cuándo terminé este, cuándo atravese la línea. Me sentí muy bien que pude lograr esto! "

"IT'S 4-U" GAME RULES:
Anyone 18 years or older can enter except employees (and family members of employees) of the Midland Reporter-Telegram, Brite System Inc., Associated Publishing Co., and their advertising and promotion agencies. The "It's 4U" Game is designed for people who live in the Midland and Odessa calling areas and no purchase is required to play or win prizes, although long distance toll charges may apply if you call from outside the Midland-Odessa calling area. Look for the "It's 4U" Game ad here and in advertisers service directory in the Midland Reporter-Telegram every day until Nov. 5, 1994. Call 560-2400 and enter any four-digit advertiser's code listed in the directory. You will hear a brief advertiser's message and, if you are one of five instant winners chosen at random each week, you'll win one of that week's prizes. If you are an instant winners, listen for details about claiming your prize, in order to claim your prize, you will be required to give your name, age, address and telephone number. The more often you call, the better your chance of winning a prize. You can also enter a second chance drawing for unclaimed prizes by handprinting your complete name and address and daytime phone numbers on a 3"x5" piece of paper and mailing it in an envelope to "It's 4U" Second Chance Game, P.O. Box 1650, Midland, Texas 79702, so that is is received before the deadline, Oct. 30, 1994. Enter as often as you wish, but submit only one entry in each envelope. Entries become the property of the sponsors. None will be returned. Each game begins at 12:01 a.m. Monday and ends at 11:59 p.m. Sunday. Each week for eight weeks ending Nov. 5, 1994 five entries will be selected at random and will win one of that week's prizes. The total value of all prizes to be awarded in the "It's 4U" game will equal $4,000 or more. The names and cities of winners will be published in the Midland Reporter-Telegram Classified Ad pages. No substitution of prizes is permitted. Only one prize will be awarded to each winner. By entering, winners authorize the use of their names, cities or photos for publicity purposes. Winners may be required to sign an affidavit of eligibility and release. Taxes are the responsibility of winners. Void where prohibited.
