School Financial Status Explained

The financial status of Muleshoe Independent School District was pointed out to Rotarians at the noon meeting held Tuesday. Superintendent Neal Dillman gave the 'fact and figure' talk concerning both present and future school budget status.

"I want the general public to be informed of the cost of operating this school for their children and to be prepared for the rising cost within this system as well as everywhere else," Dillman said.

"For the first time, the total operating budget is over the million dollar mark, standing at $1,049,176.00. From this figure, funds already obligated total $970,366.00. This leaves $78,810.00 which must be spread out through the entire everything from thumb tacks to furniture, for the needs of more than 2,000 students and 170 teachers. This unobligated amount is used for administrative supplies, instructional supplies, libraries, maintenance supplies, replacement of equipment, activity trips, Audio-visual, health, furniture and janitor supplies.

"Approximately 70 percent of all the school's purchase orders for instructional supplies and teaching supplies have increased five to 30 percent," Dillman continued.

"For example from the athletic department, last year a football cost $16.95 and after January 1, 1967 the cost of one football is $20.95.

"An inventory was made of the lunchroom before the beginning of school and the rising food costs for the school, as well as the home made a price increase necessary for some grade levels then. Another such inventory is to be completed this week to determine how much more lunch prices will have to be increased at mid-term to offset the indebtedness of the first semester which is running $3,000 to $4,000 at the present time and to put the lunch room on the 'break even' basis."

The lunch room price increase will be released to the public as soon as the figures are complete, Dillman said.

Of the 1,049,176.00 budget revenue totals $470,515; state and federal sources of revenue is $573,661.

"Our revenue here comes from taxes which are already set just about as high as one can stand, so we of the school administration would like to see our people become more interested in legislature and more state support secured. It is time for decision, and this decision will effect everyone. State obtains revenue from sale of tobacco, gasoline and many, many other sources, where the county level for obtaining funds is limited.

TSTA is trying to secure a pay increase of $536, annually for teachers which would bring salary only up to national level.

"Your school is only as good as your teachers," Dillman added. Of 25 school in classes B, A, AA and AAA, only two school teacher pay is equal or lower than Muleshoe, Littlefield and Lamesa. Coaches salary here is below other schools in Class AAA.

From May to September last year, 11,000 Texas teachers left their jobs for high pay elsewhere.

The 1966-67 budget resume broken down in divisions are as follows:

SALARIES: Administration, 34,500; Instruction, 666,398; Attendance 450; Health 9,352; Transportation 22,550; Plant Operation 19,320; Plant Maintenance 18,600; Total Salaries 771,170.

Skipping breakfast isn't a smart way to lose weight. Three well-balanced meals a day is the only way to get the important foods needed.

The basic cereal and milk breakfast pattern of 400 calories for weight reduction is nutritionally efficient. It includes 1/2 cup orange juice, 1 ounce whole wheat flakes or other ready - to - eat cereal, 1 cup nonfat milk for cereal and as beverage, 1 teaspoon sugar, two slices of white toast, and 1 teaspoon butter.

The basic cereal and milk breakfast is superior to some other breakfasts because it is low in fat and cholesterol. It contains an adequate amount of complex carbohydrates and a small quantity of simple sugar.

Editorials Tax Sharing

There is increasing support from the various states, including strong support from Governors, for the proposal that the federal government share some tax revenue with the states.

At the recent winter meeting of the National Governors Conference only two Democratic Governors, Richard Hughes of New Jersey and Calvin Rompton of Utah, opposed a resolution to this effect, a resolution overwhelmingly passed.

The idea is opposed by President Lyndon Johnson but support has been growing steadily in recent years. In view of widespread dissatisfaction with federal administration of a number of Great Society programs it's possible a sharing program will eventually be voted by Congress--if not in the next two years perhaps in a new administration.

The idea is basically sound. Its merit is, primarily, that state governments are closer to the people, operate with lower administrative costs and are more receptive to public opinion. Because of these factors, state administration of some of the Great Society programs (such as anti-poverty) would probably be more efficient, more democratic and more popular.

Congress could launch such a program by turning over anti-poverty funds to the states. Other funds might or might not be specifically allocated to a stated purpose or program.

A New Year

GUEST EDITORIAL—

THE TRADITION of making a new set of resolutions for a new year began, we are told, with our Puritan ancestors who looked critically at the past with a determination to do better in the future.

Come to think of it, we all might profit today if we recall those rugged people who were straight of body and firm in character.

Their contributions to a new land that was to become the greatest country on earth were many--but the following were particularly worthy and deserve studious consideration this morning:

Live simply, worship God and put right above wrong. Work hard, and save for a rainy day.

Support yourself, expect no favors you do not deserve, and provide for those who are helpless to provide for themselves.

IF EVERY American today were completely dedicated to those virtues, and practiced them with Puritanical fervor, our difficulties would diminish.

The crime rate would be next to nothing. Juvenile delinquency would be negligible. There would be no debt, personal or public. Frustrations occasioned by keeping up with the Joneses, by personal vanity and lust for material gain and power would be less common--and so would trips to the psychiatrist.

There would be no scandals in private life or government, no giveaways or subsidies for illegitimacy. The loafer who hangs around a relief office, or collects an unemployment compensation check, would be a figure of the past.

The Puritan example, any way you look at it, was one of high moral conduct and self-discipline. If resolutions are in order, those are sorely needed today.

WHERE do we go from here? From Washington, from the capitals of the 50 states, from business, labor and individual homes comes a story of discontent with things as they are.

Perhaps that is encouraging, because discontent leads to self-examination and grumbling is sometimes the first step toward improvement.

One thing is true: We shall not be a happier and nobler people until we return to the verities and virtues that made this republic: Hard work, thrift, religious faith, patriotism and loyalty to institutions singularly American.

The printed page you read every morning is filled with problems that stretch and multiply from Hanoi to Harrisburg. But when the verbiage is brushed away, the answer for all of us is to work for, believe in and defend that which is good.

THE ELUSIVE 'BUCK'

Political Notes and Beams

GUEST EDITORIAL—

Have the Democratic governors been fully fair with President Johnson and fully honest with themselves? When they blame the voters' antiadministration feelings for the Democratic Party's widespread defeats in last month's midterm elections, aren't they forgetting something? Aren't they forgetting that, outside of some Southern governors, most of the country's Democratic governors went along (either happily or silently) with those same Washington programs which they now blame for election defeats?

We agree, and we think that most political observers also agree, that last month's outcome reflected widespread public discontent with various aspects of the administration's program and performance. Part of this was directed against the cost and size of the Great Society program as a whole, and part against such specific portions of it as its racial policy and its racial policy and its refusal to take effective steps against inflation.

But is it fair for governors, who enthusiastically endorsed much of Washington's program at one time or another, to turn and rend the administration because of November's votes? Their condemnation would have come with much better grace--and much more effect--had they made their views known before the election.

We think that there is much good sense in the Democratic governors' demand that they be given greater say in the drafting of legislation. One of the disadvantages which almost always follows so one-sided a presidential election as that of 1964 is that the White House has disproportionate power and prestige. This tends not only to blanket opposition but also to discourage independent thinking within the President's own party.

Had the Democrats been as ready to stand up and oppose what they felt to be wrong in Washington as were their opponents, they might not have suffered so heavy losses in November. And there might have been less legitimate complaint about some portions of the Great Society program.

STATE CAPITAL Highlights AND Sidelights by Vern Sanford

by Vern Sanford

AUSTIN, Tex. - Come Tuesday, Texas legislators will be back in session at the state capitol.

Pressing money matters and certain new taxes head the "worry list" confronting the lawmakers. But a broad montage of other problems on the agenda promises an interesting, high-voltage session. It is sure to be one that will continue through the full 140-day period and may even go into extra sittings.

Gov. John Connally in his "state of the state" message to the solons later this month will outline spending recommendations which will require more than $100,000,000 in new taxation. Included will be his own $911,500,000 budget.

Numerous tax proposals are expected to be offered. These include expansion on the sales tax, a one-cent-per-gallon boost in gasoline taxes, a franchise tax raise and many other proposals.

Growing cities, with finance problems of their own, will occupy much of the Legislature's attention. Mayors will plug for a one-per-cent local option city sales tax. (Governor Connally prefers a rebate of gasoline tax revenues for street purposes).

While most legislators apparently are prepared to vote for new taxes, few indicate they will support a $44,000,000 raise in state college tuitions.

Headline topics before lawmakers this year will include: Teacher pay raise - teachers want raises ranging from $61 to $100 a month. This would cost the state some $68,000,000 a year. A majority of lawmakers are committed to some form of increase. Connally is expected to recommend much less.

Constitutional revision - the governor and the State Democratic Party advocate revision by convention. Lt. Gov. Preston Smith favors a more-cautious approach.

Legalized sale of mixed drinks and horse racing. Annual legislative sessions. A long-range plan for water pollution control.

A 20-per-cent pay raise for all state employees.

Driver safety legislation: increasing the minimum age for drivers to 16 and requiring periodic re-examination of all drivers.

Among other measures to be considered are: a minimum wage bill; an industrial safety act; increased workmen's compensation benefits; reconsideration of some provisions of the new code of criminal procedure; daylight saving time (should Texas accept it or pass a special act to retain standard time?); and a $75,000,000 bond-financed, 12-year program advocated by the governor to acquire and develop new state parks.

LIQUOR, SI, BETTING, NO-- An Associated Press survey of Texas senators and representatives indicates that while horse-race betting again doesn't seem to have a chance in the 60th Legislature, legalized mixed drinks may.

In 1965 the Legislature let the horse-racing proposition die in a sub-committee. And the liquor-by-the-drink bill which has been up in every session since World War II -- was killed in committee.

Judging from its early answers to a questionnaire, AP concluded that mixed drinks have gained support, while betting seems to have lost some of its appeal. Some legislators said they would not vote for either issue and expect neither to pass. Both will again be hot issues.

On another section of the questionnaire, approximately three-fourths of the senators and representatives figured that new taxes will be in order for the 1967 session. But there was no unanimity as to what kind of taxes.

Only one senator -- Henry Grover, Houston Republican -- said he would vote for few or no more taxes. No member of the House said he would vote against new taxes. However, several legislators did say they were undecided.

GOVERNOR'S GARDEN-- A statewide campaign has been launched for funds to convert the grounds around the Governor's Mansion into a garden area.

Mrs. Perry R. Bass of Fort Worth is chairman of the Mansion Subcommittee of the Texas Fine Arts Commission. She says plans call for a formal rose garden with colonial arbors, a gazebo, pools and fountains framed and surface with brick patios and retaining walls.

Mrs. John Connally assisted a Dallas firm in drafting plans for the garden. Project was approved by the Fine Arts Commission and members of the Texas garden clubs have pledged their help with the fund-raising. Contributions may be mailed to Mrs. Connally at the Mansion in Austin.

The Mansion has been the official residence of Texas governors since 1856.

OATHS TAKEN--Atty. Gen. Crawford C. Martin and several members of the judicial branch of Texas government had to work Sunday -- they took their oaths of office at the Supreme Court Building on the Capitol grounds.

Judges John F. Onion Jr., Wesley Dice and Ernest Belcher took their oaths as judges of the Court of Criminal Appeals. Dice and Belcher had served as commissioners to the court until a Constitutional amendment passed in November made the court a five-member body. Governor Connally is expected to name one of the five as chief justice this week.

Associate Justice John C. Phillips of the Third Court of Civil Appeals in Austin took the oath of chief justice of that court.

War 1967

The war in Vietnam is likely to reach a critical turning point in 1967. Militarily, it might be said a turning point was reached in 1966 but 1967 is likely to be the year which brings the issue to a climax--both in the military and economic fields.

Russia has just supplied North Vietnam with 100 new jet fighters. Anti-aircraft weapons and missiles are being supplied in large numbers. American pilots are beginning to feel limitations on their targets are unrealistic in view of their mounting losses.

On the ground, 1967 will answer the question whether Viet Cong forces will continue to challenge major U. S. formations in major battles. If Viet Cong numbers increase and costlier battles are fought. Pressure will mount for more effective aerial attacks and other military actions to decide the war.

On the economic front, the United States can't increase its expenditure in Vietnam beyond the current two and a half billions monthly unless drastic reductions in other spending are effected or the dollar dangerously and immediately imperiled, which it may already be. The President is thus under heavy pressure to decide before the next Presidential election how to bring the war to an end, either through negotiation or victory - if a permanent victory is possible. Thus the war, its cost in lives and money, has reached a critical point in U. S. history and what President Johnson does about it this year may largely shape history's verdict on his foreign policy.

The Sandhills Philosopher

Editor's note: The Sandhills Philosopher on his Johnson grass farm discovers something new about Russia, his letter this week reveals.

Dear editor: According to a newspaper which a neighbor had gift-wrapped a Christmas present in for me -- not too fancy but it worked -- the Russians are having a problem I never dreamed they'd have. They've got drop-outs in their school system.

That's right. This article, after I got it smoothed out where I could read it (you ever tried to wrap potatoes in a newspaper without wrinkling it?) said drop-outs are running as high as 25 per cent and the Russian officials are trying to do something about it.

This is amazing news. I had thought that every child in Russia went to a modern school, was never late, that he began studying nuclear science in the second grade and launched a rocket by the time he was 12.

I had thought that when he finished high school at the head of his class -- in fact I thought everybody over there finished at the head of his class -- he went through college in three years and then took a job in a scientific factory and complained only when he wasn't allowed to work seven days a week.

Now though that I've found out that there are such things as Russian drop-outs, I don't know what to think. You reckon the school kids over there ever have fist-fights? Don't they know they're all comrades? You reckon one of them ever complained about a school lunch? What does the Russian government do when it finds out some kids don't like Algebra?

The more you think about this the more you begin to wonder about other things. How many failures have the Russians had with satellite launchings? Do they ever have bad colds? Has the battery in a dictator's car ever failed to start?

Or how many Chinese really prefer a nuclear bomb to a bowl of rice? Or do young Viet Cong soldiers really look forward to a fifty-year war? You reckon all the world's nations got problems too?

Yours faithfully
J. A.

Final Cotton Session Centers On Production

Dallas - The final session of the 1967 Beltwide Cotton Production - Mechanization Conference will be centered around production techniques and the effects of chemicals on obtaining a stand.

The two-day meeting, which starts here January 12 at the Staller-Hilton, will bring together a host of experts in virtually every area of cotton production. Technical sessions precede the general conference on January 10 and 11.

Wayne Underwood of Lockett Seed Company, Vernon, will discuss the area approach to cotton production. He will describe the development of a total cotton production program actually in progress for a specific local area by private industry and public agencies. Emphasis will be placed on the groups supporting and participating in the effort, goals of the program, and the progress made thus far.

A summary of research across the Belt on various systems of forming beds for precision planting and subsequent operations will be given by Lambert H. Wilkes, associate professor in the Department of Agricultural Engineering at Texas A & M University, College Station. The results and advantages of each system will be emphasized.

Dr. Ralph E. Motsinger, extension plant pathologist at Louisiana State University, College Station.

The results and advantages of each system will be emphasized.

Dr. Ralph E. Motsinger, extension plant pathologist at Louisiana State University, Baton Rouge, will discuss fungicide, insecticide, and herbicide interactions as they affect stands. His presentation will include grower experiences and research results in this area.

Session Chairman Bruce Lynn, Gilliam, La., emphasizes the conference is open to anyone interested in cotton, and no registration fee is involved. The conference is sponsored by the National Cotton Council.

NFU Pleased With Vote

National Farmers Union President Tony T. Dechant congratulated cotton producers throughout the South and West who voted to support the cotton promotion and research program.

"Farmers Union's support made it possible for farmers to have the opportunity to vote," he said in a statement, "because the organization's work in Congress was responsible for the enactment of authorizing legislation."

National Farmers Union has traditionally and historically supported the concept that farmers should be allowed the right to vote for or against farm programs applicable to all producers.

Dechant said, farmers again have demonstrated their support of government assistance in solving problems they cannot deal with effectively as individuals.

"In addition to making this wise decision," Dechant said, "producers also rejected the fallacious arguments of those who would deny farmers price and income protection afforded through marketing quotas in the cotton program."

Preliminary returns announced showed cotton producers approved marketing quotas for the 1967 crop year by a 91.6% favorable vote.

"The objective to constructive and positive programs such as the cotton promotion and research program failed in their negative anti-farm program attitudes and their repeated failure to present workable alternatives," Dechant said.

"Farmers have demonstrated in both these votes that they are fully capable of making their own decisions concerning such urgent problems as how to promote cotton utilization and save the industry from further encroachment of artificial and synthetic fibers, and how to best protect their bargaining power in the market place."

Historical Markers To Commemorate Texas Cultural Activities

AUSTIN--Three official Texas Historical Markers will be erected early in 1967 to commemorate early Texas cultural activities.

The markers will be erected by the Texas State Historical Survey Committee, said TSHSC President John Ben Shepperd of Odessa.

Inscriptions on the markers will tell the stories of the Old Bandstand in Cuero, the Brass Band in Winters, and the Opera House in Lampasas. The inscriptions also will tell of bandstands, brass bands and opera houses in general.

"These markers will commemorate Texas' rich musical and cultural heritage and will tie in with the program of the Texas Fine Arts Commission in promoting the cultural aspects of Texas," said Shepperd.

"Music was a cultural activity in Texas as early as the time of Stephen F. Austin's colony in 1821, and bandstands were built for open-air concerts as early as the 1850's. There once were more than 200 such bandstands in Texas.

"The Old Bandstand in Cuero was built in 1880. It was the site of concerts, political rallies, Christmas programs, church socials, fund-raising campaigns to benefit such organizations as the park and cemetery associations, and war bond sales rallies during World Wars I and II."

The bandstand figured in national and international publicity when the Cuero Turkey Trot was of worldwide interest from 1912 to 1960. The official Turkey Trot Band was organized in 1916, and performed in innumerable concerts at this historic bandstand.

The old Brass Band in Winters was organized in 1901, seven years after the town was incorporated and consisted of only a few stores, residences and a one-room school house. Charlie Grant, the organizer of the band, was bandmaster for about 15 years.

"There were as many brass bands as there were bandstands," said Shepperd. "The early bands often were composed of men who had come to Texas from Europe--especially Germans and Swedes. They brought their instruments with them, and got together to organize bands after they settled in Texas."

The Winters band traveled in a handwagon drawn by four white horses, making trips to nearby Ballinger, Bronte, Crews, Fort Chadbourne, Maverick, Robert Lee and Wingate. Excursions were made by train to Big Springs, Brownwood, Coleman and San Angelo.

Snappy blue uniforms with gold stripes were adopted in 1905, and the uniforms attracted more men to join the band. Some of the band members are still living, but charter members are now deceased.

"The old Elks Opera House in Lampasas was a good example of the several hundred opera houses that were built in Texas between the decades of the Republic of Texas and World War I," said Shepperd.

"Every town of any substance had an opera house, and opera companies made annual tours through Texas. Some of these companies were from Chicago, Cincinnati and San Francisco; and they often would play for two weeks in a town. More common entertainment in the typical Texas opera house was provided by traveling theatricals. "Box suppers, amateur theatricals, and community programs of all sorts were held in opera houses throughout Texas."

The Lampasas opera house had seats upholstered in leather and arranged in tiers of graduated elevation. Brilliant chandeliers provided the lighting. The drop curtain was painted with a woodland scene on flaming red background.

The opera house staged such professional plays as "Ten Nights in a Barroom," "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "East Lynne," and other dramas of the late 19th century.

Death....

Van Dinh Tung, left for Fort Benning, Ga. Sunday morning. The Servicemen will separate after reaching Fort Benning. Lt. Watson will be in Ranger Training in the Florida jungles for several weeks and the other officers will be in the U. S. Airborne for some time.

All three soldiers were guests in the C.A. Watson home during the Christmas to New Year's holidays.

They were honored on several occasions and were interviewed by newspapers and radio in the surrounding area. The Vietnamse soldiers were given honorary memberships to the city of Muleshoe at a meeting held for local businessmen and officials to meet them.

Then they donned their western wear for a picture to be taken on "Ole Jim" on the Watson farm.

Upon leaving, all said "We will come back here, someday."

Plants Control Evaporation Rate

Planted windbreaks around fields and homesteads are an excellent means of reducing windspeed and evaporation rate in Central, South and West Texas, according to Mason Cloud of the Texas Forest Service, College Station. Protected crops are therefore able to use soil moisture and nutrients more efficiently.

Tree seedlings suitable for windbreak planting will be available from the Texas Forest Service. Orders for delivery between mid-January and March 1967 are being accepted at the Indian Mound Nursery near Alto.

Windbreak species available this year include: black locust, catalpa, Chinese elm, cottonwood, mulberry, Osage orange, redbud, sycamore, enonumus, buffaloberry, rose multiflora, and Austrian, loblolly, ponderosa, shortleaf, and slash pine.

Orders for 100 or more trees in multiples of 50 are accepted on a first-come-first-serve basis. None may be resold nor used for ornamental purposes. Cost of seedlings and stratified black walnut seed is $1.50 per hundred plus state sales tax. Shipping cost is prepaid. Applications and copies of a guide sheet for planting and care of windbreaks can be obtained from the Director, Texas Forest Service, College Station.

WITH CHILDREN—John Gulley as Max Detweiler and Betty Harbin as Ursula are shown in one scene with the children of Capt. Von Trapp.

Pay Taxes On Half Of Capital Sale

Farm assets have been classified into two categories by the Internal Revenue Service. Knowing the proper assets to put in each category can mean an income tax saving, points out James Mallett, Extension farm management specialist at Texas A&M University.

The first category, items produced for sale, is called ordinary income. All ordinary income is subject to tax, said Mallett. Examples of ordinary income are calves, yearlings, or cattle raised for sale, steers, cows, pigs and other livestock purchased for resale are also classified as ordinary income, said Mallett.

The second category, items used for the production of income, is called the production plant or capital items. Mallett said only half the gain from capital sales may be subject to tax. Cows, bulls, sheep and horses for breeding, draft, or dairy purposes are subject to capital gains and only one-half the profit may be taxable, he said.

The animals must be held for breeding, draft, or dairy purposes and owned before sale for 12 months or more. Other assets such as land and buildings must be held six months or more before sale to qualify for capital gains treatment. The A&M specialist said all kinds of farm livestock, including fur-bearing animals may be eligible for capital gains treatment if they are used for breeding, draft or dairy purposes.

My Navy Boy

FROM A MOTHER TO A SON

Oh, speed white wing plane
far over Sea, Takes my love to Dick,
where ever he may be,
Christmas is coming, the day,
is almost here,
Altho our togetherness Son will be missed, this year.
Your picture will be set in your regular place, Your plate will be filled, your name called in grace.
With our Grandsons playing
I'd be loaded with joy:
But with every breath I take
I pray for my Navy Boy.
I hope your stockings are filled with goodies and cheer.
It's only a few more months
Dick, and you'll be here.
Then we will eat, laugh and talk of your time spent, Might even giggle of the places
you were sent.
Son I wish you a Merry Christmas, a basket full of joy.
Remember I love you, I love
you, My Navy Boy.

Birthday

FROM A MOTHER TO A SON

It's your Birthday Son, I know you are somewhere, high in the sky.
If I had wings like your plane,
I wouldn't set here and cry.
From the face of your Father I saw a tear this morn.
The door safely closed, he Thanked God for the day you were born.
With wings I'd fly, his message
straight to your B-52,
His words would ring out, "Son
I Love You,"
I'd circle your plane, I'd walk
in space,
Then I think I'd put thousands of kisses upon your face, I'd talk to your Commander,
the man with the gun.
I'd beg and plead to fight in your place son.
I'd call back to Johnny and Sandra aloud,
I'm spending this Birthday with Dick on a cloud.
It's your Birthday Son, and I know this dream can't come true
So I awake from my Sadness and Thank God for you.

Study Shows Livestock, Meat Industry Changes

COLLEGE STATION --
Definite changes in the livestock and meat industry have resulted in growth of cattle feed-lot facilities and specialized slaughtering plants in the Southwest, according to a research report just completed at Texas
A&M University.

Dr. Raymond A. Dietrich, USDA economist assigned to the
A&M Agricultural Economics and Sociology Department, said the report traces adjustments which have affected the entire marketing systems of the livestock and meat business.

Developments in food retailing, meat packaging, transportation, communications and cattle feeding have influenced the livestock and meat marketing picture during the past two decades, the report shows.

Large volume retail establishments, which generally feature fed beef, and a growing population with rising per capita incomes are important factors that have encouraged the large-scale feedlots.

Dietrich said feedlots with a capacity to handle 1,000 or more cattle have more than tripled in Texas and Oklahoma from 1955-66. And indications are for cattle feeding to continue increasing in these states.

"Another interesting change is that the slaughtering industry is becoming more decentralized with more specialization and a movement toward areas of concentrated livestock production," the economist pointed out. "These actions are taken to cut procurement costs and to obtain adequate supplies of slaughter animals."

Federally inspected slaughter plants which specialize in cattle and calf slaughtering more than doubled in Texas and Oklahoma in the past 10 years,
Dietrich added.

Dr. Tyrus R. Timm, head of the A&M Agricultural Economics and Sociology Department, said the study is aprt of
