Airfields And Planes Solve Big Problems

By RAYMOND CLAPPER
War Correspondent

SOMEWHERE IN NEW GUINEA Jan. 20 (By Wireless)—While driving in a jeep I picked up a couple of soldiers who proved to be paratroopers. One of them, Paul Isbel, of Middleton, O., has made 23 jumps and never been scratched. He was among the paratroopers in the big landing that took Nazdab airfield. I asked him how it went.

"All I knew," he said, "was that I swung once and then my fanny landed on a tree."

His buddy, Paul Davidson, of Tampa, Fla., has also made 23 jumps. He sprained his back once and was in a hospital for a month but is jumping again.

CLAPPER

By a coincidence, earlier in the day I had picked up two other paratroopers of the same outfit — Carl Polo, of Trimountain, Mich., who has made 30 jumps, and Jesse Metcalf, Wachapreague, Va., who has made 17. Neither has ever been hurt. Their outfit had six men killed by enemy action, but they left 50 dead Japs on the ground at Nazdab. That was last September, when General MacArthur flew in a Fortress overhead while the men jumped.

Paratrooping carries more risk than the foregoing might suggest, and sometimes an action brings a dozen or a score of fractures. Back injuries are frequent.

Freighting By Air

The troop carrier command here divides its work between paratrooping and the hauling of vital freight, without which the New Guinea campaign could not have been carried on. It is impossible to get men and supplies over the Owen Stanley mountains by ground, and until recently it was too hazardous to use shipping. As a result, troop carrier planes opened up airfields in the interior at spots inaccessible except by air. Scouts get the natives to mow down a strip of the waist-high kunai grass. Then a transport plane lands with engineers. They even have baby bulldozers which are small enough to get through airplane doors. They have carried 2½-ton trucks, bombs, jeeps, sawmills, gasoline and steel matting for runways.

When native workmen are needed they are packed in, 50 to each plane, wearing only a "lap-lap" or what Dorothy Lamour would call a sarong—and many of them wearing only what Gypsy Rose Lee could call a G-string.

Natives Delighted

BRIG. GEN. P. H. PRENTISS of San Antonio, Texas, who is in command of the troop carriers, says these fuzzywuzzies chatter with delight at the strange experience of flying. Incidentally, General Prentiss has just been given the decoration of Commander of the Order of the British Empire by King George for his work in transporting Australian troops, moving a division over the mountains by air, and evacuating casualties. He took out about 6,500 men in November, and about the same in December. A year ago he evacuated 7,300 men after the Buna campaign.

Once some of General Prentiss' transports landed on one end of an airstrip while the Japs were

Ancient Novgorod Bastion Captured

By JAMES M. LONG
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 21—The Red Army toppled the ancient bastion of Novgorod yesterday on the sixth day of a northern offensive which has cost the Germans 44,000 men, and also trapped an undetermined number of Nazi troops in the Strelna corridor southwest of Leningrad, a Moscow bulletin announced today.

Gen. K. A. Meretskov's armies of the Volkhov front captured Novgorod, 100 miles southeast of Leningrad on the road to southern Estonia, by an action officially described as a "skilfull outflanking maneuver." Premier Marshal Stalin saluted the important victory with an order of the day last night.

Strelna Area Sealed Up

On the Leningrad front other armies under Gen. Leonid A. Govorov, attacking southwest of Leningrad and southeast of Oranienbaum on the Gulf of Finland, were declared to have joined forces to seal off for annihilation the Germans caught in the 50-square mile Strelna corridor, which ran north from the Krasnoye Selo sector to the Gulf of Finland.

The two Red armies together were shaping a massive trap for 250,000 other Germans fighting in a salient southeast of Leningrad.

The junction of the Soviet forces at a point about 20 miles southwest of Leningrad trapped the Germans in the Strelna area.

Soviet airmen dealt heavy blows to German escape roads, and the Russian Baltic fleet warships shelled the German coastal lines as the Russians crushed ahead with accelerated power.

Advance In Ukraine

The only other important action mentioned in the Moscow broadcast communique was a fight "north of Khristinovka" in the lower Ukraine, where the Russians said troops under Gen. Nickolai F. Vatutin still were beating down heavy German counter-attacks aimed at stemming a Soviet strike toward Rumania. A total of approximately 2,000 Germans were killed and 32 tanks destroy-

New Finn Peace Overture Seen

LONDON, Jan. 20. (AP) — Red Army successes in the Leningrad area gave fresh impetus to speculation here tonight that Finland might make direct peace overtures soon to Russia.

Even before the Russians launched their offensive below Leningrad the Finish official radio Lahti had been quoted in Stockholm dispatches as saying on Jan. 7 that "Finland wants peace and is willing to make peace."

The broadcast hedged, however, by saying that the Finns first wanted to hear Russia's terms.

In view of the new military turn in northern Russia, many in London would not be surprised if the Finns swallowed their pride and approached the Russians. A hindrance to an open Finnish peace bid, though, is the presence of perhaps 70,000 to 80,000 German troops based in Finland.

Treat Strategic Victory

A Finnish withdrawal from the war obviously would be a great strategic and propoganda victory for the Allies. It would remove the land threat in the north to Russia's port at Murmansk, relieve the pressure on Leningrad from the north and northwest, and give the Soviet Baltic fleet more freedom. It also would expose German troops in northern Norway to an attack from the rear.

The Berlin radio said today that all civilians had been evacuated from Helgoland, the big North Sea island fortress used by Germany in the first World war.

Three thousand civilians, Transocean News agency said, had been removed as part of a plan to defend the island against an Allied invasion. Field Marshal Erwin Rommel was said to have "made it a defense bastion surpassing everything else in strength," Trans-ocean said.

G. Farben industries in the Far East.

RAF Heavies Pound Berlin Again In "Terror" Attack

Germans Claim 21 Bombers Downed

LONDON, Friday, Jan. 21. (AP)—Royal Air force night bombers hammered Berlin last night, it was officially announced early today, in the 11th massive attack on the greatest of German targets since the extermination campaign against the Reich capital began Nov. 18, 1943.

The German radio said that 21 bombers were shot down — a statement which was not confirmed from Allied quarters.

The attack, in which a heavy force of Canadian bombers participated, added to approximately 14,000 (long) tons of bombs previously dropped on the German capital in 10 major assaults which have laid waste more than half the city.

Continental Blackout

A continental radio blackout last night suggested that a strong force of night bombers was out, probably hitting more than one target. First announcement of the Berlin raid came from the German radio.

This was the 105th raid of the war against Berlin, and the German radio indicated that the attacking force had an ideal night to carry out the assault.

Describing the blow as a "terror raid," the German broadcast declared, "In view of the weather, German authorities had expected major bomber formations would make an attack and as a result the ack-ack defenses were effective to the fullest extent from the start."

Nazis Boast Of Defense

Broadcasting its claims early, the German radio said 10 four-engined bombers were shot down in the "first nine minutes of the raid over two districts of Berlin alone."

The German long wave transmitter and the Luxembourg radio station shut down for the second time last night before midnight.

The Rome radio announced an

U. S. Casualties Are Said Over 141,000

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—Casualties totaling more than 141,000 have been suffered by the American armed forces since the start of the war.

The latest over-all summary of army casualties was 105,229 through December 23, as announced last week by Secretary of War Stimson. However, this total included only part of the 18,119 American army casualties in Italy announced at the same time, and in the last week the total for the Italian campaign has increased to 19,210.

The Navy has reported 35,257 casualties since the start of the war in all its branches—25,225 in the Navy, 9,590 in the Marine corps and 442 in the Coast guard.

The totals are divided as follows:

Army casualties, all theaters, through December 23—killed 16,831, wounded 38,916, missing 24,067, prisoners of war 25,415.

(Army casualties in Italy to date—killed 2,985, wounded 12,504, missing 3,721.)

Navy casualties—killed 11,976, wounded 3,136, missing 7,778, prisoners 2,335.

Marine corps — killed 3,193, wounded 3,763, missing 686, prisoners 1,948.

Coast Guard—killed 316, wounded 78, missing 47, prisoners 1.

Senate Elections Committee Approves Compromise Plan For Uniform Federal Ballot

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—A compromise soldier vote bill providing for a uniform federal ballot, but empowering state and local officials to decide voter qualifications and validity of service men's ballots, was approved by the Senate elections committee late today.

Designed to meet the objections of legislators who want the states to retain control of election machinery, the revised bill of Senators Lucas (D-Ill) and Green (D-RI) won a 12 to 2 majority on the elections committee and is to be hurried to the Senate floor next week.

Others To Withdraw

Senators Tydings (D-Md) and Lodge (R-Mass), authors of alternate bills to set up a federal balloting system, announced they would withdraw their proposals and support the amended Green-Lucas measure.

The compromise bill makes these two major changes in the original Green-Lucas bill, which the Senate rejected in favor of a state's rights substitute:

1. Sections providing that soldiers could vote without regard to state poll tax and registration laws are omitted (although they still would be retained in the existing 1942 soldier voting statute which the revised legislation merely would amend).

Validity Of Balots

2. A provision is added stating that "duly constituted" local election officials shall have authority to decide the validity of ballots cast by members of the armed services, and the qualifications of voters.

Senator Tydings called the latter provision "a great victory" for advocates of state supervision of the balloting by service men in the 1944 election, and expressed the view that it gave state and local election officials the right to decide whether the ballots of service men who were not registered or who hadn't paid poll taxes, should be counted.

STEVENSON SAYS SOLONS' PLEA IS "SMOKE SCREEN"

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 20. (AP) — Gov. Coke Stevenson charged here today that the plea of an organized group of legislators for a special session at Austin to set up special machinery to enable soldiers to vote without payment of their poll tax was nothing but a "smoke screen."

Said the governor: "This group is anxious to have a special session called so that other matters may be considered and are using the soldier vote as their sole reason."

Declaring that his stand on the matter is unchanged, and that no amount of high-pressuring could cause him to change it, Stevenson added, "Actually, the matter of members of the armed forces being given special privileges in their vote is not an important issue, as the soldiers with whom I have talked have expressed the thought that they are quite willing to pay their poll tax and intend doing so."

Louisiana Girds For Round Two

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 20. (AP)—Louisiana began girding its loins today for a second Democratic primary campaign more hectic than the first, which ended in Tuesday's election and demonstrated that the followers of the late Huey Long still speak with a loud voice in the state's politics.

Contesting for the governorship nomination in the second primary Feb. 29 will be Jimmie H. Davis of Shreveport, public service commissioner and vacation-time movie actor, and Lewis L. Morgan, former member of Congress and one-time legal adviser to Huey Long.

Davis Confident

Davis announced today that he was already starting his second campaign with confidence, followed by a late day statement from the city "old regular" organization announcing that its chairman had been authorized to start preparations for the Morgan ticket in the second campaign.

The old regulars had let it be known earlier that they would accept the second primary challenge of Davis, in spite of an election law by which they could cinch the nominations of all other state candidates of its group leading in the first primary.

Governor Sam Jones, whose "reform government" was reportedly favored by Davis, declined to

McNutt Against All Class Deferments

CHICAGO, Jan. 20. (AP)—Paul V. McNutt, chairman of the War Manpower commission, asserted today he was opposed to draft deferment of any group as a class, and said "that includes farmers, who are already exempted to a certain extent."

He made the statement at the United States conference of mayors in answer to several queries about possible deferment of municipal employes, particularly policemen and firemen. Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia of New York City these groups was becoming a threat to municipal operation.

"Our first obligation is winning this war," declared McNutt, "and we must carry on our other activities as best we can with that primary objective in mind."

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 20. (AP) — Andrew Shearer, 80, father of screen actress Norma Shearer, was committed to the psycopathic ward of General hospital today on a complaint charging he bit the finger of a nurse and kicked his wife in the eye.

Nazis Might Muster 2,500 Planes To Battle Invasion

LONDON, Jan. 20. (AP)—The German Air force may be able to concentrate 2,500 planes in the west to meet an Allied invasion of Europe, the magazine 'Aeroplane" said today in a summary based on a two-year study of German press and radio reports.

The number might be smaller, the magazine said, if the Allies cepel the German high command to disperse their forces by diversionary attacks.

About 1,200 of the Nazis' 1,700 to 1,800 day and night fighters, including some 150 two-engined rocket carriers, now are facing British and American air units stationed in Britain, "Aeroplane" said.

From the ability of Allied bombers to reach German targets and obliterate them, it is apparent that this strength is insufficient, particularly since the Germans must protect an area from Biarritz in the southwest to the North Cape in the north, and extending inland to Leipzig

The magazine estimates that about 400 German fighters are stationed along the Russian front and perhaps 200 spread over Italy, the Balkans and southern Germany.

A German report that the Nazis have 10,000 first-line bombers within striking distance of British nerve centers, ready to use for concentrated 1000-bomber raids nightly, was disparaged.

Two Hunters Drown When Boat Overturns

ALTO, Tex., Jan. 20. (AP)—W. A. Brookshire and L. B. Nicholson drowned today when their boat overturned in Duren lake four miles west of here.

Dr. D. Brookshire was taken to a Nacogdoches hospital in a serious condition.

The three, all business men of Nacogdoches, were on a hunting trip and had spent the night at the lake club house. They were going from the club house to the shore when the boat overturned.

Lonnie Pyle, employe of Alto Forest nursery, heard Dr. Brookshire's call for help and found him in a tree. W. A. Brookshire's body was found hanging from a tree with his head under water. Nicholson's body was found in eight feet of water.

The secretary told a war bond rally in a prepared speech that $523,000,000 of the total went for the popular series E, which sells at 75 per cent of maturity value.

Heavy Blows Lash Nips All Way From Wewak To Rabaul

By ROBERT EUNSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

ADVANCED ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Friday, Jan. 21.—Allied airmen shot down 33 Japanese planes and sank three enemy supply ships totaling 10,000 tons in blows ranging from Wewak, New Guinea, to Rabaul, New Britain, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters reported today.

The heaviest raid was on the airdromes, supply dumps and antiaircraft positions at Wewak and neighboring Boram. Fifty Liberator heavy bombers hit Boram with 133 tons of explosives, without interception Wednesday. The day before more than 100 Allied fighters shot down 12 planes for sure and probably two more from the 50 to 60 Japanese interceptors that rose to challenge the attackers over Wewak. The Allies lost three planes.

MARSHALLS POUNDED

PEARL HARBOR, Jan. 20 (AP) — Bombers and fighters of the American Seventh Army Air force made four attacks on Japanese shore installations, airfields and shipping in the Marshall islands on Jan. 18 and 19, rounding out two weeks of daily ranges against atolls north of the American-held Gilbert Islands.

Four American planes were lost in the new raids, said the announcement at Pacific fleet headquarters, although there was no mention of enemy or interception. The raiding planes were shot down by antiaircraft fire which still appears strong despite the sustained bombing raids.

Two small Japanese ships were damaged at Jaluit atoll, attacked by Warhawk fighter planes yesterday.

Tobera airdrome, one of three fields guarding the center, downing 21 enemy interceptors against a loss of two of the raiding planes.

A 5,000-ton Japanese ammunition ship received a direct hit and blew up and a 2,000-ton freighter also was sunk when Navy Catalina patrol planes caught a small convoy off Lorengau, on the northeast coast of Admiralty island, Tuesday night.

Night patrol planes operating off Naman island, near Hansa bay on the northeast coast of New Guinea, sank a 3,000-ton Japanese ship.

Pilots returning from the raid on Wewak reported they found "some of the enemy pilots highly

Hit-Run Driver Still At Large

Still unidentified late Thursday night was the hit-run driver whose vehicle early yesterday struck and killed Marvin C. Berry, 45, at Tenth street and Avenue R.

Berry, who lived at 1808 Ninth street, presumably was waiting for a bus to take him to his work at Bray's cleaners, 2436 Nineteenth street. Ironically, he had a rabbit's foot in his pocket, and a nickel was clutched in his hand.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 o'clock this afternoon at Asbury Methodist church, with Rev. C. A. Bickley and Rev. O. A. Graydon officiating.

Bearers were announced as Troy L. Womack, Hilton Moore, H. O. Cordell, Wyatt Hester, W. S. Dickinson and J. J. Tipps.

Burial will be in Lubbock cemetery under direction of Rix Funeral home.

Municipal, county and state authorities continued their efforts to determine identity of the driver.

Berry's watch was crushed. It had stopped at 6:50 o'clock.

Berry's death was Lubbock's first traffic death of 1944. The last traffic fatality before today was Nov. 18, when a two-year holiday from such fatalities was snapped by the death of 13-year-old Margaret Vaughan of 2503 Twenty-sixth street, at Twenty-fifth street and Washington avenue.

Germans Driven From Minturno

Other Towns Fall In Cassino Drive

By WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Algiers, Jan. 20.—British troops have driven Nazi defenders from the important town of Minturno, two miles from the Garigliano river, the German high command announced today, as a bitter "give and take" battle raged along a seven-mile front on the Italian west coast.

The Nazis said that Minturno, a key communications center, was lost to Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark's advancing forces after having been "completely destroyed." The town was a primary objective of the new Allied offensive launched Monday night at three points across the lower Garigliano.

Three Villages Taken

While the Nazis conceded Minturno's fall, the Allied command announced capture of the villages of Argento, at the mouth of the Garigliano; Tufo, a mile northeast of Minturno, and Sulo, seven miles up the Garigliano from the coast.

Since their initial landings on the western bank of the river under cover of a smoke screen, the British have encountered a steady succession of minefields and sheets of machine-gun and artillery fire. The Aurunci mountains up which they are fighting rise at points to 3,000 feet.

An Allied spokesman said the attacking troops had gained firm possession of their bridgeheads and were pressing steadily into the enemy's fortifications, but added that they were being called upon to repel furious German counter-attacks.

Reinforcements Pour In

British reinforcements were pouring across the river to join in the conflict, which was progressing in clear, cold weather.

It was disclosed officially that Monday night's smash across the Garigliano was accompanied by an amphibious operation that landed Allied troops behind the enemy's lines on the Gulf of Gaeta. This force presumably participated in the capture of the coastal village of Argento.

(A German correspondent reported that American troops were being landed at several points along the Gulf of Gaeta, but there

Another Army Night Fighter Announced

DAYTON, O., Jan. 20. (AP) — A new night fighter has been added to the Army Air forces' weapons, the materiel command at Wright Field disclosed tonight with announcement of conversion of Douglas A-20-A Havoc bombers into P-70s.

Command officers said the twin-engine ship mounted four fixed, forward-firing 20-millimeter cannon in the nose instead of the bombardier's greenhouse, and that other modifications had been made to "facilitate night fighting."

The black-painted P-70, unofficially named the "Midnight Mauler," joins the P-61, or "Black Widow," announced last week.

Discovery Proposed As Aid In Explaining Solar System

FORT DAVIS, Tex., Jan. 21. (AP) —Dr. Gerald F. Kuiper, who confirmed the existence of atmosphere around Saturn's satellite, Titan, said today that the discovery "should be an important factor of any theory to explain the origin of the solar system."

The 38-year-old professor of astronomy at the University of Chicago, on leave to do war work, took a few weeks out to scan the skies with instruments at the McDonald observatory here.

He's Now Convinced

Last week Kuiper and his aides surveyed the Satellites for tracers of atmosphere. By the end of last week, with the aid of the spectrograph, astronomers were convinced that Titan was surrounded by an atmospheric belt composed of methane (CH4) and possibly ammonia.

Titan is a little bigger than our moon; weighs about twice as much as the moon and one-fortieth the weight of the earth. Titan, roughly 10 times as far from the sun as we are, has a temperature of about 300 dgerees below zero, fahrenheit.

Methane remains gaseous at a very low temperature whereas ammonia liquifies at 250 degrees below zero.

Probably Never Been Hot

"The surprising thing was that such a small body should have such a dense atmosphere" said Dr. Kuiper. "No other satellites in the solar system have that characteristic. Apparently it was so cold there, around Titan, that the atmosphere remained stable. The findings indicate that Titan probably has never been very hot in its history. If it had been, it would have lost its atmosphere."

Asked whether the discovery might contradict the nebular hypothesis, Dr. Kuiper said "no adequate theory has yet been developed for origin of the solar system, but the fact that such a small body as Titan should have such a dense atmosphere should be an important factor of any theory to explain the solar system."

Thicker Than Earth's Air

Asked about the thickness of the atmosphere belt, Dr. Kuiper explained it had not been measured, but probably was thicker than that around the earth.

He said there was a reference to an atmosphere around Titan in an old English book, and "it may have been a guess, but, in any event, it was a good guess."

Kuiper's previous adventures in astronomy resulted about 8 years ago in the discovery of a white dwarf star, 80 light years from the earth, weighing 1,000 tons per cubic inch.

Co-Pilot Killed, Pilot Hurt, But 'Fort' Comes Home

A UNITED STATES BOMBER BASE SOMEWHERE IN ENGLand, Jan. 20. (AP)—With the dead body of his co-pilot slumped in the cockpit and painfully wounded himself, Lt. Dean M. Radtke, 22, of Morrice, Mich., stuck to his battered controls and brought a Flying Fortress 300 miles back from a raid on Germany Jan. 1, practically one-handed.

Radtke collapsed the moment the big ship rolled to a stop and the other members of the crew had to pry his fingers loose from the controls. One hand had been sliced by fragments of the same German cannon shell which killed co-Pilot Lt. Robert J. Digby, 23, of Battle Creek, Mich. Radtke also suffered slight fragment wounds on his neck and arms.

In its battle with 10 Nazi fighters, one engine had been shot out of the fuselage and the wings were shredded to ribbons.

During the entire homeward trip, Lt. William Agentti, of Seattle, Wash., the bombardier, stood between the seats of the pilot and co-pilot and held an oxygen mask to Radtke's face to keep him from passing out. Radtke's own mask had been torn off and smashed by the force of the explosion.

Sgt. Van Pinner, of San Antonio, descended from his top turret guns to help remove Digby's body into the radio room, and toward the end of the grim journey he took over the co-pilot's seat and helped Radtke land the damaged ship.

"I don't know what I would have done without them," said Radtke, who was released from the hospital today.

Rent Control Slated For Two Texas Areas

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP) — The Office of Price administration announce dtoday that rent control will be extended February 1 to residential properties in five new defense rental areas.

Among the five new areas are Lockhart, Tex., including justices precincts 1, 6 and 7 in Caldwell county; and Sweetwater, Tex., including Nolan county.

In the Lockhart area, no higher rent can be charged than that of January 1, 1943. In the other areas, rents will be frozen as of March 1, 1943.

For houses and apartments in these areas, all rents are frozen as of these base dates. Rents for rooms in hotels and rooming houses are frozen at the highest rent charged in the 30 days ending on the freeze dates.

The rent control action was necessary, OPA said, because war activities in the new areas have increased population and caused shortage in housing facilities, throwing rents out of line.

New Deal Wins In School Case

The Texas Supreme court has ruled adversely against the Abernathy County Line Consolidated Independent School district in its case against New Deal Rural High School district No. 3.

Appellant's application was refused for want of merit, it was announced Thursday.

The case was tried in absence of a jury in the 72nd district court of Judge Dan Blair, after having been transferred from 99th district court Dec. 23, 1942. At stake were two sections, 35 and 41 of block C-2, Lubbock county, which the New Deal district as plaintiff contended belonged to its district, but which it charged were claimed by the Abernathy County Line district.

Blair Held For New Deal

Judge Blair held for New Deal district, reciting in his findings of fact and conclusions of law that the two sections had been made a part of the Abernathy County Line Independent School district upon the district's creation by the regular session of the 35th legislature in 1917; that a fourth called session of that legislature removed the sections from that district and placed them in the Center Common School district No. 2, which in 1935 was consolidated with the New Deal district, but that since 1917 Abernathy County Line Independent district and its successor Abernathy County Line consolidated district had collected all school taxes and enumerated school children living on the two sections upon its scholastic rolls and collected per capita scholastic apportionments on them; that the caption to the house bill transferring the sections to the Center district did not contravene the constitution of Texas and that the act was valid and legally effective to transfer the two sections in controversy.

Injunction Issued

He enjoined the Abernathy County Line district from interfering with the New Deal district in connection with the sections.

The Supreme court also strung along with Judge Blair in connection with the appeal on a writ of error of W. D. Belt against Sue Alice Slaughter and others, including The Texas Co., a Hockley county trespass to try title action that involved several hundred acres of oil property in the so-called Bob Slaughter unitized block. Judge Blair ruled in that case that numerous others in the unitized block should have been joined as parties to the suit, a contention supported by the court of civil appeals and the Supreme court.

Jackrabbits Menace Dwindling Supplies Of Panhandle Feed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—Jack Rabbits—those long eared and longer legged speedsters of the western plains country—were reported today to be massing in gangs to steal already insufficient cattle feed supplies in the Texas Panhandle.

The report came from County Agricultural Agent A. P. Bralley of Sherman county, Tex., along with an application to the War Production board for 300,000 rounds of .22 caliber rifle ammunition to exterminate the packs.

In a letter to Rep. Worley (D-Tex) who transmitted the application to WPB, Bralley wrote:

"The jackrabbits have been deprived of their natural feed source (presumably because of recent snow) and have ganged up in bunches of several hundred and even thousands in places where they can get feed and some protection. The rabbits are eating the farmers feed which their livestock needs."

Bralley pointed out that the quantity of shells requested would allow distribution of less than 500 cartridges per farmer. The Sherman county 4-H club boys junior rifle club is the applicant.

Worley noted that it would be weeks before farmers could haul feed from fields because of deep snow and that when it melted the rabbits would destroy the tender wheat coming up then unless they were checked.

Curtailment Of U. S. Part In World "Kitty" Sought

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP) — Amid cries that America must guard its own interests, a move was launched in the House today to curtail a proposed $1,350,000,000 contribution to a United Nations' "kitty" for aiding the peoples of war-devastated lands.

A group of legislators critical of administration policies served early notice of that intention and of a plan to spell out in exact terms the score of a pending measure ratifying participation by this nation in the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation administration.

Appeal By Eaton

Earlier, the House heard an appeal by Rep. Eaton of New Jersey, ranking Republican member of the foreign affairs committee, for the House to demonstrate anew its belief in international collaboration.

Saying that the United Nations shares with the world the common responsibility of aiding victims of Axis aggression, he declared that it would "be impossible for us to be an island of prosperity in the middle of an ocean of adversity."

Promptly, Rep. Jessie Sumner (R-Ill) and Rep. Gearhart (R-Calif) took the floor to challenge the measure's constitutionality, arguing that the agreement for U. S. participation in UNRRA constituted a treaty which should be submitted to the Senate for a two-thirds vote of approval.

Makes Stalin Dictator

Miss Sumner contended that UNRRA would "help make Stalin dictator of Europe." She said he would control distribution of relief supplies in "most" of the liberated countries.

"Stalin," she told the House, "will use his armies to win elections in the liberated areas."

The intensity of the debate was demonstrated when Rep. Fish (R-NY), ranking minority member of the rules committee, rose and said that he had always "admired Churchill and Stalin because they always put their own nation's interest first."

As he pursued that theme and went on to praise Miss Sumner's "American speech," Rep. Eaton—apparently interpreting the remarks as a reflection upon his views and obviously angry—strode to the edge of the House well and snapped:

"I'm as good an American as you are."

Several Amendments

Fish them told the House that several amendments would be offered, among them:

1. Reduction in the ceiling on the American contribution for UNRRA from $1,350,000,000 to $675,000,000.
2. Restriction against use of any of the funds for educational purposes.
3. A clause to assure relief for the people of India.
4. A guarantee that 90 percent of the American contribution would be used for supplies purchased in this country.
5. Stipulation that UNRRA work would be devoted exclusively to relief, with none of the funds going for rehabilitation.

Allies Lash Out In Burma Drive

NEW DELHI, Jan. 20. (AP)—Allied ground forces, moving up behind heavy assaults by strong forces of American heavy and medium bombers, have opened a new north Burma land front in attacks on Japanese positions in the Chindwin area.

In announcing the attacks, launched Tuesday, today's Allied East Asia headquarters communique said only that "some progress was made."

The Japanese positions, in the Nyankchaw area 18 miles southder, lie more than 200 miles below the Hukawng valley area where American-trained Chinese troops are driving eastward along the route of the new Ledo road to China.

A successful drive eastward from Kyankchaw across the upper Chindwin river valley would sever the enemy's main communications between his central and northern forces.

To the south, other Allied forces holding new advance positions on the Arakan front successfully beat off a number of Japanese counter-attacks against river bridges south and east of Maungdaw.

Lt.-Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's Chinese forces clearing out the Japanese ahead of engineers carving out the new "Burma road" to China captured the enemy-held village of Gumga in the Hukawng valley and drove eastward across the Tanai river.

American and RAF bombers, fighter-bombers and fighters continued their heavy attacks on Japanese shipping and communications.

The Allies lost five planes.

Semester Opens At Tech Today

By VIRGIL MIERS
Avalanche Staff Writer

First classes of the 1944 spring semester will begin today at Texas Technological college—beginning one of the most trying semesters in Tech's history.

Enrollment is at an all-time low—the lowest it has ever been except for the first years of Tech's ment had climbed to 2,297, nearly doubling the wartime enrollment of today.

Decreased Since 1942

Texas Tech began in 1925 with an enrollment of more than 800 and has steadily increased until

TOTAL NOW 1,367

A total of 1,367 students had obtained permits to register at the close of the last formal registration day, Thursday. Passing through the dean of men's office were 450 men students, and 902 women students had passed through the dean of women's office. After 5 o'clock, Monday, a late registration fee must be paid.

the spring semester, 1942 and since that time has steadily decreased.

However, college officials stated Thursday that enrollment figures were "satisfactory" and some said that the figures had gone beyond their expectations.

Many college students and faculty members were making this prediction — that Texas Tech is now at its lowest ebb in enrollment that it will ever be—because they think that the closing stages of the war are coming soon—and coming with them, an increased enrollment — beyond that which Tech has ever had.

This semester—like the past few semesters—will again see the peculiar ratio of 2 girls to every boy. Before Pearl Harbor, Tech boasted of 2 boys to every girl.

Another Problem

Another problem facing Tech's educators is the decreased amount of studying being done and the increasing number of students "falling" courses, or making low grades in their courses.

In social activities, Tech's third war-time spring semester will open with only three men's social clubs active, and these three clubs facing shortage of members. All five of Tech's women social clubs are still active, with many eliminating some of their activities. Hell weeks for men's social clubs have been abandoned for the duration.

This semester will close May 15. and summer school will begin on May 22.

LOST RATION BOOKS

Most of us are absent-minded about one thing or another. We forget a telephone number we are going to dial or where the car is parked or where we put the scissors. Small wonder then that ration books are constantly disappearing. Not as many ration books are just out and out lost as are misplaced.

Various are the ways which the books disappear. For instance a woman changes purses and forgets that she left the book in her other purse. Or she files it in the cabinet with the spices and vanilla and forgets. Perhaps she puts it in the car pocket; or in the secretary desk with un-answered letters. Some books have been thrown out and burned with old magazines and papers. Others are in un-used coats, behind a stack of canned goods on a emergency shelf or in the worn lining of the baby carriage.

At least, these are some places the books have been found by worried owners who had thought they would have to apply for another book.

What have been your experiences with losing books?

Of course the safe and sane way is keeping your books in a holder and remembering each time you go to the store to place them back where they belong.

HIP EXERCISES

Here are two exercises that a beauty salon (please proof-reader, only one "o") in Hollywood gives to its clients. It is wise to exercise in the morning upon arising. Otherwise, you may find yourself too tired for exertion in the evening.

The following exercises to keep your figure trim should be done at least 20 times:

1. Stand with feet apart, arms out at side, bend body, touching left arm to right foot, then right arm to left foot.

2. Put feet flat on floor, raising arms overhead. Bend forward, touching floor with palms of hands. Raise arms over head, bend body back from waist. Relax.

Ward Schools Have P-TA Programs

Parent-Teacher associations met at four ward schools Thursday afternoon; freedom from want was the general topic discussed.

First-year intermediate pupils of Roscoe Wilson school, under the direction of Misses Gertrude Herm, and Lois Hale and Mrs. Leona Thomas, gave a question-answer program and three Spanish numbers. The question-answer program of which Sam Camp was master of ceremonies concerned enrollment, bond sales, and the P-TA of Roscoe Wilson school.

Durwood Bradley, attorney, spoke on "Freedom From Want."

At the George M. Hunt P-TA meeting, Mrs. Ivy Savage spoke on "Motion Pictures and Our Youth." The meeting was at the Central Baptist church.

On the program at the Dupre P-TA were Mrs. John Howell, who led group singing, Mrs. Lloyd Croslin, who gave a piano number, and Captain R. T. Miller, who spoke on "Freedom From Want."

Midwest Demos To Air Peeves

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—The midwest Democratic conference, composed of national committeemen and state chairmen from 13 states who are complaining principally about administration of the farm program, may carry their troubles direct to President Roosevelt as well as to the party's national committee.

This was disclosed today by James C. Quigley, Nebraska national committee member and was formed at Omaha in December, 1942, with ten states represented. The group will meet here tomorrow with Montana, Indiana and Wisconsin as new members.

Demands Wickard Ouster

The full national committee meets Saturday to arrange for the 1944 Democratic national convention. Members will be received by the president (at 4:30 p. m. cwt) tomorrow at the White House.

"It all depends on the Conferees whether we take up our troubles with the full national committee," Quigley said today. "We might submit a report direct to the president if we find we don't want to air those things in public."

Demanding the ousting of agriculture Secretary Wickard and A. G. Black of the Farm Credit administration, Quigley said: "It's got to the point now where the Farmer's union is running the department of agriculture."

Claims Farm Votes Lost

He complained particularly against administration appointment posts.

Quigley said the Democrats "need to win back the confidence of the farmers," adding:

"We have lost the major part of the farm vote without any justiable reason. It has not been because of policies, but because of poor administration. We fell the administration has rendered invaluable service to the farmers and have every right to be entitled to the farm vote. The administration saved agriculture: There's no question about that."

Renegotiation Compromise Agreed On By Senate Group

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—The Senate Finance committee today abandoned several proposals to ease the war contracts renegotiation law and unanimously agreed to a compromise slated for consideration in the Senate tomorrow.

The action was an obvious victory for Senators Walsh (D-Mass), Connally (D-Tex), LaFollette (Prog-Wis) and Lucas (D-Ill), committee members who issued a minority report sharply critical of five of the amendments previously approved by a majority of the 21-member group. All five of the criticized amendments either were thrown out or materially modified.

Written Into Tax Bill

The revisions were written into the pending $2,275,600,000 tax increase bill, all other features of which have been approved by the Senate.

The committee gave up its plan for mandatory exemption from renegotiation of contracts for standard commercial articles, such as bolts and truck axles and electric motors. As in the House bill, exemption of such contracts would be discretionary with the war price adjustment board.

Also knocked out was a provision which would have retroactively exempted the profits on articles which are not physically incorporated in the finished contract article—such as a welding machine at a shipyard. (The minority report charged the provision would have "compelled" war profiteering.)

Termed "Much Better"

Walsh declared the final Senate version of the renegotiation amendments was "much better" than the revisions which had been voted by the House. Senator McKellar (D-Tenn), author of the original renegotiation law under which billions of dollars worth of war contracts have been examined for excessive profits, said the compromise plan appeared "reasonably satisfactory" although he had not had a chance to check it in detail.

An exception was made, in effect exempting the machine tool industry. Walsh said so many machine tools had been built to meet war needs that there would be a market for few in the first 10 or 15 years of peace.

Exemption Amendment

The majority also dropped its insistence on an amendment which would have exempted agreements for articles furnished on obedience to a War Production board directive, at or below OPA ceiling prices.

Under the revised wording, contractors dissatisfied with their renegotiation would have the right of "de novo" appeal to the court of claims, except in cases already closed by mutual agreement.

In renegotiating a contract, the board would be instructed to consider a firm's problems in reconverting to peacetime production. The committee previously had stipulated that consideration be given to "financial" problems.

Closing Date Set

The committee agreed on Dec. 31, 1944 as the termination date for renegotiations, but empowered the president to change the date six months either way to match changing conditions.

Under present law contracts aggregating less than $100,000 a year may not be renegotiated. The amendments increase the minimum to $500,000.

Contracts for agricultural products are exempt from renegotiation under both the House and Finance committee versions. The committee struck a similar exemption for canned vegetables and fruits, but wrote in an exemption for processed dairy products.

Bottle 'Unstopper' Proves Big Bother To Milk Industry

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD
Associated Press Staff Writer

DALLAS, Jan. 20—Wayne H. Bovee brushed milk from his new suit and observed that advice from even the nation's ablest sources doesn't help much in getting the diabolical wartime cap off a milk bottle.

Bovee is chief of the technical advisory service of the regional Smaller War Plants corporation and it's his job to smooth out problems of small businesses. Recently he got a letter from a creamery complaining that the War Production board's order prohibiting the use of a wire staple in milk bottle caps had resulted in an unhappy condition.

Attacks Problem Earnestly

"Lids," the letter stated, "are splitting in half, thus necessitating sticking the finger in the bottle and oft times spurting cream in the eyes and on the clothes and in many instances resulting in insurance claims."

Bovee attacked the problem earnestly. To dairymen, manufacturers and professors in all parts of the country he sent letters requesting advice. The advice poured in and made a file of 12 closely-typed pages.

K. G. Weckel, associate professor of dairy industry, University or Wisconsin, recommended "a re-evaluation of the common table fork."

Wants Old Cap Again

George J. Lincoln, jr., of the national association of sanitary milk bottle closure, Philadelphia, Pa., commented:

"We are sincere in our opinion that the public should have its old cap back again."

Many of the letters told Bovee something he already knew—that the trouble with milk bottle caps today is that they don't have a wire staple.

From T. J. Van Alstyne, manager of a paper products company in Portland, Ore., came what sounded like a practical suggestion.

This One Sounded Good

He wrote: "Lift the pull disc straight up, then pull toward the center of the cap. If these directions are followed, you will find that the caps are easily removed."

So, for the purpose of educating the milk-spattered public on the correct and painless method of removing a milk bottle's wireless cap, Bovee consented to stage a demonstration.

In a Dallas cafe, he ordered six bottles of milk while T. C. Daniell, manager, stood by, frankly skeptical of the whole thing.

"Somebody's going to get wet," he said. "I get so much milk on my spectacles I'm snowblind."

The first cap came out fine.

"I still say an ice pick is the only safe way," Daniell scoffed. "Everyone should carry an ice pick."

The other five caps tore and had to be removed by brute force.

Bovee's final advice to the nation of milk drinkers:

"When all else fails—jab and pray."

Weather Hampers Allied Rabaul Raid

MUNDA, New Georgia, Solomons, Jan. 17. (Delayed (AP)—Inclement weather—except over the target — caused Allied fighter planes to battle superior numbers of Zeros at much lower than usual altitudes in today's devastating blow at enemy shipping at Rabaul.

Marine and Navy torpedo bombers and divebombers sank three large Japanese cargo ships and left two sinking—plus three others wreathed in smoke. The bombers were forced to approach their targets at lower than usual levels, however, and the escorting fighter planes dropped down a corresponding distance.

Eighteen of the 100 or more attacking Japanese fighters were downed, with a loss of 10 American fighters—eight of them Lightnings.

Failure of the Zeros to get through the Allied fighter screen was indicated by the fact that not one of our bombers was shot down in combat. One was hit by antiaircraft fire and one evidently grazed a ship.

Navy divebomber fliers credited with hits on cargo ships included Lt. Elmer Williamson, El Paso.

Firemen Find Woman Dead Beside Stove

SHREVEPORT, Jan. 20. (AP)—Mrs. Naomi E. Carleton, wife of H. C. Carleton, plant superintendent of the Jersey Gold creameries here, was found dead beside the stove in her bedroom today by firemen when they responded to an alarm turned in by a neighbor that the Carleton home was on fire.

Dr. Harry W. Paul, Caddo parish deputy coroner, said that Mrs. Carleton died of burns and suffocation.

Her husband was in Dallas at the time and she was in the house alone.

Trade circles predicted that southern holders would be more willing to sell around the 20-cent level, and cited increased offerings of cotton at that price in support of their belief.

Lack Of Refrigerator Repair Men Develops

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (U.P.) — The War Manpower commission today asked all experienced refrigeration repair men now working in less essential jobs to return to their former occupations.

The WMC said that proper maintenance of existing refrigerators, essential for preserving food and safeguarding national health, was highly important because new ones were not available. The number of repairmen in domestic service was reported to have decreased by 70 per cent—from 28,000 to 19,600—since outbreak of the war.

WMC asked U. S. Employment service offices throughout the country to encourage the return of repairmen to their old jobs provided they were not now engaged in a more direct war activity.

Poll Tax Forgiveness Said Unconstitutional

TERRELL, Tex., Jan. 20. (AP)—Rep. Thomas R. Bond of the 52nd district including Kaufman county has wired supporters of a special legislative session at Austin to excuse soldiers from payment of poll tax, saying such action would be clearly unconstitutional."

He declared the soldier's vote proposal was being used as a "political football" and added moreover soldiers were not clamoring for a vote but "men at home with politicians on our home front should be motivated by their example," Bond said.

OPA set a 40-cent retailers' ceiling for wild rabbits last February and it explained, discovered recently that larger amounts of the meat were being sold commercially—in some cases at wholesale prices exceeding the original retail ceiling.

Plainview, Lubbock Resume Series Play Here Tonight

The Lubbock Westerners and the Plainview Bulldogs will resume their "Dixie Series" here tonight at the Lubbock gym with the firing due to start at 7:30 with the closely matched B teams of the two schools playing the curtain raiser.

The official business of the evening will come when hte Westerners and Bulldogs tangle in the nightcap with the chance to meet the winners from the Yankee half of the District 1-AA cage war as the prize. The series in the Rebel half of the loop is for a best three out of five in the series with the Westerners gunning for the second win in a row while Plainview will be shooting the works to break into the win column and to even the series.

The Westerners defeated Plainview last Friday night at Plainview by a 25 to 15 score in the series opener.

There still remained some doubt as to whether Marion Manderson, top scoring ace of the Westerners would be able to play in the game tonight, but Coach Dixie White was hopeful that he would have his team in top shape for the big battle. Manderson has been ill with a deep chest cold all week, but returned to classes Wednesday.

Should the high scoring pivot man be able to answer the whistle, Coach White likely will send Cope and Crawford in at the forward posts with Brewer and Moore at the guard slots, the usual lineup for the Black and Gold clad lads.

If Manderson can't make it, Cope probably will be switched to center with Moyer taking over one of the forward jobs.

In the opening tussle tonight, the Lubbock "B" squad will be out to even things up with the Plainview cubs, having lost a 24 to 23 decision in the Hale county city last week. The Westerner "B" team has played three games thus far, won two, lost one, each game being decided by one-point margins.

The second game of the series will be played Saturday night.

Farms Defended In Rickey Interview

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP) — Branch Rickey, a man of many words, left a lot of things unsaid at a press conference today but he also said enough to convince a group of reporters that he is ready to put up a fight for "chain store" baseball if it becomes necessary.

After giving off a few preliminary sparks yesterday when he said that Commissioner K. M. Landis is not interested in the extension of baseball, Rickey kept the fireworks under cover today while he discussed the shortage of good ball players and the difficulty of getting them to sign contracts.

When someone finally brought up the question of whether the controversy over the farm system will be revived when the Major-Minor League agreement is rewritten this year, the originator of the chain idea looked out the window a moment and replied: "I suppose it will.

"I should like to limit the discussions of the post-war planning committee to the re-alignment of leagues. It's about baseball as a whole; the existence of legaues under a better setup than they have had before. I would say there is a concentration of opponents of the farm system on the committee."

Rickey said he had just two statements to make on that subject: "One, the farm system is not altogether a result of effort on the part of the higher classification clubs but resulted partly from the needs of clubs in the lower classes. Two, the rehabilitation of the minors does not rest on theories. The leagues will exist or not exist. They can exist only because they're properly financed. Judge Bramham (W. G. Bramham, president of the National Association) is as good a source as you can go to in order to find out if financing can be done by local capital in inexperienced hands."

Bramham recently issued a statement strongly favoring local ownership of Minor League clubs.

Citing the comparatively small reserve lists of the Major League clubs, Rickey indicated that he doubted whether class AA and A1 baseball would continued in 1944. "I see no reason for doubt about the Majors going ahead," he said. "I am glad the Double-A's all feel confident and I wish I could feel as confident as they are."

The Class C and D leagues will not face the same problems, he explained, because they are in better position to secure players who are free agents.

Charley Parker Set For Better Records

SAN ANTONIO, Jan. 20. (AP) — Flyin' Charley Parker, the schoolboy track sensation, isn't promising that he'll better any of his marks this year but if he does it will be because of added height.

Charley won't have to surpass his 1943 performances much to hang up world records because he already is national scholastic king in the 220 with a 20.6 timing and he raced the 100 in 9.5.

"I could not say whether or not I will better any of my 1943 records," said the blond "Pony Express" now in his final season at Thomas Jefferson High School. "If I do, I would say a lengthened stride caused by added height would be accountable." He plans no change in running style but hopes to improve his start.

Parker is 17 years old and is 5 feet 9½ inches. He has gained exactly one pound over last year, weighing in at 147.

SPAAF Romps Over LAAF In Lubbock Cage Victory

Again hitting their "better than 50 per" the high scoring South Plains Winged Commandos roared into the leadership in the Lubbock Basketball League race Thursday night at their home court, beating back the Lubbock Army Air Field five 59 to 35.

Both teams went into this battle undefeated in league play, and with the boys from the West Base holding a one point victory over SPAAF in a non-league battle earlier in the year.

With Leason "Stormy" McCloud, John Kline and Bob Edwards hitting all cylinders, the boys of Capt. Eubank's took an early lead and were never in danger after Kline had dropped in his first field goal shortly after the tipoff.

Prior got a free toss, then Kline dropped in another basket, then added a pair of free tosses to build the lead to 6 to 1. LAAF rallied for a moment and Elrod dropped in a field goal and Prior a free pitch to pull up to 6-4, but then Edwards dropped in a field goal and McCloud followed with two more, then Wakeland dropped in a free pitch to boost the lead to 13 to 4.

LAAF pulled back within five points of the high scoring leaders a short time later, but the halftime intermission with a comfortable 30 to 19 lead.

Early in the last half, the Fliers moved up within eight points, but the rally was short, and SPAAF again was zooming out into the lead and coasting in with the victory.

Edwards, a Monohans boy, was the top scorer of the night, dropping in eight field goals for 16 points, but he was closely pressed by McCloud with 15 points and Kline with 12. Elrod paced the losers with 12 points, and offered just about their only threat at Prior, the team's leading scorer, and Volz went out of the game on fouls.

SPAAF lost Bernie Stock and Doug Wakeland through the foul route, with Wakeland going out early in the ball game.

Lubbock Army Air Field will swing back into league action again Saturday night, meeting the Texas Tech Army Engineers at the LAAF court.

Georgia Fined After Use Of Ineligibles

LEXINGTON, Ky., Jan. 20. (AP) —The Southeastern Conference executive committee has fined the University of Georgia $500 for the alleged use of five ineligible football players last season, it was revealed here today by Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, secretary of the conference.

Names of the players were not revealed but minutes of the annual meeting, held in Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 10, said Commissioner M. S. Conner reported that Georgia "had flagrantly violated the rules" by using five ineligible players last season "in spite of definite advices to the contrary by the commissioner."

Dr. Funkhouser said the University of Georgia had appealed the decision in writing and that it would be taken up at the next meeting of the conference executive committee, to be held sometime this spring.

College Cagers Fall Before Old 13 Jinx

NEW YORK, Jan. 19. (AP)—Thirteen seems to be a jinx to winning college basketball quintets.

Last week DePaul's Demons of Chicago, undefeated and boasting a 13-game winning streak, lost to Valparaiso, of Indiana. That left undefeated Camp Grant and Milligan (Tenn.) College with 13-game streaks.

The jinx caught up with Camp Grant last night, Marquette handing the soldiers a surprise 46-38 defeat at Elgin, Ill. The Golden Avalanche got off to an early 17-6 lead and led throughout. The soldiers pulled up to 34-33 in the second half before Marquette again crept away.

Milligan, boasting victories over Duke and North Carolina in its long streak, risks the jinx on Friday when the Buffs meet Emory and Henry at Bristol, Va.

Squadron Cagers Play At SPAAF

South Plains Army Air field's squadron hardwood league takes the spotlight at the post recreation hall tonight with two featured games on the schedule with the loop leaders laying their undefeated record on the line.

The high scoring Medics, winners of four straight games, will be heavily favored to take their fifth in a row when they meet the newcomers to the league, the SPAAF Band team. The music minded cagers entered league competition last week with a setback. However, with a little practice they have shown noticeable improvement and may toss a bombshell into the race.

Second tussle on tonight's menu finds the 370th Base Headquarters squad, with a .500 batting average for the season with two wins and two losses, meeting the up and coming Squadron Two team. The 370th now holds fifth spot in the loop and the Squadron team is in third spot.

Biggest surprise of the week's play was the second consecutive defeat plastered on the 356th colored squadron club, now holding fourth place along with the Squadron 1 five. The 356th lost to the Squadron 1 team Tuesday night, 34 to 26. In the other Tuesday night tussle, the threatening 848th boys came through with a 23 to 17 decision over the Student Detachment to hold a strong second place behind the Medical Detachment.

Still holding league scoring honors is Sgt. William J. Besson of the 848th with 50 points in five games.

Coach Butts Defends Use Of Ineligibles

ATHENS, Ga., Jan. 20. (AP) — Coach Wallace Butts of the University of Georgia, whose school was fined $500 today by the Southeastern conference for alleged use of ineligible football players last season, asserted tonight "If we hadn't used the five players the Bulldogs wouldn't have had a football team."

Five transfer students from as many schools were used on the Bulldog varsity, Butts said, after scheduled conference opponents and SEC Commissioner Mike Conner were notified of Georgia's plans.

"The Georgia athletic board authorized me to take such action," Butts added in a telephone conversation, from Dublin, Ga., "after it became apparent that we would have to cancel our schedule unless the transfer students were allowed to play.

"The only answer we received from Conner was a citation of the SEC rules. The conference members schedule, Georgia Tech and Louisiana State, had no objections whatsoever.

"The players came from Furman, South Carolina, Tulsa, Mercer and Villanova. Not one of them had participated in varsity ball and one of them, from Tulsa, hadn't played freshman football.

"The Tulsa and South Carolina boys played quite a bit of ball for Georgia and appeared in the LSU and Tech games. They received letters, but I can't recall if the other three did."

Coach Butts said Billy Rutland, one of the five players, was the only one to perform in every game. The others, he said included Fred Burke, a tackle, Jim McGee and Norris Janko, both centers. The coach said he didn't remember which schools the boys came from and that the fifth player's name had slipped his memory.

Half Cures For An Evil

THE Office of Price Administration continues its pretended efforts to relieve the growing pork surplus with steps which could be described, with reckless exaggeration, as "half-way measures."

Within this category was the OPA announcement the other day that extra points are available for on-the-farm buying of rationed pork. This, mind you, pretends to be an effort to relieve a SURPLUS.

Yet, OPA itself said that one purpose of this step was to encourage farmers to slaughter their hogs on the farm. When the retail markets are glutted with fresh pork, some of which is spoiling, OPA seeks to encourage more slaughtering. Such stupidity would be unbelievable if it did not occur in a bureaucratic agency.

Further than that, how will on-the-farm availability of pork help most of the consumers in the nation who might like to buy pork? How about the tens of millions of city dwellers? How about people like most of those in Lubbock, which is in the heart of a great farming and ranching country? Are they to drive out to the farms, thus consuming precious gasoline and rubber, to get fresh pork in quantities that most of them cannot keep?

How about the millions upon millions of war plant workers? Are they to take a day off from their war jobs to burn gas and rubber as they hunt for a farm where pork may be sold?

How about the farmer himself? Is he to abandon his job of trying to produce record crops so as to go, temporarily, into the meat slaughtering and retail business?

Is he to be placed in competition with the meat markets which already are operating, which are convenient to the consumer, and which are the only logical places through which to move meat surpluses to the buyer?

This is another of those gestures which is even less meaningless than benevolent OPA's recent announcement of pork "dividends." To relieve a situation which even the officials of OPA admit to be serious—and which is termed "critical" by those in whom greater reliance can be placed—the bureaucrats announced they were making five extra points available. That wasn't enough even to scratch the surface of the problem.

Anyone but a bureaucrat thinking of the permanence of a juicy and leisurely job should perceive that the problem of the surplus won't be solved with fractional measures. A pork rationing holiday seems to offer the most promising hope of a real solution. But, of coure, bureaucrats don't want anything like that. It might demonstrate how easily the nation could get along without them, and they might have to go to work.

Let's See The Parade!

MOST people, regardless of age, still retain the youthfulness of spirit which enables them to enjoy a good parade. These are people to envy because it means a capacity to enjoy life just that much more. Those who retain such a capacity can be sure that their youth is not entirely gone.

Unfortunately, and for reasons that everyone understands, parades have been few in Lubbock and elsewhere during the past two years. Most of us, perhaps, are a little "parade hungry."

If so, something very satisfying is in store, because one of the biggest and most colorful parades ever seen in our city is scheduled for 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. It will be the biggest military spectacle of its kind that residents of Lubbock and area ever have been given the opportunity to witness, and has been arranged in cooperation with the Fourth War Loan drive now getting well under way.

From the standpoint of mere curiosity, the parade gives every promise of being highly spectacular. The several bands, thousands of marching men and the weapons of war to be on display will be a sight to see. But, more important than its satisfaction to curiosity, will be the fact that spectators are going to see some of the evidences of why their support is demanded for the War Loan drive.

See the parade. You'll enjoy it. And you are likely to find that you are a better American citizen because of it.

The conductor of a fashions column asks, "What do you most admire in the new fall dresses?" Women.

An $8 question: Who buys the books that everybody borrows and nobody returns?

Overheard: "From the way that guy doesn't pay his bills, he must be one of those dollar-a-year men."

The One Minute Sermon

For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?

Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?

Whosoever therefore shall be ashamed of me and of my words in this adulterous and sinful generation; of his also shall the Son of man be ashamed, when he cometh in the glory of his Father with the holy angels.—St. Mark 8: 36 through 38.

Believe It Or Not --- By Robert Ripley

Gideon Planish

By SINCLAIR LEWIS
Distributed by NEA Service, Inc.
Copyright, 1943, Sinclair Lewis—

THE STORY: As an undergraduate in 1910 Gid Planish had wanted to save the world. As an English professor at Kinnikinick College in 1921, he is well-esteemed but vaguely dissatisfied with his lot until he marries Peony Jackson, a student, who predicts a brilliant future for him.

IX

The Dean of Kinnikinick College, Dean Gideon Planish — he was a new dean; in the fall of 1926, he had been so exalted for only a year—had almost finished the annual plague of straightening out undergraduate schedules. He was looking amiably at a thin girl with curly hair and troubled eyes and he was chuckling.

"This won't do, Miss Janes. Your schedule is badly unbalanced. Three courses in literature! I never heard of such a thing! 'Advanced English Poetry' and 'The History of the Novel' and 'Chaucer and Spencer.' What do you plan to do? Teach?"

"I don't think so."

"What, then? Newspaper work? Write yarns?"

"I'm engaged to be married after I graduate."

"Then, good Lord, what do you want to take all this books-and-reading for? They're no good for running a household. What is the idea, anyway?"

"I don't think I have any. I just like to read."

"Well, I don't suppose there's any real objection to your taking a lot of literature and stuff if you enjoy it!"

As she went out and left him in peace, in his handsome new office with its partitions of oak and clouded glass, its portraits of Prof. Edward Lee Thorndike and President Coolidge, he congratulated himself on having been so generous and so suave with her.

Dean Gideon Planish thought pretty well of literature. He was an expert in all its branches, and though he preferred the bright hard rocks of Oratory in the literary landscape, he could pinch-hit any time for the regular instructors in metaphysical poetry or commercial correspondence or the rules of play-construction, and he had a fascinating theory that Shakespeare was written by Queen Elizabeth. He knew all about teaching literature in both of its aspects—as an incentive to morality and as an aid to earning a living. He had figures to prove that he could increase the vocabularies of freshmen 39.73 per cent in nine months.

As dean and as the readiest speaker in Kinnikinick, he had constantly to enlighten the public on such problems as the recent Women's Suffrage Amendment, the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, the progress of the Weimar Republic, the heroic heart of the martyred president, Mr. Harding, the Florida Land Boom (in which the Dean had lost $100 that he badly needed for payments on Peony's new piano), the pedagogical significance of the fact that Bryn Mawr was permitting students to smoke within the college, and, always, the crisis of Flaming Youth: gin flasks and giggling from automobiles parked in darkness and such dancing as had not been seen since the Serpent and Mother Eve.

Dean Planish was, as his proprietor, President Bull, frequently told the press, a philosopher and a leader of humanitarianism. The dean said right out that regretable though the Flaming and the Petting and the Bootlegging were, there was less danger in yielding to them than in talking about them or in writing about them. He hated to encounter students who jeered at all that was sturdy and helpful in literature, and called their cultural murders "experiments." He sometimes said that he would rather see his daughter lying dead at his feet than reading callous innovations like Dreiser and Sherwood Anderson, and as his daughter was only 3 years old now, it may be seen that he felt pretty strongly on the subject.

He smiled to himself at his desk. Yes, he could fairly be called "the fighting philosopher." But what was he doing here in Kinnikinick, wasting his time listening over and over to the same dreary bleatings from successive flocks of students, when he ought to be out in the world, battling for civic righteousness? That's what his wife Peony kept asking, and, reflected the Dean, she was dead right.

The Planishes' rented house was the first of the charming small white houses, cheerful and clean and realistic, with wide clapboards and built-in garage and automatic oil heat, that had been erected in Kinnikinick.

The weary Dean came up to it, admiring the small sleek lawn—mowed by Peony before breakfast; inspired by the crazy-pattern of the walk—the stones had been picked out by Peony; impressed by the white-painted solid oak door—Peony had repainted it after the workmen had made a botch. He edged the door open and remarked, "Oo-hoo!"

His wife answered, "Oo-hoo!" How's the baby?"

"Oh, she's just dandy—she's swell—she's just slick—she's so cute. Want to see her? But first—

Peony led him by hand through the small living room. She stopped in front of their major treasure, the Chinese Chippendale cabinet, a splendor of gold and scarlet and carved Mandarins, which they had bought in Chicago on their honeymoon, and which had cost approximately 10 times what they could afford. As always, she breathed, "Isn't it slick! It's the swellest cabinet I ever saw!" and as always, he agreed, "Certainly is; it lights up the room like a house afire."

She led him on into their bedroom, with its wallpaper of silver sailboats on a green sea, and its twin beds, of which one was more hollowed than the other. She led him to the farthest corner, as though it were a secret niche, and kissed him convulsively. There was in their young and parochial love something dark and hidden and fierce, dissolving him to water.

She led him to the second bedroom. It had been planned as a guest-room—here, Father and Mother Jackson would often be staying. But Father and Mother Jackson had, after a surprisingly short period, been compelled to stay at the Kinnikinick Inn, for this had become the place scared to the baby.

At the age of 3, Carrie Planish was cheerful and active, a genuine grocers'-calendar baby.

Carrie was likely to be darker than either of her parents, and more slender.

She rose from her business interests—nine leaden soldiers, a decayed doll, and a water-color portrait of the family cat—she sprinted across the floor and yelled, "Doddy!"

"That's a darn smart baby, Carrie is," the Dean said,, as they returned to the living room. "She'll be a dean of women; some day."

"She will like hell! "She'll be a contented wife and mother. Like me."

"What's the plans for supper? You didn't tell me to bring anything home."

"Nope. It's the hired girl's night out, and we're going batting. I've got Mrs. Hilp coming, to take care of baby. We're going to drive down to Mabel Grove and eat at the Appleton House."

"That's swell—fine and daddy," said the purist.

Their car was a powerful new Maxwell, with a maximum speed of not much less than 48 miles an hour. The Dean was behind on his payments on the car but only a month or two.

They swung south into the rolling cornland.

Looking At Life - - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

IN THE village of Purchase, some 20 miles out of New York City, William W. Wilson, caretaker of the Community House, dropped dead on Christmas Eve.

He had played the part of Santa Claus at the village children's Christmas party in the afternoon and still wore part of the costume when he died.

Now here is why I am telling you this story. In the local paper the next day appeared this notice:

"Because of his death, a Girl Scout party and all other Christmas activities at the Community House have been cancelled."

You see, that is America!

William Wilson was the caretaker of the Community House in Purchase.

Purchase is probably the country's wealthiest village, or at least one of them. Great estates are within its borders and some of New York's finest country clubs.

The Community House was built by the wealthy. It was built for all the residents of Purchase.

There are all sorts of activities in that community house and there the millionaires mingle with the gardeners, the caretakers, the firemen, the chauffeurs.

So when William Wilson died, it made no difference what his position, his bank account, his social standing.

William Wilson was a resident of Purchase and as such his community honored him.

THAT is America, you see, the real America which still exists in hundreds of towns and villages all over the country.

It is the America that doesn't give a fig about your ancestors or your club memberships or your wealth or your broad A's.

It's the America that judges you by your value to your community, your standing as a citizen, your desirability as a neighbor and friend.

William Wilson, the caretaker, was a poor man.

But he was a Boy Scout leader and an air raid warden and an auxiliary policeman.

He did whatever he could for his family, his country and his community.

So when he died "all activities at the Community House have been cancelled."

Honor to those who honor an honorable man!

The News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

ATTORNEY GENERAL FRANCIS BIDDLE'S order that his criminal division investigate the CIO committee for political action with a view to possible prosecution represents the worst double-cross labor friends of the White House have ever suffered, in the opinion of the prospective defendants.

Naturally, they associate the move with Philip Murray's denunciation of FDR's proposed National Service act as "quack medicine".

For four months Murray's partisan machinery has been operating. Field workers have collected huge sums from the auto, steel, maritime and electrical workers. They have set up regional offices and staffs, made numerous commitments and have been far busier than either the Democratic or Republican National committees.

But government watchdogs showed no interest in this activity until the day after Mr. Murray had lashed out against the chief executive's new "economic bill of rights."

The victims regard the belated inquiry as a reprisal, maintaining that they had received private assurances from D. of J. officials that they were "within the law."

FUND: The history of the CIO ballot-box subsidiary indicates that it had the blessing of the administration until the snowy-haired Irishman's bitter comment suggested that even this leftist unit might oppose or at least grow cool to a fourth term attempt. Here is the record:

When the Smith-Connally act forbade unions to contribute to federal candidates—as John L. Lewis did when he gave $500,000 to New Dealers in 1936—the CIO counsel, Lee Pressman, evolved a smart scheme for getting under the legal wire.

He and Sidney Hillman established the committee with Mr. Hillman as chairman. Both of these engineers have been loyal Rooseveltians and held positions of trust under the President. Simultaneously they let it be known that they would endorse him next fall, provided that he woes not wholly scrap his liberal doctrines.

Mr. Hillman boasted that he had raised a fund of $750,000 and would use it effectively in the national election.

WHITEWASH: Mr. Pressman intimated that there would be no violation of the statute if the CIO-ers kept aloof from federal office-seekers and parties. He ruled that the outfit could frame a general program and then urge members and friends to vote for individuals who agreed to support the principles. Naturally, the committee planned to provide issues that would appeal to radical Democrats. Few Republicans could expect its backing.

The new organization proceeded to staff its main office with White House henchmen, engaging C. B. Baldwin, former head of the Farm Security administration, and ex-Rep. Jim McKeough of Illinois. The group intended to draft several more statute operators from government ranks.

The attorney general may eventually determine that the Hillman-Pressman setup is within bounds. But the adverse publicity will damage its cause. If he does rule in favor of the CIO, his decision will call forth charges of a whitewash.

MOMENTUM: At this late date Thomas E. Dewey has become a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination because he believes that Franklin D. Roosevelt can be defeated. That why the New York governor is actually eager for the honor, although he deems it smarter strategy to let his friends characterize him as merely "receptive."

The man in Albany has been slow in discerning FDR's vulnerability. Even after last fall's contests, in which the Democrats suffered serious reverses, he told callers that he preferred to sidestep until 1948. But in writing and in conversation he has informed the curious within the last month, that, in his opinion, the chief executive cannot be re-elected.

Mr. Dewey's viewpoint may have greater significance than estimates by professional pollers, by GOP chairman Harrison E. Spangler's aides or even by FDR's scouts. As a prospective opponent, it is vital for the New Yorker to seek a realistic and unprejudices answer to the question of whether or not he could win. If he is as many a politico as most people believe him to be, he will not kid himself. That would be fatal.

Anyway, anti-Willkie Republicans are proceeding on the theory that he will be available and the Dewey-for-President movement will gather more momentum than it has ever picked up before. Best bet for the vice presidential spot at present appears to be Gov. Earl Warren of California, although Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio has considerable strength for second place if he will take it.

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Loman

EYEWITNESS descriptions of conditions in the Reich are given by representatives of Swedish iron, pulp and lumber firms.

Their salesmen recently visited the belligerent neighbor following the new trade treaty betwen Stockholm and Berlin. Parts of their confidential reports were forwarded to New York banks.

The Boche capital is so badly wrecked that one can travel for two or three miles on many boulevards without finding a remaining house.

After an Anglo-American assault, boys' clubs and bands of Russian prisoners are dispatched to repair public utilities such as water mains, telephone lines etc. Volunteer squads of merchants are assigned to fight fires.

Furniture is so difficult to replace that, at the height of a blitz, residents will risk death from bombs and flames merely to rescue a bed or a table. At the moment of the all-clear householders begin to cover shattered windows with boards; glass cannot be obtained and this Winter is unusually cold.

Reopened shops maintain barter departments for secondhand clothing. Each possible customer must contribute some article of apparel. Values are assessed by government officials.

JUNKERS: The Swedes inform us that it is futile to expect the Germans to collapse at this stage of the war. People react as Londoners behaved in the Battle of Britain. When hope is gone, morale may crack. But at present Reich neighbors encourage one another with gossip about a secret weapon which will destroy the Americans and the British—and save the Fatherland.

It is hinted that this device is a non-poisonous gas bomb which absorbs all the oxygen of a limited area, thus causing victims to lose consciousness or to choke to death. Similar contraptions are said to have been tried in Sevastopol where they rendered Soviet fortress troops senseless.

The innovation has not yet been used against the western Allies because the Nazi High Command fears it would be mistaken for old-fashioned gas and would invite severe retaliation.

Chief dissatisfaction against the present German regime is found among farmers. They were forced to work exceptionally hard even before 1939. Their womenfolk resent the presence of foreign hands in their fields and they live in terror of uprisings.

Small owners believe that the ousting of the Brownshirts will also mean the end of the large estate system. In the reshuffle of land they hope to acquire acreage now belonging to the Junker class.

(Copyright McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

Most of our national political and economic ills result from efforts to pacify vociferous complaining minorities.

The GOP seems to be having considerable difficulty in finding presidential timber which isn't warped or cracked.

Another vicious circle; Fools are making lots of money these days, and money is making lots of fools.

Allied bombers give many Germans the hotfoot by boiling the asphalt in the streets of Berlin.

On Being A REAL PERSON

BY DR. HARRY EMERSON FOSDICK

'Face-Savers' Always Condemn Sins Of Others, But Ignore Own

AS Emerson said, "That which we call sin in others is experiment for us."

Where others lie, we are clever; where others cheat, we are shrewd and canny; where others are badtempered, we are righteously indignant; judging others, we would call their conduct selfish; judging ourselves, we call it practical.

Nowhere is this manipulation of names to avoid self-blame more frequent than in the sexual realm. Many a woman who, judging others, would call what they are doing downright adultery, when judging herself calls it idealistic romance. All of us are tempted to act on emotion or self-interest and then call what we have done by the best name possible.

In personal relationships this alibi-habit commonly takes the form of face-saving. One of the deepest impulses in human life is self-defense. Without it the race could not have survived. Nevertheless, its perversions are notorious. We do not wish to be put in the wrong; face-saving becomes the primary concern in all cases of personal conflict, and almost automatically we throw the blame on others in order to protect ourselves.

WHEN God charged Adam with disobedience in eating the apple, Adam said, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat." When God accused the woman, she said, "The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat." What we call "passing the buck" is an ancient process.

Modern psychology has a word for this, "projection." We accuse others of the faults and follies we are most tempted to ourselves. The bully thinks the world is full of bullies; the debauchee thinks hardly anybody decent; the liar says all men are liars. One of the simplest ways of avoiding unhappy criticism of our own faults is to discover and denounce similar shortcomings in others. Or we defend ourselves by charging others not with the same delinquencies we are guilty of, but with attitudes that explain, excuse, and justify our own. From an irascible father who always can discover in the children plenty to excuse his petulant temper, to a paranoiac who sees in others threats of violence that justify his own violent desires, the face-savers find scapegoats everywhere.

IN few ways, therefore, do men more clearly reveal themselves than in their characteristic condemnations of others. This explains certain types of fanatical reformers who try to clean up the world in the very areas where they never have been able to clean up themselves; it explains a good deal of prudishness and censoriousness where people cover up their own ruppressed difficulties by holy wrath against others' sins in the same realm; and it explains a large number of people who Compound for Sins, they are inclin'd to;

By damning those they have no mind to.

Jesus' ethic is founded on sound psychology: "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged. . . . And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye?"

Indian Marine Gets Couple Of Snipers, Using Only A Knife

BOUGAINVILLE, (U.P.) — (Delayed)—The lore which is part of his ancestry enabled Marine Private First Class Billy Odell, 32, of Crystal, N. Mex., to kill without firing a shot two Jap snipers who had pinned down a detail of Marines after slightly wounding one man.

Billy is a full-blooded Indian as coppery-hued as any of his tribal ancestors who roamed the old Arizona territory.

He made his kills the first day the Marines landed here, but it took me until yesterday to catch up with him.

The squad with which Pfc. Odell pushed forward from the beach suddenly met rapid rifle fire which spat bullets over, around, and into them. It was difficult to draw the story from Billy,but finally he stopped his work of coiling communications wire and related:

"Several of us scattered and took off after the snipers. I crawled to the rear of the pair of them—they didn't even know I was near. Boy, I guess you know the time I spent outdoors in other years sure helped me then.

"I jumped on the first one, grabbed him by his jacket collar and pulled his head around to me. He tried to holler but I had my knife into his neck before he could do more than gurgle.

"I sneaked around to the other one who was less than 20 yards away and jumped him just as he turned around. I had to stab him twice."

Asked if the Japs were "big"—of the imperial Marine variety—Billy just shrugged, exposed his white teeth in a wide grin and said:

"Naw, they were only about so high," Measuring about five feet from the ground with his hand.

The sea is our richest source of animal proteins, vitamins and minerals which livestock must have to be healthy, productive and fast-growing.

STANTON'S 18% LAYING MASH

skilled and aggressive," a headquarters spokesman said. He emphasized that the nature of enemy air action against Allied planes indicated that the enemy airforce still has much of its first team still in combat.

Thunderbolt, Lightning and Kittyhawk fighters tangled with the Japanese interceptors over Wewak, and the formations broke into small fighting clusters from 6,000 to 26,000 feet above the ground.

The Liberators laid their bombs on Boram, and when the big planes departed large explosions were mushrooming from the supply dumps and the entire area was covered with smoke which rose 5,000 feet and could be seen for 90 miles.

In the Ramu valley, inland and south of another Japanese New Guinea coastal base at Madang, medium and divebombers dumped 70 tons of explosives on enemy positions along the upper Faria river.

This was the second consecutive communique report of bombing raids along the Faria river, in the area where Australian jungle fighters are working toward Bogadjim and the Madang base.

Australian troops moving up the Huon peninsula coast, New Guinea, toward the American invasion force around Saidor continued mopping up Japanese stragglers in the Sio area and also captured more enemy equipment.

Ten enemy barges were destroyed or damaged in Allied strafing sweeps along the coasts of New Britain, near Rein bay and Arawe, on the north and south side of the island, respectively.

DAWN OF DISASTER FOR JAPS—With ever-increasing frequency, scenes like this are being enacted in the southwest Pacific as Allied forces step up the pace of their drive against Jap-held islands. Taken through the porthole of a Coast Guard-manned combat transport during a dawn invasion of a Jap stranghold, it shows landing craft circling the transport, their coxswains awaiting orders to come alongside, pick up troops and speed them to the invasion shore. —(U. Condition of E. L. Klett, local attorney, who has been ill with pneumonia was said to be "improved" Thursday night.

Another crowd of an estimated 1,500 persons Thursday night heard Gypsy Smith, jr., noted evangelist, speak on repentance at the First Baptist church auditorium. Wiring of the church annex for sound will enable accommodation of a greater audience tonight, it was announced. Mr. Smith will not speak Saturday or Sunday morning but will resume his talks Sunday night. Pastors of the churches cooperating in sponsoring the revival will fill their respective pulpits Sunday morning.

Fire which spread from a fire place did slight damage to the H. W. Wiley residence, 1705 Twenty-ninth street, about 10 o'clock Thursday night, firemen said. Firemen also answered a call to north Avenue H at 4:25 o'clock yesterday, where grass was on fire.

Battle For Airfields

To a considerable degree this has been a battle for airfields out here. It has been a matter of taking airfields from the Japs or cutting out our own fields inland at points where we need fighter bases. The key to much of the war out here is the struggle to push our fighter planes forward to cover all kinds of operations, whether landings, ship movements or the flights of transport planes.

New Guinea is the second largest island in the world—the size of Germany, France and England combined. The Japs, once 30 miles from Port Moresby, now hold only a fringe along the north coast. The Australians and Americans have fought under exhausting conditions. Some of them have been in it for two years.

The war in the air has been a similarly long and heavy haul. Recently one flier was promoted after 215 missions. Two air force generals have been killed going on missions, which is why Maj. Gen. Ennis C. Whitehead, deputy commander of the Fifth Air force, was grounded last July by General MacArthur after going on 35 to 50 missions himself.

ed in that area, the communique said.

Early today the Moscow radio also said:

"The Germans have been driven far away from Leningrad. German forces are bleeding profusely. They are panic-stricken under the threatening tentacle of a mighty Soviet Army of retribution."

Of the German victims of the advance which already has swept more than 10 miles west of Novgorod far to the south, the Soviet broadcast said: "Falling back hastily they cannot hope ot stem the onslaught of our troops, nor stand up to the deluge of artillery fire rained on their heads."

Twin Successes In North

In the twin successes of the north the Russians said their troops on the Leningrad front in six days had killed 25,000 Germans and captured 1,000. This hiked the German dead 5,000 above the 20,000 killed announced by Moscow Wednesday.

An additional 15,000 Germans were slain and 3,000 captured by General Meretskov's armies of the Volkhov front, Moscow said.

Leningrad itself rapidly was being liberated from a partial but heavy German threat which has existed since the Russians out a supply corridor through to Russia's second city a year ago.

Soviet troops now have hurled the Germans back 15 or more miles from the city's outskirts, overrunning artillery batteries which had been methodically shelling it.

North of Alekuila the Russians were surrounding and wiping out scattered groups of Germans who had been holding a corridor running to the Gulf of Finland at a point southwest of Leningrad.

The same thing was happening in the forests west of captured Novgorod, far to the south, the bulletin said. Russian troops were less than 30 miles from Batetskaya, whose seizure would plug one of the escape hatches for the huge German forces below Leningrad.

Hit-Run Driver

ed most logical, the death car is presumed to have careened northward around the northeast corner of the Tenth and R intersection from the east.

Berry probably had walked to the intersection from the north, on Avenue R, and likely was crossing the Tenth and R intersection eastward to board a westbound bus soon due, or had crossed the intersection and stepped out into Tenth street to see if the bus were in sight.

Soldier Finds Body

1st. Sgt. Samuel B. Morris of the Texas Technological college Engineering school, who lives at 1801 Sixth street, arrived at the Tenth and R intersection at 7 o'clock and found Berry's body 15 feet from the northeast corner of the intersection.

Having spent eight years in the medical detachment of the U. S. Army, he realized quickly how serious were Berry's injuries, and dragged him to the curb and asked Mrs. Johnnie Hill, who also had arrived to take the bus, to call officials.

Sgt. Morris informed Walter Davies, coroner, and other officials that Berry gasping, died as he was laid near the curb.

Chest Crushed

Among his possessions was an identification card that had been issued March 22, 1943, by Capt. Gordon Treadaway, intelligence officer of Lubbock Army Air field, indicating that Berry then worked at the LAAF post cleaners.

Investigators said no witness had been found who "heard any sound at the intersection about that time of morning."

Berry is survived by his widow; a son, Marvin, of Lubbock; three brothers, W. T. and R. R. Berry, both of Fort Worth, and C. M. Berry of Vernon, and a sister, Mrs. Lizzie Justin of Vernon. He had moved here two years ago from Amherst.

Davies said last night that he wished to talk to another witness before returning a verdict.

Campaign Details

Wright, Boyd and A. B. Davis, manager of the chamber of commerce, spoke briefly and emphasized that each committee is to work out the details of the campaign in its particular area.

They stressed, however, the importance of the effort to contact personally every individual in the county to urge the purchase of war bonds during the campaign, which will come to a close Feb. 15. Each area committee is to name the subcommittees needed for conducting the drive. Necessary supplies were distributed to the chairmen.

Boyd announced his willingness to arrange bond programs for any of the districts desiring them. Programs already arranged are for Roosevelt school the night of Jan. 26 and for Cooper school Feb. 2.

Radio Programs

The rural chairmen reported also that, starting Feb. 1, children in each of the rural schools will be given opportunity to present a 15-minute program over KFYO. These have been set tentatively for 3:30 p. m. on consecutive afternoons, starting Feb. 1.

General Chairman Wright reported that preparations are continuing for the campaign in the city. A meeting of the executive committee has been called for 9:30 o'clock this morning in the chamber of commerce to discuss further plains.

Station Robbed By Lone Gunman

A door slammed in his face by J. A. Long, operator of a service station at Nineteenth street and Avenue M, Thursday night did not discourage a hijacker from further operators, for around an hour and a half later he held up at gun point Ray Balch, night attendant at the Onyx Service station at Seventh street and College Avenue and forced Balch to give him the $50.43 in the station's cash register.

The hijacker, who appeared to be around 24, with brown hair and brown "snapping" eyes, showed up at Long's station about 8:30 o'clock as Long was taking the day's receipts out of the cash register. Long, about 55, told police the man appeared just outside the half-closed door to the station and pointed a gun at him, saying "give me that money." Long refused and the gunman ordered him to bring the money outside.

Quickly Slam Door

Long acted as though he was going to comply, walked toward the door and quickly slammed it in the hijacker's face. The gunman then fled.

Balch related to officers that the hijacker slipped into the College Avenue station while he was working on a bottled drink cooler, and ordered: "Come over here and open this —— —— cash register." Balch heard the click as the gun was cocked and did as he was told.

The gunman fled on foot from both stations and apparently was operating alone.

Bill Gamblin is operator of the station, police said.

Youth Accidentally Shot In Shoulder

Bobby Ray Stevenson, 15, stepson of Bill Drake, city employe of Slaton, was admitted at Lubbock General hospital about 8 o'clock Thursday night suffering from a gunshot wound in his right shoulder. Hospital attendants said that the bullet had lodged in his shoulder underneath the shoulder blade. His condition was said to be "good."

Reports indicated that Stevenson was visiting at the home of a friend, Billy Martin, 16, of Slaton, and that the youths were "playing" with a .32 caliber pistol which was thought to be unloaded. Martin was holding the weapon when it accidentally discharged striking the Stevenson youth.

Berlin Hit Again

Allied air attack on the outskirts of the Italian capital at 2:30 p. m. yesterday — the second in two days—and said the assault caused heavy damage and many dead and wounded.

Thus, for the first time in the war Rome and Berlin were reported hammered by Allied air forces on the same day.

Prague, Warsaw Dark

An indication of either the size or the scope of the RAF night operations was seen in the fact that broadcasting stations at Prague and Warsaw were among those included in the continental radio blackout.

In declaring that waves of Allied planes smashed the Prenestina, Porta and Maggiore quarters of Rome, the Nazi-controlled Rome radio said the attack was directed at the important Termini railroad yards. These were badly smashed in the first attacks on the Italian capital but since then have been reported partially repaired and again being used to help service the German armies fighting on the Italian front.

Fighting In Italy

was no indication from Allied sources that American units were involved in the new offensive.)

Rome Isolated From North

For the third straight day the entire Allied air forces—Strategic as well as Tactical—concentrated on destroying Nazi airfields and communications in Italy. Rome was isolated from the north bay railway, and German airfields were subjected to such terrific aerial barrages that the Germans had scarcely any fighter strength left to combat the waves of Flying Fortresses, Liberators and medium bombers.

It was disclosed that Marauders destroyed 30 Nazi planes in an attack on a single enemy airdrome, and this was only an incident in the all-out campaign to paralyze the Germans from the air and thus lighten the task of Allied ground forces in their drive on Rome. The only north-south railroad still operating in central Italy was said to be one along the Adriatic coast.

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

The Red Army's capture of Novogorod, central defensive stronghold in the lower Volkhov, strongly suggests that a line-shortening German retreat is under way from the upper Lovat river in the south to the Baltic coast in the north.

Novogorod is one of the twin keys to the critical center of the German Army's Baltic flank. The other is Staraya Russa, just south of Lake Ilmen, now exposed to Russian flanking thrusts at the Shimsk junction communications center, and already in danger of being cut off in the rear.

SIMPSON

Moscow reports indicate that the Russians are promptly expanding both southward and westward from Novogorod. They are within 30 miles of Shimsk down the rail and road system skirting the western rim of Lake Ilmen. Its capture would isolate Staraya Russa except for the Staraya Russa-Dno-Pskov railroad which also is threatened.

Possible Entrapment

Complete lifting of the Leningrad seige, possible entrapment of German forces between Leningrad and Lake Ilmen and a wide-based central jab to split the Nazi Baltic front apart to the Piepus lake chain, the indicated first objectives of the mighty Russian attack in the north.

With loss of the essential Novogorod anchorage, however, the whole German front in Russia from the marshes of the Pripet to the Baltic is endangered.

Holds Fate Of Other Areas

Fall of the Lake Ilmen bastion in the north center through Russian recapture of Staraya Russa as well as Novogorod must necessarily carry with it the Nazi front southward, including Vitebsk and Orsha, Mobilev and Rogachev bridgeheads, last Nazi footholds on the upper Dnieper.

With the Novogorod strong point lost, the whole German center on the Baltic flank is threatened with collapse. Russian spearheads already must be forging westward down the Novogorod-Luga escape route alone left open to the fleeing Nazi garrison when Novogorod was cut off to the north and south.

Last North-South Line

An advance of less than 50 miles westward on that line would cut the last north-south connection for German forces in the Leningrad and upper Volkhov theaters except for the Pskov-Narva line just east of the Peipus lake chain. Nor is there any indicated strong natural defense front for a new Nazi stand to be picked out on the maps east of the Peipus lakes.

The Nazi high command failed utterly to read the portents at Stalingrad aright a year ago, and lost an Army. The indications are strong in the Ukraine and the Dnieper bend it has again failed to fall back in time to escape very grave entrapment dangers hovering over the whole German Black sea flank.

New Industry Cited At Club's Luncheon

Lubbock Kiwanis club members, in a meeting Thursday noon in Lubbock hotel, were entertained by I. D. Walker, oil well drilling clay representative, who cited a new industry for the South Plains which has the possibility of contributing much to the growth of the area.

The industry is the mining of native clay, which is at present used in the scientific control of drilling fluids in oil wells.

Up until several years ago, drilling clay was brought into this area by the carloads, an expensive process but since then three places have been discovered on the South Plains where the clay can be mined, Walker revealed. One of the mines, about 35 miles south of Lubbock, yields 300 to 400 tons of the clay per week. Other mines are located in Yoakum county and near Silverton in Briscoe county.

Use of the clay permits drilling contractors to sink oil tests without the use of casing, Walker pointed out, but declared that clay not fit for this purpose has great possibilities for building material, the making of pottery, etc. along with the clay use in the oil operations.

Lt. Homer Maxey, back from the southwest Pacific, was a guest of his father at the luncheon and spoke briefly at the close of the program. He declared it was "a great sense of security to know that you had the aircraft above" in the landings he made in the invasions and said supplies and equipment being received in the area were second to none.

He declared the Jap was considered more like an animal than a human being after you'd been in the area any length of time. He praised our allies and our leadership which has but "one thought in mind—to defeat the enemy and do it with the minimum of casualties."

Moisture Offsets Winter's Damage

AUSTIN, Jan. 20. (AP)—Crop damage from cold weather in Texas' winter commercial vegetable growing areas during the first half of January was considerably offset by an abundance of moisture, the United States Department of Agriculture reported today.

The weather was generally unfavorable for progress of crops during the period, however.

A cold wave that set in Jan. 8 lasted through Jan. 15 with one short period of moderation. Temperatures ranged as low as 23 in the winter garden area; 27 in the west end of the lower Rio Grande valley; 26 in the interior of the coastal bend; 19 in the Austin commercial spinach area.

Rain Follows Cold

Rainfall in the coastal bend followed the cold wave.

The renewed cold wave, the last three days of the week was accompanied by a heavy snow in the Austin-San Antonio area to light snows reaching as far west as the Eagle Pass spinach and onion area with flurries in the coastal bend.

Losses of hardy crops the early part of the week were negligible but temperatures the latter part of the week had not moderated sufficently to determine the extent of damage. Crops progress was definitely delayed and harvesting activities were stopped in all areas.

Most of the shipments during the past week were from shed supplies; harvest was being resumed on Jan. 14-15 in the lower valley section.

Dixon Rests At Isle Of Capri, But . . .

Quietude And Comforts Are Too Much, Sleep Vanishes

By KENNETH L. DIXON
Associated Press Staff Writer

THE ISLE OF CAPRI, Jan. 16. (Delayed)—It is true what they say about Capri.

It is the isle of peace, this fantastically beautiful dot in the Mediterranean just beyond the Bay of Naples. It is the isle of the Sirens, the Tritons and the Caesars.

It is the isle of song and legend, of villas on the hills, of poets and artists and authors—the isle of the blue grotto.

But more than anything else right now it is the isle of clean, cool sheets, soft mattresses, breakfast in bed and the place that war passed by.

And now I can't sleep.

Silly But It's True

It's silly, but that's the truth.

In the past few months I've slept on steel decks of ships, on the ground, stretched out in Flying Fortresses, in the back of trucks. I've slept in the mud and the rain, in stables, tents and even managed to catch a few winks in slit trenches.

But the mattress and the sheets here at the Morgano hotel, high on Capri's hillside, must be too much. I climbed into them two hours ago but now I'm back up, tired and sleepy, but unable to sleep. I've been pacing the balcony overlooking the Mediterranean trying to figure out what's wrong.

Mickey McGuire (Lt. Charles W. McGuire of Londonville, Ohio) is probably right. He said this afternoon that sometimes the soldiers who take a brief holiday from war and come over here can't relax for the first night because the transition is too terrific.

Funicular Railway

Or maybe its the quiet. I noticed it first on the little funicular railway which pulls you up from the harbor to the village square.

Looking down over the hillside thick with flowers and orange groves, over the bay and across to Vesuvius in the distance, it was so quiet I could hear the donkey's hooves clapping over the cobblestones a block down the narrow streets.

It is so quiet now that I can hear the chimes in the clock tower in the square far below this balcony. It chimes every quarter hour, which is a laugh here on Capri, where time doesn't mean a thing.

But in the stillness it sounds louder than an artillery barrage. Hank Turner and Pat Oliver were telling at supper how the sound bothered some of the visiting soldiers so much the other night that they organized a "clapper commando" outfit to steal the bell's clappers.

Wasn't Right One

Hank is Lt. Henry W. Turner, a P-40 pilot from Douglas, Wyoming. Pat is Eleanor Oliver, a Red Cross girl from Hastings-On-Hudson, N. Y.

"They got one clapper," Hank grinned, emphasizing the word "they."

"But it wasn't the right one. The chimes kept going all night."

Maybe it's the chimes that's keeping me awake.

But more than likely its just a fear that when I do go to sleep I won't wake up until noon tomorrow.

And even though time doesn't mean a thing on the Isle of Capri, I'm not going to miss my only chance for the duration of having breakfast in bed, if I have to stay up all night.

Texan On Ninth Raid On Germans Missing

A U. S. FORTRESS BASE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 20. (AP)—Second Lt. Jack McGough of Marshall, Tex., was making his ninth raid as the bombardier of a Flying Fortress when his plane was shot down over France Jan. 5 while returning from an attack on airfields at Bordeaux and Tours.

The fort was piloted by Lt. Glenn B. Johnson of Cameron, W. Va.

The formation wheeled from its target into a half-hour running battle with more than 50 German fighters.

Several Fortresses were seen in trouble, dropping out of formation, but none of the nearby planes saw what happened to the crippled giants.

"None of us saw any parachutes go out," one gunner said, "but they might have — or the ships might have made emergency landings. We were too busy taking care of ourselves to watch others very closely."

POLISH FIGHTING REPORTED

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—The Polish telegraph agency said today that Polish underground forces had penetrated into East Prussia, in Germany, and "inflicted heavy casualties on Nazi troops in a series of battles which lasted several days."

Timber Salvage Set In East Texas Area

HOUSTON, Jan. 20. (AP)—"Timber salvage for victory" will be the keynote of operations in central East Texas woodlands during the next two months as a result of the recent ice storm, tabbed by federal and state forest service as the worst in the area's history, E. A. Heers, timber production war project forester of the U. S. Forest service, said today.

Anticipating a fire hazard, the forest services are repairing telephone communications in readiness for drying winds that may follow the storm.

Rangers on at least three of the four East Texas national forests are surveying the damage to determine what salvage measures will be needed.

Private mill operators with timber holding likewise are considering salvage operations, Heers said. The bulk of early timber salvage operations will take place on small, privately-owned tracts.

Rayburn Warns On Fascism, Demands 'Peace Of Plenty'

CHICAGO, Jan. 20 (U.P.)—House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D., Tex., warning against possible post-war fascism in America, today called on public officials, business men, labor and agriculture to aid congress in planning a "peace of plenty."

Addressing the United States conference of mayors, Rayburn announced the formation of a special House committee on post-war fact finding to accumulate information, recommend policy and propose legislation.

As "consultants," he said, the committee would call in officials of the federal government, and for "agents in the field" it would depend "primarily on you, the mayors of this nation's cities, on governors, county agents, labor and agricultural organizations and business groups."

People's Planning Board

Rayburn said the committee would serve as a people's planning board by drawing into a common pool vital facts on conversion, reemployment, allocation of materials, public works, foreign trade, release of surplus war commodities and the postwar value of existing laws.

Urging all groups to "get into one harness and pull together," the 62-year-old Texan spoke in terms both of warning and of hope.

He said if the nation bungled the postwar job—"if we allow the spectre of depression to rise once more"—the people would eventually turn to a strong centralized government.

"What then?" he asked. "Will the American people be so fortunate as to find another man as great, as democratic minded, as Franklin D. Roosevelt to lead them through the crisis? Or will the 'man on the horse,' the 'man with the iron fist,' seize controls?"

Turning, however to the "astounding accomplishment" of the nation's war program, he demanded, "Who now will say there is anything we cannot do?

"Who believes that there is anything impossible for 135,000,000 people applying their skill to the vast resources of this continent?"

He said he chose the conference of mayors to announce his proposal because "no group of public men in the United States is more intimately concerned with the problems attendant on the return of industry to peacetime production and the reemployment of men."

Heartening Situation

"This is a heartening meeting," he declared. "It proves that we do not intend to bring our soldiers back from the agonies of foxholes and plunge them into the heartaches of unemployment."

He said that reduced to simplest terms, the problems of tomorrow consist of three component parts — men, materials and tools.

"If we can bring these three component parts together at precisely the right moment . . . the great backlog of civilian needs and public works requirements, together with the gradual reopening of foreign markets will do the rest.

"It is at once as simple and as complex as that."

Distribution Of Rat Poison Heavy Here

More than 200 half-pound packages of free rat poison were distributed at the city hall Thursday in the closing effort of the Junior chamber of commerce rat eradication campaign which has been in progress in business and industrial areas since November.

The distribution will continue today, from 9 a. m. until noon and from 1 until 5 p. m. The poison is available to anyone requesting it in a storeroom opening on the back hallway of the first floor of the city hall. Pete Bentley is in charge of the distribution.

Indications are, he reported, that the supply should last through the day. However, when the supply is gone, no more will be available. The poison is described as being a type deadly to rats, but harmless to poultry, pets and humans. Instructions on its use are printed on each package.

C. Of C. Pleased At Parade Invitation

Officials of the chamber of commerce will accept with "appreciation and pleasure" the parade and review to be dedicated to citizens of Lubbock by the 309th College Training Detachment (aircrew) on the parade grounds at Texas Technological college Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, officials of the chamber said Thursday.

Officials and directors of the chamber have received an invitation from Lt. Col. F. M. Monroe, commanding officer, to occupy the reviewing stand during the ceremonies.

This invitation is being transmitted to the entire membership of the chamber of commerce who are invited, along with everyone else in the city and area, to be present.

The parade has been arranged, Colonel Monroe explained, as an expression of appreciation for many kindnesses received from the people of Lubbock by the personnel of one of the largest college training detachments in the entire nation.

Woman's Magazine Writer, On 11,000-Mile Shopping Tour, Buys Almost Anything She Wants At Black Markets Over Nation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (U.P.) — On an 11,000-mile shopping tour, with a pocketful of money but no ration stamps, Patricia Lochridge of the staff of Woman's Home Companion bought 90 pounds of meat, dozens of cans of processed foods, sugar and shoes, nylon stockings and alarm clocks at the black markets of the nation.

Writing in the current issue of the magazine, Miss Lochridge declared that America's black market had neither social nor economic boundaries. In poor neighborhoods and rich, she said, she found people purchasing all types of controlled commodities without regard to ration points or ceiling prices.

Banker Sells Nylons

She discovered a bank president in a southern city who sold nylons to his best depositors for $5 a pair; a Kansas City doctor who for $5 wrote her a prescription for 300 extra processed-food points because of her "anemic condition"; and a Midwestern chiropractor who provided a prescription for 60 pounds of sugar because of her "diabetes." He charged $3.

Before leaving New York, Miss Lochridge said, she obtained nylons for $5 a pair in a mid-town lingerie shop. When she tried again a month later, they were $10. Nylons are most easily bought, she reports, in expensive restaurants, bars, nightclubs, theaters and specialty shops. They're cheapest in Kansas City — $4.

Pays Over Ceiling Price

Saying she had to have two dozen frankfurters for a party, she bought them without ration points for five cents over the ceiling in Chicago's loop and for 10 cents over the ceiling in a suburban Chicago shop. The same procedure worked for other meats in Kansas City and elsewhere.

Miss Lochridge, who secured a $3.95 alarm clock in Dallas by paying $9, maintained she also could have purchased bedsprings in Kansas City and a refrigerator in Houston by paying 20 to 45 per cent over ceilings.

Cereals Aplenty Brighten Menus

THE abundance of cereals is one of the bright spots in the food picture, and every household menu-planner should make the most of it these winter days.

Energy-building cereal foods—breads, macaroni, noodles, rice, breakfast cereals, corn and corn products—are fairly reasonable in price, easily stored and varied enough to break meal monotony.

Packaged ready-to-serve cereals provide sturdy fare for the beginning of a busy day. And steaming hot breakfast foods are especially satisfactory on a frigid morning.

Sources Of Vitamin B

Whole-grain cereals as well as whole-wheat bread are fine sources of vitamin B, iron and other body-building substances. White flour is now being "enriched" by the addition of vitamins. Ask your grocer for the enriched kind or carefully read the labels that come on cereal packages and bread wrappers, most of them give the content of the product.

Cereals can be put into service as fillers for meat and vegetable loaves and for covering escalloped foods to be browned. The ready-to-serve kinds are convenient for coating foods to be pan-fried. And cereals added to mush and scrapple help to use up left-over scraps of meat, fish and fowl.

GLORIFIED MEAT LOAF is made like this: Mix together 1-2 pound each of chopped fresh pork (lean cut), veal and beef, 2-3 cup puffed rice or wheat, 1-4 cup each chopped celery and onions, 2 tablespoons flour, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-4 teaspoon each paprika and celery salt or celery seed, 1-4 teaspoon poultry seasoning, thyme or basil (optional), 2-3 cup hot milk and 3 tablespoons catsup, or chopped mustard pickles or chili sauce. Pour into greased loaf pan or round baking dish. Bake an hour and 10 minutes in moderate oven. Unmold and serve hot with any preferred meat sauce. If eggs are plentiful add 2 eggs, beaten, instead of the flour. The eggs will increase the nutritional value of the loaf.

To give a crusty topper to foods, mix together 1 cup ready-to-serve cereal with 3 tablespoons margarine or butter. Heat slowly until the fat has melted and blended with the cereal. Then sprinkle over the top of foods ready for the oven or place in a paper sack and add fish fillets, chops, fish or other foods to be coated. Shake the sack until the food is well covered and pan fry or broil as desired. To improve flavor add 1-4 teaspoon salt and a speck of pepper to each half cup of cereal needed.

VEGETABLE MEAT SCRAPPLE calls for 1 cups cooked cornmeal mush. Mix 1 cup of cooked vegetables (carrots, peas, green beans) into the hot mush, season with 1-2 teaspoon each of salt, minced onion and celery and stir in 1-2 cup leftover cooked crumbled bacon or chopped cooked ham or sliced cooked sausages or franks. Pour the mixture into a mold and chill. Unmold and cook as any other scrapple.

OATMEAL COOKIES BETTINA are full of goodness. Put some into the lunch boxes this winter. And since these are moist spicy cookies I suggest that you keep a jarful on hand for kitchen raids. Cream 1-2 cup shortening with 1-2 cup each dark or light brown sugar and granulated sugar. Add 4 tablespoons molasses, 1-4 cup sour cream or buttermilk, 1 beaten egg, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1-4 teaspoon each nutmeg and cloves, 1-2 teaspoon salt, teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup chopped cooked prunes, 1-4 cup prume juice, 1 cup toasted oatmeal cereal (regular breakfast food heated in moderate oven until light brown in color), 2 1-3 cups flour, 1 teaspoon each of soda and baking powder. Chill dough for several hours or over night. Drop portions from tip of spoon onto greased baking sheet and bake 12 minutes in moderate oven. The dough will keep a week, and cookies baked as desired. Of course you can add some dates, raisins and nuts to the dough if you have them.

SOY FLOUR WAFFLES—Here's a recipe for the new Soy Waffles that are so high in body-building proteins, vitamins and minerals. They are inexpensive, too. And easy to make with your Mixmaster to beat the batter to a smooth consistency in a jiffy, or can be made by hand if you haven't one.

INGREDIENTS: 1/3 cup shortening. ½ cup soya flour. 2 eggs. 2 cups sifted all-purpose flour. 2 tablespoons sugar. 4 teaspoons phosphate baking powder or 3 teaspoons double-action type. 1 teaspoon salt. 2½ cups milk.

METHOD: Place shortening in large bowl. Add soya flour and beat at No. 3 speed until blended. Add eggs, one at a time, and beat at No. 8 speed for one minute. Sift together all-purpose flour, sugar, baking powder and salt. Add to shortening mixture. Add milk. Beat at No. 3 speed until batter is smooth. Scrape bowl occasionally. Bake in preheated Waffle Maker. Makes 4 waffles.

Coffee Drinkers To Get 120 Cups More

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20 (U.P.) —The War Food administration announced today that civilian coffee drinkers would get about 120 cups apiece more this year than they did in 1943.

Marketing of coffee following the lifting of rationing, is "rapidly approaching normal," WFA said.

Civilians are expected to receive about 80 per cent of the total allocation of over 2,000,000,000 pounds in 1944, which brews out into roughly 488 cups per person.

Cocoa and chocolate also will be more plentiful, WFA said, but the increase will be only one half pound of cocoa beans per person. Cocoa products, it was explained, are important to the armed forces and are being increasingly used by the Red Cross in packages for war prisoners.

Cookies Sweeten Service Parties

Are you serving on a local committee for service parties? If not, you may be asked to help out some day. Be sure to answer, "Yes," because service parties are greatly appreciated and they're fun! If you are on the refreshment committee here are three sweets which the boys will make their main objective immediately.

New cookies are always a treat and these three recipes are extra good. Made with cereal, they have a special nutlike flavor the boys will go for. Old-fashioned Molasses Cookies will remind them of the cookie jar at home. Equally popular are Cocoa Squares. These use cocoa which is more available than chocolate to supply that favored flavor. If your grocer had no mincemeat during the holidays ask him if a new supply has come in. If you are lucky then make the last of this trio treat—Spicy Mincemeat Drop Cookies.

1 cup shredded bran cereal
2 cups sifted flour
1 tablespoon soda
½ teaspoon salt
½ cup cold water

Beat shortening until creamy. Add sugar gradually, mixing until thoroughly blended. Stir in molasses and bran cereal. Add sifted dry ingredients alternately with water, stirring to make a soft dough. Drop by heaping tablespoonfuls onto greased cookie sheets; flatten if desired. Bake in moderately hot oven (375°F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield: About 3 dozen cookies 3 inches in diameter.

Cocoa Squares

2 eggs
½ cup shredded bran cereal
½ teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon vanilla extract
½ cup shortening
1 cup sugar
½ cup cocoa
1-3 cup sifted flour
½ cup chopped nut meats

Beat eggs until light; add bran cereal, salt and flavoring and let stand 10 minutes. Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly; add soaked bran cereal and mix well. Stir in cocoa and flour, sifted together, and nut meats. Spread in greased baking pan and bake in moderate oven (350°F.) 30 to 35 minutes.

Yield: 16 2-inch squares (8 x 8-inch pan).

Mince Meat Drop Cookies

2½ cups sifted flour
4 teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
½ cup shortening
½ cup sugar
2 eggs
½ cup shredded bran cereal

Sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Blend shortening and sugar thoroughly. Add eggs and beat well; stir in mince meat and bran cereal. Add dry ingredients; mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto greased baking sheets. Bake in moderately hot oven (400°F.) about 15 minutes.

Yield: 4 dozen cookies (2 inches in diameter).

NOTE: If dried mince meat is used, prepare according to directions on package.

Fewer Livestock On Feed In Southwest

AUSTIN, Jan. 20 (AP) — High prices of feed and scarcity of some types was blamed in part today by the United States Department of Agriculture for a slump in the number of cattle, sheep and lambs on feed in Texas.

Number of cattle being fed for market on Jan. 1 was estimated at 140,000 head. This was approximately 28 per cent under the 194,000 head on feed a year ago, and the smallest number of cattle in that position in Texas since 1937.

For the nation as a whole, the number of cattle on feed was 16 per cent under last year's Jan. 1 figure.

The 116,000 sheep and lambs on feed for market in Texas Jan. 1 was 40 per cent of the relatively large number, 290,000 head, on feed the same date last year. The number on feed was the lowest since 1935. Wheat pasturage conditions compare unfavorably with last year, the USDA noted, and other feeds are both high and hard to find.

Historical Usage On Protein Feeds Urged

FORT WORTH, Jan. 20 (AP) — Increased cotton acreage and a system of distributing protein feeds according to historical usage were called for today by Claude K. McCan of Victoria, president of the Texas & Southwestern Cattle Raisers association, as a partial solution of next winter's livestock feed supply shortage.

Meat consumption in German-occupied Holland has declined from an average of a pound and three-quarters a week before the war to two and one-quarter ounces a week.

Drouth Situation Serious In Midwest's Food Basket

(By The United Press)

The Midwest's war-vital food belt was gripped by a drouth today that has been unmatched since spring winds a decade ago swirled the parched soil into black clouds and turned the nation's bread basket into a dust bowl.

A dry fall, followed by a winter with little or no precipitation, produced a national rainfall average of 21 per cent below normal, causing a critical situation in winter wheat, rye and hay crops. Great cracks appeared in the soil from Illinois to Colorado.

The Dakotas, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and Illinois were the hardest hit and the U. S. weather bureau reported the sub-soil moisture in the wheat belt at its lowest level in many years.

Half Of Wheat Lost

Half of the winter wheat crop in Nebraska has been lost and state agricultural officials said that unless the moisture deficiency is made up before July, summer crops will be far behind schedule. More than 3,775,000 acres were planted in winter wheat and the outlook for harvesting more than 1,500,000 acres was uncertain.

Minnesota's crop situation was termed "critical" by Paul Kirk, senior state crop statistician, but the heart of the dry belt appeared to be in northern and western Illinois, where fall rainfall was only 50 per cent of normal.

Iowa's dry situation temporarily benefitted farmers who harvested bumper corn and soybean crops until late in the season. Winter precipitation does not affect Iowa crops, but spring rains were deemed essential to successful 1944 production.

Michigan Not Hurt Yet

Michigan crops have suffered no damage so far, state officials said, but two weeks of warm weather without rain will produce a serious soil situation. A high water level established last fall will afford temporary protection to crops, but the sub-soil moisture must be replenished before summer, they said.

The northeast appeared little affected by the drouth, but the northwest reported mild drought conditions. Last year was the sixth driest on record. Good soil moisture protected crops and the livestock feeding situation was benefitted by the conservation of short hay supplies through the use of supplemental range feeding.

California reported below-normal precipitation in the northern and central portions of the state, but above normal rainfall in the southern section.

Southwest Better Off

The drouth was broken by heavy winter snows in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas, but a feed shortage already had developed and in range areas there was a deficiency of stock water.

Officials in Ohio and Indiana summed up the situation by saying the deficiencies could be made up "by a few good rains." Although little snow fell to protect winter crops, summer crops will be saved by a net spring.

Agricultural agents refused to make 1944 crop predictions until they see what weather prevails during spring.

Ropesville Pilot Chooses Ack-Ack Instead Of Zeros

ABOARD AN AIRCRAFT CARRIER In The South Pacific, Jan. 11 (Delayed) (AP)—Lt. Norman B. Hancock, Ropesville, Tex., had to decide whether to risk Japanese anti-aircraft fire or a duel with four Zeros. He chose the ack-ack, and lived to tell his story.

He was returning from the Jan. 1 carrier-based strike on Kavieng, New Ireland, when his Hellcat was jumped by four Zeros. A 20mm shell crashed into his gunsight and lodged there without exploding. A stream of small bullets ripped the plane's wings and stabilizer and penetrated the carburetor.

The Hellcat started to trail smoke and even burst into flames momentarily. Hancock thought he'd be better off to risk the anti-aircraft fire from two Japanese cruisers below rather than continue unequal odds against the Zeros.

He dipped sharply, dived at top speed through the cruisers' fire and pulled away untouched. The Zeros refused to follow him through their own AA fire. The cruisers didn't touch Hancock, and he soon made his way back to his carrier, unhurt except for a few cuts.

Catastrophic Shortage Of Paper Feared In America

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (U.P.) — A "catastrophic shortage of paper was predicted today by the American Paper and Pulp association, unless the War Manpower commission takes immediate steps to relieve the labor emergency in the pulpwood industry.

Surveys by the association have shown that pulpwood cutting operations in certain sections of the country were reduced as much as 32 per cent in 1943, it said.

Reflected In Production

"In the long run," the statement said, "these curtailed cutting operations will be reflected in a comparable reduction in wood pulp production."

"Primarily," the statement continued, "only one agency can alleviate effectively the national impact of the situation. The War Manpower commission and the War Production board are fully informed with regard to the current position, not only of the manufacturing industry but of the users of paper, and lack of action can only be predicated upon lack of understanding of the results of the pending shortages.'"

Used More Than Received

Because the paper industry used almost 700,000 cords of wood more than it received in 1943, the association pointed out that inventories of some 3,000,000 tons of paper and paper board in 1944 "unless a broad program of remedial measures is inaugurated."

The government agencies concerned have made "some progress" in forestalling a serious emergency in the industry, according to the association's statement, but, it said, "if a paper shortage of the most serious nature affecting the entire national economy is to be avoided, this program must be expanded and vigorously expedited."

Fortress Formerly Navigated By Capt. Fulghum Returning

A U. S. BOMBER BASE In Briton, Jan. 20. (AP)—Twelve delighted members of the U. S. Eighth Air force took off for home today in the Flying Fortress "Hell's Angels" which had weathered 48 missions over Europe without ever bringing back a wounded crewman.

Her pilot during her last five missions, Capt. John R. Johnston, of Orlando, Fla., and five other Fortress fliers who have finished their raid quotas will accompany the Fortress and her ground crew on a tour of assembly and parts plants at home.

"Hell's Angels" arrived in England Oct. 24, 1942, piloted by Capt. Irl Baldwin, of Yakima, Wash., who was the first pilot in the European theater to complete his quota of raids.

All the original crew members have finished out their quotas and returned to the United States except the navigator, Capt. Harold Fulghum of Lubbock, Tex., and his successor, Lt. Parley Madsen, of Provo, Utah, who went down over Germany in other ships and now are prisoners.

In the days of the Aztecs, cocoa beans were used for the payment of taxes, for the purchase of slaves, and for the payment of soldiers' wages.

AP Judgment Is To Be Appealed

NEW YORK, Jan. 20 (AP)—The federal court judgment in the government's civil anti-trust suit against the Associated Press, nonprofit news cooperative, will be appealed to the United States Supreme court.

The association's board of directors announced the step last night, declaring in a statement that "no newspaper, no press service can operate successfully under a court injunction."

Under Temporary Stay

The judgment, which would restrain the AP perpetually from observing by-laws under which members might consider the competitive ability of an applicant for membership, already is under temporary stay. The appeal, to be taken "without delay", will stay it pending the highest court's ruling.

By coincidence, the directors' statement was adopted about the time that President Roosevelt said at his press-radio conference in Washington that he did not think he wanted to comment on the judgment. The board at the time of its action did not know of the reference to the AP suit in the President's conference, nor did the President know when asked for comment that the AP board had decided on an appeal.

Referred To As Country Club

When asked whether he had noted the judgment, the President inquired whether the Supreme court had handed it down and what was new about it. Later, he smiled and asked: Does the country club still exist?

In referring to the AP as a country club, the President may have had in mind that the AP, a non-profit cooperative, is organized under the membership corporation laws of the state of New York, as are some fraternal, social and charitable organizations.

The judgment was based on a 2 to 1 decision of three circuit judges in the southern district of New York, who heard the case on the government's motion for summary judgment. This proceeding denied the AP request for a trial on its merits. Justice department officials have said that this move never before was employed in Sherman act cases.

The judges sat as an expediting court at the request of Attorney General Biddle, who asked that the action be "in every way expedited". The government requested the injunction without a trial occurring on the ground that the briefs, affidavits, and other documents submitted by opposing attorneys were sufficient for a final decision.

Methodists Attend Amarillo Meeting

Forty Lubbock Methodists, members of First, St. John's and Asbury Methodist churches, attended the Bishop's Crusade for a New Order held at Polk Street Methodist church in Amarillo Wednesday. Purpose of the meeting was to inform Methodists of Northwest Texas conference of the church's plans for a postwar world.

Williams of Denver, lawyer, educator and writer and former assistant to the United States attorney general and Rev. Karl Quimby of New York City, secretary of the Methodist board of missions.

It was proposed to have Methodists write millions of letters to national leaders expressing their sentiments on the new order which will stress internationalism, collaboration of a great missionary program expansion and opposition to isolationism.

What do I like about Coffee?

ECONOMY

LAMOFILM PACKAGE PRESERVES THE FRESHNESS

One of the very real economies of Admiration Coffee is its unique freshness. When freshness evaporates so too do aroma, flavor, and strength. Admiration Coffee retains all these qualities oven-fresh because its Lamofilm Package is leak-proof. Once sealed (we should say once triple sealed) nothing can escape. Nor can moisture seep in. This freshness thus saves you many a pound during the year—and as much money.

ADMIRATION PREVENTS COFFEE-MAKING FAILURES

If your coffee maker and water are clean, it's practically impossible to make a "bad" cup of Admiration Coffee. This wonderful old blend, favorite for years in the Southwest, is rich, flavorful, and aromatic. No matter how you prefer your coffee, weak, moderate, or strong, its distinctive flavor is always discernible. You'll know it's Admiration, for Admiration alone tastes like that. By all means try a pound today if you're one of those rare individuals who've never had the pleasure.

Guy FBI Had To Get Makes Good Saving Lives In Burma

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Staff Writer

AMERICAN AIR BASE, Northeast India — No show that Jack Kramer put on for gin-weary Brooklyn cabaret customers ever stacked up to the show he is now playing in on the edge of the Burma jungle.

Kramer, 35, of Brooklyn, is in the life saving business. In Brooklyn he used to buy rundown night clubs, jack up income and tighten down outgo and then sell them. The last was the Embassy Rest on Flatbush avenue. He was doing that when the Army caught up with him.

Delivers The Goods

"I am not a draftee," Kramer said, "I am a seizure. The FBI had to come and get me." The litle guy did not want to get into the Army, but now that he is in he's working his head off in what he says is the best job he ever had. He rounds up food, medicine, guns, shoes and even occasionally a doctor to drop to American pilots compelled to bail out in the Burma jungles while flying over the hump.

In Brooklyn he always knew where some night club silverware or an extra barman or ten waiters could be caught up in a hurry. Here he is one of the Army's best scroungers. The Army does not issue red blankets. Kramer gets them because they are fine for pacifying tribes-men whose help is needed in rescue work. The Army does not issue boxes of trinkets as a rule, but somehow they show up in Kramer's warehouse. The natives love them, too. Sometimes when there is a hurry call for shoes, blankets or guns, he races through barracks grabbing up what he needs.

Nuts To Rank

Technically he is a radio operator and in that capacity he flies the hump. But few radio operators ever work so frantically over such long hours.

He still is only a first class private, although he gets more stuff done in the course of a day than almost any major I ever saw . .

Rank means nothing to him He has one of those rubbery, cajoling voices with which he can call corporals, sergeants and even some officers to help him or run errands.

They know what he's doing. He sees that the rescue plane has everything needed by some stranded party.

Even Gets Beer

I rode around with him one afternoon to gather up shoes, blankets, socks, underwear and field glasses. He also made arrangements with the Red Cross to provide a chocolate layer cake on an hour's notice in case Captain John L. Porter of Tiffin, Ohio, head of the rescue service, was found. Porter disappeared while hunting for other lost fliers.

In his own private rescue warehouse Kramer has an accumulation of stuff which would drive an orderly quartermaster bughouse. Sometimes a stranded soldier asks for beer. He gets it. These are little boxes of candy all ready to go.

"When a guy signals for a Bible I send him all three kinds," Kramer said. "How can I tell which one he wants?" They are what he described as the Protestant Bible, the Catholic Bible and the Jewish Bible.

Wants To See Wife

Sometimes when fliers bail out their shoes flip off as the parachute takes hold. Getting shoes is no easy job at an advanced post in the middle of the night, but Kramer never lets that stand in the way.

"I can't tell those men out in the jungle I can't get shoes," Kramer said.

The war cannot end too soon for Kramer even if he does have a job he likes immensely.

"I have got a gorgeous wife that I am really crazy about," he said. Her name is Lee August, a dancer."

Legion's Attitude On Soldier Vote Outlined In Letter To Governor

HOUSTON, Jan. 20 (U.P.)—Sam Forman, state commander of the American Legion, has sent a letter to Gov. Coke R. Stevenson outlining the organization's stand in favor of a special legislative session to consider the soldier vote question, it was disclosed today.

"If the governor refuses this democratic action, I feel that legionaires throughout the state as well as many other citizens will take the fight to the legislators," said Forman.

He said that 22 district legion representatives had gone on record in a poll as being in favor of a special session.

World Co-Operative Urged As Post-War Trade Backlog

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20. (U.P.)—Howard A. Cowden, chairman of the international cooperative reconstruction committee of the Cooperative League of the U. S. A., today asked for formation of an international cooperative trading and manufacturing association as "a foundation stone of the brave new world."

Cowden, of North Kansas City, Mo., voiced the plea in addressing delegates from 20 European and Asiatic countries as a two-day conference on international cooperative construction. The meeting last night received a message from President Roosevelt describing the cooperative movement as "one of the appropriate instruments" of post war relief and rehabilitation.

Owned By Wholesalers

Cowden proposed that the international association should be owned and operated by wholesalers. It would engage in all phases of the petroleum industry and distribute food and related supplies. He suggested, among other things, construction of a $12,000,000 international cooperative oil refinery in Texas.

"We live in a world community," Cowden said. "Therefore we may as well begin to act like adult citizens of the world and build our economic organizations on a global basis. The common citizens of the world can learn to trust and believe in one another through their own cooperative system of industry and exchange."

The Soviet Union, he said, might well join the food division of the proposed international cooperative trading and manufacturing association. While Russia would export petroleum, he said she probably would import foodstuffs.

Mr. Roosevelt said in his message that he looked forward to the contribution that the cooperative organizations throughout the world would make in the post-war period.

Death Breaks Up Unique Writing Duo In Texas

AUSTIN, Jan. 20 (AP) — The death of Lecta Rider dissolved today a husband and wife reporting partnership unique in the history of Texas journalism.

Since 1936, Ed and Lectra Rider composed the Houston Chronicle's Austin bureau, and their teamwork in covering political campaigns had carried them into all parts of the state. Mrs. Rider's death Tuesday night from heart disease prompted this comment from Gov. Coke Stevenson:

"She was one of the most queenly women I have ever known. She will be missed around the capitol in Austin. There is nothing too complimentary you could say about Mrs. Rider."

Mrs. Rider, 38, had been ill for several days, but last night apparently was recuperating. Rider returned to their apartment near the capitol about 10 p. m. and found her unconscious at her desk. She died a short while later.

New Policy Forms Go Into Effect May 1

AUSTIN, Jan. 20. (AP)—Beginning May 1 a new form of policy providing fire, windstorm, extended coverage, explosion and rent insurance will be available to buyers.

The state insurance commission yesterday announced approval of the form which was described as "modern, readable and understandable."

Fire Insurance Commissioner Marvin Hall declared it provides complete coverage in one policy and eliminates confusing endorsements and riders now attached to policies.

He added it was likely that after May 1 all companies automatically will endorse existing policies to the broader terms of the new policy form.

WMC Offices To Aid Vets Set Up

CHICAGO, Jan. 20. —Paul V. McNutt, federal security administrator, announced today demonstration offices in seven cities would be opened next week to initiate an expanded veterans employment program.

"Returning veterans must have at their disposal the total professional and technical resources of the federal government," McNutt said. "The new offices will find the veteran a job, counsel him on job training and job opportunities, and test him for job aptitudes."

McNutt made his announcement in a talk prepared for delivery to the American Legion and broadcast by the Mutual Broadcasting system.

"The veteran must be in a position to tap all that there is in the way of established facilities and service," he said. "He must not be obliged to wait while newly devised plans take root or new organizations go through their growing pains."

The cities where the new demonstration offices will be opened January 26 are New Haven, Conn.; St. Louis, Mo.; Houston, Tex.; Los Angeles, Calif.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Philadelphia, Pa., and Denver, Colo.

Yugoslavs Fighting Four Major Battles

LONDON, Jan. 20 — The Yugoslav partisan army, still lacking heavy armament for a decisive campaign, fought on desperately in four major land engagements in Yugoslavia today.

The heaviest fighting reported in the partisan communique centered at Lipovac in western Bosnia, where a German motorized division of some 400 vehicles was surrounded and then relieved by a second division which broke through on the road to Jajace.

Yugoslav units took the offensive in eastern Bosnia with a main thrust toward Tuzla, the partisan bulletin bulletin said, and heavy fighting continued in Hercegovina and in Croatia.

There were indications today that the Allies were planning to blast a wider path across the Adriatic. The communique of Allied headquarters in Algiers disclosed that destroyers during the week shelled ports from Durazzo northward including Korcula and Rovigno on the Istrian peninsula. British coastal forces, dashing in near the coast of Brac Island below Split, torpedoed a small enemy ship and attacked a Siebel ferry. Reoccupation of Brac by an enemy marine force was acknowledged by the partisans yesterday.
