More Trucks Rolling

By The Associated Press

"There's trucks. Not as many as I'd like to see, but they're moving," said a Pennsylvania truck stop owner as truckers in two more states voted to go back to work and the decline of the month-old strike continued.

Meanwhile, Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, who recently drove a big rig to California to learn about drivers' problems, promised Thursday he would press for reforms in trucking regulations this weekend at the National Governor's Conference.

Organic Farming Eyed

WASHINGTON (AP)-After years of mostly ignoring the possibilities of organic farming, the Agriculture Department has begun a full-scale review to see if farmers might be able to produce enough crops without relying on chemical fertilizers, pesticides and weedkillers.

No one is predicting this can be done - at least not until a special team of experts completes its review, possibly by the end of this year.

But the mere existence of such a panel to look into organic food production is a significant feat within a department that, for many decades, has urged farmers to use the latest in technology - including chemicals - to grow the crops and livestock needed by American consumers and overseas customers.

Deliberations Resume

DALLAS (AP)-The judge in the Billie Sol Estes fraud trial met privately in the courtroom today with attorneys for both sides amid speculation in the jury might have been tainted.

The federal court jury resumed deliberations this morning.

There were reports that Don Trull of Tyler, a one-time associate of Estes, got onto an elevator with some jury members Wednesday evening as they left their jury room after two hours of deliberations.

Somoza Fights Back

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP)-President Anastasio Somoza pressed a counter-offensive today that could prove if he still has enough military might to save him.

The 53-year-old dictator sent about 1,000 troops, planes, armored cars and at least one tank against the Sandinista guerrillas holding Masaya, 20 miles south of the capital.

The SDN Column

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

We elect a president next year, and Jarry Tidwell of the Lamb County News-Leader suggests that it might be better if the we forego presidential elections on years ending in zero.

Bad things have happened to the victors in presidential elections in those years since 1840. William Henry Harrison, elected in 1840, was the first president to die in office, serving only 30 days before he died of pneumonia. Abraham Lincoln who was first elected in 1860, managed to serve out a term, but only one month into his second term he was assassinated by John Wilkes Booth. In 1880, James A. Garfield was elected president, but on July 2, 1881, he was shot in the back by Charles J. Guiteau at a Washington railroad station and the wounds proved fatal on Sept. 19, 1881.

William McKinley was elected to a second term in 1900 and he was shot at a public reception on Sept. 6, 1901, in Buffalo, N.Y. He died eight days later.

Warren G. Harding was elected president in 1920. He became ill on July 28, 1923, and then developed pneumonia and died Aug. 2 in San Francisco.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was the only man ever elected president four times. His third election came in 1940 and he was elected to his fourth term in 1944. But just 83 days after taking the oath of office for the fourth time, he died of a cerebral hemorrhage.

John F. Kennedy was elected president in 1960. On Nov. 22, 1963, an assassin's bullet ended his life in Dallas.

So, we're back to zero again next year, and if there are any superstitious politicans, they will stay clear of the presidential race.

Carter Scraps Other Plans...

'Domestic Summit' Continues

WASHINGTON (AP)-President Carter, having canceled an energy policy speech, today continued what was described as "almost a domestic summit" that may keep him cloistered at Camp David, Md., "well into next week."

Carter also scrapped plans to address a meeting of the nation's governors but called a group of state executives to Camp David.

A White House official, who asked not to be identified, said that while the key issues were energy and the economy, "the discussions will not be limited to those subjects." He declined to elaborate.

This source said the president "decided now is the time" to review a broad range of domestic policy questions.

The consultations began Thursday when Vice President Walter F. Mondale led a group of Carter advisers to the mountain top retreat, where the president took his family Tuesday for a short holiday.

In Atlanta, the secretary to Charles Kirbo, an attorney and Carter confidant, said Kirbo was flying to Washington, presumably to see the president. The White House has promised consultations "both in and outside of government."

The White House official said "the president will not be returning to Washington until he's seen the people he wants to see, and has had time to assess what he has heard."

Also summoned to Camp David for talks tonight were Gov. Julian Carroll of Kentucky, chairman of the National Governors Association, and a "representative group" of other state executives.

Carter canceled plans for a weekend trip to Louisville for the summer meeting of the governors group. He announced that Mrs. Carter and Mondale would make the trip instead.

Mondale and top advisers to Carter spent Thursday night at Camp David and most apparently will remain their with the president at least through the weekend to conduct a series of meetings.

A presidential aide, who asked not to be named, said Carter had set no date for the end of the conference.

Besides Mondale, the aides at Camp David were press secretary Jody Powell, political adviser Hamilton Jordan, media adviser Gerald Rafshoon, domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat and pollster Patrick Caddell.

With reasons for the speech cancellation still cloaked in mystery, White House press secretary Jody Powell, issued through his office Thursday evening a brief statement that raised as many questions as it answered.

SCHOLARSHIPS PRESENTED---Before disbanding Thursday night, the last act of the Snyder chapter of the Disabled American Veterans was to give two $400 scholarships. As Final Action...

DAV Presents Scholarships

Before disbanding Thursday night, the final action of the Snyder chapter of the Disabled American Veterans was the presentation of a pair of $400 scholarships to two local girls.

The scholarships were presented last night at the Union Community Center to Zenda Ball England and to Patsy Bass. Miss Bass was ill and unable to attend, but her scholarship was accepted by her mother, Mrs. James Bass.

Ironically, the dissolution of the DAV and its accompanying auxiliary unit was performed at a time when the membership rolls had swelled to 37, the greatest number since its organization four years ago this month.

"We gained membership, but lost active participation," said Mrs. Joyce Glover, commander of the auxiliary unit. "We just couldn't get people out."

"It just got to the point," added Mrs. Glover, "that we couldn't continue with

Q--Is it against the law to drink beer in public in Snyder?

A--There is no ordinance governing drinking alcoholic beverages. The city had such an ordinance at one time, but it was repealed when it was learned that it was in conflict with state law. State law prevails, and it does not prohibit drinking, but does prohibit drunkenness. Also, it sets a curfew for 12:15 a.m., except on Saturday nights when it extends to 1:15 a.m., and this is the law enforced by local officials.

Gary Named Athletic Director; Kennedy Stanfield Principal

Snyder School Trustees last night appointed John Gary athletic director and Wayne Kennedy principal of Stanfield Elementary School.

The appointments were made after the board went into an executive session following action on an agenda that included a study of bids on school food service, requests for reconsideration of a school attendance zone change and for implementation this year of a portion of new tax relief legislation dealing with farm land valuations.

Gary, 45, has been in the local system since 1964. He fills the vacancy created when Roy Carter was reassigned at his own request to full-time classroom duties. Gary came here as a junior high teacher and coach and in 1971 he became assistant principal at Lamar Junior High School. He continued as assistant principal when the two junior high schools were merged three years ago.

A graduate of Snyder High School, Gary was named to the all-regional basketball team and participated in the state track meet his junior and senior years. He attended Hardin-Simmons University on a basketball and track scholarship, receiving a bachelor of business administration degree. He coached at Union High School in Terry County from 1956 to 1964 and received the master of education degree in 1963 at Sul Ross State University.

Kennedy, 45, has been a teacher in the Snyder School system since 1957, having taught fifth and sixth grades.

He received the bachelor of business administration degree at Hardin-Simmons in 1954 and the master of education degree at Texas Tech University in 1969.

He succeeds Joel Griffin as Stanfield principal. Griffin announced several weeks ago that he was taking early retirement.

Bids on the school food service were submitted by ARA, Greyhound-Prophet and by Szabo. All proposals involve a "satellite" system in which food would be prepared at two locations and then be transported to the other schools in the system. The proposals will be analyzed by the school business staff and then studied further by the board before any decision is made.

Several residents of an area in Park Place Addition which was shifted from the West Elementary to the Stanfield Elementary attendance zone at the June meeting of the board asked that the action be reconsidered. They suggested that a portion of the West zone much nearer Stanfield could have been selected, which would not require as much travel to and from school for the pupils. The change in boundaries was part of a move to relieve a crowded condition at North Elementary and involved shifting the boundary between North and West and, in turn, the change between West and Stanfield.

School officials said the West-to-Stanfield shift had a two-fold purpose, since Stanfield's enrollment had declined and more students were needed there to balance teacher loads. Don McCowen and Ernie Armstrong were principal spokesmen for the group requesting reconsideration. The board took the request under advisement.

The Scurry County Taxpayers Association asked the board to reconsider its action delaying for a year the valuation of farm and ranch land on the basis of productivity. The board adopted a resolution to that effect in June, reporting at the time that property owners would fare better this year without putting the new plan into effect.

Billy Huddleston, who heads the Taxpayers Association, said that the new legislation would aid some landowners, especially ranchers, and that the landowner would have an option as to which valuation method was used. Moreover, he said the school district could receive up to $54,776 in reimbursement funds

Building Figures Show Gain In City

Snyder building figures showed a gain in June, but still lagged behind the pace of a year ago.

The city issued 17 building permits last month for construction costing $197,000, a substantial increase over the May total of $99,500.

The June building was dominated by residential permits, with four for new single-family dwelling and three for mobile homes. These accounted for all but $21,500 of the total, with the remainder involving accessory building and alterations.

The total for the city's fiscal year reached $3,012,188, compared to $4,394,204 at this time last year. For the calendar year, the total now stands at $1,869,338, compared to $3,287,246 last year. The city's fiscal year ends Sept. 30.

Unemployment Rate Decreases

WASHINGTON (AP)-The nation's unemployment rate fell to 5.6 percent in June, the lowest level in nearly five years, the government said today.

At the same time, wholesale prices continued to moderate, rising 0.5 percent last month, the Labor Department said.

Food prices actually declined 1.2 percent, thanks to sharp drops in the prices of beef, pork and poultry. Non-food items rose 1.2 percent, with sharp advances in petroleum prices taking the blame.

Both the unemployment and wholesale price figures were good news for American consumers. The economy is girding for the impact of more oil price increases that will result from the recent decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise crude oil prices an average of 25 percent.

President Carter and his aides have said the OPEC increase will cost 800,000 Americans their jobs by mid-1980 and add between 2 and 2.5 percentage points to the U.S. inflation rate.

The unemployment rate had held steady in the range of 5.7 percent to 5.9 percent for the past 10 months. The decline to 5.6 percent in June, the lowest level since August 1974, "was due almost entirely to a drop in teen-age joblessness," said Labor Department analyst Kathryn Hoyle.

"The number of unemployed teen-agers fell by 130,000 in June, while their unemployment rate dropped from 16.8 percent to 15.3 percent," the report said.

Ms. Hoyle said that although the figures are seasonally adjusted to account for changes such as heavy summer hiring, some of the improvement in teen-age unemployment likely was due to summer job programs.

The unemployment rate had been 5.8 percent in May. It averaged 5.7 percent in both the first and second quarters of 1979, compared with about 6 percent a year earlier.

Total employment rose by 440,000 last month, to 96.8 million, the Labor Department said. The employment gain in May had been only 140,000 jobs.

Deposits Dip As Loans Set Record

Deposits were down from record levels set earlier this year, but loans edged to a new record, according to mid-year reports by Snyder financial firms.

For the quarter ending June 30, deposits in local banks and savings and loan firms totaled $121,824,950, while loans totaled $84,561,458. The deposit total declined from $127,565,276 from the first quarter report at the end of March and compares with a total of $123,767,552 at this time last year, which set a record then.

Loans eclipsed the all-time record of $84,080,415, which was set in the fourth quarter of 1978.

Bank deposits the second quarter this year amounted to $76,747,812 and bank loans totalled $45,850,733. Savings and loan deposits totalled $45,077,138, and loans amounted to $38,710,725.

Snyder National Bank had deposits of $40,099,139 and loans of $24,971,303; West Texas State Bank had deposits of $36,648,673 and loans of $20,879,430.

Snyder Savings and Loan had deposits of $30,901,314 and loans of $29,276,726; First Federal Savings and Loan had deposits of $14,175,824 and loans of $9,443,999.

one step forward

A motorist driving along an interstate highway more than 100 miles from a metropolitan area needed some gasoline. A major company's service station came into view, but there were no cars around--nothing to indicate that the station was open. But, just to make sure, the motorist exited and pulled into the station's driveway, and lo and behold, the station was open.

"I didn't see any cars in line, so I thought you were out of gasoline," said the motorist to the station attendant.

"I've got plenty of gasoline. It's customers that I'm out of," was the reply.

This situation and many others like it led to an announcement by Gov. Bill Clements that he planned to use his new authority to transfer gasoline allocations from where they are not being used to where they are needed to eliminate lines at gasoline pumps. And in making his announcement, the govenror may have pinpointed the biggest problem so far as gasoline lines are concerned. He said that he did not plan to develop a state wide formula allocating gasoline because "we have too many formulas now and they are not working."

The standard formula for the entire country is one of the shortcomings of the federal bureaucracy, not only in allocating gasoline, but in the implementation of programs in other fields as well. It is difficult for Washington to understand that what works well in Bangor, Me., may not work at all in Phoenix, Ariz., or Snyder, Tx.

Gov. Clements indicates that he realizes that solving a situation in Dallas might not be of much help in El Paso. Flexibility is the name of the game. The professionals who have been distributing gasoline for scores of years---the oil companies---had it solved years ago, but since the "crunch" came along they have had little opportunity to use their expertise. And so long as the government is going to call the shots, it is a step in the right direction to do it from Austin rather than Washington.

reluctant governors

Among the ranks of the declared and undeclared candidates for Jimmy Carter's job in the 1980 elections are many members of Congress, but few if any sitting governors.

That situation could change dramatically if a governor in any one of the states did what Jimmy Carter has been unable to do--organize and carry out a meaningful attack on the nation's energy crisis.

It is folly to wait for the federal government to solve the nation's problems. Far removed from the scene of supply or demand, bound into inaction by feared political repercussions, the president's energy program everywhere is derided as a joke.

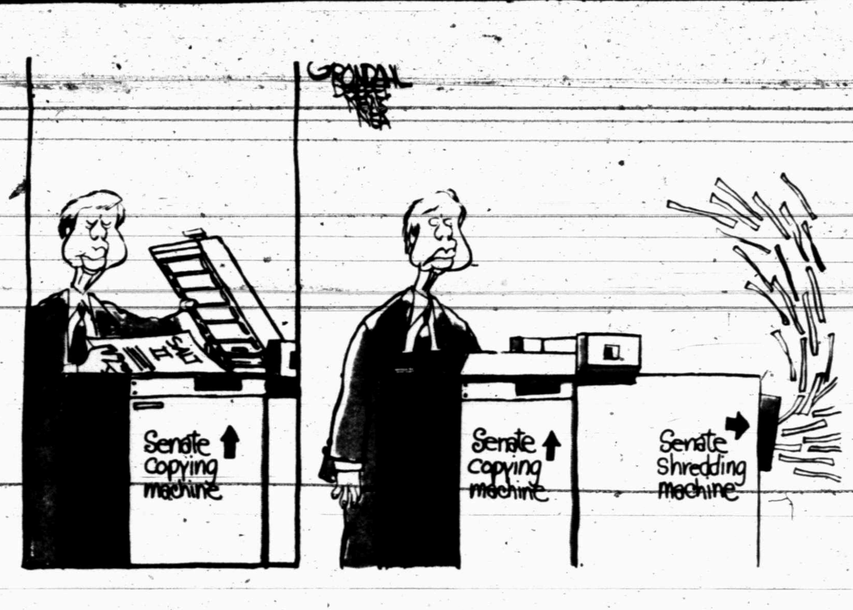

The oil shieks are having a glorious time laughing at the industrial West and the United States in particular with every new oil price increase.

The governors can take the initiative, either individually or collectively, if they will. To do so, of course, they must first free themselves from the political timidity which seems to have rendered the White House immobile. Then they must proceed to clearly identify the problem and throw major resources at its solution.

It isn't driving speeds or temperature controls which are going to solve the energy problem, although each does have beneficial side effects. The answer lies in new energy sources--not a decade or two away, but right now.

That is not an impossible solution. Many of the states have within their borders major energy resources--ocean tides, coal, major hydroelectric power sources, geothermal power, ideal solar power climates, wind and even grains which can be converted into fuels.

Some of these are being tapped, but not nearly to their potential. Each is a potential gold mine for the state which harbors it. Where are the leaders willing to take the initiative to help pull the nation out of one of the worst threats it has ever faced?

at wits end

There's a "working class" emerging in this country that bears watching. Without the benefit of lobbyists, union or organization of any kind, they are emerging as a real power group. I call them "professional children" and within a few years they have amassed private fortunes that are staggering.

Several years ago when mothers began to return to the labor market, children also saw a value in the rewards system. They began to exercise their worth too.

They discovered that crying when mother leaves for work was worth . . . 50 cents.

Not crying when mother leaves for work was worth . . . one dollar.

Not playing in the traffic while mother was at work . . . 25 cents.

Staying out of trouble and playing with $400 worth of toys in their bedroom . . . 35 cents.

I know some kids who have saved enough to buy an Arab just by answering the door.

I found a "professional child" the other day who was willing to talk about his new-found status. "The tooth fairy gave kids a limited income," he said. "It was like ballpayers. You only had a few good years to make it. Having a working mother gives us more stability. This way I get paid for setting the table, not teasing the dog, not letting more than 20 kids at a time in the house, and a bonus for watching my brother."

"What about your brother?" I asked.

"He gets paid for not losing the mail, tearing up the paper before our parents get to read it, not spitting, and a bonus for watching me."

"You get nothing for breathing?"

thoughts

The word "evangelist" is found three times in the New Testament and means "one who proclaims good tidings."

"And the next day...we entered into the house of Philip the evangelist..." — Acts 21:8

"Not yet. We work on a narrow margin of guilt and we have to be careful not to go too far. A few kids get paid for not letting the hose run in the living room or for changing their underwear every day, but that's rare. Most of us are nonproductive for scale."

As I was there, the phone rang. It was his mother calling from Work. She wanted him to let in the washer repairman when he came.

"It's too bad," he said putting down a pencil. "He's due when I'm being paid to take my nap. It'll cost her extra."

voices ignored

NEW YORK (AP)—Lost amid the cacophony of crisis news, of gasoline shortages that compel attention, for example, are observations worthy of recognition, for their significance if not for their urgency.

Among them are commentaries from the private sector that may be worthy of consideration or even perhaps of reconsideration.

Such as the remarks of Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Co., at the University of Chicago last April 26, a few days before announcing he would quit as chief executive officer on Oct. 1.

"In recent decades we businessmen have neglected many genuine problems and turned a blind eye to conditions that should have caught our attention. Often we have simply been stupid.

"We have refused to confront some of the crucial issues of our time, and as a result we have played directly into the hands of our critics and helped to make matters worse.

"The whole issue of consumerism is a prime example . . .

"Maybe we wouldn't have won any prizes if we had answered auto-safety charges more effectively before the consumerists moved into the area, but we would have saved ourselves - and customers - some nightmarish regulations."

Or the comments on big government by Murray Weidenbaum, former assistant secretary of treasury and now one of the foremost advocates of regulatory reform.

"The government cannot be our nanny," he said in a magazine interview. "I think Americans are sensible enough to know that. To my mind there exists a tremendous gap between the view of the formal consumer advocates and the view of the rank and file of consumers.

"Currently, there's a strong movement in the Federal Trade Commission to tell Americans what to eat through regulation of television advertising.

"When a senior FTC official was asked if he thought it was the government's task to tell free Americans what to eat, his response was, 'People eat for the wrong reasons.'

"Talk about Big Brother!"

Walter Hoadley, executive vice president and chief economist of Bank of America, articulated the thoughts of many people in testimony before the Senate Budget Committee.

Almost everyone appearing before the committee had delclared their concern about the possibility of recession and with public demands for a restraint on government spending.

"I submit there is another broader force at work which quietly but relentlessly is sapping our fundamental economic strength," he said.

It is, said Hoadley, the "pervasive negative thinking across our country about the future, national and personal.

"It is crucial that the Congress and the administration try hard to reverse this public attitude through policy changes in the next year or two to cause a sharp increase in private risk-taking investments, innovation, productivity, saving, and national confidence."

Except for a few young outlaws noisily disposing of the last of their fireworks, the usual calm has settled back on the old town. Peace and quiet are nice, but wasn't the midweek bash splendid. More than 10,000 people poured into Towle Park for the fireworks display. There was even an airplane circling overhead. Some people will do anything for a good seat.

No Fourth of July celebration would be complete anymore without the tractor-pull. Nothing will keep the fans away. Last year it rained and they came and this year it was so hot that I ordered a hamburger, rare, from the Jaycees concession and by the time I got back to my seat it was well done.

Nobody enjoys the tractor-pull more than the participants. Damon Johnson, a perennial puller, enjoys the sport so much that he bought himself another rig. He let his son, Damon Jr., drive his old stand-by. He is probably still questioning the wisdom of that last move. Tuesday, Damon Jr. won second in the 5,000 stock class while Damon barely managed a fifth. Wednesday, big Damon fared a little better with a fourth, this time only finishing one place behind his son.

A new attraction in the park this year was a camel brought here to promote the Kendrick religious pageant held each summer between Cisco and Eastland. Many were the little kids who patted this biblical beast of burden on the head and explored its legendary hump. The huge animal was uncharacteristically gentle and I could not resist a little feel myself.

Believe it or not camels once roamed wild across the great expanses of Texas. They were not native but the result of an ill-fated project of the U.S. Army who hoped the camels would replace the all-too-often-thirsty mules used for transporting supplies across the waterless stretches of the great Southwest.

The animals could handle the arid climate okay but even the most well-versed muleskinners could not find the words to adequately describe the nasty disposition of these gangly creatures. Forever biting, spitting and kicking and refusing to obey anything but their own whims, camels have been known to attack and even kill men with their giant hooves.

Maybe that is where those people of the Middle East get their propensity for constant bickering and hoarding of precious liquid.

We can blame profiteering oil companies.

Or we can blame the greedy oil-exporting cartel.

Or we can blame a bungling Energy Department.

But we aren't doing much blaming of ourselves for the chaotic situation we've gotten ourselves into at this stage of the fuel shortage.

We should. Instead of rising to the challenge, Americans seem to prefer challenging each other. In the long lines creeping toward erratically pumping stations in many parts of the country, drivers jockey for position with sometimes violent consequences. When they aren't at each other, they are castigating Washington for not doing something.

But in Washington, they are doing something—bumping into each other in pursuit of near-instant solutions to the crisis.

Now that the bloom is off deregulation of domestic oil production and solar energy so far has taken off only as far as the White House roof, the solution of the moment on Capitol Hill is 'synfuels". That is shortspeak for synthetic fuels, gasoline substitutes derived from coal, shale, tar sands, various farm crops and other unlikely sources.

With at last count several dozen bills in the congressional hoppers designed to promote synthetic production, the House has now passed and sent on to the Senate one plan under which the federal government would underwrite production of two million barrels of synthetic fuel per day, more than 10 percent of current national consumption.

Private industry would be encouraged to get into costly synthetic production with the assistance of federal loans and guaranteed purchases—the Pentagon would take a quarter of the total output: According to current estimates five years would be required to begin producing significant quantities of fuel at a developmental cost of some $18 billion.

If money and knowhow are the prerequisites, this could be a good part of the answer to the energy problem. The technology for producing synthetic petroleum products has been available for years and is currently proving itself. South Africa, a pariah among the oil-supplying nations thanks to its racial policies, already is well advanced in meeting most of its requirements through coal conversion.

Also, there is the precedent of the successful World War II effort that created a domestic synthetic rubber industry after the Japanese conquest of Southeast Asia cut off supplies of the natural product.

But if there are similarities with that achievement, there are also crucial differences. The question mark in the case of synthetic fuels is not technological feasibility or even so much availability of natural supplies as it is price.

Initial cost of synthetic fuel would be high, up to $10 or more above recent prices for imported natural crude. As OPEC goes its merry price-hiking way, that gap is steadily narrowing, and consequently synthetics are becoming steadily more economical. But - and it is a big one - politics rather than the economics determine the OPEC price. The exporting countries charge not according to what it costs them to produce but to how much the importing nations can be compelled to pay.

If the price of natural crude can be raised by OPEC virtually at will, so can it be lowered. Unlike the synthetic rubber industry, synthetic oil would be vulnerable to undercutting should OPEC choose to cut its price to $12 or $15 a barrel.

Once synthetics reached volume production, unit price might reasonably be expected to drop. But not in the foreseeable future to levels at which OPEC could still profitably operate. In such a situation, a major industry would be in a continually vulnerable situation even with government as a guaranteed purchaser of last resort.

There may be something to be gained in synthetic fuels, but in themselves they are no substitute for a balanced energy program involvling conservation and development of a range of alternative sources.

Without such a program, we could well find ourselves with an $18 billion synthetic elephant instead of an answer to the fuel shortage. And then who would be to blame?

We'd find someone.

letter to editor

To The Snyder Daily News:

I appreciated the article in the June 29th edition of the paper which gave the opinion of the Royalty Owners Association concerning the two-tiered oil pricing and the windfall profits tax. Many people were confused about the latter and now understand it much better. They didn't know whether they should write letters to their congressmen or not, but they now know that they should write and protest the windfall profits tax, that not just the oil companies will be hurt by this tax but also the royalty owners.

The farmers and truckers have marched in protest of what they thought was unfair, the royalty owners have not marched in protest but it is time that we let the government know we don't like being treated unfairly. If the royalty owners were drawing larger checks, that would benefit the government in additional income tax. The gasoline is going to be at the high price regardless of whether the royalty owners get a fair price or not. If you have never written a letter to your congressmen before, I urge you to please do so now.

Beef Recipes For Informal Gatherings

Lower beef prices suggest serving Fondue Bourguignonne for an informal gathering or discriminating gourmets or hungry friends. If you haven't staged a fondue party yet, now's the time to do it.

2 to 2½ pounds sirloin steak, cut 1-inch thick
Salad oil

Cut sirloin steak 1-inch cubes. Pour oil in a deep chafing dish or fondue pan to a depth of 1½ to 2 inches. (Pan should be no more than half full.)

Place over direct heat on range and bring to 375 degrees F. Take pan containing oil to table (using caution) and place over alcohol burner or canned heat to maintain temperature. Spear steak cubes, one at a time, with fondue fork and hold meat in the hot oil until cooked to desired degree of doneness. Cube will be rare in approximately 1 minute, medium in 2 minutes. Dip each cube in one of accompanying sauces.

If oil cools so it no longer bubbles briskly when meat is added, reheat on range to 375 degrees F.

Creamy Garlic Dip

1 cup dairy sour cream
¼ teaspoon garlic salt

Blend sour cream and garlic salt.

Cover tightly and refrigerate until ready to serve. Yield: 1 cup

Mustard-Horseradish Dip

¼ cup prepared mustard
½ cup cooked salad dressing
1 teaspoon prepared horseradish

Blend mustard, salad dressing and horseradish. Cover tightly and refrigerate until ready ro serve. Yield ¾ cup.

Outwit the weatherman and satisfy hungry appetites at the same time by playing it cool. Move your kitchen to the patio and prepare a kabob dinner on your barbeque grill.

What meat to purchase for the Kabobs? Reba Staggs, meat expert with the National Livestock and Meat Board, suggests buying beef sirloin tip.

Herb Beef Kabobs

Cut 2 pounds, sirloin tip into 1½-inch cubes. Make ready 8 eggplant wedges cut 2 inches in length, 4 small cooked or canned onions and 4 cherry tomatoes.

To prepare the marinade combine ¼ cup finely chopped onion, ½ cup lemon juice, ¼ cup salad oil, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon celery salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon oregano, ½ teaspoon thyme and 1 clove garlic, finely chopped. Pour marinade over meat. Cover tightly and refrigerate overnight.

On four 12-inch metal skewers alternately thread meat cubs, eggplant and onion. Brush with marinade.

Place Kabobs on grill 3 to 4 inches from heat. Cook 10 to 12 minutes. Cook 10 to 12 minutes. Turn, brush with marinade. Cook 8 to 10 minutes. About 2 minutes before kabobs are done, slip a cherry tomato on the end of each skewer and return to grill to complete cooking.

Time Near To Chose Baby's Sex

The time may be near when a couple can decide on the sex of their unborn child.

And the food they eat - and when - may turn out to be the determining factor, reports the Health Insurance Institute.

According to the Institute, a team of Canadian doctors studied 216 women who were fed a special diet if they wanted a girl, and an entirely different diet for a boy.

Though "this hypothesis is still in the experimental stage," Dr. Jacques Lorrain of Sacre Coeur Hospital in Montreal says that through diet 175 women were able to select their babies' sex.

The difficult part is that the women are required to begin the special diet a month or six weeks before conceiving and remain on it until the pregnancy is confirmed.

Dr. Lorrain told the Institute that men and what they ate played an important part in determining the sex of their child, too.

The gynecologist put it this way: "Husbands were aksed to follow the diet as far as they could for psychological reasons, for women often have to modify their eating habits considerably for this experiment."

What did they eat?

Those interested in having a boy ate salty foods for their potassium and sodium. Dairy products were prohibited.

The girl diet, on the other hand, was virtually saltless but heavy in dairy products to increase calcium and magnesium.

The results have been so good, said Dr. Lorrain, that it indicates that "in the near future, we will achieve the ability to select the desired sex - we will then be in a position to eliminate some hereditary diseases transmitted through sex such as hemophilia, muscular dystrophy, and the like."

South saw from the start that six spades would be a cinch unless West held four clubs to the jack. He could handle four clubs in the East hand. So South proceeded to cash dummy's ace of diamonds at trick four. He had drawn trumps at tricks two and three.

When South cashed that ace, West stopped to think and then proceeded to jettison his king under the ace.

Now South ran off all his trumps to leave dummy with three clubs and the tens of hearts and diamonds.

By this time West was sure that his four clubs were of paramount importance so he hung on to all of them. This left him with only one other card and after much thought he dropped the queen of hearts in order to hang on to a low one. He had anticipated that South was planning to throw him in with that queen.

South cashed dummy's ace and king of clubs and got the bad news. He still had one slight ray of hope. Maybe West still held the jack of hearts. So South in desperation led the 10 of hearts and was down two when East produced the jack and cashed two high diamonds.

Finding potassium

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know certain foods have potassium in them but I'm not sure which ones. Could you please send me your pamphlet on potassium and what to eat. I do feel weak at times.

I was in the hospital two years ago and all they told me was to eat bananas and orange juice. I'm 67 years old.

DEAR READER — There are many causes for weakness or feeling tired. That can even happen from an inadequate amount of sodium salt. You usually won't have a low sodium, though, unless you're taking medicines to wash salt and water out of the body.

Potassium is found in abundant quantities in most fruit. That's why bananas and orange juice were suggested. Both are excellent sources of potassium. People who consume a large amount of fresh fruit and fruit juices should be getting an adequate amount of potassium in their diet. There's also some potassium in fresh vegetables and even in whole milk. Milk, however, also contains quite a bit of sodium and generally has to be limited on a low-salt (low sodium) diet.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium And Potassium Balance, as you have requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just read an article that was sent to me by someone who's trying harder to save my life than I am. It's my father. I say he's trying harder because I'm an alcoholic who hasn't given up alcohol.

I'm serving an 18-month jail sentence for an alcohol-related crime and although I've read many articles on alcoholism and have been through classes in the AA, I know I will return to alcohol.

I've lost jobs and friends and almost everything but I don't care because I resent friends telling me to stop drinking or it might be fatal.

Maybe if they didn't care so much, I would have found a solution on my own. I know when I get out of jail, I'll go straight to the bar and I'll soon be back in jail and eventually my life will end in disaster. The worst part is I really don't care. That's what booze has done for me and I hope you won't let this happen to your readers.

I know alcohol in my case is a killer. This is the ninth time I've been in jail for booze and I'm barely 23 years old. I enjoy getting drunk so much I don't give a damn about the consequences, whether it be more jail or death. Thanks for listening and I hope you have this printed as it's the only way I can tell my folks I love them.

DEAR READER — There is another way — you could stop drinking.

I suspect that you need the services of a psychiatrist who can help you to understand why you drink and if you're using it as a mechanism related to your interrelations with your family. If you learn to understand yourself and work out some of the problems you have, you may find that you really don't enjoy getting drunk as much as you have in the past. That could be the real solution to your problem.

Long Gas Lines Should Diminish

By The Associated Press

American motorists who have been waiting, scheming, siphoning and even shooting to get a full tank of gas in recent weeks should find the filling up a bit easier this weekend.

According to the American Automobile Association and an associated Press spot check, long gas station lines will be rare and supplies should be fairly plentiful in most parts of the nation.

The shortest supplies likely will be concentrated in the Washington, D.C. area and parts of New England and the Great Lakes states.

The AAA said Thursday it found the "first good news in weeks for many American motorists" in a survey of nearly 6,200 gas stations.

Motorists should expect "more gasoline available, more service stations open and shorter station lines," the AAA report said. "Fourteen percent more stations will be open this weekend than were open last weekend."

Officials attribute the improvement to increased supply, due to delivery of July fuel allocations, and decreased demand, due to a slump in driving.

"We're telling people we believe the gasoline situation should be a little less of a problem this weekend because most stations received their July allocations this week," said Kevin Kneisley of the Kansas Department of Economic Development.

"The lines are getting consistently shorter, people are worrying less about getting fuel," said Danny Alvarez, fuel allocation officer of Florida's Dade County, which includes Miami. "The facts and figures indicate we shouldn't have any lines at all."

State officials reported that travel over the Fourth of July holiday was down considerably from past years, apparently because of the gas crunch and, in some areas, bad weather.

The gas shortage also has changed buying habits and trimmed sales at some of the nation's largest retailers, according to June sales reports released Thursday. Retailers reported sales dipped for some items, such as tires and luggage, while catalog sales improved.

In other gas-related developments:

A survey released Thursday by the Conference Board, a business group that periodically reports on consumer attitudes, found that Americans have cut back dramatically on vacation plans, especially if they were going to go by car.

The survey found that 29 percent of the 5,000 families interviewed nationwide planned a vacation this summer, down from 46 percent in February and 47 percent a year ago.

Delegates Angry Over Gas Lines

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Iraq's delegates to the United Nations are angry because the oil squeeze their government help put on the United States is forcing U.N. diplomats to wait in line at the gas station.

A U.S. delegate suggested that the diplomats take the subway or the bus.

Iraq called a meeting Thursday of the U.N. Committee on Relations with the Host Country - the United States - so that its chief deputy delegate to the world organization, Saih A.K. Bafi, could complain that he and his colleagues were waiting in line as much as four hours to buy gasoline when they should be carrying out their official duties.

He suggested that some New York filling stations be reserved for diplomats only. Or that they be allowed to fill up at the U.N. headquarters pump now reserved for the 20 Secretariat trucks.

U.S. delegate Herbert K. Reis said his office would support an application for the allocation of more gas to the U.N. pump. But Yoshio Tagaya of the Secretariat said that would mean "some lines here as you have outside."

Reis made no comment on Bafi's proposal for diplomats-only gas stations, an arrangement that would require heavy police guards to protect them from New Yorkers already burned up because diplomatic vehicles are exempt from parking regulations. But he pointed out that "New York is extremely fortunate in having a very good transportation system."

Reis also reminded the other delegates that life is not always easy in their hometowns. There are "many places in the world where the local diplomats experience difficulties because of local conditions - power shortages, water shortages and confusion due to civil disobedience," he said.

Nobody made specific mention of Iraq's membership in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which has increased the price of crude oil more than 40 percent in the past year and restricts production to keep the price up. But Fermin Zelada of Spain said perhaps U.N. diplomats "could count on the generosity of the petroleum-producing countries.

If you'd like to watch the greatest performers doing the same acts that have dazzled audiences in the nightclub capitals of the world. If you'd like to spend an evening with the biggest of the big-name entertainers—but they never seem to be playing your neighborhood.

ALL-STARS

Girls

Tonight's games were to complete regularly scheduled play in Girl's Softball, Farm and Little Leagues, and in all cases, were to be highlighted with the selection of all-star teams.

The Girl's Softball League will announce its four all-star teams immediately following the final game of the evening - and one of the most promising battles of the night - between the Red Necks and Panthers.

According to schedule, the Green Hornets and Ghost Riders open play at 5:30, followed by the Blue Buzzards and Bombers at 7, and the Red Necks and Panthers at 8:30.

Farm League

Late-night 8:30 action tonight pits the Braves against the Cubs, both 5-1 in round-two play. This promises to be one of the better Farm League games of the year. In round-one action, the Braves edged the Cubs by a scant point to win the loop. Tonight, the Cubs will take a stab at repaying that debt.

Regardless of the outcome of tonight's game, however, Farm League all-stars will be named Monday, following either a Cubs-Braves playoff, or a playoff between two second-place teams.

Little League

Confused? Little League promises to fuddle minds even further.

The Yankees and Indians (first-half champion) go into tonight's 7 p.m. game tied for the second half title at 6-0 each. Should the Indians win tonight, Little League stars will be announced following the 8:30 Braves-Cubs game.

Should the Yanks be victorious, the two teams will playoff after the Farm League playoff on Monday, and all-stars will be announced at that time.

Boy's Leagues fans could have a real treat tonight, taking in the Little League Indians-Yankees game at 7, followed by the Braves-Cubs contest at 8:30.

Now, on with yesterday's results.

GIRL'S SOFTBALL

Red Hots 12, Ghost Riders 5

Christene Valdez ripped a home run and two singles, and Lisa Kimmel, Connie Cates and Carrie Fortune added two base hits each as the Red Hots dumped the Riders Thursday. Sophie Castillo, Vickie Fletcher and Nicole Williams knocked a single apiece.

For the Ghost Riders, Pamela Casias capped two singles and Leeann Thompson, Shonda Wiman and Joetta Merritt added a single each.

Chennelle Reeves was the winning pitcher.

Blue Blazers 10, Blue Bonnets 9

Winning pitcher Rebekah Powell powered three singles and teammates Hayley Vineyard, Angela Franklin and Zeena Cox added a base hit each to edge the Blue Blazers past the Bonnets last night.

Dawn Patrick looped a double and a single to lead the Blue Bonnets, Tonetta Wood hit two singles, and Christina Guerrera and Kammie McNew garnered a single each.

Betty's Angels 23, Rebels 4

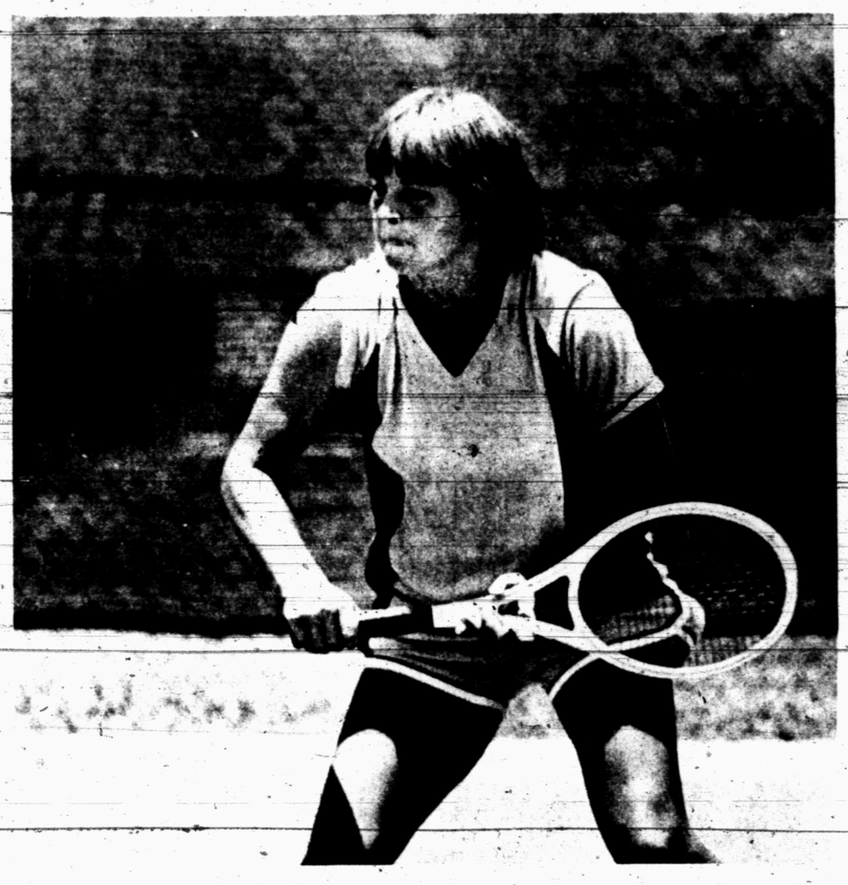

The Angels apparently came up with 24 hits in this victory over the Rebels last evening. Hitting for the Angels were Sherri Sturdivant, a home run, a double and two singles; Jani Murph, a double and three singles; Brenda Zajicek, a double and two singles; Theresa Ashworth, a double and a single; Teresa Treadway, winning pitcher Shana Hart and Dawn Farmer, three singles each; and Michelle Pinkerton, two singles.

For the Rebels, Kim Burton rapped a trio of singles, Wendy Hodge and Becky Gray noted two each, and Nikki Stewart and Shannon Shapman hit one apiece.

Colorado City 23, Misfits 22

Winning pitcher Jan Tarter knocked a triple, a double and two singles to aid the C-City Red Hots past Snyder's Misfits in Colorado City yesterday. Others hitting for the Red Hots were Angie Neff, a triple and three singles; Jabby Gaona, four singles; Mona Molina, four singles; Becky Mitchell, five singles; Michelle Fargo, a triple and two singles; and Carla Herm, two singles.

Bobbie Edwards rapped five singles and a double to pace the Misfits. Delia Williams added two doubles and a single; Von Dale Henry and Laurie Allen noted three singles each; Rosie Shoemaker powered a double and two singles; Becky Edwards hit two singles and a double; Melinda Roemisch collected two singles; and Dusty Murph, Patty Gleaston and Becky Digby added a single each.

LOCAL TALENT--Connie Weber, a member of the Snyder High School tennis team which competed in regionals last spring, took second place in a couple of events of the Snyder 'Players' Tennis Tournament held here July 2-4. She paired with Jimmy Fowler in mixed doubles, and Sweetwater's Sylvia Layfield in women's doubles. (SDN STAFF PHOTO)

U.S. Splashes Foes As Games Continue

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP)—United States swimmers continue their destruction of the competition and the record books at the VIII Pan American Games, but the ballooning U.S. medal count got some unexpected help from a 14-year-old gymnast.

Jeanine Creek, who enters high school this fall in Great Falls, Mont., surprised a confident Canadian squad with a silver medal individual performance in the free exercise Thursday.

The swimmers are out to get all the gold medals.

At Mexico City four years ago, U.S. swimmers took the gold medal in all but two swimming races. So far, in 16 events they have 16 gold medals and 16 Pan Am Games records. They earned six golds Thursday.

The suspected weakest links in the chain come up tonight. Jesse Vassallo, upset Thursday night by teammate Peter Rocca in 200-meter backstroke, has to beat world record holder Graham Smith of Canada in the 200-meter indivudual medley to keep alive hopes of a U.S. sweep.

In the women's 200-meter breaststroke, the U.S. hopes ride on two little-known swimmers: Patty Spees, of Oakland, Calif., and Renee Laravie of Daytona, Ohio, while breast stroke specialists Tami Paumier and Tracy Caulkins sit out.

Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., makes her final Games appearance tonight in the 400-meter freestyle, in which she faces teammate Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif.

Tom Peterson of Tacoma, Wash., took the seventh U.S. gold Thursday with his second winning performance in the 10,000-meter roller skating final.

The biggest problems the Americans may encounter in some events is overconfidence, since their 34 gold medals through the Games' first four days is more than that of the other 33 countries combined.

Overconfidence may have been what took over the vaunted U.S. men's basketball team. The Americans blew three 14-point leads Thursday night against Brazil, and barely held on for an 82-78 victory behind 17 points by Kentucky's Kyle Macy.

U.S. archers appeared certain of victory today in their long-running competition. Rod Baston, of Bossier City, La., had a big lead in individual shooting.

Many events were scheduled today.

Clampett Shocks Open Field

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) -Amateur Bob Clampett stunned the pros by shooting 3-under par 69 for a share of the first-round lead in the Western Open golf tournament.

Clampett hooked up a 33-36 to join Bruce Devlin and Jim Simons in the lead.

Grouped at 70 were Tom Watson, who had five bogeys and seven birdies; John Fought, Allen Miller, Calvin Peete, John Lister, Pat McGowan and Dave Douglass. Jim Colbert, Larry Nelson, Tom Weiskopf and Jerry McGee were among those bracketed at 71.

Fish Tourney Begins Here On Saturday

The Earl Fish Memorial Golf Tournament begins here Saturday at Snyder Country Club.

Practice rounds, a sweepstakes event and other contests were to be held today.

The Saturday-Sunday team tournament has been filled for several weeks, according to officials, and includes a strong field of area golfers in its six flights.

Third, Fourth and Fifth flights open the tournment at 9 a.m. Saturday, teeing off with a shotgun start. The Championship, First and Second flights will tee at 1:30 p.m. Sunday's order will be reversed, with tee times being at 9 a.m. and 2 p.m.

A Saturday evening buffet and dance will be held in conjunction with the tournament.

Don Bryant, resident pro, will be tournament director.

Evert-Navratilova Battle

Tanner Ready For Borg

WIMBLEDON, England (AP)—Playing Bjorn Borg in the Wimbledon final holds no terrors for big Roscoe Tanner.

"If I didn't think I could win there would be no point in going on court," Tanner said Thursday after crushing Pat Dupre, 6-3, 7-6, 6-3 in the semi-finals.

Borg beat Jimmy Connors 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 to advance to his fourth consecutive final. He has won the final every time he's entered it, which means he stands to make modern tennis history Saturday. He could become the first man to win four in a row since Anthony Wilding completed his streak in 1913.

Today, Martina Navratilova and Chris Evert Lloyd will battle for the women's title. Navratilova is the defending champion. Lloyd, who won Wimbledon in 1974 and 1976, beat Martina two weeks ago at Eastbourne.

On Wednesday, Navratilova defeated Tracy Austin and Lloyd downed Evonne Goolagong Cawley to reach the final.

Tanner is not rated with much of a chance against Borg, but that could work to his advantage.

"There may be a little pressure on him, going for his fourth win, and there is not much pressure on me," Tanner said. "I'll be coming in as underdog and I'll just see how I go. It doesn't worry me that I am not given a lot of chance. It is what I do on court that matters."

Borg has won most of their previous encounters, but Tanner did beat the Swede in the U.S. Pro Indoor in Philadelphia 18 months ago. He feels that result could be significant.

"I felt I could beat him then," said the man with the huge serve. "I had a game plan that I wanted to use and I stuck to it and it worked." But Tanner wasn't about to reveal any game plans.

Borg was in superlative form in destroying Connors. Tanner and his coach, Dennis Ralston, watched part of the match.

"Borg is playing awfully well," said Tanner. "Guys have tried all sorts of things against him, but nothing has really worked. Borg wins a lot of points with his service. It is a deceptive. Even when getting it back, you have to think about his next shot."

Tanner said his own game has improved dramatically over the past 12 months. Previously thought of as a big server but little more, his game is much better rounded now.

"The key to my improvement is my better movement, concentration and confidence," he said. "I also have a better attitude. I don't let things worry me.

"The key for me to beat anyone is to move well. Borg does the same thing."

Despite being the outsider, Tanner believes in his own ability to win the final. "I'm not going to go out thinking I can't win," he said. "If that was the case I might as well take the plane home and send my regards on Saturday."

FARM LEAGUE

Cardinals 6, White Sox 6 (tie)

The Cardinals and White Sox ended with six runs apiece last evening. The Cards went up 2-0 in the second inning before the White Sox added six runs in the bottom of the Stanza. Again the Cards rallied to tie the score, then held the Sox scoreless in the bottom of the inning.

Jack Simmons, pitcher, Denard White, Jimmy Guerra and Anthony Wesley each hit a single for the Cards. Mike Martina got the only Sox hit, a single.

Athletics 32, Giants 4

The A's went out with a bang last night, closing out another Farm League season. Tonight's games will complete the month-long stretch, when the Braves and Cubs, and Indians and Yankees battle.

Winning pitcher Jerry Villarreal slammed a triple and two doubles and Daren Clawson added a triple and one double for the Athletics. Others hitting were Vincent Valdez, a triple and two singles; Gene Sands, three singles; and Lane Pitts, David Kenner, Lynn Sands and John Gilbert, a single each.

For the Giants, Kevin Burns, Tommy Shands, Doug Vest and John Zalman hit a single apiece.

LITTLE LEAGUE

White Sox 17, Cardinals 6

Winning pitcher Kerry McCarter rapped two singles, Jimmy Cole knocked a double, and Greg Mayfield, Geoffrey Chamblee and Ricky Rodriquez scattered a single apiece as the Sox ripped the Cardinals last night.

For the Cards, Jimmy Cowen hit two doubles, Jay Rambin added three singles; Michael Long and Carlos Hernandez slapped a double each; and Albert Zamora and Weldon McFatridge hit a single apiece.

Athletics 9, Giants 8

Only two hits were recorded in the game book for this contest, a single each by Brian Norris and Jay Mayp, winning pitcher, both of the Athletics.

TEENAGE LEAGUE

Rebels 11, Dodgers 7

Jessie Hernandez, D.W. Lofton and Monte Gambol rocked a single each to help aid the Rebels past the Dodgers Thursday evening. A number of Dodger errors enforced the Rebels' dominance in the game.

Trey Harlin and Cliff Davis bounded two singles each for the Dodgers. John Bloom and Doug Scott added one each.

Buffs 14, Braves 7

Tommy Gressett socked two singles and Gary Edmiaston, David Gee and Jimmy Cain hit one each as the Buffs outlasted the Braves yesterday evening.

For the Braves, Norman Malone, Brian Vincent, Bryan Limmer, David Guiterrez, George Gonzales and Kevin Holmesley hit a single each.

Cain was the winning pitcher.

Astros Bungle Tilt With Cincinnati, 5-4

CINCINNATI (AP)—Enos Cabell was embarrassed. He had thrown a ball to an unattended base, opening the gates for a three-run Cincinnati rally that beat the Houston Astros, 5-4.

"I think that was about the first mistake we made in two weeks, and it cost us the game," Cabell said after Thursday night's loss.

"At least we found out they can make mistakes," said Cincinnati Manager John McNamara, whose club snapped a five game losing streak.

With the Astros leading 3-2 in the sixth inning, pinch hitter Harry Spilman singled. Ken Griffey and Cesar Geronimo both bunted for basehits, although McNamara would have been happy with a sacrifice.

Cabell tried to throw out Geronimo at first, but first baseman Cesar Cedeno and second baseman Art Howe got their signals crossed. The ball sailed to the wall and Spilman raced home.

"Cedeno figured Howe was going to be there and ducked," said Houston Manager Bill Virdon. "Howe thought Cedeno was going back."

Joe Morgon was given an intentional walk to load the bases, but J.R. Richard's unintended base on balls to Dan Driessen forced in the go-ahead run. Ray Knight then hit a sacrifice fly that drove in a run the Reds ultimately needed to preserve the victory.

McNamara conceded that the Reds didn't exactly blow Houston out of Riverfront Stadium, nor is he expecting to knock anybody else around with his present lineup. Although the Reds had 11 hits, they stranded 13 baserunners.

"With our lack of crucial hits, we're going to have to play for one run and grind 'em out until we get George Foster back and get our hitting going," McNamara said

Announces Strauss...

Israelis, Arabs Reach Breakthrough In Talks

NICOLAS TATRO
Associated Press Writer

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP)-U.S. mediator Robert Strauss announced what he termed a "breakthrough" today unsnarling a logjam that had been holding up talks between Israel and Egypt on the issue of Palestinian autonomy in the occupied West bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

"They arrived at a road solution quicker than I thought they would," Strauss said at a news conference after the two former enemies put aside their attempts to write an agenda for the talks and accepted his concept of working groups.

In a joint communique, the three sides agreed they would assign the working groups to discuss how to hold an election for the 1.2 million Arabs living in the occupied territories and what powers and respossibilities the elective council would have.

"We have a structure now for coming to grips with practical problems and it will let progress go forward," Strauss told a news conference after today's session.

Strauss said there was "far more agreement than disagreement" in the first Egyptian-Israeli talks he attended as President Carter's new Mideast troubleshooter.

A communique read at the news conference said a working group would begin holding discussions within two weeks to plan for the election of a Palestinian council to administrater home rule in the Israeli occupied areas.

At the same time, the full negotiating committees will continue discussing other issues and may set up other subcommittees, the communique said. The full teams meet again in Israel on Aug. 5.

OBITUARIES

Martin Rites

Funeral service has been set for 11 a.m. Saturday for Dan Martin, 2215 41st St., who died Wednesday night at Cleveland, Tx. The service will be held at Colonial Hill Baptist Church where Mr. Martin was a deacon, and the Rev. Miller F. Robinson, pastor, will officiate.

Following the service here, the body will be taken to Dallas for burial in Grove Hill Memorial Park. Bell-Seale Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

A native of McLennan County, he had been associated with Snyder Public Schools for the past 26 years, serving as director of audio-visual services. A graduate of Texas A&M University, he was a Mason and a Shriner.

Surviving are his wife, Helen Martin; a son, Dick Martin of Arlington; two sisters, Mrs. Gladys Tiemann of Beaumont and Mrs. Ruby Lee Wisdom of Los Angeles; a brother, W.H. Martin of Lake Jackson; and one grandchild.

Villegas Infant

Graveside rites were set for 10 a.m. today at the Snyder Cemetery for Joe Bear Villegas, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Villegas. The child was stillborn Thursday in Malone and Hogan Hospital at Big Spring.

The Rev. George Harris, pastor of Victory Baptist Church, was to officiate, and arrangements were charged to Bell-Seale Funeral Home. In addition to the parents, survivors include the maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Sickler of Snyder; the paternal grandfather, Berto Villegas of Fort Stockton, and a great-grandmother, Julia Lussier of St. Petersburg, Fla.

J.M. Poyner

Funeral service has been set for 11 a.m. Monday in Pryor, Okla., for J.M. Poyner, a retired Baptist minister who died last night in Bogalusa, La.

He was the father of Mrs. Jack Dean, a former Snyder resident.

Although the Snyder chapter of the DAV is officially dissolved, its members are still members of the national DAV organization. Mrs. Glover said local persons who are members may transfer their membership to either the Sweetwater or Big Spring chapters of the DAV, the towns closest to Snyder with still active organizations.

The scholarships allow their recipeints to attend the college of their choice. The families indicated both girls plan to attend Western Texas College. Both are June graduates of Snyder High School.

from the state if the new system is applied, but would receive nothing if it is delayed this year.

Supt. Bill J. Hood said the school district had not received a breakdown on the reimbursement program when the resolution was presented, and that the district is eligible for agricultural use exemption as well as $54,300 reimbursement for homestead exemptions. However, he said homestead exemptions will amount to much more than the reimbursement funds and that any funds lost above those available from the agricultural use exemption would have to be made up in the tax rate, which, overall could still mean higher taxes in the district.

The board agreed to look at the situation again, but asked Huddleston and Ray Peveler, school tax assessor-collector, to confer and arrive at some specific figures to present to the board.

Bill Eiland, board president, and Jerry Rice, vice president, were named delegates to the Texas Association of School Boards Delegate Assembly scheduled for Oct. 6-8 in San Antonio.

Resignations formally accepted by the board included Betsy Abrahams, resource teacher at Central Elementary; Roger Goodwin, science teacher and coach at the high school; Paul Mitchell, physical education teacher at West Elementary, and Pamela Williams, receptionist at the administration building.

The following new personnel were approved: Martha Donnell, Distar III at Central Elementary; Vicki Kelley, secretary at Central; Kay Kenner, music teacher at Central; Betty Richardson, sixth grade teacher at Central; Patsy Taylor, secretary at junior high; Theresa Vest, math teacher at junior high.

Bernice Felton was granted a leave of absence for the 1979-80 school year due to family illness.

A letter authorizing the school's health insurance servicing organization to seek bids for better prices and-or better programs was approved.

Skylab's Time Running Short

WASHINGTON (AP)—Skylab's time is running out fast.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration believes the 77.5-ton craft will crash into the atmosphere sometime next week, most likely Wednesday.

The North American Air Defense Command in Colorado, which has been tracking the 118-foot-long space derelict, predicted earlier in the week that the reentry would be between July 10 and July 14, with Thursday the most likely date.

But NORAD advanced its projection one day Thursday to the July 9-13 period, with the target date of July 11.

The low point of Skylab's orbit Thursday was 133 miles above earth, six miles less than the day before. The high point was 144.8 miles, three miles higher than Wednesday.

Skylab's final plunge will begin when it hits the thickening atmosphere.

Meanwhile, the State Department has alerted key personnel around the world to be set to provide last-minute Skylab information to their host governments.

"We have been in continuous contact with the posts for some months now and they have been provided all of the information that has been released by NASA," said a State Department official, who asked that he not be identified.

"We have requested that each of our posts identify key personnel who will be available for providing Skylab information."

Such information won't be available until the final hours of Skylab's life. Then, NASA says, it will be possible to identify the orbital path in which Skylab can be expected to reenter.

Pieces that survive reentry, a few weighing more than 1,000 pounds, will probably fall in an area 4,000 miles long and 100 miles wide along the orbital path.

An Adaptive Response For Adoptive Parents

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am the editor of a newsletter for adoptive parents. It is called OURS (Organization for a United Response).

Some years back you had a column about the typical stupid questions all parents of adopted children were asked. You offered some wonderful suggested replies. Could you please hunt up that item and run it again? I would like to run it in our newsletter with your permission.

ANN G. IN EARLINGTON, KY.

DEAR ANN: I found the item, and here it is:

"DEAR ABBY: A prospective adoptive mother asked you for helping in replying to 'dear, kindly, well-meaning' friends and relatives who ask personal questions about the adoption.

May I help? I have been through it four times and have heard all comments and questions. Here are some tried and true responses:

Q: Oh, isn't it a shame you can't have 'children of your own'?

A: Not really; there's a lot of insanity in both our families.

Q: Do you know all about the parents?

A: Everything. One was male. The other was female.

Q: Did the adoption agency try to match your features, coloring and personalities?

A: Good grief, I hope not!

Q: Aren't you worried about hereditary factors?

A: Heaven, no. Regardless of how bad their ancestors were, they've got to be better than ours!

Best wishes!

BEEN THERE

DEAR ABBY: The night before Mother's Day our son called and invited us out for a Mother's Day dinner along with his wife, her brother and his wife, and his wife's mother. Now here's the clinker: "Would we pay our own way since he was broke?"

My wife turned down the invitation, so our son said he'd stop by the house in the morning to wish her a happy Mother's Day.

Abby, this same son went to Nassau last month for a vacation with his wife and his wife's sister and brother. Last summer they had a lovely vacation in Europe, and plan to go again this summer. (They're taking her folks along.)

I am fed up with this whole outfit. It is plain to me that we are not accepted by our son's wife and her people. How can I make my wife see the light? I hate to hurt her feelings. Sign me . . .

DISGUSTED IN THE LAND O' LAKES

DEAR DISGUSTED: Your wife must see the light as clearly as you. There's no point in rubbing it in. Why discuss the obvious?

DEAR ABBY: You should have told A CARPENTER'S DREAM who was flat as a board to develop a sense of humor about her udderly hopeless condition.

For example, a group of anatomically deprived women here in Northridge has founded a self-help organization called "Bosomless Buddies," seeking to provide support to those whose living bras are dying of malnutrition.

We meet every Saturday at a pre-teen bra counter for such uplifting activities as throwing darts at a poster of Dolly Parton. After the meeting we march through the store two abreast singing, "I've Got Plenty of Nothin'." Then we all go to the Pancake House for lunch. You may sign this, "Two Sunken Treasurers in Northridge" or

Three Sentenced In County Court

Three persons were sentenced Thursday in county court. All three cases involved charges of driving while intoxicated.

Sammy Lee Sharp received a $200 fine and a three-day jail sentence on his guilty plea while Gary Bars was handed a $50 fine and a three-day jail sentence on his plea of no contest.

The other case involved a probation revocation on Stanley Olivas. He was sentenced to serve 30 days in the county jail.

Victims Of Circus Fire Still Suffer Nightmares

EDITOR'S NOTE: Thirty-five years ago today, reporter Louis G. Black, now retired, covered the nation's worst circus fire for The Associated Press. Here he looks back at it.

By LOUIS G. BLACK
For the Associated Press

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP)—There it is, a grass-covered school yard in Hartford's North End, a slumbering picture of innocence on a lazy summer day.

But 35 years ago today, July 6, 1944, the same turf was a fiery hell, the scene of America's worst circus catastrophe.

It was a day in which clowns cried and coffins suddenly became scarce, a hot and humid day in summer when Americans waited anxiously for the latest news of American troops in World War II.

The fire broke out during the matinee of the sprawling Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, and left 168 dead and more than 500 injured. Many were trampled to death in the panic, others died of burns, some of suffocation. Among the dead was a beautiful 6-year-old girl whose identification remains a mystery.

The years haven't dimmed the memories of survivors. Some have nightmares still, some avoid crowds. The smell of burned human flesh remains. They suffer.

They remember the "Big Top" being three-quarters filled with more than 6,000 children and adults. They recall the smell of popcorn, cotton candy, and the odor of lions, tigers, and elephants.

They remember heroes, clowns like Lou Jacobs and Emmett Kelly; Karl Wallenda of the Great Wallendas high wire act; and Merle Evans, the band leader. They see the circus vibrating with excitement and life - just before it became a heartbreaking scene of death and destruction.

Many lessons about fire prevention and crowds were learned from the disaster. Six circus officials - who pleaded innocent to involuntary manslaughter - wound up in prison. It took the circus 15 years to pay $4 million in claims, including $2.20 to a woman who suffered face and leg burns but insisted on collecting only for her ticket.

For Rose Dunn, and her son, Herbert, the 35 years have been one long series of nightmares.

"We have awakened many nights, and even now I wake screaming," the retired nurse says.

"For many years I was scared to be caught in a crowd," Herbert added. "I believe I have gotten over it. I attended the Super Bowl football game early this year and enjoyed it. But every so often I find myself with a sickly feeling in a crowded indoor situation."

Police detectives Tom Barber and Ed Lowe, now dead, often told of "hearing those screams."

All of them were in various sections of the paraffin-covered tent as Evans led his 29-piece band through a snappy opening number at 2 p.m.

First came the clowns, then the animals. And high up, waiting for a cue, was the celebrated Wallenda aerial troupe.

At 2:40 p.m., circus photographer Bill Miller glanced up and saw a small fire crawling along the rope of the big top. He gave a warning. Evans, too, noticed a small horseshoe-shaped flame. So did Wallenda, who pointed down at it.

Evans suddenly switched the band from ballet music - the exit tune for the animals.

At first, the fire looked small, and Kelly tried to put it out with a bucket of water. But, blown by a sudden wind, the flames shot up and exploded like a red ball on the roof of the sun-baked tent.

By 3 p.m., the circus ground was a smouldering bier.

After 7 Months London Paper Still On Strike

By Maureen Johnson
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP)—Surrounded by seven silent telephones, with rows of covered typewriters stretching into the gloom, news editor Rodeny Cauton of The Times of London gets through the afternoon with the help of Wimbledon tennis on television.

"When we come back, we'll have some exclusives that will give the rest of Fleet Street a nervous breakdown," he says.

Cauton's enthusiasm is undimmed after reporting almost daily to a newsroom that hasn't put out a paper for more than seven months because of a showdown battle between the owners and the print unions.

There is now cautious hope that The Times, Britain's most prestigious newspaper, The Sunday Times and three associated supplements will reappear in six weeks.

In his drawer, says Cauton, are half a dozen good stories, written, polished, still news and ready to run.

"Once we get a target date for republication, I have no doubt there'll be more top stories the others have missed," he said. "We'll come back like the Resurrection."

Cauton and a night editor come to the office most days and stay for five or six hours. Most of the other 500 journalists employed by Times Newspapers drop in once or twice a week to collect mail, exchange gossip and keep their clipping files up to date.

"We all come in on Thursday mornings for a staff meeting. That gives some structure to the week," says defense correspondent Henry Stanhope.

He and half a dozen others are writing books. About 20 turn up for a French course started by the paper for reporters with time on their hands. Some do free-lance work. Some say they have the best-tended gardens in Britain. All are on full pay.

Meanwhile, big news has come and gone at home and abroad, but the 194-year-old Times has been unable to report it.

Firemen Called

A small grass fire was extinguished Thursday by city firefighters.

It was reported at the intersection of 26th St. and Ave. H. at 1:12 p.m.

There are 94 Federal District Courts, at least one in each state, Washington, D.C. and most territories.

Billfold Is Recovered Minus Money

Police officers this morning reported recovering the bill-fold and $25 reportedly stolen from city secretary Juanita Farren Thursday at city hall.

Officers said the property and money were found after questioning two brothers, both of whom are juveniles.

In other reports, Noe Munoz told officers yesterday that a scope-mounted rifle was stolen from the family pickup outside their 1011 29th St. residence. Value of the property was set at $75.

Also, two traffic accidents were reported Thursday. The first occurred at 1:55 p.m. in the 1800 block of 26th St.

Involved in it were a 1975 Pontiac driven by Barbara Bills and a 1967 International driven by Earl McDow.

The second wreck was at the Cash Food convenience store about 10:30 p.m. There, a 1966 Chevrolet driven by Dewey Allen Lee Jr. and a 1973 Buick driven by Buford Ben Thompson collided.
