Texans Find Gas Crisis Easing Outside Big Cities

By The Associated Press

Gasoline availability has improved over the last week, but it's still not up to average in the big cities, according to a survey by the American Automobile Association.

The AAA's Wayne King reports more stations are cutting down operating hours, even where gas is available.

"There's been a steady decline in 24-hour availability," King said. "It's down to about 5 percent of the ones we call.

"Still, along the interstates anybody driving during daylight hours shouldn't have any problems, unless he goes into a big city."

The situation in Houston, Dallas and Fort Worth should be further improved, King said, if Gov. Bill Clements shifts gasoline from rural areas to the cities.

Prices also continue to increase, rising 1.1 to 1.9 cents per gallon during the week.

The highest price the AAA found for gasoline was 99.9 for premium unleaded at a self-serve Shell station in Houston. The lowest price for gas was also in Houston — 73.9 for regular at a self-serve Tenneco station.

The highest price for any fuel was $1.05.8 for diesel at a Skelly station in Temple.

Statewide the number of stations out of one or another grade of gasoline has declined, from 13 percent last week to 10 percent this week.

Here is the expected availability of gasoline as indicated by the AAA survey of 414 stations:

AMARILLO — 36 stations surveyed, supplies better than statewide average, 58 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 27 percent closed by 6 p.m. Saturday and 63 percent closed Sunday.

AUSTIN — 15 stations, 93 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 6 p.m. Saturday and Sunday.

DALLAS — 38 stations, very tight supplies with all stations closed by 8 p.m. weekdays and only 5 percent open after 6 p.m. Saturday or Sunday.

EL PASO — 30 stations, abundant supplies, with 63 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 20 percent closed Saturday by 6 p.m. and 67 percent closed Sunday.

FORT WORTH — 27 stations, somewhat better than last week, but 89 percent still closed by 8 p.m. weekdays and 6 p.m. Saturday and 85 percent closed Sunday.

HOUSTON — 56 stations, still tight supplies with 95 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 88 percent closed by 6 p.m. Saturday and 89 percent closed Sunday.

MIDLAND-ODESSA — 15 stations, supplies abundant, with 47 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 13 percent closed by 6 p.m. Saturday and 33 percent closed Sunday.

SAN ANTONIO — 40 stations, still somewhat better than other major cities, 70 percent closed by 8 p.m. weekdays, 60 percent closed by 6 p.m. Saturday and 78 percent closed Sunday.

Jobless Rate Dip Boosts Outlook

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate fell to 5.6 percent in June, the lowest level in nearly five years, the government said today.

At the same time, wholesale prices continued to moderate, rising only 0.5 percent last month, the Labor Department said.

Food prices actually declined 1.2 percent, thanks to sharp drops in the prices of beef, pork and poultry. Non-food items rose 1.1 percent, with sharp advances in petroleum prices taking the blame.

Both the unemployment and wholesale price figures were good news for American consumers. The economy is girding for the impact of more oil price increases that will result from the recent decision by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries to raise crude oil prices an average of 25 percent.

President Carter and his aides have said the OPEC increase will cost 800,000 Americans their jobs by mid-1980 and add between 2 and 2.5 percentage points to the U.S. inflation rate.

The Federal Reserve Board reported meanwhile that consumers borrowed a record $28 billion in May, but also paid off a record $24.3 billion in outstanding debt. As a result, total consumer debt declined from $4 billion in April to $3.7 billion in May.

The unemployment rate had held steady in the range of 5.7 percent to 5.9 percent for the past 10 months. The decline to 5.6 percent in June, the lowest level since August 1974, "was due almost entirely to a drop in teen-age joblessness," said Labor Department analyst Kathryn Hoyle.

"The number of unemployed teenagers fell by 130,000 in June, while their unemployment rate dropped from 16.8 percent to 15.3 percent," the report said.

Mrs. Hoyle said that although the figures are seasonally adjusted to account for changes such as heavy summer hiring, some of the improvement in teenage unemployment likely was due to summer job programs.

The unemployment rate had been 5.8 percent in May. It averaged 5.7 percent in both the first and second quarters of 1979, compared with about 6 percent a year earlier.

The number of unemployed in June was nearly 5.8 million persons.

Total employment rose by 440,000 last month, to 96.8 million, the Labor Department said. The employment gain in May had been only 140,000 jobs.

The department said employment recently has been rising by about 300,000 jobs per month and now stands 2.1 million ahead of June 1978.

There are, however, more "discouraged workers," people who say they want work but are not looking for jobs because they believe they can't find any.

"After trending downward for the past two years, the number of discouraged workers rose by 100,000 in the second quarter to 825,000," the Labor report said.

The Carter administration had hoped to hold inflation to 7.4 percent this year, down from 9 percent last year and the 10 percent-plus rate of recent months.

But President Carter said last Sunday on the way back from an economic summit conference in Tokyo that OPEC price increases since the first of the year will add 2 to 2.5 percentage points to the inflation rate.

He also said the increase will cause the loss of some 800,000 jobs and increase the risk of a recession.

Tech Regents Shift Funds

By RUTHANNE BROCKWAY
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Texas Tech University board of regents were in closed session at noon today discussing the governor's veto of nursing school funds and the search procedure for a new university president.

In a morning open session, regents chose to streamline, shift other university funds and use private money to continue research projects cut by Gov. Bill Clements.

President Cecil Mackey, who will leave Tech next month to assume the presidency of Michigan State University in East Lansing, said the governor's cut illustrates the importance of Tech having private money available in addition to state appropriations.

Regents agreed to use $70,000 per year for the next two years from interest from the Thornton Estate to fund research in beef production, an item cut by Clements. The estate was established by the late Dan Thornton, former Colorado governor and a Tech alumnus.

Regent Don Workman of Lubbock noted that the university had planned to use the Thornton money to establish two endowed chairs in the College of Agriculture Sciences, one for animal science and one for soil science.

But those plans were shelved after Clements' budget vetoes.

Although the $70,000 per year will allow the beef project to continue, it represents a drastic cut in plans. Before the veto, the Texas Legislature had appropriated more than $300,000 for the research over the next two years.

Mackey called it "a serious loss."

Clements also vetoed the budget for Tech's campus at Junction, a facility that represents a $1 million investment, Mackey said.

Regents allotted $24,000 per year for the next two years to continue maintenance of the campus, but did not spell out what university items will be trimmed to provide the money.

If the Junction budget is vetoed in the next legislative year, as it was this time, Mackey said the university will close the facility.

Regent J. Fred Bucy of Dallas introduced a Lubbock visitor to the board, Dr. Truman Blocker, president emeritus of the University of Texas Medical Branch at Galveston.

Bucy called Blocker a leader in medical education in the state and said he would tour Texas Tech University's School of Medicine today.

Jay Taylor To Receive Spur Award

Jay Littleton Taylor, rancher, businessman and public servant for the past half century in Texas and New Mexico, has been named the recipient of the 1979 National Golden Spur Award.

The award, which is presented annually to a person who has "brought distinction to, and made significant contributions to, the livestock or ranching industry," will be given Sept. 21 in Lubbock.

Taylor is the owner and operator of farms and ranches in Texas and New Mexico, with his name particularly associated with the HH Ranch at Datil, N.M., near Magdalena, and the Rafter O near Vega.

He was elected at the age of 38 to serve as president of the Texas and Southwestern Cattle Raisers Association — at that time the youngest man ever to hold the office.

Taylor is an honorary lifetime director of the National Livestock and Meat Board and also has served as chairman of the President's Beef Committee and Cattle Advisory Committee and the National Advisory Commission of Food and Fiber.

As president of the National Cattlemen's Association, Taylor has gained a strong reputation for supporting the free market and opposing price supports for cattle. He organized the National Beef Council in 1955 and was its first president.

Seven of the nation's largest livestock associations sponsor the award, which will be presented at a National Golden Spur Award and Prairie Party at the Lubbock Civic Center.

Energy Rift May Bring White House Shake-Up

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, having canceled an energy policy speech, today continued what was described as "almost a domestic summit" that may keep him cloistered at Camp David, Md., "well into next week."

Carter also scrapped plans to address a meeting of the nation's governors, but called a group of state executives to Camp David.

A White House official, who asked not to be named, said that while the key issues were energy and the economy, "the discussions will not be limited to those subjects." He declined to elaborate.

This source said the president "decided now is the time" to review a broad range of domestic policy questions.

There were published reports that Carter is planning a major shake-up in White House personnel.

The consultations began Thursday afternoon when Vice President Walter F. Mondale led a group of Carter advisers to the mountaintop retreat, where the president took his family Tuesday for a short holiday.

Despite the fact that energy and the economy were the key issues, those at the gathering did not include Energy Secretary James R. Schlesinger, Treasury Secretary W. Michael Blumenthal or any of their aides. Except for Mondale, all those at Camp David were White House staff members.

In Atlanta, the secretary to Charles Kirbo, an attorney and Carter confidant, said Kirbo was flying to Washington, presumably to see the president. The White House has promised consultations "both in and outside of government."

The White House official said "the president will not be returning to Washington until he's seen the people he wants to see, and has had time to assess what he has heard."

Also summoned to Camp David for talks tonight were Gov. Julian Carroll of Kentucky, chairman of the National Governors Association, and a "representative group" of other state executives.

Carter canceled plans for a weekend trip to Louisville for the summer meeting of the governors group. He announced that Mrs. Carter and Mondale would make the trip instead.

Mondale and top advisers to Carter spent Thursday night at Camp David and most apparently will remain there with the president at least through the weekend to conduct a series of meetings.

Mercury Plummets In East, Midwest

A-J News Services

Record low temperatures chilled much of the eastern half of the nation today, with the mercury dropping to 39 degrees at Philipsburg, Pa., and to 47 at Moline, Ill., but residents of the Southwest enjoyed typical summer weather.

It was unseasonably cold all the way from the central Great Plains to the Middle Atlantic coast. Some record readings early this morning included 41 at Elkins, W. Va.; 43 at Scranton, Pa.; 48 at Pittsburgh, Pa., and Roanoke, Va.; and 50 at Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Storms Thursday night battered many areas in the Rockies, Great Plains and the Deep South. Damaging winds hit Alabama and hail the size of baseballs were reported in Colorado.

Flash flood watches were posted over portions of Oklahoma, Kansas and Arkansas following heavy rains.

Clear to partly cloudy skies will be the rule over much of the South Plains today and Saturday, but continuing rains are expected to pound the eastern half of the state from the Gulf Coast to the Red River.

Forecasters say some scattered showers could develop later today over the eastern half of West Texas after thunderstorms spawning tornadoes ravaged portions of the South Plains Thursday afternoon.

Tornado sightings were reported near Plainview in the Providence Community about 1 p.m. Thursday, prompting the National Weather Service to issue tornado warnings for portions of northern Hale and Floyd counties, but no serious conditions developed.

A tornado struck near Turkey about 3:15 p. m. Thursday, destroying a cotton warehouse and scattering debris over a mile-long area through a cotton patch.

Hall County Deputy Sheriff Clyde Rogers said three employees escaped injuries when the twister hit and that cotton bales stored in the warehouse were not disturbed.

Turkey received the most rainfall Thursday, with 1.75 inches, and some portions of Lubbock got .17 of an inch.

Church Officer Files Suit Against Pastor

By SUE MORRISON
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Rev. A.L. Patrick, pastor of Mt. Gilead Baptist Church of 2510 Fir Ave., has been named as defendant in a suit filed in 137th District Court by Willie Ross, chairman of the church's board of deacons.

The suit alleges that Patrick, who has been pastor of the church since 1977, has failed to discontinue preaching at the church, even though congregation members have asked him to leave because they believe he has misappropriated church funds and will not reveal the church's financial records to the congregation.

Ross claims in the suit that an "overwhelming majority" of the congregation met April 16 and voted to oust Patrick, and that Ross has the notarized signatures all who were present at the meeting.

The plaintiff also claims he presented a letter to Patrick on May 16 informing the pastor of the congregation's wishes, but that Patrick has continued to preach, collect money and appropriate church finances.

According to the suit, Patrick has collected large sums of money during his term as pastor, but will not let the congregation know how much money has been collected or for what the money has been used.

A hearing will be held July 13 to determine exactly how much money is in the church funds, although Ross claims in the suit that all the church's money is in one of Patrick's personal bank accounts.

The suit also asks for an injunction against Patrick to prevent him from preaching or collecting money, because he has continued doing both even after receiving Ross' letter.

Patrick, contacted this morning by The Avalanche-Journal, said all of the allegations in the suit were false.

"That wasn't the membership who filed that suit," Patrick said. "That's just a group of false pretenders who did that.

"I'm still preaching, and I don't have charge over the financial records -I never have. There's a finance committee and a secretary who's paid by the church to handle those records."

The suit claims there was not a dissenting vote among the "overwhelming majority" which voted to oust Patrick, who says the suit "hasn't had any effect as of yet. I haven't anticipated any split in the church."

"Actually, you would probably need to contact my lawyer (Marion Key) to get all the facts about this suit," Patrick said. "He's handling all this."

Key refused to comment when contacted by The Avalanche-Journal.

Postage Increases Change Publishing Industry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Postage rates for magazines and newspapers went up again today in the last of a series of steep increases in which charges have gone up 413 percent since 1971.

The sharp jump is leading to important changes in the publishing industry.

"Our postage rates are about the only thing that is keeping up with OPEC price increases," said Chapin Carpenter, vice president of the Magazine Publishers Association.

His reference to OPEC was to oil prices set by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The postal increases, culminating in today's 22 percent hike, were mandated by the 1971 law that replaced the former Post Office Department with the current Postal Service. The law ordered a phase-out of the decades-old taxpayer subsidies that paid part of the mail costs for publications.

Congress appropriated the subsidies on the theory that the publications served a public service by educating the public.

"The steady increases in the price of postage during the last eight years has caused publishers to increase subscription rates and the price of advertising. We think it is a very inflationary development," Carpenter said.

The Postal Service describes it in different terms.

"Now they are paying their own way," said spokesman Van Seagraves.

Seagraves said the price for sending a typical newsmagazine by second-class mail has gone from an average of about 2 cents in 1971 to about 13 cents now. The new price reflects all of the Postal Service costs in handling the magazine and no use of tax funds, he said.

The actual cost for any piece of second-class mail varies according to a complicated formula that considers the weight, distance it travels and amount of advertising inside.

Under the 1971 law, second-class rates have gone up annually on top of increases in rates for all classes of mail in 1971, 1974, 1975 and 1978.

The brunt falls on magazine publishers, most of whom rely on the mail. The rates also apply to newspapers, books and records sent through the mail.

Since Congress decided to phase out the subsidies, many publishers have experimented with ways of delivering other than through the mail. Carpenter said the publications now being delivered by other means in some parts of the country include Reader's Digest, Time, Newsweek, Better Homes and Gardens and the Wall Street Journal.

This "alternate delivery" industry, spawned by the spiraling postal rates, usually delivers magazines in plastic bags attached to doorknobs. The companies frequently employ youths at lower wages than those paid postal workers.

"They are doing it in selected markets, all of them urban areas," said Carpenter. "They are going on a market-by-market basis to see if alternate means of delivery are more economical than the mail. It is a small percentage now, and no publisher is going 100 percent outside the mail."

But carpenter predicted the trend toward alternate delivery will increase. "This latest increase will make alternate delivery a more realistic alternative," he said.

Another development during the phase-out of subsidies has been expanded sales through newsstands. Time Inc. launched People magazine with all sales at newsstands.

Publishers have not given up on new congressional appropriations. A Senate panel headed by Sen. John Glenn, D-Ohio, has scheduled a hearing July 19 on extending the phase-in period by two more years. The bill would mean that today's 22 percent increase would be lowered retroactively to one-third of that figure. Similar increases would be levied in each of the next two years.

However, congressional staffers say the bill is running against against the tide of budgetary austerity.

Also facing phase-out of subsidies are non-profit and some other publications. However, their phasing schedule is spread over 16 years ending in 1987, twice the adjustment period the commercial publications had.

Voyager Cameras On; Ship Nears Jupiter

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — Mysterious, colorful Jupiter is once again filling television screens at the Jet Propulsion Laboratory as the second spaceship in four months sails toward a rendezvous with the giant planet.

The unmanned Voyager 2, repeating its sister ship's dramatic encounter last March, was pronounced in excellent shape as it closed on the planet despite earlier problems that threatened the mission.

Voyager 2, more than half a billion miles from Earth after a voyage that began in August 1977, on Monday will come within 400,000 miles of Jupiter's dense, churning clouds. The distance between the two planets is so great that radio signals traveling at light's speed of 186,000 miles per second won't reach Earth with the news until almost 52 minutes later.

The cloudtops are about the only surface the planet has. Jupiter seems to be mostly a gigantic ball of hydrogen and helium 1,200 times the size of Earth. Deep within the spinning liquid and gas may be a small rocky core.

Voyager 2's cameras and instruments already are returning data and pictures of Jupiter and the four largest of its 13 moons. The first Voyager startled scientists with its detailed pictures and discoveries.

The ship revealed towering volcanoes erupting on the moon Io; a faint, thin ring of debris circling the planet; superbolts of lightning zipping through the sky; and immense auroras — like Earth's northern lights — dancing over the clouds.

"It has been the most exciting and scientifically productive planetary encounter in NASA's unmanned space program," said Voyager scientist Bradford Smith.

Voyager 2's flight plan has been changed to study some of those discoveries. Then, the 1,800-pound craft will follow its sister ship deeper into space for a journey to Saturn — a golden planet nestled within brilliant rings.

The spacecraft is due at Saturn in August 1981 and may then be aimed for a 1986 visit to distant Uranus. Voyager 1, already more than 72 million miles past Jupiter, is to reach Saturn in November 1980.

Space scientists had some nervous moments a year ago when one of Voyager 2's two radio receivers failed and the remaining system was unable to lock onto signals from the command center.

But project scientist Edward Stone said computer-controlled transmitters have been able to get around the problem and "right now, everything's going quite well" with the $500 million project.

Both Voyagers are following a trail blazed five years ago by two smaller ships, Pioneers 10 and 11. The Pioneers took the first close look at Jupiter in 1973-74, and Pioneer 11 will precede the Voyagers to Saturn, with arrival scheduled this September.

Rival Gangs Not Linked To Slayings

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — Police say a massive investigation into the Fourth of July slayings of five members of the Outlaws motorcycle gang has turned up no evidence to indicate the killers came from a rival gang.

"We haven't ruled out any possibility," Sgt. J.W. Horner said Thursday. "We've got all our options open."

But Walter C. Hilderman III, The department's expert on gang activity, said Thursday he was convinced the four men and 17-year-old woman were killed by the Hell's Angels.

"Who else is bad enough to hit five Outlaws?" Hilderman asked. "It has to be a gang."

And, he predicted, there will eventually be retaliation by the Outlaws for the slayings.

"Something will happen," said Hilderman, who killed a member of the Outlaws three years ago in a drug raid. "There will be a payback for this."

A third victim was identified Thursday as William Roswell Dronenburg Jr., 31. The only address released by police was the address of the clubhouse in Charlotte where the five were shot to death, but he was believed to be from Falls Church, Va.

Victims identified earlier were Bridgette Benfield, 17, of Mount Holly, N.C., and William F. Allen, 22, of Charlotte.

Relatives of the other two victims were expected to make positive identifications today.

Horner said there was no evidence to link the slayings at the small two-room house to another gang. But he also said there was no evidence to rule out that possibility.

Although there was speculation that Outlaws members from across the nation might gather for the funerals of the slain members, Horner said he does not expect further violence.

"There's nothing to indicate there's going to be anything unusual," he said.

He said there probably would be no large turnout for the funeral of Miss Benfield, because women are not considered official members, or for Allen's funeral, because he was a "probate" and not a full member.

Allen was killed on the porch of the small house, apparently while serving as a guard, police said. The other four were inside the house, probably sleeping at the time.

Magician Blows Escape Routine

PORTLAND, Maine (UPI) — Ray Logan is not exactly Harry Houdini.

Logan, a local magician, was handcuffed, tied in a sack and put inside a shipping crate wrapped in padlocked chains and lowered into Casco Bay.

The "Portland Plunge" was billed as the first successful such escape since Houdini did it in the 1920s.

"This is impossible, folks. How's he ever going to get out?" the announcer said as the crate and Logan descended slowly toward the water.

The crowd of several hundred people soon found out.

A secret trap door on the top of the crate suddenly flapped up and down as the box began to sink below the waves.

"Look at that! Look at the door," laughing spectators in the crowd roared ae they pointed to the hinged door which opened inward.

"Oh no, Ray," moaned Logan's tuxedoed assistant.

HY GARDNER HAS THE ANSWER:

Glad You Asked That!

Q: We hear that Egyptian President Sadat's life story will be made into a movie. And his role will be played by Egyptian-born star, Omar Sharif. Tell us a little about Sharif, please. Is he married? Divorced? Got any children? I know he had a romance with Barbra Streisand when they made "Funny Girl." — Norma Mincer, Baltimore.

A: President Anwar Sadat, we're told, has sold the filming rights to his autobiography, "In Search of Identity," to New York producer Sandy Frank. It will be shown on U.S. television. Though a search is now underway for an actor to play Sadat, Omar Sharif playing the role would make sense for many reasons. We don't know if the two men ever met, but we do know that the actor was born in Alexandria, Egypt, on Oct. 10, 1932 — the right age for the part. He was christened Michael Shalkoub, attended Victoria College in Cairo, says he's Syrian by descent, Egyptian by birth. He was once wed (in 1955) to Faten Hamana, an Egyptian costar. Separated for some years (only one marriage in the records), they parented one child.

Sharif, who's made the columns consistently in the past with his womanizing (such as the Streisand affair), once said being a movie star bored him. "After I make a few million dollars, I plan to retire and play bridge for the rest of my life," he sighed.

We haven't counted his money, but since making that remark, Omar's writing a widely syndicated bridge column when he's not playing the game or making films. Anyway, the idea is an interesting one and we'll await developments.

Q: Have you any idea as to the number of luminaries enshrined in the Hollywood Walk of Fame? — FoFo Levy, Beverly Hills, Calif.

A: When Aretha Franklin, the holder of six certified gold albums and 14 similarly glittering singles, was honored this past June 13, she was the 1,705th showbiz whiz to be so honored. Monty Hall (honorary mayor) and Walk of Fame chairman Bill Welsh presided. (That gives Miss Franklin something to sing about!)

Personal Postcard:

To Jenni Glahn, Denver: About Donald O'Connor "walking up a wall" in "Singing in the Rain." It had to be trick photography or an acrobat's trick — so you lose the bet. Usually, the only time an actor or actress walks up a wall in Hollywood is when he or she negotiates a contract. Sorry.

Q: Why and when is Walter Cronkite retiring from television? — Mamie Noonan, Pittsburgh.

A: Never, we and CBS hope! You must have heard a report of a meeting of the network in Los Angeles, and listened too fast. When the question came up during his speech, Walter broke into an editorial smile and said, "I suppose I'll have to go some time, so let me take this opportunity to say that it will probably be..." Then, after a long dramatic pause worthy of Orson Wells, continued "...before the turn of the century!"

Q: Was Zsa Zsa Gabor ever one of Charlie Chaplin's wives? — Johnny R., Norfolk, Va.

A: No. But, she dated him when she first came to America — at the age of 17. "Chaplin saw me at a party," remembered Zsa Zsa, "and took me out a couple of times. Then said 'I love you and I would marry you, but I can't. You're much too smart for me.' He must have meant it. Because years later his daughter, Geraldine, said to me: 'You know, you could have been my mother. But you weren't, because you were too smart for my daddy!'"

RCA Offering To Buy Firm

NEW YORK (AP) — RCA Corp. is quietly negotiating to buy C.I.T. Financial Corp. for $1 billion or more, the Wall Street Journal reported today.

C.I.T., one of the world's largest finance companies, announced on Tuesday that it had been approached by "a major U.S. corporation" and expected to enter "specific discussions promptly." It did not name the company.

Neither RCA nor C.I.T. would comment on the report that they were discussing a merger.

The Wall Street Journal, quoting sources at both companies, said a proposed tender offer involving "at least partly and perhaps totally" a cash offer has been in the works for some time. The paper cited Wall Street speculation that the offer would be between $60 and $67 per share, or between $1.2 billion and $1.4 billion for C.I.T.'s 20.7 million shares outstanding.

C.I.T. stock was trading for around $36 a share a week ago but began gaining on rumors of a takeover offer.

RCA stock last closed Tuesday at 24¾, unchanged from the previous session.

Broken Slat Helped Pilot Control Jet

WASHINGTON (AP) — A wing slat that broke off may have provided crucial help to an airline pilot trying to save his Trans World Airlines jet and 87 passengers and crew from a nosedive crash on April 4, according to a safety investigator.

Leslie D. Kampschror is in charge of the National Transportation Safety Board investigation of why the New York to Minneapolis flight suddenly went into two barrel rolls and plummeted about 34,000 feet over Michigan. He said in a telephone interview Wednesday that when the pilot, Capt. Harvey Gibson, lowered the landing gear to provide drag and cut the plane's speed, he might have gotten crucial help when the slat on the leading edge of the right wing of the jet sheared off under the tremendous pressure of the plane's dive. Kapschror said the slat caused the plane to go out of control.

Gibson recovered control of the Boeing 727 and made a safe landing at Detroit's Metropolitan Airport.

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Account-ability Past Due

EXCESSIVE and duplicative regulation is perhaps the most pervasive aspect of our lives today. The cost which regulation imposes on the public and business has reached shocking levels.

"I believe that the fundamental issue with which we are dealing here is the question of accountability," William L. McKinley, vice chairman of Gerber Products Co., testified before the Senate Governmental Affairs Committee.

"Responsibility for the actions of federal agencies is the very heart of the problem."

Regulatory complications facing businessmen are symptoms of an underlying problem—vaguely drafted statutes—basic to the accountability-responsibility issue.

DOLLARS ARE a finite entity. Those used in complying with regulation cannot be used to build new plants and create new jobs.

The value of statutory regulation of certain aspects of private enterprise as necessary for the public interest is not in dispute.

But as regulatory programs have been written, some have caused unfortunate results ranging from conflicting and duplicative rules to the negation of national goals such as increasing productivity and controling inflation.

McKinley, also chairman of the National Assn. of Manufacturers regulatory and consumer affairs committee, said NAM feels strongly that regulatory analysis alone should be the basis for intermediate review.

"WE APPRECIATE the attempt by some legislation to avoid delaying litigation by precluding judicial review of compliance," McKinley testified.

"(But) failure to provide at least some judical review of the requirements of cost analysis leaves a proposal with no 'teeth' and an opportunity for agencies to disregard the letter and/or spirit of this program."

By far the most objectionable provision of legislation under the jurisdiction of the Senate committee is the authorizing of financial assistance for reimbursement of attorney's fees in agency proceedings.

"This proposal would contribute greatly to the cost of government regulation," argued McKinley.

The exclusion of this proposal from any legislation is desirable. The reimbursement of attorney fees does not necessarily guarantee that the views of the American public are represented fairly.

The credibility of critics being paid by the very agencies they criticize is subject to question indeed.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

Kenneth May

Tax Bomb Ticking

THIS YEAR'S LEGISLATURE left a time-bomb ticking on your doorstep. It's set to go off Jan. 1, 1981.

In the name of property tax "reform," the lawmakers decreed that all property be assessed at 100 percent of full market value beginning year after next.

This means that, for example, your Lubbock County Hospital District taxes—now at the legal limit of 75 cents per $100 valuation—could be quadrupled in 1981.

I say "could be." Not "will be." Valuations will go up but the rate could—and undoubtedly will—come down.

Tax experts think it is unlikely, though, that very many taxing jurisdictions will lower the rate enough to fully offset the increase in assessed values.

LUBBOCK COUNTY Commissioners Court has successfully resisted numerous attempts for 20 years to get it to go on a spending spree by telling all comers "we're bumping against our tax rate ceiling already."

Its argument will be undermined the day Tax Assessor-Collector Frank Stuart is required by law to jump valuations from what he figures to be 28 percent of market value to a full 100 percent.

And that day is less than 18 months away.

Actually, the County and Hospital District valuations conceivably could more than quadruple under the new state law.

Unlike Lubbock City and School valuations, which are systematically re-evaluated every four years to keep up with inflation, there never has been a county tax reappraisal of that type.

To get to a true 100 percent of market value, the county tax office in many cases would have to increase assessments dramatically.

Even if your house is accurately assessed today at 28 percent of full market value ($7,400 for a $30,000 home), it will legally have to go on the tax rolls at full value ($30,000) in 1981.

THIS MEANS THAT, without changing the county and hospital district tax rates, your taxes would jump from $113 this year to $459 then.

The rate will, of course, be dropped. But how much?

Even City and School District valuations will go up significantly unless Gov. Bill Clements calls the Legislature into special session to change the just-approved tax reforms.

Property is assessed at 60 percent of market value for City and School tax purposes here, officials claim.

Under another reform provision, all taxing jurisdictions in the county—except the county itself—will have to join a countywide appraisal district.

A proposed constitutional amendment, to be voted on in November, 1980, would require county governments to become a part of the single appraisal unit.

ALL OF THIS eventually may result in more uniform taxation, but there's going to be chaos in the beginning.

Ironically, the state 10-cent property tax which prompted some of the agitation for uniform assessments won't be affected.

This tax, which finances college building funds, is to be effectively phased out by applying it to only .0001 percent of market value—unless that strange provision is successfully attacked in the courts.

There is still another quirk in the property tax reforms that will boost corporate taxes significantly.

Companies doing business in Texas are required to pay a state corporation franchise tax. They have a choice of an assessment based on their capital and surplus or one based on assessed values of all real and personal property they own in Texas.

With low county tax appraisals, they've been taking the latter option in many cases. If property assessments are raised dramatically, the first option will be more appealing—but still may increase state franchise taxes by as much as $100 million a year overall.

WITH PRESSURES mounting for at least doubling Hospital District taxes in order to salvage the Health Sciences Center Hospital for Texas Tech's medical school, Lubbock County property owners could be significantly affected by the tax reforms they authorized in November, 1978.

It is noteworthy that, according to the privately funded Texas Research League, only 20 states "still cling to the full-value standard" just now adopted in Texas. That's down from 34 states in 1961.

Those states which have tried 100 percent assessments, the TRL says, are prone to discard it in favor of legalizing fractional assessment.

Like 60 percent, or 28 percent, you reckon?

Holmes Alexander:

Who's In Line After Brezhnev?

WASHINGTON—Sen. Henry (Scoop) Jackson has some good reasons for his threats to amend SALT II, but there are almost as many good reasons for letting Jimmy Carter have his way.

All are agreed that Brezhnev can't live forever, but there is a wise opinion that he may lengthen his life by lightening his workload.

It is said that dictators never voluntarily relinquish power (Stalin, Mao, Chiang), but Brezhnev is no dictator. Russia has become a sort of constitutional conspiracy.

The most recent turnover of power, following Khrushchev's fall in 1964, was in the nature of elderly board members selecting a chairman.

Only four of the 11 Politburo members of that time have stayed in place. Two retired because of age, and the others shuffled off (but not violently) as losers of internal political skirmishes.

IT IS TRUE that Stalin, without selecting a successor, had much to do with naming him—and this will be true of Brezhnev and his follow-on, but in quite a different way.

Stalin's purges thinned out the field of candidates. Among those who remained—and who shot upward into openings—were Brezhnev, Kosygin, Kirilenko, Suslov and Ustinov.

When and if Brezhnev names or indicates a communist crown prince the Sovietologists say it will be one of those survivors, Andrey Kirilenko, little known to the West, the same age as Brezhnev, but with better life expectancy.

The veteran courtiers, probably headed by Kosygin, will have to be consulted before, during and after the takeover of power.

This is true for many reasons, not the least of which is Kirilenko's age, 72, so that he cannot rule for long.

IT WILL BE seen that if Scoop Jackson really scrubs the Vienna treaty and starts to draft a new one, he must look down the road a bit and see many new faces to encounter.

Brezhnev, by retiring to a soft seat on the front row, can go out as the beloved White Father, adored and forever enshrined in the hearts of his countrymen. He has brought peace to a war-shy land.

Brezhnev has signed treaties with West Germany and made a detente with America. He has avoided a war with China. At Helsinki, as well as at Vienna, he was the man in charge.

Meanwhile, he has doubled the size of the armed forces which Khrushchev left him, and outsmarted the West in trade for raw materials and manufactured goods.

If he can go to his grave with such a record he will be called Leonid the Good and Great for as many Soviet generations as remain.

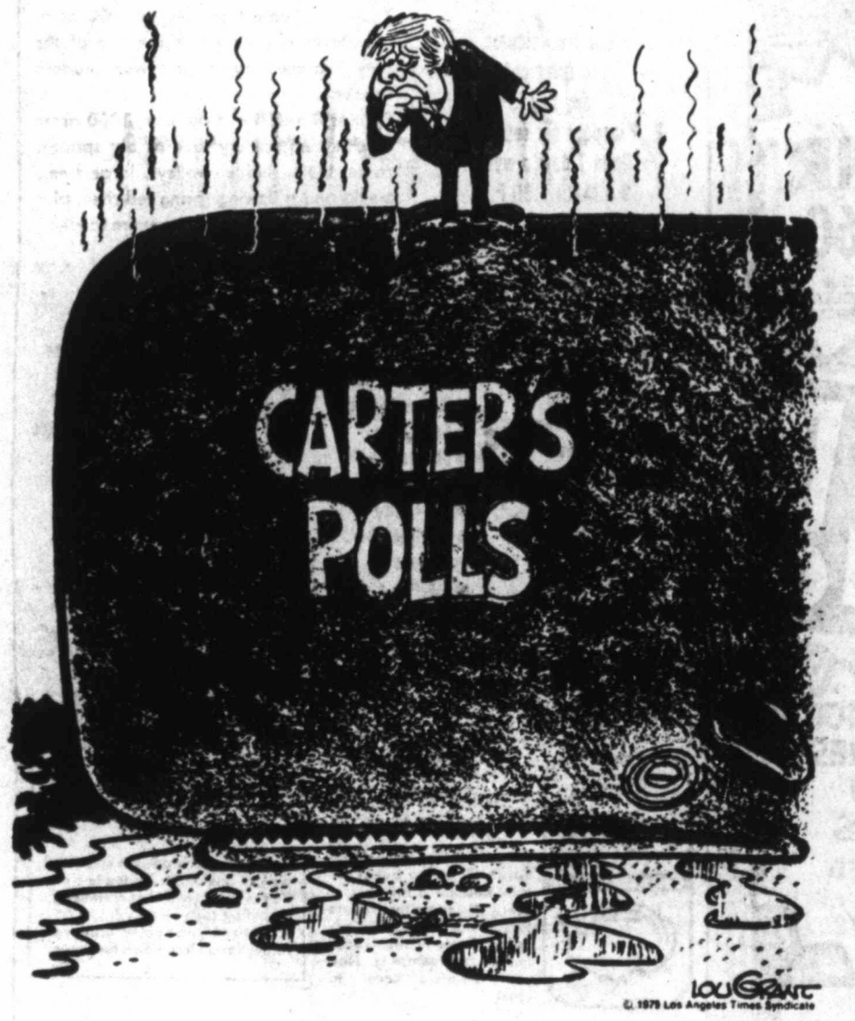
We hear much about SALT II pinning the U.S. in an inferior position. But Brezhnev's follower, whoever he may be, will be even more hamstrung by SALT II.

Ironically, the next ruler of the USSR will be under treaty obligation to make reductions in his military, and adapt limitations to his strategic missile force at a time when China is free to do the opposite.

I don't know if the U.S. authorities have kept in mind that the next dynasty to reign or rule in the Soviet Union may be cautious and genuinely peace-seeking as Brezhnev has seemed to be, or it may be reckless and dynamic like the Bolsheviks.

It is a subject on which we should hear some weighty speculation during the Senate debate.

Another Beached Whale



the small society — by Brickman

Sylvia Porter:

You May Live Longer With Yearly Checkup

ITEM: YOU, AN average American, spend more on the yearly preventive maintenance of your car than on care of your body.

It is against this startling background that most U.S. physicians still defend the yearly health exam as one of the best values you can buy for your dollar.

The preventive maintenance exam, doctors emphasize, can detect and point up such potentially fatal conditions as high blood pressure, diabetes and cancers while they can be controlled—including cancers of the cervix and colon before complications develop at too advanced a stage.

ITEM: Your chances of staying alive are better if you have a regular checkup, according to a study at Kaiser-Permanente Medical Care Program, Oakland, Calif.

DR. MORRIS F. COLLEN, a specialist in preventive medicine at Kaiser, compared 5,000 patients who were encouraged to take regular physicals and received callbacks for care when high risk factors became apparent.

They were measured against a surveyed group that was left to its own devices. When checked seven years later, the regularly examined group had a significantly lower death rate from diseases that were "potentially postponable."

ITEM: Yet, a highly vocal—and respected—minority of critics now argues against the annual checkup and questions its health benefits as well as its cost effectiveness.

ITEM: And other physicians suggest that the annual exam be altered so that its frequency is tuned to the individual's age and potential health problems.

WHICH VIEW IS correct? The debate spreads and intensifies—and the evidence on both sides is as yet far from conclusive for either.

One point is indisputable: the annual health checkup has become an institution in American medicine. Countless millions of U.S. citizens routinely have a yearly physical.

Millions more among adults feel guilty because they fear that they need and should have had one—but for various reasons (cost, particularly) didn't.

Comprehensive medicine today stresses that efforts in health maintenance are not only to find out what may be wrong with you—but also to isolate those factors that could cause you future problems.

Infectious diseases such as diphtheria and polio—once major killers—are no longer big threats to our lives.

RATHER, THE degenerative ailments—heart disease, arteriosclerosis, and cancer, frequently reflective of our life-style, meaning what we eat, smoke, and drink—are the great killers. Much of the disease that emanates from our life-style is preventable.

Millions of Americans could enjoy a healthier, longer life if they could be persuaded on time to change their damaging habits.

What do the exams cost? A typical comprehensive exam of the type provided at the Life Extension Institute, one of the nation's oldest and largest preventive medicine clinics headquartered in New York, costs from $150 to $250, depending on the area.

It provides a questionnaire, counseling and written report, takes about three hours.

A comprehensive exam will, in addition to performing the standard exam, provide a cardiac stress test, which measures the action of the heart under heavy physical strain.

It will emphasize such factors as personal habits: nutrition, safety precautions, emotional stresses. Other elements in this type of checkup:

(1) Medical history, frequently the most important part of the exam, for up to 50 percent of internal ailments can be spotted on the basis of the medical interview. Lab tests and the physical exam will pick up another 40 percent.

(2) Counseling. The physician should provide counseling and education as part of the periodic health exam—or you're not getting the full value of your checkup.

YOU SHOULD RECEIVE a complete written report of the results of the exam. Your physician should provide guidance related to your habits, work, play, family, interpersonal relationships including marital, emotional and job problems.

(3) Follow-up. To get the most out of your checkup financially, physically and mentally, you must be prepared to act on some or all of the physician's recommendations—whether this means cutting down on salt or limiting your cholesterol intake.

More and more physicians are proposing guidelines that will be significantly helpful in changing your life-style.

James J. Kilpatrick:

Cruel Kindness From The Court

WASHINGTON—Considered in a vacuum, which is where the Supreme Court often seems to operate, the Court's recent opinion in the Laetrile case is sound, temperate and unexceptional.

Considered by the bedside of a cancer patient, the opinion is something else entirely.

On the surface, the case involved little more than a routine matter of statutory construction. Under the Food and Drug Act, the government had banned the use of a drug product known as Laetrile.

Did the government have the power to issue this order? A district court in Oklahoma City had said no. The 10th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals had agreed.

The lower courts turned a tolerant eye on Laetrile. The drug is derived from amygdalin, a substance that occurs widely in nature. Taken properly, it is no more toxic than aspirin.

THOUGH THERE IS no scientifically acceptable proof that the drug is effective against cancer, thousands of persons have managed to give it a try. The testimonial evidence is impressive.

The lower courts found that for terminally ill patients, it makes no sense to insist that drugs be "safe" and "effective." Let them have Laetrile if they want it.

The Supreme Court reversed. In a unanimous opinion by Justice Marshall, the Court held that the commissioner of the Food and Drug Administration had not abused his authority.

The statute is clear and unambiguous. The law contains no exception for terminally ill patients; the legislative history demonstrates that Congress intended no such exception. Laetrile cannot qualify for special treatment under the law's grandfather clauses.

"Under our constitutional framework," said Marshall, "federal courts do not sit as councils of revision, empowered to rewrite legislation in accord with their own conceptions of prudent public policy."

NO ONE CAN quarrel with that pious assertion.

Marshall went on to emphasize that the Court intended its decision to apply not only to Laetrile but also to every other drug that fails to satisfy the act's requirements.

"To accept the proposition that the safety and efficacy standards of the act have no relevance for terminal patients is to deny the commissioner's authority over all drugs, however toxic or ineffectual, for such individuals. If history is any guide, this new market would not be long overlooked.

"Since the turn of the century, resourceful entrepreneurs have advertised a wide variety of purportedly simple and painless cures for cancer, including liniments of turpentine, mustard, oil, eggs and ammonia; peat moss; arrangements of colored floodlamps; pastes made from glycerin and Limburger cheese; mineral tablets; and 'Fountain of Youth' mixtures of spices, oil and suet."

Very well. Under old principles of law, the Court was doubtless right. Under old principles of a free society, the Court was absolutely wrong.

At some point, a line must be drawn against the overweening solicitude of the government. At some point, the principle must be upheld that free people have a right to be wrong.

In its opinion the Court spoke repeatedly and approvingly of "legitimate therapy" and "conventional treatment" and the "general recognition of experts."

But it has been but a tick of the clock since medical experts regarded leeches as the legitimate and conventional therapy for high blood pressure.

Only yesterday, as time is measured, the wisest surgeons drilled holes in a lunatic's head to let the demons out.

IT IS A characteristic of the totalitarian state, not the free state, to decree that a particular kind of medical treatment is "approved" and that other kinds are banned under penalty of law.

No one can quarrel with the basic objectives of the Food and Drug Act. Yes, the people should be protected—up to a point—against quackery and fraud. But it is a cruel kindness on the part of government to go beyond that point.

The First and the Ninth Amendments, in my own view, establish the right of a freeborn citizen to make his own personal decisions about his own medical treatment.

By conventional standards those decisions may be wrong. But it is far better for the health of a free society to let its people make wrong decisions than to protect them insistently from their own folly.

Patty To Aid Women

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst Shaw says her experience with violence at the hands of the Symbionese Liberation Army has prompted her to champion a cause — that of battered women.

MRS. SHAW

The newspaper heiress, who was kidnapped in 1974 by SLA radicals, Thursday held her first press conference since she was released in January from the prison where she was serving an armed robbery conviction.

She told reporters: "Having been a victim of violence, this is the reason I'm so concerned with battered women. I was the victim of a very violent crime and I don't want to see anyone involved in violence of any kind.

"I understand how helpless and desperate these women feel," she said. "They are sometimes afraid to call the police because they don't think they will help them."

She and women's rights activist Gloria Allred introduced a card printed with the legal rights of battered women, which they said would be distributed throughout Los Angeles with the aid of police.

Bianca Returns To Court

LONDON (AP) — After visiting her war-torn homeland of Nicaragua, Bianca Jagger returned to London for today's court hearing on her request to have her divorce suit against rock star Mick Jagger moved to California.

Mrs. Jagger, who filed for divorce in February, seeks a settlement under California's community property law. Jagger wants the case heard in London.

Mrs. Jagger's attorney, Marvin Mitchelson, said the California action seeks equal division of Jagger's property. "It would involve several million dollars," he said.

Chip Carter Optimistic

BOSTON (AP) — President Carter's record-low standings will rise once other presidential candidates surface and take stands on the issues, says Carter's son, Chip.

And the younger Carter, on a campaign swing through Massachusetts, predicted Thursday harsh measures would be implemented to ease the energy shortage, including the gas rationing authority his father supports.

The 29-year-old Carter, interviewed by the Lowell Sun, blamed his father's low poll ratings on being compared to "ideals." He said those ratings will rise as other candidates show their positions on energy and inflation.

Trucker Saves Day

ROCHESTER, Minn. (AP) — Stunt pilots and skydivers got their share of applause from 15,000 spectators at the Aviation Day airshow but the hero of the day was a truck driver.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

The startled and embarrassed driver was welcomed with cheers, applause and whistles as he rolled in with his cargo — four portable toilets.

Nearly 200 people, many of them mothers with cranky children in tow, had been waiting impatiently in lines for the only two portable toilets in place when the Fourth of July show began.

Women, some dads and older children rushed to help the truck driver unload and put the four additional outhouses in place in record time.

"I'd say his arrival was the highlight of the whole show," said one grateful mother as she herded her two children into one of the toilets.

Kennedy Backers Begin Nationwide Mail Drive

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of liberal Democrats unhappy with President Carter is launching a national campaign to draft Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, but Kennedy says they are doing it without his blessing.

A letter signed by Machinists union president William W. Winpisinger and produced by the same firm that raised money for the Democratic National Committee is going out next week to 20,000 to 50,000 persons listed on a nationwide mailing list.

The letter calls for help in marshaling an irresistable mandate for Kennedy to challenge Carter for the party's presidential nomination.

"We will personally cover his desk with the names of those citizens who ... want to be counted among those calling upon him to be a candidate for the presidency," the letter says.

It asks for contributions of from $15 to $100, but leaders of the movement say the money will only be used to generate more mail to solicit more support. Any money left over from the draft movement will be contributed to the John F. Kennedy Presidential Library in Massachusetts, they say.

The national mail drive is the biggest step yet in a Kennedy draft wave building for several weeks. Kennedy has said he expects Carter to be re-elected with his support, but has not forcefully moved to knock down the draft.

Tom Southwick, Kennedy's press secretary, said Thursday this latest draft effort was initiated without the Massachusetts senator's knowledge. Southwick said he did not know where Winpisinger and his associates got the idea and that Kennedy has not changed his previously stated position on Carter.

Winpisinger's letter accuses Carter of poor leadership at a time of national crisis and says Kennedy can provide the leadership Carter isn't.

"Right now you and I are faced with a government that is hopelessly paralyzed," the letter says. "It founders hopelessly, without direction, in its approaches to the pressing problems of today: higher fuel bills and longer gas lines, double digit inflation eroding any hope of future financial security, unaffordable health care, and intolerably high unemployment among our youth and minoritites."

Winpisinger grants that Carter "is an honest, dedicated public servant with good intentions" but adds: "We also know that is simply not enough.

"We must have a leader who can supply answers and action," he said. "And public opinion surveys in every region of our country unanimously indicate a majority of Americans have decided that Senator Kennedy is the one who can provide these two vital requisites through leadership."

Winpisinger acknowledges Kennedy's reluctance to run, but says he can be convinced "if there is a genuine common non-political, grass roots people's draft calling on him to announce as a candidate."

Although the letter bears Winpisinger's signature, it is sponsored by a group called the National Call for Kennedy, which has been incorporated in the District of Columbia. The incorporators are listed as Victor Kamber, an officer of the Building and Trades Council of the AFL-CIO, Jules Bernstein, a Washington labor lawyer, and Sandy DeMent, executive director of the National Resource Center for Consumers of Legal Services.

Names of the other charter members were not disclosed, but William Holayter, the Machinists' political chief, said about 17 sponsors are involved.

Boy Finds Mastodon Remains In Park

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (UPI) — Just digging around in Johnny Appleseed Park, 10-year-old Eric Byers found the bones of a mastodon, an elephant-like mammal that roamed the prehistoric plains in large herds.

Paleontologists of IndianaPurdue University's Fort Wayne campus indicated Thursday they would continue the dig. They said such finds are fairly common in the area.

Eli Lilly Developing 'Superb Antibiotic'

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Eli Lilly and Co. is studying a new antibiotic that could have major commercial importance, said Richard D. Wood, Lilly board chairman.

Wood told investors in Zurich, Switzerland, on Monday that the beta-lactum antibiotic was discovered by Lilly's Japanese partner, Shiongi & Co.

Early evidence suggests the product may be successful in cases resistant to other antibiotics, he said.

Iraq's U.N. Delegates Feel Effects Of Gas Pinch

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — Iraq's delegates to the United Nations are angry because the oil squeeze their government help put on the United States is forcing U.N diplomats to wait in line at the gas station.

A U.S. delegate suggested that the diplomats take the subway or the bus.

Iraq called a meeting Thursday of the U.N. Commmittee on Relations with the Host Country — the United States — so that its chief deputy delegate to the world organization, Saib A. K. Bafi, could complain that he and his colleagues were waiting in line as much as four hours to buy gasoline when they should be carrying out their official duties.

He suggested that some New York filling stations be reserved for diplomats only. Or that they be allowed to fill up at the U.N. headquarters pump now reserved for the 20 Secretariat trucks.

U.S. delegate Herbert K. Reis said his office would support an application for the allocation of more gas to the U.N. pump. But Yoshio Tagaya of the Secretariat said that would mean "some lines here as you have outside."

Reis made no comment on Bafi's proposal for diplomats-only gas stations, an arrangement that would require heavy police guards to protect them from New Yorkers already burned up because diplomatic vehicles are exempt from parking regulations. But he pointed out that "New York is extremely fortunate in having a very good transportation system."

Reis also reminded the other delegates that life is not always easy in their hometowns. There are "many places in the world where the local diplomats experience difficulties because of local conditions — power shortages, water shortages and confusion due to civil disobedience," he said.

Nobody made specific mention of Iraq's membership in the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, which has increased the price of crude oil more than 40 percent in the past year and restricts production to keep the price up. But Fermin Zelada of Spain said perhaps U.N. diplomats "could count on the generosity of the petroleum-producing countries, who might provide the needs."

The committee adjourned until Monday without taking any action. Afterward a member of the U.S. mission said arrangements had already been made for U.N. diplomats to get exemption from New York's odd-even system of gas purchase by applying to the state Department of Motor Vehicles.

Bafi told a reporter his delegation has about 10 official cars, its diplomats commute four times a day between U.N. headquarters and their embassy 55 blocks away, and they go to Kennedy Airport periodically to send or pick up diplomatic pouches.

"We are using a lot of gas," he said. "We have to stand in line, and this is all affecting our work."

Bazargan Defends Industrial Action

TEHRAN, Iran (UPI) — Comparing Iran to a patient after surgery, Prime Minister Mehdi Bazargan said the government's sweeping takeover of virtually all industry was calculated to save the country from collapse.

In a televised message Thursday following the nationalization of steel, copper, aluminum, aircraft, shipbuilding, automobile and mining industries, Bazargan said the measure was adopted because the regime of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi had left the industrial sector in shambles.

He said Iran was "like a patient after surgery" when religious leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini named him premier in February.

A revolutionary court in the northeastern town of Mashad today sentenced and executed a police officer on a charge of battling against God, the state radio reported.

Hormoz Jabbari was accused of complicity in the murder of an anti-shah demonstrator, of tear-gassing a house and opening fire on its occupants. It was the 318th execution reported since the February revolution.

In his address, Bazargan said the government first initiated economic reforms by giving unemployment "loans" to workers and tax relief to factories, he said.

But the industrial sector was in such poor shape that foreign exporters insisted on receiving advance payment of 100 percent cost on letters of credit, instead of a normal 20 percent.

"This was impossible," Bazargan said. "The government had to think fast." It began by nationalizing banks and insurance, undeveloped land and finally the industries.

Nationalization was a step to save the indistrial sector from complete collapse, he said.

The government also took over industrial property belonging to 51 businessmen who have been jailed or who fled from the Islamic regime. Political sources said the nationalization of industries was decided on the advice of the revolutionary council.

The oil and gas, petrochemical, fishing and railroad industries are already state owned or in the process of being taken over completely.

In a related development, new chief government spokesman and Deputy Premier Sadeq Tabatabai told the state radio that the Soviet Union had been paying an unjust price for Iranian gas exports. He did not disclose the price.

Before the revolution, Iran supplied 6 billion cubic feet per day of natural gas to the Soviet Union. With the drop in oil production since March, gas production was reduced too.

Iran's chief energy official Hassan Nazih said recently the gas exports were uneconomical for Iran.

Bus Collision Fatal To 27

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — Twenty-seven schoolchildren and teachers died in a collision of two crowded buses and a truck carrying logs northeast of Bangkok, police said today. At least 60 others were injured.

The two buses, packed with children and teachers, were on their way to a mountain resort about 120 miles northeast of Bangkok at the time of the accident in the predawn hours Thursday.

The first bus rammed a truck filled with logs parked alongside the road and the second bus careened into the wreckage. Police said the parked truck had all its lights turned off.

The two buses overturned and the passengers were thrown onto the highway, police said.

'Wrestling Rabbi' Now Studies Jewish Sages

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — Two decades ater he last barnstormed across America as the "Wrestling Rabbi" who refused to throw a match, Raphael Halperin is grappling with 3,000 years of Jewish scholarship.

Halperin defied his teachers 30 years ago, leaving his rabbinical studies behind for the lure of the wrestling mat. Six years ago he switched again, picking up where he left off to become the toughest rabbi you're ever likely to meet. So much for the stereotype of the holy man ignoring the physical world to devote himself to the spiritual one.

Now, with a fifth-degree black belt in karate, a shelf full of wrestling scrapbooks and a garden lined with rocks he has split by hand, the 47-year-old Halperin spends 15 hours a day tracking down every Jewish sage who has ever lived.

"It's never been done," he said. "This is a mission I have to complete."

Still in fighting trim at 6-foot-2 and 220 pounds, Halperin will head for the United States soon to give exhibitions and lectures and to search for someone willing to translate his work into English.

The first volume of the "Tree of Life Atlas," finished last year, is a thick catalogue of 2,091 Jewish sages around the world who lived between 940 and 1492. Along with a biographical sketch of each scholar is a complex diagram linking each sage to his teachers, pupils, ancestors, descendants and period in history.

It's hardly best-seller material, but rabbis love it.

"It's almost an incredible achievement," said Rabbi Eliahu Marcus, the government's director of synagogues. "Usually when we study we meet names of people and can't associate much importance to them. Now you see a whole picture of the person, his scholarship and literature and his community. I's invaluable to anyone studying the Talmud."

The first book, culled from 850 sources, took four years to complete. Having refined his technique, Halperin hopes to complete the list from 940 back to ancient times this year, and finish a third volume from 1492 to the present by 1980.

"If I hadn't gone through the karate and wrestling, I couldn't do it," he said. "You need control. When you control your body and your breathing, you can control your thinking, and then you have the power of concentration."

The power dates from 1948, when the Austrian-born Halperin was a skinny young rabbinical student in Jerusalem.

"I was in yeshiva (religious school), a 134-pound weakling, and one day I saw a copy of a body-building magazine. I never knew there was such a thing. This guy had arms as big as my waist. So I started to work out."

The rabbis didn't like the idea, and Halperin's perseverance ultimately led him to abandon the yeshiva. In 1950 he won the "Mr. Israel" contest, then set out for the United States and Canada to represent his country on the wrestling mat.

It was a time when everybody watched wrestling, but few trusted what they saw.

"They wanted me to throw matches. They even threatened me, but I wouldn't," he said.

Billed as the "Wrestling Rabbi" even though he had not been ordained, Halperin won a rabid following, but his principles got him blackballed for months at a time and sometimes victimized by questionable refereeing.

"I could have made a lot more money, but I had a responsibility not just to myself," he said. "All the Jewish people looked up to me, and I always did my best."

Halperin also found time to open Israel's first body-building gyms, earn five black belts in karate and serve as a physical-fitness instructor in Israel's army.

Then in 1973 he chucked it all to return to yeshiva, shocking the rabbis a second time and finally qualifying for the rabbinate.

Jobless Rate Soars In South Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Owen Ndabe has been lining up outside the employment office here for a year now. The chances are even slimmer now that he — or many other jobless blacks — will be called on for work any time soon.

The lines form up long before the first job call at 8 a.m., and Ndabe's tattered summer-weight jacket fails to ward off the gusts of Johannesburg's coldest winter in three decades.

At 26, he is somewhat younger than most other men in line. But otherwise he is about average — rudimentary education, no specific skill, and a family in the nearby segregated township of Soweto to feed and clothe. He wants a job, any job, and he wants it badly.

Black unemployment in South Africa has been a major problem for years. But with the dramatic rise in fuel prices now threatening to dampen an already sluggish economy, the problem could become critical.

According to some observers, the rapidly swelling ranks of jobless in Africa's richest and most industrialized country could prove a far more serious challenge to the white-dominated government than the relatively small and heavily policed ranks of young black militants.

Official figures put black unemployment at half a million. But private businessmen and experts unanimously agree it is far higher, probably approximately 1½ million, or about a fifth of the black labor force.

A high black birthrate and shortage of opportunities for advanced training add about 150,000 to the jobless role each year. An estimated million more blacks are underemployed — working on subsistence farms, part time or for part wages.

In a way, Ndabe and the others outside the black unemployment offices are lucky. At least they have the cherished "118" — the code in their passbook showing that they are permitted to be in Johannesburg.

A few blocks away, in a littered alley, 20-year-old Eliphas Hadebe is waking up from a few hours' sleep on the cold ground, shivering, hungry, filthy.

He and his ragged buddies couldn't build a fire — that might draw the police.

These are the "illegals" — men without a "118" or permission to be in any "white" area. They're supposed to be back in their tribal homeland.

Despite rigid influx controls, crackdowns and stiff fines for hiring illegals, thousand are drawn each year to Johannesburg. In the big city they can still scrounge a meal and hustle a living. In the rural homelands, there are no jobs and no food.

Hadebe has been here seven months. His hope is to get a rows furtively looking for bargain basement workers. A day's work might get him the equivalent of about $5.

Bank Workers In Protest Strike

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek banking system came to a standstill Wednesday as the country's 32,000 bank employees went on strike to protest government energy-saving measures that would change their working hours.

The employees union claimed the measure, supposed to help reduce peak hour traffic, would not affect fuel consumption. It said the government was "using the pretext of the energy crisis" to bring banking hours into line with those of other Common Market countrie.

Under the plan, bank hours would begin and end later in the day. The bank employees said the hours were not practicable in view of hot daytime temperatures.

DR. LAMB

Finding Potassium

By LAWRENCE LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I know certain foods have potassium in them I'm not sure which ones. Could you please send me your pamphlet on potassium and what to eat. I do feel weak at times.

I was in the hospital two years ago and all they told me was to eat bananas and orange juice. I'm 67 years old.

DEAR READER — There are many causes for weakness or feeling tired. That can even happen from an inadequate amount of sodium salt. You usually won't have a low sodium, though, unless you're taking medicines to wash salt and water out of the body.

Potassium is found in abundant quantities in most fruit. That's why bananas and orange juice were suggested. Both are excellent sources of potassium. People who consume a large amount of fresh fruit and fruit juices should be getting an adequate amount of potassium in their diet. There's also some potassium in fresh vegetables and even in whole milk. Milk, however, also contains quite a bit of sodium and generally has to be limited on a low-salt (low sodium) diet.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 10-12, Salt: Your Vital Sodium And Potassium Balance, as you have requested. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care ot this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I just read an article that was sent to me by someone who's trying harder to save my life than I am. It's my father. I say he's trying harder because I'm an alcoholic who hasn't given up alcohol.

I've lost jobs and friends and almost everything but I don't care because I resent friends telling me to stop drinking or it might be fatal. Maybe if they didn't care so much, I would have found a solution on my own. I know when I get out of jail, I'll go straight to the bar and I'll soon be back in jail and eventually my life will end in disaster. The worst part is I really don't care. That's what booze has done for me and I hope you won't let this happen to your readers.

DEAR READER — There is another way — you could stop drinking.

I suspect that you need the services of a psychiatrist who can help you to understand why you drink and if you're using it as a mechanism related to your interrelations with your family. If you learn to understand yourself and work out some of the problems you have, you may find that you really don't enjoy getting drunk as much as you have in the past. That could be the real solution to your problem.

Botanist Seeking Cancer Fighters

By GENE WANG

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI) — Dr. James Duke has spent a large amount of his time during the past year in what he calls the "briar patches" of the world searching for something new to fight cancer.

Duke, a botanist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture, and workers under his supervision, collects plants from such places as China, Panama, Ecuador, Puerto Rico and Mexico's Baja Peninsula.

The program to find natural compounds that might kill cancer cells has been in operation for 18 years and in that period, about 10 percent of the world's known flowering plants have been examined. Duke took charge last year.

That 10 percent represents more than 30,000 different plants which have been collected and tested. Each sample had to weigh three pounds when dried.

Out of that work, funded largely by the National Cancer Institute, Duke said about one plant in 10 has shown "biological activity against some type of test-tube cancer."

But some would have killed patients as well as tumors, and only 14 plant-derived chemicals involving 13 plant species have been filed with the Food and Drug Administration for anticancer therapy.

One of those 14 compounds, derived from a plant called the Madagascar Periwinkle, when combined with other chemicals, has caused remissions in 99 percent of the cases of acute lymphocytic leukemia, Duke said. It has also been attributed with remissions in about six other types of cancer, including Hodgkins Disease.

Duke's office is responsible only for the procuring the plants from remote regions of the world and identifying them so larger samples can be obtained if they prove successful in preiminary tests.

"We live in burlap bags," he said during a visit to Raleigh to speak to a meeting of the National ociety of Economic Botany.

After samples of plants are obtained, chemical compounds are extracted and tested by the NCI or groups under contract to the NCI. If those compounds need further study, Duke said the NCI will put in an order for more of the original plant — up to 150 pounds of dried material.

"That means they have to throw me back to the briar patch," he said. "This is the better half of the job, to bushwhack around the world.

"As a botanist, almost my whole career has been devoted to field work."

Before Duke took over as head of the program, much of its work was concentrated in Africa but he has shifted the focus to Latin America, because it has three times as many plant species and they are "disappearing fast" as increasing population results in destruction of forests.

Order May Bring Relief To Judges, Employees

WASHINGTON (AP) — Unlike most Americans, federal judges and government employees may find a measure of relief in President Carter's expected order that thermostats in public buildings be set at 78 degrees or higher.

The president ordered thermostats in federal buildings dialed up to at least 80 degrees last April.

That order has led to complaints from government workers about sweltering offices and prompted federal judges in five cities to issue court orders prohibiting building managers from turning down courthouse air conditioners.

One judge in Texas said the 80-degree rule could lead to heat prostration and other health problems. Judges in New Orleans denounced the president's order as "arbitrary, capricious and unreasonable."

William Foley, administrator for federal courts, met with General Service Administration officials Thursday to discuss the judges' complaints.

"It's not a question of whether you can live with 78 or 80 degrees," Foley said after the meeting. "It's a question of air movement and whether you will have motions for mistrials because a juror fell asleep. We have to worry about such things."

Foley said that in some newer courthouses, the windows are sealed shut and the blowers in the air conditioning systems go off when the thermostat is set higher.

He added that high temperatures also can be a problem. He cited one trial in which a large crowd caused the courtroom temperature to jump from 80 degrees to 105 degrees.

In a concession to the judges, the GSA agreed last week to permit precooling of courtrooms prior to trials if the air conditioning system would not otherwise be able to keep the temperature at 80 degrees.

GSA officials, who manage federal buildings, have threatened to go to court to overturn the court orders. They have also asked Chief Justice Warren Burger to help convince federal judges to accept the higher temperatures.

Many observers expected the president to announce implementation of the 78-degree thermostat controls in an energy address scheduled for Thursday night. However, Carter abruptly canceled that speech Wednesday without explanation.

Although the possible two-degree temperature drop would likely appease heat-weary judges and government employees, it is upsetting officials responsible for Carter's drive to reduce federal energy use by 5 percent.

"If the (78-degree) plan supercedes existing regulations, GSA will in fact be lowering its energy conservation standards," said one internal memo.

"This will make our clients happier, but it will seriously impede meeting President Carter's 5 percent energy reduction goal."

Earlier this year, Congress granted the president stand-by authority to require thermostats in non-residential buildings to be set at as high as 80 degrees. Some exceptions are provided for buildings, such as museums and hospitals.

However, restaurant owners and other businessmen who cater to consumer comfort objected strenuously to the 80-degree proposal, leading the administration to opt for a 78-degree setting.

As head of the executive branch, the president already had authority to require higher thermostat settings for government buildings.

Mass Transit Agency Approves Grant For Purchase Of Buses

By NANCY ALLEN
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The federal portion of a $3.3 million grant to Lubbock for the purchase of 14 new buses and the renovation of a building to house transit operations has been approved, City Transit Coordinator John Wilson announced this morning.

The Urban Mass Transit Administration will provide $1,632,806 — or 80 percent of the funds — toward the two projects.

The grant will permit the city to purchase 14 new 37- to 45-passenger diesel-powered "Advance Design" buses for use at Texas Tech University and on present "Citibus" routes.

Bid opening is set for Sept. 5, Wilson said. Lubbock City Council then will have 30 days in which to approve the bids.

Because of a recently added federal requirement that all buses be equipped with wheelchair lifts, however, the grant may have to be amended by the council.

The lift ups the price of the buses from $98,000 to between $120,000 and $125,000 each. With the funds allotted by the grant, the council may decide to order only 13 buses, or request additional funds to purchase all 14 buses.

An amendment to the grant would take one to two months, Wilson said.

In either case, Wilson projects the buses will be delivered by September 1980.

Also included in the grant are funds for two wheelchair lift-equipped vans, a two-way radio communications system, six bus stop shelters and two downtown information booths and a heavy-duty pickup truck for maintenance work.

Funds for an architectural survey of a former auto dealership building near city hall are provided in this phase of the grant.

The building, when remodeled, will be used to house all of transit operations.

Money for the building construction will come from phase two of the grant, which has yet to be approved.

The State Highway and Public Transportation Commission approved $433,791 — or 13 percent of the grant — last October.

The city's 7 percent contribution is made "in kind," in the form of the auto dealership building which the city owns.

"The city is making no cash outlay for this grant," Wilson stressed.

Proposition 13 Slices California Revenue

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — Proposition 13 cut local property tax revenues by a total of $6.88 billion in the last year, the California Board of Equalization reports.

The board said Thursday the average property tax rate went down 56 percent, from $10.90 to $4.79 per $100 of assessed value.

Under Proposition 13, adopted in June 1978, homeowners are reassessed after changes of ownership and when they add new construction. The board said just over $2.7 billion of the cut represented reductions on single-family homes.

Club Officials Cited For Discrimination

By SYLVIA TEAGUE
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The first complaints under the city's public accommodations ordinance enacted last October have been filed against Studio One at 713 Broadway.

Five complaints have been filed with Lubbock's Municipal Court, including one each against Studio One co-owners Roger Freeman and Rodney Holloman and three against a man believed to be a security guard named Russell Sikes.

The complaints against Freeman and Holloman allege Charles Wilson of 1960 E. Colgate St. and Raul Cruz Ortiz of 327 N. Detroit Ave. were denied entrance to the nightclub because they did not have the right identification cards.

Wilson reportedly had a Department of Public Safety identification card, but was told by Freeman he needed another form of identification to be admitted to the club.

Ortiz said in his complaint Holloman told him a Texas driver's license and a Texas Tech University ID were not enough, but he needed some other identification bearing his birthdate.

The public accommodations ordinance makes it illegal to refuse entrance to someone on the basis of color or race through selective enforcement of identification requirements.

All the complainants are black or Mexican-American.

The three complaints filed against Russell Sikes are for misdemeanor assault, refusing to admit a person based on an unposted dress code and refusing to admit a person based on his color.

Ollie Daley of Dallas alleges he was shoved by Sikes and refused entrance by him on June 16 based on a dress code which was not posted.

The city ordinance requires clubs to post entrance requirements on dress codes and identification requirements.

Will D. Williams Jr. of 2902 Third Place also filed a complaint against Sikes, saying he was denied entrance to the club because of his color.

Trials on the complaints against Freeman and Holloman probably will be set this afternoon for late July or early August.

Sikes is scheduled to go to trial on the dress code complaint at 1:30 p.m. on July 24, on the assault complaint at 8:30 a.m. July 25 and on the refused admission based on color complaint at 8:30 a.m. July 26.

However, the city's ordinance permits only a maximum fine of $200 per complaint. And, because the Municipal Court does not become a court of record until after Aug. 27 the cases may simply be appealed to the two backlogged County Courts-at-law.

Three Injured, One Killed In Auto Mishap

ANDREWS (Special) — Two men were listed in satisfactory condition today and a third remained in serious condition following a traffic accident Thursday morning near Andrews in which a fourth man was killed.

Winston Thurman, 53, of Hobbs, N.M., was pronounced dead at the scene of the 7:30 a.m. accident by Justice of the Peace Jay Williams.

Injured in the accident, which occurred about 6 miles west of Andrews on Texas 176, were Conalway Royal, 49, of Hobbs and two other passengers, Poetry Lee Royal, 47, and John Henry Burkely, 29, both of Hobbs.

All three were taken to Permian Memorial Hospital in Andrews, where Poetry Lee Royal and Burkely remained in satisfactory condition this morning. Conalway Royal was transferred to Lea Regional Hospital outside Hobbs and was reported in serious condition there.

According to Department of Public Safety reports, the four men were going east on Texas 176 when a rear tire of their pickup truck blew out, sending the vehicle into the oncoming lane where it bumped the rear of a pickup truck driven by Michael Dwayne Fitts of Andrews.

The vehicle then went into a ditch and overturned, DPS officials said.

Fitts, the lone occupant of the other vehicle, was not injured.

Services for Thurman are pending with Petterson-Roberts Funeral Home at Hobbs.

A native of Fairfield, Thurman had lived in Hobbs for 28 years and was employed as an iron worker.

His survivors include a son, Winston Jr. of Handford, Calif.; three daughters, Vickie Mitchell and Marilyn Thurman, both of Oakland, Calif., and Laverne Jackson of Handford, Calif.; two sisters, Mozelle Washington of Midland and Missouri Kelly of Fort Worth; a brother, Eugene of Fairfield; and several grandchildren.

Blind Federation Protests Exemption

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The 3,000 delegates to the National Federation of the Blind's convention have called for an end to a federal exemption that allows some employers to pay unsighted workers less than the minimum wage.

The NFB said Thursday blind workers are sometimes paid as little as 58 cents per hour, while the current minimum wage is $2.90 an hour. Delegates also asked the National Labor Relations Board to uphold a decision affirming the right of blind workshop employees to unionize.

Plague, Fever Threaten State

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Officials disturbed over the current epidemic of rabies in Texas wildlife today warned that a large population of disease-carrying wildlife also present a threat of an outbreaks of bubonic plague or Rocky Mountain spotted fever.

Bill Gray of the Texas Rodent and Predatory Animal Control Service's local office said rats, ground squirrels and other rodents carry deadly diseases that can be transmitted to humans through their pets.

An 8-year-old girl from Eagle Pass, Texas, died this week at Santa Rosa Children's Hospital of a suspected case of rabies, and two other children — one from nearby Poteet and another from Piedras Negras, Mexico — remained in critical condition today while suffering symptoms of the disease.

Gray said the human rabies cases are an example of what can happen when large numbers of disease-carrying wildlife come in contact with domestic animals.

The danger of plague to humans exists when infected animals such as ground squirrels and prairie dogs shift their disease-carrying load of fleas to the massive number of rates in urban areas, he said.

Gray suggested that pet owners keep domestic animals treated with flea powder and flea collars because it is difficult to keep pets away from wildlife, especially in rural areas.

He said there were 25 cases of bubonic plague in humans in 1975 in neighboring New Mexico, including one case in which a man contracted the disease while skinning a coyote.

Martin Mendoza, an assistant supervisor for urban programs at the rodent control center, said a migration of the plague carrying fleas had been reported in more desolate parts of West Texas and New Mexico.

Firm, Institute Seek Label Rules Change

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Trade Commission has been studying for three years whether the how-to-clean labels in clothing give the consumer enough information.

Now the decision is expected shortly — but even before it is made, a major bleach manufacturer and the dry cleaning industry are charging that the FTC may decide to take no action in view of the current anti-regulatory climate.

The Clorox Co. and the International Fabricare Institute are up in arms, claiming testimony at hearings in the case, as well as consumer surveys, show the labels as currently written do not say enough.

The FTC issued the original care labeling rules in 1972, and proposed a revision in 1976.

Two changes proposed since then made the bleach makers and the dry cleaning industry happy. They would have allowed labels to say, for instance, that both dry cleaning and regular washing could be used to clean a garment — if that is the case.

At present, the labels state only one method of cleaning and don't mention alternatives.

For bleach, the revision would have allowed the phrase "bleach when needed" on some labels instead of the current procedure — which allows only the phrase "no bleach" for garments which can't be bleached.

Now the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection will present the revisions to the full commission July 18 with a suggestion that the emphasis remain on warnings rather than on providing more information.

An FTC staff memo says, "the revisions seek to take advantage of consumer perceptions and market incentives, thereby eliminating the need for some on the disclosures originally recommended."

"For example, since most consumers use bleach regularly in the absence of a warning not to do so, there is no apparent need for an affirmative disclosure that an item can be bleached," it says.

Clorox, however, says one survey found that 80 percent of those contacted did not think the phrase "machine wash," when used alone on a label, implied that was also safe to use bleach.

FDR First President To Fly

By FRANK CORMIER

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the span of three recent weeks, Air Force One hauled President Carter 26,500 miles to two continents and across both the Atlantic and the Pacific.

Carter and his recent predecessors have flown around the globe so widely and so routinely that it's a bit difficult to realize that only 36 years have passed since an incumbent president, Franklin D. Roosevelt, first took to the skies.

When FDR left Miami on Jan. 11, 1943, bound for a World War II conference at Casablanca, the U.S. government did not have a single airplane suitable for presidential travel. Roosevelt flew aboard a "Clipper" flying boat chartered from Pan American World Airways.

Flaw Grounds Plane

In subsequent years, records indicate, only one government-owned presidential plane was grounded because of a design flaw. Harry Truman's DC-6, Independence, went out of service for nearly six months in 1947-48 because the heating system posed a threat of cabin fires.

Book Coming Out

Tales such as the above, and many more, will be published in book form next Tuesday by Coward, McCann & Geoghegan Inc. Titled "The Flying White House," the book is written by J.F. terHorst and retired Air Force Col. Ralph Albertazzie.

TerHorst was former President Gerald R. Ford's first press secretary and Albertazzie was Richard M. Nixon's Air Force One pilot for 5½ years.

Calls Intercepted

As Nixon flew home to California in August 1974 after resigning his office, H.R. Haldeman, the indicted former White House chief of staff, placed two telephone calls to Nixon aboard Air Force One seeking a presidential pardon for Watergate crimes.

Ronald L. Ziegler, Nixon's press secretary, intercepted both calls and told Haldeman that there would be no last-minute pardons.

As the plane flew across central Missouri, Ford became president and Air Force One, for the balance of the flight, became SAM (for Special Air Missions) 27000.

When Nixon flew into exile, Albertazzie reveals, the "black box" containing top-secret codes for launching nuclear weapons was not aboard the presidential jet. The codes were left in Washington with an aide to Ford.

The book suggests that someone in the Pentagon did not trust Nixon with the codes during his final hours in office.

Present For Taft

President Truman, often at odds with the late Sen. Robert A. Taft, R-Ohio, often asked to be alerted when his plane was over Taft's home state.

Thus prompted, Truman would visit the lavatory, then order the pilot to activate the waste disposal system.

Religious Organizations Aid Vietnam Refugees

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Writer

Although it often goes unnoticed, whatever American help is extended to relieve the mounting human tragedy of refugees in Southeast Asia is done largely through religious organizations.

They provide most all of the local sponsorships that are required for admitting the castaways, and have promised to line up such hospitality for as many of the refugees as the government will admit.

"This central role that Protestant, Catholic and Jewish bodies are playing in this massive human calamity is rarely recognized, but it's essential to saving lives," says Rabbi Marc H. Tanenbaum of the America Jewish Committee.

"It's a great demonstration of religious faith in action."

With thousands fleeing Cambodia, Laos and Vietnam, many to die, starve or drown in the South China Sea, Christian and Jewish forces have joined together to press for all-out rescue measures.

It's "the greatest humanitarian crisis of this decade," they declared in a joint statement, urging government leaders "to do everything in their power to meet this vast human catastrophe now."

Already, U.S. religious organizations have resettled three-fourths of the 210,000 Indochinese refugees admitted to this country. Church sponsors are awaiting others still in detention camps, and pledged to handle all additional refugees allowed in the country.

"The churches and synagogues are experienced hands in resettling refugees, and we're ready to resettle more in their desperate, excruciating plight," says the Rev. George Harkins of the Lutheran Council in the U.S.A.

Religious organizations have been in the business of sponsoring resettlement of outcasts and the homeless throughout this century, including hundreds of thousands after World War II and in subsequent upheavals around the earth.

All major demonimations and interchurch bodies have overseas staffs working with refugees and also departments to arrange sponsorships for finding homes and employment through local congregations.

With thousands now "desperately seeking help" in the "terrible human saga" in Indochina, "we cannot sit idle," says Episcopal Presiding Bishop John M. Allin. He urges the U.S. to use military and civilian aircraft and ships to bring the refugees from overcrowded camps and drifting boats.

Uncounted thousands of refugees already have perished, including about 200,000 boat people drowned at sea, with other thousands dying on the land, doubtlessly including many of the 40,000 Camboodians recently forced back into Cambodia at gunpoint by Thialand to face starvation or execution.

Refugee experts estimate that the tide of refugees will total a half million by fall, a million in a year, and that under present conditions, 50 percent to 70 percent of them would perish.

If greater rescue efforts are not made, "we may later look back on a new holocaust," says Bishop Thomas C. Kelly of the U.S. Catholic Conference, referring to the Nazi slaughter of 6 million Jews.

The religious organizations, including Church World Service relief arm of 32 mainline Protestant and Eastern Orthodox bodies in the National Council of Churches, Catholic Relief Services and the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, last week alloted $30,000 to buy food, blankets and medicines for camp refugees.

The religious groups also urged the U.S. to establish safe havens on islands such as Guam for those now drifting at sea and to speed movement from camps by military transport if necessary of refugees already processed and waiting to join sponsors in this country.

In the face of the scale of the crisis, the National Association of Evangelicals, a cooperative group of 38 conservative, relatively small denominations, joined for the first time inthe broader religious alliance to attack the problem.

Adrian Rogers' Election Reveals Southern Baptist Turn To Right

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
United Press International Writer

The Southern Baptist Convention took a sharp turn to the theological right at its recent Houston meeting, according to denomination officials, but the new conservative leadership has promised not to engage in any witch hunts.

Indeed, questions of voting irregularities and overt politics played out in a secular style by the conservative forces angered many messengers at the convention and may force the new leadership to go slow in rooting out what it considers liberal influences in the church's seminaries.

The issue of alleged liberalism in the generally conservative denomination has become central in recent years as the 13.2 million member denomination has increasingly been in the limelight as a result of the election of Southern Baptist Jimmy Carter as president and the emergence of a vigorous evangelical movement in the United States.

In electing as their new president the Rev. Adrian Rogers, pastor of the 11,000-member Bellevue Baptist Church, the fifth largest in the SBC, the messengers chose an avowed Biblical conservative dedicated to the notion that the Bible is without error.

Rogers was the consensus candidate of conservative forces, led by Howard Lindsell, former editor of the evangelical magazine Christianity Today, Texas Judge Paul Pressler and Paige Patterson, president of the Criswell Bible Center in Dallas.

Before the convention began, the conservatives, including Rogers, demanded that liberals be purged from the denomination's six seminaries.

Rogers, in effect reading liberals out of the Baptist fellowship, told the Southern Baptist Pastors conference before the convention began, "If those liberals will ever come to the cross of Christ, all heaven will break loose."

After his election, however, Rogers took a more moderate stance.

"I was not a part of this campaign," he said of the election efforts on his behalf. "I don't belong to Paige Patterson or Judge Paul Pressler, or even to this convention. I belong to the Lord Jesus Christ."

He said, "I would not favor any group that came with blood in its eye to go on a witch hunt."

But he also said that any "liberalism" is too much if it means that Baptist seminaries are failing to teach that the Bible is the authentic, infallible word of God.

And he said he would support an investigation of the denomination's seminaries "if it were done by a committee that is fair and balanced."

Rogers said he had no plan at the moment for dealing with the alleged liberal trends.

"I didn't have a plan because I was not a candidate," he said. "Most of what I'll be doing is setting a tone."

The convention, however, took no action during its sessions to initiate any investigations but did adopt a resolution expressing "gratitude to our seminaries" in the face of the accusations, saying complaints should be lodged directly with the boards of trustees.

Before the convention, outgoing President Jimmy Allen expressed concern that the internal squabble over the Bible might result in a lessened emphasis on mission by the nation's largest Protestant denomination — a fear Rogers sought to alleviate.

"No man in the world believes more in soul winning and missions, and all you have do is look at the record," he said.

Religion Roundup

NASHVILLE (AP) — Hundreds of songs used in black churches — spirituals, gospel hymns, chants, anthems, liberation and patriotic songs — are being sifted for possible inclusion in a new "black songbook" being produced by the United Methodist Church.

Several groups in the church are cooperating in producing the new book, to include about 300 musical compositions, historical information and directions for singing.

Sample selections for it are to be available for use by delegates to the church's quadrennial general conference in Indianapolis in 1980, with the book scheduled to be issued in 1982.

Center Opened

PASADENA, Calif. (AP) — A center devoted to worldwide evangelization of Moslems, the Samuel Zwemer Insituten has been opened, headed by the Rev. Dr. Akbar Abdul-Haqq of India.

Abdul-Haqq, son of a former Moslem priest and now associate evangelist with the Billy Graham Evangelistic Association, said at formalities opening the center:

"In the so-called Third World, there are indications of the beginning of a groundswell of interest in Jesus Christ on the part of non-Christians in general and Moslems in particular."

Wants Tough Stand

NEW YORK (AP) — A Jesuit theologian, the Rev. Kenneth Baker, editor of Homiletic & Pastoral Review, has urged Roman Catholic bishops to crack down on, even excommunicate when necessary, dissident theologians who openly teach opinions contrary to church doctrine. In an editorial, he blames them for much present confusion among Catholic laity.

Perfume Name Protested

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (AP) — The national ministries department of the American Baptist Churches has protested the marketing of Yves Saint Laurent's "Opium" perfume, saying the use of the word "opium" is offensive.

In a letter to the Squibb Corporation, parent company of Charles the Ritz, distributors of Saint Laurent fragrances, the church agency said advertising for the perfume suggests that opium is somehow glamorous."

"This is repugnant to us because opium is a substance which causes addictionn misery and death," wrote Martha B. Savio, head of the agency's program of ethical responsibility in investmentsm The church owns 11,000 shares of Squibb common stock.

Obsessions Hurt Families

NEW YORK (AP) — An American Jewish Committee official, Yehuda Rosenmann, says the current "obsessions with instant happiness" is responsible for many of the ills that plague American families.

He urged the organization's annual meeting to give top priority to programs aimed at strengthening family life which, he said, is endangered by the present self-centered attitudes and lifetyles.

Disputes Persist

CHICAGO (AP) — Doctrinal disputes persist in the Roman Catholic Church despite a dialogue between bishops and theologians, says Cardinal William Baum of Washington, D. C.

In a special report to the spring meeting of the nation's Catholic bishops, Baum, head of a committee on doctrine, cited problems over intepreting Jesus' incarnation as both human and divine.

"Without the incarnation," he said, "there is no anthropology, no social doctrine" on which the church can stand.

Couple Donates Farm

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — A 233-acre farm near Richmond has been donated to the Southern Baptist foreign mission board as a site for a new orientation center for missionaries preparing to go overseas.

It was donated by a couple who belong to Richmond's Tabernacle Baptist Church, Mr. and Mrs. Harwood Cochrane. He heads a large trucking firm.

Christian-Jewish Relations Strained

By United Press International

There have always been strains in Christian-Jewish relations.

Over the years, however, those tensions have eased considerably through increased bilateral dialogues and a growing awareness on the part of both Christian and Jewish leaders to sensitive areas in one another's community.

At the recent meeting of the American Jewish Committee, however, the Jewish civil rights organization received a background report on "anti-Israeli influence in American churches" which is bound, at least for the moment, to once again intensify the strain and conflict between Jews and Protestant churches in the United States.

Rabbi Marc Tanenbaum, interreligious affairs director of the American Jewish Committee, in a preface to the report, says he believes it is "the first to survey systematically the sources of anti-Israel influence within American Christian churches."

Judith Banki, author of the report, singled out Protestant denominations with a long history of mission and relief work in the Arab Middle East, "certain left-wing 'liberationist' idealogues," and communions with predominantly Arab constituencies as primary sources of anti-Israel sentiment in the United States.

"Among Protestant bodies," she said, "those with the most active anti-Israeli staff members include the United Church of Christ, the United Presbyterian Church in the USA, The Reformed Church in America, the Quakers, the United Methodist Church and the Mennonite Central Committee."

She also cited the National Council of Churches, saying that the "forces sympathetic to Arab claims bureaucractically outweigh those sympathetic to Israel."

At least two of the Christian bodies named — the United Church of Christ and the National Council of Churches — have made public responses to the anti-Israeli charges.

Directors of the United Church Board for World Ministries, for example, rejected out of hand the notion that the board or its staff members were hostile to Israel.

"We applaud the efforts of our staff to keep the issues of peace with justice in the Middle East effectively before the churches and the public, and to provide the balanced information on these matters which is often lacking," the board said of its stance.

In a similar response, the Rev. Robert Turnipseed, head of the National Council of Churches Office on Christian-Jewish Relations, said the report came as "quite a shock" and suggested that because of "certain inaccuracies and omissions, not only is its thoroughness in question, but also the effect seems to be to label the National Coucil and certain member churches as largely, if not entirely, anti-Israel."

Turnipseed seed no evidence was given to document the charges that members of the council, although cited, were anti-Israel and why such churches as the Roman Catholic or Southern Baptist Convention, non-NCC members, were excluded.

"After years of working together with the American Jewish Committee, with an official observer at each meeting of the Governing Board, we are disappointed that we've made no better progress in our relationships," Turnipseed concluded.

The American Jewish Committee's report, he said, "undermines rather than helps these efforts."

Shotgun Blasts Injure Youths

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (UPI) — Police say a neighborhood argument apparently escalated into a shotgun ambush that sent 10 children and one adult to a hospital Wednesday for treatment of superficial buckshot wounds.

The victims, aged from 6 to 18, were treated and released, a spokesman at St. Mary's Hospital said.

"They were all very fortunate," she said. "None of them were admitted."

Lt. Robert Van Houten said the victims were struck by the shotgun pellets when "four shotgun blasts" were fired from a car into the porch of a home on the city's southeast side.

He said police were seeking two male suspects and the car, described as a white-and-gold Oldsmobile Toronado.

Police said the shooting "evidently' resulted from an argument Tuesday between two families in the neighborhood.

"Three or four persons drove up in a car and started to blast," he said. "Someone just cut loose with a shotgun."

The 11 victims were not members of the same family, police said. "They were just a bunch of kids and young adults."

In 1978, Americans bought the equivalent of 79,318,000 one-pint jars of pickles, making them a bigger seller than corn, tomatoes, beans or peas, according to National Georgraphic.

Secretaries' Workshop Scheduled

PLAINVIEW (Special) — The 15th annual Church Secretaries' Workshop will be held July 19-21 at Wayland Baptist College here.

The three-day workshop will feature sessions that emphazise every area of work with specialized interest groups for pastors', educational, music, youth and financial secretaries.

Sarah Walton Miller, well-known author and playwright, will serve as guest clinician.

Dr. Richard McCartney, director of public relations for the Baptist General Convention of Texas, will serve as dinner guest speaker on the first night of the event.

Workshop participants will stay in dormitories and will dine in the campus dining hall. Total cost for the three-day workshop, including room and meals, is $36.

Persons wishing more information should contact Joe Provence, Wayland Baptist College, Plainview, 79072.

Group To Hold Mission School

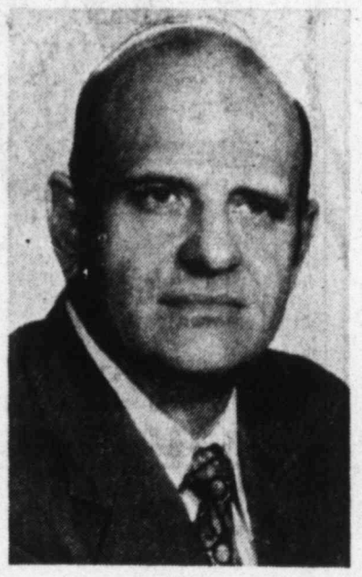
The Northwest Texas Conference of the United Methodist Women will be holding their School of Christian Mission at the College Inn this month.

The event will be held in two sessions, a mid-week school from July 18-20 and a week-end school from July 20-22.

The theme of the conference is "Living Mosaic" and will feature studies in the parables, Middle East mosaic and human rights and the international order.

Costs for the mid-week school are $25 for double room with meals and $30 for single room with meals. The week-end school costs $20 for double room with meals and $25 for single room with meals.

Inquiries and registration should be directed to Mary Vines at 3806 25th St., Lubbock, 79410 or by calling her at 799-6121. Registration deadline is July 10.



DR. R. KEITH PARKS

Board Director To Preach

Dr. R. Keith Parks, director of the Mission Support Division of the Southern Baptist Foreign Mission Board, will be the pulpit guest at the 8:15 a.m., 10:45 a.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday services at First Baptist Church.

The Memphis native was formerly the secretary for Southeast Asia missions. He also served as a missionary to Indonesia for 14 years.

Parks has received degrees from North Texas State University in Denton and the Southwestern Baptist Theological Seminary in Ft. Worth.

Church Pastor To Be Honored

The Rev. Ron McClung will be honored in a special anniversary service at 9:45 a.m. Sunday at Lubbock Missionary Baptist Church.

The anniversary service will follow revival services at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Rev. McClung is being honored in his fifth year as pastor of the church.

Club Elects Officers

New officers of the Trinity Christian Toastmasters Club, elected last week, include Dick Lamb, president; Bonnie Jenkins, vice president for education; Travis Jenkins, administrative vice president; Peggy Lee, secretary-treasurer; and Bill Campbell, sargeant-at-arms.

The club meets every Thursday at 8 p.m. in the elementary building of Trinity Church at 7002 Canton.

Actor Tom Lester To Be At Trinity

Tom Lester, better known to television viewers as Eb in the comedy series "Green Acres," will be the pulpit guest for the 9:30 and 11 a.m. services Sunday at Trinity Church, 7002 Canton.

Lester, who comes form the small town of Laurel, Miss., has also appeared on the television shows "Petticoat Junction," "Beverly Hillbilies," and several Walt Disney productions.

The reluctant handy man for Eddie Albert on "Green Acres" has spoken in crusades conducted by Billy Graham, E.J. Daniel and Bill Glass in many of the larger cities of America.

Lester also works with young people and drug addicts in his own church in Beverly Hills.

No one wanted the old country church torn down when the new building was put up across the road. It just didn't seem respectful. Charlie Swenson suggested, "Why not make it a museum?"

You should have seen the activity here one Saturday. Everyone for miles around turned out, bringing mops and paint brushes — and, of course, chicken salad and apple pies. Then we had a dedication ceremony. Charlie Swenson's wife accompanied us on the old piano as we sang, "The Church's One Foundation."

Now tourists from the city come out to see the pot-bellied stoves, rustic pews and old lamps in our church museum. Once each summer we worship here.

For some of us there will always be a place in our hearts for this little church where we first learned about the teachings of God's Son. We love the new one, too. It is leading new generations into finding the same enduring values.

Israel, Egypt Adopt Plan

ALEXANDRIA, Egypt (AP) — Israel and Egypt agreed today to U.S. mediator Robert Strauss' proposal that they put aside emotional issues and form working groups to tackle the mechanics of Palestinian autonomy.

"We have a structure now for coming to grips with practical problems and it will let progress go forward," Strauss told a news conference after today's session.

Strauss said there was "far more agreement than disagreement" in the first Egyptian-Israeli talks he attended as President Carter's new Mideast troubleshooter.

A communique read at the news conference said a working group would begin holding discussions within two weeks to plan for the election of a Palestinian council to administer home rule in the Israeli occupied areas.

At the same time, the full negotiating committees will continue discussing other issues and may set up other subcommittees, the communique said. The full teams meet again in Israel on Aug. 5.

Prime Minister Mustafa Khalil, Egypt's chief negotiator, said details of the working group's makeup and the site of the talks had not been set.

"I think we made a lot of progress," Khalil said.

The negotiators delayed their session for 30-minutes today while Strauss met with Khalil and the Israeli chief delegate, Interior Minister Yosef Burg, to settle a squabble over the number and tasks of the subcommittees.

Strauss, who reported "some progress" in the resumption Thursday of the autonomy talks, proposed the working groups to get around an Israeli-Egyptian stalemate over which issues should take precedence at the bargaining table. The two countries have been deadlocked over an agenda for future talks since they began negotiating in May.

Strauss said earlier his first day at the negotiating table on Thursday "went very well." The negotiators met twice behind the high walls of the heavily-guarded San Stefano Hotel and continued their dialogue over dinner at a seaside restaurant.

"We hope that by the end of this meeting we will have groups working on specific issues with deadlines to report" to the full negotiating body, Strauss told reporters before the talks got underway.

Although he did not say so, it appeared likely the working groups would focus on the mechanics of electing a Palestinian council to administer home rule on the West Bank and in Gaza and on the dismantling of Israel's 12-year-old military government.

"Our role is to move the process to the next stage," Strauss said. "We are not going to solve the gut issues or resolve any major obstacles."

Israel and Egypt are trying to work out an autonomy plan for the 1.1 million Palestinians living under Israeli rule in the occupied West Bank of the Jordan River and the Gaza Strip.

The remain deeply divided over the scope of autonomy, with Israel insisting home rule will not give the Palestinians control of the land and Egypt viewing it as a step toward an independent Palestinian state.

Other barriers include Egypt's demand that Israel halt its settlement of the West Bank and return predominantly Arab East Jerusalem to Arab hands. Israel annexed the district after its capture in the 1967 Mideast war.

It remains to be seen whether the three parties can win over the West Bank and Gaza Arabs, who have refused participation in any autonomy plan that refuses them outright independence.

In proposing to shelve "philosophical debates," Strauss borrowed a negotiating technique used successfully by former Secretary of State Henry Kissinger in working out the two Israeli-Egyptian troop disengagements in Sinai that followed the October 1973 war.

Like Kissinger, the easy-going Texan appeared to have won the respect of both Egyptians and Israelis. "He is very colorful," one Egyptian negotiator said of the former Democratic Party chairman and trade troubleshooter.

In a related development, the peace treaty Egypt and Israel signed last March is expected to pose a major problem for Organization of African Unity, gearing up for its annual meeting later this month.

OAU ministers open a 10-day meeting in Monrovia, Liberia today to prepare for the African summit on July 16.

Most of the Arab governments of northern Africa, bitter critics of the Egyptian-Israeli treaty, are demanding that Egypt be barred from the summit as it has been excluded from most pan-Arab organization.

Libya and Algeria have threatened to boycott the summit if Egyptian President Anwar Sadat attends, but Liberian President William Tolbert, the incoming OAU chairman, said in an interview Wednesday he would not tolerate Egypt's exclusion.

Senator Fears Terrorist Campaign Against U.S.

JERUSALEM (UPI) — Sen. Henry Jackson has warned the United States and Canada are prime targets of international terrorism and said Congress will "without any question" pass anti-terrorist laws this year.

"The threat will cone from without and not so much from within," the Washington Democrat told reporters Thursday following a four-day meeting on how to fight international terrorism.

The conference was sponsored by the Jonathan Institute, named after Jonathan Netanyahu, the only army officer killed when Israeli troops carried out a raid on Entebbe airport in Uganda to rescue hijacked hostages July 4, 1976.

"North America is a prime target for international terrorist groups," Jackson said, mentioning particularly the United States and Canada. "It's just a question when, and we better be prepared in North America to deal with this problem."

Jackson said the way to deal with the threat was to pass legislation creating data files on the terrorists for the use of federal, state and local authorities.

"We will without any question enact some legislation this year," he said.

Rep. Jack Kemp, R-N.Y., gave figures showing 3,000 terrorist acts since 1970 have resulted in 2,000 people killed and 5,000 wounded, with 25 percent of the victims American citizens.

The conference called for denial of political status for terrorists, common procedures for extradition, appropriate penalties and the exchange of evidence.

The gathering also called for diplomatic and economic sanctions against "states which aid terrorists by supplying them with money and arms, according them facilities for training and propaganda and granting them refuge."

Robert Moss, editor of the Economist Foreign Report, said the Soviet Union was training about 60 Palestinian guerrillas at a military academy in Crimea in such subjects as "river crossings and all types of sabotage."

Former CIA Director George Bush said the Soviets must stop such training programs if it wants relaxation of tensions with the West.

"It is time that nations who school and train terrorists be compelled to face the onus of world opinion," he said.

Rumor Of Tainted Jury Clouds Trial Of Estes

DALLAS (AP) — The judge in the Billie Sol Estes fraud trial met privately in the courtroom today with attorneys for both sides amid speculation the jury might have been tainted.

The federal court jury resumed deliberations this morning.

There were reports that Don Trull of Tyler, a one-time associate of Estes, got onto an elevator with some jury members Wednesday evening as they left their jury room after two hours of deliberations.

However, U.S. District Judge Robert Hill opened the courtroom after a 20-minute session and announced deliberations are proceeding and attorneys for both sides have been ordered not to talk.

The four-week trial, which revealed intricate schemes, big money and flashy business ventures, went to the jury Thursday afternoon.

Estes and his co-defendant and former associate, Raymond K. Horton, are accused of defrauding investors in oilfield steam-cleaning equipment and with concealing assets from the Internal Revenue Service.

The paroled swindler and Sue Goolsby, his former secretary, also are accused of using documents bearing the forged signatures of Tyler millionaire Billy D. Pyron to secure loans for various business ventures.

Mrs. Goolsby will stand trial later.

Earlier Thursday, attorneys for both sides presented final arguments before a packed courtroom. The prosecution charged Estes was up to his old tricks again, while the defense said he was a broken, abused man who had been a victim of "political oppression."

"Billie Sol Estes has concealed assets from the government, I must admit," said defense attorney G. Brockett Irwin. "But they were assets he has possessed since birth and no one can take them away. They are his citizenship and his right to a fair trial."

The fiery East Texas attorney then attacked the state's "sloppy investigation" into the case and charged the government ignored the evidence but resorted to "alcohol, women and deceit to try and snare Citizen Estes."

He then asked the jurors to use "compassion and mercy," and "understanding and fairness" while making their decision and "release the eagle from the tethers of political oppression."

However, Assistant U.S. Attorney Jim Rolfe questioned Estes' compassion when he allegedly finagled retired Panhandle farmer J.H. Burkett into investing $50,000 into petroleum and electronics companies, allegedly operated by the two men.

Burkett, who met Estes at a Bible class, now sells used cars in Abilene.

"One man had a great deal of compassion for Billie Sol Estes," Rolfe said. "He listened to Mr. Estes in Bible class, he visited with him in his home, and the Mr. Estes relieved him of $50,000."

Estes then led him to believe his money was invested and secure, Rolfe charged.

"He turned on the church music, knelt down beside himand told him how great electronics were. Couldn't he, after knowing what Mr. Burkett had been through, let one of his 'pigeons' go?" the prosecutor asked.

Estes, a fast-talking, Abilene man with an easy grin, built his fortune on mortgage loans using non-existent fertilizer tanks as collateral in the 1960s.

The flamboyant wheeler-dealer again found himself in the courtroom after a federal grand jury on Feb. 22 returned three indictments, similiar to the one that earned him a 15-year prison term.

During the trial, Rolfe weaved his case around 29 hours of secretly-recorded conversation and a parade of witnesses who testified about Estes' role in an alleged scheme to bilk four leasing companies out of more than $500,000 through non-existent oilfield steam-cleaners.

Rolfe also maintained Estes used Pyron's name to secure deals not approved by the Tyler millionaire. That allegation centered on a power of attorney bearing Pyron's name allegedly authorizing Mrs. Goolsby to act on Pyron's behalf.

The defense, however, built its case around Estes' credibility, arguing the exconvict was a chronic liar in attempts to discredit the taped conversations and calling witnesses who said he was a "daydreamer" who had a tendency to "exaggerate."

Estes also testified earlier this week that he was an "outright liar" as a result of being shuffled between federal prisons in Kansas, Minnesota and El Paso.

Somoza Pushes New Offensive

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Anastasio Somoza pressed a counter-offensive today that could prove if he still has enough military might to save him.

The 53-year-old dictator sent about 1,000 troops, planes, armored cars and at least one tank against the Sandinista guerrillas holding Masaya, 20 miles south of the capital. Reporters observed the planes bombing, rocketing and strafing the city.

It was Somoza's first counter-offensive against any of the 24 cities the Sandinistas have taken since they launched their offensive six weeks ago to try to end the 42-year-old dictatorship of the Somoza family.

If the national guard cannot recapture Masaya, there will be little prospect of Somoza regaining control of the rest of the country, The guerrillas of the Sandinista National Liberation Front now hold all the major population centers except for Managua, nearby Granada and ports on the Caribbean.

Somoza sent 600 troops from Managua and 200 from another part of the country against the rebels in Masaya, presidential aide Max Kelly said. Two hundred others had been sent in earlier.

Meanwhile, the guerrillas' Radio Sandino reported that the rebels had taken the army garrison in the town of Jinotepe, about 30 miles southwest of Managua.

The broadcast said the guerrillas were also still attacking the army post at Rivas, 60 miles southeast of Managua and 25 miles north of the Costa Rican border, which the rebels began attacking Tuesday and where they plan to set up their provisional government.

But Somoza's press secretary, Rafael Cano, continued to claim that Rivas was under full government control after a sharp guerrilla attack.

Late Thursday evening anti-aircraft guns at Managua airport and around Somoza's heavily fortified bunker headquarters opened up on a plane flying over the capital. About 75 percent of the city also was blacked out, but the cause was not immediately known.

Regarding published reports that Somoza would flee the country soon, a presidential aide who requested anonymity said: "If the president's departure is imminent, you'll have to admit that he is selecting a peculiar manner of preparing for it by launching a major attack.

"The president was very dismayed and was close to resigning after the OAS resolution that he should resign. But he picked himself up again, and told me, 'Well, sir, strap on your pistol because we are going to fight them all the way.'"

Seventeen members of the Organization of American States, including the United States, approved a resolution last month calling for Somoza's resignation to end the war. But Somoza has refused to step down until the fighting ends.

Meanwhile, the Carter administration embarked on a new attempt to restrict leftist influence in the post-Somoza government of Nicaragua. Having failed in an attempt to wean anti-Somoza conservatives and moderates away from the Sandinista cause, State Department officials in Washington said the Carter administration is now counting on Venezuela and Colombia to convince the guerrillas to pursue a moderate course in the post-Somoza era.

Newspapers Report White House Rift

be named, said Carter has set no date for the end of the conference.

Besides Mondale, the aides at Camp David were press secretary Jody Powell, political adviser Hamilton Jordan, media adviser Gerald Rafshoon, domestic policy adviser Stuart Eizenstat and pollster Patrick Caddell.

The Los Angeles Times and the New York Post reported that Carter is planning a major personnel shakeup in the White House and that Jordan would emerge as chief of staff. In the past, the president strongly resisted suggestions to create such a position, as was customary in some previous administrations.

With reasons for the speech cancellation still cloaked in mystery, Powell issued through his office Thursday evening a brief statement that raised as many questions as it answered.

Powell said, in full:

"The president is in the process of assessing major domestic issues which he believes are important to the country and which include, but go beyond, the question of energy.

"He will be consulting with a number of individuals whose judgment he respects, both in and outside of government."

The canceled speech, set for television-radio broadcast Thursday night, was to have dealt with inflation and the threat of a recession, as well as with energy.

A White House source, who asked not to be named, said Carter's motives for shelving the address went beyond dissatisfaction with a draft text.

This source said it would not be incorrect to say Carter was displeased with the draft. But he added, "That's not the whole story. I'm not in a position to discuss it further at this time."

Another source, discussing the speech draft, said Carter "asked for a bold new approach and the material he got turned out to be not so bold and not so new."

A source close to both the congressional Democratic leadership and White House energy planners said today that a proposal to do away with the government's gasoline allocation system was an issue being hotly contested within Carter's inner circle.

"There is an underlying consensus that the allocation system has not been especially successful," said the source, who asked not to be identified.

The source said Schlesinger and others in the Department of Energy are generally advocating abolition of the allocation system as unfair to urban areas but that some top White House advisers, including Eizenstat, are arguing for its retention.

Both The New York Times and The Atlanta Constitution reported in today's editions that the speech cancellation resulted from a deep split among Carter's top advisers over whether to remove all controls from gasoline and let it seek a free market — both in price and availability — or to keep controls, perhaps even rationing.

The Times said Schlesinger, Blumenthal and some others urged the president to remove controls, while Mondale and others warned him that to do so would be political suicide.

The Constitution said Eizenstat, the domestic policy chief, favored a gasoline rationing system in which a "white market" in gas coupons would allow people who needed more fuel to get it by buying extra tickets at the going price.

Mercury Plummets In East, Midwest

Other area cities with precipitation include Tulia (1.27 inches), Levelland (1.09 inches), Plains (1.04 inches) and Lockettville (.21 of an inch).

Temperatures in Lubbock are expected to reach into the lower 90s today and Saturday with the low tonight in the 60s.

Heavy thunderstorms were reported to be dumping rain at an inch an hour in several eastern portions of the state this morning and were expected to continue throughout the day.

Temperatures should reach the century mark in far West Texas, with the rest of the state enjoying readings in the 80s and 90s. Overcast skies were expected in the eastern portions of the state today while clear to partly cloudy skies should prevail over the rest of the state.

The National Weather Service said the extended forecast calls for a chance of thunderstorms mainly in the Panhandle and mountains of Southwest Texas for the first part of next week, and sunny days with fair nights have been predicted for the rest of West Texas.

South Plains temperatures will continue in the 90s for a high and upper 60s to low 70s for the low throughout the weekend.

Skylab Descent Time Updated

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A revised prediction advances the most likely date for the fall of the doomed Skylab space station to next Wednesday, a day earlier than the previous estimate.

The calculation Thursday by the Air Force Space Defense Center housed in a granite mountain near Colorado Springs places a five-day period of uncertainty — from July 9 through July 13 — on Skylab's re-entry into the atmosphere.

The space agency, which is coordinating the Skylab watch, said the abandoned 77-ton space station had dropped to within 133 miles of arth's atmosphere. It was dropping an average of two miles a day.

The orbiting laboratory, largest manmade object in space, is expected to break up when it hits the atmosphere and 500 pieces capable of causing injury are expected to survive the heat of atmospheric friction.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said the chance of Skylab causing an injury was remote, with only a 1 in 600 billion chance of any particular person being hit.

Safe Investing Harder Under High Inflation Rate

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — With the return of double-digit inflation, the task of investing safely for adequate income gets increasingly important for many Americans. Unfortunately, it also gets harder. Interest rates have been raised this summer on such old standbys as U.S. savings bonds (from 6 to 6½ percent) and passbook savings accounts (from 5¼ to 5½ percent at savings institutions and from 5 to 5¼ at commercial banks).

But with the inflation rate running at above 10 percent, those increases are something less than a bonanza for anybody who needs to squeeze every dollar he can from his savings just to stay liquid.

Of course there are other choices — a bewildering array of them, in fact. You can pick short-term or long-term, conservative or risky, fixed rate or floating rate.

If you've checked with your local bank lately, you've probably found it offering about 10 different varieties of savings accounts, certificates and term-deposit plans.

What follows is a capsule listing of some of the most popular current income vehicles among small investors, including their recent yields, relative safety and special characteristics:

TREASURY BILLS, NOTES AND BONDS: Recently yield from 8.8 percent on three-month bills to almost 9.5 percent on some notes expiring soon. Bond maturities currently up to 30 years. Recent bill rates down almost a full point from April peak of 9.7, and don't match some yields available elsewhere. But presumably nothing safer, and income exempt from state and local taxes.

Bought through banks or stockbrokers. New bills, notes and bonds available without commission or service charge from nearest Federal Reservek Bank. Minimum purchase on bills $10,000, notes and bonds sometimes as low as $1,000. Many other types of U.S. government-issued securities available with varying characteristics.

BANK CERTIFICATES: Six-month money market certificates now yielding same as 26-week Treasury bills at commercial banks, 9 percent at savings institutions. At government-covered institutions, insured up to $40,000 on regular accounts, Risk: High current return assured only until certificates expire, at which time rates could be higher or lower than now. Minimum purchase $10,000.

Long-term certificates of deposit yielding up to 8 percent and more, including compounding of interest. Same government insurance. Early withdrawal penalties recently reduced by federal regulators. Minimum purchase requirements now up to individual institutions.

STOCKS AND BONDS: High-grade bonds yielding in 8-9 percent range, stocks yielding an average of close to 6 percent with many higher. Market risks. Some top corporate bonds considered almost as safe as Treasury risks. Some top corporate bonds considered almost as safe as Treasury securities, higher-yielding (10-12 percent) bonds riskier. Tax-free municipal bonds yielding 6 percent or higher. No guarantees with stocks, but many offer hope of rising divideds.

MONEY MARKET FUNDS: Recently yielding 9.5 percent on average, according to Donoghue's Money Fund Report. Many, including some sponsored by brokers, available without sales charge, offer extra features such as check-writing in amounts of $500 or more. Minimum investment $1,000 at many, up to $5,000 at others. Risk considered low, but of rates decline, so will fund yields.

FLOATING RATE NOTES: Recently yielding 10-11 percent, according to Standard & Poor's Corp. Rates adjusted every six months on formula based on Treasury-bill rates. Maturities as long as 30 years, but many have features allowing them to be redeemed or converted into fixed-rate securities sooner. Safety, as with bonds, varies with issuer. Bought through brokers. Minimum investment typically $1,000.

PUBLICLY-TRADED BOND FUNDS: Recently yielding 9½-11 percent. "The Income Investor," Palisades Park, N.J., advisory service points out that yields on these higher than the bonds in which they invest because funds trade on New York Stock Exchange at brokers. Market risk, including possibility of fluctuation in "discount," up or down.

Farm Income Outlook Brighter

WASHINGTON (AP) — This month's surge in grain prices has significantly brightened the outlook for net farm income this year, with the Agriculture Department raising the possibility now of a new record.

"Net farm income between $30 billion and $34 billion is now expected and likely will be near the record $30 billion," the outlook and situation board said Thursday.

Less than six months ago, a small drop was expected from the $27.9 billion recorded in 1978 — itself a sharp jump of nearly $8 billion from depressed 1977 receipts.

At the same time, the board raised its estimate of the year's average increase in food prices from a range of 8 to 10 percent to one of 10 to 11 percent.

The grain boom, which could raise crop receipts by $8 billion to $60 billion this season, won't affect food prices much until next year, economists say.

The board said the higher forecast for this year is due to concern that food retailers won't lower retail beef and pork prices to reflect wholesale declines, plus general uncertainty over the energy and transportation situations.

It also wasn't clear what affect the department's separate report on crop acreages planted would have on both the grain price spiral and the income forecasts next time.

The Crop Reporting Board said that farmers now are expected to harvest 79.8 million acres of corn this fall, virtually the same as last year's 79.7 million.

About 68.5 million acres of the total is earmarked for the grain market, the board said, a drop of 1 percent from 1978.

Those figures are based on June 1 field surveys, before reports that the Soviet Union's crops may have been poorer than expected. That would keep the Russians as a big spender in the export markets and give farmers more attractive prices.

In addition to possible large Soviet purchases after harvest, logistical limits in other exporting countries are improving the already bright picture for U.S. farm exports, the outlook board said.

It added that large stocks and favorable growing conditions so far in key areas "will temper prices over the next year" if they continue.

No forecasts of actual crop production were included in the report. The department's first corn-production estimate will be issued July 11 and the monthly soybean estimates begin Aug. 10.

Nearly ideal weather produced a record 7.1 billion bushels of corn, up by more than 10 percent from 6.43 billion in 1977, the previous high. Soybean output went to a record 1.84 billion bushels, up 4.5 percent from 1977.

The Crop Reporting Board said farmers are boosting soybean plantings 12 percent to a record 71.7 million acres, compared to 64 million acres in 1978.

An increase in livestock feeding also is a big factor in the demand for feedgrain and soybean meal, with expansion of pork and poultry supplies providing larger markets.

In all, the report said, farmers will have about 100 million acres of livestock feedgrains for harvest this year, down 4 percent from 1978.

The report said farmers planted 15.6 million acres of sorghum, down 6 percent from last season; 14.1 million of oats, down 14 percent; 8.06 million of barley, down 19 percent and 3.07 million of rice, slightly less than last season.

Food-grain acreage for harvest was put at 66.2 million acres, including wheat and rice, up 9 percent from last year.

Cotton farmers said they are planting 13.9 million acres, up 4 percent from less than 13.4 million acres harvested last year, the board said. Cotton production, beset by poor yields, dropped 25 percent to 10.8 million bales last year.

Of the major crops, only plantings of spring wheat were not even with or well ahead of the June 1, 1978, pace.

The board two weeks ago pegged the 1979 winter wheat crop at 1.43 billion bushels, up 14 percent from 1978, the smallest crop in five years. Growers are now harvesting about 42.9 million acres of winter wheat, or 8 percent more than 1978.

Thrifty Man Leaves Millions To School

CLEVELAND (AP) — Most of his life John McCalla Harris was the picture of thrift. Friends say he never owned a car, walked daily the 10 miles between his home and office and carried his lunch in a brown paper bag. But in his will, the lawyer, who died Jan. 25, at 93, left $7 million to Case Western Reserve University.

Nathaniel R. Howard, a close friend of Harris, said the lawyer toted his lunch not to save money, but because the City Club where he ate each day, didn't serve his favorites — watercress sandwiches and hard-boiled eggs. School president Louis Toepfer said Harris asked that the gift be used to support the humanities.

Fijians To Probe Volcanic Blasts

SUVA, Fiji (AP) — Fiji is sending a research ship to investigate volcanic explosions that are creating a new island in the Tongan group, 400 miles east of Suva.

Director of mineral surveys Ronald Richmond said the ship would leave Suva next weekend and stop at the Toga capital, Nukualofa, to pick up three officials.

An eruption at the Metis volcanic shoal was "copious" and was forming an island, Richmond said. He said the eruption, which started in June, was discharging large amounts of pumice that could be a serious danger to ships.

Oil Shortage Called Manageable

By PHILIP GREER
And MYRON KANDEL

A Norwegian shipping magnate who is also heavily involved in developing North Sea oil fields has some pointed words of advice for the United States and other nations suffering from the worldwide oil shortage. The oil pinch can be managed, he says, if the consuming countries show some concern for one another.

For example, Wilhelm Wilhelmsen points out, "In Norway, we're talking about rationing gasoline in the autumn. We don't have a shortage, but we feel a commitment to the rest of the European community. Personally, I don't like rationing, but I agree that we have to take some steps. That kind of feeling, I think, is missing in a lot of countries.

"On the other hand," he told us, "Americans are less disciplined than other people and therefore are more likely to argue and less likely to adapt. You're not like the Japanese, for example, who are very willing to adapt to conditions."

Wilhelmsen has an unusual perspective on energy, as well as global business in general. He's co-owner of a Norwegian shipping company and is chairman of a consortium of Norwegian, British and Swedish shipping interests called Barber Blue Sea.

And coming from a country that has a lot more oil than it needs, but is not a member of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries, he's in a position to weigh the causes of and consider solutions to — the oil crisis.

We talked with him when he was in the country for the christening of a new super freight carrier. "There is enough crude oil available to satisfy the demand," he said, "but those producing it don't want to supply enough, and, with prices so high, they can control production.

"There's enough to satisfy the demand for 15 or 20 years," he added. "But that's short-sighted. It doesn't attack the basic problem, which is that there is only so much oil to be found in the world, and other energy sources have to be developed.

"Americans have all the energy they'll need for hundreds of years," Wilhelmsen asserted. "Your coal supplies are enormous. Of course, environmentalists object to coal, but that's what I'm taking about. You're going to have to weigh your standard of living against having a little dirt on your collar."

We asked him if people in other countries believe — as many Americans do — that the oil shortage has been created by the big companies to increase their own profits. He indicated that there might be some truth to that feeling, but suggested that it might not be a result of specific corporate policy.

"The oil companies are huge and can't be controlled from the top," Wilhelmsen said. "No company with 200,000 or more employees can be controlled from the top. When you get down to the operating levels, they are enormously profit-oriented, possibly to the extent that it overpowers their social consciousness, and if they can add something to their profits, I don't doubt that they will.

"For that matter," he added, "you are a very profit-oriented society. I think it's a very healthy thing. But it does cause problems."

In the last oil crunch in 1973-74, Wilhelmsen noted, President Nixon said it represented a challenge to Americans, while President Carter describes the present situation as a crisis. "Of the two types of statements, I prefer to look at a problem like this as a challenge. If more people did, they would be more willing to do the things that have to be done, like adjusting their style of living and developing other sources of energy.

"That's where Americans differ from Europeans," he added. "The U.S. wants to protect free enterprise. Europeans want to protect it, too. But not as much. They're more willing to be restrictive."

Wilhelmsen pointed out that the fuel shortage goes a lot farther than U.S. gasoline stations. "Our own ships are faced with the same problems, and they react same way," he said. "We top off our fuel supplies more often than we did before. We take on bunkers of fuel whenever we find it because we know we will hit ports where we won't be able to get fuel. That doesn't help the problem — big ships running with more fuel than is normal — but it's caused by the same problem all over the world."

In time, Wilhelmsen said, he wouldn't be surprised to see world oil supplies swing back from shortage to glut — "a more progressive government in Iran would do it" — but in the meantime he thinks the key is altering life styles. "I think we can have a very nice time in this world, even if we didn't use so much oil," he said.

Hospital Panel Gets Offer

By KIM COBB
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Somebody allegedly wants to buy trouble-ridden Health Sciences Center Hospital, but the county hospital district already has had one refusal to administer it.

The Lubbock County Hospital District board met for several hours in closed session Thursday, with part of that time spent offering Methodist Hospital's administrator George Brewer the job of LCHD executive director. He refused.

But the real surprise came after the meeting when a man approached board Chairman Jack Strong and board member Joe Stanley with a mysterious offer to buy the teaching hospital.

"It's very nebulous," Stanley said.

Tommy Young, a commercial salesman for Associated Builders Realtors here, told Strong and Stanley he is representing a group of Dallas investors interested in buying the hospital. Young would not identify the investors to the LCHD officials or discuss the proposition with The Avalanche-Journal.

But, Stanley said, Young told them the investors own other hospitals across the country. He reportedly said the investors want a letter from the LCHD board indicating the district is interested in selling the facility.

Strong, who refused to issue such a letter, indicated the investors can make their pitch to the board anv time thev want, Stanley said.

He also speculated the unidentified prospective buyers may appear at the next board meeting scheduled July 16.

Stanley said Strong is "waiting for a letter from them stating their position."

Stanley and Strong told Young they don't know whether, legally, they can negotiate to sell the hospital. Strong reportedly told Young the LCHD legal counsel will look into it.

"I imagine we will do our homework before we meet with them at a board meeting," Stanley said. Without speculating how such an offer would be received, Stanley said, "We'd certainly give it some thought."

Most of Thursday's meeting centered on appointing an executive director to replace Gerald Bosworth, who was dismissed last week by the board of managers. The board requested that George McGowan, associate director of operations, continue to run the hospital in his current capacity, acting as if Bosworth were on vacation.

"Officially, Jerry Bosworth is still on the payroll for the next three months," Strong said, explaining McGowan's status. Bosworth was paid for 90 days work beyond his contract expiration date of June 30.

McGowan said Thursday he wants to be considered for the executive director's position.

Brewer appeared before the board at about 3:20 p.m., and the group went into closed session for the second time during the meeting.

Stanley told The A-J that Brewer had been approached earlier with the executive director's job, to give him time to study the offer.

After consulting with his accountant and attorney, Stanley said, Brewer decided against accepting the position. Strong told observers at the meeting that HSCH couldn't offer Brewer as much money as he is making as administrator at Methodist.

"We did offer him the job and naturally he's not interested," Strong said. But Brewer sat with the board for almost an hour, discussing ideas the teaching hospital could use in finding a new administrator.

"We're going to continue to look," Strong said, adding that the group hopes to find a replacement within a week to ten days. But the board will set no deadlines for itself, he added.

Brewer has agreed to sit on the board's administrative committee, which is charged with seeking out candidates for the executive director's job. Strong explained that Brewer knows the people and the workings involved in such a selection.

Zoning Change Approved For EMS Substation

By ESTHER LONGORIA
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The Planning and Zoning Commission Thursday approved a zone change to allow an ambulance substation in a mobile home on 50th Street.

Jeff Young, training chief for Emergency Medical Services, requested that zoning for the property be changed from high-density apartments (A-2) to apartment-medical (AM), and the commission approved that request.

However, the commission stipulated it would approve the request provided that a precedent is not set for EMS to use mobile homes for any future structures. The commission said it would deal with such requests on a case-by-case basis.

Young told comission members that the substation is needed for the greater Southwest Lubbock area, which currently has an extended ambulance response time.

EMS last month was granted a special exception by the Zoning Board of Adjustment to permit the substation behind the Precinct One clubhouse at 5012 50th St.

In other action, the commission also recommended that the Depot restaurant at 1801 Ave. G become the first landmark and design-historic district in Lubbock.

The Urban Design Commission had recommended that the Spanish Renaissance-style building, which was constructed in 1926, become the first such landmark in the city.

The P&Z approved the request with the provision that any new buildings constructed at the location should be architecturally compatible with the historical site.

The city council will take final action on the matter after receiving the planning commission's recommendation.

The commission also voted to continue until August a request by the City of Lubbock to change the zoning designation of property at 2219, 2221, and 2223 13th Street in the Overton addition from a two family district (R-2) to two family design-historic (R-2 (DH)) zoning. This zone change will be considered later in conjunction with a request to rezone the entire Overton South neighborhood from R-2 to R-2 (DH).

The commission also approved the request of Bill Cox, representing Smith, Baker, Field and Clifford Inc., for a change in zoning from single family (R-1) to AM, specific use, to allow law offices north of 22nd Street and west of Indiana Avenue.

Arnold Maeker, representing the First Baptist Church, received approval from the commission to change property at 8315 Indiana Ave. from R-2 to A-2 to make an existing church a permitted use and allow expansion without ZBA approval.

The commission also recommended the annexation of a tract of land between Kent Street and Ursuline Street from Guava Avenue to Olive Avenue.

Officials Will Review Turnout At Rabies Vaccination Clinic

EAGLE PASS (AP) — City officials say they must review the "fair" turnout at Eagle Pass' seventh pet rabies vaccination clinic before they authorize emergency steps that could include the wholesale slaughter of stray dogs and cats.

This border city, along with Piedras Negras, Mexico, has been the focus of an outbreak of the deadly disease that doctors say may have caused the death of two girls and left an Eagle Pass boy in critical condition in a San Antonio hospital.

Eagle Pass residents brought 135 dogs and cats to a special rabies vaccination clinic Thursday in an effort curb the outbreak of the disease.

City Manager Roberto Gonzalez said Thursday the council may meet today to determine if the response is sufficient to avoid envoking emergency measures.

Mexican officials in Piedras Negras apparently have already issued shoot to kill orders on stray animals. Gonzalez said a Mexican newspaper reported earlier 6,000 dogs had been killed in 40 days.

Gonzalez said the council agreed Tuesday night to use the immunization program as a gauge for determining if drastic steps were necessary to combat the outbreak of rabies.

Dr. Hans Petersen, city veterinarian, called the turnout "fair." But Gonzalez refused to speculate on what action the city council might take.

"I can't say what they will decide about the average turnout to our seventh clinic. They will almost certainly request additional assistance from the state," said Gonzalez, who would not specify the type of help the city would seek.

Fireworks Disturbances Cause Police Problems

By DEBBIE STALTER
Avalanche-Journal Staff

Independence Day means family get-togethers, good times and a day to relax from work for many — except for members of the Lubbock Police Department.

Fireworks disturbances Tuesday and Wednesday created numerous headaches at the police department, with one incident ending in a Lubbock man filing charges against his neighbor.

Police estimated that as many as 200 calls per hour were received during peak hours for shooting off firecrackers and other noisemakers Wednesday,and complaints soon became close to impossible to keep an accurate tally.

City Attorney James Moore said Thursday the only person filing a charge so far in connection with fireworks was a man who had a firecracker go off near his face Wednesday night. The man filed against his neighbor, who Moore said had been helping her child set off firecrackers when one was thrown toward the adjoining yard, exploding near the man's face. He reportedly did not suffer any physical injury.

Moore said charges can be filed for violating two city ordinances: starting a fire that creates noise or smoke or shooting off fireworks within the city limits. Fines can reach up to $200.

Police can issue a ticket if they actually see a disturbance being caused, but Moore said they usually just warn violators of the problem. A resident can ask police officers to obtain the names of the violators in order to file charges, though, Moore said.

In the 10 years he has served as city attorney, Moore estimates that only one or two persons a year file charges related to fireworks ordinances. He said many times people who file are either bothered by excessive noise or are elderly people who become frightened by the constant crackling and popping associated with the Fourth of July.

Moore said most of those charged just pay the fine rather than take the matter to court.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

There's a working class emerging in this country that bears watching. Without the benefit of lobbyist, union, or organization of any kind, they are emerging as a real power group. I call them "professional children" and within a few years they have amassed private fortunes that are staggering.

Several years ago when mothers began to return to the labor market, children also saw a value in the rewards system. They began to exercise their worth too.

They discovered that crying when mother leaves for work was worth — 50 cents.

Not crying when mother leaves for work was worth — one dollar.

Not playing in the traffic while mother was at work — 25 cents.

Staying out of trouble and playing with $400 worth of toys in their bedroom — 35 cents.

I know some kids who have saved enough to buy an Arab just by answering the door.

I found a "professional child" the other day who was willing to talk about his new-found status. "The tooth fairy gave kids a limited income, " he said. "It was like ballplayers. You only had a few good years to make it. Having a working mother gives us more stability. This way I get paid for setting the table, not teasing the dog, not letting more than 20 kids at a time in the house, and a bonus for watching my brother."

"What about your brother?" I asked.

"He gets paid for not losing the mail, tearing up the paper before our parents get to read it, not spitting, and a bonus for watching me."

"You get nothing for breathing?"

"Not yet. We work on a narrow margin of guilt and we have to be careful not to go too far. A few kids get paid for not letting the hose run in the living room or for changing their underwear every day, but that's rare. Most of us are non-productive for scale."

As I was there, the phone rang. It was his mother calling from work. She wanted him to let in the washer repairman when he came.

"It's too bad," he said putting down a pencil. "He's due when I'm being paid to take my nap. It'll cost her extra."

Weddings

SCARBROUGH—BRISTOW

Julie Scarbrough and Don Bristow were married Thursday in the Bowman Chapel of the First Methodist Church. The Rev. Waid Griffin officiated.

Honor attendants were Joyce Scarbrough of Carrollton, sister-in-law of the bride, and Lamont Scarbrough of Carrollton, brother of the bride.

Parents of the couple are Mr. and Mrs. B.W. Scarbrough and the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank F. Bristow.

The bride was graduated from Texas Tech University and Tech graduate school. The bridegroom was graduated from the University of Wyoming.

Following a trip to Padre Island, the couple will live in Lubbock.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am the editor of a newsletter for adoptive parents. It is called OURS (Organization for a United Response).

Some years back you had a column about the typical stupid questions all parents of adopted children were asked. You offered some wonderful suggested replies. Could you please hunt up that item and run it again? I would like to run it in our newsletter with your permission.

Ann G. In Earlington, Ky.

Dear Ann: I found the item, and here it is:

• • •

DEAR ABBY: A prospective adoptive mother asked you for helping in replying to 'dear, kindly, well-meaning' friends and relatives who ask personal questions about the adoption.

May I help? I have been through it four times and have heard all comments and questions. Here are some tried and true responses:

Q: Oh, isn't it a shame you can't have 'children of your own'?

A: Not really; there's a lot of insanity in both our families.

Q: Do you know all about the parents?

A: Everything. One was male. The other was female.

Q: Did the adoption agency try to match your features, coloring and personalities?

A: Good grief, I hope not!

Q: Aren't you worried about hereditary factors?

A: Heaven, no. Regardless of how bad their ancestors were, they've got to be better than ours!

Best wishes!

DEAR ABBY: The night before Mother's Day our son called and invited us out for a Mother's Day dinner along with his wife, her brother and his wife, and his wife's mother. Now here's the clinker: "Would we pay our own way since he was broke?"

My wife turned down the invitation, so our son said he'd stop by the house in the morning to wish her a happy Mother's Day.

Abby, this same son went to Nassau last month for a vacation with his wife and his wife's sister and brother. Last summer they had a lovely vacation in Europe, and plan to go again this summer. (They're taking her folks along.)

I am fed up with this whole outfit. It is plain to me that we are not accepted by our son's wife and her people. How can I make my wife see the light? I hate to hurt her feelings. Sign me...

½ tsp. fresh grated lemon peel
2 tsps. fresh squeezed lemon juice
1 lb. (about 6 medium) carrots, cooked (sliced or whole)
Chopped parsley

In saucepan, blend butter and mustard. Stir in honey, lemon peel and juice; heat. Pour over cooked carrots. Sprinkle with parsley. Makes 4 servings.

The principle behind an elimination play is to compel the adversary to make a favorable lead for you. At a suit contract, you will usually need a trump in each hand to accomplish this end. But delicate timing is often required. Declarer took one false step on this hand and regretted it.

The auction might seem wild, but it was well reasoned. West's takeout double cannot be faulted, nor can North's preemptive jump to four spades. When East bid hearts at the five-level, South could visualize that his partner would hold at most one heart, so he gambled on the slam.

West led the king of hearts, ruffed in dummy. Declarer crossed to his hand with a trump to ruff a heart. Back with another trump for another heart ruff. That third heart ruff was the death knell for the contract.

Declarer cashed the ace and king of clubs, but now he couldn't cross to dummy to ruff a club without expending its last trump. And if he did that, the defenders would no longer be subject to an end play, for they would have exit cards in either hearts or clubs. Declarer hoped for a miracle by leading ace of diamonds and another, but West won with the queen and cashed a second diamond trick for down one.

A proper sequence of plays would have landed the slam. It was fine to cross to the closed hand once with trumps to ruff a second heart, but then declarer should have cashed the ace and king of clubs before ruffing his last heart. Now he can ruff dummy's last club and draw a second round of trumps, ending in dummy. Declarer leads the jack of diamonds. If East covers, there are no further problems. If West wins the trick, there is no lead he can make with comfort. A diamond return gives declarer two tricks in that suit, and any other exit yields a ruff and sluff, permitting declarer to get rid of his diamond loser while ruffing with dummy's last trump. Six spades bid and made.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

As far as we're concerned, blueberries are the caviar of fruit. Unfortunately, each year they become more caviar-like in price. But one feature of blueberries remains constant: their low calorie count. A cup of fresh blueberries has only 90 calories. Few fruits are lower in calories ... or higher in fiber.

Fresh blueberries are so special that we hate to see their dewy-fresh taste and texture destroyed in a mushy-middled baked pie.

This technique not only saves calories, but keeps the blueberries' natural uncooked fresh flavor:

RAW BLUEBERRY DESSERT
(OR PIE FILLING)
1½ tsps. plain gelatin
(half-envelope)
½ cup water
3 cups fresh blueberries

Combine gelatin and quarter-cup cold water and set aside to soften. Combine half-cup blueberries with remaining water and jelly in a saucepan. Cook and stir over low heat, to boiling. Remove from heat and stir in softened gelatin until dissolved. Refrigerate just until slightly syrupy, then stir in remaining raw berries. Spoon into ready-fo-fill graham cracker crust or into 6 stemmed dessert glasses and chill until set. Top with cinnamon-spiced Yogurt Chantilly, if desired. Makes six servings (filling only), 115 calories each with regular jelly, 80 calories each with low-sugar jelly.

WITH OTHER FRUIT — Substitute hulled sliced fresh strawberries and strawberry jelly. About 95 calories per serving.

OR, thinly sliced ripe peeled peaches and peach or apricot jam, 100 calories per serving. Or, mix fruits and jelly flavors.

TRUE BLUE 'SHORTCAKES'
2 cups (1 pt.) fresh blueberries
6 small biscuits, or ready-to-fill individual spongecakes, or 1 small spongecake layer

Combine grape juice with half-cup blueberries. Cook and stir until mixture boils. Remove from heat and allow to cool. Stir in remaining blueberries. Chill. At dessert time, spoon blueberries and juice over biscuits or spongecakes. (Top with Yogurt Chantilly, if desired.) Makes six servings, about 140 calories each.

Writer Praises 'Living Planet'

By IRVING DESFOR
Associated Press Writer

Washington is a photogenic city, a magnet for camera-toting visitors.

Now photo enthusiasts have a new attraction in the nation's capital to put on their "must see" list. It's the newest Francis Thompson film, "The Living Planet" at the Smithsonian Institution's National Air and Space Museum.

The 30-minute film opens with a shot of planet Earth as seen from outer space and then takes us on a breathtaking aerial odyssey over five continents on a special IMAX screen which is five stories high.

Everything about "Living Planet" is spectacular: its producer, Francis Thompson; its director, Dennis Moore; special camera and shooting crews; the huge IMAX screen; the unique theater in which it's shown with its six-track stereo sound system and special projector: and finally the fact that it will remain on view for one year after its recent opening.

Thompson brings us Earth as only a perceptive and all-seeing eye can view it — from lush jungle to barren desert to the polar north. Our magic carpet is a special camera mounted atop an airplane's vertical tail fin.

With it, we fly over the Andes, discover an impressive waterfall in the Venezuelan jungle, hover over a monastery on a rocky precipice in Greece, join a stampede of wildebeests in East Africa, and see pilgrims praying on the banks of the Ganges. The visual journey includes some man-made marvels: the Parthenon at sunrise; the cathedral at Chartres, and the architectural excitement of modern cities.

The film's production required two crews shooting over a period of 18 months. They carted 59 cases of equipment weighing 3,600 pounds and shot five miles of film along the way. It's a cinema achievement considering the primitive terrain they encountered — mountain peaks, ice, jungles, scrub forests and desert sand.

Thompson has been making cinema history for 40 years with imaginative and innovative films. It began with "Evolution of a Skyscraper," produced in 1939 for the Museum of Modern Art. For "N.Y., N.Y.," which still ranks as an avant-garde classic after its opening at the museum, he created an impressive array of camera effects to achieve arresting images of the streets and skyline.

The film I remember most vividly is the quiet little masterpiece, "To Be Alive." During the New York World's Fair in 1964-65, I stood in line with my family many times to see Thompson's visually poetic film. Its simple theme was that people in every part of the globe shared a universal magical experience — the joy of living.

The hit of the fair, it was seen by five million people, won many awards and received an Oscar from the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best documentary short subject of 1965.

In 1976, Thompson produced "American Years" for Philadelphia's bicentennial celebration, a 48-minute action-packed review of our nation's 200 years of history. Filmed in the IMAX process, it was shown on the world's largest movie screen, seven stories high, specially designed for Philadelphia's Living History Center.

There are 12 theaters in the world with the 70mm IMAX motion picture projection system, a process designed in Canada. Each film frame is approximately 2-by-2¾ inches, about nine times larger than the standard 35mm film frame. The unusually large film format makes it possible to show nine images simultaneously, three across and three down.

Another unusual feature is that the film moves through the projector horizontally instead of vertically, using an extremely wide-angle lens and a 12,000-watt zenon lamp to project on a screen that is 50 feet high and 75 feet wide. It's a field of view beyond peripheral vision.

The theater's steeply sloping auditorium has 485 seats arranged so that the heads of viewers are level with the feet of spectators behind them. It provides front row vision for everyone.

The stereo sound system is also a listening experience. The film is synchronized with a six-channel stereo magnetic tape. When heard over the theater's strategically placed loudspeakers, the sound moves with the action — in front of, to the side, overhead and behind the audience with realistic audibility. The viewer feels he is inside the film and part of the action taking place.

International Year Of Child Brings Flood Of New Stamps

By SYD KRONISH
Associated Press Writer

The International Year of the Child has resulted in an outpouring of stamps by countries all over the world.

Here are some new stamp sets for your special collection.

Malta's Postal Administration released a set of three multi-colored adhesives to mark the Year of the Child. The designs were selected from entries submitted by children attending Malta's primary schools. The 2-cent shows a sketch of children standing atop a world globe. The 7-cent depicts a silhouette of children flying kites. The 11-cent has a sketch of children representing many nations holding hands in a circle.

Antigua's set of four on behalf of Children's Year depicts poster-art illustrations created by American designer Mark Rubin. The 25-cent shows a child's hand pushing a boat, the 50-cent has a child's hand holding a rocket ship, and the 90-cent has a child's hand on a toy auto. The highest value is $2 and pictures a railroad train. A souvenir sheet also was issued for the occasion.

The East African Republic of Togo paid tribute to the year with a set of six special stamps whose theme is "The Children's Village in Togo." The designs feature a young girl holding a sign and a boy with a flag, a mother holding an infant, the children's symbol superimposed on the map of Africa, a woman guiding a group of children, children sitting around an African fan-palm plant, and a map showing the location of children's villages in that country.

Dominica's set of four stamps bears the following designs: Dominican child and dugout boat, children carrying bananas, children playing cricket, and a child feeding rabbits. Each stamps has the IYC symbol.

The International Year of the Child is the creation of the U.N. General Assembly. The main objective of the IYC is to place the child in the center of world attention and to invite the world community to renew and affirm its concern for the present and future conditions of its children.

Norway's newest stamps are dedicated to its beautiful scenery. The 100-ore stamp depicts a horsedrawn vehicle on the road to the Briksdal glacier. The 125-ore shows a landscape from Skjernoysund near Mandal.

Soon to be issued are two new stamps for the International Year of the Child. They will feature portraits of children in Norwegian pictorial art.

Egypt has issued a new stamp commemorating the peace treaty with Israel. The written treaty forms the background of the stamp while in the center is the signature of President Anwar Sadat surrounded by doves of peace within a halo.

Also issued by Egypt is a stamp honoring the Cairo International Fair held at the Guezirka Fair Grounds. The basic design depicts a world globe surrounded by an ear of wheat and a cog — the emblem of the fair.

Topical Time, official journal of the American Topical Association, features a special article by Sonja Weiss, TOPEX '78 Grand Award winner, in tribute to "Ludwig van Beethoven — His Creative and Spiritual World." Beethoven has been honored and commemoraed on the stamps of many countries. Other Topical Time articles include such subjects as meteorology, philately on stamps, mathematics, railways, Michelangelo's works, and Mozart.

Needlepunch Latest Way To Embroider

It's quick, easy, and fun to do. The latest way to embroider is needlepunch. Tired of stitching and knotting, stitching and knotting? Here's the perfect way to get the embroidery look without tying a knot!

Needlepunch was introduced into the craft world centuries ago by Russians who made needles from bird wing bones and later from rolled tin. They spent painstaking hours punching a needle into fabric to decorate their clothing and make decorative items for their homes.

Today the craft has been refined and simplified with use of a slim, pencil-shaped handle, three interchangeable needles and an easy turn-screw to adjust the depth of the stitches.

It's basically quite simple. Thread the appropriate needle, punch it into the back side of the fabric and you're on your way.

There are many uses for a set of needlepunch tools. It's great for decorative trims on collars and cuffs and it can be used for yokes on blouses, shirts and dresses. A set of plain pillow cases or curtains become something lovely to behold by adding colorful edging.

The kit pictured here includes a sixteen page booklet showing a variety of projects to make without additional cost.

The toolset includes three needles: for fine detail, background fill-in, and a larger needle for super fast projects; a needle protection vial, the handle for the needles, and a carrying case. Also included in the kit are three transfers (that fit the 4-inch by 5-inch frames displayed) and enough floss to complete any one design. The toolset is guaranteed for five years.

Order needlepunch kit no. 14900 for $8.99 plus $1.45 postage and handling and frame kit no. 06100 for $4.49 plus $.95 postage and handling. If you don't have an embroidery hoop, you'll need a good one and can order no. 03013 for the 4-inch hoop for $1.19 plus $.95 postage and handling. Creative Home Crafts is required to pay and collect state and local sales tax in Texas.

Stucco Can Be Painted With Roller

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

Q. — Part of the outside of our house is stucco. I intend to paint it soon, using exterior latex masonry paint. Is it possible to use a roller for this job in view of the rough surface of the stucco?

A. — Yes. Use a roller with a thick nap. Be sure the roller is generously laden with paint each time you use it and stroke it well into each section. It might be a good idea to keep a brush handy so that it can be used if you run into any area where the roller does not thoroughly get between the stucco crevices and indentations.

Q. — The rungs on two of our kitchen chairs have become loose. One of these days I will get around to fixing them. While the glue in the sockets is drying, what's the best way to hold everything in place? Will an ordinary piece of twine around the chair legs take care of the clamping?

A. — Yes, but it's better to use something heavier than twine, such as a clothesline. After the rope is wound around the legs, place a stick in the rope and tighten it like a tourniquet, then brace the stick so that it holds everything tightly together. There are many other ways to keep the rungs in place while the glue is drying. There are special chair clamps, strap clamps and various other kinds of clamps. No matter which method you choose, be sure to use some type of padding under the rope or clamps to prevent the chair from being damaged.

Q. — I have a large, expensive hand saw. If I use paste wax on the metal, will it keep it from rusting?

A. — Yes, but since the sawing action may remove some of the wax from time to time, you will have to check to see whether to renew the coating in certain places.

Q. — After a recent windstorm, I noticed that some of the shingles on our old asphalt roof were a bit loose. Should I put nails in the edges to hold them down or use asphalt cement?

A. — Use the cement. Apply it under the lifted edges and press down on the shingles. A small putty knife is best for the job. If the top of the shingles have any cracks in them, be sure to put some of the cement in the cracks.

Q.— My husband is 58 years old, I am 52. We were married recently and bought a new house. Before our marriage, my husband sold his old house and realized more than $50,000 profit on it. He did not have to pay any taxes on the profit because of the law excluding up to $100,000 of profit from the sale of a house by someone 55 years or older. My question is this: if we live in our house a few years and then sell it, will our profit again be exempt from taxes considering the fact that the profit from the old house was almost $48,000 short of the $100,000 figure?

A.— Sorry, but the answer is no. Once either person in a marriage takes advantage of the $100,000 exclusion, that's it. As I understand the law, this applies even if you only made $5,000 profit on the first sale. However, the law is complex and your case is somewhat unusual, so when the time comes to sell the house, get a ruling from the Internal Revenue Service. Not much point in doing it now, because the tax law changes quite often.

Q.— A neighbor of mine just moved and left me a quantity of paints, varnishes and other finishing materials. Included is a can of lacquer, but it is black. I never knew lacquer came in black. Is it used the same as clear lacquer, which I used a few years ago? Also, do I mix it with denatured alcohol or can I use mineral spirits?

A.— First, use it the same as clear lacquer. Secondly, the thinner is denatured alcohol. And third, be sure to follow the same principles as when using clear lacquer. Brush evenly and rapidly, as it dries quickly. Do not go back over the same area more than once. Let the second coat take care of any imperfect spot. If you have used lacquer in the past, you know that it must be thinned — and you probably have your own favorite mixture. If you have forgotten what it was, use a 50 percent alcohol, 50 percent lacquer combination. You can decide after a little experimenting whether to change the formula.

John Thorp obtained patents for certain textile inventions in 1828 which made continuous spinning possible.

Wallhanging Made With Glue, Yarn

You can create this artistic-looking wallhanging without stitchery, crocheting or weaving talents. It requires only a little cord, yarn, or even colored string ... plus some glue an a few dabs of paint.

There's a kind of a mystique built up around Old Sol. Having been prayed to by countless civilizations, he gradually acquired a face. A fun-filled, healthy-looking face (what else?). A face everyone can love. This lucky old sun will look great in any room of your home.

The pattern for this design can be traced on plywood or an artist's canvas panel and measures 20 inches by 24 inches. Certain areas are pointed; other segments are completed by gluing down different-colored strands of cord or yarn. You can make it any color scheme you want...step-by-step pictures and instructions will guide you all the way.

COCKFIGHT RAIDED

HOLT, Calif. (AP) — Undercover officers made a surprise raid on a San Joaquin County cockfight and arrested more than 140 persons. Authorities cited 138 people for being spectators at a cockfight, four for illegal sale of alcoholic beverages and two for bookmaking. Deputies confiscated 70 birds.

Riders Swamp Cable Cars

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Nearly 32,000 people climbed aboard San Francisco's fabled cable cars when they returned to the city's hills after five weeks in the repair shop.

"It's old machinery, and it may hold together a while longer," said Public Utilities Manager Richard Sklar.

Some cable cars returned Tuesday, but the system resumed full service for the July 4 tourist crush on Wednesday.

"It was rather terrific," Linda Cordwell of Essex, England, said of her first ride. "We had heard so much about the cable cars on TV programs in England and would have been disappointed if we didn't ride one."

IMPORTANT TAX NOTICE

In order to fully comply with recent state laws having to do with the exemption for School Tax purposes, for individual Homestead Exemptions, in the amount of $3000 in taxable value; for Homestead Exemptions of persons 65 years of age or older ($6000) drawing disability payments from the Social Security Administration, the time limit for claiming these exemptions has been extended until July 20, 1979.

Forms for claiming these exemptions are available in the Lubbock Independent School District Tax Office, 1001 Texas Avenue.

NOTE: If you have already claimed these exemptions for this year, please do not re-file a claim without first contacting the Tax Office for verification purposes, telephone number 762-6411, Ext. 2414.

Bundy Judge To Permit Eyewitness' Testimony

MIAMI (AP) — A key prosecution witness will be allowed to tell a jury that she saw defendant Theodore R. Bundy carrying a club from the Chi Omega sorority house at Florida State University shortly after two women were murdered there, a judge ruled today.

The defense had tried to prevent the jury from hearing Nita Neary's eyewitness testimony on grounds that she was hallucinating during a hypnosis session when she described Bundy as the man she saw.

Circuit Judge Edward D. Cowart also ruled that Bundy's jury will be permitted to hear about evidence seized when he was arrested in Utah in 1975 — items that include handcuffs, a crow bar, ski mask and pantyhose.

Bundy, wearing a shirt emblazoned with "Seattle Mariners Baseball Club," took over part of his defense Thursday. He is charged with murder in the Jan. 15, 1978 slayings of Margaret Bowmen, 21, and Lisa Levy, 20.

Bundy, a former law student, handled the questioning of three law officers involved in his original arrest in Utah on minor charges of trying to evade a highway patrolman.

Police said they became suspicious after looking in Bundy's car and finding handcuffs, a crowbar, ice pick and pantyhose with holes cut in them.

A young woman later identified Bundy as the man who tried to kidnap her in Murray, Utah, and Bundy was convicted. He also is charged with murdering a Michigan nurse near Aspen, Colo., and a 12-year-old girl in Lake City, Fla.

In an effort to keep the evidence out of his Florida trial, Bundy tried to get Utah Highway Patrol Sgt. Robert Hayward to admit to searching his car without permission.

But Hawyard insisted Bundy gave consent. So Bundy took the witness stand, with a public defender providing the questions, to testify that the Utah officers intimidated him.

On cross-examination, prosecutor Dan McKeever, eventually forced Bundy to acknowledge having told a Utah court he first ran from Hayward because he was smoking marijuana and feared being caught.

Then Cowart promptly ordered Bundy to sum up his arguments. "I'm not prepared to argue beyond generalities," Bundy said.

Cowart said Bundy already lost a Utah Supreme Court fight over the search issue and would have to come up with something convincing, preferably from the federal courts.

Ill at ease, Bundy worked his way through a summation. He conceded that Hayward asked to "look" in Bundy's car, but added, "There was no request for a consent search."

In trying to block Miss Neary's testimony, Bundy's attorney argued she only glimpsed the back of the man who ran from the sorority house, and was influenced by news photos of Bundy.

Charges Dropped Against Blanton Aide

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Charges have been dropped against former Gov. Ray Blanton's liaison to Memphis' black community, one of six men accused in a clemency-for-cash scandal.

A judge, meanwhile, took under advisement a motion on the admissibility of marked money seized from two aides to Blanton, who was forced out of office three days early by the scandal.

U.S. District Judge Charles Neese on Thursday dismissed charges against J.P. Murrell, a Memphis liquor dealer who was Blanton's representative to the city's blacks.

"I'm just happy that it's over with," Murrell told reporters outside the courthouse.

No reason was given in court for the dismissals, but government prosecutors had said they would have trouble finding witnesses to testify against Murrell. They did not elaborate.

Five other men — two Blanton aides, a highway patrolman, a lawyer and a nightclub owner — still face conspiracy charges in the case. They allegedly exchanged commutations, pardons and other forms of executive clemency for thousands of dollars in cash and such things as diamond rings and a grandfather clock.

Neese, who reviews about 350 exhibits with opposing attorneys in the case today, said he will require the government's 75 to 100 witnesses to be present when jury selection begins, possibly Monday.

Some $3,400 in marked money was taken from two of Blanton's arrested aides, former legal counsel T. Edward Sisk and his extradition assistant, Charles Benson, said FBI Agent Henderson Hillin. He said the cash matched serial numbers of money paid by an FBI informant for the release of a prisoner.

But lawyers for Sisk and Benson argued the money was not listed on the agents' search warrant and therefore was confiscated illegally.

Neese took under advisement Thursday a motion to declare the money inadmissible as evidence.

Days before he was to leave office, Blanton signed three pardons and 49 commutations for prisoners. The move so outraged fellow Demorats, they moved up the oath-taking of his Republican successor, Lamar Alexander, by three days.

More than a dozen of the prisoners were freed after the Tennessee Supreme Court ruled that Alexander had no authority to hold them.

Racial Melee Erupts In Sniper Fire

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — A dozen people were arrested as snipers fired shots at policemen during a racial confrontation in the mostly black area of Birmingham's north side, where a black woman was shot to death by a policeman two weeks ago.

One man was hospitalized after being hit in the head by a brick, authorities said. His condition was not released.

Police Chief B.R. Myers said the violence erupted Thursday after a group of some 50 Ku Klux Klansmen and other whites gathered at a convenience store being picketed by blacks.

The store is owned by the man who also owns a nearby store that was the scene of the police shooting of Bonita Carter, 20, on June 22.

Police said the whites, some of them wearing Klan symbols and T-shirts, gathered in the parking lot, throwing rocks and bottles at passing cars carrying blacks. Police said blacks had picketed the store Thursday, and a store employee said there had been harassment since the shooting of Miss Carter.

Some 25 blacks gathered on a corner opposite the store and exchanged racial slurs with the whites while police formed riot lines in front of each group.

Myers ordered both sides to leave or risk arrest. He said, "We asked both groups to disperse and they did."

When Myers and other superior officers received reports that five blacks had fired on police from a car a few blocks away, he ordered in specially trained tactical squads.

Myers said 12 people — one white and 11 blacks — were arrested on charges ranging from drunkenness to failure to obey a police order.

Myers said the area would be heavily patrolled today anda police guard would remain near the store, probably through the weekend.

Miss Carter was shot by a police officer, George Sands, after he received a call about a shootout at the store. The manager of the Seven N' Eleven store, James Avery, was wounded in the exchange of shots that followed an argument over paying for gasoline.

Alger Pickett, 31, was charged with assault with intent to murder Avery.

Witnesses said that after the gun battle, Pickett was fleeing the scene on foot and yelled for someone to move his car. Miss Carter got into the car. Sands and Myers have said Sands fired the shots when Miss Carter appeared to jump up from the car seat. Sands said he did not know it was a woman in the auto and said a store employee had warned him and his partner that there was a shotgun in the car.

A bi-racial committee, meanwhile, concluded a series of hearings into the shooting on Thursday. A spokesman said a report would be issued in a few days.

Efforts To Stop Fires Reach Critical Stage

PHOENIX (AP) — Efforts to corral two Arizona brush fires that have blackened 60,000 acres of national forest land reached "the critical stage" today as firefighters dug into steep mountainsides and hoped for a windless afternoon.

The 900 firefighters battling the 35,000-acre Verde blaze in Tonto National Forest hoped to encircle the fire later today and maintain their lines against afternoon winds that have been averaging 25 mph.

Another 800 firemen mounted "an all out effort" against the 25,200-acre Castle fire in Prescott National Forest, despite the hazards of rugged terrain, which made a direct attack on the fire extremely difficult, said fire information officer Bruce Lamb.

The fires were among 19 lightning-sparked blazes that broke out last weekend. The others were contained after 80,000 acres of brush and grass were scorched

The Verde blaze, the second largest range fire in the state's national forest history, broke out Saturday about 40 miles northeast of Phoenix. Fire information officer Sonny Lasalle said the blaze might be contained by tonight if winds don't fan flames across fire lines.

The Castle fire, located about 50 miles northwest of Phoenix in the Bradshaw Mountains, jumped fire lines in several spots, and Thursday ignited a separate, 300-acre blaze near Crown King. Lamb estimated there were lines around 70 percent of the Castle fire.

No serious injuries have been reported or any structures damaged.

Slurry bombers were dumping fire retardant chemicals on both fires and bucket-equipped helicopters were dropping 100-gallon loads of water on hot spots, Lasalle said.

Fire information officer Chuck Brandt added that "fatigue is becoming quite a serious factor" among the firefighters, who have come from 10 states to combat the Arizona blazes.

"Some crews have been been out since Saturday at 12 to 16 hours a day, sleeping on the ground — some in paper sleeping bags — with the heat and rough terrain," Brandt said.

Truckers Back On Highways

By United Press International

Striking independent truckers have pulled their rigs back onto the nation's highways to await government action on their demands for more gasoline at lower prices and higher speed and load limits.

The five-week-old strike, which once closed industries and meat-packing plants and threatened to cause critical food shortages, was all but over Thursday.

"Basically, these gentlemen (drivers) feel they've accomplished as much as they can," said Dick Winant, vice president of Ace Lines Inc. of Des Moines, Iowa. "They're waiting now for the government to take action. You know, the wheels of Congress turn slowly."

An official with a trucking consultant firm said the attitude of the drivers has improved since the strike began.

"They're feeling a lot better now," he said. "We've got to wait and see what the government will do. It's looking up for the drivers now, but they've got to eat and they need to work."

There were no reports of highway violence, which at one point during the strike forced National Guard troops in several states to ride with truckers who drove their rigs despite the walkout. Observers said the violence angered some strikers and speeded their decision to return to the highways.

Authorities in most parts of the country reported near-normal truck traffic on the nation's interstate highways.

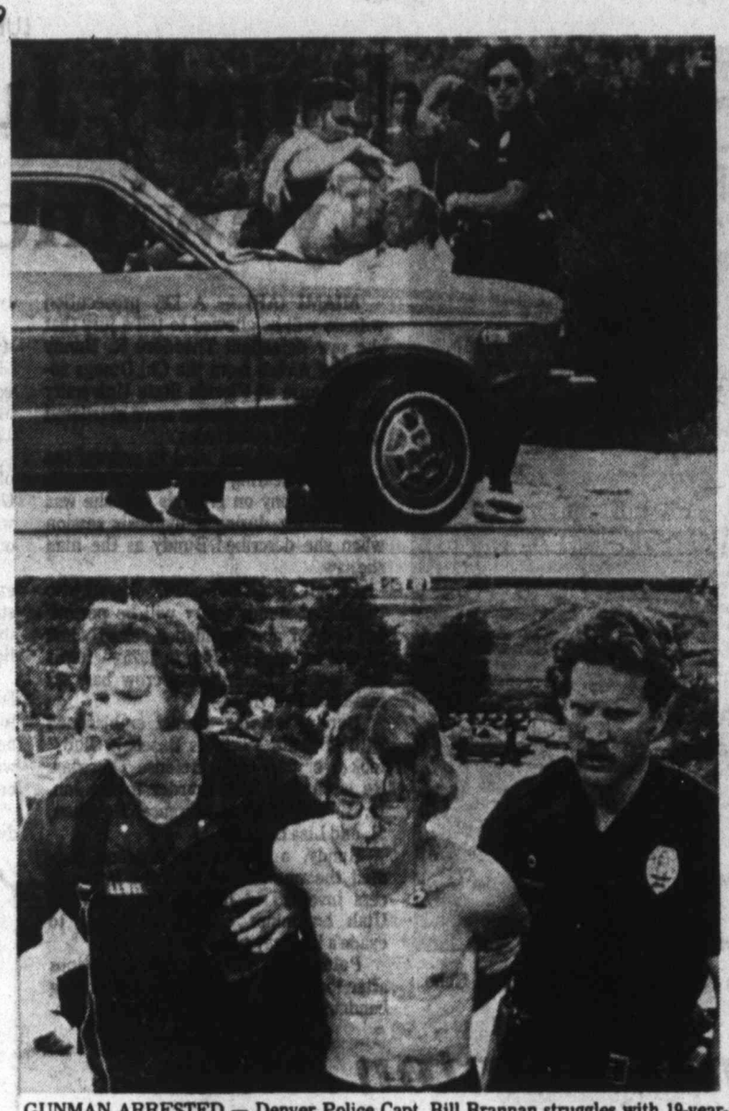
Some strikers said they were giving a chance to the Carter administration's six-point program aimed at easing truckers' economic problems.

Independent Truckers Association officials in Wisconsin were scheduled to meet today to decide the future of the truckers' strike in the state.

A spokesman for the truckers said while some truck drivers are still on strike, many have gone back to work for financial reasons.

Mississippi Gov. Cliff Finch, who two weeks ago helped drive an 18-wheeler from the governor's mansion in Jackson, Miss., to Los Angeles to get a better understanding of truckers' problems, met with truckers representatives to organize a plan he would carry to a national governors conference next week in Louisville, Ky.

"We've got to keep independent truckers from going broke because it's a national problem," Finch said. "I thought I comprehended most of the problems of truckers, but after 24 hours on the road I found problems — even in my own state — that were causing truckers to go broke."



GUNMAN ARRESTED — Denver Police Capt. Bill Brannan struggles with 19-year-old Marty Richardson as another officer moves in to assist. Richardson, described as an expert marksman, was reported to be despondent over a separation from his wife and began firing a .22-caliber rifle near a friend's home. Richardson held police officers at bay for more than an hour by standing on top of his car armed with the rifle. In the bottom photo, Richardson is led from the scene by two officers. NY Doctors Replace Leg Bone

NEW YORK (UPI) — Fifteen-year-old Daisy Diaz hasn't walked since the age of 5 because of a crippling bone disease that affected her right leg.

But doctors Thursday predicted the girl, who underwent a 14-hour bone transplant operation at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center on June 11, will walk unaided within a year.

Led by Dr. Harold Dick, surgeons successfully transplanted a bone from the lower left leg of the Jersey City, N.J., girl to her right leg, which was crippled from a condition known as osteomyelitis.

Amputation is the usual procedure in such cases, he said.

"We believe that she's had a successful limb-saving procedure," said Dick, the hospital's chief of pediatric orthopedic services. "It appears that she'll have a lower extremity in place of an amputation."

Miss Diaz, one of eight children of a Jersey City grocery owner, developed osteomyelitis in her right leg 10 years ago as a result of a staph infection in her throat or ear that spread through the bloodstream, settling in her leg. She has been unable to walk since the age of 5.

She underwent six unsuccessful operations in her native Santo Domingo, and after arriving in Jersey City last December, was told by surgical consultants the leg would have to be amputated.

But New York doctors referred the teen-age girl to Dick after she was admitted to the hospital three months ago for treatment of a benign ovarian cyst.

Under the procedure used on Miss Diaz — which Dick called a "spinoff of surgery used to replant fingers and limbs" — the diseased bone in her lower right leg was removed.

A lengthening device held the empty lower limb together and lengthened it an inch and a half to compensate for the growth retardation caused by the disease.

The fibula, the outer bone in the lower leg, was removed from Miss Diaz' healthy left leg and transplanted to the right leg. The tibia, the inner and thicker of the two bones, was not removed.

Miss Diaz' left leg will not be affected by the loss of the fibula because only the upper 12 inches of the bone was taken, Howard Girsky, a hospital spokesman, said. The upper part of the bone, he said, is a relatively useless part of the human anatomy "sort of like the appendix."

State Abortion Law Challenged In Suit

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — The American Civil Liberties Union has filed a federal suit to have new restrictions on abortions in Florida declared unconstitutional.

The restrictions, which became law last Friday, require married women to get permission from their husbands and for minors to get consent from parents or guardians before having abortions.

Eleanor Ginsberg, head of the Florida ACLU, said the suit was filed Thursday on behalf of all doctors who perform abortions and all women affected by the law. Attorney General Jim Smith and state attorney Michael Satz, named as defendants, were not available for comment.

Navy Team Looking For Cause Of Suspicious, Fatal Blazes

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Navy investigators are looking into a rash of suspicious fires that killed one person and damaged six ships at eastern ports in the last three months, military authorities say.

First hit was the aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy in Norfolk Naval Shipyard in Portsmouth, where seven fires April 4 killed a civilian worker, injured 34 Navy crewmen and caused $506,000 in shipboard damage.

Six smaller fires broke out on the Kennedy on June 9, and since then five other ships were struck by minor blazes, Navy officials said Thursday. Damage estimates were not available.

The officials said the Kennedy fires plus three June 22 blazes aboard the aircraft carrier USS Forrestal, based at Mayport, Fla., were declared cases of arson. The others fires were listed as suspicious.

The officials said they had no suspects or possible motives. They said the outbreak was the Navy's worst arson problem since 1972, when a young seaman set a series of fires that did $7.5 million damage to the Forrestal.

"The Navy has not attempted to cover up these fires. Neither has it sought publicity," an Atlantic Fleet command spokesman said when asked why the Navy had not reported all the fires earlier.

"There is a good reason for this. Although there is no way to prove it, there appears to be a correlation, or direct relationship, to the amount of publicity given to fires and the number of fires aboard ships."

Officials said the Naval Investigative Service is looking into the fires. Crewmen and workers at the Portsmouth shipyard have also posted a $4,500 reward for information leading to the conviction of the arsonist responsible for the fatal Kennedy fire.

The most recent fire occurred Tuesday aboard the amphibious assault ship USS Iwo Jima, also hit by fires June 19 and June 26.

Also reported hit by fires in the last month were the frigate USS McCandless, berthed near the Iwo Jima at Norfolk Naval Base and struck on June 15; and the destroyer tender USS Puget Sound at Newport News, struck June 16.

A June 9 fire aboard the dock landing ship USS Portland, berthed at Little Creek Amphibious Base in Norfolk, was also being investigated, but officials said there was a chance it might have been an accident.

Explosions Raze Chemical Plant

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A series of spectacular explosions at a chemical plant unleashed a cloud of poisonous fumes Thursday, sending 3,000 area residents running for safety. Some 200 people were treated at local hospitals.

South Memphis residents living near the Drexel Chemical Co. flooded area hospitals, complaining of burning eyes, chest pains and other symptoms believed caused by contact with methyl-parathion, a highly toxic chemical used in the manufacture of pesticides.

About 20 persons, including five firefighters, were admitted for observation. Two Drexel workers and a woman were hospitalized in intensive care.

Mart Posts Moderate Trade Gain

NEW YORK (AP) — Hopes for some easing of inflation and better gasoline-supply prospects helped the stock market post a moderate gain today.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 1.79 at 837.54.

Gainers outpaced losers by close to a 2-1 margin among New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

The government reported this morning that wholesale prices of finished goods rose by a relatively small 0.5 percent in June.

The latest weekly statistics from the American Petroleum Institute, meanwhile, showed that gasoline inventories had risen to above their levels of a year ago.

Although experts cautioned that no sweeping conclusions should be drawn from the weekly figures, they were taken as a signal that the outlook for gasoline supplies was improving.

CIT Financial led the active list, up 1⅛ at 54¼ after a gain of 12¾ points in the past two sessions. The company is discussing a merger with RCA.

Polaroid fell 1¼ to 28½. The company said it had sharply lower earnings in the second quarter.

The NYSE's composite common-stock index rose .16 to 58.32. At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was up .33 at 199.49.

Volume on the Big Board totaled 15.13 million shares at noontime, up from 13.44 million at the same point Thursday.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

'Betcha' Almost Always Works

By SHARI LEWIS

I write. I didn't say "well," but I do write with pleasure and a lot!

I read — well and a lot!

But in all my years as a reader and writer, I never noticed the one fact that makes this "betcha" almost a sure-fire one. See if you can guess what makes it work.

Say to a friend, "Pick up any book — fiction or nonfiction, hard cover or soft — and look at the beginning of the first chapter. I'll betcha I can tell you whether the first chapter starts on an even-numbered page or an odd-numbered page. All you have to do is tell me the name of the publisher."

And when your friend tells you the name of the publisher, you say, "Chapter One starts with Page One on the right hand side."

How do you know? Because almost all books start with the first chapter on page one, on the right-hand side. My husband, Jeremy Tarcher, is a book publisher, and he says it's almost always so. In fact, he says he's never seen a book that didn't start with page one being on the right-hand side. But Jeremy is more conservative than I am, and so he made me say "almost."

Pull this one on your pals. I promise you it'll work every time, all over the world!

Yesterday's Brain Twister: Put three pennies in a row. Can you move the middle penny from its position without touching it?

Answer: All you have to do is move one of the end pennies to the opposite end of the row. Then the middle penny will become one of the end pennies, and its position is changed!

Today's Brain Twister: Place six coins in this square so that there are no two coins on the same horizontal, vertical or diagonal line. (Look for the answer in Sunday's Kids-Only Club column.)

Gas Shortage Helps Transit Advertising

By LeROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — Someone inevitably benefits from any crisis and in the case of the gasoline shortages one of the beneficiaries could be the transit advertising business.

"With more people riding planes, and buses and commuter trains instead of driving their cars, interest in transit advertising has shown a noticeable pickup this year," said Mort Heineman, senior vice president of Winston Network, Inc., of New York, the largest national marketer of transit advertising.

"It looks to us now that the business has a chance of a 15 to 20 percent annual growth rate in current dollars for the next few years," Heineman said.

Transit advertising has proliferated in recent years. It no longer consists only of the "car cards" and railway station platform posters of the heyday of the urban and interurban streetcar and the local accommodation passenger train. Those were the days early in the century when the late Barron Collier was building a fortune out trolley car cards in a number of cities and subway advertising in New York.

The "depot ads" that were such a big source of revenue in the prime years of passenger trains have been supplemented by both posters and animated advertising displays at airports — Winston has 71 airports for example.

Winston also is big in bus shelter ads. A company pays for the privilege of putting up passenger shelters at much-used bus stops and reaps its profits by selling advertising space in the shelter.

Recently Winston landed a contract to set up 278 illuminated bus shelters in New York's Westchester County.

Although it does not have the advertising rights to cards in New York subway cars or posters on the station walls, the Winston company does a lucrative business with animated clock advertising in subway stations. It has 1,500 such clocks in 200 New York subway stations and more in the Boston, Philadelphia,Baltimore-Washington and Chicago rapid transit systems. 8

Heineman said he had figures to show a 5 percent gain so far this year in public transportation ridership in much of the New York and Philadelphia markets and he said indications are there has been a substantial rise in bus and train ridership in California.

"This, the gasoline shortages and the bargain airline fares being introduced so widely make our business outlook bright," he said.

Winston, with about $30 million sales last year, is a public company controlled by Irwin Winston and his sons, Marc and Paul.

Its big markets are New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Cleveland, Pittsburgh and Detroit.

It also will have the advertising business of Atlanta's new ultramodern rapid transit system opening this summer.

Noting that Houston, Dallas, San Antonio, Memphis, Charlotte and other cities are spending large sums for fleets of advanced design buses, Heineman said he looks for an accelerating revival of public transit as the gasoline shortages stretch out.

There are a number of small companies in the transit advertising business but among Winston's biggest competitors are New York Subways Advertising Co., Metro Transit division of Metromedia Inc., Tansitads of Los Angeles and the B.J. Batchelder Co. of Peoria.

Kurt Waldheim, former foreign minister of Austria, is the fourth Secretary-General of the United Nations. His predecessors were Trygve Lie of Norway, Dag Hammarskjold of Sweden, and U Thant of Burma.

Huntley BY THOMASVILLE

Remember that spaghetti when all you tasted was oregano? Some furniture is like that — massive and overpowering. Not this. Solid and bold, it can't intrude. Its fine wood is like fine wine — improving with age. Consider the heavy moldings, the burnished baroque pulls, the craftsmanship of the dark, mellow finish. It's a feast to the eye and touch. Its beautiful wood goes with any decor. Perk up your bedroom with the Palmada touch. By Huntley —

Malaysians Protest Refugee Selection

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — About 200 protesters demonstrated in front of the U.S. Embassy today and handed a note to Ambassador Robert Miller complaining the Americans were taking only skilled refugees from Malaysia's camps.

Approximately 50 of the protesters then went to the Vietnamese Embassy but were told no one was there to receive their protest over mass expulsion of ethnic Chinese by the Hanoi government. The demonstrators said they planned to return later in the evening.

The protesters at the U.S. Embassy, members of the youth wing of Prime Minister Hussein Onn's party, said the United States was taking "the lawyers, engineers and skilled people" while leaving the unskilled behind in Malaysia.

U.S. officials have said the United States does not use skill as a criteria for selecting refugees but gives first preference to those who have served the United States and who have relatives there.

They said the real problem lies with Vietnam because 350,000 refugees have fled the country, claiming persecution. They also have called on Southeast Asian nations to take in more refugees.

But the Malaysian government ignored the plea and said today it will continue to tow any new arrivals out to sea. There are some 76,000 refugees in Malaysian camps, and the government has towed more than 15,000 others back into the South China Sea.

The prime minister told the annual general meeting of his United Malays National Organization that "Malaysia will not accept any more refugees."

He said Malaysia and other countries of the Association of Southeast Asian Nations will urge the United States and other developed nations to take inrefugees now in Southeast Asian camps.

Hussein said the 76,000 refugees already in Malaysia have caused serious social and economic problems.

"Our firm stand on the issue serves as notice to the third country governments that have promised to accept these refugees" that they should accept these refugees quickly, Hussein said.

In Bangkok, meanwhile, the Thai government said it has decided to turn two small islands in southern Thailand into refugee processing centers.

A spokesman said the islands were approximately 300 miles south of Bangkok and have fresh water. There are an estimated 150,000 Indochina refugees in Thailand.

U.S., China Will Sign Agreement

PEKING (UPI) — The United States and China will sign a trade agreement in Peking Saturday despite the failure of negotiations between the two countries on limiting Chinese textile exports, American officials said today.

Both nations agreed to hold the signing ceremony set tentatively at 3 p.m. (3 a.m. CDT) Saturday in the Great Hall of the People on Tien An Men Square, they said.

The agreement was initialled May 14 in Canton and Peking by Secretary of Commerce Juanita Kreps and Chinese Foreign Trade Minister Li Qiang.

The next step will be to ask the U.S. Congress to ratify the trade treaty which will open a new era of American trade with both China and the Soviet Union.

The treaty grants China most favored nation status, and the Commerce Department has said Congress also will be asked to grant the same low tariff status to the Sovet Union in order to balance relations between Washington, Peking and Moscow.

U.S. textile negotiators and roving trade ambassador Robert Strauss came to Peking in late May to try to hammer out an agreement curbing shipments of Chinese cloth and clothing to the United States.

U.S. congressional leaders have said that otherwise Congress, lobbied by ailing American textile mills, would not ratify the trade treaty.

Strauss left Peking May 31, saying the talk had failed. But he said that the two nations still could go ahead and sign the treaty because the United States could unilaterally limit imports of Chinese textile to satisfy the protectionist demand of Congress.

The Chinese have objected in newspaper editorials, but not angrily, to what they call the failure of the United States to compromise on the textile issae.

China in 1978 exported $106 million worth of textile products to the United States. But to make some of the textiles, China bought more than $200 million worth of cotton and chemical fibers from the United States.

Mexico Raises Price Of Oil

MEXICO CITY (UPI) — Mexico has raised the price of its crude oil by 32.2 percent to $22.60 a barrel, making Mexican oil among the world's most costly.

The decision was not expected to have a major impact on the United States since Mexico provides only about 5 percent of U.S. needs or 400,000 barrels a day.

The government oil monopoly Petroleos Mexicanos announced the raise late Thursday and said the price increase from $17.10 to $22.60 a barrel would be retroactive to July 1. It will stand at least until Sept. 30 when another quarterly price revision is possible.

The increase came only a week after the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries increased the base price of crude oil by 25 percent to $18 a barrel.

Although the large increase makes Mexican crude among the most expensive on the world market, short shipping distances will keep Mexican oil cheaper than Middle East varieties on the U.S. market.

The Mexican announcement came as no surprise to oil industry observers, who noted that Petroleos Mexicanos traditionally sets a price of between $2 and $3 a barrel higher than the OPEC.

"We knew this was coming," one foreign analyst in Mexico said, "But the effect will be minimal for the United States because Mexico is not a major world exporter yet."

Mexico produces about 1.6 million barrels of crude a day and hopes to boost that figure to 2.25 million by next year.

Dutch Working On Cold Treatment For Plants

By EARL ARONSON
Associated Press Writer

The Dutch are working on a cold treatment for their famous tulip, hyacinth and narcissus bulbs so that they'll get a warm welcome in some world areas where they have not been planted because of the heat.

Another objective of the testing in the Netherlands is to get bulbs for apartment dwellers to use with a limited effort. Among the miscellaneous bulbs, such as crocus, there are several that need little cold treatment to make them flower in spring. But the major bulbs need the cold, either in the winter ground, or in refrigerators.

So researchers are preparing to give the bulbs the cold treatment at the source — in Holland's storage units — and ship them to the florist trade in volume at the right time to sell for planting. They will be made to root, to develop little sprouts, and be kept in cool storage until time for shipping in insulated containers to warm countries.

During a recent visit, my wife and I toured vast fields of tulips, narcissus and hyacinths in the Lisse-Hillegom area of Holland. The flowers are cut off at full bloom, mostly by machine, to permit development of the bulbs, which feed from foliage.

The plants are fed bone meal or fast-release fertilizer right after flower removal to enhance the bulb development.

Dug up by machines — similar to potato harvesters — the bulbs are cleaned and stored in drying houses. Small bulblets are separated for replanting and development to commercial size, a process that can take as long as five years. Bulbs for forcing are stored at different temperatures.

Discussing cold storage of bulbs, Leo Krouwel, products manager at the International Bulb Center, said 5 degrees Celsius (41 F) was enough for tulips to produce a nice plant. Home owners, he said, could keep bulbs 6 to 8 weeks in a refrigerator before planting and "thus you can have wonderful tulips in New Orleans. But in warm areas, even with cold treatment, they should be planted in shady places; they won't last long in full sunshine."

He added, "The same holds for narcissus and hyacinths, but tulips need it more Crocus do fairly well without a cold period."

Krouwel also described experiments to determine "whether we can let the bloom remain on the growing plants and spray the decaying flower with a chemical to get rid of it."

He explained, "This would save a lot of labor and, if successful, not harm the plant. The reason they are cut off now is that the plant gets diseases from the petals."

At the International Bulb Center, where director Kees Freriks was our guide, we visited a huge room where new varieties of various bulb flowers were being prepared for judging, some for registration of names if considered worthy. Others were to be shown to exporters. There were delightful miniature jonquils, some with multiple blooms, large ones with traditional cups, and full doubles. Arrangers were shifting flowers from growers' containers to standard glass or plastic vases on shelves lining the room and on tables.

Chip Carter Speaks Out

SOMERSWORTH, N.H. (UPI) — Chip Carter, son of the president, said he has no doubt Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., means what he has been saying all along — that he will not seek the Democratic presidential nomination in 1980.

Carter told a news conference Wednesday his father's forces believe Democratic California Gov. Edmund Brown might square off against the president next year.

The president believes Americans are most concerned about energy and inflation, Carter said. He said his father's low standing in popularity polls will be reversed when the campaign begins and the White House gears up to "sell itself" and its policies.

Carter cited his father's achievements in foreign policy, human rights, reorganization of the federal government, and increased employment.

He said he was not concerned that a favorite son candidacy by Sen. John Durkin, D-N.H., would weaken his father's chance of winning the Democratic nomination.

Durkin has threatened to run in order to force the administration to take what he calls a firmer stand on energy issues.

Parrot Plucks Own Feathers

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — The Evansville city zoo has a bored parrot — so disinterested with its surroundings, in fact, it has started plucking its own feathers.

The problem at the Mesker Zoo is a yellow-headed Amazon parrot.

Ron Morris, the zoo's bird house caretaker, said he was perplexed about what to do with the troublesome psittaciformes, which he said was reacting in much the same way as a human biting his fingernails.

"He looks terrible," said Morris. "We've had to take him off exhibition because he looks so bad. It's just a bad habit he's picked up — like somebody biting his nails."

Morris also said the feather-pulling is a reaction by the parrot to boredom.

Parents Refuse To Allow Infant To Receive Blood

INDIANAPOLIS (UPI) — A one-week old infant was flown to Texas Thursday for medical care because no Indiana doctor would perform heart surgery on him without his parents' permission to give him a blood transfusion.

The parents, Jill and Randall Weeks of Columbia City, will not allow their son, Trenton, to accept blood from another person because it contradicts the teachings of the church of Jehovah's Witnesses to which they belong.

Arrangements for the trip to the Texas Children's Hospital in Houston were made by leaders at the Indianapolis Assembly Hall of Jehovah's Witnesses.

The child was born at Huntington Hospital. After it was learned he had a heart malfunction, he was transferred to Riley Children's Hospital in Indianapolis.

A final diagnosis of the child's heart problem will require cardiac catheterization, according to his doctor Randall Caldwell.

"The child may not require an operation, but there is a significant chance that the child may require blood," he said. "I will not go into a procedure knowing that if the child requires blood I can't give it to him, thus letting him bleed to death.

"I want what's best for the child and I think this works out best for both the family and the child," he said.

Church spokesperson Judith Basinger said "We refuse another person's blood because the Bible says to. Jesus Christ considered the blood of a person his own."

The Biblical passage which dictates to witnesses that blood transfusions are a sin can be found in Acts 15:29 where Paul says to "keep abstaining from things sacrificed to idols and from blood."

"Is there any difference between eating blood and putting it into your blood stream? We consider it the same thing," said Mrs. Basinger. "For us it is a matter of conscience."

Mrs. Basinger said very few doctors perform operations knowing they can not use a blood transfusion if it is necessary.

"They often take it to court and have the baby taken away from the parents until the operation is performed."

Witnesses do not accept blood from another person even if doctors say the baby will die otherwise, she said.

"We'd rather die. Everyone dies sometime. If we prolong our life just a little while and lose our good relationship with God, we don't gain anything."

Unlike the Church of Christ Scientist, the 500,000 member Jehovah's Witnesses group believes medicine and doctors are tools to be used by his people.

"Luke of the New Testament was a doctor so we know doctors aren't wrong," said Mrs. Basinger. The church's literal interpretation of the Bible only affects medical care when it comes to blood.

Famous heart surgeon Dr. Denton A. Cooley is expected to take care of the child in Houston, Mrs. Basinger said. Cooley rarely uses blood transfusions on any of his patients.

"He has helped us before and as far as I know he has never lost a Witness patient," she said.

Approximately 6,000 Witnesses live in and around the Indianapolis area.

Prenuptial Agreement Ruled Legal

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A judge denied a claim by actor Rod Steiger's estranged wife that she was entitled to the usual community property settlement, saying she must have known Steiger's no-strings proposal was a "no tickee, no washee" offer.

The judge upheld the legality of a prenuptial agreement signed by Sherry Steiger, a horse race handicapper, saying he "just can't buy her position" that she did not realize what she was doing in renouncing her rights to Steiger's earnings and property before their marriage in 1973.

With that, Superior Court Judge Harry T. Shafer granted an interlocutory divorce Thursday, denying Mrs. Steiger's claim to half the actor's property and estimated $600,000 annual earnings.

Mrs. Steiger charged her husband and associates pressured her into signing the agreement, which she said was not shown to her until after the invitations to their wedding had been mailed.

The judge said Steiger, a month before the ceremony, clearly gave her a choice with risks she must have understood and accepted:

"No tickee, no washee. Unless she put her name on the agreement he wasn't going to go through with the marriage, even though the invitations had gone out. ... Overriding everything else was Sherry's wish to be married."

Her attorney, Harold Rhoden, told the judge in a final appeal that when she signed she was under the "undue influence" of the forceful personality that helped make a movie star of Steiger, who won an Academy Award for his performance as a Southern sheriff in "In The Heat of The Night."

"You saw Mr. Steiger on the stand," the attorney said. "He is a man of enormous force, of arrogance equal to his talent, an overpowering man."

Mrs. Nelson, 45, said of Steiger's courtroom testimony: "My husband's a very convincing actor."

"I never lied about the prenuptial agreement," Steiger, 54, told reporters. "I never lie in my roles in movies and I certainly would not do so in such an intimate relationship."

He said that after paying expensive financial settlements to his first two wives, actresses Sally Gracie and Claire Bloom, he had to insist on such an agreement before marrying a third time "to protect all I had worked for for 30 years."

Steiger agreed to pay $10,500 in temporary support through the month of September pending a permanent divorce and settlement.

McCrory Wants Polygraph Test

CHALLENGES DAVIS — David McCrory, left, key prosecution witness in the pending murder-for-hire trial of millionaire Cullen Davis, challenged the Fort Worth industrialist Thursday to a joint lie detector test. The defiant witness said the test would prove his accusations that Davis issued a contract on his life. McCrory is shown with a federal marshal during an August 1978 bond hearing for Davis in Fort Worth. (AP Laserphoto)

FORT WORTH (AP) — Prosecution witness David McCrory, saying his life is in jeopardy, has proposed a joint polygraph test with millionaire defendent Cullen Davis.

"No bull, no fancy lawyer talk, nothing, just a lie detector test at the same time," McCrory proposed on the eve of Davis' murder-for-hire trial.

"That way we'll let the public know who is lying."

The stocky FBI informant telephoned The Associated Press Thursday to accuse the Fort Worth industrialist of ordering a contract on his life and to issue the polygraph challenge.

He said he was aware such test results are legally inadmissible in Texas courts but felt the disclosure might stop Davis and his attorneys from "lying constantly to the public."

"It might not stop them completely," he added, " but it damn sure would slow them down."

Defense lawyer Mike Gibson labeled the McCrory proposal "absurd."

McCrory, 41, testified in Houston last November that Davis ordered him to hire a gunman to kill his divorce judge and others on an alleged enemies list.

Davis, 45, admitted discussing mass murder with McCrory but insisted he was not serious and said he thought at the time he was cooperating with the FBI to expose an extortion scheme.

The jury deliberated six days and deadlocked 8-4 for conviction.

Davis, freed on $30,000 bond after the mistrial, since has divorced his second wife, Priscilla, and married his longtime, live-in girl friend, Karen Master, 30.

Jury selection in the murder conspiracy retrial is to begin here Monday before State District Judge Gordon Gray.

The defense maintains Davis was framed by his ex-wife, McCrory and karate instructor Pat Burleson and that the defendant's younger brother Bill bankrolled the scheme.

Cullen and his older brother Ken ousted Bill Davis from the billion dollar Kendavis empire in 1973, but subsequently agreed to a $100 million settlement.

McCrory, whose whereabouts are unknown, dropped out of sight after the Houston trial and assumed a new identity under the Federal Witness Protection Program.

"I know that Cullen's trying to have me killed right now," McCrory said. "I know that he's been in contact with hit men. I have been told by people in authority that there is definitely a contract out on my life.

"They know he's going to try to get to me. It's just a matter of when and how."

McCrory, a former employee and pool-shooting crony of Davis, said the government has beefed up the security force guarding him and his family at an unspecified location.

"All I'm trying to do is stay alive," he said. "'I've stayed alive this long because I've had the marshals to protect me."

Defense lawyer Steve Sumner said he doubted McCrory's declarations were his own and questioned the motive behind the phone call to the AP.

"McCrory's not smart enough to develop a tactic like this on his own," he said. "I'm curious as to who his confederates are in the decision to call you and come out with this tactic."

He labeled the McCrory proposal a "ploy" and said the timing corroborates the defense opinion that the witness is a "con man and what he says and does is calculated in that regard."

Sumner said McCrory harbors a deep-seated hatred for Richard "Racehorse Haynes because the lead defense lawyer exposed him on the witness stand as one who lies and evades the truth.

"But I just don't believe McCrory is capable of making this decision on his own," he added. Gibson said:

"This is a tactic that doesn't surprise me by McCrory and his collaborators in this conspiracy ... the absurdity of his position doesn't merit significant comment."

Assistant District Attorneys Jack Strickland and John Bankston denied involvement in the McCrory proposal but said they had no objections to the proposed polygraph test.

"He made the same suggestion to us," said Bankston, who, with Strickland, will prosecute the pending Davis case.

"Our reaction was that we could not stop him from talking to the press ... he's just upset, highly irritated, because he feels he's been made the scapegoat in this whole thing."

Bankston said the McCrory proposal is "no publicity stunt" and added: "If they want to set it up, we'll certainly have somebody there. I rather suspect, however, they're not going to want to do it for obvious reasons."

Strickland said he was surprised the defense seemed so "worked up" about the proposal since Haynes said on television last winter his client submitted to a polygraph test and "passed it with flying colors."

"We raised the issue then about how curious that was because Cullen had been in jail from Aug. 29 until the mistrial in January," Strickland said.

He said his office knew nothing of such a test and wondered when and by whom it was administered, what questions were asked, what answers given and, "more importantly, who paid for the polygraph."

Strickland added, "It seems to me that all David McCrory is doing is applying Richard Haynes' often quoted 'tit for tat' rule."

Texas Court Upholds Judgment In Nursing Home Injury Case

AUSTIN (UPI) — The state's highest court has sided with a former nurses' aide who voiced complaints about conditions at a Longview nursing home and was assaulted by one of its nurses the next day.

The Texas Supreme Court Thursday upheld a $5,032 judgment won by Debbie Downing against the administrator and charge nurse of Holiday Lodge Nursing Home.

The high court also agreed to hear a case critics contend will decide whether or not the state's environmental protection laws are enforceable.

In the nursing home case, Miss Downing filed a personal injury suit against Pat Porter, the charge nurse, and Sue Cooper, administrator of the facility, contending injuries she suffered in an altercation with Miss Porter caused her to have uncontrollable crying spells, made her muscles shake and tremble, caused temporary blackouts and resulted in a reduced ability to work.

The Supreme Court rejected that argument and upheld lower court decisions awarding the damages to Miss Downing.

In other action Thursday, the state's highest court agreed to hear a case critics fear might make it impossible to enforce Texas' most important environmental and health protection laws.

Board Snubs Proposed Sign

Members of Civic Lubbock Inc. Thursday unanimously rejected plans for a message board to be placed outside the Civic Center, saying the sign's size would not justify its cost.

The 6-foot high, 20-foot long sign, which board member Al Rosen said would "hold a decent-sized message," was planned to comply with Lubbock's sign ordinance.

At a cost of $13,850, however, no board member would support its construction.

Instead, members voted to send chairman Joan Baker to a city council work session to outline their frustrations with the sign regulations and ask for their recommendation of how to approach the problem.

"We've exhausted everything we can do," said Rosen, "I don't know where else we can go with it."

Mrs. Baker earlier had counseled members against requesting a variance from the sign ordinance. "It would be embarrassing for the city council and ourselves if we asked for a variance," she said, reminding members they had been appointed by the council.

She also noted that the request would have to go through Lubbock's Zoning Board of Authority and on to a district court hearing before it could be approved. Civic Lubbock would be responsible for all court costs incurred by that process, she cautioned.

Air Force Suing For More RAFB Land

Two more civil suits were filed by the federal government Thursday in U.S. District Court in an effort to obtain land south of Reese Air Force Base to be used as a "clear zone" at the ends of the base's runways.

Both suits, filed by the U.S. attorney's office in Fort Worth on behalf of the Air Force, ask U.S. District Judge Halbert O. Woodward to condemn tracts of land in Hurlwood, order the owners to surrender the property to Reese AFB by Oct. 10, and award the owners compensation for the property.

The Air Force is offering $500 to the owners of one of the tracts that contains .10 of an acre. Listed as owners of the property are L.G. Harris, address unknown, Lubbock County Tax Assessor-Collector, Frenship Independent School District and its tax assessor-collector, M.P. Wood of 6401 19th St., Norton Baker, trustee, 5002-C Ave. Q, and Jan and Joan Pursellly of 3312 77th St.

The second tract of land being sought by Reese AFB is owned by Wood, Baker, the Pursellys, Lubbock County Tax Assessor-Collector, Frenship ISD and its tax assessor-collector, and Ruth and Cecil Miller, address unknown.

The government is offering $240 in compensation for that .20-acre tract of land.

Thursday's suits are the latest in a series filed by the government for use of the land by Reese AFB. In 1976, the Air Force instituted its Air Installation Compatible Use Zone Program, which is designed to create a 3,000-foot "clear zone" at the ends of base runways.

Sailors Return To Strip

NORTH CHICAGO, Ill. (UPI) — For the first time in more than a week, sailors at the Great Lakes Naval Training Center can walk through Foss Park and a section of bars, strip joints and clothing stores known as "The Strip."

Hundreds of sailors rioted along The Strip June 24-25, breaking windows and fighting with police. They were upset with alleged overpricing by merchants and harassment by muggers, Navy spokesman Lt. George Farrar said.

The Navy confined all sailors to the base June 26-27. When liberty was granted June 28, Navy officials issued an off-limits order for Foss Park and The Strip.

The off-limits order was lifted at noon Thursday, but all sailors of petty officer 3rd class rank or lower were still required to wear uniforms off base.

Substation

1963 to bring industry to Lubbock, asked that the section of land be annexed for future use as an industrial park.

The foundation asked that the land be zoned heavy manufacturing (M-2) when annexed into the city.

All zoning changes approved by the planning commission must receive final approval by the city council.

Announcing good taste at only 3 mg. tar.

Read how new Flavor-Intensified™ Triumph gives you taste good enough to stay with at only 3 mg. tar... one of the lowest tar levels in cigarettes.

Triumph. The first and only cigarette that delivers good taste with only 3 mg. tar.

If you've ever been disappointed by one of the very low tar cigarettes, you will understand why Triumph is quite an achievement.

Even the draw is a surprise.

The smoke comes through abundantly. The taste reaches you smoothly. Effortlessly. With none of the struggle you may have experienced in other very low tar brands. You don't have to pull—you just puff on Triumph.

No gimmicks, no miracles.

No less remarkable than Triumph itself, is the technology that enabled us to build it.

The crux of it: Instead of searching for some yet unimagined answer, Lorillard scientists took a more sensible tack.

Why not, they said, take everything we've learned about cigarettes, and push that technology further than we've ever pushed it before.

Delivering taste, limiting tar.

We found, for example, that combining two types of filter fiber produces the best combination of taste and draw.

That tiny "vents" in the filter-rim smooth the taste.

That lower-leaf tobaccos (shaded from the heat of the sun) tend to be milder and lower in tar than those at the top of the plant.

In short, everything we could find that might intensify flavor at 3 mg. tar, was built into Triumph.

Taste you won't get tired of.

What it all comes down to is this: Triumph is not one of those ultra low tars that spoil your pleasure by short-changing you on taste.

Triumph, at only 3 mg. tar, is a cigarette with a taste you can stay with. A taste so good, we believe you'll never want to go back to your old cigarette.

TRIUMPH®

One of the lowest tar cigarettes you can smoke.
The one with taste enough to stay with.

Warning: The Surgeon General Has Determined That Cigarette Smoking Is Dangerous to Your Health.

3 mg. "tar," 0.4 mg. nicotine av. per cigarette by FTC Method

Worst Circus Fire Remembered

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — There it is, a grass-covered school yard in Hartford's North End, a slumbering picture of innocence on a lazy summer day.

But 35 years ago today, July 6, 1944, the same turf was a fiery hell, the scene of America's worst circus catastrophe.

It was a day in which clowns cried and coffins suddenly became scarce, a hot and humid day in a summer when Americans waited anxiously for the latest news of American troops in World War II.

The fire broke out during the matinee of the sprawling Ringling Bros. and Barnum & Bailey circus, and left 168 dead and more than 500 injured. Many were trampled to death in the panic, others died of burns, some of suffocation. Among the dead was a beautiful 6-year-old girl whose identification remains a mystery.

The years haven't dimmed the memories of survivors. Some have nightmares still, some avoid crowds. The smell of burned human flesh remains. They suffer.

They remember the "Big Top" being three-quarters filled with more than 6,000 children and adults. They recall the smell of popcorn, cotton candy, and the odor of lions, tigers, and elephants.

They remember heroes, clowns like Lou Jacobs and Emmett Kelly; Karl Wallenda of the Great Wallendas high wire act; and Merle Evans, the band leader. They see the circus vibrating with excitement and life — just before it became a heartbreing scene of death and destruction.

Many lessons about fire prevention and crowds were learned from the disaster. Six circus officials — who pleaded innocent to involuntary manslaugher — wound up in prison. It took the circus 15 years to pay $4 million in claims, including $2.20 to a woman who suffered face and leg burns but insisted on collecting only for her ticket.

For Rose Dunn, and her son, Herbert, the 35 years have been one long series of nightmares. "We have awakened many nights, and even now I wake screaming," the retired nurse says.

"For many years I was scared to be caught in a crowd," Herbert added. "I believe I have gotten over it. I attended the Super Bowl football game early this year and enjoyed it. But every so often I find myself with a sickly feeling in a crowded indoor situation."

Police detectives Tom Barber and Ed Lowe, now dead, often told of "hearing those screams."

All of them were in various sections of the paraffin-covered tent as Evans led his 29-piece band through a snappy opening number at 2 p.m.

First came the clowns, then the animals. And high up, waiting for a cue, was the celebrated Wallenda aerial troupe.

At 2:40 p.m., circus photographer Bill Miller glanced up and saw a small fire crawling along a rope of the big top. He gave a warning. Evans, too, noticed a small horseshoe-shaped flame. So did Wallenda, who pointed down at it.

Evans suddenly switched the band from ballet music, the exit tune for the animal act, and his cornet blared out the band's disaster song — "The Stars and Stripes Forever." The abrupt change signaled to circus people that there was danger in the big top.

At first, the fire looked small, and Kelly tried to put it out with a bucket of water. But, blown by a sudden wind, the flames shot up and exploded like a red ball on the roof of the sun-baked tent.

By 3 p.m., the circus ground was a smouldering bier.

From her haunted memories, Mrs. Dunn recollects:

"I was in an end seat up high when I suddenly became aware of nervous animals. To my right I saw flames, heard shouts of fire and a roar. I grabbed my son by the right hand. Looking down front, I saw panic. People were trapped ... bodies blocked exit paths. There was only one thing to do, to jump to the rear.

"It was about 25 feet. We jumped together. We were lucky the ground was soft so we weren't hurt. We crawled over numerous bodies, saw an exit where somebody had cut a hole."

Don Anderson, a high school boy, had cut loose a section of the canvas tent, providing an exit for several hundred. Then he returned twice to the blazing interior, first to save an injured child, and again to rescue a 64-year-old relative.

Some survivors reported the heroic actions of Jacobs and Kelly. Others recalled having seen Wallenda and Evans in rescue efforts, and Miller, painfully burned, helping clear barricaded sections.

Jacobs remains active with the circus today. Kelly died recently in Sarasota, Fla., where Evans makes his home. Wallenda was killed in a fall from a high wire in Puerto Rico in April 1978.

Throughout the years, one question has remained: Who was the beautiful child who died somehow virtually unmarred by the fire? How could she not be missed by her parents, relatives, playmates?

"Little Miss 1565," she was called, referring to the number of her casualty tag and later on her tombstone. The most prevalent theory is that whoever took the child to the circus also perished.

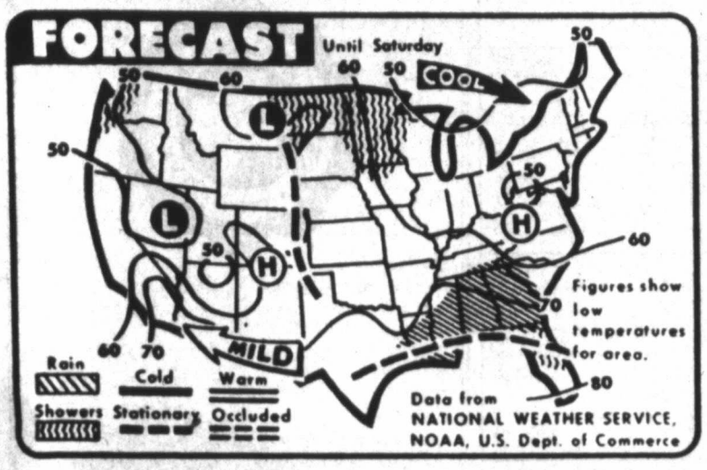
On the first anniversary of the fire, Barber and Lowe placed red carnations on her grave. Now it's being done by a daughter of Barber "because I knew he would want me to do it."

What caused the fire? It has never been established. But the explanation generally accepted is that it started from a cigarette carelessly tossed in a men's room, just outside the main entrance.

When the circus hit the road again, after a lapse, it was with fireproof tents. It closed in 1956 but was revived in 1967 by Irving Feld, who bought the show from John Ringling North for $8 million.

Feld moved the circus from the "Big Top" to big auditoriums.

KELLY HELPS — Famed clown Emmett Kelly, still in full makeup, hurries with a bucket of water to try vainly to put out the flames as fire consumed the big top of the Ringling Bros., Barnum & Bailey Circus in Hartford on July 6, 1944 in this photo taken by Ralph Emerson of Newington who was a spectator at the circus on that day. More than 500 were infured and 168, six of whom were never identified, died in the place. (AP Laserphoto)



WEATHER FORECAST — Rain is expected through Saturday morning from the central Gulf to Georgia and western South Carolina. Showers are forecast for the Pacific Northwest and from North Dakota to northern Iowa. Clear skies and warm weather are expected for most areas. (AP Laserphoto)

Teens Report Weapons Robbery

Two teen-agers said they were jumped by a group of persons early this morning in the 2000-block of Seventh Street and robbed of a sawed off shotgun, pellet rifle, wallet and knife.

Randy Wayne Thomas, 17, and Kevin Langford, 18, both of 2013 Eighth St., No. 7, said the incident began about 12:30 a.m. when they saw one of the suspects in front of their apartment point a pistol at them.

The men told police they went inside, got their various weapons and began driving around looking for the group. They came to blows around the 2000-block of Seventh Street.

Thomas and Langford said they stopped the group and they began talking. Reports indicate the group piled out of their car and began beating the complainants after Langford asked one of the suspects for a match and the man said he did not have one but he would give him a "Mexican fist."

Thomas said he was able to break free and call police. But when officers arrived, the suspects had driven off with the weapons and wallet.

However, about 12:45 a.m., the suspects were stopped by a patrolman in the 100-block Temple Avenue.

Three men, two 17-year-olds and a 21-year-old, and two women, both 17, were taken into custody after Thomas and Langford said they were the ones who attacked them.

However, the victims said the man who had pointed the gun at them, along with another man, were not among the group arrested.

In other criminal activity, a 22-year-old Lubbock man was arrested about 1:40 a.m. today for allegedly attempting to burn down Shawn's Hilltop Inn at 810 N. University Ave.

Club owner Paul George Chapman said he and another man were inside the club shortly after 1 a.m. when they heard an explosion, ran outside and discovered the west wall of the building on fire. They also said they saw the suspect driving off.

Reports indicate Chapman put out the blaze with a fire extinguisher while his friend followed the suspect to a club at Erskine Street and University Avenue. The suspect drove from the scene, but not before the witness was able to get the man's license plate number.

The man went back to his friend's club and the two men were talking to police when the suspect reportedly drove by them.

The officer stopped the vehicle in the 1300-block of North Avenue X and arrested the man, at that time a passenger in the car. His companions were released.

Chapman said he was able to snuff out the fire before it did more than $10 damage.

Police said they arrested a 43-year-old burglary suspect about 3:55 a.m. today after officers fired three warning shots.

When police arrived at the Glass Hat Lounge, 2206 Southeast Drive, where a break-in alarm had sounded, they saw the suspect jump over a picket fence.

Reports indicate that after the officers fired their revolvers, the alleged burglar hid in some tall weeds where he was found and placed under arrest.

Two suspects in a car theft also were apprehended early this morning.

Jerry Wayne Plunkett of 1502 38th St., rear, said he awoke about 3:20 a.m. today and saw someone driving off in his 1973 Chevrolet Blazer. He said the driver's door was damaged and a tire was flat on the vehicle.

Police arrested the two male suspects, ages 18 and 19, in the 2600-block of Avenue S after spotting them in a vehicle matching that of Plunkett's.

A 16-year-old housewife told police a man, clad in a flowered shirt, orange jeans and blue tennis shoes, attempted to rape her about 3:30 p.m. Thursday behind the baseball field at Estacado High School.

The girl said the suspect, a tall, thin black man, dragged her into his car and drove her around about an hour before stopping near the field.

Reports indicate the victim was forced in the back seat of the vehicle, where the suspect took off some of the girl's clothes and threatened to kill her if she did not stop fighting him.

The girl said, however, she was able to run from the man and call police after another person walked up to the suspect's car.

An 11-year-old girl suffered only minor injuries after she allegedly was shot in the eye with a B-B gun about 5 p.m. Thursday.

The girl told police she was walking in the 4700-block of 47th Street when one of two boys or young men shot her, causing her glasses to break and minor injuries to an eye.

Robert Parra of 3313 Amherst Ave. said that more than $500 in property, including two bicycles, a sewing machine and a .12-gauge shotgun, was stolen when his house was burglarized between 8 a.m. and 3 p.m. Thursday.

A 30-year-old Lubbock man told police that someone shot at him early Thursday and then threw a beer bottle through the windshield of his pickup.

Leroy Springer of 2109 27th St. told police he and a companion were driving in the 1600-block of Avenue T when a white and orange car pulled beside them and someone in the car shot a small-caliber pistol at them. The slug came through the open window on the driver's side and exited through the windshield.

The victim said the car was occupied by four or five Mexican-American males and females.

Springer said he followed the car to a house on the northeast corner of Avenue P and either 24th, 25th, 26th or 27th Street.

At the house, Springer said a female got out of the car and threw a beer bottle at his car, hitting and breaking the windshield. Springer said he drove off when he saw a man loading a pistol.

Troy Albert Bowers, 50, owner of Bowers' Plastics at 110 N. Ave. U, told police Thursday that someone had broken into his business and stole $2,865 in air tools.

Bowers said the burglary occurred between 6 p.m. Tuesday and 8 a.m. Thursday. He said the burglars broke a window to get into the building and also evaded a guard dog in the building. Footprints and truck tire tracks were found in the alley behind the building.

Another burglary involving tools occurred at J&M Wrecker Service at 504 N. University Ave.

Robert E. Strockbine, 30, business manager of the wrecker service, told police someone entered the building between noon Wednesday and 7:30 a.m. Thursday. The burglars also evaded guard dogs in the building and stole about $3,625 in tools.

Donna E. Huffington, 36, of 4507 22nd Place told police someone broke into her house between 4:30 a.m. and 7:30 a.m. Thursday and stole jewelry, silverware, and radios, all valued at $6,030.

Court Upholds Apartment Case Ruling

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — The Texas Supreme Court has upheld an appeals court decision awarding damages to a Lubbock apartment resident whose property was seized for default of rent payment.

The court refused to change a decision against Jay Fikes & Associates, owners of King's Park Apartments in Lubbock.

Fikes was sued by Sherry Smith Walton after the King's Park manager seized a stereo and vacuum cleaner from her apartment, claiming she had defaulted in her rent payment.

The trial court ruled in Miss Walton's favor, awarding her $1,299 in damages including $300 for attorney's fees.

The trial court ruled that Miss Walton was not in default because the apartment manager had not given her five day's notice before seizing her property, as stated in her lease contract.

The appeals court affirmed the trial court's decision but excluded the $300 in attorney's fees from the damages.

Fikes contended the attorney's fees had been awarded because of lack of proper pleadings and because attorney's fees are not allowed as damages under statutory provisions for this type of suit.

The appeals court ruled that attorney's fees were provided for in the state's statutes but that Miss Walton had not included them as an element of her recovery in her allegations.

Jury Selected To Hear Case Of Ex-Bandido

SAN ANTONIO (UPI) — Timothy Kenneth Larson, a former motorcycle club member, goes to trial on a federal firearms charge later this month, officials reported.

A jury of six men and six women was selected Thursday in U.S. District Judge Adrian Spears' court to try the former Bandido Motocycle Club member.

Larson, 33, whose name is mentioned in two perjury indictments against El Paso men in the investigation of the assassination attempt on Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr, is free on a $35,000 bond pending trial. It will not begin until sometime after July 16.

The tatooed Larson, nicknamed "Timken," was described by an FBI agent at a bond hearing as "a prime suspect" in the Nov. 21 shooting ambush of Kerr near his San Antonio home, but he has not been charged in that attack.

Larson has denied any involvement in the Kerr shooting, said he resigned from the Bandidos last year and alleged that federal agents had been "out to get me" for several years.

Larson appeared Thursday before Spears along with his attorney, Charles Butts, for jury selection which took most of the afternoon.

In the previous stormy hearing before Spears, Butts indicated he might ask for a change of venue.

Motorists See Rodeo Action

CATOOSA, Okla. (UPI) — Motorists lined up at the toll booth on the Interstate 44 turnpike were treated to an impromptu Independence Day rodeo by cowboys on horseback trying to round up 115 escaped cattle.

The cowboys joined sheriff's deputies Wednesday morning trying to capture the cattle that escaped from a livestock truck at the interchange of Interstate 44 and two major state highways.

The driver, Joseph Allen Blanchard of Forth Worth, failed to negotiate a curve, causing the truck to overturn. Blanchard suffered minor injuries in the accident.

Navratilova Neatly Disposes With Lloyd

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Martina Navratilova fought back Chris Evert Lloyd 6-4, 6-4 today to win the Wimbledon tennis championship for the second year in a row.

Miss Navratilova unleashed her overpowering serve-and-volley attack to crush a listless and error-prone Mrs. Lloyd.

The victory strengthens Miss Navratilova's claim to the No. 1 ranking in women's tennis, the position Mrs. Lloyd had held nearly unchallenged for four years — until last year.

After an indifferent winter season, Mrs. Lloyd had seemed renewed going into the final here. She had lost just one match during the European spring circuit.

But today she seemed uninspired and never really was in the match.

It was a disappointment for the seelout crowd of 17,000, some of whom paid up to $700 to scalpers for a pair of tickets.

Few had seen the 24-year-old American so loose and ineffective. She never got her disciplined backcourt game in the groove as she repeatedly scooped forehand shots over the backline. Frequently she never got close to Martina's sharply hit volleys.

The fans got their first twinge of excitement when, with the score 5-2 for Miss Navratilova in the first set, Chris held service at love and then broke Martina's high-kicking, left-handed service without losing of a point.

A rally seemed in the offing.

Chris, appearing to gain confidence, walked to the service line with a chance to tie the set.

But Martina scored with a smash, went ahead 30-0 when Chris hit a forehand out and then, after netting a volley, took a double set point position when Chris again sent a forehand shot soaring over the back line.

There was a gasp when Martina netted a return but on the next point, the champion put away a high volley for the set.

Now in full cry, the Czech girl sent her high-bouncing service into the corners and moved effortlessly into the forecourt to take the return for easy putaways Chris actually seemed stunned. She played at times as if in a trance.

After yielding the first three games of the second set, Mrs. Lloyd picked up her game slightly, holding service in the fourth game and breaking back in the fifth to pull to 2-3.

But it was all in vain.

On Saturday, Bjorn Borg will try to win his fourth consecutive Wimbledon. This time his opponent in the final will be Roscoe Tanner, a long-time top player but a first-time finalist here.

Borg dismantled his greatest rival, Jimmy Connors, in the semifinals here Thurday, 6-2, 6-3, 6-2. If he can get by Tanner he will be the first man to win four consecutive Wimbledons since Anthony Wilding of New Zealand did so in 1910-1913.

Tanner, the big-serving left-hander, out down fellow American Pat Dupre in the semis, 6-3, 7-6, 6-3.

"If I didn't think I could win there would be no point in going on court," said Tanner, the fifth seed. He is not rated with much of a chance against the top-seeded Borg, but that could work to his advantage.

"There may be a little pressure on him, going for his fourth win, and there is not much pressure on me," Tanner said. "I'll be coming in as underdog and I'll just see how I go. It doesn't worry me that I am not given a lot of chance. It is what I do on court that matters."

Borg has won most of their previous encounters, but Tanner did beat the Swede in the U.S. Pro Indoor in Philadelphia 18 months ago. He feels that result could be significant.

"I felt I could beat him then," said the man with the huge serve. "I had a game plan that I wanted to use and I stuck to it and it worked." But Tanner wasn't about to reveal any game plans.

Borg was in superlative form in destroying Connors. Tanner and his coach, Dennis Ralston, watched part of the match.

"Borg is playing awfully well," said Tanner. "Guys have tried all sorts of things against him, but nothing has really worked. Borg wins a lot of points with his service. It is deceptive. Even when getting it back, you have to think about his next shot."

Tanner said his own game has improved dramatically over the past 12 months. Previously thought of as a big server but little more, his game is much better rounded now.

"The key to my improvement is my better movement, concentration and confidence," he said. "I also have a better attitude. I don't let things worry me.

"They key for me to beat anyone is to move well. Borg does the same thing."

Despite being the outsider, Tanner believes in his own ability to win the final.

"I'm not going to go out thinking I can't win," he said. "If that was the case I might as well take the plane home and send my regards on Saturday."

The 23-year-old champion thinks the match against Tanner could be a whole lot tougher than his encounter with the lackluster Connors.

"I know some people felt that my match against Connors was virtually the final, but the match against Tanner could be tougher than they think."

Both finalists plan a day of quiet before Saturday's big match.

"I will have a couple of hours practice," said Borg.

"I will relax, practice for an hour and a half and probably go out for a nice meal in the evening," said Tanner, whose victory was watched by his parents.

He never appeared to be in the slightest danger of losing to Dupre, ranked No. 28 in the United States. He didn't drop his serve in the match, although he had a little trouble with his first serve.

But Dupre served well, too, offering up seven aces. And Tanner only broke him twice — at 5-3 in the first set and 5-3 in the third. They were even in games in the middle set, but Tanner won the tiebreaker 7-3.

Borg, by sharp contrast, was devastating against Connors.

He lost his service just once — at the start of the third set, winning only two points in the first two games.

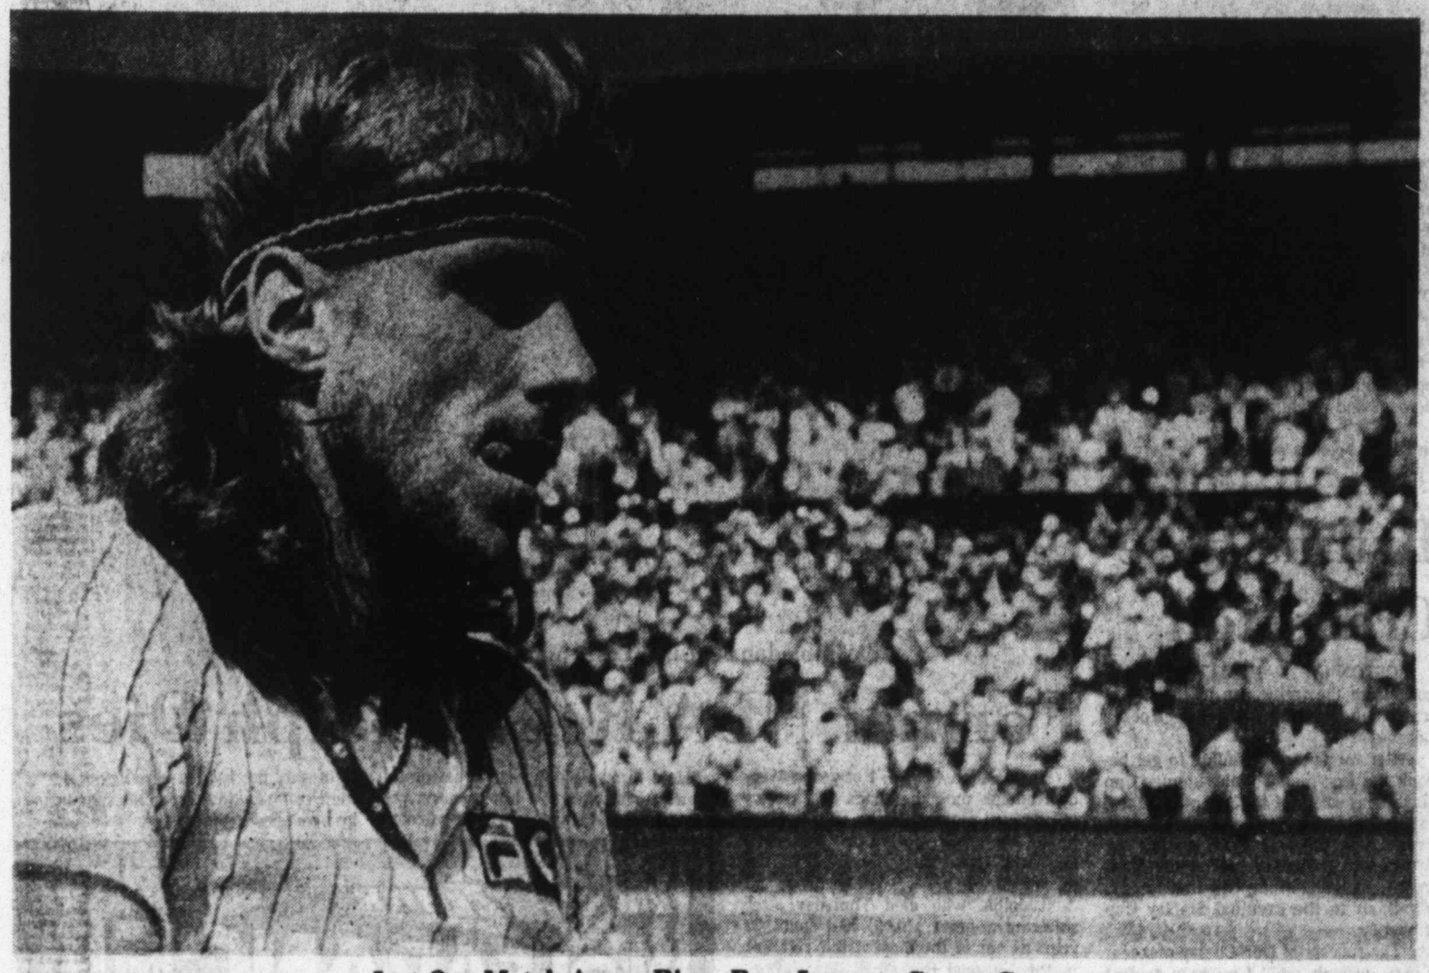
But for the remainder of the match he was brilliant, mixing scorching passing shots with delicate drops and deft lobs. He won every remaining game.

Connors looked as though he had lost interest in the last two games. He did not even try to hit a ball that landed at his feet, and that allowed Borg a 5-2 lead.

Borg took the final game at love. On the last point he returned a shot off the wood of his racket. Connors, rather than hitting into an open court, hit wildly out to the side. He left the court with a perfunctory handshake but no word to his opponent, and he refused to comment to the press.

Borg improved his record against Connors to 9-10. The significant factor in that record, though, is that Borg ha won six of their last eight meetings.

"I think I played as well as I did in the final last year," he said afterwards. "It will be difficult for me to improve much more."



Just One Match Away, Bjorn Borg Inspects Center Court

U.S. Team Dominating

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — United States swimmers continue their destruction of the competition and the record books at the VIII Pan American Games, but the ballooning U.S. medal count got some unexpected help from a 14-year-old gymnast.

Jeanine Creek, who enters high school this fall in Great Falls, Mont., surprised a confident Canadian squad with a silver medal individual performance in the free exercise Thursday.

Gymnastics is a sport the Americans almost have written off in these Games, sending only their second-and third-team athletes. The best U.S. gymnastsstayed home to prepare for more important international competitions that utilize Olympic rules, which the Pan Am Games do not.

As a result, gymnastics has lost its appeal as a glamor event in the Pan Ams.

In Miss Creek's event, there weren't even enough other U.S. competitors to constitute a team for overall scoring purposes.

"It's really a credit to our kids in gymnastics," said a U.S. team spokesman. "They came in here straight from the World trials, where they were under tremendous pressure, and had to learn their whole compulsory exercise in one practice — Monday.

"That they did so well is a tremendous compliment to them. Jeanine was beautiful."

So was the performance of the swimmers, from whom excellence almost is demanded at these hemispheric Olympics.

At Mexico City four years ago, the U.S. swimmers took the gold medal in all but two swimming races. This time, they are out to get all of them. And through 16 events, they have 16 gold medals and 16 Pan Am Games records.

The suspected weakest links in the chain come up tonight. Jesse Vassallo, upset Thursday night by teammate Peter Rocca in 200-meter backstroke, has to beat world record holder Graham Smith of Canada in the 200-meter individual medley to keep alive hopes of a U.S. sweep.

In the women's 200-meter breaststroke, the U.S. hopes ride on two little-known swimmers: Patty Spees, of Oakland, Calif., and Renee Laravie of Daytona, Ohio, while breast stroke specialists Tami Paumier and Tracy Caulkins sit out.

Miss Caulkins, of Nashville, Tenn., makes her final Games appearance tonight in the 400-meter freestyle, in which she faces teammate Cynthia Woodhead of Riverside, Calif.

Miss Caulkins' hopes for five gold medals here were dashed Tuesday night when Paumier edged her in the 100-meter breast stroke. She had three golds and a silver entering tonight's competition.

But Miss Woodhead, with three events to go, still was hopeful of running her gold medal count from two to five.

Rowdy Gaines, Winter Park, Fla., and Linda Jezek, Los Altos, Calif., were also competing today for their third gold medals in swimming — he in the 800 freestyle relay, she in the 200 backstroke.

In all, the swimmers earned six golds Thursday.

Tom Peterson of Tacoma, Wash., accounted for the seventh U.S. gold Thursday with his second gold-winning performance in the 10,000-meter roller skating final.

The biggest problems the Americans may encounter in some events is overconfidence, since their 34 gold medals through the Games' first four days is more than that of the other 33 countries combined.

Overconfidence may have been what took over the vaunted U.S. men's basketball team. The Americans blew three 14-point leads Thursday night against Brazil, and barely held on for an 82-78 victory behind 17 points by Kentucky's Kyle Macy.

The two previous U.S. victories in the round-robin tourney had been routs.

Jimmy Connors Chided For Post-Match Actions

By WILL GRIMSLEY
AP Special Correspondent

WIMBLEDON, England — OK, Jimbo, take your armful of steel racquets and run.

Nobody can blame you much. You can be excused for wanting to put as much distance between Jimmy Connors and Bjorn Borg as possible — and as quickly as possible.

But it would have been a nice gesture, don't you think, Jimmy, if, after being clobbered by your longtime rival in the men's semifinal at Wimbledon, you had put a friendly arm around the young Swede's shoulder and said: "Nice match, Bjorn."

Sports Analysis

Even fighters who spend 15 rounds knocking each other's teeth out accord each other that little courtesy, win or lose.

But not you. You chose to remain in character and give Borg the same kiss-off treatment you've been handing out to the international press corps since you arrived here.

Who cares about the press? There are millions who will applaud your slight in that respect. But nobody's going to forgive you for cold-shouldering the great guy who has been trading racquet punches with you for six years.

No beef from Bjorn. When asked what you said to him after the 106-minute, straight-set match, the phlegmatic Scandinavian just shrugged his shoulders and said:

"Nothing. We didn't speak."

Four minutes after the last shot was hit you made the fastest exit in Wimbledon's 102-year history, elbowing your way into your waiting limousine with mother and pro Lorne Kuhle and speeding away.

Just as well.

You, Jimmy Connors, are now the property of one Bjorn Borg, the 23-year-old bearded, long-haired Swede. He owns you now, heart and soul, just a he owns Guillermo Vilas of Argentina.

So we can say goodbye to those titanic Borg-Connors duels, just as quite a while ago we stored away in our memory the once potentially exciting rivalries between Borg and Vilas.

They are not contests any longer. They are mere warmups. Pity the 17,000 who crammed into Wimbledon's ivy-draped center court — some paying as much as 150 British pounds (more than $300 for a single ticket) — expecting to see a contest.

It was like watching Muhammad Ali punching the small bag in the gym. It was John Wayne against the Apaches. It was a thundering freight train going head-on against a runaway rabbit.

Who's left to challenge the great Bjorn Borg? Roscoe Tanner maybe in Saturday's final with his scorching 153-mile-an-hour service, but the bookies won't even put it on the boards. Brilliant young John McEnroe perhaps in the long run.

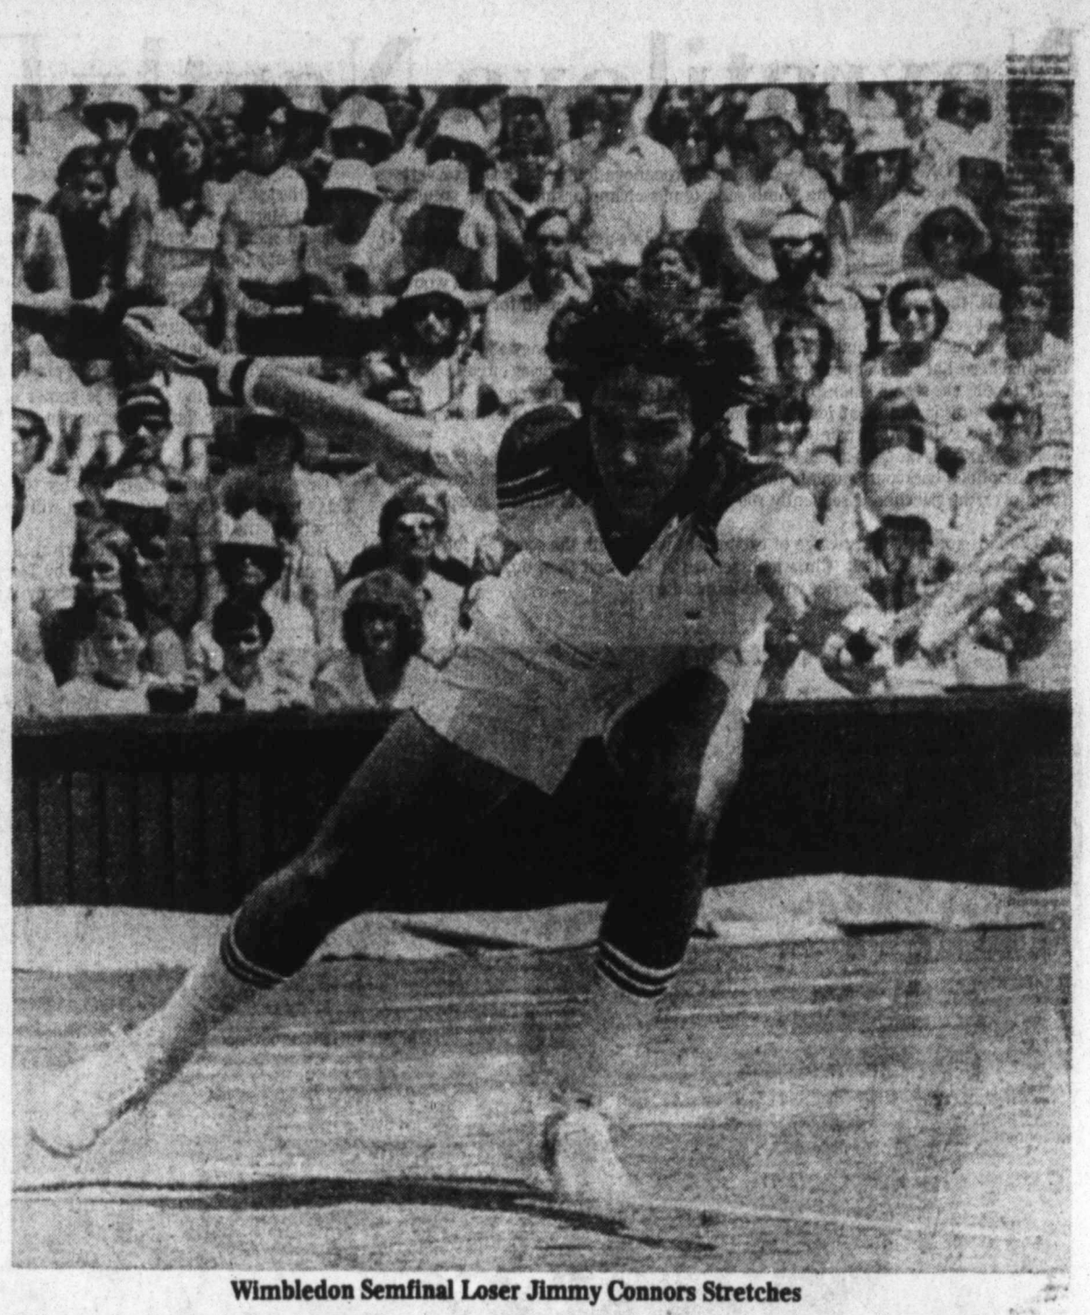
But not you, Jimbo. Not you,

Bjorn may have been your patsy back in the early 1970s, when your chin was just fuzz, but he's got your number now. His victory margin this year — 6-2, 6-3, 6-2 — was the same as that in the final here a year ago.

He now has beaten you in eight of the last 11 matches. This year alone he has beaten you in three tournaments, losing only 17 games in seven sets. It has been murderous.

As a court warrior, Jimbo, the world has admired you greatly. You are all gristle, guts and gall. The game has never produced a fiercer fighter. You have scrambled for every point — diving, leaping, grunting, cursing yourself — fought back from unbelievable odds and established an enviable record.

Too bad you couldn't have been as admirable as Borg in your relations with the public.



Wimbledon Semfinal Loser Jimmy Connors Stretches

Australians Suffer In HWY-80 Meet

By SCOTT SUDDUTH
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

Once considered the king of international net competition, the Australians were looking for answers to some important questions about the present and future strength of their junior tennis program at the HWY-80 tennnis tournament Thursday.

The answers came rapidly to, as two of the four Aussies entered in the Texas Tennis Association major zone tourney lost their opening round bids.

In the championship boys 14-year-old singles, Australia's Ron Woodbridge and Darryl Henderson were defeated in the first round. Henderson, the section's No. 3 seed, lost to unseeded Mark Mazique of Houston 7-5, 6-3. Woodbridge, seeded No. 4 in the division, lost to Mike Velasquez. The Albuquerque native won in straight sets 6-4, 6-1.

"I was playing quite well, " said Velasquez. "I was tight in the first set but I loosened up and played my best ball." Velasquez played Plainview's Tim Brown late Thursday night in a quarter-final match.

Woodbridge and Henderson, along with Simon Youl and Jamie Harty who are playing in the championship boys 16 singles, are considered the top Australian junior players in their age groups. The foursome's trip to the United States is sponsored by professional netters John Newcomb and Tony Roche. They are participating in several tourneys in the United States in an effort to determine their court strength in the international arena.

"Newcomb sent these kids here to see how they would perform against the American juniors," explained HWY-80 director Mel Carter. "We didn't know much about them so it was hard to determine their draw. However I was quite surprised that they lost in the first round," he added.

Both Youl and Harty advanced with victorys Thursday. Youl defeated Dicky Collings, of Dallas, 6-2, 6-3 and Harty beat David McCright, from Wichita Falls, 6-1, 7-5.

Many of the preliminary round scores were tallied late Thursday night because rain delayed some of the court action which is also being played at Texas Tech, and Lubbock, Monterey and Coronado high schools.

While the foreign pre-tourney favorites were having their problems during the hot, humid afternoon , one of the top netters was just relaxing and patiently waiting to defend her No. 1 seed.

Ranked No. 1 in the state by the Texas Tennis Association in 18-and-under girls singles, Lila Hirsch also is the No. 1 seed in the championship 18 girls singles in Lubbock's zone tourney.

The Beaumont native also is nationally ranked, including a No. 3 ranking issued by the United States Tennis Association in doubles.

Miss Hirsch drew a bye in the first round of the HWY-80. She faces Vickie Vasicek in the quarter-finals today. The high school senior expects tough competition from Kirsten McKeen from Richardson, and Midland's Vasicek in the championship bracket. The girls are seeded No. 2 and 3 respectively in the division.

"They're both tough players," said Miss Hirsch. "I've beaten McKeen before but I've never played Vasicek."

However, the 18-year-old tennis player isn't too worried about the zone competition. She claims she has had much tougher opponents.

Since entering competitive tennis at the age of 12, Miss Hirsch has played Tracy Austin–among other competitors who have played at Wimbledon–three times.

"Tracy is a remarkable player," she understated. "The first time I played her, about two years ago, was my best performance against her. Tracy won the first set 6-1 but I was winning the second set 3-1 before I lost my concentration.

"When all the fans heard I was winning they all crowded around the court to watch and then Tracy started taking over," she explained. "Actually we play much the same game except Tracy has more experience and she has every shot—she can return anything."

Compared to the professional star, Miss Hirsch is relatively new to tennis. "I started taking lessons a month before my 10th birthday," she said. "By the age of two, Tracy was already on the cover of a tennis magazine.

"I think my biggest obstacle right now is simply lack of experience," added Miss Hirsch. "My game is strong. I don't doubt my ability. I just need more experience in tournaments."

It would help if I could work with my coach everyday too but that takes a lot of time from school. And, traveling to all the tournaments gets expensive," added Miss Hirsch, who flys to San Francisco late Saturday night to enter another tournament.

Bruins Hire Creighton

BOSTON (AP) — Fred Creighton has gone from the frying pan to the fire of frustration in the National Hockey League.

After four years of failing to get beyond the first-round of the Stanley Cup playoffs as coach of the Atlanta Flames, Creighton, 45, now will coach the Boston Bruins. For the past three seasons the Bruins have failed to get by the Montreal Canadiens, losing two finals and a semifinals to the eventual Stanley Cup winners.

"The success of Don Cherry makes it a very difficult job," Creighton said of the man he officially replaced Thursday.

In five seasons under the voluble Cherry, the Bruins finished first four times and second once in the NHL Adams Division, but never won the Cup.

He quit the job after the 1978-79 season because of a fight over money and player control with General Manager Harry Sinden.

Creighton was fired by Atlanta this spring after compiling a winning record and making four playoff appearances during 4½ seasons. He had been rumored as a leading candidate from the moment Cherry left to coach the Colorado Rockies.

About his playoff frustrations, Creighton said, "I felt unfulfilled to a degree in Atlanta, and I saw Boston as a team that could go all the way."

Sinden said Creighton's analysis of the Canadiens helped him get the Boston job. "They do things at a tempo greater than any other team in the league," Creighton said of Montreal, adding that he'll try to get the Bruins to "do everything a little bit quicker."

Other than his emphasis on up-tempo play, he says he may not need to make any major changes. "The way this team plays and the way the game should be played are very similar," he said.

"Creighton will do just fine if he doesn't question what he's told, and he doesn't care about what players the team brings up from the minors," Cherry said in a telephone interview from his Andover, Mass., home.

Creighton indicated he will be happy to let Sinden and other club officials make personnel decisions.

Former NBA Ref Rudolph Dies

NEW YORK (AP) — For years, Mendy Rudolph took the slings and arrows of outraged players. In the end, though, he got the chance to tell pro basketball fans why those missles were so often misguided.

Rudolph, who died Thursday after suffering a heart attack, had spent 22 years as one of the most visible referees in the National Basketball Association. He was 53.

It wasn't until his officiating days were over that NBA fans really got to know him — as a color commentator on CBS' telecasts and, in a lighter vein, as Tommy Heinsohn's foil in a Lite Beer commercial.

Funeral services were set for today in New York.

"He was one of the great basketball officials of all time," NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien said. "He symbolized the fine qualities and knowledge of the game all referees should possess."

Rudolph whose last health problem was a pulmonary embolism he suffered April 25, 1975, while working a playoff game between the Buffalo Braves and Washington Bullets at Landover Md., was given a clean bill of health after his ensuing three-week hospital stay.

The well-known veteran of a record 2,112 pro basketball games chose to retire from the NBA grind, rather than referee again.

He also declined a position in the league's front office, opting instead for the CBS microphones during the 1977-78 season. He took the job, citing the challenge presented by that new field. And he received favorable reviews, especially for his insight into the referees' role in the game and his explanations of why certain fouls were or were not called.

By then, his familiar No. 5 jersey had been retired by O'Brien to the Naismith Basketball Hall of Fame in Springfield, Mass., where it now hangs.

The jersey really wasn't necessary to identify Rudolph. He'd already established his trademarks — a loud whistle and an emphatic style of refereeing.

He'd thrown plenty of coaches out of games for insolence — but he never got a bigger hand than when he ejected Heinsohn, the hot-tempered ex-coach of the Boston Celtics, from the bar during his own beer commercial.

THIS WAY— An angry Bobby Knight screams at guard Isiah Thomas during Thursday night's U.S.A.-Brazil Pan Am Games basketball contest. Thomas had just been called for a foul in the game eventually won by the U.S. 82-78. (AP Laserphoto)

Close Pan Am Victory Sets Off Bobby Knight

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Bobby Knight reversed roles with his interrogators in the press after the United States men's basketball team managed an 82-78 victory over Brazil.

"Now where's that guy that says we have the gold in Moscow won? He has no concept of this game," said the coach of the Americans, who are favored to win the gold here and in the 1980 Olympics.

"If I had been watching this game as a spectator, I would have thought the wrong team won. We were flat, not ready to play," said the Indiana University coach Thursday night.

The Americans held on to win their third straight game and remained the unbeaten leader in Group A. The victory ran their winning streak to 12 over the last two Pan American Games and clinched a berth in the six-team finals next week.

The United States women, favored just as heavily for the gold here, are in a more tenuous position. They are only 1-0 and must whip 2-0 Canada tonight to remain a solid contender.

The young, inexperienced Americans may have experienced a backlash from their 32-point rout of touted Cuba Tuesday night.

"The kids were walking about the village all pumped up after Cuba," said Knight. "Everybody was telling them how good they were. We had guys think they were ready tonight and had no idea they were not."

The seasoned Brazilians, the only team other than the United States to win the Pan Am men's basketball gold, owned a 41-39 halftime lead.

They wiped out three 14-point American leads in the first half and nearly pulled off another rally in the closing moments. The Brazilians rushed from 11 down with less than four minutes to play to two behind with 20 seconds left.

"You've got to give the Brazilians credit. They kept coming at us. Remember, they split with Michigan State last summer, and Michigan State isn't bad.

"We weren't playing Rosemary and the seven dwarfs. No, who was that? Snow White?" said Knight, correcting himself.

The Americans won with a balanced attack as Mike Brooks, Kyle Macy, Kevin McHale, Mike O'Koren and Ronnie Lester reached double figures.

Brazil's attack was led by Marcos Abdala Leite, a 6-foot-10 center who muscled in 26 points. Slick shooting Marcel De Souza added 23.

Ary Ventura Vial, Brazil's coach, blamed the loss on a charging call that sent De Souza out on fouls with 3:05 to play. The United States clutched a 79-72 lead at the time.

"The call should have gone the other way. It was the turning point of the game," said Ventura Vial.

Catonie Has Ruidoso Win

RUIDOSO DOWNS, N.M. (Special) — Catonie, performing at just under 3-1 in the wagering, sprang out of the pack to grab the lead in the upper stretch of Thursday's $8,335 Futurity Prep Stakes at Ruidoso Downs.

But just as it seemed the filly would be rolling to an easy victory, she began to fade and her lead dwindled rapidly as Mejor Mel, a 19-1 outsider, launched a powerful bid.

Catonie refused to give in and fought off the assault to win the fourth running of the 5 1/2 furlong duel by a neck. Robert Roller was in the saddle. The victory was Catonie's third straight and her second Stakes' win of the meeting.

The first place paycheck came out to $5,001, and that pushed her money line up to nearly $25,000. The filly is owned by Jo Ann Hitt of El Paso and V.J. Callaway of Hobbs. Fans who backed Catonie in the mutuels collected $7.80, $3.80, and $3.20.

The winner covered the distance in an off-track clocking of 1:10 4/5.

Major Mel, piloted by Don Haward, earned nearly two grand for his strong runnerup effort and dished out $12.00 and $7.40 to show. Special Ranger, a 55-1 outsider, came on steadily to bag third.

The big disappointment was Cut Short, a colt tagged as an odds-on favorite on the strength of an earnings' record of over $30,000 and a perfect career record of three for three.

Cut Short got out of the gate like a cannon shot and was about three lengths on top down the backstretch run. But that quick speed took a heavy toll. When Catonie moved up briskly to challenge for the lead, Cut Short gave in readily and dissolved into the pack.

Catonie, during that eager swing into the turn for home, took an awkward step and nearly lost her footing. But she regained her stride and her momentum and went on to snare the lead in the final furlongs.

Clampett Tied For Golf Lead

OAK BROOK, Ill. (AP) — Bob Clampett is more than a 19-year-old cut-up from California. He's a darn good golfer.

Although he begs off questions about his U.S. Open antics of last month by saying, "The chapter's over. Why prolong it?" he finds it tough to keep his sense of humor hidden.

"How am I looking for low amateur?" he kidded Thursday after tying Bruce Devlin and Jim Simons for the first-round lead in the $300,000 Western Open.

Earlier, responding to a question about the strongest part of his game, the shaggy-haired blond — the lone amateur in the tourney — said, "They're all weak. I'd say my strongest part is probably luck."

Clampett, who will enter his junior year at Brigham Young University in the fall, missed the cut in the U.S. Open but played in the third round to fill out a twosome.

On the first two holes, he drove while on his knees. Warned against further breaks with tradition, he cooled his act, then resumed it on the back nine and was disqualified.

He played it straight Thursday to tie Devlin and Simons with 3-under-par 69 over the 7,097-yard Butler National Golf Club course.

Pitchers Have Strong Outings In American League Thursday

By The Associated Press

It was the day — and night — of the pitcher in the American League.

Milwaukee's Lary Sorensen and Seattle's Rick Honeycutt flirted with no-hitters in day games, but it was Oakland's Rick Langford who came the closest.

Langford shut down the potent California attack on just one hit — an infield chopper — as the A's blanked the Angels 3-0.

"I had a little bit better stuff the last time I faced (California pitcher Ryan) Nolan," Langford said. The A's won that game 1-0 on Aug. 1, 1978, when Langford tossed a three-hitter.

The "stuff" Lanford had Thursday night was potent enough.

The only hit was a high bouncer by California catcher Brian Downing in the fifth inning that almost went over the head of third baseman Wayne Gross. Still Gross, who doubled in one Oakland run and scored the other two, was upset.

"If I could have gotten one step back quicker and thrown overhand, I would have gotten him," he said. "I caught it on the left side. If I had caught it on the right side I would have got him out. I tried to convince the official scorer to change it but I couldn't."

Langford, 4-9, saw it differently. "Wayne did all he could," he said. "He was just a step off."

Sorensen and Honeycutt were almost as tough. The Milwaukee hurler pitched 71-3 innings of no-hit ball before giving up the first of two New York hits as the Brewers stopped the Yankees 3-0. Honeycutt lost his no-hit bid after 51-3 innings, settling for a three-hitter as the Mariners blanked the Minnesota Twins 4-0.

In other AL games Thursday, it was Detroit 3, Toronto 2; Chicago 5, Cleveland 4 and Boston 5, Kansas City 4.

Langford said his outing helped take some of the sting out of Wednesday's shellacking of the A's by California.

"I think the thrashing we took last night gave everyone more incentive," he said. "No one likes to get beat 17-6. They stole some bases when they were ahead. That is called stepping on someone's face. We wanted to show the Angels we're not the type of club you can step on."

Gross doubled off Angels starter Nolan Ryan, 10-6, to score Jeff Newman, who had led off the seventh inning with a walk. He later scored on Jim Essian's single. Gross also walked to lead off the ninth, scoring on a one-out double by Essian.

Brewers 3, Yankees 0

Sorensen said he came into the game almost expecting a no-hitter to be thrown. "But since we were going against Ron Guidry, I figured it would be the other way around."

Instead, the right-hander gave up only two hits, singles to Chris Chambliss and Bucky Dent, retiring 20 batters in a row at one points.

Sal Bando provided the only run Sorensen, 10-8, needed with a solo homer in the fifth inning off Guidry, 6-5. The Brewers picked up their other two runs in te sixth on Dick Davis' RBI single and an error by New York third baseman Graig Nettles.

Mariners 4, Twins 0

Honeycutt, 5-5, retired 10 batters in a row before Bobby Randall lined a single up the middle to break up the no-hit bid in Seattle's victory over Minnesota. The other Minnesota hits came in the ninth on John Castino's leadoff double and another single by Randall.

The Mariners scored an unearned run in the third on Willie Horton's RBI single. Larry Cox drove in the second run with a grounder in the fourth and the Mariners added two in the ninth.

Red Sox 5, Royals 4

Bob Watson's fourth single of the game drove in the tie-breaking run in the eighth inning as Boston rallied for a victory over Kansas City, completing a sweep of their three-game series.

Boston spotted Kansas City a 4-0 lead in the first two innings. Then Jim Rice drilled his 19th homer of the season. Rice later touched off Boston's winning rally with a one-out walk in the eighth.

White Sox 5, Indians 4

Speedy Claudell Washington scored the winning run in the top of the ninth inning without the benefit of a base hit in Chicago's win. Cleveland reliever Victor Cruz issued walks to Washington and Ralph Garr. When they attempted a double steal, Cleveland catcher Ron Hassey threw the ball into center field, allowing Washington to score.

The White Sox had tied the game 4-4 when Lamar Johnson homered to lead off the sixth. Gary Alexander homered for Cleveland.

Chicago's Alan Bannister stroked three hits, giving him eight in his last two games, one short of the American League record for two consecutive nine-inning games.

Tigers 3, Blue Jays 2

A solo home run by Champ Summers in the eighth inning gave Detroit a 3-1 lead and the Tigers held on for their victory. Joe Cannon's first major league home run leading off the third inning gave Toronto its first run.

Finals Set In Invitational

Dixie and Southern both moved into the finals of the City Invitational Major League baseball tournament by posting narrow wins Thursday night.

Dixie edged Northeast 9-7, while Southern defeated Western 3-2 in extra innings.

Chris Dobbs led Dixie by going four-for-four at the plate. He was also the winning pitcher.

Joe Torrez was the winning pitcher for Southern. With two outs in the bottom of the seventh, Luis Chavez knocked Tommy Torrez home for the winning run.

Dixie will meet Southern at 7:30 p.m. tonight at the Major League park for the championship. The Western-Northeast consolation contest is set for 5:30 p.m.

U.S. Tracksters Win

BOSTON (AP) — The United States swept the men's and women's 1600-meter relay races and defeated the Russian junior track and field team 188-178 Thursday at Boston University to avenge last week's loss in the first of their two dual meets.

The United States held a 88-66 lead after the first day of competition Wednesday, but the Soviets swept five field events Thursday at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Heading into evening competition, the U.S. lead was a single point, 106-104.

With three events remaining, the meet was a virtual dead heat. But the American women's 1,600-meter relay unit of Cindy Cumbess, Kim White, Denean Howard and Marion Franklin set a new American junior record with a time of 3:36.08 to help push the U.S. ahead. The Russian women had won the 1,600-meter relay last week.

Americans Carol Lewis and Gwen Loud then took first and second in the women's long jump, an upset.

The American men also won their 1600-meter relay to end the competition, giving the U.S. a 118-102 victory in men's events.

American women, who fared poorly in Bakersfield, Calif., last week, did better here, losing to the Russians 76-70.

Last week's 201-190 defeat in combined scoring was the first for a U.S. junior team on American soil.

Miss Nikitina and Mike Carter, of Dallas, who set a world junior record in the shot put Wednesday and finished second in the discus Thursday, were voted the meet's outstanding performers by the coaching staffs of both teams.

Astros Finally Prove Human, Drop Game By Error

A-J News Services

The Houston Astros are human after all.

"At least we found that out," sighed Cincinnati Reds Manager John McNamara Thursday night after the Reds ended a six-game Astros winning streak at six with a 5-4 victory in the finale of a three-game series.

"They messed up a bunt and we capitalized on it," added McNamara.

Third baseman Enos Cabell's throwing error to an unprotected first base after fielding Cesar Geronimo's bunt was the key to a three-run rally in the sixth inning that enabled the Reds to cut the Astros' lead to nine games in the National League West.

"When you win with a rally it really picks up everyone," said the Reds' Tom Seaver, who gained his seventh victory against five losses.

"Right now," continued the 34-year-old righthander, "the Astros are the luckiest team I've ever seen. But we finally got a break when Cabell made that throw on Cesar's bunt."

The Reds' game-winning rally came after the Astros scored three times in the top of the sixth off Seaver to take a 3-2 lead.

"It's just unbelievable how they had that foul line zeroed in," said Seaver.

Through the first five innings, the three-time Cy Young award-winner blanked the Astros on three hits while nursing a 2-0 lead.

Then in the sixth the Astros collected a single by Terry Puhl and doubles by Craig Reynolds, Cesar Cedeno and Art Howe, all groundballs just inside the third-base line, for their three runs.

"Every one of those balls hugged the ground," pointed out Johnny Bench. "if they'd bounced Ray (Knight) might have had a chance when he dove for them."

"I've never seen a club get as many dunkers for base hits as the Astros have against us," said Seaver. "When they stop getting the breaks, they're going to drop like a lead balloon."

A single by rookie Harry Spilman, making his fourth appearance as a pinch hitter since his recall from Indianapolis, touched off the Reds' rally in the bottom of the sixth with a single.

Ken Griffey followed Spilman's hit with a bunt single, the last of his three hits in the game. Geronimo followed with another bunt single and when Cabell threw the ball away for an error, Spilman came home with the first run of the inning.

"Art Howe had to be thinking Cedeno was going to be covering the bag," said Joe Morgan, "because he was backing up first. Even if Cedeno had tried to get back to the bag, though, he couldn't have beaten Geronimo there."

"That's the first mistake we've made in two weeks and it cost us the game," said Cabell.

Braves 5, Giants 4

Sometimes the shortest distance between two points involves a circuitous route.

Atlanta's Barry Bonnell took a detour en route from second base to third base Thursday night and it kept a ninth-inning rally going that culminated with the Braves' sixth straight win, their longest streak of the season.

The Braves trailed 4-3 when Mike Lum led off the ninth with a single. He was sacrificed to second and scored on pinch hitter Biff Pocoroba's single.

Pocoroba took second on the throw to the plate and Bonnell was dispatched as a pinch-runner. Giants reliever Greg Minton walked pinch-hitter Joe Nolan intentionally before getting Jerry Royster for the second out. That's when the fun began.

Gary Matthews hit a soft grounder to third. Darrell Evans fielded the ball but missed an attempt to tag Bonnell and the bases were loaded. Evans protested that Bonnell left the basepath and should have been called out. Evans subsequently was thrown out of the game and Office then delivered his game-winning hit.

In other National League action, the Chicago Cubs downed the Montreal Expos 3-1, the Cincinnati Reds edged the Houston Astros 5-4, the St. Louis Cardinals blanked the Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 and the New York Mets nipped the Philadelphia Phillies 3-2. Los Angeles and San Diego were not scheduled.

"It's true I left the basepath," Bonnell said, "but I had to to keep from running over him (Evans). He tried to tag me, but I was already past him. If I hadn't been, I would have been out."

Giants Manager Joe Altobelli was philosophical about it.

"There are two ways to look at it," he said. "A runner can't run into a guy. He's got to try to go around him. If he (Evans) gives a swipe, the runner was out. But a runner is allowed to go around a fielder if the fielder is in the basepath.

"What the heck — we got a ground ball and we should have done something with it."

Phil Niekro went the distance for his 11th victory although he yielded home runs by Larry Herndon and Evans. He also delivered a two-run single after the Giants built a 3-0 lead.

Cubs 3, Expos 1

Rick Reuschel scattered six hits over 7 1-3 innings for his fifth consecutive triumph and Bruce Sutter gained his 18th save for Chicago. The Cubs snapped a 1-1 tie in the fifth when loser Scott Sanderson walked Reuschel with one out. Scot Thompson's two-out single sent Reuschel to third and Bill Buckner then drilled a double down the right field line for the lead run. Thompson scored on catcher Gary Carter's wild pickoff throw. Sutter retired all five batters he faced over the final 12-3 innings.

"Reuschel is a great pitcher and Sutter is something else," said Montreal Manager Dick Williams, whose Expos concluded a 6-4 road trip and headed home with a 5½-game lead over Pittsburgh. They were 4½ games in front when the trip began.

Cardinals 2, Pirates 0

Rookie John Fulgham, a St. Louis native, scattered nine hits for his first major league shutout, but needed help from right fielder George Hendrick, who made a game-saving catch to end the contest. The Cardinals scored both runs off Jim Rooker in the first inning on Lou Brock's single, Keith Hernandez' RBI double and an RBI single by Hendrick.

Fulgham, a 23-year-old right-hander who was brought up from the minors last month, was making only his fourth big league start. With two out in the ninth and runners at second and third, Hendrick snared a drive by pinch-hitter John Milner when he left his feet and crashed against the wall.

"I really didn't have any good pitches," said Fulgham. "I just had pretty good location through most of the game. I don't know if I was painting the corners because they were hitting line drives right at people."

Mets 3, Phils 2

New York's Joel Youngblood jolted Dickie Noles in the pitcher's first major league appearance with a game-opening home run. The Mets made it 3-0 in the fourth on a walk, a double by Richie Hebner, Willie Montanez' single and John Stearns' sacrifice fly. Winner Craig Swan blanked the Phillies until pinch-hitter Del Unser's two-run homer in the seventh.

Coach Dies

WACO, Texas (UPI) — R.E. Henderson, who coached the Baylor Bears from the late 1940s to the early 1960s, died of a lengthy illness at a nursing home. He was 78.

Henderson joined the Baylor staff in 1936 as an assistant in both football and basketball and was named head basketball coach in 1942. From 1942 to 1961 he coached the Bears to an overall 301-233 record.

In his years as head coach, Henderson's teams collected four Southwest Conference titles and in 1948 made it into the final four at the NCAA Tournament.

Comments By Leading Businessmen Worthy Of Consideration

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — Lost amid the cacophony of crisis news, of gasoline shortages that compel attention, for example, are observations worthy of recognition, for their significance if not for their urgency.

Among them are commentaries from the private sector that may be worthy of consideration or even perhaps of reconsidration. Such as the remarks of Henry Ford II, chairman of Ford Motor Company, at the University of Chicago last April 26, a few days before announcing he would quit as chief executive officer on October 1.

"In recent deacades we businessmen have neglected many genuine problems and turned a blind eye to conditions that should have caught our attention. Often we have simply been stupid.

"We have refused to confront some of the crucial issues of our time, and as a result we have played directly into the hands of our critics and helped to make matters worse.

"The whole issue of consumerism is a prime example...

"Maybe we wouldn't have won any prizes if we had answered auto-safety charges more effectively before the consumerists moved into the area, but we would have saved ourselves — and customers — some nightmarish regulations."

Or the comments on big government by Murray Weidenbaum, former assistant secretary of treasury and now one of the foremost advocates of regulatory reform.

Weidenbaum, director of the Center for the Study of American Business at Washington University, St. Louis, was interviewed by editors of Exxon USA, an Exxon Company magazine for shareholders and others.

"The government cannot be our nanny. I think Americans are sensible enough to know that.

"To my mind there exists a tremendous gap between the view of the formal consumer advocates and the view of the rank and file of consumers.

"Currently, there's a strong movement in the Federal Trade Commission to tell Americans what to eat through regulation of television advertising.

Analysis

"When a senior FTC official was asked if he thought it was the government's task to tell free Americans what to eat, his response was, 'People eat for the wrong reasons.'

"Talk about Big Brother!"

Walter Hoadley, executive vice president and chief economist of Bank of America, articulated the thoughts of many people in testimony before the Senate Budget Committee.

Almost everyone appearing before the committee had declared their concern about the possibility of recession and with public demands for a restraint on government spending.

"I submit there is another broader force at work which quietly but relentlessly is sapping our fundamental economic strength," said Hoadley.

It is, he said, the "pervasive negative thinking across our country about the future, national and personal." He continued:

"It is crucial that the Congress and the administration try hard to reverse this public attitude through policy changes in the next year or two to cause a sharp increase in private risk-taking investments, innovation, productivity, saving, and national confidence."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

By Bernice Bede Osol

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Tomorrow will be an excellent day to putter around the house. You will have a knack for taking tattered items and transforming them into things of beauty.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Share tomorrow with your pals. Through them you will experience a renewal of comradeship which will strengthen your feelings of self-worth.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Things you might acquire for your home tomorrow will have a good chance of lasting for a long time. You won't tire of them, nor will they wear out prematurely.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Your ideas and feelings will take on an intensity you don't normally experience. Those you will be with tomorrow will know exactly where you stand.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) An inner sense of well-being and protection will be with you tomorrow, giving you the security to strive for better and grander things. Go to it!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Friends will take on a special meaning to you tomorrow and you will be drawn closer to them. When you give of yourself, others will give back in return.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Something close to your heart which you thought was on its way out may do an about-face tomorrow and give evidence of renewed "life." You should have a happy day.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) It will be good to be out among some of your more progressive friends tomorrow. You'll have a chance to take some stale thinking and modernize it.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Something personally important to you can be accomplished tomorrow because of one who gives you some fresh ideas on how to obtain it.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Tomorrow even the simple things in life will appear to be fun because you'll be able to share your time with those who mean a lot to you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You may take advantage tomorrow of a source always available to you, but seldom used to accomplish your aims. This person will be delighted.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Friends will confide in you tomorrow because your judgment will be both fair and astute. You're a bright pal to have around.

Napoleon was defeated at Waterloo in 1815. He had escaped from exile in Elba and had marched for 100 days through France gathering men and arms. The Duke of Wellington met him on a Brussels road with a mixed allied army. Fighting lasted all day until at dusk the allied line advanced and the French disintegrated.

Institute Examines Business Mistakes

By EDWARD CRAIG

NEW YORK (UPI) — The old saw that anyone who fails to learn from his past mistakes inevitably will repeat them applies to business as well as individuals.

And Sidney Schoeffler takes it one step further. He runs a shop which can show a business the mistakes made by others. The pitfalls identified, the company can plan its marketing strategy that much more confidently.

Schoeffler is executive director of the Strategic Planning Institute at Cambridge, Mass., which has a confidential data bank on more than 200 member corporations covering about 1,700 products and services.

The members pay up to $20,000 a year to compare a tentative market strategy for a product or service with the fate of a similar one by someone else.

The SPI program is known as PIMS, an acronym for Profit Impact of Market Strategy. It was developed by the General Electric Co. in the 1960s and then spun off under the supervision of the Harvard Business School. Schoeffler, a 55-year-old economist, was part of the GE team and moved to Harvard with it.

A member company seeking advice on business planning provides such information as its market share, product quality, its spending for research and development and related data. The information is run through a computer and compared with the experiences of other companies with similar characteristics and problems. The result gives the company a pretty good idea of what changes, if any, are needed in its marketing strategy.

Schoeffler feels there are certain "laws of nature" in business which apply in all circumstances. Naturally he thinks the success or failure of a product depends far more on what the computer has to say about it than on management skill or luck.

For every product analyzed by PIMS a company receives three reports.

A "par" report specifies what a company can receive on an investment that is normal for that business line.

A "strategy sensitivity report" tests strategies the company might use and suggests what the results might be.

An "optimum strategy report" identifies whatever changes are needed in order to give the company the best return on its investment and improve its cash-flow in the immediate years ahead.

Although the names of member companies of PIMS are no secret, the information they supply is.

Don't just buy a roof. Call out the Guard.

Glassguard.

GLASSGUARD®. MADE WITH LONG-LASTING FIBER GLASS.
A Glassguard fiber glass based asphalt roof really has what it takes to resist the elements.

For example, a Glassguard roof won't blister, curl, warp, expand, shrink or absorb moisture—some of the problems associated with conventional roofing.

Glassguard is installed with a special sealing strip that assures a positive and long-lasting weather seal.

And you end up with a roof that's going to look great—and last for a long, long time.

GLASSGUARD. IT CARRIES THE TOP RATING FOR FIRE PROTECTION. CLASS "A".
Glassguard fiber glass based shingles have literally proven themselves under fire.

In a torture test in which burning brands were placed directly on Glassguard and conventional shingles, the conventional shingle burned through. Glassguard only scorched before burning itself out. And subsequently earned the highest U.L. rating possible —Class "A".*

GLASSGUARD. A LONGER-LASTING ROOF DESERVES A LONGER WARRANTY. 20 YEARS.
A Glassguard roof offers you an extra bonus—peace of mind.

In addition to fire resistance, every Glassguard roof is also U.L. rated for wind resistance.

Every Glassguard shingle is made of only the highest quality materials—and must meet the most exacting of quality control standards—CertainTeed's standards.

It all adds up to a 33% longer warranty than offered with conventional shingles—a 20 year limited warranty—backed with confidence.

GLASSGUARD. BEAUTIFUL SHINGLES. BEAUTIFUL COLORS. AND A BEAUTIFUL PRICE.
Glassguard offers a lot over conventional roofing.

And to get the advantages of Glassguard—the Class "A" fire protection, the greater durability, the longer warranty—you'll be happy to know you won't have to skimp on looks.

Because Glassguard fiber glass based asphalt shingles come in a wide choice of popular colors.

So don't just buy a roof. Call out the Guard.

GLASSGUARD.

Movie Executives To Form Production Company

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Three top executives who decided to leave 20th Century Fox will form their own independent production company to be financed by Warner Communications, Inc.

The announcement Wednesday came nine days after Alan Ladd Jr., son of the late actor, and Jay Kanter and Gareth Wigan said they would not renew their contracts with Fox when they expired Dec. 1, 1980.

Ladd was named president of Fox in 1976 and guided the box office hits "Star Wars," "Alien," "Julia" and "The Turning Point."

Warner Bros., which operates its own featsre film division and distribution company, will exclusively handle distribution of motion pictures produced by the still unnamed production team.

Kanter is senior vice present of worldwide production for Fox and Wigan is vice president of worldwide production for the same division.

Last year the three were among the highest paid movie executives, with Lad earning more than $1.9 million and Wigan and Kanter more than $1.1 million each.

Window Opening Tips Given

By ANDY LANG
Associated Press Writer

If Sherlock Holmes saw a series of gouges along the wooden sides of a window sash and the adjoining moulding, he would have deduced correctly that someone had used a screwdriver blade to loosen a stuck window.

You can avoid such ugly and conspicuous marks on your windows by not using a screwdriver for the purpose of springing them loose. A hammer — yes, if used properly. A thin-edged chisel, yes — if you handle it very carefully. A putty knife — yes, and the most likely tool for the unsticking procedure.

Why not a screwdriver? Because the blade is a bit too thick to get between the sash and the moulding without being forced into place, an act that almost certainly will mar the wood.

Sometimes a stuck window can be loosened by placing a block of wood in the groove above the lower sash of a double hung window and tapping it with a hammer. The block of wood must fit snugly into the channel so that, when it is tapped, it tends to expand the frame and free the window.

If that doesn't work, use the same block of wood to place against the vertical parts of the sash and tap it with a hammer as you move it up and down. In any action of this kind — where tapping with a hammer is a part of the method — work with deliberate caution so that you don't crack the pane.

If it appears likely that hardened paint in the channels is causing the trouble, then the use of the putty knife as the first step is recommended. Insert the blade of this tool between the sash and the edge of the moulding. Gently move the knife up and down, the purpose being to break the paint seal. Work slowly and carefully, trying the window now and then to see whether it has worked loose. Never use excessive force.

After you have placed the putty knife in two or three locations and broken the seals at those points, you will be able to tell exactly where the remaining trouble spots are and you can go to work on them with the knife.

Occasionally, it may be necessary to work on the window from the outside. In that event, the putty knife or any tool with a flat, sturdy blade should be inserted between the bottom of the sash and the top of the sill and rocked gently. Here again, it will be evident after a few efforts where the remaining stuck places are.

What do you do if all these attempts fail? Then you will have to remove the sash from the window frame. Take off the stop mouldings on the inside. Use a chisel or putty knife, prying off te mouldings carefully so that they can be renailed later.

TODAY IN HISTORY

By United Press International

Today is Friday, July 6, the 187th day of 1979 with 178 to follow.

The moon is moving toward its full phase.

The morning stars are Venus and Mars.

The evening stars are Mercury, Saturn and Jupiter.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Cancer.

John Paul Jones, founder of the United States Navy, was born July 6, 1747.

On this day in history:

In 1699, the notorious pirate Capt. William Kidd was seized in Boston and deported to England.

In 1885, bacteriologist Louis Pasteur inoculated the first human being — a boy who had been bitten by an infected dog — and the youngster did not develop rabies.

In 1971, jazz trumpeter Louis "Satchmo" Armstrong died at the age of 71. In 1973, comedian Joe E. Brown died at the age of 80, and symphony conductor Otto Klemperer died at 88.

A thought for the day: Commanding the ship Bonhomme Richard in a 1779 Revolutionary War naval battle with the British frigate Serapis, U.S. naval pioneer John Paul Jones replied to a demand that he surrender: "I have just begun to fight."

Small Iowa Town Shows Determination To Overcome Grief

ALGONA, Iowa (UPI) — The scars and memories are fresh, but Algona Wednesday demonstrated its determination to overcome the grief inflicted last week by a tornado that killed two people and left scores homeless.

"The whole attitude of people here is starting to pick up," observed Marion Battani, secretary-treasurer of the Algona Chamber of Commerce and owner of a local business. "It sure looks a lot different than it did that first night."

Battani exuded a sense of cautious optimism shared by many of his neighbors as he stood along State Street, wearing a ribbon that identified him as one of the organizers of Algona's Fourth of July, day-long celebration of the town's 125th anniversary.

Battani had suffered personal losses in the storm that ravaged northern Iowa last Thursday evening. His was one of more than 100 homes leveled by the tornado as it cut a path of destruction from the town's northwest corner through its east side.

But he epitomized the "bounce back" theme civic leaders hastily adopted for Wednesday's celebration.

"We're getting things back together as fast as we can and I think this has made eveyone feel better," Battani said. "I think this break is good for our people. They'll bounce back. But it may be another two years before we're built back to normal."

Thousands of people from Algona and surrounding areas lined Wednesday's parade route, their vitality belying the devastation still very much in evidence just blocks from the central business district.

In a neighborhood on the town's southeast side, stairwells and concrete foundations marked the locations of houses the storm demolished.

"The fact that we could be hit by a tornado and then come back just six days later and have something like this really says something," said Wally Ingram of the Algona Chamber of Commerce. "We felt the people needed a festive event to get their mind off everything else."

The holiday planning had been in the works for almost a year.

Initially envisioned as a four-day extravaganza, the imposition of martial law last week jeopardized months of planning.

An 11th hour summit of organizers and city officials produced a scaled-down one-day schedule with a redirected emphasis — rebuilding and healing.

Cleanup operations were called off for the day and, although some residents still worked to clear debris and repair damaged homes, others devoted the day to leisure, seemingly oblivious of the past week's events.

Still, the tornado dominated discussions and overshadowed the festivities.

Many of those touched by the storm's fury light-heartedly exchanged tales of where they had been and what they had been doing when the twister struck.

Others nervously joked about the sounding of storm warnings Tuesday night — the second time in less than a week — when a funnel cloud was spotted at nearby Whittemore headed toward Algona.

LATE-SEASON CONTROL — Applying a postplant incorporated herbicide to control late-season grasses in corn is being studied by the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station for irrigation efficiency and yield increases. Prowl and Treflan-treated experimental plots on the Everett Keller farm north of Edmonson are being monitored through the season for soil moisture content. (Staff Photo by Paul Moseley).

Weed Control Held Key To Corn Crop Success

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

EDMONSON — Controlling weeds in any crop is a never-ending but necessary chore for farmers. The task is magnified when both the crop and the weed are grass species, according to Dr. John Abernathy, weed scientist at the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station north of Lubbock.

Abernathy is conducting an experiment with postplant incorporated applications of herbicides that may save money by making better use of irrigation water while making money with higher yields on the estimated 916,000 acres planted to corn this year in West Texas.

On the 490-acre Everett Keller corn farm near Edmonson, Abernathy placed six-foot neutron probes at the end of three small, experimental plots of field corn. One plot was treated with Prowl, one was sprayed with Treflan and the other was untreated to use as a comparison.

Prior to each of three or four irrigations during the growing season, Abernathy will take moisture readings from several depths on the probes and record the amounts of water applied. Yields will be noted at harvest.

The researcher said by the end of the season he anticipates to find that what farmers have been saying is true.

"Farmers have told me that by controlling the late season grass they are able to double the amount of rows irrigated at one time from about 20 rows to at least 40."

Postemergence soil incorporated herbicides in corn are supplemental chemicals, Abernathy said — a treatment designed to take over where other herbicides quit. The big problem with weeds in Texas corn is heightened by longer growing seasons and the use of irrigation. Therefore, preplant incorporated and pre-emergence herbicides won't carry the crop grass-free through the season.

"To save water and increase yields," Abernathy said, "the farmer must get rid of weeds. The cost of application is very low, especially when compared to the high costs of energy."

Weed-free rows facilitate irrigation by allowing water to flow freely and at a faster rate through the rows.

Without the use of neutron probes to take moisture readings, the only way a farmer can see the affects of weeds when irrigating is to clock the water as it goes through the field.

Last season, Keller kept track of irrigation time and found it took water 30 percent longer to reach the end of grassy rows than it took on clean rows. If it costs $10 per acre to irrigate, one irrigation could pay for the costs of the herbicide.

"The grasses were here when I came in 1952 and have been hard to handle since then," Keller, who has been raising corn for four years, said. "And weeds are especially hard to control where the land is irrigated."

Scanning the acreage lined with thriving, weed-free rows of six-inch corn, Keller estimated more than 90 percent control of late-season grasses in last year's postplant incorporated treated crop increased the yield by 10-15 percent.

Considerable savings in irrigation costs could make a difference in whether Texas High Plains corn farmers can plant the crop for a profit, Abernathy pointed out.

Cattle Futures Close Higher

By Reuters

CHICAGO — Cattle futures closed 75 to 150 points higher led by August at the limit level advance Thursday on the Chicago Mercantile Exchange. Sales totaled 21,226 cars. Earlier, various contracts shared the limit gain with prices higher from the start to three week highs.

The upsurge in gold and weakness in the dollar contributed to demand which was also sparked by light cattle arrivals and higher cash cattle and beef prices.

Wholesale beef was unchanged to up ½ at 103½ to 104 cents a pound, f.o.b. river points. Cash cattle were steady to up $2 with the best top $69 per hundredweight. Omaha's top was $68.75. Slaughter was 121,000 head. About 2,800 head are expected at the major markets today.

Feeder cattle futures closed 130 to 150 higher with most contracts at the limit level advance. Earlier, all contracts were up the limit for the second day in a row and reached 3½ week highs.

Record high gold and the weak dollar sparked aggressive short covering and other buying as did mostly higher cash feeder cattle and limit level gains in live cattle futures.

Cash feeder cattle were up $2 to off $1 with the best top $95 per hundredweight at Louisville. The major terminals today are expecting about 700 head.

Hog futures closed 85 to 150 higher led by July through December at the limit level advance. Volume was estimated at 4,190 lots. The market was higher from the start and rose to 2½ week highs.

Aggressive buying on the part of locals and commission houses was traced to reduced hog arrivals and higher prices coupled with some improvemnet in pork products at noon. Limit advances in other meat pits were also factors.

Wholesale hams were off 1 to up ½ at 61 to 65 cents a pound, f.o.b. river. Cash hogs were up 25 cents to $2 with the best top $43.60 per hundredweight at Joliet. Kill was 271,000 head. Receipts at the major terminals today are expected to total 23,000 head.

Pork belly (bacon) futures closed 157 to 200 higher with all contracts except distant July at the limit. The contract was also limit up earlier. Sales totaled 3,257 contracts.

Prices were higher from the start and were lifted to one week highs on buying sparked by reduction of 3.3 million pounds out of town and reduced hog arrivals. The sharp advance in cash bellies at noon and limit gains in other meats were also noted.

There have been 13 deliveries thus far. Wholesale bacon was unchanged at 27¾ to 31¾ cents a pound, f.o.b. river, which is the lowest since 1974.

Wheat Disease May Be Costly

CLOVIS (Special) — "Numerous fields of wheat in eastern New Mexico have developed diseases this year and some fields will suffer economic losses," says Richard Baker, extension agronomist at New Mexico State University.

The two most extensive diseases that Baker has noted are loose smut and leaf rust. These diseases are also present in some barley fields.

Loose smut is easily recognized when the plant heads out, the Clovis-based agronomist said. The diseased heads are black and the spikelets are entirely transformed into a dry, black spore mass. The spores are dispersed by the wind and infect other seeds.

When these seeds germinate, the pathogen is once again activated and grows within the developing seedling. Eventually, the entire spikelet becomes diseased and will be completely destroyed by the smut, Baker said.

Loose smut can be easily controlled by systemic fungicides applied during seeding. Surface-active fungicides will not control this disease, the NMSU agronomist said.

Leaf rust has developed extensively this season due to the persistent cool, wet weather, Baker said. Leaf rust reduces the number of size of wheat kernels.

Shriveling of kernels is rare but can occur. Losses in yield can be severe when rust infection occurs early and continues throughout the growing season.

Leaf rust is confined to leaves and leaf sheaths of the wheat plant. It is easily recognized by the nearly round, orange or reddish pustules on the upper surface of the leaf, Baker said.

Leaf rust can be differentiated from stem rust in that it occurs primarily on top of the leaf and the pustules are smaller than those of stem rust.

The best control can be obtained by using resistant varieties. In other cases, agricultural fungicides may be used to keep the disease from spreading, Baker said.

Bug Spray Storing Suggestions Made

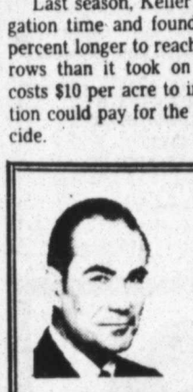
WASHINGTON (AP) — It's the season for gardening and sunbathing, but bugs and other pests also love the warmth and that leads millions of Americans to turn to insecticide for help.

According to the Consumer Product Safety Commission, though, some 8,500 children are treated at hospital emergency rooms each year after being poisoned by insecticides, pesticides or similar products.

Many of these accidents can be prevented by a few simple precautions, particularly concerning storage of these items.

Many people keep these products under the kitchen sink where they can reach them quickly. But that is also an easy place for children to reach, so experts recommend placing these poisons up high and, if possible, in a locked cabinet where children cannot get to them.

Remember, all pesticides and insecticides are poisonous. Always read the warning labels.



PLAINS AGRICULTURE

By DUANE HOWELL

PRODUCERS ARE EXPECTED TO SELL CORN they hold in the on-farm reserve if the $2.80-per-bushel call level is reached, industry sources say.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland says he expects wheat farmers to obtain bank loans to pay back reserve loans and continue holding grain. But the consensus among merchandisers is that holding corn may involve too much risk for the farmer.

Corn growers would have to offer bankers $2.80-per-bushel corn to repay loans of $2 per bushel. Wheat farmers, on the other hand, have wheat at the $4.11-per-bushel call level as collateral for loans of $2.35 per bushel.

Under these conditions, corn growers probably would sell the grain rather than hold it in the expectation of a further rise in prices, sources say.

JUST HOW QUICKLY THE RESERVE would be dispersed if the average price reached the call level would depend upon transportation, weather and farm financing, sources said.

The five-day national average price to farmers reached the reserve release level of $2.50 per bushel several weeks ago, with little reaction from the futures market. Industry sources have differing ideas of how the futures market would react if the call price is reached.

Even if most farmers sell their reserves, the key marketing factor is the severely strained transportation situation, one source said.

Rail car and locomotive shortages, problems of fuel availability, and continued — although reduced — effects of the independent truckers' strike have all served to hamper the prompt transportation of grain.

THE CURRENT TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM would stop an initial bearish market reaction after about a week, another source said. Others indicated the call of the corn loans would cause pressure on the market until reserve stocks are depleted — a potentially long-term situation if notification dates are extended 30 days or longer.

In the event of storage problems — full elevators unable to accept additional farm-stored grain — farmer liquidation if loans are called probably would be absorbed by basis adjustments at country points, observers said. As the proportion of grain stored on farms increases from one state to another, so do demands on transportation, fuel and commercial warehouses when growers sell grain to pay off the price support loans.

The western Corn Belt is expected to face the most difficulty, since that is where the fuel shortage is most critical and where the majority of reserve grain is stored, sources said. Also, in the western and northern Corn Belt states, the quantity of grain stored on farms is much greater than the quantity in elevators.

Iowa has the largest stocks of corn in on-farm storage, and that state is severely short of fuel, trade sources said. Of the total stocks as of June 1 in Iowa, 80 percent were held in on-farm facilities. Other states in the Corn Belt follow that trend.

In Texas, farm stocks of corn on June 1 totaled 2.88 million bushels and off-farm stocks amounted to 30.209 million for a statewide total of 33.089 million bushels.

THE LARGE AMOUNT OF GRAIN STORED on farms nationally could potentially cause slower marketing of that grain with the fuel crunch. But some sources said quantities on farms were immaterial, because farmers in many locations would be able to obtain sufficient fuel to be able to move corn to elevators. The problem would come, they said, in moving grain from elevators to export terminals.

New-crop corn condition also could affect marketing of reserve corn. If unfavorable weather affects the 1979-80 crop, farmers might decide to hold onto reserve stocks in expectation of a bull market, sources said. If storage is not needed for new-crop corn, farmers might be reluctant to sell reserves if futures are rising.

Still, the trade seems nervous about corn hitting the call level. Corn futures last week declined as much as the daily limit of 10 cents, while the five-day average price to farmers remained five cents away from the call level. Although the closeness to the trigger level was not the only reason for the futures decline, it was considered an important factor.

Corn futures have recovered since then, however, and have exhibited strength this week. The U. S. Department of Agriculture reported this week that the national average corn price as of June 29 was $2.71 per bushel, nine cents from the call level.

FFA Gathering To Be Largest Convention In City's History

By KATHLEEN HARRIS
Avalanche-Journal Farm Writer

Described as the largest convention in Lubbock's history, about 6,000 Future Farmers of America members, guests and visitors are expected to flock to the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center July 11-13 for the 51st annual state FFA convention.

"The purpose of the convention," state president Mark Baker of Arlington told a press conference Thursday, "is to present the awards, degrees and scholarships to all the members across the state who have worked so hard in the 60,000-member organization."

With the theme "A brighter future — a golden past", more than $320,000 worth of scholarships, plaques and other awards will be received by FFA members and supporters of the program during the three-day convention.

New state officer elections, state sweetheart and talent team selections and former state and national officer speeches are also scheduled.

Former state president and national secretary Fred Mc Clure of San Augustine will address the group Wednesday. McClure, currently studying law at Baylor University, was agricultural aide to U. S. Sen. John Tower after graduating with an agriculture economics degree from Texas A&M University.

Spur native Elvin Caraway will speak Wednesday afternoon. Caraway, an agricultural education major at Texas Tech University, was state president last year and is currently serving as national vice president from the western region.

Speaking Friday morning will be Brian Hall, former state vice president. The Dalhart native graduated from Texas Tech with a degree in agricultural economics and is presently working for the Red Raiders Club in Dallas.

"One of the most enjoyable parts of the convention," Baker, an agriculture education major at Texas Tech, noted, "will be Fun Night beginning Wednesday at 7 p.m. at the Lubbock Memorial Civic Center.

"Talent teams from each of the 10 areas will perform with singing and live bands," he said. "After each performance, one of the area sweetheart nominees will be interviewed on stage."

Scattered throughout the sessions will be addresses of the current state officers. These speeches can be one of the most motivating parts of the occasion, Baker opined.

FFA convention organizers say at least four dorms at Texas Tech have been filled, all area motels and restaurants have been alerted to the expected attendence, and transportation for the mass has been arranged.

Grain Futures

CHICAGO (AP) — All grain and soybean futures prices advanced sharply Thursday on the Chicago Board of Trade.

After a slow start, trading picked up throughout the session and closed with a heavy wave of commercial buying.

Traders said the continuing bad growing weather in the Soviet Union, plus rumors that the Soviets were about to buy large amounts of grain and soybeans, drove the advance, which saw the July wheat futures contracts close up the daily allowable limit.

Adding impetus to the runup was continuing cold weather in the Midwest farming area, which was retarding growth of crops.

At the close, soybeans were 14 to 20½ cents higher, July $7.84; Wheat was 17 to 20 cents higher, July $4.63½: corn was 6 to 9½ cents higher, July $3.17¾ and oats were 2¼ to 3 cents higher, July $1.70½.

Dow Undergoes Major Change

By CHET CURRIER

NEW YORK (AP) — One of Wall Street's oldest institutions moved into the computer age late last week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which dates back almost a century and has been the best known measure of market trends for most of that time, underwent its first major change in 20 years.

Removed from the list of stocks that make up the average were Chrysler, the struggling auto manufacturer, and Esmark, a conglomerate whose shares have moved listlessly between the mid 20s and the mid-30s in the past couple of years.

In their place the Wall Street Journal, published by Dow Jones & Co., put International Business Machines, the computer giant which ranks as the No. 1 holding of investing institutions, and Merck & Co., a leading pharmaceutical company and also a "glamour" issue.

"The change in the roster ... aims to improve the index as an indicator of the general price movement of shares traded on the New York Stock Exchange," the Journal said.

"IBM and Merck will help reflect the importance of technology and pharmaceuticals in the nation's economy and in the stock market."

The change, which was effective with last Friday's trading, has no nominal immediate impact on where the average stands, since the divisor that is used to compute it was changed accordingly.

But several brokerage-house analysts said they thought it might make a significant difference in the average's performance, and hence in public perception of what the market is doing, as time passes.

"I'm glad they did it," said Ralph Acampora at Smith Barney, Harris Upham & Co. "The average really means more now than it did."

"The Dow will now have higher earnings, higher dividends, higher quality and more volatility," observed Robert Stovall at Dean Witter Reynolds. "They have added two more growth stocks to what was primarily an index of cyclical 'smokestack' stocks."

The expected increase in the average's volatility — in other words, bigger day-to-day changes up and down — stems from the fact that IBM, at a price of around 74, and Merck, about 65, trade at much higher prices than the stocks they supplanted.

A 10 percent move in a $25 stock amounts to $2.50, or 1.71 points in the Dow average. A 10 percent change in a $75 stock is $7.50, or 5.12 Dow points.

Larry Wachtel at Bache Halsey Stuart Shields voiced the belief that the revamping of the average might help get it out of the 800-900 range in which it has fluctuated for much of the past decade.

"Two more volatile elements have been added to the average" he observed. "Of course volatility is a two-edged sword."

The average was first devised in 1884 by Charles H. Dow, two years after he and Edward T. Jones opened a business distributing financial news reports in the Wall Street area.

In the 1960s, Dow Jones & Co. converted a companion indicator, the rail averge, to the transportation average, bringing in airlines and trucking stocks.

But from then until last week, the only other modification was made in 1976, when a takeover of Anaconda Co. by Atlantic Richfield led to the substitution of Minnesota Mining & Manufacturing for Anaconda.

Court Ruling Approves Some Racial Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court's "Bakke" decision last year outlawed some racial qotas. But its newly announced "Weber" decision says, even more clearly, that some racial quotas are legal.

It now appears left to future fine-tuning by the nation's highest court to determine the "line of demarcation" between permissible and impermissible steps to help eliminate the vestiges of past racial bias.

But for civil rights activists and "affirmative action" advocates, the sweet victory of "Weber" dwarfs the anxieties once caused by "Bakke."

The psychological blow struck in "Weber" last Wednesday could eventually carry greater impact than any judicial edict on race relations since racially segregated schools were outlawed 25 years ago.

The adjective "landmark" is affixed to Supreme Court rulings by legal scholars, historians and journalists who do not mind being premature. The adjective may some day apply in the Weber case.

The court used Brian F. Weber's legal complaint of "reverse discrimination" to give its most emphatic approval to date of affirmative action — even programs based on racial quotas.

In stripping Weber, who is white, of legal victories won in lower courts, the justices approved by a 5-2 vote an on-the-job training program designed to "eliminate traditional patterns of racial segregation." The program used a fixed racial quota to make sure blacks would be included.

Last June, the court ordered a California medical school to admit Allan P. Bakke. It said Bakke, who also is white, had been made the victim of racial bias by a special admissions system — an affirmative action plan — that used race as its sole criterion.

But at the same time, the justices said that some consideration of a prospective student's race was appropriate. The double-edged sword of Bakke, therefore, left the future of affirmative action under a cloud.

For a civil rights movement somewhat chilled, "Weber" brought the sunshine.

The ruling puts thousands of employers on notice: It is going to become increasingly difficult to resist the demands of blacks — as well as other minority members and women — to play a more significant role in the economic mainstream.

Analysis

The Carter administration, which cheered the new ruling, appears ready to lend its support. And that could add considerable pressure.

Under an executive order signed by President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965, private firms doing business with the government "will take affirmative action to ensure that applicants are employed, and that employees are treated during employment, without regard to their race, creed, color or national origin."

There are 325,000 government contractors subject to the executive order's command. They employ some 30 million Americans.

CIA Accused Of Sexism

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The CIA, blamed for many nefarious deeds in its checkered history, now stands accused of being "extremely sexist."

An anti-CIA periodical, Covert Action Information Bulletin, published the names Thursday of 20 alleged CIA officers, including three women, said to be working under U.S. diplomatic cover in 17 foreign countries.

The three alleged fmale agents were said to be operating as case officers dealing with local agents in Libya, Brazil and Hungary.

Covert Action said their postings were "fairly rare in the extremely sexist CIA."

The CIA, which has described previous disclosures by Covert Action as "damaging," had no comment on the latest listings.
