Trash to Treasures event is Saturday

Bargain shoppers will be in for a treat during the eighth annual "Trash to Treasures" garage sale event to be held in Clarendon and nearby communities this Saturday, June 1.

Thirteen individual sales are scheduled to be held. A complete description of each sale is printed on the official Treasure Map located on the last page of this week's Enterprise.

From sleeping bags to Big Wheels, this weekend's sales will feature hundreds of treasures just waiting to be uncovered at bargain prices.

Other items included in this year's sales are clothes, exercise equipment, Harley Davidson seats, and more.

"Trash to Treasures" is being promoted with advertising dollars in area communities; and many people from neighboring counties attend.

After visiting all the sales, hungry shoppers are urged to stop by sale number seven where the Assembly of God Youth Group will be having a hamburger lunch from 11 a.m. til the food runs out.

Trash to Treasures is organized by The Clarendon Enterprise as a service to the community.

State House honors recognizes college

The House of Representatives of the 83rd Texas Legislature adopted a resolution this session congratulating Clarendon College on its recognition as one of the nation's most successful community colleges by CNN-Money.

The resolution also acknowledges the history of the college and promotes its achievements in providing a quality education since 1898.

A copy of the resolution will be placed on display at the college.

The Mulkey shines again...

Hundreds celebrate at Block Party

A crowd of at least 600 people attended the first ever Mulkey Block Party last Saturday, May 25, to witness the formal lighting of Clarendon's historic theatre.

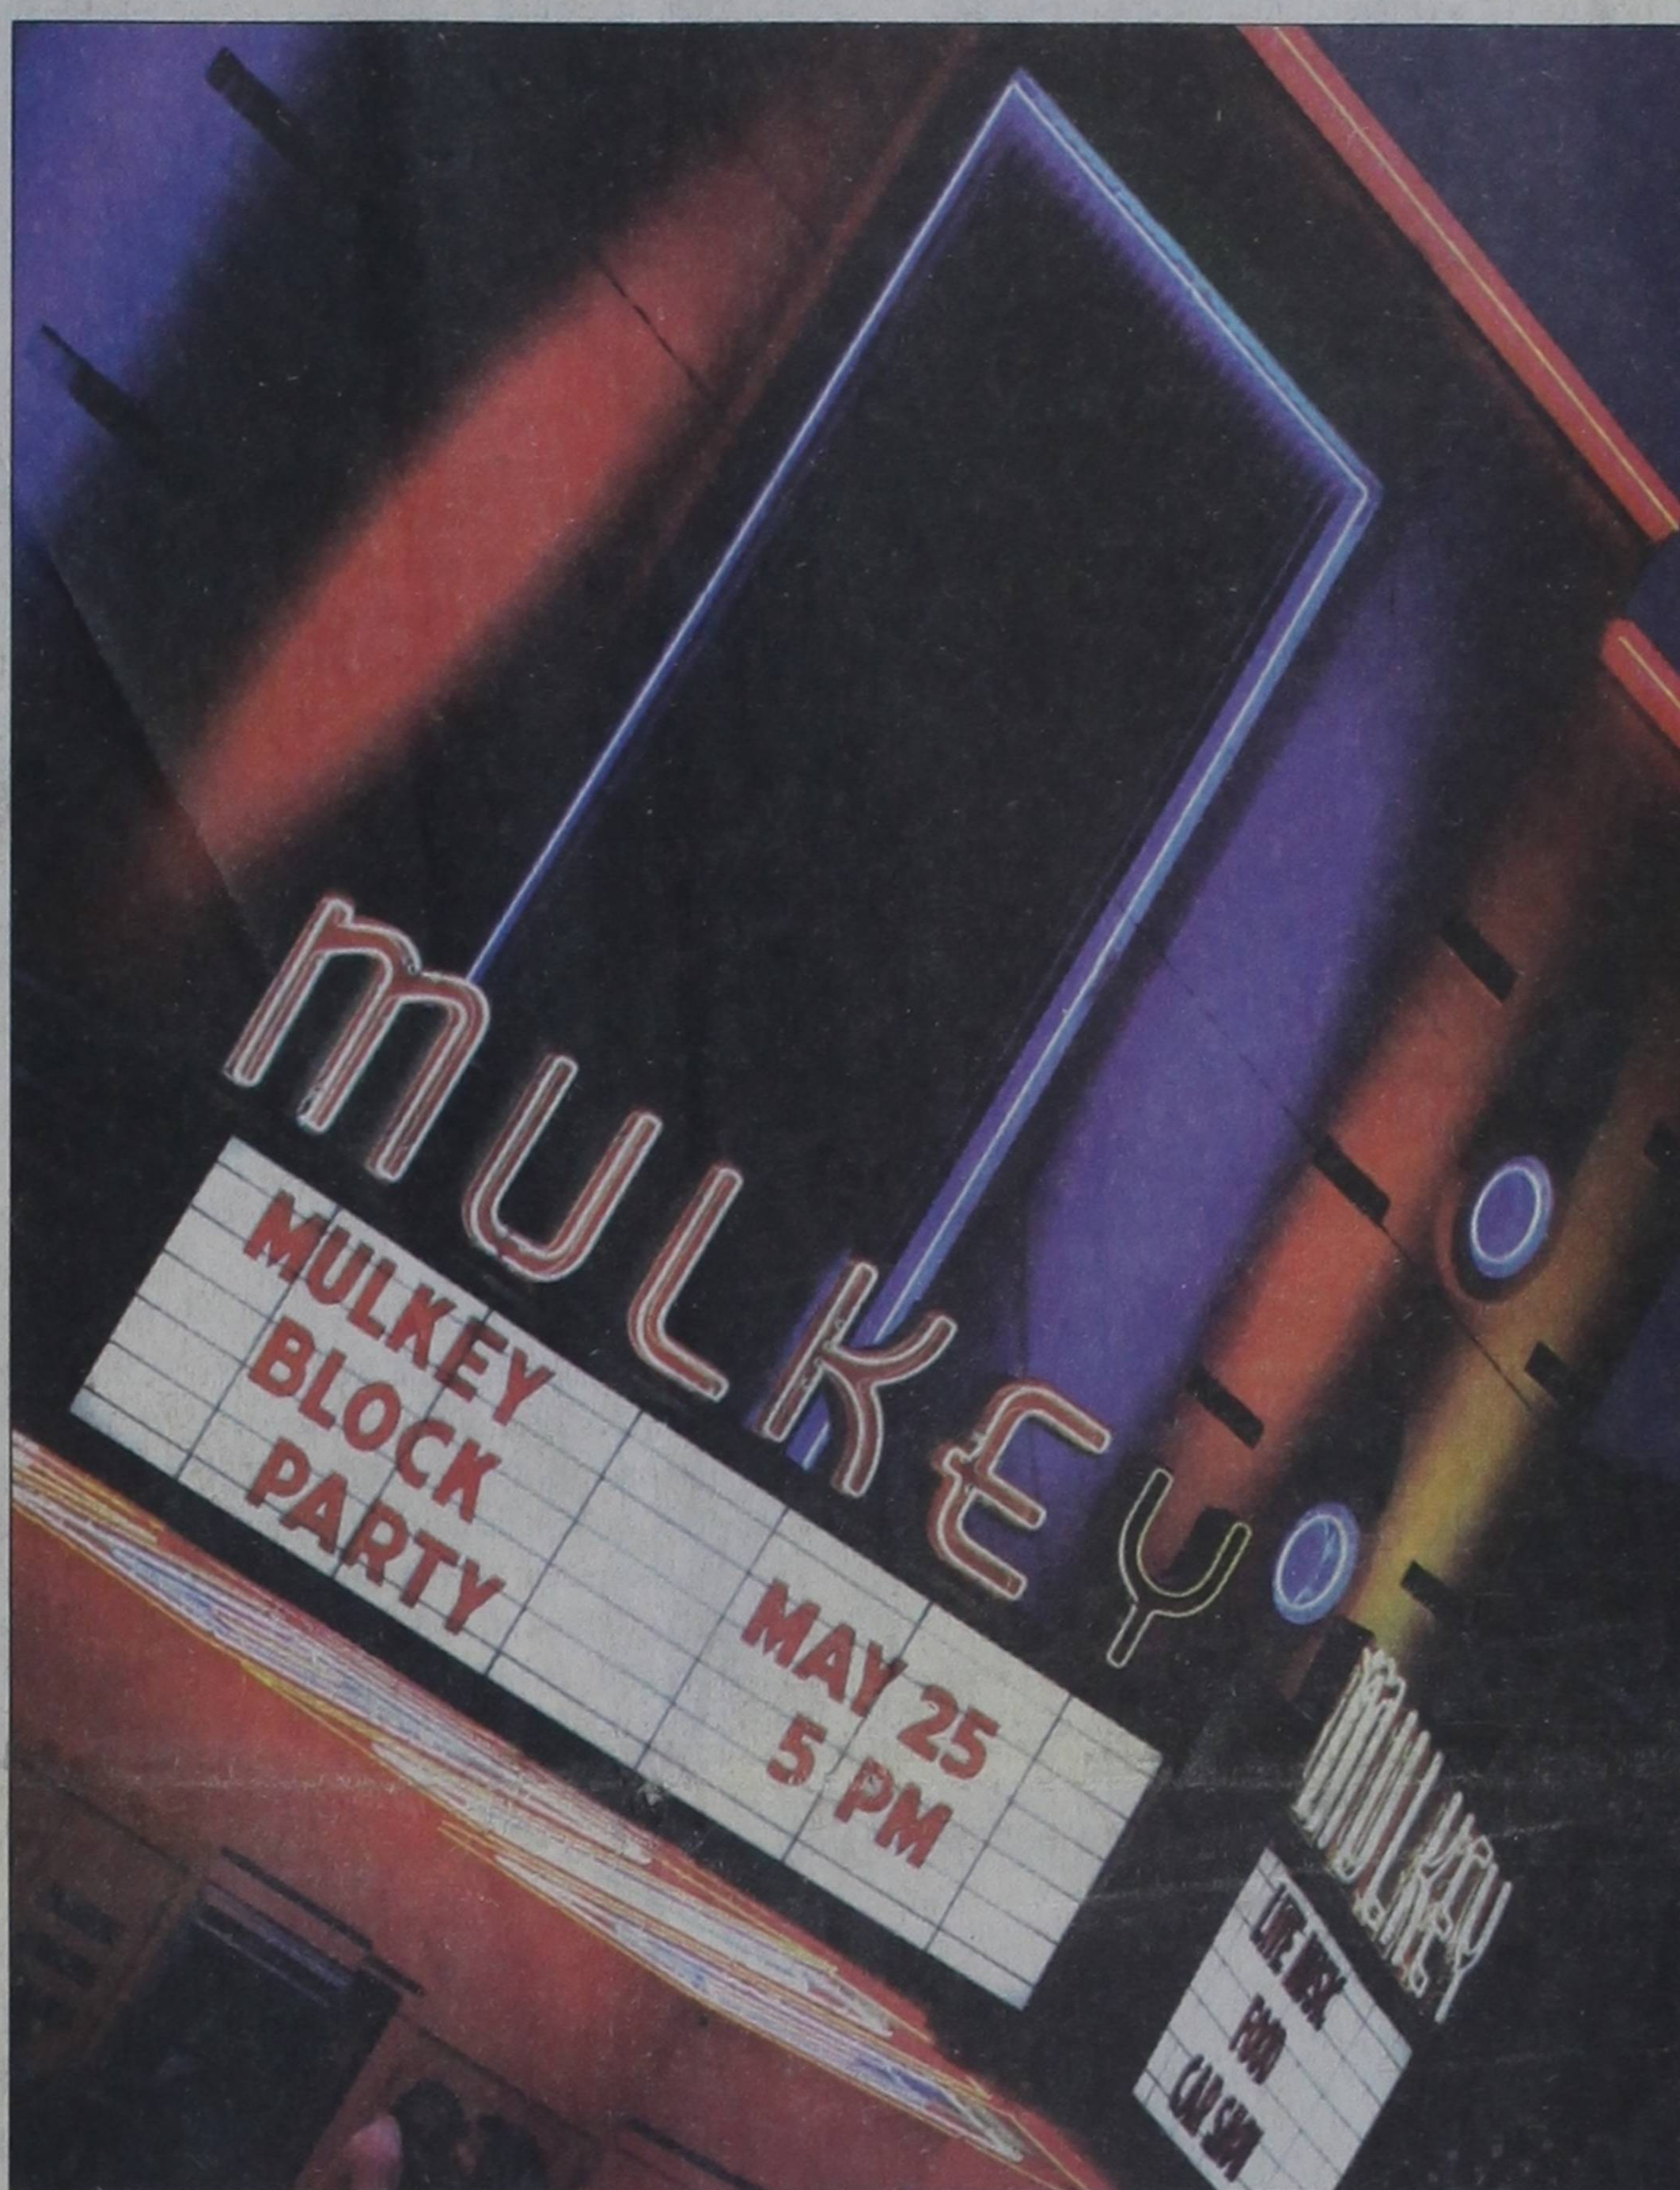

The event was hosted by the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation and an advisory committee and marked the completion of a $140,000 Phase One Exterior Renovation to the movie house.

Due to the Memorial Day holiday, figures were not complete for how much the event raised to kick off Phase Two Interior Renovations, but the Block Party was widely hailed as a success by those in attendance who enjoyed the fun, music, food, dancing, and booths on Kearney Street.

Steve Hall and Jesse Lincycumb warmed up the crowd before one of the best bands in the Panhandle, Insufficient Funds, took the stage and wowed the crowd with a wide range of popular music and rock and roll.

Several kids activities were available as well as food booths, and tours of the Mulkey were popular as well.

Organizers said they intend to make the Mulkey Block Party an annual event to continue public support for the ongoing rehabilitation of the theatre.

New neon and LED lighting give the Mulkey Theatre a fresh look. The theatre will be lit nightly, and LED floodlights will change colors seasonally and for special events.

CISD tax election is June 1

Voters in the Clarendon Consolidated Independent School District head to the polls this Saturday, June 1, to determine the fate of a 13-cent property tax increase.

As of Tuesday afternoon, 181 people had cast early ballots to accept or reject a new ad valorem tax rate of $1.17 per $100 valuation.

The school's current tax rate is $1.04 and is the maximum the school district can levy without seeking voter approval. The proposed 13-cent increase would raise taxes on a $100,000 home by $130 per year. If it is approved by voters, the higher rate would generate $165,570 in local revenue and an additional $145,228 from the state for a total of $310,798 in new money.

CISD officials say they need that money to help bridge a projected $434,960 budget deficit for 2013-2014. The school has been hit with declining revenues due to state budget cuts and declining enrollment.

The school is publishing information on page ten of this week's Enterprise detailing the district's tax rate history, the cuts in state funding, and the continuing drop in enrollment.

Balloting this Saturday will be at the CISD Administration Building from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Kids' College begins at CC next Monday

Kids' College classes at Clarendon College start Monday.

More than 30 courses will be offered in the months of June, July, and August for kids ages 4-15.

"We have a wide variety of classes for kids and teens this summer, and we've set the schedule up so that even kids who go on vacation can still hopefully attend a portion of the offerings," CC Marketing Coordinator Ashlee Estlack said.

This year's courses feature popular returners from last year including Let's Have a Tea Party, Take Home a Pet Tornado, Erupt a Volcano, and Make an Ocean in a Bottle. New to this year's schedule are Ballet & Tap, Nature Art, A Pirate's Life, Cheerleading Camp, Cowboy Camp, and much more.

"One class we are particularly excited to offer is Basics in Babysitting," Estlack said. "This course is taught by the American Red Cross and is graciously underwritten by the City of Clarendon in order to make it affordable for the students."

The babysitting class is for anyone ages 11 to 15, features training in first aid and home safety, and is ideal for anyone interested in babysitting neighbors or relatives.

"This is the perfect class for pre-teens and teens looking for a way to make a little spending money this summer and upcoming school year babysitting," Estlack said.

Students can be registered up until 3:00 p.m. the day before any class starts. The first classes start Monday, June 3, and the last course will end Wednesday, August 14.

For more information, visit the Student Services office in the Instructional Center or visit www.clarendoncollege.edu or call Estlack at 806-874-4808. CC is open Monday to Thursday 7:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. and Friday 7:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m.

Court sentences Brown to 33 years in prison

A Clarendon man who escaped from the Donley County Jail in March was sentenced to 30 years in state prison last week as part of a plea agreement when the district court met here Monday, May 20.

Torrence Eugene Smith was convicted for the first degree felony offense of escape causing bodily injury, enhanced. Smith pleaded guilty for the offense that took place on March 5, 2013, and was sentenced to 30 years in the Institutional

Division of Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Smith was arrested in Gray County after an escape from the Donley County jail by Donley County Deputy Vincent "Sonny" Marasco, according to Inman.

One jailer was injured during the escape which caused this felony of escape to be enhanced to a second degree felony, according to court documents.

"This was a very unfortunate incident for the jailer that was injured, and we were just lucky that serious injuries were avoided by the swift action taken by the Donley County Sheriff's Office," said Inman.

Smith, 40-year-old resident of Clarendon, was indicted by a Donley County Grand Jury on April 2, 2013.

Inman filed an enhancement notice due to a previous felony conviction out of Potter County, making this second degree felony offense punishable as a first degree felony.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Smith is required to pay $473 in court costs to Donley County.

In all, the court heard four pleas here last week which resulted in three convictions and one deferred adjudication. There were also two contested revocation hearings that resulted in the conviction of two defendants.

Phase One completed, the future looks bright

Wow! What a party we had last Saturday night on Kearney Street!

Our community took a well-deserved rest on the long road to Bring Back the Mulkey and celebrated the official lighting of the theatre with lots of fanfare and good, old-fashioned fun.

Getting an accurate headcount for the evening was nearly impossible with people milling about up and down Kearney Street in front of the Mulkey, wandering into the car show on the Herring Bank parking lot, slipping off to First Street for the kids' bounce houses, and going in and out of the theatre itself. A sheriff's deputy estimated that as many as 1,000 people may have attended over the course of the four-hour event. Your humble editor counted nearly 600 at one time by "eyeballing it."

As this column has said many times in the past, there is not much that Clarendon and Donley County cannot do if its people work together, and the Mulkey Theatre project is an example of that. As with any endeavor, there are a few naysayers out there, but overall the Mulkey has enjoyed broad support from folks of all ages, all walks of life, and even folks who might otherwise have some opposing political views. But by and large, we can all see that a revived Mulkey Theatre can be nothing but good for Clarendon.

Since work began on front of the theatre, there has been renewed interest in downtown. New shops have opened up in previously vacant buildings, and next month another new business will open in the building adjoining the Mulkey to the north – a building that has been nothing but storage for about four decades.

Is the Mulkey project responsible for this uptick? Probably not on its own, but I think it is part of a mix of things that includes the Clarendon Economic Development Corporation's Façade Grant Program, which has pumped about $17,000 into storefronts on Kearney Street in the form of matching grants ranging from just over $80 up to $2,000.

The future is bright and getting brighter. As we go to press, the CEDC and city officials are considering an application for a downtown revitalization grant that, if successful, would help pay for new street lights and address accessibility issues on Kearney Street.

The CEDC believes the Mulkey can be a catalyst for all kinds of improvements downtown, and that project is by no means close to being finished. The CEDC purchased the theatre in 2008, and it has taken time to get to this point. Funding and completing Phase Two – Interior Renovations will also take a lot of time, energy, and, of course, money; but when it's done, the Mulkey will again be a first rate movie theatre and serve as an even more functional Visitor Center. Phase Three then will be to extend the small stage in the Mulkey and add more audio and lighting capabilities in order to host live performances like the Ritz does in Wellington.

In December, my wife, Ashlee, and I attended an Oak Ridge Boys concert at the Ritz, and I think our imaginations – as well as those of dozens of people in attendance from Clarendon – were on fire with the possibilities of the Mulkey one day hosting that kind of entertainment.

The Mulkey project has been fortunate to have good supporters thus far from people who have opened their wallets to assist the project to a host of volunteers who have done whatever was asked of them. It has had support from preservationists across the state and from local politicians at home. Clarendon and its theatre owes a debt of gratitude to everyone involved in this project, and I want to especially thank my colleagues on the CEDC Board – Bill Stavenhagen, Terri Floyd, Sherol Johnston, Steve Hall, Abby Patten, and Ann Huey as well as former board members Bob Watson, Terry Noble, and Will Thompson – all of whom have put in a lot of thought and love into this project. And we are also fortunate to have our Executive Director, Chandra Eggemeyer, who has focused so much time and talent on this project, as well her husband, Jared, who is always there to lend a hand.

Going forward, the Mulkey needs all of us to stand behind it, promote it, and bolster it. To succeed in Phases Two and Three, the project will need grants and donations of sizeable amounts. But it also needs the support of the community.

We have two generations who have never seen a movie at the Mulkey. Let's change that. Let's get behind this project and take the next steps. We owe it to ourselves to save our heritage and to our children and grandchildren to preserve this piece of the past and give them the gift of culture, entertainment, and a love of the visual and performing arts.

Keep the lights shining, and let's get busy and make the inside just as glorious as the outside. Let's work together to "Bring Back the Mulkey!"

To make a tax-deductible donation to the Mulkey project, call 806-874-2421 or send your check or money order to the Clarendon Community Fund, c/o Amarillo Area Foundation, 801 S. Fillmore, Amarillo, TX 79101.

Earth warming, sky falling... not yet

Well, once again, the scientists have spoken – telling tales of woe and fearsome future climate threats to our children and grandchildren, not to mention the threat of Texas getting hotter still. Jeez! What to do? What to think?

According to recent scientific pontifications, the average carbon dioxide reading surpassed 400 parts per million at the research facility sitting atop the Mauna Loa volcano on the big island of Hawaii for the 24 hours that ended at 8 p.m. on Thursday, May 23, 2013.

The level of the most important heat trapping gas in the atmosphere, carbon dioxide, has passed a long-feared milestone, the aforementioned scientists reported last Friday, reaching a concentration not seen on earth for over three million years, during the Pliocene epoch. Geological research shows that the climate way back then was considerably toastier than it is today, the world's ice caps were smaller, and the sea levels might (they don't know for sure) have been 60 or 80 feet higher.

While the experts fear that humanity may be precipitating a return to such conditions, the predicted global warming, which is supposed to follow such a drastic level of CO₂, has not occurred and there is no indication that such a warming period is on the immediate horizon.

While the experts claim that billions of people are now in harm's way if the oceans suddenly rise 60 or 80 feet, I'm a bit (a lot, actually) more concerned about the projected increase in the warming of our beloved Texas. In case folks haven't noticed, it gets hot here – really hot. As they say, "Texas may not be Hell but you can see it from here."

Now I'm reasonably sure that all the CO₂ we are pumping into the atmosphere is not particularly helpful. It may even be harmful, and probably is. The point is that the scientists have already lost the political battles around the world, and there will not be any significant remedial legislation coming from world at large.

The international economic crises have pretty much dimmed any hopes that scientists once held that something constructive would be done to ameliorate the situation. Given the choice of cleansing the air of CO₂ or providing for the economic necessities of the people is a no-brainer. Governments will take care of the basic needs of their people long before cooperating on some sort of unproven global clean-up campaign that could create all sorts of civil unrest and bloody chaos in their respective countries.

After all, climate change contrarians, who have little scientific credibility but are politically influential in Washington, Beijing, etc., point out that spending a huge amount of capital to reduce our carbon footprint will only result in depressed economies and job losses.

The scary thing is that many scientists have come to their senses and realized that they have lost the political battle, and are now in favor of using "geoengineering" to offset the negative effects of man-made climate change. Relentlessly rising greenhouse-gas emissions, and their fear that the earth might enter into a climate emergency from which there would be no return, have prompted many of the aforementioned climate scientists to conclude that we urgently need a Plan B: geoengineering.

While some geoengineering proposals, like launching a cloud of mirrors into space to deflect some of the sun's heat, sound like science fiction, the more serious schemes require no insurmountable technical feats of wonder. Two or three of these schemes rely on technology that is readily available and could be quickly deployed.

One prominent scheme, for example, involves extracting carbon dioxide directly from the air. While harmless in itself, as long as we can find somewhere safe to bury enormous volumes of it for centuries, it would require air sucking machinery about 30 feet in height and 18 miles in length, as well as huge collection facilities and a network of equipment to transport and store the stuff underground.

However, great anxieties arise from those geoengineering technologies designed to intervene in the functioning of the earth system as a whole. They include ocean iron fertilization and sulfate aerosol spraying, each of which now has a scientific-commercial constituency.

How confident are we, even after research and testing, that the chosen technology will work as planned? After all, ocean fertilization – spreading iron slurry across the seas to persuade them to soak up more carbon dioxide – means changing the chemical composition and biological functioning of the oceans. What will this do to those tasty butterfly shrimp I love so much?

What if we envelope the earth with a layer of sulfate particles to cool Texas down a bit by regulating the amount of solar radiation reaching the earth's surface? What will happen if such an action results in a drought in India or Pakistan? Would we know whether it was caused by global warming, the solar filter, or natural variability? If India or Pakistan responded by shooting something into the atmosphere to reverse what we did to reduce temperatures in Texas, could we stop them from doing so? If India suffered from the effects of global dimming while Texas enjoyed more clement weather, it would be very important which people had its hand on the global thermostat.

Who would be turning the dial on the earth's climate? Research is now concentrated in the United States, Britain, and Germany, even though China recently added geoengineering to its research priorities.

Whatever we do, we must be careful, lest we destroy the earth through conflicts about who gets to control Mother Nature, assuming of course, that she is amenable to being controlled. She does, after all, have quite a bite.

Champions of freedom deliver

By Donnis Baggett, Texas Press Association

When the dust settles from another hard-fought legislative session, the people of Texas will have a clearer picture of current events in the Lone Star State, thanks to the hard work and determination of two Texas statesmen – one Republican, one Democrat.

Rep. Todd Hunter, R-Corpus Christi, and Sen. Rodney Ellis, D-Houston, scored major transparency victories in the 83rd Legislature. Three of those victories will be particularly helpful in strengthening and clarifying the public's right to complete and accurate information.

One crucial bill that Ellis and Hunter shepherded through the legislative dust storm strengthens a crucial First Amendment law they passed two years ago.

That law took aim at legal actions known as Strategic Lawsuits Against Public Participation (SLAPP) – suits filed against whistleblowers by individuals or entities who have plenty of money to pay lawyers.

SLAPP suits are designed to intimidate and stifle those who dare to exercise their First Amendment rights. Thanks to the 2011 law, however, it was finally possible for a David Q. Citizen with meager resources to defend himself against a SLAPP suit filed by a deep-pocketed Goliath.

Unfortunately, an appeals court ruled that the 2011 law did not include certain appeal rights for David. If a judge ruled against David's motion to dismiss Goliath's suit early in the process, David could very quickly find himself bankrupted by the expensive discovery process following that denial.

The legal tweak pushed through the 2013 session by Hunter and Ellis makes it crystal clear that David does, indeed, have a right to appeal, thereby stopping the discovery process until the motion is heard on appeal. It is a major victory for those who believe the quality of justice shouldn't be determined by the depth of one's pocketbook.

Another measure championed by Ellis and Hunter makes it clear that a government official's use of his private electronic device for messages regarding public business does not allow him to hide those messages from public scrutiny.

In recent years, a number of local officials across Texas have maintained that their government-related messages are no business of the public so long as the official uses his private device to send or receive them. Texas attorneys general have consistently ruled against that strained and arrogant line of reasoning, but officials continue to try to evade Texas' open records laws anyway.

Once signed by the governor, the law will establish in black and white that citizens do indeed have the right to access these electronic messages about the public's business. There should be no doubt going forward that if a public official is discussing public business in cyberspace, those messages are, yes, public – regardless of whether they're transmitted on the official's government computer or his personal e-tablet.

The third bill enhances public discourse by establishing clear and fair rules for prompt corrections by publishers. Until now, there was no established legal framework for a citizen to request a correction, nor were there guidelines for publishers to follow in addressing that request. The new law establishes clear processes and deadlines, which will result in the record being corrected quickly and fully when a mistake is made.

None of these important legal advances would have happened without the hard work and legislative prowess of Hunter and Ellis. For decades the two veteran lawmakers have fought hard – often against daunting opposition – to expand and protect citizens' access to government information and journalists' right to cover the complex issues that affect our daily lives.

The 83rd Legislative Session of the Texas Legislature saw these two veteran legislators from different parties – men who do not consider the First Amendment a partisan issue – at the top of their game. And because they were at the top of their game, the citizens of Texas can see more clearly now.

prosecuted the cases for the State of Texas with the Honorable Judge Stuart Messer presiding. A total of $9,500 in fines was assessed as a result of the pleas that took place on May 20. In addition to the fines, the defendants were required to pay a total of $2,561 in court costs and $1,085 restitution.

Other defendants included, Francisco Salazar, Richard Polmon, Nicholas Ryan Clubb, Todd Randall Phillips, and Lucinda Jean Hearn.

Francisco Salazar, a 54-year-old resident of Memphis, pleaded true to allegations listed in the State's Motion to Revoke and was convicted and sentenced to five years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ.

On February 21, 2012, Salazar originally pleaded guilty to the third degree felony offense of DWI 3rd or more that occurred on January 1, 2012, in Hall County.

The State filed the motion to revoke on January 10, 2013, alleging six violations of community supervision.

Salazar pleaded true to all of the violations contained in the State's motion in an agreed plea and was sentenced to five years. Salazar is also required to pay $376 in court costs to Hall County, a $3,000 fine, and $140 restitution.

Richard Polmon, a 58-year-old resident of Amarillo, pleaded not true to allegations listed in the State's Motion to Adjudicate and was convicted and sentenced to 10 years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ.

On July 13, 2011, Polmon originally pleaded guilty to the third degree felony offense of injury to elderly that occurred on May 8, 2011, in Donley County.

The State filed the motion to adjudicate on December 14, 2012, alleging seven violations of community supervision.

Polmon pleaded not true to all of the violations contained in the State's motion. The state called three witnesses. Polmon denied the consumption of alcohol on the date of his arrest for DWI, and testified that the 42 ounce Budweiser beer bottle in the front driver's floorboard was left by a hitchhiker he had picked up in Memphis.

After all the testimony was present, Polmon was sentenced to 10 years. Polmon is also required to pay $383 in court costs to Donley County and a $1,000 fine.

Nicholas Ryan Clubb, a 28-year-old resident of Hedley, pleaded true to one allegation listed in the State's Motion to Adjudicate and was convicted and sentenced to 18 years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ.

On September 20, 2012, Clubb originally pleaded guilty to the second degree felony offense of burglary of a habitation that occurred on March 9, 2012, in Donley County.

The State filed the motion to adjudicate on April 8, 2013, alleging six violations of community supervision.

Clubb pleaded true to one of the violations contained in the State's motion.

After the plea of true to methamphetamine and alcohol consumption while he was on felony probation, a contested punishment hearing was held.

Clubb admitted to drinking alcoholic beverages on the night of March 17 that led to a one-car accident where Clubb's vehicle was completely totaled in Donley County. The vehicle was owned by his grandmother.

Clubb walked to a nearby travel trailer and entered without the consent of the owner. Clubb fell asleep after he helped himself to several Dr Peppers and a sweatshirt, according to his testimony.

After hearing all the evidence, Clubb was sentenced to 18 years. Clubb is also required to pay $473 in court costs to Donley County and a $4,000 fine.

Todd Randall Phillips was convicted for the second degree felony offense of aggravated assault. Phillips pleaded guilty for the offense that took place on November 5, 2012 and was sentenced to seven years in the Institutional Division of Texas Department of Criminal Justice.

Phillips, 42-year-old resident of Clarendon, was arrested by Donley County and was indicted by a Donley County Grand Jury on April 2, 2013.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Phillips is required to pay $383 in court costs to Donley County.

Lucinda Jean Hearn was placed on probation for a period of three years for the third degree felony offense of forgery against elderly individual. Hearn pleaded guilty and was placed on deferred adjudication for the offense.

Hearn, 32-year-old resident of Amarillo, was arrested for the offense that took place December 18, 2012 and was indicted by a Donley County Grand Jury on April 2, 2013.

Pursuant to the plea agreement, Hearn is required to pay a $1,500 fine to Donley County, $473 in court costs, $945 restitution, and successfully complete 200 hours of community service. If Hearn violates probation, she could face up to ten years in the Institutional Division of the TDCJ.

Nine four-person teams participated in the Annual Memorial Day 18-hole Scramble held Monday at the Clarendon Country Club.

The team of George Leathers, Joe Minkley, Chris Moore, and Sunday Morris took the top spot at ten under par. The team of Mike Santos, Redell Johnston, Bob Hornberger, and Diego Santos tied with the team of Jeff Anderberg, Billy Pope, Sandy Anderberg, and Kade Wilcox for second place with nine under par.

All five teams came in tied at three under par in the Friday night nine-hole scramble and the winner was determined on a two-hole putt off. The team of Kaleb Wood, Daniel Burcham, Michael Thompson, and Raylyn Shelton earned first place.

There will be a Three-Person Shamble held June 1-2 at the CCC beginning at 8:30 a.m. and 1:30 p.m. on Saturday. Hedley Senior Citizens to raffle hunting package

Happy birthday to Buford Holland. He turned 90 on May 23. He is a special person around Hedley. June 29 another special person is celebrating her 90th birthday, and that is Eunice Ward. She is having a party at the Hedley Baptist Church from 2-4 p.m. (no gifts). Please tell these wonderful people Happy Birthday the next time you see them.

On June 15, there will be a baby shower for B.J. (Like) Waddell from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. at 605 W. 7th, Clarendon. Her theme is pink, purple, and white, and Miss Aliceson Gail will make her appearance around August 9, 2013.

The Hedley Senior Citizens will be out and about selling raffle tickets for the Cotton Festival. We have a $1,500 Hunting Package which includes a 12ga Benelli semi-auto shotgun (with an 11 year warranty), one case of ammo, one gun case, one hunting vest, one camo duffle bag, one canopy chair, one camp end table, one bucket with swivel chair and a few dove decoys. Some items donated by Gander Mountain in Amarillo.

Recipe:

No Bake Strawberry Icebox Cake: 3 pounds fresh strawberries, sliced, 2 - (8oz) tubs fat-free whipped topping (or use regular or light), 1 - (14.4oz) box graham crackers, ¼ cup milk chocolate chip morsels.

Spread a small amount of whipped topping on the bottom of a 9x13 baking pan. Place 5 graham cracker sheets down the middle and break 2 more sheets into crackers to fit down the sides.

Lightly cover the top of the gram crackers with more whipped topping and then a layer of sliced strawberries. Repeat three times, until you have four layers of graham crackers (you may be a few crackers short on the top layer, but that's ok). You'll end with a layer of strawberries on top. Place milk chocolate chip morsels in a plastic bag.

Microwave in 10 second intervals until melted. Snip the end of the plastic bag and drizzle chocolate over top of cake. Refrigerate covered for a least four hours, or until the crackers have softened completely. Cake will last well for two days. It will still be good on the third day, but the strawberries will start to get juicy and leak into the whipped topping. It will still taste good, but it won't be as pretty.

Saints' Roost Museum to host Hawaiian Luau

The Saint's Roost Museum Board of Directors will be hosting the annual members only appreciation dinner on the grounds of the museum Friday evening, June 7th, at 6:30 p.m. This is going to be a really fun evening as a Hawaiian Luau is being planned.

The featured guest artist this year is our own local artist, Mary Martin. Mary grew up on a farm in Lakeview and graduated from Lakeview High School. She attended Clarendon College, graduating in 1970. She married Mitchell Martin that summer. They have one daughter, Jessie, and four grandchildren.

Mary has always loved art and started sketching at a very early age.

She did not begin painting until after she and Mitchell married. Mary's earliest paintings were mostly portraits and scenery. She has also done lots of western art and still life. Her love of western art and scenery probably derived from being a rancher's wife and living on ranches.

Mary retired from the USDA's Farm Service Agency in November 2012 and now has time to pursue her passion of painting. Not ready to really retire, Mary is working to build a business and do paintings for the public.

Mary will have several paintings on display in the museum for all to view and enjoy.

If you are not already a museum member, we urge you to come on out and enjoy the evening. Annual memberships are available at the door for $25.00 annually per family.

Clarendon Health Fair another success

The 2013 Donley County Health Fair hosted by Texas A&M AgriLife Service was a big success thanks to sponsors Clarendon College, Clarendon Family Medical Center, Donley County Hospital District, Mike's Pharmacy and Donley County Area Tourism Council. There were over 200 attendees that came out and took advantage of all the services that were offered by the 27 companies and organizations that participated in the fair.

Coffee Memorial Blood Center also reported a very successful effort with 36 donors giving 23 pints. This is 8 more pints than what they expected to collect according to Janne Lawrence, Coffee Memorial Representative.

Donley County Extension Agent Leonard Haynes would like to thank everyone who came out to participate, offer services, and help sponsor and advertise this successful event.

Participating in Hedley's Field Day is Berkley Moore, Adrianna Villarreal, and Nolan Harrison.

Drugs in the News

Potential Vitamin Treatment for Liver Fibrosis

According to a new study published in the medical journal Cell, a synthetic form of Vitamin D called calcipotriol may be useful for the treatment of liver fibrosis (hardening), a condition for which there is no current approved drug therapy. The scientists involved in the study indicate that this vitamin deactivates a genetic switch in an area of liver cell test animals that controls the hardening of the liver. When liver cells are damaged, it can lead to cirrhosis of the liver and possibly liver cancer. Those involved in the study explain that there are vitamin D receptors located in the liver that led them to consider this vitamin in one or more studies involving liver damage. They report that clinical trials using synthetic vitamin D (which appears to be less susceptible to breakdown compared to natural vitamin D) are being planned.

The most common causes for liver fibrosis include infection from hepatitis B and hepatitis C viruses. There are blood tests that provide a diagnostic marker for fibrosis of the liver. However, health experts indicated that a liver biopsy is the most accurate way to diagnose this condition.

CC offers $500 to area graduates

Clarendon College is pleased to announce a new scholarship opportunity for service area high school graduates – the Bulldog Bucks Tuition Assistance Program.

Clarendon College has committed to providing available resources through the Bulldog Bucks Program to assist every graduating high school senior in the service area in paying for college.

The Bulldog Bucks program will aid in covering a student's fall and spring tuition, fees, books and housing costs for the first year of college following a student's high school graduation.

"We are proud of our area high school graduates and as a sign of our dedication to the higher education of these students we are awarding each graduate a $500 scholarship," CC President Dr. Phil Shirley.

"We hope this contribution will help each student unleash their potential as they work to achieve their future dreams and endeavors."

The scholarship is to be redeemed during the first-year following high school graduation and will be divided equally between the fall and spring semesters for full-time enrollment.

To be eligible for Bulldog Bucks, students must graduate high school from a school district located in Armstrong, Briscoe, Childress, Collingsworth, Donley, Gray, Hall or Wheeler counties; enroll full-time (12 credit hours) in the first Fall or Spring semester after graduating from high school; and complete the Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA).

For more information on the Bulldog Bucks program, please contact the college at 1-800-687-9737.

Producers can enroll now for CRP program

Secretary of Agriculture Tom Vilsack this week reminded farmers and ranchers that the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) will conduct a four-week Conservation Reserve Program (CRP) general sign-up to end on June 14.

Vilsack also announced the restart of sign-up for continuous CRP, including the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, State Acres for Wildlife Enhancement Initiative, the Highly Erodible Land Initiative, the Grassland Restoration Initiative, the Pollinator Habitat Initiative and other related initiatives. Sign-up for continuous CRP began on May 13 and will continue through Sept. 30, 2013.

"As always, we expect strong competition to enroll acres into CRP, and we urge interested producers to maximize their environmental benefits and to make cost-effective offers," said Vilsack.

"CRP is an important program for protecting environmentally sensitive lands from erosion and sedimentation, and for ensuring the sustainability of our groundwater, lakes, rivers, ponds and streams. Through the voluntary participation of our farmers and ranchers, CRP helps us to protect our natural resources, preserve wildlife habitat and bring good paying jobs to rural America related to hunting, fishing, and outdoor recreation."

Vilsack encouraged producers to look into CRP's other enrollment opportunities offered on a continuous, non-competitive, sign-up basis.

CRP has a 27-year legacy of successfully protecting the nation's natural resources through voluntary participation, while providing significant economic and environmental benefits to rural communities across the United States.

Producers enrolled in CRP plant long-term, resource-conserving covers to improve the quality of water, control soil erosion and develop wildlife habitat. In return, USDA provides participants with rental payments and cost-share assistance. Contract duration is between 10 and 15 years.

Currently, 27 million acres are enrolled in CRP through 700,000 contracts on 390,000 farms throughout the U.S., with enrollment in 49 states and Puerto Rico. Contracts on an estimated 3.3 million acres will expire on Sept. 30, 2013. Enrollment authority for all types of CRP, which had expired Sept. 30, 2012, was extended through 2013 by the American Taxpayer Relief Act of 2012.

Offers for general sign-up CRP contracts are ranked according to an Environmental Benefits Index (EBI). USDA's Farm Service Agency (FSA) collects data for each of the EBI factors based on the relative environmental benefits for the land offered.

FSA uses the following factors to assess the environmental benefits for the land offered: Wildlife habitat benefits resulting from covers on contract acreage; Water quality benefits from reduced erosion, runoff and leaching; On-farm benefits from reduced erosion; Benefits that will likely endure beyond the contract period; Air quality benefits from reduced wind erosion; and Cost.

For more information on CRP and other FSA programs, visit a local FSA service center or www.fsa.usda.gov.
