Cotton Producers In Important Meet

Cost Quoted On Strip 60 X 3000

Three outstanding speakers in the field of cotton production will be on hand tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Civic House.

Mitchell County Agent Buddy Logsdon urged all cotton producers and interested persons to be on hand to hear the informative and important talks by the three speakers.

Fred Elliott, extension cotton specialist from Texas A&M University, will present information on pre-merge and post-merge cotton herbicides. He will also touch briefly on problems in weed control in general.

Second part of the evening's program will be brought by Beverly Reeves, cotton ginning and mechanization specialist from Texas A&M University, who will give those in attendance some of the latest information on mechanization for reducing costs in cotton production.

Final speaker on the agenda is Don Rummel, area entomologist for the Agricultural Extension Service in Lubbock. Rummel is slated to discuss cotton insect control with particular emphasis on the control of boll weevils.

Rummel has done extensive work on the High Plains in the area of boll weevil control and eradication. At the meeting tonight he will explain many of the methods used and projects instigated to combat the boll weevil menace in his particular area. This part of the program will be of particular interest to producers in Mitchell County faced for 42 cents per pound. Two

In urging cotton producers to attend the program, Logsdon said "As most of the cotton producers know, the industry is right in the middle of a cost price squeeze and are interested in methods that will enable us to cut production costs. These three speakers should give each producer present at the meeting some valuable insights and ideas on newly developed ways and means in cutting cotton production expenses."

Tonight's program is sponsored by the Agricultural Extension Service of Texas A&M University through co-operation with the county agent's office in Mitchell County.

In regular session Monday night City Council heard cost estimates on paving of the City-County Airport and authorized the selection of an engineering firm to aid in securing plans and specifications for paving the strip.

Previously the City Council and Mitchell County Commissioners' Court had talked the possibility of a joint project on the paving of the airport providing costs were not prohibitive.

The cost estimate received from the engineering firm of Parkhill, Smith and Cooper in Lubbock made an estimation of cost for the city's part and the county's portion.

The estimate was based on a strip 3,000 feet long and 60 feet wide. Requirements would include the compacting and grading of the existing surface to serve as a subgrade, a six inch compacted base course similar to the base material used on Colorado City streets in paving three years ago, an asphaltic prime coat and a double asphalt treatment.

Estimates of costs were based on current competitive bidding prices in the area.

Approximate cost was in the neighborhood of $25,000. This figure was expected to vary downward because of fluctuating prices on some materials to be used in the project.

Following the reading of the estimate Henry Lewis moved to give the go ahead in selecting engineering advice on the matter. Councilwoman Lena Porter gave a second to the motion.

In other Council action Councilwoman Porter moved to give all persons over 65

Wolves Play Season Opener Against Big Spring Steers

Wolves Unique Champs

Colorado High's baseball team finds itself in a rather unique position at the onset of the current diamond season.

It seems that the Wolves are the only school in District 5-AA to participate in baseball. Thus, the local team automatically becomes the district champion without as much as throwing a strike or hitting a ball out of the infield.

As Coach Truman Nix agreed, "It will be the easiest district championship ever won."

Two teams in District 6-AA play the sport. They are Seymour and Olney. The Wolves will play the winner of the pair in district action.

Regional is the highest the Wolves can possibly go. Should they win bidistrict, their regional opponent would come from one of four towns — McCamey, Crane, Alpine or Marfa.

So the Wolves begin their 14 game slate today, already district champions, but with Spring today against the Steers. On Saturday the Wolves open their home season against the same Steers. Co-Captain Perry Millsap and Corky McAdams are shown with Coach Truman Nix.

1965 Wolves Baseball Coach and Co-Captains

Colorado High's Wolves open the 1965 baseball season at 4 p.m. today with a tilt against the Big Spring Steers in Big Spring.

Coach Truman Nix's diamond crew features eight returning lettermen from last year's outstanding squad. The Colorado City squad has a letterman back at every position except two.

Home season opener for the Wolves will come Saturday when they engage the Big Spring Steers in a return match at 1 p.m. on the local field.

At the present time Coach Nix expects to field the following nine against the Steers. This is also the batting order for the local squad. At third base, Reggie Noble; catcher, Perry Millsap; center field, Corky McAdams; right field, Larry Curry; second base, Ronald Hallhouse; shortstop, David McKay; left field, Mike Mundy; first base, Wayne Snowden.

Starting pitcher for Thursday's tilt is still undecided. Skipper Warren was the probable starter but has been having back trouble this week. He is expected to start on the mound if in shape.

Lettermen returning include Millsap at catcher, Robert Jameson at pitcher, Wayne Snowden at first base, Mike and Ronald Hallhouse at second base, David McKay at shortstop, Corky McAdams in center field, and Larry Curry in right field.

Several players will be noted as working at more than one position on the team. Mike Mundy is also working at pitcher. Pitchers are Warren, Jameson, Domingo Moore.

Zetagathian Club Studies Elegance

Mrs. J. S. Craddock, Jr. presented the Zetagathian Study Club program, Thursday, when members met in the home of Mrs. O. B. Trulock, Jr., 1503 Dallas St.

Introduced by Mrs. Bob Fee, Jr., Mrs. Craddock discussed "A Guide to Elegance," in the program, "Fashion," one in the year's series of studies, "Pointing Up Potentials."

Elegance, said Mrs. Craddock, "is a sort of harmony that rather resembles beauty, with the difference that the latter is more often a gift of nature and the former a result of art."

Mrs. Craddock, teacher of homemaking in Colorado High School, discussed the standpoint of accessories color, fur, jewelry, coats, gloves, handbags and ornaments of a woman's wardrobe.

"The most elegant woman," she said, "are those who have discovered their personal style and who through years of dressing themselves with care, know exactly what suits them. And, stick to it. Of course, in order to be elegant you must be in fashion, but it is never too early to learn that discretion and simplicity are the foundation of elegance."

Even if nature has been "rather stingy with you in its gifts," she added, "it is useless to moan about what you haven't got. Instead, exercise your ingenuity in playing up your best features and concealing the rest. For elegance is also a matter of good humor and optimism."

Accessories, she told Zetagathians, are among the most important elements of an elegant appearance. "A modest dress or suit can triple its face value when worn with an elegant hat, bag, gloves and shoes. A dressmaker's cardinal can lose much of its prestige if its accessories have been carelessly selected," she said.

Mrs. Craddock called attention to a complete set of accessories in black leather in brown plus a pair of beige shoes and beige straw handbag "in-vogueable" as a basic minimum.

After giving desirable combinations for accessories

Mrs. Craddock amused her study club audience by saying, "It ought to be against the law to have all four accessories (gloves, bag, shoes and hat) in the same color as your ensemble."

"The woman who spends hours running from shop to shop trying to match a bag to shoes to gloves to hat," she said, "is spending time and effort in vain . . . and will only succeed in giving the impression that everything she owns has been dipped in the same vat of dye." Mrs. Craddock declared, "Brightly colored gloves and shoes are smart only when worn in the evening with a long or short evening dress," she told club members.

She suggested spending comparatively large sums for suits and coats and "a real budget price for such items as shorts and sandals." There are obviously many items to be acquired for attaining elegance, she pointed out. "First of all, a good lithe black dress."

"No woman ever lacked elegance because of simplicity, but always because of the accumulation of elaborate details or because of ensembles that are badly coordinated or ill adapted to the hour and the occasion," the speaker said.

"Nothing devaluates a dress so much as a button that cannot be buttoned," Mrs. Craddock said as she advised against any amusing buttons to add a personal note to an ordinary suit.

In her discussion of coats for elegance she gave as the basic minimum coat wardrobe, a warm winter coat with fur collar or matching scarf or stole; a medium-weight wool coat for spring and fall in a material that travels well; a raincoat; a silk evening coat . . . "far more elegant than a fur jacket."

Of color, she said, "The well-dressed woman chooses her colors in relation to her skin, her hair and her eyes and in that order," after reminding her listeners that certain color combinations are recognized as beautiful once and for all and adding, "But there is the question of mode

. . . a combination that seems impossible today may enchant us tomorrow."

Rules of the earrings she gave were: Drop earrings should never be worn before 5 p.m. and never with a tailored suit; plain gold earrings are never really elegant in the evening or with a dressy ensemble; if you are already wearing a chunky necklace it is better not to add earrings. Like all jewelry, she said, earrings should be selected because of the chic or beauty they bring to a particular ensemble.

Of furs Mrs. Craddock gave this evaluation: "An infallible way of adding years to your appearance is to wear an old-fashioned fur coat, no matter how marvelous the quality of the furs may be."

Also, "A fur coat is one garment that simply cannot stand mediocrity," she said. She suggested for elegance, rather than inferior fur, a good cloth coat of superior material and cut.

"Even women who never wear hats should always wear gloves whenever they go out," their absence is glaringly apparent when you have left them at home," Mrs. Craddock told the club meeting. Basic rules for elegance in gloves she gave as very long or very short gloves with short sleeves or no sleeves at all; gloves long enough to meet the sleeve with three-quarter length sleeves; short gloves meeting sleeve or medium gloves worn over the sleeves for long sleeved garments.

"Gloves are essential, compliments to any costume and an unsuitable length is still better than no gloves at all," she counseled.

Handbags, she said, can add distinction to an ordinary street ensemble or downgrade a lovely outfit if "shabby or cheap." Generally speaking, she advised, handbags should be in proportion to a woman's size.

Hemlength is important, but elegant women avoid exaggeration in either direction," Mrs. Craddock vowed.

Finally, Mrs. Craddock called "Jewelry the only element of an ensemble whose sole purpose is elegance . . . however, an elegant woman

Religious Art Exhibit Sunday

Art, with deep religious significance, will be exhibited here Sunday afternoon from 1 until 4 in Fellowship Hall, First Methodist Church.

All town and county lovers of art and Bible students, particularly Colorado City and Mitchell County children, are invited to view the 12 pictures to be shown here by Northwest Methodist Conference in cooperation with the National Gallery of Art, Washington, D.C.

First painting, No. 1, version of the "Adoration of the Shepherds," was painted by Giorgione, Venetian, who lived from 1478 until 1510. The original belongs to the Samuel H. Kress collection. In the foreground are the shepherd Mary, Joseph and the Child. Background of the dim distance are small figures of shepherds who hear the angel's tidings. Fuller light falls on the Holy Family.

Second painting, "The Adoration of the Magi," by Botticelli, Florentine 1444-1510, is in the Mellon collection. The principal figures, Madonna and Child, instead of being in the foreground are placed in the middle distance where they are small in size. But their importance is not lessened and attention is drawn to them by movement of the foreground figures.

Third painting is the famous Raphael, 1483-1520, from the Widener collection, "The Small Cowper Madonna," so named to distinguish it from Raphael's larger Madonna, formerly owned by Earl Cowper. The picture was probably painted after a visit to Florence in 1506. For Raphael, classical beauty was the chief aim of art and while his small Madonna shows some influence of Leonardo's progressive art, its intentions are different and definitely Raphael.

Fourth painting listed for viewing here is "The Calling of the Apostles Peter and Andrew," by Duccio, 1278-1319, who painted with purely symbolic forms. Brilliant expanse of golden sky suggest a heavenly splendor outside of time and space. The Sea of Galilee is patterned with ripples and marine life, below the water's surface is clearly visible. The picture is an extremely notable one, having once formed of Duccio's great altar-piece in the Cathedral of Siena. It is now part of the Kress Collection.

Fifth masterpiece replica, also from Kress Collection is Jacopo Tintoretto's "Christ at the Sea of Galilee." The artist was of the Venetian era, 1518-1594. Subject of the painting is the 25th chapter of John, in an appearance of Christ to His disciples after His resurrection.

Number 6, "The Last Supper" by William Blake, British painter, 1757-1827, is a replica of the original in the Rensselaer Collection. Among the figures, the gentle disciple John, is clearly recognizable, leaning against Christ. Judas, turning his back on the gathering to count his money, occupies the right corner. Blake's style, resulting from merging the current taste for neoclassical figures with the curving composition of Gothic stained glass windows.

Description of the other pictures in the collection to be shown here Sunday will appear in the next issue of the Record.

Three candidates will seek to fill three seats on the Colorado Independent School Board.

Colorado City's observance of Girl Scout Week will be climaxed here tonight, Thursday, with the traditional Dad and Daughter's banquet.

The banquet, an annual event in the Girl Scout program, will be at 7 p.m. in Primary School cafeteria with fathers and other adults as honored guests.

Girl Scout Week, marking the 53rd birthday of the Girl Scout program across the nation, opened Sunday with religious emphasis for all local Girl Scout units and is continuing with special programs throughout the week.

A large crowd is expected to attend the Dad and Daughter's banquet along with executives of the West Texas Girl Scout Council and local Scout leaders.

Coming from Abilene will be Jan Howard, executive director of the West Texas Council; Gloria Zerega, public relations chairman for the council; and Harriet Redwine, council director.

The banquet program will emphasize the theme for the 53rd birthday observance, "A Promise in Action" — and the 1965 emphasis on Girl Scout as a "bridge to the future."

Actual birthday date for the Girl Scouts is Friday, March 12, day 53 years ago when the first Girl Scout troop in Savannah, Ga., by the movement's founder, Juliette Gordon Low.

And since that first troop meeting more than 20 million girls have joined with the aim of carrying out the Girl Scout promise: "On my honor, I will try to do my duty to God and my country . . . to help other people at all times . . . to obey the Girl Scout laws."

"Bridge to the future" was represented in the four age groups of the Girl Scout who attended church together in their respective groups' Sunday as an opening feature of the week's observance.

Brownie Girl Scouts (ages 7 and 8) attended services at First Baptist Church and Junior Girl Scouts (ages 9, 10 and 11) attended at First Christian and Church of Christ.

Cadet Girl Scouts (ages 12, 13 and 14) attended Sunday

ON LEUKEMIA

Possums Give Research Aid

Patricia Texas opossums are again contributing their annual bit to vital leukemia research pursued for several years at the University of Colorado Medical Center in Denver, according to Parks and Wildlife Department officials.

For ten years, female opossums, Texas variety, have provided the backbone for the previous studies which medical science hopes will ultimately lead to control of the mysterious blood disease, according to Dr. Matthew Block, director of the Denver school of medicine.

Texas participation in the effort had major significance from the beginning since a brilliant young department biologist was stricken fatally with leukemia.

In the routine of collecting the animal specimens, time has been the major item. Only pregnant females are acceptable, so high speed shipment is necessary because of the opossum's short gestation period. At first, the USAF provided training missions to rush the specimens from Texas to Denver, with many a caged furry creature getting the VIP treatment in a spare fighter-pilot seat.

Now the demand has grown to about 300 each winter so regular air freight has been found adequate.

Key men in the 1965 version of "Operation Pregnant Possum" are Game Wardens Hill Lawrence of Paris and John Jackson of Sulphur Springs. They recruit volunteer trappers as part of their regular public relations contact duties.

Under Texas law, opossums may not actually be bought, but the University is permitted to pay part of the transportation involved in delivering the animals to the wardens, or about $1 each. The specimens are then sent COD to Denver.

Susan's Family Fare

DEAR SUSANNA: I have heard of children's comfy machine washable slippers that can be made in minutes from a pair of washcloths — one cloth for each slipper. I would love to learn how.

Wendy Heath

These really are sweet and useful, and even adults with dainty-size feet can wear them if extra large washcloths are used.

Stitch an inch deep hem lengthwise along each side of the cloth for a cuff. Fold the material in half lengthwise with the cuffs on the inside. Close one end with a straight seam from top to bottom (this will be the heel). Starting about a quarter of an inch in from the other end at the bottom, stitch another seam on an angle towards the center of the slipper so that you end up about 2 inches from the front end at the top.

Cut off the bulky part and turn the material right side out. Thread some 1/4 inch elastic around the top of the slipper underneath the cuff and fasten at the desired tightness — this just keeps the slipper from sliding off.

If these instructions seem a little convoluted, I'll gladly send along a diagram of the finished shoe so that you'll have a much clearer idea of what we're aiming at, and since you're writing anyway, how about including that extra special hint of yours?

These slippers can also easily be made by hand and are a darling item for a member of the family who is laid up, to work on. They can even be kept on in bed — a perfect cure for chronic cases of cold toes.

Susanna

DEAR SUSANNA: After a near-serious accident in our bathroom when my daughter was shampooing her hair under the shower, I made an immediate investment in some plastic squeeze bottles.

She was using a large, economy size, glass shampoo bottle when it slipped out of her hand and smashed in the bottom of the tub all around her feet. She didn't dare move, and it wasn't until she could maneuver enough to turn off the shower controls that I was able to hear her calls and come to her assistance.

It was all just too scary for my liking, and since then we keep a couple of smaller plastic bottles filled with shampoo from the big glass one. It is also much easier to regulate the amount needed at one-time.

Mother

I'm firmly convinced that the same rule that applies to swimming tanks should apply to our bathrooms at home — "No glass containers of any kind allowed in the pool area."

DEAR SUSANNA: After you have poured the water over your jelly-powder, and you're afraid it won't be set in time for the children's lunch, add about a quarter of a teaspoon of baking soda. It will set in almost half the time and there will be no appreciable change in flavor.

Tillie

It's really great, Shale!

GOOD MENU

Once again Friday a gang of businessmen and farmers will don white aprons and go into the kitchen.

They'll perspire plenty as they broil bacon; mix and cook pancakes; wait tables and wash dishes. And they'll be smiling as they go it; or, because their work will be for a wonderful reason — funds to aid underprivileged children within our own community.

What I'm really trying to do is simply to call your attention to the Kiwanis Pancake Supper Friday . . . to encourage you to join the supper crowd for a worthy cause . . . and to express thanks to the Kiwanians for their helping hand all year long to persons in special need.

DEAR DORIS

advice from Doris Clark

DEAR DORIS I went with a boy for five years. My parents were set against him because of his drinking (which is normal for young boys).

During the sixth year I became pregnant. My parents were very hurt but would not take any help from this boy. He left and moved to another city. I gave the baby to an adoption agency. I truthfully thought I could forget this boy but he came back and we started going out again. I am not saying this is true love but I think after a year if you have not forgotten a person he must mean something to you.

This Christmas he gave me a ring. My parents are not pleased but they are leaving the future to my own choice. Wedding plans are now in order. I would like your opinion as to how big the wedding should be, what I should wear and if a reception is proper.

Second Chance
DEAR SECOND How's that again? You're not saying it is true love, but "wedding plans are in order." With parents unhappy about it, and even you doubtful, do you think your brave plans have any chance of bringing happiness?

If you have a wedding, it should be small, you should not wear a white gown and veil, and a small reception is in order. If you go by me, it is also in order to stall enough to give yourself a third chance.

Talk it over with someone who's been through the mill.
DEAR DORIS I've taken a leaf out of your book and got Mom eloping me put on a St. Patrick's Day party. The invitation I composed is in the form of a rhyme, and I've said everybody must wear or carry something green.
Now I need some ideas about Irish games to play. Any suggestions?

DEAR PATSY Sure and I have the very thing for you!

It's a leaflet of "Games for a St. Patrick's Party," and get Mom helping me put writing in and enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DORIS My adopted son was taken from his real parents when he was five. The home was immoral and he was starving. He was three years in a foster home.

When he came to us, six months ago, he had a mental age of five. We simply can't get through to him. He is quiet, lazy-minded. Looks right through us when we try to reason with him. Easily forgets instructions. Disobeys.

To challenge him to eight-year-old behavior I've got him going to Scouts. But the wicker says he is perfectly normal and that love and affection will do the trick.

This answer makes me see red. I think he needs help.

Adoptive Parent
DEAR PARENT With his past history, what could he do but build a shell around himself? He has found that the best way is not to try, not to argue, "What's the use?"

Opening up that shell will take uncommon understanding and patience as well as love. Try meeting him where he is, at a five-year-old level. He needs to taste success, educational toys for boys of five, might intrigue him.

Then praise, love, a celebration for any step forward will bring about more of the same. You can do it.

DEAR DORIS Have you a leaflet on headaches?

Suffering from a headache is a symptom, just a sign that something is wrong somewhere. Almost anywhere. Eyes, nose, teeth, ears, nerves, glands, digestion, fatigue, even feet!

Pay attention to this sign of trouble and get to your doctor pronto.

Former Grad Participates In Manuevers

Marine Capt. Charles J. Small, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis S. Small of Route 1, Colorado City, Tex., is participating Feb. 23-March 12 in a major fleet training operation called "Silver Lance" off the coast of California while serving with the First Reconnaissance Battalion, First Marine Battalion, Camp Bendleton, Calif.

The operation, under the direction of the Commander of the First Fleet, is providing extensive training in every facet of Naval and amphibious warfare. Reconnaissance units are performing in strike, anti-submarine, mine and countermine, anti-air and electronic warfare.

"Silver Lance" involves more than 60 ships and 50,000
Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

During the operation, the primary mission of the battalion is to support the division by scouting and patrol-
ing. This task is complicated by the need to avoid observation and physical contact by the enemy.

"Okay, now, quit stalling! Let's have the first line out there!"

Carriers Hold District Meet

District Four members of the Texas State Assn. of Letter Carriers and Texas Ladies Assn. met in Colorado City Saturday for a business meeting and program.

Martin F. Kalbow of Chicago delivered the keynote address to the meeting. In the course of his remarks Kalbow praised the letter carriers on their C. City session. Kalbow expressed amazement at the clear skies and wide, clean streets found in Colorado City.
He was inquisitive about the mesquite trees and the mis-tue growing on the trees.

Being unfamiliar with cotton farming and production, Kalbow was amazed at how the cotton was gathered and taken to the gins.

Registration counted 114 attending the one day meeting which was held in the Primary School Cafeteria.

Towns represented included
San Angelo, Fort Worth,
Sweetwater, Odessa, Amarillo,
Arlene, Austin, Halleyville,
Bliss, Spring, Midland, L.
Paso, Lubbock, Borger, Hurst,
Dallas and Colorado City.

Fletcher Cauthen, pastor of Northside Church of Christ, served as master of ceremonies for the evening program.
Invocation was given by Wm.

Who's the fairest one of all?

Try matching this: A Dodge Coronet 500 with an optional 426 V8. Now, color it gone. Or try the standard 273 or extra-cost 318, 361, or 383 cu. in. V8. Not new tiger tames at a new lower price.
