Spenkelink Executed

STARKE, Fla. (AP)-Convicted murderer John A. Spenkelink was put to death in Florida's electric chair today, clenching his left fist as 2,250 volts of electricity shot through his body. He was pronounced dead at 10:18 a.m.

Spenkelink, 30, became the first man executed in the United States since Gary Mark Gilmore willingly faced a firing squad in Utah on January, 17, 1977. Before that, no executions had been carried out in this country since 1967.

Mansion Damaged

FORT WORTH (AP)-Priscilla Davis left a half million dollars worth of damage behind when she moved out of the $6 million mansion she once shared with Cullen Davis, the 45-year-old Fort Worth millionaire says.

Priscilla finished moving out of the mansion about 3:30 a.m. Thursday, actually after the midnight deadline a judge had given her when he awarded Cullen the mansion in the couple's divorce settlement a month ago.

Cullen and his new bride, longtime girlfriend Karen Master, exchanged marriage vows at 12:50 a.m. Thursday. Within eight hours they arrived at the mansion, which they plan to move into, to inspect its condition.

They were outraged.

Shutdown Planned

HOUSTON (AP)—Earl "Blackjack" Stevens, the self-proclaimed leader of a newly formed independent truckers organization, says the new group will shutdown all diesel fuel pumps in the nation beginning Wednesday to protest rising fuel prices.

Gasoline Increase Leads Index Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—Led by the biggest increase in gasoline prices in more than five years, consumer prices rose 1.1 percent in April, the Labor Department reported today.

It was the third consecutive month in which consumer prices have risen by 1 percent or more. The March increase was 1 percent, and February's was 1.2 percent.

If consumer prices continue to rise in the next nine months as fast as they did from February through April, they will produce an annual inflation rate of 13.9 percent, the department's figures show.

That is nearly double the Carter administration's official target of a 7.4 percent inflation rate for 1979, and well above the 9 percent rate for all of 1978.

In a related report, the Labor Department said inflation and taxes had combined to reduce further the buying power of American workers. The amount of money workers have to spend fell 2.4 percent in April, the Bureau of Labor Statistics said. So far this year, the decline was 4.5 percent.

The report on the Consumer Price Index indicated that the greatest price increases in April involved transportation, up 2 percent for the month, and housing, up 1.1 percent. Both figures reflect large increases in oil products.

Patrick Jackman, an economist who heads the consumer price branch at the Labor Department, said about 22 to 23 percent of the price index increase was due to gasoline.

Food prices, which began moderating somewhat in March, rose 0.9 percent in April. Most of the increase was attributed to continued high beef and veal prices.

The report indicated, however, that pork prices declined and poultry prices were steady, giving consumers more reasonably priced alternatives to beef. Fresh vegetable prices also dropped.

Still, food prices were nearly 12 percent ahead of April 1978, Labor statistics show.

The Consumer Price Index stood at 211.5 in April. This means that items that cost a consumer $100 in 1967 now would cost $211.50.

Before the price index was released, anti-inflation official Barry Bosworth had indicated there might be some relief in food prices, adding that "hopefully, the worst of the fuel price increases are behind us."

Memorial Day Observance Set Monday

Monday will be a holiday for most offices and a number of retail business firms in Snyder as the nation observes Memorial Day.

Government agencies, financial firms, etc., will be closed.

However, Snyder Schools will be in session as they begin the final week of the term and some business firms will be open.

The Snyder Chamber of Commerce polled its retail business members and announced that a number of local stores will be open for business Monday.

The Snyder Daily News will publish a Monday issue, but will follow its holiday schedule, which will result in an earlier press time.

Plan To Battle, Gail Class Told

GAIL-Dub Bowlus told the seniors at Borden High School last night not to expect the world to stop and throw a party just because they were graduating.

"Things get complicated when you pass 18," said Bowlus, weatherman for KLBK-TV (Channel 11) for many years and now newsman for KLBK Radio in Lubbock in his commencement address.

"Education really begins after tonight," he said. "You can get what you want out of life, but plan on fighting for every bit of it," he told the seniors.

"The roads away from Borden High School will lead in many directions and you will be the ones to choose where," he concluded.

Lisa McLeroy, valedictorian urged her classmates to be ready to accept changes and to take on challenges.

"We must find solutions to problems such as the energy crisis, he said, "and we must be ready to make hard decisions. And most important of all, if we expect to achieve real success, we must have faith in ourselves and in God." Brent Rhoton, delivered the salutory address.

Diplomas and awards were presented by school board president, Ralph Miller, and superintendent, James McLeory.

Special music was provided by Mrs. Bennie Golden.

The class history was given by Rhesa Wolf. Pennye Thompson read the class prophecy and Vickie Jones read the class will.

The recessional was played by Mrs. Sallie Wilson. Sid Westbrook gave the invocation and Perry Smith delivered the benediction.

The class of 1979 at Borden High School is as follows: Chuck Canon, John Eldridge, Ray Don Underwood, Pennye Thompson, Vickie Jones, Lisa McLeroy, Rhesa Wolf, Brent Rhoton, Perry Smith, Sid Westbrook.

Keeping tab on our neighbors:

Walter Buckel of the Lamesa Press-Reporter says he always associated dandelions with other springtime plagues such as Johnson grass, grubworms and dust storms, and that to think they might be a palatable item—even with salt pork—doesn't particularly excite his tastebuds. However, he had read an article which says that dandelions were not considered a weed at all in colonial times, especially in Maine. He then passes along a recipe for dandelion greens, salt pork and potatoes. Here it is:

One pound of salt pork, with layers of lean to add flavor. Slice the pork in thick pieces and score them, then put in a large kettle with a quart of water. Cover the kettle and bring to a steaming point. Lower the heat and cook the pork for about an hour.

About an hour and a half before you plan to serve the dandelion greens, wash thoroughly, drain and place them in the pot with the pork. Cover and bring to a boil, stirring occasionally so that the flavor of the pork will permeate the greens. Let them cook for one hour, making sure that they don't stick to the pan.

Then place pared potatoes well down in the greens. Cover the kettle and bring back to the steaming point. Lower the heat and cook until potatoes are tender, about half an hour. When the greens are done, heap them on a preheated platter and surround with boiled potatoes which will have taken on a slightly green tinge. Dot with paprika if desired. Lay the strips of salt pork atop the greens, and there you have an old-fashioned Maine dandilion green dinner.

Orlin Brewer of the Vernon Record says every tornado apparently is unique and that the twister which struck Vernon on April 10 possibly was more so than most.

"It could have been a storm system with more than one funnel, or simply a single tornado with a whiplash funnel that changed directions dramatically," says Brewer.

This comment stemmed from the mystery of three separate segments of shoulder paving on U.S. Highway 70 which were sucked up by the storm. Some were convinced that it was the same storm which crossed the highway more than once, while others thought it might have been more than one storm.

Any way you take it, tornadoes are one of the big mysteries of the elements.

School Food Service By Contract Discussed

Snyder School Trustees last night discussed reorganizing the school system's cafeteria service as a belt-tightening move and in other matters accepted the resignations of high school principal Horrace Bostick and driver education teacher Hugh Lowry, and granted a reassignment for Roy Carter, who asked to be moved from his athletic directorship to a classroom teaching role.

Superintendent Bill J. Hood and assistant superintendent for business, E.D. Flynn, talked with board members about the operations of school cafeterias they visited in Round Rock, New Braunfels and Fredericksburg.

Discussed was the idea of contracting for operation of the school cafeterias in Snyder with a private food service company. Such a change-over from the present school-operated cafeteria system would probably involve the designation of two central cafeterias with two more satellite cafeterias. Hood told board members. The change could be accomplished with existing resources, Hood indicated.

The main advantage of switching to a private food service company, he added, would be economics.

The board members directed Flynn to seek operational bids from three food service companies pending further study.

Also last night, board members accepted with regret the resignations of principal Bostick and driver education instructor Lowry both sought early retirement.

Carter was granted a reassignment from his

Snyder Man Fatally Injured In Mishap

K.W. Wortham became Scurry County's first traffic fatality of the year last night when the pick-up truck he was driving left the road and overturned near Ira.

Investigating highway patrolmen said the 48-year-old man was traveling north on Highway 350 in a 1977 Chevrolet pickup when he lost control of the vehicle, ran off the road on west side and overturned.

The mishap occurred about 8 p.m., approximately 200 feet north of Ira. He was picked up by Galyean Ambulance Service and transported to Cogdell Memorial Hospital where he died at 10:40 p.m.

Funeral service for Mr. Wortham, who lived at 3111 39th St., have been set for 2 p.m. Saturday at the Bell-Seale Chapel, with J.E. Newsom officiating, assisted by Rev. Doug Stenburg. Burial will be in Snyder Cemetery, under direction of Bell-Seale Funeral Home.

Mr. Wortham was born March 21, 1931, in Rotan. He was a pumper for Chevron 24 years, and had been a resident of Snyder since 1962. He was a veteran of the Korean War. He married Sue Neves on Sept. 30, 1954, in Lovington, N.M. She survives.

Also surviving are three sons, Kenneth Dale of Odessa and Bruce Wayne and Byron, both of Snyder; a sister, Mrs. Chester Mann of Colorado Springs, Colo.; two brothers, R.Q. Wortham of Wink and Byron Wortham of Odessa.

Ask Us

Q—Does the county contribute to the City of Snyder's fire-fighting budget, and how much? How much of the fire-fighting is outside the city?

A—Scurry County is participating in the current fire department budget in the amount of $40,000, which is about 16 percent of the total. The last fiscal year report shows that the Snyder Fire Department answered 180 calls outside the city limits and 162 calls inside the city limits.

Panel Agrees On Tax-Relief Bill

AUSTIN (AP)-School districts will be guaranteed at least $192 million a year reimbursement whether a school finance bill passes or not, House-Senate negotitors decided today.

The conference committee on tax relief ironed out final differences today and agreed to sign a conference report in the afternoon.

Final approval of the compromise bill HB1060 by the House and Senate would send it to Gov. Bill Clements, who had insisted on "meaningful" legislation carrying out the 1978 Tax Relief Amendment.

Decisions made by conferees today would guarantee that no school district could get more state reimbursement money by reducing its tax appraisals and no district would lose money if it raised appraisals.

Permit For Stacy Dam Delayed For 45 Days

Opponents have gained a delay of possibly 45 days on a permit to the Colorado River Municipal Water District for a 554,000-acre foot reservoir on the Colorado River near Stacy.

The Texas Water Commission in Austin granted all motions for a rehearing of the commission's order for April 10 granting the permit, but only for the limited purpose of amending the permit to require the CRMWD to file an operations manual. While this action will not materially change matters, it will delay the procedural timetable.

Frank Booth, counsel for CRMWD, had proposed amending the permit to requite the operations manual because of Court of Civils Appeals case ruling which occurred after the Stacy permit was granted. He thought this might avoid a challenge on this technicality. TWC Chairman Felix McDonald concurred, adding that he would hate to open up the possibility of a reversible error on a technicality.

"All you would get out of it would be a year and a half delay," he told Fred Werkenthin, attorney for the Lower Colorado River Authority, the chief protestant. The 18-month span approximates the interval for going through the appeals process.

So far as is known, no permit for reservoirs have the operations manual requirement in them. However, about the time the WTC was granting the Stacy permit, an appeal court decision in a waste water project raised the issue of including a statement of how the project will be operated. To be safe, Booth said he felt the language ought to be in the CRMWD Stacy permit, having the effect of making the order final when the TWC acts upon it.

Attorneys for half a dozen protestants who had asked for a rehearing professed "surprise" at the CRMWD amendment proposal, and one lawyer suggested up to 90 days "to reflect upon it." Commissioner Joe Carroll noted that this would "be some reflection."

The action was interpreted in some quarters as an indication that the WTC will overrule all motions for a rehearing when the amended permit order is signed. This likely would set in motion an appeal to district court on the case record. A decision there might be expected before the end of the year.

O.H. Ivie, CRMWD general manager, was disappointed at the additional delay, but said there was no prudent alternative to swapping a month or two now for the prospect of losing 18 months or more later in event the case were to be returned to the TWC on a technicality.

french use our book

The postwar drift to state control of industry received a jolt when France decided that free enterprise was its only way out of the morass of inflation. Regulation and control had led the nation's industry into the habit of having government "bail them out whenever they got into trouble," a French official said.

Andre Baeyens, director of information service for the French embassy in New York, is on a lecture tour across the United States. He told a gathering of businessmen that the French government is trying to wring inflation from the French economy by bringing free enterprise thinking back into industry.

Baeyens said that requiring corporations to earn an operating profit to stay in business may not seem novel to American busniessmen, but it is a revolutionary change in the French economy. He said the capitalistic shift was signaled in August of 1977 when the French government abolished controls over the price of bread. The baguette, a long thin loaf, has been under state control since 1791.

Architect of the dramatic turn to free market principles in France is Raymond Barre, an obscure economist chosen in 1976 to become prime minister and find a cure for a mounting trade deficit, weak currency and an accelerating inflation rate.

Barre has since dismantled nearly all controls over industrial prices in France, controls which had been in effect since 1945. "He is under attack from all sides for forcing an economic slowdown that produced a positive balance of payments last year and strengthened the franc, but which has also created bankruptcies," Baeyens said.

In its postwar rebuilding, the French government nationalized many industries. It also used price controls on goods to protect consumers. This encouraged industries to become "overequipped and overmanned," the speaker said.

"Firms relied too much on government to balance their budgets. Barre wants them to rely on the consumer to balance their budgets rather than the taxpayer.

The quick turning from control over business by government was termed brutal by Baeyens. "Large manufacturing firms went bankrupt and thousands lost their jobs. But the stabilization program has already resulted in a more attractive business environment. Investment incentives have been established to foster interest in new enterprises. Social tension is inevitably due to the difficulty of needed reforms in the French economy," Baeyens said.

"It is a question of the government gritting its teeth so that in the long run our industry will be more efficient and the unemployment problems can be solved in a more meaningful way," the French official said.

If ever a mirror of the futility of the present court of the United States were held to view, it is provided by Andre Baeyens. He did not mention the trend in our nation toward regulated economy, nor did he try to point out our failures. He simply presented the new French trend as a positive factor in encouraging trade with us.

A stark realization of the folly of our accelerating dependence on government was brought into view as he outlined the necessary steps his nation has made to solve its great economic problems.

Our nation could still make the transition with far less pain and turmoil if we were to reverse our field and move back to letting private interprise solve the problems which regulations and control have created. We wrote the book on just how great a nation can become when its people are free to utilize all their talents and innovative efforts toward bringing them a better life.

As other nations borrow our book to release their people from the quagmire of bureaucratic control, we toy with all the fallacies which only lead to economic stagnation.

at wits end

by erma bombeck

It's not the first time it's happened and it won't be the last.

An elderly woman went shopping with her sister in one of those city-sized shopping centers. They became separated from one another and she was lost for three days before finding her way out.

Lucky she was a strong woman. A weaker one would have panicked and they would have found her unconscious body thrown over a waist-high glass map that looks like a pigeon relief station with her fingers pointing to "YOU ARE HERE!"

It's going to get worse before it gets better. Every day shopping centers get larger and larger, with each one vying for the "biggest in the world" status. After awhile, when someone is missing the standard procedure will be to "check all the hospitals, morgues and the shopping centers."

There's a shopping center near me that has reached three-exit proportions and is in the process of applying for statehood. There are glass elevators, sub-low-upper- and mid-upper levels, skating rinks, malls, special corridors and parking for several thousand cars. (Unfortunately, the cars were parked the day the building was completed and haven't moved since.)

I went there once with Mother, who jumped out of the car and said, "Meet you in the shoe store." I never saw her again.

I have to admit, I have always found my way out of shopping centers but never at the same door in which I entered . . . or the same age. I am never fully prepared for the next Shopping Center Game, which is "FIND YOUR CAR!"

I have a theory about cars parked in a shopping center parking lot. Unknown to the shoppers, the shopping center revolves slowly perhaps an inch an hour so slowly that you cannot see the difference with the naked eye. However, when you come out after five or six hours you car is never in the same place in which you parked it.

All I know is shopping centers can't get too big for my mother. She loves 'em. The bigger, the better. Recently, she saw a maze of shops and lights and trees and concrete and yelled, "Stop the car! What do they call this shopping center?"

"Los Angeles, Mother."

when will it end?

NEW YORK (AP)—One year ago mortgage rates for new single-family homes reached 9.3 percent. One month ago the rate had soared to 10.3 percent. By fall, some forecasts say, the figure could be close to 11 percent.

These are national averages. But already some California lenders are charging 11.5 percent. And the U.S. League of Savings Associations says similar rates might occur elsewhere by early fall.

Where will it end? When will buyers stop chasing prices and interest rates?

Pointing to a 2.1 percent decline in housing starts from March to April, some analysts claim the end is already in sight, but other statistics also suggest the turn might still be far off.

For example, regulations designed at least in part to restrain increases are falling in the path of the advance.

Less than a month ago the Department of Housing and Urban Development raised to 10 percent from 9.5 percent the maximum permissable rate on government-backed home loans.

And in Texas, the legislature passed a bill that would allow rates to rise to 12 percent from the current constitutional level of 10, because at less than 10 percent loans weren't being made.

Meanwhile, there has been little letup in price advances. If the rise in mortgage rates is large, then price increases are enormous.

Based on Federal Home Loan Bank Board estimates, the average price of a new single-family home in April was $71,700, up $10,100 in just one year, and $3,000 in just one month.

The board estimates the average price of used homes has soared to $67,000 from $52,100 in only one year's time, although that figure could be misleadingly high since averages are subject to distortion.

Still, a median sales price based on actual sales as reported by the National Association of Realtors, comes in at close to $54,000, a rise of 7,500 in one year.

While nobody can be certain when the increases will end, there is plenty of evidence to explain how the inflated market happened. Among a dozen explanations, these stand out.

Individuals see homes as an investment as well as shelter. With dollar purchasing power falling by 9 percent or so a year, real estate provides financial protection.

For some families, homes are the easiest of big ticket items to buy. Down payments in some instances are only 10 percent, and mortgage maturities have been stretched on average to nearly 29 years.

Buyers are aware of tax advantages. They know that, in effect, Uncle Sam subsidizes housing for everyone, not just the poor. Real estate taxes and interest payments are deductible.

Demographics and social change play roles. There is a bulge in the age group 25 to 34 years. In addition, singles are now more inclined to buy. The U.S. League says they make up 17 percent of buyers.

my turn

by john dunnam

From the beginning, politics have defied logic and reason. There is the story about the doctor, engineer and politician arguing about whose profession had been around the longest. The doctor said it took healthy people to build those magnificent pyramids and other engineering structures whose ruins still remain.

"So it was the doctor who actually supplied the manpower to make your job possible," he said.

The engineer, not to be outdone, said, "Yes but look at the greatest engineering feat of all, the earth. It took the grandest engineer of them all to devise this great planet."

"Politicians have been around the longest I tell you," proclaimed the third.

"How do you figure that?" said the other two awed by his audacity. "There was nothing but a void before that. Haven't you read how God created the heavens and earth out of the chaos?"

"Exactly," said the politician. "Who do you think created all that chaos."

How the names of the two major political parties evolved are classic examples of the erratic course of what may well be the world's oldest profession. The Democratic Party had its beginning in the late 1790s as the Republican Party. Then in 1800 it became the Democratic-Republican Party under Thomas Jefferson who never thought of himself as a Democrat at all. The word "democratic" was merely an adjective used to describe the party. It was not until the time of Andrew Jackson that the "republican" was dropped and the party assumed the name that it uses today.

The Republican Party began in the 1850s during the disputes over slavery. It was the radical party of the day and drew members from several defunct parties including the Whigs, Abolitionists and the Old Liberty Party.

A newspaperman, Horace Greeley, is usually credited with naming the party. According to some historians, the idea for the name came to him from a lawyer friend who suggested that the word "democratic" had such appeal that "republican" was the only other word with enough significance to match it. Somehow from its radical youth it has come to be known as the conservative party in our country.

So there you have it. The Democratic Party started out as the Republican Party and the Republicans started out as the more liberal party.

One thing the old time politicians did well was coin slogans with staving power. Who can forget Theodore Roosevelt's "Speak softly and carry a big stick" or Lincoln's "Don't swap horses in the middle of the stream" or F.D. Roosevelt's, "the new deal."

But since "I like Ike" it's been downhill. Nixon sunk with his "silent majority" and Jimmy Carter's "new foundations" crumbled. If Ted Kennedy should join the 1980 race I wonder what his battle cry will be? Maybe something with a historical ring, like, "Damn Chappaquiddick, full speed ahead" or perhaps something with more contemporary appeal like, "Liberals need love too" Or what about, "There's a Kennedy in your future." There always was.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—In all the hullabaloo about oil and gas shortages, soaring prices and the safety of nuclear power, one crucial element of the energy problem has gotten surprisingly short shrift.

Despite the obvious incentives, neither the federal government nor private industry seems inclined to capitalize on the political opportunity generated by the current crisis to accelerate the development of solar power and other renewable sources of energy.

President Carter has talked more about solar energy than any president in history. He has even allocated more money for it — about $646 million in the coming year — than any of his predecessors.

But the actual government commitment to solar and other forms of renewable energy remains miniscule in terms of money and manpower, especially in comparison to the resources lavished upon conventional fuels and nuclear power.

Even Carter's proposed energy security fund, to be created from the proceeds of his windfall profits tax on decontrolled oil, contains only modest new support for solar technologies. A mere 5 percent of the total fund would be allocated to such uses.

It has been a year now since Carter ordered a major interagency review of the government's program options in the solar energy field, and more than five months since he received the final report of that task force. The president has yet to comment on the policy review, although the White House says a message on solar energy will be forthcoming "soon."

Although the policy review report outlined three possible levels of solar commitment through the year 2000, including one option that would have the nation obtain 25 to 30 percent of its total energy from renewable sources by that time, Carter is expected to pursue a lesser goal, primarily to limit costs.

Energy Secretary James Schlesinger, who has been lukewarm at best toward the potential of solar power, has estimated that the high-use option would cost as much as $100 billion between now and the year 2000 - a figure disputed by the major solar energy advocacy group, the non-profit Solar Lobby here in Washington.

Solar Lobby officials say the Schlesinger cost estimate does not take into account the $30 billion or so the government could save in support for conventional energy sources if it shifted to a massive outlay for solar power.

Public enthusiasm for solar energy is clearly much greater than the government's. An Associated Press-NBC News poll released last week showed a majority of all Americans - 52 percent of all those interviewed - regard solar energy as the single best source of power for the year 2000.

That was more than double by 21 percent who chose coal. Nuclear power was named by 16 percent, oil by only 4 percent.

The survey did indicate considerable ambivalence about the public's willingness to pay higher prices to finance a shift to solar power from current energy sources, although 45 percent of those queried were prepared to increase their own energy spending at least slightly to achieve such a goal.

Personal sacrifice is not really the issue right now. The immediate question is how much the federal government is prepared to allocate to accelerating and improving the development of solar technologies and what priority solar receives in comparison with other forms of energy.

It seems clear that most Americans would welcome an all-out federal commitment to solar. The problems and perils of conventional and nuclear fuels have never been more apparent, and it is slowly dawning on people that both are permanent. Solar is the one form of energy that is inexhaustable, clean and safe.

Even in the current climate of hostility toward most government spending, Carter and Congress would find strong popular support for investments in solar energy. So what are they waiting for?

"Nice try," said West in his most magnanimous tone.

West could afford to be nice. He had just found the one way to beat South's three-notrump contract.

At trick one South had risen with dummy's jack of hearts. East had played the deuce and South had overtaken dummy's jack with his own king.

South had to knock out the ace of diamonds and he wanted his opponents to lead another heart.

Unfortunately for South, West was an alert and suspicious player. He had counted points and cards when he saw dummy. There were just 20 points for South and East. South needed 16 for his notrump. East could not have more than four. If he had four it would surely be an ace. If it were the ace of clubs declarer was going to make a lot of tricks. If it were the ace of spades, declarer was going to be in for a shock.

West led a spade and wisely picked the only one that could lead to four spade tricks. He led the king. A second spade went to East's ace and the jack-nine took the next two.

By the way, South's heart false card might well have boomeranged. East's play of the deuce had indicated that he, East, held only three hearts.

Thyroid and cholesterol

By Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Does the thyroid gland influence the amount of cholesterol in the blood? If a person is low, will hormones used that influence the cholesterol level? I'm a female, age 59, and have taken thyroid for 30 years. My concern is that my cholesterol is 305.

At 43 I had a hysterectomy and at 52 I had a third of one breast removed because of fibrocystic disease. This is the second time I've had to have cysts removed so the surgeon recommended that I quit taking hormones completely. As a result, the menopause has started again for me. My bones are aching and I'm always tired.

DEAR READER — Yes, the thyroid gland does influence your cholesterol level. Individuals who have an overactive thyroid sometimes have a low cholesterol. This may be secondary to the increased metabolism that causes these individuals to lose weight. The typical person with an overactive thyroid may eat a lot but he often uses more calories than he consumes and depletes the body's fat stores.

By contrast, a person with an underactive thyroid tends to get fat even on a low-calorie diet and the cholesterol level may become elevated. I'd like to point out, however, that most people's problem with obesity is not related to an underactive thyroid gland. Women in the childbearing age seldom develop coronary artery disease and one reason for this may be the amount of female hormones formed during those years.

Most doctors would agree with your surgeon that if you have lumpy breasts, you shouldn't take female hormones. Women with normal breasts can often use hormones without any difficulties unless, of course, they develop a lump and at that point the hormones are usually stopped. Of course, you needn't worry about cancer of the uterus since you've already had a hysterectomy.

You may be worried about what's going to happen to your bones so I'm going to send you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Female hormones seem to delay this process and are helpful but there are other measures you can follow which will help too. One of the most important ones is to be sure you have enough calcium in your diet. That usually means using the amount of calcium that's present in about a quart of fortified skim milk each day. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

A number of women with extensive fibrocystic disease of the breast have had their breasts removed and a prosthesis inserted instead. This would remove almost all of the danger that you'd have of any future breast problems and might make it possible for you to take female hormones if you needed to do so. Of course, you'd need to discuss this with your doctor and see what he thinks would be best for you.

I have mixed feelings about these operations but I do know a number of women who have had them and have been very pleased with the results. There is room to argue both for and against such procedures.

Meat Pricing Task Force To Meet

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says its task force looking into the nation's meat pricing system will meet June 10 in Dallas, Texas, to prepare its final report.

Officials said Thursday the meeting, to be held a day earlier than first announced, will be continued June 11 if necessary. It will be open to the public at the Airport Marina Hotel, Dallas Fort Worth Regional Airport.

The task force has held hearings to help determine if changes should be made in the way daily wholesale meat prices are set, a practice critics say is controlled by a relative handful of big meat packers, brokers and supermarket chains.

Doors Opened To More Bibles

By George W. Cornell
AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP)—Some doors have edged open lately to the shipment of Bibles into Communist eastern Europe, leading several Christian leaders to discount the usefulness of Bible smuggling.

In some cases, they say, it stiffens the barriers.

While more Bibles are needed in some areas, "this smuggling traffic does harm and creates difficulties" for churches in the Soviet orbit, says the Rev. Paul Hansen, Europe secretary of the Lutheran World Federation.

He says the breaking of customs laws provides "new ammunition" for anti-religious forces, generates hostility toward churches at a time when some Soviet officials are advocating more tolerance and may "in fact be hindering the extension" of Christian faith.

"It leads to discrimination against Christians."

Similar statements have come from other churchmen familiar with the situation, along with the recent officially approved sending of 25,000 Bibles to Baptists and others in the Soviet Union.

The Russian-language Bibles, plus 5,000 Bible concordances, were provided by the United Bible Societies under an import permit granted the All-Union Council of Evangelical Christians-Baptists, the main Soviet body of Protestants.

Some copies also went to other Protestant groups. Asked by the Bible Societies if further shipments might be allowed, the Rev. Alexei Bichkov, general secretary of the council, said, "The official channels seem to me to be both open and very sympathetic."

Altogether, the Bible societies report that since World War II, a total of 12 million copies of Scriptures have been legally distributed in east European Communist countries.

"Forget what you read about the necessity for underground evangelism," says the Rev. Robert S. Denny, general secretary of the Baptist World Alliance. "We now have the opportunity for above-ground evangelism in eastern Europe."

He added in a report to a meeting of the alliance executive committee: "There is no need to smuggle Bibles into eastern Europe."

Baylor Choir To Present Concert

Baylor University's Religious Hour Choir will present a mini-concert in the morning worship service of the First Baptist Church, Sunday, beginning at 10:45. The 40 voice choir is composed of Baylor University students who range in classification from freshman to the graduate level. The BRH Choir, which was founded in 1948, is a voluntary organization sponsored by Baylor's Baptist Student Union. The group has sung to audiences across the United States, in Mexico, Canada and Europe.

The music in the program of the BRH Choir encompasses a wide span of musical tastes and contains something designed to appeal to all age groups.

Jerry Neill, minister of music at the First Baptist Church said of the group, "I have never heard them perform, but I have heard many good things about their music. We are happy to have a group of their quality come to share with us. Anyone who enjoys good music and meaningful worship will be welcome in the service."

Problems In Vietnam Cited

ELGIN, Ill. (AP)—U.S. unwillingness to normalize trade or diplomatic relations with Vietnam have thrown Vietnam into dependence on Soviet supplies, says the Rev. William Herod, consultant of the interdenominational relief agency, Church World Service.

Herod, who served in Vietnam four years before the 1975 U.S. evacuation and who has since visited the country, told a meeting of Church of the Brethren pastors that U.S. churches should work to keep the "doors open" to Vietnam.

He said they also should press for U.S. normalization of trade and diplomatic relations "so Vietnam is not forced to rely on the Soviets."

Cars Left Behind In Holiday Treks

By The Associated Press

Memorial Day weekend travelers many unwilling to put their trust in undependable gasoline supplies, have begun their holiday excursions on crowded rail, bus and air lines.

Amtrak spokesman Brian Duff said Thursday's business in Washington was equivalent to that of a normal Friday as the exodus from the nation's capital began and predicted a "substantial increase" today as the weekend got underway in earnest.

All our available equipment is in use and travel is very heavy," said Amtrak regional spokesman Jim Bryant. "Some of our lines are sold out through the holiday. Our advice would be 'don't travel on those days.'" Supplies of gasoline were expected to be adequate for most of the nation" according to the American Automobile Association. But many dealers said a run on gas as the weekend opened could make a big difference in the forecasts.

AAA said a survey of 5,937 stations showed 59 percent planned to be open Saturday, 46 percent Sunday and 61 percent Monday. However, an Associated Press check of conditions around the country showed many stations running low on gas as the end of the May allocation period nears. And some dealers said they wanted a holiday too.

Resort and amusement parks have expressed optimism this week that business will be good, particularly for those close to major cities where a rush to prepare for the holiday travel boom began Thursday.

Amtrak added 12 trains on its Washington to New York run and one on its New York to Albany line. Bryant said the line's heaviest flow has been in Los Angeles and San Diego, where the gas shortage has been most severe.

Harlingen Accuses TIA Of Destroying Service

By KEN HERMAN
Associated Press Writer

HARLINGEN, Texas (AP)—Officials in this border city upset that Texas International Airlines will abandon the local airport on June 1, believe an interstate airline can make money here if it wants to.

"We are like the east coast of Florida was 20 or 30 years ago," said airport board chairman Robert Dunkin. "Someone took a chance there and they made a killing."

Dunkin's comments came Thursday after the Civil Aeronautic Board decided to let TIA halt flights from here on June 1. TIA has applied for permission to switch its Rio Grande Valley service to Brownsville 25 miles from here.

"We were on a very low priority with them," Dunkin said. "If they had a flight coming in from Timbuktu and it had an hour layover they would send it down to South Texas."

The TIA pullout leaves Harlingen with only one domestic carrier. But interstate Southwest Airlines does not fly into major airports in Houston or Dallas, making connections to interstate airlines in those cities difficult.

Dunkin believes that TIA, which had served Harlingen since 1952, committed intentional business suicide here.

"Texas International could make money here if they didn't have flights that came in and left at bad times. They actually tried to destroy the service," he said.

Randy Rickard, manager of Southwest's Harlingen service, agreed that TIA's two-flights-a-day schedule was inconvenient and inadequate.

Southwest will add 17 flights per week, from Harlingen beginning on June 1. Rickard said the new flights are not a result of the TIA move.

"The increase is due to our needs and requirements. We regret Texas International's departure and recognize the need for interstate service from here. Southwest will do all it can to help secure another interstate carrier," Rickard said.

TIA officials said the move to Brownsville is aimed at providing better service for the entire Rio Grande Valley.

"Our intention in suspending service at Harlingen and undertaking service at Brownsville is to provide more appropriate service for the entire valley," said public relations director Peggy Dyer.

"With Southwest adding 17 flights, it now appears Harlingen will have an abundance of service," she added.

Dunkin said that TIA never wanted to compete with Southwest in Harlingen.

CAB officials ruled that Southwest passengers can make adequate connections in San Antonio where Southwest flies into the same airport that serves several interstate carriers.

But Dunkin said the search has already started for an interestate carrier for Harlingen. He said it could take up to two years to replace the TIA service.

present athletic director's position to a classroom math teacher's role.

Trustees also granted a request made by Carter, associated with the local Fellowship of Christian Athletes, to use a station wagon to transport five students to a national conference in Colorado June 2-8.

A request made by the Snyder Chamber of Commerce for use of the school's tennis courts for the annual Fourth of July tennis tournament July 2-4 was granted.

The school board then went into executive session. It was announced that no action was taken, but that notices would go out to all local schools advising personnel that vacancies exist for the positions of high school principal, athletic director and driver education teacher and that persons within the system have an opportunity to apply for these positions.

Everything But Feathers

BOSTON (AP)-Got a hankering for a red light bulb or somebody lotion? The U.S. attorney's office may have just the thing.

The office is preparing to sell massage tables, bubble bath crystals and 17 red lightbulbs seized from massage parlors in three New England states under Racketeering law.

Also on the list are a jet spray machine, pillows, combs, mirrors, instant cameras, a dart set, baby powder and lots of towels.

The supplies probably will be auctioned this summer, says Assistant U.S. Attorney, Richard Glovsky. The owners were convicted of plotting to muscle their way into control of a network of massage parlors.

Glovsky said he was disappointed that no feathers appeared on the itemized list published this week in a Boston newspaper.

"One of their specials was a super deluxe feather massage given by two women," he said. "It cost 100 bucks, as I recall, so they may not have had too much demand for it."

The Communist party, the only legal political organization in the Soviet Union, has a membership of about 15 million.

Deny Unity Work Is Losing Steam

GARYMOOR, N.Y. (AP)—An ecumenical specialist says there is no substance to the widely held view that the movement for Christian unity has run out of steam.

"There is simply too much going on today, both locally and in the dialogues between the churches," says the Rev. William A. Norgren, assistant ecumenical officer of the Episcopal Church.

Writing in the May issue of Ecumenical Trends, published by the Graymoor Ecumenical Institute, he says in contrast to the pessimistic view, a "second opinion is that ecumenism is having growing pains."

"This has 'more to commend it,' he adds, saying it implies that "in the next stage the variety of dialogues and agencies contributing to the ecumenical movement will enter into closer functional relationships."

The movement "is in no way a passing phase," he says, but "rather an expression" of the church's timeless mandate to renew its unity in keeping with Christ's prayer that all his followers be one so that the world may believe.

Resistance To Abortion Grows

CHICAGO (AP)—Survey data indicate resistance to abortion is increasing, reports the National Opinion Research Center at the University of Chicago.

It finds that the percentage of the population approving abortions for unmarried mothers dropped from 50 percent in 1977 to 41 percent in 1978, while those approving abortion for married women who want no more children dropped from 47 percent in 1977 to 40 percent in 1978.

In county court Thursday, three persons were sentenced.

Two, Steven Day Dabney and Roland Brad Chapman, had entered guilty pleas. Dabney was charged with carrying a prohibited weapon. He was levied a $100 fine. Chapman, charged with driving while intoxicated, received a $200 fine and a 30-day jail term that was probated one year.

Lyme Disease Spreads Out Over Country

ATLANTA (AP) — A disease once associated with persons living along the lower Connecticut River is showing up around the country, according to the national Center for Disease Control.

Because of the spread of Lyme disease, an arthritis-like ailment, the CDC is advising physicians to check the patients' recent travel in diagnosing any similar ailment with an associated skin rash. The lesion appears to be the earliest sign of Lyme disease, which is characterized by "arthritis which occurs in just a few of the large joints — the knee or elbow, for example," Dr. Richard A. Kaslow of the CDC's chronic disease division said.

Chiles Decision On Agenda Today

AUSTIN (AP) — Senators decide today if they agree with Gov. Bill Clements that Harrel "Eddie" Chiles would make a good regent of North Texas State University.

Action on Chiles' appointment was scheduled today after Sen. A.R. Schwartz, D-Galveston, won a one-day postponement Thursday in order to listen to some of Chiles' radio advertisements.

Afterwards, Schwartz said the brief ads were tame compared to the "good old days."

"I might very well vote for him," Schwartz said after the listening session. "I do not have any reason to vote against him."

Chiles, board chairman of the Western Co., has aroused some legislators because of his broadcasts urging Texans to "fire" politicians who do not represent the people.

It will take a two-thirds vote, or 21, to approve Chiles' appointment.

Clements criticized the Senate's decision to delay voting on Chiles.

"Action of this type is deplorable," the governor said.

Only three senators — Schwartz, Tom Creighton, D-Mineral Wells, and Carl Parker, D-Port Arthur — heard the Chiles tapes played at a Senate Nominations Subcommittee meeting.

Chiles declared in one ad, "I think our government should defend our shores, deliver our mail and fire half the bureaucrats today, the other half tomorrow and leave us alone."

Schwartz told Creighton, "This is tame business compared to what I was thinking about."

Chiles also told Texans to urge adoption of initiative and referendum.

Most of the ads talk about federal spending and bureaucracy.

"Have you ever looked out your window lately and seen the swarms of bureaucrats?" asked one ad by Charles Simmons, Western Co. vice president.

Parker won a delay on Chiles on last week. But he was gone, along with 11 other "Killer Bees" senators, when the Chiles matter was to have been taken up again Monday.

The Port Arthur lawmaker told the Senate on Thursday the governor has the right to appoint anyone "no matter how idiotic his public remarks may be. Just show me voting 'No.'"

Hospital's Report For April Okayed

The board of managers of Cogdell Memorial Hospital approved the administrator's monthly report and discussed several items at the regular meeting Thursday night.

The administrator's report showed a patient census of slightly more than 55 during the month of April, while the patient census for the calendar year has averaged about 65.

Cy Miller, administrator, reported that furniture for rooms in the new wing now under construction are due to be delivered this summer and that it will be stored until needed. Miller said he had been advised by the supplier that prices had increased twice since the furniture was purchased and that the hospital had realized a saving of more than $40,000 by making the purchase early.

Miller also reported that a pediatrician had visited here recently and was considering a move to Snyder.

John Jarrell, chairman, presided over the board meeting and other board members attending were A.Z. Glover, Rex Robinson, Leon Autry, Roy Kidd and County Judge Preston Wilson.

At 79, She's Taking Corespondent's Course

By Abigail Van Buren

©1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd., Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow, 79. I live in the same apartment building with a very fine gentlemen. We've become very good friends. He is married but has a legal separation from his wife. She won't consent to a divorce unless he gives her a very large settlement, which he doesn't want to do as he figures he may outlive her. (She's 82 and he's 83.)

I am not entirely at ease with this man since I am afraid his wife might sue me, and I have a pretty nice savings account. She's very clever and I have heard that she still watches him like a hawk.

He takes me out to dinner, and I have him in for meals. We play a little cards, watch a little TV, and when it comes to romance, he is unbelievable! I think you get the picture, but I'm not looking for trouble — just companionship.

BEA IN THE BRONX

DEAR BEA: Ask your lawyer how much "companionship" the law allows a man in your neighbor's circumstances. I think I get the picture, but if you aren't careful, you could get the frame.

DEAR ABBY: A reader in Tuscaloosa, Ala., asked about yawning, and you said: "It's usually an involuntary opening of the mouth when you wish others would shut theirs."

On the contrary, Abby, yawning occurs when we are most interested in what is being said. When we are tired and wish to stay awake, we yawn to get extra oxygen to keep us alert. Please abolish forever the false notion that yawning is rude. And from now on, when a speaker sees someone in his audience yawning, he can be assured that his talk is worthwhile!

E.S.R.

DEAR E.S.R.: Yawning in itself is not rude, it's leaving an open mouth uncovered that's rude. However, my wide-awake experts assure me that yawning is a sign of fatigue, drowsiness or boredom.

DEAR ABBY: I've been married less than a year and already realize it's not going to last.

My problem is what to do with all the lovely wedding gifts. Our silver isn't even tarnished yet, but the cash has been spent.

I feel guilty keeping the presents, knowing that this marriage was a mistake from the start. Now all we need is the courage to tell our family and friends.

Is it proper to return the gifts. How about the cash?

IT'S OVER IN OHIO

DEAR OVER: According to "The New Emily Post's Etiquette" by Elizabeth Post (1975):

"Once the wedding has taken place, gifts are not returned, no matter how short the marriage. Strictly speaking, the presents belong to the wife, but the usual procedure is for the husband to keep those items that came from his own family and friends, and those particularly meaningful or useful to him, while his wife keeps the others."

CONFIDENTIAL TO "ANYONE FOR WHOM IT IS NOT YET TOO LATE": The gestation period of a mother's advice is anywhere from one week to 50 years. Losing one's mother before having thanked her for the many precious things she taught you is one of life's greatest tragedies.

Wedding bells in your future? Whether your lifestyle is bridal gown or blue jeans, Abby lays it all out for you in her booklet, "How to Have a Lovely Wedding." Send $1 and a long, stamped (28 cents) self-addressed envelope to Abby, 132 Lasky Drive, Beverly Hills, Calif. 90212.

Diplomas For Wrong School

MITCHELL, S.D. (AP) — About 200 of the 277 seniors who graduated from the high school in Mitchell, South Dakota, will have to give back their diplomas — at least temporarily.

It wasn't until the diplomas were handed out Wednesday that some students found they had just graduated from Mitchell High School in Mitchell, North Dakota.

The school principal said he expects the diplomas to be replaced by the company that supplied them.

Montgomery Ward Bill Killed By Legislators

AUSTIN (AP) — The House has killed, 120-17, the "Montgomery Ward Bill" that would have let department stores sell credit insurance against everything from strokes to credit card thefts.

Montgomery Ward had sought passage of the bill and managed to lobby it through the Senate.

The bill would have enabled department stores to sell insurance that would pay a customer's bill if he died, got sick or lost income because of unemployment or a strike.

The insurance also would have paid bills run up with a lost or stolen credit card. It even would have paid for replacing a purchase that was damaged or stolen.

Rep. Bob Simpson, D-Amarillo, the sponsor, said Montgomery Ward has indicated it would like the opportunity to offer this. "I don't know of any other company that has indicated it wants to use it."

"I don't think we have ever dealt with anything that is so special a special interest where it comes down to one entity that wants this piece of legislation," said Rep. Bob Maloney, R-Dallas.

He said the State Insurance Board wouldn't let Montgomery Ward sell the coverage, so the department store chain came to the Legislature.

Maloney said a customer could not buy just credit life, health and accident insurance but would have to purchase the entire package.

"It's a no-win proposition for the consumer. If a consumer wants credit life he would have to also buy credit card insurance. If they want a part of the package they have to buy the entire package and have it put on their account and pay 18 per cent a month interest on it," he said.

And, Maloney added, the insurance would be an inducement to add new purchases to one's credit account each month because you lose your coverage if you ever pay off your Montgomery Ward charge account.

School Given Stolen Money

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Brown University got a $24,000 donation this week, but a call to the New York City bank against which the check was drawn showed it was stolen, a school official says.

Brown officials became suspicious about the check because the letter that accompanied it had a return address in the Bowery, New York's skid row. Robert A. Reichley, vice president for university relations, said Wednesday. Reichley said the handwritten letter was mostly illegible and that the signature was not one known to the school as an alumnus or parent.

Odessa Leads NJC Tennis

WACO (AP)—Topseeded Mike Brunnberg of Miami Dade South defeated Mike Niemil of Harper in Palastine, Ill., 6-3, 6-3 to advance to Friday's semifinal competition in the National Junior College men's tennis tournament.

However, Brunnberg lost his bid for the national doubles title when his partner, John Virgin, was thrown out of the tournament Thursday. Virgin was disqualified by referee Rob Bradshaw after he slammed the ball into the net after losing a point.

The match was awarded to Toru Yonezawa and Eiji Takeuchi of Schreiner.

Odessa's Carl Richter, the No. 2 seed, stopped Kin Kohls of South Carolina, 6-3, 6-3 to keep the Wranglers on top of the team standings with 34 points.

Miami-Dade and Schreiner each had 31, followed by Central Texas with 29 and Jefferson State, Birmingham, Ala., with 25.

There are 49 teams competing in the tournament which concludes Saturday.

Even NBA Playoff Series

Sonics Set Armor Defense

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Whatever kind of defense the Seattle SuperSonics were using, legal or illegal, it certainly was effective.

Badgering Washington with traps and double teaming — a tactic which some of the Bullets said merely masked an illegal zone - the SuperSonics scored a 92-82 victory Thursday night and evened the National Basketball Association's championship series at 1-1.

The next two games of the best-of-seven series will be played in Seattle, at the Kingdome on Sunday and at the Coliseum Tuesday night, with the SuperSonics now claiming the homecourt advantage.

"The key to the game was defense," said Seattle center Jack Sikma, who had 14 points and 13 rebounds in a bruising battle with Washington's Wes Unseld. "Defense is the start of our offensive game."

"We're not a great shooting team," said guard Dennis Johnson, who had 20 points and six assists, "but our defense is first-class. We work very hard on it. As long as we have the defense working for us, we know we can win."

Johnson's theory was put to a severe test when the SuperSonics, after leading 46-33 midway through the second quarter, missed 14 consecutive shots and fell behind 56-49 early in the third period.

At this point, the Seattle defense stiffened and the SuperSonics ran off 11 straight points for a 60-56 lead. During that stretch, Washington missed five shots, had two blocked, and lost possession once on a steal.

Gus Williams scored four of his game-high 23 points during the streak, Sikma had four and John Johnson three of his 17.

"We had a little lapse in the second quarter," said John Johnson. "We've got to make them give up the ball. When Elvin Hayes or Bobby Dandridge hold the ball for 15 seconds, it's like a surgeon getting ready to operate."

Washington's two high scorers were blanked over the final 10 minutes, however, and the Bullets shot only 38 percent in the second half. Dandridge finished with 21, after going 3-for-11 from the field in the second half, and Hayes had 20.

"We didn't function well against their zone defense," said Washington Coach Dick Motta. "We are going to have to regroup and sharpen up against their zone if we are going to win this series."

ELATED AT LEAST--Snyder High School recently sewed up district and bi-district baseball crowns and will enter regional play next week. Above, teammates swarm an unseen Mitch Mackey after he hit a game-winning RBI here against Burkburnett. In regionals, Snyder will play either Pecos or Borger. Longhorns Host Regional Tourney

AUSTIN (AP) — Top-ranked Texas, a three-time national champion, is the host team for the NCAA Central Regional Baseball Tournament, which includes Western Athletic and Southland Conference winners and at-large entry Pan American University.

The tournament opener, between Brigham Young, 48-23-1, of the WAC and Lamar University, a Beaumont, Texas, team and the Southland winner, 43-14-1, was scheduled for 1:30 p.m., CDT.

No. 1 Texas, 50-6, was matched against Pan American, 52-16, of Edinburg, Texas, at 7:30 p.m., CDT.

The winner in the double elimination tournament will advance to the College World Series at Omaha, Neb., June 1-8.

"Everyone here has something to prove - we'd all like to go to Omaha," BYU Coach Gary Pullins told a news conference Friday.

Texas may have lost its apparent edge when all-SWC pitcher Rickey Wright hurt his knee so badly in an intrasquad game last Saturday he will miss the tournament. Wright had won 10 and lost 3 and was a .309 hitter.

Coach Cliff Gustafson said when Wright is right, he can dominate a game, strike out 15 and throw a one or two-hitter against the best team in the nation. You can't replace a guy like that."

BYU enters the tournament with a team total of 90 homeruns, and all of its regulars are hitting .300 or higher. The attack is built around all-WAC third baseman Murphy Su'a, who is hitting .350 with 22 homeruns.

"He's had an awesome year with the bat and epitomizes our team," said Pullen.

UCLA Garners NCA Net Title

ATHENS, Ga. (AP) — The long and the short of it was that UCLA's Fritz Buehning and Blaine Willenborg each won their singles matches and then combined in doubles to give the Bruins their 13th NCAA team tennis title with a 5-3 victory over Trinity of Texas Thursday.

The 6-foot-5 Buehning beat Trinity's Ben McKown 3-6, 6-1, 6-4 in the No. 1 singles. After Trinity's Erick Iskersky evened the match at 1-1 when he beat Mike Harrington 7-6, 6-1, the 5-foot-7 Willenborg put UCLA back in the lead with a 3-6, 6-2, 6-2 victory over Tony Giammalva in No. 3 singles.

UCLA held a 4-2 lead going into doubles play. The Buehning-Willenborg team battled Trinity's top doubles team of John Benson and Giammalva to a 6-6 tie in the first set and then won the tie breaker 5-3 on a scorching backhand return of service by Willenborg. The Buehning-Willenborg team then coasted to a 6-1 second set victory to clinch the team title for UCLA.

In the consolation match, Stanford's No. 2 doubles team of Scott Bondurant and John Corse squeeezed by Tom Cains and Mark Vines of Southern Methodist 7-5, 7-6 to capture third place by a 6-2 score.

The two teams split their six singles matches, but Stanford swept the three doubles matches.

Stanford's Peter Rennert and Lloyd Bourne, who also won their singles matches, teamed up to defeat SMU's No. 1 doubles team of Jai DiLouie and Mark Turpin, 6-2, 6-2. Tim Mayotte and Jeff Arons beat SMU's Jeff Turpin and Chris Delaney 6-4, 6-3 in the No. 3 doubles match.

Meanwhile, tournament officials announced Thursday that Kevin Curren of Texas is seeded No. 1 for the individual competition which begins Friday.

UCLA's doubles team of Buehning and Willenborg was seeded No. 1 for the doubles competition.

Martin Issues An Apology

RENO, Nev. (AP) — Former New York Yankee Manager Billy Martin and Reno sports writer Ray Hagar announced settlement of Hagar's suit growing out of a November fight.

Hagar agreed to drop his civil and criminal complaint against Martin in exchange for a public apology and a financial settlement.

Martin issued an apology and said he hoped it would clear the way for his return as manager of the Yankees in 1980.

Indy Under More Threats; One Case Beginning Today

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — An uncomfortable calm settled over the Indianapolis Motor Speedway today, with one court case set to begin and the threat of other lawsuits clouding Sunday's Indianapolis 500.

The surprising offer by the U.S. Auto Club to reopen qualifications for 11 cars bumped during time trials last weekend was canceled Thursday when two members refused to sign a waiver to increase the size of the 33-car starting field.

"It was the impossible dream," said Al Loquasto, one of the drivers cut from the race day lineup in a bumped car.

"We knew it wasn't going to happen. But I'm a race driver and I want to go racing, so I'll do whatever I can to try and get that accomplished.

"Now, my recourse is to talk to my attorney and see what we can do. I'm sure I won't be alone."

USAC heard protests or appeals of rejected protests from several of the barred racing teams Thursday night. The appeals committee listened for four hours, then deliberated nearly two hours before announcing it hadn't reached a decision. Members said they would resume later today but set no time.

No one appeared to believe the earlier rulings would be overturned, that was expected to be merely a formality to exhaust administrative remedies and clear the way for court action.

The one case already on the docket of the Marion County Superior Court was to go to hearing today before Judge Michael T. Dugan. Car owner Wayne Woodward was asking that his disqualified car be reinstated to the lineup by USAC or that the $1 million race be halted.

Woodward's car, driven by Dick Ferguson, was not among the 11 given brief hope of another chance. USAC President Dick King said Woodward's car was found in flagrant violation of a technical rule limiting the amount of pressure boost in the engines of the turbocharged cars.

Woodward said, "I didn't cheat. I only did what other people out here (at the Speedway) had done. USAC made some excellent rules to help the little people like me be competitive, but they did not follow up.

"They (USAC) were aware before the first weekend of time trials that there was tampering with the exhaust pipes."

Woodward's car, along with two others found in violation of the boost rule, were given another chance to qualify. The other two made it into the field, but Woodward's machine experienced engine problems and failed to requalify.

Rockets Placed On Selling Block

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) - Albuquerque businessman George Maloof says he has completed negotiations to buy the Houston Rockets of the National Basketball Association.

Maloof planned to announce the deal today at a press conference in Houston.

Maloof bought the team from Houston Rockets Inc. He plans to keep the team in Houston and operate it under the corporate name of Houston Pro Basketball Co.

The sale is subject to approval of the NBA Board of Governors and the Houston City Council, which must approve a new, long-term lease with Houston Operating Co. for use of The Summit, the 15,676-seat arena where the Rockets play.

Maloof said the final deal calls for him to control 12.5 percent of the lease-option with Houston Operating Co.

Maloof apparently also will have continuing options, rising as high as 51 percent of the arena. And he will have the opportunity to assume the concessions for The Summit, where rock concerts, circuses, auto shows and conventions are held.

The present consessionaire has one year left on his contract, with an option for five more.

"After six years of owning the team, I'll have the opportunity to bid for the concessions," Maloof said. "I just feel real good about the whole deal."

Baseball Roundup...

Dennis' Menacing

By The Associated Press

Dennis was a menace to the Boston Red Sox and Seattle Mariners Thursday night.

Dennis Martinez scattered 10 hits for his seventh consecutive triumph as the torrid Baltimore Orioles defeated the Red Sox 5-3 while Dennis Leonard allowed seven hits and went the distance for his first victory since April 28 in the Kansas City Royals' 5-4 decision over the Mariners.

Kiko Garcia's tie-breaking two-run homer in the sixth inning capped a three-run rally that lifted Baltimore past Boston. The victory was the 25th in the last 31 games for the Orioles and enabled them to stretch their lead in the AL East to 2½ games over the Red Sox.

Royals 5, Mariners 4

Leonard was breezing along with a 4-1 lead until Seattle tied it in the top of the eighth on Willie Horton's two-run homer and Bruce Bochte's RBI double. Pinch hitter Steve Braun opened the bottom of the eighth with a bunt single and pinch runner Fred Patek was sacrificed to second. After George Brett, who drove in three earlier runs, was intentionally walked, Otis delivered his game-winning hit.

Brewers 9, Angels 6

Ben Oglivie hit a three-run homer and Sal Bando a solo shot in Milwaukee's five-run third inning. Oglivie crashed his ninth homer of the season after a bunt single by Cecil Cooper and a pop fly by Dick Davis, which fell for a bloop double when second baseman Bobby Grich misjudged it in the wind. Bando hit his third homer one out later, stretching the lead to 7-0 and chasing loser Chris Knapp.

The Angels broke a string of 21 scoreless innings with five runs in the fifth off Milwaukee starter Moose Haas. Jerry Augustine was the winner with a strong relief job.

White Sox 10, A's 1

Lamar Johnson had a double and two singles, drove in four runs and scored twice as the White Sox beat the A's for the sixth time in as many meetings. Richard Wortham, 5-4, hurled a five-hitter while Matt Keough, 0-7, took the loss.

"What can I say?" asked Oakland Manager Jim Marshall. "We just got clobbered. This club beats us badly, beats us to death. Our club had trouble against left-handers all last year, and we're still having trouble against left-handers."

Comedian Bob Hope wears size 13 shoes.

Final Vote Planned On Meat Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) - The House Ways and Means Committee plans a final vote next week on a measure to reverse a 15-year-old policy on meat imports.

Supporters led by committee chairman Al Ullman, D-Ore., said Thursday the bill is designed to protect cattle ranchers' prices when they are rising but help consumers when supplies are too tight.

Final action was scheduled for next Thursday. The measure is similar to one President Carter vetoed last year.

The bill calls for more imports of fresh, frozen or chilled meat, mainly hamburger beef, when U.S. supplies of beef fall below average and reduced imports when supplies increase.

A 1964 law now in effect calls for just the opposite - larger imports when supplies are high and reduced imports when domestic supplies are tight.

Carter vetoed the 1978 bill, he said, because it too severely restricted his broad power under the 1964 act to suspend the formulas that set the import quota levels to let more beef in when food prices are rising rapidly.

He also said that at least 1.3 billion pounds a year must be admitted to fulfill trade agreements with other major meat nations, such as Australia and New Zealand.

Imports under a suspension of the 1964 formula are now about 1.57 billion pounds a year, about all that is available.

The trade subcommittee had adopted the 1.3 billion-pound minimum.

The full panel reversed it Thursday by a 17-14 vote and adopted the 1.2-billion-pound floor the cattle industry demanded and administration officials called "totally unacceptable" to Carter.

209 34th. EQUITY $5,500. Payment $148.00 9¼ percent int. Total under $16,000. 2-1-1. Call 573-5908 or 573-6970 for Joyce Barnes.
