Hall County Athletes Are Favorites To Win Championships At Austin

Hall County will be ably represented at the State Track and Tennis Meets at Austin this weekend with representatives of our county strong contenders for championships.

Actually, District 7-B netters and Region I winners are favored to win the State Class B meet with a clean sweep, with three of the four entries defending state champions, and the fourth a runner-up.

The Memphis mile relay team also is no stranger at Austin, finishing in third place last year, and, with three of the four members returning from last year's team.

Joining in the track hopefuls is Turkey's miler, Joe Milton, who placed second at region behind Lazbuddie's fine runner, David Nelson, and will be in a tough field at Austin.

Coach Joe Barnhill of Turkey is hopeful that Joe can have a fine weekend at Austin as he has been working hard.

Coach Jimmie Don Adams of Estelline left for Austin yesterday with his school's netter team of Cherri and Anne Rapp who are ready to defend their state girls doubles title. The team is considered stronger than ever and the favorite at the meet.

This is also the case with Loran Denton's tennis duo at Turkey who are determined to win "three in a row" by capturing the state title for the third consecutive year, a remarkable feat for Alton Setliff and Harvey Case, if the boys pull it off.

No one can overlook David Paul Majors, Turkey's singles entry, who was runner-up last year at Austin and will be more determined than ever this year. Despite David's small build, he is one of the hardest working athletes in this area and a truly fine competitor, and everyone is pulling for him since he was denied the title last year.

The Turkey schools will be let out tomorrow so many of the fans can make the trip to Austin. Several of the families are planning to attend.

Six boys left Memphis this morning with Coaches Bert Glascock and George Berry en route

Small Towns Task Force Report

West Texas Chamber of Commerce members last week met in Del Rio for the 49th annual meeting and the report of this organization's Small Towns Task Force was made public. The printed report, entitled "The Small Community in West Texas" is the result of seven months of intensive work and detailed study and analysis by a 23-member group of the WTCC.

Actually, this is a new field of study for the WTCC which has many times been critized by rural leaders for its concerted efforts on the part of the heavily populated areas of West Texas and its complete disinterest in the rural areas.

John Ben Shepherd, president of WTCC, spoke to the Panhandle Press Assn. at its convention April 21 concerning the report of the Task Force and asked the help of Panhandle newspapers in distributing the information contained in the 82 page printed booklet.

The booklet contains the study of the Task Force concerning the problems, potentials and opportunities of small towns (less than 12,000 population). Community inventories were compiled by a scientifically selected cross section of 140 small towns. Hearings were also held plus hearings in Austin and Washington. All data has been combined.

Leadership was pointed out as the most important ingredient of a community's progress. Communication between leaders and those who follow was emphasized as necessary to the successful completion of community projects. Involvement of the entire community is also mandatory if the community is to accept the projects.

In the educational, recreational and cultural section, it was pointed out that vocational and technical courses in the small town high schools will be most helpful in preparing the students for job opportunities. The availability of these trained people will attract certain industries to the area because of the special skills available in the labor market.

Further development of natural and man-made tourist attractions was suggested as one of the greatest opportunities for the creation of new dollars in the community.

The report made several recommendations regarding industry potentials for the small communities which included: (1) establishment of research centers for the development of cotton which would meet textile mill demands that will be compatible to the West Texas climate; (2) assignment by the Texas Industrial Commission of at least two members of its staff to work exclusively with small towns; (3) establishment of a fibers research center at Texas Tech to further the uses of natural and petro-chemical feedstock fibers; (4) passage of legislation permitting issuance of industrial revenue bonds by cities and counties; (5) encouragement of home-grown industries in the community; (6) apply the multiplier factor to raw products to increase the income of farmers, processors and finishers by developing more processing and finishing plants for raw materials and products in the West Texas area.

The WTCC is encouraging a greater cooperation between small towns and metropolitan areas so that both could prosper. This is a controversal issue, especially in the retailer field. Small towns are admonished to develop their assets and advertise the good living conditions, the slower pace of living and the congenial atmosphere of the small communities.

Many towns, according to the surveys, listed low taxes as an asset, whereas the problems in the same towns were often listed as lack of facilities which are normally paid for with taxes. This paradox must be corrected, according to the report, before real progress can be achieved.

"Do it yourself" programs were lauded, however, the report did not overlook Federal and State grant or aid programs that should be utilized by the small towns.

All in all, the booklet is a valuable source of information with solid suggestions for community leaders to study and apply to any projects they may be planning. The key to the success of any project lies in the hands of the leaders. Good leadership naturally encourages support, enthusiasm, sound planning and proper execution.

Rule by Riot?

If anyone doubts the dangers of civil disobedience and planned disorder in the United States, a look at news events of the past few weeks ought to dispel these doubts.

Student riots in Nashville, Tenn., Rochester, N. Y., Washington, D. C., and Houston, Texas have demonstrated the power of mobs who feel secure that the police will be unable to take very drastic action against them.

This week the vice president of the United States visited Texas and it was a disgraceful reception that he received at Houston and in Austin where disorderly mobs of young people bearing placards booed him and tried to turn his visit into a riot.

Similar mobs in Washington and Nashville have shown equal disrespect to the office of the President and Vice President as well as other officials.

In Nashville it was reported that "roaring marauders, many of them screaming 'black power,' struck through a 30-block area, shooting, looting, destroying cars and trucks and setting fires to stores with flaming Molotov cocktails."

These "demonstrations" are carried out because somehow the country has the idea that these rioters and looters are merely carrying out their right of free speech.

They are doing no such thing. There has to be respect for property and respect for other people's rights. The demonstrators of this country don't have a monopoly on civil rights. The rest of the people have civil rights, too, and it is high time that these rights get the same protection as the kooks and rioters are now receiving.

Why does the U. S. have to put up with people like Stokely Carmichael, the Negro who has inflamed many a mob lately. "To hell with the laws of the United States," said Carmichael recently. "Refuse to serve in Viet Nam," he told Negro students; and they roared back with the new cry of the civil righters. "Hell no, won't go" . . . Hell no, won't go."

What is treason?

It wasn't very long ago that acts like this, and the public burning of draft cards, the public burning of the United States flag, would at least have required some action by the law.

A whole lot of people in this country are getting fed up on rule by riot. People in this country have the right to live in a law abiding peaceful community and we think they are going to get this right one way or another. Rule by riot has got to go.
—Ochiltree County Herald

Put Some Heat on Flag-Burners

It's hard to recall any recent incident that has evoked so many expressions of public outrage as the burning of the United States flag by peaceniks demonstrating in New York's Central Park.

The resentment, at any rate, is strong in this part of the country, a circumstance abundantly apparent in the many protesting letters received by this newspaper. Reflected pretty generally is anger mixed with perplexity about the way of dealing with people who desecrate the flag.

Certainly it's a little curious that the act of burning a draft card is a punishable federal offense whereas anybody can desecrate the flag with apparent impunity.

A pending bill by Rep. James Quillen (R.-Tenn.) would make it costly for misguided peaceniks to desecrate the flag that other young Americans were bleeding and dying for in Vietnam.

The bill, House Resolution 6385, provides that "whoever publicly mutilates, defaces, defiles, defies, tramples upon or casts contempt, either by word or act, upon any flag, standard, colors, or ensign of the United States shall be punished by imprisonment of not more than one year and a fine of not more than $1,000."

Congress has passed laws widely suspected of aiding and comforting the enemy in Vietnam. Rep. Quillen's bill is one that would afford a little aid and comfort to the aggrieved survivors of Americans killed in Vietnam. Maybe some of the angry letters that are being addressed to the newspapers in this connection might serve a better purpose if sent to Congress.

$473,000 Spent For Improvements On Homes Each Year

NEW YORK, Apr. 24 — It takes a lot of money to keep Hall County homes in good running condition.

What with the rates charged by plumbers, painters, carpenters and other mechanics, and with the high cost of materials and supplies, the bills go into high figures.

Just how big is brought out through sample surveys, covering all parts of the country, conducted by government agencies.

On the basis of average outlays, it appears that approximately $473,000 is spent annually by local home owners for the maintenance and improvements to their property.

This is over and above the value of the work they put in themselves, which is not counted as part of the cost.

In Hall County's regional area, the expenditures average $197 a year per dwelling unit, according to the findings of the Department of Commerce. Nationally, the average is $253.

It is pointed out that only a fraction of homeowners go in for major improvements in any one year. This is taken into consideration in estimating how much is spent annually.

The biggest outlay, it is found, is for additions, alterations and replacements. They account for 56 percent of the total amount spent.

The remainder goes for general upkeep in the form of maintenance and repairs. The biggest item, in this regard, is painting, which gets 42 percent of the upkeep dollar.

Next in order are plumbing, with 11 percent of it, roofing, with 7 percent, and heating and air conditioning, 4 percent.

The labor shortage, among carpenters, plumbers, tile workers and handymen in general, is compelling many homeowners to roll up their sleeves and do the jobs themselves.

This do-it-yourself bit is being forced upon them in part by the difficulty in getting people to do the work and, in part because the amounts being charged are much higher than before.

Under the circumstances, local lumber dealers and stores selling paint, wallpaper, electrical supplies, roofing material and the like are getting a large part of the $473,000 that is being spent annually on Hall County homes.

Friends of Library Plan To Hold House-to-House Membership Drive

The local Chapter of Friends of the Carnegie Library met in regular session at the Community Center on Friday evening, April 28, with the president, H. J. Howell, presiding.

During the business session reports were given by various committees.

Plans were announced for the membership drive which will be held during the week of May 5-13 by Mrs. Henry Foster, membership chairman. During this period members will make a house-to-house canvass soliciting membership in the new organization. The sole purpose of the organization is to improve the Carnegie Library in order to offer better library service to the area.

Gayle Greene, chairman of the building committee, reported that members of his committee had met at the Library building. Members of the committee included H. J. Howell, Allen Dunbar, Wayne Goodrum, Ed Foxhall and Mr. Greene.

After an inspection of the building the committee discussed various problems and needed repairs, Mr. Greene stated. The repairs to the building were listed as follows by the committee:

1. The front door
2. The windows needs to be caulked and repaired
3. New wiring and light fixtures
4. Repair walls

The committee recommended that windows on the west side of the building be sealed in such a manner as to make it possible to build shelves for additional book space along this wall. The other windows to be caulked to prevent dust from leaking in around them.

Repairs to the building will be undertaken as soon as funds can be raised for the project.

Mrs. W. C. Dickey announced that approximately $650.00 would be available to the Friends of the Library as a gift from the Atalantean Club. This money was raised by two projects sponsored by the club. The Library Calendar tea and the recent spring style show.

A discussion was also held on the Book sale which is planned for sometime in the near future on the Library grounds. The Ways and Means Committee with Virginia Browder as chairman will be in charge of this project.

Mrs. Bob Fowler, program chairman, announced that book markers had been distributed at the school during national book week and a sign posted at the library building.

The next meeting will be held Monday evening, May 29, in the Community Center.

Dr. Townsend Speaks Tuesday To Rotarians About Greenbelt Dam

Dr. S. H. Townsend of Childress, president of the Greenbelt Municipal and Industrial Water Authority, spoke Tuesday to members of the Memphis Rotary Club concerning the dam which is almost completed near Clarendon.

Dr. Townsend was asked to be here by Program Chairman T. H. Deaver. Memphis director on the Greenbelt Board, Wendell Harrison was also on hand at the meeting.

"The construction of the dam itself is now 97 per cent complete and it has captured approximately 245,000,000 gallons of water for municipal use. The dam is 20 ft. across at the top and 4,000 ft. long. When filled the lake will contain 60,000 acre feet of water and be approximately four miles long," Dr. Townsend said.

The dam is located just north of Clarendon and can be seen from the Clarendon-Pampa highway.

The dam height is 110 feet and contains about three and a half million yards of dirt. It has a clay core. Townsend said the cost of the dam alone was $1,795,000.

The filter plant is now 75 per cent complete and will have a 25-million-gallon capacity. Its contract price is $624,941. Connecting the filtration plant is a 36-million pipe line system which extends all the way to Crowell.

About recreational facilities at the lake, Dr. Townsend said that white and bass fish either have been or will be placed in the lake this month, but it will be in future years before the fishing will be good.

Also, sometime in the future, sites for cabins will be available on a lease arrangement but no definite plans are ready at this time.

"For Childress and Quanah the dam means a solution to water rationing and inadequate water supplies. These two towns just had to have more water," Dr. Townsend said.

Dr. Townsend extended an invitation for Memphis residents to drive up and see the dam.

"After years of work and planning, I just can't believe the dam is sitting up there, almost complete, and water backing up behind it," Dr. Townsend said.

L. V. N. Assn. Has Guest Speaker On Monday, May 1

Members of the L. V. N. Association held their regular monthly meeting Monday night, May 1, at the Big O Restaurant.

President Mable Lavender opened the meeting with prayer.

During the business session, Mrs. Lavender read the monthly report from the state president, Helen Segrest. She stated that two new divisions were being organized which would bring a total of 79 divisions in Texas.

This bill is to improve the education of the nursing profession in the state of Texas, she said.

Questions were asked by the members and answered by Mrs. Campsey. Members stated that they felt better informed and much inspired after hearing Mrs. Campsey.

Those present were: the guest speaker, Mrs. Campsey; guests, Mrs. Wanda Howell, Mrs. Janie Lawrence, Mrs. Dorothy Smith, all of Childress; Mrs. Lois Arnold of Carey; Mrs. Kay Jenkins of Quanah; Mrs. Katie Isabel of Wellington; and the following members: Pat Martin, Betty Johnson, Alma Hemphill, Bea Gardenhire, Ruby Compton, Mable Lavender, Emma Wright, Bernie McIntush, and a new member, Mrs. Betty Barbee, who transferred from District 2, Pampa, to District 74, Memphis.

Dr., Mrs. Rose Attend Convention In Lubbock

Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Rose attended the 67th Annual Texas Optometric Association Convention in Lubbock four days of this week, April 29-30 and May 1-2. Approximately 250 optometrists and their wives were in attendance at the meeting.

Several points made in his talks were:

1. Window shields in cars should not be tinted because of reduction in vision at night.
2. Glare producing objects such as window shield wipers should be painted or made dull.
3. No books, letters or other objects should be placed on dash since they reflect an image into the driver's field of view.
4. Side reflectors and side lights should be installed on all cars.

Dr. Rose was elected to serve two more years on the board of directors of the State Optometric Association.

To date local citizens have filled out and returned 63 cards, it was reported.

Father Magana Participates In Program Before Departure

by Virginia Browder

The Mizpah Guild of The First Presbyterian Church was pleased to sponsor a program last Wednesday evening, April 26, in which Father John Magana of The Sacred Heart Catholic church of Memphis and Reverend Baldwin Stribling of The First Presbyterian Church of Clarendon participated as panelists in an open discussion titled "Our Ecumenical Concern."

For the past few years, there has been a movement under way among the various church denominations to bring about a closer relationship and cooperation, a softening of prejudices and a coordination thinking. This movement has been furthered by The National Council of Churches and The Second Vatican Council.

With this in mind, The Guild

FATHER JOHN MAGANA

invited Father Magana and Reverend Stribling to come together and freely express their views on the beginnings of and the possibilities for the success of this revolutionary project. It proved to be both enlightening and enjoyable occassion with Father Magana elucidating as to the background history of the updating of the ritual and regulations in the Catholic church and Reverend Stribling adding some thought-provoking and intelligent surmises as to the outcome of such a far-reaching program.

It is regrettable that Father Magana, after eleven months' sojourn in the town of Memphis is departing for, what is to be hoped will be, greener fields for his constructive efforts and missionary work for the Lord among the Spanish-Americans in other parts of Texas. After a month's leave of absence with his family in his homeland of Velencia, Spain, he will resume his duties in the mission field in this country.

He has done a wonderful work and accomplished great things for the Spanish speaking people of this area, it was stated. Not only has he supervised the moving of a church and rectory and built a shrine in Memphis but, during his ten years in the Panhandle, he has built four other churches, two rectories, and three recreation halls. Conserted efforts, perseverence, able leadership, and constant prayers have made the complex in Memphis possible. He now feels that his mission here is accomplished. Under the spiritual guidance of another priest which the Bishop of the Amarillo diocese will send to replace him, the Spanish people will be able to carry on but he will be greatly missed and well remembered by those who have worked so tirelessly with him to assist with his achievements in this area.

Following morning mass Sunday, his parishioners made 'fiesta' with a dinner in his honor at their recreation hall. He is especially appreciated because seldom are the Latin-Americans of this country fortunate enough to have a 'shepherd' so well qualified by education and family background to lead them in the way they should go. Above all and best of all, he is truly 'a man of God'.

We of Memphis who have known Father Juan Jose Magana appreciate his constructive efforts in our community, bid him 'bon voyage' and God's blessings in his future endeavors. Would that more people could be as busy as he making the world a better place to live.

As for the other member of the Guild sponsored program, Reverend Stribling, since his adoption of the Memphis Presbyterians following Richard Avery's departure, they have taken him to their hearts and are most grateful for his spiritual concern and continuing interest in their welfare.

A TEXAN'S DRIVING PLEDGE

All during 1967 I will drive my vehicle with a steady hand and a watchful eye so that nobody in it will be hurt or killed. I will drive my vehicle so that no other vehicle will be in collision with mine. I will never travel faster than conditions of the traffic, road and weather permit. I will always allow a safe measure of stopping distance ahead, remembering that at 70 miles per hour I need 49 times more stopping distance than at 10 miles per hour.

I will refrain from the kind of indulgence that would impair my skill and thus endanger the life and safety of my fellow man. I will keep my vehicle and its equipment in proper working condition. I will know the capabilities and limitations of the vehicle I am driving. Also, I will know my own capabilities and limitations in driving a vehicle..

I will anticipate emergencies and always expect the other driver to do the unexpected; and if he challenges me for road right-of-way, I will gladly give it to him. I will know the traffic laws and practice safe defensive driving procedures.

P. S.
I won't forget.

Turkey Elementary Grades Enjoy Train Ride From Clarendon To Childress

(Editors Note: The following is a story written by Debra Grayson, who is a fourth grade student in the Turkey school. The theme was sent for publication by the teacher, Mrs. Bert Degan. The article follows:)

THE TRAIN RIDE
by Debra Grayson

We were to go on a train ride from Clarendon to Childress. This is about 61 miles. We would take our own sack lunch. We had to be at school by 8:00.

We walked to school with Crystal Wynn, our cousin. As we got there, one bus was driving up. We went around to the front and got on the bus. On one bus there was 48 in all. On the other bus there was 61 in all.

When we got to the Clarendon Road station we got out. The first grade got their tickets first, then the second grade, the third grade and then the fourth.

The teachers told us to go out- side and wait until the train came.

While we were outside waiting, Patty Lane got a penny out and put it on the track. When the train came by it ran over the penny. It looked like an egg. Patty gave it to Robert.

The first, second, third and fourth grades lined up. We got on the train.

The conductor took us into the passenger car. Later on we got to go through the diner, kitchen, living room, private room and back into the passenger car.

After we got to Childress we got off and the buses took us on to the Childress Park.

While we were at the park, a fire whistle blew 16 or 17 times.

After dinner we played for about an hour or so. The boys played baseball. Some of the girls played.

The first graders or most of the first graders went across the street and played until the buses got back from the gas station.

Just as we were leaving Karen Davis and her family drove up.

The buses took us to grade school. We walked on home.

We all had fun. It was the first time for some of us to ride a train.

It was my first time and I hope that it won't be my very last!

Senator YARBOROUGH'S ☆REPORT☆

One of the most vital parts of the American economy is agriculture. Whatever helps or hurts the farmer also helps or hurts every other person in the country, whether that person lives in the rural areas or in the big cities. During my ten years as your United States Senator, I have devoted much time and effort to working for a prosperous agriculture in Texas and in the Nation. Outlined this week are a few of these actions I have taken during this present session of Congress in these first four months in 1967.

I am co-sponsoring with Senator John Sherman Cooper, a Republican of Kentucky, and Senator Walter Mondale, a Democrat of Minnesota, a bill to create a Rural Electric Bank. This Bank would provide more money to the electric cooperatives, which would be permitted to obtain low-cost loans from their own bank, somewhat similar to the federal farm loan banks. More electricity brings more production on our farms, benefitting all Americans.

The Rural Electric Bank would operate in such a way that eventually the government would leave control of the Bank to the cooperatives so they could finance themselves. This is a plan by which Congress, instead of appropriating all of the federal tax money to the coops to build their electric lines, would create a bank, thereby enabling the rural electric coops to finance themselves.

On March 16 of this year, I introduced a bill to provide for building of extensions to the American Canal at El Paso, Texas. The amount of irrigation water saved by this extension of the canal would relieve the great shortages of irrigation water that the Rio Grande project in the El Paso area has suffered during the past 15 years. And the estimated value of the water saved each year is nearly twice as great as the cost of the entire building and operation of the canal extensions.

On March 21, 1967, I introduced a bill to strengthen the authority of the Secretary of Agriculture in filing suits before the Interstate Commerce Commission in behalf of farmers to prevent unjust freight rates. Many farmers transported to Texas. My bill will help the farmers and all Texans by requiring the Secretary of Agriculture to take such cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission when any 20 or more persons certify that they are being damaged by these unfair freight rates. The Secretary has had this power for 28 years, but it has been used only once in that time. My bill would require him to help these farms in the fight for fair, non-discriminatory freight rates so that Texas agriculture will have a fair break with the agriculture of any other state.

But there is a great deal more for a Senator to do in Washington in representing the people than just in the introduction and passing of these laws. Representing the people often means demanding fair treatment for them by some government bureaucrats.

Last year Congress appropriated $18,400,000 to carry out long term conservation plans in the Great Plains area to prevent another Dust Bowl like in the 1930's. But the Bureau of the Budget froze $2,400,00 of this money. On April 6 I wrote President Johnson asking that these funds be released as they were desperately needed to help save valuable farmland.

Five days later — on April 11 —the Department of Agriculture informed me that these funds were being released.

The continued growth of agriculture is essential to our economy and to the future growth of the United States. I will continue to dedicate my efforts toward betterment of agriculture and the farmers of the United States.

M. A. Wileys Enjoy Vacation In California

Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Wiley, who reside at 811 South Sixth Street, have recently returned from a vacation in Concord, Calif., where they visited with their sons, M. C. and J. W. Wiley.

While there they enjoyed sightseeing in and near San Francisco. They visited Fisherman's Wharf, Telegraph Hill, Twin Peaks, Market Street, Cliff House and all the bridges in the bay area.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley said they had a wonderful vacation. But that Sunny California turned out to be rather "cloudy" as it rained every day they were there with the exception of one.

Cassius Clay planned to move to the City of Houston but his draft board thinks Fort Sam Houston is the appropriate place.

Ne-Tex Self Rationing Supplement is a complete Vitamin-Mineral Supplement especially formulated for Bermuda grass and range pastures.

Fertilication of grasses or pasture increases the nitrates in the forage. As your cows eat this grass these nitrates build up in their systems, and if this condition is not counteracted, it will cause nitrogen poisoning.

Ne-Tex Self Rationing Supplement contains a balance of minerals that are readily available—among these is CALCIUM SULPHATE—the most effective ingredient known to counteract nitrate buildup in the cow's system.

Melvin Jennings Named Director Of WTCOfC

Melvin Jennings, division manager for General Telephone Co., has been named director of the West Texas Chamber of Commerce for the next three years, according to an announcement by Don Wooten, Abilene, president of the WTCC. The new director was elected at the 49th annual convention in Del Rio last week.

"We hope that the new directors in each town will add important impetus to the WTCC program of work in the local community," Wooten said when the names of the new directors were announced.

to Austin where the Memphis mile relay team will be "the team to beat" in the Class AA state track meet.

With a Region time of 3 minutes, 21.5 seconds, the best in the state in Class AA, the Memphis baton handlers are primed and ready, except for one flaw. Clyde Wilson has been having leg trouble and has been on a light workout schedule.

Roy Long, Clyde Wilson and William Welch went to Austin with the mile relay team last year which ran a 3:23.5 to take third place. Joined by Lorenzo (Junior) Graves, Jr., the team this year has not lost a meet and does not want to lose the biggest one of all.

Alternates going are James Spruill and Roge Fowler, both capable boys on the quarter and anxious for the chance, should one of the regulars develop injuries or sickness.

It appears that Hale Center's relay team, an old district rival, will be the tough competitor at Austin, as this team ran a 3:21.8 at Region.

All of the Hall County representatives at Austin have won for themselves a certain amount of fame. The county tennis players are recognized through the state as the finest in any class due to years of training and experience and tough competition at home.

To outsiders, it seems a fantasy that so many good tennis players could come from one county but these people do not know the excellent tennis facilities and opportunities in tournaments available in the sport in this area.

Large impoundments always attract more attention from fishermen. Unfortunately for the anglers many overlook the possibilities of small farm and ranch tanks scattered over the state.

Now they are becoming so productive that fishermen who ignore them are missing a big bet.

Unless you fly occasionally you may be unaware of the great number of these impoundments. When you are in the air and look down on Texas you'll usually find in your view a half-dozen or more of these water holes.

You can thank the Soil Conservation Service for most of these tanks.

More than 193,000 farm ponds have been constructed with SCS technical assistance. Many more have been designed and built by landowners without the help of SCS.

Records also show that over 800 of these are flood control projects. This means that they are larger than the average farm or stock tank.

In addition there are some 1500 irrigation reservoirs built under SCS supervision.

Of course not all of these tanks have fishing capabilities. Not all are in areas where they can be developed for recreational purposes. But there are enough to make the whole story interesting.

Not all the impoundments will hold water.

This is particularly true of many of the flood control projects. Since they are for flood control many of them have an automatic drain-off level for maximum protection in the event of excessive flood waters.

Still other ponds are not sealed off. This means that they have heavy seepage. In addition there's the high evaporation that comes during the summer months.

Even though these impoundments are built primarily for other purposes most of them are stocked with fish from state or federal hatcheries.

In each case, landowners have control over fishermen entering these private lands. Some landowners open the ponds to the public for free fishing. Others charge a fee for this privilege. A few permit no fishing at all except by the family and close friends.

Most of these landowners are not willing to go to the expense of managing these ponds for fish. As a result the impoundments offer good fishing for a few years, then become mossy. Then the ratio of forage fish to game fish gets out of balance. Such ponds become infested with rough fish like shad, carp and bullheads. Result in poor fishing. Often the landowners will use fish toxicants such as rotenone to clean out the rough fish — then restock.

About the only impoundments receiving management for fish are those where the landowner obtains a good income from leasing fishing rights. In these cases he must provide some type of management to assure good fishing and to keep his paying customers.

However, the total number of impoundments being managed for fish production is small, probably not more than 2 percent of the total number.

Under the new recreational program landowners now can borrow money for development of recreational areas around such facilities. Not all will take advantage of this program. But enough will to create new spots for good fishing away from the large bodies of water.

Small groups of individuals also are taking leases on these places. Some of the best fishing spots in Texas are owned or developed by clubs. They have been affording wonderful fishing for many years.

A typical example is the Koon Kreek Club near Athens. This is perhaps the oldest such club in Texas.

It was organized nearly a half-century ago. It has several fine lakes on its property. Today a membership in the club is worth several thousand dollars against the original price of a few hundred.

This can be an inspiration to other groups wanting to assure themselves of future worthwhile fishing.

Check into these farm and ranch tank possibilities. Work with the landowners and you'll be surprised how wonderful the fishing can be.
