NAVAL OFFICER MISSING WITH GOBS' PAYROLL

Aged Howard Ehmke Stands Chicago Cubs On Their Ears To Win For Athletics

GANGLING OLD HURLER TAKES GAME BY 3 TO 1

New World Series Mark for Strikeouts Made by Philadelphian

By DAMON RUNYON

WRIGLEY FIELD, Chicago, Ill., Oct. 8.—A long-legged knock-kneed, loose-jointed supplicant shambled into the presence of old Cornelius McGillicuddy, the master mind of Philadelphia's Athletics this morning.

"Mist Connie, sir," implored the caller, "you lemme pitch today's game against these Cubs. You f'get about Earnshaw or any of our cock-eyed pitchers, and lemme pitch. It's my last season in baseball, and I'll stand 'em on their ears, I'll do it, Mist Connie, sir, as sure as eggs is eggs."

"Howard," replied Cornelius McGillicuddy, a wan smile lighting his thin features, "I've been looking for a man to stand these Cubs on their ears, and you shall have the job. Yes, sir, Howard Ehmke, you shall pitch today, not only in honor of your last season in baseball, but because if there is any way I'd love to see these Cubs, it is standing on their ears."

And that's about the way Howard left 'em in the gloaming on a pleasant autumnal day at the close of the first game of the world's series of 1929—on their ears.

The great Hornsby, the mighty Hack Wilson, the marvelous English, the sparkling Cuyler, and all the rest—all on their ears.

Thirty-five years old, and on his way out of the big league roar and whirl, to engage in the prosaic pursuit of making covers for baseball diamonds against the inclemencies of the weather, Howard Ehmke held the slashing Cubs in the very hollow of his greasy old glove this afternoon, striking out 13 of them for new world's series record, and leading the Philadelphia Athletics to a 3 to 1 victory, in the opening of baseball's tussle for the world's title.

"Howard," said old Cornelius McGillicuddy, at the close of the game, shaking the fist that had flourished with hypnotic gesture before the

Two School Children Killed by Automobile

JONESBURG, Mo., Oct. 8. (US)—Two children were killed here today while en route to school when an automobile crashed into them.

The children were Agnes Kribben, 14, and Evelyn Bolton, 12, of Jonesburg. The accident occurred when Harvey Easley of Macon, attempted to pass a car driven by Elmer Brown of Indiana. Another car approaching Easley caused him to sideswipe Brown's car, Brown striking the children, killing them instantly. An investigation was started tonight.

High Officials Inspect Postoffice at Austin

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (AP)—John W. Philip, formerly of Dallas, fourth assistant postmaster general, and Maj. Ferris K. Heath, assistant secretary of the treasury, both of Washington, inspected the Austin federal building today. They were accompanied by R. B. Creager of Brownsville, Republican national committeeman, and Eugene Nolte of Seguin, state chairman.

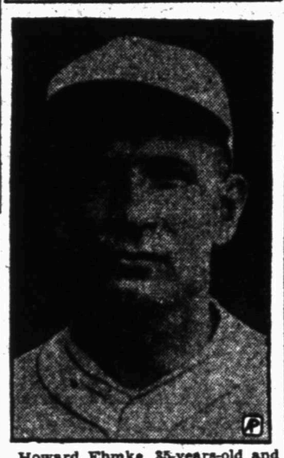

HOMECOMING WEEK

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 8. (UP)—Thousands of visitors gathered here tonight to open Missouri's first annual homecoming week, former state citizens coming from many sections of the country.

Hambone's Meditations

Mister Ehmke

Howard Ehmke, 35-years-old and 14 years a professional baseball pitcher won glory Tuesday when he defeated the Chicago Cubs in the world's series. Ehmke says he's quitting baseball after the big series.

TRAVIS COUNTY LETS CONTRACT

New Court House to Wait Lease Cancellation

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (AP)—The Travis county commissioners court today let a contract to H. E. Wattinger of Austin to build a new courthouse. The bid was $538,649.

It was agreed that work will not start before Jan. 1, 1930, in order to give the legislature, scheduled to meet in January, an opportunity to cancel the lease on the present courthouse site, where it is proposed to put the new building. The lease had about 45 years to run.

There is considerable agitation to construct the new courthouse on another side than the one under lease from the state.

Prince to Wed Belgian Princess

ROME, Oct. 8. (US)—Crown Prince Umberto, prince of Piedmont and heir apparent to the throne of Italy, has officially admitted his engagement to Princess Marie-Jose of Belgium, only daughter of King Albert.

Princess Marie-Jose, who is 23, is now the guest of King Victor Emanuel and Queen Helena at their San Rossore villa, near Pisa, where she was accompanied by King Albert during her last visit a fortnight ago. All the young Italian princesses are there with Princess Marie-Jose, and the visits of Crown Prince Umberto are frequent.

The wedding is expected in November, with official announcement of the engagement to be made during the last half of this month. This is in keeping with the custom that the engagements of royal princes shall never last more than 40 days. Roman nobilities and members of the court are hurrying back from their country places in order to have time to prepare for the ceremony and its attendant gaiety.

One Killed as Train Ploughs Through Switch

ALEXANDRIA, Ind., Oct. 8. (UP)—A Nickel Plate freight travelling 60 miles an hour, ran into an open switch near here today and crashed into a switch engine on a side track. One man was killed and five injured.

P. E. Thrall, 45, of Elwood, Ind., working in a warehouse near the siding, was killed when several of the freight cars ploughed into the building. C. E. Bender, Lima, Ohio, brakeman, was injured critically.

Nowatny Acquitted Of Murder Charge

HEMPSTEAD, Texas, Oct. 8. (UP)—Emil Nowatny, former Fort Bend county commissioner, was acquitted this afternoon of the murder of William Rochstedt at Needville on July 10, 1926.

The jury of Waller county citizens brought in its verdict after deliberating one hour.

FALL'S ILLNESS THREATENS TO HALT HEARING

Rising Temperature and Coughing of Blood Bring Anxiety

TESTIMONY OPENED

Justice Hitz Does Not Expect Aged Man to Survive Hearing

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—Abrupt ending of Albert B. Fall's trial on bribery charges is being threatened by his precarious health.

During opening arguments in the case arising from the notorious Elk Hills, Calif., oil lease, he was excused from the courtroom today because of rising temperature, increased pulse and coughing of blood. The former interior secretary, who is 68 years old, and suffered a bronchial attack last week, was helped home by his family and the trial continued under agreement of counsel.

Testimony Opens

Testimony was begun intending to show that he accepted a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, for the oil lease. Owen J. Roberts, government prosecutor, obtained a favorable ruling for introduction of evidence bearing on the Fall-Sinclair Teapot Dome scandal. He said he did not expect to go into that phase "until just before we reach the end of the trial."

"I do not expect that we will reach the end of the trial," commented Justice Hitz.

Dr. H. T. Safford of El Paso, Texas, asked today that the hours of court tomorrow be made shorter and counsel for both sides expressed the opinion that the former cabinet officer would not be able to continue the trial more than a few days at the best. Fall has insisted that he would go through with the trial.

Defense Optimistic

Defense counsel today painted a picture favorable to Fall after the prosecution had held him up as a man who had accepted a bribe and betrayed a public trust while sitting in the Harding cabinet.

The government introduced four witnesses. The first produced all of the documents from the department of the interior and Fall's letters together with those of Secretary of the Navy Denby, which bore on the subject of the Elk Hills lease. They also called Graham Young, formerly treasurer of Blair & Co., New York, who told of Edward L. Doheny Jr. withdrawing $100,000 in cash, which is later expected to be shown to have been brought to Washington.

After the jury was excused for the day Roberts offered evidence of leases granted by Fall prior to that given the Doheny company.

Park Concessionaires Cub Field Arrested

CHICAGO, Oct. 8. (AP)—Bob Lewis, traveling secretary for the Cubs, and two others, one of them the official hot dog concessionaire, were packed off to jail today when a policeman charged he caught them intimidating independent hot dog vendors outside the park.

When Lewis and the others were arraigned on charges of disorderly conduct, the policeman couldn't understand how he came to make the arrests.

"It was only a misunderstanding," he said.

Lewis and the two others—Ray Kneip, the concessionaire, and Ernest Cashman, a club employe—were discharged.

Possibility of Another Antarctic Race Looms

CAPETOWN, Africa, Oct. 8. (UP)—The possibility of another, antarctic race was suggested today by departure of the Norwegian steamer Thoroy, which will join the steamer Thorse hammer at Bouvet island for exploration. It is believed that it may explore the same region as the Norwegian ship Discovery, commanded by Sir Douglas Nawson, who arrived at Durban today. The Discovery is equipped with seaplanes to assist in whaling.

SHUMAKER ILL

Anti-Saloon Leader in Critical Condition, Friend Says

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 8. (UP)—Dr. Edward S. Shumaker, superintendent of the Indiana Anti-Saloon league, was reported tonight to be in critical condition and gradually getting weaker.

Ethan A. Miles, attorney for the league, visited Dr. Shumaker late today and reported that he found the dry leader's condition "extremely grave."

Shumaker is suffering with a complication of diseases, including stomach trouble, for which he recently began using a tonic containing more than 20 per cent alcohol. The tonic was discontinued later when he was criticized.

Shumaker recently served a 60-day jail sentence for contempt of court in connection with criticism of a supreme court liquor law decision.

TRAIN KILLS TWO IN WRECK

Keg of Whisky Found in Car's Wreckage

TARRANT, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Arnold Taylor, about 47, of Plano and J. B. Rasor, 60, of Allen, Texas, were killed near here today when the small truck they were driving was demolished by a Rock Island passenger train.

The bodies were brought to Dallas to an undertaker and a 10-gallon keg of whisky, which officers said was found in the wreckage, was turned over to detectives. The truck had been loaded with hay.

The two men were wealthy Collin county landowners, C. D. Rasor, the brother of one of them, is postmaster at Plano, Texas.

Lawton Man Gets 10 Years for 'Job' Which Netted $9

Special to The Record News.

LAWTON, Okla., Oct. 8.—For every dollar he secured in the robbery of a filling station near here two months ago, Henry Watson must serve a year in the penitentiary and one more year in addition, Judge E. L. Richardson ruled in district court today.

The robbery of the filling station netted Watson $9. He was given 10 years in prison. He pleaded guilty to a charge of robbery with firearms.

"Robbery is one flagrant evil which must be cured," Judge Richardson said in pronouncing sentence.

Frank Moore, who said his home is in Kentucky, was given a year in prison when he pleaded guilty to a charge of grand larceny, filed in connection with the theft of a diamond brooch.

Firemen Powerless To Stop Fire in Gas Well

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 8. (UP)—A gas well shot flames into the sky here today, fed by a flow of 60,000,000 cubic feet.

Firemen were virtually helpless against the flames which started in the early morning and had melted the steel derrick. Air around the fire was filled with heavy wet gas. The fire could be seen for miles as it licked up 100 feet.

The cause of the blaze was undetermined. No one was injured but crowds which collected were kept away from the area adjacent to the well. It was No. 3 Stamper well of the Sinclair Oil and Gas company.

Minister Would Change 'War-Time' Prayer

NORWICH, Eng., Oct. 8. (UP)—Proposals that the war-time prayer asking "deliverance from our enemies" be eliminated from the new Church of England prayer book were made to the assembly of the Congregational Union of England and Wales today by the Rev. Thomas Rhondda Williams. "There is not a christian element in it," he said. "It is high time Christian churches wash their hands clean of this war business."

QUICK ASSENT TO LIMITATION PARLEY SEEN

U. S. Expected to Accept Invitation Before Next Tuesday

REPLY BEING FRAMED

Hoover Certain to Okeh Plans for London Naval Meet

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—The American government is expected to accept the invitation of the British government to the London naval limitation conference before Prime Minister MacDonald departs from the United States next Tuesday.

Simultaneously with the making public of the text of the invitation state department officials tonight began preparing the draft of the reply which will be submitted to President Hoover for his final approval.

Since the chief executive had been acquainted in advance with the text of the invitation and had approved its substance, it was a foregone conclusion that the acceptance would be without reservations.

The text discloses the United States and Great Britain are in accord not only for Anglo-American naval parity by 1936, but also for continuing the 10 years' holiday in capital ship construction from 1931 to 1936—when another general naval conference would be planned.

The suggestion for total abolition of submarines subject to conference with other naval powers was regarded here in some informed quarters as a possible stumbling block for the projected conference. While the United States and Great Britain are in agreement on this proposition, there are indications that Japan, France and Italy will reject it.

The French stood out at the Washington conference against any limitation on submarines, but finally agreed to a tonnage of 90,000. This type of craft is viewed by the French as essential to their national defense and a similar view has been taken by Japan and Italy.

HOOVER-MacDONALD DISCUSSIONS END

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—President Hoover today declared the friendliness being accorded Prime Minister MacDonald by the American people to be more important than the decisions which might be reached on problems affecting Anglo-American relations during the premier's visit.

The president's statement was made shortly after the premier and his daughter Ishbel returned to the British embassy from the White House, where they were the guests of the chief executive and Mrs. Hoover.

Prof. Works on Altimeter For Use in Airplanes

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8. (US)—For many weeks, Leo P. Delsasso of the University of California at Los Angeles physics department has been looking for a noise.

He believes, now, that he has found the noise he wants, and the next step will be to devise some means of making it.

Delcasso is working on an "acoustic altimeter" for use on planes which will accurately record and report the distance from the earth's surface; not the height above sea-level as with altimeters, but the actual distance from the earth below, whether it be a plain or a mountainside. Such an instrument would enable a pilot to know just how far he was, either above level ground or from interposing mountains.

Fort Worth Shooting Victim Believed Dying

FORT WORTH, Oct. 8. (UP)—Hospital attendants at St. Joseph's infirmary here said at a late hour today that they do not believe Roy A. Scott will live through the night. He was injured in a shooting affray last night.

A charge of assault to murder in connection with the shooting was filed today against Hughie Hodges, 20, and Fred Hodges, 22, his brother, who are cousins of Scott.

Woman Sues Texarkana Publisher for $100,000

TEXARKANA, Ark., Oct. 8. (UP)—Charging in a complaint filed in circuit court here today that D. W. Stevick, Texarkana publisher, subjected her to "public shame and ridicule" by becoming engaged to marry her although already married, Miss Zetta Kirker, Hot Springs, Ark., is seeking $100,000 in damages.

Stevick publishes a newspaper here and another one in Champaign, Ill.

Papal Gendarmerie Makes First Arrest

VATICAN CITY, Oct. 8. (UP)—The Papal Gendarmerie made its first arrest today. A bicyclist who was found riding the streets of the Papal state without a bell on the vehicle was seized and delivered to Italian authorities. He was charged with a misdemeanor, because she "had no actual connection with the offense involved."

Those who are applying for habeas corpus are Leroy Dempsey, John Harkness, Louis Crim, Ethel and John Ware, Carrie Dempsey and Lora Crim. All are charged with violation of the liquor laws.

Arrests Continue

Texas rangers, federal agents, state highway department investigators and national guardsmen continued to pack the two available jails today. The rangers concentrated their efforts on locating wholesale bootleggers and made two arrests. Federal agents were seeking evidence to prove their theory that the liquor ring here embraced several Panhandle counties. National guardsmen arrested vagrants and other minor law breakers and the highway department men picked up license law violators. Since yesterday morning 34 persons have been arrested and paid fines ranging from $18 to $25 for failure to purchase auto licenses.

Court Grinds Away

The military court of inquiry, seeking to expose the criminal background of the assassination Sept. 13 of District Attorney John A. Holmes continued to work quietly and steadily today. No indication as to its progress in the inquiry was given.

Fifteen prisoners are held to date under general order No. 6, to be tested at Canadian Thursday. This order has been interpreted to mean that all persons arrested under it will be held until martial law is lifted and the evidence obtained by the court of inquiry placed before the grand jury.

English Cabinet Okehs Russian Relations Move

LONDON, Oct. 8. (UP)—The cabinet, meeting today for the first time since Prime Minister MacDonald left for America, was understood to have approved the recent agreement made by Arthur Henderson, foreign secretary, for procedure in resumption of relations with Soviet Russia.

Prince of Wales at Last Is Full Fledged Pilot

LONDON, Oct. 8. (UP)—The Prince of Wales passed his final test as an air pilot yesterday, making several perfect landings and ascending and turning perfectly. The test was made after a morning's final practice at the Northolt airdrome.

Habeas Corpus Hearings To Test Borger's Martial Law

Prisoners Jailed Under General Order of Military Forces Seek Release in Canadian, Texas, Court

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—While District Attorney Clem Calhoun prepared to combat a move in the civil courts outside of the militarized zone, to gain freedom for prisoners held here without a hearing under the broad discretion of martial law, four groups of law enforcers continued to make arrests here today.

Word from Canadian, Texas outside of the marital law zone, said that attorneys had obtained habeas corpus hearings for seven prisoners held here indefinitely under general order No. 6. This general order simply states that anyone so held is to remain in jail until the "entrenched criminal ring" which investigators charge exists here, is broken up.

Hearing Set Thursday

The hearing, set for Thursday, will offer an interesting test or the police power of officers under martial law. There seemed no doubt among lawyers that the edict which established martial law suspended civil law in the county. The effort to invoke the aid of courts outside of the area will offer an unique legal experiment.

Carrie Dempsey obtained her freedom here today without waiting for a writ of habeas corpus. She was released on $1,000 bond be-

GARY FLARES ANEW

GARY, Ind., Oct. 8. (AP)—Eight members of the Gary police and detective forces, including two captains and two lieutenants, were arrested by United States marshals early tonight, on warrants charging conspiracy to violate the liquor laws. The men were indicted by the federal grand jury at South Bend which recently concluded an investigation into law enforcement conditions in northern Indiana.

Anti-Saloon League Head Reserves Opinion of Sheppard's Bill

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Oct. 8. (UP)—The Anti-Saloon league has reserved judgment on the proposal of Senator Sheppard of Texas that the buyer of liquor be held equally guilty with the seller.

F. Scott McBride, general superintendent of the league, said here today that "there is a question in the minds of many drys as to whether the provisions of the Sheppard amendment will help or hinder enforcement."

VERSATILE LAD BACKS EUNICE

Widely Traveled Youth Is Attack Witness

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 8. (UP)—Frederick Wise, a rotund young man of many jobs, told an alert courtroom today how he rushed to the aid of Eunice Pringle when he heard her screaming in the little consultation chamber where she was attacked by Alexander Pantages.

Wise identified himself as a youth of extensive travel, during which he had obtained employment ranging from dishwasher to movie "extra" and including ditch-digging in a pinch.

Wary Witness

Bespectacled and speaking in a precise manner, Wise considered each question carefully before answering, when he was called to the stand as a state's witness in the trial of the millionaire theater owner on charges af assaulting the 17-year-old dancer.

Under detailed questioning by deputy District Attorney James P. Costello, he told how he was walking past the entrance to the Pantages theater office building when he heard a girl scream: "elp! help! help! Save me."

Santa Fe Authorized To Take Over Orient

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (UP)—The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railway was authorized today by the Interstate Commerce commission to acquire direct control of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railway company of the Texas.

The commission's final order in this case permits a complete merger of the two lines which are already closely related. The Orient simultaneously was authorized to issue $2,500,000 of first mortgage bonds and $5,500.00 in stock to be delivered to the Santa Fe in reimbursement for advances made.

'Think Before You Kiss,' Is Advice of Soviet

MOSCOW, Oct. 8. (US)—"Think before you kiss."

This is the latest exhortation of the Soviet government. It is a slogan stamped on all letters, together with the advice that "every kiss costs 40,000 bacteria."

Undaunted by the gigantic nature of their task, the Soviet chiefs propose to stamp out the gentle art of kissing. They are doing it, they say, in the interest of hygiene.

DISBURSER FOR 40TH DIVISION LOST 8 DAYS

Lieut. Charles Musel of Supply Corps Leaves With $50,000

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Ship Captain Reports Disappearance of Man and Naval Funds

CHARLESTON, S. C., Oct. 8. (AP)—Announcement of the disappearance of Lieut. Charles Musel, supply corps, U. S. N., disbursing officer for the fortieth division of the destroyer squadron with $50,000 of government funds was made today by Capt. W. R. Sexton, commanding officer on the destroyer squadron.

Captain Sexton said Musel had been missing eight days. He had obtained leave of absence over Sunday and left his ship, the U. S. S. Gilmer, Saturday, Sept. 28.

The money, Captain Sexton said, was to have been used for paying off the officers and men of the division.

'Liquor Tunnel' In Fair Park Found

DALLAS, Oct. 8. (UP)—Sheriff Hal Hood and two of his deputies today apparently interfered with one of the plans being made in preparation for the reception of visitors to the State Fair of Texas, which opens here Oct. 12.

The sheriff and his men, operating on a tip furnished by a negro who works on the fair grounds, found a cache under a corner of the new Fair Park auditorium in which authorities believe bootleggers had intended storing a quantity of liquor to be sold during the fair.

The cache was in the form of an underground tunnel which had been dug without the knowledge of fair officials, evidently some time ago. The officers found a number of empty barrels, empty bottles and other evidences that liquor had been stored there in the past, possibly, they declared, at previous fairs. No liquor was found.

International Bank Splits Stock Seven Ways

BADEN-BADEN, Germany, Oct. 8. (US)—The organization committee for the international payment and settlement bank, under the Young plan for reparations, today decided to divide its capital stock of $100,000,000 among the banks of the seven participating nations.

Since the federal reserve bank of the United States does not admit participation in an enterprise of this sort, the American interest will probably be vested in a banking consortium. It was also decided the liability of each country would be confined to the amount of stock taken.

Lobby Committee Is Called to Meet Thursday

WASHINGTON, Oct. 8. (US)—A meeting for Thursday of the senate lobby committee was called today by Senator Caraway, Democrat of Arkansas, chairman.

At that time the decks will be cleared for action for one of the most comprehensive investigations ever undertaken in congress.

It is likely the committee will delve at once into the efforts of lobbyists to obtain special favors for vested interests through the pending tariff bill. Most of the committee members have indicated they favor this course.

Court Denies Rehearing For Disbarred Attorney

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 8. (UP)—The Oklahoma supreme court today denied Hugh A. Ledbetter, disbarred Ardmore attorney, a rehearing on the court's recent refusal to readmit him to the practice of law.

Ledbetter was disbarred in the H. Bart Martin contempt trial. He was alleged to have told Martin he paid Justice J. W. Clark $750 for Clark's campaign fund while Clark was preparing an opinion in the case in which Ledbetter was the attorney.

Coste and Bellonte Tell of Terrific Battle With Storms Over Siberia

TSITSIHAR, Manchuria, Oct. 8. (AP)—With a new world's record for long distance nonstop flights safely made across two continents, Dieudonne Le Coste and Maurice Bellonte explained today that only terrific gales and snowstorms in the region of Lake Baikal, Siberia, prevented their reaching Tokyo from Paris.

The brilliant French airmen declared the snowstorms nearly made their flight end in disaster. They lost their way in the blinding snowfall, which also interfered with the proper functioning of their motor.

"During the worst of the storm, I thought sure we were doomed," Coste said.

"We brought out our parachutes for the first time, adjusting the harness to our shoulders. The snow made visibility almost impossible, and the wind was the worst I ever experienced.

"Bellonte had the greatest difficulty in keeping the motor running.

"The wind and snow continued violent for hours, so that we had to use much gasoline in climbing to higher altitudes and endeavoring to dodge the storm.

"I believe if it hadn't been for the bad weather at Lake Baikal we should have reached Tokyo."

Record News Cotton Table

For Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma

After a temporary slump in ginnings over the week-end, Memphis galloped back into the leadership for Northwest Texas and Southern Oklahoma Tuesday when 552 bales were pushed through the gins in the Hall county town. Heavy ginnings for the last week at Memphis gave indications that Hall county, if it does not equal its great cotton production record of 1928, will produce a crop worth many thousands of dollars to farmers of that area. Prices over the territory Tuesday showed a slight tendency to weakness, Wichita Falls, Iowa Park, Kemp City and Memphis offering the highest markets. Altus continued to lead the seed market at $36 a ton, with Memphis close behind at $35. The following prices prevailed Tuesday, according to reports to The Record News from correspondents in the principal interior markets:

	Range of Price Middling Basis	Cottonseed	Tuesday Ginnings	Season's Ginnings

TAYLOR STRIKE GAUGE WAITED

Discovery Continues to Flow by Heads

Special to The Record News.

ABILENE, Texas, Oct. 8.—Dunigan Brothers' No. 1 Hunter, north central Taylor county wildcat oil test which Sunday night topped a producing stratum at 2387 feet, flowed by heads at approximately 15-minute intervals all Monday night and Tuesday morning. The well has not yet been connected with storage being erected on the lease and the oil goes to the top of the derrick when the heads come.

Due to trouble with the drilling engine the crew is being delayed in getting the 60 feet of open hole above the pay cased off. The owners of the well expect to have the pipe set and the bottom cleaned out late Wednesday and will then likely make a swabbing test.

No official estimates have been given out as to the possible value of the strike. However, conservative operators, basing their statements on observations of other wells similar to the new Taylor county discovery, said Tuesday that the Hunter test looks good for at least 250 barrels a day pumping as it now stands.

Cable line measurements show the bottom of the hole to be at 2390 feet. The pay was encountered in the top of a lime formation at 2387 feet.

This discovery has aroused more interest than any oil development that has occurred in the vicinity of Abilene for two years. There were more out-of-town operators in this city last night than have been here at one time since the discovery of oil at Noodle Creek over three years ago.

Lease and royalty traders are experiencing trouble in finding anything on the market. One royalty sale was reported Tuesday morning on a tract a mile northwest of the well. The price was at $50 an acre base. The major companies are not making any offers as yet, apparently waiting for a reliable and accurate test of the new well.

Historic Cemeteries of Houston Being Renovated

HOUSTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—Houston's historic cemeteries, the final resting places of many of Texas' immortals, are being cleaned and renovated after years of neglect.

S. A. Starkey, street and bridge commissioner, who is supervising the work, says it is the intention of his department to clean up the ancient burial grounds and to keep them clean.

The Episcopal cemetery, adjoining Sam Houston park, already has been placed in order. Senator Oliver Jones was buried there 63 years ago.

Wife Gives Statement For Husband

"We Are Proud to Recommend Orgatone for the Good It Has Done My Husband," Says Waco Woman

"My husband has suffered for two years with a severe case of stomach trouble," says Mrs. Meville Burlin, 91 S. Dallas street, Waco, Texas, while giving a statement on the good this new medicine, Orgatone, has done her husband.

"My husband, who is an employe at the Cotton Oil Milling company of this city, has certainly found relief in this medicine," she continued. "But for two long years before taking it, he was in such terrible health. He did not have any appetite whatever, and most everything that he did eat would disagree with him so that he would feel like he never wanted to try to eat again. His food would sour on his stomach and cause gas to form, and this would bring on such bloating that he was perfectly miserable. He suffered with indigestion after every meal. And those dizzy headaches were very frequent with him. He never had any pep or energy at all, and always looked and acted as though he was just down and out.

"Well he never seemed to get any better, until someone suggested that he try Orgatone. We had noticed that it was very highly recommended, and he decided to try it. He has taken three bottles now and he feels fine all the time. His appetite is good and he is able to eat most anything without ill effects, as he use to have. He never suffers from indigestion any more, and those dizzy headaches are a thing of the past. TWO WILDCATS PRODUCE OIL

South Young County Furnishes New Wells

Flowing and swabbing with an estimated production of 230 barrels from the pay at 2385 to 2395 feet the No. 1 Williams test of Long and Mahoney located 1651 feet south and 1901 feet southeast of the north corner of the Walker survey, abstract 1279, southeast of Herron City in south Young county came in late Tuesday afternoon. The well, an absolute wildcat, drilled 10 feet into the sand when the hole filled and began flowing by heads. The completion of the well is the means of extending the producing pay uncovered by the T. G. Shaw interests on its Kissinger lease two miles to the southwest.

Some distance south of the Shaw No. 1 Kissinger, and across the Brazos river, Singleton, Shaw and Knox brought in their No. 1 Mrs. Jarnigan in the W. J. Orrick survey swabbing 300 barrels from the sand at 2390 feet.

The completion of these two wells brings the total to four brought in from the south part of Young county in the past few days. The others were Lindsay, Bobin, Graham No. 1 Mrs. Seddons north of South Bend, a record well with 100 barrels per hour from the lime at 4165 feet, and the Transcontinental Oil company No. 1 Corbett in the Ruthy Campbell survey, abstract 37, just north of the Stephens county line. The latter well drilled a few feet deeper into the sand at 4009 feet and is producing 200 barrels per day. On the surrounding tracts a number of other deep tests are drilling and other interesting happenings are looked for in the next week or 10 days.

north of here walked that distance in three days. They had to make many detours because of flood conditions along the river Nonni.

They had some difficulty persuading the Mulart villagers that they were not Russian airmen forced down on a scouting flight but finally were escorted before Chinese officials who spoke English. Bellonte tried to explain that they were French, and eventually they were permitted to go on to Tsitsihar.

With difficulty the airmen persuaded Gen. An Fu-Lin, governor of the district, that they were not Russians. Coste was finally permitted to send telegrams. These difficulties explain why the world was without news of his flight for so many days.

Produce Beef Pork Milk Poultry for LESS

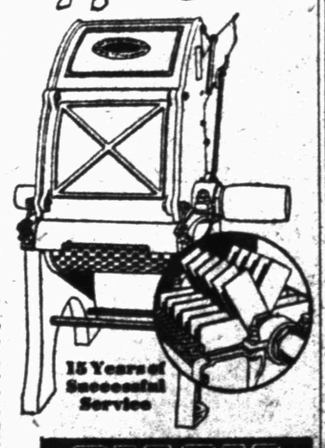

THE surest way to bigger farm profits is to lower production costs. You can't control market prices but you can control feeding costs. And every time you bring costs down your profits shoot up.

Thousands of farmers and live stock feeders are now producing beef, pork, milk, mutton and poultry for less, with a W-W Feed Grinder!

A third of your feed crop is wasted when your feed is unground. Your W-W stops this waste by turning stems, stalks, leaves, husks, etc., into nutritious mixed feed that goes a third further.

The W-W has powerful RIGID hammers that grind and mix everything from the ground up with lightning speed. No burrs, gears or knives to give trouble. Nails, bolts, etc., do not injure them. Has Timken Tapered Bearings, Alemite Lubrication and Rockwood Pulleys. Self-feeder can be furnished—Blower or Elevator equipment. Nine different sizes.

Versatile Lad Backs Eunice

gathered, then ran up the stairs to the mezzanine floor.

"There I saw the hands of a girl extending through the partially opened door of the little room and heard her screaming again. She cried 'Help! help! help! Save me! He is ruining me.'

"Eunice Pringle ran out of the little room when William Gordon (state's witness) pushed the door open. She stumbled twice and collapsed into the arms of a man I now know to be W. C. Hale. She was dishevelled, sobbing and very hysterical.

Door Slammed

"When I turned around I saw a slim young man whom I do not know force his way into the room. He took Mr. Pantages under the arms and lifted him from the floor, then slammed the door. When it was opened again, I saw Pantages adjusting his clothes."

The defense opened a lengthy and tiresome cross examination, tracing the many moves Wise had made from city to city during his 24 years. When the state objected, the jury was ordered from the room and the defense announced it was attempting to prove that Wise was unreliable and had been held in a psychopathic ward. The questioning was permitted.

In the afernoon, Wise resumed the stand and admitted that he had been given an honorable medical discharge from the United States navy for "constitutional inferiority" and that he had been held in the county psychopathic ward here for several days in 1927. He said he was paroled and the parole lifted after one year.

Pantages is accused of assaulting the girl when she visited him at the theater to obtain booking for her dancing act, "The Prince from Hollywood." She charges that Pantages begged her to be his sweetheart and that when she refused made violent love and consummated an attack.

CITIES OFFER PRISON SITES

Penitentiary No Longer Is 'Unwanted Waif'

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (AP)—The penitentiary system is not the homeless waif, kicked from pillar to post by communities that do not care to have it, it has developed in recent weeks as the centralization commission goes about the business of recommending a site for the new plant.

Huntsville, home of the central walls for 81 years, does not want to rid itself of the unhappy "industry." Houston has let it be known that it will protest construction of the central plant in the vicinity of Austin, where a majority of the centralization commission hopes to have the legislature put it. Other communities have made a bid for the penal institution.

Last winter when the prison centralization and relocation measure was being debated in the senate, virtually every senator who could gain recognition offered and had passed an amendment specifically exempting his community from consideration for the site.

Latest developments indicate that there will be a hard-fought controversy in both houses over the recommendations of the commission. There is clearly outlined opposition within the commission and as a result there will be two recommendations, one to build the central plant near Austin and one to put it on property now owned by the state.

There is considerable sentiment in the legislature against purchasing new acreage for the plant.

Rep. S. E. Barnett of Greenville this week announced that he would join hands with those who object to putting the prison system elsewhere than on property now owned by the state.

While Gov. Dan Moody's present plans are to submit the commission's findings and recommendations to a special session of the legislature early in January, he will be advised by some of his friends to alter them and if possible hasten the session to dispose of the matter before next year's political campaign gets under way.

They argue to the governor that to delay the legislative session until January would merely give some of the legislators an opportunity to "play the game for what it is worth" in the impending campaign.

For this reason Governor Moody is known to be inclined to get the matter through as quickly as possible and if the commission's report is completed in time he doubtless would favor convening the special session about Nov. 15.

Even then, the legislature, if it cared to do so, could take advantage of the issue for political purposes, it has been pointed out.

The situation is fraught with possibilities and could be a major issue in the gubernatorial campaign. Unless the legislature takes action that Governor Moody feels would be to the best interests of the state he is apt to veto all legislation and either to take the problem to the people himself or get in behind some candidate who will espouse his plans.

Nephew of Former Cabinet Officer And Warrior Buried at Frederick

Special to The Record News.

FREDERICK, Okla., Oct. 8.—Funeral services for Wilber Milton Tomlinson, 78, nephew of the late Jerry Rusk, who served in the civil war as a union general and who for two terms was governor of Wisconsin, later becoming secretary of agriculture under President Benjamin Harrison, were held here Sunday. He died last Friday of heart trouble. Funeral rites were conducted by the Rev. W. S. Vanderpool, pastor of the First Methodist church here. Interment was in the Frederick cemetery.

Mr. Tomlinson came to Comanche county from Kansas, where he had moved from Wisconsin, in 1901, and had lived here ever since. He was a prosperous farmer, later entering business here as a merchant.

Besides his widow he is survived by a son, R. E. Tomlinson, of Frederick, and two daughters, Mrs. R. L. Isbell, Frederick, and Mrs. W. C. Wright of Ardmore.

APPEALS COURT RESUMES WORK

Hoobler's and Other Cases Are Scheduled

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (UP)—Many important cases face the court of criminal appeals at the beginning of its session here Wednesday after a three-month summer vacation.

The hearing on the application for bail for Tenola Moore, charged with killing a Fort Worth police officer will get under way tomorrow. Moore, a negro, was arrested in Chicago and brought back for trial after requisition papers were brought to Governor Moody by airplane.

Two cases against William (Dagger) Pruitt Jr., Dallas, will come before the court at this term. In one Pruitt is appealing a death sentence on a murder charge and in the other a 99-year sentence on a charge of robbery.

Other death penalty sentence cases that are to come before the court are:

Lus G. Arcos, Medina county; Ofilio Herrera, Mason; A. J. Hoobler, Wichita Falls; Jose De Pena, El Paso; Dewey R. Hunt, Dallas; Ardell Landers, Dallas; Thomas Davis, Eastland; Bishop Adams, Travis; Guerellimo Hernandez, Ward; and Will Fritts, Jones.

Life terms sentences have been appealed by R. J. West, Webb county; Pleas Shepherd, Harris; E. Gilbert, Tyler; S. H. Newton, Tarrant; Peter Lopez, Galveston; John Swilley, Liberty; Pete Wiggins, Cherokee; and Isidor Gonzales, Comal.

A 99-year murder penalty assessed against Joe Dunwoody, Donley county is to be reviewed by the court at this term. Other cases to be reviewed are:

Tom Hernandez, Webb county, 20 years; O. T. Leonard, Brown, 50 years; Frank Williams, Tom Green, 70 years; W. G. Clark, Upton, 25 years; John Rippy, Denton, 25 years; Verner Donchoe, Wilbarger, 25 years; Sabas Zuniga, Duval, 50 years; Carl Goodspeed, Clay, 20 years.

Thomas H. Whiteside Jr., Houston attorney, will come before the court with a second appeal on the charge of killing his wife. The conviction from which he is now appealing carries a 20-year penalty. Leo H. Waedock, Harris county, has appealed an eight-year perjury verdict.

None but the Tenola Moore habeas corpus will be heard tomorrow which will be given over principally to the hearing of ex parte proceedings.

Women are delighted

Listerine is a natural astringent, its formula being basically similar to that of scented astringents costing from 2 to 5 times as much.

Women by the thousands have used it and say that it achieves excellent results in the treatment of enlarged pores, oily skin, and flabby face muscles.

Moreover, it's a safe antiseptic, capable of destroying the most powerful disease germs, so that when you use it you know you are protecting yourself against possible skin infections.

Men use it after shaving

Listerine doused on the face full strength after shaving, imparts a wonderful sense of invigoration. Wakes up the skin. Ends rawness and burning, and leaves the face with a wonderful sense of coolness. Lambert Pharmacal Company, St. Louis, Mo., U. S. A.

Light, dainty frocks double the need for this deodorizing protection

IN warm weather... when danger of offense is so much greater... what a relief to know that Kotex completely deodorizes! What a relief to forget old fears... to know there is no possibility of offense.

But other reasons, too, make Kotex essential on warm days.

Kotex stays soft, cool

Kotex is always light, cool, comfortable. It never loses its softness. It simply cannot pack. It is so very absorbent that weight and bulk are unnecessary.

Kotex is non-detectable. The corners are rounded and tapered so no outline shows even under flimiest frocks. Kotex disposes like tissue.

KOTEX IS SOFT . . .

1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.

2—Safe, secure . . . keeps your mind at ease.

3—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.

4—In hospitals . . . Kotex is the identical material used by surgeons in 85% of the country's leading hospitals.

You Have Heard People Say "NO OTHER COFFEE TASTES LIKE FOLGER'S"

It's the rare flavor of mountain coffees from Central America

Map of New World's Coffee Eden—showing where Central American coffees grow with flavor unlike any known before

IN the tiny mountain districts of Central America is a region known as the world's Coffee Eden. In this fertile volcanic soil, drenched by tropic rains, are grown coffees that world experts agree have the tangiest flavor and the richest body of probably any known today. Beside them, ordinary coffees seem to taste "flat" and "thin."

It is the flavor of these rare mountain coffees that makes Folger's different from any other coffee in the world.

Seventy-nine years ago Folger & Co. imported their first cargo of rare mountain coffees from Central America and roasted it in the pioneer coffee plant on the Pacific coast.

Travelers who first tasted this coffee in the famous Bohemian restaurants of San Francisco wrote back for shipments. Army officers also carried its fame to distant parts of the world. In an incredibly short time it became one of the world's most widely sought coffees.

Nature's Secret

Ordinarily when you change from one brand of coffee to another, you note little difference in taste. That is because 70% of all coffee sold in the United States today (regardless of brand names) is of one common type, grown in the same general region. Hence Nature has given it the same common flavor. So-called "blending" and special roasting processes (in spite of advertising talk) can not change it. For roasting coffee merely brings out whatever flavor Nature has already put in.

It is a different type of coffee that makes Folger Flavor different—the rare mountain coffees of Central America.

You will notice the difference in Folger's by the rush of rich aroma when you break the seal of your first vacuum tin. In making the coffee you will find you don't have to "coax" the flavor out. It makes a clear amber cup that is always tangy, mellow and rich—never "thin" or "flat."

The Famous Folger Test

Get a pound of Folger's Coffee from your grocer today. Drink it tomorrow morning. The next morning drink the coffee you have been using. The third morning drink Folger's again. Then decide which you like best. If, for any reason, you do not choose Folger's, your grocer will gladly refund the full purchase price. We will pay him. That's fair, isn't it? You risk nothing—so why not order Folger's now for the test?

Civic Department Has First Autumn Meeting

At the first meeting of the vicic department of the Woman's Forum presided over by the chairman, Mrs. Bert Bean, about 50 members gathered to hear Mrs. Lillian Kerr talk on "Woman in Relation to City, State and Nation."

Mrs. Kerr discussed the inequality of laws that discriminate against women, particularly in the state of Texas. She spoke of her own experience in campaigns for the federal suffrage amendment, the prohibition amendment, and called special attention to the importance of the influence of women in government.

Mrs. Kerr is a native of Archer county, but has lived for practically all her married life in Colorado. She spoke of the fact that after having had over 30 years of suffrage, Colorado Springs for the first time in its history put a woman on the council last year. The general assembly of the state of Colorado is composed of 100 persons and only four of them are women. It is difficult, Mrs. Kerr said, for women to get positions of executive power.

At the conclusion of Mrs. Kerr's address, Mrs. A. G. Holmes announced the dates of the Spanish Fiesta, which will occur on Nov. 1-2. Each department of the forum is preparing to make this an outstanding event.

PEEPS AT PEOPLE

By MRS L. N. CASON

We wonder what we will do when we no longer hear the song of the birds at our window.

We wonder if the trees will not be lonely when the leaves are gone and the birds have no resting places in their green bosoms.

Autumn brings the reminder of how lovely a thing an evergreen may be. Where they are close about the house, winter has no bleak, bare look.

We suppose sycamores were planted in Wichita Falls because they grow so vigorously and soon make shade. But how soon in autumn they begin to shed their leaves. We hear the wind singing in them already, dropping them sere and brown upon our lawn.

The elm and the maple grow in this city; the hackberry and the non-bearing mulberry are so much more lovely than the sycamore, and they seem to be native trees.

Yet, we remember four giant sycamores that grew before our grandmother's home in Tennessee, with real affection. They grew as tall as the upper story of her home and so great of trunk it took three small pairs of arms to reach round them.

So far as that goes, trees of any sort are dear, even when they stretch naked arms against a wintry sky.

Speaking of beauty outlined against the sky, we remember a road that runs round back of Wichita lake. On the top of a hill stands a country church, the spire of which stands beautifully against an evening sky. We saw it once with a crescent moon and evening star for close company.

Trees are loved of the Caucasian race. We know few negroes who pay much attention to them.

Negroes are peculiar people, anyway. At the present time, they are departing in hordes for the cotton fields. Maids, who have been faithful through the summer, take a vacation to pick the white harvest.

What would seem to us hard work, is a sort of Roman holiday to them; we imagine they frolic enough at night to make them go cheerfully through the day. We have heard them on Mississippi plantations, singing, picking the banjo, playing the guitar and dancing as if they had never worked.

They are needed in the cotton fields. We don't like to do our own work, but it won't take them long to spend the money they accumulate there and before cold weather comes, there will be an accumulation of maids. The wheat and cotton fields are the golden harvest Ceres gives to Texas. In them, the hopes and fears of many farmer's hearts are held.

Mothers' Union "Crying Need" of Today, Says Dix

The Day When All the Mothers Get Together to Form a Union Will See a Vast Increase in the Range of Their "Sacred Influence" Over Their Children, Declares Dorothy Dix.

The crying need of the day is for the women of this country to get together and organize the Amalgamated Order of Mothers.

Individually they can do nothing with their obstreperous children, but in unfon there is strength, and if all of the mothers in the length and breadth of the land stood shoulder to shoulder and put their feet down flat on any proposition, they could enforce their authority and dictate their own terms to their overbearing youngsters, just as the labor unions do to employers.

Too long have we put too much faith in what we call mother's sacred influence. It is good as far as it goes, but the trouble with it is that it does not go far enough. It works effectively only at short range. At arm's length away from home it peters out and becomes negligible.

As long as a woman can keep her children around her knee her word is law. She is the fountain of wisdom, the arbiter of taste, and her boys and girls never dream of such a thing as disputing her opinion, but the minute they start to school all of this is changed. Then the other children become the criterion. Mother's views go into the discard, and it is what Mary and Sadie and Johnny and Tommy think and have and do that become every child's standards of life.

No one mother, no matter how high her ideals are, no matter how conscientious she is, no matter if she devotes herself body and soul to trying to rear her children properly, can make any headway in fighting the influence of other children upon her own children. She can't segregate her own and build a fence around them. They belong to their age and generation and must be part of it. She can't keep them from dressing like other young people, or from going where other young people go, or from doing all the things that the other boys and girls are doing.

Every night there are millions of women in millions of homes down on their knees agonizing over their girls who have gone off joy-riding, God knows where, God knows with whom. They will still be praying for their children's safety tomorrow night and the next night and the night after that, but they can't stop Gladys and Maud from keeping blind dates if all the other girls have them.

But if all the mothers would rise up from their marrow bones and form a mothers union they could enforce a sane and safe code of conduct on their daughters, and put a time limit on how late they should be out at night, just as the unions got an eight-hour day for workers.

Mothers let their daughters do things now of which they disapprove and which they know to be dangerous because Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones let their daughters run wild and their Sallys and Mamies have to meet the competition, or else have no boy friends and spend their evenings sitting at home sucking their thumbs.

But if Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Thompson and Mrs. Brown and all the other mothers had to live up to the union rules about making their daughters behave it would be a different story. Eliminate the danger from rivalry with other girl petters and neckers, and mothers would keep their eyes on their daughters instead of shutting them to the things they do not want to see.

Probably there isn't one mother in a dozen who doesn't feel a pang of shame when she sees her young daughter start out half-naked to a party, and who doesn't wish that she would at least put on another wisp of chiffon over her body and lower her skirt an inch or two, but she recognizes tht she is helpless to change matters.

All of the girls are rolling their own. It is the fashion and if Mabel and Sadie don't look as much like plucked sparrows as the balance of them, they will be out of the mode.

It is true that one mother can do nothing to change the fashions, but the United Sisterhood of Children-Rearers could alter it in five minutes. For in the wrist bags of that august and plenipotent band of middle-aged women is the money that makes dress designers rich and that spells prosperity for department stores and specialty shops, and if they should serve notice that they would buy nothing but modest clothes for their daughters it wouldn't take 10 minutes to start the couturiers at work on the kind of garments demanded by the mothers union.

Why, there is simply no end to the power that the mothers union could exercise! They could reform places of amusement, because girls and their beaux are the principal patrons of dance halls and restaurants and theaters and they would go bankrupt if the mothers union turned their thumbs down on them and no girl was permitted to go where there was indecent dancing permitted or bootleg whisky sold or a filthy play exhibited.

And the mothers union could enforce union hours on the giving of parties and see that they began early and ended early, so that the young people attending them might get much-needed sleep, for after all it is mother who gives the dinner dances and the balls.

And, furthermore, the mothers union might be altruistic in its scope and make every mother who belonged to it pledge herself to use her utmost endeavor to try to rear her own children up to make the kind of wife and husband that she would like some other woman to be bringing up for her own son and daughter.

For in the end it is women who have to settle the divorce question by teaching their children how to be the tolerant, tender, generous sort of husbands and wives whose mates will not want to divorce them.

Certainly there is a great field of usefulness for the mothers union. There is nothing that would come so near to filling a long-felt want.

Junior College P.-T. A. Opens Fall Programs

The first meeting of the Junior College and High school P.-T. A. opened Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the auditorium at the school, with Mrs. I. R. Sheldon, the new president, giving a gracious address of welcome to the new members of the P.-T. A.

An orchestra selection, "Song of Love," from "Blossom Time," was given under the direction of Mrs. Hermione Vaughn by a group of her pupils in the school.

E. F. Bohmfalk of the First Methodist church made an interesting devotional talk, taking the child into manhood, step by step. He emphasized the connection necessary between education and religion; stressed what habit means and said that religion was as important to the child as to man. Education he spoke of as something that one can in turn give to others. He closed his talk with a vocal number, "Christ My Own."

A short business meeting followed the program and after the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Miss Collins, there was a discussion of a worthy boy or girl to whom the P.-T. A. scholarship in Junior college should be given.

The officers and teachers were introduced and the meeting was adjourned to the cafeteria where refreshments were served to Mesdames J. R. Hyatt, T. M. McKinney, J. C. Mathis, H. A. McCarty, J. E. Shaw, J. H. Johnson, C. R. White, R. E. Fisher, J. W. Saye, J. G. Dixon, George Bodkin, J. B. L. Hansard, W. E. Fitzgerald, J. J. Morgan, W. A. Grant, Joe E. McKinney, R. A. Milton Erwin, Lester Jones, O. M. Smith, W. French, Harry ten Brink, A. M. Hepler and all the teachers of the school.

Splendid Reports Given By Federated Missions

Approximately 30 members were present at the second monthly meeting of the Federated Missionary societies which was held at the Wichita Falls Day Nursery Tuesday morning. Clear and concise business reports combined with human interest to make the meeting outstanding.

Mrs. L. E. Cowling opened the meeting with prayer and Mrs. R. J. Goodale, treasurer, gave the treasurer's report.

Mrs. Harry Weeks, yard chairman, told of the need of new equipment in the playground, and Mrs. Downing, chairman of jail work told of what the Catholic women, who are holding services through October, have done. They have served ice cream and cake in addition to the devotional program. This department plans for each church in town to take this work consecutively, holding services with the women and juveniles whenever any are imprisoned.

Mrs. Kemp, who is chairman of the kindergarten work, told of the work done in Wichita Falls and compared it favorably with that done by an organization in Denver where the building was donated at a cost of $200,000 without an endowment.

Mrs. O. W. Wilson gave a pleasant report of the automobile committee, telling of eight ladies who each took a car load of children to the circus Monday and of how J. H. Allison carried a little crippled boy from the car to his seat in his arms. It was voted to send The Times office and circus head a letter of thanks.

Mesdames Harry Hines and J. N. Sherrill, each announced the meeting of the Quarterly Federated Missionary societies at Temple Israel O. S. 24 at 2 o'clock.

Friday and Saturday of this week a clinic is to be held at the Day Nursery.

Mrs. Datson's report and her talk were received with much interest. A total of 1,155 children have been cared for at the Day Nursery in the past month. The largest number in one day was 53; the smallest 42, and the average 48.

Mrs. Datson made an informal report on what she was teaching the children in the kindergarten. The work specialized in it the respect for authority, learning to listen and to acquire composure.

Lucy Hansell society of the First Presbyterian church presented two dozen hemmed and monogrammed tea towels to the nursery through Mrs. J. W. McReynolds.

In an informal discussion of affairs of interest in the organization, Mrs. Datson said that the children were learning to help take care of things and that if a new child should come in and empty a shoe full of sand on the floor, several would be ready to take care of him.

The meeting was held in the dining room, where gay posters of grinning milk jars and frowning coffee pots have done their part to teach the children the benefit of milk. On one wall, carrots and tomatoes, cabbages and corn have donned happy faces and are dancing a wild jig. Fly swatters decorated by the children in gay yarns were passed for inspection and then a number of little garments made by children during the summer months were passed around. Little dresses made by children from six to nine years, were of splendid workmanship, showing the patience of their teacher, Mrs. G. R. Ellis. The work will be exhibited later in show windows of a downtown store.

Mrs. Downing called attention to the floors and tables in the room, stating that Mesdames Ellis, Downing and Ledford had done all the work.

Those present were Mesdames G. R. Ellis, Harry Weeks, A. A. Foster, W. H. Black, John Singleton, R. T. Belcher, A. F. Kimmel, L. E. Cowling, J. R. McKinney, Louis Pink, Paul Green, J. E. H. Railey, J. R. Hyatt, J. A. Kemp, W. H. Downing, W. W. Cook, O. T. Alles, J. N. Sherrill, R. J. Goodale, J. Lem Keevil, S. E. Trevathan, Harry Hines, O. W. Wilson, Horrace Robbins, C. F. Watson, J. W. McReynolds, G. W. Hardin, F. T. Datson and W. M. Cason.

The club will operate under the direction of A. H. Mahaffey and will be accompanied at all times by Mrs. Mahaffey. Miss Rose Tickell was named sponsor.

The new members include Misses Lillian Hyenck, Esther Williams, Stella Watson, Rose Tickell, Glenna Miller, Arnie Smith, Lena Derzaph, Erma Schnelle, Mamie Kuhfuss and Mesdames Joella Terrell Butler and Mary Crane.

Ladies Medical Auxiliary Holds Opening Meeting

Opening the year's work and social activities, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the Wichita County Medical association entertained with a luncheon at the country club Tuesday. Dr. R. B. Homan of El Paso was an honored guest.

The table was attractively decorated with roses and ageratum with queen's wreath and fern trailing between the bowls.

Dr. Homan gave an interesting talk on "How the Doctor's Wife Can Be of Help in the City" and Dr. O. T. Kimbrough gave two vocal selections. He was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Special hostesses were Mesdames R. L. Hargrave, M. A. Beckman, R. C. Smith, J. M. Whitworth, T. P. Lynch and G. T. Singleton.

Covers were laid for Mesdames C. W. Atkinson, M. H. Glover, R. H. Graham, J. C. A. Guest, C. R. Hartsook, J. A. Heyman, R. E. Hilburn, J. E. Kanatser, O. T. Kimbrough, Q. B. Lee, J. A. Little, W. P. Court to Revoke Man's Suspended Sentence

Carl Holder, given a five-year suspended sentence for car theft here about a year ago, Tuesday received a new two-year sentence on a similar charge at Waco, according to information received Tuesday afternoon in the office of Sheriff W. G. Bralley. Holder will be brought back to Wichita county within the next few days for the revocation of the suspended sentence, Mr. Bralley said. The new conviction will send the prisoner to the state farm for a period of seven years, it was explained, the second sentence automatically canceling the suspension clause in the first.

U. of T. Teacher On Optimist Program

Special numbers on the program for the Optimist club luncheon Wednesday will be a talk on "Salesmanship" by C. P. Brewer who is connected with the extension department of the University of Texas and several violin selections by Miss Viola Grace Doern, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Wayne Q. Barker.

Taylor Evangelists To Entertain Lions

The Taylor evangelistic party will have charge of the entertainment at the regular weekly luncheon of the Lions club at the Kemp hotel Wednesday, it is announced. W. E. Young is in charge of the arrangements.

SCHOOLS SEEK INCREASED AID

$9,125 Asked Here for Rural Pupils

The rural schools of Wichita county will seek $9,125 in financial aid from the state during the coming year, $3,224 more than the amount awarded in 1928-29, according to figures compiled Tuesday afternoon by Burl Bryant, county superintendent. Eleven of the common school districts of the county are asking for the aid allowed by law to rural schools which meet certain standardized requirements, the superintendent explained. The schools are seeking sums ranging from $300 at Deep Creek to $1,500 at City View and Cashion. The applications, already in the hands of Mr. Bryant, will be forwarded Wednesday to the state board of education where the needs of each institution will be analyzed. The final action of the board will depend upon the report of an inspector who will visit Wichita county later in the term.

According to the papers to be forwarded to Austin, the schools are making the following applications: Deep Creek, $300; $190 was awarded last year; County Line, $1,000; $1,000 given last year; Pleasant Valley, $600; received $628 last year; City View, $1,500 as against $968 last year; Fowlkes, $575, no application last year; Cashion, $1,500; $1,000 awarded last year; Enterprise, $4,000; $528 needed last year; Allendale, $600; $649 given last year; Weeth, $1,000; received $722 last year; Friberg, $650; $416 given last year; and Cobb, $400 where no application was presented last year.

Germs of decay are glued to teeth—do this

Remove [illegible] daily. Ordinary brushing methods fail. Employ this special way

WHAT causes decay? Germs. Germs, with tartar, are also held to be a chief cause of pyorrhea.

Germs on the teeth — and there are millions—are difficult to reach. A dingy, glue-like film holds them in contact with the tooth's enamel.

This film coat gets into crevices and stays. It clings so stubbornly that only a special film-removing tooth paste can remove it satisfactorily. That tooth paste is the scientific formula called Pepsodent. Utterly different from every other, as you notice instantly when it touches your teeth.

No pumice, no harmful grit. No crude abrasive, but a creamy paste so gentle that it is recommended for children's teeth and for tender gums.

Safeguard your teeth and give them the dazzling whiteness Pepsodent alone can bring. Write for free 10-day tube to The Pepsodent Co., 1104 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago.

EASY--The Love Story of a Modern Girl--

By Beatrice Burton

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Unlike her bold and modern flapper sisters, Jeanne and Alice, Ann-Marie Macy refuses to compromise her high ideals by petting. Ann-Marie has more serious ideas. She saves the money she earns in her father's bookstore to study art. When John Lawler, catch-of-the town, invites her to the Christmas dance, her happiness is short lived as Alice selfishly requests Ann-Marie to stay home while she attends the party in her place. Alice and Jeanne further infuriate Ann-Marie by pilfering her Christmas bottle of rare perfume. When Florence Lawler brings her visiting cousin, Neal Forsythe, and his friend, Jim Goodwin, to the Macy store, Ann-Marie secretly falls in love with the fickle Neal. It is the more serious Goodwin, however, who is enamored of Ann-Marie. He leaves the dance to visit her in the bookstore.

Now Go On With the Story

CHAPTER VII

"How am I going to get home?" Ann Marie repeated his question. "Why, I'm going to walk home, of course."

"Alone?"

"Why, of course!" Ann Marie laughed. "It's only 10 now, and in another half hour I'll shut up shop . . . There's not a thing to be afraid of in this town. I know everybody in it and always have."

Jim Goodwin slipped out of his overcoat and laid it down upon the table of new fiction.

"This town isn't so far away from New York," he said, his dark eyes watching her solemnly from under thick straight eyebrows. "And a lot of riff-raff must drift through it all the time. It can't be such a very safe place late at night—for a girl like you."

He took a cigarette from a heavy silver case, struck a match to it and settled himself comfortably in the chair behind Mr. Macy's desk.

"Anyway, I've come to drive you home," he added, "when you're ready to go."

He smiled at her in the friendliest kind of way as if he had known her always.

"But I haven't spoken 10 words to him—and never set eyes on him until this afternoon," Ann Marie said to herself, staring at him in blank astonishment.

"What made you come here?" she asked him suddenly in her direct quick way. "Wasn't the party any fun?"

"Very good party," he answered "and everybody seemed to be having fun. But after I heard that you were here at the shop—why, I just made up my mind to come down and spend the rest of the evening with you, if you'd let me."

"Nice of you to think of me," murmured Ann Marie absently.

But why couldn't it have been the other man, Neal Forsythe, who had thought of her here all alone and come to see that she got home safely?

"Did Florence find a girl for Mr. Forsythe?" she asked as she got up and began to put the shop in order for the night.

Jim Goodwin shook his head. "No. But Neal can always look out for himself. He was having a great time when I came away."

Ann Marie had a sudden vision of him surrounded by all the prettiest girls at the club, like the leading man in some musical comedy.

She sighed.

"Tired, Miss Macy?"

She shook her head and picked up her hat and coat.

"If you're not, why couldn't we go out and pick up a bite somewhere?" the man asked, holding the coat for her. "Or perhaps you'd like to get dressed and go up to the club for a dance or two. We'd have time."

—"Oh, I'd love that!" Ann Marie's face shone with sudden eagerness . . . To see Neal Forsythe once more that night!—To dance with him perhaps, and to feel his arm around her! It would be heavenly—

"Let's just fly home, and it won't take me 10 minutes to slip into my dancing dress!" she went on, radiant with excitement.

Outside at the curb, Jim Goodwin's car was standing. With a shock of surprise Ann Marie saw that it was a huge blue closed one bright with brass trimmings . . . Somehow she had not thought of Jim Goodwin as a man wealthy enough to own a great shining car like this one . . . He had seemed so modest and quiet and unassuming.

"Why, he has money! He must have loads of money!" she thought as he tucked a soft thick fur robe around her knees. "I wonder how Alice ever let him escape tonight!"

And then instantly she was ashamed of herself for harboring a thought like that about her own sister . . . For even if Alice's daily prayer was a prayer for a rich husband, Ann Marie was sure she never would marry a man just for his money.

"No girl would be gold-diggery enough to do that," thought Ann Marie, safe in her own decency. She knew nothing about gold-diggers, or the things that they would do.

The front of the house was in darkness.

But there was a light in the kitchen, and all the rooms were filled with the Christmas-y smell of sage-and-onion stuffing that Mrs. Leasure was making for tomorrow's turkey.

And as she worked she sang hymns to herself in a tuneless voice:

"Holy n-i-i-ight, silent ni-i-ight,
"All is calm—all is bri-i-ight—"

The house seemed very peaceful and home-like as the two young people stepped into it. Ann Marie lit the yellow lamp in the Front parlor, poked at the dying fire in the grate, and left Jim Goodwin sitting in front of it while she ran upstairs to dress.

When she came down again she found him standing in the middle of the room, looking around him at the lace curtains, the old-fashioned furniture, the holly in the old silver vases on the mantel-piece as if he found it all very attractive and interesting.

"I didn't know there were any houses like this left in the world," he said "It makes me think of my grandmother's house as it used to be when I was a kid . . . I like it."

He turned and looked at her gravely, and Ann Marie's eyes smiled back at him, full of warmth and friendliness . . . It was easy to be friendly and natural with him.

"That's because I'm not in love with him," she told herself.

Even now she was beginning to feel shy and embarrassed at the thought of seeing Neal Forsythe again . . . How would he like her, she wondered, when he saw her as she was now, starry-eyed and red-lipped from her bath, slender and radiant in the yellow satin dress? . . . Would he single her out among all the other pretty girls at the party? Suppose he didn't—

Suppose he went away tomorrow and she never saw him again—

"Why, it would spoil my whole life!" she said to herself as she went out to the big closed car with Jim Goodwin and let him tuck her up in the fur rug once more.

So this was how the thing happened to you, was it?—This was the way love came to you? Without warning of any kind?—A man stepped through a doorway, looked at you, and everything in the world was changed for you in an instant . . . You had to have him if you ever were going to be happy and nobody else could take his place—That was love.

"That's all there is to it," Ann Marie made up her mind, thinking things over as the car skimmed over the wide white road that led up to the county club, between the lights at the gate, and up the drive.

Ann Marie's only evening cape was a shabby black-plush thing made from one of her winter coats by Mrs. Leasure's hands.

Ann Marie was ashamed of it, and she was glad that everybody was dancing when she and Jim Goodwin walked into the clubhouse that night.

"I'll wait for you here," he told her in his grave courteous way when she left him at the bottom of the stairs that led to the women's dressing room on the second floor.

There usually was a maid on duty in the dressing-room—Mrs. MacBane, a capable middle-aged Scotch woman who had worked at the club for years.

But the room was empty that night when Ann Marie arrived. She was taking off her cape when the door opened and a girl in a maid's black uniform came hurrying in.

"Want your coat checked?" she asked, and at the sound of her voice Ann Marie turned quickly and stared at her in astonishment.

"Why, Leota Ingram! How do you happen to be here?" she asked. "Is Mrs. MacBane sick?"

She couldn't imagine anyone hiring Leota Ingram to take Mrs. MacBane's place even for one evening . . . For Leota was one of the girls to whom nice people didn't speak when they passed her on the streets of the town.

Leota had gone through school in Howdy Macy's class, and once his father had thrashed him for taking Leota to the circus. Even as a girl in her teens Leota had not been "nice," so people said.

But whether she was "nice" or not, Leota was pretty as a picture. Her hair was red-gold and her eyes were gray and enormous. She had dimples and the sort of figure that Florence Lawler never would have if she starved herself for a year.

"Yeh, Mrs. Ingram's sick with the flu," she said to Ann Marie, "and they been tryin' to get somebody to take her place all day long . . . Finally they called me up. They needn't think I don't know that they wouldn't have asked me to work up here if they could a got anybody else!—I know what this town thinks of me, an' some day I'm gonna let this town know what I think of it!—Everybody in it can go can a radish as far as I'm concerned! I sh'd worry about any of 'em!"

She hung Ann Marie's cape on a rack and gave her a check for it. Then, without another word, she hurried out of the dressing room.

Ann Marie powdered her nose before the long looking-glass and was just turning away from it when she saw that there was a run in one of her stockings.

"Oh, my cow!" she said aloud, and looked for the needles and silk-thread that Mrs. MacBane always kept in a box on the dressing table.

But there was no box there now.

Ann Marie opened the door. "Leota!" she called softly, leaning out into the hall, "Leota Ingram!"

But there was no answer. . . . Ann Marie looked down at the run. It had gone another inch on its way to her ankle.

At the end of the hall was a door that opened upon the back stairs. Ann Marie started towards it.

"Leota's probably gone down to the kitchen for some food," she decided, and pushed open the door.

"Leota!" she called and then stopped in sick and sudden horror . . . For at the top of the steps, with her back to the wall, stood Leota. And with her, his arms around her and his mouth on hers, stood Neal Forsythe!—The only man in the world, and here he was, making love to the cheapest, most common girl in town! Making love to Leota Ingram.

Tourists to Be Spared Annoyance in Mexico

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—American tourists entering Mexico and arriving at Monterey now must register their cars with the tourist traffic department opposite the union station in Monterey, according to the Laredo Chamber of Commerce. The registration is made for the purpose of saving annoyance to American tourists, who will have a sticker put on their car that will save them any further trouble from Mexican officials while in Mexico.

Pioneers Object To Moving 'Treaty Rock'

SAN SABA, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Attempts of the San Saba Fair association to donate "Treaty rock," one of a group of several stones left near here as a record of the peace pact between Indians and white settlers in 1850, to the University of Texas has met with opposition by the Old Settlers' association. Members of the latter organization maintain that the rock should be left undisturbed.

The university already has a similar rock in its natural resources library. Nineteen old settlers headed by Hugh Miller, president of the group, are opposing the donation.

Alfred Cortot to Give Denton Recital Nov. 12

DENTON, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Alfred Cortot, French pianist, will open the artist course season of the Texas State College for Women Nov. 12.

Cortot is known in Europe as an orchestral conductor and teacher as well as a pianist. The Russian Cossack chorus will appear Nov. 18. It consists of 14 Russian male artists directed by Sergie Socoloff.

Big Spring to Vote On Improvement Bonds Soon

BIG SPRING, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Big Spring citizens will vote on a $500,000 city improvement proposal Nov. 12. A favorable vote would provide for issuance of $[illegible] worth of bonds for a city hall to cost $125,000, waterworks improvements $100,000, a sewer disposal plant and sewer extensions, paving extensions, $75,000, a central fire station $30,000 and two fire sub stations $20,000.

Hard to Breathe at Night?

It's foolish to run chances with those wheezing, gasping spells associated with Asthma and nasal irritations at night when you can get prompt relief in just a few minutes' time. How? Go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes right now. That's the first step.

Next, smoke a few during the day and one just before you go to bed—and the chances are you won't lose sleep tonight. But in any case, you can be sure if you are attacked that just a few puffs of one of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes will quickly relieve you.

Thousands of men and women keep Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes handy at night. One Atlanta, Ga., woman says she knows if she has a bad breathing spell, she will be able to get to sleep in a few minutes after smoking one of these medical cigarettes. No tobacco or cubebs in Dr. Blosser's—just a special combination of herbs, berries and flowers whose soothing vapor has a clearing action that opens up air passages as nothing else can.

TEXAS mother proves her idea is right . . .

"My little son was bilious and upset," says Mrs. Sam Jones, 1702 West Laurel St., San Antonio. "He had no appetite, his breath was bad, his tongue was coated, and he was nearly always tired and sleepy.

"He seemed to have trouble with his stomach and bowels and I had an idea California Fig Syrup would help him. He brightened up marvelously with the first few doses. At the end of a week, he was a different boy. I have used California Fig Syrup with both my boys every time they have had a cold or upset, and I give it a lot of credit for their wonderful condition."

California Fig Syrup never fails to cleanse the system of bilious, headachy, feverish or constipated children, quickly and gently. It never gripes or sickens. Children love its flavor. A pure vegetable product with the highest endorsement of doctors, it helps Nature give tone and strength to the stomach and bowels.

All drug stores have the generous bottles. The name "California" marks the genuine.

It's easy to see from their wonderful condition that the mother of these youngsters knows what to do when their stomach or bowels go wrong. No drugs for her! Nothing but pure vegetable California Fig Syrup. At least a million families are never without a bottle of it in their homes!

Proper Lighting for Your Home.

HAVE you ever really thought seriously about whether your home has proper lighting?

The difference between proper and improper lighting means the difference between full enjoyment of light and just "getting along with what we have."

Electric light is the cheapest convenience in your home. It costs no more to have proper lighting than it does to have makeshift light which fails to give you the full advantage of this modern convenience.

Improper reading light is dangerous. It is a strain on the eyes. You or your family may suffer the consequences of impaired eyesight due to poor lighting without really knowing what caused the trouble. Science has solved the problems of lighting so that you can have the right sort of lights in every room of your home with positive certainty that you will obtain the greatest benefit from their use.

The Texas Electric Service Company has made a special study of home lighting and will welcome an opportunity to go over your home with you and recommend the changes, if any are needed, that would make your lighting most effective.

Let's talk about lighting; it can be of untold value to you.

Let The Economy Twins light your home cheaper than you ever thought would be possible

Herbert Kaufman's Daily Editorial

MURPHY SPEAKS HIS PIECE

WHEN 10-year-old Herbert Hoover was choring for his board and schoojing, 10-year-old Fred Murphy was driving tote teams through Minnesota's snowdrifts and delivering logs and supplies to construction camps.

Murphy, now proprietor of his own paper mills and publisher of the influential Minneapolis Tribune, recently spent two days as a White House guest, telling the president why the farmer is entitled to much more consideration than the Hawley tariff has granted him, meanwhile emphasizing the necessity of an agricultural research bureau in the image of the bureau of standards.

If manufacturing and retailing are entitled to expert federal guidance, then the same logic that convinces government to teach business men advance practice, shrewd management and waste prevention applies to the equally important economic group producing our foods, fibers, cellulose and meat supplies.

Murphy is himself a working farmer. His grain and fodder ranches at Breckenridge have demonstrated how scientific culture can multiply alfalfa, corn, clover and wheat yields.

As a hog raiser, he has evolved a Red Duroc strain bearing three litters annually, which, under selective feeding, average 200 pounds per four months shoat.

His thoroughbred bulls and milk cows are blue ribbon winners from Minneapolis to Portland, and there are more champions in his Percheron stud than any two French paddocks.

FOR years, Murphy has preached —and practiced—deep plowing, cross-fertilization, diversified cropping and the eliminating of trashy sires.

Persistent Tribune campaigns have taught Minnesota and Dakota cities how much their welfare depends upon rural prosperity and, as a result, the merchants, bankers and commercial organizations of the three states are regularly found behind the legislative programs of their agricultural colleges.

Tribune territory is intensively covered by the paper's staff of lecturers, who travel from county to county organizing clubs, teaching the latest methods of cultivation, poultry raising, dairying and general husbandry—but, above all, demonstrating by chart, record and balance sheet the greater profits that lie in divided baskets of eggs.

Farming is only a gamble when the farmer invests his faith and working capital in a single specialty. Or when he breaks step with progress.

Tribune supporters and competitors, alike, credit the Tribune with the district's remarkable recovery from post-war depression.

The ninth reserve district is again flourishing. Murphy has succeeded in diversifying its energies.

Minnesota is raising more chickens than wheat, making more money out of butter than her grain fields.

The Dakotas are resounding with hen clucks, turkey gobbles, the drone of bee hives and the low of cattle, as well as the chug of reapers—and, consequently, tooting horns of plenty.

And anybody from the Iowa border to the Canadian line will tell you that Murphy did it.

Agriculture won't need subsidies when it gets a fair break, a square tariff deal and a chance to "learn how."

That's the gist of what Editor Murphy has been telling "Handy Man Hoover."

Today in Texas History

OCT. 9

1832—Grant from Mexican government to James Grant and J. C. Beales to settle 800 families in Texas.

1835—Captain Collingsworth surprised Mexican garrison at Goliad, capturing arms and prisoners.

1924—United States airship "Shenandoah" arrived at Fort Worth on first leg of transcontinental flight.

A Chicago man offers to trade his typewriter for a shotgun. Probably this should be a warning to a couple of editors.

It may be hard for the scrub to sit on the sidelines, but he might console himself with the thought that the regulars get all the breaks.

Not Quite so Splendid

FOR A GOOD MANY YEARS the people of this nation have been very proud of their "splendid isolation." Cut off from other countries by wide oceans, the country is also blessed with tremendous natural resources. Oil, iron, coal, copper, lumber, cotton—we out-produce the rest of the world, and the knowledge soothes us. It makes our "splendid isolation" possible, enables us to be pretty self-sufficient.

Yet this blissful state of affairs isn't quite as complete as we usually think. We are calling ourselves economically independent when we are not.

Theodore Knappen, a writer for the Magazine of Wall Street, recently set out to study the matter. He found that many of the products essential to a modern civilization are not produced in the United States at all. We are dependent on foreign nations for such important things as tin, potash, chromium, antimony, manganese, nickel, tungsten, rubber, jute, asbestos; the list is a long one, and our expanding industries tend to make it longer and not shorter.

What would happen, then, if war should cut us off from the rest of the world?

Mr. Knappen's studied conclusion is simply this: the United States is not self-contained.

"We could not exist at all, according to our present standards, if we were cut off from the rest of the world," he remarks bluntly.

Now this, when you stop to think about it, has a direct bearing on the coming Anglo-American naval conference, the Kellogg peace treaties and the whole perplexing question of our foreign policy.

It might, of course, be an argument for building a navy twice the size of any other navy on earth; an argument for maintaining an enormous standing army and a stupendous fleet of airplanes, so that we would assuredly be the victors in any war we might get into.

But that would be quite a job. It would be fearfully expensive, in the first place. And, in the second place, it might not work. In 1914 Germany had the world's greatest army—but it was of no avail. In 1914 England had a fleet equal to any two other fleets—but England would have been beaten if she had not had outside help.

Perhaps, instead, it would be wiser for us to make sure that war never comes. The thing is quite possible, if we only set our minds to it. The pending naval agreement with England is not a matter of national self-sacrifice; it is simply good sense. It will be a step leading away from war, and that is recommendation enough for it.

The plain fact seems to be that this modern world is so complicated with all nations so dependent no one another, that war is just naturally out of date. And the sooner we realize that our "splendid isolation" isn't what it used to be, the sooner we'll be willing to do all that we can to make peace everlasting.

Charting a Course

THE INSTITUTION of group singing this year as a permanent curricular subject for high school and junior college students should receive hearty commendation generally from those whose vocational or avocational duties include a never-ending search of this city for more singers. And for those who would solve the problem of too much movies and too little home life, at least in part, with increased capacity for self-entertainment.

The combined student bodies of the high school and college now furnish material for three girls' glee clubs, three boys' glee clubs, two male quartets, a trio and sextet of girls' voices, and a 50-piece orchestra. For the past few years, at least, the public schools have been providing thorough and persistent training in the fundamentals of music and singing from the first to the eighth grades, inclusive. Upon transfer to the senior high school for the final three years of secondary education they were afforded no further opportunity for training in individual or ensemble singing. Naturally, the period which should have given a degree of finish and permanence to the training acquired in the first eight grades witnessed instead almost a complete loss of that investment.

There was an obvious inconsistency in the community's position. With scores of local organizations calling constantly for men and women prepared to sing, a large crop of well cultivated talent was abandoned just before the season of fruiting was reached. The need for further training was recognized by the school authorities without the means of providing it. The step taken this year accords with the principles of social economy, and will contribute materially to the city's manifold activities in coming years.

Extensive development of individual talent in that form of art which more than any other satisfies the common desire for entertainment should gradually, and in some measure, relieve the burden now borne by the movies. A generation which buys nightly at the box office entertainment about whose quality it complains all the next day might find partial salvation in staying at home on Tuesday nights to sing its own theme songs. Or to read plays for itself—for there is little on the current stage and screen that has not been in print for years. The plan would be worth trying.

Not Insane—Just Angry

A PSYCHIATRIST who testified in the recent trial of young Earle Peacox, who was convicted of murdering his wife, made one of the most eminently sensible remarks we have yet heard from a psychiatrist on the witness stand.

Peacox was setting up the "emotional insanity" racket for a defense, and it was pointed out to this psychiatrist that once, repairing a radio set, Peacox had become so enraged that he smashed the set all to pieces. This, it was asserted, proved that he was emotionally unstable and not responsible for the murder of his wife. But the psychiatrist said:

"That was not a symptom of emotional instability. It was anger. It could have been cured by a spanking."

We do wish that a little common, ordinary horse sense like that could be injected into a few more or our murder trials. It's refreshing.

Quotations Worth Noting

"The sensation of moving at 300 miles an hour at an altitude of 5,000 feet is very similar to that experienced in a motor car traveling at 40 miles an hour."—Sir Alan Cobham, famous British aviator.

"There is much talk now of the desirability of sending boys to college earlier, but I have found that some of the best students are those who have spent time 'knocking about' in the world after leaving prepartory school."—William L. Nichols. (Atlantic Monthly.)

Summer Memories

I can remember still how high waves fell
And spread their thunder on the open shore;
I can remember things I will not tell,
Kisses long buried in the ocean's roar.

I can remember how the full moon drew
A lane of magic on the silver sea
And shimmering loveliness, my dear, with you
And all the universe engulfing me.

I can remember kneeling as a slave
Before you, asking you your sweet reprieve—
I even can recall the pledge I gave—
And that's darn near a record, I believe!

—WILFRED FUNK.

Nonsense

It is supposed to have happened in the Pennsylvania station and an elderly Jewish man had just seen a friend off. As the train pulled out another dialectician raced up breathlessly, only to miss it, and he began to fume, fret and fuss in boisterous Yiddish. He ever pulled his beard and his hair and while he wasn't exactly a lunatic, he would have served as one until a lunatic came along.

The other said: "So you missed your train?"

"Yass!" growled the other.

"By how much did you miss it?" persisted the inquisitive one.

"I missed it by just a minute," grunted the annoyed train-misser.

"So dun't get so haxcited," countered the first, "the way you're carrying on, is like you missed it by an hour!"

Golly!

A Form of Criticism

Clarence Boykin of Richmond, Va., submits this for addition to the column's Crisp Cracks from Critical Cusses Dept. Several seasons ago the reviewer for the N. Y. World said of the unhappy chorus of a musical show: "You can see them sing and hear them dance."

By Way of Variety

"Strictly Dishonorable," which thrilled the first audience at the Avon theater the other evening, is the first smash success for Brock Pemberton, the producer, in nine years. Not since "Enter Madame" has he enjoyed superlative comment about any of his efforts, although he has had what might be termed moderate hits.

But what we started out to say was that Brock Pemberton is one of the very few producers who is a pal of almost every drama critic in New York. He dines at their homes frequently or at the Algonquin hotel with those critics who dine there, yet these friends have not received his plays affectionately. In fact, their comments have been cruel.

It is jotted down here chiefly because it is excellent testimony to the honesty of most of the local drama defenders.

No

"There was a Scotch theater goer at 'Remote Control,' the new hit at the 48th St. Theater last night. He learned that most of the action takes place in the dark so he brought a lot of picture negatives which he developed. Are you screaming?—Arthur Kober."

Retreat

The dreamer rises to a plane
Wherein he rules his small domain—
His kingdom's that of sweet illusion,
From which is barred the world's confusion,
Until the spell that's woven breaks;
The king's dethroned when the dreamer wakes.

What matter that it's fleeting glory—
Life's pleasures are but transitory.

—SYLVIA FEINBERG.

Now, There!

Among other things that make colyuming uninteresting is being button-holed by people you have mentioned and who vigorously deny matters that you know are facts. At the Casanova club the other midnight a socially registered phoney who does his womaning in the Broadway sector complained: "You said I was going to marry that girl and I object to it."

"You mean," said the reporter who was familiar with the romance, "that you are not going to marry her?"

"I certainly am not!"

"Well," was the sassy response, "you ought to."

Not New, but Clean

And Charles Ray tells of the sentimental woman who was married to an unromantic actor. They were in their hotel room and she suddenly queried: "Would you visit my grave often after I die, dear?"

"Certainly," he said with a little animation, "I pass it on the way to the golf links, anyhow."

Nifty

In the Oct. 5 issue of Collier's John B. Kennedy discusses the expression "Makin' Whoopee" and says: "They call books after it; they call shows after it; they call doctors after it."

Haw!

And George Jean Nathan, one of the better wise-crackers, says that a star is an actress occasionally loved by her public but more generally by her manager.

"All Quiet on the Western Front"

By ERICH MARIA REMARQUE

CHAPTER XXII

I am often on guard over the Russians. In the darkness one sees their forms move like sick storks, like great birds. They come close up to the wire fence and lean their faces against it; their fingers hook the mesh. Often many stand side by side, and breathe the wind that comes down from the moors and the forest.

They rarely speak and then only a few words. They are more human and more brotherly towards one another, it seems to me, than we are. But perhaps that is merely because they feel themselves to be more unfortunate than we are. Anyway the war is over so far as they are concerned. But to wait for dysentery is not much of a life either.

The Territorials who are in charge of them say that they were much more lively at first. They used to have intrigues among themselves, as always happens, and it would often come to blows and knives. But now they are quite apathetic and listless.

They stand at the wire fence; sometimes one goes away and then another at once takes his place in the line. Most of them are silent; occasionally one begs a cigaret butt.

I see their dark forms, their beards move in the wind. I know nothing of them except that they are prisoners, and that is exactly what troubles me. Their life is obscure and guiltless;—if I could know more of them what their names are, how they live, what they are waiting for, what are their burdens, then my emotion would have an object and might become sympathy. But as it is I perceive behind them only the suffering of the creature, the awful melancholy of life and the pitilessness of men.

A word of command has made these silent figures our enemies; a word of command might transform them into our friends. At some table a document is signed by some persons whom none of us know, and then for years together that very crime on which formerly the world's condemnation and severest penalty fell, becomes our highest aim. But who can draw such a distinction when he looks at these quiet men with their child-like faces and apostles' beards. Any non-commissioned officer is more of an enemy to a recruit, any schoolmaster to a pupil than they are to us. And yet we would shoot at them again and they at us if they were free.

I am frightened; I dare not think this way no more. This way lies the abyss. It is not now the time; but I will not lose these thoughts. I will keep them, shut them away until the war is ended. My heart beats fast; this is the aim, the great, the sole aim, that I have thought of in the trenches; that I have looked for as the only possibility of existence after this annihilation of all human feeling; this is a task that will make life afterward worthy of these hideous years.

I take out my cigarets, break each one in half and give them to the Russians. They bow to me and then they light the cigarets. Now red points glow in every face. They comfort me; it looks as though there were little windows in the dark village cottages saying that behind them are rooms full of peace.

The days go by. On a foggy morning another of the Russians is buried; almost every day one of them dies. I am on guard during the burial. The prisoners sing a chorale, they sing in parts, and it sounds almost as if there were no voices, but an organ far away on the moor.

The burial is quickly over.

In the evening they stand again at the wire fence and the wind comes down to them from the beech woods. The stars are cold.

I now know a few of those who speak a little German. There is a musician amongst them, he says he used to be a violinist in Berlin. When he hears that I can play the piano he fetches his violin and plays. The others sit down and lean their backs against the fence. He stands up and plays; sometimes he has that absent expression which violinists get when they close their eyes; or again he sways the instrument to the rhythm and smiles across to me.

He plays mostly folk-songs and the others hum with him. They are like a country of dark hills that sing far down under the ground. The sound of the violin stands like a slender girl above it and it is clear and alone. The voices cease and the violin continues alone. In the night it is so thin it sounds frozen; one must stand close up; it would be much better in a room—out here it makes a man grow sad.

Because I have already had a long leave I get none on Sundays. So the last Sunday before I go back to the front my father and eldest sister come over to see me. All day we sit in the soldiers' home. Where else could we go; we don't want to stay in the camp. About midday we go for a walk on the moors.

The hours are a torture; we do not know what to talk about, so we speak of my mother's illness. It is now definitely cancer, she is already in the hospital and will be operated on shortly. The doctors hope she will recover, but we have never heard of cancer being cured.

"Where is she then?" I ask.

"In the Luisa hospital," says my father.

"In which class?"

"Third. We must wait till we know what the operation costs. She wanted to be in the third herself. She said that there she would have some company. And besides it is cheaper."

"So she is lying there with all those people. If only she could sleep properly."

My father nods. His face is broken and full of furrows. My mother has always been sickly; and though she has only gone to the hospital when she has been compelled to, it has cost a great deal of money, and my father's life has been practically given up to it.

"If only I know how much the operation costs," says he.

"Have you not asked?"

"Not directly; I cannot do that—the surgeon might take it amiss and that would not do; he must operate on mother."

Yes, I think bitterly; that's how it is with us, and with all poor people. They don't dare to ask the price, but worry themselves dreadfully beforehand about it; but the others, for whom it is not important, they settle the price first as a matter of course. And the doctor does not take it amiss from them.

"And the dressings afterward are so expensive," says my father.

"Doesn't the invalid's fund pay anything toward it, then?" I ask.

"Mother has been ill too long."

"Have you any money at all?"

He shakes his head; "No, but I can do some overtime."

I know. He will stand at his desk folding and pasting and cutting until 12 o'clock at night. At 8 o'clock in the evening he will eat some of the miserable rubbish they get in exchange for their food tickets, then he will take a powder for his headache and work on.

In order to cheer him up a bit I tell him a few stories, soldiers' jokes, and the like, about generals and sergeant-majors.

Afterwards, I accompany them both to the railway station. They give me a pot of jam and a bag of potato cakes that my mother has made for me.

Then they go off and I return to the camp.

In the evening I spread the jam on the cakes and eat some. But I have no taste for them. So I go out to give them to the Russians. Then it occurs to me that my mother cooked them herself and that she was probably in pain as she stood before the hot stove. I put the bag back in my pack and take only two cakes to the Russians.

We travel for several days. The first aeroplanes appear in the sky. We roll on past transport lines. Guns, guns. The light railway picks us up. I search for my regiment. No one knows exactly where it lies. Somewhere or other I put up for the night, somewhere or other I receive provisions and a few vague instructions. And so with my pack and my rifle I set out again on the way.

By the time I come up they are no longer in that devastated place. I hear we have become one of the flying divisions that are pushed in wherever it is hottest. That does not sound cheerful to me. They tell me of heavy losses that we have been having. I inquire after Kat and Albert. No one knows anything about them.

I search farther and wander about here and there; it is a wonderful feeling. One night and then another I camp out like a red Indian. Then at last I get some definite information, and by the afternoon I am able to report to the orderly room.

The sergeant-major detains me there. The company comes back in two days' time. There is no object in sending me up now.

"What was it like on leave?" he asks, "pretty good, eh?"

"In parts," I say.

"Yes," he sighs, "yes, if a man didn't have to come away again. The second half is always rather messed up by that."

I loaf around until the company comes back in the early morning, grey, dirty, soured and gloomy. Then I jump up, push in amongst them, my eyes searching. There is Tjaden, there is Muller blowing his nose, and there are Kat and Kropp. We arrange our sacks of straw side by side. I have an uneasy conscience when I look at them, and yet without any good reason. Before we turn in I bring out the rest of the potato cakes and jam so that they can have some too.

The outer cakes are mouldy, still it is possible to eat them. I keep those for myself and give the fresh ones to Kat and Kropp.

Kat chews and says: "These are from your mother?"

I nod.

"Good," says he, "I can tell by the taste."

I could almost weep. I can hardly control myself any longer. But it will soon be all right again back here with Kat and Albert. This is where I belong.

"You've been lucky," whispers Kropp to me before we drop off to sleep, "they say we are going to Russia."

To Russia. It's not much of a war over there.

In the distance the front thunders. The walls of the hut rattle.

Dry Suspect Freed on 'Huckleberry' Alibi

NACOGDOCHES, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—A plea that he was picking huckleberries when arrested near a still in operation in the woods near here has won freedom for Vernon Dorsett, 24-year-old farmer, who lives near Nacogdoches.

Dorsett was acquitted in court here on a charge of manufacturing whisky. It was his second trial. The first resulted in a two-year sentence but a higher court reversed the sentence. The case became known locally as the "huckleberry case."

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

The Masefield Complex

I must go down to the seas again,
to the lonely sea and the sky,
And all I ask is a tall ship and a star to steer her by;
And the wheel's kick and the wind's song and the white sail's shaking,
And a gray mist on the sea's face,
and a gray dawn breaking.
(The point is, though, I'm a city chap with a bookkeeping job to boot;
And I do not own a white hat and haven't a sailor suit;
And I can't sail and I can't steer, for I'm much too busy—
And a short row on a park lake always makes me dizzy.)

II

I must go down to the seas again, for the call of the running tide
Is a wild call and a clear call that may not be denied;
And all I ask is a windy day with the white clouds flying
And the flung spray and the blown spume and the sea-gulls crying.
(My father, he was a naval man and he lived all his life afloat
On a round ship and a flat ship—
a Hoboken ferryboat;
And dad he left me a nature shy, and a courage failing—
Oh, I can't float and I can't swim and I can't stand sailing.)

III

I must go down to the seas again,
to the vagrant gypsy life,
To the gull's way and the whale's way, where the wind's like a whetted knife;
And all I ask is a merry yarn from a laughing fellow rover,
And quiet sleep and a sweet dream
when the long trick's over.
(I almost rowed a boat last June,
but couldn't find the oars;
And I once got my feet wet at a place they called Ocean Shores;
And all I ask is a Masefield poems when for deep-sea stuff I'm looking—
And a soft chair and a warm room and some good home-cooking!)

Service

Elmer Twitchell, seeing how easy it was for Mr. Shearer, has decided to go into business for himself. He will accept commissions from any and all big business interests to put over any or all the following projects:

1—To enlarge or reduce any navy.
2—To enlarge or reduce any army.
3—To buy, sell or exchange any world peace parley.
4—To get a grip on any world market for anything.
5—To dethrone any king, queen, czar or shah.
6—To colonize the north pole.
7—To control the elements.

"But you can't make good on any of those propositions," Mr. Twitchell was informed.

"Who's going to bring that up?" he demanded.

Mitchell County Plans 'Live-at-Home' Program

COLORADO, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Mitchell county farmers are planning a "live-at-home" program for next year that will surpass any attempt along this line ever made.

While crops in Mitchell county this year are fair, farmers have realized the need of more dairy cattle, poultry and other stock and will launch a program of diversification next year.

Cotton farmers have said they expect to make their living at home off gardens, cows and poultry next year and stay out of debt. "This is the salvation of this country," J. H. Greene, chamber of commerce secretary, said. "When our farmers raise poultry, cows and hogs for home use and possibly sell some surplus products, our prosperity will treble."

And farmers are going to attempt this very thing.

THE FORD TOWN SEDAN

VALUE far above the PRICE

IN REVIEWING the many advantages of the Ford car, it is particularly interesting to note the relation between value and price.

The low first cost is a point to keep in mind at all times because it means a considerable saving to you in the purchase of a car.

Of even greater importance, however, is the reason for this low price and the manner in which it has been achieved without sacrifice of quality or performance.

Every purchaser shares the benefits of the Ford policy of owning the source of many raw materials—of making thousands of cars a day—of selling at a small margin of profit—of constantly giving greater and greater value through the vast industrial organization that has been built up for the making of this car.

A new degree of excellence has been brought within reach of all the people through the development of new manufacturing machines and the discovery and working out of new manufacturing methods.

Evidence of this is found in the extremely close limits of measurement maintained in the manufacture of vital parts. Some of these are held true to within a maximum variation of three ten-thousandths of an inch (.0003), reducing friction and wear and resulting in greater reliability, longer life and better performance.

As the quality of workmanship has been increased through the accuracy of the machine, so has the quality of materials been increased. The savings resulting from new manufacturing economies have been put back into the car. Through typical Ford methods, materials once thought too expensive for a low price car have been made available for use in the Ford.

Today, more than ever, it is an outstanding example of high quality at low cost. Were it made in any other way, under any other policy, it would unquestionably cost you much more than the present price.

The use of the Triplex shatter-proof glass for the windshield is a definite indication of the quality that has been built into the Ford car. So are the four Houdaille hydraulic shock absorbers. The five steel-spoke wheels. The silent, fully enclosed six-brake system. The aluminum pistons. The chrome silicon alloy valves. The simplicity and efficiency of the lubrication, cooling, ignition and fuel systems. The large number of ball and roller bearings. The extensive use of fine steel forgings instead of castings or stampings. The many other mechanical features that count so much in reliability, economy and long life.

All of these are important considerations to every man and woman who is contemplating the purchase of a motor car. All are important reasons why the Ford delivers a value far above the price.

BORGER HOPES TO END CRIME

Martial Law Cleanup Has Citizens' Sympathy

BORGER, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—The bad boy town of the Panhandle is going to be purified if it takes the whole of Texas to do it.

In the three violent years of its life, Borger has been known afar for its lawlessness. Crime has thrived, state officials charge, and officers sworn to maintain the peace are alleged to have been in the other end of town every time something happened.

Yet the town has prospered despite its bad name, and the substantial citizens are resolved the prosperity shall continue. The population now is 10,000 and the monthly payroll $1,000,000. What at its inception was just another collection of huts on the prairie, streets deep with oil and water, now has paving, business houses of all descriptions, churches, schools and a chamber of commerce.

The latest move for a cleanup is the martial law proclamation of Gov. Dan A. Moody. National guardsmen under command of Brig. Gen. Jacob F. Wolters have taken over the entire government, and the peace officers have been disarmed. Seven of them were arrested, and the mayor, Glen A. Pace, is under a charge of having caused a murder witness to leave town.

Martial law was invoked after the recent assassination of John A. Holmes, district attorney. The proclamation charges that one peace officer is an ex-convict, that officers have accepted money for the protection of crime and that threats have menaced decent citizens who might tell what they knew.

Borger sprouted hurriedly in 1926 after a new oil discovery. Within two months 5,000 persons were there, a good share of them promoting some type of vice to get the money of the well-paid oil workers.

As population grew, slayings increased. Prosecution was dilatory, and the Texas rangers came. They averaged 100 arrests a day until the town quieted. In October of 1926 they came again, under orders of Gov. Miriam A. Ferguson, and in the spring of 1927 Governor Moody sent them a third time.

Now, with the drastic regime of martial law, those who are working for a bigger and better Borger think the criminal element may be vanquished.

Airport Notes

The largest number of passengers ever to pass through Wichita Falls via the S. A. F. E. and Braniff airlines was reported Tuesday when a total of 44 passengers were handled in transit at the Municipal airport. The 21 passengers on the Safeway line Tuesday morning northbound necessitated the running of a double-header of two of the huge tri-motored Fords to Oklahoma City, the second this week. A total of 26 passengers were handled on the morning schedules. On the afternoon runs 18 passengers passed through the port.

M. A. Rutis, Bob Baxter and party took off from the Municipal airport about 6:45 o'clock Tuesday morning for Tulsa to attend the international petroleum exposition. They were in the Travelair J6 cabin monoplane of the Tower & McKanna company, oil operators, piloted by Burton L. Walker. Mr. Rutis is superintendent of the Tower & McKanna company. The party returned to the Municipal port about 6:30 o'clock Tuesday night.

Tex Logan, son of C. P. Logan, manager of the Municipal airport, will make his initial instruction flight Wednesday morning under the direction of Fred Ridenour, pilot of the Lone Star Aviation company. About 10 student fliers are enrolled in the school of instruction at the port.

With construction of the runways at the Municipal airport well under way, it was announced Tuesday by George D. Fairtrace, city manager, that a meeting between city and the local officials of the Braniff and Safeway systems would be held within the next few days for the purpose of formulating definite plans for the construction of office, ticket room and waiting room space at the Municipal port.

A special meeting to discuss improvements on the Municipal airport will be held by stockholders of the Wichita Falls Airport company at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning in the directors' room of the City National bank building. The runways now under construction at the port were made possible through the airport company and other improvements to be made in conjunction with the city's program of expansion will be considered at the meeting. At a meeting of the board of directors of the company Tuesday morning, old officers were reelected as follows: Wilbur Cahoon, president; L. P. Hammond, Charles R. McGaha, James E. McKanna, vice presidents; W. S. Abbott, secretary and treasurer.

Advertising and Salesmanship "Success Twins" of Business, Club Is Told

Because self-preservation is the first law of nature, the basis of modern business is selfishness rather than service, according to an address given by C. P. Brewer of the University of Texas extension department before the joint meeting of Ad club and Real Estate board members at the Kemp hotel Tuesday noon.

Persons are paid in proportion to what they have to sell and to the skill with which they effect the sale, he said. Advertising and salesmanship were styled the success twins, neither of which can prosper without the other.

"All of us have something to sell—either service, ideas, or merchandise. We must advertise to sell. Most of us, however, want to reap the harvest before it has been planted and cultivated. Advertising must be done intelligently," Mr. Brewer said, "and repeated impressions through different channels get the best results."

There is a need for more consistent cooperation between the advertiser and the advertising he has bought, the speaker said.

Virgil Childress, representing the Junior chamber of commerce, gave a brief talk on fire prevention, outlining the week of special observance which is being sponsored by his organization. Four reasons why fire prevention is not more generally practiced, Mr. Childress said, is because it is not for sale on the installment plan, is not handled by bootleggers, is not issued in yearly models, and does not come in pastel shades.

Don Ross, Ad club president, was in charge of the joint meeting.

Work of Church Compared to That Of Army in Address by Episcopal Leader

A talk inspirational to the highest degree was given by the Rev. Edward M. Trelease Monday night to 250 persons who attended the dinner given by the Church of the Good Shepherd.

Taking as a theme the song "Onward Christian Soldiers," Rev. Trelease quoted the lines, "Like a mighty army, moves the church of God."

Going back to the day when the people of Israel waited outside the gates of the Holy city to see the ark brought in, he questioned whether or not, church and army should be compared. The celebration of Queen Victoria's diamond jubilee was brought to mind; the soldiers from all parts of the British empire, then the little old lady in her carriage, giving thanks for the success of her reign and rededicating herself to her people in the great cathedral. There again, church and army were compared.

Briefly, Rev. Mr. Trelease told in what an army and the church were like; an army must have an enemy; in the church, sin and wickedness wheel out their cohorts. An army is organized to fight and one can find the fight is on as soon as he enlists in the Christian life. An army is to protect. The army of the church must protect faith. An army is to make people surrender; the church works to make people surrender to the Christ. An army gives out encouraging propaganda: Christ gave out encouraging propaganda. An army must have barracks and the church has barracks in its schools and buildings. An army must have an ideal for which to fight; the church fights for its ideal of Christianity.

An ovation was given him at the close of his talk. Rev. Dr. Trelease is English by birth and still has the English accent. He is a man of learning, of broad vision and great eloquence. He came here on a tour he is making as a representative of the national council of the Episcopal church.

Preceding his talk, after the dinner served to about 250 people, a short musical program, arranged by Mrs. Carrie Wilcox, was given. Miss Mary Louise Clark gave a piano number and R. E. Shepherd, accompanied by Mrs. Shepherd, gave a group of songs.

The long tables in the parish house were beautifully decorated by the three guilds which united in serving the dinner.

Rabbit Breeders Praise Iowa Park Fair Heads

The local unit of the American Rabbit and Cavy Breeders association in session Tuesday night instructed its secretary, J. H. Stanfill, to write a letter of thanks to Iowa Park fair officials for their cooperation in making the rabbit show staged at the recent fair a success. About 150 rabbits were entered in the fair show.

About 50 members of the association attended the Tuesday night meeting, held in the basement of the courthouse. W. L. Smith presided in the absence of Charles Winfrey, president.

The date of the Electra rabbit show, set originally for Oct. 22, was changed to Oct. 26.

BASS IMPROVING

Dr. E. P. Bass, Wichita Falls oil operator who suffered a fracture of the small bone of the leg in an explosion at the Leslie Bros. garage Monday morning, was reported "doing fine" at the Wichita Falls Clinic hospital late Tuesday night. The force of the blast, which wrecked the room in which he was standing, was diverted from striking him full force by a counter behind which he was standing. The large bone of the leg was unhurt.

A school to teach the principles of breeding silver foxes has opened in Munich.

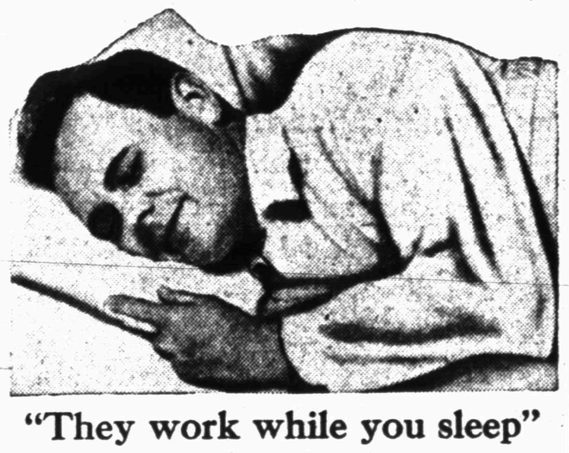

STOMACH TROUBLE?

"DIASTATIC DEFICIENCY" (failure to digest starches), causes more than one-half the cases of stomach trouble. Because of this deficiency, potatoes, breads, macaroni, rice, breakfast cereals and other starchy foods remain in a part-cooked condition and refuse to move on as they should. This stoppage causes INDIGESTION, GAS, FERMENTATION, SOURNESS, SICK HEADACHE and other common troubles.

"TOO MUCH ACID" is the cause of almost all the remaining half of our stomach troubles. It also is the result of fermentation and excess digestive acids.

ACIDINE, the new discovery, is a perfect anti-acid combined with "Japtase," the most effective known starch digestant, one pound of which will digest more than 800 pounds of starchy foods. Sold by your druggist under a money-back guarantee to help in YOUR CASE, or write Health Laboratories, Inc., Pittsburgh, Pa.

"They work while you sleep"

When the bowels need help there is nothing like cascara; nothing more efficient, nothing so good for the system. Any doctor can confirm these facts.

Candy Cascarets give you pure cascara in a most pleasant form. Take one tonight. See how fine you feel all next day. Without discomfort and without harmful effects this gentle laxative cleanses the whole thirty feet of bowels. Cascarets never produce that nauseous feeling usually associated with the use of laxatives. And their action is so natural that there is no danger of forming the laxative habit. You can take them as often as you please—or give them freely to children or old folks.

A coated tongue or a laden breath is a signal for a candy Cascaret. Or a sick headache, or any sluggish feeling; any time you believe the liver and bowels are not functioning fully, Cascarets will sweep away accumulations in the lower bowel. They are sweetened with pure cane sugar and flavored with real licorice, making them the ideal laxative for children.

Full medical endorsement proves their principle is right; the use of 20 million packages a year proves their effectiveness.

Dr. R. B. Homan Talks on Tuberculosis Cure

Dr. R. B. Homan, El Paso, here conducting a free tubercular clinic under the auspices of the Wichita County Tubercular association and the Wichita County Medical association, was the principal speaker at the regular meeting of the Wichita County Medical society Tuesday evening. He spoke on "The Treatment of Tuberculosis."

Successful results can be obtained in the treatment of this disease in any climate, Dr. Homan said. However, a 15 per cent advantage is obtained in climates more favorable to combatting the tubercular germs. Principal factors in tuberculosis treatment, he said, are rest, fresh air and good food, while secondary factors are exercise, sunshine and personal hygiene.

Dr. Q. B. Lee made a report of his medical tour of Europe the past summer. While many good results are being obtained in Europe government-operated hospitals, he said, better results are evident in America.

About 50 physicians attended the meeting, held at the Wichita club. A banquet was served.

TUBERCULAR CLINIC

A registration of 37 was reported at the opening session of the free tubercular clinic at the Memorial auditorium Tuesday. Dr. R. B. Homan of El Paso, who is in charge, was unable to consult with all those registering but an opportunity will be given Wednesday morning, beginning at 9 o'clock, for consultation and further registration. He will hold a free clinic in Iowa Park Wednesday afternoon and another in Burkburnett Thursday morning.

COSTLY PARKING

Swain Pays $28 in Fines For Selecting Golf Course Here

A youthful Wichitan who Monday night chose the country club golf course for parking, Tuesday morning paid a little more than $28 in fines in the justice court, settling for himself and the young woman arrested with him on trespassing charges. George Garrett, deputy sheriff, assigned to special duty in the Country Club Estate section, arrested the pair late Monday night after a spirited chase in which the young man deserted the girl in his unsuccessful effort to escape. The two were discovered by Mr. Garrett after they had left the car parked in the golf course. The officer's special assignment grew out of the popularity of the grounds, it was explained.

McCutchen On Bankers' Council

C. E. McCutchen, vice president of the First National bank, was named a member at large of the executive council of the American Bankers' association and was again selected chairman of the committee on membership at the annual meeting of the American Bankers' association held in San Francisco last week.

Mr. McCutchen returned Monday from San Francisco. He held the position of chairman of the membership committee last year and was named on the executive council this year by the new president, John G. Lonsdale, who is president of the National Bank of Commerce of St. Louis, a director of the Federal Reserve bank, a member of the national council on American banking relations, of the American Acceptance council and of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Red River Hunting Licenses on Sale Here

L. E. Crawford, deputy United States game protector and Oklahoma state game ranger, was in Wichita Falls Tuesday for the purpose of distributing the new nonresident licenses for hunting privileges in the Red river region. He will spend Wednesday in placing the licenses in the hands of local sporting goods merchants.

The fee for the licenses, which were made possible by a special act of the Oklahoma legislature, will be $2.50 instead of $15 as in the past, but they will apply only to the Red river region, Deputy Crawford said. The season for ducks, geese, brants and other migratory game birds will open Oct. 16 and close Jan. 31, 1930.

The licenses will be on sale at Thurman Hardware company, Noble-Little company, Wichita Hardware company, Bailey-Moline company and the Renfro Drug company. In Burkburnett they may be obtained at Collier Bros. store.

No More Gas In Stomach and Bowels

If you wish to be permanently relieved of gas in stomach and bowels, take Mayr-mann's Gas Tablets, which are prepared especially for stomach gas and all the bad effects resulting from gas pressure.

That empty, gnawing feeling at the pit of the stomach will disappear; that anxious, nervous feeling with heart palpitation will vanish, and you will again be able to take a deep breath without discomfort.

That drowsy, sleepy feeling after dinner will be replaced by a desire for entertainment. Bloating will cease. Your hands, arms and fingers will no longer feel cold and "go to sleep" because Mayrmann's Gas Tablets prevent gas from interfering with the circulation. Vicks Now Passes 26 Million Yearly!

More and More Millions Follow Trend of Modern Medicine and Treat Colds Externally

To keep pace with the ever-growing demand for Vicks VapoRub, the external treatment for colds, another increase is being made in the figure of the Vicks slogan, made famous when Vicks reached "17 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Only a short time ago, the well known "17 Million" was raised to "21 Million." Again this figure has been outgrown, as more and more people turn to this better way of treating colds. There are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly"—a jar for every family in the United States.

A generation ago, when Vicks was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers especially have appreciated this modern vaporing ointment, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting children's delicate stomachs.

And so Vicks spread, until today it has become the family standby for colds—adults' as well as children's—in more than 60 countries.—Adv.

U. T. DEBATERS MEET OXFORD

Wichitan to Be in 'Lineup' On Dec. 14

AUSTIN, Oct. 8. (AP)—The University of Texas and Oxford university debate will be held on Dec. 14 this year, according to Thomas A. Rousse, debate coach.

The National Student Federation of America, which is managing the debate tour of the English team, offered a choice of five questions as follows: That the jury system is unnecessary for the administration of justice; that the talking films strikes a deadly blow at western culture; that this is the best of all possible worlds; that the installment plan of buying is a danger to American prosperity; and that America (the United States) cannot expect to have her debt paid until her tariff barrier is substantially reduced.

There are eight letter men from last year from which to select the Texas team. Spurgeon Bell of Austin, member of last year's team who won a majority of the campus speaking honors, will not return this year.

The following will enter debate tryouts: Ray Bland of Wichita Falls, Ben L. Burg of Austin, Arthur Bagby of Austin, Leroy Jeffers of San Antonio, Charles Harris of Mart, Fowler Roberts of San Angelo, Bennett Lay of Hallettsville, and Arthur Sandlin of Austin.

In addition to the Oxford debate the university's tentative schedule includes meetings with the University of California, University of Missouri and University of Oklahoma, all away from Austin, and University of Kansas and University of Arkansas here.

Energetic Sea Lion Steals Ballast From Mates, Who Are Forced to Float

By SAM LOVE

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (UP)—It strikes a good many people as funny that all except one of the sea lions in the tank at the aquarium should be floating around on top of the water, looking like the start of the international balloon race, but it is no joke to James Savage, their keeper.

Mr. Savage knows that an over-buoyant sea lion is an embarrassed sea lion, and an embarrassed sea lion means nothing but trouble.

The reason all the sea lions except one are floating around with their plimsoll line's exposed is that Teddy, the youngest of the lot and the only one that is a native New Yorker, ate the ballast that was put in the tank for all of them.

Need Ballast

When winter comes, a sea lion starts losing his or her figure immediately and begins taking on tremendous layers of blubber. The fatter he gets the lighter he gets. But in his native habitat he does not mind this. He simply ballasts himself as he goes along by eating a pebble here and a dornick there and small boulder somewhere else, and keeps himself on an even keel. For this reason, experienced buyers will never dicker for a sea lion by the pound after September.

Mr. Savage, who is an expert on sea lions, had prepared a treat for his charges for Sunday dinner. They asked for fish and he gave them a stone apiece, knowing that they would like it better.

But it was then that Teddy got in his dirty work. Teddy is considerably smaller and livelier than the rest because he was only born last June in the Central Park zoo. He had such big teeth that the zookeeper named him Teddy. His mother, who still has a very sevelte figure although she is floating high, is called Mabel Willebrandt because she came from California and prefers water.

When Teddy was put in the aquarium tank Heywood Broun was already riding high because nature works faster than usual with him and there were no rocks in the tank. For the next few days Teddy amused himself by sneaking up on Heywood Broun, biting him on the flipper, and then taking it on the lam.

"I never saw Heywood get so much exercise before," said Mr. Savage. "And I decided to put a stop to it. I knew that Heywood could catch Teddy once he got properly balasted and so I put a big stone in for him and a somewhat smaller stone for each of the four others. But do you know what Teddy did? He managed to eat every one of those rocks, including Heywood's before the others could get to the bottom."

Mr. Savage sighed. Stones are not easy to obtain, especially on Manhattan Island with a truckmen's strike in progress.

"I reckon it'll take 25 pounds of stone to ballast Broun for the winter," he said.

Iowa Park W. M. S. Holds All Day Meet Monday

Special to The Record News.

IOWA PARK, Texas, Oct. 8.—Members of the Baptist Women's Missionary society held an all-day meeting Monday at the church. Mrs. P. G. Kildow led the program entitled, "Money and Missions." Others on the program were Mesdames B. M. Miller, A. A. Birdwell, R. R. Brubaker, W. W. Gammon, George Bunck, W. Swint and Miss Almaria Baxter. After the rendition of the program, which occupied the forenoon, lunch was served to members and their husbands, as guests.

During a business session which occupied the afternoon, it was voted for the society to serve its regular Thanksgiving dinner as has been their custom for more than 20 years.

General Almazan will return to Mexico in December to resume his post as military commander in Nuevo Leon and Coahuila.

Man's 11-Year Job Of Building Home Alone Nears End

DENISON, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—In Denison it isn't "the house that Jack built," but the house that L. D. Gaffey built—or is building, as it will be for two years more when the lone workman plans to have completed his full-size two-story business structure, with his own hands after 11 years of patient toiling at odd hours.

In 1920, Mr. Gaffey single-handed started the task of erecting a concrete structure 50 by 120 feet, and now, after nine years of labor, expects to finish the first floor for occupancy within a few months and to fully complete the building within two years.

Working with "mental blueprints" and plans alone, Mr. Gaffey is a stone mason, cement man, carpenter, plumber, electrician and all other building craftsmen within himself. His hands are equally skilled with saw or trowel.

The undertaking of assembling materials into the two-story structure alone would conquer the average man. But Mr. Gaffey has moulded with his own hands more than 5,000 cement squares used in the walls of the building.

New Brick Home for Canyon 'Fellowship House'

CANYON, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—"The Little House of Fellowship," student headquarters at the West Texas State Teachers college here, maintained by the Protestant Episcopal church of Texas, is being changed from its original location to a new brick home, constructed especially for student work.

The Little House is supported by people throughout Texas and is one of 10 of its kind in the United States. Mrs. Elizabeth Fry Page is hostess of the house which is open at all times. Students of all denominations flock to it for social gatherings, readings, discussion and advice. It has become well known for its hospitality.

HE WAS LIFELESS AND DESPONDENT

But ALL-BRAN made him wide-awake and well—doctor prescribed it

CONSTIPATION ruins hopes, saps strength. Yet thousands of sufferers have found the way to relieve and prevent this disease. Read how this man rid his system of constipation.

"During the three years before ALL-BRAN cured me, I experienced more discouraging moments than I care to tell of. Being listless, dull, sleepy and despondent, I could not keep up. My friends didn't want my company and I was tired of being asked 'What in the world is the matter with you?'

"After spending much money for treatment, I finally found a doctor who advised me to eat ALL-BRAN three times a day. I did this for three months and I didn't need to be told that I looked better . . . I felt better and acted better . . . I am still using ALL-BRAN every morning and have no trouble now whatsoever." (Name and address upon request.)

Guard against constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to prevent it—to relieve it. Just eat two tablespoonfuls daily—chronic cases, with every meal. Far better than habit-forming drugs and pills.

ALL-BRAN is 100% effective. Doctors recommend it because it promotes natural elimination. Serve it with milk or cream. Use it in cooking—muffins, bread, etc. Delicious recipes on the package. Grocers sell it. Restaurants, hotels, dining-cars service it. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

AN INVITATION TO VISITORS AT TEXAS STATE FAIR--Oct. 12 to 27

See The Giant that is Building Texas . . .

AGAIN the great Texas State Fair draws the interest of all Texas with its countless attractions! Texas goes on exhibit—Texas agriculture, Texas livestock, Texas manufacturing, Texas commerce, Texas amusement, Texas art!

And, there's a distinctly New attraction that you must see—the Giant that is Building Texas! This giant exhibit is near the rear entrance of the Automobile and Manufacturers' building.

The central figure of the exhibit is a Giant holding in his powerful hands a large pipe line running from the gas fields to a medieval castle, which is shown in the process of building. One face of the castle takes the shape of the State of Texas and shows a map of Lone Star Gas Company's pipe lines serving 200 Texas communities.

Animated figures, each specially modeled for the exhibit, carry materials up the castle walls in the act of constructing the castle, while moving models of auto trucks carry various materials used in the gas business up to the castle. Around the feet of the Giant are depicted with animated figures many activities of the gas industry, such as compressor stations, gasoline plants, drilling rigs, etc., in motion. The whole symbolizes GAS —the Giant that is Building Texas.

At the rear of the exhibit proper is a most interesting display of modern gas appliances, in actual use, including STARGAS—the Compressed Natural Gas, in portable cylinders. STARGAS starts where gas mains stop—a special boon to rural and suburban home owners!

We especially invite Texas State Fair visitors to see the Giant that is Building Texas—one of the most unique exhibits at the Fair this year!

MISHAP ROBS EHMKE OF SHUTOUT IN BIG SERIES OPENER

EARNSHAW AND MALONE TODAY

Jimmy Foxx Hits Homer to Start Scoring

astounding eyes of the National league champions all afternoon, "Howard, I like a man who keeps his promise, and don't these Cubs look cute, standing on their ears?"

Ovation for Ehmke

Fifty thousand men and women, nearly all Chicagoans, withheld the usual rush for the exits as gruff old William Klem waved the last man out, to give a cheer to Howard Ehmke as he shambled back to the Athletic's dug-out, a string-bean of a man, six feet, three inches tall, and weighing but 180 pounds, and with his knees clicking at every step. His long arms flapped loosely at his lean sides—the arms that had waved fantastically at the Cubs throughout nine innings. He acknowledged the salvo of applause with a brief bob of his head. With 14 years of baseball service behind him, Howard Ehmke had hoisted himself to the tallest peak of his career. It is no misstatement of fact when I tell you that he asked for the assignment today. And he is positive in his declaration that this series winds him up in baseball.

He passed the world's series strike-out record of big Ed Walsh and Walter Johnson with the last man up, a rooky first baseman named Tolson, from Los Angeles—oddly enough the town that sent Ehmke to the big ring years ago. With two men on bases, and two out, and a long drive likely to tie the score, Ehmke's long arms fairly writhed in the air as he wrapped them up and swiftly unraveled them in the pitches that ended the game.

Liner Hits Hurler

A fast liner to his long shins knocked Ehmke into a knot late in the game, but he stuck it out to the finish. Some exasperated Chicagoans may claim that two errors by English, the young shortstop of the Cubs, cost the home club a chance to tie the tally, and perhaps victory, but even the exasperated Chicagoans are willing to admit that it would have been a shame for Ehmke to lose the game.

He came within one of equalling Red Eller's 1919 record for consecutive strike-outs in a world's series. Howard knocked over five in a row. In the third innings, with two runners on the bases, he struck out Hornsby and Wilson. He had previously fanned Root in the same inning.

Jimmy Foxx, the great infielder of the Athletics, hit a homer into the center field bleachers in the seventh that seemed enough for Ehmke to win the way he was going. But after he was knocked over by the line drive from Hack Wilson's bat, he didn't seem so zippy. The Cubs got a run on him thereafter, and hit his pitching with some heft.

English Errs Twice

If English hadn't bobbled twice in the same place in the Athletics' batting side of the ninth, that one run would have equalled Foxx's homer, and the game might have been continued indefinitely. But, off English's boots, or partly, the Athletics had collected two tallies.

Never did a world's series baseball game produce a greater battle than this. Up to the time English got to fumbling the ball, there was a blaze of brilliant fielding behind the remarkable gun-fire of both Ehmke and Charley Root, the Cubs' pitcher.

Hack Wilson, the pride of Liepervill, Pa., made an astonishing catch off Al Simmons, the ace batsman of the Athletics, and there were a score of other plays that had the spectators up and screeching.

Finally, however, they settled down to patient admiration of the work of the 35-year-older, who has traveled the baseball trails that lead from Los Angeles eastward to Buffalo and back again, who served with the Detroit Tigers for years until Ty Cobb traded him to the Boston Red Sox, and who wound up with the Athletics in 1926. He originated in Siver Creek, N. Y., and he spent a lot of time in Syracuse, always accounted a right good pitcher, today he became a great one, if only for a day of greatness. He gave the American league the jump on its older rival, the National, in baseball's big event of the year, and gratified Cornelius McGillicuddy will attempt to hold the lead tomorrow with George Earnshaw, another right-hander, while Joe McCarthy, manager of the Cubs, will probably try Malone, right-hander.

First Inning

Athletics—Bishop grounded to Grimm and was out at first, unassisted. Haas struck out on a curve ball over the inside corner. Cochrane walked. Simmons struck out, swinging. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cubs—McMillan fouled out to Cochrane, who caught the ball half way to third base. English beat out a hit to short, which was deflected by Ehmke's glove. Hornsby flied to Miller near the right field stands. Wilson flied to Miller in short right. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Second Inning

Athletics—Foxx hit safely to left field for one base on the first pitched ball. Miller struck out, swinging. Dykes singled to left. Foxx stopping at second. Boley grounded to short and was doubled with Dykes, English to Hornsby to Grimm. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Cubs—Cuyler struck out, swinging. Ehmke was using a very slow curve. Stephenson struck out. The third strike was called as he started toward first base. Grimm singled to center on the first ball pitched. Taylor flied to Foxx near the pitcher's mound. No runs, one hit, no errors.

Third Inning

Athletics—Ehmke poped to McMillan. Bishop lined to English. Haas walked. Cochrane grounded out, third to first. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cubs—Root fanned. McMillan singled to center. English hit to right field for a double. McMillan pulled up at third. Hornsby and Wilson fanned. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Fourth Inning

Athletics—Simmons flied to Stephenson in deep left. Foxx and Miller grounded to Hornsby and were thrown out. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cubs—Cuyler struck out for the second time. Stephenson went out on a marvelous one-handed catch by Dykes, who speared the ball as he was stretched prone on the ground. Grimm walked and was out stealing, Cochrane to Bishop. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Fifth Inning

Athletics—Dykes and Boley struck out. Ehmke flied to Stephenson. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cubs—Taylor flied to Simmons, who caught the ball with one hand near the stands in deep left field. Root and McMillan struck out. It was Ehmke's eighth strike out. The Cubs were not fathoming his slow puzzlers. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Sixth Inning

Athletics—Bishop was out, English to Grimm. Haas went out on a long fly to Wilson. Cochrane fouled out to Taylor. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Cubs—Ehmke fanned English, Hornsby and Wilson, bringing his total to 11 for the game and making five in a row. Some of Ehmke's slow balls were so slow that it seemed they might not reach the plate. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Seventh Inning

Athletics—Simmons lined out to Wilson, who made a diving catch, but held the ball. Foxx hit a home run into the center field bleachers. He hit a fast ball high over Wilson's head and well into the seats. Miller sent out a fly to Cuyler. Dykes went out on a fly to Stephenson. One run, one hit, no errors.

Cubs—Cuyler grounded to short and beat it out for a hit. Stephenson singled to left, sending Cuyler to second. Grimm sacrificed, Ehmke to Foxx, both runners advancing. Heathcote batted for Taylor and flied to Simmons in short left, and the base runners held their bases. Hartnett batted for Root and struck out, swinging. No runs, two hits, no errors.

Eighth Inning

Athletics—Bush went in to pitch for the Cubs, and Gonzales caught him. Boley went out, English to Grimm. Ehmke singled to right. Bishop went out on a fly to Stephenson. Haas flied to Wilson. No runs, one hit, no errors.

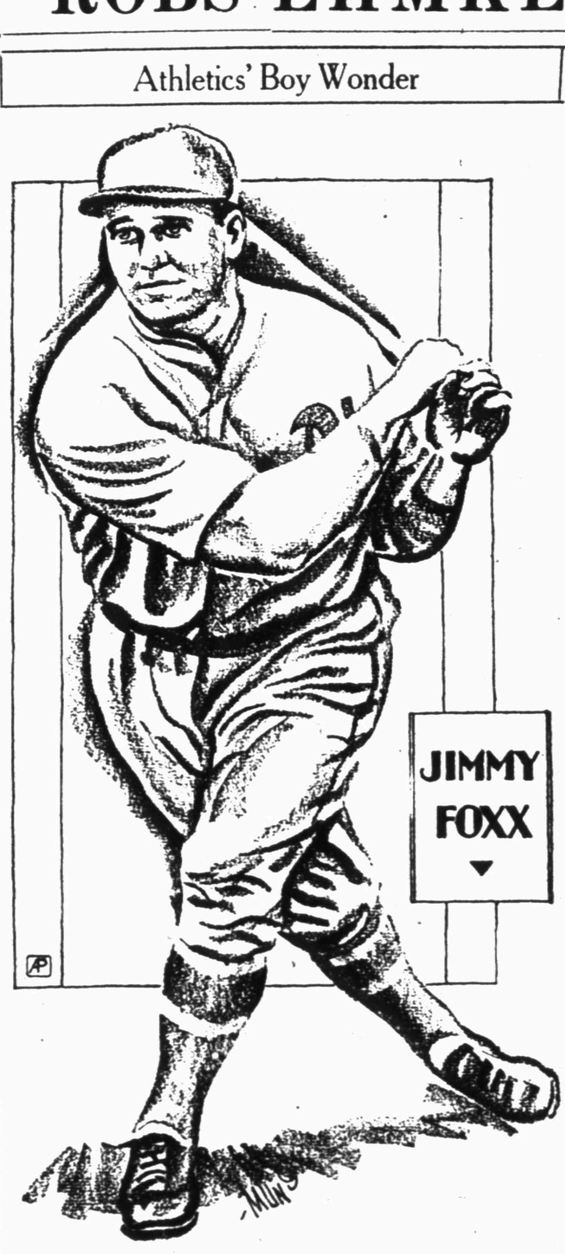

Cubs—McMillan flied to Haas in short center. English went out on a fly to Miller. Hornsby went out, Bishop to Foxx. No runs, no hits, no errors.

Ninth Inning

Athletics—Cochrane singled to right. Simons hit to English, who fumbled the ball. Cochrane took second. Foxx hit to English, who again fumbled as he started to throw, and the bases were full. Cochrane and Simmons scored on Miller's single through the box. Foxx went to third. Dykes hit to Bush and Foxx was out at the plate, Bush to Gonzales. Miller went to third and Dykes to second. Boley hit to Bush and Miller was out at the plate, Bush to Gonzales. Dykes went to third. Ehmke went out, McMillan to Grimm. Two runs, two hits, two errors.

Cubs—Wilson went out, Ehmke to Foxx. Cuyler hit to Dykes, who made a wild throw to first base for a two base error, as Cuyler went to second. Cuyler scored on Stephenson's single to center. Grimm singled to right, Stephenson stopping at second. Blair batted for Gonzales and forced Grimm at second, Dykes to Bishop. Stephenson went to third. Tolson batted for Bush and struck out, swinging at the third strike. One run, two hits, one error.

A'S JUBILANT IN FIRST WIN

Players Make Boisterous Demonstration

By CHARLES DUNKLEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—All the noise from down under the grandstand at Wrigley field this afternoon, after the Athletics' triumph over the Cubs in the first game of the world series, came from the A's dressing room, with the Cubs silent but not downhearted.

Howard Ehmke, the pitching relic of bygone days, was the hero of the Athletics' boisterous demonstration. As the players came charging up the dressing room stairs, and nearly took the door off the hinges in their attempt to throw their arms around the big lanky, lean looking pitcher. "Boy, what a ball game," screamed Eddie Collins, as he threw his arms around Ehmke. "I knew you could do it. You stood them on their heads."

Kid Gleason, the white-haired grizzled, other assistant to Manager Connie Mack, was beaming with happiness. He playfully poked his fist into Ehmke's ribs, as the tall, blonde pitcher stood there peeling off his under shirt, before a duck into the showers.

"What a pitcher! What a man!" bellowed the kid, looking up at the conquering hero.

"And ain't it a world's series record, this striking out 13 of those Cubs?" Gleason asked.

Ehmke said he didn't know but the other players boisterously told him it was. Ehmke was more concerned over the final ball thrown, than he was over the back slapping demonstration the players were staging for him.

"Where is that ball?" he yelled when he suddenly found he didn't have it himself.

Someone tossed it to him and the scowl that was on Ehmke's face changed to a wide smile, as he fingered it, almost lovingly. Connie Mack, the silent leader of the Athletics, did not go into the dressing room with his players, but left immediately for the Edgewater Beach hotel, headquarters for the Philadelphia team. He said he was undecided as to his pitching selection for tomorrow, but it might be either Lefty Grove, George Earnshaw or Jack Quinn.

"What is there to say about today's game?" he asked in response to questions.

"The result speaks for itself. Yes, I am proud of Ehmke's pitching performance. Isn't it possible that we completely fooled the Cubs?"

Establishing a conversational contact with the Cubs, was a difficult undertaking, not because of any atmosphere of depression, but because they apparently wished to be alone. They did not even talk to each other, as they silently went about peeling off their uniforms.

The Cubs conveyed the impression of being determined and eager, certainly not licked. Elwood English, Cub shortstop, who kicked away a double play which possibly wrecked a chance for a tie score, came in for no censure from his team mates. Some of them slapped him on the back consolingly.

Joe McCarthy, the Cub manager, was loud in his praise of Ehmke's pitching feat, and had no excuses to offer for the defeat of his Cubs.

"They got the breaks and won. That's all," he said. "Ehmke pitched a great game; not much better than Root, though. I cannot complain about Root's pitching, neither do I feel badly about English's errors. The boy perhaps was a bit over eager. He will snap out of it."

"We'll get at them tomorrow," he added. "Losing one ball game does not mean losing the series."

McCarthy figures to start Perce Pat Malone against the Athletics tomorrow—that is, unless he changes his mind by game time.

The Cub pilot virtually admitted that Mack fooled him in starting Ehmke, rather than Earnshaw.

"I thought last night that Earnshaw would be the Athletics starting pitcher," he said, "and I did not know until just before the game that Ehmke would be the boy."

"But what's the difference? We'll hit them as often as they'll hit us."

Howard Ehmke Vindicates His Chief In Judgment of Pitching Selection

By BERT DEMBY
United Press Staff Correspondent

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—Old Connie Mack, who has come to be noted for his ability to succeed with the unexpected, pulled another of his pitching selection surprises today and Howard Ehmke, who has been hurling baseball for some 18 years, vindicated his boss' judgment.

Ehmke used a side arm curve to subdue the Chicago Cubs 3 to 1 in the opening game of the 1929 world series and in so doing he pitched one of the shrewdest games of his life.

In addition to being good enough to strike out 13 men, (a new series record), Howard three times demonstrated his courage to stand up under fire.

Twice he struck out Raham Rogers Hornsby and the hard hitting Hack Wilson in succession. He turned the trick the first time with Norman McMillen and Woody English waiting to score and they still were waiting when Wilson went down on strikes to end the third inning.

Charley Root of the Cubs did right well with his pitching and allowed only three hits during the seven innings he worked but Ehmke was the old master in the pinches.

Dykes turned in the fielding ace of the game when he dived through the air to catch a line drive which Stephenson had started on its way to far fields.

Al Simmons included the grandstand in his left field territory in the fifth when he leaned over the railing and speared one-handedly a drive off the bat of Zack Taylor.

Hack Wilson provided the Cubs' fielding sensation when he dived forward and came up with a scorching liner hit by Simmons.

Mack did not announce his selection until shortly before the game when he walked to where Howard was sitting on the bench and said: "Feel like working?"

"Sure," was the answer. Howard Ehmke threw out three balls and then yelled at Mickey Cochrane who was warming him up: "Boy, she feels like a million today."

Until today Ehmke had been one of the few Athletic pitchers who were not being mentioned as a possible opening game hurler.

But Mack, refusing to send a left hander against a team which has been murder against southpaws, sent in a man who has exactly what the Cubs like least.

Ehmke slow curved those fast-ball-hitting Cubs so often that he kept them all from getting set for their famous clouts.

The amazing thing about Howard's pitching today was his control. He literally threw almost every pitch where he wanted it to go and he pitched at the weakness of every Cub hitter.

Wilson, for instance, likes a high one on the outside. He got low ones on the inside. Charley Grimm, the one Cub who bats left handed caused Ehmke the most worry.

Charley was up four times, got two hits and persuaded Ehmke to issue his only pass of the day.

Charlie Root, Losing Pitcher, Airs Views on Cub Defeat Against A's

Star Pitcher of the Chicago Cubs
Written Especially for Universal Service

(Copy't, 1929, by Universal Service, Inc.)

CHICAGO, Oct. 8.—It was a tough game for us to lose, but Philadelphia's victory was well deserved.

Ehmke pitched a magnificent game, even though he weakened a trifle in the ninth when Hack Wilson's drive hurt his hand.

We had lots of opportunities to score but when hits meant runs we just couldn't seem to deliver. But tomorrow is another day and I am still certain that we will win the series.

I have nothing to say about myself, personally, except that I pitched the best that I knew how—and it wasn't quite good enough, I regret to say. However, I am hoping for another game before the series is over.

Ehmke pitched himself out of holes as fast as he got into them—and that was the cause of our defeat.

It is difficult to describe one's feelings going to the mound in the opening world series game. There is a certain nervous tension, but it entirely disappeared after the first ball I threw at Bishop. Only it happened to be a strike.

The first two men were easy. I worked very carefully on Cochrane, too carefully, in fact, and he got a free trip to first. And when Simmons fanned the agony for the moment was over.

English pulled us out of a tight hole in the second when he started a double play on a hard hit ball.

His errors later in the game were costly, it is true, but English is a great player and I predict that he will shine before the series is over.

It looked as though we had a chance to do something in our half of the second when Grimm got a cleansing, but Taylor was an easy out.

I struck out to start the third and had a good chance to see some of Howard's benders which were causing us some trouble.

Then a single by McMillan and a double by English set the stage for some runs. Some folks thought that McMillan could have scored on this play, but I doubt it. It was good baseball to play things safe with our best hitters, Hornsby and Wilson coming up. I certainly take off my hat to Ehmke for striking out Hack and the Rajah.

Dyke's catch of Stephenson's terrific liner was the best fielding play of the game so far. It saved the A's a lot of trouble for Grimm, who followed walked. Grimm, however, went out stealing. We disposed of the A's easily in the fourth and then in the fifth Dykes and Boley fanned.

Up to this point, it had been a great pitchers battle with neither side having much of an edge. I seemed to have a lot of stuff on the ball and my curves were breaking nicely.

I suppose the fans want to know what kind of a ball I threw to Foxx in the seventh which he lifted into the center field bleachers. It was the breaking point of the game and I don't exactly remember, although it was about knee high.

We had the old college spirit when we came to bat in the seventh.

Kiki Cuyler, the first man up, got an infield single and Stephenson singled to left. Then came a sacrifice by Grimm putting men on third and second with only one man out and Zach Taylor up.

Heathcote batted for Zach. He popped a short fly to Simmons, but we still had a chance as Hartnett went in to bat for me but Gabby fanned and our big chance had gone.

I felt pretty sad not going to the mound at the start of the eighth, Bush having taken my place. But that is all in the game. I had pitched well enough, I think, but you can't win ball games without runs. Any kind of a hit under the circumstances would have scored two runs, but Ehmke was just too good for us and I take my hat off to him.

Ehmke reached his highest bit of effectiveness today in the ninth when he struck out Tolson with the tying runs on the bases. A home run at that point would have won the game, and the big Pacific coast recruit has hit lots of them, but he was not equal to the occasion and fanned.

It was just a case of too much Ehmke, but tomorrow is another day.

The odd part of this Shearer investigation seems to be that a man named Shearer could have had an ax to grind.

Reagan Jr. Hi Drops 20-0 Game to Burk

Special to The Record News.

BURKBURNETT, Texas, Oct. 8.—The Burkburnett High school team dealt harshly with the Reagan Junior high of Wichita Falls here this afternoon when they snowed the visitors under to the tune of 20 to 0.

Capt. Authur Ragsdale ran wild over the opposing young football braves and scored the three touchdowns for his mates. Though the Reagan boys put up a scrappy battle throughout the contest, they were no match for the Burkburnett eleven and were forced to go scoreless in this their first game on foreign soil.

Captain Cosey of the Reagan high was the individual star for his team, breaking through to nice gains time and again.

Bowling Will Open Season on Wed. 16

Announcement was made last night that the City Bowling league had postponed its official opening from Wednesday, Oct. 9, to Wednesday, Oct. 16.

The postponement was made on account of the fact that several of the sponsors and a few of the players were out of town.

The Commercial Bowling league is scheduled to open for its first match on Oct. 21 and 22.

Both leagues are expecting to have a big year this season and much interest is being manifested in the playing.

A complete schedule for both leagues will be published in the latter part of the week.

Sea-Faring Cat

LONDON—The Cambridge office of the Great Western railway boasts of a much-traveled cat. The cat, during potato season, visits numerous English cities and travels even to France. INDIANS, PACK IN BRISK TILT

Coach Barry Holton Will Rely on Passes

The autumn air fairly reverberated to the thudding punt of the pigskin, the heavy impact of shrill bodies clad in football togs, and the piping of the referees' whistle Tuesday afternoon when Coaches Barry Holton and A. E. Baggett sent their respective warriors flying at each other in the first scrimmage session of the week. Both elevens are pointing for week-end games that will put them to hard test and they are working over time getting ready for the game.

The Coyote game against the strong Sherman high outfit is probably the hardest on the schedule and Coach Barry Holton is looking for a football "Moses" to lead his boys through the thick of the Sherman attack, and, if possible, deliver a winning thrust across the enemy goal line. In Paul Dickey and Orin Smith he may possess the quick thrust that will surprise the Sherman gridders and give Wichita Falls a chance to score.

Against the Junior college Indians the Coyotes uncorked their overhead attack from Dicky to Smith and the pair look like a great combination. Elliott also succeeded in shagging hard thrown passes over the heads of the scrimmage opponents.

Cox for the Indians was on the receiving end of a flock of completed passes. This fleet footed back is one of Coach Baggett's biggest factors in the aerial attack which he is building up.

Tuesday's brisk scrimmage will probably be followed up with a hard workout and scrimmage between the two teams on Wednesday before the Coyotes leave Thursday morning for Sherman for their Friday game.

High Scores Feature Dallas Golf Tourney

DALLAS, Oct. 8. (AP)—High scoring featured the qualifying round of the fifth annual Dallas Country club invitational golf tournament today. Ralph Guldahl, youthful Dallas city champion, winning medalist honors with a 75. Among the lows were Gene Bedford, Plainview, 78, and Edwin McClure, Shreveport, 78.

Match play was scheduled to start tomorrow in four flights of 32 players each. Gus Moreland, whose 77 placed him high in the running today, is defending champion.

THE DUCTLESS GLANDS

The Parathyroids

When doctors first began to operate upon the thyroid gland there were a number of cases where death occurred within a few days following the operation. These tragedies led to the discovery of four small bodies (parathyroid glands) located on the outside and one on the inside surface of each of the two outside lobes of the thyroid.

The removal of the parathyroid glands leads to a profound disturbance of metabolism, acute muscular weakness, with painful cramps of the muscles of the arms and legs, and sometimes the jaws, larnyx, face and abdomen. This may occur without a loss of consciousness, but eventually leads to stupor and death.

Many doctors now believe that the disease, tetany, is due to a lack of secretion of the parathyroid glands. The lack of their hormone makes the body unable to retain calcium and probably produces some active poison as the result of deranged metabolism. When tetany continues over any length of time the hair may fall out; it is usually thin and short, the nails become fragile and transversely ridged, and the teeth show peculiar horizontal grooves because of defective enamel formation, the front teeth being most often affected. In children there is a delay of bone development similar to rickets. Sometimes there is an excessive quantity of saliva, perspiration and urine.

The derangement of the parathyroid glands, themselves, seems to be caused by especially virulent toxins as may occur from gastro-intestinal disturbances, acute infections and operations on the thyroid, and a number of diseases of the nervous system.

When parathyroid disturbances are not caused by actual injury or disease of the parathyroid, they can usually be overcome by a thoroughly alkaline-forming diet following a short fasting regime. The foods rich in calcium seem to be of special benefits.

Adrenals

The adrenals or supra-renal capsules, seem to produce two different internal secretions, one which maintains the blood pressure and tone of the sympathetic system and increases the amount of sugar in the blood and the muscular vigor. The other secretion has not been as well studied but it seems to be associated with precocious sexual development and it lowers blood pressure, and a lack of this secretion seems to be associated with infantalism.

Diseases of the suprarenal glands produce bronzing of the body known as "Addison's Disease," about which I have prepared a special article which I will be glad to send to anyone interested.

Other Glands

In addition to these glands which we have just studied, there are other ductless glands, such as the carotid and coccygeal and lymphatic structures, and we have also the internal secretions produced by the liver, pancreas, duodenal mucosa and possibly the skin. The functions of the first two are not well known, the others seem to be related to digestion. For example, the mucus membrane of the duodenum, when stimulated by weak acids and soap, produces a substance which promotes a more rapid flow of pancreatic juice and the pyloric area of the stomach produces a hormone to stimulate the flow of gastric juice.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Cigarets

Question: F. G. writes—"I have been smoking cigarets for 30 years. Have tried to stop them but cannot, as I get that feeling in the throat and cannot stop. If there is anything to take, please let me know, as I cannot sleep at night."

Answer—Start in today eating only apples whenever you are hungry. Do not take any other food—no soup, milk, crackers, or anything at all except an occasional apple. Keep this up until you have lost all desire for cigarets. This apple cure usually takes only three or four days. If you attempt to smoke during that time you will find the tobacco will have a disagreeable flavor. You will soon find yourself cured of the craving for tobacco.

Raw Carrots

Question: Mrs. J. L. L. asks—"Will you please tell me what benefit I will receive from eating a dishful of grated raw carrots every day?"

Answer—The raw carrot is an excellent salad vegetable containing several of the most important organic salts and vitamins. Due to its organic arsenic, raw carrots make an excellent remedy for improving bad, pimply complexions.

Ranula

Question: C. T. asks—"What would cause a ranula, and is it something permanent or will it go away eventually? If so, is an operation ever advisable, or would it be dangerous?"

Answer—A ranula is a cystic tumor beneath the tongue due to the obstruction and dilation of the sublingual or submaxillary gland, or of a mucous gland. It may go away by itself, but an operation is sometimes advisable.

SCORES HEAR FIRE PROGRAM

McClure Tells Motorists of Accident Danger

With fire drills at five city schools speakers at other school programs and Virgil Childress, representing the Junior chamber of commerce, making a talk on fire prevention before a joint meeting of the Advertising club and the Real Estate board Tuesday morning, the program of fire prevention week in Wichita Falls was well under way. Displays in the windows of several downtown business houses brought out the message of fire prevention and reminded residents that the program for the week was to instill in the minds of the American public the principles necessary to eliminate the loss to life and property annually attributed to fire.

Frie Chief J. L. McClure issued Tuesday the third of a series of messages to citizens of Wichita Falls on the occasion of fire prevention week.

"Almost daily," he said, "firemen in Wichita Falls experience difficulty in maneuvering their trucks around cars in heavy traffic sections. This is a serious problem and is attracting the attention of fire and police authorities, who are endeavoring to find ways to do away with the dangerous practice of parking cars close together, thus constituting a serious menace to life and property in case of fire.

"Another hindrance to the fire department is the practice of following the first fire engine to pass on the street. Motorists do not realize the difficulty in handling a large fire truck at high speed and do not foresee the danger of obstructing the passage of trucks behind the first to pass. The extinguishing of a fire could be accomplished much quicker if mortorists would pull over to the side of the street and wait until all fire apparatus has passed before moving their cars, if they would keep well away from the fire zone with their cars and if they would not approach intersections, especially in the business district, when fire trucks are making a run, thus allowing for a wide turn necessary for a large machine.

"The theater hour seems to bring the worst traffic conditions. Many large cities have taken steps to prohibit parking in congested districts, especially at this time. A factor that is proving helpful is the building of multiple-floor garages, with accommodations for scores of cars. Public streets should not be used as garages."

Madison County Has No Convicts in Pen

HOUSTON, Oct. 8. (AP)—If every county in the state were like Madison county the prison system would not need renovation, because it would have no inmates, according to Representative Henry A. Turner of Madisonville.

Turner told the prison centralization commission at a meeting here that of Texas' prison population of approximately 5,000, not one was from his county. Other members of the Madisonville delegation, which was seeking to have the proposed centralization plant located in or near their town, substantiated Turner's assertion.

Future Farmers Club Formed at Colorado

COLORADO, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Organization of the chapter of the Future Farmers of Texas has been perfected at Colorado High school by members of the vocational agricultural classes of which Prof. Doyle Williams, formerly of A. & M., is instructor. Selection of objectives will be made soon and the organization will begin at once to work toward them.

There are over 100 chapters of Future Farmers of Texas in the state and they are affiliated with the national federation.

Governor Moody To Attend Road Opening

LAREDO, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—In addition to Gov. Dan Moody and officials of the Texas State Highway department, a number of high officials from Mexico are expected to attend the opening of the Gulf-to-Border highway at Hebbronville on Oct. 29.

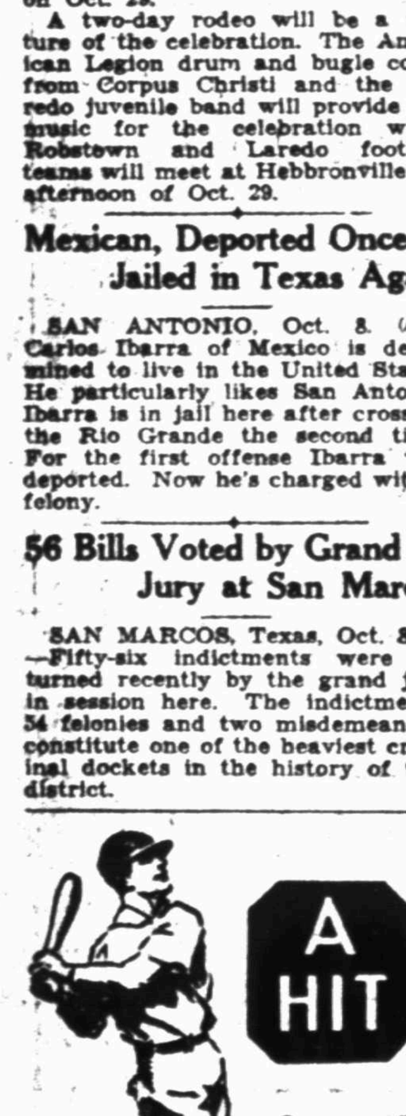

A two-day rodeo will be a feature of the celebration. The American Legion drum and bugle corps from Corpus Christi and the Laredo juvenile band will provide the music for the celebration while Robstown and Laredo football teams will meet at Hebbronville the afternoon of Oct. 29.

Mexican, Deported Once, Jailed in Texas Again

SAN ANTONIO, Oct. 8. (AP)—Carlos Ibarra of Mexico is determined to live in the United States. He particularly likes San Antonio. Ibarra is in jail here after crossing the Rio Grande the second time. For the first offense Ibarra was deported. Now he's charged with a felony.

56 Bills Voted by Grand Jury at San Marcos

SAN MARCOS, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—Fifty-six indictments were returned recently by the grand jury in session here. The indictments, 54 felonies and two misdemeanors, constitute one of the heaviest criminal dockets in the history of this district.

Wednesday night's program from radio station KGKO will conclude with the annual Atwater Kent amateur singing contest in which about 10 young men and women of Wichita and surrounding counties will be heard. The audition is to start at 9 o'clock and is expected to be completed in less than one hour. The broadcasting of competing voices is being sponsored by the Perkins-Timberlake company.

Singers will be announced by number, and votes will be made in the same manner. Telephone votes will be accepted for one hour following the conclusion of the last number in the contest, while telegraphed votes will be accepted at station KGKO until 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Eight telephones will be in use at numbers 4343, 2-2191 and 2-5104 for the reception of public voting.

The complete program for Wednesday evening follows:

5:30 to 6:30—Bluebird ensemble, popular program.
6:30 to 7:00—Reproductions.
7:00 to 7:10—Mose and Hambone, dialog.
7:10 to 7:30—Reproductions.

NEW YORK COTTON

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (AP)—The government report on the condition of the cotton crop on Oct. 1, making the percentage condition 55, and the indicated yield 14,915,000 bales, caused a heavy selling movement in cotton today. Prices experienced a sharp downward revision. At one time the market was 44 to 50 points under the previous close with the December position selling at 18.41, a decline of 48 points from the previous close and, while there was a late rally of 7 to 12 points from the lowest for the active positions, the close was 34 to 39 net lower with the tone steady.

The market opened steady at unchanged to 5 points lower but seemed to meet with some active selling before the bureau report was published, prompted by a continuation of fair weather over the entire cotton belt which seemed to give rise to some misgivings relative to the accuracy of some of crop complaints recently received from the South.

Trading ceased as usual for 20 minutes from 10:55 to 11:15 during which interim the government figures were posted.

The trade in general placed a bearish interpretation on the crop estimate which was 190,000 bales larger than the average of the private estimates and 90,000 larger than the crop estimate by the government a month ago. In consequence selling became aggressive. While the South sold freely at times, the greatest pressure seemed to come through the liquidation of old long accounts.

The trade was an active buyer throughout the day, and in absence more than a moderate demand from other sources, most of the contracts passed into the hands of spinners. Despite the comparatively small increase in the crop figures, sentiment seemed to lean more on the bear side and the opinion was expressed with the possibility of a 15,000,000-bale crop the public will be slow about taking the buying side.

Towards the close of the day the selling pressure was less aggressive and the market rallied partially on covering and perhaps a little reactionary buying by traders who were of the opinion that the declines had discounted the increase in the crop prospects.

U. S. port stocks 1,453,839. Exports 20,403, making a total so far this season 1,275,445.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 8. (AP)—A larger government crop forecast than looked for was responsible for a slump of $2.50 a bale in cotton today. The report showing an increase of 90,000 bales over the previous estimate was followed by rather heavy selling which carried December contracts off from 18.72 to 18.22. There was some covering in final trading and the option closed at 18.36, or 36 points net lower. The general market closed steady at net declines of 33 to 36 points.

Although Liverpool cables were relatively steady the market here opened unchanged to 6 points down. Following a slight rally after the start, the market weakened. December reached 18.63, and January 18.74, or 7 to 9 points below the previous close.

The estimated production of 14,915,000 bales was larger than expected and resulted in active selling. The first effect of the report on the market was a decline of 35 points on active positions. The break was soon broadened to 18.22 for December, 18.33 for January and 18.60 for March, or 47 to 50 points below yesterday's close. Prices recovered 3 to 7 points but the market showed small recuperative powers. In final trading shorts covered freely and December contracts recovered 17 points from the lowest. Other months rallied moderately. January closed at 18.47 and March 18.74.

Stock Market Closes Unchanged As Profit-Taking Wipes Out Early Gains

By BROADAN WALL

NEW YORK, Oct. 8. (US)—Closing profit-taking today wiped out early gains and closed the stock market at practically the same levels as registered at the end of trading Monday. Steel slipped off to finish unchanged, while General Motors lost 1½, American Can gained 1⅛ and other Standard Industrials held to narrow range. Specialties moved higher as a result of individual influences with Continental Bank gaining 4¾, Commercial Solvents 45, Columbia Carbon 12, American Machine and Foundry 20¾, Stone & Webster 3¾, and Warner Pictures 3 points. U. S. Rubber with gain of a point and Goodrich with gain of 2½ led a strong rubber group. Coppers and Oils remained irregular while the Rail shares evidenced better support. Call money eased from renewal of 6½ to 6 per cent with some loans made outside at 5½ per cent. Time rate also eased under 9 per cent. Turnover fell under the 4,000,000-share level.

The street is wondering what the brokers' loans figures will show this Thursday. There is some belief that the buying of the last few sessions will result in another increase being reported. Inquiry of leading firms, however, indicates that loans were cut down. Buying of this afternoon and tomorrow will not be reflected in loan report until next day as deliveries don't have to be made until Thursday. It is to be remembered that after market correction in the past brokers' loans have shown weekly declines in the face of recovery in the stock market. That is due to the fact that most of the recovery was due to short covering. Covering of short commitments reduces loans and offset to some extent whatever new buying there is experienced on the rally. When a short buys and covers his broker can deliver stock that has been borrowed and such delivery wipes out the loan made to the broker who furnished the stock.

Although they have had a substantial recovery, it is maintained in some quarters that the Tobacco shares have not fully reflected the advance in the price of cigarets. In fact, it is believed that increase in price of other tobacco products may be announced before long. Some idea of what the higher cigaret price means is found in estimate that American Tobacco earnings should increase as much as $5 a share annually with the higher charge in effect. This would mean that the company next year could show earnings of as much as $18 a share.

Eastman Kodak's promising outlook has been told of here on several occasions. Its friends remain as bullish as ever. They declare there is reason to expect a split up on a four for one basis soon but state that is only one of the several developments expected. Earnings are increasing at a rate that warrants higher return to holders. Continental Bank benefited from expectation that it would play an important part in the next merger to be announced. Electric Bond and the Utilities favored by the Mitchell interests continued to be well taken as the group is expected to go through with expansion plans. Merger of National Power and others is looked for soon. Remington Rand absorption is influenced by the expectation that earnings this year will run over $5 a share.

Announcement that Andrew Mellon would remain secretary of treasury for the remainder of the Hoover administration proved the most bullish influence. Wall street regards Mr. Mellon as most responsible for the current prosperity throughout the country and has been disturbed several times by rumors that he would resign. The statement from the White House, however, emphasized that the last advice Secretary Mellon gave was to "buy bonds." He has made no further statement as to the security outlook and is not likely to do so until there is no doubt that the credit situation has been materially improved.

CHICAGO GRAIN REVIEW

CHICAGO, Oct. 8. (AP)—Suggestions that Argentina's yield of wheat has been cut in half compared with 1928 did much today to hoist the wheat market here.

Chicago, closing quotations on wheat were firm at the day's top level, 1¼ to 1½c a bushel higher than yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅜c off to ⅜@¾c up, oats ¼ to ⅝c advanced, and provisions ranging from 7c decline to a rise of 10c.

Little or no attention either was given to the fact that world's available stocks of wheat were announced today as having increased 21,383,000 bushels for the week.

Evening up of accounts so as to be prepared for the government crop report tomorrow afternoon helped to rally the corn market today in the late dealings. Earlier, the chief influence was favorable weather prevailing over the greater part of the corn belt.

Provisions were mostly easier, as a result of some selling pressure on lard.

CHEST NEEDS

Organizations to Tell of Work in Short Talks Over Radio

Needs of the 10 organizations comprising the Community Chest will be broadcast over the radio in 15-minute installments, according to A. F. Kelly, campaign director, who has announced a series to begin over station KGKO Wednesday night.

The Salvation Army will be the first to voice its needs, with Ensign A. Schultz speaking at 7:45 Wednesday evening. Each of the programs will be from 7:45 to 8 o'clock. Following the Salvation Army, the organizations will come in the following order: Day Nursery, Boy Scouts, Red Cross, Camp Fire Girls, Children's Aid Society, Y. W. C. A., Family Relief association, Travelers Aid society, Colored Day Nursery and Executive Office.

A program to be given Sunday evening, Oct. 20, will summarize the 10 talks and will constitute a rally for the beginning of the actual campaign on Monday morning, Oct. 21.

FARMERS BUSY WITH PLANTING

Fall Crops Given Much Attention Here

Planting of new crops in the vicinity of Wichita Falls has settled to the three items of mustard, spinach and turnips, according to local seed and feed dealers, who report continued large sales of these items in all parts of the county.

Large amounts of wheat and other grain have been planted during the past six weeks, it was said, for an early spring harvest. Fitting advantageously into the needs of rapidly developing dairying interests here, the yield of feed crops in great variety has constituted the most successful field of agricultural activity in the county this year, it was said. Both wheat and oats showed a negligible yield last spring, with the exception of a few scattered farms, but both high and irrigated lands, and those near Red river, have shown a remarkably good return in feed crops.

Conspicuous among the items of produce being brought to this community from other parts of the country are the immense yellow onions from California. Many of them approach the size of a grapefruit, are almost round, and in excellent condition. Tomatoes in considerable abundance still are coming from Utah in good shape, while Colorado, Idaho, Utah and Nebraska are supplying potatoes of the finest quality, but in limited quantities.

Pears grown in North Texas, principally, appear to remain plentifully abundant in bushel lots. California grapefruit appeared on the market Tuesday.

With approximately 160 dairies, including both retail and wholesale, already in operation in and near Wichita Falls, constant additions to the milk-producing industry are being made. Aside from the two large dairy plants which are now in process of construction, one east and one west of the city, numerous individual purchases of high grade milk cows are being made by various farmers and dairymen in the community. Several cows have been sold recently from the herd of Jerseys maintained by J. M. Baber on the Petrolia road. The coming year will witness the extension of milk-using industrial plants here, according to officials of such concerns, in order to afford a larger market for Wichita county milk and milk products. Along with the quantity increase, there has been effected during the present year a material improvement of conditions under which milk is produced and handled, with the result that the number of Grade A producers has multiplied considerably.

Wichita county gins continued at a lively pace throughout Tuesday, reports at 5 o'clock in the afternoon showing a total of 395 bales turned out, bringing the county's total for the season to 8109.

With Kemp City already up to 1108 bales, reports from that point placed an estimate of 50 per cent of the year's total yield on cotton still in the field. Practically all of the cotton ginned at the Kemp City gin comes from irrigated farm lands, and will constitute a large portion of the county's total crop. About 7,000 bales more will be required to equal the estimated ginnings of 1928.

Phone Your Classified Ads to

Our courteous ad taker will receive your Classified Ad and help you to word it, then our collector will call the next day. These accounts are "accommodation accounts" for the convenience of our patrons in transacting business over the telephone.

Classified Ad patrons desiring to have ads charged must have a telephone listed in their own name. No book record is made by the publishers on account of the great number of transactions, hence the necessity of collecting promptly.

Correction of errors in Classified Ads must be made before the second insertion. No allowance will be made for more than one incorrect insertion.

Cancellations and adjustments regarding errors should be telephoned to the Classified Ad department between 8 a. m. and 6 p. m.

Ads accepted for afternoon papers up until 11 a. m. same day.

Morning paper up to 9 p. m. for the following morning.

Sunday paper up to 7 o'clock Saturday night.

Same copy in both papers.

THE CLASSIFIED DEPARTMENT IS OPEN ON SUNDAYS
from 4 to 6 p. m. And telephone orders for classified ads to be inserted or to be discontinued will be accepted.

Exceptional Want Ads will be accepted over the telephone for all excepting the following classifications: Situations Wanted and Wanted to Rent. Ads for these classifications are cash with the order and will not be accepted over the telephone.

The Times reserves the right to classify all Classified Ads under the appropriate headlines and to revise or to withhold from publication any ads deemed objectionable.

Senator Wirtz to Talk At South Texas C-C Meet

CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas, Oct. 8. (AP)—A. J. Wirtz, state senator, will be one of the principal speakers at the Guadalupe district convention of the South Texas Chamber of Commerce in New Braunfels, Oct. 21.

Senator Wirtz has been particularly interested in the water conservation problems of the state and in agricultural development, and it is probable that these topics will form the basis of his talk.

THEY WANT RULER

CHIHUAHUA CITY, Mexico, Oct. 8. (AP)—The Chihuahua Socialist party has requested the state legislature to convene elections for selection of a governor. Since defeat of the rebels here last spring a provisional governor has been in charge.

Pesky Hooks 'n Eyes Stage Comeback in Paris

PARIS, Oct. 8. (AP)—No matter what women think of the new fall styles men are almost sure to be against them, particularly married men.

There are old-fashioned hooks and eyes on many of the afternoon and evening dresses Paris favors most. Moreover, the pesky things go straight up the back in many cases and the most agile and athletic woman can't get into them without help.

Autumn suits and coats revive the over-sized hooks and eyes of prewar wraps. Some of the seductively snug fitted coats are held in place by invisible hooks here and there, fastened into tailor's loops such as have not been seen for many a day.

Another complication in the new frocks is the prevalence of rows of small buttons which actually fasten and are not mere ornaments.

Such buttons range up the front, back or sides of basque bodies dresses and add minutes to the time it takes a woman to dress.

Even gloves share the tendency to be more complicated and get away from the time-saving slip-on method of other seasons.

Dress gloves with as many as 20 buttons are on sale here and there are designers willing to prophesy the buttons will go all the way to the elbow before they're through.

10 TO ENTER RADIO FINALS

Fans to Vote in Audition Program Tonight

Approximately 10 young singers of North Texas and Southern Oklahoma will appear at radio station KGKO Wednesday night at 9 o'clock to bid for popular land judges' nomination to represent this section in the annual Atwater Kent amateur singers' audition for which $25,000 in cash prizes and scholarships for voice study will be given to five young men and five young women of the country.

The singers who will be heard in the finals Wednesday night have been chosen by the local committee, headed by Mrs. Lois Parker, from more than 30 entrants. Last preliminary hearings were held late Tuesday afternoon at Mrs. Parker's home.

Singers will draw numbers for the order of appearance before the microphone Wednesday night, and will be introduced by number. According to those in charge, the primary considerations on which judges and the public will be asked to select the winning male and female voices will be the musical quality and range of the voice, and the musicianship with which it is used.

Winners are to be selected on a fifty-fifty basis, with reference to the committee of judges and the radio audience. Votes will be received by telephone at numbers 4343, 2-2191 and 2-5104 during one hour immediately following the conclusion of competitive singing. Eight operators will be on duty to permit of reception of eight calls simultaneously. Telegraphed votes will be received at station KGKO up to 10 o'clock Thursday morning, Oct. 10.

Those who will serve as judges at the radio station will be Mrs. F. C. Barron, chairman of the music department of the Woman's Forum; Mrs. Edwin Bebb, president of the Musicians' club; Mrs. Kenneth Bebb, president of the Music Study club; Mrs. W. J. Holmes, director of the Woman's Choral club; and Dr. L. D. Parnell, director of the Scottish Rite choir. Others who will be in the audition room include Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Kennedy, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Akin, Mr. and Mrs. Hubert M. Harrison, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Allison, Walter Nelson Jr., president of the Junior chamber of commerce, and a representative of The Record News.

The latest model Atwater Kent receiving set has been placed in the judges' room at the radio station by the Perkins-Timberlake company, which is sponsoring the broadcast of the contest in this district.

In casting votes, radio listeners will be asked to state the name, address (or telephone number) of the voter, and the numbers for which he registers his preference. Winners selected in the competition here will compete late this month in the state contest to be held at Dallas.

DEATHS

W. L. GARRISON

Funeral services for W. L. Garrison, 61, who died at the family home, 903 Austin street, about 3 a. m. Tuesday, will be held from the chapel of the Hines mortuary at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with Rev. Ben Bell, pastor of the Sibley-Taylor Methodist church, officiating. Interment will be in Riverside.

Mr. Garrison had lived in Wichita Falls about three months, having moved here from Jackson, Miss. He is survived by his widow, two sons, Howard and Joe Garrison of Biloxi, Miss., who are en route to Wichita Falls for the services; and a brother, Doctor Garrison of Jackson, Miss.

MRS. LIZZIE WEAVER

The body of Mrs. Lizzie Weaver, 74, who died in a local hospital about 1:45 a. m. Tuesday, is being held at the Hines mortuary pending the arrival of a son-in-law, C. W. Heard, from Temple, Texas.

An Ohio truck driver was twice held up and robbed of a truck load of tires. Pretty soon that chap will begin to feel rimmed.

STRAND: "Divorce Made Easy," with Douglas MacLean and Marie Prevost. Mack Sennett talking comedy. Two Vitaphone vaudeville acts. Movietone news.

OLYMPIC: Lillian Murry and company, tableaux. Lon Chaney in "Where East is West." Comedy and Sportlight novelty.

GEM: Wallace Beery in "Chinatown Nights." Comedy.

Add the name of Douglas MacLean to stars of the silent screen who not only have qualified in the talking pictures, but have given it some of its best recording voices. The airy comedian is giving Strand theater patrons this week in "Divorce Made Easy" the most entertaining show seen in that house for many months.

MacLean does not have the reverberating depth of George Bancroft in his voice, nor the vibrant, commanding timber with which Milton Sills delivers his lines. But it is resonant, records evenly without "blind spots," and has a degree of flexibility which gives MacLean a delightful versatility of expression. MacLean's charm is not all in the voice, however. When his face goes long, his eyes grow round, and the eyebrows climb alarmingly upwards—well, that's where his words get credit for being clever.

"Divorce Made Easy" affords another excellent illustration of the tremendous revolution of technique effected with the introduction of sound in film productions. The flow of action which had been perfected almost to the point of eliminating completely sub-titles has been almost entirely replaced with the static locale peculiar to stage plays. Action which formerly occupied a thousand feet of film is now accounted for by a brief telephone conversation. The camera which formerly swung over unlimited ranges remains for the most part centered on one room, or suite of rooms, for the talking picture. Which of course is a photographed stage performance.

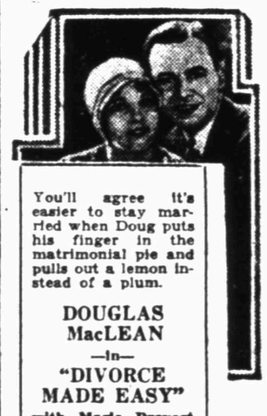

In "Divorce Made Easy" the only bits of action which could have been used as visual sections of the narrative were brief shots of Percy and Aunt Emma en route by taxi to the roof garden and their entrance there a moment later. But even in those two instances, when the camera did leave the apartment homes of the principals, motion was not allowed to tell the story. Where a cutback would have been used in the silent film, showing Percy's wife in the care of Percy's best friend while Percy's worries mount higher and higher, the talkie sticks the camera into the taxicab's window and lets the nervous husband deliver himself of a soliloquy. And lest another opportunity to play with the new toy be lost, the entrance to Bamboo Land must be interrupted with Aunt Emma's bombastic and unnecessary speechcs.

The story of "Divorce Made Easy" builds a lighlsome farce around the old stunt of planting a "platonic" friend with the innocent member of the matrimonial team, in order to create the necessary compromising situation. Douglas MacLean and Johnny Arthur make the most of it, without being handicapped by Marie Prevost and Frances Lee. The entangling affairs of adjacent apartments and juxta-posed bedrooms are utilized for some highly amusing scenes. Johnny Arthur supplies one of the brightest pieces of comedy acting you will see on the screen.

As though the inaudibility of many lines and a multiplicity of inane subjects were not a sufficient handicap to the talking-picture industry, producers are now showing dangerous inclinations toward the inclusion of much rank slap-stick as fill-in material—"vaudeville acts" they are called. Comedy is caricature, and caricature is merely the over-emphasis of outstanding characteristics. However, over-emphasis doesn't require a dozen men doing a poor job of crying for 10 minutes, with a bedlam of noises, in order to show the possibilities of a tear-bomb among thieves. Suggestion is the highest medium of humorous expression. And there isn't much different, from the standpoint of entertainment, in throwing of pie or dough or putty or paint in another ham-actor's face. Putty thrown to sound accompaniment is as disgusting as pie thrown silently.

U. S. TO HONOR GEN. PULASKI

Hero of Revolution Given Recognition

In honor of the memory of Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, whose gallantry in action during the American revolution went far toward the establishment of independence for the United States, President Herbert Hoover has issued a proclamation setting aside Friday, Oct 11, which marks the 150th anniversary of the death of General Pulaski, as a day for fitting services and patriotic exercises.

Postmaster O. P. Maricle has been instructed by the president to display the flag of the United States at the federal building. Schools, churches and other such places have been invited to hold appropriate exercises in commemoration of the death of General Pulaski.

Bus Driver to Face County Court Charge

Sam Coursey, driver on a Wichita Falls-Electra bus line, Tuesday afternoon was charged in the county court-at-law with driving the machine through the streets of Iowa Park without lights on the night of Sept. 4. The charge was filed here by L. V. Abernathy, assistant county attorney, on complaints brought by Iowa Park officials after the defendant is alleged to have failed to obey the summons of a Iowa Park traffic "ticket."

Members of the Writers club of Junior college will go to the Grant Street Methodist church Friday night, Oct. 18, to hear Mrs. Grace Noll Crowell, it was decided Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the club.

Miss Hazel Hobbs was admitted into the club after reading an original descriptive essay. Miss Eva Weber, faculty sponsor, read "Having Fun With Creative Writing."

Grid Demonstration

Coach E. A. Baggett and the Junior college Indians gave a practical demonstration of the science of football before the students of the Junior college and high school at the regular assembly Tuesday morning.

Miss Mary Clare Burton gave a reading. It was announced by Moulton B. Harrison, president of the senior class, that class photography for the Coyote, high school annual, will start Thursday morning.

Speakers Club

Students of the public speaking classes of high school and Junior college will meet in the first Speakers club meeting of the year Wednesday morning at 9:30 in the little auditorium, according to Miss Juanita Kinsey, faculty sponsor.

U. T. Speaker Coming

C. P. Brewer of the extension department of the University of Texas will be the speaker at the assembly next Tuesday, according to S. H. Rider, principal of the high school.

Fire Prevention

Attractive posters made by high school students call the attention of high school and Junior college students to fire prevention week. The posters are arranged in the display case in the main corridor.

Rally at Assembly

The regular assembly will be given over to pep practice Thursday morning, according to Dean S. H. Rider. A pep rally will also be held at 7 o'clock Friday evening, as usual.

An increase over previous years, 600 Chinese have been deported as "undesirable" by the Philippine islands.

MARRIAGE LAW FOILS CUPID

Officer and Irate Papa Wait Young Couple

The new Texas marriage license law will halt a runaway marriage between a 15-year-old girl and her youthful first cousin within the next few days, according to plans disclosed Tuesday by Miss Elizabeth Hall, county clerk, who has instructions to stop the proceedings.

The young couple applied for the marriage license Monday, the would-be groom announcing himself to be 21 and his bride 18 years of age. The applicants were given the required health certificate for the groom which is to be returned with the signature of a physician after three days have elapsed.

Meanwhile the young girl's father heard rumors of the prospective romance, communicated with the constable at Iowa Park, and sent word to Miss Hall that his daughter is not 16 years of age. Moreover the pair are first cousins, the irate parent added. When, or if, the two return for the license, they will be placed in official hands to be cared for until the father can call for his daughter, Miss Hall explained.

Negro Singers At Wichita Revival

Evangelist Albert E. Davis announced at "The Wichita Falls Gospel Tabernacle" Tuesday night that arrangements had been made for the presence of the Pilgrim Rest Colored Baptist choir Wednesday evening. This colored chorus of singers will be under the direction of Rev. George Whitfield, pastor of the church. Announcement was also made that Mrs. Harriett N. Davis, wife of the evangelist, will preach Thursday night.

Te evangelist's theme was "What Is Repentance?" The true definition of the word is "to change the mind," Davis said. Emphasis was placed upon the passage of scripture "Whosoever hideth or covereth his sin shall not prosper but he that confesseth and forsaketh his sin shall find mercy." Mr. Davis again emphasized the fact that the meeting was interdenominational and that all churches are invited to cooperate.

Hobbs Case Witness Goes to State School

James A. McDonald, county juvenile officer, Tuesday took two young Wichita Falls girls to the training school at Gainesville where they are sentenced to serve indefinite terms on charges of general delinquency. One of the young prisoners is a 15-year-old witness for the defense in the trial of Art Hobbs on assault charges about two weeks ago. It was her testimony in describing a creek bottom party northwest of town last summer that led to the sentence against her. The second girl is 13 years old, a runaway whose whereabouts were only discovered after the officers had broadcast her disapperance over the radio.
