Taxpayers group joins rate battle

"Aransas County has just begun" in a petition battle against a proposed rate increase by Central Power and Light Company (CPL), Ed Brennan, a member of the Aransas County Taxpayers Association (ACTA), has declared.

Copies of a petition to the Public Utility Commission (PUC) have been distributed to convenience stores and other businesses throughout Aransas County — but ACTA is planning to take a more active role in getting signatures, according to Brennan who is a director on one of the taxpayers' organization's investigative committees.

The petition drive protesting the CP&L rate increase in spearheaded by Ronald E. McGee of Corpus Christi who appeared before ACTA last month to distribute copies of the petition. Petitions are being circulated throughout the CP&L service area and as of late last week, more than 11,000 signatures had been collected.

Brennan said he doesn't know how many Aransas County signatures have been collected to date but said ACTA is in full support of the petition.

The association plans in the near future to take an active part in collecting signatures, by posting representatives with copies of the petition in high-traffic areas such as the post offices and area shopping centers.

The goal, Brennan added, is to present 50,000 signatures to the PUC.

CP&L has filed with the PUC for a rate increase that will generate some $156 million in revenues. Approximately $100 million of this is to pay for construction work in progress, which includes the South Texas Project nuclear plant.

Brennan said many people object to paying for what they feel was "a mistake. There are some real problems with that plant," he said. He expressed an opinion that the CP&L executives "goofed" and if this is so, "let the (CP&L) stockholders worry and fire the management."

The petition states that "we, the undersigned, submit that we cannot afford even a five percent rate hike in the Central Power and Light Company's billings and we respectfully request a denial of the hike now being considered."

CP&L officials say the proposed rate increase would amount to approximately 20 percent if fuel costs are considered in the billing and about 50 percent without fuel costs.

Board votes additional improvements to schools

By Becky Werhan

Some $400,000 accumulated from interest on bond issue funds, voted for school construction, will be spent by the Aransas County School District to further improve elementary, junior high and high school campuses.

School Superintendent Joe Randow informed the school board of the interest money at their regular monthly meeting on Monday night. The board agreed to go ahead and use the funds for improvements and construction work taken out of the original construction plan earlier. These are improvements the board took out of the plan because at the time, the extra work might have put the entire project over budget.

No definite decision on specific areas to be worked on was made by the board Monday, with the exception of floor tiles for the high school. The board authorized Randow to put out bids for re-tiling portions of the high school. Randow had already received an estimate on the work from the firm handling the school building project. A and A Construction of Victoria. A and A has re-tiled areas of the school damaged by fire and was able to give Randow an estimate for one area of $32,883 and for another $8,890. School board member Joe Meyer suggested that bids be sent out to other firms, saying, "That's a lot of money to pay." Board member Jerry Brundrett suggested that A and A be released from their estimate and allowed to re-bid. "We're not really being fair to A and A," said Brundrett. No decision on that was made by the board.

Other areas where the remainder of the interest funds might be spent were discussed

Grantham charged in drug buy

AUSTIN — Dallas Grantham, 54, of Fulton has been charged with conspiracy to possess and distribute marijuana after a drug buy turned out to be a "sting" operation in Austin last week.

Grantham and five other men were arraigned before U.S. Magistrate Phillip Sanders and Grantham placed under $200,000 bond following the arrests last Thursday, May 6, at a Ramada Inn in Austin.

Grantham is currently on three-year probation after he pleaded guilty in federal court in Corpus Christi last year on a charge of conspiracy to import a quantity of marijuana into the U.S.

Drug Enforcement Administration Agent-in-Charge Ron Steadman said last week's would-be buy was arranged by Grantham apparently at the request of the other five men, all of whom are from North and South Carolina.

"He (referring to Grantham) is a known trafficker," Steadman said.

He added that 15 to 20 DEA agents and members of the Austin police department were involved in the operation in which Grantham arranged to buy 1,000 pounds of marijuana for $202,000 in cash.

Steadman said three DEA agents, using

From the press box

George Steinbrenner likes to tinker with his New York Yankees, but only on the executive level. "I have no desire to put on the uniform," he said. "I don't think the team needs me down there in the dugout. My involvement in the game is not with the intricacies of the hit-and-run or the bunt or changing pitchers."

George Brett, whose role is providing punch in the Kansas City Royals' lineup, will have a new role this fall. The All-Star third baseman will star in a pilot film for a weekly half-hour TV show about him and the Royals.

"All I know is, it is going to be a comedy-drama about a kid growing up in Southern California who wants to play for the Los Angeles Dodgers or New York Yankees," Brett said. "He says 'Kansas City who?' Then he goes to Kansas City, the club does well and he falls in love with the city."

Charlie Lau is no ordinary batting instructor for the Chicago White Sox. Not with a six-year contract reportedly worth a cool $100,000 per. Beyond that, how many coaches call press conferences to announce their role in a forthcoming movie? And not just an ordinary movie, but a Twentieth Century Fox biggie starring Marsha Mason and written by Neil Simon.

Lau, whose previous coaching stops included Baltimore, Kansas City, Oakland and the Yankees over the last 13 seasons, still regards his first batting pupil as his most prized one. "Not George Brett," he said. "My first guy was Mark Belanger. When I went to spring training with the Orioles in 1969, he was my first project. They (Orioles) said to me, 'Do something with him'. Maybe he didn't hit .400, but Mark has gotten a lot of big hits in his career."

Pro golf star Tom Watson was a guest in the suite of Kansas City Chiefs owner Lamar Hunt for a game last season when a guest asked what he did. "Oh," Watson said, "I play a little golf." The reply: "And what else do you do?"

Modell isn't a producer, but he knows his movies. Referring to the team's 5-11 record this past season after it won the AFC

Vessel inspection slated

Spokesmen for the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary, Flotilla 79 of Rockport say that safe boating is not an accident: it is planned and prepared for.

The auxiliary says that there are a number of items every boater should have on board his vessel to be a safe boater. Those items include a personal flotation device for each person on board, approved fire extinguishers, navigation lights and distress flares.

Also included in the list are: fuel tanks properly installed, a backfire flame arrester should be on all gasoline engines, a whistle and horn should be on board and there should be proper ventilation in all engine compartments.

Boaters should also have an anchor and anchor line, bilge pump and if your boat is under 16 feet they also recommend that a paddle be onboard the vessel.

For a courtesy marine examination on your boat at no charge call George Moore at 729-7882.

Central Division title in 1980, Modell said, "There is absolutely no truth to the rumor that the Browns' highlight film will be a Polaroid shot."

Baseball broadcasters may be curious to know the observations of Jerry Coleman, who is back in the booth after managing the San Diego Padres for a year. "You have to be more alert when you're doing play-by-play than when you're managing because you can't miss a pitch," Coleman said. "You can manage tired easier than you can broadcast tired. I'm sure the managers of the world will never understand that. But the responsibility factor is 10,000 times less when you're announcing. Broadcasters don't have an effect on the outcome of a game."

Simmons, Walls qualify for state

After weeks of challenging each other for the top place in the sprint events, Rockport-Fulton's Micheal Simmons and Dwayne Walls ran into some stiff competition in Saturday's Regional Track Meet at Cabaniss Field in Corpus Christi. Both runners will qualify for the state meet, but neither was a winner.

Just as a thief in the night, Georgetown's Brent Mathews cruised to victories in both the 100 meters and the 200 meters. Walls and Simmons had been finishing 1-2 all year before they met Mr. Mathews. The two Pirates challenged each other for the 2-3 spot in each event, with Walls taking second in the 100 and Simmons stretching it out to claim second in the 200

Little League Auxiliary elects new officers

The Aransas County Little League Women's Auxiliary met recently and elected their new officers for the 1982 season.

Jerry Larimore was elected president and Terry Lassiter was elected as vice president. Sharilyn Boring was elected secretary and Sue Waugh was elected as treasurer.

Larimore announced that the auxiliary is asking each child in the Little League to bring one Texas Gold stamp book to the ball park. She said the stamps will be used to purchase pots, pans and other utensils needed at the concession stand at Memorial Park.

Fred Whittle Memorial Tennis Tourney slated for August

Rockport's annual Fred Whittle Memorial Summer Fun Mixed Doubles Tennis tournament scheduled for Aug. 7 and 8 will be restricted to amateur players this year, it was decided at the annual meeting of the Rockport Tennis Association which for several years has sponsored the event.

In the past professional players and former professionals have been eligible to participate, but it was decided that this practice discouraged many players of lesser skill from entering the tourney because winners frequently have been the professionals. During the discussion it was pointed out that the late Colonel Whittle's consuming interest was in drawing younger beginning players into the game and helping them acquire tennis skills.

behind Mathews. Walls was third in the 200 and Simmons was third in the 100.

Both second place performances earned the Pirates a trip to Austin and to the State Meet next week where they'll meet Mr. Mathews and a host of other fine runners.

Walls and Simmons were not the only Pirates to score at the regional get-together. David Ramirez ran a 4:38.0 in the 1600 meters to take fifth place in that event. Michael Arthur finished sixth in the shot put where the winner catapulted the shot over 60 feet to win.

Overall, the Pirates scored 31 points to finish sixth in the region. District rival Gregory-Portland claimed the title at regional with 73 total points.

Community restitution is an available alternative

By Juliet K. Wenger
Coastal Bend Council of Governments

"Community restitution" is an idea which is rapidly taking hold in the judicial system. It has been utilized in Houston more than a year and proved its worth. It is now being studied and in small degree in use in the Coastal Bend.

Community restitution is an alternative available to a judge in sentencing, when he decides it is appropriate in a particular case. Usually, it is a case involving a victimless crime. Someone has been convicted of breaking a law, and no one individual has been deprived of life or property. So the individual is, in effect, sentenced to repay society. That repayment is in terms of volunteer service. For instance, a doctor who violated the income tax law is doing volunteer work in a hospital in the Coastal Bend.

Some of the boys who are in the halfway house in the Coastal Bend operated by the Texas Youth Council volunteer at the State School for the mentally retarded of the region. They work primarily in the recreation programs. This is a new experience for these boys. They are used to "taking." They find themselves "giving." Their supervisors say this experience makes a great change in some of the boys. Federal courts have taken the lead in this program. In one recent Texas case, a sentence was a $10,000 fine, five years probation, and 350 volunteer hours of working during that five years. Either probation officers or a community coordinating agency finds slots in the community where the person's abilities can be used.

If these are professional people, accountants, artists, business men and women, they can provide non-profit agencies and government with services that they could not begin to afford if they had to pay consultants high fees to do the work. The work can be carpentry, lawn work, or reading to an older person, requiring a greater or lesser degree of education or skills. A number of organizations which have lost federal funds are looking to this alternative, hopefully.

Judge Hayden Head Jr., in federal court, has indicated he is open to this new approach. Judge Rachel Littlejohn in the 156 District Court says she is interested in the alternative, particularly where young people are concerned.

Community restitution can be one of the answers to the increasingly difficult problem of overcrowded jails. It can be a possibility in cases of driving while intoxicated. It has the advantage of leaving the person in his or her regular job, self supporting and in many instances supporting families.

One interesting development where community restitution has been tried is that in a large number of cases when the individual sentenced to carry out the volunteer work completes the required number of hours and is free of court order, he continues to do the volunteer work by choice.

Judge Littlejohn warns that there needs to be close supervision for a community restitution program and the work must be a community service on a public project. She adds that there is not enough staff in probation departments to handle this supervision and the courts will have to depend on the assistance of volunteers.

Selenium is essential but only minutely

By Jean Glowka

Q. I enjoy it when you pick a certain vitamin or mineral and give information about it. I learn a lot that way. You haven't written about selenium yet. I've been hearing about it and would like to know more.

A. Selenium is an essential mineral needed only in minute amounts by the body. It appears to work closely with vitamin E in some of its metabolic actions and in the promotion of normal body growth and fertility. It is also a natural antioxidant and seems to preserve the elasticity of tissue.

Studies of the relationship between cancer incidence and soil distribution of selenium in the United States have shown that areas with high selenium levels showed significantly lower overall male cancer death rates. And, in these areas, in both men and women, fewer cancers were found in the organ systems involved with the assimilation, metabolism and excretion of selenium.

It is recommended that selenium supplements be taken with care, as selenium can be toxic in its purest form. Selenium occurs naturally (if the soil on which plants are grown has adequate selenium levels) in the bran and germ of cereals; in vegetables such as onion, broccoli and tomatoes. It also occurs in trace amounts in sea water and tuna.

Q. My husband has quit eating eggs, but I love them and don't want to give them up. Aren't they very nutritious?

A. Yes, they are. Eggs are an exceptionally good source of complete protein. (One large egg contains seven or eight grams of top quality protein.) Eggs also contain vitamins A, B-2, D, biotin, niacin and E; copper, iron, phosphorous, biotin, lecithin and unsaturated fats.

Until next week, folks, stay happy and healthy! It's a beautiful world!

Veterans' Administration to collect interest on debts

HOUSTON—The Veterans Administration has been authorized to begin collecting monthly interest beginning next Nov. 1 on individuals' debts owed the VA through participation in its benefits program.

The VA also has been given authority to advise local consumer reporting agencies when a debtor is delinquent, thus affecting personal credit ratings, said T.W. Myatt, Director, Houston VA Regional Office.

The new VA rules are to be implemented over a two-year period, he said. They affect those debtors who don't make full repayment within 60 days after notification plans with that VA attorney based in the regional office.

Myatt said that the interest rate will be set by the U.S. Treasury, based on the rate paid for its borrowing. Administrative costs incurred in collecting those debts — much of it in GI education overpayments — also will be assessed.

Such debts currently total more than $1 billion nationally and involve 1.3 million veterans, according to the VA General Counsel's Office.

The VA began legal action nationally 16 months ago to collect debts owed it. The decision to have the VA district counsel collect individual debts of up to $1,200 or less is the result of Congressional legislation nearly three years ago and an agreement between the VA and the federal Justice Department, Myatt said.

Those interested in further information on the debt-collecting program should telephone the Houston VA Regional Office toll free at 1-800-393-2200.

Re-education needed for nation's survival

FORT WORTH — In order for this country to survive, all Americans must be re-educated, believes a biologist and former Nobel Laureate.

"I think we have to get past this feeling of utter helplessness that controls our lives and realize that we can take over control," said Dr. George Wald, in a recent forum discussion with students at Texas Christian University.

"Politics is not some dirty business carried on by dirty people," he said. "It's the only means by which society can keep itself going. The single most important element in the present American political scene is the lack of any organized political opposition to the present administration."

The real power in this country is controlled by the large corporations, Wald contends. And these corporations are supporting foreign intervention and the arms race. Every corporation on the top 100 list in America has a stake in the arms and nuclear power business.

"Not just the aerospace companies, but all the oil companies, all the telephone companies, all the electric and appliance companies. You'd be surprised at the diversification," he said. "Singer makes sewing machines and hydrogen bombs, Honeywell is the primary maker for the fragmentation bomb. As a business, nuclear weapons are almost a sideline.

"Most Americans don't know what a really large corporation is about," Wald said. "The biggest corporation in the world is Exxon. There are only 12 nations in the entire world with gross national products (GNP's) as big as the annual sales of Exxon."

The Higgins Professor Emeritus of Harvard University was on campus as guest speaker for Honors Week at TCU.

Garden expert offers tips on growing Caladiums state. The minimum low temperature is 50 degrees. When the day temperature reaches 70 degrees and the night temperature stays above 55 degrees, you may plant the Caladium tuber.

The roots grow from the top of the tuber; therefore, plant the tuber upside down and cover with one inch of soil. Plant the tuber in moist compost or vermiculite about 10 to 12 inches apart. You may add well rotted cow manure and sand to your planting medium. The Caladium should be fed every two weeks with a well balanced fertilizer such as a 20-20-20 or a 6-10-5. Remember to water regularly when the soil becomes dry around the Caladium. The Caladium may be started in pots inside and transplanted outside as the temperature rises to a safe level. When starting the Caladium in pots, a four-inch pot shall be used along with the planting medium described above.

The plants grow about a foot to 18 inches tall. The leaves resemble wet tissue paper texture. All wilted leaves should be removed. The flowers should be removed as they appear since the Caladium is grown for its foliage. The flowers are a pale pink and are usually hidden by the foliage.

When frost threatens in the fall, dig up the tubers with the soils and roots as well as the foliage attached. Then let them dry in an airy place out of the direct sun for about a week or 10 days or until the foliage can be removed by an easy pull. Then shake the dirt off the roots and dust with a fungicide and store in dry peat moss at a temperature of 55 degrees or above. You may propagate the Caladium now by cutting the tuber and leaving one eye to each piece.

We have been discussing the standard Caladium. The Dwarf Caladium which reaches only 10 inches tall can be handled in the same manner.

Caladiums do excellent in window boxes, planters, beds and pots for indoors. The best effect is moss planting in the bed and planters. The various park departments have used Caladiums well in shade areas to give the needed color to their landscapes.

There seems to be almost endless combinations of red, pink, silver, white and green Caladiums. Some of the more popular ones in this area are Candidum Silver, White Christmas White, Freida Hemple, Red-green, Red Flash-red, June Bride.

Tar and asphalt cause problems for pets, cautions veterinarian

By Dr. Hap Lutz

Dr. Lutz is a former instructor of diseases of dogs and cats in the College of Veterinary Medicine, Texas A&M University.

Treatment of Tar or Asphalt Burns
Tar and asphalt, particularly if it has recently been applied to resurface a road, can and will cause burns on the pads and skin of our pets. Both are hard to remove without inflicting further injury to the underlying tissue.

Polyoxyethylene Sorbitan is an emulsifying agent that acts as a dispersing agent. It is water soluble which makes it easy to remove from the skin. This product is safe and effective for removing surface tar and asphalt.

If a burn lesion has already developed, you can expect complete healing of the burn with minimal scarring in two weeks with this preparation.

If you have any questions concerning the health and care of your pets, please mail them to the Rockport Pilot, 1002 Wharf St., Rockport, Tx. Dr. Hap Lutz will answer them in the week-end edition.

SS rep will visit May 19

A representative of the Social Security Administration will be at the Court-hous in Rockport at 9 a.m. Wednesday, May 19.

The representative will answer questions and help claimants file applications for regular Social Security as well as for Supplemental Security Income benefits.

Be careful with canned goods, warns specialist

COLLEGE STATION — The tasty flavor of "Mom's" home-canned fruits and vegetables could be spoiled by improper storing and preparation techniques, warns Mary K. Sweeten, a food and nutrition specialist.

Recommended storage time for home-canned vegetables is up to one year in a cool, dry cupboard, she says.

Areas with extreme heat such as garages or attics should be avoided, the specialist adds.

Sweeten is on the home economics staff of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Never taste or eat canned foods that have evidence of spoilage — it may be your last meal, Sweeten warns.

Prior to using canned foods, check lids to see that they are concave and that no bulges are present, she suggests.

In addition, if any off odors or colors are evident, throw the product out, the specialist continues.

Never serve spoiled products to your pets either, as it could be just as dangerous to them as yourself, Sweeten warns.

As an extra safety precaution, the USDA recommends that all home-canned low-acid products (vegetables except tomaatoes) be boiled for 10-15 minutes over an electric or gas stove-top burner before serving, she points out.

A product such as green beans containing liquid wouldn't need to boil as long as a thicker food like cream style or creamed corn, the specialist adds.

For example, boil green beans 10 minutes and the creamed corn 15 minutes.

Foods most often involved in botulism poisoning (often called food poisoning) are corn, spinach, green beans, peppers and asparagus, she notes.

Heat, during boiling, will destroy the clostridium botulinum toxin which may have formed if canning failed, Sweeten notes.

Vegetables should be able to withstand this heat treatment without the loss of quality, she adds.

As of today, the USDA doesn't recommend that home-canned vegetables be placed in the microwave for safety precautions as explained above, according to Milton Baldauf, Home Economics and Human Nutrition Unit, Extension Service, Washington, D.C.

It is difficult to know when the entire mass of the product has reached its boiling point in the microwave oven in order to begin timing.

Amount and density of food, type, size and shape of container used, whether the container absorbs microwaves or not and the location of cold spots in the oven will all be variables when trying to determine timing of the microwave, Sweeten notes.

Such variables make it impossible to recommend a time period to cook vegetables and destroy any toxins present, the specialist points out.

Hence, you should avoid heating your home-canned foods by this unproven method, Sweeten says.

High school to receive trophy for blood donations

For the third year in a row, Rockport-Fulton High School will receive a trophy again this year for having the highest percentage of blood donors from a school of its size.

During the year to date, according to Chester Barre, RFHS principal, students through the Blood Club sponsored by the National Honor Society have donated 200 pints of blood.

A total of 107 of those pints were donated on Wednesday, April 28, Barre noted, adding that approximately 39 percent of the eligible RFHS students gave blood just on that one day.

Donations are credited at the Community Blood Bank in Corpus Christi and are primarily for members of the Blood Club, their families and officials or employees of the school district — although the blood may also be used by other Aransas County residents provided 50 percent of credits are maintained for member use, Barre continued.

During the past year, Barre said, the club has provided 50 pints of blood to a father of one of the high school students and to an employee of the school district.

The RFHW Blood Club

makes an effort to provide for the needs of the individual donor for five years, his or her immediate family for one year, school district employees or retired employees and school board members or former members.

Nema Bardin — Rep.

3.5 million teens are alcoholics

Emphasis on drug abuse among teenagers generally has overshadowed the problem of alcoholism.

About 3.5 million teenagers in the United States are alcoholics, according to the National Council on Alcoholism. Three of every four teen-agers drink, and one out of five gets drunk at least once a month.

The Texas Medical Association says alcohol is involved in 60 to 70 percent of teen deaths resulting from accidents and suicides — which statistics show are the two leading causes of death in youths. The real cause, therefore, is related to how alcohol affects behavior. Alcohol simultaneously increases aggression or risk-taking while it decreases motor skills.

Most frequently the teen-age victim is driving while intoxicated or is killed by an intoxicated driver. In other cases, the accident can involve a gun or knife. In addition, close to a majority of youths who get in trouble with the law have committed the illegal act while under the influence of alcohol.

What can be done about the problem?

Soil care and conservation is focus of week

COLLEGE STATION — Soil Stewardship Week annually focuses on the care and conservation of our soil, water and related resources.

This year's observance is set for May 16-23, with the theme: "A Time for Tenacity."

"Tenacity (firmness or persistence) is needed in using our natural resources wisely and in conserving them for future generations," points out Dr. B.L. Harris, soils specialist with the Texas Agriculture Extension Service, Texas A&M University System.

"We need to give particular attention to creative conservation and management practices to protect our precious land and water resources," emphasizes Harris. "Everyone has a personal responsibility to care for the soil, water and other vital elements making up our environment."

America's farmers who till the soil are particularly concerned about the loss of valuable cropland to urbanization and other uses, notes the specialist.

"We must protect our soil resources because we depend on them for the food we eat as well as for the food we ship abroad," notes Harris. "Our farmers work hard to protect this nation's soil and water resources, and each one produces enough to feed 70 other people."

"We should applaud the work of our farmers and ranchers in using our natural resources wisely," adds Harris. "At the same time we need to pledge our support and efforts to become actively involved in caring for these precious resources that have set this country apart from the rest of the world."

Tucker, a man who knows how to get things done

Fred Tucker of Nashville, Tenn., has always been a man in a hurry to get things done. At 16, he got married, graduated from high school and enlisted in the Marines — in that order — even though he had to hedge a bit on his age. That was in 1957. Eight years later he was in Vietnam, a warrant officer. There he served two combat tours, was commissioned in the field, and received six decorations for gallantry, serving in seven campaigns. When he returned home to his wife Nancy and sons Rick and Ron in 1970, he was eager to get on with his career. Five years ago when he retired as a major from the Marine Corps, he had earned his Bachelor's degree, and was on his way to earning his Master's degree in communications, which he received from Boston University in 1979.

Although engaged first in communications on a college campus and then as a retail sales manager for a large carpet concern, Tucker devoted much of his spare time to veteran's affairs. In fact, it's been said of him that he discovered the secret to the 26-hour day.

On Oct. 4 of last year, he was very much involved in the organization of Nashville's salute to Vietnam veterans, and his original poem, "Nine Million and Fifty-Two", honoring Vietnam vets and Iranian hostages was read to the assembled. Working with him was his friend, John Furgess, who suggest that Tucker take time to meet with some fellow Vietnam veterans down from the ACTION office in Washington, D.C. The meeting turned into an all-day session.

As a result of it, Tucker took a leave of absence from his position with Carpet Barn Inc. and, at considerable financial sacrifice, became the Executive Director of Nashville's Vietnam Veterans Leadership program sponsored by ACTION. John Furgess signed in as administrative director, and on Jan. 1, 1982, organizational activities got under way, the pair taking up the challenge in typical Marine Corps fashion. Six weeks later on Feb. 16, the program was ready to be launched. In the interim, Tucker had assembled a 20-member advisory council, comprising a broad cross section of community leaders. He had briefed Nashville's Mayor, Richard Fulton, and Governor Lamar Alexander, both of whom announced their full support. Office space was provided in the State Office of the Commission of Veterans Affairs. The purpose of the leadership program was gone over in detail with the applicable veterans and social agencies, and employment services were clued in on the program's aims. Fred and John had two priorities — to let their fellow Vietnam veterans they were in business to help unemployed Vietnam vets find work. In their first week of operations, they received over 100 inquiries. Tucker has developed a

County treasurers' seminar to be held at A & M

COLLEGE STATION — Some 100 county treasurers from across Texas are expected to take part in the 10th Annual County Treasurers' Seminar at Texas A&M University May 17-19.

Seminar headquarters will be the Ramada Inn, with registration starting at 1 p.m. the first day.

Theme for the seminar is "A Treasury of Education

...the Key to Success."

This year's program is designed to give county treasurers more opportunity to share ideas and discuss issues pertinent to their work, points out John Gilmartin, coordinator of the V.G. Young Institute of County Government, a part of the Texas Agricultural Extension Service, which is sponsoring the seminar in cooperation with the County

Treasurers Association of Texas.

County treasurers will address such topics as court-house dealings, depository contracts, investment of county funds and alternate methods of finance.

Several distinguished speakers will be on the agenda to share their experience with the county officials, notes Gilmartin. Guest speakers will include

State Treasurer Warren G. Harding; Larry McNeill, Austin attorney; Doug Aurand, board chairman of the National Association of County Treasurers and Finance Officers; Ronnie Jackson, Extension fiscal and management affairs officer; Larry Lilly, Bryan businessman; and Mickey Deison, co-chairman of the County Officials Advisory Committee to the Governor.

The County Treasurers Association was organized in 1949 under the guidance of W.B. "Bill" Gurley, former Tarrant County treasurer. Today, most of Texas' 254 county treasurers are active members of the association, notes Gilmartin.

Fisheries experts know where the fish like to be

COLLEGE STATION — Fisheries experts at Texas A&M University are successfully doing what anglers throughout history have attempted — finding where fish like to congregate.

The result of the research will not only be a boon for commercial fishermen but will also help fisheries scientists manage fish populations and avoid over-fishing.

Led by Dr. Mark Chittenden, researchers from the university's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences are identifying the distribution of fish populations along the Continental Shelf in the northwestern portion of the Gulf.

"While people generally know about the kinds of fish that can be caught in the Gulf, such as Atlantic croaker, the silver seatrout or the Gulf butterfish, little is really known about the fishes," said Chittenden. "There's some general knowledge, but nobody has ever closely looked at the composition of the fish communities, how abundant they are, how large the fish grow, their life cycles or their spawning habits," he said.

Working aboard commercial shrimp trawlers for the last four years, the Texas A&M researchers have already detailed life histories of the longspine porgy, sand seatrout, silver seatrout, Gulf butterfish and the Atlantic croaker. Yet to be completed are studies on the habits and characteristics of the band-ed drum, Atlantic cutlassfish, rock sea bass, Atlantic wenchman and the southern kingfish, said Chittenden.

The primary purpose of the study is to provide the fishing industry descriptions of the distributions, compositions and abundance of fish communities with the life histories and population dynamics of the fishes. The ultimate goal is to put together "yield models" that will help determine how to harvest and manage these resources. The information is forwarded to agencies that regulate the fishing industry, Chittenden said, such as the National Marine Fisheries Service, Texas Parks and Wildlife Department or the Gulf of Mexico Fisheries Management Council, and to agencies such as the Marine Advisory Service, which disseminates findings to the public.

"Fishes of shrimp communities in the Gulf can withstand extensive fishing without danger of over-harvesting because of the rapid turnover in their populations," Chittenden said. "Because of the nature of their life cycles — they typically have a life span of one to three years — they have great fisheries potential."

Redfish hatchery groundbreaking held

CORPUS CHRISTI — Groundbreaking ceremonies were held at the site of a saltwater fish hatchery which is expected to be the world's largest just outside Corpus Christi on April 27.

The $1.2 million facility when completed in about eight months will represent a unique cooperative effort among Central Power and Light Co. (CP&L), The Gulf Coast Conservation Association (GCCA) and the Texas Parks and Wildlife Department (TP&WD).

The facility is to be located adjacent to the CP&L's Barney M. Davis Power Station at Flour Bluff on the outskirts of Corpus Christi.

The hatchery facility is expected to triple the TP&WD's annual production of red drum (redfish) for restocking Texas bays when operations are begun.

Land, access to warm power plant discharge waters and brood fish will be provided by the CP&L; most of the funding is being provided by the 10,000-member GCCA and TP&WD will provide manpower and normal operating expenses.

Bob Kemp, TP&WD Fisheries Division Director, said proven redfish culture techniques developed at the department's research facility at Palacios will be utilized at the Flour Bluff facility. Redfish will be induced to spawn in indoor tanks through light/photoperiod manipulations, then the fry will be placed in 10 outdoor rearing ponds to grow to stocking size.

"This is the first instance where a group of concerned sportsmen and a public utility have pooled their resources and talent to aid in conservation project of this magnitude," Kemp said.

The hatchery has been a long-term fundraising project of the GCCA, and officials of the sportsmen's organization said more than three-fourths of the $1.2 million already has been raised. "This (the hatchery) is not just something for the distant future," said the GCCA's Chuck Weil. "Redfish grow at a rate of one inch every 10 or 15 days in their first few months of life, and at two years are about 20 inches long."

"We are already seeing increased numbers of redfish in the bays which probably are a result of stocking programs already conducted by the TP&WD, and this new facility could triple their output," Weil said.

If construction is completed as scheduled, the first production of redfish fingerlings could occur by April or May, 1983. Officials hope to produce two crops of fingerlings every year, totaling four to six million annually.

Merle Borchelt, president of CP&L, said "Our company is particularly pleased to participate in this program. We have long been aware of the potential uses of our thermally-enriched water."

"In fact, we already are cooperating with Texas A&M University on an extensive mariculture project, research production of shrimp in hatchery ponds," he said.

Spohn seeks permit for cardiac monitor system

KINGSVILLE — A Certificate of Need (CON) application for Spohn Hospital in Corpus Christi for purchase of a cardiac monitoring system will be considered in a meeting of the South Texas Health Systems Agency Saturday, May 15.

The meeting is set to begin at 1 p.m. at the Round Table Restaurant in Kingsville.

According to the application, once the equipment goes into operation, 1,400 heart catheterizations are expected to be performed during the first year of operation with revenues amounting to $840,000 while expenses would be $303,143.

The proposed project will be an upgrading of an existing service rather than a new service.

Also scheduled during the May STHSA meeting is a CON application by Retama Manor West of Laredo, proposing elimination of 40 custodial beds from the facility.

The STHSA will review the applications and recommend approval or disapproval of the two projects to the Texas Health Facilities Commission in Austin.

The incident was under investigation this week.

Police busy at end of week

In a busy end-of-the-week period, Rockport police made four arrests on charges of public intoxication, one on a charge of driving while intoxicated and one warrant arrest between Thursday, May 6, and Sunday, May 9.

They were also called to investigate a theft of cash and an incident in which a telephone receiver was thrown through a window.

Two of the public intoxication arrests and the DWI were made on Saturday. One arrest was made on a charge of public intoxication on Thursday and one on Friday.

The warrant arrest was made Sunday, about 1:30 p.m., when police picked up William Karlee Cox, 19, wanted on a charge of class "C" assault. The alleged incident occurred on April 28. Bond has been set at $200 in the case.

In another incident Saturday, police were called to a local grocery store where an employee, Lori Ann Reiter, said an envelope containing cash was taken from her purse between 5:30 and 6 p.m.

The telephone receiver was reported thrown through a window at a convenience store on South Bronte earlier in the week, between 10 p.m. Tuesday, May 4, and 8 a.m. Wednesday.

The incident was under investigation this week.

Dr. Milton Weller accepts Kleberg chair at Texas A&M

COLLEGE STATION — One of the most eminent wildlife scientists of the nation today, Dr. Milton Weller of the University of Minnesota, has accepted the prestigious Caesar Kleberg Chair in Wildlife Ecology in Texas A&M University's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences.

Weller is scheduled to begin his Texas A&M assignment on Aug. 1.

Dr. H.O. Kunkel, A&M's dean of agriculture, in announcing Weller's acceptance of the Caesar Kleberg Chair, said the selection was made from among some 58 candidates, including virtually all the leading wildlife ecologists in the world.

"We believe Dr. Weller's leading expertise in ecology and wildlife management will add a dimension to our university and Experiment Station that meshes well with major research needs in Texas and the intent of the recently-established Chair," Kunkel said.

Kunkel emphasized that the impact of intensive land use, competing alternatives for water resources and the opportunity for economic and wise use of our wildlife resources will demand the development and application of cutting edge technology.

"We believe that Dr. Weller can provide outstanding research leadership in these areas which will be highly important in all of Texas, but particularly in the state's coastal zone and the Rio Grande Plain of South Texas," said Dr. Wallace Klusman, professor and head of A&M's Department of Wildlife and Fisheries Sciences.

Commenting on his Texas A&M assignment, Weller said: "The Kleberg Chair is both a great honor and a challenge, and will fulfill a long-term desire to conduct research in Southern Texas. My special interest in the wildlife of coastal wetlands should complement interests of the excellent group of wildlife scientists already at A&M, and together I hope we can further strengthen the program in the understanding, conservation and wise use of the many wildlife resources of Texas."

He emphasized that Texas has an exciting diversity and richness of wildlife resources, offering great esthetic, recreational and economic benefits. "As population and development increase, it is vital that resource management go hand-in-hand to preserve the esthetic and economic benefits of this vast resource," Weller said.

"Through research and studies by graduate students, I have long recognized the richness and importance of the Texas coastal wetlands resource.

"I look forward with excitement to this opportunity to focus my research on this important resource," Weller said.

Besides research and teaching, other functions of Dr. Weller will be the development of effective program liaison with other universities, private organizations, state and federal agencies, consulting firms and other national and international research organizations, Klusman said.

"We believe Dr. Weller's appointment will measurably increase our national stature as a leading department in wildlife ecology and add credibility to the Kleberg research program, which is funded by the Caesar Kleberg Foundation for Wildlife Conservation," Klusman said.

The Kleberg Chair was endowed by a grant from the Caesar Kleberg Foundation for Wildlife Conservation and will receive additional support from Texas A&M and the Texas Agricultural Experiment Station.

Weller is considered a foremost authority in both wetlands research and wildlife management through participation in scientific and professional societies, including the American Institute of Biological Science, American Fisheries Society, Ecological Society of America, Entomological Society of America, International Wild Waterfowl Association and the Wildlife Society, where he has served on the editorial board and on national committees.

He is a Fellow in the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the American Ornithologists' Union, and has presented numerous scientific papers at wetlands workshops and wildlife management seminars in many areas of the world.

Weller has served as professor and head of the Department of Entomology, Fisheries and Wildlife at the University of Minnesota for the past eight years, where he was active in research seminars in project design and grantsmanship as well as in wetlands seminars and in teaching.

Earlier, he served as professor-in-charge of the AUSTIN — Railroad Commission Chairman Jim Nugent announced that Texas operators reported 126 gas and oil discoveries in April, 1982.

Applications to drill, deepen, plug back and for service wells in April amounted to 2,767 against 3,585 a year earlier.

Operators filed 898 amended applications to drill. A year earlier they submitted 811 amended requests.

Eye examination is a preschool must, says health specialist

COLLEGE STATION — Youngsters off to school for the first time should have their eyes examined before entering, suggests Dr. Mary Ann Shirer, a health education specialist. Summertime is a good time to take care of this, she says.

Shirer is on the home economics staff, Texas Agricultural Extension Service, The Texas A&M University System.

Unfortunately, the specialist points out, far too many parents wait to see if the school uncovers any sight problems before taking children to have an eye exam. "Many kids can have poor vision in both eyes but that's all they know, and they think that's the way everybody sees," she says.

Prime candidates for eye exams are children between ages four to six, Shirer notes.

Warning signs of vision problems parents can watch for are constant squinting, especially to see things in the distance, and holding everything very close to the eyes, the specialist says.

Home rule

"will have an easier job" than its predecessor since it will only be necessary to upgrade the 1979 report.

Once the steering committee has made its report, if the city proves to have the needed population, Johnson said the council must call an election for the 15-member charter commission. He added the only time the city can hold a special election this year is on Aug. 14 and the election would have to be called no later than June 14 to meet the deadline.

Newest council member Richard Beck, appointed to the council last month to fill a vacancy, suggested that the previous charter could be used "at least as a guideline" so the charter commission, if elected, wouldn't be starting with nothing.

Alderman Murray McMillan, another member of the 1979 charter commission, in explaining his desire for Home Rule for the city said, "We want some way to control ourselves so the people down the road don't control us."

Officials pointed out that, although a Home Rule city is governed by state laws, it has more leeway in controlling its own affairs than does a general law city — Rockport's current status.

On the subject of the 40 percent tax exemption requested by ACTA, Beck summed up what appeared to be the consensus of the council saying, "I think not knowing any more than we know (about the city's 1982 tax revenues), it would be totally irresponsible of us to grant this."

That was at the end of a discussion that began with a presentation by Johnson who commented, "I think at this time, the (ACTA) request is out of line because of the complete re-appraisal of the county. At this time, the appraisal district — and the city — don't know what the values will be."

Johnson pointed out that the city granted a $5,000 general homestead exemption — the minimum allowable under the new state law — and dropped the tax rate from $1.20 per $100 valuation to 60 cents per $100 valuation when the state law required that all taxes be based on 100 percent of fair market value.

The city had based its $1.20 assessments on a rate of 40 percent of fair market value.

"In 1983," Johnson told the council, "the city will have an idea about the property values, (but) at this time, I would recommend to the council not to take action. I don't think this is the time to do it."

Mitch Ammons, president of ACTA, agreed with Johnson that "We don't know at this time what the values will be." But, he said, the 40 percent homestead exemption was created by the Texas legislature because of what the legislature saw as an inequity in the tax laws.

Pointing out that property owners voted for the amendment that created the general homestead exemption, Ammons said, "I think you have a legal base and a moral obligation to set the rate the taxpayers voted on."

Johnson said the city could grant the $5,000 general exemption without causing any financial problems to the city. He emphasized that at this time, city officials do not know the financial impact on the city.

of a 40 percent exemption.

In action that was taken Monday, the council set next Monday, May 17, at 7 p.m. as the date and time for meeting with city officials of Aransas Pass. The meeting, in Rockport's City Hall, is at the request of the Aransas Pass mayor and city council.

The council approved an agreement with H.E.B. for the closing of Mimosa Street between Austin and Magnolia and voted to quitclaim the property to the grocery company. The agreement specifies that if H.E.B. does not begin new construction on the property within five years, the street will revert back to the city. H.E.B. also agreed to pay the city the appraised price of $68,000 for the property, in addition to the $750 appraiser's fee and legal fees.

The council authorized a letter to be mailed to the attorney representing Bahia Bay Subdivision and Alice Specialty Company setting out terms under which the city of Rockport would furnish water to culties" involved with granting the exemption. The difficulties included the fact that "granting an exemption of this type to property owners does not lower taxes"; the granting of the 40 percent would leave homeowners with two automatic, unavoidable tax increases in 1985 and 1987; the percentage of exemption was based on property value and homeowners with more valuable property would receive more of an exemption; any new exemptions would "grossly distort" the present tax rate and finally, the local appraisal office would be forced to spend money on extra computer software to assimilate the exemption changeover onto the present tax rolls.

Summing up the two views of the exemption, Judge Wendell states, "This is the two developments on Highway 35 South. Included in the provisions is that Bahia Bay and Alice Specialty would pay for the costs of installing 12-inch water lines.

Approval was given to a proposal for repainting the ground storage tank at Gagon and Liberty, for an estimated cost of $2,000, and to advertise for bids for the addition of a Handi-Lift Container Handling Device to an existing packer. Bid opening date was set for May 24.

Also agreed upon was the city's share of payment of the Emergency Management Coordinator's salary. Established under the new Emergency Management Program, conducted jointly by the cities of Rockport and Fulton and Aransas County, the Emergency Management Coordinator — Ammons — will receive a salary of $200 per month. The State of Texas will pay $100 with the balance being paid locally. Aransas County will pay $70, Rockport $25 and Fulton $5 under the proposal.

A list of streets was approved for seal coating and/or paving but no action was taken at this time on a request that Picton Lane in Little Bay Shores be curbed and guttered.

An organization chart originally presented to the city council two months ago but not acted on at that time was approved in Monday's meeting.

Formal approval was given an ordinance amending the city zoning ordinance. The amendments, including one to allow fences in front yards, were approved at the council's April 26 meeting.

A request by The Harbor Oaks Property Owners Association for city police to patrol the waterways in Harbor Oaks was approved.

The council received the monthly police and animal control reports and the quarterly fire department report and approved the list of bills paid between April 7 and May 6.

briefly by the board. These included surfacing the area on the west side of the junior high school next to the new cafeteria. In the past, this has been a problem area since grass will not grow due to the heavy student traffic across it. At rainy times the area becomes muddy. Discussed was a plan that would concrete the whole area, leaving planter boxes around the trees.

Also discussed by the board was paving the back parking lot between the band hall and the new library and air conditioning the Rockport Elementary Cafeteria. No decision was made on these areas and discussion was brief.

Some question as to the use of the interest money was raised by board member DeDe Dick. Dick asked Randow if the funds had to be used for building and not, as she suggested, paying part of the bond back. Randow, in his agenda notes and in his answer to Dick, said the funds had to be used on construction or facility improvements.

Other board action included a vote passing a resolution honoring Rockport Fulton High School students who have achieved the state level in University Interscholastic League competition. This action is traditional and the students will each receive a framed copy of the resolution. The resolution will be published in the Pilot.

The board heard a report from Randow on the football field lights. Three of the light poles on the field have been discussed by the board in the previous two meetings. The poles are worn and warped and replacement is necessary. At this point the plan for new poles, with new light units, would take down three more unnecessary poles and put all lights on one master meter, eliminating three other meters. Wiring would be underground and the lights would be placed behind the track. The board plans to put the work to be done out for bids.

The board heard a report on the latest series of Texas Assessment of Basic Skills tests, as wide as it is long. If you take money from one place, it's got to be paid by someone else."

Wendell repeatedly advised the commissioners that if an exemption was granted, it should be for the full 40 percent, to avoid further protests from the community.

Prior to the court's decision to pass the item until a workshop, ACTA president Mitch Ammons spoke, rebutting point by point the letter from the law firm. Also speaking, voicing his opinion against the exemption was Ed Armstrong. Armstrong, attending the meeting as a regular representative from the Chamber of Commerce, spoke as an individual, not for the chamber, and said, "I'd like to get away with not paying taxes too, but I like to have my garbage picked up, and have a city sewer and have police protection." Armstrong also said, "I don't see how you (the court) can do it. Besides, I think $5,000 sounds pretty good, compared to what we have been getting." At this point, County Tax Assessor-Collector Allena Jones informed Armstrong, "You have been getting $7,300."

Following the exemption discussion, the court commissioners dispatched the rest of the short agenda, deciding on a new insurance plan for county employees, granting a raise of salary for the sheriff's chief deputy and voting to let new county treasurer Marvin Wix attend a seminar at Texas A&M.

administered in February to grades three, five and nine. These objectives tests cover the basic skills and are mandated by the Texas Legislature. Students are tested against the objectives, not each other, explained Randow Monday.

In the fifth, the math percentage was 79, the reading 76 and writing 82.

aliases, rented the room at the Ramada Inn and waited for Grantham and the other five men. "The marijuana was stashed nearby," Steadman said, "and we had the authority to flash up to 1,000 pounds."

The DEA agent added that the six men were under surveillance "from the time they arrived in Austin" and said as soon as they produced the cash in the motel room, they were arrested.

All six were charged with conspiracy to possess and distribute marijuana and one other man, Charles Gray Parker, 47, of North Carolina, was placed under $200,000 bond.

The remaining four were placed under $150,000 bond. They include Parker's son,

In the ninth grade, an 80 percent was the math average of mastery, 71 percent the average for reading and 80 percent for writing.

In an executive session, the board accepted the resignations of Deborah Ash and R.N. Villarreal.

New employees hired at the session were Cindy Eschenburg, Donna Janota, Angela Picton, Linda Arnold and Michael Menefee.

VA news

Q — I am in college under the VA Rehabilitation Program. Who pays for the tuition and books?

A — The VA pays the college directly for cost of tuition, fees, and books for disabled veterans pursuing a vocational rehabilitation program authorized through Vocational Rehabilitation and Counseling staff at VA regional offices.

Q — Can I use my entitlement for a home loan and go to school under the GI Bill at the same time?

A — Yes. There is no restriction on receiving both of the benefits concurrently. However, VA education benefits are not considered as qualifying income for a long term VA home loan.

One of the newest businesses in town is Robinson's Air Conditioning and Appliance. Sam Robertson has been running the business part time for about a year and a half, but the change to full time is a new development.

Formerly an employee of the Reynold's aluminum plant, Robertson decided to turn his part time business into a full time one and wants all his customers to know. He is also hoping for some new customers to take advantage of the quality and low prices he offers. Robertson sells and services air conditioners and all major appliances. He deals in most brands, and since he has no showroom, when he orders an appliance for a customer the price saving from his low overhead is passed on.

At present, Robertson is working out of his truck, with the aid of an answering service but he hopes to get a shop location soon.

He charges a set amount for his calls and is available seven days a week, in case of breakdowns and other emergencies.

"This is a competitive field, but there's a lot of work and sometimes it's hard to get hold of anyone to do it," says Robertson, who adds that he is not hard to get hold of. "I'm available for my customers," he states.

The important aspect of his work is quality. "You have to do a good job if you're going to make it," he emphasizes.

Robertson's phone number is 729-6517.

Also, a living room, kitchen, dining area, and the three bedrooms and two baths. Lots of extras, including the circular drive with rock garden, the goldfish pond, a long deck on the bayfront, a workroom with bench and shelves, and a protected shower for your guests off the beach. $149,900

GET OUT THE EASY CHAIRS - Then decide which deck to sit on: the northside screened-in deck that connects with all the bedrooms, or the canal-side open-air deck for good tanning. (Either way you win.) Inside, the split level plan accommodates 3 bedrooms and 2 baths on the top level; a comfortable kitchen, den and dining area on the mid-level; and another bedroom and bath, tackle room, and full-size utility/storage room downstairs. Complete with fenced backyard, 2 car garage; boat dock with fishing lights, boat ramp, and fish-cleaning table. $200,000

A MIRRORED EXERCISE BAR AND WEIGHT ROOM are just two of the personal touches added during recent remodeling. You can take the basic house for granted: 4 bedrooms, 3 baths, 2 kitchens, wet bar, a boat dock, a waterside fish-cleaning table. But there are also numerous eye-catchers - like the mirrored plant alcove accenting the second-floor dining area; or the ground floor sun room with built-in shelves; the spiral staircase of the mirrored Jacuzzi in the master bath; lots more to see. $249,500
WINDOWS, WINDOWS, EVERYWHERE - To let in plenty of sunshine and to let you picture a wide view of Aransas Bay. The den in fact, is windows on 3 sides with a fireplace centered on the middle wall. Three bedrooms upstairs are larger than the usual, with walk-in closets and complemented with wet bar, guest bath and full size utility/craft room. Other extras include the front and back decks, a fish-cleaning table, boat dock, and the fact that you'd be the first owner of this brand new home. $264,000

Realty customers are a changing lot

Brokers and home builders in Texas are having to adapt their products and sales techniques to a changing set of customers.

Statistically, the population of Texas is becoming older. Half of all Texans were over 28 years old in 1980. The mid-point age in 1970 was about 26-1/2. During this same time, the population below age 20 dropped from nearly 40 percent to about 34 percent, and the proportion of people 65 or over rose from less than nine percent to almost 10 percent.

This aging trend is due to declining fertility rates, the aging of the post-World War II baby boom group and increasing longevity. These changes have implications for the "mix" of housing.

Builders, lenders and brokers have been adjusting their businesses to meet the changing conditions.

If you can't or don't want to make a large down payment, you may need to get mortgage insurance when you buy a home.

If a mortgage is "insured" or "guaranteed," it means the lender is protected in case you can't pay back the loan. Therefore, the lender is willing to make a larger loan because the risk is limited.

Mortgage insurance may be obtained from the Federal Housing Administration (FHA), Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) or from a private mortgage guarantee from the Veterans Administration (VA). Such "GI" loans require very low down payments.

Mortgage insurance costs are paid with your regular payment to the lender. With mortgage insurance, you may need to pay only three to 10 percent down on the appraised value of the house. The lender, be FHA or the VA, will determine the appraised value.

During the 1970s, high inflation encouraged relaxed investment strategies. To make money, all some investors had to do was buy, hold, then sell. Such passive investment was profitable then. Inflation was high and everything else remained rather constant.

Today things are changing. Lenders are getting some of these passive profits through mortgages that carry high interest rates along with principle balances that increase rather than decrease and shares of the appreciation.

Real estate investors can make a profit only by making the value of their property increase faster than the rate of inflation. This often calls for property improvements and renovations. There's more to buying and selling in today's real estate market than just buying and selling.

Texas businesses are using creative financing to help sell housing.

In one plan, a Dallas builder matches investors and persons looking for a place to live. This program pairs a person who wants to occupy a condominium with a nonresident investor.

Both parties benefit. The occupant, with the investor's help, can qualify for an affordable loan. The investor gets a tax break and one-half of the condominium's appreciation.

In another plan, a Houston firm is using an idea called shared-appreciation equity. Here, a person who needs a place to live creates a joint venture with an investor.

The future occupant then leases a unit from the joint venture. The nonresident investor again gets tax and appreciation benefits. The occupant gets a place to live at an affordable price and also shares in the appreciation of the property.

If you plan to sell real estate and finance part of that sale by taking back a note, here's some important tax information.

If you plan to sell real estate and finance part of that sale by taking back a note, here's some important tax information.

The Internal Revenue Service has raised the minimum stated interest rate for installment sales from six percent to nine percent. This means you must state an interest rate

CCSU holds commencement Friday

In recognition of Corpus Christi State University's 5,000th graduate, the 1982 Spring Commencement exercises will focus on the role of the alumni. More than 200 degrees will be conferred at 7:30 p.m. on Friday, May 14, at Bayfront Plaza Auditorium.

Alumni Association president Anita Turner will trace events pertinent to the organization of the new Alumni Association. The association began organizing last fall.

AT CCSU, Mrs. Turner earned a bachelor of business administration degree in 1978. In 1980, she graduated from University of Texas Law School, and is now an attorney with the Kleberg, Dyer, Redford and Weil law firm of Corpus Christi.

A Corpus Christi native, Mrs. Turner is married to Sylvan "Bud" Turner.

Three injured in accidents

Three persons were injured in separate accidents on farm-market roads in Aransas County late last week — including an 18-year-old Laredo woman who was pinned under a pickup truck for more than half an hour.

The woman, Vickie Palacios, was treated and released from Coastal Bend Hospital in Aransas Pass after Aransas County paramedics, aided by a wrecker service, lifted the truck off her following an accident on FM 1781 about 11:22 p.m. Friday, May 7.

Chief Paramedic Bill

Aston of the Aransas County Emergency Medical Service (EMS) said Palacios was in a marshy area in about a foot of water when rescuers arrived on the scene. When freed, at about 11:55 p.m., she was suffering from lacerations and abrasions but no serious injuries, according to Aston.

Also injured in the mishap — and treated and released from Coastal Bend — was John Murphy, 17, of Rockport. Aston said the accident occurred when the pickup in which the two were riding went off the road.

In an earlier car-pickup collision Thursday afternoon, May 6, Pat Nava, 17, of Rockport was reported injured. Nava was admitted to Coastal Bend Hospital suffering a possible concussion, according to the paramedics' report.

Barn owls are subject of study

KINGSVILLE — There's a certain magic about owls that gives them members of the bird kingdom a special appeal for young and old.

Nursery rhymes, tales of ghosts and goblins and mystery stories have romanticized these nocturnal creatures, and scientists have delved into the secrets of their existence.

For the past year barn owls have been the subject of an ecological study undertaken at the Caesar Kleberg Wildlife Research Institute at Texas A&I University.

Carey Byrd, Texas A&I graduate student from Kingsville, tagged 17 owls with radio transmitters to collect data on their home range, habitat use and the types of prey they consume.

"Some types of research," notes Byrd, "are undertaken with the specific idea of developing new management programs and applying the knowledge in some way. This study was chosen just so we could learn more about the animal — a more basic kind of research."

"We were interested in learning just how far barn owls would travel in search of food and we also hoped to disprove the assumption that they prey heavily on quail and other game birds," he added.

The year-long project involved trapping the owls, tagging them with radio transmitters, and releasing them so their movements could be monitored.

"Normally barn owls are trapped in their roosts with a net," said the researcher.

"Their habitat may be abandoned structures, such as old houses, deer blinds and barns, or any place without human interference. However, their extensive use of human structures for roost sites make them somewhat dependent on man."

Trapped owls were fitted with lightweight, battery-powered transmitters attached to the birds in a backpack fashion. The transmitters had an effective range of one half to one mile.

Each bird was tracked at least twice a week for four or five hours between dusk and dawn.

"Owls are nocturnal and tend to concentrate at dusk or just before sunrise," noted Byrd. "My usual procedure was to return to the roost site with the receiver and directional antenna. Then, by taking several readings from pre-determined sites, I could pinpoint the bird's location using compass readings."

The average home range for the radio-tagged owls was 465 acres. Some owls covered as much as 1,081 acres while only one traveled 115 acres.

One possible explanation for the extremes in home range is the amount of available habitat and ecotone in a region, observed Byrd.

Ecotone is an area of mixed vegetation where different habitats come together such as a fence row beside a cultivated field or the meeting point between a cultivated field and a pasture.

Other research has established that all animal populations are higher around ecotones because of the increased availability of food, Byrd explained.

If an owl lives where the majority of land is under cultivation, then little ecotone vegetation exists and its search for food covered a greater area.

An investigation of 1,000 owl pellets further established the relationship between ecotone and home range.

"Rodents most commonly live in the high grasses and brush bordering a field or fence row," said Byrd. "Pellet examinations confirmed that rats and mice comprise the bulk of the barn owl's diet."

He discovered that 70 percent of a barn owl's diet, by weight, was cotton rats, followed by deer mice, other rats and mice, rabbits shrews and gophers.

"Owls swallow their prey whole," explained Byrd.
