"Joke" Starts Rumors Fliers' Bodies Found

ORENVILLE, Maine, March 21.—The possibility that the monoplane Endeavor in which Captain Walter Hinchliffe and the Hon. Elsie Mackay set out from England last Tuesday for a trans-Atlantic flight, might have been in the Massachusetts lake region apparently was dispelled by today's developments.

The "joking" report of a passenger on the morning train to Bangor, that a wrecked plane and two bodies had been found on White Cap mountain, 25 miles from here, caused insistent rumors that the bodies of the missing English fliers had been found.

John W. Heins, Great Northern Paper company detective, traced the source of the reports to the passenger, who had in mind the rumor: "A joke, in fact."

Reservoir Gave Own Warning Eleven Hours Before Break

Builder of St. Francis Dam Overcome with Emotion While Testifying Before Coroner's Jury.

(By The Associated Press) LOS ANGELES, March 21.—A coroner's jury today heard from the quivering lips of the man who built the St. Francis dam how a silent warning came from the reservoir itself that all was not well eleven hours before it collapsed and death death in a mighty deluge over the little Santa Clara river valley.

The warning was the muddy waters that trickled from the 193-foot retaining wall, indicating, according to the engineer, the conditions were "bad, very bad," that there was a leak through the earth about the structure.

It was William Mulholland, veteran chief engineer of Los Angeles city's department of water and power, who gave the testimony. In his face and figure was reflected the great tragedy of the little valley in his tears that rolled down his cheeks and in the sob that shook his aged body could be seen the reaction to the knowledge that probably more than 400 persons had died when the dam—his dam—gave way 5 feet—his load of 12,000,000 gallons of water.

Mulholland's testimony was given in a dramatic rush. At one point he gave away almost completely to his emotions.

"I saw only those who are dead," he said. "We must have overlooked something."

He said he had gone to visit the reservoir.

S-4 Crew Made Frantic Effort To Leave 'Tomb'

BOSTON, March 21.—Evidence that the last hours of some of the 40 men who died on the sunken submarine S-4 were spent in frantic attempts to batter a hole through the hull was uncovered today by the naval board of investigation.

Cold chisels, hand wrenches and several other battering tools were found spread about the interior of the motor room deck, the compartment where most of the crew died. The walls were battered and scarred by many heavy blows and one spot indicated that an attempt had been made to cut through with a chisel. The walls of the small tiller room bore the same markings as did the torpedo compartment, where Lieutenant Graham N. Pritch and his five comrades lived for 72 hours until, one by one, they were overcome by carbon monoxide gas and toppled into the shallow water to drown.

The men in the motor room, members of the investigation board said, probably lived for some time after the submarine was sunk by the coast guard destroyer Paulding.

Plan Termed Improper And Unfair by Fall

EL PASO, March 21.—Albert B. Fall, former Secretary of the Interior tonight said the plan advanced today by the Teapot Dome investigating committee at Washington to send a subcommittee to El Paso to hear his story of the oil leasing seemed an "improper and unfair" procedure.

"The committee cannot make me testify at present quite aside from my rights and those of Mr. Sinclair. Such a procedure would show lack of respect to the court in which our trial is scheduled to come up."

Mr. Fall indicated he thought at present the situation is in somewhat of a deadlock. He was of the opinion that if the case goes to trial in April as the government

—THE— WOMAN'S DAY By Allene Sumner

Girls, what is your hat size? You don't know? I didn't think that you would. But why don't we? Why does every girl know that she wears 36 or 38 in dresses (like fun she does!) lingerie, blouses, suits and coats, but has no idea whether her hat size is 56 or 6 or even that there is such a thing as a hat size.

I never knew it till a day or so ago. For years I have dreamed buying a hat worse than calling a worm an apple. Even bobbed hair didn't help much. Sometimes after wrecking my hair and disposition trying on 100 hats, I find one that will go on if stretched and pulled. Generally, it's the five-hundredth.

EUREKA! IT FIT! But the other day I tried a new shop where the first question was "What size do you wear?" I nearly swooned. Do ladies hats have sizes? Mine was measured. It was a 24 and I was shown the five size 24 hats in the shop. Hat sizes, where have you been all my life? And why don't more stores sell 'em like that? Do you suppose for one little minute that men would have put up all these years with what "us girls" have in the way of trying on several dozen hats till we find one that fits?

HER OWN JOB Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh is just as proud of her own job as her famous Colonel son is of his. In fact, she sometimes indicates that she's a little prouder. For instance at the Boston session of the National Education Association, reporters asked her what she thought of aviation. "Aviation is interesting, but so is chemistry," she said. Mrs. Lindbergh is said to be one of the best chemistry teachers in the country. Mrs. Lindbergh is a rather refreshing contrast to the hordes of mothers who seem to prefer to live in their children's lives than in their own. Mothers with their own resources and interests are more of a relief to their children than the mother who lives only through her children would ever think.

DINNER — Italian braised liver, boiled rice, French endive and grape fruit salad, cottage pudding with maple sauce, milk, coffee.

Beef's lamb's or pig's liver can be used, although calf's liver is considered the most delicate. When liver of any kind is sliced for broiling or pan-broiling it is better if boiling water is poured over the slices and allowed to stand ten minutes before cooking. Beef's liver should be parboiled for five minutes if sliced, and twenty minutes if whole.

Mr. Skiles wrote us a voluntary testimonial after Kellogg's ALL-BRAN had saved him from dreadful constipation. Read his tribute:

"For years I have been so constipated. After trying every kind of drug possible, I could not get temporary relief. I became discouraged and gave up hope, when a friend told me to use Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. I had read so many testimonials I had no faith. I was of the opinion testimonials were put out by friends. I will not only give you the privilege to use my name, but I will go on the witness stand and testify to my statement. I cannot express words great enough to meet with Kellogg's food."

ARTHUR SKILES, 225 N. Kellogg Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

If constipation is preying upon your health, check it before too late. If you are using habit-forming laxatives, stop it before this harmful practice fastens its grip too tight.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Just eat two tablespoons daily — chronic cases, with every meal. Doctors recommend ALL-BRAN. A 100% bran cereal — delicious with milk or cream — fruits or honey added. Use in cooking too. Sold by all grocers. Served everywhere. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

GIRL ALONE

Copyright 1928 by NEA Service

By ANNIE AUSTIN

THIS HAS HAPPENED

Sally Ford, 16, is "farmed out" to Clem Carson for the summer and prepares to leave the state orphanage which has been her home since she was four. Sally dislikes the farmer and recalls stories of drudgery and fatigue-wracked bodies which the girls have told after a summer at the Carson farm.

Before she leaves she begs Miss Pond, sentimental office helper, to tell her what she knows about her mother. She is disappointed to learn that the woman calling herself her mother left her at the orphanage when she was four and never returned to see if her child lived or died.

As she leaves, the children who love her dearly rush to the fence and cry for her to tell them good-by. She runs back to the big wire enclosure and kisses the smallest ones, then with tears in her eyes turns and joins Clem at the car. When they drive away, she leans back her head and sighs and says: "You're quite a knowing-bug, ain't you? How about a little kiss for your new boss?"

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Sally had shrunk as far away from Clem Carson as the seat of the "fiver" permitted, phrases from Mrs. Stone's embarrassed, terrifying warnings, hollow and churning in her mind: "Keep your body pure"—"mustn't let men take any liberties with you"—"you're a big girl now, things you ought to know"—if you're led astray, it will be due to evils in your own nature.

She suddenly loathed herself, her budding, curving young body that she had taken such innocent delight in as she bathed for her journey. She wanted to shrink and shrink and shrink, until she was a little girl again, too young to know "the facts of life" as Mrs. Stone, blushing and embarrassed, had called the half-truths she had told Sally. She wanted to climb over the door of the car, drop into the hot dust of the road, and run like a dog-chased rabbit back into the safety of the Home. There were no men there—no queer, different male beings who would want to "take liberties."

"My land scared of me?" Clem Carson checked. "You poor little chicken! Don't mind me, Sally. I don't mean to harm, teasing you for a kiss. Land alive! I got a girl of my own, ain't I? Darned good of her, to, and I'd cut the heart out of any man that tried to take advantage of her. Ain't no call to be scared of me, Sally."

She smiled wearily, shyness making her lips stiff, but she relaxed a little, though she kept as far away from the man as ever. In spite of her dread of the future and her bitter disappointment over Miss Pond's disclosures as to her mother, she was finding the trip to the farm an adventure. In the 12 years of her life in the State Orphan's asylum she had never before left the orphanage unaccompanied by droves of other sheep-like, timid little girls, and unchaperoned by sharp-eyed, eagle-eyed matrons.

She felt queer, detached, incomplete like an arm or leg disengaged from a body. She even had the panicky feeling that, like such a dismembered limb, she would wither and die away from that big body of which she had been a part for so long. But it was pleasant to bump swiftly along the hot, dusty white road, fringed with colorful, flowering weeds. Homes became less and less frequent; fewer children ran barefoot along the road, scurrying out of the path of the automobile. Occasionally a woman, with a baby sprawling on her hip, appeared in the doorway of a roadside shack and shaded her eyes with her hand as she gazed at the car.

At the miles sped away Carson seemed to feel the need of impressing upon her the fact that her summer was not to be one of unalloyed pleasure. He sketched the life of the farm, her own work upon it, as if to prepare her for the worst. "My wife got the reputation of being a hard woman," he told her contentedly. "But she's a good woman, good clean through. She works her own fingers to the bone and she can't abide a lazy, trifling girl around the place. You work hard, Sally, and speak nice and respectful-like and you'll get on."

respectful-like and you'll get on.

"Yes, sir," Sally stammered. "Well, Sally," he told her at last, "here's your new home. This lane leads past the orchards—I got 10 acres in fruit trees, all of 'em bearing—and the gardens, then right up to the house. Pretty fine place. If I do say so myself, I got 200 acres in all, quite a sizeable farm for the middle west. Don't them orchards look pretty?"

Sally came out of her frightened reverie, forced her eyes to focus on the beautiful picture spread out on a giant canvas before her. Then she gave an involuntary exclamation of pleasure. Row after row of fruit trees, evenly spaced and trimmed to perfection, stretched before her on the right. The child in her wanting to spring from the seat of the car, run ecstatically from tree to tree, to snatch sun-ripened fruit.

"You have a good fruit crop," she said primly.

"There's the house," the farmer pointed to the left. "Six rooms and a garage. My daughter, Pearl, dogged the life out of me until I had electric lights put in, and a fancy bathtub, but it comes in right handy in the evenings, especially in winter. My daughter, Pearl, can think of more ways for me to spend money than I can to earn it. He added with a chuckle, so that Sally knew he was proud of Pearl, proud of her urban tastes.

The car swept up to the front of the house; Clem Carson's hand on the horn summoned his women folk.

The house, which seemed small to Sally, accustomed to the big bulkings of the orphanage, was further dwarfed by the huge red barn that towered at the rear. The house itself was white not so recently painted as the lordly barn, but it was pleasant and home like, the sort of house which Sally's chums at the orphanage had pictured as an ideal home, when they had let their imaginations run away with them.

Sally herself, born with a different picture of home in her mind had romanced about a house which would have made this one look like servant's quarters, but now that it was before her she felt a thrill of pleasure. At least it was a home, not an institution.

A woman, big, heavy-bosomed, sternly coarcted beneath her snugly fitting, starched blue chambray house dress, appeared upon the front porch and stood shading her eyes against the western sun, which revealed the thinness of her iron-gray hair and the deep wrinkles in her lined face.

"Why didn't you drive around to the back?" she called harshly.

"This pour-up ain't company, to be traipsin' through my front room. Did you bring them rubber rings for my front fars?"

"You betcha!" Clem Carson refused to be daunted in Sally's presence. "How's Pearl, Ma? Cold any better? I brought her some save save her throat and some candy."

"She's all right," Mrs. Carson shouted, as if the car were a hundred yards away. "And why you want to be throwin' your money away on patent medicine salves is more'n I can see! I can make a better salve any day outa kerosene and lard and turpentine. Reckon you didn't get any car-rubs for me! Pearl's all you think of."

"Got you half a pound of car-rub," Carson shouted laughing. "I'll drive the new girl around back."

"Ma's got a sharp tongue, but she don't mean no harm," Carson chuckled, as he swung the car around the house.

When it shivered to a stop between the barn and the house, the farmer lifted out a few bundles which had crowded Sally's feet, then threw up the cover of the hatch in the rear of the car, revealing more bundles. Carson was loading her arms with parcels when he saw a black wrought on her pale, timid face.

"Lord! You look pretty enough to eat!" Clem Carson ejaculated, but he saw then that she was not even aware that he was speaking to her.

In one of the few books allowed for Sunday reading in the orphanage—2 beautiful, thick books with color-plate illustrations, its name "Stories from the Bible," lettered in glittering gold on the back of heavenly blue—Sally had found and secretly, worshipped the portrait of her ideal hero. It was a vividly colored picture of David, forever fixed in strong, beautiful grace, as he was about to hurl the stone from his sling-shot to slay the giant, Goliath. She had dreamed away many hours of her adolescence and early youth, the big book open on her knee at the portrait of the Biblical hero, and it had not seemed like sacrifice to adopt that sun-drenched, strong-limbed but slender boy as the personification of her hopes for romance.

And now he was striding toward her—the very David of "Stories from the Bible." True, the sheepskin raiment of the picture was exchanged for a blue shirt, open at the throat, and for a pair of cheap, worn-out "man's" trousers, but the boy-man was the same; the same! As he strode lightly, with the ease of an athlete or the light-footedness of a god, the sun flamed in his curling, golden-brown hair. He was tall, but not so tall as Clem Carson, and there were power and ease and youth in every motion of his beautiful body.

"Did you get the play-share sharpened, Mr. Carson? I've been waiting for it, but in the meantime I've been tinkering with that hand cider press. We ought to do a good business with it if we set up a cider stand on the state road at the foot of the lane."

Joy deepened the sapphire of Sally's eyes, quivered along the curves of her soft little mouth. For his voice was as she had dreamed it would be—vibrant, clear, strong, with a thrill of music in it.

"Sure I got it sharpened, Dave," Carson answered curtly. "You oughta get in another good hour with the cultivator before dark. You run along in the back door there, Sally. Mrs. Carson will be needing you to help her with supper."

The change in Carson's voice startled her, made her wince. Why was he angry with her—and with David, whose gold-flecked hazel eyes

LENIENCY TO AUSTRIA

President Urges Monetary Claims Be Set Aside

WASHINGTON, March 21. (AP)—President Coolidge, in a special message to congress today proposed that the United States temporarily set aside its monetary claims against Austria, in order to enable that country to borrow additional capital for economic reconstruction.

Along with the message, the president submitted a report from Secretary Mellon explaining the obligations which the United States now holds and the policy toward Austrian finance which it is willing to assume along with other nations who are creditors of Austria.

WHEAT AT RECORD

New High Price Paid At Fort Worth

FORT WORTH, March 21. (AP)—Wheat of the 1927 harvest sold for a new high price on the Fort Worth market Tuesday when a car of 16.83 per cent protein wheat grading number one hard brought $1.22 1/4 per bushel, basis delivered Texas common point.

Two items of importance were stressed by Fort Worth dealers in reference to this sale: First, Texas farmers can produce wheat of the highest protein grown in the southwest and they will profit greatly, as did the grower of the car bringing the above premium, by giving attention to their seed wheat's milling qualities; and second, this premium of above 25 cents per bushel was secured by having the grain graded by a regular United States Bureau and by having a laboratory test to determine the protein content.

Battle Over Plan For Separate Oil Trials Promised

Legal Talent For State and For Sinclair and Fall Is Marshaling Forces To Combat This Plan.

(By Associated Press) WASHINGTON, March 21. — A bitter legal battle over the government's plan to hold separate trials for Harry F. Sinclair and Albert B. Fall, charged with defrauding the Government in the Teapot Dome naval oil leases, came into prospect tonight.

George P. Hoover, Sinclair's counsel, announced he would oppose severance of the cases and if separate trials were ordered because of Fall's illness, would demand postponement of the Sinclair case because Fall would be needed as a material witness for the oil trial.

Fall's counsel, William E. Leahy, notified Justice Jennings today that he would move on Thursday to delay the trial of Fall, set for April 2, on the grounds that his client was ill in El Paso, Texas, and unable to come to Washington. Special Government counsel announced that physicians would be sent to examine Fall before Thursday and that if they reported he was able to come to Washington, would oppose the motion.

The prosecutors said that if Fall was unable to be here, they would move to sever the cases and go ahead on April 2 with Sinclair's trial.

Prosperity Zone Decreed for Area

Employment Situation Is Much Better Than in Other Cities of Similar Size, Letter Says.

Prosperity should be the keynote for Lubbock at the present time, reports to the Lubbock chamber of commerce and Retail Merchants association show. Such an outlook is thoroughly warranted by present conditions.

Business in the South Plains section is exceptionally good at this time, the reports show. The leading merchants are optimistic for a banner year in every line of development.

A recent letter from C. W. Woodman, assistant director of the United States Department of Labor, Fort Worth, shows that the number of unemployed in Lubbock is far below the average size of the town considered.

"I feel that I ought to congratulate Lubbock on its healthy employment situation," Mr. Woodman wrote the Lubbock chamber of commerce.

TO BURN WASTE GAS Phillips Permit Granted by Rail Board

AUSTIN, March 21. (AP)—Application of the Phillips Petroleum company to burn about 85,000,000 cubic feet of waste gas daily for carbon black in the south Hutchinson county oil fields, was granted Tuesday by the State Railroad Commission.

The company plans to have two plants, one burning 60,000,000 feet of gas daily. The gas to be used contains sulphur rendering it unsuitable for fuel.
