More Wilderness

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland today recommended that three roadless areas in East Texas, currently under federal protection and totaling 10,212 acres, be designated off-limits to hunters, timber operations and vehicular traffic.

The three are in San Augustine, Montgomery and Houston Counties.

They would carry a wilderness designation and could only be reached by foot or canoe. No vehicular traffic will be allowed if Bergland's recommendations receive congressional and presidential approval.

To Protest Reactor

TULSA, Okla. (AP)—The tug J.E. Gegenheimer with a two-barge tow carrying a nuclear reactor and reactor components, was scheduled to shatter the thin ice at the inland Port of Catoosa here today.

Unlike most barge shipments at the port at the innermost end of the Arkansas-Verdigris Navigation Channel, the vessel will have a reception committee.

An estimated 50 to 100 "anti-nukes," members of the Sunbelt Alliance, will be gathered prior to the scheduled 8 a.m. docking at a special platform built just for the Westinghouse-built reactor.

The Sunbelt Alliance members plan to occupy the dock, waving banners and chanting, insisting that the reactor be shipped back down channel. Many say they will remain until they are arrested for trespassing.

Pilot Down In Gulf

HOUSTON (AP)—Coast Guard rescuers and private boats and aircraft criss-cross an area south of Galveston today searching for the pilot of a jet aircraft who bailed out over the Gulf of Mexico with his partner when the plane developed trouble.

One pilot was recovered - "cold and wet, but unhurt" - about an hour and a half after the two men ejected from their Texas Air National Guard F-101 fighter jet about 35 miles southeast of Galveston.

"We're still searching for the other one," Maj. John Halsen, public information officer at Ellington Air Force Base, said early today.

Perhaps you heard that the Hare Krishnas won a lawsuit last week granting them permission to do some soliciting of funds and missionary work in the parking lots around Texas Stadium on the date of the Dallas-Atlanta professional football playoff game.

A judge ruled that, since Texas Stadium is a municipal facility owned by the City of Irving, the Dallas Cowboys had no right to prohibit a religious organization from taking up a collection and handing out literature on the premises.

Reports following the football game last Saturday indicated that the Krishnas didn't get much cooperation from the football fans.

If they had been in Russia, they could not have got their court ruling. In fact, if they had been in Russia, they could not have even got the case into court.

The 1980 summer Olympic games will be held in Moscow, and the Russians already have put out the word that visitors during the Olympics cannot bring any religious literature with them.

In fact, the Russians apparently are worried that the Olympics will provide such a good opportunity for missionary efforts that they are going to crack down with tighter surveillance than usual during that period. The penalty for distributing religious literature in the Soviet Union is reported to be two to five years imprisonment.

So, if you are going to the summer Olympics in 1980, leave your Bibles, Korans and any other religious material behind, or else you could wind up in jail.

It is ironic that this subject causes so much fear in the biggest country in the world which claims to be a "peoples' nation." But apparently this worries them more than any other potential problem they foresee in their role as hosts to the Olympic games.

Art From Unlikely Material...

Few Items Are Wasted At Doris Rudd's House

By JOHN DUNNAM

Doris Rudd is her name but she once received a Christmas card addressed Gail, Texas." Her hobby is taking what most would consider to be a piece of junk and turning it into a work of art which won her the nickname.

"My family has accused me of taking the old things they have thrown away and giving them back to them for Christmas," she says.

But it cannot be denied Mrs. Rudd does have a way of applying her hands and imagination to things that most would leave outside by the garbage can. One example is the interesting looking love chair that sits beside the fireplace she built. She made the chair out of two old theater seats and an old iron head-board.

Another example is the towel rack that stands beside her bathtub. Its parts include a floor lamp pole, a door knob and a child's potty.

She can also turn old scrub boards into towel racks equipped with mirrors. She puts the mirror at the top and paints a picture where the scrubbing surface was. Then she adds a rack at the top

Anarchy In Iran Haunts Summit

SAINT-FRANCOIS, Guadeloupe (AP)—President Carter and the government chiefs of Britain, France and West Germany begin an informal, two-day summit meeting today haunted by the specter of anarchy in Iran.

Carter's national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, told reporters in Washington Wednesday that the president in his talks with French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing, West German Chancellor Helmut Schmidt and British Prime Minister James Callaghan would reiterate his support for Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi.

Brzezinski said the three European leaders agree with Carter's backing for the threatened shah, one of the biggest customers for their arms and other manufactures and a major source of oil for Western industry. All four leaders are deeply concerned that if power slips from the shah's grip, Iran's new leaders might turn to the Soviet Union, the country's big northern neighbor.

Billed by the French hosts as an "informal and friendly meeting" on "the state of the world at the end of 1978 and beginning of 1979," the summit will also assess new moves in the American-Soviet SALT negotiations to limit nuclear arms, the normalizing of relations between the United States and China, Chinese shopping for Western arms, the deadlocked Egyptian-Israeli peace negotiations, the continuing black-white confrontation in southern Africa and the money and trading problems of the Western world.

Ask Us

Q--Why is there a tax on a fine and what percentage is it and to whom is it paid? Also, is the tax just on the fine, or on the total amount?

A--A state tax is assessed on traffic tickets in municipal and justice courts. The tax of $3.50 is on a per-ticket basis regardless of the amount of the fine. The tax goes to the state comptroller who allocates it to crime and traffic safety agencies as prescribed by legislation passed in 1976 setting up the tax.

To Israel, South Africa...

Iran Threatens To Slash Oil Supplies

TEHRAN, Iran (AP)—Prime Minister-designate Shah-pour Bakhtiar has threatened to cut off oil to Israel and South Africa, promised to curb the secret police and the army and again indicated Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi will leave the country temporarily.

"We must not refuse to sell petrol to countries that request it," Bakhtiar told a news conference Wednesday. "But given the conflict that we have on a religious plane with Israel...I think my government wouldn't do that."

Asked to elaborate, Bakhtiar said he thought Israel, which gets 60 percent of its oil from Iran, "should settle its disputes with Arab countries and these countries share our religion."

Although not an Arab nation, Iran is predominantly Moslem like most of the Arab world, and Ayatullah Khomaini, the exiled religious leader of the fight against Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, has called for an end to the oil shipments to Israel. But in Washington, U.S. Energy Secretary James Schlesinger said the United States would fulfill a 1975 commitment and see that Israel was supplied if Iranian shipments to the Jewish nation were cut off.

Schlesinger urged Americans to reduce oil consumption until the resumption of Iranian production, which has been almost completely cut off by a strike against the shah. He said there was no immediate supply problem, but shortages could develop by fall if Iran isn't exporting by then. The United States normally imports about 50,000 barrels a day from Iran, or 5 percent of its needs.

Bakhtiar said he also may refuse oil to South Africa, which gets most of its oil from Iran, because of a dispute "on another plane." He refused to elaborate but obviously was referring to the white-minority South African government's racial policies.

Bakhtiar also said he would trim the powers of SAVAK, the shah's dread secret police force and turn it into an intelligence agency. He said his government would not submit "to any military authority, whatever it is." He said he did not think the army, still devoutly loyal to the shah, would attempt to oust him.

Speaking fluently in Persian, French and English, he indicated the troops called out by the shah to battle street demonstrators would be returned to their barracks. He said Martial law, in effect since Sept. 7, would end "region by region."

However, he said disorders would not be tolerated and persons arrested for murder, looting and other serious crimes during recent rioting will be prosecuted.

He said the shah "wants to rest and take a vacation - that is the desire he has expressed himself."

Questions about the future of the embattled monarch are "extremely delicate," he said, adding he hoped to restore "the legality of the king."

The shah reportedly has promised Bakhtiar to give up much of his royal power and take a vacation, leaving a regency council to exercise royal authority while the new prime minister's civilian government attempts to end more than a year of rioting against the shah.

But More On Way...

Cold Weather Due To Leave

Although some apprehension concerning fuel supplies had subsided, this was another day without public schools in operation as a tenacious cold spell maintained its firm grip on the Snyder area overnight.

Bright sunshine and rising temperatures promised thawing this afternoon, but weather forecasters indicated that the relief might be only temporary. The forecasts call for more cold weather with possible snow or freezing rain by late Friday over Northwest Texas.

Snyder school pupils are likely to be back in the classroom Friday for the first time since the Christmas holidays began on Dec. 20. If weather conditions permit, there also will be school on Saturday this week as they make up one of the three days missed due to weather.

The temperatures warmed some on Wednesday, but not enough to clear roads and streets of icy conditions.

However, the slight warm-up did alleviate conditions that had created electric power supply problems earlier in the week.

Texas Electric Service Co. President Bill Marquardt said that TESCO customers could resume normal use of electricity. They had been urged to curtail power use.

Marquardt said that by mid-morning Wednesday, lignite plants affected by the cold weather were back in operation, gas supplies to generating plants had improved and rising temperatures had thawed transmission lines and controls on the generating plants that had been affected.

"We are grateful for the cooperation of our customers," said Marquardt. "The response of the public helped prevent an emergency situation from developing into a crisis."

TESCO and many other electric utilities had asked customers to stop all nonessential uses of electricity on Tuesday.

Also, fears that icy highways which prevented transport trucks from moving would curtail gasoline supplies had been eased. Local jobbers reported that transport

Absentee Voting On Consolidation

Absentee voting in the proposed Hermleigh-Snyder school consolidation continues through Jan. 16 in both the respective communities.

County Judge Preston Wilson said absentee voting in Hermleigh is being held at the school and in Snyder it is being held at the school administration building on 37th St. Voters living in Fisher County who also are in the Hermleigh district are voting at Roby.

The election is set for Jan. 20. Then, voters will decide whether or not Hermleigh is to consolidate with the Snyder Independent School District. The consolidation issue was raised last August when property tax assessments increased in the Hermleigh District.

an innovative sale

It is welcome relief to find an item of news which does not call for a negative comment. A recent advertisement by a railroad gives an opportunity for positive commendation. Discounted rail freight rates were the subject of an ad message.

"It's unheard of for a railroad to hold a sale," says an ad for the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific Railroad. "We think it is about time someone in this business did the unheard of."

It may be the first time in recent history a railroad has attempted to stimulate business by cutting rates. But it has only been in recent history that the Interstate Commerce Commission (ICC) would allow such a thing to take place.

Since the increased competition bring lower rates and greater traffic for the airlines was made possible when its regulating federal agency was pulled off its back, the ICC has reversed its attitude. So, it was not too difficult for the rail firm to get approval for its plans.

The problem was that about 93 percent of the road's piggy-back trailers that hauled goods to the west have had to go back empty. Hauling empty cars has always been a transport problem. So the railroad offered lower rates for this service and advertised the lower rates.

The ICC approved the project in just one week. Such approval usually takes months, a spokesman said. The ICC chief had just complained about the railroad industry's lack of innovation, William Gibbons, trustee of Rock Island's reorganization, said. "I think this (the discount) must have hit them right in the head."

The 20 percent discount applies to eastbound shipments to any point on the railroad's system. In addition to stimulating eastbound transport, publicity of the "unheard of discount" should assist in producing more piggy-back business in both directions.

"If it's successful, we'll go back and ask for other innovative rates," Gibbons said. "We have to be innovative in order to survive."

We never thought we would see the day when the hidebound ICC would give an inch to allow a railroad to become more competitive or to change its rates in order to stimulate new business.

The streaks of rust covering the nation once denoted a more than thriving industry. In the last quarter century, they have become the graveyard for thousands of small and great innovations which failed to meet federal ICC requirements.

And, what the ICC failed to do to strangle the railroads, the labor unions and their archaic rules accomplished.

In this day of energy priorities, the rails can offer much in saving which cannot be duplicated by any other means of transport. It only takes one-third the amount of energy to move a ton of freight a mile on steel wheels moving on steel rails in comparison to rubber tires on highways.

This saving could become a tremendous plus in our energy problem if all possibilities were explored and those feasible carried out.

We are pleased to see that the deadhand of ICC over-control has been lifted in this one case and hope this event can become a trend.

The ultimate good would be for the ICC to be piggy-backed right out of the whole transportation field and given a long over-due burial. At any rate, here is one positive item we found this week for comment.

mexico's potential

Any nation which has the potential for transforming itself within a matter of decades from one of the poorer countries of the world to one of the richer ones is a nation deserving more than average attention. Mexico is such a nation, thanks to oil reserves which seem to grow constantly in their estimated potential.

What kind of a transformation those reserves are likely to bring to Mexico can be stated simply. It is not beyond reason that Mexico one day could be the Saudi Arabia of the oil world. Its importance is enhanced by the fact it is not located in the politically sensitive Persian Gulf.

How Mexico transforms itself into an oil giant and how that transformation affects its neighbors could be one of the major events between now and the end of this century.

castro's dilemma

Russia's big idea in the 1960s was to delegate to its puppet state, Cuba, the "invasion of Africa."

For eight months in 1965, Che Guevara led a detachment of Cuban troops training and fighting alongside revolutionary guerrillas in the Congo.

Heavy-handed Russians had aroused resentment and resistance in African nations but Cuban troops were welcome. They, too, represented a tiny nation which had stuck its finger in the eye of the major powers.

Cubans individually are more gregarious and simpatico than Russians.

So Cuban aid--more symbolic than substantive--supported Marxists in Angola, aided Ethiopia against Somalia.

The United States, having been badly burned by its misadventure in Vietnam, publicly rejected the idea of armed involvement for U.S. troops in Africa.

So the Communist thrust into Africa, spearheaded by Cubans, appeared both appropriate and effective.

For a while.

Cuba's Castro is discovering Africa to be what it has always been, a quagmire for outsiders.

One example, Angola. Three years after Cuban troops arrived to take the left side in what appeared to be a simple left-right power struggle--the Cubans find themselves fighting two rival nationalist movements. Angola's economy is reeling, but the Cubans are in too deeply to back out.

In Ethiopia the Cubans are now faced with a dilemma over Eritrea which it also supports.

There have been ideological disputes. Ethiopia recently asked the top resident Cuban official in that country and his deputy to leave.

All this intervention is not without cost in Cuban lives and that is creating dissension in the ranks and some problems for Castro back home.

Cubans in Africa are called "volunteers"; don't you believe it.

A new prison has been built in eastern Havana Province exclusively for military deserters.

There is no public acknowledgment in Cuba of the number of Cuban dead in Africa; bodies of combat dead are returned to their families only a few at a time--though Cuba is known to have suffered thousands of casualties in Africa.

The government-controlled Cuban media show no film, publish no stories, about Cuban military involvement in Africa.

Castro is allowing his troops to be used as mercenaries for Russia. He has no choice. He can't survive without Soviet support.

But if Castro is suddenly seeming to sound less belligerent toward us; if he is generously allowing Cubans to leave Cuba for the United States...

If Castro, in emotional interviews with United States congressmen and reporters, sounds more amiable...

It is, as I say, because he cannot survive without outside support.

And doubtless would prefer ours.

letter to editor

To The Daily News:

How come the highway department hasn't done anything to clear the highways and bridges?

We drove home last night and came through Roby. From downtown Roby to the county line, the whole highway had been cleared off. Scurry County was the slickest of the whole drive. There wasn't any sand on bridges and barely ruts on one side of the road to drive in, much less both sides.

Also, how come the precincts don't do anything about clearing the streets in Snyder? Wouldn't this eliminate a lot of the traffic accidents if the streets were cleared?

WASHINGTON (NEA) - There's no better illustration of the hard times currently faced by the country's nuclear power industry than its 11th hour escape from the disgrace of not making a single domestic sale throughout 1978.

On December 20, only 11 days before the end of the year, the Commonwealth Edison Co. of Chicago announced that it had agreed to purchase from the Westinghouse Electric Corp. a pair of 1,150 megawatt nuclear generating units.

Although nuclear power is not without major liabilities - notably long-term safety risks and numerous unresolved problems at the "back end" of the fuel cycle - it is far superior to other fuels in one crucial aspect: Its strikingly low cost.

No two companies have more effectively demonstrated these economics than Westinghouse, a Pittsburgh-based firm that is the nation's largest producer of nuclear generating units, and Commonwealth Edison, which used nuclear power more than any other utility in the country.

Commonwealth Edison now relies on nuclear power to provide almost 42 percent of its generating capacity. The two new units, to be constructed about 130 miles west of Chicago near the Mississippi River town of Savanna, Ill., will increase that figure to about 65 percent.

The utility company's nuclear powered plants supply electricity at 1.33 cents per kilowatt-hour (kwh), compared with 2.41 cents per kwh for coal-fired generating stations.

A report recently issued by the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee, based on data provided to state regulatory commissions by power companies throughout the nation, indicates that similar economies are being achieved in other states.

In North Carolina, the Duke Power Co. is generating electricity from its nuclear plants at a cost of less than 31 cents per million British thermal units (Btu), compared with more than $1.37 per million Btu for coal-fired plants and almost $2.76 per million Btu for oil-fired generating stations.

In South Carolina, the Carolina Power & Light Co. reports costs of less than 39 cents per million Btu for nuclear power, $1.31 per million Btu when coal is used and more than $2.83 per million Btu when oil is the fuel.

The major corporations that manufacture nuclear generating equipment have too long subordinated economy as a selling point, preferring to rely instead on a "you need us more than we need you" approach.

That naughty sales pitch usually comes in the form of a threat that "you're gonna freeze in the dark" by 1985, 2000 or some other year in the not too distant future if the public refuses to embrace nuclear power as its salvation.

Westinghouse has produced its share of such dire predictions, but it also is attempting to take a more reasoned approach in promoting the cost benefits of nuclear power.

"We can't permit ourselves to overcommit to any one fuel in any one section of the country," says one company executive, calling for a "balanced mix" of fuel sources. Another official suggests that "we should be looking at all the alternatives."

The price of uranium, the principal fuel for nuclear power station, has increased very substantially in recent years. But the prices of other fuels have soared higher and faster.

Petroleum costs have skyrocketed ever since the OPEC cartel began to flex its muscles five years ago. Congressional action decontrolling the price of natural gas will produce similar increases for that fuel in the coming years.

Coal remains relatively cheap, but it's no longer a bargain fuel because of the federally-mandated installation of flue gas desulfurization systems of "scrubbers" to prevent high-sulfur coal from contaminating the atmosphere when burned.

The nuclear power industry probably would make more friends - and more sales - if it abandoned its heavy-handed scare tactics and talked sensibly about the bargain it can offer to everyone who pays an electric bill.

my turn

by john long

The new year is off to a bad start, I think.

While jogging last week I contracted a minor case of the sniffles. The sniffles got worse and I was left with a raging head cold this past weekend.

No fewer than forty traffic accidents have occurred in the city and county since the first flake of snow fell. One of the wrecks was mine. Two others also went to newspaper employees.

The backshop of this newspaper has been inundated with water from a burst pipe. It is not just a small trickle, mind you, but a raging torrent. I fear it will spread to the front offices.

It has not gotten above 59 degrees in the upstairs darkroom in several days. That is clear off the charts for developing film. I am reduced to having to guess how long to leave my film in the developer. Sometimes my guess works and sometimes it doesn't.

I suppose that what I am suffering from is the post-holiday blues. I understand there is really supposed to be something to it. Still, I don't think all of my problems are solely in my mind, either.

Things have simply got to perk up.

This recent cold snap reminds me of a quip once made by Mark Twain. He claimed he and his family would have frozen to death if their thermometer had been only an inch longer.

The main purpose of cars, and of all motor vehicles, is to cause traffic accidents. Transportation, I become increasingly convinced, is only a secondary aspect of car ownership.

Preventing Runaways...

Parental Concern Helps

By Ellie Grossman

NEW YORK (NEA) - She runs away from home because of incest or an F in geometry.

Or because it's exciting just to pack up and get on a bus for New York. After all, in no time at all you can set yourself up here with an apartment and a swell job. In no time and no trouble.

Except once she — or he — gets here, all there is is trouble. More so for her because he can often find a menial job; she usually ends up selling her body on the street to get by.

Of course, the parents left behind can try to find them. But, if they can read some warning signs ahead of time, authorities say, they may not have to.

"For one thing, watch for a constant withdrawn attitude on the part of the child," says Police Officer John Faugno of New York Port Authority Bus Terminal's Youth Services Unit, which picks up between eight and 10 runaways a day.

"That kid is harboring some kind of problem — drugs, pregnancy, feeling rejected or mocked in school.

"Then, too, if that child works and isn't spending that money or saving it under parental supervision, you should be worried. A lot of kids stash money to run away with."

Often, they'll take loose cash lying around the house, adds Police Officer Tom Dawiczkowski of the Runaway Unit of New York's Police Department.

"And you can also look for a sudden change of friends," Dawiczkowski continues. "The juvenile will start running with a different crowd and stop confiding in the parents. Also, there may be a sudden drop in marks at report card time or feelings of disappointment or depression during holidays."

Make special efforts then to talk with that youngster; seek some sort of family counseling, if necessary.

Still, suppose he or she does run away. First of all, notify your local police. They'll notify authorities here if you know the child is headed this way.

Or you can do so yourself. The New York Police Department's Runaway Unit can be reached at (212) 982-1011 or (212) 982-1012 from 7:30 a.m. to midnight, Monday through Friday; and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on Saturday. The office is closed on Sunday.

(But, Dawiczkowski urges, "We want the parents to have solid facts the child is here or headed this way. We can make out a million reports and the kid never comes here.")

Since most runaways arrive by bus, you can also call New York Port Authority Bus Terminal's Youth Services Unit at (212) 563-4026 from 7 a.m. to 11 p.m., Monday through Friday. Saturday and Sunday the number — from noon to 8 p.m. — is (212) 564-3042. In addition, the Terminal's police desk can be reached 24 hours a day, all week, at (212) 563-6619.

If you know which bus the child is on, one of the Unit's plainclothes officers will meet it.

What you provide both offices over the phone is a detailed profile of the runaway: physical and emotional characteristics; what he or she was last seen wearing; names and numbers of friends or contacts here — whenever you have them.

"It's important to keep us up to date," says Dawiczkowski. "A lot of times parents call again a couple of days later with a phone number, say, in Queens. We'll ride over and apprehend the juvenile."

What you mail is the most recent, candid photo of the child, to the Runaway Unit, New York City Police Department, 341½ East 12th Street, New York, N.Y. "Make sure it's something the child will look like," Dawiczkowski says. "We'll make up flyers with the photo and distribute them to precincts throughout the city. We have a good relationship with the officers on the street and they'll call us if they run across the child."

And you mail the photo to the Youth Services Unit, Port Authority Bus Terminal, 41st Street and 8th Avenue, New York, N.Y.

Finally, for the runaway who's had enough and wants to go home, authorities urge one "don't" and one "do". Don't go to strangers or even a runaway volunteer shelter. Go to the nearest police station or uniformed police officer and say, "I want to go home." They'll see that you do.

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

We don't quite understand Victor Mollo's bidding of today's hand. In any event, Victor found himself in an optimistic seven-club contract.

Not really a bad one since he could take the spade finesse and discard dummy's low heart on the spade ace. There was one real fly in the ointment. West had doubled Victor's four-spade bid.

Victor was certain that the spade finesse was not going to work so he had to look around for another way to make his contract. A squeeze suggested itself and before we go any further see if you can find the squeeze that Victor worked out.

It started what is known as a dummy reversal. He won the heart, cashed ace of diamonds, ruffed a diamond, entered dummy with a trump, ruffed a second diamond, entered dummy with a second trump, ruffed dummy's last diamond to leave dummy with two more trumps than he had. Then he ran trumps and the second high heart to come down to a two-card ending. Dummy held the deuce of spades and trey of hearts; Victor, the ace-queen of spades, and poor West, who had started with four hearts, had been forced to unguard his king of spades. So Victor dropped it and had his grand slam.

Sorority Slates Dance

Snyder Beta Sigma Phi members will spend the month of January preparing for their annual Valentines Dance and going on their first annual group shopping spree.

The Valentine's Dance will be held from 9 p.m. until 1 a.m. on Saturday, Feb. 3, at the National Guard Armory. Providing music for the dance will be the Tiny Lynn Band of Lubbock. A native of Portales, N.M., Tiny Lynn has been a professional musician since he graduated from high school. His band has worked dances from Brownwood to Monte Vista, Colo., and Lynn attributes his band's success to two factors. The first is that he approaches his work in a businesslike way and the second is having the versatility to tailor the music to the crowd. The band does music ranging from "Cotton-Eyed Joe" to "Somewhere My Love."

Highlighting the dance will be the crowning of the 1979 Valentine Queen. The queen is selected by chapter members each January in a secret ballot vote and announced at the dance by the previous year's queen. She is then presented at the Sweetheart Ball in San Angelo with chapter representatives from the entire West Texas area. Her picture is also sent to the international Beta Sigma Phi Valentine Queen contest in Kansas City, Mo. In charge of this year's coronation is Carolyn Greene, the 1978 Valentine Queen. Other previous queens in the chapter are Wanda Early, Carolyn Limmer, Mona Bryan, Mickey Baird, Barbara Bills and Laura Greene.

Tickets to the dance are priced at $12.50 per couple and may be obtained now from any Beta Sigma Phi member or by calling 573-5970.

The shopping spree will be held Saturday, Jan. 13. Members will meet at the Martha Ann Woman's Club at 8:15 a.m.

ARTIST BRUNA VERDONE does her painting on stones instead of canvas. The Rome housewife sells her works for up to $5 at a street-corner stand.

New Program

WASHINGTON (AP)-The Program in Community College Education, University of Texas, Austin, and the American Association of Community and Junior Colleges are conducting a new program focusing on the needs of culturally different students entering post-secondary.

The program is supported by a grant of $518,682 from the National Institute of Education.

The study, it was announced, will define problems and related developmental education, and will recommend ways to resolve them. The ultimate objective is to improve students learning, personal development and language and literacy skills.

Feitelson Show

NEW YORK (AP)-Thirteen paintings by Lorser Feitelson will be on display at the Whitney Museum of American Art through Feb. 1, 1979.

Feitelson 1898-1978 held his first one-person show in 1924.

Patterson Sims, who organized the exhibit, says it "demonstrates the artist's development and the consistency of involvement with pure line and color; it offers a long overdue opportunity for the New York public to view the range of his achievements."

Bank's First

NEW YORK (AP)-Sandra S. Jaffee, 35, who joined Citibank in 1974, has been named a senior vice president, the first woman in the bank's history to reach this level of management.

Bulgaria Hoping To Lure More U.S. Tourists

By ROBERT H. REID

SOFIA, Bulgaria (AP)— Bulgaria has no illusions about replacing London, Paris or Rome on American tourists' must-see lists.

But it does hope to lure more Americans to one of Europe's few places where the dollar is not a beggar's coin.

"We would like to see more Americans here," said Vladimer Sabev, deputy director of the state travel monopoly, Balkantourist.

"Our advertising in the United States is attempting to show that Bulgaria, despite its small size, has many historial and cultural places which would be of interest."

Although Bulgaria is one of eastern Europe's last known countries for North Americans, its sandy beaches and relatively low prices have made it a popular destination for western Europeans, particularly Germans.

Sabev said 15,000 Americans had visited Bulgaria last year, compared with 156,000 West Germans, 53,000 French and 45,000 Austrians.

Since the late 1960s, when Bulgaris decided to expand its travel business, tourism has developed into one of the top four national industries and is a major source of hard currency.

Some 40,000 of Bulgaria's 8.8 million people work during the peak summer months in some phase of the travel business, Sabev said.

Numbers of foreigners visiting Bulgaris have climbed from 200,602 in 1960 to over 4.5 million in 1977, according to Balkantourist. Sabev said the number was expected to increase between 8 and 10 percent this year.

To help meet the demand, Bulgaris has built 364 hotels for foreigners, with over 76,000 beds, compared with only 1,000 beds nationwide in 1956.

In hopes of attracting more Western visitors, Bulgaris has abolished the requirement that foreigners exchange a certain amount of money for each day in the country.

Such mandatory exchange rules are common throughout much of communist Europe and force travelers to spend more than they perhaps would otherwise. Money exchanged under the compulsory rules cannot be changed back into Western cash and taken out of the country.

In addition, foreigners who book tours in advance are issued visas at the border, where they receive a special card entitling them to a 50 percent premium over the official currency.

For American tourists, this means their dollar brings about 1.20 Bulgarian leva instead of the 0.88 leva at the regular, official rate.

Sabev said one of the principal reasons for the small number of American visitors was that there is no direct air service between Sofia and the United States.

Another is that there are only about 40,000 people of Bulgarian descent in the United States, compared with the 6.5 million Polish-Americans, many of whom make regular pilgrimages back to the old country.

Those Americans who do manage to come here usually arrive on three- or four-day bus tours from Italy, Yugoslavia or Greece, Sabev said.

Major tourist spots on their itineraries include the capital of Sofia, the Rila Monastery, the old cultural centers of Plovdiv and Melnik with their distinctive Bulgarian architecture, the Valley of the Roses, the mountains and beach resorts around Varna.

Development of a foreign tourist industry in this once backward peasant society has not been without its difficulties, Sabev admits.

Staffs had to be trained not only in waiting at tables, cleaning rooms and running a reception desk, but in major Western languages such as German, French and English.

Bulgarian is a cousin of Russian, and a generation ago only the few intellectuals and businessmen could handle foreign languages well.

Last Rites For Embalming Rule

AUSTIN, Texas (AP)-A state rule that bodies must be be refrigerated or embalmed within 24 hours of death is marked for the regulatory graveyard.

Undertakers, who have relied on the 1951 rule for a certain amount of their embalming business, are expected to oppose repeal of the State Health Department rule.

Repeal will take effect with the March meeting of the State Board of Health unless the board decides to continue the embalming requirement.

New Building To Test Storage Of Solar Energy

By EARL ARONSON

MILLBROOK, N.Y. (AP)—They're storing the sun for cold, cloudy days in a big building here sheltered by hills and woodlands and built into the earth.

The structure, the Plant Science and Administration building at the Cary Arboretum of the New York Botanical Garden, is probably one of the best insulated in the country. It is the largest privately-financed building in the northeast United States to rely on solar energy for its heat.

The building, nestled in a beautiful 2,000-acre tract in Dutchess County, is about 98 percent complete, according to George Bookman, Botanical Garden vice president. Normally, during winter months, with ice or snow on the ground, the thermostat is set at 68 degrees daytime and 55 at night. Window shutters are closed when there is no sun and some or all of the 28 roof-controlled sky light hatches covered to conserve energy.

Basically, the intent of the project is to conserve heat and energy. The sources are the sun, a heat pump and a gas generator for use in emergencies in the 27,400 square feet of space.

The structure is two thirds below ground level. Windows on the north side are narrow; wide on the south side. There is a wind-breaking belt of hemlocks along a branch of the nearby Wappingers Creek and a bank of protecting earth.

"We can store heat for a week or 10 days," Bookman explained.

Dr. Willard W. Payne, arboretum director, said the building, opened in April 1978 even though it was unfinished, "has performed remarkably well. It has an enormous thermal mass and is resistant to change. It absorbs the heat and retains it, aided by masonry a foot thick below ground level."

The attractive structure cost nearly $3 million. Actually, the solar system is a demonstration project costing about $260,000 which Payne said should pay for itself in fuel costs in 12 years. After that it will be 85 percent cost-free, he said, adding that in the old facilities and greenhouses the cost of electricity alone was $500 monthly.

In summer, the plant's deep well water is used to cool air that is circulated through the structure.

Federal and state grants provided 80 percent of the cost of the solar system aspects. This $269,000, Payne noted, would just about pay for a furnace in a comparable-sized building elsewhere. The cost is based on 1976 dollars and would be more under the present inflated dollar.

The most striking visible feature of the building is an array of seven rows of flat, black, glass-covered boxes in a saw-tooth pattern on the roof. These are the solar collectors that absorb the sun's energy and convey its heat to the interior of the building. Each south-facing row of collectors is 110 feet long, about 8 feet tall, inclined 60 degrees from the horizontal to absorb maximum energy from the winter sun.

Bookman explained the process:

"Energy from the sun provides virtually all the heat in the building by means of the rooftop solar collectors. The solar energy is fed either directly into the building's heating system or indirectly by means of a water-to-water pump. Water from deep wells is used both as the backup source of heat for the heat pump and to cool the interior in the summer.

"Throughout, a variety of special systems work both to conserve heat and natural resources and to minimize energy consumption. The building truly reflects its purpose as the laboratory facility, library and administrative headquarters of an organization dedicated to nurturing the relationship between plants and man.

"The sun's energy warms a mixture of water and antifreeze that circulates inside the collectors. This heat is then transferred by means of a heat exchanger to plain water that is stored in two heavily insulated underground concrete tanks with a total capacity of 15,000 gallons. The hot water is released from these tanks into a series of heating coils, fans flow air over the coils, and it is this warm air that actually is circulated through the ducts."

To conserve energy, interior lighting is soft at the edges of rooms, and there is low level direct task lighting in work areas.

The C-shaped, well-landscaped plant has two wings, one for administrative quarters and the other for laboratories, with a center courtyard. Outside the library, the courtyard's upward steps are actually planting beds bearing native plants.

In the laboratories work is being done on the effect of air pollution on trees, generating gas from burning of vegetable matter and plant nectaries involving insects and sugar.

Citrus Growers Ready To Battle Cold Snap

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — Central Florida citrus growers stunned by the sudden temperature plunge have grove heaters and wind machines in place and crews on alert to battle the current cold snap.

A National Weather Service forecast that proved to be inaccurate left growers surprised when they awoke to mid-20s temperatures Wednesday morning. The weather service had predicted warmer weather, but said a high pressure center expected to be over north Alabama drifted 200 miles further south.

However, although some icy fruit and nipped tender growth was reported, Florida Citrus Mutual said damage was minimal.

Overnight lows were expected to dip into the mid to upper 20s and low 30s in the citrus belt.

John Kennedy, an official of Golden Gem Growers, Umatilla, said Wednesday a little ice was found in some Hamlin oranges when they were cut, "but I don't think it's anything to be concerned about."

"We were caught with our pants down," said Bob Coward, whose family owns a grove south of Lakeland. "But I guess forecasters catch it, too, for making us sit up and not light our heaters. It was the other way around this time."

He was concerned particularly about a large crop of cold-susceptible Temple oranges in the 50-acre grove, as he prepared heaters.

20% Of Nursing Homes To Be Rated Superior

AUSTIN (AP) — A new point system that will grade probably 20 percent of Texas' nursing homes "superior" and let them flaunt that rating in their advertising takes effect Feb. 1.

The State Health Department announced its final rules for the rating system this week.

A bill passed by the Legislature in a 1977 special session that dealt with nursing home abuses revealed by the Lufkin News authorized the rating system.

"Under the system, a facility could achieve a superior grade without the necessity of large expenditures," the health department said.

Homes that get a superior rating must display their certificate and may mention the rating in their advertising.

A nursing home will keep its superior rating for a year unless it is disciplined later for a violation.

Inspections to determine if a home deserves a superior grade will be unannounced. A home's certificate and advertising must include the date it received its superior rating.

The health department said it expected only about 20 percent of all nursing homes in Texas to receive a superior rating in the first year.

"Future years should see that percentage rise as other homes improve," it said.

Both bonus points and demerit points will be used, and a home must achieve a net score of 95. For instance, a home receiving 115 bonus points and 20 demerits would get a superior rating.

A home would automatically fail to win a superior ranking if it exceeded the maximum allowable demerits in various categories, such as 1 minus points for dietary service. Also, a home could not have more than 43 negative points and still be rated superior.

Bonus points toward a superior rating would include 25 for having a full-time dietitian; 15 points for offering residents menu choices; 15 points for having a registered nurse as director of nursing seven days a week and 20 points for having a working system to investigate and resolve complaints.

Demerit points include 25 for having unqualified persons administer medicines; 15 for failure to maintain trust fund records properly; 15 for menus and meals that do not meet nutritional needs and 15 for dirty patient rooms, toilets, baths and public areas.

Karen Blaker Ph.D.

$10 billion — for what?

By Karen Blaker, Ph.D.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — For two weeks before Christmas, my wife and I tried to think of a present for our 15-year-old son. He has everything a boy his age could possibly want.

We finally went out and spent $100 on gifts for him. On Christmas morning, he wasn't thrilled — grateful but not thrilled. Don't you think there comes a time when all this materialism has to stop?

DEAR READER — Yes. And thousands of people all over the United States are coming to the same conclusion. We cannot afford to spend $10 billion as we did last year this Christmas on tinsel and ribbon when we are faced with problems of poverty, hunger and illiteracy right here in our own country.

If you want to celebrate a different kind of Christmas next year, order the "Alternative Celebrations Catalogue" for $5 from the Alternatives Bookstore, 1924 E. Third St., Bloomington, Ind. 47401. The book offers ideas for new family traditions. You can then submit descriptions of your own favorite holiday practices for next year's book.

DEAR DR. BLAKER — Several families in our neighborhood rebelled this year against the commercialism of Christmas by making their own gifts. The plan was nice and idealistic, but it resulted in a great deal of grief.

In one family, the 18-year-old son had no interest in the Christmas projects. When it became clear he was not going to make any presents, he became the object of resentment.

In another household, the making of Christmas presents got too competitive. There was constant anxiety about who was making the best gifts.

There was a different kind of tragedy in another household. Even though the parents thought they had prepared their family for the change, the children were bitterly disappointed on Christmas morning.

They were ready for the hand-made presents from family members, but still expected that Santa would bring them the usual toys and games.

We are now convinced that a store-bought Christmas might not be so bad.

DEAR READER — Your warning will no doubt help other families who are now feeling dissatisfied with this year's Christmas and beginning to plan for 1979.

We tend to equate traditionalism with simplicity, harmony and satisfaction. But it is only fair to be forewarned that an "old-fashioned" Christmas is not immune from all the problems associated with the most emotion-packed holiday on the calendar.

Still, the movement toward a more traditional Christmas seems positive. At least, conflict is better than avoidance and competition is preferable to apathy. Family involvement is the key to a memorable Christmas.

Plan ahead to assure the fewest problems in the transition from a modern Christmas to a traditional one. All family members will then have time to familiarize themselves with the idea and plan their contributions.

After all, it is a lot riskier and more frightening to give the products of one's own labor and imagination than merely to pick up a few items in the store.

Is television monopolizing your children's time? Order a copy of Dr. Blaker's hotline, "Taming the TV Beast." Send 50 cents plus a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to request the hotline by name.

Write to Dr. Blaker in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 475, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. Volume of mail prohibits personal replies, but questions of general interest will be discussed in future columns.

Teens Shun Minis

NEW YORK (AP)-Fashion preferences among teen-age girls have changed drastically in the past five years, a recent Seventeen magazine survey shows.

In 1974, 44 percent of the teen girls polled opted for mini-skirts. Now more than two-thirds of those surveyed wear their skirts just below the knee; 14 percent like the midi, others like knee-length, and the mini has just about disappeared from the scene.

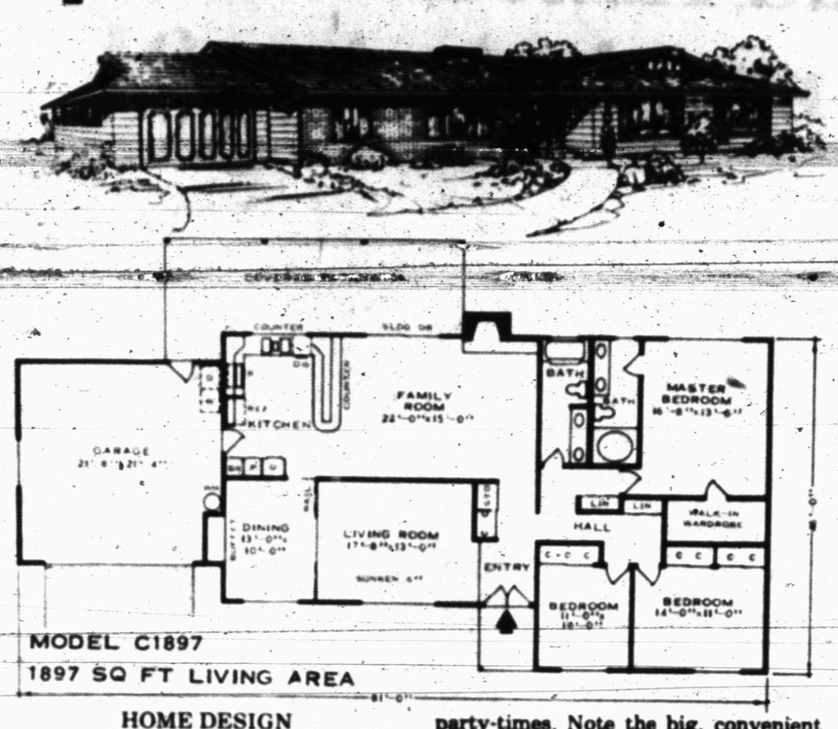
Spacious Rooms



MODEL C1897
1897 SQ FT LIVING AREA

HOME DESIGN
By Larry Farnsworth

This is a home designed to make any family happy and it might as well be yours. Just see what a wealth of good living features have been included in the 1,897 square feet of good living space.

Its exterior features pleasantly long lines which blend perfectly into almost any setting. And its double front doors lead into an interior which is certain to delight your family.

The pleasant formal entry contains a practical coat closet and a storage closet as well. The sunken living room offers a better than 17 foot long expanse of living space. And, see how this area gains an extra air of spaciousness with the interesting railing separation that divides it from the formal dining room, yet avoids total separation of the two. Note, also, that convenient built-in buffet in the dining room.

At the back of this portion of the house, a fabulously big family room and kitchen present a delightful area geared equally well to family fun or party-times. Note the big, convenient counter dining bar, separating these two areas without diminishing the total air of spaciousness. And, see what a wealth of cabinets and counters — including a patio serving counter, are provided by this efficient kitchen. Doors here to the big attached garage put the laundry facilities located there within easy reach. And the family room's big fireplace and easy access to the adjoining patio add to the possibilities for recreation and family fun.

This delightful home contains two, double-vanity baths — one, of course, serving the lovely master bedroom. And, note that this one offers an extra bonus in that elegant, circular tub. The master bedroom provides its owners with a big, walk-in wardrobe, too. And the two front bedrooms both have good wall closets — one a double model.

Good living for your family is readily obtainable in this plan.

Russia Concerned Over Many Trouble Spots On Its Border

By HARRY DUNPHY
Associated Press Writer

MOSCOW (AP) - Serious trouble spots are developing along vast areas of the Soviet Union's non-European borders - more problems than the Soviets have had to deal with at one time since World War II, Western diplomatic analysts say. Clearly, it has the Kremlin worried.

Turkey, Iran, Pakistan and Afghanistan all have known periods of turmoil before, but never have all been so unstable simultaneously.

Complicating the picture is China, which has a troubled 4,350-mile border With the Soviet Union and has just opened diplomatic relations with the United States.

It adds up to this: With the exception of Mongolia, Kremlin strategists are now faced with uncertainty in every country that the U.S.S.R. borders from the Middle East to the Pacific.

In addition to developments in China, the Kremlin must consider that

-Iran, which separates the Soviet Union from the Persian Gulf and has ethnic links to Azerbaijanis and Turkmenis living in the U.S.S.R., has been wracked by rioting aimed at deposing Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi. Iran has been pro-West, but also supplies the Soviets with natural gas. And the foreign policy of any successor would be hard to predict.

-In Turkey, a NATO member whose government has taken steps toward normalizing relations with Moscow, martial law has been declared after rioting in the eastern part of the country.

-In Afghanistan, the Soviets have become deeply involved in the survival of a fragile regime. And in Pakistan, whose border with Afghanistan comes within a few miles of the Soviet Union, deposed Premier Zulfikar Ali Bhutto is appealing a death sentence - which, if carried out, could split his nation.

The Peking regime capped a year of vigorous diplomatic activity by normalizing relations with the United States - a move that prompted uneasiness in the Kremlin about the objectives behind it.

Diplomatic sources are uncertain what to expect now. They say it is possible to argue that the Russians' concern over developments in Asia and China will make them more accommodating toward the West - or that they will do anything they can to prove that expectation wrong.

"I don't think there's been a time since the war when the Soviets have had to cope with so many problems at the same time," said one senior Western envoy. "They are masters at the international chess board but there are too many imponderables at present to move with confidence in one game, let alone in several."

One factor the Kremlin must consider is whether its own Moslem population could be swept up in the Islamic revival in the Arab world, Iran and Pakistan. One in seven Soviet citizens is a Moslem.

The stakes are greatest in oil-rich Iran.

The Soviet press Has accused the Carter administration of spreading "new provocative fabrications" about Soviet threats to justify its own use of "gunboat diplomacy." Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, has charged repeatedly in recent days that the United States is interfering in Iran's affairs, citing reports that U.S. aircraft carriers are heading for the Gulf.

The White House said Wednesday that the carrier Constellation and accompanying ships are still in the South China Sea with no indication they will be moved nearer Iran.

The Soviet attacks on U.S. policy in Iran, beamed toward that country in stepped-up Persian-language broadcasts, have been coupled, diplomats say, with an effort to hedge bets on the shah so the Russians can take advantage of the situation if he doesn't survive.

When the recent troubles began, the Soviet press reflected the official view that the shah was preferable to any alternative and printed Western news service dispatches from Tehran. Now Pravda has a correspondent in Tehran reporting on the "popular uprising."

By contrast, there has been little comment on the situation in Turkey, which is strategically placed between the Soviet Union and the Middle East.

Diplomatic sources say the Soviets are used to periodic unrest in Turkey. The official news agency Tass blamed the troubles there on "provocations of the right extremists."

The Soviets prefer Premier Bulent Ecevit's leftist coalition to a conservative or military government because he has taken steps to normalize relations with Moscow, diplomats say.

The U.S.S.R. is more deeply committed to seeing the fragile regime of Premier Nur Mohammed Taraki hold on in Afghanistan. To insure this, Western diplomats say, the Soviets have increased the number of advisers by four times to 5,000 since Taraki seized power last April.

Last month Taraki came to Moscow to sign a treaty of friendship and cooperation with the Soviet Union that is sure to increase concern in the West, as well as in Peking, that Afghanistan has become a new base for Soviet adventurism, particularly in Iran and Pakistan.

Carter Trip Planners Have Lots Of Problems

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) - The men and women who make advance arrangements for President Carter's travels often feel frustrated, if not harassed.

No exception were those who helped plan the journey that finds Carter heading today for Guadeloupe and a Caribbean summit with the leaders of France, Britain and West Germany.

Because Guadeloupe is a French island, a Carter "advance man" who became irritated with his hosts approached a staff member of the National Security Council and asked, "Is there any way we can declare war on France?"

One cause of the planner's ire was a French suggestion, presumably serious, that a tent village be erected on the beach to house the sizeable press contingent that dogs Carter's footsteps.

Because this is the height of the Caribbean tourist season, and lodgings truly are scarce, the White House advance team considered searching for an idle cruise ship to serve as a floating hotel.

Eventually, on-shore quarters were found for the American reporters and photographers at an American-owned hostelry, the Holiday Inn.

The French originally envisioned a quiet, intimate summit with reporters staying behind in Paris, London, Bonn and Washington, where sketchy information would be parcelled out by spokesmen.

In the end, all four leaders agreed to take along their own press continents.

Guadeloupe means an extended holiday for Carter's daughter Amy. Just back from a post-Christmas skiing vacation at Crested Butte, Colo., she's being taken out of school for a few days so she can enjoy the Caribbean sun with her parents.

For Vice President Walter F. Mondale, the period between Christmas and New Year's Day afforded an opportunity to behave like any other area resident entertaining out-of-town company.

When friends dropped in from Duluth, Minn., Mondale took advantage of a slack work period - and the absence of the vacationing president - to show them the sights.

Mondale took his friends to see such tourists attractions as the Lincoln Memorial and the Smithsonian's Air and Space Museum. They also drove to Arlington Cemetery and the grave of President John F. Kennedy.

The vice president wasn't able to travel about with the anonymity of Joe Blow, of course. He couldn't hide his limousine and Secret Service bodyguards.

Feds Paying More For Schools' Meat

WASHINGTON (AP)— Prices paid by the government for ground beef for donation to school cafeterias are soaring just like supermarket hamburger prices.

The Agriculture Department, which buys ground beef and other food for donation to schools, currently is paying a wholesale price of almost $1.20 a pound for the meat, an increase of about 67 percent over what it cost a year ago.

Prices paid to processors - who bid regularly for the business - averaged about 72 cents a pound for ground beef that was donated in the 1977-78 school year.

More than 93.9 million pounds of frozen ground beef were bought then for a total of about $67.8 million.

Officials said Tuesday that through Dec. 28 about 59.1 million pounds were bought since the 1978-79 purchase program was announced last July 27. The cost was $65.3 million or an average of about $1.10 a pound.

Flavored Drinks

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (AP)-U.S. sales of chocolate-flavored powders and syrups - which are mixed with milk or water - hit the $320 million mark in 1977, an increase of 16 percent over 1976. Figures for 1978 are expected to show another 20 percent jump, according to RJR foods here.

Eddie's Pharmacy Hit By Burglars

A drive-in window at Eddie's Pharmacy provided burglars with an avenue for a take-out service, police reported.

Officers said approximately $400 worth of drugs were stolen and about $60 in cash taken from the pharmacy early this morning. Entry was gained by breaking out the drive-in window on the north side of the College Ave establishment.

The break-in was discovered shortly after 2 a.m. today by a police officer on patrol.

In other goings-on, two criminal mischief complaints and three minor traffic accidents were investigated.

Mrs. Elmo Crowder told officers several windows were knocked out at Erwin Furniture. That was reported Wednesday afternoon. No dollar estimate was immediately available, however.

Frank Phillips estimated that he will be out $100 in replacing a window on his car that was broken out. That report was received at 6:15 a.m. today. The car was parked at 2711 Ave. O at the time of the vandalism, reports indicate.

The first traffic accident was reported at 6:20 p.m. in the 200 block of East Highway. It involved a 1973 Mercury driven by Noah Lynn Killian and a 1976 Chevrolet driven by Gary Lee Free.

The next collision was a hit and run reported at 7:40 p.m. at the intersection of 11th St. and Ave. Q. There, a chain link fence was the object some vehicle struck before leaving the scene.

The final mishap was in the 400 block of College Ave. at 10:10 p.m. Involved in it were a 1969 Chevrolet driven by Gregg Merritt and a 1976 Buick driven by Alan Peeples of Odessa.

Countries Study The Monsoons

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States, China, the Soviet Union and other nations have begun a unique study to learn more about monsoons in Southeast Asia.

The first phase of a year-long project began Dec. 1 in Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, and will take three months. A second phase will begin in May in New Delhi, India. The National Science Foundation says the study's main objective is "to hasten the day when scientists will be able to accurately forecast monsoons.

Highways Icy Around Dallas

AUSTIN (AP) - The Texas Department of Highways and Public Transportation said at 10 a.m. today that highways are icing up again in and to the east and northeast of the Dallas area.

The department issued this road condition report:

"Highways in the Dallas area eastward and northeastward were beginning to ice up again Thursday morning even as the effects of an earlier ice storm lingered.

"Freezing drizzle was falling in the Dallas district, in the Paris area, and Interstate 20 was icing up in Van Zandt County."

Conrad Hilton Dies Of Pneumonia At Age 91

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) - Conrad Hilton, 91, a small-town New Mexico boy who became a millionaire innkeeper and counted presidents and popes among his friends, is dead of pneumonia.

The hotel magnate died at 10 p.m. Wednesday, three days after entering St. John's Hospital, said Jacques Cosse, spokesman for the Hilton Hotels Division of Hilton Hotels Corp.

"He was working right up until just before Christmas," Cosse said. "He was ill and went into the hospital just before the holidays and then went back into the hospital three days ago."

Hilton was board chairman of Hilton Hotels Corp. and Hilton International, owned by Trans World Airlines Inc. after a 1967 merger. The domestic and international hotels were valued at well above half a billion dollars.

Until he acquired the Statler Hotels in 1954, Hilton was known in the trade as "the man who bought the Waldorf."

"The word Hilton means hotel. People say, 'Take me to the Hilton,' not the Hilton Hotel," said Cosse. "That's how he will be remembered - for a new word, Hilton."

He is survived by his third wife, Mary Frances, whom he married in 1976 after two divorces; two sons, Barron Hilton, 50, president of Hilton Hotels Corp., and Michael Eric Hilton, a corporation vice president in Houston; and a daughter, Francesca, of Los Angeles.

A third son, Conrad Nicholson Hilton Jr. - known as "Nick" and the first husband of actress Elizabeth Taylor - died of a heart attack in 1969.

Besides a Palm Springs home, Hilton had a 61-room mansion at Bel-Air, near Santa Monica, which was his primary residence and where he had 19 servants.

Work was said to be the great love of his life, his devotion to it being partly responsible for the breakup of his first two marriages, to actress Zsa Zsa Gabor and to Mary Barron.

Hilton - 6-foot-2, 195 pounds, lean, mustachioed and permanently suntanned - was known to employees as a gentle executive.

Boyish, candid and trusting, he had a hard streak of practicality and the ability to turn a shrewd deal. "Connie," as friends called him, credited his success mainly to opportunities he saw lying in front of people who were looking elsewhere.

CONRAD HILTON

In 1949, he acquired operating control of the fashionable Waldorf-Astoria in New York for $3 million.

He hired hotel managers who knew the business and did not concern himself with operating details. But he insisted on increased financial returns, the quest for which he called "digging for gold."

He was born in San Antonio, N.M., on Dec. 25, 1887, when New Mexico was still a territory.

The son of a successful merchant, Hilton invested his life savings of $5,000 in 1919 to buy his first hotel, the Mobley, in Cisco, Texas. He acquired a small Texas chain before the Depression wiped him out.

But he came back through a series of bold transactions to acquire a collection of prestigious hotels. First was the Town House in Los Angeles, followed in 1945 by Chicago's 3,000-room Stevens.

His biggest satisfaction came when the Waldorf-Astoria joined the Hilton chain in 1949, making him the No. 1 American hotelman.

The corporation's 185 domestic hotels include the Palmer House and Conrad Hilton, formerly the Stevens in Chicago; the Denver Hilton; the Shamrock Hilton in Houston, Tex.; the Flamingo Hilton and Las Vegas Hilton in Las Vegas; Beverly Hilton, Beverly Hills; and the Waldorf-Astoria and New York Hilton in New York City.

"In his time, he pulled off the biggest real estate transaction in business by acquiring the Statler Hotels chain in 1954," Cosse said.

The Statler Hotels became the Statler Hiltons in Boston, Buffalo, Cleveland, Dallas, Detroit, Hartford, Los Angeles, St. Louis, Washington and New York.

Abroad, either leased or run on management contract are Hilton in Acapulco, Amsterdam, Athens, Berlin, Cairo, Istanbul, London, Tehran, Tokyo and several other world capitals.

Serious heart disease

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I wish you would comment on angina pectoris as to its symptoms, seriousness and effects on one. I have heard it talked about but never really understood what it is. I've more or less thought of it as a nuisance condition.

DEAR READER — I'm afraid that it is a lot more than a nuisance. If you really have angina pectoris, it means you have serious heart disease.

Classically, angina pectoris is chest pain usually involving the area of the sternum (breast bone) right in the middle of the chest. It's a pressure sensation. It may be described as having a weight on the chest or a constricting feeling. This unpleasant sensation is primarily caused by insufficient blood flow to the heart muscle.

The poor circulation to the heart muscle is usually caused by obstruction of the arteries to the heart by fatty-cholesterol deposits. Many years ago Dr. Paul Dudley White pointed out that when a person first started to have angina pectoris it usually meant that he had an underlying heart attack.

The person who has persistent recurring angina pectoris usually has a pattern to it. Most often the pain will develop during exertion. That's why it's called exertional angina. The pain usually goes away when the person stops exertion.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris, to give you more information on how these conditions are related to each other. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

One of the hallmarks of true angina pectoris is its short duration, usually less than five to 10 minutes. It can also be caused by excitement and sometimes from eating. In general, the more severe the obstruction of the arteries to the heart, the easier it is to precipitate attacks of chest pain.

The treatment and the long term management is much like the treatment of a person after a heart attack — weight reduction, diet and control of blood pressure. In addition, there are medicines that can be taken to provide immediate relief from anginal pain and still others that seem to improve the efficiency of the circulation to the heart muscle.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Recently I have been taking a warm bath before retiring each night as I found that this helps to relieve daily tensions and is sleep inducing. In the morning I take a shower to start the day. I am not trying to be facetious but a friend has told me that this is too much — that it can be harmful. Is taking a bath at night and a shower in the morning harmful?

DEAR READER — It doesn't need to be. As people get older they sometimes develop dry skin. Excessive bathing particularly with effective soaps may tend to dry out the skin even more. This can lead to itching and irritation. If you don't have this problem, there is no reason that you can't bathe as frequently as you choose to.

You can put a drop or two of oil on your bath towel after you've finished your bath or shower and use that for your body. The oil will be gradually spread in a thin amount all over the skin and act as a moisturizer.

Your Birthday

January 5, 1979

There will be some excellent opportunities to assert yourself this coming year in areas important to you. Don't stand back timidly, wagging your tail.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Domestic issues and demands could be a bit heavier on you today than usual. It will take the whole family to pitch in and try to cooperate, not just you. Getting along with others is one of the sections you'll enjoy in your 1979 Astro-Graph Letter. Get yours by mailing 50 cents for each and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) You have no trust in your own ideas today and will feel you have to sound them out on another. Unfortunately, you'll only get negative advice.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) You can weather things nicely today if you buy only what you need when you need it. Trying to keep up with the Joneses is foolish.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Temper your methods with tact and charm today. You have a tendency to be overly aggressive. You'll catch more with honey than with vinegar.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Organize your time well and try to delegate chores whenever possible today. You'll find, as the day goes on, you'll have a few more responsibilities than normal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Try to be especially prudent where finances are concerned today. Your budget is bursting. It won't stretch anymore.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Only a cool head will survive today's conditions. Be on guard! You could become easily irritated if things don't go your way, and fail to accomplish your aims.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) This would be a good day to walk away from problems that appear insurmountable. The solution can't be found when people are diametrically opposed.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra-protective of your resources today, especially if dealing with one whose motives are questionable. Don't yield to pressure selling.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You could find yourself aced out of something you might have shared if you are too stringent in your demands today. Give in whenever you can.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) Don't even ask others to do something for you today. You'll only aggravate yourself more when they turn you down. Try to function by yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Social complications could arise today if you're not careful of your choice of companions. Don't be surprised if you're left holding the bag.

Group Seeks Generic Sub Option

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas consumer activists say brand name drugs cost too much and they will sponsor a bill in the upcoming Legislature to give customers the option of buying a brand name or its generic equivalent.

Several previous attempts to pass generic drug legislation have failed under attack from doctors and pharmaceutical companies, who maintain there are subtle but important differences between some brand name drugs and the generic equivalents.

The Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now asserted Wednesday that Texans often pay two to three times more for brand name drugs than for their generic substitutes. Texas ACORN, stated Wednesday.

The association said its members surveyed drug prices in more than 60 pharmacies in Austin, Dallas, Houston, Denton, Abilene, Fort Worth and Haltom City, near Fort Worth.

The findings included:

One Dallas pharmacy charges $7.06 for 100 capsules of Equamil and only $1.1 for its generic substitute, meprobamate.

A Houston pharmacy charges $19.38 for Polycillin, while its generic equivalent, ampicillin, is priced at $8.70.

A Fort Worth drug store charges $14.25 for 100 capsules of Librium but only $4.55 for 100 capsules for its generic substitute, chlordiazepoxide.

"Texans, particularly sick Texans, clearly are not getting a fair shake," said Tony Hernandez of Austin, a member of ACORN's executive board.

Doctors can prescribe generic substitutes, ACORN said, but it is illegal for pharmacists to substitute a generic drug if a brand name drug has been prescribed.

ACORN said the federal government defines generic equivalents as "those multiple source drug products which contain essentially identical amounts of identical active ingredients as in the official Compendia."

ACORN said when pharmacists were asked how many doctors were prescribing generic equivalents, the highest response was 33 percent. Some pharmacists said as few as 1 percent of the doctors prescribe generic equivalents.

"ACORN members believe that Texas needs a law which would make these medicines more readily available to people by allowing the pharmacists to inform their customers and to substitute the less costly generic drugs for the often more expensive brand name drugs," said Willo Hardin of Austin. "We plan a major effort to see such a bill passed during this legislative session."

ACORN is a statewide association of community organizations that claims more than 6,000 member families. Its state headquarters is located here.

'May Be Running Out Of Chances'...

This Ram Team The Best, Says Vet

LOS ANGELES (AP)-Veteran guard Tom Mack says his Los Angeles Rams are tired of knocking at the Super Bowl door and now they want in.

The 35-year-old Mack, who played on Michigan's last Rose Bowl winning team in 1965, has now played in 185 consecutive games for the Rams and wants a Super Bowl title to cap his career.

To get there, Los Angeles must beat Dallas on Sunday in the Coliseum, but three times in the last four seasons, the Rams have been thwarted at this point.

"I personally believe this is the best team that I've been on," said Mack, in his 13th season with Los Angeles. "Other teams have had as good talent, but this team plays best when it has to. The bigger the challenge, the bigger the response."

He admits that the wild card Dallas team of 1975, "humiliated" the Rams with a 37-7 victory but vowed that would not happen this time.

However, he said Dallas is much better than the Minnesota team the Rams whipped 34-10 last Sunday.

Mack said, "We've been so close so many times that we may be running out of chances. I think we're working with more intensity, probably for that reason. I've played in 11 playoff games and that might be close to a record for someone who has never been in the Super Bowl."

Mack has never missed a game as a Ram and asserted, "It's either mental toughness or monumental stupidity because I played hurt a lot of times. In this game we have a fierce desire to try to break through."

The veteran says the Super Bowl is the final goal he seeks in the game of football.

A mechanical engineer working for the Bechtel Corporation in the off-season, he has a job when he decides to quit football, a decision he has not yet made.

Mack will be working against 25-year-old Dallas defensive tackle Randy White, whom he rates as one of the three best in the league - the others being the Rams' Larry Brooks and Derland Moore of New Orleans.

In many past games, it was Mack against the Cowboys' Bob Lilly, who now is retired.

"Randy has some styles similar to Lilly," the offensive lineman said, "but Randy uses his strength more than Bob did. Bob was the most instinctive player I've ever played against."

As for the Rams, Mack says that new Coach Ray Malavasi has brought in an offense "appreciably different" from that of Chuck Knox, who coached the Rams the past five seasons, during which they won divisional titles each time.

"We have more weapons and we mix things more," Mack said "the aim is to keep the opponent off-balance."

Snyder Hosts Dual Gym Meet Friday

Snyder gymnastics team will stage its first dual meet of the season here Friday, bosting San Angelo Central at 6 p.m. in the Travis Gym. There will be no charge for admission.

"San Angelo has one of the strongest teams in the state," pointed out Tiger Coach Doug Fitzjarrell. "We will be competing against them at regionals to qualify for state later in the year. I really think they will be one of the strongest teams we'll meet this year."

San Angelo has qualified for state competition the last several years, and won the title on occassion.

Fitzjarrell admits he is "not quite sure what to expect" from Snyder at the meet. "We've got some good kids back," he said, pointing out returning athletes Pam Blankenship, Sara Younkin and Rita Black on the girls' team and Bobby Overhulser among others on the boys' unit.

"It's a pretty young team basically. We have those people coming back but in depth we're running a pretty young team. The first meet is always kind of experimental. We use it to see where we are."

Assisting Fitzjarrell will be assistant coach Patty Grimmett.

Tigers Ranked 6th In State Cage Poll

Snyder High School boys varsity basketball team, 18-4, has been ranked sixth in the state by the Texas Association of Basketball Coaches according to a report released yesterday.

Ranked ahead of the Tigers in the Class AAA section were Silsbee, Huntsville, Mineral Wells, South San Antonio West and Bay City.

"I guess that's pretty good, to be number six," mused Coach Jack Stephenson over a phone call yesterday afternoon. I think we are certainly deserving of that honor," added the coach, who takes his Tigers to Abilene Christian on Friday and again to Levelland on Saturday.

"If we can continue to do as well as we have, maybe we can move up some. I'm real excited about what we have going for us," the coach beamed, who can count as his assets an array of acceptable talent. "We have a number of very good players. We're not like some other teams who have one or two really super players. One of our strongest points is that we have nine or 10 guys who can get out there and really do the job."

Snyder can list as its victims such 4-A talent as San Angelo Central, Midland Lee and Abilene Christian, and 3-A teams Levelland, Andrews and others. Andrews is ranked 11th according to the poll, while Odessa Ector - another Stephenson victim - is ranked 13th.

Mineral Wells, third, edged the Tigers by two points in the 24th Annual Canyon Reef Tournament this season.

The coach is naturally optimistic. "We may end up third in the district, but right now we look good, I'll admit it. You know," he understated, "we're not bad, we're not bad at all."

Snyder will travel to Abilene for an 8 p.m. game Friday, and face 17-2 Levelland at 8 Saturday. The Tigers begin district play at Lamesa on Jan. 12 before hosting their first home game in over three weeks.

Local Cagers See Action

As of this morning, plans for playing tonight's scheduled basketball games were "go".

Definitely slated contests included Monahans JV and varsity girls groups at Snyder High gym beginning at 5 p.m., and the boys eighth and ninth Black groups at Sweetwater, beginning at 5 p.m.

Games with Lamesa are also planned as scheduled. Snyder boys eighth and ninth Gold were to bus to Lamesa for a 5 p.m. tipoff, while the Tornado girls 8th and 9th grade teams were to be here at 5 in the junior high gym.

Raiders To Trade Stabler For Jones

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)-Quarterback Bert Jones of the Baltimore Colts will be joining the Oakland Raiders, perhaps in a trade for Ken Stabler, it was reported Wednesday night.

Barry Tompkins of KRON-TV in San Francisco reported that the acquisition of Jones would be announced by the Raiders at a news conference in Oakland.

The National Football League team announced there would be a news conference at 3 p.m. Thursday and that it would be "very important," but no details were given.

Tompkins, sports director for KRON-TV, said Jones was in the Oakland area Wednesday. He added that it was not known whether Stabler, the quarterback who led the Raiders to the Super Bowl title two years ago, would be going to Baltimore in a trade.

The Raiders have another veteran NFL quarterback, Jim Plunkett, on their roster. They picked him up after he was waived by the San Francisco 49ers just before the start of the 1978 season.

Jones missed several games this season because of injury, after passing for 3,104 yards and 24 touchdowns in 1977. Stabler, who at 33 is six years older than Jones, had a disappointing 1978 season, allowing a league-high 30 interceptions and throwing just 16 touchdown passes.

Holtz Denies OU Thoughts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)-Lou Holtz has issued a strong denial that he will even consider replacing the fired Woody Hayes as Ohio State University's football coach.

And an athletic official at the Big Ten Conference school, who asked not to be named, said: "I don't think we can afford him. We could match his salary, but not his fringe benefits."

Holtz, 42, a former assistant coach under Hayes, makes $42,000 annually on a revolving five-year contract at Arkansas, but his fringe push it above $100,000 annually.

Hayes, 65, was making $45,000 a year, second highest in the Big Ten, when he was dismissed by athletic director Hugh Hindman for slugging a Clemson player during a 17-15 Gator Bowl setback.

But the fringe benefits for Hayes or any Ohio State coach are not likely to equal the current ones for Holtz.

Holtz, a native of East Liverpool, Ohio, has posted a 20-3-1 record in two seasons with the Razorbacks and has taken them to the Orange and Fiesta bowls.

"Some people in my family even cried some that I wouldn't even consider the Ohio State job," said Holtz in Honolulu, where he is coaching a Hula Bowl all-star team.

"In all honesty, I do not feel I should consider the job. I've always wanted to coach at Ohio State, but I've made a commitment to Arkansas and I intend to keep that commitment," said the 1968 Buckeyes' defensive backfield coach.

Rough Respect Found Between AFC Twosome

PITTSBURGH (AP)—They've been brothers in bruises, exchanging hard knocks with no hard feelings, and even finding fraternity in fractures.

They are the Houston Oilers and the Pittsburgh Steelers, who take something of a love-hit relationship into Sunday's clash here for the American Football Conference title.

"You enjoy playing a team like Houston. It's football, purely good, hard football," said Steeler Coach Chuck Noll.

"Everything is settled right there on the field, and it makes it a very pleasant thing," Noll added.

Pleasantries aside, there was that 1977 game in Houston in which Terry Bradshaw sustained a cracked wrist, backup quarterback Mike Kruczek had his shoulder separated, and defensive back Tony Dungy wound up quarterbacking the Steelers in defeat.

Oiler quarterback Dan Pastorini, knocked from that 1977 game with a severely sprained ankle, took another pounding when the two teams met again this season in Houston.

Pastorini sustained three cracked ribs in that game. Oiler rookie running back Earl Campbell cracked one rib.

Houston also lost rookie wide receiver Mike Renfro for the season in that game with a knee injury.

Houston Coach "Bum" Phillips called the contest "the most physical I've seen in 31 years of coaching."

Jerry Meins, the Oiler trainer, called it "World War III."

Yet just as in past encounters, there were no punches, no angry words, and no cheapshots.

They've been belting one another twice a year since they entered the AFC Central together in 1970. Yet they retain mutual respect.

"I think that's a tribute to the Pittsburgh organization and their coaching staff, as well as their players," Phillips said this week.

"That's the way football ought to be played, hard and clean and the best team wins."

The two teams split this season, the Oilers winning here and Pittsburgh winning in Houston. Overall, Pittsburgh has a 13-5 edge in the series.

"There's no animosity, but it's always very, very physical when we play Houston," said Steeler defensive end L.C. Greenwood.

"They played hell out of us even when they didn't have a good record," said Joe Greene.

"We play hard football and dare the other team to do the same thing," Greene added. "The Oilers always accept the dare."

Bradshaw remembers that last game in Houston for the chivalry of the contact.

"I never played in as tough a game against a team I respected more," he said. "I played tough games that were full of fights, arguments and cheapshots. But Houston knocks your butt off, smiles, and tells you, 'great play.'"

Steeler safety Don Shell, whose tackle helped fracture Earl Campbell's rib in that game, later prayed on the sideline for Campbell's well being.

Some Steeler fans, not known for warmth toward Pittsburgh foes, have even sent the Oilers friendly mail.

That's a carryover from last season when an Oiler victory over Cincinnati boosted Pittsburgh into the playoffs, a favor for which the Steelers sent each Houston coach and player an atache case for Christmas.

"I've gotten some real nice letters from their fans," said Phillips.

"They said they were hoping we'd get into the playoffs and play them a third time. They're gonna' root for Pittsburgh, but they wanted us to know they were pulling for us to get there."

Patriots Pull Punches On Fairbanks Move

BOSTON (AP)—A U.S. District Court judge has sacked lame-duck New England Patriots Coach Chuck Fairbanks, who wants to run from the National Football League to the University of Colorado.

Responding to a suit filed by the NFL team, Judge A. David Mazzone issued a temporary injunction Wednesday prohibiting Colorado from signing Fairbanks to a coaching contract.

A hearing will be held Jan. 12 on the Patriots' request for a permanent injunction that would bar the university from inducing the coach to break his NFL pact, which has four years and an option season left at $150,000 a year.

Colorado Athletic Director Eddie Crowder already has said Fairbanks will coach at the university Crowder, who was in Miami for a Big Eight Conference meeting, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Colorado President Roland Rautenstraus said he could not comment before knowing the details of the restraining order, with which he said the university intended to comply fully.

"Our attorneys have suggested that until they can detail what items are in the context of the restraining order, I should say nothing," Rautenstraus said.

Patriots owner William H. Sullivan Jr., filed suit Tuesday against the school, its regents, Rautenstraus, Crowder and two businessmen, charging they conspired to lure Fairbanks away from New England.

Fairbanks is not directly involved in the suit, but if the school decided to withdraw its offer, Fairbanks could sue the school.

On advice of lawyer John Blish and Patriots Vice President Chuck Sullivan - the owner's son and also a lawyer - Sullivan refused to comment on the legal maneuvering.

The university was not represented at the court hearing.

Career In Limbo Contends Bellard

COLLEGE STATION (AP)-Emory Bellard said his college football career is in limbo. But one thing that he knows for sure is that he will not be coaching the "long gray line" at West Point.

The former Texas A&M head coach, who resigned under alumni pressure at mid-season, said Wednesday he has withdrawn his name from consideration as the head football coach at the United States Military Academy.

"West Point is a very fine institution and a prestigious coaching job," said Bellard, who would add only that for him it was not the right situation.

Kentucky Tripped Up By Eager Gator Group

By The Associated Press

They call it "Gator Alley," and more than one visiting college basketball team has been swallowed up there.

That's what happened to the Kentucky Wildcats Wednesday night.

"I guess we didn't have the same mental attitude and enthusiasm as we had against Notre Dame," Kentucky Coach Joe Hall said after his ninth-ranked team dripped a 76-65 decision to Florida in Gainesville, a ferocious court for a visitor.

The Wildcats, who had upset second-ranked Notre Dame 81-76 last Saturday night, certainly didn't match that fiery level Wednesday night. The Gators, meanwhile, didn't lack for intensity.

"We won this game because my players didn't let up for 40 minutes," said Florida Coach John Lotz. "We needed this one for our confidence. There are difficult games ahead and I'm thinking about Alabama next week. But I'm really not surprised we won, because we worked hard for it."

Hall was perplexed, though.

"It was hard to understand the loss," he said. "But I guess it's a young team on the road. We played like a young team. We didn't play with enthusiasm and aggressiveness."

Kentucky wasn't the only ranked team that had problems in the Southeastern Conference Wednesday night. Mississippi State, the nation's No. 18 club, was beaten 87-65 by Alabama.

In another SEC opener, No. 7 Louisiana State played according to form and blasted Georgia 97-75.

In other action involving the Top Twenty, No. 3 North Carolina whipped Clemson 90-68; No. 11 Indiana State defeated Tulsa 101-89; 17th-ranked Marquette turned back Brown 57-49 and No. 20 Maryland trimmed George Washington University 84-72.

Ali Expected To Retire Today

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Muhammad Ali will face a familiar question - his retirement plans - today at a press conference. The heavyweight champion is expected to answer that he'll not fight again.

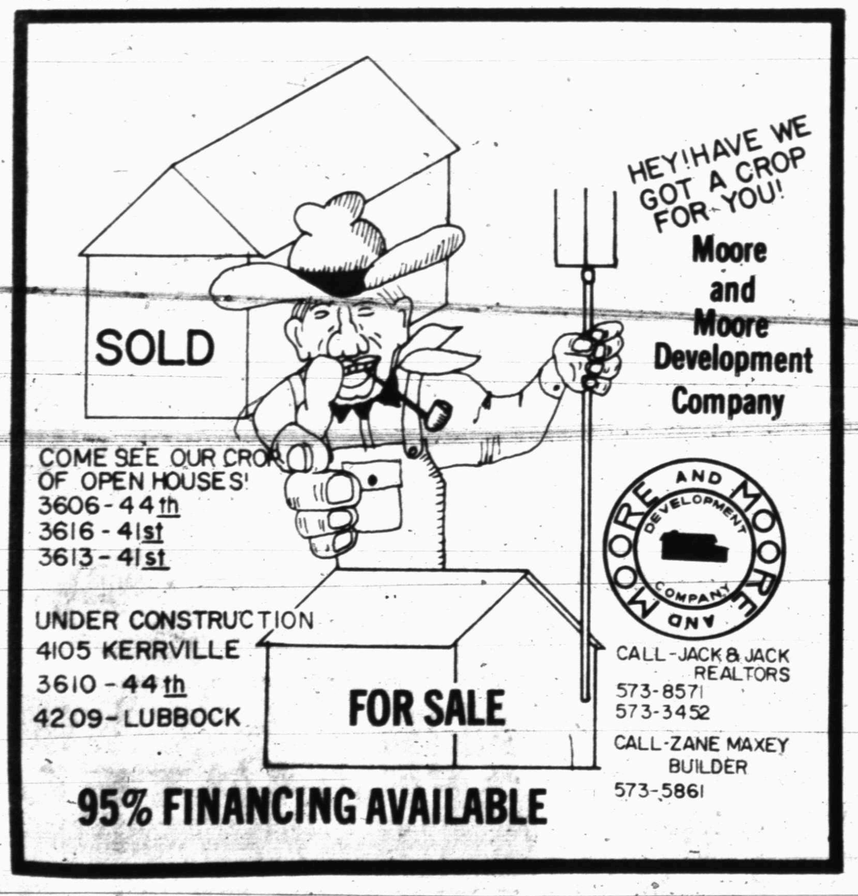
It will not be the first time Ali has said he's quitting the ring. In the past, however, he changed his mind and continued his boxing career.

But this time, Ali, who turns 37 on Jan. 17, may be serious.

He told a radio interviewer Wednesday that he's through fighting.

In response to a question by Ira Fistell of KABC radio, Ali said he was retiring, and that he wanted to retire as the champion because that was important to him and important to black people.

Ali was not available for comment, but has a press conference scheduled today to promote Saturday's Ali Track Meet and "discuss his future."



CBS Avoids Reruns To Top Week's Ratings

NEW YORK (AP)-CBS avoided the Christmas week reruns offered by the competition, and won the network's ratings race for the week ending Dec. 31 despite a strong showing at the top by ABC.

For CBS, it was the second No. 1 finish in three weeks, and just the fourth time since the season's start that ABC was lower than first. NBC, meanwhile, was No. 3 for the 10th week in a row.

The week was hardly typical. ABC listed the five most-watched prime-time programs, figures from the A.C. Nielsen Co. showed, but all were repeats of previous episodes. Of CBS' four top-rated programs, three were new installments.

"Laverne and Shirley" was No. 1 for the second week in a row, with a rating of 30.3. Nielsen says that means of all the homes in the country with television, 30.3 percent saw at least part of the program.

CBS' top show for the week was "60 Minutes," sixth in the ratings, followed by a new episode of the network's hit comedy, "One Day at a Time." A new version of the Victor Hugo classic, "Les Miserables," on CBS, was a strong finisher - tied for ninth with a rerun of the same network's "M-A-S-H."

For NBC, it was one of the worst weeks of the season. The network's top-rated program, "Quincy, M.E.," was tied for 19th.

CBS avoided the bottom of the ratings, while ABC had three in the last five and NBC two. An "ABC News Closeup" on human rights was tied for 57th with "David Cassidy: Undercover" on NBC, and followed by "Hardy Boys Mysteries" on ABC, NBC's "Weekend," and ABC's "Fast Lane Blues."

CBS' rating for the week was 19.9, followed by ABC at 17.1 and NBC at 14.2. The networks say that means in an average prime time minute during the week, 19.9 percent of the homes in the country with TV were tuned to CBS.

Here are the week's Top 10 programs:

"Laverne and Shirley," with a rating of 30.3 representing 22.6 million homes, "Three's Company," 30.2 or 22.5 million, "Happy Days," 27.6 or 20.6 million, "Mork and Mindy," 27.4 or 20.4 million, and "Love Boat," 26.4 or 19.7 million, all ABC; "60 Minutes," 24.6 or 18.3 million, and "One Day at a Time," 23.7 or 17.7 million, both CBS; "What's Happening," 23.3 or 17.4 million, ABC, and "M-A-S-H" and "Les Miserables," both 23.2 or 17.3 million, both CBS.

The next 10 shows:

"Taxi" and "Fantasy Island," both ABC; "Barnaby Jones," "Alice" and "All in the Family," all CBS; "Barney Miller," "Eight is Enough" and "Charlie's Angels," all ABC, and "The Incredible Hulk," CBS, and "Quincy, M.E.," NBC, tie.

Indian Art

NEW YORK (AP)-Some 80 Indian "miniature" paintings from the collection of Paul F. Walter are on exhibition at the Pierpont Morgan Library through Feb. 8, 1979.

The library says this type of painting is noted for its brilliant color, exquisite line, and passionate representation of scenes from the history and myths of India.

Feeder Pigs Set Record In 1979

WASHINGTON (AP)-The annual average price of feeder pigs last year was a record of almost $1 a pound, eclipsing the previous high of 89.8 cents a pound in 1975, according to the Agriculture Department.

Annual average prices, figured over a full year, don't mean much to farmers because producers usually buy periodically during a year.

But the figures do illustrate price changes that take place from one year to another.

The price of feeder pigs - animals weighing 40 to 60 pounds - averaged $99.60 per hundredweight in 1978, according to preliminary figures by the department.

The higher price reflects the increased demand by hog feeders, stimulated by relatively high market prices for slaughter hogs and lower prices for feed.

Workers Compensation Rate Cut Average 5.3%

AUSTIN (AP)-Workers compensation rate reductions that will save Texas businessmen an estimated $60 million over 12 months were ordered Wednesday by the State Insurance Board.

Rate cuts averaging 5.3 percent statewide will take effect Feb. 1. The cuts are the first since December 1969. Since then, the cost of insuring workers against on-the-job injuries has soared.

Some industries will receive reductions greater than the statewide average - 7.6 percent for contractors and 8.8 percent for oil companies.

Manufacturing firms will average a 4 percent decrease in premiums, and the "all other" category that includes commercial establishments will experience an average reduction of 4.3 percent.

A firm's actual workers compensation premium will vary according to a several factors, including number of employees, wages paid and accident experience.

One exception to the rate cuts will be shipbuilding firms and ship repair yards - the so-called "F Class," which will have a 25 percent increase. Board actuaries said the shipyards' accident experience indicated a 40 percent rise in rates, but the board has had an unofficial policy for years of limiting increases to 25 percent.

Another group that was unhappy with the board order was the Texas Trial Lawyers Association, whose directors will decide within the next months whether to appeal to the courts.

Even larger reductions are warranted than the board granted, the trial lawyers contend.

The trial lawyers built a voluminous record during almost three days of hearings in an attempt to show that board formulas give insurance companies too much money.

Spokesman for the lawyers said the record might be used in a court appeal.

Hang Up On His Hang-Up!

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR READERS: My recent item, "What to do about obscene telephone calls," prompted a rash of responses. Some berated me for suggesting that a police whistle be kept by the phone to blast the caller into the next county. ("What if your mother-in-law calls and you mistakenly think the obscene caller is calling again? That blast could seriously impair her hearing," one reader stated.)

Well, here's the official word from the Pacific Telephone Co.: If you should get an obscene phone call, HANG UP!

That's right, just hang up. That's the fastest, most effective way to discourage annoying calls. The people who make them actually need an audience. And taking that away from them—by hanging up—takes away their entire motivation for making the calls in the first place.

So at the first disturbing remark, simply hang up. Gently—because any reaction at all can serve to encourage them. Don't yell, don't speak, don't even mutter. Don't give the caller the satisfaction of any response whatsoever. Just hang up.

If the caller continues to harass you, call the business office of your phone company. They have people trained to deal with this type of situation. And they will do everything, including working with your police department, to avert further problems.

Obscene phone calls are illegal. A convicted offender can be sentenced to up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.

But the best thing to do is just remember that simple rule: It's your telephone—if you don't like what's being said, HANG UP!

DEAR ABBY: What advice have you for a 23-year-old girl who, everybody says, is pretty and smart, but who lives in a small town with snobbish people who won't let her forget that she lives on the wrong side of the tracks?

ME IN IOWA

DEAR ME: The next time the train comes through—get on it.

DEAR ABBY: I was married at a very young age to a man I never really loved. I have two fine teenage children. My marriage didn't work out because my husband used to beat me a lot. After I divorced him, I fell deeply in love with a woman. It was easy for me, since I had always felt a strong sexual attraction for women, but I never allowed myself to have an affair with one.

I am now living with this wonderful woman and have never been happier. The relationship is so comfortable and natural for me. My children know what I am and accept it, but my parents are giving me a hard time.

I love my parents and know they love me, but they just don't understand my feelings. They disapprove of my mate and my lesbian lifestyle.

Should I give up my lover to please my parents? I'm 34.

TORN IN TWO

DEAR TORN: If you are mature, you will make your own choice based on what YOU want, not on what your parents want. If your parents love you, they'll accept you as you are.

Who said the teen years are the happiest? For Abby's new booklet "What Teenagers Want to Know," write Abby: 132 Lasky Dr., Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212. Enclose $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents), self-addressed envelope, please.

of the legs and completes the creation with fasteners for hanging.

Even old Prince Albert tobacco cans don't go to waste. She simply paints a country scene on the cans and calls them match holders. She gives away many of her creations, keeps some herself and sells the rest. A prestigious furniture store in San Antonio, W.D. Dallas, is among her steady customers.

Mrs. Rudd says she has been "fooling with things" for as long as she can remember. She also enjoys teaching others the tricks of her craft, especially the painting part. She has taught classes in what she calls "Decorative Art," at many of the surrounding towns including Western Texas College in Snyder. Others towns where she has conducted classes include Fluvanna, Coahoma and Muleshoe.

Mrs. Rudd said she was born on "the main street of Gail" but will be leaving soon. After 24 years as county clerk she was defeated in the November election.

She is no stranger to travel, however and says she has lived everywhere from Houston to Los Angeles. "But wherever I go I will miss my friends in West Texas."

Kurt Waldheim, Austrian diplomat, was elected secretary-general of the United Nations in 1971, succeeding retiring U Thant.

5 Mishaps On Area Highways

Five traffic accidents have been reported to troopers of the highway patrol.

Investigated yesterday at 7:15 a.m. was a mishap in which a truck-tractor rig collided with a fence. Reports show the rig was driven by Edward LaRoy Warwick of Lubbock and was in collision with a fence about one-tenth of a mile south of Snyder on Highway 84. It occurred about 7:15 a.m.

At 4:50 p.m., a 1976 Ford driven by Winson Jewel Cox of Palm Bay, Fla., collided with a 1974 Chevrolet driven by Spinivas Matta Mohan of Lubbock. The wreck took place south of Snyder on Farm Road 1613 and resulted in moderate damage to the vehicles.

A one vehicle turnover was recorded at 5:30 p.m. Wednesday, approximately 5.5 miles south of Snyder on Highway 208. Department of Public Safety reports indicate the 1976 Datsun was driven by Garvin Glendal Ray of Snyder.

Two mishaps were reported Tuesday.

One occurred about 11:35 a.m. and involved a 1974 Lincoln driven by Sam Clifton Gatzki of Wilson. The vehicle was in collision with a utility pole about 2.1 miles east of Snyder on U.S. 84.

The other Tuesday collision was at 2:50 p.m. and involved a truck striking some guard railing at a bridge approximately 7.5 miles east of Snyder on Highway 180. The truck was driven by Samuel Morin Jr. of Krum.

Reports did not list injuries in any of the highway mishaps.

Drunk Lands In Bakery

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)-A man who told police he got drunk at a New Year's Eve party and had no place to go afterward was charged with third-degree burglary after he fell through the ceiling of a pastry show, narrowly missing several startled customers.

Authorities in suburban Cheektowaga identified the man Timothy McPhaden, 22.

McPhaden's downfall came Wednesday morning when a store employee went to a storage area in the attic and spotted him.

Once police arrived, they didn't have to wait long to arrest him. With a loud crash, McPhaden broke through the ceiling and landed in the coffee shop section of the bakery.

"Things seemed to be out of place over the past several days," one of the shop's bakers said. "I guess that guy has been living here, and I don't blame him. It's warm, and there's all this good food."

Grandma Moses, American primitive artist, died in 1961.

Weather

trucks were making deliveries today and there was plenty of gasoline. Also, only service station outlets were using up supplies earlier in the week since industrial customers mostly had curtailed their use during the bad weather.

Also, reports this morning indicated that local supplies of liquefied petroleum gas were adequate.

Meanwhile, a siege of broken water lines continued. City water department officials said that several leaks in water mains had been repaired. However, they said most of their activity involved cutting off water for customers who had broken pipes in homes and businesses. Several dozen calls of this type had been logged and they were continuing.

A broken water line at The Snyder Daily News building caused some problems temporarily Wednesday afternoon in the circulation department, but it was shut off in time for most papers to go out on time.

Temperatures in the 20s overnight contrasted with earlier readings as low as two degrees, and forecasts today called for readings in the 50s in this area.

OBITUARIES

T. L. Baker

Thomas L. Baker, 66, died at 9:45 p.m. Wednesday at Texas Tech Medical Center at Lubbock.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Friday at the Bell-Seale Funeral Home Chapel. Dr. Wilbur Mindel, minister of the church, will officiate, and burial will be in Hillside Memorial Gardens, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Surviving are two daughters, Jane Bolin of Monahans and Ann Stracener of San Angelo; four sons, Ronny Baker of Snyder, Paul L. Baker of Clovis, N.M., Keith Baker of Oklahoma City and Tommy Baker of Lubbock; and 11 grandchildren.

A native of Fayette County, Ala., he was a member of the First Christian Church.

Mrs. Sterling

Mrs. Minnie Ola Sterling, 93, of Ira died at 12:32 p.m. Wednesday in Cogdell Memorial Hospital.

Funeral service has been set for 2 p.m. Friday at the East Side Church of Christ in Snyder. Sam Kitching, minister of the church, will officiate, and burial will be in the Ira Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mrs. Sterling was a native and life-long resident of Scurry County and was the widow of the late W.R. Sterling whom she married on March 13, 1901, in Scurry County.

Surviving are three daughters, Mrs. Edwin Minor of Snyder, Mrs. John Simms of Happy and Mrs. Wilma Roberts of Porterville, Calif.; a son, W.R. Sterling Jr. of Ira; a sister, Hattie Woolever of Levelland; 18 grandchildren, 40 great-grandchildren and 12 great-great-grandchildren.

Pallbearers will be Gus Sterling, Jimmy Dove, Donnie Dunn, Joe Ellington, Clarence Payne and Dale Johnston.

5 Republicans Going To Belgium

WASHINGTON (AP)-Five Republican senators are heading to Belgium to meet NATO officials and to Moscow, where the strategic arms limitation talks will be discussed with Soviet officials. The group is led by Minority Leader Howard H. Baker. Other senators in it are John Tower of Texas, S.I. Hayakawa of California, John Danforth of Missouri and Jake Garn of Utah.

A trademark, also called a brand name, can be almost anything - a word, a name, a symbol, or any combination of the three - that identifies the origin of a product or a service.
