

First victims of tornado are buried here Friday

By STEVE OLAFSON
Staff Writer

Wichita Falls buried its first tornado victim Friday morning.

At 10 a.m., Terri Lea Mahon was laid to rest. A wedding band she had never seen was around her finger, a symbol of her fiancé's love.

The pretty 17-year-old Rider High School junior was crushed beneath the walls of a Kemp Boulevard steakhouse when Tuesday's tornado ripped through town. She was working to save money for her marriage to Rusty Godwin, who asked the Mahon family to bury their daughter with the ring he had planned to give her.

Godwin sat in stunned silence beside the Mahon family while Dr. David Ehrenfeld told a gathering of 75 persons that the tornado "was a terrible disaster and tragedy that certainly wasn't the will of God... but it has happened."

"Our priorities have been set in order. We have separated the important from the unimportant, and now we can get down to the root meaning, which is a spiritual meaning."

A few friends and family members sobbed softly while others stared in silence at the white casket that waited to be lowered into the ground, where Ehrenfeld said Terri would "enjoy the comforts of the full power of God."

After the service he knelt beside each family member to offer words of strength as a bright sun climbed the clear morning sky. To the northwest of Crestview Memorial Park, the sounds of a city putting its life back in order could be heard.

Another funeral procession filed slowly through the cemetery gates shortly after the Mahon services were completed. It was one of many other funerals conducted on Good Friday, two days before Easter.

"She was a happy, loving child who tried hard to please her parents," recalled Terri's aunt, Ruth Ferguson, whose home was demolished by the massive tornado.

Terri's father, Jed, was the first to reach his daughter's lifeless body. After the edge of the tornado swept over the Mahon home on Allegheny, he sped toward Western Sizzlin' Steakhouse, but downed power lines blocked his path and he had to run the last frantic mile.

"At first I went to the Pizza Hut 'cause I couldn't tell which was which," he recalled while friends and family walked slowly

Federal storm aid effort in operation

By CINDY RUGELEY
Staff Writer

Tornado victims began lining up Friday evening at Federal Disaster Assistance Administration "one stop" centers hoping to receive aid in recovering from Tuesday's tornado, believed to be Texas' worst in more than a quarter of a century.

The death count remained at 44 early Saturday.

The assistance centers, at Notre Dame High School and the 4-H Center, will open at 9 a.m. Saturday.

Foard, Baylor and Clay counties were made eligible for individual assistance from the federal government Friday.

Wichita and Wilbarger counties are eligible for public and individual aid.

The damage area was toured Friday by FDAA officials, along with State Sen. Ray Farabee and State Rep. Charles Finnell.

Vernon will operate a center from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday at Wilbarger Auditorium.

Persons may receive information and apply for aid in receiving temporary housing, homeowners and business people who suffered property damage may be eligible for Small Business Administration loans, farmers may apply for Department of Agriculture programs, persons out of work may apply for special unemployment compensation available through the Department of Labor, personal needs may be filled from state and volunteer agencies and IRS can advise disaster-affected persons on special tax provisions.

Tornado victims also may apply for food stamps at the centers.

Community Action Corp. is providing transportation to the centers Saturday and Sunday. Persons should contact CAC at 723-8186 for transportation.

Jack Watson, special assistant to President Carter for Governmental Affairs, toured the area Friday on the president's request.

Watson said he wanted to be certain "the federal government and federal agencies are getting in position to render aid in every measure" available.

"I just finished an assignment at Three Mile Island. I want to say in both these incidents I have been proud of the responsiveness on the part of local officials and volunteers," Watson said.

A briefing was conducted by FDAA officials Friday afternoon for organizations operating in the centers.

About 50 local, state and federal agencies are involved. Aid from individuals and agencies continued to flow into the affected areas Friday.

Wichita Falls City Council and Wichita County Commissioners Court in emergency session Friday voted to ask U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to assist in cleanup efforts.

The Engineers will contract with private contractors for removal of debris from both public and private property.

Debris will not be removed from property without consent of property owners, however. In order to get privately-owned lots cleared, each property owner See FEDERAL, Page 2A

Carter offers prayers for Wichita Falls

SAPALO ISLAND, Ga. (AP) — President Carter interrupted his vacation Friday to dispatch a telegram offering his "thoughts and prayers" to the tornado-ravaged community of Wichita Falls.

"My thoughts and prayers are with you and your fellow citizens," the president said in the telegram sent to Wichita Falls Mayor Kenneth Hill.

Almost 60 persons died and thousands were left homeless by the tornadoes that struck Wichita Falls and other parts of Texas and Oklahoma on Tuesday.

Carter, who arrived on this warm, sunny island Thursday, previously had declared Wichita Falls a major disaster area, clearing the way for federal money to be used in the cleanup effort.

After a walk with 11-year-old daughter Amy on the beach Friday morning, the president fished for trout for four hours at a freshwater pond with two Brunswick, Ga., friends, lawyer Jim Bishop and optometrist Carlton Hicks.

Carter went fishing again in the early evening. This time the party looked for bream on a saltwater river about 30 minutes off the island coast. Amy stayed behind and hunted for shells on the beach.

The president, wife Rosalynn and Amy are renting a large old home once owned by auto magnate Howard Coffin and last occupied by tobacco heir R.J. Reynolds.

During past vacations, Carter has stayed at Musgrove Plantation on nearby St. Simons Island. The switch to state-owned Sapalo Island for his current trip apparently is the result of a federal indictment on fraud charges against Musgrove owner Smith Bagley.

A presidential aide has described Carter's trip as "99 percent vacation." It ends April 23 when Carter returns to Washington. He will leave the island next Friday for an overnight trip to his hometown of Plains, Ga., followed by a visit with his son, Jack, in Calhoun, Ga.

Nicaragua forces battle rebels

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — National guard jets fired rockets into rebel positions at the guerrilla-held northern city of Esteli Friday while ground troops fought house-to-house and pounded rebels with mortars, reports said.

In Managua, Sandinista National Liberation Front guerrillas attacked a police station in a poor neighborhood late Thursday but were driven off, a guard spokesman said.

He said 27 persons were killed in the fight at the police station and in gun battles in several other Nicaraguan cities, not including Esteli, but gave no details.

Red Cross officials and refugees from Esteli spoke of "many dead and wounded." Reporters were barred from entering the battle zone and there was no way to estimate the number of casualties. The last national guard casualty report from Esteli was issued Monday and said 77 persons, including seven guardsmen, had been killed.

The attack in Managua, with leftist rebels piling up street barricades of rocks and burning tires, was seen as a diversion by guerrillas to relieve pressure on Esteli. The city is 90 miles north of Managua, and the fight to topple President Anastasio Somoza — who is on vacation in the United States — has been raging there for more than a week.

Government roadblocks kept journalists from the embattled city but telephone reports from Esteli indicated the guard was moving in on all sides, trying to force out the estimated 400 guerrillas who have controlled the city.

Reports from Esteli residents said two national guard jets fired rockets at guerrilla position in the city.

Col. Aquiles Aranda Escobar, spokesman for the 10,000-man national guard, said the jets had not made rocket attacks against targets inside Esteli. He said mortars might have been used in the city, but the jets attacked guerrillas who were fleeing through fields outside of Esteli.

The national guard, which serves as the nation's army and police force, is known to have two T-33 jet trainers equipped with pods to fire rockets.

The opposition newspaper La Prensa, which has reporters inside Esteli, said the national guard troops were advancing into the city in "house-to-house" fighting.

Aranda Escobar said the government's "operation cleanup" in Esteli had been 70 percent successful. He said his forces suffered some casualties but would not say how many.

He also said the Sandinistas in Esteli had organized "peoples tribunals" and had executed between 12 and 20 persons but he did not say how he got the information or explain the motive for the alleged executions.

The Sandinistas issued a three-page communique calling for citizens to join them in forming a provisional government.

It did not say how or when the government would be formed, but said its main work would be to "begin a reconstruction program that would salvage Nicaragua from the social, economic, political and moral chaos left by the dictatorship" of Somoza.

Somoza is vacationing in Miami with his children, who are out of U.S. schools for spring break. He is reported in close contact with his military commanders.

News in brief

10 sentenced to death

MAPUTO, Mozambique (AP) — Mozambique's Revolutionary Military Tribunal said Friday it sentenced 10 prisoners to death by firing squad for crimes against the state, bringing to 20 the number of death sentences handed down in a month.

In a statement distributed to the press, the tribunal announced it condemned four Rhodesians and six Mozambicans after finding them guilty April 5 of mercenary activity, espionage and high treason.

The 10 are believed to have been executed because the law stipulates condemned persons cannot appeal their sentences and must be put to death within five days of sentencing. That period ended April 10.

Krueger considered for post

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Rep. Robert C. Krueger is the front-runner for the newly created post of ambassador-at-large for U.S.-Mexican relations, U.S. officials said Friday.

The post will involve coordination of U.S. policy on a broad range of issues with Mexico, including gas and oil sales and immigration problems.

Krueger, a Texas Democrat who is fluent in Spanish, was defeated last fall in a bid to unseat Sen. John Tower, R-Texas.

Funding irregularities charged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The attorney general Friday charged that leaders of the Worldwide Church of God have pilfered and misappropriated at least $1 million a year from the church over four years.

In an amendment of his original complaint against the church, Deputy Attorney General Lawrence Tapper charged that since January 1975, the church and its entities have spent "at least $1 million more each year than they receive in contributions."

Political violence hits Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP) — An underground extreme-left group claimed responsibility Friday for the slaying of an American serviceman and critical wounding of another in the Aegean port city of Izmir, the semi-official Anatolia news agency reported.

A new wave of political violence swept Turkey. Officials reported two police officers were killed in Istanbul in a shootout with leftists.

More tourists visiting Texas

AUSTIN (AP) — More out-of-state tourists are visiting Texas, but they are watching their pocketbooks, the state highway department reported Friday.

Director Tom Taylor of the department's Travel and Information Division said 25.8 million out-of-state visitors came to Texas last year, an 11 percent increase over 1977.

The visitors spent $4.3 billion, which was only a 1 percent increase over the previous year.

Jetliner didn't roll

WASHINGTON (AP) — A TWA jetliner that survived a harrowing dive last week apparently did not roll over as first believed, Federal Aviation Administration officials said Friday.

Broadcast codes challenged

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Association of Broadcasters' codes barring radio and television advertising of products and services that are deemed objectionable was challenged Friday in a $40-million federal antitrust suit.

The challenge was started by a Manhattan advertising agency and a California-based population control group whose joint effort to launch broadcast commercials advertising contraceptive devices was allegedly frustrated by the codes.

The suit was filed in U.S. District Court, Manhattan by the Bill Suit Agency, Inc. and Zero Population Growth-Los Angeles, Inc. It sought class-action status on behalf of about 500 others unable to have certain products or services advertised through radio or television commercials.

Snipers shoot at trucks

PITTSBURGH (AP) — More than a dozen trucks were targets of snipers and roadside vandals Friday in western Pennsylvania, where some Teamster members have vowed to continue the strike despite the union's tentative contract with the trucking industry.

No injuries were reported.

Dame Isobel Cripps dies

LONDON (AP) — Dame Isobel Cripps, widow of Labor Cabinet minister Sir Stafford Cripps, died Wednesday at her home near Stroud in western England, her family announced. She was 88.

In World War II, Dame Isobel headed the British Aid to China Fund and in 1946 was a guest of Chinese leader Chiang Kai-shek.

Drastic measures needed for temporary housing

By ROCKY SCOTT
Staff Writer

When 20,000 people need shelter, food and water, drastic measures often are taken.

"We're so full we're thinking about hanging them from the walls," said desk clerk Gwen Arrington of Gateway Inn at 1211 Central Freeway. "We've had people coming in at the rate of four or five an hour since the storm hit."

She said a lot of homeless families are being housed at the motel, and that a lot of people from out of town have come in to check on relatives.

"We're at the point where we just don't know where to refer them (homeless families). We haven't been contacted by the city or told what to do with these people."

At Holiday Inn East, 1900 Henrietta Highway, desk clerk Sheila Allen said, "we're full. We started booking in Wednesday morning, and we've put on extra staff to handle the load."

Mrs. Allen said persons who See DRASTIC, Page 2A back to their cars. When Mahon located the steakhouse he found his daughter's fiance standing on top of the rubble that was one of Wichita Falls' newest restaurants. "I said, 'where's Terri?' and he said, 'Down there.' 'She and a boy were trapped underneath a cinder block wall,' Mahon said, both hands shaking but with a calm and steady voice. They used 2-by-4 boards to pry the debris off the Mahon girl and the fallen boy beside her.

"His back must have been broken," Mahon said. "He kept saying 'I can't feel my legs, I can't feel my legs.'"

Mahon then crawled to his daughter's limp body, lying face down.

"I took her pulse and she was dead," he said quietly.

Mahon handed over an English composition his daughter had written on the poem "Lucinda Matlock." It was read at Friday's funeral.

Terri Mahon wrote, "You have to work and live and not just sit around wasting your life to be really happy."

"There can't be any reason to just waste your life when there's so much life to live. There's always a promise of better things if there is life."

"It takes life to love life."

EPA failed to release test results

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A U.S. Environmental Protection Agency official said Friday he did not notify two Sturgeon, Mo., workers that their blood carried traces of the toxic chemical dioxin because he did not feel the situation was serious.

"It was apparent that there was no significant chance of any serious health impacts to anyone in the Sturgeon community due to the spill," said Dr. Warren R. Muir, deputy assistant administrator for Testing and Evaluation.

City water said not yet drinkable

By CINDY RUGELEY Staff Writer

City officials are still recommending that residents boil water and not use ice in drinks from icemakers using city water.

Officials have said contaminants should be removed by Monday, but have cautioned residents to wait for an announcement before assuming water is safe.

Texas Electric Service Co. Friday was still working toward returning electric service to areas affected by the storm.

"We are interested at this time in knowing where electricity is absolutely needed. Customers who are planning to live in their damaged homes and make minor repairs, where possible will be given high priority. Others who desire electricity for cleanup operations will be served as facilities are available," Tom Locke, division manager, said.

TESCO is continuing to rebuild lines and crews are restoring electric service, he said.

Gary Cook, manager of Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., said, phone service should be returned to the entire city by Tuesday.

About 4,199 customers were without service Friday afternoon. Cook estimated service to about 2,500 would be restored by Sunday evening and the remaining customers should have service by Tuesday.

Emergency Shelters

Following is a list of Red Cross emergency shelters where persons may obtain lodging, food and medical assistance:

- First Baptist Church, 1200 Ninth, 723-2764; Floral Heights United Methodist Church, 2214 Tenth, 723-7151; Western Hills Baptist Church, 5107 Ridgecrest, 692-6141; Notre Dame High School, 2821 Lansing, 692-6041; Midwestern State University Coliseum, 3410 Taft, 692-6622; and Sunnyside Baptist Church, 1904 Windthorst Road, 767-1585.

er must sign a release of liability. Representatives will be available at the one stop centers to assist in this effort.

The city also received emergency authorization to dispose of debris in sites without a state permit. Texas Air Quality Board has granted emergency authority to the city to dispose of combustible material by means of controlled and supervised burning.

Ernest Lillard, municipal director of public works, asked that persons not place debris in streets or alleys because public ways are essential for access to all other properties.

Command posts have been set up at Southwest Parkway and Fairway and on U.S. 287 and Old Windthorst Road at Bird's Seafood Restaurant.

Maj. Danny Feigel of Shepard AFB School of Health Care Sciences, said most of the cleanup in the Southwest Parkway area has been completed.

He said he had about 400 volunteer Airmen in the area Friday helping persons clean up their property.

"We can't help someone with tools. All we can do is provide manpower," he said.

A few houses, he said, don't have anyone at home and no one has returned to clean the property.

"Volunteers are coming in here and letting us use trucks to haul things off. People are really pulling together helping each other out," Feigel said.

To get into one of the affected areas, a person must have a disaster area decal affixed to his car.

The decals may be obtained at Parker Square, Best Products parking lot, parking lot of Gibson's Discount Center on Kell, First Baptist Church and

First United Methodist Church. Charles Harper, Wichita Falls architect who has worked on development in the southwest portion of the city, estimated reconstruction would take 10-15 years.

Bob Haley, assistant city manager, encouraged persons to remove built-in equipment such as water heaters, cabinets, ranges and dishwashers from destroyed homes.

"The idea is to get as much as you can out of there, not only for your own benefit, but to cut down on vandalism," he said.

Haley, whose house was destroyed in the tornado, said his family had removed virtually everything of value. "It's not that difficult."

Persons with expertise in this type of work should contact the command posts to volunteer.

Tetanus shots are being given at the Southwest Parkway command post, Ben Milam School on Stearns and Sunnyside Baptist Church on Windthorst Road.

Some persons were still being arrested Friday for looting.

Police said 13 persons had been charged with looting and one juvenile had been arrested. In addition, three persons were in the city jail awaiting charges. Nine persons were in county jail for looting.

Exxon Corp. is providing emergency generators to needed areas and special measures are being made to provide additional emergency fuel supplies. A disaster assistance program to ease payment requirements for Exxon credit card holders is being placed in effect.

Space is available for 30 additional children at CAC child care facilities and a man is willing to share his home with two extra couples, although the roof on the home needs repair. Interested persons should contact CAC.

Architects offering services

By CINDY RUGELEY Staff Writer

Members of the Texas Society of Architects are in Wichita Falls offering to inspect damage done to houses and buildings.

The service is free of charge, Bob Messersmith of TSA said. Persons interested in receiving the service should contact representatives at the one-stop centers at Notre Dame High School and the 4-H Barn.

"Persons will still have to get an insurance adjuster. We can assist them and the adjusters in determining what needs to be done and what can be done," Messersmith said.

The architects can also look at the adjusters' assessment and determine if it is accurate.

"The main thing we are trying to do is see that people don't get cheated out of their property," Messersmith said.

"We are a non-profit group. We are not here to secure work or to work for cost. It is a public service provided by TSA," he said.

Charles Harper, a local architect, said people should not be too hasty in having damage assessed. He said persons should try to contact someone they know and not hesitate to get a second opinion.

"We don't want people taken by fly-by-nighters," he said.

TSA came to the city upon the request of the local chapter and the governor's office.

Texan named ambassador

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House announced Friday the nomination of Sally Angela Shelton, a native of San Antonio, to be ambassador to Barbados, Grenada and the Commonwealth of Dominica.

Miss Shelton, 34, would be the first U.S. ambassador to newly independent Dominica. She also will serve as this country's first accredited minister to St. Lucia if confirmed by the Senate.

Rhodesians raid Nkomo's home

LUSAKA, Zambia (AP) — Rhodesian commandos disguised as Zambian troops blasted black guerrilla leader Joshua Nkomo's home here Friday in a predawn raid 65 miles inside Zambia. Nkomo, who said he escaped through a secret door as bullets pierced his house, called the raid a kidnap attempt.

Hospitals said at least 10 guerrilla guards were killed. Nkomo said 11 were wounded and three raiders were slain. The raiders also destroyed two guerrilla offices in Lusaka. Two other commando groups reportedly blew up a ferry in Botswana and attacked a Botswana town near the frontier.

Witnesses said most of the raiders in the Lusaka operation were black.

"Our boys did a good job although they were outnumbered," Nkomo told delegates at a rally of the Afro-Asian People's Solidarity Organization Friday night. "They knocked out the teeth from one of the commandos and blew the brain out of another."

He displayed teeth and brain particles to delegates of the 26-nation group. AAPSO Vice President Vassos Lyssarides stood with Nkomo by the smoldering house and promised cheering delegates, "We shall fight with the Patriotic Front who are our friends until independence."

By independence, the guerrillas mean their control of Rhodesia.

Nkomo said the raiders came in trucks with Zambian markings.

Robert Mugahe, whose Mozambique-based guerrillas form the shaky Patriotic Front alliance with Nkomo's forces, told the rally, "Together we are determined to carry the battle to the finish."

President Kenneth Kaunda called up Zambian army reserves following the attack which was within a half-mile of his home.

Other Rhodesian commandos dressed as Botswana soldiers blew up the Kazungula ferry in Botswana and allegedly abducted seven men and seven women in a raid on Francistown, Botswana. Francistown is 270 miles southeast of Kazungula and 25 miles from Botswana's eastern border with Rhodesia.

Both Zambia and Botswana, which border Rhodesia on the north and west, harbor guerrillas who have sworn to disrupt Rhodesian elections scheduled for next week.

Three persons were killed in the explosion on the Kazungula ferry that crosses the Zambezi river where Botswana, Zambia and Rhodesia meet, according to Botswana President Seretse Khama. An official statement issued by Botswana said it deplored "these cowardly attacks on Rhodesia neighbors by the Smith regime, which has lost control of the security situation in Rhodesia." It referred to white Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith.

Church, bank negotiate for return of funds

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A Roman Catholic church here is negotiating with a bank for the return of thousands of dollars allegedly skimmed by bank employees who counted the weekly collections, according to a published report.

The bank confirmed that it and federal authorities are investigating the claim that the money was skimmed.

In a copyright story, the Albany Times-Union said the thefts, apparently as much as $500 per weekend, occurred over a four- to five-year period, while the Cathedral of the Immaculate Conception trusted the counting to a branch of the National Commercial Bank and Trust, because no parishioners volunteered for the task.

The bank issued a statement saying "no factual basis has been established" for the allegations, but an "intense investigation" of them was under way. It declined other comment, as did officials of the FBI, the church and the church's attorney.

The newspaper report was attributed to "sources" and parishioners. The report said the church, which is only a block from the governor's mansion, retained attorney Ira Mendelson to pursue the case several months ago.

SBA offices to open in Wichita Falls

By LEON HOOTEN Business Editor

The Small Business Administration will open "permanent" offices in Wichita Falls to make low-interest, government loans to tornado disaster victims, said Carlos Flores, SBA coordinator for financial affairs from Dallas.

"The Small Business Administration will have an office in Wichita Falls as long as disaster victims have applications on file with us," Flores said Friday afternoon.

He said anyone who suffered a loss during the storm could be eligible for a 30-year loan at 7 percent or less.

"Since the disaster was so great here, homeowners, small businesses, churches — just about anyone could qualify for a loan directly from the federal government," he said.

He also said that the SBA will have representatives at the "one-stop" disaster centers in Wichita Falls and Vernon, Texas, beginning Saturday and SBA will open "permanent" offices in Wichita Falls when space can be obtained.

As many as 40 persons will be sent to Wichita Falls on temporary duty status, Flores said. They will remain "until all applications have been processed."

Flores said that an applicant should get a "yes or no answer" within about two weeks after the loan application has been submitted.

"As in any disaster, long lines at disaster centers will discourage persons, but they should come back because we will be there," he said.

Receptionists at the centers will determine which federal or state agency should handle an application. And he added that the state will have money available for immediate grants, which should not be confused with the SBA loans.

Flores also said the SBA is seeking about 200 volunteers to aid persons in filling out applications. A meeting with volunteers will be at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Monday at First United Methodist Church.

He said eight SBA personnel arrived in Wichita Falls earlier in the week and found housing, but Flores said he didn't know where the other 30 workers will live.

Debris clearing contracts due

Federal declaration of Wichita Falls as a disaster area means U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will be in charge of debris removal from private property.

Removal efforts will begin next week by private contractors under direction of the Corps of Engineers.

Mayor Kenneth Hill and City Manager Gerald Fox said city personnel will not be doing debris removal, he said. Disaster area property owners are asked not to call the city switchboard on debris removal. Property owner releases, necessary before contractors may enter property for debris removal, will be available at disaster assistance centers.

"Please do not remove debris from private property to the street right-of-way," the mayor implored. "This will only tie up access within the disaster area."

Burkburnett help offered

By DOROTHY CROWDER
Burkburnett Bureau

BURKBURNETT (Special) — The first performance of Carson & Barnes Circus was about to begin at Burkburnett as a benefit for Burkburnett Boys' Club when the tornado struck Wichita Falls Tuesday.

The circus was asked to loan its portable generator to Wichita General Hospital to provide light to assist in processing the injured. Without hesitation the plug was pulled and the performance was canceled.

Strangers to Wichita County, circus personnel loaded their vehicles and reported to the Red Cross to donate 70 pints of blood. Their generator was put into service at the hospital.

Within an hour after the tornado passed, equipment and work crews from City of Burkburnett joined volunteers from other towns to be of help to Wichitans. Burk, Cameron Gardens and other volunteer firemen dug through the debris in search of victims. Their Jaws of Life rescue tool was used several times.

About 11 p. m. word was received by Hugh "Buddy" Preston that his milk trucks were needed to provide water to Wichita General and Bethania hospitals. Preston also plastic bottle-producing plant to Wichita County workers who needed containers for the water.

Asked how many containers were donated, Preston replied, "We don't keep count at a time like this."

Spared of the destruction that hit neighboring cities, Burkburnett felt helpless. Running low on water from its own wells, City of Burkburnett continued to fill the milk trucks to take water to Wichita Falls.

The Rev. Albert Lindemann, president of Burkburnett Ministerial Alliance, summed up the feeling. "At this point, all we can do is stand by. The need will continue and we will be prepared to help."

Rental aid center open

Wichita Falls Board of Realtors has established a rental coordination center for tornado victims.

"We will support city, state or federal officials who want to take action in price gouging cases and will make the tax equalization board aware of an increase on property values because of inflated rentals," Karl King, Realtors president, said.

Persons may call for rental assistance or report suspected price gouging at 723-7365 or 322-0739, King said.

The rental coordination center will be open from 9 a. m. to 8 p. m. Saturday and as long as it is required, or helpful, King added.

He also said Realtors would appoint a fair market committee to determine if rental or sale property has been inflated in value because of the disaster.

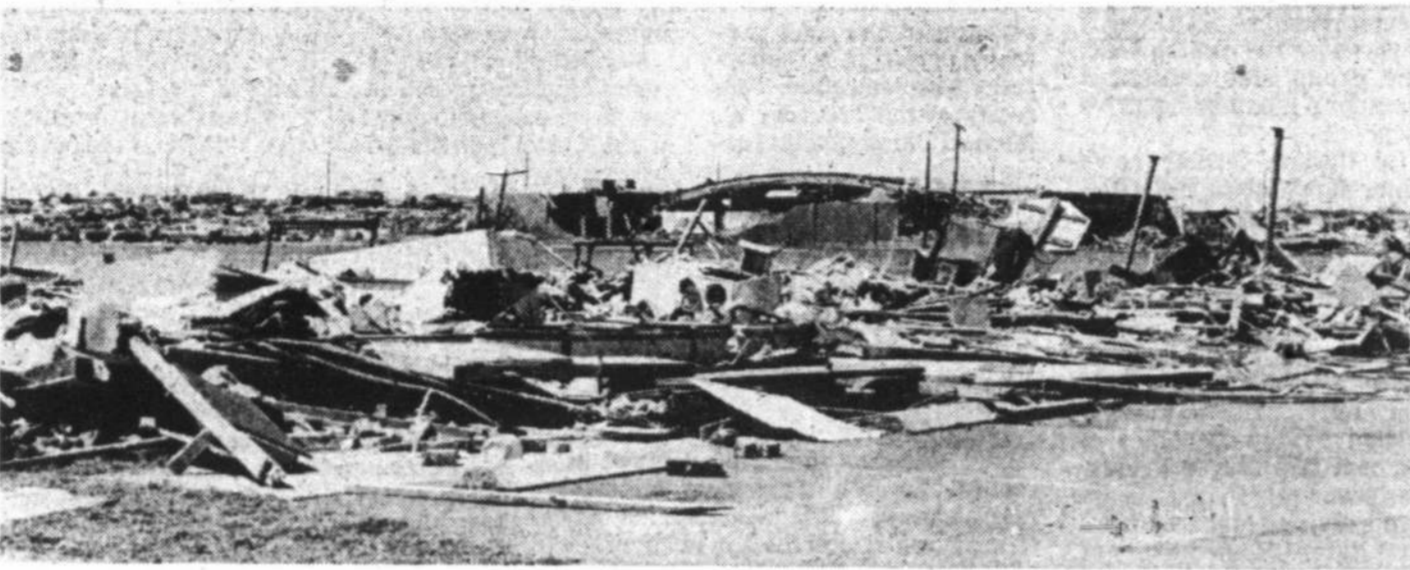

The center also seeks locations of mobile home lots with sewer and water connections.

Trees said deductible

Trees, too, can suffer loss of limb, cuts and gashes and deep wounds as a result of a tornado. Some can be mended, others may be lost forever.

Robert C. Webb, Wichita Falls landscape architect, said, "Tens of thousands of trees were lost (during Tuesday evening's tornado)." Because of the broad swath, many old and ornamental trees were toppled, some split apart, some snapped off at the base and some uprooted.

"Many will be saved. It's amazing how trees can adapt to injury," said Webb.

Brightest news about the fallen trees is that Internal Revenue Service considers storm damage on trees a tax loss, according to Frank Rogers, IRS agent in Dallas.

Skilled treemen bind up tree wounds by several methods, and, fortunately, Webb said, "trees can be planted any time of the year if they are balled and burlapped."

Vernon relief center to aid tornado victims

By BRUCE FISHER
Regional Staff Writer

VERNON, Texas — State, local and federal officials will man a one-stop disaster relief center beginning Saturday to aid tornado victims here, Wilbarger County Judge Bob Arnold said.

Nelson and various state officials took an airplane ride about 2 p. m. Friday to get a comprehensive view of the tornado damage in Vernon. At least 10 when the twister struck Tuesday afternoon.

The center in Wilbarger Auditorium will have representatives from the American Red Cross, Small Business Administration, U.S. Department of Human Resources, Federal Disaster Assistance Administration, Internal Revenue Service, Veterans Administration and representatives from any other state or federal agencies that can offer aid to disaster victims.

The disaster center will be open from 9 a. m. until 7 p. m. Saturday, 12 p. m. until 6 p. m. Sunday and from 9 a. m. until 7 p. m. the rest of the week, Arnold said. The "one-stop" center will open as long as needed, he said.

Mike Allen, director of the economic opportunity division of the Texas Department of Community Affairs accompanied Arnold on the aerial survey of Vernon.

He said Foard County will probably be included along with Wilbarger County for disaster aid.

Allen said a $32,000 EOAC grant for emergency funds for the low income victims was authorized Thursday, but he said that money won't go far. More CETA money is anticipated to be administered by the Council of Governments headed by E.D. Daniels.

James Nelson, Vernon Civil Defense director, said the emergency relief center set up in Wilbarger Memorial Auditorium after the tornado struck provided clothes for about 150 people by Friday. He expects that number to jump to 1,000 or 1,200.

He said the tornado damage in Vernon is different compared to that suffered in Wichita Falls because about 80 percent of the houses destroyed in Vernon were in the lower income bracket.

In Wichita Falls, most of the damage was inflicted to some of the newest residential areas.

"Most of our homeowners here (who lost their homes) didn't have anything in the bank and they need help immediately," he said.

Nelson added that the response from the public has been very moving. He said anything that has been needed has been provided almost immediately after those needs were broadcast over local radio airwaves.

Most schools open Monday

By PAT ZAJAC
Staff Writer

All Wichita Falls public schools except Rider High School, McNeil Junior High School and Cunningham and Ben Milam elementary schools will reopen on schedule Monday.

Teachers and staff members at Rider and McNeil will report to Rider at 8 a. m. Monday. Teachers and staff of Cunningham and Ben Milam will report to Cunningham at 8 a. m. Monday for planning.

Students assigned to the four schools damaged in the tornado should report to classes on Tuesday. McNeil and Ben Milam were destroyed in the tornado, so McNeil students will attend Rider and Milam students grades 1-4 will attend Cunningham.

Rider students will have classes from 7 a. m. to noon. Buses will run an hour earlier than normal past. Lunch will not be served.

McNeil students will attend Rider from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m. Buses will run normal routes and bus students should allow about the same time for the bus to get to their school as before. For example, if school started at 8:45 a. m. and the bus picked up your child at 8 a. m., and school now starts at 12:30 p. m., the child should be at the bus stop at 11:45 a. m.

McNeil students are asked to eat lunch before coming to school.

Cunningham kindergarten students should report to school and leave at their regular times on Tuesday. Cunningham students will attend classes from 7 a. m. to noon. Lunch will be served.

Ben Milam students in grades 1-6 will attend Cunningham from 12:30 to 5:30 p. m. This schedule will include lunch. Bus transportation will be available only to children who previously rode the bus.

Mrs. Shores' morning kindergarten class at Ben Milam should report to the school parking lot at 8:15 a. m. Tuesday. They will attend Jefferson and will be returned to the parking lot at 11:45 a. m.

Mrs. Shores' afternoon kindergarten will leave the parking lot at 12:15 p. m. and will be transported to Crockett. They will be returned to the parking lot at 3:45 p. m.

Mrs. Wales' afternoon kindergarten will meet at the parking lot at 12:15 p. m. to be taken to Fowler. They will be returned.

at 3:45 p. m.

"I urge parents of these kindergarten children to bring them to the parking lot for the first couple of days until the children learn where they are to go in their new building," said superintendent Lee Williamson. "Then, if you wish to take them to and from school, fine!"

After the first couple of days it may not be the kindergarten teacher on the bus, but there will be an adult to accompany the children.

Parents may transfer their children to closer schools if they have found temporary housing in another part of town. Parents who wish to transfer their children are asked to go to the new school and tell the principal where they have been attending.

Rider students who attend vocational-technical centers for a half day should plan to attend classes at the Technical Center on Monday. If the student ordinarily rides the bus from Rider, the bus will be available.

It is important that Rider technical school students attend classes Monday so individual planning can be done.

Damage at Rider is estimated unofficially at $400,000. The cafeteria, vocational agriculture building, gymnasium and science wing were severely damaged. Memorial Stadium was damaged extensively. McGaha, Bonham, Cunningham, Lamar, Sam Houston and Jefferson elementary schools had glass damage. There was damage to the cafeteria roof at Fowler, Williamson said.

Windows at the schools will be replaced quickly, but there may be roof leaks for the rest of the year, he added.

Racing twistlers dangerous game

By LOUISE GREGG
Staff Writer

It's been tried with varying success, but racing a tornado is a risky business.

That's what Wichitans Charles and Dolly Sloan did Tuesday evening when they spotted the giant funnel heading in their direction.

Minutes before, they were listening to weather reports.

"I went outside and climbed on top of the house so I could see where it (the tornado) was," said Mrs. Sloan. "My husband stayed inside."

The Sloans live in the 3400 block of Barrett Place. The black southwesterly cloud looked close. "I could see that it was throwing stuff in the air and coming straight at us," recalled Mrs. Sloan. "It got closer and closer."

She climbed from the rooftop and she and her husband jumped in their new pickup truck. They raced east on Hampstead. The twister followed, roaring along a zig-zag track, gaining momentum. The Sloans realized they were losing the race.

Nonetheless, they sped on across Jacksboro Highway past the National Guard Armory. They decided to call a halt to the race when they reached the highway overpass, a landmark that appears just before Wichita Falls Clinic.

Already cars were parked beneath the underpass. The Sloans abandoned their pickup and ran. They "climbed the steep incline as far as we could go. We sat on a 12-inch concrete ledge and held on."

For two or three minutes the Sloans listened to the noise, felt pressure, heard the sound of cars being thrown around.

When it was over, they heard the voices of victims in cars pleading for help. "All were injured," she said, but none critically. "There was miracle after miracle that night."

"We couldn't beat it," reflected Mrs. Sloan. "It was bad judgment. The tornado was so big, so wide. It was difficult to judge its speed and direction." "But we did the best we could," she added. That's all anyone can do.

5 counties named disaster areas

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — President Jimmy Carter announced Friday to Oklahoma officials that five Oklahoma counties will be eligible for federal disaster recovery funds in the wake of Tuesday's tornadoes.

The five counties are Carter, Comanche, Jefferson, Stephens and Tillman. The declaration had been requested by Gov. George Nigh after reviewing tornado damage in Lawton Wednesday.

Disaster recovery efforts have already begun, according to Donald G. Eddy of the Federal Disaster Assistance Administration in Denver, who has been appointed federal coordinating officer as the part of the president's major disaster declaration.

The FDAA and the state are arranging to establish disaster assistance centers in the tornado areas and announcement of the locations of the centers will be made within a few days.

The centers will be staffed with representatives of federal, state and volunteer agencies which will provide individuals with the opportunity to apply for the following assistance and information:

Oklahoma

—Temporary housing assistance will be provided to individuals and families who are homeless.

—Homeowners and business persons who suffered property damage may be eligible for Small Business Administration loans.

—The Internal Revenue Service will advise disaster affected citizens on special tax provisions that may provide quick tax refunds.

—Personal needs of individuals can be obtained from the state and volunteer agencies represented at the disaster assistance centers.

—Individuals or families with disaster-caused serious needs or necessary expenses not covered by other programs may apply for a financial grant from the State of Oklahoma.

Eddy said a person will be able to determine his eligibility for one or more forms of advice of assistance by visiting the nearest disaster relief centers.

Nigh urges slowdown on Black Fox plant

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Gov. George Nigh said Friday there should "be a slowdown" on granting final approval of the Black Fox nuclear plant now under construction near Tulsa.

Nigh said he does not want to block the construction, but simply wants all aspects of the plant to be given careful consideration.

Attorney General Jan Eric Cartwright has filed a complaint against the Black Fox plant with the Oklahoma Corporation Commission, alleging among other things that there are reports the plant will be expanded to supply customers in other states.

When asked if he felt utilities should be allowed to build nuclear power generators in Oklahoma to serve customers in other states, Nigh said, "I would think whatever they have applied for and been approved for should be the limit."

The governor stressed that he is not calling for a ban on nuclear facilities in Oklahoma, but he said the accident at the Three Mile Island plant in Pennsylvania has caused all government leaders great concern.

When asked specifically about Black Fox, the first nuclear generating facility being built in Oklahoma, he said:

"I think there ought to be a slowdown process. I'm not trying to get in its way or speed it up, but every governor in the country has been concerned about it (nuclear plants), and we've asked for additional information so we can look at it."

Cartwright's complaint asked the Corporation Commission to look into every aspect of the Black Fox plant, but particularly its safety and its cost.

He also said he is considering asking the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to re-open hearings on the facility. The NRC has given preliminary approval, but has not made a final ruling.

On another subject, Nigh said he still is optimistic about the chances of his income tax reduction program.

The Democratic governor also said he resents statements by Republican leaders that their petition drive is the only thing that keeps the tax cut issue alive. GOP leaders are circulating an initiative petition to cut taxes.

"I was for a tax cut long, long before their petition," Nigh said. "I was for it during my campaign, I'm still for it and I think we will get one."

Nigh is at odds with House leaders on the tax cut issue. House leaders, headed by Speaker Dan Draper, D-Stillwater, say they will approve a substantial tax cut for individuals only if the corporate tax rate is raised to offset most of the revenue loss.

Nigh is opposed to a corporate tax increase, although the corporate tax rate in Oklahoma is only 4 percent, while the top rate for individual taxpayers is 6 percent.

Silkwoods seek to increase claim

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Lawyers for the Karen Silkwood estate are seeking to increase their claim against the Kerr-McGee Corp. by $60 million to punish it for allegedly allowing Miss Silkwood's plutonium contamination.

If the oral motion to amend made Friday morning is approved, it would increase the total damages being sought in the negligence case from $11.5 million to $71.5 million.

Silkwood lawyer Gerry Spence said he made the motion because he said Kerr-McGee lied to its workers about the danger risks of plutonium radiation.

"To me, that has to stop and it won't stop when we're dealing with one-half of one percent of their assets," he said. "Ten million to the corporate assets is about as ridiculous as six cents to the income of the average man."

Spence told U.S. District Judge Frank G. Theis of Wichita, Kan., he was "unaware of the nature and extent of this company's assets and income" until the night before a witness testified about them in court last month.

Kerr-McGee is an energy conglomerate with interests in oil, natural gas, uranium, helium, coal and other areas. It is one of the 200 largest corporations in the U.S. according to Fortune magazine and has an annual income exceeding $2.1 billion.

Miss Silkwood was a lab technician at Kerr-McGee's nuclear fuel plant near Crescent, Okla., when she died in a 1974 auto accident. The lawsuit filed by her estate alleges her employer was negligent in allowing her and her apartment to become contaminated with plutonium.

Kerr-McGee contends she contaminated herself, possibly while spiking urine specimens to dramatize her claims about unsafe working conditions.

Spence said the failure to seek punitive damages in excess of the $10 million on the record at the start of the trial "was a fundamental oversight" made before he entered the case.

He argued such an amendment, the third one sought since the case was filed in 1976, is administrative and should be allowed. The other increase requests were approved. Spence also asked Theis to inform the jury when the damage claim is amended.

Theis said he probably won't rule on the motion until just before the case goes to the jury and if it is a favorable ruling, jurors will be informed in his instructions immediately prior to the start of deliberations.

Kerr-McGee lawyers refused to respond to the motion except to say they need time to prepare a full brief on the matter. They did ask Theis to prevent two pool news reporters from reporting the motion. He refused, but urged restraint in reporting the closed-door proceedings because of their possible prejudicial impact on the jury.

On another point, Theis took under advisement an evidentiary question concerning the scope of the upcoming testimony of Nuclear Regulatory Commission investigator Gerald Phillip, 54, of Glen E. Lynn, Ill.

Milk production rises slightly

WASHINGTON (AP) — Milk production last month totaled about 10.6 billion pounds, slightly more than in March of last year, the Agriculture Department has reported.

The department said milk output in the first three months of 1979 was about 30 billion pounds, up 1 percent from 29.8 billion pounds in the first quarter of 1978.

Tornadoes hit rural areas

By BRENDA SIMMONS Regional Staff Writer

Effects of Tuesday's tornado in Wichita Falls, Vernon and Lawton, Okla., overshadowed destruction in Tillman, Jefferson and Cotton counties in Oklahoma and in Clay County, Texas.

No deaths or major injuries were reported in rural areas, but extensive damage was caused by the twisters that left 11 dead and 66 injured in Vernon, 44 dead Wichita Falls and three dead in Lawton and injured hundreds of other persons.

The same tornado that caused damage to the eastern and southern sections of Vernon crossed the Red River into Oklahoma, hitting Davidson and Hollister.

Four houses were hit by the funnel in Davidson and numerous barns and outbuildings in U.S. 183.

"Some livestock found in fields were killed," Tillman County Undersheriff Raymond Reed said.

Reed said the same tornado traveled northeast to Hollister, Okla., causing extensive damage to one home, demolishing a grain storage facility and also killing some livestock.

The Vernon twister devastated 100 to 200 homes in the Wilbarger County town, affecting almost 500 persons.

The funnel swept into Vernon about 3:30 p.m. Tuesday and destroyed a restaurant, motel and farm implement dealership.

"The real tragedy is that the hardest hit area was that of low income families. I feel a lot of people who lost homes aren't insured," Maj. James Cook of Austin, a National Guardsman formerly of Vernon, said.

It was reported that the tornado first hit near Crowell and that it stayed on the ground until it battered Vernon before moving across the Red River.

Harrold and Lockett, Texas, also were hit on the continuous path from Crowell.

Vernon has been declared a federal disaster area by President Carter making the area available for federal aid.

"The shock is over and everyone has faced reality," Sheriff

Clinton Russell said while stopping for lunch at the National Guard Armory. "The people have cooperated with each other and are trying to rebuild their lives."

The twister that slammed into Lawton Tuesday night began its destruction at Grandfield, Okla.

The airport west of Grandfield received severe damage, as well as five houses about four miles north and a mile east of the Tillman County town. A stockyard and its fencing and outbuildings also were destroyed. Tillman County sheriff's deputies did not know how much of the livestock was involved.

The tornado skipped on along fields causing some damage in Oklahoma communities of Chattanooga, Marlow, Faxon and Geronimo and then hit Lawton, where most of the damage was in the downtown area. An estimated $10 million in damage has been reported in Lawton.

The same tornado that left Wichita Falls stunned moved northeast from Sun Valley Addition into Clay County, where about 75 homes were destroyed.

Clay County damage was estimated at several million dollars. Two tornadoes apparently formed in Clay County, one heading from Dean on Texas 79 to Petrolia and the other to Jolly.

Waurika, Okla., also was sideswiped by the tornado, demolishing several houses and damaging another 10.

Students end classes boycott

HAWORTH, Okla. (AP) — It's back to classes for senior high students who staged a boycott this week to protest the dismissal of an English teacher.

They returned Thursday after a threat by school officials of punitive action.

School Superintendent Herman Horn said about 15 students boycotted classes Monday and Tuesday. Other reports indicate that a many as half of the school's 190-pupil enrollment may have been involved.

The protest was in response to the school board's dismissal of teacher Haskell City. Horn said City was fired on a 4-1 vote for gross neglect and moral turpitude.

Woman accused of prison offense

FARRIS, Okla. (AP) — Phyllis Summers, 42, of Duncan has been charged with attempting to take contraband into a penal institution.

Officials at the McLeod Honor Farm said a routine search of her purse revealed a gas pistol and a half-pint of whiskey.

Essay contest winner named

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — The first place in the Oklahoma State Chamber of Commerce's "Pride in Oklahoma" essay contest has gone to Fred Romine, a Byng High School senior.

He was honored Thursday night for his essay, "Oklahoma News as Viewed by Will Rogers if He Were Alive Today." He received a $1,000 U.S. Savings Bond.

Farmers kill pack of dogs

WALTERS, Okla. (AP) — A group of farmers and law officers has tracked down and destroyed a pack of wild dogs that had been mauling area livestock.

Walters Police Chief Jack Northrip said some calves had been killed by the dogs.

Northrip said the wild dogs were tracked to a pump house about four miles north and five miles east of Walters after area farmers reported the canines were attacking and injuring cattle.

Law officers shot six dogs and farmers killed another five.

"It was a shame it had to be done," Northrip said.

Missing Sooner man located

WYNNEWOOD, Okla. (AP) — Billy Ray Irvin, 33, of Wynnewood, an oil company employee who had been missing for more than a month, has been located, officials said.

Irvin called Creslenn Oil Co. officials from Florida recently to let his family and friends know he was safe and had left Oklahoma voluntarily.

Company officials said a $2,000 reward for information about his disappearance has been withdrawn.

Teacher's job threatened for assignment

MATHEWS, Va. (AP) — A teacher who asked his 11th-grade students to do book reports on a nearly 50-year-old science fiction classic, Aldous Huxley's "Brave New World," said he was told he would be fired if he went ahead with the assignment.

L. Stuart Gibbs, 33, was notified by the Mathews County School Board on Thursday that his contract to teach would not be renewed after this school year ends.

Gibbs said some of his students' parents objected to sexual and religious references in the book, first published in 1932.

The book is available, without restrictions, in the school library.

School Superintendent Gray W. Bradford insisted, however, the controversy over the classic had nothing to do with the decision to terminate Gibbs' contract.

Gibbs, who teaches U.S. history, is the only teacher to be denied a renewal of his contract this year in this rural county bordering Chesapeake Bay.

"I was told I would be fired if I went ahead with this assignment," Gibbs said Friday. "... I chose to go ahead to get the students to turn the book report in and now my job has been terminated because of it. I do plan on pursuing it to court."

The Virginia Education Association said it has hired a lawyer to represent Gibbs.

Mathews High School Principal Harry Ward said school officials had intimidated Gibbs he might be fired if he went ahead with the assignment.

Ward said he asked Gibbs to change the assignment and, when he refused, a special school board meeting was called last month.

Banks and Hakola, who were attending the annual meeting of the Organization of American Historians, were at the door of the hotel around 9 p.m. when they were approached by two men, investigators said.

Uganda leader takes office

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — To the beat of African drums, Uganda's new president, Yusefu Lule, took the oath of office Friday and asked citizens to "help me erase the traces of eight years of Idi Amin."

While he and his Cabinet were sworn in, Tanzanian commando teams in plain clothes reportedly scoured the north and east in search of the deposed president.

"You have a legal government in office and Amin is now the rebel," Lule told thousands gathered for his inauguration. Lule and his Cabinet stood in the hot sun on the steps of the long-disused parliament building, where scarlet-robed, white-wigged Chief Justice Sam Wambuzi swore the new president into office.

After Lule took the oath, Ugandans broke out their tribal drums and began a dance punctuated with high-pitch cries — a striking contrast to the decorous British-style inauguration ceremony. Uganda was a British protectorate from the end of the 19th century until after World War II, then became a member of the Commonwealth.

Members of the crowd waved banana fronds, beat the drums and cheered as Lule spoke to them after taking the oath.

Ugandans danced in the streets, hugging and kissing each other in jubilation. "There is no more jungle law," a poster said.

A few of Amin's soldiers desperately seeking escape were reported holding civilians hostage and demanding cars, but Tanzanians were pursuing them.

Lule, clad in a blue safari suit, called on Amin's forces to surrender saying "they have nothing to fight for."

The loudest shouts erupted when Lule asked the crowd to give three cheers for Tanzanian President Julius Nyerere, who sent his army in to end Amin's bloody dictatorship.

"I emphasize that we will not be your masters but your servants. We shall need your support, cooperation and prayers," he said.

Lule appealed to Ugandans to stop looting, saying "looting and vandalism are not part of our character."

But most buildings in the city center had broken windows and there was some residential looting by civilians seeking revenge for eight years of poverty under Amin.

Some Ugandan civil servants tried to return to their jobs to help the restoration of civilian authority but many found their offices ransacked.

When Lule walked down the steps, women began dancing in ecstasy and Col. Tito Okello, who led the anti-Amin invasion forces of exiled Ugandans, was hoisted aloft by the crowd, unworried about the Chinese grenade protruding from his pocket, and rifle over his shoulder.

An official of the new provisional government said Amin would be tried for murder and treason if caught and the ousted leader's former government radio said he "deserves the gallows."

"Amin has killed hundreds of our brothers and sisters," the broadcast said. "All Ugandans who love their motherland must from now on help find Idi Amin wherever he is."

The commander of one of the last units known to have been loyal to Amin, which was at Jinja, arrived at the Keyan border and told Western reporters his troops had all run away.

Professor's killers sought

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Police hunted for two men on Friday who gunned down a prominent University of Maine professor during a holiday attempt outside the hotel where he was attending a convention of historians.

Ronald F. Banks, 45, was shot in the face and killed Thursday night when he and a university colleague, Professor John W. Hakola, were returning to the Hyatt Regency Hotel, next door to the Superdome, after a tour of the French Quarter.

Banks, who lived with his wife and four children in Brewer, Maine, was a specialist in Maine history. He served as chairman of the Maine State American Revolution Bicentennial Commission and was an adviser to the Maine attorney general on the state's Indian land claims dispute.

Banks and Hakola, who were attending the annual meeting of the Organization of American Historians, were at the door of the hotel around 9 p.m. when they were approached by two men, investigators said.

Lawyer cites evidence found in trash

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — Government agents have methodically sifted the trash of reputedly organized crime figure Joseph Bonanno since 1975, according to an affidavit filed Friday in U.S. District Court.

Notes found in the garbage have linked Bonanno to organized crime figures and business interests throughout the United States and Canada, said Pima County Attorney Stephen Neely.

The affidavit said the notes helped form the basis of investigations involving Bonanno, his two sons and associates.

It alleged Bonanno and his associates and family have hidden documents sought in grand jury investigations and have told grand jury witnesses to lie.

There is reason to believe Bonanno is directing efforts to keep the documents from investigators and has concealed them at his Tucson home, the affidavit said.

Bonanno, 74, was accused in the document of setting up businesses in California in the names of his sons to launder money allegedly received in criminal activities.

No formal charges have been filed against Bonanno.

The affidavit termed the collection of Bonanno's garbage a "trash cover." It said agents from the Arizona Drug Control District took trash from metal cans on the street shortly before sanitation trucks arrived, replaced it with other garbage, then sifted Bonanno's garbage to reconstruct notes from torn bits of paper.

Agents said they were "dumbfounded" that Bonanno, nicknamed "Joe Bananas" and reputed to be among the major organized crime figures in the United States, would throw the notes away.

"Thousands and thousands of man-hours" were spent reconstructing the notes, some no larger than a quarter, agents said.

William Christensen, the special FBI agent who signed the affidavit, said he has seen Bonanno make calls from public telephones, writing out what he wants to say and taking notes on the conversations.

Ken Naden, president of the National Council of Farmer Cooperatives, and other farm co-op leaders, told Bergland in a meeting that natural gas priority for agriculture is "one of our most crucial issues."

Boston professors OK contract

BOSTON (AP) — Boston University professors voted overwhelmingly Friday to accept a two-year contract after an 8-day strike, but many vowed not to cross the picket lines of clerks, technicians and librarians.

"I am not going to cross the picket lines," said political science professor Howard Zinn, before teachers voted 271-23 on their first contract with the nation's fourth largest private university.

"But I'm going to teach out of doors," Zinn said. "We can convert the campus into a visual demonstration of our support for 925 and 65."

Members of Local 925 of the Service Employees International Union and District 65 of the Distributive Workers of America walked off their jobs in support of the professors' strike, as well as to protest the university's refusal to bargain with their unions.

Dozens of professors in the campus' crowded Marsh Chapel argued against ratification of the proposal announced at 6:30 a.m. Friday after all-night negotiations and an eight-day strike.

"I feel if we ratify now and we desert, we become a paper tiger," said one psychology professor. Others argued for conditional ratification subject to the trustees' recognition of the two union locals.

Although a union lawyer warned professors they could be subject to disciplinary action if they refused to cross picket lines, Fritz K. Ringer, president of the BU chapter of the American Association of University Professors, said the issue is subject to various legal interpretations.

The new contract contains a clause prohibiting the professors from strikes, sympathy strikes or other "interference in the operation of the university" during the term of the contract.

While not asking professors to vote down the contract, the leader of District 65 asked members of the Boston University community not to cross the picket lines.

"You could expect nothing less from us. We could expect nothing less from you," she said.

The pact came after two days of negotiations with a federal mediator following the breakdown of bargaining early this week. More than 500 faculty members struck last Thursday after trustees rejected a contract agreed to by negotiators for the faculty union and trustees.

The key issues involved faculty rights to grieve their workloads, procedures for selecting department heads and the duration of the contract.

Under the agreement, which took effect Friday and ends August 31, 1981, professors will receive pay increases of up to 34 percent during the life of the contract. However, the faculty members stand to lose pay for days missed during the strike.

Fire rescue

Elderly patients evacuated in nursing home fire

WHEATON, Md. (AP) — Dozens of elderly patients, some carried on the backs of firemen, were evacuated from a nursing home in this Washington suburb Friday after a fire broke out.

One person was placed in an intensive care unit and 25 others were treated for minor injuries at local hospitals following the blaze, officials said.

The most seriously injured patient suffered first and second degree burns on her buttocks. She was listed in guarded condition.

The fire started about 8:30 a.m. in a patient's bedroom on the second story of the University

Nursing Home, Montgomery County fire inspector Leonard King said. The blaze was brought under control in 30 minutes. Its cause was not immediately known.

Fire officials said many of the 139 patients of the nursing home had to be carried out, some on the backs of firemen from the second floor.

"A few of them were panicky and didn't know what was going on. A lot of them woke up to the sirens," said Bart Popeck, a University of Maryland student who entered the structure with his father when they saw flames and smoke pouring from an upstairs window.

Cardinal expects benefits in pope's trip to Poland

VIENNA (AP) — Austrian Cardinal Franz Koenig indicated Friday the trip of Pope John Paul II to his native Poland in June could have far-reaching consequences for religious life in the Soviet bloc.

Koenig, who long has played a key role in Vatican relations with communist governments, said in a television interview:

"As far as we here obtain information (on the situation in Eastern Europe), Marxism as an intellectual doctrine is no longer of importance" among the young generation.

"They are looking for a spiritual orientation, a spiritual support," he said, "and here the religious sphere offers itself very strongly, although it is mostly limited to the underground."

The cardinal, who also is Vienna's archbishop, was regarded as an advocate of the historic decision that last October led Roman Catholic cardinals to elect the first non-Italian pope in 455 years.

Asked whether the papal visit to Poland would result in a "tightening of the screw" or greater religious freedom in communist Eastern Europe, Koenig said:

"I believe the pope's popularity and his travel to Mexico have prompted a certain internal revision of positions.

"I could imagine that of the two given alternatives — either to heighten pressure on the church (in Eastern Europe) or to seek a new way of understanding — the second alternative has perhaps the better chance."

Easter weekend takes on new meaning

By CAROLYN ONDREJAS
 Special Writer

"Without a cross on Good Friday, there could not have been an empty tomb on Easter Sunday," the Rev. Bruce Weaver, pastor of First United Methodist Church, reminded disaster-weary Wichitans Friday.

The interdenominational "service of praise and thanksgiving" was the first of many special Easter services held in Wichita Falls.

Easter, the traditional season of hope and resurrection, has special meaning for Wichita Falls this year and churches are celebrating in the aftermath of destruction.

The songs they sang Friday were not the traditional somber hymns of Good Friday.

The rich deep tones asking, "Were you there when they crucified my Lord?" were missing.

Choristers in bright blue and gold gowns led the few assembled for the service, sponsored by Wichita Falls Ministers Fellowship. About 80 people joined in singing: "Oh, God our help in ages past, our hope for years to come, our shelter from the stormy blast and our eternal home."

The "stormy blast" which laid waste an 8-mile strip along the southside of Wichita Falls, including several churches, damaged the home of the Rev. Merle F. Pedigo, but at Friday's service, the president of the Ministerial Fellowship offered a message of hope.

"This morning I stepped out into the rubble of my yard, and a robin sat in a fallen tree. Grass was growing, and my little garden was just mushrooming, in spite of it all," Pedigo said, his voice trembling slightly, but growing stronger as he pointed out, "God is at work."

The theme is expected to carry through in services Saturday evening and Easter Sunday morning. Some churches are combining for services, all have opened their doors to each other.

First Pentecostal Church of God has scheduled a special 7:15 p.m. service Saturday with a choir from the Southern Bible College in Houston providing music. The service, open to all, will be at 410 North Travis.

Due to curfews in the city, the midnight mass, traditionally celebrated at Sacred Heart Catholic Church, has been moved up to 6 p.m., the Rev. Richard Judge, pastor, said.

The "Service of Light" with blessing of the new fire and baptismal water, and "Service of the Eucharist" will be held.

Our Lady Queen of Peace Catholic Church will have a similar service at the 6 p.m. Saturday and regular mass schedule Easter Sunday.

"Dawn of a New Day" is theme for the service that First Baptist Church pastor will hold at 11 a.m. Sunday in Memorial Auditorium to help accommodate the many whose churches were destroyed.

Dr. Morris Chapman will conduct the service.

Easter Services at First Christian Church will be celebrated at 8:15 a.m. and 10:45 a.m., and an Easter sunrise service is set for 6 a.m. at Our Redeemer Lutheran Church. A 10:30 a.m. service is also planned.

Evangel Temple Assembly of God, the beautiful church on Maplewood that was destroyed in the tornado, will celebrate Easter with 10:30 a.m. and 6 p.m. services in the old synagogue now used as a senior citizens center at 10th and Bluff.

There will be two worship services at First United Methodist with the sermon, "Sun Day in God's Little Acre" preached by Dr. Bruce Weaver at 8:30 a.m. and 10:50 a.m.

Airlines urged to honor prices

WASHINGTON (AP) — Passengers who made reservations with United Airlines before it was grounded by a strike should not have to pay more for tickets when they shift reservations to another carrier, the Civil Aeronautics Board urged Friday.

In a letter to all U.S. airlines, the board encouraged them to honor the prices agreed to by United and its passengers before United was struck March 31 by the Machinists and Aerospace Workers Union.

The letter noted that many passengers who held confirmed reservations on United "are being severely inconvenienced when their alternate transportation involves rerouting and/or upgrading of their fare tickets."

"We believe the carriers' tariffs provide for alternate transportation for such passengers without additional charge," the board letter said.

U.S. expels 2 S. Africa envoys

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States, escalating its dispute with South Africa over an alleged American spy operation in that country, ordered the expulsion of two South African defense attaches Friday.

The move was in retaliation for South Africa's decision Thursday to expel three U.S. military attaches. The earlier expulsion came after the South African government charged that the United States had spied on sensitive areas through aerial photography.

David Newsom, an undersecretary of state, summoned South African charge d'affaires Willem R. Retief to inform him of the expulsion order, U.S. officials said.

Spokesman Hodding Carter said that Commodore Willem N. du Plessis, the defense and naval attaché, and Col. Gert J. Coetzee, the air attaché, were given one week to leave the United States.

Friday's expulsion was denounced immediately in Johannesburg by Foreign Minister Roelof Botha. He demanded an apology from the United States for conducting espionage activity and protested America's expulsion of the two military attaches.

In a statement, Botha said the U.S. expulsion order "is not commensurate with the straightforwardness, decency and the penchant for justice for which the American people are known. The American government is not walking tall in this matter."

At the State Department, spokesman Hodding Carter said the United States plans no apology because, "We do not feel we have any reason to offer one."

Carter refused to comment on the substance of the South African allegations.

But other officials, declining to be identified by name, said it appeared that the government of Prime Minister P. W. Botha was trying to create friction with the United States for domestic political reasons.

These officials based their assessment on these points:

- That the activities of the C-12A plane were well known to South African military figures for some time. On several occasions, the plane was piloted by South Africans.

— The U.S. embassy always informed the South Africans of the plane's flight plan. South Africa had no reason to worry about a plane with relatively primitive camera equipment. The United States, as is well known to South Africa, has other, more sophisticated means of gathering intelligence about activities within a country. However, a South African scientist was quoted in news reports Friday as saying that photographs taken from a plane provide more details than those taken from a satellite.

— South Africa may be positioning itself for a rejection of a United Nations plan for leading the South African territory of Namibia to independence. The United States has been a major participant in the Namibia negotiations and, by depicting the United States as hostile to South African interests, it might be easier for the Botha government to reject the plan.

The U.S. officials said that Prime Minister Botha's decision to go on national television to denounce the alleged spy plot lends credence to the view that he was motivated by domestic political pressures.

Under usual diplomatic practice, foreign nationals caught spying are dealt with without announcement, according to these officials. But the United States itself departed from this practice last year in announcing the imprisonment of several alleged Soviet agents accused of espionage.

Officials here also speculated that the South African government, engulfed in a scandal involving an alleged influence-buying operation in the United States and elsewhere, may be using the spy case to divert attention from the scandal.

Prime Minister Botha said the plane would be taken out of South Africa as soon as technicians can be satisfied that all photographic equipment has been removed to prevent further photography on the outward flight.

Second storm loss

Mr. and Mrs. John Moore peer through broken panes of the wreckage of their home at 4400 Weeks Park Lane, destroyed by Tuesday's tornado. The Moores lost another home in the 1964 Wichita Falls tornado. They said they'll rebuild. (Photo by Pat Zajac)

Survivors glad to be alive

By PAT ZAJAC Staff Writer

Only a few days after Tuesday's tornado slashed its path of death and destruction through the city, Wichitans were industriously working to fit the pieces of their lives and homes back together.

Under blue, sunny skies the victims worked to salvage what was left of their belongings from the piles of wood and brick that were left of their homes, while radios and busy hammers sounded in the background.

Clusters of uniformed National Guardsmen and Sheppard military personnel were helping the displaced victims move their furniture, board up windows, repair roofs.

Neighbors, who before the storm may not have had time to speak to one another, were working together with the camaraderie one imagines the pioneers felt during their barn-raising.

There was no such thing as a stranger. Some of the victims were beginning to view the storm philosophically.

"We were just talking about how your perspective changes when something like this happens. Material things don't mean a thing," Bill Palmer said, nodding at his next door neighbor.

Palmer's wife was injured in the tornado. She is now in Bethania Hospital. Their home at 2001 Granada was destroyed. None of their furniture was salvageable.

"I've been very surprised. Nobody is bitter. Nobody feels persecuted or picked on. Everybody is in pretty good shape mentally. Everybody is so happy to be alive. The rest is immaterial," he added.

Dwayne Knight at 4320 Barnett just shrugged and said, "Well, I had been promising Mama some new cabinets. She's going to get them now."

John and Linda Moore will be rebuilding a home for the second time. Their home at 4400 Weeks Park Lane was destroyed. Another home was destroyed in the 1964 tornado.

"The Bible tells you not to lay up treasures on earth. Material things are just not that important," Mrs. Moore observed.

While Moore successfully outran the tornado on Southwest Parkway, she and her daughters huddled together at home. "The girls and I were in the bathtub. We just got up and walked away after it was over," she said.

Overdue ship enters Delaware Bay

BALTIMORE (AP) — The overdue Pride of Baltimore sailed into Delaware Bay with all aboard reported safe Friday after the military began a wide-ranging search for the tall-masted wooden vessel, authorities said.

Chris Hartman, a spokesman for Mayor William D. Schaefer, said Capt. Charles Whitcomb, 52, radioed the Coast Guard station in Cape May, N.J., about 3:30 p.m. to announce the ship was entering Delaware Bay.

"The captain says the ship is fine and the crew is fine," Hartman said.

The ship, a replica of a 19th-Century Baltimore topsail clipper schooner with a crew of 11, was due in Norfolk, Va., on Tuesday.

The Coast Guard, Air Force and Navy had sent six long-range military aircraft over a broad swath of the Atlantic in search of the vessel. A Coast Guard cutter was also called in for the computer-assisted search, according to Ensign Jonathan Smith of the Coast Guard's public information office in Portsmouth, Va.

The Pride, a Baltimore clipper built as a city goodwill ambassador as part of the city's Bicentennial observance, was blown 200 miles off course by two storms, Hartman said.

Hartman said the mayor promised the sailors "a tumultuous welcome home" when the vessel arrives Sunday.

Five arrested in drug raid

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Five Oklahoma City men were arrested Friday on complaints of possession of marijuana and controlled drugs with intent to distribute in a raid of a north Oklahoma City residence.

Office Pete Milan of the Organized Crime Unit of the Oklahoma City Police Department said police arrested Franklin Earnest, 23, Benny Ray Cross, 26, Eugene Horris, 21, Willis Edward Iverson, 31 and Wyle Trass, 40, all of Oklahoma City.

Milan said officers received a tip from an informant Thursday and drew up a routine search warrant for drugs.

Milan said officers confiscated 16 bags of marijuana, a small quantity of PCP, a small quantity of Valium and other controlled dangerous substances.

Milan said the five were booked into the Oklahoma City jail on complaints of possession of drugs with intent to distribute.

Holiday water problem solved

HOLLIDAY, Texas (Special) — Holliday residents were without city water most of the day Friday, but Mayor Jim Virdell said late Friday that the pump that supplies the pressure had been repaired and pressure should be up by Saturday.

Pressure began dropping Thursday and Virdell issued pleas for conservation, but it continued to drop to zero. Tank trucks of water were brought in Friday from Olney, Archer City and Windthorst and distributed to residents who brought their own containers to City Hall.

In addition, Levi Strauss & Co. of Wichita Falls sent 200 one-gallon containers of water to Holliday Friday.

Virdell said the water has been tested and is safe, but pressure may be weak until Saturday, and water should be used only for essential purposes until the pressure returns to normal.

Spring is top bass time

By JOHN THOMPSON
Outdoor Writer

Without much question the next couple of months will see more bass fishermen on our lakes than at any other time during the year. The simple reason for all this is that this is the time when most of the fish will be where they can be reached by the anglers.

In short, they will be in shallow water and that is where just about anyone can present a lure to them with enough authority to get a strike now and then. For most of us the trick in fishing at this time is not how to catch one or two fish, but how to catch eight or 10. Sometimes it would also be nice to come up with a really good fish of five or six pounds.

Through the years the secrets to doing both of these things has been demonstrated to me many times. I can't say that much of it has rubbed off, but I've seen it done.

At times the secret to catching a lot of fish in the spring is simply to cover as much good water as possible. This means making a lot of short, accurate, casts in the right cover areas.

To determine the right areas simply fish the shallow water humps, hilltops or shorelines until you catch some fish and develop a pattern as to their depth, type of cover and location.

Then search out more of that same sort of situation and work it hard. Now and then this will mean covering a lot of territory, but so far as the fish are concerned it may require working productive waters over and over.

So, if you find a spot which has some fish in it, don't make a single pass through and then go searching for more. Keep coming back through that good water until you have stopped catching fish.

Then, when it plays out and you move to another area, don't forget to come back to that productive spot again before you leave the lake.

So far as picking up the big bass are concerned, there are also a few tricks here. Perhaps, more tricks than many of us really know about.

Where the big fish are concerned, there seems to be two primary factors involved. First you need to be quiet. Secondly you need to fish areas that aren't fished constantly.

Perhaps more than any other factor, the tube fishermen who have been so successful with catching big fish have taught us the value to being quiet. Without the bumping and scraping of a boat to annoy their fish, they are able to slip to within reaching distance of big fish consistently.

This doesn't mean you can't be quiet while fishing in a little boat, it just means you have to be a little more conscious of it, and work a little harder.

This isn't to say there are times when you can do almost anything and not scare a big bass out of a hiding spot. This happens, but unfortunately it also happens a lot more often that we scare those fish and either run them out of an area ahead of our lures, or cause them to spook and not take the offering.

We spook fish by bumping the cover with the boat, flushing the bush with the prop wash from our trolling motor, and sometimes simply by presenting our lure with too much splash.

Murky water is often a friend of the fishermen. The bass use it for cover, and the fishermen can also. It is much easier to approach a bush closely and jerk a bass out of it when the water is muddy.

In clear water conditions you can spook those same fish by approaching too closely. When waters are clear it is important to fish further from the boat.

At times it is important to fish slowly for big bass, but in the spring this is not necessarily true. Now and then some big fish will take a fast moving bait coming through the shallows which is kicking up a fuss. The new buzz baits have proven this in fine style, and the same can be said of the spinner baits with the big blades.

By the same token, however, big bass are often slow to move, and will take only those lures which have been placed right on their noses and left there to taunt them. Experiment with both styles during the day to see which proves the most effective.

Remember that now is the time to be fishing whenever possible. The fish are there, and they are on the prowl.

Spring gobbler season slated

By TEXAS PARKS & WILDLIFE

Sportsmen will have their first chance at bagging a wild gobbler on the rolling plains of northwest Texas on two of the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department's wildlife management areas starting April 20.

Four (WMA) will be open to this spring hunt across Texas including the Gene Howe, Panhandle, Matador, Paducah, Engling, Palestine, and Kerr, near Hunt.

Each permit will be issued for a two-day period, beginning at noon on the first day and ending at noon on the third day.

Northwest Texas turkey hunters will find the Gene Howe area located six miles east of Canadian in Hemphill county encompassing 5,821 acres. Thirty permits will be issued for the Howe area and the three separate hunts will be on April 20-23, 27-29 and May 4-6. Ten permit holders will hunt each of the two-day periods.

The Matador area is located 11 miles north of Paducah in Cottle county with over 28,100 acres open to turkey hunting on April 20-23, 27-29 and May 4-6, with 60 permits scheduled to be issued. Twenty permit holders will hunt each of the three periods.

These public turkey hunts are not necessarily indicative of a high turkey population, but are part of a continuing management program.

Spring turkey hunting in central Texas has proven to be a sound management practice as the hunts are set late enough in the nesting season so that most of the hens have been bred and are laying eggs or nesting.

The gobblers which can be hunted by shotgun only during the 1979 spring hunt are still in the same general areas frequented by the hens.

Hen turkeys need to be bred only once each spring to lay fertile eggs throughout the nesting season. Even if the turkey nest is destroyed by flood, fire, predators, or farm operations, the hen has the capacity to build another nest and lay more eggs.

The successful spring turkey hunter will most likely use a turkey caller to lure the wise, old gobbler within shotgun range.

The open areas of both the Howe and Matador properties will test the hunters skill at turkey calling and hiding due to the excellent sight and hearing of the Rio Grande turkey gobbler and should prove to be a quality hunt.

For additional information, write to the P&WD, 4200 Smith School Road, Austin, Texas 78744.

Campfire programs under way

CACHE, Okla. — Wichita Mountains Wildlife Refuge "Wildlife Under the Stars" campfire programs are under way.

The programs will be presented at dusk in Camp Doris amphitheater each Saturday through June 30. The programs are designed to inform the refuge visitor about refuge resources and management of wildlands and wildlife.

Refuge personnel will present topics dealing with the mammals or birds of the Wichitas, use of prescription burning to manage prairie habitat, and the management of the refuge's primary herds of buffalo, longhorn and elk.

The first program follows this month's guided tour theme in presenting a closer look at the reptiles and amphibians of the refuge. The natural history and habitat requirements of these animals will be discussed. After the program, visitors should be able to recognize harmless species from those potential dangerous and utilize simple rules to avoid unexpected encounters with snakes.

Refuge manager Bob Karges also noted that the refuge will be conducting prescribed burning through April 20. Refuge biologist Gene Bartnicki will be in charge of the operation.

Protesters force movie cancellation

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Metro Goldwyn Mayer is bristling over a cadre of deaf people who have forced the cancellation of the new movie "Voices" at a San Francisco theater.

The protest included marching in front of the theater and "chanting" in sign language.

"We are being clubbed with our own best intentions," director Bob Markowitz said Thursday after United Artists Theaters decided to pull the film from the Vogue Theater.

Only about 400 people had seen the film in the six days since it opened, an average of a few dozen per showing. The film got mixed reviews in local news media.

"Dismal is not the word. It was double dismal," Gloria Wyman of UA Theaters said of the attendance.

The deaf complained the movie distorted their lifestyle, in its script and the use of a hearing actress, Amy Irving, in the lead role as a deaf dancer.

And, because "Voices" didn't have captions, it shut them out of one of the few movies about themselves, the deaf said.

"It (the film) perpetuates the myth that the deaf are skilled in speech reading, that they live in a lonely, frustrated world and that they act dumb," said Steve McClelland, a deaf spokesman for the Coalition Against "Voices," which also includes some wheelchair-bound and blind sympathizers.

City Supervisor Harry Britt, who supported the coalition, described "Voices" as "an ugly movie ... that portrays the deaf as people who should be pitied."

ing "Coming Home," because Jon Voight's role was not played by a paraplegic. We could extend this into every area until in each feature film we were required to have real life people instead of actors, and we'd be into the documentary business," Markowitz said.

The demonstrations against "Voices" paralleled protests in San Francisco against the film "Coming Home." When "Coming Home" was booked into a theater inaccessible to wheelchairs, the handicapped formed a rolling picket line in front. The movie was moved to a theater that was accessible.

Markowitz defended "Voices" by pointing out that MGM chose Miss Irving for the role of a deaf dancer in love with a hearing rock star only after interviewing deaf actresses in New York, Los Angeles and at Gallaudet College, a special school in Washington.

None was experienced enough for the role, he said, admitting "it would have been a wonderful source of publicity if we had a deaf actress in that part."

San Francisco was one of five test markets for the film.

MGM's Markowitz, however, said he had no complaints from any of the other test cities — New York, Boston, Toronto and Los Angeles.

"What has happened is that a very strong vocal minority has managed to accumulate enough attention so that they successfully moved the movie out of the theater, which is frightening," he said.

"They should also be pick-

Witness sues Miss Marvin

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Doughty, the actor who testified he was Michelle Triola Marvin's sex partner, sued Lee Marvin's former lover and her attorney for $3.3 million Friday, claiming they libeled and slandered him.

Doughty, who testified in Marvin's defense, said he had sex with Miss Marvin at least 25 times while she was living with Marvin — allegations she denied.

She is suing Marvin for a property settlement similar to that which a divorced wife might get, even though they never married.

The judge in the case is expected to reach a verdict next week.

Doughty, 34, whose testimony was the most controversial of the property rights suit, based his suit on statements made during hallway news conferences at the trial.

He cited attorney Marvin Mitchelson's statements that Doughty was a "perjurer" and his allegation that Doughty was thrown out of the Peace Corps for assaulting a woman. Doughty said both statements were false. He said he was honorably discharged from the Peace Corps.

He also cited Miss Marvin's hallway comment after Doughty's testimony that "I never saw him make a pass at any girl."

"The statement implied Doughty was a homosexual," said his attorney, Robert Libott.

Guard to help battle flooding

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dozens of Missouri National Guardsmen were called up Friday by Gov. Joseph P. Teasdale to help battle floods along the Mississippi River and its tributaries that have forced the evacuation of 400 persons.

"We are looking at a pattern that is more and more like 1973," said Kenneth M. Long, a spokesman for the Corps of Engineers.

"We are getting the same sort of thing — river crests that don't really recede but instead are followed by another and each time the surge is a little higher," he said.

In 1973, a series of floods in eastern Missouri and western Illinois killed 10 persons, caused $150 million damage and left 6,200 homeless.

By Saturday, the river was expected to rise to seven feet over floodstage at St. Louis. In 1973, it rose to a record 13.3 feet over floodstage.

The National Weather Service said heavy local rains produced earlier river crests than had been anticipated. The rain stopped Thursday and no significant further rainfall was expected within the next few days, forecasters said.

Friday's evacuations — at Ste. Genevieve, Arnold, Cape Girardeau and Fredericktown — were on the Mississippi below St. Louis.

In Jefferson City, a spokesman for Teasdale said between 50 and 75 guardsmen from Fredericktown, Farmington and Perryville were activated and were expected to begin assisting in sandbagging and evacuations Friday evening.

Authorities said about 150 persons were evacuated from Ste. Genevieve, where water reached many homes along the river.

Two dozen families moved away from the flooding Meramec River at Arnold and 75 persons were evacuated as a precaution at Fredericktown because of a dam which threatened to break. At Cape Girardeau, 75 persons left their homes.

An undetermined number of these evacuated came from unprotected areas where water had reached their homes, but most of the evacuees' homes were protected by the sandbag levees and left only as a precautionary measure.

Mel Doernhoefer of the Corps of Engineers said the rivers, already full of snow runoff from the north, ran out of their banks due to "the untoward experience" of a five-inch rainfall Wednesday.

"We had vast jumps in all of the rivers due to the rains. Almost immediately we had a terrific jump on almost all of the tributaries," Doernhoefer said.

The rains caused flash flooding throughout the eastern portion of the state, then proceeded to take their toll on the Meramec, Missouri and Mississippi rivers.

At Fredericktown, 75 residents were allowed to return to their homes along a creek after authorities widened a spillway to release more water from behind an earthen dam that threatened to break.

Authorities also used sandbags to strengthen the National Lead Mines Lake Dam, which normally impounds about 80 acres of water.

Judge refuses to block CIA censorship

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A federal judge rejected late Friday Oregon Magazine's request that he prevent the CIA from censoring a humorous article about the spy business in Uganda containing 16 words the agency contends would endanger national security.

U.S. District Court Judge Robert C. Belloni ruled after holding a brief closed-door hearing on the magazine's petition for a temporary restraining order against the CIA.

The request was filed after representatives for the magazine and the CIA failed to agree on whether 16 words should be deleted from a planned article. The government argued a restraining order was not called for because nothing had been done to interfere with publication of the magazine.

"You're back where you were before," Belloni said, adding he was not ruling on whether the 16 words might endanger national security. Representatives of the magazine and the CIA continued their talks in private after the judge's ruling.

In dispute were parts of a story by former CIA agent Jay Mullen of Medford. The article details such things as Mullen's coaching deposed President Idi Amin's basketball team and swimming in Amin's swimming pool, said Oregon Magazine editor Tom Bates.

Bates said Friday he had agreed to make some deletions in the story, but refused to make others after a meeting that ended shortly after midnight Thursday.

As negotiations resumed, Bates said he didn't know what the CIA was going to do, but he was going to the printers to get things rolling on the May issue. "It looks like we've got some time to work things out," he said after CIA lawyer John Greany arrived at the Times Printing Co. in Forest Grove, a farming community 23 miles west of Portland.

The CIA has said its concerns involved matters of "national security." Reporters and television crews were shooed from the printing plant's office, where Greany and Bates huddled. Shades on the office's picture window were drawn after TV crews started filming from the outside.

Greany said he flew out to help the magazine meet its deadlines, but Bates had said the agency was notified of the article on March 23.

Mullen submitted the article to the CIA in keeping with an agreement CIA employees make when they join the agency, CIA spokesman Herbert Hetu said in Washington.

Garden Hints Damage excessive

By DON DECKER
County Extension Agent

Damage to trees, shrubs, flowers and vegetables was excessive in the path of the tornado and fringe areas. Families with choice trees may want to take action as soon as possible to save damaged trees.

A decision must be made first to determine whether it is practical to attempt to save a damaged tree. A tree can usually be considered damaged beyond repair if more than 30 to 50 percent of its trunk or main branches are severely split, broken or mutilated.

Special consideration may be given to the more valuable trees such as oaks, cedar elms, pecans or hollies. The age of a tree is important when deciding whether to remove or repair the tree. A lack of vigor might affect its recovery.

When applying first aid to a tree, remove only those branches in need of immediate repair. Too much pruning in one season can help to create other problems such as sunscald, weak branching habits and soft sucker growth.

Every effort is made to avoid leaving branch stubs. When removing a branch, the cut is made "flush" at the main trunk or scaffold branch. Strive to maintain an attractive shape or balance for the entire tree top.

Treating wounds can be accomplished by re-attaching the bark to the inner wood with galvanized nails if healing seems possible. It is essential to never leave a wound which can trap or hold water. A wound which traps moisture will encourage wood rots which can eventually destroy the tree. Pruning cuts or reshaped wounds are painted with a commercial tree wound dressing. It is advisable not to fill wounds with tar or concrete. Publications on storm-damaged property are available at the County Extension Office, 1626 Midwestern Parkway.

SHORTCOURSE SLATED

The pecan grafting shortcourse has been rescheduled for Thursday and Friday, April 19 and 20. The first session of classroom instruction will be at 7:30 p.m., April 19 in the county tax office building in Iowa Park. Virgil Woodfin, chairman of the county pecan and fruit committee will be the instructor.

The second session will be at 6 p.m. Friday at the Iowa Park Research Center. Everyone will be given an opportunity to perform grafting or budding. Participants are requested to bring a sharp knife, aluminum foil, quart plastic bags, hand saw, electric or horticultural tape. Instructors will be Tim Hunter, station superintendent; Wesley Davis, pecan grower, and Woodfin.

TICK INFESTATION

Ticks have besieged the area with heavy infestations in home lawns and on pets. This pest is infesting some of the homes which presents some health hazards as some human diseases can be transmitted by ticks.

Dan Moser reports a heavy tick infestation in his yard. He is controlling this pest by spraying the yard and dipping the dog at the same time so one cannot reinfest the other.

The yard is being sprayed with Diazinon. This chemical is mixed with water at the rate of 5 tablespoons per gallon. The rate of application is heavy by using at least 2 gallons of the mixture per 1000 feet.

His dog is being dipped in a solution containing Malathion. The mixture is 12 ounces of Malathion in 5 gallons of water. The dog is completely submerged long enough to become completely wet to the skin and inside the ears.

Ticks inside the home are controlled by spraying with Diazinon. It is mixed at the rate of 1 tablespoon per gallon. Areas needing to be sprayed include baseboards, door and window molding, furniture and behind pictures, around the edge of all rugs, and in all cracks.

Retreatment is recommended in 21 days. This seems to do a better job in destroying the life cycle of ticks.

Many home owners in the Iowa Park area report good repellent effects by top dressing the yard with ammonium nitrate every month during the summer season.

Kathy Shiflet says, "We use to have all kinds of problems with ticks until we adopted the practice to top dressing the yard with ammonium nitrate at monthly intervals during the summer. We apply about 5 pounds of nitrogen fertilizer per 1000 square feet at monthly intervals. Ticks have not been a problem since adopting this practice." This is not an Extension Service recommendation, however, it is the experience of several home owners.

Hunting for Easter eggs

As pictured by Helen Frances Lyon in the 1920s, this is a culinary print from the collection of Cecily Brownstone, AP food editor.

Is there an Easter Bunny?

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

DEAR CECILY: I am 6 years old. Some of my friends say there is no Easter Bunny.

Mama says, "Ask Cecily. If you see it in her column it's so." Please tell me the truth. Is there an Easter Bunny? — KERI

DEAR KERI: On Easter Sunday some young children, waking to find marvelous colored eggs, believe the Easter Bunny brought them. But often their friends scoff at the idea.

Is there a real Easter Bunny? You might as well ask: Is there a real Peter Rabbit?

Peter Rabbit was the creation of a gifted lady named Beatrix Potter. She wrote a story about him called "The Tale of Peter Rabbit" and painted some enchanting pictures to illustrate it.

That was more than 75 years ago — long, long before you were born — and yet today Peter Rabbit is still with us. So are his mother, his sisters, Flopsy, Mopsy and Cotton-tail; and Mr. McGregor, in whose garden Peter lost a shoe in a cabbage patch. Peter Rabbit will go on living as long as there is an English language.

Yes, Keri, there is an Easter Bunny — just as there is a Peter Rabbit. You can tell your friends that the Easter Bunny came into being because some people wanted to give small girls and boys a special taste of joy on Easter Sunday. The East-ter Bunny sprang from a lovely thing called imagination, and from the good feelings fathers and mothers and grandparents and aunts and uncles have for children. Although you can't see or touch imagination and feelings, they are just as real as eggs and cabbage patches.

As far as I know, Beatrix Potter never told whether Peter Rabbit colored eggs for Easter. But I believe he did — with red cabbage leaves and brown onion skins from Mr. McGregor's garden. — CECILY

BUNNY-STYLE EASTER EGGS

Warm 2 large white eggs under the hot water tap. Put them in a 1½-quart saucepan. Tear off 3 large dark red leaves from the outside of a red cabbage head and tear each leaf in half. Cover the eggs with the leaves and add 3 cups hot tap water. Simmer for 30 minutes, uncovered. (The eggs will still be white.) Cover the saucepan and let stand at room temperature for 2 hours. The eggs will turn a beautiful mottled blue.

Follow the previous directions but instead of red cabbage leaves, use a big handful of brown onion skins and 3½ cups water. (The onion skins will float.) After simmering, the eggs will look pale orange; after letting them stand 2 hours they will turn a handsome terra-cotta color. The onion water can be used to color 2 more eggs in the same way.

Auxiliary gives awards

NOCONA, Texas (Special) — Twenty-one members of the Nocona Hospital Auxiliary received service awards when a meeting was held recently. Mrs. Ruth McNew, president, was awarded a 300 hour pin. Those receiving pins for 200 hours of volunteer service to the Nocona General Hospital were Lindy Ritchie, Karnese Wall, Nannie Pippin and Brantley Nowell. Awards for 100 hours of service went to Elaine Young, Clara Franklin, Ruby Painter, Helen Weeks, Corinne Bell, Lona Brand, Nell Jackson, Margaret McGuyre, Ginnell Miles, Norma Roberts, Vern Stallcup, Wilma Brown, Virginia Hathaway, Lou Seeds, Ruby Milam and Ines Wooten.

TFWC honors two women

NOCONA, Texas (Special) — Mrs. J. C. Womble was elected a life member of the Texas Federation of Women's Clubs board of directors at the spring convention of Pioneer District held recently.

Mrs. Womble is a 28-year member of the Thursday Literary Club and a past president; she also has been a vice president and yearbook chairman for Pioneer District. She has served the state TFWC board as chairman of the veteran's division, public affairs department and of rural planning.

Miss Donna Watson received the Eunice Buchanan scholarship of the district. She is a senior in Nocona High School, with outstanding achievements in English and mathematics. She was sponsored by the Maids and Matrons Club.

Ann Landers Says Lid was meant to stay closed

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: I remember only too well the international controversy that resulted when you printed various views on whether the toilet tissue should go over the roll or straight down, next to the walls. I certainly don't want to start anything like that again. But — I do have a similar problem that has bothered me for years. Please tell me what you think.

Should the lid of the toilet be left up or down? Please note I'm not referring to the toilet seat, it's the LID I am talking about.

In my opinion the purpose of the lid is to keep it closed when the commode is not in use. I can't understand why otherwise fastidious people ignore this reasoning and keep the lid up. Please comment. — Faithful Ann Fan

Dear Faithful: Of course you are right. The lid should be kept down. That is the purpose of it. And since we are back in the bathroom again I'd like to say in response to thousands of letters which have crossed my desk over these past several years, that it is poor taste for a man to leave the SEAT up. Please, gentlemen. Consider the next person who may be a female.

Dear Ann Landers: If the medical profession is in trouble it's their own fault. They should be made to pay for their greed and indifference. The last visit to a doctor's office cost me $20 for a five-minute consultation. That $20 took me a whole day to earn and I spent it in five minutes.

Today took the cake. My husband's physician instructed him to make an appointment immediately for tests. The doctor then went to Bermuda for a vacation and left no instructions whatsoever. We have both — Had it

Dear Had: First — about that $20 fee for a five-minute consultation: It took many years of hard work and expensive schooling to equip that doctor to tell you what was (or wasn't) wrong — in five minutes.

As for the physician who left town without making arrangements for your husband's tests, the solution is simple — get another doctor.

Dear Readers: Last fall I received letters from readers in Oklahoma commenting on state legislation that would have required a man to get the written consent of a woman before engaging in sexual intercourse. I couldn't believe it! I called my managing editor in Oklahoma City, who informed me that such a proposal had indeed been submitted in the legislature, as a sarcastic amendment to a bill restricting abortion. I had also received the text of a "consent form" that the editor said had made the rounds of the Capitol during the controversy. It was a spoof of the whole idea of state legislation aimed at regulation of private sexual behavior. I assumed the "consent form" was a bit of anonymous legislative humor and printed it in my column of Nov. 5.

I have since discovered that the "consent form" spoof was composed by Ralph Slovenko, professor of law and psychiatry at Wayne State University in Detroit, and appeared in his column in the magazine Sexual Medicine Today. I am glad to credit Professor Slovenko's authorship, and to assure my readers that neither the bill nor the amendment were passed.

CONFIDENTIAL to Who Said It?: Ralph Waldo Emerson — and it's worth repeating: "A hero is no braver than anyone else. He is only brave five minutes longer."

What are the do's and don'ts of teaching your child about the birds and the bees? Let Ann Landers' new booklet, "How, What, and When to Tell Your Child About Sex," give you the ground rules. For your copy send 50 cents along with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 11995, Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Signs of the times

Despite the despair and destruction left in the aftermath of the tornado that ripped through Wichita Falls Tuesday, some residents show that one thing a tornado couldn't destroy is their sense of humor. These signs were found at some of the 4,000 homes damaged or destroyed along the tornado's eight-mile path. (Photos by Pat Zajac)

Island volcano threatens eruption

KINGSTOWN, St. Vincent (AP) — Soufriere volcano began spewing rocks, ashes and smoke Friday and residents in a 10-mile-wide band ringing the mountain were ordered to leave their homes. The U.S. officials announced that 4,000 cots, 10,000 blankets and cooking utensils for 600 families were being flown to St. Vincent from U.S. storage facilities in Panama. They said two volcanologists, Dr. Richard Fiske of the Smithsonian Institution and Dr. Haraldur Sigurdsson of the University of Rhode Island would fly to St. Vincent on Saturday. Soufriere's last major eruption occurred in 1902 and killed at least 2,000 persons. The volcano had been dormant since 1972, when tremors provoked an evacuation of the immediate area. No violent eruption occurred but the activity produced a 324-foot-long island of lava rock on the crater lake. Mt. Pelee on neighboring Martinique erupted in 1902, killing all but one of the 30,000 residents of the town of St. Pierre. A government announcement said experts were surprised by the volcanic activity because there had been no warning the mountain might be coming back to life. St. Vincent, a mountainous island in the Lesser Antilles, is 18 miles long and 11 miles wide. Nearly three years ago, La Soufriere volcano on Guadeloupe, five islands to the north of St. Vincent, threatened to erupt for several days. Thousands of residents were evacuated before scientists determined that preliminary explosions were not a result of volcanic activity but were caused by the release of trapped vapor.

Fort Worth mayor breaks tie to call runoff

FORT WORTH (AP) — Mayor Hugh Parmer, who placed second in Saturday's election for mayor, cast the deciding ballot Friday as the City Council threw the contested race into a runoff by accepting 30 write-in votes. The runoff between Parmer and Councilman Woodie Woods will be April 28. Parmer's opponents complained that he violated his own ethics code when he cast the tie-breaking vote that guaranteed a runoff. Woods received 27 more votes than the one-term incumbent after Saturday's machine-cast votes were recounted. But the 30 write-in votes added to the tally by the City Council Friday were enough to take away Woods' majority and force a runoff. The addition of the extra votes placed Woods four votes short of gaining the needed majority-plus-one. Woods' forces argued in favor of accepting only 22 write-in votes, saying the other eight should be thrown out for various reasons. If only 22 write-ins had been added, Woods would have kept his majority. City Attorney Arthur Petersen questioned the propriety of Parmer's voting, arguing that the city ethics code Parmer himself co-sponsored prohibits elected officials from voting in matters in which they have personal interest. But Parmer said the City Council was sitting as an election canvassing body and as such was drawing its authority from state law and not from city ordinances. The incumbent said he was obligated to break the deadlock. Woods said, "I think there will be a citizen uprising at the polls to protest the way he has acted and the shenanigans he has put city hall and the entire city through this past week. "The people are mad at him for attempting to take the election away from me, and he will have to answer to them at the polls a second time around." Parmer said the runoff will erase any controversy over who is mayor. He said he had the "right and obligation" to cast his vote after the City Council debated the for two hours whether to tabulate 22 or 30 write-in votes. "Some of them (City Council members) were willing to throw out eight write-in votes, but they were unwilling to throw out 50 illegally cast votes from residents of Westover Hills and Benbrook," Parmer said.

Florida evacuees back home

CRESTVIEW, Fla. (AP) — Roadblocks were taken down and 1,200 evacuees returned home Friday, apparently safe at last from any harm from 28 tank cars of dangerous chemicals that derailed Sunday, authorities said.

"Everybody is back home, Lt. Everett Helms of the Okaloosa County Sheriff's Department said after residents got permission at 4 p.m. CST to return home. "Only two barricades remain up and those are only to keep people away from the site."

Anhydrous ammonia was being pumped from several wrecked tank cars to other tank cars so it could be hauled from the bridge four miles west of Crestview where the 116-car Louisville & Nashville train wrecked.

Helms said the pumping would "go on for the next couple days at least."

An L&N security officer said there was a possibility repairs on the track and trestle would be completed Saturday, allowing trains to move through the area again.

All 28 of the originally derailed cars remained at the crash site, said D.A. Stallings, a railroad security agent.

One car filled with flammable carbolic acid dangled from a trestle over the Yellow River Friday morning, but officials neutralized the chemical by solidifying it and the car was removed.

State, federal and local officials and representatives of the railroad announced the end of the evacuation after a meeting Friday morning. Mills told reporters afterward that "the danger point has passed."

All of the estimated 4,500 displaced persons went home earlier this week, but the 1,200 had to leave again Wednesday in case toxic fumes were released when toppled tank cars were righted.

Some were allowed to return home to feed their animals Thursday evening, but weren't supposed to stay in the area.

Investigators have been poking through the swamp around the tracks west of here to learn what caused the derailment of part of the 116-car train.

They were particularly interested in whether a rail support was weakened by three bullet holes reported to the railroad a week before the accident.

However, the lead investigator, Hal Storey of the National Transportation Safety Board, discounted the idea. "You can't put a bazooka through that stuff," he said of the 132-pound rail.

Social Security spokesman named

WASHINGTON (AP) — Margaret M. Rhoades, chief spokeswoman for the U.S. Office of Education since 1977, was named Friday to a similar position with the Social Security Administration.

Social Security Commissioner Stanford G. Ross named the former NBC-TV documentary producer his acting associate commissioner for public affairs.

Mrs. Rhoades, 38, served as a State Department researcher in the 1960s. She holds a doctorate in government from Georgetown University.

Mailmen skip damaged areas

Mail delivery will be suspended in tornado-damaged areas of Wichita Falls, but will continue on schedule to other areas, postal officials said.

Customers affected by the tornado in these areas will have the following service:

— Zips 76302, 76303 and Rural Route 5 may pick up mail at the Main Post Office and Zips 76308, 76309 and 76310 may pick up mail at University Park station, 4312 Call Field Road between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m.-noon on Saturday.

— Mail for customers in the affected areas will be held indefinitely. Customers are asked to turn in an address change card as soon as possible so their mail can be delivered, avoiding congestion at the Post Office.

Cartier aids in crackdown

NEW YORK (AP) — Cartier, the Fifth Avenue jewelry firm, is helping police crack down on street vendors who are said to sell cheap imitations of the firm's expensive products. On Thursday, 13-year-old Ralph Destino 3rd, son of Cartier's president, and Nancy Bothamley, his father's secretary, helped police by arranging to buy from one peddler for $45 an imitation of a $1,250 gold Cartier's watch.

Police said they arrested the peddler, Wayne Bart, 29, of The Bronx, as he was making change. Bart was charged with grand larceny, fraudulent accounting and criminal simulation, police said.

Waurika voters choose mayor

WAURIKA, Okla. (Special) — Bill Fectel has been elected mayor of Waurika.

Fectel took the seat of Vester Phillips, who resigned to take a post with Waurika Housing Authority.

In Post 2 race, Ceburn Lovett was elected with 163 votes. Other candidates and their votes were John W. Brown, 60; Paul Adams, 42; and Glen W. Wilkinson, 12. Ronald Penny resigned the post a month before the election.

Tornado's emotional effects difficult to determine

By ROCKY SCOTT Staff Writer

While the physical damage estimates from the tornado that struck Wichita Falls Tuesday are running into the hundreds of millions of dollars, another kind of damage — emotional — will be far more difficult to assess.

"I can't tell you right now about permanent (emotional) damage," said Dr. Arnaldo Sanchez, clinical director and psychiatrist at Wichita Falls State Hospital. "You have to see people on a case-by-case basis to assess that."

Dr. Sanchez said the key factor in most people's ability to overcome the emotional trauma of experiencing a disaster is "the human being's reaction to survive."

Dr. Tracy Menard, adolescent unit program coordinator at the hospital, says he has talked to four or five people exposed to the storm and the people he talked to were "very calm and functional."

"They were surprised by a calmness and peace they didn't know they could experience during the storm," he said. "But reactions vary."

"Some people panicked and ran, and later couldn't understand why they did that. Reactions in a situation like this are totally unpredictable, and that's what people must remember."

Dr. Menard said one of the best ways for people to overcome emotional distress they may suffer because of the storm is to talk about their experience.

"In a situation like the storm Tuesday, an emotional anesthetic sets in, followed by a physiological one," Dr. Menard said. "This allows people to react, to do things they might not normally be capable of doing."

"But I think people need an awareness of what they've been through," he continued. "If they know why they are feeling that way, why they did what they did, it will be helpful."

Dr. Menard said sleeplessness, anxiety, restlessness and loss of appetite are all signs of some kind of emotional problem following a traumatic emotional experience.

He said people should not be afraid to talk about their feelings, fears and anxieties. Persons who panicked in the storm should not be afraid to discuss their experience, he said.

"People — especially men — may be looking back and thinking 'my God, how could I have done that.' That's a normal reaction."

Dr. Menard said he spoke with a friend after the storm struck and she hugged him and started crying. "She told me she hadn't had time to cry," he said, "and this was almost 24 hours after the storm struck."

He said people should be trying to let their emotions out.

"Talking about the storm will be the best kind of therapy," Dr. Menard said, "but only time will tell if there's been any permanent emotional damage."

Community bulletin board

For as long as it is needed, Wichita Falls Times and Record News as a public service will publish in all of its editions a Community Bulletin Board listing information of a public nature concerning the recovery of Wichita Falls from Tuesday's tornado.

Gathering information for the bulletin board will be the responsibility of the promotions department of the newspapers.

The daily listings will be designed to act as a referral service for those affected by the tornado and to keep the general public informed about the city's status as the massive recovery effort continues.

All directors of agencies who have information in the public interest are urged to contact the promotions department of the Record News and Times at 767-8341, extension 258, or by coming to Times Square, 1301 Lamar.

Mail delivery

Mail delivery has been suspended in the areas affected by the tornado in Wichita Falls. All other areas of the city will receive regular delivery.

Postal customers affected by the tornado will be able to receive the following services.

Zip code zones 76302, 76303 and rural route 5 may pick up mail at the Main Post Office, 1000 Lamar, during regular business hours.

Zip code zones 76308, 76309 and 76310 may pick up mail at the University Park Station, 4312 Call Field Road, during regular business hours.

Business hours for both locations will be 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Friday and 8 a.m. to 12 noon on Saturday.

Mail for customers in the affected areas will be held indefinitely. Customers are urged to turn in a change-of-address as soon as possible so their mail can be delivered. This will avoid congestion at the Post Office.

Newspapers

Home subscribers of the Wichita Falls Record News and Times who have been dislocated by the tornado which hit Wichita Falls Tuesday are asked to contact the newspapers' circulation department at 767-8346.

"We will make every effort to deliver a paper to all of our subscribers wherever they are located," Don Brown, circulation manager, said.

Schools

Students who attend Rider High School, McNeil Junior High and Milam and Cunningham elementaries are not to report to school until Tuesday.

Beginning Tuesday Milam students will attend Cunningham Elementary and McNeil students will attend Rider for the remainder of the year. Rider students will attend school from 7 a.m. until noon. McNeil students will attend from noon until 5:30 p.m. Cunningham students will attend school from 7 a.m. until noon. Milam students will attend at Cunningham from 12:30 until 5:30 p.m.

Federal centers

Federal Disaster Centers to provide assistance to persons who suffered losses in the storm will open Saturday at two locations: 4-H Barn 1626 Midwestern Parkway and Notre Dame High School, 2821 Lansing. Centers will be open 9 a.m. until 7 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday.

Salvation Army

The Salvation Army is providing food and drink at stationary canteens for disaster victims and workers. They are located at Southwest Parkway and Fairway, Sun Valley Apartments on U.S. 287, Cynthia and Jacksboro Highway in Southmoor and in two mobile vans. The relief agency's clothing distribution center at Harrell Elementary, located just east of Beverly Circle on Seymour Road is open from 8:30 a.m. to 6 p.m.

A Salvation Army spokesman says the agency is in immediate need of a warehouse to store donations and supplies until they can be processed. Please call 322-9822 or 322-4642 if you know of an available storage facility.

Disabled vets

Glen Neal, national service officer, will be in Wichita Falls Monday and Tuesday to administer emergency relief funds for service connected disabled veterans who were affected by the tornado. Veterans who believe they qualify are asked to come to the Disabled American Veterans Chapter Building at 417 Indiana after 9 a.m. on Monday or Tuesday.

Taxes

IRS officials said that a tax deadline extension is available to all Wichita Falls residents by filing Form 4868, whether they were victims of the storm or not. Those suffering damage from the storm may also claim their loss on this year's taxes. Those who have already filed may amend their return. IRS telephone lines will be open Saturday to provide information and assistance. IRS telephone number is 723-6702.

Command posts

Command posts to provide information, medical aid and food to victims have been established at Fairway and Southwest Parkway, and at Bird's Seafood Restaurant on Central Expressway East. Free tetanus shots are available at the command center at Southwest Parkway.

Easter Services

At least two churches in or near the disaster area will hold services on Easter Sunday. Our Redeemer Lutheran Church near Rider High School will have a sunrise service at 6 a.m. and the regular Sunday service at 10:30 a.m. at the church. Western Hills Baptist Church, 5107 Ridgecrest, will have special Easter services at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m.

Amvets

The Amvets store at 717 Indiana has clothing and some supplies for tornado victims in need. Anyone wishing to donate clothing, linens or canned food for tornado victims is invited to bring items to the Amvets store for distribution. Hours of operation are 9 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. daily except Sunday.

Canceled

Wichita-Archer-Clay Baptist Association has announced cancellation of the Youth Rally at Lamar Baptist Church on Saturday and the semi-annual meeting at Southside Baptist Church scheduled for Monday.

Red Cross

Red Cross service center to determine specific needs of tornado victims has been established at Clark Student Center, Midwestern State University. Case workers will interview families and disbursement orders will be given for eligible persons to exchange for goods with merchants of their choice for food, clothing and other necessities. Merchants can receive reimbursement from the Red Cross.

Families must have proof of their address — a driver's license, a bill that may have been found in their yard or the testimony of a neighbor who can accompany the victim to the center. Social Security cards alone will not be enough proof.

Emergency shelter centers remain open at the following locations:

- First Baptist Church
- Floral Heights Methodist Church
- Western Hills Baptist Church
- Notre Dame High School
- Midwestern State University Coliseum
- Sunnyside Baptist Church

Missing Inquiries

For help in locating missing people, call the Red Cross at 322-8686. A Red Cross spokesman advised patience on the part of people making inquiries.

Boil water

All citizens of Wichita Falls should continue boiling their tap water for consumption until further notice.

Transportation

Community Action Corp. is offering transportation. Anyone needing transportation should call 723-8186.

Persons needing portable cooking equipment should call the same number.

Rental board

Wichita Falls Board of Realtors has established a rental coordination center to provide assistance in securing rental property and to try to prevent price-gouging in the housing industry.

Persons may call for rental assistance or report suspected price-gouging at 723-7365 or 322-0739.

Debris removal

Disaster victims wishing to have debris removed will have to sign a release allowing the Corps of Engineers to come on their property. Releases will be available at the two federal disaster assistance centers.

Texas Electric

Texas Electric Service Co. asks any residents not in the tornado disaster area whose electricity is not back on to please call 766-3331.

Tornado threatens Masters play

Related story, page 2C

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Craig Stadler, a non-winner as a pro, slogged through drizzling rain to a 6-under-par 66 and tied Ed Sneed for the lead Friday in the rain-delayed and tornado-threatened second round of the 43rd Masters golf tournament.

Stadler and Sneed, who once faced a decided possibility he would lose a round of 67, shared the top spot with 135 totals, 9 shots under par on the drenched Augusta National Golf Club course.

Sneed, who hasn't made a bogey in the tournament, completed his round a few moments before a tornado warning went into effect and play was delayed for two hours by a violent thunderstorm.

At that point, only 24 of the international field of 72 had completed play and there was some considerable doubt that the round could be completed. And there was a probability that — could the round not be completed — Sneed's effort would be wiped from the boards.

Tornadoes were spotted in surrounding counties. The storm, raging out of a night-dark sky in midafternoon, swept the course of nervous spectators and lashed the hilly layout with torrential rain, gusty winds and dancing lightning.

As the storm eventually abated, the tornado warning was lowered to a watch and play resumed.

But Sneed had to wait and wonder for hours — until the last group on the sodden course had gone through nine holes — whether his round would stand.

Scores in scoreboard

And while he was waiting, he could watch the steady progress of the 5-foot-10, 210-pound Stadler as he climbed into a tie with a 2-putt birdie on the par-5 15th as a drizzling rain continued.

Sneed and Stadler shared a 3-shot lead over Ray Floyd and Leonard Thompson, tied at 138. Floyd, the 1976 champion here and a winner last week in Greensboro, cut out a 68 and the hard-hitting Thompson copped off a round of 70 with a birdie from the pine woods on the final hole.

Thompson had to play a low hook under and around trees and watched it run to within 3 feet of the cup for the birdie that put him in strong contention.

Tom Watson, the pretournament favorite, shot a 71 and was tied at 139 with Joe Inman at 139, four shots back. Inman also had a 71.

"After sitting around in the locker room for an hour and a half, I just couldn't get my motor started again," said Watson, who dumped one shot in the water and played the last five holes 2 over par.

Jack Nicklaus, teetering on the brink of collapse, righted himself with a strong finish and remained in a challenging position for his sixth Masters title and 16th major professional championship.

The man generally regarded as the finest player the game has seen appeared to be returning to the slump that has plagued him all year when he played the front side in a fat 39.

Unbeaten Texas nips Tigers, 5-4

Compiled from wire reports

ARLINGTON, Texas — Al Oliver's seventh-inning double play grounder snapped a 4-4 tie and Jim Kern and Sparky Lyle provided solid relief Friday night to propel the unbeaten Texas Rangers to a 5-4 victory over the Detroit Tigers.

The 5-0 start by the Rangers is the best in the seven-year history of the team since it moved from Washington.

The Rangers loaded the bases off losing reliever Sheldon Burnside, 0-1, on a walk to Nelson Norman, Bump Wills' single and Pat Putnam's sacrifice bunt in which Norman beat the throw to third base. Oliver then got the winning run across for Kern, 2-0, who relieved Dock Ellis in the sixth inning.

Detroit tied it 4-4 in the seventh on a single by Lynn Jones, a grounder and an RBI-single by Lou Whitaker and a Ranger misplay. Jerry Morales' easy pop fly was dropped by shortstop Norman when Johnny Grubb collided with him. Whitaker, running all the way with two outs, scored the tying run.

The Rangers lost rookie left fielder Billy Sample in the fourth inning when he suffered a concussion in a collision with Norman as they chased down a pop fly. Sample also chipped a tooth and was under observation at a local hospital.

Kern was relieved by Lyle with one out in the ninth after a vicious line drive by Jones hit Kern in the chest and caromed to Buddy Bell at third base. Bell threw out Jones and Kern had to leave the game.

Reports after the game were that Kern's wrist took most of the shock of the line drive, and the ace reliever was taken to an Arlington hospital for x-rays. Results of the x-rays were unknown.

Sample's diagnosis was clearer. After his collision with Norman, Sample was escorted to the Rangers dressing room with the team physician, and the promising rookie complained of headaches and amnesia. He also chipped a tooth.

The team doctor reported that Sample suffered a slight concussion.

The Rangers and Tigers resume their series tonight in Arlington Stadium, with Doc Medich scheduled to go for Texas and Stan Baker going for Detroit.

Game time is 7:35 p.m.

RANGER NOTES — Texas placed left-handed pitcher Jon Matlack on the 21-day disabled list Friday and called up another left-hander, Dave Rajsich, from the Tucson farm club.

Matlack has been suffering bone chips in his left elbow since April 3. His status on the disabled list was made retroactive to April 8 when he was scheduled to start but did not.

Hawks rally by Rockets

ATLANTA (AP) — Hot-shooting Terry Furlow came off the bench to spark a furious Atlanta fourth-quarter rally and the Hawks went on to down Houston 100-91 Friday night, eliminating the Rockets from the National Basketball Association playoffs.

The victory, Atlanta's 17th straight at home, tied a franchise record and sent the Hawks into the quarterfinal round of the playoffs against defending NBA champion Washington on Sunday.

The Hawks captured the best-of-three series in two straight games. They trimmed the Rockets 109-106 Wednesday night in Houston.

Furlow, who scored 12 of his 14 points in the second half, hit a jumper with 9:10 remaining to give Atlanta the lead for good at 83-81.

The teams traded baskets before the Hawks reeled off an 11-0 spurt to cement the victory.

Furlow had four points in that drive. Houston managed only 13 points in the final quarter, after the teams were tied at 78 entering the final 12 minutes. The Rockets managed only five points in the first 9:25, and went 5:33 without a point to fall behind 96-85.

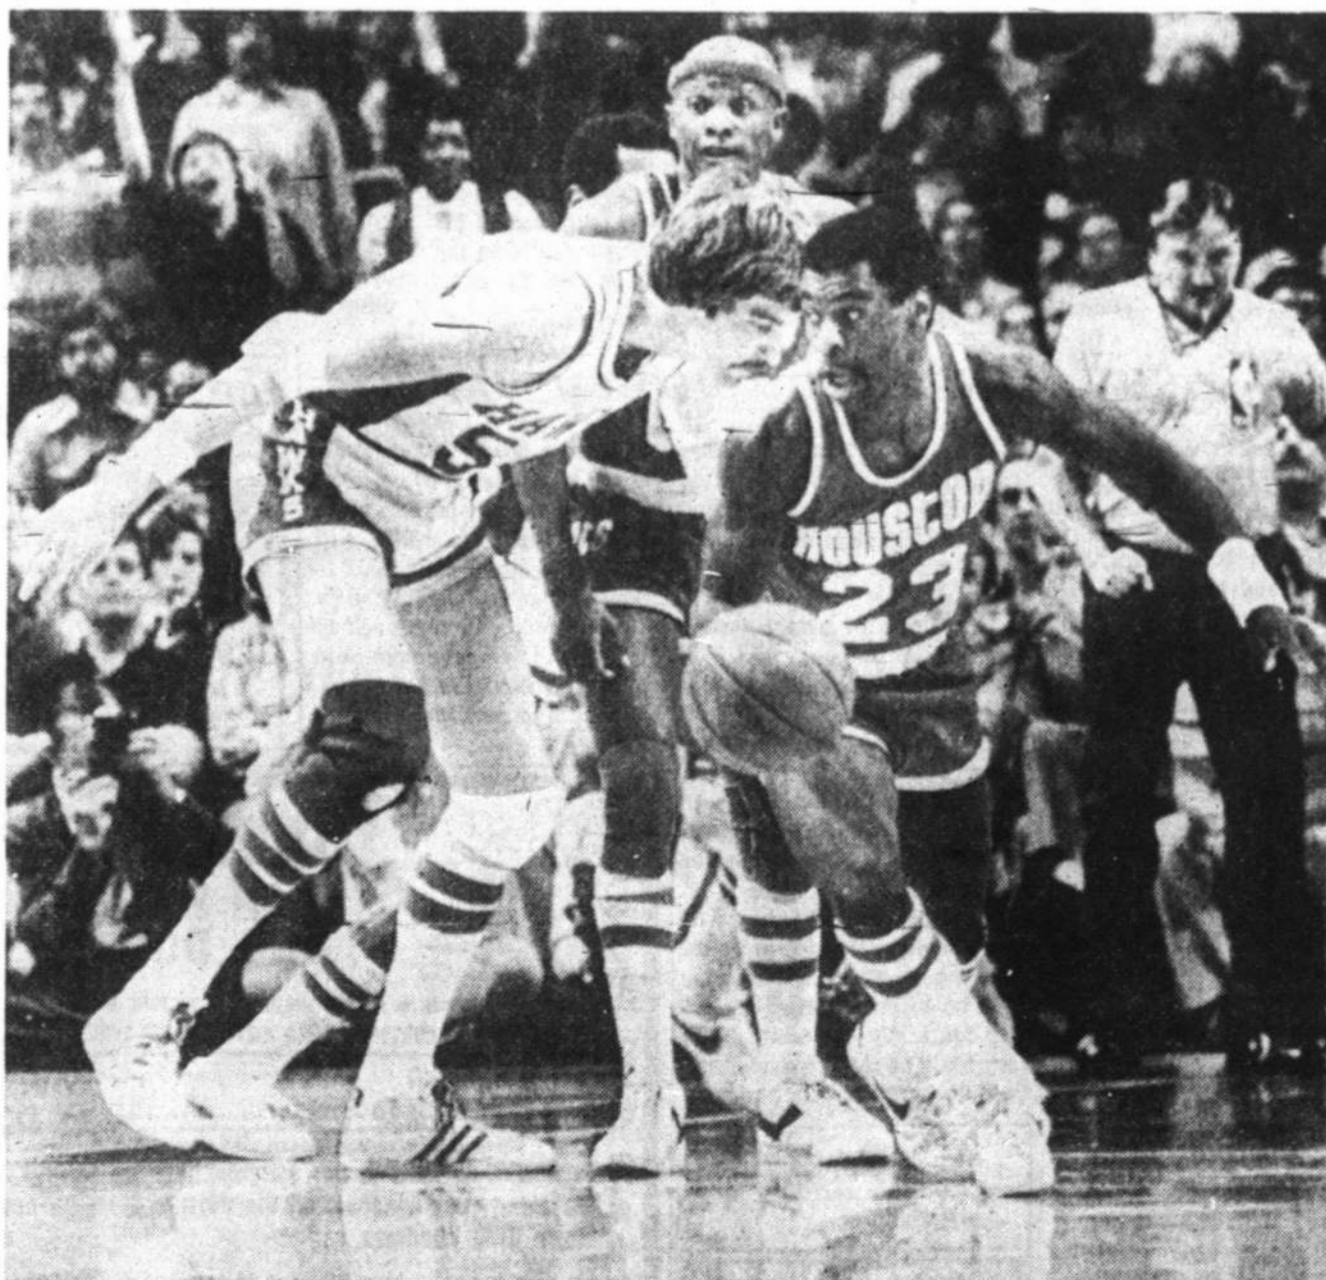

John Drew and Eddie Johnson led Atlanta with 25 points apiece. Johnson netted 17 in the opening period as Atlanta took a 31-27 lead.

Moses Malone was the top scorer for Houston with 21 points, 13 of them in the first half.

Furlow, acquired from Cleveland prior to the all-star break, got the Hawks even after three periods, by tossing in a pair of long jumpers in the final minute.

The Rockets had taken a 58-52 halftime lead, outscoring the Hawks 31-21 in the second period, during which Atlanta Coach Hubie Brown was ejected from the game after getting tagged with technical fouls 16 seconds apart.

The Rockets outscored Atlanta 8-2 at the beginning of the second period to take a 35-33 lead on a pair of free throws by Dwight Jones and built an 11-point margin at 57-46 on a Calvin Murphy jumper with 2:14 left in the half.

Sixers oust New Jersey

PISCATAWAY, N.J. (AP) — Caldwell Jones scored 24 points and Darryl Dawkins and Julius Erving added 19 apiece to lead the Philadelphia 76ers to a 111-101 victory over the New Jersey Nets Friday night and a sweep of their opening-round best-of-three National Basketball Association series.

Philadelphia took the opening game of the series 122-114 Wednesday night in Philadelphia.

The Sixers held a 51-45 halftime lead despite only two points from Erving.

Dr. J missed his first 10 shots from the field — a variety of dunks, layups and jumpers — before connecting on a reverse follow with 5:54 left in the half.

Jones, Dawkins and Eric Money more than picked up the slack for Philadelphia.

The Sixers trailed 25-22 at the end of the first quarter with

Box in scoreboard

Jones scoring eight of his 16 first-half points.

His two foul shots midway through the first quarter drew Philadelphia even at 37-37 before Money — acquired from New Jersey in February — hit three straight buckets as the Sixers shot to 43-37 lead.

Dawkins then scored Philadelphia's next six points to match hoops with New Jersey's John Williamson, Bernard King and George Johnson.

The Sixers widened their lead to 78-68 after three quarters, taking advantage of frequent trips to the foul line and scoring 12 of their 26 third-quarter points on free throws.

The Nets desperately tried to come back in the fourth quarter, but could get no closer than 10 points. Erving regained his shooting touch, hitting three straight baskets as the Sixers put the game away with six minutes remaining.

King led New Jersey with 27, and guard Eddie Jordan had 22. Williamson, who scored 38 points in Wednesday's game, was held to 21.

Ali will announce formal retirement 'in a few days'

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Muhammad Ali said Friday that he was about to retire, saying he wanted to become the first black heavyweight champion to quit on top.

"In a few days I'll announce my retirement formally and officially because there's nothing more for me to accomplish," said Ali, who has talked of retirement often in the last few years.

ALI ...retiring?

Ali said he had to announce before Sept. 15 whether he would retire, otherwise he would be stripped of the title. Of all heavyweight champions, he said, only two white men, Gene Tunney and Rocky Marciano, retired as champions.

"I'm saying now that I don't plan to never fight again because it's very important to my people," he declared, using a double negative in a clearly affirmative sense.

He said that where other champions had retired at 33, he was 37 and would like to get out on top and not "hang around" and mar his record.

Ali discussed his future after addressing the U.N. Special Committee against South African Apartheid, or race segregation, and presenting the United Nations with a painting he had done himself titled, "Freedom." The picture shows the African continent outlined in black on buff with a black figure saying, "Let my people go."

Committee Chairman Leslie O. Harriman, introducing the fighter, said, "It's a great blow to the South African racists today that freedom has Mr. Muhammad Ali on her side."

Ali said he had been invited to South Africa two or three times to box there but had refused to go. Once, he said, "I told some $12 million. 'No, thank you.' They couldn't get me to go."

In the course of a homily on the heart as "the center of man," he said the South Africans "have a heart of iron and we can't do anything to it until we put it in the fire and it starts to melt."

Ali, who has often boasted he is "the greatest" fighter, joked, "I'm soon gonna be the greatest artist of all time."

Later, he recited a poem he had written: "Spread the word around the world— 'Tell both friend and foe 'That I'm fighting for freedom. 'South Africa, let the people go."

Hans Janitschek of the U.N. Department of Public Information told a reporter that Ali had been hired as a special representative of the U.N. Development Program with an office at UNDP headquarters and a studio at the U.N. Institute for Training and Research.

The fighter is entitled to per diem pay as a high U.N. official in the third-from-top rank in the secretariat, he said, but has refused to take the money.

Janitschek said the UNDP was planning two trips for Ali, one to the Caribbean and the other to Arab countries, where the fighter is well known as a Moslem.

Navratilova takes female tennis win

HILTON HEAD ISLAND, S.C. (AP) — No. 1 seeded Martina Navratilova served and volleyed her way into the semifinals of a $150,000 women's tennis tournament with an impressive 6-1, 6-2 victory Friday over Mima Jausovec.

Navratilova will play third-seeded Kerry Reid, a 6-4, 6-0 victor over Lele Forood, on Saturday. In the other semifinal, No. 2 seeded Tracy Austin faces Evonne Goolagong, seeded fourth.

Goolagong cashed in on Betty Stove's errors, defeating the Dutch player 6-4, 6-4 Friday. Austin got past a steady Laura DuPont 6-3, 6-4 to advance.

Navratilova, who has not played on clay courts since her loss in the quarterfinals in this tournament last year, said Friday she surfaces, she said she doesn't make any major adjustments for clay.

"I have to wait a little longer for the right shot to come in. But I still serve and volley," she said.

The Goolagong-Stove match pitted two veterans and long-time rivals. Both were plagued by errors but Goolagong, 27, was able to capitalize on her opponent's mistakes more often.

At times Stove, 33, gained momentum on her big serve and strong volley, only to hit crucial shots into the net or past the baseline.

Goolagong, playing in her first tournament since injuring an ankle in last year's Wimbledon, nearly always won the battle near the net with her quicker reflexes.

"Betty is the type of player who can play out your brains some day," Goolagong said. "Today she couldn't get any control on the ball."

The 16-year-old Austin, of Rolling Hills, Calif., proved the more patient player in her decision over DuPont, 29, of Matthews, N.C. The match was marked by a series of long baseline rallies, which Austin often ended with a soft drop shot beyond DuPont's reach.

In doubles action, the team of Leslie Hunt and Sharon Walsh defeated Rayni Fox and Beth Norton 6-3, 6-4.

The other doubles match, in which Francoise Durr of France and Stove teamed up against DuPont and Regina Marsikova of Czechoslovakia, was halted in the third set because of rain, with Durr-Stove leading 6-3, 2-6, 2-0. It was to be completed Saturday morning.

The winner of the week-long event, sponsored by Family Circle magazine, will take home $30,000.

SATURDAY'S SLATE: Navratilova vs. Reid Austin vs. Goolagong

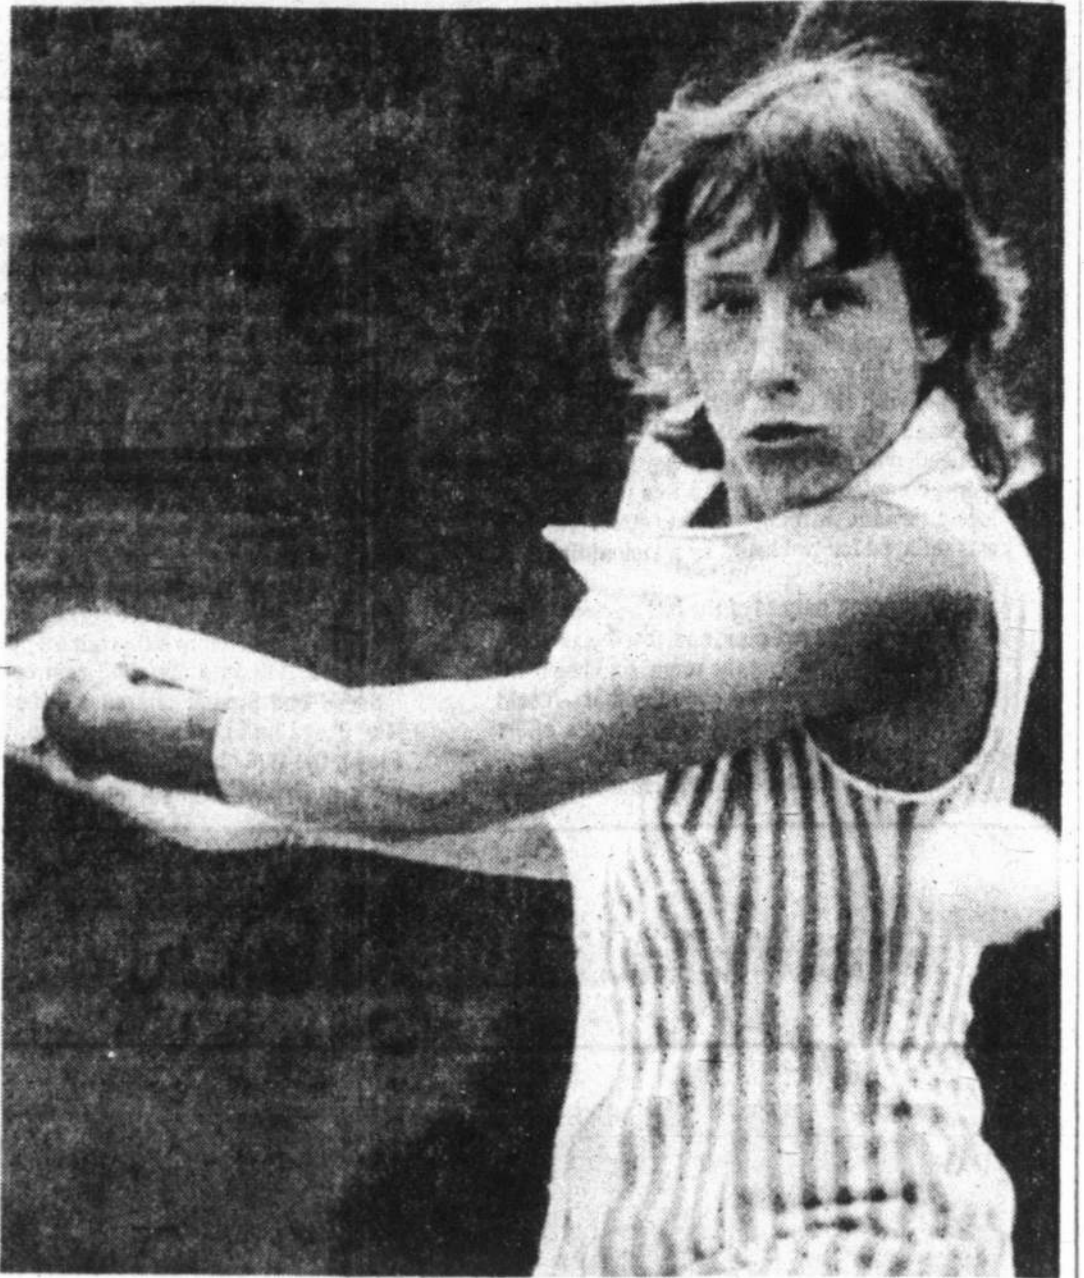

finally felt comfortable on the surface.

Navratilova, a 1975 defector from Czechoslovakia, said she felt a little uneasy her first two matches at the Sea Pines Racquet Club, even though she won each in straight sets.

The 22-year-old, who now lives in Dallas, played a patient game, content to return Jausovec's baseline shots until she saw an opportunity to move to the net. When she did, it was usually with devastating results.

Jausovec, a 22-year-old Yugoslavian, threatened when she held service, then broke Navratilova's serve to take a 2-0 lead at the start of the second set. But those were last games she won.

Although Navratilova's serve-and-volley style was more suited for grass or carpet

Broker hopes to stage $500,000 marathon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Plans for a $500,000 marathon in the nation's capital three months after the Olympics next year were announced Friday by a promoter who admits he doesn't yet have any of the $2 million he believes is necessary to stage the event.

Tom Poe, a 37-year-old Arlington, Va., real estate broker, said he expected 25,000 entrants, many of world-class caliber, to run in the event that would offer $250,000 to the winner.

Poe, who has never staged a marathon but has competed in and finished four, said he "feels the chances are real good" for staging the event that would start and finish at the Capital Centre in the Maryland suburb of Landover, be run through the nation's capital, around its famous landmarks such as the Capitol, Washington Monument and Lincoln Memorial and near the Arlington Cemetery in suburban Virginia.

He said there would be nearly 20,000 fans in the Capital Centre who would watch the event on close circuit television.

Poe said he believes the prize money he is offering would attract the world's best runners, some who may not be famous because they can not enter major events like the Boston Marathon or the Olympics because, he said, "of politics."

"You have to dangle the carrot in front of them," he said. "That's why I came up with the $250,000 in prize money for the winner."

Poe said he would know by next Jan. 1 whether he will be able to financially stage the marathon, which he has called "Superthon." He said he talked with several potential sponsors, including the three major television networks.

"We believe the best avenue to pursue is the television networks," he said. "We want one sponsor, a TV network who would syndicate the event."

However, he described his talks with the networks as "exploratory at this time."

Mental mistakes worry Jack

Nicklaus says he's not thinking well on putts

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, lodged in one of the worst slumps of his career, was concerned — not with his golf, but with his thinking.

"I got rocks up here sometimes," Nicklaus said, pointing to his head after firing a rain-delayed 71 in Friday's second round of the Masters Tournament.

"The mistakes I made were mistakes you shouldn't make," he said. "They were mistakes with the putter and putting mistakes are in your head."

"I was really down on myself."

The man acclaimed as the greatest shot-maker in the game may have solved his problem, though, on his last shot of the day — a downhill, 35-40-foot putt that gave him a birdie on the 18th green and left him with a 36-hole total of 140, 5 shots off the lead in his chase for a sixth Masters and 17th major championship.

"Any time you are around 140 at August-ta, you are in pretty good shape," he added.

The violent thunderstorm that rumbled across the Augusta National course forcing a two-hour suspension of play caught Nicklaus on the 13th, where he faced a five-foot putt for a birdie.

Tournament officials gave players the option of finishing the hole they were on, and Nicklaus went ahead and tapped his shot in the hole, his second birdie on the back nine after touring the front side in an uncharacteristic 39.

Coyote track team to compete in Azle High's Hornet Relays

AZLE, Texas — Although he said he wasn't sure at this time it was the best thing to do, Wichita Falls High track coach Herb Marvel said Friday his team will go ahead with plans to enter the Hornet Relays here Saturday.

Rider coach Jay Hill, whose team suffered the loss of weightman Jay Huffer who died in Tuesday's tragic tornado, decided not to enter his team as originally planned. Hirschi was scheduled to run at Stamford, but pulled out of the meet when it was learned the Huskies were the only team entered in their division.

"Life has to go on, and although I'm not sure right now if it's the best thing to do, we're going to go ahead and enter down at Azle," said Marvel. "We need something that will help us get our minds on something else besides the tornado—and maybe this will do it."

Rider head coach Morris Mercer, who spoke with Hill at Huffer's funeral services Friday afternoon, said Hill had told him that with all of his athletes scattered out and trying to help friends and family clean up what's left, he wouldn't feel right about entering.

Hirschi coach Grady Graves said his team was going to try to enter a three-way meet at Iowa Park after withdrawing from the Stamford meet, but the Iowa Park meet was also scrubbed because of a lack of sufficient water and power in Iowa Park.

Season still on

Roughnecks call off workout

The Wichita Falls Roughnecks will play their full 1979 National Football Association schedule, according to president James Reed, but Saturday's practice session has been canceled due to the effects of Tuesday's killer tornado.

Reed said that the Roughnecks, scheduled to begin their new season with a May 19 exhibition game against the St. Louis Metro Stars at the damaged Memorial Stadium, would either play day games at Memorial or play some or all of their home games in Lawton, Okla.

Using a makeshift press box and doing without lights, the stadium may be ready by the opening date.

Reed said that the team may play a benefit game to raise money for tornado victims.

Bowling tourney slated

A B.P.A.A. Family Doubles Tournament is scheduled at Falls Bowl Saturday and Sunday and April 21, with the top prize being a trip to Washington, D.C.

The doubles tournament teams will be comprised of a parent or legal guardian and a son or daughter.

Divisions will depend on the youth's age as of Sept. 1, 1978. A Prep Division will be for youth under 13, a Junior Division will be for ages 13-16, and a Senior Division will be for ages 16-19.

Saturday and Sunday will have sessions starting at 2 p.m. and 4 p.m. Two more sessions will be conducted April 21. Entry fee is $10 per team. Each team will bowl three games and will use an 80 percent handicap from each bowler's highest average since March 30.

Out of each four entries in each division, one team will qualify for the state finals in San Antonio May 26-27. Winners at state competition in each division will win expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C., Aug. 31-Sept. 3 for national competition.

Chicago's bats spoil Luis Tiant's Yankee debut, 12-2

CHICAGO (AP) — Chet Lemon drove in three runs with a homer and a double and Jorge Orta and Allan Bannister also homered Friday, leading Rich Wortham and the Chicago White Sox to a 12-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Lemon, who had his third straight three-hit game, doubled in a run in the first inning. Then he and Orta hit successive homers in a four-run third off Luis Tiant, making his debut with the Yankees.

Bannister slugged a two-run homer off Ken Clay in the fifth and Chicago took advantage of four Yankee errors which led to four unearned runs.

Lemon later added a single for his third hit as the Sox added two wrapup runs in the eighth inning.

Wortham, 2-0, limited the Yankees to four hits as he struck out nine. One of the Yankee runs was unearned as the White Sox were charged with three errors. Wortham is a product of the University of Texas.

Blue Jays 4, Royals 1

TORONTO (AP) — Jim Clancy tossed a two-hitter and Roy Howell belted his first home run of the season as Toronto defeated the Kansas City Royals 4-1 Friday in the Blue Jays' home opener that was shortened to 5 1/2 innings by rain.

Clancy, 1-1, limited the Royals to a pair of singles before play was halted for the second time after completion of the Royals' half of the sixth. After a delay of 1 hour, 11 minutes, crew chief Dick Nelson announced the game was official.

Brewers 9, Orioles 3

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Baltimore pitcher Don Stanhouse's controversial balk triggered a five-run seventh inning that helped the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Orioles 9-3 Friday night.

Orioles Manager Earl Weaver, coach Cal Ripken and outfielder Ken Singleton were ejected by the umpiring crew filling in for regular American League umpires, holding out in a contract dispute.

In the wild seventh, a walk to Don Money, a double by Larry Hise and an intentional walk to Ben Oglivie filled the bases with one out. Money scored the first run of the inning to widen Milwaukee's lead to 5-3 when plate umpire John Shulock called a balk on Stanhouse for bluffing a pickoff throw to first.

Pirates 7, Cardinals 6

PITTSBURGH (AP) — John Milner's second two-run homer of the game broke a seventh-inning tie and lifted the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 7-6 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals Friday night.

Milner started at first base in place of Willie Stargell, who has a bruised hip. He drove a pitch from reliever Buddy Schultz over the right field wall for the winning homer, which followed a double by Dave Parker.

Milner's earlier two-run homer capped a five-run Pirates burst in the third inning off Pete Vuckovich and staked Pittsburgh to a 5-2 lead.

Reds 4, Padres 2

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Dan Driessen's two-run double keyed a three-run first inning and Dave Concepcion drilled four hits as the Cincinnati Reds spoiled the San Diego Padres' home opener Friday night with a 4-2 victory.

Bill Bonham, with six strong innings, recorded his first victory since undergoing surgery last September for bone chips in his right elbow. He allowed two runs, scattering seven hits.

The Reds took off early on young Padres left-hander Bob Shirley, who had beaten Cincinnati seven times in 10 career decisions.

Bowie zaps Tribe, 11-1

BOWIE, Texas — Stan Wall cracked two home runs and Kent Fluiti limited Neocoma to just one run as Bowie's Jackrabbits defeated the Indians 11-1 here Friday afternoon.

Fluiti picked up his second win of the season as the Bowie hurler held Neocoma to just one run in the fifth inning. Wall paced a Bowie hitting attack that gave the Jackrabbits three runs in the third inning, five in the fifth and three more in the sixth to end the contest on the 10-run rule after six innings. The junior third baseman cracked a two-run home run in the third inning and a solo homer in the fifth. Wall entered the contest hitting at a .454 clip.

Will Jazz stay in Superdome?

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mayor Ernest Morial called warring factions to a Saturday meeting in his office to try to keep the New Orleans Jazz of the National Basketball Association in the Superdome.

Mayor Ernest Morial said he will use all the clout of his office to settle the dispute, which led the main owner of the Jazz to arrange to move the team to Salt Lake City by next season.

At the meeting with the mayor will be Deniz Skinner, the president of Hyatt Management Corp., which runs the Superdome, and Lee Schlesinger, who owns 30 percent of the Jazz.

The majority stockholder in the team, Sam Battistone is supposed to listen in by long-distance telephone.

"I think it would be awful for the community to lose the ball club," said Schlesinger. "We want to have a good team here and be successful."

His is a minority point of view, however. Battistone announced in Utah Wednesday that the team will move to the Salt Palace as soon as he can get approval of the NBA. He met with basketball commissioner Lawrence O'Brien in New York Thursday.

Battistone said he cannot get playing dates in the Superdome because of conventions and other events, which have crowded out the Jazz during the peak of the NBA season.

Skinner said he would sue the Jazz if they attempt to break the remaining six-years of their lease with the dome, in which the Jazz has set NBA attendance records.

Morial, who said he was surprised at the sudden announcement that the Jazz wanted to move, said "It is an obligation of the office of the mayor to make an inquiry into what's going on."

"We have had the largest attendance in the NBA," he said. "We think the people of the city will come the support of the Jazz."

Rose paternity suit dropped

CINCINNATI (AP)—A lawsuit filed by a Florida woman asking child support payments from baseball player Pete Rose was dismissed Friday in Hamilton County Juvenile Court.

Judge David E. Grossmann dismissed the suit at the request of Ed Benson, attorney for Terry Rubio of Tampa, Fla.

Miss Rubio, 25, alleged in lawsuits filed here and in Florida that Rose is the father of her 1-year-old daughter, Morgan.

Benson said the Florida suit would be pursued and that he had been instructed by Miss Rubio's attorney there to ask the Ohio court to drop the case.

Sonics' Brown working out

SEATTLE (AP)—Guard Fred Brown of Seattle is practicing again, cast or no cast, as the SuperSonics' National Basketball Association playoff series draws closer.

Brown worked out with his teammates Thursday, even though his left hand is in a cast because of a broken bone.

"We wanted him to get the feel of the ball," said Coach Lenny Wilkens. "They were just some easy conditioning drills and the players were careful to keep the ball out in front of him so he could handle it one-handed and move it on."

Sonics trainer Frank Furtado has ordered some special plastic material, which he hopes to mold into a protective device to fit over the top of Brown's hand and around his wrist.

O'Connor named by UCLA

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Kevin O'Connor, an assistant at the University of Colorado the past three seasons, was named Friday as an aide to new basketball coach Larry Brown at UCLA.

O'Connor joins Larry Farmer, a UCLA assistant the past four years, on the staff.

Brown coached the Denver Nuggets until January of this year. Earlier this month, he was named to succeed Gary Cunningham who resigned at UCLA.

Red Sox tickets reduced $1

BOSTON (AP)—Fenway Park's 7,400 bleacher seats will be reduced in price by $1 for six games starting Saturday under an agreement that penalizes the Boston Red Sox for an improper $1 ticket price hike at an unspecified number of 1978 games.

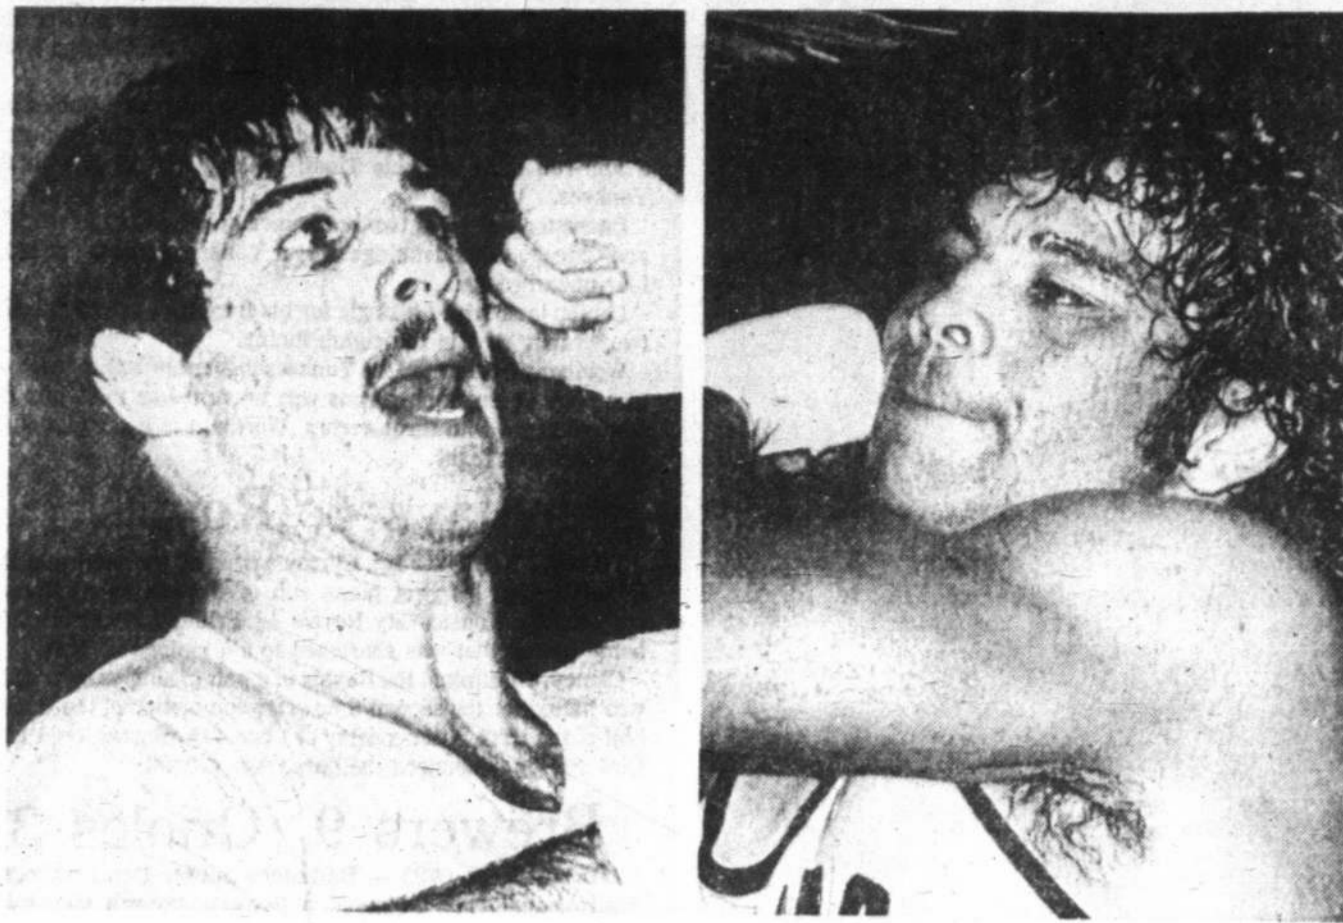

State Attorney General Francis X. Bellotti also announced Friday that the American League team will donate proceeds from sale of 10,000 reserved bleacher seats, worth $3 apiece, to charity.

In an out-of-court settlement, the Red Sox effectively agreed with Bellotti's allegation that the team occasionally violated its stated 1978 ticket policy, hiking unreserved $2 bleacher seats to $3.

Rossman, Galindez to battle, finally

Light heavyweight title on line in New Orleans

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mike Rossman and Victor Galindez, knocked out of a fight in Las Vegas Feb. 24 because of a dispute over officials, will meet Saturday in the Superdome, the site of Rossman's light heavyweight title victory.

Rossman already was in the ring when his rematch in Las Vegas was called off because the World Boxing Association and the Nevada State Athletic Commission could not agree on who should appoint the fight officials.

The officials for Saturday's fight will be named by the WBA, who appointed the officials when Rossman won the WBA title by stopping Galindez in the 13th round last Sept. 15 on the same card in which Muhammad Ali regained the WBA heavyweight championship from Leon Spinks.

Fernando Mandry Galindez of Venezuela, president of the WBA, said Friday at a rules meeting that one judge would be from Puerto Rico and one from Venezuela. The referee also will be from a neutral corner.

The names of the officials will not be released until fight time, about 5:15 p.m. EST. But the referee is expected to be Stanley Christodoulou of South Africa and the judges are expected to be Waldemar Schmidt of Puerto Rico and Jesus J. Venezuela.

Schmidt was a judge when Rossman stopped Galindez on cuts 55 seconds into the 13th round. At the end of 12 rounds Schmidt has Rossman ahead 116-113. Judge Arseno Bernal of Mexico had Rossman ahead 118-113 and referee Carlos Berrocal of Mexico had Rossman ahead 116-115. All three officials had given Rossman rounds nine through 12.

The 30-year-old Galindez will be trying to regain the championship he held from 1974 until last September. He won the title by knocking out Len Hutchins in the 12th round

NASL players strike against owners

Lack of recognition of athletes' union spurs move

WASHINGTON (AP)—Players of the North American Soccer League went on strike against the 24 club owners over the issue of union recognition Friday but the full effect of the work stoppage will not be known until games are played Saturday night.

Ed Garvey, executive director of the players association, told newsmen that an overwhelming majority voted for the work stoppage which, he said, was over one issue — recognition of the union.

He said 365 players cast ballots with 252 voting in favor of the strike.

"All but two teams had a majority in favor," he said, adding that only Detroit and Tampa voted against the work stoppage. No votes were taken in Tulsa and Chicago, where Garvey said management refused to permit union officials to meet with the players, and in Edmonton where he said the team is just being organized after moving from Oakland. Asked about conflicting reports on votes in certain cities such as Atlanta which the union said voted in favor of striking but which the Constitution said voted 12-6 against. Garvey said the vote was taken in Atlanta earlier and the members voted in favor of the strike but then "management called the team together Thursday and intimidated them and told them to vote again. There was only one vote taken as far as we are concerned. That's the one taken first and the one we counted."

As for the defending champion Cosmos, which he reported as voting 20-2 in favor as opposed to another report which had it 20-1 against striking, Garvey said, "Management was putting out 20-1 before the vote was even taken. I can assure you that the vote was 20-2 in favor of striking and the votes were counted by Chinagua."

Garvey said, "Obviously, they lost in their effort to get an injunction. We are happy that management is not threatening players with deportation. Hopefully, Judge Hart will tell them to stop threatening foreign players that they will not get visas next year if they do strike."

Garvey denied an accusation he said has been made by the club owners that the union favored deportation for the foreign players.

Li'l Joe

Morgan hoping to turn it around in '79

CINCINNATI (AP)—Joe Morgan talks about himself almost as if he's talking about another person, sometimes using the personal pronouns "I" and "me" but often calling himself by name.

"I was pleased I was able to do the things Joe Morgan is supposed to do," Morgan said, reviewing his early performance this season. "I'd like to have another Joe Morgan-like year."

"A healthy Joe Morgan should be worth 2½ games," he said several times this spring, referring to the Los Angeles Dodgers' margin over Cincinnati last season when Morgan was injured.

Several times he's talked about the return of "the real Joe Morgan."

Maybe it's self-defense the prompts Morgan to refer to himself by name, just to make sure it gets printed right.

At 5-foot-7 and 160 pounds, Morgan is one of the smaller players in baseball — certainly among the Reds. He invariably gets called "Li'l Joe" or "the little man" in stories about him, and he constantly sees himself described as "peppery" or "pint-sized."

The two-time National League most valuable player for the Reds is not the least bit bashful about discussing his baseball prowess. But Morgan's credentials let him do that — no brag, just fact.

MORGAN ...pleased so far

After seven games this season, Morgan was hitting .379 and was just one hit and one walk off the team lead in both categories. He's 35 years old and in the final year of his present contract, so this season is important to him.

"If I stay healthy I'll have a good year. I know I can play," Morgan said confidently. "My only goal is to start 150 games. The other statistics will take care of themselves."

He was in only 132 games last year and his runs, average all tailed off sharply.

This year the stomach muscles don't hurt everytime he moves, and he's stolen a team-high three bases. His swing is healthier, too.

"I couldn't pull the ball last year. I need to pull to be a good hitter," Morgan said. He's been hitting the ball hard down the first base line this spring, and "that means I'm quick again."

With Pete Rose gone, Morgan will certainly assume a larger leadership role on defense, although it's manager John McNamara's policy not to have a team captain.

In the Reds' season opener, nothing was going right for Cincinnati as Morgan, Johnny Bench and Tom Seaver converged at the pitcher's mound. Seaver and Bench had already made throwing errors that let runs score.

"We were just asking ourselves who would be next," Bench said.

It was Morgan, the five-time Gold Glove winner for fielding.

"You know Joe Morgan doesn't do that very often," Morgan said.

93 cars entered at Indy

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Indianapolis Motor Speedway officials received 10 more applications today to compete in the 63rd annual 500-mile race, raising the total so far to a record 93 entries in the May 27 classic.

Speedway President Joe Cloutier said entries postmarked prior to midnight, April 15, will be accepted for this year's race. Practice will begin May 5.

Today's entries included one from Rasmussen Racing Products, Indianapolis, with driver Eldon Rasmussen; three from Leader Cards Inc., Milwaukee, Wis., with drivers Sheldon Kinzer, Bloomington, Ind., and Bill Vukovich, Coarsegold, Calif.; two from Bruce Crower, Chula Vista, Calif., with driver Jerry Sneva, Spokane, Wash.; one from Hucul, Hunter and Arndt, Prince George, Canada, with driver Cliff Hucul; and one from Beaudoin Racing, Brookfield, Wis., with driver Billy Engelhart, Madison, Wis.

Sherman Armstrong, Winchester, Ind., and Rolla Vollstedt, Portland, Ore., each added one more car to their team entries of four and two cars, respectively.

A spokesman said 44 applications were delivered to the Speedway offices late Thursday.

Former winner to supervise escort at Boston Marathon

BOSTON (AP)—Although Robert Dunn was one of the first across the finish line in a half dozen Boston Marathons, he received little attention. It didn't bother him; the state policeman was too busy shooting spectators, bicyclists and dogs away from exhausted runners.

"It's hectic, and it's getting more hectic," said Lt. Dunn, who has viewed marathons from the saddle of a motorcycle or the front seat of a squad car over the last 17 years.

This year, Dunn will supervise an escort of about a dozen state troopers who will run interference for an estimated 7,500 participants in the 26-mile run from Hopkinton to Boston.

Joined by officers from towns in the marathon's path, it will be Dunn's job to clear a way for the runners through the estimated one million spectators who clog the roads along the route.

"Most of the crowd is really helpful to the runners," said Dunn. "They pass out cups of water and orange slices. But sometimes they're too helpful. Some of the runners don't want help, and these people get in the way."

There are major points of congestion along the race, particularly adjacent to the lung-wrenching hills. "A lot of people like to watch them run the hills because of the degree of difficulty," explained Dunn.

"It's the place to be, where people are partying and having a good time. It isn't a disorderly crowd. It just pushes out onto the street."

Dunn, who does some running on his own, said his men often find themselves cast in the role of impromptu coaches to some of the runners.

"A lot of them talk to the guys on the motorcycle," he said. "They might tell how they think they're doing, how they feel, just to have someone to talk to."

Steelworkers vote to remain on strike

HAMPTON, Va. (AP) — Some 5,000 United Steelworkers union members overrode the recommendation of their leaders Friday and voted to stay on strike against the Newport News Shipyard. "You tell Tennessee that we're still on strike," yelled one worker as he left the meeting. Tennessee is the parent company of Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co., which runs the yard. "You tell them that they either meet our demands or they can forget it. We'll stay on strike until Hell freezes over," the worker said. Several members of United Steelworkers Local 8888 said the company will get two demands in a telegram. If the demands are met, the strikers said, they will return to work a week from Monday. If not, they will stay on strike until Hell freezes over. The workers said the demands are that they be allowed to return to the jobs they had before the walk-out and that they not be forced to sign unconditional return statements, as the company had asked. If the company agrees, said union spokesman Bill Edwards, the workers will return to their jobs a week from Monday. If not, strikers said they would stay on the picket lines in front of Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Co. Shipyard spokesman Tom Olds said the statement says that workers can't ask for pay for the time they were on strike or be returned to the specific job they held before the walkout. Olds said early Friday night the yard had not received any communication from the union and would have no comment until it did. The union planned to send the company a telegram Friday night, Edwards said. Friday's meeting had been called by officials of the United Steelworkers of America to explain why they wanted to call off the 11-week-old strike: the prospect of a legal battle lasting months, and the chance that they would lose a protracted strike. The meeting was closed, and union organizer Jack Hower refused to discuss the details of what went on. But a reporter was able to hear through a crack in the door that the crowd was in no mood to listen. # Your horoscope

By JEANE DIXON
Saturday, April 14

YOUR BIRTHDAY TODAY: Your confidence returns and life becomes more orderly. Achievement marks year's activities, both in business and in personal life. Health holds no major surprises. Entertainment activities could increase profits. Romance takes meaningful turn if single. Married partners grow closer.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Your activities today have mixed results. A friend who promises everything soon fades away. Member of opposite sex lifts your spirits. Exercise improves how you feel.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Pressures are reduced and you enjoy yourself thoroughly. Pleasure tops day's agenda. Loved ones add to joy. You get opportunity to erase past mistake.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Accent is on neighborhood activities, marriage, a special relationship that could lead to added income. Keep emotional balance and employ wit in settling domestic argument.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Look forward to happy, carefree weekend. Hobby, avocation can be money-maker. Evening is fun if you don't tread on others' toes. Intuition works overtime. Head inner voice!

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): May need to exert restraining influence. Can be moderately busy day, but prelude to active, satisfying weekend. Affairs of heart starred — good grooming, appearance helps!

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Personal plans likely to go without hitch. Help will come from unlikely source. Your position stronger than suspected with person of opposite sex.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Possible to make your cash and possessions serve some domestic advantage now. Property transactions will be fortunate. Romance should take a turn for the better.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Great day for obtaining support of influential people. Cooperative efforts favorable. Personal dilemma easier to solve. Mails, communication can be revealing.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Good time for experimenting, exploring. Short trips advantageous, especially if you combine business with pleasure. Romance is happy. Be considerate where family is concerned. Watch spending.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Friends dominate your time, energy. Gamble; speculation could pay off. Unexpected popularity will boost your spirits. Accept spontaneous invitations. Affair of heart is featured. Emotions tend to push logic aside.

AQUARIUS (Jan 20-Feb. 18): If you must work today, can expect extra income. Creative projects pay off when influential person gets involved. Show your gratitude. Romance is started, an engagement likely.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Others may act erratic. Pour on charm to advance your personal plans. Travel is starred. Trust inner voice — you could learn to observe much that affects your future.

Win At Bridge

An unlikely play

against anything but some very bad suit breaks.

South just discards a diamond from dummy on the second heart. Looks as if it violates all principles of play. South refuses to ruff a loser in dummy and discards a card that he might just as well keep.

On the other hand, the play leaves poor West as dead as dead can be. Suppose West leads a third heart. South ruffs in his own hand, cashes two top trumps and goes after clubs. Eventually South will get to dummy with the queen of trumps and discard his queen and six of diamonds.

A diamond lead from West to South's ace-queen as well as a club or trump lead will be equally futile.

By OSWALD JACOBY & ALAN SONTAG

West opens up with the ace and king of hearts. This gives South an excellent chance to ruff in dummy and complain about bad luck when neither trumps nor clubs break evenly and the diamond finesse loses. It also gives South an excellent chance to put on his thinking cap and insure his contract

Your right-hand opponent opens with one spade. Both sides are vulnerable. A Rhode Island reader asks what action should be taken.

This is one of those situations where there is no clear-cut best bid. Probably your best choice is to pass and hope to get your opponents somewhere.

Benefits OK'd for employee

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — The state Supreme Court has awarded workers' compensation to a foundry worker who whacked a coffee machine when it took his money but didn't give him any coffee. Michael DeNardo suffered a permanent arm injury after the incident in 1975, and the Worker's Compensation Commission had denied him benefits on grounds that hitting the vending machine was not part of his regular work.

But the high court ruled Thursday that if workers are injured performing a "permitted act in an improper manner" they are entitled to benefits.

"DeNardo was injured while at work as he was attempting to purchase his early morning cup of coffee so he could return to his hot-box refreshed and reinvigorated," the court said.
