Roswell Considered As Site For Refugee Camp

ROSWELL, N.M. (UPI) — An estimated 1,000-5,000 Vietnamese refugees may be housed temporarily at the Roswell Industrial Air Center within the next month, a federal official reports.

Roy Washam, chief of real estate planning for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Dallas, said Sunday the air center is one of several sites that may be used as a special placement center for refugees.

He said Ellington Air Force Base in Houston was the most probable location for the proposed camp. Other possible sites include Kansas City, Mo.; California and the Southeast, he said.

Washam, who said he made inquiries to aid an HEW site location team, said the camp has been suggested as a way to handle refugees reportedly en route from Vietnam to Guam in a ship. The ship normally accommodates 1,000 passengers but could be carrying up to 5,000, "knowing the way they stack people in boats over there," he said.

An official of the State Department's refugee office in Washington denied knowledge of the project.

"I have never heard of this before," said Harry B. Cushing of the department's Office of Refugee and Migration Affairs. "I can't imagine who would have come up with such an idea.

"We have no intention of using a military base or any other facility to bring in refugees; not presently, at least," Cushing said. "If there's such a plan, it's in someone's head, or if it turns out to be right, obviously my days are numbered here."

Washam said the project probably would be directed by Ambassador Dick Clark, a former Iowa congressman who is the U.S. coordinator for refugee affairs. He said Clark probably would choose a task force to evaluate the proposed camp with the assistance of HEW.

If established, the new camp would be set up to function better than similar camps established in 1975, Washam said.

"It's going to be a little bit smoother this time," he said. "For one thing, we know what to expect. Also we should have a site selected and geared up to operate by the time they hit the mainland, although we are going to have to work pretty fast, because we feel that it's only about three weeks away."

He said the Roswell site was being considered because of available housing and climate, but said he believed the Houston site was probably the best choice.

"It would be an inconvenience to the local community (Roswell) for a short period of time," he said, "while in Houston, they (refugees) would hardly be noticed."

Washam said the refugees would undergo a two or three week processing period, which would include a medical examination, inoculations, preparation of Social Security documents and relocation with a sponsor.

Solons Air Spending, Tax Bills

AUSTIN (UPI) — Three legislative conference committees of 10 members each now face a big job concerning "big money" that must be completed in a small amount of time.

The conference committees today began seriously tackling the three "big money" issues — The state budget, school finance and tax relief — none of which can be finally resolved without consideration of the others. There are two weeks left in the 1979 legislative session in which to resolve them.

The conference committee on the budget for the next two years began its negotiating sessions last week in an effort to resolve differences between the Senate's $20.8 billion spending plan and a $20.3 billion bill approved by the House.

The major dispute in those negotiations is expected to be a 4 percent across-the-board cut in non-salary spending programs adopted by the House after it had methodically reviewed each budget for each state agency.

Senators made it clear at the first negotiating session they want no part of an across-the-board cut, and will insist on determining the funding for each agency individually.

There also are major differences in the tax relief plans approved by the two houses, although the House and Senate agree basically that school districts should receive close to $450 million in state reimbursement during the next two years as compensation for revenue lost through a series of new mandatory tax exemptions.

Senators decided, however, to distribute the tax relief funds through the school finance legislation. House members included the reimbursement money in their bill implementing the exemptions.

School finance negotiations traditionally are among the toughest of each legislative session, because rural and urban legislators frequently disagree on the best manner in which to distribute the state's aid to public schools.

Both agree this session that teachers need an average 7 percent pay raise in addition to step increases already in the law, despite Gov. Bill Clements' firm position that pay raises for teachers should be the same as for other state employees — 5.1 percent per year.

The school finance issue is not yet formally in the confernce committee stage, although the House took only minutes last week to reject the Senate version of the bill and sent its own proposal to the Senate as the first step toward

Woman Gets Right To Sue Universities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled today that a Chicago woman who claimed she was denied admission to medical school because of her sex has the right to sue the university, or universities, under a seven-year-old federal civil rights law.

In a 6-3 decision, the court said the 1972 law barring discrimination at universities which receive federal funds implicitly created the right of individuals to sue. The court said the law did not limit the right of suit only to the government.

The decision opens the way for the trial of a suit by Geraldine Cannon, who claimed she was denied admission to the medical schools of the University of Chicago and Northwestern University in 1975 because of her sex. Her suit contended that medical schools discouraged application by persons over 30 and therefore had an adverse impact on women, who she said are statistically more likely than men to apply for admission after age 30.

The universities contended they should not be required to justify individual admissions decisions in court by anyone who claims discrimination.

Justice John Paul Stevens, writing for the majority, said the 1972 Civil Rights Act implicitly created the right for an individual to sue an educational institution in sex discrimination cases.

"When Congress intends private litigants to have a cause of action to support their statutory rights, the far better course is for it to specify as much when it creates those rights," Stevens said.

"But the court has long recognized that under certain limited circumstances the failure of Congress to do so is not inconsistent with an intent on its part to have such a remedy available to the persons benefited by its legislation," he said. "We therefore conclude that petitioner (Mrs. Cannon) may maintain her lawsuit, despite the absence of any express authorization for it in the statute."

Justice Lewis F. Powell Jr., in a dissent, said the ruling could open the way for cumbersome challenges to admissions decisions that would place an unfair burden on universities.

"Arming frustrated applicants with the power to challenge in court his or her rejection inevitably will have a constraining effect on admissions programs," said Powell.

Justices Byron R. White and Harry A. Blackmun also dissented.

In other action today, the high court:

—Left intact a Massachusetts law that restricts the use of state money for abortions.

—Agreed to decide whether a "legislative privilege" prohibits federal prosecutors from inquiring into the acts of state legislators.

—Ruled 7 to 2 in a case involving the Church of Scientology that U.S. Customs inspectors may ban importation of written materials that advocate illegal conduct.

—Ruled unanimously that private owners of non-profit facilities taken for public use are entitled only to a "fair market price," not the cost of providing substitute facilities.

—Refused to hear arguments aimed at making it easier to collect money awards in private, non-media lawsuits for libel or slander.

—Agreed, in a case involving the Freedom of Information Act, to review lower court decisions barring public access to government-financed research into effects of anti-diabetes pills.

Sadat Defies Arabs' Economic Reprisals

By The Associated Press

In a fresh reprisal against Egypt for signing the peace treaty with Israel, the Saudi defense minister announced today the dissolution of the $1.04 billion Egyptian-based Arab arms manufacturing company.

Egyptian President Anwar Sadat, in a speech near Cairo, attacked his Arab critics as "dwarfs," and said their actions were those of little children. He also indicated that he expects Egypt and Israel to reach a settlement of the problem of Jerusalem by the end of this year.

A committee representing the four participating states in the arms company, Saudi Arabia, Qatar, the United Arab Emirates and Egypt, has been formed to liquidate the company, the Saudi minister, Prince Sultan Ibn Abdul Aziz, added in a statement published by the official Saudi News Agency.

The Arab Organization for Industrialization was formed by these four states in 1975, and has since been producing rockets, bombs, armored vehicles and automatic weapons for Arab armies.

The joint venture had employed 15,000 workers after its first complete year of operations in 1977. The organization claimed profits that year of $44 million on an undisclosed sales volume. Iran, Pakistan and Somalia had been customers, although those countries were not participating in the consortium.

The announcement did not indicate if the three withdrawing nations would be able to continue operations without Egypt, which had provided its share of $1.04 billion start-up capital in the form of existing factories. Operations will cease by July 1, the announcement said.

There was no immediate reaction from Egypt, but President Anwar Sadat said Sunday he no longer expected Saudi Arabia to buy 50 F-5E jet fighters for his air force.

"It seems from what is going on these days that the Saudis are trying to withdraw from their commitment," Sadat told a university group on a tour of construction projects 50 miles north of Cairo.

"The contract is shaky."

The Saudis have broken diplomatic ties with Egypt over the peace treaty with Israel, and Sadat said last month he would not be surprised if the Saudis canceled plans to pay $525 million for the F-5Es which Congress agreed to sell Egypt last spring.

The New York Times reported Sunday that Sadat said he would appeal to the American people for donations to pay for the F-5Es if the Saudis reneged.

Sadat also said he will use $1.5 billion in U.S. military assistance credits to buy Phantoms and that the jet fighters will be flying over Egypt by October.

Man Slain At Lamesa

LAMESA (Special) — A 78-year-old man was shot to death and his son seriously wounded here about 11:25 p.m. Sunday during an apparent argument over money, Lamesa Police Chief Lee Bartlett said.

A 44-year-old man was arrested about 1:45 a.m. today on the Dawson-Terry County line in connection with the incident, which claimed the life of Vicente Vasquez Sr.

Vasquez' son, Vicente Jr., also was shot during the altercation and was listed this morning in serious condition at Lubbock's Methodist Hospital.

Bartlett said Cipriano DeLeon Vasquez (no relation to the victims) was arrested early this morning as he was

Dole Enters GOP Race

RUSSELL, Kan. (AP) — Sen. Bob Dole, shedding his gut-fighting image of the 1976 campaign, today announced his candidacy for the 1980 GOP presidential nomination and declared "I will neither attack my opponents in the Republican Party nor the incumbent president."

Dole made the announcement at a city hall news conference in Russell, his hometown.

The Kansas senator, whose hard-hitting style drew criticism when he was the GOP vice presidential candidate in 1976, said that in this campaign, "I will be speaking with our friends in the Democratic Party as well as Republicans and independents, believing that neither party has a corner on wisdom."

Bomb Kills Two In Israeli Resort

TEL AVIV, Israel (AP) — A bomb placed in a trash can exploded in the northern Israeli resort city of Tiberias today, killing two persons and wounding 37, police said. The Palestine Liberation Organization claimed responsibility.

Authorities said the explosive device blew up in the crowded downtown section of the popular vacation spot on the Sea of Galilee.

The town was crowded for a holiday that begins Monday night.

The identities of the victims were not immediately released.

A terse statement from Yasir Arafat's PLO high command in Beirut, Lebanon, said "The general command of the Palestinian revolution announces its responsibility for the Tiberias explosion this afternoon."

The PLO said the bombing was a reprisal for the more than 80 Palestinians and Lebanese killed in Israeli air, naval and artillery assualts on Lebanon since four Israelis died in a guerrilla raid on the summer resort town of Nahariya April 22.

The bomb went off in a sidewalk marketplace, near a bus and taxi stand. A bus was passing by the cene when the explosion occurred, leading to initial reports that the bomb was aboard a bus. The bus was damaged by the blast, but it was not known if passengers were among the injured.

The explosion was heard throughout the town of 25,000.

Israel radio said ambulances evacuated the wounded to hospital within 15 minutes, and doctors who heard the blast rushed to the hospital to help. Army helicopters evacuated the most seriously injured to a hospital in Haifa, 35 miles away.

It was the first fatal bombing in Israel since April 10, when a bomb in a crowded Tel Aviv market killed three Israelis.

In Tel Aviv, an Israeli military court sentenced an Arab from Jerusalem, Mutiya Subhi Rashak, to life imprisonment Sunday for bombing a bus in February 1978 in which two persons were killed and 48 wounded.

Long Gas Lines Bring Demand For Action

By The Associated Press

A gasoline panic that spread from the Pacific to the Potomac over the weekend brought new demands today for governmental action at the state and national levels.

In California, where the longest lines yet formed at the few gasoline stations that were open, Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. asked the State Energy Commission to draft emergency regulations requiring at least half of the stations affected by the odd-even rationing plan to remain open on the weekends.

In Washington, where California-style hysteria set in Sunday when 90 per cent of the gasoline stations shut down their pumps, Sen. Henry Jackson, chairman of the Senate Energy Committee, said he had no real evidence U.S. oil firms are withholding oil and gasoline from the market.

But Jackson said he hopes congressional leaders will be able to work out an acceptable standby gasoline rationing plan to submit to President Carr.

Across the country, gasoline-greedy motorists went to extremes to try to fill their tanks over the weekend. California highways were dotted with cars that had used their last drop.

A doctor in San Francisco was second in line at a pump due to open in less than an hour when his telephone beeper signaled a patient was trying to call. Instead of giving up his place in line, Dr. Myles Lippe called the patient and told him to come to the station. The doctor explained that the patient "had a rash and he lived nearby."

A man driving a Mercedes pulled up to a service station in the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md., and demanded a fill-up. When the attendant topped off the tank with less than two gallons of gasoline, the driver grabbed the hose and in the process of trying to add a few ounces more, spilled fuel all over the pavement.

In Rockville, Md., customers irritated by a motorist who cut into the front of a gasoline line picked up the man's sports car and carried it back to the street.

Only about six of 50 gasoline stations along Florida's South Dixie Highway, the main thoroughfare from Miami to Key West, were open Sunday and state police said they received half a dozen distress calls from drivers out of gas. Dade County Fire Department paramedics said two people were treated after inhaling vapors while trying to siphon gasoline.

James Heizer, executive secretary of the Virginia Gasoline Retailers Association, said, "I had one dealer tell me last night that a small train of cars followed a transport truck to his station in northern Virginia."

The American Automobile Association said more than 85 percent of the Washington-area stations it surveyed closed by 6 p.m. Saturday and 90 percent were closed all day Sunday.

Nearly all the Washington area stations were expected to be open today, but with long lines, curtailed hours and limits on sales.

Between 80 percent and 90 percent of the gas stations were closed in Texas on Sunday, compared to less than 50 percent five weeks ago. Kansas, Illinois, Indiana and Georgia reported about 50 percent of the stations closed Sunday, and in Massaschusetts, only half the stations open three weeks ago were open Sunday.

Elsewhere, about half the stations in the metropolitan New York area were closed. And AAA officials in Texas and Kansas worried that gas stations might

Psychiatrist Warns Of Self-Mutilations

CHICAGO (AP) — A psychiatrist, concerned about the reaction of persons who are turned down for plastic surgery, has reported the case of a former mental patient who mutilated himself and tried abdominal surgery in an attempt to curb his sexual aggressiveness.

Dr. Ned Kalin of the University of Wisconsin at Madison reported the case in the May 18 issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association. He said he presented the report to warn physicians that self-surgery may occur in patients who have asked doctors to operate upon them and have been rejected.

The patient he describes had been to a urologist to ask to have his testicles removed.

Kalin said the 22-year-old man, a diagnosed schizophrenic who once spent time in a psychiatric ward, became concerned that he was overly aggressive during sex and treated his partners too roughly.

The man reportedly took drugs to control his hormonal secretions, but then removed his testicles when the urologist refused to do it for him.

Two months later, he tried to sever the nerves to his adrenal gland in an elaborately planned eight-hour operation guided by mirrors.

But the pain of retracting his liver was too much and the man bandaged his wound and called police to take him to a hospital, the psychiatrist said.

Kalin said that while other cases of self-mutilation of limbs, testicles or eyes have been documented, this might be the first involving abdominal self-surgery.

Kalin said the young man read books on operating technique and on the most recent research on the adrenal gland and its hormonal secretions, which affect sex drive and aggressiveness.

He prepared for his surgery using a spray disinfectant and alcohol, Kalin said, and draped himself with sterilized sheets.

The man took barbiturates for anesthesia and as the surgery progressed used a local anesthetic on the wound to deaden the pain. He wore sterile gloves and lay on his back, with mirrors to guide him, Kalin said.

Kalin said that after eight hours there was minimal blood loss but the man was unable to go on because of the pain in retracting his liver, which had to be pushed aside to reach the nerves of the adrenal gland.

He said the patient continues to plan another attempt at self-surgery on his adrenal gland and that there is little hope of effective therapy to treat his emotional problems.

Cases such as these and self-mutiliation, he said, "should be a warning to surgeons who, for whatever reasons, reject patients seeking elective plastic surgery."

Kalin said the only hope for such cases is long and intensive psychotherapy in which a theraputic alliance between patient and doctor could be established and maintained.

Insomniacs Take Tour Of City

BALTIMORE (AP) — Audree Verguin was standing in the misting rain alongside the grave of Edgar Allan Poe. It was 4:30 a.m. and she was celebrating Mother's Day — one of 120 persons taking a six-hour Insomniac Tour of Baltimore, an all-night sojourn for tourists who can't sleep.

"This is my Mother's Day present," said Mrs. Verguin who with her husband, Elwood, of Toms River, N.J., were among the tourists who paid $25 each to tour the city in the predawn hours.

The Insomniac Tour, created by Ruth Fader and Roxy Lipsitz, was started in November 1977. The two women operate Baltimore Rent A Tour, a business that offers daylight tours, too.

Three buses left the Maryland Science Center in downtown Baltimore promptly at 1:30 a.m. Saturday. "Hi, I'm Ruth and I'm going to spend the night with you," said Mrs. Fader, the tour guide on the first bus.

The first stop was Barre Street where the tourists tromped through three renovated rowhouses. Why anybody would open their homes to a group of strangers at 1:45 a.m. was anybody's guess. But Quinn Peitz, one of the homeowners, explained, "The honest answer is — I get to go on the Insomniac Tour."

"You see all the cars on the street?" Mrs. Fader asked. "There really are an awful lot of night people in Baltimore."

The sounds of an organ filled the Mount Vernon Methodist Church, the next stop on the trip. The Rev. Kenneth Jones had found someone willing to come out at 3:30 a.m. and play for the insomniacs as they sat in the church fanning themselves and listening to his "sermon" — a history of the 107-year-old church.

"We made plans to come to this before we planned to get married," said Paul Newbury of Pittsburgh, honeymooning with his wife, Nancy. "We're on our way to the Virgin Islands."

Mrs. Newbury called the trip "a real memory."

Across the street from the church, Mrs. Fader pointed to a pink sandstone building with Tiffany windows that happened to be "the longest rowhouse in Baltimore." At the turn of the century, Mrs. William Garrett Jacobs spent $6 million to renovate the house, now the home of the city's Engineering Society.

Later, clustered around Poe's grave, everything seemed to darken as the rain fell and one of the tourists read a few lines from Poe's "Annabel Lee" and another placed some tulips at the base of the grave marker.

The bracing aroma of the city's wholesale fish market perked up several tourists starting to nod. "Sure smells like a fish market," said Noel Bautro, 39, of Baltimore, looking at the dead fish being scaled at the world's third-largest seafood market.

The tour ended at the Pimlico Race Course, home of next Saturday's Preakness, with breakfast and an early morning look at the horses working out on the track. The sun was just beginning to come up as Preakness entry, General Assembly, treated everyone to his slow gait around the track in the wrong direction.

Heading back to the downtown area, the overnight excursion showed the Insomniac Tour really works. Some of the tourists' heads began to droop and they were fast asleep.

Doctor Decides To Let Wife Die

MIAMI (UPI) — A doctor decided Sunday that his wife had been in a coma too long and ordered that her life-support system be disconnected. Maria Teresa "Teresita" Silva was pronounced dead moments later.

Dr. Orlando Silva, "decided it was time to call it quits" for his 39-year-old wife, said Dennis McAllister, assistant director of the hospital.

McAllister said electroencephalograph examinations had shown no activity in the brain of Mrs. Silva since last August, when she stopped breathing while undergoing minor surgery.

McAllister said Mrs. Silva's mother, Victoria Fernandez Trujillo, 69, who arrived late last week from her home in Puerto Rico, was not in the hospital at the time of her daughter's death.

Mrs. Trujillo had complained that her son-in-law had denied her permission to see her daughter. "I came for Mother's Day," she said, "to bring my daughter, who is dying, a rosary as a gift."

McAllister said Silva and the couple's four teen-age children were present at her bedside when she died.

"Everyone concurred in the decision to disconnect the life support machinery. There were no objections," McAllister said. "Every successive electroencephalogram indicated her brain was dead."

Dr. Ronald K. Wright, Dade County's deputy medical examiner, who has ordered life-support machinery disconnected in similar cases, had called the situation "a tragedy in the Greek drama sort of sense. Every indication I have is that she died in August. It's such a hopeless case."

Silva has refused to discuss the case since October, when he said, "I love her, I need her, I am not going to give up hope."

Natural Gas Blast Being Investigated

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Federal officials are joining police and fire investigators in a probe of a natural gas explosion that killed seven people, but it may be several days before they know exactly how the blast was triggered, a gas company spokesman says.

Allen Sims, of the Philadelphia Gas Works, said Sunday investigators have concluded the gas, which ignited Friday afternoon, came from a damaged gas main. Seven bodies were recovered from the wreckage of a bar and a rowhouse that were leveled.

Alcohol On Breath Saves Girl's Life

WELLESBOURNE, England (AP) — Kelly Chaman, 4, is alive because neighbor Mick Wilkins stopped off at the pub before going home.

Wilkins later gave the little girl mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when she stopped breathing.

Doctors said the alcohol on Wilkin's breath had stimulated Kelly's brain and saved her.

Energy Crisis, Airlines Strike Boost Prospects For Amtrak

By United Press International

Amtrak, the much-subsidized and more often criticized national passenger railroad system, appears headed for a banner year because of the energy situation and the strike at United Airlines, officials say.

Even before the tremendous increase in Amtrak reservations brought on by escalating gasoline prices and spot shortages of motor fuel, the railroad system was experiencing a 6.2 percent increase over the 18.9 million passengers it carried last year, said Joe Vranich, Amtrak spokesman in Washington.

"There appears to be so much happening so fast that it's hard to get a handle on what accounts for what," he said.

A UPI spot survey found prospective passengers across the nation running into busy telephone signals and recorded messages at nearly every ticket office.

After two hours of trying, one prospective customer seeking to buy a ticket on the "Southern Crescent" route from Washington to New Orleans finally got though to a ticket agent in New York.

"We've been swamped with calls, but most of them are for information, not reservations," the harried agent explained when asked why it took so long to get through.

"People are panicky. They're afraid if they don't get their reservations, there won't be room."

Added a Chicago ticket office supervisor with seven years experience: "I haven't seen this many calls in as long as I've been with the company."

Amtrak officials are making no guarantees a seat will be available on every train. But they have rushed into service extra cars and have hired additional personnel to staff the ticket counters.

Many trains are sold out for most of May, and some into August, particularly on routes to Florida and in the West. Calls to Amtrak's reservations centers have been running 40 to 50 percent above normal since early April.

Vranich said the most potent force behind the increase in ridership is the gasoline situation.

That assessment is backed up by the stock market record of Autotrain, a rail-shuttle service between Washington and Florida on which riders can ship along their cars. The company's stock was the second most active on the American Exchange last week. Analysts said the firm stands to benefit from the gasoline shortage.

The strike that hit United Airlines, the nation's largest domestic carrier, on March 31 appears to have increased Amtrak ridership as well.

Seamstress Sews For Strippers

ABERDEEN, S.D. (AP) — Mildred Baker of Aberdeen is an artist of sorts, but her work usually ends up crumpled on a bar-room floor. Mrs. Baker — a 47-year-old grandmother of 10 — makes costumes for touring strippers.

Her seamstress career for dancing women began about six years ago when she got a part-time job at an Aberdeen lounge. There she got to know several of the strippers and they told her about the large amount of money they paid for costumes.

Mrs. Baker didn't see a lot of competition in this career, and she had been sewing most of her life, so she decided to give it a try.

"I spent almost two years watching and talking with the girls," she said. "The sewing is really a small part of it.

"You have to see what colors match under the lights, and also pay attention to the material and durability of the costume. And the dancer has to be able to put it on and take it off gracefully.

"Basically I guess you'd call them all strippers, but there are different categories," said Mrs. Baker, describing them as ranging from the lowest-paid go-go girls to show girls who perform intricate acts and skits with more elaborate costumes.

"Why, you just wouldn't believe some of the stuff they put on — and take off. They dress up as cowboys, Indians, parlor maids, just about anything."

Since she has started making costumes, Mrs. Baker has gotten to know many of the dancers very well and says they are just as ordinary as the girl next door.

"These are just the nicest, politest girls that you'd ever want to meet," said Mrs. Baker. "They're very respectful, and they always call me Mrs. Baker. Except my best dancer friends call me mom.

"It's kind of a shame some of these girls are looked down on," she said. "Some of them are earning money during the summer so they can apply themselves more to their studies in college. They make more doing this in one week than they would in a month as a waitress."

She often dreams about wearing some of the flashy gowns and outfits she makes, but said that because of her age and the town she lives in, it would be impossible.

"My kids tell me, 'Mother, now don't you get carried away with what you wear.' And I tell them, 'If this was a larger town and people accepted it, you would have the flashiest mother in the whole world.'"

Housewife sells 'glass plate' for $40; worth $1,700

NILES, Ill.—The story of a small fortune, lost because a housewife had no idea her glass plate was a collector's item, recently came to light.

In a letter to J. R. MacArthur, chairman of The Bradford Exchange, world's largest trading center in collector's plates, a Madison Wisc., woman wrote: "I had a Lalique 1965 plate . . . which I sold to a friend for $40. I had not heard of you at that time."

The plate she sold is actually valued at more than $1,700. Although MacArthur points out that this price is exceptionally high, he said, "I'm afraid others may be losing hundreds or thousands of dollars by not knowing what their plates are worth."

To aid in identifying valuable plates, the Exchange issues a report that includes current prices on more than 900 plates, guidelines on what to look for and when to buy, and the plate evaluation checklist used by the Exchange.

To obtain a copy without cost or obligation, send your name, address, and zip code by Saturday of next week to: The Bradford Exchange, Dept. 85420, 9301 Milwaukee Avenue, Niles, Illinois 60648. (Not available to Canadian residents.) 5-14

TODAY'S EDITORIAL:

Buyers Beef About Beef

CONSUMERS' CALL for a repeat of the 1973 nationwide beef-buying boycott to force down current prices has strong appeal.

It represents direct action against a widely shared problem, for starters. And the would-be boycotters cook up a dramatic case. Retail beef prices are upward bound according to one calculation at an annual rate of nearly 25 percent.

The bind is even being felt by the biggest budget of all. The administration is cutting back on its beef purchases for the coming 18 months by a coincidental 25 percent.

There is, however, much more to the beef story.

CATTLEMEN acknowledge the 1973 boycott had an effect, a twofold one. In the short term, it did take the pressure out of prices by curtailing consumption.

But in the long run, it created the conditions directly responsible for today's price explosion. Herds that were trimmed as a consequence of buyer resistance then, mean a short supply of beef to market now.

"Cattle-raising is a long-term operation," according to nationally syndicated columnist Don Graff. "It is also capital intensive, with a considerable investment tied up in animals years before they are ready for market."

That market is highly susceptible to the influence of not only supply and demand, but weather and other conditions over which the grower has little or no control. One year he may end up like Daddy Warbucks, the next as Little Orphan Annie.

The production cycle—the swing from short supply to plentiful supply—is on the order of 10 years.

GROWERS interviewed by Graff said they are just now emerging from the low side of the cycle, a "liquidation" period of reduced herds and three consecutive years of losses on an industrywide basis.

A successful boycott, they say, would be disastrous, interrupting the rebuilding and intensifying the future supply shortage.

Carter's anti-inflation czar, Alfred E. Kahn, is inclined to agree.

His suggestion is that consumers follow the government's example by cutting back purchases and substituting less-expensive meats and poultry where possible.

Cattlemen advise patience. Higher prices, they say, are an encouragement to withhold heifers born this spring from the market. In 2½ years, allowing for breeding, gestation and feeding, an increase in supply will be reflected by easing prices.

But boycotting only serves to make a bad situation worse.

'But That Won't Grow Any More Heifers!'

Short, Circuited

CAUGHT OUT of the batter's box at the wrong time last week, Sen. E.L. Short recovered quickly enough to hit a two-run homer for the Lubbock portion of his district.

Short was nowhere to be found on Wednesday, when a bill to hand over electric rate-making authority to the power-grabbing Public Utilities Commission was brought up.

It developed that he was over in the House side of the state Capitol looking into a snag that was threatening to block passage of a bill to make Lubbock Municipal Court a court of record.

Short and Rep. Froy Salinas subsequently got into a war of words over whether Short's help in the House was needed.

In any event, though, the senator could point to his presence there as proof that he was working diligently on the piece of legislation that the Lubbock City Council has tagged as its top priority for this session.

With approval of the legislation, Municipal Court will become better equipped to dispense justice even-handedly.

While Short was out of pocket, though, the Senate had a one-vote margin for bringing up the bill that would have taken rate-setting authority away from the Lubbock City Council and handed it to the PUC on a platter.

Although the Tahoka senator returned in time to vote against the bill, he had missed the day's key vote that could have stopped it cold if he'd been present and voted against bringing it up for debate.

The next day, though, Short got a second chance. This time, on a key procedural vote, his "no" and that of Sen. Bob Price of Pampa, who switched sides, was enough to effectively delay further consideration of the bill.

IT IS TO BE dearly hoped that the legislation is killed once and for all, or at least modified in final form to give cities the option of retaining electric rate-making authority if they want it.

Somehow, I expect a lot better deal out of a City Council whose members have to look the consumers in the eye every day than out of a three-man state bureaucracy that can raise rates on a regional or statewide basis without due regard to local situations.

The farther removed from the voters that government gets, the worse it becomes.

American colonists knew that but the so-called "progressives" have been trying to lead us back to 18th Century centralization of power ever since.

If You Live To Be One Hundred

WASHINGTON—Americans are living longer than ever before despite all the increased health hazards that you read and hear about these days.

Percentage-wise, persons 100 or over are probably the fastest growing segment of the American population according to the most recent information gathered by the U.S. Administration on Aging.

Their latest studies show that between 1974 and 1976 the number of centenarians in the U.S. jumped from 8,317 to 11,992. The number over that magic age of 100 is now believed to be more than 12,000.

Although these figures indicate that the odds have improved in recent years, only one person in every 20,000 will live to celebrate his or her 100th birthday. The chances of reaching 95 are much better—one in 2,500 will live that long.

WOMEN HAVE a better chance of living to 100 than men. Social security statistics reveal that seven out of ten persons 100 or over are now women.

Government aging experts reveal there are a number of ways you can maximize your chances of reaching the 100 year mark although there appears to be no substitute for good genes. Their recommendations, based on studies of the aging process are:

Try to stay as slim as possible. Heavy persons tend to die earlier. Work as long as you can and try to minimize the stress in your daily life. Obtain regular medical care and exercise a lot, including walking. Lead a stable family life and follow a regular routine.

SEVERAL OF those that have reached the age of 100 in the nation's capital and surrounding area have another recommendation for longevity. They recommend an active religious life and a firm belief in the Creator.

Government aging experts also believe that the climate plays a major role in whether one will reach one hundred.

Philip R. Lerner, of the Social Security Administration, notes that the Northeast and North Central states have the highest percentage of centenarians. The "climate changes" in those states, Lerner contends, makes those areas "a more invigorating environment" in which to live.

Latest figures show 1,455 persons 100 or over living in New York state, 1,183 in California, 868 in Illinois, 666 in Pennsylvania, 529 in Ohio, 453 in Florida, 441 in Massachusetts, 398 in Texas, 390 in Michigan, 358 in New Jersey.

The encouraging news is that the number of persons living to 100 is expected to increase during the next 20 years. This is the forecast of Dr. Valery Portnoy, associate professor of medicine at George Washington University here.

Dr. Portnoy's prediction is in line with recent Census Bureau studies on the future composition of the nation's population.

According to bureau statistics, the elderly population in this country has been steadily growing—from four percent of the population in 1900 to 11 percent now. Since 1900, 26 years have been added to the average life span.

By the year 2020, the percentage of the population in the country over 65 will reach 15.5 percent and senior citizens will outnumber persons aged 45 to 50, two to one.

What is now unique about most persons now over 100 is that only a very few have pensions since they were in the work force long before these were available.

Will We End Up Paying For Dealer Protection?

UNDER A RECENT California law, auto manufacturers cannot appoint a new car dealer too near to a present dealer if the present dealer objects—unless a state board says that is fair.

Does this mean a state of the U.S. is guaranteeing a dealer a competition-free zone within which the dealer can extract the most possible from us, the consumers?

Or does this mean the state is merely being fair to a dealer who has invested his hard-earned life savings in a showroom by making sure the dealer does not wind up with the manufacturer selling to another outlet right next door?

The battle of competition vs. protection of existing outlets from "cut-throat" rivalry is as old as the medieval guilds which at one time said that no one could sew more than a certain number of stitches a day so that too much pressure would not be put on other members of the occupation involved.

THE CALIFORNIA car-dealer protection law was challenged in the U.S. Supreme Court as being a violation of due process because an objection by one present dealer could automatically block the car manufacturer from appointing a new dealer in a territory until a hearing before the state board.

The Supreme Court ruled against the manufacturer and upheld the California law, saying that the state has the powers to pass the laws, even though the philosophy is in direct contradiction to the competition mandated by the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

The car manufacturer did not raise the issue of whether or not the California law imposed an unreasonable burden on interstate commerce, and therefore the Supreme Court did not rule on that issue.

Thus, laws such as this still may be vulnerable.

BUT THIS has not stopped a drive in the direction of protecting dealers from "unfair" competition in just about every form. The results could be:

(1) Bigger markups which we, the consumers, must pay.

(2) Highly sophisticated, coordinated campaigns by established dealers in many industries to keep products out of the hands of "discounters" and mail-order houses which could cut prices and pass savings on to you, the buyers.

At extremely hush-hush meetings in many fields, how these goals might be reached is a major topic of debate. Manufacturers could, for instance, be pressured not to sell to discounters who reduced prices.

Sure, this might be illegal under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. But what are the chances of being caught? Who's taking down notes?

ADMITTEDLY, OPPONENTS of discounters have arguments on their side. They insist the level of service rendered to us, as consumers, is in jeopardy because discounters do not have to pay for demonstrating products, selling them properly and advertising them.

They sneer at discounters as "free riders," or "freeloaders" who siphon money directly to the consumer's pocket in the form of discount prices, without maintaining an adequate degree of service.

Whether by claimed private agreements or by state laws, the fact is an all-out effort is being made—without any publicity—to make a fundamental change in our private enterprises system. And that's big meaning, indeed!

A side effect is that inflation is being fueled by middlemen trying to protect themselves from competition. Unregulated monopoly has always been regarded as evil.

A network of monopolies on the distribution of goods and services can squeeze our pocketbooks as much as or more than a monopoly by a single producer or manufacturer—particularly since around half of our money goes for the cost of distribution today.

THE BATTLELINES have been drawn—very quietly but still drawn. On one side is the traditional American belief in competition, enshrined in our anti-trust laws.

On the other are those trying to move our economy toward more protection for existing dealers and less competition.

If competition is to win this crucial battle against the power of all the lobbying dollars on the protection side, you'll have to raise your voice and shout, "Stop! I care!" I wonder...will you?

James J. Kilpatrick:

Bad Medicine For Our Schools

WASHINGTON—If the truth-in-labeling laws applied to acts of Congress, the pending bill to create a U.S. Department of Education would carry the kind of warning that goes with a new and powerful drug.

Warning: Federal aid is addictive. Take this medicine at your peril.

During the course of Senate debate, a number of voices were raised to that effect, but the voices went unheeded. The Senate passed the bill on April 30 by a lopsided vote of 72 to 21.

In the House Government Operations Committee, the same Catonian cries were heard again, and again they were ignored.

Owing to the defection of a freshman Republican from Ohio, Lyle Williams, the committee sent the bill toward the floor by a vote of 20 to 19.

IT WILL TAKE an uphill fight to defeat the bill, but the fight assuredly is worth making. One of the most cherished principles of our political life is that local schools must be locally controlled.

By adhering to this principle, we achieve genuine diversity in public education; we promote parental interest and participation in the schooling of local children; and we stave off the disastrous prospect of federal control in the Soviet pattern.

No matter how strenuously the patrons of this bill may deny it, the pending legislation will lead inevitably to the abandonment of that venerable and wholesome tradition.

Oh, yes, the bill contains ringing disclaimers. One section proclaims "the intention of Congress to protect the rights of state, local and tribal governments in the areas of educational policies."

THE ACT SEEKS only "to strengthen and improve the control of such governments over their own educational programs." The bill says that the primary responsibility must continue to reside with states, communities and families.

President Carter has revived the polite word for such effusive stuff. The word is baloney. No person who has followed the course of federal power over the past quarter-century will believe a word of it.

Once a Department of Education is created, these pretty avowals will be systematically ignored. We have seen repeated examples of this in existing rules and regulations of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Under existing law, HEW's authority supposedly is limited to federal aid for educational "programs," but the bureaucrats have simply wiped out the word "programs" and inserted their own word, "institutions."

One federal court after another has ordered HEW's people to stop perverting the law, but the bureaucracy pays no heed.

WE HAD AN ironical glimpse into the future on the closing day of Senate debate.

Jesse Helms of North Carolina, a leading opponent of the bill, offered an amendment to this effect—that no school receiving federal aid could require students to participate in sex education instruction without parental permission and without an opportunity for public examination of the teaching materials.

The Helms amendment was well intended.

But what the senator could not understand was that his high-minded amendment provided a perfect, textbook example of the federal controls that will follow inexorably upon the creation of this department.

Federal aid, so-called, now amounts to 9 or 10 percent of public support of public education. The National Education Association, prime supporter of this bill, wants to see the figure rise to 30 or 35 percent.

AT THAT level, local control dwindles to impotence, to mere form without substance. For all practical purposes, every significant decision must then require the approval of the secretary. No approval, no money.

The federal government already is deeply involved in the preparation of teaching materials. The example of "Man: A Course of Study" is only one of a thousand such ventures in the subtle manipulation of our children.

Institutions of higher learning already have succumbed to the narcotic of federal aid. Once the realm of education is given Cabinet status, federal involvement and federal control can only increase.

No matter how good this purported remedy tastes, the House should understand this much: The side effects can be fatal.

Socialists Still Most Powerful Group In Europe

By MICHAEL WEST

LONDON (AP) — Three days after British voters turned sharply to the right and ousted the Labor Party, Chancellor Bruno Kreisky and his Socialists won re-election in Austria.

"There is by far no conservative trend in Europe," Kreisky declared.

The Austrian vote last Sunday, recent local elections in France and Spain and forecasts of the Italian parliamentary election on June 3 seem to bear this out, despite the Cnservative triumph in Britain which made Margaret Thatcher Europe's first woman prime minister.

A close race had been predicted in Austria, with the Socialists possibly losing their small parliamentary majority. Instead, Kreisky's party increased its majority, extending its record-breaking, nine-year rule another four years.

In France, what newspapers called a "leftist push" in regional elections in March confirmed the Socialists as the country's largest party. They won more than 550 of the 1,846 contested seats, while the Communists gained more than 30 for a total of 225.

The three parties that make up President Valery Giscard d'Estaing's center-right coalition government still outdrew the leftists, winning about 900 seats to the leftists' 775 plus. But the left-wing push took a total of 156 seats from the three government parties, including 62 from the president's Union for French Democracy.

Spain's Socialists and Communists scored major victories on April 3 in their country's first municipal elections in 48 years, winning control of the biggest cities. But Prime Minister Adolfo Suarez's party, the Union of the Democratic Center, won the biggest nationwide total of city council seats.

Leftists combined to elect Socialist mayors in the eight biggest cities, including Madrid, Barcelona and Valencia, and also in 26 of the country's 52 provincial capitals.

The leftist successes were the first since the death of dictator Francisco Franco 3½ years ago and came a month after Suarez defeated a Socialist bid for power in national elections.

Suarez's party won a total of 29,614 city council seats, the Socialists 12,220, the Communists 3,608, the Basques 1,329 and independents, including many leftists, 14,817.

Analysis

In Italy, the two biggest parties, the Christian Democrats and the Communists, have been engaged in a slanging match prior to the parliamentary elections next month.

Their alliance, in which the Communists supported a minority Christian Democratic government, fell apart Jan. 31 after 2½ years when the Christian Democrats rejected the Communists' demand for Cabinet seats.

The two parties together get more than 70 percent of the vote and neither is believed capable of governing without the other. Recent opinion polls predict small gains for the Christian Democrats and modest losses for the Communists in the election of the 630 deputies and 315 senators. The third-place Socialists are thought likely to increase their share of the vote only a percentage point or two.

Meanwhile, 180 million people in the nine countries of the European Common Market are eligible to vote June 7-11 in the first direct election of the community's Parliament, and Socialists are expected to remain the largest group.

The Parliament meets at Strasbourg, France. It has minor powers, with control over a small part of the community's annual budget and the authority to dismiss the community's executive commission, which it has never used.

Panel To Check Talmadge's Financial Practices

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate Ethics Committee plans a detailed look at the financial practices of Sen. Herman Talmadge this week through the testimony of the Georgia Democrat's personal accountant and a government accounting expert.

The committee, today beginning the third week of hearings in the financial misconduct case against Talmadge, also planned to hear from a Senate official who supervises the payment of Senate expense accounts.

The three witnesses may provide some clues to a yet answered question: How much, if anything, did the millionaire senator know about some $50,000 in false Senate expense reimbursements claimed by his office between 1972-76?

Talmadge faces five stiff misconduct charges, the most serious of which involve the filing of false expense claims and the conversion of campaign contributions to his personal use. If the charges are upheld by the ethics committee, he could face censure or expulsion by the full Senate.

Talmadge has already repaid the Senate $37,125 for expenses that were not incurred or did not qualify for reimbursement. He claimed he did not know of the excess payments until June 1978, and has blamed the overage on staff error.

But his personal accountant, Lawrence Earls, was to be questioned about a Washington Star report that Talmadge knew of at least $25,000 in expense overages almost a year earlier when he was questioned about them in a deposition given during his divorce suit.

Another $13,000 in false expense payments — money included in the $39,000 that passed through a secret bank account in Talmadge's name — is still in dispute.

Talmadge maintains his former top aide, Daniel Minchew, embezzled the money and he knew nothing about the account. Minchew says he opened the account with Talmadge's approval and that most of the $39,000 went to the senator.

In what promises to be the most significant week of the hearings, the two major witnesses against Talmadge — Minchew and the senator's embittered ex-wife, Betty, may testify.

Minchew will detail his charges that Talmadge knew campaign contributions were being converted to cash and expense claims were being falsified for his benefit, while Mrs. Talmadge will tell of her husband's financial habits, including finding a cache of $100 bills stuffed in the pocket of an old overcoat.

Special Counsel Carl Eardley has built his case against Talmadge primarily on Minchew's word and a series of documents Minchew provided to substantiate his claims.

But Minchew's allegations that Talmadge knew of and benefitted from the secret bank account were bolstered when Mrs. Talmadge turned over $7,700 to the committee — money she said was part of $10,000 in $100s she took from the overcoat in early 1974.

Minchew's credibility has been repeatedly attacked by the witnesses so far, most of whom have strong loyalties to Talmadge.

But Minchew's allegations that other Talmadge initimates knew of the excessive expense claims and diversion of campaign contributions to the senator were bolstered last week by a government documents expert.

The expert, Thomas Hundley, said Minchew could not have signed one disputed expense voucher for $10,604 — money that ended up in the secret account — but Talmadge's secretary, Mrs. Alyne Tisdale could have been responsible for the signature.

And Hundley testified the voucher for the $10,604 and two disputed memos indicating Mrs. Tisdale's knowledge — and possibly the senator's — that campaign contributions went to Talmadge were typed on her office typewriter. Mrs. Tisdale earlier denied under oath that she had typed those documents.

Jogging Romance To End, Fixx Says

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — The circus atmosphere enveloping the nation's romance with running and jogging should vanish in the next few years, says author James J. Fixx.

FIXX

But Americans will go on pounding the pavement in the years to come, predicted the author of "The Complete Book of Running."

Fixx said physical fitness programs have caused a fundamental change in the way Americans view health. People now are taking upon themselves responsibility for remaining healthy — a task they once considered their doctors' job, he said Saturday at a Governor's Conference on Fitness.

Redford Eyes Directing Career

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Film star Robert Redford says he may end his acting career and turn to directing soon. In the meantime, don't look for him to use films as propaganda.

REDFORD

Redford, well known for his environmental concerns, told a news conference Sunday he was offered "The China Syndrome" two years ago when Jane Fonda's role as a television reporter was written as a man's part.

"But the script I read seemed like propaganda," he said, adding that he was pleased with the way the film turned out.

The actor is in central Ohio for the filming of "Brubaker," which is based on the the experiences of a reform-minded prison warden.

Liz Taylor Ready To Leave Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. Sen. John Warner, R-Va., says he hopes his wife, actress Elizabeth Taylor, will have recovered sufficiently from oral surgery to return to their northern Virginia home today.

MISS TAYLOR

Miss Taylor, 47, underwent a series of root canals Saturday at Sibley Memorial Hospital and rested comfortably Sunday at the hospital, Warner said.

The operation was delayed until late Saturday to allow Warner to deliver a commencement speech. Warner also delivered a speech — by telephone hookup from his wife's bedside — to a meeting Sunday of a non-partisan black group.

Newman Wins Road Races

SUMMIT POINT, W.Va. (AP) — Actor and sometime auto race enthusiast Paul Newman is back on the winning track.

The star of such movies as "Hud" and "Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid," opened his 1979 road racing champion bid Sunday with two victories, one of them during a rainstorm.

Newman encountered problems in both 46-mile races around the two-mile Summit Point Raceway course. In the second lap of the first event, Newman's car spun off the track when it slid through mud. On the 20th lap, he collided with a car driven by Bob Barnhill of Ruxton, Md., who finished second.

As a rainstorm passed overhead, Newman won the second race 14 seconds in front of his nearest challenger.

The 50-year-old actor won a national driving championship in 1976.

Bernadette Devlin Enters Race

BELFAST, Nothern Ireland (AP) — Bernadette Devlin has bounced back into the political scene as a last-minute candidate for the European Parliament.

The Catholic from this strife-torn British province made headlines in 1969 when, at 21, she became the youngest woman elected to the British House of Commons. She lost her seat in 1974 and dropped out of politics when she married schoolteacher Michael McAliskey.

She announced Sunday she has put her name forward as Bernadatte Devlin-McAliskey as an "anti-repression" candidate for one of the three seats allocated to Northern Ireland in the first elections for the 410-member European Parliament that will sit in Strasbourg, France. Until now, the European Parliament has consisted of members nominated by parties in each country belonging to the nine-nation European Economic Community.

Dog's Life

KENT, Wash. (AP) — Human police officers aren't the only ones who feel pressure from their jobs. Sometimes it's the dogs that crack up.

The Lighter Side Of Today's News

As a result, Police Chief Jay Skewes has proposed an ordinance making it illegal to bother Beau, Xent's only police dog.

"We've had some incidents, mostly around taverns, where people will go up to the patrol car and harass Beau," said Skewes. He said Beau didn't need that strain on top of the normal pressure of the job.

The trauma of law enforcement forced another suburban Seattle police dog into early retirement last year. At the sound of a siren, Kahuna would get sudden attacks of diarrhea and vomiting.

"When the siren goes off, those dogs just go bananas," said Bellevue Police Chief Donald Van Blaricom. "They really get excited, but that stress was just too much for Kahuna."

Closing Arguments Begin Today In Silkwood Contamination Trial

OKLAHOMA CITY (UPI) — The closed-door sessions between attorneys and the judge have ended and as soon as the closing arguments are finished the $11.5 million Karen Silkwood plutonium contamination lawsuit trial will be ready for the jury.

Kerr-McGee Nuclear Corp., the defendant in the suit brought by MissSilkwood's survivors, completed its presentation Wednesday and since then attorneys for both sides have been meeting with U.S. District Judge Frank Theis to prepare the instructions that will be given to the jurors.

Theis has indicated each side would be allowed three hours today to present its closing arguments, and the instructions outlining the issues of the lawsuit and defining points of law relevant to the case would be given to the three-man, three-woman jury Tuesday.

Once deliberations begin the jury, which has heard 10 weeks of testimony, will be sequestered, the judge said. Theis also announced he would allow no interruptions of the closing arguments or his instructions to the jury.

No one will be allowed to leave the courtroom during those final two phases of the proceeding, he said.

The suit alleges negligence by Kerr-McGee, owner of a nuclear fuel processing plant north of Oklahoma City, caused Miss Silkwood's radioactive contamination.

Kerr-McGee officials found radioactive plutonium in the 28-year-old woman's apartment Nov. 7, 1974, six days before she was killed in an automobile accident.

Witnesses have said Miss Silkwood died while taking evidence of Kerr-McGee's alleged negligence to a New York Times reporter.

Kerr-McGee argues it was not responsible for the contamination, which the energy firm claims occurred because of Miss Silkwood's own negligence.

Attorneys Friday discussed a Silkwood motion to raise the damage request to $71.5 million. Theis said he would take the matter under advisement.

Silkwood attorney Gerald Spence requested the increase several weeks ago, arguing that testimony in the trial revealed Kerr-McGee was much more negligent than the plaintiffs originally thought.

Kerr-McGee attorneys have objected to the increase, saying the move would invoke a court-sanctioned prejudice on the jury.

Betty Friedan Says Men Also Need Special Help

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Women's movement leader Betty Friedan must have looked like a custom-made champion for a bill to help middle-age women reenter the job market, but she dropped a bombshell instead — men should get as much special help as women in mid-life.

The author of "The Feminine Mystique," which inspired millions of American women to exchange their home-bound lives for outside careers, told a House subcommittee that men, too, are locked into stereotyped roles and need help changing careers.

"I believe men envy women in their new opportunities to grow and change in mid-life — and badly need some new opportunities to change or grow themselves," she said.

Her comments last week were prompted by the testimony of five congressional wives who urged the subcommittee to help support legislation providing educational loans to middle-age women and tax credits to employers who hire them.

Subcommittee chairman John Burton, D-Calif., cautioned that such legislation would take "a lot of help because it's going to take some money."

Man Wins Case, Loses License

EPINAL, France (AP) — A French motorist who failed a breath analysis test has been found innocent of a drunken driving charge. His lawyer proved the driver had taken a codeine-based cough syrup and was not under the influence of alcohol.

Nonetheless, the court in this eastern French town fined the 49-year-old driver $140, revoked his driver's license for four months and gave him a two-month suspended prison term for insulting the highway police and resisting the breath test.

His lawyer proved the codeine content of two tablespoons ofOthe cough syrup discolored breath test crystals in the same manner as alcohol.

A DAILY MESSAGE from The Newspaper Bible

Luke 16:19-28, The Living Bible

19 "There was a certain rich man," Jesus said, "who was splendidly clothed and lived each day in mirth and luxury.

20 One day Lazarus, a diseased beggar, was laid at his door.

21 As he lay there longing for scraps from the rich man's table, the dogs would come and lick his open sores.

22 Finally the beggar died and was carried by the angels to be with Abraham in the place of the righteous dead. The rich man also died and was buried.

23 And his soul went into hell. There, in torment, he saw Lazarus in the far distance with Abraham.

24 'Father Abraham,' he shouted, 'have some pity. Send Lazarus over here if only to dip the tip of his finger in water and cool my tongue, for I am in anguish in these flames.'

25 But Abraham said to him, 'Son, remember that during your lifetime you had everything you wanted, and Lazarus had nothing. So now he is here being comforted and you are in anguish.

26 And besides, there is a great chasm separating us, and anyone wanting to come to you from here is stopped at its edge; and no one over there can cross to us.'

27 Then the rich man said, 'O Father Abraham, then please send him to my father's home—

28 For I have five brothers — to warn them about this place of torment so that they won't come here when they die.'

'FOR SECURITY HARDWARE, SEASON NEEDS, CHOOSE CHILDRESS'

Security Hardware, Tools For Home, Builder, Yard Provided

Whether one's immediate concerns and needs involve gardening and yard tools and supplies, security via quality mortise locks, or even the unusual hardware items, likely the first and only place necessary to check is at Childress Hardware, 902 Main St. in downtown Lubbock.

A glance into the show window properly hints of the assortment within. Note the water coolers, gasoline cans, sprinklers, spades, spreaders, spading forks, even a hibachi, scythe and pitchfork!

"Security" is very much in the minds of most people today. And properly so.

It would be foolish, and likely impossible, to seriously consider security for the home or business without attention to the locks . . . such as dead bolts, etc.

And this is where Childress Hardware comes in, for Childress for years has stocked the finest in security hardware. The knowledgeable personnel there will be glad to discuss one's door fastener needs, providing the right lock for the situation at hand.

Not only at this time when crime seems to dominate in so many news reports, but for the entire past half-century, Childress Hardware, at 902 Main, has stocked needs for every season, the practical hardware items appreciated throughout the region.

Outdoor Tool Needs

"It also is pointed out that during the warm days of summer, most of us are anxious to turn attention to the chalenges for house, yard and garden improvements; a busy outdoor time of year has arrived!

The correct tools and equipment can be the big item in convenience and accomplishment, whether the task is lawn and garden work or even a remodeling job for the home."

For these tools, one can rely with certainty on the Fred Childress Hardware Store.

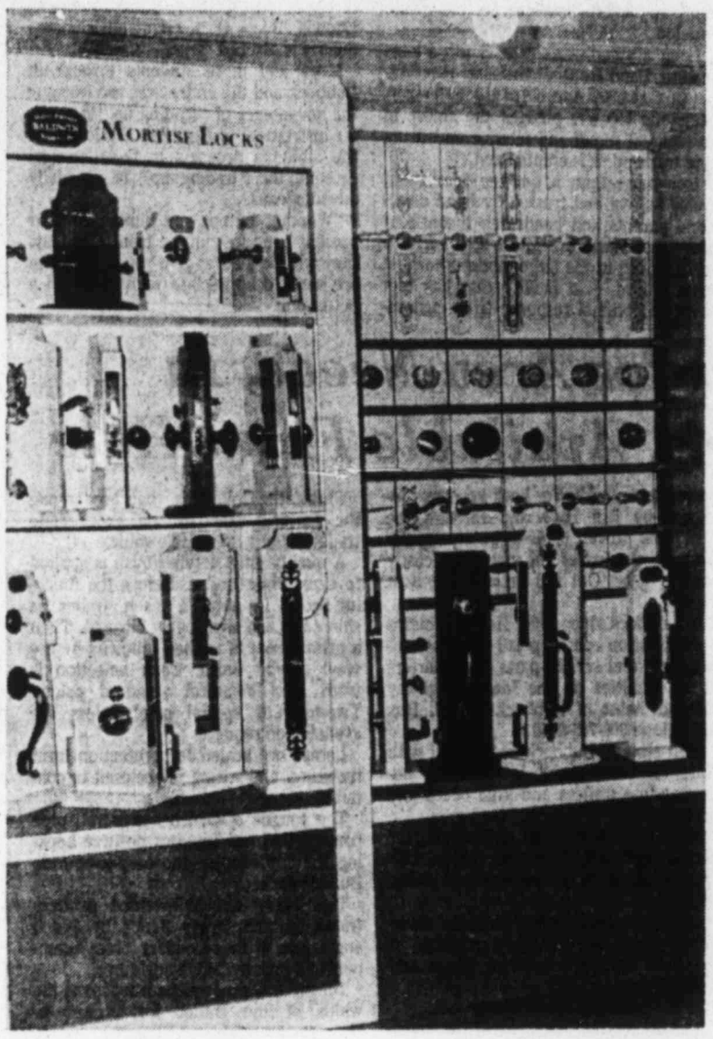
This is a store that meets the season's needs.

For example, do these items have a function in your plans:

Pruning saws, garden hose, sprinklers (from the smallest to the most elaborate), reels for the garden hose, fertilizer spreaders, walking garden plows, rakes, hoes and spades, shears, trimmers, hose, etc.

For Home Improvement

Then for the home handyman or even the professional builder who appreciates good hand tools, there is a wide stock, including the respected name of Stanley, Crescent, Thorson, Nicholson, Bluegrass, Disston, Lufkin, Plumb and others long associated with quality and integrity in tool-making.



On and on the list could go in enumerating the lawn and the building needs provided at Childress Hardware, but suffice it to say that "if it is in the hardware line, you can get it there.

One can purchase an old-fashioned sprinkling can or a lawn watering device that negotiates your yard; a well pulley or a lamp chimney; actually more than 10,000 different items.

Childress Hardware continues as a popular place with carpenters and craftsmen, who make if headquarters for nails of all sizes, as well as a wide range of other fastenings including stove bolts, capscrews, carriage bolts, machine screws, metal screws, wood screws and brass screws, chain, rope — you name it, for home, industrial or farm use.

Cabinet Hardware

The Fred Childress Hardware also stocks one of the most extensive line of cabinet hardware in the city, with latest designs in hinges, pulls and latches attractively displayed. Here again brands such as Stylecraft, Christensen, Phylrick and Pfanstiel are indicative of top quality and design.

Optical Store & Boutique Outlines Services, Quality, Styles For All

"We believe it is general knowledge that quality lines in frames and glasses are just as near as The Optical Store & Boutique, just south of 50th & Slide, clearly marked on the west side of Slide".

There are several services and aspects that should come in for special note at this time, however.

"With accelerated outdoor activity of the season just underway, sunglasses are advised. One should guard against harmful sun rays when exposed, and The Optical Store & Boutique is a great source of optical-quality sunglasses, with no prescription necessary for these. You'll like Ray Ban sunglasses."

Aside from the optical services, a "Plant Corral" has been established by the same business, and one is invited to check for healthy, beautiful indoor plants in the Corral at the same address.

"Our Boutique is Unique" actually is the motto but nevertheless an understatement of the services and products of the Optical Store & Boutique, phone 792-0901.

Thoroughly in keeping with the firm's consideration of the customer's welfare, the folks there emphasize:

(1) Children should have an eye examination annually;

(2) Adults should take the same step every two years;

(3) Even if one does not wear glasses, eye examination on a systematic schedule is recommended;

(4) See your eye doctor and then when glasses are advised, bring his prescription to us at The Optical Store & Boutique, and we'll prove our uniqueness and capabilities, with you benefitting.

(We want to see you keep your frames in good repair; and we'll help if you simply give us the chance!)

"And did you realize that The Optical Store & Boutique stocks the complete spectrum in frames, including a utility selection combining style with surprisingly low price?"

A departmentalized arrangement of rooms and areas provides four distinct categories in our service: (1) utility selection, (2) another where quality is the sole consideration, (3) designer frames, and finally (4) the Boutique.

So, whether the attractively priced lines in frames and glasses for the student, as example, or the very finest in choices from the Designer collection or the unusual and expensive lines within the Boutique are preferred, this Lubbock facility is outstanding, in a class by itself.

Upon entry into The Optical Store & Boutique, one is impressed with the pleasing but striking decor (such as the art deco in the Designer Room carried out in mirrors, pictures and fixtures), a customer consideration that exemplifies the firm's uniqueness.

One may first discover the Designer Collection where an area is devoted entirely to designer frames by Ralph Lauren, Givenchy, Diane Von Fustenberg, Oscar de la Renta and other top designers.

Then there is the Children's Corner in another segment of the complex.

And who could not help but be most intrigued by the Boutique where antique decor dominates and where the unusual and expensive lines are displayed. Some glasses are set with diamonds, some with 18k gold settings, some with real cultured pearls. Custom design with special precious stones, etc., is a specialty.

Lines are out-of-the-ordinary, with some exclusive in Lubbock to the Boutique, such as the Martin Creations from West Germany.

"See what we mean when we say that 'Our Boutique is Unique,' providing a product and service seldom experienced anywhere?"

"May we have the pleasure of your visits? We know we can serve you within one or more of our departments."

Earl Ray Music Enables Easy Solution In Musical Progress

"If you are the parent or other near relative of a band student, likely you know first hand of the valued services and products of the Earl Ray Music Company, the 'South Plains' leading band house,' located in Briercroft Center, Lubbock."

For decades, Earl Ray has served as a firm sincerely interested in your welfare, in seeing that the student or other musically-inclined person is set with the best in instruments . . . whether purchase, rentals or repairs are involved.

"Trading up" is a very popular program presented by Earl Ray, making for ease in securing a quality instrument to best serve in the progress one has made in any musical pursuit.

Service does not end with the rental or sale at this leading band house. Earl Ray maintains the largest band instrument repair department on the South Plains, with fulltime specialists on the job.

Reliance upon the Earl Ray Music Co. can solve (and easily so) the many situations and every problem for the music minded.

Long a standby as "the South Plains leading Band House," the Earl Ray Music Co., at 5302 Ave. Q in the Briercroft Shopping Center, pledges the finest in instrument repair and sales, even leasing and trade-up, it is emphasized.

For more than a quarter century of being known and trusted by band directors, parents and bandsmen throughout the area, Earl Ray Music Co. early in 1974 moved to the large modern home it now enjoys — a facility that has met with exceptional response from customers who appreciate the added conveniences and still-fine service at Earl Ray's.

Selling, servicing and trade-rent-lease of fine instrument lines still is the whole business of Earl Ray. Whether selection of Conn, Vito, Selmer, Bundy, LeBlanc, Ludwig, Bach, Olds, Gemeinhardt, etc., quality is assured.

More and more students throughout Lubbock and the entire area are learning the advantages of "trading up" to a better instrument at Earl Ray Music Co. As the students progress in their musical careers, the "trading up" is especially advantageous.

"Whether or not you purchased your present band instrument from Earl Ray, they will be glad to give you a price you are sure to appreciate with trade on a better one.

Stock Trailers for Area Needs, In Several Models, Available From Hale

"Did you realize that the very best in stock trailers are manufactured right here on the South Plains, in Lubbock, and made available in numerous models to meet every need and preference?"

Where is all this?

At Hale Manufacturing Co., Inc., at its Idalou Highway location just northeast of Lubbock, where a large selection of both new and used stock trailers continually is maintained.

Providing trailers for area needs, with stock trailers, jackknife units and all, Hale is proud to introduce and to keep in stock units to meet the specific need of the buyer.

Two-Horse Units

See the two-horse trailer featuring walk-through door at the front, new A-frame tongue, the spaciousness of 6 ft. 6 in. headroom, and all deluxe features standard. Each unit is comfortable, safe and easy to pull, and each is equipped with a safety lighting package.

Jackknives

The 500 Series jackknives are another most popular offering, available in lengths from 16 ft. to 30 ft. Such features as cross gates, escape door, four-wheel electric brakes are standard, and options are available. (Hale's safe, secure and convenient jackknife hook-up was designed by Bill Hale and through the years has proven itself to be among the best. It eliminates the need for costly landing gear. Get full details; see it at Hale.)

In Lubbock since 1956, Hale maintains a distribution center, retail sales, assembly plant and service-parts headquarters at its facilities on the Idalou Highway just northeast of Lubbock (Rt. 7, Box 429, phone 806-765-8956.)

Stan Howle, Lubbock native and with Hale for nine years, is manager, understanding trailers and area needs and preferences.

Hale trailers include units built for horses and other livestock, utility trailers, jackknife units, flatbeds and dump beds.

A full representative stock is maintained here, and units are available at the firm or from its West Texas and New Mexico dealers.

Service Department

A full service department is maintained, with service on all trailers, whether they were purchased from the firm or elsewhere.

Brake and light sales and installation are available, as is repainting.

Check the following that are among the features standard on every Hale trailer, adding up to Hale value:

A quality vinyl acrylic finish is applied to every Hale trailer. Before the finishing coat is applied, each trailer is smoothed and thoroughly cleaned. Then a primer coat is applied followed by the vinyl acrylic finish. Color selection is from nine beautiful standard colors. Two-tone or special paint colors are available on request.

Lamps are sealed for protection from moisture, and wiring is enclosed in conduit.

The tongue of 3-inch heavy-wall pipe construction and features positive Locking Bulldog coupler and easy-to-operate Bulldog Jack.

The heavy duty all-welded primary frame features heavy 3-inch by 3-inch angle iron with secondary cross members of 2-inch by 2-inch angle iron.

Tongue and grooved flooring spans the width of the trailer for utmost in strength and safety.

Heavy seven-leaf springs are designed to give the carrying capacity demanded of a stock trailer.

Business & Industrial Review

COMPRESSORS AT DRASTIC PRICE ADVANTAGE — Jerry Beavers and Wayne Schwab of the Lubbock Electric Co. staff call attention to marked-down prices throughout May on Campbell-Hausfeld compressors there. Check the accompanying story for specific examples of savings arranged.

Lubbock Electric Posting May Specials On Compressor Units

Lubbock Electric Co., 1108 34th St., does not fool around when it comes to staging a sale!

Proof is the May-long price reduction on Campbell-Hausfeld compressor units in stock.

Specific example of the savings is that of the ½hp, 7½-gal. tank, portable Campbell-Hausfeld compressor regularly selling for $183 but marked down this month to $125 at Lubbock Electric. The unit is complete with hose.

And the regular $623 3hp, 30-gal tank unit from the same manufacturer, complete with the hose, is marked by the Lubbock firm at a much lesser $495 this month!

It all is in keeping with Lubbock Electric Company's record of making numerous industrial and farming operations throughout the region trouble-free and less expensive.

Many Supplies

("Have you noticed how the firm has greatly expanded its already-large stock to include a vast quantity of industrial supplies?)

Although Lubbock Electric is quite well known for electric motors, fewer area residents may be aware of its air compressor sales and service.

Whether it is for the large industrial screw-type units or the smallest reciprocating machines, Lubbock Electric stocks repair parts and has the know-how to keep all types of compressors on the job.

Sales-Service

Stocked are the Campbell-Hausfeld and Quincy lines of both portable and stationary units.

(Lubbock Electric also is a warranty repair station for both the lines above.)

The sales force is trained in design and application, and the service department can custom build compressor units from available components.

Aside from quality products, service is a big item at Lubbock Electric Co. The complete staff is on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and this can be mighty important to the person with a crucial task awaiting qualified assistance.

"Come by now and take advantage of the compressor sale prices and learn of the many other products and specific services available, whether regarding changeover to electric power for farming operations; power tools, motors and other needs for farm and industry."

Gary's Frozen Foods Products Label Sure Solution When Goodness Desired

"Have you noticed how with every sunny, balmy day the urge to picnic seems irresistible? And how very good those picnic meals can taste! And how much enjoyment there is for the entire family and for friends!"

Delicious, nutritious meat products from Gary's Frozen Foods can make each of these meals "something special."

(It is no secret that folks for years have depended upon these products, not only for out-of-doors time, but also as ingredients for nutritious meals for the student, as example.)

Gary's Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is one of the most popular of the Gary's family of products.

"Shouldn't you find out for yourself how this and other of this Lubbock firm's fine products fit into your menu for the finest in nutritious food? Discover how Gary's provides the best in barbeque, corn dogs, super dogs, custom cooking and more. (Yes, Gary's is glad to custom prepare meat, throughout the year.)

Or one may simply discover that the Gary's Frozen Food label in a favorite grocery or supermarket opens the way to variety and nutritious goodness.

Select from Gary's Barbeque Flavor Delight, Gary's Corn Dogs, Gary's Bar-B-Que Beef brisket in bar-b-que sauce, and Gary's super dogs. Whether the occasion is a festive meal, a Sunday dinner or even a backyard snack, picnic or a birthday party, one can profit from dependence upon the home-owned, home-operated Gary's Frozen Food firm and its products.

The Bar-B-Que Flavored Delight is newest of the Gary's family of labels, and it is oh-so-good. A beef, beef suet and textured vegetable protein product, it is a new experience in delicious eating. Keep it frozen, and just heat to eat.

This new product is available in the area, distributed to retail stores and to institutions. Look for the label.

The 10-pack Corn Dogs have met with exceptional response.

Consisting of batter mix around a frankfurter, partially cooked in pure vegetable oil, these, too, are easy to prepare. Simply thaw, remove from bag, place in 375-degree oven for 12 to 15 minutes or deep fat fry.

Also, one can still get the delicious Gary's Barbeque Beef brisket in a favorite grocery or supermarket.

The many quality products and services from Gary's has made possible the continued growth of the firm, thanks to loyal customers who appreciate good food and Gary's sincere desire to please.

The barbeque brisket, super dogs and other quality items from Gary's Frozen Foods, 109th Street at South University Avenue, make many a West Texas meal something special — whether for a special event or simply a change of pace.

Finest Facilities

These products, long recognized as the finest obtainable, are prepared in the modern, enlarged, functionally attractive quarters for Gary's, specifically designed and built for service in South Lubbock.

Every Gary's Frozen Foods product is an experience in goodness! School children, their parents and a lot of other people (unexpected guests included) can attest to the deliciousness of Gary's Super dogs, corn dogs — and the Gary's Bar-B-Que package available on retail basis.

MORE THAN A PAINT STORE ALONE

Felix West Paints, With Convenient Clovis Road Address, Serving Region

"Much more than a paint store alone", Felix West Paints, on Clovis Road east of University Avenue, stocks fully to justify the invitation:

"Get it all at Felix West."

Not only is the stock complete, but Felix West holds the price line for customer benefit.

And most often there are some real bargains in discontinued items, remnants, etc., making it advantageous to check the store frequently for special savings.

Open Saturdays

Another item of customer consideration is the long hours observed every weekday. Felix West Paints is open rom 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m., Mondays through Saturdays; yes Felix West is open all day Saturdays.

Seasonal needs, as well as the standard year-around items, are found at Felix West Paints.

Thousands of general hardware items and scads of other products contribute to the "difference that is Felix West Paints".

Colony paints, Armstrong and Congoleum . . . these are among the names that spell true quality and availability for the demands of every season; always at Felix West.

Felix West has a pipe-threader as an added service, enabling cutting and threading in every pipe need (new pipe only). A good stock of pipe also is provided.

Located just one block east of University on the Clovis Highway (2319 Clovis Road), Felix West not only is one of the easiest stores to find (look for the distinctive signs), but it provides all the popular and even hard-to-find hardware items that make a trip there worthwhile.

Whether one selects from the Colony paint stock or chooses from the wide inventory of hand and power tools, pipe fittings, shop items, inexpensive gas or electric bathroom heaters, etc., the price and quality is unmistakably the best — a tradition well practiced and protected at Felix West Paints in its one big Lubbock location.

Felix West is no newcomer to Lubbock or to the hardware and paint trade, and he is unusually adept at stocking the right items for South Plains clientele.

Tuftwick Passing On Savings Without Sacrifice Of Quality

Here's a special message from Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock:

"With every shipment of carpet received and scheduled for delivery in the near future, the prices are higher. But there is good news, too:

"Tuftwick has an excellent inventory made available at the old prices! That's right; on carpeting received before the increases, we're keeping the price line and passing it on at savings one can appreciate."

"With such a policy and money-saving offer, it is plain that one should come in and select at Tuftwick at earliest date possible; choose while selection is good and at former prices."

(Wouldn't new carpeting be a most thoughtful special-occasion emembrance . . . a gift that will give pleasure and comfort for years to come?)

"Longtime recognition of Tuftwick Carpet, Inc. as a headquarters for attractive pricing, utmost in value, and always a wide selection is a matter of general knowledge.

"But in appreciating Tuftwick for its inflation-fighting prices, have you realized that this big firm at Slide Road and Brownfield Highway in Lubbock includes the most elegant wool carpets, even custom made for your own situation, along with its wide choices in other materials and grades?"

Finest 100 per cent wool carpet from Philadelphia Carpets, even in custom colors, is available at Tuftwick . . . so "let us custom make your carpet" is no idle claim there.

'To Your Specifications'

"Seriously, if you can't find the color you need, as example, consider custom carpet manufactured especially for you, to your exact specifications!

"Imagine . . . the exact color or any imaginable color, from the softest, most delicate color of your favorite rose to the deep rich auburn shade of your Irish setter! The exact style, weight and texture . . . even the exact shape, seamless and to 25 ft. width and 60 ft. length, can be yours!

"And you can purchase only what you need. Philadelphia Carpets makes your carpet to fit each particular room, seamlessly when the room is within the above size specifications.

Carpets of imported wools assure elegant beauty and natural soil resistance. Consider Flambeau, Presentation or Supremacy from Philadelphia and Tuftwick, now; you can thus have as good a carpet as is available on the market."

Tuftwick prides in the wide selection of quality carpet kept in stock at its southwest Lubbock store.

The wide stock and the special order service is Tuftwick's contribution to helping you fix up the home for spring and summer (and all-year) enjoyment. It is Tuftwick's way of saying "the very best to you; we want to help in your home beautification and in your budget."

"Low prices are the rule at Tuftwick, with extraordinary savings posted whenever possible.

Easy terms are available, with no money down, and with up to 36 months to pay!

Attractive Display

"If you have not been through the showrooms of the big Tuftwick Carpet, Inc., within the last few weeks, you are in for a real treat at your next visit."

Split Top Bread Loaf Joining Rainbo's 'Roman Meal Family'

Thanks to Rainbo Baking Co. of Lubbock, a new member of the "Roman Meal family" is being introduced throughout the area this week.

It is the 24-oz. Split Top Bread with the natural whole grain goodness of all the Roman Meal products.

(Roman Meal begins with whole grain hard red spring wheat and whole grain rye; but it takes Roman Meal's special milling to preserve the precious wheat and rye germ.)

These select grains are combined with flaxseed meal and extra bran and added to other nutritious ingredients like enriched flour and honey!

So . . . whether it is the new Split Top bread, the 16-oz. Roundtop loaf or the large thin sliced Sandwich Bread, one gets that delicious taste that is not found in any other bread product . . . it is the delicious taste of Roman Meal's natural whole grain goodness.

Ask for the new Split-Top Bread from Rainbo in your favorite grocery or supermarket.

Widely Popular

It is reported that Roman Meal represents 28 per cent of all wheat type bread and 12 per cent of all non-white bread sold in the nation!

Thoroughly in keeping with Rainbo's policy of "furnishing the needs of the people as they want and deserve," Rainbo has recognized that Roman Meal products are in no sense of the word a "sideline" but rather a "Number One Seller".

Some may not realize the appropriate naming of "Roman Meal" bread, hence this interesting observation:

Steeped In History

The Roman legions have long been recognized as the most effective and celebrated military institution known . . . the magnificent army of ancient Rome. What kept these Roman soldiers in such top condition, fighting as they did in strange lands far from their home base of supply? Strangely enough, an answer to this question was in the food they ate.

The basic daily marching and fighting ration of the Roman legionnaire was two pounds of whole grain wheat or rye coarsely ground in the army's small portable mills. This basic ration was only rarely supplemented with fresh vegetables or meat. The grain was either cooked into porridge or baked into bread, and eaten with a thin, sour wine. For many centuries the legions of Rome thrived on this hardy, simple diet.

Around 1910 a doctor in Tacoma, Washington traced the diet of the Roman soldier and duplicated the whole wheat and whole rye ration for his own use, later blending in flaxseed and bran for their additional nutritive properties. He was so delighted with the healthful properties of this new food, and with its natural flavor as well, that he shared it with friends and patients.

Simply enough, that is how Roman Meal Cereal was developed. Today, a mixture of the same whole grains is a basic ingredient in every loaf of Roman Meal Bread.

The Roman Meal grain mixture, because it is made with coarsely ground whole wheat and whole rye (including the wheat germ and rye germ) is rich in the whole grain vitamins and minerals that are usually removed from today's highly refined flours and cereals. Roman Meal Baker's Mix is then carefully combined with other nutritious ingredients, including protein-fortified wheat flour and golden honey, to produce a loaf having a distinctive light brown color and tender texture, midway between ordinary white and dark breads.

Judged by flavor, appetite satisfaction and nutrition, Roman Meal products from Rainbo surely are among the best food values in the market today.

U.S., China Initial Trade Agreement

CANTON, China (AP) — The United States and China initialed a broad trade agreement today, and both sides hailed it as a significant step on the road to economic normalcy after a 30-year break. Commerce Secretary Juanita Kreps said the pact opened the way for the two countries to expand their trade "to its full potential."

The agreement was initialed in Canton by Mrs. Kreps at 6:07 p.m. in both English and Chinese. Chinese Foreign Trade Minister Li Qiang (Li Chiang) initialed the document in Peking earlier. It was flown to Canton for the ceremony.

"Today marks a major step on the way to full normalization of Sino-American economic relations," Mrs. Kreps told the ceremony at the initialing, which was toasted with champagne.

Chen Jie (Chen Chieh), China's deputy foreign trade minister, told the gathering, "I am sure the initialing of the trade agreement will have the fruitful result in the final signing of the trade accord. ... This is an important step. I'm sure it is conducive to furthering our trade relations."

The agreement still must be signed and submitted to Congress for approval. Mrs. Kreps said she hoped that could be accomplished within the next two months, but the end of the year would be a more realistic target date.

"For 30 years the people of the United States have had little or no commercial, or other, contact with nearly one quarter of the population of the world," she said. "Today we take a major step together in resuming the unimpaired exchange of goods and services — and therefore the exchange of experiences, ideas, and good will."

The secretary said the agreement would establish a framework for orderly trade and business, provide reciprocal most-favored-nation status and eliminate a major obstacle to granting of official credits to China.

She also said it would greatly increase business contacts through trade exhibits, individual firm offices and other aids, and would assist medium and smaller-sized companies which have done very little business with China.

"In short, as a result of this agreement we shall be able to expand trade between our countries up to its full potential," she said.

U.S.-Chinese trade was $1.1 billion in 1978. After diplomatic relations were established in January, U.S. officials projected the figure would hit $2 billion in 1979 and reach $3 billion to $4 billion a year by 1984.

"It was negotiated under terrific pressure and with quite different conceptions," Richard N. Cooper, undersecretary for economic affairs of the Commerce Department, said of the pact. "The Chinese wanted a very general agreement. Our side wanted a lot written down.

"There was quite a bit of difference between the Chinese and American drafts. Part of the process has been our trimming away some of the detail that we would like to have seen in the draft and the Chinese accepting greater and greater detail than would have been their first preference."

The U.S. Trade Act of 1974 has numerous requirements that the Chinese never faced before in a trade agreement. It requires that U.S. business people receive multiple exit and entry visas and other aids. It requires protection of the U.S. market from disruption by imports and it requires protection for U.S. patents, trademarks and copyrights.

Mrs. Kreps and Cooper said that before the signed trade agreement is submitted to Congress, the administration wants a signed textile agreement. Negotiations for this resume Wednesday in Peking.

Mrs. Kreps left Peking Friday after the signing of a pact that will repay Americans $80.5 million for assets seized by China in 1949 and free an equal amount of Chinese assets frozen by the United States in retaliation.

Solons Consider Key Measures

moving the bill to conference committee status.

A handful of Senate liberals have used filibuster tactics through the first 4½ months of the legislative session for publicity and to gain bargaining power, but the tactic's effectiveness increases each day the lawmakers edge closer to the mandatory May 28 adjournment.

"I can't tell you exactly what bills or when, but the closer we get to the end, the more you're going to see it," said Sen. Ron Clower, D-Garland, one of the regular participants in what Lt. Gov. Bill Hobby has labeled "tag-team filibusters" — joint efforts by half a dozen or more senators who take turns at trying to kill a bill by delay, in effect talking it to death.

"We've been filibustering for two months with pretty good results, and they'e going to be more effective now."

Sen. LLoyd Doggett, D-Travis, has been a leader of the tag-team effort, but one of Doggett's prime targets was erased last week by a compromise. For some changes in a revision of the state's Deceptive Trade Practices Act during the final stages of House debate, Doggett agreed not to filibuster the plan when it returns to the Senate.

But there are other controversial matters remaining which will be targeted for "extended debate" by one or more senators. These include an increase in the state's interest ceiling on home mortgage loans, a presidential primary bill, a revision in products liability laws which passed the House last week, wiretap legislation and a bill allowing businesses to provide self-insurance for workmen's compensation.

A first sign of an impending filibuster is the removal of hard plastic shields on which senators' chairs sit, and on which they ordinarily stand during debate. The hard surfaces are uncomfortable for long stretches of standing, however, so the senators have them quickly carried away if they plan to talk at length.

During recent weeks, two or three of the shields have been in virtual permanent storage at the rear of the Senate chamber.

Doggett, who keeps a pair of tennis shoes at the Capitol to soften the impact on his feet during filibusters, sees enhanced prospects for successful efforts to talk bills to death in the final 14 days.

"I think this week they likely will be more of an annoyance, but next week is when you can really kill something," he said.

Nonstop talking is not a new development among Texas senators. Sen. Bill Meier, D-Euless, whose bills have been the target of several of the filibusters this session, earned a spot in the Guinness Book of World Records in 1977 by talking nonstop for 43 hours.

The previous record-holder also was a Texan — former Sen. Mike McKool, D-Dallas, who talked for 42 hours and 33 minutes in 1972.

Officials Oppose Senate Changes In SALT Pact

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate runs the "grave risk" of killing the new strategic arms limitation treaty with the Soviet Union if it tries to amend it, Secretary of State Cyrus R. Vance says.

And he warns that if the Senate fails to ratify the pact, it could cause "some unraveling in the NATO alliance."

Vance, who last week wrapped up lengthy negotiations with the Soviets on a new arms pact, argued the administration's case for treaty ratification Sunday on a video program. He was joined by Defense Secretary Harold Brown.

"This treaty is a very carefully drafted document, drafted over a period of almost seven years," Vance said. "It is interrelated and intertwined, and various parts of it bear upon other parts. Therefore, to amend any part runs a grave risk of killing the treaty completely."

He added that he could "think of no real substantive change in terms of an amendment that wouldn't jeopardize the existence of the treaty."

However, Sen. Howard Baker, the Senate's minority leader and a candidate for the 1980 Republican presidential nomination, said Sunday he thought it was "very unlikely" the Senate would approve the treaty as is.

Two-thirds of the Senate must ratify any treaty for it to go into effect.

Opponents of the pact argue the United States would not be able to determine adequately whether the Soviets were cheating on terms of the treaty because of the recent loss of intelligence monitoring stations in Iran.

President Carter and Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev are scheduled to sign the treaty at a summit meeting next month in Vienna, Austria.

Baker, who says he has not made a final decision on whether to support the pact, suggested that the Senate might ask Carter to take the treaty back to the Soviets to renegotiate parts of it.

Another senator expected to be influential in the upcoming Senate debate, Sam Nunn, predicted the administration would have an "uphill fight" in winning approval, but said ratification was possible.

The Georgia Democrat also said there was "validity to the argument of the administration, when they say that significant amendments could, in effect, be tantamout to defeating the treaty."

"But if I decide I cannot support the treaty as it now stands, yes, I will support amendments, and I will have to let the chips fall where it may, as far as the Russian interpretaton of that," said Nunn, who chairs the Senate subcommittee on military manpower.

The Soviet press has run commentaries the last few days expressing the Kremlin's concern about Senate ratification.

Kennedy Offers Health Program

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Edward M. Kennedy, saying the American health care system is now strained to the breaking point by runaway costs, today unveiled his own proposal for a national health care plan.

Kennedy's proposal, along with criticism of Carter's views, is certain to widen the rift between the senator and the president.

The Massachusetts Democrat announced his program at a news conference with other Congressional backers, including Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I. Also backing Kennedy's plan is the new chairman of the House Commerce Committee's health subcommittee, Rep. Henry Waxman, a liberal California Democrat.

"The health care for all Americans that represents the best chance to avoid national bankruptcy is to bring spiraling health costs under control," said Kennedy, who has battled unsuccessfully for national health insurance for nearly a decade.

A coalition of labor and other special interest groups helped shape the legislation, which would extend comprehensive benefits to every American regardless of age or income.

Kennedy's Health Care for All Americans Act would clamp tight cost controls on hospitals as well as physicians.

The eventual price tag, he says, would be about $32 billion a year. Health care this year is expected to cost $206 billion nationwide.

Full coverage for all Americans would begin two years after congressional passage.

Employers would be required to pay at least 65 percent of workers' premium costs. Negotiations between individual businesses and unions could conceivably raise that percentage.

Under Kennedy's bill, employers would be required to continue health insurance coverage for former workers for 60 days, after which the federal government would pick up the tab.

Medicare for the elderly and Medicaid for the poor would be improved, with the government paying the costs.

Unlike Kennedy's past proposals, the new bill includes close participation by the private sector and states, instead of relying exclusively on federal machinery. This, Kennedy argues, would help stimulate competition, provide incentives and curb inflation in the medical professions.

The states would coordinate private sector involvement.

A consortium of four private elements — commercial insurance companies, Blue Cross-Blue Shield plans, health maintenance organizations (HMOs) and independent practice associations — would offer state-approved benefits.

Those who helped write the bill say each of the private segments would "try to outdo one another and there would be a broader scope of services available for the same amount of money."

Each individual would be able to choose services from any of the four, and the choice of doctors would still be up to the patient.

Max Fine, executive director of the Committee for National Health Insurance, which helped Kennedy author the plan, said the cost control regulations on hospitals would be similar to what Canada has had for 20 years.

Hospitals would submit advance budgets, with the states then setting priorities on everything from hospital construction to equipment to patient services.

Fine said a similar procedure would apply to physicians' fees, with doctors not permitted to charge patients more than pre-negotiated charges.

Kennedy's plan is edorsed by the United Auto Workers, the AFL-CIO and the National Council of Senior Citizens. The Committee for National Health Insurance is a citizens' organization established 10 years ago by labor leaders and special interest groups.

Kennedy has acknowledged that both his and President Carter's health care plans face "an uphill fight" in Congress. Congressional sources who requested anonymity say no plan is likely to be passed this year.

Smith Back At Work Following Recovery

Justice of the Peace Charles E. Smith is back at work today after convalescing from a heart attack for about six weeks.

The Precinct 1, Place 2, justice of the peace worked a few hours last Thursday and Friday, then came back to work this morning for a full day of work.

Smith, 43, was in University Hospital for 15 days beginning March 26, when he checked in after having chest pains most of the day. The heart attack occurred March 29 in the hospital.

Walkouts End At Two Cities

By The Associated Press

Striking municipal workers in Tuscaloosa, Ala., and Worcester, Mass., ended strikes against their cities today.

The Alabama workers were responding to a court order which threatened to fine their union and jail their leaders.

In Worcester, where municipal workers had been on strike since last Wednesday, a three-year contract was approved by a show of hands, an estimated 1,200 workers voted to accept the same contract proposal they rejected on Saturday. It will give workers a 20 percent raise over three years.

The six-day walkout had tied up garbage collection and other services in Worcester. Workers were expected to return to their jobs Tuesday.

In another municipal dispute, police in Cookeville, Tenn., continued a 6-day-old walkout.

"It looks like we've got a full crew here," said Superintendent Carl Henderson of the Tuscaloosa street and sanitation department. "I'm very pleased to get back to the normal routine and get that garbage up."

Waterworks employees also returned to work in time to meet the 7 a.m. deadline.

Alabama Circuit Judge Jerome Baird issued the back-to-work order Friday, ruling that the 211 strikers had disobeyed an earlier order which banned picketing.

Baird said Local 2237 President James Brown and Vice President Jones Calhoun would begin five-day jail terms today if the workers were not back on their jobs. And he said the local would be fined $500 a day until the walkout ended.

Tuscaloosa's strike began Tuesday when waterworks, streets and sanitation department employees walked off their jobs in an apparent dispute over Brown's job status with the city. Brown had been on sick leave since October 1977, contending that an off-duty motorcycle accident aggravated an on-the-job injury he received in 1975.

Mayor Rainey Collins said Brown was dropped from the city's employment rolls when he did not respond to inquiries about his status.

Cookeville, Tenn., police and city officials were to resume negotiations today in an effort to end a police walkout triggered by the dismissal of the union president.

The walkout by 35 of the city's 40 policemen began Tuesday. City Manager Bethel Newport said Patrolman Ken Hall violated city policy by pursuing a fleeing car outside the city limits.

Lines Grow At Stations

not have enough fuel to handle Memorial Day crowds.

Many Californians, who thought they could beat rationing by filling up in the border town of Tijuana, Mex., found that pumps were dry there, too. For the second weekend in a row, almost all of Tijuana's 68 stations were out of premium gas.

"I was told there was plenty of gas in Mexico and now I don't know whether I can make it home," said James McFarland of San Diego. "My tank is on empty and this thing won't run on Mexican regular."

Business was off in Las Vegas, although Disneyland and other tourist attractions in California reported decent crowds. And many Californians went sailing, leaving motorboats at the docks.

"Heaven help them if the wind quits, because we don't have the gas to go get them," sai Sgt. Richard Olson of the Orange County harbor Patrol.

A survey by the U.S. Department of Transportation shows that sales of small cars — imports and subcompacts — during the first four months of this year were 34 per cent higher than a year ago, while big car sales dropped 16 per cent.

Michigan drivers were warned Sunday that they will be forced to drive less as the supply of gas drops. Charles Shipley, executive director of the state Service Dealers' Association, said more and more stations could be closed on weekends.

"If people panic and start topping off their tanks, then we'll have a worse situation," said Ben Moss, an Amoco Oil Co. planning manager in Michigan.

Suspect Held In Shooting

walking near the county line, about 25 miles north of here and a mile west of Highway 137.

The chief said Vasquez was charged with murder and was being held in the Dawson County Jail in lieu of a $100,000 bond set by Brownfield Justice of the Peace Pete Cromer. Lamesa Justice of the Peace Fred Vera pronounced Vicente Vasquez Sr. dead at his Lamesa home, where the incident took place.

"It was just an argument over some money," Bartlett said. He added that another of the dead man's sons, two women and a day-old baby were present when the shooting occurred.

The suspect allegedly was the only person with a weapon. A .22-caliber pistol believed used in the shooting is being sought, Bartlett said.

Former City Fireman Killed In Accident

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (Special) — A former Lubbock fireman was one of two men killed Sunday afternoon when a light plane crashed into the West Mesa area of Albuquerque.

Jerry Dean Roberts, 39, a Levelland resident who had been a Lubbock fireman, died at 7:30 p.m. at Presbyterian Hospital here. Roberts, pilot of the twin-engine aircraft, suffered internal injuries in the accident.

Michael Wayne Boyd, 28, also of Levelland, was pronounced dead at the scene, near the Albuquerque International Airport. Just minutes after takeoff from the airport, Roberts radioed and said the plane was having engine trouble. The craft apparently lost altitude and crashed immediately after leaving the airport en route to Midland.

The 5 p.m. mishap also injured Eugene Johnson, 48, of Midland, who was listed in serious condition today at St. Joseph Hospital in Albuquerque.

The victims' wives, Nancy Boyd, 25, Velda Roberts, 36, and Patricia Johnson, 43, were with their husbands in the plane. All were treated and released at St. Joseph Hospital.

A hospital spokesman said this morning that Johnson remained in intensive care, but that he was improving.

The three couples reportedly were en route to Midland in the Piper Arrow Navajo plane, owned by Verna Drilling Co. of Levelland, where Roberts and Boyd were employed.

Just after takeoff, and seconds before the crash, Roberts radioed to the airport tower that the plane had lost one of its engines.

The plane apparently had been moving in for a landing on an Albuquerque street when it crashed, scattering wreckage over a large area.

Services for the two men were pending this morning with George Price Funeral Home in Levelland.

Roberts had been a member of the Lubbock Fire Department before joining Verna Drilling Co. as a pilot in 1977. He was born July 9, 1939, in Lubbock and was reared in Levelland. Roberts was a member of the Austin Street Church of Christ in Levelland, a member of Masonic Lodge No. 1236 and the Lubbock Bodies of the Scottish Rite.

He is survived by his wife, Velda; two sons, Bobby and Randy; a daughter, Kerri, and three stepsons, Donny, Kevin and Eddie Pickard, all of the home; a brother, Don of Levelland; a sister, Betty Roberts of Lubbock; and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Preston Roberts of Levelland.

Boyd was born Aug. 19, 1950, in Wichita Falls. The Levelland resident was a member of the First Assembly of God Church in Holiday. Boyd was a controller for Verna Drilling Co.

He is is survived by his wife, Nancy; a son, Jamie Lynn; and a daughter, Christi Rene, all of the home; his parents Mr. and Mrs. Butch Boyd of Holiday; a brother, Merle Boyd of Bedford; and a sister, Mrs. Ronnie Awtry of Wichita Falls.

Carter Decides To Press For Pay System Overhaul

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has decided to press Congress for an overhaul of the federal pay system that could save taxpayers an estimated $4.6 billion per year.

Savings would come at the expense of some 4 million civilian and military employees, whose future pay raises would be held down for perhaps several years.

Carter overrode doubts of some of his senior White House advisers, who fear the measure may provoke too much opposition from federal workers, their labor unions and other interest groups who feel threatened by the plan.

He gave final approval to the "pay reform" plan earlier this month, and it is scheduled to go to Congress by early June.

Its basic direction is to hold down federal pay raises until levels are more in line with official calculations of the going rate for similar work in private industry and state and local governments.

The plan's target is a federal pay system that administration officials say:

— In some places pays janitors more than nurses, and pays truck drivers more than engineers.

— Pays federal blue collar workers 8 percent more than their privately-employed counterparts.

— Does not include the federal government's generous pensions and other fringe benefits when computing federal pay levels supposedly comparable with those in private industry.

— Pays secretaries, clerks and other white-collar workers more than their private sector counterparts in places such as San Antonio, but less in high-wage areas such as New York.

No individual federal worker would take a pay cut, and federal white-collar workers in high-wage areas like New York City and Alaska could end up with bigger raises than before.

But most federal workers would see their pay raises held down, possibly for several years.

The plan would directly affect future pay raises for 1.4 million federal white-collar workers and 462,000 blue-collar workers.

Indirectly, it also would hold down future pay raises for the more than two million uniformed military personnel and State Department foreign service officers, whose yearly raises are linked to raises for the so-called "general schedule" of federal white-collar pay.

Pay for the 523,000 Postal Service employees is set by collective bargaining, so Carter's pay plan would not effect them beyond setting an example.

Advocates say Carter's plan would correct quirks which federal managers have complained about for years, and bring major savings to taxpayers.

Alan Campbell, the president's personnel director, estimates a $4 billion annual savings just from counting federal fringe benefits in the formula for setting pay for white-collar and blue-collar workers.

Administration officials are now working on a more accurate forecast of savings in this area, which they say is almost certain to be higher than $4 billion.

Beyond that, an estimated $600 million-a-year savings would be realized by phasing out the top three pay levels in the five-step pay scale for blue-collar workers.

By law their top scale is 12 percent higher than locally prevailing wages for similar work. The average blue-collar worker is at about step four on the pay scale and ordinarily gets 8.1 percent more than the local going rate.

At present federal blue-collar workers are getting only 5.2 percent more than local rates because Carter is holding down federal pay as part of his anti-inflation program, but the holddown is supposed to be temporary.

Carter's pay plan would set the top step permanently at the going rate for similar work in the local area.

One of the most controversial features of the plan probably would save taxpayers nothing, though federal managers say it would ease their hiring problems in high-wage areas.

This proposal would pay locally prevailing wages to the bulk of white-collar workers — those now making up to about $20,000 a year.

"Locality pay" already has sparked opposition from businessmen in San Antonio, a low-wage city with more than 30,000 civilian federal workers and a federal payroll of roughly $500 million a year.

Campbell, in an interview, said this will be a "very tough" issue for members of Congress representing areas where federal payrolls would be held down under this plan.

Preliminary reports of the pay revision plan already have sparked furious opposition from the dominant federal union, the American Federation of Government Employees.

The federation supported Carter for election in 1976 and backed last year's civil service bill, but this year the union's leadership has printed pamphlets accusing him of "big lie" tactics and has launched a crusade titled "Save Our Benefits."

Campbell says union leaders may eventually support the pay measure as the only alternative to the even more unpleasant prospect of arbitrary and across-the-board "pay caps," such as those which Carter imposed this year and plans to impose next year as an anti-inflation measure.

White House press secretary Jody Powell predicted that "pay reform" would be a popular issue in a year when balancing the budget has become politically trendy.

And he predicted it would please the voters who backed Carter as the "anti-Washington" candidate in 1976. "They expected him to come up here and shake things up," Powell said.

Patient Makes Station Call

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The question of duty vs. survival Dr. Myles Lippe had to face during the weekend wasn't covered by the Hippocratic oath — but these are not normal times in gas-starved California.

The doctor had driven around for an hour looking for gas when he finally found a station that was to open in one hour.

"There was only one car in front of me, and I couldn't believe my luck," the San Francisco internist said Sunday.

But then his paging device beeped, indicating a patient was in need of his services.

"I called him from a pay phone booth at the station, determined his ailment was not serious and that he lived close to the area and asked him if he'd mind coming down so I wouldn't have to lose my place in line," the doctor said. "He understood perfectly."

The internist examined the patient in his car, diagnosed the ailment as a rash resulting from a virus and wrote out a prescription.

"I didn't have anything with me, but it was nothing serious. I wrote the prescription on the back of my business card since I didn't even have the prescription pad with me," the physician said.

"All in all, it was a very productive day. I wasn't even bored waiting for the station to open."

College Sophomore Killed In Plunge

TROY, N.Y. (AP) — A sophomore at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute slipped and plunged 175 feet over a cliff to his death during a pre-final exam fraternity outing, a college spokesman says.

The spokesman said Robert Paul, 19, of Trumbull, Conn., was walking and "clowning around" with several of his fraternity brothers Saturday along a footpath in Thacher Park when the accident occurred. The fraternity brothers said Paul jumped over the handrail and lost his footing, the spokesman said.

Rape Heads Reward List

The aggravated kidnapping and rape of two Texas Tech University coeds last month is this week's "Spotlight Crime of the Week." Crime Line Inc. is offering a $500 reward to the person who provides information leading to the arrest of the men who abducted the coeds from the campus and raped them.

Seven other crimes, with rewards totaling $2,300 placed on them by Mayor Dirk West also are featured this week.

The $500 spotlight crime occurred April 27 when the two 19-year-old university students were forced at gunpoint and knifepoint by four Mexican-American men into an older model, four-door sedan.

The women were on a campus sidewalk, preparing to enter a dormitory about 10:30 p.m. when they were abducted. They were driven one mile north of FM 1729 on FM 1264, where they were ordered out of the vehicle by the suspect carrying the gun.

When the women hesitated, the gun-wielding man fired the weapon and the women got out of the vehicle. The suspect then took one of the women about a quarter mile west of the intersection and raped her.

The other three suspects took her companion to the southeast corner of the intersection, where she was raped and assaulted. After the attack, they returned her to the car and waited for the fourth assailant.

While they waited, the woman was raped a second time by the three suspects and both women then were released on FM 1729.

The women were threatened several times and told they would be hurt if they went to the police. Authorities are searching for a light-colored car that has a rosary on a silver chain hanging from the rearview mirror in connection with the incident.

Police believe four aggravated robberies committed between April 10 and May 2 involved the same suspects and are offering a $300 reward for information in each of the cases.

The first armed robbery occurred April 10 when the resident of 423 Ave. D responded to a knock at his back door about 10:20 p.m. When he opened the door, a Mexican-American male pushed the victim backward and another Mexican-American man followed carrying a gun.

The bandits demanded money from the man, and when he resisted, he was struck with the pistol and $135 was removed from his pants pocket.

As the trio was struggling, a bed was overturned and a pistol belonging to the victim fell out. The two robbers left in a 1965-70 white vehicle.

The second related robbery occurred April 28 at a club in the 1800-block of East Broadway. As the victim was locking his car, a Mexican-American male and Mexican-American female approached him.

The male suspect was carrying a blue steel .38-caliber revolver, which he placed behind the victim's right ear, telling him to look straight ahead.

The bandit went through the victim's pockets and took his money. The victim then was ordered to walk into the club, but as he was entering the nightspot, he turned around and saw the suspects leaving in a white Ford.

A third robbery occurred the next night at the same club.

The victim and his wife were sitting

Coast Guard Calls Off Search For Workers

GALVESTON (UPI) — Acknowledging there was almost no chance of finding seven missing offshore oil workers alive, the Coast Guard has "shut down" its search of a sunken oil rig platform where one body was recovered.

Divers Sunday recovered the body of one of eight missing roughnecks believed trapped inside or thrown from the rig that collapsed and sank in the Gulf of Mexico late Thursday.

"About 5:20 p.m. the divers recovered one body in the casing house," a Coast Guard spokesman said. "The way I understand it, it is a deck above a main deck."

Coast Guard Lt. Gabriel O. Kinney said, "They have searched the entire rig and all the compartments inside and found the one body."

A spokeswoman for the Galveston County sheriff's office said early today no identification had been made on the body. An autopsy was scheduled for later today.

Kinney said the search for the other missing men had been suspended "pending further developments," acknowledging it was "unlikely they will be found alive at this time."

Coast Guard spokesman Kenneth Harry said early today, "We've shut down. We've quit looking. None of our boats are out there."

The Coast Guard prepared to convene a board of inquiry today in the island city with its members to include Commander Arthur E. Henn, Lt. Comm. Edward B.P. Kangeter III and Capt. William E. Whaley Jr.

Atlantic Pacific Marine Corp., the rig's owner, has not given any reason for the accident, and APMC officials tried Sunday to keep reporters from talking to survivors who were housed in a local motel.

The divers completed their laborious walk through the dark, water-filled rooms of the 115-foot platform about 5:30 p.m. Sunday. They found no sign of the other seven men or of life-saving air pockets that officials had hoped could have sustained the workers since the jack-up rig collapsed.

Kinney said, "If someone was clinging to debris or something, they would have been found by now."

Harry also said there was little hope of recovering anyone alive.

Four of the 26 men rescued from the water remained in John Sealy Hospital early today.

Hope for the missing men appeared to be fading when a Schafer Diving Co. crew suspended its operation before midnight Saturday. The private diving company had sent word to the Coast Guard earlier Saturday that it would work all night.

As divers were frustrated in their search, an effort was made by Kinney to contact survivors and try to determine where the missing men were when the rig collapsed.

"It was about time for a crew shift. Everyone was up," Kinney said. Divers resumed their search at noon Sunday, and at that time — 60 hours after the jack-up rig collapsed late Thursday night — a Coast Guard spokesman had said it was possible the missing men were still alive.

Atlantic Pacific identified two of the missing men as its employees, John S. Perkins, 24, of Merryville, La., and Eddie J. Fredericks, 25, of Abbeville, La.

The Coast Guard identified the other six as Lee Cruidy, Dennis Smith, Walter Fobmogie, Ed Hanks, Barton Sealy and Cruz Pallmarez.

Students Create Toothpick Sculpture

By LISA PAIKOWSKI
Avalanche-Journal Staff

The fragile sculpture displayed in the Parkway Elementary School cafeteria was a test of the diligence and imagination of its sixth grade creators who thought it couldn't be done.

But succeed they did in sculpting an intricate toothpick statue of a horse and rider — the Parkway Raider — that stands a bit over 5 feet 5 inches.

The unique art work is fashioned from toothpick webs and frames made with Popsicle and corn dog sticks that were fastened together with white glue. The horse, which rears back on its hind legs, is supported by a metal stand and rests on a wooden table in the cafeteria.

The artists' teacher, James McLaughlin, said, "The kids couldn't really visualize ever getting it done."

But the students, whom McLaughlin called "energetic and very creative," managed the feat by working during their off-periods, after and before school started and during class when their other work was done.

"Each year I try to create an ongoing project the students can work on when they're not busy with their schoolwork," said McLaughlin, who is called Mr. Mac by his students.

The project is set up in the center of his room and students who complete their classwork are allowed to work on the project. "It's kind of a reward for being a good citizen in class," the teacher explained.

He previously has directed his students' efforts at other toothpick creations, including a 10-foot Christmas tree made several years ago.

McLaughlin said the students began working on the individual toothpick webs before Christmas and then stored them in a large box until after spring break. After the holidays the students worked for about three weeks on the

Woman Awaits Word On Missing Fiance

GALVESTON (AP) — The young woman with long curly hair entered the Coast Guard headquarters and waited, dry-eyed, for word on the fate of her fiance, one of eight men listed as missing in an offshore oil rig accident.

At the same time, Coast Guard Lt. Gabe Kinney was about to tell a reporter on the telephone that the search for the missing men had been called off for good because there was little chance the men would ever be found alive.

"As I was explaining to a reporter on the telephone the reasons why we were ending the search, I saw her and the people with her out of the corner of my eye," said Kinney.

He decided the best way to break the news to her was to let her overhear his conversation.

"I continued to describe the circumstances, knowing full well she was standing there," Kinney said. "Because I was on the phone, I knew they weren't going to break in, and providing an explanation to reporters seemed the best way to explain to someone who had obviously lost someone very close.

"It was quiet until I finished the description and hung up the phone, but I could tell the tension was building.

"As I answered all the reporter's questions and hung up, she broke down and her body was wracked with sobbing. Young and scared is the best way I could describe her. The older woman had her arms around the girl and the girl fell back into her arms when she became hysterical."

The woman's father and two others with her helped her out of the Coast Guard office.

Kinney said he didn't know the young woman's name.

Kinney shook his head. "I don't know where they (the missing men) are. They could be in the rig. They could be under the rig. They could be drifting with the Gulf currents, which are notorious. They could be anywhere.

DEAR ABBY

DEAR ABBY: My husband is 72 and retired, but he's making a career of making my life miserable. He used to be quite the man about town. I spent many lonely evenings wondering where he was and when he'd come home.

Now, I can't get him out of the house. I actually have to look for things for him to do: "Go to the grocery store! Go to to the drugstore! Go to the hardware store!"

I can hardly stand the sight of him! My stomach turns over when I hear his key in the door.

After he reads the morning paper, he follows me around supervising the cooking and housekeeping.

If a lady friend of mine comes over for a cup of tea, he horns in and monopolizes the conversation.

Dear God, I am so sick of him, death would be a welcome release!

AGING IN INDIANA

Dear Aging: Yours or his? The quality of a marriage is only as good as the materials used by the builders. The "lumber of life" is caring, sharing, patience, forgiveness and understanding. One can't expect to spend his twilight years in a cathedral when he's accumulated only enough "lumber" for a shack.

DEAR ABBY: I was invited to the home of a married couple for dinner so I brought my hostess a bottle of expensive French wine.

She thanked me for it, then promptly put it away. Instead of serving my lovely wine with dinner, she served a domestic wine. I thought that was tacky. I was also very disappointed because, enjoying fine wines as I do, I had looked forward to having some of the wine I had brought.

According to the rules of etiquette shouldn't my hostess have served my wine?

STATEN ISLANDER

Dear Islander: No. And don't assume that because a wine is expensive and French, it is superior to a less costly domestic wine. It ain't necessarily so, say impartial wine connoisseurs.

DEAR ABBY: I recently learned that our 22-year-old son in college is the father of a child who was given away for adoption last year. Our son did not confide in us. I found this out quite by accident.

My husband and I have always looked forward to our first grandchild and I am sick with grief to think that somewhere in this world I have a grandchild whom I will never know. I haven't been able to bring myself to tell my husband. My question: Do I have the right to keep this from him? It's HIS grandchild, too.

GRIEVING GRANNY

Dear Granny: No good can come from telling your husband. Your grandchild is now somebody else's child and grandchild as well. Be kind and silent. And don't dwell on it. Regret is the cancer of life.

• • •

CONFIDENTIAL TO SOLLY IN THE WINDY CITY: You've got a "gelt" complex. Don't assume that every woman who shows an interest in you is after your money — unless, of course, that's all you have to offer.

Shellac Retains Popularity Over Years

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Because it is versatile, easy to apply and dries rapidly, shellac has retained its popularity over the years despite the inroads made by some of the synthetic wood finishes, especially the varnishes.

Shellac's natural gloss can be cut down, if desired, by steel wooling or rubbing with pumice and rottenstone. If the high gloss is wanted, all that is necessary is to apply a coat of paste wax and rub it in. Or you can use a liquid polisher which has some of the ingredients of paste wax and is designed to eliminate all or part of the rubbing.

Every so often, somebody will complain that, after applying shellac, it doesn't dry properly, is sticky or gets cloudy. The causes generally are that the shellac was applied under high humidity conditions, or the shellac was too old, or it was applied just as it came out of the container. Shellac should never be bought in large quantities unless it is to be used within a period of six months. It doesn't "take" when the air is laden with moisture. And it has to be thinned with denatured alcohol.

Shellac comes mostly in 4-or 5-pound cuts. This means that 4 or 5 pounds of shellac gum have been dissolved to each gallon of alcohol. But it must be cut still further, a procedure which enables it to be applied in several light coats rather than one thick coat. After you have used shellac a few times, you will learn just how much denatured alcohol should be mixed with the shellac for the consistency that you want. But until you discover this, your first uses of shellac will produce good results by making a mixture of half shellac and half alcohol.

Two kinds of shellac are available — white and orange. The white actually is clear and is the most widely used. The orange is recommended when you want a darker color without hiding the grain of the wood.

When wood has been sanded preparatory to the use of shellac, it should always be wiped thoroughly with denatured alcohol. Although shellac dries in much less than three hours, I have found it wise to wait at least that long between coats. If the surface is sanded lightly to remove imperfections (it isn't always necessary), be sure to use a dry brush to remove grit residue before applying the next coat.

(The techniques of using shellac, lacquer, varnish, stain, bleach, etc., are described in Andy Lang's booklet, "Wood Finishing in the Home," available by sending 35 cents and a long, STAMPED envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.)

THROAT NOTE

Usually the first part of the skin to show its age is the throat. Crepiness and the white lines that betray the wrinkles present are sure giveaways that the skin is losing its youthful tone. Exercise and massage are partial answers. The massage should include the use of moisturizing emollients to restore the skin's natural lubrication. It should also include a skin toner such as good quality witch hazel. The final beauty note is to make sure the makeup includes the neck. The cosemtic shade that is best for one's face is apt to be best for the throat. Blend it evenly with a cotton square dampened with witch hazel.

The Slim Gourmet

By Barbara Gibbons

"Pesto" is the name of a famous "green" spaghetti sauce made by grinding fresh basil leaves, oil and seasonings with a mortar and pestle, before tossing it with hot pasta.

There are three problems with this. First and foremost, it's fattening! Not because of the pasta, but because of the oil (1,984 calories a cupful). The second and third problems are where do you get fresh basil leaves and a mortar and pestle to grind them?

We've solved all three problems with our "Spinach Pesto" made in the blender or food processor, with fresh raw spinach and dried basil...no oil added. This low-fat, low-calorie meatless dish also solves a fourth problem: finding good, cheap, non-fattening main courses to fight monetary as well as personal inflation.

The recipe below is for one serving, so double, triple or quadruple the ingredients as needed. Remember, only the basil is dried; the spinach, parsley and garlic should be fresh.

NO-OIL-ADDED FRESH SPINACH PESTO

For each serving:
1 cup (packed) rinsed, trimmed raw spinach
1 clove garlic, peeled
¼ cup fresh parsley
1½ tsps. dried basil
optional: pinch of nutmeg
1 tbsp. olive liquid (or low-cal Italian salad dressing)
1 cup hot cooked high-protein linguini or spaghetti
1 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1/3 cup pot cheese (uncreamed cottage cheese)
salt and pepper to taste
optional: 2 tsps. pignoli nuts (or dry-toasted sunflower seeds)

Combine spinach, garlic, parsley, basil, nutmeg and 1 tablespoon olive liquid (from a jar of olives) in blender or food processor (using the steel blade). Cover and process until finely minced.

Return hot, drained, cooked pasta, unrinsed, to the pot it was cooked in. Stir in Parmesan cheese until well-coated. Stir in pot cheese. Add chopped spinach mixture (seasoned to taste) and stir over very low heat until warmed through. Spoon into a plate and serve immediately. Sprinkle with pignoli or sunflower seeds, if desired. Each serving, 295 calories (nuts and salad dressing add about 35 calories).

Here's another low-calorie, low-cost meatless Italian main course that's high in protein. It features a thick layer of "green" cheese ... thanks to the spinach.

MOSTLY CHEESE LASAGNA WITH SPINACH

4 lasagna noodles (3 ozs.)
2 cups plain tomato sauce
optional: 1 clove garlic, minced
1 tsp. dried oregano
15 ozs. part-skim ricotta cheese
2 eggs
1 cup (packed) rinsed, trimmed raw spinach
1 tsp. salt
¼ cup fresh parsley
1 tsp. dried basil
½ cup shredded part-skim mozzarella cheese
1 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese
1 tbsp. grated Romano cheese
1 tbsp. seasoned bread crumbs

Cook lasagna noodles in boiling salted water until tender. (To cook only 4 lasagna noodles, use a large skillet instead of a big pot.)

Combine tomato sauce, garlic (if desired) and oregano; set aside.

Combine ricotta, eggs, spinach, salt, parsley and basil in blender or food processor. Blend until cheese is smooth and spinach and parsley are minced.

Spray a small non-stick loaf pan with cooking spray. Put one-half cup tomato sauce in the bottom. Arrange 2 noodles on the bottom, with long edges running up the sides.

Pour in the ricotta mixture. Top with remaining 2 noodles, trimmed to fit, so the ricotta mixture is covered. Spoon on one-quarter cup of tomato sauce. Sprinkle on the shredded mozzarella and Parmesan. Pour on remaining tomatosauce. Sprinkle with Romano cheese and bread crumbs. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven 1 hour. Slice to serve. Makes six servings, 230 calories each.

GOREN ON BRIDGE

BY CHARLES H. GOREN
AND OMAR SHARIF
(c) 1979 by Chicago Tribune

Q.1—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠ A63 ♡75 ◇9762 ♣10932
Partner opens the bidding with one heart. What do you respond?

A.—You have 4 points and a potential misfit. Your hand will produce one trick for partner, but nothing more. If your side has a game, partner must have enough for a demand bid. Pass.

Q.2—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠KQ63 ♡A964 ◇7 ♣KJ97
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ◇ Dble. ?
What action do you take?

A.—This is a good hand opposite a partner who could open the bidding. If you have a fit, prospects for game are excellent: if you do not, you should be able to punish the opponents. Even though you do not have support for partner's suit, the correct way of describing your hand is with a redouble. That requests partner to pass the next bid round to you. Obviously, you intend doubling any suit that the opponents bid.

Q.3—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠AK4 ♡6432 ◇AQ3 ♣AK5
What is your opening bid?

A.—Your hand is too strong to open one no trump, but not good enough for two no trump. The recommended method of treating this hand is to open one club and rebid two no trump. If you opted for one no trump, take a big demerit. The maximum for a one no trump opening is 18 points and you have 20.

Q.4—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠J54 ♡KJ765 ◇K652 ♣4
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South
1 ♠ 1 ♠ ?
What action do you take?

Q.5—Neither vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠63 ♡A95 ◇52 ♣AKJ754
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ♡ 1 ♠ 2 ♠ Pass
4 ♡ Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—While you have shown a good hand with your two-over-one response, it need not be that good—your holding in partner's suit is most important, especially since you have two ruffing values. We would not blame you if you bid slam right away, but a more cautious approach is to raise to five hearts, and leave it to partner to bid slam if he has controls in both unbid suits.

Q.6—East-West vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KQ97 ♡AJ ◇K43 ♣Q1083
Your right-hand opponent opens the bidding with one spade. What action do you take?

A.—If you make a free bid of two hearts at this point, partner would be compelled to speak again. In all likelihood, he will rebid three clubs, which will place you in a most uncomfortable position. You can pass with perfect safety now. If partner has a strong hand, he will reopen the bidding. Beware of making forcing bids on potential misfits.

A.—The one thing you cannot do is double—you are unprepared for partner's likely heart response. It is a close decision between pass and one no trump. We prefer the former, for the opponents could easily get beyond their depth, which at this vulnerability will allow you to collect 100 points for each undertrick.

Q.7—As South, vulnerable, you hold:
♠J5 ♡KQ10 ◇AQ104 ♣KJ95
The bidding has proceeded:
East South West North
1 ♡ 1 NT Pass Pass
2 ♡ Pass Pass 2 ♠
Pass ?
What action do you take?

A.—Don't be overimpressed by partner's bid of two spades. Bear in mind that he was quite happy to let you play one no trump. Now he simply does not want the opponents to buy the hand cheaply and is showing a five-card or longer suit. We would pass. Too bad we didn't double two hearts, but at that time we didn't know partner had any values at all.

Q.8—Both vulnerable, as South you hold:
♠KJ10974 ♡KQ ◇9 ♣J1094
The bidding has proceeded:
North East South West
1 ◇ Pass 1 ♠ Pass
3 ♠ Pass ?
What do you bid now?

A.—Had partner simply raised to two spades, you would have jumped to game. Therefore, a pusillanimous bid of four spades now doesn't come close to expressing the value of your hand. You should make some effort to get to slam. Unfortunately you do not have a first-round control to cue-bid; however, a jump to five spades will describe your hand quite accurately.

At Wit's End...

By ERMA BOMBECK

Let's hear it out there today for the Non-Mothers. There aren't any songs sung for them. There aren't any appropriate cards written for them. There aren't any days set aside for them. But they exist.

They are people who experience all the joy, the caring, and the pain of motherhood. They just weren't there at the delivery.

Some Non-Mothers are disguised as teachers who spend more time with the children than their mothers. They contribute ambition, hope, expertise, time, and a sense of self to a child. After all, isn't that what a mother is all about?

Other Non-Mothers are older brothers and sisters of a child who share bedrooms, pizza and their lives. They take them to the bathrooms, the movies on Sunday and hold them when they're rejected by a parent and there is no one else to cling to. Isn't that what a mother is all about?

There's the father Non-Mother, who pinch hits occasionally at getting meals, mopping up, or sitting through a pageant when the mother can't do it. He offers a back-up system of support, sharing and security. Isn't that what a mother is all about?

Some Non-Mothers have experience. They're called grandparents, and whether their custody of a child is occasional, part-time or full-time, they add to the child another dimension of another time — another set of values — an appreciation for things that endure. Isn't that what a mother is all about?

There are Non-Mothers who are paid for being a mother, but it takes nothing away from their involvement. They kiss away the hurts, listen to their stories and, what is more important, are there. Isn't that what a mother is all about?

There are a lot of Non-Mothers who touch a child's life in a million ways and who, at first glance, don't seem to fit the role. An angry motorist whom a child has never seen before will yell at him to get his tricycle out of the street. A guidance counselor will tell him to get off his bottom and work! A shop owner will chew him out for lifting a piece of penny bubble gum.

At a moment when he needed it, he was picked up and pointed in the right direction by someone who took the time to care about him. Isn't that what mothering is all about too?

UPI Survey Indicates President Has Lost Many Ohio Delegates

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Almost two-thirds of the Ohio delegates who helped put President Carter over the top at the 1976 Democratic National Convention now either are on the fence, opposed to Carter, or seeking a fresh nominee in 1980.

A survey by United Press International shows that only 38 percent of Carter's Ohio slate from the 1976 nominating convention is solidly in his corner for next year.

Another 19 percent of Carter's delegates are now opposed to or leaning away from his renomination, and 43 percent are either undecided or will back the president only if no one else is available.

Almost half of all these groups mention, without prompting, Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts as the candidate they are awaiting.

UPI made a mail survey of Ohio's 125 Carter delegates to the 1976 party convention, many of whom had climbed aboard his bandwagon before he won his first primary. Fifty-six delegates responded.

Christine Gitlin of Berea, the chairman of Ohio's national convention who touched off pandemonium in Madison Square Garden by announcing Ohio's votes that gave Carter the nomination, still supports the president — with mild criticisms.

"He has done a more than adequate job," said Miss Gitlin, but she added the administration has "done a godawful job" of communicating with supporters. "Perhaps our expectations of him were just too high, and we don't have a Moses waiting in the wings," she said.

"I will probably support the president," said David Meeker of Akron, co-chairman of Carter's primary campaign. "But if it is a choice between him and Teddy Kennedy, I might have to give it some serious thought."

Among the delegates who worked for him with fervor three years ago, Carter clearly still has fans. But he has made enemies, some of whom refer to him in unprintable language.

"People expected something new, different and uplifting from Jimmy Carter and all that they have received to date is the same old stuff that we have been receiving from every politician," said John F. Stephens of Maumee.

"I'm one of the die-hards," countered Vera Humes of Columbus, an officer in a labor organization. "I still have my life-size picture of him. I think he's going to pull out of it."

"Lincoln he ain't," philosophized a Cleveland delegate who did not sign his reply, "but I think he is still the best Democrat available."

The survey showed 75 percent of the delegates who responded give Carter excellent marks in foreign policy, but 95 percent feel he has fallen short of their expectations in handling domestic affairs.

The main criticism, again in unprompted answers, is Carter's failure to reinstill confidence in government because of bad appointments, cronyism, a lack of communication with local Democrats and "the same old politics." This was mentioned by 46 percent of the delegates responding.

Thirty-nine percent cited Carter's inability to bring inflation and the economy under control; 32 percent complained of a lack of progress in social reforms; 21 percent mentioned Carter has not reorganized government and cut bureaucracy as promised; and 20 percent cited the energy problem.

On the positive side, half the delegates acclaiming Carter's foreign policy specifically mentioned his role in the Mideast peace talks, described by delegate Karl Struble of Westerville as "gutsy, direct, courageous and imaginative ... the only way to break the stalemate and find peace."

"He has taken chances and done things which were not politically guaranteed," noted Joanne DiCarlo of North Olmsted. "I personally believe it is better to try and fail than not to try at all."

While almost half the delegates were disillusioned about the "same old politics," another 14 percent accused the president of a lack of leadership and political savvy, and of "knuckling under" to Congress.

Auto Repair Industry Criticizes Report

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The automobile repair industry contends it was slandered by a report that one of every $2 Americans spend on car repairs is wasted.

"Enormous public injury has resulted," industry representatives said in a letter to President Carter. "The 600,000 service technicians and 400,000 service facility owners have been subjected to a national slander unparalleled in the history of responsible governmental actions."

The survey of automotive repair costs was announced by Transportation Secretary Brock Adams and the industry asked Carter to order him to apologize.

But the administration's response was to chide the automotive repair industry for its reaction to the report.

A Department of Transportation official said the industry was defensive about the charges "when every study shows that there is a substantial problem and the energies and attention of responsible elements of the industry should be addressed to reducing that problem."

The Automotive Parts and Accessories Association, Washington; the Automotive Service Councils Inc., Elmhurst, Ill., and the National Congress of Petroleum Retailers, Washington, said the study was based on a survey of 62 of 400,000 automotive repair establishments.

"Almost 1 billion maintenance repairs are performed annually, and the 120 repair actions in the limited DOT Study used to destroy public confidence in this fundamental industry are not statistically reliable," the industry groups said.

Adams said more than 50 cents of every dollar charged for car repairs is wasted because the work done is not needed or is ineffective. The findings were based on undercover surveys of garages in several cities across the country.

Adams said consumers should be aware of possible abuses and get second opinions on car repair estimates.

The department spokesman said the survey was not an indictment of the auto repair industry.

"We didn't make any claims about whether you could project this nationwide," he said. "The secretary in fact disavowed this. But this is the most scientific attempt of this kind of undercover study that we're aware of.

Garwood Returning To Duty

CAMP LEJEUNE, N.C. (UPI) — Pfc. Robert R. Garwood, who spent 13½ years with the North Vietnamese before going home last month, returns to active duty with the Marines this week to wait for word on whether he'll be tried as a deserter.

Fellow POWs accuse Garwood of collaborating with the enemy after his capture in September 1965, but officials on this sprawling Marine complex said Garwood will be treated like any other soldier while the facts of his case are examined.

Base officials said Garwood, 33, from the small town of Adams, Ind., might arrive as early as tonight, depending upon how quickly medical and administrative processing at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station could be completed.

"There will be nothing special for him. He will literally be treated like every other Marine and I mean that," said Capt. Donald Dupree, in the Headquarters and Service Battalion where Garwood will be assigned.

His reception committee consists of his military attorney, Capt. Dale W. Miller, who will meet him at the Jacksonville Airport and bring him to the base for routine processing.

It may take months for the investigative work in Garwood's case to be completed, and he'll find the 110,000-acre base housing 37,600 Marines a bit like Vietnam. The sound of artillery rattles over the thousands of acres of jungle-like terrain, and helicopters constantly buzz overhead.

"We don't want it to be a long, drawn-out thing," said Garwood, referring to his civilian attorney in an interview before leaving home.

Many of the officers and NCOs on the base in the southeastern part of the state served in Vietnam, and the general feeling toward Garwood, captured Sept. 28, 1965, appears to be one of intense interest but little bitterness.

"A lot of the older guys like myself say he's a Marine, he's home, so let's bring him home and treat him like a Marine until somebody proves otherwise," said an NCO who spent three tours in Vietnam.

"I get the impression everyone wants to see him treated fairly and justly and let the legal process bring out the facts of the case," said Sgt. Doug Mohan, one of the thousands of younger Marines.

in their car April 29 in the parking lot of the club when a Mexican-American man went to the driver's door as a Mexican-American female approached the passenger door.

The male pointed a blue-steel automatic pistol at the man and demanded his billfold. He then demanded the victim's wife's purse.

The two suspects left in a 1971 or 1972 white Mercury Cougar.

On May 2, a woman was in Lubbock trying to locate a relative. At a downtown apartment complex, she was approached by a Mexican-American female who told her that her husband might know her relative.

A Mexican-American male approached and told the victim he did know the person she was trying to find and the trio got into the victim's car. The male suspect directed the woman to drive to a club in the 1400-block of Avenue F and after arriving, her purse was taken at gunpoint.

Authorities this week also are seeking three fugitives.

A $500 reward is offered for information leading to the arrest of Jerry Ingram, a 41-year-old black male, wanted in connection with the April 28 shooting death of Curtis Robinson.

Ingram, who is 5 feet 10 inches tall and weighs 166 pounds, was charged with Robinson's murder and a warrant for his arrest has been issued. Authorities also have an arrest warrant for Ingram charging him with possession of a firearm by a felon.

Ingram has used an alias of Carl Jefferson.

In connection with the March 2 burglary of 2806 First Place, a $300 reward is offered for information leading to Rachel Dene Martinez.

Miss Martinez, an 18-year-old Mexican-American female who is 5 feet 6 inches tall and weighs 110 pounds, was charged with and indicted for the burglary. A warrant for her arrest has been issued as well as a second warrant charging her with theft.

A $300 reward also is offered for information leading to the arrest of Ramiro Munoz, a 21-year-old Mexican-American male.

Munoz, 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighing 210 pounds, has been charged with the April 26 burglary of a residence at 807 Ave. T, and a warrant for his arrest has been issued.

Persons with information on these cases are urged to call "Crime Line" at 741-1000, which is manned by the Lubbock police department from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Monday through Friday. At other times, an automatic answering device is used.

All callers are guaranteed complete anonymity and are given code names or numbers. Rewards will be doubled if the caller testifies in court. Spotlight crime information must be received within seven days of publication.

Commission Expected To Elect Tiernan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Federal Election Commission expects this week to elect as chairman former Rep. Robert O. Tiernan, who recently was sued for not paying his campaign bills.

Tiernan also was rebuked publicly in 1977 for using his commission telephone to make $2,000 worth of personal telephone calls concerning his Rhode Island hockey team. He reimbursed the government for the calls.

Now vice chairman, Tiernan is the only member of the original 1975 election commission who has not served as chairman. Commission sources said thre is no plan to avert the tradition of moving him up to the No. 1 post when a chairman is elected Thursday — although the succession pattern was broken once before in the commission's five-year history.

Tiernan, 50, a Rhode Island Democrat, was first elected to the House in 1967.

Since being defeated for re-election to the House in 1974, Tiernan has filed annual reports listing $5,405 in unpaid campaign debts. Last year, Washington's posh George Towne Club sued him for not paying a $1,303.80 bill for two political fundraisers held there in 1974.

The election commission reports show he finally paid that bill on Dec. 29, 1978, after raising $1,300 in 1978 in small contributions to cover it. The report says Tiernan's political committee still owes $3,929 in other bills.

In 1977 it was revealed that for a 25-month period Tiernan used commission telephones to make personal calls, many of them dealing with his bankrupt hockey team, the Rhode Island Reds.

When the phone bills were revealed, Tiernan reimbursed the government $2,014.

Tiernan won't be the first controversial chairman of the organization — three of his four predecessors also came under strong criticism.

The commission's first chairman was former Rep. Thomas Curtis, R-Mo., who was criticized for spending more time on his St. Louis law practice than on the commission. Congress amended the law to forbid moonlighting, and Curtis left rather than give up the outside work.

The second chairman, Vernon Thomson, was investigated by the Justice Department for leaking information that the commission was investigating the finances of Tennessee Democrat William Sasser at a crucial point in his campaign against then-Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn.

The probe showed Thomson inadvertently spilled the information to former Defense Secretary Melvin Laird at a cocktail party. Sasser was cleared in the probe and went on to defeat Brock.

The third chairman, Thomas Harris, has been a favorite target of Republican critics of the commission, particularly in Congress, because of his strong pro-labor voting record on all matters that come before the commission. Harris is a former counsel to the AFL-CIO.

The current chairman, Joan Aikens, has drawn little personal criticism, but during the past year has borne the brunt of growing dissatisfaction over the commission's failure to complete audits on the 1976 presidential campaign.

National Parks Offer Tourists Closer-To-Home Vacations

By LOUISE COOK
Associated Press Writer

High gasoline prices and long lines at service stations are expected to keep millions of Americans close to home this summer. But you don't have to abandon the idea of a visit to our National Park System just because of the energy crunch.

The words "national park" usually bring to mind areas like Yellowstone and Yosemite in the West or the Great Smoky Mountains in the Southeast. But the National Park Service points out that remote, wilderness lands are only part of the picture.

There are 320 areas in the park system, of which 39 are national parks. Other facilities include campgrounds, monuments, memorials and historic houses ideal for one-day trips from home.

Use of the park system has been growing steadily. In 1975, there were 239 million visits. Last year, there were 283 million — an increase of 18 percent. (The park service counts visits rather than actual people since it has no way of measuring repeat business.)

Duncan Morrow, a park service spokesman, said nobody knows what the impact of the gasoline shortage will be. The real test, he said, will come during the Memorial Day weekend. "We estimate ... a much greater increase in the use of parks close to home," Morrow said.

Morrow says families looking for a vacation site that won't require long-distance driving should write state travel or tourism offices. The park service also can offer suggestions for specific locations. Write to the National Park Service, Public Inquiries, 1013 Interior Building, Washington, D.C., 20240.

To avoid crowds, ask about lesser-known areas. Cumberland Gap National Historical Park, for example, is less than 100 miles from the better-known Great Smoky Mountains, and offers some equal attractions — including a wilderness trail cut by Daniel Boone.

Dinosaur National Monument in Colorado includes spectacular canyons cut by the Green and Yampa rivers and a quarry containing fossil remains of dinosaurs and other ancient animals. The area offers opportunties for camping, fishing, hiking and boat trips.

You can make campsite reservations in advance at five national parks. Under a new system being tried this year, reservations for sites at the Grand Canyon in Arizona and at Yosemite and Sequoia in California can be made at any Ticketron office. Reservations for Chickasaw in Oklahoma and Acadia in Maine can be made by writing to the park superintendant.

Admission to many of the parks and other areas is free; entrance fees elsewhere range up to $3 per person. Camping and other service charges go up to $4 per site. The money is used for staff and maintenance and to acquire new park land.

If you plan several visits to the park system in a single season or if you have a large family, think about getting a Golden Eagle passport. The passport costs $10 and is good for the entire calendar year in which it is issued. It covers entrance fees (but not camping or use fees) at all national park areas.

The Golden Eagle passport admits the permit holder and an accompanying carload of people. At facilities where entry is by means other than private car, the passport is good for the permit holder and his or her family — parents, children and spouse.

You can get a Golden Eagle passport at any park system facility where admission is charged or you can write to the Public Inquiries section of the National Park Service at the address listed above.

People 62 and over qualify for another type of bargain — the Golden Age passport. The passport is free and is good for a lifetime. It covers all entrance fees and entitles holders to a 50 percent discount on government charges for things like boat launching and parking. It does not cover fees charged by private concessionaires.

Like the Golden Eagle passport, the Golden Age passport covers not only the permit holder, but also his or her family or fellow car passengers. Golden Age passports can be obtained at park service offices and at parks where entrance fees are charged. You must get your passport in person. Bring proof of age or be prepared to sign an affidavit swearing you are over 62. Note: Medicare cards are not accepted as proof of age.

Texas Firm Reportedly Buys Phosgene Gas

DENVER (UPI) — There has been a change of ownership in nearly two million pounds of deadly phosgene gas the U.S. Army has stored at the Rocky Mountain Arsenal near Denver since World War I.

Officials said a Texas firm last week took over shipment of the phosgene from the arsenal for use in the manufacture of agricultural herbicides and pesticides.

Art Whitney, public information director for the arsenal, said Arapahoe Chemicals of Boulder, a division of the California-based Syntex Corp., transferred its interest in the phosgene to Hu-Mar Corp. of Palacios.

Arapahoe Chemicals in 1977 bought two million pounds of phosgene from the arsenal for $56,273. The firm sent 10 truckloads, totaling about 212,000 pounds, of the gaseous compound to a Syntex plant in Newport, Tenn., where it was used to process a chemical used in making a prescription drug.

Whitney said Syntex apparently was not able to resolve problems it was having using the phosgene at its Newport plant.

Phosgene was used as a poisonous gas during World War I. It causes severe swelling of the lungs several hours after inhalation and can be fatal.

frames and on putting the pieces together.

The design was taken from an encyclopedia picture that was sketched by another teacher. But the mechanics of putting the whole piece together was McLaughlin's idea.

Frames were built for the arms, body, head and tail and "then filled in with webs and individual toothpicks," he explained. The students worked on two sides of the sculpture and each side was pinned to the bulletin board as it was completed.

Then both sides were suspended from the ceiling side by side and connected with the sticks and toothpicks. The rider was built separately from the horse and then attached.

The creation was a "togetherness project," McLaughlin said.

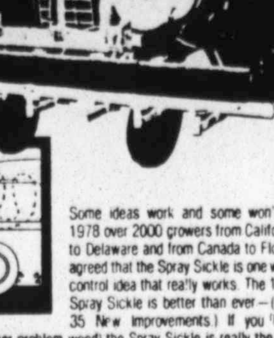
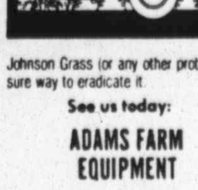
Knock out Johnson Grass (Roots and all)...but it takes the Spray Sickle to REALLY DO IT!





Some ideas work and some won't! In 1978 over 2000 growers from California to Delaware and from Canada to Florida agreed that the Spray Sickle is one weed control idea that really works. The 1979 Spray Sickle is better than ever—(Over 35 New improvements.) If you have Johnson Grass (or any other problem weed) the Spray Sickle is really the only sure way to eradicate it.

CHEVY CITATION

Citation goes a long way on a tank of gas. But that's just the start. Citation has the traction of front wheel drive, rack and pinion steering, front disc brakes, and a transverse mounted engine that's cradled in rubber cushioned mountings to reduce engine vibration. Sleek Citation is easy to park, yet big enough for five adults and lots of cargo. See Chevy Citation for yourself. And to really appreciate it, get behind the wheel.

EPA ESTIMATED MPG — CITY ESTIMATE 24 — 38 HIGHWAY ESTIMATE

With standard 4-cylinder engine and manual transmission.

Remember: Compare the estimated MPG to the estimated MPG" of other cars. You may get different mileage depending on your speed, trip length, and weather. Your actual mileage will be lower in heavy city traffic, and your actual highway mileage will probably be less than the estimated highway fuel economy. the "estimated MPG" is more likely to reflect actual overall mileage than the "combined estimate".

Chevrolet cars are equipped with GM built engines produced by various divisions.

TEST DRIVE THE ALL NEW CHEVY CITATION.

Woman Tells Police Of Beating

A man came home drunk about 4 a.m. today and began beating and slashing his seven-months-pregnant wife, according to a police report.

The 21-year-old woman was undergoing treatment this morning at Health Sciences Center Hospital.

The expectant mother told police her 25-year-old husband, for no apparent reason, began beating her. She said he then displayed a knife and cut her across the buttocks, chest and face.

The woman, who met police at a convenience store near her home, said the man was drunk, and that after the assault he passed out on the bed.

The husband was arrested at the couple's home.

In other activity, Dennis Dwight Wyatt, 21, of 2207 60th St. said he was almost run off the road about 3 p.m. Sunday by a white man traveling in a 1975 Pontiac. He said he chased the driver down at 50th Street and University Avenue.

Wyatt, member of a oil drilling crew, said the driver, after he was stopped, displayed a pistol and told Wyatt not to touch his car.

Reports indicate the suspect, described as tall and with brown hair, fired the pistol, but missed Wyatt. After the shooting, the man sped off.

A 22-year-old female teacher said she was at a supermarket about 2:30 p.m. Sunday when a man confronted her in one of the aisles and dropped his pants.

After exposing himself, the suspect ran out of the store and rode off on a motorcycle, according to reports.

Brent Burrow of 2402 Eighth St, Apt. 104, said that between Saturday morning and 9:30 p.m. Sunday his house was burglarized and $900 in stereo equipment stolen.

Lubbock police Sunday investigated the aggravated robbery of an East Lubbock man and numerous aggravated assaults, which topped the weekend's criminal activity.

Frank Braxton, 26, of 2903 E. Colgate St. told police he was near East Fifth Street about 12:30 a.m. Sunday when someone jumped him and took $2,000 from him.

Braxton, who said he was injured in the chin, first drove himself home and then drove to a residence in the 2800-block of Cornell St. EMS was called, and Braxton was taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was in satisfactory condition late Sunday.

A Lubbock County man apparently suffered a broken ankle after another man threw him out of a city nightspot for bumping against his chair.

Jess Dutton of Route 6, Lubbock, said he was sitting in a club in the 900-block of 50th Street about 1 a.m. Sunday and that he had bumped against a chair.

Reports show that Dutton turned to apologize to the man, but that the man jumped up, grabbed him and threw him out of the club. Dutton today was in satisfactory condition at Health Sciences Center Hospital with a broken leg.

Dutton said his assailant was white, 26 to 35, of medium height, stocky and had light brown hair.

Frank Villesca, 53, of 1016 E. 28th St. reported that he suffered a stab wound to the cheek after an altercation with three Mexican-American men about 2 a.m. Sunday, outside a club at Municipal Drive and U.S. 87.

Villesca told officers he had been arguing inside the club with the three men and went out to the parking lot with them, where one of the men pulled a knife and stabbed him in the cheek. The victim said the suspects, who were about 18 to 25, fled in a light blue Pontiac Catalina.

Villesca was taken by private vehicle to Methodist Hospital, where he was treated and later released.

Police investigated the aggravated kidnapping of four Lubbock youths, which allegedly occurred sometime between 8:30 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. Saturday at an apartment complex in the 2100-block of 34th St.

Two of the victims, who are 16-years-old, said they had gone to the complex to visit a friend. However, they told police that as they were walking by one of the apartments, a 14-year-old youth told them to come in and "smoke some dope or drink some beer."

Reports show that when the victims refused, the boy told them he was a black belt in karate and would kill them if they didn't come in. The victims told police the boy then began hitting them with karate chops and kicks and also struck them with a baseball bat.

The victims said that another 14-year-old boy stepped out of the apartment with a knife and held it to one of the the 16-year-old victim's throat, telling him he would cut him if the two boys didn't enter the apartment.

Fair Skies Expected Over Entire State

A-J News Services

Fair skies and warm temperatures promise pleasant weather for the entire state today.

On the South Plains, this morning's forecast called for temperatures in the upper 80s this afternoon and near 90 on Tuesday.

Breezy weather was expected over most of the state today, with winds in the Lubbock area predicted to be 15-20 mph this afternoon and 10 to 15 mph tonight.

Fair weather is expected to continue until Friday, when there will be a chance for showers in eastern portions of the area.

Maximum temperatures on the South Plains Sunday were all in the 80s. Lubbock's high was 84 and the low this morning was 59.

Elsewhere in the state, early morning extremes ranged from 39 at Marfa to 64 at Laredo.

Blistering 100-degree readings baked Southern California, packing the beaches throughout the Mother's Day weekend.

Mild temperatures, mostly fair skies and some widely scattered thundershowers covered most of the rest of the nation today.

More than a million weekend beachgoers found enough gasoline and sprawled along the sandy coastlines of California. The searing sunshine left many a severe sunburn. Those who ventured into the surf for a cooling plunge pulled out of the chilly 58-degree water in short order.

Sunday's high at the Los Angeles Civic Center was 98 degrees, tying the previous record high set in 1927. Readings of more than 100 degrees were common throughout the desert areas of California and Arizona.

The National Weather Service predicted temperatures would drop slightly today, but mid-90s readings were expected.

Thundershowers dampened parts of the Midwest and Plains. No severe weather was reported, although high winds caused some property damage in the Chicago suburb of Lansing during an afternoon thunderstorm. The winds also capsized several sailboats in Chicago's Lake Michigan harbors.

Karen Delahanty Goes Home To See Family

AVON, Conn. (UPI) — Karen Delahanty still must have her jaw reset and tendons in her legs restretched from injuries she sustained in an automobile accident more than one year ago.

But on Sunday her family wasn't thinking about those problems as the 22-year-old woman came home from New Britain Memorial Hospital for the first time since she woke up from an almost year-long coma.

Miss Delahanty, who will be 23 Wednesday, was critically injured April 15, 1978, in a car accident and remained comatose until April 13. Hospital officials sent her to home for her first visit Sunday afternoon.

"It's the best Mother's Day present I could have asked for," said her mother, Larraine Delahanty, who has visited Karen every day since the accident. "It's just wonderful. I wish she could stay longer."

Karen had to go back to the hospital in a special wheelchair van late Sunday afternoon, but that didn't dampen family spirits.

"Everyone is very excited," said Mrs. Delahanty, while friends and relatives crowded into their living room to visit with Karen, who was stretched out on the couch.

The celebration had been in the making ever since Miss Delahanty began showing signs of recovery. But when she developed a 102-degree fever Saturday, Mrs. Delahanty and her husband, Joseph, feared she couldn't make the short trip home.

"They said her temperature was down to 98 when we went to get her, and it was up to us. I was kind of scared, but I feel happy now," Mrs. Delahanty said.

Miss Delahanty was injured riding in a car with two friends. The car hit a police cruiser head-on while rounding a curve.

Prison Artist Paints For Pleasure, Money

ANGOLA, La. (UPI) — At $25 a painting, John Vincente probably is one of the wealthiest prisoners in the Louisiana State Penitentiary.

The 47-year-old native of New Mexico, with three years of college at the University of California at Berkley, was convicted twice of robbery — his ticket to Angola.

But prison officials say the trusty is one of America's most prolific prison artists, turning out an average of three paintings per day, which he sells for extra cigarettes, paint brushes and canvass.

"I really will paint anything," Vincente says. "I've got an imagination like a file box, and everything that I remember eventually ends up somewhere."

Vincente does not like to talk about how he ended up where he is. But the loner does take pride in his work and he rarely is seen anywhere without a paint brush in his hand.

"I'm supposed to make coffee, but I manage to spend most of my time painting anyway," Vincente says. "And when I sell a painting I can usually get between $25 and $30 for it. I tried it for a living, but there just wasn't enough time."

Vincente, a strong man with colorful tattoos on his arms, said he has a "natural talent" that developed with experience.

"My mother would clean up around the work I had painted on the walls of our house that she thought was good," Vincente says. "And my best grades were always in art. I even won a junior scholarship for painting when I was 11 years old."

Vincente's work includes a few portraits, abstract paintings, painted cow skulls, refrigerator doors — in other words, anything with a paintable surface. He is known around the 3,800-inmate prison as "the man who'll paint on anything."

Vincente's most ambitious project will be to cover the huge new water tank on the Angola grounds with an expressive mural.

"The warden and my other bosses have given me free expanse," Vincente says. "And the water tank should be a big challenge."

With nothing but time on his hands until his release in a few years, Vincente says he will relax and enjoy what he was unable to have time for in the outside world.

KIDS-ONLY CLUB

Puzzle Comes From Japan

By SHARI LEWIS

I once spent a few days with a Geisha girl. She was 77 years old but still actively at work. The reason she was so successful was that this lady was just plain clever. She was a fine puppeteer. She made puppets out of tiny saki cups, cloth napkins and chopsticks. The saki cup became the head, the napkin was the body and the chopsticks served as rods that moved the fabric arms.

She also specialized in little games and puzzles. All of these games used things that was found on the table in front of us.

She taught me a traditional Japanese toothpick puzzle. Here's how you play: You start with a fish facing in one direction. (In Japan, the fish traditionally starts by facing west.) The fist is made with eight toothpicks (see illustration). The object of this puzzle is to move only three toothpicks and end up with the same fish facing in the opposite direction (east).

See if you can figure out how this Japanese puzzle is solved. Tomorrow, I will show you the solution as shown to me by my 77-year-old Geisha girlfriend.

TODAY'S BRAIN TWISTER: If a hen and a half lays an egg and a half in a day and a half, how many eggs will six hens lay in seven days? (Look for the answer in tomorrow's Kids-Only Club column.)

DR. LAMB

Losing Weight

By LAWRENCE E. LAMB, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — My husband and I have decided to lose a few pounds together. The idea is fine with me but my problem is I don't really know what our calorie intake should be to lose and maintain a certain weight.

I usually go on a 1000-calorie diet when I want to lose some fat but I know the calorie requirements are different for men. My husband is 39 years old and he is 5 feet 8 inches tall and wants to maintain 155 pounds. Right now he is five or six pounds over that.

I'm 38 years old, 5 feet 2, of medium frame and weigh 125. I would like to maintain 115 pounds. We are both active and play tennis together and plan to start jogging again. I would appreciate any information you can give us.

DEAR READER — The most important advice I can give you is not to try to lose the weight all at once. Since you are both active, it would be a simple matter to lose the small amount of weight you want to get rid of through increased exercise. It doesn't have to be strenuous exercise either.

If you'll just stay on the same diet and be very careful not to increase your calorie intake, all you would need to do is walk a mile-and-a-half a day. That would be approximately 90 calories a day for your husband. If he did this every day, within a year's time he would have eleminated the number of calories in approximately 10 pounds of body fat.

Since you weigh a little less and it requires fewer calories for you to walk a mile, you won't do as well but the results will still be very impressive.

Now, that's the healthy way to lose a small amount of excess fat. It's so much better for your body than those wild fad diets that people use for a crash weight loss. Most of those really tend to wreck people's health. The only good thing about them is that most people don't stay on them.

Now if you want to sensibly speed up your weight loss bit, it wouldn't hurt for you to drop off one or two items in your diet that you know contain some calories that you could do without. It could be a simple dessert or even a slice of bread. I like for people to get whole grain cereals, which means whole wheat bread. But if you are eating white bread in particular, I don't consider leaving off a slice of that a day any great loss to your nutritional intake.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 4-7, Weight Losing Diet, that you can use as a guide to have a well-balanced low-calorie diet. Other readers who want this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it.

This is not the kind of diet that I think you should stay on for a long period of time. In fact you can add to this diet the foods that you might need to make yourself feel a little more satisfied with the food you're eating. It's all right in your case because you don't really need to lose many pounds and if you'll just add the little exercise that I suggested each day.

TODAY'S STOCK PRICES

Dow Jones Average Off .26

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed in quiet trading today against a backdrop of continuing energy uncertainties.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, off 16.98 last week, lost another .26 to 830.30 by noontime today.

Losers held a small lead over gainers in the mid-day count of New York Stock Exchange-listed issues.

Analysts said investors remained fearful that gasoline supply problems could depress economic activity in a number of important industries.

But they also noted buying interest in stocks of companies that could stand to benefit from the situation.

Greyhound, for example, was up ¾ at 14⅜ in active trading, and Auto-Train jumped 2⅜ to 7⅞ on the American Stock Exchange.

Another "hot" group was the grain-and alcohol-processing companies, thanks to speculation focusing on gasohol, an auto fuel produced by mixing gasoline with ethyl alcohol made from grain.

A.E. Staley Manufacturing rose ¾ to 24⅝; Publicker Industries climbed 1⅜ to 10¾, and Archer-Daniels-Midland was up 1½ at 21¾.

Gambling stocks, hit hard last week by gasoline-shortage worries, rebounded today. Caesars World was up 3¾ at 62 and Bally Manufacturing rose 2⅝ to 67¼.

The NYSE's composite index slipped .01 to 55.47. But the Amex market value index gained .65 to 177.07.

Khomeini Puts Limit On Courts

TEHRAN, Iran (AP) — Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini has put a new restriction on his Islamic revolutionary courts, decreeing execution only for persons who killed people or ordered them killed.

News reports today announced the executions of two more persons, bringing the total since February to 206. One of the two men killed was convicted by Islamic courts of killing his countrymen. The other was executed on morals charges. His sentence was carried out Sunday, the news accounts said, before the Khomeini decree.

The ayatollah heading Tehran's revolutionary court appealed to supporters abroad to assassinate Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, his wife, mother-in-law and sister, and several of his close advisers, including the former ambassador to the United States, Ardeshir Zahedi.

Khomeini, Iran's Shiite Moslem patriarch and the leader of the revolution that ousted the shah, said in a communique Sunday death sentences would be limited to those "proven to have killed people" and to "any person who has issued orders for the killing of people or who has committed torture resulting in death."

"No court has the right to issue death sentences, and no person should be executed except under the above two conditions. Violation of his order is an offense and liable to punishment," the communique said.

There was speculation that the order was in response to fears of the Iranian Jewish community and foreign criticism resulting from the execution last Wednesday of millionaire Jewish businessman Habib Elghanian. He was convicted of sending Israel funds that the court said were used to finance the killing of Palestinians.

It was the second restriction placed by Khomeini on the revolutionary courts, which are answerable only to him and his secret revolutionary council. Last month he decreed that soldiers and policemen who committed minor offenses during the shah's time were not liable to prosecution.

One of the latest victims of the firing squads was Parviz Torabi Marashi, the former governor of the city of Behbehan, in southwest Iran, the official Pars news agency reported. It said he was executed early today for killing, torture and destruction of property.

The Tehran newspaper Etelaat reported a firing squad in the central Iranian city of Jajafabad executed Seyf-Olah Noorakhsh. Islamic courts found him guilty of "continuous adultery and sodomy."

Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkhali, the chief of the Tehran revolutionary court, issued a list of most-wanted members of the royal regime and told a news conference: "Anyone who wants to assassinate these people in Iran or outside would be carrying out the orders of the court. They cannot be arrested by any foreign government as a terrorist because they will be carrying out the orders of Iran's Islamic revolutionary court."

Archbishop Requests End To Violence

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (UPI) — San Salvador's activist archbishop called for an end to repression and political violence in the tiny, strife-torn nation during a mass attended by at least 2,500 people.

Oscar Arnulfo Romero, spiritual leader of the predominately Catholic country, said in a sermon Sunday that the United States should cut aid to El Salvador and praised Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., for suggesting such a move.

Romero's remarks came as Popular Revolutionary Bloc revolutionaries were holding ambassadors and several employees hostage in the French and Venezualan embassies to demand the release of three bloc leaders.

"We don't ask for revenge, only conversion," Romero told the more than 2,-500 people packed into El Rosario Church, a few blocks from the Metropolitan cathdral where 23 persons died in a confrontation with police May 8.

"The church must be the voice of the poor," he added.

The rebels have held the French Embassy since a week ago Friday and the Venezuelan Embassy since last Friday. The government contends it is not holding the revolutionaries the bloc wants released.

A Western diplomatic source told UPI Sunday night that leftist rebel groups, particulary the Popular Revolutionary Bloc, have gained "growing" strength in El Salvador because "there is no other viable alternative for the people" other than revolt.

"Political parties are nonexistent and have not had any real power in several years," he said. "There is no voice for the people to speak out."

He said right-wing upper echelon army and security forces commanders are planning a coup and will be faced with the competition of liberal "middle grade" officers planning their own.

The United States cut off all military assistance to the Salvadorian government in 1977 under conditions of the Hawkins amendment that forces all nations receiving military aid from the United States to report on their human rights record.

The Salvadorian military forces now receive most of their equipment from France, Israel and West Germany.

Man's best friend may become his worst enemy in Texas because of a rabies epidemic sweeping some parts of the state.

Texas "leads the nation in rabies" cases, Lubbock Animal Shelter Director Tom Trombley said, and he emphasized Lubbock is by no means immune from an outbreak of the disease.

In March, a cat which had eaten a rabid bat was confined to the shelter here, and in Midland, a mere 115 miles south of Lubbock, one rabies case has been confirmed in a puppy, Trombley said.

There were more confirmed cases of rabies in Texas last year than in any other year since 1961, and cases have been reported in even greater numbers this year, according to a Texas A&M University veterinarian.

In the first quarter of 1979, the cases of the infectious viral disease were double those reported in the first quarter of 1978, with the majority of the cases found in skunks, Dr. Jim Armstrong said.

Dog rabies cases now are considered epidemic in El Paso where 22 rabid dogs have been reported, and Dallas County health officials have adopted emergency measures to combat a rabies outbreak there.

Despite the very real threat the disease could spread to Lubbock, and a city ordinance requiring pet owners to vaccinate all dogs over the age of six months, only about 17 percent of Lubbock's 70,000-100,000 canines have received rabies shots.

In an attempt to increase that percentage, the Lubbock Humane Society will hold its annual Rabies Clinic Saturday from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. at the Merchant's Building at the South Plains Fairgrounds.

Pet owners who bring animals to the clinic can save $2 of the normal $6 charge for a rabies vaccination and realize a $1 savings on city license fees, for a total savings of $3

The Humane Society hopes to vaccinate 1,500 animals at the clinic with the help of 50 society volunteers and teams of veterinarians.

There are 3.7 million dogs in Texas, yet only 1.25 million rabies vaccinations are given annually by Texas veterinarians, Armstrong said. A 70 percent vaccination level is considered the minimum necessary to control the spread of rabies.

To protect human health, the Texas Department of Health is recommending destroying pets which come in contact with rabid animals. Short of killing the pet, the department recommends placing the unvaccinated pet in strict isolation for six months.

Vaccinated animals should be revaccinated immediately after being bitten by a rabid animal, the department says, and should be restrained for 60 to 90 days.

Area Mayor Named Reagan Chairman

MIDLAND (Special) — Midland Mayor Ernest Angelo Jr. has been named chairman of Ronald Reagan's presidential campaign in Texas.

Angelo, mayor since 1972, was state co-chairman for Citizens for Reagan in 1976 when the former California governor won every Texas delegate. He is Texas' Republican National Committeeman.

"We intend to begin organizing the state immediately," Angelo said, adding "I'm confident Governor Reagan retains the loyalty and support of a majority of conservative Texans."

Men Released From Prison

A-J Austin Bureau

AUSTIN — Three men have been released from state prison by Gov. Bill Clements on recommendation of the Board of Pardons and Paroles.

Steven Foster, convicted June 9, 1977, of burglary and the receipt and collection of stolen property in Lubbock County, was paroled to Lubbock County after receiving credit for having served three years of a five-year sentence.

Arnulfo Gonzales, convicted Dec. 7, 1978, in Floyd County of unauthorized use of a vehicle, was paroled to Dallas County after having received credit for serving two years and eight months of a four-year sentence.

Kenneth E. Walker, convicted of burglary in Martin County Dec. 8, 1977, and of aggravated assault with a weapon in Dawson County Nov. 23, 1977, was released to Tarrant County after receiving credit for having served three years of a three-year sentence.

Watson Sidesteps Label Of 'Greatest'

DALLAS (AP) — Tom Watson pocketed the $54,000 check that went with his third tour victory of 1979 and squirmed uncomfortably when asked if runner-up Bill Rogers was right in calling him the greatest player in the game.

"When I'm striking the ball well. I feel I can win any tournament I play," said the 29-year-old Watson, who shot even par Sunday to turn back the challenge of Rogers, Larry Nelson and Jerry Pate to win the Byron Nelson Golf Classic at 275, five under par.

Rogers, a 27-year-old former University of Houston all-America golfer, hit the pin with "the best 3-iron I ever hit" on the 18th hole and tapped in a birdie putt to tie Watson and send the tournament into sudden death.

Then Rogers chipped his third shot against the pin on No. 15, on the first hole of the playoff. Watson had an uphill lie in a bunker, 90 feet from the pin on the 568-yard, par-5 hole, but he'd birdied the hole from almost the same position in regulation play a while earlier.

After Rogers' shot, Watson shook his head, grinned at his rival, then grabbed a sand wedge and stepped into the trap.

"It was either do or die. You either had to do it or you don't. There were no in-between thoughts," Watson confessed later.

He blasted straight at the hole and watched as his ball died only 10 inches from the pin. He knocked in his putt, Rogers missed his four-foot birdie try, and the victory was Watson's. To Rogers went the $32,400 check for second place.

Nelson, despite two late birdies, finished third at 276, four under par and 1 shot off the pace. Pate, who was tied for the lead until he bogeyed No. 14, bogeyed the last hole and finished 2-over-par for the day and 278 for the tourney, all alone in fourth place.

Jerry McGee, Mike Brannan, Calvin Peete and Morris Hatalsky were at 279.

A few years ago, said Watson, "I had the reputation as a choker," but he two-putted from 70 feet on the 18th hole to preserve his playoff spot, after Rogers' late birdie. Then Watson came through when it counted from the bunker in sudden death.

"The consoling factor is that I lost to the greatest player in the game," said Rogers, who started the day at 1-under par, but ran in a 25-foot birdie on the fourth hole, added another birdie on No. 6 and then moved into a tie for the lead at 4-under with a monstrous 60-foot snake at No. 14.

"I knew when I made that one, it really put me into the thick of things," said Rogers, who missed only one fairway all day in his quest for his first win of 1979.

Down On The Farm

THIS HAS BEEN the busiest off-season ever for Dallas Cowboy All-Pro defensive tackle Randy White. The wheelhorse of the vaunted Doomsday Defense doubts, in fact, whether there has really been any time for rest and recreation the last four months.

"We played the Super Bowl and Pro Bowl in late January," big Randy recounted last weekend from his farm in southeastern Pennsylvania. "Then I had to attend some events and go to Hawaii for Superteams competition in February. We reported back to Dallas for our veterans' orientation session in March and they put us on our off-season conditioning program.

"Now, it's just two months until we go to summer camp at Thousand Oaks. So I'm not going to have time to do much work around the farm this year. I'm building some fence, but that is about all."

ADDING TO THE HECTIC pace is the fact that Randy and his wife, Vicci, last week became the proud parents of a daughter, Jordan Leigh. Randy denies a story circulating in Dallas that he was so determined to name his first-born after Cowboy hero LeeRoy Jordan that he turned the name around a bit to make it suitable for a girl.

"I certainly admire and respect LeeRoy," Randy admitted. "But my wife and I had a deal. If it was a boy, I would get to name him. If it was a girl, she would get the honor. And that is how it happened."

Mother and baby are doing fine, thank you, but daddy is somewhat the worse for wear. Randy finds those 3 a.m. feedings tougher than a trap block by a Pittsburgh Steeler guard.

"I hope to get a good night's sleep — eventually," Randy sighed.

FOES OF THE COWBOYS are going to see a lot more of Randy this season, whether they like it or not. Despite the increasing demands on his time, the former Maryland All-American has been pumping iron regularly and has built himself up to 260 pounds. A very solid 260 pounds.

"I only weighed about 240 my first couple of years with the Cowboys because I thought I was going to be a linebacker," Randy explained. "But I played last season at 250 without losing any quickness or agility. So I plan to report at about 260 this summer. I think I can handle it."

The only rap against Randy last year, when he won almost all the honors available to a defensive player, was his size. He gave away from 10 to 20 pounds to a lot of guys blocking on him.

But with Randy at 260, the offensive linemen no longer will have a significant advantage. Randy already is as strong as King Kong and now he will have the sheer bulk to match.

Providing that Ed Jones is back in uniform, Dallas will present a muscular front four in Randy, "Too Tall," Harvey Martin and Larry Cole.

DALLAS PERSONNEL DIRECTOR Gil Brandt always has been one of Randy's biggest fans.

"Randy White is an old-fashioned football player," Gil once exclaimed. "All he wants to do is play football. He give's you 100 percent all the time and he never complains!"

That is highly unusual in this modern era of agents, lawyers and temperamental performers. It's like finding a pearl in a supermarket oyster.

Randy talks a bit more now than he did when he first joined the Cowboys. At first his answers were mostly yes or no. Now he will expound a little, if pressed.

"I enjoy playing football," Randy mused. "I don't worry about our opponents or past defeats. Or past victories, for that matter. It's my job to play when they blow the whistle, and that is what I am going to do.

"I'm enjoying life at the farm right now, but in July I'll enjoy going to camp. If I didn't like it, I wouldn't do it."

Randy has reached the top rung of pro football in just four years. He should get even better, if little Jordan Leigh will let him get some sleep.

Tasker Named MHS Girls Cage Coach

Tim Tasker, currently assistant boys basketball coach at Levelland, has been hired as Monterey girls basketball coach, it was announced this morning.

Tasker will replace Phil Hood, who led the Plainswomen to the state finals in 1978, Hollis Gainey, assistant athletic director reported. Hood resigned earlier this spring.

The new girls coach is the son of Hobbs, N.M., high school coach Ralph Tasker and played for his dad on two state championship teams. He attended New Mexico State on a basketball scholarship, then stayed on at NMSU for two years as graduate assistant coach.

He has three years coaching experience in addition to the graduate aide work.

Win At Home Boosts Bullets' Confidence

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Kevin Grevey and Tommy Henderson say they believe the defending champion Washington Bullets will apply the pressure needed against San Antonio to force the National Basketball Association Eastern Conference finals to seven games.

"I think we're going to play them awfully even," said Grevey, who scored 23 points as the Bullets defeated San Antonio 107-103 Sunday to send the best-of-seven series to Game 6 with the Spurs up 3-2. "We're not going to blow them out. They have too much offense to do that. But there will be a lot of pressure on them."

Henderson, the Bullets' other starting guard, who scored 16 and had nine assists, said, "There will be a lot of pressure on them. We want to bring it back here. We're about ready for a win down there."

Game 6 will be played Wednesday night in San Antonio. If Game 7 is necessary, it will be played here at the Capital Centre Friday night.

Only two teams in the history of the NBA playoffs have come back from a 3-1 deficit to win three straight and a series — the Boston Celtics in 1968 and the Los Angeles Lakers in 1970.

The NBA championship series will begin Sunday between the winners in the East and the Phoenix-Seattle series in the West.

Although Elvi Hayes scored 24 points and 22 rebounds to lead the Bullets statistically, Washington coach Dic Motta said it was the play of the guards, Grevey and Henderson, that keyed the victory. He said the guards were able to drive the middle while containing the Spurs' guards, George Gervin and James Silas.

"Probably the most discouraging aspect of the series is that they (the Bullets) can get that layup anytime they want," said Motta. "If they (the Spurs) continue to double, we can get the slice."

LCC Heads West For Next Tourney

By RUSS PARSONS
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

ARLINGTON — All week long, members of the Lubbock Christian College baseball team and its entourage have been reminding anyone who would listen that they hadn't made any plans for the trip to Phoenix and the Area II Baseball Tournament.

Maybe, they shouldn't have tried so hard. Wednesday, the Chapparrals have to be on the field in Phoenix, Ariz., as the result of throttling Dallas Baptist 7-2 here Sunday afternoon in the championship of the NAIA's District VIII tournament.

The Chaps won the game easily, but surprisingly collected only three hits. Fortunately for them, DBC continued its generous ways, dealing 11 walks and leaving 15 men stranded on base.

LCC struck hard and struck early. Designated hitter Tommy Inman belted a leadoff single in the first, stole second, advanced to third after walks by Steve Brigante and Tim Leslie, and then scored on a sacrifice fly by Kenny Toney.

Bobby Doe lofted a long fly deep down the middle of the field, but the Indian centerfielder made a nice over-the-shoulder grab. He spun and threw to the shortstop who then relayed the ball over the catcher's head, allowing Brigante to score.

In the second inning Inman reached first on a fielder's choice then scored as Brigante crushed a 385-foot home run over the old fence in left-centerfield in Arlington stadium.

That was all for DBC starter David Smith, who allowed only two hits, walked five batters and gave up 4 runs. The Chaps got another run in the second as Toney walked and scored on a long double by Doe.

Brigante scored again in the fourth, with a little help from his friends on the DBC side. He walked, made a clean

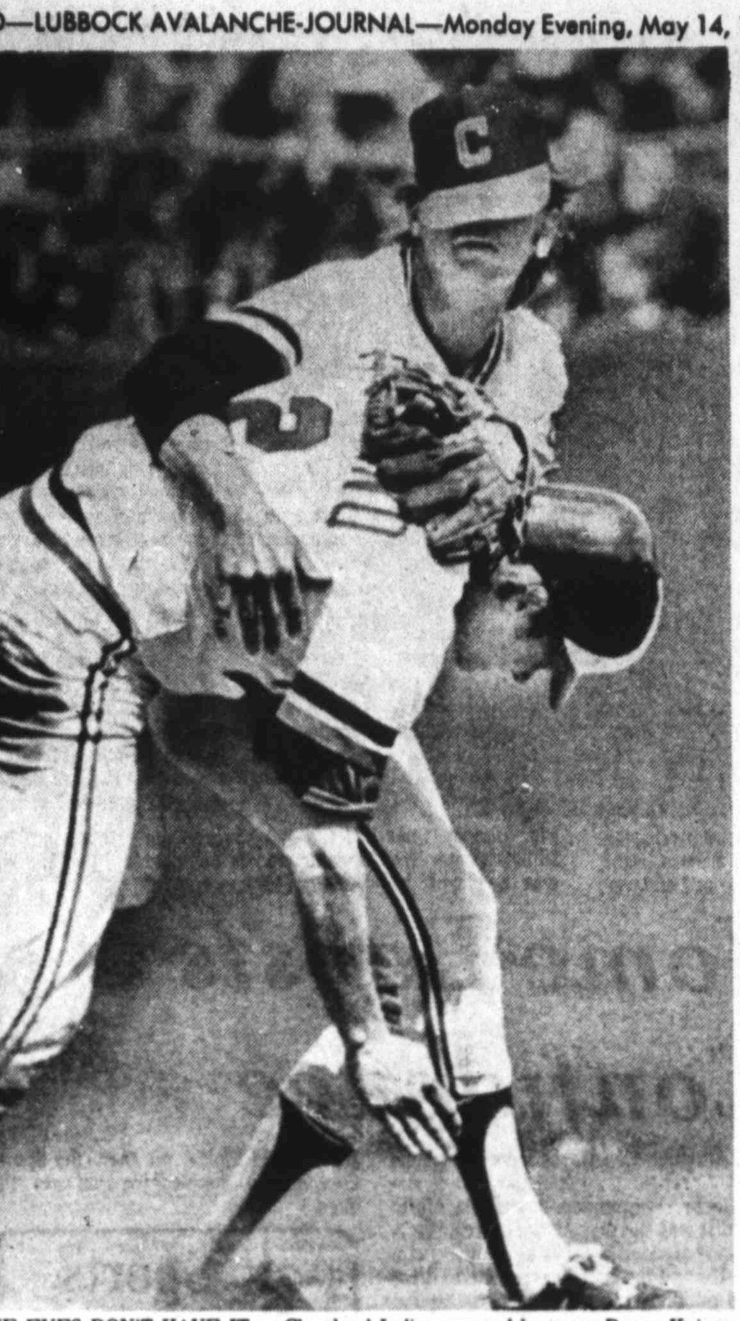
Garland's Win Eases Pressures



THE EYES DON'T HAVE IT — Cleveland Indians second baseman Duane Kuiper couldn't see too well Sunday, but it didn't matter; he missed the second game of their doubleheader with the Minnesota Twins after the Twins' John Castino barged into him in this second-base collision. (AP Laserphoto)

By The Associated Press

Wayne Garland was a red-hot item in 1976.

But since signing a lucrative 10-year contract with the Cleveland Indians as one of baseball's first big-money free agents, the pitcher has had a lot of curves come his way.

Part of his problems stemmed from mental pressures attached to his signing, and these were further complicated by injury.

So a victory now and then sure eases the pain.

"It's been a long time; no doubt about it," Garland said after pitching the Cleveland Indians to a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins Sunday.

"I'm very pleased, though. When you only make one bad pitch you have to be," added Garland of the mistake he made on Ken Landreaux's solo home run in the fourth.

Garland allowed seven hits before needing relief help in the seventh and gained his first victory since April 25, 1978.

"The physical part is over with," said Garland, who underwent shoulder surgery last May after six starts and a 2-3 record. "Now it's just mental. I'm still trying to find myself when I get runners on base."

Garland, 1-4, allowed two runs in 6 1/3 innings before being replaced in the seventh by Sid Monge, who in turn needed ninth-inning relief help from Victor Cruz. Cruz gained his second save of the season.

Loser Dave Goltz, 4-4, had a two-hitter going until the Indians bunched five singles together for three runs in the sixth. Rick Manning drove in one run with a base hit and Gary Alexander stroked a two-run single as Cleveland erased a 2-0 deficit.

Yankees 12, Angels 10

Graig Nettles drove in five runs with a homer and single and made three great fielding plays at third base, helping New York beat California.

Nettles hit a three-run homer in the first inning, his fifth of the season and his first since April 22, off loser Chris Knapp, 2-1. Nettles added a two-run single in the Yankees' five-run eighth, which offset seven runs by California in the ninth, capped by Willie Aikens' three-run homer.

"It looked like the Angels were just up there to hit the first pitch," said Nettles of California's formidable comeback try in the ninth after the Yankees had taken a 12-3 lead. "It got a little scary at the end."

Red Sox 8, A's 2

George Scott and Butch Hobson hit home runs and Chuck Rainey pitched a three-hitter, one of them a two-run homer to Dwayne Murphy, as Boston beat Oakland.

Scott's two-run homer keyed a three-run third for Boston while Hobson hit a bases-empty blast in the seventh.

"Everybody's getting some base hits now. We're swinging the bat pretty good," said Boston manager Don Zimmer, whose club had a total of 39 hits against the A's since Friday at Fenway Park.

"The runs really start coming in this park," said Oakland manager Jim Marshall. "We need two-and three-run games, because we're not really a big scoring team."

Tigers 6, Brewers 2

Jason Thompson, Rusty Staub and Steve Kemp blasted home runs to lead Detroit over Milwaukee. Thompson staked winner Jack Morris to a 2-0 lead in the second inning with his third homer of the season, following Kemp's leadoff single against Moose Haas, 2-2.

Staub unloaded a two-run homer, his first of the season, in the third after a walk to Lou Whitaker. Kemp's homer, his fourth, came in the sixth. Morris' 7 1/3-inning stint was the longest by a Tiger starter in three weeks.

Royals 14, White Sox 5

John Wathan's two-run homer capped a five-run fourth inning, and Willie Wilson's first major league homer — a two-run, inside-the-park shot — powered Kansas City over Chicago.

"It's something I'll never forget," said Wilson of his inside-the-park homer "But I'd better get it out of my mind. That's not me. It's more important that I get on base and steal. Let the guys who know how hit the home runs."

Blue Jays 3-5, Rangers 1-7

Mark Lemongello gained his first victory of the season as he pitched Toronto past Texas with an eight-hitter in the opener of their doubleheader. The victory by Lemongello, 1-4, also ended a six-game losing streak by the Blue Jays.

The Rangers won the second game by scoring seven runs in the eighth inning, capped by Mike Jorgensen's three-rum homer.

Blair's Retirement Fails To Stick

By The Associated Press

Paul Blair already was waiting for them to start kicking dirt into his grave at the age of 35.

Cut by the New York Yankees in April and resigned to a career as a high school or college baseball coach, he had given up on a major league career that had spanned 15 years.

However, Cincinnati picked him up last week, and on Sunday Blair got his first National League hit, a two-run homer that snapped a 1-1 tie and started the Reds to a 7-3 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

"This is a reprieve," Blair said. "I was dead."

Blair's homer came off Pirates right-hander John Candelaria in the sixth, and brought home Ray Knight, who had walked. Dan Driessen also smacked a solo homer for the Reds in the eighth inning.

After he was released by the Yankees, Blair said he went home to Troy Hill, N.J., and began preparations for entering St. John's University.

"I was doing nothing, just working out a little in my basement in case somebody called me and preparing to go to school," Blair said.

Ironically, it was the Pirates who put in the first call to Blair, but they never got back to him. Meanwhile, Blair's lawyers worked out a deal with Cincinnati.

Phils 12, Giants 2

Mike Schmidt cracked his 200th career homer, a leadoff shot in the second inning, and scored four runs to power Philadelphia's attack. The homer was Schmidt's 10th this season, tying him with Atlanta's Dale Murphy for the league lead.

Giants lefty Vida Blue and Philadelphia's Dick Ruthven Both were seeking to become the first seven-game winner in the league. However, Blue got the loss and Ruthven only made it through 4 2/3 innings. Ron Reed, 4-1, eventually got the win.

Dodgers 8, Expos 2

Joe Ferguson and Dave Lopes both homered for the second day in a row to help power the Dodgers to their seventh consecutive victory.

Ferguson's two-run homer capped a four-run first inning, and Lopes' homer in the fifth drove in two of the three runs that Los Angeles scored in the fourth.

Rick Sutcliffe, 4-2, went five innings for his third straight victory and Jerry Reuss went four innings for his third save.

Astros 3, Cubs 0

Joe Niekro limited Chicago to five hits for his second shutout of the season, walking one and striking out one.

Alan Ashby, Jeff Leonard and Jose Cruz drove in Houston's runs off Mike Krukow, 1-2.

Cards 7, Braves 3

Ken Oberkfell hit a two-run homer, his first of the season, and George Hendrick drove in three runs with a double and a single to back St. Louis right-hander Pete Vuckovich, who scattered six hits to beat Atlanta.

Vuckovich retired 20 consecutive batters after the second inning, until Jeff Burroughs doubled with two out in the ninth. Murphy followed with his 10th homer of the season.

Padres 5, Mets 4

Gene Richards' bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 10th propelled San Diego over New York.

The Padres scored three runs in the fourth, capped by Bill Fahey's two-run homer, and added an unearned run in the sixth on Steve Henderson's error in left field.

Willie Montanez homered for the Mets in the fourth.

Mears Proves '79 No Fluke

HI, MOM — Race driver Rick Mears, the fastest rookie at Indy a year ago, waves to the crowd after he captured the pole position for this year's Indianapolis 500 race by leading the qualifying Sunday. (AP Laserphoto)

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Rick Mears has proved last year was no fluke.

Mears, an easy-going 27-year-old desert racing specialist from Bakersfield, Calif., showed the veterans a faster way around Indianapolis Motor Speedway Sunday and won the pole position for the May 27 Indianapolis 500.

Mears started on the front row in his debut here a year ago, the first and only rookie to qualify at over 200 mph. He ran in the top five most of the race before mechanical trouble sidelined him, and he was named co-rookie of the year.

"He didn't look like a rookie today," said 44-year-old A.J. Foyt, whose disappointing run put him only sixth on the grid in quest of an unprecedented fifth Indy victory. "He's one of those guys who will be the Foyts and Unsers of the 1980s."

Mears' qualifying speed of 193.736 mph — more than 6 mph slower than last year because of new power restrictions — ruined Tom Sneva's bid for an unprecedented third straight start on the prestigious Indy pole. And Mears did it with the final run of the first day.

Two days of qualifying were sandwiched into one because of a total rainout Saturday.

"I thought that would be too good to be true — to be the last guy out and win the pole. I figured that only happens in the movies," Mears said.

Sneva had averaged 192.998 mph on a surprisingly strong run a few minutes earlier. Early qualifier Al Unser held the pole most of the day with his speed of 192.503 mph, which ultimately was good for third best.

After that trio, there was a decisive dropoff in speed to Bobby Unser's 189.913, Gordon Johncock's 189.753 mph and Foyt's 189.613.

Six of the top eight qualifiers were members of the dissident Championship Auto Racing Teams group whose entries were rejected by the sanctioning U.S. Auto Club, then reinstated by a court decision 10 days ago. CART drivers took 13 of the top 18 spots.

Mears felt it was also significant that the CART entries did so well using USAC rules. CART racing permits higher power settings.

USAC tightened the rules on power settings for qualifying early Saturday, hoping to cut down on anticipated cheating. A number of teams were quite upset by the 11th-hour changes.

"It really didn't hurt us any because we told everyone all along we were running legal. They just didn't believe us. I think they realize now they should have listened to us," Mears said.

Mears said he elected to use his 1978 model Penske chassis in this race, rather than the 1979 model his teammate Bobby Unser chose.

"I felt more comfortable in the old car, although the new Penske is just as good, if not better," Mears said.

Unser said the 1979 Penske "is the car of the future. It's a good design. I used it because the crew and I have been working on it since December. I think it will be a good car for 500 miles."

Although he was more comfortable in the older model, Mears said his pole run was not a comfortable one.

"On the first lap, going into the third turn, I thought I was going into the wall. I put a little more distance between me and concrete on the next three laps, but on the whole run I ran closer to the fence than I ever have here before," he said.

Missing from the weekend's qualifiers was speedster Danny Ongais, one of the prequalifying favorites. Ongais escaped serious injury in a pulverizing practice crash late Saturday.

Ongais was due to be released today from an Indianapolis hospital, where he had been held for observation. Doctors said Ongais suffered a concussion, whiplash and bruises, but no broken bones.

He is expected back in competition in time to qualify next weekend for the $1 million race.

Three Drivers Sweep Races

Crowds for weekend racing picked up at Lubbock Speedway with the addition of motorcycle events to the two-day race offering.

Saturday night's crowd for a program featuring mini, late model and sprint car races was the season's largest to date, although still short of last year's average.

Three drivers managed clean sweeps in their respective classes, with Harrel Whitehead (mini-stocks), Don Spear (Volkswagens) and Don Zahn (sprints) going three for three.

Thirty-nine motorcycles signed in for a combined motocross and short track racing program Friday night.

Main event winners in motocross were Bubba Shobert in the 125cc class, Joe Don Jordan (250cc) and Nat Halpain (80cc).

Shobert also won the open class short track main event, with David Fisher the 250cc winner, Stevie Halpain the 125cc winner and Mark Coffman the 80cc winner.

Sikma's Performance Keeps Sonics Alive

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — When Jack Sikma plays well, the Seattle SuperSonics fare well. It's as simple as that, says teammate Fred Brown.

Sikma was in the midst of his worst shooting slump of the season and the SuperSonics had dropped three straight games to the Phoenix Suns and faced a do-or-die situation in Sunday's Game 6.

The 6-foot-11 center, who had hit only 25 percent of his shots in the four previous playoff games against the Suns, broke loose for 21 points Sunday, hitting 7 of 11 attempts from the field and going 7-8 at the free throw line.

At the same time, Seattle came up with 54 percent shooting from the field, walloping the Suns on the boards 43-27 and picking up a 106-105 victory before a stunned sellout crowd of 12,660 at Veterans Memorial Coliseum.

The victory knotted the best-of-seven, National Basketball Association Western Conference championship series at 3-3 and sends the two teams back to Seattle's Kingdome for the finale Thursday night. The victor will meet the winner of the San Antonio-Washington Eastern Conference title series for the NBA crown.

"We were going right at them," said Brown, who had 15 points. "We wanted to take the game right to them, and that's what we did.

"Whenever we get a big game out of Jack, we come out and play well. And, it opened a lot of things for us inside."

Sikma said he had done everything he could to break out of the slump, but nothing worked. "So, I had nothing to lose, so why not play hard?"

Guard Dennis Johnson, who led Seattle with 23 points, noted that the SuperSonics, although they had dropped three games to Phoenix, including a 99-93 decision in Seattle on Friday, were confident they could win.

"We came out with the attitude that we can't do nothing but win," he said. "We were not going home losers."

Tulia Team Heads List Of Champions

By CHUCK McDONALD
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

The three-day AAU Regional Junior Olympics Boxing championships came to a close Saturday night at the Fair Park Coliseum before the largest crowd of the tournament.

And the fans got their money's worth out of the show. In there were 30 matches — six ended in TKOs — and 16 were chosen to represent West Texas in the AAU Region IX finals at Alice later this month.

Perhaps the most satisfied boxing club in the area was the one from Tulia. The Tulia club had five fighters competing in the intermediate and senior division (the two that are eligible for further competition) championships, and four of those boxers earned themselves a trip to Alice.

Ismael Posales started things off for the Tulia group with a clear-cut decision over Plainview's Micheal Medina in the first intermediate fight of the night. Then Alexander Cumby defeated the Dragons Dewayne Woody in the 95-pound bout to keep the ball rolling.

Later in the night, Edward Parker gained a split-decision victory over Orlin Norris of the Dragons and in one of the night's final matches Ford Jennings Jr. put the icing on the cake for the Tulia sluggers.

Jennings scored a TKO victory over Hereford's Ernie Alonzo in only 45 seconds. That knockout also avenged an earlier Tulia defeat of the night when Hereford slugger Richard Casarez had TKO'd Richard Bise in a junior division bout.

"It was a good tournament," said director Benny Ussary. "We've got some boys that just might be able to go all the way.

You know Rockin' Robin (Blake) won the AAU Junior Olympics title last year," he added. "So now we know that some of our West Texas kids can do it. And we saw some real good fighters tonight— some real good fighters."

In addition to the four Tulia fighters, Tracey Steveins, Stinnett Boys Club; Raul Carrasco, Plainview; Raton Perez, Olton; Ricky Carrasco, Plainview; Fred Gaines, Midland; Durwood Cator, Gruver; Fane Balle, Andrews; Felis Monuz, Midland; Victor Cavazos, Plainview Fighting Eagles; Joe Cavazos, P.F.E., Angello Carrillo, Warriors; Marty Slaton, Andrews; and Marshall Cator of Gruver will also be making the trip to the Region IX championships.

There are 14 AAU divisions in the United States and the regional winners will go on to the national meet.

Rick Keller, of Amarillo, and Carlos Gonzales, of the Lubbock Warriors fought in an exhibition match for the nights final fight.

Walton Vows Clippers To Win Immediately

SAN DIEGO (AP) — By luring Bill Walton back to his hometown, the San Diego Clippers found the dominant center they coveted.

Now the question looms: Will the price be Free — high-scoring guard Lloyd Free?

"I don't think we'd be so happy to give up Free," said Irv Levin, Clippers' president, after announcing he had signed Walton to the highest salary ever paid in the National Basketball Association.

Under NBA provisions, San Diegm must compensate Portland for the loss of the 6-foot-11 Walton, the three-time all-America who turned the Trail Blazers into champions in three years.

"Bill Walton is the most valuable player in the NBA, and we expect to be compensated accordingly," said Harry Glickman, Blazers' executive vice president and general manager.

Free was the NBA's No. 2 scorer this past season, averaging 28.8 points per game for the Clippers.

A major stumbling block in the issue will be the broken foot Walton suffered at Portland in playoffs a year ago. The fractured arch sidelined Walton the entire past season and, to some, remains a matter of concern considering Walton's history of injuries.

"Because of the foot injury, it could be hard to decide what is fair," said Clippers' coach Gene Shue.

Appearing at a Sunday morning press conference, the 26-year-old Walton promised the Clippers would be winners immediately.

"I not only visualize a championship here, I expect it. Not just one, either," said Walton, who said his seven-year contract means "I will be spending the rest of my career here."

Levin, who stunned the league by trading the Boston Celtics franchise for the Buffalo Braves club a year ago, said Walton's contract is better than the reported $800,000 a year David Thompson is making at Denver.

Walton was able to sign because his contract with Portland stipulated that after five years he was a free agent.

Plainsmen, Pampa Await First Playoff

By BOB BAJACKSON
Avalanche-Journal Sports Staff

When Borger swept a doubleheader from the Canyon Eagles Saturday afternoon, Bulldog coach Ray Murphree felt that his team had supplied answers to all doubts about the playoffs.

As it turns out, all the Bulldogs did was resolve half of the bidistrict picture.

CITY PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Estacado's Tony Gutierrez: The second baseman went 4-6 at the plate during the week with two doubles, 4 RBIs and scored twice as EHS ended the season winning its last three games.

Borger will play the winner of District 2-AAA, and the way things are going right now, any one of three teams has a chance to qualify for the playoffs.

Murphree, meanwhile, will just have to sit back and wait as the 2-AAA season concludes this week.

"I'm glad that we weren't forced into a playoff with Levelland," said the Borger coach. "We beat them three times this season, and I just feel that the odds would have to catch up with us if there was a fourth game."

The teams that still have a chance to meet the Bulldogs are Monahans, Odessa Ector and Pecos.

Monahans and Ector tied for the first-half title. Pecos currently is on top in the second half, and if Pecos gets by Andrews Tuesday, then it will get some time to celebrate the victory before being involved in the district playoff picture. While Pecos takes a rest, Monahans and Ector would meet to see which earns the righ to face Pecos for the loop crown.

That's the only South Plains baseball race that hasn't been decided. The rest of the teams will be involved in the best two-out-of-three game series.

Pampa of 3-AAAA will host Monterey of 4-AAAA in the first round starting at 4 p.m. Tuesday. Friday the action will move to Lubbock and Lowrey Field.

The Plainsmen had to wait a week so Pampa and Amarillo High could determine the loop champion in a playoff game. The Harvesters ended the Sandies' three-year domination of the district race with a 5-4 victory.

"I really think the pressure of the playoff game will help us against Monterey," said Pampa coach Steve Scott. "After all, it's our first experience in post-season action."

In 3-AAA, the Snyder Tigers captured their third consecutive baseball crown and will take a three-game winning streak into bidistrict play. Snyder will host Burkburnett Tuesday at 4 p.m. in a single game.

The Tigers have been to the state tournament four times but have failed to win the title.

Last year, however, Burkburnett ended Snyder's season in the bidistrict action. Thus, it's pretty much of an understatement that the Tigers are looking forward to the rematch.

Texas Waits For Opponent

AUSTIN (AP) — The Texas Longhorns expect to be the greatest energy savers in the third annual Southwest Conference baseball tournament — they believe they can win it in three games, the minimum possible under the tournament format.

"I think we'll win it in three, we have the pitching and nobody else does," centerfielder Joe Bruno said Sunday moments after the top-ranked Longhorns had beaten Arkansas 6-2 to reach the finals of the tournament.

Texas overcame a shakey pitching performance by unbeaten lefthander Jerry Don Gleaton, who loaded the bases in the first and third innings but allowed the Razorbacks only two runs.

But the Razorbacks stranded 15 base runners while the Longhorns left only six aboard.

The victory advanced Texas to the finals tonight against the winner of a consolation bracket game today between Arkansas and the Aggies, each with one loss in the double-elimination tournament.

The team that goes against Texas tonight will have to beat the Longhorns twice to win the tournament and advance to the NCAA College World Series next month.

Briefly Mentioned

GOLF

ATLANTA (AP) — Canadian Sandra Post sloshed over a rain-soaked course with a 4-under par 69 for a 210 total and a 2-shot victory over Pat Bradley in a $100,000 Ladies Professional Golf Association tournament. Miss Bradley, who shot a final round of 70, was followed by a trio of Pam Higgins, Clifford Ann Creed and Dot Germain, who tied for third place at 215. Creed and Germain both had a closing 73, while Higgins finished with a 75.

AUTO RACING

ZOLDER, Belgium (AP) — South Africa's Jody Scheckter drove a Ferrari to his first victory of the season in the Belgian Grand Prix. He pulled into a tie with Frenchman Jacques Lafitte for leadership of the world championship standings. Lafitte finished second. Third place went to French Tyrrell driver Didier Pironi when Gilles Villeneuve of Canada, who made a sensational comeback from an early fire change to sweep into third place stopped within seconds of the finish, out of gas.

TENNIS

DUESELDORF, West Germany (AP) — John Alexander and Phil Dent blanked Jose Luis Clerc and Richardo Cano of Argentina in doubles to send Australia into the finals against Italy in the 250,000-dollar Nations Cup Tennis tournament. Alexander and Dent routed the Argentines, 6-0, 6-0, for a 2-1 victory after the teams had earlier split singles matches in their semifinal encounter. Italy completed a 3-0 romp over the United States in the other semifinal pairing as Adriano Panatta and Paolo Bertolucci whipped Stan Smith and Arthur Ashe, 6-4, 6-4. In the semis, Alexander edged Clerc 4-6, 7-6, 7-5, knotting the score at 1-1. Cano had blitzed Tim Warwick, 6-1, 6-3, in the opener to give Argentina a 1-0 lead. Panatta registering a 6-3, 6-0 victory over Eddie Dibbs, and Corrado Barazzutti trounced Ashe, 6-2, 6-2, to give the Italians an unbeatable 2-0 lead after the singles.

ROME (AP) — Tracy Austin defeated Sylvia Hanika of West Germany 6-4, 1-6, 6-3 to win the women's Italian Open. Austin reached the final by winning Saturday's semifinal over top-seeded Chris Everf Lloyd in a three-set match decided by a tie-breaker. In the doubles final, Betty Stove of the Netherlands and Wendy Turnbull of Australia defeated Australians Evonne Goolagong and Kerry Reid 6-3, 6-4.

BASKETBALL

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Carol Blazelowski scored 25 points and Nancy Lieberman collected 13 as the United States won its first World Women's Basketball Championship since 1957 by defeating previously unbeaten Canada 77-61.

TRACK AND FIELD

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Villanova's Don Paige won the mile at the Martin Luther King Games in 3 minutes, 56.26 seconds, about one yard ahead of Ireland's Eamonn Coghlan. Suleiman Nyambui, the Tanzanian who runs for Texas-El Paso, was third. Coghlan, a former Villanovan, was clocked 3:56.34, with the 27-year-old Nyambui running the distance in 3:56.40.

steal of second before the catcher's throw sailed into centerfield, allowing him to advance to third. The centerfielder alertly scooped the ball and — you guessed it — threw it clean to the backstop, allowing Brigante to score.

David Slate, who relieved Smith, threw a fine game the rest of the way, allowing only one hit in 6 2/3 innings. But he walked six.

LCC started senior John Ross but he lasted only 3 2/3 innings, giving up four hits and walking five. Chris Cook came on in relief but left after another 3 2/3 innings after allowing five hits, in favor of Randy Vinson.

Vinson shut DBC down for the remaing 1 2/3, allowing only one hit and striking out one.

Brigante, Brashear, Inman, Toney and relief pitcher Noel Delgado were selected to the all-tournament team. Others selected included DBC first baseman Orie Mason, outfielder Kevin Smith and Slate.

Also on the all-tournament team were third baseman Bruce Junker, catcher Keith Whitley, outfielder Jerry Habercorn, and pitcher Bobby Newton, University of Dallas, and shortstop Kenneth Lee, Paul Quinn.

Abducted Woman Found By Husband, FBI Agent

PALM SPRINGS, Calif. (UPI) — When her husband and an FBI agent unexpectedly found her, 65-year-old Elaine Chaddick was collecting bushes to start a fire in the desert.

Mrs. Chaddick had been abducted at gunpoint late Tuesday afternoon and held three days by her kidnappers before she was left in the desert by the ringleader Friday night. She thought he would return and kill her.

Mrs. Chaddick, wife of Chicago multi-millionarie real estate developer Harry Chaddick, 77, was terrified as she waited in the closing darkness in the desert wash in Yucca Valley.

Chaddick said he could not believe it when he saw his wife.

"We had not completed our assignment yet," he said. "We were not supposed to have found her. We came over a little hill and there we saw this haggard person coming down the dirt road with a stick in her hand. She was picking bushes. She was going to build a fire if we didn't find her. When she saw (my) license number she just went completely hysterical."

While waiting alone in the desert darkness, Mrs. Chaddick heard shots in the distance. Another man and a woman who reportedly had been with her abductor, waiting in a camper not far away, suddenly drove off.

The ringleader, trying to pick up a package containing $198,000 ransom, was shot off his motorcycle and killed by a deputy sheriff in a helicopter.

The man and a woman in the camper exchanged gunfire with police, sheriff's deputies and the FBI and fled on foot. The woman was captured a few hours later in a shed.

The dead man was Bobby Ray Robbins, 36, Riverside, Calif. Police said he had purchased some guns recently but had no criminal record.

The woman was identified Sunday as his wife, Ginger Ray Robbins, 30. She was booked in Palm Springs on a state charge of kidnapping for ransom.

There was some mystery concerning the second man. The FBI said the search of the desert was called off late Sunday but authorities were "conducting a logical investigation to determine the identity of anyone else" involved in the kidnaping.

FBI agent Herbert Clough Jr. said Mrs. Chaddick was in her home in the resort town Tuesday talking on the phone with her husband who was in Chicago when a man entered claiming he was circulating a petition to reduce crime in the neighborhood.

Mrs. Chaddick told the Chicago Sun-Times in an interview that she was forced to wear a motorcycle helmet taped backward over her head so that she never got a look at anyone except the well-dressed, bearded man who entered her home. She said her hands were cuffed behind her.

The kidnapping was kept secret until Mrs. Chaddick was found Friday night.

One Fireman Killed In LA Area Blazes

LOS ANGELES (AP) — One firefighter was killed and 32 others injured while battling 11 blazes in a 35-hour period during the weekend, authorities said.

More than 100 companies fought the fires, three of which involved more than 15 companies and were declared major emergencies.

Ironically, the string of blazes starting Saturday interrupted the Los Angeles Fire Department's annual Fire Service Day to increase public awareness of its activities.

"This is the biggest night I've ever seen in the fire department," Ned Chatfield, a 30-year veteran, said late Saturday. "We just didn't have any companies to spare."

Lynn R. Hazlett, the second on-duty city firefighter to lose his life in the last three weeks, was killed in a blaze at a Van Nuys photocopy supply warehouse. Another 23 firefighters were injured in the Saturday night fire, suffering smoke inhalation or chemical burns.

A spokesman for the county coroner's office said Hazlett, 42, probably died from asphyxia caused by smoke inhalation while working on the stubborn blaze at Remington Industries warehouse.

More than 100 firefighters from 24 companies fought the fire, which gutted the one-story, concrete block warehouse used to store highly toxic and flammable duplicating fluid. Damage was estimated at $500,000.

A fire department spokesman said the cause of the blaze was "incendiary."

"The cause was other than accidental," said spokesman Martin Garza, who declined to give further details.

Mental State Key In White Trial

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The trial of former city Supervisor Dan White for the murders of Mayor George Moscone and Supervisor Harvey Milk draws to a close this week and jurors are faced with conflicting testimony on White's mental state at the time of the shootings.

Witnesses for both the prosecution and defense have given similar accounts of events on Nov 8, when White killed the two officials at City Hall. But a striking discrepancy runs through testimony about his mental state at the time.

Defense lawyer Douglas Schmidt has said from the start that the issue in the Superior Court trial is not whether White pulled the trigger — the former city legislator, policeman and fireman confessed shortly after the killings — but whether he did so with premeditation, deliberation and malice.

Those are the key elements necessary for a first-degree murder conviction with a possible death sentence, which is being sought by prosecutor Thomas Norman.

The prosecution has put 19 witnesses and two rebuttal witnesses on the stand since the trial began May 1, and will call more rebuttal witnesses today.

The defense presented 22 witnesses, including White's wife, who gave an emotional account of her husband's depression and confession. But White has not been called to the stand.

Norman called a mental health expert to the stand Friday as a rebuttal witness. Dr. Roland Levy, a psychiatrist who interviewed White eight hours after the shootings, told the jury of seven women and five men that White, 32, was "completely oriented and his intellectual functions were quite intact" when he shot the popular mayor four times and the supervisor five times.

Schmidt has called five expert witnesses and 17 of White's friends, relatives and colleagues to support his contention the defendant was so depressed he was incapable of "meaningfully and maturely weighing the arguments pro and con" at the time he pulled the trigger of the .38 caliber revolver.

The jury is expected to begin its deliberations by mid-week.

BLAKESBURG, Iowa (AP) — Would the owners of a piece of a 30-year-old wedding cake please come forward? Or has your romance gone stale?

Jim Benge inherited the frozen cake when he bought the grocery store he now operates.

David Baldwin, the former store owner, told Benge that "someone was coming back for the cake for an anniversary. He'd had it for a few years at the time — five or six."

When Benge bought the store, Baldwin told him who had ordered the cake. "At the time, I was new here and the names didn't mean anything to me." Now, neither Benge nor Baldwin remember the names.

"I suppose they forgot about it. Or it could be the couple split up and is not together any more, or they could have moved out of the country. You never know," said Benge.

NUCLEAR INPUT

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission has given notice that persons wishing to participate in NRC hearings on the proposed construction of a nuclear power plant in Carroll County, Ill., must state their intentions soon. The NRC said persons wishing to become intervenors — full parties in the legal proceedings — must file a formal petition to intervene by June 4.

Turkish Police Hunt Terrorists

ISTANBUL, Turkey (UPI) — Armed police backed by army soldiers patrolled Istanbul today, hunting for leftist terrorists who plotted to kidnap the U.S. and Israeli consuls and killed a American soldier two days ago.

Police said Sunday they learned of a plan by the ultra-leftist Turkish People's Liberation Front to abduct Robert B. Houghton, the U.S. consul general in Istanbul and Israeli Consul Beri Zerubavel, in a pre-dawn raid Saturday in which two leading liberation front members were killed and two others injured.

The same group launched a precision ambush Friday in the Istanbul suburb of Atakoy where U.S. Pfc. Thomas D. Mosely was gunned down while he and 21 companions were waiting for a military bus, police said.

A second soldier, Spec. 4. Robert Andrade suffered minor injuries when four to six terrorists armed with high powered rifles shot at the unarmed men from behind trees.

Guards at the Atakoy motel said the shooting would have been a massacre if most of the men had not been able to leap into a construction ditch for cover. A combined police and military operation, code-named "red dawn," combed Atakoy in a search for the terrorists, whose list of potential targets included a number of leading national politicians as well as the deposed shah of Iran, sources at the martial law authority said.

The Turkish People's Liberation Front, the country's largest and deadliest terrorist group, is said to maintain close ties with a number of Palestinian groups.

U.S. diplomats in Istanbul said they fear further attacks against the more than 5,000 American servicemen and 5,000 dependents based in Turkey.

"It's probably a good bet that there will be more violence," said a U.S. consulate public affairs official, Patrick Neiburg. "All of us are giving a good deal of thought to the situation because in a way we are random targets wherever we go."

Both the U.S. and Israeli consular offices declined to comment on the terrorist project.

Houghton, the top U.S. official in this city of 5 million inhabitants, has been consul general since 1977.

The liberation front also claimed responsibility for killing Master Sgt. Edward A. Claypool on April 13 in the seacoast city of Izmir.

Officials at Cakmakli military base, where Mosely and 40 other U.S. servicemen were stationed, said security had been intensified, but they declined to elaborate.

But Turkish army sources said additional troops had been brought in to reinforce the base that is among 16 installations run jointly by the United States and Turkey in Turkey, a strategically important NATO country.

Martial law, imposed in the south last December by the center-left government of Premier Bulent Ecevit, now covers 19 of Turkey's 57 provinces. But officials estimate an average of four people still die every day as a result of political and religious violence.

Nicaraguan Violence Leaves 13 Dead

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (UPI) — Thirteen people died in a weekend of political violence in Managua, including three children who were shot during a search for arms by the national guard at the home of a prominent businessman.

A guard communique said the eight adults and three children were killed Saturday when soldiers searched for arms in the home of Alfonso Gonzalez Pasos and three nearby houses.

Authorities said they found "subversive literature" in the Gonzalez residence and in the other homes.

Some 200 guerrillas attacked a national guard barracks in Santa Teresa, 33 miles from Managua Saturday, killing two guardsmen and wounding two others, military sources said.

In other violence, Sandinista guerrillas armed with machine guns and gasoline bombs attacked national guard police in Managua Sunday, military sources said.

There was no immediate report of casualties in the attack, in the southeastern San Judas section of the capital. Fighting between guardsmen and rebels also was reported in the Altamira eastern section of the city.

The opposition newspaper La Prensa said the dead at the Gonzalez home, included Gonzalez himself; his 12-year-old son, Juan Bosco; a 12-year-old nephew, Constancio Chamorro Mejia; a gardener and his 11-year-old son, and a female servant.

Authorities did not identify the other five people killed Saturday.

An official communique said the Gonzalez family was gathered for a reunion when national guardsmen entered the house, were fired upon, then returned fire.

La Prensa reported that the guard opened fire, killing everyone inside the house.

Snakeman Eyes Extended Mark

HARTBEESPOORT, South Africa (UPI) — A young carpenter who has spent 37 days in a glass cage with some of the world's deadliest vipers wants to extend his world record, but says "it depends on the snakes."

"My original intention was to last 40 days. Now I might try for 50," Peter Snyman said. "It all depends on the snakes."

The 24-year-old South African credited his bizarre and deadly dangerous endurance test to a desire to have his name inserted in the Guinness Book of Records.

"Now I have made it and I am very happy," he said.

His companions during the sojourn in a 6-by-8 foot glass cage at the Hartbeespoort Snake and Game Park have been six black mambas, six boomslangs (tree snakes), six Egyptian cobras and six puff adders.

After the tornado, Ætna worked like one.

Wichita Falls, Texas, April 11, 1979.

Ætna's Catastrophe Team flew into Wichita Falls, Texas the morning after the worst tornado in memory blew out.

And before the homeless had time to count their loss, Ætna was making up for it.

We were handing out cash advances within hours. Checks for over $4.6 million were issued within the first 7 days.

Our people worked into the night—night after night after night.

They volunteered their weekend, spending Easter helping homeless families instead of being home with their own.

In short, they worked till the homeowners insured with Ætna had a roof over their heads and a claim check in their hands.

Yet, our performance was only unusual in its size.

At Ætna, when only a single home is destroyed, it's treated as a major catastrophe. Because that's what it is...to the owner.
