HOLD RITES FOR MRS. OVETA HAWTHORNE

Young Woman Passes Away Here Yesterday at Noon

Funeral services for Mrs. Oveta Hawthorne, 25, wife of W. H. Hawthorne, were being held this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at the Church of Christ, with the minister, John H. Banister, conducting the rites.

Mrs. Hawthorne died yesterday at noon at the family home, 300 North Fifth Street, after more than a year of illness.

Pallbearers are Bill Howard, Jack Breland, Ed McCreary, Lafayette Pounds, Walter White and W. A. Simmons.

Those in charge of flowers are Mrs. Bill Howard, Mrs. Hylton Buster, Mrs. Jack Breland, Miss Marie Barber and Miss Catherine Barber.

Mrs. Hawthorne was born Oveta Ralls, Dec. 11, 1910. She was married to Mr. Hawthorne in 1926, and has lived in Hall County throughout most of her life.

She is survived by her husband; two daughters, Henrietta and Martha Lee; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Ralls, Washington, D. C.; four brothers, Andrew Ralls, Washington; Jack Ralls; Clayton Ralls, Pampa; Trolly Ralls, Oklahoma City, and two sisters.

Captain C. W. B. Long, federal inspector, this morning continued the rapid cross-fire questioning of forgery suspects held by Hall County officers. Captain Long, Deputy Wilson and County Attorney Carl Periman were operating behind closed doors and could not be reached by Democrat reporters for an interview at noon today.

In a brief statement made to the press early this morning, the federal authority denied that a man arrested at Paris, Texas, has any connection with the case here.

The federal authority began the questioning of the four suspects at about 10 o'clock yesterday morning and was still operating behind closed doors last night. The four men who are being questioned were arrested by members of the local sheriff's department over two weeks ago on charges of passing a forged check at the Foster Brothers store in Plaska.

Local officials believe that a giant forgery ring that has been in operation for four or five years is being uncovered.

The four men who are being questioned gave their names as T. M. Hayes and son Tom Hayes, John Arthur and Frank Arthur.

RAY HAMILTON BLAMED WITH HOLD-UP

Memphis, Tenn., Officers Discredit Account

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—An automobile in which a Georgetown University student was taken on a ride through Mississippi by two men yesterday, one of whom he described as Raymond Hamilton, was found abandoned on a highway near here today.

The recovery of the automobile was announced by Sheriff W. J. Bacon, who communicated with Edward Hewett Davis, owner. The sheriff said he didn't believe that Hamilton participated in the affair.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 8.—The mid-South joined the search for Raymond Hamilton, Texas desperado, last night, after a man identified as the fugitive Texan, abandoned one of his "ride and rob" victims on a highway near here and sped away in the victim's automobile.

Edward Hewett Davis, 20-year-old audit clerk for the agricultural adjustment administration, Washington, Va., was a prisoner in his own automobile for 30 hours, yielding to the orders of Hamilton and a companion, the fugitive addressed as "Al." Davis told a department of justice agent and county officers here late yesterday.

Davis said he was en route to Austin, Texas, to visit his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Davis and that he stopped his new 1935 Ford V-8 coupe in front of a transient bureau at Gulfport, Miss, about 10 o'clock Wednesday night, to inquire directions.

"Two men, who addressed each other as 'Jack' and 'Al,' forced me into my car at the point of a gun," Davis said. "Then 'Jack' told me he was Raymond Hamilton."

At the sheriff's office last night, Davis identified a picture of Hamilton as "Jack."

Defense Rests in Hauptmann Trial; Rebuttal Is Started

Priest Must Quit Parish or Family

Confronted with the choice of giving up his church or his family, the Rev. Fr. Andrew Sarmatiuk, pastor of Oshawa, Ont., Ukrainian Greek Catholic church, is shown here with his wife and children, Andrew and Myra, as his parishioners fight for his retention, declaring that their priests have been privileged for centuries to wed. The pastor had been married 15 years when his bishop at Winnipeg issued the edict.

FLEMINGTON, N. J., Feb. 8.—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today rested his defense against charges that would send him to the electric chair for the kidnapping and murder of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The defense case ended at 12:10 p. m. after sensational testimony designed to place the Lindbergh kidnap ladder in the possession of a man other than Hauptmann 20 hours before the crime.

The defense also used two practical lumbermen to dispute testimony of a state expert that part of the kidnap ladder came from Hauptmann's Bronx attic.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, awaited polling of the jury after a brief recess, then announced: "The defense rests."

State attorneys began their rebuttal with Joseph J. Farber, New York insurance man, seeking to refute testimony of a defense witness who said he saw the ladder leap over the Bronx cemetery wall where and where the Lindbergh ransom was paid.

Brevort Bolmer, filling station owner and graduate civil engineer, who said on cross-examination that he did not report his story to the police because he couldn't be sure from pictures of the ladder, testified that he saw and examined the ladder at 1:15 a. m. March 1, 1932, on the back of an automobile driven by a man who was not Hauptmann.

Wife of Former Clarendon Mayor Is Buried Today

CLARENDON, Feb. 8.—The Panhandle was robbed of one of its most beloved pioneer characters Thursday morning when Mrs. H. W. Taylor, 80, died at her home here after a lingering illness.

Mrs. Taylor, wife of a former mayor and niece of the late Col. Charles A. Goodnight, came to the Panhandle in 1882 to live on the JA ranch, then owned by her uncle. For a short time she was a resident of the Old Clarendon colony, but in 1890 she moved to Clarendon with her husband, who established a hardware business here and has been a resident since that time.

She was born in McLennan county on July 26, 1854 and was before her marriage to Mr. Taylor in 1877, Miss Emily Eugene Lane. She joined the Methodist church early in life and took a constant interest in church affairs until her last illness.

Funeral services were being held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the First Methodist church, with the Rev. E. D. Landreth, pastor, assisted by the Rev. J. Perry King, Baptist pastor, conducting the rites. Burial will be in the Citizens cemetery. Her sons and sons-in-law will be pallbearers.

Mrs. Taylor is survived by her husband, four sons, Crockett, June, Walter and Forest Taylor; two daughters, Mrs. W. M. Patman and Mrs. Phillip Engel; 22 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Accuses Ambassador Of 'Cooperating With Tyrants'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 8.—Ambassador Josephus Daniels was accused today by Representative Conroy, Democrat, Massachusetts, of "cooperating with tyrants of Mexico to enslave the people of Mexico."

In a speech on the House floor, Conroy, chairman of the labor committee, demanded that the United States withdraw recognition of the Mexican government.

He charged that Mexico violated an agreement by which the United States, in Wilson's administration, recognized the Mexican government, with a specific reservation that all Mexicans be granted freedom of worship.

He said that Daniels should be recalled and forced to tell the truth about conditions existing in Mexico now.

Mrs. B. O. Kelly of this city was called to Shamrock yesterday on account of the death of her father, Jim Wheeler, who died suddenly yesterday morning. The funeral service is being held at a Shamrock funeral home at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Mr. Wheeler, apparently in good health when he went to work early yesterday, was found dead in his office at 9 o'clock by his son-in-law, Harris Tilley.

He is survived by his wife, a son, Joe Wheeler, Shamrock, and two daughters, Mrs. Harris Tilley of Shamrock and Mrs. B. O. Kelly of Memphis.

Mrs. Kelly and daughter Patricia were accompanied to Shamrock by C. E. Bentley and Mrs. Mary Jo Cunningham.

STALCUP'S STAY IN HOUSTON RELATED

State Believes Evidence Damaging to Young Desperado

LUBBOCK, Feb. 8.—Smiling frequently at Virgil Stalcup, Mrs. Irene (Pete) Colston of Houston yesterday gave evidence which the state believed damaging to the young desperado who is on trial for murder of Sheriff W. B. Arthur of Dickens.

Stalcup, whom she knew as "Art King," appeared at her Houston home Monday, October 29, and said cryptically "I'm hot."

"I said get out and come in," she declared. For harboring a criminal (Stalcup) she has been held in Harris County jail most of the time since then.

Snatches of conversation she said she heard between Stalcup and her husband, Bill Colston, were quoted.

"He (the defendant) said he'd broken jail at Dickens," she continued. "He said that when he got in jail, Clarence Brown (who escaped with him when the veteran peace officer was slain) had a gun."

She said Stalcup described the gun as a "thumbster."

As exhibit 13 the state presented a rusty, old-model revolver, which prosecutors will charge fired. (Continued on Page 8)

Hamilton Seen In Memphis Area By Clarendon Man

There is nothing more disappointing to a newspaper reporter than to be "scooped" on a story. Therefore, a story issued by the Associated Press gave the Democrat reporters quite a scare for a moment.

The dispatch stated that Raymond Hamilton was reported to be in the "Memphis Area" by a man from Clarendon. But it wasn't here at all. It was Memphis, Tenn., and Clarendon, Va.

SILKEN SPINDLES

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GALE HENDERSON, pretty, 23, works in a silk mill. She and her brother, PHIL, 19, support their invalid father.

STEVE MYERS who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Later that evening Gale goes skating on the river, goes through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE, whose father, now dead, built the mill. Brian asks Gale to wait while he gets his car but when he returns she is gone.

Brian has come home after two years in Paris, convinced he can never become an artist and ready to go to work in the mill. VICKY THATCHER, daughter of BOBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to capture Brian.

Brian sees Gale in the mill and is amazed to find she is an employee. Vicky telephones that her car has broken down. Brian takes her home and on the way they witness a street fight between Phil Henderson and Ed VOGEL. The fight ends when a policeman appears. Later, driving home, Brian thinks of Gale and wonders what her name is. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XII

The line in the cafeteria shuffled forward, past wells of bean and tomato soup, past trays of cabbage and macaroni and cheese and beef stew, on to the small, glittering mounds of red and gold gelatin, the prunes and solid-looking wedges of apple pie.

The heavy porcelain dishes clattered and voices buzzed—now rising and lowering in volume, broken in upon by shrill laughter or a sharp exclamation. It was lunch time for the day shift in the mill.

Gale Henderson, halted by the line in front, rested her tray against the steam table. She nodded and said, "Yes—the tomato soup," to the woman across the counter. Someone joggled Gale's elbow as the woman set the bowl on the tray and the thick red liquid splashed. Gale turned. She heard the voice of a girl in front:

"Suppose you heard about the fight last night?"

"You mean Vogel and Phil Henderson?" It was a different girl speaking now.

"Yeah. Know what started it?"

"Ruby, I suppose."

"Sure. What all these guys see in that dame—but I guess it was some fight! Phil ought to know better than to try to cut in on Ed Vogel—"

"Sav, I thought it was just the other way around!"

The first girl shook her head knowingly. "No, I've got the straight of it," she said. "Blanche Ryan told me and she used to go around with Ruby all the time. Blanche says it's the limit—the way Ruby is always two-timing guys. Just the same, Phil ought to leave Vogel alone. Ed Vogel can lick any man in the mill. That's what my brother says—"

The two girls had reached the end of the line and made their way toward a table. Gale halted holding her tray. Color flamed in her cheeks. She was angry at the girls, angry at Phil. What a way for him to behave! No wonder he'd left the house so early that morning. Fighting with a brute like Ed Vogel. And over a girl like Ruby Griffith! That's who they meant, of course.

She wished she didn't have to sit with anyone at lunch today. But she did. There were no individual tables in the mill cafeteria. There was Josie Gridley at a table where there was a vacant place. Gale made her way toward it.

Josie said, "Hi, Gale. Sure there's room for you," and pushed some dishes aside. "Well," she went on, "what do you think of the new boss?"

"The new boss?"

Josie nodded. "Brian Westmore," she explained. "The old man's son. They say he's going to work here now—that is, if you can call it work, sitting in a swell office like Thatcher's, giving orders and all that. That was him Thatcher was plotting around yesterday. Didn't you see 'em?"

"Yes," Gale said, "I saw them, but what makes you think Brian Westmore's going to stay here? Maybe he's just home for a visit."

Josie's nod was negative and emphatic. "No," she said, "Bill Keeley knows a fellow in the business office and he said—this fellow Westmore's got a special office, right next to Thatcher's. Gee, he's swell looking! Don't you think so? Tall and dark and such swell clothes. They say he's been everywhere—all around the world."

"And he paints pictures," the girl across the table put in. "That's what he was doing in Paris. Painting pictures!"

"I'll bet that wasn't all he did," her neighbor added knowingly. "I've seen it in the movies—the way they cut loose in Paris. Champagne and swell parties and girls dressed up in feathers and not a stitch of anything else. I saw a movie just last week where there was a fellow who was an artist—"

"What I want to know," Josie interrupted, "is why he came back to this place. Imagine a guy with the money Brian Westmore's got, able to go anywhere he wants to and do anything he pleases. Imagine coming to this place!"

There was a chorus of agreement. "Gee, I know what I'd

Happy as She Mines Coal Again

"Back to the mine" isn't the punishment for Miss Ida Mae Stahl that the term implies for most people. A state ban imposed a year ago has been lifted, and she's shown here, back on the job near Cadiz, O., working at the trade she followed for more than 29 years. "I'm happy to make some money to pay off the debt on our house and get off the relief rolls," declares Ohio's only woman coal miner. "Housekeeping'll be only a sideline for me from now on."

He'll Aid Alibi of Hauptmann

A friend expected to be a strong alibi witness for Bruno Hauptmann is Hans Kloepfberg, above, who the defendant declares sat in the Hauptmann home playing a guitar at a "first Saturday" music festival, a German custom, on the night that the state says the prisoner received the $50,000 ransom money.

do—" the girl across the table began, but again Josie cut her short. "Look," she said, pointing to the clock on the wall. "Seven minutes and you've got to be back on the job. Wonder how long Mr. Brian Westmore gets for lunch. D'you suppose they cut his pay if he's a minute late?"

"Well, they'll cut yours," the other girl snapped back. "I wouldn't care how many new bosses we got if only it wasn't so hot and close. Honest, this morning I could hardly breathe!"

"It was bad," Gale agreed. "Worse than usual."

Josie pushed her chair back. "I'll drop in and mention the fact to Thatcher," she said sarcastically. "Or Mr. Westmore. I know they'd be glad to do anything to make their dear employes happier!"

Josie arose and a moment later Gale followed her. She joined the throng in the hall just as the warning bell rang. "If only I knew what to do about Phil," she thought again. "If only I knew how to help him!"

She was back at her place, hands ready, a full minute ahead of time. The warm, moist air pressed about her. Now the spindles were dancing again. The machines roared. Sixty women in blue dresses, heads and fingers moving as though they were machines, too, clamped on bobbins, twisted the thread snapped them off. Human arms and machine fingers; up and down, up and down—

That was the afternoon Connie Bauman fainted. Gale didn't see what happened. She didn't know anything about it until she heard Fisher, the foreman, saying something in a loud voice. Gale turned and saw Connie on the floor. Another girl was leaning over her and Fisher was beside them.

"Here, you!" he called to Gale. "Help us get her out of here!"

They had to carry her. Connie's eyes opened when they were in the corridor. She tried to speak but, though her lips moved, no sound came. They took her through a door marked, "Emergency," into a little room in which there was a couch.

A crowd of half a dozen had gathered about the door. Someone said, "They ought to keep her head down. They ought to put water on her face." Another said, "My sister fainted once—"

"Get back to your machines," Fisher ordered. "I'll take care of this."

Gale, turning into the hall, almost walked into a tall young man in a brown suit. It was Brian Westmore.

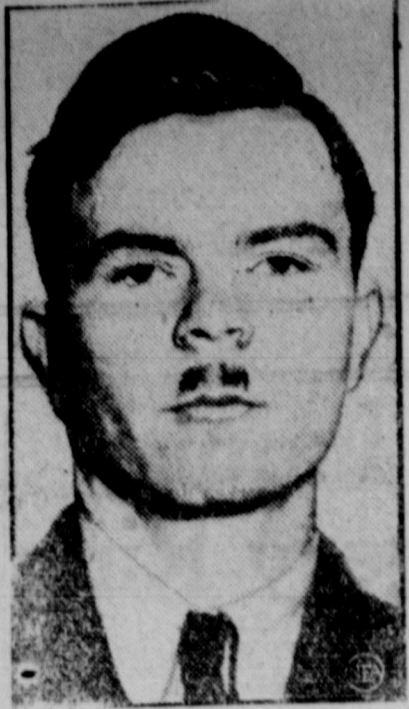

"What's happened?" he asked.

Fight to Rescue 'Farm Anarchist'

A nation-wide campaign is being waged by liberals on behalf of Ward H. Rodgers, above, sentenced at Marked Tree, Ark., to six months in jail and fined $500 on conviction of anarchy. Rodgers, now free on appeal bond, was arrested for organizing tenant farmers against alleged injustice of landlords and ousted as FERA educational instructor.

"Was it an accident—is anyone hurt?"

Gale said, "A girl fainted. She's in there—"

She slipped past him then, hurrying down the hall. "Wait a minute!" Brian called. He took a step after her, but the girl apparently did not hear. She was out of sight in another instant, disappearing through a door from which came the grinding roar of the machines.

Connie did not come back to work that afternoon. Voices buzzed in the wash room at quitting time. Someone said Connie'd been warned by a doctor that her lungs were infected. Another said, no, it wasn't her lungs; it was her heart. There were rumors that she'd been rushed to the hospital, that her brother's wife had come for her, that Connie had recovered completely and walked home.

"I like to faint myself," a girl beside Gale fretted. "Hot as it was today! It's bad enough most of the time, but today—"

"Know what I think's the matter with Connie?" the other went on.

"What?"

"I think she's starving herself, that's what I think. She doesn't buy any lunch, you know. Just brings something. All she had the other day was an apple—I know because I saw her eating it here in the wash room. She said something about not being hungry and having had a big breakfast, but I didn't believe a word of it. Connie lives with her brother and his wife and he ain't been workin', you know. Laid off a month ago. I don't think they've got anything but just what Connie makes—"

Gale nodded. She said, "Yes, I think that's what's the matter with Connie. She shouldn't do it. She won't be able to work if she doesn't eat."

The other girl turned away. Gale put on her coat and hat and went down the corridor. Outside she faced Brian Westmore. He was smiling and he said, "I thought if you were going down the street you might let me walk along with you."

Glorifying Yourself

BY ALICIA HART
NEA Service Staff Writer
Masks generally are considered the most pretentious of all beauty treatments. If done by a professional they cost a good deal, too. However, you can apply homemade ones yourself and, if you follow a few simple rules, be perfectly sure that your skin will be benefited.

Never smooth a mask of any kind on dirty or even slightly dusty skin. Clean your face and neck thoroughly before you start. Always leave the preparation on until it is absolutely dry. If you remove it while the mixture is still moist, you will have wasted the time spent applying it. If your skin is dry or normal, better use tissue cream immediately after washing off the mask. If it is oily, omit the tissue cream.

Don't expect one mask treatment to work an overnight miracle. Not until you have applied one a week for at least ten weeks can you hope to notice a decided improvement in the texture and color of your complexion. Try several types to determine just what does you the most good.

There are commercially prepared masks, of course, and any number that can be made inexpensively at home. You might use that old standby, raw egg mask, and see what it will do.

Separate the yolk from the white and lightly stir each one in a bowl. Then, after cleaning face and neck smooth on a layer of white from base of the throat right up to the hairline. Let it dry. Cover with a layer of yolk and let it dry, too. Repeat in layers until all of the egg is used. Then lie down for twenty minutes or until the mask is dry. Wash off with warm water.

The ragged individualist is the only one who has anything to contribute to the flock. He is a rare bird and nothing should be done to suppress or discourage him.

"The Biggest Little Word In the World" will be the subject of the morning sermon. The proper use of words is a most desirable thing. This sermon will deal with the most important word in the language—its use and abuse. There will be a program of fine music. We try to make our services hopeful, helpful and inspiring. And everybody is welcome. Morning worship begins at 11 o'clock. Our vesper service will be held at 5 p. m. "Shifting Life to High Gear" will be the subject of the vesper sermon. This sermon might point the way by which we can get "more miles to the gallon" from our religion. The Junior church will meet at 11 a. m. Sunday school opens at 9:45 a. m. Classes for all ages are available—and for you. Wednesday night's service—at 7 p. m.

PROBE DEATH IN CELL

(By United Press)
STUEBENVILLE, O.—Carl Boyd, 47, died in a hospital as authorities began an investigation to determine responsibility for failure to provide him medical attention. Kirkland Takes Last Minute Win Over Cyclone Cagers

TIES COUNT IN THREE-POINT VICTORY

Last Minute Rush Overcomes One-Point Lead

Kirkland's cagers evened the count with the Memphis Cyclone at the high school gymnasium here last night by taking a last minute victory, 26 to 23.

The battle was one of the roughest in which the Cyclone has participated, and it was marked by unusually outstanding players being "off" and substitutes "on". In the second game of the doubleheader, the Cyclone substitutes scored their third victory and their second win over the Kirkland seconds. They took the tilt last night, 25 to 19.

Walker Is Star
Coach Arthur Howard has no more competition for the Cyclone basketballers this week, but on Monday night he takes them to Wellington for a return tilt with the Skyrockets, a game that has already been postponed once.

In last night's tilt, the leader of the Cyclone attack was Dennis Walker, substitute forward, who played three quarters of the game.

Until Walker entered the tilt, the Cyclone was hopelessly off. Especially was this true of Chester Grimes, usual leader, who seemed unable to hit the basket or to work effectively on defense, usually his two strongest bets. The others seemed to follow Grimes, until none of them were working effectively.

Overcome Lead
In the second quarter, Walker entered the game. He made a couple of quick baskets and brought life back to the Cyclone. However, the revival was not quick enough to overtake the visitors by half time, and Kirkland led 10 to 6.

Still shooting hard in the last sessions, Walker continued to set the pace, and Grimes staged somewhat of a comeback. They combined their efforts to send the Cyclone into a one-point lead one minute before the game ended.

At this point, Harris, Kirkland hotshot who had been leading the scoring all the way, and Damlen, center, another high scorer, cut loose with two quick field goals that clinched the victory just as the game ended.

Harris Leads Scoring
Harris led the scoring with 12 points. He was followed by Walker and Damlen with nine each, and Chester Grimes scored eight points. The remainder of the players were far behind.

Tigers Are Forced To Stand Pat on Outfield

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service
NEW YORK, Feb. 8.—Mickey Cochrane admits that the Detroit Tigers could use another right-hand hitting outfielder to advantage, but does not know where to obtain one.

That being the case, Cochrane has decided to do the next best thing—make the most of what he has. The ignited Irishman did a fairly good job of that in his managerial bow in 1934.

"Jo-Jo White developed rapidly in the last two months of the season. I am counting on the little Georgian to start in center field, flanked by Goose Goslin and Pete Fox," says Cochrane.

A great majority of baseball men could not associate an outfield composed of Goslin, White, Fox, Gerald Walker, and Frank Doljack with a pennant-winning outfit.

Goslin, 33 and with 15 years of service behind him, had been traded by Washington to the younger Rocky Stone. White hit only .252 in 1933, and Fox only .288. Walker ran bases like a chicken with its head cut off. Doljack had a minor league complex.

The outfield was "the laugh of the league."

Yet all except Doljack are being brought back for another campaign—and another pennant, in the opinion of Cochrane.

As Cochrane Sees It
"While we were lucky in completing a season without a serious injury, and were regarded as having had breaks in other ways, no other American League club has strengthened to a point where it is an outstanding threat," explains Cochrane.

"I look for a close and exciting race with any one of four clubs likely to finish in front—Detroit, New York, Cleveland, and Boston. Philadelphia may be quite a bit better, and give the contenders plenty of trouble."

Fox, the right-hand hitting regular, is the outfielder Cochrane sought to replace. The Evansville workman, who wound up with an average of .285 last year, lacks the consistency and power at the plate demanded of a flychaser.

Naturally, the Detroit club would have liked to have landed Al Simmons, of the White Sox.

ROOKIE ROUNDUP

PIRATE PEAGREEN PITCHER IS FOUR-FINGERED WESTERN STAR

By NEA Service
If three-fingered Merdecia Brown could achieve fame as a star of the old Chicago Cubs, Wayne Osborne, young Pirate right-handed hurling rookie, figures he ought to gain some measure of greatness with one more digit on his throwing hand.

The four-fingered rookie was purchased from the Missions, of the Pacific Coast League, where he won 16 and lost 18 last season. Twenty-three years old, Wayne has the build to go the route in the majors. He stands 6 feet 2 1/2 inches, and weighs 176. He is a native Californian, born in Watsonville, and reared in Santa Cruz.

His minor league experience started with Portland in 1931. From there he went to Topeka in the Western League, and was recalled to Portland in the fall. Released a free agent by the Oregon club in 1932, he signed with the Missions, and stuck with them until the Pittsburghers acquired him last fall.

He is a star fielding pitcher, only one error having been chalked up against him in two years.

Detroit's outfield may have been "the laugh of the American League" in 1934, but it helped the Tigers win the pennant, and the regulars are being brought back this season. Goose Goslin, left, is a splendid money player. Jo-Jo White, center, and Pete Fox, right, go and get 'em, and know their way around the bases.

What array wouldn't? There are other retrievers whose presence in the lineup of Frank Navin's aggregation would make its appearance in the 1935 world series vastly more certain, but even an owner with a bankroll the size of that of Tom Yawkey of the Red Sox can't buy everybody he fancies.

When Cochrane concluded shopping the best he could show was Suitcase Seeds, purchased from Cleveland largely because he hits right-handed. After five years in the American League there is little else to recommend the tall Texan.

Hit From Wrong Side
Unfortunately, the Tigers' outstanding recruit outfielder of 1935 swats the ball from the left side of the plate. He is Chester Morgan, who gets places in a hurry and who topped Texas League batsmen with a mark of .342.

"Many do not give White and Fox full credit for their speed," asserts Cochrane. "White really had a phenomenal year. He hit .313, figures show him to have been the most reliable baserunner in the American League, and he covered acres of ground, in center field."

Among them, White, Fox and Walker swiped 73 bases last season. White attempted 34 thefts, and was thrown out only six times, for a percentage of .823, the best in the circuit.

Bill Werber, the Boston third baseman who led in stolen bases with 40, was tossed out on 15 occasions, for a percentage of .727. Fox, who purloined 25 bases, was thumbed out 10 times, leaving him with a percentage of .714. Walker, who stole 20, failed to slide safely nine times for a percentage of .689.

If Walker settles down to playing sane baseball he has it in him to fill the right-hand hitting bill in the Detroit outfield. That is why the club hesitates to make a deal for the Mississippiian. Walker, who possesses a vast amount of natural ability, hit .300 in 98 games in 1934. Cochrane wouldn't exactly care to see him return in enemy livery and break up games at Navin Field.

OLYMPIC CLUB QUILTS FOOTBALL

By United Press
SAN FRANCISCO.—The days when the Olympic Club team was a recognized power in Pacific Coast football wars are over.

And the passage of the "Winged I" team, which played a majority of its games on Sundays, may mean that the professionals next season may utilize Sunday here to further strengthen their position.

Santa Clara, University of San Francisco, and St. Mary's last season played several Sunday games in Kezar Stadium. So did the Olympic Club. But retirement of that famed athletic club from the field because football in the past few years has been a losing financial enterprise, will offer the professionals a chance to use Kezar—and it's a cinch they'll be quick to capitalize on it.

Passing of the Olympic Club now means that many coast college stars, who graduated and played on that team for a year or two before being recruited to the major professional teams, will have to seek their training elsewhere.

It also means the end of a combination that possesses one of the most brilliant backgrounds in coast gridiron history.

The club really began to reach the height of its 42 years history in 1922, when it whipped Stanford, Santa Clara and St. Mary's. The following two years the Olympics played good football—but nothing to compare with what happened in 1925.

In that year the team, then coached by "Babe" Hollingberry, now at Washington State, swept through eleven games undefeated. It was this squad—one of the

Polo To Take Place As Olympic Competition

By H. L. PERCY
(United Press Correspondent)
(By United Press)

LONDON.—Polo is to be one of the events of the 1936 Olympic Games in Berlin, according to reports here.

Olympic polo has been played only three times before. The first occasion was at Hurlingham, England, in 1908, the second at Ostend, Belgium, in 1920, and the third in Paris in 1924.

Neither of the first two tournaments was of a representative international character. In 1908 two English teams and an Irish one competed. The tournament in Belgium was confined to an English team, a side from the U. S. Rhine Army of Occupation, and combinations from Belgium and Spain.

In 1924 five countries competed, and for the first time played under the American system. Argentina won.

It has been arranged provisionally, it is learned, that the 1936 tournament will be played during the first fortnight of August. This is the most convenient time, because it will not clash with the London or continental seasons.

It is understood that the German Olympic authorities already have laid their plans for the proposed grounds.

Providing the question of expense can be overcome there may be a large entry list. The three most powerful ever to represent the club—that halted the victory march of California's "wonder team," coached by the late Andy Smith.

COURT WOULD NOT CREATE FRIENDSHIPS

YESTERDAY the Dallas News in an editorial entitled "An Isolated Nation" blamed the ills of the world upon the United States for its failure to enter the League of Nations and the World Court. "The United States in 1919, at the close of the war, was unquestionably the world's greatest nation in prestige and wealth. It had before it the opportunity to become the leader of the nations and, had it entered the League of Nations as expected by President Wilson, it would probably have guided Europe into the paths of peace and have avoided the depression that has swept the economic world into unprecedented situations," the article reads. "Even so innocuous a connection as that with the World Court is rejected, largely through the radio talks of a somewhat obscure Detroit priest and Will Rogers, who openly boasted of his ignorance of what he was talking about."

In these remarks we cannot find any connection at all between the facts given and the conclusions reached. The reason is that the League of Nations and the World Court are not the answers to America's friendly connections with other nations. We have never gotten into anything with European countries that has not ended in a squabble, and such entanglements as these would, most likely, strain relations between the United States and other member nations severely. We cannot gain friendships of the "big brother" type. We want relations born of respect and trust and trade that comes with mutually satisfactory agreements. These are the only relations that will survive.

The Dallas News hits the right chord farther in the editorial, but the writer fails to realize it and draws the wrong conclusions.

"The British Commonwealth of Nations is the greatest of world powers and is eager to form a friendly entente with the United States because of its kindred civilization, but it fails to get a response," the editorial states. "Russia is the nation on earth greatest in potential wealth and future influence but trade agreements with it are impossible because of the foolishness of the Johnson act. With no nation of Europe are we really on friendly terms except with insignificant Finland."

"Secretary Hull is doing his best to negotiate trade agreements with other nations but finds it hard to overcome obstacles raised by our high tariff system and our desire to sell and not to buy. The United States prefers not to lend money nor to extend credits, not to buy goods that compete with its tariff-protected industries. We offer to sell and meet cynical smiles in reply."

"We are an isolated nation, without real friends among the nations. Many are half hostile because of the intense nationalism that America has fostered at home and abroad. . . . We need to realize that we are part of the family of nations, prospering when they prosper and suffering when they suffer."

In all this, we agree with the Dallas News writer. We should make friendly advances toward England and Russia, offering them trade agreements that will prove beneficial to everyone concerned; our 'protective tariffs' have guided much foreign trade into other channels; we cannot sell without buying; we are an isolated nation, and we do prosper or suffer as other nations rise or fall.

But how in the name of everything sensible does the writer arrive at the conclusion that political and personal entanglements such as those offered by the World Court and League of Nations would alter this state of affairs? The problems must be attacked from a different angle.

NOT TRUSTING THE DOCTOR

THE queer things people can do when they set out to follow their own ideas about health are sometimes beyond belief.

A Chicago father is facing a manslaughter charge because of what the police say he did in an effort to make his 13-month-old daughter well and strong.

First he plunged the little girl into a tub of ice water, to give her a healthy body. Then he stood her on her head—to drain an infected ear. Then he laid her down and sat on her—to complete the drainage.

He accompanied these acts with the explanation that the doctor didn't know what it was all about.

The little girl died as a result of the treatment, and the father is under arrest. The moral is obvious.

TWO MORE TO BE STREAMLINED

HEALTH

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine
Wilhelm Konrad von Roentgen announced his discovery of the X-ray in December, 1895. In the 40 years since that time, the X-ray has become one of the greatest aids to the medical profession, not only for diagnosis of disease, but also for treatment.
The X-ray is a potent force. Doctors in the early days did not know how to protect themselves against its dangers, and so, many have become martyrs to their investigations with this apparatus.
Meantime, many different improvements have been made, so that the X-ray of today is as greatly advanced beyond the devices used before 1900 as is the motor car of today compared with the automobile of that period.
One of the chief uses of the X-ray continues to be the diagnosis of broken bones and fractures. These are studied from many different angles so that the exact relationship of the bones to the tissues may be determined. With the help of the X-ray, it is possible to get perfect results in recovery.
It is possible, by studies of the skull, to determine presence of disease of the bone, of brain tumors, and of changes in the blood vessels of the skull and brain. Injections of air may be made into the hollow spaces inside the brain, and these may be carefully studied as to outline and any changes which have occurred.
There was a time when the X-ray was used only to study hard tissue, like bones, but nowadays it is possible to visualize other structures of the body. Dye substances have been discovered which may be taken into the body and which localize in certain organs and tissues; then, by the use of the X-ray, these organs and tissues are made visible.
Thus the gall bladder, the kidney, the urinary bladder, the organs of the female genital system, the liver, the spleen, and the spinal cord may be made visible, and diseases, and changes brought about by diseases, accurately diagnosed.
All sorts of diseases today are being treated with the X-ray from

Answers to Previous Questions

THE first dental college was the Baltimore College of Dental Surgery. The Library of Congress was established by an act appropriating $5000 for the purchase of "books for the use of both Houses of Congress." Ann Lee led the Shakers in refusing to aid the colonies in the war for independence. They were accused of treason and imprisoned until released during the winter of 1780-81.

simple conditions of the skin to deeply seated tumors in the abdomen.

To shorten the time of application of the X-ray for these deep tumors, apparatus has been developed which will deliver up to 800,000 volts, the normal tissue of the body being protected by filtering these rays through copper filters.

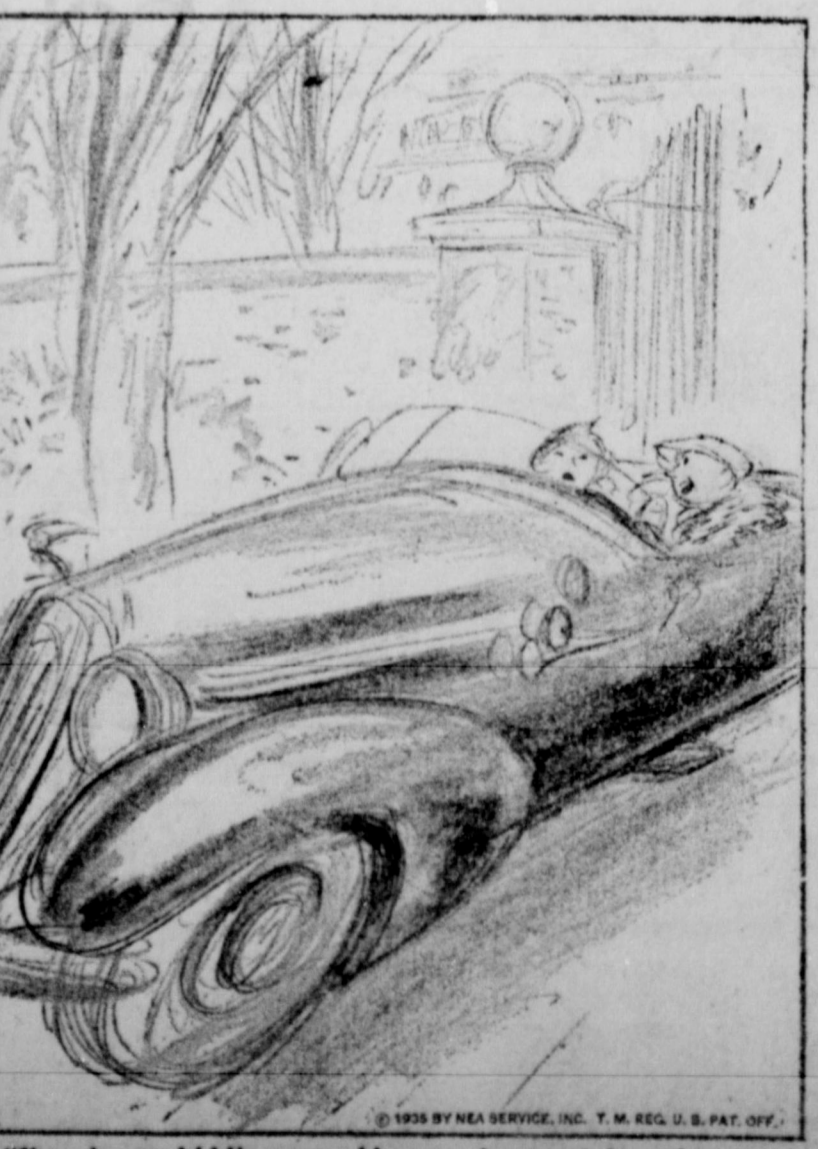

Naturally, such apparatus is exceedingly expensive. It has become customary, therefore, to provide such service through hospitals and through special X-ray laboratories, so that cost of the apparatus and its use may be distributed over a considerable number of people and thus made generally available.

Of the 7000 hospitals in the United States, more than two-thirds are already fully equipped with excellent X-ray apparatus.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

BY RODNEY DUTCHER

Democrat Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON, Feb 8—It wasn't until Democrats took over the Senate restaurant that the ominous letter "U.S.S.R." appeared on the coats of the waiters. (Republicans take note.)

If it seemed worth while, one might polish up a pun to the effect that whereas a pie counter used to be part of the restaurant, the restaurant now is part of the pie counter.

Senator Matthew Neely of West Virginia started cutting pie when he found himself chairman of the Rules Committee this session. One of his chief functions in that job is to run the Senate restaurant.

Senator Neely promptly made W. W. Arbuckle, a mathematics instructor, the restaurant manager, and Edward H. Nunnally, of the Bureau of Standards mechanical staff, the assistant manager.

Senator Neely has a hot 1936 renomination fight coming up. Thousands of West Virginians who live here, working in or out of the government, cast their votes back home. Candidates for Congress in that state have been known to make campaign speeches here.

By what would be an exceptionally rare coincidence if you didn't know any better, Arbuckle was and is president of the capital's West Virginia Democratic Club and Nunnally is president of the West Virginia State Society. The food, however, is no worse. It couldn't be.

Madame Spared Blushes
A big pile of Public Works of Art pictures—such as now decorate nearly every federal office—had arrived in the new Department of Labor building and awaited hanging.

One of Secretary Perkins' chief lieutenants came along and inspected a portrait, made from a photograph, of the late Charles Steinmetz, the famous inventor, who was connected with General Electric.

"If we put that up, people will think it's Trotsky," he exclaimed. "Take it away!"

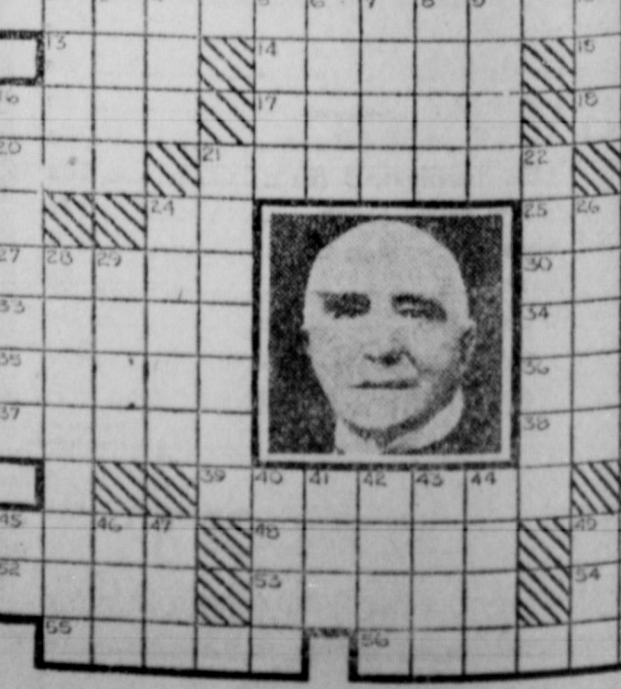

Another painting had as part of its background a very small picture of a nude female figure. "Madame Secretary wouldn't like that," another subordinate hastened to say.

And out it went.
Hopkins on "Relief"
It was during the big snowstorm here and Mrs. Harry Baxter, daughter of Secretary of War and Mrs. Dern, bummed a ride home with the Harry Hopkins from the Garner's dinner to the Roosevelt. Taxis were scarce that night.

The taxi got stuck in a snow-drift and it was a long time before another cab came to push it

At the Theatres

PALACE

The late Russ Columbo's last picture, "Wake Up and Dream", is showing for the last time today at the Palace Theatre.

This picture should be seen, if for no other reason than to hear Columbo's wonderful voice. Although the story is not unusually different nor the acting unusually good, it is a story packed full of entertainment. Plenty of comedy and amusing situations make the film real entertainment.

Russ Columbo and Roger Pryor play the principal male roles and both contribute greatly to the success of the picture. The sprightly June Knight furnishes the "girl angle" to the struggling vaudeville act which manages to stay just one jump ahead of the sheriff.

Because the film is rather old the sound effect is bad in spots, but the picture is so interesting that you will overlook these and other little disturbances.

RITZ

A thundering turf classic set against a romantic background of the Old West is the colorful pattern into which is woven a startling drama and a pulsating romance, today and Saturday at the Ritz Theatre. The film is Zane Grey's "Home on the Range," produced by the Paramount studios.

Interpreting the chief characters are Jackie Coogan, who returns to the screen in grown-up roles, Evelyn Brent, Randolph Scott, leading Western actor of pictures, Fuzzy Knight, eccentric comedian, and Ann Sheridan, the Texas beauty.

Jackie Coogan, now grown to a six-foot man, is the dramatic surprise of "Home on the Range." Athletic, supple, handsome and bronzed, Coogan proves his ability to stay with the best of them in both acting and action shots.

Evelyn Brent and Randolph Scott prove an engaging and romantic leading couple, while in the supporting roles, Dean Jagger, Addison Richards, Fuzzy Knight and Ann Sheridan turn in capital performances.
