Memo recalls Clinton call on Whitewater

By LARRY MARGASAK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - A high-level banking regulator says in a confidential memo that President Clinton sought his "advice and counsel" on Whitewater last New Year's weekend.

Eugene A. Ludwig, the comptroller of the currency, made clear in the memo - and in an interview Monday - that he wasn't comfortable with the request by his old college friend who now is the president.

The memo, obtained by The Associated Press, could be a worrisome political problem for Clinton when Whitewater hearings begin next week - Tuesday in the House and two days later in the Senate.

While Whitewater special counsel Robert Fiske looked into the request and found no criminality, the hearings are to spotlight administration-regulator contacts in full public view.

"The president asked me whether it would be permissible for me, as a lawyer knowledgeable about banking law, to provide advice and counsel on any of the legal-regulatory issues relative to the Whitewater matter," Ludwig wrote in the memo dated March 11.

"Beyond asking this question, the only information I recollect that he imparted to me was that he had done nothing wrong, and moreover had lost money in the transaction."

Whitewater was the name of the Arkansas land venture formerly owned by Clinton and his wife, Hillary, along with James McDougal and his former wife, Susan. McDougal also owned Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan, which later failed. Fiske is investigating whether Whitewater caused losses at Madison.

At their hearings, the House and Senate Banking committees will not delve into the transactions in Arkansas, under an agreement to only cover topics that Fiske has completed examining.

Ludwig wrote the memo in response to Fiske's subpoena to the Treasury Department for documents and communications about Whitewater.

The comptroller said that after Clinton made the request at the Renaissance Weekend conference of policy-makers, held last Dec. 30-Jan. 2 in Hilton Head, S.C., he contacted White House and Treasury officials for advice.

"I told them (the officials) that I was not certain whether to discuss the matter with the president or the first lady," Ludwig said in the memo. "Accordingly, we did not discuss the matter."

White House Counsel Lloyd Cutler said Monday that Clinton was not asking Ludwig to provide his own advice but to "recommend some people to me who understand real estate transactions and could write about them for the public in a way the public could understand."

Ludwig said he had "no contact, no knowledge, no nothing" regarding the FDIC's role in Whitewater.

Trade deficit up sharply to highest level in 6 years

WASHINGTON (AP) - America's trade deficit widened sharply to $9.17 billion in May as the deficit in merchandise jumped to the highest level in more than six years, the government said today.

The Commerce Department reported that the U.S. deficit in goods and services was up 7.6 percent in May from a revised April imbalance of $8.53 billion as for the third straight month America's appetite for imports set a new record high.

Rising oil prices pushed America's foreign oil bill up by $339 million last month. Imports of clothing, iron and steel and telecommunications equipment also posted big gains.

America's growing trade deficits this year have been one of the factors cited for the weakness in the U.S. dollar, which has fallen against the German mark and been pushed to a 50-year low against the Japanese yen.

Currency markets have battered the greenback on the belief that with the failure of the Clinton administration to achieve more success in lowering Japan's trade barriers, the only way to correct the U.S. trade gap is with a weaker U.S. currency.

It's taste vs. nutrition in battle over Mexican cuisine

Consumer group decries dishes as being loaded with fat, calories

By DARLENE SUPERVILLE
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - It may not be news that Mexican food isn't the most healthful, but word that most restaurant-prepared dishes are loaded with fat and calories has one consumer group sizzling.

Proving itself an equal-opportunity food critic, the Center for Science in the Public Interest, which has attacked the fat in Chinese and Italian cuisine, wants consumers to get the scoop on Mexican restaurant food.

Its latest survey suggests aficionados should forget the fatty trimmings, such as guacamole, refried beans and sour cream, and head for a bowl of fat-free salsa - minus the fried tortilla chips, of course.

"Mexican food is not seen as health food," Michael Jacobson, the center's executive director, said Monday, "but seeing that you're using up three-fourths of your fat intake just on the side dishes is utterly shocking."

But Herman Cain, president of the National Restaurant Association, said Mexican restaurant food is not all bad for health-conscious consumers.

"The low-fat, low-cholesterol items are there," Cain said. "The consumer merely has to ask for them."

The center's nutritionists bought takeout portions of the 15 popular

Mexican dishes at 19 table-service restaurants in Chicago, Dallas, San Francisco and Washington, D.C.

Equal portions of identical dishes were mixed and a sample of each was sent to a lab for testing, in which the Department of Agriculture assisted, said Bonnie Liebman, director of nutrition for the center.

Liebman said that there was no single culprit in Mexican cuisine but that the problem starts with the side dishes - Mexican rice, refried beans, sour cream and guacamole - and is magnified by the added entree.

The survey found the only "safe bet" to be chicken fajitas with flour tortillas - but only when eaten without the trimmings.

The worst was the chiles rellenos platter. "You might as well eat a stick of butter and one and a half teaspoons of salt," Liebman said of the cheese-stuffed, deep-fried pepper topped with cheese and red sauce.

The Mexican rice served was often sauteed in oil or shortening before it was cooked in chicken broth, which typically is high in sodium.

Somewhere in the middle were: Beef-and-cheese nachos: A serving has more than 1,300 calories and as much fat as a stick of butter. Half an order equals three-fourths of the recommended daily allowance of 65 grams of fat.

Drug indictments handed down against 16 people

Drug indictments against 16 persons were returned Monday by the Deaf Smith County Grand Jury in the first meeting of a panel that will serve for the next six months.

The drug indictments are the result of an area-wide roundup of drug dealers that began June 21 by the Panhandle Regional Narcotics Task Force and cooperating agencies, including the Hereford Police Department and Deaf Smith County Sheriff's Department.

In addition to the drug-related indictments, six persons were charged with other offenses.

Names of seven drug defendants and one person indicted for a different offense were withheld, pending arrest.

Felony driving while intoxicated indictments were returned against Kendall Allen Cranmer, 32, of 519-B Avenue H, and Reymundo Salas Ayala, 42, of 222 Catalpa. Cranmer is free on $1,000 bond and Ayala on $2,500 bond.

Free on $2,000 bond, Ramona Boldon Hancy, 35, of 224 Avenue J, was indicted for forgery by making.

Two men, Eugene Dominguez, 21, of 604 Union, and Augustin Ramirez, 21, of Route 1, are named on an indictment for burglary of a motor vehicle. They posted bond of $5,000 each.

Indicted on a charge of delivery of marijuana, over 1/4 ounce and under four oz., were Billy Parrick, 18, of Route 5, in jail in lieu of bond, and Ricky Moore, 32, of 905 16th, free on $10,000 bond.

Also in jail in lieu of bonds are Stoni Malone, 18, of 722 Thunderbird, named on two indictments for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine, and Benito Rodriguez, 25, of the same address, for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine.

Abel Zepeda, 47, of 405 Ross posted bond of $10,000 on each of two indictments returned against him for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine.

Named on two indictments for delivery of a controlled substance, cocaine, Jeremy Gallardo, 17, is free on bonds of $10,000 on each charge.

Max Mungia, 21, of 811 Miles, and T.J. Samples, 19, of 601 Grand, posted bonds of $10,000 each on charges of delivery of cocaine.

Alfredo Palacios is under two indictments for delivery of cocaine and posted $10,000 bond on each.

Pummeling by comet continuing

By PAUL RECER
AP Science Writer

GREENBELT, Md. (AP) - The mark left on Jupiter's clouds by fragments of a comet is the most prominent feature ever observed on the face of the solar system's largest planet, an astronomer said today.

Steve Maran, an astronomer at the Goddard Space Flight Center, said a check of historical records dating back to 1610 show there is no previous recording of Jovian features as large as the scars left by the comet pieces.

The black scar left by fragment G of the Shoemaker-Levy 9 comet is "visually the most prominent discrete spot seen on Jupiter ever," Maran told an earlier morning news conference.

Jupiter has been observed since 1610, early in the history of telescopes, and never before has a feature been seen that is as vivid as the "black eye" created by fragment G.

The impact of fragment H today created a fireball that appeared to one observer to be 50 times brighter than Jupiter and a portion of the infrared light spectrum. The observation was made by a telescope in Chile.

Though this appears to be brighter than the signal produced by the larger fragment G, which hit earlier, Maran said that the relative brightness is deceptive because the readings were taken with different instruments.

Astronomers were puzzled today by their failure to find the chemical signature of water in the clouds created by the comet's impacts on Jupiter.

Jupiter is 74 percent hydrogen and experts had expected that the comet would bring oxygen to the planet. The combination of the two would make water, but none has been detected.

"It's puzzling, but we will continue to look for water," said Lucy McFadden, astronomer at the University of Maryland.

Chemical analysis of light signals from Jupiter show evidence of ammonia boiled up from the Jovian clouds. Other analyses are still under way, McFadden said.

Scientists said Monday that three fragments from the comet will hit Jupiter 10 hours apart at approximately the same location.

"You'll have three - boom, boom, boom" said Heidi Hammel of the Space Telescope Science Institute.

The first of the three fragments, Q, is expected to hit just before 4 a.m. EDT on Wednesday. R follows 10 hours later and S will be 10 hours after that. The Jovian rotation is 10 hours.

Afficionados plan to keep eating Mexican food despite allegations

By CHARLES RICHARDS
Associated Press Writer

DALLAS (AP) - Frank Murphy's favorite eating place is a Mexican restaurant on Dallas' north side, and it didn't shake him up too much to hear that somebody was saying Mexican food was bad for him.

"I ate here last night, too. And I did it Saturday night. I'm endeavoring to enjoy life. I hate fat-free food. It doesn't taste good," the 35-year-old Murphy said outside On The Border in suburban Addison.

Earlier Monday, a consumer group held a news conference in Washington, D.C., to warn that most Mexican dishes in restaurants will saddle you with up to a full day's worth of fat and sodium, and more than 1,000 calories.

Will that stop Murphy from returning soon for more Mexican food?

"Of course not," he said. Neither Rick Busch, 23, nor Nancy Swenson, 23, had heard the warning about the high fat and sodium content of Mexican food, which was aired prominently on the evening news in Dallas Monday night, but they weren't surprised.

"We're both chiropractic students, so we're very much into health foods, and what we had tonight, I wouldn't say was nutritional, but you've got to live a little," Ms. Swenson said with a smile.

"We knew we did wrong. We sinned, OK?"

The Mexican food warning came from the same group that previously attacked the fat in movie popcorn and in Italian and Chinese meals.

"Oh, yes, popcorn's bad for you. So they started making it in those hot air popcorn makers, but nobody ever ate any of that stuff. Without salt on it, it wasn't any good," Busch said.

"We both work out and we check out the biochemical ramifications of everything, believe me. But it (Mexican food) is fun to do every once in a while. It's addictive, I think. I do it about once a week," he said.

His friend interrupted. "You've got to balance out with good nutrition. I'm more into organic foods than Mexican, but I've got a sweet tooth for Mexican food," Miss Swenson said.

"And the margaritas," added Busch, who knows her well.

She smiled. "Oh, yes, and the margaritas. They have the best margaritas in town here," she agreed.

Inside, manager Jodi Morrison, 23, said customers are showing a growing interest in eating healthier and are asking for options that involve less fat and sodium. One couple, she said, bring their own no-fat chips when they come.

But most diners, she said, "just come in and have dinner and drinks. They don't seem to think about it. If you really want Mexican food, you've got to have fat."

At Kokopelli, a fashionable Mexican restaurant in northeast Dallas, manager Jack Layman pointed out that eating Mexican food is a special treat, particularly for Texans.

"I just don't believe it's one of the things you can take away from people."

"Mexican food is addictive, I think, because of the spices. Eating Mexican food is an experience. One of the joys in life is taste, and eating. And yes, there is a smart way of doing it," he said.

"But when you're talking about Mexican food, there are just no substitutes that are going to make it taste good."

Layman noted that at Kokopelli, foods are fried only in canola oil. "We use no lard, and olive oil is used in some dishes for seasoning," he said.

At On The Border, the chili con queso dip is described on the menu as "rich and sinful."

"Surely not," a reporter said to head waiter Ted Kizzlar.

"You want a sample of the chili con queso dip?" Ted asked.

Local Roundup

Immunization schedule noted

The Texas Department of Health has announced its July immunization clinic schedule for Hereford. Vaccines against polio, diphtheria, lockjaw (tetanus), whooping cough (pertussis), measles, rubella, mumps and HIB (hemophilus influenzae type B) will be offered. The Texas Department of Health charges to help with the cost of keeping the clinic open. Charges are based on family income and size and the ability to pay. Regular clinics will be held from 7 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. and 1 p.m. to 5:45 p.m. The clinics will be on Thursday, July 21, then July 28 in the Health Department offices, 205 W. Fourth St., Suite B.

Slight chance of rain

Hereford residents felt the effects of a 96-degree thermometer reading Monday afternoon with not much expected from rain clouds Wednesday. The forecast for Tuesday night is partly cloudy with a low in the mid-60s, on the heels of 67 degrees Tuesday morning. Wednesday should be mostly sunny with a slight chance -- 20 percent -- of late afternoon thunderstorms and a high in the low to mid-90s. Winds, 10 to 15 mph, will shift from the west to northeast in the afternoon.

Band practice to start

The Hereford High School Mighty Maroon Band will begin rehearsals for this fall on Monday, Aug. 1. Rehearsal will be on Monday through Thursday nights until school starts. Members will rehearse from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday, Tuesday and Thursday and from 5 p.m. to 6:30 p.m. on Wednesday. Students who need their instruments checked by a director are asked to arrive an hour early on Aug. 1.

Governor 'responsible' for jail delay

Opponent levels criticism of Richards' management

By LINDA LEAVELL
Associated Press Writer
DALLAS (AP) - Gov. Ann Richards should be held accountable for a new state jail system that is "off track, over budget and behind schedule," GOP challenger George W. Bush said.

At Monday's opening of his Dallas headquarters, Bush said Richards should be considered responsible for what he considers a growing jail crisis in her Democratic administration.

"Governor Richards, as the chief executive officer of the state of Texas, must be accountable for the mismanagement" of the state jail system, he said.

The Senate Criminal Justice Committee was scheduled to meet today to investigate the status of the state jail system, which was created by the Legislature in 1993 to house nonviolent felons. Those inmates will serve up to two years and receive intensive education, job training and therapy programs. The jails will be operated separately from prisons.

A 1,000-bed facility in Beaumont was scheduled to open, but apparently won't be ready for prisoners by its targeted Sept. 1 date.

Bush also criticized the Texas Board of Criminal Justice and called for appealing the Ruiz settlement.

Chuck McDonald, spokesman for Richards' campaign, said the Republican candidate doesn't understand "the enormity of the prison construction program in Texas."

"Yes, there are problems. But this is an unprecedented prison construction program," he said. "I think Mr. Bush, with even a smidgen of understanding of the size of this prison construction program, would understand what a difficult job it is. Unlike Mr. Bush, she has a pretty good track record of getting things done in the prison system."

"As chief executive officer of this state, Ann Richards has doubled the size of the Texas prisons. It's funny that he didn't want to give her credit for increasing capacity of the Texas prison system from 50,000 to 100,000."

Bush said he would appeal the Ruiz decision to permit the expanded use of tents to house prisoners and to make more efficient use of existing facilities. Ruiz severely hampers the number of inmates who may be held in tents or temporary barracks, he said.

The Ruiz settlement, named for inmate David Ruiz, is an accord that ended more than 20 years of federal court supervision over Texas prisons.

"There's 33,000 prisoners at the county level. It's created a huge backlog. It's put certain law enforcement officials at risk," Bush said.

Ron Dusek, spokesman for Attorney General Dan Morales, said Ruiz permits tent housing, which already has begun in Texas, in specific instances.

"Ruiz does not put any caps or limitations on tents. The only restriction in regards to tents (is) there has to be a purpose," he said.

"You just can't erect a tent city and say that's your permanent home forever. It has to be aligned with a particular project... a boot camp, for example, or a work camp."

Dusek was skeptical about attempting to overturn the federal settlement.

"Clearly it... would not be wise to reopen litigation that took 22 years to resolve and cost millions of dollars to the state. The state is in the midst of an unprecedented prison expansion program that is taking care of the overcrowding problems," he said.

Bush was evasive when asked about his objections to the nine-member criminal justice board, saying, "The actions of the board speak for themselves." A majority of the nine-member board are Richards appointees.

Astronauts continuing experiments

By MIKE DRAGO
Associated Press Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) - Astronauts aboard Columbia spun sprouting cress roots and separated rat cells today while ground controllers monitored a quirky orbiter navigation unit.

Astronauts Leroy Chiao and Donald Thomas separated rat pituitary cells into several hormonal components. Scientists want to know how and why weightlessness slows pituitary systems - which control growth and metabolism - in animals and humans.

Chiao also spun cress roots in a centrifuge for a study of how much gravity the plants need. It's a basic question if humans are ever to grow plants for food and oxygen in space.

Late Monday, Mission Control told the space shuttle crew that five erratic readings were detected in a gyroscope in one of the spacecraft's three navigation units, but the unit was still working.

Inertial measurement units, as the mechanisms are called, feed data to on-board computers about the space shuttle's position in relation to Earth.

"This IMU is still considered to be good and the shuttle could land using only the data from this IMU, if required," said NASA spokesman Kyle Herring.

Monday night, Thomas fished a dead newt out of its small aquarium tank after scientists figured out a way to keep water from splashing around the shuttle laboratory.

He slid back the cover of the small tank, took out the 4-inch salamander, snapped the tank shut and used towels to soak up some spilled water.

Scientists wanted the dead newt out so it wouldn't contaminate the water for newts, newt eggs and Japanese Medaka fish in that tank and two other tanks hooked up to the shuttle aquarium system.

It was the second full-grown newt to die aboard Columbia. Researchers aren't sure why. Only four were flown, along with lots of newt eggs for a study of the creatures' behavior and adaptation to weightlessness.

Cardiac rehabilitation program in full swing

Since the cardiac/pulmonary preventive and rehabilitation program began at Hereford Regional Medical Center in March, Hereford area residents have had a better chance for a full recovery from lung or heart disease.

"We now have 11 patients in the Phase II part of the program," Scott Modersitzki, director of the program, said. "That's 11 people who would have had to drive to Amarillo for this type of service."

Modersitzki, an exercise physiologist specializing in cardiac/pulmonary rehabilitation, explained that the program provides comprehensive preventive and diagnostic treatment and rehabilitative services for individuals at risk of, or with a diagnosis of, cardiovascular or pulmonary disease.

"In the program, we have patients recovering from open heart surgery, heart attack and other heart problems, as well as patients with pulmonary disease," he said. The cardiac/pulmonary service provides a formalized program to guide patients through the recovery process under the supervision of Modersitzki.

Modersitzki explained that he works with each individual's personal physician to set up a regimen of exercise and behavior modifications. Jesse I. Perales, MD, is the medical director of the program. Joaquin Martinez-Ararras, MD, and Lloyd M. Lamp, MD, cardiologists from Amarillo, see patients in Hereford weekly and work with the cardiac/pulmonary rehabilitation program, Modersitzki said.

The program is basically divided into three phases. During Phase I, the patient and family learn about cardiovascular disease and about the options available to slow the progression of the disease. Patients begin with simple exercises during this phase. In Phase II, the patient has an exercise test to determine a safe level of exercise, then attends an exercise program one hour per day, three days a week. During these individually-designed exercises, blood pressure and heart rate are monitored. Patients use treadmills, stationary bikes, weights and other equipment for aerobic conditioning.

Phase III of the program moves the patient from a structured, monitored exercise environment to a more self-directed atmosphere. The patient learns to monitor pulse rate and adjust exercise intensity to maintain a safe home exercise program.

All participants in the program must be referred by their physicians for all phases of the program, Modersitzki said. Any interested persons should ask their Hereford physician or call Scott Modersitzki at 364-2141, Ext. 315 for more information.

Ann Landers

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You always take the side of the female, and I am sick of it. You keep saying men should clean up their act and go see a therapist. You constantly admonish your male readers to brush up on their bedroom skills and tell us we have a problem. You are right. We have a hell of a problem, and the reason is because darned few women really care about sex. For them, it is a duty, somewhat disgusting and a royal pain in the keister.

There is a big move in the high schools these days to preserve virginity until marriage. This is somewhat bafling, because from what I see, most girls lose it before they even get to high school. I married a virgin, but I knew on our wedding night that sex was never going to be a breathless part of our lives.

It's been 45 years now. "Betty" is a wonderful mother to four outstanding children. She gave it her best, and out of respect for our wedding vows, I've remained true to her, and I am still hanging around.

Betty lives in one end of the house, and I live in the other. We dine out together one night a week at a nice restaurant. We seldom have a real conversation or go anywhere together. She hasn't been in my bed for years. I can't remember the last time Betty gave me a hug. I bought her a fairly expensive diamond ring last fall, and to this day, I have not had a kiss or a thank you. Her only remark was "I had to wait 45 years to get this."

I can only imagine the pleasure and fun I have missed out on for the past 20 years. And we only go around once. Sad, isn't it?--Southern Florida

DEAR FLORIDA: It's worse than sad. It's tragic. I'm sorry you didn't write to me 20 years ago. I was around then and would have been happy to help. But maybe it's not too late.

Instead of letting your marriage dry up completely, I urge you to get Betty to a counselor. Maybe she has a side of the story that you need to hear.

Seldom is a relationship 100 percent one way or the other. The missing link, as I see it, is communication. NO relationship can survive the kind of silence you describe. Read this letter to Betty, and ask her if she's willing to meet you 40 percent of the way if you'll go 60. I hope she says "yes." Good luck.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My daughter, who recently divorced her husband of 15 years, is planning to remarry this summer. My husband and I are very supportive, but we are faced with a dilemma. Please help us make the right decision.

"Donna" has asked us to take the photographs of her first wedding off the family room wall so as not to offend her new fiancé. Our former son-in-law comes to the house quite often with the grandchildren. Since he was deeply hurt by the divorce, we have always made an extra effort to include him whenever possible and be especially cordial. If these photographs were removed, it would be noticed immediately and could damage our friendship.

Should we remove the pictures and risk an already-strained relationship, or should I go out and purchase double picture frames and display photos of both past and present husbands?--Distressed in Pebble Beach, Calif.

DEAR PEBBLE: One wedding to a wall, please. Place the first wedding pictures in a lovely album and keep it on the coffee table.

Gem of the Day: If at first you don't succeed, try looking in the wastebasket or the instructions.

What can you give the person who has everything? Ann Landers' booklet, "Gems" is ideal for a nightstand or coffee table. "Gems" is a collection of Ann Landers' most requested poems and essays. Send a self-addressed, long, business-size envelope and a check or money order for $4.85 (this includes postage and handling) to: Gems, c/o Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11562, Chicago, Ill. 60611-0562.

Summer canning easy

How does your garden grow? Probably faster than you think, which means it may be time to start your canning and pickling sooner than you think.

To help you gear up for this year's canning and pickling season, here are some helpful hints from the canning experts at Alltrista Corporation, marketer of Ball brand home canning products, and Heinz Vinegar, the only national brand of vinegar:

-Long before the day you plan to do your first canning, examine your equipment. You want to be sure that everything you'll need is ready to go to work when you are.

-Try to do your canning and pickling in smaller batches throughout the summer. This makes the process more enjoyable and ensures that you capture the flavor and texture of your favorite fruits and vegetables at their peak of freshness.

-Pay close attention to the growing cycles of fruits and vegetables you want to can. Growing cycles vary from region to region and, of course, are affected by the weather. For an accurate estimate of when various fruits and vegetables in your area will reach their peak, call your county extension agent or state agricultural department.

-Pick out only the best-quality fruits and vegetables for canning and pickling. Don't make the mistake of using lower-quality or damaged fruits and vegetables. A rule of thumb is to be as picky about the fruits and vegetables you select for canning as you are about those you serve fresh. The quality and flavor of canned foods are only as good as their ingredients.

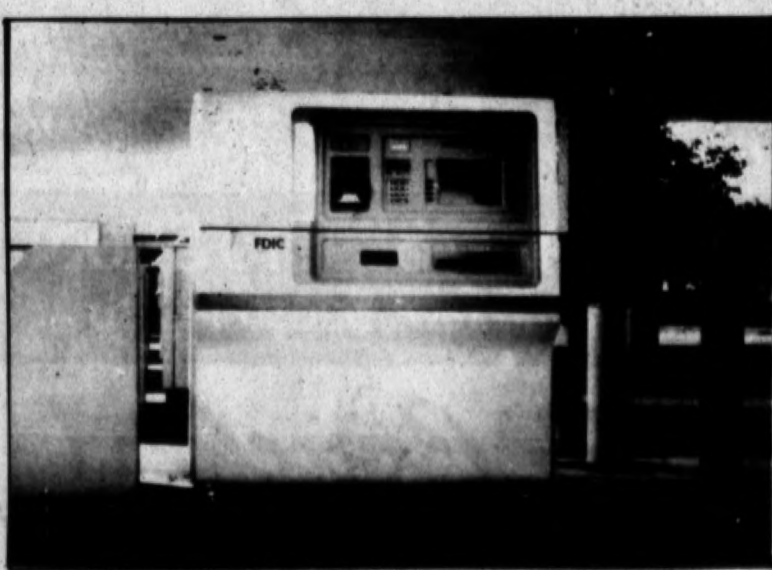

-Be creative in preparing a variety of canned goods, but avoid developing or adapting recipes on your own. There is a science to canning. To make sure that the time you invest pays off, use recipes that have been developed and tested by sources you trust.

Submerging a lemon in hot water for fifteen minutes before squeezing it will yield much more juice.

West Texas Heat makes championship bracket

The West Texas Heat, a basketball team made up partly of Hereford girls, advanced to the championship bracket of the national AAU 13-under girls basketball tournament in Kenner, La.

The Heat went 2-1 in pool play over the weekend. They defeated the South Carolina Cats 48-42 and whipped the Centex All-Stars of central Texas 58-25. Their loss was to the Metropolitan Liberty Belles of New York, 70-50.

The double-elimination championship bracket includes 32 teams. The Heat was to play the Indiana Black Cats today.

Following are the individual scorers for the Heat.
In the 48-42 win over South Carolina Cats: Cami Rea, 12; Geanna Day, 9; Julie Rampley, 7; Melissa Proffitt, 5; Makesha Rives, 4; Shatan Thiel, 3; Crystal Bailey, 2; Holland Herring, 2; Claire Bailey, 2; and Nichole Albracht, 2.

In the 70-50 loss to the Metropolitan Liberty Belles: Cami Rea, 17; Julie Rampley, 16; Geanna Day, 5; Holland Herring, 4; Shatan Thiel, 4; Melissa Proffitt, 2; and Makesha Rives, 2.

In the 58-25 win over the Centex All-Stars: Cami Rea, 9; Julie Rampley, 8; Nichole Albracht, 8; Erin Hayes, 7; Kendra Wright, 6; Geanna Day, 4; Staci Betzen, 4; Claire Bailey, 3; Shatan Thiel, 2; Makesha Rives, 2; and Melissa Proffitt, 2.

Ruiz stopped by IBC champ in bout set up at last minute

Pro boxer Jaime Ruiz of Hereford got a couple of big surprises last week.

First he got a call at 1 a.m. Friday telling him to go to Phoenix for a fight that night. Then, when he stepped into the ring expecting to face an unexperienced kid from California, he found out he was fighting IBC champion Johnny Vasquez of Phoenix.

Ruiz did pretty well under the circumstances.

Vasquez, ranked No. 3 in the world, still improved his record to 27-3, but not without a little work. The fight was called after five rounds out of a scheduled six. Ruiz, who dropped to 5-4, said he hadn't been training seriously recently and he got tired in the fifth, but not before doing some damage to Vasquez, a former WBC champion.

"I closed his right eye with my left jab. I staggered him a couple of times," Ruiz said.

Though Vasquez holds the IBC title, Friday's bout wasn't a title fight.

Ruiz' fight was on the undercard of the Michael Carbajal fight televised by ESPN. It was the second time Ruiz had fought under the ESPN lights. Both times he might have got on television if they needed to fill the time--if one of the main bouts ended early--but they didn't, and he didn't.

Ruiz is starting to get people's attention. After his performance Friday, he received encouraging words from ESPN commentator Al Bernstein, among others, he said.

Another boxer from Hereford, Jaime Herrera, is set to fight this Friday at the Aladdin Casino in Las Vegas, said Ruiz.

Jets sign goalie Meola to placekick

By The Associated Press
The New York Jets have a new kicker who's never made a field goal, or even a GOOOOOOOOOOOOAL!

He's Tony Meola, the U.S. goaltender in the just-completed World Cup, and he was scheduled to be introduced as a member of the Jets at a news conference today.

"We gave Tony quite an extensive workout late last week and were really impressed by his leg strength and accuracy," Jets general manager Dick Steinberg said. "We feel that with experience and some technique work, he has the potential to be a solid NFL placekicker."

If so, Meola will have to beat out the most accurate kicker in NFL history, Nick Lowery, who left the Kansas City Chiefs and signed with the Jets earlier this year as a free agent.

Meola led Virginia to the NCAA title in 1989 and played for Brighton of the English second division. He also played baseball for Virginia and was drafted by the New York Yankees as a center fielder.

"He's a tough competitor who has played in some big games as an international soccer player," Jets coach Pete Carroll said. "He is a raw talent who has the opportunity to learn from one of the very best in the business in Nick Lowery."

Bills
Buffalo signed signed No. 1 draft pick Jeff Burris, a defensive back from Notre Dame, to a four-year deal reportedly worth $2.8 million.

Eagles
Philadelphia first-round draft choice Bernard Williams signed a five-year contract and said he wanted to put a brush with Memphis police behind him.

Williams was arrested July 9 in Memphis after police searched his car without notice or permission while it was parked in his mother's driveway. One of the officers then sprayed pepper gas in Williams' eyes and arrested the 6-foot-8, 317-pound offensive lineman. Williams was charged with disorderly conduct, but the charge was eventually dropped. He has filed a false arrest complaint.

Redskins
First-round draft pick Heath Shuler remained on the sidelines during the afternoon practice because he has not yet signed a contract.

Shuler still may participate in meetings and playbook sessions as he did Monday, but a holdout beyond the start of training camp was becoming a likely possibility.

Dolphins
Quarterback Dan Marino, who missed the last 11 games of the 1993 season with a ruptured Achilles tendon, ran every play with the first team during a non-contact workout, then threw extra passes afterward on a sunny, 92-degree day.

Oilers
Cornerback Cris Dishman signed a contract and Houston also agreed to terms with cornerback Darryl Lewis and offensive lineman Stan Thomas.

Cardinals
Arizona signed defensive tackle Michael Bankston to a three-year, $2 million contract and then claimed two defensive ends off waivers.

The new linemen are Michael Brandon, who had 25 tackles as a rookie for Indianapolis last season, and Darryl Milburn, a ninth-round draft pick by Detroit in 1991. He was waived by New Orleans.

Giants
More than two months after waiving Mark Jackson in a salary cap move, New York re-signed its 1993 leading wide receiver and handed him back his starting job.

Chargers
Backup offensive lineman Curtis Whitley was waived Monday, one day after he was arrested for investigation of drunken driving following an automobile accident.

Coach Bobby Ross said the official reason for waiving Whitley was that he failed to report for a mandatory team meeting Sunday night. Ross said Whitley had repeatedly violated team rules since his rookie season of 1992.

Judge wants NBA players, owners to settle

NEW YORK (AP) - A federal judge, after leaving everything the way it was in professional basketball, now wants the NBA and its players union to settle off his court.

In finding the NBA's salary cap and college draft legal and not a violation of antitrust laws, Judge Kevin Duffy said Monday it was time for both sides to bargain.

"No court, no matter how highly situated, can replace this time-honored manner of labor dispute resolution," he said. "Rather than clogging the courts with unnecessary litigation, the parties should pursue this course."

Promising everything was now open to negotiation, NBA deputy commissioner Russ Granik said he hoped "the players will come back to the bargaining table so we can move forward."

"We think we have to find a system that enables us and the players to have a proper and fair division of the revenues," he said. "If there's another system, we're prepared to talk about that."

Buck Williams of the Portland Trail Blazers, president of the NBA Players Association, said, "The most important point that Judge Duffy wanted to make is he wants us to settle this thing at the collective bargaining table. It may take a good while, but eventually that's what's going to happen."

Meanwhile, the players plan to appeal soon, said Frederick Schwartz Jr., a lawyer for the union. "It seems to us that it is a rather strange result that if you agreed to something you are stuck with it as long as the union exists."

Duffy's decision fell in line with previous rulings giving pro sports wide latitude to work out labor agreements outside of some laws limiting other businesses.

Duffy himself downplayed the legal significance, noting the issue had been in federal court at least three times before and saying he was "convinced ... neither party cares about this litigation or the result."

The ruling freed teams to immediately resume signing contracts with players, a practice that had been stopped by the court pending resolution of the dispute.

Astros wipe out Cardinals' 11-0 lead; win 15-12

By TOM WITHERS

Associated Press Writer

The Houston Astros are proving there's no such thing as a safe lead or an insurmountable deficit.

Trailing 11-0 after three innings, the Astros pulled off a record-tying comeback Monday night to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 15-12.

"As we kept getting closer, we started smelling it," said Kevin Bass, one of four Astros to drive in two runs during an 11-run sixth inning. "After we made it 11-7, we felt pretty good because we had three innings left and were within a grand slam. It just snowballed from there."

Houston matched the biggest comeback in NL history just three days after blowing an 8-0 lead in Pittsburgh in an 11-8 loss.

Bass, Andujar Cedeno, Mike Felder and Ken Caminiti each drove in two runs in the sixth when Houston ahead 15-11.

The Philadelphia Phillies overcame a 12-1 deficit to beat Chicago 18-16 on April 17, 1976, and the Cardinals rallied from an 11-0 deficit to beat New York 14-12 on June 15, 1952.

"That was unbelievable. I've never been behind 11-0 and come back to win, not even in the Pacific Coast League where the ball flies around and you get crazy scores," Astros manager Terry Collins said.

Houston's 11-run inning came against four pitchers. Bryan Eversgerd (2-1) gave up four runs on four hits without retiring a batter.

"I just pitched the wrong pitchers. It was my fault we lost," St. Louis manager Joe Torre said after the Astros spoiled his 54th birthday.

Mike Hampton (2-1) pitched two innings for the victory. Todd Jones went three innings for his third save.

Giants 7, Phillies 5

At Philadelphia, Barry Bonds hit his fifth homer in four games and Darryl Strawberry delivered another big hit before being injured.

The Giants are 9-0 since Strawberry joined them. He hit a two-run single in the first, then left after the top of the second with an injured left hamstring.

The injury did not appear serious, and Strawberry was listed as day-to-day.

The Giants jumped to a 6-0 lead after two innings, knocking out Shawn Boskie (4-6).

Bryan Hickerson (3-8) allowed six hits and four runs in six-plus innings.

Expos 9, Padres 2

At Montreal, the Expos beat San Diego for the 10th straight time this season.

Marquis Grissom had two of Montreal's 15 hits and scored twice for the Expos.

Kirk Rueter (5-2) allowed two runs and six hits in five-plus innings. Tim Scott pitched four innings - his longest career outing - for his first save.

Eleven hits, three Padres errors and a balk by Bill Krueger (1-2) enabled the Expos to take an 8-1 lead after four innings.

Reds 5, Marlins 3

At Cincinnati, Kevin Mitchell and Reggie Sanders hit consecutive homers off Charlie Hough in the sixth inning.

Pete Schourek (5-1) got the win despite blowing a two-run lead, giving up two homers and nearly surrendering a grand slam to Gary Sheffield in the fifth.

Hough (5-9), who gave up four homers the last time he faced the Reds in a 9-4 loss July 5, has lost five straight decisions.

Braves 3, Pirates 2

Kent Mercker pitched a two-hitter for Atlanta, and rookie Mike Kelly hit his first major league homer and doubled.

Mercker (8-2) shook off the Pirates' two-run second inning to retire the final 18 batters for his fifth victory in six starts.

Fred McGriff homered again in Pittsburgh, just as he did in the All-Star game.

Pirates starter Steve Cooke (4-7) again failed to get much run support. He limited the Braves to three runs in seven innings.

Cubs 6, Rockies 3

At Denver, Jim Bullinger pitched a five-hitter and drove in three runs.

Bullinger (4-2) doubled home two runs in the second inning and had an RBI single in the fourth.

Mike Harkey (1-6) walked four and gave up five runs and four hits in four innings.

Dodgers 7, Mets 6

At New York, Tim Wallach drove in six runs and Eric Karros hit a two-out single in the 10th inning.

With two outs in the 10th, Mike Piazza reached on an infield single against Mauro Gozto (2-4). Wallach, who had a three-run homer and a three-run double, was intentionally walked after the count went to 1-1.

Karros then singled to left, scoring pinch-runner Delino DeShields.

Todd Worrell (5-4), who allowed the Mets to tie the game with three runs in the ninth, got the win.

Trammell's error lets White Sox win

By BEN WALKER

AP Baseball Writer

The Chicago White Sox didn't bother checking Cecil Fielder's bat. Instead, they just waited for Alan Trammell to uncork a wild throw.

Trammell's error in the 13th inning Monday night gave the White Sox a 10-9 victory over the Detroit Tigers in a game featuring seven home runs at Comiskey Park.

Frank Thomas hit a grand slam, Julio Franco connected twice and Robin Ventura also homered for Chicago, which overcame a six-run deficit. Fielder homered twice for the Tigers and Kirk Gibson also homered.

The White Sox won for the 15th time in 18 games, and moved past Cleveland into first place in the AL Central. Chicago and the Indians split four games during the weekend at Comiskey, a series that involved the intrigue about Albert Belle's corked bat.

"It's a big win when you come from behind 9-3 and beat a team like Detroit," Franco said. "Tonight things went our way."

Thomas' 34th homer and third career slam tied it 9-9 in the seventh inning.

In the 13th, Joey Cora drew a leadoff walk from Storm Davis (0-3) and Tim Raines sacrificed. After Thomas was intentionally walked, Franco hit a grounder to Fielder at first base.

Fielder threw to Trammell at second for a forceout, but the shortstop's return throw sailed over the head of Davis, covering at first base, and Cora scored easily.

Kirk McCaskill (1-2) pitched five innings of one-hit relief for the victory.

Rangers 6, Indians 5

Jose Canseco doubled home the tiebreaking run with two outs in the ninth inning.

Belle, suspended Monday for 10 days for using a corked bat, went 1-for-4 for the Indians. He is appealing the penalty, and is just 3-for-16 since his bat was confiscated last Friday.

Ivan Rodriguez hit a two-run single in the seventh off Jose Mesa (7-5) as the Rangers tied it 5-5. Jeff Frye doubled with one out in the ninth and Canseco doubled off the bullpen fence in dead center.

Darren Oliver (3-0) pitched two perfect innings for the victory.

Angels 13, Red Sox 4

J.T. Snow hit a grand slam and California scored nine runs in the biggest first inning in team history.

Jim Edmonds had an RBI triple and an RBI double in the Angels' biggest inning since a nine-run burst May 8, 1989, at Detroit. Snow's slam was the first of his career.

Chad Curtis later hit two home runs for host California. He had four hits and drove in three runs.

Brian Anderson (6-4) went 7 2-3 innings for the win. Tim VanEgmond (0-3) retired only two batters for Boston and gave up seven runs, and reliever Jose Melendez allowed three straight extra-base hits in the first inning.

Yankees 5, Athletics 3

Danny Tartabull hit his 17th home run and New York beat Oakland. The Yankees have won five straight since the All-Star break, all on the road.

Tartabull had three hits and drove in two runs.

Xavier Hernandez (4-4) pitched three innings and Steve Howe got his 10th save.

Todd Van Poppel (5-9) gave up three runs on seven hits and three walks in 2 1-3 innings.

Mariners 7, Orioles 5

Edgar Martinez doubled home two runs in the eighth inning.

Ken Griffey Jr. reached on second baseman Mark McLemore's error and stole second in the eighth. After Jay Buhner walked, Martinez doubled off Mark Eichhorn (5-3).

Bill Risley (7-6) was the winner and Bobby Ayala got his 14th save.

Rafael Palmeiro hit his 19th homer for the visiting Orioles.

Blue Jays 7, Twins 4

Joe Carter hit his 20th homer and drove in four runs as Toronto sent Minnesota to its eighth straight road loss.

Al Leiter (4-5) won for the first time since May 21 and Darren Hall got his 10th save. Eddie Guardado (0-2) was the loser.

Royals 2, Brewers 0

Jose Lind hit first AL home run and fill-in starter Chris Haney pitched seven strong innings as Kansas City won at Milwaukee.

Haney (2-2) was called up from the minors just for the game. He had a 9.70 ERA in five starts earlier this season for the Royals, and was brought back only because Kansas City was playing its sixth game in five nights.

Haney allowed five hits and struck out five.

Lind hit a drive off the left field pole for his first homer since June 16, 1991. He connected off Angel Miranda (1-2).

Players' union rejects salary cap plan

NEW YORK (AP) - Baseball players and owners are making it clear they want nothing to do with each other's proposals, leaving the sport in a relentless march toward a work stoppage.

"What the owners are proposing is not different from the salary caps they proposed in 1985 and 1990," union head Donald Fehr said Monday after formally rejecting management's salary-cap plan. "In all cases their objective has been to deny players their fair-market value, to destroy free agency or blunt it, because to do so will lessen salaries and owners will pocket the difference."

Fehr said the sides will meet again Wednesday and said the executive board of the Major League Baseball Players Association will meet either in person or by telephone next week to discuss a strike date. Players mention mid-August to mid-September as the most likely time for a walkout.

"When there are other reasonable options, that's the one you consider last," Fehr said. "But if need be, that's the one you act on."

Management negotiator Richard

Ravitch didn't expect players to embrace the owners' plan. Fehr said players are unlikely to ever agree on a salary-cap plan because they fear it would "destroy free agency, harm competitive balance, principally benefit large-market clubs and reduce incentives to grow the business."

Ravitch said he was an optimist. But he also has said he also thinks there will be a strike.

"I was extremely disappointed that we did not receive a proposal that was responsive to the problems in the game we are trying to address," he said.

And so baseball appears headed to its eighth work stoppage since 1972. Small-market clubs, led by Milwaukee Brewers owner Bud Selig, the executive council chairman, say a fundamental change is necessary to keep their teams competitive.

Large-market clubs, fearful of attacks on their local broadcasting revenue, agreed to a new revenue-sharing plan in January - but made it contingent on the union agreeing to a cap.

"The proposal we received on June 14 ... attempts to put an arbitrary limit on player salaries, what we think will be substantially below the fair-market value of the players involved," Fehr said. "Why owners think players would be interested in that kind of system is beyond us."

During the four-hour bargaining session, Fehr asked owners to return the threshold for salary arbitration to two years instead of three and to raise the minimum salary from $109,000 to between $175,000 and $200,000.

Belle appeals suspension for cork

CLEVELAND (AP) - Seemingly caught red-handed, Albert Belle still wants his day in court.

Suspended Monday by the American League for attempting to use a corked bat, Cleveland's bad-boy slugger immediately appealed the ruling and declared through his agent that he had been wronged. The 10-day suspension will be delayed until AL president Bobby Brown hears the appeal in New York on July 29.

Belle is no stranger in the AL offices. This is the fourth straight season Brown has suspended him, including twice for charging pitchers and once for hitting a heckler in the chest with a baseball.

Belle was also once demoted to the minors for loafing, and he spent part of the summer of 1990 in an alcoholism rehabilitation program.

If the suspension stands, it will be his longest yet.

"We are outraged by the claim and feel that it is no more than a well-timed charge concocted by the White Sox in the heat of a pennant race with Cleveland," Arn Tellem, Belle's agent, said in a statement. "We are confident that once all of the facts are brought forward at the hearing, no impropriety by Albert Belle will be found."

The evidence suggested otherwise. Belle's bat, supplied to the league by the Indians after someone in the Cleveland organization took it from the umpires' sealed dressing room in Chicago's Comiskey Park, was found to contain cork when it was X-rayed and sawed open Monday.

Filling part of a bat with cork can make it lighter and easier to swing.

Deaf Smith County 4-H'ers to participate in Camp Day

Registration is being accepted at the Deaf Smith County Extension Office for youth ages 8-14 that would like to attend the 4-H Day Camp scheduled Thursday. Informative and hand-on experiences will be provided in small groups for the youth attending this event.

Preregistration is required and registration may be made by calling the County Extension Office at 364-3573 no later than noon Wednesday. Registration will be limited.

The camp will begin at 8:45 a.m. Thursday with registration and get acquainted activities at the Bull Barn. Activities for the day will continue with Wayne Beighle, Department of Public Safety trooper, presenting a program on the importance of safety measures in vehicle travel. Also, Len Slesick of KVII television station will be presenting tornado safety. Fire and health safety will also be presented by special speakers.

Hands-on sessions will include safe snacking for summer and after school activities and will be led by Beverly Harder, county extension agent, and numerous senior 4-H members.

A fun recreation activity of line dancing will conclude the event and will be led by Donna Grotegut, summer assistant for the Extension Office.

Youth need to bring a sack lunch. Drinks and snacks will be provided.

Youth not currently enrolled in 4-H will be required to fill out a special interest enrollment form and pay $1 for insurance for the day event.

Keep black walnuts away from gardens

By LEE REICH

For AP Special Features

Although the word "walnut" comes from Anglo-Saxon words meaning "foreign nut" (wealth hnutu), throughout the eastern United States, the ground is annually strewn with nuts from our native black walnut (Juglans nigra).

Why "foreign nut," then? The reason is because a related species, the Persian or English walnut (J. regia), was indeed a foreign nut when first introduced into England centuries ago.

The black walnut is a valuable tree, but not one to plant in, or even near, a garden. The tree grows an enormous canopy of leaves that will shade out sunlight, and the tree's equally far-reaching root system will steal nutrients and water from garden plants.

As if that were not enough, black walnut trees secrete juglone, a natural chemical that is toxic to certain plants. Tomatoes are among those plants susceptible to the lethal effect of juglone.

If you have the space, plant a black walnut in a field where you can enjoy the tree early in its life for its nuts, then later on for its grandeur, and finally for its wood.

A tree produces about 30 pounds of nuts, shelling out up to 6 pounds of nutmeat. Fully grown trees are truly majestic, with a height and width of 75 feet or more. This is a tree to plant for posterity, for it matures in 150 years, and might survive for 250 years (at which point it is worth thousands of dollars for its wood).

Start black walnut trees by planting either nuts or nursery-grown trees.

If you plant the nut, do not expect immediate germination. The seeds will show no signs of life until they have been exposed to cool, moist conditions for a few months. Nuts planted outdoors receive this treatment naturally, but many end up in the bellies of squirrels.

To assure success with outdoor planting, plant a few nuts about 4 inches deep at each place where you want a tree, and protect each planting from squirrels with a square of hardware cloth laid on top of the ground.

Remove the hardware cloth at winter's end. Then, in summer, thin the seedlings to the single sturdiest plant of each group. Alternatively, store the nuts in the refrigerator in a plastic bag with some dampened vermiculite or peat, then plant them outdoors as soon as they sprout, in late winter or early spring.

If you purchase trees, choose

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) - The bridge starring with Clint Eastwood in "The Bridges of Madison County" is an impostor.

To save money, filmmakers selected an uncovered bridge for the movie version of Robert Waller's best-selling novel, a modern-day bodice-ripper set amid the Iowa county's six covered bridges.

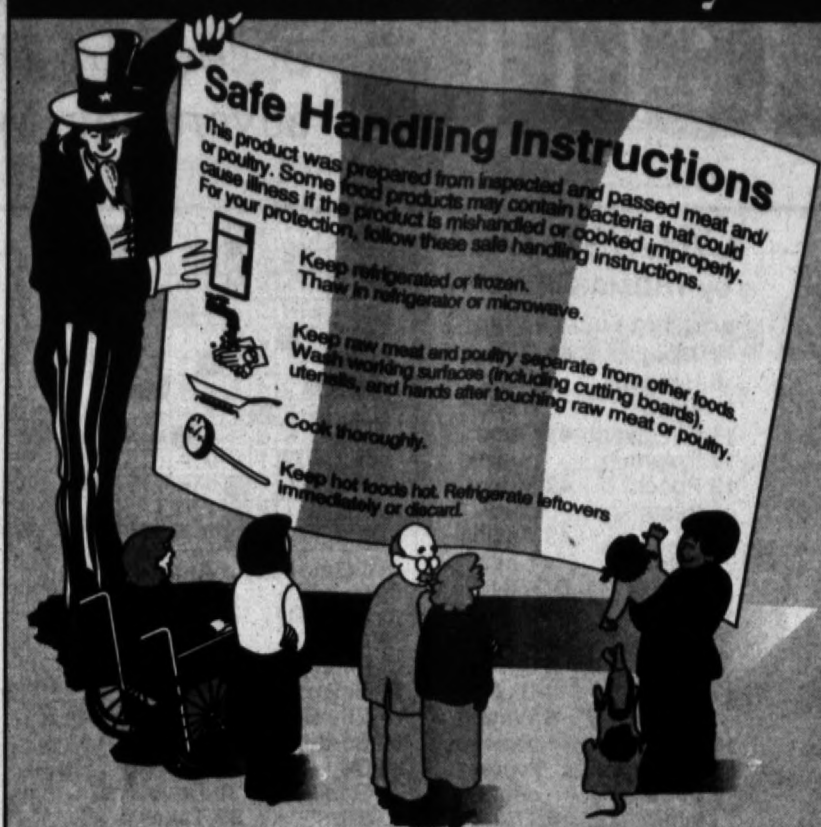

Wood panels will be used to cover the bridge and still leave enough light to film.

"They would have had to remove some siding to get some light in there," said Brian Morrissey, Madison County engineer.

Two of the county's covered bridges may be used for filming short scenes.

It's Time to Get Serious About Food Safety

Here at the U.S. Department of Agriculture we directed meat and poultry packages to put safe handling labels on all raw or partially-cooked products you prepare at home. This amounts to some 15 billion packages a year.

Why? Because we want you to know that raw animal products may contain bacteria that can cause food poisoning if these products are not properly handled.

The good news is that the easy kitchen steps you should take to keep yourself and your family safe are printed on the label now. Follow them when you cook. For more information, call USDA's Meat and Poultry Hotline, 1-800-535-4555.

Committee reports heard during Pilot Club meeting

Division coordinators gave their committee reports during the recent breakfast meeting of the Hereford Pilot Club. The group met in the Lamar Room of King's Manor.

Also, during the business meeting, it was reported that the organization's nursing home recipient adoptee received a pair of glasses to replace the ones that were lost.

Terri Johnson, Vesta Mac Nunley and Betty Taylor will attend a convention in San Antonio later this month.

It was announced that Pilot Club members had been invited for a club picnic in August at Betty Taylor's farm in McClean.

Beginning in August, Pilot members will meet at the Hereford Community Center for their breakfast meetings which will be catered by Something Special.

The clarinet was invented about 1700 by German instrument maker Johann Christoph Denner.

Top honors taken by Gilbert at Toastmasters' meeting

Ed Gilbert took top honors as best speaker when members of the Hereford Toastmasters Club met Thursday morning at the Ranch House.

Named as best evaluator was Jigger Rowland and best topic speaker was Joe Weaver.

Nancy Griego led the pledge and Gilbert gave the invocation. Mike Harris presided over the business meeting.

Linda Minchew served as toastmaster; Ralph Barndt, timer; Margaret Del Toro, "ah" counter; Dave Kimmel, grammarian; Esther Frazier, wordmaster; and laconic, the chosen word.

Topic speakers were Weaver, Dan Hall, Rowland and Dr. Milton Adams.

Charles Minchew spoke on "Our Trip to Las Vegas," evaluated by Rowland, and Gilbert talked about "Celebrating 25 Years," evaluated by Jim Clark.

Griego served as general evaluator. Welcomed as guests were Linda Weaver and Adolfo Del Toro.

The United States Mint was created by an Act of Congress, April 2, 1792.

PRAYER TO THE HOLY SPIRIT
Holy Spirit, You who make me see everything and who show me the way to reach my idea. You who give me the Divine Gift to forgive and forget the wrong that is done to me, and you who are in all instances of my life with me. I, in this short dialogue want to thank you for everything and confirm once ore that I never want to be separated from You, no matter how great the material desires may be. I want to be with You and my loved ones in Your perpetual glory. Amen. Thank You for Your love towards me and my loved ones. Pray this prayer 3 consecutive days without asking your wish, after the third day, your wish will be granted, now matter how difficult it may be. Then promise to publish this prayer as soon as your favor has been granted. Wish granted.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Roseanne has renewed spousal abuse claims against her husband Tom Arnold - and this time she's got pictures.

In court documents disclosed Thursday, Roseanne - who now prefers to go only by her first name - says she withdrew earlier abuse claims because she was afraid of her husband.

"I was extremely fearful that if I told (him) I was absolutely positive that I did not want to remain married to him, his threats to kill me would become real," she says in a divorce declaration.

The declaration includes photographs of bruises she says Arnold inflicted during their rocky marriage.

Arnold has filed his own declaration saying he is out of work and requires $100,000 a month support from his wife. He also claims that she "plundered" his belongings and threw his wardrobe into the pool of one of their Brentwood mansions.

Roseanne said she can't pay Arnold anything because she is still supporting her first husband.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Arnold Schwarzenegger needed a little extra muscle from his wife as he left his mark in wet cement outside Mann's Chinese Theatre.

Schwarzenegger put his size 12 cowboy boots, his hands and his signature in a block outside the Hollywood Boulevard landmark Thursday. He also signed his trademark movie line: "I'll be back."

His wife, broadcaster Maria Shriver, placed her hands on his as he pushed them into the concrete.

"This is absolutely a great honor and a great pleasure," Schwarzenegger told about 3,500 fans who attended the event.

Schwarzenegger's latest movie, "True Lies," opened this week.

Schlitterbahn: Water park is a family success story

By CHUCK McCOLLOUGH
San Antonio Express-News
NEW BRAUNFELS, Texas - In the late 1960s Bob Henry decided to install a water slide for his children to enjoy.

The kids are grown now, and so is the water slide.
It's called Schlitterbahn Resorts & Water Park.

The popular 65-acre facility sits next to the tree-shaded Comal River in the heart of this historic German-founded burg.

In the 15 years since Schlitterbahn opened, Henry has retired and his two sons and daughter have taken over operation of the enterprise, which employs up to 2,500 at the height of the summer season.

Henry's three children are Gary Henry, 40, Jeff Henry, 38, and Jana Faber, 37.

Gary Henry is president of Water Park Management, which operates the Schlitterbahn complex. Gary, a CPA, also serves as chief financial officer and adviser for the collection of related family businesses.

Jeff Henry is founder and chief executive officer of New Braunfels General Store International, which makes water park equipment for Schlitterbahn.

Jana Faber handles marketing, promotion and retail operations for the corporation, which consists of the water park and sister companies, including the one that manufactures equipment for water parks worldwide.

The Henrys declined to reveal annual revenues.

Bob Henry is a CPA who fled Houston with his family in 1966 for quieter surroundings.

"Dad wanted to work for himself, to do what he wanted to do, to be free. That's why he moved to New Braunfels," Jeff said.

Henry bought a 13-acre former resort on the Comal River in 1966, and three years later he installed a fiberglass water slide. When that washed away in the flood of 1972, he built a concrete water slide.

"In the 1970s water slides were very popular and you found them in a lot of places, Gary said. "They were just concrete slides with a flow of water."

The concept for Schlitterbahn was born during a family vacation shortly after Henry purchased the property.

In 1979, Henry, his wife Billye and their children visited Disney World in Orlando, Fla., and fell in love with the state-of-the-art water slides at the theme park.

"We came back from the trip, and Jeff and I were so fired up they started digging out the Comal River to create a series of reservoirs," Gary said.

"We decided to build not just a water slide but a water theme park that played on the heritage of New Braunfels."

They built four water slides around a castle that is a replica of the Solms castle in Braunfels, Germany.

And, since the family was already used to running bulldozers and other equipment, the Henrys built the first elements of the park themselves.

A family friend came up with the name "Schlitterbahn," which roughly translates as "slippery road" in German.

The following year the Henrys added the Hillside Tube Chute and a 50,000-square-foot swimming lagoon below the Castle Slides.

They added new attractions to the complex each year, eventually filling the 40 acres they had amassed with 17 water slides and nine inner-tube chutes.

By 1990 the park was luring 500,000 visitors annually during its five-month season.

The Henrys solved the park's space problem by buying Camp Warnecke in 1991. The 25-acre facility is just three blocks upstream on the Comal River.

The new addition was named Surfenburg and contains Schlitterbahn's high-tech Boogie Bahn surfing ride and the park's largest playground.

The Henrys, especially Jeff, lost no time converting the new property.

"I was out there within hours running a bulldozer. We had that property open with attractions by the 1991 season," he said.

Through the years the Henrys and city of New Braunfels have crossed swords.

Bob Henry even ran for City Council and lost.

Some residents near Schlitterbahn have complained about heavy traffic and the Henrys have complained about harassment by the city.

In May 1989 the Henrys lost a $3 million lawsuit they filed against the city. They said free parking was provided near a city-owned water tube shoot while Schlitterbahn customers who parked on streets near the park were harassed and their vehicles towed.

Nowadays, the Henrys say they get along much better with the city.

Jeff has been a force in developing a diversified enterprise.

He founded New Braunfels General Store International in 1984 to manufacture and distribute a line of coated-foam waterpark products for Schlitterbahn.

The company has a staff of more than 100 at its 212,000-square-foot plant in the former Glastron Boat manufacturing facility near the city's southern limits.

New Braunfels General Store purchased the 32-acre site in February for about $3 million.

Over the years New Braunfels General Store has done research and development on hundreds of ideas and become a leading supplier of soft-play products for waterparks, amusement parks, municipal pools, indoor recreation centers and movie studios.

Now, more than 75 Braunfelsbilt products are manufactured in New Braunfels and sold worldwide.

In 1990 Impact Coatings joined the New Braunfels General Store family, adding expertise in waterproof adhesives, coatings and non-slip surfaces.

Water Ride Concepts was formed in 1992 to design water rides incorporating new technology. That company has designed and marketed several rides, including the Master Blaster, a new uphill water roller coaster unveiled this year at Schlitterbahn.

Jeff and the company recently were featured in the Wall Street Journal and on CNN's Science and Technology Week show.

Study offers another reason for workers to hate Mondays

DALLAS (AP) - A new study gives us yet another reason to hate Mondays.

Working people are more likely to have a heart attack on Monday morning than any other day of the week, according to research led by Dr. Stefan Willich at the Free University in Berlin.

The study's results were reported in the July issue of Circulation, an American Heart Association scientific journal.

"Assuming that Monday is usually a day of more stress for more people, we may expect a higher occurrence

- a higher risk - of heart attacks," Willich said Monday.

Willich, a visiting assistant professor at Harvard University, said the researchers analyzed 2,636 heart attack victims in Augsburg, a mid-sized city in Germany. The victims, 75 percent of them men, were hospitalized between 1985 and 1990.

Among the working population, heart attacks occurred 33 percent more often on Mondays than on other days of the week. The occurrences were evenly distributed throughout the rest of the week, with a slight dip on Sundays.

Among non-working people, no day stood out as high risk, Willich said.

Previous studies have shown that heart attacks are more likely to occur in the morning.

Willich said he would like to study another culture in which the workday begins on a different day of the week to compare results. In the meantime, he said his findings are merely an "interesting phenomenon."

A wise man does not try to hurry history.

AUSTIN — Republican gubernatorial candidate George W. Bush, in a television interview last week, criticized the Texas Insurance Commission's fining of Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. $1.2 million for deceptive sales practices, but he later told The Associated Press he believed the case against the insurance company was handled fairly.

Gov. Ann Richards campaign reacted to Bush's statements, accusing Bush of "an outrageous conflict of interest" for criticizing the fine while serving as a paid board member of Tom Brown Inc., a Midland oil and gas company in which Met Life owns stock.

Bush said he did not know Met Life owned stock in the company, but according to the Richards campaign, Met Life has owned between 6.5 and 9.9 percent of Tom Brown Inc. since Bush has served on its board.

According to Securities and Exchange Commission documents, Bush earns $12,000 a year from Tom Brown Inc.

The insurance commission ordered Met Life to make refunds totaling $1.2 million to 76,000 policyholders in Texas.

Prison Medical Report Ordered

U.S. District Judge William Wayne Justice has ordered officials to give him a report on the condition of medical facilities in the Texas Criminal Justice System.

In his order, the Tyler-based judge said he had received more than 400 letters and legal pleadings in the past three months from prisoners who allege they have had problems with health care in the prisons.

"Although at this point these complaints are only allegations that have not been investigated, the unusual number of complaints troubles the court," Justice wrote.

Audit Rips Tire Shredders

Five tire-shredding plants have overbilled the state $2.1 million, according to a preliminary audit by the Texas Natural Resource Conservation Commission.

Twenty-one plants in Texas process old tires for recycling under a state program funded by the $2 per new tire fee paid by consumers. Almost $300 million in new tire fees is collected annually.

The five plants have until early August to reimburse the state or explain the discrepancies. Susan Potts, a lawyer for the Texas State Tire Recyclers Association, said she believes the company records will show the five plants do not owe money to the state.

More Felons to Get Probation

A new law goes into effect Sept. 1 that lowers penalties for dozens of property and drug offenses and doubles the amount of time most violent offenders will have to spend in prison before becoming eligible for parole.

State District Judge Larry Gist of Beaumont told the Texas Board of Criminal Justice, "It's going to be a tough year, but everyone I've talked to is committed to making this work."

According to a report in the Houston Chronicle, people convicted of a felony will have to be given probation, unless they use a weapon or have a prior aggravated offense. In that case, they will be sent to prison.

The new law's sponsor, state Sen. John Whitmire, D-Houston, said the worst obstacle for an ex-convict is to find employment. He said that state agencies should set an example for private businesses by hiring ex-convicts who have been rehabilitated.

Dropout Rates Decline

The Texas public school dropout rate is half what it was six years ago, Texas Education Commissioner Lionel "Skip" Meno said last week.

Meno said the state dropout rate for seventh through 12th grades has fallen from 34 percent in the 1987-88 school year to 18 percent in the 1993 school year.

Meno attributed the improvement to legislation that reformed indifferent attitudes toward students who leave school before graduating.

Meno denied that recent announcements of good news about public schools were linked to Gov. Ann Richards re-election campaign. "I have enough work to do to just be commissioner, let alone get involved in politics," he said.

Alternative Schools Proposed

Meanwhile, Meno offered suggestions for how the state Legislature should rewrite the education code to place "at-risk" students in alternative schools rather than face expulsion.

Unless the Legislature pays for the alternative schools, local school districts would have to foot the bill to keep violent or disruptive students in school but out of regular classrooms.

Lawmakers will consider Meno's plan, which met the approval of state teachers' groups, in the 1995 legislative session.

Officials for Texas State Teachers Association and Texas Federation of Teachers, however, called Meno's proposal inadequate for an across the board 5 percent raise in teachers' minimum pay, which could affect only 2,000 teachers statewide.

Ex-senator Released on Bond

Former state Sen. Tati Santiesteban, an El Paso lawyer, was arrested last week after sheriff's deputies said they found about 2 ounces of marijuana in his briefcase during a routine search conducted as he entered the jail. Santiesteban, who was released after posting a $1,500 bond, said he doesn't know how the marijuana got into his briefcase.

ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT IS

...one of the wisest investments a community can make for itself because it attracts new industry. New industry means JOBS and GROWTH for our community.

JOBS bring more people, more businesses, more retail sales, more personal income and a much broader tax base. By supporting this vote for economic development we let others (non-residents) who shop in Hereford help pay our taxes. In addition, every new tax dollar raised as a result of job creation is a dollar of tax

YOU DON'T HAVE TO PAY!

WE NEED ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT

To get it, WE NEED THE 1/2¢ SALES TAX. Based on current projections, the 1/2¢ sales tax would yield some $330,000 per year which could be used only for specific economic development projects as mandated by state law.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How Will Economic Development Funds Be Managed?

A five member Economic Development Board will be appointed by the Hereford City Council. They will serve WITHOUT PAY. Funds can be used for:

- Business development - recruitment and retention
- Workforce development - education and training
- Infrastructure development - water & waste water, electrical and street improvements for job-related projects
- Facility development - new and existing buildings
- Loans

Will All Purchases Be Affected By The 1/2¢ Sales Tax?

NO! A city sales tax does not affect most essentials. You pay no sales tax on medical services, prescription drugs, most food products, rents, mortgages, gasoline, automobiles, or agriculture items which are exempt.

What Will A 1/2¢ Sales Tax Cost The Average Family?

According to the State Controller, a family with a gross income of $35,000 would pay about 98¢ more per week. The extra pennies are more than offset by savings on your property taxes.

Is This 1/2¢ Sales Tax Permanent?

Only if you, the voters, want it to be. Under state law, what voters vote in, they can vote out.

What's At Stake?

Our very future is at stake. This election is about JOBS, GROWTH, EXPANDING OUR TAX BASE, AND GETTING HEREFORD ON THE MOVE. A VOTE FOR THE 1/2¢ SALES TAX ON AUG. 13TH WILL ALLOW HEREFORD TO COMPETE, AND HELP SECURE A BRIGHTER FUTURE THAT WILL BENEFIT US ALL.
