Warsaw Pact renewal inked by Soviet bloc

By MATTHEW C. VITA
Associated Press Writer

■ U.S., Soviet relations entering new, perhaps rough, period — Page 4A

WARSAW, Poland — Leaders of the Soviet bloc today signed an agreement extending the Warsaw Pact, the 30-year alliance which binds the Eastern European nations to the Soviet Union, the official Polish news agency PAP reported.

The one-sentence PAP report did not say for how long the military and political alliance was extended. It would have expired next month without formal renewal.

Communist Party chief Mikhail S. Gorbachev signed the agreement for the Soviet Union, PAP reported.

PAP said, "Directly after the completion of debates among the party and state leaders of the Warsaw Pact states ... took place the sublime act of signing a protocol on prolonging the validity of the act on friendship, cooperation and mutual help signed May 14, 1955."

In addition to the Soviet Union, members of the treaty signing the agreeemnt were Bulgaria, Hungary, East Germany, Poland, Romania and Czechoslovakia.

The agreement was reached following a formal summit meeting that convened in the same 18th century palace where the treaty was first ratified. The leaders of the Warsaw Pact member states arrived in Warsaw for their summit meeting on Thursday.

It was Gorbachev's first trip outside the Soviet Union since he took power as general secretary of the Soviet Communist Party last month.

Some diplomatic observers said the summit and treaty renewal were merely formalities and the meeting was significant as an opportunity for Gorbachev to get together with his allies. He met with them last month after the funeral of his predecessor, Konstantin U. Chernenko.

The Warsaw Pact originally was valid for 20 years and was automatically renewed for another 10 years in 1975.

Two-vehicle mishap

Ambulance personnel transport a 20-year-old Midland woman to Midland Memorial Hospital after a two-vehicle accident Thursday at the intersection of Loop 250 and Garfield. Tia Lynn Dorris, 2404 Emerson Court, was listed in satisfactory condition at MMH this morning. According to police, Ms. Dorris, a student, was northbound on Garfield at about 3 p.m. when her two-door car was struck by a truck driven by a 23-year-old Midland laboror. The man was eastbound on the loop when the accident occurred. He was cited for disobeying a red light, according to police, who booked him in city jail on charges of driving with a suspended license.

U.S., South Korean leaders meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan was meeting with South Korean President Chun Doo-hwan today at a time when, except for trade issues, U.S. relations with the Seoul government are at a high point.

Reagan, in a White House conversation with the South Korean leader, was to praise the steady progress made by Koreans in promoting individual liberty and a more open political system, U.S. officials said.

Relations between the two countries have reached a high point as a result of the relatively open National Assembly elections two months ago in South Korea and the government's release of most political prisoners.

These advances have transcended continuing problems over trade. The Reagan administration claims the $3.6 billion surplus that South Korea has in its trade with the United States is partly the result of Korean import restrictions.

For their part, the Koreans are angry over the sale of 87 U.S.-made helicopters to communist North Korea through a third party. The United States has deplored the transaction "in the strongest terms" and is investigating to determine whether there was any illegal involvement by U.S. citizens.

Following his late morning meeting with Reagan and a White House luncheon, Chun was to meet with Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger and Vice President George Bush.

Previously, Reagan and Chun met in Washington in February 1981 and in Seoul in November 1983. The two leaders are said to have developed a warm personal relationship.

Earlier this week, the State Department expressed concern over the continuing deployment of North Korean forces close to the Demilitarized Zone and the existence of the North's 100,000-member commando unit.

"The implications of this, the increasing mechanization of North Korean forces and other developments will certainly be on the agenda for the visit," State Department spokesman Edward Djerejian said.

In a gesture that pleased the administration, South Korea gave opposition leader Kim Dae-jung his freedom seven weeks ago and lifted a political ban on other government critics.

South Korea's treatment of Kim had long been a sore point in U.S.-Korean relations.

Although he now is free to speak out on political issues, Kim, who returned to Seoul earlier this year from U.S. exile, is still denied his civil rights.

Voting in school board runoff slated Saturday

From Staff Reports

Voting in Saturday's runoff election for Place 7 on the Midland Independent School District Board of Trustees will be from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The runoff between Betsy Robinson and Geoffrey Barnett resulted when neither candidate captured 50.1 percent of the total votes cast in the April 6 election.

Polling places are as follows:

— Precinct No. 1, county voting precincts 208, 209 and 211 at Lee Freshman High School, 1400 E. Oak Ave.

— Precinct No. 2, county voting precinct 306, De Zavala Elementary School, 705 N. Lee St.

— Precinct No. 3, county voting precincts 201, 203, 301, 302, 303, 304 and 305, Midland Freshman High School, 100 E. Gist.

Tax refund delays, file destruction charges continue

...In Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — A crush of calls from taxpayers seeking tax refund information from the Internal Revenue Service threatens to knock out telephone service to much of center city, according to Bell of Pennsylvania officials.

"The traffic has been coming in at such a rapid rate that it has been virtually ripping our system apart," said Bell engineer James Killeen.

The calls apparently have been spurred by the IRS's delay in processing millions of tax returns filed at the agency's regional center.

As of the end of last week, the center had processed about 3.1 million returns of an estimated 7.5 million received. About 1 million have not even been opened, the agency said.

Bell says it has been electronically diverting millions of the IRS calls "for a number of weeks" to avoid overloading the 40,000 access lines serving half of Center City. Calls are diverted with the taped message: "All circuits are busy."

"If we didn't (divert calls), it could put the office in real jeopardy — the ability of people to make calls or receive them," Killeen said.

IRS regional spokesman Dave Estey said Thursday the agency was unaware of the phone call volume.

"We know we are experiencing very heavy demand, and we know it's not just here in Philadelphia," he said. "But we think it is an inflated demand. A lot of these people are calling a second or third time."

During one 15-minute period late Thursday afternoon, Bell was able to count at least 6,000 calls to two IRS numbers, but the actual number of incoming calls is so great that Bell says its monitoring equipment can't keep up.

"I've never seen anything like this," said Killeen.

...In Austin

AUSTIN (AP) — An IRS supervisor who ordered tax documents from as many as 6,000 businesses in six states destroyed was under pressure because of an "obscene emphasis on quality and speed" at the service center here, a union attorney said.

Bob Branson, public affairs officer for the Internal Revenue Service center, said Thursday that an investigation of the destruction, which took place late last year, is under way.

"A first-line supervisory employee instructed another employee to destroy certain taxpayer-related correspondence," an IRS statement said. "Management confronted the supervisory employee with the charges, and the employee resigned."

Branson said he did not know how many documents were destroyed.

Employee union officials put the number between 5,000 and 6,000 separate case files — some with as many as 20 pages of attachments such as receipts.

"It's this obscene emphasis on quantity and speed," said union attorney Ann Ellzey. "They're actually generating extra work to get errors undone. (The supervisor) had too much to process so she threw the excess away. It may be she did it without authorization, but we wonder about that."

The incident came to light in the wake of reports earlier this month of the shredding of as many as 20,000 income tax returns and checks by overworked IRS employees in Philadelphia.

Thursday's statement identified neither the supervisor who ordered the destruction nor the employee who did it. Branson said he would have no further comment until an investigation is complete.

Construction of Stacy Dam can begin

AUSTIN (AP) — After more than seven years of delays and legal wrangling, construction can now get under way on the Stacy Dam and Reservoir on West Texas' Colorado River.

The Texas Water Commission issued a permit Thursday that allows the Colorado River Municipal Water District to begin construction on the dam, which may be completed as early as 1989.

A spokesman for the district said its board of directors has voted to go ahead with engineering, surveying and land appraisal for the project.

The Lower Colorado River Authority had fought the dam all the way to the Texas Supreme Court, arguing that it would hurt water users downstream. But the two river agencies continued negotiations that eventually led to an agreement to allow construction of the dam and reservoir.

Several West Texas legislators said that without Stacy Dam, they would not support major water legislation. Gov. Mark White and other state leaders put pressure on the two agencies to reach a settlement.

Permit terms call for the reservoir to be filled in stages, with allowances made for water-rights holders downstream from the Dam. The reservoir will hold 554,340 acre feet of water when it reaches a normal operating level.

Stacy Dam is projected to supply a wide area of West Texas with water into the 21st century. It will be 50 miles east of San Angelo, downstream from the confluence of the Colorado and Concho rivers.

The Stacy location is considered to be the last major site for storing water in West Texas. Many of the cities it is projected to serve have experienced water shortages even in years with normal rainfall.

Before issuing the permit, commissioners required that releases of water from Stacy would have to assure the protection of water users with water use permits from 1938 or earlier.

Commissioners said 8 cubic feet per second would be the minimum amount of water that could be released from Stacy Dam during an April to September period as long as water was flowing into the dam and reservoir.

A minimum of 2.5 cubic feet per second could be released at other times.

The Colorado River Municipal Water District would be responsible for protecting water rights given between 1938 and 1985.

NATION IN BRIEF

Jetliner evacuation not necessary, spokesman said

ROMULUS, Mich. (AP) — The evacuation of 462 passengers from a jetliner when smoke from a fluorescent lighting fixture entered the passenger cabin apparently was unnecessary, a spokesman for the airline said.

More than three dozen people suffered minor injuries evacuating the Boeing 747 charter Thursday as it prepared for departure from Detroit Metropolitan Airport for Las Vegas, Nev.

The captain of the airliner ordered the evacuation as a precaution. "There was no fire or damage ... to the airplane," Walter H. Johnson, executive vice president of National Airlines, said by telephone from New York.

Drunk firefighters OK'd

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — The state Senate has concurred with the House that volunteer firefighters should be allowed to perform their duties while drunk, as long as they are not too intoxicated.

The measure approved Thursday would establish a higher legal threshold of legal drunkenness for the firefighters, .15 percent blood alcohol, than for the rest of the public, .13 percent. The House, which gets the bill again, had set the level at .20 percent.

The provision is the central part of a bill to allow firefighters and their families to collect compensation for injury or death suffered while fighting a fire while drunk.

44 Cubans deported

MARIETTA, Ga. (AP) — The deportation of 44 Cubans brought to 126 the number of Freedom Flotilla refugees sent back to their homeland as undesirables because of criminal records or mental illness.

Thursday's flight was the fourth under an agreement reached between the United States and Fidel Castro's government Dec. 14 to return 2,700 Cubans out of the 125,000 who arrived in this country five years ago.

Most of the refugees in the boatlift from the Cuban port of Mariel have settled into American communities, but the government contends that those scheduled for deportation would be a threat to society if released.

Man surrenders to police

NEW YORK (AP) — A man who forced the evacuation of St. Patrick's Cathedral by claiming to have a bomb in a plastic sack was "calm and conversational" while negotiators talked him into surrendering, police said.

The church was cleared of about 500 people Thursday night as an Argentine choral group prepared to give a free concert.

Pedro LaBoy, 28, who police said was despondent at being jobless, approached the area near the altar carrying a box inside the bag with a wire hanging out, police said. He surrendered about two hours afterward, said police Inspector Robert Burke.

Outbreak continues

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — More than 11,000 cases of salmonella poisoning have been confirmed as the outbreak in Illinois and five other Midwestern states continued to claim victims, officials said.

The total number of cases rose to 12,647, with all but 1,520 of them confirmed, according to figures provided Thursday by Illinois Inspector General Jeremy Margolis.

Journalists view Honduras mission differently

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 10-man press pool organized by the Pentagon to test media coverage under possible battle conditions returned to Washington Thursday, with journalists voicing disparate views on the success of the experiment.

"I think it was a good experience. As an exercise in press coverage it was a significant failure due to the problems the Defense Department created in planning it," said Howell Raines, a New York Times correspondent who was part of the five-day trip to cover a Marine amphibious landing in Honduras.

The Pentagon arranged the mission secretly in order to test the movement of a group of reporters, photographers and television journalists as if they were participating in an actual secret military maneuver. The test was put together by the Pentagon after journalists protested the exclusion of the media from observing the incursion on Grenada two years ago.

Word of the trip leaked out, but the journalists on the pool said they decided to go ahead with the mission to test their ability to function under supposed wartime conditions.

Michael Burch, the Pentagon spokesman, arrived at Andrews Air Force Base to greet the pool members when they arrived in the early evening aboard a camouflaged C-141.

Burch said Defense Secretary Caspar W. Weinberger wants to keep practicing with such pools, despite the lack of secrecy.

"There were leaks, but the only way to fix them is to work more closely with the media," Burch said. "We just need to keep trying."

Raines said about the Pentagon arrangements, "They erred in trying to graft onto a publically announced event, these maneuvers, a secret movement of journalists. It was a conflict that doomed the secrecy element to an early collapse."

The New York Times reporter and others also complained that the military did not make adequate provisions for them to get their stories, television film and photos back to their home offices.

Matthew C. Quinn, a reporter for United Press International, said he thought the execise had a lot of merit.

"I think with some more care and guidelines in preparing people for when this system is activated, absolutely, I think it is possible this will work," Quinn said.

Recent U.S. trade figures with Japan contrasted.

Japan pledges access to medical market

By KOICHI NAKAGAWA
Associated Press Writer

WORLD

TOKYO — Japan has agreed in principle to accept U.S. demands for more access to the Japanese medical market, a Health and Welfare Ministry official said today. But a U.S. government official said the issue is far from settled.

A local news agency reported, meanwhile, that in alloting the 2.3 million cars Japan will ship to the United States this year, trade officials have doubled the number to be sold under American brand names.

A trade official declined to confirm reports by the Kyodo news agency that in dividing up the U.S. market among Japan's eight car manufacturers, the government gave preference to Isuzu Motors Ltd. and Suzuki Motor Co., which sell cars to General Motors Corp.; and Mitsubishi Motors Corp., which sells through Chrysler Corp.

The government's March 28 announcement that it would increase the number of auto exports to the United States by 24.3 percent in the the 1985 fiscal year under a new system of "voluntary restraint," caused outrage among U.S. car manufacturers and calls in the U.S. Congress for import restrictions.

But Masatoshi Kayukawa of the Health Ministry's pharmaceutical affairs bureau said agreement on an eight-point U.S. proposal on pharmaceuticals and medical equipment "virtually settled" a trade dispute between the two countries in that area.

The agreement, he said, was reached Thursday at a working-level conference of senior-level Japanese and U.S. officials.

But a U.S. government official in Tokyo, who briefed reporters on condition he not be identified, said there still remain a few unsettled issues, including a U.S. demand that medical licenses transferred from one company to another be valid for a longer period of time.

Kayukawa said U.S. Treasury Undersecretary David Mulford and the Health Ministry's administrative vice minister, Hitoshi Yoshimura, were among the officials at the talks.

The Japanese officials agreed to accept foreign clinical test data for imported medical equipment as announced in a market-opening package on April 9, according to Kayukawa.

But the U.S. official said the Japanese had agreed in principle in November, 1983, to accept foreign clinical test data, and "so far, there have been no cases in which the Health and Welfare Ministry" has done so.

The Japanese government once insisted that some foreign data on pharmaceuticals was unacceptable because Japanese would not react to some agents in the same way as people of other races.

"In a broad sense, we have an understanding but we have not seen anything actually happen," the U.S. official said.

The Japanese officials agreed to allow foreign firms seeking drug product approval to have easier access to evaluations conducted by the Central Pharmaceutical Affairs Council, but rejected a U.S. request that foreigners sit on the council, Kayukawa said.

Kayukawa said the Japanese officials also told the Americans that Tokyo will accept shorter testing periods for diagnostic drugs used outside the body.

The U.S. government has stressed the pharmaceutical market as a sore point in the trade disputes stemming from Japan's $36.8 billion 1984 trade surplus with the United States.

TheKyodo news service reported that the Ministry of International Trade and Industry will allow so-called "captive imports," which are Japanese-made cars sold under U.S. brands, to more than double, from 134,100 cars in the 1984 fiscal year to 310,100 in the current fiscal year, which began April 1.

Senate GOP trying to hold budget plan

By TOM RAUM
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Senate Republican leaders, unable to give the budget package endorsed by President Reagan the early send-off they had promised, are scouring their party's ranks for the votes needed to keep the plan alive.

"I'm not sure I have them yet," Senate Majority Leader Robert Dole, R-Kan., conceded late Thursday after he abruptly recessed the GOP-controlled Senate rather than risk a crucial showdown vote he had spent most of the day arranging.

The inability of Dole to move the package over its first procedural hurdle, coming just 24 hours after the president's nationally broadcast appeal for the $52 billion package of spending cuts, dealt the plan a potent, possibly disabling, blow.

While Democrats rejoiced in their initial victory, Dole vowed to toil to find the needed additional support overnight.

"We're going to try to turn it around (on Friday) and if it takes a month to turn it around, we'll take a month," Dole told reporters. "The point around here is winning. We may lose eventually, but we're going to first do a lot of work."

The proposed spending outline, painstakingly negotiated by GOP leaders and the White House, contains a raft of politically sensitive spending cuts, ranging from limits on Social Security benefit increases to termination of Amtrak rail passenger subsidies.

Dole's hasty retreat from Thursday's scheduled showdown — a vote needed to bring the administration's plan formally before the Senate as a package — came even as switchboards all over the Capitol were lighting up in response to Reagan's plea for a show of public support.

Patricia Daniels, assistant chief telephone operator, reported that more than 23,000 calls came into the Capitol on Thursday — more than three times the usual 7,000. The calls were running heavily in favor of the president's package, congressional offices reported.

But with a partisan battle expected, Republicans appeared to be at least a vote or two shy of the needed majority in the 100-member chamber. One Republican, Sen. John East of North Carolina, was in the hospital, and the support of at least three GOP members was reported by party strategists to be questionable.

Republicans maintain a narrow 53-47 majority in the chamber.

One of the wavering Republicans, Sen. Charles Grassley of Iowa, said Reagan called to lobby him personally for the plan to trim federal spending by $295 billion over three years.

"I said I just don't have my mind made up," Grassley reported.

Sentate Democratic Leader Robert C. Byrd apparently caught Republican leaders off guard by agreeing early Thursday evening to go ahead with the vote at once — after initially delaying the showdown.

Absent Republicans were quickly summoned to the Senate floor, as was Vice President George Bush, who as presiding officer can vote to break a tie.

"The vice president looks a little nervous," Byrd taunted.

Byrd all but dared Dole to proceed with the roll call vote. When the Republican leader backed away, Byrd said Democrats might not be as accommodating on Friday.

Even if the Senate had held the vote Thursday, and the Republican leadership had prevailed, it would have marked only the beginning of a budget battle that is expected to last at least two weeks.

Dole had said that getting the president's plan before the Seante as a package — instead of attempting to present it in a piecemeal fashion — would provide an important psychological lift for the spending blueprint.

"It's a very close vote. I don't think there's any question about that. It could be one vote — one way or the other," Dole said earlier Thursday.

Democrats even gave Dole a hard time in his move to recess the Senate, demanding a roll call vote on that routine motion. This time Dole won, and on a 52-44 party-line vote, the Senate called it quits for the night.

Few lose sleep over lost hour

By RANDOLPH E. SCHMID
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — Most Americans will have to spring forward with an hour's less sleep on Sunday, as our clocks perform their annual rite of passage into daylight-saving time.

In all of part of 48 states on Sunday, time will skip from 2 a.m. to 3 a.m., an artificial device designed to delay the arrival of the morning sun, and add that light onto the evening to provide more time for barbecues, yard work and other outdoor activities.

First instituted in World War I, the shift regularly generates controversy and legislation is introduced in Congress, almost every year, to change the practice, generally with little success.

Under the current rules, daylight-saving time extends from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October.

Technically, however, there is no such thing as daylight-saving time, that's just the popular name for the change. Legally, standard time continues all year; it's just advanced an hour in the summer.

Daylight-saving time was instituted in 1918 to save fuel used in lighting in the evening. It was a step to improve the economy of the nation during wartime.

In various forms, it has remained in effect in most states since then, despite complaints of problems caused for farmers, officials trying to draw up transportation and radio and television schedules and parents of school children who would be riding buses in the dark.

However, states have the right to ignore the system if their legislature votes to do so — and that has occurred in Hawaii and Arizona.

In addition, Indiana, which is split between the Eastern and Central time zones, observes the change in only the western part of the state, meaning that clocks in all of Indiana read the same for the warm weather months.

Texans considering aid plan alternatives

By PEGGY ROBERSON
Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON — Reagan Administration officials and congressional allies, smarting from the House rejection of aid for Nicaraguan rebels, are seeking ways to turn the situation around.

"It isn't over yet; I wish it were," said House Speaker Thomas P. (Tip) O'Neill, Jr., who Thursday was being credited — or blamed — for the two-vote margin that killed a Republican-sponsored alternative to the president's aid request.

Earlier, O'Neill had said he thinks "the president of the United States will not be happy until troops are in there, and I'm going to do everything in my power to stop that."

For now, however, the president is legally handcuffed from disbursing U.S. funds to the combatants he calls "freedom fighters."

The Democratic-controlled House now has voted four times to halt American aid to the so-called "contra" forces. The Republican-controlled Senate has kept the aid issue alive. Both sides Thursday claimed they are picking up support.

"A lot of my Democratic colleagues indicated to me today they're having second thoughts," said Texas Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Lufkin, an outspoken supporter of the deposed Nicaraguan dictator Anastasio Somoza, a friend of the U.S., whose downfall paved the way for the Sandinista takeover.

Wilson, who said he was "extremely disappointed and disgusted" because the House wouldn't give $14 million to the contras, predicted an aid bill tacked onto a piece of "must-pass" legislation could clear both houses before the 4th of July recess.

Another East Texas Democrat, Rep. Jack Brooks of Beaumont, also believes the administration will be back with another bill. "We'll kill it again," he said.

Private groups have been funneling money to the contras since last May when Congress halted government funding pending this week's vote. Sources here believe the private solicitation now will pick up steam.

The Arms Control and Foreign Policy Caucus, a bi-partisan, joint congressional group of 120 members, reported last week that $5 million in private funds reportedly reached the contras last year.

Some congressional sources say privately they "wouldn't be surprised" if the Central Inteligence Agency found a way to provide money to the contras. Others — including Brooks and Wilson — say that would be nearly impossible under constraints imposed by Congress.

"It would be too risky; the press would find out about it," Wilson said.

The contras had received about $80 million from the CIA, in covert operations, from 1981 until Congress cut off further aid last year in the wake of controversy over the CIA mining of Nicaraguan harbors.

When the rebel aid program began in early 1982, the administration said the insurgents would fight only to interdict arms to leftist guerrilas trying to topple the newly-elected government in El Salvador, friendly to the U.S.

In late 1983, the administration argued that rebel pressure would push Nicaragua to bargain for peace with its critics.

Leading up to this week's votes members of Congress were told the limited assistance would steer a middle course between direct U.S. military involvement and walking away from the Soviet and Cuba-affiliated Nicaraguan government. President Reagan had asked for unrestricted aid, but shortly before the Senate approved the funding Monday night, the President pledged it would be used only for humanitarian purposes.

"Congress Wednesday just moved us one more step toward military involvement," said Jake Hansen, executive director of the American Conservative Union, a group that sent out 100,000 pieces of mail and took Nicaraguan refugees around Washington to lobby first hand for aid money.

"Obviously we just can't let it drop," Hansen said. "Four years from now, if things start totopple down there, we have to send troops. There's no way this country is going to allow communism to spread over that (Central America) region."

The lobbying campaign before the vote was as intense as any seen on Capitol Hill in recent years, and after a few days for lobbyists to catch their breaths it promises to start again.

The White House Office of Public Liaison has sponsored 96 seminars supporting the administration's position in Central America and arranged 225 speeches in 75 cities in the past two years.

Citizens for Reagan, a 1,000-member group, urged its members to contact key members of Congress with telephone calls, cards and computer-typed letters.

Churches and synagogues joined in a coalition that included Jews, Catholics, Presbyterian elders, Mennonite farmers, evangelicals and students on the front line of opposition. Seventeen major U.S. denominations protested U.S. intervention in the region.

Reagan reviews Nicaraguan options

By GEORGE GEDDA
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON — President Reagan, his aid plans blocked by Congress, today ordered a review of political, economic and other steps that could be taken against the leftist government of Nicaragua and in support of the U.S.-backed guerrillas.

One option, presidential spokesman Larry Speakes said, could be to seek money from outside groups for the Contra rebels.

Speakes said Reagan had directed Secretary of State George Shultz and National Secuirty Adviser Robert C. McFarlane "to begin a review of the full range of options with regard to U.S. policy toward Nicaragua. Over the next several days, the administration will be reviewing the full family of measures that can be taken to influence the situation in Nicaragua.

"We will not be specific on the options under consideration. They do include political, economic and other measures," he said.

Speakes said, however, that no plans were contemplated for U.S. military action. "I wouldn't raise that scare tactic," he told reporters at a briefing.

"The goal of the policy review is to influence the behavior of the Nicaraguan government, influence the situation in Nicaragua, to achieve our policy goals there of a free society, ready to have free elections — the immediate goal being an opportunity for the Sandinistas to talk with the people who have problems with the way they run the government,"

On the heels of a House vote that killed plans for $14 million in aid for the anti-government rebels, Speakes said Congress "has in a way compromised the U.S. position as far as Central America. It is now back on the shoulders of the administration to execute its policy there. Without congressional cooperation, as evidenced by the House ... it is back on our shoulders to take some initiative."

Asked whether the administration might encourage private groups to finance the anti-Sandinista rebels, the spokesman said, "That's always an option," adding, "We will explore the congressional route too."

As to whether there are other sources of federal aid Reagan could tap, Speakes said:

"I don't know. If they do exist, I think that would be an option."

Speakes said most of the options being considered probably would not require congressional approval.

Speakes said the review — which would include the CIA — will be done "on a short-term basis." But he declined to be pinned down on when a report would be delivered to the president.

During attempts to strike a compromise with Congress for funds for the Contras, Reagan had offered to hold U.S. talks with the leftist Sandinistas. With aid now blocked by Congress, Speakes appeared to withdraw Reagan's offer.

He suggested that some congressmen regretted their vote against funds for the Contras in the light of revelations that Nicaraguan chief Daniel Ortega will soon travel to Moscow.

Speakes accused the Sandinistas of "talking peace out of one side of their mouth and cozying up to the Soviets with the other side."

New 'rough period' ahead in Soviet relations?

By BARRY SCHWEID
AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — U.S.-Soviet relations, never very smooth, appear to be entering another rough period as the 40th anniversary of the powerful alliance that crushed the Nazis and saved Europe approaches.

The rise of Mikhail S. Gorbachev as paramount Soviet leader on March 11 was greeted by Secretary of State George P. Shultz as "a moment of opportunity" for an across-the-board improvement in relations.

But after nearly seven weeks, what diplomats refer to as the "atmospherics" are as cloudy as ever. An apparent agreement to prevent further harm to U.S. reconaissance officers in East Germany seems to have collapsed.

President Reagan's spokesman, Larry Speakes, has threatened the Soviets with unspecified "adverse consequences" if they do not deal responsibly with U.S. demands for an apology and compensation for the slaying of Maj. Arthur D. Nicholson Jr.

And this week, the first round of talks to limit nuclear weapons ended in Geneva, Switzerland, with no sign of progress — which means the arms race goes on.

Gorbachev accused the United States of reneging on an agreement to negotiate the "Star" Wars program in tandem with offensive nuclear weapons.

Distrust appears to be on the rise.

Shultz said in an interview recently that the Soviets had not even responded to U.S. proposals to reduce long- and intermediate-range missiles.

But the Soviets may be holding back until U.S. negotiator Max Kampelman signals that the space-based defense program would be part of a deal.

The other night, addressing a private arms control organization here, Brent Scowcroft assessed the prospects of an agreement as "fairly bleak."

Former President Ford's national security adviser said the problem was the Soviets want the United States to give up the Strategic Defense Initiative "without paying anything for it," while the U.S. negotiators "don't want to put it on the table at all."

Scowcroft suggested several possible approaches, including a halt to Star Wars in exchange for the elimination of U.S. and Soviet missiles with multiple warheads. His audience seemed interested, but it's unlikely the two governments are, right now and for the foreseeable future.

An Analysis

Several top U.S. officials have concluded that Gorbachev is not really all that different from his three invalid predecessors, even though, at 54, he represents a new generation. The conventional wisdom within the administration is that he will need many months to consolidate power in the Kremlin and will not launch new foreign policy initiatives in the meantime.

However, the new Soviet leader appears to be moving quickly. On Tuesday, in Moscow, he introduced two new national party secretaries with reputations for efficiency and combating corruption.

Jonathan Sanders, the assistant director of the Harriman Institute at Columbia University, described Nikolai I. Ryzhkov, 55, as an "up from the factory floor" official bent on reform. In an interview Wednesday, Sanders said the same applies to the other new secretary, Yegor K. Ligachev, 64.

"I believe we are going to see a retirement and review process," Sanders said. "The retirement of old people and review of corrupt people."

The import for the Reagan administration, the scholar said, is that "when the Soviets begin to solve some of their economic and organizational problems they are going to be an even more formidable rival."

Sanders said he thinks the Soviets are serious about arms control negtiations. "We have a wonderful opportunity," he said. "We have a window of time."

But progress on arms control probably requires a better overall relationship than exists at this point.

After U.S. officials rejected as a propaganda ploy Gorbachev's Easter Sunday proposals for arms control measures, the Soviet leader told a visiting U.S. congressional delegation headed by House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr., D-Mass., that "a kind of ice age is being observed in relations between the U.S.S.R. and the United States."

There seemed to be a little thaw when the top U.S. and Soviet military commanders met in Potsdam, East Germany, on April 12. The State Department announced four days later the Soviets had agreed not to permit "use of force or weapons" against American military liaison personnel.

But last Monday, the Soviet Embassy here issued a statement challenging the U.S. interpretation and asserting the right to take "legitimate steps" against unknown intruders on espionage missions.

Gorbachev had been quoted by Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., as saying Nicholson's slaying "should not happen again." The embassy statement appeared to undercut the assurance.

Next month, when President Reagan visits Europe, he will carefully avoid any commemoration of the U.S.-Soviet alliance that defeated the Nazis. Instead, he will try to put the emphasis on the democratic government adopted by West Germany after World War II.

Almost wistfully, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the veteran Soviet ambassador, asked in a statement released this week by the Soviet Embassy here: "If we could be allies during the grave period in human history, fighting the common enemy, why can't we at least be on satisfactory terms, if not on friendly terms today?"

It cannot be extended without formal agreement, because it was set up on May 14, 1955, under the stated principle that military alliances should be done away with and the Warsaw Pact would be dismantled if NATO was disbanded.

The NATO treaty, signed in Washington, D.C., on April 4, 1949, has no expiration date.

The Warsaw Pact meeting was hosted by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, the Polish prime minister and Communist Party first secretary. Also present were: Erich Honecker of East Germany, Janos Kadar of Hungary, Todor Zhivkov of Bulgaria, Nicolae Ceausescu of Romania, and Gustav Husak of Czechoslovakia, the radio report said.

Honecker was quoted last week as saying the Warsaw Pact countries would extend the treaty for 20 years.

Albania was among the original Warsaw Pact signatories but withdrew in 1968, the year the alliance's forces invaded Czechoslovakia to put down a move toward democracy in that country.

The commander of the Warsaw Pact forces, Soviet Marshal Viktor Kulikov, sat across the table from Jaruzelski, the radio rport said.

Gorbachev brought with him Soviet Premier Nikolai A. Tikhonov, Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and Defense Minister Sergei L. Sokolov.

IRS may collect funds, NHL interest in tax fraud case

By LARRY ELKIN
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — The Internal Revenue Service stands to collect up to $500 million plus a part-ownership of a National Hockey League team following what authorities say is the biggest tax fraud prosecution in U.S. history.

Celebrities who bought shares of phony tax shelters will be hearing from the IRS and can expect big bills for back taxes, interest and penalties, said U.S. Attorney Rudolph W. Giuliani.

According to prosecutors, Woody Allen, Bill Murray, Dick Cavett, Frank Langella and Erica Jong were among those who bought into deals organized in large part by Edward Markowitz, a Washington businessman who owns 2.5 percent of the Washington Capitals of the NHL.

The celebrities were "passive investors" in the Markowitz deals and will not face criminal charges, Giuliani said, but lawyers, accountants and brokers who took part in the transactions may be charged.

Markowitz pleaded guilty Thursday to conspiracy, income tax evasion and two counts of preparing false tax returns. He agreed to cooperate in the prosecution of unidentified associates and to turn over his share of the Capitals to the IRS. The agency is expected to try to sell its share of the team.

Markowitz created a series of limited partnerships and sold shares in those partnerships to investors. Between 1979 and 1983, the partnerships claimed huge losses from trades in government securities transactions, repurchase deals and precious metal forward contracts, but prosecutors charged these losses represented transactions that either never took place or were shams with "no economic substance."

Partners who bought into the shelters were able to deduct the bogus losses, sometimes claiming $10 in losses for each $1 invested in the shelter. For an investor in the 50 percent tax bracket, that meant $5 in reduced taxes for each $1 invested.

Giuliani said more than 100 investors in the scheme will have to pay an estimated $250 million in back taxes, plus interest and penalties that could push figure close to $500 million.

He called the investigation into Markowitz' dealings "the largest tax fraud case that has ever been prosecuted."

In an appearance before U.S. District Judge Morris E. Lasker, the 35-year-old Markowitz calmly admitted all the charges against him, including an allegation that he evaded more than $750,000 in tax on his own income in 1981.

The tax evasion and conspiracy counts carry 5-year maximum jail sentences.

Leader of white supremacist group indicted under RICO

Associated Press

The leader of a white survivalist group was indicted Thursday on racketeering charges in connection with the torchings of a gay church and a Jewish center, while two members of another supremacist group pleaded innocent to charges linking them to armed robbery.

In Hot Springs, Ark., James D. Ellison, 48, leader of the Covenant, the Sword and the Arm of the Lord, and a former member of the group, William Thomas, were named in a three-count indictment under the federal Racketeering Influenced and Corrupt Organizations Act, said U.S. Attorney Asa Hutchinson.

Ellison has been jailed since Monday when he and four others surrendered peacefully after a four-day standoff with state and federal lawmen at the group's 224-acre encampment. At that time, he was arraigned on federal charges of weapons violations and bond was set at $150,000.

Members of the survivalist group returned to their compound on the Arkansas-Missouri border Thursday after lawmen detonated unstable explosives left by members. Authorities seized more than 100 weapons in their four-day search of the encampment.

Meanwhile, Gary Lee Yarbrough, 29, of Sandpoint, Idaho, and Robert E. Merki, 50, of Boise, Idaho, pleaded innocent to a different RICO indictment before U.S. Magistrate John L. Weinberg in Seattle, Wash., said his law clerk, Kim O'Neal.

They were the fifth and sixth defendants to enter pleas in a 20-count indictment against 23 people, who authorities say were members of the neo-Nazi group The Order, a militant splinter faction of the Idaho-based Aryan Nations.

The indictment against Ellison and Thomas charged they used their positions as elders of the Covenant as a cover for a conspiracy to engage in criminal activities, including arson, bombings and mail fraud.

Ellison and Thomas were accused in connect with the Aug. 9, 1983, arson of the Metropolitan Community Church in Springfield, Mo., — a gay congregation — and of the arson of a Jewish community center in Bloomington, Ind.

Christmas magic

Come Saturday morning, literally thousands of Midlanders once again will converge on more than 100 of the city's houses where they will hammer, saw, paint and repair to make life a little more bearable for the elderly and handicapped residents.

The project, Christmas in April, has become a Midland tradition over the past several years. This will be the 13th year for the project.

Not unexpectedly Christmas in April — and its president, Bobby Trimble — has enjoyed remarkable success. Trimble received an award from the governor's office a few years back and was cited by President Ronald Reagan a couple of years ago for his work in Christmas in April, a program which the President has publicly praised as a stellar example of how Americans should help their fellow man rather than looking to Uncle Sam for costly help.

Praise of the project is appropriate. In Midland it has helped alleviate harsh living conditions for hundreds of elderly and handicapped residents. The recipients, by the guidelines of the program, must be elderly and/or handicapped, and meet income requirements.

Through the years, the Christmas in April idea has spread to other communities, which is one of the best testimonials of the project's worth. Abilene, Cisco, Beaumont — even Washington, D.C. — have copied the Midland project. That's great because the purpose of Christmas in April is to spread a degree of Christian joy to the less fortunate in communities.

This year in Midland about 3,000 workers will be repairing some 152 houses at an estimated cost of $80,000 to $100,000.

Midlanders can help in Christmas in April in a number of ways — calling the Christmas in April number — 694-4907 — to volunteer to work on one of the projects or by donating cash, which is used to purchase building materials needed in the repair projects. Everyone interested is wanted and needed on the program, regardless of the degree of construction skill.

Help in Midland's Christmas magic this year. Your efforts will be appreciated because they will make a difference in someone's life.

Leaving Nicaragua

It appears that Congress, having hesitantly supported the Nicaraguan contras for nearly four years, is hesitantly withdrawing its support. We think the decision makes sense. The armed resistance has not been effective enough for some Americans or democratic enough for others. This is the right moment to act. Still, the way in which support is withdrawn is important. The United States is entitled to change its mind about a particular operation, but it has a continuing obligation to the democratic cause. If it is not going to support that cause with either indirect or direct military means — and we do not think it should — it ought to support it with other means: diplomatic, political and economic.

But let us first address the question of what to do about the 15,000 guerrillas in Nicaragua. Mr. Reagan has retreated to a position that would keep them in place with logistical aid while he sought to bring them into talks with the Sandinistas. But an evolving congressional majority may be ready only to provide refugee assistance to those who quit Nicaragua and to forget about the others. On Sunday the Sandinistas renewed their offer to let contras who surrender leave the country or go home under Red Cross or U.N. supervision. But it is all very mushy. Congress should at least express a decent concern for people who took the chance of relying on American constancy. It is not enough to smear them all with failings of some of the ugly National Guard types among them, or to avert one's gaze.

On Sunday the Sandinistas rejected Mr. Reagan's call for a dialogue with the contras, insisting that they would only talk "to the one who sics the dog on you," the United States. This is the characteristic defiance of a government that believes, not without reason, that Mr. Reagan means to overthrow it. The Nicaraguan resistance, however, is a legitimate political force. If the Sandinistas expect renewed meetings with Washington, they should be prepared to grant it a role. It would be unthinkable for the United States to ditch the military resistance and the political resistance. Congress must make this plain.

In return for an end to the contra operation, the Sandinistas promised anew on Sunday to start returning to "normalcy." But no one who knows anything about Sandinista Nicaragua will think this pledge has any meaning by itself. The ruling Marxists have used the American-sponsored intervention to tighten their grip; it is absurd to think they will relax beyond a certain point and turn back toward pluralism without an incentive. Political and economic sanctions, wielded necessarily by the United States, constitute an incentive. The Contadora diplomatic process does not need $4 million in symbolic congressional largesse. It needs a convincing affirmation of congressional readiness to wield sanctions if Managua does not play fair.

Congress, in checking a wrong and unworthy military intervention, is on the right track, but it needs to think the issue all the way through.

TODAY IN HISTORY

On this date:

In 1785, the American naturalist and artist John James Audubon was born in Haiti.

In 1865, John Wilkes Booth, the assassin of President Abraham Lincoln, was surrounded by federal troops near Bowling Green, Va., and killed.

In 1937, planes from Nazi Germany raided the Basque town of Guernica during the Spanish Civil War.

In 1954, a nationwide test of the Salk anti-polio vaccine began.

In 1964, the African nations of Tanganyika and Zanzibar merged to form Tanzania.

In 1983, on Wall Street, the Dow Jones Industrial Average closed above 1,200 for the first time.

Five years ago: Iran announced the American hostages had been taken from the U.S. embassy and would be scattered among different cities and towns to thwart any other attempts to rescue them.

One year ago: President Reagan arrived in the People's Republic of China for a five-day visit.

Today's birthdays: Nazi war criminal Rudolf Hess is 91. Seismologist Charles Richter is 85. Author Bernard Malamud is 71. Actress-comedian Carol Burnett is 52. Guitarist-songwriter Duane Eddy is 47. Singer Bobby Rydell is 43. Rock musician Gary Wright is 42.

Thought for today: "Without heroes, we are all plain people and don't know how far we can go." — Bernard Malamud.

Holocaust lesson is trust steel

If you wrote Lili Meier's story as fiction, no editor would buy it: too implausible, too dependent on coincidence. It is, however, a true story, one more example that truth is stranger than fiction.

Charley Reese

Forty years ago this month Lili Meier, a Hungarian Jew suffering from typhus, lay in a bed in an abandoned SS barracks at the Dora missile works in Germany. The Americans had arrived and the Nazis had fled. Cold, Dora looked in a cupboard for something to wear and found a photo album.

In the album were photographs of Jews arriving and being processed at Birkenau, or Auschwitz 2, the site of the main killing facilities. There were Jews from Lili Meier's little village in the Carpathian Mountains of Hungary. There were even pictures of members of her family, not one of whom had survived.

Lili herself had been at Birkenau but, being young and strong, she had survived and then been moved west as the Russians had advanced into Poland. That she and the album would end up in the same room one year later is amazing. To this day, no one knows for sure which German soldier took the pictures or why or why the Germans permitted him to do so. To everyone's knowledge, they are the only photos in the world of Jews being processed in a death camp.

In 1980 Mrs. Meier donated the album to Yad Vashem, the Holocaust museum in Jerusalem. Known as the Auschwitz Album, it has been published in book form by Random House. Mrs. Meier today lives in Florida.

I mention her story because this is the month of remembrance. The question always arises: how long shall we remember? The answer is always. Remember that no life form on this lovely planet has more capacity for cruelty, viciousness and brutality than man.

The Nazi regime is no more, except for a few elderly criminals hiding here and there around the world. President Reagan is correct in declining to visit a concentration camp on his visit to Germany. The purpose of remembering the Holocaust is not to lay a guilt trip on a generation of Germans who are no more responsible for it than you and I are for slavery. I don't even object to his decision to participate in a wreath-laying ceremony at a German military cemetery. The German youth faced the same choice American youth face when we go to war — either fight for your country or be a traitor. Germany was our enemy for four years. It's been our ally for four decades.

No, the purpose of remembering is to keep from making the same mistake. The Nazis are gone, but Nazi Germany's spiritual twin, the Soviet Union, still exists. It is the only major government in the world which officially practices anti-semitism and systematically persecutes its Jews and other minorities.

People forget that the Nazis were socialists, that the Soviet Union and Nazi Germany were partners, that Hitler no doubt learned from the Soviet extermination of 7 million Ukrainians in the 1930s and from its gulag of labor-death camps which still exist. People forget the French-educated communists who murdered 2 million of their own people in Cambodia.

But you forget at your own peril. What one man has done another can do. The lesson I learn from the Holocaust is different than the one some Americans learn. My lesson is trust steel. Trust strength. Do not trust men or promises of men.

The fabric of the Holocaust was in part the pacifism of the 1930s, the willingness to believe Adolf Hitler's lies, the antipathy toward the military and a strong defense, the reliance on diplomatic agreements and the willingness to sacrifice others to avoid conflict.

You will keep your children out of gas chambers and crematoria if you are strong enough to kill the people who would put them there. Peace? Sure, I want peace — the peace of dead enemies or the peace of enemies too weak and too fearful to attack. It's the only peace you can trust — the peace based on military strength.

I invite you, as an American living in a perilous age, to visit your library and to read on microfilm the newspapers of the 1930s. You will see that nothing has changed: not evil, not the appeasers of evil. You will read the same words, the same promises and the same claims that echo eerily in today's newspapers.

The advocates of peace helped deliver Europe's Jews to the gas chambers. There they perished until the engines of war rescued the pitifully few survivors.

Remember. Remember the cruelty, the viciousness. Remember cowardice. Remember the appeasement.

And trust steel. Trust strength.

U.S. knew in advance of blast

WASHINGTON — The United States had prior knowledge that South Africa and Israel would explode a small nuclear device in the fall of 1979, an investigation we have conducted over the last five years indicates.

Jack Anderson

An aging U.S. Vela satellite, built to monitor nuclear detonations, picked up the double-pulse flash of light characteristic of a nuclear blast on Sept. 22, 1979, beginning a controversy that still has not ended.

Two months later, in November 1979, a White House scientific panel, in a report that was not made public until the following year, maintained that the satellite sighting was not a nuclear explosion at all but some other occurrence, possibly a tiny piece of a meteor striking the satellite.

But the CIA and the Defense Intelligence Agency — which had good reason to know better — were certain the Vela had indeed detected a nuclear blast.

For some reason, the CIA was circumspect about its foreknowledge of the test. In secret testimony to Congress the month after the event, CIA officials identified Israel as the party most likely responsible, with South Africa the runner-up.

In January 1980, the CIA gave Congress a little more information: A contingent of the South African navy was in the South Atlantic area near the place at the time of the explosion. Then in June 1980, a secret CIA report to the National Security Council said the explosion was probably a tactical 2- or 3-kiloton weapon detonated by Israel and South Africa (with Taiwan as a possible third partner).

But the CIA didn't share some of its secrets with Congress or with the White House panel investigating the blast. From land, sea and air surveillance — by humans, submarines and satellites — U.S. intelligence established that Israel and South Africa were working together on a bomb as early as 1966. In fact, in August 1977 (tipped off initially by the Soviets, no less), the United States announced that the South Africans were about to test a nuclear device in the Kalahari Desert. Diplomatic and public outcry led to the cancellation of the test.

For the next two years, the CIA kept track of a steady stream of visits to South Africa by Israeli nuclear scientists, technicians and defense officials.

The clincher for the CIA was the arrival in South Africa of an American expatriate who was believed to have shared his knowledge of U.S. nuclear weaponry with the Israelis and then, at their behest, with the South Africans.

The man was known to be an expert in miniaturization, a skill that would be needed to scale down the test to a barely detectable level. (The CIA and DIA believe Israel and South Africa may plan to miniaturize their nuclear weapons down to half-kiloton size to use in Lance battlefield missiles.)

Two years later in Antarctica, a Navy official confided to Dale Van Atta that two U.S. spy planes had tried to approach the nuclear test area but were turned away by the South Africans and had to land secretly in Australia.

But the Navy source, who had tracked the planes as they passed near Antarctica, refused to go public with this vital nugget of information as Van Atta asked. The source was afraid of losing his job and of causing some unexplained impact on U.S. interests in Antarctica.

After-the-fact proof of a nuclear explosion was contained in a secret Naval Research Laboratory report on the incident: very high levels of radiation in the thryoid glands of sheep in Australia. Weather conditions would have carried nuclear debris over the area and deposited it on grass the sheep grazed on. The high radiation levels were detected the next month when the sheep were slaughtered.

FUTURE FILE: Government banking officials are glumly anticipating the failure of a major insurance-bank holding company because of loopholes in federal regulations. And they see the Reagan administration's headlong deregulation of the financial industry as increasing the chances of such a collapse, which they already rate at better than even.

The loopholes already allow mergers of banks and insurance companies into a holding company, though their finances are not supposed to be commingled. But what worries federal regulators is the possibility of, say, an ailing insurance company milking funds from a healthy bank in the same holding company (or vice versa) and dragging the whole structure down.

As one confidential government memo observes: "Bank regulatory authorities ... do not have the necessary expertise to assess an insurance operation." On the other hand, state agencies, which regulate insurance companies, lack the staff and skill to penetrate the mysteries of the banking entities.

RUNNING TO KEEP UP: Environmental Protection Agency scientists and researchers are afraid they won't be able to cope with the flood of technical data resulting from the explosive growth of new chemical compounds that may be harmful to the environment. So they've asked for 8,000 personal computers to help them keep abreast of developments.

The multimillion-dollar purchase — if allowed by the budget watchdogs — would give EPA workers out in the field access to the agency's recently improved data center in North Carolina.

Jaruzelski's 'nightmare' recurring

MUNICH, West Germany — A video transmitter from Solidarity's daring underground was smuggled to the roof of a Warsaw building recently and flashed the message "Solidarity Survives!" onto the TV screens of Polish viewers of the government controlled evening "news."

Rowland Evans

Robert Novak

This and other embarrassing penetrations of government TV and radio throughout Poland show that the most active underground movement in history against an entrenched communist regime is making a mockery of Warsaw's claim to control every aspect of Polish life.

When we were barred this month from entering Poland because the regime of Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski denied our request for a visa, it was in effect the imposition of censorship. So we came to the next best place for a look at communism's worst and harshest casualty — and at the Solidarity underground movement that will not go away. That place is Munich and in Munich it is the U.S.-financed Radio Free Europe. The radio is the indispensable source of news that keeps some people of Poland informed about what other people of Poland are doing to advance the communist world's most courageous resistance.

Portable transmitters, both video and radio, are a gift smuggled into Poland courtesy of the AFL-CIO and its anti-communist president, Lane Kirkland. They fit into a small attache case and are capable of sending a steady signal for four minutes on frequencies used for the regime's own news broadcasts. Solidarity activists, facing the risk of jail or worse if they get caught with the transmitters, have worked out an ingenious safeguard: a transmitter is placed in a high building, the antenna stuck out a window. The broadcast begins with the touch of a button, and the operator leaves.

When the police arrive, the four-minute broadcast has run its course, getting word through to perhaps tens of thousands or more that one of the world's most ruthless and proficient secret police is unable to silence public dissent. The police get the transmitter, but the conspirator moves on, unknown and unscarred.

The anti-Jaruzelski underground movement is a wondrous instrument in its diversity, resilience and ubiquity. Virtually everything it does worth noting is a topic for Radio Free Europe. Consider the underground press, one leading publisher of which was reportedly arrested on April 13 as he visited his children in a Warsaw apartment. But for every clandestine publisher of forbidden words arrested, a dozen more are violating Jaruzelski's censors.

There are, we were informed here, an average of no less than 1,000 pages every week of government-banned, underground material that is sent to Radio Free Europe alone, and that must represent only a fraction of the total. Between January 1982 and last June, 690 complete books, every one a prospect for government book-burning, were published and sent hand-to-hand around the most decentralized, dissident movement in the world. Included were works by Arthur Koestler, Alexander Solzhenitzyn, Milovan Djilas, Ian Nowak, a hero of Poland's underground in World War II, and many Soviet and Czechoslovak dissidents.

Solidarity activists taped the entire trial of the secret police in the murder of Catholic priest Jerzy Popieluszko. Radio Free Europe has broadcast all of it back to Poland. What gives the Radio its unique and immense value is not the broadcast of major public events in Poland but of unknown, clandestine events. Absent the Radio, these are the daily happenings that would have no distribution at all beyond word of mouth.

The uncensorable underground movement may not be quite so pervasive and vibrant as in the days when martial law was imposed by the bankrupt Jaruzelski regime in December 1981. Its importance today, however, may be even greater as a demonstration of popular expression at a time when expression of any kind is more forbidden even than three years ago.

Evidence for this is a document titled "The Danger in the Social-Political Sphere in 1985," dated March 18. Distribution was limited to top government and Communist Party officials. It describes Jaruzelski's nightmare: the apathy of the Polish people in following their government's bidding; the failure of political and cultural organs sponsored by the regime; costly sabotage of economic programs; the power of the Catholic Church.

Jaruzelski's nightmare translates into the dreams of the underground movement — alive, well and uncensorable.

Judge gets threats; 24-hour guard posted

CHICAGO (AP) — Authorities have set up a round-the-clock guard on a judge after he got hate mail and threats for returning to prison a man convicted of a rape his accuser now says never occurred.

Cook County Circuit Judge Richard L. Samuels, who sentenced Gary Dotson to prison six years ago, said Thursday he has gotten more than 300 letters since putting the 28-year-old Country Club Hills man back behind bars April 11.

Some of the letter writers "threatened to get me," Samuels said."I feel, my God, there are a lot of crazies in the world. These are people who either don't understand our legal system and its requirements or don't want to understand. I suppose it happens once in a while to a judge or a public official on the hot seat, but it's never happened to me."

Samuels, who refused to free Dotson after rejecting the recanted testimony of Cathleen Crowell Webb, said he would not object if Dotson were granted clemency by Gov. James R. Thompson.

If the hate mail continues, the judge said he might consider hiring a private security firm to protect him. Meanwhile, a Flossmoor Police Department patrol car is stationed at his house and sheriff's deputies are escorting him in and out of the Markham District Court building, he said.

Deputies also are checking Samuels' courtroom and corridors outside it before all court sessions, said Dennis Walsh, a sheriff's spokesman.

Dotson's appeal is scheduled to be heard by the Illinois Appellate Court on May 1. His petition for a new trial is to be taken up May 7 and Thompson plans to join the Illinois Prisoner Review Board on May 9 when it considers Dotson's bid for clemency.

Samuels said he has been invited to respond to Dotson's clemency request, but has refused."I made my ruling. Clemency is the governor's prerogative. I won't have any objection, no matter what he does," he said.

Police end three-day-old sit-in at UCLA

Associated Press

Police entered the administration building at the University of California at Los Angeles early today and ended a three-day-old sit-in, one day after at least 33 anti-apartheid protesters were arrested at colleges in three states.

Most of the 25 officers on the UCLA campus police force were involved in evicting and citing 20 students, the remainder of hundreds of people who took over Murphy Hall on Tuesday.

The students were given misdemeanor citations for trespassing and released after UCLA Police Chief Pat Connolly issued an order to vacate the building at midnight, said Sgt. Alan Christopher. About 40 students obeyed Connolly's order.

On Thursday, 27 people were arrested at the University of Florida in Gainesville after protesters opposed to South Africa's policy of racial discrimination blocked the entrance to an administration building. There were six arrests in California.

Leaders of a blockade of a campus building at Columbia University in New York claimed victory as they planned to end their four-week crusade.

"I would say it's been a success in the sense that we have triggered many, many actions around the country," said David Kornacker, a spokesman for the Coalition for a Free South Africa, sponsors of the demonstration at Columbia against university investment in companies doing business with South Africa.

Richard Palmer of Buffalo, who was involved in an Albany, N.Y., anti-apartheid protest chose to go to jail Thursday rather than pay a fine.

He was one of 20 people who appeared in Albany Police Court, where the rest were fined $100 to $250 for occupying an office at State University of New York headquarters. Palmer's jail term was deferred until next month to allow him to finish classes.

Some of the University of Florida protesters were charged with trespassing, others with resisting arrest and one woman, whose name was not released, was charged with striking a police officer, university officials said.

Five University of California students and Berkeley City Council member Nancy Skinner were arrested Thursday for blocking entrances to University Hall on the UC Berkeley campus, where offices for the regents and president of the statewide system are located.

The protesters want to send a message "loud and clear" to regents that they want the divestment issue decided before students leave school for the summer, Ms. Skinner said.

Those arrested included student body presidents from Berkeley, Davis and Riverside.

UC regents have asked for a treasurer's report about their almost $1.8 billion investment in companies that do business in South Africa.

More than 400 demonstrators were arrested during demonstrations Wednesday in California, New York, New Jersey, Massachusetts, Wisconsin and Florida in what was billed as a "National Day of Solidarity" against apartheid, police and school officials said.

White House ducks Bitburg questioning

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House is declining to answer questions about President Reagan's upcoming visit to a German military cemetery where Nazi SS troops are buried.

Spokesman Larry Speakes said Thursday the president has made no changes in his plans to visit the cemetery that contains the graves of about 2,000 German war dead, including 47 Nazi SS soldiers.

"We are not answering Bitburg questions; there has been no change in the president's plans," Speakes said, adding that "all facets of trips are always under discussion."

Reagan leaves Tuesday for a 10-day European trip including an economic summit conference in Bonn.

The scheduled May 5 visit to the Bitburg graveyard and plans to lay a wreath in a ceremony there has outraged Jewish organizations, concentration camp survivors and veterans' groups.

Members of the House who disapprove of the visit tried Thursday to win passage of a resolution calling on Reagan to reconsider his decision, but the move was blocked by House Republican Whip Trent Lott of Mississippi.

Earlier this week, an effort to bring up a similar resolution on the Senate floor was blocked, also by the GOP leadership.

Lott, the second-ranking Republican in the House, objected to consideration of the resolution because he had not been consulted first. His objection prevented the House from altering its schedule to consider the resolution Thursday.

Lott denied that he was doing the White House's bidding, saying he merely objected to the way the resolution was being handled. He said he hoped Reagan would find another site, but added that he wasn't sure Congress should "stick its nose" into the issue.

Supporters are planning to bring up the measure again next week, said Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., one of the sponsors of the resolution. But a delay will hurt, he said.

"We think it could have had a real effect" if approved far enough in advance of Reagan's departure, Schumer said.

The resolution had support from Republicans, some of whom were co-sponsors and had worked with Democrats to tone it down so Reagan was being asked to "reconsider" instead of "cancel" the graveyard visit.

Also Thursday, Rep. Robert Mrazek, D-N.Y., announced that nearly 200 members of the House had signed a letter to German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, asking him to shift Reagan's trip to another site.

"Such a move would satisfy our collective aim of fostering peace and understanding between our two nations and resolve a controversy that threatens to have long and serious repercussions here in the United States," said the letter.

Meanwhile, Kohl thanked Reagan for going ahead with the visit in a speech to the West German parliament in Bonn, calling it the "noble gesture of a friend."

"I deeply regret that this great man who is a friend of the Germans, because of his noble conviction, must accept considerable political difficulties in the United States," Kohl said.

County forecasts

Midland, Ector, Glasscock, Upton, Reagan and Crane counties: Tonight...a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms. Lows upper 50s. Wind south 15 to 25 mph and gusty decreasing to 10 to 15 mph after midnight. Lake wind advisories will be required early tonight.

Thunderstorms could continue in Basin area

From Staff and Wire Reports

Midlanders may have to change their outdoor plans this weekend as the National Weather Service at Midland Regional Airport predicts a chance of thunderstorms to continue through Saturday.

Forecasters are calling for a 30 percent chance of thunderstorms tonight with a low in the upper 50s decreasing Saturday to a 20 percent chance of thunderstorms as the temperature warms to a high near 80. Winds will be from the south tonight at 15 to 25 mph and gusty, decreasing after midnight to 10 to 15 mph. Saturday's southwesterly winds will be at 15 to 20 mph and gusty.

Thursday's high of 84 was 14 degrees below the record set in 1943. This morning's low was 22 degrees above the 1946 record of 37.

STATE

An upper-level disturbance moving across Central Texas triggered scattered thunderstorms in its path that produced high winds and up to golfball-sized hail today, and forecasters predicted other storms later.

The stormy weather caused winds in excess of 50 mph in the Texas Panhandle, destroying a carport and parts of buildings and cracking tree limbs in Shamrock, said a police dispatcher, who asked not to be identified.

Golfball-sized hail and more than one inch of rain fell, the dispatcher said.

The National Weather Service detected the heaviest thunderstorms in the southeast corner of the state while mostly light showers dampened the remainder of the eastern and southern sections of North Central Texas.

NATION

Snow spread across a wide section of the West today, hampering travel and threatening livestock, while thunderstorms rumbled across Texas and into the nation's midsection.

Snow fell across the northern half of the Rockies while rain, with snow at higher elevations, spread across Colorado and northern New Mexico.

Warnings for heavy snow were posted through tonight for the Colorado mountains and foothills and travelers' advisories were issued for much of Wyoming.

Mudslides closed two highways and other roads in the Denver area as the storm moved into Colorado.

Celtics give Cavs the Bird

Associated Press

NBA

What do Boston's Larry Bird and Portland's Audie Norris have in common?

Well, at least for one night they shared the spotlight, leading their teams to the conference semifinals.

Playing despite a painful right elbow, Bird returned to the Celtics lineup to score 34 points Thursday, including two free throws with 23 seconds to play to snap a 115-115 tie, and led Boston to a 117-115 victory over the Cleveland Cavaliers in Game Four.

Norris, a seldom-used forward, was an unlikely hero as Portland eliminated the Dallas Mavericks, 115-113, in four games.

"I wasn't really hampered by the elbow at all," said Bird, who didn't play in the Celtics' loss to the Cavaliers on Tuesday because of persistent bursitis and bone chips in the elbow. "Once I got in the game, I think the excitement drove me over the limit."

Bird also paced the Celtics with 14 rebounds and seven assists as Boston captured the best-of-five-games.

The Cavs, in the playoffs for the first time since 1979, were surprisingly tough in the series, losing the first two games in Boston 126-123 and 108-106 respectively, before winning Game Three 105-98.

Forced into action when both Portland centers, Sam Bowie and Mychal Thompson, fouled out, Norris scored on a layup with 22 seconds to play to give the Trail Blazers a 113-111 lead. And when Brad Davis of Dallas sank two free throws to knot the score again, Norris sank a 10-foot baseline jumper to win the game.

"I never know how many minutes I'm going to play," Norris said, "so I try to make the most of them."

Norris finished with nine points — seven in the final period. Kiki Vandeweghe paced the Blazers with 27 points, while Mark Aguirre led Dallas with 39 points.

"I would like to think Portland won this series, we didn't lose it," Mavericks' Coach Dick Motta said. "We played about as well as we can play and they answered every challenge."

"It was a magnificent series," said Portland Coach Jack Ramsay. "I give huge credit to Dick Motta and the Mavericks. They played great basketball."

In games tonight, Milwaukee travels to Chicago, Philadelphia is at Washington, Houston is at Utah and Denver is at San Antonio for the fourth game is each of those series. Earlier this week, Detroit ousted New Jersey and the Los Angeles Lakers eliminated Phoenix to advance to the conference semifinals.

"Bird came through from the time he came out on the court," said Boston Coach K.C. Jones. "I think the elbow was bothering him a little, but he's a gutty person."

Cleveland had three chances to tie or win the game following Bird's final points, but John Bagley missed a three-point attempt, Mark West failed on a tip-in attempt and World B. Free's three-point shot was blocked by Dennis Johnson.

"He's an integral part of their offense, so he's going to get his numbers," Johnson said of Free, who finished with 30 points. "So I was satisfied with the block."

Texas League

Solo home runs by Dave Huppert and Alan Cartwright in the sixth inning helped El Paso squeak by Beaumont 11-10 in a Texas League baseball game on Thursday.

In other league action, Jackson defeated Shreveport 6-1 and Tulsa edged Arkansas 4-3. Midland's contest at San Antonio was postponed because of rain.

The Diablos, now 10-7, won their second game in a row. Cartwright went 4-for-5 with 3 RBIs. Billy Joe Robidoux went 3-for-5 with 3 RBIs.

El Paso trailed 1-0 going into the bottom of the first, when it scored three runs and never trailed thereafter. Ed Myers got his third save.

Shane Mack, a former Olympian from UCLA, had his first professional home run for the Golden Gators in the first inning. Another solo homer came in the third from John Tutt.

Mike Birkbeck, 1-0, grabbed the win. The loser was Jimmy Jones, 0-1.

The Mets' Randy Milligan batted a two-run homer.

Gretzky leads Oilers over Jets

Associated Press

Wayne Gretzky's mastery of hockey is such that when he dominates games and sets records, it could easily unnoticed. Gretzky has made the great commonplace.

He was at his greatest Thursday night with three goals and four assists in leading the Stanley Cup champion Edmonton Oilers into the Campbell Conference finals with an 8-3 rout of the Winnipeg Jets. Gretzky's performance as the Oilers swept the best-of-seven Smythe Division final tied his own National Hockey League playoff mark of seven points, set on April 17, 1983 against Calgary

"Tonight I had a really good feel for the game and I seemed to be in the right spot at the right time to get those loose pucks,," said Gretzky, the NHL's scoring king the last five seasons and most valuable player which skated the entire series without star center Dale Hawerchuk, who has a broken rib.

Islanders 6, Flyers 2

Mike Bossy tied Maurice Richard as the all-time leading goal-scorer in the playoffs with his 82nd goal. He has played in 119 Stanley Cup games, compared to 133 by the Canadiens' Richard. Bossy also has 152 points, fifth on the all-time list.

"I was glad I was able to score," said Bossy, who had been blanked by the Flyers in the first three games. "But I think more important was the way that I played tonight. I felt I played a real good game overall aside from the goal. It was just like the icing on the cake."

The Islanders grabbed a 2-0 lead on first-period goals by Pat LaFontaine and Bryan Trottier. They made it 4-0 when Denis Potvin and Bossy scored in the second period, then coasted behind goalie Kelly Hrudey, a surprise starter in place of Billy Smith.

"I didn't feel any extra pressure," said Hrudey, a rookie. "It's easier to go out there when you are relaxed."

Black Hawks 7, North Stars 6

The visiting Hawks outlasted Minnesota behind the 48-save performance of Murray Bannerman and Denis Savard's two goals and two assists. Savard tied the game with 7:28 to play. At that point, Don Beaupre was pulled in favor of Gilles Meloche, who had started the first six playoff games for the North Stars.

Sutter tapped in a rebound of a shot by Tom Lysiak, who stole a pass from Minnesota's Neal Broten.

"It was rolling," Sutter said."It was like you got five minutes to watch it. "I was saying, 'Don't jump over my stick. Don't jump over my stick.'"

Bannerman felt that he and his mates shouldn't have had to work so long.

"I don't think it should have gone into overtime," he noted. "I let in a lot of cheap goals."

Canadiens 3, Nordiques 1

Guy Carbonneau's shorthanded goal in the second period broke a 1-1 tie and Mario Tremblay scored on a power play in the third period for Montreal.

Quebec played much of the game without Michel Goulet, who suffered a hip injury on his first shift of the game when leveled by defenseman Ric Nattress. Goulet, the leading goal scorer in the playoffs with 11, played only a couple of shifts after that.

"Oh, yeah, there's no doubt we played a much tighter game," said Montreal Coach Jacques Lemaire. "We couldn't play an up-and-down game all night, and we don't want to play that kind of game."

Success for Dodgers, Angels bought and paid for

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Whether or not the Los Angeles Dodgers and California Angels do well on the field this year, they're assured of being smashing successes in another significant category — at the gate.

The two clubs are baseball superstars when it comes to luring fans.

Despite finishing fourth in the National League West last year, the Dodgers sold about 27,000 season tickets this year before cutting off sales to leave some seats available for daily purchase.

And the Angels, who tied for second in the American League West in 1984, sold more than 17,000 season tickets.

Neither figure is a surprise considering what's been happening in recent years. The Dodgers own the seven greatest attendance listings in the history of baseball, topped by a record 3,608,881 in 1982. They have surpassed three million the only five times it's been done.

The Angels own the AL record of 2,807,360, also established in 1982.

"It has to do with overall interest," said Fred Claire, the Dodgers' executive vice president, when asked about the gate success of both teams. "Interest in baseball in Southern California has never been higher than it is now.

"Plus the teams have performed well. They've prepared themselves in terms of good marketing efforts. The two come together."

Said Tom Seeberg, assistant to the vice president, public relations and promotions, for the Angels: "Population, weather, and, I think, exciting clubs. We (the Angels and the Dodgers) have name ballplayers."

Both Claire and Seeberg made it clear that they don't consider the other team an enemy. And both said that past success didn't mean they could be complacent.

"We need to continue to learn, grow, look for ways to improve," Claire said. "We're not sitting here thinking that now we've reached three million it's the end of the line. It's really just the beginning.

"How long can we sustain that? How can we improve? How can we get better? We're in the entertainment business and we need to keep working at attracting the fans."

Said Seeberg: "I don't think anybody can afford in today's industry to sit back and rest on any laurels. Three million is certainly our goal. Our No.1 goal is to win as many as we can on the field, attendance is No.2. The two certainly go together."

"We didn't really start drawing big numbers until the re-entry draft came on the scene," he said.

MHS, Lee girls come of age

If Midland High's Brenda Mitchell and Midland Lee's Janice Baulch seem to be smiling more than usual, there is good reason.

The two girls track coaches have taken sophomore ladened teams that have produced some rather remarkable results. They are both now forces to be dealt with in the world of District 4-5A track and that's news within itself.

MHS and Lee girls have not been 4-5A track powers in the past as far as team production. There have been some sterling individuals along the way, such as Claire Hardy, Lydia Jackson, Felicia Farias and Penny Griffin to name a few.

But Mitchell and Baulch have the girls competing on a team level. MHS finished third in the 4-5A meet last Saturday in Abilene while Lee was fourth, just three points back. Odessa Permian and San Angelo, both annual powers, won the top two spots, but the local teams finished ahead of powers of the past in Odessa High, Big Spring, Abilene and Cooper. It's a step worth noting since both Lee and MHS have a lot of kids coming back next year.

THERE WERE two seniors who helped give direction to the two squads. Lee's Diane White and MHS' Tina Knight were spark plugs.

White busted 4-5A records in both the triple jump and long jump and ran a leg on Lee's qualifying 800 meter relay team, becoming the first Lee girl to earn Region I berths in three events in a single year.

White's 39-9¾ in the triple jump beat the old record by more than two feet and her 19-9¾ in the long jump was over eight inches better than the old mark. In fact, the triple jump and long jump efforts are the second best jumps recorded in the state this year.

"I want to go to state and I'm shooting for 40-feet in the triple jump and 20-feet in the long jump," said White. "I didn't get either of those marks at district. I'm a senior and this is my last chance. I want to go out in style."

KNIGHT faced a lot of pressure in winning a return long jump berth for the Region I meet next weekend in Lubbock. She finished third in the triple jump, just losing a berth at the district meet. She then had to long jump.

"I felt nervous. The triple jump put a lot of pressure on me since I didn't qualify for regionals. I have a bad ankle on my jumping foot and it's swollen. I knew it would be tough in the long jump," said Knight prior to a season best of 17-7¼ vaulted her back to another Lubbock berth. She later ran a leg on MHS' second place 1600 relay team and another region berth.

The sophomores took notes. First, Midland High's Amy Cumings won the 3200 run and later placed second in the 1600, winning two region berths.

"I think I will work harder on the 1600 in the next two weeks because I felt stronger (in district) than I did when I was in three events at the Tall City meet," said sophomore Cumings. "I'm happy with qualifying in both races, but I really don't know what it will take at the region meet to qualify for state. This is sort of a learning experience."

Lee sophomore Tami Woodberry followed with a victory in the 100 hurdles. She has been consistent all year, but it took a special effort last Saturday to win.

"This was really a tough race for me because I was fighting a groin pull," said Woodberry after finding mid-way strength to run away from San Angelo's Karen Meeks.

Lee sophomore Tangi Carter then pulled a major upset over Odessa High's Regina Gentry in the 100. That caused a few eyes to turn.

"I hadn't beaten Gentry all year," said Carter. "She always seems to get me at the end, but I saw her beginning to slow down close to the finish and I knew I had a chance to win. It's a great feeling to beat her."

MHS SOPHOMORE Ethel Edwards, who owns a state Top 5 time of 24.68, had a tough test in the 200 against Odessa High's Kerry Evans. They ran nip-and-tuck until Edwards won it in the final five yards. Edwards is so small that it seems an oddity that she is so strong in this race. A hard wind made it even tougher on her.

"That wind was really strong, but I'm happy I held on. Kerry had beaten me once this year at Seminole, so I knew she was a good runner," said Edwards.

Evans responded, "I'm not used to running that close with someone, so I better work on that because it looks like everything is going to be close from here on out."

Carter and White teamed with Regina Calicutt and Nancy DeWitt in the 800 relay, an event that favored OHS was eliminated on a jump. "The problems Odessa had really helped us," said Baulch. "We knew that Permian had made some changes in their relay team and we knew OHS was good. The kids saw the open door and took advantage of it."

Edwards and Knight teamed with Abbie Green and Faye Daugherty to place second in the 1600 relay behind favored Permian. "We thought this was the relay we had our best shot in," noted Mitchell. "They did a good job. The girls overall did a good job. I think this is the best at competing I've ever seen a Midland High girls team in overall performance. I'm really proud of them."

With both schools combined, the eight individuals and two relays is a Tall City best as far as qualification for the Region I meet. It's there were it's only a hop-skip-jump-and-run from Austin's Big Top. Another goal for another week.

Crosby's 44-year golf party gone with wind

No one loved golf like Bing Crosby. No one did more for the game. I never had a conversation with him in the 25 years I knew him that didn't begin or end with golf.

"How you hittin' them?" was his standard opening line.

Bing had great respect for golfers. He regarded them as the last of the great freebooters in American society, the logical successors to the guys who hit the wagon trains, panned in the Yukon, drew down on the Clantons, raised the pot or shot the rapids.

If there'd been no golf they'd have been working the riverboats somewhere with a checked vest and a sealed deck. They were self-reliant, patient, cunning. They left nothing to chance. They lived by their wits and their 9-irons. They weren't team players, they were loners. They lost with a shrug, won with grace, and had the nerves of guys who walked airplane wings or steel girders.

It was no secret that Bing longed to be one of them. He dismissed his major talent as groaning and crooning, but he never dismissed his golf game as hacking.

He really put golf on the sporting map. Before him, it was hardly America's pastime. It was a game most Americans thought was played by Warren G. Harding, John D. Rockefeller and the people who owned steel mills and railroads.

WHEN BING invited the golf pros and a few of his movie cronies to play in an improvised tournament down in Rancho Santa Fe in 1937, no one knew it at the time but he had revolutionized the way the game would be played.

Golfers were not exactly the social elite at the time. They were widely perceived to be roughnecks out of Texas or hillbillies out of the Blue Ridge who made their real money hustling the big rich out of hundred-dollar Nassaus on the plush Florida hotel courses.

Crosby changed all that. His so-called Clambake drew immediate attention to the game, made it a major press attraction and put it on the Rialto.

Bing himself was a good player, a 2, and solid enough to tee it up in the British and U.S. Amateurs. He played a meticulous game, as straight and structured as one of the ballads he sang or movies he made.

THE FANS who came to the Clambake had no idea who Sam Snead or Porky Oliver were but they knew who Douglas Fairbanks, Bob Hope, Bing Crosby, Fred Astaire, Zeppo Marx, Bill Frawley, Richard Arlen and the various football and baseball heroes were. They flocked to the tournament with their autograph books open and their eyes wide. They learned about golf by osmosis.

When the war was on and the tournament was on hold, Hope and Crosby drew World Series crowds to golf exhibitions they gave. The lesson was not lost on the progenitors of the PGA tour.

After the war, the Crosby, like its founder, moved north to the Monterey Peninsula area. Crosby struggled to keep it to its original stag-party format but public fascination took it out of his hands. The Crosby became not a 54-hole giggle for a bunch of pals and a case of whiskey, but an important part of the winter tour, maybe the important part.

It went to 72 holes and, as bad as the weather could be in Monterey in January, it was still better than three-quarters of the rest of the country. It became a prime TV show. It outrated every other golf tournament in the world -- the Masters, U.S. and British Opens, the PGA.

The public proved it would far rather tune in to see Jack Lemmon in a sandtrap than Jack Nicklaus on a green.

AN INVITATION to the Crosby became as highly prized as an audience with the Pope. Once when I was interviewing Bing at his office on a sound stage in Hollywood, the temperature of the dialogue dropped 80 degrees and Crosby's eyes became as arctic blue as an icecap. Later, puzzled, I asked a friend what he thought had happened.

"Do you remember what you were talking about at the time?" he asked.

"Yeah," I told him. "I was asking him how he picked the 100 amateurs to play in his tournament out of the 10,000 requests he got."

"Oh," soothed the friend, "he just got scared you were going to ask him for an invite!"

That is how hard it got to be to make the Crosby lineup. Only the elite of three worlds -- golf, business and entertainment -- needed apply.

IT IS impossible to measure the worth of the Crosby to golf. It changed the format of every tournament ever played. A pro-am became an integral part of nearly every tour stop played.

Tournaments lined up to get celebrities to front for their shows, to attract other celebrities. It was a legacy of the Crosby, and the take from the pro-am frequently paid the nut for the whole tournament.

But if you think golf was grateful, you don't know golf, where ingratitude, you might say, is par for the course.

Golf had the decency to mind its manners while Bing was alive but has spent the time since trying to wrest the format -- and the tournament -- away from the Crosby heirs, to turn it over to some faceless conglomerate, some monolithic savings and loan operation, insurance company or communication monopoly.

They want to make it the AT&T Clambake, indistinguishable from the Kemper Open or the Manufacturers Hanover or American Express Classic.

Don't bother to bring your autograph books. Kathryn Grant Crosby, Bing's widow, has turned the lights out and stopped the music. It ain't the Crosby any more, whatever it is. The Crosby family has picked up.

I HAVE the feeling they'll be followed by a lot of people. I doubt you'll get Jack Lemmon doing shtick in a sandtrap for Somebody's Trust and Guarantee. I don't think Clint Eastwood will make their day either.

I know you'd never get Ben Hogan or Sam Snead or Dutch Harrison or the original Rhythm Boys to show up.

It was a grand, 44-year-old party while it lasted. But the crashers have taken over. They usually do.

There's one good thing: They won't have Bing's problem of turning down 9,900 people who want to play in it anymore. They may have trouble finding the 100 who do.

Woeful Dodgers take over lead

Associated Press

According to their manager, the Los Angeles Dodgers aren't doing many things right these days. As a matter of fact, winning is about all they can do.

"Things have been going very good for us despite the problems," said Tom Lasorda said after Thursday night's 6-3 victory over the San Diego Padres put the Dodgers into first place in the National League West over the defending league champions.

For the first time this season, the Dodgers scored as many as six runs. And for a change, they didn't make as many errors as they usually do. Along with the offensive and defensive deficiences, the Dodgers have also been hit with a rash of injuries.

"The guys have been playing hard," Lasorda said. "Everybody is chipping in. We're getting the clutch hits and the pitching has been exceptional."

In other NL action Thursday, Atlanta edged Houston 3-2; Montreal tripped St. Louis 4-2, and San Francisco stopped Cincinnati 7-3.

Rick Honeycutt earned his first victory of the season, scattering four hits in eight innings, and Mike Marshall and Mike Scioscia drove in two runs apiece to key the Dodger win.

With the score tied 1-1, the Dodgers broke it open with a three-run sixth, the first on a run-scoring single by Al Oliver and the other two on Scioscia's two-out, bases-loaded single.

Braves 3, Astros 2

A throwing error by shortstop Dickie Thon allowed the tie-breaking run to score and Terry Harper's run-scoring single capped a two-run 10th inning, leading Atlanta over Houston.

National League

Brad Komminsk scored from first base on an infield single by Dale Murphy and an error by Thon, snapping a 1-1 tie. Harper, pinch hitting for winning pitcher Zane Smith, 2-1, then singled in Murphy for a 3-1 Atlanta lead.

That turned out to be the winning run for Atlanta, when the Astros scored in their half of the 10th on a home run by Phil Garner.

Bruce Sutter picked up his fourth save by pitching the 10th for the Braves. Dave Smith, 2-1, was the loser.

Expos 4, Cardinals 2

Andre Dawson drove in two runs, one of them with a homer that triggered a two-run fourth inning, to lead Montreal over St. Louis.

With one out in the fourth, Dawson hit a 1-2 pitch by Danny Cox, 1-1, for his third homer of the year and the Expos' first hit of the game. Dan Driessen then doubled and scored one out later when Tim Wallach singled, giving the Expos a 3-2 lead they never relinquished.

Winner Bill Gullickson, 3-1, allowed six hits and did not walk or strike out a batter in 6 2-3 innings. He was replaced by Jeff Reardon, who earned his fourth save with one-hit relief.

Giants 7, Reds 3

Chili Davis drove in four runs with two homers and a sacrifice fly and Jose Uribe scored the go-ahead run from second on an error by first baseman Pete Rose as San Francisco beat Cincinnati.

Uribe broke a 3-3 tie in the seventh inning when Rose, Cincinnati's player-manager, dropped an infield pop fly.

Gary, Ricky vie for NYC hearts

Sports Analysis
By JOHN NELSON

NEW YORK — Gary Carter and Rickey Henderson unwittingly have been thrown into a race to capture New York, the ticker tape capital of hero worship.

By virtue of a quick start and his full health, Carter, the New York Mets' new catcher, has the early edge over Henderson, the New York Yankees' new center fielder.

Henderson didn't make his Yankee debut until Tuesday, having missed the final three weeks of spring training and the first two weeks of the season with a bad ankle.

The Mets also had the advantage of starting fast at home, while the Yankees, without Henderson, began the season at Fenway Park in Boston by losing three in a row. That immediately had Yankee fans on the defensive.

Henderson said his return to form is just a matter of time. "I need some time to get my timing down," he said. He called it a day-to-day proposition, adding that he's still "a little hesitant out there" because of the sore ankle. And for a man who makes his living with his feet, it's understandable.

Carter, meanwhile, needed no time getting the city's baseball fans leaning in his direction. He won the Mets opener with a 10th-inning home run, then hit another game-winning homer in the Mets' third game. He has three homers and five RBI so far this year while hitting .298.

Carter talked almost immediately of the importance of "acceptance" in New York after spending 10 seasons in Montreal, where he occasionally was criticized for what seemed to be a phony effervescence.

"There are not enough words to describe the feeling I have," Carter said after a standing ovation for his first homer as the crowd chanted, "Gary! Gary! Gary!"

"I'll certainly remember this the rest of my life," he said. "It's a terrific feeling. I can't say everything I want to. I don't have enough adjectives — the feelings of warmth, of acceptance."

If Carter was not being totally sincere, he at least had followed the form of his entire career — a never-ending torrent of enthusiasm, cordiality and cooperation.

While Carter sometimes has to be reminded to cut short interviews so he can go to work, Henderson arrived at Yankee Stadium and said, "I don't need no press now, man." In his defense, he had just gotten off a plane from Florida, where he played three games with the Yankees' Fort Lauderdale farm club. He may have been tired, under the stress of his Yankee debut and anxious to get into his work clothes.

Playing for Oakland the past 5½ seasons, Henderson seldom has experienced the type of media blitz that accompanied his move to the Yankees.

Gadzooks! Tigers in second place

Associated Press

The American League East couldn't say this at any time during 1984 but they're sure to like the sound — the ... second ... place ... Detroit ... Tigers.

It wasn't easy, but the Tigers, who owned at least a share of first place every day en route to the 1984 world championship and so far this year, as well, managed to blow a 7-1 lead in the last two innings Thursday night and lose to the Milwaukee Brewers 11-7.

That dropped Detroit into a second-place tie with Milwaukee, one-half game behind the Baltimore Orioles, who trounced the Cleveland Indians 7-1.

"We were due one," said Detroit Manager Sparky Anderson. "It's the first time we've been beaten in the ninth inning in a long time. I won't forget this one right away. I imagine I'll think about it for awhile. Scoring 10 runs in two innings I'm sure is going to give the Brewers a boost."

Milwaukee hammered starter Milt Wilcox and relief ace Willie Hernandez for five runs in the eighth inning and jumped on Bill Scherrer with two out in the ninth on Paul Molitor's game-tying solo homer and Ted Simmons' first AL grand slam.

The Tigers opened a 7-1 lead over Milwaukee behind Wilcox's strong pitching while Alan Trammell had two triples and a homer and drove in Detroit's first four runs.

But singles by pinch-hitter Paul Householder and Rick Manning plus Molitor's two-run double chased Wilcox in the eighth. Hernandez walked Robin Yount and struck out Mark Brouhard, but Ben Oglivie's double made it 7-4.

Orioles 7, Indians 1

Rookie Ken Dixon pitched a three-hitter for his first major-league victory. The 24-year-old right-hander allowed one hit over the first eight innings and lost his shutout bid in the ninth. The Orioles scored an unearned run without a hit in the fourth inning and erupted for six runs against Jose Roman and Mike Jeffcoat in the sixth as Eddie Murray, Fred Lynn and Rick Dempsey all homered. Murray and Dempsey hit two-run shots.

Yankees 5, Red Sox 1

Phil Niekro, New York's 46-year-old knuckleballer, scattered five singles and struck out nine in 7 2-3 innings as the Yankees defeated Boston for the first time in six meetings this season.

The Yankees scored twice to take a 3-1 lead in the bottom of the third on three consecutive doubles against Bruce Hurst. With two out, Dave Winfield's pop fly fell in short right field for a double. Don Baylor followed with a double high off the wall in left-center that scored Winfield and Baylor scored on a double by Ken Griffey. The Yankees added two runs in the seventh when Boston left fielder Jim Rice dropped Griffey's long fly ball with two runners aboard for a three-base error.

Twins 5, Athletics 4

Kirby Puckett greeted newly acquired Oakland reliever Tom Tellmann with a game-winning single with one out in the bottom of the ninth inning. Greg Gagne drew a leadoff walk from Keith Atherton and was forced at second on Tim Teufel's attempted sacrifice. Randy Bush batted for Tim Laudner and Tim Conroy relieved Atherton, bringing on Dave Engle to bat for Bush.

Conroy threw a wild pitch, sending Teufel to second, and then walked Engle intentionally. Tellmann, just recalled from the minors, came on and Puckett drilled his first pitch up the alley in left-center to give the Twins their fifth straight victory after a nine-game losing streak.

Angels 3, Mariners 0

Mike Witt, who pitched a perfect game on the final day of the 1984 season, pitched a three-hitter for his first 1985 victory and Bobby Grich homered as California handed Seattle its fifth consecutive setback and ninth in the last 10 games after a 6-0 start. Witt allowed just five baserunners, walking two and striking out five.

Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON

Saturday, April 27, 1985

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Let others learn to take responsibility for themselves while you start pursuing your own interests. Travel enjoys highly favorable influences. Take advantage of a long-standing offer or invitation. Financial pressures disappear if you continue to use common sense. A favorite hobby can bring in extra cash. Romance is more exciting than in the past. Do not mistake an infatuation for the real thing! CELEBRITY BIRTHDATES: Scottish-born pop singer Sheena Easton, actresses Sandy Dennis and Anouk Aimee, Coretta Scott King, Jack Klugman, the Mets' Brian Giles, economist Arthur F. Burns, actress Judy Carne, Seattle Seahawks coach Chuck Knox.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Temper tantrums accomplish nothing. Go off by yourself if a dispute starts to get out of hand. An art show or museum provides inexpensive entertainment. The evening looks great for romance.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Those in sales should have a red-letter day. New credit terms make a purchase more attractive. Seek the company of a light-hearted, upbeat friend this evening. Limit spending.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Someone tries to shift his or her responsibilities onto your shoulders. Be calm but firm. You receive an award or gift from a distant admirer. Shoppers can find some real bargains.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): A period of reflection helps you make a tough but wise decision. Mate or partner is unusually supportive. Travel promises to be lots of fun. Write down the addresses of the friends you make.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Better financial planning will result in greater savings. Enlist the cooperation of all family members. A courtship gets off to a good start despite outside interference. Make your own decisions.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): An excellent day for launching joint ventures and family projects. If you always feel on edge, you probably need a change. Think about what you would really like to do.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): A change of scenery is just what you need after a long work week. A spirited conversation gives you a fresh perspective. Host or attend a small social gathering this evening.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Not a good day to discuss confidential or unpleasant matters with loved ones. Concentrate on creative work, jotting down clever ideas. Any help you give small fry will be truly appreciated.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): It may be hard to escape the press of business or your family obligations today. Why try? Acting on impulse could alienate a loved one. Catch up on your reading.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Your family and friends bring you good luck now. Group activities bring together former neighbors or classmates. Be responsible even if others goof off. Romance and adventure go hand-in-hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Some travel plans may have to be cancelled. The arrival of an out-of-town visitor puts you in good humor. Check out any rumors or gossip you hear today.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Jot down those ideas that pop into your head; one of them could be a real moneymaker! Consult experts on building financial security. A good day to ask favors from relatives.

Opening lead: Ten of ◇.

Trump Coup Tommy was beginning to enjoy going to the club. After a disastrous beginning when all suits split evenly and, as a result, Tommy was down a small fortune, trumps were starting to break the way Tommy liked. As our readers know well, Tommy is a duffer who becomes transformed into a genius whenever trumps are stacked against him — we are still trying to find the cause of this phenomenon.

Tommy and his partner bid well to reach four spades. By now, club members knew better than to double Tommy on the strength of their trump holding.

West led the ten of diamonds to the queen and declarer's ace. What seemed like a routine hand began to present problems when Tommy led a trump and West showed out. Declarer rose with the ace, then cashed his three high clubs. Naturally, East did not ruff, sluffing a diamond instead, and Tommy got rid of a heart. East parted with another diamond on the fourth club and Tommy ruffed.

He cashed the ace of hearts and exited with a heart. West won and led a diamond for his partner to ruff. This artistic ending had now been reached:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| | ♠ J 3♡ —◇ K♣ 8 | |

No matter what East chose to do, he could not get more than one trump trick in this position. He elected to lead the queen of hearts. Declarer ruffed in hand, discarding the board's club, then led the ace of diamonds. East was forced to ruff and then he had to lead away from the queen of trumps into Tommy's combined K-J tenace.

Actress says she's 'getting better every day'

CULVER CITY, Calif. (AP) — Actress Ann Jillian, who returned to work less than two weeks after surgery for breast cancer, says she's getting better every day.

"I received so many letters from other people who've had cancer telling me not to worry, I was going to be the same girl afterward," Miss Jillian, 35, said Thursday during rehearsals for "Alice in Wonderland."

The actress, discharged from a hospital Friday after undergoing a double mastectomy April 12, said she was a "little sore," but "it gets better every day. My movements are limited, but that's only temporary."

She said she had worked only a few days on Irwin Allen's four-hour production of the Lewis Carroll fantasy for CBS TV when doctors detected the cancer. She said they felt it should be operated on immediately.

•••

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Actress Dyan Cannon married real estate broker Stanley Fimberg one week earlier than planned to assure the ceremony's privacy, her publicist said.

Cannon

Miss Cannon, 48, married Fimberg, 50, at his Beverly Hills home Saturday. It was the second marriage for the actress and the third for Fimberg, said publicist George Kirvay.

"I knew the second we met that I wanted to spend the rest of my life with him," Miss Cannon was reported as saying. "I even called my parents and told them so — that's how sure I was."

The actress was divorced from actor Cary Grant 15 years ago, and their daughter, Jennifer Grant, was at her mother's wedding.

The ceremony had been scheduled for April 26, "but they wanted it to be private and went ahead" last week, Kirvay said. A reception is planned before the couple leaves next week for a one-month European honeymoon, he said.

Miss Cannon appears in the TV movie, "Jenny's War," slated for release next fall.

•••

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Most of the $3.3 million donated to the San Diego Zoo by Joan Kroc, widow of McDonald's founder Ray Kroc, will be used to rebuild aging structures and dilapidated exhibits at the 69-year-old facility, officials said.

"She gave us a call and said, 'I want to help,'" zoo spokeswoman Georgeanne Irvine said Thursday. The gift was a total surprise, he said.

Mrs. Kroc decided to make the donation, the largest gift in the history of the famed institution, after reading newspaper accounts of the zoo's problems, zoo officials said.

Federal inspectors had cited the zoo for failing to meet safety standards in some holding pens behind the exhibits.

The largest prior donation to the zoo totaled $1.7 million, zoo spokeswoman Jean Gertmenian said.

•••

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — Piotr Sternik, the 6-year-old Polish boy whose damaged heart was repaired with the help of $25,000 in donated money, will return home Sunday, his American host said.

Piotr had surgery Jan. 25 at Stanford University Medical Center for repair of a defective heart valve that caused most of his blood to bypass his lungs.

He will carry back with him a list of instructions for Polish doctors and a supply of special medication.

Peter Wasowski, who came to the United States from Poland in 1961 at the age of 13 and has provided a home for Piotr and the boy's mother, said Thursday that Piotr would leave for home Sunday.

When Stanford requested payment in advance to cover costs related to the surgery, about 1,000 people contributed to a surgery fund.

•••

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Haydn, a character actor who made his name in British music halls by imitating a carp and went on to appear in films including the 1960s remake of "Mutiny On The Bounty," died Thursday. He was 80.

Haydn's nearly 50-year career began in music halls in the 1930s, where he originated a character known as "Mr. Carp." He appeared in the films "Balls of Fire," "And Then There Were None," "Young Frankenstein," and "Five Weeks in a Balloon." Haydn also directed the films "Dear Wife" and "Mr. Music" in 1950.

•••

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Murray Matheson, a movie, stage and television actor known for his portrayal of stern characters, died Thursday of an apparent heart attack. He was 73.

Matheson toured with Australian national companies until 1935 when he moved to London, making his debut there in a revue, "And On We Go," in 1937.

He first appeared in an American film in 1952 in the little-remembered "Hurricane Smith" but obtained featured billing the following year in the convict-ship thriller, "Botany Bay." His other films included "King of the Khyber Rifles," "Love is a Many Splendored Thing," "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying" and "Twilight Zone-The Movie."

From 1972 to 1974 he appeared in the TV detective drama "Banacek" and had guest appearances in "Charlie's Angels," "Battlestar Galactica," "McCloud" and "Vegas."

•••

RIVERSIDE, Calif. (AP) — Arthur Arthur, a writer and producer who won an Academy Award for a postwar documentary on the starving children of Europe, died Tuesday. He was 73.

Arthur's first major credit was "Charlie Chan on Broadway" released in 1937. He won a best-documentary Oscar in 1947 for "Seeds of Destiny." Arthur also worked in television during the 1950s and 1960s, contributing scripts to such series as "Daktari," "Flipper," "Ripcord," "Gentle Ben" and "Sea Hunt."

•••

MOSCOW (AP) — Pavel I. Batov, former chief of staff of Warsaw Pact forces and a veteran of three wars, died April 19. He was 87.

Batov began his 50-year military career in 1915 with the Russian imperial army, fighting in World War I. He switched allegiance to the Bolsheviks' Red Guard after the 1917 revolution and fought in the ensuing civil war. Batov commanded armies on the Don and Byelorussian fronts during World War II, and served a term as Warsaw Pact chief of staff. He retired in 1965.

•••

RED BANK, N.J. (AP) — Katharine Elkus White, a former U.S. ambassador to Denmark, died Wednesday. She was 78.

Mrs. White was ambassador to Denmark from 1964 to 1968 and also was the first female mayor of Red Bank from 1951 to 1957.

•••

SIMMS, Texas (AP) — Fishermen are falling hook, line and sinker for a new twist in marketing live bait.

Converted sandwich machines, called Vend-A-Bait, dispense nightcrawlers, minnows, leeches and waxworms to anglers heading out before bait stores are open.

"Business has been exceptionally good," said Virgil Burkett, who has a bait machine outside his grocery store. "We've ran out the last two weeks in a row.

"It's the thing of the future."

Jury deliberations begin in ex-banker's trial

By JULIE HILLRICHS
Staff Writer

Jury deliberations began early today in Federal District Court here in the trial of Former Metro Bank President John Edward "Eddie" Thomas of Odessa. Thomas is charged with nine counts of embezzling more than $550,000 and five counts of making false entries into bank records between June 1981 and July 1983.

The six-man, six-woman jury left Federal District Judge Lucius Bunton's courtroom shortly after 10 a.m. to begin deliberations to determine the innocence or guilt of Thomas on each of the fourteen counts.

Thomas, who took the stand in his own defense Wednesday, denied all charges of wrongdoing listed in a Feb. 22 federal grand jury indictment.

A grand jury Jan. 21 returned its original indictment against the 42-year-old Thomas for six counts of embezzling or misapplying funds and five counts of making false entries. But errors in dates and amounts of money prompted a reindictment in February on the nine counts of pilfering and misapplying more than $550,000 and making false entries on almost $1 million in 1981, 1982 and 1983.

In addition, he was charged with three counts of misapplying an estimated $100,000 in Metro Bank funds for the operation of Santa Fe Crossing, a corporation which operated the Santa Fe Crossing Restaurant and Saloon in Odessa. The cafe later became Cafe Milan.

Thomas, president of Metro Bank at Midland Regional Airport from its inception in 1978 until he resigned on July 14, 1983, could be sentenced up to 70 years in prison and fined up to $70,000 should he be convicted of the charges. The bank failed July 29, 1983.

During his testimony, Thomas said he neither stole, embezzled nor bilked Metro Bank of the $550,000; nor did he misapply Metro Bank funds for the operation of Santa Fe Crossing.

Citing specific incidents, defense attorney John Smith of Odessa, asked "In each and every one of these instances did you ever intend to defraud Metro Bank?"

Thomas replied, "No sir."

"Did you steal any money from Metro Bank?" Smith asked.

"No sir," Thomas said.

But Assistant U.S. District Attorney Wayne Speck tried to discredit Thomas' testimony, accusing him of "juggling notes (loans)" without the knowledge of the bank's board of directors.

"You intentionally deleted those notes (from the bank's records) didn't you?" Speck asked.

"No sir," Thomas replied.

"She (Thomas' secretary) typed what you told her to type, did she not?" Speck continued.

"Yes sir," said Thomas.

"You deleted those notes because you didn't want the directors to know you were stealing from the bank?" Speck charged.

"That was not the case at all," Thomas insisted.

Witnesses for the defense concluded testimony Wednesday. During the proceedings defense attorney Smith called on two character witnesses to testify regarding Thomas' reputation as a banker and citizen.

Lubbock artist sculpts black past

By GERRY BURTON

LUBBOCK (AP) — Eddie Dixon had no frame of reference for historical black characters to portray as bad guys and good guys in boyhood games.

But, if the Lubbock artist has his way, black youngsters of the future will have enough such knowledge to fuel their young imaginations.

Black heritage will be told by his sculpture, backed by research into American history "swept under the carpet" too long.

Galleries and established artists around the country keep urging Dixon to leave the black alone and "sculpt in the gray areas," like the Queen of Sheba bust that won best-of-show honors in an ethnic competition in February at the Institute of Texan Cultures.

Art with a black subject, they say, will not sell.

Selling is frequent enough, however, to keep Dixon on his path to bring out the black impact on the settlement of the West. A part of it, Seminole Negro Indian Scout, shared top honors with Sheba in the San Antonio show spotlighting black artists from throughout the state.

"When I was a kid, all I could be was John Wayne or Hoot Gibson," Dixon said. "I could have been Brit Johnson."

Johnson's dramatic rescue of his family and one white captive from Comanches, rivals any Western drama undertaken by John Wayne on the silver screen.

AP Laserphoto

Eddie Dixon poses with his bronze, "Queen of Sheba," which won best of show in a statewide competition for black artists sponsored by the Institute of Texan Cultures in San Antonio. Currently, Dixon bases his art on research into American black history which has been "swept under the carpet" too long.

THE FORMER slave allied himself with the Indians, became a member of the tribe and bided his time until an escape route presented itself. Five years later, vengeful Comanches ambushed, killed and mutilated their former friend for his treachery.

As for the bad guy, Dixon pointed out, "...instead of being Pretty Boy Floyd or John Dillinger, I could have been Cherokee Bill."

The part-white, part-black and part-Indian renegade "had a record of robbery and murder unmatched by any other bandit in Indian Territory," but also spread the image of a dashing, good-looking cowboy with the ability to outshoot anybody. He would have caught the imagination of any boy even to his hanging as "a ferocious monster" by Judge Isaac Parker.

Johnson and Bill already are part of Dixon's work. Johnson, depicted battling his way with children in his arms, is in the Llano Estacado Museum on the campus of Wayland Baptist University in Plainview. Cherokee Bill soon will be ensconced at Fort Concho, where his father was a buffalo soldier with the U.S. 10th Cavalry. His mother was part white, black and Indian from San Angelo.

ANY YOUNG black would have proudly galloped with his stick horse pretending to be a buffalo soldier, had he known how the black soldiers helped settle the West — fighting Indians, protecting settlers, guarding wagon trains and trail herds. Several won the Medal of Honor.

The elite of the cavalry would have been great boyhood heros. The Seminole scouts, extolled for their tracking and fighting abilities, seldom are mentioned in history books as black. Their heritage as descendants of slaves, who escaped to the Everglades to live with the Seminole and then to Mexico to guard that hectic border, shows in Dixon's bronze portrayal of the scout.

A bronze portrait of the buffalo soldier is displayed at the Llano Estacado Museumm and is in the art collection at The Museum of Texas Tech University.

The latest version, about two-thirds life size, will be completed this summer for the Panhandle-Plains Historical Museum at Canyon. It also will go to the National Historic Site at Fort Davis.

Five of the dozen figures Dixon believes to be necessary for a reference point for black heritage are completed.

HE WOULD like to do a couple of sheriffs, probably including Bass Reeves, who worked for Parker, known as "the hanging judge" in Indian Territory.

One more outlaw would add the renegades who deserted the cavalry or white settlements to rampage with Indians or outlaws. They include a former Army bugler who helped the Indians coordinate their attack on buffalo hunters at Adobe Walls.

His black mountain man will be either Jim Beckworth, whose exploits are legend in history with only rare mention of his color, or Isaiah Dorman.

Dorman, Dixon said, might win out for his life with the Sioux and his mix of white-Indian exploits as a woodcutter, mail courier and interpreter for the cavalry.

"When the Sioux found him (after the battle of the Little Big Horn), they wondered what he was doing there with Custer," Dixon said.

The artist's heritage count would be incomplete without the blacks who made up a fourth to a fifth of the cowbouys trailing herds to market or into the new West.

Blacks were plentiful around the beginning rodeo arenas and were very popular when Wild West shows went abroad. One even invented the art of bulldogging. Others became ranchers, pillars of the industry as it settled.

DIXON STOPS hunting for heritage at U.S. borders, except in the case of Estevan, a Moorish slave who came to Texas with the first Spanish Conquistadores.

He survived a shipwreck, lived with and escaped from the Karankawa Indians, and explored with Cabeza de Vaca before going as a scout on expeditions into the Southwest. His stories brought Coronado on his quest for the seven cities of gold.

Already, Dixon has traced Estevan back to West Africa to obtain the facial structure for Texas' first black, whom he has painted for the Institute of Texas Cultures. He hopes to produce a bronze replica of Estevan in time for the Texas Sesquicentennial celebration in 1986.

When his heritage project is complete, Dixon plans to return to his first love in art — the barbarians, who furnish a wealth of design with costume and weaponry.

His first was created to fill a blank spot in his own home decor. A molder of shapes since first touching modeling clay as a child, Dixon melted crayons to create an Iberian.

A friend urged its casting, and the Iberian sold, followed soon by a Scythian who also sold. That sale gave Dixon, then a graduate student in entomology at Texas Tech , a new direction in life.

"I WAS determined to succeed in art, even if I starved," the California native said.

His best sources for authenticity, as well as enthusiasm for his portrayal of black history of the West, have been Byron Price, director of the Panhandle-Plains Museum, and Eddie Guffee, director of the Llano Estacado Museum. Local support came first from Jerry House of House Bronze, who encouraged Dixon while calling his talent to area attention.

Dixon's hunt for heritage has taken him to national archives and regional repositories of history, as well as into museums to discover the right rifle, pistol or uniform for the character he is recovering from the lost pages of history.

MCHD directors face accusations from irate mother

By RON GILMORE
Staff Writer

A routine monthly meeting of the Midland County Hospital District Board of Directors became emotionally-charged when the mother of a quadraplegic patient at Odessa's Women and Childrens Hospital accused the Midland Memorial Hospital of posting a sign that told employees not to admit her son.

Ruby Ballard, mother of 18-year-old Joe Ballard, who was left paralyzed from the neck down after a 1983 automobile accident in Houston, told board members that she learned of the sign from friends who had seen it posted on a bulletin board in the emergency admission area of Midland Memorial Hospital.

"I had received several phone calls from friends near the end of March that there was a sign," she told the group in a voice shaking with emotion.

The sign read, "Do not take or admit Joe Ballard from Women and Childrens Hospital. Dr. Bray is his physician. Contact Mark or Ron." Photocopies of the sign were passed around to the directors, who were unaware of it.

Tempers flared between board members and Ms. Ballard as both parties attempted to explain the sign's exact meaning. Ms. Ballard indicated that the sign was put up to keep her son, who is ventilator-dependent, out of MMH, due to the expense of his treatment, which would have to come out of indigent care funds.

"I WAS TOLD that all of the insurance had been used up at Women and Childrens and that Dr. Bray was thinking of packing him off to MMH," she said.

MMH officials, however, explained that the sign was not put up for the purpose of refusing service to her son, but rather to ensure that if he needed emergency care, that his transfer be handled properly.

"I had been notified that the sign did not pertain to emergency services," said Ron Peterson, vice president of finances. "Joe would be admitted in an emergency situation just like any other patient."

But Ms. Ballard doubted that emergency personnel would help her son.

"No employee in that emergency department will help him with that sign up," she said. "What kind of outlook do you think the people of Midland County are getting? Those letters on that sign were big — 1½ inches by 2 inches — for everyone to see.

"My son cannot be off his ventilator," she told the board. "In 30 seconds, he is gasping. In 45 seconds, he is in trouble. In one minute, he is in serious trouble and may possibly die."

While the board tried to assure Ms. Ballard that her son would be admitted in an emergency situation, admission under any other circumstance was not guaranteed.

"I TOLD an associate that he was under no obligation to take a private patient," said Ray Branson, president of MMH. "But if the patient was admitted in the emergency room, that he was required to take care of him like any other patient, regardless of the ability to pay."

Admission of long-term care patients is not standard policy for MMH, indicated Branson.

"There was some concern over whether there was a physician who could take care of the patient," he said. "We don't have those kinds of beds and have no capacity for long-term care."

Ms. Ballard told board members that she has run up against walls in her fight to help her son since his accident.

"I'm trying to find help for these ventilator-dependent handicapped," she said. "I just came back from Austin, where I was told that there is no state funding, period."

"What I'm fighting for is a center for these handicaps and all I have found is a bunch of nos and a bunch of ———."

The discussion ended when Ms. Ballard abruptly arose and left the room, telling the board members that she "would not stop fighting for her son."

One board member wished her well.

"I hope your group will find help for this group of people," said director, Dr. Walter S. Parks.

FOLLOWING MS. Ballard's exit, the board members continued with routine board business, including the approval of several bid proposals.

Monies for indigent care payments to Lubbock General Hospital amounting to $21,900, and indigent reimbursement of $275,850 to MMH from MCHD was approved, as well as the purchase of $129,000 in various hospital equipment.

Also included in the directors' meeting was the election of new officers.

Elected were: president, Tevis Herd; vice president, Parks; secretary, Pat Estes and assistant secretary, Linda Rogers.

Highlights of the earlier Board of Trustees meeting included the swearing in of new trustees, Parks and Frank Kell Cahoon, who were re-elected in the April 6 election. Incoming Eugene Abbott was also sworn in. Abbott was former chairman of the Board of Trustees. Judge Pat Baskin swore in the directors.

Also introduced at the trustees' meeting was a report from medical staff president, Dr. Greg Bartha, on staffing problems.

"We are having a problem with staffing in intensive care," he told the members. "We have a lot of nurses quitting and may have to close a couple of beds in ICU if we don't have the staffing."

"People are having to be put on other floors," he said. "We're trying to address the problem, but it doesn't look like there will be an easy answer."

Judge nullifies $10.4 million award

Bunton rules in favor of FDIC

By FRANK TROMBLEY
Staff Writer

U.S. District Judge Lucius Bunton has overturned a jury verdict that awarded $10.4 million to Austin engineer-developer T.J. Melton III March 22.

In a memorandum opinion-order, Bunton reversed the jury verdict in favor of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The jury in the case determined that First National Bank of Midland had breached a loan agreement with Melton, made "fraudulent" representations and imposed economic duress on him.

Melton was the developer of Wild River Canyon, which was built in far west Midland in 1980 after Melton secured financing from FNB, which failed Oct. 14, 1983. The park closed in August 1982.

Melton contended harassment by FNB contributed to the downfall of the park, which predated its competitor, Water Wonderland, located between Midland and Odessa.

Melton filed suit Jan. 25, 1984, against the FDIC as receiver and liquidator of the failed FNB for damages allegedly resulting from the bank's actions.

Melton filed for bankruptcy in 1982 to keep FNB from foreclosing on the amusement park and an adjoining duplex development in Westgate Acres. Melton's projects included 70 acres: 17 acres for the park, 30 acres for a commercial development, and 23 acres for the duplexes, which were sold.

The Melton-FNB dispute originated in November 1979, when Melton said he and the bank entered a verbal agreement under which his T. June Melton and Associates would borrow $1.5 million at 15 percent interest to finance the amusement park. Payout was to be in six years.

An initial $100,000 advance in November 1979 came without any collateral "except the unlimited guarantee" of Melton's father, Midland surgeon Dr. T. June Melton Jr.

According to the younger Melton, his father had signed a blank guarantee with the understanding it was for $100,000. Melton stated the word "unlimited" was put in the guarantee after his father had signed it.

Melton contended FNB reneged on their oral agreement, agreeing to loan money for the development project, but not for Wild River Canyon.

He further contended in court documents the "tardiness" of FNB in preparing loan agreements and the "manner in which the funds were to be made for construction" caused the park to be "seriously delayed."

According to court records, those delays caused "significant cost overruns," which hiked the park's cost from $1.5 million to $2.5 million.

Though he later defaulted on loan payments to FNB, Melton said, FNB did refuse a $500,000 payment and apparently wanted to foreclose on the property and take over Melton's development.

Melton also claimed FNB "divulged" to a third party his plans to build the amusement park.

There was not a similar park within 300 miles of Midland in the spring of 1980, according to court records.

In June 1980, construction began on Water Wonderland, which opened in September — Labor Day — 1980.

City recounting some votes cast April 6

From Staff Reports

A recount of votes cast in April 6's city election in Precincts 1 and 3 was scheduled for 12:15 p.m. today at the county barn, 200 S. Henderson Blvd., with City Attorney David Reagan, City Secretary Bill Clanton, County Judge Bill Ahders and District Judge Pat Baskin present.

The recount was requested by petitions turned in about 2:15 p.m. Thursday to the city secretary. The petitions referred to "discrepancies in the election results for Precincts 1 and 3. We as concerned citizens and registered voters of Midland County would like to request a recount of the votes."

Precincts 1 and 3 are in the single-member District 2.

"There were no votes cast on the charter amendment in those two precincts," said Reagan. "The council had no choice but to canvass the returns as given to them by the election office. It looks strange not to have any votes (on the charter amendment). We've got a question about it, too."

When the election judges in those precincts called in their results that Saturday night, Elections Administrator Janeice Builta had questioned them about the zero votes on the charter amendment, but the judges had contended the figures were correct.

According to state law, a county judge and district judge must be present when a recount is made, said Reagan.

"It shouldn't take that long. There are about five voting machines," he said.

DEATHS

James A. Price

Funeral services for James A. Price of College Station and formerly of Midland are scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday at the Memorial Funeral Home Chapel in Bryan with the Rev. Terry Teykl, pastor of Aldersgate United Methodist Church in College Station, officiating.

Burial will be in the College Station Cemetery.

Price, 78, died at his residence in College Station Wednesday.

He was born Sept. 20, 1906, in Ridge Farm, Ill.

Price was a retired petroleum geologist who was employed in Midland by Bright & Schiff from 1949 to 1978. He then worked for Dibler Seismic Co. of Houston. He was a graduate of Tulsa University.

Gov. Mark White addresses community groups staging a rally in front of the Capitol in Austin Thursday in support of an indigent health package now being considered by lawmakers.

White wants indigent care without tax hike

AUSTIN (AP) — Although a crowd of demonstrators said they support any method of funding for health care for the poor, Gov. Mark White said he wants it financed without an increase in taxes.

A crowd of mostly Hispanic and black demonstrators rallied on the front steps of the Capitol Thursday afternoon to support four indigent health care bills being considered by Senate and House committees.

One of the bills would levy a 1 percent tax on net revenue of both private and public hospitals to pay for indigent care. Some lawmakers have instead proposed a 4-cent cigarette tax increase.

White, Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby, House Speaker Gib Lewis and several representatives and senators have endorsed spending $125 million in state funds to provide medical care for the state's poor.

But White said he hopes the package can be funded without an increase in taxes.

However, Hobby told the demonstrators he supports the tax.

"If this session of the Legislature does nothing else, but for the first time provides a system of health care for the poor people of this state it will go down in history as a great session," Hobby said.

Eight community groups from across the state were represented at the rally under the umbrella name of Texas Industrial Area Foundation Network.

Rep. Jesse Oliver, D-Dallas, who sponsored the bill to tax hospitals, said the legislative opposition was aimed at funding proposals of the bill.

White: It's good to see GOP scurrying about

AUSTIN (AP) — Gov. Mark White, while declining to officially declare himself a candidate for re-election, says he gets a chuckle from Republican efforts to find a challenger for him.

"It's good to see them scurrying about. It's amusing to watch them trying to handpick their candidates," White said Thursday.

Republican Bill Clements, ousted by White in 1982, has traveled the state looking for a good GOP gubernatorial prospect. If one doesn't surface, Clements has indicated he may run again.

White said that doesn't worry him.

"We've had an opportunity once before; a rematch wouldn't bother me," he said.

White told his weekly news conference that last year's controversial school reforms and $4.8 billion tax hike are so popular with Texans that he fears no challenge over them.

"I'll be pleased to contest any opponent, Democrat or Republican, on those issues. Primary or general election," White declared.

Earlier this week, state Democratic Party Chairman Bob Slagle said White could be vulnerable on some issues next year, including the school reforms and the $4.8 billion, three-year tax increase..

Man who shot himself in foot remains in jail

From Staff Reports

A 47-year-old man who shot himself in the foot with a shotgun at a convenience store Thursday night remained in Midland County Jail this morning for questioning about the shooting, according to officers.

The man, who was arrested for public intoxication, was seen by Deputy Dale Walker at 10:15 p.m. standing at the intersection of County Road 1308 and U.S. Highway 80 in west Midland County, reports said. He was "attempting to conceal a 12-gauge shotgun under a coat," reports said.

The man had suffered a gunshot wound to the left foot and was treated at Midland Memorial Hospital before he was transferred to the county jail.

An employee of the Kwik Mart, at 9101 E. Highway 80 in Odessa said the man earlier was in the store with a six-pack of beer and "was fixing to pay for it when a gunshot was heard," the report stated. The man then paid for the beer and walked out of the store.

Reports indicate employees saw a puddle of blood and a shotgun blast on the floor.

In other complaints under investigation by the sheriff's office, Richard Otto Gladish, Box 145, Route 1, told deputies his mobile home on CR 1090, about a half mile north of CR 307, was burglarized between 8 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. Thursday.

Taken were a portable stereo radio, .30-caliber rifle, rifle scope, shotgun, 35mm camera and two knives and gun cases. Total loss was placed at $950.

In complaints filed with city police, Roger McMakin reported his house was burglarized early this morning while he slept.

Reports indicate McMakin woke up at 2:25 a.m. today and saw a shadow go by his bedroom. After inspecting his house, he discovered $1,490 worth of items, later recovered in an alley, were missing.

Luis Ceniceros Jr., 809 E. Estes, told police his house was burglarized sometime after 8 a.m. Thursday. Reports indicate Ceniceros' son returned home from school at 4:15 p.m. to find a front window pulled open and the kitchen door open. Missing were a portable stereo, .22-caliber rifle and an engagement ring, reports said. Total loss was placed at $377.

A 4-year-old Midland boy injured Sunday in a car accident in which his grandfather was killed is expected to be transferred to Midland Memorial Hospital today, according to a spokeswoman at Hendricks Medical Center in Abilene.

Reagan Lynch, 4905 Wilshire, was a passenger in a pickup driven by his grandfather, Darrell Winiford Hocker, 53, of 4405 Wilshire. The boy was listed in stable condition this morning in Abilene.

Nell Wanda Hocker, 48, the child's grandmother, was transferred to MMH Thursday, where she was listed in stable condition this morning, according to an MMH spokeswoman.

The three were injured in a two-vehicle accident near Bangs when their pickup collided with a flatbed truck driven by Rex Clark, 38, of San Angelo.

Clark was updated from serious to satisfactory condition this morning at Brownwood Regional Hospital, according to reports. A passenger in his truck, Mary Ann Clark, 36, also of San Angelo, was listed today in critical condition at Shannon West Texas Memorial Hospital. Another passenger, Joshua Clark, 5, was discharged Wednesday from the San Angelo hospital.

White says budget won't require tax increases

AUSTIN (AP) — The way he reads it, Gov. Mark White says the $36.4 billion, two-year state budget approved by the Texas House won't require any tax increase.

"I'm very pleased that they were able to reach the compromises to permit a balanced budget without any new taxes," White said.

Although some lawmakers have said a tax hike may yet be needed to balance the budget, House Speaker Gib Lewis said a $106 million increase in fees and a quadrupling of college tuition will cover state government operations.

The House voted 135-11 preliminary approval of the budget on Wednesday and sent it to the Senate on a voice vote Thursday. The Senate is working on its own spending plan, so the final state budget will be written by a House-Senate conference committee.

The House-approved budget, tightest in 10 years, would add money for welfare, prisons, mental hospitals, public schools and highways. Higher education would receive average decreases of 4 percent, and many state agencies would suffer heavy cuts.

The governor said the budget "is not exactly the way I would have drafted it," and indicated he will wait on the conference committee version before making any final decisions.

White indicated he could support a compromise proposal that would quadruple state college tuition over the next two years, then allow the 1987 Legislature to consider possible future increases.

"It's a compromise I would be in a position to support. I'm pleased to see that there is going to be additional money for scholarships and for needy students," he said.

"Even with the increases, we'll still be the least expensive tuition of any of the states in the nation."

White discounted complaints of some students, particularly medical and dental students who will face even larger tuition hikes, that the increases will cost them their educations.

"I dare say, there will not be a single soul who will have to drop out of their school because of any change in the tuition pattern," he said.

State employees have been angered at the failure of lawmakers to approve a pay raise for them.

The House bill includes a possible 3 percent raise for the 180,000 state workers — if seven revenue-raising bills also pass.

"I like what they (the House) have done. But the Senate has not," White said, adding that he will work with the conference committee "actively trying to help them find a way to at least make some provision for increased salaries."

Two defendants jailed after allegedly buying marijuana

HOUSTON (AP) — Two defendants in a drug-trafficking trial were jailed after a witness in the case testified one of the men bought a load of marijuana last week.

U.S. District Judge James DeAnda on Thursday ordered Vance Williams, 38, of Houston, and Oscar Silva, 36, of Austin, jailed during the complex trial, which began March 25.

Williams, Silva and eight others from Texas, Louisiana, New Mexico, and Massachusetts are charged with running a multimillion dollar drug-trafficking and money-laundering ring for the last 10 years.

The jail order came after Julia Reinhard, the wife of alleged drug dealer Jaime Zubia, testified Williams met with her husband last week to buy a load of marijuana.

She said that when she and her husband saw Williams, he apologized for his unavailability.

"He said he had been busy with trial and he'd be free Wednesday and Friday because he didn't have court," she said.

Dick DeGuerin, an attorney for Silva, argued it would be unfair to deny Silva bond on the basis of testimony about one brief visit.

But DeAnda disagreed.

"I believe that presence can be incriminating, especially when you're inspecting marijuana in someone's kitchen," he said. "I've heard testimony that the last time Vance Williams was in a halfway house he went right on about his narcotics business and that appears to be happening again."

The judge set a hearing for today on the jail order.

TRIAL

Among the character witnesses were Jimmy H. Davidson, an employee with the Internal Revenue Service and State District Judge Joe Connally of Odessa. Both testified that Thomas' reputation in the banking industry and community was "excellent."

Also called to the stand in Thomas' defense were William Cooper, co-owner of West Texas Pipe and Steel and co-director of Odessa Industrial Bank; Thomas' former girlfriend Melody Tietz of Dallas; and Joel Fink, Thomas' partner in FTH Inc.

Fink told the jurors that he alone was "responsible" for the $416,000 in loans secured by Metro Bank to finance "Incredibles," an Arlington nightclub that he and Thomas had built in 1981.

Payments on the loan for the now-defunct nightclub allegedly were secured with insufficient fund checks, according to charges brought by the prosecution.

"I signed a blank check. We thought it would be covered before the check hit the bank," Fink said.

"Are you broke?" Speck asked the witness.

"I'm as broke as anyone could be," Fink testified.

"How in the name of God are you going to pay back that $416,000?" asked Speck.

"It may take me the rest of my life," Fink answered.

BOARD

In the monthly financial report presented by Ron Peterson, vice president of finances, a continuing trend in the decrease of how long a patient stays in the hospital was noted.

"It's the same length of stay decline that we've seen since the first of the year," said Peterson.

Protesters oppose ocean incineration

STATE

BROWNSVILLE (AP) — Amid a bombardment of speeches, skits and songs opposing toxic-waste burning in the Gulf of Mexico, federal officials were also warned they would be sued if the Gulf isn't eliminated as a proposed site for at-sea incinerations.

Gov. Mark White and Attorney General Jim Mattox, stressing the Gulf's importance to Texas, said Thursday they would sue the federal government if the Environmental Protection Agency approves plans to burn toxic wastes there.

The EPA has designated two sites for the burning of liquid toxic wastes. One is 200 miles off the Texas-Louisiana coast and the other off the New Jersey-Delaware coast.

But Mattox and White, testifying before EPA hearing examiner Edwin Johnson Thursday, said companies wanting to do off-shore burning are not held fully liable for any accidents.

"The only reason these people want to do it offshore is that they have limited liability in federal statutes and that they won't be having to respond when an accident occurs," White said.

About 3,000 other people attended the hearing, including area congressmen, state legislators, farm workers, students and officials of companies wanting to burn the toxic wastes.

A group of Texas Southmost College students performed a skit to the theme of "We Are the World," and student body president Clifford Gillard told the EPA that the message was clear.

"We are the children of this area," he said. "We're the only ones that can make this a brighter place. Our choice is no more PCBs and nothing else."

One man put his opposition into a Spanish song, but most of the opposition was through speeches.

"I have already filed a lawsuit on this matter and the EPA should understand and know that I am prepared to act again unless EPA listens to the peole and gives us fair treatment," Mattox said. "There must be no rush to judgment."

Mattox tried suing once before to stop at-sea incineration, but a judge rejected the suit as premature.

The EPA is proposing to grant 10-year permits to companies, such as Chemical Waste Management Inc., for ocean incineration. White urged the EPA to consider three-year permits with annual reviews.

Court upholds newsman's contempt citation

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Court of Criminal Appeals has refused to rehear the case of a Dallas Morning News photographer cited for contempt when he refused to turn over photographs taken during a nuclear plant protest.

Randy Eli Groethe was held in contempt of court last April during the trial of a protester after refusing to turn over photographs of the defendant's arrest during a 1983 demonstration against the Comanche Peak power plant.

Court rejects firm's arguments, upholds Blue Law

HOUSTON (AP) — A state appeals court has upheld the Texas Blue Law, rejecting arguments by Handy Dan hardware stores that the the 24-year-old Sunday closings statute is unconstitutional and vague.

The 1st Texas Court of Appeals on Thursday reversed a lower court's ruling in finding the law does not violate the state and U.S. constitutions.

The statute bans the sale of 42 items on consecutive weekend days. Violators can be assessed up to a $200 fine. The state Supreme Court has upheld the law as constitutional three times.

Last October, state District Judge Thomas Philips of Houston ruled in a lawsuit filed by Handy Dan that the Blue Law was unconstitutional.

Philips' decision was appealed by the state attorney general's office and Houston's Retail Merchants Association, a group of representatives from local businesses.

The merchants group sent shoppers to several Houston area businesses to collect evidence showing the shops violated the Blue Law.

The appeals court rejected Handy Dan's arguments that the law violates the due process and equal protection clauses of both constitutions, Assistant Attorney General John Miner said.

Miner said the three-judge appeals panel rejected Handy Dan's arguments that the merchants' group enforced the law selectively.

Bishop College reaches agreement on debt

DALLAS (AP) — Officials of Bishop College say they have reached agreement with the federal government on a plan to eliminate its $12.5 million federal debt.

Bishop officials said they will pay the federal government $2 million from the sale of a vacant campus building to the Dallas County Community College District, allow the government to collect more than $1.6 million owed to the college; and raise $2 million from the business community for the National Direct Student Loan Program.

The federal government will forgive the remaining $6.9 million in return.

"I feel like I'm on cloud nine," said Bishop College President Wright Lassiter. "This institution has been traveling through the dark regions of what some would term the Valley of Death."

Lassiter said the repayment plan was the result of the work of many people, including Dallas Congressmen Steve Bartlett and Martin Frost; George Shafer; executive vice president of the Industrial Properties Corp.; and Kimberling.

Police union office hit by gunfire

HOUSTON (AP) — The headquarters of a Houston police officers' union was peppered with gunshots after the organization anonymously mailed 2,000 political fliers depicting Mayor Kathy Whitmire's support among homosexuals.

The Houston Police Officers Association received threatening telephone calls late Wednesday, union president Mark Clark said. Clark, who was working late in the downtown office, said one caller identified himself as "Harry" and said he "couldn't believe the HPOA would send out something like this."

The fliers sent were reprints of a Houston Post article and photo of Mrs. Whitmire touring a Houston gay bar in January 1984. She went to the bars to thank supporters in her recent election.

The only change to the article is the addition of the one word, "Remember."

The HPOA name is not printed anywhere on the flier, but Houston radio station KTRH traced the postage meter to the union.

Clark said the fliers were sent out as reminders about the mayor's support in the gay community. The police group has not been in agreement with Mrs. Whitmire's actions involving homosexuals, including support for equal employment rights for homosexuals.

Police investigators were called to the group's downtown office, located next to police headquarters, about 6 a.m. Thursday when a janitor discovered the damage, Clark said.

At least six shots struck the building, two of which hit a brick wall and the others shatterered a double glass door, he said. One bullet went down a hallway and through a wooden door before lodging in an auditorium wall.

"I'm glad no one was here when it happened, someone could have been killed," Clark said. "There is no telling who did it. I can't attribute the phone calls to the shots, but I guess they weren't veiled threats."

Discussion of UTA rule barring teacher-student romances put off

ARLINGTON (AP) — A rule to cool teacher-student romances at the University of Texas at Arlington won't resurface for consideration — and probably more controversy — until autumn, officials say.

UTA deans originally proposed the policy, but it has drawn fire from some who say it would be unenforceable and an infringement on the personal freedom of faculty members.

The ensuing debate led the UTA Faculty Senate on Wednesday to postpone a vote on the rule until September.

While urban studies professor Sherman Wyman said UTA should not "legislate morality," the policy's supporters say it merely puts accepted standards of professional conduct into writing.

"The spirit of it is to prevent sexual harassment in the classroom," said engineering Professor Donald Lile, whose Senate committee studied the policy and recommended its approval "with reservation and without enthusiasm."

But Academic Vice President W.A. Baker, who headed the panel that recommended the rule, said it was aimed at romantic relationships, not sexual harassment.

"When I was a faculty member, it was understood you did not engage in that type of relationship with students," he said.

Dollar rises

LONDON (AP) — The dollar extended a near week-long surge in early trading today, rising against every major currency.

In Tokyo, where trading ends before it begins in Europe, the dollar rose against the yen for the fifth straight day, closing at 252.40 yen compared with Thursday's finish of 251.05. The dollar closed the week in Tokyo sharply up from 246.85 yen last Friday.

In later European trading, the dollar was quoted at 252.77 yen.

In London, the pound — which closed at nearly $1.30 last Friday — continued to slide against the U.S. currency. The pound was quoted at $1.2010 in early trading, cheaper than $1.2055 late Thursday.

Early dollar rates against other key currencies compared with late rates Thursday:

– 2.6335 Swiss francs, up from 2.6005.

– 9.6250 French francs, up from 9.5250.

Nation's money supply dips $300 million

NEW YORK (AP) — A slight dip in the nation's money supply in mid-April failed to raise economists' hopes for further declines in interest rates.

The Federal Reserve Board said Thursday that M1, the basic money supply measure of funds readily available for spending, slipped $300 million in the week ended April 15, but still remained above its growth targets.

Long-term interest rates, which had climbed prior to the Fed's report late Thursday, nudged even higher after the figures were released.

Analysts were divided on whether other figures in the Fed's money supply report provided evidence that the central bank had moved recently to accommodate lower interest rates. But they agreed a further shift in credit policy was unlikely until clear evidence appeared on the course of the economy.

"It's likely the Fed will not rock the boat in this situation," said David Jones, an economist at the government securities firm of Aubrey G. Lanston & Co.

Maury Harris, chief economist at PaineWebber Inc., said the Fed was unlikely to shift until its policymaking Federal Open Market Committee meets next month.

"There are a number of cross-currents right now pulling Fed policy in different directions," he said. "The Fed will await April economic data to see if the economy snaps back from March."

The Fed said M1 fell to a seasonally adjusted $573.6 billion in the week ended April 15 from a revised $573.9 billion a week earlier. The previous week's figure originally was estimated at $573.6 billion, but was revised upward by $300 million.

M1 includes cash in circulation, checking deposits and non-bank travelers checks.

The Fed tries to provide enough money to keep the economy expanding without rekindling higher inflation, but despite the latest decline, M1 still remained more than $4 billion above the upper limits of the Fed's growth targets.

For the latest 13 weeks, M1 averaged $570 billion, a 10.4 percent seasonally adjusted annual rate of gain from the previous 13 weeks.

The Fed has said it would like to see M1 grow between 4 percent and 7 percent from the fourth quarter of 1984 through the fourth quarter of 1985.

With M1 over target, the Fed would be reluctant to pump more money into the economy unless it was clear the economy was in danger, Harris said.

In other economic developments Thursday:

—Assets of the nation's 345 money market mutual funds rose $1.47 billion in the latest week, spurred by a record jump in investments by institutions such as pension funds, the Investment Company Institute said. The rise, to $211.31 billion in the seven-day period ended Wednesday, followed a $1.6 billion increase in the funds' assets the previous week, according to the Washington-based mutual fund trade group.

Airlines report profits during first quarter

HOUSTON (AP) — Continental Airlines, which filed for protection from creditors in 1983 and shut down its service for two days, has reported its first January-to-March profit in seven years.

Meanwhile, in Dallas, Braniff Inc., which reshaped itself in November as a discount carrier, said it recorded an operating profit during the two months ending March 31, its first since it resumed flying 13 months ago.

Continental on Thursday reported net income was $15.1 million for the first quarter of 1985, compared to a loss of $4.9 million for the same period last year.

"The first quarter's results are particularly gratifying, coming as they do during what is traditionally the weakest period of the year and despite so-called fare wars and widespread discounting," Continental Chairman Frank Lorenzo said.

But Continental officials said earnings for the first period of this year and in 1984 are not comparable because the airline was operating at only 40 percent of its current capacity during the 1984 quarter.

The earnings per share for the first quarter of 1985 came to 56 cents a share, compared to a loss of 28 cents a share for the first three months of 1984.

Lorenzo attributed the income growth to the public's "rediscovery" of Continental.

Operating revenues for the period were $363 million, compared to $217 million a year ago.

The period was the fourth consecutive quarter in which the carrier reported a net profit.

Continental filed for protection from its creditors under federal bankruptcy laws on Sept. 24, 1983, and closed down its domestic service for two days.

On Oct. 1, 1983, pilots, mechanics and flight attendants unions struck, protesting the carrier's reduced pay and changes in working conditions. They ended their strike last week, saying they would pursue the dispute in court.

Permian Basin oilmen named to Hall of Fame

By MELLA MCEWEN
Business-Oil Writer

Four prominent Permian Basin oil men were honored Thursday night at the Permian Basin Petroleum Museum, Library and Hall of Fame's semi-annual Hall of Fame dinner at the Green Tree Country Club.

The museum's Hall of Fame recognizes those who have contributed substantially to the development of the oil and gas industry or area residents who have set worthy examples for those in the industry.

This year's honorees are the late Horace M. Bayer, Claude W. Brown, the late Levi Smith and Charles D. Vertrees.

Horace "Rusty" Bayer, a native of Wisconsin, graduated from the University of Oklahoma School of Geology in 1924, and immediately took up Gulf Oil's offer to work in Eastland. In 1927, he was transferred to Midland, and later headed the company'sgeological work.

He married Lucile Thomas, daughter of prominent Midland physician Dr. J.B. Thomas. In 1944.

He was later transferred to Fort Worth, and after a series of promotions, was named division vice-president in 1953.

Bayer was heavily involved with a number of major Gulf discoveries in the Central Basin Platform area. After a long career in which he played a tremendous part in Gulf's West Texas success and in the industry's development of the Permian Basin, he retired in 1962 and died in 1975 at Fort Worth.

Mrs. Bayer received the award for her husband. She was accompanied to the dinner by her sister, Mrs. H.E. Meadows, and H.E. Meadows and family.

Claude Brown, a believer in "do-it-yourself," spent his boyhood in Coleman County and Ballinger. As a young man, he took a job with an oil company and bought, with a friend, his own rig. The Depression soon wiped them out — but he started again. This time, he found oil in various places in West Texas, but especially around Girvin. He established a major oil supply company in the Permian Basin.

Claude Brown has also been active in civic, public and church activities. His out-pouring of work on behalf of a host of courses has set an example for others in the oil industry and outside it.

Brown received his award, accompanied to the dinner by his wife, son-in-law Ed W. Thorp and family.

Levi Smith, a second-generation oilman and native of Moundsville, West Virginia in 1869, was intimately associated with two great fields — the Big Lake, which shoved West Texas into thinking of the industry, and the Yates discovery.

After early work as a landman, Smith associated himself with Mike Benedum and Joe Trees of Pittsburgh — partners who made wildcatting history over the world. Benedum turned to Smith in 1923, when Frank Pickrell attempted to interest him in financing more wells near the Santa Rita No. 1 at Texon. His affirmative recommendation to go ahead took Benedum and associates into the venture.

Subsequently, he evnisioned and built what was to become the model "company camp" at Texon in a dusty wilderness. He was also influential in the finding of one of the great oil fields of all time — the Yates, near Iraan.

Smith's granddaughter, Mrs. Jane P. Lynch, accepted the award. Also at the dinner was Smith's grandson John Chilton, and two close friends, Dr. and Mrs. James A. Wilson and Judge and Mrs. Paul McCollum.

Charles D. "Charles" Vertrees was the fourth man inducted into the Hall of Fame for 1985. He was employed by Mariand Oil Co., San Angelo, as a geologist in 1925 when there were only two fields in West Texas — Big Lake and Mitchell Co. Even then, he had already experienced duty in the Mexican oil fields after earning a degree, in 1923, from the University of Texas. Most of his working career was spent the successor to Midland, Continental Oil.

During his career as a field geologist and manager, and later as a research geologist for Continental, he was responsible for the discovery well of the Slaughter Field in Garza County, among numerous others.

Vertrees has also served virtually every office in the West Texas Geological Society during a lifelong career of professional and civic service.

Vertrees received his award, accompanied by his wife and two sons, Ralph and Charles, Jr., and their families.

Prior to presenting the awards, the honorees and guests were treated to a slide show featuring pictures and a biography of each of the four inductees. The show, ALL OUR YESTERDAYS, was researched by Mrs. Betty Orbeck and produced by Homer T. Fort.

United Bank sells preferred shares to The Equitable Co.

United Bank has signed an agreement with The Equitable Co. of Texas, a wholly-owned subsidiary of MCorp, under which Equitable will purchase an additional 45,642 shares of preferred stock, said Wayne Merritt, chairman and chief executive officer of the bank.

The price is $15 per share, resulting in $684,630.00 additional capital for United.

The preferred shares are being issued as a result of United's secondary public offering in October 1984 of 141,666 shares of Common Stock in order to maintain its pro rata stock position, MCorp agreed to increase its investment. The terms of the new preferred stock are identical to the first issue, including nonvoting status and fully redeemable at United's option.

In making the announcement, Merritt indicated that "the transaction is consistent with United's philosophy of safety through capital strength. Also, we are very pleased that MCorp wants to continue its participation in United's growth."

State approves Petroplex sale

Jack Sommerville, Dallas financier, and vice chairman Sunbelt Bankcorp, announced today that he has received verbal approval from the Texas Savings & Loan Department on his bid to buy the total stock of Petroplex Savings of Midland to become the sole stockholder of that firm.

Midland Bancorp Inc., a Texas-charter savings and loan holding company is the sole owner of Petroplex Savings, which began operations in June 1982.

Sommerville said he expected approval soon from the Federal Home Loan Bank Board which also must approve the sale. He said change of ownership would be completed within approximately 15 days after the approval.

Petroplex President, Jim Everett, said he was surprised at the quick approval of the sale, saying that he expected federal approval would probably follow shortly.

Sommerville also indicated that he hoped to expand the scope of Petroplex Savings with possible facilities in the Dallas-Fort Worth area and other metropolitan areas.

General Dynamics may lose executives, Air Force business

WASHINGTON (AP) — General Dynamics, under fire recently for allegedly trying to cheat the Pentagon, now faces the possibility it may have to dismiss its top two executives and lose some of its lucrative market for jet fighters.

Those two possibilities surfaced Thursday during the latest round of federal investigations of the giant defense contractor, which does 96 percent of its business with the Pentagon, including submarines for the Navy, F-16 fighters for the Air Force, and M-1 tanks for the Army.

Pentagon spokesman Michael Burch told reporters that Joseph Sherick, the Defense Department inspector general, will recommend that Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger formally "debar" General Dynamics Chairman David S. Lewis and Chief Financial Officer Gorden E. MacDonald from doing business with the government.

According to government regulations, Burch said, that means the pair would either have to be fired or General Dynamics could be banned from doing business with the Defense Department. Sherick first suggested the possibility of barring the two executives Wednesday before a House subcommittee investigating a number of leading Pentagon contractors.

General Dynamics is under investigation by the Pentagon, Congress and other federal agencies for a wide range of activities, including billing the government for items such as cookbooks and dog kennel stays.

The company, which received $6 billion in Pentagon contracts in fiscal 1984, recently agreed to repay $244 million in bills improperly charged for travel, entertainment and personal expenses.

Burch said Sherick would make a "formal recommendation" soon to Weinberger that Lewis and MacDonald be debarred.

General Dynamics' spokesman Alvin A. Spivak said the company saw "no grounds whatever for debarment of either the company of its senior executives.

"We would hope that when all the facts are considered, Secretary Weinberger will disagree with that recommendation," Spivak said.

Burch admitted he has talked to investigators and portrayed himself as an "innocent victim" because he said the company submitted an expense claim "without my knowledge" for a dinner he attended.

"That's completely improper and illegal," Burch said.

Meanwhile, key Senate Republicans warned the Air Force that Congress will likely force the service to buy some Northrop F-20 fighters instead of purchasing as many of General Dynamics' F-16s as the Air Force wants.

Northrop built the plane for an overseas market, but has been unable to sell it to any foreign countries. But Northrop has also been trying to convince the Air Force to buy it, arguing that the F-20 is cheaper than the F-16 and just as capable.

Sen. Ted Stevens, D-Alaska, told top Air Force officials: "You're going to get some F-20s whether you like it or not. We like the idea of competing planes."

Sen. Warren Rudman, R-N.H., agreed, saying, "we ought not to reward them (General Dynamics) when you have viable alternatives."

Experts: Bid could succeed if CBS doesn't raise prices

Los Angeles Times —
Washington Post News Service

Ted Turner's hostile $3 billion bid for CBS Inc. is financially viable and could succeed unless the company takes steps to increase the price of its stock, two Wall Street experts said Thursday.

Investment bankers at two leading Wall Street firms, both with significant experience advising corporations on broadcasting mergers and neither involved in the CBS takeover fight, said separately Thursday that internal analyses at their firms showed that Turner's bid is financially credible. They agreed to discuss their confidential analyses with The Washington Post provided they were not identified.

The two investment bankers estimated the value of Turner's bid at about $150 a share. They said that while Turner's bid does involve a high degree of risk because it consists entirely of high-yield "junk bonds," the financial characteristics of the offer, including the projections of how interest payments will be met, are similar to other recently completed buyouts of media companies.

Both investment bankers said that their financial analyses were valid only in the event Turner receives government approval to proceed with his bid. Turner is seeking approval from the Securities and Exchange Commission, the Federal Communications Commission, and the Justice Department, a process that could take many months to complete.

On Tuesday, Morgan Stanley & Co., CBS' investment adviser, told Wall Street analysts that Turner's bid would leave the company so burdened with debt that it would not make a profit for at least 10 years and might be bankrupt by 1987. Morgan Stanley's presentation was part of an aggressive campaign by CBS to resist Turner's takeover attempt and was designed to influence Wall Street's analysis just as many analysts are trying to figure out what the complex bid is worth.

The Morgan Stanley presentation was closed to reporters, but analysts later described the CBS presentation. The investment bankers said Thursday they believe Morgan Stanley's presentation was not objective — since the firm has been retained by CBS to prevent a takeover — and included several questionable assumptions that made Turner's proposal appear riskier than an objective analysis indicates.

The investment bankers disputed, for example, Morgan Stanley's assumption that the bonds Turner has proposed to exchange for CBS stock are so risky they could be worth nothing because they might not trade.

DAR ES SALAMM, TANZANIA — Amoco Production Co. has confirmed that the Government of the United Republic of Tanzania hs signed a production sharing agreement for petroleum exploration covering 28,560 square kilometers in the Lake Rukwa area of western Tanzania with the Tanzanian Petroleum Development Corp. and its subsidiary, Amoco Tanzania Oil Co.

Mitchell Energy sells Canadian gas leases

WOODLANDS, TEXAS — Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. reported the sale of its natural gas properties in the Okotoks area of southern Alberta, Canada, for $4.8 million (Canadian).

Morguard Resources Limited, Calgary, Alberta, purchased the properties for its pension fund clients.

Included in the sale were approximately 7,000 net acres of leases and interests in eight wells.

The interests ranged from 12.4 percent to 94 percent.Mitchell said the properties were sold because they are remote from other company operations and because it has no plans for future activity in that area.

Mitchell Energy and Development Corp. is one of the largest U. S. independent oil and gas producers. It also is a major real estate developer in the Houston-Galveston area.

World oil production down 2.1 percent

HOUSTON — Worldwide production of crude oil during the first two months of 1985 was down 2.1 percent from the comparable period of 1984, according to Petroleum Information International.

The publication reports that oil and gas exploration and production activities throughout the world show that output dropped 1,124,000 barrels a day from a year earlier. Production for the two-month period averaged 53,196,000 barrels a day compared with 54,320,000 barrels daily for the year earlier period.

Gas companies form buying partnership

OMAHA, NEB. — Northern Natural Gas Co. and El Paso Natural Gas Co. of El Paso, Texas, will form a partnership to buy gas for sale, and arrange transportation to oil producers engaged in enhanced oil recovery and associated cogeneration operations in central California. The partnership, formed by subsidiaries of Northern and El Paso, tentatively has been named ElNorth Gas Marketing Co.

The current steam requirements in Kern County, California, for enhanced oil recovery are the natural gas equivalent of more than 700 million cubic feet per day. This market, including related cogeneration requirements is expected to grow to more than one billion cubic feet by 1990. Most of the current steam requirements are met by burning the heavy crude oil that is produced. It is expected that producers will be converting to natural gas as economical sources become available.

Country Squires Picnic raises funds for MARC

By LINDA ANDERSON
Lifestyle Writer

The charm of the Old South — complete with magnolia blossoms, Southern belles and friendly hospitality — graced Midland Center recently during the biennial Country Squires Picnic, sponsored by the Opportunity Center Auxiliary.

About 450 attended the black tie dinner-dance, said Julia Roper, chairman of the event. The auxiliary projected raising at least $100,000 through the picnic, a fund-raiser benefiting the Midland Association for Retarded Citizens; but, Mrs. Roper speculated they may have made more than that. Funds raised will be used for programs, remodeling and educational projects and funding.

Ray Unterbrink, executive director of MARC, said hundreds of Midland County residents are served by MARC through its programs. Special Olympics, a year-round project, had about 400 local participants. "We had about 300 at the track and field day two weeks ago.

"We have about 40 people in residential services," he said, "and we plan to open two more resources very shortly."

As guests arrived at Midland Center they were greeted by two small boys "fishing" off a cotton bale and a musician Garvin Line playing the banjo. Inside, riverboat Captain Dennis Grubb posed for photographs with guests.

The antebellum theme was carried out in the satin magnolia blossom centerpieces on each table and a six-layer cake in the shape of a riverboat. Southern belles in hoop-skirted dresses and picture hats mingled with the guests.

The menu, catered by Frenchy's, featured such Southern favorites as fried fish, gumbo with rice and beans, oyster cocktail and boudin sausage.

The evening began with an auction, conducted by auctioneer Tom Assitter of Tom Assitter and Associates, Hanway and Hanway Auctioneers. Items auctioned included fur coats, paintings, jewelry, a 1985 Chevrolet Blazer, an afternoon of golf with Tom Kite and 1000 gallons of diesel gasoline. A silent auction offered throughout the evening included such items as flowers for all occasions, dinner for six, French luggage and fur coats.

Dancing, featuring the music of First Crossing, followed the auction.

Honorary chairmen of this year's picnic were Leonard H. Busby, Joe R. Henderson, M.D. Rogers, Joe G. Roper, Thomas J. Wageman and Charles N. Wallace Jr.

Book written to help 'latchkey' kids, parents

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Thomas Long's 9-year-old son was home alone for a few minutes one day last year he received a call from stranger asking for his father.

Seth followed his parent's instructions and told the caller that his father was in the shower. But when the stranger called back a few minutes later, the youngster admitted he was alone.

Long, author of a survival book for so-called "latchkey" children, said the story illustrates some of the problems children experience when they're on their own.

And more and more children are being left home alone, not just for a few minutes but regularly for several hours while their parents work and these children need help getting by on their own, Long told an audience at the National Press Club Wednesday.

Long said an estimated 6 million children are routinely left alone at home nationwide. About one-third of all elementary school students are "latchkey" children, a name gained from the house keys many wear around their necks.

"Some people feel that the book is encouraging people to leave their kids at home," Long said in an interview. "We have a choice, we can offer additional help to parents and kids or we can leave them on their own."

Long and his wife, Lynette, interviewed about 1,000 latchkey children between the ages of 6 and 13 in the Baltimore-Washington area between 1979 and 1982.

"The most shocking thing we found was the number of kids with high levels of fear," Long said. "But many didn't talk to their parents about it."

Nebraskan named Mother of the Year

NEW YORK (AP) — A Nebraska housewife named National Mother of the Year said she owes the honor to her "terrific kids" — all 10 of whom flew to New York to surprise her at the ceremony.

"I think it's my children who deserve it," said Louise Monaco Cimino of Omaha, surrounded at a news conference Monday by her six sons and four daughters, their spouses and two of her 14 grandchildren.

Mrs. Cimino, 61, was selected from among 47 finalists representing 46 states and Puerto Rico. The contest is the work of American Mothers Inc., which is celebrating its 50th anniversary this year. The Mother of the Year award is intended to spur interest in Mother's Day, May 12.

The group selects its award winners on the basis of their success as mothers, their religious convictions and community involvement.

Mrs. Cimino, a Roman Catholic who attends Mass daily and is involved in a variety of community activities, said she abandoned a career as a teacher to become a mother.

"I was always going back to it, but I never had time," she said. "I think that girls who aren't in careers are made to feel that they aren't doing important things and raising a family is the most important thing they can do."

She said she won the award "because I have such terrific kids. I feel they're all accomplished professionals, and just super human beings."

But she also gave a share of the credit to her husband, Bob, who owns a small conglomerate in Omaha which includes trucking and cement companies.

'Ugly' contest winners named

From Staff Reports

Garfield's was awarded first place in Midland by the National Multiple Schlerosis Permian Basin Chapter for the 1985 UGLY Bartender contest.

At 25 cents a vote, area residents participted in electing their favorite UGLY bartender, the acronym for "the most Understanding, Generous, Loveable, You."

Combined efforts won the local MS chapter the title, "Best Texas campaign," earning a total of more than $70,000. "This year's campaign has exceeded all others by $30,000 which goes a long way toward increasing our ability to aid local multiple sclerosis patients as well as fund more research for a cure or treatment," said Jeff Wikstrom, campaign chairman.

Ronnie Manes, the bartender at Garfield's, was awarded spending money for a trip for two, and bar manager John Hays was awarded $100 and a trophy. Other winners were Renee Phillips, bartender, and manager Bonnie Johnson, Wrangler; Celinda Beene, bartender, and manager Mike McMahan, Wall Street Bar & Grill; Raymond Richardson, bartender, and manager Lucy Ward, Sidewinders; and Charlie, bartender, and manager Ann Hodge, Redmen's.

Opportunities to vote were abundant with local establishments sponsoring events such as pie-throwing contests, dunk-tank, picnics and duck races to collect votes for their bartender.

The campaign is sponsored annually by area businesses in support of the services provided by the Permian Basin Multiple Sclerosis Society. More than 77 bars and restuarants participated in this year's campaign.

DEAR ABBY

Woman can't see men's attraction to pornography

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: This is regarding your answer to "Deceived," the young wife who was upset when she found some girlie magazines her husband had hidden from her. She said that she was a good-looking woman and couldn't understand why her husband would want to look at pornographic filth like that.

I was surprised at your answer. You said, "Please get over the notion that only men with unattractive wives read girlie magazines. What you look like has nothing to do with your husband's desire to look at what you call 'filth.'"

Then you defended the husband's right to read whatever he wanted to, and told the wife she had a lot to learn about why men enjoy looking at stuff like that.

Abby, I don't understand why a happily married man would want to look at pictures of naked women, so I asked my husband, and he said it was normal and natural for men to enjoy pictures of beautiful naked women regardless of what they have at home.

Abby, I consider myself normal, and I have absolutely no desire to look at pictures of naked men, no matter how well-built they are. Why? — PUZZLED IN CHICAGO

DEAR PUZZLED: Because most women do not respond to the visual the same way men do. (Women respond more to the spoken or written word.) But let's get something straight: All pictures of partially or fully unclothed women are not pornographic — some are beautiful though erotic, and are considered museum-quality art.

Not having seen the "girlie" magazine in question, I'm unable to make an informed judgment, but let me go on record to say that pictures that portray women as objects to be used, abused, humiliated or degraded in any way are totally unacceptable to me.

DEAR ABBY: I am an Englishman teaching psychiatry in the Alabama University School of Medicine, and I was prompted to write by the letter from "Bitter and Brokenhearted" (the widow of the smoker who was forced by relatives to go outside in sub-zero weather to smoke and subsequently caught pneumonia and died). I noticed that you published that letter without comment, judging, no doubt, that the tragic story was comment enough.

Apparently, in the opinion of the relatives with whom the smoker and his wife were staying, smoking is a moral issue and has the status of something close to a crime.

Interestingly, King James I, after whom a version of the English Bible was named, wrote a famous pamphlet titled, "Counter Blast to Tobacco." He would have liked to have made the use of tobacco both sinful and criminal, but in spite of his throne and his title of Defender of the Faith, even King James could not make smoking either a crime or a sin.

Many thanks for your constructive, entertaining and often puzzling column. — H.O., BIRMINGHAM, ALA.

Battle against cockroaches never-ending

New York Times News Service

NEW YORK — If New Yorkers happen to awake tonight to some high-pitched snickering out in the kitchen, they needn't bother getting up, it's probably just the cockroaches reading the first edition of the morning paper.

With flags unfurled, a tactical public-relations squadron spearheaded by "a top, eminent entomologist" surrounded by publicity agents swept into New York, carrying the good word to residents of the city, and network television viewers everywhere, that their worries were finally over, cockroach-wise. Creators of the "ultimate victory" in the roach war do this from time to time.

The roaches have earned the right to chuckle. Now celebrating their 350 millionth year on earth, despite man's best efforts to kill them off or at least make them an endangered species, they occupy a preeminent position as unofficial mascot of the City of New York.

"I have to admit they are rather amazing," said Dr. Austin Frishman, the eminent entomologist heading the mission and a professor who taught the subject at the State University Agricultural and Technical College in Farmingdale, N.Y., for 17 years.

FRISHMAN, WHO IS endorsing a new product for killing cockroaches, points out that the little critters can taste poison without ingesting it and, by sending warning signals directly to their six legs, bypassing the brain, they're off and running in 0.054 seconds.

He is impressed with their ability not only to develop rapidly immunity to new wonder pesticides, but also to alter their behavior to elude humans.

Frishman visited a few office buildings before hitting the news conference trail, and found that the roaches of today were moving into computers, smoke alarms, microwave ovens and Mr. Coffee machines — places that weren't sprayed.

"Humans suffer from the Baseboard Syndrome," he explained. "We spray the baseboards and the roaches move to the clocks, lamps and ceilings."

He admires their ability to go weeks without food or water, to collapse their wings and hide in tiny spaces.

COCKROACHES ARE accustomed to being bugged by humans, from the time of sharing caves to today's sharing of condominiums. The tempestuous relationship between the German cockroach and the American people continues.

The people in the white lab coats are bombarding them with radiation, putting them on treadmills (with the cockroaches' sometimes wearing little leg weights, even), giving them hormones to induce attacks in their little hearts, hacking off their legs and heads to see what that might do and dangling them before predatory lizards.

Scientists have tried tampering with their reproductive and respiratory systems — and even with their sex lives. We could nuke them, but it turns out they're rather impervious to radiation.

Although the Geneva Convention did not address the issue, some of the scientists' methods seem a bit out of bounds.

A chemical called hydroprene causes homosexuality among adult male roaches. Yale University has produced synthetic cockroach aphrodisiac — periplanone-B — which causes male roaches to go into a sexual frenzy, standing on their hind legs and beating their wings wildly for several minutes until their antennae break and their wings are tattered.

That may be fun to watch, but it only works on American cockroaches, while the German cockroaches — the most prevalent variety in New York — are cleaning out the cupboards.

THE NEW PRODUCT, Combat, invented by American Cyanamid in Princeton, N.J., is a small feeding station, shaped like a pinwheel, that looks like fun. The cockroaches nibble on a snack made of oatmeal, corn syrup and a dash of amidinohydrazone. Field tests show that roaches, like humans, just don't bother reading product labels.

"New Yorkers must not give up!" Frishman said.

He acknowledges that New York — where the smell of roach spray at this time of year, the opening of roach season, hangs as heavily in the air as the honeysuckle in Savannah — may well be the roach capital of America.

New Yorkers tend to accept a certain number of roaches in their lives, Frishman said, but need not.

He has seen New Yorkers hit exterminators over the head for trying to kill cockroaches that they considered pets. Some have given their roaches names and others have said they rather enjoyed meeting their little friends in the kitchen for late night snacks.

Frishman isn't laughing. "I have devoted my life to the household pest," he explained.

He grows silent for a moment, shaking his head, then mutters, "We'll never, never get rid of them all, of course."

But he brightened a moment later, as he told of watching roaches being killed off by Combat. "With every other product they flip over on their backs," he said enthusiastically, a smile creeping over his face and his hands gesturing. "But with this one they go straight down on their noses, like this. There is a thrill, a joy..." — Easy, professor. Easy.

Cellular phones' popularity rises

Associated Press

As of 1985, it is estimated about 100,000 cellular phones are in use in the United States. Industry reports indicate the number of cellular units in service by 1990 will reach at least 1 million. And by the end of the century, this is expected to rise to between 30 and 40 million units, meaning that 20 to 25 percent of the cars in the United States will have cellular telephones, says AT&T.

AT WIT'S END

Impossible dream

By ERMA BOMBECK

I've always had a dream.

It was to see several letter carriers fighting over who gets to deliver my mail.

At the moment, I have four different carriers who drop off mail at our house. One of them dutifully drops his mail off in the mailbox at the end of the driveway, or if there's a big package, he brings it to the door.

The other three zip up to the front door, ask me what kind of a day I'm having, elevate the letter like a chalice and place it in my hands.

There is a reason for the latter. They're getting $24 to deliver a three-ounce letter.

No, I want to see some good old-fashioned competition like the airlines and the telephone company when deregulation hit 'em.

I want to see free drinks if they don't get my letter to me on time. I want to see a stamp war where I can fly my package from Phoenix to L.A. for less than $39. And why not an Advantage program for those of us who are frequent mailers? If we accumulate over 50,000 miles, we can upgrade a piece of junk mail to first class without paying extra.

The problem is the post office takes my mail for granted. They've never said to me, "I want to be your letter company." Or, "Don't trust your Christmas newsletter to anyone but us. We care!"

I don't expect them to give mouth-to-mouth resuscitation in the dead letter office, but when was the last time you bought stamps and had them say to you, "Thanks for buying from the U.S. Post Office"?

There could be an econo-class mail where you have to have it stamped a month ahead of time and have it lay over in Kansas City for a week or more before it's delivered or you would pay the full tab.

There could be a business-class mail where there would be little extras like for $20 more you could fly with your letter to New York with a snack and free drink.

Familiarity breeds apathy. I've seen it happen in other industries. My postman no longer tingles with excitement when he hands me a letter from Ed McMahon saying, "YOU'VE WON!" Sometimes I get the feeling he has never forgiven me for getting into a "catalogue" computer and averaging 34 pounds weekly.

If you had the chance of sending a 22-cent letter for half the price to all of your friends all over the world, and it gets there within hours after it leaves your desk, and the carrier loves your hostile dog and doesn't get upset if it takes you five minutes to answer the door, and he tells you to keep those post cards and letters coming as he loves the work, wouldn't you be willing to consider a change?

Honey, what do YOU think?

National Pet Week scheduled

From Staff Reports

National Pet Week, sponsored locally by the Permian Basin Veterinary Medical Association, will be May 5-11. Focus will be the love, companionship and affection pets bring to their owners.

"Veterinarians everywhere are conducting activities this week to acknowledge the fact that pets mean so much to so many people," said Dr. Bruce Gardner, association's president. "For one week each year, the veterinary profession salutes those millions of Americans who care about animals and who share their concern about the well-being of animals with their fellow citizens."

Animals are companions to the elderly, teach children responsibility and can be incentives for their owners to exercise because pets need exercise too. Recent research confirms physically and metally impared children and adults benefit from the therapeutic effect of contact with animals.

For more information on National Pet Week contact any local veterinarian.

Mix, match and replenish your warm weather wardrobe. Only two styles shown. Choose from solid colors and two-color combinations.

Singer's mother knew all along

ENTERTAINMENT

By MARY CAMPBELL
Associated Press Writer

When Teena Marie was 2 years old, her mother knew that she was going to be a singer.

Her mother was right. In a story which has been told to Teena Marie, her mother took her to church one Sunday, when she was 2, to Our Lady of Peace in San Fernando Valley, California. She says, "The priest was chanting in Latin. It was like this music hit me. I thought it was my turn. I started singing 'Day O,' you know, 'The Banana Boat Song.'

"Mother put me under her coat and ran out of church. She said she knew at that point that was what I was going to be doing in life. I don't remember it, of course."

Seven years after three brothers and two sisters were born, Mary Christine Brockert was born. From birth, everybody called her Teena Marie. Her Social Security card, issued when she started to sing professionally at age 8, is in the name Teena Marie. She has a younger brother who acts and writes music but otherwise it isn't a show business family.

"My parents knew I always wanted to sing. I sang 'Ava Maria' at Jerry Lewis' son's wedding when I was 9. There were 40 of us in the church choir. I was the only one who sang solo. I think Jerry Lewis heard me. They were in the same congregation. I sang for a lot of weddings and in a lot of choirs, all over the city. At 15, I started singing in clubs."

Today, just turned 27, that early bloomer has her sixth record album out and is working on a seventh. The album, "Starchild," her second for Epic Records, was No. 4 on the best-selling rhythm 'n' blues charts and No. 25 on the best-selling pop charts at the end of March and beginning of April.

The first single from it, "Lovergirl," was No. 5 on the best-selling pop charts at the end of March and beginning of April. The second single from it, "Jammin'," was No. 73 and climbing on the best-selling rhythm 'n' blues charts on April 13, its second week out. "Lovergirl" climbed the r and b charts before crossing over to pop.

As unusual as it is to start singing professionally at 8, Teena Marie's career, with rhythm 'n' blues attention paid before pop, is even more unusual.

Her first four albums were on Motown Records. She has said, "I wanted to be the first white female artist on Motown."

She got interested in rhythm 'n' blues, Teena Marie says, "because my sister Susan was really into the Motown Sound. She'd bring home records by the Four Tops. I used to write the Supremes' lyrics down. I'd become them. I sang at my sisters' parties and stuff.

"I could sound different ways. Diana Ross' voice is light and airy and pretty. As I grew up, I was listening to Aretha Franklin and Chaka Khan. I would practice singing like them. Donny Hathaway was my favorite male vocalist of all time. I can sing like him now — remembering it's a woman singing. I practiced singing like Marvin Gaye and Stevie Wonder and Robert Plant.

"There was a point I put all the records down and just developed Teena Marie. It was probably when I was around 13."

She got to Motown because a friend knew a producer there, who had her audition for Berry Gordy, who signed her. He signed her for a TV sitcom about an orphanage. Teena Marie says, "Me and my band were going to be orphans. Then they shelved the project and signed me to the record label.

"It didn't matter to me which facet of the entertainment business I was in. My first love is singing and writing. If I had not made it as a singer I would probably have become a journalist. I was an English major my one year at Los Angeles City College.

"I was writing songs at 14, words and music both. I play guitar, bass, piano and percussion. For 'Lovergirl' I wrote the bass line first. I wrote 'Out on a Limb' on guitar. I usually write jazz and ballads on the piano. Latin songs like 'Portuguese Love' on the 'It Must Be Magic' album was written on the Spanish guitar. Different instruments give different feelings.

"The best song I've written so far is 'Casanova Brown' on 'Robbery,' the first Epic album. I like 'Out on a Limb' on this album and 'Yes, Indeed' on 'It Must be Magic.'

"I wrote a song, a rock ballad, for Janis Joplin I'm going to put on my next album, 'I Just Made Love to 25,000 People But I'm Going Home Alone.' Two weeks before she died, she said she was going to write a song with that title. When I read that, it hit my heartstrings. To me she was the biggest female rock star ever."

Teena Marie left Motown after four albums, a year before her contract was up, and filed a lawsuit, settled out of court last fall. She says, "They had to pay me. I had five top five rhythm 'n' blues records for them and 'It Must Be Magic' sold over 800,000 copies.

"They're passing a Teena Marie bill in California that you have to pay an artist $6,000 a year. I had an 'in house' contract they give to everybody. I was 19 when I signed it. Before people sign something they should get a lawyer.

"Before I signed, I was working all over the city. After I signed, I wasn't able to do that any more. I went on some tours and went in the hole financially. It was real rough. Sometimes I have to fight back the bitterness. Because of my upbringing, I try to look at the good things.

George Stevens honored through son's film tribute

By BOB THOMAS

LOS ANGELES (AP) — From "Life with Father" to "Mommie Dearest," children have written about their celebrated parents. George Stevens Jr. has added a new wrinkle: a film tribute to his movie-making father.

"George Stevens: A Filmmaker's Journey" had its world premiere at the Academy Theater this month, with many of the late director's stars in attendance, including Fred Astaire ("Damsel in Distress," "Swingtime"); Cary Grant ("Gunga Din," "Penny Serenade"), Warren Beatty ("The Only Game in Town").

The three stars are featured in the film, offering comments about Stevens along with such figures as Katharine Hepburn ("Alice Adams," "Woman of the Year") and Jean Arthur ("Talk of the Town," "The More the Merrier"). Grant and Miss Arthur declined to be photographed, providing voice only.

"A Filmmaker's Journey" provides a rich panorama of a full and varied life, from Stevens' beginnings in slapstick shorts to his sophisticated comedies to his stark wartime documentaries to the serious films of his late years: "A Place in the Sun," "Shane," "Giant," "The Diary of Anne Frank," "The Greatest Story Ever Told."

"My father didn't live in the grand Hollywood style," Stevens recalled in an interview, "but he saved everything. He put it all in a room at Bekins Storage out in the San Fernando Valley. I remember driving along Ventura Boulevard with him one day. He was never one to talk about dying, but he said as we passed Bekins that if anything happened to him, everything in there would go to me. He added, 'Don't let it become a burden, the way it has to me.'

"He died in 1975, and his stuff is still there. I have given parts of it to the Academy, but I'm still paying rent on the rest."

His father's memorabilia provided a wealth of material for "A Filmmakers Journey," most importantly a record of the war in Europe — in color.

Some shows make it while others fizzle out

By FRED ROTHENBERG

NEW YORK (AP) — A black obstetrician, an amateur sleuth, an angel with a tan and two snazzy cops on a fast soundtrack constituted the four new shows that became full-season television hits in 1984-85.

With the prime-time season ended Sunday, Bill Cosby, who had failed three times before on network TV, stands as king of the hill. His "Cosby Show" on NBC is the highest-rated new series since ABC's "Mork & Mindy" in 1978.

The other successes were Angela Lansbury's "Murder, She Wrote" on CBS, Michael Landon's "Highway to Heaven" on NBC, and NBC's "Miami Vice," starring Don Johnson and Philip Michael Thomas as two stylish undercover cops swinging to the tempo of Miami's hot action, music and temperature.

The networks offered 22 new entries last fall.

CBS' "Crazy Like A Fox" was introduced at midseason and became the only replacement show to catch on with viewers.

The consensus pre-season picks by the major ad agencies had made these shows good bets: "Murder, She Wrote," ABC's "Paper Dolls" and "Finder of Lost Loves," NBC's "V," and, perhaps, "Hunter." The sages said "Cosby" stood a pretty good chance.

"Paper Dolls" turned into papier-mache fast. Producer Aaron Spelling, with seven series on ABC at the beginning of the season, lost out with "Finder of Lost Loves" and "Glitter." And do you remember ABC's "Hawaiian Heat," ABC's "People Do the Craziest Things" or CBS' "Dreams"?

Or the pairing of Loni Anderson and Lynda Carter in the forgettable "Partners in Crime?" They were too busy changing wardrobes to worry about plot. Another starring woman, Lindsay Wagner, playing a police psychiatrist in "Jessie," quickly returned to the couch.

Composer-producer association began hard way

By JERRY BUCK

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One of television's most prolific associations began at the brink of a fist fight over a spot on the beach at Balboa Island.

That misunderstanding between writer-producer Stephen J. Cannell and composer Mike Post led to a friendship that has turned out some of the most significant musical themes on television.

Post and his collaborator Pete Carpenter do the themes for all of Cannell's shows, from "The Rockford Files" to "Hardcastle & McCormick" to "The A-Team." Former Cannell associates have asked them to write the music for "Hill Street Blues" and "Magnum, P.I."

"It started when my brother and his wife and my wife and I rented a beach house on Balboa," said Post. "Early in the morning we walked down to the beach to stake out our territory with towels. My brother and I jumped over the seawall and the entire beach was covered with towels.

"Bud and I started re-arranging the towels and this guy yells at us. It was instant dislike. He had this iron-jaw beard, sprayed hair and was smoking a thin cigar. Now my brother's built like a moose and and we forced the guy to back down."

Later in the day, Post sought him out and apologized. Thus began the friendship between Post and Cannell.

Post had been working largely as a record producer and arranger (the Grammy-winning "Classical Gas" and Kenny Rogers and the First Edition) and musical director ("The Andy Williams Show"). It was Cannell who suggested he collaborate with Carpenter on the theme for Cannell's first series, "Toma."

"Pete's 70 years old," said Post. "It's great to have a partner like Pete because for the longest time his friends felt sorry for him. They'd say he's stuck with this young rock 'n' roller who's just a hummer. And my friends were concerned that I was carrying this old guy.

"But we're so close musically that most people can't tell us apart. We've been together 14 years and never had an argument."

Post is now in collaborating with Cannell on the music for a two-hour pilot called "Stingray."

"This is a whole new ballgame for Steve and myself," he said. "It's more high tech and less standard scoring. It's real slow because I'm playing almost everything myself and he's cutting the scenes to the music. I don't usually go to work until the picture's finished."

Post said there are "music personalities" which suit various producers. "I perceive Cannell as a super high-quality action-adventure producer with some very ingenious good humor," he said. "So, musically you rarely get super dark. Even when there's a life-threatening situation there's something about his writing that makes it a little positive."

He met Steven Bochco ("Hill Street Blues") when he did the music for "Richie Brockleman, Private Eye." His association with Don Bellisario ("Magnum, P.I.") began with "Baa Baa Black Sheep."

Post said, "If we have any claim to fame, it's that Pete and I came along when all the people writing for film and TV had backgrounds heavily in jazz or classical music. What we did was take the Mancini method of spotting — deciding where the music will go — and mixing it with orchestrated rock 'n' roll, with a heavy rhythm section.

TV's Renaissance man also writes spy novels

By JERRY BUCK

William F. Buckley Jr.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — William F. Buckley Jr. sat on a couch in his hotel suite and tinkered with the portable computer on the coffee table.

He was having trouble getting the printer to print the speech he was writing. The night before, he had written his newspaper column and sent it electronically to his syndicate by telephone.

Buckley, a conservative writer, is the host of PBS' "Firing Line," the founder and editor of the National Review, and author — he has just written another spy novel, "See You Later Alligator." A Yale graduate, he served briefly in the CIA. This summer he will sail from Honolulu to Rabaul on the southwestern Pacific island of New Britain.

Buckley is the Renaissance Man of the Right.

After much button pushing, he got the computer's printer to work. It spewed out a copy of his speech.

"Firing Line," which celebrated its 19th year on April 6, is the sixth oldest television program in the country. It began as a syndicated show but is now produced by the Southern Education Communications Association of Columbia, S.C., for public television.

"Doing 'Firing Line' wasn't my idea," said Buckley, holding a pen in his hand. He seldom talks without either a pen or pencil in his hand.

"I thought the show might last 13 weeks. Then it kept getting renewed. My goal with the show was to give a human being an entire hour in which to ventilate his position. Then people will know a hundred times more about him than they would learn on '60 Minutes.'"

Buckley's trademark is his distinctive, and often mimicked, Eastern accent and the precise way he selects words that would stump a lexicographer.

"See You Later Alligator," from Doubleday, is Buckley's sixth novel about intrepid superspy Blackford Oakes. There have also been a number of collections of his columns and essays, and he has rhapsodized about his passion for sailing in two books and is at work on a third.

"I'd never written fiction before when I was invited to lunch by the editor of Doubleday," he said. "I should have smelled ambush: he was too glib. He asked me what fiction I'd read recently. I said 'Day of the Jackal.'

"The next day I got a contract for a novel. Watergate had just happened. So I said I'd write 100 pages. They could then abort or they could accept it and we would go all the way. To me, giving a publisher approval of the manuscript gives them all the cards."

He said when he created his hero he deliberately went against the trend. "At that time a hero had to be unattractive, an alcoholic, cuckolded, and he worried about who was right, them or us," he said.

"So I made him as handsome as Billy Budd, but with a sense of humor. I made him a big, perfect human being who is unequivocably on the side of the West."

Buckley denies that he's an intellectual James Bond. He is also not his alter ego. "I put him in Yale, which was laziness so I wouldn't have to learn the topography of a new college," he said. "But he is different. He's a scientist, a Protestant, a career CIA agent. I was in the CIA for only nine months. I was always headed in the direction of being a writer.

"In the CIA I was a deep cover agent. And as a deep cover agent you learn less about the CIA than anybody else. I only knew a few people. But I took a lot of training, so I was able to cite a lot of that training."

Buckley said he writes the books during an annual six-week stay in Switzerland, where he keeps two computers. Until he sits down to write he has no idea how the next book is going to turn out.

If his spy novels are vicarious adventures, his sailing is not.

Palestinians take string of villages

By JUAN-CARLOS GUMUCIO
Associated Press Writer

SIDON, Lebanon — Palestinian guerrillas and Moslem militias today seized a string of villages abandoned by retreating Christian forces, tightening their encirclement of south Lebanon's largest Christian zone after a month of fighting.

Christian radio stations reported tens of thousands of Christians fleeing towards Jezzine, their main stronghold 15 miles east of Sidon.

No casualties were immediately reported.

The commander of the Israeli-backed South Lebanon Army militia, former Lebanese Army Brig. Antoine Lahd, threatened to shell Sidon with long-range artillery from positions near Jezzine unless the Moslems halt their offensive.

Christian forces bombarded Sidon for a month until declaring a unilateral cease-fire Tuesday. At least 113 people were killed and more than 450 wounded in that fighting.

The South Lebanon Army militia, which is mainly Christian, has some 200 fighters in Jezzine. The militia, with an overall strength estimated at less than 1,000, is based in Marjayoun, south of Jezzine.

Security officials in Sidon reported the city, Lebanon's third largest, was blacked out after retreating Christians shot up power cables, cutting off electricity to much of the area.

Officials at Sidon's Hammoud Hospital, where most casualties are treated, said their power supplies had been severed.

Latest reports indicated the Palestinians and their Moslem allies had reached Majdalyoun, three miles east of Sidon, south Lebanon's provincial capital, where Christian militiamen of the Lebanese Forces were digging in.

Palestinian guerrillas drove Christian fighters out of their last stronghold in Mieh Mieh village before dawn after a four-hour battle and then went on a looting rampage.

Lebanese women, one holding a Soviet-made rifle, dance in the streets of Ghaze, in Lebanon's Bekaa Valley, to celebrate the Israeli army's withdrawal from the village.

The Christians fell back when they apparently ran out of ammunition. A Palestinian guerrilla told reporters, "We found machine guns and other weapons just abandoned inside the houses."

Despite efforts by the Lebanese army to halt the looting, columns of pickup trucks and cars loaded with furniture, electrical appliances, rugs and chandeliers were driven down the hill from Mieh Mieh throughout the morning.

"They're doing what the Christians did to them," a Lebanese army officer, who declined to be identified, said as he watched the ransacking. "It's their turn now."

The Moslem advance out of Sidon, which until Wednesday was besieged by Christian Lebanese Forces fighters with artillery, was halted when the militias ran into sniper fire on the outskirts of Majdalyoun, according to Lebanese army sources who spoke on condition they not be identified.

Palestinian guerrillas and Moslem militias on Thursday stormed two Christian suburbs southeast of Sidon, driving out Christian gunmen in a series of clashes. The attackers looted and burned houses.

Moslem irregulars moved in unopposed at daybreak to occupy the villages of Abra, Hlaliyeh, Bramiyeh, Qinnaya and Qayaa, which were abandoned by the retreating Christians.

Jezzine, with a population of 20,000, appeared increasingly isolated after Israeli troops left the town Wednesday, when they pulled out of east Lebanon's Bekaa valley in the second stage of their withdrawal from territory they have occupied since June 1982.

Seven arrested in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Seven suspected terrorists were arrested after police and troops discovered 1½ tons of explosives hidden on a farm 35 miles west of Belfast, police said today.

A press officer at Belfast police headquarters, who declined to be identified in accordance with British practice, said the cache was one of the biggest hauls ever made in Northern Ireland. The farm is located near Dungannon in County Tyronne.

He said the explosives were discovered Thursday night during a security sweep of County Tyrone and neighboring County Londonderry by police and troops. He said the sweep has been going on for the last two weeks and was directed against Irish Republican Army guerrillas in the British-ruled province.

The police force also issued a statement Thursday warning security forces and civilians to be on guard against a possible increase in terrorist activity ahead of local council elections to be held next month.

In previous years, terrorists have often stepped up gun and bomb attacks in the run-up to elections in the province, where at least 2,433 people died since sectarian and political violence flared 16 years ago.

The mainly Roman Catholic IRA is fighting to drive the British from Northern Ireland. It wants to unite the predominantly Protestant province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic under socialist rule after overturning the political establishment in Dublin.

The threat of terrorist attacks has led to cancellation of plans to hold the women's world squash championships in Northern Ireland in August and September.

An organiser, Pru Hamilton, said a threat by the Irish National Liberation Army to attack sportsmen and women from the British mainland and abroad if they came to Northern Ireland had frightened off so many competitors that it was futile to let the championships continue.

The INLA is a Marxist offshoot of the IRA.

The competition is to be switched to a new venue across the border in the Irish Republic but details have not been finalised.

It is the latest in a series of sports cancellations following an INLA bombing.

New York policemen asked not to join parade

DUBLIN, Ireland (AP) — Foreign Minister Peter Barry has called on a band made up of New York City policemen not to march in a pro-IRA parade this summer.

Barry spoke Thursday in the Dail, the Irish parliament, about reports that the Emerald Society Pipe and Drum Band will march in an August parade in Bundoran in northwestern Ireland's County Donegal.

The parade commemorates the deaths of IRA hunger strikers who died in Belfast's Maze Prison in 1981.

"I hope the members of this band will remember they are supporting an organization which has killed 11 members of the Irish Republic's security forces," Barry said.

"I would ask them now to indicate immediately to the organizers that they will not take part in the parade."

Barry said he welcomed American support for peaceful efforts to end conflict between Protestants and Roman Catholics in Northern Ireland.

But he added, "We do not welcome backing for groups who wish to achieve these ends by violent means."

The mostly Catholic IRA is waging a violent campaign to end British rule in Northern Ireland and unite the mainly Protestant province with the overwhelmingly Catholic Irish Republic.

WORLD IN BRIEF

Police changes sought

MEXICO CITY (AP) — President Miguel de la Madrid has asked for changes in the country's police forces, aimed at trimming bureaucracy and controlling corruption.

The proposed changes — which must be approved by Congress — include doing away with some police agencies associated with government departments, such as the Treasury Police and the Forestry Police, and making others more independent.

Agreement on the changes was reached Wednesday at a meeting between de la Madrid, top police officials and several Cabinet secretaries, but full details were not immediately made public.

A revision of police salaries was also proposed. Low wages have been blamed for widespread police corruption, a problem that has received much attention lately as alleged links between police officers and drug traffickers in Guadalajara have come to light.

Three of that city's policemen are charged with kidnapping and murdering U.S. drug agent Enrique Camarena Salazar and a Mexican pilot, Alfredo Zavala Avelar. Camarena and Zavala were kidnapped separately on Feb. 7 and their bodies were found March 5.

Nigerian deaths feared

LONDON (AP) — Hundreds of people were feared dead in Nigeria today after a shootout between police and members of an outlawed Moslem sect, the News Agency of Nigeria reported.

The semi-official agency, monitored in London, said troops were rushed to Gombe, in Bauchi state, after the clashes began when police officers tried to arrest Yusufu Adamu, a leader of the Maitatsine sect.

"No official death toll was immediately available, but hundreds of the people including civilians, the police and members of the sect...(are) feared dead in the shootouts while most inhabitants of the town are deserting their homes," the agency reported.

The agency said troops ringed the town — 150 miles from the Nigerian border with Cameroon — and would allow no one in. Trucks packed with families and their belongings were seen leaving, the agency reported..

The agency did not say whether Adamu had escaped in the shootouts. It said both police officers and Maitatsine followers had fired shots.

Withdrawal offer denied

LIMA, Peru (AP) — The Marxist contender for the presidency of Peru said Thursday he would quit the campaign for a runoff election, but the social democratic frontrunner, Alan Garcia Perez, refused the offer.

According to unofficial counts, Garcia won nearly half the votes in the presidential election on April 14. Peru's constitution requires a runoff between the top two vote-getters if no candidate wins a majority, and the final vote count has not been completed.

At a short news conference, Garcia said he appreciated the offer by Alfonso Barrantes Lingan, the Marxist mayor of Lima who was runner-up with about 22 percent of the votes in the nine-man race.

Backing acknowledged

CAPE TOWN, South Africa (AP) — After a decade of denials, South Africa acknowledged Thursday that it had backed anti-Marxist rebels in neighboring Mozambique but said it was no longer doing so.

Foreign Minister R.F. Botha, telling Parliament how South Africa was improving its relations with Mozambique, said:"There was a time when we were training Renamo and we will do it again in imilar circumstances."

JAL flights canceled

TOKYO (AP) — A Japan Air Lines' strike today forced cancellation of 77 domestic and 6 international flights affecting 15,000 people, a JAL official said.

Seventy crew members of one of JAL's four unions are striking to protest the company's wage hike proposal, said the official, who spoke only on condition he not be identified.

Today was the last day of the three-day protest strike, he added.

International flights cancelled include those to Honolulu, Hawaii; Los Angeles, Seattle, Wash.; and Chicago, a flight from Osaka to Pusan, South Korea, and the Tokyo-to-Osaka leg for overseas flights coming into Tokyo's Narita Airport, the official confirmed.

Crash victims rescued

CHOBHAM, England (AP) — A truck driver pulled two people from the blazing wreckage of a crashed airplane but an explosion and fire forced him to abandon his effort to save two other passengers, police said.

The single-engine Piper four-seater crashed and burst into flames Thursday night in a wood in Surrey, southwest of London, police said.

The plane was returning from a business trip to Jersey and was preparing to land at Fairoaks Airport in Chobham when it crashed, police said.

Truck driver Alan Bayliss, 38, said he saw the plane circle twice. "The third time it came round the engine kept cutting out and then it didn't restart. The plane hit a tree and nose-dived down," Bayliss said.

He pulled pilot Raymond Fogden, 40, and builder Derek Phillips, 40, from the plane and then tried to reach a screaming woman and her husband.

Bayliss said he pushed out the front window and had almost reached the woman when an explosion drove him back and flames engulfed the aircraft.

Americans, others held

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Rural civil guards arrested two Americans and 12 other foreigners suspected of belonging to a Nicaraguan rebel group at an encampment near the Nicaraguan border, Costa Rican authorities said.

Judicial Prosecutor Fernando Cruz told reporters Thursday night that in addition to the two Americans, civil guards Wednesday also arrested two British citizens, a Frenchman and nine Nicaraguans near the village of Las Delicias de Pocosol in northern Costa Rica less than 12 miles from the Nicaraguan border.

Interior Minister Enrique Obregon Valverde said the identities of the detained men have not been determined nor the organization to which they are suspected of being attached.

The encampment was located on a ranch managed by an American named John Hall, who in the past has been linked to rebels led by Eden Pastora, a hero of the 1979 Sandinista revolution who later turned against his former comrades because of their growing ties to Cuba and the Soviet Union.

Red Brigade arrested

ROME (AP) — Police say they have arrested a Red Brigades terrorist convicted in absentia of kidnapping American Brig. Gen. James L. Dozier in December 1981.

The general was freed Jan. 28, 1982, by police who raided a terrorist hideout in the northern city of Padua near Venice. Dozier had been serving with NATO forces in Italy.

Vittorio Antonini, 29, was one of 17 Red Brigades urban guerrillas convicted of kidnapping Dozier at the general's apartment in Verona on Dec. 17, 1981. He was sentenced to 27 years in prison.

Indian troops move in

AHMEDABAD, India (AP) — More than 1,000 additional soldiers moved into the western Indian city of Ahmedabad today, a day after at least 10 people were reported slain in communal violence in the city and nearby towns.

City police said a man was hospitalized with stab wounds, but no other violence was reported today.
