Summit meeting in progress

GENEVA (AP) — President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev met today in the first superpower summit in six years and agreed that a successful outcome depends on a willingness on both sides to reconcile their differences.

"We must achieve decisions together," Gorbachev said as he sat down with Reagan in the front room of a 19th century mansion on Lake Geneva. "If someone will insist only on his own (views) I am not convinced it will look like a decision. We are very much interdependent."

When the remark was translated into English for Reagan, he said, "I agree."

The two leaders, both smiling, shook hands outside the villa and then conferred in a one-on-one session that lasted an hour — four times longer than was scheduled. Asked if that were a good sign, Gorbachev said, "I would think so." Reagan said enough time had not been allotted.

Reagan described the initial meeting as "very businesslike." Asked if they had settled anything, the president replied, "We left that to the table" — the eight hours of formal talks over two days.

The two leaders briefly answered questions from reporters as they posed for pictures.

Except for interpreters, the two leaders were alone at the introductory meeting while their delegations fidgeted and waited in a an ornate living room to be called in for the first of the formal talks.

Reagan, asked about his expectations for the summit, said, "I hope for the best." Gorbachev said, "I join in that."

It was announced that both sides agreed to impose a news blackout on summit developments until the meetings are concluded.

Reagan, host for the first day's meeting, arrived at the mansion first, about 15 minutes early, wearing an overcoat and white scarf and carrying papers under his arm. From an inside window, he flashed a thumbs-up signal as he waited for Gorbachev's arrival.

Reagan stepped outside into the brisk Swiss air without his coat to greet Gorbachev as he got out of his long Zil limousine, one minute behind schedule.

Ask Us

Q. — With WTC losing enrollment this fall, what about other state two-year and four-year colleges?

A. — According to the Texas College and University System Coordinating Board, decreasing enrollment was reported at 91 of the 140 campuses across the state. Some 9,000 fewer students were enrolled in public four-year universities and public community colleges like WTC lost about 6,000 students.

At Hermleigh

The Hermleigh Booster Club will meet Tuesday following a play to be presented by the high school speech class.

The play will begin at 5:30 p.m. It is entitled "Wildcat Willie Gets Girl Trouble."

Final grid win

The last SDN football contest of the year was won by Wayman Coward of Rt. 1, Box 36 in Snyder. Coward missed four games and won the contest with the tie breaker by guessing 41 total points in the Snyder-Andrews game Friday.

Second place went to Lee Minyard of Rt. 3, Box 429 in Snyder. Minyard also missed four games but guessed 42 total points.

Closing raised in '79...

Hermleigh voting second in 7 years

When Hermleigh ISD taxpayers go to the polls this coming Jan. 18, it will mark almost to the day the second time in the past seven years the issue of closing the school has surfaced.

On Jan. 20, 1979, voters in both Hermleigh and Snyder turned out to decide the issue of consolidating the Hermleigh district into Snyder's.

That proposal — also called by petition request — failed by more than 2 to 1 voting from both sides.

Hermleigh ISD voters cast 321 ballots against consolidation versus 107 for. With approximately 500 registered voters in the Hermleigh district, this equaled a voter turnout of some 86 percent.

The turnout in Snyder was proportionately less, but still heavily against consolidation. The Snyder ISD vote was 455 against versus 202 for.

A portion of the Hermleigh school district runs into Fisher County with only 14 affected voters casting ballots in that election. That total was 12 against and 2 for.

This coming Jan. 18, some 505 registered voters in the Hermleigh school district will vote again.

That election was officially called Monday by county officials. Absentee voting will begin at the courthouse Dec. 30.

It was prompted by a certified petition carrying 101 signatures.

Two juvenile suspects face burglary charges

Police cleared a burglary and a felony theft incident with the arrests of two juvenile suspects Monday afternoon.

Two boys — one 14 and the other 15 years of age — were picked up by police between 1 and 3 p.m. Monday. They were charged with the Sunday night burglary of Wright's Plants and Gifts in the 300 Block of East Highway and the theft of two depth finders and a CB radio from a boat owned by N.R. Clements of Snyder.

Both suspects remained in police custody Tuesday morning.

Chamber officers due nominations Tuesday

A report is expected Tuesday afternoon from a Snyder Chamber of Commerce nominating committee charged with recommending chamber officers for 1986.

Included in these will be the president-elect post. Chamber president next year will be Jack Denman.

The report will come during the regular November meeting of the chamber set to begin at 4 p.m.

Other reports are scheduled also related to the 1986 chamber banquet; the 1986 chamber budget; efforts to date of the newly formed Sports Committee; the upcoming Christmas concert planned by the Cultural Affairs Committee; and the Christmas promotion under the charge of the Retail Merchants Committee.

Discussion of a computer purchase is set also.

Adopt a smoker day scheduled Thursday

A turkey giveaway will highlight this year's Great American Smokeout effort by the Scurry County Unit of the American Cancer Society. This year's Smokeout is set for Thursday.

With "Adopt a Smoker" as the theme, ACS volunteers here will host a drawing for persons who adopt a smoker for 24 hours Thursday. A second drawing from among the "adoptees" is also planned.

The winners from each will receive a turkey.

Adopting a smoker entails "helping" that person stay away from smoking for 24 hours.

Adopters and adoptees can register for the drawing Wednesday and Thursday from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the lobby of West Texas State Bank. ACS volunteers will distribute material and suggestions for helping smokers through the day.

Kathy Minemier, director of community relations at Cogdell Memorial Hospital, has charge of the "Adopt a Smoker" program at the hospital.

Future Homemakers of America at Snyder High School will release balloons bearing Smokeout messages during the lunch period Thursday. They will also distribute materials to students.

Probation term given in 132nd

A former Snyder resident was given a two-year unadjudicated probationary prison sentence Monday in 132nd District Court after entering a plea of nolo contendre to charges of indecency with a child.

Charles Houston Cromwell of Stephenville was indicted for that offense as well as two counts of sexual assault on a child by the Scurry County grand jury in August.

The incidents allegedly occurred last June and involved a 16-year-old girl.

The feller on Deep Creek says, "Some people change their ways when they see the light, others only when they feel the heat."

Last summer, a marketing consultant who came to Snyder predicted that the time is fast approaching when liability insurance will not be available at any cost.

It seems that time is arriving faster than many of us expected. The chamber has decided to seek football playoff games and continue normal events--despite the fact that liability insurance is no longer available.

The problem is not isolated. A day care center in Lubbock may have to shut its doors because of the same problem. In nearby Lamesa, the school district is being sued by a participant in the Golden Tornado Jubilee.

The plaintiff claims she was injured in a fall at the high school football stadium during the jubilee event. The suit claims the school was negligent in maintaining and preparing the stadium.

What ever happened to the word "accident?"

Meredith Banta, daughter of Cindy and Mike Banta, will be five years old in just a few days.

Cindy, who runs Suits Us in the 37th Street Shopping Center, was discussing the upcoming birthday with her daughter. "Can you think of something you'd like for your birthday?" the mother asked.

Without hesitation came the grown-up reply, "Mother, just give me some money and we'll go shopping."

Times are changing....Pregnant working women may now lease, rather than buy, their maternity clothes. A firm in Oregon charges $6.95 for a fully-lined, two-piece wool suit.

Commodity day slated Wednesday

Commodities of cheese, butter and powdered milk will be distributed Wednesday at the Senior Center, 2603 Ave. M.

The distribution will be from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Individuals with last names beginning A through L should come between 9 and 11:30 a.m. Those with last names beginning M through Z should come between 1 and 4 p.m.

Eligibility guidelines are posted at the center for all citizens of Scurry County. New applicants must bring proof of residence and personal identification.

Recipients are asked to enter through the north door of the center and to bring paper sacks.

Charge man with smuggling

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — Benjamin J. Cantu, arrested on alien smuggling charges, said he was working a drug trafficking case the day he was apprehended, but Department of Public Safety officials say Cantu wasn't assigned to such an investigation.

Cantu was suspended from his driver's license examiner job in Fort Worth Nov. 7, the same day he was arrested, after being accused of smuggling illegal aliens across the U.S.-New Mexico border.

Now, a federal court jury will eventually be asked to decide if Benjamin J. Cantu was a good cop gone bad, or a maverick officer who played along without the knowledge of his superiors to get an arrest.

Cantu, 31, of Fort Worth, resigned from the department last Tuesday, saying, "I don't want to drag the (department) through the mud.

" ... My intentions were to investigate and uphold the law."

Cantu was arrested Nov. 7. Three others were arrested on the alien smuggling charges Oct. 14.

Officials allege that twice during two weekends in October, the four transported groups of Mexican residents in a closed truck from the brushland outside Del Rio in West Texas.

The first time the truck took about two dozen Mexicans — each charged $500 for the trip — to Fort Worth, officials say. The second time a border patrol officer pulled the truck over 10 miles north of Del Rio.

Wayne Hunter, 22, of Arlington; his roommate, Robin Dean Kasiska, 23; and Arturo Ortiz-Martinez, 24, a Mexican citizen who lives in Grand Prairie; were charged with conspiring to transport Mexican aliens into the United States.

Federal officials allege the truck they used can be traced to Cantu.

Department of Public Safety officials say Cantu told them he was working on a drug smuggling case.

But "the first time the (department) was made aware of his claim that he was involved in an alleged narcotics trafficking investigation was after Oct. 14," said DPS spokesman David Wells.

"He was not assigned to any investigation," Wells told the Fort Worth Star-Telegram.

Normally, officials said, when a federal investigation uncovers a possible law violation by an officer, investigators check with the law enforcement agency to see if the officer was acting in an official capacity.

In this case, the DPS was investigating the smuggling and Cantu was not involved in the probe, Wells said.

Before Cantu moved to Fort Worth, he was stationed as a patrol officer in Springtown northwest of Fort Worth. Associates there recalled that Cantu was unhappy with the hours and with his patrol job.

"He found it hard giving tickets," said Justice of the Peace Faye Murphree. "He believed all their excuses. He hated to give little old ladies tickets when they said they didn't know they were going that fast."

Cantu said he asked for the transfer to Fort Worth for daytime hours so he could return to college as a criminal justice major at Dallas Baptist University.

One of his professors said Cantu is an exceptional student.

"Ben, as I've known him, has been a very straightforward, honest professional," said C. Ray Beltz. "It's one of those things that's just incredible he's been arrested."

DPS records show that on the days Cantu is accused of participating in the smugglings he was off for weekends or for vacation.

Cantu was released on $5,000 bond after being indicted by a federal grand jury in Del Rio. Hunter and Kasiska are each free on $20,000 bond.

"This is no major deal," Hunter said of the charge. "They're trying to build this deal as a major organization. The people involved were just trying to get pocket money ... about $15,000 a load."

Hunter, a stone mason contractor, and Kasiska are childhood friends. Kasiska and Ortiz-Martinez work together at a Grand Prairie steel company, Kasiska said.

Border Patrol agent Tom McClendon, who participated in the apprehension of the truck, said Ortiz-Martinez and Cantu were friends. Ortiz-Martinez remains in the Del Rio jail in lieu of bail and on an immigration hold because he is not a U.S. citizen.

A court-appointed attorney for Kasiska, Richard Gutierrez of Del Rio, said the stop of the truck by the Border Patrol was illegal.

"There was not probable cause to stop it and search it without a search warrant," he said.

But if they had not been caught, Hunter said, he would have continued to shuttle aliens for profit.

"Now that I've been caught, I won't do it again. We thought they'd just slap our hands and send us down the street," Hunter said. "I didn't realize it was the federal government involved with it and they would be so touchy."

$3 billion in aid touted for FCS

WASHINGTON (AP) — In the first formal congressional response to the Farm Credit System's appeal for financial help, a group of farm-state House members proposes authorizing as much as $3 billion in federal aid.

In addition to the qualified financial aid — an item that has provoked controversy within the Reagan administration — the proposed legislation contains two provisons agreed to in some form by all sides: stronger regulation of the loosely knit $70 billion farm lending system and a streamlining of FCS's cumbersome organization.

House Agriculture Committee Chairman Kika de la Garza, D-Texas, and three other senior committee members planned to introduce the measure formally today.

The system, the nation's largest farm lender, is suffering along with the rest of the agricultural sector from the most serious rural depression in decades. Values of farm land — the collateral for the bulk of the system's loans — have plummeted as much as 50 percent during the past five years in the hardest hit areas of the Midwest.

System officials report that the 37 cooperatively owned banks will lose $2.5 billion this year, with further losses expected in 1986 and 1987. Such losses soon would wipe out all the money the system has set aside as a buffer against bad loans, FCS officials have said.

Both FCS and its regulatory agency, the Farm Credit Administration, have asked Congress for a line of credit of up to $6 billion to tide it over the next three years.

The bill, co-sponsored by Reps. Ed Jones, D-Tenn., Edward Madigan, R-Ill., and Tom Coleman, R-Mo., would provide such financial help only if the system's regulators certify FCS has done everything it reasonably can to help itself. Under the bill, the government would be allowed to purchase as much as $3 billion in system loan obligations and then set interest terms and repayment schedules.

Whether the aid ever is provided would be up to the secretary of the Treasury. The Reagan administration has resisted any effort at financial aid, arguing the system has untapped resources it can use.

Dear Abby

In Midst of Divorce, Pregnant Wife Has Shower of Questions

By Abigail Van Buren

© 1985 by Universal Press Syndicate

DEAR ABBY: I am going through a divorce that will not be final until February 1986. Meanwhile, I have been living with a person I'll call Ben. I care about Ben, but I see no marriage in sight for us. I am also pregnant with Ben's baby, which I am very happy about because I have wanted a baby for the last four years. I am 29 and this is my first child.

Here's the situation: Ben's mother wants to give me a baby shower. She comes from a big family—about 50 women on one side only, just the aunts and cousins. I hardly know any of them. This will be her first grandchild and she is very excited, but, Abby, I am still married, and will not be divorced when the baby gets here. Even after that, Ben and I don't have any plans to get married. I just can't see accepting gifts from these people with things so up in the air.

Also, since I will still be married when my baby is born, whose last name should I give the baby—my present husband's? Or Ben's? If I don't use Ben's last name, will he still have to pay child support? He is the baby's father for sure and wants to pay.

My husband says I can use his last name as long as I want to because after all this is over, we might even get back together again.

EXPECTING AND THRILLED

DEAR THRILLED: Handle one crisis at a time. Don't allow Ben's mother to give you a baby shower under these circumstances. See a lawyer about which name your baby should have, as well as who is legally obligated to pay child support. Please consider counseling before you make any decisions. If there's a chance that you will get back together with your husband, and since there's nothing definite with Ben, why go through with the divorce?

DEAR ABBY: Please tell your readers that they should never pet a guide dog when he is on duty.

Being a guide dog user myself for the last 16 years, I have been amazed and appalled when people have petted my guide dog when I'm crossing a busy street like Michigan Avenue. Even when my guide dog is sitting quietly in a store, on a public conveyance or lying peacefully under the table in a restaurant, people want to play with him.

Most people are not aware that guide dogs are trained to protect their masters and to guide them, and when they are treated like pets when they are on duty, it ruins their prior training, which costs $3,000 to acquire.

Please help me, Abby. I am tired of sounding like a broken record!

STUCK IN CHICAGO

DEAR STUCK: I'll try. Readers: Please resist the urge to "congratulate" a guide dog by petting him, and telling him what a "good dog" he is. If you feel compelled to comment on the dog's efficiency, please address your remarks to the blind handler, but leave the dog alone.

DEAR ABBY: I read with interest the letter about the 96-year-old woman who didn't want to miss out on all the fun her friends and relatives would enjoy at her wake, so she invited them all to a party while she was alive and able to share in the fun.

My dear departed mother felt the same way, so she decided to hold a "wake" while she was still around to enjoy it. Mother contacted all her relatives and told them she was having her "wake" early, and if they came to this one, they could skip the real one.

The whole family showed up, and it was the best wake I ever attended. My mother also had the time of her life (at the first one, that is).

Presidential communications are said to be compromised

WASHINGTON (AP) — Drug dealers and possibly terrorists are monitoring radio frequencies of Air Force One, the presidential limousine and other military and law enforcement communications of "enormous sensitivity," according to two members of Congress.

Rep. Glenn English, D-Okla., and Sen. Dennis DeConcini, D-Ariz., told a news conference Monday that the monitoring placed President Reagan in "grave danger" and jeopardized law enforcement operations against drug dealers.

They urged the president to have the National Security Council and the new, multi-agency Drug Enforcement Policy Board launch an investigation.

The lawmakers said their source was a 62-page list of 1,000 communications channels used by the military, law enforcement and intelligence agencies, and the Secret Service presidential protection detail. The list was seized in a drug raid on a warehouse Sept. 13 near Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

English said many of the communications channels are generally known while others, such as those used by the Secret Service, are not. "You can't get the call letters," he said of these sensitive channels.

The Federal Communications Commission "knew of no location" where all the channels on the list were available, English said. "Some could be put together by scanning the airwaves. I suspect the information was purchased from government sources."

Jane Vezeris, a Secret Service spokeswoman, said her agency was aware of the seizure.

"The agency is very much aware that anyone, at any time, can be monitoring our radio frequencies in the clear mode, including criminals and ham radio operators," Ms. Vezeris said.

"Because of that, we are cautious in not discussing anything sensitive over the clear frequences. We do have the ability to go to voice privacy when necessary. We do have the ability to go to different frequencies."

Rusty Brashear, a White House spokesman, said he was aware of the seizure but had no further comment.

Robert Feldkamp, a spokesman for the Drug Enforcement Administration, said of the monitoring, "It happens all the time.

View judging demo

Gertrude League presented "Basic Containers, Mechanics and Design" to the regular meeting of the Snyder Garden Club Nov. 1. The group met in the Martha Ann Woman's Club.

The 17 members present heard League, also a long-time member, give procedures for preparing various arrangements for judging. A national flower show judge with a master's certificate in judging, she used fresh material and containers of different shapes to demonstrate her points.

During the program, each member received printed instructions for preparing flowering plants to be taken indoors for winter.

Julie Fox presided over the business session which followed. During the meeting, the women voted to donate funds to the MAWC in lieu of participation in the annual MAWC Christmas bazaar. At 10 a.m. on Dec. 2, the group will decorate the large tree which annually stands in the clubhouse's atrium area.

Laverne Hood announced upcoming MAWC events including a tour of homes set for Dec. 8 from 2 p.m. to 5 p.m.

Six club members attended the fall meeting of District VIII in Abilene Wednesday and Thursday.

The group set assignments to finalize planning for the spring district meeting to be held in Snyder. Clubs in Sweetwater, Colorado City and Snyder will host the event.

Snyder Garden Club's next meeting will be Dec. 5 at noon in the clubhouse with Sue Travis as speaker.

Bethel Studio students take Whitlock theory test

Students from Bethel Studio of Music recently traveled to Lubbock for the Whitlock Theory test, a certified student affiliate state test.

Results of the test, administered Nov. 9, will be available in early January. Students enter according to school grade level and are graded on melodic and rhythmic ear training as well as written work.

Bronze medals are available for those who score 90-94, with silver medals for scores 95-97 and gold medals for scores 98-100.

Local students taking the test included in grade one - Chad Keith, Clayton West, Emily Zeck, Micah Brown, Kristi Harris and Ben Wells; grade two — Tia Bassham; grade three - Robyn Hornsberger and Brooke Kubena; grade four - Regina McNair, Carrie West, Katie Perkins, Cole Latimer, Kasie Campbell, Lauren Perkins and Cynthia Stansell; and in grade five - Julie Zeck, Carrie Keith, Jason Warren, Kyle Martin and Alicia Kubena.

Also participating were in grade six - Myste Malone; grade seven - Amy Armstrong, Melissa Harris, Pam Bowlin, Christopher Fuentez and Sarah Brown; grade eight - Shubnum Ilyas; grade nine - Michele Anderson and Michelle Holmes; and grade 10 - Jody Webb.

Tanya Roberts says she went into training with weights before spending five months in Kenya to play the title role in "Sheena," a film in which she portrays the leader of a remote African tribe. She says, "They auditioned about 3,000 girls for the role. They needed an actress who was athletic and I've been very athletic, especially in swimming."

lows: Under A, the heart queen is an honor-sequence lead from four or more hearts. Under R, nothing, since the opponents did no bidding. Under C, we have two spade tricks, two heart tricks, two diamonds (after forcing out the ace), and either three or four club tricks (depending on the club finesse). Under H, we need to establish tricks in the minor suits, so we either take the club finesse right away or give a trick to the diamond ace.

Declarer should, upon winning the heart king, immediately play diamonds. Either defender will win the ace and continue hearts. Declarer now holds up until the third round. He can now come to the ace of spades and try the club finesse. If it wins, fine. If it loses, East will either be out of hearts or will have only one to play. Either way the contract makes. Yes, I know on a rare occasion West will have led from a three-card heart holding, but that is so unusual that it does not merit consideration.

The return of ARCH

The acronym ARCH will be familiar to long-time faithful readers. Invaluable for good declarer play and also useful for the third-hand defender, it stands for the following:

A — Analyze the opening lead. R — Review the bidding. C — Count your winners (and losers). H — How do I make the contract? (As a defender, how do I defeat the contract?)

If you use... ...s method as declarer in today's deal, you would think as fol-

Your Birthday

Nov. 20, 1985

In the year ahead, you are likely to become involved in an enterprise that will be both big and promising. It will eventually succeed, yet the early signals could be rather discouraging.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov.22) This may not be one of your better days for shopping. You may impulsively buy expensive merchandise you'll never use. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Matchmaker set instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail $2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, Box 1846, Cincinnati, OH 45201.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Focus and follow-through are essential today. If you have too many irons in the fire at one time, you may never finish any of the things you start.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Be selective about who you go to for advice or counsel today. The wrong person could put wild ideas in your head that haven't a prayer of working.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) For the sake of good relationships, it's advisable not to get involved with friends in business or financial ventures today. Something might go wrong.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Guard against tendencies today to be distracted from pursuing objectives that deserve your full attention and efforts.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't let your ego put you in embarrassing situations today, such as pretending you know a lot about something when, in truth, you know little.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Screen confidential activities from a pal who is plagued with an insatiable curiosity. He may try to pry information from you that you don't wish to reveal.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You may be a rather difficult person to please today. This could cause those who want to be supportive to toss in the towel and let you fend for yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Go slowly today if you are working on something you hope will produce future rewards. Patience, not speed, should be your taskmaster.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Be on guard today in a matter where the control of the issue is not directly under your supervision. Don't let another make mistakes you'll have to pay for.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Should a disagreement arise between you and your mate today, do not air it in front of in-laws or family members. This will make matters worse.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) It's best not to experiment today with gadgets, tools, or materials with which you are unfamiliar. Something could get broken in the process.

AIDS victim has now died

HOUSTON (AP) — An AIDS victim who was in the public spotlight when the city's health director ordered him to refrain from having sex with strangers has died, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Fabian Bridges, 30, died Sunday afternoon at Jefferson Davis Hospital, said Mary Larson, a hospital administrative assistant. "We cannot disclose the cause of death without the family's consent," she said Monday.

Bridges entered the hospital Oct. 11, Ms. Larson said.

She said the hospital had been in contact with Bridges' mother and sister in Cleveland, Ohio.

Murders keep quiet town on edge

BRENHAM, Texas (AP) — The broad daylight abduction of a Brenham woman and her son has forced residents in this Central Texas town to wonder if they have been living in a "fool's paradise," one town member said.

The quiet town nestled in the rolling hills southeast of Austin saw its security shaken when two men abducted teacher Kathy Coppedge, 36, and her 11-year-old son Casey from a church parking lot.

Their bodies were later found in the trunk of Mrs. Coppedge's car. Mrs. Coppedge had been shot, and her son had suffocated from the 150-plus-degree heat in the trunk.

"In an incident like this, one of the feelings you have is guilt. Then you ask yourself, 'Are we naive? Were we living in a fools' paradise?'" asked Brenham resident, Pastor Currie.

Currie says people are still nervous and are buying guns.

Despite efforts by police, deputies and the Texas Rangers as well as the lure of a $17,000 reward, the slayings are still unsolved.

Investigators are baffled. They lack clues, leads and even a motive.

In the town of 11,000 residents, best known as the home of Blue Bell Ice Cream, the people are horrified by the crime and stunned by the intrusion of such violence.

"I used to say, 'we don't have murders in Brenham,'" said Mayor Dorothy Flisowski. "I can't say that now."

Brenham, she says, has lost its innocence.

It had been a typically hot and muggy August Sunday for the 115 or so worshipers at Brenham Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Coppedge and her son, two of the congregation's newest members, were seated in a rear pew. Phil Coppedge, her husband, is not a regular church-goer.

The Coppedges had moved to Brenham in November 1984 when Coppedge was transferred by his employer, Hughes Tool Co. He serviced the oil rigs in the oil fields surrounding Brenham.

Mrs. Coppedge had been hired to teach first grade at Brenham's elementary school.

At the fateful Sunday's service, she and her son joined in the reading from Psalms 86:

"God, arrogant men are coming against me; a gang of cruel men is trying to kill me, people who pay no attention to you."

According to one witness, a car carrying two men with a woman seated between them in the front seat sped out of the parking lot and south down Jackson Street after the church service.

The witness thought it strange that one of the men had a hand over the woman's mouth.

Later that evening, Coppedge reported his wife and son missing.

Shortly before 11 p.m., a resident of nearby Burton called police and said there was an abandoned car parked along a grassy shoulder of U.S. 290, about 14 miles east of Brenham.

The car was the one Mrs. Coppedge had driven to church. The bodies, with hands tied behind the backs with cord, were found after the trunk was pried open. Mrs. Coppedge was strangled by the same cord.

There were no apparent bruises or wounds. All that was missing were Mrs. Coppedge's purse and some jewelry.

Washington County Sheriff Elwood Goldberg readily admits the Coppedge case is the most frustrating he's run up against in his 20-plus years in law enforcement. He even postponed his planned retirement because of the murders.

What intrigues him most is the lack of an apparent motive.

"It's mind-boggling," the sheriff said. "If she had been raped or tortured, well, we'd have that. If she was carrying $2,000 or $3,000 with her, we'd have robbery as a motive. But right now, we don't have anything."

Deputies say Coppedge is not a suspect and has cooperated with the investigation. He declined to be interviewed, the Dallas Morning News said.

The slayings have been the most violent in a string of crimes that have hit Brenham this year. There were two murders earlier in the year, and a prominent businessman was wounded by intruders in his home.

The City Council has since authorized the hiring of six more police officers, which will bring the force to 24 officers.

Panel weakens limits on real estate shelters

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Ways and Means Committee apparently is rejecting President Reagan's recommendation for blowing the roof off real estate tax shelters.

A committee task force called instead for looser limits on non-business interest deductions than Reagan proposed, and voted unanimously to all but kill the president's plan for sharply curtailing the tax break that makes most real estate shelters work.

The full committee planned to consider the recommendations today as part of its tax-overhaul plan, but there was no indication the recommendations of the task force would be overturned.

"I was just outgunned by a real estate lobby that knows no limit to its greed," said Rep. Fortney Stark, D-Calif., the task force chairman, who favors tougher restrictions. "The real estate industry creates far more shelters and abuse than makes economic sense for the United States."

One tax lawyer who is an authority on real estate disagreed. When fully effective in 10 years, he said, the proposal "is going to stop people from zeroing out" — that is, paying no income tax. "They are going to be significantly hurt," added the lawyer, who would not be quoted by name.

The proposal by the task force, made up of six members of the Ways and Means Committee, would:

—Permit a couple to deduct $20,000 a year in non-business interest plus the interest on mortgages on two homes (or one home and six weeks of time-sharing on a second) plus enough interest to equal total investment income. This limitation would be phased in over 10 years.

—Continue to permit investors in real estate to deduct amounts for which they are not personally responsible, such as interest on non-recourse loans in limited partnership arrangements. Real estate is the only investment not already covered by an "at-risk" rule, which limits deductions to cash actually invested plus loans for which the taxpayer is liable.

Police search for doughnut thieves

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — An all points bulletin was issued here for anyone with dried red jelly on their face after sticky fingered burglars smashed a plate glass window and stole two dozen jelly-filed doughnuts, police say.

Officers discovered that someone had smashed the window and stole the doughnuts early Monday, police said.

"We've got an APB (all points bulletin) out for anyone with dried red jelly on their face," said police spokesman Jim Willett. "At least that would be probable cause to question them. I believe that would stand up in court."

First joint search beginning

YEN THUONG, Vietnam (AP) — U.S. and Vietnamese workers began an unprecedented joint search today for remains of four American MIAs, and detected some metal in a village garden where the Vietnamese say a B-52 bomber crashed 13 years ago.

The search began in the garden of a woman who said her husband and 12-year-old son were killed when the bomber slammed into their house on Dec. 20, 1972. The Vietnamese say the B-52 was shot down by missiles.

"This is a pretty big piece (of metal) here," Capt. Paul Bethky of Lombard, Ill., said as he pointed the humming metal detector at an area in the corner of the garden. Any other metal in the approximately 30-by-40 foot plot, believed to be the center of the crash site, may be too deep to be detected, he said.

However, First Sgt. Dave Kelly, said no conclusions had yet been reached about the piece of metal.

A 7½-ton tractor flown in by the United States was to remove the top layers of the moist, red earth later today before the Americans, aided by 10 Vietnamese workers, start digging with shovels and other hand tools.

The excavation at this agricultural commune of 500 people is expected to take 10 to 12 days.

Vietnamese officials said they hope to find the remains of four U.S. airmen believed to have died in the crash. Two other crew members who parachuted were taken prisoner and returned to the United States in 1973, they said.

The American side has no record of a B-52 crash on Dec. 20, 1972.

The joint excavation, the first in Vietnam since the war ended in 1975, is the latest in a series of Vietnamese steps to account for 1,797 U.S. servicemen and civilians still listed as missing.

In a brief opening ceremony, Tran Hoang, head of the Vietnamese excavation team and chief of the Vietnamese Foreign Ministry's North American Affairs Department, called the excavation "a turning point in relations between the Vietnamese and the U.S. governments."

The head of the 13-member U.S. military team, Col. Joe Harvey, replied that the United States considers the joint effort "a precedent and an indication of a change in the policy on the part of the Vietnamese government, a beginning of greater cooperation to resolve this issue."

Apparently alluding to Vietnam's desire to establish diplomatic relations with the United States, Hoang also said the excavation shows the two countries "can cooperate in many other fields."

Harvey, commander of the Honolulu-based U.S. Joint Casualty Resolution Center, said the Americans had come as technical workers, "strictly" to resolve the humanitarian issue of the MIAs.

Vietnamese officials arrived at the village in stiffly pressed suits. The Americans wore blue jeans, T-shirts and baseball caps.

Kelly, of Seward, Pa., used a pocket knife to chop away some low-lying bushes in the center of the garden.

Bethky, of the Army Central Identification Laboratory in Honolulu, said the metal detectors were effective up to 15 feet deep.

High court refuses Cauble's appeal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rex Cauble's plea to get his drug conviction overturned never reached the ears of the nation's highest court.

The 71-year-old Texas rancher had hoped to convince Supreme Court justices that prosecutors failed to disclose numerous facts that could have helped acquit him.

But the court, without comment, let stand Cauble's conviction despite his claims that the government withheld evidence at his trial.

Cauble was convicted by a federal jury in July 1982, and began serving his sentence in June 1984 after two years of appeals.

He also was ordered to forfeit to the government his one-third interest in the $83 million Cauble Enterprises.

He is now serving a five-year prison term for heading a marijuana-smuggling ring known as "the Cowboy Mafia."

Prosecutors alleged Cauble, a Denton County businessman with interests in ranching, oil and real estate, masterminded one of Texas' largest drug rings involving the smuggling of more than 150,000 pounds of Colombian marijuana into the state in 1977 and 1978.

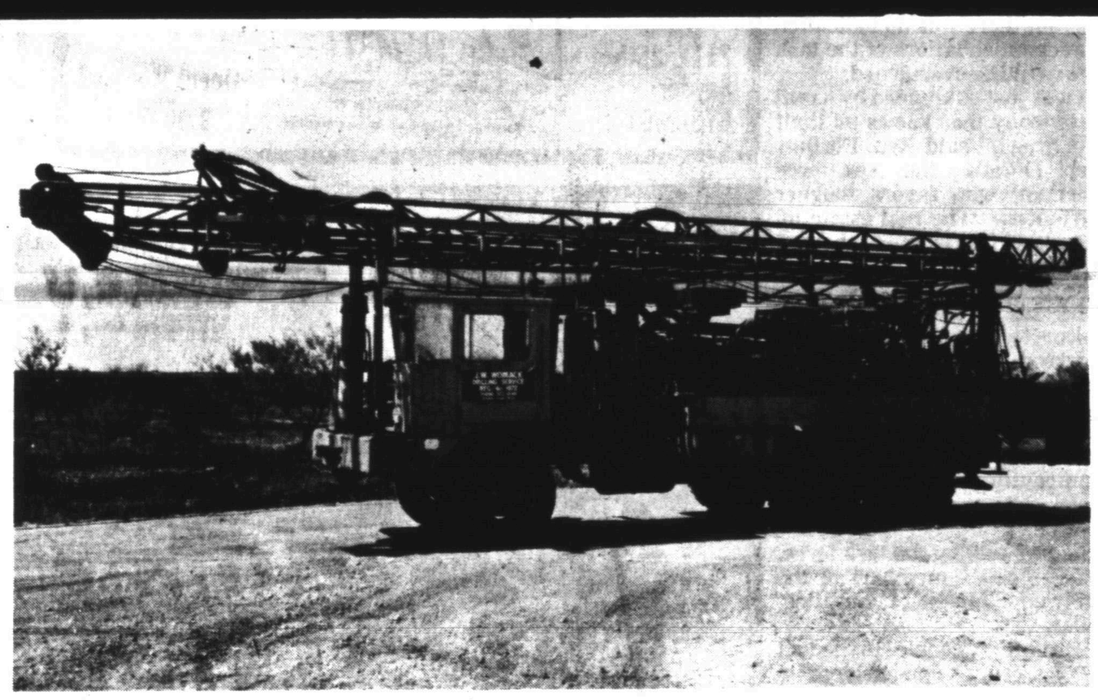

The government charged that "the Cowboy Mafia" smuggled marijuana aboard shrimp boats from Colombia and, using a company jet, distributed the drugs from Cauble's ranches.

Cauble claims the government withheld details of a plea bargain with a key prosecution witness.

Crew members' families, companies settle on sum

HOUSTON (AP) — Families of some crew members aboard an oil exploration ship that sank during a typhoon in 1983 have agreed to a $51 million out-of-court settlement with the ship's owner and operators, attorneys said.

About 100 relatives of 35 men who died on the Glomar Java Sea will receive varying amounts from $125,000 to $5 million, attorneys Fred Hagans and John O'Quinn said Monday.

The 400-foot Glomar Java Sea sank Oct. 25, 1983 about 60 miles south of China's Hainan Island during Typhoon Lex. Only 31 of the 81-man crew were recovered.

While 35 families agreed Monday to settle with Global Marine Inc. of Houston, the ship's owner; only 22 families agreed to a $12.5 million settlement with the Atlantic Richfield Co., which leased the ship from Global Marine for oil exploration, attorneys said.

The settlement, which includes a $38.5 million payment from Global Marine, came just as trial was set to begin in federal court.

Lawyers for Global Marine and Arco said the companies were not accepting blame for the deaths by agreeing to the settlement.

In 1584, the Gregorian calendar was adopted by the Roman Catholic states of the Holy Roman Empire.

One man gives up to police

GORDON, Texas (AP) — The son of an Erath County Commissioner was found shot to death in his Palo Pinto County home after a man called officials and said he had just murdered someone, authorities said.

The body of Terry Don Johnson, son-in-law of Erath County Commissioner "Son" Fulfer, was found Sunday afternoon in his mobile home at Lake Palo Pinto.

Erath County Deputy Ken Watson called the Palo Pinto County sheriff's office at 11:30 p.m. Sunday reporting a man called saying he had just killed a man. The caller told him he wanted to surrender to former Erath County deputy Wayne Mefford and a boyhood friend, said a spokeswoman for the Palo Pinto County sheriff's office.

Seeks firing of PUC official

AUSTIN (AP) — Public Utility Commissioner Dennis L. Thomas says Republican gubernatorial candidate Kent Hance is playing politics by urging that Thomas be fired for using state resources in obtaining a doctoral degree.

"I think that Mr. Hance's comments are politically motivated. It's important that the commission remain above politics, therefore I'll have no comment," Thomas said Monday.

Hance said Thomas showed poor judgment at best in using state funds, state employees and state computer time in getting his Ph.D. He said Democratic Gov. Mark White should replace Thomas with someone who will devote all his time to the job.

"Dennis Thomas simply used his office to further his own education, and that's not right," Hance said.

"Anything short of full-time, fully dedicated commissioners is unacceptable. That's why Thomas should be replaced," Hance said in a statement.

Hance also said Thomas' actions aren't helping consumers.

"I don't think that appointing a commissioner who spends his time furthering his personal education helps in any way to keep our utility rates down," Hance said.

White named Thomas to a term ending in 1989. Questioned Monday about Hance's criticism, the governor declined to comment.

White earlier defended Thomas, saying the commissioner did nothing illegal. White said Thomas' studies at the University of Texas on rural electric cooperatives might help in his work on the panel that regulates electric and telephone companies.

According to state records that Thomas provided to news reporters, $400 in tuition costs were paid by the Public Utility Commission. Thomas also used $2,800 worth of state computer time, obtained the quarter-time use of a state researcher who was paid $1,176 monthly for nearly a year and had PUC secretaries type and copy his 375-page thesis.

Hance said that while he understands Thomas broke no law, he believes it was improper. He said that if elected, he would ask the Legislture to review the State Employees Training Act of 1969 which allows state workers to further their job-related education at state expense.

"State agency leaders have a special responsibility to be an example to their employees," Hance said.

"Parents struggling to send their children to college may object to paying tax dollars for the doctoral degree of a state employee who makes more than $60,000 a year," he said.

The Republican candidate also noted that Thomas had to reimburse the state for some travel expenses following news reports that he paid $229 per night in state funds for a stay at a luxury hotel in New York City.

"I think Dennis Thomas has taken advantage of the spirit of the law.

Prediction: 1985 season will be okay

NEW YORK (AP) — Last year's boom, six fewer shopping days this year and recent heavy sales of such big-ticket items as cars could mean a modest Christmas for the nation's retailers, industry watchers say.

But stores are stepping up promotions before the Christmas shopping season formally starts the day after Thanksgiving, Nov. 28. And despite a heavy debt load, customers will pull out their credit cards to buy gifts, analysts say.

"I believe the consumer, who is overextended, will leverage himself more," said Walter Loeb, a retail analyst with the investment firm of Morgan Stanley & Co. "The American consumer is a sentimentalist. At Christmastime he wants to give gifts and he wants to extend warm wishes to his fellow man."

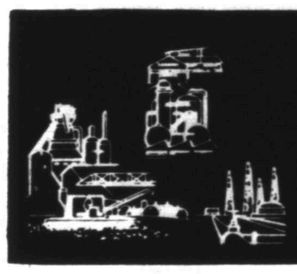

The traditional Christmas shopping season after Thanksgiving is shorter this year because both holidays fall in midweek, reducing the number of days that stores can open.

Retail sales so far this fall have been lackluster, although they picked up a bit in October, according to the retailers' most recent monthly reports.

"Consumers, after having retrenched and saved more in October and November, I think will come back to the stores for a reasonably good Christmas, but late," said Allen Sinai, chief economist at the investment firm Shearson Lehman-American Express Inc.

But he added that "this year is not likely to be as good as last," when sales gained almost 10 percent over the preceding Christmas.

Susan Duchak, a spokeswoman for Sears, Roebuck & Co., the nation's largest retailer, said, "We're cautiously optimistic about the fourth quarter and the Christmas selling season."

FOR SPARKLING CLEAN CARPETS, Jack Bryant and West Texas Carpet Cleaning can clean your carpets quickly and professionally. Give them a call at 573-2480 or 573-3930.

West Texas Carpet will clean your carpet professionally

The best way to get your carpet the cleanest is to have it cleaned professionally and Jack Bryant of West Texas Carpet Cleaning is your man.

Bryant states that the best method of carpet cleaning is steam and dry cleaning. Even though he is familiar with all types of cleaning and has been to various schools on carpet cleaning, he firmly believes that steam extraction is by far the best method because, with other methods, soil is left in the carpet. Another added feature of the steam cleaning method is that the carpet is completely dry in three or four hours.

Everyone is aware that carpet seems to get dirty quicker after cleaning. According to Bryant, new carpet has a protector similar to Scotch Guard which, after a while, is partially worn off by traffic. So naturally, after cleaning, you have clean carpet, but not a new one with a protector. Bryant can replace this protection so your carpet will stay cleaner longer.

Another reason carpet looks dirty a little while after cleaning is that most people, who clean their carpet themselves use too much shampoo and what appears to be dirt in the carpet is really soap and this soap attracts dirt. At Bryant's they know how much and what kind of chemicals to use. In many cases with their soft water, combined with heat, pressure and a powerful vacuum, little or no shampoo is required, so therefore the carpet is and looks cleaner longer.

There is no comparison between Bryant's method and doing it yourself. You rent a machine that doesn't have a water softner and only 35 to 50 pounds of pressure, whereas Bryant uses soft water and 300 to 400 hundred pounds of pressure. His machine is also in the van so dirty water will not spill on your carpet.

As for the cost--Bryant states that he can clean a carpet almost as cheap as you can, especially by the time you rent a machine and buy the shampoo. When cleaning at least two rooms Bryant will give you a 20 percent discount.

West Texas Carpet Cleaning guarantees that you will be satisfied with their work. When you combine this with the fast, efficient, courteous service that they give you will agree that they are a business you need to get aquainted with.

People, not drought, cause African famine

NEW YORK (AP) — The famine in Africa was caused by human activity, not by lack of rain, and emergency food aid is making the situation worse, two ecologists have concluded.

Piecemeal aid from developed countries has changed life in sub-Saharan Africa so dramatically that the land can no longer support the population, the researchers say.

The changes may even be altering the weather itself.

The core of the problem, according to Anthony Sinclair and John Fryxell of the University of British Columbia in Vancouver, is that too many people and too many cattle are living on land that can no longer support them, because it has been overgrazed and stripped of vegetation.

"If you feed the people and leave them where they are, it won't address that problem," Sinclair said recently in a telephone interview. "It will make it worse, because these people will move into new areas and alter the vegetation again, so the famine will spread."

Sinclair is quick to say that on humanitarian grounds there is no immediate alternative to sending food to the millions of starving African families, but warns that more must be done.

"The very first thing we have to address is to repair the vegetation," he said. "We've got to get the grasslands growing again. We've got to take the people off the land, take the pressure off the land."

Moving large numbers of people is a difficult political problem in the best of circumstances, and may be impossible given the political unrest in some of the drought-stricken countries of Africa, in the broad belt known as the Sahel that stretches across the continent just south of the Sahara.

"We're not the right people to say how this should be done," Sinclair said. "We're not in the aid business. But that shouldn't stop us from mentioning problems."

Sinclair and Fryxell are specialists in the migration of wild animals in the Sahel.

In a recent paper titled "The Sahel of Africa: ecology of a disaster," Sinclair and Fryxell described how the wildebeest and the white-eared kob, two African antelopes, survive in large numbers by migrating during the rainy season to areas where short-lived, high-protein grasses briefly appear, and then returning in the dry season to areas where lower-quality vegetation grows year-round.

The migration strategy allows more animals to survive than would be possible if they were confined to a single area year-round, and it also allows grasslands to recover during periods when the animals are away.

Many people living in the Sahel have traditionally followed a similar strategy, moving their cattle herds to different areas at different seasons, and thus avoiding overgrazing and permanent loss of grasslands.

That pattern began to disappear several decades ago, however, as western countries began to send aid to Africa.

Wells were drilled in areas that were green with vegetation year-round. Communities developed around the wells, and medical and veterinary care became available. Much of this change was the result of aid from developed countries.

People who had migrated soon settled near the wells, and it wasn't long before difficulties arose, according to Sinclair and Fryxell.

Grazing animals no longer had access to high-protein grass during the rainy season. The land around the wells became overgrazed and ultimately denuded of vegetation, now that animals were feeding there constantly.

The improved medical care increased the population of humans and animals.

Murder case...

Plea bargain enrages family

AUSTIN (AP) — The family of a 20-year-old murder victim is enraged at a the accused killer's plea bargain deal, which prosecutors acknowledge was a mistake.

Roland Otts, 25, the man accused in the July 16 murder of Richard Taylor, pleaded guilty Monday in a deal that gave him a 39-year sentence. Otts could be considered for parole in five years.

"The system failed us," said Taylor's father, whose name also is Richard Taylor. "This should not be the kind of deal where someone can just say 'oops' and let it go. This affects a lot of people's lives here. I think we were railroaded."

Travis County District Attorney Ronnie Earle conceded his office had erred in striking the plea bargain without the family's approval. But he said the 39-year sentence was fair.

Taylor had been married only three weeks when he was shot in the head in a robbery at a Southwest Austin construction site.

Otts' handprint was found on Taylor's truck and the victim's wallet was found at Otts' home, said Bryan Bishop, an assistant district attorney.

Taylor's signature was forged on several credit card receipts after his murder, Bishop said, but a handwriting analyst would have testified in Otts' trial that the defendant did not sign the receipts or use the hand he was not accustomed to writing with.

Assistant District Attorney Bryan Bishop said that because of largely circumstantial evidence against Otts, the prosecutors decided to offer him 39 years in exchange for a guilty plea. The maximum sentence for a murder conviction is life in prison and a $10,000 fine.

Bishop spoke with members of the victim's family last week and told them that he was considering the plea bargain.

Although there is no law requiring approval from a victim's family, Earle said it is his policy not to enter into any agreement without that consent.

In keeping with Earle's policy, Bishop told Taylor's family that he would not complete the plea bargain without the family's approval.

Taylor's father said his family told Bishop they wanted to know Otts' side of the story before agreeing to the offer.

As Otts was set to go on trial in a county courtroom, the Taylor family was in another room of the courthouse considering the plea bargain proposal.

However, Bishop, the prosecutor handling the case, was tied up with another case and turned the Otts matter over to another prosecutor who was not told the plea bargain was contingent on the Taylor family's approval.

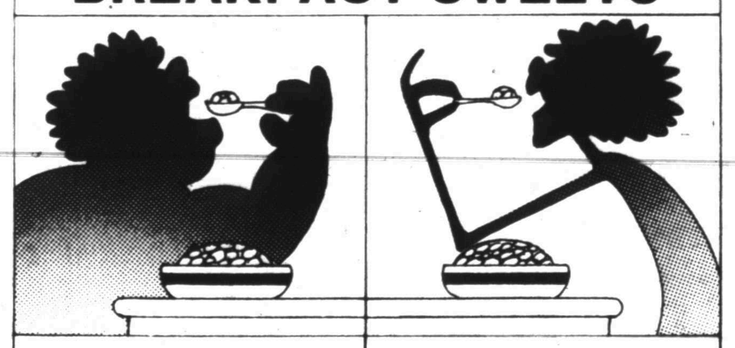

That prosecutor agreed to Otts' plea, and the judge sentenced him to 39 years.

The Taylors were outraged.

"We approached today with a certain degree of enthusiasm thinking that once and for all we're going to get this thing put to sleep," the father said. "Instead, we get put into another room until the case is all over."

Eating disorder needs treatment

By Peter H. Gott, M.D.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am a 29-year-old female and I have bulimia. I have been making myself throw up for one and a half years now. Last year my parents got worried because I started losing weight so fast; my mother took me to a specialist in internal medicine. I was too ashamed to tell the doctor what I'd been doing. After a series of tests, he decided to do exploratory surgery and ended up taking out my gallbladder. I really do want to stop, but I just can't. What are the dangers of what I am doing? Is there any way I can stop? I'm so afraid I'll gain weight.

DEAR READER — Bulimia is an eating disorder related to anorexia nervosa. In your question you have given a clear description of the ailment. You have also communicated the feelings of terror, helplessness and loss of control that are central to the disease.

Obviously, you will not be able to obtain help as long as a sense of shame prevents you from being honest with your doctor and your family. Many illnesses — such as bulimia, drug and alcohol addiction and venereal diseases — are embarrassing. But they are, after all, diseases that can be treated once they are diagnosed.

I urge you to adopt an attitude of scrupulous self-honesty. You seem to me to be at the point where you are able to look at your problem objectively. At least you are willing to acknowledge you have a problem and are helplessly in its grip. You have taken the first step toward recovery. I think you are courageous to have written me.

Your next step is to seek professional help. Be candid with your physician and ask for a referral to a practitioner, preferably a psychiatrist who is qualified to treat eating disorders. You can be helped; however, you must seek that help. Let go of your shame; it is nonproductive and will ultimately prevent emotional growth.

I might add that if you had been honest with your doctor in the first place, you might have been able to avoid unnecessary gallbladder surgery.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I am 65 and in good health. My diet would delight the American Heart Association, except I eat very little fish. I walk daily, take a daily multiple-vitamin/mineral supplement and drink a pint of skim milk a day. I have just had my first really complete physical in quite a while, and the only worrisome findings were that my cholesterol is 210 and I have lost over a half-inch of height somewhere along the line. I am now under considerable peer pressure (yes, peer pressure is with us at all ages!) to take cod-liver oil for the cholesterol, and also calcium. I'd appreciate your advice.

DEAR READER — If you are 65 and enjoy good health, thank your lucky stars. Your cholesterol is OK. Your half-inch of shrinkage is due to the normal "settling" of age.

It seems to me that one of your primary goals is to avoid peer pressure. Therefore, go ahead with cod-liver oil and calcium. These substances will not harm you, and they may do some good, but I doubt they will significantly improve the good care you are taking of yourself. To get your peers off your back, why not suggest that they take some harmless fad vitamin, like vitamin E? A good offense is often the best defense.

Lady Tigers claim opener; edge Post Antelopes, 55-54

POST – Snyder's Lady Tigers put up eight straight points midway through the fourth quarter here Monday, then held on to defeat Post High School in the season opener for both teams, 55-54.

The Tigers will entertain San Angelo Central in their next outing, scheduled for Friday in Snyder Gym. Tipoff will be 6 p.m. Tickets are $2 and $1.

Snyder led for most of Monday's game, but the Antelopes wrapped together two free shots off of a technical foul and several buckets to go in front at the end of the third quarter, 38-37.

The teams traded the lead in the fourth until Snyder's Stephanie McKnight stole the ball and scored a layup to give the visitors a 43-42 edge with less than five minutes to play.

Teammate Jill Roemisch grabbed a rebound and put it back up moments later to extend Snyder's lead to three points, and McKnight aced a pair of free throws with 4:00 showing to make it 47-42.

Roemisch got another basket, 49-42, before the Antelopes retaliated on a pair of free throws.

Post eventually cut the lead to one, 49-48, on Golden Capps' field goal but failed on an opportunity to take the lead at the 1:10 mark when Darby Gordon's charity shot missed the mark and Robbi Merritt rebounded for the Tigers.

Angie Housden then put the game on ice with a three-point play. A free throw from McKnight with 39 seconds remaining added insurance.

Snyder led 55-52 when the hosts got a field goal at the buzzer to give the game its final, one-point margin.

Roemisch, a 5-4 junior, scored 16 points for the Tigers. McKnight added 15, Housden 9 and Teri Henry 7.

Kim Smith, a 5-10 junior, led the Antelopes with 16 points. She was plagued with foul problems and eventually fouled out of the game. Christina Martinez scored 13. Capps had 12.

The Tigers had led 33-30 in the third when officials whistled Snyder Coach Ken Housden for a technical foul.

"That's the first time I ever got a technical just for standing up," said the coach afterward. "They said they were going to call it tighter this year but I didn't think it would be this tight. I was just standing up to talk to one of my kids."

Post took advantage by reeling off eight unanswered points to go in front 38-33 - its biggest lead of the ballgame.

A tough Snyder defense - spirited by McKnight's nine steals - was the key for the Tigers, who were clearly outmanned in the height department.

"I thought they (Snyder) played real well for our size and experience," said Housden. "They had to be gutsy to play the whole game pressing like we were. We were able to substitute some, and those girls coming in off the bench did real well, too. I'm real proud of them all," the coach added.

Lady Cats pop Antelopes here

Snyder seventh and eighth grade girls teams opened their basketball seasons with a pair of victories over Post here Monday.

Snyder seventh grade ripped the Antelopes 40-4 while the eighth grade won 41-40.

Snyder will play in Sweetwater next Monday, beginning at 4:30 p.m.

Scoring for the seventh grade Monday were Michelle Brandon, 10; Robbie Braziel, 8; Vinnie Clay, Dessie Ware and Tiffany Sneed, 6 each; and Fredia Clay, 4.

Scoring for the eighth grade team were Shelly Tomlin, 32; Cindy Srna 4; Dana Fenton and Mande Henry, 2 each; and Cindy Martinez, 1.

Theismann injured; backup quarterback leads 'Skins to win

WASHINGTON (AP) - Backup quarterback Jay Schroeder came off the bench when Joe Theismann's right leg was shattered and lead the Washington Redskins to a 23-21 victory over the New York Giants Monday night.

The win injected new life into the Redskins' hopes of making the National Football League playoffs for the fifth straight season.

"Jay Schroeder was GREAT," said Redskins Coach Joe Gibbs after his backup quarterback, who hasn't played a full game since high school, completed 13 of 20 passes for 221 yards against a defense ranked No. 1 in the NFL entering the game. He threw just one touchdown pass, but that was a 14-yarder to Clint Didier with 7:21 left that provided the winning two-point margin.

It also improved Washington's record to 6-5 the same as Philadelphia's and just a game behind Dallas and the Giants, who lost a chance to take over first place alone in the NFC East and had a four-game winning streak snapped.

The centerpiece of the game was the injury to Theismann, who suffered a compound fracture of the lower right leg.

It came on the second play of the second quarter with the game tied 7-7. Theismann handed off to John Riggins, who pitched it right back to the 36-year-old quarterback. Theismann ducked under Harry Carson, but was grabbed by All-Pro linebacker Lawrence Taylor and his right leg twisted underneath him as Gary Reasons crashed over the top.

"I heard something go snap," said Taylor, who immediately jumped up and gestured to the sidelines for help. "I thought two helmets had hit each other. Then I heard him yelling. I looked down and the bone was sticking right through his leg. It was an ugly sight."

Theismann, already the senior starting quarterback in the National Football League, could be six months older before he is able to walk again. Still, he should be able to resume his career, the Washington Redskins' physician says.

Team physician Dr. Charles Jackson, an orthopedic surgeon, operated on the leg early this morning at Arlington Memorial Hospital in Arlington, Va. Jackson said Theismann would remain hospitalized for 10-14 days. He will be placed in a full leg cast for at least six weeks, then in a half cast.

Dusters outlast Range Anns; take a break until Monday

Western Texas' Dusters got a hot shooting night from Angela Jeans and some steady free throw shooting from Brenda Welch to outlast the Range Anns of Ranger Junior College here Monday night, 77-66.

The victory was the Dusters' eighth in 11 starts this season. They'll now take a week off until next Monday, when they play in Cisco at 6 p.m.

Jeans, a 5-8 sophomore from Hurst, hit 8 of 10 field goals for the home team, which shot .571 from the field. She was 4-of-5 in each half.

Welch led all scorers with 28 points, including 16 from the foul line. The 5-10 freshman was 16 of 19 from the stripe for the evening.

While Jeans and Welch hit the key buckets, it was sophomore Pam Cox who provided the bulk of the workload in the second half. After a 1-of-3 performance in the first 20 minutes, the San Antonian was 8-of-12 in the second. In all, she scored 21 points.

Despite the heavy-duty scoring, it wasn't one of WTC's better nights on the floor.

"They played a zone we hadn't seen in the first half. We have an offensive set that we can use against it but we hadn't worked on it in a while. I thought we did pretty well, considering that," said Coach Kelly Chadwick.

"I felt like, though, we had an awful lot of turnovers. We tried some different things and we wanted to look at some different girls in there. Anytime you bring in inexperienced people off the bench you can expect some mistakes and we had some. I thought everyone played hard, though," the coach added.

The Range Anns made it close at halftime, 29-28, but Western led most of the game. Delores Jatheree, a 5-11 freshman from Nixon, led the visitors. She had 22 points and 19 rebounds. Teammate Cynthia Jones put in 12 points, despite her 5-0 size.

Chadwick said he was looking forward to having a few days off this week before playing Cisco.

"It looked like to me we were a step behind all night and that usually means you're tired. We've played a lot of ballgames recently, and we can use the time off," he said.

Following the game with Cisco, the Dusters will return to Scurry County Coliseum to host the WTC Classic on Nov. 29-30.

McGee named league MVP

ST. LOUIS (AP) – "I'm going to come out next year and just try to do better," the soft-spoken Willie McGee said Monday after he became the 17th Cardinal to win the National League's Most Valuable Player award. "Hopefully, I'm not going to let it affect my life."

McGee, the NL batting champion with a .353 average, was named on 14 first-place ballots in a poll of 24 writers (two from each NL city) from the Baseball Writers' Association of America.

McGee received 280 points in the balloting to 220 for Dave Parker of the Cincinnati Reds, who got six first place votes after leading the league with 125 runs batted in. Pedro Guerrero of the NL West champion Los Angeles Dodgers was third with three firsts and 208 points. New York Mets pitcher Dwight Gooden, who won the Cy Young Award last week, finished fourth with one first and 162 points.

Tommy Herr of St. Louis, Gary Carter of New York, Dale Murphy of Atlanta, Keith Hernandez of New York, John Tudor of St. Louis and Jack Clark of St. Louis completed the top 10.

The American League MVP award will be announced Wednesday night.

Auburn could be opponent for 50th Cotton Bowl battle

DALLAS (AP) - The odds favor Bo Jackson-led Auburn as the guest team in the 50th Cotton Bowl New Year's Day.

If Michigan beats Ohio State and Iowa downs Minnesota on Saturday, the Tigers are Cotton Bowl-bound.

However, an Ohio State upset of Michigan could put the Buckeyes in the Cotton Bowl if Iowa goes to the Rose Bowl.

If Iowa lost and Ohio State upset Michigan then Iowa could be in the Cotton Bowl representing the Big Ten Conference for the first time.

As a source close to the Cotton Bowl said: "A lot of things would have to happen to keep Auburn out of the Cotton Bowl.".

Top-ranked Penn State's move toward the Orange Bowl had Cotton Bowl tournament selection chairman Field Scovell and executive secretary Jim Brock looking at their contingency plans.

"Our options include, in alphabetical order, Auburn, Iowa, and Ohio State. We'll let the chips fall where they may on Saturday," Brock said.

Michigan of the Big Ten Conference also stunned the Cotton Bowl by opting for the Fiesta Bowl. A Big Ten team has never played in the Cotton Bowl and officials had considered a matchup with the Southwest Conference champion as a good drawing card for the 50th year of the New Year's Day game.

Auburn is 8-2 with a Nov. 30 game against Alabama and the Tigers want to be able to accept a bowl bid this Saturday without having to wait around another week.

The Cotton Bowl could gamble that Auburn will beat Alabama and that Jackson will win the Heisman Trophy.

Last year's Heisman winner, Doug Flutie, and Boston College came to the Cotton Bowl and defeated Houston.

"Penn State going to the Orange Bowl didn't surprise us because Coach Joe Paterno has always said he'd play the highest rank team he could," said Brock. "We had been looking hard at the Big Ten but now all that is kind of up in the air.

"Of course, Auburn has a great team with Jackson on it."

Bowl invitations can't be extended until 5 p.m. Saturday.

Baylor car become the host team in the Cotton Bowl if it defeats Texas in Austin on Saturday.

A Texas victory would set up a Longhorn-Texas A&M showdown Thanksgiving night in College Station for the Cotton Bowl berth if the Aggies defeat Texas Christian in Fort Worth on Saturday.

Baylor, Arkansas, and Texas A&M are all expected to go to post-season games no matter how the SWC race turns out.

Lawson will retire; coaches exit Abilene

ABILENE, Texas (AP) - W.D. "Shorty" Lawson has announced plans to retire at the end of the 1985-86 school year from his 11-year career as the Abilene Independent School District atheletic director.

Don Cumpton, Abilene High School's head coach, resigned his post to take over Lawson's job.

Lawson, in his 41st year with the AISD, served as assistant athletic director, physical education and health director, teacher and coach before taking over as athletic director.

"It's been a real joy for me...I enjoyed every day of it," he said. "I couldn't ask for anything more. I've worn out eight superintendents and I finally found one I couldn't wear out."

Also announcing his resignation was Abilene Cooper head Coach Mike Garrison. Garrison said he was leaving after two years in the job because he felt the Cooper program would benefit from someone new.

Bixler dies

CLEVELAND (AP) - Paul Bixler, who was head football coach at Ohio State University for one year and later became a scout and personnel director for the NFL's Cleveland Browns, has died of a heart attack at age 77.

Bixler was head coach of the Buckeyes in 1946 and began a four-year stint the next year as head football coach for Colgate.

Astros hire Yogi Berra

HOUSTON (AP) - Yogi Berra's famous expression "It ain't over 'til it's over" may now be applied to his managerial ambitions.

"I don't think I'll do that again," Berra said Monday after the Houston Astros announced that Berra had joined Manager Hal Lanier's staff as a coach.

Berra, 60, is a former Hall of Famer who skippered both the New York Yankees and New York Mets to the World Series.

He is also a neighbor in Montclair, N.J., of Astros owner John McMullen.

"I enjoy being around the players more," Berra said by telephone from his home. "That's why I took this job down there. John and I have been friends for about 15 years. He's trying to get a winner over there and thought maybe I could help, I don't know."

INDEPENDENT

The restless, independent spirit that settled the west is still a vital force in Texas. Independent thinkers, people who are willing to take the risk of making their own decisions instead of following the crowd have been a basic ingredient in the history of Texas.

Since 1822 when the first Texas cotton gin was built, independent thinking cotton ginners have brought innovations and improvements that have produced major cost savings for all cotton farmers. TEXAS INDEPENDENT COTTON GINNERS are proud to be a part of the independent thinkers that have made the state of Texas great.

Long trial expected for Ruiz

AUSTIN (AP) — Jurors in the armed robbery retrial of prison reformer David Ruiz have been told to be prepared for a three or maybe four weeks trial.

State District Judge C.C. "Kit" Cooke did tell the panel Monday he would give them about two days off for Thanksgiving.

"It will be a long, grueling trial," said defense attorney Bob Looney.

Most of the first day of the retrial was spent questioning would-be jurors, particularly those who did not feel they could spare three or four weeks from their work or homes.

Cooke said testimony would start Wednesday morning.

Meanwhile, the judge, and lawyers for both sides, waited for word from the 3rd Court of Appeals, where Ruiz' attorneys have filed an appeal that possibly could delay the retrial.

Ruiz, 43, who was the chief plaintiff in a federal suit that brought major changes in the state prison system, is accused of robbing John Twidwell, one of four victims of an Austin apartment stickup in September 1984.

The mistrial Oct. 15 concerned the robbery of Nina Gutierrez, another of the victims.

"Because my client's (Ruiz's) name has become known across the state because of his prison reform activities, there is no reason to put his life in double jeopardy, which the state is trying to do," Looney argued Monday.

"The state not only invited mistrial (in the first robbery trial) but actually forced it because of prosecutorial misconduct," Looney said.

Prosecutors argued that the defense was responsible for the mistrial.

"Mr. Looney was the one who asked for the mistrial, not us," said Assistant District Attorney Terry Keel. "The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that where several people are involved in a robbery, the trial of one charge does not prohibit trial on any of the other charges."

Cooke declared a mistrial on Oct. 15 after almost two weeks of testimony, after he found that a juror had been drinking during recesses.

"My feeling is that we've got a new and distinct case here," Cooke said in overruling Looney's motion that charges against Ruiz be dismissed.

However, Cooke said he would allow time for Looney to take his appeal of the mistrial to the 3rd Court of Appeals in Austin. A ruling is expected within two days, Looney said.

Ruiz faces a possible life sentence if convicted of aggravated robbery. He was paroled from a robbery sentence in 1981 and now is serving a 25-year sentence for aggravated perjury.

On Oct. 30, Cooke, a visiting judge from Cleburne, held a change of venue hearing but decided to keep the trial in Austin.

Jurors try again for verdict

HOUSTON (AP) — After two days of deliberations a state district court jury still was unable to reach a verdict in Pennzoil Co.'s $15 billion breach-of-contract lawsuit against Texaco Inc.

Jurors were trying to decide whether Texaco used unethical tactics to break up a Pennzoil-Getty Oil Co. merger or merely acted as a "white knight" to save Getty from an unwelcome suitor.

The eight-woman, four-man panel planned to resume deliberations today.

The trial, which began July 8, centered on Texaco's $10.1 billion purchase of Getty Oil in 1984, the second-largest merger in U.S. corporate history. Chevron Corp.'s $13.3 billion purchase of Gulf Corp. was the largest.

During the four-month trial, Pennzoil alleged Texaco forced Getty to break an earlier merger agreement by offering a higher price for its stock.

While it did not seek to dissolve the Texaco-Getty merger, Pennzoil said Texaco should pay $7.5 billion in actual damages and $7.5 billion in punitive damages.

Texaco, the nation's third-largest oil company, argued Pennzoil had no binding agreement to merge with Getty and that it filed the lawsuit to get revenge against a successful competitor.

Concrete truck overturns

Four traffic accidents were reported in Snyder Monday including one involving an overturned concrete truck.

The North 100 Block of College Ave. at 3:03 p.m. was the scene of the one-vehicle mishap involving the concrete truck.

According to reports, the 1978 Mack truck owned by Concrete Inc. of Snyder and driven by Larry Frank Bridges of Roscoe overturned after swerving to miss another vehicle.

The non- contact vehicle left the scene of the accident and has not been located.

Also Monday, James Alan Buchanan of 115 30th St. reportedly sustained minor injuries but declined medical treatment at 7:46 p.m. in the 3000 Block of 38th St.

According to police reports, Buchanan was driving a 1978 AMC which struck a parked 1985 Chevrolet pickup owned by Mobil Pipeline of Dallas at 3009 38th St.

Monday's first reported mishap was a hit-and-run incident in the 300 Block of 36th Pl.

A parked 1984 Chevrolet pickup and trailer owned by J.C. Dennis of 317 36th Pl. was apparently struck by a vehicle which fled the scene.

Bridges was uninjured in the incident.

Monday's third minor mishap was reported at 4:59 p.m. at the intersection of 45th St. and El Paso Ave.

Involved in it were a 1980 Buick driven by Angela Dawn Lay of 2808 47th St. and a 1984 Buick driven by Paula Bartlett Daniell of 4516 Galveston Ave.

Judge ponders bond for Chagra

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Elizabeth Chagra is being held in the county jail here while she awaits a magistrate's decision on whether she can be released on bond for the first time in more than three years.

Attorneys for Mrs. Chagra, who is awaiting retrial on a charge she conspired to assassinate a federal judge, Monday asked that her bond be reduced from $1 million to $50,000 personal recognizance bond.

U.S. Magistrate Robert O'Connor said he would decide sometime this week on the bond reduction bid.

Mrs. Chagra has been in federal prison in West Virginia since 1982 when she was convicted in connection with the 1979 murder of U.S. District Judge John Wood.

The 5th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals overturned the conviction in February and ordered a new trial.

Her husband Jimmy Chagra is serving a 47-year term for obstruction of justice in the same case and other charges.

He also is serving a life term for plotting to kill former Assistant U.S. Attorney James Kerr.

The appeals court upheld Jimmy Chagra's conviction along with the murder conviction of hitman Charles Harrelson and the perjury conviction of Harrelson's wife, Jo Ann.

O'Connor designated Warren Burnett and Larry Zinn as court-appointed attorneys for Mrs. Chagra Monday after she claimed indigency.

Burnett argued in a hearing before O'Connor Monday Mrs. Chagra had "behaved in an exemplary way as a prisoner. There have been no claimed escape attempts."

He said she had served ample time on a five-year sentence for tax fraud and obstruction of justice to warrant release if she did not face retrial.

"She owes the United States nothing for these convictions," he said. "She is purely and simply at this time a pre-trial detainee."

But Assistant U.S. Attorney Ray Jahn argued that the high bond should remain in effect.

He offered transcripts of taped telephone conversations between Mrs. Chagra and her husband while he was in federal prison in Leavenworth, Kan.

The conversation, Jahn said, included an escape plot.

"This directly reflects on her character and propensity to flight," Jahn said.

Earlier Monday, U.S. District Judge William Sessions set a Thursday deadline for filing of change of venue motions for the retrial.

Neither Burnett nor Jahn would say if they planned to file such a motion.

College notes window shooting

Police are investigating a single misdemeanor criminal mischief report filed Monday involving a window apparently shot with an air rifle.

David Harr, dormitory director at Western Texas College, filed the report at 5:02 p.m.

He told police that a window of the dorm office had been damaged sometime earlier in the day or overnight Sunday.

In other action, police took one man before the municipal judge for traffic violations and jailed a second subject for an unpaid public intoxication fine.

Incident linked to two juveniles

Kelly Wright, owner of Wright's Plants and Gifts, filed the burglary report at 8:25 a.m. Monday.

The theft from the Clements boat — which was parked at Scurry County CB Sales in the 300 Block of the East Highway — was discovered after officers began their investigation of the Wright burglary.

Investigators report entry to Wright's was gained through a roof air-conditioning vent.

Listed as taken from the business were 21 watches, several toys and five AM-FM stereo radios.

That property was recovered — along with the items taken from the boat — with the arrests of the suspects.

Fight for world opinion

Two 'great communicators' face off

By Robert J. Wagman

SINCE COMING to power, Mikhail Gorbachev has shown his public relations skills. To prepare himself for the meeting with Gorbachev, President Reagan has staged mock summits with an aide playing the role of the Soviet leader.

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Has the "Great Communicator" met his match? That is the question many in Washington are asking as Ronald Reagan prepares for his summit meeting Nov. 19 and 20 with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev.

The stated purpose of the meeting in Geneva is for the two world leaders to get acquainted and perhaps start a dialogue that will lead to advances in arms control, or at least a reduction in East-West tensions. But both sides are even more interested in winning the public relations battle for world opinion.

They will be playing to a world audience. The populations of Western Europe are especially important as the Soviets continue to try to split the Western alliance or at least weaken U.S. influence among its NATO allies.

One would have thought the public relations battle would be no contest. Reagan, after all, has not been dubbed the Great Communicator for nothing. With his lifetime of experience under the lights and in front of the camera, and his charm and self-confidence, Reagan should be able to win this hands down. But in the short time he has been in power, Gorbachev has also shown rather formidable communicating skills.

In the past Soviet leaders have always come off looking like unimaginative ideologues. But U.S. officials worry that, this time, it may be Reagan who comes off looking dogmatic and unbending.

During his trip to Paris earlier this fall, Gorbachev captured the public relations high ground. In his public appearances, his meetings with French President Francois Mitterrand and his unprecedented press conferences, he showed himself to be extremely intelligent, clever, quick witted, attentive, at ease and, above all, well prepared and well briefed. He appeared and sounded flexible and reasonable, even when playing a very weak negotiating hand.

He fired off a constant barrage of new ideas and new proposals, appearing to be an innovator struggling to find solutions. Never mind that most of the new ideas were simply old ideas repackaged. They kept Mitterrand off balance, and Gorbachev is likely to use the same tactic in Geneva.

One of the weakest positions the Soviets have taken at the Geneva arms talks is that their three-warhead SS-20 missiles should not be considered strategic, and therefore subject to limitations, because of their limited range. During his Paris visit, Gorbachev offered to remove all but 243 SS-20s from within range of Europe. He also called for separate arms reduction talks with Britain and France, and for new negotiations between the European Economic Community and the Eastern Bloc trading group. That played well with the European press and public.

Originally the United States was not planning to make a new arms control proposal. Then, under pressure from Western allies, and not wanting Gorbachev to completely steal the thunder, the United States put forward a modified proposal in response to the Soviets on Nov. 1.

Meanwhile, it is feared that, in Geneva, Reagan will preach to Gorbachev about the advantages of the American way of life and lapse into his harsh anti-Soviet rhetoric of earlier years. Reagan has told associates he would like to introduce Gorbachev to a typical U.S. family and "ask him to compare our way of life with that in the Soviet Union." And, on a number of occasions, leading Soviets, including former Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, have complained that Reagan has lectured to them.

White House aides say that the president "is going to be debating principles" and that his mood is "anxious" and "feisty." But they also say the harsh rhetoric is a thing of the past and point to the White House visit of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze as proof.

Still another fear is that Reagan will be shown up by Gorbachev's greater grasp of detail. Gorbachev's interviews with Time magazine and the French press showed that he has not simply memorized details but mastered them. The president, by contrast, still has little expertise in the details of nuclear weapons issues. He sometimes makes embarrassing mistakes, such as his misstatement in October that the United States is "still well behind the Soviet Union in literally every kind of offensive weapon, both conventional and in the strategic weapons."

In previous debate situations, Reagan has given both brilliant and terrible performances, depending upon how he has prepared. Some aides believe that, for the summit, Reagan needs exhaustive preparation on the specifics of nuclear weapons issues. Others remember that the president was overprepared and too immersed in details before his near disastrous first debate last year with Walter Mondale.

"We have to fine-tune him rather than cram him," said an aide who believes the president should rely on general principles, rather than technical details.

Basically, say White House aides, Reagan is preparing for the summit as he would for a political debate. The process started with about two dozen background papers outlining Soviet history, politics, foreign policy, society and culture. He has read briefings prepared for him by groups outside the government, such as the conservative Heritage Foundation, and a number of Soviet experts have been brought in to brief him. He has also studied videotapes of Gorbachev's speeches, interviews and press conferences.

Finally a mock summit was staged with an aide playing Mikhail Gorbachev. Reagan has used full-dress rehearsals before the presidential debates in 1980 and 1984, before every formal news conference and before he hosted the economic summit in 1983.

United Way tackles $100,000 goal

A record $100,000 budget was recommended Wednesday by committee members for this year's United Way campaign — a drive that will see the county's dent Donny Brown, who also served as a budget committee member.

"But we thought about it and decided that with the support of presented to the full 25-member United Way board next week, will mark an increased goal of some 30 percent when compared to last year. Regarding actual dollars from requests totaling in excess of $121,000. These requests were heard over a 5½ hour session Wednesday with 10 entities — including the eight traditional Hawes, Rex Robinson, Fred Castillo and Brown.

Last year's goal for United Way was $75,830 with $91,117 eventually raised.

United Way: 'people helping people'

As the 1985 Scurry County United Way campaign begins, drive officials want to express their thanks to the fine Snyder and Scurry County firms and individuals who helped make last year's campaign a 120 percent success.

This year's drive seeks a record goal of $100,000, a 10 percent increase over funds raised last year. The majority of these extra United Way dollars will go toward two special projects taken on this year, Noah Project, a haven for battered women and their children, and SCOOP.

The eight traditional United Way agencies will be benefitted as well with like or increased dollars.

This year, as in the past, the heart of the United Way campaign is people helping people because they care. The following is a list of some of the Scurry County people who have given generously.
