I am sure that the two or three followers of this column were badly disappointed last week when it failed to appear. This summer heat has sapped our energy and besides we have much to do we hardly know where to begin.

Well, it rained again just before we all thought we had to have it. Despite the fact that more than normal rainfall fell here during the first five months of the year we heard more complaint about dry weather than usual—it must have been that the excessive wind during the spring caused the moisture to dry out sooner than usual.

Anyway the more than two inches received this week over most of the territory will go a long way toward making the crops mature. Those who have not had enough moisture to plant their crops can now plant combine malze with assurance that it will have time to mature. It is a little late to risk cotton planted now, but some may try it.

HONOR EDWARD BROWNS

The Young Men's Sunday School class of the Baptist Church hosted an ice cream supper at the basement of the church Friday evening, July 2, the occasion being a farewell get-together of the members of both Mr. and Mrs. Edward F. Brown's Sunday School class, honoring the Browns who left Saturday morning for Pettus, Texas, where they will make their home. Mr. Brown has accepted a position as Vocational Agriculture teacher there.

The group expressed the deepest regret in losing the Browns from our church and community. They have been an inspiration to those with whom they have worked.

Freezer cream and cake were served to the following: Messrs. and Mrs. H. L. Leach, and son, W. D. W. Haralson and sons, Rodrow Pratt, Hubert Thomas, Ed Small and Don, Bob Horton and children, Evert Henderson, Loyd Wiggins, Ray Preston, Buck Taylor, Willie Taylor, Roy Linder, Lewis Claxton and children, Ray Little and children, Virgil Parnell and children, Vance Dickinson and Ann, Rev. and Mrs. R. T. Barton, and daughters Pat and Jo, Rev. Bill Farrar and Ben Bowlin.

Good Rains Fall In Area

Good showers covered all of this territory Sunday, Monday and Tuesday with varying amounts of moisture ranging to as much as three inches. Here in town the official gage measured 2.6 inches.

The showers came at a time when they were badly needed by crops. Feed was suffering in places and cotton was not doing as well as it should.

The moisture will help the dairy farmers, too by providing a good grazing as well as grass and weeds in pastures.

The present supply of moisture should carry crops a long way toward maturity. The fall this week brought the total for the year to 18.90 inches.

Another half inch shower Wednesday morning brought the total for the week to 3.10 inches.

POLIO IN TEXAS REACHES ALARMING TOTAL

Austin, Texas, July 1—Reported cases of polio in 65 Texas counties reached the alarming total of 580 during the first six months of the year, according to Dr. George W. Cox, State Health Officer. For the same period in 1946, the total number of cases reported in 65 counties of the state was only 292.

"This staggering increase in polio in a brief two year period evidences a need for drastic measures in all communities to combat the disease," Dr. Cox asserted. "It is the responsibility of the people of the State to report themselves to their doctors whenever they recognize symptoms of polio. It is also their duty to give wholehearted co-operation to clean-up drives in their communities."

Dr. Cox urged immediate medical attention, especially at this time of year for such things as headaches, fever, stiff neck, pain in the legs, irritability and drowsiness. These, the health officer stated, are symptoms of polio.

"It is well to guard against panic in polio cases," he said, "for complete recovery is not impossible. Even in the more severe cases, when the germ has penetrated the nervous system causing paralysis of one or more groups of muscles, some remarkable recoveries have been made."

Dr. Cox indicated his belief that the first line of defense against polio is a carefully conceived and thoroughly executed clean-up campaign in all communities.

"Local police power should make such clean-ups mandatory," he said.

Weekly Swing of Southwest Farm Markets

Southwest farm prices followed very uneven trends during the past week, the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Production and Marketing Administration reports.

White corn rose about 10 cents a bushel since Friday a week ago, while yellow corn and oats lost about 10 cents. Wheat and barley also eased down a cent or two. New crop offerings helped tumble sorghum prices 15 to 25 cents a hundred pounds.

Cotton lost around $2 to $4 for the week. Spot middling 1516 inch was quoted Friday at 35.75 cents a pound at Dallas.

Summer weather cut egg production this week and lowered quality, according to trade reports. Demand remained good for the better grades, and many dealers bought only on the candled basis. Canned white eggs brought mainly 43 to 45 cents a dozen and mixed colors 40 to 42. Poultry sold generally about steady with last week.

Sheep and lambs sold strong to $1 or more higher at Texas, Oklahoma and Colorado markets, but lost $1 or more at Wichita and Kansas City. Good and choice slaughter lambs topped around $28 to $28.50 at most markets. Ewes ranged from $10 to $11. Goats gained $1 at $8 to $9 at San Antonio.

Wool trade remained slow. Mohair sold around 50 cents for adult and 70 for kid.

Hogs recorded very uneven price trends for the week. Texas markets gained around $2. Top butcher hogs ranged from $28 to $29.25 at the close.

Cattle prices moved higher during the week at Texas markets and at Denver, but ruled steady to lower at Oklahoma City, Wichita and Kansas City. Changes applied unevenly to different classes at most markets.

Eight Ball

With the all-crucial (for him) Democratic convention only days away, with the Republicans throwing political rocks at him, with southern Democrats blustering against him and his policies and with his own Democratic organization feeling very tepid about his prospects, President Truman could be forgiven indeed for having that "behind-the-eight-ball" feeling.

RETURN:

Truman

President Truman was back in the White House after journeying 9,505 political miles—one of them on a ski-lift at Sun Valley—to bring his story before U. S. voters.

That story was primarily his bitter characterization of the present congress as wallowing in defection. As a U. S. President going before the people to seek re-nomination by his own party, he summed up his stand in a single, tough phrase made during his speech at Harrisburg, Pa. If the voters don't make a change in congress this November, he said in effect, they "can stew in their own juice."

Whether or not the spectacle of the President stumping the country in search of popular support is viewed as admirable or otherwise, it certainly must be regarded as a phenomenal pilgrimage in the annals of American politics.

At first flaunting a "non-political" banner, which he soon discarded, Mr. Truman traveled 8,534 miles on eight different railroads, 720 miles by automobile, 225 miles by air, 25 miles across Puget sound by yacht and one mile by ski-lift.

In that political hieira the President brought the public up to date on the background of what is probably the most bitter feud between a President and congress since the days of Andrew Johnson.

There is no doubt that the President, safely back at his desk in Washington, was feeling that he had accomplished pretty much what he had set out to do. The arousing of voter-interest in the issues at stake and the presentation of himself to the people in the role of a comradely but hard-hitting President who is the watchdog of their welfare.

PALESTINE:

Mediation

Although the situation in Palestine—the truce between warring Arabs and Jews—has been overshadowed in the U. S. by the clamorous news from the Republican convention, Count Folke Bernadotte's negotiations were continuing—and so was the tension.

There were no indications, however, that the United Nations mediator was having any signal successes in bringing Israel and the Arab states together on terms.

As the truce went into its second week the U. S. assigned three destroyers in the Mediterranean to immediate duty with the Palestine mediator to help supervise the armistice.

The destroyers, American officials said, were not empowered to use force of any kind in patrol duties, nor would they be allowed to stop or board any ships.

Meanwhile, to inject a further atmosphere of law and order into Palestine the first United Nations "army" had been started on a shoe-string. Thirty permanent U. N. guards from Lake Success were flown east to help supervise the truce, along with 20 other volunteers selected from U. N. secretariat employees.

TARGETS:

Fleet Test

Battleships New York and Nevada, survivors of the Bikini atom bomb test, were scheduled to be sunk this month as targets during Pacific fleet tests.

The two old battleships will be towed 50 miles south of Honolulu to play their final role with the navy they have served through two wars. They will be used to test weapons of the fleet in tactical maneuvers.

MEAT:

Too Popular

With the exception of vegetarians and some carrot juice addicts, nearly everyone likes meat. And in the U. S. everyone eats a lot of it.

That is why all the Mr. and Mrs. Jack Sprats in America are deeply incensed whenever the meat supply falls off from the normally prodigious amounts available to the consumer.

A condition of that general description currently prevails in the U. S. and, according to R. J. Eggert of the American Meat Institute, it will take at least a year following good crops in 1948 to bring about any substantial increase in the amounts of beefsteaks, pork chops and bacon on the table.

Biggest trouble, Eggert said, is that the ratio of the eaters to the edibles has grown too top heavy since the war.

Wartime drain of flocks and herds and last year's short corn crop are responsible for the currently declining animal population.

But there is no comparable decline in demand in sight. The meat industry forecasts a continuing steady demand for meat because: incomes are near an all-time high; the real income (actual purchasing power) of the average consumer is one-fourth greater than in 1939; population has increased 15 million in the past decade; people are convinced of the nutritive value of meat.

SHIPMENTS:

Restricted

Widespread agitation by politicians, newspapers and just plain people over shipment of critical U. S. goods to Russia had paid off in what economists might term an unfavorable balance of trade with the Soviets.

During April, when the clamp-down on exports to Russia first took full effect, the United States received $12,594,841 more goods from the Soviet Union than it shipped.

Whether that imbalance will turn out to be strategically unfavorable to the U. S. if the controversy with Russia continues to expand is a question that the next few years probably will answer.

In its simplest form the situation is a paradox. It is an axiom in international relations that unrestricted trade among nations is one of the best guarantors of peace. Yet the restrictions on export trade to Russia last April were imposed to prevent shipment of potential war goods to the Soviets.

Significant is the fact that U. S. imports from Russia were higher in April than in any other month this year except March, indicating that there has been no immediate effort by Moscow to retaliate for the tightened U. S. controls.

One oddity, perhaps also significant, was Russia's shipment of $1,312,382 worth of manganese and chrome, both basic items in the manufacture of war materials.

Job Done

Sen. Arthur Capper (Rep., Kas.) is 83 years old and has represented Kansas in the senate for 30 years. Now he has announced that he will not run for re-election. He thinks it is time for him to step aside in favor of a younger man.

MAGINOT:

Try Again?

France's Maginot line, that supposedly impenetrable, concrete-and-steel system of static defense that failed to stop the Nazis in 1940, is being touted now as a shield against possible Russian attacks.

Some French army engineers even go so far as to say that the United States would be wise to finance the reconditioning of the Maginot line as insurance against the Red army.

And at least one of France's top military leaders, Gen. Jean de Lattre de Tassigny, is reported to believe that the line should be investigated with the idea that its immense underground forts might be transformed into atomic bomb shelters.

When the fortresses came into Allied hands near the close of the war it was discovered that the Nazis had removed much less of the armament and equipment than had been believed. Most of the guns, minus only the breech blocks, had been left in place.

Simple fact, however—and it is accepted by most U. S. military men—is that the Maginot line is badly outmoded by present swift and mobile methods of warfare, and further, that it was outmoded even before the start of World War II.

One Diplomat Knew Better:

News Analyst and Commentator

WASHINGTON.—Back in the partially-deserted capital after one and before another political convention in these days when Washington's tiger heat drives those who are not too driven otherwise out to the mountains and beaches, I took a short ride with a friendly official who, like most of the press and radio, has to stick out a good share of the summer in the city.

We passed some of the last few fine old residences and a number of embassies and legations. Shutters were drawn, orange-red paint was smeared in a pattern I never have been able to understand on ironwork of high picket-fences and window bars. Some windows were boarded up.

"If it hadn't been for you," I remarked to my companion sitting beside me in what he alludes to as 'the taxpayer's limousine,' "I might not have been in Washington this summer. I might have been loafing at a mountain-lakeside or elsewhere . . ."

"How so?" he inquired.

"Don't you recall," I asked, "that you were a newspaperman yourself once and, torridly speaking, met a lot of interesting people? I was one of them. That meeting killed what I thought then was to be a brilliant diplomatic career."

The story begins right across the street from the office I now occupy on Eighteenth street, in a fine old brick house which I saw first in the year 1914. The carriage drive in front of it is blocked now by the curbing, probably because the traffic officials thought no automobile could safely make the turn which a "spanking pair" negotiated so easily three decades ago.

A sign on the lamp-post in front of the house says "no parking at any time." A brass plate over one of the windows, still barred with the gracefully-curving ironwork of another century says: "Columbus University." The plate is replaced used to say "Former Home of Secretary of State Lansing."

In 1914 it was some two hours after leaving that red brick house that I began "putting off"—putting things off is a great art and one that has reached a high point of refinement in Washington. I always have practiced it. If I hadn't put off then, I might have become a diplomat. As it was, all I got was deadlines the rest of my life.

It happened this way. I had just returned from an extended period in Europe where I had been going through the motions of acquiring an education. In the process I acquired the ambition to become a member of the foreign service of the state department. I planned to rise, by easy stages, on pure merit, of course, to the position of ambassador to the Court of St. James. Beyond that, as a cabinet officer says following a change in administration, I had no plans.

I did have four out of five necessary qualifications which I knew from experience on the Quai d'Orsay and elsewhere assured a successful diplomatic career. The four which I possessed were a top-hat, a tailcoat, striped pants and a pair of spats.

The fifth I was confident I could soon acquire easily since I had an excellent letter to the father-in-law of the secretary of state, who had been a secretary of state himself and an important pillar of Washington society. I was sure that under such auspices I could acquire that sine qua non—a wide rich enough to keep a diplomat in the style to which he is supposed to be accustomed.

I recall that afternoon very well. I rang the bell to that door—well, it was a different door of course—there are four there now with brass handles worn shiny by ambitious Columbians—but at least the door which that afternoon was to be my portal to a brilliant career was right there in the same frame.

It opened. I handed the silk hat and ebony stick to the servant and in a few moments I was being warmly greeted by a gentleman wearing what Sam Blythe once called the most diplomatic whiskers in Washington, John Watson Foster.

I saw that my striped pants and tailcoat had just enough of a continental cut to make a proper impression, as well as the bow-tie from the waist I had learned in Berlin, were doing their work and I made mental note of the less unattractive unattractive females. So after tossing off a bon mot or two, I left, feeling that my career was virtually launched.

It was still fairly early, so I decided to drop in at the National Press club to which my old schoolmate, David Lawrence, had given me a guest card. As the weather was fine, I decided I might as well walk and give Connecticut avenue a chance to admire my distinguished stripes and tails, although tailcoats and top-hats, per se, caused very little conversation in those days.

As I walked, I idly speculated on what course I would take if knee-breches were insisted upon when I was presented at court. Meanwhile, I observed the strolling young ladies who, though probably unable to support an ambassador, were nevertheless quite as attractive as any of the better-qualified ones at the reception.

I had just about decided not to make an issue of the knee-breches thing—after all I had been on the stage for a short period in my career and a couple of pairs of long stockings underneath would do for my calves what nature hadn't—when I found myself at the club.

A tall, black-haired gentleman arose and gave me a dignified greeting. I had thought it best while I was considering my diplomatic career to accept a temporary position with the Associated Press—a position I received after some rather tall talk on the part of David Lawrence and a kindly letter from Superintendent Roberts of the Paris bureau for whom I had worked. The gentleman who greeted me at the club was one of the staff which I was to join, assigned to the state department. And he was the man I alluded to—the friendly official—in the early paragraphs of this column.

Right there, or shall we say in the course of an hour or two, there developed the beginning of a beautiful friendship and the beginning of the end of my illusions concerning a diplomatic career. I applied for membership in the club, never went to another "at home" in the fine old brick house on Eighteenth street.

From that time on it has been deadlines instead of receiving lines. Although I didn't realize it at the time I really wasn't properly equipped for a diplomatic career—my spats were black.

The diplomatic world has not been altogether neglected in the course of meeting deadlines, but when I entered that allegedly romantic demesne as I still do in the course of my job, it is by way of the back door, an entrance which, I have discovered, often provides a much more revealing view of the surroundings. Perhaps it isn't polite to refer to the chancery entrance that way, but it is certainly not the front door.

As it turned out, not many weeks after I had given up my dreams of becoming a Machiavelli or a Metetrnich, I found myself a caller at six or eight embassies a day—I was put on the diplomatic run because a war had broken out and it was quite as important for belligerents and ngnyous neutrals to provide news from their points of view as it was for us to collect it.

The butlers in most of the embassies before World War I would as soon admit a reporter as they would a rag-peddler or a scissors-grinder. It required considerable working over to bring them into line.

And what a change today! The amount of time, money and energy expended by foreign nations in getting information to the American radio, press and public is one of the major items on their Washington budgets!

Another Jawbone

For Samson

An old-fashioned dentist thinks the Russians have Hitler's jaw. The dentist, Dr. Placchke, says he read in a German dentistry magazine that his former assistant, now in Russian custody, had identified a jaw which the Russians were toying with as Hitler's.

Dr. Placchke claims the assistant couldn't positively identify it, but he himself feels it must be Hitler's because the magazine ridicules the work as old-fashioned.

Placchke says he did an old-fashioned job on Hitler when he made a bridge of 12 teeth in 1924. Placchke also claims to have studied dentistry at the University of Philadelphia in 1908. Their methods have probably advanced since then, but Hitler was old-fashioned about some things.

All we can do is hope the bridge pleased him. And remember that that jawbone, if it's authentic, slew more men than the one from a similar source that Samson used when he went after the Philistines.

One of the features of the Republican convention was a mammoth seagull breakfast. The delegates furnished the scrap.

ABOUT OUR PRESIDENTS

PRESIDENT TRUMAN has the unique distinction of having approved several bills which he had signed as president of the senate. He vetoed a private bill as President of the United States which he had signed as president of the senate when he was vice president.

PRESIDENT MARTIN VAN BUREN entered the White House with four motherless sons.

ONE OF OUR PRESIDENTS, George Washington, was a farmer. Twenty-two were lawyers, two were army officers, two were in politics, one was a teacher, one a publisher, one was a mining engineer and one a merchant.

U.S. Forecasts
Price Troubles
For Housewives

WASHINGTON.—Complicated figures just released by the federal reserve board and the department of commerce carry storm warnings for housewives who are already having trouble making both ends meet.

The story is just more of the same old thing: shortages. We want more than is being turned out.

The possible dynamite under prices lies in three new large sums about to go into circulation: (1) money "saved" because of lower income taxes, (2) increased installment payments, (3) increased defense appropriations.

Taxes have been cut 4.8 billion dollars. Much of that tax cut went to working families who are expected to spend it instead of save it.

Americans are expected to go on the cuff for at least 3.2 billion dollars worth of goods this year. They'll get them through installment buying and through charge accounts. That's the amount they went on the cuff for in 1947, and the rate was rising rapidly at the end of last year.

That kind of buying dropped off through the war because there were government controls on it, but congress let the controls go in November. Immediately there was an upsurge.

Funds for the Military War clouds have forced the government to talk of spending more for the army, navy and air force. At first it looked as though the military services could get along on $2,250,704,300 more this year than last.

Even so, that would have meant so much more money competing for steel, woolen yard goods, leather, autos. But now there are plans to increase that by another three billion dollars. Whether it's two or five billions that the services have to spend this year, it's all new money bidding for what American farms and factories turn out.

Together those three figures add up to between 10 and 13 billion dollars of new spending this coming year, depending on which sum you bet on for the military.

Prices Skid Down There have been flurries of lower prices which have given rise to hopes among the majority of Americans, that live on weekly pay checks. The most dramatic was the downward skid of food prices. It didn't last long. Most of those skids started to climb back up right away.

Anyway, the food prices were only part of the picture. The important figure to consider is how much money mills around daily through the stores and banks. It is now around 28 billion dollars. Economists call that "money in circulation." Add another 10 billion dollars to 13 billion dollars and you've got a lot of money bidding for the same amount of goods.

All through 1947 the numbers of people at work hung close to 60 million and their numbers are going up. So far this year 1,759,000 more people were at work than last year.

Business itself was so optimistic that in 1947 more than 200,000 new concerns opened shop. During those 12 months only 3,476 concerns failed, the lowest number since 1871.

PLANS MADE TO MAKE
WEST TEXAS FAIR LARGER

Abilene, July 6—Plans are being formulated to make the twenty-fourth annual West Texas Fair, to be held here September 27-October 2, the biggest Fair yet staged in Abilene, according to D. H. Jefferies, President of the West Texas Fair Association. In 1947, over 75,000 people attended the six day show, and this year officials are scheduling entertainment features which it is believed will draw a record attendance of over 100,000 persons.

Among the many features of the Fair will be included swine, Jersey, and Hereford shows and several community exhibits from a wide area in West Texas. Fair officials are now negotiating for a nationally known radio show and broadcast to originate from the Fair grounds on two consecutive days.

DEVOTIONAL READING: Exodus 35:3-7

Bezalel, The Craftsman

Lesson for July 11, 1948

THE dignity of labor, the source of artistic ability, the secret of mechanical skill, and the service of good workmanship—these are the facets that break across the ages, pointing us to worthier effort, as we study again the achievement of Bezalel and his associates in the construction and furnishing of the Tabernacle at Sinai.

Dr. Newton: "You wish to read the scripture passages for the lesson and the devotional reading, Exodus 35:3-7, and the golden text: 'Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might,' Ecclesiastes 9:10."

A MAN WHO DID FINE WORK

BEZALEL, grandson of Hur, son of Caleb, was called of God to superintend the building of the Tabernacle. His name means "under the shadow of God." He knew how to do fine work, having been trained in Egyptian art and handicraft—metallurgy, carpentry, weaving, embroidery, leather-dyeing, gem-cutting and confections. He even knew the art of apothecary. Best of all, he loved to do fine work. It is one thing to possess the know-how, it is yet another thing to love the execution of a great design.

TRAITS OF CHARACTER

BEZALEL possessed knowledge as a fine craftsman, but back of this technical knowledge was spiritual discernment. He was filled "with the spirit of God." He worked at the temporal, but he worked for the eternal. He possessed wisdom—wisdom which comes only from God. Wisdom which means understanding in the sense in which Solomon speaks in Proverbs.

Picture life with every workman filled with the spirit of God, and possessing an understanding of his task in the light of God's eternal will. Here, I fancy, Henry Van Dyke may have got the inspiration for his great poem on "Work."

HANDS THAT SERVE GOD

ABOLAB, meaning "the father is my tabernacle," was called of God to help Bezalel in this high and holy task. He was of the tribe of Dan—which tribe furnished Hiram as chief artist in building Solomon's temple. Abolab, "given of God" for this divine task, gladly dedicated his skillful hands in helping Bezalel.

And there were many others who helped—"wise hearted," we read. Here was a task, God's task, and here were leaders, Bezalel and Abolab, ready to serve God; and here were helpers, wise hearted.

WORK FOR EVERY DAY

TURNING now from the fascinating story of how Bezalel and Abolab and their helpers constructed and furnished the Tabernacle at Sinai, according to the minutest detail as outlined in the passages above cited. Let us ask, What about our work?

There is work for everyone every day. "To every man his work." And every task is essential in bringing to pass the Kingdom of God on earth. God did not make us for idleness. He made us for a purpose—that purpose to do our particular work. None other can do what God has ordained that we should do.

"My father worketh hitherto, and I work," said Jesus. "Work, for the night cometh when no man can work."

Time worketh. Let us work, too. Busy as time may work I ply, Till I work the work of eternity."

New Generations

God is the infinitely persistent experimenter, and when one generation fails him, he always tries another. Always there is a new generation as fresh and multitudinous as morning dew, to hear again God's gracious gospel and have an opportunity to respond to his inspiring challenge.—E. M. Walker.

Missions

Whether we like it or not, we have been thrust into a world that has been crowded up into such close quarters that there is no longer any "home mission" field or "foreign mission" territory. The needs of all the world are our problem.—Roy L. Smith.

Have a Porch Meal; Family Loves Them In Summer Weather

IT'S A TREAT to eat outdoors! Mom gets out of a hot kitchen, and the whole family can enjoy a meal even at the end of the day if they eat it in a cool breeze out on the porch, under the old tree or in the garden.

This is real outdoor eating and it can be almost picnic style. Plan it to be casual and everyone will have fun. Carry out all food, plates and utensils on a tray and save trips to the kitchen and then back again. A bowl of flowers from the garden will make the occasion seem festive indeed.

Almost any kind of a meal will be easy to serve as long as you can fit it on a tray so everyone can help himself. Even a roast will work out well served in this way. Place your creamed, au gratin or browned potatoes in the center of a large platter. Slice the roast in the kitchen and place it around the potatoes.

IF THE DAY is a sweltering one and calls for a cool supper, why not try a really cool supper? A loaf of tomato aspic served with marinated shrimps makes a good main dish.

If you're having cold meat and want to serve a hot dish, too, try macaroni and cheese; that time-honored potato casserole, au gratin style, or creamed potatoes, topped with cheese.

dish. Add cucumbers to this for eating and for garnish. Ice cream or lemon sherbet served with crisp delicious cookies will complete the meal.

Tomato Aspic with Shrimp (Serves 8)

- 2 tablespoons plain gelatin
- 1/2 cup cold water
- 1/2 cups hot water
- 2 8-ounce cans all-tomato sauce
- 2 teaspoons chopped chives or 1 teaspoon lemon juice
- 1 (5-ounce) can shrimp, drained

Soften gelatin in cold water. Add hot water and stir until dissolved. Add all-tomato sauce. Chill until the mixture is of the consistency of unbeaten egg whites. Stir in chives or onion juice. Turn into a loaf pan and chill until firm. Unmold on greens and garnish with shrimp that have been marinated in French dressing.

IF THE WEATHER is on the warm side and you don't want to spend much time cooking, select a simpler meal. For example, have sliced tongue or other cold meat served with macaroni and cheese and complete the meal with sliced garden tomatoes and cucumbers and buttered chifon pie made in the morning.

Macaroni and Cheese (Serves 4)

- 1/4 pound macaroni
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 cup flour
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 cups milk
- 1 tablespoon onion, minced
- 1 cup grated American cheese

Cook macaroni in boiling, salted water until tender. Drain. Make sauce by melting butter, adding flour which is blended with mustard and salt. Add milk and onion and cook until thickened. Add grated cheese and stir until melted. Combine sauce and macaroni and place in a greased casserole. Bake in a moderately hot (400 degree) oven until browned.

Buttercream Chifon Pie

- 1 baked 8-inch pie shell
- 1 tablespoon plain gelatin
- 1/4 cup cold water
- 2 eggs, separated
- 1 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup scalded milk
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 cup granulated sugar

LYNN SAYS: Creamed potatoes will be more interesting if they have some chopped dried beef added to them. If you're not too hungry, this will take the place of meat.

A quick and easy way to prepare a ham slice is to bake in a sauce made of one cup of water, one-half cup brown sugar and a few slices of orange, stuck with cloves.

Sausage meat can be mixed with egg and soft bread crumbs, then baked and served with cooked, drained and lightly fried noodles.

Let gelatin stand in cold water five minutes. Beat egg yolks until thick, beat in brown sugar gradually, then add milk. Add butter and salt and cook in top of double boiler until mixture coats the spoon. Stir in gelatin. Cool. Beat egg whites stiff, add granulated sugar and fold into first mixture. Pour into baked pie shell and let chill until firm. Serve with whipped cream, if desired.

OF COURSE, there are nothing like hamburgers for a real favorite as a supper dish. But, here's a new way to prepare the burgers, for they're smothered in onions and noodles:

Special Hamburger Patties (Serves 6-8)

- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 cup soft bread crumbs
- 1/2 cup grated onion
- 1/2 teaspoon poultry seasoning
- 1/2 teaspoon salt
- 2 pounds hamburger
- 4 tablespoons flour
- 6 slices bacon

Add seasonings, bread crumbs and milk to meat. Mix well and shape into patties, three-fourths inch thick. Dredge with flour. Wrap a slice of bacon around each patty and fasten with toothpick. Broil patties until they are thoroughly cooked and nicely browned.

Cook one-half pound of broad noodles until tender; then season with butter, salt and pepper. While noodles cook, slice three large onions and fry them in drippings.

To serve, place noodles on a hot platter, top with hamburger patties and smother with the onions.

A DELICIOUS DESSERT that goes well with this is a pear pie. Bake it in a glass dish and bring it out to the porch to serve.

*French Pear Pie (Makes 10-inch pie)

PASTRY:

- 1 1/4 cups flour
- 1/4 teaspoon baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 6 tablespoons shortening
- 3 to 4 tablespoons ice water

FILLING:

- 6 cups sliced pears
- 3 tablespoons lemon juice
- 1/3 cup corn syrup
- 1/3 cup sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 2 tablespoons flour

TOPPING:

- 1/3 cup shortening
- 1/2 cup brown sugar
- 1 cup flour

To make pastry, sift flour, baking powder and salt together. Cut in shortening with pastry blender or two knives until it is the size of peas. Add water in small quantities.

French pear pie is a delightful dessert for those porch suppers you're bound to be having. The pie is made deep and the topping is a crumbled mixture, part of which will melt into the pears to make them even more delicious.

ties, mixing with a fork until it just holds together. Pat into ball and chill. Roll dough out and line a glass pie plate, pressing dough into fluting.

To make filling, peel, core and slice pears; mix with lemon juice, corn syrup, sugar and flour. Place in unbaked pie shell.

To make topping, cream shortening and brown sugar. Mix in flour and top near mixture with this. Bake in a moderate (375 degree) oven for about 45 minutes until pears are done.

Creamed potatoes will be more interesting if they have some chopped dried beef added to them. If you're not too hungry, this will take the place of meat.

SO FAR the United States has taken only a mild interest in the coming Olympic games to be held this summer in London. It has been taken for granted that the U. S. will mop up again as usual. Even more so this time, with our athletes well-fed and most other competitors reportedly underfed.

So if we win, well, why not? The United States team should win in a romp. It shouldn't be even close. It should be no contest. That's the early setup. No credit if you win—pretty awful if you lose.

At the Berlin games in 1936, we had several talks with trainers and coaches and star athletes from other nations. Here was their verdict:

"The United States is a nation of acrobats—not athletes. You can't win from 400 meters and on beyond this distance. You have no runners with any stamina—runners who can travel a mile and longer.

"You are marvelous acrobats—like circus performers. You can sprint and pole vault and hurdle. These are all acrobatics. They make no demand on stamina or courage."

It still takes an athlete to run and jump.

The answer is that we have won too seldom at testing distances. We have no runners' from the mile to the marathon worth naming.

Once again, we'll probably win the pole vault—rated a feat of acrobatics and not the work of an athlete by foreign nations. It is certainly on the easier side than it is to get ready for 1,500 or 5,000 or 10,000 meters.

The U. S. has never been much interested in stamina—which is even more important than speed. Speed gives out quickly. Stamina carries you all the way through.

When you sift all the angles, the United States hasn't done nearly as well as our ballyhoo experts have figured out the case. Without our Negro stars, this country would have been something of a joke.

In place of mopping up in London, we still can be something of a joke—despite the winning edge we have in food, the main basis of condition. We have every advantage this way. It will be interesting to see what we can do with it.

Stars Miss Big Show

One world series weakness is that too many stars had no chance to show at the big show.

Napoleon Lajoie, one of the greatest, never was seen in this classic. And he was something to see, the most graceful ballplayer that ever lived. And one of the game's greatest natural hitters.

Walter Johnson came to his first world series when he was on his way over the mystic hill. The earlier Walter Johnson would have joined Mathewson with three shut-outs.

Bob Feller has never had a world series appearance, and Feller also is just about over the top. Feller came to Cleveland 12 years ago and he has been pouring that fast ball through for a long time. The navy also took three or four of his best years. The navy caught him at his peak and held him a long time.

Also after returning to baseball, Feller has given a good part of his time to outside interests, which hasn't helped his baseball. But he still would be a shining spot in any post-season championship. Feller is one of the all-time greats. He won't have to bother about his spot at Cooperstown.

Rube Waddell, a world series natural, had his lone chance in 1905 when he suffered an injured shoulder in a train scuffle. So the Mathewson-Waddell duel never came off. That would have been in the super class, the motion picture colossal stuff.

Still many stars have made the world series grade—Mathewson, Alexander, Cobb, Ruth, Collins, Jackson, Hornsby, Grove, Wagner, Brown, Kling, Plank, Coombs, Bender, Johnson, Wood, Fox, Fritsch, Dizzy Dean, Cochrane, Dickey, too many more to mention.

It would be nice to see Feller and a few more stars, who have never made the big show, slip under the tent and mingle with the elephants.

Fitzsimmons Is Tops

In the middleweight boxing division my nomination for the top man is Bob Fitzsimmons. Fitz was middleweight champion, light-heavyweight champion and heavyweight champion. He was a brilliant boxer. He was also a terrific puncher.

Fitz broke seven bones in both hands punching Jeffries in their second fight. He almost ripped Jeff's face away from his head. But he couldn't knock out the Jeffries of that period. No one else could. And this includes Jack Johnson who whipped a half-bred, fat, fading old-timer who was in no shape to fight anybody.

I saw Jeffries training for the Johnson fight in 1910. He was pitiful. He was a long way from the Jeffries I knew in 1903.

Speeding, Main Accident Cause

Exceeding of safe speeds was given as the reason for one out of every three fatal motor vehicle accidents last year, according to the accident prevention department, Association of Casualty and Surety companies. The department added that a majority of these deaths occurred on straight and wide-open highways where drivers were inclined to step on the gas.

Questions and Answers

Q. I have been drawing $57.50 each month from my $10,000 War Risk Insurance since my discharge from the Army after World War I. Are such payments discontinued after the $10,000 is exhausted?

A. No. Payments may be continued for the remainder of your life, provided your total disability remains unchanged.

Q. I would like to appear before the Rating Board to explain my own claim. May I do this?

A. Yes, but a definite appointment should be made and you should be there at the time for which the hearing is designated. Expenses incidental to going to or from the Rating Board hearing must be borne by you.

Q. Why do I have to pay the two monthly premiums instead of one when I reinstate my lapsed National Service Life Insurance policy?

A. One premium is for the 31-day grace period following the date of lapse, during which the insurance was continued in force without payment of premium; the other is for the current month of your insurance policy's reinstatement.

Q. My son, a World War 2 veteran, is in a VA hospital in a distant city. Will I be permitted to visit him every day if I go to live in the city where the hospital is located?

A. Yes, if his condition permits such visits. All Veterans Administration hospitals have special hours set aside each day for visitors, the same as civilian hospitals.

Balanced Dairying

By Extension Dairyman
Texas A & M College

Mr. E. R. Eudaly, director of Universal Mills of Fort Worth, will give a talk July 14, at the City-County building in Colorado City at 1:30 p. m. Mr. Eudaly will talk on Dairy Outlook for Texas, also the feeding and management of dairy cattle.

Mr. Eudaly was formerly State Extension Dairy Husbandman with A & M College and is considered one of the nation's authorities on feeds and feeding of dairy cattle. County Agent Joe W. Cowan invites all people of the county interested in dairying to hear Mr. Eudaly.

Something else about dairy business neighbors. Did you know that we have 200,000 less dairy cows in Texas than we had 12 months ago? This of course is due to several factors. It started in 1931 when dairymen lost their labor to the armed services. Farmers and dairymen were forced to breed "ole Bossie" to a beef type bull.

Then the price of meat got to the point where we considered it wise to keep up this program of breeding. What happened?

Well, we then received good prices for our crops and we just didn't want to go to the milk pen to milk ole Bossie, because we would rather buy milk and let the calf to our cow, then sell the calf for more money than we gave for the cow. But let's see what has happened. We never made a replacement with a nice purebred heifer. Ole Bossie is old, the nurse pen calves ruined her udder, she is now dry and mud fat—so off to the auction with her and to receive $150 to $185 for a dry cow.

Not only has Mitchell County or the Lorraine community practiced this—it is true all over the state and nation. That is why there are 200,000 less dairy cows in the state of Texas than 12 months ago.

The county agent is working out a livestock team and two weeks ago the team was given a workout on livestock judging at Texas Tech. Members of the team are Raymond and Alfred Hackfeld of Lorraine, Chas. Hestand and Orvil Smith of Colorado City. After the workout on judging Prof. Hadden of the dairy department gave the boys an interesting demonstration on artificial breeding of dairy cows.

Texas Tech has three outstanding Jersey sires and three outstanding Holstein sires. Tech, as well as A&M, furnishes semen from their fine bulls to all counties who have formed artificial breeding program.

Folks, there are certainly advantages of having such a program for Mitchell County. One would be that we could have the get or service from these fine bulls which we normally could not afford. For instance, Tech has a Jersey bull valued at $15,000. Wouldn't it be nice to have a heifer calf out of ole Bossie from a bull like that?

Another advantage would be not having the dangerous Jersey bull around the place, thus one less animal to feed. Another advantage many diseases in dairy breeding could be eliminated. Another, the cheapness or economic value to the program. There are numerous other advantages that space in this paper will not permit to print.

If you are interested in having such a program for Mitchell County contact the county agent as he would like to see just how many are, and if sufficient number are we should organize. If you have one or a dozen cows talk this program over with your neighbors, get them interested. I believe a Mitchell County artificial breeding program would be a great asset to the county.

HARLEY SADLER TO ATTEND DEMO. CONCLAVE
State Representative Harley Sadler, who is a candidate for the State Senate from this district, leaves Friday, July 9, for Philadelphia to attend the National Democratic Convention and will be out of the district until Saturday, July 17. Mr.

KITCHEN MEMO

BY JEAN SLABER

Oven-baked desserts can be cooked along with the roast to save time and fuel. Banana-Coffee Souffle, one of these, is nourishing and flavorful. Melt 2 tbsp. butter in a saucepan. Remove from heat and stir in 3 tbsp. flour. Gradually add 1 1/2 cup strong coffee, 1/2 cup milk and cook over low simmer flame stirring constantly until nicely smooth and thick. Combine 1/4 cup sugar, 4 egg yolks, gradually stirring these into cooked mixture. Add 3 mashed medium-sized bananas. Beat 4 egg whites until stiff but not dry. Fold into banana mixture. Pour into 1 1/2 qt. souffle dish which has been buttered on bottom only. Bake in slow gas oven (325°) 40 to 45 mins. Serves 6.

The most reliable buyer's guide to gas appliances for the home is the Seal of Approval of the American Gas Association Testing Laboratories. For example, nearly 600 tests and requirements must be met on a gas range before it can be produced and sold to the homemaker.

If your biscuits burn on the bottom and still remain rather pale on top, your baking sheet may be too large which tends to hold the heat from the burner to the bottom instead of radiating around the oven evenly. There should be at least one inch of space between the baking sheets and all four sides of the oven.

Hot butter and syrup makes a richer-tasting spread for waffles. Add 2 tbsp. butter to 1 cup extra-sweet corn syrup, heat until butter is melted, then serve hot.

As soon as baked potatoes are cooked, cut them cross-wise on the top to keep them fluffy. Add butter and serve at once.
