Texas And Its Oil And Wealth

Blanton Report Shows Some Startling Figures On Petroleum World

HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD, Record News Staff Correspondent

OIL companies in Texas paid approximately $30,000,118.75 in royalty during the year 1925 and computed upon the present population of the state this would be equivalent to about $6.02 per capita.

Burt C. Blanton is responsible for the figures. He is the consulting industrial engineer who recently completed a scientific survey and report on the oil industry in the state.

Beginning approximately 40 years ago, he writes, with the first producing well located in Nacogdoches county having an initial output of a few hundred barrels, the production and refining of crude oil in Texas has developed into a gigantic industry of far greater magnitude than the average citizen has comprehended.

This should be obvious to all when attention is called to the fact by Engineer Blanton that the industry in Texas now employs 75,000 persons while oil production for the calendar year 1925 attained a peak of about 142,618,000 barrels and the aggregate value of petroleum products of all Texas refineries for the same year approximated $520,037,641.72.

HIS report shows there are now 1,850 different entities paying a production tax in Texas of which number the seven dominant companies pay 45.3 per cent, while other companies having a small interest in the state pay 4.5 per cent and the remaining 50.2 per cent is paid by smaller companies and individual operators.

In referring to oil refineries in the state the report says there are 100 now in operation, having an aggregate daily capacity of about 554,730 barrels, which is equivalent to approximately 19.2 per cent of the total daily capacity of all oil refineries in the United States.

Texas has a total of about 157 natural gasoline plants in operation at the present time, which have a daily capacity of 1,026,730 gallons as compared with the total of 1,144 natural gasoline plants in the United States with a combined daily capacity of 4,494,361 gallons.

In the report the consulting engineer called particular attention to the fact that the aggregate investment in refineries in Texas today approximated $309,813,250, which is equivalent to about 20.2 per cent of the investment in refineries in the United States which he says should serve to portray Texas' importance in the production and refining of oil as the states of the union in the production of this specific mineral wealth.

* * *

IT is announced that the Gulf, Humble, Magnolia Pure, United North and South and Big Lake companies produce about 40 per cent of the oil output in Texas for the year 1925 and special taxes alone paid by the oil companies were practically 18 per cent of the total revenue of the state for the year 1925 and such taxes are collected over and above the ad valorem taxes paid.

Furthermore, he says, special taxes paid in 1925 approximately $8,791,000, while the total amount remitted by all oil companies of the state approximately $15,000,000, which sum, he says, was equivalent to about 31.4 per cent of the aggregate amount of taxes paid in Texas for the year 1925.

Tax payers should be well informed. Law makers should be well informed at all times. Get this from the report, 'there are only two classes or kinds of wealth producing industries in Texas, namely oil and sulphur, which pay an occupation tax, being 2 per cent of the gross production.'

A special session of the 39th legislature is on. In the good old days it was the ox cart. Now the world is on wheels and gasoline is the thing. Texas, as a petroleum producing state, ranks third in list of producing states and perhaps the day will come when Texas will rank first.

FLOODS CLAIM 5 IN KANSAS

Torrential Rains Pour Surging Mass Of Water On Cities

EMPORIA, Kan., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Floods and storms in southeastern Kansas had taken a toll of at least five lives late today, inundated several Kansas towns, wrought damage estimated as high as four million dollars and made scores homeless. Wire communication was hampered and traffic on some main and branch line railroads impeded.

Torrential rains Sunday in the water sheds of the Neosho, Cottonwood and Verdigris rivers put those streams on the rampage and there was heavy loss of live stock and enormous crop loss as the flood water swept southeastward. Reports received here indicated that property damage was heaviest in the rural sections.

A few miles below Emporia the Cottonwood river was four miles wide today, alfalfa fields were flooded so deeply that the stacks appeared like islets and only the tassels of corn fields appeared above the water. Below Neosho rapids, north of where the Cottonwood empties into the Neosho river, the latter stream was reported several miles wide in places. Late today the flood crest had passed and nearly all points reported the water receding.

Resolution Will Be Put Before Legislature In Tuesday Meet

AUSTIN, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Investigation of the acts of the highway commission, textbook commission, and board of pardons under Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson's administration is provided in a simple resolution to be inrtoduced Tuesday in the house of the 39th legislature meeting here at the call of the governor.

The resolution provides for appointment of a house committee of nine to investigate these three and such other departments as it may see fit, and report to the 40th legislature. Its proponents said that of the first 25 representatives approached only two declined to sign after the first reading, and these asked time for consideration.

Has Dan's Approval

A number of Attorney General Dan Moody's strongest supporters in the house said the investigation by a committee or committees of the 39th legislature has the approval of the democratic gubernatorial nominee. They pointed out that the investigation should be sanctioned by all Ferguson adherents, as the governor had urged an investigation in her communication.

Representative King of Throckmorton introduced the bill. It is the composite work of at least six members, among them King, George Puri of Dallas and Alfred Heth of Fredericksburg. Members of the investigating committee would be those who have been nominated to the 39th legislature, and who will assure the speaker of their willingness and ability to

Eerie Wails Believed A Prelude to Ghastly Midnight Operation

HOUSTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—The mutilated body of Miss Mamie Bichon, 35, buried Saturday afternoon in Hollywood cemetery here was in the morgue again today. The body was discovered partly buried by visitors at the cemetery.

They investigated and found one fout of the dead woman protruding from the hastily filled grave. They reported their discovery to the cemetery sexton and he in turn notified city officials.

City Attorney Myer investigated immediately, several clues were found, among them being burnt and unburnt matches, cigarette stubs, two bananas and other banana peels, a man's handkerchief, a spade, a piece of the coffin and several footprints.

Several persons were under surveillance Monday night by investigators from the city attorney's office, but no arrests were made.

Mr. Myer said one man who acted curiously since Miss Bichon's death was being shadowed. This man, he said, appeared at the home of Miss Bichon Saturday night, got under the house and let out wails and howls. This was being done to beg Miss Bichon's family to permit him to sleep in Miss Bichon's bed. No record of the police having been called is made on the police docket.

When Mr. Myer, city police and an undertaker went to the cemetery after being notified the casket had been taken out of the ground, several clues were found. The work was done in all probability by more than one person.

LEGION WANTS 500 MEMBERS

Will Launch Drive Today For Increased Roll In Wichita Falls

"War Declared!"

Such was the ultimatum issued Monday night by officials of Pat Carrigan post, American Legion, following a rousing meeting in which plans were made for an intensive membership campaign to start today in Wichita Falls. Five hundred legion memberships must be obtained here to fill the city's quota set at the recent state convention in Amarillo. Officials also want to subscribe this total as a sort of predicate for a determined bid to bring the 1928 state legion convention to Wichita Falls.

States In Contest

Texas and Oklahoma, it is explained, are in a spirited membership race with possession of the famous "old grey mare" as a reward for the victor. Texas is lagging somewhat behind now and a determined drive is being made all over the state.

Two teams have been organized by the legion here, one captained by Don Wofford and the other by Ben C. McAdams. Wofford's workers are R. M. Wilhite, Irvine Stone, H. L. Corn and R. J. Claypool. McAdams team includes T. E. Bronson, Dr. L. I. Lucey, O. T. Alles, M. E. McKechney and J. F. Friberg. When the contest closes, the losing side must entertain the victors with a social.

As a booster feature for the drive, an old grey mare of some description will parade the streets of the city today.

Peter DePaola, World Famous Auto Racer To Enter T-O Fair Events

Officials of the Texas-Oklahoma fair were jubilant Monday morning when word came from promotors of the automobile racing card on the fair program this year that Peter DePaola, one of the most noted pilots in the racing world, would be a contestant in the auto sprints at the fair this October.

DePaola's career since his meteoric rise to fame a few years ago has been one of the brilliant streaks of the racing world. His conquests embrace practically every well known racing track in the country, including the famous Indianapolis speedway; and his roaring motor and streaking car have led the way in countless races where stakes were high. He has also carried off first money in many of the principal racing cards of France and Italy.

Just what agreement has been made with DePaola is not known to fair officials, but positive assurance has been given that he will be here to bring thrils in plenty to the fair grounds.

With all his clever work at the wheel, however, DePaola will not find a walk-away with speed events here, for a number of capable racers have entered cars in the fair cards.

7,231 ANSWER SCHOOL BELLS OPENING DAY

Record Enrollment Expected When Complete Reports Are Turned In

Reports of registration at the various schools of the city brought the total to over 7,200 Monday evening, with one school (Fannin) yet to hear from. The totals given by the principals for the Monday registration, some accurate and some approximate, are as follows:

Junior College	181
High school	865
Junior High	900
Junior High annex	400
Alamo	775
Austin	800
Barwise	270
Bowie	144
Crockett	436
Carrigan	400
San Jacinto	614
Sam Houston	450
Travis	254
Ruey	200
Fannin	No Report
Benito Juarez	80
Washington	459
Totals	7,231

With those enrolled in the Fannin school and those still to enroll in the other schools, it is probable that the final enrollment will approximate 8,000, and it is safe to estimate that more than the prophesied number, 7,500, will attend this year, school officials declared.

All schools will begin regular class work Tuesday morning, the high school being the only one to hold classes Monday. A crowded condition is reported in nearly all of the schools, due to the fact that the two new buildings, Ben Franklin and Zundelowitz, are still under construction. Junior High is especially crowded, 900 being enrolled in the main building and 400 in the annex.

Classes in High School.

At the high school, the only place where classes were held Monday, unusual order and decorum marked the opening day, despite the fact that there were 294 new students from Junior High and many from out-of-town schools. Girl Reserves in uniform acted as "traffic cops" and directed the newest students to classrooms.

Most of the cafeterias will be open for the students Tuesday. The Alamo school lunchroom, still under construction, will be open Thursday, and the Junior college and high school cafeteria opened Monday. Apparently all the students at the Junior college patronized the cafeteria, judging by the long crowded lines at each lunch period.

Books will be issued Tuesday in those schools where they were not given out Monday, and work will begin in earnest. Junior college classes will meet for the first time Tuesday.

Rule Man Is Victim of Bite From Rattler

J. L. French Expires at Home as Airplane Carrying Serum from San Antonio Lands on Field 30 Minutes Too Late.

RULE, Sept. 13.—A race of more than 300 miles in which the life of a man at stake was lost by a 30-minute interval here yesterday afternoon when J. L. French, local blacksmith, died a half-an-hour before an army airplane winging its way from San Antonio with a phial of snake bite serum arrived a little too late. French died at 2 o'clock in the afternoon and the plane, piloted by Major R. E. Scott and Lieut. Y. H. Taylor, dropped to a landing at 2:30.

French who was 50 years of age, was bitten twice on the right ankle at midnight Saturday when he stumbled on a huge rattler near Deep Creek, 26 miles east of here. He had been on a fishing excursion and was just leaving the creek banks when the reptile struck.

Rushed to his home with all possible speed, French's condition rapidly grew worse and early in the morning telephonic calls were sent to San Antonio for help. The snake bite serum was obtained at one of the army air camps and the two officers set out for Rule. The flight was made in two hours and 40 minutes, but 30 minutes before the plane was sighted, French expired.

The victim who has lived here for many years leaves a wife and eight children as survivors.

According to Major Scott, who has made a number of emergency flights from San Antonio with anti-snake-bite serum, this was the first time he failed to save the life of the patient.

"The treat of the Season."

Music lovers are enthusiastic over the coming of the Imperial Symphony Orchestra of Mexico City to Wichita Falls tonight. This group of talented musicians appear in the Junior college auditorium under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club and the Federated Missionary Societies.

Those who have seen the program feel that the offering will be one of the musical bright spots of the year and the advance sale of tickets point to a record attendance. The proceeds will go toward reducing the debt of the Day Nursery building.

"We are mighty glad to be able to bring these musicians to Wichita Falls," said J. L. Jackson, jr., president of the Kiwanis club. The program is so diversified that everyone will enjoy it. There is the classical program of grand opera selections—popular selections and what promises to be the most popular number, a selection of old songs of Mexico. In addition to the regular orchestra there are four soloists, including the famous Cortes "The Caruso of Mexico."

Today is the last day of the seat sale. All Kiwanians and all ladies who have tickets for sale are urged to bring their tickets to Mike Ellis of the Securtiy National Bank by noon Tuesday and turn in all money. Those who fail to check in today will be charged with the full number of tickets outstanding.

There are a number of desirable seats left, according to the ladies of the Federated Missionary society, who are in charge of reserved seat sales at Sanderford's Booterie.

READ THIS FIRST:

Merry Locke, pretty and gay as her name, is a born flirt. Her only ambition is to have a good time and plenty of beaux. At 20 she fails in her course at business school because she won't study. Then when her father dies suddenly, she takes a job in Lillie Dale's beauty shop at a tiny salary.

Moms, her mothr, takes Lillie Dale and Mr. Hefflinger into the house as boarders. At that time Merry is having the first real love affair o fher life. The man in the case is Tony Gaines, an ambitious young lawyer. Their engagement ends when he learns that Merry has been going out with other men. He goes to Montana, and later Merry hears he is going to marry a girl there.

Helen, the oldest of the Locke sisters, marries. So does Cassie, the second oldest. She is not happy with Morley Kaufman, her rich husband. But Merry envies her easy life and decides to marry money, too; if possible.

Jinny, the youngest sister elopes with Derrick Jones, who lives next door.

Through Morley Merry meets Bill Erskine, a wealthy bachelor. She becomes engaged to him, but he keeps putting off the date of the wedding.

During one of his absences from town, Merry meets an old beau of hers, Les Purcell. She sees a great deal of him and one night Bill Erskine finds him at the house when he drops in unexpectedly. He and Merry quarrel, and Merry refuses the cheap engagement ring he finally offers to buy for her.

Bill goes away ,and a month passes. One day Les Purcell comes to the shop in high excitement. He tells Merry that he is married, and that his wife is going to divorce him and name her as corespondent. She hurries to go to see Nonie Purcell and explain matters to her. But Nonie has taken poison to end her life and her troubles, and is in a hospital. Moms, who has announced her sudden intention to marry Mr. Hefflinger, goes to see her, but she is too ill to see anyone. Merry waits for her to recover, when she intends to tell her that she did not know Les was married. She goes downtown one afternoon and bumps into Cabby Marsh, who is half engaged to Morley's sister, Muriel. He asks her to go for a drive with him, but she tells him that she can't. He asks her why.

Now Go On With The Story.

CHAPTER XLVII

Merry looked up at Cabby Marsh with laughter deep in her green eyes and on her parted lips.

"You didn't know I'm a regular home wrecker, did you, Cabby?" she asked him, with her head tilted coquettishly to one side. "A regular deep-sea siren—that's me!"

Cabby looked puzzled. "I can believe the deep-sea stuff, all right," he said, "but where does the home wrecking come into the picture?"

He put his hand under one of her elbows and turned her around.

"Come along," he insisted. "We can't stand here in the middle of the street. I want to hear all about this. It's too good to miss, I can tell that."

They zig-zagged their way through the Fir street crowds to the Towers hotel.

The big dining room was empty at that time in the afternoon. They found a corner table and there, over coffee and cigarets, Merry told him the story of Les Purcell and Les Purcell's wife, Nonie.

She told it to him between puffs at a long Russian cigaret from a box of them that he had just bought for her in the lobby. Merry had been working for more than a year now. She had learned to "inhale" and she often said she needed a smoke to "quiet her nerves" —just like a man.

"And so this Purcell's wife is going to drag you into the case," Cabby remarked, when she had finished the sordid little story. "Gosh, that's tough, isn't it? Your name will be plastered all over the newspapers, I suppose.'

Merry shook her head.

No, inded;" she answered airily. "Because just as soon as Nonie Purcell is well enough to see me, I'm going to tell her that I didn't even know that her beautiful duck of a husband was married until—of a husband

Oh," She gave a soft little cry of surprise, and her eyes widened as they fell on someone standing in the doorway of the dining room.

Cabby turned in his chair and saw who it was, too.

Muriel Kaufman was standing there, smarter and more striking than usual in a plain black suit, with a fresh gardenia pinned on her shoulder.

It was the first time Merry had seen her since the house party at the Crow's Nest.

"Go and get her, Cabby," she said. But before Cabby had time to push his chair back and rise, Muriel was gone.

With a very red face Cabby slid back into his seat. He looked extremely uncomfortable.

"Hmm! I should have known better than to come in here," he muttered, more to himself than to Merry. "Muriel knows that she can usually find me here if I'm out of the office. I often slip in here at odd hours for a bite. She seemed to be sore as a pup, didn't she?"

Merry blew cigaret smoke from her dainty little nostrils, and gave a little sneering laugh.

"Why are you upset?" she asked pertly. "You're not tied to her apron strings, are you?"

"I would, be if she had any," Cabby answered, looking miserable. "I'm engaged to her, you know. Her folks haven't announced it yet, but I am, all the same. Gosh, I'll have some party squaring myself with her, won't I?"

Merry shrugged her shoulders.

"She's awfully jealous of you, isn't she?" she asked carelessly. "You know, she hasn't spoken to me since the house party that Cassie had, over Labor day. And we used to be awfully good friends—Muriel and I."

She got up to go. It was no fun sitting here with a man whose thoughts were busy with another girl.

"Bye-bye, Cabby,' she said, shaking hands with him when they were out on the street once more. "After I'm squared up with Les Purcell's wife, I'll go around and square myself with Muriel."

"I surely do get into more hot water," she thought as she started back to the beauty shop. "And the worst of it is—that I try to behave myself all the time."

That night Cassie sent her car over to Chester street for her.

"I wonder what she wants with me," Merry said to her mother when Forbes, the chauffeur, gave her Cassie's message.

Cassie had had a chauffeur for more than a month now. And not only did she have a car and a chauffeur, but Morley was building a new house for her, too.

She was one of those clever women who know just how to "work" a man for everything there is in him. There are not many women like her in the world.

Most of us struggle along, trying to make both ends meet, trying to keep a husband happy and a family healthy and well. Most of us are thankful for two new hats a year, a roof over our heads and a sewgni machine to make the children some new school clothes.

But not Cassie Locke Kaufman! She wanted the whipped-cream of life for herself, and the rest of the people were perfectly welcome to the dregs. She knew how to find a soft spot for herself, just as a kitten instinctively knows that there is a warm corner behind the stove.

Merry found her curled up in one corner of a flowered damask sofa before the living room fire in her luxurious flat.

She was in a green silk lounging robe that matched her cat's eyes, and her feet were struck into green mules.

She had a book in her hand, but put in down when her sister walked into the room.

"Take off your things," she said looking at her with a direct unsmiling gaze. "I want to have a long talk with you—about yourself."

Merry tossed her coat and her new fall hat down on a chair by the windows. She took a cigaret from a silver box beside the chair and lit it. Then she sat down on a foot-stool that stood in front of the grate.

"All right—shoot!" she said breezily. "I'm ready."

"Muriel was here a while ago," Cassie began, clearing her throat. "She was perfectly furious—and terribly rude, as she always is when she's angry. The Kaufmans are nobodies, in spite of their money, and they show it every now and then."

It was perfectly clear that Cassie was angry. Whatever Muriel had said to her had rubbed her the wrong way, and Merry knew that she had no great love for Muriel anyway—or for any of the rest of Morley's purse-proud family.

"She raved around for half an hour because she caught you and Cabby Marsh together today. She said you were having lunch down at the Towers hotel. Is that so?"

"We were having coffee, but it's all the same thing, I suppose," Merry answered. "Cabby had a fit and high blood pressure when she walked into the dining room." She giggled at the remembrance.

Cassie threw her own cigaret into the fire place. "Well, it seems that when he left you he hunted up Muriel," she went on, "and he told her that you had button-holed him to tell him some wild story or other. A story about some woman trying to kill herself because you'd been running around with her husband."

Merry felt herself growing cold all over. She chewed at her lips nervously and stared into the fire.

"Is it true?" Cassie asked slowly, and Merry could feel her hard, pale eyes on her face. "Have you been running around with a married man?"

"I didn't know he was married," Merry faltered, not looking up from the leaping flames. "Not when I started to go out with him."

There was a long silence.

Then Cassie spoke again, in her cold, high voice. "You'd better put on your things and go!" she cried. "I try to hold up my head in the world and do all I can for my family—but you just try to drag me down—"

"You!" Merry laughed. "You! Do things for your family! What have you ever done for any of us? Why, you don't even have your own mother in your house, because the Kaufmans don't think she's rich enough to have on their visiting list! You—"

She picked up her wraps and flung herself out of the flat. She did not stop to put them on until she was on the stairs that led to the vestibule below.

The following week Moms went away for three days. And when she came back she was Mrs. Ed Hefflinger. Her new husband did not come with her. He went on to Denver ahead of his show.

Moms wore a platinum ring on the finger where she had always worn the plain gold band that Dad had given her. But aside from that, she was unchanged as far as anyone could see.

Two months passed by.

Lillie reported that Nonie Purcell was out of the hospital and had decided not to divorce Les after all. They were living together again, so Lillie said.

"Thank fortune for that!" Merry breathed devoutly, and said a silent prayer of thankfulness.

She came into the house one night just before Christmas and found Cassie with her mother. She was wrapped in a long mink coat and her feet were propped up against the oven door.

"Hello, Merry Ann Locke!" she greeted her, as if they never had quarreled. "I'm just asking Moms to come to the house-warming that Morley and I are having the day after Christmas. I want you to come, too."

"Getting into the new house so soon?" asked Merry, indifferently She still remembered the scolding that Cassie had given her, even if Cassie had forgotten it.

"Bill Erskine's coming up," Cassie informed her, with a smiling nod.

Moms made Merry a new dress for the house-warming—a cunning thing of shell-pink taffeta that made Merry look about as old as Jinny when she put it on the night of the twenty-sixth of December.

She had had her old white satin slippers dyed to match it, and Moms had given her some pink imitation pearls to wear, too.

"I wish you wouldn't daub yourself all up with paint and powder," her mother said irritably, as she and Lillie sat on the bed watching Merry dress.

"I know what I'm doing," replied Merry.

She was dressing, not for the admiration of Moms and Lillie, but for Bill Erskine's eyes that night. Bill had often said that he never looked at a woman unless she had "style."

And Merry had noticed that this was so. The women he stared at in restaurants and on the streets were the "flashy" women who were dressed and waved and powdered and painted and perfumed within an inch of their lives.

But when she found him, an hour later, in the crowd that thronged the huge living room in Cassie's new house on Overlook Heights, he was sitting beside a girl who was anything but flashy-looking. A little slim girl with enormous gray eyes under demure bands of ash-gold hair.

He was bending over her and smiling broadly as he talked. But when he looked up and saw Merry coming toward him in her shiny pink dress, he seemed to forget all about the little gray-and-gold girl.

"Well, Sister! Little Sister!" he said, and took her hands in his that always felt like big soft lumps of dough. "Pretty as a peach—and fresh as a daisy!"

"Why shouldn't I be?" Merry asked, flirting her almond eyes at him. "I've been going to bed every night at eight o'clock for the last two months."

Bill laughed, as he tucked her hand through his and started through the crowd toward the wide hall beyond.

He did not believe what she said. Bill never believed anything that he did not want to believe.

But what Merry said came very near to the truth. She had been almost nowhere except to the movies and to Lillie's shop for two months.

And sleep, the beauty doctor, had given her back something of the dewy loveliness that had first attracted Bill Erskine. Her cheeks bloomed like La France roses in the overheated house.

Her eyes were starry in the dimness of the stair-case, where she and Bill finally hid themselves away for a long talk.

Cassies' new butler appeared, carrying a great silver tray of cocktails, and vanished.

Cassie, all in white satin and spangles, stood at the bottom of the stairs alone. Fifi Pell, her handsome rival, came dancing by with Morley. She looked like a Spanish woman tonight, with her red heels and a Spanish shawl that completely covered any dress she may have worn under it.

The butler appeared again, with more cocktails.

"Hi, you!" yelled Bill, who had no manners and did not want to have any. "Hi, you! Bring the bar up here."

The man looked up and smiled patiently as he brought his heavy tray to them. He was used to Cassie's "set" and their ways.

"We'll take four, thanks," said Bill, and set four of the glasses of gin and fruit juice down on the step above them.

Merry sipped hers slowly.

"It's nice to be here again, Bill," she said, looking at him above the glass. "I thought you were off me for life."

"I was," Bill confessed with his bluntness. "I was—until just now. You aways get me with that face of yours, Little Sister. You sort-a-hit me right between the eyes, every time."

He took the glass out of her hand and kissed the face that "got him every time," as he said.

"Why? Because of Les Purcell?" Merry asked him. Her voice trembled a little as she said the name. She had hated the very thought of the Purcells ever since that awful first of November!

Bill nodded. "Sure," he answered, and paused long enough to swallow a second cocktail. "Sure, Mike! I thought if you wanted him I'd clear out and let you have him. See?" His broad grin sent wrinkles curving all around his face, like ripples widening out in a pool of water.

Merry's black lashes fluttered on her cheeks as she looked down at her empty glass.

I've never seen him since," she fibbed.

She repeated the lie, raising her clear, water-flowered green eyes to his fat, flushed face. "I've never laid eyes on him since, Bill."

He put one big arm around her, patting her bare arm.

I'm sorry I got icky that night, and told you I hated you, Bill," she went on, with a little quaver in her voice. "And wasn't I horrid—refusing to take your engagement ring? Will you offer me another one, some time, Bill?"

Bill nodded, reaching for his third cocktail.

"When?"

He tossed down the drink.

"Well, I'm going home in a day or two," he said thickly. "My father's still in a pretty critical state. I'll tell you what we'll do. We'll put the whole thing off until summer and then we'll shoot the whole works at once. See? Engagement ring, wedding ring, minister, honeymoon and everything together? How will that suit you?"

That didn't suit Merry at all. But she only sighed and smiled. After all, what else was there to do? You couldn't drag a man to the altar against his will, could you? Especially a spoiled, self-pampered bachelor like Bill Erskine, who knew that he was a "catch" for almost any pretty girl, if she was not too particular.

Colorado Bandits Rob Kansas Party

DENVER, Colo., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Bandits robbed Mrs. J. E. Turner and her nephew, Ralph Erickson of Pratt, Kan., of their $4000 automobile, nine suit cases containing $1020 in cash and clothing valued at $1000 last night near Aurora, a suburb, the Denver police were informed today.

The two were driving to Denver when a small car crowded their machine to the roadside. Two men sprang out and ordered Mrs. Turner to alight. When she refused, one dragged her out and beat her, she told police. The other searched Erickson for a revolver.

Mrs. Turner and Erickson walked most of the way into Denver, being picked up near the outskirts by motorists.

SACCO FINDS NEW EVIDENCE

63 Affidavits Presented In Support of Plea For New Trial

DEDHAM, Mass., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Sixty-three affidavits in support of a motion for a new trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti, convicted of murder were submitted to Judge Webster Thayer in superior court today. All were based upon a confession by Celestino Madeiros, condemned murderer, that he was implicated in the double murder in 1920 for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted. The confession exonerated them.

Included in the list of affidavits offered was one by Sacco in which he denied complicity in the shooting of a paymaster and his guard in South Baintree during a payroll holdup and in which he explained how Madeiros had told him of his alleged connection with the affair.

Second Affidavit.

Another was that of James E. Weeks, associated with Madeiros in the murder for which Madeiros is to be electrocuted. Weeks described conversations with Madeiros in which he said he was a member of the Morello gang of Providence and that they committed the Baintree robbery.

The motion for a new trial was the latest development in the long fight for life by Sacco and Vanzetti which has been marked by world-wide interest and resulted in the attempted bombing of American embassies and consulates in Europe and South America.

Fonck to Leave On Paris Flight

MINEOLA, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Captain Rene Fonck, French ace, plans to take off from Roosevelt field on his no-stop New York to Paris flight as soon after Thursday as weather conditions permit.

The three-motored Sikorsky biplane S-35 is undergoing final tests and alterations for the trip. Although Captain Fonck has not announced who will go with him on the flight, besides Lieutenant Alan P. Snody, alternate pilot, it is understood he has selected Alexander P. Kratish as mechanic and Charles Cladier as radio operator. Kratish, a Russian, installed the motors, controls and the gas and oil systems of the S-35 and is thoroughly acquainted with the operation of the great plane. Cladier, a Frenchman, operated the plane's radio on the test flight to Washington last week.

Coolidge Acquiring Real Woodsman Friendship In Rambles With His Guides

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., Sept. 13.—(AP)—When President Coolidge returns to Washington he will say goodbye to the two men with whom he has spent many of the happiest and most care-free hours of his long summer vacation.

This pair of friends is Oscar Otis and Ormon Doty, the Adirondack's woodsmen who have acted as Mr. Coolidge's guides since he came to White Pine camp more than two months ago. In their company the president has fished and tramped, joked and chatted, gone hungry, thirsty, wet and cold and from them he has obtained many close-ups of nature's lavish treasures of mountain and forest.

The chief executive's fondness for fishing which apparently has a deeper fascination for him than any other recreation and his ability to shuffle off the cares of office when he stepped into a guide boat or onto a forest trail have been fathered in large measure, his friends say, by the reciprocal interest which Mr. Coolidge and his guides have taken in each other.

Spend Lives In Woods.

Both Otis and Doty spent their lives in this vicinity, the former as caretaker of the Irwin R. Kirkwood camp where the president is spending his vacation and is the head guide. It is Otis who has arranged for the fishing trips and outings and watched over Mr. Coolidge's leisure hours to make sure he had a good time.

Doty, who each fall takes hunting parties into the woods for deer, lives at Rainbow lake, about six miles from camp. Both are young men, as age goes in this mountain country where octogenarians are the rule rather than the exception, but have a rich store of wood lore upon which President Coolidge has drawn heavily. Pleased by his interest in the events and scenes that make up their lives, they have done everything in their power to make pleasant his sojourn in the woods.

Their efforts, they feel, has been rewarded by the ease with which "the boss" became adapted to their ways and by the comradeship they have had with him. He has talked freely and lengthily about woods, his boyhood days in the Vermont hills and the interesting experiences they have had together during the past weeks.

At First a Novice.

Early in the summer when the president was somthing of a novice with rod and line, Otis and Doty devoted hours of patient effort to teaching him the finer points of the art with which they have been so long familiar. They criticised his castings, taught him to know good "fishing weather," and showed him how to strike the big pike, bass and brook trout. As he gained in proficiency they took him from well-stocked preserves and lakes to wilderness spots which few casual visitors ever see where only luck and skill can fill a creel and even a guide is not sure of a good catch.

On all these trips whether on little Osgood lake, which is in the door yard of White Pine camp, or a distant body of water, Mr. Coolidge has gone as a fisherman and not as president. Years ago, before the days of the secret service, Grover Cleveland and late Theodore Roosevelt, came to the Adirondacks.

POLICE QUIZZ BOMB HURLER

Believes Mussolini's Assailant Gives Fictitious Name to Authorities

ROME, Sept. 13. — (AP) —The assassin who attempted the life of Premier Mussolini Saturday by throwing a bomb at his automobile now is believed to be Gin Lucetti, 26, a native of Avenze, Tuscany.

When seized at the scene of the attempt he gave his name as Ermete Giovannini and said he was born at Castelnuovo Di Garfagnana. He explains, the police say, that he gave a false name to avoid complications for his family.

According to the new account given by the prisoner, he arrived in Rome on August 2, took lodgings in a third class hotel under a false name and began patrolling the streets through which he thought the premier might pass.

Carried Two Bombs

He constantly carried two bombs in his belt with a piece of emery paper strapped to his wrist, this to set in operation the detonating apparatus on the missiles.

The fact that the premier's car was driven over different roads between his office and residence baffled Lucetti at first. Then he noticed that whatever route was chosen the car always passed the Pia Gate and it was there that he found his opportunity.

The prisoner's personal characteristics are such that the police are not inclined to take even his present story at its face value and are continuing their investigations.

Famous Matador Injured When He Slips Before Bull

SAN ANTONIO, Sept. 13—(AP)—On the eve of his retirement from the ring, Juan Silveti, Mexico's most famous matador, called "Juan Without Fear," was gravely wounded by a bull in a Nuevo Laredo fight late Sunday, and now lies in a critical condition.

The wound is a tremendous gash in the right leg. Just as Silveti made ready to kill the last bull of the fight and just as he poised his blade, the animal charged, tossing the matador to the ground. He lay unconscious on the sand, and the spectators, thinking he was dead began to stream down to the lower boxes.

The rest of Silveti's squad led the bull away while the matador, clad in his brilliant colored silks and jewels, was carried, dripping a long trail of blood, to the hospital. A physician, after an operation, announced that Silveti's condition had changed for the better, but that there still was danger.

Hundreds of San Antonians and other Americans saw the accident.

"Love Me, Love My Dog" Says Big Show Clown Coming on Wednesday

"A man's best friend is his dog," remarked some sage philosopher, and every clown with the greatest show on earth will bear testimony to the truth of his aphorism. Nearly all of the mirthful madcaps—there are a hundred of them with the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey combined circus—carry animal pets, partly for companionship, usually for professional utility. Almost all their dumb playfellows are canines.

In and around the score of dressing-room tents you are sure to encounter some white-faced "Joey" patiently putting his dog pal through new tricks.

One of the cleverest of dog performers with the big show is the poodle owned by Danny McPride. "Pippo" is his name, or "Pip" for short. His master says he understands spoken language as well as himself and obeys every word of instruction with uncanny intelligence.

"It's a great injustice to circus people who own dogs to hear outsiders say we treat them cruelly, and intimidate them to make them perform," says McPride. "Why, my little 'Pippo' enjoys all the luxuries of a lady's lap-dog. At the bottom of the box where 'Pippo' sleeps are two big cushions. I manicure his nails and he's enough of an aristocrat to watch and see if it's done properly. He enjoys his morning 'tub' as much as an Englishman. In fact he's a perfect little Beau Brummel with the most fastidious tastes. I've never cuffed him or slapped him, let alone whip him. He's learned all his tricks through kindness."

"Pippo" is but one of scores of remarkable trained animals that will be seen when the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey circus exhibits here Wednesday, September 29.

America has its first high-speed European-type Light Car

The Whippet offers these remarkable features

THIS is a story of success without precedent. The dramatic record of a new-type car that has achieved "world-fame" in three short months. A car that has revolutionized the whole trend of American automobile design.

The Whippet is the first American light car designed to meet modern traffic conditions.

A car engineered specifically for parking at jammed curbs—for lightning getaway at congested traffic crossings—for instant stopping in pedestrian-crowded city streets. It will pickup in 13 seconds from 5 to 30 miles an hour. It will stop in 51 feet from a speed of 40 miles an hour. It will turn in a 34-foot circle—park in a 14-foot curb space, which is much less than the space required for the conventional type of car.

More room—greater comfort

This new car has a low European-type body. With height and length in true symmetrical proportion. It is 5 feet 8 inches high . . . not as tall as the average man. Yet it provides more leg-room than you've ever found in any American-built automobile of this class.

4-wheel brakes are an integral part of this car's design, a necessity that light car owners have not heretofore enjoyed.

Its center of gravity is extremely low, with ample road clearance . . . thus giving a sense of security you have never found in any light automobile.

30 miles on a gallon of gasoline . . . 55 miles an hour . . . 5 to 30 miles in 13 seconds . . . 4-wheel brakes . . . stops in 51 feet from 40 miles an hour . . . turns in 34-foot circle . . . easiest car in America to park . . . 5 feet 8 inches high . . . lower gravity center . . . greater safety . . . European-type body . . . more leg-room than any other light car.

Two engineering ideals combined

The Whippet represents a combination of the most advanced European and American engineering thought.

It is a complete new car . . . designed and built as a unit . . . not an old-fashioned reconstructed chassis.

Over three hundred and sixty thousand miles of road tests proved the practical advantages of this car before it was released for production.

The Whippet will do 55 miles an hour in the hands of the average owner . . . with all the reserve power that this implies.

In traffic it gets away with amazing speed . . . stop-watch tests show that it accelerates up to 40 miles an hour 18% faster than other light four-cylinder cars.

Smart European-type body

The distinctive body lines of the Whippet frankly resemble the smartest custom-built automobiles of American and Continental Europe. Low-swung . . . rakish . . . graceful as a Whippet . . . that's the only way to describe its wonderful beauty.

Here at last is a light car that any "millionaire" will be proud to own. A car that every woman will find safe to drive. A car that men in all walks of life can afford to buy.

In fairness to yourself, come, see this wonderful new-type car. With the introduction of these new engineering principles, it is not sound judgment today to consider the purchase of a less modern automobile.

• • •

The Whippet is furnished in three body styles . . . Sedan $735, Touring $645, and Coupe $735. All prices f. o. b. factory. Prices and specifications subject to change without notice. The new Willys Finance Plan means less money down, smaller monthly payments, and the lowest credit cost in the industry. Willys-Overland, Inc., Toledo, Ohio.

Five Wells Will Start in Jones Co.

ABILENE, Sept. 13.—Five wells are to be started within the next sixty days around the Phillips Petroleum company's new wildcat discovery two miles north of Trent in Jones county.

The Phillips company has acquired several hundred acres of leases outside its original lease of several thousand acres. The World company of Fort Worth has leased 100 acres north of the Winter well. The Marland Oil company is to put down a test on its holdings in southwest Jones county.

The nearest drilling well to the Winters well is about twelve miles to the southwest, this being on the John Sears land south of Eskota which was last reported drilling at 1,360 feet.

The present flow of the Winter well is estimated at from 250 to 500 barrels daily. The sand which is at 2,510 feet has been barely entered. Cavity trouble has been experienced, but the well will be drilled in within a few days.

Magnolia's Runs Lower in August

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 13.—The The Magnolia Petroleum company during August ran 1,859,781.88 barrels of crude oil from wells in Oklahoma, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, to which its pipe lines were connected. This, was 57,756.97 barrels less than the July runs.

Declines were made in every state. The Oklahoma-Kansas runs totalled 1,115,863.73 barrels! Texas runs were 1,644,845.91; Arkansas amounted to 176,556.05 and Louisiana 80,516.19.

MUSKOGEE WELL INCREASES

MUSKOGEE, Okla., Sept. 13.—Muskogee's largest oil well in several years, the W. R. Somerville and others No. 1 Ware, in the northeast corner of 17-15n-17e, seven and one-half miles west of Muskogee, and on the Taft structure, in Muskogee county, grows better day by day. It made 432 barrels the first 23 hours after hitting the sand early Sept. 4, found at 1,440 to 1,441 feet. The last 24 hours it made 543 barrels, according to gaugers of the Sinclair Pipe Line Company, which is running the production.

REFINING MARKET STEADY

TULSA, Okla., Sept. 13.—Refinery markets of the country are quiet but steady. Demand is good and prices are holding firmly.

Refiners report a growing demand for fuel oil, with a tendency for prices to advance. Some look for $1.75 quotations soon, while others feel that the peak has been attained.

WINKLER HAS SMALL WELL

SAN ANGELO, Sept. 13.—The Eastland Oil company No. 1 Hendricks, in section 42, Winkler county, west Texas, pumped 30 barrels the first 15 hours on Sept. 6, and from 3 a. m. to 1 p. m. it pumped 25 barrels. The rods are being pulled to change the cups.

HERO ESCAPES

BALLOTS AND BULLS.

MADRID, Sept. 13.—Whether women wish Prime de Rivera to continue on the job or not, they could not pass up the opportunity to vote for the first time, even though they had to ballot for the dictator or not at all. Men who objected to Primo went to see the bull fights instead of to the polls.

ONE YEAR AGO TODAY

Trial of C. E. Glenny, charged with murder of son, starts at Henrietta.

Farella McJunkins goes on trial here charged with the murder of L. N. Carrol.

TAXES ON NATURAL WEALTH

ALL the tax experts are coming to the front. That is they think they are tax experts. H. T. Mussleman, editor of the Texas School Journal is the latset. He is an expert on education and its cost as well as the editor of a weekly newspaper for educators.

His cure for the alleged impoverished condition of the public schools of Texas would be brought about through the establishment of special taxes on natural wealth and other sources "now untaxed or only slightly taxed."

This educator expert says that Texas is lagging thirty million dollars behind North Carolina, forty million dollars behind Wisconsin and more than fifty million dollars behind California proportionately in support of public education.

Taxation of natural wealth is his remedy. He would place a tax on lignite, lumber, sulphur. He would provide for a State income tax, a tax on all business, a luxury tax and a nuisance tax.

He has figured it out and is of the opinion that his taxation program would bring in more than eighty-five million dollars a year. According to this educator-expert the lowest amount that science has figured that a State can spend on a child for adequate education annually is $60.00 per capita.

Multiplied by the scholastic population of 1,400,000 children this would bring the amount necessary for Texas to keep step with other states to about $85,000,000 annually.

He contends that Texas actually is spending less than $4.50 a child annually thereby lagging behind about $40,000,000.00. He would tax petroleum for the schools. He would tax gasoline for the schools. He would tax lumber for the schools. He would tax sulphur and potash for the schools.

He would place a luxury tax on such articles as jewelry which he says would bring in $5,000,000.00 annually while a nuisance tax on such articles as tobacco and cosmetics would bring in from $1,000,000.00 to $4,000,000.00.

He never mentioned a tax on coffee, or tea, or soft drinks; perhaps he didn't have time. This educator expert remarks "Only recently Texas began to tax oil and the three cent tax was defeated by the legislature while Mexico for years has imposed a ten cent tax. Further more he says a just business tax in place of the plan now in effect "would bring in $20,000,000 a year."

Wow!

TEXAS AS A GAS PRODUCER

TEXAS ranks seventh among the forty-eight States of the Union in the production of natural gas and today Texas consumption of natural gas exceeds 55,000,000,000 cubic feet per annum.

These figures are taken from the Blanton scientific survey and report on the oil industry in Texas. This from the report is interesting.

"The waste in natural gas production in the United States approximates 30 per cent as compared to the waste in Texas which equals 8 per cent."

Speaking of natural gas the total mileage of gas lines in the State is about 4,772 miles. Speaking of oil pipe lines the report shows that Texas has an aggregate of 7,379 miles of main pipe lines and 4,665 miles of gathering lines in the various fields. Also that oil companies in Texas own 10,000 oil tank cars.

Texas has the largest gas fields in the world and those who favor the conservation of natural resources are reminded that the law makers may be busy in Texas for months to come and those who demand conservation should be on the firing line.

DEALING WITH FUTURES

EXPERTS of the federal trade commission have found that the present oil reserve in pumping and flowing wells in all proven territory is estimated to be 4,500,000,000 barrels or a theoretical supply for six years at the present rate of consumption.

They admit that it would not be possible to abstract the oil from the ground in that time.

This for the 20,000 000 owners of motor vehicles and trucks and tractors who dwell in the land of the free. Indeed it concerns all consumers of gasoline.

A PROPER METHOD

THE Hickman method of dealing with bank bandits probably excites more general approbation than any other yet devised.

Ranger Captain Tom Hickman, it will be remembered, got grape vine information on a well-planned bank hold-up in Clarksville the other day. With two brother officers he was at the bank ahead of the bandits and his reaction to their escapade was a hail of hot lead that stretched both thugs dead on the pavement.

That was drastic procedure, but almost anything short of inhuman torture is justifiable when the law is dealing with gentry of the bandit world. Those who seek to rob banks are a warped, unwholesome lot that do the world no good. Mankind is better off without them and when they are stopped in their tracks by fire from the guns of officers, they get no worse than they deserve or have a right to expect.

It is a pity that the doughty ranger captain cannot be informed beforehand of all such schemes as that hatched by the ill-fated Clarksville pair. His evangelising methods could accomplish much good in Texas if he could practice frequently.

WHAT DEMOCRATS HAVE DONE

MRS. Emily Newell Blair of Missouri is vice chairman of the democratic national committee. Mrs. Blair is of the opinion that it is quite logical for lady Astor to expect the democratic party, as the party hospitable to new ideas, to be friendly to the idea of nominating a woman for the presidency.

Really the national leaders of the democratic party may be friendly to the idea of nominating a woman but that is just about as far as they will be willing to go.

Mrs. Blair is right when she says that the democrats sent the first and only woman to the United States Senate; that the only woman governors have been democrats; that the only woman Judge of a State Supreme Court and the only woman mayor of a large city are both democrats.

Yet the republicans should be given some credit. Montana republicans elected a woman to the lower house of congress; Oklahoma republicans elected a woman to the lower house; California and Massachusetts republicans elected women to the lower house while the democrats of the New Jersey district are represented by Mrs. Mary T. Torton, who is said to be the best woman politician in the state.

Texas by an overwhelming majority relegated its first Governor to private life after a term of two years and the voters of Wyoming may do the same thing for Mrs. Tellie Taloe Ross.

Wyoming is a republican state. Mrs. Ross is a widow, a very attractive and engaging widow and her administration appears to have given satisfaction. If she wins in November she will have established a new high record. Wyoming was the first American commonwealth to give woman the ballot and there are many independent voters in that state. This may make it possible for Mrs. Ross to send her republican rival to the political funeral house.

Ohio democrats elected Mrs. Florence Allen a Supreme Court Judge and then two years later they refused her a nomination for United States Senator.

Voters are fickle. They need new Gods or Goddesses every two years in some of the States.

WORK OF WICKED WETS

CONGRESSMAN W. D. Upshaw of Georgia was defeated for re-nomination. In Washington newspaper circles he is known as Holy Willie and he has ever been a thorn in the side of the wets. Upshaw has an alibi. He charges that "the big liquor interests" sent more than $100,000 to his district to defeat him and he promises to continue the fight for a dry America either in or out of congress.

He is the star orator of the Anti-Saloon League of America and in his time he has made many speeches in Texas and pulverized the rum devil to the delight of thousands of Texas drys.

It is possible that a district of Georgia democrats can be debauched by the gutter money of rum makers and rum sellers? Perish the thought. It might have happened in Pennsylvania, or Illinois or Missouri, but never in Georgia.

The Toonerville Trolley That Meets All The Trains

SMELL

By Arthur B. Reeve

Kennedy held up his glass. Through the amber-colored liqueur the light filtered and glistened like the rays of the morning sun, golden, translucent in its sheen.

"Ah, it's not the taste alone; it's the bouquet," remarked Kennedy, with the enthusiasm of the connoisseur. "That is not a drink. That is a perfume—fit for an empress. Most exquisite. Its age makes a drop of it priceless, nowadays."

"Great guns, Kennedy! Give me another glass!" General Tams ejaculated it earnestly. "How soon again may I know I'll have the real thing? If you talk that way much more I'll clean forget the Cronk case. Kennedy, you should have been a cordial salesman!"

There was a laugh at the general's enthusiasm, for he had a reputation as a conscientious two-handed drinker. I noticed, too, that when Craig had finished speaking everyone took a sip with renewed fervor and appreciation.

George had come up quietly beside Kennedy's chair. Not for the world would he have interrupted. He just stoo kthere with his finger on the chair, drinking it in, waiting for Craig to finish. Then he bowed, leaned over, and whispered some message to Kennedy. Of its purport we could get no inkling from the faces of either. Kennedy's was motionless, expressionless. Only there was a stiffened restraint for a moment, a mute hesitation, until Tams spoke.

"I hope it wasn't to tell you your last bottle of Otard was broken," joshed Tams.

Kennedy merely smiled and the smile flitted politely. He sipped at his cordial slowy, lightly. He raised the glass to his lips again, closed his eyes, and swallowed slowly. I don't know why we watched him so closely. In some way was conveyed to us a surcharge of feeling in that little group. I couldn't tell whether it was the effect of that cordial, or some static, electric, mental force emanating from Kennedy. I felt it, we all felt it as we sipped slowly.

Suddenly Kennedy opened his eyes and spoke. "They have captured both the hijacker trucks, the trucks the hijackers stole with the stuff loaded on them—and the men that drove them off from the rum runners."

Somehow was conveyed the impression that Kennedy had not told all.

"Caught the hijackers themselves!" exclaimed Chandler, excitedly. "Where did they get them?"

"Oh, on a little farm back of Laurel Hill cemetery. I expected they'd locate them—but sooner." Kennedy was speaking in a slow, matter-of-fact tone.

"Well, did the senses do it, make the arrest?" asked Larry Halpin, with a wink to us.

"Can it, Larry!" adjured Chandler, his interest fired at once. "I'm going to stick along with Kennedy tonight, so to speak. I believe if I have patience and he doesn't run off the track with this new and very interesting theory of the senses, I'll get the finale of the play before I leave him, some way or other."

"That means, Chandler," I put in, too, "that if you for a moment think you're going to get a play out of it, I'll stick, also, and get my story!"

"I know why I'm going to stick," chuckled the general, his eyes significantly on the dwindling bottle.

"For the same reason that I have," added Larry. "For the sake of the cordial—and old times' sake."

Kennedy held up the bottle reflectively. "I must admit I'm glad you're not the last bottle I have. The general's regard for me can be satisfied. I expect to be assured of his friendship for some time to come.

Up in the light Craig held the bottle. He filled the glasses of those who cared for more. Then he took it, held it gently to his nostrils.

"Ah!" It was long drawn out. "Some perfume!" Just smell that bouquet, that aroma."

Everybody sniffed, paused, held for a second the delight of the intake of breath through the nostrils. There were renewed murmurs of approval. They rhapsodized over the aroma.

"How about it, Larry? Like it?" asked Craig. "Do you ever get anything like that that's synthetic?"

Larry Halpin raised his hand protestingly. "I love it. But my regard depends on my taste and other things. I? I can't smell a thing. It's congenial with me. I like the stuff, love it—but I can't smell it." He smiled deprecatingly at us as if nature had cheated him in bestowing gifts upon him.

I felt a sense of sympathetic curiosity.

"H'm!" Kennedy considered. "So!" He paused a full minute. "Can't smell a thing." Again he paused, as if running back over something in his mind. "Larry, Halpin, retired, once importer of wines and cordials. People thought you got wealthy out of it, Larry. They didn't realize how prohibition had knocked out your income. But I know now how you secretly adjusted yourself to it, how, as head of a syndicate, you organized an underground rum-running system of importation of the stuff from Quebec. Then the rum fleet knocked that."

Larry Halpin stood a little apart from the rest of us. Unconsciously we had dropped away from him as Kennedy focused attention on him. Defiantly he glared at Kennedy.

"When you start something, Kennedy, be sure you can go through with it and finish it—or there's likely to be an awful come-back. You'll have to back up those insinuations. You can't convict a man just because he can't smell."

"I'm not worrying about any come-back, Halpin. The deputy out in Suffolk identified your Sunbeam, seen on the same road where they later found the blue Packard sedan, not long before the time this murder must have taken place. They've noticed it about taking an active interest in what's doing at the ports on both shores of the island. That was a bit suspicious, considering the profits you made importing wines and liquors before prohibition."

"The rum fleet means nothing to me, Kennedy. I've never bought a case from them," growled Halpin.

"Probably," agreed Craig. "You smuggle it in from Canada. But these rum-runners from Rum Row were cutting into your border bootleg profits frightfully. It had to be stopped. I have the facts from your agents. There's no honor among rum-runners. A syndicate was formed, and you were at the head of it, to organize the hijackers."

Halpin took a step forward as if to controvert it, but Kennedy raised his hand. "Just a moment, Larry. Hear me out. Besides, Percy Hinman had been one of your chief customers, in fact carried with him many other customers, here in this club, in the Rock club out on Long Island, and others. When the German system was tried, of bringing the stuff by an old tanker to these shores and lightering it in, Percy inman canceled a large order. So did others. They could get it cheaper, delivered almost at their doors.

"It must be broken up, if the Quebec ring was to survive. One way was to tip off the revenue men, ashore and on the boats. If they did not get them, then the hi-jackers, to seize the stuff. So, in effect, you turned hi-jacker, promoted hi-jacking. It was up to them to get the trucks. But there was Cronk in Hinman's car. It would never do to let him get through your line. Some one must stop Cronk. You did it. But Cronk knew you. Therefore he must be put out of the way. You did that, too."

Questions from the World of Love Answered by a Noted Authority

HOW TO CURE A HUSBAND OR WIFE FROM QUARRELING.

Dear Dorothy Dix—We have been married for five years, own our house and car, have just enough money. My wife is a good cook, housekeeper, etc., and knows how to dress. But it is impossible for us to agree. We don't seem to see things in the same light at all, and we are in a continuous fight.

Probably I could get another wife and we could agree, but then again she might not possess the good points my present wife has.

However, as it is, we are both miserable, and this everlasting rowing is driving both of us dippy. What do you think about it

DUBIOUS.

Answer:

I think that any husband and wife who are always quarreling with each other are already dippy, because any two sane persons can get along together in peace if they really want to do so.

There are plenty of trouble situations in matrimony that are very difficult to remeedy. There is the case, for instance, when one must live with a disagreeable and cantankerous mother-in-law, who gets upon one's nerves, and who must be endured because there is no other place for her to go. There is the case where the wife is constitutionally lazy and sloppy and inept, where a man has to live in a house that is as dirty as a pigsty and eat food that would kill an ostrich. There is the case where the wife is extravagant and keeps a man's nose to the grindstone with her wastefulness. There is the case where the man is a surly brut, or a philanderer, or a drunkard, or a shift loafer.

There is not much you can do to cure cases such as these, but there is a sovereign remedy for unhappiness in those households where the only trouble is that the husband and wife spat over everything that comes along.

All they have to do is to have a heart-to-heart talk, and recognize how idiotic they are in running a perfectly good marriage by quarreling—and then quit quarreling.

You can cut out arguing just as surely as you can cut out drink or gambling, or any other vice for which you have a predilection.

Just make a cast-iron resolve that you will not debate any question whatever, and if you can't decide questions that affect you both any other way, take turn and turn about. Let your wife have her way one time, and you have your way the next. That is the way mothers settle the matter between quarreling children.

Don't start anything yourself, and if your wife begins a fight retire from the field in silence. No one can quarrel long by himself.

It is the snappy comeback that keeps the thing going.

And what difference does it make if you and your wife don't think alike on every subject? You have no idea how broad and tolerant you become when once you rise to the heights of realizing that other people have the right to their opinions that you have have to yours. And, after all, don't you think that a rubber-stamp wife who thought just exactly as you do would be dull company?

I certainly wouldn't advise you to swap off a wife who is a good cook and a good housekeeper, on the chance of getting a woman with whom you would never disagree. There are not many women with whom it is always easy to live, and who don't contradict their husbands at times. Better stick to the one you have and get her to sign the armistice.

DOROTHY DIX.

UPRISING CONTINUES.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 13.—Males are continuing their uprising. Now that a German and a French have bettered Trudie's time across the channel comes Carl Stevenson, Stanford athlete, to win a swim across the Golden gate, while Miss Dodie Blewett of Los Angeles is being taken from the water weeping over her failure to swim to Catalina Island.

Lyrics of Life

LYRICS OF LIFE.
By Douglas Malloch

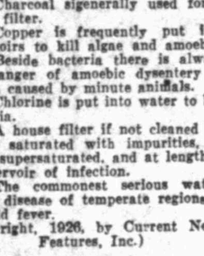

Your Wedding Day.

Your dad will smile a lot today,
And sigh a little now and then,
Your mother brush a tear away,
And think of other days again.
There isn't anyone, I guess,
Who wishes you the happiness
They wish you now, and, knowing why,
Forgive them if they chance to sigh.

They rocked your cradle long ago,
They helped you form your earliest word,
Some name you called them, and, I know,
The sweetest one they ever heard.
Your earliest step they helped you take,
They taught your infant hands to make
A hundred things, through good and ill
They guarded you as parents will.

And yet they will not sigh for long;
A happiness, another one,
Will flood their loving hearts with song;
They keep a daughter, fain a son.
Whatever way your steps may wend,
Daughters are daughters to the end,
Fathers and mothers still the same,
For all you change is just a name.

What Do You Know About It?

DAILY SCIENCE SIX

1. What is a loadstone?
2. What animal can transmit an electric shock?
3. What is considered the father of electricity?
4. Who first invented electric illumination?
5. What is a Leyden jar?
6. What did Sir Issac Newton do for electricity?

Answers to these questions in tomorrow's Record News.

WHAT'S IN A NAME?

The name electricity is a made-up word, as naturally there could have been no name for it in ancient times. Its origin however gives a hint at the first discovery of electricity. Electron is a Greek word for amber. In the Middle Ages it became known that if amber is vigorously rubbed, as often happens when it is polished, it attracts objects to itself. The first discoveries in connection with electricity were made on magnets, and naturally the magnetic power of frictionized amber was perceived to have an electrical nature.

Now what do you know about that?

Answer to Yesterday's Questions

1. Charcoal sigenerally used for a water filter.
2. Copper is frequently put into reservoirs to kill algae and amoebae.
3. Beside bacteria there is always the danger of amoebic dysentery in water, caused by minute animals.
4. Chlorine is put into water to kill bacteria.
5. A house filter if not cleaned becomes saturated with impurities, finally supersaturated, and at length is a reservoir of infection.
6. The commonest serious waterborne disease of temperate regions is typhoid fever.

VIRGO.
By MARY BLAKE

Today's planetary aspects are, unlike those of yesterday,, quite asupicious although, along during the early part of the evening, there will be experienced some degree of relief from a drab and gloomy condition. Nothing that calls for exceptional effort, or that has special significance, should be attempted, and the greatest good—or the least harm—will be gained by conscientious application to ordinary duties, and, even these, may prove irksome and more than ordinarily monotonous. It is not a propitious occasion for the signing of agreements, or of the entering into of commitments—financial or otherwise. At all times during the day, poise must be maintained, as trifles will annoy you more than disaster would under other and better conditions.

Children born today will, during infancy, be always more or less in physical "hot water." They will, however, display at all times, signs of quick recuperation and the omens indicate that, once successfully over the "babyhood" stage, they will develop along normal lines and attain, without further trouble, a healthy adulthood. In their early years, they will be rather nervous and highly peevish. As the grow up, these characteristics will disappear and they will become settled in their ways and of a complaisant mood. They will not possess any exceptional strength of character, nor will they be fired with any great ambition. The promise to be rather mediocre, then brilliant.

If today is your birthday, the virtues of self-reliance and laudable modesty characterize you. Although you never roughly reject offers of assistance that may be tendered you, you are more confident of success—and justly so—when allowed to "work out your own salvation" by your own unaided efforts. Your ambitions do not incline towards the accumulation of wealth, nor to the attainment of power. Rather do you labor for glory of achievement. You are always willing to concede that others, with the same opportunities, could have done as well, and better, as you have. A little more aggressiveness and a trifle more assertiveness would insure you for a larger measure of success.

I'M THE GINK!

I'm the visiting ginkette who has to be entertained. I must have some eligible young men with whom to make love. I expect my hostess to provide constant entertainment with no effort on my part. If there isn't any arranged, I sit around with folded hands and a dumb look which says, "Please entertain me." I am the worst sort of guest and I always visit. I fall in love and dance and flirt and pet and the hostess is always exhausted, but relieved when I depart.

THE ADVANTAGE OF BEING QUICK-WITTED

Just as a congenial group of San Francisco sportsmen were starting on a hunting trip into the wilds of northern California, the cook who had been hired to accompany the expedition fell ill. On such short notice no substitute could be found, so the party decided to go ahead anyway.

After they got into camp they decided on this emergeny pan:

Every second day they played a round of poker hands face up, and the member with the lowest hand was designated as cook for the next two days with the proviso, however, that if any other individual complained during that period about the cooking, the cook should be relieved of his job and the kicker made to perform it for him.

The first man to be stuck with the cooking job was a prominent attorney. He had never so much as boiled a potato before, and the meal which he turned out for his fellow campers on their first night in camp was so unutterably bad that hardly anybody could touch it.

"This is the damnedest stuff I ever ate," one of the victims said in an absent moment. Then he remembered the penalty.

"But I like it," he added and emphatically, "Gee, how I do like it!"

GIANTS SMASH BUCS, 9 TO 5

McGraw Outfit Slams Hill From Box In Fourth Inning

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Succumbing to a giant onslaught inspired by the homers of Kelly and Lindstrom with men on bases the world's champion Pirates lost ground in the league pennant race today, 9 to 5. It was New York's fifth victory of the season from Pittsburgh and the second the McGrawmen have been able to wrest from McKechnie's sluggers at the Polo grounds. Four home runs were hit, two by Grantham. Pirate first sacker. George Kelly slammed the first ball out of the yard to the first inning driving Frisch in for two runs. Carmen Hill, who started for the Pirates, lasted until the fourth when the Giants hit safely four times before a man was retired. Lindstrom hit a high one into the upper right field for a home run with Florence and Ring on base. Morrison relieved Hill on the mound. The Pirates took advantage of Giant mistakes in the eighth to score three times, but the Giants added another in their half of the inning to make their victory decisive. Jimmy Ring started on the mound for the Giants, but was succeeded by Davis in the eighth. Pittsburgh tried four hurlers.

REDS BLANK DODGERS

BROOKLYN, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Brooklyn blanked 4 to 0 today by the climbing Cincinnati Reds under the direction of Eppa Rixey's left pitching arm. The Red moundsman allowed only six hits. Two Brooklyn players reached third base. Cincinnati opened strong in the first, filling the bases but were retired when Critz was thrown out at first. The Reds' first score came in the third with a hit batsman, a sacrifice with Pipp's single. In the fourth inning they got another through singles by Hargraves and Rixey and infield out. The remaining scores were in the eighth when Casey muffed Pipp's fly and Dressen tripled later scoring on a sacrifice. The Reds gave Rixey fine support, playing errorless ball. Score:

PORKERS SCRIMMAGE

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark., Sept. 13. — (AP) — Thirty-two Razorbacks took part in Monday's scrimmage practice at the University of Arkansas. George Cole, varsity halfback, last letter man to appear arrived in excellent physical condition and took part in the workouts.

The Arkansas squad is in better physican condition than ever before at the state of training.

Donothan, last season's reserve halfback, is showing great form in the backfield along with Cowger, veteran end and letter man. Mack and Miller, freshmen graduates, are making strong bids for varsity berths.

H. F. Stevens, sophomore aspirant for a wing berth on the squad, suffered a broken leg in the play this afternoon. He was a last year's freshman star. Two other casualties today, both of minor importance, were recorded. McGill, guard and Donhau, quarter, were both slightly hurt but neither was forced out of uniform.

TARLETON GRIDDERS OUT

STEPHENVILLE, Texas, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Football training camp opened at John Tarleton College Monday with a team largely composed of new men. Of the squad which represented this branch of Texas A. and M. college last year only six or seven letter men will play this year, headed by Captain Menzies, four year guard from Menard.

TOP O' MORN STUFF
By Blondy Croes.

FODDERING UP.

With the Texas league race finished and, although the days still are warm, Wichita Falls fans already are swinging into winter league sessions. The Spudder performance the past season fell far below expectations, but strengthened here and there the club should be in the money next summer, many of the bugs believe.

* * *

WHAT'D HE MEAN?

An amusing yet somewhat sad and more or less dramatic incident occurred during the fag days of the race. 'Twas the second or third afternoon of the final Fort Worth series. The writer had made a break from the press coop atop the stand after the game and was charging through the right wing of the stand headed back to town when he encountered Prez Gardner with a doleful expression on his face. Gardner's countenance suddenly changed to a deep red and his eyes all but smoked: "You go on over to the club house," he ordered in brisk tones, "and take a lo-o-ong look at all those ball players because it's the last time you're going to get to see SOME of them!"

And that brings us down to this: What are the changes that will be made between now and the 1927 spring training camp? With Jenkins and Metzler sold to the Athletics it's a surety there will be new mugs in the outfield. There have been no definite announcements, but various rumblings heard in and around headquarters carry the following import: The left side of the infield will be made over. New blood will be infused at third and shortstop. There will be a change in the catching department. The pitching staff will be bolstered or, at least, efforts to do so will be taken.

That's enough to simmer over for a period, enough fuel for the hot stove sessions at the moment.

* * *

The Texas spot in general, of course, shifts to the Dixie series. It seems to be opinion with many experienced baseball men that New Orleans will take Dallas, the Texas champions, for the second Dixie series ever won by a Southern association entry.

* * *

Money odds, however slight at this writing, are on the Pelicans. Pete Lapan, the Spud hindketch, for one is a ball playing person who won't believe the Steers stand much chance with New Orleans until such is proved on the diamond, if ever. Rather a different attitude by the experts than that in the days Jake Atz and Fort Worth composed the Texas league's annual defender against Southern association inroads.

AL YAPS AS USUAL.

The well-known Al (Dutch) Mantell still insists he was gypped in his match with Bill Romonoff here last week. Incidently, there are a number of fans who agree with him. The Amarillo cave man repeats: "Just wait until my eyes get well and I'll come down here and clean up on all of Alec Ross' pets just as fast as he can line them up. Aren't anything but a bunch of savages, anyway. Look at them, a Chinaman, an Indian and a Russian!"

* * *

Which reminds us we have at hand a letter from Jackie Gorman urging that he be given another shot at Mantell as soon as possible with the Dutchman coming in at 140 pounds instead of 152 as he is said to have done here several weeks back when he won a doubtful and to many a very unfair decision over the midget Gorman.

McCarty and Cook Hog Tennis Honors

The team of Charley Cook and Tom McCarty stands out as the city's strongest net duo following victory in the all-city tennis doubles finals over Fred Couper and Orin Daniel. Cook and McCarty, however, were pushed to the limit. In fact, the lost the first two sets, but rallied and forced the play into five sets, winning 4-6, 2-6, 61, 6-3, 6-2.

Cook defeated his team mate in the singles finals which also went five sets. Cook won, 2-6, 6-0, 6-4, 3-6, 6-0.

BRAVES SHADE CARDS 5 TO 4

Cooney Produces Victory Punch in Fourteenth Frame

BOSTON, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Boston took the final game of the series from St. Louis today, 5 to 4, in 14 innings, and further endangered the pennant chances of the Cardinals. Cincinnati, winning while St. Louis was losing went into a tie with the Cards for first place. A hit by Cooney with two out and Taylor on second base blasted the hope of St. Louis in the 14th inning. Twice while the teams were tied at 4-4 from the eighth inning on St. Louis had filled the bases with none out. Each time the team, with Hornsby at bat, was unable to score. The game was bitterly contested throughout and Thevenow's fielding was a feature. Douthitt's home run in the fourth was the longest drive seen at Braves field this season. Sherdel and Alexander pitched for the Cardinals and Wertz and Benton for Boston.

LAW GOES BACK TEN YEARS TO CONVICT A BIGAMIST

GLASGOW. — Going back 10 years and disregarding a divorce which he had been granted, the law has reached out and grasped John Sturrock for bigamy in one of the oddest cases on record in Scottish courts. Sturrock left his local wife in 1915 and a year later got a divorce from her. In the meantime he had bigamously married a Dundee woman. Three years later, he went through a legal ceremony with his bigamous wife. In some way the first wife learned this month of the bigamy committed in Aberdeen and had Sturrock arrested. Despite evidence of the divorce and subsequent legal marriage, he was sent to prison for a year.

SPORTS DONE BROWN

The day when all pitchers were classed as dub hitters is long since passed. Many flingers may well be feared at the plate. But for those who still make of their trip to the plate an aimless walk in the afternoon sun Dutch Ruether has a thought.

Ruether, veteran southpaw now with the Yanks, is sent in often as a pinch hitter, so potent is his bat.

"I don't always connect," admits Dutch. "But I always go out doing something—if it isn't any more than swinging at the ball. You can't hit the ball with the bat resting on your shoulder. You can study your own weakness and avoid balls that you know you can't hit—except when you have to hit it. But swing!"

There are still pitchers who approach the plate with the mein of a murderer going to the chair.

The big league baseball season is far enough advanced now that one can begin to list the outstanding "boners" of the season.

And valid reasons can be presented for awarding Connie Mack the beribboned scorecard for pulling the best one in the American league.

Close followers of the American league affairs have given Connie and the others involved time to prove the wisdom of his trades which caused the departure of Bing Miller, Slim Harriss and Eddie Heimach.

Mack traded Miller to St. Louis for Baby Doll Jacobson and then sent the latter, with Slim Harriss and Lefty Heimach, to the Red Sox for the often tried and usually found wanting Howard Ehmke.

Harris won 19 games for Connie last year. Heimach was a capable left-hander although not a big winner for Mack. The departure of Miller for the Browns weakened the Athletics' attack. Jacobson, in Miller's place, might have carried the load. But Connie let him pass along.

Ehmke has won some games for Connie but not enough to date to warrant the price Connie paid for him. The Mackmen are woefully weak in batting. The other hurlers are having indifferent success. Harriss and Heimach proceeded to demonstrate to the Red Sox fans that they have the stuff when handled properly.

Ehmke may put on a last minute spurt that will change the complexion of the deal. But he alone can turn the trick. Miller is traveling along well above .300 and laboring in vain to help the Browns get some place.

Travener Flashes In Double Set Back Given Loop Leaders

DETROIT, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Detroit lopped a game and a half off the New York American's lead by taking both games of today's double header. The Tigers won the first game, 4 to 3, by bunching hits in two innings and took the second, 4 to 1, behind the brilliant pitching of Sam Gibson, who allowed only three hits. New York's single score in the second game was the result of a wild throw by Burke. Tavener's fielding was the bright spot of Detroit's defensive playing. Meusel hit his eleventh home run of the season in the sixth of the first game.

Chance of Life For Yaqui Joe

Opportunity Knocks At His Door in Romonoff Battle

Yaqui Joe, a savage but a prime favorite with Wichita Falls sports fans both high and low, has opportunity barking at his threshold in the Bill Romonoff finish match carded Thursday night at the Eleventh and Ohio arena. And Joe has heeded the call.

Realizing that Romonoff stands out as the best man he has ever been scheduled to battle and realizing that if he can beat the Russian he will have taken a great step toward realization of his ultimate dream, that of being recognized in the east as the king of wrestlers at his weight, the young Indian is taking many pains to be at top condish.

The Indian, clever, faster, perhaps tougher, but not the veteran ring general Romonoff has shown himself to be intends to rely on his speed and versatility of attack to bring him victory. To retain the pace he must set it is necessary that Yaqui be in well nigh perfect physical condition. So he's working away hard and seriously each day both morning and afternoon in order to be in this desired shape.

Romonoff on the other hand seems to be running as little risk as possible himself of being defeated. Having won a decision over Matty Matsuda, albeit he was heavier than the welter limit, he says his next object is to put it on the Indian for the simple reason that Matsuda has been training Joe with hopes some day of seeing him win the welterweight belt, much in dispute at the moment, that he, Matsuda, held undisputed for many years.

OFFICIAL

expend much time and labor in the work, proponents said. Mr. King said he had accepted the resolution in lieu of concurrent resolutions he proposed last week.

The resolution provides that investigation shall go back to January 1, 1925. It points out that criticism of highway contracts has been widespread, and that a court judgment declared one contract was let "in abuse of official discretion and for an unconscionable consideration." While a jury held contracts were let in probable fraud to another company. The resolution said known facts with respect to conducting of highway commission and the general demand for an investigation created a necessity for such.

2,000 Pardons Issued

In reciting the need for an investigation of the pardon board the resolution states more than 2,000 acts of clemency have been issued in the past 20 months, and that there has been criticism and condemnation of many such acts.

Certain book contracts have been citicized and litigation has arisen, making imperative for the purpose interest an investigation of the text book commission the resolution says.

The resolution points out that such an investigation would be in keeping with the democratic convention platform.

The committee would sit at Austin, have the power to issue processes for witnesses, and the authority to issue attachments for disobedience of subpoenas. It would also have the right to inspect and make copies of all records of any state department and the books of any proposition firm, or corporation holding a contract with the state.

Members of the committee would be allowed five dollars for each day served, and per diem, and expenses, while witnesses would be allowed the same mileage and per diem allowed witnesses in criminal cases in districts.

Authority to call on the attorney general's department for advice and assistance would be given.

House members said that when B. F. Looney was attorney general his department held investigating committees could function between sessions, with the power to summon witnesses and issue attachments, though not the right to punish for contempt. The issuing of attachments would enable the committee to hold recalcitrant witnesses until the regular session met when they could be punished for contempt.

Satterwhite Applauded

Declaration of Speaker Lee Satterwhite that he was ready to go home after the district road bonds have been validated was applauded, but shortly after he made this statement and the house adjourned, a number of outstanding members circulated for his copy of the resolution.

"I don't know what's in the minds of my colleagues, but I feel the validation of the bonds should come first," Satterwhite said. "I'm sure that's the primary reason the governor called us into session. We should accomplish validation within two weeks, and after that is done I am ready to go home.

"We must act with caution in the validation. We want to go fast enough, but not too fast. In addition to the validation bills, there are a number of emergency appropriation bills that will have to be considered.

"The senate and the house must co-operate, if bond validation is to be expediated. There are 555 road district bills that have to be introduced and the best plan calls for the introduction of approximately half in each branch."

A resolution of regret at the death Saturday of John Sneed, for many years staff correspondent of the Dallas News, was presented by Dallas county members of both branches and was unanimously adopted.

POWER RATE CUT

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept.13.—Announcement has been made by the office of the Southwestern Light and Power company in Granfield that the rate in Granfield for electricity has been reduced from 15 cents per kilowatt hour to 12 cents. The company explained its action by saying that consumption in that city justified the reduction.

INCOMPARABLE ROBERT LEADS

Jones Only Golfer to Clip Par in Amateur Open First 18

SHORT HILLS, N. J., Sept. 13.—(AP)—Baltusrol received America's foremost amateur golfers at its breastwork of bunkers today and repulsed all but the incomparable Bobby Jones in the first 18-hole round of the 36-hole qualification test for the national championship.

One hundred and forty-four players—sectional champions, intercollegiate stars, former national title holders, Walker cup veterans—pitted their skill and power against the hazards of the long New Jersey course but Bobby alone survived the battle with sand and bunker and water to complete his first day's drive for third consecutive amateur crown with a brilliant score of 70.

Playing flawless golf, the Georgia marvel outstripped his field by no less than four strokes with the only card of the day that crept under a defiant par of 72.

Chick Turns In 79

Fourteen players in addition to Jones fought their way inside the 80 stroke zone but only one of the group, Chick Evans, held a place in the new ranking list of the United States golf association from which eight players will be seeded tomorrow for, the subsequent rounds of match play. The veteran Chicago star, champion of a decade ago turned in a smooth 79.

George Dawson of Chicago, Illinois state champion, closed a brilliant round in the dusk to land second place, with a card of 74.

Lauren Upson of Englewood, N. J., former Pacific Coast intercollegiate star and Paul Haviland, Yale university captain tied for third place with cards of 76, while one stroke behind them came Dexter Cummins of Chicago, former intercollegiate title holder, Rudy Knepper, former Sioux City player, and Ellsworth Augustus of Cleveland.

Gardner Takes 88

Bob Gardner, captain of the Walkercup team drove out of bounds three times and took 12 strokes on the first hole winding up with an 88 which probably will eliminate him from the tournament. George Von Elm of Los Angeles runner up to Jones two years ago and considered Bobby's strongest rival took 83 strokes.

Jess Guilford, the Boston gun, closed with an 80, two strokes less than the count of Max Marston of Philadelphia.

EERIE

was discovered by the investigators to be about 75 steps from the grave. The body after being removed from the casket was carried to the spot. No sign of it having been dragged was seen.

The operation, according to Mr. Myer and undertakers was perfect, and no doubt by an experienced man. None of the operating instruments were found. The work apparently was done by the light from a flashlight.

The place from where the spade used in the disinterment was taken, was discovered about a half mile from the cemetery. The spade was left in the cemetery and was identified by a concrete mixer.

The grave was dug out, the box lid unfastened at one end and broken about midways of the box. After the lid was broken, the lid of the casket was broken in, the body removed by the feet, and carried away. After the operation was performed, the body was stuffed partly back into the casket and a few spadefuls of earth thrown in.

The theory of jewelry robbery which was first thought possible was exploded when the body was found to be mutilated.

Mr. Myer was unable to say if the persons responsible for this job were identified with those who were guilty of similar crimes ten years ago. No clues ever were found which would lead to an arrest when the first outrages were committed.

It was pointed out that the operation of the dead woman resembled the work of a particular type of pervert. Such type of criminality has been recorded in about 150 cases, in all of which it was found that the same kind of operation had been performed.

Cotton Pickers On All Roads to Fields

FREDERICK, Okla., Sept. 13.—Roads to Frederick are lined with the incoming streams of vehicles bringing cotton pickers to Tillman county. The fair weather for the past few days has greatly encouraged the outlook for a bumper cotton crop in the county and many farmers are now picking. The greater part of the labor, however, is still unemployed, but with a week of fair weather, it is believed that gins will be running to full capacity.

Leaf and boll worm which caused much apprehension among the farmers in their recent appearance in the county have been checked by poisoning, it is said. Very small areas of the cotton of this county were damaged by the worms.

Miller resigned so as to be with his aged parents who live in Missouri.

WHERE SWIMMING HELPS.

OCEAN CITY, Sept. 13.—Seven men are mighty thankful for the swimming craze. When a fishing boat overturned Thorn Henderson, 17, and his sister, Ethel, 16, both fully clad, swam three miles through the waves to bring the coast guard to the rescue of the men clinging to the keel.

HE CHATS ON PHILOSOPHY But Can He Pack it in His Gloves Against Dempsey?

Here we have a man of peaceful habits—a desire to follow artistic or literary pursuits—rushed into the fight game, and that by an odd route.

The challenger had no thought of becoming a professional boxer when Uncle Sam called on the youth of the country to throw its strength and virility into the great melee abroad. Tunney found himself laying aside his books to don a tin helmet and a rifle—as a marine.

It was while abroad that he found himself drawn into boxing matches and eventually found himself figuratively shoved into a light heavyweight tournament in Paris, which left him champion of that division in the A. E. F.

Back home his fame had spread—and a ready fortune lay ahead of him should he choose to continue his efforts in the ring.

Purely a made fighter—a pawn of fate.

He doesn't like fighting!

The feminine members of his family will not see the fight—will not even get round by round flashes from the battle. "It is a man's game and not a nice one for them," he says.

Likes Philosophy, Good Fiction

He would rather discuss philosophy, would rather read the works of H. G. Wells, discuss the magnetic fiction of Joseph Conrad or muil over Freudian theories than talk boxing.

And yet he finds himself training diligently for a crack at the greatest honor in fistiana— the heavyweight championship of the world.

How can his intellectual complex be considered an asset or liability in his efforts?

I once held to the illusion that brains could triumph over brawn in the ring as in any game. But frequent glimpses of the exponent of brain and science stretched full length on the floor with the primitive man shaking the flecks of blood from his battered lips and grinning eagerly for more have changed my mind.

I had that view when Dempsey and Jess Willard met. Here was the biggest heavyweight the game has known, the man who beat the crafty Johnson, going into a championship battle, an experienced fighter, a mature man whose association with persons of various wealth and breadth of vision about the world had seemed to broaden his vision and thinking powers.

Dempsey the Roamer

And going in against him was a man who knew nothing but the desire to lower his head, start a weaving, shifting waddle towards his opponent and hammer his way through said opponent. His travels had been aimless ones of "the road."

Willard's successes in the oil fields, his sophistication, his very sang froid, meant nothing to Mr. Dempsey, the killer.

Then I saw Dempsey against Georges Carpentier, well educated, member of the social elite of France, friend of the big men of his country, actor, student of art and literature and master of boxing as it might be studied by earning professors.

And I saw Carpentier's aides carry him to his corner after a valiant but futile effort to stop the killer.

Carpentier was then one of the fastest, cleverest men the ring has known. And he carried a wallop.

As I say Corbett, young refined, well educated bank clerk, marked up on "hit" for brains in the heavyweight division but the percentage is the other way.

Philosophy, psychology, psychoanalysis and all the other pyschos and advanced degrees in arts and sciences seem ordinarily to carry the possessor up to and inside the ropes but apparently cannot be laced inside the glove with the knuckles. And it is the stuff put in and behind the gloves that counts.

Tunney may emerge from the ring September 23 as heavyweight champion of the world. This article is not meant to disparage his chances. But the point is that it will still be a debatable question as to what part philosophy and what part the old John "sock" in his trusty left played in the victory.

Dempsey-Tunney Fight Forbidden By Indiana Judge

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 13. (AP)—The petition of the Chicago coliseum club for an injunction to prevent the Jack Dempsey-Gene Tuney world's heavyweight championship bout at Philadelphia Sept. 23, was granted tonight by Judge Clinton H. Given in superior court here.

Judge Given held that the ownership of the contract by the Chicago club represented a property right. He said further that although a prize fight is not sanctioned by Indiana law and that an Indiana court cannot properly take judicial cognizance of a contract for a "prize fight contrary to Indiana law" the state does recognize property rights and that is what he construed the contract to be.

County Chairman Says None Needed For McNatt.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 13—(AP)—No special election will be held to fill the place of Hubert S. McNatt, 60, of Arlington, state representative, who died last week, in the opinion of E. B. Randle, chairman of the county democratic executive committee.

"It is too late for the governor to order an election in time for the special session," Randle said, "and as McNatt did not offer for reelection, the place will be taken by J. C. Duvall, his successor, in time for the next regular session.

Long Preparatory Period To Find Excellent Exhibits Ready to Show

(Special)—With excellent weather over the week end and painstaking preparations completed, the Tillman County Free fair will open Tuesday in what is expected to be a highly satisfactory exhibit of the county's resources and products, to a large crowd of attendants. The fair will continue for four days, lasting through Friday.

Several strings of race horses arrived Sunday and are stabled at the fair park. Horse races will be presented the first two days of the fair and automobile races will be held Thursday and Friday. In addition to the racing there will be auto polo matches, auto pushball contests and fireworks displays at night. Midway attractions consist of the usual ride devices but the fair this year will be marked by an entire absence of clap-trap gambling devices.

According to the county agents many exhibits of excellent selections will be presented and it is believed that the exhibit of live stock will be larger than heretofore.

Poultry enthusiasts are busy today preparing their birds for the show and a continual stream of vehicles was to be seen going through the fair ground park. The most meritorious exhibits are scheduled to be exhibited at the Texas-Oklahoma fair in Wichita Falls, Texas, and at the Oklahoma State fair at Oklahoma City. These

CRIPPLED BILL BALKS DEFEAT

Tilden Drops First Set But Hobbles Through To Victory

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(AP)—William T. Tilden hobbled out on the courts of the west side club today to start the defense of the national tennis title he has held for six straight years and dropped a set to John Vanryn, 21-year-old Princeton star, before winning his first round match. The scores were, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5, 6-2. The national champion betrayed every evidence of being severely handicapped by the fresh injury to his left knee, suffered in his losing match with Rene LaCoste on Saturday.

He has a strained knee ligament which, if wrenched again, is almost certain to put him out of competition, according to Dr. Carl Fischer, one of the contestants, who has been treating the champion's ailment.

Tilden's foremost rivals swept through their matches impressively. "Little Bill" Johnston, eliminated Len S. Baker of Kansas City, in the first round at 6-2, 6-4, 6-1 and gained a lap on the field by entering the third round through default. Richards, Johnston's likely semi-final opponent, defeated Horace Orser, New York school boy, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1, while Rene LaCoste, the young French conqueror of Tilden, swept aside Charles S. Garland of Pittsburgh, 6-2, 6-1, 6-0.

The path to victory was far from smooth, however, for other "seeded" stars, among them Edward G. Chandler the intercollegiate champion and Alfred H. Chapin, Jr. Chandler triumphed over Brian Norton, ninth, in the 1925 ranking at 10-8, 3-6, 6-1. Chapin was extended by Cedric Major of New York in five sets, 7-5, 10-12, 4-6, 6-4, 6-2.

Indian Summer Weather Shows Up

Autumn weather proper was in evidence Monday in Wichita Falls when a cool breeze veering from the north and slightly clouded skies brought the thermometer to 62 degrees during the 24-hour period.

A maximum temperature of 90 degrees was reached, and at 5 o'clock Monday evening the thermometer registered 88. Clear weather was indicated by a high barometer which stood at 29.29 at the last reading at 5 o'clock.

Heavy showers to the south of this city lent influence to the drop in temperature. Rain was reported at Archer City, Breckenridge and Olney, south to Graham.

Rogers Speaks To Kiwanis Monday On Constitution

In observing constitutional week of the Kiawanis club, a program was arranged in which Judge Guy Rogers spoke on the constitution of the United States Monday at the Kemp at the noon meeting. "The establishment of the American government was the first expression of human longing for freedom," he told Kiwanians in his address. "The constitution is the great bulwark of the nation's security. It is not easily amended, and cannot be changed and the change regretted in a year or two.

"That law should be respected, and the law cannot be enforced unless it is enforced equally," he declared. "Your duty and mine besides obeying the law is to see that others obey it, that our children grow up worthy of this heritage, and to see that such men as most nearly can function under that spirit and vest them with the mantle of authority," and Judge Rogers spoke of the pilgrimage that should be made to the ballot boxes.

Dr. F. R. Collard, chairman of the educational committee, was in charge of the program and presented the speaker. Announcement was made of the Mexico City Symphony orchestra which will play Tuesday night at Junior college in a benefit performance sponsored by the Kiwanis club and the Federated Missionary society for the Day Nursery. Kenneth Bebb, chairman of the arrangements committee asked the ushers to be present at the college at 7:30 o'clock. Volunteer ushers are: Glen Smith, Ira L. Cain, D. M. Bernard, Lawrence Ellins, Dave Paul, Sid Riley and J. N. Sherrill.

An invitation for Kiwanians to attend the trade trip through Oklahoma advertising the Texas-Oklahoma fair was extended through the chamber of commerce.

Announcement was made of a gift of $25 by "Dutch" Mantell, wrestler. Ira L. Cain called attention to the work of Boy Scouts who are acting as traffic officers in the region of the public schools, assisting the small children across the street. The junior traffic officers have the backing of the police department and they should be respected, he said.

MERTON STILL UNDER FIRE

German Industrialist Says Daugherty Had No Hand In Transfer

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Richard Merton, German industrialist who negotiated the return of $7,000,000 of seized alien funds to an alleged neutral Swiss corporation swore today that he had had no dealings with Harry M. Daugherty, former United States attorney general, in the course of his successful trip to the United States.

Merton, star witness in the trial of Daugherty and Col. Thomas W. Miller, former alien property custodian, on charges of conspiracy to defraud the government also averred he had no knowledge that the $441,000 commission paid John T. King, late republican national committeeman from Connecticut was to be divided with any other person.

United States District Attorney Buckner has declared the government will show that $50,000 of the commission was traced to Miller, at least $22,000 to Daugherty and some to the late Jesse Smith, described as Daugherty's "man Friday."

Merton was in the witness box the entire day. During most of the time he was under cross examination by William Rand, Miller's chief counsel. Mr. Buckner repeatedly stated that Rand was using Merton as his own witness. Rand took Merton through a description of the organization of the societe suisse pour valeurs de metaux, the corporation for which Merton claimed the $7,000,000 of seized shares of the American Metal company. The government charges that this claim was fraudulently paid and that Miller, Daugherty, Smith and King, were co-conspirators in "rushing" the claim through the governmental channels.

Grain

CHICAGO GRAINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(AP)—Grain vealues averaged lower today. Buying power remained slack during the greater part of the trading and the close was weak with wheat down ⅛ to 1⅜c corn unchanged to ⅝c lower, oats unchanged to ⅛c off and provisions at the same as Saturday's finish to 22½c decline.

A desire on the part of longs to take profits and restricted buying power gave corn an easier tone. There was free selling on the hard spots. Crop reports were a bit more optimistic in character, although prospects are for unsettled weather which is not desirable at this stage of crop development.

Oats while higher in the early trading dipped later, largely on profit-taking sales prompted by the set back in wheat.

Provisions were easier, despite an advance in hog values.

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)— A further decline in the cotton market earlier today was followed by rallies on covering and trade buying. December contracts which had sold off to 16.95 on the break or 130 points below the high price last week, rallied to 17.25, and closed at 17.14, or net unchanged. The general market closed barely steady net one joint lower to two points higher.

The opening was easy at a decline of three to 22 points. Active months sold 15 to 25 points net lower in early trading under renewed southern selling liquidation and local selling promoted by relatively easy Liverpool cables and reports of fairly favorable weather conditions in the south over Sunday. October was relatively easy, declining to 16.70 under liquidation inspired by Saturday's reports that about 10,000 bales of consigned cotton had been received here presumably for delivery next month.

Offerings tapered off on the decline which carried the price of January off to 17.06 and the market firmed up around mid-day. The most general opinion among local traders appeared to that the storm reported in the south Atlantic was too far east of the belt to develop serious features, but there was evidently nervousness over another disturbance reported in the Yucatan channel. This tended to check selling while the way offerings tapered off on the early break suggested that the decline from the high prices of last week had helped the market's technical position.

Traders found nothing alarming in the official weather forecasts or in the detailed weather reports for the day but there was quite a flurry of covering during the afternoon and considerable trade buying. October sold up to 17.07 and January to 17.34 net advance of about 11 to 12 points on active months ubt there was a renewal of liquidation and a spurt of southern hedge selling in the last half hour.

Closing prices showed reactions of some 10 to 12 points from the best.

Exports today were 20,744 bales making 557,799 so far this season. Port receipts 61,560; U. S. Port stocks 758,408.

Cotton futures closed barely steady at net 2 points up to 1 down.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 13.—(AP)— The cotton market developed a fair degree of activity today and the price trend was upward although there were some attempts at further reaction near the start. The market soon developed an over sold condition and with the technical position improved by last week's liquidation the market soon started a rally and it was on the upgrade most of the day owing to trade buying straddle operations between this market and New York and considerable short covering as a result of fears engendered by the presence of two storms in the tropics one south of Bermuda and the other in the northwestern part of the Caribbean, moving towards the Yucatan channel. Following a few points decline at the start the market turned upward finally showing gains over the previous close of 21 to 33 points. There was a moderate reaction of five to six points near the end on realising but the market closed steady, showing net gains for the day of 26 to 28 points.

At the start Liverpool was about as due to a shade better than due and first trades here showed no change to 10 points advance. The market soon eased off moderately to 16.75 for October, 16.84 for December and 16.88 for January, or one to five points under the close of Saturday. These proved to be the lows of the day.

The market soon rallied however and kept on the upgrade most of the day reaching the high points in the last hour of trading with October at 17.01, December at 17.18 and January at 17.23, or 25 to 35 points above the early lows and 21 to 33 points above the previous close. The close was about five to six points off from the top.

Exports for the day totalled 20,744 bales.

NEW YORK STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 13.—(AP)— The stock market alternately blew hot and cold today as opposing speculative forces struggled for control, net gains and losses being about evenly divided at the close. The approach of the third quarterly income tax payment date and recurrent rumors about stiffer money rates tended to restrict public participation but failed to curtail the activity of pools in a few stocks in which special developments are reported to be pending.

Heavy liquidation again took place in the motor group, being accompanied by rumors of further price cuts and decreased production and sales. Mack Trucks, which recently put into effect a more stringent credit policy, likely to temporarily restrict sales, broke over four points to 113 and then rallied about a point. Hudson dropped three points to 61 and then rallied slightly. General Motors, selling "ex" the 50 per cent. stock dividend closed at 142 after fluctuating between 140¼ and 143½.

Steel shares failed to respond to the prediction of President Grace of the Bethlehem Steel corporation that the industry was looking for a continuance of godo business through the final quarter of the year, and to Chicago reports that the fall buying movement of steel rails had begun, judging from current inquiries of the principal railroads. U. S. Steel common fluctuated within a range of two points, closing fractionally higher at 147.

The advance in the sugar shares which has coincided with stiffening commodity prices, was temporarily checked today by the omission of the quarterly dividend on American beet sugar preferred which broke from 67 to 59½ a new low record for the year. South Porto Rican advanced a point but the others showed only fractional changes.

Pullman which is expected to announce a stock split-up or special dividend distribution of some kind in the near future, soared nearly seven points to 196⅝ the highest price since 1910, and then reacted to 194⅝ on realising.

Baldwin and Lima Locomotive, General Electric and Westinghouse Aid Brake closed a point or so higher. Coca Cola advanced over four points to a new high at 165. American Sumatra Tobacco touched a new high at 36⅝. Good support also was noted for such stocks as American Can, Consolidated Cigar, Granbery Copper, National Cloak and Suit, Shubert Theatres and U. S. Industrial Alcohol. Continental Baking broke nine points to a new low at 73 and then rallied to 76½. Pronounced heaviness also developed in Detroit Edison, Southern Dairies "A," Stewart Warner and U. S. Cast Iron Pipe.

Call money was steady at five per cent all day. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges eased slightly in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled just above $4.85 and French francs were quoted around 2.86 cents.

ANGELUS MESS IN NEW TURN

Hoax And Graft Charges Are Hurled As Woman Loosens Tongue

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 13. (AP)—The strange case of the disappearance of Aimee Semple McPherson, Angelus temple evangelist, who dropped from public view May 18 at Ocean Park on the sea shore near here, and re-appeared at Douglas, Ariz., June 23, with a report or having been kidnaped, today is in another state of eruption with a mass of sensational statements and disclosures.

These focus upon the Carmel, Cal., feature of the case, the occupation of a cottage there by a begoggled woman immediately after the evangelist's disappearance, the subsequent affidavits that this woman was a mysterious "Miss X" engaged to Kenneth G. Ormiston, former temple radio operator and now the assertions of the woman who made that identity that the whole matter of "Miss X" was a hoax.

Mrs. Lorraine Wiseman McDonald, Sielaff, under arrest here on charges of passing fictitous checks last night made affidavits to the Los Angeles Examiner that the story surrounding "Miss X", purported to be her sister, was a fake for which she was to receive $5,000, from the evangelist.

CITY RETAINS NEW AUDITOR

Ira S. Harris Engaged Permanently By Council; Fight Rocks Meeting

The city of Wichita Falls Monday night entered into a contract for auditing of its books for another year and the permanent retention of an auditor to devote at least one third of his time to its affairs.

The council went even further than that when it passed the job by a vote of three to one to Ira Harris, Wichita Falls accountant who recently completed the audit for the year ending March 31, 1925. Mr. Harris' salary, the council decided, is to be $2,000 for the year, to be paid $800 for work during the period between March 31 and September 30, and $1,200 in monthly installments of $200 each for work during the period between September 30 and March 31.

Long Discussion

The council's action Monday night came as the climax to a two week's discussion over the "remarks" portion of the audit recently completed by Mr. Harris for the past year, in which a number of the ills and weaknesses of the present administration of city funds are pointed out and remedies suggested. This first discussion took place two weeks ago last Monday at a council meeting and was followed Monday night by another discussion in the course of which a contract for employing the services of a permanent auditor was introduced by Finance Commissioner Jones. The contract was finally discarded by the council, the motion for its acceptance dying for want of a second.

Last night another contract was presented by Mr. Jones providing that the services of an auditor be procured now, the auditor to give as much as ten days of each month to the city, and to keep the books of the city practically up to date. In addition to this he is to serve as the "watch dog" of the city's exchequer and see that inventories are made periodically and that they check properly.

The contract when it was presented, instantly precipitated a fight on the council floor. Mr. Jones made a short address in support of it and offered a motion that the council accept it, the motion being seconded by Commissioner Hunt.

Asked More Time

Mayor Shepherd then asked that Mr. Jones withdraw his motion and give the commissioners a week to study over the contract. A move to table for a week was made by Commissioner Curd. This motion, after at least a five-minute wait, died for lack of a second and the mayor put the question, Commissioners Hunt, Patton and Jones voting for acceptance of the contract and only Commissioner Curd against it. Commissioner Quiesser did not vote, explaining that he was in favor of the contract but did not care to use his vote in putting it over as long as any of the other commissioners wanted more time to study over the matter. The city attorney ruled that Mr. Quiesser's failure to vote was tantamount to acquiescence.

Mr. Harris will start his duties with the city October 1.

"The move is one of the most progressive steps that the city has taken in years," Mr. Jones said after the meeting. "The audit in 1925 cost us $1,200, with the prospect that if we waited until 1927 to provide for the 1926 audit we would have to pay nearly $2,000. Mr. Harris will be in a position to keep a continual check on every department in the city, and there is not a doubt in my mind that his employment will save us thousands of dollars within the next year."

July Disagrees On Theft Case

The jury of the 89th district court in the case against O. F. Keiningham, charged with felony indictment with theft from person, was discharged at five o'clock Monday by Judge P. A. Martin, when it reported it was unable to agree. A member of the jury stated that the body had been ten to two in favor of a suspended sentence. Keiningham pleaded guilty upon araignment to the theft alleged, and at that time filed his application for a suspended sentence.

Keiningham was charged with snatching a purse from the hands of Mrs. R. E. Souther, teacher at the Junior high school last May, and later discarded it and throwing the money away. When he took the stand for himself he declared that he committed the act as alleged, but did it in order to get money to buy some bread for his mother, who, he said, was without food at her home several miles from town.

Junk Ordinance Passes Council

The city's junk ordinance restricting traffic in "junk" within the city and providing for licensing of all dealers was passed on its third and final reading at the meeting of the city council Monday night, and becomes effective as of Oct. 15. The only change in the ordinance from its original form came in the license fee which were raised from a small sum to $50 and $100. There were no protests to the final passage of the ordinance.

Charges of murder were filed in district court Monday naming Jim "Kitty" Allen, negro, alleged to have shot and fatally injured L. M. Bratton, another negro, in the course of an altercation in the "flats" district Sunday noon.

Bratton received one load of buckshot in the chest and another in his back, from which he lived until about dark Sunday.

According to the plaintiff's petition a well on his farm from which until recently he procured good drinking water had become poluted with mineral matter from water which seeped through from a near-by irrigation ditch. "Clean Up" Week Set In Proclamation Issued By Shepherd Monday

The week of September 20 is official "Clean-up" week for the city of Wichita Falls, a proclamation issued Monday by Mayor R. E. Shepherd says.

"The city has two events of its own to look forward to which makes the 'clean-up' imperative," the proclamation declares. "On September 29 the Texas realtors meet here for a three-day session, and on October 2 the Texas-Oklahoma fair starts for a week. It is imperative that the city look spic and span for both of those occasions, that weeds be cut and trash cleaned out of alleys and back yards.

"There is an additional incentive to a successful 'clean-up' week in the fact that October 3 to 9 has been designated as national fire prevention week, and the clean-up is always a preliminary incident to the fire prevention campaigns."

There will be further announcements as to the program to be conducted by the city within the week, Mr. Shepherd stated.

HOW I IMPROVED MY HEALTH

Did It in Less Than One Month

As Mrs. Weaver herself says, "I was never very strong." This is a mild statement describing her condition, for, according to her letters, she was subjected to no small amount of ill health. Fortunately, her sister was familiar with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begged Mrs. Weaver to try it. "After three or four weeks," writes Mrs. Weaver, "I felt a great difference in myself. I would go to bed and sleep sound, and although I could not do very much work, I seemed stronger. I kept on taking it and now I am well and strong, do my work and take care of three children. I sure do tell my friends about your wonderful medicine, and I will answer any letters from women asking about the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. Lawrence Weaver, East Smithfield St., Mt. Pleasant, Pa.

If you knew that thousands of women suffering from troubles similar to those you are enduring had improved their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, wouldn't you think it was worth a trial?

8 DIVORCES ARE SOUGHT

Various Allegations Set Out In Petitions Filed Monday

Militant wives with the gusto of a warrior, who, figuratively speaking, cover the ground they stand on, figure prominently in eight divorce suits filed in the district courts of Wichita county Monday. One wife, her aggrieved husband recites in his petition for a divorce, used an ice-pick in the course of a quarrel one day. Another was handy with a shot-gun and frequently used it in enforcing such domestic laws as she promulgated. Two husbands allege parental interference, which they state, has made the marriage relation impossible. Desertion, cruelty and infidelity are variously made the causes of action for the remaining four petitions.

Six Applicants Will Take Tests At Post Office Tuesday

C. K. Johnson, manager of the local civil service board for Uncle Sam, will hold a competitive examination today at the postoffice to fill vacancies in the departmental and field service for stenographers and typists.

Six applicants, two of them from Wichita Falls and the four from surrounding towns, will take the examinations, and will be present this morning at 9 o'clock for the test. Mr. Johnson stated that this examination usually attracts more contestants than at this time, but that the vacancies to be filled immediately will probably be accomodated by the number taking the examination.
