Small Income In Traffic Exposed

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Illegal traffic in liquor was said tonight by Attorney General Mitchell to provide "on an average not over 20 per cent" of the revenue of organized gangsters prosecuted recently for income tax violations.

"This has been diminishing," he continued, "and if this be an indication of general conditions, the removal of illicit liquor traffic as a source of revenue would not end gangsterism and racketeering."

Know Of Rackets

Speaking over the Columbia Broadcasting system the Attorney General said that "in one community we know of 48 different kinds of rackets."

"Wherever there is inefficiency or corruption on the part of state authorities, demands are made on the federal government to intervene," he added.

Five Desperadoes Hold San Angelo Jailer And Deputy At Point Of Gun And Escape In Postoffice Automobile

All Are Heavily Armed; Officers Are Warned To Take No Chances But To Shoot; Five Are Said Dangerous

(By The Associated Press)

SAN ANGELO, May 16. — Peace officers all along the Mexican border and throughout West Texas tonight were on the lookout for five desperate men who broke jail here today. Orders were to shoot to kill and the reputations of the escaping prisoners made veteran officers here believe the men would not be taken without a struggle. They were heavily armed.

Possibility that the "gun" used in making the jail break was fashioned of soap and covered with blackened paper was expressed by some of the remaining prisoners in the jail although officers insisted it was a real gun. How it got in the jail remained a mystery. The men overpowered a trusty, robbed the jailer and a deputy sheriff of four guns and drove away in a car commandeered from a postman who had driven up to the BIG SPRING, May 16. (AP)—A man who wrecked his car in the business district here tonight as the culmination of a 10-mile chase was captured a short time later after being wounded in the arm and is being held as a suspected escaped prisoner from San Angelo. The man refused to give his name or to make a statement.

Harte Tells Of Program Planned In Coming Year

Registrations In 1931 Set Record

Registrations at the Lubbock convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, totaling about 2,930, surpassed the paid registrations of any other convention in the history of the organization, D. A. Bandeen, general manager, said last night.

The fee this year was $1 in comparison to $2.50 collected at preceding meetings.

Abilene's registration in 1930 was about 1,900. Less than 1,500 registrations were recorded during the 1929 annual meeting held at El Paso, officials of the regional chamber said.

Funds derived from registrations go to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce to be applied on local expenses of the convention.

Resolutions Offered At Convention To Be Carried Out

THE West Texas Chamber of Commerce during the ensuing year will endeavor to carry out policies expressed in resolutions adopted at the Lubbock convention, Houston Harte of San Angelo, newly elected president of the regional organization, said last night in a formal statement.

"Resolutions passed during the convention more or less outline the program to be followed by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce during my administration," Mr. Harte said. "We plan to follow the resolutions as far as possible, for we do not propose to pass the resolutions and then forget them.

"Of course, it will be the policy of the organization to foster and develop industries and resources we now have. After we have done this, we will work for new projects. Preservation of the things we now have in West Texas is of utmost importance in times such as we are experiencing."

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce during the next year begins the task of assimilating an exhibit to be displayed at the Chicago World's fair in 1933, the new president said.

"The fair will offer a great opportunity to West Texas to present a picture of her development to the world," he said. "While the fair is two years off, the material must be collected during 1932. We shall try to arrange an exhibit that will do credit to this section of the state."

Mr. Harte last night left for San Angelo. He is publisher of the San Angelo Standard-Times and has been engaged in the work of the regional chamber for several years.

Judge Chas. E. Coombes Makes Talk As Outgoing President And Bears Down Heavily On Note Of Harmony

HOUSTON HARTE, newspaper publisher of San Angelo, heads the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for 1931-32. His elevation to the presidency of the big regional organization came early yesterday, in the directors' annual breakfast at Hotel Lubbock, one of the high spots in the convention although removed from the gaze of the crowd.

Wilbur C. Hawk, Amarillo, another publisher, was elected Harte's successor as first vice-president, placing him in direct succession to the presidency next year.

Wells Is Honored

A Lubbock man, Spencer A. Wells, is the new second vice-president. He takes the place of C. M. Caldwell, Abilene.

A. J. Swenson, Stamford, in spite of his protest to being "only an old cowman," was made treasurer.

Then the directorate quickly re-elected D. A. Bandeen, general manager, amid tributes, but said nothing about increasing his salary from the present figure, $5,000.

Harmony Restored

As forecast by Avalanche-Journal publications, the top post in the organization came down to two men, Harte and Walter D. Cline, oil man of Wichita Falls. Both were placed in nomination, Harte first—and that settled it. Cline, famed for straight talking (sometimes to the point of embarrassing bluntness),

Buffalo Crashes In High Society

(By The Associated Press)

DALLAS May 16.—It is a long time since Indian hunters followed the Buffalo herds through what is now Dallas county, but one of the shaggy brutes was killed late today in the back yard of a city home.

The animal escaped from a wild west show quartered north of town and charged across the Oak Grove golf course, breaking down or leaping over fences as he went. Seeing the big bull galloping down a street, one citizen gave chase in an automobile, followed by an Indian on horseback in the true Comanche tradition. The buffalo turned off into the yard of a house, and a woman fainted as he tried to smash his way into the back porch. Roy Tosh shot him down.

Young Wichita Falls Boy Wins "My Home Town" Contest For Second Consecutive Year To Defeat Five Others

SWEETWATER will entertain the 1932 convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce.

In a landslide of votes, the Nolan county metropolis was successful in putting across its campaign for the convention in the first ballot Saturday in the final business action of the thirteenth convention. Adjournment followed the selection of the meeting place.

Others Seek Meet

Three other cities, Mineral Wells, Amarillo and Dallas made bids for the convention. The balloting showed Sweetwater with 1,459 votes, Amarillo with 320, Mineral Wells with 75 and Dallas went voteless. Sweetwater has been seeking the convention over a period of ten years and its campaign was based on "It's Our Time Now."

Saturday's session, which marked the close of what was termed the most successful and far reaching convention ever held by the organization, began nearly an hour late and closed shortly before 1:30 in the afternoon. It was packed from beginning to end with interest.

Joe R. Witherspoon, Wichita Falls, for the second time won the Thomas Etheredge silver loving cup in the "My Home Town" contest. He also receives $100 in cash and his choice of scholarships in eight colleges and schools in West Texas; Texas Technological college, Lubbock; West Texas State Teachers college, Canyon; Abilene Christian college, Simmons university and Draughon's Business college, Abilene; North Texas State Teachers college and C. Taking Of Testimony In Libel Case Will Be Started Monday

Case Involving Damages Totaling $200,000, Is Expected To Continue In City Until About July 1

FIRST evidence in the libel action brought by Fred Spikes, pioneer resident of the South Plains against J. Eyetts Haley of Austin; the Capitol Reservations Lands and Francis C. Farwell, Charles F. Harding and Frederick French, trustees of the Capitol Reservation Lands, is to be heard in 99th district court here beginning Monday at 10 o'clock.

In his suit, the first of five similar actions filed in Lubbock county by members of the Spikes family and one in Crosby county, $100,000 actual damages and $100,000 exemplary damages for alleged libel, is sought. Issues in the first case to be heard, are involved in the other actions in this county and it is expected that the decision rendered by the jury will more or less govern the other cases.

Outgrowth of Book

The case has grown out of the publication of a book known as "The History of the XIT Ranch", written by Haley while secretary of the Panhandle-Plains Historical association. Haley is now a member of the department of history of the University of Texas at Austin and was recently secured to write a history of the cattle business.

In the book is a chapter entitled "The Long Fight for Law" which purports to relate the details of a fight that occurred late in January of 1902, on the Mesa Redonda in eastern New Mexico, then a territory, in which two brothers of Fred Spikes were shot and killed and the latter wounded.

Alleges Damages

While the book does not specifically mention Fred Spikes by name, referring to the men members of the Spikes family as "the Spikes brothers" or the "Spikes gang," the plaintiff alleges he is damaged by publication of the book.

Months have been devoted by attorneys for both sides to the gathering of evidence to be presented in the case. Up to the present

H. W. Summers, member of congress from the Dallas district, who gave the invitation to the W. T. C. C. convention for Dallas, made the trip to Lubbock in an airplane. He came with Lieut. B. B. Owens, and left for Dallas at 2:45 in the afternoon.

Press Picks Abernathy

Newspapermen at the press table were united in awarding first place in the "My Home Town" contest to Miss Ila Collier of Abernathy. She was accorded the first place honor by every one of the half dozen typewriter "tappers" and when the decision was announced, they were all disappointed.

Cline Philosophical

Walter D. Cline of Wichita Falls, was philosophical over the tabling of a pet motion of his at the morning session Saturday. Announcing that the resolution was being presented personally and without the suggestion or approval of the other members of the committee, he brought forth his motion. Voted to lay it aside, Cline remarked, "that is not a turn down for the committee, it is just a slap at me." He smiled and went on with his work.

Caldwell Has Humor

Judge C. M. Caldwell, presiding at the "My Home Town" finals, had the Boy Scouts keep the doors closed during the orations, permitting them to be opened during intermissions. Once he said, "If I was a preacher, I would say there were 100 people coming in at the door." The next time he said, "If I were a church deacon I would say we were getting 150." The third time he remarked, "now, if I were a chamber of commerce secretary I would estimate there were 1,000 people coming in that door." He stopped.

Legionnaires Play

Sweetwater Rejoices

Sweetwater fans rejoiced over the selection of that town for the 1932 convention. The town sought and fought for the honor of entertaining the gathering and it gained many friends among the out of town folks as well as among Lubbock people who generally pulled for Sweetwater.

Executives Pay Visit

Opening Of Swimming Season In Texas Saturday Claims Lives Of Three In Various Parts Of State

(By Associated Press)

Three drownings accompanied warmer weather and the opening Saturday of the swimming season in Texas.

Carl Engle, 13, was drowned just before noon Saturday as he and a playmate were swimming in the Leon river two miles east of Belton. Engle ventured into deep water, became frightened and drowned before his companion, Woodrow Mosley, could summon help. Efforts at resuscitation failed.

Lake Claims Child

Bama Elaine Pritchard, 10 of Commerce, was drowned in a small lake near Commerce Saturday while swimming with friends who had gone there for a Sunday school picnic.

Geraldine McBride, 16, who was to have appeared Friday night in the high school play of her graduating class at Bulcher, 25 miles northwest of Gainesville, drowned late Friday in Red River, while swimming with a party of friends.

The girl and her sister, Nadine, 13, disappeared while in the center of the stream. The younger girl was rescued by Alvin Nottingham, a member of the party. Geraldine's body never reappeared on the surface after she went down but was located by searchers using seines. The class play performance was cancelled.

Supreme Court To Test Texas Election Laws

El Paso Negro Files Damage Suit For $5,000 Charging He Was Not Permitted Vote In 1928 Demo Primary

(By Associated Press)

EL PASO, May 16.—A test of the Texas election law of 1926 involving the right of negroes to vote in white men's primaries will be carried to the United States supreme court.

Attorneys for Dr. L. A. Nixon, negro of El Paso, said today they would appeal from an adverse decision in his case against election judges of El Paso given by a circuit court of appeals at New Orleans.

$5,000 Damages

Nixon charged in a $5,000 damage suit against James Condon and C. H. Kolle that he was not permitted to vote in the 1928 Democratic primary. Federal Judge Charles A. Boynton held a party had a right to regulate its primary elections, and the New Orleans court upheld his decision.

The suit was the second of its kind brought by Nixon. In 1926 he sued C. C. Herndon of El Paso, saying he had been refused permission to vote in a Democratic primary. The United States supreme court held the Texas primary law unconstitutional.

Two weeks later the legislature passed the existent primary law with an emergency clause, giving the state executive committee the right to determine who should participate in a party primary election. Then the committee ruled no negro could vote in the primary.

Reeser Declares Proration Would Save The Situation

TULSA, May 16. (AP)—New flush oil producing areas in eastern Texas are viewed by E. B. Reeser, president of the American Petroleum Institute, as a menace to the entire petroleum industry if they are permitted to flow unrestrained by proration measures.

He declared today that the crude oil market would sag still further unless proration is made enforceable in the Texas area. Passage of a proration enforcemnt bill now pending in the Texas legislature would "save the situation" and turn the oil industry on the road to better times, he said.

Motion to advance the case to the supreme court probably will be made to avoid delays in obtaining settings of the case which otherwise might follow, Mr. Wilson said.

Mrs. Nairn was granted a temporary injunction restraining the highway commission and the county commissioners' court from further solicitation of right-of-way on the proposed route of highway No. 24.

The decision was appealed to the court of civil appeals.

Economy Plans Worked Out By Official Body

Plan To Save $17,000,000 To $19,000,000 In Three Years In Interior Department Is Given Consideration

(By The Associated Press)

ORANGE, Va., May 16.—A plan by which it is hoped $17,000,000 to $19,000,000 may be saved in the estimated expenditures of the interior department for this and the next two fiscal years was worked out today by department officials and President Hoover at the chief executive's fishing lodge in the mountains nearby.

By eliminating some of the department's activities and deferring some work which may be necessary ultimately but can be postponed for the present, Mr. Hoover hopes to make these savings.

The yearly budget of the department is approximately $85,000,000 including a $15,000,000 appropriation each year for the present for Hoover dam.

To Give Summary

What departmental activities would be curtailed or postponed were not made known, although it was indicated a detailed summary of plans would be announced within a few days.

Expulsion Of Jesuits From Spain Is Demanded; Republic Becomes Target

(By Associated Press)

MADRID, May 16.—Extreme left elements are demanding the expulsion of the Jesuits from Spain by provisional President Alcala Zamora, himself a Catholic, and most perplexed over the religious situation.

The periodical "Crisol," representing the staunchest Republican circles, joined communist organs tonight in demanding that the Jesuits be banished.

"The diplomatic flight of Cardinal Primate Segura gives the public the utmost satisfaction," the newspaper said. "This healthy measure, however, will constitute an injustice unless the Jesuits have the same fate, and with the Jesuits must go other archbishops and bishops who have been distinguished for their hostility to the republic."

The departure of Archbishop Segura has been followed with reports that he will not return to Spain.

The unconfirmed protest of the Vatican is reported to have have demanded that the government apologize for anti-catholic depredations, reinburse the church for its losses and punish the guilty persons.

Communist elements with increasing bitterness are attacking the republic as being too conservative and urging that Spain have a "real revolution" to abolish the army, expel religious orders, confiscate property and divide the land.

The government also has learned that before the recent

WTCC Groups Pass 27 Resolutions; Proration Order Hotly Contested

Action Taken Friday In Oil And Gas Meet

Resolution Urging Passage Of Howsley Bill To Widen Railway Commission Authority Is Adopted

By far the most hotly contested resolution adopted by the West Texas Chamber of Commerce was the plea for passage at Austin of the Howsley proration bill.

This resolution, adopted after warm argument in the oil and gas conference Friday, urged that the measure, designed to widen the authority of the railroad commission in controlling proration, be passed as it will remove at least some of the difficulties which exist," It urges the legislature "to consider very seriously such bill, and pass such a law as may be necessary to meet the problems which exist, and which, if not soon solved, will cause greater demoralization in the oil industry and injure further the entire state."

Resolutions Adopted

Four resolutions were adopted by a committee of the industrial development conference, and passed by the general assembly Friday. They urged support by the West Texas chamber of the "buy Texas products" campaign; called for support by the member chambers of Progressive Texans, Inc.; provided for the selection by the industrial group chairman and the new chamber president and manager, of five members of the industrial group to act with the president and manager as directors of Progressive Texans; and urged that member chambers of commerce sponsor exhibits of home-manufactured products, and that they enlist the aid of women's organizations in such enterprises.

Other resolutions adopted in various group conferences, and passed by the general assembly, include:

That the organization go on record as favoring a tariff on imported oils, and the empowering of the railroad commission of Texas to regulate tariff rates on pipelines.

That the legislature be petitioned "to consider very carefully before committing themselves" to the policy of salary cutting among the instructors in the state colleges of Texas.

That the West Texas chamber reaffirm endorsement of three land title validation bills now pending in the legislature.

That, whereas the Texas Technological college is now in a position to train and to supply skilled workers in county agricultural and home demonstration agent work, the attention of chambers of commerce and county officials be called to the availability of these young West Texans for such services.

That the West Texas Chamber of Commerce request state school officials for "adequate funds for vocational teacher training in Texas Technological college". In view of official recommendations that West Texas training for West Texas Vocational Teachers be done at Tech.

That the organization "express itself as desiring to cooperate with all agencies" in the movement for increased uses of cotton, and that the efforts to this end of the Texas commissioner of agriculture be commended.

That the West Texas Chamber of Commerce offer every facility to encourage the live-at-home movement, and pledge its support to extension service agencies to those ends.

That the legislature be urged to pass House bill No. 312, limiting the insurance of warrants by counties and cities without requirement of submission to and approval of the qualified voters.

That the organization express gratitude to the Red Cross for its drouth relief aid in West Texas and other sections, and that continued support of the body be pledged.

That the state legislature "be earnestly petitioned to immediately relieve" the congressional districting situation by the passage of a "a congressional redistricting bill that will justly accord the proper representations to the people of Texas, and we request the free conference committee which now has this matter under consideration, to compromise their differences to the end that the people of Texas be granted their constitutional rights."

Six resolutions from the breeder-feeder conference, provided that:

The West Texas chamber intensify its efforts to further the breeder-feeder movement; give increasing support to the National Meat Board; push the campaign to encourage increased consumption of quality meats; give encouragement to state experimental work in the meat animal industry, urge colleges and federal agencies to intensify their cattle feeding experiments and commend them for steps already taken; encourage Texas hotels and restaurants to feature Texas-fed meats; commend Frank P. Holland, jr., for his work as president of the Texas Breeder-Feeder association.

A seventh general resolution adopted by the breeder-feeder group provided, whereas Oklahoma and Kansas are pushing experiments in cattle feeding and that, in spite of this fact many problems remain to be solved, and whereas "certain sections of West Texas are well suited to the growing of feeder cattle and lambs, while other sections of West Texas are admirably adapted to the production of feed crops," that the organization work for experimental feeding of cattle and lambs, and recommend an annual feeders' field day.

That federal highway aid to western states be continued until the maximum program is completed, and that it is desirable that all possible trunk highways be given federal numbers.

That the preservation and restoration of old forts and other landmarks in West Texas be urged.

That the final passage of the bill providing an appropriation of $35,000 to match a similar amount raised by the Panhandle Plains Historical Society for its museum at Canyon be urged.

That the organization encourage and assist in the work of the State Park Association, and that other regional chambers of commerce be invited to join in a central organization to further this work.

That the cooperation of the West Texas Chamber be pledged to the federal government in its health work, and that the appreciation of the organization of this work be expressed.

King was the first president of the Bobbin club, organization of textile students, before the local chapter of Phi Psi was organized.

GRADUATES ENTERTAIN

Tech graduates in home economics who live at Amarillo entertained Amarillo High school girls with a tea yesterday at Amarillo, according to word received here. The entertainment was under the direction of Miss Anne Belle Collins, 1929 graduate of the Tech home economics school.

Mrs. Mary Doak, dean of women, Miss Margaret Week, dean of the school of home economics, and Miss Mabel Erwin of the home economics, faculty were special guests. Students from here attending were Misses Tona Alexander and Virginia Murray.

New officers for the Silver Key social club at Texas Technological college are as follows: Mose Witherspoon, president; F. M. Coker, vice president; Harold Busby, secretary; Ellis Foreman, treasurer, and Fred Seely, corresponding secretary. The officers will serve next year.

About 33 are members of the organization.

SPEAKS AT BECTON

Mrs. William Dingus, head of the Tech Latin department, spoke to the graduating class at Becton Friday night.

Material for the Tech "Y" handbook for next fall will be ready for the printer about June 15. Houston Hinson and Louise Lawson are co-editors of the booklet which will contain information a college freshman should know.

A list of all campus organizations, officers and the purposes will be given. It also will contain the Tech Matador song and many college yells.

STUDENTS SCARCE

Tech upperclassmen were scarce yesterday, staying out of the way of Tech freshmen who ruled the college for a day—Freshman day. Students who attended classes did not spend any time around the buildings after their classes were dismissed.

Several hundred freshmen went to Wildwood near Quitaque on a special train, but those remaining made it "hot" for sophomores and upperclassmen.

Tech students will vote Monday and Tuesday by secret ballot for an editor of The Toreador, student newspaper. No one is seeking the editorship of the annual, La Ventana, and Tom Abraham, candidate for business manager of the Toreador and Jess Cooper for business manager of the year book, are unopposed.

Ballot boxes will be placed in the administration and engineering buildings and will be open from 9 until 3 o'clock each day, according to Wayne Castleberry, student council president.

If a run off is necessary it will be held Friday and Saturday, according to Castleberry. Three students are seeking the editorship of The Toreador.

IS LAST MEETING

What is likely to be the last regular meeting for this year of the Tech YMCA cabinet will be tomorrow evening at 6:45 o'clock, Jack Boyd, secretary, said yesterday. At that time plans for the spring cabinet training conference next week-end will be discussed.

Don Weilenman is president of the organization.

IS BOARD MEMBER

Houston Harte, San Angelo newspaper publisher who yesterday was elected president of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, is a member of the board of regents of Texas Technological college.

SPINACH GOOD FOR RATS

Another proof that spinach is healthy was brought out by an experiment by the Tech home economics students. The students experimented with four rats, each being fed different diets. The one which ate spinach with his diet is almost twice the size of the others.

The rats, which were on display Thursday during the home economics "open house" for West Texas Chamber of Commerce visitors, were chosen for the experiment because they react to diets in much the same manner as humans.

Talbot Urges Woolen Goods Made At Tech

Dallas Man Says That Orders Could Be Obtained On All Material Manufactured By Textile Department

"If the Textile engineering department at Texas Technological college can begin the manufacture of woolen goods, I will see that it gets all of the orders it can handle," Col. W. E. Talbot, Dallas, who is devoting his time and energies to the improvement of Texas industries, said in an interview here. Colonel Talbot was here for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention.

"There is a great demand for Texas-made woolen materials," Colonel Talbot said. "There are not enough machines in the state to supply the demand.

"If Tech will start its machines and let me know, I will supply the patterns for them."

Demand Increased

Colonel Talbot said that since he began his campaign for the use of Texas-made cloth, both woolen and cotton, there has been an unprecedented demand on the part of the people for these articles.

Texas and West Texas, Colonel Talbot explained, has the raw material for making enough cloth to supply its own demands and much more. "With the splendid freight rates that Texas enjoys, it has much better opportunities in the way of a trade territory than Boston has," Colonel Talbot said.

He pointed out that Texas supplies a large percentage of the wool and mohair clip of the United States, and that with this abundance of raw material "right at our doors" West Texas can manufacture the wool and mohair into cloth here without having to send the wool to distant points.

"The Southwest, is the coming section," he said.

In discussing the use of equipment at Texas Tech for making of woolen cloth, Colonel Talbot added that "students could earn enough money to put them through school. At the same time, graduates of the Textile department will have jobs ready for them when they leave school, in the mills that are bound to spring up here."

King Cotton's Tyranny Must End, Speaker States At Closing Session

Tom Connally Is Speaker At Final Meeting

Senator Declares That Cotton Must Share His Power With Food And Feed Crops; Urges Systematic Plans

KING Cotton's tyranny must be ended.

He must share his power with food and feed crops. His authority must be circumscribed by constitutional limitations.

United States Senator Tom Connally of Marlin so warned the final assembly here Saturday morning of the thirteenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce. Senator Connally, only speaker at the last session, was introduced by Amon G. Carter of Fort Worth.

Builded On Faith

"West Texas has been built out of what was once a great plain, by the optimism and faith of man," said the senator.

"It does not matter so much where West Texas begins, as it does where it ends.

"Agriculture is a primary industry and whatever our development must always so remain. A varied soil and a favorable climate make West Texas a favored section for him who cultivates the earth to bring forth the food and raiment that feeds and clothes the world.

Restrain Power

"Corn, wheat and other grains are peculiarly adapted to the seasons, soil and climate of your section. King Cotton has too long reigned in our dominions. He has imposed burdens and hardships upon his subjects. His power must be restrained.

"The new agricultural West Texas must live on its resources. We are getting away from the fetish of a single crop. We are going to provide a balanced ration for our people."

Importing Pork

Texas today is importing pork, Senator Connally reported, and every southern state is importing some meat.

"Raising cotton to sell to Japan in order to get money to buy salt pork from Iowa hogs, fattened with Iowa feed and packed in Kansas City is a round-about way to get pork," the senator reminded.

Commerce and transportation are inseperable as the Siamese twins", and when one perishes the other dies, said Senator Connally.

Markets Are Open

"Our railroads, like giant-like railways, thus connect with ports at the Gulf of Mexico. West Texas has a ready highway to the markets of the world," he continued.

"The ports are dependent upon the hinterland—they cannot flourish themselves. Products must be brought to ship side."

Senator Connally spoke of increasing educational facilities and advantages in this region, and described the school house as "an outpost for law and order, a sentry box, a citadel of good government, a workshop wherf rugged native minds are shaped and fashioned."

Must Shape Plans

More than material prosperity will result if each farm home is made a self-sustaining unit by encouraging diversification of crops, of food and feed and domestic animals and dairy products, Senator Connally predicted.

As we plan for such a balanced economy in the individual farm, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce must plan and dream for a balanced economy throughout the area which it serves," the Martin man said.

Must Be Market

"There must be a market for the crops which the farmer is encouraged to grow. Manufacturing must utilize raw materials and supply employment to labor. Cities and towns must not be content to subsist upon agriculture alone. They must utilize the oil, the fuel, the minerals and other native resources."

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce program "must be revised and modified to meet new conditions and embrace new opportunities," Senator Connally opined.

"Its dreams envision a noble future. It must make that dream come true."

Three primary factors in the making of wealth, Senator Connally designed as raw material, the brain that conceives its utilization, and capital and human labor to transform it into the finished product and carry it to consumers.

"In the far flung view of world economy, there is no real surplus of the useful products of wealth and labor," he declared.

The problem is to find those who need them, the senator continued, and to effect a means of exchanging them for other products.

Al Simmons Rises To Lead Hitters In American League With Average Of .411

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO, May 16.—Al Simmons of the Athletics, who aims to be the first American League batting champion to repeat since Ty Cobb turned the trick in 1918 and 1919, rode into first place in the hitting depression of the fourth week of shelling.

Unofficial averages, including games of Wednesday, today placed the clean-up man of the world's champions in first place with an average of .411 although his percentage of hits dropped like most of the others during the week. Dale Alexander of Dtroit and Babe Ruth of the Yankees, former leaders in the race, were tied for second, just three small points away.

Batting averages fell off so perceptibly during the week that only one of the leading 10 hitters of a week ago was able to add points. The exception was Bob Fothergill of the White Sox, who jumped from sixth to fourth place with an average of .404 or four points higher than last week. The other members of the "Big Ten" were Fonseca, Cleveland, .396; West, Washington, 390; Cochrane, Philadelphia, .370; Cronin, Washington, .364; Perrell, St. Louis, .364, and Reynolds, Chicago, .362.

Fourteen Players High

Of the other eight individual fields of achievement, 14 players figured among the leaders. Charlie Myer led by himself in run production with 22, while his teammate, Joe Cronin, topped the field by clouting out the most total bases, 63, but the rest of the departments had two or more leaders. Alexander and Cronin tied with 40 hits; Earl Webb of the Red Sox tied Alexander with 11 doubles; Simmons and Harry Rice of the Senators tied with four triples; Simmons and Jonathan Stone of the Tigers were even with five homers apiece; Cronin and Earl Averill of Cleveland were tied in runs batted in with 26 each while Roy Johnson of the Tigers and Bill Cissell of the White Sox had six stolen bases each to lead the league.

Cleveland's team batting mark fell from .317 to .310 during the week but the mark was good enough to keep first place. The Athletics held their lead in team fielding with a .986 percentage.

Although Clint Brown of Cleveland, Sam Jones of Washington and Herb Pennock of the Yankees owned perfect records of two victories and no defeats, the two recognized leaders in the pitching race were Roy Sherid of the Yankees and Rube Walberg of the Athletics, who have won four out of five, Walberg's record was the best of the two, however, as he has permitted but 40 hits and 14 runs in 47 innings.

Home Runs Fix 7 To 5 Win In Giant-Card Go

Braves Get To Pittsburgh For Dozen Hits And 9-2 Win As Brooklyn's Dodgers Trounce Reds; Cubs Split Double

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, May 16.—With three home runs featuring their attack, the New York Giants came from behind to defeat the St. Louis Cardinals 7 to 5 in the opening game of the series today. Flint Rhem, who started for the National League champions, failed to hold on to the Cards' early lead as Allen, Ott and Hogan pounded out home runs. Chick Hafey, playing the first game of the season, got two hits.

New York ..... 011 002 30x—7 10 4

Rhem, Dorringer, Stout and Mancuso, Wilson; Hubbell, Burley and Hogan.

Gallops To Victory At Race Classic

City Baseball League Season Opens Tuesday With Two Games Scheduled

The City League baseball season will get under way Tuesday afternoon with four of the six teams composing the league playing opening game. The Avalanche-Journal team will clash with the American Legion-Lions club and the Rainbows will meet the Santa Fe. Exact time and places for the games will be announced in Tuesday's issue of the Morning Avalanche.

President J. R. "Dutch" Leuenberger announced yesterday that a meeting of all city league managers and as many team members as desire to attend will be held at the chamber of commerce offices in the city hall Monday night at 8 o'clock. At that time managers are expected to turn in a list of sixteen players, the player limit to each team, who shall be judged eligible for play.

According to the schedule released last week, the season opens May 19 and continues through August. If the season is split, the division will occur about July 8.

The team will play on four days of the week. There will be no Sunday games and on Tuesday and Thursdays of each week two games will be played. One game will be played on each Wednesday and Friday.

While places for the games have not been determined yet, three or four lots being considered, it is likely that Merrill Park and Lions Park will be chosen, the clubs alternating with the fields on playing days.

It is very important, President Leuenberger states, that all managers be present tomorrow night at the meeting, which will be the final get-to-gether of the managers before the season opens.

Texas Tech Track Teams In Four-Cornered Meet Monday

To decide the championship team out of four contesting for Texas Tech intramural track and field honors there will be held a "conference" track meet on the college course Monday afternoon. The meet will begin at 5 o'clock, with four campus organizations competing.

It was formerly announced that the meet would be held on Tuesday but Coach Russel "Dutchey" Smith announced yesterday that Monday was the date.

The competing teams represent the School of Liberal Arts, the School of Engineering, the School of Agriculture and the Army corps. Since varsity track and field men are eligible for intramural competition, the meet promises to be fully as interesting as a college track meet.

Peel Continues To Lead T. L. Hitters

DALLAS, May 16.(AP) — While Beaumont's road offensive wrested the lead in club batting from Fort Worth, there was no shake-up in the individual hitting leadership in which Homer Peel, Houston, continued to pound out base hits. Peel's average of .406 is in marked contrast with the general light batting of the league's regulars. The ten leading hitters through Thursday (exclusive Shreveport-Houston night game) for players 50 or more times at bat:

Peel, Houston, .406; Puss, Wichita Falls, .386; Perry, Fort Worth, .731; Cotter, Dallas .360; Engle, Fort Worth .356; Stanton, Wichita Falls, .355; Badgro, Wichita Falls, .347; Carey, Houston, .342; Radcliff, Shreveport, .340; Frits, Beaumont, Runs—White, Beaumont, 26, .327.

Scharein, Wichita Falls, and Gullic, Wichita Falls, 23. Hits: Peel, Houston, and Cotter, Dallas, 41; Stanton, Wichita Falls, 39; Doubles—Speer, Galveston, 10; Stanton, Wichita Falls, Badgro, Wichita Falls, and White, Beaumont, 5. Home runs: Gullic, Wichita Falls, and Radcliff, Shreveport, 6. Runs batted in—Fritz, Beaumont, 26, Gullic, Wichita Falls, 21. Stolen bases—White, Beaumont, 10, Whitworth, Fort Worth, with 5 Fort Worth and J. Dean, Houston, victories and no defeats, McCabe, with 4 wins to no losses, are the leading winning pitchers. Carlton, Houston, leads in strikeouts with 30.

Southern California Wins Meet; Two Records Are Tied

OLYMPIC STADIUM, LOS ANGELES, May 16. (AP)—In a meet which saw two world records tied, the University of Southern California track and field team, 1930 National Champions successfully defended their California intercollegiate title by scoring 93 points. Stanford was second with 40, California third with 19, and U. C. L. A. fourth with two.

Missouri Tigers Bow To U. Of Kansas Tracksters

LAWRENCE, Kas., May 16. (AP)—The University of Kansas swamped the Missouri Tigers, 92 to 39, in the 30th renewal of their annual out door dual track meet here this afternoon.

Toby Owens, Miami, Fla., high school boy, pitched his team to victory five consecutive times in one week.

The Pacific Coast league becomes a night baseball circuit during the summer months.

George Lott And Van Ryn Fail In French Net Play

PARIS, May 16. (AP)—The valiant efforts of George Lott and Johnny Van Ryn to aid their French Davis Cup enemies in the France-England team tennis matches today proved useless. England wound up the day with a lead of seven matches to four.

The Americans, playing for the French international lawn tennis club in doubles, had no trouble with the British pair, J. C. Gregory and James Collins, winning 6-1; 6-3.

Jean Borotra, the bounding Basque, bowed to youth and lost to F. J. Perry, 3-6; 6-0, 6-3. Another surprise was the defeat of the British veteran C. H. Kinosley of Marcel Bernard 6-4, 6-8.

National League Averages Fall As Cub Manager Heads List; Roettger Near

(By The Associated Press)

NEW YORK May 16.—With the batting averages of the National League in general going down rather than up, Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Chicago Cubs, and Wally Roettger, Cincinnati outfielder, have become involved in a tight battle for first place. The semi-official averages, which include Wednesday's games, show Hornsby ahead but holding a margin of only one point.

Hornsby's average is .362 and Roettger's .361, while close enough behind to threaten the leaders come Freddy Lindstrom of New York and Ernie Orsatti of St. Louis, tied for third at .349 and Jim Bottomley of St. Louis at .348. Six other regulars have marks of .333 or better. They are Vergez, New York, .346; Davis, Philadelphia, .345; Leach, New York, .341; Whitney, Philadelphia, .338; and Sheely and Worthington, Boston, .333.

More Than Singles

The clouting Cub manager has not won his place by singles alone for he is tied with Chuck Klein of the Phillies for the long distance lead with six homers, and has made as many doubles. Hornsby also is tied for first place in batting in runs. He and Pie Traynor of Pittsburgh each have driven home 19.

Traynor has collected the greatest number of hits, his total of 31 putting him one ahead of his teammate, Lloyd Waner, who tops the scorers with 25 runs. Babe Herman of Brooklyn has hit ten doubles to lead in that respect and Orsatti and Dick Bartell of Philadelphia are tied for the lead in triples with four apiece. Wally Berger of Boston and Adam Comorosky of Pittsburgh have stolen five bases each.

Giants Top Clubs

The New York Giants, with three men on the list of leading regulars, top the teams in batting with a .293 average. They are tied with Chicago for the fielding lead at .980.

Ed Brandt of Boston, the current strikeout king of the league and Fred Fitzsimmons of New York share the pitching lead. Each has won five games without a defeat. Brandt has fanned 30 opponents.

Whitney Horse Breaks Derby And Track Record To Breeze Home In 2:01.8; Mate Third

Sweep All Beaten By Four Good Lengths And Mate Trails By Three; Twenty Grand Wins $60,000 Purse

BY ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

CHURCHILL DOWNS, LOUISVILLE Ky., May 16.—The roaring acclaim that belongs to a superthoroughbred echoed down the stretch of historic Churchill Downs today as the magnificent bay colt, Twenty Grand, bounded in giant strides to record-shattering victory in the 57th running of the Kentucky Derby.

Belying his name, Twenty Grand looked like the proverbial million, as the big son of St. Germans-Bonus, carrying the Greentree colors of Mrs. Payne Whitney, wealthy New York sportswoman, galloped down the stretch to decisive victory over Sweep All, the west's surprise contender, and the heavily backed Mate, preakness winner.

Wins By 4 Lengths

Twenty Grand, the outstanding favorite in a field of 12 contenders, came with a smashing burst of speed to beat Sweep All by four good lengths, going away and bettered the Derby as well as the track record for the route of one mile and a quarter.

The big eastern colt, under a masterful ride by Charley Kurtsinger, riding his first Derby victor, covered the distance in the brilliant time of 2 minuter. 1 4-5 seconds on a track ligh'ning fast under a blazing sun.

This performance displaced the former Derby record of 2:03 3-5 made by the famous Rosebud in 1914. It also knocked off the track mark of 2:03 1-5, credited to the seven-year-old and lightly weighted Woodtrap, six years ago. It was short of the world's record of 2 minutes flat, held by the mighty Whiskbroom II.

A colorful crowd of nearly 60,000 spectators responded to the thrill of Twenty Grand's great feat with an ovation rivalling that accorded the popular conquest of Eadie Sande and Gallant Fox a year ago.

Strongly supported right down to post time, Twenty Grand, for each $2 ticket in the mutuels paid $3.76 to win; $3 to place and $2.60 to show.

Sweep All Surprises

Sweep All, owned by Charles T. Fisher, Detroit surprised the talent by giving the favorite a race and beating the second choice, Albert C. Bostwick's Mate, by three lengths. Sweep All paid $15.56 to place and $7.16 to show. Mate paid the show price of $3.62.

The race carried a gross value of $58,725 and was worth $48,725 to Twenty Grand. Sweep All won $6,000 for his owner, while Mate took the third price, $3,000 and Spanish Play fourth money of $1,000.

Lubbock Golfers Defeat Amarillo

The Lubbock High school golf team defeated the Amarillo High golfers at the Lubbock Country club course yesterday, winning three out of four matches.

Some of the most sensational shooting seen lately on the course was done when J. K. Bradshaw shot a 39 going out and a sizzling 34 coming in to defeat Shull of Amarillo, 3 and 4. The match was played out and Shull's total was 76 to Bradshaw's 73, one above par for the course.

Edgar Doherty defeated "Little Red" Allen, champion of the Amarillo High golfers, 5 and 4, and Lawrence Doherty won over Ralph Alkire, 2 and 1. Bell, the fourth Lubbock shooter, lost his match to McDavid of Amarillo, 3 and 1.

There was a length of open water showing between the stern of the big Red shell and the bow of the Blue at the finish. Princeton was almost four lengths further back.

Lamesa Loboes Beat Hubbers, 4 To 3, To Even Series

Lubbock Fails To Slug Where Bingles Count

Britt And Sollis Hit Hard In Second Of Series; Teams To Play This Afternoon At 3 On Lamesa Field

The Lubbock and Lamesa baseball players partook of the convention spirit Friday night, and yesterday afternoon at Merrill Park they showed it. While the game, won by Lamesa by a count of 4 to 3, was not exactly scrubby, it lacked much of the fire and pepper that characterized the opening of the season and of the series Thursday afternoon.

The Lamesa Loboes hit Southpaw Sollis, freshman at Texas Tech, twice in the second inning and men who had previously walked and were safe on an error breezed over the plate three times and in the seventh two errors by Clarence Hodges and Ed Hambright paved the way for another run which proved the winning margin.

Hubbers were unable to hit in the pinches and the end of nearly every inning found Hubbers on the sacks. Airtight fielding on the part of Lamesa's garden patrol, particularly on the part of Gus Ragsdale, center fielder, proved disadvantageous to the Hubber hopes, the fluffy outfielder making a couple of as beautiful sackings that have been seen on the local field in some time. The fielders rather than the hitters won the victory for Lamesa, evening the two-game series. Lubbock won Thursday's game, 6-1.

Britt pitched for the Loboes but in every inning save the ninth was touched for safe bingles. He batted .500. hitting a double and a single in the course of the day's work. Sollis for Lubbock appeared to be handling a baseball for about the second time this year, probably having thrown the first one out from the stands, and, while he may develop into an effective wrong hander, his offerings found ready bats in the hands of the Loboes.

The Hubbers scored in the second when Buddy Brothers singled, got to second on Peterson's fumble at the plate and scored on Ernest Dowell's single to right. Galey walked and Sollis hit into a double play. Again in the fifth they scored. Hodges was hit, Hambright walked for the third time, Marshall popped out to first, Gaither to center, and Brothers singled to score the Iron Man of Tech's backfield. In the sixth, after two outs, Waller walked, stole second and scored on Hodges' single. That was all.

The teams meet this afternoon at 4 o'clock at Lamesa, the Hubbers playing a return game at the lair of the Loobes.

NAMED VICE-PRESIDENT

Jack Brannen, postmaster at Littlefield, was among the Texas postmasters who were named vice-presidents of the state organization at the recent state convention in Laredo. Mr. Brannen, well known over the South Plains, was chosen third vice-president.

PETTY THEFTS REPORTED

Petty thefts reported to police Saturday included that of a pair of gray trousers, pockets of which contained small change, from the Ford Fillingham residence at 1922 Thirteenth street.

Dr. D. A. Penick, 64, has coached University of Texas tennis teams which have won 23 Southwest conference titles in a row.

To stimulate attendance, Beaumont in the Texas league has asked permission to play one home game a week at Port Arthur.

Collier Parris SPYING ON SPORTS

And now all there is to do is to get ready for the West Texas Golf association tournament. There's not much getting ready left to be done, however, because the advance details have been covered fairly well by an energetic crew of Lubbock Country clubites.

As has been hinted previously, this tournament begins Thursday with an 18-hole qualifying round of medal play. Therein we find just a bit of fault with the sponsors. It will be hard to determine a medalist out of a field of some six or seven hundred golfers when only 18 holes of qualifying play are employed. A hundred or more are likely to shoot the same score.

Lubbock will pin its hopes on a newcomer, Gibson Payne. Payne has led the Country Club golfers since his arrival here last winter, shooting a 72-hole score of 312 that has kept him ahead of a field of nearly 100 in the ladder tournament. He played with Walter Hagen and Joe Kirkwood in an exhibition match here in February and his score compared favorably with those of the great pros. He's a good golfer, an especially good driver and exercises control over every shot. If we remember the exhibition correctly, his greatest weakness lay in approach shots. On the the green he was as good as holed out, beating even the great Hagen with the putter.

This department enjoyed a brief conversation with William E. Huff, of the Wichita Falls Spudders, during the convention last week. Huff appears to be little downcast over the present pace of the Spudders in the Texas League race, believing they will stage a rally a little later on that will bring them to the top. "Don't believe it will be the wisest thing to do to win the first half of the season, provided the season is split, because a first half winner rarely wins in the playoff," Huff stated.

J. O. Smith of local drug store and golfing fame introduced us to Huff as an old team mate. It seems that J. O. was once a baseball player as well as a golfer. And do you know who really started golf in Lubbock? None other than J. O. himself, and when he told us that he might have hurt himself. Either he started young or Lubbock does not possess a lengthy golf history. We were also introduced to Curtis Keen, a delegate to the convention from Fort Worth. Keen and J. O. claim to have played the first golf in Lubbock. Perhaps someone cares to object to that and we would welcome any well founded reasons why these gentlemen were not the first to play the honorable game.

If Managers Chism and Waller can hold their present lineup of Lubbock Hubbers together and add a couple of pitchers they will have one of the best amateur teams in this section of the country and perhaps the best to represent Lubbock since the flourishing days of the old West Texas League. The boys in the opening games Friday and Saturday displayed an ability to hit and catch the apple, and that ability makes baseball players.

We would like to see Lubbock in the new West Texas league, but it would be ridiculous to become a member of that organization and expect that players and expenses would be paid out of the gate receipts. For the people of Lubbock just will not turn out to a baseball game. The contest Friday between Lubbock and Lamesa was one of the best displays of amateur baseball we have seen in many a day. Except for one inning when the Loboes let up to let in a flock of runs the game was airtight, three up and three down for a number of innings, and well worth the attention of fandom. When Lubbock gets baseball minded then Lubbock can see some good games. The players just naturally play better when someone is watching them. Not 100 people were at either game at Merrill Park Friday and Saturday.

Merrill Park has been repaired to the extent of building a couple of sections of new fence, cleaning and refinishing the grandstand and placing a new bunch of wire netting before the stands. The players are here and ready to play, but they will not play, and we don't blame them, unless a greater number of fans turn out.

The Hubbers are in Lamesa today for a return game with the Loboes, and we'll bet a bunch of counterfeit bills to a leadless pencil that three times as many fans see the game than saw both of the Lubbock games.

Progress Made In Club Work

New Project Is Undertaken By Four-H Boys Club Members In Hale County; Roy Davis In Charge Of Work

PLAINVIEW, May 16—(Special)—The 4-H Boys club work in Hale county, under the direction of Roy Davis, county agent, is making rapid progress along many lines including dairying, poultry raising, soil conservation, feed growing and seed selection.

During 1930, however, a new project was undertaken, that of proper feeding and caring for baby beeves. Some outstanding records were made by the 4-H club members. Of the twenty-one calves grown and fed out, and shown at the Lubbock Fat Stock show, several times the original investment was realized in net profits by several of the exhibitors.

This week County Agent Davis, in company with some of his club boys, and their fathers, visited the Hereford farm of John Gist, at O'Donnell and selected twelve outstanding calves from the herd to be used in their feeding project in the club work for 1931. Five top calves were selected from George Boles' herd at Midland, four from W. K. Dickinson at Lubbock, and four from Fred Weyl at Plainview.

O'Hara Watts Of Southern Methodist Wins Southwest Loop Golfing Honors

BY BILL PARKER
Associated Press Sports Writer

DALLAS, May 16.—O'Hara Watts, Southern Methodist University, turned in twenty-seven holes of super-golf here today to defeat John Falconer also of S. M. U., for the 1931 Southwest Conference links title, 10 and 9. Watts, playing over the Dallas Country Club course, shot the kind of golf fairway victims dream about. From the twenty-seven holes, he gathered eleven birdies. He entered the phenomenal class in the afternoon round when he contributed a marvelous putting game to register five consecutive birdies. It was a case of where near par and par golf played by Falconer meant nothing, and in some cases, birdies by Falconer failed to win holes.

The match was scheduled for thirty-six holes, but Watts finished it at the twenty-seventh after a morning round of 35-35—70 in which he sprinkled six birdies on his card.

Southern Methodist University made a clean sweep of this year's tournament. Falconer won the qualifying round with a medal score of 77. The Southern Methodist team of Falconer, Watts, Lindsay and Becker won the team championship, and today Watts closed the tournament with one of the finest rounds of golf played on the Dallas Country Club course in years.

Where West Texas Golfers Will Meet This Week For Annual Tournament

Approximately 750 golfers will gather here next Thursday to tee off in the 18-hole qualifying round which precedes the seventh annual West Texas Golf Association tournament. Coming from about 30 clubs over West Texas, from Fort Worth to El Paso, the golfers will converge on the Lubbock Country Club course, scenes of which are pictured above, for four days of tournament. Preliminaries will begin with the qualifying round and work up to the final 36-hole championship match on Sunday.

The W. T. C. of C. convention is over and many of you have not had the opportunity to inspect this new Tire that is being shown for the first time in West Texas. You will be astounded with this remarkable new tire as thousands of others have been.

The acceptance of this new tire over the nation is beyond the demands of the present manufacturing out-put. The Seiberling factory is running 24 hours every day with three 8 hour shifts.

This sensational demand for the foremost in the tire field has made possible to employ 1000 more jobless men.

Tech's Extension Work Now Recognized By Association Of Nation's Best Schools

Accepance Of College's Application Into Body Puts Work yard, Columbia, Others

The extension department of Texas Technological college now is recognized by Harvard University, Columbia, Chicago, and scores of other leading universities of the United States as a result of admission of the college into the National University Extension Association at the national convention in Boulder, Colorado, Thursday, J. F. McDonald, head of the department said Saturday after his return from the convention. The association meets at Minneapolis in 1932.

Tech's department, only four years old, was admitted after a year's application in which the work being done was thoroughly investigated, Mr. McDonald said.

Is Second Texas Member

Acceptance of Tech into the association makes it the second school in the state to become a member, the University of Texas being the only other Texas school in the association.

Ohio State, Syracuse University and the University of Hawaii were the only other schools admitted into the association which is composed of the nation's leading educational institituions. Members include the universities of Alabama, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Chicago, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maine, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Washington, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Carolina, North Dakota, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Pittsburgh, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Utah, Virginia, West Virginia, Wisconsin and Iowa State college, Massachusetts Department of Education, Harvard, Rutgers, New York U., Columbia, Penn State College, College of William and Mary, Washington University and State College of Washington.

Growth Revealed

The growth of the Tech department as revealed in Mr. McDonald's report to the association was somewhat of a marvel to the other members. In the short space of four years the department has grown from 386 students taking 546 courses to 1,148 students enrolled for 1,703 courses at the present time. A total of 250 different subjects are offered in the work of the department now.

Through the extension department, the Tech not only serves the students who are financially able to come to college for residence work but also the students who are not financially able to lay asids their vocations for residence work. Adult education is a distinctive function of the extension work.

Students, under the plan operated by the Tech, may complete from one-fourth to one-half of their college work for degree by extension courses. Students may also do one-half of the work required for a teacher's certificate by correspondence study.

Harte Elected

made a short talk of renunciation that dispelled a flurry of acrimony creeping into high circles Friday and brought harmony to the board in its closing session.

"Mr. Harte will tell you that I have been for him from the start, and that I couldn't possibly take this post myself," Cline said, after Chester Harrison, Brownwood, had placed him in nomination. The Wichita Falls man went on: "The only reason I have allowed my name to be presented was because I heard there were a few fellows who wanted to take a shot at me. This was their opportunity, and since they have not done so, I am now withdrawing my name and asking that Mr. Harte be elected by acclamation."

Cline did not elaborate, but it was known he was referring to differences of opinion between himself and others in connection with the WTCC's oil policy.

Tribute To Harte

Harte, an unwilling nominee because private business affairs are getting him a run for his money, heard himself praised as "preeminently the man for the place". He was placed in nomination by Amon G. Carter, a fellow publisher from Fort Worth. Carter said the presidency of the WTCC was, in his opinion more important than the governorship, and he wanted to see some one elected who would be "everlastingly on the job, one who will have the support of the entire territory."

Seconding the nomination, Spencer Wells pictured the San Angeloan as "safe, sane, with his feet on the ground."

Harte replied briefly. He felt like Mark Twain's mule, he said, "without pride of ancestry or hope 'of posterity," but would do his best. No one, he said, could accept such a place without seeing its responsibilities, and he wanted "to serve notice on you other fellows who could have had the job if you'd said 'yes' that you are gong to be called on for some work."

Farewell By Coombes

Both the speaker and directors were visibly moved by the brief, earnest talk of the outgoing president. Judge Chas. E. Coombes of Stamford. He bore down heavily on the harmony note, taking his cue from the WTCC's new slogan, "Shoulder to Shoulder."

"To me," he said, "the presidency of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce is the most exalted post in the gift of the people—and when I say people I mean the people of West Texas, the finest who live. The emoluments of the office are without measure, greater than the possession of cattle on a thousand hills. If we have had any differences in the past, let us forget them and go on to the task in hand. The man you hate is the man you don't understand. Let us place our shoulders so close to the other fellow's that we can hear his heartbeats."

The new president is publisher of the San Angelo Standard and Times and associated in the publication of daily newspapers at Abilene, Sweetwater, Big Spring, Corpus Christi and Paris. He is a Missourian, a West Texan for little more than a decade, but outstanding in its affairs. He is raspy, impulsive, sometimes misunderstood because of his predilection of sepaking out in meeting, but he has a notoriusly big heart. He prides himself on "being against more things than any other West Texan."

NEWS BRIEFS

Celebrating the birthday of Guy Casey, one of the members of the fire department, members of the city commission, firemen, city officials and friends will gather around a banquet table at the 19th Street station, Tuesday night. About thirty people are to be present. The affair is to start at 8:15.

Eleven students were graduated from Hardy school at commencement exercises last night. Judge T. S. Brown addressed the class and diplomas were presented by Miss Mae Murfee, Lubbock county school superintendent.

"That's the best airport I ever landed on," declared Lt. B. B. Owens of Dallas Saturday after he had taxied his plane up to the hangar at the Lubbock municipal airport. Lt. Owens brought Congressman H. W. Sumner to the convention.

"Your airport is a credit to Lubbock and would be to any city in the southwest," he added. Two other pilots who arrived in another plane concurred with him in his statements.

Crosbyton business men are discussing the reorganization and revivalization of the chamber of commerce according to Edgar Hutchinson, county judge, here yesterday. Committees have been at work for several days on the project and it is expected the C C movement will be back in full swing shortly. Presence of the convention helped the program according to Judge Hutchins.

Farmers of Terry county are busy getting their crops in the ground and thousands of acres a day were planted this week, J. E. Shelton, veteran secretary of the chamber of commerce, said yesterday. Mr. Shelton attended the sessions of the W. T. C. C. while here.

George E. Lance of Morton, stopped here Friday enroute home from a trip to Brownwood and other points in South Texas. He visited the Rio Grande valley for the third time, he said and found farmers harvesting sweet corn and other early vegetables.

Cake filling is to be made on a commercial scale in a factory established at Slaton by two Slaton women, Mrs. G. E. Lyle and Mrs. Ella Gentry. The filling is a registered product and may be used in preparing cakes, pies, desserts and many other foods, operators of the factory said. A trade-mark for the product, selected by a group of Slaton people has been registered at the United States patent office. The design was drawn by Luster Gentry.

Students Enjoy Affair

Texas Tech students enjoyed the convention activities, sitting in on sessions and taking notes of proceedings. Others helped with the three big shows, engineering, chemistry and textile. It was estimated that hundreds of West Texans who had never been in the institution before, visited the school and saw the work done by students.

The Senate measure contains $250,000 for a new library at Tech, sought for the last six years, and an appropriation for a dairy unit, needed because of the large increase in the study of dairying.

The house bill ommitted all the building program with the exception of a $40,000 hospital for the College of Industrial Arts at Denton and $25,000 for a museum at the West Texas Teachers' College, Canyon. The salary reductions in the house bill range from 5 to 10 per cent.

Eli Track Stars Take Meet Over Nassau By Good Count

PRINCETON, N. J., May 16. (AP)—Yale's wide margin of superiority in the field events enabled the Eli trackmen to overcome a thirty point lead which the Tigers gained in the track events and the Bulldogs downed their Nassau rivals this afternoon, 71 1-2 to 63 2-3.

Joe Crowley of Yale was the high scorer in the meet with a ten point total gained from firsts in the shotput and the discus. He set a new meet record in the latter event with a mark of 141 feet 10 1-2 inches.

Thanks Are Extended To Lubbock For Convention

In appreciation of the entertainment offered the thirteenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, members of the convention work committee passed the following resolution Saturday:

RESOLUTION OF THANKS

The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is highly appreciative of the many courtesies extended the visitors, members, and officials during the Thirteenth Annual Convention by the host city, Lubbock, and takes this method of expressing its thanks. Lubbock, the Hub of the Plains, has fully demonstrated that its reputation for hospitality of the highest order is justified to the fullest and earned in the greatest measure.

The three day stay in the city has been extremely enjoyable, and everything has been done that could for the comfort of the visitors, and the welfare of the convention.

We especially thank the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce, President, C. E. Maedgen, Manager A. B. Davis, and the efficient corp of committee chairmen and members for the magificent manner in which the arrangements for the entertainment of this convention were made and carried out. To our local directors, Homer D. Grant, and Spencer A. Wells, we are grateful for their splendid co-operation and interest.

We also appreciate the co-operation of Mayor J. J. (Jerry) Clements and other city officials of Lubbock and thank them for their contribution to the success of this occasion.

To the Texas Technological College, President Paul W. Horn, the faculty, and officials go our sincere thanks for their whole-hearted co-operation in our convention program, plans, and work. We are especially grateful for the wonderful pageant given for our entertainment on Friday evening by the college.

We further thank the newspapers of Lubbock, the press of the country, the American Legion, the hotels, the Boy Scouts organization, the ladies, and the bands of Lubbock for their magnificent contribution to the entertainment, comfort and welfare of the convention.

To the bands of the West Texas territory that came to Lubbock without the incentive of a contest, we are indeed indebted. They have added greatly to the pleasure of the convention program.

We especially thank our distinguished U. S. Senator, Tom Connally, for his participation in our entire program, and his presence during all of our deliberations and program.

Respectfully submitted:

Walter D. Cline, Wichita Falls, chairman; Clifford B. Jones, Spur; L. S. Kinder, Plainview; J. D. Hamlin, Farwell; Chester Harrison, Brownwood; Henry F. Fletcher, Alpine; Wilbur C. Hawk, Amarillo; Arthur P. Duggan, Littlefield, and by Charles E. Coombes of Stamford, president, and D. A. Bandeen, general manager.

time, over 180 depositions have been filed, giving testimony and statements by persons who cannot come here for the trial. These depositions have entailed the expenditure of approximately $3,600 in witness fees and court costs, Charles B. Metcalfe, district court clerk, estimates.

Costs of $300 were reported for one deposition. Many others have cost as high as $50 to $75, while numerous others have averaged $25 or more

In addition to these, there will be many witnesses, variously estimated at from 50 to 200 in number.

Judge Clark M. Mullican of the 99th district court, in giving instructions to the jury last week to arrange for a lengthy trial said in his opinion the case would last "until July 1."

1932 Convention

$30, $25, $20, $15 and $10.

Three Are Judges

Judges in the contest were: Miss Annah Jo Pendleton, head of the speech department at Texas Tech, Prof. R. A. Mills and J. W. Jackson, both of the college.

The six contestants in the finals were chosen in three sets of preliminaries from among 41 entries out of 51 towns that held contests. Judge C. M. Caldwell, chairman of the contest, said. "There were no best six," the chairman explained. "There were 41 top market entries. We just selected six of them." After the contest it was announced that the Dallas Chamber of Commerce and Mr. Caldwell had each contributed $100 toward the contest besides the cup by Colonel Etheredge. Two towns have won it twice, the first to win the third time, will receive the cup permanently.

Coombes Presides

President Coombes presided at the opening session. After the invocation by Rev. Walter P. Jennings of the First Christian church, Walter D. Cline, chairman of the resolutions committee, presented a series of resolutions, mostly from the agricultural and crop production groups. These were all adopted unanimously. One by Mr. Cline personally, submitted after some of the committee members had left, relating to proposed and pending truck regulation legislation, was laid on the table.

The president announced a committee of Clifford B. Jones, Amon G. Carter, Judge Bricken and Wyatt Hedrick to escort Senator Tom Connally to the platform. Paul Seeds' Caballeros of Wichita Falls, present for the session as for the other general sessions, sought permission to be named the official W. T. C. C. band. "I suggest that the Caballeros make request to the executive board to become the official band," said the president, "and also any others if you think you can compete with them."

Male Quartet Here

Vocal numbers were rendered by the Chillicothe High school male quartet, with Mrs. W. M. Gourley accompanist.

In presenting the new president and other officials to the convention Judge Coombes also presented D. A. Bandeen, general manager and Maury Hopkins, assistant general manager. Besides Mr. Harte, Spencer A. Wells, the second vice president and A. J. Swenson, the treasurer, were introduced. Wilbur C. Hawk, the first vice president, was not present.

Judge Bogle of Marfa, in a short talk, invited the members of the organization to the annual field day of the Big Bend country at Marfa on June 18 and 19.

Nominations for the convention city were made as follows: Rev. George Green for Sweetwater; Wallace Clark of Canyon for Amarillo; George Barber for Mineral Wells and Congressman Hatton W. Sumner of Dallas for Dallas.

In presenting the Etheredge cup to Joe Witherspoon, Judge Caldwell said, "I had rather be the winner of this cup than sit in Ross Sterling's chair."

Underpass Will Open On June 8

Completion of the Santa Fe underpass two miles south of Monroe is announced for June 8, Guy R. Johnston, construction engineer of the state highway department said.

"The Santa Fe has advised me that they will complete the underpass and have it ready by June 8," Mr. Johnson said. "The contractor on No. 9 north tells me he will continue on the slab north from the airport to the curve south of Monroe. It is cheaper, because of the freight rate, to bring materials here to Lubbock.

"The Interstate Construction company will not move its equipment to Monroe for about three weeks. By that time they will be at the underpass."

The slab on No. 9 has been completed from the Municipal airport five miles north of town, to Third street, although not all of it has been opened to traffic.

largely a local problem. These criminal gangs commit ten violations of state law to one violation of a federal statute. Nevertheless this department has gone a considerable way to help break down these criminal organizations. . . .

"We are not through . . . . but . . . . until state police and magistrates, stimulated by public opinion, take hold of this problem it will not be solved."

Continue Efforts

The attorney general served notice that the efforts of the justice department in enforcement of federal statutes including prohibition will be "unremitting."

"During the next three months," he said, "regional conferences attended by assistant attorneys general will be held with groups of United States attorneys and prohibition administrators to take stock of our present situation and complete the coordination between the prosecuting attorneys and the prohibition bureau which was the purpose of the transfer of the unit to this department, and in other respects to continue activity for effective enforcement of all federal criminal laws."

The attorney general said that until the additional force of about 450 dry agents authorized at the last session of congress is fully trained and assigned to duty it will not be known "whether additional federal forces are required to perform that share of the work which properly belongs to the federal government."

Jury Deadlocked In Trial And Case Reset For June 11

BEAUMONT, May 16. (AP) — After being deadlocked 11 to 1 for a conviction for 25 hours, the jury in the murder case of Joe Mier, tried on a charge of fatally shooting Moise Boudreaux at Port Acres, August 23, 1930, was dismissed shortly after five o'clock here this afternoon. The case was reset for June 11.

Mier testified in criminal district court that he shot Boudreaux as a result of a quarrel which grew out of a "rotten egg fight" between Mier and Ed Menard, Boudreaux's stepfather, about 12 years ago.

Story Of Dallas Traces Metropolis Of Today From Its First Hut In 1841; Trinity City Seeks '32 Convention

BY BEN CRITZ,
Vice Pres. and General Manager
Dallas Chamber of Commerce

DALLAS, May 16.—A year ago some twenty of Dallas' important business men chartered a special train and make a week's journey through West Texas to check information that continued to be brought them about that section of the state.

The reports had been glowing, filled with such phrases as "fastest growing part of the state", "the people are wide awake to every opportunity," "fifteen minutes after a rain West Texas can come back from its most terrible drought-born depression," "men are making a garden from a desert," and other startling assertions, which to the stranger, might easily be taken for exaggerations.

"Wanted To Check Up"

"Not that I doubt my salesman's story" one of the men said as he started out on the trip. "His orders tally with his verbal reports. But I want to see for myself."

When the special train, named the "Presidents' Special" because of the calibre of men who were its passengers, returned to Dallas, each of the phrases above was checked and marked "O. K."

And thus it is with every returned traveller. Each adds another tribute to the men who are making history in the western part of the state. One man said that "West Texas was peopled with pioneers. The blood of the pioneer still flows in the blood of the sons of these men. They are building a monument more enduring than marble, more lasting than bronze."

Coming Out Strong

That is why the Dallas Chamber of Commerce is finding no difficulty in organizing a delegation to the Thirteenth annual convention of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to be held in Lubbock this week. Those who have been to West Texas want to come back. Those who have not are anxious to come and see for themselves this great section of the state which is adding so bright a chapter in the history of the new Texas, and to meet face to face the men who are writing that history.

These men are coming to visit West Texas. Knowing the reception they are to receive they are going to ask West Texas to return the visit. It will not be a "come-to-see-me-some-time" invitation, either. It will be a definite, sincere, wholehearted invitation, extended formally from the convention floor, for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce to select Dallas for its 1932 convention place.

Want Convention

This article is in the nature of a fore-runner to that invitation. It is to show, needlessly perhaps for most West Texans, something of the nature of the city extending the invitation; the background and the foundation that went into the building of Dallas.

Briefly, here is the story of Dallas:

In 1841, John Neely Bryan, an adventurer from Tennessee, hobbled his horse on the East bank of the Trinity River and prepared to make camp for the night. As far as his eye could see were rolling prairies—timbered bottom lands and grassy uplands—traversed only by Indian trails and buffalo paths. He spread a heavy blanket on the ground, rested his head on his saddle and slept.

First Hut Built

In his dreams that night, mayhap, Bryan visioned a populous and prosperous city that was to arise, as though by magic, where he slept; or perhaps he saw only the wondrously fertile soil—promising abundant grain and cotton crops—for which he had been searching. Howbeit, in the morning, he began the building of a rude hut. And thus founded Dallas, Texas, now one of America's greatest commercial centers.

Bryan soon was joined by other rugged pioneers from his native Tennessee and their huts formed the nucleus of a tiny village which was called Peter's Colony. In 1845, however, the name was changed to Dallas, in honor of George Mifflin Dallas, who was Vice President under Polk. Sixty years ago—in 1871 when Dallas had grown to a thriving community of 5,000 persons, it was incorporated as a city.

Forges To Front

From its incorporation, Dallas has forged steadily ahead and for the last ten years has been the mercantile and financial hub of the Southwest. Today, where the lone pioneer's campfire burned only 90 years ago, is the third largest farm implement district in the world. Only a stone's throw from his hut, now towers the magnificent 29-story Magnolia Building and other great skyscrapers. These great commercial edifices, however, also were built by pioneers and they are occupied by pioneers who see far ahead of the Dallas of today as did John Neely Bryan ahead of the primeval view that caused him to cease his wandering and build a home.

Dallas is lacking in ancient landmarks. No moldering ruins stand as a memento to the generations past. Its skyline is famous throughout the nation, containing some 148 buildings of skyscraper proportions. Agriculture was largely responsible for the early development of the city, as it is located in the heart of the nation's largest "black-land belt," famous for its fertility, which has been continuously cropped for generations and, until recently, with but little attention being given to fertilization. Then came the city's development as a distributing center.

Transportation Varied

From Dallas now, instead of the Indian trails and buffalo paths, its founders followed, go out railroads, paved highways, air lines, and, within a few years will be completed the canalization of the Trinity River and a new outlet to the sea.

Nine trunk-line steam railroads and their subsidiaries serve Dallas, making good connections in all directions. Dallas is located on several Federal paved highways. It is an important aviation and airmail center. Dallas ranks first in per capita express business in the nation, ranks twenty-third in postal receipts, and seventeenth in bank clearings.

Dallas, as the chief financial and distributing center of the Southwest, also is the home of the Federal Reserve Bank of the Eleventh District. It has jumped from 68th city in population rank in the United States in 1900 to approximately 34th today. There are 261,000 persons in the city proper and about 40,000 more in its larger suburbs. Its incorporated area is 46.1 square miles.

Unique Biplane To Tour World

The biplane in which Mr. and Mrs. Charles Healy Day expect to make a world tour is shown above at Teterboro airport, New Jersey, where it has undergone numerous tests. The plane, designed by Day, has an unusual tail construction which is said to eliminate stalling danger and which permits it to land in an almost vertical line. Day and his wife are shown below.

Greta Garbo Likes Sun, Solitude And Sardines; Answers Swedish Fan Mail

BY HUBBARD KEAVY
(Copyright, The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., May 16 (AP)—Her intimates call her "G. O." her co-workers call her a sphinx. Her mother calls her Greta Gustavson. To the world she is Greta Garbo.

She likes sun, solitude and sardines. She looks like a bronze goddess in a bathing suit. But there are no photographs of her in beach wear. She was brought to Hollywood, an unknown at $150 a week. She was a "publicity call girl" at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer who spent most of her time posing for stunt pictures. The negatives have been destroyed.

Answers Fan Mail

She answers fan mail—but only when it bears a Swedish postmark. The tone of most of the letters from admirers in her native country is: "why do you always play bad women on the screen? Swedish girls are not like that." She replied that she is sorry, but that she has nothing to say about the kind of roles she plays.

She prefers the company of German speaking people. Her English is good and her accent slight, but she can't help making "J" sound like "Y". She has well shaped feet, about size 5 1-2 but her shoes are one and one half to two sizes larger. She wants to avoid unshaply feet.

She plays tennis like a man and has a lot of fun doing it.

She isn't as much of a recluse as she is believed to be. Greta has been to Agua Caliente, the Mexican border playground, and she has spent several week-ends at a nearby mountain resort.

Clothes Conscious

In the last few months she has become clothes-conscious and is paying more attention to her dress.

She seldom converses with anyone connected with the making of her pictures, even her director.

Her favorite expression is "Oh, father knows best."

She sings badly and likes to imitate other stars.

disturbances some groups of monarchists were concentrating arms and ammunition and apparently preparing to attempt a coup—perhaps for the return of former King Alfonso. Whether this was planned with Alfonso's knowledge or approval was not answered by officials.

The Republican government is a target for crossfire between the monarchists and extreme lefts, each equally dissatisfied but for different reasons. One side wants the former moparch back, the other wants a regime similar to Russia's. The bulk of middle-class Spaniards want peace.

In the car with President Hoover on his trip to the camp were Edward H. Butler, publisher of the Buffalo Evening News, and Mrs. Butler and Senator Hastings, Republican, of Delaware.

Mrs. Hoover arrived just before lunch, accompanied by Mrs. Wilbur. Other interior department officials arrived with their wives at intervals during the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hoover, Jr., arrived before lunch. It was his first visit since last fall when he spent nearly two months there receiving treatment for incipient tuberculosis.

West Texas Chamber of Commerce, closing yesterday, proved conclusively the effectiveness of the group conference plan, D. A. Bandeen, general manager of the regional organization, said last night in summarizing the results of the thirteenth annual meeting.

"In my opinion the group conference type of convention worked and was successful," he said. "I hope this plan will be adopted as the permanent type for our future convention.

Produce Results

"The group conferences produced more constructive results, as far as our work program and platform were concerned, than the conventions of the old style," he said.

Manager Bandeen said he was pleased with the type of delegations attending the meeting.

"This convention was attended unusually well by business leaders of our affiliated towns," he said. "The number of our affiliations attending the meeting also was very gratifying.

"As far as registration and the 'My Home Town' contest, were, all convention records were broken.

"A great portion of the credit for the success of the annual convention should go to the City of Lubbock", he said. "Lubbock had the facilities necessary to make the convention most convenient. I am very grateful to the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce for the part it played in making the convention a success.

"I am very proud of the work of Maury Hopkins, assistant manager of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce, in charge of the Plainview branch office, as our convention manager."

jail with a special delivery letter. Postal authorities are also at work on the case.

Conner Is Leader

The ringleader of the prisoners was J. D. Conner, against whom swindling charges were dismissed last week, but who was to have been taken to Huntsville next week to start serving two fifteen year and one five year sentences on charges of robbery with firearms and assault with firearms. He was sentenced from San Antonio at the time charges against him of extortion from R. W. Morrison, San Antonio capitalist, were dismissed.

The men crept up on D. S. Thompson, chief deputy sheriff, removed his gun at the point of a pistol and sawed off shotgun which they had secured from the room of August Leudecke, jailer, who was ill. First they had overpowered a trusty, covered him with a "gun," and taken his keys and for fifteen or twenty minutes they were in charge of the jail until they walked downstairs. The break occurred at 7:30 o'clock this morning.

Keys Are Found

Later in the day, keys were found at the intersection of two roads about 12 miles southwest of San Angelo, lending strength to the officers' theory that the men headed for the Mexican border.

The men took their extra clothing from their cells and also some food and it is believed they could remain in hiding for some time. The car they were driving was out of gasoline.

The gang would not release the other prisoners in the jail and even threatened to kill one of them so he could not tell anything, prisoners said. They locked the officers in the cells they had vacated before they departed.

Those escaping, in addition to Conner, were: William Quinn, under sentences for burglary, arson and theft at Conroe totaling 6 years, mistrial declared here last week in his trial on charges of robbing a local store; Cline Powell under sentence of five years for hijacking here and facing other charges of robbery by firearms; R. E. "Blackie" Martin, indicted on two charges of theft here, Al Pitts, indicted for car theft here extradited from Oklahoma where he formerly lived.

Conner, a former school teacher and athlete before he turned criminal, was reported to have told officers here he would never go to the penitentiary. Officers had been keeping a close watch over him ever since he was placed in jail here.

Cotton — Cotton Prices Go To New Lows — Livestock — Heavy Grades Move Downward — Grain — Wheat Tumbles To Low Levels

Cotton

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, May 16. (AP)—Cotton prices traded to new lows for the season in today's short session, under selling induced by lower Liverpool cables and a weak stock market.

The close showed a net decline of 11 to 13 points.

Liverpool came in 2 to 3 points lower than expected and private advices reported local, Continental and Bombay liquidation which was but off-set to some extent by trade selling and covering. Baisse in the English market were reported at 10,000 bales which minimized somewhat the bearish influences of the lower cables.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, May 16. (AP)—Better weather in the south relatively easy Liverpool cables and the unsettled ruling of the stock market were reflected by further declines in cotton today.

Moderate rallies on some trade buying and week-end covering during the middle of the morning were not maintained and the general market closed barely steady at net declines of 8 to 13 points.

Early offerings were quite readily absorbed by week-end covering, while there was also considerable trade buying presumably to fix prices on call cotton.

Stocks Ease Gently Saturday With Weakness Concentrated In Some Few

BY JOHN L. COOLEY,
Associated Press Financial Writer

NEW YORK, May 16. (AP)—Stocks eased gently today. Weakness was concentrated in a few shares, but the 90-issue Standard Statistics-Associated Press composite dipped just under its old bear market low, closing at 113.3 against the former minimum of 114.1. The industrial average missed its old low by a very small fraction, but the rails recorded a new bottom for the fifth successive day.

There was enough week-end covering to absorb most of the selling. U. S. Steel and American Can again softened, the latter dropping more than 5 points to a new low while steel duplicated yesterday's low and was off 1 5-8 net. Food shares, notably National Biscuit and Loose Wiles Biscuit, were sold, and so were New York Central and Canadian Pacific. General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Union Pacific and Bethlehem Steel were firm. American Telephone had a nominal loss. Sales totalled 900,000 shares.

Livestock

MIDDLEWESTERN LIVESTOCK

KANSAS CITY, May 16. (AP)—While some of the centers reported little change on the steers values for the week, downward tendencies were again the rule on the nearly grades, prices ranging 25-50 lower. The light lights, however, encountered enough late buying strength to eliminate some of the break and there were instances on the yearling offerings where advances of as much as 25 were scored. The markets had considerable unevenness and while better receipts should have been a bullish factor, the continued sluggishness of the dressed beef trade was enough to offset the diminished supply. Arrivals aggregated 178,700 as compared with 197,000 a week ago.

FORT WORTH LIVESTOCK

FORT WORTH, May 16. (AP)—Hogs 800; market steady to weak; fall and truck top 4.70; 3 loads fairly good around 230 pound mill butchers 4.70; few packing sows 3.50 or steady.

Cattle 400; today's trade nominal. For week: slaughter steers mostly 25c lower, slaughter yearlings steady to 25 cents more; butcher and beef cows 25 to 50c lower; cutters and low cutters 15 to 25c lower; bulls 25c or more lower; better grades slaughter calves including vealers about steady, in between grades around 50c lower; stock steers and yearlings 25-50c lower. Today's sales: Good steers 975; few yearlings 800; practical top fat cows 4.00; few choice vealers up to 6.00; practical top heavy fat calves 6.00; few up to 7.00; stock steer yearlings 7.00; bulls largely 3.00 down; few choice heifers 6.00-50; few head fat steers 6.00-7.75; better grades fat yearlings 7.00-7.75; butcher cows 3.25-3.75; low cutters 2.50-3.25; heavy fat calves around 6.00 down; better grades stock yearlings 6.50-7.00.

AUTOS STOLEN

A green Chevrolet coupe belonging to Vaughn Winn of 1312 Avenue K and a green Studebaker coupe owned by Lester B. Hodges of 419 Avenue M, Friday night, were reported stolen, according to police records.

Grain

FORT WORTH GRAIN

FORT WORTH, May 16. (AP)—Cash grain demand fair. Quotations ranged as follows, basis carloads delivered Texas common points, freight paid: Wheat No. 1 ordinary hard 61; 61 1-2c.

Corn: No. 3 mixed 68-69c; No. 3 white or yellow 68, 69 1-2c.

Oats: No. 2 red 36-36c.

Barley: No. 2 nominally 55-56c.

Sorghums: No. 2 milo per 100 pounds 134-136; No. 2 kaffir 129-134.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, May 16. (AP)—Swamped by several selling waves, wheat today tumbled to the lowest prices this month. Corn outdid the season's bottom level. Stock market weakness, drouth relief in Canada, and prospects of a bumper winter wheat crop in the United States were main incentives for sellers.

Wheat closed irregular, 1 3-4 cents lower to 1-4 advance, corn 2-4, 1-8 down, oats 3-4 to 1 cent off, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 12 cents.

New official estimates put 1931 winter wheat production for Texas and Oklahoma at 84,000,000 to 90,000,000 bushels each, which would mean 168,000,000 to 180,000,000 bushels for the two states. Prices were expected that a volume of hedging sales would quickly appear in connection with the appearance of this expected big yield. As a result, July delivery of wheat fell to a discount under September contracts.

Labor Charter Promised As Pope Is Heard

Catholic Leader Attempts To Elevate Workman's Status In Radio Address; Talks In Three Languages

BY JOHN EVANS
Associated Press Correspondent

VATICAN CITY, May 16. (AP)—Pope Pius XI promised the Catholic world a new charter of labor to elevate the workman's status in a radio address yesterday commemorating the 40th anniversary of Pope Leo's thirteenth's labor encyclical "rerum novarum."

This new charter will be issued in the form of a long encyclical entitled "quadragesimo anno" and will be published in about a week.

Broadcasting for the first time in the modern tongues of Italian, French and German successively, the pontiff said the economic world must be organized to achieve justice for the working man and laid great stress on three words which he said would express the meaning of the entire document—"prayer, action, sacrifice and the papal throne.

Charter Outlined

The church's new labor charter, which the pontiff had forecast, was outlined in a short enclycical published letter and was distributed to the pilgrims before his address. It was later read on the radio by Monsignor Francis J. Spellman, Whitman, Massachusetts.

In it the pope condemned extremists and said socialism and communism were incompatible with the church's principles.

He said there must be an overhauling of the economic system by "bringing it back to the requirements of social justice so as to insure more equitable distribution of the united proceeds of capital and labor."

Right Asserted

The pope asserted his own and the church's right to intervene in social problems such as are at issue in a world where there is too great injustice in the apportionment of the world's goods.

He pleaded for better relations between classes and the trade groups and declared the workers' wages must be adequate to meet all the proper needs of the working man and his family.

In a word, he added, the only real remedy is a return to the same principles of Christian social philosophy.

Long before the pope was to make his address St. Peter's square and the avenues leading to San Damaso countryard within the Vatican were filled with thousands of pilgrims bearing gaily colored flags.

Workers Greeted

The pontiff prefaced his address with a few words in Italian greeting the workers who had come from all over the world to attend the anniversary. He then repeated the greeting in French and German and launched into the main body of his address.

He spoke each of the three languages with equal facility and divided his talk into three sections.

Sweetwater Starts Planning For 1932 Convention Before Delegation Leaves Lubbock

Successful City in Fight To Entertain Next Session Plans To Outdo Lubbock In Entertainment

Sweetwater's delegation, which came here to win the 1932 convention for that city, already has started plans for the next year's meeting, according to John Hendrix, manager of the Board of City Development, who was in charge of the Sweetwater party.

Both Hendrix and D. A. Clark, Sweetwater's director in the West Texas organiaztion, were loud in their praise Saturday for the manner in which Lubbock entertained its guests. "We just hope to be able to handle the situation in Sweetwater next year as well as you have here, and want to extend an early invitation to Lubbock to visit us at that time. Certainly we want to repay the many favors shown us here, because it seems that every facility was placed at our disposal."

Hendrix, before leaving, conferred briefly with D. A. Bandeen, manager of the regional organization, concerning plans for the next meeting. They hope to enlarge on the conference idea, bringing outstanding leaders of industry to address the different groups. Leading manufacturers of steel, automobiles, packing concerns, railroad presidents, and other such executives are to be asked to address the conferences at Sweetwater.

This plan has been adopted because of the success of the Lubbock gatherings, Mr. Hendrix said, pointing out that the conference idea was used at the session for the first time this year.

Offer Reward In Firing Of Shops

DALLAS, May 16 (AP)—District Attorney William McCraw has announced a $200 reward for information leading to arrest and conviction of the men who Friday night fired into two cleaning and pressing shops here. Harry S. Pollard, assistant district attorney, was assigned to duty as special investigator.

Two establishments on Elm street were riddled with buckshot shortly after midnight. At one of them G. R. Walter escaped being shot by refusing to answer the telephone, directly in the line of fire. Buckshot was fired through the glass front while the telephone was ringing. Several weeks a go a bullet was fired into Walton's shop. Another place was dsmaged by dynamite about the same time. A grand jury investigated.

Officers of the Cleaners' and Pressers' association issued a statement deploring the offenses. T. A. Bordelon, secretary and treasurer, announced today that members of the organization would employ armed guards if the step became necessary.

Invasion Of Human Rights Through Religious Persecution Is Charged

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 16 (AP)—Invasion of human rights through religious persecution was charged to the Soviet Russian government in a resolution adopted by the Southern Baptist convention which called upon that government to grant its citizens "indefeasible rights of conscience in matters of religion."

The convention referred the resolution to a committee after it was read by Dr. L. E. Barton, secretary of the Alabama State Baptist convention but later unanimously passed it after the committee reported it favorably without modification.

Friendship Sent

The committee was directed to forward the resolution to the Soviet authorities on behalf of the 4,000,000 constituents of the convention. With it went "the good friendship of the convention toward all Russian people."

"If it is said by the Soviet government that there is no God," the resolution said, "our reply is that such declaration does violence to self-consciousness of the human mind and the heart which abundantly testified to the human spirit that there is a supreme being.

"All just human law and government must be based on this essential truth—human governments have no rights whatever in the matter of conscience. No earthly government has any right to require its citizens or subjects to be religious or to stop them from religious convictions and activities.

Persecution Cited

"We hold that the Russian government in its persecution of religion as expressed in the closing of the churches, discriminating against minister of religion, limiting of free speech and freedom of assembly, is not only violating the inherent rights of humanity but is hindering its own national development and endangering its own safety and solidarity as a nation.

"We appeal to the Soviet government in the name of reason, justice, conscience, humanity and God almighty that she fully recognize and cheerfully accord to all her citizens and subjects the indefeasible rights of conscience in all matters of religion."

The hangings began with the death Monday of Hugo Eickmann, who was found at his garage.

CLIMAXING social functions for students of Texas Technological college are proving to be among the gayest of the year and the days preceding "dead week" will be especially eventful. One of these affairs will be the Home Economics club picnic on Monday afternoon. This will honor senior girls in the club and the group is to meet at the home economics building at 5 o'clock and go from there to the specified picnic grounds. Miss Mabel Erwin is in charge of the opting.

Senior day has been designated for Thursday and plans are still tentative. The class dinner was given some weeks ago. Floyd Wooldridge and a committee are working out details.

Miss Jonnie McCrery, head of the department of foods of the Tech home economics school, and young women who reside at the home management house are to entertain with a reception Friday from 4:30 until 6 o'clock in the afternoon. This will honor senior girls in the school and is to be given in the home management house on the campus.

To Dance Thursday

Members of the Centaur club, an organization composed of several young men of Texas Technological college, are to entertain with an annual spring dance on Thursday evening.

The annual picnic for students in the engineering school and their friends has been scheduled for Friday evening at 6 o'clock and more definite plans are to be announced later.

Another social event of interest that is scheduled for Friday is the dawn dance and breakfast which will be attended by members of the D. F. D. club and their friends. The breakfast will be served for club members and several guests and about 85 are expected to attend the dance which begins at 6:15 o'clock.

A gala occasion which has been planned for some time is the garden dance to be given by members of Las Vivarachas club at the Hilton hotel on next Friday evening. Dancing will begin at 9 o'clock.

At 7 o'clock on the same evening there is to be an installation service for officers in the home economics club. This will be at the home management house and a social hour will follow.

Saturday afternoon, Misses Margaret Weeks and Mabel Erwin are to entertain with a reception honoring senior girls in the school of home economics. The affair will be at their home, 2421 Broadway.

Final College Dance

On Saturday evening, the final all-college dance of the year will be given at the college gymnasium.

Young men and women students who are members of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. of Texas Technological college are planning a retreat for next week-end. Harry Bone, regional secretary for the association, is to be on the campus at this time and will be in charge of the program.

Present plans include a supper and discussion Friday evening and on Saturday afternoon the group will go to a picnic spot and have discussion groups. This is an annual occasion.

Another attractive event which is given yearly on the campus is to be the garden party at which time new members in the Forum will be announced.

Definite announcements have not been made for this year but the affair is usually given on the lawn just south of the administration building and in the cloisters. A program on musical numbers and readings will be given and punch is served.

Bridesmaids Rival Bride In Costume

PRETTY as a picture is this bridesmaid's dress of pale peach chiffon, made with a deeply ruffled skirt, soft blue velvet girdle and something brand new in the way of bridesmaid's jackets, a quaint fichu cape that ties in the front and is removable. The flattering picture hat is of soft blue, tied with a pale peach velvet bow. The slippers are blue moire, with peach satin tips. (Costume from Bergdorf Goodman, New York.)

For the all-white June wedding, the distinguished maid of honor's gown shown at the right is classically simple, made of white marquisette, with narrow pleatings. Narrow pleated ruffles adorn the waistline and hipline and outline the round neckline.

DR. MYERS

Doctor Myers' Daily Column On Child Welfare

BY GARRY C. MYERS, PH. D.
Head Division Parental Education Cleveland College, Western Reserve University

ENTERTAINMENT OF CHILD

REFERRING to an earlier article of mine on the "Artist Parent," a mother writes:

"MY DEAR DR. MYERS:

"The outstanding sentence in the whole article, for me at least, was: 'Consider the achievement of the mother who has led her little child to entertain himself for hours while she makes plans for,' etc. That is just where I have failed. As a result I've starved for reading. I haven't the time.

"My little girl is eight, little boy three. The little boy is just now beginning to play alone just a bit, still he wants me with him, despite the fact that I have tried hard to teach him to rely on his own resources for entertainment, of course, with toys. Little girl is in third grade, yet she wants company afternoons and on Saturday of every day and week. Where have I failed?

"My neighbor says I should teach them to amuse themselves. That I am well aware of, but how? That is the question on which I would like something specific. Can you give me the specific help? I would greatly appreciate specific rather than general suggestions."

Answer: Perhaps you can persuade the girl to read to the three-year-old child, liberally praising her, even giving her rewards to do so.

Now, when you are with the little child alone, set a clock where you can see it, and make up your mind that you are going to read or pretend to read for fifteen minutes, say, to begin with. On beginning tell the child you are going to be busy now until the clock hand gets here (show the child where it is) and that you will not answer him nor play with him during that time. Then, no matter how much he cries or begs, stand by your resolve. Once he knows you will not amuse him he will learn to amuse himself, provided, of course, he has simple blocks and toys.

When he creates something, make a great ado about it. By and by extend your "busy" periods to more length. I know this will be hard for you to do, but if you are able to map out such a program and stick by it you will get results.

A good many children over three or four do not know how to amuse themselves. While it is desirable for them to spend much time at play with other children of their age, there are some times when the child is and ought to be alone. It is well to read a great deal to him then, but he should learn many ways of self-amusement. Provide ample materials, such as clay, crayons, paste, scissors, hammer, nails, saw and, if possible, a work bench, and set some definite periods aside for yourself when you are "too busy" to help him. Be sure to express strong appreciation of his inventions and creations. If you do not do too much for the toddler he naturally will learn to find enjoyment alone for hours at a time. It is the mother who does her own work, who is least likely, as a rule, to do too much to amuse her child. For-

Attendants' Costumes Are In Harmony With White Or Color

Bride Must Look Perfect To Outshine Bridesmaids At Her Marriage; One Color Wedding Smart

BY JULIA BLANSHARD
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, May 16—Any smart girl should be willing to risk the threat "three times a bridesmaid, never a bride," just to wear one of this June's bridesmaid's dresses.

They are so femininely alluring, so ravishingly becoming, it almost looks as if they were out to outdo the bride, or at least put her on her mettle to look absolutely perfect.

Three outstanding style points assail the eye in the pre-views of this June's wedding processions.

First and newest is the all-white wedding. Dress the maid of honor, the bridesmaids and all the wee attendants in the same chalk white of the bride's gown. Sheer, delicate, exquisite materials are used for the attendants. The bride may or may not wear satin, but the bridesmaids never do. They have either clinging, aluring chiffons, nets, laces, mousselaine de soie, or else crisp, fresh organdie, standing out in prim manner.

In all white weddings, the bridesmaids carry vivid flowers, perhaps American beauty roses or great armfuls of gay garden posies, in contrast with the bride's white. The maid of honor should mix her bouquet, some of the bride's white and some of the bridesmaid's colorful flowers.

Color Enters Wedding March

The second outstanding style innovation this year is the one-color wedding, with the bride in ice blue, pastel green, pale pink or ivory yellow.

Three tones of the color are used for this type of wedding procession. If the bride's gown is delicate green, the maid of honor is apt to wear a tone at least two shades deeper in green, with the bridesmaids wearing the green just between the bridal gown and the maid of honor's. Some rich, wonderful effects can be achieved.

The third style point and one that everybody's paying attention to, regardless of the color angle, is that little necessary article called the bridesmaid's jacket. Everybody's wearing one who lines up to help the bride and groom through with this promise. Not the maid of honor. She is distinguished by her lack of one. But the bridesmaids all have them this year. Often they are trifles in contrasting taffeta, boleros, bellhops, fitted, flaring, peplum, tied at the waistline with sash ends.

One of the prettiest wedding parties planned for this June will see the bride in pale pink, the bridesmaids in printed pink chiffons, with pink tulips in their printed gowns, and the maid of honor in a much deeper version of the same print. They can, you see, wear any customes they want just so the whole procession makes a perfect picture.

White Marquisette Fashions Costume

For an evening all white wedding a perfectly adorable maid of honor's costume is made of the sheerest white marquisette, with a slim silhouette achieved by pleating the marquisette to a very low skirt

To Be Hostess

MISS MARGARET MALLARD

As president of the Lubbock B. and P. W. club, which is a part of the hostess district for the state B. & P. W. meeting in Amarillo this week-end, Miss Mallard is to participate in entertainment in that city.

Entertainment Of Visitors To WTCC Supplants Routine

Many regular social activities of the city were postponed during the last few days in order that women might devote their time to visitors who were here for the West Texas Chamber of Commerce convention.

Those who were not busy with actual details of entertaining were working with committees in furnishing cars to take the visiting women to various places or were entertaining company in their homes.

Thursday and Friday afternoons were particularly busy occasions. On the first afternoon, the visitors were driven over the city and to the Texas Technological college where they visited the home economics department. Tea was served at the home management residence, where open house was observed.

Friday afternoon Mrs. F. R. Friend opened her home in a reception to the visiting women. Several hundred visitors, accompanied by local hostesses, called during the afternoon. The local entertainment committee, composed of Mrs. Friend, Mrs. Homer Grant, Mrs. S. C. Arnett, Mrs. W. D. Watkins, jr., and Miss Margaret Weeks, planned this entertainment. These women were assisted in entertaining by wives of city and chamber of commerce officials.

EASY DRESSMAKING

If you cut frocks out on the wrong side of the goods and mark darts in red chalk, you can see them easily and never have to worry about their showing when the frock's completed.

Charles Mahoneys Are Complimented At Evening Party

As a further farewell courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Mahoney, Miss Elizabeth Stafford entertained Saturday evening with bridge in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Waghorne, 2114 18th street, with a five-table bridge party.

Mr. and Mrs. Mahoney are moving to Michigan when the spring term closes at Texas Technological college, where he teaches. Several farewell parties have been given in the last few weeks.

Baptist Y. W. A. Meeting To Be June 2 At Lorenzo Church

Music Recitals Are Coincident With The Closing Of Schools

The Woman's Angle

BY BLANCHE E. BEAN
Avalanche Woman's Editor

NOW that the convention is over; that the visitors are taking their last farewells and decorations are flapping over empty streets, we can take an inventory of other things that happened during the week.

For one thing, the public schools went through an annual commencement and there were enough people interested in the event to fill the new high school auditorium to overflowing. Many were turned away after standing room was all taken up.

One minor thing interested me a lot about the senior high school graduation on Wednesday evening and that was the part that seniors had in the program, showing their loyalty and their usefulness in the school to the very end. Seniors played in the band and orchestra and a senior even had part in the song that the high school girl's quartet sang. Some of those who participated in these events never reached the stage at all but even received their diplomas in the orchestra pit.

When I was in school the juniors did everything at senior graduation with a sort of gesture. Seniors sat back and looked on, with the exception of the fine oratory which trembling valedictorian and salutatorian managed to deliver.

That was a worthy sort of spirit, but it seems to me that there is a finer spirit in seniors who will participate in the program at their own commencement, staying in their places in orchestra or band, even though it means that they must miss the procession to a new high school stage.

PRESERVING OUR TRADITION

ONE NOVEL scheme fostered by the Business and Professional Women's club up at Plainview has proved so successful that it has become annual. This is the roundup of Hale county and Plains pioneers. The third such program has been set for May 23 and invitations are being extended to pioneers from over the section.

One feature of the program is to be furnished by a group of cowboys; there is to be a chuck wagon supper and some of those who attended early schools are to stage parts on the program.

In addition to providing an entertaining evening for people, this club is doing something, worthy in perpetuating the memory of West Texas' early days.

The ranches are fading from this section. Renters have moved into a country where there was hardly a tenant a few years ago. Soil has been turned, planted in cotton and grains while fences have broken up those vast stretches of prairie formerly devoted to herds of cattle. The cowboy, with his boots and lariat, has been crowded from this section or has been absorbed into a business world identified with growing towns and today the wide hat and bandana have been replaced with a wider-brim and a more startling handkerchief flaunted by some city youngster whose impression of the West has been gained from a romantic cinema showing.

The old church wagon is no more than a colorful symbol today, except to those who found it unromantic enough as a means of providing necessary meals in a mundane work of following the drifting herds of cattle. But to all of us it should serve as a reminder of the march of civilization.

The romance of a past decade in West Texas has given place to a picturesque new age and, without denying any glory to our section today, we should remember our past. The Plainview Business and Professional Women's club has found a means of doing this and of giving honor to those who made this day possible.

MESH INSETS FOR SUMMER

COOL MESH insets to harmonize with the color of leather in shoes are smart for summer, according to stylists.

SINCE WE'RE INEFFICIENT

MAYBE I'm wrong, but somehow the act of legislature in Vera Cruz, Mexico, which will discharge all women employes of the state on the ground that men are more efficient amused me a lot. The women probably will get the jobs back if they want them unless some men are too stubborn to admit that they are wrong.

I'm not overlooking the second phrase given as a reason for discharging the women, the one which states that the men need the jobs and will be given work in lieu of women. That part will automatically work out when some men find that supporting an unemployed wife or sister is harder than watching her work.

A lot of the unemployed men in the United States couldn't get a worse break than to be given the jobs that women in their families are holding and lots of employers couldn't have anything much worse happen to them than to have to fill with men the places that women hold in their offices today. Its going to be mighty hard for anyone to convince me that men are more efficient than women when it comes to the business world.

That doesn't mean, of course, that I believe blindly that women are more efficient than men. But men would have a hard time filling the places of women in business today. Fact is, they couldn't do it with an equal amount of money and I don't think they could do it with any amount of money.

Any time women really want to get spiteful about working, they can quit their careers and retire to the home to become ladies.

NEW YORK, May 16. — Fifty years ago when one woman in a community went into a business house to work for a living it was news—whether or not the local paper printed it or the population silently sympathized with her for having no male kin to support her. That was woman's position then.

Today women have arrived. It has been possible for an organization of careerists to form the International Federation of Business and Professional Women, grow to include thousands of members in a dozen countries, and the world accepts that feat casually, merely nodding approval!

To Assemble In Vienna

This new organization will celebrate its first birthday with a gala conference in Vienna, July 26-30. Two hundred American members will go over for it. Hundreds of prominent business and professional women from Germany, Switzerland, England, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Italy and other foreign countries will meet them.

During this first year of its life this unique organization has had amazing life and success. Its Hospitality Committees have set up in the various countries committees to welcome club sisters, to establish the right kind of professional contacts for the members, find homes for them, and so forth. Committees on Fine Arts are hard at work planning for an international exchange of artists, so that each country may become acquainted with the art of other countries. Singers, painters, sculptors, dancers may thus extend their audiences.

Seek Commercial Outlets

Not the least interesting developments is a Committee on Commercial Exchange, which will eventually try to find international markets for products manufactured by women members.

Last, but not least, a Research Committee has been in progress to determine how many commercial and professional barriers still are left for women to hurdle, just what professions in different countries still refuse membership to women, even though they are technically qualified.

This fascinating new organization really grew out of the Good Will Tours that the National Federation of Business and Professional Women launched in 1928, under the leadership of Lena Madesin Phillips, then president of the organization. That first year such an international club seemed a far-away dream. But they persevered, going back in 1929 and again in 1930, this last time to actually form such an organization with five member countries — France, Italy, Austria, Canada and the United States.

Last year the executive committee, consisting of three American women, Miss Phillips, Dorothy Heneker of Montreal and Henrietta C. Harris of Springfield, Mass., decided to send an organizer abroad to stimulate interest. Miss Huneker went and as a result of her work there is a new national federation of 1600 members in Hungary, a new Federation in Great Britain, a club in Lausanne, with other clubs projected in Switzerland, Brussels, Amsterdam, Sweden, Finland, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and Austria.

Lawyers Are Many

One interesting fact is revealed by this international organizations' membership. That is the apparent leadership of women lawyers over all other professions in all of the countries that have joined.

Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, international president, is a lawyer; Dr. Marianne Bethe, of Vienna, is a lawyer, too, the first woman to become a Doctor of Laws in Austria, and in 1930 she won the Kant prize in competition. Mme. Yvonne Netter, of Paris, international vice-president, is also a lawyer, has written a book recapitulating all the French laws concerning women and children, compiled another on laws relating to women alone, and is a writer for a group of influential French newspapers and magazines.

Other Professions Vary

Dorothy Heneker, organizer and international secretary, is a Bachelor of both Common and Civil Law, is a member of her father's law firm, Heneker and Holt, has collaborated with Mr. Justice Surveyor in a sketch of the history of the Bench and Bar of Justice in Quebec, and has written widely on other Canadian law matters.

The other international officers Ester Danesi Traversari, of Rome, vary in their professions. Mme. is an eminent journalist; Helen Fraser, of London, vice-president, is a veteran of British suffrage, an organizer during the war for savings committees and at present is interested in better housing in Great Britain. Henrietta C. Harris, the remaining member, is a counsellor on financial matters.

Suicide Cult Held To Blame In Two Deaths

One Elderly Man Kills Self By Hanging And Another Is Shot To Death; Sister Of One Victim Is Indicted

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Police of Nassau county were told today that two violent deaths in three days resulted from the operations of a "suicide cult."

The deaths were those of elderly men, both ill for some time. One of them killed himself by hanging, the other died from two bullet wounds fired into the top of his head.

Woman Indicted

Information concerning the existence of the supposed cult was given by a sister of one of the men, Miss Louise Schwarz, 57, who professed also to be a member of the group. She was indicted today by the Nassau county grand jury for second degree murder in the killing of her brother, Edward Schwarz, 55, who was shot to death.

Questioned by police, Miss Schwarz said she and her brother were members of a group of middle-aged and ailing persons who met weekly and tried to relieve their pain by prayer. If prayers failed, according to her story, the members committed suicide. The groups held its last meeting Monday, she added, with an attendance of 26.

On the following day George Bristenbach, 61, of Amityville, Long Island, was found hanging from a rafter in his home. Miss Schwarz said he was a member of the cult.

Her brother, who had attended the meeting, also failed to get relief, she went on, and decided to kill himself. On Tuesday night she bathed him, then left the house to return early Wednesday. He was found dead in a chair in the living room, the gun in his clenched hand.

The indictment of Miss Schwarz was based on testimony that her brother could not have inflicted the wounds on himself.

Small Amount Of Sod Broken Out

By Staff Correspondent

BROWNFIELD, May 16—Only a comparatively small acreage of sod is being broken out in Terry county this year according to bankers, who state that every farm is being put in crops this season but that the new land is not going to be very large.

R. M. Kendrick of the First National bank, places the estimate at between 3,000 and 4,000 acres, with most of it in small acreages on present farms

J. E. Shelton of the chamber of commerce estimates around 5,000 acres, while Morgan Copeland has estimated the additional land at between 4,000 and 5,000 acres.

Practically all of the land that has at one time or another been in cultivation is being farmed this year. There are no vacant farms.

Says Cannon Must Testify

Chairman Nye Of Committee States Bishop To Be Called In Probe Of Anti-Smith Campaign Expenditures

NEW YORK, May 16 (AP)—Chairman Gerald P. Nye of the senate campaign funds committee has announced that Bishop James Cannon, jr., would be called to testify in a renewed attempt to determine what disposition was made of $65,300 anti-Smith campaign funds.

Senator Nye conferred with Senator Robert F. Wagner of New York on the next step in the inquiry in view of the refusal last week of Miss Ada Burroughs of Richmond, Va., to testify.

Miss Burroughs was treasurer of the headquarters committee of the anti-Smith Democrats, of which the bishop was chairman. Senator Nye said the committee had concluded the only thing it can do is to lay her refusal before the senate, which can then start contempt proceedings if it sees fit.

Because of her refusal, Senator Nye said, it will be necessary "to develop the facts from other sources and witnesses." He said the investigation would proceed and a hearing, which he hopes will be the last, would be held in Washington as soon as possible.

FRESHEN HATS

Just about this time of year you should freshen up that first spring hat you bought. Take a brush and some good cleaning fluid, scrub it up and let it dry on a hat stand that does not push the crown out of place. Put a brand new grosgrain banding or other trim on it and a new sweatband or silk lining into it. You'll be surprised at its increased self-respect.

Humble City, New Mexico Oil Town, Is Turning To Irrigation Projects

(By Staff Correspondent)

HUMBLE CITY, N. M., May 16.—This new town in Lea county, south of Lovington, the county seat, started as an "oil town" but is finding that its progress will be along the lines of "white gold" from near the top of the earth, rather than from "black gold" down deep in the bowels of the earth.

In other words, shallow water for irrigation purposes, will do what oil was expected to do and then failed, because of the drop in oil business.

Cuts Up Acreage

George S. Priest, an old timer here, has 480 acres which he is cutting up into 10 acre tracts and selling. He is planning to furnish water free the first year. Already a number of tracts have bee snold and there are some wells on the place that are capable of irrigating a considerable acreage.

a number of tracts have been sold along the same general lines is that of Dave Wilhoite. He has a large swimming pool on his tract and just now is completing the cementing of the pool and will have it open soon. Mr. Wilhoite has about 480 acres.

Has Experiment Farm

G. E. Green of Plainview, of the Green Machinery company, has begun an experimental farm on a 640 acre tract adjoining town on the east. He is beginning his planting and expects to have considerable acreage under cultivation this summer.

The Humble City Townsite company has begun plans to obtain a canning factory here. Lon A. Hough, of the company, who has had experience in Florida with canning factories, is seeking to obtain enough acreage in crops to insure a factory.

"If we have the acreage in small fruits and vegetables we can get a factory started," Mr. Hough declared. "I want to make certain we have the acreage before trying for the factory. We can get a dry kiln for curing of sweet potatoes and we can also raise strawberries, tomatoes, beans, peas and other vegetables. Pinto beans and onions also do well here.

The WTCC's New Promise

WITH a fine set of executive officers, an organization keyed to top efficiency and—what is also important—with money in the bank, the West Texas Chamber of Commerce can face the year 1931-32 with confidenec.

Election of Houston Harte as president assures the organization of hard-hitting, straight-thinking policies, for Harte is the type of man that sets his goal and then attains it. Unless we miss our guess, the twelve months to come are going to be banner ones for the WTCC and we predict that they will send the regional chamber a long way along the road to becoming a great service organization.

At Mr. Harte's elbow stand two vice-presidents of admittedly high calibre—Wilbur C. Hawk and Spencer Wells. Mr. Hawk has established himself as one of the Panhandle's outstanding citizens and business men, his administration over the affairs of the Tri-State Fair having been little short of miraculous. Lubbock people already are familiar with the ability of Spencer Wells, who for the past decade has been one of this section's civic chieftains.

Mr. Swenson, as treasurer, rounds out the executive family which to say the least is as strong as the organization has ever boasted. D. A. Bandeen, as general manager, has in a brief two years revamped the WTCC from bedrock to high tide and his success was the talk of the convention here.

From this vantage point it appears that the WTCC is pointed again to a higher place in the hearts and lives of the region where it functions. Surely the Lubock convention saw more constructive work accomplished and more business transacted than any of its predetessors. The sky is clear, the future bright. The West Texas Chamber of Commerce is embarking upon a year of high promise.

Before writing 'finis' to the WTCC convention a word of commendation must be said for the people of Lubbock and the Lubbock Chamber of Commerce. If smooth running details and western hospitality are taken into consideration in the appraisal of the meeting, it must be admitted that a good job was done here.

The Avalanche-Journal believes every one of the thousands of visitors here was pleased. That was apparent throughout the three days of session. Another good job of 'selling Lubbock' has been done in a manner to make the city proud.

Practical Health Problems

FOREIGN BODIES IN THE LUNGS

It has only been a few years since the aspiration of foreign bodies of any kind into the lungs was almost sure to produce death, and even now with the advance in medical science, with physicians trained in the use of instruments for the removal of these foreign bodies, it must still be considered very dangerous. The early removal gives the greatest hopes of recovery. It is for this reason that this article is being written, with the idea in mind to warn parents to always have a physician see a child at once if it has gotten choked or strangled on any substance, while eating or at play, or at any other time.

There are many cases where children will come in from play coughing or choking, stating that they had sucked something down their throat or windpipe, and probably after a few minutes they seemed to get relief, or probably there was only an occasional spell of coughing, and the mother would think very little more about it until several days later the child would begin to have fever and an occasional cough, and even then she might not remember that the child had been strangled several days before, and not until the doctor has been called and made a thorough examination and obtained a complete history, is a foreign body suspected. By this time the child is very sick, and even though the foreign body is removed the chances of recovery are very very much less than if the foreign body had been removed early.

(EDITOR'S NOTE—This is one of a series of articles being written for the editorial page of the Sunday Avalanche-Journal by members of the Lubbock County Medical society. Readers may write The Avalanche-Journal, requesting articles on certain subjects and may send in any health questions they seek to have answered.)

One of our great doctor's who has spent his life in perfecting instruments for removing foreign bodies from the lungs and esophagus, says that when there are any symptoms at all, of some foreign substance in the lungs, we must consider it is there until we can prove that it is not. There are many cases of infants and small children getting choked on pieces not being able to talk and being let go until severe symptoms develop before a physician is consulted. Delay in these cases means a high death rate.

The most dangerous of all foreign bodies in the lungs are the ones which are quickly decomposed, such as vegetable substances, and the ones which are the least dangerous are the ones which are the least likely to decompose, such as metallic substances. The substances which decompose readily set up a very severe inflammation of the entire respiratory tract, including the larynx, trachea and large and small bronchi. Metallic substances have been known in numerous cases to remain in the lungs for years, producing in many cases symptoms of tuberculosis.

A subject equally as important as this, is that of foreign bodies in the esophagus or swallow, and will be considered in this column later.

Why Europe Criticizes

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, May 16.—Europe's business leaders (some of them, anyway) do, for a fact, want American workingmen's wages cut.

When Governor Montagu Norman of the Bank of England was in this country recently, it was reported that one of his reasons for coming was to suggest to Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon the desirability of lower pay for labor on our side of the Atlantic, in order to improve conditions through out the rest of the world.

The idea, if Governor Norman really did advance it, evidently made no hit with Secretary Mellon, for the latter was emphatic in his speech before the International Chamber of Commerce's Washington meeting soon afterward that America's "standard of living must be maintained at all costs."

Nevertheless, things were said by various of the overseas delegates at the international chamber's gathering which leave no doubt of the belief of these individuals that the present American wage scale handicaps trade practically everywhere else on earth.

Considering that others hold this opinion, it seems likely enough that Governor Norman holds it too, and maybe he confided it to Secretary Mellon.

However, what Governor Norman may or may not have whispered into Secretary Mellon's ear is immaterial now; President Aloyse Meyer of the European Steel Cartel, and Geno Olivetti, the Italian economist, among a number of notabilities at the International Commerce Chamber's conference, have stated aloud and in public that the old world countries suffer as a result of the high wages paid to workers here—meaning, of course, those who have jobs.

At first thought an attitude of this sort on the part of European big business men strikes one as impossible to attribute to any motive except what used to be known in the wild west as "pure cussedness."

What earthly benefit (one wonders) can an overseas captain of industry see for himself in a general reduction in wages in American plants?

On the contrary, one would suppose an American wage scale much higher than his own country's would be an advantage to a European manufacturer, by making it hard for American competition to meet his prices in export markets.

Governor Norman, it is true, was credited with a logical, if selfish, reason for desiring lower American pay.

England's labor, it appears, while nothing like so well paid as America's, is considerably better paid than continental Europe's, and English employers were said to have been wishing for some time that they could reduce the rate, but were represented as having been fearful to do so lest they precipitate trouble, due to the startling contrast between their workers' wages and America's. It was reported to be Governor Norman's theory that English toilers probably would resent a cut less violently if aware that a corresponding scaling down was in progress in the United States.

President Meyer of the European Steel Cartel and Geno Olivetti, however, are not Englishmen, but continentals, and there is no talk of reducing continental European wages; it generally is agreed that pay there already is down to the minimum subsistence basis.

Yet it is not out of "pure cussedness" that M. Meyer (he is a Luxumburger) and Signor Olivetti urge a cut in American wages. There is no prospect whatever that their argument will appeal to American labor but they have one.

American wages, according to M. Meyer, are "disproportionately high." He says he favors high wages, but not "disproportionately high."

Signor Olivetti says they "exceed the limits of high pay."

In other words, M. Meyer and Signor Olivetti insist, his labor costs him so much that the American manufacturer is hard put to it to make a profit, and thus is virtually forced (so the reason) to demand prohibitive tariff schedules, that he may keep prices to his domestic customers sky high.

If American consumers can stand being mulcted, M. Meyer and Signor Olivetti admit that it is none of their business; what they do complain of is the effect of such tariff rates on international trade.

Secretary Mellon's answer is:

"The present is no time to undertake drastic and doubtful experiments which might even conceivably result in breaking down the standard of living to which they have become accustomed."

Without disputing this for a minute, it does seem to me interesting to understand upon what ground alien economists feel themselves entitled to visit the United States and criticize American wages, as (in their judgment) too high.

THE IMMIGRATION LESSON

Why is it excluded races are utterly powerless to grasp the question of selective immigration as presented by the immigration laws of the United States? The answer is they can see only one side—their side—of the question.

In all sincerity, some of them protest that since their native lands have produced in other times sundry great poets, painters, philosophers or musicians, they, too, must be endowed with an inherited culture which makes them suitable and assimilible material for American citizenship. No such conclusion follows.

A race may, indeed, be tinctured with a vast dilution of the highest qualities, but this is no proof that its blood stream can be happily mingled with the dominant American blood stream, either in the next generation or in the next century.

Selective immigration does not place the insulting brand of inferiority upon the excluded alien. It is no insult to oil to say that it will not mix with water. Three centuries of experience, which, until lately, has been resolutely ignored, has finally taught the American people which blood streams have a natural kinship with their own, and which are as alien by nature as by fact, and must be kept out if the racial integrity and national institutions are to be preserved.

Alfonso, it is revealed, declined an offer to talk over the radio before his abdication. He has since taken the air, however.

A THRILLING MYSTERY STORY + by MILES BURTON

CHAPTER 44

"What's the matter, mate?" exclaimed Ben. "What did you chuck your torch away for? I can't see."

"Something fell on me and knocked it out of my hand," replied Arthur. "Light a match, quick! I'm not going in there in the dark. I haven't been in there since——"

He was interrupted by Ted, who put his head through the door of the main cellar. "What the devil are you two chaps making all that row about?" he inquired angrily. "For the Lord's sake, get into the little room and keep quiet. The car will be here any minute."

Arthur backed clear of the doorway, and Dick, with no very clear idea in his mind as to what he should do next, but determining at all costs to avoid being caught like a rat in a trap, rushed out past him. At the same moment Ben struck his match and, seeing him, uttered a roar like a bull. "There's someone in her, Ted!" he shouted. "Hold the door, he can't escape."

Then began a hunt, in which Dick was the rat and the three others the dogs. The men were either not armed or were afraid to use them for fear of hitting one another in the fitful light of the torch, which Arthur had now recovered. It was conducted in a silence broken only by the panting of hunters and hunted, and by shuffling of their feet.

At last Dick's foot slipped, and in a second they were on him. He kept his arms free long enough to strike out with all the desperation that he felt, and he felt his blows go home. But the odds were too great, and, after a titanic struggle, he was hurled to the floor, and his arms securely bound behind him.

"Where did this chap come from?" demanded Ted. "He must have been here all the time. Here, Arthur, show us your light, and let's have a look at him."

Dick felt himself brutally kicked over, until the light of the torch shone in his face. The three men leaned over him and then uttered a simultaneous expression of amazement. Ben was the first to speak. "Blast me if it isn't the bloke what came nosing round the Margate Jetty!" he exclaimed.

"Well, whoever he is, he won't nose any more," replied Ted, in a casual tone which made Dick's blood run cold. "He'll have to wait until I've finished with this messenger chap. Shove something in his mouth, one of you, so that he can't call out, and then take him into the little room with you. If he tries to make a noise, knife him."

He hurried out of the cellar, while the other two dragged Dick to his feet and gagged him effectually. Then, half-carried and half-pushed, he was thrust into the cell that had been his hiding place. The two men followed him, shutting the door behind them. Suddenly Dick felt a sharp prick at his throat, and the voice of Ben whispered in his ear: "Feel that? That's the point of my knife. The first sound you make, in it goes up to the hilt."

Once more Dick heard the sound of the outer gate being opened and closed. But this time a car had evidently been driven into the yard, he could hear the sound of the engine. Then that stopped, and he heard the sounds of footsteps crossing the yard and entering the building. Dick could not distinguish the sounds so plainly as he had before, for he had been forced into the corner, away from the aperture. But he could faintly hear Ted's voice, explaining that Professor Cobbold had been unable to keep his appointment. If, however, was anything he could——?

A second voice replied to him, a voice that thrilled Dick to the very center of his being. It was clear and penetrating, and every word rang like a clarion call through Dick's brain. "I expect that Professor Cobbold told you that I was coming to fetch the leaden pig which he has found?"

Even Dick's two captors could not restrain a start of astonishment at hearing the tones of a girl. For the voice was Alison's.

"I have it already for you, miss," replied Ted readily. "It's wrapped up in this paper. Perhaps you would like to see it."

There was a rustling of paper, and then Alison's voice again. "Yes, that's just how it was described to me. If you wouldn't mind helping me to put it in the back of the car——"

"Certainly, miss." Then the voices ceased, and Dick heard footsteps going out into the yard. The whirr of a self-starter, the steady beat of the engine, and then the heavy clang of the outer gate.

The men guarding him made no move until Ted returned and opened the iron door. "The Boss is a deep one!" he exclaimed. "That girl now—a fair stunner she was. I wonder where she's bound for, and how the Boss means to get hold of the pig! She knows nothing about it, that I'll swear. Now then, what about this bloke you found? Captain Blackwood he called himself, didn't he?"

"He's here safe enough," replied Ben. "Lucky we found him before you were left alone."

"It's not lucky for him," said Ted menacingly. "There's only one thing to be done, of course. He's tied up all right, I suppose?"

"Trust me for that!" exclaimed Ben. "He's not the first of 'em I've had to deal with."

"What are you going to do with him, Ted?" inquired Arthur in a shaky voice. "Hadn't you better ask the Boss before——?"

He left the remainder of the sentence unfinished, but there was very little doubt of his meaning. Dick lay quite still. Resistance was impossible.

Ted turned to Arthur viciously. "You always were a chicken-hearted skunk!" he said. "I wonder the Boss has put up with you so long. Perhaps you'd like to stop here with him, would you? Ask the Boss first! Why, don't you see, you fool, he's been in here all the time, listening? The Boss would murder me if I let him leave here alive. What do you say, Ben?"

"If you don't do him in, I shall," replied Ben simply. "I'm running no risks."

"Well, that's settled," said Ted. "There's plenty of the stuff left over from what we brought down for that detective chap. I'll let the Boss know, and if he wants the body, we second packing case will do, with a can come back later and get it. That little patching up. Now you two fellows had better get off. I shall know where to find you if I want you."

Ben turned to Dick. "I warned you, Captain," he said complacently. "In that pub at Wapping, the first evening we met. Remember? I told you that if you tried to double-cross the Boss you'd long for an easy death. Well, as it happens, you're going to get it. You're luckier than some."

Ben left the place, taking Arthur with him. Dick heard their departing footsteps, and the clanging of the gate behind them. Ted made no remark until he and Dick were left alone. "I wonder how you found your way to this place, Mr. Penhampton," he said quietly. "However, it doesn't matter, since you won't leave it alive. You've been let off twice, but you can't expect to get away with it a third time. You've tempted Providence once too often."

He bent down and inspected Dick's bonds. His hands had been tied together behind his back with a piece of stout cord, and his mouth was securely gagged with a couple of filthy handkerchiefs. Ted seemed satisfied with his inspection, for he left the room without another word. He closed the iron door behind him, and Dick heard the grating of the bolt forced into its socket. Then there was the sound of a key being inserted in the door of the second of the small cellars, the one that was used as a storeroom. Dick heard the man he knew as Ted moving about in there, and then a strange hissing noise, the cause of which he could not place.

One Woman Rules The Field In Opera Directing In U. S.; She's Busy Person

By MADELIN LEOF
Central Press Correspondent

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., May 16.—The only woman director of opera in America! In Europe there are two others, one in Moscow, Russia, and the other in Milan, Italy. But in this country Mrs. William C. Hammer rules the field alone.

Mrs. Hammer became interested in music when she was a small girl, the daughter of Hugh O'Gorman, famous New York bandmaster. She studied the trombone and became accomplished with the brass horn. Then she took up piano, violin and singing.

Starts Opera Company

Marriage brought her to Philadelphia, where she and her husband, with the help of Mrs. Joseph Leidy, a well-known society woman, started the Philadelphia Grand Opera company—on a sewing machine! In those days Mrs. Hammer used to sew the drapes and the costumes herself.

But along came good fortune, and Mrs. Mary Louise Curtis Bok, widow of the noted publisher, became interested in the young opera company. The financial difficulties of the opera soon ended, but now the woman director has before her an even more colossal task.

Based on a Tragedy

It is a German opera, "Wozzek," the work of Alban Berg, based on a tragedy written a century ago by another German, Georg Buchner. The music is particularly modern and extremely difficult, for it uses what the Germans called Sprechstimme, a kind of rhythmic talking instead of the usual singing which we are accustomed to hear in operas.

Leopold Stokowski, director of the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra, who will conduct the orchestra of 110 men, has required 120 rehearsals and three full performances before empty houses prior to the public debut of "Wozzek." There will also be a large brass band on the stage.

No wonder Mrs. Hammer is worried regarding such an ambitious piece of work, especially since she is the only woman opera director in the country.

MRS. WILLIAM C. HAMMER

SWAN

In New York With Gilbert Swan

NEW YORK, May 16—My inferiority complex reaches what Wall Street calls "new lows" every time a fresh guide book to New York comes along.

And for some reason, a young deluge of them has suddenly toppled on my desk. I'm supposed to know all about New York and yet I couldn't have told you how to catch a bus for Bayonne, N. J. . . . I didn't know that Billie Burke and Barbara Bennett had dresses designed by Helen Paul. . . I haven't seen the new Medical Center since the corner stone was laid. . . I have but a vague notion how to go about buying a $200 hat or a $150 pair of stockings. . . I always have to telephone to find out where the big ocean liners dock. . . And I'm always forgetting the exact address of important buildings, particularly the new ones.

Oh, well, I live here and can wait until some visitor from out home comes along and sets me right.

But there seems to be no reason why the visitors shouldn't have a swell time running about the city with a young library of swell new guide books under their arms, reading as they run and getting knocked over by taxicabs when they try to cross streets.

But if you do want to do a little home study before starting for this town, two volumes on New York I'm ready to recommend are "New York Is Everybody's Town," by Helen Josephy and Mary Margaret McBride, and "All About New York," Rian James, who already has an opus out about eating places.

Of course, no guide book of New York can be expected to be very permanent. Just about the time the book goes to press, five new buildings go up, and those mentioned in the book are torn down; 12 restaurants close and 100 more open.

For instance, opening casually Mr. James' volume I come upon a chapter headed, "Things Out of the Ordinary," and read: "Daca who runs a bookshop on Washington Square, is the only ex-cowboy bookseller in New York." . . Well, I hope you don't try to find Daca there, because he's moved over to 12th street, or thereabouts. But that's the way things go in New York!

At any rate, both of these tomes are breezy, chatty and informative. Mons. James, I believe, has a greater collection of statistics, but "New York Is Everybody's Town" has an amazing collection of anecdotes about places and things.

Written by women, it recalls that fellow-women might want some data on beauty parlors and hairdressing emporiums; that they might want to know what sort of clothes to bring along and what to buy. Since the authors are women, they had a slight advantage. And as vintage reporters on New York dailies, they have saved up tons of human interest touches.

I have learned from these books, for instance, that Mrs. Clarence Millhiser is reputed to have spent a million decorating her apartment in the Ritz Towers. . . . That there really are seven Ogilvie sisters, those gals who know so much about hair. . . . That Tom Hadden, who shanghaied so many sailors, lived in Cherry street, and that George Washington once lived there, too. . . . That the Swamp Angel gang used to hide its loot near Gotham court. . . . That there are two cigar store Indians still in the streets. . . . That Mauboussin, the swanky jeweler, originated modernistic jewelry behind guarded doors for fear design pirates would learn of his work. . . That veteran salesfolk at Best's have dressed certain famous folk and now dress their offspring.

I have a notion that I'll find these volumes handy.

Corn Is Sold At Brownfield

Most Of Sales Made On Local Market Or Taken To South Plains Points In Trucks; Curb Mart Maintained

By Staff Correspondent

BROWNFIELD, May 16.—Terry county's corn crop was sold largely on the local market, with a large proportion going to farmers and truckmen in eastern sections, of the South Plains and to points off the caprock, by truck. The normal amount of carload shipments by rail was not had and for this reason it has not been possible to keep a close check on the total crop.

For weeks a local curb market was maintained, farmers bringing into town their feed crops, corn and grain sorghums and parking on the streets around the court house square. Buyers came from as far away as Fort Worth and Dallas to buy corn.

Record Kept

Chris B. Quante, public weigher, kept a record for the season just closing. His books show that a total of 9,143 loads of corn and 1,762 loads of maize were weighed over the public scales.

This does not represent much more than half of the corn, according to Mr. Quante, who says that many farmers and buyers weighed their loads at rural gins or at the scales at Meadow and Wellman.

Four regular corn buyers made Brownfield their headquarters during the past season. Three of them were local men. The other was a representative of a Fort Worth concern.

Needs Of Baptist Groups Are Shown

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., May 15. (AP)—Board executives detailed their financial needs to the special budget committee of the Southern Baptist convention today as the committee sought for a second time to construct an economy program acceptable to the convention.

Meeting only partial success yesterday with its budget control plan and recommendations for reducing the convention's indebtedness, the committee hoped to coordinate demands of the board officials with those of advocates of financial retrenchment.

Principal objection to its proposal for broad appropriations on a basis of 90 per cent of cash receipts of the last year, and requiring that ten per cent of the receipts be used in retiring outstanding debts, came from the board of foreign missions.

All students were excused from classes throughout the day and special privileges extended until midnight.

Lubbock's New High School Building Is Built For Permanence

Simplicity Is Main Feature Of Structure

New Type Of Architecture Is Introduced; Adapted From Style Of Northern Italy, Building Lacks Ornaments

LACKING ornamentation as a whole, a new building under construction to house the Lubbock high school with the beginning of the fall term, has been designed to stand through the years and to provide an atmosphere approachable the ideal for Lubbock students. Following designs favored by school people during the last few years, of constructing flat, expansion buildings, this structure will introduce a new type to West Texas.

Simplicity Keynote

The buff brick school which has been rising during the last few months on West Nineteenth street, the new high school building, is adopted from the architectural style of northern Italy. Simplicity is the keynote with relief furnished in a few spots of elaborate ornamentation such as the detailed decoration about the central arch entrance and a tower above, the jacks of mosaic tile of intricate design about windows and the archway leading into a sunny court which is to be carpeted with grass. Intrinsically the building is beautiful, but other reasons contributed to the choice of this type of architecture. The expansion also for proper ventilation in every room of the school; for good light; the isolation of noisy departments, such as music, manual training and physical training; added flexibility in arrangement and makes it possible for many of the class rooms to be turned away from the street.

Fireproof Throughout

Lubbock's new high school building which is to cost $650,000, including the site, is fireproof throughout and has been arranged so that when further expansion is needed wings may be added. The building, alone, is to cost approximately $442,000, a cost per cubic foot of about 29.19 cents, meeting the lawful provisions of 30 cubic feet for individual students and providing for the housing of 1,200 boys and girls.

It is built of re-enforced concrete, with the exception of the auditorium and third floor, which are of structural steel.

While the main auditorium entrance to the building is on Nineteenth street, the principal doors through which students are expected to pour into the building are on 18th street. Other entrances are on the east and west sides of the building and the largest of these in the main wing stand at the opposite ends of a wide central hall on first floor which is to serve as a division point for corridors reaching into other sections of the building.

Following a plan that is expected to scatter pupils over the building with the least congestion, the first floor is made up of auditorium, administrative offices and special departments. Class rooms and study halls have been placed on the second floor and the third floor is devoted more exclusively to special branches with class rooms between.

Offices In Wing

The offices of the superintendent and supervisors are in the South-west wing where there is little connection with the remainder of the school. The principal's office is placed near the center of the main hall where he will have direct contact with every department in the building. The gymnasium, one department demanding isolation, is in the north wing with doors leading to Eighteenth street and is arranged so that it may be shut off from other parts of the building when it is used for games.

The central portion of the south wing houses a main auditorium which will seat 1,500 people peopel and in the southwest corner there is a junior auditorium, another of the isolated divisions, near which are grouped music rooms. Wings of the building surround an east and a west court, the latter facing Nineteenth street through graceful arches, while the other is surrounded and bears in its center a fountain .These patios were placed there primarily to give light to the rooms, but the western one is an outdoor stage and provides space for pep rallys and other outdoor programs.

Between this stage and the one in the main auditorium are dressing rooms which are fitted with mirrors, lights, storage space and other necessities for dressing up.

Lockers Provided

Wide passages, covered with linoleum, connect wings and floors and many of these are lined with built-in lockers which will allow individual storage space for each student enrolled. In most instances these corridors are near the street while classrooms have been built to open on courts in order that there will be a minimum of disturbance from traffic. Thick walls divide halls and rooms to afford plumbing, the ventilating ducts and lockers and permit a smooth surface throughout. Windows admit light on either side of the halls, which are colorful with paint and tile.

From any corridor one may enter a typical classroom, compete with teachers wardrobe; bookcase with adjustable shelves; windows on one side and transom openings on the hall in an opposite wall; bulletin plate; tack panels above slate blackboards; flag pole; pedestal type seats, and a thermometer which through thermostatic control regulates heat within the room. The entire building is connected with a buzzer system.

Colors Correspond

Another item is that rooms have been painted in colors to correspond with locations: A neutral green for sunny rooms; warm buff for those having northern exposures. Two doors open into each room of the building, one for entrance the other for exit, in order to banish congestion.

Laboratories have been isolated to lessen noise and other disturbances. Science rooms have the latest equipment and are arranged to serve as lecture and laboratory chambers through a convertible system. Between these departments there are classrooms in order that expansion may be carried out economically. For every room there are cabinets and closets designed for specific use in that section.

Much of the equipment has been built in and ample storage space has been provided. Another feature is that all plumbing is exposed in narrow closets so that it is accessible for repairs. Tunnels, large enough to admit workmen, lead from the basement to division points for pipes as a further item in this system.

Vestibule Bright

Much of the color and embellishment for the house is concentered about the south entrance and the auditorium. A bright vestibule of cement mosaic tile and stencilled beams is flanked by a small office for the auditorium manager and a ticket window, while trophy cases are built in. This foyer opens directly into the large auditorium and is separated from the remainder of the school by collapsible gates.

The auditorium is typical of the architectural structure of the building, having an effect of breadth and spaciousness. Simplicity is a keynote, with ornate ceiling, deep-colored velour curtains and some embellishment in lighting fixtures. In addition to the main floor, there is a balcony sweeping across the rear, and aisles on either side are separated from the main floor by a series of arches.

Equipment for a stage is complete with interior and exterior scenes, an asbestos curtain for fire protection and two systems for hanging curtains. This latter feature was provided as a protective measure ofor curtains belonging to the school may be locked into place, while other sets are suspended for lyceums and such shows. Fire doors, which will automatically close in the heat, separate the stage from other portions of the house and this same system of flame protection is used in a projection room at the back of the auditorium. The stage, 66 by 30 feet with a proscenium 44 feet across, will be one of the largest in the city.

A system of ventilation has been installed for the auditorium separate from that used in other portions of the house. Fresh air will be brought into the building, washed, heated and then distributed through the room by mechanical control designed to prevent stuffiness and uneven temperature.

Ventilating and heating systems are centered in a spacious, light basement room under the main floor and here, again details have been observed in promoting efficiency and economy in operation.

The gymnasium is no less complete. Supervisors offices, dressing rooms and showers, a balcony for corrective exercises and courts for games have been scientifically arranged and constructed of durable, harmoniously olored materials. This department, too, may become a unit separate from the remainder of the building.

Patriotic Documents Are Given To Rural Schools

By Staff Correspondent

SLATON, May 16.—Every rural school in Slaton's trade territory has been given a set of patriotic documents by the national organization of Veterans of Foreign Wars, through the assistance of A. J. Payne, secretary of the chamber of commerce here.

The documents consist of the constitution of the United States, the Declaration of Independence, the address of President Abraham Lincoln at Gettysburg and his letter to Mrs. Bixby on the loss of her sons.

In addition there are some booklets, "Sayings of Poor Richard," by Benjamin Franklin, Lincoln's Autobiography, the Message to Garcia and the Monroe Doctrine that are sent each school.

Department Of Commerce Reveals Figures Showing That American Housewife Bought Domestic Products

WASHINGTON, May 16 (AP)—The American housewife set her table with 20 per cent more domestic food stuffs in 1930 than in either of the previous two years.

The department of commerce reports today total food imports amounted to only $693,701,000 last year, a decline from both of the two previous years The drop was attributed partly to the lower level of prices although the quantity also showed a sharp decrease.

At the same time, the department announced that exports of industrial machinery to Europe during 1930 reached the highest level since the abnormal post war year of 1920.

European purchases of American industrial equipment totalled $89,125,000 as compared with $78,787,000 in 1929 and $63,830,000 in 1928.

In each of the three years, Europe surpassed all other areas as a market for industrial machinery, and the department held this increase in a depression year as "striking, in view of the highly competitive conditions in Europe."

Sold Beer So He Could Go To Church

MUSKEGON, Mich.—He sold beer so he could buy clothes to go to church—that's what Jack Brookhouse told officers when they raided his home, seized 124 bottles of beer and arrested him. Brookhouse says a delegation called upon him and urged him to attend church and that, as he was out of work, he went into the "beer business" to earn money to buy suitable clothes.

MILWAUKEE.—Ogling cost Clarence Vahl $25. He cruised along the curb in his car, his eyes fixed upon Mrs. Georgette Love, who was walking along the sidewalk. For half a mile he followed her, but she obtained his license number. Ushered into court, Vahl saw a warrant which read: "Clarence Vahl did then and there, with malice aforethought, ogle one Mrs. Georgette Love." The court fined him $25.

What A Fish Story! Man Gets Bass In Roof Tank

SANTA ROSA, Cal.—The call of well-stocked fishing streams isn't so loud any more since Clark Mailer started catching fish on the top of the courthouse. Mailer was watching a plumber repair a large water storage tank on top of the building when he saw three black bass swimming in it. He got a net and secured the trio. It is believed the fish were drawn into the tank through the water mains.

Terry County Farmers Pay Up Loans On Fall Feed

(By Staff Correspondent)

BROWNFIELD, May 16.—Every farmer in Terry county who obtained a loan on his feed crops to market the feed last fall, "paid up his obligations to the bank promptly," R. M. Kendrick, president of the First National bank and the sponsor of the plan, declared.

The bank had loaned to farmers of its territory approximately $50,000 for handling livestock and feed. Loans were made on hogs, cattle and feed.

"Every farmer paid up and paid up promptly," Mr. Kendrick said. "Of course, they did not make much money, but that was due largely to conditions in the livestock market.

"I believe that every farmer who was in on this feeding program the past year, will do it again."

Fragments of diamonds are frequently used for the points in diamond drills, but at present "black diamond," an impure but very hard form of carbon, is extensively used for that purpose.

EXPLANATION OF LAST SUNDAY'S CARTOON

Diocles Won 1,462 Chariot Races—In ancient times chariot racing was the favorite sport throughout the nations of Persia, Egypt, Greece and the Roman Empire, and the heroes of the game were not only idolized by their people but received enormous compensations. Over a period of 24 years Diocles, famous Roman charioteer, piloted his teams in 4,257 races, and was victorious in 1,462 of them. His earnings amounted to between $1,400,000 and $2,000,000.

The amazing speed with which these people climb a tall cocoanut palm tree is made possible by a large loose loop of cloth around their ankles, which holds them to the tree as they jump up in their frog-like fashion.

Mary Brian Out Of Work; Jeanette Balks At The Scanties; Edna Find

By HUBBARD KEAVY

HOLLYWOOD — Although Mary Brian, for the first time in six years, is without a job, she won't have to worry about her income, nor, I think, about getting another job.

MARY BRIAN

Paramount, which studio gave her her first break as Wendy in "Peter Pan," and which has been building her up since, has failed to renew her contract.

In that six-year period Miss Brian has earned between $350,000 and $400,000. She is one of Hollywood's most conservative young people and she has saved most of her salary.

Mary is not a great dramatic actress, not even a dramatic actress. She is a substantial, dependable, sweet little leading lady.

The only reason given for Mary's release was that "new faces" were being sought. On the same day, Fay Wray and Jean Arthur also were given blue slips.

Mary Just Contrary

IF Mary Pickford still is remembered in future generations, kinder words will be said about her if she leaves her films to a museum.

Mary wants all of her pictures buried with her because she doesn't want to be laughed at after she is dead. She feels that because customs and manners change so rapidly her pictures, if shown 100 years from now, would be more mirth-provoking than informative.

What people think, 100 years hence, about Mary Pickford or anyone else is altogether too unimportant to worry about. Life, to coin a new phrase, is too short for that.

Maybe the thought occurred to Mary on the spur of the moment. News-wise celebrities (and Mary is as astute as any of them), knowing conventional statements never stir reporters to page one outbursts, often express fantastic and absurd ideas. Mary's sounds like one of these.

Two Immediate Hits

JOBYNA Howland and Edna May Oliver, two outstanding comediennes, were immediate hits in the films, although they have not yet had the opportunities given Miss Dressler.

EDNA MAY OLIVER

Miss Oliver, whose first part of importance was in "Cimarron," will follow it with roles that are virtually of star caliber.

Every one of these character women has a background that is apparent in their performances and that impresses every filmgoer.

More power to these thespians, who glory in their experience, if not also in their maturity.

Balks At Scanties

JEANETTE MacDonald is getting tired, and you can't blame the girl, of appearing so often in a semi-undressed state.

Nearly every picture in which the comely and shapely Jeanette has appeared has had one or more scenes of her in scanty attire. Often they have been unnecessary to the story being told, but nevertheless they were there. (Box office stuff, they call it.)

Jeanette told her employers that she didn't like the idea and they said they'd see what they could do about it.

The BOOK SURVEY

Dreiser Lays Bare His Brooding Youth In His New Book 'Dawn'

THEODORE DREISER lays bare his brooding youth in his newest book, "Dawn."

The American novelist who has been so much in the public prints of late, as a result of his slapping Sinclair Lewis and then squabbling with the movie makers of Hollywood, also opens the family cupboard and displays its various skeletons in a document amazingly frank and uninhibited.

His father was a German weaver, who came to America in 1844 and settled in Indiana, after marrying a Pennsylvania Moravian farmer's daughter. His business ventures were mainly unfortunate.

The story of Theodore and his four brothers and five sisters (three other children died) is then a record of poor folks' struggle against small-town odds in the growing middle west.

Tortured Childhood

His father he describes as a religious fanatic. Reared in the Catholic faith, Theodore criticizes it and its schools.

He was born at Terre Haute, Ind., August 27, 1871. His childhood was "a dour and despondent period which seems to have colored my life forever."

Because of their poverty, his family separated. His father and three sisters remained in Terre Haute. His mother and the rest of the children went to Vincennes, then to Sullivan. She to emerge as a heroine, taking in boarders and washing to support her brood.

Eventually the family were reunited at Evansville, where they lived off the bounty of Theo's brother Paul (Paul Dresser, the song writer-comedian) and the latter's courtesan admirer. They wandered to Chicago, then back to Warsaw, Ind.

His adolescence was a mooning over the handicaps of poverty and a growing sex obsession. About the flirtations of his sisters, to whom he gives fictious names, and the scrapes of certain brothers, he is unsparing.

His own sex experiences, beginning with the party game of "post-office," his social reticence and self-imposed ostracism affected his sensitive personality until after his year in Indiana university, paid for by a spinster school teacher.

The book closes with his succession of lowly jobs in Chicago before his newspaper days.

"Quiet's" Sequel

Erich Remarque's sequel to his "All Quiet on the Western Front," seems to lack the power of his first novel, but that probably will not deter its success.

It is called "The Road Back" and is composed of scenes that followed the armistice and the homecoming of Ernst and his squad of German comrades. Their disillusionment is complete as they try to fit themselves into social conditions, finding profiteers and unfaithful wives, and a jazz-mad generation of youth. One goes mad, another commits suicide, all have their horrible memories.

It seems indeed a peace without glory.

Unique Novel

The current novelty of fiction is "From Day by Day."

It's a story told by Ferdynand Goetel, Polish author, in dual form. Pages of a novelist's dairy alternate with pages of the novel he is writing.

The novel is autobiographical and tells of his love for a girl in the Turkestan steppes, where he was sent as a prisoner of war. Gradually his novel merges into the record of his troubles at home with his wife and associates until the two narratives reach a common ending.

The camel owner shouted loud and, to the amusement of the crowd, the camel dropped down to the ground. The bunch climbed on his back. "Let's cling to one another tight," said Carpy. "Then we'll be all right." Just then the owner gave the camel one resounding whack.

The beast rose in a clumsy way and Clowny loudly cried, "Hurray! Here's where we get a tipsy trip. I've tried this stunt before. A camel tips you to and fro. Watch out, you lads, or off you'll go." The tipping very shortly made the band of Tinies roar.

Chrysler's Life Story Told

Manufacturer Started Out Fixing Cars

Rise Of Railroad Engine Wiper To Leadership In The Automobile Industry Is Told In Man's Career

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of stories this paper is publishing on the intimate personalities of the men behind the building of the country's automobiles.

BY JAMES F. DONAHUE
NEA Service Writer

NEW YORK, May 16.—When it comes to putting sick automobile concerns back on their feet, Walter P. Chrysler is the doctor! "Doc" Chrysler has had quite a few patients since his first sick call came from Buick in 1911. Since then he's been medical advisor to General Motors, Willys-Overland and Maxwell-Chalmers, finally bringing his own car on the market in 1924 and rising, in seven years, to third place in the automotive field.

Chrysler has been something of a "fixer" ever since he started to work. He was born in the little town of Wamego, Kansas, about 56 years ago, and grew up in Ellis, a railroad center a short distance from his birthplace.

As a lad he had the usual youthful ambition to become a railroad engineer and, as his father was a railroad man, he soon realized that ambition. At 17, after finishing school, he became an engine-wiper in the yards at the princely salary of five cents an hour.

Four years of this and he became a full-fledged mechanic. He wandered through the middle-west and 1901 found him in Salt Lake City married and working in a railroad yard. Here occurred the incident which really started him on his upward climb.

His First "Big" Job

A fast mail train, due out of the city in two hours, blew out a cylinder. To replace this ordinarily took four hours or longer. The superintendent of his division called Chrysler and asked him if he thought he could repair the cylinder in time for the train to pull out on schedule. Chrysler said he'd try and, after the two hours were up, the cylinder was fixed and the train pulled out on time.

Then he received promotions, as a direct result of this bit of work, to foreman, general foreman and mechanic of his section. At 33 he was selected as superintendent of motive power of the road.

His first experience with an auto came in 1905. He visited an auto show in Chicago. There he saw a huge car which sold for $500. All he had saved was $700, so he borrowed the balance and bought the machine. When he got the car home his wife wouldn't speak to him for two weeks.

But Chrysler took the car apart to see what made it run. He put it back together again successfully, without any parts being left over, and explained to his wife that perhaps sometime he'd be making cars of his own. Little did he realize then that his prediction would come true.

Shortly after this event he was offered a position with the American Locomotive Company in Pittsburgh to put the firm on a paying basis. He took the job at half the salary he was getting, just for the experience. In two years he was made general manager of the company.

At that time Nash, as head of Buick and ready to step into General Motors, was looking around for a bright fellow to handle Buick. He took Chrysler, giving the railroad man $6000 a year. At the time Chrysler was making $12,000 a year on his railroad job.

In a short time the Chrysler influence was felt in Buick. The overhead was cut to the bone. Car production jumped from 40 to 550 cars a day—and then W. C. Durant, head of General Motors, noticed the young man. He made Chrysler executive vice president of the organization, in charge of production and operation of all plants.

Chrysler and Durant found, after the former had been with General Motors for a time, that they had a wide difference of opinion. A question of policy arose and Chrysler stepped out.

Weeds Out "Soft Jobs"

His next call was to Willys-Overland, in 1920, then $48,000,000 in debt. Shortly after he took over the management of this concern he weeded out all the "soft jobs". He eliminated enough officeholders so that he was able to sell their office fixtures for about $150,000. When he left Willys to take over the destinies of the struggling Maxwell-Chalmers organization, he had decreased the company's debt from $48,000,000 to $18,000,000.

At the Maxwell organization he found the same debt question facing him. The company owed $20,000,000. In four years he had paid off all the debt and had $5,000,000 in the bank.

Then he put his own car, on which he had been experimenting privately for three years, at a personal cost of $1,000,000 a year, on the market. It caught on with the public overnight and his production increased from thousands to hundreds of thousands a year. In 1928 he took over Dodge, and the present finds him with Chrysler, Dodge, De Soto, Plymouth and Fargo Motors Company on his hands.

In the office Chrysler is all business. In one of the rooms in his skyscraper here he can be seen answering hundreds of letters. He hates a form letter. He believes that a personal letter signed by himself will do a lot toward creating good will and serve as a sales medium for his cars.

What He Looks Like

He sits behind his walnut desk and talks to interviewers in a deep, quick voice. His head narrows above the temples and the hair becomes sparse above the forehead. Piercing black eyes peer out from beneath rather shaggy, black eyebrows, and an aquiline nose and square jaw sets off the rest of his face.

When in Detroit on business he punches a time clock. In the company's factories his card is number one, and he punches it regularly at 8 o'clock every morning.

Out of the office he indulges in several hobbies, one of them very unusual. He attends all valuable rug auctions, and he is an expert on Oriental rugs and tapestries. It is said his collection is one of the most valuable in the world.

His other hobbies include golf, yachting, wintering in Florida and taking an annual trip to Europe. Some years ago he financed a trip of the Smithsonian Institution into Africa to get giraffes and other animals for the Washington Zoo.

His greatest job, he says, is bringing up his four children.

ONE ON CHRYSLER

One of the human interest stories they tell on Walter P. Chrysler concerns his being taken to dinner by three big business men.

On the way Chrysler chanced to see a motorist, head under the hood of his car, trying to get it started. Chrysler stopped the auto in which he was driving and, against the objections of his friends, got out to help the motorist in trouble.

He adjusted a few things and then told the driver to step on the car's starter. Sure enough, the auto started. The driver then got out and proffered Chrysler $2. The motor magnate refused and handed the driver one of his cards.

Next day, it is said, the stranded motorist turned his car in on a new Chrysler.

"Doc" Chrysler and his sure-cure smile.

Lubbock Auto, representatives for Ford, led the way with new car deliveries with seven, selling four used jobs. Kuykendall sold five new cars and six used machines

TOTAL OF 44 CARS MOVED

A total of forty-four automobiles were moved last week. Seventeen were new and all but one were sold for retail prices. Royalty Motor company, Dodge and Plymouth dealers, made one new car wholesale delivery and sold three used cars.

SEVEN BUY NEW FORDS

Seven new Ford products were distributed as follows during the week: Carl Francis, two-door sedan; Ned Johnson, deluxe roadster; W. S. Moore, two-door sedan; George Benson, Victoria coupe; James L. Dyess, two-door sedan; H. O. Wooten Grocery company, closed cab heavy-duty truck, and Mrs. J. M Ligon, town sedan.

KUYKENDALL IN CUBA

George P. Kuykendall, proprietor of the Kuykendall Chevrolet company, writes from Havana that he is about ready to call it a holiday and return home. For the past two weeks he has been vacationing in Florida and Cuba, going to Florida to attend the Kiwanis convention. He plans to return home today. Meanwhile, Chevrolets continue to be sold. Last week a special sedan was delivered to J. F. Bumpass, a coach to V. O. Jennings, a five-windowed coupe to A. J. Wynn Produce Company, a standard coupe to Sylvan Sanders and a coach to Higginbotham-Bartlett Company.

NEW CARS ARRIVE

Two car loads of new automobiles arrived in Lubbock early last week and are on display at Scoggin-Dickey-Oakland and Pontiac Company and at the Hub Motor company. A little more than a week ago there was no supply of Pontiacs on hand. Hub Jones unloaded a load of new Chryslers after delivering three machines week before last. No new Chryslers were sold last week but the company moved three used machines.

TWO NEW CARS SOLD

Scoggin-Dickey delivered a new Pontiac sedan to J. V. McWilliams of Canyon and a standard coupe to Tim Stovall of Lubbock. Six used cars were sold.

TWO BUY BUICKS

Ratliff-Rogers Buick Company delivered a new Buick coupe to Sam C. Arnett last week and a special sedan to Paul Womack. Five used machines were sold by the company. With a new shipment of Buicks on the floor, Ratliff-Rogers Company has been one of the centers of automobile attractions during the convention, a line of beautiful new Buicks in all of the four lines on the floor.

NOT "BOBBED-HAIRED"

And Auto Row learns that Virgil Shell does not care to have his new Victoria Ford called a "bobbed-haired and bob-tailed" automobile. With the sun and rain visor on the inside and with the rear end sloping out about as much as down, the new Victoria is something new in the way of body lines. Chevrolet now makes a similar body, calling the car a sport coupe special, or some such name.

line, from which it flares, and using narrow pleated ruffles at the waistline and at the hipline. There is a round neckline, outlined with this pleating and the rear has a deep U decolletage, also outlined with ruffles.

Something new and picturesque in bridesmaid's outfits consists of a delectable peach chiffon dress, made fuller and fuller by the use of flounces joined to one another. There is a brand new jacket to this, a quaint, old-fashioned fichu cape effect that ties in front and can come off later to give the girl an evening dress. The hat is the gorgeous blue of larkspur, banded in peach velvet, there is a blue velvet sash to match the hat and the slippers are matching blue moire, with peach satin tips, in a simple cutout design.

Only 6.3 Per Cent Of People Using Radios Now

(By NEA Service)

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 1[6]. There may be talk of "saturation" in the sale of radio receivers throughout the world, but actual realization of that dread peak is far from view.

A recent survey of the radio markets of the world by the U. S. Department of Commerce lends encouragement.

"One and one-half billion people live within constant receiving distance of broadcasting stations," reports the Department of Commerce, "based on the world population of 1,906,000,000. The number of receiving sets in use is over [illegible] 000,000, practically all of them within the areas where reception from at least one station is certain.

"With an average of five members to each family, 120,000,000 people are equipped with receiving facilities, or 6.3 per cent of the total population in theses zones.

Room for Millions More

"To put radios in all the homes 320,000,000 sets would be required. With broadcasting facilities provided throughout the world, 380,000,000 sets would be required.

"The number of receiving sets in any country is a matter of conjecture. In countries where registration for a receiver or a license for its ownership is required, statistics are sometimes published. These provide a basic figure which may be employed in making estimates.

"There are several countries which do not publish returns though registration or license is required, and others which do not require registration or license. In general, trade estimates are frequently far more reliable than license counts.

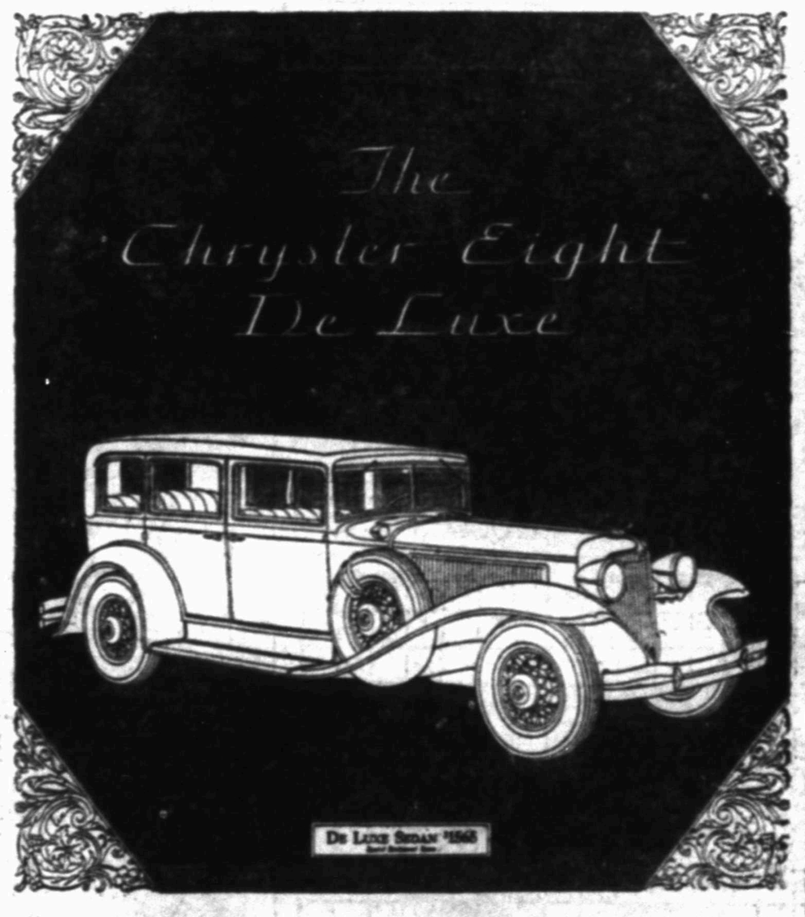
Some Figures Deceiving

"There has been no lack of estimates, so far as the United States is concerned, in past years. Many of those considered appear to have been based on conditions in a small portion of the country.

"Where the New York area is considered as being representative of the entire country, for instance, estimates have run from 12,000,000 to 15,000,000.

"Estimates as a whole, however, average considerably lower, 10,000,000 being the average of the most probable estimates for the beginning of the 1929-30 winter season.

"Statistics on the number of families owning radio sets (not the number of sets in use) are to be made available by the United States Bureau of the Census."



For those who enjoy luxurious travel

BEFORE now you may have looked at moderately priced motor cars you thought were admirably smart, but—look at this one, please.

Before now you have driven in moderately priced cars which seemed to be very rich and very comfortable, but we ask you—ride in this one.

Before now you have driven moderately priced cars you may have considered to be highly capable in performance, but again we ask you—drive this one.

This de luxe edition of the Chrysler Eight is patterned after the magnificent Chrysler Imperial Eight. It has that smart double windshield with chrome-plated frames; that lengthy sweep of line; that extremely graceful effect resulting from a low center of gravity; that visible staunchness that denotes a car of fine quality.

Inwardly, the Chrysler Eight De Luxe is sumptuously spaced, upholstered, trimmed and fixtured.

And it is a car of de luxe power, de luxe speed, de luxe pick-up and de luxe smoothness, as well as a car of de luxe style and appointments.

Its big, quiet engine is insulated from the frame by live rubber; has a perfectly balanced crankshaft, fully counterweighted—and generates with ease a good 95 horsepower.

Eighty miles an hour—if you want to travel at eighty miles an hour—and if you don't want to drive that fast, the power that makes this speed possible enables you to "float" along at moderate speeds without consciousness of engine effort.

A vital factor of this large car's de luxe performance is the Chrysler Multi-Range 4-speed transmission with Dual High gears. Two high gears instead of one. A high gear for city driving and another for the open road. Both gears are of a patented internal-mesh design, which means that you can shift from either high to the other in an instant, at any speed, without clashing.

Drive this Chrysler and "Learn the Difference." Learn new things about pick-up. Learn new things about speed. Learn the difference in ease of handling—due to pivotal steering and internal self-equalizing hydraulic brakes.

See the Chrysler Eight De Luxe today—it is now on display.

Banks In Four Panhandle Counties Urging "Live At Home" Program

Twenty-One Institutions Linked In Plan

Farm Vegetables And Fruits Are Being Advocated On Route Of Denver; Year's Supply Is Asked

TWENTY-one banks in four counties along the Fort Worth and Denver have outlined a program of agricultural loans that will have far reaching results, in the opinion of M. B. Oates, agricultural agent for the railroad, who was here attending the W. T. C. C. convention.

"The plan is the food and farm credit plan," Mr. Oates said in discussing the program. "These bankers are urging a 'live at home' program.

"'Now is the time to prepare for 1932' is the slogan of the bankers. They are urging that on each farm vegetables and fruits be grown and canned, enough for a year's supply and that enough feed be grown for a two year's supply for each farm.

"Farmers who do that, will not have to worry about credit for their 1932 crops. The bankers will see to that. This is the most far reaching step I have seen in many years."

Counties along the railroad that are working on the program include, Childress, Hall, Donley and Collingsworth.

William Lorimer, Once "Blond Boss" Of Illinois Republicanism, Back On Stump To Save Party From Disaster

CARBONDALE, Ill., May 16 (AP)—William Lorimer, 70, once the "blond boss" of Illinois Republicanism, mounted the stump again last night to help "save the Republican party from disaster." "There's one good campaign in me yet, and I'm giving it to rid the nation of prohibition," he said.

The address was his first in a projected tour of the Illinois congressional districts promoting an anti-prohibition delegation to the 1932 Republican national convention.

Seat Vocated

The United States senate consigned Lorimer to political oblivion in 1932, vacating his seat by voting 55 to 28 to uphold charges at the one time "master strategist" was elected by fraud and bribery.

But last night it was the smiling, shaggy haired Lorimer of old—the Lorimer who battled his way to control Cook county and Chicago politics and was an ally of the Republican partisans of former Governor Len Small and William Hale Thompson, ex-mayor of Chicago.

The fire was still in his voice as he shouted:

"Prohibition is the most vexing social question since the shackles were stricken from the slaves."

Touring the country in 1910, when Lorimer had weathered the first senate investigation of charges that the Illinois legislature was bribed into electing him senator in 1909, Roosevelt threw a bombshell into the Hamilton club banquet in Chicago when he refused to sit at the same table with the Illinois junior senator. The club withdrew Lorimer's invitation. He resigned his membership next day.

Discussing the 1931 presidential contest, he said he would campaign for the selection of Dwight Morrow, New Jersey senator, as Republican nominee.

Twelve Counties Have Big Road Building Campaign

Twelve counties in the North Panhandle have an $11,250,000 road building program, W. W. Chilton, manager of the Amarillo Chamber of Commerce highway department, said yesterday.

Counties in the program are: Potter, Gray, Hemphill, Roberts, Lipscomb, Ochiltree, Hansford, Carson, Wheeler, Canadian, Randall and Moore.

In addition, Dallam, Hartley and Potter counties are planning a new highway to be konwn as the Tascosa highway. Sherman county also is planning a road program.
