Nip Losses At Manila Hiked

Friday's Ship Toll Reaches 48, And November Total Is Brought Up To 151

By LEIF ERICKSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

U. S. PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, Pearl Harbor, Nov. 27—At least 48 Japanese vessels were sunk or damaged by carrier planes of the U. S. Third Fleet in the Friday strike on the Manila bay area.

Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, in a communique today revising previous reports of the attack, added two ships sunk and 23 damaged to the original score.

The total number of Japanese ships sunk or damaged during November in steady pounding of the enemy's supply center for the Philippines thus is increased to 151.

58 Planes Downed

Hellcat fighters and antiaircraft fire from the American surface ships downed 58 Japanese planes. Twenty-nine more were destroyed on the ground and an additional 32 probably were damaged on the ground.

Avengers and Helldivers ranged over most of Luzon and adjacent islands, carrying out one of the heaviest attrition blows in weeks on the Nipponese supply line to American-Invaded Leyte island in the central Philippines.

The communique's revised summary:

Sunk — One heavy cruiser at Santa Cruz, on the west coast of Luzon; one destroyer at Santa Cruz.

Two old destroyers at Marinduque island, about 100 miles southeast of Manila.

One Destroyer Escort

One destroyer escort 10 miles west of Santa Cruz.

Three medium landing ships 10 miles west of Santa Cruz.

One cargo ship north of San Fernando, a port 150 miles north of Manila.

One small freighter off Subic bay, 50 miles north of Manila.

Four oilers near Lubang island, about 75 miles southeast of Manila.

Four small coastal cargo ships at Banton island, 137 miles south of Manila.

Two luggers west of Bataan.

Those Damaged

Damaged—Two cargo ships, hit in previous raids near San Fernando, torpedoed, beached and wrecked.

One cargo ship, previously damaged, bombed and set ablaze 30 miles south of San Fernando.

Three landing craft beached near Santa Cruz.

Two medium cargo ships bombed and believed sunk off Hermana Mayor island, 112 miles north of

Nazis Driven Back To Roer

U. S. Ninth And First Deal Hammer Blows And German Losses Are Heavy

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR
Associated Press Staff Writer

SUPREME HEADQUARTERS, AEF, Paris, Nov. 27—German defenders of the Cologne plain were driven back south of Julich tonight to the west bank of the Roer river—best natural barrier short of the Rhine—as the U. S. Ninth dealt hammer blows alongside the U. S. First in the fateful battle of the Reich.

The U. S. First Army, pressing the enemy back a mile and a half with heavy losses, was deep inside two strongholds to the south within two and a half and four miles of the Roer. A staff officer declared that given a break from the weather, the river soon would be reached.

Fresh Nazi Troops

As the German high command threw in fresh troops to meet this mounting peril to its industrial Ruhr and Rhineland, the Saar basin—second only to the Ruhr as a source of the enemy's war might—was invaded anew by the resurgent U. S. Third Army which nowhere along its 60-mile front was now more than 16 miles from the Reich after gains up to six miles.

For the first time, the U. S. Seventh Army received close support from American heavy bombers which hit railyards at Offenburg, 10 miles southeast of Strasbourg.

First Tactical Air force fighter-bombers knocked down a Rhine rail bridge at Breisach, southeast of Colmar, and a pontoon road bridge which also spanned the Rhine midway between Breisach and Strasbourg. Other First tactical planes knocked out two tanks and strafed German troops north of Saarebourg.

Bombers Strafe Area

Ninth U. S. Air force fighter bombers blasted and strafed enemy troops and gun positions in the Duren, Julich and Linninch areas and hit factories and transport targets around Cologne. One Ninth Air force plane was lost out of the 190 which took to the air.

As elements of Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson's Ninth Army battled bitterly house-to-house in Koslar, two miles west of Jülich, other forces fought half-way through Kirchberg on the west bank of the river a mile and a half south of Julich.

While this thrust against savage resistance represented a gain of only a half-mile to a mile east of Bourheim, it will give the Americans their first foothold on the Roer and enable them to drive on Julich from the south once they

Great Air Battle Costly To Nazis

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Nov. 27 — In the greatest all-fighter aerial battle in history, 500 Mustangs downed at least 98 German interceptors today, boosting American fighter kills in the past 24 hours to a record-smashing 212.

This raised the total U. S. Eighth Air force score for the same period to 239 German fighters downed.

Thirteen American fighters and one bomber were reported missing as a result of today's operations.

Others Riddled On Ground

The unofficial number of enemy planes destroyed today was lifted to 102 with the announcement that at least four more German planes were riddled by concentrated Mustang machinegun fire as they attempted to leave the ground.

The American fighter pilots engaged more than 400 Focke-Wulfs and Messerschmitts while strafing airport and military transport centers in northwest Germany. It was the greatest test of fighter against fighter and pilot against pilot of the war. The running dogfights covered several hundred miles.

The top scoring Mustang group with 30 kills—eight short of matching a group record—was led by Major Joseph E. Broadhead, Rupert, Idaho.

2,000 Roam Front

Switching from oil targets for a concentrated blow against supply lines feeding Germany's west front armies, upwards of 2,000 Allied war planes roamed over the entire Western front and nearly to Berlin, plastering packed railway centers and other targets.

Assaults on Nazi supplies have mounted steadily in the last 24 hours with an estimated 6,500 planes pounding targets in direct support of the six Allied armies grinding toward the Rhine.

An Eighth Air force spokesman said the furious air battles which involved the 500 Mustangs developed in the Magdeburg, Munster and Brunswick areas and marked the first time the luftwaffe had attempted to interfere with ground strafing on such an ambitious scale.

130 Lost At Misbury

The Nazis usually save their craft for defense of oil targets and sacrificed 130 to American fighters and bombers yesterday at the oil center of Misburg.

Official figures on that battle disclosed that Mustangs and Thunderbolts knocked down 114 Nazi planes in combat, while losing six of their own planes. Seven fighters previously reported missing landed in friendly territory leaving six unaccounted for.

Nips Lashed In Aerial Pincers

By W. H. MOBLEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27— The first coordinated Superfortress strike from east and west today clamped down a giant aerial pincers on the Japanese.

A "sizeable force" from the new 21st Bomber command's base on Saipan island in the Marianas beat at Tokyo for an hour and a half in the second such thrust in four days.

A flight of "substantial force" from India bases of the 20th Bomber command, was hurled across the bay of Bengal and blasted with results called "good" at the vital Japanese-dominated rail center of Bangkok in Thailand.

Planes All Return

Not one of the great B-29s was lost to enemy action in either strike, a communique from the 20th Air force reported several hours afterward.

Opposition by either fighters or antiaircraft over Tokyo was reported "virtually nil." Fire from the ground at the Thailand capital was called "meager" and the huge bombers downed six, probably destroyed three more and damaged two of the opposing fighters.

The communique described targets in both strikes as "strategic industrial objectives." In the case of the Bangkok thrust by Maj. Gen. Curtis E. Le May's bombers from India, it was specified that these targets were railroad marshaling yards and repair facilities.

The "industrial waterfront" was the specific target of the Tokyo raiders, unquestionably with special attention to great airplane manufacturing plants in that area.

Both Daylight Strikes

Both were daylight strikes, and the bombing at Bangkok was visual precision work from cloudless skies. At Tokyo the big planes encountered a heavy cloud cover and aimed their explosives by means of precision instruments. Results were not observed.

The Tokyo run was only the second operation for Brig. Gen. Haywood S. Hansell's new 21st command. The existence of the force was announced only last Friday in the roar of its bombs smashing into Tokyo.

Jim Thomas Case Goes To Dawson

PLAINVIEW, Nov. 27. (AP) — A change in venue to the Dawson county 106th district court was granted today by Judge C. D. Russell of 64th district court on the application of Jim Thomas, 50, charged with the slaying of Dr. Roy Hunt at Littlefield, Tex., Oct. 26, 1943.

The order was the second change of venue granted in the case, which was originally called in Lamb county. Change of venue to Hale county was granted.

Given Death Once

Thomas was convicted of the charge in Hale county and was given the death penalty. Judge Russell granted a new trial after a hearing in which three members of the jury testified that jurors had discussed Thomas' prison record while deliberating his case.

The retrial began today.

The defense charged prejudice against the defendant in Hale county.

S. J. Young, Hale county farmer, and Virgil Winn, foreman of a jury which convicted Thomas of the charge last August, testified today that they had heard opinions expressed as to Thomas' guilt.

About 80 prospective jurors of a special venire were excused from the courtroom while the motion was being tried.

A death sentence meted out to Thomas in a trial here last Aug. 30 later was voided and a new trial granted by District Judge C. D. Russell.

Testimony during the previous three-day trial of Thomas brought out that Thomas was in Amarillo for several days prior to the day Dr. Hunt and his wife were brutally slain in their Littlefield home, and that he left Amarillo on the afternoon prior to the killings.

An Amarillo man, G. A. Craig, testified that Thomas borrowed his automobile the day before the murders and did not return it until mid-morning of the slaying date.

Thomas was arrested in Galveston the second day after the Hunts were slain.

The retrial was granted on the grounds that the jurors discussed the fact that Thomas was an ex-convict.

Reds Smash On In Slovakia, Hungary

By W. W. HERCHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Tuesday, Nov. 28 — Russian troops in a new six-mile penetration of northern Slovakia yesterday crossed the 2,700-ft. Carpathian mountains along the Polish frontier as other units in the south struck to within 11 miles of the big north Hungarian rail center of Satoraljaujhely, a Moscow communique announced last night.

Sweeping through 50 more hamlets in the Axis puppet state, Col. Gen. Ivan Petrov's Fourth Ukraine Army widened its front to 75 miles from a point west of the Dukla pass in the north down to the Hungarian frontier.

Strongholds Menaced

The fresh strike from the north further imperilled the enemy strongholds of Presov and Kassa (Kosice), already threatened by central columns only 25 miles to the east.

Moscow did not announce any gains on the Hungarian front, and Berlin said fighting had slackened around Budapest, where the Paris radio reported grave disorders had broken out, with workers fighting the Germans inside a capital deprived of gas, electricity and water.

The Berlin radio said that Russian troops, who had crossed to the west bank of the Danube at Batina and Apatin, 107 and 120 miles south of Budapest in northern Yugoslavia, had forced the Germans back a mile or more. The Germans see this Russian operation, not yet confirmed by Moscow, as part of a Soviet plan to invade western Hungary and take Budapest from the rear.

Northern Slovakia

In northern Slovakia the Russians hammered out gains on a 12-mile front on either side of the Dukla pass and last night were only three miles northeast of Svidnik junction with the capture of the village of Ladomirova.

Six miles southwest of Dukla pass a Soviet group took Dolhona, two miles inside Slovakia. At the other end of the 12-mile northern front the Russians captured Male and Velke Staskovce, seven miles northeast of Stropkov junction.

Following Sunday's seizure of Humenne and Michalovce, in the middle sector of the Sanok-Satoraljaujhely railroad running across Czechoslovakia, the Russians succeeded in clearing considerable sections of that important artery.

Section Of Road Cleared

North of Humenne they captured Radvan and Koskovce stations, cleaning up a nine-mile section of the road and leaving only a five-mile stretch in enemy hands just north of Humenne. When that section is cleared Petrov's troops will have through communications to their bases in southern Poland.

Seven miles south of Humenne another column took Nacina Ves on the highway to Michalovce, and were close to cutting the nearby railway between those two strongholds.

Canada Warned On "Anarchy"

OTTAWA, Nov. 27. (AP)—Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King told a grave House of Commons today that if it did not "unite in a reasonable measure" on the nation-shaking conscription issue, Canada would face the possibility of "anarchy."

Faced with a possibly sweeping defection from his liberal party by French-speaking members from Quebec who normally provide a substantial part of his support, the prime minister called for a vote of confidence and declared that unless he received a good majority he would resign.

Liberals Serve Notice

The possibility of such a course was heightened during the day when the Liberal party leader in Quebec, former provincial Premier Adelard Godbout, declared that if the government persisted in its new policy of partial conscription for overseas service, "it will have to count on the opposition of the Liberals of Quebec of which I am the head."

King, in a vigorous and often fiery address which lasted nearly three hours, made it plain that he intended to hew to his present course and stake the life of his nine-year-old regime on the issue. He moved as a question of confidence that the House support his government "in its policy of maintaining a vigorous war."

A vote is expected later in the week.

Unity Said Endangered

Throughout the address, delivered before a Parliament gathered in special session under one of the most serious crises in Canada's modern history, King stressed his view that the conscription issue has so divided the country that Canadian unity and strength have been endangered perhaps "for generations to come."

The prime minister charged that his opponents on the conscription issue had "organized" a "measure of unrest" in Canada, "the like of which never before has been seen," and declared that this development, erupting in recent weeks, was a factor along with changing conditions abroad which had led his government in an 11th hour decision last week to abandon its historic voluntary policy and institute partial conscription for service overseas.

Stettinius Named Hull Successor

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7.—Dynamic Edward R. Stettinius, jr., was named secretary of state today as his gray and ailing chief, Cordell Hull, trudged wearily off the stage of world affairs.

President Roosevelt submitted the promotion of the 44-year-old undersecretary to the Senate approximately three hours after he suddenly called White House newsmen into his office to make the expected announcement that Hull had submitted his resignation.

It was with great and deep regret that he was accepting it, the President said. Hull is 73 and has been ill since his birthday Oct 2. Mr. Roosevelt projected for him the role of elder statesman, advising on foreign policy, if and when his health is sufficiently restored.

Relative Newcomer

Selection of Stettinius, former chairman of U. S. Steel corporation, placed a relative newcomer to diplomacy in control of this government's foreign affairs machinery on the eve of one of history's most critical periods. Together with the fourth term President he will be responsible for maintaining American leadership in the move to bring a peaceful and prosperous world out of the suffering and devastation of this war.

Prompt senatorial approval of the appointment was freely predicted, although many ranking members had favored their old colleague and long-time associate, War Mobilization Director James F. Byrnes for the top cabinet spot. Vice President Henry A. Wallace had also been mentioned, reportedly with strong labor backing.

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate Foreign Relations committee led off the forecasts of senatorial approval. He announced his committee would take up the appointment Wednesday. Stettinius, he said, "is a man of good

Airline Formula Of U. S. Gaining

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP)—Support of a postwar airline formula acceptable to the United States developed rapidly today as the international civil aviation conference tried to break an Anglo-American deadlock.

Expressions by 24 nations in the first day of debate on the "fifth freedom" of air, a program submitted by the United States, showed 19 countries either in favor of the American plan or Canada's compromise offer, which this nation will accept.

This recapitulation from an authoritative source placed France in support of the United Kingdom proposal, with Australia and New Zealand uncertain but inclined in the same direction, and Belgium possibly leaning toward the British.

Lineup of Support

Officials who heard the day's discussion offered this lineup of the American support:

The issue turns on the application of so-called "fifth freedom" traffic or intermediate business in calculating the amount of carrying capacity which will be alloted on long airline routes under the plan. This "freedom" was developed by the United States delegation after the British insisted on "capacity" quotas based on the amount of terminal traffic carried by an airline.

The United States delegation looked at the debate as an answer to British claims that the American proposal would mean an invasion of potential airline business for small countries.

Frozen North Yields No Trace Of Victims

HEADQUARTERS, Alaskan Department, Nov. 27. (AP)—Hardened Army and civilian mountain climbers, who reached the point where a C-47 Air Transport command plane crashed near the top of an unnamed 12,160-foot mountain peak two months ago, found no traces of the 19 persons aboard.

The big ship had broken apart and rolled and tumbled approximately 1,500 feet down the precipitous icy slopes, Army officers disclosed today. One motor was found at the point of impact and a wing and part of the broken fuselage were far below. Under 10 feet of snow.

The searchers reported there was no doubt that all aboard, most of them servicemen on the way to the states, were instantly killed.

The 44-man rescue expedition set up five forward camps on the mountain's upper slopes, the last at 11,120 feet. Gales and temperatures down to 33 below were faced. The advance party was supplied from the air with equipment and food. An avalanche narrowly missed some of the men.

Leyte Fighting Halted By Rains

By MURLIN SPENCER
Associated Press Staff Writer

GENERAL MacARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Philippines, Tuesday, Nov. 28—American Leyte-based planes dropped 235 tons of bombs on Japanese airdromes on Cebu and Negros and at Davao Friday, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communique said today.

Thirty Japanese planes rose to intercept the American flight and eight were shot down.

Terrific rains brought ground fighting to a standstill in the Ormoc corridor. No American advances were reported.

The weather also curtailed aerial activity over Leyte Sunday. Four attacking Japanese planes were shot down, in addition to the eight bagged on American assaults against other Philippine targets.

One Gets Fifth Jap

Lt. Chetham Gupton of Durham, N. C., got one of the Japanese planes destroyed over Leyte, bringing his total to five and making him an ace. Lts. Oliver Atchison of Birmingham, Ala., and Cecil Archer of Akron, O., each got a plane, for their first kills.

B-24 Liberators, escorted by Lightning fighters, pounded the Japanese airddomes on Cebu, Negros and Mindanao. Aircraft facilities, bivouacs and supply areas were hit.

Six enemy barges were destroyed in other strikes at Palawan, Celebes and Halmahera island.

Japanese planes again raided American-held Morotai island at night. Night fighters and antiaircraft guns shot down four attackers.

Oil Industry Must Keep Price Records

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The oil industry must keep its records on prices and the bases on which they were computed for the duration of the price control act, the Office of Price Administration ruled today.

The previous rule required they be kept for two years.

The change was embodied in a revision of price regulations covering all segments of the petroleum industry except retail sellers. It is effective Dec. 2.

Another change exempts from price control sales between refineries of "C" 4 petroleum fractions, which are used in the manufacture of 100-octane gasoline and synthetic rubber.

Plane Crash Search Near Baird Futile

ABILENE, Nov. 27 (AP)— Col. Harry Weddington, commanding officer of the Army air field here, said today that aircraft from the field had given up an aerial search for a lane reported to have crashed in the vicinity of Baird, 25 miles east of here.

A search of the area was started after a 15-year-old boy at Baird said he saw a plane explode and after a ranch woman reported she heard an explosion, yesterday.

Hurley Nominated For Post In China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 7. (AP)—Maj. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, trouble shooter, was nominated by President Roosevelt today for one of the nation's toughest diplomatic assignments, ambassador to China.

Hurley is taking over the post Clarence Gauss gave up at the time Gen. Joseph W. Stillwell was pulled out of the China-Burma command after a clash with the Chinese leader, Chiang Kai Shek.

Hurley, a jack of all trades who has handled many secret assignments for the President since the war began, already is in Chungking with Donald M. Nelson, former War Production Board chief, trying to speed up China's war efforts.

The 61-year-old soldier's chief task, once the Senate formally approves his nomination as ambassador, will be to key the dynamic American strategy with the crippled Chinese war machine—without ruffling Chinese feelings.

ARGENTINE SILENT

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 27 (AP)—Argentine officialdom maintained strict silence on the resignation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull today, but it was generally understood that the Argentine government was not pained at the retirement of one of its severest critics.

New Mexico Seeks Higher Oil Prices

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Formal petitions for a 10-cent-a-barrel increase in New Mexico crude oil were filed today with the Office of Price Administration and the Petroleum Administration for War by John Kelly, New Mexico state geologist.

Kelly met yesterday with Sumner Price, director of the OPA fuels division, to present information supporting the request for a price increase. The information was promised by Governor John J. Dempsey during a recent visit to Washington, Kelly said.

The proposed price boost would bring the level for New Mexico crude on a parity with prices that have been authorized for oil produced in the West Texas Panhandle, Kelly said.

Increased production and investment costs were cited by Kelly as reasons why an increase was necessary.

AFL Approves Plan For 30-Hour Week

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 27. (AP)—A resolution urging Congress to establish a 30-hour work week after the war to spread employment and to relieve production "tensions" was adopted by the American Federation of Labor convention today.

The committee report said that "technical advances in industry and the accelerating rate of production have developed tensions which cause workers to burn out at an early age." It added this was "justifiable in time of war."

AFL President William Green rejected anew a suggestion from the British Trades union delegate that the AFL attend an international labor conference in London, but he urged all labor groups to join in a worldwide movement to preserve peace after the war.

Plan To "Get Rainey Out" Is Revealed By Bullington

AUSTIN, Nov. 27 (AP) — Regent Orville Bullington of the University of Texas tonight read into the record of a Senate investigating committee a letter which he attributed to an official of the American Association of Medical Colleges, saying "the next step is to get Rainey out."

Bullington offered in evidence a copy of the letter, which he said was received by the late Dr. Ed Randall of Galveston, a former regent and long-time medical school faculty member, from Fred C. Zapffe, secretary of the American Association of Medical Colleges.

It was dated Aug. 4, 1942. It was in this month that Dean John W. Spies was removed as head of the medical school. The letter also said that "so long as he (Dr. Homer P. Rainey, former president) is there, he will make trouble for whoever comes in as executive of the school."

Bullington returned to the stand to offer additional testimony as the last witness of a day in the investigation which was concerned primarily with medical school affairs. Two faculty members earlier had recited a catalogue of instances of what they characterized as "unwise administration" of Rainey and Spies.

They were Dr. C. T. Stone, chairman of the department of internal medicine and Dr. Raymond L. Gregory, a faculty member since 1940, whose testimony reviewed incidents which for the most part had been previously aired in legislative or regential in-

Agencies Face Court Review In Extension Of War Powers

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The House Judiciary committee approved a one-year extension of the administration's sweeping war powers act today but pinned to it a provision for a court review of war agency rulings.

The war powers act is the congressional basis for the war Production board, War Foods administration, Office of Defense Transportation, parts of the Office of Price administration and many other emergency agencies set up to gear the nation's industry to wartime production.

Today's bill, which will be reported to the House probably tomorrow, extends for one year the life of the act which otherwise would expire with the close of this year.

With its approval, however, the committee adopted an amendment providing for a court review of WPB and OPA suspension orders by which the use of priority materials can be withdrawn from individual manufacturers or dealers.

The present act provides no appeal from agency orders. Under the amendment individuals can go into court and get a stop order against a WPB suspension order anytime within 10 days after the order is issued.

The amendment, sponsored by Rep. Hobbs (D-Ala), gives federal district courts jurisdiction to pass on suspension orders, priority allocations or an agency's refusal to pass on an application to stay a suspension.

Under the present arrangement WPB, ODT or other war agencies

Congressmen Plan Conference To Map Future Of Cotton Industry

By CLAIR JOHNSON

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. — Three southern congressmen outlined plans today for a conference to map the future of America's cotton industry.

They described the session, to be held here the week starting Dec. 4, as "one of the most important gatherings in the south's history."

Leaders of every phase of the industry—from the growers to the manufacturers—have accepted invitations to meet with congressmen and federal officials and discuss cotton problems.

Called By House Group

The conference was called by the House subcommittee on postwar agriculture planning, headed by Rep. Pace (D-Ga.) The southerners assisting him in mapping arrangements include Reps. Flannagan (D-Va), chairman of the full agriculture committee, and Pogue (D-Texas).

Pogue commented that although the session was of prime interest to the south, it also "is of national importance, since more than one-half the farms in America grow cotton."

The economic welfare of all agriculture sections depends on a healthy cotton industry, he added.

DALLAS, Nov. 27. (AP)—A survey of all cotton research conducted by federal, state and private agencies was given today by Dr. Frank J. Welch of Mississippi State college before delegates to a three-day cotton production research seminar sponsored by the National Cotton council.

The head of the college's agricultural economics department said that 35 per cent of the harvest cropland in the country is found in the 14 southern cotton producing states.

His survey covered production, distribution and marketing of cotton.

Fight On Lower Incomes

Oscar Johnston, president of the National Cotton council, of Scott, Miss., urged steps be taken to prevent lowering the income of the American cotton producer who he said was faced with serious competition of synthetic products and foreign-grown cotton.

"There is every indication that something more than wishful thinking . . . will be needed in order to cope with the new and old problems that lie ahead," Dr. Clarence Dorman, director of the Mississippi State college experiment station, said.

Body Of Long-Missing Plano Farmer Found

DALLAS, Nov. 27 (U.P.) — The seven-weeks-old mystery of the disappearance of Olaf Ollinger, 43-year-old Plano farmer, was solved today.

His body, fully clad and with no personal effects missing, was found in a dense thicket some two miles from a road near Plano where his automobile had been discovered, its motor still running, on Oct. 5. There had been no trace of Ollinger since then.

Justice of the Peace Newt Morrison returned a verdict of death from exposure since there was no evidence of four play.

FDR Cuts Down On Fags, Not Wholly Due To Shortages

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—President Roosevelt, like many another cigaret smoker, is lighting up less often these days.

But the cigaret shortage isn't primarily to blame even though it's hit the White House too.

The chief executive told his news conference today that he's been cutting down since he had trouble with a bronchial ailment last spring. He's now smoking less than a pack a day instead of two packs.

Apparently, he has an ample supply to take care of his needs.

Other folks at the executive mansion, however, aren't so fortunate, Mrs. Roosevelt disclosed at an earlier news conference.

Cartons of cigarets aren't available there any more, either, she said and people visiting there bring along their own—if they can get them.

The vending machine in the White House today was just as empty as the one in the corner confectionary.

There is a prospect that the White House along with the rest of the country may get some news tomorrow on what's happened to the cigaret supply.

At least. Chairman Flannagan (D-Va.) of the House Agriculture committee, promised the committee will give out the "facts" on the shortage. He said there is "untrue propaganda" that a shortage of leaf tobacco is responsible for the scarcity.

"Buy A War Bond TODAY"

Share In Peace Sought By House

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—The House bid against heavy odds today for a share in the writing of a future peace.

A judiciary subcommittee unanimously approved a constitutional amendment which, if adopted, would end for all time the Senate's traditional and exclusive voice in ratifying treaties. But, to become effective, the Senate has to agree to the change.

The resolution provides that future treaties be ratified by a simple majority vote by both branches of Congress. The Senate now has sole powers, by two-thirds vote, to ratify international agreements.

The committee action was only the first step on a legislative path filled with so many obstacles that many members say privately that the amendment doesn't have a chance this session.

Even should the House pass the resolution many members are confident it will be trapped in the Senate and die with the end of the 78th Congress next month.

House backers want to get it through the short session of Congress so it can be sumbitted to state legislatures in January and win possible approval in time to give the House a voice in the treaties which will come with the end of the war.

Constitutional amendments need ratification by three fourths of the states. Forty state legislatures meet in January and approval of 36 would be necessary.

High Winds Whip Out South Plains Cotton

Saturday's high wind from the north caused extensive damage to cotton open in the fields of the South Plains, a survey conducted by the Avalanche-Journal revealed Monday.

As high as 20 per cent of the cotton open in the fields was blown out in some places while in other sections, the damage was not so extensive but still was reported "heavy."

Whether farmers would attempt to salvage the cotton on the ground was problematical as the cost of gathering and other factors are involved in the salvage.

Vastly Expanded Social Security Program To Be Submitted Soon

BY FRANCIS M. LE MAY
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27 — The administration disclosed today it will present to the new Congress a proposal for vastly expanded Social Security coverage.

The disclosure was made even as the administration encountered a burst of opposition in formally asking Congress to let the Social Security tax double on January 1, as provided by law.

A. J. Altmeyer, security board chairman, took the administration's views before the House Ways and Means committee.

Committeemen submitted him to vigorous questioning, indicating opposition to the tax increase, and causing speculation that Congress might vote to "freeze" the tax at 1 per cent.

Increase Said Necessary

Altmeyer said the increase to 2 per cent (against the pay of employe and also against the payroll of employer) is necessary for a sound Social Security program. He declared "the issue is whether Congress is going to make promises (of security) and not provide money to make good on these promises." If taxes are not increased, he warned, it may be necessary later to subsidize the program through direct appropriations.

Obligations are being created faster than reserves, he continued, although the obligations in large part will not fall due for 20 years.

The security board chairman then told the committee he would be back early next year with proposals for vast expansions of the Social Security program.

Kick-Off Set Today On Scout Campaign

Approximately 160 are expected to attend a "kick-off" breakfast this morning at 8 o'clock at the Hilton hotel to launch a one-day drive to raise $3,500 for the annual Boy Scout finance campaign.

"One hour for our boys," is the theme of the campaign this year, C. H. Cale, general chairman, said Monday. "We hope to complete our efforts in one day. Reports are to be made at 4 o'clock Tuesday afternoon."

Committee members of the "Big Gifts" division began solicitations last Saturday. They hoped to finish by last night. The division is headed by Homer Grant.

Plainview Man Tells Of Tank Destruction

WITH THE U. S. NINTH ARMY IN GERMANY, Nov. 27 (AP) — By employing triple air blow tactics, American fighter bombers destroyed or damaged 19 German tanks yesterday after driving them into the open on roads.

At the most advanced 29th tactical air force field on this front, Capt. Edward Tibbets of Plainview, Tex., said:

"One mission like this morning's makes the boys happy for a month. Our squadron caught 20 (tanks) on a road south of Julich near Kirchberg. We took our time and when the bombing and strafing ended, eight tanks were knocked out and eight were damaged.

"One squadron bombed the town of Kirchberg and then another came along and gave it a second working over. When we arrived, they had the tanks on the move in the road. Some tried to get off the road and hide behind houses but we flattened the houses along with the tanks."

Leadership Changed In Mediterranean

LONDON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Elevation of Lt. Gen. Mark W. Clark from command of the U. S. Fifth army to commander-in-chief of the Allied 15th army group in Italy was announced here last night as part of a general shift of the Allied leadership in the Mediterranean.

Sir Henry Maitland Wilson, who in turn takes the place of the late Field Marshal Sir John Dill as chief of the British joint staff mission in Washington.

The announcement from Prime Minister Churchill's office said the appointments "are the result of agreement between the prime minister and the president of the United States."

It also was announced that Alexander had been made a field marshal, effective June 4, 1944, the date of the capture of Rome.

Letters To The Editor From Readers

DISAGREES

Editor, The Avalanche: Several of us have noted in your editorial that pressure groups—and you left the impression that pressure groups alone—were writing the congressmen against compulsory military service.

Several of us here who have boys in the service have written our congressmen against compulsory military service and we can say truthfully, and finally, that we were never approached by any person, or persons, or groups intimating in any way that this was the thing to do.

We are of the opinion that there are many more in the United States as a whole that have done the same thing without "malice aforethought."

We like your editorials, as a whole, but believe that even editors are only human and sometimes run over the goal when pursuing favorite ideas.

After all we are a peaceful nation and have managed to get along without compulsory military service even to keeping the battles away from our shores. If we should have compulsory military service, then we think that war should be declared by referendum.

Yours truly,
Mac Austin,
Lubbock.

(Dear Mr. Austin: Thanks for your letter. Of course, I realize that many people are writing letters opposing compulsory military training without being prompted by pressure groups. But the pressure groups are busy—very busy and in my judgment will, in the final analysis, prompt many more letters than will be written spontaneously. I have no criticism of your stand in this matter. I merely disagree with it, being of the opinion that we must never again be caught so unprepared for war as we were this time. We had a mighty close call. Next time we may not be so fortunate. I have no sons in service (although one may reach service age before the present shooting is over. But I do have three of them and I believe it would be to their best interests, as well as to the best interests of the nation, to have them trained and prepared for any future military emergency. Cordially yours, The Editor.)

BUTANE DANGER

Editor, The Avalanche: I am enclosing with this an article in today's Dallas News. Does Lubbock have to wait until we have an explosion similar to the one at Denison before we can put butane trucks off Lubbock streets?

Anyone familiar with butane knows that it is a dealy explosive and that it is dangerous all of the time, not only occasionally. These butane trucks drive all over Lubbock, and at any speed they so desire. Our police officers apparently think it is all right. So why don't we get busy and regulate this dangerous traffic where it should be? And that is outside the city limits.

If someone wanted to set up a powder factory inside Lubbock he would be told 'no.' Yet a butane truck has any powder factory beat six ways from the jack when it comes to destruction and danger to the citizen.

So again, why isn't it now just the right time to put this type of danger off Lubbock streets, regardless of the fact that it may inconvenience a few butane dealers. I'll leave it with you.

Very truly yours,
Dr. R. S. Pershing,
2020 Ninth Street.

(Dear Doctor: Thanks for your letter. I hope you have seen the lead editorial in last Sunday's paper, which agrees fully with you. It appeared in print while your letter was in the mail, so you and I had similar ideas without either knowing of the others slant. Cordially yours, The Editor.)

The Woman's Angle
By Margaret Turner

PERHAPS it should be called to your attention that America's infants are fighting the Axis, too! It's been revealed that a shortage of diapers in one mid-Western area was due to the fact that 3,000 diapers a month were actually being used at a war plant to polish lenses on army binoculars and telescopes.

DANCING LESSENS FAMILY SQUABBLES

IF there is any fruitful result of investigation into the causes of family squabbles conducted by a researcher at Georgia State Woman's college, we may yet live to see an America of calm, cool and collected individuals who never raise their voices above a whisper.

Tabulation of questionnaires filled out anonymously by several thousand high school students in nine states has proved to those conducting the quiz that one-third of the nation engages in family quarrels which have disquieting and unhealthy effects on children.

Of the total number of children reporting on quarrels between fathers and mothers, 43.9 per cent, rich and poor alike, said most disagreements are about the family income. What kind of social life children should lead, the kind of education they should have and parents' disapproval of each other's personal habits, are other frequent causes of quarrels. Jealousy causes 4.2 per cent of the total number, while mothers-in-law, all jokes to one side, together with other relatives, are responsible for 2.3 per cent of disputes.

ON QUARRELS

WHEN it's a question of quarrels between parents and children it was found that both boys and girls quarrel more with their fathers than with their mothers. Greatest disturber of parent-child harmony is the matter of the child's social life and friends. It was surprising to discover children quarrel more with their fathers than their mothers. Some painful scenes we have been unable to avoid, being caught between cross fires so to speak, on a number of occasions were misunderstandings between children and their mothers. Indeed if the difference was taken to the father he was likely to pass it off with a shrug and the advice, "Well, that's up to you and your mother to worry about."

And haven't you heard a father say something like "Who is that funny looking little boy (or girl) who seems to come over here just about meal time every day" that usually precipitates a surge of dissension, especially if it is a youngster liked by the mother. Or Mother may say, "Honey, do you know anything about little Margarine's home or who her people are?" and Father may chime in with "What's the difference if the kids play together well?" So it goes. Ho hum!

According to the quiz, many father and son quarrels revolve about the kind of work the boy should do and how much money he should spend, while mother-daughter feuds are frequently about clothes.

Since so many quarrels are economic in origin, it's felt that schools should teach the art of budgeting and put more emphasis on non-material pleasures. School-supervised recreation in from differences of opinion about the kind of social life and friends children should have, may be decreased if parents are made to understand that recreation, like dancing, for example, is normal, healthy relaxation.

And incidentally, we wish schools, would try to make children more tolerant of their parents' views, reminding them that some day their ideas will seem just as old-fogyish to their own children.

Slugging Match For Roer Base Is Typical Of Tough Nazi Resistance

By WILLIAM SMITH WHITE
Associated Press Staff Writer

WITH U. S. FIRST ARMY, Germany, Nov. 27. (AP) — American doughboys smashed into the center of Langerwehe, last major German-held road center west of the Roer river, today and were slugging it out house to house with the Germans at dusk.

Langerwehe, 25 1-2 miles from Cologne and five miles from Duren, was entered only after some of the hardest fighting.

Just above this area, other American infantry fought forward 400 yards beyond captured Frenz toward the town of Lammersdorf in the face of some of the most punishing mortar fire of the European campaign.

Most Of Hurtgen Held

At the same time the Americans wrested away from the Nazis the bigger part of the town of Hurtgen, seven miles southwest of Duren, and sent patrols into Kleinhau, two miles to the northeast.

The Germans are resisting desperately all along the line from hundreds of yards of interlocking trenches and cellars turned into strongly fortified pillboxes.

They are trying to buy time at the approaches to the Roer but a senior American staff officer declared tonight that with luck in the weather that barrier should be reached soon.

Fresh and elite German troops, particularly parachute soldiers, have been brought up to the line. Their fire was heavy all day, especially in the open area between Weiseweiler and Frenz, where they were trying to break up American reinforcements.

Houses Disintegrate

Where German artillery fire was extraordinarily heavy, the Americans' was nothing short of hellish for the enemy. In Grosshau, northeast of Kleinhau, whole houses were lifted off the ground and seen to disintegrate in the air when hit by our shells.

In Hurtgen, too, the fighting was a case of gains yard by yard.

For hours today—until the onset of poor weather late in the afternoon—American fighter-bombers closely supported the struggling infantrymen and several enemy tanks and self-propelled guns were knocked out by the airmen.

Typical Example

Frenz is a typical example of the nature of the German defenses on this side of the Roer. Three attacks were required to capture that village, defended by trenches 350 yards long running in jagged tiers to a depth also of 350 yards.

The houses behind the trenches, in which the Germans took shelter during our artillery barrages, were equipped with elaborate fortress-like cellars.

This is fighting without spectacular gains—nasty and punishing—but as a senior American officer observed grimly, "we are killing a lot of the Boche."

First B-29 Lost In Tokyo Battle Takes Full Crew To Death

BY VERN HAUGLAND
Associated Press Staff Writer

AT A B-29 BASE, Saipan, Nov. 24 (Delayed)—(Via Navy Radio)—The story of the first B-29 lost in combat over Tokyo was told here by airmen returning from today's initial Superfort attack on the Japanese capital.

(Two B-29s were lost in that assault, only one of them in combat. The crew of the second plane was rescued Saturday, after making a forced landing at sea on the return to base).

The combat loss was caused when a Japanese fighter plane sheared off the tail of the Superfortress, and the giant bomber spun into the ocean east of Japan.

Observers believed the plane took all 11 crew members to a tragic death.

The best qualified witness was Lt. Col. Robert "Pappy" Haynes of Hermosa Beach and Manhattan Beach, Calif. He is a veteran of more than 70 combat flights in Africa and Europe and led the particular formation from which the plane was lost.

A Japanese twin-engined fighter of a new design, he said, riddled the hapless B-29 with bullets. Horrified watchers from other Superforts saw that the bomber failed to return a single shot. They believed possibly the oxygen supply had failed, and the entire crew was unconscious.

As the Japanese fighter turned away, another came in. It was being torn to shreds by crossfire from other B-29s. It exploded as it hit the tail of the big bomber.

Another Base In China Evacuated

BY CLYDE FARNSWORTH
Associated Press Staff Writer

KUNMING, China, Nov. 19 (Delayed)—The Nanning fighter base, the Seventh air field to be lost by the U. S. 14th Air force as a result of the defeat of China's southeastern armies, was evacuated and blown up today.

Nanning's position had been precarious since Japanese advances forced the abandonment of Liuchow on Nov. 8, but Maj. Gen. Claire L. Chennault held his P-51's there until bad weather raised the possibility the Japanese might be able to sneak up undetected and attack the base. The evacuation was completed without loss except for one P-51 Mustang which delayed too long to take off and was grounded by the weather. It was destroyed before the Americans left.

Base Lay Vulerable

As with the four major bases at Hengyang, Lingling, Kweilin and Liuchow and the lesser fields at Packing and Tanchukoforth, operations were sustained at Nanning until the air raid warning net was so constricted the field could not be properly defended by its own fighters, and the base lay vulnerable to roving Japanese cavalry or infiltrating plainclothesmen.

Nanning thus had been scratched as a tactical asset long before the buildings were burned and the 1,000-pound bombs buried in the runways and taxiways blown up.

As evacuations go, Nanning was a small-time job. Twelve transports from the India-China Air Transport command sufficed to bring out somewhat more than 100 persons and 75,000 pounds of cargo. So rugged was the weather some of the transports failed to reach Nanning.

Radio and other signal equipment, aircraft parts and even jeeps which are so precious in China were hauled away by air. Lt. Melvin M. Resnick, Mt. Vernon, N. Y., formerly operations officer at Kweilin and Liuchow, was in charge of the final operations.

The last transport took off at 4:47 p. m. today with the last moveable materials with Resnick aboard. The fighters had taken off earlier.

Woman Writer Is Expelled By Slavs

ROME, Nov. 27 (U.P.)—Eleanor Packard, United Press war correspondent, arrived at an Italian airport aboard a Russian transport plane yesterday, after having been expelled from Belgrade on the complaint that she had violated Yugoslav censorship in sending dispatches.

Mrs. Packard reported making a protest against the expulsion order, saying that she had sent out of the country only dispatches which had been passed by Allied censors, who reviewed them from the military security aspect, though Yugoslav censors had not passed them as authorized from the political aspect.

"So far as I could learn," she said, "the Yugoslav press authorities didn't like one of my dispatches wherein I reported how many pictures of Marshals Stalin and Tito were in shop windows in Belgrade in contrast with the absence of pictures of President Roosevelt and Prime Minister Churchill."

She said there also was objection to her description of Yugoslav censorship as "probably among the strictest ever imposed."

Mrs. Packard said that the expulsion order was served on her by the Yugoslav chief censor who told her she must leave by the next plane. An hour later she was given accommodations on the transport plane, she said.

Mrs. Packard went to Yugoslavia a week ago with the first group of American and British correspondents.

Blanket Authority Urged For Basins

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 27 (AP)—The embattled proposed Missouri valley authority was left friendless today by speakers at the 26th annual convention of the Mississippi Valley association.

Lachlan Macleay, St. Louis, president of the association, told the more than 500 delegates a single authority should be created for the entire Ohio, Missouri, Arkansas, Illinois and upper Mississippi basins, while Congressman Will M. Whittington of Mississippi, chairman of the House committee on flood control, asserted that there is no substitute for levees along alluvial streams.

"There is need for additional authorizations along the Arkansas, the White, and other Mississippi tributaries; the Connecticut, the Ohio, the Willamette, the Sacramento in the Los Angeles area There is need for projects along the Roanoke, the Santee, the Savannah and other rivers in the south Atlanta area.

"Levees at Dallas and Fort Worth are inadequate, and a federal project should be authorized along the Brazos and the Colorado rivers in Texas," Whittington said.

Keating's Infantry Unit Aids 9th Army

WITH THE U.S. 102ND INFANTRY DIVISION In Germany, Nov. 27. (AP)—Brig. Gen. Frank A. Keating's 102nd infantry division, which was activated in 1942 at Camp Maxey, Paris, Tex., was one of the divisions that supported opening of the Ninth army's drive to the Roer river.

Disclosure was made yesterday that the division, which in the midst of its preparations to embark for France was called to Philadelphia to help settle the August transit strike, took part in the drive.

After its activation, the 102nd did most of its training in Texas and received its officers from the Second infantry division, of which Keating was chief of staff. Keating, 49, has commanded the division since January.

Surrounded Company A Has Bitter Two-Day Battle Against Big Odds

By HENRY T. GORRELL
United Press War Writer

WITH THE FOURTH U. S. INFANTRY, Southwest of Duren, Nov. 26 (Delayed)—The only message Company A could send out by wireless without revealing its position to the Nazis was:

"Front door is closed and our back door is pretty hot."

That was too crytic for the regimental staff, commanded by Col. Charles T. Lanham, Washington, D. C., to figure out so for two days and three nights Company A fought on in Hurtgen forest in a modern reenactment of the battle of the Alamo. For its feat Company A will probably get a Presidential citation.

At Historic Lodge

It happened at Jaeger house, an elaborate 13th century German hunting lodge.

The company had been ordered to attack and although the company commander and his executive officer were killed, Lt. George W. Thoms, Appleton, Wis., led his men forward.

First the company charged across an open field alive with Germans. Outnumbered 20 to 1 they fought ahead although German artillery fire was mowing down one American in ten.

"After personally reconnoitering the situation," Thoms said, "I backtracked a long distance and found my men had lost their way and in blind fighting had captured 22 Germans. I sent one of our wounded back to the base with the prisoners and organized to attack the hunting lodge.

Germans Were Ready

"The Germans were ready for us. They'd seen me before with my scouting party and had demanded my surrender. But orders were orders and we were going to advance regardless."

Under heavy German small arms and artillery fire the company raced across the open ground to the hunting lodge which they found a beehive of Germans from the roof to dark underground tunnels.

The initial assault party was only a handful of men from Company A, including Thoms and S/Sgt. Lyman Hickman, Fillmore, Mo., who alone accounted for at least 20 Germans killed and as many wounded with his Browning automatic rifle.

They piled into the cellar and the Germans started lobbing grenades into them. Finally, they managed to block up one door with stones and signalled to the rest of the company to join them.

Not An Easy Task

This was no easy task. The lodge had been a German command post and the Nazis were milling around, attacking furiously. Twice they came at the little band in strength but were thrown back with heavy losses.

Gradually the remainder of Company A infiltrated the lodge and in no time there were more wounded Americans in the dank, watery basement than there were able-bodied riflemen.

But Company A fought on—for two days and nights. Their only food was raw sugar beets and their only water came from a forest stream where it could be obtained by braving murderous German fire.

The message to headquarters "Front door is closed and our back door is pretty hot" was the only thing they could figure out which would not tip off to the Nazis how precarious their position was.

Hand to Hand Encounters

There were dozens of hand to hand encounters. One man had two fingers of his right hand blown off and shot it out at close range with the Germans, firing a luger automatic with his left hand in Tom Mix style.

Lt. Robert Harkins, Brooklyn, was exploring an underground passage with his cigaret lighter and found it teeming with Germans who had to be ferreted out one by one at the pistol point.

There were 32 wounded Americans in the cellar and only one medical corps man to care for them. Two of the men died of loss of blood. Efforts to evacuate the men failed because of German sniping.

Finally, the Germans began to be outflanked by other advancing American units and the siege of Jaeger house was lifted.

Importance Of Texas Natural Gas Cited

AUSTIN, Nov. 27 (U.P.)—Demonstrated success of converting methane or dry natural gas into gasoline makes natural gas approach the value of oil in Texas, state Railroad Commissioner Ernest O. Thompson said today.

Thompson said he had just returned from Orlean, N. Y., where he saw methane being made into gasoline. The conversion plants can be erected in Texas gas fields to provide outlets for those which do not have pipe line connections, he said.

A plant using 64,000,000 cubic of methane a day can produce about 6,000 barrels of 83 octane gasoline daily, Thompson said. Gas which has been selling for one to four cents per 1,000 cubic feet with the new process becomes worth perhaps 10 cents per 1,000 at the well, Thompson estimated.

20 Killed In Arms Blast In England

BURTON-ON-TRENT, Eng., Nov. 27 (AP)—An explosion at a munitions dump near here killed at least 20 people today.

Several were injured, and 40 others were still unaccounted for several hours after the blast.

Buildings as far away as Coventry, 30 miles from the scene, were shaken by the explosion.

Maverick Jabs At Strategy Table In House Restaurant

WASHINGTON, Nov. 27. (AP)—Maury Maverick poked his head in the House of Representatives' restaurant and mused:

"Leave us have some fun."

The Texan, chairman of the Smaller War Plants corporation and former member of the House, turned to W. A. Brockwell, restaurant manager, and said sternly:

"That Republican table now, by the results of the election it should be reduced in size."

"I do that and they'll chop me off down to h-e-r-e," replied Brockwell.

It seats a dozen. It has been seating a dozen, some say, since Lincoln . . . Anyhow so far back no one can remember. It is the amen corner of the restaurant. No one knows how it started. More Republican strategy is discussed there than any place else in the capital.

The same faces are there daily. There'll be several changes made in January, when the lame ducks depart.

It is not co-ed. Sometimes the conversation veers away from strategy.

Maverick reasoned: When the Republicans had 208 members of the House they had the only dozen-seater in the place. Now with 190 or so, they should have an 11-seater, percentage-wise.

This corner's solution—stick a Democrat in there—fell on deaf ears.

NO CELEBRATION PLANNED

Postwar Industrial Proposal Gaining

CORSICANA, Nov. 27. (AP)—Representatives from Navarro and eleven surrounding counties today endorsed the postwar industrial development department of the East Texas Chamber of Commerce.

District 4 of the commercial organization pledged financial support for the new department.

Hubert M. Harrison, Longview, vice president and general manager of the organization, announced that $52,167 of the necessary $77,340 to finance the department had been raised.

Harrison said the department, emphasizing small industrial enterprises locally financed, would be ready to function by next Jan. 1, with a full-time industrial engineer and other industrial experts.

Joe E. Butler of Corsicana, president and chairman, announced that the sixth and final district (district 3) meeting to complete the organization of the department would be held tomorrow at Tyler.

Federal Court Here Disposes Of 15 Cases, Many On OPA Charges

A total of 15 criminal cases were disposed of Monday, opening day of the November term of Federal district court for the Lubbock division of the northern district of Texas, Hon. T. Whitfield Davidson, federal district judge, presided.

Nine of the 15 cases involved violation of rationing regulations of the Second War Powers act.

Ada Maurine Jackson, negro woman, was sentenced to serve six months in jail on the first of four counts returned in an indictment which charged her with fraudulently receiving family allowance checks from the U. S. Treasury department. The indictment pointed out she was receiving allotment checks from her former "common law" husband, who is serving in the Army, and from her present husband, also in the Army.

Tire Possession Case

Another negro woman, Minnie Hooper, 26, teacher in a negro school at Post, was charged with possession of five new passenger type tires without giving up tire rationing certificate as is required. She pleaded guilty of the charges but, according to her testimony, she acquired the tires by accepting them as security for a loan of $80, not knowing she had violated the ration order. Judge Davidson withheld imposition of sentence.

Sentence of six months in a federal correctional institution was imposed against James R. Ballard, jr., negro who was recently discharged without honor from the U. S. Army, on a plea of guilty of charges of unlawfully wearing the uniform of the Army, bearing the chevrons of a staff sergeant.

Fine of $25 was assessed against F. M. Moses, 26, another negro, for unlawful possession of gasoline ration book and refusing to return same to his ration board after selling his car. He pleaded guilty of all three counts in the indictment. Judge Davidson withheld imposition of sentence on the other two counts which charged unlawful possession of gasoline rationing coupons and of tires that were not the tires recorded on his tire inspection record.

Station Operator Fined

P. G. McKinley, 44-year-old former Lubbock service station operator, was fined $100 on the first two counts of five counts charging violation of rationing regulations. Imposing of sentence was withheld on the other three counts. He pleaded guilty to all five counts. Another Lubbock man, J. B. Fowler, was sentenced to six months in a federal correctional institution after pleading guilty of charges of transfer of two automobile tires without obtaining rationing certificates and of possession of two tires without having been issued tire rationing certificates for the purchase thereof.

Charles James Graham, 18, of Lubbock, pleaded guilty of charges of sending a letter of obscene nature through the mails. He was sentenced to 13 months in the federal correctional institution at El Reno, Okla. Harrison Scott Martin, 53, also of Lubbock was sentenced to 30 days in jail after pleading guilty of charges of stealing and carrying away for his own use certain goods from a truck traveling in interstate commerce. Fine of $25 was assessed against J. K. Bradshaw on his plea of guilty of charges of transferring of two automobile tires and tubes without receiving required tire rationing certificates.

Youth On Probation

James Graham, 18-year-old Plainview youth, who pleaded guilty of charges of transferring two passenger type automobile tires without receiving required tire rationing certificates, was placed on probation of one year, after imposition of sentence was withheld.

A 17-year-old Lubbock youth, a juvenile under federal procedure, was placed on probation for three years after Judge Davidson withheld imposition of sentence. He pleaded guilty of a juvenile delinquency charge in connection with transporting a stolen automobile in interstate commerce.

All of the above cases were heard at the afternoon session. The following were heard at the morning session:

Tom Latham of Kent county was fined $150 and sentenced to serve six months in jail, with suspension of jail sentence if the fine is paid, on a plea of guilty of charges of purchasing, receiving and possessing six 100-pound sacks of sugar without giving up required ration stamps.

A. J. (Jack) Meador of Dawson county, charged with purchase of two new automobile tires without surrendering tire ration certificates, and with receiving and possessing two used tires without surrendering ration certificates, entered a plea of guilty and was fined $100 on the first count and sentence was withheld on the second count.

L. A. Gonzales of Houston, who was in Lubbock temporarily at the time of his arrest, was fined $50 on a plea of guilty of illegal possession of 15 "T" and four "A-12" gasoline ration coupons.

The fourth criminal case heard involved three youths, one a juvenile. The trio were charged with transportation of a stolen automobile in interstate commerce. The juvenile was sentenced to two years in a federal institution but sentence was probated for three years. Donald Jones, 19, was sentenced to serve 13 months in the federal correctional institution at El Reno, Okla. Earl Jones, 20, received the same sentence, but sentence was probated for two years. All three pleaded guilty.

Hearings on civil suits for the term were set at the morning session by Judge Davidson. The criminal docket will probably be completed this morning, according to Clyde O. Eastus, U. S. District attorney.

Local Elevens In Final Grid Week

Local grid elevens swung into the final week of the football season Monday afternoon with only light limbering up drills held for both the Lubbock Westerners and Texas Tech Red Raiders.

The Westerners will ring down the curtain Thursday afternoon at Tech stadium with a battle with the Borger Bulldogs, the last foe in the District 1-AA race.

PRICE VISITS GRIDMEN
Phar. 3/c Howard "Admiral" Price, stationed at San Diego, Calif., with the U. S. Navy, was a sideline visitor at the grid workouts of the Lubbock Westerners and Texas Tech Red Raiders Monday afternoon. Price, who coached the Lubbock Cowhands last season, returned to Lubbock Sunday for a brief visit, and plans to see both local teams in action this week, but was spending Monday meeting old friends.

The Red Raiders close the season Saturday afternoon, on the same gridiron, with the pass minded South Plains Army Air field's Winged Commandos offering the opposition.

Red Raiders Crippled

The Red Raiders came out of last week's battle with the Southern Methodist Mustangs rather the worse for wear, and perhaps the greatest loss was to Floyd Lawhorn, big center from Temple, who started the game against the Ponies.

Lawhorn broke both his hands in the Mustang game, and will miss the season's finale this week.

Walter Schlinkman, Tech's All-American candidate, reported Monday that his ankle injury, which took him from the game in the fourth period, was greatly improved, but was suffering from a shoulder injury that was bothering him greatly Monday afternoon.

Arthur Shahan, half back starter from Graham, reinjured his hip, which was first injured in scrimmage last week, and Gene Hardey, first string quarterback from Hugoton, Kansas, was also still slowed down by his knee injury.

Otherwise, the Red Raiders appeared to be ready for Saturday's tussle.

Westerners In Shape

The Westerners escaped their rough game last week with the Amarillo Golden Sandies with much better luck, and came out of the game in top shape for the Borger battle. All hands were on hand Monday, although Johnny Pearson, co-captain and guard, was suffering from a cold.

The Westerners took only a light limbering up Monday afternoon, and stayed only about 30 minutes on the practice field. They called off the workout after a few exercises and sprints, then went into town where they were guests of the Westerner cafe in a chicken dinner celebration of the season.

Coach J. Mule Davis promised the boys a rough, and long workout today for the coming battle.

The Red Raiders took it just as easy, and spent the afternoon with a lot of running. The squad was divided into two teams, and everybody kicked their heels in a big touch football game scrimmage.

Outstanding performers, and sparks of the offense of each team with their passing, were Dell Morgan of the Reds and Polk Robison of the Whites.

Tradition At Stake In Steer-Aggie Tilt

AUSTIN, Nov. 27. (AP) — Coach Dana X. Bible told members of the University of Texas football team priming here today for the traditional Thanksgiving game against Texas A. & M. they were "fighting for a grand tradition and their self-respect."

Bible referred to the fact that no A. & M. team has ever won over the University of Texas in Memorial stadium, and also that Texas has a current season standing of four games won and four games lost to improve.

There is no prospective change in the lineup. Texas is openly planning an aerial attack built around Bobby Layne, and the game might turn into an offensive duel.

A crowd of 40,000 to 44,000 is anticipated. The remaining 3,500 tickets are expected to be sold out at the gate.

It takes six men a day and a half to clean the crystal chandeliers in the East Room at the White House.

LAAF Plans For Big Cage Year

With a tall, rugged and speedy bunch of cagers lined up, Lubbock Army Air Field is scheduled to open a thirty game basketball season with the Dalhart Army Air Field quintet in the LAAF gym on December 5. Just what Coaches "Tony" Ferri and Maurice John have remains to be seen but the prospects indicate that the Fliers will trot out their best court team in the history of the field.

Height isn't everything, of course, but the Fliers will have plenty of reach under the basket. Anyone who saw Bruce Prior in action last year will be ready to conceed that there are few in this section who can beat his sharp-shooting at the basket. Prior led both the regular post team and the inter-squadron league in scoring last year and is a cinch for a forward position on this year's post team.

Mickey McDonald, one of the defensive mainstays is back from last year as is Martin Long, center, and Corrance Crawford, forward.

New Faces Shine

But it is in new material that the Fliers shine. To mention a few: Billy McLeod, brother of Leeson McLeod and an all-state guard from Newton, Kansas where they turn out championship teams year after year; Donald Markarian a six footer from Scarsdale, N. Y., and the "Violets" of N.Y.U., who is hitting the basket with regularity from all angles and is a probable running mate for Prior at forward; a burly youngster by the name of Harry Krasner from East Orange, N. J., an all-star selection in his home bailiwick who has also played some professional basketball as a forward.

LAAF coaches, however, are working Krasner a guard; Richard Pawlowski, another six-foot plus guard who hails from Monasha, Wis., and who also is being converted from a forward to a guard; J. W. Brown, a six-foot, five and one-half inch guard who used ot play a lot of basketball with Beloit, (Wis.) College; and L. C. Edmondson, who toured the country with the "sky-scrapers" of West Texas State Teachers when the Buffs were the talk of the country; Ben Sorrell, a mere 5' 11" forward from Texas University and John McCarty, a 6' 3" four letter man from the Ball State Teachers college, who plays either a forward or a guard.

Coach May Play

If things are not going to suit him on the floor, Lt. Maurice E. John, who has joined the Flier coaching staff this year, can be expected to take a hand in proceedings. As captain of the Warrensburg (Mo.) college "Mules" Lieutenant John has played in two National AAU tournaments.

Following the opening game on December 5 with Dalhart, the Fliers will face West Texas State Teachers here on December 6 and Texas Tech in the Red Raider's field house on December 9. Games have also been scheduled with Texas Christian and the following air fields: Big Spring, Amarillo, South Plains, Blackland, Pecos, Kelly Field, Frederick, Okla.; Deming and Roswell, New Mexico.

Army, Navy Hold Top Grid Spot

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Army will defeat Navy in the football game of the season at Baltimore Saturday.

That is the opinion of the 82 experts who voted in this week's Associated Press poll to determine the country's outstanding eleven.

Fifth Straight Week

Army was retained in first place for the fifth straight week with 55 1/3 designations as the best and an over-all total of 737 points. Navy held the runner-up spot for the second consecutive tabulation and was followed by Ohio State, newly crowned champion of the Big Ten, and Randolph Field.

Navy got only one vote as the best team in the country but polled enough points in the other positions to finish as the runnerup. Ohio State and Randolph Field furnished an oddity by deadlocking for third place, each with 507 points.

Other Six Leaders

The top foursome was followed by Bainbridge, Iowa Preflight, Southern California, Michigan, Notre Dame and Tennessee.

The latter two found room in the elite grouping when the Fourth Air Force and Georgia Tech slipped to lower rankings. Notre Dame skidded out of the top 10 for the first time since October, 1942 two weeks ago following its defeat by Army. It sank even further last week despite the Ramblers' triumph over Northwestern but returned this time on the strength of its 21 to 0 conquest of Georgia Tech.

It is the first appearance in the select circle this season for Tennessee, unbeaten but tied and the East's representative in the Jan. 1 Rose Bowl contest. Southern California, the Vols' rival in that game, outranks Tennessee by three positions and 136 points.

Neither Army nor Navy played last weekend while the Buckeyes completed their first unbeaten season since 1920 by spilling Michigan, 18 to 14. Randolph Field found the Amarillo Army Air base a stronger foe than the 33 to 0 score indicates.

Kessler Field Wins Over Infantry Club

KEESLER FIELD, Miss., Nov. 27. (AP) — Keesler Field's mighty Fliers protected their undefeated record for the season here today by scoring three touchdowns in the fourth quarter to defeat the Ft. Benning, Ga., 3rd Infantry, 19-0.

After three scoreless periods, Keesler end Frank Huffman recovered a Ft. Benning fumble on the visitors 11-yard line and Halfback Cliff Aberdon scored on a reverse.

OWLS, HOGS IN MEET

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 27 (AP) The Oklahoman announced today Rice and Arkansas, co-champions of the Southwest Conference basketball race last season, have accepted invitations to the ninth annual all-college basketball tournament here Dec. 27, 28 and 29.

Denver City Mustangs Put Five On 5-A All-District

BROWNFIELD, Nov. 27 (Spcl.)—Coaches and officials of District 5-A met here tonight, and named the All-District 5-A football team, and mapped plans for the basketball season ahead.

The roster of the All-District team named five members of the District Champion Denver City Mustangs on the first team, and placed two more on the second team, as officials termed the 1944 season one of the most successful in many years.

First Team Stars

Jimmy Terrell, back, Bobby Harnsberger, tackle, Gene Streety, guard, and Don Nugent, center, and Jimmy Groom, end, were the five members of the championship club named to the first team.

Tahoka's Bulldogs, runnerup to the Mustangs, came next on the first team, with three stars placed on the coveted first team lineup. They were LaVaughn "Seabiscuit" Caraway, back, W. T. Hines, end, and A. L. Hodge, tackle.

The O'Donnell Eagles grabbed off two backfield posts with McGallion and Tohmlison getting the honors at this position. The remaining guard post was taken over by Everett of Seminole to round out a first team that would be a "coache's dream."

Second Team Lineup

Seminole and Seagraves had three men each on the second team. Denver City and Tahoka placed two. O'Donnell and Post placed one each on the second team, which named twelve boys, with five men in the backfield to care for the wealth of backfield material.

Grayson Tate and W. C. Harrison, two members of Denver City's "Four Horsemen, manned two of the backfield posts. Hood and Stewart of Seminole and Jernigan of Seagraves rounded out the second team backfield.

Nolan Jones of Tahoka was named center on the second team. Cecil Dorman of Tahoka and Bob Polock of Seagraves were named guards on the second team. The tackles are manned by Raymond Boydston of Seminole and Head of Post. The wingmen named for the second team were Ray Pierce of O'Donnell and Howard Hassell of Seagraves.

Cage Meet Set

The meeting tonight also worked out the plans for the coming basketball season, which finds the district returning to full strength with the return of Slaton Tigers to the district fold.

The championship will be determined in a double elimination tournament, set for Feb. 9-10 at Denver City. The date and site for the meet was decided by a vote of the officials at tonight's meeting.

O'Connor To Refuse Baseball's Top Post

CHICAGO, Nov. 27. (AP)—Leslie M. O'Connor, the man most widely mentioned as the likely successor to the late Kenesaw Mountain Landis as commissioner of baseball, will decline that office if it is proferred him.

Secretary to Landis since the major leagues created the commissionership 24 years ago, O'Connor asserted today he would refuse any nominations for the job should they develop at the winter meeting of the National and American circuits here Dec. 11-12.

The quiet-spoken lawyer, who was the man-behind-the-scenes in many of Landis' important decisions, ferquently has asserted that in deference to Landis' incomparable position in baseball, his office should never be re-filled.

Merkel, Pecos Play On Dec. 8

MERKEL, Nov. 27—The Merkel Badgers opened their two week practice session to get ready for the bi-district battle at Pecos on Dec. 8, from which game will come the regional championship foe of the Littlefield Wildcats, winner in bi-district play last week over Denver City, 39-20.

Coach Carroll Benson's Badgers closed out the regular season schedule last week with a 49-0 victory over Colorado City, the last major foe in the path of the Badgers. The victory was the eighth straight conference victory, and brought to Merkel its second district title in a row.

The Colorado City Wolves went into the game last week with a record of four wins, two losses and one tie in the conference and were expected to give the Badgers a tough battle.

But the Taylor county eleven rolled smoothly over the Wolves, and turned in perhaps its most impressive showing of the season. Paced by Billy Wayne Frazier, the state's leading scorer, the Badgers are expected to enter the Pecos battle as a slight favorite.

Frazier has rolled up 214 points this season, the state's best record, in leading the Badgers to a great season. The team has lost only one game this season, a non-conference bout with Ballinger, 27-6. Ballinger, one of the best Class A teams, is another district winner, copping the 9-A title.

Guadalupe Noses Out Bean On Penetration

The Guadalupe touch football eleven nosed out the Bean Bronchos by the margin of one 20-yard line penetration as the two teams battled to a 6-6 tie monday afternoon at the Dupre gridiron.

The two teams battled through a scoreless first half, but Guadalupe took a lead in the third quarter when Pee Wee Chavez set up the score by dashing from the 36 to the one to set up the score. Manuel Gallegos plunged it over for the touchdown.

Bean came back in the fourth quarter to tie the score when Billy Breedlove recovered a fumble behind the Guadalupe goal line for the touchdown.

Red Grange To Head New Pro Grid Loop

CHICAGO, Nov. 27 (AP)—Headeded by football's famous Harold (Red) Grange, the United States Football League today formally entered the professional gridiron ring, announcing plans for an eight-team loop starting in 1945.

Grange, famed as the "Galloping Ghost" at the University of Illinois two decades ago, was elected president of the new circuit at a meeting here last weekend, which closed with announcement that eight cities—Akron, Baltimore, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago, New York and Honolulu—were granted franchises.

Grange disclosed that the league was incorporated under Illinois laws, would set up headquarters in Chicago and had collected $10,000 guarantees from each of the prospective clubs.

Grange, in recent years a football author and radio broadcaster, declared that he had investigated "the whole pro setup" and felt certain there was room for a rival to the long-established National Football League. "Our club owners are all good businessmen — not millionaires — and they're not entering this thing on just a gamble," Grange asserted.

He said his league had "no axe to grind" with the National League, the proposed All-American Conference or other projected leagues. "We will not attempt to sign any players under contract with the National League, but as far as players they claim under the draft, that's another story. The final choice would be up to the player, himself."

WE pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands: One Nation, indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all.

Mr. Stettinius For Mr. Hull

ALTHOUGH resignation of Secretary of State Cordell Hull was not unexpected, it is regretted by the vast majority of Americans—New Dealers and Conservatives, Democrats and Republicans, by the Man in the street and the Housewife in the Home. For Mr. Hull is a great American, a prime world citizen and for the greater part of his lifetime has been a valuable and conscientious public servant.

Now 73 and in ailing health, Mr. Hull has resigned not only because of his own need for rest, but also because he believes the duties of his office may be better administered by a younger, more active man in good health. Probably he is right there, but even so, it is consoling to note that in the international peace and postwar conferences to come his advice and counsel will be sought and, if his physical condition permits, will be forthcoming.

Mr. Roosevelt's nomination of Edward R. Stettinius, jr., as Mr. Hull's successor is in keeping with the President's general policy of promoting able and efficient sub-cabinet officers and bureau executives to top posts whenever such vacancies arise. The nomination also indicates better than any other one thing since election day that the President, in his Fourth Term, likely will "stick to center," veering neither too far "left" or "right" in the makeup of his official family.

The President might have named to the secretaryship his great supporter, Henry Wallace. Certainly, Mr. Wallace has earned some sort of recognition for his effective Fourth Term campaigning in the face of his being dumped from the ticket at Chicago. Yet a Wallace nomination would have upset the nation's conservatives, and rightfully so, and the President knew it.

On the other hand, considerable pressure was applied upon the Chief Executive in favor of War Mobilizer James Byrnes, a very able man but one whose appointment would have brought loud dissent from the radicals who dislike his Southern background. Wisely, the President avoided that.

It is true that Mr. Stettinius at one time was top man at U. S. Steel—a position he inherited. Yet, at the same time, he long ago deserted what the President has called "well stocked clubs" to become a career man in the State department and has emerged as sufficiently liberal, while remaining intelligently conservative, to secure and maintain the trust of the majority of the American public. His work under Mr. Hull has been generally praised and commended and that he was Mr. Hull's own choice of a successor is widely believed in Washington circles.

As we see it—and, we believe, as most Americans will see it—Mr. Roosevelt has made a logical choice, a just choice.

And we join the President in believing and hoping time will prove it a highly satisfactory choice, fully productive of world amity.

The Same, Monotonous Tune

MR. DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE was singing a familiar—and monotonous—tune the other day when, in his first press interview in two years he laid the blame for the failure of the League of Nations, and, by inference, the responsibility for World War No. 2, upon refusal of the United States to go along with the league back in 1919 and 1920.

Just to keep the record straight in their minds, Americans will do well to remember that even if we had been in the league, we should have had one, lone, solitary vote.

Would one vote have been enough to stop Hitler's march in to the Ruhr?

Would that one vote have been enough to force the French and British out of their lethargy when Mussolini drove against Ethiopia and the Japs marched into Manchukuo?

Who was "looking the other way" when these aggressive movements went unchecked?

Who refused to listen to Haile Salassie in his impassioned speech before the league?

Well, among those so otherwise occupied was the British government, which also was represented by its prime minister at Munich.

Perhaps we "missed the boat" when we didn't string along with the league after World War I. But if we did, we were not alone in "boat missing" in the years which followed.

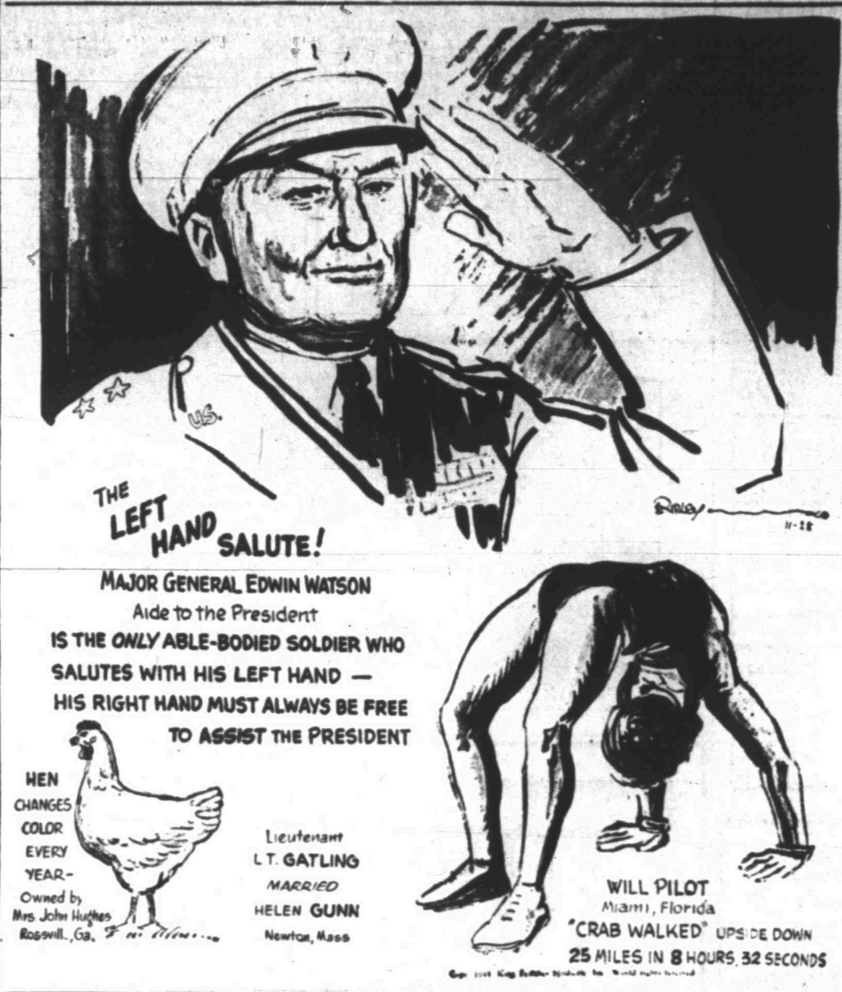

The record, whether Mr. Lloyd-George pleases to remember it or not, shows that the League of Nations was not only poorly founded, but weak and ineffectual throughout its unhappy existence. Therefore, it will occur to thinking people that the league's impotency was more the fault of the nation's in it—of the nations running it—than the fault of one nation which stayed out of it.

Statements such as that of Mr. Lloyd-George, who, at best, is a long-range observer, certainly do nothing to improve Anglo-American relations, nor do they add anything to hopes of better relations between the nations in the postwar era which is to come.

Expressing the inflation incidence algebraically, X now equals about what V equalled seven years ago.

You Gotta Think Quick

THE STORY: Leo Kabateck, lately broke, is in the money now that he's prime legal adviser to racketeer Virgil Boggio. He has just moved into the swank Columbus Towers. Boggio's girl friend, Ginger, announces she is coming over for a house-warming. Boggio is out of town. Ginger makes a play for Kabateck but he's not having any. She flounces out.

VIII

It wasn't until I was shaving next morning that I decided what to do. I could have kicked myself for having been such a damned fool. Who was I to take that holier-than-thou attitude? That statement about remaining good friends was about the dumbest thing I could have said to a woman like Ginger.

Immediately after her departure I'd been pretty sore. I'd shifted all the blame on her. Why did she have to bounce out like that merely because I'd hinted we were beginning to tread on dangerous ground? Was that an insult? Couldn't she have taken it in the spirit that it had been said? And then I'd started pacing back and forth, trying to figure out how I should have handled the situation. I wasn't only annoyed because of the unpleasant taste the whole thing left in my mouth, but also because I don't like to feel I've made a mistake.

The sight of the remains of our dinner and the empty champagne bottle had irritated me so I'd sent for the waiter. He must have been surprised to find me alone, but didn't show it. He merely inquired if everything had been satisfactory. I don't remember what I barked at him, but he wheeled the cart out in a hurry. My entire evening had been spoiled. All the joy of moving was gone.

But this morning, with the sunshine streaming in through the bathroom window, things began to look different. When a fellow's shaving it's a good time for him to formulate plans. And shaving in this place was an entirely painless procedure.

By the time I was through I knew how I was going to handle Ginger. She'd been so anxious to come over not because she wanted to see the apartment but because she wanted to see me. What better opportunity could there be? Boggio was out of town and here was a perfect excuse for paying me a visit. She'd figured out what she was going to do even before she'd hung up the receiver. I should have known better than to imagine that the champagne had anything to do with her frame of mind.

The more I thought about it, the better I could see how her mind had been working. Here we were, Ginger and I, thrown together by our relationship with Boggio. We both hated him and—even though I didn't care to admit it to myself—feared him. But we also knew how to play our cards and make Boggio come across handsomely for whatever he was getting.

Since Ginger's relationship with him was based upon purely financial reasons, she was going to be careful not to jeopardize her standing. I bet one couldn't count the guys who'd made passes at her but she was smart enough to play the role of the faithful little woman. For if Boggio was generous he was also jealous and didn't set a very high price on human life. Ginger no doubt feared that a new boy friend might eventually have become indiscreet. That is why she had decided—reluctantly no doubt—to stick to the straight and narrow path even though Boggio wasn't precisely the type to satisfy her exacting temperament.

And then she'd discovered me. I was the perfect soul mate. I had the same reasons for discretion as she had. And since I'd suddenly come up in the world, this was the appropriate moment. Now, more than ever, I'd wish to remain in Boggio's good graces. It was all so simple that a child could have reasoned it out.

But the strange thing was my own frame of mind. I'd never thought of Ginger as being accessible to me and I try to avoid desiring that which is inaccessible. But now the situation had changed. She'd practically thrown herself at my head and the reason I'd bungled was because I'd been taken unawares.

I heard the bell at the end of the line ring and ring, and I was beginning to think Ginger wasn't in when she finally answered. Her voice was thick with sleep. "Hello."

"Oh, hello, Ginger. How are you?"

She grunted something that could be construed any way I pleased. I let it go and continued in my most cheerful manner.

"Hope I didn't wake you up, Ginger. Maybe I'm calling a little early."

"Virgil's not here. He's still out of town."

"I know, Ginger. I don't want to talk to Virgil. I want to talk to you."

"You needn't bother."

"Come now, Ginger. Don't tell me you're still mad."

"I'm not mad. I'm just not interested."

If the telephone line was sensitive to a drop in temperature it would soon be snapping in half a dozen different places.

"Now listen, Ginger, I only wanted to tell you—"

That's as far as I got. She hung up on me. I waited for a few moments, then asked the operator to get the number again. The phone rang for what seemed to be an eternity and at last the operator cut in.

"There's no answer."

"That's all right," I said. "Keep on ringing."

At the end of the line the receiver was suddenly yanked off the cradle. Still no answer.

This was going to be harder than I thought.

Looking At Life - - - - - By Erich Brandeis

I WAS sitting in my den yesterday afternoon with nothing much to do, feeling kind of discouraged after reading the papers with all the unpleasant news of the day.

Across the room stood a little wooden box about tw and a half feet long and a foot high.

It was just a box, like thousands of others, until I turned one of its dials.

And then suddenly, out of that box, like magic, came the magnificent music of a Beethoven Concerto played by a Philharmonic orchestra conducted by Arturo Toscanini.

I closed my eyes and listened, and out of my den with its four walls I drifted into a world of beauty and romance.

When the music was finished I turned the dial, and once more there stood the little wooden box, like thousands of others, silent, just a bit of furniture.

I had to mail a couple of letters.

I went into the garage. There stood a huge pile of metal, glass and rubber.

I stepped on a button—and, lo, the metal monster seemed to take wings, and quickly took me to my destination.

When I returned it had grown dark. So I went to a little switch on the wall, gave it a twist — and the house was flooded with light.

The living room was cold. I stepped to a small contraption called a thermostat, moved the lever an inch—and in five minutes there was heat.

In the meantime, by turning another switch, the kitchen stove had been heated and a delicious dinner was being prepared.

* * *

I MARVELED. What wonderful creatures we humans are! Music, romance, movement, light, heat, food—all by turning a switch, pressing a button, moving a lever.

What is there greater than men?

And yet—

Here in my hand I hold a little oblong thing. It might be a bit of candy or a button.

It is a seed.

I put that seed into the ground and next spring it will have developed into a beautiful plant bearing lovely, colorful flowers.

That great, big maple tree in front of my house was once such a seed, once, when there were no radios and automobiles and electric lights and radiators.

I looked out of the window. A neighbor is wheeling a baby carriage along the road.

Two months ago that baby was not born. Where did it come from? What gave it breath and mind and soul?

What makes man great? Or is he great until he solves the mysteries of nature and of life?

But enough for now—I am looking at life too much today.

The News Behind The News

WINNING THE WAR
By Albert Loman

THE swaying battle on the Western front with its violent attacks and breath-taking pauses not only is reaching a climax but is consuming more artillery ammunition than we—with our record-smashing production program—are currently turning out.

This sobering fact is behind the alarmist statements made twice this week by Lieutenant General Brehon Somervell—once before the American Federation of Labor Convention in New Orleans and later to the delegates of the Congress of Industrial Organization in Chicago.

Washington associates of the commanding general of the Army Service Forces echo his warnings. Output of munitions is lagging forty per cent. Two-thirds of this deficiency is in critical items needed right now by Eisenhower. His men are firing two tons of steel every minute.

Normally there is a span of six months from the time a shell leaves a factory until it arrives on the battlefield. So urgent is the need for heavy projectiles that eight-inch shells for "Black Panther" guns are hurled at the Germans within eighteen days after they are shipped from the manufacturing plants in the USA.

CASUALTIES: We are trying desperately to defeat the Reichswehr before Winter, by burying it under an avalanche of steel.

We used this method successfully in Normandy when the sheer weight of metal broke the hard thin enemy crust. But the Siegfried Line is one row of defenses after another, extending to the Rhine—and probably beyond.

We are fast approaching a condition which existed in the middle period of the last war when two enormous armies of belligerents tried in turn to penetrate the deep trench system. Each expended so much effort in a major offensive that it was too exhausted to capitalize on a break-through.

There are, however, certain more favorable factors today. This time the Allies should be able to mobilize enough reserves in men and guns to take advantage of any real gap in enemy lines.

There are no creeping barrages similar to the curtain of fire in Pershing's day, when men followed within a few yards of the carefully placed downpour of metal. Current tactics are marked by a greater over-all concentration of fire power and a wider use of protective armor. Fewer men than in 1918 are on the actual front line, hence casualties are proportionately lower.

SPEEDWAYS: If Nazi resistance is stiff, our bombardment will literally plow up the back country and leave great shell holes filled with rain water. Our mechanized vehicles will encounter difficulty moving through the desolated area, especially during the present wet season.

To offset this impending obstacle, our ordnance specifications have been revised to include a more powerful Sherman tank, equipped with wider tracks for crawling through mire, somewhat similar to those used by the Russians in the Polish swamp country.

An almost chaotic congestion on the muddy roads of the Argonne at one period of the last war caused such a traffic jam that men in the combat zone could not be supplied with food for days.

Prime Minister Clemenceau was so alarmed by the enforced halt that he sought to have President Wilson remove General Pershing. The snarl was untangled and the doughboys went on to victory with "Black Jack" at their head.

To facilitate a steady, unbroken stream of supplies reaching Eisenhower's combat troops, we not only have established the famous Red Ball express highway from Cherbourg to the battle zone but we have recently opened three other truck speedways—the White Ball, the Green Diamond and an unnamed artery from Mediterranean ports.

The lines never stop. Each day one hundred vehicles break down, but they are pushed aside for repairs and replacements take over immediately.

EXPLOSIVES: Apart from our lack of sufficient artillery and mortar ammunition, tanks and trucks, our greatest problem at present can be summed up in the one word "concrete."

Army officers in describing the situation recall a waterfront fire in New York a couple of years ago during which the firemen were two days blasting through the cement pier bulkheads before they could reach the blaze. And there was no enemy potting them while they worked.

Todt engineers have constructed fortifications of reinforced concrete which are extraordinarily tough. In a specific instance every type shell that we possess, from mortar to massive howitzer projectiles, bounced off a pillbox and merely succeeded in unhinging a porthole cover.

It is an axiom that no attack is possible without infantrymen, yet today the engineer is as much the key man as the doughboy.

Bombardments and spurts from flame-throwers keep a Nazi pillbox crew from observing what is taking place ahead; meanwhile, demolition squads crawl forward, place their explosives in position and then blow the strongpoint to Kingdom come.

One of the most valuable inventions of the war is a new, powerful explosive which can be quickly "stuck" against the smooth side of a pillbox and the fuse touched off.

MANPOWER: Another advantage which we enjoy is a growing superiority in manpower.

Fresh troops are always available to spell tired divisions. We have captured crated airplanes on German airfields, a clear indication that the enemy did not have sufficient men to unpack them—even though the Luftwaffe badly needs additional aircraft.

However, vigorous denial is made in high military circles in Washington that the War Department ever officially predicted December 1 as the date of victory—although a couple of weeks ago a lot of high-ranking officers here and in New York were privately circulating that guess.

Everyone in the Capital hopes that Eisenhower's new drive will be the knockout punch, but every war agency is also preparing for a few more rounds.

GIRLS: Washington may be, as Republican politicians bewail, the home of "tired old men." But every Saturday night youth takes over the town.

Soldiers and sailors come in to enjoy weekend passes and Government girls then have plenty of dates. There are probably more pretty girls to the square yard in this city than in any other place in the United States, excepting, of course, the community in which this newspaper is published.

The good humor and wisecracking so typical of Young America in uniform are evident everywhere. The writer overheard the following snatches of conversation:

A couple of soldiers with their girls were passing the White House. "That's where my boss lives," boasted one G. I.

"Huh," snorted his date, "you haven't even seen the man you work for."

GOBS: A little colored shoeshine kid attempted to drum up trade with some sailors.

"Is it free?" asked one of them.

"No, suh," answered the boy.

"That's the trouble," solemnly chided the gob. "That's why you're not getting any business, buddy."

LEATHERNECKS: A Marine was trying to explain to his restaurant companion the significance of the two new chevrons on his sleeve. She couldn't quite grasp it.

"Well, it's like this, Clara," he said. "These marks mean I'm now a corporal. That's the same rank as a captain in the Army."

The real point here is that it was not intended as a joke. Every Leatherneck is convinced that he belongs to the best company in the best division in the best branch of the Service. Faith in their own superiority is one reason why the Marines fight so well.

Auto Roads Of Future To Be Something To Behold!

By GORDON SHEARER
United Press Correspondent

AUSTIN, Nov. 27.—Automobile owners, hungry for travel after war-time experience with rationed gasoline and slow speed to save tires, will have a drivers' Heaven if all the highway plans being made for after the war can be accomplished.

The Galveston Bay tube and the Fort Worth-Dallas Expressway are but two of many road plans under consideration.

There will be a four lane highway between Galveston and Houston, a north to south expressway is planned also and the Fort Worth-Dallas expressway will eventually be extended eastward from Dallas and west to El Paso by interregional highways.

* * *

No Traffic Lights!

Plans for the Dallas-Fort Worth Expressway are enough to make the present day motorist want to live to see its completion.

Engineers picture a road built for safe 75-mile an hour travel in the country and 50-miles an hour inside the cities.

There will be no traffic lights, no grade crossings and double, wide traffic ways in each direction. Traffic will be fed into and out of the Expressway by broad-curve lanes.

THE prospect is not so amazing in its promises as it is in its contrast with conditions that the present generation of Texans can well remember.

Many still living and young enough to drive an automobile at the promised 75 miles an hour without fear of traffic cops can remember when the first automobile appeared on a Texas road.

The late E. H. R. Green shipped it by rail to Terrell, Texas, and when he first drove it to Dallas, horses bolted from the road, children ran into the house as he passed farms and "statesmen" of the day proposed a law to ban mechanically-propelled vehicles from public roads.

"Chalk Hill" Recalled

It was considerably later when the Dallas-Fort Worth round-trip, to be possible in an hour, was a journey that drivers boasted about when they made both ways in a day.

There was no paving then and "Chalk Hill" west of Dallas had to be negotiated in low.

In fact there is a story that an enterprising salesman in Dallas once sold a car to a doubtful prospect by demonstrating to him that he could drive the car up "Chalk Hill" backwards. The prospective buyer didn't know that a car can be backed up a grade that will stall it going forward.

IT appears to be officially conceded now that Texas school teachers are going to get their salaries increased by the next legislature.

In the budget prepared by the State Board of Control for submission to the session beginning in January, cognizance is taken of the teacher shortage.

Though the board has no authority in raising the salaries, it does make that suggestion in an ex-officio manner.

Chairman of the Board of Control by law is made an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees for the Texas Teacher Retirement system.

Governor Gets Outline

An outline of the budget, which was submitted to Gov. Coke R. Stevenson, commented:

"We have much to our credit in Texas about which we can boast, but our education is not one of them.

"As long as business and industry offer better opportunities in security of employment and salaries than does the teaching profession, we cannot hope to improve our standards of education and properly reward those who loyally stayed in the profession throughout the years.

"The state is now financially able to provide reasonable increases in teachers' salaries."

THE Texas State Teachers association is expected to urge legislation asking that the present $900 annual salary minimum be increased to $1,200 and that the amount to be increased up to $2,100 in a 20-year period.

Additional salary of $100 would be allowed for teachers holding Master's degrees.

Other legislative proposals will be discussed by TSTA members in their meeting in Fort Worth November 24-25.

At that time the association's program will be whipped into the nearest thing to final form.

From there, Texas legislators will have the situation in their hands.

Early Applicant

Recently the Austin WAC recruiting staff received an inquiry by mail for information about joining the WACs.

Anxious to do their duty, the whole staff trooped over to the applicant's home.

The door was opened by a 10-year-old child who led the recruiters into the living room.

"Who was it here who wanted to join the WACs?" the recruiters politely nquired.

"It's me," piped the small child.

Front In North May Hold Crisis

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press War Analyst

Undramatic as has been the progress of Allied armies in the rain-sodden northern area of the west front as compared with events in the south, the elements of a crisis for the Nazi foe are taking definite shape there.

They can be seen in the three-Army approach to the Roer river . . . a 15-mile front that has brought main enemy anchorages along that waterway from south of Duren to north of Linnich under American or British fire. They are obvious, too, northeastward on the Meuse where British Second Army forces have closed with Venlo.

SIMPSON

Between these two Allied attack prongs lies a narrow westward jutting finger of the German frontier. It forms a segment of the Siegfried line. The exact Allied front, presumably held by the British about the westward bulge of German territory east of Stittard is not quite clear, but it is certain that a dangerous salient for the enemy is developing.

Allied Vise Tightens

Between the two active zones an Allied vise grip is developing on that German central bulge to compell its evacuation sooner or later, perhaps without a frontal assault. Its fall would widen the breach already driven into Siegfried defenses. The gap would yawn virtually from Duren to Venlo, which is a critically important communications hub.

While the German bridgehead west of the Meuse is reported virtually eliminated by the British, there has been no intimation as yet of a British attempt to cross the river itself if it has been reached anywhere from north of Venlo to Roermond. That factor of the front, however, has obvious possibilities of not only a tactical but also a strategic nature which are still to be fully developed. A British break-through there could turn the present German resistance front either to the north or the south. It remains to be seen whether General Eisenhower throws in his reserves for the final attack when he is ready on the Meuse or on the Roer.

Hull's Successor

capacity and will prove to be an industrious and zealous secretary of state and active in the promotion of international peace and security."

Hull's illness cut short his career at its peak. He had set his heart on seeing through to creation the Dumbarton Oaks plan for world security organization. Stettinius had been his and President Roosevelt's lieutenant in bringing that plan into being in the Anglo-American - Soviet - Chinese conference here last summer.

Unlike the relationship he had with Sumner Welles, whose resignation he finally forced more than a year ago, Hull liked and worked well with Stettinius, from the time the latter joined the department as undersecretary in September, 1943.

Rise Is Phenomenal

His rise to the high position he now takes has been a phenomenon of wartime Washington. In 1939 he became chairman of the War Resources board and also headed what eventually became the War Production board.

Subsequently in January, 1941, he took over the lend-lease program. His work on this program was considered so satisfactory that when Mr. Roosevelt and Mr. Hull were looking around for a new under secretary of state, Stettinius was the one man whom Hull wanted.

At that time he had won the admiration of the Russians for his handling of lend - lease. This strengthened his White House ties, since Mr. Roosevelt has felt all along that the main objective of American postwar foreign policy must be to make sure that Russia takes a key position in world cooperation.

Adopt Lend-Lease Methods

His associates expect him to adapt to State department organization the methods he used in lend-lease administration. He built a top team of expert advisers on whose counsel and judgment he relied heavily at all times. This will necessitate some reorganization of the State department.

In fact, Stettinius had started a mild reorganization of the department, ironing out mostly little kinks, when the burden of world organization planning and later the illnesses of the secretary compelled him to put aside administrative tasks, which he likes, in favor of more pressing policy problems.

He has been running the department and, with President Roosevelt guiding American foreign policy since Hull last set foot in the department on Oct. 2. That was Hull's 73rd birthday. He looked chipper and spry for a man of so many years. The next day he stayed home with a throat ailment and about two weeks later he went to Bethesda Naval hospital where eventually he had two teeth extracted.

Hull "Awfully Tired"

But those who have seen him through this illness say that it was neither the throat ailment nor the teeth that broke his health at this time. Over and over again in recent days inquiries have heard from these sources, "the old gentleman is just awfully, awfully tired."

His resignation had been reported over the week-end. Shortly after noon today Mr. Roosevelt summoned correspondents to his office, told them that he had it and that with great and deep regret he was accepting it.

A few minutes later Stettinius went to the President's office for lunch. Mr. Roosevelt's post-luncheon callers were Senators Connally and George (D-Ga) whom he advised of his plans to promote Stettinius.

In thus filling the position he moved with extraordinary swiftness, presumably with an eye to preventing an outbreak of feuding among the divergent groups which helped elect him for the fourth term and which had their own favorites for the job.

Asked about Hull's future the President made it clear that he intended to make use of that veteran's advice and counsel on foreign affairs so long as he is able to give it. He said both Hull and his doctors felt that his complete recovery depended on relinquishing the cabinet position.

Moreover, the President added, Hull felt it would not be right for the country if he were to remain on the job.

Hull formally submitted a letter of resignation, apparently some time last week and Mr. Roosevelt, who visited him at naval hospital, accepted by letter

FAVORITES UP MODESTLY

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Modest support appeared for assorted favorites in today's stock market although many leaders had to contend with a dearth of sound bids.

The flow of pleasing earnings and dividends again served as a mild buying incentive. Even here there was no rush to expand commitments unduly. Speculative and investment forces still leaned to the conservative side on the idea that the Allied push on virtually all fronts might mean earlier consideration of reconversion problems at home. Belief that more year-end tax adjustments were due also was a restraining influence.

The Associated Press 60-stock average was up .2 of a point at 55.2. Of 857 issues registering, 371 were higher against 486 down or unchanged. Transfers totalled 737,534 shares compared with 677,880 Friday.

With the exception of Union Pacific, which dropped a point, rails added fractions. Ahead elsewhere were Westinghouse, Allied Chemical, Glenn Martin, Douglas Aircraft, International Telephone, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Steel, U. S. Rubber, Kennecott and Standard Oil (NJ).

NEW YORK FUTURES

NEW YORK, Nov. 27 (AP)—Early sagging tendencies in the cotton futures market today were reversed on a late flurry of mill buying and short covering which found offerings scarce. Closing prices were 10 to 40 cents a bale net higher.

Trading centered on pre-notice day evening up of December contracts, accompanied by considerable switching to later deliveries.

The December open interest at the close Saturday totalled 149,500 bales with certified stocks available for delivery only 6,633 bales. Indicating were, however, that the month will be liquidated in orderly fashion.

It was reported that Canada recently purchased a small amount of cotton under the 4 cents a pound subsidy plan.

Spot cotton markets were quiet.

The program phase of the meeting was devoted for the most part to World war 2 veterans. Barbecue was served.

Walter Allen, executive officer for the enforcement division of the Lubbock district OPA office, discussed in detail benefits offered by the so-called GI bill of rights. Admission of World war 2 veterans to the Legion was the subject of a talk by W. T. Strange.

Suspects Held In Burglaries Here

Two suspects were jailed Monday in connection with recent house burglaries which reached snowball proportions over the week-end with seven dwellings entered.

Chief of Detectives Bill Mabray said loot taken was "light."

A two-piece dress, eight jars of tomato juice and three jars of catsup were taken from the P. L. Chapman residence at 1513 Twenty-fourth. A wrist watch was tagen from 1521 Arnett. From Lamesa, it was reported by Sheriff Buck Bennett that a chest of drawers and a man's suit had been taken from a residence. He has had several burglaries reported recently.

Other Lubbock burglaries, in none of which was anything reported taken: At Silver Dollar cafe, at 1105 College; 2413 Ave. J, where a skeletn key was used; 1308 Arnett; and 327 North Monroe Ave.; and 1503 Twenty-third.

Automobiles Recovered

Police said they had been informed of theft and recovery of two automobiles on the South Plains: A Littlefield machine that was recovered with "three apprehensions of suspects" at El Paso, and a Brownfield machine recovered at Hobbs, N. M.

Police said a 16-year-old Lubbock Mexican and three of his "gang" had been transferred to the sheriff's department pending possible filing of charges in connection with a fight in the Mexican quarters and a later assault in which the gang had "attempted to cut another Mexican with a knife" at a Mexican theater. Eighteen Sunday arrests were docketed by police, four by the sheriff's department. Most of these resulted from drunkenness and all probably "will turn into misdemeanor offenses."

County court officials said that H. H. Williamson, 48, had pleaded guilty of drunk driving and had been fined $50 and court costs. His driver's license was suspended for six months. L. W. Wilhite of the Texas Highway patrol was complaining witness, said County Attorney Syrian E. Marbut The assessment was paid, the sheriff's department said can suspend an allocation of critical materials after once granting it and the person affected cannot go into court. The withdrawal of a "B" Gasoline ration, for example, amounts to a suspension order.

Through the Hobbs amendment a manufacturer who loses a supply of critical materials through a WPB suspension order could go into federal district court in his home district and ask for an injunction against the suspension. No suspension order could take effect within five days of its issuance.

The administration opposed the amendment from the outset, contending its adoption might glut the courts with war-priority litigation and slow up the allocation of critical materials needed for war manufacturing.

Sponsors of the amendment said, however, they do not believe much actual litigation will grow out of the change if it is adopted.

Appeals from WPB or war agency orders now go up through the agency itself and are passed upon finally by the office of James J. Byrnes, director of war mobilization and reconversion.

Japs Lash At Saipan

The communique disclosed that the Japanese apparently attempted a fighter sweep yesterday over Saipan, B-29 base for the Tokyo raids. Six Japanese fighters were downed by interceptors. Anti aircraft fire destroyed seven more.

No explanation was forthcoming as to what base the short-ranged Nipponese fighters used but it was likely they took off from the Bonin islands and tried to refuel at Pagan, where some of them were caught in an attempt to balk a newly-inaugurated Superfortress bombing campaign against Tokyo.

Liberators hitting the Bonins on the route from the Marianas to Tokyo on Friday hit Chichi Jima's radio station and airfield and bombed Iwo Jima in the Volcano islands. Mitchells again hit Chichi Jima harbor shipping Saturday.

Marine Corsairs set fire to an ammunition dump at Babelthuap in a series of hard-hitting strikes against the Palaus, which are partly in American hands.

Aerial Pincers

Vern Haughland, Associated Press war correspondent, described the operation as an amazing display of sustained power, with few of the men who took part in the initial raid going back over the 3,000-mile round trip today.

Led By Col. Sweeney

Today's mission was led by Col. Walter C. Sweeney, jr., 35, of Wheeling, W. Va., son of Maj. Gen. Sweeney of San Francisco. He rode a plane commanded by Maj. Robert Sewell, jr., of San Antonio, Tex. Brig. Gen. Emmett O'Donnell of Jamaica, N. Y., leader of the Friday mission, remained on Saipan. Two planes were lost on the first mission, but the entire crew of one of them was rescued, adrift on rafts.

Today's Tokyo raiders set out, Haughland reported, expecting heavier opposition than the fighter force of up to 100 planes that met the earlier Tokyo strike. The light opposition actually met was evidently a surprise.

Rainey's Ouster Threat Revealed

vestigations. The Senate committee is inquiring into the series of disputes between Rainey and the regents that led to his discharge.

Bullington also told the committee that he had offered testimony in regard to sexual perversion at the university because he was required by oath to tell the "whole truth."

"I do not have now nor have I had any will or desire to injure the university or any member of its faculty or student body," he said in a formal statement read into the record. The statement was in reply to a recent editorial in the Austin American which Bullington said "was apparently made to smear and discredit me and three other regents who also adopted my testimony as theirs." The editorial said in part: "What Orville Bullington said before this committee made an all-time low on the part of anybody connected with the university or any other Texas institution of higher learning . . ."

Comment On Criticism

Asked by Sen. Wardlow Lane to comment on criticism that the committee had not been fair, Bullington replied:

"The committee has never been discourteous. I enjoyed your cross-examination. You have not limited me at all."

Lane's question referred to a letter sent committee members by Lieut.-Gov. John Lee Smith, requesting that it conduct "an impartial hearing, fair alike to both groups involved."

The medical school controversy occupied a prominent role in these differences, and was cited by Dr. Rainey in his bill of complaints against the regents Oct. 12 as an instance of administrative encroachments by the regents.

Denies "Sabotage" Plan

Dr. Gregory denied that the faculty of the medical school had deliberately attempted to "sabotage an educational effort" in its position in the dispute, and charged that some of the acts of Drs. Rainey and Spies justify "our belief that Dr. Rainey, in being a champion of academic freedom, either had short memory or his tongue in his cheek."

Dr. Rainey had cited instances of what he had termed violations of academic freedom by the regents, in his 16 points of complaint.

Dr. Stone testified that there were "serious infringements" upon academic freedom and tenure at the medical school by the Rainey-Spies administration. Dr. Stone also said that the medical branch had deteriorated rapidly "under the Rainey-Spies regime" despite unprecedented financial support by the legislature.

Both witnesses appeared to speak in behalf of a resolution passed by the medical school faculty Nov. 20, expressing confidence in the judgment of the board of regents and declaring that the medical school's "unwise administration" was corrected only after an investigation by the regents.

Reports Are Cited

They quoted numerous paragraphs from the reports of accrediting agencies in support of their testimony, bearing upon the creation of new departments, methods of admission of students, and other conditions including qualification of some department heads.

Dr. Gregory told the committee the case of Dr. Donald Duncan, who left the school in 1942, was "one of the tragic instances in the whole affair."

"Dr. Duncan was one of the individuals who found cause to disagree with Dean Spies," Dr. Gregory testified in connection with his charge that the former dean would brook no opposition. He said that Dr. Duncan had been made acting head of the department of anatomy, and that Dean Spies had told him he could get the post "with a legislative appropriation of $6,000 a year, with the understanding that $1,000 of this be set aside to be used for purposes of the department of anatomy."

Other Instances Also

"There were other instances of that sort," he declared.

Dr. Duncan was properly active in "stating his and the faculty's case," Dr. Gregory said, and ultimately Dr. Rainey wrote him that he could not look forward to appointment as permanent head of the department because of his attitude in the Spies affair and not because he was not a good anatomist.

Dr. Gregory testified that in his own case, he had been brought to the medical school by Dean Spies, that he had tried to support him, but that he had disagreed with him on many occasions, and that Dr. Spies had as a result subjected him to "considerable amount of personal villification and told me I was through."

"I told him I was good sport enough to take his dare," Dr. Gregory testified. "I leave it to you to judge whether academic freedom was practiced in the institution at that time." Dr. Gregory also cited these as examples of what he believed to be examples of unwise administration:

Case of Faculty Imposter

The case of a former faculty member, later found to be an imposter, in which Dr. Rainey had supported Dr. Spies in recommending his promotion "over the protest of the head of the department."

Dr. Spies' insistence that the faculty council on admission of students select 60 freshmen students, with Spies to select the remainder. "As a result of this, many inferior types of students were admitted."

Dr. Stone, in support of his declaration that Rainey and Spies used "unsound and arbitrary methods of administration," offered in essence this testimony:

The regents had a rule under which the medical faculty selected standing committees by annual ballot, but the Rainey-Spies administration changed the rule so that the administration could appoint standing committees. "This change completely emasculated the faculty; made it subservient to the administration."

Dr. Spies' "methods of brutality" in dealing with the faculty and his past record "did not inspire confidence in his leadership." Spies demanded that the school's technical bulletin be submitted to him for censorship, he severely edited memorial contributions, he had a "concealed microphone on his desk so he could record conversations he had and use it to your disadvantage if he wanted to. As a personality he was cold, ruthless and self-seeking."

First And Third Slash Forward

clean out the rest of Kirchberg.

Hammering at Julich along a 10-mile front, the Ninth on its north flank sent armored forces ahead some 500 yards and on the south advanced 500 yards northeast of Altdorf, three miles south of the town.

Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' doughboys to the south fought into the center of Langerwehe, 14 miles inside Germany and the last major road center before the Roer, four miles east. Eight miles south they seized most of the forest anchor town of Hurtgen, two and a half miles from the river.

Five miles southwest of Duren they fought into Grosshau, which earlier was plastered by artillery. Like the Ninth, the First was fighting the bitterest kind of opposition over a battlefield turned into a quagmire by rain and snow.

Cross Saar Frontier

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's forces burst across the Saar's western frontier at a new point along a three-mile front, and were driving on three Saar towns after gains of up to a mile.

They lengthened their lines inside Germany to 19 miles.

To the southwest, they slashed through the old Maginot line at a second point and gained six miles in an advance close to Merten, only one mile west of the Saar border.

To the southeast, they captured the road center of St. Avold, where the Maginot line was breached yesterday, fought north to within two miles of the Saar frontier, and east two miles to within 13 miles of the basin's industrial city of Saarbrucken.

(Far from underestimating this new and menacing assault, the Germans said the attacks were being made by "strong American tank forces.")

Facing Great Test

From north to south, the winter offensive of General Eisenhower was forging ahead, meeting its greatest test of strength on the Cologne plain, which Field Marshal Karl Rudolf Gerd von Rundstedt apparently has chosen to defend at the expense of his southern front.

The British Second Army scored a gain of a third of a mile in a line-straightening attack north of Gellenkirchen in Germany.

The German stand west of the Rhine on the southern end of the front was deteriorating rapidly, and their Siegfried line positions east of the river were pounded by U. S. heavy bombers flying in close support of the U. S. Seventh Army for the first time.

Seventh Army forces widened the Saverne gap positions leading to Strasbourg and pushing on about four miles to a point 12 miles north of the city within sight of the Rhine.

Breaking through the Saales pass out on the Alsace plain, other forces of the Seventh seized the city of Molsheim, 11 miles southwest of Strasbourg, and were within eight miles of breaking clear through a second Vosges pass of Ste. Marie farther south.

Mulhouse Area Cleared

At the extreme end of the front, the French First Army cleared the Mulhouse area of the enemy with drives to the east and west, and cut the road from Belfort to Mulhouse thus sewing up any Germans still pocketed in the gap.

The British Second Army in eastern Holland cleaned up the enemy's once menacing salient west of the Maas river except for three or four pockets.

Once more the weather on the crucial front at the approaches to the Cologne plain was deteriorating, but fighter bombers rained destruction on enemy positions through thickening clouds.

Gathering new power, the First Army pushed a mile northwest of newly-captured Weisweiler, seized Frenz, which was covered by entrenchments and strongly defended, and drove 400 yards beyond. The two, 25 miles west of Cologne, fell only after three successive attacks.

Others Go Straight East

Meanwhile other units fought straight east of Weisweiler and penetrated into the heart of Langerwehe, less than five miles west of Duren, which stands on the Roer blocking the road to Cologne.

Heavy fighting continued for high ground in the northeastern edge of Hurtgen forest, where the doughboys fought to within four and a half miles of Duren yesterday. Just to the south the fortified town of Grosshau was melting away in the fire of an American artillery barrage.

Seven miles southwest of Duren, the town of Hurtgen, which had withstood repeated assaults, appeared to be falling after many weeks of battle in its vicinity as the doughboys fighting in from the west took the major part of it from the bitterly-resisting enemy. It was costly, yard-by-yard slugging.

Knee Deep In Water

The U. S. Ninth Army on the First's north flank, at times wading knee deep through the flood waters of the Roer, was attacking the outer defenses of Julich. Lt. Gen. Simpson's boys knocked out five more enemy tanks and brought their 10-day total to 141.

Heavy fighting raged around Barmen, two and a half miles northwest of Julich, Koslar, two miles west, Kirchberg, one and a half miles due south, and Altdrof, three miles south.

While floods hampered the advance of Gen. Simpson's infantry, it also flushed the enemy from cellars which the Nazi had converted into strongpoints.

German artillery, backed to the east bank of the Roer, was firing on the American lines.

WITH the AEF

by KENNETH L. DIXON

ON THE WESTERN FRONT, Nov. 21 (Delayed) (AP)—By rights you could hardly call it a routine combat patrol. For one thing, it fail to accomplish its mission. It was a motorized patrol, and that's strictly not routine for infantry.

DIXON

There were other reasons, too.

The order came down, "get us a German prisoner and bring him back alive," and Company B drew the short straw.

In late afternoon two jeep loads went high-balling down a muddy road toward the enemy. Lt. Howard Bell of New York and S/Sgt. Edward Dagenhart of Dodge City, Kansas, holder of the Silver Star with Oak Leaf Cluster, commanded the two groups.

Run Into Road Block

Five miles inside enemy territory they skidded to a halt in front of a road block and hit the dirt. Some 25 Germans behind the barricade poured out merciless fire.

Somehow Cpl. Walter Votz of Lawrence, Kans., managed to back his jeep to cover. Dagenhart grabbed the machine gun, but it jammed.

Pfc. John Humpa of Philadelphia and Pfc. Bob Teitz of Winona, Minn., kept firing a Browning automatic rifle until their ammunition was gone. They then ran out of carbine ammunition, too.

Sling Grenades Then

The boys began clinging grenades.

When the Germans took cover the fire eased off, the patrol piled into the jeeps, turnd around and tore out for home.

They hadn't accomplished their mission, but they had killed several Germans and were lucky to be alive.

But it wasn't over.

"We only had about a mile left to go when the Krauts stopped us again," said Dagenhart. "This time they had us surrounded. Bullets were coming from bushes, trees, even a nearby house. We all hit the side of the road."

But now thy had rifle ammunition again. After a 20-minute fight they managed to reach the jeeps in the middle of the road, but somebody had to cover the getaway before they dared jump up and expose themselves in the vehicles.

Three Elect Selves

So Dagenhart, Pfc. Jimmy Oris of Johnstown, Pa., and Pvt. Leo Kell of Pensacola, Fla., elected themselves.

While the others jumped into the jeeps the holding trio lay there firing. The two jeeps got 200 yards down the road, rounded a curve and halted.

Oris, Kell and Dagenhart set a brand-new record for the 200-yard dash, with plenty of starting guns for their grim race.

They made it and headed home again, leaving at least 10 more dead Germans.

McCarty Named Head Of Ministerial Group

Rev. C. J. McCarty, Calvary Baptist church pastor, Monday was elected president of Lubbock Ministerial association.

He succeeds Dr. H. I. Robinson, pastor of the First Methodist church, and is to be installed at an annual association dinner program Jan. 5.

Elected vice president was Rev. Alsie H. Carleton, pastor of St. John's Methodist church. Rev. Cecil R. Matthews, director of the Wesley foundation, was re-elected secretary for the ninth year.

A committee was appointed to confer with chamber of commerce officials regarding changing from war time back to standard time, another to urge payment of poll taxes so as to create an "insurance bloc" in a possible beer election in Lubbock county.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)
