New Blows Cost Japs 200 Planes

By OLEN CLEMENTS
Associated Press War Editor

NAVY carrier planes let fly at the western central Philippines islands of Panay, Cebu and Negros Monday in a continuing attack that already has destroyed at least 200 enemy planes, several cargo ships and smaller craft.

This was the second carrier based raid on the Philippines in three days. The Japanese Air force was giving stiff opposition. Fifty Nipponese planes were shot down and more than 150 destroyed on the ground.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz said that preliminary reports indicated the action was continuing. There was no mention of American plane losses.

Probably Capiz Field

Destruction of the planes on the ground probably means that the air fleet of Adm. William F. Halsey hit Capiz airfield on Panay, 210 miles from Manila. Halsey's powerful Third Fleet three days ago sank or damaged 89 Japanese cargo ships and destroyed 68 planes in widespread raids on Mindanao's five airfields and her iron and timber ports.

There was no mention in yesterday's communique of the attempt in the past ten days by Navy planes and warships to obliterate Japanese defenses on Palau. But there were air strikes ranging from the northern Kuriles to Nauru, almost on the equator, by Navy and Army planes.

Several Vessels Sunk

The Kuriles raids on four islands — Paramushiro, Shumushu, Araito and Onnekotan—resulted in the sinking of a medium sized Japanese cargo vessel and four smaller ones in Shumushu harbor and bomb hits on two more cargo vessels at Paramushiro.

Navy planes and Army Mitchells staged the far north raids Sunday and Monday. They were intercepted at Shumushu by seven Japanese planes, which damaged one Army Mitchell. One enemy plane was shot down east of Onnekotan.

Docks and warehouse facilities were set afire by bombs and incendiary bullets fired by the Aleutian-based American planes.

Attacks against other Japanese-held bastions continued with Iwo Jima in the Volcanos being shattered by 26 tons of bombs from Seventh Air force Liberators. Large fires were started and one of four intercepting enemy fighters was shot down. Ackack damaged two Liberators.

Area's Rotarians In Session Here

Acclaimed one of the largest West Texas Rotary meetings in 17 years, the 20th annual intercity meeting of West Texas Rotary clubs was held Wednesday night in the livestock judging pavilion on Texas Tech campus, with 20 West Texas clubs represented ranging from Amarillo to Sweetwater and from Littlefield to Spur. Overton W. Ribble acted as program chairman.

Following a ranch-style dinner, Chas. A. Guy, editor of Avalanche and Journal newspapers, introduced the principal speaker and performer of the evening, Harley Sadler, widely-known West Texas showman and member of the Texas House of Representatives. As Rep. Sadler was introduced, the Rotarians gave him a rising cheer and prolonged applause. Members of Rep. Sadler's troupe then performed, with each number fairly "bringing the house down" with applause.

Numbers On Program

Included on the program were Connie and June Mundee, jugglers; Jeane Layne, acrobatic dancer; Carl Park, violinist and vocalist; Flo Del Gard, dancer; Jimmie and Eddie Farren, singers with violin and guitar accompanying; and Jimmie Van and Kennedy Swain, comedians. Miss Jean Siler was at the piano.

Frank Day of Plainview and Edd McLaughlin of Ralls, past district governor and past director of Rotary International, led members in songs. Rev. W. E. Petterson of Levelland gave the invocation. Charlie Paxton of

Romanian Terms Are Announced

By RICHARD KASISCHKE
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 13. — Romania has pledged to fight on the Allied side until final victory over Germany, to pay $300,000,000 worth of reparations to Russia, to restore all United Nations property and to adhere to the 1940 frontier that gave Russia Bessarabia and the northern Bucovina, the Soviet government announced tonight in broadcasting the terms of the Romanian armistice.

In return, Romania is to get back the Transylvanian territory

PROPERTY TO BE RESTORED

LONDON, Sept. 13 (AP)—All Allied property in Romania will be restored, the Soviet Union revealed tonight in a broadcast from Moscow announcing the terms of the armistice signed with Romania.

Transylvania, which was assigned to Hungary by Hitler, will be returned to the Romanians, the broadcast recorded by the Soviet monitor, said.

Other terms fixed the Soviet-Romanian border as of June 28, 1940, and ordered all racial and other discriminating laws in Romania repealed.

which the Germans had handed to Hungary in 1940 and is to maintain her own civil administration in non-combat zones.

Not Dissatisfied

Commenting on the 20-point armistice formally signed today, the chief Romanian negotiator in Moscow, Lucretiu Patrascanu, declared, "We don't have a right to be dissatisfied with the terms."

These first published armistice terms of the war were signed by Marshal Rodiony Malinovsky on behalf of Russia, Britain and the United States, with Russia "acting in the interest of all the United Nations," and by the Romanian delegation which has been dealing in Moscow while Romanian troops already were fighting under Red Army direction against the Germans and Hungarians.

Italy was accorded the first armistice of this war from the United Nations but its terms never have been made public. Terms for Bulgaria have been drafted by the European advisory commission but not yet signed.

To Fight Own Battles

Acknowledging defeat at the hands of Russia, Britain and the United States, Romania agreed formally to fight for the restoration of her own "independence

Kansas Protests Feed Freeze In Southwest

TOPEKA, Kan., Sept. 13. (UP)—Kansas officials expressed concern today over the notification that 80 per cent of the cotton seed meal and cake produced in the southwestern states was to be frozen for use by cattlemen in that territory.

Gov. Andrew Schoeppel, in view of the concentrated winter feed supply for Kansas, pointed out that the state stood third in livestock population outranked only by Texas and Iowa.

"I don't believe in provincialism," Schoeppel said, "but it might not be a bad idea to remind some folks that Kansas produces a lot of alfalfa and soy bean cattle feeds, a great deal of which have been going out of this state to support the herds of other cattle feeders while our Kansas feeders have been doing a lot of scratching to make both ends meet."

Russian Army Gives Texan Honored Burial

EIGHTH AIR FORCE BOMBER BASE, Sept. 13. (UP) — Sgt. Donald Simpson of Beaumont, Tex., 20 year old turret gunner on a Flying Fortress and one of the first Americans to die in combat on the eastern front, was buried with full military honors by the Russian army, it was announced today.

Simpson was hit by flak over Poland Aug. 7 and died just before the wheels of the Fort touched ground on the return to Russia.

NAZIS KILL CIVILIANS

Stubborn Lomza Falls In Mighty Drive In Poland

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Thursday, Sept. 14.—The Red Army reached the Czechoslovak border on a 25-mile front below Krosno in a flaring new offensive in southern Poland yesterday and conquered the stubborn fortress of Lomza in northern Poland in a powerful drive that carried within 15 miles of the East Prussian border on the south.

Simultaneously a ferocious onslaught was opened on Warsaw, with Soviet troops and the Russian-sponsored First Polish Army fighting bitter engagements with the Germans in the suburban area of Praga on the right bank of the Vistula river.

Transylvania Advance

The drive to recover Hungarian-held Transylvania for Romania made progress, Russian and Romanian troops seizing more than 50 settlements deep in that mountainous area, principally the city and railway station of Odorhei, the Soviet communique announced in detailing successes in a big day all along the Eastern front.

Lomza, last major stronghold guarding the southern approaches to East Prussia, fell to the Russians after 11 days of battle that ranked with the bloodiest of the entire summer.

The Russians then swept on north and northwest, taking more than 30 smaller towns, including Novgorod, nine miles northwest of Lomza and a scant 15 miles from East Prussia. The Red Army is poised along the eastern frontier of East Prussia.

Premier Stalin had announced the capture of Lomza a few hours after the German high command acknowledged its loss.

Nazis Explain Defeat

The German communique, in seeking to explain this defeat of elite troops who had been ordered not to yield another foot of ground, said, "northeast of Ostroleka, our troops frustrated an intended Russian breakthrough on a broad front, in the course of which the town of Lomza was given up."

Ostroleka, 23 miles west of Lomza and an equal distance south of East Prussia, fell last week to Gen. G. F. Zakharov's Second White Russian Army group, which captured Lomza.

The German radio admitted Zakharov's assault still showed no signs of slackening and was being prosecuted on a broad front.

The Soviet push against Warsaw was making slow headway from the east with the aid of great swarms of planes and droves of tanks. The Germans admitted "local breaches" in their lines.

Youths Suspected Of Houston Burglaries

HOUSTON, Sept. 13. (UP)—Fifteen boys and one girl, all under 16 years of age and all children of war plant workers, were in the custody of the Harris county sheriff's office today as suspects in a series of burglaries.

The arrests climaxed a three-day roundup after a number of burglaries of such articles as money, cake, salami, canned goods, candy, cigarettes and hair tonic were reported by residents living in the vicinity of several war plants.

Sheriff's deputies said the youths would stage parties in their various homes while their parents, most of whom work on the night shift, were absent.

At the get-togethers, the boys and their invited girl friends would throw big parties with such trimmings as cigarettes and rare chewing gum, candy and other loot.

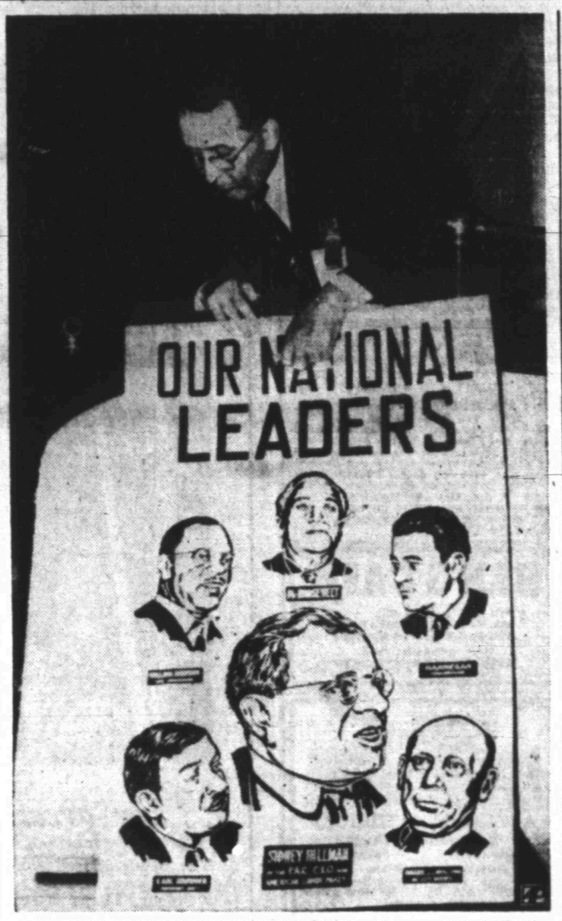

The 16 children will be turned over to the juvenile authorities for proper action, the sheriff's office said.

Pros Set Up New Demo Machinery

By DAVE CHEAVENS
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, Sept. 13. (AP) — Texas militant Roosevelt Democrats today shouted approval of resolutions setting up machinery by which the state convention hopes to purge the party of presidential electors who will not support Roosevelt and Truman.

It certified for filing with the secretary of state a new slate of electors, specifically instructing them to cast their votes for the national nominees.

The resolution specifically directed the secretary of state to expunge the list of electors filed by the regular convention, and substitute for it a new slate which included seven of the original electors who had said they would vote for Roosevelt and Truman.

The position of those dropped was characterized in the resolution as "defiant and contemptible."

The convention voted approval of a resolution revoking, repealing and annulling the resolutions passed by the regular convention May 23, under which its electors were not bound to support the party nominees unless the Chicago convention acceded to certain demands, which it turned down. These included demands for a white supremacy plank and for restoration of the two-third rule.

The convention adjourned at 5 p. m., after an unprecedented two-day session.

Departure For Ballot

Certified to the secretary of state were the names of Franklin D. Roosevelt and Harry S. Truman as the Democratic nominee for president and vice-president, directing him to instruct county clerks to have their names printed on the ballot at the head of the Democratic column.

This was a departure from past practice, although a statute provides for such designations on the ballot.

The resolution on electors declared that the action of the May convention would have the effect of depriving Democrats of their vote in the general election, and refusal by the electors to vote for the party's candidates "would violate the public policy of the state" and the rights of Texans in the armed forces to vote for Roosevelt and Truman.

In the absence of statutes relating to electors, the resolution continued, the party is left free to act upon the matter. It held that the majority of the nominees have forfeited and vacated their offices as nominees for presidential electors and should be removed.

Another resolution—anticipating court action in the elector battle—delegated to the new executive committee which was overwhelmingly pro-Roosevelt, "all power and authority to fill vacancies in officers and nominees" and do all things that the convention could do if it had recessed instead of adjourned.

The legal situation in respect to electors was this:

The secretary of state will soon

Resistance Light As Yanks Near Aachen

Rotgen Is First German Town To Fall To Invaders

By WILLIAM F. BONI
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF Thursday, Sept. 14. — American troops rolling through surprisingly light resistance Wednesday drove into the outskirts of the important German border city of Aachen, one of the northern keystones of the Siegfried line, and struck close to the core of the Nazis' vaunted westwall on at least three other sectors along a 90-mile front.

The Americans captured the border village of Rotgen, 10 miles miles southeast of Aachen, the first German community to be reported taken in the all-out assault on Hitler's Reich, and stood 325 airline miles from Berlin in their march on the Nazi capital.

Falling Back To Rhine

As the American armored columns encountered only minor opposition in the Siegfried line outposts, indications were that the Germans were falling back toward the Rhine, 40 miles to the east in this sector.

The Yanks won positions in the Town forest of Aachen and in outskirts overlooking the city, a rail and highway hub of more than 160,000 population the city, a rail and highway hub of more than 160,000 population, historically a strong fortress position and in modern times a strategic citadel in the Siegfried line.

To the south of these onrushing forces, which were part of the First Army of Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, two other columns were storming or preparing to storm major fortifications in the Siegfried system.

The First stood within gunshot of Germany east of the village of Clervaux, in the northern tip of Luxembourg, and the other farther to the south was in Germany northwest of the town of Trier, its exact position unreported since an initial penetration of at least five miles two days ago.

As the Allies closed in on Germany all along the Western front, supreme headquarters announced early today that the American armies alone—the First, Third, and Seventh—had captured 320,000 prisoners since D-day.

The Seventh, driving up from the south of France, closed in on

Candidate FDR Speaks Oct. 5

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP) — President Roosevelt will make a campaign speech on the night of Oct. 5 in a broadcast directed to meetings of party workers gathered in every voting district of the country, Democratic National Chairman Robert E. Hannegan announced today.

Hannegan, who billed the scheduled address as the President's "second nationwide campaign broadcast of 1944," said that listening audiences would be arranged in more than 125,000 voting areas in the 48 states.

Minimum Of 10 To Party

He added that a minimum of 10 persons would be gathered around receiving sets in homes or other places.

The party chairman said that under the plan one worker in each district would invite 10 neighbors to his home to listen to the President. After the broadcast, he continued, each of the persons will be given a list of registered voters and will be asked to get those voters to the polls on election day.

Hannegan announced that before or after the President's speech the networks would be split up so that in each state the Democratic governor or Democratic candidate for governor or for a Senate seat could speak to the listening groups in that state.

Also speaking on the national hookup will be Hannegan and Mrs. Gladys A. Tillett, assistant national chairman. The broadcast will begin at 9 p. m. central war time.

Giant Air Armadas Continue Assaults

By ERNEST AGNEW
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Sept. 13.—Overwhelming formations of between 5,000 and 6,000 Allied planes ranged ahead of Allied ground forces invading Germany in the greatest concentrated air attack in history today, dropping 10,000 tons of bombs between the Siegfried line and Berlin and destroying at least 53 more planes of the fading German air force.

The Allied bombers peppered the attack area with an average of ten tons of bombs a minute, an efficient example of "carpet" bombing introduced in Africa by air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Tedder, now Gen. Eisenhower's deputy commander. Tedder has intensified the assault method so it leaves almost nothing untouched in the aera under attack.

Goes On Into Night

Thirty-three German planes were knocked out in the air and 20 destroyed on the ground.

The assault was continued at nightfall by medium bombers which attacked the causeway between Walcheren and South Beveland in Holland and strafed the roads and rail crossings on the south bank of the West Scheldt river. One squadron was a Dutch formation of Mitchells.

The U. S. Eighth Air force lost 27 bombers and nine fighters. A force of 1,000 Fortresses and Liberators, escorted by 300 fighters, attacked three synthetic oil plants, two motor transport factories and other military targets.

British Heavies Out

British heavies blasted the Onasbruck marshalling yards, and bombed the synthetic oil plant at Nordstern.

More than 500 heavy bombers based in Italy hit two synthetic oil plants along the Silesian border and another near the Polish frontier.

Ninth Air force Thunderbolts strafed trucks and trains hauling supplies to enemy forces in the vicinity of Nancy and cut railway tracks in five places near that city as well as destroying many gun emplacements near Metz.

Two Main Gothic Passes Reached

ROME, Sept. 13. (AP) — Allied forces driving for the core of the German Gothic line have reached the threshold of two main passes leading through the Apennine barrier guarding the approach to northern Italy and the rich Po river valley.

Pushing forward through steadily increasing rearguard action, Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's Fifth Army troops thrust to a point within a mile of Futa pass after capturing Poggia Della Dogana, while another Allied force was within less than a mile of another major pass northeast of Florence.

British In Tough Fight

British troops engaged for more than a week before Rimini, eastern anchor of the Gothic line, continued to meet fierce enemy resistance. A breakthrough at Rimini would enable British armor to sweep into the Po valley behind the Gothic line. Both sides were reported suffering heavy casualties.

Heavy and medium bombers of the Mediterranean Air force supported the Allied advance on the central Italian front with raids against the Bologna railyards, 30 miles north of the Futa pass.

Other Allied war planes—medium, light and fighter bombers—blasted communications in northwestern Italy and the Po valley as well as gun emplacements, and troop concentrations all along the battle line.

Two Believed Dead In Fort Worth Crash

FORT WORTH, Sept. 13 (AP)—A plane from the Eagle Mountain Marine Air station crashed into Lake Bridgeport near here this morning an the only occupants, the pilot and gunner, are presumed to be dead, the station's public relations office announced.

A crash boat and divers were sent to the scene after the pilot of another ship reported seeing the plane and two men disappear in the water. It was not determined whether the men were able to get their parachutes open.

Their next of kin have been notified that they are missing on a routine mission.

Cotton Work Gloves Ordered For Area

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—Manufacturers of cotton work gloves will receive orders immediately from the War Production board to deliver 25,000 dozen pairs promptly to West Texas merchants for sale to cotton pickers, Rep. Mahon (D-Tex) said today.

He added that he had assurance from the agency that other shipments will follow as the demand continues through the cotton picking season, but no indication was given as to what proportion of the 100,000 to 150,000 dozen pairs requested for the area could be delivered.

Hurricane Nears Carolina Coast

MIAMI, Fla., Sept. 13. (AP)—A great Atlantic hurricane fraught with peril for life and property bore down upon the North Carolina coast tonight, the weather bureau reported, and headed for the vicinity of Cherry Point.

Only a last-minute change of direction apparently could save the coastline from a raking by winds of a force which recalled the destructive New England hurricane of 1938.

Emphasizing the gravity of the situation, the weather bureau urged residents of the endangered areas to seek safety.

A warning said the center "should reach the North Carolina coast in the vicinity of Cherry Point early Thursday forenoon."

In a 10 p. m. advisory, the weather bureau warned residents of low-lying areas on the North Carolina and Virginia coasts and lower Chesapeake Bay to "depart immediately for higher terrain."

The center of the whirling winds, some estimated up to 140 miles an hour, was reported to be about 300 miles east of Brunswick, Ga.

As the worst tropical storm of the past several years continued its north-northwest or northward movement toward the coast, hurricane warnings were hoisted from Myrtle Beach, S. C., to the Virginia Capes.

Storm warnings were displayed from Myrtle Beach southward to Savannah, Ga., and north of the Virginia Capes to Atlantic City.

A hurricane alert was extended northward to Eastport, Me.

The emergency advisory said that "winds will begin to increase on the Atlantic coast, Charleston northward, shortly after midnight, reaching hurricane force north of Wilmington, N. C.

"Gales will extend over interior eastern North Carolina and northward Thursday.

"Precautions against destructive winds and extremely high tides should be taken North Carolina coast northward.

At the same time, the bureau said the danger of destructive winds south of Charleston appeared to have passed.

The storm was said to be moving north northwest or northward about 16 miles an hour.

Using observations gathered by daring Army and Navy fliers who piloted planes into the howling winds, the weather bureau made clear the destructive force of the storm.

Youthful Hunter Is Believed Responsible For Withrow Shooting; Police Say All Evidence Points To Accident

ONE of two 12-year-old Lubbock boys possibly fired the bullet which critically injured Mrs. T. W. Withrow, 22, of Levelland, as she stood early Tuesday night in the yard of her husband's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Withrow, who live on the Plainview highway near Lubbock, it was announced Wednesday night by Deputy Sheriff Grady Harrist, after a conference with the boys' mothers.

It was announced that nothing revealed in the investigation indicated anything but an accident.

Mothers of the pair volunteered the information to Harrist and Police Chief Don Reeder that their sons had been hunting in the vicinity of the Withrow home early Tuesday night, when Mrs. Withrow was mysteriously wounded.

Harrist said that a .22 caliber rifle was turned over to the sheriff's department. The slug removed from Mrs. Withrow's abdomen and another bullet which was found embedded in a wall of the house are .22 caliber long rifle bullets, officers said.

Harrist said a ballistics expert would be asked to determine if the recovered bullets came from the rifle used by the boys.

One of the women revealed her son brought home a dead hawk, which jibed with reports to officials yesterday that one of two boys seen early Tuesday night at South Plains Electric Cooperative, Inc., was carrying "something that looked like a hawk."

Harrist said the women related that their sons had admitted shooting in the vicinity of the Withrow residence but said that they shot into a dirt bank.

The women came to the police station, they said, after reading of the incident in Wednesday Journal.

The bullet which spent itself in the house crashed through a south window at an angle and landed in an east wall, Harrist said.

Mrs. Withrow, whose husband is with the U. S. Army in France, was visiting her husband's parents with her two children, ages 2 and nine months. The children were in the yard with her when she was shot.

Her condition at midnight still was considered "dangerous," a West Texas hospital authority said.

Invasion Of Reich Achieved With Lone Casualty; Resistance Light

By HENRY T. GORRELL
United Press Staff Writer

WITH U. S. ARMORED COLUMN Inside Germany, Sept. 12. (Delayed)—The first penetration of Germany in strength has been achieved with only one known casualty in the early hours—a lieutenant wounded by sniper fire.

I entered Germany at 5:08 p. m.—exactly 18 minutes after the first U. S. tanks had crossed the railroad tracks at the Rotgen station, all the windows of which had been shattered by the concussion of our mobile howitzers pulverizing the German defenses farther inland.

(Rotgen is a German town near the border, about six miles east of Eupen, Belgium.)

Vehicles Easily Visible

Although the armored vehicles streaming into Germany were visible for miles as they negotiated the dusty road, not one shot was fired at us.

Before we reached the German border we had to pass through a densely wooded area which was a sniper's paradise, but the Germans in that section had fled at the sight of Sherman tanks, half tracks and the vigilant Piper Cubs. The only Germans I saw either just this side of the frontier or in Germany itself were three or four dead ones.

I interviewed the first American doughboys to enter Germany. They included Cpl. Carl Wormuth of Binghamton, N. Y., and Sgt Joseph Cleent of Sandia, Tex., whose lieutenant heading the advance scout party was wounded by a sniper's bullet.

Civilians Out Of Rotgen

Civilians had pulled out of Rotgen, a town of about 300 population, two days previously, spurred by the fire of our Long Toms which have been shelling the German fortifications now for two days and two nights.

A witness to their hasty exit was a calendar on the ticket vendor's desk dated Sept. 10, and abandoned packages containing mostly soldier's winter clothing and extra boots.

The light German resistance to our breakthrough makes it seem that either something is screwy about Goebbel's defense propaganda, or else the Germans are saving their power for a main effort elsewhere.

Tanks Were Delayed

Leaving Eupen behind with seven other correspondents assigned to the armored column, I raced into Germany as soon as I received the first radio reports of the tank breakthrough. The original tanks were delayed just short of Germany, and as we neared the German frontier we were right behind the leading vehicles.

I rode in the back of a jeep with Lt. Col. John C. Walborn of Southern Pines, N. C., who had volunteered to guide us. It's just a technicality and I only beat the other fellows by 50 or 60 feet, but nevertheless being in the lead jeep I was the first war correspondent to cross the railroad tracks and set foot in Nazi Germany. Unless some other correspondent entered Germany through Luxembourg, I think this United Press correspondent led the pack into the Reich.

Howitzers Lashed Nazis

Corporal Wormuth, who was third in command of an armored scout party in three jeeps, was leaning against a fence at the railroad station, waiting for howitzers to finish off the German infantry just ahead when I reached the German side of the railroad tracks.

"I guess I was one of the first doughboys into Germany," Wormuth said to me. "You see, it's our job to precede the tanks and draw enemy fire. We polished off the German staff car you see yonder and killed two German officers with machinegun fire.

"We were held up farther along the road by blown-up bridges, behind which there were a number of German infantry fighting rearguard with small arms. The Germans took refuge in a house and we directed the tank immediately following our jeeps to fire its 75. After it had fired two rounds, we approached the house and the lieutenant was hit in the finger, then in the back by snipers' bullets fired from the cellar window."

Nazi, 13, Captured

Previous to that, other members of the scout party had taken three German prisoners, one of whom was a 13-year-old boy manning a machinegun at the railroad station. They were the first Germans taken prisoner in the fatherland.

Later I met Sergeant Clement, whose hands and uniform were bloody from helping the wounded lieutenant. The sergeant had a three or four-day stubble of beard and, stoically chewing tobacco, he spat and said:

Wet Petition Here Finds Ready Signers

A petition calling for a local option election on legalizing sale of wine and beer in Lubbock county is being signed with little difficulty, said S. P. Morrow, Lubbock apartment house manager and head of the Lubbock County Light Beverage league.

Approximately 1,100 names had been signed to the petition, he said Wednesday, adding that some of these might not be qualified voters of Lubbock county and that efforts were being made to obtain many more signers so that a sufficient number of qualified voters, 941, would be assured.

"We have chosen a name for our organization and filed it with the county clerk," he said, "and we expect to put on an educational campaign using newspapers, radio, billboards and public addresses."

He said his organization was calling for contributions to conduct the campaign, adding that any unused funds will be donated to the American Red Cross.

Mattoon's "Madman" Said By Police To Be War Plant Fumes

MATTOON, Ill., Sept. 13. (U.P.)—Police today buried the mythical "Madman of Mattoon" in an equally mythical cemetery after branding the phantom who has terrorized this city for two weeks a hoax, whose mysterious "gardenia gas" that "paralyzed" his victims was only carbon tetrachloride fumes from a nearby war plant.

Police Commissioner Thomas V. Wright and Capt. Harry Curtis, head of the state police, called in to aid in the capture of the "Phantom," said that after checking and re-checking the stories of his 35 "victims," they were convinced he was non-existent.

Mattoon, however, refused to let the mysterious anesthetist die so ignominious a death and the mass hysteria so evident among residents only yesterday immediately turned to mass indignation against police officials who refused to believe the stories of the mysterious attacks.

"That statement is ridiculous," said William Kidwell, state's attorney of Coles county and a resident of Mattoon. "Why, 60 to 75 feet across the street from that war plant are houses where the residents aren't bothered by the fumes. The plant has been using a cleaning substance (carbon tetrachloride on gun shells ever since the war began and there never were any complaints before."

He admitted, however, that some of the reports of the attacks might have been the result of mass hysteria but was firm in his belief that "someone did throw or squirt gas into some of the homes."

Negro Sticks Out Neck In Case And Judge Applies Axe

At a stage of the trial in county court Wednesday of F. A. Stephenson, negro, for liquor law violation, Defense Attorney Gene Mathis called Oscar Freeman, another negro, to the stand and had him testify that rum, the basis for the charge, belonged to Freeman and not to Stephenson.

County Judge G. V. Pardue immediately recessed court and instructed County Attorney Syrian E. Marbut to file liquor law violation charges against Freeman.

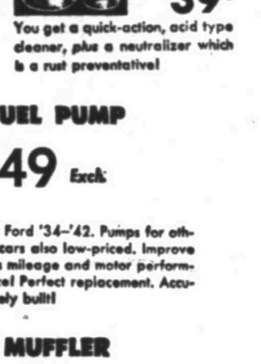

When the charge was read Freeman entered a plea of guilty. Judge Pardue said, "I accept your plea of guilty and assess your punishment at the maximum allowed by law, a fine of $1,000 and costs and confinement in the county jail for one year.

Stephenson was found guilty of the charges by a jury and fined $200 and costs.

WHO CALLED THAT LAMP A "LIGHT"?

Home study takes enough energy without having to use so much trying to see under poor light. Willie is probably bright enough, but if the light is not, his work suffers.

He needs good light (and so do you) for all indoor seeing tasks. When proper home lighting is so easy to obtain, why be without it? By observing the following simple rules you can be sure your light is right, even in war time:

Keep spare bulbs on hand, so that you can replace burnouts at once. Most electric dealers now have light bulbs in all common home sizes.

Use the RIGHT SIZE bulb in each lamp or fixture.

Use flaring shades (wider at bottom than top) instead of straight-sided ones on your lamps. See that the shades have white or light-colored linings, to reflect more usable light.

Move lamps closer to points of use, so they shed light directly on the work. Light should come from the left side for right-handed persons, from the right for left-handed persons.

Keep bulbs, reflector bowls and shades clean. Dust and dirt cut down light output.

Make your good lamps do double duty by rearranging furniture so that more than one person can use each lamp.

Cartels Tie U. S. Firms With Nazis And Forbid Use By Allies

By CHARLES B. DEGGES
United Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. — A congressional committee was told today that several American firms, through pre-war cartel ties with German interests, were prevented from selling aviation instruments to Britain and Canada while supplying Germany with information for their manufacture.

James S. Martin, chief of the Justice department's economic warfare section, told a Senate War Mobilization subcommittee that one United States firm—Bendix Aviation Corp.—may even have circumvented the British blockade to get blueprints of its aircraft and Diesel engine starters to Robert Bosch, a leading German manufacturer.

Production Restricted

Martin said that the German government used "what appeared to be private commercial agreements" with American firms to further German interests and restrict United States production. He said this was particularly true of the Bendix concern, and the Sperry Gyroscope Co., Inc., and the American Bosch Corp.

These three American firms, he said, entered into agreements with German concerns "as ordinary business transactions" while the German companies had the Nazi government as a "silent partner." Over and above any commercial interest, Martin said, the Germans "sought and obtained" the following objectives:

1. Acquisition of American technology and "know-how" in exchange for a minimum return of Germany's technology and "know-how."

Produced For Germany

2. American cooperation in producing for German use in German-occupied territory.

3. Limitation of American productive capacity.

4. Limitation of productive capacity and supplies for the British empire after the war began.

Under one agreement with a German firm, Bendix was to receive—but never did—information on how to build a certain electric automatic airplane pilot which the U. S. Army Air forces wanted. Bendix also was "entitled" to sell aviation accessories to Canada, Martin testified, but "refrained from doing so" at the 1940 request of the German firm, which had labeled Canada as "our enemies." Bendix, however, "readily" sent designs and information to Germany, Martin added.

He said Bendix likewise was prevented from selling its carburetors in Britain and, in compliance with its German agreement, refused to permit manufacture of the instruments in Britain—as late as a year after Dunkirk.

Turning to the Sperry Gyroscope Co. of Brooklyn, Martin said the firm made an agreement with the Brooklyn branch of Askania Werke, the "foremost German precision instrument firm." With the Nazi government as a "silent partner," Martin testified, the following resulted:

1. Askania was charged with the duty of obtaining military information for the Reich air ministry, and required to give us little data in return.

2. Sperry did not receive the revenue the agreement called for because Askania developed its own devices based on Sperry "know-how."

3. Sperry's expected revenue was cut further by Askania's refusal to inform Sperry of the extent of its production under Sperry patents.

American Bar To Get Resolution Flaying U. S. Supreme Court

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (U.P.) — A resolution by J. Cleo Thompson, Dallas attorney, charging that decisions of the Supreme court of the United States reflect the attitude of the administration will be presented to the American Bar association conference tomorrow, William Clark Mason, Philadelphia, chairman of the resolutions committee, said today.

Thompson refused to comment on the resolution's chances for adoption by the general assembly of the conference. Neither would he state whether it would be reported favorably or unfavorably to the conference.

He did say, however, that the resolution had been passed by both the Dallas and Texas Bar associations.

The resolution, presented to the committee Monday, requests that the ABA call to the attention of members of Congress that the "Supreme court of th U. S. is losing, if it has not already lost, the high esteem in which it has been held by the people."

It also condemned what it termed the vacillation, uncertainties and inconsistencies in its decisions which it said reflected the attitude of the administration.

Venezuela Seeking Purebred Cattle In Development Plans

HOUSTON, Sept. 13. (AP)—Texas ranches will be a principal source for livestock purchases by South American countries in years to come, particularly for placement in semi-tropical regions, in the opinion of Dr. Gustavo Rivas-Larralde, head veterinarian, and Martin De Mayo, chief animal husbandman, of the department of agriculture of Venezuela, who are here on a tour of the principal livesock producing states.

More than 1,000 head of choice livestock have been purchased by the two officials in Texas for shipment to Venezuela. Blooded bulls from Texas, they said, will be used for placement on agricultural experiment stations and ranches under a program of development of all natural resources directed by the Venezuelian government under Gen. Isias Medina Angarita's administration.

The officials said Dr. Angel Biaggini, minister of agriculture, declared that under his department the Venezuelan government has th largest program of importing choice livestock ever undertaken by Venezuela. He said the present importation includes 1500 head of cattle, sheep, swine, jacks and jennets, and then two visiting officials are in charge of the selection and purchase of the animals.

Dr. Rivas-Larralde and Mr. De Moya already have visited several states. They said the bulk of the purchases will be in Texas because of the quality of the livestock available and the similarity of the climate to that in Venezuela. Purchases, they said, include Jerseys, Brahmans, Santa Gertrudis and Herefords. Outside of Texas they will purchase Brown Swiss cattle. As for sheep they are purchasing Suffolk, Corriedale and Romney principally.

Nearly 40 per cent of the supply of tin in the U. S. is used to produce rustproof and corrosion-proof conatiners to carry food and medical supplies to the war fronts.

This does not mean that we cannot sell the seed ourselves."

Announcement has been made by W. W. Funeral Restrictions Tightened By Nazis

LONDON, Sept. 13. (AP) — Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, Germany's total mobilization director, has passed along word that Germans must simplify their funeral arrangements, it was announced today.

New funeral regulations published in the newspaper National Zeitung tighten restrictions on funerals and death notices and cut the ration allowances of black cloth for mourning.

Funeral processions are prohibited, under penalty of a 100-mark fine or a week in jail, except when arranged by the Nazi party; mourning purchases are limited to a crepe armband and a tie for men, and a pair of black stockings for women.

Nazis Leave French To Die In Inferno

LYON, France, Sept. 9. (Delayed) (AP)—Before the Allies captured this great French city, American airmen bombed Gestapo headquarters and set a fire in which the Germans left 50 French prisoners to perish, residents said today.

All prisoners died, said Jean Chaumont, a banker who is the husband of the former Miss Jane Masters of St. Louis.

Incredible Reports Come From Germany

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP)—National Broadcasting company's reporter James Cassidy, broadcasting from "near the Belgian-German frontier," today quoted "almost incredible reports" coming back from First Army forces invading Germany. Cassidy said that American troops passed through "an unnamed town toward Trier and instead of resistance met with an uproarious greeting from German civilians."

HIGH CHAIR

A YOUNG lieutenant and his wife are anxious to obtain a high chair for their baby but so far have had no success. If you can help, will you telephone 2-3689?

COLLEGE SMOOTHIES

THE college girl who will rate with the man about the campus, who likely will be in uniform, or with the man in service is the feminine, natural girl who looks trim as a pin. The "Sloppy Joes" that view for campus favor so many seasons seem to be a dead dodo this year. Perhaps more careful feminine grooming has come about because so many of our young men have to be spic-and span and the careless Janes show up to poor disadvantage beside them.

Sweaters and old duds may still find hangers in some dormitory closets, but back-to-school smoothies are fighting them a duel to the death.

WHAT about make-up? Sure, it's still as important as ever but most of us like to see the girl's face behind the makeup and the painted look may be all right in the shop window but it's hardly flattering if it is pasted on the face of the young girl who is outside looking in.

That clean, scrubbed, fresh as a daisy look still gets the most votes for the high school or college girl or the business woman. Exercises, an adequate diet, cleanliness and the right makeup will produce a good complexion for most girls. Others might consult a doctor to see if there is an inner condition that needs attention.

A daily complexion makeup program for most girls should not require over eight or ten minutes. Too many girls, through no fault of their own because no one has told them better, use the wrong shades of lipsticks with their costume colors. Instead of appearing vibrant and dashing and vital, they have a dull look, or are too bold. A little consultation will remedy the fault in no time and if the Tech girls and high school girls have a little spare time this week they might be interested in calling by the cosmetic counter at Hemphill-Wells an dtalking with Mabel Cornelius, traveling representative for Frances Denney. She has the "know how" at her finger tips and she's a Texan and a lively convserationalist.

"Most girls want to apply makeup once a day and then forget about it and I can tell them about that, too," Miss Cornelius said. She says there is really no secret to a good complexion, that is lies chiefly in cleanliness, lubrication and correct makeup.

HOSPITAL GIFTS

ONE of the nicest projects we've heard of recently is the proposal to send Christmas gifts to patients at McCloskey General hospital. If you would like to help, you are invited to leave a package at the postoffice at Hemphill-Wells, enclosing your name and address. A wife of an enlisted man or an officer at South Plains Army Air field will call for the package, wrap it and mail it.

Suggested articles include: Men's talcum powder, shaving cream and lotion, razors and blades, tooth paste and powder, combs, stationery, handkerchiefs, playing cards, snapshot size picture folios, shoe shine cloths.

GOOD DISCIPLINE

IT'S generally admitted the business of bringing up children is not easy but according to an article prepared by the staff of the Child Study association of America it need not be hard. If you are thoughtful, you will not make the same mistake twice, according to the association. We are reprinting their ideas on good discipline by permission.

"The important thing is to understand your child and what he needs. This helps him to be healthy and happy, and a healthy, happy child gives little real trouble. He will naturally feel like cooperating with you.

He needs your love and affection.

He needs to feel well cared for and contented.

He needs the chance to develop, to do more and more for himself.

He needs to know what you expect of him.

He slowly learns from you to know what is right and wrong and to build up his own discipline within himself, even when you're not there.

This is the real aim of discipline.

This is what you really want, isn't it?"

PIN-WORMS GO! New Treatment Gets Real Results

Anyone who has ever had Pin-Worms knows how tormenting and embarrassing this affliction can be, and how hard it is to eliminate the ugly crawling creatures once they get a foothold inside the body. Millions of people—rich and poor, children and grown-ups—have suffered in silence with the miseries of Pin-Worms, and doctors have tried for years to find a way to deal with this pest. Old-fashioned worm "syrups" usually don't work on Pin-Worms. Today, thanks to an important scientific discovery (a remarkable drug known as gentian violet), a new and highly effective treatment has been hailed by doctors. This drug is the vital element in P-W, the new Pin-Worm tablets developed by the laboratories of Dr. D. Jayne & Son, America's leading specialists in worm medicines. P-W makes it easy to deal with Pin-Worms. The small, convenient P-W tablets act in a special way to destroy the creatures. Don't take chances with Pin-Worms! Just ask your druggist for P-W, and be sure to follow the directions. P-W means Pin-Worm relief!

Victory Parley About Completed With Timing As Major Question

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
Associated Press Staff Writer

QUEBEC, Sept. 13.—The high strategy of the second Quebec war conference was all but complete tonight—a result of "splendid progress" by President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill on a formula for final victory over a reeling but still formidable Axis.

Discussions will continue for three or four days in the guarded bastions of Quebec's Citadel. But it became apparent that they will be devoted largely to filling in gaps in war plans already drafted in broad outline.

The major decisions which confronted Roosevelt and Churchill on their second wartime excursion to this provincial capital now have been made.

Possible Joint Statement

Probably the deliberations of the President and Prime Minister will adjourn this week-end with a joint pronouncement discussing those decisions in the most general terms. That has not been finally decided, but it has been the pattern of the past.

This year's Quebec conference has been billed officially as a "beat Japan" assemblage. But developments during the day underscored the fact that the wars in the Pacific and in Europe are linked inseparably by problems of manpower, shipping, supply, overall strategy and timing.

Mr. Roosevelt himself asserted:

This is a conference to get the best we can out of the combined British and United States war efforts in the Pacific and in Europe. We are working in consonance with the situation in China, the Pacific and in Europe, coordinating our efforts with those of our Allies, particularly the Chinese and the Russians."

Others Are Called In

The official announcements were that these men were coming to Quebec:

Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, American war shipping administrator; his British counterpart, Lord Leathers, has been present from the start, and the fact that Land was joining him stressed the importance of shipping for the shifting of American and British war power to the Pacific upon the defeat of Germany; Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau, who, with Secretary of State Hull and Secretary of War Stimson, form a cabinet committee on economic problems rooted in war; Sir William Glasgow, Australian high commissioner to Canada; R. M. Firth, acting New Zealand high commissioner; Richard Law, British minister of state, who is stopping off to see Churchill before attending the UNRRA conference in Montreal.

Early Conclusion Seen

While these announcements were coming from the Chateau Frontenac, the President and Prime Minister met with their chiefs of staff at the Citadel. Early said Mr. Roosevelt expects, "because of the splendid progress being made in the meetings here, that the business of the conference, insofar as he is concerned, will be concluded this week-end."

Assurances that Britain will toss her full power into the conquest of Japan came from Robin Cruikshank, of the British information service.

To a question whether Churchill was telling Roosevelt of the part Britain would play in the Far East, Cruinkshank replied that the Prime Minister always had expressed an intention "to be in to the bitter end and right up to the neck." He added that he was sure that's what Churchill would say in private."

The government and people of England, heasserted, "are pledged heart and soul to see that thing through to the end."

Westerners Test Stadium Lights

The Lubbock Westerners started tapering off two weeks of extensive gridiron work, and are now awaiting the kickoff Friday night at Tech stadium for the season's opener with the Odessa Bronchos.

The Westerners face two weeks of the toughest test any high school team in the state will be called upon to face. Odessa and San Angelo's state championship Bobcats are rated just about the cream of the crop in Texas football this season, and the Westerners play them in this order.

Coach J. Mule Davis and Dixie White took the Westerners out to the stadium Wednesday night to give them a final polishing up of the attack under the lights.

Westerners Show Promise

The Westerners have looked good in pre-season workouts. The line has shown promise of being above the average, and for fleeting moments the backfield has shown signs of brilliance.

But the greatest problem on the part of Westerner coaches has been the search for second string replacements for the starters. There is capable relief on hand for some starters, but there are spots in the lineup that second string berths are a wide open battle.

But the Westerners still remain a big question mark as to their power this season, but the test of the next two weeks should give a very good indication on what can be expected of them.

Bronchos Rated High

The Odessa Bronchos will present a big, rugged football machine that many critics believe will battle the state champions on even terms in their own back yard this season.

Rival 3-AA coaches all vote the Odessa Broncho backfield as "the greatest backfield in Texas High school football." The Broncho backs are big, rugged, hard running lads.

Injuries have hit the Bronchos, just as it has the Westerners, and starting lineups for both teams are subject to change. Big Dennis Bates, letterman fullback, is not expected to start the game here Friday because of a knee injury, and Pug Gabriel, his understudy, set up more of a problem when he chipped a small bone in his foot during a recent workout. J. W. Thompson, another letterman back, is expected to step into the fullback slot for the Lubbock game.

A squad of 33 men is expected to make the trip here from Odessa, with Odessa ready to shoot the works to avenge the 18 to 6 defeat handed them last season by the Westerners. It was in the Odessa game that Jim Joe Reiger, Lubbock wingman, scored three touchdowns in two minutes of play to win the game almost singlehanded.

Gus Sonnenberg Dies In Naval Hospital

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP) — Gus Sonnenberg, 44, credited with introducing the "flying tackle" to professional wrestling, died last night of leukemia at the Bethesda, Md., Naval hospital.

Sonnenberg, who had served as a Navy chief specialist at Great Lakes, Ill., and Bainbridge, Md., had been ill eight months.

He came to wrestling prominence by defeating Ed (Strangler) Lewis in Boston when Lewis was recognized as world champion.

AL Race Recalls Battle In 1922

NEW YORK, Sept. 13. (AP)—Memories of New York's one-game pennant victory over St. Louis in 1922 were revived today by the current Yankee surge—but the picture was only a blurred image of the original.

Twenty-two years ago, as Miller Huggins and Lee Fohl led their teams down the stretch, the race wa sstrictly a two-club affair. Detroit, third under Manager Ty Cobb, was 15 lengths back. Now four clubs are involved.

St. Louis was the powerhouse in 1922 with a batting average of .313, and first baseman George Sisler's .420 was the individual "tops." Th current Brownies are seventh in team hitting, with an anemic. 255.

Detroit, despite the hitting of Cobb, Harry Heilmann and Fats Fothergill, never was a factor in 1922 because of weak pitching. The hurling was called "unreliable," in contrast to the brilliant two-man staff of Hal Newhouser and Dizzy Trout this season.

Boston trailed a hopeless last in '22, giving up most of its good players to the Yanks in periodic talent raids. The Red Sox were last in hitting that year at .263, but the 1944 averages show them setting the league's pace at .275, and boasting the loop's three top batsmen in Pete Fox, Bobby Doerr and Bob Johnson.

Where were the present flag-seeking skippers in 1922? Joe McCarthy of the Yanks was finishing another season at Louisville, Joe Cronin of the Red Sox was a 15-year-old San Francisco schoolboy, and Steve O'Neill of Detroit was Cleveland's first string catcher, with an able assistant named Luke Sewell, now head of the Browns.

HUNTSVILLE PLAYS CONROE

HUNTSVILLE, Sept. 13 (UP) — Huntsville fans will get their first 1944 taste of football Friday night when the Huntsville High school Hornets tangle with the Class AA Conroe High Tigers.

Schlinkman Delivers Score And Dell Morgan's Promise

At the close of Wednesday afternoon's practice session at Texas Tech, Coach Dell Morgan was telling eleven of his Red Raiders, "I told you so."

Late in the practice session, Morgan took a look at the offensive lineup that was champing at the bit to get some action, and turned to the rough and rugged defense across the line of scrimmage.

"I'm going to hit you guys hard and fast, and take this lineup here and score a touchdown in five plays," Morgan told them. The defense didn't believe it could be done from the 50 yard line.

First Play Fizzled

Play No. 1 fizzled when Hawkins fumbled the ball on the snapback from center, and lost a yard. The defense was all grins as they waited for the next play.

Walter Schlinkman, the Dumas Demon, went into action, took the ball on the handoff from Hawkins, smashed through a gaping hole in the left side of his line and stormed down to the 25 yard line before they could rope him in.

The defense traded grins for scowls and lined up again. Hawkins took the ball again, cut to his right, then flipped a lateral off to Schlinkman. There were a few nice blocks to shake the chunky Dumas lad into the secondary, and Schlinkman took care of it the rest of the way, and went across the goal line standing up.

It looked like the Schlinkman of old on those two plays, and also added much to the hopes of the Red Raiders.

Defense Braces Up

It might be said for that rugged defense on the other side, they didn't let it happen again. Schlinkman didn't make any more tries, but several other backfield combinations tried without success.

Outstanding in that defensive line was a pair of wingmen and a tackle. Jack "Spider" Dillon and Seth Murphy were smashing through time after time to stop offensive threats, and big Don Grove at tackle was looking good.

Outstanding man in the defensive backfield was Leroy Clements, 172 pound linebacker from Hobbs, N. M., who was in on almost every tackle.

The Red Raider squad was given an additional cut Wednesday when Louis Leal and Hoot Gibson left for their homes in Paris. Both were backfield candidates that had looked very promising during the fall practice sessions.

Wednesday's work was devoted mostly to polishing the attack of the club, and continuing the search of the squad for a man to step into the attack as the starting point of the passing attack.

Major League Gates Show Great Increase

CHICAGO, Sept. 13. (AP)—American League attendance this year will show an amazing increase of 1,000,000 over 1943.

President Will Harridge, in revealing figures today, said that to date the league has drawn 4,185,000 customers which is 500,000 more than it drew all last season. With four clubs currently engaged in a throat-to-throat battle for the championship that may not be decided until the wind-up of the season Oct. 1, another 500,000 is expected to be added, with a break in weather, to produce the 1,000,000 increase.

Only St. Louis and Cleveland are under 500,000 and each has 17 home games remaining, including battles with the league leading Yankees and the threatening Red Sox and Tigers, so they'll prbably hit the 500,000 mark by season end.

Detroit will show a terrific increase over 1943. If the Tigers had been in the pennant scramble from the start instead of becoming blistering hot only in recent weeks, they might have attracted upward of 1,600,000 to break all major league records.

Pirates Pound Cards For Pair

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 13. (AP) — Pounding St. Louis pitching for 19 hits, the rampaging second-place Pittsburgh Pirates won their second double-header in two nights from the league-leading Cardinals. The scores were 7 to 3 and 10 to 5..

The double victory ran the Pirates' record to nine consecutive conquests over St. Louis and cut the Cardinals lead to 13 1-2 games.

Meadow, Tahoka "B" Open Season Today

TAHOKA, Sept. 13 (Special)—The football season on the South Plains will be opened here today with the Tahoka "B" team playing host to the Class B Meadow eleven.

The game will jump the gun by one day on other games in this area, and ahead of the Class A Tahoka Bulldogs invasion of Lamesa on Friday. Football will have a general opening on the South Plains on that date.

Football is reaching a new peak in this city this season with three teams playing a full-time schedule. Besides the Bulldogs and "B" team, Tahoka has the "Pups" in junior high. The Pups play a six-game schedule which will open in Lubbock Sept. 28 against the Cowboys there.

Dobbs Signs To Play With New York Pros

NEW YORK, Sept. 13 (AP)—Lt. Glenn Dobbs of the U. S. Army Air Corps and former football star of the University of Tulsa, signed a two-year contract with the New York eleven of the newly formed All-America Football Conference, it was announced today by the club's owners, Mrs. Lou Gehrig and Ray Ryan. The salary was not disclosed.

Dobbs is believed to be the first player signed by the new organization which was formed in Chicago early this month and will not operate until 1945.

Dobbs, who played with Randolph Field in Texas last year, and expects to play with his air base's football team at Colorado Springs, this season, was voted the most valuable All-Star player in their game against the Chicago Bears at Evanston last month.

OUR PLEDGE

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands; One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

The Future Of Rationing

FROM many of the participants in a recent national rationing conference in Chicago have come assurances that no new rationing is planned. They have reported further that the meeting will result in improved administration of the rationing that is necessary, which is all to the good.

In giving the assurance that no extensions of these restrictions is contemplated, the officials may be saving themselves many a headache. It would be difficult to persuade most Americans that there could be justifications for additional rationing.

Yet those who will consider prospects calmly, and without prejudice, may have to admit that further rationing may be come advisable, if not necessary, before this nation and the world cross the post-war period of re-adjustment to one of approximate normalcy.

Indications are that final victory, at the latest, will be the signal for boom buying of many things obtainable in very limited quantities—and, in some cases, not at all—during the war. This may include such things as automobiles, refrigerators, electrical appliances and scores of other items.

Anyone should perceive that, for awhile after victory, it will be impossible for production of many, if not all, of these items to keep pace with demand. If left entirely without controls, there might be such bidding for the articles available as to force prices to fantastic heights. This, in turn, would offer the temptation to try to keep supplies scarce—which would mean fewer jobs—in order to sustain high prices.

So, whether we like the prospect or not, regulations may be necessary to accomplish a two-fold purpose: First, to guard against inflationary prices resulting from the sudden release of accumulated demand; and, second, to guard against favoritism or discrimination in the distribution of the merchandise available.

Consequently, caution might be appropriate now in speaking loosely of the "evils" of expanded rationing. It is more than conceivable that all of us will be demanding something of that kind before too long.

Shadows Of Coming Events

THE reports that unrest is spreading among the masses of the Latin-Americas properly disturb those who are hopeful that the present war will be followed by an enduring peace. However, the reports should cause no surprise—nor have they surprised the best authorities on Latin-America.

These reports, in which full credence seems to be placed in official quarters—including those of the countries affected—are that many advocates of Fascist, Nazi, Communist and other isms have transferred their activities to Central and South America.

They have perceived the inevitability of collapse of the Axis. Consequently they are attempting to nourish the roots of dangerous doctrines which already had flourished or taken root in many of the countries of the Western Hemisphere. These troublemakers, who are of the type that pull strings from behind the scenes, have transferred their headquarters from Rome, Berlin and Madrid—so the reports go—to Latin-America. From there they are attempting to carry on activities interrupted in Europe.

It would be absurd to try to deny that much, if not all, the Latin-American field may be fertile for them. While all Latin-American countries are republics, none is a democracy in the sense that people of the United States understand the term. Some of our neighbors, like Mexico, have relatively liberal governments. Others, like Argentina, are as totalitarian under military dictators as Adolf Hitler ever was. Most, if not all, come closer to being dictatorships than democracies.

Without an exception, their populations consist of very small groups who have most of the wealth and who rule, and very large groups who have virtually nothing. No Latin-American country has a great middle class comparable to that of the United States. Those countries have only the extremes of great wealth and abject poverty.

Indeed, it is not surprising that unrest may be spreading in Latin-America. It is one of the powder kegs of the post-war world, and it might as well be recognized as such. It is infinitely better to recognize the danger, and try to do something about it, than try to ignore something that will not continue ignored indefinitely.

"Save your money for a rainy day" and the New Deal will tax it away from you and buy an umbrella for some loafer.

The One Minute Sermon

O clap your hands, all ye people; shout unto God with the voice of triumph.

For the Lord most high is terrible; he is a great King over all the earth.

He shall subdue the people under us, and the nations under our feet.

He shall choose our inheritancee for us, the excellancy of Jacob whom he loved. Selah.—Psalms 47:1-4.

The Life Of Eisenhower

By Francis Trevelyan Miller

(Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.)

"BEST LIKED AND LEAST SOCIAL . . ."

XV

The speed and efficiency with which Eisenhower works and acts was demonstrated to correspondents who complained about military censorship in England. The general asked for specific complaints and found that there were only two censors who were working 24-hour stretches. After hearing the complaint late in the afternoon, correspondents found he had remedied the situation when they discovered four censors at work the next morning.

In England Eisenhower soon became a pleasant legend and was known as the "best liked and least social of American officers."

His treatment of military men is unique and informal. Correspondents one day overheard the following conversation.

"Hello . . . Yes, this is Ike . . . Hello, Betty. How are you, Betty? . . . Will I have lunch with you? . . . Sure, Betty, I'll see you at one." He then faced the bewildered correspondents and sair, "Great fellow, Betty."

This was too much for Leonard Lyons, who exclaimed, "Great fellow? What kind of man's name is Betty?"

Eisenhower replied, "Since Admiral Stark graduated from the Naval Academy his nickname has been Betty. All his friends call him Betty, and I'm one of his friends. We lunch a lot. Get a lot of things done that way."

Since the beginning of his command in Europe, the general eschewed all social gatherings for the duration of the war. This policy was decided upon when, at a London party, he found himself at the handshaking end of a receiving line of 2600 persons.

War needs all this time, the general believes, and as a result he prefers the quick interview to the formal conference. He hates dawdling and unnecessary respect. When a junior officer hesitated before entering his office, Ike growled, "Look here, dammit, if you have anything, bring it in. Don't act like this was a boudoir."

He ate at "home" while he was in London because a standing rule forbids smoking in British club dining rooms. Not knowing of this regulation he once lit up in a club after a meat course and was immediately corrected by his host and some waiters. After this experience he ate in the hotel suite that was his London home.

"Eisenhower Flat" was guarded by U. S. Marines. On the top floor, the general's offices were located. The exact situation of the General Headquarters was kept a semi-secret, for a bomb dropped judiciously by the Germans would have netted them a fine plum.

General Eisenhower's suite was composed of a living room, a bath room, and two bedrooms. He chose the place because the pretentiousness of the lobby of his previous quarters was too much for him.

"It made me feel as though I were living in sin," he said.

The general lived in London with his close personal friend and naval aide, Lieutenant Commander Harry C. Butcher.

The two men closest to General Eisenhower are Butcher and "Mickey" McKeogh, the general's orderly. "Butch," now 43, is a village boy from Fairgville, Ia. His wife and General Eisenhower's wife were intimate friends and lived together in Washington after their husbands left for the war.

It is said that when General Eisenhower was assigned to command the European war theater, the general's wife called Butcher over the phone and broke the news to him.

"I'm going with him!" Butcher replied. He immediately resolved to get himself assigned to his friend's staff. Butcher gets what he goes after, and thus we find him aide to General Eisenhower.

Sergt. "Mickey" McKeogh, the general's orderly, hails from Corona, in Queens. Mickey as a bellboy at the Plaza Hotel in New York when war broke out. Entering the service of Uncle Sam, he was sent to Texas. Eisenhower, then conducting maneuvers, spotted Mickey as a lad with "the right stuff in him."

When it was discvoered that Mickey was a whiz at the wheel of an automobile, he was assigned as Ike's chauffeur. They were soon to be separated, however. The "boss" was called to Washington and made a major general, and Mickey was left behind at Fort Sam Houston in Texas. But Major-General Eisenhower did not forget him. He sent for Mickey to come to the nation's capital.

"Mickey," exclaimed the the major general, "how would you like to go to London with me?"

Mickey said he was "flabbergasted." "Sure," he said. "I'll go anywhere you go, general."

"All right," Eisenhower replied. "Go home and get your mother's permission."

Let Mother McKeogh, back home in Corona, tell the rest of this story. "My permission? Why nothing on earth could keep Mickey from going to the ends of the earth if the general said so!"

General Eisenhower also shared his quarters with a Scotty puppy, an acquisition of the general's after he stamped into his office one day and asked whether there was any regulation forbidding his keeping a pet. Informed that there wasn't, he said, "I want a dog. I need somebody to talk to. And I want somebody who can't ask questions about the war and cannot repeat what I say if I say anything."

The staff chipped in and purchased the puppy, which was named "Telek" and was housebroken by the staff.

Transfer Certificate Required For Autos

Lubbock county used car dealers and individual sellers now must file a certificate of transfer with the Lubbock County War Price and Rationing board reporting their purchases of used cars, the District Office of Price Administration has announced.

Dealers, and other sellers engaged in the business of selling used cars, are also required to file with the board, not later than Sept. 21, a report of all used cars in their stocks as of Sept. 11. Blanks for such filing are available at the board now.

Water Conservation Meeting Scheduled

AUSTIN, Sept. 13: (AP)—A statewide water conservation conference will be held here on October 2, C. S. Clark, chairman of the board of water engineers, said today.

Clark urged that "all Texans interested in the development of Texas water resources" attend this meeting which will seek to accomplish the following:

1. Re-organize the Texas watersheds association, or form some similar organizations to coordinate the plans and activities of the various interest in Texas with regard to development, conservation and utilization of the state's water resources.

2. Promote and support all meritorious water conservation projects which will furnish employment to returning soldiers.

3. Work for all needful and helpful legislation, both state and national, pertaining to water conservation, and vigorously oppose legislation which threatens to interfere with state rights in the control, distribution and use of the state's rivers and streams.

The U. S. S. R. stretches from east to west half way across the world.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

SEVERAL friends have told me recently that they had intended to buy homes, but that they are holding off because after the war there will be an entirely new type of home on the market.

They are waiting for all those new gadgets that are going to make housekeeping so easy; they are waiting for those dream-places that you put together in a few hours and take apart and move whenever you get tired of a neighborhood.

They are waiting for Utopia, which they expect to come next year, at the very latest.

In view of all this optimism I was interested in a tire company's magazine advertisement which was headed: "These are fundamental." Here is how it read in part:

"Homes and families; practical, efficient schools; church leadership that makes devotion to religion a spiritual inspiration; elimination of class hatred and resumption of mutual confidence and interest in each other; employment for all who want it and independence for everyone who will work for it; these are fundamentals for normal and continued prosperity.

"Helicopters, ultra-streamlined motor cars, household conveniences akin to magic . . . may be highly desirable, many of them doubtless attainable . . . but the pursuit of that happiness which is guaranteed to every citizen by our Constitution rests on simpler, more fundamental things."

Yes, I agree, happiness is not won by gadgets but by the simple, fundamental things.

AS I told you some time ago, we are moving to a new home. We looked at nearly 100 places, mostly in Connecticut because that happens to be our favorite state.

The real estate agents showed us all kinds of houses, many of them fitted with chromium conveniences, electrical innovations, air-conditioning, push buttons and lots of other time and labor savers.

None of them registered, although we considered several.

Then we came across a 100-year-old house in Brookfield Center, one of Connecticut's oldest villages.

It stands in a grove of maple trees. There are lilacs and wistarias, an old well and an old red barn, a grape arbor and climbing roses and wide-board floors—and 100 years of living and tradition and New England sturdiness and honesty and simplicity in that house and the acres that go with it.

The moment we set foot in that house both my wife and I said: "That's our home."

Oh, the plumbing isn't all that it should be, and its a bit far from a bus line, and the winters will be cold.

But we dont care; we know we will be happy in that house, because it has the things for which we have always been looking—and "These are fundamental."

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

THE ROOSEVELT administration's political favoritism to Sidney Hillman's CIO unions has played hob with all industrial and labor plans for postwar reconversion.

Washington's partisan tie-up with the New York labor czar, whose factory activities may return FDR to the White House, threatens to blockade any program for economic demobilization.

Representatives of all interests involved in this problem recently huddled at Spring Lake, New Jersey. Among the men who were invited to be present were officials of the CIO, the American Federation of Labor, the National Association of Manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce of the United States. The hope was to frame a post-bellum blueprint which would benefit both industry and agriculture.

But the organizers of the conference received a wire from Matthew Woll, vice president of the American Federation of Labor, announcing that he would not attend if the CIO was to be given equal voice and representation there and at the Atlantic City and subsequent meetings.

It is obvious that no postarmistice arrangement can be made unless the AFL, which has approximately 6,000,000 members, participates. But in the White House alliance with the CIO William Green's boys have become back numbers. They will have no say in Atlantic City or in Washington if FDR is re-elected.

FEET: American chiropodists have declared a private war on the Army, and it begins to look as if the foot doctors may win.

Despite the motorization and mechanization of our overseas forces, the big battles are finally won by marching troops. The GI infantrymen, met the aerial or naval forces, in the end will crush Hitler and Hirohito. But before they walk into Berlin and Tokyo, their "dogs" will be sore.

The chiropodists of the United States for the last three years have asked the Surgeon General's office to commission their men so that they could advise medical officers and nurses on methods of teaching noncoms how to combat foot ailments.

But the SG's department, dominated by the physicians' trust, has steadfastly refused to make this innovation. It does not regard chiropody as a medical science, although 90 per cent of the enlisted men drawn from this profession have been assigned to the task of explaining to soldiers the proper care of their penal extremities.

JOINING: Natural Chairman Bob Hannegan recently joined the famed Jefferson Island club, a Democratic organization which has a luxurious establishment on Chesapeake Bay, about 60 miles from Washington.

It was there that FDR staged a love feast with disgruntled Democratic members of Congress after his demand for enlargement of the Supreme court antagonized his supporters on Capitol Hill.

Hannegan forwarded a $100 check for an associate membership, which was all right with the officials. They wrote him a letter of thanks for his action. But the paper on which it was written carried a letterhead which set forth, as a fundamental club principle, Jefferson's philosophy of government, including his declaration against a third term.

Bob, in sending in his payment, took a demurrer on a third and fourth by explaining that the "present crisis" justifies a man in asking 16 years in White House.

GALLANTRY: Old and beloved "Charley" Michelson, the most famous or notorious political publicist in American history, is telling his bridge, poker and domino gamins at the National Press club one of the best human interest stories of the war. The former New York World reporter has the gift of imagination, but he swears to the truth of this anecdote.

Two United States pursuit planes were flying across the Mediterranean from Africa to Italy. The pilot of the second ship was a greenhorn, and got lost. So he radioed his companion asking for his bearings and directions. For an hour or more he begged his veteran spearhead to send him data that would enable him to land at the appointed spot in Italy. But there was no reply to his frantic pleas for help.

Finally, according to Charley, a German submarine down below wirelessed this message to the stricken aviator:

'Your bearings are so-and-so. Fly straight on your course for 200 miles, and you will land on an airfield just south of Rome which you Yanks captured yesterday. And, by the way, brother, you are using yesterday's American code. That's why your buddy up ahead did not answer your distress calls!"

It seems, according to the nonchivalrous Michelson, that there is some spirit of medieval gallantry in this war, especially among the air and naval combatants.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Leman

EVEN the purblind Japanese leaders are aware that they are to be belted and battered out of the war in the near future.

Hirohito's rescript and Koiso's message to the diet assembled last week were cries of alarm. Earlier the prime minister had warned, "The United States intends to strike at our homeland in a single blow."

Other Tokyo mouthpieces in "fishing expeditions" hint that our attack will come at Davao in the Philippines, in the Bonins, the Moluccas, Formosa or in the Kuril Islands, the nearest point to the Aleutians. They know that every spot in their archipelago is now a danger zone and potential invasion beach.

OPTIMISM: Our intelligence has received reports of recent frantic attempts to bolster the cracking Nipponese war machine. Synthetic oil refineries are being rushed to completion in Japan itself to offset the probable loss of East Indian petroleum wells. Wooden landing barges are being constructed for counterattacks in case we plunge ashore on some of the larger strategic islands near Nippon.

Conviction gains ground in Washington and London high circles that the Pacific war will not be a long-drawn-out ordeal of endurance but that in a matter of months we can choke off Japanese supplies and smash their brittle empire with a few powerful punches.

This optimism also pervades the thinking of our field officers and naval commanders on active duty in the Orient who are acquainted with intelligence memoranda about the enemy and statistics on the magnitude of our preparations.

FLIES: Those with firsthand experience in battle inform privately that the Japs aren't what they used to be. Apparently many of the crack professionals of the early Bataan-Singapore-Guadalcanal days have been killed off. Defenders in the Marshalls and the Marianas were stubborn "last ditchers" and suicidal fanatical and by reason of their numbers exacted a heavy toll of American lives.

But they haven't their old skill. Or, as one U. S. Marine officer—a veteran of the sanguinary Saipan battle—says, "They're rotten fighters." Either this lot has not acquired the "know-how" or the equipment, intelligence and morale of the Americans are so superior that the Jap no longer can be compared with the Yank.

An officer from New Guinea reveals that the Nips in the Aitape area refuse to scrap with overwhelming odds against them or to starve to death for the emperor who has forgotten them. Rest houses have been built along escape routes for the recuperation of runaways. Patches have been cleared deep in the bush and planted with quick-growing vegetables and greens to feed those in flight.

These signs of enemy weakness should not lull us into believing that an assignment in the Far East is a sort of vacation hunting trip or bird walk. Rooting out the Japanese in jungles or on islands is a dangerous, unhealthy, back-breaking, lonely business. After combat ends, there are always the plagues of flies and the sores from even minor scratches that fail to heal in that awful climate.

Texas Oil Plays Big Role In War Effort Of Nation

By GORDON SHEARER
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, Sept. 13 (U.P.) — Most Texans know that the state's oil wells are producing nearly half as much as the rest of the states combined, but few are aware of the other petroleum liquids which play such an essential role in the war effort.

Included in the monthly certifications as to demand for Texas oil sent to the State Railroad commission by the U. S. Petroleum Administration for War is the amount of desired production of condensate and natural gasoline.

Chief use of these petroleum liquids is in the making of explosives, the reining of 100-octane aviation gasoline and in the manufacture of butadiene, which is used in making synthetic rubber that came into production when foreign sources of raw rubber fell to the Axis.

Big Contribution Made

The contribution of these products — explosives, high octane gasoline and rubber —has been terrific to the war effort.

Currently the state is producing about 148,000 barrels daily of condensate and naturals. This compares with the nation's entire output of 289,000 barrels.

Because of its regulatory powers over the condensates and naturals, the Texas Railroad Commission has been given restricted and confidential information about their use by the War Department. After hostilities cease, if the part they have played in knocking out the Axis can be told the contribution will prove shocking.

Looking toward days of peace, the tremendous use of condensate and naturals which has been caused by the war should afford continued large industrial development.

THE RECENT visit last week to Austin of Lt. Col. Carl Phinney, on leave from Italy as Division quartermaster on the 36th Division General staff, was one of rare enjoyment to Col. Ernest O. Thompson of the Texas Railroad commission.

Phinney started his soldiering under Thompson's instructions back in the early 30's. That was when Thompson was commander of the 111th Quartermaster regiment, the first of its kind created, of the National Guard.

Using a large red-penciled map which Thompson has in his office, the pair traced the spectacular drive made by the 36th Division. Thompson said it was the longest drive ever made by a unit until the invasion of Normandy.

Phinney, formerly a Dallas attorney, told of leaving Naples on a boat and meeting another officer who was in charge of the military personnel on the ship. Learning Phinney was a Texan, he asked if he knew Thompson.

When Phinney said he did, the officer said he served as a sergeant under Thompson in World War I.

Potent Stuff

Houston residents were nonplussed when they saw a man running around the top of a two-story building vigorously sweeping at the sky.

Soon the police arrived and asked if they could be of any assistance.

"I wish you would get these mules down from the roof. They're bothering me," said the man, starting to hit at the sky again with his broom.

The officers put the man to bed to sleep it off.

"Potent stuff," they agreed.

Soldier Held In Raid At Station

Lubbock police Wednesday turned over to military authorities a soldier reported by H. K. Permenter, operator of a service station at Fifteenth and Avenue Q, as having grabbed a handful of gasoline rationing coupons from his cash register along with $40 in cash.

Permenter told police the soldier, one of his regular customers, tried to cajole him into taking out-dated stamps for the ones in the cash register drawer. Later, when Permenter opened the drawer, the soldier grabbed the stamps and quickly replaced them with some of his own, he related.

$40 Cash Missing

Permenter said about that time he had to wait on a customer. When he came back $40 was missing from the till, and so was the soldier.

Police said the soldier is a private stationed at Lubbock Army Air field.

Several burglaries and thefts came to the attention of police.

Other Burglaries

Henry L. Bobo, operator of a barber shop at 1103 College Avenue, said $40 was taken from his place Thursday night. Five gallons of motor oil were taken from a Sinclair warehouse, 719 Avenue F. A "letter-writing" thief took $8 in stamps from one office in the Conley building as well as stamps from many other offices in the structure, police said.

Officers were asked by the Hockley county sheriff's department to look for possible marketing here of a set of pipe dies and two sets of wrenches, valued at $100, taken from a gin at Anton.

Japanese Agree To POW Cablegrams

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (AP)—The Japanese government has agreed to permit all American prisoners of war in Japanese custody to send a 10-word cablegram to their next of kin at American government expense, the Red Cross reported tonight.

The agreement is not expected to become operative for at least a month, a Red Cross spokesman said.

She agreed to abolish racial discriminatory laws and to lock up all German and Hungarian nationals on her soil except Jews.

All Allied war prisoners and interned persons are to be repatriated at Romanian expense, and persons interned for favoring the Allies must be freed.

Romania also must return all property taken from the Soviet Union and all property in Romania of other United Nations.

Reparations Payment

The biggest reparation item was the equivalent of $300,000,000, with American dollars specified as the yardstick, to be paid by Romania to Russia in goods, industrial equipment and foodstuffs over a six-year period.

The armistice specifically declared that this was acknowledged to be only a part payment of the damage done Russia by Romanian troops but was scaled down by virtue of Romania's active participation in the war against Germany and Hungary.

Damage to property of other Allied nations and their citizens is to be paid in amounts to be fixed later.

Domestically, Romania promised a clean sweep of Fascism, abolishing any Hitlerite or Fascistic parties and militaristic organizations.

The armistice is to be supervised by an Allied Control commission.

Blows In Pacific

Wing hit storage and magazine areas at Jaluit, in the Marshalls, and Thunderbolts plastered Pagan island, in the Marianas, with bombs and rockets.

As the Pacific war was stepped up, interest in the Quebec conference of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill increased. Possibly one of their objectives is to select an overall commander of the Pacific theater. Most reports indicate that an American Navy man may get the call.

But Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey, campaigning in the United States, called upon the Allied leaders to give General MacArthur a wider scope to command that the Southwest Pacific.

The general, himself, was busy directing air blows against Celebes, Halmahera and Mindanao islands, northwest of the New Guinea coast.

Battle shattered southwest China saw Japanese forces fan down from recently captured Hengyang south and west toward Kewilin. Bitter fighting raged as the revived enemy drive on Hoisong (Luichow) peninsula was checked on the extreme southeast coast.

have before him for certification to the county clerks for printing on the November ballot two sets of electors, both purporting to be the electors of the Democratic party.

Must Rule On List

Sometime before October 18, he must rule on which of these is in his opinion the correct list. It was expected that no matter which way he ruled, the losing side would take action in the form of an original mandamus filed with the state Supreme court, seeking to compel him to certify that side's slate.

Other resolutions unanimously adopted favored legislative redistricting of the state by the 49th legislature; asked that the legislature make a study of the office of the veterans' service officer in the face of the prospect of the return to civil life of war veterns; warmly commended the administration of Governor Coke R. Stevenson; praising President Roosevelt in glowing terms.

Demands For Loyalty

The Roosevelt Democrats, in firm control, roared approval of demands for unqualified party loyalty by persons taking part in Democratic conventions.

"The boos of May have turned to boo-hoos in September," cried former Gov. James V. Allred, ardent Roosevelt leader named permanent chairman.

He was referring to the regular May convention, which named 23 presidential electors who were only conditionally bound to vote for the national party's nominees. When the national convention failed to abide by these conditions, 15 of the electors indicated they would vote for Sen. Harry F. Byrd for president.

Governor Speaks

The convention heard Governor Coke R. Stevenson, who has often disagreed with national administration policies, predict "a complete victory for the Democratic ticket for top to bottom" in Texas in November.

"I have always been a Democrat," the governor said. "My record for party loyalty has been unbroken from my first vote to my last."

The convention gave him a standing ovation, shouting its approval. Earlier in the day, Stevenson had said he would not appear, but changed his plan after convention leaders and friends urged him to accept an invitation to speak.

"No Right To Vote"

Allred, naming E. B. Germany of Dallas and John H. Crooker of Houston, two of the regular electors, shouted:

"They have no right to cast a vote for the absent soldier. We have taken their names off the list."

"I can understand people being against Roosevelt if they want to be. But I can't understand why, if they are against him, they don't join the Republicans or organize a Byrd party."

A motion from the floor that the name of J. E. McDonald, nominated for commissioner of agriculture, be stricken from the list to be certified to the secretary of state for printing on the November ballot was withdrawn.

Agrees With Purpose

Allred said he would hold it out of order "although I agree with the the

Jittery Moments Precede Jeep's Turn Of Corner In Rapid Drive

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH THE AEF IN SOUTHERN FRANCE, Sept. 9. (Delayed)—A reconnaissance jeep carrying three men paused a couple of hundred yards from the next bend in the winding, forest-shaded road. It headed a flying column, just like scores of other such jeeps armed only with machineguns mounted between the seats. It headed columns along the entire breadth of the Seventh Army's drive up through France.

DIXON

Ahead lay enemy territory. The question of whether the next turn was going to bring the sharp sound of a German machine pistol was about to be answered again.

It is always easy to tell yourself ahead of time, "Well, I'm willing to take my chances along with the rest of the guys and depend on the percentages to pull me through."

But when a "smizer's" ugly snout may be poking between the eaves waiting for you to round the next bend the only percentage is whether the gun is there or it isn't.

The driver was thinking, "I oughta make 'em go ahead afoot. This is a hell of a way for me to get it, because some fool doesn't know there's danger ahead. I oughta stay right here."

The column reconnaissance captain was thinking, "probably I should park the jeep here and take my time finding out if there is anything there. No use being a fool about it. If I go up afoot I'll have an even break. In this jeep we are all sitting ducks. No use being eager at this stage of the war."

Reporter Thinks Also

This reporter was thinking, "I oughta get out and let them go ahead if they are big enough fools. It would be different if I knew there was a big story around there but after all, how do I know there's anything up ahead worth writing about?"

For a minute nobody spoke. Flattened down against the jeep's hood, the windshield still carried three holes from the last time a machine-pistol expert ambushed it. The aim had been bad, but not very bad.

They all were remembering another jeep smashed against a bank a few kilometers back—how a sergeant and a lieutenant lay slumped out across the reddish brown earth.

Thinking about it made them all a little sick.

"Well," said the captain suddenly, "if we took time to walk around every little corner, the whole army still would be back in the beachhead. What say we keep rolling?"

Driver Shifts Viciously

"Okay by me, sir," said the driver belligerently, as he shifted viciously into low gear. The captain swore loudly as the jeep lurched forward, rapidly picking up speed.

Wide open, the jeep hit the bend of the road at full speed, gambling that there were no mines or road blocks ahead. The reporter in the middle wondered in weak selfishness if a man's body on either side was sufficient to halt a machine pistol slug.

Nothing happened. No smizer's stuttering slaughter, no crack of a carbine bullet, no explosion of a mine—nothing slowed the jeep's careening speed. Behind it the flying column roared around the corner. An hour later everybody was laughing and joking in a little French tavern in the next town. The Germans had been gone a couple of hours.

Byrnes, Bowles Differ On Consumer Prices

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13 (U.P.)—War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes and Price Chief Chester Bowles today were revealed to be in disagreement over prices that consumers will pay for civilian goods which go back into production after the defeat of Germany.

Byrnes proposed a method of pricing which, if carried out, would mean a blanket increase over pre-war prices for virtually all items returning to the market. Bowles, however, favored a plan whereby many major items, such as automobiles, would not be any higher.

In his report to President Roosevelt on reconversion last Saturday, Byrnes said "it would be feasible" for the OPA to set a general ceiling for articles out of civilian production for some time "at a fixed percentage above the prices charged for such articles before civilian production ceased.

Bowles made his stand clear in a recent report on reconversion pricing, in which he said that "while some commodities are going to come back at higher prices than they went out, not all of them will be higher."

One high official said automobiles may return to the market at the old prices, but that piano prices, for example, could be expected to be much higher since wages have risen sharply in this industry during the war.

Tech Registrations Reach Total Of 1,678

A total of 1,678 students had obtained permits to register at Texas Tech college for the 1944-45 fall semester at the close of the first formal registration day, Wednesday, it was announced by the registrar's office. This marks an increase over the enrollment at this time last fall, the office reported.

Today is the last formal registration day, with classes beginning Friday morning at 8 o'clock. Lubbock churches will conduct special services Sunday for Tech students.

Congress Holds 'Aces' On Peace

WASHINGTON, Sept. 13. (U.P.)—There were mounting indications today that the United States Congress, especially the Senate, will have the largest voice in the formulation of a future world security organization.

For all practical purposes the Senate, which will have to ratify the final treaty, holds all the aces—and all the other big powers know it. That is why Secretary of State Cordell Hull has consulted so meticulously at all stages with bipartisan groups from the Congress.

Other countries can give their final approval to treaties at the conference stage, without the necessity for legislative ratification as in this country. Spokesmen for all the big powers have never hidden their apprehension about the prospects of future peace if the U. S. Senate—as in 1920—should decide to stay out of the new organiaztion.

Confers With Solons

Hull's determination to keep representative members of Congress on his side this time was emphasized again by his conferences with three separate bipartisan Senate and House groups. He conferred with a Senate foreign relations subcommittee yesterday, met with a House group today, and sees the Ball-Burton-Hill-Hatch group tomorrow. He is advising them of the agreements already reached.

It is a common assumption in this capital that if the planners of a world organization came upon a point which the American delegates felt jeopardized Senate ratification, the other nations would recede from it in the interest of assuring United States participation.

FEMININE PRIVILEGE

HAGERMAN, Ida., Sept. 13 (U.P.)—A Mallard hen has built her nest in a tree 12 feet above the ground near here and so far has deposited eight eggs in it, Alonzo Brown, game department conservation officer, reports. "Wood ducks," averred Brown, "are the only ducks supposed to nest in trees — but, I guess, when a female gets a notion about where she wants to live, that's that."

Hoyt Altman Given Navy Commendation

The Eighth Naval district in Dallas announced Wednesday that Hoyt E. Altman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Altman, 2114 Fourteenth, Lubbock, a seaman second class, U. S. Navy, received a special commendation from the commanding officer of a naval air station in the Pacific.

The commendation pointed out that upon arriving at the scene within two minutes after a gasoline fire was observed, disregarding safety in approaching without hesitation in the face of intense heat and imminent danger of explosion of highly volatile aviation gasoline, he and his crew prevented an explosion.

Glider Handler Dies In SPAAF Accident

Pvt. Elvin R. McKenzie, 24, glider handler, was accidentally killed in a ground accident Tuesday night at the Idalou auxiliary field of South Plains Army Air field when he was struck by a tow rope, a board of officers appointed to determine cause of death, reported late Wednesday.

McKenzie was the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. A. McKenzie of Fresno, Calif.

The body was taken to Rix Funeral home, which said military authorities had made no announcements of when the body would be sent away.

With the assistance of Lanham Act funds, 3,902 war nurseries and child care centers have been established in which care is provided for about 215,000 U. S. children.

Dewey-Bricker Club To Organize Tonight

An election of officers will be held and organization plans discussed. It is expected that a Dewey-Bricker club will be formed in each precinct. Anti-Roosevelt Democrats are invited to attend.

Now, A Tooth Powder that Leaves Your Mouth Feeling Fresh as a Spring Morning

Sayman Tooth Powder does more than merely clean your teeth — does more than make them glisten and gleam. It leaves your mouth feeling really clean . . . and fresh as a spring morning. You'll say it's a grand and glorious feeling.

First thing in the morning and the last thing at night, put a little on your moist brush and swish it up and down, forward and back. Then rinse your mouth — and smile with joy. Notice now that your teeth feel really clean . . . your mouth really fresh.

The big 3-ounce package retails for only 25¢ — contains enough for 30 days or more — costs you less than 1¢ a day.
