NHA Official Holds Meeting With Pampans

A government official and local lumber and plumbing contractors Saturday afternoon discussed the prospects of building houses here to alleviate the shortage of facilities for much-needed war workers.

Tom Poore, area representative of the National housing administration, told the conferees certification for the need of houses here had not been made by Washington authorities.

The prospect of forming a corporation to build at least 50 houses was discussed.

Poore told the group that they might build the units as individuals, provided they could get the necessary priorities, materials, labor and other items of construction.

The original number to be built was set at 150. However, Poore said that as few as 50 could be constructed at a minimum of cost. The houses would be rented to the war worker at not more than one per cent of the cost. For example, if a unit cost $4,500 the monthly rental could not be in excess of $45.

If a corporation was formed, more units could be constructed at a smaller cost with the corporation assuming the liability.

The units, if constructed, would be rented or sold outright only to essential war workers. After the worker had occupied the house for

Senator Demands Nose-Count And Manpower Poll

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Senator Ferguson (R-Mich.) demanded today that any new legislative controls over manpower be justified by an up-to-date survey of employment needs and nose-count of available potential workers.

"I am not satisfied that the manpower we have is being utilized to the best advantage," he told reporters who asked for his views on a pending House bill designed to channel deferred draft registrants into war jobs.

The Mead war investigating committee, of which Ferguson is a very active member, is known to be continuing its study of the manpower situation began last year. Ferguson said he was disturbed by the discrepancy between the needs estimated in December and the war department's new estimate that 900,000 men will have to be taken into the armed forces and another 700,000 into industry in the next six months.

"In December we were told that there was a pool of 34,000,000 men out of which we had to get 90,000 for essential jobs, and that in six months we would need 390,000," Ferguson recalled.

He said he thought the Mead committee or some other competent fact finding unit ought to check specific plants to determine their exact present employment needs. The government has cut back some of its warplane orders, he said, why not ask the management of those factories how many man-hours they have saved and what had happened to the extra pool of labor made available by the cut?

The Michigan Senator said he was not satisfied that the armed services are utilizing all of their members to the fullest.

Meanwhile the House military committee arranged to hear AFL representatives Monday, CIO spokesmen Tuesday, on the pending legislation.

GENERALS CONFER IN BELGIUM

Belgian Bulge On North Hit Hard by First

By EDWARD J. DENNEBY
Associated Press War Editor

German armies were being dealt powerful blows last night (Sat) from east and west as the Red army, in an eagerly-awaited winter offensive aimed directly at the heart of the Reich, slashed 25 miles through enemy lines in Southern Poland and American troops sought to trap German forces in the Belgian bulge.

The U. S. First army encircled a general a mile all along the northern flank of the Ardennes salient. In some of its two mile the First struck toward St. Vith, where the retreating Germans might be expected to stage their next fight. Tanks to the southeast were only a mile from the last wood escape road from Houffalize, German base which once was the center of the Belgian Bulge salient.

British troops from the west pushed to within seven miles of Houffalize. The U. S. Third army on the southern flank, kept the withdrawing enemy under pressure with advances of two and a half miles on a seven-mile front west of Bastogne.

Clearing weather enabled American and British warplanes to hammer communications, points and fleeing enemy transport spotted east of St. Vith.

Under ground and air assaults, the Germans were pushed back to a three-mile arc west of the Ourthe river before Houffalize.

Meanwhile, it was disclosed that the U. S. Ninth army had taken over almost all of the Roer river front to the north and in an attack in the Monschau area southeast of Aachen had knocked out four German pillboxes.

U. S. Seventh army doughboys made limited gains in the Bitche salient in northeastern France.

In the east, Premier-Marshal Stalin, in announcing the Russians' Polish offensive, disclosed that Soviet forces had overrun

Senate Debate Is Developing Again

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Critics of President Roosevelt intend to reopen Senate discussion of foreign policy next week despite administration attempts to sell-pedal this issue now.

Senator Wheeler (D-Mont.) said he plans a speech on international affairs by midweek at the latest.

There is evidence that some answer will be forthcoming, though Secretary of State Stettinius is not likely to reply as he did to a previous Wheeler demand for abandonment of the unconditional surrender policy toward the Axis. Stettinius said Wheeler spoke for the "discredited few." The Mountainan commented that telegraphic and mail response showed the secretary was wrong.

Meanwhile, Senator Connally (D-Texas) chairman of the foreign relations committee, cognizant of the furore created by his original proposal to hold down discussion, told reporters he had no objection to "legitimate debate."

"There seems to be some misunderstanding as to my suggestion," the foreign relations chairman said. "What I meant to imply was that in view of the pending meeting of President Roosevelt with Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Stalin, the situation is delicate and anything disturbing it would not be to the public interest."

"I merely meant to ask that discussion that might make the President's task harder be withheld pending his meeting."

Trade Agreement Is Reached with French

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP) The state department announced today an agreement with France by which French African trade will be conducted directly with private industry.

All civilian supplies for these areas from the first of this year are to be on a cash basis, the announcement said. France also agreed that after June 30, no French-African civilian imports will be bought through lend-lease.

150 Men Are Still Wanted In Industries

At least 150 more men are needed to bring Pampa's oil and carbon black industries up to full war production, a survey showed Saturday.

Oil refineries, carbon black plants, ordnance plants, machine shops and their kindred industries all are short of manpower despite the rigid worker recruiting campaign of the last two weeks.

Records of the Call-at company show 86 workers were hired in December. The appeal for help has brought 185 workers into the company so far in January. Of the 86 hired in December, 52 were full-time employes, and of the 188 hired in January, 60 were full time.

This means that 162 part-time workers were hired by Celot in the past six weeks. The company still need 100 full time men workers for its carbon black extractor plants, and for the fabricating shop.

At the Dancher refinery, Fred Chipcock, superintendent, reported last night he has had 47 applications from local sources within the last two weeks. His company has been able to get about four permanent employes in that time, and there is a need now for 20 more full time men at Dancher.

Frank Perry, manager at Cabot-Hi Alto Carbon company where the plant capacity is being doubled with new construction, now hired has been within the last two weeks, said needs about 20 more permanent workers for operation con-

Murder Trial Is Scheduled Here Monday Morning

Trial of E. G. McEntire, 60, fruit dealer and apartment house operator on So. Cuyler, has been set for tomorrow in 31st district court here, Judge W. R. Ewing presiding. The trial is scheduled to begin at 10 a. m.

McEntire is charged with the fatal shooting of Kenneth W. Conway, 34, last October 24 in an alleged argument over a boxing match between Conway's son and McEntire's grandson, both boys only 7 years old.

A jury panel of 150 men is listed, out of which 12 will be selected for the trial.

The shooting occurred when Conway, returning from work, witnessed the fight between the two boys. McEntire took his grandson into the house and is reported to have returned with a .38 pistol. Conway emerged from his apartment and started walking toward McEntire.

McEntire is alleged to have warned Conway not to come any closer and when Conway advanced a few more steps is said to have fired five times, two of the bullets entering Conway's body.

Conway was rushed to a hospital where he never regained consciousness. He died at 6 o'clock the following morning.

McEntire, arrested by city and county officers, was released on $3,000 bond.

Invaders Are 90 Miles from Manila

By RAY CRONIN
Associated Press War Editor.

The advance of American forces toward Manila from Luzon island's Lingayen gulf area continues unchecked by Japanese resistance, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today (Sun.).

Yank motorized patrols have advanced close to two roadside towns 20 miles south of their gulf beachheads and are about 90 miles from MacArthur's chief objective—the Philippines capital.

The general reporting Japanese opposition only "on the southern front across foothills of the Benguet mountains, said the enemy was "either unable or unwilling to seriously challenge our advance on the coastal Luzon plains." This possibly indicated that the Japanese were experiencing great trouble in getting troops northward from the Manila area because of shattered bridges and consistent hammering by Yank airmen along all roads.

The American motorized patrols reached the vicinities of Urbiztondo and Bayambang. To the north the Doughboys occupied Santa Barbara and Mapandan, adding them to more than 30 towns previously liberated. Bayambang is but six and a half miles north of the border of Tarlac province, where bloody fighting took place in December 1941, as MacArthur's American and Filipino forces tried to stop the Japanese drive southward from the gulf.

Yank men-of-war shelled the Japanese at Poseran also on the northern front. That town is 14 straight miles from Baguio, the summer capital in the heart of the Benguet mountains.

Thomas Counsel Intends Appeal

LAMESA, Jan. 13 (AP) Counsel for Jim Thomas, 50-year-old paroled convict given the death penalty on conviction for the murder of Dr. Roy F. Hunt of Littlefield, Texas, said an appeal action would be instituted were Judge J. E. Garland to decide adversely on the motion for a new trial.

"Thomas' counsel said if an appeal were made, attorneys for the defense would seek to show the court's allegation of Jo Ann Hunt, 6 year-old daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Hunt, to testify was a reversible error.

In the criminal trial at Plainview, where Hunt was convicted and given death, only to be granted a new trial here on an irregularity, Jo Ann was ruled incompetent to testify. She was five at that time.

Commons Debate Might Indicate Big-3 Meeting

LONDON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The government announced today it had decided to hold full-dress debate on the general war situation a week earlier than previously planned, and this led to speculation that a date already had been set for the impending conference of the "Big Three."

Prime Minister Churchill will open debate next Thursday with his report to Commons reviewing the war and the Greek crisis, and the debate will continue through Friday.

With President Roosevelt's inauguration Jan. 20 there is little or no chance of the "Big Three" meeting before then, but there is a general feeling here that the President, Churchill and Marshal Stalin of Russia will meet either late this month or early in February.

Britain's whole military and diplomatic position faces a full airing after the return of commons from the holiday recess Tuesday.

Already laborites and independents have drawn up a list of sharp questions to fire at the Prime Minister in an attempt to clarify the situation in Greece.

An announcement by the conservative whip said the general war debate would open Thursday instead of Jan. 23.

In the face of admitted differences among the Allies, diplomats here looked for the President's inaugural address and Churchill's war review to give a possibly further exposition of both American and British policy, clearing the path for the Big Three" meeting.

Despite a truce between the British and Leftist EAM forces, many members are voicing uneasiness and demanding that Britain—possibly with the help of the United States and Russia press for immediate elections and plebiscite in Greece to decide the fate of the monarchy.

He Waits for Bark On Housing Problems

KEERING Fla., Jan. 13—(AP)—Bob Cartright, recently discharged from the army, has a house, but he also has a housing problem.

1. He doesn't know to whom to pay the rent. The house belongs to Jack, a Detroit, Mich., fox terrier, whose mistress, Mrs. Margaret Myers, willed it to him.

2. The roof leaks, and Cartright doesn't know how to communicate with the owner, or whether he could have the repairs made and take it out of the rent.

Jack has neither barked approval nor growled disapproval.

ONE-DAY INCOME TAX SCHOOL WILL BE HELD FOR EMPLOYERS WEDNESDAY

Income tax-conscious business men and women of this area will have occasion to attend a one-day school of instruction here next Wednesday, Jan. 17, to secure information on how to make out their returns, since there is not sufficient staff of federal collectors to spend time here in the ensuing weeks, it was announced yesterday. Returns must be made by March 15.

Ralph Tenniston, Amarillo division chief, internal revenue, was in Pampa this week making preparation for the school, in conjunction with the chamber of commerce.

Instruction, to be conducted by Deputy Collector C. I. Powell, Amarillo office, will be held from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. at the Junior high school, Clotille Thompson, acting-secretary of the chamber of commerce, said yesterday.

"The principal purpose of the meeting is to instruct some member of each concern, so that he can help all employees of the concern to fill out their returns. Experience gained last year, Tenniston said, proves that five or six hours of instruction will equip men or women with accounting knowledge to prepare proper returns for most wage earners. There will be a recess of the meeting for lunch, of course.

Employers who intend to send representatives to the school are requested to notify the chamber of commerce, telephone 383, not later than Monday.

Tenniston, stressing the fact that the department is short of help just like all other concerns in the country said federal workers in the Second district of Texas, comprising about 140 counties, including Gray, are confronted with calculating by March 15 about 173,000 refunds to taxpayers.

Taxpayers this year are informed by Chief Tenniston that they must have from each employer form W-2, which is a receipt showing amount of wages paid and taxes withheld during the past year. "This is important," he said, "because without a receipt of this sort from every former employer,

15 Days Left To Pay Poll Taxes

Fewer than 1,000 persons had paid their poll taxes or held exemptions at the Gray county courthouse Saturday noon, and there were only 15 days left in which one could become eligible to vote in the forthcoming city election under that provision.

There were 5,939 eligible voters, by virtue of poll tax receipt or tax exemption, in 1944, it was announced.

At least two elections will be held this year, the election of a director of the board of education in the city school system, and a mayor here.

It is possible that some time during the year the citizens of the county will be asked to vote on a state amendment passed last year. This amendment has to do with the shifting of county's money from one fund to another.

Search Underway For Long-Term Convict

WACO, Jan. 13—(AP)—A statewide alert was out tonight for arrest of Glenway Joyce, long-term convict who slugged a guard and escaped Retrieve prison farm, kidnaped a Houston trio and continued his northward flight in their car after setting them free at Ross, near Waco.

Joyce, 34, was under 50-year sentence for armed robbery in Dallas and Tarrant counties.

Prison officials at Huntsville said Joyce struck guard D. R. Lindsey unconscious late yesterday with a hammer blow on the head, carried him to another part of the farm in a wagon and dumped him out. Lindsey's condition was not serious.

Joyce was described as 5 feet 6 inches in height, weighing 157 pounds, with dark hair, and brown eyes.

Desire to continue and expand cordial relationship between military personnel and the citizens of Pampa was expressed Saturday by Col. T. W. Imlay, new commanding officer at Pampa army air field, at his first meeting with senior staff officers.

Expressing pleasure and intense interest in this relationship, Colonel Imlay said:

"I have never been assigned to a new station where higher headquarters was so thoroughly cognizant of the spirit of cooperation which exists between officials, press and general public in the community, and the personnel of the station."

Colonel Imlay told his staff:

"Such relationship is extremely important to maintenance of high morale of military personnel, who are in many instances far from their homes and families.

"It is my intense desire that the fine spirit now existent be continued and expanded."

He continued:

"The hospitality program established by the citizens of Pampa, for the convenience of families and guests of military personnel, is an outstanding accomplishment and identifies the people of this community as being the highest type of American citizens, who exemplify the fine principals of humanity, decency and consideration for our fellow man, which is one of the things this nation is fighting for."

Following a brief inspection tour of the field Saturday morning, Colonel Imlay said:

"I do feel very fortunate in being assigned to Pampa army air field."

PERKINS' REPORT HAS SOUND OF 'SWAN SONG'

By HAROLD W. WARD

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins made her annual report to Congress today, and its reminiscent nature carried the broad hint of a "swan song."

The secretary looked backward at her 21 years in office—longest term for any labor department head—then turned to the future, envisioning an expanded labor department and cautioning organized labor to measure up to its responsibilities in the postwar era.

In other years her report has been confined to the events of the preceding fiscal year.

She dealt perfunctorily with these in the new report, and devoted the bulk of her accounting to a sweeping review of her department's role in achieving legislative gains for workers.

A heavy percentage of the legislation with the new deal hall-mark originated with the secretary and her helpers since she became, in 1933, the first woman cabinet member in history.

But her resignation has been on

PETE TRAXLER TO STAND TRIAL IN FAYETTE CO.

Pete Traxler, notorious Panhandle and Texas bandit-convict, has been turned over to Fayette county authorities for trial there on a charge of robbery with firearms, it was learned yesterday by The News in an inquiry through the Associated Press. He is being held in jail at LaGrange, Texas, and a special venire has been called for the trial scheduled Feb. 1 before District Judge J. R. Fuchs.

The case first was scheduled to have been tried at LaGrange on a change of venue from Walker county in 1937, but the trial never was held.

Traxler, a few weeks ago, was ordered released from the Wynn prison farm to the sheriff of Lipscomb county (Everett Shahan) and he was to be re-tried in that county where he was previously convicted for armed robbery, during which he permanently injured a Lipscomb county resident.

But following the court of appeals opinion, releasing him to Lipscomb, Fayette county officials received custody of him with a bench warrant.

Harvesters Lose to Calves in Hard Fought Game 22-16

Height Advantage Proves Too Much For Pampa Five

The West Texas Calves had too much height for the Harvesters to handle Friday night, and came out [illegible]

The Harvesters couldn't get going in the first half, trailing at the intermission by 13-4. The tall Texans took every advantage of their height and got all the rebounds and tip-offs.

However, in the last half, the Harvesters came to life, out-scoring the Calves 12-9, but the Calves staved off any real serious threats to insure themselves of their 10th victory in 12 starts.

Don Humphries of thme Harvesters

Don Humphries of the Harvesters, and Gus Miller of the Calves tied for high- coring honors for the night with eight points each. Johnson of the Calves was close behind with seven.

In the curtain-raiser of the twin bill, the Harvesters "B" team took a 19-13 decision from the WT reserves. Junior Coffey led the scoring parade with seven points.

SPORTS for Victory

Ryder Says Mile Record Should Be Broken By Dodds

BOSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Gil Dodds' trainer, Jack Ryder, has high hopes of seeing his charge smash the mile indoor record by possibly two seconds this winter and beat Gunder Haegg in either the one or two mile events if they meet.

The Boston college trainer explains it this way:

"Dodds is as good now, if not better than ever. He's a master of indoor running. He's been training daily on the Boston college outdoor boards since Dec. 1, and he's done a 4.09 mile with comparative ease."

Ryder said he expected Dodds to smash his own 4.06:4 world's mile record before the season is well along.

"I think he will do a 4.04 mile this year," said Ryder. "I am basing that opinion on this workout performances to date. He's never been in better condition. He's still young—he's only 26, and he's learned a lot about taking turns on board tracks.

"He'll surely make Haegg run as fast as he ever has in his life if they meet. They were only a second apart outdoors when they met before. I look to Dodds to beat him either in the mile or two miles event

Dodds completes his course at Gordon Theological school in Boston in February. There has been some talk that he would enter the armed services as a Chaplain, but Ryder says, "no, he hasn't made any such decision."

Layden Denies He Will Coach Pros

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—(AP)—Owner George Marshall of the Washington Redskins predicted today that Commissioner Elmer Layden of the national football league would accept a coaching berth in the proposed rival All-America conference, but Layden termed the report "silly, without fact."

At Washington, Marshall was quoted as saying "persons who put Layden in as our commissioner have organized the All-America conference, and it's entirely plausible that he will become coach of Chicago's entry in that circuit."

Layden, whose $25,000-a-year contract with the national loop expires in March, 1946, declared the suggestion was "silly, without fact, and should not be dignified by comment."

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Perhaps the most significant statement at the press conference following Eddie Eagan's appointment as New York boxing commissioner was Eagan's remark that he would cooperate as fully as possible with the National Boxing association. . . . The other high spot was Gov. Dewey's refusal to sing "Don't Fence Me In" at the boxing writers' dinner. . . . It may take a lot of the fun out of sports writing if those wordy New York-N.B.A. feuds are ended, but it will be a lot healthier for boxing if champions are champs everywhere and if suspensions are made to stick in all states. . . . One things is sure, the appointment of Lt. Col. Eagen (Yale, Harvard and Oxford) makes it impossible to revive Bill McGeehan's designation of the commissioners as the "three dumb dukes."

FOR MERCY'S SAKE

You can't explain it in bowling terms, but the Women's International Bowling Congress has scored nothing but strikes with three misses. . . . Within two years, contributions from feminine pin-topplers have purchased a bomber plane, "Miss W.I.B.C.," two air evacuation planes, "Miss Nightingale" and "Miss Nightingale 2nd" and a field ambulance. . . . Before the current season ends they hope to collect enough through their "Wings of Mercy" drive to buy at least two more of those $80,000 Misses."

SPORTSPOURRI

Lt. Frank Leahy signed a long-term contract as Notre Dame football coach just before he entered the navy. . . . And the year before Doc replied to ribbing from the stands by tossing peanuts to the hecklers.

Pampans Not To Burn Garbage

Firemen answered a total of 149 alarms in 1944, 122 inside the city limits and 18 outside.

Loss on property and buildings was assessed at $1,401.29 of which $4,103.59 was insured.

In connection with the runs, City Manager W. C. deCordova has instructed Police Chief Ray Dudley to clamp down on motorists who park their cars in alleys in downtown Pampa. Last week, firemen were not able to get through one of the alleys to answer an alarm because of the congestion of cars.

Fire Chief Ben White and deCordova today warned residents of Pampa that city garbage trucks would not empty trash barrels in which trash had been burned.

This practice nearly caused a loss to the city of one of the garbage trucks, which, deCordova said, were irreplacable. The U. S. surplus commodities department has on hand several of these trucks, but they are sold without tires, making them comparatively useless to the buyer.

Trash which is burned in the barrels sometimes smolders until it is placed in the disposal compartment of the truck. Action of the pressfans the embers, resulting in fire which may spread over the truck.

NCAA Favors Barring Of Form Sheets Used For Game Betting

By HAROLD HARRISON

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 13—(AP)—The national collegiate athletic association called upon its members today to make every effort to "dry up" sources of information for form sheets used in gambling on athletic contests and to persuade newspapers to refrain from publishing game odds.

The recommendations was made in a report by a special NCAA committee which has been investigating gambling on college sports events. The report was submitted, accepted and adopted as the NCAA and the national football coaches association wound up their annual convention here.

Expressing "regret" at the prevalence of gambling on college games, particularly football and basketball, the NCAA voted to call on its members "to cooperate in the establishment of remedial measures."

It proposed that gamblers be barred from college games and that the schools seek to bring about a "discontinuance of the issuance of prediction charts."

Wilbur Smith of Tulane university was elected president of the NCAA to succeed Prof. Philip O. Badger of New York university and Ray Morrison of Temple university was re-elected president of the coaches' group.

Eight district vice-presidents elected included H. E. Bray of Rice Institute, sixth.

Plans Complete For 1945 Golden Gloves

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13—(AP)—The 1945 golden gloves program in Texas will be inaugurated Monday, Jan. 22, when two district tournaments open their activities — at Corpus Christi and Camp Maxey. The circuit for the ninth annual event will consist of 20 districts and military establishments.

Houston and Amarillo start their three-day tournaments on Jan. 23 to be followed the next night, on Jan. 24, by Bryan army air field, which will be both civilian and military.

Other districts and military posts and their opening dates are: El Paso, Jan. 31; Dallas, Midland army air field, Brownwood and Lubbock, Feb. 1; Fort Worth and Abilene, Feb. 2; Beaumont, Harlingen and San Antonio, Feb. 5; and Waco on Feb. 7 to wind up the fighting family.

Sheppard Field, Camp Wolters, Camp Hood and Camp Howze, holding strictly military tournaments, have been in the process of eliminating their fighters for several weeks to find their representation in the state tournament in Fort Worth Feb. 14-19.

National Open Will Not Be Held in '45

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—The national open, amateur, women's and public links golf championships will not be held in 1945 Morton G. Bogue of New York told the United States golf association delegates today just before they re-elected him president of the organization.

Bogue said he believed the interest of "our country and golf will best be served by confining our activities to recreational golf and competitions in local districts."

The golf executive disclosed the army had purchased 20,000 sets of clubs and thousands of golf balls, leaving the outlook for civilian equipment "decidely black."

Lynx Hold 26-24 Win Over Pampa; Have Won 16

By SCOTT RAFFERTY

Victors by a 26-24 score over the Harvesters in an early season game, the Spearman Lynx will invade the local court Tuesday night for one of the top games thus far on the Harvester schedule.

Undefeated in 16 games, the Spearman five is rated by many as the best in the Panhandle area.

The Lynx most recent victory was a 43-27 win over the Stinnett Rattlers.

The Harvesters go into the game at full strength with a record of 13 wins and three defeats. Losses were to Spearman, North Dallas, and last Friday night, to West Texas high of Canyon.

The Lynx a fast, smooth-working team. Scoring in their games is usually divided almost equally among the five starters. In their victory over Stinnett, the second string played all but the last quarter, with a reserve player taking high scoring honors with nine points.

To date, the Harvesters have showed great promise at one of the best teams in Pampa history. Otis Coffey's team captured the Vega tournament with a win over the Wayland college team from Plainview. Pampa entered the Ft. Worth tournament but lost in the quarter-final round to North Dallas, after winning from Grayford in the first game.

Friday night was the Harvesters' first exhibition this year of the "wheel" type of offense. The players move in a circle until one works into scoring position, usually the pivot man or "hub" of the wheel.

Coach Coffey regards this type of offense as one of the smoothest working types in basketball play.

An indication that Pampa may have another great team in 1946 is the fact that two star regulars this year, Randall Clay and Earl Davis, both have two years of eligibility with the team yet to go. Davis, at the center position, has proved his ability to score and Clay, playing at guard, is one of the most aggressive players on the entire team.

As for the three senior members of the starting five, Johnny Campbell, Joe Cree, and Eugene Turner, have all proved their worth in the Harvesters' 16 games.

The veteran Grigg has coached all sports in his lengthy career in athletics. Before coming to Rice he was track tutor at Austin college.

Broach has been with Stanolind 15 years—Erwin McGowan, recently back from the army, has joined Stanolind as scout in east Texas.

E. M. Dutton has been appointed acting director of production and conservation of the Arkansas oil and gas commission succeeding Alec M. Crowell, recently resigned; Dutton has been associate director and auditor of the commission for some time.

Roger Lacy, Longview, Texas, has announced that he will start construction of a refinery in the Heidelberg field of Mississippi as soon as materials permits are issued.

PREMIUM FUEL

Production of premium grade gasoline will be increased slightly during January, but the amounts will be earmarked for essential users —buses, fire engines, ambulances, etc.—the PAW has announced.

The increased allocations will total about 60,000 barrels daily, the PAW said. This is just about enough to take up slack and possibly permit slight increases in stocks for emergency uses. Civilians still will have to get along with whatever they can get.

West Coast Oil Not Sufficient

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Rear Admiral Andrew F. Carter, executive officer of the army-navy petroleum board, said Friday west coast oil production is not sufficient for Pacific naval operations.

The slack, he said, is being taken up from every source of petroleum production.

Admiral Carter's statement was made in a conference with visiting Southern newspaper and radio men, yesterday, the transcript of which was made public today.

Carter said he did not think there would be a necessity for a pipeline from West Texas to the west coast "for the simple reason that according to the trends of production as we have seen them here and based on industry and WPB reports, you are going to need all the Texas oil for movement in the other direction."

OIL PROVINCE

Charting major development of the oil industry for 1945 and coming years, Anthony Gibbons, Mid-Continent editor for The Oil Weekly, this week devotes considerable space to the Anadarko basin-Panhandle district of the southwest.

Featured is a generalized map contoured on the Mississippian of the vast area which swings through western Oklahoma, southwestern Kansas, southeastern Colorado and north portion of the Texas panhandle.

"The campaign will involve deep and expensive test wells," Gibbons writes. "The prize is a rich one, estimated by some to be no less than between 5 and 10 billion barrels of recoverable oil—more oil than Oklahoma has produced up to the present time."

OIL RIGHTS

Oklahoma supreme court this week wrote another clarifying chapter in oil and gas laws, in affirming the decision of Albert Hunt, district judge of Oklahoma county.

Case is styled: No. 31661—John F. Martin, plaintiff in error vs. The Atkinson, Warren and Henley Co., a corporation and E. W. Cralle, executor of the estate of E. L. Cralle, deceased, and C. L. Henley, defendants in error. The syllabus stated:

"The owner of all the oil and gas rights and other minerals' in an under land is the owner of an interest in the land on which notice of an intention to demand a tax deed must be served, as required by 68 OS 1941 No. 451, before his rights can be extinguished by a certificate tax deed."

Three Men Held On Federal Charges

HOUSTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—Three men were indicted by a federal grand jury at Galveston Thursday on charges of conspiracy to evade the selective service act.

They were Juan Manuel Balderas, Antonio Perez Alvarado and Antonio Fuga. They had lived at various times at Houston, San Antonio and other south Texas cities, D. K. Brown, F. B. I. agent here, said.

The indictment alleges the three approached the wife of man subject to induction and offered $50 to treat him so he could not pass the physical examination.

Successful Year of Work Is Turned Out by Local Chapter of Red Cross

By JANE BARA

Mr. and Mrs. Pampa can look back with pride on the services rendered by the chapter of American Red Cross during 1944.

At the annual meeting held last week, Joe F. Key, chapter chairman, told 250 Pampans that their work had helped to aid servicemen in numerous ways. A booklet was given to each person attending; committee reports were summarized in the phamphlet.

Mrs. M. F. Roche worked in home service part of the year but, because of illness in the family, was needed at home. Mrs. Carl J. Wright has also been active. Other than working with the community concert, acting as secretary to Girl Scouts, housekeeping and doing other duties, Mrs. Wright feels it is her obligation to work with the Red Cross and to keep the serviceman in touch with his family. This service, small in peace time, becomes increasingly important during war. The Red Cross performs many personal services which no other agency is prepared to give.

Service to men and their families takes in verification on communications as to welfare of servicemen and family and necessity for his presence; making loans and grants when needed; social histories when requested by medical officers; inquiries when families have not heard from servicemen, consulation and guidance and assistance with dependency benefits.

Twenty-four-hour service is given each day with four volunteers taking weekly turns answering all calls. Sunday is no exception. Mrs. Wright told of a typical case that happened on Sunday, last September. "A railroad conductor wired ahead to have the station agent contact the Red Cross as a sailor, traveling under orders, had lost his ticket and funds for meals. The worker met the train and provided the service man with the necessary funds to complete his trip."

To make certain that Red Cross workers are on hand at every emergency, the name of a worker and her telephone number is posted in the USO, police department, Western Union, Santa Fe station and military police station.

Mrs. Wright also stressed the importance of civilians' keeping in touch with the Red Cross; for through that office only can verifications from doctors be made, forms secured concerning servicemen who have been killed; and through Red Cross communications of all types are handled.

Joe Wells, chairman of the war fund committee, said that through generous effort and support of Pampa people a total of $32,320.25 was raised. Of the amount, 62.1 per cent was sent to national headquarters for overseas work and 37.9 per cent remained in Pampa to take care of local Red Cross services.

Reporting on the water safety committee was John S. Skelly, chairman. Doyle Ray Brides was sent by the chapter to national aquatic school to return to Pampa to organize a water safety class here. There were 12 juniors and four seniors enrolled. Certificates and insignia were obtained for those qualified.

In first aid and accident prevention, H. M. Cone, chairman, taught a standard and advanced course to Cabot employees and Lloyd Stallings taught a standard course to civilians at PAAF. Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald taught a Junior first aid course.

Ed Weiss, Jr., chairman of the disaster preparedness committee said that Pampa had been fortunate, insofar as we have not had any disaster problems sufficient in importance to call upon the local chapter for service. However, there is a standing committee perpared to take action on a moment's notice. This committee is made up of sub-committees on survey, rescue, medical aid, shelter, food, clothing, transportation and communications, registration and information, fund raising and public information, central purchase and supply.

While making a home for her two daughters and doing various work with the chamber of commerce housing committee for cadets, Mrs. Frank Culberson was chairman of the special service committee. The purpose of the service is to maintain a group of volunteer workers trained for prompt and efficient service in emergencies and for carrying on current activities.

Mrs. R. J. Epps gives time to church work and is chairman of the production committee. There have been 521 articlesm ade for servicemen including sweaters, helmets, watch caps, gloves and mufflers, knee bands and toe socks. In the layette department seven complete layettes have been made and given to the wives of servicemen.

Pampa chapter shipped 186,000 dressings during 1944. Mrs. C. P. Buckler is chairman of the committee. She expressed her appreciation to all faithful workers and chairmen who have reported to surgical dressing rooms to see that the job was done.

Mrs. Raymond Harrah, who is also an active worker in civic activities and social clubs, was chairman of the kit bag committee. There were 1,061 of these bags shipped from Pampa to ports of embarkation, containing cigaretttes, shoe cloths, stationery, razor blades, pocket books of fiction, pencils, soap and soap boxes.

Seven courses have been taught in home nursing, according to Mrs W. R. Campbell, chairman. They were taught by Mrs. G. F. Branson, Lt. Maeir, Mrs. E. H. Johnson, Miss Edith Tiffany. At the present time there are 10 authorized home nursing instructors in the chapter. They are Mrs. Ellen Layne, Mrs. Julia McKernam, Mrs. Mary Lou Downs, Mrs. Edra Branson, Mrs. E. H. Johnson of LeFors, and others are stationed at the PAAF.

Miss Clara Brown, nutrition chairman, stated that the chapter has four instructors. They are Miss Millicent Schaub, Mrs. Robert Sanford, Mrs. J. G. Keyes and Mrs. L. B. Penick.

H. A. Yoder, chairman of Junior Red Cross, reported that since Jan. 1944, 109 elemtntary school rooms have been enrolled; with 1300 pupils in LeFors and Pampa High schools which makes the schools in Pampa chapter 100 per cent enrolled. Miss Lillian Mullinax was chairman of 1944 membership enrollment.

Junior Red Cross has provided for servicemen in hospitals, in camps on high seas and for disabled ex-servicemen in veteran hospitals.

On hand to give an account of their experiences with the Red Cross overseas were M/Sgt. Lewis Gastley, back from the Pacific theater, and M/Sgt. Woodrow Bickford, recently returned from the Mediterranean area. Both men were interviewed by S/Sgt. Hugh Best, special services, PAAF. Sgt. Gastley told of a number of services with the Red Cross provided and added: "The best thing the Red Cross did was to get sheets for our cots, and they were changed three times a week."

Mrs. J. B. Massa, chairman of local camp and hospital committee reported many activities. The committee is responsible for a program on Wednesday nights at the Pampa base hospital; many gifts have been made to men in hospitals. There were 105 high seas packages sent to ports of embarkation in order that the boys who spent Christmas on board ship might have gifts. Mrs. Massa also gave her time to various social clubs and was chairman of Red Cross production in 1943.

Mrs. Jessie T. White, executive secretary of Red Cross spends most of her time in her office or working on outside cases. At the meeting she expressed her appreciation to board members and to Joe Key who will serve as ex-officio board member during the coming year, having served his three years as board member. When she is not working with Red Cross, Mrs. White takes pride in growing prize-winning chrysanthemums.

J. B. Massa, treasurer, gave complete figures on statement of receipts and disbursements for the year and W. D. Waters, accountant, also gave a report of the financial status.

Officers for the coming year will be elected during a business meeting to be held Jan. 16, in the Chamber of Commerce building room, followed by a report from the nominating committee. Those composing the committee are:

Doyle Osborne, chairman; Mrs. Frank Culberson, Grover Heard, Charlie Thut, Ferris Oden.

Newly-appointed executive board members are the Rev. Guy V. Caskey, Aubrey Steele, Lieb Langston, Mrs. C. P. Buckler, Mrs. M. F. Roche, Ed Weiss, Carl J. Wright, Irvin Cole, Huelyn Laycock, and W. E. James, LeFors.

1945 Oil Budget Is Stepped Up

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13—(AP)—The 1945 budget of Petroleos Mexicanos, the government oil monopoly, is $87,000,000 compared to $78,800,000 last year, Manager Efrain Buenrostro reported yesterday.

Proposed 1945 production is 46,254,000 barrels of crude as compared to 36,120,000 last year, Buenrostro added.

The budget, he said, provides for wildcatting, for extension of distribution facilities and for payments to U. S. oil companies whose properties were seized in 1938.

FUNNY BUSINESS

Gracie Reporting

Consolidated News Features

Well, I think it was nice that Mr. Roosevelt managed to cut the war budget eighteen billion dollars below last year's estimate, but I do wish he hadn't announced it just as I was trying to get George to increase my household allowance by three dollars. George says if the President can cut expenses, I can.

GRACIE

Well, there's a difference. General MacArthur is a lot closer to Tokyo than he was last year, but I'm still as far away from getting a lamb chop from my butcher as I ever was. And the cost of chasing Jap admirals may be down this season, but eggs are still on the way up.

Goodness, I can certainly sympathize with Mr. Roosevelt if he has to go through the same things to get money out of Congress that I do to get it out of George. Besides, I need a little fun money so that I may look pretty for my husband, whereas I don't think members of Congress care whether Mr. Roosevelt loves them or not.

The record of industry in this war will go down as one of the age — We have armed the entire world, except our enemies, and if we can believe prisoners, even they would like our weapons.— Maj. Gen. Levin H. Campbell, army ordnance chief.

Jitters

Congresswoman Helen Gahagan Douglas of California, former actress, had to be prompted when she failed to answer present at her first congressional roll call.

This can probably be explained as a holdover from Mrs. Douglas' career in the theater, where it is not uncommon for an actress to blow her lines on opening night.

Plain Talk

Some people have complained, not without justice, that War Mobilizer Byrnes did not go far enough toward urging an all-out war effort in his first report to the President, Congress and the American people. But at least he delivered up some plain and candid talk, a commodity which at times has seemed to be rationed in the District of Columbia.

Mr. Byrnes brought the current picture of our national economy into proper focus, avoiding the rosy light of our August optimism and the deep shadows of panicky December despair. In that focus first things came first. Reconversion, long overemphasized, was not condemned or blacked out, but scaled in proper proportion to the paramount need of war production.

Mobilization and manpower, stabilization and inflation, taxes, labor relations, agriculture, contract termination, surplus property — these and other war-born or war-aggravated problems received a generally forthright treatment. In fact, Mr. Byrnes touched on almost every vexing subject except foreign relations.

And that subject was taken up by President Roosevelt at his press conference that day after the Byrnes report was made public. What the President said was comforting, in a general sort of way. He was arch and bantering with the assembled press, as is his frequent custom.

He told the reporters that differences among the great powers, important or unimportant, were necessary. He said there was no way to bring Russia, Britain and the United States any closer except to install their governments in a common capital.

He suggested that one should avoid loud talk about a person's individual interpretation of the Ten Commandments. But he did not reveal any specific reactions to reveal any specific reactions to recent specific crises in Europe.

Premier Stalin has been specific on occasion, notably in regard to Yugoslavia and Poland. Prime Minister Churchill has given detailed explanations of his position on a variety of matters, from liquidation of the British Empire to the makeup of the Italy government and the civil war in Greece.

In the wake of this there has grown up in this country an urgent desire for "loud talk" which has transcended domestic politics and crossed party and intra-party lines. More recently urgent demands for specific statements on American policy have come from Britain.

Perhaps Mr. Roosevelt's silence and apparent lack of concern conceal a plan of his own for reconciling admitted differences at the coming meeting of the "Big Three." Perhaps his special information leads him to believe that the general anxiety is unnecessary. But in either case the public's obvious desire for a little plain talk of the Byrnes variety does not seem unreasonable.

The Need Continues

Military medical men have learned much about the life-saving properties of blood plasma since the war began. And one of the lessons is that speed and quantity are often of highest importance. By a newly developed technique, many patients are now given four bottles simultaneously, with plasma being fed into both arms and both legs.

Plasma is also being packaged in quarts rather than pint bottles now, for it has been found that cases commonly require two or three pints and some have required 10.

It has been comforting to think that a pint of our blood will save a soldier's or sailor's life. Perhaps it does sometimes, but we know now that one pint often will not do the job.

Blood donors have been admirably generous, but the need is still great. These new techniques are a reminder of that—and no more reminder should be necessary.

ABOUT AIR POWER

(The New York News)

The theory that air power alone can win a war has been just about exploded now, we think, until and unless aviation progresses considerably beyond the stage it has thus far reached. Various weather handicaps are still unlicked; and infantry, not air power, is still taking and holding territory in this war.

POSTWAR DEFENSE

It still seems a certainty, too, that land-based bombers are better weapons than carrier-based bombers, given equal quality in planes and pilots. You can repair a bombed airfield faster than a bombed carrier, as a rule; you can fly bigger planes off an airfield, and those planes can at least be sure that their earthen "carrier" won't be sunk while they are away.

It follows that our best single bet (though we shouldn't neglect any bets) for postwar defense of the continental United States will be the big land-based bomber. We hope our peacemakers, when they finally come to architecting the peace, will keep this matter in mind, and will insist on enough Atlantic and Pacific bases for us to defend ourselves with big bombers based far east and far west of our own coasts. With such outposts, backed by adequate, alert home defenses, we should be able to prevent another and worse Pearl Harbor.

First Things in Education

Since there is nothing more important than education stressing virtue and since, judging from the results of our educational system, there is nothing that seems to be less understood, I want to quote some further thoughts from John Locke's essay on "Education."

Locke stresses the importance of beginning early to train the mind to discipline and to reason when at first it is most tender and most easily bowed.

On directing the mind of a child he emphasizes the influence of esteem and disgrace. I quote:

"Esteem and disgrace are, of all others, the most powerful incentives to the mind, when once it is brought to relish them. If you can once get into children 'a love of credit, and an apprehension of shame and disgrace, you have put into them the true principle, which will constantly work and incline them to the right. But it will be asked, How shall this be done?

"First, children (earlier perhaps than we think) are very sensible of praise and commendation. They find a pleasure in being esteemed and valued, especially by their parents and those whom they depend on. If therefore the father caress and commend them when they do well, show a cold and neglectful countenance to them upon doing ill, and this accompanied by a like carriage of the mother and all others that are about them, it will, in a little time, make them sensible of the difference; and this, if constantly observed, I doubt not but will of itself work more than threats or blows, which lose their force when once grown common, and are of no use when shame does not attend them; and therefore are to be forborne, and never to be used, but in the case hereaftermentioned, when it is brought to extremity.

"But, secondly, to make the sense of esteem or disgrace sink the deeper, and be of the more weight, other agreeable or disagreeable things should constantly accompany these different states; not as particular rewards and punishments of this or that particular action, but as necessarily belonging to, and constantly attending one, who by his carriage has brought himself into a state of disgrace or commendation. By which way of treating them, children may as much as possible be brought to conceive, that those that are commended, and in esteem for doing well, will necessarily be beloved and cherished by everybody, and have all other good things as a consequence of it; and on the other side, when any one by miscarriage falls into disesteem, and cares not to preserve his credit, he will unavoidably fall under neglect and contempt; and in that state, the want of whatever might satisfy or delight him will follow."

The Principle of Virtue

Here is a good explanation of what Locke regards as virtue: "It seems plain to me that the principle of all virtue and excellency lies in a power of denying ourselves the satisfaction of our own desires, where reason does not authorize them. This power is to be got and improved by custom, made easy and familiar by an early practice. If therefore I might be heard, I would advise that, contrary to the ordinary way, children should be used to submit their desires, and go without their longings, even from their very cradles. The first thing they should learn to know, should be that they were not to have anything because it pleased them, but because it was thought fit for them."

Again on the same subject he says, "He that has not a mastery over his inclinations, he that knows not how to resist the importunity of present pleasure or pain, for the sake of what reason tells him is fit to be done, wants the true principle of virtue and industry, and is in danger never to be good for anything. This temper therefore, so contrary to unguided nature, is to be got betimes; and this habit, as the true foundation of future ability and happiness, is to be wrought into the mind as early as may be, even from the first dawnings of knowledge or apprehension in children, and so to be confirmed in them, by all the care and ways imaginable, by those who have the oversight of their education."

True Secret of Education

After he has stressed the importance of letting the child develop in mastering his inclinations and yet not killing his initiative, Locke makes the following observations on the proper kind of education:

"To avoid the danger that is on either hand, is the great art; and he that has found a way how to keep up a child's spirit easy, active, and free, and yet at the same time to restrain him from many things he has a mind to, and to draw him to things that are uneasy to him; he, I say, that knows how to reconcile these seeming contradictions, has, in my opinion, got the true secret of education."

I will quote further in a succeeding issue.

AGAIN AND AGAIN

(The Los Angeles Examiner)

(By Benjamin De Casseres)

I've heard it repeated again and again and again on the radio that we should not criticize Russia because Russia is saving thousands of American lives by her war on Germany. Let's look at the facts:

1. Russia is not fighting Germany to save American lives. She is fighting to save her own bacon.

2. Russia was attacked by Germany. She was forced to fight after agreeing in August, 1939, to let pal Adolft Hitler slaughter the peoples of Europe, in return for which Stalin was to get part of the loot in eastern Europe.

3. If Stalin had said no to Hitler in 1939 it is 100 to 1 that there would have been no war in Europe.

4. Because Stalin said yes to Hitler there have been 600,000 American casualties up to date.

5. And that, folks is the way Russia saved American lives!

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

The National Whirligig

By ALBERT LEMAN

NURSES—The flurry about the possible drafting of nurses for the army and navy has brought a small increase of applicants to American Red Cross recruiting centers.

But officials declare that this voluntary method cannot be relied on to supply the total necessary to care for the growing number of sick and disabled men from all fronts. Appeals, arguments and other pressures have been used everywhere, but failed to meet the emergency.

Critics sometimes jump at conclusions and brand nurses as unpatriotic—even when the accusers themselves do not go out of their way to take war jobs. A New York survey, that has been probing the causes of the lag in enlistment, finds many reasons, among them the personal problems of individual women.

The medical profession flatly asserts that doctors as a whole are not opposed to their helpers' joining the colors, although induction will mean more work for physicians. In the metropolitan area there are less than three thousand nurses in the twenty-five city hospitals and homes where formerly there were six thousand two hundred.

OBJECTIONS—Chief point cited for inadequate enrollment is economic—the desire to take advantage of the greater financial rewards from civilian activities, and to lay away nest eggs for the rainy day when steady employment will cease. This is especially true of the older women.

The money angle is an important factor around Manhattan where cash is plentiful. Eight and a half per cent of all the R. N.'s in the country live in New York City. Yet only four per cent of the army and navy nurses come from there. War workers with bulging pocketbooks, as well as others, think nothing of paying eleven and a half dollars a day for someone to look after their sick and aged. It is natural that trained nurses should weigh such remuneration against military pay.

Doctors maintain that the public demands the highest type of service in cases where practical nurses or nonprofessionals would do.

Until recently some branches of the army objected to the appointment of women except to base hospitals and like posts. American Servicemen often do not want their sweethearts and sisters to don uniforms.

HARDSHIPS—Medical authorities discovered in interrogating possible applicants that there is widespread dislike on the part of girls for what they call "regimentation." Many of them seeno reason why their liberty should be curtailed or why they should subject themselves to military discipline. Others do not want to be sent overseas or to stations far from friends and home.

Statistics are not released, but doctors are greatly disappointed at the response from cadet nurses who have been trained in hospitals at public expense, and who were supposed to make up the pool for replacements. A striking number quit on graduation to resume civilian careers or practice in "cushy" lucrative private jobs.

Publicity about the hardships and perils encountered by army nurses in jungles and in liberated towns has acted as a boomerang. A girl may be as patriotic as her G. I. brother and yet be timid in the face of what she believes to be physical danger. The mere thought of such experiences terrifies her.

Once she discovers that the overwhelming majority of army personnel lead the lives of normal nurses, she is willing.

Parents frequently are reluctant to have their daughters serve away from their watchful eyes. But, here again, when informed of the care and protection given to young women in the armed services their anxiety is removed.

COMPLAINTS—Red tape and bureaucratic delays in accepting applicants also keep many trained nurses out of the ranks. In some states the required examinations are given four times a year and a graduate must wait at least three months before she can obtain her certificate of registration and file enlistment papers.

Some nurses from small schools whose standing is not recognized by the military authorities, are not considered. Uncle Sam turns thumbs down on them. Many serve later in clinics and hospitals and take postgraduate work in anesthesia, X-ray and other advanced sciences but to no purpose so far as current regulations go. Nurses who marry are discharged from the navy.

Physical tests are still quite stiff and disqualify many. The Surgeon General's Office is afraid to accept any who fail to measure up to standard lest they break down from strain and cause not only local hospitalization problems, but "saddle taxpayers" with their care in future years through disability allowances paid by the Veterans Administration.

Surveys show that many nurses between forty-five and fifty-five would like to be on the list, but the military refuses to change the forty-five-year age limit. These women contend that they could be put in the limited service class and assigned to army-navy hospitals in the United States, where they would make no greater effort than they do in their regular duties. New York hospitals have some excellent nurses who are more than seventy years old.

But government officials insist that even lowering requirements for the voluntary system will not wipe out the shortage.

Around Hollywood

By ERSKINE JOHNSON

BEHIND THE SCREEN: Preparing the highly censorable "Forever Amber" for the screen, Producer William Perlberg recalls with a chuckle a situation which gave the censors the jitters on one of Tyrone Power's films, "Son of Fury." The censors, it seems, objected to Power living, without benefit of clergy, with native girl Gene Tierney on a South Pacific island. So the studio discreetly wrote a new scene in which Gene takes a white hibiscus (for purity) out of her hair and replaces it with a red rose. There still was no marriage ceremony but the red rose made everything all right with the censors, who said: "It's okay now—they're married."

While entertaining overseas, Pat O'Brien realized a life-long ambition to ride in a ricksha. But it was disastrous. Says Pat: "No sooner had I settled down comfortably than a wheel busted ad tumbled me out on my derriere."

In his studio biography, Van Johnson says his ideal girl combines Irene Dunne's charm, Garbo's intensity, Betty Grable's laughter, Ann Sheridan's naturalness, Judy Garland's sympathetic nature, and Lana Turner's sex appeal. That, brother, is not bad combining.

Comedian Chill Wills tells this one on himself. After returning from a four-month overseas tour, he sat down at the family breakfast table. After a while his daughter, Jill, began eyeing him suspiciously. Finally Mrs. Wills asked her what was wrong. The little girl said: "Is HE going to be here all day?"

A BUSY BENNETT

Since becoming a film producer, Constance Bennett is now known in Hollywood circles as the woman "busier than Eleanor." . . . No truth to reports that Estelle Taylor is seeing ex-husband Jack Dempsey again. Her estranged husband, Paul Small, is due in Hollywood next month and don't be surprised if there is a reconciliation. . . . Xavier Cugat wonders if you've heard about the reformed wolf who asked himself as a blonde passed, "Is this pip really necessary?" . . . Mickey Rooney, now leading a band overseas, had to get special permission from a special service officer to make an arrangement of his own tune, "Love's Got Nothing On Me."

During filming of "Winged Victory," Sgt. Edmond O'Brien, who is the film's comedy click, went down town to see a new play. Next day Jeanne Crain asked him what he thought about it. "It's phony," replied O'Brien. "Act two takes place two weeks after Act One—and the heroine has the same servants."

Promised and hoped for: Lynn Bari and Fred McMurray doing a 1910 schottische for a scene in the Eddie Rickenbacker film biography. . . . Dana Andrews, who took singing lessons for eight years before entering the movies, wants to do a musical, particularly a screen version of "Oklahoma!" . . . Lana Turner spent exactly five hours making coiffure style tests for "Weekend at the Waldorf." As if anyone will notice her hair. . . . Speaking of hairdos, Gene Tierney has gone blonde for "A Bell for Adano" and will wear no make-up except lipstick. . . . Jack Benny will make his first appearance for the 1945 March of Dimes drive for the Infantile Paralysis fund at Rockefeller Plaza Jan. 15.

OAKIE FROM HEAVEN

In the script: Jack Oakie, a resident of heaven in Universal's "That's the Spirit," has just been granted permission by Buster Keaton to return to earth on a special duty. Keaton warns him: "Now, don't go around clanking chains. It's absolutely forbidden . . . and besides, it's corn."

It's George E. Phair's observation:

"Conan Doyle was another oldtimer who never wotted wot would be wot in future times. He invented Sherlock Holmes and Doc Watson years before the world knew about Basil Rathbone and Nigel Bruce."

The general education board, which does most of its work in Southern states, was incorporated by Congress in 1903.

Literary Schools Of Thought

A Boston judge a few days ago may have taken a step which might well mark a turning in the literary history of that morally self-conscious community. He refused to ban from that fair city Erskine Caldwell's novel "Tragic Ground," as requested by the previously victorious New England Watch and Ward society. The society had been successful in banning "Strange Fruit" and "Forever Amber" only a short time before.

It objected to what the members called a shocking scene in which a female is allowed to see a man stripped to the waist.

We think this is a noteworthy act in this year of 1945. Without passing on the merits or demerits of the book, we might make a few observations here.

There has been—and there will continue to be—a great deal of controversy on what constitutes literature. The question, we believe, has gone unanswered, even in the most learned class of students. From such issue there have arisen two schools of thought: realist and idealist—the first constituting that group who believe the bad deeds, as well as the good, should be portrayed in order that literature, as a yardstick of sociological history, should be accurate. The latter is the group who believe that literature, as a teacher, or reformer, should be an example, setting forth admirable attributes only—such as Winston Churchill's (not the Prime Minister) "Richard Carvel."

But despite those definite schools of thought, there remains the fact that Shakespeare, the master of them all, was both a realist and an idealist, according to most reputable critics, both his contemporary and our modern. For instance, in "King Lear," often placed next to "Hamlet" in importance, he denies no pain or calamity that befalls the ordinary man. Nor does he withhold man's shortcomings.

Using the modern phrase, he "pulls no punches." There are shining examples of human purity in his work; there are debauchery, shame, murder. He does not take sides with his characters. They are left to their own destinies. His beneficent effect on society of all times is widely admitted.

But the practice of permitting all sorts of books to reach the public—and especially to reach adolescents—just because some publisher sees a chance to make a few more thousand dollars—such practice is still debatable. The value of a work lies in something more than its shady scenes and phrases. Great books, free of "trash," are still to be found—measuring up to all the scruples of the purest purist—"Jane Eyre," for instance. Risque literature—Maugham's "Theatre," Dreiser's "Sister Carrie"—often fail. These two books lack justifiable plot; therefore, the reader was not impressed with their lewdness. Hervey Allen's "Anthony Adverse" is loaded with plot; therefore, the reader was impressed with its intermittent lewdness and crudity because the plot supports them.

It seems to us, therefore, that it all depends upon what kind of literature the reader is seeking. If he is seeking a world of purity and tranquility, he must find it in books—it is not found all the time in real life. If he is seeking to read about people he knows, or knows about, it can be found in books, too.

It goes pretty well without saying that a writer does not write about what he might want to—he writes about what his inner self forces him to write. If he does not, he is not a writer; he is a window-dresser, creating either a bad lewdness or a bad goodness, as the case may be.

Literature, it appears, is the composite of the good and bad. To pick up Erskine Caldwell's work, one sees one of many sides of life. There are many opposites to it.

The Boston judge felt, we presume, it was time to break from the old school of banning books, to give the people both types of literature.

We neither uphold him, nor condemn him. We can see argument on both sides.

WAR TODAY

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Associated Press War Analyst

Uncle Sam's soldiers are suffering heavy casualties in the bloody battle of the Belgian bulge—and the end isn't in sight. So great is the call for manpower in Europe, and in the Pacific theatre, that Washington is inducting a minimum of 900,000 men for the armed services in the first six months of 1945.

With this stark background, the publisher of a daily newspaper has asked me what suustantiation there is for reports that, while our boys are being sacrificed, there are French and Belgian youths who also could be used, but are not.

I find no support for such an idea. On the contrary, both France and Belgium seem to be doing all they can to get their available men into action. However, the situation is complicated and difficult.

Take the case of France. With a pre-war population of about 42,000,000 she might be expected under normal conditions to put a maximum of ten per cent under arms—say 4,000,000—apart from colonial troops. But actually the French government reports that the Germans are holding 780,000 French prisoners of war, 225,000 voluntary French workers, 750,000 French slaves, 600,000 deportees of military age, and 600,000 deportees from Alsace and Lorraine, mostly men. That's reaching for 3,000,000, or close to three-quarters of France's quota of fighting men.

Nevertheless, General de Gaulle has flung an eager force into the flaming western battle front, and is reported planning to add 1,800,000 to the army, making a total of more than 2,000,000.

The story of little Belgium, with her pre-war population of some 9,000,000, is similar.

While Germany is holding about 575,000 Belgians—war prisoners and slaves—Belgium has some 35,000 soldiers fighting on the western front, and others are training in England. She wants to put more men under arms—but lacks the arms.

An old story with a new slant:

A Negro was standing an examination for the position of rural mail carrier. Among other questions written for him to answer was the poser: "WHAT IS THE DISTANCE BETWEEN THE EARTH AND THE MOON?"

"I is prompt, but indignant reply was: 'See heah! If you's a-going to put me on dat route I quit right now!'"

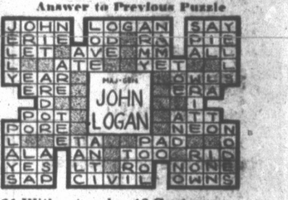

HOLD EVERYTHING

"Okay, I'll read just one more bedtime story—then you gotta go right to sleep!"

The WAY OUR PEOPLE LIVED

WHEN NEW YORK WAS YOUNG

VI

THE town of New York, in the 18th century, was considerably different, in habit and temperament, from any other colonial community. A large number of travelers and strangers were always to be found on Manhattan Island. To accommodate them there were numerous inns, with such names as the King's Arms, the Merchant's Coffee House, the Blue Boar, the Three Pigeons, The Sign of the Spread Eagle. Anybody who had the money to pay his way could come to New York and stay indefinitely without being questioned by the authorities if he behaved himself.

Most of the coastwise vessels, carrying passengers between New England and the southern ports, put into New York, where they remained from three or four days to three or four weeks. For some reason that is psychologically difficult to analyze New York attracted counterfeiters and swindlers of one kind or another, as well as tourists whose pockets were well-lined with money.

Nevertheless there was a solid core of highly respectable citizenry—both English and Dutch—in the town. On top was the community of gentle manners, quiet homes, elegant furniture, and good taste. Under this community lay a heterogeneous horde of tavern roisterers, Negro slaves, thievish servants, underpaid workingmen, and crooked individuals of all conditions. Many of them from the other colonies were fugitives from justice.

NEXT morning, as Major Lawrence and Charles Mason left the house together, the Major said, "I'm going up to the debtors' prison, and I thought you might like to see it."

Mason said that he wanted to see everything, but asked the Major's purpose in going there.

"Oh, I'm going there to get a prisoner released. A bricklayer I know, named Jason Kittle. A good man and a good workman. He's been in the jail for two months, and today I take him out."

"What was his crime?" Mason seemed somewhat bewildered. "Was it nothing but owing debts?"

"That's all," was the reply. "He owed four pounds and some shillings."

When they had reached the Commons—the square where the city hall now stands—the Major pointed to a dark, bleak, bare building and told his companion that it was the debtors' prison. "The man I'm taking out is a good workman, as I've told you. He helped build one of my houses. A few months ago he fell from a house and injured himself so that he was laid up for weeks. When he got well at last, and was ready to go back to work, he owed some money, mostly for provisions and rent. He couldn't pay and his creditors sent him to prison."

"How could he be expected ever to pay his debts if he is kept in jail and is not allowed to work?"

"The question you ask," the Major replied, "is the essence of the whole thing. They jail a man because he is unable to pay his debts and fix it so he will never be able to pay them."

"But I should think that the government would object to feeding these prisoners," said Mr. Mason.

"The government doesn't feed them, nor does it clothe them. The creditor who has the man put in jail must pay a few pennies a day for his support while he is in prison, but it is not enough to keep him alive, so the prisoners depend on the charitable public to send them food and clothes.

"I arranged yesterday with Jason Kittle's creditors. I paid them not only all he owes them but also various charges and fees, and got a release from them. Today he'll be released and I'll see that he gets work to do. Then he can repay me a little at a time."

THERE were no cells in the debtors' prison. It consisted of a large room with 50 or 60 men in it. All the men were shabby, unkempt and hungry-looking. A fire of logs was burning in a vast chimney at one end of the room. A few tables and rickety chairs were in the place. The pallets on which the men slept were rolled up against the wall, all except three or four. On these men were lying. The prostrate men seemed very ill, all of them.

They found Jason Kittle. He was a wan, nervous-looking man in a shabby but decent suit of clothes—the long trousers of the workingman, the stout shoes, the checkered shirt—so soiled that it looked black, and a coat of coarse gray wool.

As they stood outside the door, the young Virginian, the Major, and the shabby man with the bundle under his arm, the Major said, "Now, Kittle, we're saying goodby to you here. Wait"—he drew out his pocket book, counted 30 shillings, and placed the money in the man's hands. "Take this and buy yourself some warm clothes. I'll add it to what you owe me. Go to your wife, take a good rest tomorrow, and come to me the day after, and I'll find some work for you. No, no, not another word from you. On your way now."

He waved the man away and turned to Charles Mason. "Now, my young buck," he said, "I have 10 shillings here that says I can beat you at your favorite game of billiards. Want to bet? Of course you do. Well, let's go down to the Merchant's Coffeehouse and try our skill."

REP. RAMSPECK HAS NEW TAX PROPOSAL

By PETER EDSON
The Pampa News Washington Correspondent

Georgia Representative Robert Ramspeck's newest idea for a $5 head tax on 25 million members of the democratic party in good standing strikes a happy medium between two other political money-raising schemes advanced during the last campaign. First was the C.I.O. political action committee's idea to "Give a Buck to Re-elect Roosevelt." The theory that five million labor union members would hear this plea fell far short of realization, and the P.A.C. didn't get much over a million. At the other end of the economic and social scale, President Roosevelt's own idea for One Thousand Club of the U.S.A. also fell short of its goal to round up a thousand big shots willing to kick in a grand apiece. Ramspeck's 125 million dollar dream makes both earlier schemes ridiculous. But even at five bucks a throw, Ramspeck could hardly offer special invitations to meet the President, as the Thousand Club did.

PROFESSIONAL CLUB SPIELERS NOW UNIONIZED

You may never have heard of it, but the professional luncheon club spielers, the talkers to ladies' societies and assorted lecturers for general cultural improvement, now have a union. It's known as the Platform Guild. About a hundred members of the Guild had a luncheon meeting in a Washington hotel the other day, but not for the purpose of hearing each other talk, as you might imagine. Instead, only one member of the Guild was allowed to talk. That was Mrs. Ruth Bryan Rohde, who merely acknowledged the welcome of the principal speaker at the luncheon, Secretary of State Edward R. Stettinius, Jr. He and about a dozen of his principal assistants were there to lecture to the lecturers on what Dumbarton Oaks and the U. S. foreign policy are all about. And though the professional lecturers didn't get to say anything at their luncheon, now that they know all the answers they'll be glad to come to your luncheon and tell you all about it. For a fee, of course.

THE SILENT SERVICE DOES NOTABLE JOB

Secretary of the Navy James V. Forrestal practically apologized because he couldn't tell more about operations of U. S. submarines when he announced the latest tabulation of Japanese ships sunk by the silent service in the Pacific. Twenty-eight U. S. submarines have been reported missing and presumed to be lost since Pearl Harbor, with six more known to have been sunk. In the same time U. S. submarines have sunk 99 Japanese combat ships and 835 non-combat ships. Details of the big boat exploits in piling up this impressive total must remain untold till the war is over, and the deeds of submarine heroes must go without public recognition. For as one lieutenant expressed it to Secretary Forrestal, "I'd rather be alive and anonymous than a dead hero."

U. S. UPSETS THEORIES ON WAR BABIES

Katharine F. Lenroot, chief of the Children's Bureau in the Department of Labor, has some new statistics on babies which discount one of the oldest ideas about the destructiveness and the deteriorating influence of war on a nation's population. The United States, it seems, is upsetting all the established theories. The old idea was that in wartime the best physical specimens of manhood were taken into to the army, leaving the physically less-fit to propagate the race. So far as the United States is concerned, it's not true at all, for births to the wives of soldiers have thus far been greater than the deaths of U. S. men in the armed services. In 1944 there were more than 300,000 sons and daughters born to the wives of the nation's fighting men, while battle deaths for the year will total approximately half that. Miss Lenroot knows about this birth business because she administers the federal government's emergency maternity and infant care program under which Uncle Sam foots the stork bill for servicemen of the three lowest pay grades. In addition to 370,000 babies already brought into the world under this program, Miss Lenroot has another 300,000 service men's wives expecting, and she is adding to the list at the rate of about 40,000 new cases a month.

Farm Experiment Proves Customers To Gather Fruits

By JACK RUTLEDGE
Associated Press Staff

Serve-yourself farms where the customers pick their own fruit and vegetables loomed as a postwar agricultural possibility following the successful experiment of two Mesquite, Texas, farmers.

The day may come when the housewife will jump into the family helicopter, soar to a nearby farm, and pick her own fresh fruit and vegetables.

Families may spend vacations down on the farm"—any farm—gathering and picking enough food to last them through the winter.

Can-'em-yourself facilities with rented equipment could be made available.

In Texas, for example, families could climb into the family trailer and head for the lush Rio Grande Valley, pick and can fruit and vegetables and have an unusual vacation, all at the same time.

Fantastic? Maybe, but look what happened to two Mesquite farmers. People won't go to the trouble of picking vegetables in the field? Ask the two Mesquite farmers!

They had planted nine acres of beans and turnips but when harvest time came they were unable to get enough workers. They needed six men and they couldn't hire one.

They took a tip from Tom Sawyer and not only salvaged their crop, but they saved harvest cost.

The customers harvested it for them! And paid for the privilege!

F. B. McWhorter and Cecil Burch spent $25.00 in newspaper advertising to sell the idea to city dwellers in nearby Dallas that it was fun to go out in the fields and pick their own vegetables.

McWhorter said it must be fun, after all. He appeared slightly surprised.

"We've had so many people drive out here from Dallas to pick turnips and beans that we're going to make $100 an acre off the crop," he said.

"We spent about $10 for 100 pounds of bean seed, and $5.60 for seven pounds of turnip seed. It did not cost much to plant, and we did not have to irrigate and fertilize."

And now the customers are harvesting it—free.

He said the idea was working so successfully he and his partner were going to repeat on a larger scale next year. They're going to get land on a major highway and offer a wider variety of vegetables.

"Even if the manpower problem is solved by next year, we're going to plant tomatoes, corn, beets, beans, turnips and a few other vegetables and let the customers harvest them for us," he said.

He ran one advertisement, and said he needed no more. Customers spread the word among their friends.

"It's fun!" the advertisement read. "It's fun to gather your own fresh vegetables."

"Sort of like Tom Sawyer when he had to whitewash the fence," said McWhorter. "He sold his friends on the idea that it was fun, and they did the job for him."

Prices helped, too. And prices will help in the postwar plan. Gather-your-own prices were well below ceiling and 5 cents a pound for turnips and tops that usually sell around 15 cents.

It's a 16 mile drive to Mesquite from Dallas, and he said some people pooled cars, one or more families driving out in each vehicle.

The workers were most numerous. Many women were canning the vegetables. Some customers picked just a few pounds, but one gathered over 100.

"But the funniest," he said, "was the woman who rolled up in a big expensive car driven by a chauffeur. She sent the chauffeur out to to pick the beans while she sat back in the car and supervised the job.

If customers today will drive 16 miles to pick fresh vegetables, think what they'd be willing to do when gasoline is plentiful and tires are no problem! And when quick-freezing units are on the market!

In return for a little elbow exercise, customers will get guaranteed fresh fruit and vegetables, low prices, fresh air and pleasant outings.

Farmers will save the cost of harvesting, and although they will sell cheaply, will probably make more.

It may be fantastic, but it worked once, and the two farmers from Mesquite say they're going into it on a larger scale next year.

Market Briefs

NEW YORK WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Stocks pushed up selectively in today's market although the general run of leaders still had to contend with considerable profit selling on the lengthy swing to 7-year peaks.

Many customers tightened commitments and stood aside to await more of a technical correction than has yet been witnessed. Rails and other armament-rated groups lost some of their recent popularity as the cheering battle news from Europe and the Far East revived thought that the world conflict could be shortened and bring to the fore a host of reconversion problems for industry.

Mixed tendencies prevailed at a moderately active opening and the direction was a bit foggy near the close. Dealings slowed at intervals but volume for the two hours was in the neighborhood of 750,000 shares.

Occasional gainers included Bethlehem, Chrysler, North American, N. Y. Central, American Can, Goodrich, Woolworth, and Texas Co.

Among laggards were Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Southern Railway, Northern Pacific, General Motors, Anaconda, Kennecott, Owens-Illinois, American Telephone, J. C. Penney, Boeing, and Glenn Martin.

Homeric Tale Of Rescue Narrated

By FRED HAMPSON

AN ADVANCED PACIFIC AIR-BASE—(AP)—Ten 13th and Fifth airforce men, shot down during Philippine raids, returned to this base recently with an Homeric tale of rescue by Filipino guerrillas.

From many parts of the island they were spirited through Japanese lines to the mountain home of a guerrilla captain, fed and clothed and taken on a 20-day hike to a safe beach from which rescue Catalinas were able to pick them up.

Staff Sgt. William R. Mills, Flushing, N. Y., sole survivor of one bomber crew, told of eluding Jap fighter planes after the crash by hiding behind fishnet pilings. He was taken ashore by 20 natives and escorted to the guerrilla captain. En route they passed a Japanese airfield and watched American P-38's strafe it. The natives cheered wildly.

On the trail they came upon a wrecked U. S. navy Hellcat fighter plane. The guns had been removed. In a nearby town natives told Mills that, to counter Jap strafing of the town, two navy airmen—since rescued—had helped the Filipinos set up the guns. They shot down two strafing Jap planes before expending the ammunition.

Others rescued included Staff Sgt. Richard Beard, Fort Scott, Kans.; Peter F. Gjertson, Jr., Lisbon, N. D., and Lt. Pat N. Mann, Arlington, Texas.

The airmen learned that the Japanese had many training airfields, their pilots practicing on any native movements on trails or in towns. Once the rescue party was strafed by a student aviator doing his morning "lesson."

The fliers returned to this base aboard rescue planes in from 26 to 30 days after parachuting or crash-landing.

Gjertson, who had walked barefoot for three days with no ill effects, immediately drew a pair of GI brogans. An hour later he developed blisters.

Bowles Praised For Stamp Cancellation

WASHINGTON, Jan 13 —(AP)—Rep. Patman (D-Texas) told the House Thursday that cancellation by the OPA of certain food ration stamps displayed "statesmanship of the highest order" on the part of Price Administrator Chester Bowles.

Patman, in defense of the action, said:

"Mr. Bowles knew when he ordered cancellation that it would stir up a storm of protest. That he faced the criticism and did what was required in the public interest deserves commendation and not criticism."

Cash Livestock Income Will Set New State Record

DALLAS, Jan. 13—(AP)—Cash income from sale of livestock produced in Texas in 1944 is expected to exceed the record $319,000,000 Texas farmers and ranchers received in 1943, George M. Lewis, director of the marketing department, American meat institute, Chicago, said Friday.

Lewis addressed the Texas agricultural workers association meeting.

Texas, the country's largest producer of cattle, calves, sheep and lambs, received over five per cent of the nation's total farm income from livestock in 1943, Lewis said. The income from livestock was 26 per cent of the state's farm income for the same year, he said.

Government production goals for 1945 predict a further liquidation of livestock, but the total amount of meat to be produced will total about seven per cent less, or two billion pounds under the record 25 million pounds produced in the year just closed, Lewis said, adding:

"Sheep and lamb numbers have declined since the peak year of 1942 and the estimated 50 million head now is the smallest number since 1929. The 1944 lamb crop totaled 29.6 million head and the government goal for 1945 is the same as last year, but to reach the predicted goal it will be necessary to liquidate about three million more lambs this year."

The government will take about seven billion pounds of meat during the coming year or just about a third of the total production.

He urged all employers to send a representative to the meeting, saying:

Vigan, on the northwestern Luzon coast.

Japanese radio broadcasts expressed belief that a major ground battle was imminent on the north central Luzon plain.

Domei pictured American forces as moving southward in the direction of Aguitor on the Agno river equipped with tanks, heavy artillery, rocket guns and flame throwers. The agency said "The Japanese defenders have completed all preparations to engage the U. S. invaders."

Meanwhile Adm. Chester W. Nimitz disclosed that the heavy attacks by American Third fleet carrier planes on massed Japanese shipping along the French Indo-China coast continued into a second day. In their initial strike Thursday the Yank airmen sank 25 ships including a dozen transports loaded with troops, a light cruiser and several destroyers. They badly damaged 13 other vessels.

It was the general belief that the Japanese, caught by surprise, were forming four giant convoys off Indo-China to hit the MacArthur Liberation forces on Luzon. The locale of these aerial smashes is across the China sea about 1,000 miles southwest of the American beachheads on Luzon's Lingayen gulf.

Cleveland Industrial Production Resumed

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13 —(AP)—Industrial production in the Cleveland area returned to full wartime tempo today with army officers in charge of a Cleveland Electric Illuminating Co., facilities seized to terminate a strike of 400 coal passers and maintenance men.

President Roosevelt ordered the war department to take over the utility after 40 major war producers voluntarily reduced power consumption 50 to 75 percent below normal. Industrialists said countless manhours of work were lost.

The company pulled no switches but appealed for curtailment as it warned that the strike, which broke out yesterday noon, would strangle the community's industrial and transportation facilities and halt service to 300,000 domestic consumers.

U. S. production of 52,008,000 bushels of flaxseed in 1943 was one and one half times the 1932-41 average.

the President's desk for at least two years, and those close to her think she would like to step down when it's convenient for the President, or when he can find a suitable successor.

The latter consideration is a major one because of the difficulty of finding a candidate acceptable to the warring labor factions.

Some of those mentioned for Madame Perkins' post, if she does quit, are:

Vice President Henry A. Wallace; AFL teamster President Daniel J. Tobin; Rep. Ramspeck, (D-Ga), who is majority whip in the House; Mayor Fiorello La Guardia of New York, and Anna Rosenberg, Presidential adviser on some labor matters.

Secretary Perkins has remained silent while the speculation swirls about her, refusing to comment on her status beyond the good-natured crack that "somebody's always trying to get me out of here."

In her report, she said "the days of intense warfare between the labor unions and employers have passed and we are on the verge of a period of mutual cooperation."

On January 2, the city commission passed an emergency wartime ordinance to make the city's plumbing code coincide with that of the government's for construction of the new houses, 150 of which, it was stated from Washington, were needed.

The city code called for use of lead and brass plumbing, while the federal code specified the use of cast iron materials.

Plumbers of the city told officials that lead or brass plumbing materials could be had, but the war production board said that the two essentials could not be released for civilian use.

It was then the commission passed the ordinance, conforming to government specifications. The plumbers did not protest the ordinance.

Mayor Farris Oden issued a statement at that time, saying he hoped the government would allow the use of the lead and brass plumbing when it was possible.

Pete Traxler

Walter Rogers, of Pampa, said Saturday that Traxler would have to be delivered to the sheriff of Lipscomb county after the trial in February, regardless of what the outcome was. The mandate issued from the court of appeals, Austin, stipulates that action, he explained. It would be April before this district could try him, Rogers stated.

Rogers said that if he is not convicted in the Fayette county case, Traxler would be tried in Lipscomb county on the charge upon which he was originally convicted and for which he was serving time at the state prison farm.

The recent appeals court opinion, Rogers told The News, said, in regard to a mis-judgment in Lipscomb county, that his punishment was assessed at confinement in the penitentiary "for a term of not less than five years nor more than life." Since the punishment assessed in judgment, Rogers said, was indefinite—and under the law it is required to be for a definite and certain term—the judgment would not support sentence. The judgment should have recited only that his punishment was assessed at confinement in the penitentiary for life.

The appeals court stated in its final conclusion that "it is ordered that he (Traxler) be delivered by the penitentiary authorities to the sheriff of Lipscomb county to answer in the district court of such county to the indictment which was there originally returned against him, and under which his purported conviction was had."

Rogers explained that Traxler is not being placed in personal jeopardy twice on the same charge, but, rather, by reason of the fact that the judgment was declared void by the court of appeals, Traxler must simply stand trial again.

struction and permanent operations when the construction is finished.

Noel Dalton, manager of Baash-Ross Tool company, is having draft trouble under the new selective service orders, he said Saturday. Dalton says his company has been unable to find an unemployed first rate machinist in two years. Baash-Ross is badly in need of ten skilled machinists, Dalton said.

The housing situation in Pampa is still more acute, industrial leaders said, with the hiring of new men, especially at the Cabot company.

Ten new houses for Cabot are being completed in the Tulsa addition and company officials said the first of these is expected to be ready for occupancy in about three weeks. Details are being worked out for the construction of at least 20 more houses. This job is expected to begin this week.

Wounded Must Be Transported-ODT

Increase of casualties in European fighting today brought from the office of defense transportation another appeal to the public to leave rail terminal and hotel facilities for essential war travel.

E. O. Walker, district rail director of the ODT in Dallas, pointed out that travelers will face further inconveniences in the next few months as a result of the German counteroffensive.

"Casualties have increased in number and probably will continue to increase," the ODT official said. "As soon as the wounded are in condition to be transferred to this country, they will be shipped to various ports. To transfer them to hospitals with speed and dispatch it will be necessary to call on railroads for the needed equipment. The first place we can look for the equipment is on the regular runs of the roads."

Warning has been received in the Dallas regional office of the ODT from Col. J. Monroe Johnson, director in Washington, that prospective travelers, especially to southern resort points, face the definite possibility of being stranded for long periods, even though they have arranged in advance for return reservations. It is a question, said the ODT director, of whether transportation is to be provided for military and war activities or for civilians traveling on non-essential business and pleasure.

Initial Invasion Of Philippines Was Made in '99

DALLAS, Jan. 13—(AP)—The first American invasion of the beaches of Lingayen gulf, where forces under General Douglas MacArthur have driven ashore successfully, was made in November, 1899, when Filipinos under Aguinaldo were resisting American occupation of the islands which the U. S. had bought from Spain.

Harry C. Withers, managing editor of the Dallas Morning News, was a member of Company I in that first invading force—the 33rd U. S. volunteer infantry, commanded by Col. Luther Hare of Sherman, Texas, Hare's lieutenant-colonel was Robert Howze of Greenville, Texas.

For that invasion—one of the earliest amphibious operations in American military experience — there were none of the powerful landing chaft of the sort which moved the present U. S. forces to the beaches against the Japanese.

"Shallow waters required the transports to stand a half mile or more off shore. Troops were placed in small rowboats and proceeded to the beaches under fire from the entrenched Filipinos," Withers recalls.

"Most of these small boats were grounded a hundred yards or so from the shore and the men had to get into the water and wade. They had nothing but their rifles and bayonets—no artillery, tanks, grenades, machine guns, landing ships or airplanes."

"The landing was successfully completed by 3 p. m. and the town of San Fabian was captured at 9 o'clock that night. Casualties were light, only because the Filipinos were poor marksmen."

The 33rd division was made up chiefly of Texans, among them John A. Hulen, later to command the 36th division; Lee Hall and John Green, Texas Rangers, and Lt. Bill Howe of Galveston, Withers says.

Gen. Arthur MacArthur, father of the present five-star general of the army, then was American commander in the Philippines, and ordered the operation now being duplicated on a more magnificent scale by his son.

Girl Writes Impressions Of Returnees

By HELEN CAMP

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—(AP)—Today 1,368 men are home from the battlefields in Europe.

They came from Germany, Belgium, France, Italy, Sicily—and they are on their way to Pennsylvania, Texas, Utah and points North, South, East and West.

The interval in between—the first day those 1,368 men had spent on American soil in anywhere from six months to three years—was a crazy kaleidoscope of sights and sounds and emotion.

It was the boy who reached out to brush my cheek lightly with his hand as he stepped off the gangplank in New York harbor and said softly and impersonally, "An American girl! It's wonderful!"

It was the ruddy-faced lieutenant colonel on the train to Camp Shanks who fumbled for official words to describe how it felt to be back in America and then broke into a little-boy grin and exclaimed: "I wish I could sing."

It was the way a soldier looked at a huge T-bone steak in the Camp Shanks mess hall and half screamed, "Jesus Christ!" so that it sounded like a prayer.

And it is was the bitter, steely-eyed look on the scarred face of one infantryman who said almost hysterically, "I don't want my biography in no papers. I just don't, that's all."

The 1,368 men comprised the largest group of non-casualties yet to be sent back from the combat zones. They were from the 12th army group and had served with the 1st, 3rd and 9th armies.

All had been decorated, some as many as 10 or 12 times. They were hand-picked for 30-day merit furloughs according to their length of service and number of decorations, evacuations, and wounds.

Some will be discharged, for dependency reasons, for medical reasons, for army reasons. Others will be labeled for "T.D."—temporary duty within the United States.

They arrived in New York as only returning GI's could arrive in New York.

They jammed the decks of their troop transport in a raw waterfront wind, some bareheaded, one shirt-sleeved, all dancing and shouting and smiling.

They waved captured swastika flags. They tossed European coins onto the docks. They whistled at pretty girls, plain girls, any girls. They booed M.P.'s. They shouted at the band for jive music. And they drank milk and milk and more milk and marveled at the miracle of milk.

They were nappy. They were delirious, hysterical, mad with happiness.

Illiteracy is better than literacy if what is read is degrading; and free communications will not be a help to world peace if what is communicated is lies, invective and propaganda. For these reasons we cannot hope that the millenium will dawn when every American has a college degree. — Dr. Robert Maynard Hutchins, president U. of Chicago.

Worley May Get Committee Post

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—(AP)—The failure of Senator O'Daniel (D-Texas) to win assignment to the Senate agriculture and forestry committee was attributed by some colleagues Friday to his consistent opposition to the administration.

The Texan had informed the Senator steering committee, prior to its reshuffling of committees for the 79th Congress, that he would like to be on the farm group. He added, however, that if he did not get the place he hoped Texas might be represented by Senator Connally, Senior Texas democrat.

Connally got the post, the first Texan on the agriculture group in 20 years, although he had to give up membership on the judiciary committee to accept. Connally also is chairman of the powerful foreign relations committee.

O'Daniel's committee assignments remained unchanged, with his position on the commerce committee the most important. His other committees are claims, district of Columbia, irrigation and reclamation, and post office and post roads.

The House ways and means committee now is considering the appointment of representatives to committees.

Only Rep. Worley, democrat, appeared assured of getting an assignment he sought—appointment to the agriculture committee.

All three of Texas' new members expressed desire to get on important committees but the seniority rule probably will hold them to minor groups.

Rep. Combs, democrat, expressed interest in the foreign affairs committee, while Rep. Lyle asked for the naval affairs.

Girl Scouts

Brownie Troop No. 2, with Mrs. Noel Dalton as leader and Mrs. Francis Scott, assistant leader, welcomed a new member into the troop at their last meeting. While Mrs. Scott told the story of the Brownies, Carolyn Dial was invested into the troop, of which 16 members were present.

Games were played and several rounds of songs were sung for the entertainment of those mothers who were visiting the troop meeting.

Attention First Aider's

The first aid course sponsored by the Pampa Girl Scout association with Mrs. J. M. Fitzgerald, authorized first aid instructor, in charge, will meet on Mondays from 1 to 3 in the afternoon, and on Thursdays from 9 to 11 in the mornings, beginning next Monday. Those who are interested in taking the course and who missed the first meeting can still enroll and make up the first class.

More Girl Scout Leaders Needed

Any woman over 21 with a liking for young people, a strong belief in democracy and two or three hours a week to give to activities outside of her home is eligible to become a girl scout troop leader. There's a splendid opportunity waiting for you at Girl Scout headquarters in the City hall to help more of Pampa's young people become Girl Scouts!

Kiwanians Will Have Anniversary

Members of the Pampa Kiwanis club will observe the 30th anniversary of Kiwanis International next Friday with a program based on the service organization's 1945 administrative theme, "Win the War—Build for Peace."

Ed Weiss, Jr., recently elected president of the Pampa club, said Saturday that plans for the anniversary meeting, to be held Friday noon, Jan. 19, at the Methodist church, had been virtually completed. Outstanding features will include the reading of a message from Ben Dean, Grand Rapids, president of Kiwanis International, and announcement of this year's objectives.

Recalling that Kiwanis was born in Detroit on the eve of World War I, Weiss said the organization since Pearl Harbor has supplemented its community service activities with projects which contribute directly to the conduct of the United States' war program.

He revealed that last year 139,000 Kiwanians in some 2,250 clubs throughout the United States and Canada bought and sold war bonds valued at more than $1,000,000,000. They also donated 55,000 pints of blood, purchased millions of cigarettes for soldiers overseas, established canteens and entertainment centers, and kept in direct touch with upwards of 2,000,000 servicemen and women either by letter, or by sending them hometown newspapers.

Eleven men attended the meeting which created Kiwanis during the winter of 1915. Its membership since that time has increased by leaps and bounds, especially in the past year. More than 13,000 Kiwanians are in the armed forces.

Weiss said that plans for the anniversary meeting were being directed by a committee consisting of the club's past presidents, headed by J. B. Massa.

Foreign Commerce Is Affected by War

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 13—(AP)—The war had radically changed Mexico's foreign commerce, figures announced by the director general of statistics revealed today.

For the first time since 1883, Mexico had in 1941 an unfavorable foreign trade balance, and this was repeated in 1944, officials said.

They gave the following figures for Mexico's foreign trade corresponding to those two years:

1941

Exports: 3,640,000 tons valued at $147,200,000; imports: 1,789,000 tons valued at $183,000,000.

1944

Exports: 2,640,000 tons valued at $201,600,000; imports: 1,950,000 tons valued at $376,400,000.

Torrid romance and musical comedy flickers across the screens in Pampa Theatres starting today. At the LaNora, fans may see Charles Boyer, Irene Dunne, and Charles Coburn in "Together Again," and at the Crown, Fred MacMurray, Dorothy Lamour, and Betty Hutton in "And the Angels Sing."

'Waterloo Bridge' In Return Showing At Rex Today-Tues.

However, big news of the entertainment program in Pampa, is the return showing of the Robert Taylor-Vivien Leigh starrer, "Waterloo Bridge" which opens at the Rex today for a three-day run.

"Waterloo Bridge" was the last pic Vivien Leigh, Scarlet O'Hara in GWTW, made before she went to England to help her native country's war effort. Robert Taylor, now Lt. Com. Taylor, plays his usual best, and the supporting cast features Virginia Field, Maria Oupenskya, and C. Aubrey Smith.

"Together Again" is Columbia's latest offering in the way of romantic comedy. Irene Dunne has a lot of political aspirations, Charles Boyer has trouble with Irene and Charles Coburn, mixes the whole thing up well.

"Together Again" opens a four day run at the LaNora today.

At the Crown, Betty Hutton, Dorothy Lamour, Diana Lynn, and Mimi Chandler are four sisters who sing, but not in the right places. Fred MacMurray is funny as is Raymond Walburn as the "proud" papa of the four beauties.

'Heaven Can Wait' Almost Gets Adolf

SIOUX FALLS, S. D. Jan. 13—(AP)—The Flying Fortress, "Heaven Can Wait," came near "getting Hitler" in the early part of 1943, says S/Sgt. Robert M. Fels of San Diego, Calif.

It happened over Augsburg, Germany, on Fels' final combat mission and also his 30th birthday, as told in an interview with Sgt. Fels printed in "The Polar Tech," publication of the Sioux Falls army air field. Fels is now stationed at the field.

"Der Fuehrer was on his way to inspect a newly constructed aircraft plant—the one we were after, according to reports," the interview, written by Cpl. Robert Z. Simmons, quotes Fels.

"Word must have gotten to him that Forts were on their way to Augsbourg. So about 15 miles away from the town, Hitler ordered the conductor to stop the train. He got out and took refuge in a little villa nearby.

"When we examined photographs of the raid back at our base in England, we saw that the train he had been on was blown to bits by a direct bomb hit."

High Stakes Is Trial Subject

PARIS, Jan. 13—(AP)—Testimony of high stakes at G. I. poker games was introduced today, as the fourth group of enlisted men accused of looting military supply trains in French black market deals went on trial before an army general court martial.

Lt. Robert O'Reily of the army criminal investigation division, who worked as a fireman in a railway battalion while investigating the looting outbreak, testified he watched poker games at which soldiers paid as high as 8,000 francs ($160) to see he last card of a seven-card stud poker game.

"There was an incredible amount of cash money around the barracks," he said, "also whole cases (50 cartons) of cigarettes and whole cases of chocolate bars."

O'Reily said he was present on a number of occasions when men planned the next train looting.

Today's defendants were Sgt. Fran C. Pozzi, Chicago, Ill., and Sgt. Walter G. Thornsell, Portland, Ore.

Texas Has Become Big Dairy Producer

DALLAS, Jan. 13—(AP) — Long known as a leader in the cattle industry, Texas has now emerged as one of the foremost producers of dairy products, agriculture workers were told here yesterday.

Speaking at the closing session of the Texas agriculture workers' meeting, J. C. Nisbet, executive secretary of the American cattle club, declared the state has made considerable improvement in its dairy herds and has done much in including dairy products manufacturers to establish plants.

Wool and mohair producers of the state face a darker picture, James A. Gray, animal husbandman of Texas A. and M. college, warned. A better and cheaper product must be presented to meet the challenge of foreign wool and synthetic fibers, he declared.

More than two billions pounds of aluminum were used in U. S. munitions and airplane plants in 1944.

Reporting Under Pacific Dateline

By MORRIE LANDSBERG

PACIFIC FLEET HDQ., PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 13—It looks as if maybe you'll have your way with that boy of yours, Mr. Harris.

You wanted Cecil to stay on your thousand-acre farm at Cresbard and help look after the wheat.

But he went on to Northern State Teachers college at Aberdeen, got himself a teaching certificate and took over the Seventh grade class at Onaka. Independent fellow, that Cecil.

That was before the war, of course.

Well, you figured, let him sit in front of a bunch of children for a while, and when he gets tired of being cooped up all the time he can come back to the farm. But did you reckon with the flying bug that got into him?

Cecil became a pilot, and a good one, early in the navy's aviation training program. Instead of a sport plane to play around with in the sky, he got a Hellcat fighter with plenty of speed and with guns that don't go with Sunday afternoon flying.

Now Cecil is the navy's second-ranking fighter. As you know, he's shot down 24 Jap planes, which is a high number for pilots working off carriers. Only Cmdr. Dave McCampbell, the nine-in-one-flight ace, tops Cecil with 34.

The Admiral—Vice Admiral John S. McCain—thought so much of Cecil's performance that he had citations written out to Lt. Cecil Elwood Harris of fighting 18 awarding him the Navy Cross, the Silver Star Medal, the Distinguished Flying Cross and Gold Star in lieu of a second DFC.

Few of the boys knew that Cecil had been in on the North Africa invasion Nov. 8, 1942. He covered landings at Casablanca from an escort carrier, strafing airfields and other installations liable to give the Allies trouble.

Remember how the mail from Cecil sloved up at the beginning of 1943? He'd gone to the South Pacific, and was kept busy flying missions against Munda on New Georgia island; Vila and Vella Lavella.

Altogether, Cecil has shot down 17 fighters and these bombers and torpedo planes: two Petes, three Judys, one Lily and one Nell.

There you have it, Mr. Harris.

You two can talk it over at your place one of these nights. That boy of yours is coming home for "leave and reassignment."

Sheep, Lambs Make Dollars for Ranchers

FORT WORTH, Jan. 13—(AP)—A record number of sheep and lambs marketed in the Southwest last year sent a dollar flood into pockets of Texas ranchmen.

The Fort Worth market led by handling 2,675,226, figures compiled from reports of major livestock markets show. They were estimated to have brought producers $21,258,808. Receipts at Denver and Omaha were only slightly lower.

Paulette Goddard Reported Improved

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 1.—(AP)—Screen actress Paulette Goddard was reported in an improved condition today following an emergency operation Thursday, her physician, Dr. Blake Watson, reported.

The operation was necessary because of hemorrhages caused by development of an abdominal pregnancy. She had expected a baby in June.

Dr. Watson said her condition was critical at first. She was given several blood transfusions.

Miss Goddard's husband, Capt. Burgess Meredith, was with her at St. John's hospital.

Banquet Is Winter Wonderland; Movie Dancer Appears

International Organization Initiates Proven Journalists

In an impressive candlelight ceremony, the five new members of Quill and Scroll, Wanda Jay, Colleen Chisholm, Joann Lazar, Bonnie Nell McBee, and Anna Lou McCoy, were formally initiated.

Seven candles were lighted which was symbolic of the aims and aspirations of the society. First lighted was the candle of truth, a quality which every journalist, beginner or professional, must have. Next was the candle of initiative. Our history books are filled with great men who, by their initiative, have advanced human living. The third candle was that of opportunity, and contrary to custom it does not come knocking at one's door, but is something that comes to us through education. From the candle of truth, the leadership candle was next. It is a trait that each of us should strive to obtain, not to drive but to guide through good leadership. Loyalty came next and it is the essence of well placed trust which one needs in friendship as well as for work in an organization. The sixth candle was that of enlightenment which is essential to a reporter in order to give to the reading public a full appreciation of the culture of the world. The last candle is friendship, and it is, after all, the link that binds humanity.

These are the requirements which the students must meet. (1) They must be of at least junior standing. (2) They must be in the upper third of their class in general scholastic standing. (3) They must have done superior work in some phase of journalistic or creative endeavor. (4) They must be recommended by the advisor. (5) They must be approved by the executive secretary.

The president of Quill and Scroll is Martha Sue Sheely; vice-president, Don Rowe; secretary and treasurer, John Robert Lane.

Coach Mooney Replaces Criswell

Tipp Mooney, former Chicago Bear left halfback, will succeed Charles O. Criswell as assistant coach of the Harvesters.

Coach Mooney upon graduating from Wellington High school went to Abilene Christian where he received the B. S. degree. The school year of 1942-43 he coached at Electra, Texas, with Tugboat Jones, who is now at Wichita Falls. The seasons of 1943-44-45 he played with the Chicago Bears. The type of play which pro team uses is identical to that used by the Harvesters the past season and will use next.

His playing and coaching ability makes him highly capable for the job.

He and his wife and child will make their home in Pampa.

Coach Criswell who has resigned will go into the oil business. He will leave after the mid-term.

Warren, McDonald Meet in San Diego

The scene was the opening moments of choir practice in a church in San Diego. A hearty "hello" went from one boy in blue to another and Douglas McDonald and Don Warren, two exes from PHS met.

The foregoing story was related in a letter from Douglas received by the A capella choir last week. The letter was dated December 8—a day after the third anniversary of the historic sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

"To you boys who are still in school, don't be like I was. Don't quit school to go any place, not even to work. I didn't realize that I was having so much fun," states the letter. This confession has been made by many of our boys in the service.

"Since I got into the Navy all the little things mean a lot to me. Well, please write, for it gets lonesome sometimes." To those interested in answering this request, Douglas's address is Douglas McDonald A/S, Co. 44-598, U. S. N. T. C., San Diego (33), California.

• • • running again?

Hey you! You that's running! I'd like to talk with you. What made you start running again? For about a week you walked. Now you're beginning to run again. Why? I know you're hungry. But so are others. If you walk you'll get there faster than if you run. How? If you are caught running, the teachers will stop you and talk to you. And if you walk, there's no chance of your being stopped, and there's no chance for anyone to get hurt.

People get hurt? Yes. If you run, there is a good chance for innocent people to get hurt. There are some who don't run; hence, they block the way for those who do and often get knocked down. Think how awful it would be if you were the innocent person who was knocked down the stairs. Would you like to be blamed? Go the fastest way to the cafeteria. Walk!

• • • be what you are

The desire for popularity often leads a person into agreeing with statements made by others which he does not believe. You have all been with people who at your every question or opinion completely agree with you. These are called "yes" people or "wishy-washy" persons. They believe that if they disagree with anyone, the person will ality, appearance, and attitude.

The person who is like that has too much desire for popularity. Popularity is something that can not be grabbed, bought, or sold. It is achieved only by honest effort. There are some people lucky enough to be born in homes where the elements of popularity are natural. Other people must work for them. They must work on their personality, appearnce, and attitude.

Stick up for your own convictions of what is right and wrong. True popularity comes through the route of sincerity and real friendship.

—G. K.

• • • no bacon, no patience

"Oh good grief! You mean you still haven't got any gum?" Darn this war!"

"No Kleenex? What am I going to do and with this terrible cold and no doctor to take care of it?"

"Still no bacon? Why don't you try to get some, you know your customers might like to have some once in a while."

How often do you complain about the few trifling little things that we have to do without? Of course you don't but quite a number of people have been heard to make these remarks. These people just don't ever stop to think what it takes to win a war.

It takes sacrificing on the home-front so that the boys on the battle-front will have enough. People in foreign nations know what real sacrificing is and would think us very selfish if they could hear us. We don't begin to know what doing without is, so why complain? Why not be content with living in a free country with all its benefits?

School Now Ready For Semi-Annual Check Examinations Begin Wednesday Morning

To be given the chance to prove what they have learned after 18 weeks of school, students of Pampa High school, approximately 900, begin a heavy week as final examinations are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week.

Many students have four major examinations on Wednesday; thus they will be free on Thursday and Friday as no student should be in the building unless he has an examination. On Wednesday examinations to be given are math, history, science and English. On Thursday shorthand, commercial geography, mechanical drawing, home economics, bookkeeping, woodshop, speech, drama, journalism, foreign languages, Bible sociology and girls. physical education will follow. Only two exams will be given on Friday in order that teachers wil have this time to prepare semester grades. These extminations will be Texas History, and Algebra II, which were conflicts on Monday. The last large social event before the examinations was the Junior-Senior banquet as students are planning to spend most of their spare time in "burning the midnight oil." Classes have been spent in review for the past week.

Monday morning during the first period students will receive their report cards and plan schedules for the second semester. During the second period re-enrollment will take place and classes will begin with the third period bell.

The examination schedule of the praticular rooms was made with the classes of each teacher group within certain areas. Substitute teachers supervise the class with the instructor floating. In this way the instructor can supervise all her students during the test, answering necessary questions, and being near at hand at all times.

Only a few changes have been made in the schedule for next semester. Shorthand students will be required to take two periods of shorthand; many classes have been dissolved causing students to consolidate with some other period. Few new subjects will be offered, reported Mrs. Lou Roberts, registrar.

Year's Review

Here is a new year and all of us just bursting with new things to do and think about. But in all the gaiety and glamour of a brand new year, let's not forget things that have happened in 1944. Starting with the beginning of school this year.

October 29—Harvesters defeat Brownfield 25-6. Cast for senior play, "Janie," are chosen. Joe Cree, Jack Dunham, Art J. Berry, and Richard Hughes are elected class officers.

November 5—Amarillo Golden Sandies take Harvesters 13-0. Youth Committee for "teen-town" choose adult board. Elsbeth is discovered for senior play.

November 12—Red Cross Drive begins. Quill and Scroll initiates eight new members. Pampa defeats Lubbock 14-7.

November 19—Harvesters beat Borger Bulldogs 39-7. Student Council gives all school dance.

November 26—PHS stundents purchase $14,000 in War Bonds. Annual football dance is held.

December 3—Harvesters beat Plainview 7-0. Dorothy Johnson is crowned football queen. Senior play, "Janie," is given. Last pep rally of football season.

December 10—Brent Blonkvist is elected Junior Rotarian. Quill and Scroll accepts five new members.

December 17—School is turned out for Christmas holidays on the fifteenth.

Well, all in all, it was a pretty good year, wasn't it? Here's hoping that the year of 1945, will be just as good and better.

Band Queen Nominees Are Sone and Jay

The PHS band, for the first time in its history, has elected candidates for a band sweetheart. The two girls in the final run-off are Shirley Sone, senior, and Gloria Jay, sophomore.

There is not a student more prominent in Senior High activities than Shirley Sone. She is now serving as president of the Tri-HiY and has been a member of the band her during her entire high school career, now acting as assistant drum major. Shirley was a member of the senior play cast, and also is an office assistant during the fifth hour.

Gloria Jay, though only in her sophomore year, has given evidence that she is destined to be an outstanding high school student. She has been a drummer in the band for the past two years, and is active in the Tri-Hi-Y. Gloria is also secretary of her home room.

According to Ray Robbins, director, the band sweetheart will be presented at a banquet which is to be held during the month of February for the 90-piece band.

Amid a setting of snow, ice, and gistening evergreens, the class of 1945 was entertained by the junior class at the annual Junior-Senior banquet, held in the high school cafeteria at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening. Highlighting the program was the appearance of a professional dancer, Frankie Lou Keehn, a former Pampa High school student who has appeared up and down the Pacific coast and also in three musical productions in Hollywood.

Approximately 300 people gathered in the beautifully decorated cafeteria for the annual occasion. Black and white were the colors used in the decor depicting a "Winter Wonderland." Runners on the tables included white candles set in snowball holders with artificial snow and lakes. The winter theme was carried out throughout the entire program and dance.

Serving were 25 sophomore girls delivering to the tables a dinner beginning with chicken fried steak and finishing with chocolate pie. Mrs. June Williams, school dietician, had charge of preparing the banquet.

Jackie Dunham, master of ceremonies for the occasion, called for the invocation given by the boys' quartet. The program followed consisting of two dances by Frankie Lou Keehn, a vocal solo, "Wonderful Winter," by Billy Hutchinson, a piano solo," Jingle Bells in Boogie Woogie," by Norma Dee Hall. Wesley Gieger played a composition on his accordion. Concluding the program was a song and pantomine by a High School quartet, Anna Barnett, Wynilou Cox, Joan Hawkins, and Betty Holt, assisted in the pantomine by Shirley Sone and Bob Carmichael, called "Walking in a Winter Wonderland."

Following the banquet a dance was held. It was a new idea for High school, being a program dance. The dance program included "Cloud Walkers," "Jive Capers," Cinderella Dance," "Allures," "Jitterbug Jamboree," and "Rythmn Rockers."

Committees were composed of junior students with teachers sponsoring them. The following teachers sponsored the committees: Miss Clara Zobisch, decorations; Mrs. Marjorie Gaut, tickets; Mrs. Bob Sanford, menu and table setting; Miss Virginia Vaughn and Mrs. L. C. Hume, program; and Miss Clarine Branom, dance.

For the last two years the banquets have been given during the first semester. This plan carried out is since many of the senior boys leave for service before the second semester is over, and in this way they are able to attend this highlight of their scholastic career.

Sport Lites--

By DON ROWE

Three gridsters from the green and gold campus received honorable mention on the AP Poll-State football squad for 1944 schoolboy football—Clay, Campbell and Turner.

District IAA had nine boys to receive honors. They were Rudy Bauman, who made the first eleven; Richard Mixon, placed on the fourth string; Marshall Settys and John Bob Watts, received honorable mention. all from Amarillo. Charley Weldon Plainview was also on the honorable mention list, while Brewer of Lubbock had the same honor.

Insidentally, the Harvester basketball quintet were impressive in their win over the highly toasted Childress Wildcats.

The Harvesters are leading in percentage of games won in the Northern loop of their district.

The ever-strong Amarillo Golden Sandies racked up a one sided victory over Tulia the other night. The Hornets on a previous week night had beaten the Borger Bulldogs.

Childress whipped Amarillo once by a total of 15 points but on a return the Sandies reversed the score by 2 points. Pampa won over the wildcats by a six-point margin.

Impressive ball handling has been demonstrated this season by Johnny Campbell and Bernie Brown. Earl Davis's mid-air spin shot and Randy Clay's eye for the basket have brought the total of points higher for the Pampans.

Up to this date the Harvesters have won 13 games and lost only two. These were to North Dallas and Spearman.

The Lynx of Spearman are said to be the most powerful team in this part of the state.

Girls Enjoy 'Feeds' As They 'Learn How'

Buffet luncheons and dinners highlighted the activities in the economics department last week. The first year girls entertained at noon Thursday with four hostesses: Eleanor Carruth, Norma Ann Pirtle, Ava Jean Gore, and Julia Inman.

The menu consisted of meat loaf with tomato sauce, baked stuffed potatoes, slaw, hot rolls, iced tea and for dessert, peaches, cream and cake.

One class of the second year girls prepared their dinner Thursday afternoon with host, Eulela Covalt, and hostess, Minnie Jean Snider. Their menu was a grapefruit cocktail, swiss steak and sauce, green beans, mashed potatoes, salad, rolls, and peaches.

The other second year girls will have their dinner Monday afternoon with the host, Waltine West, and hostess, Pauline Forman. The menu: tomato juice, stuffed flank steak, green beans, mashed potatoes, gravy, hot rolls, salad, and jello cream.

After a look at these menus several boys expressed the wish that the old plan be returned, that boys be admitted to classes. Mrs. Robert Sanford, head of the home economics department said, "The last class in which boys were included was in 1940 in the old building!" Since that time the girls have filled the classes so the boys have not been admitted.

glimpses of glamour

By Wanda Jay

"Hey, why weren't you at the Junior-Senior banquet? You really missed a glorious time. Oh, yes, everybody looked simply 'scrumptous.' The food? Well, it was extremely good—especially the dessert.

"Who was Beagle with? Well, she was with Brent Blonkvist and gosh, did she look 'swanky.' She had on a red dinner dress with slits on the sides of the skirt—really chic.

"You know Pauline Foreman, don't you? She really wore a cute dress. It was a lovely blue net with drop shoulders, and oh, yes, sequins were placed here and there on the skirt. What? Why the sequins were black, of course. No it wasn't plain, there were ruffles which formed the drop shoulders effect.

"Oh, and let me tell you about Mildred Overstreet's dress. It was drop shoulders too, with a black lace top and flowing chiffon white skirt. From the pointed waistline was a black lace peplum. Little need to add that Mildred made a pretty picture. Her nails were 'Scarlet Slipper' in Revlon.

"Betty Schulkey had a French air about her as she wore perfume from Paris, France. Her dress was out of this world. Betty you know, is blond. Her dress was of soldier blue with rhinestone designs in the skirt that flickered and glimmered like windblown candles.

"Patti Sue Horton chose white for her formal. She was striking with a beautiful gardenia in her hair and a string of pearls about her neck. Patti's skirt had yards and yards of white taffeta.

"Ina Lee Bidwell, who was elected the best dressed girl in High School lived up to her title in a pink formal. The cape top with peplum was pink. taffeta and the skirt was net.

"The most outstanding black dress was worn by Joann Lazar. It was a combination velvet and net. Prominent points of the dress were tiny cape sleeves and a sequin flower from the waist falling into the skirt. What? Oh, the flower was pink—the only touch of color.

"The sophomore girls, who served, looked adorable in black skirts, pert caps pancaked on the sides of their heads and white pinafores. They, like everyone else, had a wonderful time, and gosh, I'm sorry you were not there!"

Books To Be in Library By 15th, Says Gordon

Mary Gordon, librarian, has placed notes on blackboards telling students to return their books to the library before January 15. Students who have not taken their books to the library or have lost them will get an invitation to see the librarian, personally.

A fine of two cents a day will be charged to students who have lost or forgotten to bring books by. "Indentally, the two cents a day is to remind you of your book," says Miss Gordon. The fines that are taken in go for magazines, supplies and replacements for new books. Since the term started $120.85 has been taken in from fines. An amount also goes for books that teachers need for their classes. Social studies and English has topped the list in highest amounts.

STATE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
L. A. Woods
State Superintendent
Austin 11, Texas
December 13, 1944

Mr. L. L. Sone
Supt. of Schools
Pampa, Texas

Dear Mr. Sone:

The State Executive Committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools recently held its annual meeting and reviewed the annual report of your High School.

Your High School was recommended for membership in the Association for the current year. The action of the State Committee of the Association in recommending your High School for membership in that body for the current year is significant in that your High School passed the review of the Committee without a single adverse criticism. Your excellant showing is outstanding and emphasizes the constructive educational program and leadership in charge of your public schools.

The recommendation of the State Committee will be presented to the Central Reviewing Committee of the Southern Association when that body convenes. Should there be any change in this report you will be notified immediately.

Yours very sincerely,
Joseph R. Griggs, Chairman
State Executive Committee

With the realization that all of us will be busy "up to our necks" in lessons next week due to mid-term examinations, the Little Harvester staff wishes to announce that there will be no Little Harvester next Sunday.

Harvester Staff Is Complimented By R. H. Saunders

R. H. Saunders, representative of the Steck Company, complimented the 1945 Harvester staff on their ability for contributing and working out original ideas for the annual, and on their ability to work closely together.

"Work on the 96 page annual is up to schedule," said Juanita Reeves, editor, "with one-fourth the pages already sent to the publishers." These include most of the division sheets and senior and junor class panels.

The next project to be started will be the mounting of the faculty and sophomore and freshmen pictures.

Joan Lazar and Mary Frances Jones want to issue a plea for more snapshots for the annual! If anyone has any snapshots bring them to room 106 or give them to Mary or Joann.

Sagebrush-- by the Sage

All the jokes aren't written on paper, but quite a few have been running around in the freshmen classes.

A year of many happy smiles;
A year without a sigh;
A year of joys that linger on,
Though days go rushing by;

Dorothy June Johnson and Randall Clay have broken of going steady, however they are still going together.

Maxine Lane sure is making the rounds. Last weekend she was seen with Maurice Lockhart, then Monday night she was with Charlie Beard, and Friday night she was with Dee Griffin. Not bad eh-wot?

Anna Lou McCoy and Gene Lane, Kathyrn Moseley and Lee Parks were seen together last week, and they certainly were having a good time.

Sue Jordon and Max Hukill are still going steady and they certainly are cute together.

Anna Lois Beezley and Bob Cochran were seen at the show last Tuesday night.

Bunny Shelton can't seem to make up her mind between C. A. Huff and Tommy Darby. That would be a awfully hard decision to make.

The Sage belives that congratulations are in order for Mary Jean Evans and Delbert Crowley who were married while Delbert was home on leave over the Christmas holidays. Mary Jean and Delbert have been going together for quite a few years.

Everyone is going to miss Billy Clay who left to join the navy last Tuesday.

If you saw Betty Holt rushing madly to the train depot Tuesday afternoon, think nothing of it. She was just merely trying to see Bill Gise who was supposed to have passed through here on his way to San Diego. However, he wasn't on the train that Betty met.

Merle McCracken is really just a wolf on the loose, now the number has passed two and grown to four Maybe Mary Alice Brown has something to do with it.

Waltine West says that it's no secret, but it seems awfully funny that it hasn't hit Sage before now. The "It" I'm referring to happens to be her engagement to Rex Wilson who is in the Navy. Rex and Waltine have been engaged since September.

Nicknames attached to Pampa High students are as follows:
Jean Pratt—Jeep
Sylvia Olsen—Rene'
Charles Lockhart—Ears
Wayne Fahle—Joke
Harold Rilinehart—Rine
Anna Merle Cox—Jinx
Anna Lois Alford—W. W. (Wasp waist)
Doris Jarvis—Heavy
Beverly Burba—Little Bump
Delmer Bellflower—Feet
Brent Blonkvist—Bartoe
Joe Cree—Josephine
Jimmy Terrell—Flash
Johnny Campbell—Lucky
D. L. Hale—Stinky
Joan Coonrod—Coonie
Charlie Beard—Chuck

It seems that all the romances of Pampa High are going on the rocks. Another one to hit a bad spot is that of Charlie Beard and Dorothy Jean McFarland.

Many of the junior and senior girls had to go to the banquet unescorted because the boys were so inconsiderate. 'Nough said.

Doris Jarvis and Charlie Hatcher have been seen together quite a bit lately. This could become very serious.

The Leyte peninsula in the Philippines is about 1,000 square miles in area.

Dale Thut Elected Junior Rotarian For Four Weeks

Dale Thut was elected Junior Rotarian at the weekly meeting of the Student Council Tuesday.

Dale has proved himself to be one of the busiest students of the senior class. His various activities include, business manager of the Little Harvester, Quill and Scroll, basketball '43 and '44, and he was a member of the junior and senior play casts.

His main interests lie in the field of radio, and he has just completed a radar test. After his graduation, January 19, Dale plans to enter the Navy.

Brent Blonkvist and Joe Cree represented the senior boys in this capacity for the fall months.

It has been the policy of the Rotary Club for the past several years to have the Student Council elect a senior boy to meet with them at their weekly luncheons for a month.

Six Girls Chosen Able Athletes

A varsity team was elected by the six girls' physical education classes, with one girl being chosen from each class.

"Each of these girls fully deserved this honor as she attended practice faithfully," states Miss Dorothy Hoyle, director of girls' PE.

The selections were based on the girls' ability, sportmanship and also their attitudes toward the team and game.

The following girls are those selected as representative athletes for each of the six classes: first period, June Myatt; second period, Colleen Voyles; third period, Nadine Wilson; fourth period, Jean Beagle; fifth period, Alice Jean Robinson; and sixth period, Reba Joyce Bain.

This follows a challenge tournament which lasted more than a week when the games were played at night in the Senior High gym.

THIS

IS HOW YOU OPERATE

THIS

Flip a switch, and your electricity is ordered, made and delivered within the instant. It cannot be produced ahead of time and stored. So when you turn on any appliance, large or small, you cause our boilers, turbines and generators to start generating your electricity.

No matter when you "order" current, it must be delivered at once, to home, store, office or factory, not a second sooner or later. Therefore, your order must receive prompt attention. A thousand other orders must be handled too. We can't ask any of them to wait.

So, at every moment of the day or night, the plant is ready. Whether it's a single light you turn on, or a whole battery of machines in a factory, whenever you push an electric button, you operate a power plant.

Campaign Will Be Waged Everywhere

MEMPHIS, Jan. 13—(AP) — The Southern Baptists' campaign to win 1,000,000 persons to Christ in 1945 will be waged in "halls, tents, brush arbors and around log fires," says director of the group's centennial evangelistic crusade.

Dodd, planning the program here with crusade directors from 19 states and the District of Columbia, said the Baptists plan 50,000 evangelistic meetings this year.

"Each of the 25,000 churches is expected to hold one meeting," he declared, "and 10,000 of the churches are asked to hold a second meeting during the year and conduct 15,000 extension meetings in halls, tents, brush arbors and around log fires."

Dodd will open the campaign in Nashville Sunday with 35 churches participating.

Hats off to Gray County

Your 6th War Loan Bond Purchases are Sending Another B-29 at the Enemy!

You had a quota for the over-all purchases of bonds . . . you made it! You had a quota of E bonds . . . you made it! You had a $600,000 purchase of bonds to guarantee another B-29. . you have made it.

Here's some information about what you bought: You may know those B-29 Superfortresses now bombing the enemy are big babies, but did you know that their wingspread is 20 feet, 2 inches, longer than Orville Wright's famous first airplane flight, made just 41 years ago? Wright's historic first flight of a powered heavier-than-air machine at Kitty Hawk, N. C., lasted 12 seconds and covered 120 feet. A B-29's wingspan is 141 feet, 2 inches; in the picture above the size is compared with Wright's flight.

This is a thank you and hats off salute to all the people of Gray County for their fine display of unity and patriotism. Especial thanks are extended to the many, many outstanding volunteer workers who gave so liberally of their time to go out and sell bonds . . . thank you again.
