The building has been rearranged inside, and the booths somewhat changed in order to take care of the entries which are to arrive during the week. More community exhibits have been registered than formerly. A tea room is an addition to the woman's department. Light lunches and sandwiches will be served there.

"Free Kansas Of Klan," White Says

By The Associated Press.

TOPEKA, Kans., Sept. 20.—Making his slogan "free Kansas from the ku klux klan," William Allen White in a statement issued today in connection with the filing of his independent candidacy for governor, declared "I am in race to stay and win."

"The issue in Kansas this year is the klan above everything," the veteran Emporia editor asserted.

He attacked Ben S. Paulen and Jonathan M. Davis, the republican and the democratic gubernatorial nominees, respectively, charging that the two major parties in the state are "led in the race for governor by men who had klan support in the primary and who will not disavow that support today."

Mrs. Adams was disappointed when she learned that her father was in Indiana. There was no one at the pier to meet her.

Spring Tests On Car Lead Kids to Cell

A concrete floor in a steel-walled cell held forth few attractions late yesterday afternoon for seven high school boys who, under the displeasure of John Law, were locked up for "disturbing the peace," at the ball park. Mournful lamentations were their only diversions for a few hours as they ruefully contemplated two nights and a day "inside looking out."

Some one on the outside observed that no court session was held on Sunday and that they'd have to stay in until their cases could be laid before the judge.

They were arrested after they had boarded a number of autos at the Wichita-Devol high school game and "tried out the springs." The trying out process consisted of three boys on each running board and the car in the role of a teeter operating sideways.

One owner complained and in they went.

After being held for an hour or so they were favored with a good lecture and released.

ONE PLANK IN PLATFORM OF G.O.P. NOMINEE

Six "Guiding Principles" Added to Butte Stand On State Questions

SAYS HE'S FOR TEXAS

Courts No Political Aims But Makes Race Solely To Serve People

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—A platform of one plank, consisting of the governor's oath of office, reinforced by six "guiding principles," is the basis on which Dr. George C. Butte today based his republican candidacy for governor in a statement "to the people of Texas."

The one plank platform and the guiding principles are his promises to the people and the only promise he has made or will make, he said.

He said the sole issue in the campaign is whether "the voters of Texas are so concerned for party consistency that they are willing to sacrifice righteousness and decency, and put their stamp of approval on Mr. Ferguson and all the things that he has stood for in Texas."

He declares he is not a member of the ku klux klan and never will be.

Butte's Statement.

The statement in full follows:

"TO THE PEOPLE OF TEXAS:

"Though my name as candidate for governor is on the republican ticket, I am making this race as a Texan and as an American. I have no political ambitions. Ten years ago I dedicated my life to the youth of Texas in the less conspicuous but equally honorable field of education. I would probably never have resigned my position as dean of the law school in the University of Texas, and given up the work and the associations I love, to plunge into the cauldron of politics, had I paused to reflect on the tremendous odds I have against me. And yet I felt it my duty to the youth of Texas to make this sacrifice. I am taking a sporting chance in what I believe is a great and a righteous cause, the preservation of constitutional government in Texas.

Subversion of Laws.

"The reelection of James E. Ferguson to the governorship of Texas through the subterfuge of getting his wife's name on the ticket, after the courts of Texas had declared it illegal for his own name to go there, would be in spirit and in effect a subversion of the laws and the constitution of this state. How can any citizen be legally or morally bound to approve such an act by his vote?

"I am not now and have never been a member of the ku klux klan. I have not now and never will have any alliance with it. The constitutional guaranties of religious liberty and security of person are sacred, and I will enforce them to the uttermost limit of my powers. Having been absent from the state and taken no part in the bitter controversies of the past summer, I decline to reopen them now to no purpose. A different issue confronts the people of Texas now from the one they settled on August 23. The issue today is whether the voters of Texas are so concerned for party consistency, that they are willing to sacrifice righteousness and decency, ignore the courts of Texas and the fundamental law of the land, and put their stamp of approval upon Mr. Ferguson and all the things that he has stood for in Texas. Surely, the love of righteousness, the willingness to sacrifice for Texas, the courage to do and to dare, of the fathers are with us yet. Can we not have faith that the spirit of 1836, when Texans were freemen, is alive in the hearts of the forward-looking men and women of Texas today?

"I submit my candidacy to the whole people of Texas on the following promises. I have made, and shall make, no others to anybody:

Only One Plank.

"1. Platform—My platform has only one plank. It is Article XVI, Section 1, of the Constitution of Texas, which contains the governor's oath of office. I promise the people of Texas that I will support the constitution and will faithfully and impartially execute the laws of Texas—ALL OF THEM.

"II. Guiding principles.

"1. I believe without reservation in the social purity and the political supremacy of the white race.

"2. Within my authority, I will reappoint all honest and competent public servants now on the payroll of the state, regardless of how they vote in this election. Other things being equal, I will always give preference to the ex-service men and women of Texas.

"3. I will stay on the job in the governor's office eight hours a day every working day during my two years of office. I will waste no time playing politics and will give you a strictly business administration.

"4. I believe, like Grover Cleveland, that the administration should be carried on behind glass doors, so that the people can always see what is going on inside.

"5. I have no legislative cure-alls to throw out to catch votes. Nor do I believe that the people of Texas want me, in one short term, to try to put through any radical or revolutionary changes in our laws. Upon all matters of legislation, I will consult and cooperate with the legislature of Texas, respecting its constitutional functions and its constitutional responsibility, to the end that peace and harmony may prevail at the state capitol and the general public welfare be always put first.

"6. During my administration, all

Politics Has Named The Lee Triplets

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—One of triplets born to Mr. and Mrs. Roy Lee of Aurora, Ills., near here may bear the name of the next president.

The parents have telegraphed President Coolidge, John W. Davis and Senator La Follette, "We have named one of our triplets for you. One is certain to have the name of the next president."

"But you can't be certain of that," was the answer wired in in behalf of Senator La Follette by his son, Robert Jr. "The election may be thrown into congress and a nominee named after a deadlock in the house."

He suggested that "no matter what is done with the Coolidge and Davis boys, the La Follette youngster should be kept and raised."

What Water Does To Wichita Valley Purpose of Tour

To acquaint business men and their families with the possibilities of the Wichita Valley irrigation project, W. P. Ferguson, chairman of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce, has invited them to visit his farm in the valley Wednesday. He is serving a barbecue to the visitors, and the only requirement he makes of them is to register with the chamber of commerce by noon Monday.

Between 900 and 1,000 acres were under irrigation during the month of August of this year. By the spring of 1925 about 43,000 acres are to be under irrigation. Farmers in the irrigated section state that in some sections the cotton this year will yield from one bale to two bales per acre. Wheat in some vicinities of the valley this year made from 40 to 50 bushels to the acre. The average yield of wheat was about 30 bushels to the acre. Formerly, the wheat yield was from six to seven bushels to the acre.

The chamber of commerce receives three or four letters daily making inquiries concerning the irrigation project. A majority of the letters are from Texans. Land in the valley is offered for sale, but the prices are variable and not quoted.

The trip to be made Wednesday through the valley is to be under the direction of the agricultural committee of the chamber of commerce. Chief of Police Hodgins has agreed to have reserved the east side of Indiana avenue between Seventh and Eighth streets Wednesday morning for the business men and their families who are going on the tour. The chamber of commerce office will be the meeting place according to announcement and the parking space will be reserved from 7 to 9 a. m.

Mr. Ferguson states that the names of all intending to make the trip must be turned into the chamber of commerce by Monday at noon.

Mr. Ferguson declared that he wants every business man who possibly can to make this trip and take his family if he can but it is urgent that the number who are going be known by noon on Monday so that preparations can be made to take care of the crowd and no one who has not made reservations by this time will be expected to go.

Says Vice-Presidential Nominee Either Ignorant Or Dishonest

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Opening his campaign in the middlewest, Senator Wheeler of Montana, vice presidential nominee on the progressive party ticket, in a speech here tonight, turned his guns on Charles G. Dawes, the running mate of President Coolidge.

Senator Wheeler focused his attack on General Dawes on the noted Lorimer's bank failure and on the organization of the Minute Men of the Constitution, which has been charged by its critics as being an opponent of organized labor.

"Mr. Dawes' political philosophy, his view of the relation of the people to their government helps to explain certain events of his career and certain of his recent activities," the speaker declared. "It helps to explain how he could lend himself to a fraudulent banking transaction that robbed 4,000 Chicago citizens of their savings; it helps to explain why he organized the little political army which he calls the Minute Men of the Constitution."

"Want Some Milk" Says Jackie Before 15,000

By The Associated Press.

PARIS, Sept. 20.—A reception of the magnificent sort which Paris customarily reserves for kings, princes of the blood and conquering heroes, greeted Jackie Coogan today on his arrival in Paris.

More than 15,000 persons stormed the Gare du Nord to catch a glimpse of the diminutive American film star, known almost universally in France as "Le Gosse," for his performance in "The Kid," and it was with the utmost difficulty that Jackie's escorts were able to get him from the station into a nearby street where a motor car awaited him.

Jackie passed through the crowd while scores of photographers kept shooting his picture. He appeared nonplused by the warmth of his welcome.

Never in the history of the North Station, which has witnessed the arrival of the Prince of Wales, the King of Belgium, Queen Wilhelmina, and other royal personages, had such a concourse of people gathered in the vicinity. All suburban traffic was stopped for fifteen minutes.

One hundred correspondents with more than 100 photographers were present, but Jackie shattered all precedents when instead of saying, upon alighting on the platform, "So this is Paris!" turned to his father and said instead, "I want a glass of milk."

Net Tighter On Minister, Claim State's Officers

By The Associated Press.

MOUNT VERNON, Ills., Sept. 20.—"Important additional information has come to light within the last few hours of the case of the Rev. Lawrence M. Hight, Ina, Ills., clergyman, in jail here charged with the murder by poison of his wife, Frank G. Thompson, state's attorney, announced today.

"We have the evidence now to go to trial on a murder charge," Thompson said. "I do not care at this time to disclose the nature of the new evidence, but at the proper time we will be able to show the Ina minister was in the market for poison on a rather extensive scale this summer."

Admission that he had purchased poison three times that he "could remember" in Mount Vernon and Benton Drug stores in recent months was obtained from the Rev. Hight at the county jail today, officers said.

"The rats were awful about the parsonage," said the minister. "They carried off the young chickens right before our eyes."

Two photographs found in the home of Rev. Hight today were considered an important part of the evidence the authorities have thus far collected in the case.

The two photographs of the Rev. Hight and Mrs. Sweetin posted on a sheet of paper, Sheriff Holcomb said last night, were found in the clergyman's home at Ina, 12 miles south of here, while he and other officers were searching for further evidence do show that the death of Mrs. Hight was caused by poisoning. A chemist who analyzed the contents of Mrs. Hight's stomach reported he found enough poison to have caused her death.

And then yesterday Old Sol came back with a vengence, shoved the mercury way up, knocked coats back onto the hat racks and tempted straw hats into the open again.

"Chicago Youth Given Reprieve Until Jan. 16th

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Thomas E. Swanson, attorney for Bernard Grant, under sentence of death was planning tonight the last stages in his fight to save Grant from the gallows. Earlier in the day, word had been received from Springfield that Gov. Len Small had granted the youth a ninety day reprieve, which sets the date of execution over to January 16.

"Several of Chicago's best lawyers," said Mr. Swanson, "will go to Springfield to plead for the boy when our petition is heard. Thousands of other petitions from individuals and from organizations have been received and these will be forwarded to the governor in Grant's behalf. We understand that other requests for clemency in the case have been sent directly to the state capitol."

"Fine, that's just fine," he said. "It lifts ninety days of worry off my shoulders. My hair ought to turn black after that. I hope in time the governor will commute my sentence entirely. I desire that because I am innocent."

In his own plea for a pardon, transmitted to the governor by Attorneys Swanson and Timothy J. Swell, who are acting in his behalf without compensation, Grant confines himself to restoration of his denials that he was present on the night that Walter Krauser, also sentenced to death in the case and a companion, shot and killed a policeman in an attempted robbery. Grant says that he didn't even know Krauser until they met in the police station a few hours after his arrest.

Krauser is now awaiting the outcome of an appeal to the state supreme court which will be acted upon within a few weeks. Governor Small declared in granting a reprieve, that he would postpone consideration of Grant's petition until Krauser's case had been ruled upon by the court.

Supplementary to Grant's petition was a statement by Krauser which said that "Grant has not only been the unfortunate victim of a contemplated conspiracy, but of a frame up," saying that he did not know Grant before they met in jail. Krauser declared that his original confession, naming Grant, was brought forth by brutal treatment at the hands of the police. His statement asserts that he has never yet made known his actual companions name or identity. Sheriff Peter M. Hoffman today signed a petition being circulated in Grant's behalf.

The technique is practical without the use of instruments, the result being accomplished by the obstetrician's hands. He uses chloroform as an anaesthetic.

DEFENDANT ON STAND DETAILS KILLING STORY

Thought Victim Was Going To Shoot Him and Is Sure He Fired One Shot

MEDITATED ON ACTION

Didn't Want to Have Any Trouble and Ran Off Down Behind the Bluff

Special to The Record News.

GRAHAM, Sept. 20.—Denying that he met Hugh Reilly by agreement or that he had any understanding with him to come armed, Herbert S. Griffin in a statement before the jury trying him in 30th district court here this afternoon declared that he shot Reilly when the latter, concealed behind a clump of bushes, was bringing his rifle to his shoulder. He shot to keep Hugh Reilly from shooting him, he said.

Denies "Duel" Arrangement.

He was emphatic in denying that they fought a duel.

Griffin had just left the stand after going through a grueling cross examination by Special Prosecutor Franks and District Attorney Alfred when Judge Wilson adjourned court until Monday morning. The defense will finish with its witnesses Monday. Mrs. Herbert Griffin, wife of the defendant, will go on the stand.

Griffin began his story at the time he left Hill county and came to Archer in 1922. He is 32 years old. He told of going to Dallas in the spring with Hugh Reilly to see a lawyer about a division of property they owned at Dundee. He had heard that Reilly was fencing in his land, and went into the barber shop where Reilly was getting a shave at noon on May 16 to talk to him about it. He waited until Reilly had gotten out of the barber chair before he had him explain where he was fencing.

Discussed in Barber Shop.

He drew a rough map on the floor and Reilly identified the line of the new fence.

"I told him that was on my land," ran the defendant's story. "He said he didn't think so; that he was satisfied it was on his land. I asked him to take him over my land where Long had been fencing and on the mountains Lawyer Gormley would be out here from Dallas and we would settle it. I thought Gormley would tell him it was my land. Hugh said he had the old county survey, and that he thought that it was the most accurate survey, and he was satisfied. I told him if he would lay off the men I would have an injunction issued by the next day.

"He said do what you please, but I am going to put the fence up anyway."

Would Pay For Fence.

"I told him that if he would build the fence where I said the line ran, then after the matter was settled if I wasn't right I would pay for moving the fence to where it belonged. He said he didn't do business that way; that he would build his own fence.

"I said, 'Hugh, I'm going down there and stop those men from fencing and I'm going to court too.'

"He said 'Any time you go down there and stop those men I'll stop you.'

"I said 'All right, old man' left him and went home to dinner."

During this conversation Griffin said that he told Reilly, "If this is your attitude the best thing you can do after this is to travel on your own land."

Later he admitted this amounted to a warning.

After dinner Griffin said he got in his car and started for the scene of the fencing. He took a rifle and a pistol.

He Feared Trouble.

"I knew there would be four men there and I would have them to stop if there was trouble," He said. "I took the pistol because I would have to walk quite a ways from the car, and I was afraid to go unarmed and didn't want to be in the attitude of carrying a rifle."

Had you said anything to Hugh about meeting and shooting at out," he was asked.

"Nothing whatever."

"Or was there any agreement that you were to meet there at the Newberry fence, or that you were to bring two guns each."

"No."

The defendant told of finding the men at work and telling them to stop until the matter was settled in court. They agreed to stop, and Griffin said he returned to his car and started back. Some distance back he said he stopped, turned around and pushed his car at a clump of bushes. He figured the men at work on the fence would wait until he had gotten out of sight and resume work, he said, and he wanted to see. Griffin testified that he was sitting in his car, a light test car, when he heard a motor racing behind him. He looked back and saw Reilly in a car. Reilly had noticed him as he came around the turn, and had stopped his car, allowing the engine to race, said the witness. Reilly then stopped his car, turned back and pulled off to the right, and stopped at a fence corner. Griffin said he then saw Reilly getting out of his car with his guns.

"What did you do then," his counsel asked.

"I started up as quick as I could and got underneath the bluff. I was pretty scared. I decided to get out of his way. I wanted to prevent trouble if I could. As I got below the bluff I meditated."

During this time he was getting out of the way he did not know where Reilly really was, but he said he got his Winchester and ran up the bluff to where he could look over and see him. He saw Reilly as he loosed one gun against the wire fence while he had a leg stretched out to come through the fence onto Griffin's land.

"I hollered for Reilly not to come through the fence. I told him this was no way to settle things, for him to go on back to Dundee and we would let the courts decide.

"Reilly hesitated, then he said the 'courts are too slow,' and 'damn you,'" the witness said.

"He then drew up his gun like he was going to shoot."

Griffin said he was standing behind the bluff, and when he had first hollered at Reilly he did not have his Winchester in his hands, that it was on the ground within easy reach. He did not want Reilly to know he was armed, he explained.

When Reilly raised his gun Griffin said he dropped down, got his gun and when he raised up he saw Reilly drop down behind some weeds.

"Then I saw him raise up his gun from the weeds and I fired as quick as I could," he continued.

"Did he shoot?" counsel asked.

"I'm sure he did."

"Who fired first?"

"I don't know."

Griffin then detailed that while Reilly dropped at once he did not know whether he had hit him or not and he remained where he was for some time, he did not know how long. Then he said he "eased" to where Reilly lay and saw that he was wounded. Under cross examination later he said in reaching Reilly he went up the bluff and approached him in a round about way.

Says Reilly Groaned

Reaching him he asked if there was anything he could do for him. Reilly groaned a couple of times but he did not remember whether he said anything distinctly or not. Griffin said he took off his coat, put it under Reilly's head and threw a part of it over his head to keep the sun off. He then started for his car, but found it gone. He admitted he had forgotten that he had run it up under the bluff, and surmised that the Hodgins boys had moved it. He then got in Reilly's car and started for Dundee, he could see there was no further danger from Hugh, he said, and he did not touch his gun or move his body except to put the coat under the head.

"Did you go to his car and get any guns and take them to where Reilly was lying?" his counsel asked.

"I did not."

"Did you go to his car and get an empty shell and drop it near him?"

"I did not."

Griffin denied that he had told Peter Rayburn anything about an agreement with Hugh Reilly to meet and fight it out, or anything about him having $25,000 life insurance or about being a Presbyterian and believing his time had not come. He denied that Chas. McDaniel said anything to him to the effect that Hugh Reilly would not waylay any one, that he would not way lay him (Griffin) and kill him.

On Cross Examination

In the course of his cross-examination Griffin said:

"Reilly was going to force my land and I was going to keep him from it."

"Didn't you shoot Hugh Reilly to keep him from fencing your land."

"No, I shot him because he was about to shoot me, but I would have shot him if he had come on my land then."

Griffin had testified that he was afraid of Reilly and was scared when he first saw him that day. The prosecution asked why, then, if he was afraid that he ran up the bluff, Griffin answered that he ran up the bluff to see what Reilly was going to do, but that Reilly would have shot him if he had run either direction from where he was. He said he knew Reilly was coming down there to fence that land or to kill him.

The prosecution scored Griffin for not getting a doctor on his first trip to Dundee, when he knew Reilly was alive. Griffin had previously testified he went to Dundee to get help, but it developed that while there he had one man call the sheriff, another put in a call for his attorneys, Weeks, Frances and Tarlton of Wichita Falls, while he himself took Pete Rayburn and started back for the scene of the shooting.

The prosecution brought out that Dr. Woodall's office was 20 or 30 steps from the bank, where Griffin stopped, but he made no effort to get him.

Griffin said he was excited.

Afraid to Move Him.

Asked why he hadn't put Reilly in the car and brought him to town for medical attention.

Griffin said he was afraid to move him, afraid that if he died or anything happened to him it would reflect on him.

Asked why he didn't want the doctor to move Reilly after he had reached him Griffin said he thought under the circumstances the officers should reach the scene first.

He admitted that he was "thinking of himself first."

Griffin said when he saw Hugh Reilly with those guns he figured he had come down there to "fence the land and use those guns if necessary in fencing it."

District Attorney Allred took up the cross examination. He put this question to Griffin:

"When you learned Lige Griffin had testified before the Archer county grand jury did you drive down to Lige Griffith's house, and sit there for 30 or 40 minutes looking down to where you shot Hugh Reilly, then drive down under the bluffs and fire your gun in the air several times for the purpose of intimidating the Griffiths as witnesses."

"I certainly did not."

Result Farmer Suit.

"And one night later did you go to the Griffith place and place on the barn there a placard or a paper in warning to the Griffiths."

"I did not."

"Do you know who did."

"No."

Attorney Franks brought out some details of the suit which Reilly and Griffin had in district court at Wichita Falls over $30,000 worth of notes. The jury decided that $31,000 was the proper amount. Griffin said there was a "warm" feeling between Reilly and himself then, and had continued.

Attack Griffith Testimony.

The defense attorneys used up most of the Saturday morning in an effort to impeach, or offset, the testimony of Lige Griffith and his wife. In this effort prominent Wichita Falls men were used as witnesses, including G. C. Wood, T. B. Noble, Floyd E. Orrich and Ross Coriett, the latter a civil engineer.

The Griffiths, whose farm home is on the Reilly land 3,400 feet from the place where Reilly was shot, had testified for the state Friday that they were able to see that far. Mrs. Griffith had said that after Reilly stopped his car at the corner of the field and started walking up the fence toward the place where he was shot that he had a brisk stride, swung his arms freely and was carrying nothing in his hands or arms. The husband had testified that shortly after he heard the shot he had looked in that direction, seen a man in shirt sleeves, who was at first standing beside Reilly's car, start running in a stooped or crouched position alongside the fence. He seemed to be carrying something in each hand, Griffith said, and after stopping at two places about where Reilly was found he ran back to the car got in and drove off.

Wood Testifies.

G. C. Wood was one of a party of men who drove to that vicinity a week ago, got out and made an experiment on the visibility at that distance. Wood told the jury that he stood opposite the Griffith home, and Herbert Griffin, himself, took a position down the road opposite where Reilly had stopped his car. From that distance he could make out Griffin's form, could see him moving but could not tell whether he was moving his arms or not. He could not see his arms, he said. He could not tell whether Griffin had anything in his hands or not, or, in fact, whether the form he saw was a white man or a negro.

"You mean, then, that if Reilly in his shirt sleeves was walking along that fence you could not see whether he was moving his arms or not," the state asked on cross examination.

"That's right."

"You mean you could not see a man that far."

"I mean you or anyone couldn't see him."

T. B. Noble of Wichita Falls, testified to about the same thing on a similar experiment.

Both Noble and Wood admitted they were on Griffin's bond.

Floyd E. Orrich of Wichita Falls went a little further in denying good visibility at that distance. "I saw an object in the road but colud not tell whether it was a man or beast," he said. "I couldn't tell whether it was a man or a horse."

Engineer Is Called.

Ross Coriett, engineer, said he could not see a man's arms at all that distance.

The defense used a Mr. Perkins, a neighbor of Reilly's, as its first witness during the morning. Perkins said he was at Reilly's home about 7 or 8 o'clock on the morning of the day of the shooting when Reilly came in from the field. Reilly took a shotgun from the back of his car and placed it in the house. He asked Perkins to drive over to the new fence with him, but when Perkins declined he drove off himself. He did not carry the gun with him, Perkins said.

A deposition from Mrs. Dallas Capps another neighbor, said she saw Reilly out in the field early that morning shooting rabbits for his dogs.

Tarlton Morrow, defense attorney, then took the stand and testified that Pete Rayburn had not told himself and Weeks, when they talked to him after the killing, anything about part of the conversation with Griffin which Rayburn yesterday recited on the stand. Bits of this alleged conversation refering to Griffin saying he was a Presbyterian and didn't believe his time had come yet, and of his saying that he had $25,000 life insurance and would gain even if he lost were not repeated to the defense attorneys at that time, and Rayburn was purporting to tell them all he knew at the time, Morrow said.

At Scene of Shooting.

Morrow admitted that he and Attorney Weeks were at the scene of the shooting soon after Reilly was moved.

Roy Hudgins, one of Reilly's fencers told of Griffin coming to them shortly afternoon and asking them to quit work until the line dispute was settled. It would have to go through the courts, he said.

"Did you Hudgins boys frame up on the defendant that day and steal his car?" the state asked, and Hudgins said he did not, nor did se see anyone else steal or move Griffin's car.

The state then asked:

"Did Griffin tell you that when he got to Reilly's car there were several empty shells in it, and that he took one of these and dropped it close to where Reilly was laying?"

"No, he did not."

WHEELER

ganized the La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank in 1912 to take over the La Salle Street National bank of which Lorimer was the head, the capital and surplus of the new institution was announced at $1,250,000. Senator Wheeler said the bank did not have the $1,250,000 to show the state auditor as required by law. He explained that the state bank was organized by Lorimer and his associates because the La Salle Street National bank was "in a bad way."

"On the afternoon of October 21, 1912, Dawes turned over to Lorimer's new bank the required $1,250,000. The agent of the state auditor of public accounts counted it and issued a certificate authorizing Lorimer's bank to do business. Then the $1,250,000 was handed back to Dawe's Central Trust company, all in one afternoon. The La Salle Street Trust and Savings bank thus began business with an advertised and certified capital and surplus of $1,250,000, when as a matter of fact there was nothing in the bank to represent this sum.

Lasted 20 Months

"You people of Chicago know how long Lorimer's bank lasted. Within 20 months it had been closed and a receiver appointed. Its assets were found to be two million dollars less than needed to satisfy depositors and other creditors.

"The part that Mr. Dawes had taken in this transaction became known when the receveir appointed by the court tried to find the $1,250,000 of cash which had been exhibited to the state auditor's agent the day the bank was given permission to do business. So he brought suit in the Cook county circuit court to hold Dawe's bank liable for the full $1,250,000.

"The court held that Dawe's bank must pay over to the receiver, for the benefit of the creditors that $1,250,000 with interest amounting in all to $1,487,854.16. Dawes naturally appealed and the case remained in the court until July 12 of this year. The very day that Mr. Dawes was nominated by long distance telephone from the White House, for the office of vice president, the supreme court of Illinois handed down a final decree in the case Seven years of fighting back and forth through the courts had whittled down the amount that Dawe's bank must pay to $100,000. He had succeeded in reducing his liability this much but never for a moment did he escape the responsibility for his astounding cheat upon the public."

Turns on Minute Men

"Turning to the Minute Men of the Constitution which General Dawes, organizer, Senator Wheeler said the first call to arms came a year ago when Dawes directed the Minute Men to vote for Judges Sullivan and Holden in Chicago.

"One of those two judges was the same who had been concerned in the litigation over Dawe's bank," Senator Wheeler declared.

The speaker said that General Dawes gave as his reason for summoning the Minute Men to rally to the support of the judges the fact that certain labor leaders had attacked the judicial candidates as "injunction judges."

Quoting the official call to the Minute Men, in which General Dawes stated that Judges Sullivan and Holden, under the law are required to issue injunctions in labor disputes "when a proper bill was presented to them," Senator Wheeler charged the general with misrepresentation.

Ignorant or Dishonest

"There is nothing in the state constitution or laws which requires any judge to issue an injunction against labor unions or other organizations or individuals merely upon the filing of a bill of equity, as General Dawes would have us believe," Senator Wheeler continued. "Injunctions shall not be issued in any case unless it is apparent that irreparable damage will be done and there is no adequate remedy at law. And the enlightened view of the American bar is that no injunction should ever be issued in controversies between labor and capital. If Dawes does not know that, he is too ignorant to be vice president of the United States. If he does know better and made those statements knowing they are not ture, then—well he isn't honest enough to be vice president.

"There is the record of the man who is now attempting to kidnap the United States constitution and convert it to his own private uses, the man who is raging up and down the land shrieking 'radical' and 'demagogue' at every citizen who is asking for constructive statesmanship in the government, indeed, at any citizen who is asking simple honesty in the government. There is the record of Charles G. Dawes, republican candidate for vice president of the United States."

Lurid Claims Of G. O. P. Carrying 'A Dangerous Kick

Voters Distrustful of All Contentions Made By Republicans

TWINING TO DAVIS

Democratic Standard Bearer To Draw Support From Coolidge

By B. N. TIMMONS
Record News Staff.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—Never in a campaign in the history of American politics have such extravagant claims been made with so little foundation as are being sent out today from the headquarters of the two republican parties.

From the very beginning it has been the policy of the Coolidge managers to try and convince the public that Coolidge was already as good as elected, and that the only question was whether LaFollette or Davis would run second. In order to belittle the candidacy of Mr. Davis, they have tried to make it appear that even Senator LaFollette will show greater strength in the election than Davis and Bryan.

LaFollette Follows Suit.

At the same time, the LaFollette managers have undertaken to follow very much the same line and have it broadcast that LaFollette's chances are very good, and that he is likely to run ahead of both Coolidge and Davis.

In carrying out the republican policy, interviews have been had with numerous people from various sections of the country, all indicating that Coolidge is likely to run far ahead of both other candidates, and the impression has been given from republican headquarters that the election this year may be a repetition of the 1912 election, with Coolidge occupying the place Wilson did then and according to Davis about as many electorial votes as Mr. Taft received at that time.

Not only have LaFollette managers proclaimed their belief that he will be elected and that he will sweep a large part of the east as well as states which have been conceded to him in the northwest but Miss Ethel M. Smith, one of the LaFollette women workers, has outdone the others by making the bold assertion that ten million women will vote for LaFollette and Wheeler this year.

Found Some Believers.

The claims of the two republican parties, headed respectively by Coolide and LaFollette, were made with such force and backed up with such a strong bluff at sincerity that for a time they found believers.

But in their efforts to make the people believe their respective candidates were sure to win, the followers of these candidates find now that they have so far overdone the thing that it is beginning to react.

The falsity of some of the claims made by both Coolidge and LaFollette followers have become so apparent that the people are beginning to question the accuracy of all their claims and to doubt whether any of them are worthy of belief.

It is doubtful if the LaFollette management can find a dozen believers anywhere in the country in their assertions that LaFollette will carry many of the eastern states, or that he will be elected. Nor will anyone be inclined to believe the statement of Miss Smith that ten million women are going to vote for LaFollette this year. It would rather be a surprise if as many as ten million vote in November for all the candidates combined. Nor have the assertions of the LaFollette organization that they expect to carry at least three southern states given any encouragement to the general public to believe any of the other claims which they are making.

The result of the September election in Maine did a great deal to open the eyes of the people with regard to the republican claims of a good-ground-swell for Coolidge all over the country. The word had been spread that the whole country was enthusiastic for Coolidge, but when the election was held in Maine it was found that even the normal republican majority there was not recorded. The enthusiasm which it has been the policy of the republican organization to portray, seems missing in other sections as well and while there may be the usual republican vote in most places, there is no evidence of any kind of an enthusiastic support of President Coolidge or any special interest in his election.

No Enthusiasm Shown.

This was noticed as far back as the Cleveland convention and even before. It was realized that Coolidge would be nominated but there was no enthusiasm for him either before or during the convention, and in spite of the statements of the republican management there seems to be no enthusiasm for him at this time.

As the absurdity of the extravagant claims made by the Coolidge and LaFollette managements becomes apparent to the country, a new phase is being put upon the situation. This change is being emphasized by the speaking campaign of John W. Davis, and the effect it is having upon the people. At the same time they are learning not to place credence in the extravagant claims of the two factions of the old republican party, they are learning from the lips of John W. Davis himself that the democratic party has a great deal to offer them along the lines which the average person has been seeking.

One thing which they are learning from the speeches of the democratic nominee is that there never has been any need for a third party when the democrats have been in control of the government. The great struggle of the liberal element of the republican party under Theodore Roosevelt came when the republican party had been in power for nearly a quarter of a century. The protest against the existing government and the effort to build up a third party this year have come as a result of the administration of public affairs by republican officials. There is never any need to organize a third party when the democrats are in control and this is being shown to the people through the words of the democratic nominee.

No Mere Coincidence.

It is not mere coincidence that Mr. Davis should be gaining ground so rapidly just at the time when the people are beginning to realize that the republican claims of Coolidge enthusiasm are unfounded. It is the honesty and earnestness of the democratic candidate which is appealing to the people in strong contrast to the absurd claims of the Coolidge people that nothing can beat him, and of the LaFollette people that LaFollette will certainly be elected.

The events of the campaign are showing two things very clearly. One is the waning of the belief which had been instilled into the minds of the people that the election of Coolidge was a certainty, and the other is the rapidly growing popularity of the democratic candidate for president. Just as the result in Maine showed the absurdity of extravagant republican claims, so the reception which is being accorded Mr. Davis wherever he speaks is showing the trend of the popular mind in the direction of democracy.

It is not only the demonstration given to Mr. Davis at the Missouri barbecue a few days ago, or the way in which his speeches are being received that is convincing the republican organization that it must become more active. The reports from all over the country are being received at republican headquarters that something must be done to check the drift of the people toward Davis.

Not only has it become necessary for the republican organization to make a campaign in the normally republican states which had been conceded to LaFollett, but they have begun a systematic campaign in states which might ordinarily be considered safely republican. They even seem to be afraid of the effect of the speeches of Mr. Davis are having in the west, and the president is known to have under consideration the question of making a speaking trip through the western states, where it was at first felt nothing would have to be done to win.

Coolidge to Travel.

That the president will make a trip into the middle and far western states is indicated by remarks of persons close to him in the White House. He is even credited with having said to a caller in discussing the subject that no president had ever made a mistake by making speeches. It is believed the necessity of a personal campaign by the president has become apparent to his party manager, and that he will make a tour leading probably to the Pacific coast, where the LaFollette forces are said to be making great headway.

The democratic campaign managers have not been making any extravagant claims, nor have they made any claims of any kind. They are satisfied with the conditions as they see them, are hopeful of the result, and are encouraged by reports which are coming to them from various sections of the country.

Individuals who have studied the political situation in states which the republicans claim for their own or considered doubtful, bring the most encouraging reports to democratic headquarters, and there seems reason to believe that in the states which are regarded as doubtful the democratic nominee has at least as good a chance as the nominees of the other parties.

Looking the situation fairly in the face and without being misled by unfounded claims nor boasts of any party, it would seem at this time, less than six weeks before the election is to be held, that the result will be very close.

Senator LaFollette will undoubtedly receive a very large popular vote and a vote in the electoral college, the size of which is difficult to estimate at this time. But there is little chance that his electoral vote will be much larger than has been conceded to him all along. He will draw to some extent from the democrats in part of the states, but he will draw still more from the republican party in most of the places where he shows strength.

The result promises to be a very close contest between Coolidge and Davis with an exciting finish. Had the election been held in midsummer, Mr. Coolidge probably would have been elected. But the indications are at this time that he is losing ground, and that Mr. Davis is gaining ground constantly. If this situation continues and the Davis ticket makes gains in the few remaining weeks as rapidly as it has done in the last few, it would look as though Davis will be elected, but it is going to be a hard fight and at this time no one can forecell the result.

Greater Efficiency Will Increase Toll of War

By The Associated Press.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 20—Sweeping changes in weapons of war that were said to have increased the efficiency of those of the world war period almost one-half were described yesterday by Major General C. C. Williams of the war department in a paper read before world scientists gathered here in observance of the centenary of the Franklin Institute.

A semi-automatic rifle is being perfected for use as a shoulder weapon as well as a .30 calibre machine gun to replace the war time .28 calibre. New trench mortars of great accuracy, high speed tanks with guns in turrets instead of in the body of the tank, a 75mm field gun of 13,000 yards range compared to 9,000 in the war and other inventions were detailed by the speaker.

The 105mm gun has been replaced with a 155mm increasing the range from 12,000 to 20,000 yards. The 4.7 inch gun now hurls a projectile of 100 pounds Air attacks on cities, General Williams declared, would meet fire from a new anti-aircraft gun that fires a 15-pound shell with deadly accuracy. This, he said, will prove as great a step in preventing the bombing of cities as the aircraft now existing make it possible.

To guard against American batteries being discovered by enemy observers, a "smokeless flashlight" type of powder is being developed, the speaker said.

Defense guns for the Panama canal, moving under their own power on railway tracks, can sweep the sea for 23 miles with 16-inch shells, General Williams said. Modern aerial bombs, he stated, are six times more destructive than those used in the Zeppelin raids of the world war.

REPAYS WITH DEATH

Man Whom Woman Aided Kills Her In California Home

By The Associated Press.

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 20.—Mrs. Clifton R. Hunn, wife of a wealthy Chicago business man, is dead here, the victim, police say, of an ex-convict she once befriended and who last night returned her kindness by beating her brains out with a hammer, shooting her through the heart and looting her apartment of gems valued at $20,000. The man sought as Mrs. Hunn's slayer is Harry Connor, alias Harry Barbatt, who, according to detectives, was released from an Illinois prison through her influence after serving part of a sentence for robbery and who was aided with her money to start life anew after leaving his cell.

E. R. Gibson, a cousin of the slain woman, was in the apartment when Connor called late yesterday and was invited to stay for dinner. He told police the ex-convict had without warning locked him in the bath room and then had turned on his hostess and killed her.

Gibson finally managed to escape from the bath room, but reached the front door only in time to find Mrs. Hunn's body on the threshold and to see her slayer fleeing down the street.

His story was corroborated by Virginia Hunn, 8-year-old adopted daughter of the murder victim, who witnessed the killing.

By The Associated Press.

GALVESTON, Texas, Sept. 20—Charges of conspiracy to violate the customs laws were filed against Jimmy Lewis and Harry Platzer at Houston today, according to advices received at the custom house here. DRESS WELL AND SUCCEED

Gray and Tan are the two smart shades in the fall felt hats. Buy both so that you can harmonize or contrast them with any suit or top coat. The loose, broad lines of fall suits are scrolled larger shapes in hats. We are featuring Dobbs.

Tab should own many designs in these two fashionable types of cravats. One is the batwing tie, always worn with the wing collar for the proper effect. The other is the four-in-hand to go with the fold-over or double band collar.

The unplowed band is unfashionable. Wear Capeskin, Buckskin, Pigskin, Bucskin or Chamois for walking. Wear Mocha or Suede for Dressiness. Wear white or pearl-tinted Kidskin for ceremonious or evening and wedding dress after six. You will find the Hanson here.

What to Choose From Hats to Shoes This Fall

A seedy suit skulking under a spick and span top coat sows the seeds of suspicion that they're both bygones. A summer suit trying to look like fall, fools nobody but the wearer, who fools himself. The wise one knows how new clothes re-energize one. Put them on today, and while you wont find "pep" in the dictionary, you'll find it in your disposition. Two suits and two hats are true economy, for you pro rate the wear; you don't concentrate it. Finally make this your creed—

"Dress Well and Succeed"

W. B. McClurkan & Co

Shirts may have vertical bosom stripes or the new cross stripes. Collars may be white or may match the shirt. With colored collars wear subdued scarfs so that the frequent fault, excess of color in a striped Oxford shirt and tie is featured.

Bright hued hose answers "The Call to the Colors." They're bolder than ever before. The pattern pictured above is only by way of suggestion. See scores of others here tomorrow. Interwoven brand.

Both black shoes and tan shoes are necessary to complete your daytime dress. Never wear tan shoes with a gray suit, wear black. Tan shoes go well with blue or brown suits. Always select dark tan not light, which is too conspicuous. We are showing the Boyden.

BIBLE THOUGHT AND PRAYER

RICHES DO NOT SATISFY—He that loveth silver shall not be satisfied with silver; nor he that loveth abundance, with increase: this is also vanity. When goods increase, they are increased that eat them: and what good is there to the owners thereof, saving the beholding of them with their eyes?—Ecclesiastes 5: 10, 11.

PRAYER—O God, most mighty and most merciful, do Thou enable us to set our affections upon the things that are above, for we would serve Thee and we know we cannot serve God and mammon.

THE SMELL OF SAWDUST.

When the corn is in the tassle and the cotton is in the bloom men's thoughts oft turn to the circus. It is the time for relaxation for joy, and for the loosening of the pent-up feelings. Of all the joys of boyhood time none quite equal that of the circus. There is something so strange about it. The piercing shrieks of the calliope, the roar of the lions, the grunting of the elephants all seem to affect both mind and nerves of the young and give the occasion a wierd and interesting affect. Who is it, with soul so bereft, that he cannot recall, when he worked all day carrying water to the elephant and wondering where the animal could possibly place all that the boys brought him. And yet those days are engraved upon the memory of many a man in high position to be cherished as long as life lasts. To the boy the circus is a momentous occasion. It is one of his first impressions and belongs to figures of his imagination which are enshrined in a frame of thought never to be forgotten.

After all should not these youthful impressions be encouraged? For is not these hallowed memories one of the choice gifts of the divinity which rules over all mankind? When in maturity one looks back over the span of life given to him, how often comes the hallowed memory of mother and dad and himself at the circus. What a day of thrills it was. There was the elephant in all his glory, the funny clowns and the tumblers in the air, doing breath-taking stunts. That was a day never to be forgotten. Could it be that we had more of them. For the sparkle in the child's eye when thrilled through and through is worthy of the skill of the greatest painter and would warm up the cockles of the heart of the veriest skeptic.

DID YOU KNOW

That the campaign slogan of John W. Davis is "Common Honesty in Government" while the slogan of Calvin Coolidge is "Common Sense in Government." Puzzle: Who wins?

That the American Woolen company, the greatest concern of its kind in the world, has passed its quarterly dividend and democratic leaders say that the dividend was made by cutting wages of woolen mill employes to the starvation point.

That Thomas J. Spellacy, eastern manager for the democrats, says there will be no further reduction of wages in the textile industry in New England because if wages are further reduced they will disappear entirely.

That Congressman John M. Nelson says the labor day speech of Senator La Follette has shaken the monopoly system to its foundation, affected the stock market and caused a heavy drop in the price of stocks.

That John W. Fowler of New York, president of the National Negro Welfare league with a membership of 100,000 in ten states who left his lifelong republican allegiance to support La Follette and Wheeler, made a tour of the middle west, reported he found a big swing to La Follette among intelligent colored voters everywhere.

That instances have been reported where this year's wheat crop cleaned up the entire farm mortgage and wiped out losses from two years of failure.

What the Editors Say in Cold Type

ELECTRA STAR.

In a lonely cell in Chicago sits a nineteen-year-old boy charged with murder, the death sentenced imposed upon him. In the state prison at Joliet, Ill., sit two petted and pampered boys of the same age who were charged with one of the most heinous murders in the history of the state.

FREDERICK LEADER.

It seems so altogether useless to go about getting affidavits to prove what Jack Walton said about Oklahoma Protestant ministers. Why bother about skunks? Why go out to produce affidavits? The way to make reply to Walton is with ballots.

ELECTRA NEWS.

And the good feature of the community fairs, is that it has tended to create a better feeling between the farmer and the local business men. Perhaps no other occasion in the year can equal this one for bringing the two together in a more harmonious manner—with each becoming better acquainted, the building up of new friendships and a closer tie-up between Electra and its adjacent farming section. The community fair and the poultry shows of the past, have tended toward intelligent co-operation in this respect where other means have failed.

CHILLICOTHE VALLEY NEWS.

If you haven't an automobile, you are out of everything, including debt. If a friend presents you with a watermelon, you can't get it home conveniently. If you wish to go anywhere not on a railroad or street car line, you must call a jitney, or depend upon a friend who owns a car, and you and your car-owning friends are seldom interested in going to the same place. If you walk, you may be run over.

CHILDRESS POST.

The effort which is being made by the gentleman from San Antonio to keep Mrs. Ferguson's name off the ticket in the general election is unsportsmanlike and useless. We like to see a game loser. In the contest which she entered Mrs. Ferguson was a fair winner, and by a majority that speaks loudly. And the effort which is being made to debar her has every appearance of an effort to get into the public eye. It is more than likely that no hope of success is entertained. It is an advanced form of heckling. We believe that the time has come now to let Mrs. Ferguson wear her laurels in peace, and show what of gubernatorial qualities she possesses.

HALL COUNTY HERALD.

The bulk of the good citizens of the nation were, we believe, disappointed in the sentence given Leopold and Loeb by Judge Caverley. A life sentence, if they had to serve it, might fit the crime, but it's hard to keep men with as much money behind them as these two young degenerates have, in prison. In eight or ten years, when public sentiment has died down and the heinousness of the crime has been overshadowed by later sensations, the chances are that the Leopold and Loeb millions will find a way for their release.

BAYLOR COUNTY BANNER.

Defense Day was observed with a program at many places. Nothing was done here, and it may have been just as well. While this country was observing Defense Day, Japan countered and observed Peace Day. So far as this paper is concerned, Japan's idea comes nearer suiting ours. Most of the expense of our government is for past and future wars, and why we need to get out and parade and show how we can lick everybody in the world. This paper is as patriotic as anybody, and we may be just naturally dull of comprehension, but they never did get the need of Defense Day through our noggin.

WHAT TODAY MEANS TO YOU

VIRGO

Today's planetary aspects are very favorable, although not of a stimulating character. They portend happiness and contentment, and domestic felicity, but do not indicate a great measure of success for any undertaking of an untried nature. It is, so the signs demonstrate, a very suitable opportunity for rest and moderate recreation, and all other exercises which are usually identified with Sunday. Study will prove beneficial, but the result of much physical activity will be negative.

A child born today will have a remarkably vigorous constitution, and its general health will never cause either worry or anxiety; the signs denote, however, that it may be prone to accidents and everlasting vigilance is demanded. Its character will be complex; its disposition variable; its mentality exceedingly bright. This child must be taken in hand at a very early age, so that the dificiencies and defects in its character can be minimized, and the good features emphasized; only by forceful discipline, however, will it be taught to develop equanimity of disposition, rather than variableness and unreliability.

If today is your birthday, you pay too little attention to the smaller details of life, having your mind set on what often proves to be the unattainable. There is no short road to success of fortune; drudgery and hard work are essential to nearly every achievement. As a rule you cannot reach your goal by airship flight; you must walk, even though you are footsore and weary, every inch of the way.

You have missed more than once achieving that which you dreamed you would do, because of this inability on your part to appreciate the importance of the little details involved in the work; you have either trusted to someone else to look after this end of it, or have neglected it altogether, concentrating your mind and undivided attention on the goal, which has not been reached.

It is quite possible to devote much time and work to non-essential trifles, but there is a happy medium which nearly always compels success, and prevents failure.

Successful people born on this date are:

Demo Leaders At Houston to Fill Rail Board Post

By HUGH NUGENT FITZGERALD
Record News Staff.

Political scene-shifting extraordinary has happened in Texas. Thomas B. Love is no longer national committeeman, Colonel Jed Adams is his successor. Frank C. Davis is no longer state chairman. Judge E. A. Berry is his successor. There is a new state committee, one member from each senatorial district. All thirty-one members are in harmony with the new order of things.

Colonel Jed Adams is in New York. He found his place with the national committee without delay. Judge Berry and his committee will hold an important meeting in the city of Houston Monday, September 22. C. V. Terrell would like to be named as railroad commissioner. Sidney L. Staples would like to be named as state treasurer. Those on the inside say that Terrell and Staples will find themselves outside of the breastworks after the committee has completed its business.

18 Applicants.

There are eighteen applicants for the railway commissioner ship. William A. Nabors would like the post. He was defeated by Lon A. Smith for nomination for the position now held by Nabors. It is said that C. A. Hurddleston of Fort Worth is the choice of James A. Ferguson. It is also said that there will be a deadlock which may be broken by the selection of former Governor Oscar B. Colquitt.

Colquitt is not an applicant but if tendered the nomination his friends say that he would consent to be drafted and to make the race. Colquitt made a fine reputation as a member of the commission in the long ago and used it as a stepping stone to the office of governor.

Berry Backs Pope.

Chairman Berry was a backer of W. Elmer Pope when the Corpus Christi man made the race for the governorship and went down in defeat. In the runoff Pope and Berry were very zealous supporters of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson.

According to the leaders the Houston conference on September 22 will be largely attended. A plan of campaign will be perfected, including the appointment of committees on finance and to assign speakers for the red hot days which are to come in October.

If Governor Colquitt is given the nomination for railway commissioner it is said he will make an active campaign and those who are close to him declare that he will make many speeches for Mrs. Ferguson and the other democratic nominees regardless of who is given the post on the railway commission.

Chairman Berry is said to be one of the best political campaigners in the state. He is very ambitious to make himself known and heard and he is going out on the highways and byways to shell the woods and to tell the voters just why the republican nominees should be defeated in state and nation by overwhelming majorities.

Doesn't Count Much.

Organized opposition to democratic nominees hasn't counted for a great deal since the old populistic days when the republicans and the populists lined up together and made life very interesting for the democratic campaign managers and candidates for office.

It is announced that James E. Ferguson will make an active campaign in October and that Barry Miller, Dan Moody, Joseph Weldon Bailey, General M. M. Crane, Judge Joseph E. Cockrell, Colonel Jed Adams and a host of others have tendered their services to the Berry committee or are willing to be drafted.

The Married Life of Helen and Warren

With the chill dread a midnight bell always brought, Helen sat up in bed as Warren, girdling his bathrobe, shuffled to the door.

A telegram!

But instead of slippering back with an ominous yellow envelope, he was talking to someone in the hall.

The indistinct mumble of masculine voices.

Who could it be? What had happened?

"It's Barclay! Put on some clothes. He wants you to go down to her. He's phoned for the doctor."

"Oh—OH!" tensely. "She hasn't taken something again?"

"He didn't say, but guess that's it. I'll go on down—now you hustle."

A moment later, her mandarin coat over her nightdress, her hair tucked up, Helen ran out to the hall, down the three flights to the Barclay apartment.

Warren opening the door, waved her into the bedroom.

"Unconscious?" whispered Helen.

Mr. Barclay nodded, his face as white as the one on the pillow.

"Chloral again!" Helen stooped over the bed. "Oh, why does she do this?"

"It's the last time. I'm through!" huskily. "I told her I would be if she ever took it again."

They were still working over her, trying to revive her, when the doctor arrived.

With only a brisk nod he strode to the bed, examined the patient, drew the pillow from under her head.

"Some ice," he ordered curtly.

Warren, still pacing the hall, followed her to the dark pantry.

"Dear, where's the switch?" feeling by the door. "I thought these apartments were all alike. Have you a match?"

"Don't carry 'em in my bathrobe! Here you are." his fumbling search found the light over the sink.

"It's the third time she's done this," whispered Helen, holding a pan as he chopped the ice. "Oh, how can she—when he's so good to her?"

"Ought to be tarred and feathered! Keeping him upset with her tantrums," viciously jabbing the ice pick.

"They must've had another quarrel. That's the way she makes him sorry."

"Well, I'd make her sorry with a horse-whip! There, that enough?"

The chill shock had the desired effect. She moaned and opened her eyes.

"Doctor!" she murmured, dazed.

"Mrs. Barclay, you'll take that chloral once too often!" sternly. "Next time I may not be able to bring you around. You'd better get another physician. I won't be called out at night on a case like this. You've exhausted my patience—and I should think your husband's, too."

Taking up his leather case he snapped it shut.

"That's all I can do," brusquely. "You'd better lie still if you don't want to be nauseated as you were last time."

Mr. Barclay following the doctor from the room, Helen was left alone by the bed. Spreading a towel over the ice-wet sheet, she straightened the covers.

Mrs. Barclay lay with closed eyes, her brown hair loose and disheveled. Under thirty, she would have been strikingly beautiful were it not for a drooping, petulant mouth.

Helen had read of neurotic women who ruled their husbands by resorting to some drug or self-inflicted injury, when their slightest wish was denied. Such cases were patheological, bordering on emotional insanity. But why should Mrs. Barclay, with everything to make her normal and happy, indulge in such hysteria?

Twice before, following fiery scenes with her husband, she had drugged herself with chloral. Once, when he would not discharge his stenographer of whom she was unjustly jealous; and again when he felt he could not afford a new car. And both times she had won what she had so heartlessly fought for.

What was it this time?

Mrs. Barclay would tell her. She had no sense of reticence. Having chosen to make a confidant of Helen, she had freely divulged the most intimate things.

There was no doubt she loved her husband, in spite of her perverted pleasure in making him suffer. Passionately, insanely jealous, his slightest delinquency would throw her into frenzied suspicion.

She was sleeping now, one hand over her throat, as though still choked from the chloral.

"Until the next time," huskily.

Helen longed to comfort him, but she could think of nothing to say that would not sound banal before such hopeless tragedy.

"What am I to do?" he started up suddenly, pacing the floor. "I can't stand this much longer. I'm going to pieces—my business, too. How can I work with this always hanging over me?"

"Pack up your things and go to your club," Warren whirled from the window. "And stay there till she comes to her senses."

"Yes, and the first night she'll drug herself with chloral—or something worse."

"Not much she won't! She only does that when she thinks you'll find her. She doesn't pull these melodrama stunts unless you're here for an audience. You're threatened to leave her, but she thinks you won't. Now make good on that threat! Helen'll stay with her tonight."

"Said you would, didn't you? Told her the next time would be the last—that you'd be through. Show her you meant it old man, that you weren't bluffing. Not easy, I know—but it's the only play now."

"Maybe it is, but I can't leave her," with a weary shake of his head.

"Just a few days might help," ventured Helen. "This's growing on her—she just lives for these emotional scenes. Yet she has so much that's fine. If you could only frighten her—make her feel she's losing you, it might—"

"You go back and stay with her," Warren broke in. "I'll talk to Barclays. I'll put it to him straight. He's going to his club—and he's going to-NIGHT!"

Returning to Mrs. Barclay, Helen drew a low, easy chair to the bed.

Rarely did he undertake a thing that he did not put over. Yet what could he say that would goad Mr. Barclay to so radical step?

With a curious sense of watching the denouement of a tragic play, broodingly Helen waited by the bed. What would be the next act in this emotional drama?

Mrs. Barclay stirred, moaning in her sleep, her hands still at her throat where the cloying chloral still sickened her.

Half an hour later the door creaked. Warren stood there beckoning.

Tiptoeing out, Helen followed him into the adjoining bedroom. The open drawers and scattered garments proclaimed a man's hasty packing.

"Here's the letter he wrote," handing her a sealed envelope. "But she's not to have it until tomorrow—when she's in better shape."

"You mean—he's gone?" tensely, glancing about the littered room.

"Yes, and he's going to stay until she's had her lesson." grimly. "She's got to be scared into her senses. He pulled himself together great!"

"And he went—without seeing her before he left?"

"I wouldn't let him—'fraid he'd weaken. He threw some things in a couple of grips and beat it while his jaws were set. He's to fix it so she can't reach him by phone—not even at his office. I made this job foolproof, all right."

"And I didn't think he'd go! Dear, how did you persuade him?"

"Put the screws on! Made him see what it meant to both of 'em if this kept up. Don't like to mix in a mess like this, but couldn't side-step. Promised to keep him posted 'bout things here. He wants us to pack her off to New Orleans."

"To New Orleans?" puzzled Helen. "Oh, yes, that's where her mother lives."

"He says the old lady's all right. A few months down there will help straighten her out. She won't want to go—but we'll tackle that tomorrow. Now I must get some sleep. If she gets rampageous—phone up and I'll run down."

"She won't wake tonight. The doctor said she'd sleep until morning. But, dear, you'll have to tell her and give her that letter. I—oh, I just couldn't!"

"Huh, after tonight, guess I can square off to anything. But I'll give her a short shift. She'd better not throw any hysterics while I'm around!"

"Oh, but I'm sorry for her—I'm sorry for them both."

He's had a pretty rotten deal. I'm not wastin' much sympathy on her. Now you take a snooze on that couch in her room—get what rest you can. I'll be down in the morning. He said their maid sleeps out. If she gets here 'fore I do, just tell her Barclay's called out of town."

Following him to the door, in the dark hall Helen clung to him wistfully.

"Dear, hold me, just a minute. No, hold me tight!" tremulously. "I feel so—oh, as though I wanted to cry. I don't know why, but I do!"

"Better not!" he grunted. "Had enough sob stuff here for one night."

"What if I were Mrs. Barclay?" cuddling into his reluctant arms. "What if I had hysterics and threatened to kill myself every time you did something I didn't like?"

"You'd only try it once." grimly. "If you staged a stunt like that—I'd hand you a wallop that'd put you to sleep quicker'n a shot of dope!" with a chuckle. "Now you go back there and lie down, and be darned thankful you've got a real he-man who won't stand for any monkey-shines. One who'll beat you up good and plenty if you try to pull any temperamental tantrums!"

Next week: "Mrs. Barclay's Reaction.

SCHOOL FUNDS TIED UP.

$1,000,000 In Treasury Because Bonds of District Not Filed.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—More than $1,000,000 due school districts is held in the state treasury and the schools can not get the money because proper bonds have not been filed, S. M. N. Marrs, state superintendent of public instruction, said today. An apportionment of $2 per capita of school population was sent to only 244 out of 900 districts on September 18 and 19. Though the department of education mailed blanks for making out bonds last July to all school districts, 11 counties and 37 independent districts have not filed statement and four counties have withheld their census rolls.

THANKS FOR THE NAVY

World Fliers' Gratitude for Aid Given to Wilbur

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 20.—The thanks of the army for the navy's cooperation in the world flight were expressed today by Secretary Weeks in a letter to Secretary Wilbur.

"The officers of the United States army air service have nearly ended their flight around the world," the war secretary said. 'Its successful accomplishment was made possible solely by the combined efforts of all of those who were asked for their aid.

"I desire to express to you and to the officers and men under your command my great appreciation of all that they did to help. Under the most trying circumstances, ably and wholeheartedly they did their best to bring this flight to a successful conclusion."

JOHN, THE SUPER SHEEP

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE.

I was standing in the pilot house of the old Harvest Queen, watching the glint of the sun on the last of the quick water, where the Columbia, weary of its battle with the rocks, flattens out between Castle Rock and the Oregon shore. The mate was at the wheel. Easy work he had now, keeping her straight, but soon the river would be twisting her nose and taking other liberties with her, and then there would be trouble. Always it is an anxious time, just before a steamboat takes the bumps on the way to her berth at the foot of the locks. For the last thirty miles the mate had been voluble, but now his stream of talk was trailing off into quietude like the white-flecked water that was bubbling round the bow. His real day's work was just about to begin.

Suddenly the pilot house door opened quietly, and a head was thrust in. I looked around and uttered an exclamation of surprise. Hearing it, the mate glanced swiftly over his shoulder, and after one glance at the partial intruder snatched his coat, which he had laid over a chair and hastily put it on. Then to me, he said: "Take her and hold her steady. It will only be for a second." I had steered for short spells on the way up, so I took her. The mate made a dive at the door, his heavy shoe shot out, and the intruder's head was abruptly withdrawn. There was a clatter of footsteps on the deck, and the mate resumed the wheel and braced himself for the first tussle with the lumpy water. "That's John. He was after my chewing tobacco," he told me, by way of explanation.

When we were tied to the dock I asked the mate if sheep were regular passengers on board.

"John is, drat him," he replied. "He's been here two years now. He come aboard disguised as a lamb, but there's no lamb in him. He ain't got the conscience nor the manners nor the behavior of a lamb. If the skipper didn't think he was a super sheep, and value him ahead of his own family, he'd have been mutton chops long ago, though I doubt if anybody could bite into the meat on him."

"But—"

"Yes, I know what you was going to ask. He's got a job here and he attends to it all right, and no body would have anything again him if he stopped there, but he don't. His job is to go out on the dock and lead bands of sheep that is billed for Portland on board, and then lead them off again when we get there. He's a star at that. Before he signed on, it took the whole crew to get a passel of sheep onto the boat, and then like as not you'd find ten or fifteen of them stowed away all over the place after the cargo was off. But he just sashays in ahead of them, and they follow him as if he was takin' them to a swell four-bit dinner at his boarding house. It saves a lot of time and money, but I say you could get a sheep that would do the job just as good and not be so mean.

"He never liked me from the time he come aboard. He was left after a band was got off, and hid in the captain's cabin, knowin' I swear to goodness, that if ever he went ashore with his gang he'd be flavored with mint sauce inside of a week. I heard him thumpin' around in there and was just grabbin' him by the scruff of his neck to heave him overboard when is comes the captain and holds up his hand. 'He's a cute little thing, Egbert,' he says, 'let's keep him for a mascot.'

"Well, I wasn't onto the brute then, so I hadn't no objections, and he stuck. But inside of a week I saw he was no lamb, but some kind of a ravening wolf in sheep's clothing. He'd come up behind you when you was eating your dinner and lap up your coffee before you knew he was there. If he didn't happen to be hungry he'd try to eat the red table cloth, and pull it off'n the table, with everything else along with it.

"Then one of the crew give him a chew of tobacco to make him sick, and after that life on this ship wasn't tolerable at all. Did it make him sick? It give him the tobacco habit. There wasn't a coat pocket his nose wasn't into, and he learned to butt open stateroom doors to get at 'em. If he couldn't get chewing tobacco he would take cigars or cigarettes or anything that would satisfy his craving for nicotine, and eat 'em down just like you would eat pie. If he could of lit matches he would have smoked.

"Well, I made up my mind he would have to quit that. I gotta habit like you've noticed of peeling my coat when I got fancy steerin' to do, or the weather's hot and leavin' it around any place where I be. He got onto that habit pretty quick, and would keep a eye on me all the time, and when I put my coat down there wouldn't be no tobacco in it when I put it on again. When you're at the wheel and want a chew, you just got to have that chew, but you can't leave the wheel to git it without runnin' her on the rocks, so you can't do nothing but stand your watch and suffer, for we don't have no bells on this boat to call for stewards with ices and perfectos, like they do on the passenger steamers.

"I made up my mind I'd discipline that sheep out of his thievery. So I got a cheap plug and salted it with red pepper, and left it in my pocket. Then I watched him from a hiding place. He come up, looked all around, didn't see anybody, and stuck his nose into the pocket of the coat that I'd put the plug into, an' left on the deck rail. When it come out he was chewing for dear life. But he stopped sudden, and the tears come into his eyes. He didn't know what was the matter, but something was, that was plain enough. Pretty soon it occurred to him to stop chewing and spit out the plug. But he hated to leave it, for the desire for the drug was strong on him, not having had a chew for a couple of days. By an' by he took another nibble. Then another. Pretty soon he had the plug in his mouth again, but out she came. Then he looked up and saw me, and was on. He give me a dirty look and walked off. I thought he was cured.

"The next morning I was sitting on a cracker box on the lower deck reproving the crew for the way they was unloading her and all of a sudden I wasn't on the box any more but was floundering around in the river.

"The crew was grinnin' when I was fished out, and upon the pilot house deck I see John looking down at me over the rail, and he was grinning too, or I don't know what grinnin' is, and grinnin' triumphant.

"I knew it was him that butted me off the box, and I made a demand on the captain to have him either sold to a butcher or killed for his wool. But the skipper shows me the figgers of the labor saved by him, and told me he'd give me a good recommend if I wanted to apply for a job on one of the down river boats. So I had to swallow my pride, and worse than that I was forbid to feed him any more red pepper for fear the little darling might take sick and die.

"So him and me is both here. But we don't get along, and some day one of us is going to get the worst of a hand-to-hand encounter, believe me."

¶ Riders In the Fog ¶

Boxer, who had been following right behind me throughout all my search, uttered a low growl. I cautioned him to silence by a stern gesture. Already the four men were swinging from their horses at the gate. I saw them come into the yard, and as I was stepping out of sight I caught sight of the white flag rising among the branches of the madrona tree on the cliff.

They were a saddle-worn quartet, all disheveled and jaded by hard riding; I saw the steam rising from the horses as I watched them through a cranny where a winter gale had stripped one of the battens from the house-wall. Sudgen and Karmany—Black Butch and Whitey Burke are the names by which they were known to ill fame, but I had got used to their pseudonyms now and continued to think of them by these—were sagging at the shoulders as men will when dawn finds them wearied after a wild night. They were scowling down at the earth as they flung their bridle reins to the other two and bade them mind the animals. Without another word these leaders came on into the house, leaving the pair outside to smoke and bask in the new sunshine, where the fellow who had been busy with the signal flag on the cliff joined them.

The bedchamber where I was crouching was in the front of the house, directly over the living room, which these two had just entered.

For a moment there was no sound from below excepting the heavy tread of the two outlaws and the creak of floor boards beneath their feet. One of them straight over to the foot of the stairs, but the footsteps halted at the floor of the flight, and now the man turned, to pace back across the living room. Thus, back and forth, twice more with his spurs rattling on the floor boards; then he came to a stand near the front door of the house.

"Well"—this was Sudgen's voice, and it was heavy with suppressed anger—"say it. What's on your mind?"

There was a moment or two of dead silence, and then Karmany spoke slowly. "First thing I want to say is this: We're up against it this time, ain't we? Is that so, or ain't it?"

"Well, mebbe you'd call it that." The leader's emphasis on the pronoun was nasty. "We're likely in for a ruckus, if you think that's being up against it."

"Jesso," Karmany's voice was so low that I knew he must have come closed to his companion now, and I could imagine the two of them eyeing each other, with none too much good feeling.

"A ruckus. Now, what I wanta know, before I go to sayin' anything further, is what yo' figger on doin.' We might as well settle this here proposition right now and not have no more lad-de-da business goin' on which the gang does not know about and which is gettin' good men killed. Me and you and the boys had rid together long enough fer us to have a right to know what we are a-goin' into, I reckon."

"I don't cotton to that kind of talk from you or nobody," Sudgen said very quietly.

"Well, it's straight talk," the other answered so viciously that I began to have hopes they were going to fly at each other right them. "It's take it or leave it. Where are we at? That's what we wanta know, and right now. This here ain't no express car with one man to run the job—an' something in it for all hands." He added the last phrase bitterly. "This is posses, this is."

CHAPTER XVIII

Argument.

"It looks to me we are waistin' good time, me and you," Sudgen said abruptly; "and there ain't any good in wastin' more either. You want I should say what I figger on the gang doing now. Well, here, it is. Lou"—he squandered some more of that time on whose preciousness he had commented in circling the woman—"has got in the clear; that's all there is to it. How in hell she managed to knife old Joe is more'n I can figure, onless she had help, which is mighty likely; but she has outrid us, and she is burning the trail across them hills right now. But ridin' the best she can do, which is some gait, too, she ain't any more'n made the wagon road by now. There is too much rough country where a boss has got to travel slow between here and there. And it will be afternoon before she gets where there's men enough to rout out a possee—providin' she wants to tell what she knows, and I ain't so sure—"

"Look here, Butch," the other interrupted. "Don't be a fool. That ol' trollop is dead set on playin' even with yo' and had as much a dozen times in the last week, ever since she got the glad news. Yo' can jest make up your mind that she does want to tell what she knows."

I wondered, as I lay there listening, what he meant by the "glad news." Then Sudgen spoke.

"Well, if she does tell, we have got today to clear out in. But if there is fighting, you and the boys have got to do it without me this time."

"And where do you aim to be while we are slingin' lead?" Karmany demanded.

"I don't like the way you talk, Whitey," Sudgen growled. "You haven't ever seen me dodgin' any of my work when it comes to fightin' that I know of. This time I have got my own affairs to keep me out of it."

And still as I hearkened to the big voices, I did not realize what was in Sudgen's mind.

"Now I will tell you," Karmany cried hotly, "what the rest of the boys is sayin' amongst themselves, and has been sayin' for two years back, and it is this. The women is a-goin' to be the ruin of us. Looky here! Here's me, honing to ride out again and take a chance like all the others. And what do I get? Shet in this damn foggy hole for three years now. More'n ten thousand dollars in my roll, and not a dollar of it wuth a red cent when it comes to fun. Let any one propose a job, an' you talk us out of it! Might as well be herdin' sheep. An' all this when we could o' been back in the ol' God's country livin' like men. Because why—because you get crazy over calico. An' looky! What comes along of it? Why, I have killed six men—an' chances is it runs up to eight or nine, but I never did count them that I was not sure got lead from my gun—an' every one in a ruckus, where I'd took my chances against 'em. Does one of them men hurt my feelin's?" He laughed and spat so noisily that I could hear it. "But here, right here in this house and in this room where us two is standin' I come in through that there door—never thinkin' of no trouble, but sent by you to talk over that bunch of hosses that strayed off the place—an' before he looks around to see it's me, I read what he has writ down in black and white, and—

"Well, now, when I have took the letter away with me and left him here, just like I have felt six men before, I get to thinkin', and from that day I can't get shet of it. An' that happened because yo' got it drilled into us that we have to stick in this country! I would rather be layin' out on some Wyoming hill with the coyotes waitin' round me fer me to pass in my checks so's they could come in an' get their meal, then stick here. An' so would all o' them.

"But all that is done an' gone now, an' we are a-going to ride out again! an' what we want to know is whether you aim to ride with us after this or whether you are still set on gettin' the hobbies on to you'."

"I am just that," Sugden answered firmly. 'Her father is a justice of the peace, and he can tie the knot himself. Last week when I made that trip to Salinas, I brought the license back with me."

"An' lucky yo' come back at al, or did not bring half a dozen railroad detectives, too," Karmany growled. "Yo' know they have your picture in the sheriff's office there. Keep us holed up here, an' go to runnin' chances like that yourself!"

Sugden ignored that last protest and went on as if he were talking to himself; "I am done with the gang after we ride out from here. I am going to take her out of here as my wife. In spite of all hell, and settle down with her.

"Then I knew he was speaking of Barbara.

Then as its significance really came home to me, it took on a sudden great importance, overshadowing all the other things which I had heard and learned during the last 24 hours. Vengeance for my father's death was forgotten, and my own danger ceased to impress me. Love for Barbara, whom I saw about to be taken by this wanted bandit, was the only thing in life now.

"There's the land," Karmany said abruptly, "an' all this stock. Me and the boys had a wad of cash in this here proposition, Butch. Where do we get off at now?"

"Lathrop can sell; it's all in his name, anyhow," Sugden answered indifferently. "He'll send the money to me, and I'll see you all get your share when the time comes."

"Looks to me as if Lathrop is bound to rare a bit when he gets wind o' this," Karmany speculated.

"I guess the money he is makin' off of me will help him to quiet down," Sudgen said dryly. "And if it don't, why let him rare; he's going to do the marrying job for me today if I hold a gun to him while he is reading the ceremony. He has promised it long enough, ever since I sent the girl away to school—and he had sense enough to know just about the way the land laid with this gang, all the time."

"Well," Karmany said with his beautiful simplicity, "I won't say I am sorry to see yo' quittin', Butch. Yo' was a good man in your time, but women has spoiled you for our line of business, and that's a fact. An' now that it's settled and I have got the gang, I tell you what to do; yo' tell Kirt and Luce, when yo' get down to the house, to round up the hosses an' throw the other boys' stuff on to them an' bring 'em up here late in the afternoon. I have got to figger but where we will head for an' how we are goin' to go there after we get shut of that posse. An' you' can get word to us there—or send us the money that is comin' to us from the land and stock—when yo' are settled down."

I think they shook hands then, for neither of them said anything more, and directly afterward they went out into the yard.

CHAPTER XIX

I looked out through the chink in the boarding and saw Sugden ride away down the trail, and as he went, the fog, which was coming in great white cumulous billows from the sea, swept up the mountains to meet him.

Karmany had already turned his attention to the men in the yard and was talking with them in low tones. They were nodding at his words, and one of them swore delightedly, as if the prospect that lay before them now was quite to his liking.

They were still at this conference when the mail carrier came riding by on his way back across the range. He drew rein before the gate. "Howdy, men," he called. "There was a young fellow come in here day before yesterday with a hoss he'd hired off of Bill Lant, and I was to fetch him back but he ain't about nowhere. If any of you meet up with him, tell him to have that pony down to Jim Lathrop's place before my next trip."

Karmany answered him coolly. "We'll see he gets the word all right." He scowled as the mail carrier rode on and I heard him saying to the others, "I'd plumb forgot that—about that hombre Lewis; and I didn't aim to leave the country without squaring up with him for that gun play." He raised his voice, "Well, yo' boys better get these hosses back where they can find good feed, an' one of you' go up there on rocks and keep watch of the trail. If any one shows up, I'll be in the house. There's a good bed upstairs, and I'm goin' to get a bit o' sleep."

He turned at the last word and started for the door, and he had got as far as the steps, while I crouched there with my fingers sweating around the butt of my revolver when something crossed his mind and he went back to his horse. He was busy at the saddle-bags for a moment, hunting for I don't know what, and that object—which he only found after a considerable search—was the means of saving my life. For during the interval which that search consumed, the fog came sweeping up the hill and inclosed the whole place in its thick gray mantle. When he returned to the house, I could barely make out his form; and I heard the voices of the others cursing the mists as they departed to their stations.

Wage Earners Better Off With Lower Pay, Babson Finds in Textile Review

By ROGER W. BABSON.

Authentic statement by Roger W. Babson to be quoted only by The Wichita Falls Record News.

BABSON PARK, Mass., Sept. 19, 1924.—When the American Woolen company recently announced that it must suspend its dividend, and the stock dropped 20 points, Roger W. Babson announced thgt it was largely due to the action of the company in the spring of last year in increasing wages 12 1-2 per cent when other woolen companies felt there should be wage reductions. He claimed that the American Woolen company then stood out alone against wage reductions when other New England mills felt that such reductions were in the interests of wage earners, stockholders, and the public generally. "The American Woolen company is now suffering for its action at that time," states Mr. Babson. In commenting further on this wage situation, he says:

Wages Go Up.

"During the war wages increased very rapidly. In early 1920 they stood at what was then the highest point in the history of industry in the United States. The panic of 1920 resulted in some wage cutting. In 1922, however, wages again began to increase, until, at the present moment, they stand at approximately 10 per cent above the peak of 1920 and at the highest point, both in dollars and in purchasing power, ever reached. Employees are determined to keep them where they are or to push them even higher. Moreover, certain employers have cooperated with the wage workers in this attempt.

"In the years since 1914 great changes have come over the industrial situation. The producing power of the country has tremendously increased. In every manufacturing town great new factories stand as monuments of the zeal of war time, while other pre-war factories are idle and are placarded with 'For Sale' signs. It will take years for the consuming power of the country, thru domestic and foreign trade, to catch up with this development. This feature is against the wage ambitions of the employees. On the other hand, during and since the war we have entered upon a plan to limit and regulate immigration. Not only do we select who shall come, but the total admissable is but a fraction of what we admitted before the war. This change plays into the hands of employes. So the battle goes on between those who want wages kept up, on the one hand, and those who would reduce them on the other.

"Wage rates are what an employer agrees to pay his employes, and it is over wage rates that employers and employes fight. Earnings—what the employe gets in his pay envelope,—are the result of multiplying wage rates by hours worked or by product turned out. In a years time this product constitutes the yearly income of the worker and determines whether he can afford to buy an automobile. Real wages are what the employe can buy with his earnings. Real wages are much talked about by academic people, uplifters and the like; but they do not cut much figure in wage contests. No industry can pay real wages unless it is making money enough so that it does not have to cut corners. Wake rates are what employes are interested in first of all, then they are interested in what is earned under the rates. It is of no great importance to have wage rates high if earnings are low.

"In the past two years a new tendency has appeared in industry. Our records show that in that time one hundred and fifty firms have reduced wages from the peak of 1923. Thus wage rates have been reduced in 37 textile mills, in 24 shoe shops, in 14 iron and steel mills, in 12 metal trade shops, in 10 lumber plants, and so forth. These do not represent all of the cuts. These reported cuts are the result of a sampling system in vogue in my office. The total number of wage cuts is much in excess of these figures. While other employers have been raising wages or allowing them to stay where they were, these textile mills, shoe shops, and steel mills have been reducing wages!

"Now what makes earnings go up or down is work. What makes work is orders. What produces orders is ability to sell, and ability to sell depends upon price. This last was never truer than it is today. What is the position of the textile man who has raised or held up wages as a seller of goods compared with the 37 textile mills that have cut wages? What is the position of the shoe maker who has not reduced wages, going to be as a seller of shoes in competition with the 24 shoe shops that have cut wages?

Wage vs. Price.

"Put in another way, that question means: How much are the employees of those textile mills and those shoe shops going to earn during the next twelve months compared with the total earnings during the same period of the people who work in the mills and shops that have cut wages? And what is going to be the result when the salesmen of these high wage plants report to their boss that they cannot get orders because the low wage shops are selling for less money than they can offer goods for? Every low wage shop in any industry is an argument for lower wages in the other shops in that industry, because prices are the determining argument in getting orders. Orders determine to what extent the factory is to operate. Employees who have these wage rates are going to be at work, when others, with higher wage rates are going to be working part time or not at all. It is the factory that can sell at a low price that will get the business during the coming months, and it is the employees of such factories that will have the largest earnings during the year even though their wage scales are lower.

"It is considerations of this sort that have influenced my thinking about wages," concluded Mr. Babson. "I am as sorry as anyone to see wages go down. I know, however, it is not wages that, in the last analysis, interest the wage earner. It is earnings. With our immense producing capacity, the sooner we get into line to sell goods at lower prices, the better for the workers. Wages may not go down much in the next few months. In the long run, they are bound to. No matter what happens to wages, the advantage now all lies with the factories and communities which are enjoying lower costs. The process is inevitable. The farmers have had their medicine in the way of deflation. Most business men have had theirs. It is simply impossible that the working man, alone out of our entire working population, should hang on to his peak wage rates and at the same time have work. The fact that he is trying to do this largely accounts for the present stagnation in industry and largely explains why the Babsonchart continues to register 12 per cent below normal. To avoid what has happened to American Woolen, other corporations are now making wage reduction which will ultimately be a benefit to both stockholders and employes."

Fair Work Progressing.

The regular meeting of the Wichita Falls Guardians' association Tuesday evening was devoted to checking up progress on the display for the fair. The various groups of the city are busy dressing little dolls in the various Camp Fire uniforms for the miniature camp scene.

Miss Fisk showed the guardians the bookplates with which all the books of the library are being marked by the library committee. This committee is also cataloging the books and will have them ready for use by the end of the week.

Those present were Anna Clark Audra Faye Darby, Therressa Kauffman, Mary McIlherun and Mesdames C. L. Ferguson, M. E. Ratican, A. W. Ayres and Glenore Fisk, executive.

Mrs. Ratican's Group Entertained.

Ayusunta met at the home of Lucile Kiem Friday evening. They are making doll bathing suits for the fair display, and nearly finished their quota. The suits will be regulation black, with crossed longs and flame, just like the ones that have been seen in Wichita Falls pools all summer.

Plans for a Hallowe'en party were laid in the brief business meeting, and the evening closed with a social hour, when each guest was served individual ice and cakes.

Speaking of claims to superiority, Ayusunta has six Marys, four of whom were present; Mary de Aguirre, Mary Ruddy, Mary Hutchison and Mary Margaret Lewis. Other guests were Katherine Ruddy, Susie Buss, Lucile Kiem, Mrs. M. E. Ratican guardian, Mrs. Frances Willenberg of Iowa Park, the guest of honor, and the sister-in-law of Mrs. Frank Kiem, Mrs. Harold Kiem.

Wendat Taffy Pull.

An old fashioned taffy pull in the kitchen of First Methodist was Wendat's regular Friday night meeting. Wendat claims more long-haired girls, including the guardian, than any other group in town. There are three of them.

The following played games, sang Camp Fire songs and pulled and ate taffy: Nellie Lewis, Therressa Kauffman, Edna Skaggs, Audra Faye Darby, Ella Marie Henderson, Mildred Price and Mrs. Anna Barnhill guardian.

Miss Smith Better.

Miss Nell Smith, guardian of Ikiya, who has been serriously ill after an operation at a Fort Worth hospital, has returned home and is so far convalescent that she is having meetings of her group at her home, 1322 Brittain. Miss Smith's faithful service to her girls and the guardians' association has been greatly missed during her illness. Mrs. S. H. Walton, assistant guardian of the group, has been out of town all summer, and is also just returning to resume activities for the winter.

Last Call.

There are a number of articles of clothing still unclaimed from camp. At the end of the week they will be turned over to the Salvation Army. There are several bathing suits, middies and towels, also a red fox fur.

Burkburnett's Third Group.

Mrs. Sarah C. Vasser has applied for charter and guardian's appointment for Odessa group of Burkburnett. This group is not to be confused with Odessa of Wichita Falls, which recently disbanded without having applied for charter.

The charter members of the new Camp Fire are Dorothy Gant, Opal Knauth, Mildred Pilkenton, Mamie Vasser, Ruby Lowry, Nadine High, Mary Louise McConnell, Nadell Gleger, Marguerite Gloger, Roma Hothan.

The following resignations of guardians were reported to national headquarters this month: Miss Dorothy Ellis of Temskatawa. Ruth Downing of Akiyuha, Josephine Fisk of Idaka and Norma Rollins of Watanopa (Sam Houston school).

Miss Ellis is attending junior college. Miss Downing is leaving for C. I. A. after unusually meritorious service since June, 1922. Miss Rollins is moving from Sam Houston to another school this year. Eleanor Pitman has kept her group active during her absence at C. I. A. summer normal.

Mrs. C. L. Ferguson is taking Miss Josephine Fisks' group for the winter and will meet the girls Wednesday afternoon to start Idaka's fair sewing.

Five guardians are needed in various groups at this time. In addition to the Camp Fires without guardians there are several more groups of girls who are waiting for the leadership of an older girl or woman to apply for their charter.

Burk Guardian Marries.

Hallie Moody, camp counsellor and guardian of one of Burkburnett's first groups was married at Burkburnett last Sunday week to Mr. L. L. Dugan. They have gone to Jackson, Miss., to visit the groom's people, after which Mrs. Dugan will return to Burkburnett and resume her Camp Fire leadership. Hallie endeared herself to the Camp Fire girls of Wichita Falls at camp this summer, and best wishes are expressed from all the girls for her happiness.

Claims Suit Is Blow At Women Office Holders

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—Disqualification of 200 women office holders in Texas is the purpose of the suit brought to unseat Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson as democratic nominee for governor, her husband, former Governor James E. Ferguson, declared here today. Mr. Ferguson came to confer with his attorneys and with the attorney general's department in the defense of the suit which starts in 53rd district court here Monday.

Makes no Comment

"I have no comment to make on the legal aspects of the case," said Mr. Ferguson. "That is for the lawyers and the court, but the real purpose and intent of the suit is to disqualify one woman from holding office and thereby disqualify more than 200 women who hold county, district and city offices in Texas. If Mrs. Ferguson is disqualified that will be the result.

"The irony of it is that the crowd who shed the most crocodile tears over the position of women before woman suffrage are now the people who are prosecuting this suit. It is an attempt to thwart the will of the people."

Ma Not to Attend

Mrs. Ferguson probably will not be here for the hearing. She is to meet Mr. Ferguson in Houston tomorrow and they expect to attend the meeting of the state democratic executive committee there Monday. Mr. Ferguson said he would be present at all sessions of the committee to lay plans for the campaign. Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson have accepted an invitation to open the Tyler fair Tuesday. Whether they will return to Austin for the hearing, provided it is still in progress, will depend on developments, he said.

JEWEL ROBBER DIES.

STORM TOLL UNKNOWN

Broken Wires Hold Up Definite Word on Damage

By The Associated Press.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—The extent of injuries and probable toll of life as well as the amount of damage done by a tornado that swept several towns in southeast Missouri late yesterday were uncertain this morning owing to broken communications.

The area reported struck by the tornado is centered around Annapolis, about 160 miles southwest of this city. Ellington also was reported damaged. The only definite information obtainable here was that physicians had been called from Bismarck and Annapolis and Ellington to care for the injured. A relief train was made up at Popular Bluffs to rush aid to the storm stricken district.

Expect Definite Move Soon On New City Park

The forthcoming week is expected to bring definite developments in the city's move to obtain a new park and public golf ground. Mayor Collier and other members of the city council have indicated that they will make efforts to finally wind up a deal whereby the city's grounds will be assured, and this has been augumented by County Judge Sartin, who has said that the county, also, will lend what aid it can.

What seems to be the most promising plan now under consideration is by W. F. Weeks, who has offered to give it to the city for a park in return volves a large tract of land now owned for a paved road from the city to other property owned by him. Assistance from the county, and possibly state aid in the construction of the road, is being sought by the city officials.

K. C. Blondy Gets His 10 Years In Huntsville Pen

Sentences of 7 and 10 years each, respectively, were passed Saturday by Judge P. A. Martin of the Eighty-ninth district court on E. E. Martin and "Kansas City Blondy," both of whom were convicted about three weeks ago of robbery with firearms charges. The two were arrested for the looting of an oil field grocery store. The were identified and indicted, later being brought to trial and convicted.

An attempt by "Kansas City Blondy" who was indicted under that appelation, to prove his innocence on the stand drew three years more from the jury.

The two will be taken to the state penitentiary at once to begin their terms.

Ennis Smiddy and Ed Rile, convicted of forgery charges and sentenced to two years each by a jury several weeks ago also accepted sentence Saturday.

George Named To Collect Tax For City Schools

City Attorney W. E. George has been retained by the local board of education to collect approximately $35,000 or $40,000 in delinquent school taxes for the year 1922 and 1923.

The school board, in common with the city council, has found that failure of tax payers to meet their assessments has complicated the financial situation. In the last two years the delinquent list has grown alarmingly and in order to operate properly these taxes in arrears must be brought in.

Attorney George has started preparation of suits to be filed against delinquents on the city roll and by this means hopes to bring in a large part of the $100,000 or more due for the past two years. Notices will be sent to those delinquent on the school rolls and then court action started against them, it is indicated.

Wheat Down

By The Associated Press.

CHICAGO, Sept. 20.—Wheat underwent a decided set-back in price today at the close. Prospective enlargement of the United States visible supply total on Monday was a weakening factor. Closing quotations for wheat were heavy, 2 to 2¾ cents net lower, with May 1.37¾ to 1.38 and with corn 1¾ to 2¼ cents down, oats showing half of 1¼ cent decline and provisions unchanged to 7 cents higher.

Summer-like weather eased down corn and oats, despite a frost forecast for Wyoming and North Dakota.

Demand Holds

By The Associated Press.

FORT WORTH, Sept. 20.—Livestock receipts were above the average as to numbers, for a Saturday market, but the demand held up and all classes closed with a freedom at values that were in keeping with Friday's closing levels. The yard estimate was 1,300 head of cattle, 500 calves, 500 hogs and 3,200 sheep.

Hogs were sent over the scales early, the top being $9.50; the same as on Friday. Most of the run found an outlet at 9.25 to 9.50. Pig receipts were small. A few head cleared at 7.50 to 8.00.

Nothing worth while was on offer in the sheep house, market receipts being limited to a few odd lots.

Stocks Firm

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Stock prices displayed a firm undertone in today's brief session of the market with speculative interest again centered in a few specialties. Except for the more favorable tenor of the weekly mercantile reviews, there was little outside the market to influence speculative sentiment.

Sixteen issues established new peak prices for the year, including American Tobacco A. and B., United Drug common and first preferred, National Biscuit, Loose-Wiles, Studebaker and Nash Motors.

Standard Plate Glass broke more than 5 points to 104¼. This was probably due to the changing in the corporate name of the company, which led to the announcement, that the shares, would be "stricken from the list."

Western Railroad shares were again under accumulation on the theory that the heavy grain loading of the last few weeks would be reflected in the earnings statements of the next few weeks. Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific Great Northern preferred, Missouri Pacific and Wabash preferred A. moved up 1 to 1¾ points, while Chicago and Northwestern climbed 3 points.

Strength and activity of the American Tobacco issues, which added three more points to their recent gains is said to be based on a split up of the shares.

Losses, as a rule, were held to fractions although a few issues of which there was a thin market, such as American Radiator and Nichol Plate, showed substantial losses on a small turnover. The weekly clearing house statement showed increases in most of the principal items.

Foreign exchanges showed an improved tone in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled about half a cent higher around $4.44¼ and French francs were again quoted above 5.30 cents.

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 20.—The cotton market was somewhat irregular in today's trading which was largely of the usual week-end evening-up character. As shorts had pretty well covered during the last few days most of the evening up was in the way of long liquidation, hence the general trend of values was downward, although there was no particular selling pressure and fluctuations were comparatively narrow with final results showing a net decline of 11 points on the more active trading months.

As Liverpool was about as due at the start first trades in near months showed losses of 1 to 8 points but by the time March was reached on the opening call, prices rallied in sympathy with New York which had opened higher and late months showed initial gains of 5 to 14 points. October, December and January soon were 6 to 7 points above yesterday's close and these figures represented the highs of the day. The market eased off gradually on long liquidation until October traded at 21.55, December at 21.66 and January at 21.78, or 22 to 27 points down from the earlier highs. There was a slight rally in the final trading on shorts covering for over the week-end and the close showed net losses for the day of 10 to 11 points.

It was largely a weather market although price movements were also influenced by week-end liquidation and evening up of commitments in advance of the government estimate which comes out next Tuesday.

South Archer Gets Bulk of Activity With Carey Well Week's Feature

Sun Company Dry on Andrews With White-Sessums Drilling

By A. HALLMAN,
Record News Oil Editor.

With the single exception of renewed activity in the Parrish-White district, east of the old Wimot production the brunt of the development and operations during the past week was completely transferred from the older districts of Wichita and North Archer county to the new virgin territory of south Archer and the northern edge of Young county. The completion of the carey well on the Hausler land, two miles northwest of the Knight-Hines Ragle production, coming as it did on top of the Consolidated-Panhandle No. 1, Davis, last week, best well of the district, has created excitement and done much to start another small boom of its own with Olney, in north Young county the center.

Roy I. Carter-Phillips and Macon Oil and Gas company completed what is probably the best well of the week, their No. E-3, White, offset to their discovery well. The well swabbed at a rate of more than 700 barrels a day for some time before being placed on the pump for an estimated 300 barrels a day production.

Drilling permits picked up, almost double in the number of the week before being issued.

Prices suffered a twenty-five cent slash that sent them to the Magnolia level, and in the case of low gravity oil from five to fifteen cents lower than the Magnolia schedule. The Humble alone retained their old prices, cutting everywhere in Texas except Wichita and Archer counties where they will still pay $1.35 a barrel, ten cents higher than competitive carriers and purchasers. The Humble is generally regarded as being in a position where they do not want to antagonize prospective connections.

The price cut did not serve at all to dampen operations and interest, and a real fall revival seems to have finally been started, with the whole of south Archer county to play on, and Walbarger, Clay, Throckmorton, and north Young counties due for some activity of their own.

Archer County.

Four completions were registered in the Parrish-White district, with that of H. A. Muse, No. 1, Parrish, the most important, and the E-3, White of Carter-Phillips-Macon proving the best. Muse was standing yesterday with a hole practically full of oil, coming from about three feet of sand at 1,582-85 feet. The well is located in the northwest corner of the southeast forty of the northwest quarter of section 26, H&TCRR survey, abstract 1197, a quarter mile south of the Kentucky producer, and that far ahead of production.

Simms is offsetting the well to the west, Magnolia to the northwest, and the Kentucky is skidding a derrick for a north offset. Muse is breaking down and skidding 300 feet south for the No. 2, Parrish.

The Kentucky completed their No. C-1 east Magnolia No. 1 offset, and placed it on the pump for better than a 100-barrel well. The B-1 of the Kentucy in the northeast corner of the same forty acres was finally abandoned after testing a third sand at about 1,628 feet. Carter-Macon completed their E-2 for about 100-barrel well from about the same sand as the Magnolia No. 1, its south offset. Carter et al are offsetting both the Magnolia No. 3 and the Kentucky No. C-1.

Simms Nichols.

Simms completed two in the Ray-Featherstone pool, Nichols land, placing No's 3 and 4 on the pump for small wells from sand found a little lower than in their north offset. Ray-Featherstone Oil company is drilling two, one in the north part of their lease, this hitherto undeveloped.

Murchison-Fain completed and are placing on the pump their test in the southwest corner of lot 6, section 26, Wilson land, for about a 50-75 barrel well from sand at 1,626 feet. This well is about a third of a mile ahead of production to the southwest.

North of Holliday Shappel Oil company is placing their No. 15 on the pump for a small well from the sand at about 1,802-05 feet, J. L. Jackson fee. West of this the Texhoma and Staniforth abandoned their No. 2, Kemp and Kempner after deepening to the lower pay, and have only a small well in the No. 7.

Parkey Tests

On the Parkey land, west of the old Atlantic hole, Maxwell, Netherton and Everest et al are still drilling after testing a promising sand at 1,592 feet. Last depth was given as 1,650 feet.

On the Parkey land to the south, Dallas county school lands survey, abstract 113, Daniels and Rutis are drilling at about 1,000 feet after being held up with a broken water line.

McGregor abandoned his No. 5, Llewellyn Robertson, Comac district, and the Magnolia has a doubtful quantity in their No. 5 sand district. The Sunshine Consolidated Oil company abandoned in the Green-Flowers district, while to the south and east the Evangeline Petroleum company is due on the sand in their No. 1 Farmer.

In the Pease district the Sun company failed to make a well offsetting the Texas Andrews to the east and it seems up to Sessums and White to determine how much play the district is to have in the future. The Humble is drilling south of the Norton group and the discovery well.

Creath, Cannon, and Gillam et al are drilling in the southwest corner of 135, W. B. Aldridge survey, Annie P. Jackson land. East and south of Archer City three tests are in prospect with one already drilling. W. C. Young is getting down on the De Moss land, Texhoma has a derrick on the Wilson land, and Haskell is preparing to skid over on the Wilson west of his old test.

Superior is spudding on the Cowan, Mrs. J. Turbeville, just south of the Major Oil company's holdings.

Wichita County.

The extension of Robertson and Muse provided almost the only development of importance in the south half of Wichita county with nothing of importance due in the other half except in the Clopton-Stone test, Basham land. The Muse-Robertson well extends the Beaver Creek-McCarty 1,000-foot pay nearly a quarter of a mile to the east, and seemingly proves up the undrilled portion of Hammon-Lee-Bullington lease to the west. No estimate has been placed on probable production yet.

The Texhoma has set casing in the Burnett A-2, south of Fowlkes on an 1,800-foot sand and is drilling on A-3, and A-4, and 10-B.

Carter is drilling on the Hodge and Burman and the Evangeline on the Burnet.

Jeffers-Newby Flows Through Tubing, Hausler

Jeffers-Newby placed their No. 1 Hausler, west of the Knight-Hines Ragle production, on the pump yesterday afternoon at about 3 o'clock. When agitated by the pumping the well began to flow and in an hour and a half had filled up about 29 barrels in the tank and was still flowing through the tubing.

JEFFERS-JEFFERS SPUD, T. B. WILSON

Jeffers and Jeffers have spudded and are drilling at about 100 feet on their No. 1 T. B. Wilson, section 12 H&TRR survey, between the old Texhoma Lyles producer and the Lanning and Monniger wells in the same section.

JEFFERS-NEWBY MAKE NEW HAUSLER LOCATION TO WEST

Globe Drilling company has finally abandoned its No. 1, Stine, southeast diagonal offset to Cumles, Callendar, and Stumps Stine land producer, Parker county school lands, Clay county.

Casing was set and a variety of formations from about 1,880 to 1,952 feet tested Friday, but the well showed little oil.

Announce Four New Locations In Panhandle

Skelly Oil corporation No. 2, Burnett, has made a location 430 feet each way from the northwest corner of the northwest quarter of section 93, I&GNRR block 5, Carson county. The Skelly Oil company producer is located in the northeast corner of this quarter section. These wells are about 18 miles north of Panhandle.

Dillard has made a location for his No. 1, John Henry, I&GNRR block 3, section 77, 330 feet each way from the southeast corner of the southeast quarter of section 77, Gray county, about one mile north and two miles east of Pampa.

Douglas Oil company has a rig up for their test, No. 1, J. A. Whittenburg, H&TCRR block 4, section 21, just north of the Canadian river, and about 28 miles north of Panhandle, 100 feet each way from the northwest corner of the long section.

Gulf Production company has made a location for their No. 5, Carson county, offsetting Marland Oil company to west. This test will be located 450 feet each way from the southeast corner of section 106, I&GNRR block 5. It will also be an offset to the Skelly No. 1 producer

Carson County

The American Refining company is drilling at about 2,615 feet on their No. 2, Burnett, section 115, I&GNRR block 5, Carson county, with 8¼-inch casing set at 2,560 feet. The Gulf Production company had a show of oil at 2,863 feet in their No. 4, Burnett, section 107. They are now having trouble with their casing at 2,863 feet.

Gates Oil company is drilling in section 107, block 5, on their A-1, a few feet in the lime encountered at 1,985 feet. W. W. Silk is fishing for casing at around 2,500 feet in his No. 3, section 115.

Skelly Well

Skelly Oil corporation is drilling ahead and getting about 50 barrels of oil a day from their No. 1, Burnett, section 92, northeast quarter. The total depth of the hole is now 3,000 feet, believed to be in sand. Oil is coming from upper sand at about 2,984.88 feet, with six-inch set above at 2,975 feet. It is believed that this well will produce 125 barrels in its present state.

The Texas company has skidded west 90 feet on their No. 1 Mary C. Burnett, section 113, after fishing three months at a total depth of 2,725 feet. Top of the lime was given as 1,835 feet.

The Texas company No. 4, S. B. Burnett, southwest corner of section 3, is drilling at 2,902 feet after getting a show of oil at 2,895 feet, with 8-inch set at 2,874 feet. This well was reported to have made several flows last week but the report cannot be vouched for.

Marland Oil company of Texas, has set and cemented 12½-inch casing at 336 feet in section 107, and are now shut down for water.

Gray County

Wilcox Oil and Gas company is drilling at 2,820 feet in their No. 1, Wilson, I&GNRR block 3, section 95, north of Pampa, Gray county. This well has never encountered the lime.

The Gulf Production company is drilling at about 2,880 feet in their No. 1, Cockrell, D&SE block 3, section 10, Hutchinson county, with about three-quarters of a million cubic feet gas flow.

No. 1, Whittenburg, Gulf Production company, H&OB survey, block X02, section 2, is drilling at 3,060 feet in blue shale, after swabbing about 50 barrels a day from a shallower sand.

Drill Permit Issuance Nearly Doubles in Week

These were divided among the counties as follows: Archer, 25; Wichita, 8; Young, 2; Clay, 1; Carson, 1.

The 18 of the week before were divided among the counties as follows: Archer, 4; Wichita, 12; Clay county 1, and Young county 1.

The permits were about evenly divided between the proven areas and the wildcat locations.

ENDS LIFE ON SHIP

Former Prohibition Agent Under Arrest, Swallows Poison

By The Associated Press.

SEATTLE, Wash., Sept. 20.—C. A. McCarthy, former federal prohibition agent in Florida, last night ended his life aboard the trans-Pacific steamer President Grant by swallowing poison. He was arrested Thursday night when the steamer, on which he was third assistant junior engineer, docked here on its return from the far east. He disappeared a year ago after being released on bond for assault on a fellow agent and violation of the prohibition law.

McCarty last night requested Deputy Marshal to escort him to the President Grant to pack his clothing. After he had packed he stepped into a side room and then reappeared.

Appointment of the board was suggested by the president, Mr. Wilbur said, adding that the chief executive indicated he desired the matter to be taken up at once "with a view to adjustment of the budget," in accordance with whatever conclusion was reached by the board

Scope of Knight-Hines Pool Undertermined As Carey Status in Doubt

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Sept. 20.—The completion of the Carey No. 1, Hausler, about two miles north of the Knight-Hines pool, south Archer county, coming as it did on top of the Consolidated-Panhandle completion on their No. 1, C. L. Davis, late the week before, has served more than any other combination of events in years to stimulate activity in this section of Young and Archer counties and to boom the erstwhile peaceful streets of Olney itself. Hotels and rooming houses are filled to overflowing every night, now and many private residences are being pressed into service. It is getting to be a difficult proposition to get a meal even and the streets are crowded with men all of whom are finding some interest in the oil development of the country that is showing up increasingly attractive.

Carey is running tubing in his well, located in the northwest corner of block 16, Thomas McCoy survey. It is not known what the well will make when placed on the pump but under the stress of agitation last week it made several good flows, one to the top of the derrick. Acreage trading has been sharp around the well, and some nice prices have been paid for all sorts of land. The location of the well involves at least one offset op the Jeske land by the Texhoma and a probable location north and west by the Texas company.

Extension Or New Pool?

There is some discussion as to the real status of the Carey well, whether it opens a new pool or is merely an extension of the Knight-Hines production, both views having their adherents. Sand found as low as it was in the Carey well (1,121-26 feet), about 30-40 feet lower than in the Ragle production without water would relieve all fear of water breaking into the Knight-Hines wells, if the well were an extension well, the structure being so large that these wells, supposedly located on its apex would have little to fear. On the other hand the original dry hole of Knight-Hines-Panhandle, east side of the Ragle farm bailed salt water very much higher than the depth in the Carey well, this in the opinion of many seemingly blasting the theory that the well is an extension.

The drilling that is taking place and is contemplated will settle this however, and bring to light more of a formation that has proven a puzzle to many who have worked it out and checked the territory.

Knight-Hines Pool.

In the Knight-Hines Ragle pool three miles northeast of Olney the Consolidated Oil company's No. 1 Davis is still flowing 200 barrels a day. This company's No. 2 Davis, a western offset to No. 1 is drilling at 650 feet while No. 3 Ragle C is drilling at 200 feet.

Knight and Hines and the Panhandle are installing a water system that should be completed and ready for use by the last of the week.

Jeffers and Newby have placed their No. 1 Hausler on the pump and an accurate gauge on production will soon be had. Rig has been moved one location west and is being rigged for their No. 2.

One hundred and fifty acres has been secured by C. H. Featherstone out of the Vernon land, Standiforth survey, abstract 394, with a test to be drilled within thirty days.

Harvey-Taylor

To the north of the pool Harvey et al on the Kunkel land, Hardaway survey, abstract 164, have spudded, and are drilling at about 400 feet.

A location has been made by the Texhoma in the northeast corner of block 5, B. R. Jeske land. The same company has also made a location in the southeast corner of block 6, B. R. Jeske land. Both are offsets to the Carey well.

Northwest of the well on the Jeske tract the Texas company is reported to have made a location.

Just south of the Consolidated Oil company's No. 2 B Ragle the Shamrock Oil company is drilling at 970 feet on its No. 1 Boren.

The Eagle Creek Oil company has made a location in the southeast corner of E. Bearden land, B. B. B. and C. R. A. survey, abstract 54.

In the northwest corner of survey 230, C. West land, about two miles south of the Ragle producers, Jeffers and Newby are rigging up.

On the G. B. Taack, (map wrong, says Tagg) land, abstract 405, Knight-Hines-Ross have spudded and are drilling, location being 150 feet north and 150 feet east of the southwest corner of survey.

Marland-Harmel

Three new locations have been made around the Murchison-Fain-Golding and Marland well on the Harmel land in survey 2401. P. F. Gwynne has location on the west forty out of the middle eighty of the east 160 acres of survey 2406, J. & A. Wood land. On the forty acres adjoining this to the east in the same survey, Lester T. Burns has made a location.

To the west of the Harmel well on the T. L. Griffin land, survey 2400, Maer and Staniforth have derrick up.

The Harmel well pumped 85 barrels the first 12 hours.

Derrick has been moved north one location from the Harmel No. 1 to the southwest corner of survey 2405, Echols land, and Marland-Murchison-Fain have spudded.

Swastika.

In the Swastika field the Swastika Oil syndicate is preparing to drill in its No. 1 Richardson in block 7. On the same lease this company is drilling at 500 feet on its No. 2.

Cavin and Lowry are drilling in their No. 3 Harbison while Magee and Clark have rig up for their No. 6 on the Scruggs tract.

Four or five tests of the Shamrock are in various stages of drilling.

Peter-Kemp.

To the east of the field Harvey et al on the Hill land, survey 195, are fishing for lost tools at 400 feet.

Bridwell-Heydrick Drill A Foot Deeper in Sand Well Believed Improved

Bridwell and Heydrick cleaned out their No. 1 Dill, southwest corner of section 84, south of Vernon, Wilbarger county, yesterday, and drilled a foot deeper in the sand. It is believed that the flow was improved but this could not be ascertained definitely last night.

Exact depths given on the sand last night were 2,012-20 feet, with the flow for the past week approximating 300 barrels a day, without agitation. Four 250-barrel tanks are on the lease and oil is being carried to Vernon and out of there by rail as far as it can be handled by existing facilities.

The derrick of this well will be skidded across the road to the south for the No. 1 Stephens, Tuesday, this to be located in the northwest corner of section 83. Offsetting this new location to the west Winnipeg Drilling company is drilling on the Bond-Hawkins-Williams No. 1 at about 1,400 feet.

Prince Brothers of Electra are understood to have made a trade with the South Vernon Oil company for two wells on the Zipperle farm, southeast quarter of section 84, drilling to begin immediately.

New Refinery Will Be Built North of Olney

Special to The Record News.

OLNEY, Sept. 20.—The Swastika Oil and Refining company will erect a refinery on a two-acre site just south of the Olney Oil and Refining company plant about a mile north of the city limits. The refinery which will be in charge of C. O. Cozart, who was formerly a refinery man with the Cosden company, and will be one of the most modern small refineries in this section.

The plant will have a capacity of 1,500 barrels of crude daily and aside from the manufacture of gasoline and its by-products will later make lubricating oil.

Oil from the Swastika field will be run to the refinery through the Kell Pipe Line company. Connection with the Knight-Hines pool is also contemplated.

Located as it is on the Wichita Falls and Southern railroad and between the Carey well and the Knight-Hines pool with the Swastika field six miles northwest, the refinery has every advantage. Associated with Mr. Cozart in this enterprise are C. I. Weldon, Norman Goldsmith and Bob Lowry, all of whom own production in the Skastika field.

TEXHOMA GIVES MONTAGUE COUNTY NEW WELL IN TEST LOCATED NORTH OF NOCONA

Oil of 28 Degrees Gravity Coming from 800-Foot Horizon

Montague county received another producer of heavy oil during the week as a result of the Texhoma Oil and Refining company's strike on the N. J. Howard land, Chambliss survey, about three-quarters of a mile north and east of the old Boyd Oil company well on the Mrs. Salmon land. This is the second producer of this class completed in the territory north of Nocona, and has caused some attention to be diverted in that direction.

The well is located, approximately speaking in the southeast corner of the N. J. Howard land, Chambliss survey, about ten miles north of Nocona, and about a mile south of the Texhoma's recently completed dry hole on the Bouldin farm. Sand was encountered at 832 feet and drilled to 852 feet, that being the bottom of the hole. There is some oil standing in the hole, and the well is to be standardized this week and placed on the pump, there being prospective pipeline connections with either the Prairie or the Sinclair, both of which companies have trunk lines nearby. It is believed that the well will make a 35-40 barrel pumper.

To further test the area the Texhoma has blocked up about 3,000 acres of land to the northeast on the Cato farm and will drill there shortly.

There is some speculation as to whether this well is producing from the same horizon as the Boyd Oil company's Salmon well, about three-quarters of a mile to the southwest. Oil from the two wells seems identical, measuring 28 degrees gravity, but the horizon of this well is about 60 feet higher than in the Salmon well.

The new strike has created new interest in Montague county, and will eventually result in some development of that area.

August Gas Sales Higher Than July

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—Over 30,000,000 gallons of gasoline was sold in Texas during August, according to preliminary reports to the comptroller's office. Notices that the one cent per gallon tax on gasoline sales is due not later than Sept. 25th, were mailed to all refiners Thursday. Last month the state collected over $300,000 gasoline tax, and the sum will be slightly larger this month, it is expected.

It was computed that with approximately $4,000,000 a year derived from the gasoline tax at a one cent rate the motor vehicle registration fee could be cut in half by the legislature next year if the gasoline tax increase recommended by the state highway department and the nominee for governor, is enacted, without a decrease in the amount of money collected for highway purposes. The gasoline tax is a more equitable one than the registration, it is claimed, on the basis that the tax is pro rated directly on the use the motorist makes of highways.

Forty Years Make Some Change in City, Press Man For Circus Finds

W. T. Buchanan, Here In Interests of Robbins Shows, Finds Wichita Falls Different Place

Forty years ago—thirty-nine last Fourth of July—to be exact there stood upon the corner of Seventh street and Michigan avenue a young man, red-headed, freckled-faced with tiny red sideburns. He was tall, slim and looking like a real product of the prairies—that same young man—only thirty-nine years older—with gray hair and somber look, neatly dressed looking like a business man, stood upon the same corner yesterday and gazed at the progress Wichita Falls had accomplished in the intervening time. He had never been in town since his first appearance when he witnessed the Fourth of July celebration of 1885. The man was William T. Buchanan, press representative of the Robbins Brothers circus which shows in Wichita Falls next Friday. Mr. Buchanan's brother Col. Fred Buchanan is sole owner of the circus. Both are products of the newspaper office, their brother having been an editor and for sixty years owned several daily newspapers as well as an "opera house" when the boys were young, and from that incident, no doubt acquired their love for the amusement business.

"I Feel Old."

As Mr. Buchanan stood in front of the St. James hotel yesterday he remarked to the reporter:

"Well, it certainly makes me feel old to stand here on this corner after all these years. What a strange transformation. Here you have a modern city and as I recall that Fourth of July morning, (forty years ago) and then look upon all these huge structures, it seems as if it was all a part of a fairy-like dream.

"The town in 1885 was a lively western cowboy town. The leading merchant was the saddle man and harness maker. The next best man was the fellow who ran the leading saloon. I forgot his name but like all boys who had just come from the "staked plains," is was ready to take in all that was wild and wooly.

"How I had come here was this—I was just out of college and had been employed to help survey the Southern Kansas by the Santa Fe from Kiowa and had made the slow march from the North Canadian to a town called Clarendon—just south of Amarillo. It took months of time, and finally becoming tired of it, I resigned and decided to go to my home up north. I rode all the way from Clarendon to Quanah astride a pony. Quanah was the end of the Fort Worth and Denver road then. After selling my horse and saddle I came on to Wichita Falls, shaved, bought a suit of clothes and soon was on my way to Chicago.

Plenty of Saloons.

"All there was to Wichita Falls in those days was a straggling lot of houses around the depot, as I remember it now. The hotel was the center of the town life and the saloons were about the most thriving part of the business of the town. It was a county seat town—and a right smart one I must say. But no one then had any idea that it would become a city. The cattle industry was in the ascendency. I remember one of the principal characters was Col. Pat Dooling—as I recall the name—I wonder what has become of him. He was a real man. Big of heart—broad of shoulders—and a strength that when in a fight he could lick his weight in wild cats.

"Ah, but he was of the breed of men that made the west what it is today. Well, being Scotch and canny—as the saying is—I thought that I could save some money by approaching Col. Pat and get a free ride to Chicago with a shipment of cattle. I had never of course been in the cattle business, knew nothing about it, being a sort of a city product. My ignorance of cattle was supreme. But partaking of the spirit of the west I had lots of nerve so marched right up to the colonel and offered my services as a cow puncher, in exchange for a pass to Chicago.

"Sure, lad," says Pat, "I'll fix you out. You may need your money for other things."

"Mr. Bull Puncher: Please pass Mr. Cow Puncher to Chicago."

"That was all

"PAT DOOLING."

"That was all. But it got me on the train with a long pole and a series of days of the hardest, stinking work that I had ever done. In fact the odor was so strong that I resigned at Sedalia—I couldn't stand it any longer. Took the train there to Kansas City, then caught a fast one and was soon in bed in a Pullman, breating the fresh night air of Missouri and Iowa on my way home.

But those were the days."

"I am really delighted with Wichita Falls. It is a grand place—wonderful. It is going to be a city of several hundred thousand before you have finished with your work. With six hundred miles of tegritory to draw from, west of you that is being rapidly developed into the garden spot of America, with hundreds of miles north of you into Oklahoma, and the immense oil fields all around you—where can you find a greater opportunity. It does not exist. You have the world's greatest staple—cotton. Your markets are world-wide and with cotton and oil to sell, there is not a town in all the world that is but a common market for your products. China buys your cotton—Zanzibar will buy your oil, and Kamschatka will take both. In other words what you have here brings out the gold of the banker where ever he may be. He transplants your products to his home town. You've got the world's chief needs—what it wants and buys. And to show your progressive spirit and up to the minute deeds you are going to make "Ma" Ferguson, governor of the greatest and most fertile state in all the world. There is nothing like Texas.

"And it seems to me as if those living here—no doubt due to 'being used to seeing it every day'—do not realize fully, the wonderous empire that they have got. There is no similar spot on the earth. It is the biggest, the best, and better than any other equal area to be found anywhere. And that is no exaggeration. It is a material fact.

"And here in Wichita Falls right in the center of this wonderous country—with the miles of a princely empire to draw from. And as to the future, I am positive that there will be millions of population some day to draw from in the matter of trade for your retailer and your wholesaler.

"The man that is located here in Wichita Falls is the luckiest man in all America. As the colored mammy used to say: "yees Why, jist de luckiest man dat I ever did see—"

"So I say that Wichita Falls has the world at its feet, begging it to furnish more of their cotton and oil. In fact the Midas wealth of the earth is at your disposal. All that is needed is capacity. The demand is a flood. It is up to Wichita Falls to take advantage of it."

Four League Leaders Lose With 3 Extra Inning Games

BROWNS DOWN SENATORS WHILE NEW YORK IS BEAT BY DETROIT

Brooklyn and New York Both Lose in National League

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—There was no let-up in the terrific tension and little relative change tonight in the positions of the major league pennant rivals after a hectic day of battling that included three extra inning games.

Pittsburgh provided the major thrill by downing Brooklyn in 11 innings for the second time in a row and taking second place from the Robins by the slender margin of two points. While Pirate prospects thus were improved, the Giants, despite a defeat at the hands of the Cubs in twelve innings, were able to retain their game and a half margin at the top. Although their percentage total is less than Pittsburgh, the Robins also are within a game and a half of the champions.

Both Washington and New York were defeated in the American league struggle, and as a result the Senators cling to their margin of one game. Washington lost to St. Louis in ten innings, although the Senators ran their two day total of runs up to 29, while Detroit conquered the Yankees for the second straight time.

TYGERS-YANKS

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—Detroit won another ball game from New York in the ninth today, 6 to 5. All the action took place in the final innings. New York tied the two run lead of Detroit in the eighth, the Tigers made three runs in their half and New York came back with three in their half of the ninth. Manush got his first hit of the game in the final half, and scored the winning run a minute later.

Ty Cobb, veteran manager of the Tigers, made his 200th hit of the season in the first inning, the hit scoring the first run. Babe Ruth went hitless throughout the game, striking out once. Meusel, however, contributed a home run.

BROWNS-SENATORS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 20.—The Browns drove Walter Johnson from the box in the first inning and defeated Washington, 15 to 14, in the second game of the series which went 10 innings.

With the score tied, 13 to 13, in the tenth inning, Goslin drove out his second homer of the game to place the Senators in the lead. But in the Browns' half of the same inning with two on, Marberry fielded Bennett's grounder and hurled it into centerfield, allowing Sisler and McManus to score, giving the game to St. Louis. Williams drove out a home run in the second inning.

BROOKLYN GOES TO THIRD PLACE

Pirates Take Extra Inning Affair; Show More Speed

BROOKLYN, Sept. 20.—Brooklyn dropped to third place and Dazzy Vance's string of successive victories was stopped at 15 when Pittsburgh won today's game, 5 to 4, in 11 innings. Speed alone won for the Pirates, two runners scoring from first base on singles by the succeeding batters.

The winning run came in that way when, with two out in the 11th, Traynor singled. On the hit-and-run play Maranville followed with a Texas leaguer in short center. Traynor took advantage of Brown's weak arm and kept right on to the plate, beating the relay home by a great slide. Carey scored similarly in the fourth on a single which deflected from Mitchell's glove into short right.

Cooper's support was erratic, the Pirates making five errors, but three fast double plays, Wright to Maranville to Grimm, cut off the Dodgers at critical times. The final double killing came in the 11th when the Dodgers had two men on bases with one out. Grimm completed the play by reaching far out for a one-hand catch, saving Maranville an error and preventing the tying run.

GIANTS-CUBS

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—The New York Giants lost a hectic 12 inning game to Chicago, 7 to 3, but kept their margin of a game and a half in the pennant battle for the pennant, when Pittsburgh upset Brooklyn for the second straight day and ousted the Robins from second place.

The Cubs clinched the game in an effort to check the Cubs while Grover Cleveland Alexander went the full route for the winners. The veteran would have won in nine innings had not Grantham let Young's grounder go through his legs in the 9th with two out, the error enabling O'Connell to score the tying run.

A single by Heathcote, Grantham's sacrifice and singles by Fitzgerald, Friberg, Hartnett and Cotter figured in the Cubs winning rally.

Frank Frisch injured a finger on his right hand while trying to score in the 11th on Hartnett's wild throw to center field. He was nailed however, and the Giants lost their best chance to win. Frisch had to retire and Kelly was sent to third, while Young was called from the outfield to cover second.

Wichita Falls Athletic Stock at Varsity Begins Soaring

"MAN WHO BEAT YALE"

Is Ready to Give West More Gridiron Thrills

By NORMAN E. BROWN

"The man who beat Yale" in the biggest surprise of the 1922 football season, is ready to lead his team in another campaign—the fourth in which he has participated.

That man is Leland Parkin, wonder man of Iowa university.

But a few pages back in the football records the history of that memorable battle between Yale and Iowa is recorded. It was heralded as one of the most important intersectional games staged up to that time at least. For one thing, brother was pitted against brother in the fray. "Tad" Jones was then and still is coach of the Yale eleven. His brother Howard was then mentor of the western team.

Brother Howard planned his battle with the Bulldog long before the journey east began. His plan was simple. At that time Gordon Locke was in his backfield. Locke stood out as one of the greatest line plungers the modern game has produced.

"Batter the Yale line with Locke," was Howard's instructions to Parkin, quarter and field general, though but a sophomore.

This Parkin did. The first quarter ended with no score. Yale had been on the defensive, however, the ball in the shadow of the Elm goal line much of the time.

With the start of the second period Parkin resumed the hammering tactics. Locke hurled himself through first one side and then the other of the Blue wall. The ball finally rested on Yale's five-yard line.

"Locke! Locke! Locke" the Iowa section, small but forceful, was yelling.

"Stop Locke! Stop Locke! Stop Locke!" was the Yale yell.

Then came the hush that sweeps over a stand just before the crucial play. Parkin had called his signals again. The ball was passed. Then the entire stand sat dumbfounded.

Parkin had crossed up the Yale team, had staked his all on one strategic play. He had asked for the ball himself. While the Yale line set itself to hold Locke's rush once more Parkin tucked the ball under his arm and literally flew around the left end for the only score of the game.

Last year Parkin was expected to shine just as brilliantly in the season's schedule but injuries kept him out much of the time in the important games.

When he did play he showed himself to be one of the best triple-threat men in the game—a beautiful punter, a brilliant open field runner and an accurate kicker.

The instant school closed last June Parkin arranged to devote his entire time to conditioning himself for this fall and eliminating all traces of old injuries. He reported back in Iowa City, Ia., the other day fully recovered and in perfect form. For the last four weeks he had been even kicking, passing and running with the ball.

Parkin got his start at the high school in his home village of Waterloo, Iowa. There he was a four-sport man, starring in track, basketball and baseball as well as football. On entering college, however, he decided to devote all his energies to the grid game.

Falk Lives Up To Prediction Of Frank Chance

CHICAGO, Sept. 20. — Bib Falk, the big Texan from Texas university, by his heavy hitting and great playing for the White Sox, is fulfilling a prediction made by the late Frank Chance, a few days after the "Peerless Leader" had signed to manage the club, but whose health interferred.

"Keep that young fellow Falk in the game regularly and it will not be long before you will find him batting rings around all the rest of them," Chance declared. Averages including games of last Wednesday showed Falk trailing Babe Ruth for the batting honors of the American League with a mark of .357.

Ruth tops the list with .384. The averages are of players who have participated in 100 or more games. Falk has participated in 127 games and cracked out 171 hits.

Walt Wins 22nd.

Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher of the Senators, who was voted the most valuable player of the season to his club, acquired another honor when in defeating Cleveland, he hung up his 22nd victory, one ahead of Herb Pennock, star southpaw of the rival Yankees.

Eddie Collins added two more stolen bases, leading with 41. Babe Ruth is 13 home runs under his record of 59.

Other leading batters: Jamieson, Cleveland, .353; E. Collins, Chicago, .348; Speaker, Cleveland, .346; Bassler, Detroit, .346; Myatt, Cleveland, .336; Rice, Washington, .335; Cobb, Detroit, .334; Boone, Boston, .334.

Hornsby Drops to .424.

Jimmy Bottomley, Cardinal first sacker, has entrenched himself safely among the ten leading hitters of the National League with an average of .331. Jimmy gained eleven points in a week. Rogers Hornsby, who touched the peak of his batting prowess about three weeks ago, and then was injured, returned to the game but he made only four hits in four games, and dropped to .424. This mark however, is far enough in front to again crown him champion. Hornsby leads in total bases with 350.

Jack Fournier of the Dodgers leads the home run hitters with 27. Cy Williams of the Phillies is next with 23. Max Carey with his 43 thefts has the honors for base stealing. Other leading batters:

Wheat, Brooklyn, .372; Cuyler, Pittsburgh, .365; Young, New York, .354; Bressler, Cincinnati, .346; Roush, Cincinnati, .343; Fournier, Brooklyn, .335; Kelly, New York, .333.

STORE IN WAREHOUSE.

Baughman Advises Cotton Men to Keep Crop in Safety.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—An appeal to cotton growers to store their cotton in bonded warehouses instead of leaving it in the open was issued today by Charles E. Baughman, commissioner of markets and warehouses.

"The state bonded, state licensed and state examined warehouse is the most economical, the surest and the only sensible way to handle the cotton crop," said Mr. Baughman. "The open cotton yard is the waste basket of the industry. The bonded warehouse eliminates an enormous loss through county damage."

Peerless Baldwin, Haney, and Coffee Draw Attention of Frosh Squad Grid Critics

By BASCOM NELSON.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—Among the freshmen who are reporting for work twice each day at Clark Field are Leo Baldwin, Leo Haney and Gerald Coffee of Wichita Falls. Although the first year men are not allowed to receive coaching until the opening of school next Monday the new men are assembling at the field each day and going through some stiff work.

Haney, who is a transfer from the Wichita Falls Junior college, is working out with the freshmen but with the opening of school it is thought that he will be shifted to the second varsity squad as he has more than five credits, the maximum with which a man can play with the Freshmen squad. The shorthorn squad has been eliminated this year and instead there will be the varsity second squad.

Baldwin, peerless Wichita Falls backfield man of 1923, and a universal selection for an all state team, has been in Austin for the past three weeks getting himself conditioned for the opening of school. Baldwin came to Austin heralded as the greatest high school athlete in the south and is causing considerable comment through his punting and football ability shown on the field.

Gerald Coffee, another all-state man of 1923 from Wichita Falls high school, reported recently and is getting himself in shape for the opening of the season. Coffee is a linesman of state wide reputation and will help the Freshmen squad of 1924 the greatest in the history of the school.

Smith to Enter Varsity.

Gerald Smith, still another all-state man from Wichita Falls is in Austin but has not participated in any practice. Smith did not graduate from high school but he is over 21 years of age and is eligible for college work provided he receives suitable recommendation from Wichita Falls as to his character. Smith has sent for the letters and is waiting for their arrival before he reports for work.

Hubert Stringer, captain of the Wichita Falls high school team which went into the semi-finals in the state race last year, is in Austin but as yet has not reported for work.

Prospects for the University of Texas this years are for the Freshman team to be the greatest in the history of the school—even greater than the Freshman squad of 1920 that had such men as Joe Ward, Abe Curtis, Bobby Robertson, Bully Gillstrap, Eckhart, Gorman and others playing on it.

Besides the all state men from Wichita Falls that will go out for the Freshman squad such men as Joe King of Dallas; Higgins of Dallas; Rufus King of Austin, Coxs of San Antonio, and Stevens of Abilene all state men of 1923 will bid for a berth on the Freshman squad.

CLAIM 500,000 FOR BUTTE.

While Mrs. Ferguson Expects Over 800,000 at Election.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Texas, Sept. 20.—The total vote in the general election two years ago was less than either political party in the governor's race this year is claiming, it was shown Friday. Governor Neff received 330,000 votes in the general election, and his republican opponent 73,000 votes. R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman, is claiming that Dr. George C. Butte, republican nominee for governor, will get up to 500,000 votes this year, while with over 800,000 votes cast in the democratic primary, Mrs. Miriam Ferguson, nominee for governor, is confident of more votes than the entire number cast two years ago.

COLLEGE STATION, Texas, Sept. 20.—The Texas Aggies initiated their football season with a 40 to 0 victory over the John Tarleton eleven here this afternoon.

The visitors hardly passed into Aggie territory but once. They started a rally near the end of the second quarter by overhead passing and when the whistle blew the half to a close Jennings was receiving a pass from Johnson that placed the ball within a foot of the Aggie goal. They never went on the aggressive again.

DEVOL FAILS TO SCORE AGAINST M'CALLUM ARRAY

By T. T. HUNT.

Footwork, coupled with the inspiration to hold this in the correct general direction, propelled the Wichita Coyotes on to their second straight victory of the season as they yesterday afternoon at the ball grounds defeated Devol Hi 71 to 0.

Their second tilt of the football season failed to even give that much needed practice so ardently expected for the locals, as Devol appeared in no shape to present more than a skeleton of a combination. It will probably be the most decisive trouncing the Crimson and Black will bestow this year.

Coach McCallum again used his wealth of material to wide advantage, his regulars taking the fore and latter portions of the one-sided game. No more than in the Henrietta opening struggle might the strength of Wichita be gauged. True, as individuals and as an aggregation the Coyotes showed to better advantage than in the first clash but their opposition was so scattered and weak that true estimate is not yet to be had for dope on which to base the hopes of Faith City footbulldom.

Coach Stone's line-up was at once untried and uncertain even more so than that of their enemy. The best Devol was able to do was take their beating as best they might, which they must be given credit as doing to a finish. They were one and the flashing on defense or offense, but holding a steady, bulldog front.

Score Thick and Fast.

Wichita Falls scored in every period. Five touchdowns followed on the heels of each other the first quarter, when McCallum's myrmidons fell into a natural slump from such fast scoring. However, two more markers went to swell the already brave count in the second quarter. Taken out for a rest, the more experienced gridsters saw their able understudies gather in another touchdown the last of the third frolic. Toward the end Wichitas were a mixed crew, finally emerging into the first squad at the last period. Three touchdowns by regulars and substitutts ended the runaway in the last.

Blood in the form of touchdowns was drawn by the following men: Curtain 2, Lawson 3, Shaw 2, Woodson 2, Jenkins, Steed. Shaw booted three of the goals attempted after touchdown.

Nice End Runs.

More or less scintillating plays were made by most of the winning team members, during the long drawn-out affair. The touchdowns were made on sweeping end-runs, returned punts, recovery of fumbles, etc. A few passes were attempted by both elevens, but these wer not marked for their brilliancy of execution. Stacey Jenkins took advantage of a weak line and general poor defense by Devol to run his men long and hard through and around the opposition. Thirty and forty yards was no item for Wichita backs in the long procession of gains. Steed, Curtain, Woodson were outstanding with long yardage in their attempts at advancing. Captain Sparkplug Copeland set a strong example in the line, but he and Walmscott and the others were at a huge advantage. Haley was commendable and promising at center. Shaw, first time in the uniform this year looked like himself again at end, being all over the field.

Devol, a one hundred-to-one shot, stood silent in defeat. Their punter did remarkably well under the depressing circumstances. Never did they carry the ball within Wichita territory. A few scattered times were they able to get through or across the line for any kind of gain.

DIXIE SERIES DATE NAMED

Will Open at Memphis Next Wednesday for Season Windup

By The Associated Press.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Sept. 20.—After three days of negotiation between the executives of the two leagues an agreement was reached last night on the schedule and playing rules for the Dixie baseball championship series between the Memphis club, champions of the Southern Association, and the Fort Worth club, champions of the Texas League.

The series will open Wednesday, September 24, in Memphis. Two games will be played here and then the teams will move to Fort Worth for a three-game series to begin Saturday. If a sixth game is necessary they will return to Memphis on October 1 and in the event the seventh game is found necessary to determine the Dixie champions the city in which it will be played will be decided by the flip of a coin.

The disagreement of John D. Martin, president of the Southern Association, with President Doak Roberts of the Texas League over the "spit ball" was ironed out last night in another telephone conference. Mr. Roberts, who for two days had insisted on a rule permitting use of the "spit ball" in Southern Association territory finally gave in on that point and it was agreed that the "spit ball" would be permitted in Texas League territory and prohibited in the Memphis games.

Playing rules for the series are virtually the same as those which governed former contests between the champions of the two leagues.

Umpires Brennan and Johnson will be the Southern Association arbiters while President Roberts has selected Umpires Daly and Kane to represent the Texas League.

Club Owners Meet For World Series Confab

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Club owners of the three leading teams in each major league will meet here at noon tomorrow with commissioner Landis to discuss arrangements for the 1924 world series.

Because of the uncertainty of the outcome of both races, no definite plans can be made, but the commissioner called the meeting in order to provide for the various contingencies that may arise.

Present prospects are that the first game of the annual classic will be played October 2, three days after the close of the season but this would be impossible in event of a tie.

President Johnson of the American league, has announced that in case a tie exists at the end of the regular schedule, a three game series will be played to determine the pennant winners. The same method will be used in the National league, if a play off is required, President Heydler said today.

A&M DOWN TO REAL WORK NOW

Sewanee Tigers Will Furnish First Big Game For Aggies

Special to The Record News.

COLLEGE STATION, Sept. 20.—With the preliminary skirmish with John Tarleton behind them, the Texas Aggies settle down in earnest for the two remaining games on their schedules before they come to Dallas on October 11 to meet the Sewanee Tigers in the first big game of the year and the only intersectional contest scheduled for the North Texas stadium this fall.

By the Sewanee game, Bible and Rithgeb will have settled the problems of the year's line-up—settled on the successor to the redoubtable Puny Wilson on the left wing and to the brilliant Evans on the other—the shifting questions of the line situation—arranged the back-field offensive and more especially have found the quarterback for the year.

"Give us field generals," is the big roar around the conference. Field generalship has been a problem for Bible since the loss of Knickerbocker and the succession that has followed the famous signal caller has been streaked with good quarters who in one way or another missed greatness.

Aggie coaches and supporters are counting heavily on the development into a college star of Mit Dansby, who ran the famous Bryan (Texas) combination of 1922 from quarterback and who had the Aggie freshmen last year. It is true that schoolboy sensations seldom reach greatness in their first yea ras collegians but the Aggies point to Logan Stollenwreck of S. M. U. and say that Dansby will come through. Putnam came strong last year and should work in well as an alternate or relief.

Sewanee will be far more of a test this year than last for Babie's men. Bible is not overlooking the fact that in place of a green eleven he must face a year-old team primed for revenge for the defat suffered by the Tigers last year. Football is the gospel of the Mountain athletes and they are coming to Dallas resolved to carry a Texas scalp back to Tennessee. Bennett and Moore are frankly pointing their team for the Dallas game at Fair Park Stadium.

Golf

As Champions Play It

What is the position of the hands in the overlap or "Vardon" grip?

VARDON'S GRIP.

Wichita Falls Country Club Golf Professional.

In the overlapping or Vardon grip the club is gripped in the fingers of both hands. Take hold with left hand and turn it over far enough so as to see all four knuckles. Place the thumb a little to the right of the shaft. Overlap the little finger of your right into the forefinger of your left hand and take hold with the three remaining fingers, placing the thumb a little to be left of the top of the shaft. If the grip is correct the "V" on both hands (that is, a "V" is formed upside down between the thumb and forefinger) should point over the right shoulder.

MANY A RUNG SIDE.

Champs of Yore Couldn't Return After Layoffs

By ROBERT EDGREN.

Dempsey has it doped out right.

Athletes who stay out of competition for long periods of time seldom come back in their best form.

Jim Corbett knocked out John L. Sullivan in 1892, polished off Charlie Mitchell, and became the world's boxing idol. He liked the life so much that he refused to recognize the challenges of Bob Fitzsimmons for years. It was five years later, March 17, 1897, that he fought Fitzsimmons, and his only ring experience in the meantime was a four-round bout with the rough sailor, Tom Sharkey, in which he made a poor showing. He trained several months for the Fitzsimmons fight. But Fitz, who had been fighting middleweights and heavyweights continually, was in perfect fighting form, while Corbett was merely a clever boxer. Corbett was knocked out in the fourteenth round.

Jim Jeffries, greatest heavyweight of his time, dropped out of the ring six years for lack of opponents. He had nothing at Reno against Johnson, although in his training work he looked able to fight anybody.

Jack Johnson in turn stopped fighting for three or four years. Champion five years, he had only a couple of second rate bouts. He met Willard in Havana in 1915, and was whipped, beaten down gradually without ever having a chance to win, and knocked out in the 26th round.

Willard stayed out of the ring while champion. He ate, drank and lived luxuriously. He boxed one short no-decision bout with Morgan, and a couple of years or so later fought Dempsey, who outclassed him and practically knocked him out in a round.

Sullivan Stayed Out.

You might go back farther, to John L. Sullivan. John was a high liver and he didn't fight often. He was fat and slow when he met Corbett, had forgotten everything he ever knew about fighting, and was as helpless as a punching bag in the ring. He didn't land once on Corbett, and Corbett, laughing at him, dancing around him, drawing him out in clumsy rushes until he was sick and winded, cut him down without any trouble at all.

Dempsey can look back at the whole line of heavyweight champions who preceded him, and see that they all, except little Tommy Burns, went to defeat through losing their ability by not fighting.

Even Bob Fitzsimmons made that mistake. He stayed out of the ring a couple of years after beating Corbett, and then came back to fight Jeffries. He underestimated the young fighter and over-estimated his own fighting condition, and was knocked out. Later Bob did a lot of fighting, knocked out Sharkey and Ruhlin, and then lost to Jeffries again. But age had gotten Fitz by that time.

Of those who were nearly champions the great Peter Jackson knocked out Frank Slavin in England and then went the pace and did no more fighting. He was a shell when he tried to come back by meeting young Jim Jeffries. Jeff knocked Peter down, and when he got up helpless Jeff refused to hit him again and asked the referee to stop the bout.

All Athletes Have Same Trouble.

It is the same in other weight classes. Benny Leonard isn't going to last much longer as champion unless he fights oftener.

Even athletes have the same trouble. Charlie Paddock, after a long layoff, trained hard for the Olympic games. He strained a leg muscle in the Drake relays, and it was not until he had run several more races that he came back to his best form in the national championships, where he won the two sprints and equalled his own world's records.

An athlete of any kind may last a long time if he has plenty of competition, but no athlete is good enough to lay off for long periods and then come out again in his best form. A Babe Ruth must play ball through every season. One year out for Ruth would mean out of the game. A Willie Hoppe can hold a championship as long as he has competition, but Hoppe would be like any other champion if he stopped playing for a year. It takes work to get a championship, and harder work to hold it.

CHAMP BELIEVES SELF GRADUALLY LOSING ABILITY

"Two More Years and I'll Begin to Slip," Says Jacques

By ROBERT EDGREN.

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Jack Dempsey hasn't had anything to do in the ring for a year because there has been no one for him to fight, except Wills; the promoters and boxing commission dodged that match. He is in the position Jim Jeffries found himself in years ago, with no opponents who could interest the promoters. Another thing that has deprived Dempsey of ring chances is the high cost of heavyweight championships. Dempsey's last four fights have netted him one million seventy-five thousand dollars, and according to Jack Kearns his price is going up.

Dempsey got $100,000 for fighting Brennan, $300,000 for Carpentier, $200,000 for Gibbons and $475,000 for Firpo.

Champ Worries.

Of course Dempsey didn't get all the money, or even a large part of it. Uncle Sam grabbed about half of it for taxes, after working expenses had been deducted and there was Jack Kearns' cut as manager. So while Dempsey got some money he didn't get anywhere near a million. His share for all the four fights may have been a quarter of that sum. He has made something in theatrical work and pictures, but not the press agented prices, by a long shot.

Dempsey is worrying, and it isn't money that worries him. He isn't crazy over money anyway. But he is worried. He wants to fight.

"I was happier when I was fighting every two weeks and getting small purses than I am fighting once a year for a big purse," Dempsey told me before the Wills-Firpo bout.

Dempsey Dissatisfied.

"I know that I have only a couple of years more before I begin to drop down a little from my best form if I go on the way I've been going," he said. "I may have only a couple of years more at my best anyway, and I hate to waste those good years. No fighter that ever lived could go along with a year or more between fights and not drop back. I was best when I was fighting my way up to the championship, and I know so much more now that I ought to be much better. I'm not getting enough work in the ring—that's the answer. I train months at a time in the gymnasium and do a lot of boxing. I never get out of condition. But that can't take the place of fighting. A fellow ought to fight every couple of months.

"You know how I was at Shelby," Dempsey went on. "I hadn't been fighting for a couple of years, and the Carpentier fight didn't amount to much. I hadn't had a hard fight since I met Bill Brennan. I did a lot of boxing with sparring partners and told them to fight me, but that's all different. It isn't like being in the ring. I didn't know what shape I really was in until I had gone several rounds with Tom Gibbons. I didn't feel sure of myself and I didn't know just how to handle myself. It was a funny feeling. When I was fighting often getting into the ring with some big tough bird was like going out to punch the bag.

Was Ready For Firpo.

"That 15 rounds with Tom was what I needed to get in shape for the Firpo fight, and it was lucky I had it. I was right at home with Firpo. Now I have been out another year, and I want to get back into the ring. I don't like the stage and I don't like working in the pictures. I'd rather fight any time. There's more in it, too.

"What I want to do is to fight about six times a year for the next two years. I don't care for the big purses. I ought to get more fights for smaller purses. Unless I get a bunch of matches I might as well retire. Anybody who stays out of the ring a year or more at a time is going to retire suddenly sometime when he doesn't expect it."

BOTH MAKE CLAIMS.

Rebels and Government Forces Claim Gains in Salvador.

By The Associated Press.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of San Salvador, Sept. 20.—Contradictory news concerning the revolution in Honduras is being received here, both the government and the leaders of the revolt claiming victories.

Officially it is said, however, General Ferreta's position is becoming more and more difficult through continuous defeats which he has suffered.

STUDENTS TO AUSTIN.

Every Train Bringing Quota for New School Term.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—Students began pouring into Austin on every train today ready for registration at the University of Texas Monday. A freshman convocation was held today to acquaint new students with the university. An enrollment of more than 5,000 is expected, the largest in the school's history.

TWO NEW ONES HOOKED UP FOR 12-ROUND BOUT

Four Fights Listed, 12 Round 10 Round, 8 Round And Four-Round

"The best fight card ever put on by the local post of the American legion," is the way Promoter Don Wofford feels about the box program coming up Thursday night as per regular schedule.

Three big set-to's, a semi-windup and curtain raisers are the features put together to entertain fans of the squared circle for this week.

Pat Corbett, Holdenville, Okla. terror, will step twelve frames with Elmer McMullen of Garden City, Kansas, gods of the resin and smelling salts willing. This is the top o' the deck, the ace-in-the-hole of the fight handlers.

The lead up to the final session of take and give, Wofford has arranged to have Joe Denton, old Amarillo favorite, to do ten rounds with Rube Murray of Altus. It is said the Golden Sandstorm is matched against a tough one in the Altus product. Fans are well acquainted with the entertaining qualifications of Denton.

T. A. Lee will be lined up against a Carpenter when George of Holdenville and Moco of Waco take the canvass for a scheduled eight rounds of mauling in the first of the greater encounters. These boys are not altogether unknown here, and are picked as a pair of scrappers worthy to hold the light and pump the gong on "the best legion box program."

Jack Denton of Amarillo and Jimmie Riley of Altus will tangle in another inter-state embroglie with a four-round preliminary and first inning feeler.

Such is the card.

Wofford is particularly pleased with the stacking-up of the top-masters. Corbett and McMullen are considerable comers, and capable of dropping a few thrills in the cup of weary and sad followers of the game of swing-and-block. On these two boys officials plant hopes of raising the tenor of Wichita Falls boxing to something above the common level, having advanced to the present status of par.

All the way around the card, it is a pleasing journey to the senses of those in the know. They say it will be worth while.

Brilliant Golf Features First Days Champ Play

ARDMORE, Penna., Sept. 20.—Brilliant golf including a record breaking 67 by D. Clarke Corkran, of Philadelphia, featured the first eighteen holes of play today in the qualifying round for the national amateur championship at the Merion Cricket club.

Out in 36, equal to par, and home in 31, three under par, Corkran led an international field in which most of the ten stars of Great Britain's walker cup team fared poorly. He has an excellent chance to win the qualifying medal which will be decided when the field has played 18 more holes Monday.

Bobby Jones of Atlanta, competing at the club where he made a sensational debut in national golf eight years ago, seemed to have the lead without dispute with a 72 until Corkran turned in his surprising card, Bobby dropped to second place. Next came another prodigy, Roland R. McKenzie, 17-year-old high school student of Washington, D. C., with a 73, which was equalled by T. A. Torrence of the British Walker cup team, the only visiting Briton to be in the low seventies; F. J. Wright, Jr., of Boston, formerly of Los Angeles, and Dexter Cummings of Chicago, intercollegiate champion.

If the excellent conditions of today continue on Monday, competitors must get well under eighty in order to be certain of being among the thirty-two who will continue in the tournament, starting match play on Tuesday. There were 49 scores of better than eighty after today's play, with fourteen at 79.

Out of the danger zone with 79 ordinarily enough to qualify if supplemented with another round equally as good are, among others, Jesse Sweetzer, of New York, former amateur, and Cyril Tolley, captain of the British Walker cup team. Eight other British Walker cup players seem to have slim chances to qualify.

The champion of Panama, Edmund L. Koperski, took a 94 and is out of it. Three Canadians including the Dominion's champion, Frank Thompson of Toronto, must have exceptional rounds on Monday in order to remain in the tournament.

Coolidge To Be Red Cross Head

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON. — President Coolidge will actively assume the presidency of the American National Red Cross, when the annual convention meets here early in October. He is expected to preside at the opening session.

Thirty-five hundred chapters of the organization, scattered over the land, will be represented by the delegates, who will assemble in Memorial Continental Hall, where the chief executive was recently notified of his selection as republican nominee for the presidency.

Round table discussions of the various angles of Red Cross work; a pageant in which 150 young folk will participate to illustrate the organization's influence in the schools; a demonstration of life-saving methods in the water by experts; and a foreign and Pan-American night, are features of the convention.

Expert Praises Work of League

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA.—Following an extensive visit to the Ruhr, Berlin and Vienna, Harold G. Moulton, an American expert on economics and directory of the Institute of Economics at Washington came on to Geneva and spent some time investigating the economic and financial mechanism of the league of nations.

Mr. Moulton expressed the opinion later that the world owed a profound debt of gratitude to the league for the excellent work it has accomplished in connection with the economic reconstruction of Europe. He said that the numerous statistical and economic analysis made by the economic section of the secretariat have been of invaluable aid alike to independent students and to governments charged with the responsibility of effecting a solution of post-war economic problems.

INDIAN HEIGHTS

Not since the boom days have prospects looked better for a greater Wichita Falls than now. Large crop production, such as we have over the entire country, will bring an era of prosperity seldom seen, affecting, of course, general conditions everywhere.

Our irrigation project and splendid schools will, from now on, receive each year, greater recognition and will continue to increase our population more rapidly than heretofore, resulting in greater demand for houses and building sites, and consequently increasing the value of desirable residence property.

Six years ago some of the better lots in the restricted addition of Floral Heights sold for $500. These lots have increased in value to more than $2,500. Indian Heights building sites, on the highest point in the city, and the only direction in which the city can build for the better class of homes, are selling for an average of $600, for the same size lot.

This beautiful addition set on a hill overlooking the city and surrounding country, away from the congested traffic, with provisions for spacious lawns; a playground set aside for the residents; restricted and protected with modern conveniences, make this addition the best investment in Wichita Falls and the most desirable section in which to live and be happy.

You know this property will advance by comparing it with the prices in other sections of the city. All lots facing Wenonah avenue are now off the market and not for sale. Don't wait until we advance the price on these building sites before you buy. We are staking our reputation on this property, and will make it the most beautiful addition in the city.

Opposition From Italy Slows Up Work of League

By The Associated Press.

GENEVA, Sept. 20.—Eleventh hour Italian opposition to the detailed program set up for the League of Nation's control commission, which under the Benes pact, are for the purpose of investigating the conditions of both disputing states during arbitral proceedings in order to assure that they are not preparing for war, considerably slowed up the work of the two sub-committees today engaged in perfection the draft pact of arbitration and security.

Anxious To Get Through.

The French desire to thresh out the moot point before nightfall and were even willing to let the details of the formation of these control commissions go over until a later date, in view of the fact that the Italians were not opposed to the commission in principal. However, Dr. Benes, taking into account that the judicial commission sub-committee still had several minor points to iron out—such as the definition of an aggressor, what constitutes a menace of aggression and what would constitute passive resistance to an arbitral award—decided to await the completion of its work before ending that of his own committee.

Working Into Night.

Consquently, M. Loucheur of France is working late tonight on the aggression text which he hopes to have ready for the sub-committees decision tomorrow.

The league council, at a brief meeting, heard Lord Parmoor and Fethi Bey set for the respective British and Turkish viewpoints on the subject of whether the Vilayet of Mosul should be Turkish or under the sovereignty of the Mesopotamian kingdom of Irak. Lord Parmoor opposed the Turkish demand for a plebscite in that region, saying Great Britain could not admit that a purely frointier question could be settled by plebiscite, that the Nomad tribesmen in the area were too ignorant to know what they were voting for and that the holding of a plebiscite would inevitably bring about disorders.

Concerns Arab Territory.

Fethi Bey contended that while Irak was a well defined Arab territory the Mosul inhabitants had nothing in common with the Arabs. He was convinced that the solution Lord Parmoor proposed—that the League council appoint a commission of investigation—would not be effective, as its conclusions would be summary at the best. His reference to recent border incidents as proof of his conjecture drew the retort from Lord Parmoor that the British foreign office reports maintained that no foreign forces from Irak had ever crossed the frontier. The Turks, Lord Parmoor said had already sent a note to the British on the subject and Great Britain would not hesitate to reply.

M. Branting, of Sweden, moved that the question go over until a later session of the council and this was unanimously adopted.

LOVE DEATHS YET UNEXPLAINED

Shooting of Minister and Choir Singer Still a Mystery

By The Associated Press.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Sept. 16.—Two years after the discovery of the dead bodies of the Rev. Edward W. Hall, rector of the Protestant Episcopal church of New Brunswick, and his choir singer, Mrs. Eleanor Mills, wife of the church sexton, the authorities of Somerset county still are working toward a solution of the mystery.

Two years ago last night the minister and the choir singer were shot to death. The double murder revealed that a love affair had flamed between them, and letters exchanged by them were made public after their death.

COUPLE UNITED AFTER 50 YEARS

By The Associated Press.

DALLAS, Texas, Sept. —Separated almost before the conclusion of their honeymoon by prejudices growing out of the Civil war, and each subsequently led to believe the other dead, an aged man and woman, formerly residents of Tennessee, where they were first married fifty-three years ago, yesterday in Dallas again became man and wife.

In the more than half a century of their separation each had been married twice and had reared families.

It was W. J. Jones of Farmington, Tenn., and Mrs. L. P. McCarson of Ferris, Texas, who were reunited. A witness was a son of the couple—their first and only child, born shortly after their separation. He is C. L. Jones of Dallas. He had never seen his father until the parental reunion occurred at the union terminal station in Dallas. It was the daughter of this son, Miss Edith Jones who contrived the event last winter, when Mrs. Carson was ill.

Miss Edith Jones, feeling intuitively that her grandfather was yet alive, wrote a letter to him last December, addressed to his home of half a century ago. Seven month later he received the letter carrying the news that his former wife was alive.

I DIDN'T RAISE MY BOY TO BE SLACKER SHE SAYS, IN SONG

Resentful of the "slacker's oath" being circulated by the Women's International league for peace and freedom, Mrs. Ames A. Fries, wife of the chief of the chemical warfare service, U. S. Army, has written a song, "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Slacker."

Fish In Sahara

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Sept. —Receipt of a shipment of fish from the Sahara desert was announced yesterday by the American Museum of Natural History. The specimens were taken from water holes in widely separated pats of the desert. They are of the minnow variety, but though they come from subterranean waters they are not blind. This fact, the museum officials believe, proves their arrival in the subterranean desert pools was comparatively recent.

In their embryonic state the fish are carried from one water hole to another in lumps of mud which cling to the feet of birds, according to the museum announcement.

PRIZE HERD GOES FOR "BEEF"

J. R. Plumb, Emporia, Sells Stock And Will Lease Ranch.

By The Associated Press.

Emporia, Kan., Sept. —A herd of 240 registered Hereford cattle which James R. Plumb of Emporia, formerly state senator, had spent years getting together was sold for an average of $00 a head here yesterday. In normal times the cattle would have brought much more. Yesterday they sold for "beef" prices.

Mr. Plumb is selling his live stock and will lease his 1,000-acre ranch of choice Kansas land. He will leave soon for Kansas City, where he will be permanently connected with a commission company.

Chekiang Army Fights Bravely Against Enemies

By The Associated Press.

The Chekiang army on Saturday was making another determined effort to hold back the forces of the Tutchun of Kiangsu, which, supported by Honanese troops ordered into the fighting by the Peking government and encouraged by reports of a revolt in the enemy's lines, were making another drive for Shanghai.

Secure Reinforcements.

Despite the disaffection in two of the Chekiang armies, the defenders of the city have been enabled to secure reinforcements which were sent to the front west of the port. Fighting apparently was approaching the city as further restrictions were placed on observers desiring to visit the fighting area. The opinion in the foreign settlement seemed to be that Kiangsu would eventually be successful and additional steps were being taken to protect foreign lives and property.

Lin Gains Successes.

In the North Chang Tso Lin was reported to have gained initial successes along the Manchuria-Chihli border between Chienchow, on the Pekin-Mukden railroad and Chaoyang, across the Chihli frontier and near Jehol, northeast of Pekin. According to news from Peking however We Pei Fu has not yet reached his stride. He is sending an army of 20,000 against the Manchurian leader and intends to use the fleet in the Gulf of Laiotung, where it can menace the railway which Chang must use on his advance toward Shanhaikwan and the latter's chief port, Yinkow.

Manchuria Is Goal.

Wu declares it to be the intention of the Peking government to regain control of Manchuria, which Chang has governed since his defeat two years ago.

Peking also reports that the transfer by Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the southern leader of troops to Shiuchow, in northern Kwangtung, is really a flight from his enemies, who have been waiting long for a chance to take over Canton.

FIND GIRL SHOT TO DEATH

Body of Student, 15, Missing Since August 12, on School Grounds

By The Associated Press.

KINGSTON, N. J., Sept —The body of Elizabeth Johnson, 15-year-old school girl, who had been missing from her home since August 12, was found on the grounds of St. Joseph's college near Lake Carnegie, here today.

$4,000,000 MISSING FROM POLICE FUND; OFFICIAL IS SOUGHT

John F. Cullerton, recently ousted as fire commissioner of Chicago, is now being sought for questioning regarding a $4,000,000 shortage in the police and firemen's pension fund, of which he is president. He is said to be honeymooning with an actress bride in Russia.

$12,000 Daily Collected From Issuing Passes

WASHINGTON.— The passport business has been a flourishing one for Uncle Sam this summer. It has strengthened the claim of attaches of the division of passport control of the state department that theirs is the one unit of the department that more than pays for itself. During the months of May, June and July passport applications averaged between 1,200 and 1,400 a day. Figures for August are not yet complete.

The great majority of the passports are written in Washington, only a few emergency ones being issued in the field. The abnormal rush this year was occasioned by certain conventions abroad, and the competition among steamship lines to secure the traffic by offering lower passage rates.

All the countries of Europe, save Belgium, Switzerland and Holland, require vises for which a charge of $10 is made, and must be obtained by the visitor before entering the country. The Irish Free State has been the latest country to fall in line and asks the customary "ten spot" from sojourners in the Emerald Isle. Uncle Sam started charging a $10 fee for issuing passports in July, 1920.

Rheumatism!

"Congratulations"—They feel like themselves again.

THERE IS a certain unexplainable feeling that goes with hale and hearty old age—it is a feeling of happiness, of care unknown, of reborn youth!

But rheumatism—that deadly malady which has caused so many to surrender to the woes of pain and suffering—caused so many to forego the pleasures of life—caused so many to be dependent. Why suffer from it?

To be helped about, crutches, canes and willing hands always needed to assist you here and help you there. Rheumatism will vanish the same as skin disorders—the same as sallow complexion—the same as that run-down condition when S.S.S. is used. S.S.S. builds red-blood-cells by the score. Your nerve power is strengthened. When rich, red, healthy blood courses through your system, there is no such thing as inflammation of the muscles and joints. S.S.S. is what you need to retain that old time vim and vigor and vitality, when you turn down the final stretch of life.

Mr. M. A. Farmer, Elyria, Ohio, writes: "S.S.S relieved me of rheumatism and nervousness. It is the best medicine for building up the blood."

S.S.S. is made of carefully selected and scientifically prepared and proportioned herbs and barks. Only pure vegetable ingredients are used. ELECTRICITY LIGHTS SWEDISH FARMS NOW

STOCKHOLM, Sept. —While the utilization of water power for every purpose has been developing rapidly in Sweden in the last two decades, there is a strong tendency at present to convert the turbine power into electric energy for further industrial use. The factories are being built hundreds of miles away from the source of their power, and electric current not only is distributed to all parts of Sweden but is exported to neighboring countries as well.

Social Life, At Low Ebb Here, Promises to Break Out in Force This Week

According to some philosophers it is always darkest just before the dawn. The dull week that has just passed is the darkness before the dawn of a livelier day in the society world. The last straggling vacationers are coming home this week. Students have gone away to school, and by the end of another week the colleges will all have opened for the fall semester. Women will have "done their bit" in the Texas-Oklahoma fair, and then for a surety the activities of the fall season begin.

With the last week in September dawning, a number of clubs begin their year's course of study. Programs, recitals, and concerts will have their places. The bridge clubs that have been disbanded for the summer are holding their first meetings of the fall. The brightness is just a week ahead.

Alathean Class Entertained At Baptist Church

Groups nine and ten of the Alatheas class of young matrons of the First Baptist church were hostesses to the class Thursday afternoon at the church in the first meeting of the fall season. The church parlors were beautifully decorated in fall blossoms and streamers of the class colors, white, red and green. Mrs. Ben C. Ackerman presided over the registering table.

In the reports given by group leaders 900 telephone calls had been made; 73 sick visits made; 165 cards and letters sent; 25 trays of food; 137 garments given; 147 social visits; 12 floral offerings; cash to charity $12.

Relief Band Organized

A hospital relief band was organized. The president, Mrs. J. C. Walker appointed Mesdames Ackerman, John L. Abbott and George T. Brown to serve during the month of October. The purpose of the band is to see that all Baptist patients in the General hospital are supplied with reading material, have flowers for them, and to be of service to them in any possible way.

FOR WORKING PEOPLE

The best of workers get out of sorts when the liver fails to act. They feel languid, half-sick, "blue" and discouraged and think they are getting lazy. Neglect of these symptoms might result in a sick spell, therefore the sensible course is to take a dose or two of Herbine. It is just the medicine needed to purify the system and restore the vim and ambition of health. Price 60c. Sold by all druggists.—Adv.

New System of Fat Reduction

Here is a new way for all fat people to reduce. A new way to rid yourself easily and quickly of the burdensome fat which makes you miserable. Why should you let yourself go, resigning yourself to being fat, when by using Marmola Prescription Tablets you can become slender again? Thousands of men and women each year regain healthy, slender figures this way. You too, can take off your excess flesh in this same pleasant manner. No need for violent exercises or starvation diets. Just take one small Marmola Prescription Tablet after each meal and before going to bed. In a very short time your flabby flesh will begin to disappear and soon you will become the proud possessor of a slender, shapely figure. You will never be admired as long as you are fat—for fat people are always being made fun of. But don't let that worry you anymore. One of the foremost physicians of his time discovered the Marmola Prescription for fat reduction and he also conceived the idea of putting it up in the convenient tablet form. All you have to do is to go to your druggist and get a box. Or if you prefer, send the price—one dollar—to the Marmola Company, General Motors Building, Detroit, Mich., and a box will be sent to you postpaid. Start taking these pleasant little tablets now—you will always be glad that you decided to try them. Many of your friends have used them successfully.—Adv.

Pageant of Early American Life Here With Circus

The present day influences, for the education of the youth of the land, are along varied lines. The ablest educator recognizes the fact that the mind is subject to influences found outside of the school room. For instance the moving picture house has an important bearing upon the mind of the young people. It is pantomic in its operation. It is called the silent drama.

In other words the modernists believe that the visualization of facts, historic or scientific, are supplemented by creating something that will introduce intelligence through the eye to the brain. One may study his lesson of history and as he gathers the facts he more or less gets a mental picture of what took place. Yet his mental picture, of what actually took place, is vague and indefinite, for he has neither color or tone to guide his conception. It is here where the pantominist comes to the rescue and lends definite aid to the completion of the mental picture.

Owner College Graduate.

No one would suppose that a circus could aid in this line of endeavor but the forthcoming Robbins Brothers which appears in Wichita Falls on next Friday does that very thing. It all comes about through the fact that the show is owned by Col. Fred Buchanan, a graduate of the South Dakota university. He is one of those veterans who seem to think that patriotism, and often called Americanism, is a very vital issue in the proper balancing of the national influences of the country. For that reason he has devised a method to present to the young—who are studying American history—thoughts which will cause them to visualize the heroes of our country. If one could see George Washington for instance he would take a personal interest in him and feel that he was acquainted with him. That in brief is the doctrine of Mr. Buchanan. So he has written a brief scenario, which he has had copywrighted entitled: "Historical review of America."

"This review is really a wondrous thing and is given on the close of the performance which will be seen here on Friday. It opens with the introduction of the real pioneers—a band of Sioux Indians who come into the ring in full war costume. This is followed by the "spirit of 1776." The reproduction of the famous picture of the revolutionary period is one of the prettiest scenes in connection with the affair. This is followed by Paul Revere's ride, George Washington who enters the arena just as he is in the paintings which we have of that period. He is followed by the Civil War period and Gen. Grant, Gen. Lee and Abraham Lincoln all come into the arena just as they existed in life. They are followed by Theodore Roosevelt, and finally the World's War—a smart batallion of veterans of the late war walking or rather marching into the arena. The music, the strange costumes of the different periods all lend to a wonderous performance.

CAR WRECKED, ONE DEAD.

By The Associated Press.

BRISTOW, Okla., Sept. 20.—W. H. Johnson, Bristow city detective, was instantly killed and William Cook, a deputy sheriff, and E. L. McElvaine, a constable, were seriously injured when their motor car overturned one mile north of here today as they were speeding to Kellyville to intercept three bandits who robbed the Kellyville bank of $1,000 shortly afternoon.

The three bandits entered the bank, forced four customers and employes into the vault, scooped up the money and departed in an automobile at the curb.

WANTS JIM TO WRITE.

Magazine Offers Contract For Three Articles a Week.

By The Associated Press.

AUSTIN, Sept. 20.—The fame of Mrs. Miriam A. Ferguson, Texas' first woman nominee for governor, is world wide. She has received an application for a job from a laboring man living in England, according to her husband, James E. Ferguson.

Letters and telegrams of congratulation and requests of all kinds continue to come to the Ferguson home in Temple from all corners of the country and from foreign lands, Mr. Ferguson said. She received congratulations this week from Switzerland. An eastern magazine has offered both Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson a contract to write three articles a week.

"Three articles a week!" exclaimed the former governor. "I wouldn't have time for anything else if I tried to write three articles a week."

The church reads the gospel today from the 7th chapter of St. Luke, from the 11th to the 16th verse. Here we are told how our Lord, continuing His travels, comes to a little village called Nain. As He approaches this village He meets a funeral procession. He is moved to compassion and revives the dead man.

Mayor Declares Crowds Ought To See Circus

Peter P. Kyne, the noted author must have had Mayor Frank Collier in mind, when he wrote his famous book entitled "The Go-Getter."

In this work the go-getter knew a business chance when he saw one, and never stopped on the way, but landed the proposition by his undoubted clear vision and energy. Frank Collier is of the go-getting type for he has issued a proclamation calling upon all the people to come to Wichita Falls to do their shopping and go to the circus. That is the day when Robbins Brothers big shows arrive.

It is a remarkable fact that circuses are the best drawing institutions in the matter of crowds of any of the offerings provided for the entertainment of the out-of-town people. The mayor argues that Friday next, when the show comes to town, that the farmers will come for miles and miles around Wichita Falls, and as long as they are coming to the show why not be enterprising and get the merchants to put on extra displays and possibly offer choice bargains for the inspection of the visitors. It is a good idea.

"Friday ought to be a good trade day in Wichita Falls for the merchants," said the mayor. "I got a telegram the other day from the president of the Pawnee chamber of commerce in Oklahoma, where Robbins Bros. gave a performance and he reported that the show was fine, and worthy of the attendance of the most fastidious. He also reported that the merchants had a good trade day around Wichita Falls can do the same.

"Furthermore the circus gives untold joy to the kids, and I am for the kids. I know how I felt when I went to my first circus. I can still feel the thrill of it. And I am going to see this one, and see if I can not get back some of those old thrills of the days when I went barefooted. I am going to feed the elephants peanuts, walk over the sawdust ring, and listen to the jokes of the funny clowns and will, laught at every one of them. I am going to leave the cares of troubles of office-holding out beyond the big top and just forget everything.

"So I say let's make a holiday of it. The smiles of the kids will be worth all it costs."

Budding Poet Discovered in Great Neck; Proud Father Publishes Poem

By RING LARDNER.

To the Editor: They ain't many things been going on at our little Long Island home lately so it will be kind of hard to make a story out of it. In the first place my little boy Bill (and when I say my little boy Bill I am comparing him with Firpo), well anyway my little boy Bill had a birthday and what he wanted was a he man bicycle as he had got on the board of one of his brother's bicycles a couple of days before and had found out that he could ride it without falling off very often, so anyway he wanted a real bicycle which I might say we ain't been able to pay for yet, and he got it and he got on it and kept practicing around the house and the bicycle stood up strong, but whenever Bill fell off he made a divot which will be hard to replace on what I laughingly call our front lawn.

The bicycle was a part of Bill's birthday present. I forget the original cost but when it is added to what he done to the yard by falling off, why it will mount up to something ridiculous.

Hospitality Offered Prince.

As a part of his birthday, why Bill and his three brothers and one cousin went into New York to see a picture show and when he come back I asked him what did he think of it and he says he thought it was rotten. So all and all he had a birthday.

A few days afterwards we went over to the Belmont race track to see Epinard the French horse run and incidentally met the Prince of Wales in the same way that you meet a traffic policeman, namely we wanted to stop and talk with him but the boys with him said go so we went. The Prince looked like as if he needed a few hours sleep and some steamed clams. In fact she whom I once married made the remark that he was probably fed up with Long Island society, but what he seemed to need was to come home with us and let our nurse feed him up with some milk and oatmeal. These suggestions was not made to the Prince, or doubtless he would of came home with us and got a decent meal and some rest, as I assure you we don't make people get up in the morning till they want to get up, including mine host.

Beautiful Verse.

Speaking in regards to the Prince, which everybody seems to of been doing, why my oldest boy John who gets out a newspaper every week, seemed impressed by the fact that he was on our island and wrote the following verses in regards to same:

Says the Public.

Here comes young Eddie, Prince of Wales.
He is some guy of course.
He's been on every boat that sails;
He's fallen off a horse.
He sees the races and the fights,
And polo, golf and such.
In fact, he sees most all the sights
And never sees too much.
And when it comes to drawing
A crowd, he never fails,
And yet it's all because his name
Is Eddie, Prince of Wales.

Says the Prince:

Here comes a flock of U. S. guys
Of every occupation,
And yet this country claims to be
A democratic nation.
Much better than my dad,
And yet all this reception style
Hey, Duke, lend me a dollar;
I see a luncheon wagon,
A meal in there will set me free
From all this bally naggin'.

One day later, as a reward to my son John for writing such beautiful verse, I took him over to the final tennis match between Bill Johnston and Bill Tilden. It was another one of those hot days for everybody but Johnston, who was cold from the very start. To make matters worse, we first had to set through a match for the veterans' championship between Craig Biddle of Philly and Dr. Hawk of Boston, neither of who should ought to play on a hot day. They both played like they was bored to death. They had nothing on the spectators.

Butte Club To Hold Rally In 'Arena, Monday

A citizens' rally is to be held at the American Legion arena, Tenth and Ohio streets, on Monday evening, September 22, for the purpose of organizing a "Butte for Governor" club. It is expected that supporters of Dr. Geo. C. Butte for the governorship of Texas will be present in large numbers.

It is said by its organizers that the "Butte for Governor" club will be entirely a non-party organization, and it is expected that his candidacy will be supported by a great number of voters who are ordinarily democratic.

It is urged that all voters, regardless of party affiliation, who will support Dr. Butte's candidacy, be present at the rally Monday evening. Plans will be made for the conduct of the Butte campaign in Wichita county. Dr. Butte has already been invited to open his campaign in Wichita Falls and has replied that, while he has not yet made definite plans as to his opening, that he would certainly give Wichita Falls consideration and would be here sometime during the campaign.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Sept. 20.—Estimates today placed the property damage as a result of the tornado which dipped into this city late yesterday at between $100,000 and $150,000.

With the exception of the altar, which suffered only a few scratches, the church building was wrecked.

A part of the roof of the Eastman hotel was torn off and the interior was flooded by torrents of rain. The Glenwood hotel also was unroofed. Guests in both hotels escaped unhurt.

Mrs. G. A. Bates suffered slight bruises when her cottage home just across the street from St. Luke's church was wrecked.

DAWES HITS LA FOLLETTE

Speaks From Train Platform And Assails His Opponents.

By The Associated Press.

Speaking at Dubuque Mr. Dawes declared he thought he would talk about the budget when he started the campaign, but that "like a thief in the night a great issue has stolen upon us, the issue of the constitution of the United States."

He defined the inalienable rights guaranteed under the constitution and the courts and asked "what kind of a government would this be if these rights were lodged in congress," referring to the LaFollette platform plank for congressional veto of judicial decisions.

An attack also was made by Mr. Dawes on these politicians—politicians who dodge issues and "preach high prices for beef on the hoof and low prices for beef on the table, trying to play both sides to gain favor."

To All My Sex

I offer what made and kept my beauty
By Edna Wallace Hopper

For 40 years I have lived a life of glory. All because of wondrous beauty and perennial youth. Some of you remember me 35 years ago when I was the rage of New York. Some of you now see me daily on the stage, looking like a girl of 25.

Yet I was a plain girl. My mother took me in a world-search for the greatest beauty helps in existence. France's great experts gave me the best they knew. And for 30 years they have supplied me every new discovery.

I feel that millions should enjoy the benefits I get. So I have combined all these beauty helps in four preparations. And I am placing them, as a duty to my sex, at every woman's call.

One is a super-clay

Clay is our greatest aid to youth and beauty. It has always been. Famous beauties have for ages gained their fame through clay. And millions now show the new beauty clay can bring.

But there is a new type clay, perfected by many years of scientific study. It is not crude and muddy, like the old type clays, but white, refined and dainty. It combines two clays with nine added factors which bring multiplied results.

My White Youth Clay is this new type. It is clean and fragrant. It purges the skin of all that clogs and mars it. It draws out the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings the blood to the skin to nourish and revive it. The result is a rosy after-glow which amazes and delights. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. Many women with one application seem to drop 10 years. To every girl and woman it will bring a revelation. The cost is 50 cents and $1.00.

Two super-creams

Two matchless creams have been perfected for me by some of the world's leading experts. They combine 18 great beauty helps. No other cream I ever tried in any way compares.

My Youth Cream is a cold cream. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster and protect the skin.

I use it after my Clay. Also as a night cream. Also daytimes as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. And my complexion—like a child's—shows what these creams can do. My Youth Cream comes in cold cream and vanishing types. Either costs 60 cents.

Facial Youth is the liquid cleanser which I owe to France. All the greatest beauty experts now employ it. But some charge $3, some $5 for it, so most women have not enjoyed it.

Facial Youth contains no animal, no vegetable fat. It cannot assimilate with the skin. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs. All the grime, dead skin and clogging matter come out with it. You will learn for the first time what a clean skin means when you try my Facial Youth. The cost is 75 cents.

My luxurient hair

My hair is my greatest glory—thick and lustrous, finer far than 40 years ago. I have never known falling hair or dandruff, and ever a touch of gray. Few girls or women have hair like mine.

This I owe to my Hair Youth, another French creation. I apply it with an eyedropper directly to the scalp. This does not mass the hair. It combats the hardened oil and dandruff which so stifle the hair roots. It tones and stimulates. Hair thrives, as mine does, when you cultivate the roots. I pity any man or woman who neglects that. My Hair Youth costs 50 cents and $1.00 with eyedropper.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's beauty helps. With each one comes my Beauty Book and my guarantee. Try one of them and you will use them all, as every woman should. Get the one you need most—now. You will thank me for it. Edna Wallace Hopper, 398 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.—Adv.

Bradley Duke Here to Handle Pierce Arrows

The Bradley Duke Motor company, at 609 Scott street, have secured the sales agency for the Pierce-Arrow automobile. A new series 80 seven-passenger touring car and a five passenger sedan have just been received and are now on display in their show room.

The series 80 is a Pierce-Arrow of more modest proportions than the large dual-valve six. It is built along the same distinguished lines as the larger Pierce-Arrow, and all the superior Pierce-Arrow quality has been put into it.

Beauty and Comfort.

In the seven-passenger touring car are found beauty, comfort and performance. It is a lighter car than the big Pierce-Arrow. The motor is responsive and the car steers with little effort. It is equipped with permanent top, balloon tires, and Pierce-arrow four wheel safety brakes.

The sedan is a splendid production with rich upholstery and all the little accessories that go to make up a refined and luxurious motor car.

New Features.

The car has a number of new features such as automatic spark control, the four wheel safety brake, aluminum body, single plate dry clutch, selective type slide gear transmission, and the Pierce-Arrow specially designed carbureator. The motor and other mechanism are very accessible throughout.

The Bradley Duke Motor company was formed by I. M. Bradley of Wichita Falls, and Thomas Duke. Mr. Bradley has been in Wichita Falls for a number of years and is well-known in connection with the Bradley Oil company. Mr. Duke has been working with Pierce-Arrow for 14 years, first with the Reeves Motor Co., in Dallas and later in Houston.

Mr. Duke understands the Pierce-Arrow thoroughly and during the fourteen years he has been working with Pierce-Arrow cars he has made a reputation for repairing and refinishing. Mr. Duke will have charge of repair work and service department.

Pittsburgh Orders Solid Train Load of Flints

Officials of the Flint Motor company last Thursday witnessed a trainload of Flint Six motor cars leave the mammoth loading docks of the Flint plant at Flint, Michigan, en route for Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania. The shipment was composed of 186 Flint Sixes, double-decked in 45 box cars.

The cars bore large banners on which was painted the Flint Six emblem and information concerning the trainload shipment and its destination. This trainload shipment is especially interesting because of the fact that the first solid trainload of the Flint Sixes that ever was shipped was also consigned to the Pittsburgh Flint company. The present shipment may be taken as evidence that the Flint Six has definitely made good in the Pittsburgh territory, and that the demand is on the increase, inasmuch as this trainload order was received at a time of year when the automobile season in former years was considered over.

MOVING OUT OF DOORS, SAYS KNIGHT DEALER

"Last year more than 9,000,000 motorists visited the national forests scattered throughout 25 states," says C. J. Bulock, president of the Bridge-Bullock, Inc., distributors of the Sterling- Knight six in southern California and Arizona.

"We are moving out of doors. Our recreation is now taken out in the open along scenic highways under the trees and among beautiful spots our government has preserved for us. Even in the last eight years the visitors to the national parks have increased tenfold, according to the director of national park service.

"Our habits of living are certainly being rapidly changed more and more, especially here in California where all-year touring is the accepted thing, by the rapid strides made in the development of the automobile to an indispensable unit of individuall, comfortable and highly beneficial transportation."

Olds Sets Record In Australia Run

On the other side of the world an Oldsmobile has duplicated the record made just about a year ago in this country when one of the first of the present six cylinder models traveled from New York to Los Angeles in high gear. The most recent feat was a similar transcontinental run made in Australia.

In both cases the first, second and reverse gears were removed and the transmission sealed with only high gear in it. The Australian record was made under the direction of Boyd Edkins, Ltd., Oldsmobile dealers in Sydney, Australia, a strictly stock car being used. It traveled 2,000 miles in its coast-to-coast run. The Boyd Edkins company cabled the Olds Motor Works, Lansing, Michigan, as follows:

"We have every reason to believe that our run was harder and a more severe test than was the one you held in the United States last fall. We encountered mountainous roads in bad muddy condition for 75 per cent of the distance. During the trip we climbed mountains in high gear that no other car had ever crossed in this manner."

BUICK CROSSES U. S. IN EIGHT DAYS TRAVEL

After touring 9,000 miles in Europe on a trip which took them to all the continental countries and England, the Howard boys reached New York only to step into a Buick and hang up a fast record across the country.

Only eight days elapsed from the time they started the motor going in New York until they headed up Van Ness avenue to their father's big Buick building in San Francisco.

The Howard boys used a Buick master six of 1925 birth to negotiate the distance from New York to their home in San Francisco. That the car performed mechanically perfect is indicated by the rapid time in which the young Howards wheeles their mount across the country.

Testing Grounds Nearly Prove Ruin Of Chevy Drivers

Paul Revere's famous ride was a veritable canter of joy compared to the ride given the 23 zone sales promotion representatives of the Chevrolet Motor company on the General Motors testing grounds near Milford, Michigan, last week. The ride was the final feature of their meeting at the headquarters of the company in Detroit.

Worse Than Natural Ones.

Bad as the roads seemed to be in the various sections of the country represented by these men, they all admitted that human ingenuity even went nature one better in devising the hills with grades from 12 to 24 per cent, tortuous gravel roads, rock-ribbed meadow driveways and sharp turns on concrete roads, with all the obstacles of bridges and culverts that might be encountered on the most dangerous of roadbeds—all of which are included in these great testing grounds.

These General Motors proving grounds, where all the cars of the various General Motors units will be tested, include an immense tract of 1,146 acres.

Driven for Days.

On these grounds, Chevrolet cars are often driven continuously for days and nights at a time and are subjected in two or three weeks to the actual usage a car might encounter in two or three years under normal driving conditions.

Eight miles of concrete and gravel roads constitute part of the proving grounds. There are approximately two miles of concrete roadways, 20 feet wide; one mile a perfectly level straight-away course, with 20 foot gravel turns; and the other mile built with varying grades up to 12 per cent. All of the concrete construction has been installed in accordance with the specifications of the Michigan state highway department.

PRAISE FOR MOTOR.

Oakland Motor Head Finds His Machine Gives Service.

Recently the president of the Oakland Motor Car company sent out 10,000 letters to owners of the Oakland 6-54 cars all over the country. Nineteen hundred and sixty-one of these letters were sent to owners in California asking for criticisms on these cars, according to H. E. Franklin, manager of the California Oakland Motor company.

"When George Hannum, president of the Oakland Motor Car company, set out to learn just what the owners thought of their Oakland cars, he mailed a questionaire to 10,000 owners inviting suggestions and criticisms," says Franklin. "Out of 1961 of the answers received from owners in California, 1,910 of them expressed themselves as thoroughly satisfied with the car in every way. Only 51 people had any criticism to make and out of these only three were dissatisfied."

STEARNS IS POPULAR.

New Knight Car Proving In Demand In Southern California.

According to Lynn C. Buxton, southern California distributor for the Stearns-Knight, says the new Stearns-Knight light six has made an instant and tremendous hit with the southern California motoring public.

This new series, which has been on display in Los Angeles but a few weeks, is made in six models. Four and five-passenger tourings are featured as are the short coupe, coupe brougham, five-passenger brougham and five-passenger sedan.

All the Stearns-Knight light six models are equipped with full balloon tires, four-wheel hydraulic brakes, motometer, windshield wiper and other necessities.

Moon Sales Grow In Past Month

Domestic sales of Moon cars for the past three months—June, July and August—were more than 15 per cent ahead of the sales volume for the same period of 1923, according to information just made public by the Moon Motor Car company, St. Louis.

This increase, made during the summer months, considered the slowest selling season in the automobile industry (and, this, too, in a year of sub-normal business) indicates a healthy activity in the automobile industry and a strong demand for Moon cars.

In view of the fine showing made during the summer, it is expected that the last quarter of the year will show even greater improvement.

Nash Unable To Supply Orders; Demand Grows

Indications pointing to a record-breaking volume of sales are seen by E. H. McCarty, general sales manager of the Nash Motors company, in making public the fact that Nash now has on hand more orders than ever before at this time of year. "Not only does the volume of orders for the new advanced six and special six series exceed any previous September in the company's history," said Mr. McCarty, "but it also surpasses any single month of the last six months' period of all previous years."

"The reception accorded the new Nash series by the public has been highly gratifying, even greatly exceeding the factory's expectations. Since the new Nash lines were announced, requests for information about the Nash franchise and actual application for territory have been received from 378 competitive dealers in all parts of the United States.

Rickenbacker 8 In Big Demand

DETROIT, Sept. 20.—"No announcement of a new model for the last year has caused a greater sensation in the automotive world or elicited more favorable comment from the automobile engineer than the new Rickenbacker vertical 8 superfine," states Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, vice-president and director of sales of the Rickenbacker Motor company, Detroit, Mich.

"Boasting many original features, this companion car to the now famous Rickenbacker six is taking the motoring public by storm.

"The eight in line construction is the very last word in automotive engineering, giving as it does a motor capable of anything which an automobile motor is called upon to perform.

"And through simple but effective design Rickenbacker engineers have been able to greatly increase the advantages of this type, accomplishing a new and greater perfection and ability of operation.

"The eight cylinders are cast en bloc but function as two four-cylinder motors. This is made possible by the design of the crankshaft and the use of an ingenious carbureter and manifold construction."

PERFORMANCE FIRST.

Auto Men Find This Is Main Requisite in Buying Car.

Efforts on the part of automobile men to learn at first hand the determining factors that decide the purchase of quality automobiles have led many of the largest factories to conduct interesting questionnaires with the result that some interesting facts have been brought forward.

First and foremost comes performance, power and speed.

This, at least, is the result of a carefully conducted inquiry into the reasons for the purchase of the new Durant four, according to Walter M. Brown of the Walter M. Brown Motors, Inc., Durant distributors in southern California, who investigated the reasons for the purchase of their motor cars by some 300 Los Angeles motor car buyers.

MARMON TO GO ON EXHIBITION IN PARIS

A Marmon four-passenger sport speedster, finished attractively in dark green-gray duco, has been shipped from the Nordyke & Marmon company's factory to Paris, where it will be exhibited at the Paris automobile show at the Grand Palais, October 2. The Paris show is one of the largest automobile shows held in Europe.

The four-passenger speedster is one of the most attractive of the Marmon models. It has wire wheels and is equipped with balloon tires. It's low, racing lines add to its attractiveness. The car will be assembled by Marmon mechanics in Paris.

Frank Hambly, who sailed from New York August 13 to act as the foreign representative of the Nordyke & Marmon company, will represent the factory at the Paris show and will cooperate with G. Espanet, Paris distributor for the Marmon car, who will have charge of the Marmon exhibit.

Seymour Presbyterian Ladies Have Meeting

Special to The Record News.

SEYMOUR, Sept. 20.—The woman's missionary society of the Presbyterian church met on Monday afternoon in the church parlors. The devotional lesson was led by Mrs. Geo. McDonald, followed by the lesson with Mrs. O. McDaniel as leader. An interesting hour was spent in the discussion of "The Query Corner." Mrs. E. C. Cargill made an enthusiastic talk on the "standard of excellence."

At the conclusion Mrs. R. R. Kellum, as hostess served iced watermelon to the following: Mesdames E. C. Cargill, R. T. Dickson, A. A. Grossman, I. O. Newton, Geo. McDonald, O. M. McDaniel, J. H. Milam, J. F. Allbright, Anna Bell Allbright and Rev. E. C. Cargill.

Wants to Remove Billboards Which Block Auto Views

NEW YORK, Sept. 20.—Clear vision of the roadway and preservation of national scenery are the two factors which should guide the location of all billboards, in the opinion of George M. Graham, chairman of the traffic planning and safety committee of the National Automobile chamber of commerce, in commenting on the effect of outdoor advertising on the well-being of the motoring public.

"Notable improvement has been made in outdoor advertising during the past few years," said Mr. Graham. "The bulletins of high artistic value and honest merchandising policy which have been erected in the front of unsightly city lots are a public benefit.

"Every field of effort has its limitations, however, and clear vision of the roadway, plus a regard for natural scenery, should be fundamental factors in the location of billboard sites.

"A board which obstructs a curve or a crossroad, or which mars an attractive view, is a public detriment.

"The multiplication of motor traffic tenfold in ten years has greatly increased the value of the highway as an advertising medium.

"The value of the attention of the motoring public, however brings with it a responsibility. The advertiser must consider not only the effect of his advertisement, but also how it affects the enjoyment and safety of the traveling public."

Have You Ever Driven A Rickenbacker—6 or 8?

No?—then just you resolve to do so before you consider any other car

THERE ARE SOME THINGS that cannot be told in an ad.

MERE WORDS ARE NOT SUFFICIENT to convey a true conception of some things.

NOR CAN PICTURES—such as we can print on ordinary newspaper stock—do justice to beauty of design, color or finish of this product.

SO YOU WILL REALIZE that it is impossible to give you any adequate idea of the many qualities—the great superiority—of Rickenbacker cars.

STILL LESS can we express in words the sensation of riding—or the exhilaration of holding the wheel yourself.

YOUR STANDARD for comparison is naturally limited to those cars you have driven or ridden in.

YOU MUST DRIVE a Rickenbacker yourself, to acquire a new and higher standard.

AFTER YOU HAVE once held the wheel of this car—sensed the silent power of the motor—the matchless riding qualities—the wonderful way she "roads"—and finally tested the 4-wheel brakes—you will demand more from a motor car than you had ever thought possible.

WE CAN—AND WE DO TRY—to tell you about these things. We try to express in words the advanced engineering features and excellent construction.

BUT WE FEEL ALWAYS we have told you less than the car itself can tell.

SO, AGAIN, WE SAY—you must drive a Rickenbacker in order to appreciate all its fine points.

CONTROL IS STANDARD and so simple any 14-year-old girl can handle it as well as her father.

JUST SAY WHEN you would like to enjoy an entirely new sensation in motoring, and we will have a demonstrator at your door.

IF YOU PREFER, a salesman will go along, to explain as well as he can how Rickenbacker engineers have achieved the phenomena you experience as you drive.

THEN YOU WILL REALIZE what we are now trying to tell you—how weak are words to express that which you yourself must feel in order to understand and appreciate.

THEN WHEN YOU TRY to tell your friends the difference between a Rickenbacker and any other car you have ever known—you will agree with us that language has its limitations.

DRIVING THIS RICKENBACKER SIX is argument that is irresistible—especially to one experienced in fine motor cars.

THE CAR ITSELF is the best salesman we have ever known.

The Nuisance Tax.

To Editor—who worry so much about who will be elected that he often forget unimportant news.

Dearest Sir:—

If you feel desirable to attend a meeting of the Japanese Thinking Society you will please find us now on 3rd story of Steinhefter's Brewery which we love because of prohibition atmosphere. Also we obtain rent cheap because Hon. Steinhefterf can make better beer while noise are goinz on.

Subject before that meeting last Wed. p. m. were What to Do with Our Nuisances Now that So Many Senators Are Out of Work.

When our thinker come together sharply at 8 1-2 p. m. Hon. Bunkio Zero, Japanese interior decoration, were the Chair while my Uncle Nichi were the Table setting on platform & holding water-picher.

"Silence in the coat room!" holla Bunkio Zero with voice like wallpaper. "Meeting will please come to odor. Problems before us to-night are how to run a cheap government so it will look stylish. Soldier Bone Us must be payed, must not?"

Deep breathing by all Japanese Thinkers present.

"Yet," pronounce Bunkio Zero distinctually, "I will say it twice. Yet. Then again, Yet."

"But Yet are not a Thought," holla Jumbo Fatomatto, Japanese whale-weight prizefister. "You could not do anything with Yet. You could not even start a Politickle Platform with it."

A Hero Rises to the Occasion

"Yet I say Yet!" snarerl Bunkio Zero. "Yet are most unimportant word in America today. U. S. might have merchant ships in every ocean, including Gt Salt Lake. Yet, America might be eating doves as a Peace Table with all other Powers of the World. Yet. American farmer might be enjoying so much money he could put gold teeth on all his hayrakes. Yet, U. S. have enjoyed a large war with Germany and pretty soon she will have a pay day@@ 1$ pr day. Everybody can afford it, because everybody are rich, are not? Yet!"

Every pocket in that meeting turned over rapidly. Hon Washington Suki, Japanese banker, drop 5c. on floor & faint away, thinking of the interest.

"Question before this Thinking Society," yellup Bunkio Zero, "should be how to remove a few Yets from American Politicks before another President are elected and it are too late. Cash-money must be raised up some-where or Hon. Gott will blow out. But where?"

Silence.

"Bricklairs, paper-hangers & other privileged classes," report Bunkio Zero, "cannot help plenty because Treasury now give them 25 per cent hand-back from Income Tax. How then, I ask to know, shall money be raised up from places where it aint?"

At this rapid questionalve everybody set still like mice in a ice cream freezer. Then a movement occured which throw blood into everybody's eyes with feeling that a Hero had got there. Somebody arose up to his sandsom feet. Who you sippose it were, Mr. Editor.

It were me!

So in a very unimpressive & swell manner I report to them following:

dib Bunkio Zero, 'get off the floor & set on the ceiling. You are away back in the Last Chapter. That tax on ice-cream, theater tickets & other unbances chopped out by Congress & enthusiasm. Sink to your seat, Togo. You are talking garbage."

"So ha!" I snarrel. "Do you ignorally umagine that ice-cream & theater tickets are only nuisances in America? Where are your eyes? Where are your noses?"

Nobody could find out.

"At this date of which I speak there are sufficient nuisances to pay for every mistake that Congress can make in 2 weeks or more." I say that with voice. "I wish to manufacture a new Nuisance Tax so that all the Nuisance Lovers in America shall pay the bills and others be satisfied."

"Have you a official program in your pocket?" inquired Hon. Chair, standing on 2 legs.

"I got it in something better than a pocket," I otter nobilly. "I got it in the refined interior of my brain. Shall I tell you this List of Nuisances,

He Gets Pinched, But He Showed The Cop a Car

G. M. Davis, manager of the Tri-Motor Sales Co., Maxwell-Chrysler dealers of Clarksburg, W. Va., the home town of John W. Davis, democratic presidential nominee, was in a hurry to reach Fairmant, 25 miles away. He was in such a hurry that his Chrysler did it at night in the rain over slippery roads in 30 minutes.

While running along at 50 miles an hour he noticed a state trooper behind him. "I supposed he was chasing me," he said later, "as there was no one else I could see who needed to be chased for speeding. But I stepped on it."

"Some time after I reached Fairmont the trooper rode in. He said he had endeavored to catch me for 15 miles and supposed I must have been at least seven miles ahead of him when I reached Fairmant. The damage was $56.60, but the trooper was so thoroughly sold by my inadvertent demonstration that the state bought one a few days later. I call it the best arrest for speeding that I have ever received."

Periodic Tests Of Brakes Needed

Periodic brake examinations are necessary for all cars and there are at least a dozen simple rules for keeping brakes in good working order, according to J. M. Sterling, manager of the Paize company of Southern California, Paige and Jewett distributors.

"Test both brakes before starting.

"Use the motor as a brake on hills.

"Clean the brake lining with kerosene once every two or three months.

"Tighten regularly all lock-nuts and rivets, avoid loosening the turn buckles and scoring the brake drums.

"Try out the brakes under various conditions and see how quickly the car will stop. When in service always add a liberal margin of safety.

"To test this out, jack up the rear wheels, start motor and with the car in high gear apply the brakes. Both wheels should slow down uniformly."

Unequaled Results With Unexampled Economy

The Brougham

Every one who drives the Chrysler Six is moved to wonder at the ease with which it rides and drives under all conditions. Unusually low center of gravity and scientific weight distribution enable it to hold the road with the tenacity of a two-ton car; a new practice in spring suspension eliminates side-sway, even when making a turn at 50 miles an hour. Chrysler-Lockheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes contribute vastly to these driving and riding qualities and add an extra degree of safety. Special design six-ply, high-speed balloon tires are standard.

The Chrysler Six

Pronounced as though spelled, Cris-ler

It is true that the Chrysler Six performs in a manner that has centered the attention of America on this car. Yet the wonder of its accomplishments becomes all the more wonderful by reason of the economy with which these results are obtained.

You get better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline—in itself an achievement for a car that can travel over 70 miles an hour. But this is not the whole economy story.

The oil-filter automatically cleanses all the oil in the crankcase every 25 miles; the air-cleaner prevents the entry of dust and dirt through the carburetor; the crankshaft revolves in seven bearings instead of three or five, thus preventing destructive engine vibration.

These are some of the contributing factors to motoring results that are revolutionary—not only in themselves, but in the lower costs at which they are obtained.

You cannot grasp their full importance until you drive the Chrysler Six yourself.

VALVE-IN-HEAD Buick MOTOR CARS

It is surprising how quickly a Buick owner accepts, as a matter of course, the dependability of his car. He thinks no more of setting off for a thousand-mile jaunt than he does of driving down town ~ so complete is his confidence in Buick's continuous performance.

Where Size Brings Better Service

One of the developments of the natural gas business brought about by necessity is the creation of large producing companies, like the Lone Star Gas Company. In the earlier days of the industry many local companies were formed and undertook to produce and distribute gas.

This worked very well until the field owned or leased by the local company began to show signs of depletion. Then it became necessary to obtain more gas, and this could not always be had nearby. As a result, the costs of production went up so the companies had to discontinue business or confine their efforts to distribution, buying the gas.

Before long that resulted in the organization of a large producing company that had available a number of sources from which a supply could be obtained at all times. This company, too, because of the magnitude of its operations and because it was sure of a market, could and did acquire fields in advance of the needs, and thus usually had a reasonable supply on hand.

Such organization relieved the distributors of the cost of hunting gas, procured a supply, and economized greatly on the cost of production, thus enabling the sale of gas at the present low prices and maintaining a high quality of service.

PIERCE-ARROW

its here! see it today

If you are one of the many who always wanted a Pierce-Arrow of more modest proportions and price than the larger Dual-valve Six—the new series 80 is built for you.

It is a Pierce-Arrow. It could not be otherwise, for it is the handiwork of men whose habits have become firmly fixed through nearly a quarter of a century of devotion to Pierce-Arrow methods.

The series 80 is fashioned along the same distinguished Pierce-Arrow lines. Its sturdy chassis, its noteworthy power plant, were conceived and developed by the same genius which has gained the universal respect of the engineering world.

Series 80 represents, we believe, the greatest dollar-for-dollar value in the entire field of American motor cars today.

We invite you to ride in this car. A demonstrator will be placed at your disposal upon request.

The Fable of The Lingering Thirst

By GEORGE ADE

On a certain Afternoon in the year 1924 the main Frolic-Chamber of the Lucifer Club was in a state of Semi-Repose. At the time this Exclusive Social Organization had enjoyed a fruity Reputation as a Bun-Factory, but our Best People had long since been weaned from the banfeul Booze. The Home of the Revels had been done over into into a Rest-Room.

Even as a Slave-Block was still shown in New Orleans and a Whipping-Post could be seen in a Delaware Museum, so the Lucifer Club retained some of the Props and paraphernalia of the Wet Age. Those dusty Steins, now ranged on the High Shelf as Curios, had once surged and frothed with a Hellish Compound containing as high as 4 per cent of the Essence of Tra-la-la.

An orderly group of protected and purified Male Persons sat at one of the Scarred Tables, gazing with modified Enthusiasm at a pitcher of Raspberry Shrub and a plate of Gluten Biscuits. They were Ex-Collegians but they did not Vocalize. It is a Biological Truth that Close Harmony cannot be extracted from Raspberry Shrub. The Members were in a sour and resentful Mood. A Servant had just brought word that the House Committee forbade the use of Carbonated Aqua with Fruit Juices.

When Members cease to Kick on the House Committee, a Club is no longer a Club.

An Old Reprobate

"We thought the Limit had been negotiated when they stopped us from using Ice," said one of the Mutineers. "I admit that the Tummy should not be chilled and I am not here as a Spokesman for anything that foams in the Tumbler, but there is a strain of Devilry in our Family and I shall use Ice and Seltzer in my own Apartment, come what may."

"Would you continue to freeze and Inflate your poor Insides even after a Majority of your Fellow Citizens had issued Orders to the Contrary?" demanded a College Professor. "Are you setting yourself up against the Health Bulletins?"

The Bold One began to backpedal.

"I cannot help but feel," he rejoined, lamely, "that too many Authorities are coming between me and my Duodenum."

The Victim of the Club Soda Habit was saved from further Humiliation by the entrance into the Room of a Veteran Member known as "The Colonel." Although somewhat-bleached by the kindly assistance of the 18th Amendment, the Colonel was not of the standardized Pattern. He still looked like a Gink who was waiting for some one to touch the Bell.

The Colonel had a Past which threw him into the Doubtful List, but the Fact which put a Dark Ring around his Local Standing was this: He still gloried in his previous Shame.

He could remember when every Vegetarian Cafeteria had been a Buffet.

He had played Poker for Real Money. Also Golf on Sunday.

He had smoked Cigarets. He had applauded when vicious Pugs bammed each other in a paddle Ring. He had seen the Ponies come schooting into the Home Chute, and then he had hurried in to cash with Ikey.

He had stayed up until 1 A. M. feeding on the mixed Harmonies of the Cabaret.

He had trotted in Hotels and Restaurants, on Ocean Piers and at Dancing Clubs, long since snuffed out by the Police. He had qualified as a Sport when the Title could not be earned on the Croquet Grounds.

In other words he was a Reprobate of the Old School.

No wonder that these Sheltered Ones, who had learned to obey the Curfew and never had felt the jingle of a Bronx, looked upon the Hold-Over with a degree of Disfavor, secretly tinged with Admiration for one who had hit all of the High Spots before the Universe was planed down to a Dead Level of Decorum and Sobriety.

Yearning for a Shot?

In the unwritten Records of the Club it appeared that somewhat previous to 1920 the Colonel had made it a Sinful Practice to pull a Birthday Dinner every year.

This jovial Function, which passed out automatically when the Club climbed on the Wagon, was still treasured in Recollection by a few Survivors at SOME party. But the Colonel's Birthday Parties had gone the way of the Jigger and the Jazz Band.

To show you how one hardened to Iniquity will cling to Vices, in spite of the Anti-Saloon League, it was whispered about the Club that the Colonel still protected in his Bark-Yard a Patch of the Proscribed Mint.

Also, it was darkly rumored that in a secret Cavern somewhere on the Premises he treasured an Earthenware Vessel containing the Contrabrand Fluid known as Bourbon. By the way of defying a Law that be disapproved, he celebrated his Birthday Anniversary by pulling down the Blinds, putting on Gum Shoes and a Mask and mixing a deadly Swig known as a Julep.

No wonder that the Juniors of the Lucifer Club, who had been kept away from Mince Pie speeded up with Real Stuff, failed to find themselves on a friendly Footing with this Unregenerate. Merely out of politeness they asked him to cut in on the diluted Raspberry. He raised a forbidding Hand.

"I my Youth I was taught to respect the Supreme Court," he said, gazing scornfully at the so-called Refreshments, "but even that august Tribunal can not convince me that a Drink is related to something which Nature intended for the dyeing of Easter Eggs.

"Surely you are not yearning for a shot?" demanded the Professor. "It is a Medical Fact that the Appetite for Liquor endures only a few Months after the Victim is locked up in a Dry Community."

The Colonel came back as follows: "I am not bothered by an Appetite. I am harrassed by Memories. All of you have read in your Histories of the wicked Times when every Hostess had Mortimer bring in the Dry Martinis just before Dinner was served. You have found References, in forbidden Fiction, to Bottles covered with Cobwebs; to the Uncle if the Bride holding up a Beaker of some Fare Vintage and proposing the Health of the Happy Pair; to gay Banquets at which every Speaker became an Inspired Orator after 9 P. M. All these Suggestions of the Pie-Eyed Period arouse in you only a Sense of Shame. You are trying to forget that your immediate Ancestors belonged to this Club, which was kept going Year after Year by the preponderance of Bar Receipts."

"You mean that you cherish fond Remembrances of Long Ago?" asked one of the Younger Members.

"Life had certain Attractions for me, even before they cut off my Allowances," replied the Colonel. "I know that every Person who dallied with the Accursed Stuff is now branded as a Miscreant and yet I recall many useful and interesting Citizens who would walk around a Nut Sundae to get a Rickey. Furthermore, among the virtuous Non-Drinkers was an alarming Percentage of the kind that no one would care to have around the House on a Rainy Sunday. They were Nice People but not to room with. They believed that a Drink was something that induced a man to go home and hit his Wife in the head with and Axe. They did not know, never having been invited to the Right Places, that sometimes a Drink, passing to its Destination under Salubrious Conditions, will induce a Man to buy his Wife an Electric Phaeton. Anything in a Bottle looked to them like a Ticket to the Morgue. One morning we woke up and found that 51 per cent of the Voters had absorbed the happy Idea that nobody in all the World must ever again repeat these viel words, 'Here's looking at you.' Up to that time there had been much Suffering among the Poor. No the suffering was Transferred to the Rich.'

Into the Desert

"You mean that the Drinking Classes did not wish to be emancipated from Slavery?" asked an incredulous Listener.

"Oh, Lad! Talk about Anguish! The Corner Saloon curled up and died with a Struggle, but the Clubs threw many a Spasm before taking the final Count. Never shall I forget the Day when the Blow fell. I breezed into this Very Room and told the Boy to get to work on a Tom Collins. You fellows never saw one, but I may tell you, without giving you a downward Shove on the Road to Ruin, that it came very tall and was not hard to encompass on a Warm Day. The Servant told me to shoot again. He said he could fix me a Collins except for the one Ingredient which made it a Collins.

"I started to Bark and was shown a Pamphlet with an underlined Statement that the Jails in Kansas were practically empty. Because the jail attendance in Kansas was falling off, I had to make a dreadful choice between Slow Death and Sarsparilla. While I was sitting there, trying to adjust myself to the Horrors of the New Situation, other Members appeared and began to discuss the Outrage. There was a customary Round-Up between 5 and 6 p. m. The Regulars would drop in on the way Home and get ready to meet their Wives and tell how hard they had been workin all day.

"It was a mournful Company, the day we left the waving Trees and singing Birds and marched out into the Desert. Away to the Horizon was a dry sweep of parched Desolation and something told us that no matter how long we kept on marching, we would never come to an Oasis."

On the Fritz

"You will admit that the World is better behaved since the dethronement of King Alcohol," suggested one who was reeking with Raspberry.

"I will admit that a deep Calm prevails over many Spots that formerly were quite animated," was the evasive Reply. Unfortunately, the new Laws have eliminated that rugged Character known as a Moral Hero. In the bright red Days of my Youth, a good Man was one who resisted Temptation. Nowthat all Temptation has been abolished, no Person get any Medals for being Virtuous. He can't be otherwise unless he possesses information which I have failed to obtain. There was a Time when the man who did not drink Beer or smoke Cigarettes or play Poker or look at Ball games on Sunday was regarded as Snow White. Now that Breweries, Cigarettes, Poker Games, and Sunday Base-Ball have been put into the same category as Murder and Arson, the Individual who keeps away from Santanic Influences is merely a Non-Criminal. It is a changed Universe. Golf has never been the same since the 19th Hole was wiped out. Formerly, Players were sustained through a Hard Match by Vision of that which made the Alibi sound more plausible and caused every Bogey Hole to look like Par. When you rob victory of the Celebration and deprive Defeat of soothing Consolation, you have put a good Game on the Fritz."

Suddenly the Colonel paused and looked toward the Doorway, where another Member of the hardened Type that was doomed to Extinction stood beckoning—his manner Secretive. The Colonel walked over.

"Come with me," whispered the New-Comer. "I know of a Blind Pig where we can get some Coffee."

Political Poison Warned Voters By Chas. Dawes

By The Associated Press.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., Sept. 20.—An appeal for since consideration of the agricultural problem free from "political poison," was combined with an attack on the LaFollette independent candidacy in an address made at a republican state rally here by Charles G. Dawes, the republican candidate for vice president.

Advised by republican leaders of the state at a series of conferences during the day that the LaFollette independent candidacy represented the principal barrier to republican success in South Dakota in November, Mr. Dawes at the beginning of his address temporarily cast aside his prepared speech on agriculture and launched an attack on Senator LaFollette.

He declared Senator LaFollette by his advocacy of congressional veto of judicial decisions had raised a great issue, "the greatest issue that can come to any country, the issue of the constitution of the United States."

The LaFollette movement, he added, "by one blow destroy a government of balanced power and give us a government by congress," and would place in the hands of congress the safety of the inalienable rights of every citizen.

W. P. McMaster, governor of South Dakota, and the republican candidate for United States senate, occupied the platform with Mr. Dawes and in a brief address preceding the vice presidential nominee, declared he expected to support the Coolidge-Dawes ticket.

Senator Norbeck, who like Governor McMaster, supported Senator Johnson of California in the presidential primary, presided at the meeting and also declared his support of President Coolidge.

MUSSOLINI WILL QUIT

Premier of Italy Prophesies Early Retirement From Office

NAPLES, Sept. 20.—Premier Benito Mussolini, who seized the reins of the Italian government at the head of his black shirted fascisti, predicted his early retirement from office.

In a public speech here, Mussolini said:

"I am a servant of no master but the nation. I ask no reward but my conscience. It is enough that I can look forward to none too distant date when I can lay aside my task, strong in the knowledge that I have accomplished something useful for the Italian people."

Why Some Men Get More for Their Cars Than Others

How much is your car worth today if you were to trade it in? An appraisal at the hands of an expert might surprise you—and the actual worth your car in "trade in" value will be far below what you have figured to be the worth of your product. Depreciation is the greatest enemy of the automobile owner and the thing which costs the motoring public millions each year.

There is but one way to cut down on the depreciation of your car—that is to take good care of it during its driving life. The more care you take, the less your depreciation—not the "tinkering" care that a great many men pride themselves on—but the sure mechanical care that is nowhere to be obtained but from the dealer from whom you bought the car.

His mechanics are always at your disposal—the knowledge of the men who built your car is at their disposal. They are the only men who are really equipped to repair your car. You wouldn't think of taking your child to an ear specialist for dental work—then why take your car to any but the dealer's mechanics, from whom you bought the car. They understand YOUR problems.

Why Reo Uses a Double-Frame

All Reo power plants are mounted in the inner-frame and are therefore doubly protected from road strains and shocks.

This inner-frame is similar to the main frame of the chassis in construction and appearance, but is made shorter and narrower—just large enough to carry the motor, clutch and transmission with their parts and attachments. It is this feature of a Reo that makes them last so long. There is no chance for drive lines to get out of line; road vibration has less chance to attack bolts, nuts and lugs and the strenuous wear and tear of long, hard trips does not necessitate frequent visits to the shop for repairs and overhauling.

PLUCKING THE HEART OUT OF THE MYSTERY OF MARS

By MONTAGUE GLASS

"Well, Mawruss, I seen Max Gittelberg, the election supply dealer, in the Subway yesterday, and he says last month alone on account of the planet Mars, they sold over twenty thousand dollars worth of radio sets," Abe Potash remarked the other morning.

"What has the planet Mars got to do with stimulating the radio business?" Morris Perlmutter asked.

"Where was you this last few weeks, Mawruss," Abe inquired. 'Ain't you heard it that the planet Mars got to within practically commuting distance of the Earth and that radio fans become very much excited on account of it?"

"But how do people who live on Mars know that their planet is called Mars fy people who live on the Earth" Morris said.

"I seen it in the papers that astronomers got worked up over it," Morris said, "but I didn't know radio fans took any interest in it."

"Why not," Abe asked. "I bet yer on the night of August 23rd when Mars got as close to the Earth as 37,000,000 miles, radio fans got writers cramps from turning the knobs of them safe combinations which goes with radio sets, trying to get the proper wave length, Mawruss, which I have spent evening after evening at the Gittelberg's y'understand, and practically the whole night Gittelberg sat in front of his radio equipment turning knobs to see what was the longest distance he could hear Mommer Loves Popper from. Only last week I sat in Max Gittelberg's front parlor and hear Mommer Loves Popper played by two drums, six saxophones, clarinet, trumpet, trombone and violins in the dining room of the Diplomat hotel, Los Angeles, a distance of 2200 miles as the crow flies, got to say 2500 by the New York Central and Santa Fe Railroads, and except for some livestock quotations interfering from North Dakota, you could hear it as plain as if it was in the next room.

"So therefore, Abe," Morris suggested, "them radio fans believe that with the addition of three saxophones, they could even hear Mommer Loves Popper coming from a hotel jazz orchestra in Mars."

"Well, I understand it, what them radio fans really expect to hear was some sort of signals from the inhabitants of Mrs." Abe said. "It's been pretty well proved to the satisfaction of the people who are easily satisfield in the matter of proof, that the planet Mars is inhabited the same like New York, or anyhow Venice Italy."

"Why Venice, Italy?" Morris asked.

"Because strong telescopes show that Mars is criss-crossed with canals," Abe explained, "which of course it's possible that them canals is natural, y'understand, but on account of them being too straight, understand me, the astronomers concluded they was canals and not rivers."

"Maybe them astronomers could also see gondolas being rowed around on them canals," Morris said, "and if they could get radio sets with the right wave length, Abe, they might even pick up the noise of them gondolas rowers singing O Sole Mio or something, and clinch the proposition that they are really and truly canals like Venice, Italy."

"But joking to one side, Mawruss," Abe declared, "serious astronomers have even claimed in the past that they have seen big fires on Mars like it would be some inhabitants of Mars trying to talk to the people of the Earth."

"Well, anyhow, Mawruss, it's been absolutely proved that the planet Mars has got air, trees, canals, snow and ice the same like the Earth," Abe said, "So why shouldn't they maybe have radio sets too?"

"Say! We had air, trees, snow, ice and canals hundreds of years before we had broadcasting stations, Abe," Morris said, "but supposing them poor inhabitants of Mars, nebich, did have radio machinery or even gawd forbid saxophones, y'understand, how could any radio fan get the idea that he could signal the planet Mars?"

"But, Mawruss, if radio fans in Brooklyn, N. Y. or Yonkers even can signal Hastings, Nebraska, why not Mars?" Abe asked.

"WZRGJKM" Says Mars in a Friendly Way.

"Well, for one thing, Abe, the people in Hastings, Nebraska, know that the name of the place where they live is called Hastings, Nebraska, by people in Brooklyn and Yonkers," Morris said, "But how do people who live in Mars know that their planet is called Mars by people who live on the Earth? Astronomers called that planet Mars just like fresh drummers call Pullman porters Charley, not because the porter's name is really and truly Charley, but just for convenience. The astronomers had to call that planet something, so they named it Mars, without consulting a single inhabitant of Mars, and the consequences is, Abe, that for all we know otherwise, the inhabitants of that planet may call it any name from Rabinowitz to O'Brien.

"Therefore, Abe, when a radio fan on August 23rd tried to get into communication with the planet Mars, by signaling: 'Hello, Mars!' in the Morse alphabet,—even if the people of Mars understood the Morse alphabet,—he stood as much chance of getting the connection as if he had been calling a deadbeat telephone subscriber whose service had been disconnected by the company for non-payment of their bill, y'understand," Morris continued.

"Be that as it may, Mawruss," Abe retorted, "I seen it in the papers where a radio fan somewheres out West had quite a little success by signaling Mars. In fact he claims he got some sort of reply, Mawruss."

"What did them inhabitants of Mars say?" Morris asked.

"Well, it sounded in the Morse alphabet like WZRGJKM," Abe said, "and while the professors some western colleges have been working on it ever since, they ain't been able to make much out of it."

"The chances is," Morris remarked, "That it means in the language of Mars: 'Dear Sir: Your esteemed favor of August 23rd, 1924, received and contents noted,' but even if they translated it as: 'Gentlemen: In reply to your communication of August, 23rd, 1924,' y'understand, I for one ain't got any high hopes that it's going to result in traveling salesmen from New York making the principal cities of Mars with a full line of plain and fancy canal boats. Because while thirty seven million miles ain't such a long distance when you consider how far it is from the Earth, to such assorted planets as Jupiter, Venus, Pluto and Appolinaris, y'understand, it don't put Mars in a class as selling territory with even such far away places as Brownsville, Texas, or Medicine Hat, Canada."

"But wouldn't it be remarkable if on August 23rd, 1924, the inhabitants of Mars was all listening in, trying to get a line on what was happening on the Earth," Abe said, "Which if they do have inhabitants on that planet, it's a pipe that they are just so curious about us as we are about them."

"I wouldn't contradict you, Abe," Morris concluded, "But this I'll say anyhow: If the inhabitants of Mars do have radio sets, I bet yer that the next time they get so close to the Earth, they would shut down them radio sets till the danger is over, because when it comes to Mommer Loves Popper being played by a Hotel jazz orchestra, 37,000,000 miles ain't far enough away,—not to suit me anyhow."

A MAN WHO BECAME FAMOUS
