County attorney won't seek re-election

County Attorney George Killam announced Friday he will not be a candidate for office in the upcoming May Democratic primary election.

Killam, age 66, will step down after serving Scurry County since 1957. He has never been opposed in an election since first winning the post in the Democratic primary of 1956.

He officially made his intent known Friday in a letter addressed to the Scurry County commissioners court.

"I plan to remain active both in business and politics after finishing my term," he said Friday morning. His term will not expire until the end of 1984.

Killam and his wife Mary moved to Scurry County in 1949 after he had earned his law degree from the University of Texas at Austin.

A native of New York, he attended North Carolina State College in Raleigh, N.C. prior to World War II, earning a degree in chemical engineering in 1938.

He served 5½ years in the military during the war and was a U.S. B-24 pilot with the U.S. Air Corp. Killam served in the China-Burma, India theatre, flying a total of 37 combat missions.

During his career, he has been active with professional groups and is a past president of the Scurry County Bar and a past director with the Texas District and County Attorneys Association.

He is currently chairman of the District 16 Lawyers Grievance Committee which comprises 13 West Texas counties.

He also currently serves as a director with the Diamond M Foundation Board and is a 32nd degree mason and a member of the Snyder Shrine Club.

His wife is a business machines teachers at Snyder High School.

GNP grew 3.3 percent during 1983

By The Associated Press

The U.S. economy grew 3.3 percent in 1983, recovering its recession losses in a frenzied spring and summer and then moving on to a calmer expansion, government figures showed today.

The year's advance was the fastest since the 5.8 percent of 1979 and followed a drop in growth of 1.9 percent and a gain of 2.6 percent in the recession years of 1982 and 1981, respectivelty, the Commerce Department reported.

Last year's gain was fueled largely by a strong comeback in final sales, in part because of a boom in consumer spending, and business investment to rebuild inventories sharply depleted during the downturn.

Dragging on the year's growth was the weight of a deteriorating performance in foreign trade. The net trade figure slumped sharply as merchandise trade posted a record deficit.

Economists have blamed that partly on the high value of the U.S. dollar in relation to foreign currency and the fact that the American economy was recovering faster than those of its trading partners.

The report also appeared to confirm analysts' widely held view that growth slowed substantially late in the year as the recovery matured.

Other recent reports have shown that industrial production, business restocking and retail sales posted some of their smallest gains of the year during the October-Decmeber quarter.

Today's report said the economy — as measured by real, or inflation-adjusted, Gross National Product — grew at an annual rate of 4.5 percent in the quarter.

That came after a rapid 9.7 percent growth rate in the second quarter and 7.6 percent rate in the third. It had grown 2.6 percent in the first three months of the year as the recovery was getting underway.

Most economists say the slackening is typical of this stage of the recovery and needed to avoid an overheating that could revive higher inflation.

Today's report — which measures total U.S. output of goods and services — said prices as measured by the GNP-linked implicit price deflator, rose 4.2 percent.

Murder jurors still out

After almost eight hours of deliberation, jurors at noon Friday were still considering the fate of murder suspect Alvino Molina, age 18.

The 132nd District Court jury began their deliberations at 4:20 p.m. Thursday following closing arguments from both sides.

District Attorney Pete Greene sought a murder conviction in the case linking Molina to the stabbing death last Sept. 10 of 17-year-old Rodney Melendrez.

Molina's attorney, Charles Snuggs of Lubbock, has claimed self-defense for his client.

The incident occurred at a Saturday night dance being conducted at the Towle Park National Guard Armory.

After failing to reach a verdict by around 9 p.m. Thursday, jurors were allowed to go home by presiding District Judge Wayland G. Holt.

They then went back into session at 9 a.m. Friday, where they remained at noon. The jury was expected to begin its lunch break at presstime and the indication was Holt would ask them to continue deliberations Friday afternoon.

The long delay in reaching a verdict, however, at least raises the possibility of a hung jury, said DA Greene Friday morning.

The trial opened Monday and, after a one-day recess Tuesday, continued Wednesday and Thursday.

Third world nations...

Malaysian leader blasts U.S. policy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Malaysia's prime minister, declaring the Third World "must no longer be silent," is accusing the United States and other Western powers of using developing nations as an arena for superpower rivalry.

Reciting an unexpectedly bitter litany of complaints, Prime Minister Mahathir Mohamad on Thursday lumped the United States with other industrialized Western nations he accused of "bullying," "manipulation," and a "patronizing attitude as if we come to ask for charity."

He called on the United States to take the lead in creating "a new Bill of Rights for the Third World" and a code of conduct for industrialized nations based on "respect for sovreignity, territorial integrity, non-interference, self-determination and a fair and equitable economic system."

The prime minister told the Foreign Policy Association that detente failed in the past because it applied only to the United States and Europe and ignored small developing nations, which he said are "victims of an unjust and inequitable economic system which seeks to deny us the legitimate rewards of our labor and natural resources."

At several points in his speech, the prime minister singled out the United States for special blame. U.S. foreign policy, he said, has often put Washington "at odds with the Third World."

"It seems to me the United States often supports vested interests and opposes much needed international reforms that would bring relief to many small Third World countries," the prime minister said.

"I can only conclude that in your quest for international security, you have placed too much emphasis on keeping your adversaries at bay through purely military means, and too little emphasis on the legitimate hopes and aspirations of the Third World where most of your rivalry unfolds," he said.

He said Malaysia is convinced "that in an era of big-power rivalry and confrontation and with the threat of a nuclear holocaust hanging over us, the small Third World countries, the silent majority as it were, must no longer be silent."

"The international political situation today has progressively worsened and is a cause of worry and concern to us all," he said.

Walter Buckel reports that near Houston, in Fort Bend County, convicted drunken drivers are being branded just like Texas steers. The brand is a red, white and blue bumper sticker proclaiming to other motorists that the driver has been convicted of drunken driving.

The 60-cent sticker also asks motorists to report the driver of the branded car to a county probation officer if they observe "unsafe driving."

The judge says he was trying to call attention to DWI offenders. He said offenses were up because the city of Houston is spilling into his county.

The judge had 250 stickers printed. If a driver removes one, probation may be revoked. Says Buckel, "The sticker business is likely to boom in Texas if this catches on in other counties."

George Dolan, in the Fort Worth Star-Telegram, mentioned that persons who qualify for interest or dividend income have received requests from banks for correct taxpayer identification or Social Security numbers.

Staffers at a Fort Worth bank were laughing about the response received from one of their customers:

"He is not employed...

"Does not draw a paycheck...

"Does not have a Social Security number.

Soldier's kidnapping hoax

SCHWAEBISCH-GMUEND, West Germany (AP) — A U.S. Army soldier has admitted that his purported kidnapping by anti-nuclear activists last weekend was an elaborate hoax, West German police said today.

Herbert Sarchro, spokesman at Stuttgart police headquarters, said Spec. 4 Liam Fowler, 21, of Port Orange, Fla., told authorities he had acted alone.

The U.S. Army declined immediate comment. However, sources said the Army and West German authorities would release a joint statement later in the day.

The soldier made an telephone call to his wife, Nikki, at their residence near Schwaebisch-Gmuend, early Saturday, claiming he had been kidnapped in his car the night before by "six protesters."

In a second call Saturday afternoon, Fowler asked his wife to publicize through the American news media the opposition to deploying new U.S. missiles in West Germany.

Armed gang takes jewels

LONDON (AP) — A gang of robbers armed with sawed-off shotguns raided Christies auction house today and snatched jewels from a $3.5 million collection that was being displayed before going on sale in New York in April.

Christies said in a statement that the robbers took two pieces from the Florence J. Gould collection and two other jewelry items, but the auction house declined to put any value on the stolen items.

The entire 42-lot collection of Mrs. Gould, who died last February, was tentatively valued at 2.5 million pounds — $3.5 million — when it was put on display earlier this week.

No one was injured in the midmorning robbery, John Herbert, Christies' public relations director, said.

Herbert said two of the four robbers carried sawed-off shotguns and threatened the people in the display room, forcing them to lie on the floor. The robbers smashed the display cases and grabbed the four items of jewelry, he said.

Salvadoran army prepares

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — The Salvadoran army is preparing to launch the second phase of a major counterinsurgency and reconstruction plan in one of the country's key agricultural regions, military officials say.

Since June, more than 3,000 troops have been dislodging leftist guerrillas from the east-central province of San Vicente and guarding villages there to keep the rebels from returning while peasants are resettled in the area.

Pathologist gives testimony

GEORGETOWN, Texas (AP) — A pathologist testified today that Chelsea McClellan's death was officially attributed to Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, although the decision "wasn't a firm thing."

Prosecutors say murder defendant Genene Jones killed 15-month-old Chelsea in 1982 by injecting a powerful drug.

But defense lawyer Jim Brookshire today tried to show jurors that the infant's death could have been a result of SIDS.

Dr. James Fletes, who performed the autopsy on the child, said the cause of death was listed as SIDS but "the child wasn't the correct age." He said SIDS usually kills children in the 5-to-6-month-old range.

Lie cost state execution right

BEAUMONT, Texas (AP) — The Texas attorney General delibertly misled a prison employee and caused James David Autry to spend 30 minutes expecting to die after a Supreme Court justice had already spared his life, an attorney argued in federal court.

Stefan Presser said Thursday that Texas lost the right to execute the 29-year-old Autry when Attorney General Jim Mattox failed to give prison officials a clear understanding that Justice Byron White had stayed the execution.

Because of that, Presser said, Autry spent an extra half-hour on a gurney with an intravenous needle in his arm. He was to be killed with an overdose of an anesthetic. Presser argued Autry's death sentence should be commuted to a life term in prison.

"The highest attorney in this state deliberately misled the Texas Department of Corrections into keeping him strapped to the gurney," Presser told U.S. District Judge Robert Parker. "That man (Autry) had to experience what was tantamont to torture."

Mattox knew at 11:31 p.m. Oct. 4 that the execution, which was to take place between midnight and dawn Oct. 5, was stayed, Presser said.

But a Texas prison warden and one of his assistants testified they didn't learn of Autry's stay until half an hour after it had been granted by White.

Jack Pursley, warden of the Texas Department of Corrections Walls Unit, which houses the death chamber, and assistant warden Jerry Peterson said they were told only that the execution had been put on a "temporary hold."

"Had I known there was a stay, I would have gotten him off (the gurney) immediately," Pursley told Parker.

The hearing was ordered by the 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals.

Parker returned no immediate decision.

Autry, a drifter from Amarillo, was convicted of killing a clerk during an April 20, 1980, robbery of a Port Arthur convenience store. Evidence indicated he shot Shirley Drouet between the eyes rather than pay for a $2.70 six-pack of beer. Autry also is charged with killing one man and crippling another during the same robbery.

Peterson, who held an open telephone line to the governor's office on the night of the execution, said about 11:30 p.m. he was told that the execution was on "temporary hold" because "someone was attempting to get a stay."

Pursley said he immediately told Autry of the hold, noting, "I didn't know what that meant, but that as soon as I found out I would come back and tell him."

The warden said he learned of the stay at about 12:03 a.m. and immediately ordered workers to remove the needle from Autry's arm and take the inmate off the gurney.

"He was back in his cell by 12:13 a.m.," said Pursley.

Since then, Pursley said, the state has changed its procedures so that the inmate will not be prepared for execution until after midnight.

In arguments before Parker, Assistant Attorney General Leslie Benitez said Autry's attorneys created any discomfort he might have experienced by waiting until the last minute to seek a stay.

She said there was the delay in notifying prison officials of the stay came while state attorneys discussed the possibility of asking the full Supreme Court to vacate the stay.

When asked to described his ordeal, Autry said only, "It's scary."

He said after he was taken off the gurney, he was asked if he wanted to make a statement. He said he declined because, "I couldn't talk."

He also said he wasn't able to light a cigarette because, "my hands were shaking too bad."

The ACLU also contends Autry received inadequate legal representation from attorney Charles Carver. Presser claimed Carver did not call witnesses during the punishment phase of the trial who could have told about Autry's deprived and abused childhood. This information, said Presser, could have persuaded the jury not to give Autry a death sentence.

But Carver testified Thursday that Autry said he preferred a death sentence to a life in prison. Carver said he negotiated a plea bargain which would have sent Autry to prison for 40 years, but the defendant refused to accept it.

Carver, who was fired by Autry last year, also said he called no punishment phase witnesses because Autry said he didn't want any.

Fugitive was apparently preparing for gun battle

AMARILLO, Texas (AP) — A criminal investigator says a hospital interview he made with an Oklahoma fugitive convinced him that the man was preparing to engage officers in a gun battle on a ranch near Borger in the early morning hours of Aug. 11, 1981.

Before officers cornered him, however, ranch foreman James Grandstaff, who had been awakened by the ruckus, drove up to offer his help and was gunned down by mistake, Michael Lon "Mickey" Blackmon testified Thursday.

Blackmon testified in the trial of a $5 million wrongful death civil suit filed by Sharon Grandstaff, widow of the shooting victim.

Texas Ranger Jim Gillespie was testifying when the trial was recessed for the day Thursday afternoon and was scheduled to resume his testimony this morning.

Women could decide who will be the next president of the United States. In 1980 more women than men voted. They may again in 1984.

President Reagan's refusal to endorse ERA hurt him politically with some women; his perpetuation of military draft registration is resented by others.

Is it possible this handsome, charming president is getting a bum rap? He thinks he is. He says the issue of his attitude toward women has been surrounded with "a fog of demagoguery."

Let's see, if we can, through the fog.

From historical perspective this president has done nothing more significant than reducing inflation to 2.4 percent last year, the least in 17 years.

He believes that women should appreciate that.

The prime interest rate is down from a Carter administration high of 21 percent to about half that.

In just the past year two million new jobs have been added to or economy, dropping the unemployment rate for adult women from 9.2 percent to 7.9 percent.

The administration believes we of the media have been ignoring constructive accomplishments which benefit women: virtual elimination of the widow's tax, reduction in the marriage tax penalty.

When IRAs were expanded, women benefited most.

As when larger tax credits were allowed working mothers for child care.

Retirement and pension plans no longer penalize women.

Three million women now own businesses and that number is growing faster than the number of men-owned businesses.

For the first time federal job training was specifically targeted to women.

The president authorized "flextime" work schedules to accommodate working mothers, so that they could adjust their work day to their children's schoolday.

Women still do not receive equal pay for equal work despite laws which provide that they should. The average working woman takes home about one-third less than the average man who is similarly employed.

But President Reagan is supporting changes in 112 federal laws which discriminate against women and has established a project to assist governors who are willing similarly to modify discriminatory state laws.

Then, of course, this president has placed more women in top policy-making positions than has any other president in a comparable period of time.

They include the familiar ones plus 1,200 other women in executive positions. So the potentially decisive women's vote in the next election could go either way.

One of the things this president has going for him is his mutually respectful working partnership with his own wife.

This may be unrelated but..

There's an old Ron Reagan movie still on late-night TV in which an Oriental says, "In my country a man tells a woman what to do!"

And Mr. Reagan replies. "Oh? And how is your country doing?"

Baby girl okay after transplant

PITTSBURGH (AP) — A toddler who was making an "absolutely wonderful" recovery today from liver transplant surgery has already shown appreciation to the one she thinks made it possible — "Thank you, Mickey," she told her Mickey Mouse doll.

Trine Engebretsen, 2½, of Miami, is a "tough little cookie," and she awoke from the life-saving surgery to find her stuffed friend Mickey — and Minnie — propped at the foot of her hospital bed, her parents said.

"It's just a miracle, it really is," Mary Ann Engebretsen said after seeing her daughter following a 12½-hour transplant operation Thursday at Children's Hospital.

"We told her that we loved her and that we were proud of her that she got through it OK. She responded to my voice, and her eyes started to tear. She moved her arms and was kicking her legs. She knew we were there," said Mrs. Engebretsen, 29, who appeared on NBC-TV's "Today" show Jan. 5 to appeal for a donor.

Trine's mother said she was touched by her daughter's reaction Wednesday to the news that a possible donor liver had been found.

Computer facts leave software king on limb

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP) — Charles La Fara bubbles with enthusiasm when he talks about computers, software and his business empire, but he also expresses the worries of a man who has been left out on a limb by a decision made by a Texas firm.

La Fara, a bear of a man with a full beard, is president of the International 99-4 Users Group — an organization comprised of owners of Texas Instruments computers.

From his west Oklahoma City office, decorated with paintings of strange creatures, football players and scores of computers, La Fara and his 20 employees run a network of services for the owners of TI computers.

With the decision by Texas Instruments last October to get out of the home computer business, La Fara isn't too sure how long his business hitched to that star will last.

"What other product can you think of that became totally obsolete in one day?" he asks when discussing TI's decision.

But he figures his TI business can last another 18 to 36 months.

"When the software dries up, I'm dead," he said. Software is a program which tells a computer what to do.

La Fara has made contacts with TI to handle software and hardware for the firm and pay it royalty from his sales, but he's awaiting an answer on his proposals.

Until TI decides how it will get out of the home computer business, millions of TI owners and the future of his operation are up in the air.

"We're all out on a limb," he said.

La Fara figures that with some 2.2 million TI home computers in place, there has to be a market for software and hardware. His organization has more than 100,000 members.

About a fourth of the TI owners bought their computers after the company announcement dropped prices as low a $47.50.

La Fara said TI owners are angry and confused about the TI action.

"They feel they've been let down." It's like buying a new Corvette and then Chevrolet deciding not to build it anymore," he said.

The Crimean War ended in 1855.

He won the first heart and studied the hand carefully. He was looking at a sure trump loser, a heart loser and almost two certain diamond losers. Still, the hand would make if he could collect four club tricks.

There is a simple way to play that club suit. Just finesse against the queen. If West holds it, things will really look up.

Then Byron did some point-counting. He held 13. Dummy held 10, and West had led the jack of hearts. That left just 16 more points, and East needed all of them for his no-trump opening.

So at trick two Byron led dummy's jack of clubs. East's queen was a dead lady. East could cover or duck. Either way, Byron was going to get his four club tricks and score his game.

The Weeders Guide

By EARL ARONSON
AP Newsfeatures

You'll get more comfort from this column if it's snowing, windy or freezing outdoors. It's about a test garden that sets in more than 106,000 individual plants of about 5,600 varieties every spring.

The place is the five-acre trial grounds of George J. Ball Inc., West Chicago, Ill., which tries everything listed in its catalog and varieties with a promising future.

Some of the plants have already been introduced, including the popular Early Girl and Better Boy tomatoes, Gold Rush zucchini, Gypsy pepper and Top Star broccoli. From here also came Cascade and Magic petunias and Super Elfin impatiens, developed by Ball subsidiary Pan-American Seed.

Most of the varieties planted are experimental, coded, tested for garden performance, color, plant habit, disease resistance, flower size, production, flavor and other flower and vegetable characteristics.

Interspersed are rose, herb, lily and clematis beds and a cutting garden for bouquet flowers. And there are display beds and container plantings.

At Grower-Expo '84 nearby, 50 seminars were held featuring growers, pet plants, bedding and foliage plants and cut flowers, new concepts and innovations in production, bedding plant mechanization, disease and insect control.

To whet your appetites for the 1984 garden season, here are some of the season's flower introductions:

From Ball: Three petunias, Crockett's Victory White, large, early bloom; hybrid Summer Madness, floribunda, rose-red with deep red veins and dark centers; Double Sure, Grandiflora, red, flowers upright above the foliage.

Also early begonias, Bingo Pink and Bingo Red, the first in a bronze-foliage series, compact, 6-8 inches tall, very early; and Prelude, green-leaved in scarlet, rose, pink and white, early, 5-6 inches tall, ideal for borders. And there is marigold Bonnie, dwarf yellow, triploid, two weeks earlier than other French types.

From Denholm Seeds (a Ball unit), West Chicago: a Hollywood series of early blooming geraniums, compact, free flowering — Hollywood Red, Salmon and Star rose and white. Also marigolds Royal Canary, large, crested yellow flowers; Sunny Boy, golden yellow, and Bonanza Harmony, red and yellow.

Denholm is also introducing a Carpet series of low vincas in white, pink, rose and salmon, and Supersnoop mixed dwarf sweetpeas without tendrils.

From Pan American Plant, Parrish, Fla.; two daisy pot mums, Brightlight, yellow, and Hopscotch, butterscotch yellow; five Ballet African violets, Cinderella, pink ruffled; Katherine, early deep blue; Marguerite, large ruffled coral-pink star flowers; Sleeping Beauty, white ruffled; Sugar Plum, bicolor lavender with white edges.

From Vermont Bean Seed, Bomoseen, Vt., come a heat-resistant lettuce selection of Ballade, head type; Red Fire, red color, and Green Wave, the latter two loose-leaf varieties.

(Any queries about gardening problems must be accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope.)

Dear Abby

Big Brothers and Sisters Give Lonely Kids a Lift

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1984 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I was touched by the letter from "Childless and Hurting," the young woman who was unable to bear children and whose husband refused to adopt.

I have a suggestion for her. While it may not fully satisfy her longing for motherhood, she could become a "Big Sister" to a young girl who needs a one-to-one relationship with an emotionally mature and stable woman.

The Big Brothers/Sisters of America is an agency that presently serves some 100,000 children from one-parent homes. Through a careful screening process, children who need positive role models are matched with responsible adults who agree to spend from 3 to 6 hours a week with them for at least a year.

With nearly 12 million children in the United States growing up in one-parent homes, the number of children in need of a positive role model far exceeds the number of adult volunteers.

Here in Lake County, Ill., our newly organized Big Brothers/Sisters Agency just hired its first executive director, and we're about to make our first "match."

What a wonderful way to start the new year!

LYNNE V. IN GURNEE, ILL.

DEAR LYNNE: Congratulations! In checking out the organization, I learned that it is an 80-year-old non-profit agency with over 400 chapters across the country.

So, readers, if you are an adult and willing to devote 3 to 6 hours a week to a child who desperately needs guidance and companionship, look into Big Brothers/Sisters. (It's in your phone book.)

Your wholesome influence could turn a child's life around.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: Here's one I'll bet you've never had before. I am a 33-year-old professional dancer (female) who recently started dating a very successful 42-year-old musician.

I noticed he was wearing a tiny gold earring in his left ear, so I asked, "What's with the earring?"

He told me that as a very young man he had been in the Merchant Marines. During that time he crossed the equator, making him eligible to join a club exclusively for sailors who had crossed the equator.

He said as part of the initiation ceremony, every man had his left earlobe pierced so he could wear a tiny gold earring to identify him as a member of that club.

How true is that story? Or is there a chance that he is gay?

IN DOUBT IN DETROIT

DEAR IN DOUBT: The story is 100 percent true. And there's a 10 percent chance that he's gay because one out of 10 people is.

* * *

DEAR ABBY: According to Francis Bacon:

"Age appears best in four things:
"old wood to burn,
"old wine to drink,
"old friends to trust,
"and old authors to read."

LILA IN EAST HARTFORD

DEAR LILA: Add one more. According to Benjamin Franklin, older women make the best mistresses.

Sculptor unveils bronze statue

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A life-sized bronze statue of a bucking horse has been unveiled in front of this city's new Amon G. Carter Jr. Exhibits Hall.

City and Fort Worth Stock Show officials on Thursday presented the bucking horse Midnight, in a bronze by sculptor Jack Bryant.

The bronze was unveiled in connection with a preview of the new $16.3 million, 358,500-square-foot exhibits building in the city's Will Rogers Memorial Center.

The bronze, donated to the city by the Stock Show, depicts Midnight with hind legs in the air and a cowboy crumpled underneath.

Son drops suit against Jim Swaggert

WACO, Texas (AP) — A man who claimed that his parents were pressured into bequesting most of their estate to the television ministry of evangelist Jimmy Swaggart has withdrawn his challenge of their wills and apologized for making the allegations.

Last month, Larry Neale Baugh's mother, 70, was stabbed to death with scissors in her home at McGregor, 20 miles west of Waco, and his father, 72, died after a long illness. Their deaths came within two weeks of their changing their wills to leave the bulk of their estate to the Swaggart organization.

Documents filed earlier this month with the county clerk's office in Waco by Baugh sought to have his parents' wills voided. In addition to undue pressure brought against his parents, the wills were improperly witnessed, he had charged.

He also alleged that representatives of Swaggart recommended the hiring of a 19-year-old maid who later was charged in his mother's slaying and that church officials counseled her on Bible verses dealing with violence and later "looted" the Baugh's home and safe deposit box after his father's death.

"In the haste of preparing these pleadings and filing them, the facts were not verified sufficiently," an attorney for Baugh said in a prepared statement that was read Thursday morning at a news conference.

"Many of the charges alleged in those pleadings have since been proved false," added the attorney, Tony Duty of Waco.

"We realize these erroneous conclusions and misstatements have caused great harm to the individuals and organizations against whom they were made. ... It is our desire to remedy the wrong and the damage that was done and to put this matter behind us."

Duty said Baugh was "attempting to make restitution" to Swaggart's organization and three people named in the allegations.

Dennis Brewer, a lawyer for Jimmy Swaggart Ministries, said the organization accepted the apology from Duty and Baugh and predicted the will would be probated before a Feb. 21 hearing set in the civil case.

Brewer would not say whether Jimmy Swaggart Ministries had threatened legal action against the son, but said he considered the matter settled.

McLennan County Judge Stanley Rentz dismissed Baugh's will challenges on Wednesday after an attorney for the Swaggart organization brought him a motion, signed by Duty, asking for the dismissal.

Prosecutors, however, say they are continuing to investigate a possible link between the popular TV evangelist's organization and Jacqueline Euna Warren, who began work as a housekeeper for the Baughs on the same day they had their wills changed.

Metric conversion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Metric Board, established in 1975 to help convert consumers to the metric system, was downgraded in 1983 and renamed the Office of Metric Programs in response to consumer resistance.

From an operating budget of $2.7 million in 1982, the office now receives only $300,000 a year in funding.

The new philosophy, says the head of the agency, is that when the country is ready for a conversion to the metric system, it will convert. In the meantime, the Office of Metric Programs will help private industry convert so it can compete in the international market.

Charges are dismissed against the boyfriend

DALLAS (AP) — A judge has dismissed the murder charges filed against a man in connection with the Dec. 26 disappearance of Amber Nicole Crum, 2, of Pleasant Grove.

State District Judge Don Metcalfe dismissed the charges against James Britt Monroe, who lived with the child's mother, on Thursday after ruling that prosecutors didn't have enough evidence to hold him.

Monroe reported the girl missing. He said he took her with him to a convenience store and that she was missing when he returned to his pickup truck a few minutes later.

Although officers have speculated the child has been dead since Christmas night, they have been unable to produce a body. The prosecution said its main evidence against Monroe was a sworn statement by the girl's mother that she contradicted in court testimony.

"The law in Texas is relatively clear," Metcalfe said. "In order to hold a person for a crime, the state has got to have evidence ... not simply speculation, possibilities or suspicious circumstances."

The case will be referred to a grand jury, prosecutors said.

Officials said Stephanie Hughes, 19, gave them an affidavit in which she said Monroe put Amber to bed about 9:30 p.m. on Christmas night. When she went to check on the child an hour later, the child's eyes were open but did not blink, she said. The child was "chilled" when she kissed her and she left the room believing that the child was dead, she said in the statement.

But during a two-day hearing on Tuesday and Wednesday, she contradicted the affidavit. Although the child's body was chilled, she went to bed thinking Amber was still alive, she testified.

Ms. Hughes testified Tuesday that when she awoke the next morning, she found that Monroe had stripped Amber's crib and washed her blanket, her nightgown, and her pillowcase. In the seven months she and Monroe lived together, she never knew him to do any other wash, she said.

Too many cola calories

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — What can I do to get rid of my large stomach? I can't exercise because I'm scheduled for back surgery soon. Since I can't lose by dieting, I don't know what else to try.

Are there any adverse effects from drinking too much cola (a quart or more every day)? Would that account for being unable to lose weight even though I eat almost nothing?

DEAR READER — If you really are drinking that much cola, you are probably consuming more than 300 calories a day from that source alone. In a month, that is equivalent to the calories in almost three pounds of body fat. If you are trying to lose weight and must use soft drinks, you should shift to a low-calorie product.

When a person is restricting calories to lose weight, he should choose foods that not only have the least number of calories, but also provide the greatest number of vitamins, minerals and quality protein.

Of course, your cola consumption also provides a reasonable amount of caffeine each day, which doesn't help.

Keep in mind that carbonated beverages release gas which can contribute to distention. Gaseous distention is one reason a person's stomach appears large even though he might not be overweight.

If you have an acute back condition you might need to limit your exercise, but most chronic back problems are benefited by proper exercise. Your letter does not suggest you have an acute back condition at the moment. Your doctor actually might want you to exercise before surgery. Ask him what he wants you to do about exercises. Walking can help you use calories and is not that hard on your back.

The kinds of exercises I usually recommend for controlling the abdomen are included in The Health Letter 17-12, Winning the Battle of the Bulge, which I am sending you. But first I want you to discuss an exercise program with your doctor. Others who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'd like to know if there is a hormone that will decrease my desire for sex. I'm 33 and my husband is 38. He's very interested in sex — only not with me. This is nothing new — it's been going on for the last 11 years of our 12-year marriage. We have a strong and healthy marriage otherwise. We get along very well and I'm sure he loves me.

But sex once every six to nine weeks isn't enough for me. I get so depressed and frustrated that my housework goes to pot and I really don't function well. Is there any hope?

DEAR READER — I think both of you should see a marriage counselor or get professional help. Your letter strongly suggests sex is an important part of marriage to you. It also suggests your husband is not giving proper consideration to your needs in the marriage.

It's not a pill you need to decrease your sex drive — but some resolution of the fundamental problems within your marriage. It will require an effort by both of you, along with professional help.

Doctors think recovery likely

HOUSTON (AP) — A bone marrow transplant intended to free a boy who has no immunity to disease from his sterile plastic home has made the child sick for the first time in his life, officials say.

But doctors say they are optimistic and that 12-year-old David's diarrhea and fever are not causes for concern.

"He has developed a slight fever, but that's expected," said Susannah Moore Griffin, a spokeswoman for Texas Children's Hospital. "It's by the book. It happened to other children who have had the same procedure."

She said David's "slight diarrhea" is being controlled.

"That (the diarrhea) has been a little unexpected," Ms. Griffin said, but emphasized there was no reason for concern.

David, the world's oldest survivor of untreated severe combined immune deficiency, underwent a bone marrow transplant Oct. 20 which was designed to help him develop disease immunity. Doctors said the procedure is the only way he ever would ever be able to live outside his plastic bubble.

Ms. Griffin said it is too early to determine if the bone marrow transplant will be successful, but she said doctors are "very optimistic."

"They haven't seen any reason not to be optimistic that it's going to work," she said.

David, whose last name is kept secret by the hospital, endured the transplant procedure well and only recently has experienced a reaction, Ms. Griffin said.

A series of tests run last week should determine if the transplant was a success. Results will be known and announced by Jan. 27.

David was born by Caesarean section and immediately placed in a sterile environment. He has lived most of his life in a three-chambered plastic bubble in the family room and dining room of his parents' home. Everything that touches him — food, clothing, toys and books — must be sterilized by chemicals or heat and passed to him through a double airlock. He has never touched the bare hand of another person or experienced a mother's kiss. The air he breathes has been pushed through high-efficiency filters to remove any bacteria.

Doctors had hoped to keep David alive long enouh to find a donor whose bone marrow matched his. But no such donor was found and David lived and grew in a series of ever-larger bubbles.

David and his family resisted any effort to use experimental procedures to treat his immune deficiency until last October.

Woman indicted

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — A 32-year-old woman has been indicted in connection with the kidnapping of a 6-week-old girl last year from a Fort Worth hospital.

Grand jurors on Thursday indicted Linda Lee Ashmore Gomez on charges of kidnapping and passing a forged check.

Authorities said the woman has been held on $50,000 bond in Tarrant County Jail since Nov. 4, when she was flown to Fort Worth the day after being arrested at a Mexican border bridge at El Paso. Cherie Ann Kennedy, who had been missing for six months, was in the car.

A court-appointed psychiatrist reported that he interviewed Ms. Gomez in late November but found no evidence of psychosis.

But the woman's mother said her daughter was "mentally sick" when she donned a nurse's uniform and abducted the baby from John Peter Smith Hospital.

She is scheduled to be tried on the kidnapping charge beginning Feb. 27 in the court of State District Judge Gordon Gray.

Thaw is taking shape very slowly

WASHINGTON (AP) — If the Reagan administration is to have an election-year thaw with the Soviet Union it is taking shape very slowly.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz returned home from Europe Thursday night with "nothing positive to report" on resuming nuclear arms control talks.

The Soviets apparently are willing to return to the bargaining table to consider a mutual cutback in troops and armor in Central Eufope.

But they refused to meet on missiles until the United States reversed the deployment of Pershing 2 rockets in West Germany. Shultz described the talks as "terminated."

Also suspended are discussions in Geneva, Switzerland, to reduce long-range bombers, intercontinental ballistic missiles and nuclear submarines.

President Reagan had offered in a speech Monday at the White House to forge a "constructive working relationship" with Moscow.

Shultz made some conciliatory gestures of his own at the opening of a 35-nation disarmament conference Tuesday in Stockholm, Sweden, although he jabbed at the Soviets for perpetuating the "heartless division" of Germany.

The Soviet reaction to Reagan and Shultz was acrimonious in public, and a trifle yielding in private.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, addressing the conference Wednesday, swept aside Reagan's olive branch as a "hackneyed ploy." He denounced the United States as "the main threat to peace."

When he met with Shultz Wednesday afternoon at the snow-cloaked Soviet embassy, Gromyko toned down the rhetoric. "Nobody was talking for effect," said a member of the U.S. delegation afterward.

But Gromyko was tough. And even before the windup of the 5-hour and 10-minute session, Tass, the Soviet news agency, circulated a report that blamed the United States for the "dangerous consequences" of deploying new Pershing 2 and cruise missiles.

Shultz acknowledged Thursday morning, as he flew to Oslo, Norway, for a courtesy call on King Olav, "we made no headway" on nuclear weapons. "We made no agreement to meet again," he said.

And yet, there are a few signs of the thaw Reagan and the secretary of state sought.

First, the two sides are talking again at a high level, and about a wide range of issues — the Middle East, Central America and Africa, as well as weapons.

Second, Gromyko evidently agreed to have a Soviet delegation back at the bargaining table in Vienna, Austria, in March to resume deliberations on a reduction of NATO and Warsaw Pact troops and armor in Central Europe.

And while Shultz and Gromyko did not set a date to meet again, Anatoly F. Dobrynin, the Soviet ambassador to Washington, will be making periodic calls at the State Department, serving as a channel to the Kremlin.

Jim Wright cites world fund need

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — House Majority Leader Jim Wright says that the United States and Soviet Union should each reduce military expenditures 10 percent and put the savings into a huge international fund to alleviate world poverty and illiteracy.

Wright urged Thursday that a respected international agency, perhaps the International Red Cross, supervise the multibillion-dollar fund, with the money allocated worldwide "to feed the hungry and clothe the naked and educate the illiterate and care for the sick."

The veteran Fort Worth legislator made the proposal in a speech in the Brown-Lupton Student Center at Texas Christian University, before a 400-member audience.

Wright told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram after the talk that his proposal is "achievable," but only if advanced by a U.S. president.

"No lesser personage could achieve it," he said. "He would have to offer it in the form of a challenge, a friendly challenge to the Soviet Union.

"He would have to do it in a very public forum," Wright said. "It's the kind of initiative that needs to be offered before the United Nations in a worldwide simulcast that would be broadcast in every language."

Wright said he discussed the concept in "broad outline" with State Department and White House officials.

Wright, a Democrat who is the No. 2-ranking member of the House of Representatives behind Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, also said he believes the world is closer to a nuclear war than when President Reagan took office in January 1981.

Wright, a guest lecturer for a TCU course "The Nuclear Dilemma," expressed doubts about President Reagan's approach toward arms control.

"I have voted for most of these military expenditures, but I don't think that's the only solution," Wright said. "I think the president may be placing too great a hope on the fact that if he just shows how tough we are, the Russians will come to terms with us. I don't think it's quite that simple.

"They're determined to show that they're tough, too," he said. "We put Pershing missiles in (Europe) and now they say they're going to bring more submarine-launched missiles around our shores."

Reagan's policy is "nothing new," Wright said. For 30 years the United States and Soviet Union have been furiously building weapons and escalating the arms race, he said.

Wright said the United States is spending about $270 billion annually on defense, and the Soviet Union a similar sum. He proposed the countries jointly agree to cut military expenditures 10 percent, putting the more than $50 billion savings into a common fund.

In five years, he said, "there would be enough money in that fund to build a first-class hospital."

Jury verdict is still out

During the 2½ days of testimony, jurors heard of the events of Sept. 10 which led to the fatal stabbing.

Witnesses retelling these included the defendant and his wife Yolanda. The couple attended the dance together.

Also testifying were a friend of the deceased, Denise Montez, and Tyrone Demery, who said he was one of the witnesses to the fight between Melendrez and Molina.

Mrs. Molina testified that her husband left the armory after the two of them had had an argument. Molina said he went outside to get into his pickup to leave.

Testimony indicated Melendrez was standing outside the armory with a group of friends.

Court officials say the two men had apparently not had contact with each other prior to Molina's leaving the dance.

After getting into his pickup, testimony indicates Molina and Melendrez began exchanging words, Molina saying that Melendrez was blocking his exit.

The words became more heated and Molina exited the pickup. After this, the confrontation with Melendrez developed into a brief fistfight, during which Molina was knocked to the ground.

Persons watching the fight began to intercede at this time, to include both Montez and Demery, witness testimony indicated.

At this point, the stabbing took place.

Molina testified that Melendrez had continued to "come after" him and that to protect himself he had used the knife.

Testimony indicated that Melendrez received two puncture wounds to the front of his body plus a third cut to the back.

State's witness Dr. James Howell indicated that the fatal blow was a stab wound through the heart.

The death weapon was never found, however. Molina said he had no recollection of what happened to it.

Testimony from the medical examiner indicated that to cause the injuries it inflicted, the knife blade had to have been from three to four inches in length.

Banker taken hostage in City of Dallas

DALLAS (AP) — Three men, wearing fatigues and armed with automatic weapons, wired a bank president and another person with explosives today after taking them hostage in a north Dallas home, police said.

The three men fled the scene shortly after 10 a.m. and officers removed the explosives from the pair, who were not injured. Police said one of the hostages is president of Promenade National Bank, but they did not release his name.

The two hostages were wired with explosives and put in separate houses, while bank officials were instructed to drop money in a dumpster at a nearby shopping center.

Police Sgt. Jody Thomas said the hostages were taken about 9:20 a.m. One of them was moved across the street to another house about 9:30 a.m.

"Tactical officers arrived at the scene and began negotiations and about five minutes after 10 the tactical squad just cleared from the scene," she said. "We presently are looking for three white male suspects."

2 juveniles face charge

Snyder police arrested two juvenile suspects for misdemeanor theft Thursday and began an investigation of a second theft reported the same day.

Officers patroling the square around 5:15 p.m. Thursday reported spotting two juveniles, one 16 and the other 14 years of age, in the alley behind the J.C. Penney Store with what they suspected to be stolen property.

Police detained the youths for questioning and both were charged with stealing a pair of tennis shoes from Penney's. The suspects were later released to the custody of their parents.

Unattended car rolls

Snyder police were called to investigate two minor traffic accidents, one involving a parked car and another unattended vehicle Saturday.

According to police reports, minor to moderate damage resulted to both a 1975 Oldsmobile owned by Emma Wells of 701 27th St. and a 1980 Ford owned by Saturino Martinez of 2904 Ave. F. The mishap occurred around 9:54 a.m. in the 700 Block of 27th St.

The Martinez vehicle was reportedly left unattended and parked in the 600 Block of 27th when it rolled away from the curb and down the street to the west. The car reportedly rolled more than a block before stopping after it collided with the Wells car. It was parked on the street in front of 701 27th St.

Thursday's second accident was reported in the 700 Block of East 37th St. at 6:19 p.m.

Involved in it were a 1981 Oldsmobile driven by James Rinehart of 700 E. 37th St. and a 1967 International pickup driven by Troy Crowder of 3001 Ave. C. No injuries resulted from the collision but accident investigators report the Crowder vehicle had to be towed from the scene.

Reagan won't pick favorite

WASHINGTON (AP) — Caught between a tribe of Redskins and a crew of Raiders, President Reagan has delicately avoided the slings and arrows of either Super Bowl contestant by refusing to reveal his favorite in Sunday's football classic in Tampa, Fla.

"Since both teams playing are from my current hometowns, and since none of the Democrats who are interested in this job have declared their preference, I see no reason to be recklessly courageous. May the best team win," the president told members of the Council on Physical Fitness during a White House reception Thursday.

Most workers must file

By Robert Metz
(Third of 14 articles)

Those rare individuals who have an income and don't have to file a tax return must feel as if they have their cake and can eat it too. That does happen. But what is much more common is the individual who owes no tax but must file an income tax return anyway.

To learn whether you must file a 1983 return, find your filing status in the accompanying table. If your gross income is at least as much as the amount shown, you must file a return even if you owe no tax.

CUT YOUR OWN TAXES AND SAVE

TAX TIP: There are individuals who should file tax returns even if they don't have to. That's true of anyone who had taxes withheld from earnings who did not earn enough to file a tax return. The only way that person can have those taxes refunded is by filing a return. This situation often applies to students who work part time and and to retired persons who earn modest incomes.

There is another group of taxpayers who should file tax returns even though they are not required to do so. These are individuals who are eligible for the earned income credit. Generally, these are taxpayers who have a child living with them and who have incomes of less than $10,000 from any of three sources — wages, salaries and tips — or some combination thereof. The earned income credit can be subtracted from the tax owed or may be refunded even if no taxes have been withheld from the individual's pay.

TAX TRAP: If your child is too young to file a required return, you must file in place of the child. Remember that a penalty ranging up to the lesser of $100 or 100 percent of the tax owed applies for failure to file within 60 days of the day any tax return is due.

If, for any reason, your child cannot file a return, sign the child's name in the proper place on the return followed by the words: "By (signature) Parent (or Guardian) for minor child."

Individual tax returns must be filed on or before April 15 (at least for calendar year taxpayers, which means most of us). Ordinarily, your return is on time if postmarked April 15, but since April 15, 1984, is a Sunday, 1983 returns are not due until midnight on April 16.

In many large cities, the post office handles the rush of last-minute filers by stationing employees at barrels located outside the post office until midnight on the due date. In recent years about 30 million taxpayers have waited until the last day to file.

TAX TRAP: Do not use a postage meter if you are filing near the deadline. If your return is delayed in the mails, the IRS may not believe that you mailed it on time. Postal regulations forbid it, but a postal meter can be set to reflect whatever date the sender chooses.

TAX TIP: The IRS insists that you do not reduce your chances of being audited by filing at the last minute: The government's computer will screen the same way whether you file on Jan. 1 or during the April 16 rush.

• Single, under 65	$3,300
• Single, 65 or older	$4,300
• Single, claimed as a dependent on parents' return and having taxable dividends, interest or other unearned income of $1,000 or more	$1,000

One 65 or older	$6,400
Both 65 or older	$7,400

• If you are a qualifying widow or widower with a dependent child and:
Under 65	$4,400

• If you are self-employed	$400

Even if you're not in any of the above categories, it may make sense to file a tax return.

Super Bowl...

No surprises are forecast

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) - Security has been routinely thick around the training sites of the Washington Redskins and Los Angeles Raiders as they prepare for Sunday's Super Bowl showdown.

Officials went so far as to drape the cyclone fence around the Redskins' practice field with heavy material to discourage intruding eyes, a move that pleased Washington Coach Joe Gibbs.

He's no more paranoid than any football coach, but Gibbs prefers privacy as he prepares for the big game.

If an interloper could peek into their playbooks, though, there would not be any great surprises in the basic approaches of these two teams.

The Redskins will use the straight-ahead power plunges of 1,000-yard running back John Riggins to take them down the field. That is their style.

The Raiders, almost certainly, will use long passes by Jim Plunkett to explore the leaky condition of the Washington secondary, which finished last in the league, allowing more yards through the air than any other team.

"We pass before we run," said Plunkett. "Everytime I drop back, I'm looking for the long pass."

Plunkett threw for 232 yards against Pittsburgh and 214 against Seattle in LA's first two playoff victories.

The Redskins, although perfectly capable of passing, prefer the ground control game that Riggins can supply.

Washington quarterback Joe Theismann, the league's most valuable player and second in passing ratings, said the formula for winning the National Football League championship game is relatively simple.

"Every team that wins the Super Bowl has a great running game and a great defense stopping people," he said. "You control the game with your defense and by running the football."

The Redskins' strategy, then, is simple. Their defense, best in the league against the run, must take the ball away from Los Angeles and then Riggins must advance it down the field.

Certainly Theismann will include his share of passes so talented wide receivers like Charlie Brown and Art Monk, but the basic Washington game plan reads: Riggins left; Riggins right; Riggins up the middle.

Riggins comments: "I'm in the perfect situation. I don't have to block. I don't have to catch the football. All I have to do is run with it."

And all the Raiders have to do is stop him.

But Riggins isn't the only 1,000-yard rusher in this game. LA's Marcus Allen carried for 1,014 yards and his presence in the backfield could keep the Redskins' defense honest. And Allen is not a one-dimensional threat. He also caught 68 passes for 590 yards in 15 games.

Tulsa, others are defeated

by The Associated Press

With the parity in college basketball these days, any team can reasonably expect to beat any other team on any given night. But every team?

Well, it wasn't quite that bad Thursday night, but the fallout will be felt in next week's Top Twenty. The latest casualties included a pair of previously unbeaten teams, fifth-ranked Texas-El Paso and No. 13 Tulsa. Joining them in the loser's circle were No. 11 Oregon State and No. 17 Fresno State.

The only ranked teams to escape were eighth-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas, which crushed Pacific 117-78 in a Pacific Coast Athletic Association contest, and No. 9 UCLA, which trimmed Pac-10 rival California 76-

But UTEP succumbed to Colorado State 63-51 in a Western Athletic Conference game, Oregon State was surprised by Washington State 74-65 in Pac-10 action, Tulsa - the only Top Twenty team to lose at home - bowed to Illinois State 79-73 in a Missouri Valley Conference contest and Fresno State fell to UC-Irvine 63-57.

Tiger games cancelled; further word Monday

Weather conditions have forced tonight's games between Snyder and Pecos to be cancelled, SHS Athletic Director David Noble said this morning.

Also cancelled was the remainder of the girls seventh and eighth grade tournaments.

Officials from Snyder and Pecos are to communicate Monday to agree on plans for a possible makeup.

The games were to pit a couple of teams who need wins to stay alive in the District 2-4A basketball race.

Snyder and Pecos boys are both 3-2 in district play. Andrews and Sweetwater - scheduled to challenge each other in Sweetwater tonight - are both 4-1.

Lamesa leads the standings with a 5-0 mark. The Tornadoes, 16-3 for the season, play at struggling Fort Stockton (8-10, 0-5).

Pecos is 12-9 for the campaign, including Tuesday's 42-40 win over Monahans. Snyder, 7-13, lost to Sweetwater 69-61 on Tuesday.

Pecos girls are in fourth place with a 3-4 record while Snyder is involved in a three-way tie for fifth at 2-5. The Eaglettes hold a 5-12 season record. Snyder is 9-9.

In a key girls 2-4A game slated tonight, 6-1 Andrews is to play at 5-2 Sweetwater. San Angelo Lake View, ranked No. 6 in the state, leads the standings at 7-0. The Maidens play Monahans (8-9, 1-6).
