Tech Ouster Stirs Up Flurry Of Political Talk

Miss Texas Gets Sendoff

Gloria Hunt, left, an 18-year-old blonde beauty and a talented singer, receives a corsage and miniature cowboy hat to wish her well at the Miss United States contest in Long Beach, Calif. Mrs. Inez Barton, officer in the Pilot Club which sponsored Miss Hunt in the Buccaneer Days beauty contest, hands her the corsage. The Corpus Christi girl won the Buccaneer contest and was named Miss Texas at Lake Whitney. Finalists will be picked Tuesday night.

Haley Points To 'Lack' Of High Standards

FORT WORTH (AP)—Texas Tech Director J. Evetts Haley said today Tech directors let two faculty members go because the professors didn't come up to required "high intellectual and academic standards."

The board voted Saturday against renewing contracts of Dr. Byron Abernethy and Dr. Herbert Greenberg. The board also eliminated its adult education program, cutting out the job held by Dr. Per Stensland.

Abernethy has been professor of government and Greenburg, who is blind, has been assistant professor of psychology and associate director of the vocational rehabilitation counseling program.

"It was the conviction of the board that the two gentlemen (Abernethy and Greenberg) involved do not measure up to the high intellectual and academic standards set by the administration and the board of directors of Texas Tech. Hence, their contracts were not renewed," he related.

All contracts of faculty members were up for renewal at the end of the fiscal year, Haley added.

"It was the further view of the board that the so-called adult education program as formerly sponsored by the Ford Foundation was of little academic importance, considering the need for money in other vital and well-established educational fields," Haley stated.

"Hence, the adult education program, largely suspect of genuine academic value by many patrons of Texas Tech and by the most distinguished segments of the faculty, should be discontinued."

"Personally, I've always viewed it as a bit of plush, academic boondoggling that any institution genuinely dedicated to the great academic traditions, and the really consecrated teachers who pursue it, can ill afford. In keeping with its duties established by law, the board wisely declined to terminate it permanently."

Haley said he had never talked with any of the men relieved of their jobs and did not know them, although he might have met Abernethy at one time.

3 Profs Dropped From Faculty

LUBBOCK (AP) — Release of two Texas Tech faculty members with liberal leanings stirred a flurry of political speculation in Austin today.

On the Tech campus, no one would talk.

Tech directors late Saturday refused to renew the contracts of Dr. Byron Abernethy, professor of government, and Dr. Herbert Greenberg, assistant professor of psychology and associate director of the vocational rehabilitation counseling program.

The board also abolished the Ford Foundation-sponsored adult education program. This action also removed Dr. Per Stensland from the faculty.

The school's faculty advisory committee was to meet later in the day to discuss the situation. The committee's head said the discussion would be informal.

Announcement of the directors' action came after two closed sessions Saturday. No directors discussed the actions in detail with the press.

In Austin, politicians immediately drew a parallel between the historic battle between liberals and conservatives that preceded and followed discharge of Dr. Homer Rainey as president of the University of Texas in the late 1940s.

After Rainey's removal, he ran for governor but lost in one of the state's bitterest campaigns. Austin observers viewed Abernethy as a possible liberal candidate in future state elections.

Abernethy has been prominent in liberal Democratic circles.

The Lubbock Avalanche-Journal said Greenberg has been an outspoken advocate of integration of the races.

HALEY'S HAND SEEN

The Avalanche-Journal said it believed J. Evetts Haley, director from Canyon, was the guiding hand in the board's action. He is a strong states-righter and segregation supporter. Haley was defeated for governor last summer.

Dr. E. N. Jones, Tech president, said, "I will have to decline comment." The Avalanche-Journal said other faculty members would not publicly discuss the case.

The Tech board held a closed session from 10 a.m. to 12:15 p.m. Saturday, then an open meeting from 1:30 to 3:40 p.m. After that, it removed all the press and others from the room and remained in session until 6:30 p.m.

All of the board left without talking with reporters except board member Jim Lindsey, managing editor of the Midland Reporter-Telegram. He presided in the absence of board chairman W. D. Watson, Abilene, vacationing in Hawaii.

Abernethy and Greenberg expressed surprise and said their classroom work had not been questioned.

Dr. Greenberg is blind.

Their contracts expire next month.

Dr. Sterling Fuller, professor of government and head of the faculty advisory committee, said members of the board would be contacted today for discussion of the action.

"I don't know just what action the committee can or will take," Dr. Fuller said.

Dr. Stensland is father of movie starlet Inger Stevens who is currently starring in a new picture with Bing Crosby.

The action came as the board approved a budget of $7,383,937 for the 1957-58 school year.

The Avalanche-Journal said reasons for the action were not noted in board minutes but that it was generally known that Abernethy and Greenberg have been subjects of concern on the part of a number of board members because of their political views.

Abernethy has been active for several years in what the newspaper called "liberal" Democratic movements. At Austin in May he was keynote speaker at the state convention of "Democrats for Texas," generally considered a liberal group.

He also was active in a political fight between liberal and conservative elements in the State Democratic Convention in Fort Worth in September.

RACE ISSUE SEEN

The Avalanche-Journal said action against Greenberg apparently was taken because of his publicly stated views in favor of integration. Greenberg recently conducted a survey on views of integration as a psychological study on the campus.

Haley campaigned for governor on a platform which included a strong anti-integration plank. He is director of the Institute of Americanism at the college and is state organizer for "For America," a political movement with headquarters in Chicago.

The newspaper said Haley has

Parallel Seen With Bitter Rainey Battle

By DAVE CHEAVENS

AUSTIN (AP)—Dr. Byron Abernethy's difficulties with Texas Tech directors stirred up today a flurry of political speculation that could develop into a storm.

Politicians were wondering if the situation did not hold the same potentials as the historic battle between liberals and conservatives that preceded and followed discharge of Dr. Homer Rainey as president of the University of Texas in the late 1940s.

After Rainey's removal, he assumed the post of front man for the liberals and was beaten for governor after one of the bitterest campaigns in Texas' political history. The late Beauford Jester defeated Rainey in a runoff and Rainey left the state.

There has been no direct, open charge that the Tech board's action in failing to renew Abernethy's contract was back-grounded in the government professor's outspoken liberal political views in Texas' continuing factional fight between liberals and conservatives.

But the speculation was that the liberals, openly looking for a candidate for governor in the 1958 primary, might seize on Abernethy—if he is willing—to help them.

Abernethy has been active in several recent state Democratic conventions.

On one or two occasions, he protested rulings from the floor, and once made a speech that drew loud cheers from the minority. He teaches government and was obviously well-informed on convention rules and procedures. He also is a fiery orator.

More recently, the Tech professor has aligned himself with the Democrats of Texas (DOT) organization, the liberal faction's group taking the leadership in a statewide fight for control with the established state Democratic Executive Committee.

Abernathy was the keynote speaker at the DOT's statewide convention here in May.

Political insiders have believed that J. Evetts Haley, member of the Tech board, may have taken the leadership in the board's action. He ran for governor last summer as an outspoken anti-integrationist and politically is considered far to the right of the current Democratic leadership in Texas.

Clinton Jury Hears Of Threats, Tension, Terror

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP)—A jury today heard a story of threats, tension and terror after Negro students were admitted to the high school in the little Tennessee highland town of Clinton last fall.

"We had more concentrated internal trouble then than at any other period of year," David J. Brittain, 41, principal of the school, testified in Federal Court.

"Why did you close the school Dec. 4?" asked U.S. Dist. Atty. John C. Crawford Jr.

The battery of defense lawyers rose as a man shouting objections. They were overruled and Brittain replied: "There had been so many actions, and the tension was so great I figured that was the safest policy."

Prior to Brittain's appearance, U.S. Dist. Judge Robert L. Taylor dismissed charges of criminal contempt against Mrs. Zella Lou Nelson, 19. She is expecting a child in September and the court acted on a statement about her condition sent by a Clinton physician.

Mrs. Nelson was one of 15 Clinton area residents on trial along with Northern segregationist John Kasper for alleged criminal contempt of court. They are accused of violating a federal injunction banning interference with court-ordered integration of Clinton High School.

THREATENING CALLS

Brittain said attendance in the school dropped from about 800 at the beginning of the term to "260-odd." He said people told him they were receiving threatening telephone calls. After more defense objections, Taylor again told the jury the testimony would be pertinent only if it linked Kasper and the others.

Later, Brittain said the enrollment rose again to approximately 750.

He said Kasper came to see him during the week of Aug. 27, when school opened.

"What did he say?" Crawford asked.

"Kasper asked me what I was going to do with regard to getting the Negroes out of Clinton High School, and I said we weren't going to do anything about it. I said we were under a court order to enroll them," Brittain replied.

"Did he say anything else?"

Brittain replied:

"He stated to me that other people in other places had not obeyed the law on enrolling Negroes. I said they were not under court orders to do so as we were.

"Kasper then said, 'what are you going to do yourself?'

"I said I had three choices. I could obey the court order, disobey, or resign. I said I intended to obey.

OUSTER LOOMED

"He finally said he'd get me out of that school before the term was over if I didn't get those Negroes out."

Thereafter, he said, people began driving automobiles around the school bearing signs. Students began attending classes wearing badges.

A volley of objections came from the defense. Taylor overruled them.

Brittain said the badges bore the motto, "keep our white schools white."

He said he finally closed the school Dec. 4 after conferring with school board officials.

To convict any of the remaining 14 Tennessee defendants, the government must show that they had "reasonable knowledge" of a federal injunction banning interference with court-ordered integration of Clinton High School last fall.

Federal prosecutors also must prove that the Clinton residents conspired with Kasper to violate the injunction.

Kasper and the Clinton 14 are charged specifically with violating the government's injunction.

Chief defense counsel Robert L. Dobbs of Memphis, said he has uncovered new information which he said will have "a very sobering effect on this case."

"GOOD LEAD"

Dobbs said he ran down "a good lead" during the weekend recess of the trial.

Dobbs declined further details about the new witness except to say, "It's someone within the territory of this court."

The case is being tried in the U. S. District Court for Eastern Tennessee.

The 14 Tennesseans and Kasper are charged with "acting in concert" to flout a federal court order against any interference with desegregating the high school. Clinton is a highland town of 4,500 near Knoxville.

Kasper has told reporters he is prepared to sacrifice himself to

Gunslingers Shoot It Out In Santa Fe, But Losers Live

SANTA FE, N.M. (AP) — There was a deathly silence as the four gunslingers, hands poised above their pistols, stood face to face in a rodeo arena last night.

Suddenly, their hands flashed down and the guns seemed to leap from the holsters.

The silence was broken by the roar of gunfire.

Bill Reust of Santa Fe slipped his smoking gun back into the holster.

He had proven he was the king of the gunslingers.

Even though outdrawn and outshot, the other three managed to walk away from the gunfight without a scratch.

The gunslingers were using cap pistols and shot against the stop watch and not each other.

Reust, the winner, is 10 years old.

The second-place finisher, Lars Henderson of Los Angeles, is 9.

It all started when Lars and his 11-year-old brother Eric appeared on a television show demonstrating some new cap pistols.

The boys were touted as the fastest on the draw. The Santa Fe youngsters, from the stomping grounds of Billy the Kid, cried, "Draw and prove it, podner."

Janice Nicholson, 12, the second member of the Santa Fe gang, finished third and Eric was last.

U.S. May Lift News Ban On Red China

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department reportedly is planning to end its ban on the travel of U.S. newsmen into Red China.

Secretary of State Dulles, it was learned yesterday, may announce a new administration decision on the controversial issue next weekend. He meets Thursday with several leaders in the newsgathering and publishing fields in an effort to get their backing for a compromise plan for China news coverage.

Meanwhile, the United States is preparing to resume its battle to keep Western trade with the Chinese Communists at a bare minimum.

Representatives of 15 major trading nations meet in Paris this week to discuss setting quotas for about 25 important items which previously were banned from shipment to Red China.

A backstage argument seemed likely between the United States on the one hand, and Britain, France, West Germany and Japan on the other. The U.S. delegation has been instructed to work for the lowest possible quotas on the items under discussion.

Britain, leading the fight to ease the trading controls, is expected to demand bigger quotas than would suit the United States.

Last May 30, Britain announced that it planned to begin shipping 207 items barred from China trade since the Korean War. That move was taken over protests from the United States, which still has a policy of no trade with Communist China.

Other nations have since followed the British move.

The question of U.S. newsmen being barred from travel to China has been a major problem for Dulles for months. In August 1956, the Peiping regime lifted a seven-year ban on U.S. reporters, and gave 15 newsmen permission to enter that country.

But the State Department said such travel would violate U.S. policy. Subsequently, three American newsmen defied the ban.

Dulles has gradually retreated from his original firm stand. He and his advisers apparently now prefer a plan to allow coverage of Red China by representatives of newspapers and news services which covered the country before the Communists took over.

New Voting Box Faces Opposition

Any proposal to establish a voting box at Lakeview school—primarily to serve the Negro residents of that community—will probably be opposed by certain white voters in the area, if it is required that the residents in the immediate vicinity have to vote at the new box.

This became evident Monday morning, when a small group of white voters from the district were in the Howard County Commissioners Court to object to the creation of the proposed new box.

They were informed by the court that no decision had been reached nor was any plan under consideration to include their particular parts of town in the area served by the box if it was established. It was explained that a request had been filed by certain residents that such a box be set up at the Lakeview school. This request was made last year but too late for consideration. It was revived this year.

The commissioners must make any such changes in voting precincts and boxes in August.

The delegation was assured that no action would be taken until later and that ample opportunity would be offered for all interested persons to air their views on the matter.

A rumor, the court was told, had been circulated that such a box was to be created and that it would effect the voting practices of the people present.

R. H. Weaver, county judge, told the visitors that it was "utterly untrue" that he had advocated any such move. The rumor had said he was recommending the proposal.

"I merely told the court that I had a request from certain residents that such a box be established," he said. "I also told the court that if any election precinct changes were to be made, they must be made in August. I did not and do not advocate any changes—all I was doing was passing on a request of certain citizens to the court. I would and will do as much for all citizens who have such requests."

Red Gilliam, county commissioner, said that he had checked the vote totals for the box at the last election and that only 313 votes were cast. Other boxes, he pointed out, were much heavier burdened.

The delegation was assured that no change would be made until a full hearing had been held and the change justified.

Rioters Hit Patrol Cars, 9 Arrested

The police got three cars damaged in a wild riot on the Northside Saturday night. As a result, complaints were filed against 10 persons in corporation, county and juvenile courts.

Three of the persons charged were dismissed this morning from corporation court.

The police department got a call about 11:40 p.m. Saturday about a fight at the Gomez Ball Room, 510 NW 4th. Later every city patrol car was dispatched to the area, and one of the Highway Patrol crews went to the scene.

During all the disturbance, windshields on three police cars were damaged. In addition, Patrolman James Hackney had to shoot over the head of one of the persons arrested in an attempt to stop him, but he was unsuccessful.

Saturday night, six persons were arrested on various charges of disturbance, affray, aggravated assault and carrying a concealed weapon. In addition, four were picked up Sunday.

This morning in corporation court, three of the four arrested Sunday, charged with destroying city property (the police cars), were dismissed, but the one remaining was fined $150. He was the one identified by Hackney as escaping from a police car Saturday night.

One of the six arrested Saturday was a juvenile, and she was turned over to the juvenile officer. She was charged with disturbance and aggravated assault.

Found guilty in the court were Latin Americans on charges of disturbance and affray, and fines amounted to $450.

In addition, one of the group was transferred to the county and charged with carrying a concealed weapon. He is Juan Ramirez.

Parr Trial Moves Into Tenth Week

HOUSTON (AP)—The George Parr mail fraud trial moved into its tenth week today with indications the fate of Parr and 10 other defendants may rest in the hands of the jury several more days.

Federal Judge Joe Ingraham turned the case over to the jury Friday with instructions to "take all the time you need" in reaching a verdict.

This is the fourth time the government has tried to convict Parr and the others on charges of using the mails to defraud the Benavides School District.

The trio vanished from Portuguese Macao on April 28 and returned on a British-owned ferryboat. Texas Crops Need Good General Rain

COLLEGE STATION, July 15 (AP)—Texas needs a good general rain for crops and ranges, the Agricultural Extension Service said today.

"High temperature and wind have dried the surface, creating a critical period for most crops which are late but now are off to a good start, and for ranges which have been lush so far this year, except in some of West Texas," Director G. G. Gibson said.

West of the Pecos ranges remain in critical condition and stockmen continue feeding their herds. All ranges and dryland crops are making good progress. Livestock parasites continue bad. Lamb marketing continues and calves are being contracted by buyers.

All cotton and grain sorghum is up in the South Plains and making rapid progress although extremely late. There is a light infestation of fleahoppers and thrips on cotton. Stockwater is adequate, but ranges are beginning to burn.

In the Amarillo area the wheat harvest is complete. Farmers are busy with other crops and need a general rain.

Surface moisture is scarce in Northeast Texas on upland fields. Corn, sorghum and cotton still are making good growth with very little insect damage. Hay is plentiful, stockwater adequate and cattle are gaining weight. The peach harvest is bringing good prices.

The Central Texas cotton crop is making good growth. Fleahoppers and thrips are troublesome. Early corn and grain sorghum are maturing. Late planted crops need rain. Pastures also are feeling the lack of moisture. Livestock are in good condition. The peanut crop is planted and up.

Many crops and pastures are suffering for rain in North Texas, but some crops continue to grow. Ranges are extremely weedy but livestock is in good condition.

The Rolling Plains cotton and grain sorghum crops are growing but cutworms, webworms, aphids, thrips and cabbage loopers are causing damage. The small grain harvest is complete with wheat yields of 12-15 bushels an acre.

The Edwards Plateau must have rain soon if grain sorghum yields are to be high. Young crops need rain as surface moisture is being depleted rapidly by hot, dry winds. Livestock is doing well and prices are holding up. Screwworms are bad. The pecan outlook is spotted.

Crop prospects in the South Central Texas are reported good. Rain is needed. Heavy insect damage is reported on cotton.

Scouts Meet Friends From Over World

VALLEY FORGE (AP) — Texas boys swapped horned toads for hard coal lumps from Pennsylvania. Scouts from the far northern reaches of the country piled into the camp site of the Panama Canal Zone to look with fascination upon an eight-foot snake. A boy from Denmark, with a touch of awe, wondered whether a Scout from Peru could produce a shrunken head.

Thus life in this Boy Scout Jamboree City covering 1,500 acres and lodging nearly 55,000 lads and leaders is getting back to normal today after a memorable weekend.

Yesterday, after religious services by various denominations, the Scouts entertained a multitude of relatives and friends. Thousands came from neighboring states.

Scout officials and state police estimated that more than 30,000 toured the camp yesterday.

Today it will be back to swapping, to the overtures that so often lead to fast friendships, to hikes and trips to historical and other exhibits.

One of the most elaborate and interesting of these is a conservation display set up by Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey with the assistance of three federal agencies.

As the Scouts approach the area, their curiosity is aroused by the beckoning wand of "Conservo," a giant wooden magician. In the tent, Conservo himself, in the person of one of the staff Scouts, explains the interdependence of soil and water conservation with that of plants and forestry, fish and wildlife.

Then the Scouts are taken on a tour of realistic exhibits where experts in various fields explain the need for conservation and its effect on their daily lives no matter where they may live.

Deer and other wild life are seen in their natural habitat.

The forest rangers conduct one of the most popular exhibits.

Forest fires are "set," sighted and reported by radio from three towers situated some distance apart, tracked and "extinguished."

Whale Impaled

CORK, Ireland (AP)—The Greek liner New York impaled a whale on its bow in mid-Atlantic, Capt. George Georgioux reported yesterday on arrival in Cork. The skipper managed to shake the carcass of his 16,991-ton ship by steaming astern. The vessel was undamaged.

Many Cases Tossed Back On Appeal Over Technicalities

BY ED OVERHOLSER

AUSTIN, July 15 (AP)—The Court of Criminal Appeals, a criminal's last chance in Texas courts, tossed out 92 cases during its 1956-57 term just ended.

Many reversals came in cases where there was apparently no doubt—at least to jurors—about the guilt of the accused man. Technicalities and legal loopholes led to the reversal.

Such actions have brought some sharp comment from laymen, lawyers and prosecutors. One member of the three-man appellate court spoke out at the recent State Bar meeting.

Appellate judges who base reversals on such technical points as flaws in indictments have often defended their actions by asserting that law is law and that prosecutors ought to be sure their indictments are in order, and trial judges certain their conduct of a case is airtight, before they yell "technicality."

Court of Criminal Appeals judges often disagree. Dissents are routine in any appellate court, but they do not often reflect the sharp differences of opinion that crop out in some of those coming from Texas' Criminal Appeals bench.

UNSETTLED LAW

Judge K. K. Woodley of the court made this recent comment:

"I am concerned about our court as a court, and of the unsettled state of the law. I am concerned about the effect of some of our recent holdings upon law enforcement and the administration of justice.

"I am concerned about the free and frequent attacks upon our court and its opinions. I am greatly concerned because of the source and the severity of some of these criticisms and censures."

One of the most celebrated reversals was the perjury conviction of Leslie Lowry for alleged false statements made in affidavit form to the State Insurance Board for securing a permit to do business for the Texas Fire Insurance Co. of Beaumont.

A seven-year conviction was thrown out when the state failed to prove that Lowry took an oath before a notary public on the affidavit. Without the oath, the court took the position that Lowry legally could send in false statements.

The 10-year sentence against B. R. Sheffield, associate of Bascom Giles in a veterans' land scandal deal, was junked by the court on three grounds, one including the misspelling of McCulloch County. Another reason was that the state failed to prove that a notary public was a notary public and because the trial judge warned that separation of the jury while deliberating might cause the verdict to be reversed.

OUT THE WINDOW

Several Duval County cases have gone out the window. These include:

D. C. Chapa, former assessor-collector for the Benavides School District, given five years for misapplying public funds from the school district. The reversal came because the lower courts overruled a motion by Chapa for severance. Chapa wanted Oscar Carrillo Sr., secretary of the board and indicted on similar mishandling charges, tried first and the appellate court declared Carrillo had agreed.

Former Dist. Atty. Raeburn Norris of Alice, given five years on charges of misapplying $5,000 in Duval County funds to pay off a personal note, on grounds of insufficient evidence.

B. F. Donald Jr. The court said he could not be tried on conspiring to misapply $1,000 in the school district's fund because the statute of limitations had expired.

Two years ago, the court threw out 104 Duval County indictments because a member of the grand jury had not paid a poll tax.

Woodley quoted these excerpts leveled at the majority opinion by the dissenting judges:

"I cannot help but wonder if we have not gotten to the point, in this state, where the trial of a criminal case has become a battle between opposing counsel over legal technicalities or purely procedural matters rather than a proceeding to determine if one accused of crime is guilty of the crime charged and has been accorded a trial in accordance with law."

"It is directly contrary to the prior decisions of this court."

REASONS GIVEN

Here are reasons from several cases reversed this year by the court:

The date "before, or about" is indefinite.

Complaints alleged offense was committed Aug. 26 while information alleged date was Aug. 27.

Defendant's footprints leading to and from the place where liquor was hidden from view was insufficient evidence. "Identity of accused may not be established by tracks alone."

Evidence was insufficient to disprove defendant's statement that marijuana found in her home was there without her knowledge.

No proof that appellant had knowledge of the wine in the car he was driving.

Microscopic particles of marijuana found in the pocket of accused is insufficient evidence.

A knife blade three-fourths of an inch long is not a deadly weapon and is insufficient to sustain conviction.

Refusal of accused in a drunk-while-driving case to take blood test is not admissible.

No proof that assault made by throwing rocks was made with premeditated design.

Man On Raft Aims For Brownsville

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—A Los Angeles man is floating out in the Gulf of Mexico today.

Michel Golden said before he left he would sail or float 300 miles southwest along the lower Texas coast to Brownsville.

The Coast Guard said he'd more likely end in the South Atlantic.

"I doubt that he'll ever reach Brownsville," Coast Guard Cmdr. T. F. Knoll said. He said there were no currents the Los Angeles man could depend upon to head his rubber raft for Brownsville.

Golden gave no reason for his trip.

'Dud' Nuclear Bomb Explodes Over Nevada

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (AP)—"Diablo," the nuclear dud of two weeks ago, burst with a stunning purple hue over the Nevada desert at 4:30 a.m. today.

The explosion was the seventh of the current summer test series.

The blossom atop the cloud was surrounded by a flourescent purple color which began to fade about a minute after the blast.

The stem supporting the blossom also had a new look. It was not straight, as most have been in previous shots, but bulged a little at the bottom.

The mushroom rose swiftly to about 25,000 feet, then began to bend over and move in a westerly direction.

The blast was roughly one-half as powerful as the atomic bombs dropped on Japan during World War II.

"Diablo" originally was scheduled to be detonated June 27, then was postponed a day. On June 28, the bomb failed to fire because of a power failure.

Several other postponements were made before the device was exploded this morning from a 500-foot steel tower.

Newsmen and a group of Canadian military observers watched the explosion from News Nob, about 14 miles from Ground Zero. They said they felt a moderate shock wave.

Five hundred U.S. military observers watched from another observation point nearby.

Two thousand feet from Ground Zero, a group of technicians were stationed in an underground shelter equipped with devices to measure radioactivity.

There were no troop maneuvers in connection with today's shot but about 40 aircraft were aloft on crew indoctrination and cloud tracking missions.

The Atomic Energy Commission had said the blast was not expected to produce any appreciable fallout outside the firing range.

At San Francisco, observers reported the blast produced an orange-yellow glow in the sky.

Baby Whoopers Big Birds Now

The pair of rare whooping cranes hatched at New Orleans' Audubon Park Zoo less than two months ago, stand nearly as tall as parents Crip, second frof right, and Josephine as they stroll around in their pen. Baby at right is three days older than the other. Previously, another whooper born in captivity lived only 45 days. Zoo officials are now confident these two new mmebers of the rare species will grow to maturity.

Civil Rights May Determine Knowland Presidential Hopes

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) apparently has seized on the civil rights controversy in the Senate as offering an issue that might make him the Republican presidential nominee in 1960.

Knowland, the Senate Republican leader, said last night he will announce next fall whether he intends to seek the Republican nomination for governor of California. He had announced previously he would not run for re-election to the Senate next year.

Knowland said he has arranged tentatively to make 45 speeches in all sections of California after Congress quits. He said his schedule for those speeches would depend upon the adjournment date, which is uncertain because of the battle over the administration's civil rights bill.

Although Knowland declined to say whether he had made any decision, friends think he already has made up his mind to take on Republican Gov. Goodwin J. Knight for the GOP nomination for governor in next year's California primary.

Knowland said he would have some announcement after he has traveled over California for about 30 days next fall. If he runs for the governorship, the supposition is that he will be attempting to place himself in a position to bid for the presidential nomination two years later.

Perhaps with this in mind, Knowland has taken the leadership in efforts to get the House-passed civil rights bill before the Senate. His motion to bring the measure up officially is scheduled for a vote late tomorrow, with every indication that it will be carried.

By stepping into the civil rights fight, Knowland is identifying himself with an issue that comes home to the voters in politically vital sections of the country.

Knowland was in the position last year of trying to run for the nomination without any widely appealing issue behind him. His strength lay primarily with conservative Southern and Midwestern Republican delegations.

Now he has seized the leadership on an issue that is bound to bring his name to the attention of minority groups in New York, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois and California.

By his civil rights stand, he probably sacrificed the prospective convention support of Southern GOP delegates.

He would be gambling, however, on more than offsetting this in increased strength among Northern and Western delegations interested in having a candidate who would appeal to the possibly decisive minority vote in their states.

Body Discovered In Trunk Identified

NEW YORK (AP) — A bullet-pierced body found squeezed into a tiny tin trunk was identified last night as that of a onetime Philadelphian.

The murdered man's fingerprints led police to identify him as James F. Malloy, 53. They said he was fingerprinted when he applied for a job as a painter at the Philadelphia Navy Yard in 1942.

Malloy was believed to be living in Philadelphia as late as last October. But the trail from there to the death trunk remained in the shadows.

A detective was sent to Philadelphia in a hunt for clues.

Earlier, police reported that the man was shot three times with a .22-caliber weapon. They said he was "probably" still alive when jackknifed into the trunk.

The crime was discovered Saturday night when a clerk noticed an odor coming from a trunk on a Railway Express agency platform on Manhattan's West Side.

Police pried the trunk open and found the body.

A nationwide alarm was sent out for two unidentified men who delivered the trunk to the agency.

Police said the murderer operated with remarkable coolness. While the victim lay dying, the killer sealed the three bullet holes, the nose and the mouth with adhesive tape and bandages to block bleeding.

He lined the trunk with newspapers and plastic sheeting before cramming the body inside. Odor-erasing mothballs were also tossed in the trunk.

The body was clad only in silk shorts.

A medical examiner said Malloy had soft hands and apparently had done "no laborious work" recently. He had expensive dental capping of the kind favored by entertainers.

The trunk was marked for shipment to "Hal Jefferson, Hotel Ambassador, Los Angeles, Calif." But police said there was no such person at the hotel and no reservation for anyone by that name.

Police said the two men who delivered the trunk to the express agency were apparently unaware of the gruesome contents.

5 Persons Killed In Headon Crash

ROPESVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A near-headon collision near here last night crashed two cars into a tangle of wreckage and killed five persons.

Dead were Raymond Martin, 22, of Ropesville; Miguel Hernandez, 30, of Lubbock; Hernandez' two daughters, Aurelia, 5, and Rosa, 3, and his father-in-law, Federico Sepeda, 49.

Five others were injured, four critically.

Reported in critical condition were Mrs. Hernandez; Miguel Jr., 1; Pauline, 2; and Maria Hernandez, 6. Also injured was Danny Robinson, 16, of Ropesville.

Officers said Robinson and Martin were in one car and the Latin-American family in the other.

They said the cars crashed almost headon, apparently when one tried to make a left turn.

Extension Seen In Graham's Crusade

NEW YORK (AP) — Evangelist Billy Graham's New York crusade may be extended for two or three weeks beyond its scheduled closing date, next Saturday night.

Graham, who preached to a crowd of 19,200 at Madison Square Garden last night, announced that a decision on extension will be made later in the week.

This would be the second extension. When the crusade started May 15, the schedule called for a June 30 windup. Requests for a longer schedule were so numerous, crusade officials said, that a decision was reached June 3 to continue through the first three weeks of July.

Total attendance at the Madison Square Garden meetings has reached 1,036,700. Last night's 331 "decisions for Christ" raised the total to 32,593.

There was a roar of approval last night when Graham in a brief statement before the sermon said: "There is a possibility of our crusade being here for another two or three weeks. As far as I know now, the closing date is next Saturday. The Graham family had planned a vacation. However, I am ready to answer the call."

Graham was preceded by Roger Hull, chairman of the New York executive committee for the crusade. Hull asked the audience: "Would you like to support and have the meetings continue?" He asked that those who wanted an extension stand. Nearly everyone stood, and there were cries of approval.

Graham preached on the subject "Will God Spare America?"

He warned that God had not spared the people on earth at the time of Noah, nor the angels cast out of heaven. "And He will not spare you," Graham told his audience, "if you do not confess your sins and by faith accept him as savior and master. . . ."

Graham preached yesterday afternoon before a predominantly Negro audience at an open-air meeting in the yard of the Cornerstone Baptist Church in Brooklyn.

He said: "We need antisegregation legislation in this country but, unless it is supplemented by the love of God, it would be nothing but cold war."

Graham told the crowd of about 8,000 that the only real solution for racial, social and economic problems is "the love of God in the hearts of people."

More than 300 persons signed "decision for Christ" cards at the end of the Brooklyn meeting.

No Madison Square Garden meeting is scheduled tonight, in line with the Monday night rest periods for Graham.

Screaming Mother Attempts To Drop Baby Out Window

BINGHAMTON, N.Y. (AP) — A screaming mother dangled her 17-month-old daughter out of a fourth - floor window yesterday, then let go. A patrolman lunged forward and caught the child by one leg.

"It was a lucky grab," said Patrolman Larry W. Schanz after it was all over.

The mother, identified as Louise Pepper, 23, formerly of Sayre, Pa. was committed to Binghamton State Hospital for mental examination.

Sgt. Robert E. Forbes said he tackled the woman as she attempted to jump from the window herself, minutes after her baby was saved.

The child, Wanda, apparently was not injured.

Police said the incident started with an argument between the mother and a man she had been out with. They said the woman threatened to throw Wanda out of the window of her apartment unless the man left. He did, but the mother continued to dangle the child out of the window.

Has Inflation Become Automatic?

"Inflation is rapidly becoming automatic in America," the president of the United States Steel Corporation said in his annual report for last year. In token of his words, U.S. Steel not long ago jacked up the price of steel, which seemed further to bear out his observation that "product price increases are eventually reflected in cost-of-living Indexes (that index hike had dictated a substantial increase in labor costs) . . . this starts the process all over again."

It is not only a fact that we are in an inflationary period but that there is a growing feeling among American people that inflation not only is inevitable but, in mild and progressive doses is desirable.

This does not make the best of sense. Let us quote from R. I. Nowell, vice president and economist for the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States: "As individuals, our standard of living is determined by what we can buy with our pay check, and the size of the check itself. Price reductions can, therefore, raise our standard of living more surely than can increases in money incomes. As a nation our well-being is determined by what we produce and consume, not by the sum of our money incomes."

He ventures that the way to curb inflation is through more realistic and sterner monetary controls. One way would be through tightening of reserve requirements by the Federal Reserve Banks in order to stop the creation of new money (or credit) by commercial banks. Another, he suggests, is to buckle down to the business of making your money buy more goods simply by producing more goods. This can hardly be done by demanding more pay for less work. Mr. Nowell has a point that concerns everyone who saves a dollar or has an insurance policy.

Service Should Be Routine, Too

It's easy to tell the other fellow how to run his business, but when his is a public business the temptation is strong. More and more irritated citizens are coming to the belief that the postal department could do with some streamlining of its operations.

We've heard much about demands, for more money to operate the department, but little about efforts to improve techniques and get more for the money being spent. Private business has learned the lessons of efficiency. The firm which smooths out its operations and produces more in the way of service or goods is the one which gets ahead. Maybe the postal department needs more money. But an equal maybe is that it could do better with what it has.

For example . . . we've heard of several cases lately where it takes up to or above 36 hours to get delivery on a local letter. A very unhappy taxpayer was relating the story of an important business letter mailed at a sub-office in a neighboring city at 6:30 p.m. on a Monday. It made its way on schedule to the downtown office and was duly postmarked at 8:30 on the same day.

The addressee received it at 9:30 a.m. on Wednesday — 37 hours after it was postmarked.

A telephone call to the post office to see how come brought no cheer. During the vacation season such is likely to be "normal" service, the postal official said.

This is one of several cases which could be cited. Could be they are isolated cases, but they are no less annoying to the persons involved.

American business is built on the mail service. Business has come to assume that it will be reliable and prompt. When it isn't there's trouble all up and down the line.

The postal department's big money bill is still in the congressional mill, but some rate increases are already in effect. It costs a dime more now to mail a special delivery letter. If you insure a parcel post package the charge is up. A money order costs more than it did. These increases have been absorbed with only a minimum of complaints because the public is getting numb, price hikes have become the rule rather than the exception.

But the public is used to service. That, too, should be routine.

C'mon In—

Around The Rim

You Want A Good Stove, Furnish The Wood

The way to a man's heart, it has long been noised about, is through his stomach.

Not so, says a South American, who insists modern man is drawn to a woman through eye appeal.

Nowadays, the Latin contends, people don't eat, they gulp. Makes you feel as if you are dining with a flock of ostriches that could digest stones. The gourmet is extinct, contends he.

The wives, he adds, no longer practice the culinary art. Instead, they depend upon rouge, creams and powders to fight the good fight. In other words, the taste buds of the male animal are not as important to him in his efforts to find and hold a wife as his senses of sight and smell.

The modern idea then, as I get it, is that a man should maybe compromise a little bit. Let him develop an imagination about cuisine. Let him prop a magazine in front of him with all those beautifully colored ads about food — those delightful meat dishes, salads and pastries — while he's eating, and partake from a can. The same as everybody else.

If the wife mate is off visiting her mother and gets the idea the breadwinner isn't getting the proper diet, the postal service is ready to lend a helping hand. They put up soup in envelopes in this day and time and all she has to do is mail home a couple of packages.

Seriously, I think cooking methods have improved, the same as everything else. Man today is bigger than his father was and his grandfather before him and there must be a reason. Chances are he's even more adapt at spearing a biscuit on the other side of the table than were any of his ancestors.

I get the idea every now and then that food tasted better when it was cooked over an old wooden range. Quite probably, many women today would be willing to prepare their meals in such a way but who's going to carry in the wood?

Probably, if you had to do it, you'd develop such an appetite through exercise, anything would taste good, even if you had to cook it yourself.

When Molotov Was Top Banana

If, in the tradition of the condemned, the events of his life are marshaling in the mind's eye of Vyacheslav M. Molotov, he must count among his most glorious moments his two sojourns in San Francosco.

Newsmen who attended the formative meeting of the United Nations there in the bright spring of 1945 and the U. N.'s 10th anniversary meeting there in '55 remember Molotov as top banana on both occasions as far as the general public was concerned.

Molotov headed the Russian delegation each time, first under Stalin and then under Khrushchev. Wherever he appeared in '45 and again in '55, he was virtually mobbed by men, women and children curious to see what a real, live Russian commisar looks like.

If on either occasion Molotov or his advisers interpreted the mobs that greeted him every place as indications of (1) Molotov's personal popularity or (2) American sympathy with communism, they couldn't have been farther off the beam.

People came from miles around to see him and held up their children for a glimpse of him, just as they flock to see a two-headed calf at the county fair. Or for the same reason that they will mob the first passengers of a flying saucer from outer space.

In the past few days I have been going over the notes I took during those two U.N. gatherings in San Fdancisco. During Molotov's first experience in a rough-and-tumble American-style press conference in '45 the Old Bolshevik handled himself superbly, even with a soupcon of humor.

He answered tough questions on the Polish issue with aplomb, but he ended the conference abruptly and stalked off the rostrum when he interpreted a question, asked by a Broadway columnist, as making fun of him, V. M. Molotov. The offensive question was, "Is vodka pronounced 'vodka' or 'wodka'?"

He abruptly ended a tour of the great shipyards near San Francisco that were pouring out Liberty ships when, in answer to Molotov's question, a shipyard worker told the then Russian foreign minister that he earned $87.50.

"A month," Molotov said.

"Oh, no, sir, a week," said the worker.

Molotov, obviously furious, turned in his tracks, got in his car and headed back for San Francisco. No one could figure out whether Molotov thought the man was lying and pulling the Molotov leg or whether the Communist couldn't endure the stark disparity between wages in the so-called Workers' Paradise and in the United States.

In '45, his tough bodyguards were nicknamed the Molotov Meatballs, a unique group of thugs to friendly, curious Americans. I hated one who ruined a pair of pumps bought with by last shoe coupon (shades of World War II!). When I accidently encountered Molotov in an empty corridor of the Hotel St. Francis, the bodyguard—before I could step aside — hit me in the stomach with his elbow, pinned me against the wall anl planted a huge foot on my new shoes.

In '55, both Molotov and the Meatballs seemed a trifle more mellow toward the crowds that gathered to stare at a real live commisar.

Well, he is no longer a commisar. And as for being live, only time will tell. But I'd give a nickel to know if he ever thinks nostalgically of the days when he was top banana in San Francisco.

Soviet Pledges Won't Be Honored

WASHINGTON — A tell-tale paragraph in an impromptu speech just made by Boss Khrushchev exposes the entire game of fakery that the Communists have been playing at the disarmament table in London.

It's the banning of all nuclear bombs — both their testing and their use in war — which the Soviet Union really wants. Why? Because this would give the Soviet and Red China regimes, with their enormous manpower and the use of conventional weapons, a complete military mastery of the world. The West would, in effect, be disarmed.

Khrushchev showed his hand when he denounced President Eisenhower for saying at a recent press conference that a "clean" bomb, which would limit destruction to the military target and eliminate "fall out," was being perfected for the American government by its scientists. Speaking off-the-cuff during his tour of Czechoslovakia, Khrushchev said:

"Eisenhower is a man of principle and integrity but look what stupidities he says when he speaks of a clean hydrogen bomb. How can there be clean bombs for dirty things? Bombs mean wholesale annihilation of children and women."

For several years now, the Communists, through their press and with the cooperation of some naive persons in the scientific world, have agitated against the testing of nuclear weapons. The principal impetus to the crusade was given by a worldwide discussion of radioactive "fall out" and an exaggerated emphasis on possible damage to civilians everywhere. Because of this terror campaign, politicians in Britain and America urged a ban on all nuclear testing. Some have wanted it done by the West alone, and some have insisted that it be agreed to by the Communists simultaneously with the Western countries.

But coincident with it all there has been a persistent drive by the Communists to stir up worldwide feeling against any use of nuclear bombs in war. Most people didn't recognize the shrewdness of this military strategy but now, with the probability that "fall out" will be eliminated in what is known as a "clean" bomb, the bottom drops out of the Soviet argument about evil effects of "fall out" whether in tests or in the use of nuclear bombs in wartime.

A "clean" bomb means that the military installation or factory making strategic weapons for the enemy would be the target and that people in the surrounding area would not be harmed by "fall out." This is exactly what used to happen in war—a constant attempt to confine bombing to military areas.

The Soviet government, of course, would be given the secret of the "clean" bomb by the West, so that there would be no unfair advantage, but only if there was an agreement in advance to permit outside inspection so that the West would know if the Russians were continuing to produce what are known as "dirty" bombs.

Thus far, however, the Soviet envoys to the London Disarmament Conference have stood their ground — they will not even agree to a ban on all testing of bombs by both sides because the West insists that production of bombs must also be stopped and a foolproof method set up to ascertain whether the agreement is being fulfilled.

So it all comes down to this: The Communists want a mutual ban on testing but don't want to agree to stop production of nuclear bombs. The West is willing to stop the tests and also further production of bombs, if agreed to by both sides.

The Soviet reason for wanting an agreement to ban tests and the use of bombs in war is that they never intend to honor their pledges but know the West will. This gives the Soviets a military advantage on two counts — they will continue to manufacture nuclear bombs, and they will maintain large armies to overrun Europe or to intimidate the peoples of the Western countries and thus make easier the infiltration of parliamentary governments by Communists.

Back in the minds of the Soviet military strategists also is the knowledge that it is not altogether certain that political governments in Western Europe, when the chips are down, would allow their territory to be used by American forces as bases for the launching of H-bombs, knowing that this would invite retaliation.

Meanwhile, conventional armies, navies and air forces are being curtailed in the West for economic reasons while the Communists are protecting themselves not only with nuclear weapons but with non-nuclear weapons and larges armies as well.

Free-Wheeling Probes Are Over

WASHINGTON (AP)—The era of free-wheeling congressional investigations of communism apparently is at an end.

Twice in this century, each time after a world war, this country has gone through an emotional Red-hunting phase. The first petered out. The second was slowing down and the courts put a further brake on it.

Atty. Gen. A. Mitchell Palmer led the Red raids after World War I, when this country was worried about the spread of communism. That was also a period of anti-Negro, anti-Jewish, anti-Roman Catholic feeling.

Congressional committees resumed the Red hunting on a big scale after World War II. They got public support and added impetus through their disclosures that Communists, past or present or suspected, had gotten into the government.

The committees became increasingly free-wheeling: in the ground they covered, the questions they asked, and in their disregard for individuals and their rights to privacy, thought and association.

The Red-hunting began to recede after the Senate condemned some actions of the late Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis) although not specifically his tactics in Red-hunting. The censure motion was based largely on the way he treated senators.

Last month the Supreme Court said whoa to the committees. Taking his cue from this, Federal Dist. Judge Luther A. Youngdahl said the same thing last week.

The high court threw out the contempt of Congress conviction of John T. Watkins, who told the House Committee on Un-American Activities he had never been a Communist but, for a while, cooperated with Communists.

He talked freely about himself but balked at questions about people he knew who might have been Communists. Youngdahl threw out the same kind of conviction against Seymour Peck, New York newspaperman.

He told the Senate Internal Security subcommittee he once had been a Communist but he refused to discuss past associates.

Neither man claimed the protection of the Fifth Amendment against self-incrimination. Both relied on the First Amendment's protection of free speech, opinion and association. Boiled down, their position was this: the committees' questions about people they knew in the past were fishing expeditions, serving no public purpose.

Home Coming

STANTON, Ky. (AP)—Mrs. Callie Bowen, 69, found a way to lure her children home for more frequent visits.

She built a 5-acre lake on her farm, stocking it with bass. Then she built a cabin on the shore.

Now so many of her flock are returning home at vacation time she is planning to build another cabin.

'Beautician' Puts Feet In Eyes Of Four Famed Faces

RAPID CITY, S.D., July (AP)—As a beautician of sorts, Glenn T. Jones has probably the world's biggest face-lifting job every year.

Applying his own brand of skin cream, Jones has stuck his feet in the eyes of four of the nation's most famous faces.

The nimble National Park Service maintenance man has the job of giving yearly "facials" to the huge, stony figures of George Washington, Thomas Jefferson, Abraham Lincoln and Theodore Roosevelt on Mt. Rushmore in South Dakota's Black Hills.

Jones' job is to keep the famous granite memorial in repair-to keep the massive faces looking like a smooth, white, sculptured monument for the million tourists who view it every year from the other side of a valley.

His task takes on impressive proportions So huge is the Shrine of Democracy that Jones could take a short stroll on Roosevelt's mustache, stretch out for a nap on Jefferson's eyelid or play a precarious game of shuffleboard atop Washington's powdered wig. To wear such faces, a man would have to stand 465 feet tall.

South Dakota's variable weather plays havoc with the 60-foot faces that were carved in the side of Mt. Rushmore two decades ago by sculptor Gutzon Borglum.

Moisture freezes in cracks on the great countenances, opening fissures in the granite and paving the way for greater damage and erosion.

Heading a five-man crew that surveys Rushmore every spring, Jones holds the lone classification in the Park Service of "maintenance men — buildings, utilities — and sculptor."

He is one of the original rock drillers employed when Borglum undertook the Herculean task of turning a mountain into a statue. The work was finished seven months after Borglum's death in 1941.

Brokeshoulder has a strip of hair down the center of his scalp which he says, is traditional for the Apaches.

Influences Against Senate Filibuster

By THOMAS L. STOKES

(Writing for Marquis Childs, who is on vacation.

WASHINGTON—We are likely to overlook an important influence, psychologically and under the surface, in the ordeal in the Senate over civil rights legislation. This is the change of background and circumstances from a decade ago when Southern Democratic filibusters successfully held the line against civil rights bills.

In the years since then the United States has become the show window and the beacon light for freedom everywhere in the contest with Soviet Russia for the minds of men. Now, as not then—in fact, as not ever before — the civil rights drama will be played out in our Senate under a spotlight that will reveal it to the whole world. The actors will become conscious, as never before, that the whole world can see them. No longer can this be regarded as merely a domestic issue.

Incidentally, the day-by-day story of what goes on in the Senate on civil rights legislation is going out to all the world by way of the United States Information Agency's new service and the Voice of America. This broadcasting and transmission of news of our government by these two agencies is itself another development of recent years coincident with our assumption of the leadership of the free peoples of the world.

The recognition of our responsibility was evident among leaders of both parties in the Senate as this inciting issue became their problem. The Democratic party is more vulnerable because of its Southern wing and, therefore, the more sensitive. Especially on the spot is its Senate leader who is himself a Southerner, a Texan and, as well, an aspirant for his party's 1960 Presidential nomination. Senator Lyndon B. Johnson clearly sees and accepts the obligation of himself and his party in this crucial test.

Equally conscious of the international implications of the handling of this issue by the Senate are the two top Republican participants, Senator William F. Knowland, the Senate GOP leader, and Vice President Richard M. Nixon.

The latter discovered its importance for us in his tour in Africa, now the scene of the newest movement away from colonialism toward national independent identities. Both of the Californians are rivals, as we know, for the 1960 Republican Presidential nomination.

Southern Democrats are unlikely to find it suitable to stage a filibuster in the silly fashion that was condoned in less critical times of the past. That would seem out of place now.

Also, the responsibility of our world leadership, in which they are partners, seems sure to become a factor that will push them toward eventual acquiescence in the inevitability of civil rights legislation if, as now seems probable, they win some compromises.

Another factor, of course, which is most persuasive with their party leader, Senator Johnson, is the need to get this issue behind them so they can unite for next year's Congressional elections and the 1960 Presidential election.

The last long filibuster on a direct civil rights measure was the 18-day talkfest by which Southern Democratic Senators defeated a proposed Federal employment practices act in January-February, 1946. That was only a few months after the end of World War II and less than a year after Harry S. Truman took over the Presidency.

Two years later, in a special message to Congress, he recommended his famous civil rights legislative program based on the report of a special commission he had appointed soon after taking office. His program was far-reaching, including not only the three parts of the current Eisenhower program but seven other legislative recommendations.

Soon after his surprise 1948 election, President Truman reopened his drive for civil rights. To clear the way, he got his Senate leaders to try to amend Senate rules to prevent filibuster in February-March, 1949, which ended with an amendment to the rules making it even harder to break a filibuster. This amendment is still in effect today.

It was prior to that, in July, 1948, that Republicans encountered a filibuster when they tried in the 80th Republican Congress to pass an anti-poll tax amendment. That was abandoned after five days.

World's Longest Cemetery

NEW YORK (AP)—Things a columnist might never know if he didn't read his mail:

That the great wall of China, stretching 1,900 miles, is the world's longest cemetery. Built over 2,000 years ago, it is the last resting place of 200,000 workers who died during its construction.

That one American out of every five drinks an average od five cups of coffee daily. West Coast families drink the most, Southern families the least.

That because of its long tongue the bumblebee, largest of the bees, is the only insect that can pollinate clover. So, if you're in clover, bee thankful.

That the cheetah, the fastest animal on earth, has been clocked at 70 m.p.h.

That the porcupine's quill is actually a hollow hair. But try and tell that to anybody who has been stabbed by one!

That there are enough blood cells in the human race to carpet the surface of the entire world. The big problem of the 20th Century is to see that they aren't used for this purpose.

That an acre of bananas, according to the Cuban Tourist Development Board, can supply 44 times as much bulk food as an acre of potatoes. Incidentally, did you know that protein comes from a Greek word meaning "first"?

That there is a book out entitled "Things You Can Buy for a Nickel" Yep, it's a short book.

That in Persia it is believed human tears are good for certain chronic diseases. So mourners at funerals often are presented with sponges to soak up their tears. Afterward the sponges are collected, wrung out and the tears bottled.

Gives Russia The Bird

BISBEE, Ariz. (AP)—A local couple had little trouble locating their missing parakeet when they reported to the Bisbee Daily Review that the bird was easily recognizable by his voice. The parakeet, they said, had a habit of alighting on people's shoulders and saying: "Vive la France! To hell with the Russians."

MRS. WILLIAM ROY BATY

Sue Reid - W. R. Baty Repeat Wedding Vows

LAMESA — Wedding vows united in marriage Janie Sue Reid and William Roy Baty Sunday afternoon at two o'clock. The ceremony was read at the home of the bride's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Reid, 202 N. 21st St., Lamesa.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Reid of Route C. Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Baty of Route 1, Midland, are the parents of the bridegroom.

The Rev. J. Lloyd Mayhew, pastor of the First Methodist Church, read the single ring ceremony before a background of gladioli and greenery.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a princess dress of white bridal lace over satin. It was designed with a V neckline and fitted bodice which had cap sleeves. Seed pearls were embroidered on the bodice and full skirt. She wore a headpiece of lace and satin from which fell a veil of illusion. White carnations formed the bridal bouquet.

Eula Handley of Route D was the maid of honor. She wore a dress of pink lace over taffeta which was fashioned after the bride's. Her corsage was of white carnations.

Noyle Stone of Lamesa served as best man.

Following the exchange of vows a reception was held. Assisting with the serving were Linda Peterson and Alice Richey.

When the couple left on a wedding trip to New Mexico, the bride chose a blue embroidered cotton satin dress with white accessories.

Mrs. Baty attended Lamesa High School and her husband graduated from Dawson High School. When they return from their trip they will make a home in Midland.

CAMPUS CHATTER

By Mary Sue Hale

Final exams on Thursday and Friday marked the end of HCJC's first summer session for both day and evening students. With the half-way mark underfoot, students will register for the second six-weeks term today.

During the second summer session, for which classes will get underway on Tuesday, two instructors will be absent from the classrooms. Blanche Yarbrough and Ina Mae McCollom plan to take time out for relaxation before their fall classes start.

For Miss Yarbrough, the vacation site will be her Central Texas hometown, Carbon. There she will spend some time visiting with her father and getting rid of accumulated kinks.

The remainder of the summer will see Miss McCollom a bit farther away from Big Spring than Central Texas. Leaving about August 4, her destination will be Sharon, Pa., where she will relax as the guest of her brother. Miss McCollom plans to take several motor trips around her different and interesting surroundings, before returning to this climate.

The instructor scheduled to take over Miss McCollom's duties as teacher of government during this next session is Mr. Ben Pierson. Serving at the local high school as assistant principal and counsulor are his regular duties.

Miss Yarbrough's classes will be assumed by a regular summer instructor at HCJC, Mrs. A. M. Nunley. Mrs. Nunley teaches in the Garden City school system during regular school terms.

Johnny Johnson will again be on hand the second session to teach driver's education. Mr. Johnson, regular basketball coach at the high school, teaches two classes in the arts of driving. Under his instruction, a junior high school session will be scheduled at 1-3 p.m., and an adult course at 5:30-7:30 p.m.

Something new for September on the Jayhawk campus is a rescheduling of activity period. Set aside for the purpose of club meetings and assemblies, it was formerly a feature on Tuesdays and the 50 minute break will be granted three times weekly: Monday, Wednesday, and Friday, at 9:45-10:30 a.m.

Laverne Cooper and Sue White headed for Coleman on Friday afternoon to visit Max McCollogh. As a special surprise, Laverne took Max his newly arrived letter jacket. A letterman in both basketball and track, Max, along with other Hawk athletes, will be sporting an all-red wool and leather jacket.

Nancy Pinson, resident of Big Spring for a period just exceeding one year, will take up residence in Odessa along with her parents. Nancy, who attended the first summer session at HCJC, will be a junior student at the University of Texas this fall.

Entertainment different from the regular run of the mill stuff will be offered next Thursday and Friday evenings. Supplied by a group of local talent largely composed of HCJC and Webb AFB personnel, a bill of two one-act plays will be presented at 8:30 p.m. at the HCJC auditorium July 18 and 19. Casting for "Sorry, Wrong Number" and "The Game of Chess" is taken from a group which has had experience both on local and semi-professional levels. The director of the plays, Nick Trapatsas, formerly has been seen locally as an actor in a large number of productions.

First presented will be "The Game of Chess" by Kenneth Sawyer Goodman. Chief roles will be assumed by George Clark and Robert Corn, with John Lawrence as Costantine. The plot centers around a Russian governor who considers himself a matchless chess champion.

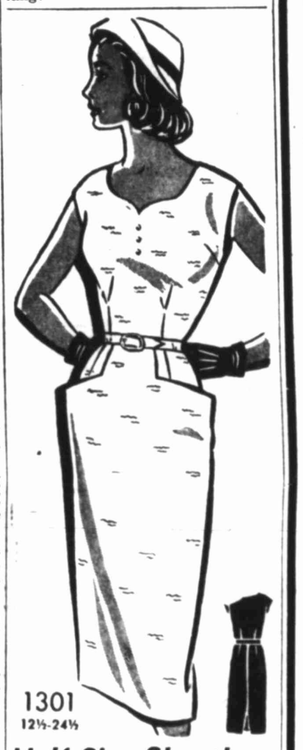

The neurotic and invalid roll of Mrs. Stevenson has been given to Billie Ruth Freeman for the play, "Sorry Wrong Number." Written by Lucille Fletcher, this second play was made into a movie several years ago. Much of the action takes place as the invalid used her telephone as an only contact with the outside world. Through this medium, she has overheard that she is to be the victim of a murder plot. Leading into a tale of suspense and terror, Mrs. Stevenson teaches via telephone the following characters: operator, Betty Cain; chief operator, Joyce Lankford; Jo Ann Watkins, hospital receptionist; George Kizachuk, telegraph messenger, and Charles Panagakis, Sgt. Duffy.

Another attraction of the production is entertainment between acts by the Cosden Chorus, under direction of Orland Johnson. Those of you familiar with the music of Sgt. Robert Martinez will be interested in knowing that he has worked out a special musical arrangement to establish the mood for "Sorry, Wrong Number."

Tickets, to be on sale at the door, may be purchased at 75 cents for adults and 50 cents for children.

Street Sealcoating Project Is Started Today On State

The city's annual sealcoating program got under way this morning on the four-block area on State from Third to Seventh.

Before the work is completed, however, the city will have covered about 60,000 square yards of streets. All the work should be accomplished this week, city officials reported.

From State, the crews will move to a stretch on Sycamore. During the time that the work is actually being done, the area is closed to traffic.

Sealcoating is a preservative process which helps keep moisture from seeping through the street and damaging the base. Each summer the city coats a section of city streets which in the eyes of the city maintenance chief and city engineer most urgently needs the coating.

About $6,000 is appropriated for the work this year.

In addition to the work on State, other areas slated for sealcoating are on First from Nolan to Benton; Bell from Third to Eighth; Eighth from Bell to Lancaster and Main to Johnson; Ninth from Lancaster to Gregg and Main to Johnson; Goliad from Third to Eighth; 15th from Austin to Owens; 16th from Goliad to Owens; Settles from Eleventh to 16th; Sycamore from State to Birdwell; and Wood from Victory to Birdwell.

Suicide Ruled In Teller's Death

RAYMONDVILLE, Tex. (AP)—A teller at the Raymondville State Bank, Clyde Meadows, 48, was found dead of a bullet wound in his home here yesterday. Peace Justice Ben Ottinger ruled suicide.

Bank Vice President H. G. Breedlove said Meadows' books had been "out of balance" Saturday but that the mistake was found this morning.

Breedlove said he had been at the bank with Meadows yesterday trying to find the mistake and had left to go to lunch about 12:45 p.m. Meadows was found dead in the bedroom of his home shortly after 1 p.m. His widow and parents were in the house at the time.

The bank official said Meadows "had been making quite a few teller's mistakes, maybe over one day and short the next. Saturday he was out of balance again."

Breedlove said, "The error he made Saturday, we found this morning... It didn't amount to much." He said there was no missing money.

Meadows had been working at the bank since January 1956. Breedlove said he was "very conscientious" about his work.

Mitchell Rites Held In Phoenix

Funeral services for Thomas Mitchell, 22-year-old son of Mrs. George R. Heckler, 100 E. 18th, who was shot to death Friday night in Phoenix, Ariz., were held at 3 p.m. Monday in Phoenix.

Mrs. Heckler was unable to attend the services.

Burial was in Phoenix.

Mitchell was slain when an uncle, Charles W. Hinson, 60, went berserk and started shooting in a house at Phoenix. In addition to Mitchell, Hinson's former wife was slain. A neice was wounded. Hinson then killed himself.

Mitchell is survived by his mother, his wife, Pearl; one sister who lives in Dallas, and his father, J. T. Mitchell, of Phoenix.

Mrs. Heckler is confined to her bed in a state of shock, her husband said, and was not able to make the trip to Phoenix.

The conference was requested by the CAA.

Bob Allen, CAA official, indicated that the conference was to provide the CAA with needed information on which that agent can determine its decision on financial participation in the county program.

help the 14 codefendants go free.

"I wouldn't mind going to jail for a year or two in order to get them off," he said.

To that, Dobbs retorted, "his very presence in court is prejudicial to us. That's why we wanted a separate trial for the 15."

Defense attorneys contend that segregationists in Tennessee and all over the South have been hurt by Kasper's actions.

A Sunday afernoon rally — or "preachin'" as Kasper described it—failed to throw any light on the dark - haired organizer's popularity, or lack of it in these parts.

MEETING BREAKS UP

About 15 automobiles showed up at a meadow on the farm of Joe Diehl, and Kasper called off the meeting. Rain had started to fall. He said threatening weather had "kept folks away."

But a man pressed a $20 bill into his hand. "Keep up the good work, John," he said. "This is from the white folks around here."

A grey-haired little lady then said, "I've been thinking about you every day, John, and praying for you. God's still on His throne."

A chorus of "amens" and "hallelujahs" came from the others.

"Well, thank yuh, ma'am," Kasper replied. He has acquired a reasonable facsimile of the Tennessee highland accent.

Then, despite the rain, he made some typically easy-flowing statements for the television cameras about his views of the trial, integration, etc.

He said he had spoken at a Ku Klux Klan meeting in Gaffney, S.C., Saturday night. For the cameras, he introduced Bill Hendrix of Clearwater, Fla., who identified himself as a member of the Imperial Council of the Southern and-Northern Knights.

While Kasper claims he is working closely with the Klan in his fight against integration, Hendrix seemed to indicate otherwise.

"We work with a lot of people," he said. "But we don't believe in riots or violence like some do."

Lindsey would not elaborate on the board's discussions except to say that "more than two board members" had been active in discussions of the cases of the two professors.

Informed of the board's action by the newspaper, Dr. Abernethy said, "I am completely surprised and flabbergasted. Are you sure this isn't a mistake? There has never been any criticism of the way I conduct my classes."

Dr. Greenberg said, "I am very surprised. I don't have the vaguest idea what it was based on."

Lyndon Lauds Debate On Civil Rights Issue

WASHINGTON (AP) — Democratis Leader Johnson of Texas told the Senate today the compromise proposals advanced since the civil rights debate began are "the reaction of thinking men who realize great issues must be met with reason instead of blind dogma."

Johnson described last week's debate as some of the "finest" in the Senate's history.

"When the debate began," he said, "there was widespread belief that the Senate was shackled and handcuffed. It was thought that we could do nothing but accept the bill without crossing a 'T' or dotting an 'I' or reject it altogether."

The Senate, he said, "has demonstrated that it is not in a strait jacket, but can act according to its convictions as to the course that serves the national interest."

Several of the compromise suggestions are aimed at eliminating or modifying the controversial Section 3 of the bill.

But Sen. Knowland (R-Calif) told reporters the administration would oppose striking out the section entirely.

Section 3 would permit the attorney general to obtain federal court injunctions against violations, or threatened violations of voting and other civil rights.

VOTING RIGHTS

Some senators have suggested limiting the authority under this section to protection of voting rights.

Sen. Ervin (D-NC) told reporters he thought there was a "good chance" the bill could be reduced "to what its supporters have been advertising it to be — namely a voting rights bill."

Knowland, a leader of the civil rights proponents, said he was not prepared to discuss any changes in the bill until the Senate votes tomorrow on his motion to make it the pending order of business.

Technically, the debate thus far has been on Knowland's motion. A vote on it is assured tomorrow, and even all-out foes of the bill concede the motion will carry.

The Senate has agreed to call the roll of those present at 4 p.m. tomorrow, and then allow not more than two hours debate before voting.

Johnson told the Senate it seems "very likely" the opposing sides will not take that much time after the roll call, and that a vote by 5 p.m. is possible.

Once this happens and the Senate turns to actual consideration of the bill and proposed amendments, proponents plan to jump into the debate. To date, in the interest of time, they have been largely content to leave the speech-making to Southern foes of the bill.

RIGHTS BOARD

The measure, passed by the House last month, would establish a six-member commission to study civil rights problems, and create a special civil rights division with the attorney general's office.

Persons accused of defying Section 3 injunctions could be convicted and jailed for contempt of court without a jury trial.

Still another section makes similar provisions specifically limited to voting rights.

Sen. Russell (D-Ga), leader of the Dixie forces, offered an amendment Saturday to rip out the whole of Section 3. He and other opponents contend that section is aimed at forcing racial integration in Southern schools and other public places with the use of federal troops if necessary.

Later in the day Sen. Mundt (R-SD) announced he would offer a substitute for the House-passed bill that would strike out Section 3 and provide for jury trials when issues of fact were involved in contempt cases growing out of the enforcement of voting rights.

Mundt said his substitute was designed as "a measure the Southerners can't vote for, but one with which they can live."

CURTAIN MEASURE

He said that it would curtail the powers of the proposed civil rights commission so that it could issue subpoenas only in cases involving voting rights.

Further encouragement for the Southern forces came from the disclosure by Sen. Anderson (D-NM) that he is drafting an amendment which, like Russell's, would erase Section 3 of the bill.

Anderson, at the start of the congressional session this year, led a futile fight to revise Senate rules to make it easier to break filibusters—the Southerners' ultimate weapon against civil rights measures.

But he said in an interview that he had become convinced that the bill passed by the House is "too stringent."

"I want the Negroes to vote and I believe that if Congress passes a bill guaranteeing them the right to vote, it will be respected," he said. If not, he said, Congress could toughen the law.

While Russell, Ervin and other Southern senators applauded these developments, Sen. Douglas (D-Ill) said he would "resist any amendment" of the bill. Also speaking out against any compromises were Senators Javits (R-NY) and Potter (R-Mich).

Yasmin Plays First Role, Is Called Success

GENEVA (AP)—Princess Yasmin, daughter of Prince Aly Khan and Hollywood's Rita Hayworth, played her first solo starring role today. She was a smashing success.

At the request of Ismaill Moslem leaders, the pert and pretty 7-year-old girl was formally presented to the feminine followers of her half-brother, Prince Karim, the new Aga Khan IV.

The ceremony took place on the restaurant terrace of a Geneva hotel. The Princess was dressed in a blue and white checked gingham dress with pink trimming. She wore a necklace of yellow plastic daisies.

She showed not a sign of shyness.

"A real trouper," said persons watching the ceremony. "She takes after her mother."

"Smile, smile," cried Aly's secretary, who arranged the ceremony. "Keep saying 'cheese.'"

Yasmin obeyed quietly.

At first she stood with the wives of the Ismaili leaders around her. Then a lawn chair was brought up for her to sit in.

Photographers wanted to have the little girl snapped in informal poses with some individual members of the 13-member group. But a spokesman explained this would ruin the local prestige of those women who were not included.

The good manners Princess Yasmin has learned in the United States were in evidence. As the women tried to show her humble signs of respect, she curtsied and solemnly offered her hand to each of them. This caused some confusion.

The new Aga stayed quietly in his hotel room during the day.

Bargaining For Highway Rights

Howard County Commissioners Court devoted most of its morning session Monday to bargaining with property owners who have land adjacent to U.S. Highway 80 and from which easements are needed for road improvement programs scheduled for that highway.

The easements must be obtained by July 20 and the commission is pushing to complete the work ahead of deadline.

The state proposes to build a series of underpasses and overpasses on the east segment of U. S. Highway 80. The right-of-way is needed for these projects.

Big Spring FHA Office To Close

The Big Spring FHA office will be closed all day tomorrow, July 16, according to an announcement by Fred Ross, county supervisor.

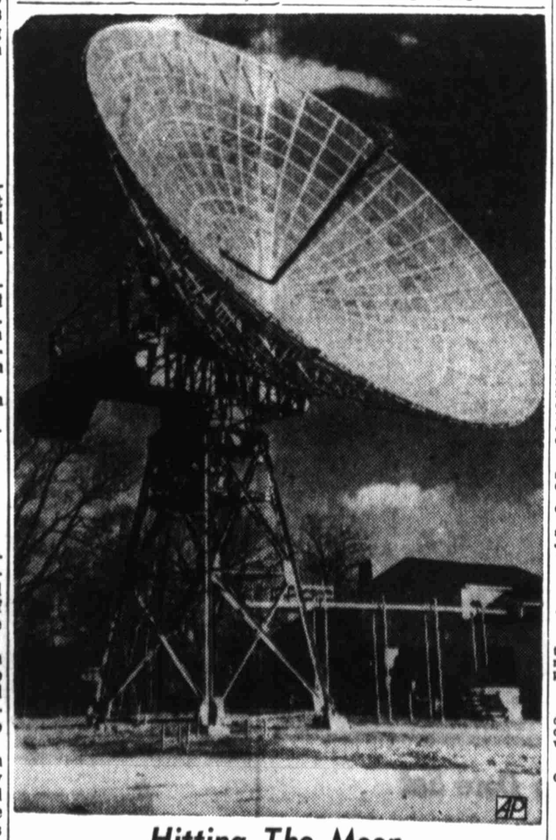

Ross and other county supervisors in this area will be attending a district meeting at the Settles Hotel in Big Spring.

Phillips Opens New Gulf Production

Phillips Petroleum Company has successfully tested an important new field exploratory well in the Gulf of Mexico which flowed at a rate of 672 barrels per day through a small choke. The well is on a full-interest 5,000-acre federal lease block in the Eugene Island area, 40 miles off St. Mary Parish, La., according to the announcement by K. S. Adams, chairman, and Paul Endacott, president.

The test of the well, the A-2 Shark, was from 40 feet of perforations in a 60-foot Miocene pay zone from 8,663-8,724 feet. The test indicated a gas-oil ratio of 700:1.

The well is three and one-half miles from where another company has established production on the northern flank of this dome. Further development of the Phillips Shark block is scheduled for the immediate future.

Mahon Greets Scout Group

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Nine Boy Scouts from Big Spring and their troop leaders Marshall V. Day and Ottis L. Bradford were among more than 500 West Texas Boy Scouts who arrived last week by special train in Washington for a day of sightseeing before the opening of the National Scout Jamboree at Valley Forge, Pa.

On hand to greet the boys at Union Station were Rep. and Mrs. George Mahon, Colorado City and Rep. J. T. Rutherford, Odessa.

Highlights of the special tour of the city included a visit to Mount Vernon George Washington's famed home 18 miles down the Potomac River from Washington, and stops at the Washington Monument, Jefferson Memorial, Lincoln Memorial and Arlington National Cemetery. The group also visited the capitol.

The Big Spring group, now encamped with 50,000 others at Valley Forge includes: Don Alexander, Ray Alexander, Curtis Baird, Tommy Burleson, Rufus Davis, Douglas Earnest, Clift Epps, Tommy Reed and Frank Tate Jr.

Water Usage Is Showing Big Gain

The prolonged heat wave here is showing its effect on the city' water consumption. For the first 14 days of the month, usage is some 19 million gallons above the same period of last year.

During the first 14 days of July, 1956, the city consumed 100,637,000 gallons, and for the same time of the current year, some 119,691,000 gallons were metered.

This latter figure included 8,483,000 gallons used Sunday. City officials estimated that 250,000,000 gallons of water would be used during July. This estimate was made in March.

Service Is 'No. 1' At Jones & Jones

When a motorist pulls into a service station, he expects one thing — service.

And he is assured of getting it when he stops under the Conoco sign at Jones and Jones Service station at 18th and Gregg.

Service is the No. 1 item for employes at Jones and Jones. With adequate gasoline pumps to handle a large volume of business, there is never a wait there.

A clean windshield, a dusted-out floorboard, an oil check, and aired tires, and battery check are just a few of the items that demand attention from the employes at Jones and Jones. These additional services are not done grudgingly but with a smile while the customer receives his gas.

And the volume of gas sold has nothing to do with the amount of service. A $1 customer receives the same, complete attention as does the motorist who needs a full tank.

Out from under the canopy, Jones and Jones has additional pumps for serving large trucks unable to get under the shed. The wash lubricant racks also have high ceilings for handling tall vehicles.

The same attention given gas customers goes to those motorists receiving wash and lubrication jobs. The out-of-way grease fittings are just in the regular line for their employes. The same is true of a wash job; there are no chunks of mud left in hard-to-reach corners when a car is washed at Jones and Jones.

This type of complete service is bringing more steady customers to Jones and Jones Conoco Service Station every day. And they welcome you as a customer.

Thomas Keeps Wide Stock Of Office Machines

The world's finest office equipment--typewriters, adding machines, cash registers, steel desks and posture chairs--are stocked and sold locally by the Thomas Typewriter and Office Supply, located at 107 Main Street.

The demand for the Royal typewriter continues great because manufacturers of the internationally known machine continue to outstride the field in making improvements.

With school looming just ahead, the demand for portable typewriters will, of course, pick up. Students find the Royal portable useful in all kinds of school work and handy to carry around.

The most popular Royal typewriter, of course, continues to be the standard model, which can be found in almost any modern office in almost any section of the country.

Many managers of business offices will not accept a substitute for the Royal unless, of course, the Royal make cannot be obtained.

Gaining increasing popularity in offices where the accent is on speed is the Royal electric, streamlined so that the user can keep pace with his assignments.

The famous Olivetti Printing Calculator 14 --which divides, multiplies, adds, subtracts and shows the credit balance -- is also sold locally by the Thomas Typewriter and Office Supply.

Imported from Europe, it was quick to make a reputation once it was put in use on this side of the Atlantic.

Features of the Olivetti include automatic multiplication, which increases the speed through a special short-cut method; automatic credit balance, which calculates with negative figures and eliminates repeat entries in a combined operation; two and three-cipher automatic keys; a repeat key and a non-print kkey, both operated electrically; and a keyboard lock, which prevents a wrong entry if keys are pressed incorrectly.

Creighton Tire Company Is City Dealer For Seiberling

Creighton Tire Company, 203 W. 3rd, has been selling puncture proof Seiberling tires for years and they are confident of their protection and lifetime balance.

Seiberling Sealed-Aire Tubeless tires have a bulkhead construction developed by Seiberling and are exclusively a Seiberling feature. This makes the Sealed-Aire the only bulkhead tire with lifetime puncture protection and lifetime balance.

If a nail goes through the Sealed-Aire, the gum clings closely to the nail, keeping the air in. When the nail is pulled out, the gum follows it out through the casing, filling the hold and sealing the puncture permanently.

Proof of this was given by dramatic tests performed on the Sealed-Aire tire at Daytona Beach and Silver Spring, Fla. It sealed punctures of torturous knives, piercing bullets, cougar-killing arrows, shark - killing underwater guns — all conditions which never would be encountered in a million miles of normal driving.

Heat vents are another exclusive Seiberling feature. This provides an escape route for internally generated heat, which "air-conditions" the tire. Seiberling Heat Vented tires are the coolest running tires made.

Another feature which is not available in most premium tires is the nylon breaker strip. This is an extra layer of nylon cord fabric under the tread and cushions the tire against shock and bruises.

The Seiberling Sealed-Aire can truly be said to be the tire that has everything! And the Creighton Tire Company is proud of its line of Seiberlings-- the tires that built for safety.

New assistant manager and host at the Wagon Wheel Restaurant, 803 E 3rd, is Jack Huddle, who holds a bachelor of science degree in foods and nutrition from Texas Tech.

Huddle planned to move his family from Lubbock to Big Spring today. Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Rainbolt, owners of the popular dining place, will continue as its managers.

Mr. and Mrs. Huddle have two daughters, Marla Jean, 6, and Jackie Lynn, 4.

"We chose Mr. Huddle for our staff in order to maintain our program of continuously improving service to our patrons in keeping with our reputation of serving the finest food in the Southwest," said Rainbolt. "We invite all our friends to come in and meet our new host."

Jack Goodwin, manager of the Settles and Crawford hotels here who came to Big Spring from Milwaukee, doesn't think Milwaukee will win the National League pennant.

Goodwin reasons the Braves didn't trade to their advantage during the winter months and says club owner Lou Perini won't shake up the club until the attendance starts falling off. It appears now the Braves will draw 2,000,000 fans at home for the fifth straight year.

Jack was employed by the hotel where a number of the players stayed and, of course, grew to know them personally.

The latest issue of Ring Magazine paints a "dream" fight for the world's heavyweight boxing championship between Floyd Patterson and Rocky Marciano and sees a seventh round knockout for Patterson.

The article, written by Johnny Salak, has the fight drawing a $10 million 'gate', including TV money.

Wishing may make it so, but I doubt if Marciano ever returns to the ring. He wasn't talking through his hat when he insisted a bad back would never let him.

Another ring note:

Willie Pep, who might have become a champion again had not he participated in a questionable bout with Lulu Perez, fights in Houston a week from Tuesday. His opponent will be Russ Tague who has beaten Perez, among others.

The Little League baseball program here has reached the point where it will either expand (with new parks) or wither on the vine.

Leaders are faced with the problem of finding space and funds for at least one new stadium. Two are actually needed.

Right now, three leagues in town are operating on skinned diamonds, without lights, fences or seats for the spectators.

If the plants are to come into being, the adults working with the program can't afford to wait until next spring to kick off their drive. They need to start immediately after play this year has come to a halt.

The former Big Spring hurler, Tommy Herrera, was named to play for the native-born all-stars in their annual baseball game with the foreign-born element in the Mexican League recently.

Herrera's team won the game, 8-7.

Hurricane Jackson, the heavy weight fisticuffer, received $2,500 for appearing on Steve Allen's TV show last night.

Lazlo Papp of Hungary recently turned pro after an amateur career as a amateur boxer. He fought over 300 bouts and didn't lose a half-dozen times. He's now 32 years of age.

As an amateur, he won Olympic championships in 1948, 1952 and 1956, a stretch of 12 years.

John Turner, president of the Big Spring Country Club, says interest in the club (and in golf) is higher than any time in history.

The members need to dig in now, if they are to stage a invitational tournament (which starts Aug. 30) as good as it was last year.

Phils Play 'Double Or Nothing' In NL

By JACK HAND
The Associated Press

The Phillies are trying for the National League jackpot by playing "double or nothing" with the rest of the league. By winning four double-headers in the last 10 days, the 50-1 shots of opening day now are only half a game off the pace.

Snapping a losing streak July 1, the Phils have won 11 of their last 13.

Curt Simmons and Jim Hearn handled the pitching yesterday as the usually light-hitting Phils hit five home runs and beat St. Louis twice 6-2 and 11-4. Von McDaniel, the 18-year-old $50,000 bonus baby, suffered his first major league defeat in the opener and Larry Jackson, the Cards' top winner, lost the second.

Brooklyn dropped Milwaukee to third place, one game behind St. Louis, when Gil Hodges hit a two-run homer in the ninth for a 3-2 victory after successive doubles by Frank Torre and Andy Pafko had given the Braves a tie-breaking run in the top of the ninth.

Cincinnati snapped its seven-game losing streak, slugging Pittsburgh twice 9-6 and 12-4. New York outlasted Chicago 8-6 in 12 innings, winning on Willie Mays' two-run homer after Whitey Lockman's second home run of the day had tied the game in the ninth.

Just when the American League appeared on the verge of becoming a race once more, the New York Yankees turned on a six-run rally to get an even break in Chicago.

The Yanks bounced back from a 4-0 deficit to a 6-4 second-game victory on a grand slam homer by pinch hitter Bill Skowron. Billy Pierce's fine five-hit pitching had won the first for Chicago 3-1.

Despite two home runs by Ted Williams, who displaced the Yanks Mickey Mantle as the American League leader with 25, the Boston Red Sox lost two to Cleveland. Joe Altobelli's sacrifice fly with the bases loaded won the first for Bob Lemon 3-2 and the Indians clobbered Boston pitching for 20 hits to take the second 17-4 for Stan Pitula.

Detroit prepared for the Yanks' visit by knocking off Baltimore twice 10-2 and 7-6 in 10 innings. Billy Hoeft hit two homers and pitched a seven-hitter in the first game and the second was won by Red Wilson's single after a damaging error by Jim Brideweser, Baltimore shortstop.

Kansas City split a double with Washington in 100-degree heat. Julio Becquer's timely hitting helped Washington take the opener 4-1 for Camilo Pascual but the A's cut loose with a 17-hit barrage, including two homers by Irv Noren, in an 11-3 second-game romp.

The Phillies showed little respect for McDaniel, raking him for five runs and five hits before he left for a pinch hitter after four innings. Rip Repulski turned on his old Card mates with a three-run homer in the first inning. Ed Bouchee also homered for the Phils.

Back-to-back home runs by Joe Lonnett and Chico Fernandez and Bouchee's second of the day were key blows in the second game.

Brooklyn and Milwaukee played it close to the vest at 1-1 from the first inning until the ninth, when Pafko drove in a run with a double. After Gino Cimoli walked to open the ninth, Hodges hit Bob Buhl's first pitch into the left field stands. Red Schoendienst accounted for Milwaukee's first run with a homer.

Cincinnati came from behind with six runs on eight singles in the seventh inning of the opener, winning for Hersh Freeman in relief. Ted Kluszewski hit two homers and Smokey Burgess had one among the 19 hits in the second game, in which Joe Nuxhall went all the way.

The Giants-Cubs struggle included six homers with two for Lockman and one each for Bobby Thomson and Mays of the Giants and Dale Long and Bob Speake for the Cubs.

The Yanks erupted at Comiskey Park after being shut out with five hits by Dick Donovan for eight innings. Three singles brought one run. With one out, Skowron ripped into a pitch by relief man Jim Wilson for a grand slam. Tommy Byrne, Yankee winner, followed with another homer. Pierce retired the last 16 Yanks in order, winning his 13th in the opener.

NEXT WEEKEND

Local Girls Will Play At Abilene

Billie Clyburn's Big Spring girls' tennis team, fresh from an invasion of San Antonio and the State JayCee Junior tournament, will take part in the Abilene Open tournament next weekend.

The tourney is sponsored by the Abilene City Recreational Department and is sanctioned by the Texas Tennis Association and the USTA. All Big Spring players are duly registered with the Texas Tennis Association.

Play will take place on the Hardin-Simmons University courts and the local girls will be quartered in dormitories there.

Nita Beth Farquhar, "18 and under" singles champion in two recent tournaments, will not be able to make the trip. Her sister, Eileen, is entered in the "13 and under" division, however.

Lynn Wood of Big Spring is also entered in that division and will team with Eileen in doubles. Play is scheduled for July 18-21.

In matches at San Antonio last week, the local girls fared thusly:

Nita Farquhar lost her first match to Mary Sue Kuenstler, Alice, 8-6, 6-3.

Joan Bratcher won her first match in the "15 and under" division from Barbara Linn, McAllen, 6-1, 6-1; then lost to Marilyn Hoover, Corpus Christi, 1-6, 6-1, 6-1.

Bratcher and Shirley Killough drew top-seeded Marcia Durgin and Jane Carroll, both of Houston, in the first round and lost, 6-3, 6-0.

Betty Ellison and Layla Glaser drew a first round bye and did not play until 3 o'clock Friday. They defeated Susan Wiggins and Carol Caton, Kerrville, 6-3, 6-0. In Saturday's semi-finals, they were ousted by Johanna Hill and Paula Thomas, the tournament winner from Fort Worth, 6-2, 6-3.

Quaker City Team Is One Of Biggest Surprises

By RALPH BERNSTEIN

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Last spring the experts were saying the Philadelphia Phillies would be lucky to finish fifth.

Now the season is rounding the turn for the run into the stretch. And who is in second place, half a game from the crest?

The Phillies!

How this team of shreds and patches got there is one of the major surprises of the year in sports.

Manager Mayo Smith frankly says he doesn't know.

General Manager Roy Hamey, tongue in cheek, says: "I like to believe that we'll keep it up." But he's making no predictions.

As for the players, they say they simply live in the present and keep hustling.

Take a look at this club, which by tonight could be in first place. Not a .300 hitter in the starting lineup. In fact, not even a .290 pozer man.

The Phils' hitherto star pitcher, Robin Roberts, is having the worst season of his career, the club's losingest pitcher— and unaccountably so.

How then are they doing it?

Perhaps yesterday's double-header victory over the league-leading St. Louis Cardinals supplies some of the answers.

The Phillies, in winning their fourth straight double-header, got 17 runs in all, on 19 hits. That's getting the most out of your attack. Again and again, that's what happens. Not long ago the Phils got only one hit off Milwaukee's Lew Burdette and beat him 1-0.

What's more, the club has been getting milage out of a couple of veteran pitchers other teams gave up on. Pitcher-poor Cincinnati asked waivers on Warren Hacker. The Phils grabbed him. Hacker saved a couple of games in relief, then won two starting assignments one against Brooklyn.

Jim Hearn was bought from the New York Giants. He has won four and lost one and been a strong arm in relief. He won yesterday's second game 11-4.

A real tonic is pitcher Jack Sanford, rookie sensation who has won 11 games.

Paper States Bums To Stay

NEW YORK (AP) — The Dodgers are going to get their new stadium in Flatbush and remain in Brooklyn, the World-Telegram and Sun said it learned today.

The paper said the Brooklyn Sports Authority will urge at the Board of Estimate's July 25 meeting that immediate approval be given the ball park project.

The BSA is a three-man body, headed by Charles J. Mylod, concerned specifically with a stadium to be built in the Flatbush and Atlantic Aves. site, where the Dodgers would like to build their new park.

Mayor Robert F. Wanger shortly will have the engineers' report that it would be practical, from the city's standpoint, to make the desired site available for stadium purposes, the paper said.

Bespectacled

Catcher Yogi Berra awaits a pitch during batting practice prior to the New York-Kansas City game at Municipal Stadium, Kansas City. The Yankee receiver used glasses for the first time in his baseball career. Berra said the specs are primarily for television watching, but he may use them while batting only in an attempt to boost his slumping average this season.

Ballarin And Calhoun Meet In Syracuse Friday Night

By The Associated Press

France's Germinal Ballarin, who didn't get a chance to show more than his luxuriant mustache in his successful U.S. debut July 1, is certain to be put to the test Friday night when he bumps into husky, aggressive Rory Calhoun in the Syracuse N. Y. War Memorial Auditorium. Calhoun is favored.

The 27-year-old Frenchman, holder of a decision over former welterweight king Kid Gavilan, outpointed rotund Bob Provizzi at New York's St. Nicholas Arena two weeks ago. Provizzi, did more running and sidestepping than anything else. It took Ballarin, a willing workman, half the fight to catch up to his opponent.

Ballarin won't have to go looking for Calhoun. The 22-year-old White Plains, N.Y., middleweight contender, usually charges out swinging. Calhoun's last fight was a slambang 10-round draw in the same War Memorial Auditorium with Joey Giambra. Rory's record is 27-2-1, including 15 kayos. Ballarin's record is 43-6-4, including 23 knockouts.

The 10-rounder will be broadcast and telecast over NBC, 9 p.m. EST, coast-to-coast.

Joey Giardello, another middleweight contender, is the big choice to whip game Chico Vejar, the actor-fighter from Stamford, Conn., in the Wednesday night television over ABC at 9 p.m. EST, at the Louisville, Ky., Fair Grounds.

Unbeaten in his last 10 fights, Giardello, 27, Philadelphia, has a 70-13-5 record with 27 kayos. Vejar's record is 73-10-2, including 34 kayos.

Tommy Salem of Cleveland and Frankie Ippolito, a couple of lightweights seeking to get back in the winning column, clash in the Monday night television (DuMont 9:30 p.m. EST) feature at New York's St. Nicholas Arena. Salem's record is 22-8-1, Ippolito's 19-5-1.

Bartzen Crushed In Net Finals

MILWAUKEE (AP)—For the first time in the 50-year history of the event Vic Seixas yesterday retired the men's singles cup of the Western Open Tennis Tournament by crushing Texan Tut Bartzen for the 1957 championship.

Seixas, the nation's third ranking player, overcame a slow start and never permitted his opponent to get his game working. Bartzen, of Dallas, battled in the first set as Seixas won 7-5, but then couldn't keep pace as the Philadelphian quickly closed out the match 6-2, 6-2.

The women's singles championship went to Karol Fageros of Miami, Fla., who had an easy time of it as she defeated Lois Felix of Meriden, Conn., 6-3, 6-2. Miss Felix, third-seeded, gained the finals with an upset victory over top-seeded Darlene Hard of Montebello, Calif., in Saturday's semifinals.

Qualifying Starts

OMAHA (AP)—Qualifying rounds were scheduled today to determine the flights for the 57th Women's Western Amateur Golf Tournament, oldest tournament for women in the nation.

Tulsa Oilers Reach First Division In Texas Loop

By The Associated Press

Two weeks ago Tulsa was skidding toward the Texas League cellar with only hapless Shreveport and Oklahoma City barring the way.

Then the Oilers got going. Monday they were in the first division after winning nine of 13 games, the last four in a row.

They're not threatening leading Dallas and second place Houston but they've won more games in the last two weeks than third place San Antonio and are just two games back of the Missions.

Sunday Tulsa walloped Shreveport 10-3 to pull into fourth place. Austin trimmed Fort Worth 3-1 and it dropped the latter out of the first division.

Dallas lost to San Antonio in the second of a double-header, 2-0, but had whipped the Missions 7-2 in the first game.

Houston edged Oklahoma City 2-1 in 11 innings to gain a half game on Dallas but the Buffs still are nine games back.

Manager Al Widmar worked a six-hitter as Tulsa whipped Shreveport before a Sunday crowd of only 309. The Oilers shoved five runs across in the first inning and never had any trouble although Jim Ackeret and Bill Parsons each hit a solo homer off Widmar. Jack Lundquist and Dick Ditusa returned the compliment for Tulsa.

Tommy Bowers posted his thirteenth victory in pitching Dallas to victory in the first game. The Eagles pounded 13, including four apiece by Wilcy Moore and Lee Tate.

Dick Luebke twirled a seven-hitter in bringing San Antonio triumph in the nightcap. Neil Roberts pitched four-hit ball but one was Mike Lutz' homer and that was enough for the Missions to win although they already had a run in the second inning on Tom Patton's double.

Austin's Mike Lemish allowed only four Fort Worth hits and just one batter got past first base. That was Marty Devlin, who tripled in the first inning, and was sacrificed home.

Arnold Earley walked Harry Keister with the bases full in the eleventh inning and that was the payoff run in Houston's victory over Oklahoma City. Ted Wieand, who went all the way for Houston, pitched eight-hit ball.

Big Spring To Host Area Meet Starting July 29

Big Spring will play host to a Little League area tournament July 29-30-31, one of four within District 2 scheduled at that time.

Champions of each area will be eligible to compete in the district meet at Snyder Aug. 1-2 while the titlist there will enter the sectional meet at Abilene starting Aug. 5.

Last year, Big Spring played host to the district tournament.

Five teams, including two of Big Spring and two of Andrews, will compete for the area championship here. Oddly enough, the luck of the draw will send the two Andrews teams against each other in the only first round game here. The three Big Spring contingents drew first round byes.

All-star contingents of the Andrews Little League and the Andrews National League vie here at 7:30 p.m. July 29. Big Spring American and Big Spring Texas teams clash in a second round game at 5:30 p.m. July 30. The Big Spring Nationals oppose the winners of the Andrews game at 7:30 p.m. July 30 while the title game goes on the evening of July 21.

Officials of 21 teams comprising District 2 met at the Chamber of Commerce offices here Sunday afternoon and worked out details for area and district play. E. N. Patton of Rotan was re-elected district commissioner.

Midland will host one of the area meets. All five leagues in that city will enter clubs. Teams from Lamesa, Jayton, Tahoka and Seagraves will compete in another area meet at Lamesa while Sweetwater will play host to still another area tourney, hosting teams from Rotan, Snyder and Colorado City, as well as its own all-stars.

Area commissioners and tournament directors named at Sunday's parley here included John J. Redfern, Midland; J. T. Bartley, Tahoka; Roy Bennett, Big Spring; and Jack Geer, Sweetwater.

The district has almost doubled in number of teams since 1956.

STARTING TONIGHT

All 12 Teams Play For City Crown

In an arrangement unprecedented here, all 12 teams in the city's three major Little Leagues will open competition in the city championships here this evening.

Heretofore, only champions of the three circuits have been able to take part in the playoffs but Little League officials decided yesterday that all clubs, regardless of their stations in their respective leagues, should be allowed to take part.

This is the earlier date in history for the playoffs to start, too. In other years, the city title is not decided until after the area and district playoffs. Regular season play ended last Saturday night.

First round pairings:

Piggly - Wiggly Pigs (AL) vs Flicks (AL), 6:30 p.m., Monday; Amana Lions (TL) vs Cubs (AL), 8 p.m., Monday; Reed Oil (TL) vs Owls (NL), 6 p.m., Tuesday; Local 826 (TL) vs VFW (NL), 8 p.m., Tuesday; Yankees (NL) vs Cosden (TL), 6 p.m., Wednesday; Cabot Carbon (AL) vs Gold Sox (NL), 8 p.m., Wednesday.

Second round play will take place Thursday night, semi-finals Friday while championship finals are scheduled for 8 p.m. Saturday.

Cabot Carbon is the defending champion, having unseated the Yankees for the first time last year.

The Yankees, Cabot Carbon and Local 826 led their respective leagues in regular season competition this year.

Perini Wants To Assure New York NL Franchise

BROOKLYN (AP) — Lou Perini, owner of the Milwaukee Braves, said today he planned to institute legislation to assure the National League a franchise in New York if and when the Dodgers and Giants make good their threat to transfer their franchises to the West Coast.

Perini, who started the ball rolling by taking his Braves out of Boston four years ago, said he sympathized with the Dodgers' plight in Brooklyn and predicted the National League would be 100 per cent behind Walter O'Malley if the Dodgers' president decided to go it alone in California.

"I agree with Walter that he cannot live here any longer unless something is done about a new ball park," Perini said. "Mind you, I have no idea what's going to happen. But should Horace Stoneham decide to keep his Giants in New York, I'm certain the league would grant O'Malley permission to take his Dodgers to Los Angeles.

"We can't be selfish about this. O'Malley knows the Brooklyn situation better than anybody else. If he thinks it's best for his club and for the league to move to Los Angeles, then we should support him all the way even if it means an extra $25,000 in expenses for each of the visiting clubs."

Asked whether he favored the idea of abandoning New York, Perini unhesitatingly replied: "No, not at all.

"I think it would be a mistake to abandon New York and I intend to institute legislation to prevent it. It's inconceivable that our league would even think about such a thing. Before we make any kind of move regarding shifting of franchises, it must be ascertained that the New York territory remains an open city for the National League."

Snider Gulf Splits Pair

LAMESA (SC) — Snider Gulf of Big Spring and the Patricia Gin team of Lamesa halved a softball doubleheader here Saturday night, the Big Springers bouncing back to win the second engagement, 10-7, after dropping the first, 6-5.

Cotton Mize survived a shaky last inning to notch the mound win in the second go for Big Spring.

A five-run outburst in the third sewed up the first decision for the Patricia team. In that one, Monty Griffin clubbed a triple and a single for Lamesa.

Marvin Healy drove out a home run his first time at bat in the first game for Snider Gulf.

Searchers Win Over Rockets

A four-run outburst in the ninth inning enabled the Searchers to topple the Rockets, 10-9, again here Sunday afternoon in a battle involving local sandlot baseball nines.

Bobby McAdams opened the inning by singling. R. Newell was hit by a pitched ball. David Read fanned. Ben McCrary sacrificed the runners along and Truett Newell singled to plate two runs. B. Battle then doubled off the wall for what proved to be the winning runs.

Battle clubbed a home run, double and single for the winners. McAdams drove out two hits in four tries.

R. Newell was the winning hurler. He relieved LeRoy LeFevre in the fourth. LeFevre fanned five, walked four and gave up six hits. Newell struck out two, walked one and granted three hits.

Althea Gibson Is After Clay Crown

CHICAGO (AP)—Althea Gibson of New York City, the newly crowned Wimbledon champion, seeks her first major U.S. tennis title when the National Clay Courts Tournament opens today.

Whetzle Winner

KILGORE, Tex. (AP) — Dallas' Dick Whetzle walked off with the Kilgore Invitational Golf Tournament championship yesterday, firing a 3 and 2 victory over Sherman's Miller Barber.

How would you explain it to a child?

What do you tell him after the crash—"Daddy isn't coming home any more"? Does that explain even one death . . . let alone 40,000 in traffic accidents last year?

BACK THE ATTACK ON TRAFFIC ACCIDENTS

Here's how you can help:

1. Drive safely, courteously yourself. Observe speed limits, warning signs. Where traffic laws are obeyed, deaths go DOWN!
2. Insist on strict enforcement of all traffic laws. They work for you, not against you. Where traffic laws are strictly enforced, deaths go DOWN!

Can You use it?

Man, when you've just got to have $480 to meet some unexpected expense, like hospital or dental or a car overhaul or something it can look like $480,000, can't it? But wait, now. Just get on your bicycle and get yourself down here, and let US consolidate those bills. We know all about your kind of troubles—we see 'em all day long. And LOOK: $24.85 is not a lot of money, is it? Well, $24.85 repays that $480 S.I.C. loan (24 months) — of course, subject to usual credit regulations. Ike At Secret Headquarters

President Eisenhower leaves his new helicopter at a secret command headquarters after a flight from the White House grounds in Washington. Seated at the helicopter controls is Maj. Joseph Barrett, the pilot. The President landed in a clearing hacked out of dense forest as part of Operation Alert, a mock H-bomb attack on the U.S.

Ike Takes Over Command Of Practice Alert Recovery Phase

NEWSPOINT, Operation Alert, (AP)—President Eisenhower takes nominal command of Operation Alert 1957 today as the mock-serious game of H-bomb war enters its final phase—recovery from catastrophe.

The President, after a weekend of relaxation with his family at his Gettysburg, Pa., farm, travels by helicopter to the secret "command post" within 200 miles of Washington.

There he assumes control of a government theoretically struggling to bring order out of the simulated chaos resulting from Friday's saturation "nuclear attack" on 155 target cities in the United States and its possessions.

The command post is the secret relocation center from which top officials of the Office of Defense Mobilization and the Federal Civil Defense Administration have been supervising the tests.

In the calendar of Operation Alert, today was July 27—fifteen days after the hypothetical attack. The problem: How does a government-in-hiding apply freezes and controls on a war-staggered economy?

OTHER CENTERS

More than 5,000 government workers in 30 agencies who normally report to offices in Washington transferred their activities instead to about 80 relocation centers, starting a week of the kind of work they would face if the attack had been real.

It was a day in which civil defense officials hoped to discover the full extent of their success in coping with the simulated devastation wreaked by the "bombs" and the supposed aftermath of radioactive fallout.

They said today their surveys indicated that "the nation had suffered no knockout blow" in Friday's massive make-believe assault.

As the last phase of the dress rehearsal for disaster began, officials said there were "definite signs that emergency actions taken by the civil defense system and the relocated agencies of government" were, little by little, succeeding.

Simulated efforts to provide housing, communications, transport and health safeguards for the tens of millions of citizens in the supposed "target areas" were being pushed "with mounting intensity."

But for uncounted other millions of Americans, anything the government could do would have been too late. More than 95 million reside in the "target areas" theoretically attacked. And the civil defense estimated only about 41 million were successfully "evacuated" from these areas and regions where the imagined fallout was serious.

OTHERS 'KILLED"

Presumably the other 54 million were considered killed or pinned down in bomb shelters by fallout.

Only after a full assessment of the situation today—perhaps not for weeks or months to come—can test officials say with any certainty whether enough of the nation "survived" for the United States to fight back effectively.

It was not until yesterday that enough data became available to get a final total on the hypothetical raid: 166 H-bombs dropped on 155 targets, instead of 175 bombs on 162 targets, as originally had been reported by officials.

FCDA officials sized up the imaginary devastation from the Friday attack as "catastrophic in the Far East . . . to critical in the crippled but still fighting Northeast."

The FCDA said the "lightest burden" of the make-believe assault was felt in the Gulf states, where nine bombs were theoretically dropped.

Little Chance For Cooling In Texas

The Associated Press

A few scattered thundershowers were about all Texas could expect in the way of cooling Monday.

Clear to partly cloudy skies with scattered showers and the same old temperatures—hot—were forecast.

Predawn temperatures Monday were mostly in the 70s, ranging from 82 degrees at Galveston to 68 at Salt Flat. Lufkin had a little ground fog.

Corpus Christi and the Big Bend country had some rainfall Sunday. Alpine reported .04 of an inch, the only official rainfall.

Highs Sunday ranged from Presidio's 108 to 89 at Corpus Christi.

Thunderstorms with no rain were reported at El Paso and near Sherman.

Widely scattered showers were in prospect for most of the country today.

Fair and cooler weather was indicated in most of the northeastern section and in areas west of the Rockies. But showers and isolated thunderstorms were forecast for other parts of the country.

Rainfall during the night was light in most regions, with some locally heavy downpours. Thunderstorms which developed yesterday afternoon continued during the night from the eastern Rockies through many sections to the Atlantic Coast. Amounts measured nearly 2 inches at Baton Rouge, La., and more than an inch at Minneapolis and Elizabeth City, N. C.

Hail and strong winds hit Sydney and Chadron, Neb., and hail pelted the Charleston, S. C., area. Severe thunderstorms struck sections of western and central North Dakota, and parts of South Dakota and Nebraska.

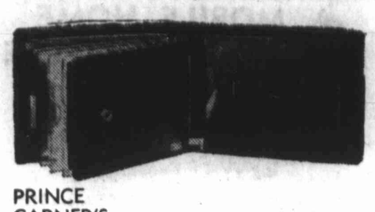

Floods threatened some areas in downstate Illinois and Chicago suburbs today in the wake of torrential rains over the weekend.

The heavy rains which struck the Chicago area Friday night and Saturday morning and spread into central and south central sections of the state sent many streams to near flood stage.

The Illinois River was at flood stage at Ottawa, a city of 19,000 some 85 miles southwest of Chicago where the flow was backed up by a 600-foot dam. Starved Rock State Park on the bank of the Illinois River was ordered closed.

Cigarettes Not Only Target For Probe

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Blatnik (D-Minn) said today his House Government Operations subcommittee won't stop at cigarettes in its inquiry into what he termed misleading advertisements.

Medical supplies, furniture and clothing ads are likely to be targets of later investigation, Blatnik said, after the completion of hearings starting Thursday on filter cigarettes.

Claims for pills that are supposed to make reducing easy by cutting hunger, claims for tranquilizer or "happiness" pills, and markdowns on products from "list prices" that never existed were listed among items under scrutiny by the House investigators.

No date for hearings on these subjects was fixed as the subcommittee concentrated its attention on the cigarette issue.

In announcing Saturday plans for the cigarette hearing, Blatnik said the American public is spending an extra half million dollars a day for filter-tipped cigarettes, with cigarette advertisers having "emphasized the superiority and effectiveness of their particular filter."

But some reports the subcommittee has show many filters provide little or no protection by way of stopping nicotine or tar, he said.

The stated aim of the House investigation is to see what federal agencies have done to protect the public by way of enforcement against false and misleading advertising.

Blatnik said reports show that three years ago cigarette filters were "effective."

"Now we've come to the point where a king-size cigarette with filter has less tobacco in it than the original regular cigarette but the amount of tar coming through is almost as much and in some cases more," he said. "They're juicing up the tobacco, and using stronger and cheaper grades."

The Minnesota congressman said the subcommittee would not try to determine any relationship between cigarette smoking and cancer, the subject of many other studies.

As for himself, he said, "I smoke regular king-sized cigarettes"—without filters.
