Closing 10th Street?

■ Council to consider proposal at Tuesday meeting

By CARLTON JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Concern about an anticipated increase in foot traffic when a multi-purpose athletic facility is built has prompted a request to close a portion of 10th Street.

Because foot traffic is expected to increased by three to four times as much, the Traffic Commission is recommending the closure to the Big Spring City Council at its Tuesday meeting.

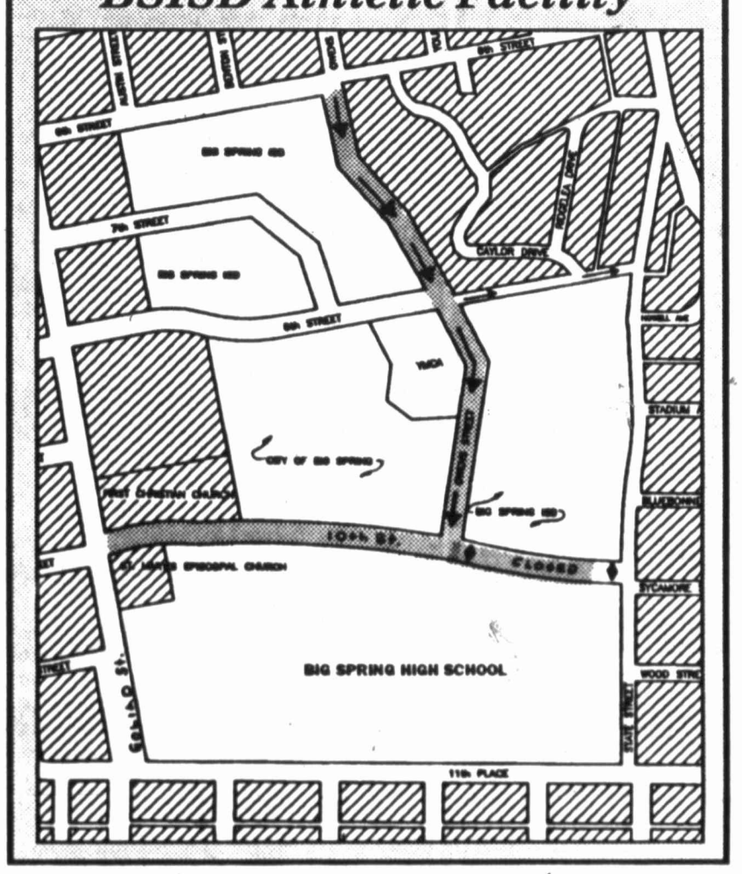

The facility is being built thanks to a $300,000 grant from the Dora Roberts Foundation.

According to school officials, the facility will be housed in a metal building and will provide work-out space for both boys and girls and serve as an indoor training facility during bad weather.

The facility is not a problem, but the proposed closing of a portion of 10th Street has a few residents in the area concerned.

According to City Engineer Ralph Truszkowski the recommended closing will be presented in an ordinance to the council . It will recommend 10th Street be closed from State to Owens, that Eighth Street between Owens and State be designated one way to the east, and that Owens from Sixth to 10th be designated one way to the south.

Proposed 10th Street closing for BSISD Athletic Facility

M.H. Barnes, who lives near the corner of Sycamore Street, said, "10th Street is the only street in town that goes from one side of the city to the other. It's going to make it extremely inconvenient for everyone here."

He added, "I've lived here since 1930 and have done a little bit of everything, and 10th Street is not just convenient,

Haro arrested for sexual assault

■ Grand jury indictment handed down in January

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Richard Haro, 35, has been arrested for aggravated sexual assault of a child.

Reports indicate Haro, of 310 W. Seventh, allegedly assaulted a child under the age of 10 in 1991 but was not reported to authorities until 1993.

In July 1994, the case was reportedly given to the district attorney's office, who later presented it to the grand jury. Haro was indicted in January 1995 but not arrested until Thursday.

Once a grand jury has completed its session, the indictments are given to the district clerk's office, where the information is typed. From there, all indictments are given to the Sheriff's Department who dissemnates them according to which law enforcement agency originally handled the case.

Records show Haro's indictment was delivered to the Police Department by Deputy Bennie Green on Jan. 26, 1995. However, police detectives did not know of its existence until June 15.

When asked about the delay in an arrest, Big Spring Police Department Sgt. Victor Brake explained, "Under normal circumstances, our indictments are either picked up by the detective handling the case or they are sent to us. The officer who handled this case in 1993 is no longer a detective. This type of indictment is usually given to the detective if they don't pick it up.

"For those not picked up, a card is made up listing the person's name and when they were indicted is printed on it. Haro's card had he had been indicted

According to Howard County Extension Agent Don Richardson, more than 200 entries participated in the District 6 Horse Show from 22 counties in this region of Texas comprising an area from Big Spring to El Paso, and south to Del Rio.

Base closing committee takes 10 hours to make decision

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. military facilities took only a moderate hit in the first round of decisions by the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission, but dozens more remain on the chopping block.

In 10 hours of deliberations Thursday, the independent panel recommended closing fewer than half the bases it considered. Of 57 facilities reviewed, 22 would be shut down completely or nearly completely. Seven others would be realigned, a process that sometimes means thousands of jobs leaving a community, and 27 would be kept open.

That left more than 100 Navy and Army bases to consider when the eight-member commission resumed its work today.

Even if the panel closed all the bases recommended by the Clinton administration, the reductions over the past decade in airfields, tank ranges, headquarters and other property would lag far behind cuts in the defense budget and the overall force during the same period.

The military is carrying overhead it can't afford, said the commission chairman, former Sen. Alan Dixon, D-Ill. On several votes, he was in the minority seeking to close a base.

"I cannot criticize my fellow commissioners who didn't vote to close," Dixon said, noting that base closure rounds in 1988, 1991 and 1993 skimmed off much of the fat in the military's inventory. "There's some awfully good stuff on this list."

The commission of former senior military officers, politicians and policy professionals were acting in a politically charged atmosphere. Through most of the day, the front rows of spectator seats in a Senate hearing room were filled with lawmakers worried about the fate of their home-state bases.

"Some of my best friends are involved in these situations," Dixon lamented. "God, it isn't very much fun with them sitting in the front row in these hearings."

Some weren't sounding so friendly after the commission voted.

California lawmakers complained their state had taken disproportionate hits and said they would urge President Clinton to reject the entire closure list when it is sent to him on July 1.

"I'm going to take this right to the president," said Sen. Barbara Boxer, D-Calif.

California is the state richest in presidential electoral votes, but in all previous base closure rounds, the hit list submitted by the commission to the president and Congress has been passed into law.

A KINDNESS

A robin sits atop its eggs in the maintenance shop parking lot of the Water Reclamation Plant in Sioux Falls, S.D. The nest was found empty on the top of a wheel of a pickup in the parking lot about two weeks ago and the owner put the nest on the ground. Last week, a plant employee noticed the bird had returned to the nest and laid three eggs, so a barricade was put over the nest to shade it and protect it.

nia was the commission's recommendation to close McClellan Air Force Base in Sacramento, one of two Air Force maintenance centers it targeted. The other was Kelly Air Force Base in San Antonio.

The commission acted contrary to advice by Air Force Secretary Sheila Widnall and Gen. Ronald Fogleman, the service's chief of staff. In a letter Wednesday, they said that closing the two depots would have a "devastating impact on as many as 25,000 Defense Department workers in Texas and California."

Two of the commissioners leading the charge to spare major facilities were retired officers: Army Maj. Gen. Josue Robles Jr. and Air Force Gen. J.B. Davis.

Robles argued successfully to keep open Red River Army Depot in northeast Texas. The commission voted to shut down most of the activities at Letterkenny Army Depot in Pennsylvania, leaving behind only weapons storage facilities.

Davis fought unsuccessfully to protect the Air Force depots.

"Closing depots in my view is a very, very serious thing. It can severely disrupt that service ... and the Air Force's wartime capacity," Davis said.

Other bases spared by the commission included the Naval Air Warfare Center in Lakehurst, N.J., which provides support to the Navy's carrier force; and the Naval Air Warfare Center in Point Mugu, Calif., which has one of the Navy's few weapons ranges.

The commission also voted to keep open Florida's MacDill Air Force Base, home of the U.S. Central Command, which led the Persian Gulf War effort.

Once the closure list is completed, the president has 15 days to approve or disapprove it, or to request a revised list. If approved, the list goes to Congress, where it becomes law in 45 days unless both houses reject it in its entirety.

but essential."

Barnes thinks the city could build a walk-over bridge or even put up a traffic light rather than close 10th Street.

However, according to Big Spring Independent School District Superintendent Bill McQueary, the proposed closing is not just about inconvenience, but rather a safety precaution for when 600 to 700 students are crossing the street to get to the facility.

According to Truszkowski, the site is needed because the sports complex will encroach onto 10th Street.

He added, "The ordinance will be the first of many steps if the council agrees with the closing of 10th Street. There are several legal steps to closing a public right-of-way.

McQueary said there would be some inconvenience by closing a portion of 10th Street and the same argument was made by several residents when Gregg Street was widened.

"Some people thought Gregg Street would dry up and blow away when it was widened, but it's the best thing to ever happen to Big Spring."

According to McQueary, the concern is for the safety of students and athletes going to and from the facility.

Russ McEwen, chairman of the athletic complex committee, said the primary purpose of closing the street is to provide a mutli-purpose facility for all BSISD athletic activities.

"Two main concerns are the safety of the kids and if the street is closed we don't have to use the land currently serving as the football practice facility," McEwen said. "We can use the land around 10th instead."

McEwen said the committee would like to see construction on the facility begin by the end of the year or early in 1996.

The City Council will take up the issue at Tuesday's meeting at 5:30 p.m. in the conference room of Building 1106 at McMahon/Wrinkle Airpark.

on Jan. 25 but we have no record of when it was brought to this department.

"The card is given to dispatch. If someone knows where the suspect is, they are arrested as soon as possible. If not, we search for information on their location or if they are involved in a traffic stop, officers will check to see if they have any outstanding warrants. If so, that person is arrested," Brake explained.

He adds he cannot explain why this particular indictment was not given to the detective division as soon as it came down from the grand jury.

Haro has been released on a $20,000 bond.

Kelly AFB employees dazed by decision to close

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Kelly Air Force Base employees dazed by the vote to shut down the base had the difficult chore today of reporting to work knowing their jobs likely will end.

For many, losing the huge base — the city's largest employer and a major source of middle-class jobs for Hispanics — is unthinkable.

"It's terrible," said Marian Rodriguez, a stenographer who has worked at Kelly for 10 years and grew up near the base.

"Shocked, very shocked," was how Ms. Rodriguez described her reaction to the independent Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission vote Thursday to virtually shut down Kelly.

Another Kelly civilian worker, who did not want to be identified, said, "I think we saw politics in action, as opposed to logic."

After giving Brooks Air Force Base in San Antonio an unexpected reprieve, the commission voted 6-2 Thursday to strip virtually all the assets of Kelly, including the San Antonio Air Logistics Center, which does maintenance on C-5 cargo planes and other aircraft.

The logistics center employs some 10,400 civilians and 1,600 military personnel. Kelly's remaining tenants — employing some 5,445 other civilian and military workers — would move to adjacent Lackland Air Force Base.

Maj. Gen. Lewis Curtis, commander of Kelly's logistics center, said because Kelly was not on the Air Force's closure recommendation list, details are sketchy about how and when work at Kelly would halt.

"In the short term, our job here at the San Antonio Air Logistics Center is going to be no different tomorrow, next month, six months from now or probably a year from now than it was yesterday. We still have to continue providing that combat capability to all our fighting forces," he said.

The base closure commission ignored the Air Force's recommendation that none of its five maintenance depots be closed and instead opted to close two, Kelly and McClellan Air Force Base in California.

The vote caught many Kelly workers off guard.

Michael Wolfe, a West Virginia University professor who was at Kelly working on a research project Thursday, said some employees had walked away from radios and television sets when the Kelly vote was taken because the McClellan vote had just happened and they hadn't expected Kelly to fall, too.

"Everyone was just in shock," he said, but noted some employees had expected the Kelly to be closed "because their superiors were so gloomy."

San Antonio Mayor Bill Thornton said he hoped President Clinton would intervene and save Kelly, which employees 45 percent of all Hispanics who work in the Air Force.

"My initial reaction is we go to the commander-in-chief," Thornton said. "I feel this needs to be given full reconsideration by President Clinton. ... I am not happy with what I've seen."

Thornton insisted closing Kelly could threaten national security.

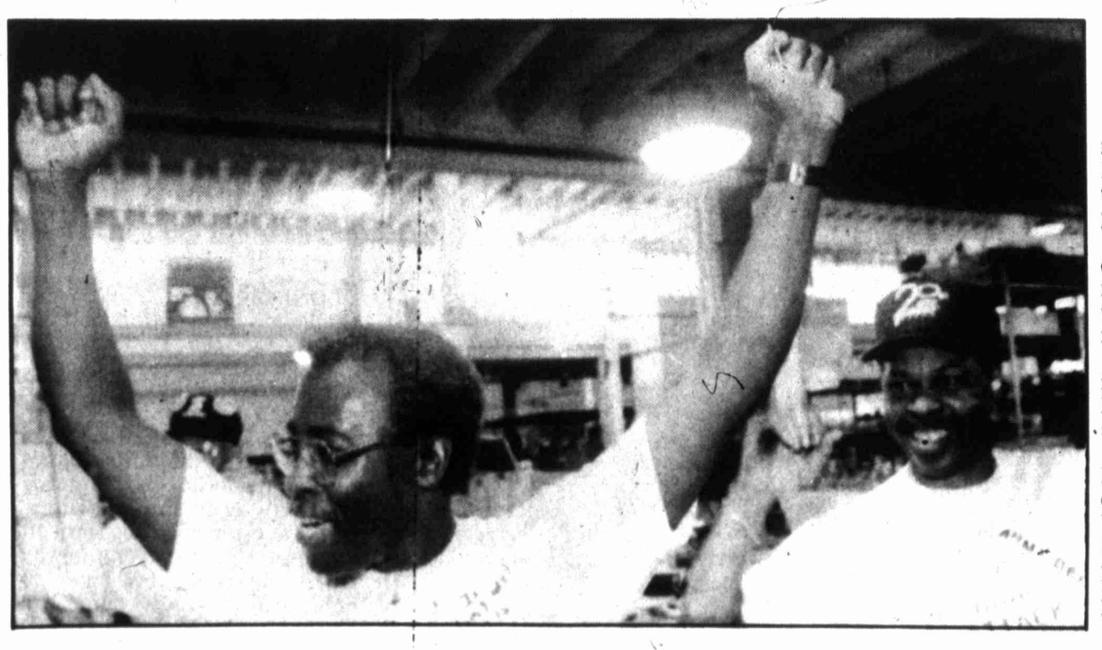

"They have cut too far," Thornton said.

President Clinton may only accept or reject the full list submitted by July 1 by the independent commission.

Gov. George W. Bush also expressed disappointment at the effect Kelly's closing would have on San Antonio, a predominantly Hispanic city of 1 million people.

"It falls disproportionately upon our Hispanic population in Texas, and I am very sorry about that," Bush said.

Alice Herrera, owner of V&A Taco House across the street from Kelly's main entrance, grew up with friends whose parents worked at Kelly. Today, the majority of her customers are Kelly employees.

Rallies did little to protect Reese AFB

LUBBOCK (AP) — Months of rallying on behalf of Reese Air Force Base apparently did little to protect Lubbock's source of patriotic pride and 1,700 jobs.

City Hall was rocked Thursday by news that a federal commission had voted to shut down the pilot-training center about 5 miles west of Lubbock.

"We now know that our worst fears have been realized," Mayor David Langston said at a somber news conference.

The Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission expressed concern about possibly affecting the nation's capacity to train undergraduate pilots. But the commission ultimately sided with the Air Force to target Reese.

Three bases similar to Reese — among them Laughlin AFB in Del Rio — immediately got removed from closure consideration.

"It's very disheartening to me to see the way the Air Force handled this," said U.S. Rep. Larry Combest, R-Lubbock.

The commissioners' final recommendations must be presented by July 1 to President Clinton, who must either approve or reject them in total. If Clinton gives his approval, the list goes to Congress, where it is automatically approved after 45 days unless lawmakers vote down the recommendations in their entirety.

Col. Roger Brady, commander of the 64th Flying Training Wing, said he expected no immediate change in operations.

"The student pilots will go fly every morning like they always do," Brady said.

He pegged October 1997 as a closure date. People on base, he said, are disappointed.

"It's kind of like seeing your kid going off to college," Brady said. "It's hard."

But he cited some factors — weather, altitude and cross winds — making Reese less attractive than its competitors.

"Departing Lubbock is not something that we're happy about," Brady said. "But we did need to close a base."

Langston said the economic loss of Reese will be significant and regional in scope. The loss will not, however, devastate Lubbock, he said.

City leaders already have submitted paperwork for a $38,000 federal grant to help form a redevelopment plan, Langston said. Ideas include making the base a retirement center.

Stubborn scientists helped keep Brooks open

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — The secret behind Brooks Air Force Base winning a unanimous reprieve from the base closure commission may be as simple as stubborn scientists.

A base commander said researchers at the technologically based facility put their reluctance to moving in writing, and it may have played a part in Thursday's 8-0 vote to keep Brooks open.

"A big factor was a petition circulated that showed a majority of people would not go to Wright-Patterson AFB," said Brig. Gen. Robert Belihar, commander of the Human Systems Center at Brooks AFB.

The decision was a surprise because it had been targeted by the Pentagon for relocation to Tyndall AFB, Fla.

Even Mayor Bill Thornton expressed surprise as he watched the televised BRAC deliberations in City Council chambers along with other city and civic leaders.

The local biomedical and research community in San Antonio also benefits from keeping Brooks.

"We're very happy," said Tullos Wells, chairman of the Greater San Antonio Chamber of Commerce. "For the last 30 days, we have been happy about Brooks' future."

Red River depot given a reprieve

By RICK THOMAS
Texarkana Gazette

HOOKS, Texas — It's over. For months, Red River Army Depot supporters have worn bright yellow T-shirts that read: "It ain't over 'till it's over."

They had vowed to fight until the end to keep the depot open. Thursday, they found out they had won. Although its mission will be reduced, the depot will stay in business.

"We weren't the 'town that dreaded sundown,' we were the 'town that dreaded shutdown," said Jimmy Oliver, who has been a teacher for 16 years in the Hooks Independent School District.

The Base Realignment and Closure Commission decided Thursday in Washington, D.C., to keep the facility open, but to realign some of its maintenance work, excluding the Bradley Fighting Vehicles.

Red River is the only Bradley maintenance depot in the Army.

"Red River has been one of the area's biggest assets all my life and it would have been devastating to close it. Everybody would have been affected, whether or not they worked at Red River. I think this whole area pulled together and fought to keep Red River open. It's been a long battle."

Jim Norris, who owns Jimmy D's restaurant in Hooks, said, "Now that they're going to keep Red River, they're going to keep me. I'm relieved it's going to stay open."

People's emotions were running freely after learning the news on Red River.

The most frequently used responses were: "I'm tickled to death," "It's good news," "Ain't it great?" "I'm so happy," "I'm so relieved," "This is the best news I've heard all year."

Only one person said he was disappointed over the news. "I wish they had shut Red River down," said a tall and hefty man who was dressed in overalls and tennis shoes.

"We shouldn't depend on one place for all those jobs. We depend too much on Red River."

The man would not say where he worked, or if he had a job. He also refused to give his name. "I'm not stupid," he replied, and walked off. Most business owners were glad about the developments.

"Maybe now I'll have a reason to come to work tomorrow," said Pat James, who owns Hooks Tire Service. "I think if they had shut down Red River, I probably would have had to shut down ... and it would have been hard to find a place to put all this concrete.

"I'm just relieved that we're off the dead list. As long as they're keeping the gates open, we've got a chance. And who knows, it may start growing again because their workload can change day to day."

Brice Feasel, president of FirstBank in Hooks, said he was elated when he heard the news.

"This is great for the whole community, actually the whole Ark-La-Tex area. A lot of hard work went into keeping this base open..."

Check out college prepay plan; could be an answer

College tuition is no laughing matter for many parents. It is an expensive item that provides for their children's futures.

It is never to early to begin planning for the future.

Gov. George Bush has signed into law a bill that would allow parents to start early saving for their child's tuition.

The program will be run through the State Comptroller's office where a fund will be set up for your child.

The price of tuition is locked in at the prices of the year you begin paying. In other words, if you start paying for college in 1996 but your child doesn't go to college until 2025, the tuition prices will still be 1996 prices.

There are four different plans to choose from: a junior college plan senior college plan; junior college transfer to senior college plan; and private colleges.

Opinions expressed on this page are those of the Editorial Board of the Big Spring Herald unless otherwise indicated.

Charles C. Williams, Publisher
DD Turner, Managing Editor

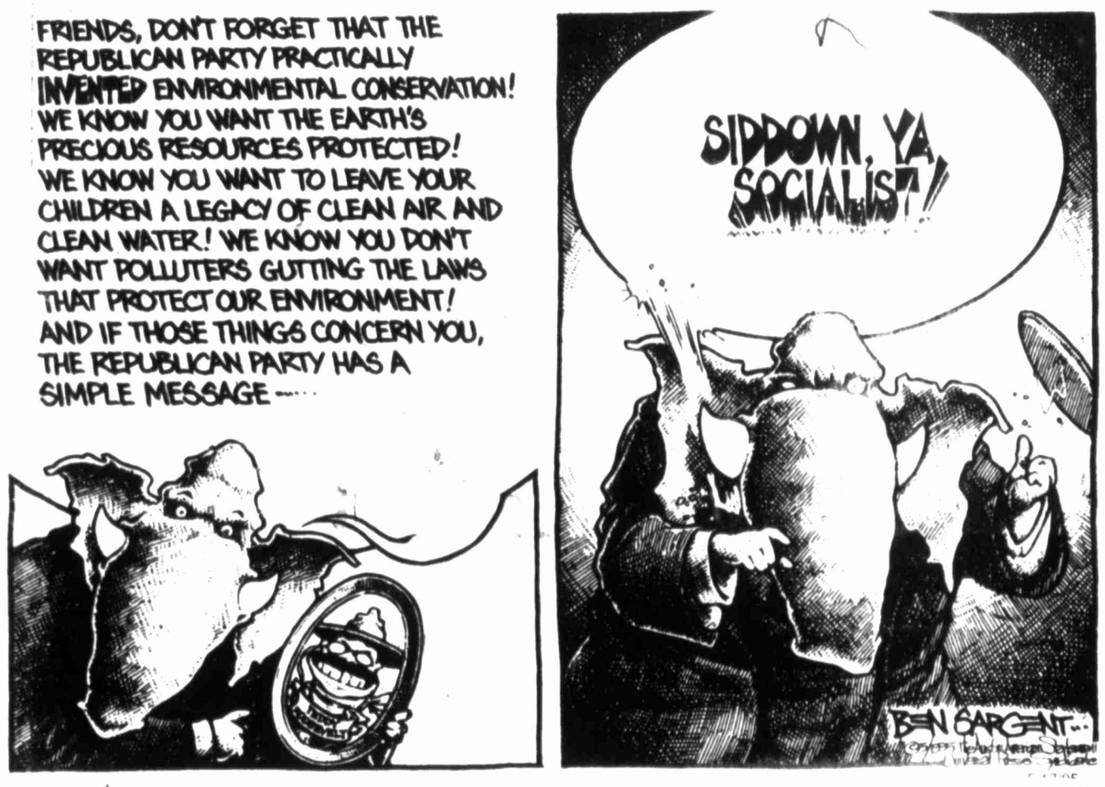

There are still many questions as to how this will work. However, it is something worth checking out.

The program can be done in installments or in bulk, the aim of which is to help financially struggling parents.

As the price of everything continues to increase, families are finding it harder and harder just to keep up much less plan for their children's college.

A college education, though, is necessary to get ahead in this world, something every parent wants for their child.

This program is one way to make college a reality without too much worry.

■ Letters to the Editor

'Walk a mile in their shoes'

Editor,

I am a little confused. It seems that there are a few people who are complaining about the prisoners cleaning up the canyon behind the Nazarene church.

First of all what confuses me is the fact that the land they are trying to control does not even belong to the ones that are complaining. It shouldn't even mater to them if it's not on their property.

Secondly I would hate to think that we are teaching our younger generation to be a generation of complainers instead of teaching them to stand behind our elected officials and cheer them on about bringing in the prisoners. This is a valued service and the other cities who like us have been fortunate to get the cleanup done in their town are begging these crews to come back.

If we lose this program because of people who have nothing better to do with their time than to pray for rain then cuss the mud, then I say they need to live in a town that is embarrassing to call home, that is overrun with weeds and underbrush, but I for one would prefer not for it to be called Big Spring.

I would appreciate Perry and the others looking at the majority of Big Spring and realize that most all of our fine town loves the changes and appreciates the many hours that are being put in by the crews.

I have had a chance to meet quite a few of the guards and bosses and you won't find a finer set of people. As for the prisoners they are all trustees who are nearing their sentences and are all trustworthy men or they wouldn't be on this program.

People make mistakes and if you are going to be threatened by their presence then you probably haven't heard that old Indian saying my grandfather always quoted, "DON'T JUDGE A MAN UNTIL YOU HAVE WALKED A MILE IN HIS SANDALS."

Landowners have rights

Editor,

In your editorial of June 14, 1995, you stated regarding the "canyon" controversy; "The area that has been cleaned does not belong to the people who are most vociferous with their complaints; it belongs to the city and to the church." I feel this is a valid point. Property owners' rights should be respected.

In June 7, 1995, Mr. Lloyd T. Claxton stated in his letter to the editor, "It doesn't take a rocket scientist to see that the United States is heading in the same direction as the U.S.S.R. . . " In the manifesto, Marx speaks of the steps by which communists intend to bring to pass their goal of "revolutionizing the mode of production." The first of these steps is "abolition of property and land and application of all rents of land to public purposes." The attitude that what our neighbor does with the property that they bought and paid for is everyone else's business; where does this come from?

This is not a communist or a socialist country, this is America and a property owner should have the right to do with their property as they wish.

Sincerely,

T. Christopherson

Police, radio stations helpful

Editor:

I want to publicly thank the Big Spring Police Department, Corporal R. Fitzgibbons, KBST and KBYG for their assistance this past weekend when some of my property was stolen. Corporal Fitzgibbons located and returned my stolen property within two hours. KBST and KBYG graciously broadcast a request for assistance in locating my stolen property. People such as these make our community a better place in which to live. We are indeed fortunate to have such helpful neighbors, as well as the best police department anywhere.

Impeachment call rejected

MOSCOW (AP) — The lower house of parliament today rejected a Communist Party proposal to hold impeachment hearings against Boris Yeltsin, signaling it may be ready to ease its conflict with the president.

Instead of impeachment, lawmakers in the State Duma decided to debate a measure calling on Yeltsin to fire his "power ministers," the men in charge of the army and the security forces.

Both Yeltsin and his power ministers are under fire for their handling of a hostage crisis in southern Russia in which more than 120 people died.

The impeachment proposal fell 54 votes short of the 226 needed to get on the legislature's agenda.

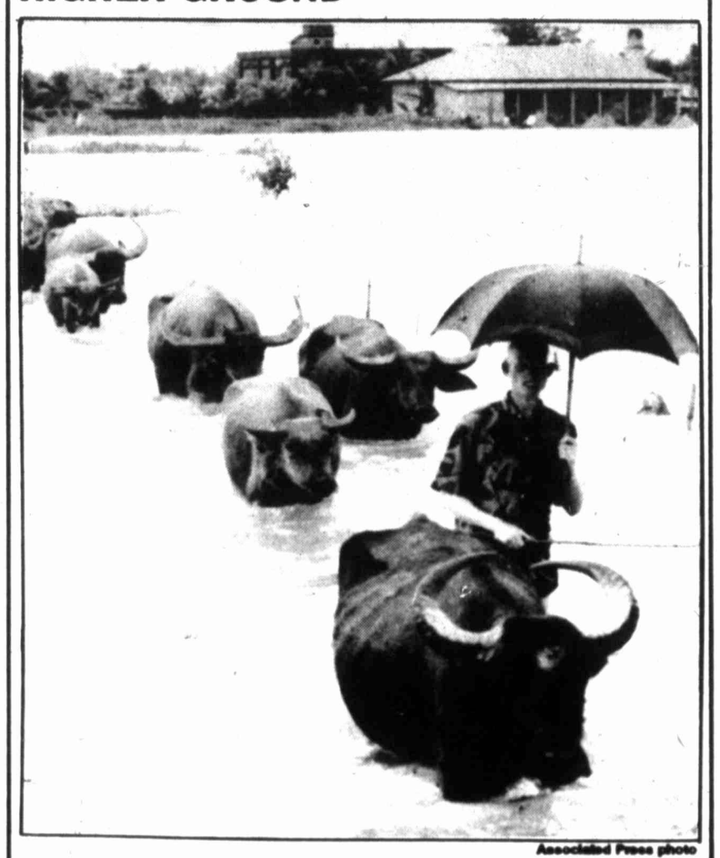

Earlier this week the Duma overwhelmingly passed a nonbinding vote of no confidence in Yeltsin's government. The president promptly dared them to make it binding — a move that would allow him to disband parliament. Lawmakers today agreed to take that up in a vote on July 1.

Yeltsin admitted Thursday to mistakes both in the handling of the hostage crisis and the war in Chechnya.

Chechen gunman demanding an end to the 7-month-old war took nearly 2,000 people hostage in the southern Russian city of Budyonnovsk last week. The gunmen were freed after releasing their hostages — and after failed Russian raids killed and wounded dozens of people.

The Moscow Times reported from Budyonnovsk today that morgue records indicated more people died in the raids by security forces than in the initial Chechen attack.

Election sets path for new Conservative leadership

LONDON (AP) — Whoever challenges Prime Minister John Major for the Conservative Party leadership next month, it's the wounding — not the winning — that counts.

Major's big danger would be failing to win the July 4 ballot he set in motion by resigning the party leadership on Thursday. But if someone does pull off an upset, it would open the way for a big-name challenger to enter a second-round contest to become party leader, and thus prime minister.

In resigning Thursday and calling party elections, Major tried to reassert his control by challenging dissident Conservative legislators who oppose closer integration with Europe "to put up or shut up."

He apparently was confident none of the heavyweights in his 22-member Cabinet would take him on, at least not in the first round.

No one immediately jumped into the race.

Protesters want security minister out after beating

ABIDJAN, Ivory Coast (AP) — Thousands of protesters marched to the presidential palace Thursday to demand the ouster of the security minister who ordered the beating of an opposition leader and journalist.

Shouting "A Fa Kaya!" — a vulgar term in the local patois, meaning "We've had enough!" and has become the slogan against the beating — marchers surrounded the well-guarded government compound while their leaders met with government officials.

Riot police with tear gas cannons and bayonets lined the streets of Abidjan and surrounded the palace, but in a rare show of tolerance they allowed the angry crowd to pass without interference.

"We just want to know what true democracy is," Justin Tape, a 43-year-old telephone inspector, shouted over the ululating women wearing funeral wreaths and chanting anti-government slogans. "We just want freedom, justice and fair elections."

The "A Fa Kaya" fracas began June 14 when Abou Drahamane Sangare, publisher of a group of opposition newspapers and the deputy leader of the opposition Ivorian Popular Front, was arrested and taken to the office of Security Minister Gaston Ouassenan Kone. He was accused of insulting Kone by using the expression "A Fa Kaya" in an article critical of the minister.

As Kone watched, four policemen pummeled Sangare with clubs until the minister said they could stop. Sangare suffered severe bruises. The assault drew condemnation from the U.S. Embassy as well as Ivorians across the political spectrum.

Hijacker told police he simply wanted to meet cult leader

TOKYO (AP) — The man held in an airplane hijacking told investigators he wanted to meet the cult leader accused of masterminding the nerve gas attacks on Tokyo's subways, and to "create a stir," media reported today.

Police seized Fumio Kutsumi, a 52-year-old systems engineer on medical leave for a nervous condition, when they stormed the plane at Hakodate airport Thursday and freed all 364 passengers and crew.

The crew initially reported that Kutsumi was a member of the Aum Shinri Kyo cult, but police later said there was no evidence of a connection. The cult denied any link to Kutsumi.

The Mainichi report said Kutsumi wanted to meet cult leader Shoko Asahara and learn his teachings, which include elements of Hinduism, Buddhism, and worship of Asahara himself, who claims to be the Messiah. Police would not comment on the report.

Police are still searching for a motive in the hijacking, the first on a domestic airliner in 16 years. In one previous case, the government paid off members of the Red Army and released prisoners to secure safe passage of a plane hijacked to Korea.

Kutsumi's statements to investigators, leaked to local media, have so far been vague. He has been quoted as apologizing for what he has done, saying "I did what I did" and that he "wanted to create a stir."

Police today sent Kutsumi over to prosecutors, who have 21 days to question him before bringing formal charges.

Slight progress made in U.S., Japan talks

GENEVA (AP) — With a deadline for harsh U.S. trade sanctions just five days away, there were signs that U.S. and Japanese negotiators made slight progress today in resolving their long-running auto dispute.

After their first day of last-ditch negotiations on Thursday, the two sides reported no progress. But after meeting with U.S. negotiator Ira Shapiro today, Japanese delegate Masahide Ochi told reporters there were "some new ideas."

On Thursday night, the Japanese vice minister for international affairs, Yoshihiro Sakamoto, said Japan was willing to make "a small step."

Shapiro reiterated that he saw no reason for optimism or pessimism.

Washington wants to open the Japanese auto market to more competition.

Bandits storm train, robbing 350 passengers in two hours

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Some 50 men armed with guns, knives and axes stormed a train in remote northern India and robbed about 350 passengers in a two-hour raid, a newspaper reported today.

The bandits robbed every passenger after stopping the train near the village of Gurua, victims told The Pioneer newspaper. Some police officers and soldiers were on board, but those who tried to resist were beaten up.

Local police said they had no information about the incident. The passengers told railroad authorities in New Delhi about the raid when their journey ended.

Rains release dam

■ Torrential flood released, killing one

LYNCHBURG, Va. (AP) — Heavy rain washed out a dam, unleashing a torrential flood that dragged a rescue worker to his death and swept seven cars off a bridge into a raging creek.

Occupants of two of the cars were unaccounted for, police said today.

The dam, built in 1926, broke late Thursday night. As the water raced down an already-swollen Buffalo Creek, three rescue workers were on a boat at a bridge that was submerged under 3 to 4 feet of water.

A wall of water swept over the four-lane bridge, flushing the seven cars into the creek. The force of the torrent crumpled steel guardrails like accordions, snapped a telephone pole in half and ripped huge slabs of asphalt and concrete from the bridge.

Occupants of five cars had already waded to safety. Volunteer firefighter Carter Martin, 41, died when the boat capsized and he was trapped underwater by the current, police said.

A second rescuer on the boat was rescued immediately, and the third man washed downstream and was found later. Both were treated at a hospital for minor cuts and released.

Police hadn't been able to reach license plates of the other two cars or confirm identities of the passengers this morning.

"We have several vehicles in the creek and we have several people unaccounted for right now," said state police Sgt. David O. Cooper. "We don't know what's happened to them."

Although the water receded today, the bridge on U.S. 460 remained closed so inspectors could assess the damage. More than five miles of U.S. 460 were closed, as well as parts of other roads that were flooded.

Thunderstorms threaten to delay shuttle's launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Thunderstorms pounded Kennedy Space Center today, threatening to delay the launch of space shuttle Atlantis and its planned linkup with the Russian space station Mir.

Officials postponed the loading of a half-million gallons of fuel into Atlantis this morning because of the storm. NASA had until midmorning for the weather to improve enough to begin loading fuel into the shuttle tank before calling off the launch.

Forecasters offered a meager 20 percent chance of good weather for the 5:08 p.m. EDT liftoff, with only slight improvement this weekend.

Emotions were nonetheless running high for what will be the first visit to Mir by an American shuttle. More than 80 Russians were on hand at Cape Canaveral, including Mir program directors.

"We are on the verge of a real historic moment in our lives," said Yuri Semenov, president of the Russian aerospace company RSC Energia.

Atlantis is supposed to deliver two Russian cosmonauts to Mir and bring back NASA astronaut Norman Thagard and his two Russian crewmates, who have been aboard the station since March. That means seven people will go up on Atlantis and eight will come down — a U.S. first.

It also will be the first docking by U.S. and Russian spacecraft in 20 years, and NASA's 100th human space flight.

If the weather stays bad this weekend, NASA can keep trying to launch Atlantis over the next several weeks.

Seven Atlantis-Mir dockings are planned through 1997.

Senate sends House $13 billion Highway Bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Balancing states' rights and safety concerns, the Senate is sending the House a $13 billion highway spending bill that ends federal rules on car speed limits and motorcycle helmets but preserves seat belt use as the law of the land.

"It was half a victory, if you would, half a loss," said Sen. John Chafee, R-R.I., chairman of the Environment and Public Works Committee that sent the bill to the floor.

Senate approval came on a voice vote late Thursday, sending the measure to the House, where consideration was expected to begin by mid-July. Under a 1991 law action must be completed by Sept. 30 or the highway aid money will be withheld from the states.

"This is a bill that will keep America moving, moving ahead with progress," said Sen. John Warner, R-Va. And Sen. Max Baucus, D-Mont., declared: "This is a critical bill for our states. ... It means jobs, it means growth."

Heeding conservatives' calls for states' rights, the bill:

—Returns to states the authority to set their own speed limits for automobiles.

—Drops the federal requirement that states require motorcyclists to wear helmets.

—Leaves it up to the states whether to ban carrying open containers of alcohol in vehicles.

But proponents of federal safety regulation also posted some victories:

—States would be required to impose a strict new standard on underage drinkers who drive.

—The current national speed limit of 55 mph on most roads, 65 mph on rural interstates would be kept for large trucks and buses.

—The federal rule calling for people to wear seat belts in cars remains.

The measure's $6.5 billion annual spending in 1996 and 1997 "makes an important contribution to the infrastructure of this country," said Sen. Thad Cochran, R-Miss.

But an opponent, Sen. Frank Lautenberg, D-N.J., called the easing of federal safety requirements "ludicrous," adding: "Specific provisions undermine safety and will substantially increase human and economic costs."

President Clinton, though he had opposed easing safety rules, sent a letter of congratulations to Sen. Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., for his amendment calling for "zero tolerance" of underage drinkers.

A provision that would have allowed states to impose tolls on more interstate highways was dropped from the bill. Existing tolls could continue and states could continue to use temporary tolls to finance repairs.

He only wanted to get to school right on time

COLEBROOK, N.H. (AP) — His bike wasn't up to speed, so a first-grader stole something with more horsepower to get him to school on time off the last day of class.

"I was at a stop sign when the guy with me said, 'Hey, there's a little kid driving that car,'" Police Chief Mike Sielicki said Thursday.

Sielicki followed the 1989 Ford Escort for two blocks. "I didn't want to turn the sirens on because I was afraid I'd scare him and he'd lose control of the car," said Sielicki, who declined to identify the boy.

The 7-year-old boy slammed on the brakes when he reached a busy intersection. He had put the car in park and was removing the keys from the ignition when Sielicki walked up.

"He looked at me and said, 'I was going to be late for school,'" Sielicki said. "We took him home and on the way he asked if he could drive the cruiser."

Karen Mercier, who found a bike in her car's spot when she came out of the hardware store last Friday, got the car back. "But if I see that bike again, I'm going to lock the car."

Education overhaul a boon to rich districts

AUSTIN (AP) — Top state leaders and high-powered lobbyists helped property-rich school districts get millions of dollars in benefits in the 1995 Legislature's education overhaul.

The Legislative Budget Board estimates the state cost of the school funding adjustments at $44 million over the next two-year budget period, according to figures obtained by The Associated Press under the Open Records Act.

The effort to win the changes began when the Texas Supreme Court in January upheld the share-the-wealth school funding law, said Michael Boone, school board president in Dallas' property-rich Highland Park Independent School District.

By the time the Legislature wrapped up its work, property-rich districts had gained provisions easing the effect of the state funding law, which requires them to share money with the rest of the school system.

Backers say the changes made the law more fair and were meant to prevent further "leveling down" of education in rich districts. Opponents say they show misplaced priorities.

The changes came through the support of Gov. George W. Bush, Lt. Gov. Bob Bullock and the education bill's sponsors, Sen. Bill Ratliff, R-Mount Pleasant, and Rep. Paul Sadler, D-Henderson, Boone said.

They were helped along by lobbyists Rusty Kelley, Jack Roberts, former state Sen. Kent Caperton and Roger Miller. The four were paid a total of about $125,000, according to Kelley and Caperton.

A spokesman for property-poor school districts said the lobbying effort shows property-rich districts continue to have an advantage despite more than a decade of legal wrangling over education funding.

"Most of those districts have wealthy taxpayers, either in the form of big corporations or very, very wealthy individuals," said Craig Foster, executive director of the Equity Center.

"They have that just raw money advantage in terms of influencing the legislator," Foster said.

He said legislative approval of the changes show "a misguided priority. ... It borders on obscene."

Ratliff said the property-rich districts' lobbyists have no more influence with him than, for example, Foster.

"In each case, my approach was to look at what was being suggested and to try to see, 'Is this fair treatment to both sides?'," the senator said

A main change in the new law allows property-rich school districts to continue to keep enough wealth to maintain their 1992-93 spending levels through the 1997-98 school year.

It's a two-year extension to the "hold-harmless" provision passed in 1993 to provide a transition for rich districts into the new funding system.

"That's a blood transfusion," Boone said. "I need two liters of blood ... so I can be part of the solution and not be somebody in the emergency room that's dead."

Caperton said the coalition of property-rich West Texas districts he represented also obtained a provision to protect them from having to share more wealth than they have when oil and gas prices drop.

Caperton said the coalition spent a total of about $100,000 this session on him and Miller, to whom he subcontracted work. Kelley and Roberts were hired by Texans for Good Schools, a Dallas-based group planning a statewide effort to spur changes in school funding.

No reason given for beefing up security

EL PASO (AP) — Security has been beefed up for Ysleta schools superintendent Anthony Trujillo and at the district headquarters, although no one is saying why.

All district spokesman Luis Villalobos would say Thursday was that officials were being "cautious" due to threats. He'd only get as specific as to say there are "pending personnel situations" regarding Trujillo.

"I wouldn't necessarily call them bodyguards, they are additional security," Villalobos said. "We have increased security at the central office on a temporary basis, but we can't discuss the reasons."

Trujillo could not immediately be reached for comment.

He's been with the district for three years and he has four years left on a five-year contract that was renewed last year.

The district is picking up the tab for the extra security, but district officials wouldn't discuss the cost.

Villalobos said this is not the first time special security has been needed for a superintendent or other district officials.

"We want to maintain safety in the central office area because we have other employees here that we want to assure of a safe working atmosphere," Villalobos said.

Police spokesman Sgt. Bill Pfeil said there's little the department can do until there is a problem.

"All we could do in a case like this is take a police report for terrorist threats and investigate the case, but we're not going to give you a private bodyguard," Pfeil said.

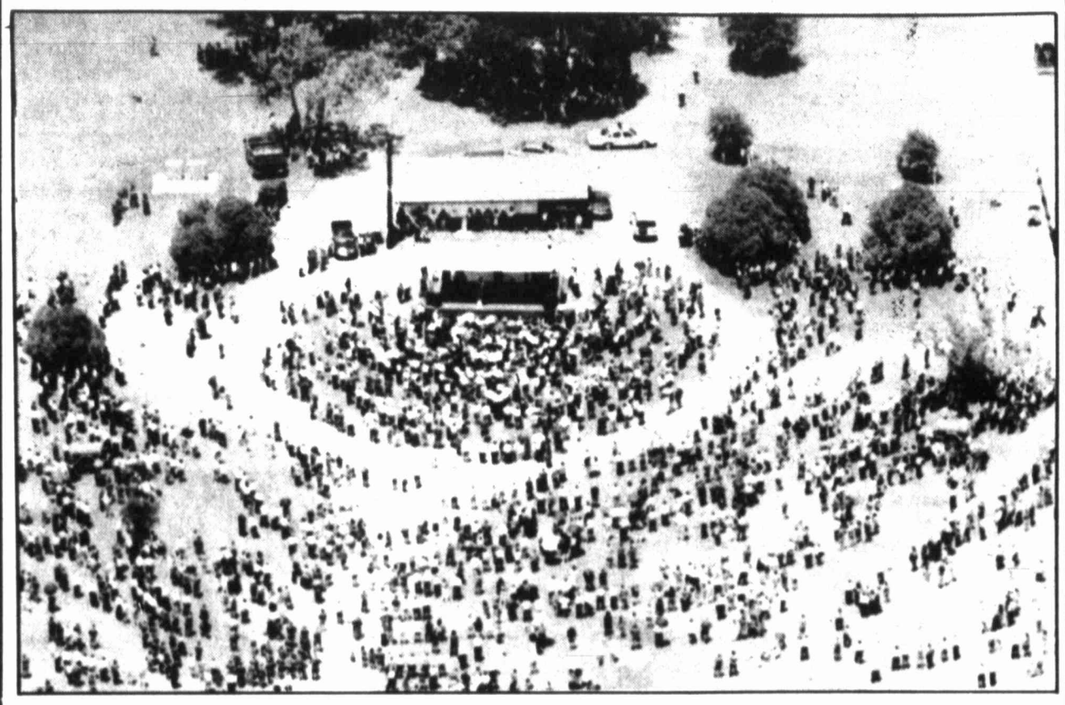

Accidentally, she became a millionaire

RICHLAND (AP) — Carolyn Chapman is taking full credit for her mistake — all $2 million of it.

Mrs. Chapman and her husband, Bobby, became Lotto millionaires quite by accident after she printed two tickets instead of one for a customer. The couple's convenience store has a rule about mistakenly printing extra lottery tickets — you mess it up, you buy it.

Mrs. Chapman offered to sell the extra ticket to the customer who had its twin, but the woman refused to buy it. So Mrs. Chapman bought it and hit the winning numbers.

DPS begins processing handgun course applications

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Department of Public Safety Thursday began the application process for people who wish to instruct handgun courses under the new concealed-gun law.

The agency started taking telephone calls at 8 a.m. from those interested in becoming handgun instructors. Applications will be mailed to each caller.

The department had received more than 1,000 application requests by 4:30 p.m., said DPS spokeswoman Sherri Deatherage Green.

"Since the House signed off on the bill, there have been days where we've gotten more than 100 calls, mostly from people who want to be instructors," Ms. Green said. "We've gotten far more calls from people who want to be instructors than those who want to get a license."

The first class for certified handgun instructors is scheduled to begin July 17 at the DPS Training Academy in Austin. The DPS plans to train about 60 applicants per class.

"The Department will continue the certified handgun instructor course on a weekly basis until all interested applicants are trained," said DPS Director Col. James R. Wilson.

Applicants must pay $100 for the handgun course, and the fee will be nonrefundable to those who don't complete the course, which will be taught only in Austin. Applicants will be responsible for their own lodging and meals.

Individuals not currently certified to teach other types of handgun courses must undergo 40 hours of instruction, while certified instructors will take a 28-hour course.

The DPS will determine whether people qualify for the abbreviated training based on current certification and the ability to pass a firing range test.

The make-up of the classes will be determined by geographic location. Applications will be grouped into six geographic regions, and the population percentage of each region will determine how many students from that region will be taught in a class.

Instructors are not authorized to begin teaching the course until Sept. 1.

Man killed after wounding deputies

LUBBOCK (AP) — Two wounded sheriff's deputies are recovering after getting shot on the job.

A Department of Public Safety trooper then killed the man alleged to have shot the deputies.

David Gutierrez, administrator for the sheriff's office, said Ray Coleman and Michael Ausmus responded at 12:02 p.m. to an emergency call that shots were being fired at a house south of Lubbock.

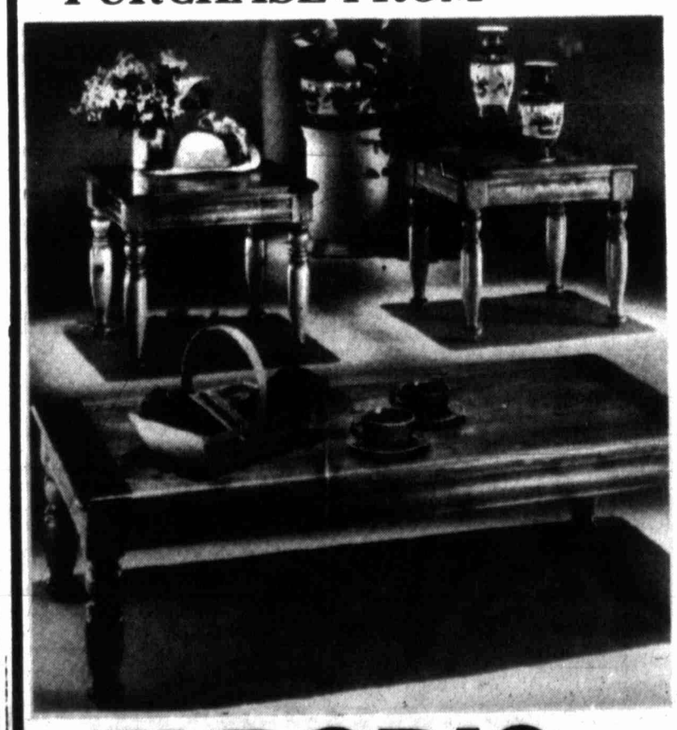

A man with a semiautomatic handgun shot the deputies and then hid in a vehicle as the wounded men took cover, Gutierrez said.

New Jersey pushes Detroit to the ropes with 5-2 win

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. (AP) — The New Jersey Devils at their best vs. the Detroit Red Wings at their worst. A total mismatch that put the Devils at the brink of winning their first Stanley Cup.

The Devils took a 3-0 lead in the Stanley Cup finals after an overpowering performance Thursday night.

"I think this is our best game this year in the playoffs," coach Jacques Lemaire said following a 5-2 victory over the Red Wings. "I don't know if there were any other games that were close."

The Devils thoroughly dominated the Red Wings, the best team in the NHL during the regular season. They took an early 2-0 lead, and led 5-0 before the Red Wings scored two meaningless power-play goals in the final three minutes.

"I was embarrassed, humiliated really," Detroit coach Scotty Bowman said. "We don't have many answers at this time."

The Devils can wrap up the series and win their first Cup with a victory Saturday night.

Lemaire said he never could imagine being in this position.

"Not with the players they have on their side," he said.

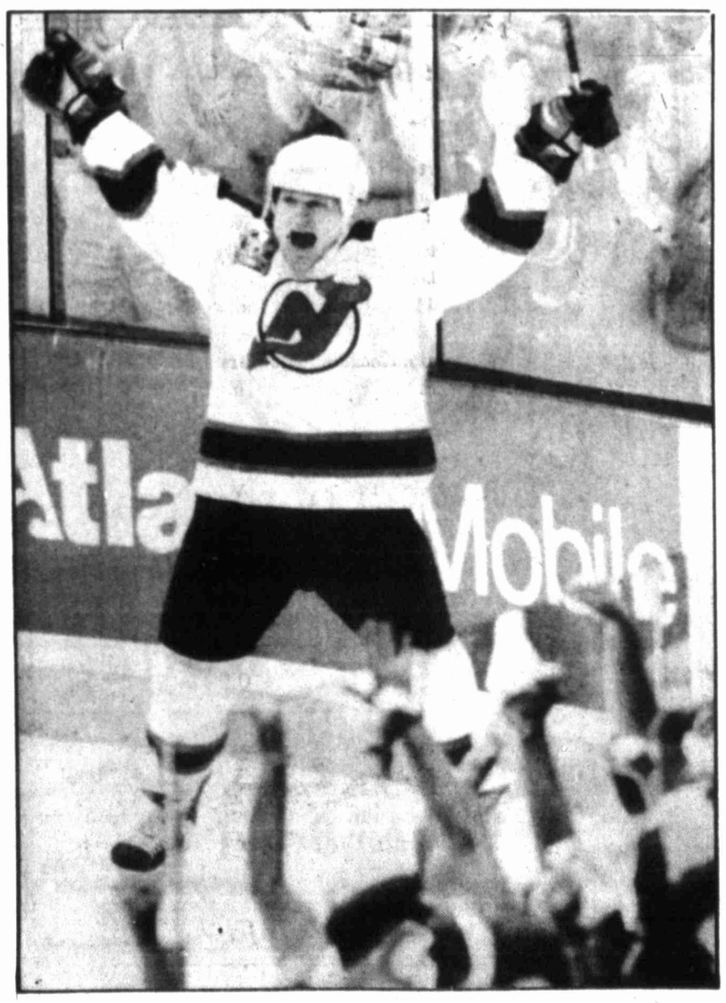

The Red Wings have had a shock to their system. They had a league-best 33-11-4 record during the season and were 12-2 in winning playoff series from Dallas, San Jose and Chicago.

The Devils stuck to their basic formula of patience and converting chances.

"The reason we were successful tonight was because we played our system really well," said Devils forward Randy McKay. "We played patient hockey and when they had turnovers, we went for it."

Goaltender Martin Brodeur has been another major reason the Devils have been successful. He came up with a key play on Draper about five minutes into the game, stopping him with a stick save after lunging across the front of the net. After Brodeur's key save, the Devils went ahead 2-0 in the first period on goals by Bruce Driver and Claude Lemieux..

Driver scored on a power play with a slap shot from just inside the blue line. Lemieux beat Mike Vernon from the top of the right circle with the teams skating four aside. The Devils made it 4-0 in the second period on goals by Neal Broten from the high slot and McKay on a rebound.

Big Spring Rodeo

Stock stays strong

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Thursday night's performance at the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo not only had its share of thrills and chills, it also provided a mathematic formula for determining the closeness of brothers.

Dan and Robert Etbauer have been close as brothers and as competitors for many years. Thursday night, the rodeo arena crowd found out how close.

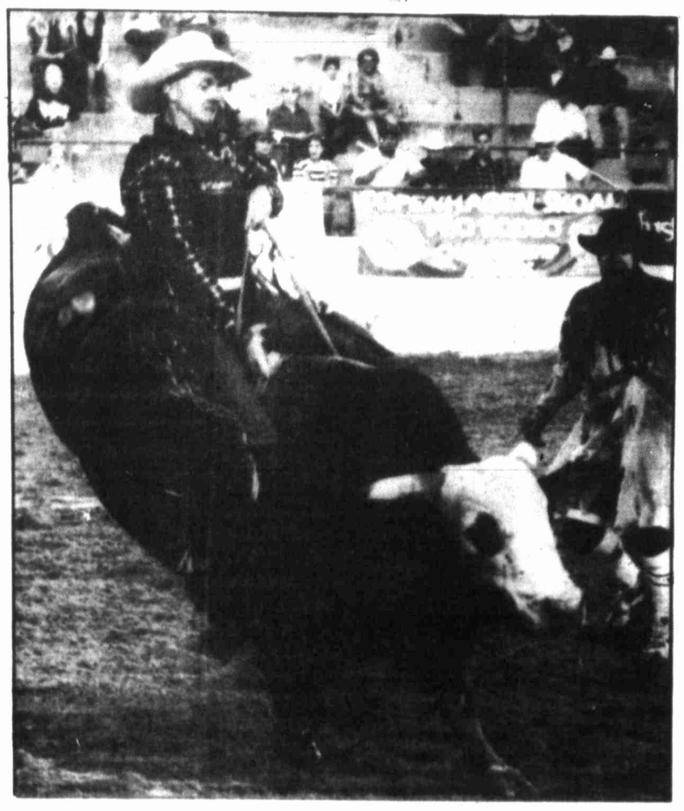

Two points.

Two points separated the two and provided Robert with the overall lead in the saddle bronc portion of the rodeo, which continues tonight at 8:30 at the Rodeo Bowl.

On a night when almost all the saddle bronc competitors posted good scores, the brothers from Goodwell, Okla. were the best of the lot.

Dan, ranked No. 1 in the Professional Rodeo Cowboy Association saddle bronc money list, was the first to get the crowd's attention. Riding the ominously named Black Widow, he posted a score of 79, seven points better than Craig Latham, ranked fourth on the PRCA list.

But Robert, who's not ranked, showed that, for this night, PRCA listings didn't count for much. He rode Copenhagen Stilkia to a score of 81 and the overall lead in the competition.

Mike Furr of Boerne scored fourth in the bull riding Wednesday with this ride worth 72 points at the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo. The rodeo continues tonight at 8:30 at the Rodeo Bowl.

Like Wednesday, the cowboys had trouble with rough stock.

Bull riders again had it particularly tough, with only five out of 16 cowboys posting scores. Best of the bunch was Crane's Cory McFadden, a Howard College cowboy who posted an 80 score. Right behind him was Jeremy Janous of Stephenville, who rode to a score of 79.

Bareback riders also found the going rough, with less than half of the cowboys posting scores. Lance Crump of Cooper led Thursday's competition with a 79, while Benny Joe McCoy of South Haven, Kan. was second at 77. Billy Morrow of Hamlin won Thursday's calf roping with a time of 9.0 seconds. Overall leader of the event is Neal Felton of Mountain Home, with a two-calf time of 19.0.

The Big Spring duo of Brad and Justin Jenkins briefly found themselves in the lead in team roping with a time of 8.9 seconds, but that time was soon eclipsed by Breck Bean and Shot Branham of Midland, who took the overall lead in the event with a time of 5.2.

Three one-hundredths of a second separated the top two barrel racers Thursday. Jaime Lynn Stewart of San Angelo was first with a time of 17.84, while Stephenville cowgirl Terri Bradley was second at 17.87. Competition also was close in steer wrestling, with Dwayne Hicks' time of 5.2 edging out Keith Webster (5.3) for top honors Thursday.

Bounty bull bucks bigtime

By STEVE REAGAN
Sportswriter

Walker Secker was halfway to $5,000 until a bull named Bearkat showed why it is one of the toughest rides around.

Secker, from Midland, was selected by random draw to ride Dodge Ram Bearkat, the challenge bull provided by Don Gay's All-Star Rodeo. If Secker could stay atop Bearkat for eight seconds Thursday's at the Big Spring Cowboy Reunion and Rodeo, he would pocket an extra $5,000.

"I was kind of excited," Secker said about the draw. "I guess you have to be kind of (nervous), but it just makes you bear down a little more."

For a while, it looked like Secker would pocket the bonus money. Bearkat is known to change direction radically, but Secker hung tough long enough to have visions of that $5,000.

"I think that was the problem," he said. "I started thinking about all that money."

About five seconds into the ride, Bearkat showed why no cowboy has ridden it the last 56 times out of the chute. It turned to the left, then rapidly dipped to the right. The maneuver deposited Secker onto the arena floor.

"He's got a lot of moves," Secker said of Bearkat. "He bucks pretty good."

Is a Strawberry prettier than a Rose?

Coming off a disastrous strike and facing shrinking fan support, baseball needs a lot of things to regain its national pastime standing.

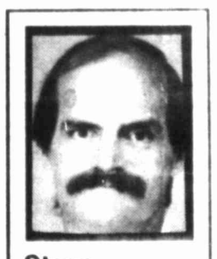

What it doesn't need is hypocrisy – but that's just what fans were treated to this week with the announcement that Darryl Strawberry had signed a contract to play for the Yankees.

Even casual fans of baseball – or the police blotter, for that matter – are familiar with Strawberry. Once considered a sure-bet Hall of Famer, the ex-Met and ex-Dodger slugger has instead became more notable for his brushes with the law.

Strawberry is serving probation on income-tax charges and just coming off a suspension for testing positive for cocaine.

Talk about just the right guy to be a role model for the kiddies ...

Why is this man back in baseball? For the same reason Steve Howe – who's been suspended more times than I can count for substance abuse – is still allowed to pitch for the Yanks.

Steve Reagan
Sports Writer

Because he can still play.

New York has been hit hard with injuries this season, and team owner George Steinbrenner, whose reputation as a meddler is notorious, looks at Strawberry as a possible team savior.

I would make some snide comment about how a team has to be in really bad straights to consider a convicted felon as a savior – but I guess I just did.

How come baseball can forgive Strawberry and Howe but can't forgive Pete Rose or "Shoeless" Joe Jackson?

What has me steamed, however, is not that Strawberry or Howe or any player with an acknowledged drug problem is allowed to return to baseball. I'm all for forgiveness and second (or third or 20th or whatever) chances.

My question is: How come baseball can forgive Strawberry and Howe but can't forgive Pete Rose or "Shoeless" Joe Jackson?

Rose, baseball's all-time hitting leader, is currently banned from baseball and consideration for the Hall of Fame because of gambling.

Not drugs.

Not murder.

Not assaulting a sportswriter or a fan in the stands.

Gambling.

Jackson, part of the infamous 1919 Black Sox scandal, was banned after he admitted accepting money to throw the '19 Series. A serious error, no doubt, and not to be taken lightly.

But more serious than drugs?

Baseball has been and always will be the greatest game ever invented, but the Powers That Be need to get their act together.

Forgiveness is great.

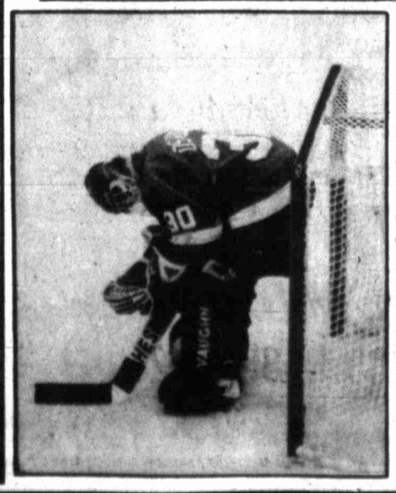

So is consistency.

It's great baseball has welcomed Strawberry back to game.

It'd be even better if it welcomed Rose and Jackson back as well.

Astros lacking home cooking

HOUSTON (AP) — The Chicago Cubs needed a laugher and they found one in the Astrodome, where the season has turned upside down for the Houston Astros.

The Cubs handed the Astros their seventh straight home loss Thursday night as Sammy Sosa tied a career high with five RBIs to take the NL lead with 46 RBIs, and Shawon Dunston returned from a two-game suspension with three hits for a 13-2 victory.

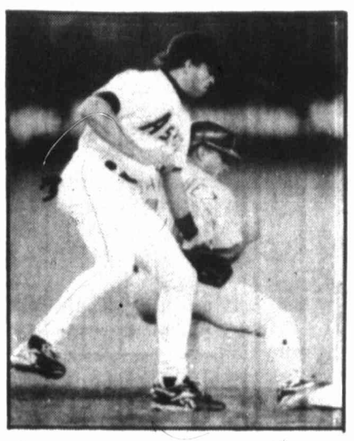

The Astros have a 7-16 home record and they've just completed a 7-2 road trip that gave them a 19-9 road record this season, the second best in the NL to Philadelphia's 20-8 record.

Chicago got five consecutive singles off Doug Drabek (3-5) to start the six-run third inning.

Mark Grace, Sosa and pitcher Jim Bullinger had run-scoring singles, Ozzie Timmons hit a sacrifice fly and Dunston had a two-run double that extended Drabek's nightmarish season.

Drabek is winless in six starts in the Astrodome this season and the Cubs boosted his home ERA to 7.26.

Dunston was suspended by the league for shoving Colorado's Jason Bates in a sliding incident at second base on June 11. Dunston, who sat out games on June 20-21, also doubled and scored in the fifth and singled in the sixth.

Chicago's Rey Sanchez, rear, gets back safely as Houston's Craig Shipley applies the tag. Chicago won 13-2.

Chicago scored four runs in the seventh on Brian McRae's solo homer off John Hudek and Sosa's three-run homer — his 14th — on the first pitch from Pedro Martinez.

Bullinger (4-0) made his first start since coming off the disabled list with tendinitis in his right elbow and extended his record to 7-0 since last June 17.

SkyDome accident injures seven; ABC, NBC bid farewell to baseball

■Nation/State

TORONTO (AP) — Two 30-pound tiles fell from the upper deck of the SkyDome during a baseball game Thursday, injuring seven fans and sending other spectators scrambling for cover.

"It was bizarre," said Debbie Webster, who was watching the Toronto Blue Jays play the Milwaukee Brewers when the wooden tiles tumbled down in the seventh inning. "Everything came crashing down."

Two people were removed on stretchers after the panels fell 40-50 feet from the facing of the fifth deck to the crowd below.

Five people were treated for cuts at the SkyDome's medical center and released. A teen-age girl with head cuts was brought to Toronto Western Hospital.

"It hit me right in the head," said Ron Davies, 45. "I have a headache and a stiff neck."

The game wasn't stopped, and many in the crowd of 43,490 didn't seem to be aware of what happened. But those seated near the injured fans were stunned when the acoustic tiles plunged from the top of the stadium.

"Nobody said anything; there was just a big gasp," Brett Rogers said.

Police used yellow tape to seal off the section where the tiles landed in the second deck. Blood stained the floor under the seats.

Say goodbye to 'The Baseball Network'

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball, without a labor agreement since 1993, is now also without a television deal.

ABC and NBC decided Thursday to quit the sport after this season. The pair, partners with owners in The Baseball Network, decided to pull out of the joint venture when acting commissioner Bud Selig refused to make a decision on renewing it for 1996.

The joint partnership, which began with the 1994 season, will terminate after this year's World Series. If ABC and NBC don't bid on baseball's rights for next season, owners likely will attempt to sell them to CBS or the Fox Network.

Dissident players could break NBA union

NEW YORK (AP) — One-third of the NBA's players went forward with their effort to decertify the union, the day before owners and player representatives were to vote on a new labor agreement.

A lawyer representing dissident players submitted to the National Labor Relations Board the names of more than 100 players wanting to decertify.

The union has 324 members, and at least 30 percent must ask the NLRB to hold a decertification election.

Base closings affecting sports world

SAN ANTONIO (AP) — Count San Antonio's sports franchises among the many businesses hurt by the closing of Kelly Air Force Base.

Pro sports teams in San Antonio, the nation's 10th largest city, include the Spurs of the NBA, the upstart Texans of the Canadian Football League, the minor league baseball Missions and the minor league hockey Iguanas.

The teams are hurt because when families lose jobs — more than 13,000 employees are affected by the shutdown — one of the first things cut from budgets is entertainment, such as sports.

With Kelly's civilian payroll last year reaching $509.1 million and about 3 percent of that spent on entertainment, the base closure could mean a loss of as much as $15.3 million annually to the local industry.

State game licenses going electronic

AUSTIN (AP) — Texas hunting and fishing licenses are emerging from the era of carbon paper and entering the age of electronics.

Transactive Corp. — which currently operates the Texas Lone Star system replacing paper food stamps and welfare checks with a plastic debit card — is the finalist to provide a system to issue electronically hunting and fishing licenses and stamps. Under the new system, an electronic terminal will allow information to be entered immediately into a state database, and a license will be printed out, Ms. Lange said. She said this will avoid the problem of a retailer not having a particular type of license on hand.

Giddy up, youth horsemen

By KELLIE JONES
Staff Writer

Members of the Howard County Youth Horseman Club are participating in this year's rodeo in a number of events.

On Saturday night, club members will be a part of the grand entry opening the last night night of the rodeo. Deidra Harris, of Garden City, and Jerrod Price, of Big Spring, are this year's junior queen and king of the rodeo.

One club member, Rhianna Hodges, is this year's Coca-Cola girl. She rides into the arena after each event as the announcer gives the name of the winners. She will be in the parade on Saturday and is a part of the rodeo group currently making special appearances in town.

The club was started in 1962 and currently has 70 families as members. One of the original members, Clinton Harris, is still active in the club.

Club President Diana Hofacket says they sponsor play days, an auction and horse show during the year.

The next show will be July 8 starting at 10 a.m. followed by the play day at 6 p.m. The arena is located at Longshore Road and FM 33.

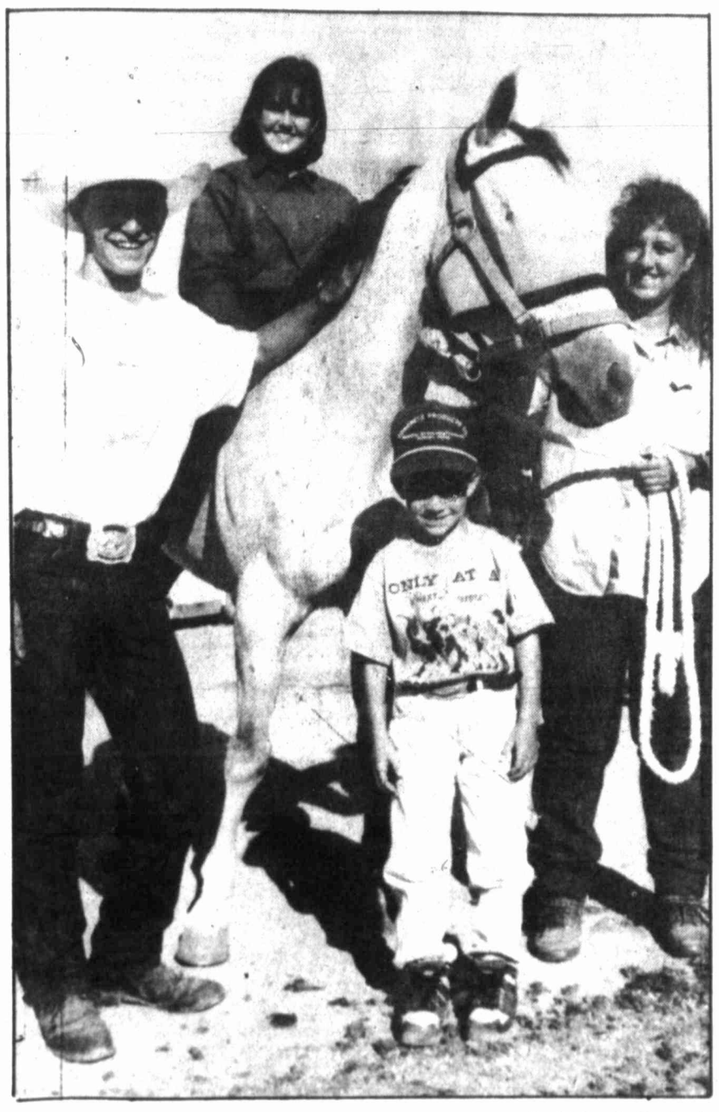

"The play day is a chance for the kids to participate in barrel racing, poles, flags, potato races and straight-away barrels. It costs $1 to participate in each event.

"The straight-away barrels is three barrels lined up in a row and the horse and rider weave through them. In the potato race, the rider goes down the arena on their horse, picks up a ball sitting on a bucket and goes back to the other end and places the ball in a second bucket," explained Hofacket.

She adds the focus of the club is to teach children sportsmanship and horsemanship. It also provides a place for young people to go to instead of being on the streets looking for something to do, Hofacket said.

The auction is every October with businesses and individuals donating items for the event. The proceeds go to the club to purchase awards handed out at the end of the year. Hofacket says this year's goal is to raise enough money to purchase a saddle to give to a winner in each age group.

Anyone can join the club for a $10 membership fee per family. Not only are there members from Howard County but also people from Post, Colorado City, Sterling City, Stanton and Midland participate in some of the club events.

Kids caught candy-handed deserve friendly warning

DEAR ABBY: Recently, while shopping in a grocery store, I saw a boy of about 7 with his mother. He took a handful of the bulk jelly beans from the candy jars and shoved them into his mouth. His mother saw him and didn't say a word.

Abigail Van Buren
Columnist

Another time, I saw two teenaged girls eating candy from the same jars. Isn't this stealing anymore?

Should I have reported the kids to management, or told the kids that this is stealing? Or should I have kept my mouth shut? Abby, how far should a stranger go in disciplining a stranger's child? — BOB MITCHELL, DIXON, CALIF.

DEAR BOB: Yes, stealing is still stealing. You shouldn't be confrontational, but you would be doing the children a favor to remind them that stealing is against the law and can be habit-forming. Then point out that breaking the law has serious consequences.

Next time, it could be the management who catches them with their hands in the candy jar.

DEAR ABBY: Two very dear friends of mine are getting married after a long relationship. It will be a second marriage for both of them.

The bride will have her daughter as her maid of honor, and the groom has asked me (a female) to be his best "man." It will be a small wedding; however, it will be in a church with a minister officiating.

I am honored to have been chosen, but I have no idea what my duties are as best "man." — LONG ISLANDER

DEAR LONG ISLANDER: The duties of a best man are outlined in a wedding booklet I published several years ago ("How to Have a Lovely Wedding"). You cannot perform all of them (such as helping the groom to dress), but I'm publishing the entire outline for you (and others) who may find it useful:

"To help the wedding proceed smoothly, the best man must:

"Provide his own outfit for the wedding.

"Act as witness and sign the marriage license.

"Make sure the ushers appear for the ceremony on time.

"Provide a gift for the groom, or join the ushers in getting one for him.

"Attend the rehearsal, and rehearsal dinner if there is one.

"Volunteer to help the bride's mother in any way he can.

"Arrange for the traditional bachelor dinner.

"Help the groom dress, and accompany him to the church.

"Take charge of the wedding ring. (Some even carry an inexpensive duplicate in another pocket — just in case.)

"Present the clergy person with the envelope containing the fee.

"Offer the first toast to the bride and groom.

"Mingle with the guests at the reception. (The best man does not stand in the receiving line.)

Fear of death not abnormal

DEAR DR. GRAHAM: Is it possible to be a real Christian and still be afraid to die? I am in high school and I know I have given my life to Christ, but I admit I worry about death a lot, even if it isn't cool to admit it to my classmates. — S.T.

Billy Graham
Columnist

DEAR S.T.: Yes, even Christians may be afraid to die — but as we grow closer to Christ that fear will fade, for Christ came to "free those who all their lives were held in slavery by their fear of death" (Hebrews 2:15).

You see, God has implanted in each of us a desire to keep on living — what we sometimes call an instinct for self-preservation.

We naturally jerk our hand away from a hot stove, for example. But we also know that all human life comes to an end — and we naturally fear death. We fear its pain; we fear its uncertainty; we fear its finality.

We also should fear what will happen to us after death if we do not know Christ, for the Bible tells us that without Christ we will be lost and separated from God forever (which is what the Bible calls hell).

But Christ makes all the difference! By His death on the cross for our sins and by His resurrection from the dead He has conquered the forces of death and hell and Satan. And when we belong to Him, we share in His victory.

As the Bible says, "you have been set free from sin ... and the result is eternal life. For the wages of sin is death, but the gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord" (Romans 6:22-23).

Make it your goal to grow closer to Christ, by reading His Word, the Bible, every day, and coming to Him in prayer and through fellowship with other believers.

As you do, you will realize the glorious truth that we do not need to fear death if we know Christ, for in Him our salvation is secure.

Southern Baptists repent of racism

By TERRY MATTINGLY
Scripps Howard News Service

For many generations, Southern Baptists have balked when urged to repent of the sin of racism.

This week, only hours before a rally celebrating the SBC's 150th anniversary, America's largest non-Catholic flock finally came clean. This emotional moment in Atlanta's Georgia Dome was the latest in a series of signs that trust is building between moral conservatives in black and white churches.

"We lament and repudiate historic acts of evil such as slavery from which we continue to reap a bitter harvest, and we recognize that the racism which yet plagues our culture today is inextricably tied to the past," said the historic resolution, which was overwhelmingly approved by messengers from Southern Baptist churches from across the nation.

"We apologize ... for condoning and-or perpetuating individual and systemic racism in our lifetime; and we genuinely repent of racism of which we have been guilty, whether consciously or unconsciously. ... We ask forgiveness from our African American brothers and sisters, acknowledging that our own healing is at stake."

Before this week, the SBC had never officially condemned slavery. Baptists in the South founded their own convention in 1845, seceding from a national body that refused to appoint slaveholders as missionaries. Today, about 5 percent of the denomination's 15.4 million members are black.

Last year, a coalition of urban pastors and missionaries failed in its first attempt to bring a racism resolution before the national convention. The Rev. Gary Frost, the first African American elected as an SBC officer, said this year's effort grew out of the same inner-city environment, in which many people fear racism among Southern Baptists.

The Southern Baptist vote follows other similar efforts to promote racial reconciliation.

•Last October, the predominantly white Pentecostal Fellowship of North America voted to disband and 100 of its leaders joined with 100 black church leaders to form the interracial Pentecostal-Charismatic Churches of North America.

•In January, leaders of the National Black Evangelical Association met with leaders of the predominately white National Association of Evangelicals. While the meetings did not lead to formal merger talks, a joint task force has begun discussing strategies to promote reconciliation.

•In the spring, revival services rocked many college and seminary campuses. A crucial element of these meetings — which often lasted until dawn — was public repentance. Often, students and faculty confessed sins of racism.

HOROSCOPE

FOR SATURDAY, JUNE 24, 1995

ARIES (March 21-April 19): There could be some confusion about what's appropriate. Don't get into a money battle with a partner. Stay on top of situations, and curb a tendency to overindulge. A partner is clear about where he is coming from. Tonight: Try a new restaurant. ***

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): A partner throws a tantrum, but you can deal with that. Knowing your priorities may be an absolute necessity if you are going to clear an obstacle today. Staying upbeat lets you change gears, be happier and allow someone the space just to be. Tonight: You indulge. *****

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): A strong, steady outlook permits you to overcome problems. Remain optimistic despite someone else's attitude. You are much better off than you thought. You are willing to approach situations creatively. Follow your instincts. Tonight: You come into your own tonight. ***

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You can make what you want happen and tackle problems that seemed overwhelming. You understand more, and your creativity can benefit you and someone else. Know you limits, and state where you are going. Tonight: Vanish while you are ahead. ****

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Your spirits soar, and you are in the limelight. A family member could express feelings of jealousy in an odd way. Today, what goes on is significant. You overcome problems with a positive attitude. Focus on your potential. Tonight: Go out on the town. ****

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Adjust plans, be ready for fast changes and understand where others are coming from. You will handle a matter directly, and you will be OK. Opportunities come because of your high profile and you ability to solve a problem. Tonight: You are a force to behold. ****

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Financial juggling seems to be the natural order these days. You can stop that if you so choose. Discuss your feeling, and get in touch with what's really happening. Listen carefully to someone's feedback. Change could feel like a risk. Tonight: Try a new exotic spot. ****

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Partners are testy, but realize that this energy actually may be coming from you. Acknowledge what's happening, what your choices are and what works for you. Refuse to take a back seat. Once you relax, you have a ball. Tonight: Be with the one you love. ***

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Push hard, be clear and know what you want. You have opportunities to get a project done. Do not veer away from your objective, and know your limits. You'll feel good because of how you handle a matter. Listen carefully to what someone says. Tonight: Be social. ***

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): A creative venture is very positive. Your optimism helps you solve immediate problems. Know what you want, and don't be fooled by the obvious. Focus on what's important, and don't get stuck, Tonight: Make it a early night, even if it is Saturday. ****

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Be upbeat about what's happening, try things in a more opportunistic way and listen to your own inner voice. Know when enough is enough. You feel good despite what is going on. Listen to someone. Show your flirtatious side. Tonight: Go out on the town. ****

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Your talkative side emerges. Focus on priorities. A family matter needs your attention, and you might need to change some plans. Know that you have choices. Give another the benefit of the doubt. Tonight: Entertain at home. *****

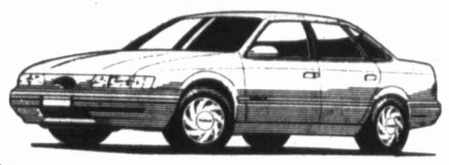

IF JUNE 24 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: This is an unusual year with much going on. You feel creative, and you are willing to tackle difficulties, so know you options. Recognize your limits in creativity and with loved ones. You might choose to change directions this year, but it might be wise to do some heavy soul-searching firs. If you are single, romance flourishes if you avoid power plays.

In 1836, Congress approved the Deposit Act, which contained a provision for turning over surplus federal revenue to the states.

In 1888, abolitionist Frederick Douglass received one vote from the Kentucky delegation at the Republican convention in Chicago, making him, in effect, the first black candidate to have his name placed in nomination for president. (The convention ended up nominating Benjamin Harrison.)

In 1931, aviators Wiley Post and Harold Gatty took off from New York on the first flight around the world in a single-engine plane.

In 1938, the Civil Aeronautics Authority was established.

In 1947, the Senate joined the House of Representatives in overriding President Truman's veto of the Taft-Hartley Act.

In 1955, Walt Disney's "Lady and the Tramp," the first animated feature filmed in CinemaScope, opened in theaters.

In 1956, Gamal Abdel Nasser was elected president of Egypt.

In 1967, President Johnson and Soviet Premier Alexei Kosygin held the first of two meetings in Glassboro, N.J.

In 1969, Warren E. Burger was sworn in as chief justice of the United States by the man he was succeeding, Earl Warren.
